Wherever you go on Fort Benning, people are talking about TAQ, PAT and other combinations of letters like there's something wonderful about these "things."

Well, there is something wonderful happening on Fort Benning. If you aren't quite sure what it's all about, here's the short version.

TAQ is Total Army Quality. Most civilian organizations use the term Total Quality Management. Various government organizations use other terms, but the principles are the same.

The Army management philosophy (Army Regulation 5-1) is do the right things, the right way, for the right reasons and constantly strive for improvement.

The objective is to serve our customers better and to create a climate where everyone will work together for continuous improvement.

Have you ever sat with a group of co-workers and complained about doing things in a dumb way because it's always been done that way? Do you know how to do things better? Of course you do.

Generally, the workers are the ones who know best how to improve what they do. Sometimes it takes several employees working together, from the same organization or different organizations or sections, discussing the process to come up with a better way. These employees working together can become a process action team or PAT.

Why not approach your supervisor and make some suggestions on how to improve some things? Every office should have a supply of Opportunity for Improvement cards (Fort Benning Form 24) to make it easy for employees to share their good ideas.

There are many offices on the installation improving service to their customers by improving their processes.

The Adjutant General Office is a good example of TAQ in action. Many success stories have resulted from their process action teams and they have just won the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel award as the best military personnel office in the Army.

One example of the success is the office's enhanced inprocessing system that reduced inprocessing from five to two days and reduced customer waiting time by 85 percent.

Why not work smarter, provide better customer services and feel better about your job?

You can do it — Fort Benning is the best and it got to be that way because the work force is the best in the world. Let's prove it every day.

If you need information on Total Army Quality, call the TAQ coordinator, Annette Parker, at 545-1812 or 545-3610.

Dress code policy rattles feathers

It is a shame and perhaps a sad comment on the state of current leadership at the junior level when you have soldiers from a first lieutenant to a private first class who refuse to demonstrate the basic leadership duties necessary to enable a military to function. I am speaking, of course, of the responses to the question posed in (the Oct. 1) Various Voices column.

To the first lieutenant, it would be easy to dismiss your comment "I don't think it is up to us to enforce the dress code" as the ramblings of a National Guardsman, someone who is not part of the "real Army."

To the staff sergeant and corporal, my remarks are simple; and, if they offend, too bad. If you think that you do not need to enforce a regulation set by superior officers or that it is too much of a "hassle" to abide by the regulation, you need to reread your oath of enlistment, study your copy of the noncommissioned officer creed, then sit down and take a good long look at your priorities.

As NCOs, you do set the example. If you cannot set a professional example and do not feel it is your job to enforce regulations, I suggest you find another occupation. There are too many outstanding young soldiers who are able to do the job you obviously do not want.

To the private first class, if you think you should be able to wear anything you want to wear, I suggest you begin planning right this minute what your goals are outside the Army as you have the wrong idea what the Army is all about.

To all leaders, junior and senior, NCOs and officers, take a good look at yourself and the image you present to others. Take a minute to read the new Army Regulation 670-1. Before you make those obvious uniform or behavior corrections, check yourself out.

To all soldiers striving to make the Army more than just a job, or a way to pay for school, study your leadership manuals. You do have the authority and the duty to make corrections on infractions you observe, just remember to be courteous, and be correct.

It was an eye-opener to read this column. The only "voices" who agreed that the regulation should be enforced were two civilian family members who have not taken an oath, but who, nevertheless, understand that certain limitations need to be enforced on some for the good of all.

My teen-age daughter has just opened the local paper. I feel good that she has at least opened the thing to find out that there are noncommissioned officers being tasked to wear the dreaded courtesy patrol armbands.

"But that is a money-making commercial establishment," she says. Oh no dear, that is a morale, welfare and recreation establishment.

"But I'm not punishable by the UCMJ (Uniform Code of Military Justice), " she says. But your sponsor is.

"This limits my freedom of expression," she says. So? Shop downtown where the merchants don't care what you look like.

"Who's to say that my jeans are disreputable just because there is a six-inch tear across the left cheek of my buttocks and I just happened to forget my underwear," she says. Fortunately for the other shoppers at the time of your visit, the guy wearing the CP armband will be able to assist you with that question.

"But I bought this muscle man shirt here; why can't I wear it through the same doors where I purchased it," she says.

These and many other questions are sure to arise over the course of the next few days. Well let's put them all to rest by just following the prescribed standards of dress.

For those of you who feel as if your rights are being violated, Sears and Wal-Mart are both open for business about the same times as the Post Exchange. And the guy with the armband is not the enemy, he or she is just another soldier doing his or her duty.

Where are our priorities? The other night I ran to the shoppette in a nice pair of slacks and a blouse wearing my Hawaiian flip-flops (that were good enough for church in the islands). I was stopped by three "CPs" and denied entrance for being in "shower shoes." They were not shower shoes, I assured them, but the not-so-courteous Courtesy Patrol sent me away.

I have since read your articles about dress codes and agree that unsightly and immodest attire should not be allowed, but let's not go overboard. And, does it really take three people to tell me?

I also read your article about yard sales. I must admit, I had one and didn't know you needed a permit. Next time, I'll make sure I do. I'm just glad the "Yard Sale Patrol" didn't get me.

Where are our priorities? Do we really need our military spending their time patrolling us? Store employees should be able to tell customers what their employer requires. And, can't you just keep educating us on what is required?

When I think of soldiers killed in barracks by illegal weapons, it makes me wonder why wasn't that patrolled. Or what about teen-agers drinking on post?

I had a couple of dozen drinking teens roam into my yard one night (we live next to a parking lot on Main Post). They were loud and throwing beer cans in the bushes. I went out and asked them to leave. When they wouldn't, I called the Military Police. Some time later, the MPs drove by, saw the teens and just rolled their window down and told them to move on, then drove off. The teen-agers just laughed and didn't move.

My husband was on temporary duty so I was home alone with three small children, but I went out and demanded they leave. They did then. The next morning, I went out and cleaned up dozens of cans in my yard. I called the MPs and told them how disappointed I was in them — that they had taught minors that you can get away with drinking, littering and loud noise.

So with all the cutbacks, where are our priorities?

Donna Lansberry
Family member

Garrison commander's response:

Our priorities are to provide a safe, healthy and pleasant environment for our soldiers and families. If all of us took personal responsibility for ourselves and family members, we would not need military patrolling for infractions that detract from our quality of life. Donna Lansberry is to be commended for taking a stand in her neighborhood. If the parents of the teen-agers had been as responsible, there would not have been a problem.

The Bayonet has published in recent weeks several articles that attempt to inform our community of standards ranging from dress codes to pet control. Those are not new standards. All of us are informed when we inprocess of the standards expected of us. Dress codes are even posted in our facilities for constant review. It is when we do not uphold the standards personally that the command steps in with programs like the courtesy patrol.

Unfortunately, there are instances of over exuberance by a courtesy patrol or a response not to our liking by MPs. We will continue to try to improve.

The real solution is for all of us to take responsibility for ourselves and our family members to be standard bearers and positive contributors to our community's quality of life.

Reader thanks 'good Samaritan'

On Monday afternoon, Sept. 27, my husband, an Infantry Officer Advanced Course student, was severely injured while training on his racing bike. His helmet saved him, yet injuries to his face and arms were numerous and will take some time to completely heal.

My husband walked approximately three miles, in what he later realized was the opposite direction of what he intended, when a young soldier and his little boy, who were on their way to go fishing, picked him up and they drove my husband to Martin Army Community Hospital.

I do not know the person's name or where he lives, but "thank you" for being a good Samaritan. It does not take a war to see how military personnel take care of each other.

Fort Benning Chief of Staff Col. Burnet R. Quick and Columbus Mayor Frank Martin cut Fort Benning's 75th birthday cake on Broadway in Columbus during Sunday's Columbus Day Uptown Jam. Other events Sunday included the Silver Wings, Fort Benning's command exhibition parachute team, and the Fort Benning ranger hand-to-hand combat and K-9 demonstrations, and the Infantry Band Combo and the Infantry Chorus performing on Monday.

Memorial service

Rangers honor fallen comrades

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

Marshall Auditorium was filled to capacity the afternoon of Oct. 8 as the 3rd Ranger Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, conducted a service to memorialize six rangers who were killed in action Oct. 3 in Somalia.

During a combat operation, the soldiers lost their lives after forming a defensive perimeter around one of two downed UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters and its injured crew.

The deceased soldiers are Sgt. James C. Joyce of Denton, Texas; Cpl. James M Cavaco of Forestdale, Mass.; Spc. Lorenzo M. Ruiz of El Paso, Texas; Cpl. James E. Smith of Long Valley, N.J.; Spc. Dominick M. Pilla of Vineland, N.J.; and Pfc. Richard W. Kowalewski of Crucible, Pa.

Col. James T. Jackson, commander of the 75th Ranger Regiment, commented during the service on the devotion and character of all rangers "whose talents," he noted, "stagger the imagination."

Jackson offered a tribute to the fallen soldiers in saying "their lives were cut short and their talents taken away from us, but this regiment, our Army and country are certainly better today because of these men's efforts and sacrifice."

> "We're rangers. You can never wipe out all rangers, we've been through too much for that. They paid for the ones they got and they'll keep on paying. And rangers will be around to see that they do."
> — Maj. Michael Fuller
> 3rd Ranger Battalion acting commander

Soldiers from the 3rd Ranger Battalion read from scripture and lead a responsive prayer during the memorial service.

Staff Sgt. James C. Hardy, of Company B, 3rd Ranger Battalion, eulogized his fellow rangers and said that elements from his unit would continue to do the mission in Somalia "with a high level of professionalism and discipline."

Maj. Michael Fuller, 3rd Ranger Battalion acting commander, recalling the famous World War II battle at Cisterna Italy in which elements of 1st and 3rd Ranger Battalions were surrounded by a numerically superior German force, quoted one of only six survivors to express what he believed would have best reflected the feelings of those killed in Somalia:

"We're rangers. You can never wipe out all rangers, we've been through too much for that. They paid for the ones they got and they'll keep on paying. And rangers will be around to see that they do."

The service ended after selected members of 3rd Ranger Battalion led a thunderous rendition of the Ranger Creed.

No shirt, no shoes, no service

Army reg requires proper clothing

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Improper clothing can mean no admittance to certain post facilities. U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 600-5 specifically states that "civilian attire will be in good taste and repair, appropriate to the occasion and worn as the manufacturer intended."

The regulation applies to all military personnel, whether active duty, Reserve, National Guard or retired, and to family members, civilian personnel and any other authorized visitors to post facilities.

Here is a summary of the regulation:

Shirts, pants or shorts and footwear must be worn in all Fort Benning facilities. Items specifically prohibited in on-post facilities include:

- Underwear worn as an outer garment.
- "Mesh" or "see through" shirts that expose the skin of the upper torso and any other garments that do not cover the upper torso, such as garments that expose the midriff or expose the underarms.
- Bare feet or shower shoes except at swimming pools and shower rooms or when sunbathing.
- Hair curlers or shower caps.
- Modified items of military clothing or mixed civilian and military clothing.
- Summer physical training uniforms, except at gymnasiums.
- Clothing that is disreputable or in extreme disrepair.

Additionally, the regulation states that male personnel may remove their shirts when in the yards of their quarters and when running, sunbathing or using post swimming pools.

Most post exchanges feature placards listing the appropriate clothing standards, including photographs of inappropriate dress, at their entrances.

MEDALS: Army chief of staff visits rangers

presented Army chief of staff coins to the wounded soldiers as well as to members of the Family Support Network, hospital staff members and volunteers who man the Family Assistance Center.

Afterward, he talked about the rangers he'd just seen and, dropping his voice, he said quietly, "I love them, you know."

In desribing his experience with the Army's top officer, Spc John Stebbins said he was impressed that Sullivan had visited them and was especially impressed thatthe names of the rngers were engraved on the back of the medal.

In additon to presenting the medals on Sunday, Sullivan also authorized the issuance of the Combat Infantryman Badge and other medals of valor to soldiers whose conduct is worthy.

Fort Benning to celebrate 75th birthday

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning is celebrating its Diamond Jubilee anniversary with a variety of events scheduled for today and Saturday.

Today's activities include a golf tournament at 10 a.m. at the Follow Me Golf Course, the Diamond Jubilee Ball at 6 p.m. at the Officers' Club and a Boxing tournament at 8 p.m. at the Briant Wells Field House. Spectator admission fee is $1 and 50 cents for youth 12 years and under.

Saturday's events, most of which will take place on York Field, are open to the public.

The day will begin with the 12th annual National Infantry Museum Road races. There will be a three-mile formation run for units, a one-mile founder's walk or run, a five-mile race for individuals and a biathlon consisting of a five-mile run and 20-mile bike, which can be completed by an individual or as a two-person relay race.

The 75th finisher in the five-mile run and the biathlon will receive the Fort Benning Founder's Award. Late registration begins at 6 a.m. at the showmobile on Eckel Street and ends 15 minutes before race time.

The afternoon will feature demonstrations by the Old Guard Fife and Drum Team, the U.S. Army Drill Team and the Silver Wings, Fort Benning's command exhibition parachute team, among other events.

AIDS

Disease is top killer

By Rudi Williams
American Forces Information Service

AIDS is the leading cause of death of young adults in 64 U.S. cities and five states, according to a national Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report.

In 1991, the disease passed cancer, suicide, homicide, chronic liver disease, stroke, pneumonia, influenza and diabetes mellitus as the leading cause of death among men between 25 to 44.

It is the sixth leading cause of death of women in this age group, according to the CDC report.

Aquired immune deficiency syndrome claimed the lives of 29,850 Americans in 1991; some 182,275 have died since 1981, according to the report.

"Although deaths from all causes in (the 25 to 44) age group comprised only 7 percent of total U.S. deaths in 1991, they impose a disproportionately high impact on society because of the loss of productive years of life and the loss of parents from families with young children," the report said.

States hardest hit are California, Florida, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York.

Cities with the highest percentage of AIDS-related deaths are San Francisco, 61 percent; Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 51 percent; Elizabeth, N.J., 45 percent; Miami and Jersey City, N.J., 43 percent; Paterson, N.J., and Seattle, 39 percent; and Atlanta, Pasadena, Calif., Denver and Arlington, Va., 38 percent.

Cities with the highest percentage of women dying from AIDS-related illnesses include Newark, N.J., 43 percent; Jersey City, 38 percent; Paterson, 37 percent; Stamford, Conn., 30 percent; New Haven, Conn., and Miami, 28 percent; New York, 24 percent; Fort Lauderdale, 22 percent; and Baltimore, 15 percent.

CDC based its report on death certificates filed in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Causes of death were reported by attending physicians, medical examiners and coroners. Demographic characteristics were recorded by funeral directors.

Researchers predict that 1992 results will show the number and proportion of deaths caused by HIV infection will increase beyond the 1990 and 1991 levels.

Statistics for 1991 show that seven times more men aged 25 to 44 died of AIDS than women in the same age group. However, the report noted that since 1985, the death rate among women has risen faster than the men's.

The death rate in 1990 was 22 percent for Hispanics, 19 percent for African Americans, 15 percent for whites, 7 percent for Asian and Pacific Islanders and 3 percent for American Indian and Alaskan Natives.

Human immunodefficiency virus infection accounted for 11 percent of deaths for Hispanic and African-American women in 1990, according to the report. However, the report continued, the HIV death rate for African-American women was nearly three times that for Hispanic women.

Both the proportions of deaths caused by HIV infection and the HIV death rates were substantially higher for African-American and Hispanic women than for women of white and other racial and ethnic groups.

The report said differences in risk among racial and ethnic groups may reflect social, economic, behavioral or other factors rather than race or ethnicity directly. Further analyses are needed to better understand these associations, the report said.

POST BRIEFS

Incoming traffic to be rerouted until 8:15 a.m.

Because of road construction, normal incoming traffic rerouting will be extended until 8:15 a.m. until construction is complete.

Open season set for health benefits

The 1993 federal employees Health Benefits Program open season will be Nov. 8 through Dec. 13.

Enrollment and changes will be effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning after Jan. 1.

Employees who make a change must be in a pay status for some part of the pay period prior to the one in which enrollment takes effect.

For more information, contact the Directorate of Civilian Personnel.

DPW schedules organization day

The Directorate of Public Works will be closed Oct. 22 from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to conduct its organization day activities at Uchee Creek. Emergency work orders will be handled using the regular work order number, 545-2135.

Property auction Tues.

A property auction will be Tuesday beginning at 10 a.m. at the Outdoor Recreation Office, Building 1704, Gillespie Street.

For more information, call John Dorsey at 545-2348.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Oct. 24. If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: C-1, C-3, E-7, K-8, K-11, O-3, O-4, O-5, O-6, O-7, O-8, O-14, Q-2, S-1 and T-5.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas. People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

1994 SDT dates set

The fiscal 1994 self-development testing dates have been set. By-name test schedules and SDT notice pamphlets have been distributed for the October through December test period.

Primary military occupational specialty and skill levels to be tested are 13M2/3/4, 73C3/4, 76J2/3/4, 83E2/3, 91R2/3/4, 91S2/3/4, 92B2/3/4, 95C2/3/4 and 98C2/3/4. The test dates for these specialties are scheduled for Dec. 1, 2, 13, 14, 15 and 16 in Brown Hall, Building 328.

Soldiers are to report no later than 8:30 a.m. on the date scheduled in military uniform with a valid identification card.

Soldiers who need to be scheduled or those who cannot report as scheduled should notify their unit first sergeant or training noncommissioned officer.

Soldiers who fail to test because of their own negligence may receive an official zero.

Trial Defense office to close Oct. 26 to 29

Because of Defense Counsel's Conference, the Trial Defense Office located in Building 65 will be closed Oct. 26 through 29.

Normal operating hours will resume Nov. 1. In case of emergency, call 545-2175 or 545-2176.

SJA office to close

The Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, Winship Hall, Building 5, will be closed on the last Wednesday of every month from 8:30 to 10 a.m. to allow all personnel to attend customer service training.

Air conditioning season to end

The air conditioning season ended Tuesday and the heating season has yet to begin. During the period of transition, the Energy Management and Control System will be used to control air conditioning and heating on buildings and quarters.

It's important to remember that the weather will dictate the use of air conditioning or heat. Every attempt will be made to ensure the comfort of the residents and the employees of this post, consistent with the installation's energy guidelines.

The customer service center is now taking service orders on known heating problems. For further information, contact the Energy Branch at 545-SWAT.

Signature needed for AER applications

All Army Emergency Relief applications, Department of the Army Form 1103, are now required to have a statement that it has been reviewed by the soldier's first sergeant. The unit commander's signature is still required for processing.

Health care: DoD to reflect national reform

Army News Service

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Health-care planners are continuing to iron out details of the Defense Department response to national health-care reform. The military health-care system changes will take at least two years to implement.

In the near term, DoD will continue to consult with the branches of the armed services and with committees of Congress to develop and implement the specifics of the military health-care system once the legislation is passed by Congress.

Under the DoD plan, family members of active-duty personnel, military retirees, family members of retirees and survivors would be given a choice of three health plans. Officials said the plans will provide the nationally guaranteed benefit package, plus the additional services currently offered through the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services and through military hospitals.

Officials say non-active-duty beneficiaries will receive "comprehensive, accessible health care that is low cost." Under the plan, these beneficiaries will be offered a choice between a military health plan or selected civilian health plans each year.

Health plan option

All non-active-duty beneficiaries eligible for the CHAMPUS or Medicare will be eligible to enroll in the military health plan. Officials say the new plan will provide, at the least, health care equal to that available at present.

Throughout most of the United States, military medical managers will coordinate peacetime health care in 12 geographic regions. Each region will be supported mainly by military hospitals and clinics, and will be supplemented by networks of selected civilian health care providers.

Cost-sharing for health care under civilian providers will be less than under standard CHAMPUS, and no co-payments for care at military medical facilities will be required under the program.

Other choices

The reform measures would allow family members or retirees to choose from at least two civilian health plans. In areas of the country where a military health plan is not available, beneficiaries would be able to choose from at least three civilian health care plans.

"Fee-for-service" and "managed care" plans are choices available for those beneficiaries who don't choose the military health plan. Those who elect to join a civilian health plan may be subject to annual premiums, deductible payments and co-payments, depending on which plan they choose.

Beneficiaries opting for fee-for-service plans will have a wide choice of civilian doctors, but will pay a higher cost-share. Fee-for-service plans usually have premium, deductibles and co-payments.

These plans typically have premiums; some have deductibles, and some have co-payments.

In either case, DoD or private employers would contribute a major part of the plans' premiums. The contribution would amount to 80 percent of the average-priced plan in the area.

Military Health Plans

Military health plans will require no deductibles, but will charge an annual enrollment fee. By-category costs associated with the plan, based on 1995 estimates, are:

Category	Annual fee	Cost per doctor visit
Active-duty family sponsor corporal or below	No cost	$5 per visit
Active-duty family, sponsor sergeant or above	$35 per person or $70 per family	$10 per visit
Retiree and retiree family	$50 per person or $100 per family	$15 per visit

Medicare-eligibles and the military health plan

Beneficiaries who are eligible for Medicare — retirees, family members or survivors age 65 or older — would have the option of choosing Medicare or Tricare under the proposed health care reform.

Medicare-eligibles who wish to join the a military health plan will pay an annual fee of $50, or $100 per family, based on a 1995 estimate. Once enrolled, they would receive all care through a network of military medical facilities and contracted civilian health care providers, at a cost-share less than that of Medicare.

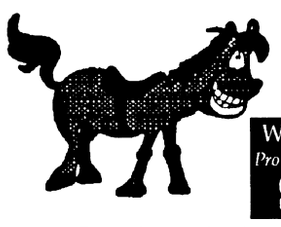
Enrollment of beneficiaries in the military health plan can become limited, based the capability of both the military treatment facilities and networks of civilian providers, officials said.

Should that occur, a priority of enrollment will go into effect in which active-duty family members would be allowed to enroll first, followed by retirees and their family members. However, once enrolled, their care is subject only to active-duty member priority.

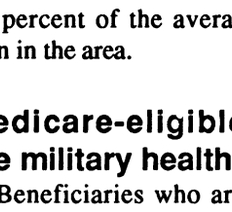
Those who choose or remain with Medicare would see their benefits remain basically unchanged, with the exception of enhanced coverage for outpatient prescription drugs and more Medicare HMOs in which to enroll, officials said.

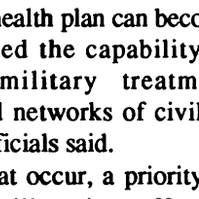
VA Q&A

Department of Veterans Affairs

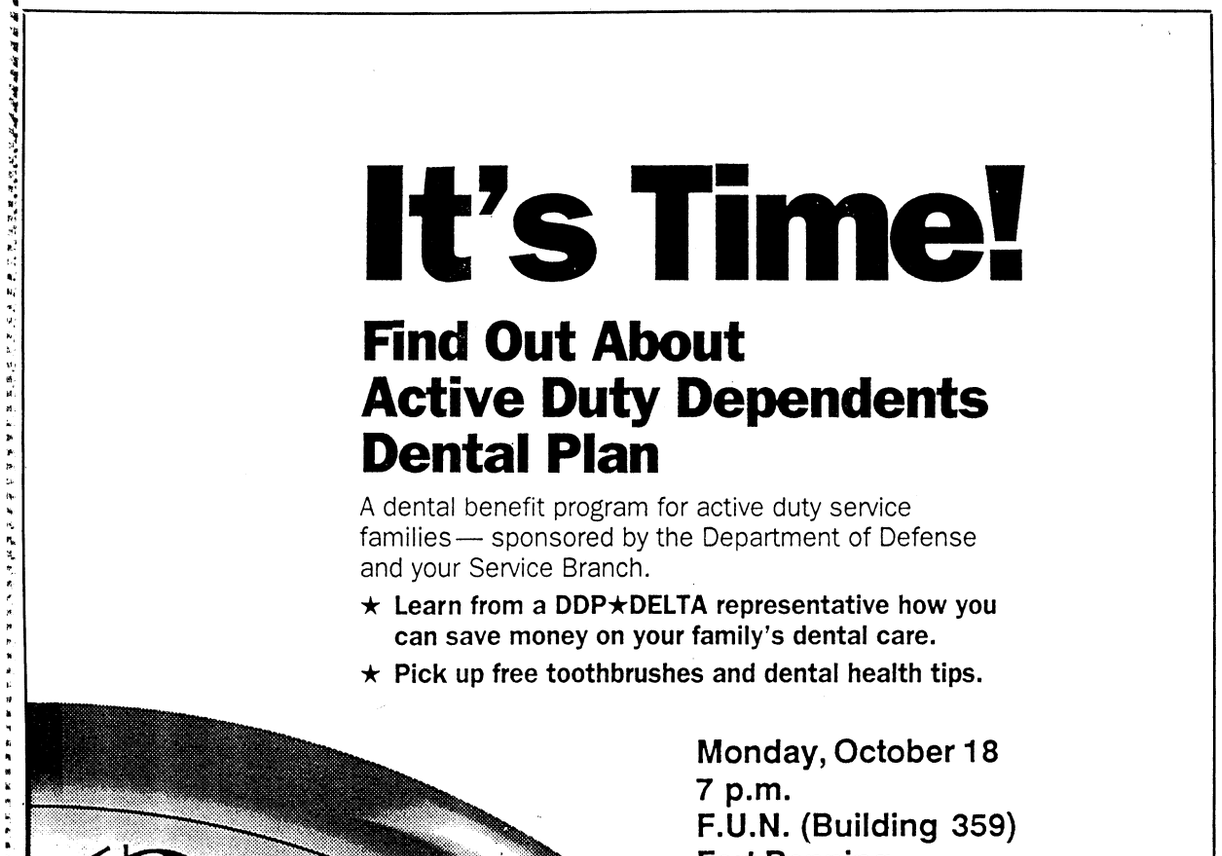


Q: My ex-husband is receiving VA compensation benefits and is claiming our three children as dependents. However, he provides me with no financial support for our children. Can the Department of Veterans Affairs help me?

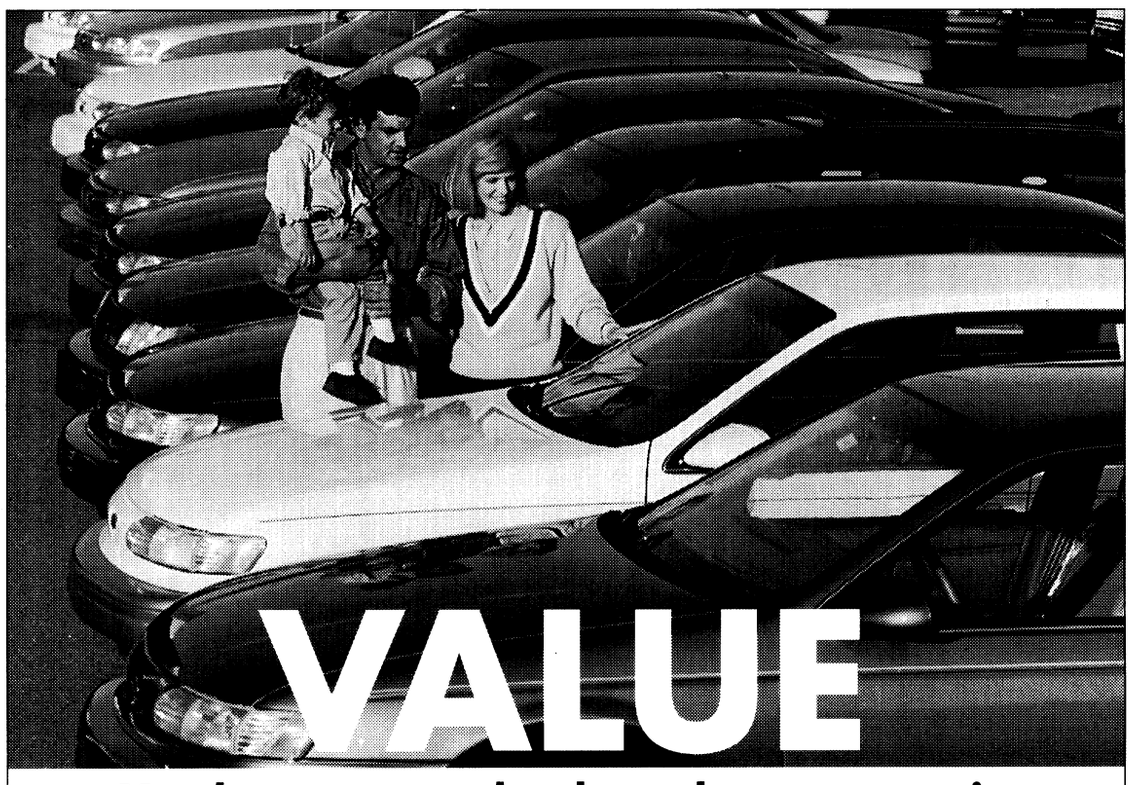




A: Yes. You can apply for an apportionment of the VA benefits your ex-husband is receiving for the children he claims but are in your custody. Call the nearest VA regional office at (800) 827-1000 and ask a veterans benefits counselor.



Q: I am a divorced veteran. Can I remove my ex-wife as beneficiary on my VA life insurance policy?



A: Yes. Your government life insurance contract gives you the right to designate or change your beneficiary at any time. You can do so without the beneficiary's consent or knowledge. Call the VA Insurance Center at (800) 669-8477 to request a form.

Oct. 28: noon to 2 p.m., mock interview practice session

Oct. 29: "Employers' Day"

Job assistance workshop

Time: Wednesdays, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Location: Infantry Hall, Building 4

The workshop is conducted every Wednesday at Infantry Hall. Topics discussed include objective setting, resume preparation, expanding opportunities, networking, interviewing, salary negotiating, stress management and financial planning.

The workshop is for anyone in federal service (both military and Department of the Army civilians) and their family members, whether leaving voluntarily, involuntarily or retiring.

Education Opportunity Center

Time: Wednesdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Participants will receive information from all over the country about college and university admissions requirements and proficiency exams. Education counselors can also discuss student loans and grants.

Mock Interview Practice

Time: Thursdays, 2 to 4 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Participants will learn how to interview effectively by rehearsing and practicing interview techniques with an experienced JAC counselor. The mock interview will be videotaped to provide the client with a visual learning tool.

Employers' Day

Time: Fridays, time varies

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Employer day is scheduled each Friday at the Job Assistance Center. The program is designed to allow employers to recruit qualified candidates for their companies.

Employers normally will give presentations on their organizations and set up interviews with qualified candidates.

A variety of manufacturing and service companies take advantage of this opportunity. Public sector organizations are also represented.

Focus Hour

Time: Tuesdays, noon to 1 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Weekly video program that provides additional information on the key areas in the job search process — networking, dressing for success, interview process and negotiating techniques. Counselors will assist with any additional questions.

Looters beware

High-tech system to monitor post's archaeological sites

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Department of the Army selected Fort Benning to field test a high-tech, intrusion detection system for archaeological sites.

Known as HIPROTECT (human intrusion protect), the system is scheduled to be installed at Fort Benning's archaeological sites sometime this month to discourage looters.

Yuchi Town is one of those sites looted in the past. It is located several miles from Fort Benning's Main Post.

Yuchi Town was inhabited by the Native American Yuchi Indians, which at the time of European contact, were affiliated with and living among the Creek Indians. The town was described in the 1770s as having about 1,000 to 1,500 inhabitants.

It was abandoned sometime in the 1830s, following the forced resettlement of most Native Americans in the Oklahoma region.

HIPROTECT will monitor the Yuchi site 24 hours a day with an array of detection sensors — seismic for ground vibrations, infrared for body heat and magnetic for metals such as belt buckles, according to Dean Wood, post archaeologist.

Cellular phone communications will connect the system to a monitoring station and a video camera will sweep the area, Wood said.

When an intruder is detected, a speaker system warns the trespasser to leave. Federal law prohibits looting or unauthorized excavations on federally owned archeological sites.

The test project is funded by the Legacy Resources Management Program, which will pay for the system and technical support from Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory and the University of California at Riverside.

Fort Benning will provide monitoring and interdiction personnel.

The Department of Defense receives funds from congress through Legacy, to enhance natural and cultural resources on federal lands, Wood said.

Curbside recycling to begin

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Curbside pickup of recyclable materials is set to begin next week for certain neighborhoods on post, according to Mo Armstrong, post recycling coordinator.

Here is a complete listing of when and where curbside pickup will begin:

- Thursday: Norton Court, McDaniel Manor and Bouton Heights.
- Oct. 22: Perkins Place, McIver Street, Upatoi Terrace and East Main Post.
- Oct. 27: Indianhead Terrace, Custer Terrace, Davis Hill, Austin Loop, Miller Loop and McGraw Manner.

Curbside pickup will continue once each week on the same day of the week as the dates listed above. Residents should place their brown plastic bins with recyclable materials at the side of the curb before 7:30 a.m. on the day of pick up.

Armstrong reminded post residents that only the following items can be placed at curbside for recycling:

- Cans: Aluminum and steel cans that are rinsed out can be recycled.
- Plastic: Only soft drink bottles and milk jugs can be accepted at this time. The caps should be removed and the containers rinsed out.
- Glass: Any glass soft drink, beer, juice, ketchup, wine, liquor and food containers can be recycled. All caps and lids should be removed and the containers rinsed out.

"Special care should be taken to ensure that the glass is not broken when it is placed in the bin," Armstrong said. "Broken glass cannot be accepted because it poses safety problems and makes separation difficult."

- Newspaper: All newspaper should be bundled or placed in a brown paper bag beside the recycling bin. Magazines cannot be accepted at this time.
- Cardboard: Pick up of large cardboard items, such as boxes used during moving, must be coordinated directly by calling 544-6142.

Post competitors take tournament

Fort Benning Yoshukai Karate Club

Sixteen Fort Benning competitors won 27 trophies and three medals at an in-house karate competition hosted by Scott Self, regional director of Mike Fosters Yoshukai International Karate Association Sept. 25.

The Fort Benning branch, instructed by Ron Ziss, did themselves proud once again.

The karate-ka won seven first places, 12 second places, eight third places and three fourth places.

Winning first place in fighting was green belt Scott Pruitt. First place honors in kata (forms), went to Michael Malave, brown belt; Pruitt, green belt; Gavin Gonsalves, green belt; Edwin Rodriguez, blue belt; Bobby Reyes, yellow belt and Tony Johnson, yellow belt.

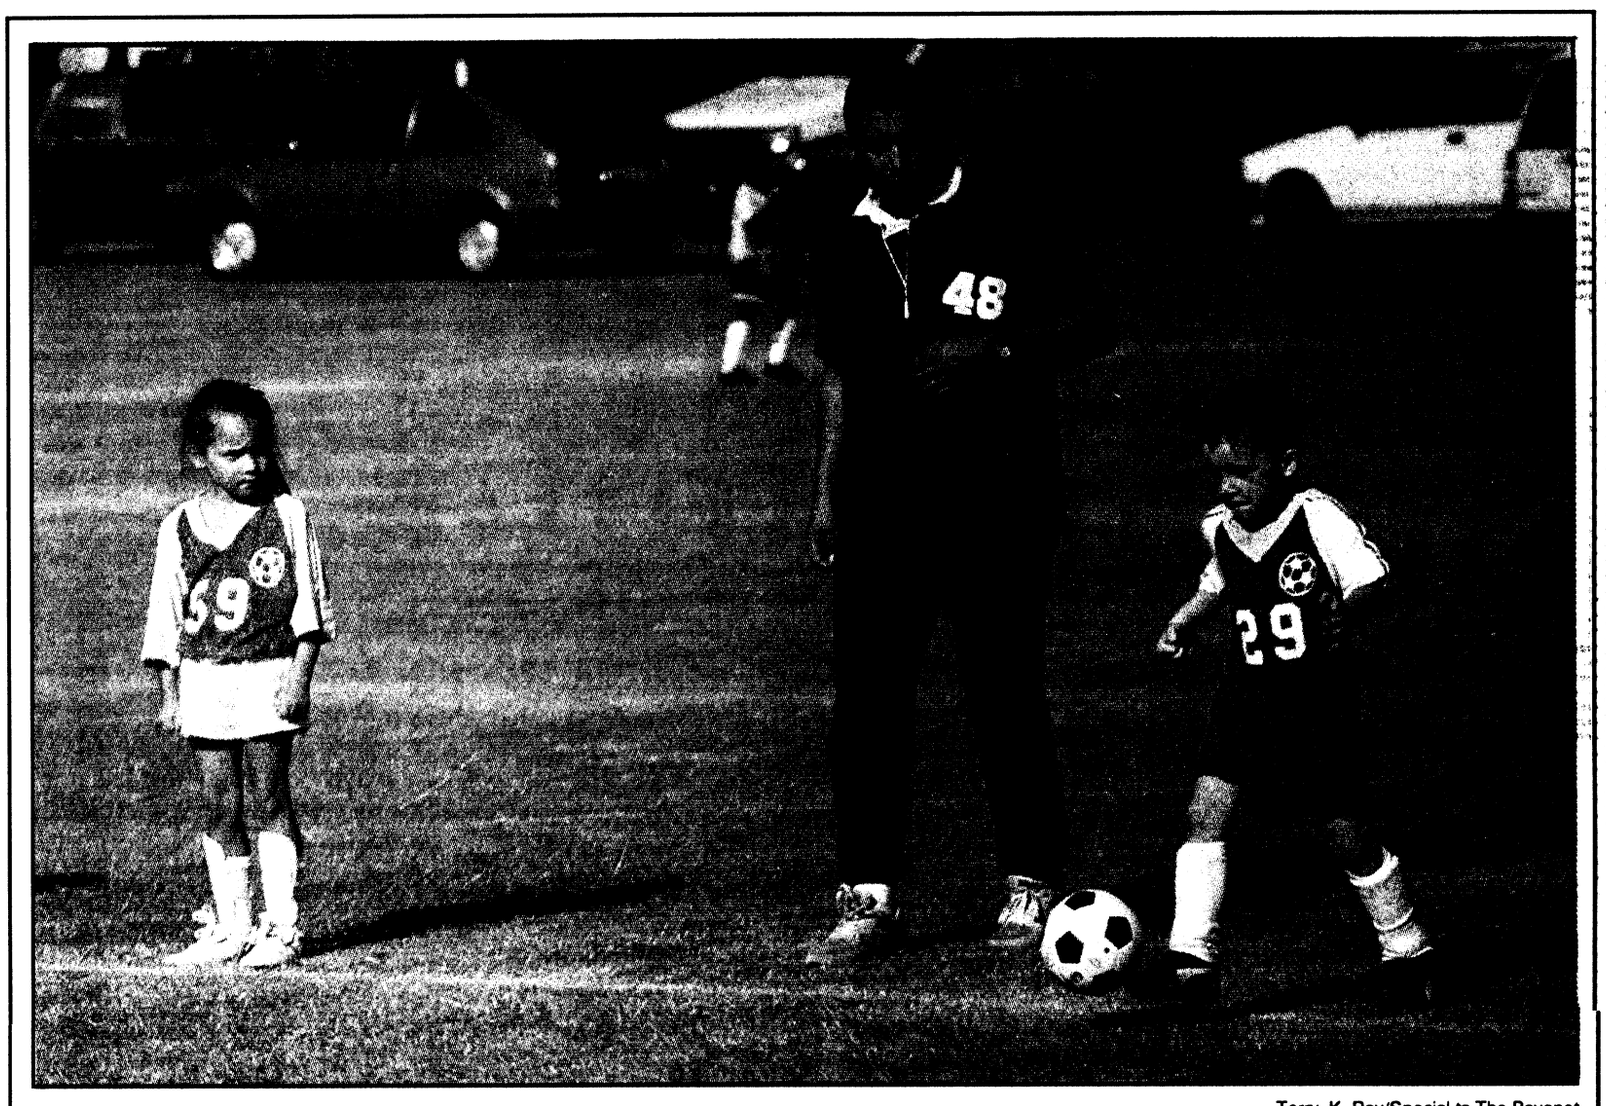
Second-place honors in kata went to Mike Jones, green belt; Steadham blue belt; Falguni Vyas, yellow belt; Priyesh Vyas, yellow belt and Franck, yellow belt.

Third-place competitors in sparring were Jones, green belt; Rodriguez, blue belt; Staples, yellow belt; Falguni Vyas, yellow belt; Priyesh Vyas, yellow belt and Matt Loper, yellow belt.

Third place kata trophies were awarded to Walls, green belt; B.J. Allen Jr., blue belt; and Staples, yellow belt.

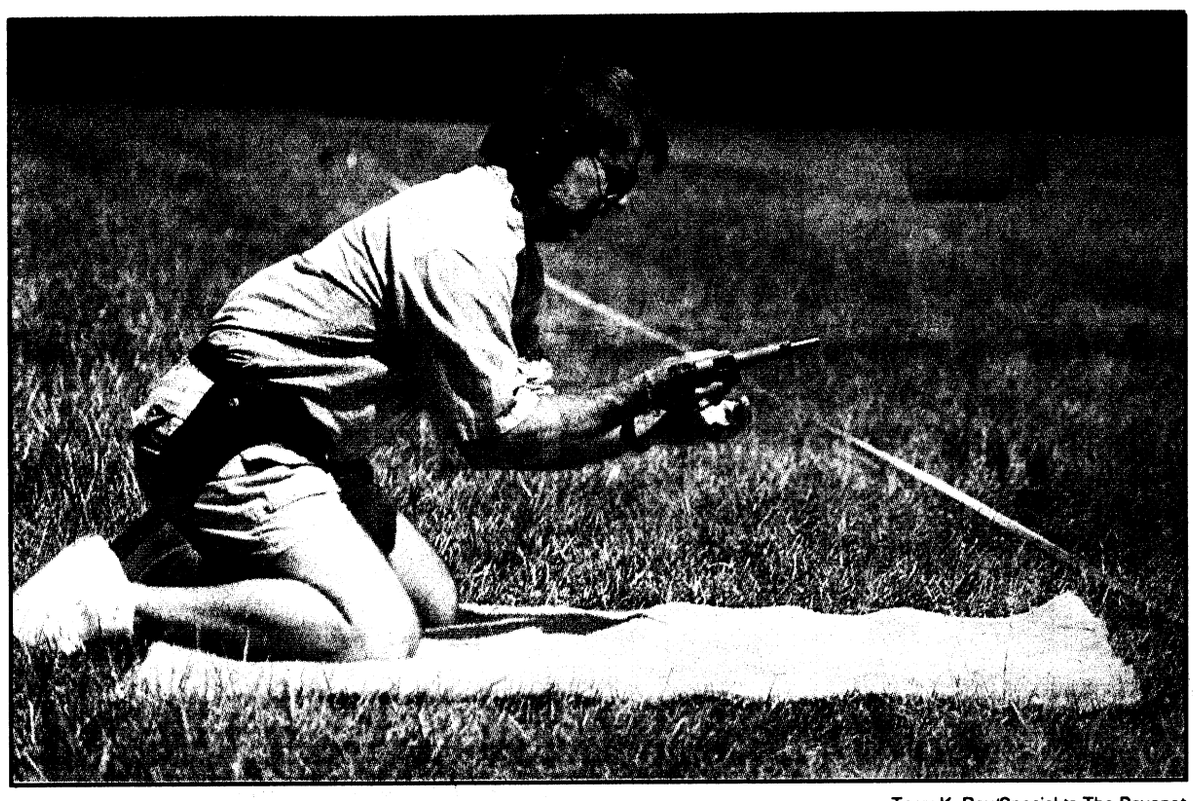


Fourth-place medals were presented to Ricky Gaspar, green belt for fighting and kata; Matt Loper, yellow belt for kata.

Yoshukai karate is a traditional Japanese martial art with its home base, or hombu, in Titusville, Fla.

The Fort Benning classes are conducted at the Officers' Club Fitness Center on weekends for children. There are separate beginning and advanced classes. Adult classes at the same location are held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Children's classes are also available at the Officers' Wives' Club Monday and Wednesday evenings.



Anyone wishing to learn more about the programs can contact one of the following: Officers' Wives' Club, 687-3557, the Officers' Club Fitness Center, 687- 0871 or Ron Ziss, 324-3113.

Shooters blast pistol match

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Sixty shooters participated in the October tactical pistol match at English Range Saturday.

The Rifle and Pistol Club of Fort Benning along with sponsor Valiant Bullet were pleased with the turnout.

"We look forward to seeing how the competitors will handle a match of this nature at night," said match coordinator Jim Graham "Ammunition choice is a critical factor."

In the competitor class, James M. Diehl took top honors with a score of 100 percent.

Jim Kotto captured second with a score of 98 percent and Steven W. Whitmore rounded out the competitor class in third at 72 percent.

In the standard class, Barry Flood drained the competition with a final score of 88 percent.

Trey Carmack finished second at 80 percent and Lance Dement floated into the third spot with a score of 78 percent.

In the female class, Daun Broneske took top honors with a score of 58 percent. Scott Klawon captured the high military catagory with a competitive score of 81 percent.

High law enforcement went to Morris Lewark at 74 percent and Andy Scribner placed first in the four-inch service revolver catagory at 55 percent.

The next tactical match will be a night match Nov. 6 beginning at 7 p.m. Entry fee will be $10 if paid by Oct. 31 and $13 after that date.

Entrants do not have to be affiliated with the military or a club member to shoot this match.

Novice and inexperienced shooters are welcome. According to Graham, this type of match is designed for the shooter who does not normally enter shooting matches.

This match will be sponsored by Pratt and Whitney dependable engines; all entrants will receive a free T-shirt.

For information, contact the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club at 689-3371 or come by the club Tuesday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Raquetball

Champs bounce tough competition

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The 1993 U.S. Army Infantry Center racquetball championships, played Oct. 1 through 8 at Briant Wells Field House, brought out more than 20 of Fort Benning's best players.

In the A Division, Philip Pemberton of the 498th Medical Company, defeated runnerup Chris Winterman of the Physical Activities Branch 15-7 and 15-9, in the first of two matches to decide a champion. In the second match, Pemberton closed out the match with straight wins of 15-10 and 15-4 for the title.

Arnell Nunnally of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 317th Enginer Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, defeated Wayne Parker of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 4th Bn., 41st Field Artillery Regiment, 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div., in straight games 15-10 and 15-4 for the B division championship.

In the doubles competition, Dennis Guaglianone of the Physical Fitness School and partner Pemberton defeated Winterman and partner Christopher Dolson of Co. A, 1st Bn., 11th Inf. Regt., 15-11 and 15-12 for the doubles crown.

"The level of competition in this tournament was extrmely tough," said Winterman "I was lucky to make it as far as I did against much better players than myself."

Infantry Museum road race to celebrate Benning's 75th

National Infantry Museum

The 1993 National Infantry Museum road races are part of the 75th anniversary of Fort Benning.

The races consist of a three-mile formation run for units, a five-mile run and a 20-mile bike race. A biathlon is a new event this year.

To celebrate Fort Benning's 75th birthday, a one-mile Founder's Run and Walk will also be conducted.

Registration and packet pickup is at the Outdoor Rental and Storage, Building 1707 on Gillespie Street from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Registration begins Saturday at 6 a.m. at the Show-mobile on Eckel Street and will end 15 minutes before the race starts.

The three-mile formation run begins at 8 a.m. The one-mile fun run and walk will begin at 9 a.m. and the five-mile run and biathlon begin at 9:30 a.m.

The first male and first female winners will receive a heart rate monitor watch from the Polar Corporation.

These monitors help athletes improve their performance level of any exercise program, according to company officials.

The 75th finisher in both the five-mile run and the biathlon will receive the Fort Benning Founder's Award.

AT A GLANCE

What: National Infantry Museum Road Races

When: Saturday beginning at 8 a.m.

Where: York Field

Participants also have the chance to win a variety of products from Nike Inc. as well as long distance certificates from AT&T.

All proceeds from the race go to the National Infantry Museum.

Marines run to celebrate birthday

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Marine Corps Birthday Ball Run Saturday at the Airborne Walk drew more than 130 runners to the starting line behind Infantry Hall.

In the one-mile run, first place went to 9-year-old Preston Pylinski with a time of nine minutes and four seconds.

In the female division, 13-year-old Jennifer Camp took the top spot with a time of 8:56.

In the five-mile run, Candice Vennold took first with a time of 33 minutes. Alyce Oliver finished second with a time of 37:40.

In the men's 30 and under division, Blaine Reeves captured first with a finishing time of 28:46 while Jose C. Soto finished second at 29:22.

In the 30 and over division, Craig Leisher rambled in with a time of 29:08, while Stuart Johnston laid claim to second place with a time of 30:13.

Richard Weede, an Infantry Officer Advanced Course student for the Marine Corps, won the wheelchair division with a time of 42:10 in his first and hopefully his last race in a wheelchair.

"I wanted to run in the race, but I had reconstructive knee surgery about two weeks ago," said Weede.

"The only way I could participate in the race was to sign up in the wheelchair division. I hope I don't have to do that again."

"For this being our first race, the support was tremendous," Marine Corps Liaison Officer Lt. Col. Mac McQuerry said. "We appreciate the turnout by the Fort Benning community in our attempt to help defray the cost of the Marine Corps Birthday Ball."

Biathlon contestants shoot for the top

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning's 1993 Doughboy Summer Biathlon took place Sept. 26 at English Range and Olive Field.

Ranger Joe's sponsored the event, while the Directorate of Community Activities and the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club acted as hosts.

The following is a list of overall winners for the event:

- Scott Moore, top male finisher in the open class with a time of 18:39;
- Amy Wimmer, top female finisher in the open class with a time of 20:55;
- Joe Waters, top finisher of the male masters class (over 40) with a time of 19:47;
- Patti Patterson, top finisher of the female masters class (over 35) with a time of 23:15.

Contestants ran three laps for a total of five kilometers and shot at five knock-down targets between each lap for a total of 10 shots during the competition.

All contestants attended a shooting safety class prior to the contest, put on by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit.

SPORTS SHORTS

Boxing tournament — The Fort Benning Diamond Jubilee Boxing Tournament will be 8 p.m. today at Briant Wells Field House. Sponsored by Ranger Joe's, the event is part of Fort Benning's 75th anniversary.

The admission cost for adults is $1 and for children 7 to 12 years old the cost is 50 cents. Children 6 and under will get in free.

A band, Power Unlimited, will provide live entertainment at 7:40 p.m. For more information, contact Jim Brown at 545-7978.

75th anniversary golf tournament — There will be a golf tournament today at 10:30 a.m. as part of Fort Benning's Diamond Jubilee.

The format is four-ball scramble with men from the white tees and women from the red tees.

Each player's tee shot must be used once on holes 1 through 9 and once on holes 10 through 18, or once each nine holes.

Entry fee is $7.50 for active duty staff sergeants and below, $15 for all others and $25 for invited civilian guests.

Mulligans will be for sale. Two for $3 with a maximum of two per player. Pairings will be done by U.S. Golf Association method.

Hunter safety course — Anyone born on or after Jan. 1, 1961, who wishes to hunt on Fort Benning or in the state of Georgia must attend a Georgia hunter safety course.

The course will be from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in Classroom 2 of Infantry Hall. Students must attend both nights and bring their Social Security numbers.

For more information, call Harley Chase at 545-32647.

Hunter zero day — Hunters who are looking for a place to zero their rifles before the start of the deer firearms season can go to the Rifle and Pistol Club at English Range Sunday. Instructors will be on hand to help hunters get a proper zero on their weapon.

For more information, contact Jim Graham at the Rifle and Pistol Club at (706) 689-3371. Hunters do not have to be members of the club to bring weapons and zero them.

Tuskegee - Morehouse football — The 58th annual Tuskegee University vs. Morehouse College Football Classic will be 7 p.m. Saturday at Columbus Memorial Stadium.

This annual classic is a tradition in the city. Last year, more than 20,000 fans attended; this year the event is expected to draw 29,000.

Tickets are available at Information, Ticketing and Registration, Building 247, Ingersoll Street, and are $10 in advance and $12 at the gate. Call ITR at 545-4155 for details.

For more information, call the A.J. McClung Branch YMCA at 322-2579 or 596-3472.

Motor speedway — In honor of Veterans Day, Atlanta Motor Speedway is giving complimentary passes to the Jiffy Lube 500K Nov. 12 at the speedway to anyone who is serving or has served his or her country.

To receive the pass, report to gate No. 2 or 7 with a valid photo identification card and one of three forms of military ID: DD form 2A (active), DD form 2 (retired) or DD form 214 (honorable discharge).

The speedway is located in Hampton, Ga., and can be reached by Highway 19 and 41.

Adult flag football — Phenix City Parks and Recreation is now accepting teams for its adult flag football league. For more information, call Morris Galloway at 291-4719.

Deer Check Station — The Deer Check Station, Building 5883, Harmony Church, is now open for archery season. Hours of operation will be Monday through Friday, 7:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. During gun season, beginning Oct. 23, the check station will be open weekdays from 7:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. and weekends from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Hunters should bring all deer harvested to the check station for measurement during the times indicated.

Bus available — The Information, Ticketing and Registration Office has a 24-passenger bus available for sports fans to charter to their favorite games this fall. Call or visit ITR, Building 247, Ingersoll Street, 545-4155.

Steeplechase — Callaway Gardens will host steeple chase racing 1 p.m. Nov. 6. Gates will open for the U.S. Championship Races, the third leg of the million dollar "Sport of Kings" Challenge. Tickets are available at the Information Ticketing and Registration Office.

Call 545-4155 for more information.

Golf Scramble — The 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, is sponsoring a golf scramble at the Fort Benning Follow Me Golf Course 10 a.m. Oct. 29

All proceeds will be given to Santa's Castle. Cost is $15 plus green fees. Mulligans will be $3 per two or one toy per mulligan.

Registration will be at 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, Building 76, Room 301.

For more information, call Capt. John Prellwitz at 545-1962.

Heart Run '93 — The American Heart Association will be hosting Heart Run '93 Oct. 23 at the Historic Columbus Hilton on Front Ave.

Check in will be at 8 a.m. and the one-mile race will begin at 9 a.m. The 10K individual and relay will begin at 9:15 a.m. and the walking event will start at 9:30 a.m.

The races will also finish at the Hilton. A post race party will follow the events.

For more information, call 324-0173.

Peach Bowl — Tickets for the 26th Annual Peach Bowl are on sale now. This year's game, the second in the Georgia Dome, will be played Dec. 31 at 6 p.m.

For information on ticket packages, call Brian Baker at (404) 586-8499.

Food sellers needed — Midland Food Services is looking for groups to sell drinks at seven home football games at the Jordan-Hare Stadium in Auburn, Ala.

It is an opportunity for groups to make extra money but members must be available for all home games. For more information, call (205) 826-1884.

Fitness classes available — The Fort Benning Officers' Club is introducing new classes along with new instructors for a variety of aerobic and bench classes. Included in these are step, high- and low-combo aerobics and water dynamics.

Movies: Good ones can teach values

By Jim Schnorrenberg
Chaplains' Office, Fort Rucker, Ala.

COMMENTARY

It's Friday night. The family wants to pop some popcorn and watch a rented movie.

You march into the local video rental store and are suddenly overwhelmed by the thousands of titles.

If all you want is the latest slash-and-gore horror flick (Attack of the Deranged Grandmother Zombies) or a violence-laden movie where 215 people are killed in the first five minutes (Lethal Terminator 5), then read no further.

However, if you are concerned about what you see and want a movie that teaches good values and honors the family, then read on.

I list here some movies both new and old, that are entertaining and emphasize family values. These movies are all five-star and rated either PG or PG-13. (Note: If you are unsure about a movie's suitability for young children, watch it first yourself and then decide.)

• To Kill A Mockingbird — This is a classic picture about a small-town Southern lawyer (Gregory Peck) who defends a black man accused of rape. Atticus Finch is a single parent who takes a courageous stand against racism in 1920s Alabama. The story is told through the eyes of his daughter, and is based on the novel by Harper Lee, who lived in Monroeville, Ala. (about 90 miles west of Fort Rucker).

• It's A Wonderful Life — Has life ever gotten you so down that you wished you had never been born? What if that wish were granted? Jimmy Stewart plays the lead in this humorous, heartbreaking and ultimately heartwarming movie. This has become a classic Christmas season movie.

• Places In The Heart — This inspiring movie is set in a small Texas town in the 1930s. Sally Field plays a mother of two who is suddenly widowed. Almost immediately, she is pressured by the bank to sell her home and land. Despite all "logic" and with the help of friends, she makes it on her own. This movie celebrates the human spirit of love and triumphing through adversity.

• Lorenzo's Oil — This is a true story about a family whose 5-year-old son is stricken with ALD, a degenerative brain disease. The parents search for a cure and race against time to save their son.

• A River Runs Through It — Robert Redford made this film that treasures the family. He uses the stories of Norman MaClean to weave a beautiful garment that embraces parenting, brotherhood, adolescent dreams and maturation issues of making right and wrong choices in life. The metaphor used to describe life is fly-fishing ("In our family, there was a fine line between religion and fly-fishing"). Theologically, the movie reminds us of the sovereignty or God and unconditional love.

• City of Joy — Patrick Swayze plays a disillusioned young doctor who travels to Calcutta, India, to both run away from and find life. What he finds is purpose and meaning in the midst of poverty, oppression and lepers. Warning: This movie will change you.

• Tender Mercies — Robert Duvall plays a down-and-out country singer, losing his life in a bottle. He meets up with a lonely widow and her son who, along with God, give him back the will to live and make music.

• Where The Red Fern Grows — A boy comes of age in 1930s Oklahoma through the love of his family and his love for two hunting dogs.

• Regarding Henry — Harrison Ford plays a cold, cutthroat lawyer who must rebuild his life and memory after a near-fatal gunshot wound. This film speaks of priorities, honesty and of a family's love.

• The Long Walk Home — Odessa (Whoopi Goldberg) is a black maid for a white family in Montgomery, Ala. She and her family participate in the boycott of the buses in 1955. This movie reminds us of the ugliness of racism, the power of unity and love that transcends races.

• Parenthood — A wonderful movie centered around four generations of a family. Steve Martin plays a father who thinks he's doing a bad job. This movie would not be suitable for young children because of its frank portrayal of adult situations.

Editor's note: Schnorrenberg is a family life chaplain.

Who does God's work will get God's pay,
However long may seem the day,
However weary be the way.
He does not pay as others pay,
In gold or land or raiment gay,
In goods that perish and decay.
But God's highest wisdom knows the way:
And that is sure, let come what may,
Who does God's work will get God's pay.

Day set aside for preventing STARVATION

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

World Food Day will be observed Saturday. The observance is coordinated in the United States by the National Committee for World Food Day.

What is World Food Day? It is a worldwide event to increase our awareness and understanding of the long-term action of the scarcity of food worldwide.

Sunday, the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine students will discuss world hunger and the forces of poverty in the United States. The students will concentrate on these issues and focus on Columbus and Fort Benning. Students are asked to bring canned goods or non-perishables for distribution to the poor and hungry.

Today we have millions of Americans who live below the poverty line. To add to the tragedy, they have no control over the economy that impoverishes them. The primary victims are children, who have no control over the society into which they were born.

Hunger is a real and devastating taker of human lives. Thousands die every day because of it, others die in many lands to protect their rights to have basic human needs.

In our land, where there is plenty, it is hard for us to understand the devastation that takes place because of hunger. On this day we will take time out to think of those who are hungry. Our help can make a difference.

CHAPEL NOTES

Parish Council — The Parish Council will conduct a recruitment drive for all parish ministries after all Masses Sunday. Anyone can sign up for any ministry they are interested in.

This includes confraternity of Christian doctrine, rite of Christian initiation for adults, lectors, music, ushers, altar servers and lay eucharistic ministry.

Prebaptism class — A prebaptism class will begin Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522.

All parents who wish to have their child or children baptized in the Catholic Church are required to attend prebaptismal instruction.

To register, call 545-5508.

PARTY — The Religious Education Center is resuming its program for children in the first through sixth grades.

The theme for this year's program, called PARTY, will be Bible Boot Camp. The children will learn the skills and preparation needed to join in God's army. The program will include Bible study, music crafts, recreation and refreshments.

PARTY will meet 1 p.m. Oct. 23, Nov. 6 and 20, and Dec. 11.

For more information, contact Bill Putman at 545-4715

Premarriage seminar — A premarriage seminar will begin Oct. 31 at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522. Attendance at this seminar is required for all couples who wish to be married in the Catholic church. To register, call 545-5508.

Where Judaism differs — The Religious Education Center is sponsoring a series of special presentations by Chaplain (Capt.) Arthur Rutberg, Fort Benning's rabbi, titled "Where Judaism Differs." These presentations will begin Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Building 2518.

The public is invited to all presentations regardless of denomination or faith group.

For more information, contact Bill Putman at 545-4715.

Schedule change — All services at the 11th Infantry Regiment Chapel will move to Lavoie Manor Chapel, Building 2595. This includes the 8:30 a.m. Protestant service and the 10:30 a.m. Catholic Mass.

Protestant Women of the Chapel — Protestant Women of the Chapel will continue its series of Bible studies, which include "Lord, I Need Grace to Make It," "A Mother's Legacy — Colossians and Philemon," "Finding Fulfillment in Christ" and "Sharing Your Faith." PWOC invites and encourages new members at all meetings.

The group meets 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. each Thursday in Building 2521.

Free child care is provided in adjacent Building 2517. These buildings are located off Indianhead Road and Thorson Street.

For more information, contact Marti Maas at 682-0101 or Janie Hodges at 682-3465.

Adult discussion group — The Catholic community will sponsor an adult discussion group each Sunday from 10:20 to 11:10 a.m. in the auditorium of Dexter School.

Several topics will be discussed along with video presentations.

For more information, contact Phil Reilly at 545-5508.

Mass schedule — The early Mass at Main Post Catholic Chapel has been changed to 8 a.m. The Spanish Mass has been changed to 9:15 a.m.

For more information, call 545-3461.

Muslim community — Koranic reading classes are at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522, every Monday at 7 p.m. Classes will provide a better understanding of the Koran.

For information, contact Imam Yahya Ansar Islam at 689-6922.

Post students to receive university SCHOLARSHIPS

Fort Benning Management Association

The Fort Benning Management Association and Troy State University awarded scholarships to the school to the following individuals for the 1993-94 academic year:

- Savannah Coats, one-year graduate scholarship
- Command Sgt. Maj. Willie Wells, one-year graduate scholarship
- Nilsa Summey, one-year undergraduate scholarship
- Sheryl Porter, one-year undergraduate scholarship
- Maxine Nieves, $1,000 undergraduate scholarship
- Margaret Gale, $500 scholarship

Troy State University, a supporter of the FBMA scholarship program, contributed four scholarships totaling $8,000 to the 1991-92 scholarship fund. Over the past six years, Troy State has contributed more than $45,000 in scholarships.

Dr. Paul Stansel, director of Troy State, Fort Benning Campus, said he is proud to be associated with such a worthwhile program and that all FBMA scholarship winners have been very successful students.

The FBMA conducts several fund-raising projects, such as ice cream sales at the Armed Forces Day and July 4th events, to support the scholarship program.

Each year during July and August, the FBMA seeks scholarship candidates who are interested in the field of management or business.

For more information on the FBMA's scholarship program, contact Patricia Pfeiffer at 545-5580 or 545-5656.

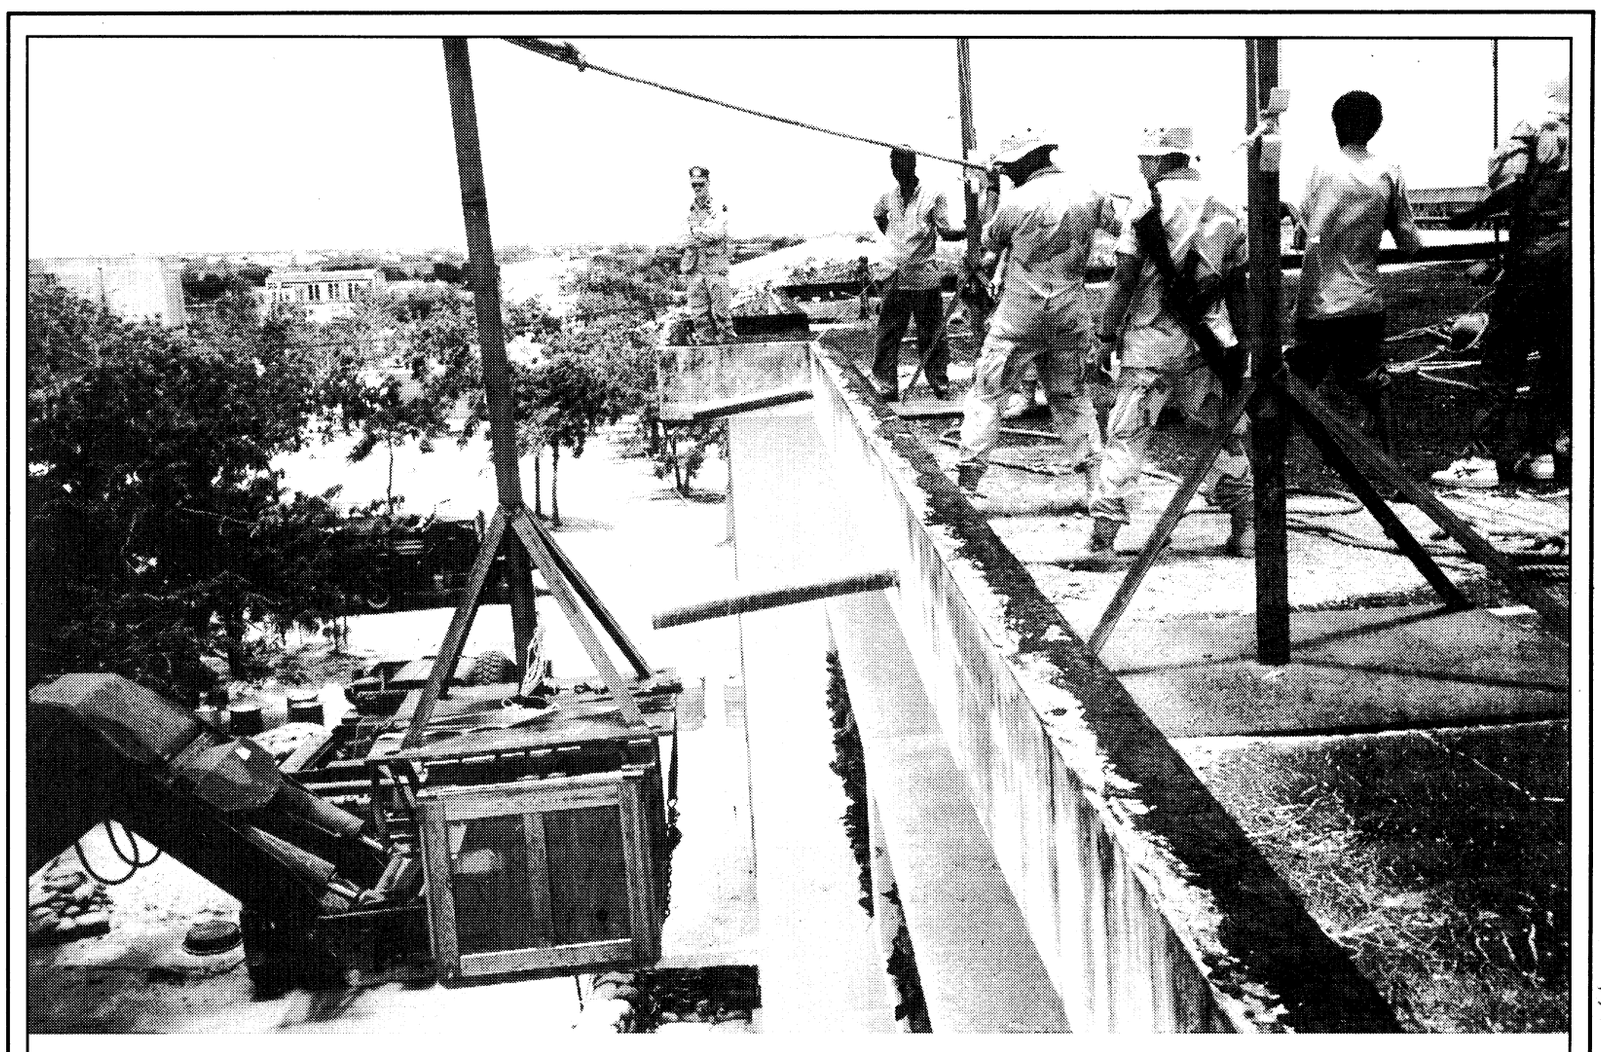
13th CSB experiences different missions in SOMALIA

By Elizabeth Carlson
13th Corps Support Battalion

Recently, soldiers assigned to the 13th Corps Support Battalion, which is deployed to Somalia, were called upon to perform a mission not normally assigned to combat service units, according to unit officials.



The unit was tasked to help secure the 17.5-mile bypass road constructed by U.S. troops to provide a safe passageway between their logistical bases and the airport. The bypass earned notoriety following the deaths of four U.S. military police on Said Jaal Road, the route formerly used by coalition forces.

Soldiers from the 533rd Transportation Company and 598th Maintenance Company replaced infantrymen from the 10th Mountain Division (Light Infantry), who deployed from Fort Drum, N.Y., on positions overlooking the bypass and its surrounding terrain.

Immediately upon arrival, the soldiers set about improving the cover, concealment and visibility of their positions. Throughout their tour of duty, they ensured the safety of convoys using their portion of the bypass and monitored the flow of both Somali foot and burro travel.

The soldiers involved in the mission said it was an interesting change from their daily support to U.N. forces. The soldiers were well prepared to react to the projected as well as more intense threat levels, according to Staff Sgt. Leroy Whack, 533rd Transportation Company.

"I would like to do it again," said Pvt. 2 Mary Turner, 533rd Transportation Co. "I like to drive and do things like this. There is always something different out there to see and do."

Review discusses future for soldier

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

From the boots on their feet to the rations they eat, soldiers of the future will be ready for battle with the best technology has to offer; and, Fort Benning is playing a vital role in the modernization effort.

On Oct. 8, around 50 of the Army's top developers, including the Training and Doctrine Command Commander Gen. Frederick M. Franks Jr. and Materiel Command Commander Gen. Jimmy D. Ross, visited Fort Benning to participate in the Soldier System Program Review, a meeting designed to check the progress of the development of the dismounted soldier of the future.

Col. Robert M. Tesdahl, the chief of the TRADOC System Manager — Soldier Systems, said the review was basically all about getting "more bang for our buck."

"The purpose of the review was to give Army leaders an overview of how the modernization process works, including our strategy, insight into current developments, and ways that the system can be streamlined to promote efficiency," said Tesdahl.

For the first time in history, he said, the Army is looking at the soldier as a system to be developed and modernized in the same fashion as weapons systems. Fort Benning's TRADOC System Manager — Soldier is one of the focal points for a complex network of numerous Army agencies that are working together to modernize all soldiers.

"We are looking at creating a fundamentally different but exponentially better soldier," said Tesdahl. "We are going to look at everything the soldier wears, consumes and carries in a tactical environment from protective clothing to communications to individual weapons. By developing the most modern and effective equipment, we expect at least a four-fold increase in the soldier's performance on the battlefield."

Col. William T. Meadows, TRADOC project manager-Soldier, Woodbridge, Va., said that one of the advantages to the new development process is its ability to integrate the talents of many Army research and development agencies into a single coordinated effort.

"This is truly a team effort," Meadows said. "It's no longer a matter of one agency developing an item and throwing it over the fence to the next one. From the initial concept to the development to the procurement to actual testing and fielding, everyone is in this together."

The other advantage to the new developmental process, Meadows said, is that modules from a new soldier system are being fielded to soldiers as they are developed, rather than waiting for the entire system to completely mature.

"We want to take the best of available technology and put it in the hands of soldiers as soon as we can," said Meadows. "The human factor is central to all of this. These items are to enhance the combat ability and protection of soldiers, and we want to find out what they think. It doesn't do us any good to develop items that won't help the soldier on the battlefield, no matter how technologically impressive they are."

Attendees of the review examined the planned future developments of the dismounted infantry soldier to understand how the process works. Dubbed "Land Warrior," the developing system will use computers to enhance the individual combat infantryman's fighting ability.

The future possessions and abilities of the land warrior will include:

• A modular weapon system based on the M-16 that can be transformed into a grenade launcher or shotgun and will include a thermal weapon sight, infrared aiming light and full compatibility with existing night vision equipment.

• An advanced combat uniform that will include increased ballistic protection and advanced load carrying capability.

• A helmet that includes a heads up display linked to an individual soldier computer that can provide laser range finding, combat identification, image intensification, maps with global positioning, and the ability to take video photographs.

Tesdahl said many of the components are ready to go and that as early as 1997 a large scale test of as much as a battalion will be staged and that fielding will begin before the end of the decade.

Tesdahl said the review was an excellent opportunity for Army leaders to witness the developmental process.

"The review gave us an excellent chance to ensure we are all speaking with one voice and moving in the same direction," Tesdahl said. "This has been our first meeting at the four-star level in awhile, and it was an excellent opportunity for us to address our concerns as we move toward enhancing the future fighting force."

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week...

• Cordell Hull and Averill Harriman, the U.S. secretary of state and ambassador to Moscow, respectively, and other State Department officials, met British statesmen Anthony Eden and William Strang in Moscow to convene a conference focusing on Allied post-war concerns. Within days President Franklin Roosevelt declared the meeting successful, as the delegates resolved five major issues including the establishment of the European Advisory Council, the punishment of war criminals and post-war security and cooperation plans with China.

• In Italy, the U.S. 45th Division captured Piedimonte, and the 34th Division swept through Dragoni and Gioia, as Canadian forces secured Vinchiaturo. Although the Allied advance necessitated an enemy evacuation, the Germans, led by Field Marshal Albrecht Kesselring, minimized their losses, conducting an expertly executed fighting withdrawal and reconsolidating behind the Barbara and Reinhard Lines.

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets drove forward again, crossing the Dniepr River south of Gomel and capturing several cities to include Loyev and Vishgorod. The Soviet advances left German Field Marshal Erich von Manstein with little recourse but to deploy his limited reserves to, in essence, provide cover fire for his withdrawing frontline forces.

• In New Guinea, the Allies solidified their hold on the island as the Australians repelled a Japanese counterattack near Finschafen that coincided with two air raids against Allied positions in Oro Bay. The unsuccessful attacks cost the Japanese 73 aircraft, further depleting their quickly draining pool of experienced pilots.

• Fort Benning took pride in its 300th Infantry Regiment, whose football team, the Sabers, received recognition from the Williamson ratings as the country's 27th best college level team. The Sabers placed higher than teams such as Ohio State, Tulane, Miami, Marquette, Illinois and Georgia.

Battle lab demonstrates night equipment

Dismounted warfighting workshop show media Army 'owns the night'

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Dismounted Warfighting Battle Lab provided a display and demonstration of emerging night-fighting technologies for the media Oct. 14 at Fort Campbell, Ky.

The DWBL has been conducting an advanced warfighting experiment at Fort Campbell since Sept. 23. This experiment is a part of Chief of Staff of the Army Gen. Gordon Sullivan charge to Fort Benning's DWBL to lead the Army's effort to develop doctrine, training, leader development, organization, material and soldier systems that allow American soldiers to "Own the Night." "Own the Night" is a subset of the Continuous Operations initiative in Sullivan's Louisiana Maneuvers.

Approximately 700 soldiers, U.S. Air Force pilots and airmen, U.S. Marine Corps pilots and Marines and Navy SEALs participates in this month-long experiment. They conducted live-fire and force-on-force exercises to evaluate the effects of these emerging night-fighting technologies on joint and combined arms doctrine, tactics, techniques and procedures.

The state-of-the art technologies displayed and demonstrated are direct outgrowths of needs identified by U.S. forces following Operation Desert Storm. Future night situational awareness and command and control needs such as those associated with operations other than war are also reflected in the technologies to be displayed.

The following is a list of equipment that was displayed. Only "Own the Night" equipment is listed.

AN/PAQ4B: Infrared aiming light; invisible beam zeroes weapon in

III Gen AN/PVS4: Night image intensifier for crew-served weapons

AN/PVS7B: Night vision goggles with III Gen enhancements

AN/PVS7B Compass: LED Compass and GPS attachment to ANN/PVS7B

Black Dots: 2.5" Infra-red dots for combat identification

Black Light Systems: Programmable, invisible night lighting

Driver Viewer Enhancement; Thermal viewing device for drivers

Electronic Filmless Camera: Real-time video transfer over communications

AMN/PVS7B Flip-ups: Helmet mount for PVS7B; automatic turn on/off

Forward Observers Ranging and Marking Scope: Night vision scope

Ground Commander's Pointer: Infrared pointer and illuminator

Hand-held Infrared Flare/Smoke: Illuminates; marks; signals

Hand-held Infrared Parachute Signal: Illuminates; marks; signals

Heat Pads: for meals-ready-to-eat, but also used with thermal viewers to mark

Holographic Night Vision Goggles: Depth, range, versatility improvement

Infrared Ground Trip Flare: Illuminates unsuspecting adversary

Infrared Pop Flare Signal: Illuminates unsuspecting adversary

IRAD 2500: Laser infrared aiming device

I-REMBASS: Improved magnetic, IR, seismic, acoustic sensor systems

Laser Rangefinder Binoculars: Has LED compass, gives range/bearing

Lifefinder: Flashlight-sized passive infrared remote detector

Light Weight Vehicular Obscuration Screening System: for HMMWVs

LPL-30: Infrared target pointer/illuminator

Marking Beacons: Palm-sized IR signalers

Monoculars: III Gen night vision monoculars

Multi-spectral Imagery: Landsat/SPOT satellite imagery

M16AA3: Allows mounting of night vision devices/aiming lights

M16 Thermal Sight; lightweight thermal weapon sight

M203 Infrared round: illuminates; marks; signals

Owls Scope: Small III Gen night vision device for crew-served weapons

Phoenix Budd Lights: Codeable combat identification lights

Point Recognition Projectile: 155mm marking round

Small Unit Lightweight Sensor System: detect/report intrusions

Sniper Night Sights

Phototelesis: real-time video capture receiver an transmitter

3X Magnifier for AN/PVS7B

7.62 Infrared Tracer Rounds: only visible to NVGed firers

81mm Infrared Round: illuminates; marks; signals

Soldiers' arrival in Haiti delayed

By David Greer

Twelve soldiers from the 498th Medical Company (Air Ambulance) departed Lawson Army Airfield Sunday at 10 a.m. en route to Haiti to support U.N. operations by providing medical air evacuation of U.N. personnel.

However, the soldiers' arrival has been delayed, according to Col. Dean Kershaw, commander of the 36th Engineer Group.

"Because of the unrest occurring in Haiti, clearance for the 498th to move in has been put on hold," Kershaw said.

"Our soldiers are being held in an undisclosed safe area awaiting clearance to continue their deployment," he said.

The soldiers deployed by flying their own equipment, two UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters configured for air ambulance operations, from Fort Benning to Haiti.

When operational, the 498th will be operating under the auspices of the United Nations and at the request of the Haitian government.

The length of the deployment has not been determined, according to Capt. Phillip Pemberton, 498th operations officer.

The complete contingent of U.S. troops will also include engineers, military trainers, civil affairs experts and a headquarters support element.

The mission fulfills a technical assistance commitment under U.N. Resolution 867, following the Governor's Island agreement signed in July by Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide and Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras, the commander-in-chief of the country's military.

Students to reach for stars in new planetarium

Teachers will use Star Lab for classroom enrichment

By Jerrie MacIntire
Special to The Bayonet ©

Enthusiastic teachers telling children anything is possible if they dream big and get an education have been accused of "promising the moon." Fort Benning teachers can now deliver the moon, and the stars as well, with a portable planetarium now being used at the post schools.

A group of excited Fort Benning teachers recently gathered to learn more about using the impressive portable planetarium, or Star Lab, a gift from the National Science Center. Following the seminar, they compared the planetarium to the true night sky in a star-gazing party on the grounds of Stowers School.

Mike McGowan and David Murray, two Fort Benning teachers who trained at the National Science Center at Fort Gordon, Ga., this summer, demonstrated the intricacies of using Star Lab. McGowan and Murray were two of seven Fort Benning teachers who trained for a week with the planetarium director at Fort Gordon.

The teacher enrichment seminar on post was designed to teach an additional seven educators how to use Star Lab so that each Fort Benning School will now have two staff members familiar with it.

The recent training session was one of about 30 staff development courses that the school system conducts each year, according to Dr. Beth Middlemiss, director of staff development.

"We run courses in math, computers, Spanish ... anything that supports our instructional programs," she said.

The ideas flowed freely as McGowan and Murray discussed creative ways to use Star Lab, the term used for the portable dome and projecting equipment used to show a variety of celestial bodies and the globe.

"You can tie all the subjects together," suggested one teacher. "Kindergartners can use math and count to 10 using the longitude and latitude."

Literature and mythology also have deep roots in the study of the constellations. In past ages people have given names to various star patterns such as "The Dragon" and "The Little Dipper."

"We could think of our own star figures," commented another teacher. Someone joked that the purple dinosaur "Barney" should join the heavens along with "The Great Bear" and "The Archer." The teachers attended the seminar to learn everything from changing light bulbs to adding moon phases. The consensus was that Star Lab is "user friendly;" anyone can use it for classroom enrichment.

Lab manuals offered ideas on different grade-level activities, and teachers flipped through them looking for ideas to use in their own lesson plans. Once the manuals were studied and discussed, the teachers were eager for a hands-on demonstration.

The Star Lab dome, which resembled a collapsed mylar balloon of huge proportions, was quickly inflated using a floor fan. Children no doubt can easily file through the approximately four-foot wide access tunnel to the Star Lab dome; adults were cautioned to use the crouched walk and to check for loose shoe strings.

Once seated inside, a projector displayed images on the curved roof of the planetarium. Instructors may choose one of six cylinders to depict a variety of celestial bodies. The cylinders easily swivel via magnets, and can depict the night sky on any given evening of the year.

With dim flashlights teachers checked their own star charts and compared them to the images on the overhead dome.

"This is really neat stuff for all grade levels," "I can hardly wait to use it in class" and "My kids will love it," were some of the teachers' comments.

The last demonstration of the evening was the "emergency exit" to be used in case of panic or danger. Teachers simply grasped a bottom edge of the dome and walked across the floor to the opposite side; Star Lab collapsed accordion-style like a convertible car's canvas roof.

As the educators ended the seminar they discussed ways Star Lab could be incorporated into their lesson plans. From social studies and math to science and history, this small planetarium should enrich Fort Benning students, they said.

Gift from National Science Center enhances curriculum

By Jerrie MacIntire
Special to The Bayonet ©

A multi-faceted gift from the National Science Center at Fort Gordon, Ga., will enhance curriculum as well as provide teacher enrichment at all the Fort Benning Schools.

This major acquisition includes a mobile planetarium, satellite dish and programming, visits from a mobile "Discovery Van" and compact disc interactive technology, or CDIs.

"It's a terribly exciting thing to have this in our schools," said Jerry Christy, curriculum coordinator for math and science.

Each of the four major components of the gift will benefit Fort Benning students by offering enrichment in science and math as well as other areas of study, Christy said.

Students began using the portable planetarium last week. The device, which will be rotated and shared among all the Fort Benning schools, consists of a portable dome and machinery designed to project images of stars on the curved, darkened ceiling.

This planetarium will enable teachers to present programs typical of a traditional stationery planetarium as well as studies of their own choosing.

Teachers can choose from a variety of star patterns and celestial bodies by changing the cylindrical drums on the planetarium projector. Fort Benning has six cylinders and can depict the common star field, the globe, mythological figures in the stars, Native American figures in the stars, the 3,000 most prominent stars, and groupings or constellations.

In addition to the planetarium, the science gift from Fort Gordon included a satellite dish with the necessary electronic hardware and a year's subscription to educational programming for Faith Middle School.

However, the programming was of such quality and variety, that "we saw the benefits of this for all our students early on, and purchased additional satellite dishes for the other schools," Christy said.

The satellite programming provides the gamut of educational broadcasting for children and teachers. The teachers may download any broadcasts they want to enhance their own lesson plans. Teachers were able to preview the programming the week of Sept. 20 and choose some that may enhance their classes.

"This is much more than entertainment," Christy said.

Two types of satellite programming are available — traditional prerecorded lessons or specials and interactive classroom links. The interactive classes provide a one-way video, two-way audio link that will enable Fort Benning students to participate in a lecture or experiment by asking questions or offering comments, Christy explained.

The interactive program called "Scientist in Electronic Residence" has been quite popular among teachers. Another feature in demand is the interactive "Artist in Electronic Residence" Christy said.

Also included in the gift from the National Science Center is the CDI technology, or compact disc interactives. This technology consists of a disc resembling a music CD designed to be used with a CDI player and a television. The CDIs incorporate text, sound, and video onto the discs, that cover a variety of subjects. This system represents "the cutting edge of technology," Christy said.

Fort Benning school personnel were impressed with the educational value of the CDIs and have purchased additional players and discs to supplement those presented by the National Science Center so that every school now has this technology.

Another component of the gift is the Mobile Science Lab, a traveling exhibition that will stop at Fort Benning as well as other locations. It is staffed by two soldiers who give demonstrations and lectures designed to spark interest in science and technology.

According to Christy, this multi-faceted gift from the National Science Center will "help demystify science" for students in addition to enhancing staff development.

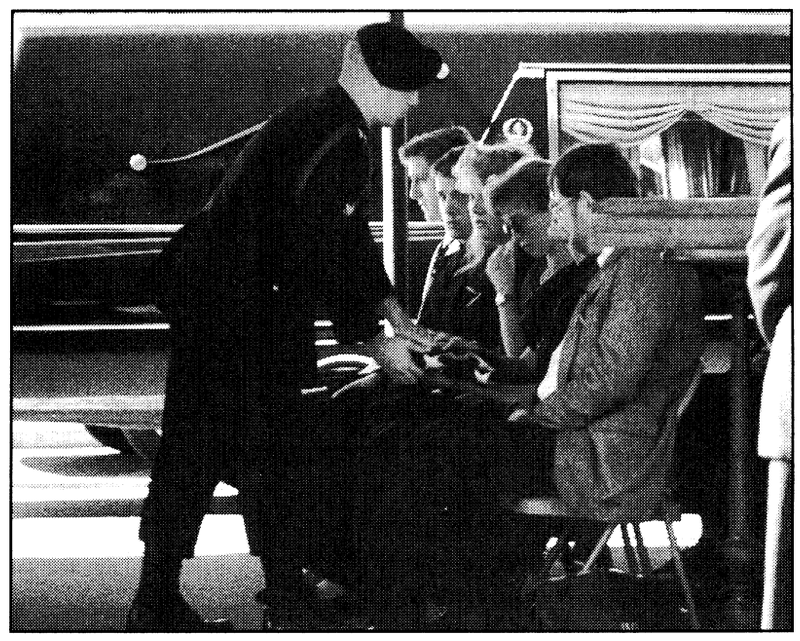
Service lays ranger to rest

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

A funeral service for Cpl. James E. Smith with full military honors took place at the Main Post Cemetery Tuesday.

Smith was one of six members of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, killed during a combat operation in Mogadishu, Somalia.

Smith died Oct. 4 as a result of injuries he sustained.



Ranger Chaplain (Capt.) David Moran delivered the eulogy to the large group of family and friends assembled.

Smith's mother and father, James H. and Caroline Smith, attended the funeral with his fiancee, Shelley Whittington.

The funeral detail was made up entirely of rangers from the battalion, and Spc. John H. Stoneberg, a personal friend of Smith's, presented the flag to the family.

Smith was from Long Valley, N.J. He was born Feb. 16, 1972, and entered the service in October 1990.

Some of his awards include the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, Meritorious Service Medal, Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Service Ribbon, Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, Army Service Ribbon and Combat Infantryman Badge.

Mall's addition offers taste of orient

By Stephanie Krawczyk

Do you have a craving for sweet and sour pork, chicken chow mein or some other oriental dish? Now you need not look beyond the gates of Fort Benning to satisfy your penchant for a taste of the Orient.

Royal Chopstix, the latest culinary offering added to the Main Mall of the Post Exchange officially opened Oct. 8. The restaurant, an Army and Air Force Exchange "in-house franchise," offers a wide selection of Oriental fast food for lunch and dinner.

The opening of Royal Chopstix is in response to requests from soldiers for Oriental food to be made available on post, according to Jack Depineuil Jr., AAFES food business manager. This is the second Royal Chopstix to open worldwide; the first began operating at Fort Campbell, Ky.

As part of the same project, Burger King Express, which offers a more limited menu than a large Burger King, opened at the Main Mall Sept. 30.

The total project was developed and implemented at a cost of $500,000, Depineuil said. Food sales have doubled at the mall since the opening of Burger King Express and monthly sales are expected to increase between $80,000 and $100,000 now that Royal Chopstix has opened, according to Depineuil.

An increase in the lunch crowd at the PX is already noticeable, Depineuil said.

"We did not have enough of a selection before to draw people to the mall at lunch." Depineuil said. "Now we offer a wide selection that includes Chinese or Italian food, hotdogs, subs and Burger King."

Heart-healthy info available at Commissary

Army News Service

Volunteers from the heart association will be in the Fort Benning Commissary Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to participate in the American Heart Association's Heartfest, a national consumer nutrition education event.

The event is conducted in grocery stores, military commissaries, worksites, school sites, health care sites and other community facilities during Heartfest Week, which continues through Sunday.

It focuses on the importance of proper diet in reducing the risks of cardiovascular disease. In 1993, a major message of HeartFest is about the new food label and supermarkets.

Thousands of heart association volunteers will go into more than 6,000 supermarket stores around the country to distribute heart-healthy eating tips, information on the new food label and coupons for lowfat products that meet heart association guidelines for heart-healthy eating.

The rationale for HeartFest is the cholesterol problem. Heart and blood vessel disease kill more men, women and children in this country than any other cause of death.

Scientists have demonstrated that the typical American diet — high in saturated fat and cholesterol — contributes to high blood cholesterol, a major risk factor of heart attack.

For more information, call Martin Army Community Hospital's Nutrition Clinic at 544-1674.

Plan ahead for the best travel deals

SatoTravel

You can stay within your budget the next time you travel by planning ahead. SatoTravel agents say this is particularly important when you need airline tickets because airlines usually have advance-purchase fares that are cheaper than the regular full fares.

In fact, purchasing your tickets one or more weeks in advance of your travel date can save you hundreds of dollars. The sooner you buy, the less you will pay.

In addition, every SatoTravel office guarantees that if you don't receive the lowest available air fare, SatoTravel will pay you double the difference.

You don't always have to pay standard rates for lodging, either. Many hotels offer reduced rates during certain days of the week, and they often extend discounts to military and government guests.

Your biggest savings, however, will be at hotels and resorts that have specially negotiated agreements with SatoTravel to provide lower rates to SatoTravel customers. When you plan your trip, ask a SatoTravel agent to tell you about these rates.

SatoTravel will also help you sort through the variety of prices at car rental companies. Most of them have daily, weekly and weekend rates, but not every company will have discounts at your destination and at the time you will be there. A SatoTravel agent can search for the lowest rates that fit into your plans.

It costs nothing extra to make your travel plans with SatoTravel — but you can save plenty when you rely on one of SatoTravel's knowledgeable agents to find the lowest price on official and vacation travel. They also will be happy to tell you about the low-fare guarantee and other SatoTravel services.

As soon as you know where and when you are going, call or stop by your SatoTravel office. The sooner you do, the more you will save. Call 687-4900 to reach any of the three locations.

Sato wants your feedback

SatoTravel

Customer opinions really matter to SatoTravel, which is why SatoTravel offices this fall are asking all customers for feedback about the services they receive.

SatoTravel will use the results of the survey to make service better than ever.

Survey cards in every office give customers a chance to comment about SatoTravel staff, office hours, customer service and the range of high-value travel services provided by the company.

Be sure to pick up a survey card on your next visit to SatoTravel — and let them know what you think.

Stop by the Sato Travel offices at Building 2628, Soldiers' Plaza; Building 247 (Leisure Office) on Ingersoll Street, or Building 3245, Hanson Barracks, Sand Hill, or call 687-4900 to reach any of these three offices.

Fort Benning, two of its employees receive awards

Columbus names laborer outstanding disabled employee

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

Fort Benning and one of its employees received top awards in Columbus at the Mayor's Awards Banquet for Persons with Disabilities Oct. 7 at the Columbus Ironworks Trade and Convention Center.

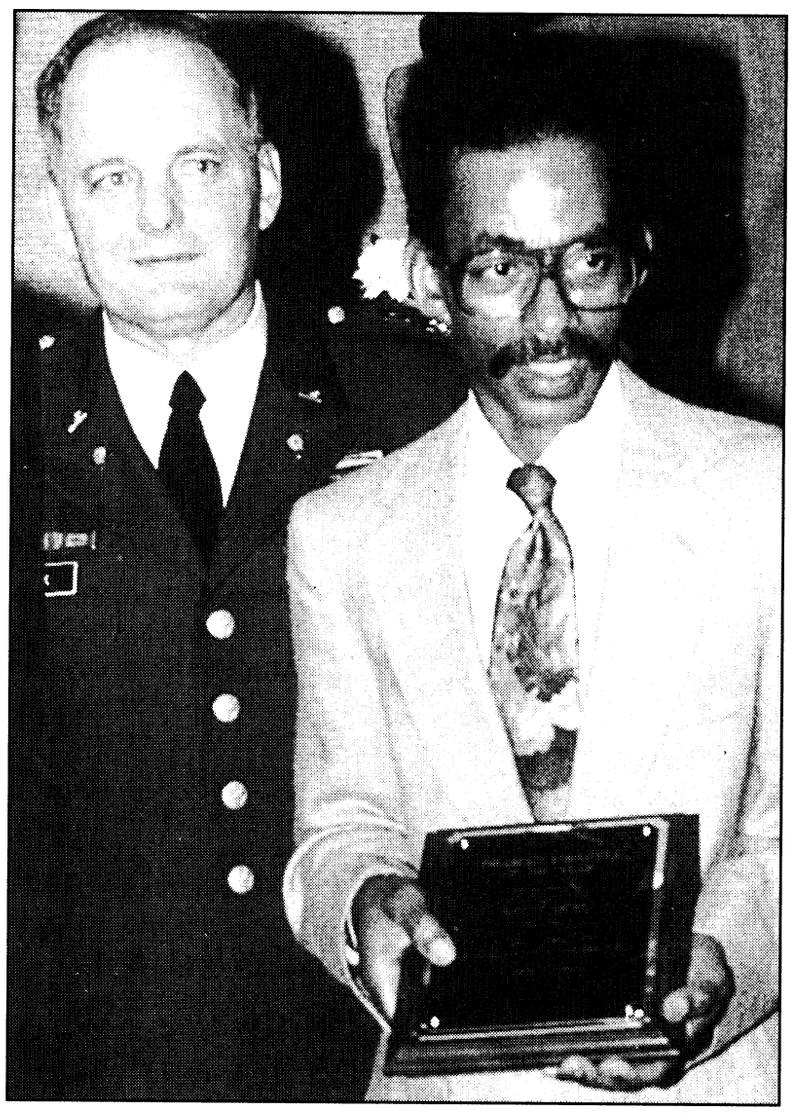
Fort Benning won the award for Largest Employer of the Year, and Carl Justice, a laborer for the past 16 years at the Range, Roads and Grounds Branch of Directorate of Public Works, was recognized as the Disabled Employee of the Year.

Justice was noted in his nomination as being extremely dedicated, enthusiastic and deserving of recognition.

Columbus Mayor Frank Martin opened the banquet by quoting our nation's only four-term president, Franklin D. Roosevelt:

"I believe in the right of the weak as well as the strong, the poor as well as the rich and the disabled as well as the able-bodied to play their part in the game of life."

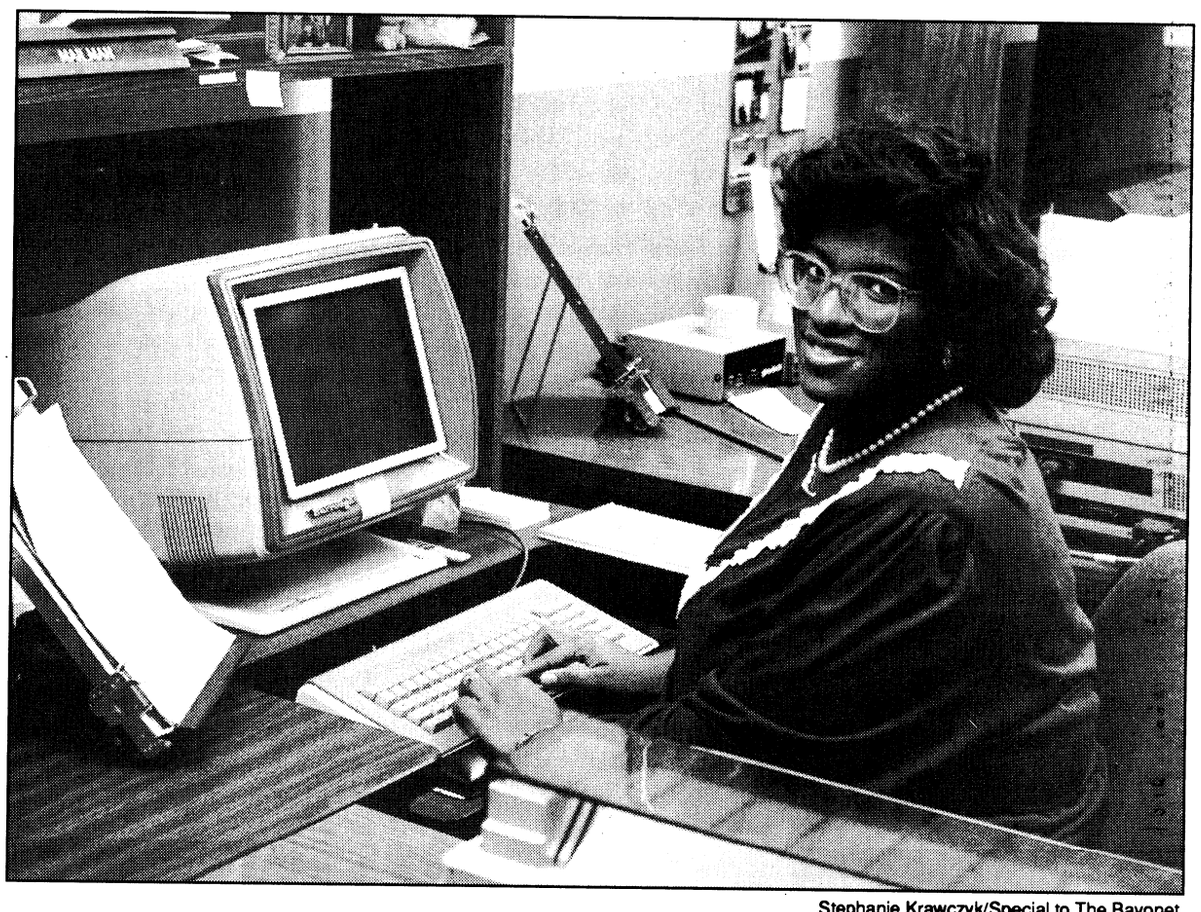
The annual event, which is part of National Disability Employment Awareness Month, recognizes disabled individuals, employees and employers from the local community. The theme this year was "Energize America, Employ Ability."



Fort Benning's award this year marked 12 times since 1980 that the post has won the award. Fort Benning employs approximately 300 disabled employees, according to Mildred Watts, the Fort Benning program manager for individuals with disabilities.

Keynote speaker at the banquet, Dr. John Williams, president of the Georgia Rehabilitation Association, encouraged the hiring of disabled individuals because "it gives them inclusion and empowerment."

Fort Benning has been recognized every year since 1979 for its aggressive hiring programs for disabled individuals, Watts said.



"In spite of the Army's downsizing, this post continues to have a successful program," Watts said. She credits this achievement to support from Fort Benning's command group, civilian managers and supervisors.

The disabled hiring program at Fort Benning is used Armywide as a model program, she said.

Data transcriber is post's top disabled employee

Fort Benning's most outstanding employee with a disability was recognized Oct. 8 in the post's chief of staff office.

Terri Bass, who has been hearing impaired since birth, is a data transcriber for the Directorate of Logistics Maintenance Division.

Bass smiled broadly as Col. Burnet R. Quick, Fort Benning's chief of staff, presented her with the award before an audience of co-workers and family members.

"I'm surprised, especially about winning two times," she said after the ceremony.

Her co-workers, however, said they are not surprised. They marvel at her work ethic, persistence and perhaps most noticeable, her enthusiasm.

Bass has faced her challenges in life. She was born with a complete hearing impairment 28 years ago. Early in life, she attended the North Carolina School for the Deaf.

After moving to Columbus as a youngster, she completed programs at Key Elementary, Talbotton Road Junior High and Jordan High School.

As a high school student, she was a member of the National Honor Society and graduated with honors in 1983.

Since her employment at Fort Benning in 1985, Bass has received numerous awards including: 1986 Handicapped Employee of the Year, Army Community of Excellence Award for the Quarter in 1990 and Fort Benning's Outstanding Employee with a Disability 1992.

Being hearing-impaired does not slow things down on the job for Bass. Presently 12 of her co-workers have completed sign language courses and 14 understand how to sign.

"She takes the time to show others how to communicate with her," points out Anne Wright, a DOL branch chief. "Now we can have meetings and training classes and are not required to have an interpreter."

Bass, who also reads lips, agreed that there are, "no problems" with communication in the office.

This has been an exceptionally busy time for Bass and her husband, Arthur L. Bass Jr. They both received something special two weeks ago when she gave birth to a baby boy — their second child.

The post annually recognizes persons with disabilities during National Disability Employment Awareness Month, according to Mildred Watts, the Fort Benning program manager for individuals with disabilities.

Bass also received an achievement certificate from the city of Columbus Oct. 7 at the Mayor's Awards Banquet for Persons with Disabilities. Columbus Mayor Frank Martin presented the award.

Hispanics close month of celebration

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The Hispanic Heritage Month celebration at Fort Benning ended Tuesday with a ceremony in Infantry Hall's Marshall Auditorium.

The program, hosted by the post Equal Opportunity Office, began with remarks by Lt. Col. Joseph A. Dubyel, assistant chief of staff, after a short prelude by the Infantry Band.

"Everywhere you look today, you can see the great impact that the Hispanic culture has had on our country," Dubyel said.

"People of Hispanic heritage continue to be a political, economical and cultural force in our society," he said.

After the opening remarks, the choir from the Spanish Church of God-Adonai performed a selection.

Following the entertainment, the Rev. David Santiago, pastor of the Spanish Church of God-Adonai spoke.

"This month, our Hispanic heritage has been recognized (by citing the) contributions of the U.S. Army in the battle for world peace and democracy," Santiago said.

"As an ex-soldier and as a minister of our Lord Jesus Christ, I am honored and at the same time proud to be sharing this moment with you.

"We don't have to search too far to realize that the armed forces of the United States is composed of people of different races and nationalities with the mission to defend with pride the land of the free.

"The Hispanic force, which is composed of various nationalities, has made history throughout the year by successfully accompishing that mission," said Santiago

After spending four years in the Army, Santiago was honorably discharged and he returned to Puerto Rico to attend Bible college.

Santiago is a minister of the Church of God, headquartered in Cleveland, Tenn.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries are from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Sept. 22 to 28. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the determination of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns Georgia Code 40-6-14 (limits on sound volume from within a motor vehicle).

It is unlawful for any person operating or occupying a motor vehicle on a street or highway to operate or amplify the sound produced by a radio, tape player or other mechanical sound-making device or instrument from within the motor vehicle so that the sound is plainly audible at a distance of 100 feet or more from the motor vehicle.

Post policy letter 93-01 stipulates a distance of 15 feet or more from the vehicle while on Fort Benning. A violation of this code section is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $25.

• A private was charged with animal abuse, animal neglect and wrongful death of a privately owned animal after he killed his cat by hitting it with an unknown object, placing it in a plastic bag and throwing the bag into the woods.

• A specialist was charged with illegal discharge of a weapon after he accidentally shot himself and another soldier while cleaning his weapon. The bullet pierced his hand and struck another soldier in the neck. Other charges are pending in this case.

• A sergeant reported that unknown persons removed two wheel covers from his car while it was parked adjacent to his barracks.

• A staff sergeant was charged with assault and his wife was charged with aggravated assault after he was stabbed in the hand by his wife during a domestic dispute.

• Five privates were charged with aggravated assault, assault and larceny of private property after hitting other soldiers with pillow cases full of soap bars, wooden table legs and their fists, also taking approximately $500 from them.

• Two specialists were charged by civil authorities with disorderly conduct after refusing to leave a local theater where they were causing a disturbance.

• A sergeant reported that unknown persons scratched profane words on the drivers side door and bent the windshield wiper of his car while it was parked adjacent to his barracks.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the sergeant first class who drove his car into a chain link fence. While attempting to back up, he struck the fence again. Upon arrival of the MPs, he fled the scene. He was apprehended at his quarters, at which time a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage was detected on his breath. He registered .22 on the intoximeter and was charged with failing to drive on a roadway laned for traffic, leaving the scene of an accident, driving under the influence of alcohol, fleeing and eluding and damaging government property.

Other activities included eight traffic accidents and one report of shoplifting at facilities on post.

There were two cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, eight cases of larceny of private property and seven cases of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest."

Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

TAKE A BITE OUT OF CRIME

ASK THE JUDGE

By Lloyd N. Bell
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q: I have two years left before I get out get out of the service, but I really want to get out of the Army now. I have a good job lined up at home; and besides, this is supposed to be a volunteer Army. What do I do?

A: It goes without saying that when you enlist in the Army, you are making a commitment to serve your country for the entire enlistment period. True, this is a volunteer Army; but, once you do volunteer, the Army expects you to honor that commitment. But the Army does recognize extraordinary circumstances and unforeseen conditions that may allow you to terminate your enlistment prior to ETS.

Army Regulation 635-200 provides for administrative separations for soldiers for a variety of reasons ranging from pre-existing medical conditions to personality disorders. I will discuss one of the more common types of adminsitrative separations, namely the Chapter 6 Separation because of Dependency or Hardship.

Under Chapter 6 of AR 635-200, a soldier may be discharged or released because of genuine dependency or hardship. Dependency exists when death or disability of a member of a soldier's (or spouse's) immediate family causes that member to rely upon the soldier for principal care or support. For example, a soldier who must support his mother after his father dies would probably qualify for separation under this chapter.

Hardship exists when in circumstances not involving death or disability of a member of the soldier's (or spouse's) family, separation from the service will materially affect the care or support of the family by alleviating undue and genuine hardship. AR 635-200 specifically provides that a married service woman who becomes a parent may apply for this type of separation if the child resides in her household. The regulation also allows sole parents to apply for the same separation whether male or female.

If you are unable to show dependency or hardship as your reason for wanting separation from the Army, you may explore the other chapters in AR 635-200. Of course, there is nothing to stop you from intentionally failing to meet such standards as the Army Physical Fitness Test, the Army weight standards, or training standards, but a word of caution.

Intentional poor performance for the purpose of separation could result in a negative characterization of your service that could influence future employers. Also, your commander may decide to take Uniform Code of Military Justice action against you for such possible offenses as dereliction of duty. Consequently, I would highly recommend that you avoid intentional misconduct for the purposes of separation or you may really shoot yourself in the foot.

A simple desire to get out of the Army is not enough. However, the military does recognize that certain circumstances are such as to warrant the early termination of an enlistment contract.

If you believe that you have a bona fide reason for getting out of the Army, I recommend that you make an appointment with the Judge Advocate General to discuss your options. You can make an appointment by calling 545-3281.

Article 15 process

You have right to remain silent

U.S. Army Trial Defense Service

In previous articles, the Article 15 process was discussed. This articles explores one of soldiers' most important rights under the U.S. Constitution and the Uniform Code of Military Justice — the right to remain silent.

This article outlines when someone is required to advise a soldier of his or her right to remain silent, options and the consequences of a violation of the soldier's rights.

When the U.S. Constitution was written, many citizens were concerned that it did not fully protect the rights of the people. The Bill of Rights was written to answer their concerns. The Fifth Amendment, found in the Bill of Rights, guarantees that no one may "be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." This also means that no one may be forced to make an incriminating statement.

Both Article 31 of the UCMJ and the Fifth Amendment protect a soldier's right to remain silent. Article 31 required, long before the famous Supreme Court Miranda decision, that soldiers who were suspected of an offense be advised of their right to remain silent. Later, the military courts and the president also required that soldiers be informed of their right to talk to an attorney. Because soldiers are trained to obey their superiors, Congress feared that soldiers might feel ordered to confess when questioned about an offense.

What are a soldier's Article 31 rights? Article 31 and decisions of the courts provide that any time a soldier is suspected or accused of committing an offense and a military law enforcement official or someone in a position of authority wants to question him or her about that offense, the soldier must be read his or her rights. The questioner must tell the soldier:

1. What he or she is suspected or accused of;
2. That he or she has the right to remain silent;
3. That anything he or she says may be used against him or her;
4. That he or she has the right to talk to an attorney and to have an attorney present during any questioning; and
5. If he or she begins answering questions, he or she may stop answering them at any time.

What happens if someone suspects a soldier of an offense but questions the soldier without advising him or her of his or her rights? The soldier may still be charged and prosecuted for the crime, but there will be limitations on how the statement — or information derived from it — can be used against the soldier. These rules apply to UCMJ proceedings and may not be applicable in administrative actions. These rules also apply if the soldier asked for an attorney and didn't get one.

One important "rule" the soldier should always remember: always assume that whatever statement is made to anyone — except an attorney —can be discovered and used against the soldier. Whatever a soldier tells his or her friends or roommate could later fall into the hands of the prosecutor or law enforcement authorities.

If the soldier chooses not to make a statement, his or her refusal to talk cannot be used against him or her. Of course, that does not mean the soldier cannot be prosecuted; it simply means the soldier chooses not to provide statements that might be used against him or her. Police agencies or chains of command can ask if the soldier has changed his or her mind. This is called a "re-initiation" of questioning, and the soldier has the same right to remain silent.

What happens if the soldier asks for an attorney? By law, if the soldier asks for an attorney, all questioning must stop and the soldier may not be questioned about that offense again. When the soldier says "I want a lawyer," he or she is telling the questioners that a free Trial Defense Service counselor a civilian attorney hired by the soldier is wanted, to help the soldier decide if he or she should answer questions or make a statement.

If the soldier wants to talk to an attorney, how does he or she find one? If the soldier has been advised of his or her rights, he or she is entitled to talk to a Trial Defense Service counsel. The soldier may ask the chain of command or the investigator involved in questioning to contact the local defense counsel, or the soldier may call. If the soldier thinks he or she may want to hire a civilian attorney and do not know how to contact one, the soldier should look in the local Yellow Pages or contact the Trial Defense Office.

Will asking for an attorney cause people to think the soldier is guilty? No! Asking for an attorney is the soldier's right. The chain of command and police agencies all have attorneys who advise them. Having an attorney to help the soldier may simply even up the odds. After the soldier's attorney has had an opportunity to learn about the facts of the case, then the soldier and the attorney can discuss the soldier's options. In some cases, the best option may be to make a statement; in others, the attorney may advise against that. The choice is always the soldier's.

The soldier can make that choice more confidently if he or she seeks legal advice first.

Whether the soldier makes make a statement or not, the judicial process may continue. This article has been very general and may not answer all questions. Soldiers who have a legal question should get your advice only from an attorney. If the question is about military justice or an administrative elimination, call 545-1520.

TIPS FOR MAKING YOUR AD MORE EFFECTIVE

- Start Your ad with the item you are selling, service you are offering, or job title you are looking to hire.
- Be descriptive. The more information you provide to the reader, the better the responses will be to your ad.
- Use bold type, white space of decorative characters such as stars, to bring attention to your ad.
- Run your ad for an ample length of time. Remember, as soon as you get results, you can cancel at any time .
- Always include the price of your item.

CBS to bid baseball farewell after World Series

By Jim Gaffney
Tribune Media Services

From pennant races in every division to outstanding individual performances, baseball in 1993 had something for everybody:

SPOTLIGHT

John Olerud flirted with .400. Dave Winfield got his 3,000th career hit. Jim Abbott threw a no-hitter. Nolan Ryan and George Brett said goodbye. The Rockies broke attendance records in Denver. The Braves and Giants went the distance in the NL West. The Mets went under in the NL East.

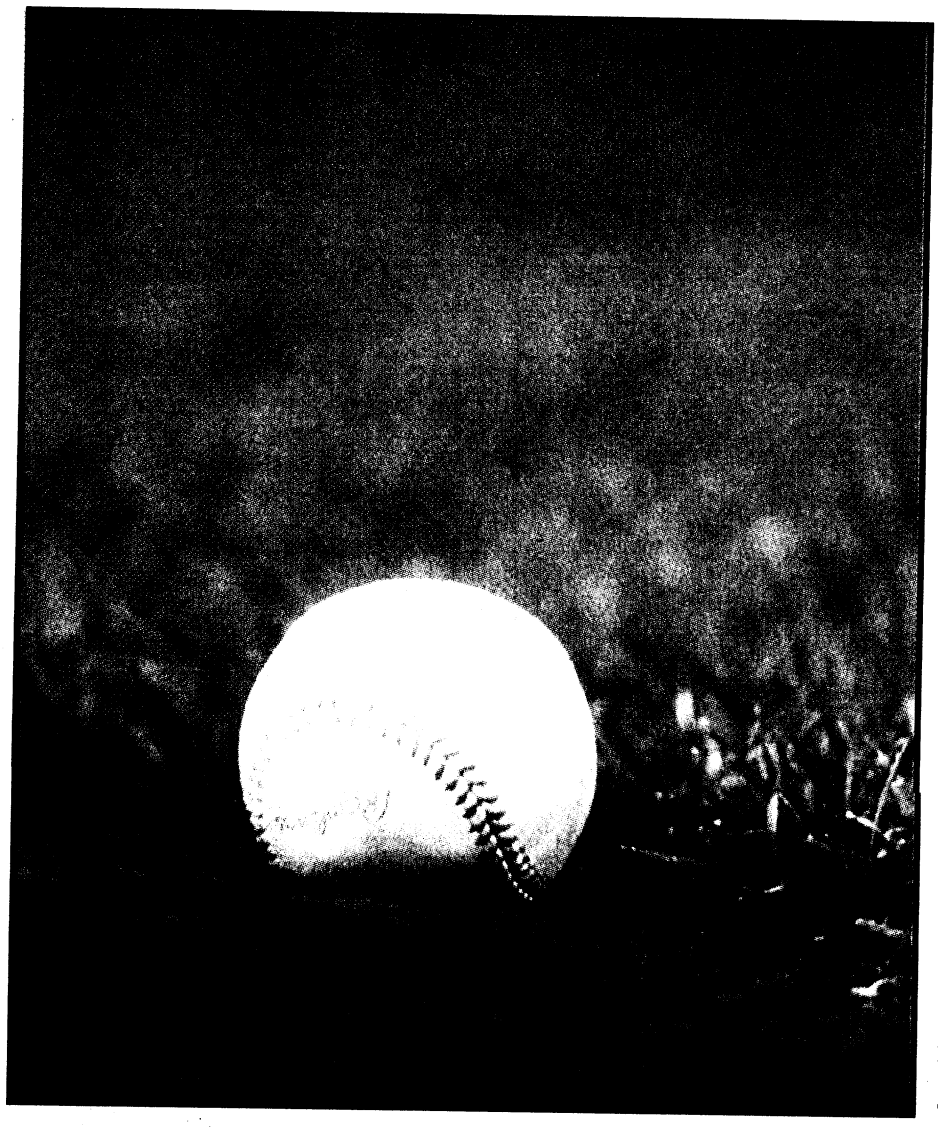
Great stories were everywhere.

"It's been a remarkable season," agrees CBS analyst Tim McCarver.

On Saturday, beginning at 8 p.m., McCarver and broadcast partner Sean McDonough will be in the home park of the American League champion for game two of the 1993 World Series, which continues all this week. First pitch is set for shortly before 8:30 p.m.

A former catcher who played in three World Series for the St. Louis Cardinals during a 22-year major-league career, McCarver will be broadcasting his fourth — and last — Series for CBS. The network's $1 billion TV contract, a huge money-loser throughout its four-year run, ends after this season.

"It was unfortunate that in the first year of the CBS deal, with everybody talking about how much money we were losing, that the World Series would be over in (only) four games," comments McCarver.



"Sure, that's disheartening, but you also understand that you have no control over it."

CBS and McCarver got luckier in 1991, with a great seven-game Series between the Minnesota Twins and Atlanta Braves. "Some people say it was the most exciting World Series ever played," McCarver reflects. "I agree that it ranks right up there."

Another seven-game Series would be a welcome end to the national pasttime's stay at CBS. The network would love it, the fans would love it, and McCarver would love it. "In a long Series, it's the players who take over the broadcast," he says. "All of a sudden, we (the announcers) are no longer setting up the action. Instead, we're watching and enjoying the games along with the fans."

Asked to name the best moment from his time at CBS, McCarver doesn't hesitate: "Sid Bream of the Braves, scoring the winning run in game seven of last year's NL playoffs, was one of most dramatic things ever to happen in postseason play. That, without a doubt, is the highlight."

Off the field, McCarver has nothing but praise for the job the network did during a sometimes-difficult four years. "My time here has been terrific," he says. "To see so many people work so hard to get the production up to such a professional level has been great. We had some problems early, but none that weren't solvable."

498th Medical Company headed for Haiti

By Cathy Alston
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Twelve soldiers from the 498th Medical Company departed for Haiti from Lawson Army Airfield Sunday. However, their arrival has been delayed. For highlights of the deployment, tune in to "Fort Benning Today."

Fort Benning is celebrating its 75th Diamond Jubilee Anniversary. Activities for the observance included a wreath-laying ceremony and the unveiling of a historic marker. Stay tuned to "Fort Benning Today" for highlights.

Fort Benning Schools are no longer wishing upon a star thanks to the National Science Center at Fort Gordon and a project called Star Lab. Watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday for highlights.

USAIC TV Schedule

Fort Benning Today: 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 1:30 to 2 p.m.
Specials: 2 to 4:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 4:30 p.m. to 8:30 a.m.

Military child-care systems are being revamped. The latest changes could include higher fees. Watch "Fort Benning Today" for details.

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel lists post events and movies and offers free classified advertisements on "Fort Benning Update," a community information service.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

Experience 1850s at museum village

Westville Historic Handicrafts Inc.

To experience life as it was in the fall of 1850, there is no better time or place than at the Fair of 1850 in Westville, the museum village near Lumpkin, Ga.

Through Nov. 14, there will be special demonstrations and events planned to show life as it was 143 years ago.

In addition to special activities, there will be demonstrations of regular activities that take place throughout the year.

These include blacksmithing, pottery-making, candledipping, spinning and weaving. Gingerbread cooked on a woodstove at the McDonald kitchen and sausage biscuits cooked over the open fire at the farmhouse are also available.

On every weekday during the fair, area children will be in the academy to portray education of the period.

Games of the period will be played as well. Boys will be shooting marbles and girls will be playing thread the needle.

Westville is located on South Mulberry Street, one half mile from the Lumpkin town square in West Georgia.

The regular village hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

For special events, village hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

For more information, write: Westville, P.O. Box 1850, Lumpkin, Ga. 31815 or call (912) 838-6310.

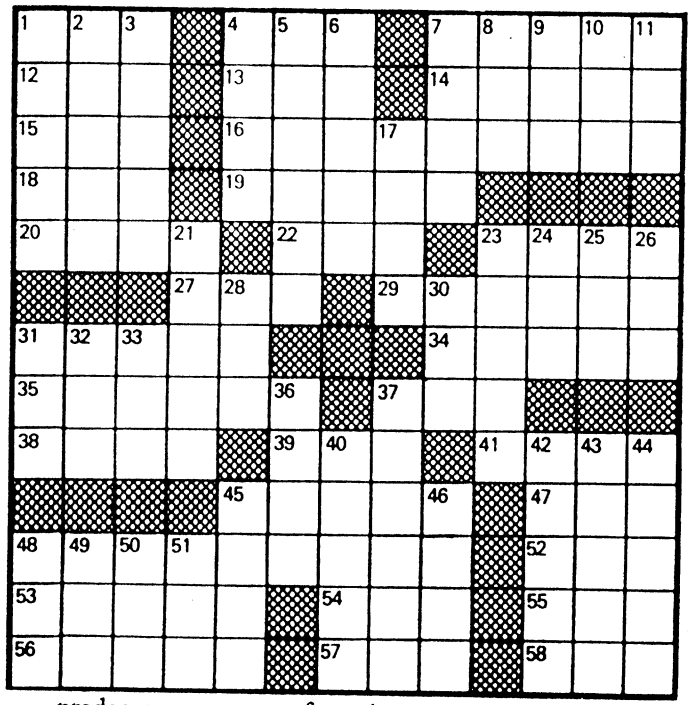
Encampment visitors can relive 'the good old days'

Georgia State Parks and Historic Sites



ATLANTA — Imagine a world without fax machines, automobiles, electricity or even the cotton gin. A time when candles meant light, horses meant transportation and family meant entertainment. Relive these days of old Nov. 12 and 13, during the Fall Encampment at Fort King George State Historic Site.

The Fall Encampment plays host to the largest gathering of 18th century re-enactors on the Georgia Coast. British independents, Georgia rangers, Scottish highlanders, Spanish garrison soldiers and loyal Indians will bring history to life with a wide array of demonstrations suitable for all ages.

Debuting this year is a replica of an 18th century six-pound cannon. Spectators will see re-enactments of 18th century military life. The festivities begin at 10 a.m. each day and last until 5 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children between the ages of 6 and 18 and free for those 5 and under. Call Fort King George State Historic Site at (912) 437-4770 for more information.

Operated by the Department of Natural Resources, Fort King George is located in Darien, Ga., east of I-95, Exit No. 10.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Senior Adult Harvest Ball — The fifth annual Senior Adult Harvest Ball will be 7 to 11 p.m. Monday at the Columbus Ironworks Convention and Trade Center in the South Hall.

Cost is $10 per person and tickets are available at any Columbus Senior Center. The event is for people 50 years of age and older, but "youngsters" may attend as dates and companions. Music and dancing will be provided by George Corradino and The Notables.

For information, call Fran Dewberry at 571-4500 or Jerry Shepherd at 571-5886.

Clogging — Franklin D. Roosevelt State Park invites the public to enjoy an evening of clogging on top of Pine Mountain from 8 to 9 p.m. Oct. 23.

The Southern Express Cloggers from LaGrange, Ga., will be presented at the stone amphitheater next to the park's information center on Highway 190 East.

All activities are open to the public at no cost other than the park pass fee of $2 per vehicle. For more information, call Sallie B. Lewis at (706) 663-4858.

Season opener — The Human Experience Theatre, located at 1037 Broadway in Columbus, is now presenting its season opener, "Advice From a Caterpillar," written by Douglas Carter Beane.

Curtain times are 8 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays through Oct. 23. Tickets are $10 and $8 for students, seniors and military. For reservations, call 323-3689.

Fifties dance — A Back to the '50s Mountain Record-Hop Dance will be at Franklin D. Roosevelt State Park, Visitor Information Center's amphitheater Saturday from 7 to 10 p.m.

Doc Roger and his assistant Rock Dodger are featured as disc jockeys. There will be prizes, dancing and games. Special prizes will be awarded to the best "Back to the '50s" attire.

All activities are open to the public at no cost other than the park pass fee of $2 per vehicle. For details, call (706) 663-4858.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It is an excellent time for business talks and the completion of unfinished projects. Extra expenses may arise in connection with a friend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You may fall behind on a work assignment and then have some catching up to do. It is a rewarding time for creative pursuits and activities with children and loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You will benefit from such activities as research and editing. Revised thinking comes now concerning a job project. You will be receiving an invitation to a special event.

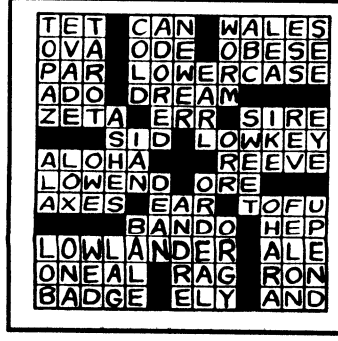
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You can bring up sensitive topics with a loved one this week without fear of stirring up a hornet's nest. Social interests are not favored this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) You will articulate your position with clarity. Don't expect immediate feedback, though. Give others enough time to mull over what you have said. The weekend accents fun and romance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) A talk with an adviser should go well. There may be a delay in connection with a job concern. Travel plans are subject to change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You should be wary about making a premature financial commitment. Do further research before making up your mind. The weekend brings happy times in the company of friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may volunteer for an assignment in connection with a group activity. There is more than one person upset this week regarding a partner's plans.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The beginning of the week is best for business progress and career-related discussions. You may meet with delays or obstacles in your path later on. The weekend brings a happy emphasis on togetherness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Talks with agents and advisers about creative projects go well. You may have difficulty making up your mind about social plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Dealings with bankers and real estate agents are favored now. A work project is brought to a successful conclusion. The weekend is tailor-made for romance and fun pursuits.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) A partner is your best confidante now. Some you deal with are evasive or make little sense. Money prospects pick up this week. Accent home life.

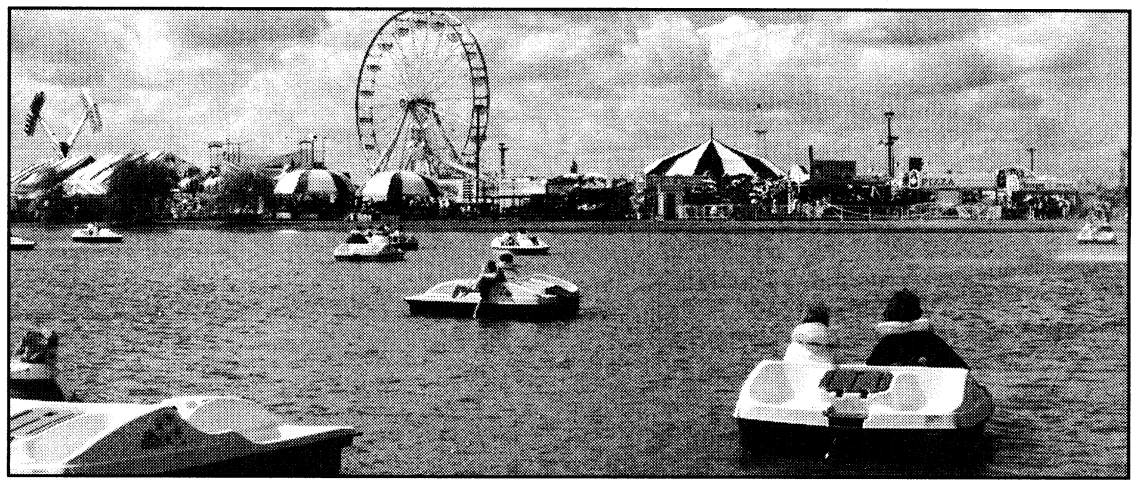
Gatlinburg to host fall craftsmen's fair

Gatlinburg Convention Center

The 18th annual Fall Gatlinburg Craftsmen's Fair will be at the Gatlinburg Convention Center through Oct. 24. It features artists and craftspeople from across the nation displaying their talents and demonstrating their skills.

The show begins outside in the parkway entrance where Knoxville, Tenn., blacksmith Bud Dance sets up his forge to practice the ancient art of shaping hot metal into items such as boot scrapers and fireplace pokers.



Television and video star Kelly Lang is the featured entertainer on Saturdays and Sundays. Lang can be seen each week on WSMV-Nashville's "The Morning Show," and also appeared on "Nashville Now," "Music City Live," and the "Tommy Hunter Show."

The Gatlinburg Convention Center is on the comer of Parkway and Airport Road in downtown Gatlinburg.

Hours for the fair are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays. Country music shows are at 2, 4 and 6 p.m., and 2 and 4 p.m Sundays.

Admission, including all entertainment, is $3.50 for adults, and children under 12 free.

Call (615) 436-7479 for more information.

Paula J. Randall

Paddle boat riders can see the fair's midway.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Adam turned up at Gloria's birthday party and surprised her by dancing with her. Later, when he failed to make love to her, he ordered her to leave him alone. Brooke told Tad, it was Edmund who stopped them from making love. Opal told Palmer she wants to help him manage the Chicken Shack. Soon after Tad arrived to keep a tryst with Dixie, Ted turned up; and, as Tad hid, he heard Ted propose and then explode in anger when Dixie turned him down. Wait to see: Ted's darker side takes hold.

ANOTHER WORLD: Vicky told Marley, but not Ryan, that she was pregnant. Jake found an ill Paulina at the video loft. A feverish Paulina was rushed to the hospital where John tried in vain to find the cause of her illness. Meanwhile, Iris got upsetting news about Mac and how Cory Publishing started. At the convent, as Brett prayed for a man who would fall in love with her, she looked up into Morgan's face. Wait to see: Ian makes a startling discovery.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Linc found the injured Connor and sheltered her from a brewing storm. Julia told Iva she feared her future happiness with Caleb would suffer if Holden revealed she's Aaron's mother. At the farmhouse, Lily was overwhelmed by memories of the early days of her marriage to Holden. Wait to see: Barbara's fears about Hal's meeting with Renata may prove true.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: A distraught, unkempt Eric told Stephanie he was under pressure by Brooke to meet her deadlines. Taylor wasn't happy about Ridge working closely with Brooke, but he assured her it was his way to help his father. Sheila got Connor worked up about Ridge's renewed "closeness" to Brooke. Dr. Warwick told Taylor he was there as her patient because of a dying woman. Wait to see: Eric's condition appears to be worsening.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Marlena's elevated blood pressure skyrocketed when she saw Stefano. Kristen, who admitted to John that she's Stefano's adopted daughter, stuck by Stefano's version of all the terrible things being said about him. Peter called Stefano to say he was bringing a surprise to Salem. Jack told Jo of his part in the pollution that led to his daughter's illness. Desperate to find a way to raise Jennifer's spirits, Austin told her that Carly was alive. Vivian was led down a hall in Pine Haven Sanitarium, unaware that Laura Horton was in the room she walked by. Curtis conned Billie into giving him more money. The sight of her son restored Carly's memory. Wait to see: Bo remains torn by the crushing decision he had to make.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Mac and Felicia began their operation to nail Ryan with the help of Bobbie and Tony. Monica forced herself to tell Alan, her "boyfriend, Rod" never existed. When he, in turn, told her his relationship with Rhonda had always been platonic, the two sealed their reconciliation by making love. Jenny and Pal finally learned where Tracy was hiding with baby Dillon. Lucy's plan to get Scotty to become closer to her failed, resulting in his becoming even more estranged. Wait to see: Jagger faces some unpleasant facts.

GUIDING LIGHT: Her curiosity piqued, Lucy asked Alan-Michael to fill her in on what was going on at Spaulding. Roger gave Nadine a job at WSPR so he could monitor what was going on between Buzz and Jenna. Fletcher told Alexandra, he had saved her wardrobe. Bess entrusted the Spaulding contract to an unknowing Eleni. A take-charge Alexandra called together Fletcher, Nick, Alan-Michael, and Vanessa to discuss how to get Spaulding back. Later, Mindy found Alexandra going through her things. Julie told Vanessa, she suspects Hart may be Peter's biological father. Wait to see: Roger gets upsetting news about Bess.

LOVING: The Rescott family mourned Louie's death. Stacey and Buck finally admitted their love for one another. Later, Stacey overheard Gwyn tell Clay, Buck fathered her unborn child. Afterward, Stacey was cool to Buck, much to his bewilderment. When Gwyn told him of her pregnancy, Buck proposed, and the two flew off to get married. Wait to see: Just as Dinah Lee feared, Ava was sowing the seeds of problems in her relationship with Jeremy.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Cord and Tina were prepared to expose Cain and Angela's scam. Luna abruptly called off her elopement with Max. Bo showed Nora evidence that she didn't cause Sarah's death. Rebecca visited Todd in jail. Alex led thugs to Angela and Cain, who had signed a $10,000 IOU with Alex's name. Emily decided to go public with sexual harassment charges against Sloan. Bo proposed again, and this time Nora accepted and moved back in with him. Wait to see: Max has a confrontation with Luna.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Victor was overwhelmed by the way Nikki greeted his return from the dead. Victor congratulated Cole on his book; and, unaware that the girl was Victoria, he said, he hoped to meet Cole's new love. Eve was desperate to get to Genoa City after Cole wrote of his love for Victoria, but she fell ill and had to be rushed to a hospital. Scott, furious when Lauren insisted she would keep Brad at Fenimore, began to recall Sheila as the more loving wife. Margaret agreed to marry Miles. Wait to see: Cricket and Danny face a new crisis in their marriage.

75TH ANNIVERSARY

FORT BENNING CELEBRATES DIAMOND JUBILEE

Post's anniversary extravaganza highlights special units, history

By Karen S. Morarie and Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writers

Fort Benning threw itself a 75th birthday party Saturday, complete with entertainment, exhibits, demonstrations and fireworks.

Soldiers, family members and local residents turned out, despite gray skies, to watch the Army show what some of its special units can do.

Fort Benning displayed the prowess of its rangers, marksmen and military police in demonstrations including ranger hand-to-hand fighting, exhibition shooting by members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, and the Military Police Activity's police dogs and handlers.

There were a few disappointed faces in the crowd when the cloud cover prevented the Silver Wings, the command exhibition parachute team, from jumping.

The Army Drill Team and Fife and Drum Corps, both units of "The Old Guard" 3rd U.S. Infantry of Fort Myer, Va., performed at 2 p.m. and again in a "Twilight Tattoo" performance at 7:15 p.m.

The Old Guard, created in 1784, is the oldest active duty infantry unit in the Army. It serves as the Army's official ceremonial unit and escort to the president, as well as maintaining tactical and technical proficiency as an infantry unit.

The Drill Team, in dress blues and with bayonet-tipped 1903 Springfield rifles, demonstrated the intricate drill and ceremony routines for which the unit is known.

The Fife and Drum Corps performed in uniforms similar to the ones worn by musicians in the Continental Army during the American Revolution, complete with tricorn hats, white wigs, waistcoats, colonial overalls and red greatcoats.

The music and instruments of the corps also reflect the Revolution. Instruments include 11-hole wood fifes, handmade rope-tensioned drums and solid brass bugles.

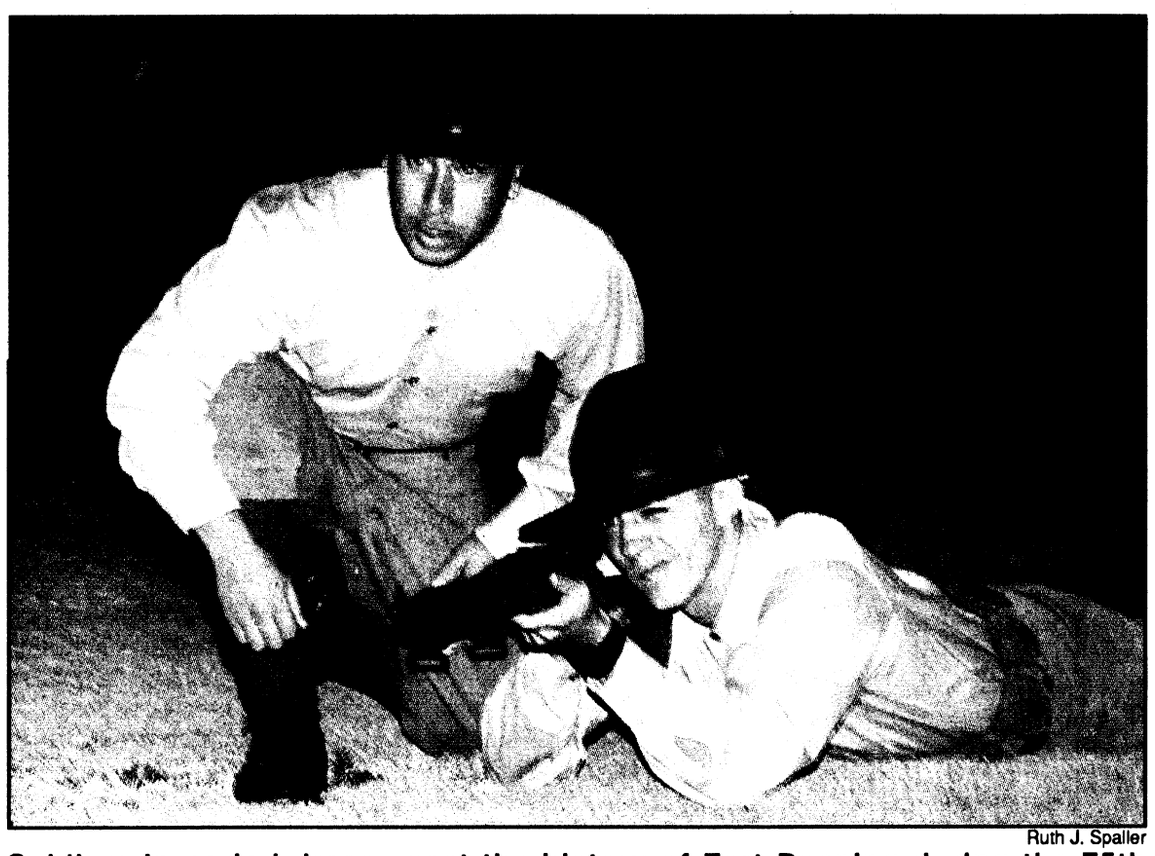
Music included colonial tunes such as "Drums and Guns," "British Grenadiers" and "Yankee Doodle."

Other highlights of the Diamond Jubilee included the post's after-dark presentation of its history from the creation of Camp Benning in 1918 to the present.

The show featured spotlighted soldiers complete with period weapons and uniforms, as narration traced the development of the post as a training center for soldiers and officers.

Other events included a Retiree Open House, a three-mile unit formation run, a one-mile Founder's Day walk and run and the five-mile museum run and biathlon.

Entertainment included displays, rides and concession booths, and historical tours were available.



Musical entertainment included the Infantry Band and Infantry Chorus.

Soldier dies in accident

USAIC Public Affairs Office

One Fort Benning soldier died and another was injured as a result of an accident Oct. 18 at approximately 3 p.m. on Brown Demolition Range.

Pvt. 2 Christopher L. Brown, 19, Company C, 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, died Monday as a result of injuries sustained during demolition training.

Cpl. Stephen F. Hopkins, 23, also of Company C, was injured. Hopkins was admitted to Martin Army Community Hospital Monday, treated for minor injuries to the left leg and released.

The accident followed the detonation of a crater charge that caused large pieces of debris and dirt to fall on the two soldiers, who had moved behind a safety berm some distance away.

Brown was air evacuated to the Columbus Medical Center at approximately 3:30 p.m., where he was pronounced dead.

Brown, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., arrived at the ranger battalion Sept. 23. He was an infantryman.

The accident is under investigation, officials said.

Homeward bound

Rangers to return

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Rangers from the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, currently deployed in Somalia, are headed home, battalion officials said Tuesday at a press conference.

The first rangers to return from Somalia, a group of approximately 100, are scheduled to arrive at Lawson Army Airfield 10:30 a.m. today.

The returning rangers will be welcomed home in a ceremony hosted by the 75th Ranger Regiment and its families in Hangar No. 2403.

"They're coming home, and that's been the million-dollar question for the last two months," said Sandy Harris, wife of 1st Sgt. Glen Harris of Company B, 3rd Bn., 75th Ranger Regt., who is in Somalia.

"They're our heroes, and we are thrilled," said Barbara McKnight about the pending return of her husband, Lt. Col. Danny McKnight, 3rd Battalion commander.

"We are used to living with rangers, so being apart isn't the toughest — it's what they went through (that is toughest)," she said.

"They accomplished (the mission), and we're just happy about it," McKnight said. "There's nothing tough left except getting them home."

Maj. Luke Green, a spokesman for the 75th Ranger Regiment, said approximately 400 rangers total will return to Fort Benning from Somalia out of the 600-member ranger task force that was there.

The rangers were deployed to Somalia in late August to augment the quick reaction force established there.

Deployed since August, this is the longest deployment for the rangers since the Vietnam War, Green said.

Editor's note: Future arrival times of additional rangers had not been confirmed as of press time.

Post cable TV thieves may pay the hard way

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning cable TV viewers who aren't paying for their viewing may find themselves paying a hefty fine.

According to Capt. Eric Storey, senior trial counsel and felony prosecutor for the Staff Judge Advocate's Criminal Law Division, the cable company that serves Fort Benning has estimated a high incidence of cable theft on post.

"The figure I got from the president of Cablevision Industries, the contractor, was that between $1,500 and $2,000 worth of services are being stolen every month," Storey said. "That means between 80 and 100 people here are stealing cable."

498th comes home

Haiti mission aborted

By David Greer
Bayonet staff writer

Soldiers from the 498th Medical Company (Air Ambulance) returned to Fort Benning Monday at 10 a.m. after their deployment to Haiti was canceled.

The 498th was to be a part of a U.N.'s peace mission to Haiti in which would provide air ambulance services to U.N. personnel.

The 12 soldiers and two UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters left Lawson Army Airfield Oct. 10 en route to Haiti, but it got no closer than Georgetown, Bahamas.

"We conducted training and maintained our readiness to continue the mission at a moment's notice," Maj. Mike Bobbitt, commander of the 498th, said.

The mission was aborted after Haitians mobbed a U.S. diplomat Oct. 12 and denied dock access to a U.S. transport ship carrying the main contingent of soldiers to Port-au-Prince, officials said.

Bobbitt said his troops expressed disappointment at the cancellation of the mission.

He said the unit would continue to train, help people in need and prepare for deployment whenever called.

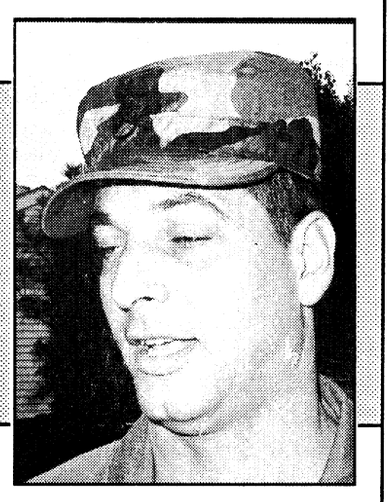
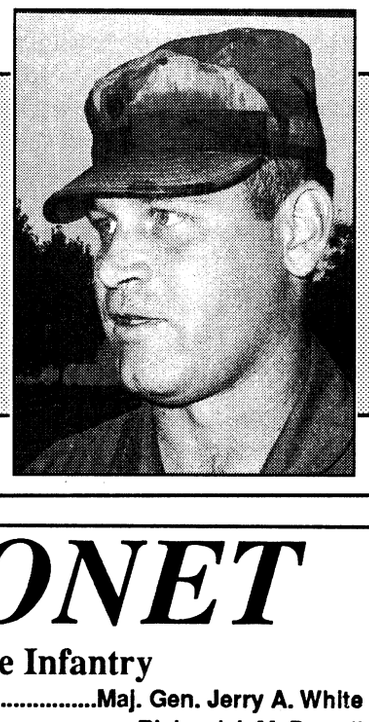
VARIOUS VOICES

How do you feel about gun control?



Sgt. Albert C. Cain, Company A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment — "I think there should be tougher laws on gun control and a longer waiting period."

Rhonda Marsh, Directorate of Public Works — "I own many weapons, and I am all for the right of people to buy guns for hunting and personal protection."



Capt. Dean McCluskey, Company B, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I don't think gun control is all that necessary. We need to educate people; taking the guns away won't solve the problem."

Staff Sgt. Andrew Musto, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I think everyone should be able to own a weapon. Laws may be too strict, but there should be some qualification system."

Pfc. Linda Lengle, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion — "I think there should be more control on guns."

Spc. James A. Billetdoux, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "Everyone has a right to own a gun, but they should be stored properly and kept out of the hands of children."

AT ISSUE

Is gun control needed ?

You can't shoot what you don't have

By Caejar A. Cox
USAIC Public Affairs Office

COMMENTARY

The fathers of our country originated the right to bear arms. I still think there is a need to have this right, but gun control is the safest and sanest way to ensure we live to use it.

PRO

When someone walks into a restaurant with an automatic weapon and proceeds to kill everything in sight, or a 15-year-old kills a classmate in the hallways of his school, I think it's time we take a serious look at the laws governing the purchase of firearms.

When people walk into a gun shop and want to buy handguns, they should have to wait a week so their records can be reviewed and the gun can be registered. If they are so impatient they can't wait a mere seven days, they are the exact kind of people I don't want to have a gun.

After all, you hear about the shootings on the L.A. freeway because someone was going too slow or someone thought someone else was in the wrong lane.

I'm sick of going to public places and worrying about whether or not I'm going to be caught in the crossfire of warring factions. As a journalist, I've been dealing with death a lot lately at work, and I'm sick of dealing with it on my off time.

Still, people say that if they are upstanding citizens, why should they have to wait for a gun? It's those "upstanding citizens" that usually kill someone because they are trying to impress Jodie Foster.

After all, guns don't kill people and people don't kill people; bullets kill people. Guns just make them go really fast.

Maybe to satisfy the Bill of Rights junkies who say our forefathers meant they could buy an AK-47 at a pawn shop, we should stop all forms of gun control. But I don't think the Bill of Rights mentions anything about bullet control. It should probably be a little harder to get the ammunition needed for these instruments of destruction.

I don't think the Old West was a desirable place to live — or should I say, die. The men and women of that day were only good as long as they were the fastest.

Is Billy the Kid your hero? Obviously, he's not mine. The romantic days of the gun fighter are gone. Or are they?

To most big-city law enforcement agencies, the Old West rears its ugly head each and every day. Some special weapons and tactics teams are outgunned by teen-agers fighting over a pair of tennis shoes.

On the other side of the coin, you'll have your "purists" who say they don't need gun control laws because their weapons are only used for hunting.

I admit it; I'm no hunter, so I guess it's feasible to think a MAC-10 is the perfect self-defense weapon against a deer.

These "purists" are the ones who are keeping our youth armed, and our police force six feet under.

I wonder what David Koresh's views on gun control were. Or John Hinckley, or Sirhan Sirhan, or Lee Harvey Oswald, or ...

We need more smarts not fewer guns

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

COMMENTARY

The right to bear arms — it's a right that was granted us as a result of the blood spilled by our forefathers in their fight for freedom.

Like any other red-blooded, mother-loving, apple-pie-eating, baseball-watching American, I support that right and would also die to uphold it.

CON

Gun control laws are not only unfair, they infringe on the basic rights that we, as Americans, are granted and the freedoms that some of the greatest Americans who ever lived established in the Bill of Rights.

I am not a mindless, trigger-happy warmonger as some gun control law advocates would portray me. I would never consent to anyone who was either too young or mentally deficient owning a weapon.

But I do believe that no one should be able to tell a responsible adult what kind of weapon he or she may possess in the privacy of his or her own home. That's verging on communism.

Some of the gun-law advocates may cry out about how many people get killed every year from weapons. So what is my response?

There are two kinds of deaths by firearms: accidental and intentional.

If people would be a little smarter with weapon safety and keep all firearms away from children, we would have no problem with accidental deaths. What we need is more awareness and education about handling a weapon.

Do you know how many people die every year in car accidents? A lot more than in gun accidents, but you don't see anyone picketing to ban the auto, except maybe the Amish.

What we need is more smarts, not fewer guns.

The second type of death by firearm is intentional. That is the key word — intentional. That means that someone meant to kill.

A firearm has nothing to do with an intentional death; it's just the tool that some maniac decides to use. I'm sure plenty of death-row inmates could tell you they didn't need a gun to help them cut out some poor guy's liver over a lousy wallet or something.

I bet if a few of those extremist gun control advocates ever got into the position where someone was going to do them or their family serious bodily harm by rape, assault or any number of things, they would reconsider their stand once they were facing reality.

And that's what it's all about — reality. It's a dangerous world out there, and only the strong survive. If you have to reconsider factors in your life to accept the fact that you need to protect yourself and your family, do it now.

You'll be following the path laid out hundreds of years before by the fathers of this nation. Where would we be if gun control laws ruled the day during the Revolution? Drinking tea, eating crumpets and talking with a bad English accent.

But remember, safety first! Hooah!

Misuse of firearms

Soldiers should know better

By Jim Caldwell
TRADOC News Service

FORT MONROE, Va. — If any group of people should understand just how dangerous misuse of firearms can be, it should be soldiers.

But serious incident reports forwarded to Training and Doctrine Command headquarters from installations illustrate just how lax some soldiers are about firearms safety. The reports graphically describe what can happen when people behave carelessly and foolishly with their privately-owned weapons.

Here's a sampling: "At an off-post location, while injecting a round into his ... pistol, (a corporal) accidentally dropped his weapon, discharging a round, striking him in the lower left leg ...:

"While (a soldier) was carrying an unregistered ... pistol in the barracks, (a female guest) was accidentally shot in the right shoulder. The bullet went across the back severing the spinal cord, collapsing the left lung ... (The woman) is paralyzed from the chest down ... Alcohol was involved."

"(A 13-year-old Army family member) accidentally shot (a 13-year-old friend) while playing with his father's .... pistol ... The weapon discharged and the round struck (the friend) in the forehead."

Most of these accidents involved people who have been trained to safely use firearms in their profession. Yet they treat personal weapons as if they were harmless toys. They learn their lessons when a tragedy occurs. Then, of course, it's too late.

Over the past two fiscal years, eight TRADOC soldiers, family members and friends have been killed with soldiers' personal weapons. The figures for the final quarter of fiscal '93 will probably increase. Safety officials and Military Police have not completed investigating several recent incidents.

Safety officials are amazed. Soldiers get a lot of training in weapons safety. There are plenty of examples of what happens with a negligent attitude to weapons safety. Yet there are so many who use the "it won't happen to me" approach.

If you follow the "it won't happen to me" philosophy, then it very likely will happen to you. Worse yet, someone else will pay for your ignorance and carelessness.

There are basic practices in properly handling firearms. It's hard to say which takes precedence, but the first two of the following suggestions are right at the top.

• Know your weapon. Read all the operating, mechanical and safety information the manufacturer provides.

• Never handle a firearm while drinking alcohol. Don't even think about it.

• Never load a gun until you're going to use it at a range or when hunting.

• Store guns and ammunition separately in locked containers. There are several different kinds of storage cases on the market. Check with the provost marshal or local gun dealers to find the best for you. Even then, make sure children cannot get to the guns.

• Teach your children how firearms work and why they must be handled safely and under supervision. Remove the mystery of firearms from children. You should still store guns where children cannot get them. Remember, adults set the standards. If you act stupidly with firearms, you shouldn't be surprised when your children follow your bad example.

• Never assume a weapon is unloaded. Always check to make sure a weapon is unloaded when you first pick it up.

• Keep ammunition away from a weapon when you are cleaning it.

• Never "horseplay" with a weapon.

• Never point a gun at anything you don't want to shoot.

• Safeties can and will fail. Do not pull the trigger of a loaded weapon when the safety is on. The safety may fail or cause the gun to fire when you move the mechanism from safe to fire.

If you have read this short list of safety tips — and it is a short list — you're probably thinking, "So what's new?" Well, nothing. And that's why it is so frustrating for safety specialists, firearms instructors and medical personnel.

Following these few guidelines would have prevented the incidents cited at the beginning of this piece. Remember, also, those tragedies amount to a small sample of the senseless incidents that happen all too often.

RETIREE OPEN HOUSE

brings visitors from Alabama, Florida, Georgia

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Military retirees from Alabama, Florida and Georgia attended Fort Benning's 12th annual Military Retiree Open House Oct. 14, 15 and Saturday.

The open house is conducted every year to provide the tri-state area retirees with the opportunity to transact business concerning their rights, benefits, privileges and entitlements, and also to inform them of concepts of the modern Army.

The open house kicked off Oct. 14 and 15 with Health Activity Days. Physical examinations were offered for retirees living more than 40 miles away from Fort Benning, and a health fair open to all retirees at Martin Army Community Hospital's Family Practice Clinic was offered Oct. 15.

Tours of the National Infantry Museum were conducted Oct. 14; an "all-you-can-eat" barbecue buffet at the Uchee Creek Lodge and a demonstration by Fort Benning's command exhibition parachute team, the Silver Wings, rounded out the activities for Oct. 15.

Events for Saturday started with an assembly in Infantry Hall's Marshall Auditorium.

After a welcome from retired Maj. Gen. Robert Sullivan, co-chairman of the Fort Benning Retiree Council, an "I am the Infantry" presentation was featured.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White followed with his comments for the retirees and the Volunteer of the Year presentation. Col. Michael J. Kussman, commander of Martin Army Community Hospital, preceeded the keynote speaker for the assembly with his comments.

Maj. Gen. James C. Pennington, president of the National Association of Uniformed Services, was the keynote speaker for the retirees, and ended the assembly with his comments.

Open house for the retirees wrapped up Saturday with country fair activities in Infantry Hall. The retirees, family members, soldiers and Fort Benning employees present seemed to enjoy the various booths, food and prizes.

Attendance of the open house peaked Saturday with an estimated 1,000 people attending.

Red Ribbon campaign starts Saturday

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

The national Red Ribbon campaign, an annual, week-long celebration that emphasizes the importance of eliminating illegal drugs in schools, work places and communities, starts Saturday.

Al Curry, education coordinator of the post's Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program, said that the campaign is the perfect time for Fort Benning residents to demonstrate their commitments to lifestyles free from drug abuse.

Post residents are invited, he said, to wear red ribbons as a symbol of their commitments to healthy, drug-free lifestyles and to participate in various drug awareness and prevention programs that will be sponsored during the week by the ADAPCP office and the National Federation of Parents for Drug Free Youth.

"We want the message to reach the children of Fort Benning in particular," said Curry. "Room mothers at the post's elementary schools will be giving educational materials to the children in their classes and will encourage the children to sign petitions that state their pledge to live drug-free."

On Tuesday, Fort Benning and South Columbus Boy Scouts will be going door to door in the housing areas to distribute information and get signatures for their own petition. Last year the scouts collected more than 5,000 signatures, Curry said.

In addition, the Youth Activities Center and each of the post communities will feature its own programs and events.

The public is also invited to attend a special ribbon-tying ceremony Wednesday at 9 a.m. at the grand staircase at the Riverwalk in Columbus. The ceremony will symbolize the cooperation and dedication of the Columbus, Phenix City and Fort Benning communities in working to end drug abuse.

Curry added that anyone desiring information, educational materials, red ribbons for wear or support for activities and programs can contact him at 545-4993 or 545-1138.

The Red Ribbon campaign will continue through Oct. 31.

Post to participate in Red Ribbon events

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

Red Ribbon week, a week highlighting drug abuse awareness, will be celebrated in communities throughout Georgia Saturday through Oct. 31.

Columbus will participate in this nationwide event Wednesday, with a celebration at the grand staircase of the Riverwalk.

Participants in the event will include representatives from local law enforcement, government officials, area children and businesses.

A highlight of the celebration will be the "River Border Tying," where a red ribbon will be tied across the Chattahoochee River between Phenix City and Columbus.

Local Boy Scouts will be on hand to distribute drug-free literature and a program will be presented by "America's Pride," a group comprised of area teens who promote a drug-free lifestyle.

The keynote address will be given by Col. James Crockert, Fort Benning's provost marshal.

Columbus Police Chief W. J. Wetherington and Muscogee County Sheriff Gene Hodge will also make comments.

Fort Benning's Infantry Band and the Silver Wings, the command exhibition parachute team, will also perform at the celebration. Events will begin at 9 a.m.

FOR THE RECORD

In an article appearing in the Sept. 24 Bayonet, Ann Duff was mistakenly identified as Logan Duff's daughter. She is his daughter-in-law.

POST BRIEFS

Dining-in set today

A dining-in ceremony will be today at 6 p.m. in the Supper Club at the Fort Benning Officers' Club.

Senior noncommissioned officers and officers from the Infantry Training Brigade will be in attendance.

DPW schedules organization day

The Directorate of Public Works will conduct organization day activities today from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For emergency work orders, call 545-2135.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Sunday. If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: C-1, C-3, E-7, K-8, K-11, O-3, O-4, O-5, O-6, O-7, O-8, O-14, Q-2, S-1 and T-5.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas. People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily. Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas.

911 hearing set Nov. 1

A public hearing to discuss the merits of the E-911 system is scheduled for Nov. 1 at 7 p.m. in Classroom 2 of Infantry Hall.

All on-post residents are invited to attend. Representatives from the Military Police, Fire Department, Emergency Medical Service and the Directorate of Information Management will be available to answer questions about the system.

Fort Benning expects to begin testing the system Dec. 1 and be fully operational by Dec. 31.

Housing area residents with telephones will be assessed a $1.50 surcharge on their monthly phone bills, although this will not become effective until March 1.

4/41 plans dinner for St. Barbara's Day

The 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery is hosting a St. Barbara's Day dinner and dance Dec. 17 at 6:30 p.m. at the Fort Benning Officers' Club, Supper Club Room. All active and retired artillerymen, air defenders, former St. Barbara's Award recipients and friends of the field artillery are welcome.

For more information, call 544-4554, 544-1822 or 544-3513.

Old Guard

helps Benning celebrate 75 years of history

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Two special units from the 3rd U.S. Infantry, the Old Guard, visited Fort Benning to join in the post's Diamond Jubilee celebration.

The U.S. Army Drill Team and the Fife and Drum Corps performed Saturday for post residents and community visitors. The audience seemed impressed with the precision and showmanship of the soldiers.

Some of the Old Guard soldiers had previous experience with Fort Benning from their training; and, in one case, it was a return home.

Home to play, not to stay

Sgt. 1st Class James Hicks, leader of the Fife and Drum Corps, is a Phenix City native and a 1973 graduate of Central High School.

"My whole family still lives in the area," Hicks said, "so this is a great chance for me to visit. I've never been stationed at Fort Benning, and my work doesn't bring me close to home very often."

Hicks said he was at the U.S. Army Element School of Music when recruiters from the Old Guard offered him a chance to try out for a new unit they were planning.

"They were going to start a drum and bugle corps," he said, "and I was studying tuba at the time, so I tried the bugle.

"They accepted me, and put me in the Fife and Drum Corps until they could get authorization for the drum and bugle section."

Hicks laughed as he said, "They never did get the authorization, and they ended up giving the extra drums and bugles to the Marine Corps.

"I stayed as a bugle player until I got tired of it," Hicks said. "After hearing the same five notes for a while, everything begins to sound the same. Plus, it was hard on my chops! Anyway, I started practicing the fife, and eventually I got good enough to join the fife section."

Hicks said he's gotten a lot of pleasure out of his time in the Fife and Drum Corps.

"We played for Gorbachev when he came to this country," he said, "and they broadcast it live over Red Square. That's an experience not many people get."

"Drill" specialist

Although some of his fellow U. S. Army Drill Team members may consider him "square," he prefers to think of himself as squared away.

Spc. Steve Beckner, 21 years old and a native of Norfolk, Neb., is well over 6 feet tall and stands as straight as the rifle he spins and throws in his drill routines. He neither smokes nor drinks, he said, and that's probably a plus when you're surrounded by airborne bayonet-tipped rifles.

Beckner has been with the Drill Team for more than a year and has served with the Old Guard since he completed his one station unit training as an infantryman at Sand Hill.

His first job with the Old Guard was with the 1st Presidential Marching Platoon and Honor Guard Company. His duties there included honor guard at Arlington National Cemetery and at various state functions.

He tried out for the Drill Team after a year with the honor guard. "It's a tough selection process," he said. "First, we spent two weeks learning the manual of arms, then we tried out, tested, and had a probationary period. You can be kicked off the team at any time if you don't measure up, and the routines are really demanding."

Beckner said the hardest part of being on the team is achieving perfection. "There's really no room for mistakes," he said. "If you mess up, you can hurt yourself or someone else, so we practice constantly to make sure that doesn't happen."

Beckner plans to stay with the Drill Team until his enlistment is up, about a year from now.

"Being on the team has taught me a lot," he said. "I used to be really shy, but now I love performing in front of a crowd. I think my discipline and self-confidence have improved because of my experience in the Old Guard. "

Beckner plans to go to college and major in criminal justice after leaving the Army.

Soldiers' spouses receive VIP cards

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Spouses of soldiers now in Somalia are being issued deployment cards identifying them as family members of soldiers deployed to hostile areas.

The new green cards replace all previously issued cards, such as the blue "VIP card" that was issued to spouses during earlier deployments to Somalia, said Michelle A. Aldridge, Family Unit Network coordinator.

The deployment card provides key phone numbers for Fort Benning service agencies and gives cardholders access to discounts and coupons at selected Morale, Welfare and Recreation and Army and Air Force Exchange Service facilities.

The card is meant to be an additional resource for family members, Aldridge said.

"It is a way to identify family members of deployed soldiers and help recognize the stress they are dealing with," she said.

"Not only is it helpful for discounts, it also offers a lot of resources," said Aldridge. "It's one way to reach as many family members as possible ... to let them know we realize what they are going through and acknowledge that we are here to help."

Aldridge, herself a family member, has had her own card. "My husband's been to Somalia and to Saudi," she said. "It helps to know people are concerned about you and willing to go that extra mile."

Phone numbers family members might need for information or on a regular basis are listed on the back of the card.

"If they are having financial problems, for example, the number for Army Emergency Relief is right there," Aldridge said.

Current discounts the card offers include:

■ 10 percent off all user fees Thursdays and Fridays at the Arts and Crafts Center, 545-3677

■ $5 off a computerized automotive analysis at the Kelley Hill or Main Post auto crafts centers, 544-3101 or 545-2337

■ 10 percent off rentals and lodgings at Uchee Creek Campground and Marina Monday through Thursday, 545-7238

■ Discount bowling (75 cents per game) at the Mall or Main Post bowling centers Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., 544-1985 or 545-4272

■ Coupons (available from rear detachment commanders) for Burger King, Anthony's Pizza and AAFES products

■ One free soda, coffee or tea with purchase of a regular priced lunch or dinner at the Main NCO or Officers' Club

■ 50 percent off one daily greens fee at the Follow Me Golf Course Monday through Friday

The Family Unit Network is now in the process of issuing the new cards to rear detachment commanders, Aldridge said. Family members can see their rear detachment commanders for a card.

Rear detachment commanders can contact Aldridge at 545-5931.

RECYCLING

pickup begins in housing areas

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Curbside pickup of recyclable materials has begun for certain neighborhoods on post, according to Mo Armstrong, post recycling coordinator.

Here is a listing of when and where curbside pickup will take place:

• Thursdays: Norton Court, McDaniel Manor and Bouton Heights.

• Fridays: Perkins Place, McIver Street, Upatoi Terrace and East Main Post.

• Wednesdays: Indianhead Terrace, Custer Terrace, Davis Hill, Austin Loop, Miller Loop and McGraw Manner.

Curbside pickup will continue once each week on the same day of the week as the dates listed above. Residents should place their brown plastic bins with recyclable materials at the side of the curb before 7:30 a.m. on the day of pick up.

Armstrong said only the following items can be placed at curbside for recycling:

• Cans: Aluminum and steel cans that are rinsed out can be recycled.

• Plastic: Only soft drink bottles and milk jugs can be accepted at this time. The caps should be removed and the containers rinsed out.

• Glass: Any glass soft drink, beer, juice, ketchup, wine, liquor and food containers can be recycled. All caps and lids should be removed and the containers rinsed out.

"Special care should be taken to ensure that the glass is not broken when it is placed in the bin," Armstrong said. "Broken glass cannot be accepted because it poses safety problems and makes separation difficult."

• Newspaper: All newspaper should be bundled or placed in a brown paper bag beside the recycling bin. Magazines cannot be accepted at this time.

• Cardboard: Pick up of large cardboard items, such as boxes used during moving, must be coordinated directly by calling 544-6142.

For more information, call the Environmental Management Division at 545-4208 or 545-4766.

ACAP plans federal employment seminar Thursday

Army Career and Alumni Program

A seminar about federal employment will be Thursday from 8 to 10 a.m. in Infantry Hall, Classroom 30.

Sponsored by the Army Career and Alumni Program and the Directorate of Civilian Personnel, the seminar is available to soldiers, spouses and civilians who are making the transition from the military.

More than 60 Fort Benning soldiers and spouses attended the last federal employment seminar, which was Sept. 30. James Fleming, a 20-year veteran of the DCP, was a key speaker.

Because of the interest shown by separating and retiring military personnel in pursuing a career with the federal government, the seminar is designed to provide information for soldiers getting out of the service and their spouses on the opportunities of federal employment with primary emphasis on Fort Benning.

The seminar covers the basics of how the federal employment system functions, the various agencies and veteran's preference. Participants will be given a walk-through of the federal employment application Standard Form 171.

"The seminar is a great opportunity for people to find out what they may need to effectively begin pursuit of federal employment as well as clear up any misconceptions," said Cathy Murray, who is an instructor with Conwal Inc. Murray assists the Georgia Department of Labor with the Transition Assistance Program workshop, and she conducts personal assessments Thursday and Friday of each week at the ACAP office. Also, she assists soldiers, civilians and family members in the use of an automated Standard Form 171.

Murray also has an automated resume program that individuals can use by appointment. To obtain an appointment, call 545-4902 or 545-4892 or stop by Building 2617 in Soldiers' Plaza.

Proclamation Red Ribbon Campaign

Oct. 23 to 31

Whereas: Every American should know that drug abuse is a major threat to our health and welfare, and that our youth continue to experiment with mood-altering chemicals; and

Whereas: It is imperative that visible, unified prevention education efforts by members of the Fort Benning community be launched to eliminate or reduce the demand for drugs; and

Whereas: The National Federation of Parents For Drug Free Youth Inc., (a national parent/community organization) and the Fort Benning Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program are sponsoring the National Red Ribbon Campaign. offering members of the Fort Benning community the opportunity to demonstrate their commitment to drug - free lifestyles. (no use of illegal drugs, no illegal use of legal drugs); and

Whereas: The National Red Ribbon Campaign will be celebrated in every community in America during Red Ribbon Week, Oct. 23 to 31; and

Whereas: President Bill Clinton is the National Honorary Chairman, and Governor Zell Miller is the Honorary Chairman for the state of Georgia to provide national and state focus on a drug-free America; and

Whereas: The Fort Benning community commits its efforts to ensure the success of the Red Ribbon Campaign.

Therefore: I, Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, do hereby proclaim Oct. 23 to 31 as Red Ribbon Week, and encourage the entire military community to participate in drug prevention education activities, making a visible statement that we are strongly committed to a drug-free community.

Rain doesn't stop them or slow them down

2,300 runners, cyclists attend NIM road races

The rain didn't stop them; it didn't even slow them down. Approximately 2,300 runners and cyclists attended the 12th annual National Infantry Museum Road Race Saturday at York Field.

The race, which coincided with the 75th anniversary of Fort Benning, opened the day's festivities with a three-mile formation run with 33 units in attendance. Top finishers of the race were from the 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, in first with a time of 21 minutes and 13 seconds.

Company D, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, turned in a time of 21:17 for second place and the engineers of the 317th Engineer Battalion, 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div., captured the third spot with a time of 21:40.

The large unit winners of the Infantry Training Brigade went to Co. C, 1st Bn., 38th Infantry Regiment (team two), with a time of 21:16 for first place. Co. E, 1st Bn., 38th Inf. Regt., followed up in second with a time of 21:17. Co. C, 1st Bn., 38th Inf. Regt., rounded out the top three spots with a time of 21:46.

Co. E, 1st Bn., 50th Inf. Regt., captured the best looking and best sounding award for a large unit.

Main Post units taking the top three spots in the three mile formation run were 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, crossing the tape at 21:59, while the team of 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, crossed the line in second at 22:11. Team two of 3rd Bn., 11th Inf. Regt., finished third at 22:13.

In the five-mile run, Edgar Otalora, Douglas Smith, Michael Conover, Scott Miller, Luis Villafane, Bruce Powell and L. McGrady of Co. E, 1st Battalion, (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, captured the best men's team with a combined time of 2:36:13.

In second place with an overall time of 2:40:10 were the Marksmen, a team from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, led by Lance Dement, Rob Harbison, Mimon Reynolds, Karl Davis, Merle Edington and Chris Hutcher. The team of Florian Rothbrust, Sam Matlokotsi, Joseph Muithya, Kevin Morrissey, Levent Yergun, John Pelton and Peter Barkie from the International Student Training Detachment finished third with a time of 2:49:10.

In the best women's team results, the USAMU women's team Dynamic Four, which included Pamela Robinson. Leticia Burgos and Phyllis Loving crossed the finish line in first with a time of 2:4:34.

The Headquarters Services Company Ladies, team one comprised of Dusty Severn, Rebeca Lane and Brenda Thompson rolled into second place at 3:46:42.

Mary Brown, Jakkie McDuffie and Greth Gorrett of HSC Ladies team two nipped the tape just a fraction of a second behind their fellow runners for third also with a time of 3:46:42.

The top female finisher for the individual runners in the five-mile run went to Lutreva Washington with a time of 35:42.

Top male finisher was Ken Riggsbee crossing the tape at 27:22. "This was great course to run," said Riggsbee "The first half of the course had a mild uphill climb to it, and the last half of the race was either downhill or flat. I hope to run again next year."

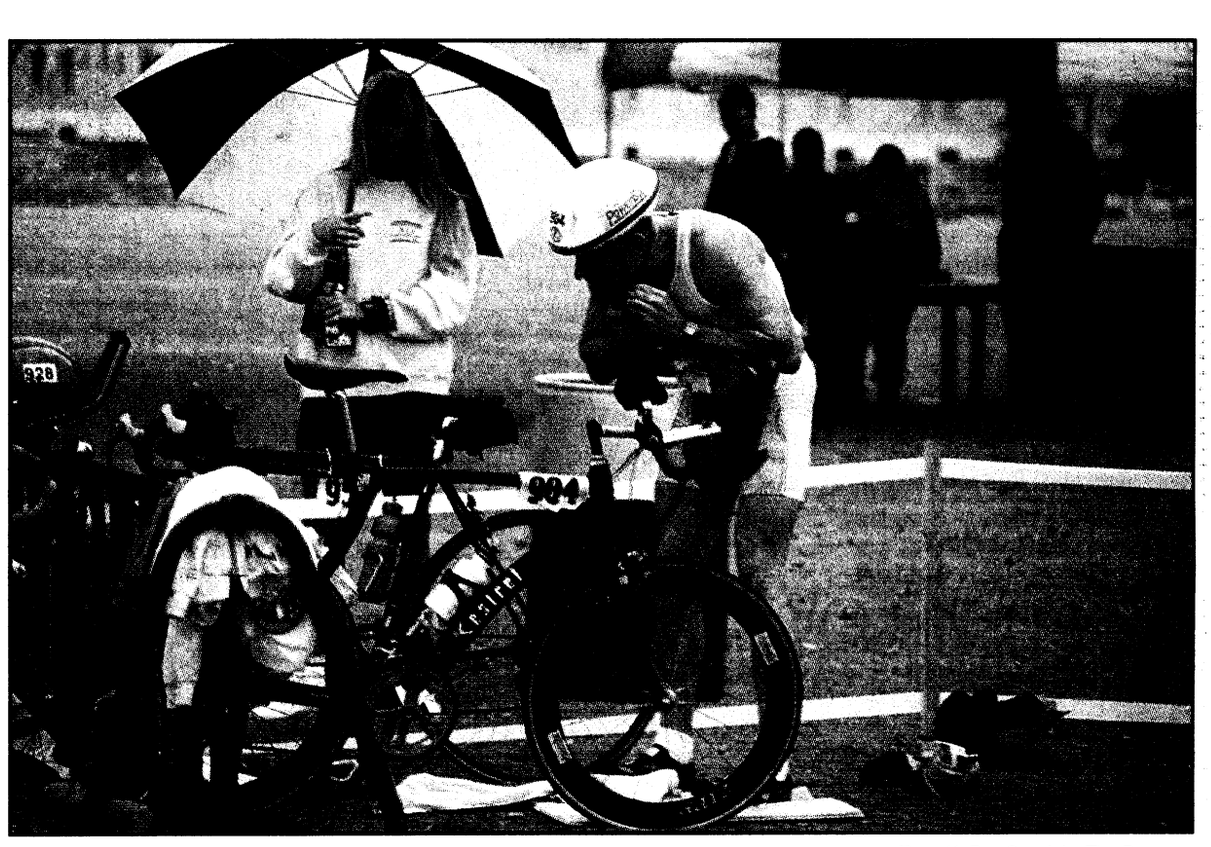
An extra added feature this year was the biathlon — five-mile run followed by a 20-mile bike ride around Fort Benning.

L.F. Bolze was the top female finisher coming in with a time of 1:44:11.

Blain Reeves was tops in the male division with a time of 1:19:32 after starting the cycling portion of the biathlon in third place. "I just concentrated on the lead vehicle in front of me," said Reeves. "After the first pass, I still felt strong and was still close to the leaders, so I kept my pace and everything worked out."

The male open team relay was won by Allen Pepper with a time of 1:19:19. Second place went to Wesley Shaw with a time of 1:25:38. Allen Scott tripped the tape for third at 1:33:39.

In the mix open relay, Gail Lynch captured first with a time of 1:38:57, while Debbie Ezell claimed second with a time of 1:52:31.



John Herbst at the young age of 60 won the mix master relay burning up the course with a time of 1:58:33.

Back in 1929, Maj. F. E. Hixon defeated Maj. Omar Bradley to win the corps area golf championship in a 36-hole match.

Sixty-four years later and celebrating its 75th anniversary, Fort Benning and the Follow Me Golf Course hosted the Diamond Jubilee Golf Tournament Oct. 15 on the lake side of the course.

Ninety-two golfers, four of them retired generals and three former Fort Benning commanders, participated in the tournament.

First place went to Paul Leonard, Tom Christopher, Royston Hercules and David Sims with a round of 60.

Jim Crockert, Matthew Burke, Bobby Jones and Steven Garland captured second with a score of 61.

Three teams tied for third place; the tiebreaker that was low score on the back nine gave third place to Harry Ikner, Bob Pounds, Vic Tireman and Marlin Remigo.

Jerry Shackleford, Bill Salibury, James Heidorn and James Spahn finished in the fourth spot at 63.

Bill Livsey teamed up with Walter Wojdakowski, Theodore Severn and Galen Jackman for the fifth spot also at 63.

Sixth place went to Bruce Williams, John Jones, David Flo and John Meister with a 64.

Nipping at their heels in seventh place was Slats Henderson, Mike Spigelmire, former post commander, Lamar Caldwell and Sue Ikner also in at 64.

Post celebrates 75th with punch

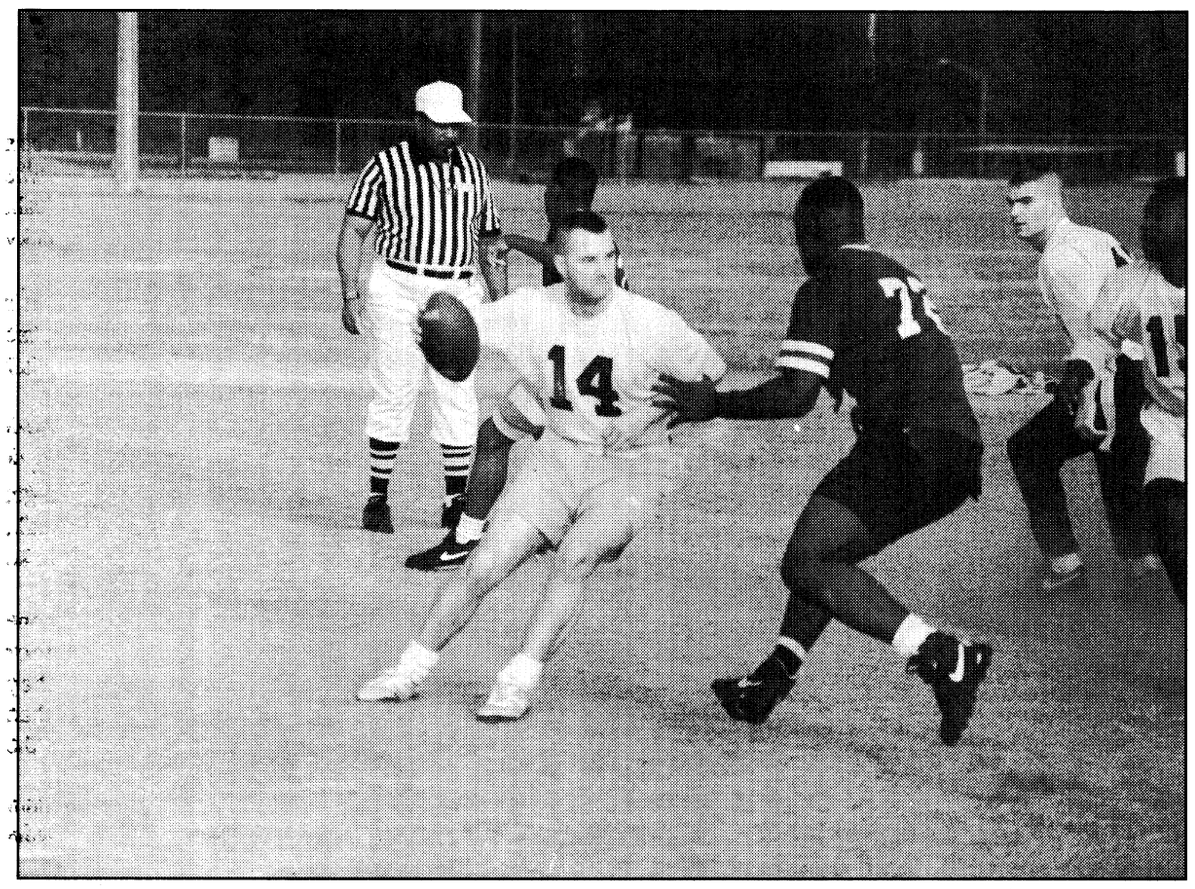
The year is 1922. Boxing makes a name for itself here when the Fort Benning boxing team goes to Fort McPherson, Ga., and comes home with six championships.

It's now 1993, and Fort Benning has turned 75 years old. To help celebrate the occasion, the Physical Activities Branch hosted a night of boxing at Briant Wells Field House Oct. 15.

With Fort Benning turning 75 years old, having to wait more than an hour for the festive occasion to begin what seemed a worthwhile endeavor for the small but vocal audience. The boxing team's transportation from Fort Rucker, Ala., broke down just outside Columbus, causing the delay. With live entertainment filling the air from rhythm and blues band Power Unlimited, the time passed quickly and the bouts were soon under way.



In the first bout of the evening, two junior Olympic competitors went at it tooth and nail. Sam Rameriz of Anniston, Ala., defeated Kevin Riley of Fort Benning when referee Edward Crook stopped the contest in the second round.

The second bout between junior Olympians Tony Allen of Spencer High School and Nysta Nysta of Anniston, Ala., went the distance with Allen coming out on top.

In the novice class, David Williams of Fort Benning won on a default over Mike Johnson of Anniston, Ala. Thomas Pickney of the Columbus Boxing Academy defeated Brian Taylor of Spencer High School in the fourth bout of the evening.

In the heavier weight classes, Kane Miller of Fort Benning won a three-round decision over Rico Welch of Ring South from Atlanta. Raymond Jefferson of Fort Benning went toe to toe with Ronald Cobb of Ring South for three hard-fought rounds and pulled out a surprising victory.

"We were very happy to put on these bouts for the Fort Benning public," said boxing coach Charles Kirkland. "The boxers were more anxious than I was to have the fights take place. They have trained so hard for this night. To help the post celebrate its 75th birthday was so much more enjoyable."

Ranger quarterback Tim Tomlinson looks to evade the rush of Mauler lineman James Johnson.

Rangers edge Maulers in overtime

By Terry K Ray

The 75th Ranger Regiment edged past the U.S. Army Medical Activity Department (Maulers) in overtime Monday night at Engineer Field.

After fighting to a 7-7 tie in regulation time, the Maulers took a 13-7 lead on their first possession of the overtime period, but the Rangers prevailed 14-13.

The score was knotted at zero at the end of the first half. At the start of the second half, the Rangers opened up a 7-0 lead on a 10-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tim Tomlinson to receiver Eric Montgomery for the first tally of the night. Montgomery added the extra point for a 7-0 advantage.

The Maulers not to be outdone came right back with their first score of the game. Mauler quarterback Eugene Miller found receiver Allen Provens streaking down the left sideline for a 40-yard touchdown strike. The extra-point try was good when Miller dove in from 3 yards out to knot the game at 7-7.

With less than 30 seconds to play in the half, Tomlinson went for a long pass down the right sideline for the game winner. Mauler defensive back William Smith picked off the pass giving the Maulers a shot to win the game. Miller pumped up the right arm and let fly a long pass over the middle. Ranger safety Raymond Jones picked off the pass with time still on the clock. The Rangers had time for one final play. An option pass by running back Jeff Frantz was intercepted by Miller ending the game tied at 7-7.

In the overtime period, the Maulers won the toss and took possession at the 10-yard line. On the second play of the drive, Miller hit receiver Joe Tiberio for a 3-yard touchdown. The Maulers failed to convert the extra point try leaving them up by only six points, 13-7. The Rangers scored on their first play from scrimmage on an option pitch to Jones from Tomlinson off the right side. Tomlinson broke away from to would-be tackler on the extra-point attempt and scrambled into the end zone for the game winning point at 14-13.

In the second game of the night, the U.S. Air Force got its wings clipped by Company A, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment's Slam, 7-6.

Air Force quarterback Jim Vandevelde put the Flyers up 6-0, on a 35-yard strike to receiver Kevin Woods late in the first half.

The defense by Slam slammed the door on Air Force with two key interceptions to ground potential scoring drives. Slam defensive back John Mathis picked off a Vandevelde pass in the first half to kill one drive; and, late in the game, Mathis turned the trick again to help close the door on the Air Force.

Mathis also scored the tying touchdown late in the second half with a 35-yard touchdown run. Mathis hit receiver Alvin Shaw with the game winning extra point for the final score of the night.

The 1993 Fort Benning Army 10-Miler team finished in third place with a team time of 3 hours, 39 minutes and 7 seconds in the active duty military open men's team category at the ninth annual Army 10-Miler in Washington D.C., Sunday.

"With the exception of the record setting 1991 team, no other Fort Benning team has ever run faster," said team captain Curtis Southern. "You couldn't ask for better when your teammates set personal bests in a race like this. I'm extremely pleased."

Southern also led the team with a first-place finish in his age group (30 to 34) and 15th place overall with a time of 53:10.

Michael Raymond finished with a personal record of 54:53 for an eighth place finish in his age group (20 to 24) and a 43rd place finish overall.

Scott Moore also finished with a personal record at 55:10 seconds for 11th place in his age group and 46th overall. Dave Millet scored a personal best with a time of 55:52 good for 18th place in the (30 to 34) age group and 62nd overall.

Alternate Joseph Janczyk finished in 27th place in the 20 to 24 age group and 137th place overall with a time of 58:33. Janczyk replaced Charles Dent who did not participate.

Craig Leisher finished off the men's team with a personal best of 1:00:4. Alyce Oliver, the only female to make the team, ran a personal best with a time of 1:16:4 in the over 40 category.

The team from Fort Campbell, Ky., captured the commanders trophy, with Fort Hood, Texas taking first place in the active duty military open with Fort Carson, Colo., finishing second.

Georgia hunters can 'gun' for whitetail Saturday

By Kevin L. McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

You've been waiting for it and it's finally here. Opening day of the Georgia whitetail deer gun season begins Saturday, and it looks like it's going to be a good one.

I've been telling you for weeks to get your gear prepared, do some good scouting and zero your rifle, so I hope you've listened. And if you haven't, well, it's your own fault.

Anyway, a lot of people have been asking me how many deer you can kill and how the hunter control program works. Since I covered deer limits a few weeks back, all I'll say is you can kill two bucks, and two bucks only, whether they have a rack or not. The other three must be does.

Yeah, I know that doesn't coincide with Georgia regulations, but until post wildlife officials wake up, you'll have to stick with it. I don't want to ride the wildlife guys too hard, they have a small staff and a tough job; but, even when the regs were finally published, they were two months late and disorganized. Maybe next year we can see some changes. Enough said.

Another question hunters have been asking me concerns the hunter control program. Well now, this is a unique animal, to say the least, but I'll try to explain it.

First of all, the program is designed to regulate the number of hunters hunting in each area, and secondly, it's a safety measure. Overall, the program controls all deer hunting on Fort Benning.

The way the program works is you call in and give your Hunting Permit Access Pass number (that's that little orange card you must carry while hunting) and two adjoining sub-areas that you would like to hunt.

After you finish hunting, you must call in again to check out.

Now, you can call in at noon the day prior to hunting and you must check out by 9 p.m. the day of the hunt.

COMMENTARY

What happens if you fail to check out? Well, as many Fort Benning hunters know, this is where hunter control serves as police, judge, jury and executioner.

The first offense (I know this from experience) results in a one-month suspension of hunting privileges on Fort Benning. This happened to me the last month of last year's deer season; fortunately, I had already killed three deer on post.

The second offense is even stiffer, with a one-year suspension of hunting privileges. Yeah, there are a lot of hunters out there who have been forced to hunt off post because of the "one-year" rule. I have to say this rule is absurd. I mean, come on, one year for not calling in? Heck, for a field grade Article 15, you only get 45 days restriction and 45 days extra duty. Something's wrong here.

When a soldier, retiree or Department of Defense civilian is forced to hunt off-post; they are forced to hunt in an uncontrolled environment. I can tell you from recent experience that if you hunt in any of the state Wildlife Management Areas, they're dangerous places.

At state WMAs there's no control of the number of hunters in any area, how close you can hunt to nearby homesites, no speed limits on the trails and no one to check on you if you fail to check back in.

When coupled with the fact that just to get there you have to drive up to five hours, usually in the middle of the night, your safety is put at risk. And all for failing to call in a second time.

I'm sorry I just can't see how anyone could justify this. Why would we want to jeopardize the safety of our soldiers by forcing them to hunt off post?

The smart thing to do would be to revamp the program. Even hunter control personnel and post wildlife officials have agreed with me on this matter.

My suggestion: Cut penalties to a one-week suspension for first offense, a one-month suspension for the second offense and a mandatory hunter safety class for a third offense.

Fort Benning Hunter Control Numbers

emergencies only
545-7680

The analogy could be made that if you get a speeding ticket on post, your driving privileges aren't suspended; you have to attend a driving safety course. So why not the same for hunters?

Well, somebody would probably contest this, suggesting the hunter control program is effective. Hogwash! Last year, when I failed to call in (so the hunter control guys said), they attempted to call me at home.

Unfortunately, I bought a house about midway through deer season and didn't give them my new telephone number. But instead of calling information to see if my number had changed, they only canceled my hunting privileges (right in the middle of the rut).

I could have been injured or dead in a ditch somewhere, and no one, except my wife, would have missed me (at least I think she would have).

I know other hunters who should have been suspended for failing to call in, but weren't for some reason known only to hunter control personnel. Yeah, the program is real effective if you're one of the lucky ones. No double standards here.

Anyway, like the "two-buck only rule" it's something post deer hunters must abide by. So let me give you some suggestions for coping with the Hunter Control Program.

First, when you call in, have a second and third group of sub-areas already picked out. This way, if your area is filled, you won't have to go back and get your map. The telephone lines will be busy enough, and there will be other people trying to get through; so keep it short.

Try to be courteous to the soldiers on the telephone line. They're just lending a hand to Outdoor Recreation and the program, and I'm sure they probably have better ways to spend their time than answering calls from irate hunters — especially on the weekends.

Make three signs that state "Call in!" and post them on the refrigerator, next to the phone, and one beside the bed. This way you're sure to remember.

Reprimand your spouse if he or she fails to remind you to call in. It's deer season, and we all know our spouses are just as excited as we are — right?

Anyway, if they don't remind you and you get suspended, they'll have to spend the next year hearing you gripe about losing your hunting privileges. Of course, you can always say it was their fault since they didn't "remind" you to call in.

And if all of these methods fail, write "Call-In!" on one of those yellow post-it notes, and stick it to your forehead. You're bound to look in a mirror sooner or later.

The deer gun season begins Saturday in Georgia, and not on the Alabama side of post (like a few hunters thought last year when stopped by the Military Police). So be safe, respect the rights of other hunters, and have a good opening day. Good luck and see you in the woods!

Fort Benning resident Beth Stobbe reads to daughter Courtney, 2. Stobbe, wife of a Fort Benning soldier, is the newly-appointed president of the Christian Women's Club of the Columbus area.

Club appoints new president

The wife of a Fort Benning ranger has been appointed president of the Christian Women's Club of the Columbus area.

Beth Stobbe has assumed the position of president and will help steer the organization for the next year. Her husband, Staff Sgt. Pat Stobbe, is with Company C, 3rd Ranger Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment.

The Christian Women's Club is a nonprofit, world-wide organization headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., and sponsored by Stonecroft Ministries. The local chapter reflects the policies and structure of other Christian Women's Clubs around the world.

"The meetings are the same all over," Stobbe said. She explained this is especially advantageous to the military wife because it offers a place to come and feel welcome and comfortable no matter where the family is stationed.

There are no annual club fees or dues and no member rolls except a telephone list. The meetings are nondenominational, and "you don't have to be a member of any church to attend," said Stobbe.

Approximately 60 to 70 participants gather each month to enjoy special music, an inspirational speaker, and a main program that follows a prearranged theme. The meetings are informal and are designed "for women to get together and fellowship."

The rules are simple, she explained with a smile. "We don't talk about our politics, our churches or our weight."

The theme for each meeting depends upon the time of the year or special events that may be happening in the area, Stobbe added. A group of steering committee members plan each meeting around a theme that is appropriate for that month. For example, this month's theme is "Harvest Time" and features the musical selection "Shine on Harvest Moon," as well as an address titled "A Time to Reap," and a silent auction offering a "Bountiful Harvest" of hand-crafted items.

Next month's meeting will feature a holiday theme. Also planned this year is a tribute to wives of both active duty and retired military members.

This month's meeting is scheduled for Thursday, at the Harmony Club in Columbus. All meetings are at the Harmony Club, usually on the fourth Thursday of each month. However, during November and December, the meetings are scheduled for the third Thursday.

"The meetings offer a chance to get together and have a good time and a good meal," said Stobbe

The charge of $8.50 for each meeting includes a full meal, child care and entertainment. For more information on the Christian Women's Club, call 682-9173.

Worship: Starting early can make the difference

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

It's Sunday morning and we are running late. We rush to get dressed. We rush to eat. We rush to get out the house to make it to church on time. We get to the car, no car keys. Back to the house to get the keys.

On the way out, the dog runs out the house and we chase him for 10 minutes making us later than we already are. Tempers are flaring and we are in no mood to attend worship, but we go anyway.

Not wanting to blame ourselves, we blame outside forces for all that has gone wrong this morning. Always "passing the buck" makes it much easier on our souls.

Does this sound familiar?

I would say that most families go through a similar routine each Sunday. I know this because we are not the only family that shows up late for church. It's a miracle some of us make it at all.

Some fellow worshippers share their secret for beating the Sunday morning rush. They say get to bed early the night before.

Put out clothing for the entire family the night before and stop yourselves from sitting in front the television before worship (this will make you lose track of time). Eat breakfast before you get dressed (prevention is the best cure).

Plan to arrive 15 minutes before the service begins. This way you can enjoy some fellowship before you sit down. During the sermon you will actually be able to concentrate on the words of the chaplain.

This way our time with God will not be ruined by the flaring tempers we left home with. This Sunday let us be the first to arrive on time!

Chapels bring home closer

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The Infantry Training Brigade has a variety of programs to keep people involved and active in the community.

The Regimental Chapel, Building 3220 on Sand Hill, is the site of Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Episcopal worship services. The chapel also offers a variety of religious education programs to include Jewish and Muslim education.

The Sand Hill Chapel, Building 3802, offers worship for Seventh-Day Adventist, The Latter-Day Saints, Lutherans and a Samoan service. See schedule on this page for day and time of service.

For trainees who miss family and friends back home, the Sand Hill Chapels offers a program called Operation Appreciation in conjunction with First Baptist Church of Columbus.

This program enables soldiers to visit First Baptist Church on Saturday evenings for fellowship and has been offered to trainees for the past 16 years. It combines entertainment, religious music and refreshments.

Throughout the year, the Infantry Training Brigade Unit Ministry Team provides special programs for the soldiers around the holidays to help them feel a little closer to home. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Kenneth Carpenter said the UMT is planning a Thanksgiving Day and an Advent program. For more information about the different services offered at ITB, contact Carpenter at 544-9269.

CHAPEL NOTES

Reopening of chapel — The 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment is sponsoring the opening and dedication of the Regimental Road Chapel 3 p.m. Nov. 2. The chapel, previously named Lavoie Chapel, has been renovated and rededicated as Regimental Road Chapel.

The location is the fork intersection of Regimental and Indianhead Roads. All soldiers and civilians are invited to the ceremony. Free food and drinks will be available. For more information, call 545-1962.

Protestant Women of the Chapel — Protestant Women of the Chapel will have its general meeting Nov. 4 from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Betsy Brown and her guitar, Gertrude, will lead in the mini retreat that includes a chili or salad lunch.

PWOC will continue its series of Bible studies on Thursdays, which include "Lord, I Need Grace to Make It," "A Mother's Legacy — Colossians and Philemon," "Finding Fulfillment in Christ" and "Sharing Your Faith." The group invites and encourages new members at all meetings and meets 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. each Thursday in Building 2521.

Free child care is provided in Building 2517, which is adjacent. These buildings are located off Indianhead Road and Thorson Street. For more information, contact Marti Maas at 682-0101 or Janie Hodges at 682-3465.

PARTY — The Religious Education Center is resuming its program for children in the first through sixth grades.

The theme for this year's program, called PARTY, will be Bible Boot Camp. The children will learn the skills and preparation needed to join in God's army. The program will include Bible study, music crafts, recreation and refreshments.

PARTY will meet 1 p.m. Saturday and Nov. 6 and 20, and Dec. 11. For more information, contact Bill Putman at 545-4715

Premarriage seminar — A premarriage seminar will begin Oct. 31 at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522. Attendance at this seminar is required for all couples who wish to be married in the Catholic church. To register, call 545-5508.

Where Judaism differs — The Religious Education Center is sponsoring a series of special presentations by Chaplain (Capt.) Arthur Rutberg, Fort Benning's rabbi, titled "Where Judaism Differs." These presentations will begin Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Building 2518.

The public is invited to all presentations regardless of denomination or faith group.

For more information, contact Bill Putman at 545-4715.

Schedule change — All services at the 11th Infantry Regiment Chapel will move to Lavoie Manor Chapel, Building 2595. This includes the 8:30 a.m. Protestant service and the 10:30 a.m. Catholic Mass.

Adult discussion group — The Catholic community will sponsor an adult discussion group each Sunday from 10:20 to 11:10 a.m. in the auditorium of Dexter School.

Several topics will be discussed along with video presentations.

For more information, contact Phil Reilly at 545-5508.

Mass schedule — The early Mass at Main Post Catholic Chapel has been changed to 8 a.m. The Spanish Mass has been changed to 9:15 a.m. For more information, call 545-3461.

43rd, 608th, 598th send more troops to Somalia

By David Greer
36th Engineer Group

One hundred and eighteen members of the 43rd Engineer Combat Battalion (Heavy), 50 members of the 608th Ordnance Company and 13 soldiers from the 598th Maintenance Company deployed Wednesday to Somalia.

A departure ceremony was conducted at the Audie Murphy Gym at 7:30 p.m.

Because of routine scheduled maintenance on the runways at Lawson Army Airfield, these units were bused to Hartsfield International Airport in Atlanta for a 2:15 a.m. departure Thursday from the Lockheed terminal.

Also, 10 soldiers from the 43rd forming the advance party departed Lawson Army Airfield at 5:30 a.m. Sunday morning. They deployed to Somalia along with soldiers from Fort Bragg, N.C., aboard an Air Force C-5A.

The 43rd will provide construction engineer support to reinforce facilities, enhance safety and improve the quality of life for U.S. and U.N. forces.

The 608th will augment the ammunition supply point operation in Mogadishu presently conducted by the 608th.

These units previously served in Somalia earlier this year from January to March.

Storey said most people who steal access to cable TV do it by splicing the cable of a registered subscriber and running a cable to an additional outlet. CVI monitors its on-post facilities, Storey said, and can detect an excessive signal that indicates a faulty cable. The "fault" in a cable, he said, is usually that it's been spliced.

All troop billets are prewired for cable TV, Storey said, and installation is available in barracks rooms as well. There is an installation fee, and a monthly service fee, which varies according to the number of premium channels the customer orders.

Theft of cable services is punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, said Storey, and state and federal statutes also apply. The maximum penalty for a person convicted of stealing cable is imprisonment in excess of a year, and fines in excess of $1,000.

"These are felony penalties under the federal statute," he said. "State penalties would probably be tougher."

The crimes involved in stealing cable are two, Storey said: splicing the cable and using the services without paying for them.

"The person whose cable has been spliced can't be prosecuted," Storey said, "but the person who splices the cable and the person whose outlet the illegal cable plugs into can be prosecuted."

Storey said he would advise anyone who is stealing cable service to disconnect it. He said commanders who become aware of broken or improperly spliced cable should notify CVI to make repairs.

Parents can help children with weight problems

American Forces Information Service

Many parents are concerned about their child's weight, and with good reason, said dietitian Lt. Col. Alana D. Cline.

"In the past 15 years, obesity in children ages 6 to 11 has increased an estimated 54 percent," said Cline, who heads the Clinical Dietetics division at Tripler Army Medical Center, Hawaii. She attributes the increase to families having fewer scheduled meals, decreased emphasis on physical education in some schools and continued popularity of high-calorie snack foods.

"If you suspect your child is overweight, first check with your pediatrician or a registered dietitian," said Cline. It may be that your child is experiencing a temporary growth spurt that may even out in time. It would be harmful to interfere at this time. But if your child is confirmed to be overweight, it's wise to take some preventive steps.

"Strict dieting in children can be harmful because it can affect their normal growth and development," she said, suggesting parents aim at slowing their child's rate of weight gain so the child will grow into an appropriate weight. "You want to teach your child to rely on internal cues to regulate how much to eat. If your child learns to stop eating when full, he or she will possess a powerful tool toward lifetime weight management."

Cline said children need a variety of foods, but you can save calories within food groups. Children under 2 need whole milk or formula, but children over 2 can drink low-fat or skim milk and eat part-skim cheeses.

Serve chicken without skin, and broil, bake or boil rather than fry foods.

Don't put rich sauces on vegetables. As often as possible, serve fresh fruit instead of fruit canned in syrup or fruit-flavored drinks.

Whether your child is overweight or not, regular exercise is important. It helps the body burn calories and makes a person look slimmer because muscles give shape to the body. Cline suggests including some fun activity in your family's day — whether it's bicycling, walking or swimming.

Beware of pitfalls when car shopping

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

The Staff Judge Advocate's Office wants to alert soldiers to the "scams" they may run into when shopping for cars.

Jane Winand, chief of Legal Assistance for SJA, has written scripts for three skits to be broadcast over the U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information television station. The skits deal with various pitfalls in the car-buying process: Dealership financing, monthly payments and contracts.

Dealership financing

Winand said even if you've researched the car you want, comparison-shopped around town, and are confident you can get a good deal, you may not be aware of being overcharged for dealer-arranged financing.

"The funds actually used to finance a car rarely come from the dealership," Winand said. She explained that, typically, a dealership's finance manager or general manager will contact several lending institutions like banks and credit unions. The dealership will provide the lender with financial information on the prospective buyer, and the lender will then quote a loan rate.

The dealership will arrange the loan transaction, and the financing paperwork the buyer signs will be an agreement between the dealership and the buyer.

The dealership is likely to charge more interest to the customer than it is paying to the lending institution, and so makes a profit on the loan, according to Winand. She advises prospective car buyers to check with their own banking institution to find out what financing rates are available.

"Sometimes you can get a rate lower than what the dealership could get, especially if you're a customer of long standing at your bank. They'll want to keep your business," Winand said.

She said the rare times a dealership can beat a bank or credit union's deal is when a car manufacturer makes a special offer.

The bottom line, Winand said, is that customers must comparison-shop for financing just as they do for the automobile itself.

Monthly payments

Often, a dealer will offer a low monthly payment that may be attractive to a potential buyer, Winand said. The problem is the buyer may not consider how much the cost of financing a longer loan may add to the price of a car.

Winand offered the example of a $14,000 car financed at a 12 percent annual percentage rate.

"A three-year loan on this car," Winand said, " would give you a monthly payment of $460, with a total of $2,740 in interest over the life of the loan. A six-year loan on the same car at the same APR would drop your payments to $310, but you'd pay $4,680 in interest. You pay almost $2,000 more in interest with the longer loan."

Another problem, she said, is that if the car is stolen or totaled in an accident, insurance will not pay off the financing, and will pay the depreciated value of the car, not the purchase price.

Contracts

A car buyer should beware, Winand said, of high-pressure sales tactics or special, "one-day-only" offers. Another danger signal, she said, is if a dealer refuses to allow a customer to take a copy of the contract for a lawyer to review.

"You should read the contract very carefully," she said, "and question any provisions that seem unusual or unnecessary."

Such provisions, she said, may include insurance and warranty policies that are expensive and unnecessary.

"It's best if you have a legal review of a contract before you sign," Winand said. "If you need a contract reviewed, come by the SJA office and we'll be glad to look at it, whether you have an appointment or not."

Winand urges soldiers and their families to be careful shoppers. "Compare prices to make sure you're getting the best deal possible on your car," she said. "Look into alternative financing arrangements, and have a lawyer review the contract before you sign. These are the best ways to protect yourself from scams."

ASK THE JUDGE

Q: I keep hearing that there have been a lot of changes to the Service members Group Life Insurance program. What's going on with this?

A: As everyone ought to know by now, the ceiling on SGLI is now $200,000. The window for taking the increased amount without regard to health closed on March 31. Of course, it is possible that the Department of Defense may declare another open enrollment period in the future. You do have the option of decreasing the insurance amount at any time.

You may ask why anyone would want to decrease insurance coverage. The amount of life insurance an individual needs varies depending on age, number of family members, other insurance coverage, and the amount of other property he or she owns. For a young soldier with no family members, the need for a huge amount of insurance simply does not exist.

On the other hand, people with children ought to have adequate insurance, which, in the event of death, would serve to replace the income they would expect to earn while the children are minors. If you stopped to figure it out, you would find that over 18 to 20 years, you would be likely to earn more than $200,000.

For a person with sizable assets and perhaps other sizable policies of insurance, the increased SGLI may not be a good idea. However, don't rush and opt out of the increased amount without talking to an attorney about your estate plan first.

Other changes to the program have to do with how the beneficiaries are designated. When asked to whom they wanted the money to go, many soldiers used to state "by law." The effect of this is to divide the proceeds to the soldier's heirs as determined by the laws of the state of their residence.

Many times, the soldier does not know who his or her heirs at law are, so the money may go to a relative whom the soldier didn't want to benefit. It is advisable to name specific people — that way, you know exactly where the money is going to go.

The issue of naming minor children as beneficiaries is very important. Many states require the appointment of a guardian to receive the money for the children — even if the spouse is still alive. Guardians of this type normally have to post bonds that must stay in effect until the child or children reach age 18. Setting up your estate and insurance properly for your children requires careful thought and the assistance of an attorney.

Attorneys with the Legal Assistance Division are available to discuss these matters with you and to help you set up your estate properly. Call 545-3281 or 545-3282 for an appointment.

Infantry soldiers shoot for 'expert'

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

"You are a go at this station."

Those are the words more than 500 soldiers have been longing to hear this week as their skills have been tested in the struggle to earn the coveted "Expert Infantryman Badge."

Soldiers of all ranks from Fort Benning and its tenant units began training for the EIB Oct. 4 at a test site near Burroughs Range in Harmony Church .

The EIB is the mark of an infantryman who attains a high degree of professional skills, expertise and excellence, according to its history, and any infantryman who has tried for it can tell you it is not easy to earn.

"Of the 563 candidates who participate in this week's testing, only 70 to 100 will receive the badge," said Master Sgt. Joe A. McGee, special projects noncommissioned officer for operations, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), who is in charge of the EIB site.

Traditionally, the percentage of soldiers awarded the badge at the end of the test period is only 10 to 15 percent of the starting number, McGee said.

To even be eligible for the EIB, soldiers must first have qualified expert on an M-16A-1 or A-2 rifle, meaning they must shoot at least 36 of 40 targets.

They must have a primary military occupational specialty in an infantry or infantry-related career field, be recommended for the training by their unit commander and volunteer for EIB testing.

The first hurdle for the soldiers is a record Army Physical Fitness Test in which they must achieve a 70 percent score in each event according to their age group.

Then they rotate through stations where they must complete 28 different tasks ranging from properly camouflaging themselves and their equipment to successfully completing a night land-navigation course.

The margin for error is slight. Candidates have two opportunities to retest if they fail at a station, but after three "first time no-gos," they are out of the running.

Soldiers are also disqualified for failing twice at the same station, McGee said.

At the "use challenge and password" station, candidates can be disqualified for saying "Who goes there?" instead of "Who is there?"

At the "apply dressings and prevent shock" station, one soldier was given a no-go for saying he would never "take off" or cover a tourniquet instead of never "loosen" or cover a tourniquet.

"The no-gos are from a failure to pay attention to detail," said Spc. Robert W. Thomas of Company D, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, a tester at the first-aid stations.

But the details are numerous, and most of the stations have a set time limit in which to complete the task.

"They get too nervous and forget the steps," said Sgt. James L. Dent of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, the noncommissioned officer in charge of the "maintain and perform a functions check on an M-249 machine gun" station.

"If they would just take their time, they wouldn't get a no-go," Dent said.

Cpl. Glenn Davis of 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, said he was most worried about the "move under direct fire" station, at which soldiers have to use the three to five- second rush, low or high crawl to travel 500 meters in five minutes without getting "shot" by a sniper.

If the beeper in the multiple integrated laser engagement system, or MILES, gear they wear is activated by one of the sniper's blanks, they get a no-go.

"That's going to knock out a lot of people," Davis said.

Soldiers who find themselves skating thin ice with two first-time no-gos are labeled "blade runners."

For the few who endure, the final hurdle is a 12-mile road march that must be completed in three hours.

In the end, it's the "gos" and "no-gos" that decide who will wear the badge.

Editor's note: Qualifying soldiers will be awarded the Expert Infantryman Badge upon completion of the road march today at 11:30 a.m. at the test site.

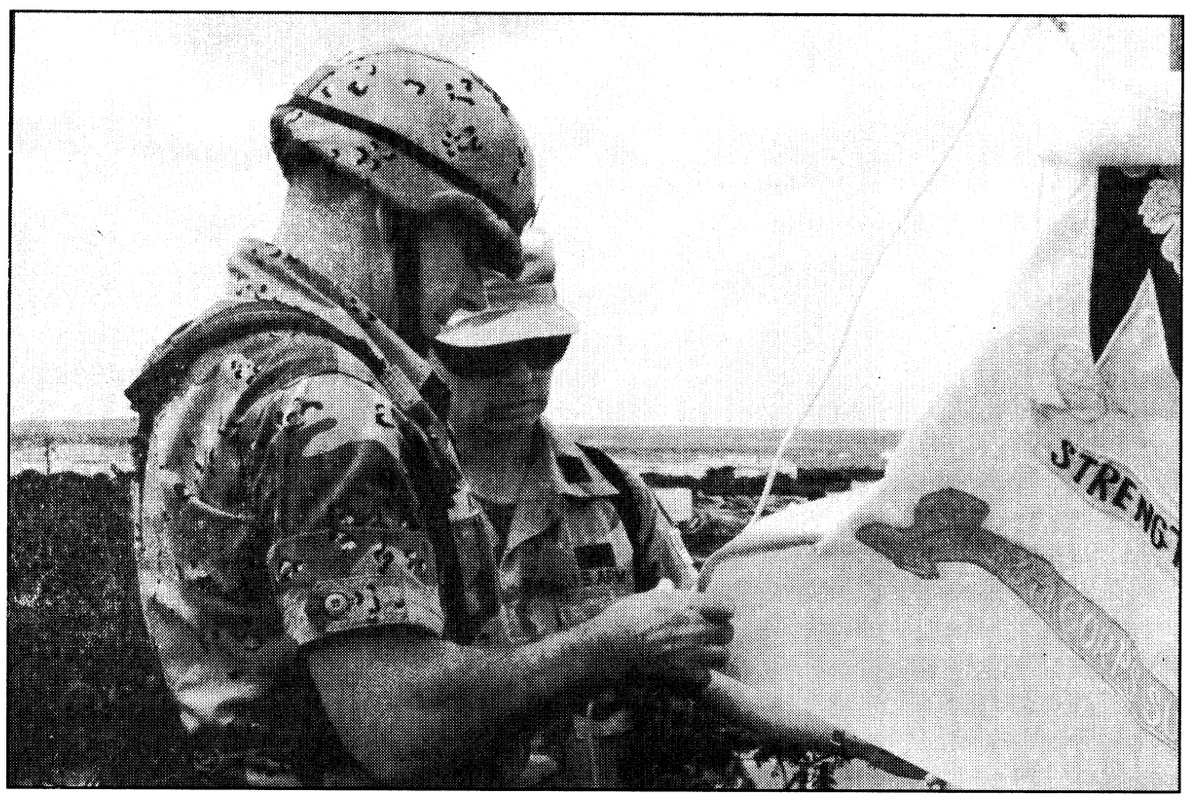
Kidd visits 13th CSB in Somalia

13th Corps Support Battalion

Sgt. Maj. of the Army Richard A. Kidd recently visited the 13th Corps Support Battalion in Mogadishu, Somalia.

He was given a tour of its compound, Sword Base, and its facilities by the 13th Command Support Battalion's Command Sergeant Major Command Sgt. Maj. Herbert A. Nicholson.

While visiting the working, living, recreation and support facilities, Kidd took every opportunity to stop and talk to soldiers.



He asked the soldiers a variety of things — Where were they from? Why did they join the Army? What did they like about the Army?

Although the soldiers of the 13th CSB have distinguished visitors on a regular basis, none seemed to generate as much excitement and open communication as Kidd did.

Soldiers appeared eager to talk to him and many asked to have their photos taken with him. Kidd presented "Sergeant Major of the Army coins" to several soldiers.

Highlighting the visit was Kidd's participation in the first raising of the 13th CSB unit flag over the Sword Base Compound.

Kidd said he was honored to assist with such a momentous event. The soldiers of the 13th CSB said they were extremely proud that he was present for the raising of their unit colors alongside the U.S. and U.N. flags.

Air Assault Challenge

Event open to men, women

By Wanda Reynolds
U. S. Army Aviation Center

FORT RUCKER, Ala. — The Army Aviation Center is gearing up for the Third Annual Air Assault Challenge set for Nov. 17 through 19. Units worldwide are invited to send their best teams to compete to see who is the most proficient in all areas of air assault operations.

Contestants, regardless of rank, service or gender, are invited to enter, with teams of two each competing against each other.

Following one day of inprocessing and refresher training (plus an Army Physical Fitness Test), contestants will have two days of tests and exams. This year, up to 60 teams will be able to compete in the challenge.

"Fifteen teams have signed up so far, but we are expecting a lot more to send in their teams' names soon," said Capt. Philip A. Sabatino, commander of Company D, 1st Battalion, 10th Aviation Regiment, 1st Aviation Brigade (Air Assault).

The challenge has eight scored events. The Army Physical Fitness Test consists of pushups, situps and a two-mile run. Contestants scoring 300 (100 in each event) will receive an additional point for each pushup and situp repetition and one point for each six seconds decreased in the run time maximum score.

Teams will then be given a base point, landing heading and stakes to mark a helicopter landing point based on standard distances between markings.

The obstacle course includes a confidence climb, low belly over, weaver, a swing, stop and jump and other obstacles.

The slingload inspection event will consist of preparation and rigging of four loads, with inspection for up to 16 faults.

Participants will then tie a complete Swiss rappel seat and climb the stairs of the 50-foot rappel tower.

The written academic exam will cover all phases of air assault training, including air assault, slingload and rappelling operations. The exam will have 100 multiple-choice questions to be completed in 15 minutes.

Teammates must finish the 12-mile foot march within 10 feet of each other. Contestants will be carrying an M-16 rifle mockup and a rucksack with prescribed equipment.

Sabatino said prizes will include plaques, handguns, survival knives and leathermen's tools.

A prechallenge pamphlet and entry information are available by writing: Commander, Company D, Air Assault School, 1st Battalion, 10th Aviation Regiment, 1st Aviation Brigade (Air Assault), Fort Rucker, Ala. 36362-5000, or by calling (205) 255-6336 or 255-4787, or DSN 558-6336 or 558-4787.

Registration deadline is Nov. 6.

IOBC students take it to the field

By Taylor Wilken
Company B, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry

Dawn broke quietly for the defenders of the enemy strongpoint as they made final preparations for a possible American attack. Suddenly, the whistle of incoming artillery filled the air. The enemy soldiers dove into their fighting positions as artillery rounds impacted around them. Soon, the artillery finished its work and machine gun fire could be heard to the front.

Before the smoke and confusion of the initial barrage had cleared, American soldiers had breached the triple-strand concertina wire surrounding the position and taken two foxholes, gaining a foothold into the strongpoint. As soon as the foothold was secured, the second element poured through the breach and began systematically taking the enemy fighting positions.

It was over quickly. Infantry Officer Basic Course students had taken their objective, clearing the way for a mechanized division's attack to the east.

This exercise, fifth in a series of six week-long field problems, teaches IOBC students the fundamentals of offensive operations.

Maj. Edward Gibbons, Company B commander, said the field problem gives new lieutenants practice operating at the company level by conducting a deliberate attack. "This gives them the experience in breaching operations and assault operations, taking it up one level from what they've done."

The students spent the first day of the problem walking the actual terrain they would be attacking and writing an operations order based on their assessment of the terrain and the company operations order given the previous day.

"They had the experience of practicing on the actual terrain, a luxury you won't normally be afforded," Gibbons said. "We wanted to show them the value of rehearsals and careful preparation and what a difference that can make during the execution."

Second Lt. Steven Hartman, student platoon leader, said the attack taught him the importance of fire and maneuver.

"In the Army right now, our doctrine is oriented around the offense, and this teaches us the fundamentals of conducting operations behind enemy lines, movement at night and conducting a dawn attack," he said. "We had to emphasize fire and maneuver to take this objective; that's really the basis of what the infantry does."

This field problem is the lieutenants' final preparation for the culmination exercise. Gibbons said the culmination exercise, 72 hours of continuous operations, brings together everything the students have learned in the 16-week course.

"The one thing I want them to get out of this is the value of conducting really good troop leading procedures to standard," he said. "If you do that, which I don't see a lot of lieutenants do at the National Training Center or in tactical operations, it really pays big dividends during the execution."

Sgt. 1st Class Gabriel Cervantes, trainer, said the students are highly motivated and strive to excel.

"This point is about as far as we can go; the culmination exercise is their chance to show us everything they have learned," he said. "They are building good habits here in IOBC, because when they get to their units, their privates will notice right away if they do things that aren't right. We try to instill discipline here."

Second Lt. Mike Dequevedo, first platoon student platoon leader, said the course has been challenging and that he has learned a lot. "As a platoon leader you're going to have a lot of responsibilities and be in charge of a lot," he said. "You have to have your act together."

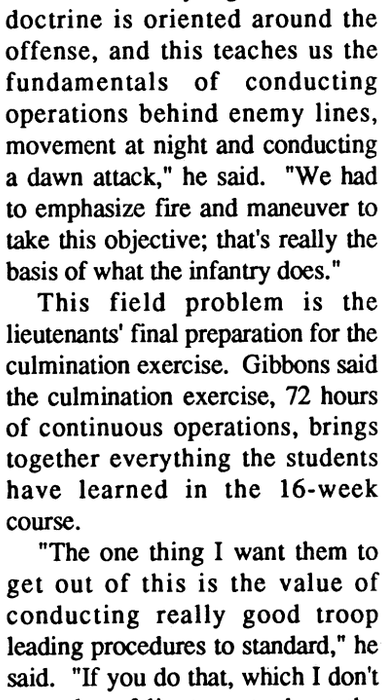
WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week...

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets overcame fierce German resistance, winning a 10-day battle for Melitopol before launching major attacks on Dnepropetrovsk and Dneprodzerzhinsk. The attacks succeeded, prompting the Germans to counterattack on the Nogaysk Steppe, south of Nikopol, in an effort designed to keep their lines to and from the Crimea open. German manpower and resource shortages limited the effort to little consequence.

• In Italy, the 78th Division of the British 8th Army secured a coastal bridgehead over the Trigno River, while the unit's main effort concentrated on its capture of Montefalcone. Elsewhere, the U.S. 34th Division took Sant'Angelo, and Britain's 56th Division occupied Sparanise in the 5th U.S. Army's sector.



• In the English Channel, a German escort squadron engaged and sunk two British ships, the cruiser HMS Charbydis and the destroyer HMS Limbourne.

• In the Solomons, New Zealanders attached to the U.S. Pacific forces landed on the Treasury Islands, encountering little significant resistance in their successful efforts to capture Stirling and Mono islands.

• Elsewhere in the Solomons, the United States initiated Operation Blissful, sending the 2nd Marine Parachute Battalion to land at Voza on Choiseul in an effort intended to divert Japanese attention away from the planned main attack on Bougainville.

• On New Britain, the Allies conducted raids on two consecutive days against Japanese positions on Rabaul. The raids succeeded as Allied pilots sunk one destroyer and five merchant ships and destroyed an additional 123 Japanese planes.

• Fort Benning welcomed Stephen T. Early Sr., secretary to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Early attended his son and namesake's Officer Candidate School graduation ceremony.

Crunchy Critter

helps Benning schools celebrate lunch week

By Jerrie MacIntire
Special to The Bayonet ©

"Crunchy Critter," a life-sized fuzzy friend complete with bow tie and chef's hat, helped the Fort Benning Schools highlight National School Lunch Week Oct. 10 to Saturday.

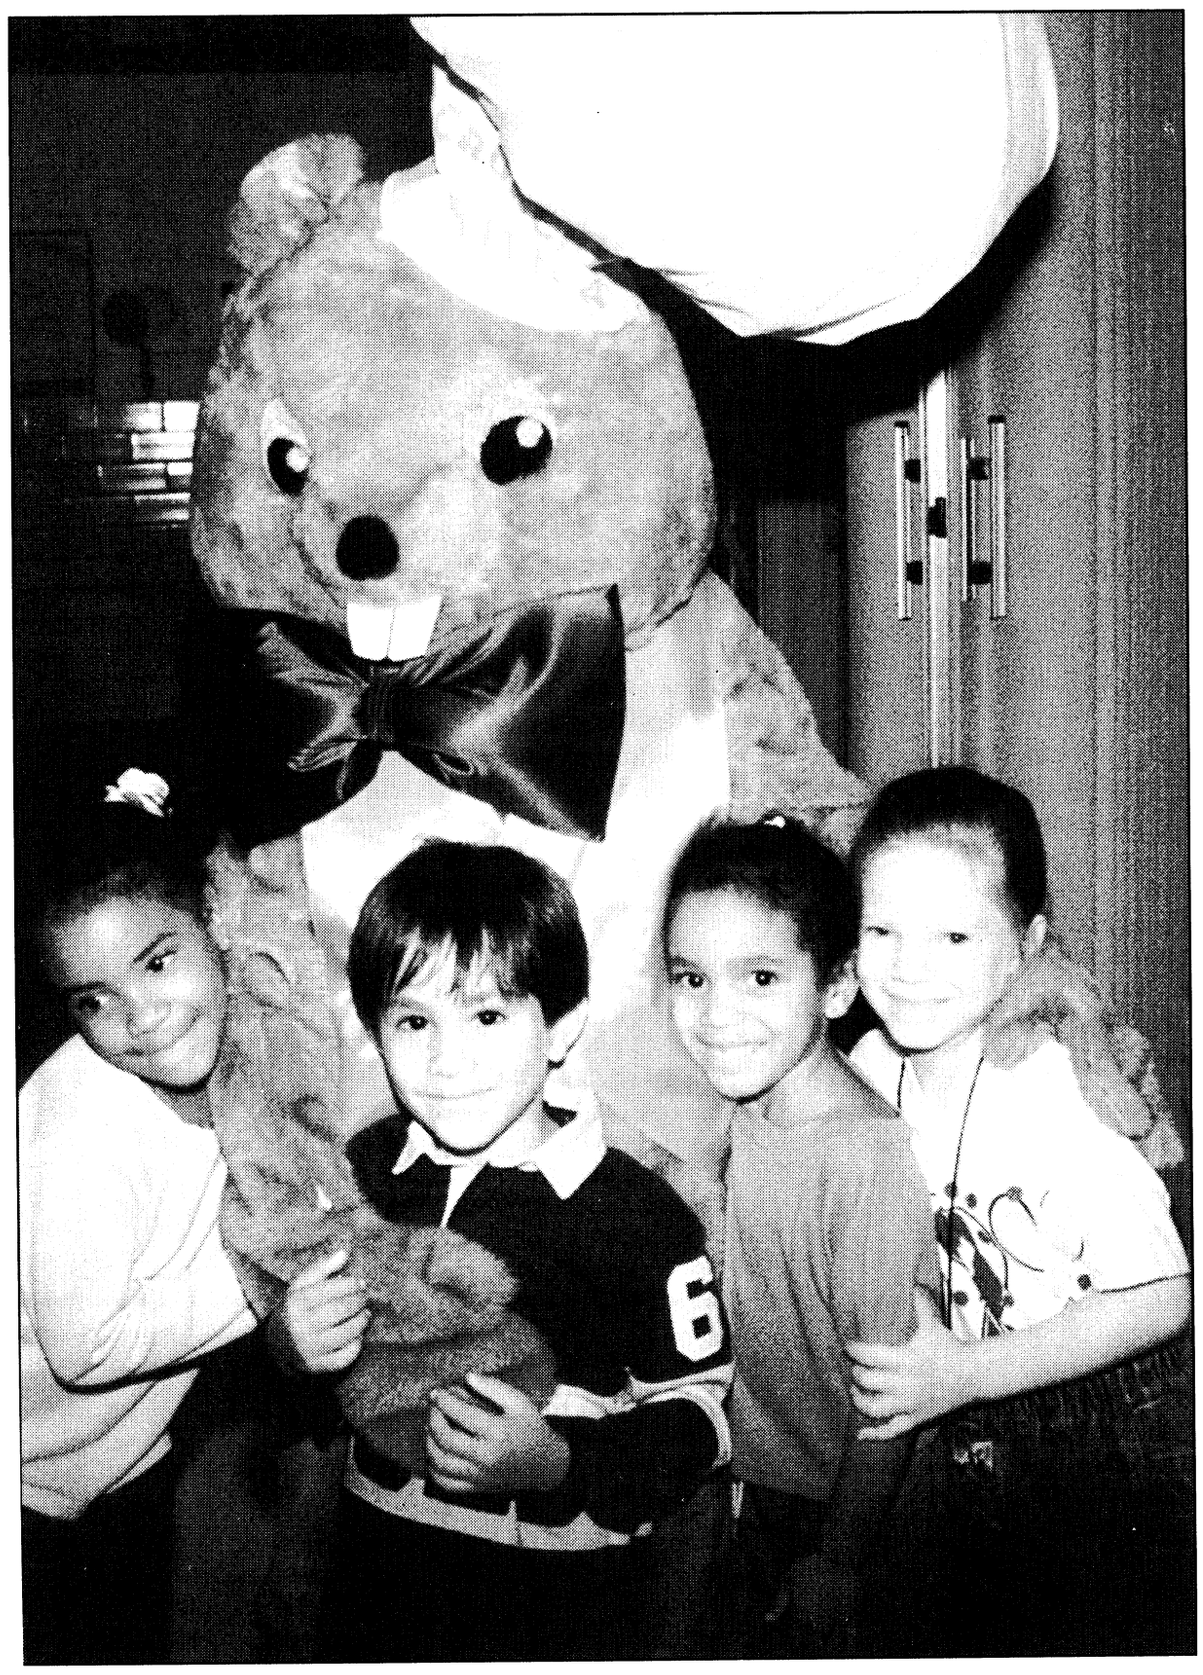
Crunchy, a representative for the American Food Services Association, visited the post for the first time. Crunchy's mission was to help promote healthy eating habits and to introduce new low-fat food items, according to Trudy Finley, director of child nutrition at Fort Benning Schools.

During visits in the Fort Benning School cafeterias, Crunchy encouraged elementary school students to eat their meals.

"We're going to eat our vegetables because Crunchy told us to," one child stated emphatically.

Also as part of National School Lunch Week, the schools served a special international lunch menu and invited parents to eat lunch with their children.

"The kids really enjoy it when their parents come for lunch," Finley said. Parents are especially encouraged to join their children for lunch during National School Lunch Week, but they always have an open invitation in the school cafeterias, she said.



As Crunchy moved from one table to the next teaching that "good food is fun," children waited their turn to give a hug and get their hands stamped to show they ate a good lunch.

Participation in the school lunch program at Fort Benning is high, said Finley and is up to 90 percent in some schools. The post schools serve about 3,000 meals per day, she said.

"We emphasize vegetables and fruits," Finley said. "We try to introduce the children to new vegetables. We also offer snacks with fruit (instead of sweet bakery items)," she said.

One aim of the Crunchy Choice program in the schools is to promote foods that are high in iron but reduced in fat, sugar and salt. Crunchy offers these tips:

- Choose fresh fruits and vegetables for snacks
- Drink low-fat milk such as skim, 1 percent or 2 per cent
- Bake or broil meats on a rack to reduce the fat content
- Choose lean beef, pork, chicken and turkey without skin, or choose fish
- Snack on low-fat yogurt or ice milk instead of ice cream.

Deadline sets date on holiday packages

American Forces Information Service

Don't like to fight the crowds or long lines at the post office to mail holiday packages? It's not too early to mail overseas packages, said Military Postal Service Agency officials.

In fact, some deadlines for overseas Christmas mailing are rapidly approaching. Mailing early will also save money, said postal officials, because cheaper categories can be used.

These "deadlines" are only recommendations for packages and letters destined for the United States from overseas or vice versa, said military postal officials. Experience shows most packages mailed after these dates do not arrive in time for the holiday season.

Remember the volume of mail increases dramatically during the holiday season, so take a few minutes to wrap cartons securely for shipping, said officials. This will ensure the packages' safe arrival at their destination.

The U.S. Postal Service recommends:

- Don't wrap package with paper, string or twine.
- Use crumpled newspaper or other type of cushioning material to keep contents from shifting.
- Use fiberglass strapping tape, paper tape or plastic carton tape to seal the package.
- Make sure addresses are correct, legible and written with smudgeproof ink.
- Use the correct ZIP codes.

Federal health insurance open season to begin

By Evelyn D. Harris
American Forces Information Service

Employees shopping for health insurance plans for 1994 will find improved benefits and a 3 percent average increase in premiums.

Four out of 10 federal employees' current plans will be less expensive next year, officials said. Employees have more than 300 local and national plans to choose from. Open season begins Nov. 8.

New services include physical exams, cancer screening, pregnancy risk management programs, Group B streptococcus infection screening of pregnant women, well-child care — including immunizations and screening for sickle-cell anemia — and blood lead level screening for children.

Some plans offer electronic filing of claims for prescription drugs at the time of purchase when beneficiaries use preferred pharmacists. Employees pay only for costs not covered when they present the plan's card to the pharmacist.

Federal employees' premiums are deducted from their biweekly paychecks. Retirees' premiums are deducted from their monthly checks.

The biweekly amount nonpostal employees pay for Blue Cross and Blue Shield high-option single coverage will decrease $4.63 to $74.02

Family high-option will drop $7.94 to $158.42. Standard single will remain at $20.96; standard family will go up $2.69 to $46.73.

Government Employees Hospital Association lowers its single premium $1.77 to $25.51. The family plan drops $1.82 to $51.64.

The Alliance Plan single premium increases $3.29 to $40.18. The family plan increases $8.92 to $84.11.

The Mail Handlers high-option plan costs single nonpostal employees $19.31, which is up $1.09. Family high-option coverage goes up $2.36 to $42.97. Single standard coverage increases 69 cents to $14.35, while family standard increases $1.48 to $31.14.

The American Postal Workers Union Plan charges single nonpostal workers $21.88, down $4.87. Family coverage is down $6.68 to $46.83.

Single nonpostal workers in the National Association of Letter Carriers plan will pay 72 cents less, $22.05. Family coverage drops 20 cents to $47.11.

Health maintenance organizations are locally based and vary widely in services and premiums. Personnel offices will have complete rate and benefit information by open season.

The government pays a larger share of postal employees' premium, as negotiated in their union contract. But "Uncle Sam" helps nonpostal employees pay for coverage, too. For example, the government chips in $141.42 of the Blue Cross high-option family coverage premium biweekly. Workers would pay $305.96 biweekly without that help.

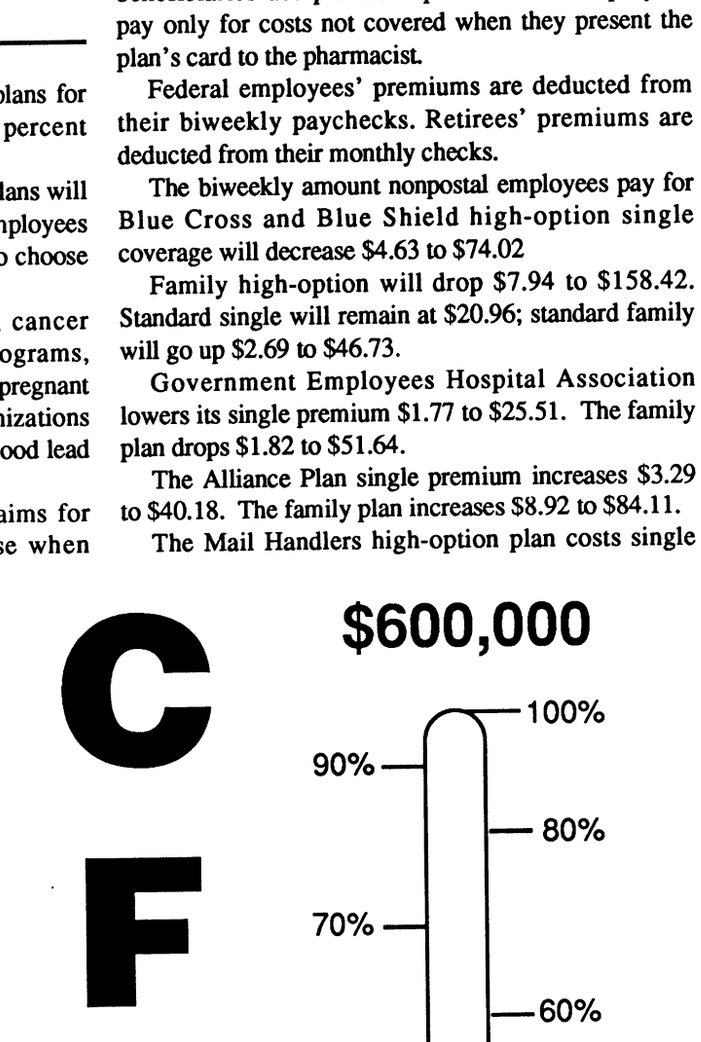
Benning rallies for federal campaign



By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

Donations to the 1993 Combined Federal Campaign have reached $115,266 or 20 percent, of the $600,000 goal as of Tuesday.

The CFC allows military and civilian personnel from Fort Benning to donate to charitable organizations through a monthly payroll deduction. The six-week campaign kicked off Oct. 1.

Military units and civilian organizations are encouraged to turn in their donation cards to the CFC office weekly so progress can be more accurately measured, said Cathy White, CFC coordinator.

The CFC offices are located on the second floor of the First Union Bank.

Ex-POWs make donation to post

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The Valley Chapter of the American Ex-Prisoners of War made a donation to Army Community Service Oct. 14.

Fort Benning's Chief of Staff Col. Burnet Quick accepted the $200 check on behalf of the post.

Rex Ellis, chapter commander, said the money is to be used for Army Community Service.

"We donated the check in appreciation for the outstanding support that the military here had given us during our fund-raising drive in April," said Ellis.

The monies were raised during the chapter's annual fund-raising daisy drive.

"April 9th is POW recognition day," said Ellis. "We try to have our daisy drive in close association with that.

"We always come out and present the first daisy to Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, post commander, and that opens the drive on Fort Benning.

"We set up stations at the mini-mall, main mall and other places around post.

These stations always do outstanding in receiving contributions, so we knew that the military was wholeheartedly behind us," he said.

Speed limit is 15 mph during PT

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The speed limit on Main Post during physical training hour, 6 to 7:30 a.m., Monday through Friday is 15 mph.

Post policy also states that the speed limit is reduced to 10 mph when passing individual runners or formations, both of which have priority on post during PT hours.

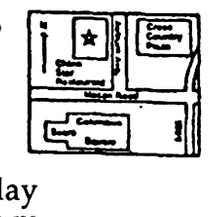
The following roads are exempt from the reduced speed limit because running is prohibited in these areas:

- 10th Division Road
- Dixie Road, except the portion from Sightseeing Road (Sandy Patch) to Lawson Army Airfield
- Sightseeing Road from Dixie Road to Sunshine Road
- Sunshine Road
- Lumpkin Road from Dixie Road to Custer Road
- Custer Road from Benning Road to Eisenhower Exchange

Also, the 82nd Airborne Division Road from Sunshine Road to Bradshaw Road will be closed to traffic from 6 to 7:30 a.m., Monday through Friday for use by formations and individual runners.

Speed limits posted remain in effect on those roads.

According to Maj. Jack Heacock, operations officer for the Military Police Activity, reduced limits are strictly enforced by the Military Police. Armed forces traffic tickets are issued for violators of the reduced speed.



Heacock said that newcomers and guests of soldiers should be advised of the reduced speed limits at the earliest possible moment.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries are from the Fort Benning Military Police blotter from Sept. 29 to Oct. 5. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the determination of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns housebreakings. No dwelling is burglar proof; however, residents can make them a less attractive target for burglary. Lock all windows and doors when not at home and use some type of rod or bar in windows to prevent someone from prying them open.

If possible, invest in a timer to turn lights on and off when you're not home. If you plan on being away for an extended period, contact the Military Police desk sergeant to coordinate checks of your quarters. Help the MPs deter crime in your neighborhood by reporting suspicious vehicles or persons to the MP desk sergeant at 545-5222.

• An officer was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, excessive speed and failure to stop at a posted stop sign after he was observed traveling 63 mph in a 35 mph zone.

• A specialist was charged with larceny of private property after he removed a television, videocassette recorder and compact disc player from another soldier's room.

• A civilian was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, excessive speed, child endangerment and failure to use child restraints, after she was observed traveling 70 mph in a 55 mph zone.

• A sergeant was charged with unlawful possession of a firearm with an altered serial number, failure to register a weapon and failure to obey a lawful order after a .38-caliber pistol was found in the trunk of his car during a command-directed inspection.

• A private first class was charged with wrongful possession of a controlled substance after a small box containing marijuana was found in his barracks room.

• A sergeant was killed in an off-post traffic accident after he failed to maintain control of his motorcycle and struck a car.

• A specialist was charged with aggravated assault after he attempted to hit a woman with a hammer during an argument.

• A sergeant was charged with carrying or storing a weapon in a vehicle after he reported that persons unknown removed a shotgun from his parked truck.

• A family member reported that a male forcibly entered her quarters and forced her to have intercourse against her will.

This week's booby prize is awarded to a sergeant who, while at the Post Exchange at the Main Mall, was approached by two noncommissioned officers performing courtesy patrol. The CPs informed the sergeant that the clothing he was wearing was inappropriate for the Post Exchange and that he would not be allowed to enter. He became belligerent and began using vulgar language. He was apprehended by the Military Police and charged with disorderly conduct.

Other activities included 16 traffic accidents and three reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were 10 cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, 13 cases of larceny of private property and four cases of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best - Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222.

Courts-martial

Punishment, soldiers' rights differ

U.S. Army Trial Defense Service

There are four different types of courts-martial that differ in the degree of punishment that can be imposed, and in some respects, the rights you may have.

The highest level of court-martial in the military is the general court-martial. A soldier can receive the maximum penalty allowed in the Manual for Courts-Martial.

A special court-martial empowered to determine a bad conduct discharge is the next level of court. Regardless of the maximum penalty provided in the Manual for Courts-Martial, the maximum sentence of this court is a bad conduct discharge, confinement for six months, reduction to the grade of private 1, and forfeiture of two-thirds pay for six months.

Finally, the lowest level of court is the summary court-martial, which will be discussed in a separate article.

A court-martial begins with the "preferral" of charges. Often a soldier will comment: "The MPs charged me with ... ": That is not correct. Law enforcement personnel only investigate crimes; they are not normally the ones who formally charge you and bring you to court.

Any person in the military may charge another with an offense. That does not automatically mean the person charged will be court-martialed. Ordinarily, a soldier is charged by the commander.

Charges are preferred when a charge sheet is prepared listing the offense or offenses the soldier allegedly committed. The person who signs the charge sheet is called the accuser, and the accuser must swear that the charges are true to the best of his belief. If the person preferring the charges is not the soldier's commander, the charge sheet would then be forwarded to the commander.

The person who prefers charges must have probable cause to believe that the soldier has committed the offenses listed. Probable cause simply means that it is more likely than not that the soldier did what is charged. This can be based on police reports, statements or other information.

Once the charges have been formally preferred, the unit commander is required to inform the soldier of the charges. This is often called "reading the charges," although there is no requirement that the charges be read to the soldier. It is sufficient to give the soldier a copy of the charge sheet.

Although most soldiers are not restrained prior to trial, the commander can place the soldier under some type of pretrial restraint while the offenses are being investigated or after charges are preferred.

Pretrial restraint can range from conditions on liberty, such as an order to stay away from certain people or areas, to pretrial confinement.

The most common types of pretrial restraint are confinement or restriction (an order limiting you to certain places on an installation).

Pretrial confinement may be ordered when there is probable cause to believe the soldier has committed an offense and may go absent without leave or that he or she is likely to commit other serious offenses.

If the commander orders the soldier into pretrial confinement, that decision will be reviewed by a military magistrate, usually within two days. At this review, the soldier will be present and has the right to be represented by an attorney.

If the magistrate orders the soldier's release, he or she may still be restricted or have pass privileges revoked.

If the soldier is placed into pretrial confinement and is later found guilty and sentenced to confinement, he or she will receive credit for pretrial confinement.

If the chain of command is contemplating the most serious form of courts-martial (a general court-martial), a formal pretrial hearing will be ordered.

This is called an Article 32 Investigation and is similar to a grand jury proceeding. The investigating officer, usually a field-grade officer or senior captain, will conduct the hearing.

At the hearing, the soldier will have many of the same rights as at trial: the right to be represented by an attorney; to hear and cross-examine the witnesses against him or her; to call witnesses on the soldier's behalf; and to examine the evidence against the soldier.

After the hearing, the investigating officer will decide if there is enough evidence to bring the soldier to trial and will also recommend the type of court-martial that should hear the case, if appropriate.

The investigating officer's findings and recommendations are only a recommendation, but that opinion can play an important role in the decision to proceed with the case, to drop the charges or to take action outside the courts-martial system.

When charges are preferred, the soldier will have a Trial Defense Service counsel appointed to defend him or her.

If the soldier has been "read charges" and has not yet seen an attorney, it is a good idea to immediately contact the nearest Trial Defense Service office and ask that a defense counsel be appointed. The defense counsel will explain the court-martial system to the soldier and will represent him or her throughout the process.

This article has been very general and may not answer all questions. Soldiers who have a legal question should get advice only from an attorney. Questions about military justice or an administrative elimination should be directed to the local Trial Defense Service office at 545-1520 or 545-2175.

Flu vaccine available

Martin Army Community Hospital

Flu shots are available at Martin Army Community Hospital's Immunization Clinic as well as at all family practice and troop medical clinics.

Influenza or "the flu" produces fever, sore throat and a cough that can last four to five days. It is caused by a group of viruses that are closely related.

The flu season begins as early as October and lasts through March.

The flu vaccine protects against three different types of influenza viruses, but the vaccine must be given each year in order to ensure protection.

An annual vaccination is important because the viruses that cause the flu change from year to year.

The vaccine is required for all active duty personnel. Those beneficiaries who belong to the hospital's Gateway To Care program should obtain their immunizations from their assigned family practice clinics.

• Gateway To Care beneficiaries who receive care from the hospital — may get the vaccine every Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. An appointment is not necessary. Beneficiaries who already have appointments may obtain their immunization at that time.

• Gateway To Care beneficiaries who receive care at either the Aviation or Winder Family Practice Clinic — An appointment is not necessary every Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. Beneficiaries who already have appointments may obtain their immunization at that time.

• Beneficiaries not in Gateway To Care or Department of the Army civilians — The vaccine will be available from the hospital's Immunization Clinic, Room 956: Monday to Friday 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. (No appointment is required).

• Active duty service members — Coordination will be made through their supporting Troop Medical Clinic.

Soldiers must bring medical records and shot records to receive the vaccine.

Singer Glenn Frey sleuths 'South of Sunset'

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

Since so much of his music has been showcased in films and on TV, it's somewhat logical for Glenn Frey to be moving into acting.

SPOTLIGHT

A former member of the Eagles group who has had solo success with such hits as "The Heat Is On" (from "Beverly Hills Cop"), "Part of Me, Part of You" (the theme for "Thelma & Louise") and "You Belong to the City" and "Smuggler's Blues" (both featured prominently in "Miami Vice"), Frey largely is putting his singing and composing on hold to star in "South of Sunset," a new adventure-comedy series that premieres Wednesday on CBS.

He plays Cody McMahon, previously the security chief for a Hollywood studio who lost that job by getting the goods on a corrupt producer; now, Cody is a struggling private eye with an office on the outskirts of Beverly Hills, trying to make ends meet by accepting assignments from anyone who can foot the bill. He's sometimes aided — and sometimes foiled — by Ziggy (stand-up comic Aries Spears), a fast-talking, street-smart thief bailed out of jail by McMahon in the debut episode to help solve a case. That premise has led some insiders to peg "South of Sunset" as a variation on the hit 1982 movie "48 HRS," in which Nick Nolte and Eddie Murphy were brought together under similar circumstances. Created and executive-produced by Stan Rogow and John Byrum ("Middle Ages," "Shannon's Deal"), the show also features Maria Pitillo ("True Romance," "Chaplin") as McMahon's secretary Gina, who moonlights as an aspiring actress.

What: 'South of Sunset'
When: Wednesday, 9 p.m. on CBS

The laid-back Frey actually began a sojourn as an actor several years ago, with a meaty guest role in a "Miami Vice" episode based on his aforementioned tune "Smuggler's Blues." He says, "When I made my first couple of music videos, the directors made mention that the camera liked me and that if I wanted to pursue (acting), that might be something I could do. I just filed it in the back of my mind as a nice compliment, but when the opportunity came along to do 'Miami Vice,' I jumped at it. I thought it was going to be a good time."

From there, Frey went on to co-star with Robert Duvall and Mark Harmon in the 1986 feature "Let's Get Harry," then appeared in a seven-part story arc on the series "Wiseguy" that involved something he knows more than a bit about ... the recording industry.

"The only thing that I've done for this show (musically) is that I wrote and recorded the main title theme," Frey reports. "I'll be up to my eyes in the acting part. Other than that, my influence in terms of the music is just that Stan (Rogow) and I have been having serious discussions about trying to attract some people who ordinarily wouldn't score episodic television. I have a lot of good friends in the music business."

Post's Channel 3 highlights 75th anniversary

By Caejar A. Cox
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning celebrated its 75th Diamond Jubilee anniversary Oct. 7, 15 and Saturday. The 3rd U.S. Infantry, The Old Guard, helped Fort Benning celebrate by sending the U.S. Army Drill Team and the Fife and Drum Corps to do two performances for the "Home of the Infantry." Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" to see highlights of all the events that took place on this special occasion.

Medical correspondent Dr. (Lt. Col.) Paul Little says doctors need to be more aggressive when it comes to treating people with high blood pressure. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" Monday to see how Army doctors differ from civilian doctors in treatment methods.

Col. Gene Withrow, commander U.S. Army Dental Activity, and Tammy Hunter, a representative for Delta Dental Plan, explain some policies about dental care on "Fort Benning Today."

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

For information, call 545-5921.

Vienna

Columbus to hear boys sing

International Arts Association

The Vienna Choir Boys return to Georgia for a performance at the Springer Opera House in Columbus Oct. 31 at 7 p.m.

Since the time of their first visit to the United States in 1932, the choir boys have given thousands of concerts. Some have said the secret of the fascination of the Vienna Choir Boys is that they have managed to combine the naivete of childhood with artistic maturity — something that can only be achieved through serious work.

Each season, the Vienna Choir Boys carry on the traditions of Vienna's musical life as a living heritage that traces its roots to such figures as Mozart, Haydn and Schubert. When the boys perform at the Springer Opera House, they will present an evening of secular and folk music and costumed operettas.

Tickets for the Vienna Choir Boys concert are $23 plus tax. Purchase by calling the Springer box office at 327-3688.

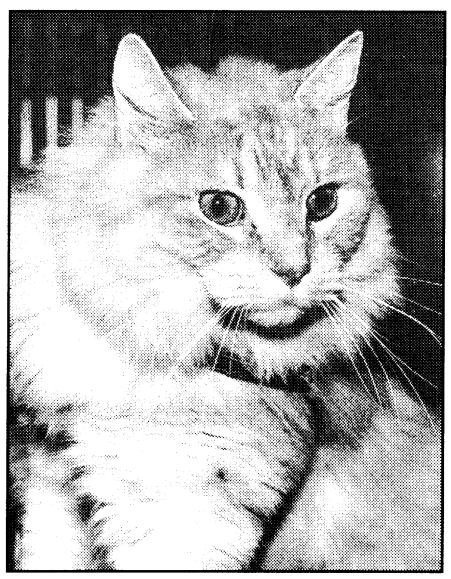
O'CLUB NEWS

Fort Benning Officers' Club

The Fort Benning Officers' Club is planning these events:

Tuesdays — Beer and Beef, $5



Wednesdays — Family Night Special, $9.95 feeds a family of four; several choices available. Country fried steak, $5.

Thursdays — Steak Special, $7.95

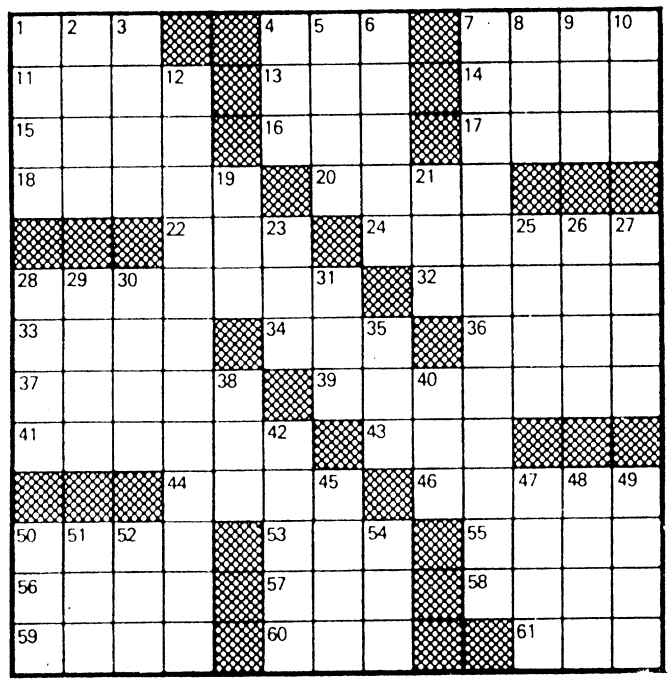
Fridays — Prime Rib Special, $8.95

Saturdays — Super Five Special, five of the most popular entrees (filet mignon, red snapper, wiener schnitzel, New York strip and chicken cordon bleu) reduced to $7.95

PET OF THE WEEK

Tiger is an adult mixed-breed cat who is looking for a home. He is very affectionate, said Veterinary Services personnel.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.



If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner of a lost pet. Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records when changes occur.

Officers, families can get good deal on meals

Fort Benning Officers' Club

Today, everyone is looking for quality and value ranging from cars to food, and the Fort Benning Officers' Club Chef Peter McGrath and the club offers many special programs to provide just that.

"We have to provide our members a wide variety of menu selections of uncompromising quality at unbeatable prices," McGrath said.

"At the Officers' Club, we serve a diversified clientele ranging in age from early 20s to late 70s and each of these age groups has different expectations," he said. "My challenge as the executive chef is to provide a wide variety of menu options, keep prices low and maintain the quality and quick service that our members deserve. Three examples of how we meet our members' needs are family specials, Hungry Warrior specials and Super Five specials."

A substantial number of members have families and work on a strict budget and a number of local restaurants offer family nights once a week McGrath said. Military families may have a tough time scheduling a particular night out, so the club has Family Night every night with $9.95 specials designed for a family of four, (two adults and two children under 12).

This special is served family style and is complete with vegetables, bread and tea or soft drinks. Unlike some local restaurants, the club doesn't charge extra for beverages and does not charge tax. Everyday specials include chicken stir fry; a whole chicken, fried or baked; spaghetti with meat sauce; or hamburger steak. In addition to the every night special, every Wednesday, two children can eat free from the children's menu for each regular entree ordered.

The Hungry Warrior menu is aimed directly at the under 30 members, who spend the day in vigorous activities. There are six complete meals, including beverages, for under $5. "All-you-can-eat" chicken for $5.95 and "all-you-can-eat" spaghetti for $5 is offered Tuesday through Saturday.

The Super Five is aimed at older members, but seems to be popular with everyone, according to club officials. Every Saturday night, the price of the five most popular entrees in the main dining room are reduced to $7.95.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Mustang round up — Those oldies but goodies are back at Cypress Gardens for the 12th annual Mustang and Shelby Round-Up Saturday and Sunday. Mustangs from the 1965 to 1973 classic car era and models from 1974 to 1992 will be exhibited.

For car enthusiasts currently driving, restoring or rebuilding a Mustang, Mustang auto parts will be available at vendor tents both days.

Cypress Gardens, one of the 10 Anheuser-Busch theme parks, is located in Winter Haven, 40 minutes southwest of Sea World in Orlando off U.S. 27.

The park is open daily 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., 365 days a year. Single adult admission is $24.95 (plus tax); children (ages 3 to 9) $16.45 (plus tax); under 3 free. Parking is also free. (Prices subject to change without notice.)

Christmas craft show — With Christmas just around the corner, "Christmas Made in the South" will be at the Columbus Iron Works Convention and Trade Center Oct. 29 to 31.

More than 300 artists and master craftsmen working in all medias including clay, jewelry, textiles, glass, wood, metals and fine art will be on hand. Whether its Victorian, Americana, Southwest, French Country, Contemporary or Folk Art, a large array of items will be available.

Show hours are noon to 9 p.m. Oct. 29; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 30; and noon until 6 p.m. Oct. 31. Adult admission is $3.50, children 12 and under are free and one admission is good for all three days with hand stamp.

Clogging — Franklin D. Roosevelt State Park invites the public to enjoy an evening of clogging on top of Pine Mountain from 8 to 9 p.m. Saturday.

The Southern Express Cloggers from LaGrange, Ga., will be presented at the stone amphitheater next to the park's information center on Highway 190 East.

All activities are open to the public at no cost other than the park pass fee of $2 per vehicle. For more information, call Sallie B. Lewis at (706) 663-4858.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Brooke promised Maria, she'll stay away from Edmund and concentrate on her marriage to Tad. Meanwhile, Brooke cried silently as she overheard Edmund assure Tad, he'll respect his marriage and stay away from Brooke. Maria agreed to marry Edmund. Wait to see: Maria has new reason to be uneasy about Edmund.

ANOTHER WORLD: Thanks to Maggie, Ian was able to rush from the courthouse to the hospital to help John and Kelsey diagnose Paulina's illness, using the information supplied by Jake. Paulina pulled through, but the Corys' coldness to Jake prompted him to go on TV to "reveal" a coverup of Mac's dirty dealings, and to call, again, for Rachel's resignation. Wait to see: Carl and Rachel come to a curious understanding.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Damian accused Lily of still being in love with Holden after finding her at the farmhouse. Jason told Iva, he has a job waiting at the Crime Commission in Washington and asked her to come with him. Wait to see: Holden makes a puzzling discovery.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Conner was uncertain of his place in Brooke's life now that she's working so closely with Ridge. Brooke assured him their arrangement was only business. Wait to see: Sally makes a deal that she could regret later.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Bo and Carly agreed they could never recapture the past, and it was time to move on with their separate lives. Anxious to spare Victor more worries, Kate reluctantly gave in to Curtis' blackmail threat and promised to give him more money. Wait to see: Jennifer's vengeance takes a strange turn.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Bill rebuked Ned on his foolish business sense when he learned that Damian bought shares of ELQ from him. Stone lured Karen to Jagger's fight, which Marco and Sonny expected will be thrown in their favor. Wait to see: Jagger faces a crucial choice.

GUIDING LIGHT: Dylan faced an angry Bridget and a devastated Hart after buying Hart's farm at the auction. Vanessa was troubled over whether or not to tell Billy that Hart is Peter's biological father. Later, Dylan deduced the truth after Bridget told him about herself and Hart. Wait to see: Roger thinks he's ahead, but someone else thinks otherwise.

LOVING: Gwyn balked at marrying Buck, and they both flew back to Corinth from Las Vegas. She told him his place was with Stacey. Tess, however, urged Buck to stay with Gwyn so she could have Clay. Clay was at Gwyn's bedside after she was rushed to the hospital in a vain attempt to prevent a miscarriage. Wait to see: Tess sees an opportunity and takes it.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Alex's thugs nabbed Cain and Tina (whom they mistook for Angela) to get the $10,000 owed them on the forged IOU. Certain that Max would have something terrible happen to him if she married him, Luna called off the wedding. Wait to see: Viki gets the distressing news about Sloan.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Feeling rejected, Sheila called Molly for comfort and support, but Molly turned her down. Despite the troubles in his marriage, Scott wanted to save it. Victoria worried how her parents would react to her engagement to Cole. In the meantime, Cole, told that his mother, Eve, had been taken to the hospital, rushed to see her and was shocked that she didn't know who he was. Wait to see: Victor has another surprise for Jack.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Couples will be sharing lovely times together this week. Upsets are likely in connection with job interests.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Extra drive combines with opportunity to bring you a special success early in the week. Later, the unexpected causes a change in plans.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An off-the-cuff remark could hurt someone's feelings. Extra expenses are likely to arise now. It is an ideal week for those seeking a residence change.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) New beginnings in connection with domestic interests are happily launched this week. Some you deal with are not straightforward.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) You may disagree with a co-worker now. Partners work well together in the latter part of the week. You will be making new friends this week.

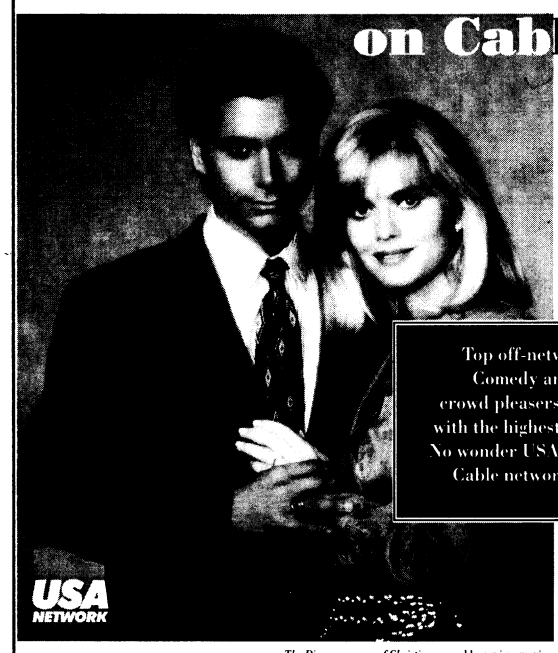
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Exercising initiative leads to financial gains on the job this week. Something could anger you at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You will have the urge to go places and do things this week. Investigate options for travel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A slight difference could arise with a friend this week. You will receive valuable advice about financial interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Great support and encouragement come from a partner this week. You will be happily making future plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Even though the week will bring you happy career developments, you will still need tact in dealings with higher-ups. Try to avoid a clash of egos.



AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) You may be at odds with an adviser. Extra credit resources may become available to you this week.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) You and a friend could have a disagreement about a money matter. Home-based activities are favored over socializing.

GEN. POWELL

retires from Joint Chiefs of Staff

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

Even four-star generals can sound like short timers.

Army Gen. Colin L. Powell said during his retirement speech that he has served "35 years, three months, 21 days and a wake-up."

Powell retired as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during ceremonies at Fort Myer, Va., Sept. 30. He was the first African American and the first ROTC graduate to serve as the chairman. He was also the youngest chairman.

President Bill Clinton called Powell's rise to the chairmanship "a victory for the American dream, for the principle that in our nation people can rise as far as their capacity, their dreams and their discipline will carry them."

Defense Secretary Les Aspin said Powell was the first chairman to serve under the provisions of the Goldwater-Nichols Act of 1986, which gave the chairman new and bigger responsibilities. Aspin said the act, "and the appearance on the scene of an extraordinary individual, Colin Powell, have changed forever the way we will look at and judge the chairman of the Joint Chiefs."

Aspin detailed Powell's accomplishments as a military leader, statesman and adviser and cited him for strengthening the bond between the American people and their armed forces.

Clinton praised Powell for his judgment and knowledge. "His remarkable balance of prudence and courage and his unfailing sense of humor have been there through the difficult times of now two presidencies," Clinton said. "And he clearly has the warrior spirit and

Goblins to invade installation

Officials encourage parents to ensure children's safety

By Jerrie Macintire
Special to The Bayonet ©

Saturday night Fort Benning will be "invaded" by a host of colorful characters including princesses, purple dinosaurs, mermaids and ninjas as children scatter throughout their neighborhoods in search of treats.

This year, trick or treating is scheduled for Saturday from 6 to 8 p.m. in post housing areas and is open to children 13 years of age and under, according to Regis Beighley, safety manager at Fort Benning.

The typical Saturday evening on post will be replaced by a night of door-to-door visiting as flashlight-wielding youngsters dress up as a fictional characters and canvass their neighborhoods for treats. The traditional treat has been candy or other snacks, but in recent years some residents have chosen to give out pencils, pennies or nickels, crayons and small trinkets instead of the traditional candy.

On Halloween the children's excitement is contagious as they form groups and arrive at doorsteps echoing the usual request for goodies — "trick or treat."

Beighley stated that trick or treating should be limited to the housing areas in which the participants reside. Children should approach only the residences with lighted entry ways.

Although Halloween brings fun and excitement to most participants, it also brings its share of preventable injuries. Safety experts recommend the following measures to help ensure the safety of children:

• Preschool children on post must be accompanied by a companion 14 years old or older.

• Costumes should fit well and be made from flame-resistant fabric. Outfits that drag on the ground or feature high-heeled shoes are not recommended.

• Children should be visible when trick or treating. They should carry flashlights and wear costumes or carry bags with reflective tape, which will glow in the beam of a car's headlights.

• Costumes should be enhanced by make up or face paint instead of loose fitting or bulky masks. Masks can obstruct vision and breathing.

• Accessories and props such as swords, knives and wands should be made from soft, flexible material with rounded edges.

• Children should not eat any treats until a parent has inspected them. Parents should look for evidence of tampering and throw out any unwrapped treats

• Trick or treaters should observe all basic safety precautions such as using sidewalks and crosswalks. They should not cut through yards.

• Pet owners should prevent their pets from being a menace to children.

• To illuminate a jack-o-lantern, use a flashlight instead of a candle.

Egleston Children's Hospital in Atlanta has a telephone service dedicated to the prevention of common childhood injuries. Questions concerning safety on Halloween and all other times of the year are welcome. Call (404) 321-KIDS with questions on preventing common childhood injuries.

Benning welcomes Rangers

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Flights carrying more than 100 rangers from Fort Benning's 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, landed at Lawson Army Airfield Oct. 22 from Mogadishu, Somalia.

Another 131 rangers arrived on flights Saturday and Sunday.

At the arrival ceremony Oct. 22, Commander in Chief of U.S. Special Operations Command Gen. Wayne A. Downing and Commander of U.S. Army Special Operations Command (Airborne), Lt. Gen. James T. Scott joined post officials, family members and fellow rangers in welcoming home the first arrivals.

Deputy Secretary of Defense William J. Perry was the featured speaker. He came, he said, to pay tribute to the rangers who went on this "difficult mission."

"All Americans are grateful for your courage and your service to our country," he said.

The group deployed to Somalia in late August to augment the quick reaction force there. On Oct. 3, they were sent on a mission to capture supporters of Mohammed Farrah Aidid.

During the operation, two Blackhawk helicopters were downed. A 16-hour gun battle followed, while rangers held off more than 1,000 of Aidid's militia who had them surrounded.

Six rangers from the battalion were killed and about 30 others were wounded.

"Every soldier out there far exceeded anybody's expectations and far exceeded what you'd think young men could do," said Lt. Col. Danny McKnight, 3rd Battalion commander, upon their return.

"They fought the way they trained — which is why we train the way we do," he said.

Follow Me renovates pro shop

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

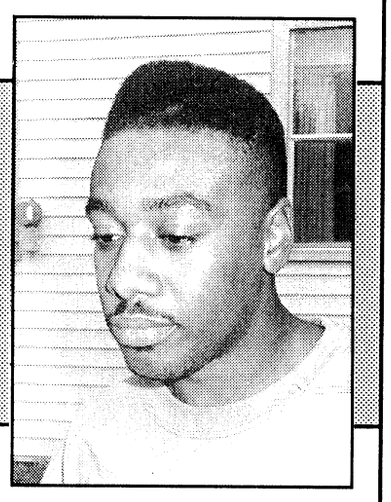
The Follow Me Golf Course will officially open the newly renovated pro shop with a grand opening ceremony Nov. 5.

The ceremony will include remarks by Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, post commander, and performances by the Infantry band and Silver Wings parachute team.

A number of events will follow the official ceremony including a clinic with professional golfer Paul Bumann.

The opening will also feature door prizes and putting and long-shot competitions for categories of men, women and seniors.

Events will conclude with the commanding general's monthly payday golf tournament starting at 1:30 p.m.



An improved display area in the pro shop will now feature an expanded line of golf equipment with a best-price guarantee. The shop will also offer a special order service.

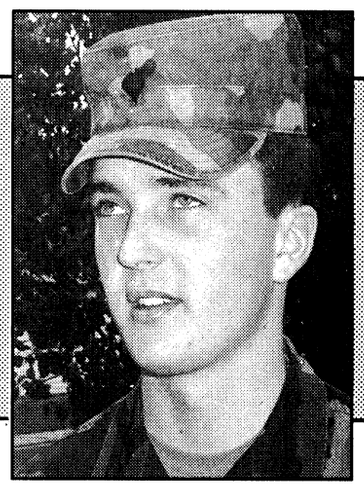
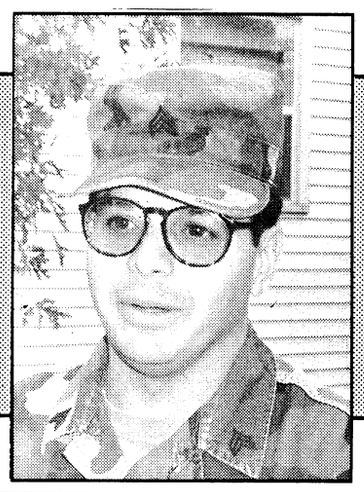
What do you remember most about basic training?



Sgt. Michael Cathey, Company A, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "The drill sergeant, all the people I went through with and the hard times we went through together."

Spc. Philip Whitley, Company A, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment — "The gas chamber and getting choked by all that smoke."



Sgt. Pedro Mercado, Company A, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "The drill sergeants. I thought they were machines they weren't human. They made us do things that I thought were impossible."

Spc. Erin Coughlin, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment — "I went through basic at Fort Dix, N.J., and I remember being the coldest when I was waiting to shoot at a range."

Sgt. Carolyn Bryson, 533rd Transportation Company, 36th Engineer Group — "Paragon trail, a night fire and tear gas range at Fort Dix, NJ. It was the scariest night of my life — I thought the Army had lost its mind."

Sgt. Tony Anavitate, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, School of the Americas — "When I went through in 1977, there was the swine flu epidemic. We would continue training even with the flu so we wouldn't be recycled."

Isn't patriotism politically correct?

COMMENTARY

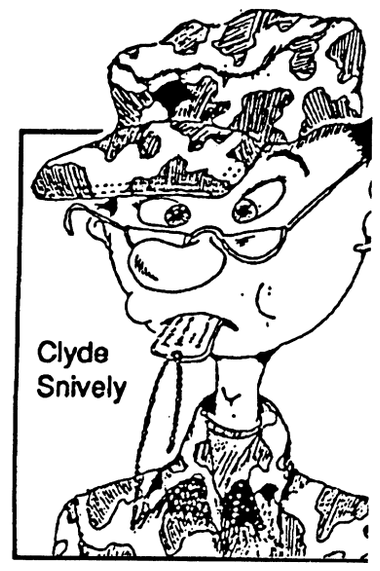
These are strange times. As if anyone needs to be told.

First, we learned of the combat our rangers were involved in. We suffered alongside families and friends at a memorial service and did so again at the funeral service for Spc. James Smith.

We greeted the wounded rangers and listened in awe as they described the way they were pinned down, but fought on for 16 hours.

We wondered if we could have done the same as we heard them tell how they reacted automatically, thanks to realistic training. And we wondered even more as they resolutely agreed that American soldiers should remain in Somalia until all our troops are accounted for.

Our patriotism reached a fever pitch during the Diamond Jubilee activities, watching the history of the Army and Fort Benning unfold before our eyes through a series of vignettes, orchestrated by the Ranger Training Brigade with a lot of help from the 11th Infantry Regiment, 3d Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, the 36th Engineer Group, Military Police Activity and Army Marksmanship Unit.



We burst forth at the conclusion of the ceremony with a loud rendition of "God Bless America," our chests swollen with pride that our voices couldn't begin to match.

The next morning, 10 more soldiers, the advanced party of the 43rd Engineer Battalion, took off in a C5A bound for Somalia.

Then last weekend, the much-awaited return of the rangers as they returned to the warm embraces of loved ones and friends.

How do we do all these things and do them so well? Training? Dedication? A great team of soldiers and civilians working together? Of course, how else.

So there I am, still feeling the euphoria of all these events, until I pick up a copy of the morning newspaper and read about a group of students at Amherst College in Massachusetts who want to do away with the school's mascot, the Minuteman.

They want to do what! Give the door to the symbol of the soldier who made this country possible? What are they smoking up there?

Well, it turns out blacks are upset because the Minuteman is white, women are upset because he's a he and others are upset because, being a soldier, he's militaristic.

So all of a sudden Amherst has a racist, sexist mascot.

And what do they propose to replace him with? The Liberty Bell. Maybe they plan to call themselves the "Ding-dongs."

The scary thing is, the administration was seriously considering caving in to these politically correct malcontents.

Does our country still have a grasp on reality? One begins to wonder.

Now I can see why the Atlanta Olympic Committee came up with the mascot it did. Who's going to be offended beyond some extraterrestrial who may bear a resemblance to this nonentity?

I can see a time when all of our schools will soon have computer-generated, nonbeings as mascots. School yells will sound more like, "go ymphs," "hold that line gryzacks," "score walipzids."

I'm just waiting for some animal-rights group to make the Army turn in its mule, the Navy its goat, or the Air Force its falcon. After all, we might be offending someone's ancestors.

Military Police respond to reader's letter as unfair

After a recent letter appearing in The Bayonet, it is essential to set the record straight on a point that is extremely important to all members of the Military Police Activity.

This point deals with one writer's concerns about priorities and an incident the writer related about the response she received from the Military Police after complaining of teens in her neighborhood.

According to the writer's account, she complained to the Military Police about a group of teen-agers drinking and being unruly in her neighborhood.

The Military Police responded with a patrol that drove by the group, told them to disperse, and left the area. Subsequently, the writer had to disperse the teens and, the following day, pick up their debris.

The writer compared the Military Police response with the response she received when she encountered Courtesy Patrols who denied her entry into an AAFES facility because of her attire.

The writer accused the Military Police of complacency in dealing with teens (thereby encouraging their behavior) while accusing the Courtesy Patrol of being overbearing when enforcing Fort Benning's dress code.

The truth of the matter is the incident involving the Military Police occurred in October of 1990 — over three years ago. The priorities established for the installation and the Military Police in 1990 are not the priorities of 1993. So to compare the two incidents is totally unfair.

The Military Police Activity has worked hard the past two years to train, equip and educate its members.

By implementing the principles of Total Army Quality in its daily operations, the Military Police Activity is far different today than it was in 1990, just as Fort Benning is far different. So are its priorities.

Providing high-quality, error-free police services remains our goal. Like all goals, it is a "mark on the wall."

Like all human beings, the Military Police make mistakes, make decisions that, in retrospect, would have been different given more time or experience, and take actions that do not meet universal approval.

However, to characterize the Military Police as somehow indifferent to the needs of the community, lazy or ignorant of priorities is just plain wrong.

Our priorities are improving public safety and the quality of life for all Fort Benning personnel through effective law enforcement activities while improving the quality of services we provide to the public.

Each member of the Military Police Activity is dedicated to these priorities. To exemplify our priorities with examples of actions that occurred in 1990 is a slap in the face to every member of the Military Police Activity.

Just as Fort Benning has worked hard to attain the title of Best Installation in the Army for 1993, the Military Police Activity has worked hard to improve its services.

Today we have the best trained and the best equipped Military Police in the Army. And while we have not yet achieved our goal of error-free police services, we have made monumental progress and will continue to pursue that goal.

Throwing examples of past performance into the public forum as representative of today's standards is counterproductive to our efforts and just plain unfair to the men and women who work hard day and night, every weekday, weekend and holiday to keep soldiers and their families insulated from the same problems that plague many civilian communities in cities across the United States.

"Of the troops — for the troops,"

The commander and members of the Military Police Activity

Soldier remembers first days of 'learning the lingo'

By Geoffrey Day
Fort Carson, Colo.

With every profession there exists a certain lingo. Unless actively involved, one would be hard pressed to understand the dialogue being used.

Nowhere is that more true than in the U.S. Army.

The difference between the Army and other professions is that you won't find a listing of the many sayings in any book.

My first experience with this lingo occurred when I came into contact with my drill sergeant at Fort Benning.

When I stepped off the cattle truck, his first words to me were, "You'd better move like lighting and sound like thunder." I quickly obliged him by forming up in the wrong place.

He told me to drop and beat my face. Then he said, "Knock 'em out until I get tired." He didn't tire easily and I was really impressed with his stamina.

I could tell he was fond of me. After I recovered, I said, "Thank, you, sir, for conditioning my mind and body."

"'Sir?' That's the wrong answer knucklehead — I work for a living. Assume the position, cherry. You're going to stay down there until I have you doing the kickin' chicken."

From there he proceeded to give everyone within earshot his opinion of me.

"Private Day, you're a walking gig and ate up like a soup-sandwich. Be advised — you don't have a clue as to what it means to be an infantry soldier. You'd better get your head out of your fourth point of contact or you're going to get caught behind the power curve."

From that day on I kept my mouth shut and did as I was told. Around the 10th week, my drill sergeant called me out of formation. I timidly said, "Here Drill Sergeant."

"Sound off like you've got a pair (of lungs), son," he replied. "Here Drill Sergeant."

"Say again."

"HERE DRILL SERGEANT!"

"That's what I'm talking about."

Once again he gave me his perception of me.

"Private Day, you've become a high-speed, low-drag infantry soldier. From here on out, if you keep yourself squared away, you'll be good to go. You know the deal, now move out and draw fire hero..."

Later on, when I got to my new duty station, I discovered an entirely new lingo.

I was out on a field problem when the noncommissioned officer in charge came up to me and said, "After you get your MRE from DFAC, call the CO at the CP on the MSRT ASAP from the OPLP in regards to your PMCS on his BFV.

"EPA will be in the AO later on and he wants to look good for the CG. And quit day dreaming about DPP or I'll have the MP put you on KP."

I just looked at him dumbfounded, thinking, "I could use a little R-E-S-P-E-C-T."

AER can help

By Alphonso Deane
Army Emergency Relief

It seems that today the only thing higher about "higher" education is the cost of obtaining it.

Many parents all across the country may be wondering about how they will finance their children's educations.

Military parents probably share this concern, but children of military parents do have an edge on receiving financial assistance for college.

That edge is Army Emergency Relief.

AER provides scholarships to eligible children of retired, active duty or deceased soldiers who are younger than 22 years of age and are unmarried.

Scholarships are awarded based on financial need, academic achievement and individual accomplishment.

Students can receive up to $1,500 in aid, and the money can be used toward all education expenses including tuition, living expenses, transportation and books.

Scholarship applications are available after Monday for the 1994 to '95 school year.

Completed applications must be mailed to AER headquarters and postmarked no later than March 1.

For more information on college assistance through AER, visit Building 2643, in Soldiers' Plaza or call 545-7517 or 545-2536.

The hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Scholarships at a glance

Who's eligible: Family members of retired, active duty or deceased soldiers

Scholarship amounts: Up to $1,500 yearly

SGLI

Regulations require updates

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

According to Army Regulation 600-8-104, officers and enlisted soldiers need to keep their personal data up to date on their Emergency Data Cards (Department of Defense Form 93) and Servicemember's Group Life Insurance (SGLI-8286).

The regulation requires soldiers to review and update their records every year and also requires documents to be retyped every three years, whether changes are made or not, according to Janie Seldon, chief of Personnel Services Division.

Information that should be kept current, Seldon said, includes a soldier's marriage, divorce, birth of children and change of address. Soldiers should bring the appropriate documents, such as marriage license, divorce decree or birth certificate, when they update their forms.

Accurate data on the SGLI-8286 is especially important, Seldon said, in case a soldier is involved in a casualty situation, including illness, injury or death.

If a soldier's information is not current, said Seldon, there may be problems in who is notified and who is considered principal beneficiary, depending on the soldier's state of residency.

Soldiers can no longer state "by law" for SGLI beneficiaries. Beneficiaries must be named and current addresses must be given.

Soldiers are required to have on file an SGLI Form 8286, dated November 1992, stating whether or not they wish to increase their insurance coverage to $200,000.

Those who wish to increase their coverage but haven't yet done so must submit, along with the SGLI 8286, an attached, completed SGLI 8285 signed by their commander.

Enlisted soldiers who wish to update their records should call 545-2611 to schedule appointments. Officers should call 545-3618 or 545-7083 for appointments.

POWELL: JCS chairman bids farewell

the judgment to know when it should be applied in the nation's behalf."

Clinton awarded Powell the Presidential Medal of Freedom—making Powell the second two-time recipient of the award.

In his remarks, Powell thanked Clinton and Aspin for their commitment to keep the armed forces strong and of the highest caliber. He also called on America to remain a world leader.

"The aspiring nations of the world trust the United States," Powell said.

"They need the United States. They need our political leadership. They need our economic strength. They need our value system as a model to learn from."

Powell said the changes in the world mean America's armed forces will have a busy future, "busier than in the predictable garrison days of the Cold War."

He cited many areas of the world where American service members are "in harm's way": the Persian Gulf, Somalia, Bosnia and Korea.

"At the heart of each of these services is the young American boy or girl, perhaps only 19 years old, a volunteer, well trained, proud, selflessly serving a nation wherever that nation and whenever that nation calls on him or her to go and to serve," he said.

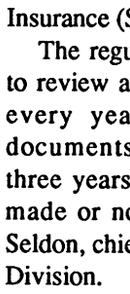
"They are the best and the very brightest of America's youth."

Powell said of all the honors he has received, being American service members' senior representative has been the highest.

Powell thanked his wife, Alma, for her help during his career. "Over those 31 years (of married life), we moved to 22 different houses, but she made sure we never changed homes," Powell said.

"She shared every dark moment. She has been my partner and my supporting pillar over all these years.

"She has been the perfect Army wife, inspiring others and representing the nation so well around the world. Without her love and caring, I cannot imagine what my life would be like."



Aspin awarded Alma Powell the Defense Distinguished Civilian Service Award.

Powell said the day was one of memories for him and that he considers himself a very fortunate man.

"These events and people have given me a great life and have given me a great career," Powell said.

"I have never wanted to be anything but a soldier, and my dream has been fulfilled for almost four decades."

Diabetes: hospital provides patient education

By Clifette Johnson
Martin Army Community Hospital

With more than 650,000 new cases of diabetes diagnosed each year, and nearly 120,000 children with diabetes in the United States alone, national health officials have declared the first week in November as National Diabetes Education Week.

Of significant concern is the fact that approximately 6 million diabetics have yet to realize they have the disease. These individuals, the undiagnosed, are the focus of this year's campaign.

In recognition of this event, a multidisciplinary health-care team at Martin Army Community Hospital is sponsoring a Patient Education Diabetes Symposium Monday through Thursday.

Each day, a different topic will be presented by one of the hospital's health-care professionals. Some of the topics include holiday meal planning, foot care, exercise plans, stress and time management, home blood glucose monitoring and general diabetic lifestyles.

Symposium registration is open to all military beneficiaries who wish to learn more about diabetes. Due to limited seating, all interested participants are asked to preregister by signing up in either the Internal Medicine Clinic on the ninth floor of the hospital or the Cardiology Clinic on the second floor.

For registration information, call 544-1254 or 544-1221. Displays with handouts and free samples will be set up all week in the hospital's Outpatient Pharmacy lobby and on the fifth floor.

Diabetes mellitus is a chronic disease in which the body does not produce or respond to insulin. Insulin is a hormone, produced by the pancreas, that helps the body metabolize the sugar known as glucose.

When insulin is absent or ineffective, blood glucose levels are high. High blood glucose levels can result in both short-term and long-term health complications.

There are approximately 13 million American men, women and children with diabetes and each year more than 160,000 people die as a result of diabetes and its complications. Each year, diabetes is responsible for approximately 12,000 cases of legal blindness and 13,000 cases of end-stage renal disease.

Diabetes is divided into two major categories. These categories are insulin-dependent diabetes, or Type I, and noninsulin dependent or Type II. A third type of diabetes is gestational diabetes, which is first detected during pregnancy and occurs in 2 to 4 percent of all pregnancies. Type II diabetes accounts for 98 percent of all cases of diabetes in the United States.

Minority groups experience a particularly high incidence of this type of diabetes.

The major risk factors for developing the disease include a family history of diabetes, obesity (in Type II), race, previously identified impaired glucose tolerance and women with a history of gestational diabetes or delivery of infants more than 9 pounds.

The classic symptoms of diabetes include blurred vision, excessive thirst, frequent urination, unusual weight loss and increased appetite.

Frequent infections and unusually slow healing wounds can also indicate diabetes.

The three most important areas of concern that can lead to a healthy life for all diabetics are diet, exercise and medications.

Martin Army Community Hospital Diabetes Education Symposium schedule Nov. 1 through 4

DoD studies first-term ENLISTMENT ISSUES

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

First-term service members face personal problems that can affect the military's readiness, said Defense Secretary Les Aspin.

"The readiness of our armed forces is the most critical measure of success in my book," he said. Anything that negatively affects readiness, like these personal problems, needs to be studied and changed, he said.

Aspin directed DoD and the services to undertake a 90-day study of first-term enlistment issues, including marriage, finances, substance abuse and other stress-related problems. The study is scheduled for completion in early December.

The family status and initial term of service study will "determine the scope of the problem and analyze whether our programs and policies should be revamped to improve personnel readiness within a profamily framework," said Edwin Dorn, assistant secretary of Defense for personnel and readiness.

"As our military forces are downsizing and responding to contingencies in a very complex and changing environment, it appears the cumulative stress on the families of our first-term military members is increasing," added Dorn.

He said the study is divided into three phases: information gathering, issue identification and recommendations. Three panels will participate, with each focusing on specific aspects of the problem. Each panel is composed of representatives from DoD staff, the services and outside experts. A working group of general and flag officers, DoD personnel experts and outside advisers offer guidance and assistance.

The first panel is analyzing demographic data as it relates to first-term family status, which includes marriage rates, attrition, pregnancy, promotion and finances. The second panel's mission is to determine the effectiveness of the military's family support programs and to review research on military families. The third panel will focus on training and deployability issues.

Some information the panels will use in the study comes from a recently completed survey of military members and their spouses. Panel members plan to travel to several installations to talk with people.

"It is not the intent of the study to compare service programs and policies. Each service has a unique mission and readiness complexities that evolve from that mission," Dorn stressed. The specific input from each military service also plays a critical role in the study's results, he added.

"We have organized the study and established how we will proceed," he said. "We have not boxed ourselves into conclusions. We want to gather the wealth of information already available."

TRADOC, post urge weapons safety

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

Incidents involving privately owned weapons throughout the Training and Doctrine Command have prompted the TRADOC commander to call on commanders to stress personal weapons safety on their installations, according to a TRADOC press release.

TRADOC Commander Gen. Frederick M. Franks Jr. recently wrote a policy letter concerning weapons safety on Army installations.

"Crimes of violence involving the use of firearms threaten the Army's most precious resources — the soldier, the family and our civilian employees," wrote Franks.

In the letter he identified several methods for enforcing firearms safety including random vehicle inspections, ensuring the availability for purchase of approved weapons storage boxes on post and education on possession and storage of personal firearms.

Fort Benning Provost Marshal Col. James Crockert also recently outlined the policy concerning privately owned firearms on post.

As part of that policy, unit commanders will now be periodically provided with a listing of individuals who have registered weapons within their command. Commanders must brief weapon owners on firearm safety and consequences of illegal use.

Currently all privately owned firearms must be registered with the Military Police. As of Wednesday, there were 6,902 weapons registered. Fort Benning MPs also conduct roadblocks and random vehicle checks for firearm violations.

Regis Beighley, Fort Benning safety manager, encourages proper training for owners of personal firearms.

"Soldiers are trained on military weapons," he noted, "but privately owned weapons operate differently. They have, for example, different safety and trigger mechanisms."

He suggested safety tips including proper training for the type of weapon owned, carrying ammunition and the weapon separately until ready to use and keeping the weapon locked up at home.

The Fort Benning Safety Office has literature concerning weapon and hunting safety. To obtain information, stop by Building 18 on Vibbert Street or call the Safety Office at 545-3267.

RANGERS: Community celebrates homecoming

Pfc. Eric L. Dooling of Company B was on a reaction force that went in to extract wounded and dead from a helicopter crash site Oct. 3.

"I didn't panic even though I was scared," he said. "I didn't think about it; I just did what I had to do. I have training to thank for that."

Two of the soldiers killed were in his platoon, Dooling said.

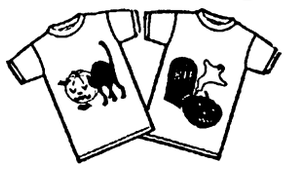
"Knowing we lost people and that people were wounded — I can't really describe the feeling," he said. "It felt weird ... over time it's become more real."

Staff Sgt. Ed Yurek, a squad leader in Company B who had seven men under his command during the fighting, said it was his first combat experience and it went very well — none of his squad members were wounded.

"They all did exactly what they were told to do. They're the best guys I know," he said.

"We're always sending live rounds down range. When we had to do it there, there wasn't much new — except for the fact that live rounds were coming back," Yurek said.

"It's good to be back," said Sgt. Aaron A. Weaver of Company B, "that's about all there is to say about it."



Cellular One provided free phone service for the rangers to call home after they returned to Fort Benning.

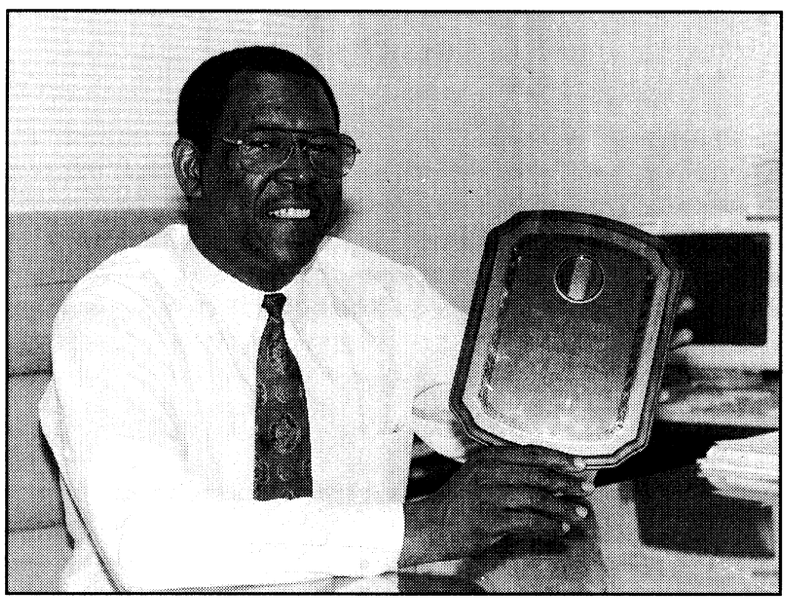
EEO wins award

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Post Equal Employment Opportunity Officer Ellis Dandy was recently honored with an award for being the most supportive EEO officer in Training and Doctrine Command.

Dandy said that even though the award was presented in his name, it was the professionalism of the entire EEO staff and the excellent command support that led to the honor.



"I just happened to be in the driver's seat at the time," Dandy said. "This is really an award for the entire installation, and I wouldn't have gotten it without the support of a great staff."

The award is given annually, Dandy said, to the EEO officer whose installation provides the best support to TRADOC.

Fort Benning provides several services to TRADOC, including sending post EEO representatives to assist with complaints at other installations and general administrative support.

Dandy was presented the award during an EEO workshop in Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 9 and 10. He said he hopes the award is a sign of more good things to come.

"We want to look for even bigger things in the future," he said. "We want to maintain the good working relationship enjoyed by the members of the EEO staff and the strong command support we receive. In short, we want to continue to strive to make Fort Benning a better place to work, live and play for everyone."

Free counseling available for military family members

Army Career and Alumni Program

All family members of personnel leaving the service — military or civilian (including retirees) — are eligible for more than $1,000 of free counseling and training to improve their personal image and job search skills.

The Army Career and Alumni Program is a program to help make the transition from the military lifestyle to the civilian alumni life.

Military spouses need to be within six months of leaving to begin that new career. If your spouse has already transitioned, ACAP still offers the service 60 days after separation.

ACAP provides a personal transition services specialist at the Transition Assistance Office to answer questions including transportation home, how finances are handled, VA benefits, when spouses start receiving retirement pay and when must families clear post and how.

A transition services specialist will provide customers with a referral to obtain training to improve or polish their job search skills.

The Georgia Department of Labor provides a training course every Tuesday and Wednesday — "The Basic Job Search Skills Training Course" — that provides the foundation for all other training to follow. The next step is the advanced course taught at the Job Assistance Center every Thursday.

The transition services specialist will guide each person through the process to meet the needs of the individual. The first stop should be the Transition Assistance Office, Building 2617.

The Job Assistance Center will provide additional one-on-one job search counseling.

All of these services are available to soldiers, their spouses and children if they are of working age. Customers do not have to be accompanied by their sponsors.

For information or to make an appointment, visit the Army Career and Alumni Program office in Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2617, or call 545-4892 or 545-4902.

Nov. 18: 2 to 4 p.m., mock interview practice session

Nov. 19: "Employers' Day"

Job assistance workshop

Time: Wednesdays, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Location: Infantry Hall, Building 4

The workshop is conducted every Wednesday at Infantry Hall. Topics discussed include objective setting, resume preparation, expanding opportunities, networking, interviewing, salary negotiating, stress management and financial planning.

The workshop is for anyone in federal service (both military and Department of the Army civilians) and their family members, whether leaving voluntarily, involuntarily or retiring.

Focus Hour

Time: Tuesdays, noon to 1 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Weekly video program that provides additional information on the key areas in the job search process — networking, dressing for success, interview process and negotiating techniques. Counselors will assist with any additional questions.

Education Opportunity Center

Time: Wednesdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Participants will receive information from all over the country about college and university admissions requirements and proficiency exams. Education counselors can also discuss student loans and grants.

Mock Interview Practice

Time: Thursdays, 2 to 4 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Participants will learn how to interview effectively by rehearsing and practicing interview techniques with an experienced JAC counselor. The mock interview will be videotaped to provide the client with a visual learning tool.

Employers' Day

Time: Fridays, time varies

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Employer day is scheduled each Friday at the Job Assistance Center. The program is designed to allow employers to recruit qualified candidates for their companies.

Employers normally will give presentations on their organizations and set up interviews with qualified candidates.

A variety of manufacturing and service companies take advantage of this opportunity. Public sector organizations are also represented.

Job training program offers incentives for hiring veterans

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

The Defense Department and two other government agencies are working to offer companies incentives to hire and train military veterans.

A new veterans' job training program, established under the Service Members Occupation and Conversion Training Act of 1992, should help individuals find long-term employment, said Robert Stein, DoD's director of transition support and services.

Administered by DoD and the departments of Labor and Veterans Affairs, the program offers employers with approved training programs up to $10,000 toward an eligible veteran's wages during job training. Reimbursement for an eligible veteran with 30 percent or more disability can be up to $12,000.

Service members must meet a number of requirements to qualify. Veterans are eligible if they have been discharged after Aug. 2, 1990. They must have served on active duty for at least 90 days or have been released from active duty at any time because of a service-connected disability.

Veterans must be unemployed when applying for this program and must have been unemployed for at least eight of the 15 weeks before application, said Stein. In addition, veterans must have primary or secondary military skills that do not easily transfer to the civilian sector.

Applications must be made by Sept. 30, 1995, he said.

Approved training programs must run between six and 18 months in a field that provides a reasonable chance at stable, long-term employment, said Stein. Some types of prohibited job training include training for employment where commissions are the primary source of income, employment involving political or religious activities and employment outside the United States, its territories or Puerto Rico.

Training for employment with any federal agency or department and employment that is seasonal, intermittent or temporary is also prohibited.

Stein said eligibility continues until a veteran completes a job-training program. Once completed, eligibility ends. However, an individual who does not complete a program may begin a new job training program.

For more details, an application form and assistance, contact the nearest employment service, job service office or Veterans Affairs regional office, or call the VA's national toll-free number at (800) 827-1000. A telephone number at the Department of Labor is (202) 219-9116. Or write to: Veterans Employment, Re-employment and Training, Dept. of Labor, 200 Constitution Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20210.

POST BRIEFS

30th AG to conduct Organization Day

The 30th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception) will conduct Organization Day activities Nov. 12. The day will kick off with a battalion cohesion run at 6:30 a.m. on Patriot Field. Opening ceremonies will begin at 9:30 a.m. with the closing ceremony at 3:30 p.m. Minimum staffing will be in effect with a staff duty noncommissioned officer on duty.

For more information, call 544-9755.

Civilian employees to get voting leave

Supervisors are reminded that all civilian employees who vote in the election Tuesday may be excused the minimum number of hours necessary to provide three hours off-duty time, either immediately after the polls open or immediately before they close, whichever requires the lesser amount of excused leave. Employees who are off duty for more than three hours while the polls are open may not be granted excused leave.

Health benefits fair opens Thursday

The 1993 Federal Employees Health Benefits Program Health Fair in Building 6, Room 132, Meloy Hall, ends today.

The fair is part of the 1993 federal employees Health Benefits Program open season Nov. 8 through Dec. 13.

Representatives from some of the health insurance carriers will be available 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. to answer questions concerning changes for 1994. Brochures will also be available.

Enrollment and changes will be effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning after Jan. 1.

Employees who make a change must be in a pay status for some part of the pay period prior to the one in which enrollment takes effect.

4/41 plans dinner for St. Barbara's Day

The 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment is hosting a St. Barbara's Day dinner and dance Dec. 17 at 6:30 p.m. at the Fort Benning Officers' Club Supper Club. All active and retired artillerymen, air defenders, former St. Barbara's Award recipients and friends of the field artillery are welcome.

For more information, call 544-4554, 544-1822 or 544-3513.

Incoming traffic to be rerouted until 8:15 a.m.

Because of road construction, normal incoming traffic rerouting will be extended until 8:15 a.m. until construction is complete.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Sunday. If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: C-1, C-3, E-7, K-8, K-11, O-3, O-4, O-5, O-6, O-7, O-8, O-14, Q-2, S-1 and T-5.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas. People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

911 hearing Monday

A public hearing to discuss the merits of the E-911 system is scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. in Classroom 2 of Infantry Hall.

All on-post residents are invited to attend. Representatives from the Military Police, Fire Department, Emergency Medical Service and the Directorate of Information Management will be available to answer questions about the system.

Fort Benning expects to begin testing the system Dec. 1 and it is planned to be fully operational by Dec. 31.

Housing-area residents with telephones will be assessed a $1.50 surcharge on their monthly phone bills, although this will not become effective until March 1.

1994 SDT dates set

The fiscal 1994 self-development testing dates have been set. By-name test schedules and SDT notice pamphlets have been distributed for the October through December test period.

Primary military occupational specialty and skill levels to be tested are 13M2/3/4, 73C3/4, 76J2/3/4, 83E2/3, 91R2/3/4, 91S2/3/4, 92B2/3/4, 95C2/3/4 and 98C2/3/4. The test dates for these specialties are scheduled for Dec. 1, 2, 13, 14, 15 and 16 in Brown Hall, Building 328.

Soldiers are to report no later than 8:30 a.m. on the date scheduled in military uniform with a valid identification card.

Soldiers who need to be scheduled or those who cannot report as scheduled should notify their unit first sergeant or training noncommissioned officer.

Soldiers who fail to test because of their own negligence may receive an official zero.

Roads to close

All roads on Sand Hill will be closed Monday from 3 to 4 p.m. for the safety of soldiers participating in the War Eagle Run.

ACAP seminars set

The Army Career and Alumni Program will host a financial planning seminar Tuesday.

The seminar will be conducted by local financial planners and insurance agents.

The seminar schedule will be: 9 to 9:45 a.m., financial and cash management; 10 to 10:45 a.m., insurance and investments, and 11 to 11:30 a.m., question and answer period with agents and brokers. All seminars will be conducted in Infantry Hall, Classroom 59.

For more information, call Maj. Charles Shelden at 545-4902 or 545-4913.

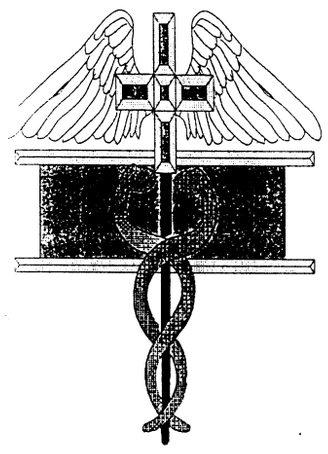
Medical personnel 'sew up' badge

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

"This one has a sucking chest wound, this one has a fractured leg and this one has a laceration to the upper arm," yells a sergeant. "Load 'em up."

The specialist looks down at the three soldiers who are lying on stretchers and groaning with pain. Without hesitating, he must decide which of the injured to load first onto the waiting 2 1/2-ton truck.



This is not the first time this week he's had to make this kind of decision, nor will it be the last.

But he's not in the middle of a war — he's testing for the Expert Field Medical Badge.

The 324th Forward Support Battalion began training 246 field medical personnel for the EFMB on Fort Benning Oct. 18.

Medics, doctors, nurses, lab technicians and other soldiers in medically-related career fields from the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), the 36th Engineer Group, Ranger Training Brigade, the 24th Infantry Division at Fort Stewart and Reserve units as far away as Fort Lewis, Wash., set out to earn the EFMB — the symbol of exceptional competence among medical personnel.

The soldiers, living in the field for the duration of training and testing, first passed a record Army Physical Fitness Test, then weathered a week of training and late-night study sessions before attempting a 100-question written test.

"The written test (traditionally) gets a large portion of the candidates," said Capt. Carl Spear, the officer in charge of the EFMB site.

The questions cover a wide range of subjects, from basic soldier skills such as map reading to field sanitation and questions on specific medical treatment like whether to give water to a victim with an abdominal wound, Spear said.

This time, the test got 122 of the candidates when they took it Sunday, leaving only 89 candidates in the running on the first day of test week, said Staff Sgt. Ervin Walker, the noncommissioned officer in charge of the EFMB site.

"Only the strong survive," Walker said.

To "survive," the remaining candidates had to complete tasks in the following performance areas:

- Day and night land navigation
- Cardiopulmonary resuscitation
- Communications testing (using a field phone or radio to send a medical evacuation request, for example)
- Survival tasks such as camouflaging, assembling and disassembling an M-16 rifle and proper wear and use of nuclear biological and chemical gear
- Evacuation of the sick and wounded
- Litter obstacle course
- Emergency medical treatment
- 12-mile forced road march

Except for CPR and land navigation, the candidates perform the tests in a combat scenario, Spear said.

One of the harder events, he said, is the emergency medical treatment lane.

"The candidates are given two aid bags. They've got four to six casualties that are out there in foxholes and fighting positions ... they have an hour to triage, treat the injuries in order of seriousness and properly fill out a medical card," Spear said.

Amid weapons fire, smoke, and the booms of artillery simulators, candidates must properly perform 11 tasks ranging from dressing a chest wound to inserting an intravenous line.

The blood is fruit punch and the casualties are simulated, but the pressure is real.

"EMT has probably got everyone worried the most," said Pfc. Michael C. Wise of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment.

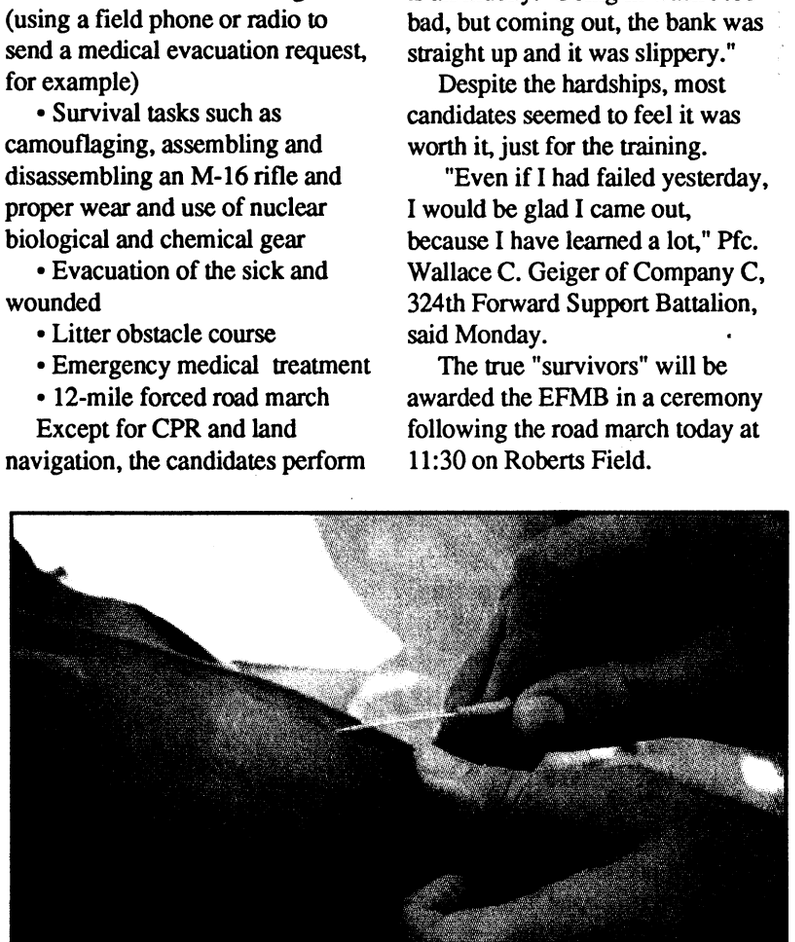
Another tough event was the litter obstacle course, he said. Teams of four candidates must carry a victim on a litter over a 900-meter course over bridges, high and low walls, under barbed wire and through a trench filled with water.

"We got gassed, and it's rough running around with protective masks," Wise said.

The worst part, he said, was coming through the trench. "The water's pretty deep, and stepping through is hard because the bottom is all mucky. Going in wasn't too bad, but coming out, the bank was straight up and it was slippery."

Despite the hardships, most candidates seemed to feel it was worth it, just for the training.

"Even if I had failed yesterday, I would be glad I came out, because I have learned a lot," Pfc. Wallace C. Geiger of Company C, 324th Forward Support Battalion, said Monday.



The true "survivors" will be awarded the EFMB in a ceremony following the road march today at 11:30 on Roberts Field.

A litter team makes its way under the barbed wire obstacle.

Army issues VSI guidelines for officers

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

The Department of the Army has issued guidelines for the fiscal 1994 Army Officer Voluntary Separation Incentive program.

Basic eligibility requirements are:

- Six years' active federal service before Dec. 5, 1991; not eligible for retirement or retainer pay based on military service at time of separation.
- Five years' continuous service immediately preceding date of separation.
- Not under suspension of favorable personnel action (DA Form 286.)
- Must be on officer or warrant officer active duty list.

Below are the requirements for various categories of officers.

Army Competitive Category

Category one — Officers who will be considered for involuntary separation programs

Officers with a date of rank to captain from Feb. 2, 1989, to March 1, 1990, and have less than 14 years of active federal service as of Sept. 30. (Any change to these dates will be announced.)

Officers may apply for voluntary separation under this category from now until no later than Jan. 25. Officers applying under category one will be required to separate between April 15 and Aug. 1.

Category two — officers who have been nonselected for promotion

Captains who are one-time nonselected to major from the FY 93 major selection board. Application window for category two will open when the major promotion list is released, projected for mid-December. Officers who are twice nonselected as a result of the FY 93 major selection process are not eligible to apply.

Category three — officers who will not be considered for involuntary separation

There are no plans to offer VSI to Army competitive category commissioned officers in this category.

Warrant Officers

Category one

This category is pending approval

Category two

Warrant officers one time nonselected to chief warrant officer three, four or five from the FY 93 are eligible to apply from now until Nov. 10.

Officers who are two times nonselected as a result of the FY93 selection process are not eligible to apply.

Category three

Warrant officers in the following military occupational specialties and grades may apply if they meet basic eligibility requirements and are not a nonselected for promotion to the next higher grade:

140E — CW2
152B — CW2
152G — CW2
153B — CW2
155A, D and E — CW3, CW4
156A — CW3
256A — CW3
352D — CW2
352G — CW2
420C — CW3, CW4
910A — CW2,CW3, CW4
911A — CW2, CW3, CW4
912A — CW2
916A — CW2, CW3, CW4
918A — CW3

Category three applications will be approved on a first-come, first-served basis until goals are met. Applications will be taken from now until Nov. 15. Separation dates are April 15 to Aug. 1.

Army Medical Department

Category one

For planning purposes, the zone of eligibility is captain with date of rank from July 1, 1988, to June 30, 1989, in these areas of concentration: 68B, 68F, 68N, 68P and 68R. The application deadline will be no later than Jan. 25.

Category two

There are several different categories of eligible officers, depending on branch and rank. For more information, call your unit's Personnel Administration Center.

Category three

Medical Service Corps majors may apply if they have a date of rank from Aug. 2, 1989, to June 1, 1992, provided they meet basic eligibility requirements and are in one of the following areas of concentration: 67 series, 69H, 68J and 68P.

Judge Advocate General Corps

Category one

Not applicable.

Category two

Applications must received at least 60 days before desired separation date and no later than July 31.

Officers must separate no later than Sept. 29. For eligibility criteria, call your unit Personnel Administration Center.

Category three

Not applicable.

Chaplains

Category one

Not applicable.

Category two

Majors with date of rank between April 30, 1988, and earlier, who are not already on a promotion list, are eligible if they are one time nonselected for promotion as a result of the FY 94 board.

Those who have been selectively continued on active duty after being nonselected two or more times are also eligible to apply. Captains nonselected after the FY 94 board are also eligible to apply for VSI.

Officers in any category who wish to apply for voluntary separation should first see their unit Personnel Administration Center.

The Transition Center, Building 2622 in Soldiers' Plaza, can furnish information on pay and transition benefits.

Officers may not withdraw requests for separation after being approved for VSI.

ITB deactivates Company E

By Shelby Carr
Infantry Training Brigade

The deactivation of Company E, 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, and the change of command for Company C and Company A, 2nd Bn., 54th Inf. Regt., occured Oct. 22 at Albanese Barracks.

Company E deactivated due to the downsizing of the Army and changes in the Tables of Distribution and Allowance.

Mason, a native of Palestine, Texas, graduated and received his commission from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., in 1986.

He has served as the Headquarters and Headquarters Company commander for the 5th Battalion (Mechanized), 6th Infantry Regiment, at Fort Polk, La.

He also served in several platoon leader positions and as a company executive officer with that unit.

Mason has received several honors, including the Ranger Tab, the Parachutist Badge, and two Army Commendation Medals.

He and his wife, Cindy, have two children, Brittany and Ashley.

Capt. Vincent Roach left Company C and assumed command of Company A from Capt. James Petro, who will be going to Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Roach graduated from Edinboro University of Pennsylvania in 1987.

He has served in several platoon leader slots and as a company executive officer while assigned to the 5th Battalion, 16th Infantry Regiment, at Fort Riley, Kan.

He has graduated from the Infantry Officers' Basic Course and the Advanced Course.

His awards include the Bronze Star, the Army Commendation Medal, and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Roach and his wife, Vanessa, have one son, Vincent Jr., who is 4 months old.

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week...

• The main thrust of Operation Blissful, the invasion of the Solomon Islands, began as U.S. forces landed at Empress Augusta Bay at Cape Tarokina on Bougainville. Within a day, U.S. forces topped 14,000 men from the 3rd Marine Division who quickly established a beachhead after initially facing only isolated elements of the island's 40,000 Japanese defenders. U.S. supporting Naval forces also fared well as enemy air attacks were of little effect, and a sea battle resulted in significant damage to most of the Japanese ships involved.

• On New Britain, U.S. forces continued their attacks on the Rabaul Harbor, sinking 11 Japanese ships, damaging eight others, and destroying 85 enemy aircraft in one major battle.

• On the U.S. homefront, President Franklin D. Roosevelt stepped in to end a potentially crippling strike after 530,000 miners refused to work. Roosevelt ordered his Solid Fuels Administration to direct the coal industry.

• In Europe, the Allies conducted several bombing missions over target cities in Germany. Britain's Royal Air Force Bomber Command raided Dusseldorf on consecutive nights, while the 8th U.S. Army Air Force bombed Wilhelmshaven.

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets occupied Genichesk, seized the railroad system in Chaplinka, and reached Armiansk, completing their effort to isolate the German forces in the Crimea.

• On Fort Benning, 44-year-old Sgt. Michale Peitch, the oldest enlisted man in the U.S. paratroopers, continued to serve the post and the Army. Peitch's prior service distinguished him from his peers as he was a combat veteran of the German Army, having fought in World War I at the age of 16.

Living Stone Chapel is heart of Sword Base

By Elizabeth Carlson
13th Corps Support Battalion

Living Stone Chapel, a sanctuary built on the outskirts of Mogadishu, stands among the supplies, the equipment and several vehicles.

The chapel, once a foundry for a Russian tank factory, located on a compound known as "Sword Base" was converted by the 68th Support Battalion from Fort Carson, Colo.

Lt. Col. Richard Gula, battalion commander for the 68th, decided to build a separate facility to accommodate troops as the participation for religious services grew in Somalia.

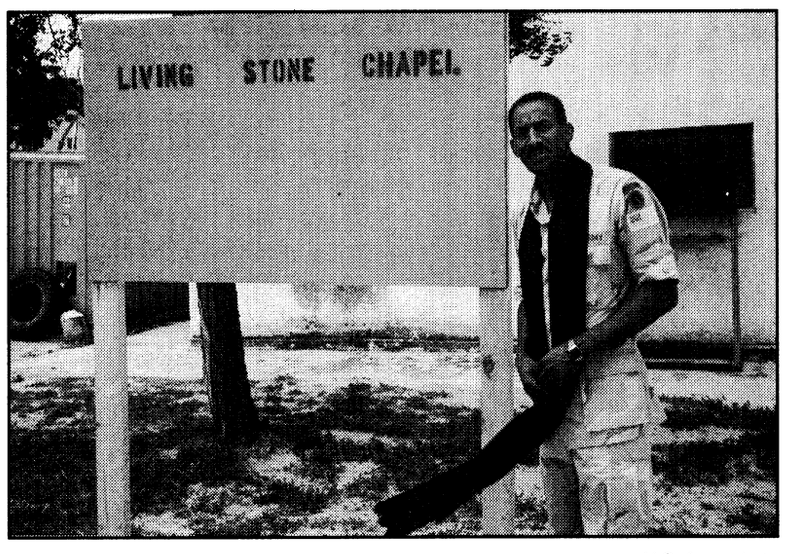
Gula and his soldiers, with the help of Brown and Root Construction, removed debris and heavy casting equipment to prepare the area for the chapel.

The first religious services were conducted at the chapel before the departure of the 68th. Until that time, religious activities were relegated to the compound's recreation center.

There are 650 soldiers assigned to Sword Base and they are making good use of the Living Stone Chapel. It is a welcome respite from the challenges, stress and harsh environment they face on a daily basis during their deployment.

"Having the only chapel in Mogadishu is a true blessing," commented Chaplain (Capt.) Geoffrey Alleyne, the 13th Corps Support Battalion and Sword Base Chaplain.

"In addition to providing scheduled Protestant and Catholic worship services, we are able to provide a place for meditation, prayer and worship at all times," Alleyne said.



"It is not mandatory to have a dedicated facility for religious purposes. Having the chapel provides a great service to our soldiers and gives more flexibility. The privacy and quiet atmosphere are conducive to reflection and self study.

"The soldiers know there is a place open to them at all times for their spiritual needs," he said.

Lt. Col. Spike Rupert, commander of the 13th CSB is committed to improving the chapel as well as other facilities on Sword Base.

"We will continue to make improvements that enhance the quality of our soldiers' lives here. They are giving 100 percent and they deserve the best facilities possible," said Rupert.

They will work until they depart to improve the base, he said.

Reformation Day

Church looks back on Martin Luther

By Stephen Fry
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Reflections
Reflections

Sunday is Reformation Day. This is the day when Protestant churches remember Brother Martin Luther, who tried to reform the religious establishment. His call was to return people to the word of God.

Society and the church were corrupt. The Reformation arrested secularism and made religion dominant in life and politics for another 150 years. People came back to moral values and fought against moral abuse.

Often the Reformation is seen only as a Protestant movement. History teaches that it was both Roman Catholic and Protestant. In fact, historians show that reform began in the Roman Catholic Church before Martin Luther issued his challenge.

Since that time, many have "reformed." Some reforms had scriptural foundations, while others had personal preferences and opinions. Most were sincere.

Greed, corruption and hate are still present in our society. Is it time for a new reformation movement to begin? Are we to wait for another Martin Luther to arrive upon the scene? I believe not. Each of us can begin the reform within our families.

The Old Testament speaks of individual reformation. We are to be different from those who break the law.

Second Chronicles 7:14 gives the instruction that we need to turn from our wicked ways and ask forgiveness from our sins. This sin could be hate, not caring, or the breaking of any of the Ten Commandments as found in Exodus, Chapter 20.

In the New Testament, the message of reformation comes by asking people to be transformed. Romans, Chapter 12, encourages us to be transformed by the renewing of our minds, that we may prove what the will of God is — "that which is good and acceptable and perfect.'

Being transformed brings us back to the concerns of Martin Luther. For we are renewed and our whole salvation is by God's mercy, apart from anything we have done.

When we all stand before God, he will not ask us our denomination or church. He will not ask us how many reforms, legitimate or not, we have spearheaded. He will know how we have responded to the gift of his son, Jesus Christ (John 3:16-18).

Christians to celebrate All Saints Day

USAIC Chaplains' Office

A wise Christian once noted, "To live with saints, in clouds above, oh that will be the glory! To live with saints, on Earth below... well, that's a different story!" Monday, many Christians will remember the deceased through the observance of All Saints Day.

Roman Catholics have seen this as a time to remember the communion of saints and to pray for all the souls that have preceded us.

The Catholic Reformed Calendar and Rites have further enhanced this attention to the dawn of the day of the Lord, to all saints and all souls.

Many congregations will remember the deceased through the use of a "Book of the Dead" — a blank book in which members of the assembly may inscribe the names of the deceased. Prayers of thanksgiving for the examples they set and the service of our predecessors are often accompanied by incense,

Monday, many Christians will remember the deceased through the observance of All Saints Day.

REFLECTIONS

particularly on All Saints and All Souls Day.

The writer of Hebrews pays homage to those who preceded him when he writes:

Therefore we also, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and sin which so easily ensnares us, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us (Hebrews 12:1).

This All Saints Day, remember the wonderful Christian heritage you have from all the believers who preceded you.

Resolve to follow their example and follow the Lord with renewed vigor and commitment.

CHAPEL NOTES

Knights of Columbus — The Knights of Columbus is a Catholic family service fraternal organization open to all practicing Catholic males 18 years and older. Our Lady of Lourdes Council 11145 is seeking new members. Anyone interested can call Steve Seybert at 685-1594.

All Saints Eve — The Military Council of Catholic Women and the Catholic Youth Organization will sponsor an All Saints Eve celebration tonight. Children are encouraged to wear costumes. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be served. The party takes place at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex at 6 p.m.

Reopening of chapel — The 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, is sponsoring the opening and dedication of the Regimental Road Chapel 3 p.m. Tuesday. The chapel, previously named Lavoie Chapel, has been renovated and will be rededicated as Regimental Road Chapel.

The location is the fork intersection of Regimental and Indianhead roads. All soldiers and civilians are invited to the ceremony. Free food and drinks will be available. For more information, call 545-1962.

Protestant Women of the Chapel — Protestant Women of the Chapel will have its general meeting Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Betsy Brown and her guitar, Gertrude, will lead in the mini retreat that includes a chili or salad lunch.

PWOC will continue its series of Bible studies on Thursdays, which include "Lord, I Need Grace to Make It," "A Mother's Legacy — Colossians and Philemon," "Finding Fulfillment in Christ" and "Sharing Your Faith." The group invites and encourages new members at all meetings and meets 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. each Thursday in Building 2521.

Free child care is provided in Building 2517. These buildings are located off Indianhead Road and Thorson Street. For more information, contact Marti Maas at 682-0101 or Janie Hodges at 682-3465.

PARTY — The Religious Education Center is resuming its program for children in the first through sixth grades.

The theme for this year's program, called PARTY, will be Bible Boot Camp. The children will learn the skills and preparation needed to join in God's army. The program will include Bible study, music crafts, recreation and refreshments.

PARTY will meet 1 p.m. Nov. 6 and 20, and Dec. 11. For more information, contact Bill Putman at 545-4715

Premarriage seminar — A premarriage seminar will begin Sunday at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522. Attendance at this seminar is required for all couples who wish to be married in the Catholic church. To register, call 545-5508.

Loyola University master's program — The Fort Benning Religious Education Center is sponsoring a master's degree from Loyola University of New Orleans.

Degrees will be in religious education or pastoral studies. The program can be completed at any Army installation.

For more information, contact Bill Putman at 545-4715, 545-2366 or 545-2288.

Training Brigade finishes regular season

Queens Own laid their cards on the table and forced the Bandits to fold to win the Infantry Training Brigade championship 6-0 Oct. 21.

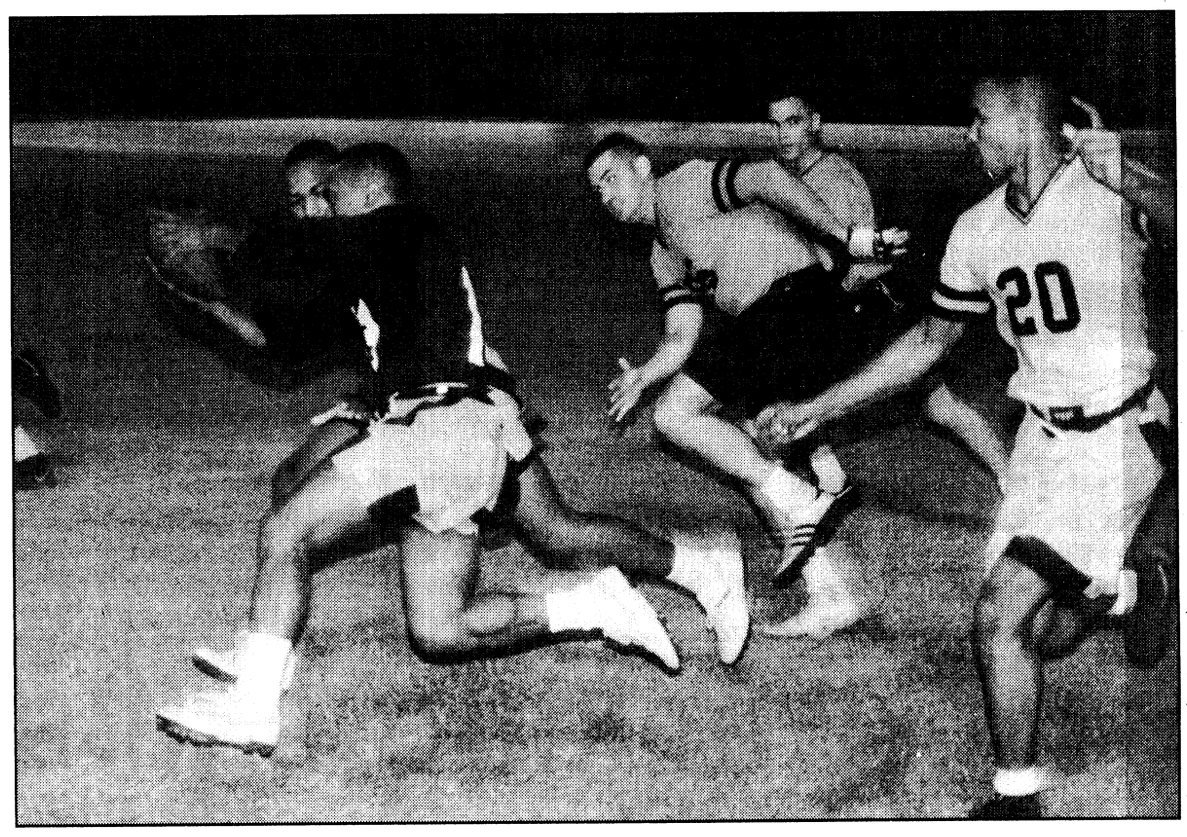
The Infantry Training Brigade finished off its flag football regular season Oct. 20 with the two teams tied with 11-1 records. The championship game was played Oct. 21 at Gowdy Field between the Bandits of 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment, and Queens Own of 3rd Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment.

Early in the second half, Queens Own running back Deon Brantley hit a wide-open wide receiver Robert Amaker in the back of the end zone for the only score of the night. Brantley hit Amaker after taking a pitch from quarterback Michael Artis.

"I was looking to make something happen on the play, but the defense shut down the run to the left," said Brantley. "I reversed my direction and started back to the right, he yelled and I was able to get the ball to him for the score."

In the first half, both teams featured their running backs. Duvowel Peaker of the Bandits was able to move the ball against the defense of Queens Own, but when the ball got close to the goal line, the defense would pull an ace from the deck and stop the drive.

Penalties also stopped possible scoring drives for both teams. On Queens Own's first possession, running back Jerome Gates scooted around left end and made it to the end zone, but a holding penalty nullified the score. Four plays later Brantley went up the middle for a score only to have the play brought back on another penalty.



With both teams able to move the ball up and down the field, it seemed as if the game would be a high scoring affair, but a penalty here and a penalty there combined with good defense caused the first half to end with neither team able to put any points on the board.

"We have had problems with penalties all season long," said Queens Own coach Reuben Adams. "In the first half, their players were turning their backs causing our guys to hit them in the back resulting in a penalty. At the half, I told our guys if they continued to do it just put their hands in the air and not hit them."

In the second half, both teams had the ball for long drives. After Queens Own put their touchdown on the board, the Bandits had two more shots to at least tie the game or win it.

On their last possession of the game, the Bandits were unable to generate a drive and had to give up the ball on downs. Queens Own ran one play to run out the clock and preserve the win.

"We played well enough to win, but we didn't, so now we get ready for the playoffs," said Bandit player Larry McMillian.

Championships: Football tourney to begin

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The 1993 U.S. Army Infantry Center flag football tournament is set to begin Monday at Gowdy Field and Doughboy Stadium.

Nineteen teams from around post will do battle for the honor to participate in the championship game Nov. 9, at Doughboy Stadium. Five games are on tap for Monday night with three at Gowdy Field and two at Doughboy Stadium; game time will be 6 p.m. for the first game at each field, with subsequent games to follow.

Tuesday night, four games will finish off the opening round at Doughboy Stadium and Gowdy Field. The loser's bracket will be played at Engineer Fields one and two until Nov. 6, when they will move to Gowdy Field. All winners' bracket games will be at Doughboy Stadium after Tuesday night.

The teams in this year's tournament from Kelley Hill representing the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, are; Headquarters Service Battery, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division; Company B, 324th Forward Support Battalion, 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div.; 317th Engineer Bn., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div.; Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div.; Co. D, 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div.; and Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div.

The combined league will send Co. A, 1st Bn., 11th Inf. Regt.; Co. E, 1st Bn. (Airborne) 507th Inf., 11th Inf. Regt.; 75th Ranger Regt.; and the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity.

The 29th Infantry Regiment will be represented by the teams of Co. B, 2nd Bn., 29th Inf. Regt.; Co. D, 29th Inf. Regt.; HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Regt.; and the Bradley Instructor Course.

Three teams from the Infantry Training Brigade will make the trip from Sand Hill to Main Post. Brigade champion 3rd Bn., 32nd Infantry Regiment, will lead the way while 1st Bn., 50th Inf. Regt., and 30th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception), will be in the thick of things.

Last, but not least, is the 36th Engineer Group with two teams. With most of the 36th Engr. Grp. in Somalia, the football teams have been decimated. The 586th Engr. Co. and the 608th Ordnance Co. will do their best to represent their league.

Faith Race set for December

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Students, parents, teachers and members of Fort Benning and surrounding communities are invited to participate in this year's Faith Holiday Race Dec. 4 at Fort Benning's Faith Middle School, 1375 Ingersoll St.

Proceeds from the 15th annual event will go to provide additional equipment and incentive awards to students in Faith's physical education program.

There are three different races that begin and end at Faith. A one-miler for boys and girls, ages 14 and under, is at 8:30 a.m.; a two- and five-miler for all ages is at 9:15 a.m. and 10 a.m., respectively.

Race preregistration for ages 14 and under is $4 and $6 for those 15 and older.

Race-day registration begins at 7:30 a.m. with a $5 fee for those 14 and under; $7 for runners 15 and older.

Award and T-shirt presentations to race finishers will be in the school's gym. The race is an outgrowth of Faith's physical education program and its jogging club, formed in 1978.

For information, contact physical education teacher Susan Emerson at 545-5524. Race entry forms and maps of the route will be available at Faith School after Nov. 8.

Deer tracking skills: Is it a lost art form?

By Kevin L. McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

COMMENTARY

Every deer hunter hopes to get a clean shot; however, there comes a time when a bad hit is made and you must rely on solid tracking skills to locate a wounded deer.

Most hunters hate to admit they lost a deer due to an inaccurate shot; unfortunately, if you do enough hunting, it's bound to happen. When it does happen, you have to go to the ground and search diligently for the wounded animal.

Every deer I have killed has either dropped in his tracks or only ran a short distance. Last year, I shot a four-point, 150-pound whitetail. It was a good shot and I hit him in the heart-lung area, but he still managed to run about 80 yards before he dropped.

We've all heard stories of a wounded whitetail running a mile or two before it dropped, but up to last weekend, I was hesitant to believe it. Unfortunately, I was proven wrong on opening day.

After coming out of my stand around 9 a.m., I decided to do some stillhunting (stalking). The conditions were just right — wet ground and a strong wind.

After moving about 200 yards, I started over a ridge line when I had a "chance" contact with a good-size doe. She was moving up the ridge and I was moving down, when we saw each other about 20 yards away. Of course, she bolted, but it looked like she was heading around me, back toward my stand.

I immediately turned around, ran uphill about 40 yards, and slowed down. After about 30 more yards, I spotted her on the logging trail I was moving down. When she stepped out onto the trail, I fired and she dropped like a semi-truck had hit her. After struggling to her feet, she took off at full speed back down the ridge.

I knew better than to start tracking her right away, so I located the hit site and searched the area for any sign. All I found were small traces of blood, and some bone fragments. Although, I hadn't experienced this before, I knew it wasn't good.

After moving in the direction she had traveled, I couldn't find any sign, so I back-tracked to the hit site, marked it, then headed to my hunting partner's stand, figuring it would take both of us to find her.

As we were walking back to the hit site, we both figured she hadn't run very far, wounded as she was. After examining the bone fragments, we decided I must have hit her in the front, right shoulder, and the bone fragments were probably from the upper portion of the leg.

About five yards away, my hunting partner picked up the blood trail and the chase was on. To make a long story short, we spent the next four hours following the trail and never found the deer.

In that four hours, we moved about 1,000 meters (or a little less), found several puddles of blood, and some smear marks on trees and scrubs. Mostly, what we located were pin-drops of blood, scattered here and there (sometimes 20 to 30 feet apart).

About halfway through the tracking, we heard two shots around 400 yards away. We continued following the blood trail, which headed on a bee-line with the shots just fired, when it abruptly ended within sight of a deer stand. After searching the area for another 45 minutes, we concluded someone else bagged her. At least we were very optimistic.

I know how all of this sounds, but I feel it's something that needs discussing, and it's bound to happen to even the most experienced hunters eventually. That evening, I went home and pulled some deer hunting guides off the bookshelf and did some reading on tracking wounded deer.

Here's some information from the 1994 Deer Hunter's Almanac that may be helpful if you ever have to track a wounded deer:

• After a shot, stay put and remember where the hit was made on the animal.

• Take a compass reading on the last sighting, or sound of the game. If no compass is available, carefully note the direction it traveled.

• Wait at least an hour before starting to trail. Wait at least six hours to trail a whitetail hit in the stomach.

• When the trailing begins, move to the hit site and check for blood, hair and bone fragments. Mark the location.

• Mark every location blood is found and ensure you check the leaves under small trees (they'll often straddle these as they walk).

• If the blood trail is lost, head back to the last location and start walking "concentric" circles or a box pattern.

• If no blood is found, and you feel the hit was a lethal one, sit down and listen. Often crows, ravens or jays will be attracted to a downed animal.

• Whitetails, after being hit, will often circle back to where it came from. Check along the trail on which the animal first appeared.

• Check streams or swamps if the trail leads in that direction. Gut-shot deer become thirsty and often head toward water.

• Rub reddish spots of leaves to ensure it isn't just autumn colors.

• Blood that is frothy with bubbles usually indicates a lung hit.

• Very dark blood may indicate a liver or kidney hit.

• Blood drops usually point direction of travel of a rapidly moving deer like the fingers of a hand.

• The height of blood sign is an indication of wound location.

As I stated earlier, I never would have believed a wounded whitetail could travel as far as we tracked her. But if you look at the following figures, it illustrates the speed, time and distance over which a whitetail can move.

A whitetail can run flat out at about 30 mph. That means in 15.6 seconds, it could travel about 229 yards. Let's cut that in half, as if it was wounded. At 18 mph, a whitetail could run 137 yards. So, as you can see, in less than one minute, that wounded deer you just shot could travel more than 500 yards!

After looking at numbers like these, it's easy to visualize how a wounded whitetail could make it a mile or more before it drops.

The moral to the story is, take the best shot you can, and if you have to track a deer, make the best effort you can to find it. I hope you never need the tracking tips I just told you about, but if you do they'll come in handy. Good luck and see you in the woods.

HALLOWEEN 1993

'Spirited' holiday has haunting heritage

By Rudi Williams
American Forces Information Service

Many, many years ago, a group of people called Celts, the first Aryan people who came from Asia to settle in Europe, celebrated their New Year on the first day of November.

In accordance with their beliefs, the last night of the old year, Oct. 31, was set aside especially for the souls of the dead to return to their homes. The spirits could warm themselves at the blazing hearth and at least enjoy the smell of food cooking on spits in the fireplace.

Not only were the dead souls permitted in town, but witches, sirens, demons, hobgoblins, trolls and every conceivable kind of evil spirit were allowed to roam the earth on this night.

The witches, people thought, did the boogaloo on the hilltops with goblins and imps to the music of the cool devil's bagpipes or castanets made from dead men's bones.

Certainly none of these visitors could be allowed to run around the countryside scaring little children Nov. 1, All Saints Day.

In some parts of England, immense bonfires were kept alive throughout the night to keep the scary evil things at bay. To add more deterrents for the bloodcurdling evil things, men armed with pitchforks and shouting loudly frolicked around the bonfires.

As the years passed, and people grew older and wiser, they started to cast aside their superstitions and turned the evening of Oct. 31 into a festival of parties for young people — and old young people—who decked out in weird costumes for the happenings.

Nowadays, children go from door to door in traditional costumes warning, "Trick or Treat" — and some of them mean just that!

'Look out' for safety

Georgia Optometric Association

Parents can make Halloween safer with a few simple costume decorating tricks to help children see and be seen.

According to Dr. James B. Craig Jr., president of the Georgia Optometric Association, Halloween accidents are most likely to happen when drivers can't see children in the street and when children can't see where they are walking.

The first can be solved by decorating costumes with reflective material. The second can be overcome by using makeup instead of masks to disguise young trick-or-treaters.

Craig cited Indiana University studies showing that reflective material on shoes and clothing makes pedestrians safely visible to drivers even at speeds of 70 and 80 mph Reflective material is available in iron-on, sew-on and stick-on varieties in most hardware and department stores.

"Let the kids make up their own designs with the material," Craig said. "Just be sure they will be visible from front, back and sides."

Craig advises against masks because they can slip out of place or have eye holes so small they block a child's view of approaching cars, objects on the ground, a hole, a step or the curb.

In using makeup, however, he cautioned that it should be of the nonallergic variety, and should be applied with care by adults to avoid accidents with applicators. Craig also suggested that children carry a flashlight or battery-operated lantern to help light their way.

O' Club to host events

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Fort Benning Officers' Club will host several Halloween activities Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The 11th Infantry Regiment will sponsor a family "bring your own blanket" activity from 7 to 8 p.m. in the Regimental Room. The event will feature hot dogs, french fries and drinks for $1.50 per person. A big-screen television and videocassette recorder will be available with Halloween movies for all to watch.

Ingredients for caramel apples will be available; children may make their own, with parental supervision.

While children enjoy hotdogs and movies, parents may dine in the club from the "Super Five" menu, which includes:

Filet mignon, red snapper, wiener schnitzel, New York strip steak and chicken cordon bleu. There is a special price for members.

The club will also host a costume party for adults Saturday at Bradley's from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. Admission price for nonmembers is $5 in advance or $6 at the door. Advance tickets are available at the Officers' Club cashier's cage.

For more information, call Capt. Don Brown at 545-5581.

Scouts get fired up

By Stephanie Krawczyk

Boy Scouts from 15 counties in Georgia and Alabama participated in a weekend camporee at Fort Benning Oct. 22 through Sunday.

The Scouts set up camp around Twilight Pond Friday afternoon in rain and chilly weather. There were no signs of dampened spirits Saturday morning, however, as troops marched to main camp carrying troop flags and singing camp songs.

More than 700 boys attended this year's event, which is conducted biennially in various locations.

They spent most of their day Saturday learning outdoor and leadership skills as part of this year's camporee theme, "Rendezvous with Brownsea."

Brownsea, an island which is part of the United Kingdom, was the site of the first Scouting event around the turn of the century. Robert Baden Powell, a British military officer, developed a Scouting manual for his soldiers and later applied the principles to a group of young boys from England. He invited the group to camp on Brownsea Island and taught them basic survival, outdoor and leadership skills, thus creating, "Scouting for Boys," a program that later evolved into what is now the modern day Boy Scouts.

The methods for teaching skills at this year's camporee were derived from the early days at Brownsea Island. Numerous stations were set up around Twilight Pond to teach skills like fire-building techniques, knife and ax skills and knot tying. There were also events like crossing a rope bridge and launching water balloons from a handmade catapult.

Daniel Hill, a Scout from Columbus, said he enjoyed learning ax skills the most.

"My favorite part was chopping wood," he said, "because it makes you real happy when you finally break the log."

Saturday night, the Scouts enjoyed an old-fashioned campfire program with numerous skits, a bonfire and a bag-piper.

The next Scouting event will be Scouting for Food Nov. 13 through 20. Local Scouts will collect food to donate to area charitable organizations for distribution to the needy, according to Brad Nesheim, Chattahoochee Council Scout executive.

For information about becoming a Boy Scout, call the Chattahoochee office at 327-2634.

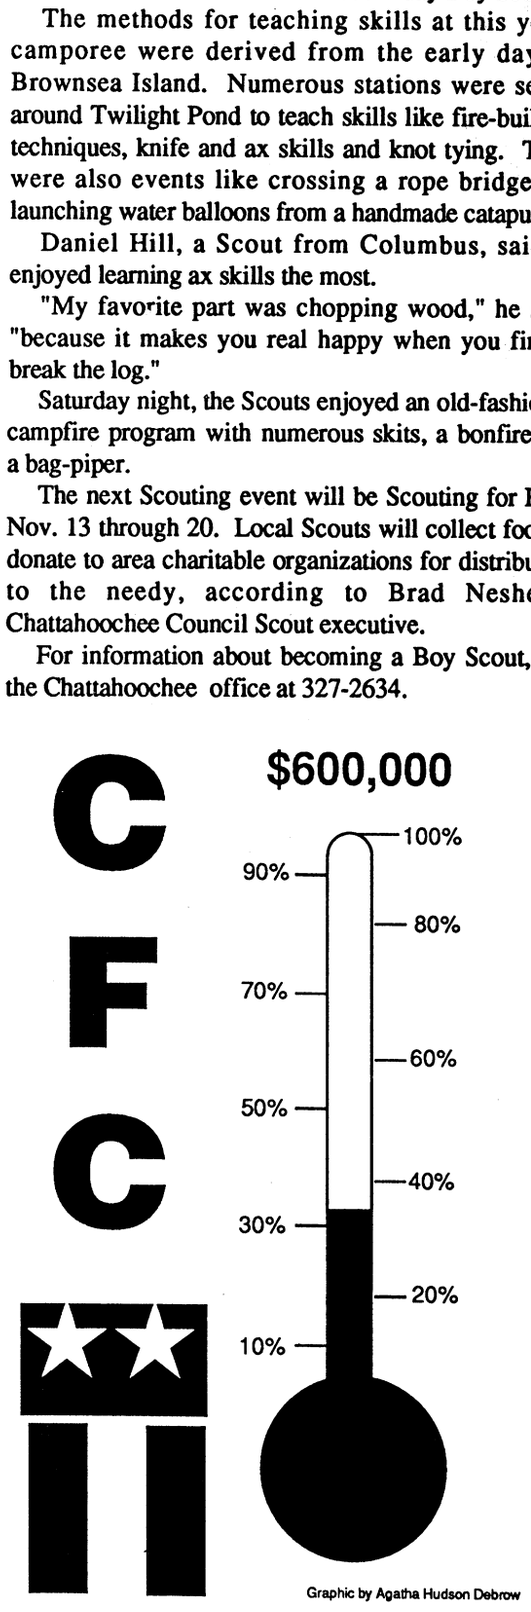
CFC drives on

Campaign contributions reach 33% of post goal

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©



Donations to the 1993 Combined Federal Campaign have reached $200,953, or 33 percent, of the $600,000 goal as of Tuesday.

With only two weeks remaining in this year's campaign, donations have not yet reached the half-way mark.

The CFC allows military and civilian personnel from Fort Benning to donate to charitable organizations through a monthly payroll deduction. The six-week campaign kicked off Oct. 1.

A listing of the more than 900 agencies that are eligible to receive funds and donation forms can be obtained from unit or organization project officers or the Fort Benning CFC office.

The CFC office is located on the second floor of the First Union Bank.

DoD changes child-care fee policies

By Jerrie MacIntire
Special to The Bayonet ©

About 31 percent of families using post child care are now paying different fees because of changes in the income scale and in the method of calculating total family income.

According to Jennifer Williams, coordinator of Child Development Services, Department of Defense child-care fees fall within five categories of family income ranges.

In the past, DoD did not use special allowances to compute total family income. Because of an Internal Revenue Service guideline, DoD must now take these military tax-free allowances into account.

"A change in the way total family income is computed may change the category families fall within," explained Williams.

Total family income for child-care fees now includes subsistence allowances and basic quarters allowances or the equivalent.

At the same time, Williams said, DoD has broadened the income categories. For instance, the cutoff point for category one, which has the lowest child-care fees, was raised from around $17,000 to $23,000.

The change in categories for about 150 families at Fort Benning "is already in effect," said Williams.

"Approximately 15 percent of families using Fort Benning child care have experienced a decrease in child-care fees this month," said Williams. About 16 percent of families have moved to a higher category and have an increased fee for child care, she added. Most, 69 percent, are unaffected by the new guidelines.

The current cost of weekly care at DoD child care facilities averages $106 per child, according to the American Forces Information Service. The average weekly fee paid by military families in 1992 was $52.50.

The services use nonappropriated funds to subsidize every child, some more than others depending upon family income.

Phone home

Calling plans let DoD travelers stay in touch

By Evelyn Harris
American Forces Information Service

Making calls away from home can be expensive, but two recent developments can help you keep in touch without breaking your budget.

The first is a change in hotel billing practices. The second is calling cards aimed at travelers. These are important to employees because Department of Defense reimburses employees only for official calls.

Cost-conscious government travelers often use lobby pay phones rather than room phones. Most hotels charge anywhere from 50 cents to $1 for each local call or call to a calling card access number.

Some hotel chains are dropping these charges, but government travelers are not totally out of the wood. Most hotels still charge a premium for long-distance calls billed to rooms. A calling card can help travelers avoid this added expense.

Calling cards allow you to bill calls to your home phone. Most people get cards free from their long distance company or a local phone company. Most companies add an access fee of 25 cents to $1 each time you use their card, with larger carriers tending toward the higher fee. Some companies have no access fees.

A new trend can save travelers money. Companies are selling cards designed for travelers and students. These are not tied to your home phone service. Travelers dial a toll-free access code printed on the card, the number they want to reach and then a personal identification number.

Some of these cards work on a prepaid system, for example, giving you 20 minutes of calls to anywhere in the United States for $10. Others save money by foregoing an access fee and having shorter billing increments, such as every six seconds instead of every minute. Call their toll-free numbers for more information: The Orange Card: (800) 296-7828; MVP Phone Card: (800) 569-3400; Paid Call, Inc.: (800) 466-9809; Time Machine: (800) 700-7766. New card companies are opening up all the time. You may see one advertised locally that fits your needs.

All major carriers have discount plans that can save money. Call their consumer counselors to see which best suits your needs. Here are the numbers of the more widely known carriers: Allnet: (800) 783-2020; AT&T: (800) 222-0300; LCI: (800) 860-1217; Metromedia: (800) 275-0100; MCI: (800) 444-3333; and Sprint (800) 877-4000.

Two independent consumer organizations compared calling plans. For a reprint, send $2 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to:

TRAC, P.O. Box 12038, Washington, D.C. 20005.

San Francisco- and Washington-based Consumer's Checkbook also compared phone services. For a reprint, call (800) 475-7283.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general, buys a ticket for the Benning Bazaar from Kathy Obermeyer (left) and Chris Rupert of the Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club. The painting and quilt shown are "opportunity items" to be given away at the bazaar, which will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 13 at Infantry Hall. Anyone wanting to participate as a vendor should send descriptions and photographs of merchandise to the OWC. For more information, see Community Briefs, page C-3.

'Troops to Teachers' offers career opportunities

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

If you're leaving the military and considering a career in teaching, look at Troops to Teachers, a new Department of Defense program.

The program is aimed at service members and DoD and Energy Department civilians. It offers jobs teaching in hard-to-fill positions in low-income areas or certain geographical areas. Qualified individuals may receive up to $5,000 from DoD to offset the costs of training leading to a teacher's certificate.

In addition, DoD will reimburse eligible school districts up to $25,000 a year for two years when they hire program participants for at least two consecutive years, said John Stremple, DoD's director of education.

"The purpose of the program is to relieve teacher shortages and to provide top quality teachers to schools with a concentration of low-income families," said Stremple. However, DoD's main objective is to help military members leaving the service, as well as civilian employees leaving DoD or the Department of Energy, to obtain a teaching certificate and to find a job, he added.

The program is aimed at service members and DoD and Energy Department civilians. It offers jobs teaching in hard-to-fill positions in low-income areas or certain geographical areas.

Military members must apply for the program prior to separation, must have served at least six years and must receive an honorable discharge, he said. Civilian employees may apply after receipt of a termination notice, but no later than 30 days after termination. Applicants must have a bachelor's degree.

"In selecting participants, priority will be given to those applicants who have educational or military experience in science or mathematics and who agree to seek employment as teachers in elementary or secondary schools," said Stremple.

However, areas such as special education, history, foreign languages, English and geography will also receive emphasis.

Selectees for the program, scheduled to run through Sept. 30, 1997, must meet the specific certification standards of the state where the school district is located.

"Each school district will decide whether a participant may be employed while obtaining the certification or whether a certificate must be obtained first before employment," said the education director.

Stremple believes former military members offer much more to the American educational system than being able to teach a class. For example, he said, they are excellent role models, they add a real-life aspect to learning, and they have positive achievement attitudes.

Check with your local transition office and education center for more information.

Want to start your own business? Help is available

Small Business Administration provides training

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

Many people who leave the Defense Department need a job to make financial ends meet. This career change offers some a chance to pursue a dream — to start their own business.

One hard part of starting a business is translating the dream into a reality, said Small Business Administration officials. A lot of careful planning goes into starting a business and a lot of time, patience and planning go into making it a success.

And the odds are somewhat against small businesses succeeding from the beginning, said administration officials. They estimate 60 percent of all small businesses fail within the first six years.

What type of business to start and where, and what market analysis has been done are just a few concerns that must be addressed, said officials. Others include whether to start a franchise-owned business or a partnership, or to buy an already established company or store.

Congress established the Small Business Administration in 1953 to help the millions of American small businesses. As part of this effort, the agency operates numerous business development and training courses.

Direct loans and training-grant programs are only two of many agency efforts aimed at assisting veterans, officials said. The agency also works with the departments of Defense and Labor to provide transition assistance to those leaving the military.

The Small Business Administration publishes many pamphlets on small business operation. They range from deciding on the right kind of business and its location to understanding cash flow to pricing and budgeting.

Just a few of the almost 100 titles available include Checklist for Going Into Business, Effective Business Communications, Evaluating Franchise Opportunities and Managing Employee Benefits. There is a small processing fee for each pamphlet. Information on these and other pamphlets is available through local Small Business Administration offices.

Local Better Business Bureaus, chambers of commerce, state economic development agencies, libraries and professional organizations are just a few places where an individual can turn to for answers and help, said administration officials.

In addition, many local colleges offer courses on how to start a small business and how to succeed at it. Taxes, contracts and legal aspects are just a few of the many courses that you can take. Check with your local education center, local college or community education program for specific details.

The following are the regional Small Business Administration offices. There are also district offices located within each region. For the nearest office, check the local telephone directory for the telephone number and address or contact the regional office. Or call the administration's answer desk at (800) 827-5722.

IRS: Tax help wanted

Internal Revenue Service

ATLANTA —If you enjoy helping people and working with them to make a difficult task easier, VITA may be for you.

"VITA, the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance programs sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service, is looking for volunteers to help taxpayers with their tax returns," said Paul Williams, IRS district director for Georgia. "In addition, to preparing tax returns, groups or individuals may volunteer to set up and organize or plan the publicity for local sites."

Volunteers learn how to prepare a simple tax return by successfully completing a special training course in basic income tax preparation. VITA instructors and training materials are provided free by the IRS, and training is generally conducted in December through the following January at a location convenient for volunteers."

December seems like a long way off, but now is the time think about signing up as a volunteer or to arrange for your organization to sponsor a VITA program.

According to Williams, if you have a talent and would like to help, VITA can find a way to involve you in the program. VITA assists low-income, elderly, handicapped and non-English speaking individuals prepare their individual income tax returns—Forms 1040A, 1040EZ or a basic Form 1040 with Schedule A, which is used for itemizing deductions. They also explain how to take advantage of the child-care credit, credit for the elderly and earned-income credit.

Assistance is provided at community locations such as libraries, churches and malls. During the 1993 filing season, more than 1,500 volunteers in Georgia assisted nearly 48,000 taxpayers at more than 200 sites in various communities across the state.

To volunteer, or if your organization would like to sponsor a VITA program, call the VITA Coordinator toll-free at (800) 829-1040. In Atlanta, call 522-0050.

Courts-martial: right to consult with attorney begin early

U. S. Army Trial Defense Service

The last few articles in this series discussed some of the preliminaries of the courts-martial process, including the types of court-martial, how someone is charged, and the Article 32 pretrial investigation.

This article looks at your rights as a soldier to the advice and representation of an attorney and what that attorney can do for you.

Your right to consult with an attorney begins very early in the courts-martial process. When you are "under investigation," you are considered a "suspect" and have a right to see an attorney to discuss your potential criminal liability. You may call the local Trial Defense Service office to schedule an appointment to see an attorney.

Once charges are formally preferred, a Trial Defense c
"detailed" to represent you. All soldiers are entitled to a detailed military defense counsel. Your defense counsel is often the same one who advised you as a suspect. If they have not already, they will begin to conduct an investigation and prepare for the possibility of trial.

Your detailed military counsel is a fully licensed, trained and qualified attorney who specializes in the representation of soldiers in courts-martial. All Trial Defense Service counselors have successfully completed a three year course of study at a civilian law school. In addition, all TDS counselors are licensed to practice law in at least one state or the District of Columbia, and have received specialized training in military law.

The Trial Defense Service is a separate military organization, completely independent from the local command or Staff Judge Advocate. These trained, independent defense counselors have only one mission — providing the best possible representation for soldiers facing trial or certain types of administrative action.

In addition to your right to a detailed military defense counselor, you have the right to request representation by a military attorney of your own choosing. This individual military counselor, is a military attorney, not necessarily a defense counselor or even an Army attorney, whom you wish to represent you. If this attorney is reasonably available, he or she may be made available to represent you. Since you are only entitled to one military attorney, you might lose the services of your detailed counselor if you submit an military counselor request. The services of detailed or individual military counselors are free.

Finally, you have the right to hire a civilian attorney. This, however, is at your own expense. Generally, if you choose to hire a civilian attorney, your detailed military counselor will remain on the case unless you release him or her. The local Yellow Pages lists attorneys currently practicing in your area. In addition, your local Trial Defense Service office may be able to provide you a list of local civilian attorneys.

Once you choose your attorney, you establish what is called an attorney-client relationship. This means that everything you say to your attorney, both good and bad, is privileged (protected), and cannot be revealed to anyone without your permission. This protection enables you to discuss matters openly and honestly with your attorney. Your attorney is there to advise you, to guide you, and to protect and defend your legal interests. Your attorney can properly defend you only if he or he has all the information you have.

During the course of representing you, your attorney does many things for you, much of which you never see. Your attorney will examine the charge sheet and explain the allegations and evidence against you and will describe the courts-martial process and the maximum punishments for the offenses. Your attorney will discuss the facts with you, determine exactly what happened, explore possible defenses and begin an independent investigation, interviewing witnesses and examining reports and physical evidence.

After determining the strength of the case against you, and after fully discussing your options with you, your attorney follows your wishes and either prepares to contest the case completely or negotiate a pretrial agreement with the government.

While your attorney prepares the case, witnesses, and most importantly, you, for trial, it is crucial that you avoid trouble and that you talk about your case only with your attorney and those who work for your attorney.

During the court-martial process, you and your attorney will be called upon to make many important decisions. Some decisions, such as whether to plead guilty or not guilty, whether you should testify in your own behalf, and whether to have the case tried before a panel or judge, are decisions only you can make. Your attorney only advises you on these questions. Other decisions, such as those regarding how to investigate the case, how to present evidence, what witnesses to call, and what questions to ask are decisions your attorney will make.

While your attorney will discuss these issues with you and keep you informed, he must make these decisions based on his legal training and experience.

Once you are formally charged, your attorney becomes one of the most important people in your life. Often your attorney is the only thing that stands between you and a federal conviction and jail. Exercise your right to an attorney carefully and intelligently and work with your attorney to ensure the best defense possible.

This article has been very general and may not answer all your questions. If you have a legal question, get advice only from an attorney. If your question is about military justice or an administrative elimination, call your local Trial Defense Service office at 545-1520.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries are from the Fort Benning Military Police blotter from Oct. 6 to 12. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the determination of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns privately owned firearms. USAIC Regulation 210-50 allows those soldiers and family members residing on Fort Benning to secure their privately owned firearms in their family quarters; however, adequate security measures must be taken to prevent theft or unauthorized use of these weapons. Soldiers living in the barracks are required to secure their privately owned firearms and ammunition in unit arms rooms. Approval must be obtained from the unit commander to withdraw privately owned firearms from a unit arms room.

All military personnel and family members who own or possess a privately owned firearm, and reside on Fort Benning, must register it with the Military Police Activity, Vehicle and Firearms Registration Section, Building 2637, within 72 hours of arrival on post or within 72 hours of obtaining a firearm, and also sign a statement concerning security of privately owned firearms. Contact the Military Police Activity, Vehicle and Firearms Registration Section at 545-3646 for information concerning the registration of privately owned firearms.

- A private was charged with burglary, larceny of private property and wrongful possession and use of cocaine after he entered a barracks room, stole a gold watch, $28 in currency and a set of vehicle keys. The private then used the vehicle keys to steal a vehicle and later purchased crack cocaine with the stolen currency.
- A staff sergeant was shot with a .22-caliber pistol, by his spouse from whom he was legally separated.
- A civilian was charged with drunk and disorderly conduct and damage to private property after punching and shattering a vehicle window.
- A sergeant was charged with assault after he hit his spouse on the head, arms and in the mouth.
- A private was charged with wrongful use and possession of a controlled substance after testing positive on an urinalysis.
- A specialist and his spouse were both charged with assault after striking each other several times during an argument.
- A family member was charged with aggravated assault after she attempted to stab her husband with a fork and then attempted to hit him with a large rock.

This week's booby prize is awarded to a specialist who, while at the scene of a traffic accident, became argumentative with a civilian police officer. The specialist was told several times to leave the area of the police vehicle, but the specialist began cursing at the police officer. The specialist appeared to be intoxicated and was arrested for disorderly conduct.

Other activities included 16 traffic accidents and three reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were two cases of driving under the influence of alcohol and nine cases of larceny of private property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-2222 or 545-2223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

STOP THE CAR! There's help for carsick children

Egleston Hospital

Long-distance trips by car can be trying enough when children are along for the ride.

Car sickness, seasickness and airsickness are all different forms of motion sickness — children are most likely to suffer with car sickness.

There is no certain way to prevent car sickness, but these strategies may help:

- Do not allow anyone to smoke in the car.
- Make sure the car windows are open or the air conditioner is providing good air flow.
- Stop often — at least every two hours or so — to let everyone stretch and walk around.
- Do not let your child read while the car is moving.
- Encourage your child to look straight ahead rather than out the side windows of the car.
- If your child is over the age of 2, give him or her dimenhydrinate (Dramamine or similar brand) a half-hour to an hour before leaving on your trip. Follow the dosage recommended on the package.

ASK THE JUDGE

Q: I saw an advertisement in the paper that stated, "You can lease your dream car cheaper than you can buy it!" Ads like this always make me suspicious. Can you advise me on the risks of leasing an automobile?

A: When you lease a vehicle, you receive possession of the vehicle but not the title or legal ownership. The leasing company, also referred to as the lessor, retains title during the term of the lease with the expectation of regaining possession at the end. Because the lessor knows that three to four years down the road the car will be returned in a far less valuable condition, he depreciates the vehicle to determine the size of monthly lease payments you will pay.

Since the vehicle depreciates more during the first few months of operation, the lessor usually provides for a hefty penalty in the event you terminate the lease early. For example: the lessor purchases a car for $10,000 and agrees to lease it to "Pvt. Bailey" for $250 a month. If Bailey drives the vehicle for two months, $500 in lease payments, and then attempts to terminate the lease by returning the car, the lessor is faced with having received only $500 and regaining a vehicle that easily could have depreciated 20 percent or $2,000. Therefore, most leases provide that the lessee, Bailey in this example, has to pay the difference.

As you can see, this penalty can be sizable and can be triggered by unexpected changes in the lessee's need for the vehicle. Common examples are permanent change of station or temporary duty assignments, inability to make monthly lease payments, marriage and divorce.

Most leases require no down payment and do provide for the ability of the lessee to purchase the vehicle at the end of the lease for its market value, sometime referred to as the residual amount. Since there has been no down payment and only a portion of the monthly lease payment has gone toward the eventual purchase of the vehicle, the residual payment can be fairly large.

If the lessee wants to own the vehicle for either continued operation or for trade-in purposes, he is faced with having to produce a fairly large lump sum amount. Even if the lessee desires to return the vehicle at the end of the lease, if the fair market value of the vehicle is less than the preagreed residual amount, the lessee will have to pay the difference in order to terminate the lease. This issue will also arise in situations where the vehicle is wrecked during the term of the lease. The lessee's insurance company will pay the fair market value of the vehicle, which will very likely be far less than the residual pay-off on the lease. Again the lessee is faced with having to buy his way out of the lease agreement.

The idea of obtaining the use of a new vehicle and only monthly payments during the period of use is a very attractive concept. However, the automobile lease is a far cry from being a user friendly document. A thorough reading of the lease should reveal a number of restrictions upon use, transfer and movement of the vehicle out of the area, as well as the penalty "buy out provisions." If the lessor will not allow the potential lessee to have the paperwork reviewed by a competent advisor prior to signing, a prudent lessee will walk away from the proposed transaction.

If you would like your car lease reviewed, call the Legal Assistance Office at 545-3281 or 545-3282 to make an appointment.

Health:

International dining provides dietary ideas

General Mills Inc.

A peek into kitchens around the world can provide many intriguing new ideas for healthful eating, says Karen Wilder, registered dietitian and staff nutritionist.

Statistically, the populations of many countries can claim lower incidence of heart disease, high blood cholesterol and some cancers. Americans may help reduce the risk of these health problems by bringing the best of international dining into their own homes. Here's how:

• The Japanese eat lots of vegetables, fish and tofu, a dense soybean custard. To eat Japanese-style, serve plenty of steamed vegetables, fish, rice and noodles. Consider adding tofu to soups, salads and stir-fried entrees.

• The French consume less whole milk, cream, beef, shortening, oil, eggs and sugar than Americans do. So, if you'd like to eat a la Francaise, keep meat portions small and fill in with plenty of vegetables. Eat bread unbuttered and try fresh fruit for dessert.

• The Chinese diet includes about seven times the amount of fiber as the average American diet, and on average, only 15 percent of calories come from fat. To borrow from Chinese cuisine, serve lots of vegetables and rice. Also, cut back on traditional protein foods; the Chinese eat about an ounce per serving.

•The diet in Mediterranean countries is high in complex carbohydrates, including rice, pasta and bread. In addition, the Mediterranean diet reflects American health experts' recommendations for reducing saturated fats and using moderate amounts of oils high in monounsaturated and poly-unsaturated fats.

Our lessons from the diets of all these countries can make meals more healthful and add interesting variety, concludes Wilder.

DR. FIT

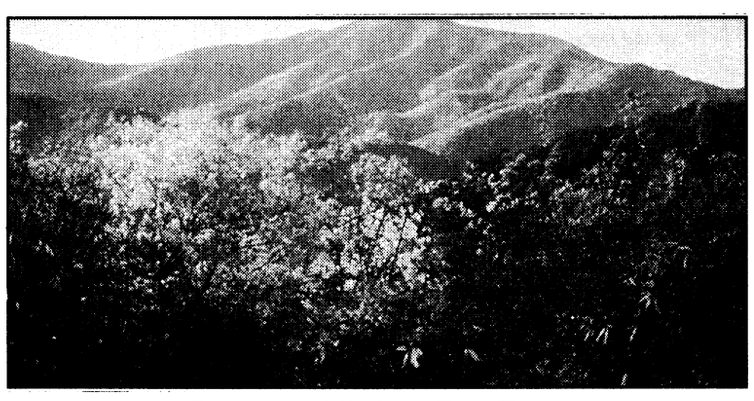
Q: My soldier recently failed the Army Physical Fitness Test and he wants four months to prepare for the makeup. How much time must I give him to train to retake the test?

A: Soldiers who fail a record APFT for the first time or fail to take the APFT within the required period will be flagged. In the event of a record APFT failure, commanders may allow the soldier to retake the APFT as soon as the soldier and the commander feel the soldier is ready. Soldiers without a medical profile will be retested no later that three months following the initial APFT failure.

Q: I recently read that cholesterol levels are decreasing in America. Is this true and why is it happening?

A: The average cholesterol level among America adults decreased 15 points since 1950. Of particular concern is the eight-point drop in the bad cholesterol and a one-point improvement in the good cholesterol. One factor may be the awareness of and the drop in saturated fats and cholesterol in the American diet. So keep eating those carbohydrates and decrease the consumption of fat.

Q: I read that 30 minutes of continuous exercise three to five times per week is the minimum needed for health concerns. Is this fact true?



A: This summer a study completed at Stanford University concluded that a person who leads a sedentary lifestyle, may reduce the risk of heart disease, high blood pressure, osteoporosis and breast and colon cancer by adding exercise 10 minutes here and 5 minutes there during the day. Little bits of activity spread throughout the day also help alleviate depression, anxiety and stress. The total for the day should approach 30 to 40 minutes. This approach to exercise is specific to health and not performance.

Fran Drescher is 'The Nanny' in CBS comedy

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

With her alluring appearance and very nasal voice, Fran Drescher hardly would be the standard-issue housekeeper or baby-sitter.

SPOTLIGHT

Nevertheless, the comedy-oriented actress -- who had a brief run as one of TV's "Princesses" two seasons ago — is the co-creator, co-producer and star of "The Nanny," a new series premiering Wednesday on CBS.

Drescher plays Fran Fine, a Queens, N.Y.-bred lady who lucks into a new line of work when her door-to-door cosmetics selling brings her to the upscale home of Broadway producer Maxwell Sheffield. He's also a widower in need of someone to keep his three children in line, and the down-to-earth Fran strikes him as just the person who can fill that job. Upon being hired, though, she has a couple of other hurdles to face ... an amorous and possessive divorcee who likes to keep an eye on Fran's new boss.

Among the show's other producers are spouses Robert Sternin and Prudence Fraser and Drescher's own high-school sweetheart and eventual husband, Peter Marc Jacobson.

"From the minute 'Princesses' got canned," Drescher reflects, "Peter and I started brainstorming on another concept for me. We thought that something needed to be created (specifically) for me, to be the right vehicle and to really fit hand in glove." However, fate also played a definite hand, since Drescher proposed "The Nanny" to CBS programming chief Jeff Sagansky when she found herself traveling to France on the same airplane he was aboard. She recalls that after they first spotted each other, "A few hours passed, and 'The Prince of Tides' was on (as the in-flight movie). I thought, 'OK. Streisand. This'll get him in the mood for me.' I went to the bathroom and when I came out, there he was, standing at the stewardesses' station getting something to drink. I could have stayed home and never had a power lunch like I had at that stewardess station. We just started talking, and by the end of that 9 1/2-hour flight, we essentially had a meeting set up. We met the people it was necessary to meet, pitched the show, and the rest is history."

What: 'The Nanny'
When: Wednesday, 8:30 p.m. on CBS

In a very real way, "The Nanny" owes its existence to the ill-fated "Princesses" ... not only because the latter series familiarized CBS with Drescher, but also because it established her continuing friendship with one of her co-stars, former super-model Twiggy Lawson.

"I decided to visit her and her husband Leigh in England," Drescher reports. "They have two teen-age children, and I found myself to be so funny in their house. I would ask the children things, and they were so polite and formal — in their own house — that I called Peter one morning and said, 'This just occurred to me. What if we did a spin on 'The Sound of Music,' where I play a nanny and come into this English guy's house with his kids, and I change their lives forever?' He said, 'That could work,' so that was how it happened."

3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment comes home

By Cathy Alston
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Soldiers from Fort Benning's 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, returned home from Mogadishu, Somalia Oct. 22. A ceremony for the returning rangers was hosted by the 75th Ranger Regiment and their families. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" Monday for highlights.

One soldier from each major unit on post is chosen monthly as Trainer/Maintainer of the month. The program was designed to recognize those soldiers in the rank of staff sergeant and below whose exceptional contributions set the standards for others to emulate. Watch "Fort Benning Today" for the latest awardees.

Oct. 1 marked the start of the Army's 1994 drawdown. This year's plan brings with it some distinct differences. Watch "Fort Benning Today" for more details.

For Benning's Equal Opportunity Office sponsored Hispanic Heritage Month Sept. 15 through Oct. 15. Watch USAIC TV for the feature-length special of "The Evening Fiesta" at the Fort Benning Officers' Club.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

For information, call 545-5921.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Do-it-yourself projects are favored now. There is information this week regarding a career concern. Guard against domestic friction in the latter part of the week. Meet partners halfway.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Others may keep you waiting now. You could become upset about a business concern early in the week. Couples are in sync. You are more communicative and self-expressive than usual.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You will need some care in financial dealings this week. Scrutinize business propositions carefully, and avoid wasteful spending. Talks with family members are productive.

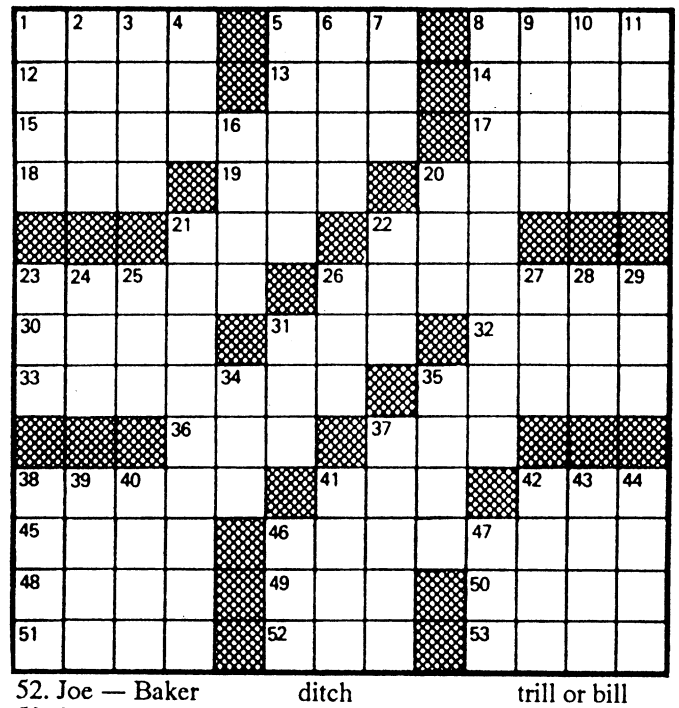
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Give close ties enough freedom this week to do their own thing. You express yourself well now. A family matter could upset you in the latter part of the week.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Interruptions are likely to limit your progress at work. A romantic flirtation may be no more than that. You will get many things done if left alone. Money talks are private and productive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) You could easily misinterpret another's intentions where romance is concerned. Keep your feet on the ground. You will have a stimulating exchange of ideas with a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Although you are enthusiastic, it is still best not to bring things to a head where business interests are concerned. Work quietly from behind the scenes. You will have private talks related to that business matter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The signals others give out this week are likely to be confusing. You will have to read between the lines. Travelers may require extra time to reach their destinations.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You will make progress now with a career concern. Be wary of those who would take advantage in financial dealings. Happy news comes from a distance. A friend seems a bit depressed now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You may be intent now on doing your own thing, but success will come this week through cooperative efforts. Don't force issues in business. Rapport between partners is greatly enhanced now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Despite interruptions you will bring a project to a successful conclusion this week. There will be moments that will try your patience.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Financial risk taking is not favored this week. A friend may do something to disappoint you. Couples make important decisions together about a child's best interests. Social life has business ramifications this week.

All-soldier showband to play at Fort Benning

Directorate of Community Activities

The USA Express All-Army Soldier Showband is touring Army installations all across the country through November and will perform at the Main NCO Club at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Admission is $3.

USA Express is made up of instrumentalists and vocalists who competed in the Army Battle of Bands in August at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

The musical battle was sponsored by the U.S. Army Community and Family Support Center Entertainment Division, the same Alexandria, Va., based agency that produces the U. S. Army Soldier Show.

"The idea is to build esprit de corps and pride by sending talented soldiers on tour to entertain their fellow soldiers," said Michael C. Wellert, chief of the CFSC Entertainment Division.

"We've seen tremendous success with the Soldier Show and there are so many talented soldiers and so much interest in music that we wanted to come up with another, smaller vehicle to showcase more talent," he said.

USA Express will perform the latest top 40 chart hits as well as some oldies-but-goodies at Army installations throughout the United States. This year's show is sponsored in part by Miller Brewing Company.

Lumpkin's Heritage Days celebrate history

Westville Historic Handicrafts Inc.

Visitors to Lumpkin Nov. 6 can experience three big events rolled into one. This fall, Westville's Fair of 1850, the Stewart County Historical Commissions Heritage Arts and Crafts Show, and the Stewart County Wildgame and Fish Cookoff will be combined into one event called Heritage Days.

Westville's Fair of 1850, a perennial favorite of history buffs, will take place Nov. 14. Special activities include the operation of the only existing animal-powered cotton gin still in operation, cane grinding and syrup making.

The Stewart County Historical Commission's 26th Arts and Crafts show will be just inside the Westville gates. Proceeds will be used for preservation and civic projects. The date is Nov. 6.

Also, Nov. 6, the Stewart County Wild Game and Fish Cookoff, the official state cookoff, will take place at the Stewart County Campground adjacent to Westville. Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, cooking teams from far and near compete in three categories: big game, small game and fish. More than $2,500 in cash and prizes will be awarded. Special discount tickets that include all three events will be available at the gate.

For more information, write to: Westville, P.O. Box 1850, Lumpkin, Ga. 31815, or call (912) 838-6310.

Boats make waves

Cypress Gardens

CYPRESS GARDENS, Fla. — The 10th Annual Cypress Gardens Antique and Classic Boat Rendezvous makes waves on Lake Eloise Saturday with an afternoon boat parade at 2:30 p.m. following the ski show.

Sponsored by the Sunnyland Chapter Antique and Classic Boat Society, the event is one of the largest vintage boat exhibitions in Florida.

Cypress Gardens, one of the 10 Anheuser-Busch Theme Parks located in Winter Haven, 40 minutes southwest of Sea World in Orlando off U.S. 27, is open daily 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., 365 days a year. Single adult admission is $24.95 (plus tax); children (ages 3 to 9) $16.45 (plus tax); under 3 free. Parking is also free. (Prices subject to change without notice.)

Some other Anheuser-Busch Theme Parks include Busch Gardens in Tampa, Fla., and Williamsburg, Va.; and Sea World marine life parks in Orlando, Fla., San Diego, Calif., San Antonio, Texas, and Aurora, Ohio.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Despite the bleak odds, Trevor vowed to help Jack and Laurel and ordered a toxicology report on Denny. Although Hayley told Kendall that Richard Fields tried to molest her, Kendall insisted on going to California with Hayley and Dimitri to meet her father. Wait to see: Alec doesn't let sentiment get in his way.

ANOTHER WORLD: Lorna told Felicia something had happened to her that should never happen to anyone. Returning to her apartment, Lorna was furious when she realized her claim was in doubt. Unaware that Morgan fit Lorna's description, Felicia asked him to help with the party for Cass' birthday. Wait to see: Carl may prove to be too much of a "friend" for Rachel.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Larry was delighted to learn Susan was pregnant. Damian became concerned when he couldn't reach Eduardo in Rome. Cal advised Mary to tell Hutch, she's his mother. Kirk asked Craig why Sierra wasn't with him. Caleb realized Iva was in love with Jason, although she insisted she would work things out with John. Wait to see: Iva and John face a crucial point of decision.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: James talked to Taylor about his father's strictness and how his mother provided a comforting haven hospitalized, Sheila secretly flew to Genoa City to be with him. Anthony brought a passed-out Macy into her bedroom where Thorne found him kissing her. Later, Thorne suspected — although Macy denied it—that Sheila somehow was responsible for Macy's lapse. Wait to see: While Sally tries to get Jack to impregnate her, Stephanie has other ideas for Sally's future.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Tony's "romantic" sail with Kristen made her remember her romantic times with John, and she decided she couldn't marry Tony. But Stefano's (drug-induced) seizure changed her mind and she agreed to accept Tony's engagement ring. At the hospital, Vivian looked for a connection between Kate Roberts Kiriakis and Laura Horton. Wait to see: The past is about to crash down on Kate.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Jagger made the crucial decision to leave town with Karen. At the mountain cabin, Karen told him of the sexual abuse she had experienced. Stone learned that Sonny had tried to use Karen to threaten Jagger. Wait to see: Jagger's future is in doubt.

GUIDING LIGHT: Bess told Eleni, she didn't know Alexandra, Ross, Henry, Alan-Michael or Roger, and asked for Eleni's help. However, Alexandra, Alan-Michael, Gilly and Roger had their own plans for Bess. Bridget was about to tell Billy and Vanessa the truth about Peter's paternity, but was put off by Billy's actions and Vanessa's startling statement. Wait to see: George has her work cut out for her.

LOVING: Leo was impressed with Casey's pitch for an advertising campaign for Burrell's using Steffi as the model. Realizing Casey was getting on with his life, Ally vowed to do the same for herself. The Rescotts shared an awkward family dinner with both Alex and Jeremy at the same table. Wait to see: Alex makes another disturbing discovery.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Angela and Cord rescued Tina and Cain. After saying he wanted to reform, Todd asked an unsuspecting Rebecca to deliver a threatening letter to Nora. Bo was shocked to learn Asa was Alex's business partner. Later, Bo found Nora unconscious and rushed her to a hospital. Wait to see: Emily feels trapped in her own lies.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: While Lauren told Paul she hoped Scott would fall in love again, Scott woke to find Sheila alive and eager to be with him and nurse him back to health. Olivia reassured Nathan she wouldn't allow Lillie to interfere in her marriage. Miles and Margaret asked Paul and Chris to be best man and matron of honor at their wedding. Wait to see: Victoria and Cole make another crucial decision.

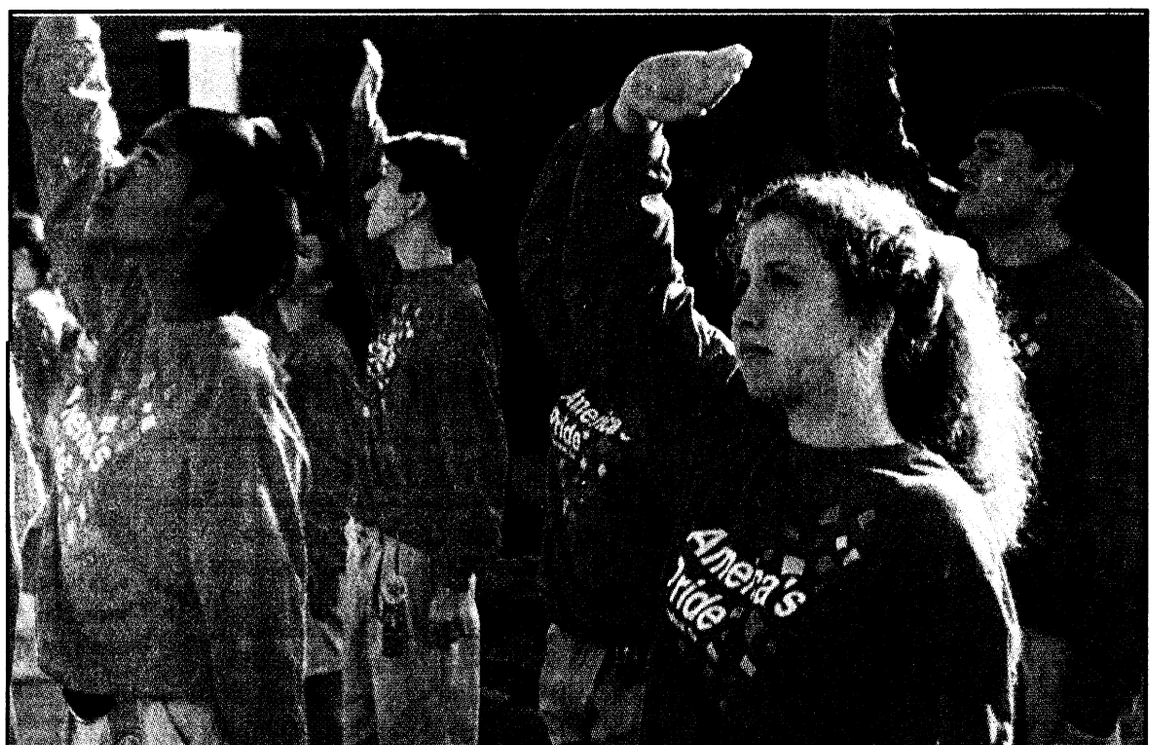
Fort Benning and the city of Columbus observed Red Ribbon Week with a border-tying ceremony at the grand staircase of the Riverwalk Oct 27.

The nationwide program, which promotes a drug-free lifestyle, was celebrated in communities throughout Georgia Oct. 23 to Sunday. A red ribbon has been designated as the symbol to stop illegal drug use.



Local law enforcement and government officials, school children and businesses participated in this year's ceremony.

Columbus Mayor Frank Martin read a proclamation declaring Red Ribbon Week, which said in part that all citizens should "demonstrate their commitment to a drug-free, healthy lifestyle by wearing and displaying red ribbons." Martin also specifically addressed the many young people at the ceremony by remarking that "drugs make you weak and keep you from being the best you can be ... it's a losing deal."

Keynote speaker at the ceremony was Col. James Crockert, Fort Benning's provost marshal. During his remarks he included clergy, teachers, law enforcement officials and parents as the most influential forces in a child's life.

He encouraged parents to "teach children to know the difference between right and wrong" and to "praise those who make the right choice for a drug-free life."

America's Pride, a group of teens from area high and junior high schools, performed several songs and skits promoting a drug-free lifestyle.

American Legion Post 35 performed the border-tying ceremony by stringing a red ribbon by boat across the Chattahoochee River between Columbus and Phenix City.

Fort Benning's Infantry Band and the Silver Wings, the post's command exhibition parachute team, also performed at the event.

Enter the computer age with new automatic system

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

The Fort Benning Enhanced 911 system should be tested and operational by about Dec. 15.

According to Paul Yates, director of Information Management, Bell South will be testing the system beginning the first week of December.

"They'll be having people on post dial the Military Police desk, to check the accuracy of the addresses and phone numbers in the data base. Barring any major glitches, the system should then be ready to go by Christmas."

Yates said the system will be integrated among the three major emergency response branches: the MPs, the fire stations and the Emergency Medical System.

All calls will be routed through the MP desk, Yates said, where dispatchers will be equipped with computer screens that will automatically display the location the call is coming from and the location of all MP vehicles, so the nearest unit can be dispatched to respond to the call.

"If the call requires fire or medical response," Yates said, "it will be automatically patched through to them, and directions to the address the call came from will automatically be printed out."

For instance, Yates said, if a person called in a fire report and was only able to say, "Fire!" the dispatcher would patch the call through to the appropriate fire station, the address would be automatically displayed on the MP computer screen, and directions to that address would automatically print out at the fire station.

Yates hosted a community meeting Monday to allow community members to air their concerns about the E911 system.

"One suggestion that came out at the meeting," he said, "is that we input data on exceptional family members into the system to begin with. That way, if someone has a known heart condition or other medical problem, it can be noted in the data base so the information will appear on the screen whenever a call comes from that number. This will allow medical teams responding to have an idea what to prepare for."

Yates said this suggestion could be implemented by sending questionnaires to post residents, offering them the opportunity to volunteer such information for use in the system.

"Another concern a lot of people have is the surcharge," Yates said. "Southern Bell will be charging each subscriber $1.50 per month for use of the system. Some people on post already pay a surcharge, and the only benefit they get is that when they call 911, they reach the Columbus Police Department, which patches the calls through to the MPs."

Yates said the new system will give residents much more for their money.

"With the surcharge on this new system," he said, "residents will receive the benefits of getting information almost instantly to whatever on-post emergency system needs to respond to their call."

CID, Columbus Police work to solve rape cases

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Evidence provided by Fort Benning's Criminal Investigation Division may link two Columbus gang leaders recently accused of a federal carjacking, rape and robbery to a similar incident that occurred on post in August.

Two leaders of the "Crips" and a juvenile member of the gang were recently charged with the rape, aggravated assault, sodomy, kidnapping and armed robbery of a Columbus woman Oct. 13.

The investigation of a 15-year-old car thief, the juvenile gang member, led Columbus Police to the investigation and arrest of the two adult gang leaders, said Maj. George Potter, head of the Bureau of Investigative Services for the Columbus Police Department.

A raid of the suspects' homes not only revealed items stolen from the victim of the Columbus crime, but also items that link the case to a similar incident that occurred on Fort Benning in August.

Black ninja clothing like that worn in the Fort Benning crime was what tipped him off, Potter said.

A camcorder stolen in the Fort Benning incident was also recovered in the raid, according to a Military Police blotter report.

"We were familiar with the case at Fort Benning," Potter said. "The MO (modus operandi) was similar, so we felt the same people had committed both crimes."

"We were aware that the Columbus Police Department was investigating cases of individuals wearing ski masks committing robberies downtown," said Randy F. Upton, special agent in charge at CID, "and we were maintaining close communications with Columbus Police."

The CID case involved a soldier and his girlfriend parked in an isolated area of Fort Benning.

At 2 a.m. Aug. 5, they were attacked by two unidentified black males wearing ski masks and brandishing a gun who locked the soldier in the trunk of the car, raped and robbed the woman and then stole a cellular phone, compact disc player, camcorder and .32-caliber pistol from the car, Upton said.

CID spent two days going over the vehicle, Upton said, and they are now hoping the evidence they found will make an airtight case linking the suspects and the crimes.

Using high-tech equipment loaned to them by the Columbus Police Department, CID investigators located fibers of clothing and body fluid stains that will be used to match DNA samples and fingerprints with evidence from the Columbus Police.

The FBI lab in Washington, D.C., should take about two months to analyze and process the evidence, Upton said.

Rangers receive awards

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Soldiers of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, stood on a green field under cloudy skies Oct. 29 to receive honors earned in the dust and heat of Somalia.

Awards presented to the soldiers included 247 Armed Forces Expeditionary Medals, 130 Combat Infantryman Badges, two Combat Medical Badges and 27 Purple Hearts.

The CIB is awarded to infantry and Special Forces officers (in the rank of colonel and below) and enlisted soldiers who satisfactorily perform infantry or Special Forces duties during active ground combat.

The Purple Heart is awarded to members of the U.S. armed forces or civilian nationals who have been wounded or killed in an armed conflict involving an opposing armed force or enemy of the United States.

The CMB is awarded to those medics who accompany the infantry into combat. The medic must have been personally present and under fire during such ground combat.

The ceremony, attended by Brig. Gen. Jack P. Nix, deputy commanding general, Col. James T. Jackson, regimental commander, and friends and family members of the rangers, included a moment of silence for the late Col. John T. Keneally, commander of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, who was killed in a training accident Oct. 29, 1992.

Jackson addressed the soldiers of the 3rd Bn., who were assembled in rank and file to receive their awards.

"You performed to exceptional standards and exceeded all expectations," he said. "You upheld the prestige, the honor and the high esprit de corps of the regiment. The entire regiment is deeply proud of your actions."

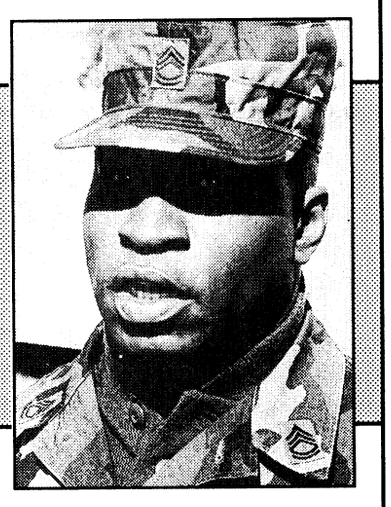
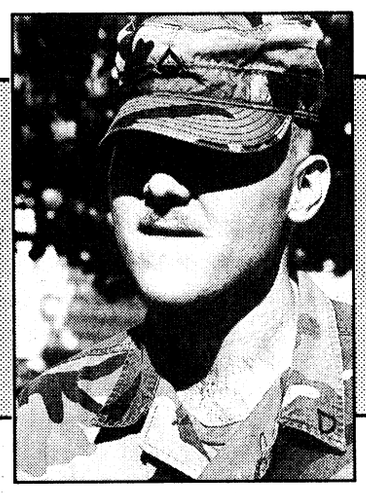
VARIOUS VOICES

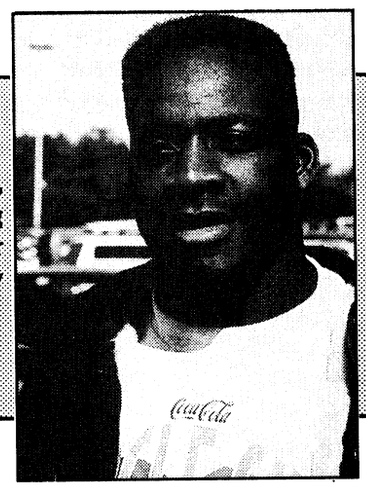
Should women be allowed to attend Ranger School?



Staff Sgt. Ritch Huffaker, Company B, 4th Ranger Training Battalion — "Personally I have nothing against (women), but it's more a 'manly' thing — they shouldn't be allowed."



Spc. Monique Johnson, 519th Personnel Service Company — "I wouldn't want to go, but I think there should be equal opportunity in all (Army) schools."



Sgt. Rose Smalls, 498th Medical Company — "Why not? We're in the Army — why shouldn't we be able to do it all if we're capable? Why exclude us just because we're female?"

Sgt. 1st Class Antonio Johnson, Adjutant General Replacement Detachment — "I think Army policy should determine it; but, if they can meet all the qualifications, their gender shouldn't disqualify them."

Pfc. Christopher Fortuna, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 29th Infantry Regiment — "I don't feel (women) should be kept out of (Ranger School). If they can put on the uniform, they should be able to do anything they want to do."

Staff Sgt. Randy Walker, Company A, 4th Ranger Training Battalion — "No, because (Ranger School) is too physically demanding."

Female rangers? I don't think so

Let the good old boys have Ranger School, infantry

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

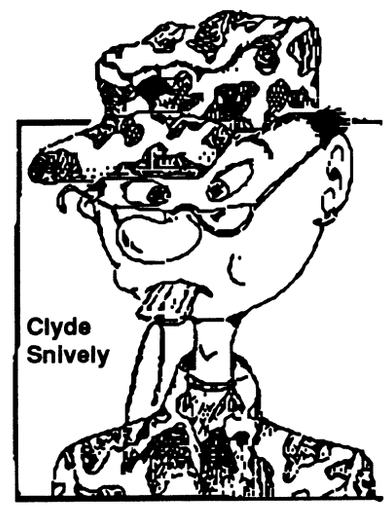
COMMENTARY

Someone on the staff of this newspaper is smoking kudzu. Now that William Riley is with us only in memory — he's working in Community Relations — I'm the sole surviving male, and the female units on the staff have gone crazy.

Like this week, one of them is going around asking people if they think women should be allowed to attend Ranger School.

First of all, where's the requirement? If women aren't expected to wear a Ranger Tab, why waste the slot? There are plenty of men aching, literally, to get in but who can't get slots. Save the slots for people who need them.

Otherwise, being one who enjoys seeing pain inflicted on people, I'd say, let them go through the course.



Shouldn't everyone have the opportunity to lug a 75-pound rucksack up and down the mountains of North Georgia, through the swamps of Florida and across the deserts of Texas?

Shouldn't everyone have the opportunity to get immersion foot, go with a minimal amount of food and sleep, bark their shins on deadfall during night movements and get completely disoriented while on patrol?

If Ranger School is a leadership school and we put women in leadership positions, shouldn't they be allowed to attend the Army's finest small unit leader school?

In a word ... "No."

This is not to say I don't think there are a couple of women out there who couldn't make it through. There probably are. But why change an institution to accommodate one or two women a year?

Back in the '70s, the Infantry School tried a great experiment of allowing women to attend the Infantry Officer Advanced Course. That lasted for a couple of classes, before saner minds prevailed and asked, "Why?"

The same question needs to be addressed before someone thinks Ranger School is a good idea for women. "Why?"

Let women into Ranger School and next thing you know they'll want his and her foxholes, his and her slit trenches.

They'll probably even want to redesign the Ranger Tab — instead of black and gold, they'll use teal and chartreuse.

Women are wonderful people. But I think they need to be protected from themselves. They don't need to be in the infantry. They certainly don't need Ranger School, and Ranger School doesn't need them. Course standards do not need to be adjusted to accommodate them. Thank you very much.

If they think they do, then that's all the more reason to keep them out because then they're certifiably crazy. OK, some say men are crazy too for wanting to go, but there's a need for them to go. They need the training. Women don't.

Let the good old boys have Ranger School and the infantry. Give them a few sanctuaries where they don't need to be competing with women.

Veterans Day: Remember WW I doughboys

By Steve Russell
Special to The Bayonet

COMMENTARY

Thursday marks a special occasion in the history of our nation and world. On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918, the first world war came to a close. This year marks the 75th anniversary of that war.

You would never know it by the thanks and recognition that the nation is giving to its 40,000 living veterans from that terrible war. Maybe it shouldn't bother me, but it does.

It bothers me because these men suffered terribly. It bothers me because in a short 100 days of sustained combat with Germany, 50,280 Americans died and 205,690 Americans were wounded. This does not even include the nearly 100,000 who died from nonbattle causes. But what are figures to a society that counts its debts in trillions? What do numbers mean when stacked so neatly with rows of zeros?

If you were of age in 1917, you registered for selective service. You stood an even chance at being called up. Once called, you stood a 50-percent chance of going to France to serve.

Once there, you stood a 70-percent chance of being engaged in combat. As terrible as World War II was for Americans, if you fought in World War I, you had twice the chance of being killed than you did in World War II. For every soldier killed, six more would suffer wounds. Once wounded, you had an 80-percent chance of being returned to duty. Many would be wounded again.

Americans did their duty and did it well. The American fighting man fought as bravely as any man ever fought. Although there were only about 75 Medals of Honor awarded to the 1.4 million men that saw combat, more Medals of Honor were awarded in one day of the Meuse Argonne Offensive than in any other day in our nation's history. Most of the medals were posthumous. This is not surprising when you hurl your body though mud, wire, 10-foot-deep shell holes and poison gas to knock out a machine gun nest that has uust mowed down a hundred of your friends.

There is no doubt that without the United States' entry into World War I, the outcome would have been different. Regardless, the outcome itself provided no great comfort to those involved. The world was changed forever.

Veterans of this war were also changed forever. The 40,000 still living among us could tell us if we cared to listen. They know all about returning to a society too concerned with its domestic problems to care about their sacrifice once they came home.

The war was over, after all. It was time to get back to normal. That was something the veterans of this and all of our wars found impossible to do. His society said thanks but quickly forgot about his veteran's benefits. Suddenly, his service was bought at a very cheap price. Feeling the need to do something, administrations promised a bonus to men that served but one they could not collect until 1945. There was no Veterans Administration at that time. The visibly wounded were eligible for pensions. Those suffering more complex wounds found no relief. To further recognize the veterans, Warren Harding made Nov. 11 a national holiday in 1920.

From there, the recognition started to fade. The Depression made an entire society understand the meaning of suffering. Because the majority of doughboys came from rural communities, they also shared the majority of hardship in the Depression. When these hardships became too much to bear, thousands of veterans went to the capital to petition for an exception to receive their bonuses early. They reminded the country that many of them had already died. What good was a bonus then?

A grateful nation responded by ordering servicemen to rout and destroy their brother warriors' demonstration. Some men who had protected their country's freedom ironically died at the hands of that country.

As the nation recovered, this tragic incident was soon forgotten. Unfortunate world events soon completely overshadowed the sacrifice made by World War I veterans. The 25th anniversary of the war in 1943 found our country in the grips of a second world war. When the 50th anniversary came around in 1968, recognition for war service was the last thing our society wanted to give.

Now in 1993, the 75th anniversary has in part been obscured by the 50th anniversary of World War II. Complete apathy accounts for the remainder. In many peoples' minds, the vets from the great war are already dead. Ignorance and apathy are a major contrast to how we treated our Civil War veterans during their 75th anniversary. Then, a grateful nation called out every living veteran for monumental ceremonies and mass media coverage. We should be ashamed. Maybe we'll do better for World War II veterans whose sacrifice was no less significant.

On this Veterans Day, take time to reflect for the doughboy. If you really want to do some good, go find a living vet from that war and tell him thank you. There are still some in the area. In a final note, I leave you with a verse from Wilfred Owen, a soldier and poet killed in 1918:

Nevertheless, except you share
With them in hell the sorrowful dark of hell,
Whose world is but the trembling of a flare,
And heaven but as the highway for a shell,
You shall not hear their mirth:
You shall not come to think them well content
By any just of mine. These men are worth
Your tears. You are not worth their merriment.

LETTERS

Post sends thanks

The success of the many 75th Anniversary activities would not have been possible without the help and support of many local businesses in the area.

Through their efforts, the Diamond Jubilee was a tremendous success. The Directorate of Community Activities Marketing Department would like to thank the following companies for their support: AT&T, TIC Credit Union, Nike Inc., Dixie Beer, Buffalo Rock Pepsi, Chick-Fil-A and Hooters of Columbus Mall, The Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, Ranger Joe's, Triangle Beverage, Valley Fruit and Produce and CB&T.

We would also like to thank Robert Carter at the Army and Air Force Exchange Service and Larry Bentley, Commissary officer, for their outstanding assistance with the National Infantry Museum Run and the fireworks finale and for their continued support of morale, welfare and recreation activities.

The following vendors contributed to the fireworks finale through the Commissary: Millbrands, Keebler, Coca-Cola, Buffalo Rock Pepsi, UMEX, Royal Crown Cola, Dunham and Smith, WEBCU, Kraft General Foods, Johnson & Johnson, C. Lloyd Johnson and Dixon Marketing. We apologize for any inadvertent omissions.

Thievery, honesty exist everywhere

I would like to thank the honest young man who found my purse Oct. 19 and returned it to me.

To the person who stole $88 out of it, I hope you needed it more than my family and enjoyed spending it. It was money for my children's food for the next two weeks.

It does not reflect favorably on a community when a member takes advantage of such a situation. I know I will be less trusting of the Fort Benning community now.

Hopefully, we all can learn from this experience. Maybe those inclined to take money from a lost wallet will think twice before doing so. It not only affects the victim, but it affects the perpetrator and the entire community as well.

AIDS, HIV, STD

Soldiers should know risks, preventive measures

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Recent health reports show that Georgia leads the nation in the number of cases of syphilis and gonorrhea, while Columbus and Terrell County rank first in the state.

Maj. Daniel R. Davidson, director of Preventive Medicine, said it is important for soldiers to know the risks involved with unprotected sexual activity and that Fort Benning has medical facilities fully equipped to deal confidentially with any questions or concerns they may have.

"We are keenly aware of the high rates of sexually transmitted diseases in the civilian community," Davidson said. "We want to help people make informed decisions that will contribute to the decrease of STD cases."

Davidson said the best strategies to avoid contracting STDs are practicing abstinence, using condoms and limiting the number of sexual partners.

"Any use of intravenous drugs, including steroids, also increases the risk, and paying for sex is extremely risky," Davidson said.

It is also very important to be able to talk to your partner openly about STDs and the use of such disease preventive devices as condoms, he said. "If you cannot talk openly about sex with your partner, you are putting yourself and your partner at risk," Davidson said.

Fort Benning has two facilities in Soldiers' Plaza equipped to deal specifically with sexually transmitted diseases, the Preventive Medicine Clinic

The Preventive Medicine Clinic, Building 2616, is a one-stop shop for the treatment of STDs that is open to all soldiers, family members and retirees, except for pregnant women. The hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to noon for males and Monday through Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m. for females. For information, call 545-3518.

The Community Health Nursing Section, Building 2631, offers free human immunodeficiency virus testing to active duty soldiers and counseling to soldiers infected with the virus. HIV testing is conducted Monday from 8 to 10 a.m. and Tuesday and Thursday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. On Wednesdays and Fridays, soldiers can get the paperwork at Building 2631, but they have to go to Martin Army Community Hospital for the actual test. For information, call 545-4041.

Davidson said in addition to actual diagnosis and treatment, personnel at both facilities can answer questions and provide educational materials. Also, post units can schedule HIV awareness classes through the Community Health Nursing Section.

"We are constantly trying to reach out to the community," said Davidson. "Our biggest hope for the future is to never have to tell anyone they have become infected with the HIV virus."

Call VA toll free for info about headstones

Department of Veterans Affairs

The Department of Veterans Affairs has established a single, nationwide, toll-free telephone number to make it easier for veterans and their family members to inquire about the veterans headstone and grave marker program.

"This new toll-free number means that we can make personal service readily available to all who need it," Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jesse Brown said. "It also is a continuation of our campaign to improve services to veterans and their families," he said.

The number, (800) 697-6947, connects callers to VA's National Cemetery System's Office of Memorial Programs in Washington, D.C., Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (Eastern time).

"VA customer service representatives can provide immediate information about the status of applications, headstone or marker delivery and general information about memorial programs," Jerry W. Bowen, NCS director, said. "Timely delivery of our services is mandatory, and this new system will greatly enhance our ability to get answers to customers who need them quickly."

NCS operates 114 cemeteries throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. All veterans with discharges other than dishonorable, their spouses and children are eligible for burial in a VA national cemetery. They also are eligible for a government-provided headstone or marker and a Presidential Memorial Certificate.

Last October, VA launched a single, nationwide, toll-free number to make it easier for veterans and their family members to inquire about and apply for all VA benefits. By dialing (800) 827-1000, callers are connected to the nearest VA regional office during normal business hours.

Department of Defense continues to shrink

American Forces Information Service

Department of Defense continues to shrink, as recently released strength figures show a decrease of almost 5,000 service members in July. Compared with the same time last year, the numbers are down 133,600.

Military personnel officials said these figures represent regulars and reservists on active duty, as well as officer cadets at the three military academies.

The Army has 579,224 individuals on active duty, down 3,119 from June. On July 31,1992, the Army strength stood at 637,856.

Figures indicate 511,913 people now wear the Navy uniform, compared with 512,678 at the end of June. Almost 30,000 more, or 541,080, were on active duty this time last year. Numbers for the Marine Corps dropped 82 from the end of June to 179,529 on July 31. A year ago, the Marines had 187,731 on duty.

Currently serving in the Air Force are 446,998 people, down from 447,823 on June 30. The Air Force had 484,597 members just a year ago.

DoD personnel officials credited early retirement and voluntary separation incentive programs with helping the department to meet its drawdown goals.

VA Q & A

Department of Veterans Affairs

Q: I have a $10,000 service-disabled veterans insurance policy. Can I increase my coverage?

A: Yes, if you meet certain criteria. Policyholders eligible for a waiver of premiums in the Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance program can purchase $20,000 in additional coverage at standard rates based on the insured's current age.

To be eligible for a waiver of premiums, policyholders must be totally disabled before their 65th birthday.

Eligible policyholders may increase their coverage amount in increments of $500, starting at $1,000 with a maximum of $20,000.

Policyholders must be under the age of 65. They have one year from the date of the waiver award letter to apply for the coverage.

Eligible policyholders interested in the increased coverage can call the Department of Veterans Affairs' Regional Office and Insurance Center in Philadelphia for more information. The number is (800) 669-8477.

Q: I am a divorced veteran. Can I remove my ex-wife as beneficiary on my VA life insurance policy?

A: Yes. Your government life insurance contract gives you the right to designate or change your beneficiary at any time. You can do so without the beneficiary's consent or knowledge. Call the VA Insurance Center at (800) 669-8477 to request a form to change your beneficiary.

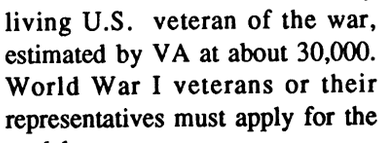
Q: I am a World War I veteran and read in the newspaper recently that the Department of Veterans Affairs will be distributing medals to World War I veterans. Could you tell me about the medal and how I can receive one?

A: Designed by the U.S. Army Institute of Heraldry, the commemorative medal is a replica of the World War I Victory Medal that was awarded to U.S. servicemen who served in "the war to end all wars."

The newer medal is sponsored by the Chicago-based McCormick Tribune Foundation and is being presented to veterans under the auspices of the VA and the Department of Defense.

VA Secretary Jesse Brown presented the first of the medals at a ceremony Aug. 30 in Wheaton, Ill., at the annual national convention of the Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A.

VA hopes to distribute all of the medals by Veterans Day Thursday, the 75th anniversary of the Armistice that ended World War I.



The medal is intended for every living U.S. veteran of the war, estimated by VA at about 30,000. World War I veterans or their representatives must apply for the medal.

An application can be obtained by calling VA at (800) 827-1000.

Q: My ex-husband is receiving VA compensation benefits and is claiming our three children as dependents. However, he provides me with no financial support for our children. Can the Department of Veterans Affairs help me?

A: Yes. You can apply for an apportionment of the VA benefits your ex-husband is receiving for dependent children he claims but are in your custody. Call the nearest VA regional office at (800) 827-1000 and ask a veterans benefits counselor to help you with that application.

Efforts under way to erect memorial for rangers

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

One year ago on Oct. 29, a deadly helicopter crash in Utah claimed the life of 12 U.S. servicemen including five U.S. Army rangers and seven Air Force commandos.

Among the rangers killed was Fort Benning's Col. John T. Keneally, commander of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment. Also killed was Sgt. Blaine Mishak, 22, a command radio operator from 1st Ranger Battalion, Hunter Army Airfield, Savannah, Ga.

Mishak's parents, Frank and Marlys Mishak, are now heading an effort to erect a monument near the site of the crash to memorialize those killed.

Mishak's father said he conceived the idea and began work on the project after visiting the crash site.

The accident occurred north of Antelope Island, Utah, during a joint exercise when one of four aircraft, an Air Force HH-60 G Pave Hawk helicopter, crashed into the Great Salt Lake during bad weather.

The Mishaks sought and gained approval for the monument to be built from commissioners of Davis County, Utah. Gayle Stevenson, Davis County chairman, wrote that the county would be "proud to participate in this most worthwhile project" and because of the Mishaks' efforts, others would "be able to experience a silent tribute to the memory of those who gave their lives."

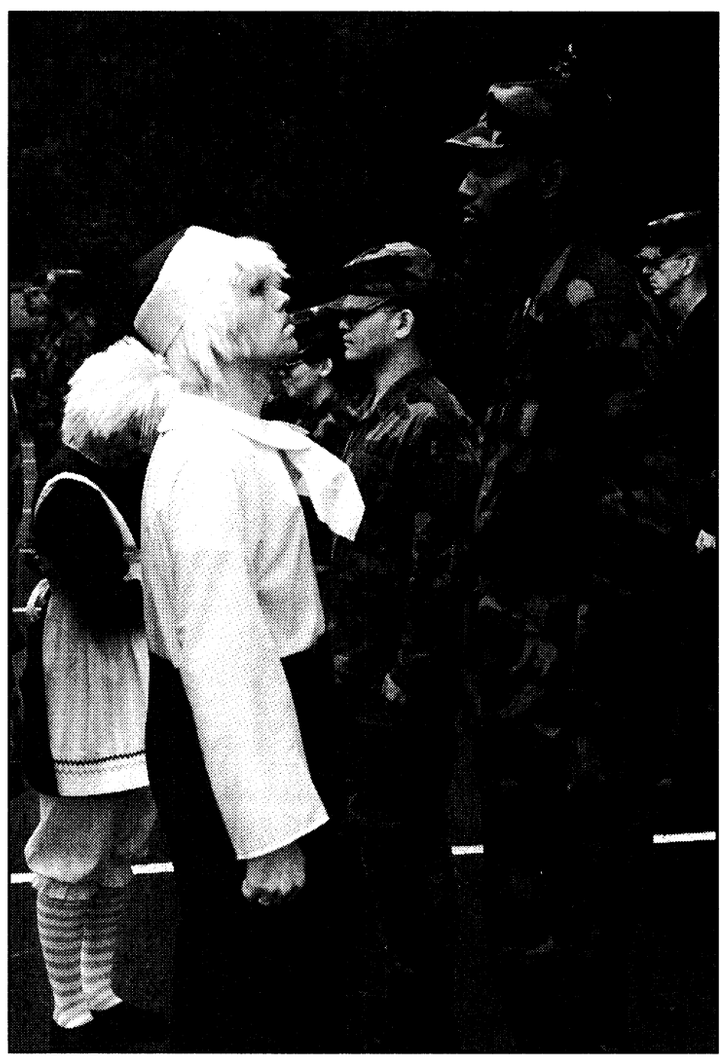
The Mishaks are being supported in their efforts by family members of the 11 other deceased servicemen.

"We're keeping them informed of all steps of the process," said Mishak's father by phone from his home in Clear Lake, Iowa.

The other rangers killed in the crash were from the 1st Ranger Battalion, Hunter Army Airfield, Savannah, Ga. They include Spc. Jeremy Bird, 19, a satellite radio operator, from Amery, Wis.; 1st Sgt Harvey Moore Jr., 37, from LaGrange, Ga., and Lt. Col. Kenneth W. Stauss, 40, commander of the 1st Ranger Bn., from Belton, Mo.

Funding for the monument will be completely from donations. The Mishaks have spent a large amount of their own money to get the project started. A total of $12,000 has been spent on preliminaries like blueprints and the granite stone to be used in the monument. The total cost is expected to reach between $25,000 and $30,000.

The memorial will feature two walkways, one leading to a lighted American flag and the other to a stone inscribed with the names of the 12 fallen servicemen and a history of the ill-fated flight. A brass pivot containing a personal item from each of the deceased will be sealed at the dedication of the monument and laid into the walkway.



Springtime is the goal for starting work on the monument. "We plan to pour the concrete in April," said Mishak's father, who plans on being there to help builders.

Donations are still needed to help fund the project. Individuals who donate $100 or more will have their name engraved on a metal plate at the entrance to the monument.

Donations of any size are welcome, he said. "We will be happy to receive any donation, large or small," he said.

Anyone wishing to make a donation can send it to:

U.S. Army Ranger and U.S. Air Force Memorial Site Fund, c/o Frank and Marlys Mishak, P.O. Box 149, Clear Lake, Iowa, 50428.

Job training program offers incentives for hiring veterans

By Master Sgt. Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

The Defense Department and two other government agencies are working to offer companies incentives to hire and train military veterans.

A new veterans job training program, established under the Service Members Occupation and Conversion Training Act of 1992, should help individuals find long-term employment, said Robert Stein, DoD's director of transition support and services.

Administered by DoD and the departments of Labor and Veterans Affairs, the program offers employers with approved training programs up to $10,000 toward an eligible veteran's wages during job training.

Service members must meet a number of requirements to qualify. Veterans are eligible if they have been discharged after Aug. 2, 1990. They must have served on active duty for at least 90 days or have been released from active duty at any time because of a service-connected disability.

Veterans must be unemployed when applying for this program and have been unemployed for at least eight of the 15 weeks before application, said Stein. Also, veterans must have primary or secondary military skills that do not easily transfer to the civilian sector.

Applications must be made by Sept. 30, 1995, he said.

Approved training programs must run between six and 18 months in a field that provides a reasonable chance at stable, long-term employment, said Stein. Some types of prohibited job training include training for employment where commissions are the primary source of income, employment involving political or religious activities and employment outside the United States, its territories or Puerto Rico.

Training for employment with any federal agency or department and employment that is seasonal, intermittent or temporary is also prohibited.

Stein said eligibility continues until a veteran completes a job training program. Once completed, eligibility ends. However, an individual who doesn't complete a program may begin a new job training program.

For more details, contact the nearest employment service or job service office or Veterans Affairs regional office, or call the VA's national toll-free number at (800) 827-1000. A telephone number at the Department of Labor is (202) 219-9116.

Logistics personnel to construct storage facility

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Soldiers and civilian employees all over post are finding out that the U- Do-It program is one of the best ways to get things done.

The Directorate of Logistics is one of the latest organizations to use Self-Help to make needed improvements.

"If you have the necessary personnel to do the work yourself, it can be much more economical than going through a contractor," said Andrew Carroll, aircraft mechanic supervisor with the Aircraft Repair Branch, Building 2446.

Aircraft Repair Branch personnel are using the U-Do-It program to build a storage facility for hazardous materials, including kerosene, cleaning solvents, aircraft engine oil and hazardous wastes including used sweeping compound and oil and fuel filters.

While the current storage rack meets the Environmental Protection Agency's standards, Carroll said the branch has been searching for better alternatives for storage.

The new facility will include a 12-foot by 24-foot concrete base that will prevent any chemical spills from contaminating the environment. Metal walls and a roof will form an enclosed shed.

Personnel from the Aircraft Repair Branch completed the base in five days. Personnel from Shop Three will erect the shed sometime in the near future, Carroll said.

"All of the work on the base was done by hand in the June heat," said Carroll. "It was quite a challenge because all the concrete had to be poured at once, and we had to be especially careful not to form any cold joints that could cause a leak if chemicals are ever spilled." Carroll said concern for the environment prompted the branch's management to build the new facility.

"The seriousness of the business of storing hazardous materials prompted us to take the initiative in constructing a building that will better conform to EPA standards," Carroll said.

He said the branch's location on Lawson Army Airfield makes it especially important to be aware of the environmental impact because the airfield contains storm drains that lead directly to the Chattahoochee River.

"If there was a chemical or oil spill that was not contained, the area water supply and wildlife habitats could be contaminated," Carroll said.

Carroll estimated that by using Self-Help, the cost for the project is about one-third of what it would have cost through a contractor.

Hospital offers faster prescription refills

By Terry Isham
Martin Army Community Hospital

Getting a prescription refilled at Martin Army Community Hospital will take less time as a result of a new computer system that will significantly improve the pharmacy's phone-in service.

The upgrade will allow pharmacy personnel to process phone-in prescription refill requests more efficiently and should result in improved convenience to beneficiaries, officials said.

Switching over to the new computer system will not cause any disruption of service, according to Lt. Col. Errol Moran, chief of the hospital's Pharmacy Service.

"Our phone-in refill service has been used quite extensively by our beneficiaries, and we're pleased to be able to improve this service," Moran said.

The phone number patients will use to call in their prescription refills will remain the same — 544-1352. Current users of the system will notice a slight difference in the phone-in process. Callers should simply follow the instructions.

The only information that will be requested is the last four digits of the sponsor's Social Security number and the prescription number of the medication) being requested. The prescription number is located in the upper left hand corner of the label just above the patient's name.

Refill requests may be phoned in 24 hours a day. The new system is geared to work with touch tone telephones; however, patients with rotary telephones can still use the system by leaving a message when prompted to do so.

Refill requests phoned in before noon will be ready for pickup that same afternoon. Refill requests phoned in between noon and midnight will be ready after 8 a.m. the next regular duty day.

Requests placed after noon Fridays, weekends, or during a holiday period will be ready for pickup after 8 a.m. on the first working day after the weekend or holiday.

The completed refill prescription will be available for pickup at the hospital's Pharmacy pickup window upon presentation of the patient's identification card.

Beneficiaries are reminded that refills not picked up within one week after being phoned in will be returned to stock, Moran said. Beneficiaries should use the new system for all their refills.

"If we could get even more of our beneficiaries to take advantage of this service, it would reduce the congestion in the pharmacy waiting area and reduce the waiting time for everyone," Moran said.

Phone-in refill requests are processed before opening and during less busy periods of the day. This allows for improved efficiency in processing new prescriptions, Moran said.

Beneficiaries also have the option of using the Refill Pharmacy at the shopping mall or the hospital's Outpatient Pharmacy to obtain their refills.

Nov. 19: "Employers' Day"

Job assistance workshop

Time: Wednesdays, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Location: Infantry Hall, Building 4

The workshop is conducted every Wednesday at Infantry Hall. Topics discussed include objective setting, resume preparation, expanding opportunities, networking, interviewing, salary negotiating, stress management and financial planning.

The workshop is for anyone in federal service (both military and Department of the Army civilians) and their family members, whether leaving voluntarily, involuntarily or retiring.

Education Opportunity Center

Time: Wednesdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Participants will receive information from all over the country about college and university admissions requirements and proficiency exams. Education counselors can also discuss student loans and grants.

Mock Interview Practice

Time: Thursdays, 2 to 4 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Participants will learn how to interview effectively by rehearsing and practicing interview techniques with an experienced JAC counselor. The mock interview will be videotaped to provide the client with a visual learning tool.

Employers' Day

Time: Fridays, time varies

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Employer day is scheduled each Friday at the Job Assistance Center. The program is designed to allow employers to recruit qualified candidates for their companies.

Employers normally give presentations on their organizations and set up interviews with qualified candidates.

A variety of manufacturing and service companies take advantage of this opportunity. Public sector organizations are also represented.

Focus Hour

Time: Tuesdays, noon to 1 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Weekly video program that provides additional information on the key areas in the job search process — networking, dressing for success, interview process and negotiating techniques. Counselors will assist with any additional questions.

Small Business Development

Time: Monthly, 2 to 4:30 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

A short, free, monthly seminar is offered by the Small Business Development Center of the University of Georgia. It is designed to provide assistance and training in starting a new business.

The seminar serves as a focal point for linking together resources of the federal, state, and local governments and the private sector.

For additional information and registration, call Army Career and Alumni Program Job Assistance Center, located in Building 2634, at 545-2308 or 545-2309 .

Rugby: Club hosts rough-and-tumble

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Terry K. Ray/Special to The Bayonet

University of Georgia winger Mike Ryan (right) kicks the ball away from the High Country defense.

On two of the coldest days in October, the Columbus Fort Benning Rugby Football Club hosted the 1993 Georgia Rugby Union Division Two and Collegiate championships Saturday and Sunday at Stilwell Field on Fort Benning.

With the temperature hovering in the low 40s and a wind chill in the mid-teens, teams from all over the Southeast bundled up for the two-day tournament.

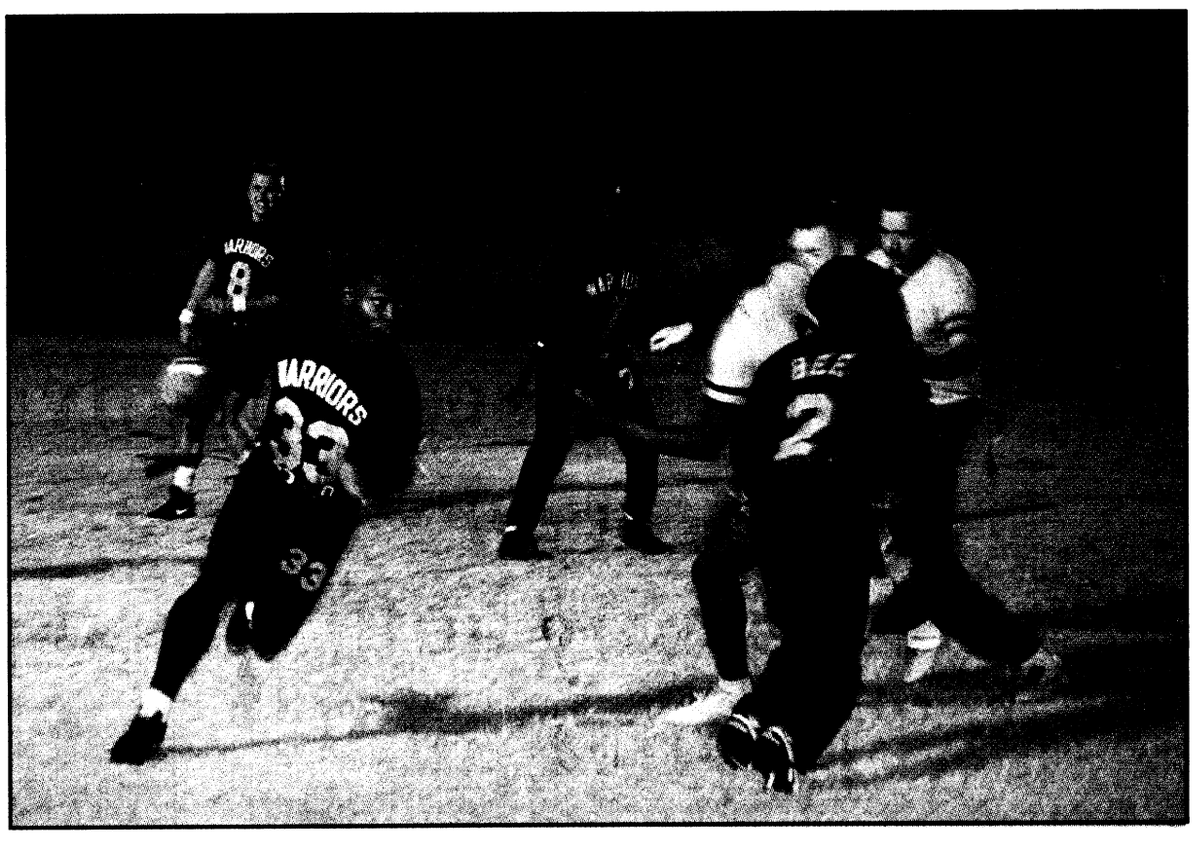
In the college division, the University of Alabama Crimson Tide defeated the Tigers of Clemson University, 18-13, to win the collegiate title Sunday afternoon.

In the Division Two contest, the University of Georgia Bulldogs chewed their way to their second straight title with a 32-12 thumping of High Country of Atlanta, Ga.

Inside center John Mudrock turned the hat trick with three tries to pace the Dogs. Eight man Hamp Tanner put the Dogs on the board early in the first half to go up 5-0. Moments later, second row Chad Young took the ball in for the Dogs' second try of the half and scrum half Geoff Tanner kicked the extra point attempt to give the Dogs a 12-0 bulge.

High Country closed the gap when winger Doug Stoltz scampered the length of the field for their first try of the day, cutting the lead to 12-5. High Country missed two scoring chances on penalty kicks that Stoltz sliced to the left. The Dogs, on the other hand, capitalized on almost every opportunity in the first half. Tanner pushed the score to 15-5 on a penalty kick; then, Mudrock tacked on his first try of the day with less than four minutes to play in the half to move the Bulldogs to a 20-5 advantage.

High Country trimmed the lead to 20-12 early in the second half on a try by inside center Greg Shep and the extra-point kick by Robbie Halcomb.



Midway through the period, Mudrock broke away from the High Country defense and rambled the length of the field for his second score of the match to push the Bulldogs to a 27-12 advantage.

The Bulldogs' final score of the match came with little or no time left on the clock when Mudrock stuck the ball into the end zone for his third try of the day — and the hat trick — giving the Bulldogs their second Division Two title in as many years with a 32-12 win.

"We had our chances to score, but we just couldn't get the ball across the goal line," said Stoltz. "Give the Bulldogs credit; they played a very good match and scored when they needed to. It was a very good tournament; I just wish the weather had not been so cold."

Post teams show their colors in flag football tournament

The 1993 U.S. Army Infantry Center flag football tournament is off and running. With 18 teams vying for the right to represent their respective units in the championship Nov. 15, the hitting is coming fast and hard.

Monday and Tuesday night, eight games opened the action at Doughboy Stadium and Gowdy Field. Here is what happened.

Monday night at Gowdy Field

The Bulldogs of Company B, 324th Forward Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, claimed the first win of the tournament with a 25-7 win over the Dogs of Company D, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment.

Bulldogs quarterback Kitwena Akil struck pay dirt in the first half when he hit receiver Malcolm McEwen in the end zone for the first touchdown of the game. Akil and McEwen teamed up for a 40-yard strike on the Bulldogs' next possession to go up 13-0 at the half.

The Bulldogs wasted no time putting points on the board in the second half when Akil rambled 37 yards for the Bulldogs' third score of the game and a 19-0 lead. Dogs running back Kelvin Anderson cut the lead to 19-7 late in the game on a 10-yard sweep around the left side. Quarterback Joffre Danielly tacked on the point after with a pass to Raymond Deese.

The Bulldogs put a muzzle on the Dogs with a late touchdown from Akil to tight end Xavier Smith to push the lead up to 17 points at the two-minute warning, giving the Bulldogs the win.

The Dogs of the 317th Engineer Battalion, 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div., shut out the 75th Ranger Regiment, 13-0 in the second game of the night. Dogs running back Warren Jackson scooted 24 yards for the Dogs' first points of the game, running back Terry Nash added the extra point for a 7-0 advantage. Nash tacked on a 40-yard touchdown run late in the game to give the Dogs a 13-point bulge and another game in the winners bracket.

In the final game of the evening, 3rd Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment's Queens Own pulled an ace from the deck, downing the Bradley Instructor Company of 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 13-0 for the second shutout of the night.

In other games played at Doughboy Stadium Monday night, Co. A, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment's Slam defeated the Headhunters of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 12-6.

Tuesday night at Doughboy Stadium

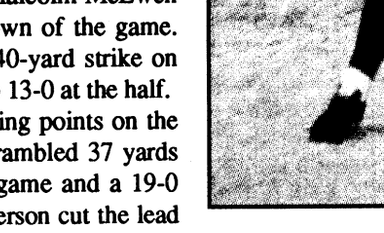
The Warriors of Co. D, 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div., disposed of the 608th Ordnance Company, 19-12.

Warrior quarterback Jeff McCarrie found receiver Louis Sheppard in the right flat, for a 15-yard touchdown strike for the first score of the ballgame. An interception by 608th defensive back Darrell Hawkins set the 608th up with good field position at the Warrior 20. One play later, 608th quarterback Marcus Rawls blasted a strike to receiver Hawkins to knot the game at 6-6.

On the Warriors' next set of downs, McCarrie moved the ball down to the 608th 10-yard line. A quick pass over the middle to receiver Albert Tate gave the Warriors' their second lead of the game at 12-6.

Not to be outdone, the 608th came right back to tie the game at 12-12, after a 55-yard kickoff run by Corey Long put the 608th at the Warrior 5-yard line. Long capped the one-play drive on a 5-yard run around the left end. An interception by 608th safety James McClain stopped a drive by the Warriors and ended the first half.

In the second half, the Warriors mounted a drive that would prove to be the game-winning score.



McCarrie scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 1-yard plunge up the gut, then hit Tate with the extra point for a 19-12 lead. Good defense by both sides kept the score at 19-12, and Warrior defensive back Anthony Battle picked off a Rawls pass to seal the Warrior win with no time left on the clock

In the second match-up of the night, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment's Bandits stole a 6-0 win from Slam of Co. A, 1st Bn., 11th Inf. Regt., on a 42-yard touchdown pass from Bandit quarterback Jeffrey Murray to receiver Michael Williams late in the first half.

In other action at Gowdy Field, Co. B, 324th Forward Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry, Div., lost to the 586th Engineer Company, 36th Engineer Group, 19-12, and Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div., downed Co. E, 1st Bn. (Airborne), 507th Inf. ,11th Inf., Regt., 7-0.

Faith Race ready, set for Dec. 4

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Students, parents, teachers and members of Fort Benning and surrounding communities are invited to participate in this year's Faith Holiday Race Dec. 4 at Fort Benning's Faith Middle School, 1375 Ingersoll St.

Proceeds from the 15th annual event will go to provide additional equipment and incentive awards to students in Faith's physical education program.

There are three different races that begin and end at Faith. A one-miler for boys and girls, ages 14 and under, is at 8:30 a.m.; a two- and five-miler for all ages is at 9:15 a.m. and 10 a.m., respectively.

Race preregistration for ages 14 and under is $4,and $6 for those 15 and older. Race day registration begins at 7:30 a.m. with a $5 fee for those 14 and under; $7 for runners 15 and older.

For more information, contact physical education teacher Susan Emerson at 545-5524.

Race entry forms and maps of the route will be available at Faith School after Monday.

Ducks Unlimited to host wing-ding for children

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Muscogee County - Columbus Chapter of Ducks Unlimited is holding a Green Wing Shoot and cookout for young people, ages 17 and under, at the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit's Hook International Range, Sunday from 1:30 to 6 p.m.

The cost of the Green Wing Shoot is $10, which includes membership in Ducks Unlimited, ammunition and food. Attendees who don't want to participate can purchase a membership for $5.

About 80 young people from Fort Benning and the local area are expected to attend the event, which includes gun safety instruction for those using various gauges of shotguns, and assistance from members of USAMU in proper shooting techniques. Youngsters will fire at clay targets.

Hook Range is located on Alamo Road at Buildings 146 and 147. Alamo Road runs off Dixie Road at Soldiers' Plaza.

Payday golf tourney, pro shop unveiling today

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

The Follow Me Golf Course will officially open the newly renovated pro shop with a grand opening ceremony today.

The ceremony will begin at 10 a.m. with remarks by Maj. Gen. Jerry A White, post commander. The opening will be followed by a ribbon cutting and a guided tour of the pro shop.

Events will include a demonstration by pro golfer Paul Bumann, who specializes in golf trick shots. His demonstration will begin at 10:45 a.m. at the No. 10 tee.

The opening will also feature door prizes, putting and long-shot competitions and performances by the Silver Wings, Fort Benning's command exhibition parachute team, and the Infantry Band.

Events will conclude with the commanding general's monthly payday golf tournament starting at 1:30 p.m. at the course's Pineside.

The tournament is a four-ball scramble sponsored by Kinnett Dairies of Columbus and coordinated by the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment.

Entry fees are $7.50 for staff sergeants and below, $15 for sergeants first class and above and officers and $25 for invited civilians.

Registration is at the pro shop. For more information, call 687-1940.

Soon love will fill the air — and hunting will pick up

By Kevin L. McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

COMMENTARY

This year's Georgia deer gun season seems to have had a slow start according to local hunters and the editor of Georgia Outdoor News magazine; however, that's about to change.

Soon love will fill the air as whitetail deer begin this year's breeding cycle. Bucks will roam the countryside looking for receptive does, and the does, once in estrus (heat), will be looking for that buck to mate with.

Deer activity will begin to increase as soon as we see the start of the breeding cycle, known to you deer hunters out there as the "rut."

Around Nov. 15, the rut should be at its peak. Some breeding has already begun. However, mid-November will see the height of the rut; and, more importantly for us deer hunters, bucks looking for receptive does will be less cautious than they usually are.

Now's the time to start looking for signs of the rut. If you're new to deer hunting, the best sign you can ever hope to find is the deer scrape; and, when you find one, you know there's a buck in the neighborhood.

I've got to tell you, other than actually seeing a buck passing under my tree stand, finding a scrape is the next best thing. A scrape is a buck's calling card; it lets does know that he is in the area. More importantly, it tells you where to hunt.

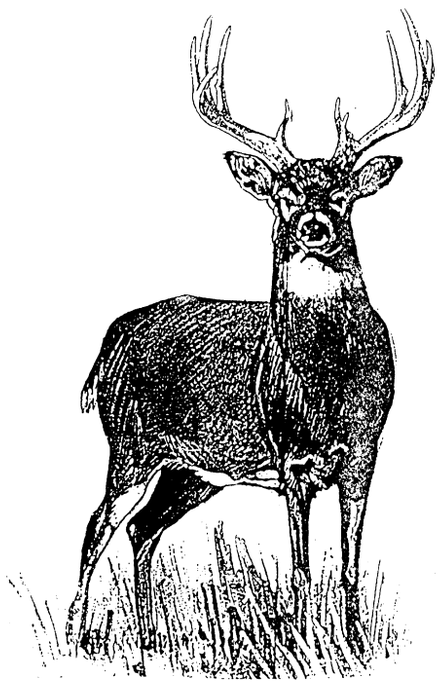
The importance of scrape hunting was proven years ago by deer hunters long forgotten. I have killed two nice bucks within a few short yards of a scrape, and I know that hunting a scrape is better than hunting transition areas or stream crossing sites.

If you haven't seen one before, then it takes a good eye to spot one. They'll usually be circular shaped, anywhere from six- to 22-inches in diameter; and, if you're lucky, will have an overhanging branch. Better yet, if you find one and it appears muddy , you can just about count on seeing a buck before long.

Now there are two types of scrapes that bucks make — primary and secondary.

The primary is the one that you're looking for. This is the active scrape that a buck will return to, and it's usually clustered within a few yards of other primary scrapes. It will usually be located off a main deer trail, close to where does usually travel, but it won't be in an exposed location.

It will have an overhanging limb, aptly referred to as the "licking branch" as the buck will nibble the end to leave his saliva (and scent).



And it will be muddy. This is from the buck rubbing his tarsal glands together, while urinating over them; thus, carrying his scent down to the ground. Yeah, I know how all this sounds, but how did you think bucks and does find each other?

A secondary scrape, on the other hand, is one that a buck makes on the edge of his territory, alerting other bucks that this is his domain.

It serves as a warning to other bucks, and will usually be found in places you wouldn't expect a buck to expose himself during daylight hours like in the middle of an open field.

Since it's not a primary scrape, he probably won't be back to keep it fresh. One good way to tell the difference is to recheck the scrape periodically; if it appears old and hasn't been freshened, it's a secondary scrape.

A good trick to distinguish the difference upon finding a scrape is to use a limb to spread dirt and leaves on top of it. Return the next day or two and check to see if it's been freshened. If it has, you have a primary scrape.

The size of the scrape can also tell you the size of the buck that made it. Generally speaking, a scrape six to eight inches in diameter was made by a young buck — probably a spike or forkhorn. A scrape measuring 12 to 18 inches was made by a slightly older six to eight point buck.

A scrape measuring 20 inches or larger (rejoice if you find one) was made by an older, mature buck, and you can bet it's the dominant buck in the area.

Here you can expect to see a big boy, sporting headgear the size of a Mac truck (my lingo for a trophy buck with 10 or more points). If you find a scrape of this size, don't overlook it even if you don't find any other sign; you can bet he's around and will be back.

Last Saturday (during the hurricane if you were out there), I was still hunting when I saw a buck speeding across an open field about 200 yards away. Man, he was big, and all I saw was rack and tail. I had been walking down a sandy trail for about 2,000 meters without seeing any deer tracks when I spotted him.

After I saw him, I back tracked to where I thought he came from. There I found a 20-inch scrape, freshly marked, 3-inch plus tracks in the center, located on the edge of an open field, inside some acorn trees, and just outside a thickly vegetated area with numerous deer trails cutting across. In other words, a primary scrape! You can bet I'll be hunting it next weekend.

When you hunt a primary scrape (you're a fool if you don't), be cautious. A mature buck knows his territory; and, if you're in it he'll know it. Thus, you have to be extra careful to catch him.

Set up your stand away from the scrape and not on-line with the direction he is moving (you don't want him to see you as he's moving to check it).

Keep the wind in your face as you set up your stand (so he doesn't wind you), and have some cover behind you so you don't stick out like a sore thumb (like a tree). Wait around and sooner or later he'll be back if nothing happened to him.

Scrape hunting is the probably the best method of hunting North American whitetail deer as bucks are eager to mate with receptive does, and they will do the unexpected to find one. It's the only time of the year when that smart old buck isn't being as cautious as he should be.

Do some walking in your favorite hunting area (wearing blaze orange of course) until you locate a scrape line. It shouldn't be difficult since a buck may make 20 to 30 in his territory during the rut.

Find a good spot to watch it, set up your stand, and hunt it until you bag him or until you're sure someone else did. It may take a little time, but it's a sure fire way to get a buck. Good luck and see you in the woods.

SPORTS SHORTS

Fountain City Classic — The fourth annual Fountain City Classic will be 1:30 p.m. Nov. 13 at Memorial Stadium, 4th Avenue and Victory Drive, Columbus.

The football game will feature the Fort Valley State Wildcats vs. the Albany State Golden Rams. The Wildcats sport an 6-3 season record while the Rams are undeafeated 9-0.

Both teams are undefeated in their league, the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference at 5-0 and seem to be on a collision course for the league title.

Tickets are available at Information, Ticketing and Registration and cost $10 in advance for adults, $12 at the gate; and $6 in advance for children 12 and under and $8 at the gate.

Hunter safety — A Hunter Safety Course course will be Nov. 16 and 17 from 6 to 9 p.m at Infantry Hall, Building 4, Classroom 2.

All people born on or after Jan. 1, 1961, must attend an approved course given by a state Department of Natural Resources if they wish to hunt on Fort Benning or in the state of Georgia. Students must attend both nights and need to bring their Social Security number.

Benefit run — A five-kilometer run and a one-mile fun run will be Nov. 13 at the Columbus College Woodruff Gym to raise proceeds for the Bud Radcliff Fund.

All proceeds from the run will help pay medical expenses for a double lung transplant for which Radcliff, 23, is currently on a waiting list in Chapel Hill, N.C. The one-mile fun run starts at 8 a.m. and the 5K run starts at 8:15 a.m.

For additional race information, call 327-1058 or 563-9290

World Community Day

Know and care for people around you

By Jeffrey Voyles
USAIC Chaplains' Office

My thoughts about World Community Day were not many until I was tasked to write this article. Honestly, I'd never heard of such a special day. However, I do know about community. My idea of community revolves around people and the places where people are known and cared for. Like the people in the town where I grew up — Chigger Hill, Ala.

Men like Mr. Pounders who always stopped plowing with his mule to wave at every passerby. Ralph, the local chicken farmer from whom we would buy our chickens. At night, we would throw rocks on the tin roof of his chicken coop just to hear the chickens as they flew from their roosts. The community teen-agers enjoyed hearing Ralph holler from his back porch as they hid in the woods. I think Ralph enjoyed this as much as the teen-agers.

Then there was Joe, the local bootlegger, who was totally accepted.

There were Johnny and Clara. Their yard was perfect for community gatherings. Tall Alabama loblolly pines provided the shade. Johnny was the local wise man. He knew the location of at least 13 moonshine stills. He was an Auburn graduate, high school teacher and farmer. But mostly he was an encourager to the young people. He believed we needed to better ourselves by getting an education. Most thought Johnny was a little "touched, if you know what I mean."

This article wouldn't be complete without a line or two about Mavis, the local store owner, community medicine woman and soprano in the church choir. She was married to "Nub," who had been wounded on Normandy Beach. Mavis not only knew how to get rid of summertime chiggers, she also knew how to make a person feel welcome. She had a kitchen in the store and most of the time there was something to eat and an extra plate. I'm sure the food tasted best the winter day the men of the community cared enough to climb to the top of Russell and Charlene's chicken house with the sledge hammers. We knocked away the four-inch thick ice the recent winter storm had left. In all, we saved four chicken houses from collapse that year.

As soldiers and military families, we leave one community to integrate into a new community.

For military families this happens over and over. Men and women from all over the country come together. What is most important is not that we come together but what we create. This community, where people are known and cared for, the "Chigger Hill" of America. By creating this kind of community we develop a building block for world community.

This is a community with people as odd as an albino squirrel on Chigger Hill and as different as daylight and dark, who live together in relative harmony and care for one another.

Stewardship is the gift of giving

By Carl Young
USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

What in the world is Stewardship Sunday?

My first thought was this is another method of asking for money. Unfortunately, when I talk about stewardship, the first question is, "How much do you want me to give?" We don't have an adequate definition of stewardship, therefore we struggle to discover what we should be doing.

Stewardship is more than money; it is the manner in which we exercise the gifts God has given us. Our gifts can include our time, talents and treasures. The difficulty lies in our efforts to be accountable to God.

Stewardship Sunday is the first Sunday in November, a day set aside annually to remind us that God gave us the responsibility to keep and share his gifts.

I must admit I don't understand those who refuse to give something to God. They are missing a golden opportunity to develop their gifts as Christians.

Stewardship is like the parable of the 10 minas. It tells of a nobleman preparing to go on a trip and gives some money to his servants to invest for him.

Those who made a profit were given a reward of greater responsibility. The one who refused to invest the money lost everything. It is God's desire for everyone to grow in his will. The failure to invest our gifts often hinders our growth.

We are the reception point of God's gifts. We would not have anything good in our lives unless it first came from God. He is telling us that instead of hiding our gifts, we should use them. The psalmist expressed it this way, "What I shall render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me." The answer for Christians today is, unmistakably, everything!

We often get into ruts and we just keep doing what was done in the past without plan or purpose. In doing so, we aren't stewards because we never thought about it. I remember as a young man I would put a dollar in the collection plate. This was during the time when a gallon of gas was 50 cents and a bottle of soft drink was 25 cents. I wonder how many of us could maintain our current lifestyle if our income was based on the wages received 30 years ago? Yet we ask our churches to do so!

There are two words I like using — intentional and proportional. First, intentionally set aside a certain amount of time and money to give. If we would consider a portion to be 10 percent, it would be easy to budget this amount. Now at the same time, we would save 10 percent. Yes, save. Saving is biblical. Look at the book of Malachi. The people stored their gifts in the warehouse and did not put anything in God's house. This did not work to their benefit. In the book of Genesis, during the time of plenty, Joseph stored food for the time of famine, in addition to the giving of the Hebrews.

I realize that not everyone can begin today giving tithes, but we can go to the altar with the "widow's mites." The Lord blessed her for giving all she had, and he will do the same for you.

Giving is personal. It is an act of faith. Every chapel needs people who will do some of the small things, like folding a bulletin or being another voice in a choir. God, as the author of all life, has called us to be stewards. He has entrusted to all of us the gifts of time, talent and treasure. We, therefore, must give proportionately and intentionally with grateful and thankful hearts.

Veterans Day: Take a moment to remember

By Pat Hash
USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

Winston Churchill was honoring members of the royal air force who had guarded England during the Second World War. Recounting their brave service, he declared, "Never in the history of mankind have so many owed so much to so few."

A similar sentiment appears on a memorial plaque in Bastogne, Belgium, where raged the famous Battle of the Bulge, one of the bloodiest conflicts of World War II. The inscription in honor of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division reads: "Seldom has so much American blood been shed in the course of a single action. Oh, Lord, help us to remember!"

Lord, help us to remember! A similar feeling caused King David to remember three men who risked their lives for him. This deep devotion to duty moved David to pour water out as an offering to the Lord, saying, "Is this not the blood of the men who went in jeopardy of their lives?"

That's also true of freedom. Unfortunately, in a sinful world, evil people enslave and oppress fellow human beings. Therefore, freedom must sometimes be bought and preserved with blood — that's why we honor our veterans. Men and women have served this great country and made sacrifices to ensure that freedom was preserved.

This week, take the time to seek out a veteran and express your thanks for the sacrifices he or she made for us and our great nation.

It is a fitting and well-deserved tribute you will make to them and maybe one long overdue. They may not serve in an active duty role now, but they still love our country and the things it stands for.

The veterans took the time to serve. Let each of us take the time to remember them and what they mean to our nation and its history.

On March 21, 1969, a patrol in Vietnam descended a steep bank to fill their canteens in a stream. As they stooped in two feet of water, the area suddenly exploded with machine-gun fire and grenades. Several men were hit. One soldier, with complete disregard for his own safety, assisted other soldiers up the bank. He continued the assistance until he was wounded and unable to continue.

Twenty-one years later, one of the men who was pulled from the water learned that the friend who had rescued him was still alive. The friend was now paralyzed from the waist down. With a heart full of appreciation, he honored the one who had saved his life. With a heart full of appreciation, we need to honor our veterans and keep alive their works of sacrifice and giving of blood.

Support seminar

Drill sergeants, spouses learn to cope with stress

By Shelby Carr
Infantry Training Brigade

A drill sergeant support seminar was conducted at the Airport Holiday Inn in Columbus for 36 drill sergeants and their spouses from 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, to share the stress of their duty and how it affects their jobs, marriages and families.

The purpose of the seminar, facilitated by Jon Adams of the Bradley Center and Pastoral Institute of Columbus, and Lt. Col. Bruce D. Grant, commander of the 2nd Bn., 58th Inf. Regt., was to help the drill sergeants and their spouses to become aware of their stress thresholds and then to actively pursue ways to deal with the stress in their particular situations, said Chaplain (Capt.) Bill Hartman, Infantry Training Brigade.

Communication and conflict resolution skills were presented as the two major ways to deal with those stresses. Handouts were given on "Coping with Stress as a Couple," "Assumptions About Conflict" and "Three Steps for Processing Anger," said Hartman.

This seminar featured a mixture of lectures and time to work on practical exercises that would facilitate communication between the drill sergeants and their spouses.

One segment of the seminar gave the couples the opportunity to break into separate groups. During these two sessions, the wives discussed the things that caused them stress as a drill sergeant's wife. Some practical ideas that some wives were already doing to cope with that stress included making time to develop their own interests, swapping baby-sitting with other families and getting involved in the battalion family support group, said Hartman.

As well as stating what things caused stress for drill sergeants, the men discussed what it takes to be a good drill sergeant and some ways they were already coping with the stress of drill sergeant duty within their own families.

The talked about dating their wives, sharing family duties and listening to what their children have been doing.

The seminar emphasized communication as the bottom line in effectively dealing with stress. Spouses bring a good amount of emotional baggage into a marriage relationship from the families they grew up in, and these issues must be talked through and understood so they do not become or remain negative stress points within the marriage, said Hartman.

Adams shared some barriers to communication that must be overcome, like finding the time and a place to communicate, mind-reading on the part of spouses, and interpreting nonverbal communications.

He said couples need to watch out for assumptions, like "I'm always right, therefore I don't need to hear what you say" or "It's your problem, not mine."

In conclusion, Adams pointed out that people must commit their time, their energy and their priorities in order to communicate with confidence, resolve conflict and relieve stress.

Grant concluded the seminar with an open discussion period for the drill sergeants and their spouses to address any other topics that might improve communication within the unit.

An Army leader once said, "Good military units have good communication." The Drill Sergeant Support Seminar served to improve the communication in the unit. It allowed both drill sergeants and their spouses the opportunity to address issues concerning them both on the job and at home. It gave the chain of command new insight into these concerns and provided the information needed to solve some problems, said Hartman.

The Drill Sergeant Support Seminar was underwritten by the Fort Benning Consolidated Chaplains Fund. Along with Hartman, Chaplain (Capt.) Jeff Voyles of the Infantry Training Brigade, coordinated this program with Grant.

USAMU

Brother, sister team make dynamic duo

By Anthony Jackson
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

First there was Batman and Robin, then the Green Hornet and Kato. Now it appears another duo is out to claim their fame and glory and go down in history — as the two best international pistol shooters in the world.

U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit Pfcs. Chad and Shane Harreld, a brother and sister team from Chiloquin, Ore., seem to put a new twist on the old adage "two heads are better than one" and are full speed ahead on a track that can lead to nothing but success.

Shane, 21, and Chad, 19, both developed a love for pistol shooting when they were in their teens. According to them, it was this love of the sport that motivated them, to decide to do whatever it took to become the best.

"As junior shooters, we knew that to become world class level the competition was fierce," said Shane. "To be the best, you had to train with the best so we started out at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado."

"Colorado was great, but we couldn't devote the amount of time to training that was necessary to become world-class level because of school and working jobs and the normal problems you face in life," Chad said.

"So we did the best we could and basically waited to see what would happen," Shane continued.

According to AMU officials, the Harrelds were spotted at a match in Colorado and because of the duo's tremendous talent, were recruited on the spot. Now begins the Harreld's climb to the top.

Enlisting in the Army under the "unit of choice" program, the Harrelds' first experienced "Army life" at their basic training station at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. Though in separate companies, the brother and sister team recalled the occasional meetings they would have.

"Every so often we would bump into each other when we were allowed Post Exchange privileges or we would see each other in church," said Shane. "It was a little odd being together, but not being together. When we would see each other usually it was only for a few moments, but it was enough to motivate us to make it through basic training."

"Once we got through those eight weeks the real test was making it through AIT (advanced individual training)," continued Chad. "Along with having our unit of choice, we selected to become medics.

"Of course that meant going through the basic medic course at Fort Sam Houston, Texas," Chad said.

"If you are a single male, then Fort Sam Houston is probably the place you want to be," joked Chad, but unfortunately if you're in the medic course, all those women become a distraction, which is something you don't want."

"The course is more than enough to keep one busy," continued Shane.

"The biggest reason people were being dropped from the course was they weren't devoting the time and commitment it took to complete it. Continually studying for exams, trying to sift through all the new information that was constantly being thrown at you, it was pretty rough."

Once you did finish, however, it was the most satisfying feeling in the world, she said.

So from AIT it was the big move to Fort Benning, and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit.

"When we graduated from AIT, our parents were ecstatic," said Shane. "We were happy too, but we knew bigger and better things awaited us here. The fun had just begun."

Now with barely six months military experience under their belts, the Harrelds have quickly adapted to their new lifestyles and have already begun to turn heads in the shooting world.

"Having only been at the unit for barely six months Harreld (Chad) has already racked up a few prestigious tiles," said AMU International Pistol noncommissioned officer in charge Sgt. 1st Class Vincent Yuille. "In Bowling Green, Ky., Chad was the junior air pistol champion in the Daisey Air Gun Championships and in Predo, Calif., he claimed the Junior National Free Pistol Championship and took third in the air pistol event."

But to talk of one Harreld, you have to talk of the other as well, Yuille said.

During a recent match in Butler, Pa., Shane shot her personal best score of 569 (out of a possible 600 points) in the 25-meter Ladies Sport Pistol Course, said Yuille. "And with the progress she has made in her short tenure with the unit so far, her chances of making the 94 Conseil International du Sport Militaire shooting team look very good."

"We practice hard every day to be the best, but we work just as hard at being ourselves and enjoying life," Shane said . "I love to fish and delve into my craftworks, and when it comes to country dancing there's nothing that can keep me off the dance floor."

"I thought that when I enlisted I wouldn't have the time to do all the things I like to do, but just because I'm in the Army doesn't mean I can't have fun," said Chad.

"I still love to downhill ski and scuba dive, and every chance I get I'm out on the ranch working. I think the only thing that has really changed about us is that now we're devoting more time to shooting, but even that hasn't really changed," said Shane. "We're just now in a better position to excel at something we truly love."

"And really that's what it's all about," said Chad. "Finding what you really want out of life, going for it and being the best you can be at it."

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week...

• In the Solomons, vicious fighting on Bougainville between the invading U.S. forces spearheaded by the 3rd Marine Division and the defending Japanese 23rd Regiment raged throughout the week. U.S. forces prevailed repelling Japanese counterattacks, strengthening their numbers with the landing of the 37th Infantry Division, and driving further inland. Off shore, the carriers USS Saratoga and USS Princeton survived a Japanese air attack virtually unscathed.

• On New Britain, Allied Naval forces initiated a series of attacks against Japanese positions on or near the island. In one action, U.S. aircraft inflicted significant damage to eight enemy ships, including four heavy cruisers. A later effort resulted in the destruction of 70 Japanese planes, as well as three ships, as two allied carrier task forces launched a five carrier, 185 plane joint attack against the Japanese garrison at Rabaul.

• Fort Benning celebrated its Silver Anniversary, businessmen marked the event by offering so many discounts to servicemen that The Bayonet had to publish a 44-page issue to handle all the advertisements.

Golden Knight team freefalls for gold medal

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — Look! Up in the sky. It's a bird. It's a plane. It's the U.S. Army parachute team's freefall formation team, fresh from their victory at the U.S. Nationals for freefall formation skydiving in DeLand, Fla.

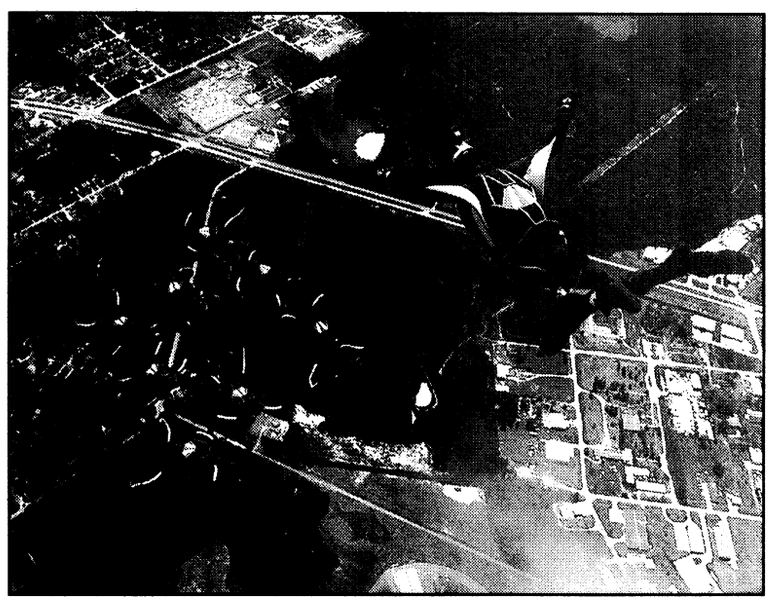
The Golden Knight team, made up of Staff Sgt. James Coffman, Staff Sgt. J.K. Davis, Staff Sgt. Craig Girard, Staff Sgt. Paul Rafferty, Sgt. Carey Mills, Sgt. Darren Schuster, Sgt. Joe Trinko, Sgt. Tim Wagner, Cpl. Matt Diglio and Cpl. Rob Work, who are the reigning world champions in freefall formation skydiving, recently won first place in the eight-way Open Relative Work competition, tying the U.S. national record of 20 points. They will represent the United States at the World Freefall Formation Championships to be held later this month in Eloy, Ariz.

Not only did they win the gold in eight-way, but they also set a new team record for averaging 16 completed formations for the six-round meet.

Eight-way competition started at 12,500 feet over DeLand, Fla. When the team exited the aircraft, it had 50 seconds to complete all formations, which were predetermined the day before the jump.

Constant training at Raeford, N.C., keeps the Freefall Formation Team in shape and ready for international competition.

The Freefall Formation Team, world champions in 1987, 1989 and 1991, and World Cup champions in 1986, 1988 and 1990, will be trying to heal the wound of placing second to the French team at last year's World Cup in Gap, France.



They will be one of 39 teams vying for the title of world champion, a title that the Golden Knights have become accustomed to holding.

In other competition during the week-long event, the eight-way team divided into two four-man teams to compete in the four-way open. The Golden Knight Black team placed third, while the Golden Knight Gold team finished fifth.

All 10 members competed in the 10-way competition, finishing in first place for the first time ever and setting a new meet record time of 4.67 seconds in the sixth round. It was the fastest 10-way time in the last four years at the competition.

In the 20-way competition, the Golden Knights helped to set a new U.S. record of 14 points during the first round, finishing with a total of 36 following four rounds.

So, if you're driving near Raeford and spot a group of guys in black jumpsuits falling toward the ground, don't be alarmed. It's not a bird or a plane. It's just another Gold Medal in the making.

Hometown boy makes good ... recruiter

Fort Benning engineer goes home to help give his community a closer look at Army

By Tom Blackwood
Sacramento Recruiting Battalion

Looking for some extra leave time? How does two weeks back home with family and friends and without being charged any military annual leave time sound?

Sound good? Well, maybe you know someone who can qualify. The Army recently selected Pfc. Ed Sapinozo, Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, to participate in the Hometown Recruiter Assistance Program.

Staff Sgt. Ricardo Ybarra from the Stockton Recruiting Station cheerfully calls him a "silent war hero."

Smiling and a little bit shy, Sapinozo volunteered two weeks of his time to help support the Army's Hometown Recruiting Assistance Program.

At first glance Sapinozo seemed like a regular recruiter who blended in with the Stockton recruiters; Sgt. lst Class Pedro Lopez, Staff Sgt. Mark Reaves, Ybarra and Staff Sgt. Brenda Kendrick.

However, upon a closer look at his Army uniform, you could not help but notice a young private with a number of awards.

Proudly wearing an Army Expeditionary Award Ribbon, a U.S. Army Humanitarian Award Ribbon, and a Joint Meritorious Unit Citation Award Ribbon, Sapinozo displayed some well recognized and distinguished Army awards.

Sapinozo, a veteran of only one year, recently arrived back from Somalia.

Volunteering for HRAP made it possible for Sapinoza to visit home for two weeks and not have to use any of his annual military leave. The primary purpose of HRAP is to allow outstanding soldiers to return to their hometown to assist local Army recruiters.

According to Ybarra, his former Army recruiter, Sapinozo signed a DA Form 4187 requesting to volunteer in the Army's Hometown Recruiter Assistance Program.

"He and I visited Franklin High School where he graduated," Ybarra said. "We talked to seniors and friends he knew from school. The students took a special interest toward Sapinozo," Ybarra said. "They wanted to know about basic training and how tough drill sergeants were when he went through basic training," said Ybarra.

According to Ybarra, these type of fears were quickly put to rest. Both he and Sapinozo responded in a positive manner reassuring students that Army training requires soldiers to be physically fit, well disciplined and skill qualified.

"Basic training is probably harder the first week for most soldiers," Ybarra also told students. Becoming a soldier requires mental discipline. The best way to succeed is to listen carefully and follow orders," said Ybarra.

Ybarra and Sapinozo worked together for two weeks and generated many leads and appointments for the Stockton Recruiting Station.

Ben Talley Jr., HRAP representative at the Sacramento Recruiting Battalion said, "HRAP is a gold mine for Army recruiting. The cost of the program is small in comparison to the many rewards this program has to offer."

Capt. Richard Behrens, operations officer at battalion headquarters said, "By sharing their personal Army experiences with friends and acquaintances, HRAP soldiers can help local Army recruiters spread the news that the Army is still hiring and has great options and benefits.

"HRAP is one of the most under-used sales tool in the United States Army Recruiting Command today. First-hand Army experience combined with being from the local community makes the HRAP soldier a powerful recruiting source for leads and referrals," he added. "Every applicant we put into today's Army should be a potential HRAP soldier for future Army recruiting," Behrens concluded.

Ybarra noticed something special about Sapinozo when he first met him.

"Sapinozo looked and acted like a potential outstanding soldier when I first met him," Ybarra said. "What I really noticed was his positive attitude and his sincerity of wanting to learn a specific job skill."

Sapinozo entered the Army in 1992 to become a heavy construction equipment operator. He completed basic training and was reassigned to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., to complete his advanced individual training as a heavy construction equipment operator learning to operate a grader.

After completion of his training at Fort Leonard Wood, Sapinozo was reassigned to Fort Benning.

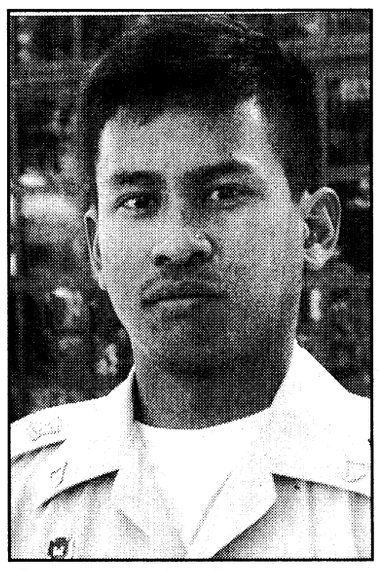
His unit deployed in January to Somalia. During his short tour in Africa, Sapinozo worked as a grader operator.

His unit took part in helping to improve existing roads and aided in building an air strip.

Keeping roads open and air strips operational were critical for relief supplies to reach their final destinations.

"Operation Restore Hope" provided humanitarian aid to many of the people of Somalia.

Sapinozo returned home in March with plans to apply to Airborne School and Ranger School while stationed at Fort Benning.



When asked what he thought about the Army's Hometown Recruiter Assistance Program, Sapinozo said, "It's great! I only work 24 hours each week for Army recruiting and get to spend the rest of my free time with my family and friends."

Sapinozo also had recommendations for high school seniors or recent graduates. "I wish I had joined the Army sooner," he said. "Don't procrastinate! Join the Army as soon as you can."

If interested in qualifying for the Hometown Recruiter Assistance Program or you know of someone who might be qualified, contact the installation representative for HRAP at your unit's retention office. He or she will give you details on how to apply. A DA Form 4187, Personnel Action, will have to be filled out and submitted through command channels, requesting permissive temporary duty status at no cost to the government.

If the information is not available at your unit, call any local Army recruiting office.

How to qualify for Hometown Recruiting Assistance Program

Sapinozo: Soldier assigned to Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, recently participated in the Hometown Recruiting Assistance Program.

Applicants must meet all of the following criteria:

- Been selected soldier of the month, quarter, cycle, or year at the battalion level or higher, within the past six months.
- Have not reached 26th birthday.
- Volunteer to participate in the program.
- Be stationed in the continental United States.
- Meet Army height-weight standards of AR 600-9.
- Graduated with a diploma from your hometown high school.
- Applicant's high school is no more than 30 miles away from the nearest Army recruiting station.

Drawdown: Review puts it on firm footing

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

Defense Secretary Les Aspin said the bottom-up review puts the U.S. military drawdown on firm footing. He also said forces recommended by the review can handle foreseeable threats to the country and its interests.

Aspin said during a Sept. 14 interview that DoD kept in mind the morale of the force while conducting the review and that the state of the world is such that American service members will find themselves in many countries under "ambiguous" circumstances.

Aspin ordered the review soon after swearing in as defense secretary. Planners looked at the threats facing the United States and the forces and resources needed to counter them.

Aspin said the review was based on the premise of four threats to the United States. They are regional conflicts, proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, threats to reform in the former Soviet Union and threats to the health of the American economy.

He said regional conflicts most determined the size of the force. The numbers of Army divisions, carrier battle groups and air wings came out of the need to confront two nearly simultaneous contingencies.

"The other threats played parts in the equation," he said. "They affect the shape of the defense budget a little bit — what you buy, what you do in the way of training — but the sheer number of forces are really driven by the regional threat."

For the review, planners picked Southwest Asia and Korea to test their theories on force size and mix. "We picked two we thought were realistic," Aspin said, "Southwest Asia and the Persian Gulf because there is a lot of turmoil there. There is the possibility of another Desert Storm with Iraq or perhaps with Iran. Of course, the possibility of war with North Korea is not totally farfetched."

But the important point is the United States is not locked into just these contingencies. "We almost never fight where we expect to," he said. "History is full of examples where we were prepared to fight in a particular area and then didn't have to. Maybe it's because we were prepared and there's a certain amount of deterrence.

"What this means is that you don't want to get so in love with planning scenarios that you can't plan for anywhere else."

Some observers question whether a smaller military can fight and win two nearly simultaneous conflicts. Aspin said the constraining factor is transportation.

"If there's any question about our ability to handle two regional contingencies today, it isn't because we don't have the forces, it's because we can't get them there. We don't have the airlift, and we don't have the sealift. So I would say a smaller force that had the airlift and sealift would have a better chance of dealing with two contingencies than the current force."

Other problem areas will continue to crop up, he said. "American military forces will find themselves in a lot of different parts of the world in ambiguous circumstances. Are they there as friends or enemies?" Aspin said.

He used Somalia as an example of these ambiguous circumstances. "Most of the people in Somalia welcome us. But the members of the Aidid faction — who are trying to take over — resent us. Other (peacekeeping operations) will be more benign, and others will be more dangerous. Being in the peacekeeping business does not mean a bigger force, but it might affect the training and equipment service members get."

The media talks about the services being "winners and losers" in the bottom-up review, but Aspin doesn't like this emphasis. "We're trying to put together a force to defend the country and defend its national security interests," he said. "You don't think in terms of somebody winning and losing as if this were some kind of a contest. It's not the Army-Navy football game."

Aspin emphasized the morale of service members was important to DoD planners while they were conducting the review.

"One example is (ship) deployments," he said. "Very early on we made the decision that carrier deployments are six months and no more. We planned on that. We didn't fudge it by saying, 'Well, maybe if you creep it up to seven or eight months.' We wanted to maintain the quality of life that the service members have been used to."

Other areas covered in the interview included a pay raise, the Middle East and Bosnia.

SOA employee wins award

By Devon Kerbow
School of the Americas

A library technician was awarded the Commanders Award for Civilian Service, one of the highest honors given to civilian employees at the School of the Americas Oct. 15 for being the employee of the year.

Sylvia I. Tricoche received a medal, a certificate and a $100 award from Col. Jose M. Alvarez, SOA's commandant.

Although Tricoche was also the recipient of the Employee of the Year Award in 1991, she expressed surprise at being chosen again.

"People were congratulating me," she said. "I thought it was for being employee of the month."

Each time Tricoche was selected, the school had been without a head librarian. She admitted that it hadn't been easy doing the librarian's job in addition to her own duties.

The award is given for special acts and performance over and above normal duties, said Connie S. Brown, an administrative clerk at SOA.

Tricoche's secret for success: "I do my own work right and I do more than I have to," she said.

Criminal Investigation Division

Fort Benning's criminal Investigation Division is requesting the assistance of the local community in identifying a motorcyclist who attempted to rob a motorist Oct. 28, at 7:45 p.m. at the Marne Road exit ramp off U.S. 27 East.

The suspect, a white male, was riding a motorcycle and wearing an opened face white helmet with a thick red stripe down the middle and two thinner stripes along the side.

Anyone who observes a motorcyclist with a helmet matching this description should contact the Military Police at 545-5222 or the Criminal Investigation Division duty agent at 545-2414.

This individual is believed to be armed and potentially dangerous, officials said.

Fall festival provides family fun

By Jerrie Macintire

Fairy princesses rubbed elbows with bunny rabbits as children and parents joined together for an afternoon of family fun at the annual McBride School Fall Festival.

Brightly colored balloons floated overhead the festive crowd as children, many dressed up in Halloween costumes, enthusiastically joined lines in the multi-purpose room to win prizes or purchase snacks. Despite the steady drizzle of a chilly day, parents arrived in droves and filled parking lots and nearby fields to capacity.

Military police officers directed traffic and Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps volunteers from Spencer High School passed out anti-drug abuse stickers and ribbons as children arrived with parents in tow to enjoy this annual family day festival at McBride.

"This project is coordinated with youngsters in mind," said Anne Justice, assistant principal. "We want them to have a good time with their families and to enjoy school in a non-achievement situation," she said.

Although the entertainment cost a nominal fee, the goal of the festival was not profit.

"Our true desire is that families can enjoy these fun activities together," she said.

However, any money that is made will benefit the school's activities fund, Justice said. This fund will help with fields trips, supplies, or "whatever the needs may be." Sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Organization, the festival is run by parent volunteers who work in shifts, rotating jobs.

About 60 parent volunteers helped with every aspect of the festival such as the bean bag toss, treasure hunt, pick-a-boat and cake walk.

"We had some really great cakes from ninja turtles and Halloween themes to traditional good old vanilla with chocolate frosting," PTO President Lee Ann Cox said.

Some parents helped with face painting, while others sold tickets, balloons or snacks.

Parents also engraved names on costume jewelry, attached bags of goodies to fishing poles at the "fish pond," or monitored the "dig for treasure" sawdust arena.

"We could not exist here without the support and involvement of parents," Justice said.

The festival was a success this year due to parent participation as well as the community involvement, Justice said.

The community helped by donating raffle items, food donations, merchandise and services, Cox said.

The Rifle and Pistol Club of Fort Benning also helped by manning the popular "pop-a-balloon" booth .

Community volunteers and parents combined efforts "and did a wonderful job," Cox said.

In addition to the fall festival, the PTO hosts a variety of special events and seminars throughout the year. Upcoming events include:

- A lunch-n-learn program. This is a 30 to 45 minute program exploring special programs in the school such as the computer lab and the star lab planetarium.
- A winter musical in December. The PTO and community support the music teacher in presenting a holiday special.
- A spring musical featuring the younger students.
- A learning styles seminar featuring information on how to identify a child's individual learning style.
- A family supper night where teachers volunteer to cook for parents.
- Field Day in the spring. The PTO provides workers and ribbons for this annual day featuring athletic contests.

Wearing helmets now mandatory for BICYCLE RIDERS

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet©

Every year more than 1,000 people in the United States are killed in bicycle accidents and approximately 50,000 are injured, according to information from the Infantry Branch Safety Office.

In July, Georgia passed a law to help increase the safety of bike riders throughout the state, including Fort Benning.

The new law requires all children under the age of 16 to wear a Department of Transportation approved helmet while riding a bike. Also, as part of the same law, children between the ages of 1 and 4 must be in a passenger seat for bike rides and infants under the age of 1 year are prohibited from riding on a bike.

Currently Fort Benning policy also mandates that all bicycle riders must wear a helmet and reflective vest whenever they are on a Fort Benning road with a speed limit of 35 mph or greater.

Bicycles should be equipped with front and rear reflectors. Any bicycle ridden at night must have head and taillights visible from a distance of 300 feet.

There are also several "rules of the road" that a bicyclist should remember to help increase their own safety including; keeping to the right of the road, not riding on running tracks or other pedestrian areas and obeying all traffic signals and signs.

CFC campaign continues

Donations to the 1993 Combined Federal Campaign have reached $286,414 or 48 percent, of the $600,000 goal as of Tuesday.

With less than two weeks remaining in this year's campaign donations have not reached the half-way mark.

The CFC allows military and civilian personnel from Fort Benning to donate to charitable organizations through a monthly payroll deduction. The six-week campaign kicked off Oct. 1.

Students conduct scientific research

By Jerrie Macintire
Special to The Bayonet©

A group of Fort Benning students has gone to work for the National Geographic in the scientific research department, but they haven't left home.

Dexter School students are comparing their region to areas around the world through a telecommunications link with the National Geographic Kids Network, teacher Virginia Wilcox said.

As part of the network's "Hello" unit of study, third-graders in Wilcox's class are contrasting the Fort Benning area with 14 other regions around the United States and Canada. This group of schools will ultimately join other clusters of schools around the world in submitting research data on one aspect of their cultures — pet ownership.

Other countries participating in this project include Canada, Cuba, Germany, Hong Kong, the Netherlands and Portugal.

"This is the second year at Dexter for this program," Wilcox said. The National Geographic Kids Network assigned participating schools to small study groups that are part of a larger group of almost 600 schools. She said her students will serve as researchers for the National Geographic and collect data on numbers and types of pets in their region.

For six weeks, this telecommunications program will enable students to work as scientists, using maps and charts to investigate pet ownership in their culture.

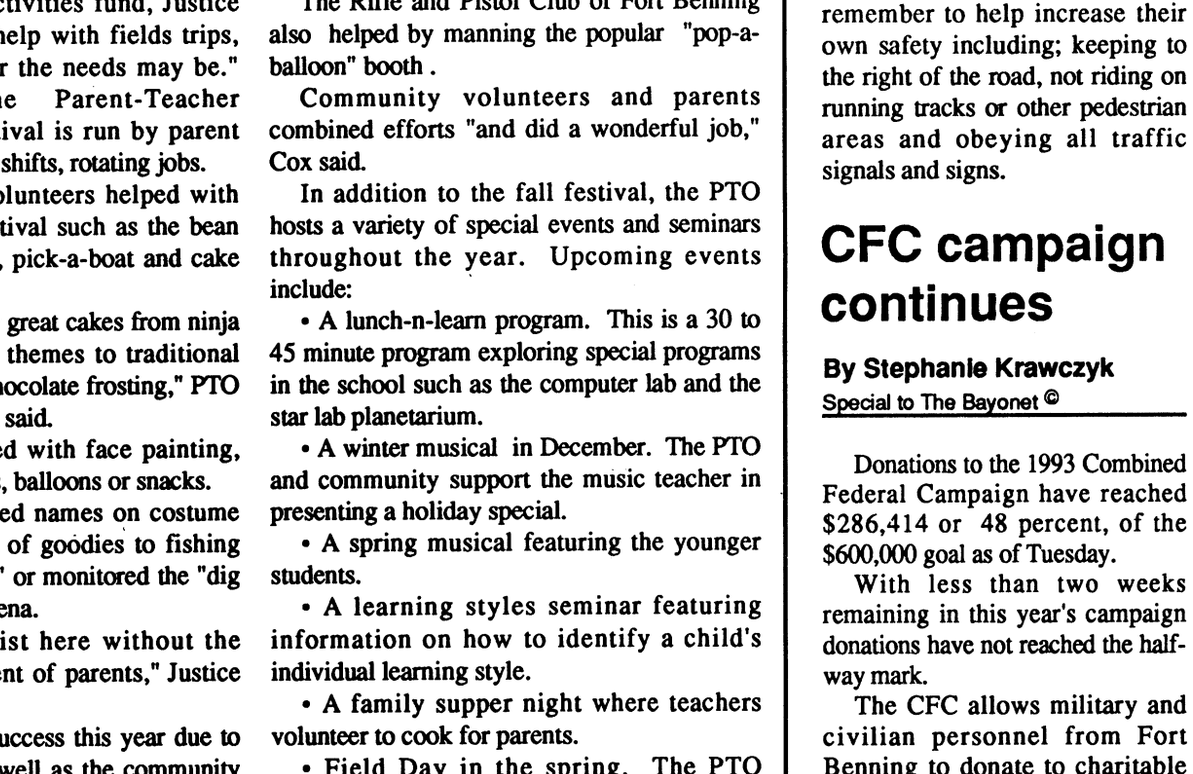
A study sheet from the network notes that maps are the primary tools geographers use to consider differences in cultures. Studying maps can help people understand where things are located and why, it stated.

This project is designed to help the students better understand the world in which they live and to provide interdisciplinary studies. Math, social studies, science, reading and writing are some skills the students will use during this unit of study, said Wilcox.

She said students used writing and English skills when they drafted introduction letters to other schools in their small group. The students were randomly paired, and each group contributed to the letter which documented Dexter School, the Fort Benning community, geographic terrain, lifestyles of residents and the special events of the area.

Wilcox supervised the construction of the letter but helped very little with the content. Children wrote with pride about their school and the Army community

"We don't grow crops to sell, but we train 'heirborne' (third-grade spelling of 'airborne') and rangers, infantry basics and soldiers from South America and other countries," they wrote.



The children noted that the summers are hot, there are no close mountains, but the Chattahoochee River runs right through the post. "Have you heard Alan Jackson's song?" about the Chattahoochee, they asked other members of their cluster.

This telecommunications link has also enabled students to learn social studies while processing information from other schools on lifestyles and community events. They were instructed to consider "How do you think your community might be similar to the communities your research teammates live in? How might your community be different?"

The program also provided study of geography as the students located their small group partners on the map and globe, Wilcox noted.

This telecommunication program also offers an abundance of math projects as students graph and chart pet data from other schools.

"How many schools do you think we will hear from today?" asked Wilcox earlier this week. As hands went up around the room, she charted estimates on the chalk board before asking a student to find the answer by turning on the computer and coming "on line" with the network.

Jerrie Macintire/Special to The Bayonet

Following this time with the computer, the children created a variety of unique graphs detailing their own pets.

Wilcox urged her charges to think of an alternative to the ever popular bar graph. "Let's try another kind of graph," she urged, as children spread out in randomly assigned pairs armed with construction paper, colored markers, rulers and poster board. Some children used symbols such as paw prints to depict the number of dogs the class kept as pets. Others discussed pie charts or colorful line graphs.

When the six-week course is completed at Dexter and other participating schools, the assigned unit scientist will receive and study the data. Dexter students are working with a professor of Geography at the University of Missouri, who will compile the data from her groups of schools and share results with all the participants throughout the network.

"We will then compare our prediction" about how pet ownership might vary in other areas, said Wilcox.

Tot Town celebrates 36 years

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The Tot Town Child Development Center celebrated its 36th anniversary Oct. 28 with a day-long celebration including a cake-cutting ceremony.

Tot Town is a non profit, private organization that provides hourly and regular part-time care to the children of military members.

Managed by the Daughters of the U. S. Army, the center has provided safe, short-term care for the children of Fort Benning is the only hourly child care program in the military worldwide, according to DUSA.

The center cares for approximately 200 children a day from the ages of 3 months to 12 years.

"We are very much in demand," said Ida Barnes, supervisor for Tot Town.

"So many people have part-time jobs and their wife or husband is not at home to watch the children, so they need us," she said.

Barnes has worked with Tot Town for 25 years, and says that four others there have worked with the center almost 20 years.

Barnes said that when they opened the first Tot Town, it was the only child care on post. "Our first building was in the old wooden barracks behind the Infantry Museum," she said.

The center stayed in the barracks until 1968, when the present building, Building 1051, was built.

Tot Town remained the only child-care facility for Fort Benning until 1975 when another child-care center was opened near the Main Mall Post Exchange, said Barnes.

DUSA was formed at Fort Benning in 1928 so daughters and granddaughters of Army officers could keep in touch with one another. In 1932, the society moved its headquarters to Washington, D.C.

Today's society is open to the daughters and granddaughters of active duty or retired commissioned officers in any branch of service.

The organization is now dedicated to the welfare of military communities.

For more information on the child-care center, call Tot Town at 689-8772 or 689-8698. Eligible members interested in joining DUSA can call Lani Longarzo at 682-6754.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

2/58th Patriots conduct fall formal

By Edward J. Taylor
Infantry Training Brigade

The 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, the "Patriot Battalion" of the Infantry Training Brigade, conducted its fall formal at the Sand Hill NCO Club Oct. 9.

The Patriot formal had all the trappings of a normal military formal with decorations, food, entertainment and dancing. The formal combined features of an infantry dining in and a military ceremony steeped in tradition were also present.

Some spouses, including Nanette Pigg, head of the battalion's Family Support Group, at first had a few reservations about adding elements of a dining in. Afterward, though, she echoed the sentiments of the rest of the battalion that it proved to be a fun and interesting night.

After the receiving line, a short cocktail hour, an opportunity for couples to have pictures taken and the dining-in portion of the evening was conducted.

The noncommissioned officers conducted a regimental punch bowl ceremony, adding spirits as they recounted the history of the 58th Infantry.

Afterward, the master of ceremonies, known as "Mr. Vice," recognized different members of the mess as they stood to make "points of order." These points of order humorously pointed out breaches in etiquette of their peers. However, only soldiers had to obey the somewhat strenuous rules of the mess.

The evening had more than a few humorous moments such as Mr. Vice, Staff Sgt. John Flynn, trying to cut his prime rib with a chain saw, feeble attempts by members of the mess to sing songs, and an impromptu but rousing recitation of the "Drill Sergeants Creed" by Sgt. 1st Class Al Lezcano.

After dinner, the formal continued with a performance by a chorus composed of a platoon from Company C, 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, and led by Pvt. 1 Christopher Dunic. Battalion Commander Lt. Col. Bruce D. Grant then addressed the group, recognizing those who had put so much work into making the night a success.

The formalities closed with awarding of centerpieces, which were made by Patriot spouse Samantha Fitzsimmons. The formal then continued late into the evening with dancing.

College reps to visit Nov. 18

Army Continuing Education System

A college fair will be Nov. 18 from noon to 9 p.m. at the Main NCO Club's Blue Room, Building 2784, in observance of American Education Week, which is Nov. 14 to 20.

Sponsored by the Army Continuing Education System, the fair will include college representatives who will provide information about degree programs, entrance requirements, financial aid and more.

The national theme is "Better Schools Shape a Better Tomorrow." The Army's theme is "Unlock Your Future — Help Shape a Better Tomorrow."

The following post-secondary institutions have been invited to the fair:

Alabama State University, Albany State College, Auburn University, Chattahoochee Valley State Community College, Clark Atlanta University, Columbus College, Columbus Technical Institute, Fort Valley State College, Morris Brown College, Troy State University-Fort Benning, Troy State University-Phenix City and Tuskegee University.

College representatives will also provide information about on- and off-campus housing, student health services, campus events and sororities and fraternities.

College catalogs and brochures will be available to visitors. Army Continuing Education System counselors will also be present.

DEXTER: Students learn research

One purpose of the exercise is to help children develop the skills to make "educated guesses," she added.

Through this program, students learn to generate and interpret data as well as to make predictions, Wilcox said. They believe they are part of a team, and the other researchers are depending upon them for accurate and concise information.

The pets enjoyed by Dexter students ran the gamut from dogs and cats to the less common turtles, birds, hamsters, a few schools of fish and even a rat.

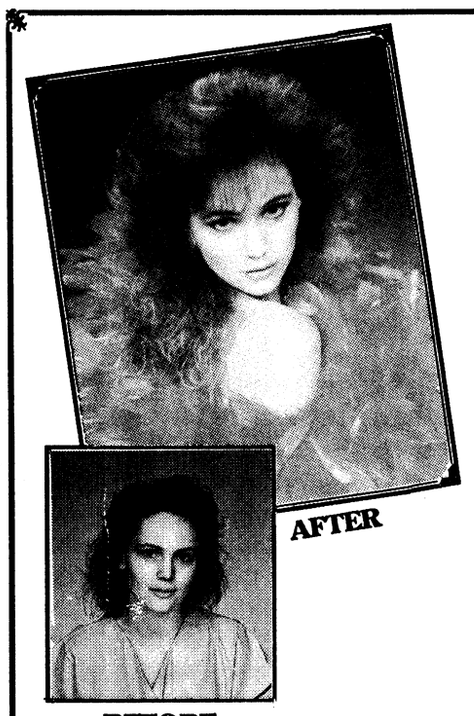
The unit scientist questioned the children by proxy, "Do you think people living in different places own different kinds of pets? If so, Why?"

Dexter students should be able to compare their answers to scientific facts when this unit of study ends Nov. 12.

This playful puppy is just one of many cats and dogs available for adoption on post.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.



Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner of a lost pet.

Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records when changes occur.

Veterinary Services also urges post personnel to undertsand completely the responsibilities of owning a pet and the post regulations governing those responsibilities.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Oct. 13 to 19. Such entries may be incomplete and are not determination of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns unattended children. USAIC Regulation 210-5 (Garrison Regulation) holds parents and sponsors responsible for family members at all times while on Fort Benning. Parents and sponsors are reminded that children are prohibited from playing in streets, construction areas, troop billeting areas, golf courses, or public buildings (except those designated for this purpose).

When playing outside, children should always be under the supervision of the parent, sponsor or another responsible adult. Children under 8 years of age cannot be left unattended in a parked vehicle and children under 12 are not allowed to be left alone in government quarters. If you observe a lost or unattended child, report it to the Military Police at 545-5222 or 545-5223.

• A civilian was charged with criminal damage to property after she poured a two-pound bag of sugar into a vehicle's gas tank.

• A staff sergeant was charged with wrongful use of a controlled substance after testing positive for marijuana on a random unit urinalysis.

• A 2 1/2-ton cargo truck caught fire by unknown means while parked in a unit motor pool.

• A private was charged with failure to pay debt after she failed to render payment for numerous long-distance calls she made on a telephone she shared with her roommate.

• A sergeant was charged with assault after he grabbed his wife by the throat and choked her.

• A private was accidentally shot in the leg off post with a .45-caliber pistol.

• A specialist was charged with animal abuse and abandonment after he moved out of his government quarters and left his dog tied to a clothesline pole without food, water or shelter.

• A specialist was charged with assault upon a child under 16 years after he hit a two-year-old child on the buttocks with a U.S. Army web type belt to discipline the child for breaking a glass top table.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the private who was administered a command-directed breathalyzer test with a result of .09. Further investigation revealed that the private was under the legal age to consume alcohol. The private was charged with being drunk on duty and failure to obey a lawful order.

Other activities included 12 traffic accidents and five reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were five cases of driving under the influence of alcohol and 15 cases of larceny of private property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-2222 or 545-2223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

TAKE A BITE OUT OF CRIME

ASK THE JUDGE

By Michael H. Lane
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q: I am about to retire, am 41 years of age and in good health. My wife and I are discussing whether I should sign up for the Survivor Benefit Plan when I retire. The SBP deduction will be 6.5 percent of my retired pay, or about $130 per month. A financial adviser says that I should forget SBP and that I would be better off to use the $130 per month to purchase insurance together with a mutual fund plan. What do you say?

A: Most DoD experts and private actuarial studies have concluded that no commercial alternative exists that compares to the Survivor Benefit Plan. An exhaustive case study prepared by the Judge Advocate General's School, indicates that SBP is superior in most cases to an insurance and investment plan of this type.

Peterson studied an actual presentation. An adviser suggested a retiree invest the amount of SBP premium in a mix of whole life and decreasing term insurance. In your case, this would be about $118 per month for $100,000 in whole life insurance and $22 per month for $50,000 in decreasing term insurance to age 65.

Your surviving spouse would receive the insurance proceeds and invest them in a mutual fund. The fund pays the surviving spouse an amount of money at least equal to SBP each month, and the presenter's charts project that at the mutual fund's normal rates of return your spouse will receive more than the SBP annuity amount each month, plus an ever-increasing stockfund for any other purpose.

In contrast, the financial adviser points out that SBP would require the deduction of $130 from your retirement pay for your life. At your death, your spouse is then entitled to draw 55 percent of your retired pay until he or she is 62, then it is reduced to 35 percent. If your spouse dies before you, you lose all premiums paid in. It sounds as if the insurance plan is a much better choice. This impression is very misleading.

First of all, there are drawbacks to the commercial plan that are not stressed in a short presentation. The surviving spouse, not the company, bears all investment risk. Funds are based on the stock market, which fluctuates up and down, as does a particular fund's performance. Secondly, if you live to age 65, which is likely, the term insurance has expired, and your insurance proceeds for investment are only about $100,000. Third, the proposal underestimates the effect of cost of living raises, which greatly increase the actual monthly payment your spouse receives under SBP at any age. The advantage is with SBP over time.

This does not mean that you should not buy insurance for additional protection. If you want the best of both possibilities, maximum SBP supplemented by term insurance for additional protection may be best for you. The Retired Officers Association publishes an excellent reference, "SBP Made Easy," available at your Retirement Services Office.

Talk to various financial advisers, retirement services, counselors, or others familiar with survivor benefits and planning for military personnel.

DR. FIT

U.S. Army Physical Fitness School

Q: I read in last week's Dr. Fit that 30 to 40 minutes exercise per day spread over the day is beneficial for health. If I exercise more than that, do I need to reduce my training?

A: Of course, the new advice doesn't mean that avid exercisers who make a habit of daily exercise for at least 30 minutes should cut back. It's no secret to habitual exercisers that working out not only keeps you healthy over the long run, but it also helps you look and feel good.

Q: I was sick last week after I ate some mayonnaise-covered salad. Is it dangerous to leave out mayonnaise-covered salad?

A: Because of its high acid and salt content, mayonnaise may actually help to stop bacterial growth on the salad. Nevertheless, it is still important to keep salads refrigerated since the acid environment slows the bacterial growth, but it does not prevent it.

Q: I do not run, but enjoy walking. Most exercise shoes are for running. Are there some shoes specifically for walking?

A: Yes. According to Consumer Report, July 1993, the following shoes were judged best in terms of shock absorption, support, flexibility and weight. The best walking shoes for women are the Avia ArchRocker 382 and the Saucony 11600L step. The best walking shoes for men are the Avia ArchRocker 382 and the Nike Air Essential. All shoes are priced around $65.

Guilty or innocent?

Burden of proof is on government

U.S. Army Trial Defense Service

This article, we will review what happens when a soldier decides to plead not guilty in a court martial.

Even if a soldier actually committed an offense to which he is charged, the soldier has an absolute legal and moral right to plead not guilty. When a soldier pleads not guilty, the government has the burden to prove guilt with admissible evidence. The government must prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. If the prosecution cannot do this, the soldier is found not guilty.

Evidence presented in court can be both direct or circumstantial. Direct evidence is that which tends directly to prove a fact and usually comes from a witness who saw or heard an event. Circumstantial evidence tends to prove something indirectly. For example, if you wake up in the morning and the street is wet, that is circumstantial evidence that it rained during the night. Despite a popular belief otherwise, circumstantial evidence can be used to establish a person's guilt.

Proving guilt beyond a reasonable doubt is a heavy burden on the prosecution. Beyond reasonable doubt does not mean that the prosecution is required to prove the case with mathematical certainty or beyond all doubt. The burden is to prove guilt to a "moral" certainty. This burden also requires the prosecution to disprove all those explanations of an alleged crime (defenses) that reasonably indicate the soldier's innocence.

The proceedings during which the prosecution tries to present evidence to meet this burden of proof and during which the defense tries to prevent this is called the "trial on the merits" and is the heart of a contested court-martial. All such trials follow a certain sequence so that both sides have a fair opportunity to present their case. Potential panel members can be questioned during a preliminary procedure known as "voir dire." During the voir dire, counsel for both sides attempt to discover unforeseen conflicts of interest or possible prejudices among the panel members. For example, a juror with prior knowledge of or involvement in a case should ordinarily be excused. After questioning the panel, panel members can be excused one of two ways: by showing there is a reason the juror cannot decide a case only by the evidence presented (challenge for cause) or for no reason at all. The second method is called a peremptory challenge, and both sides may exercise one. The challenged members are excused from the case.

Once the panel is selected, or the soldier chooses to be tried by the judge alone, both sides will have an opportunity to present and rebut evidence and to explain their view of the case through arguments to the panel or judge. The prosecution will usually make an opening statement explaining what the government intends to prove. The defense may then immediately make a statement or wait until later in the case.

After opening statement, the prosecution then calls witnesses and offers evidence to try to prove the guilt of the soldier. The defense has the opportunity to confront these witnesses and cross-examine them.

After the prosecution finishes presenting its case, the defense then may present evidence to counter that presented by the prosecution. For example, the defense may present evidence that an act was done in self-defense or that the accused soldier was elsewhere at the time the crime occurred or that the witnesses have simply identified the wrong person. The case continues between prosecution and defense until all the evidence is in.

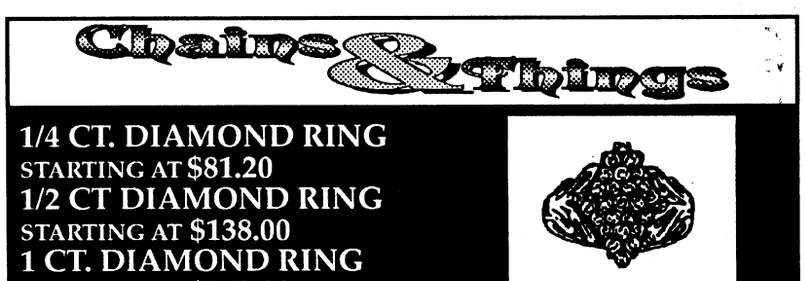
In a court-martial, the burden is never on the accused to prove himself innocent. The defense has the right not to do anything if that is to its advantage. More importantly, an accused can never be called as a witness by the prosecution. An accused has the absolute right to remain silent. In some cases, the best defense may be to do nothing at all because the government may not be able meet its burden.

One advantage to being tried by court-martial rather than by the civilian court system is the opportunity to obtain evidence and witnesses. If the evidence or witnesses are necessary to the defense, then the government can be required to produce the witnesses or obtain the evidence from anywhere in the world at no expense to the soldier.

After all evidence is presented, both sides make closing arguments in a final attempt to persuade the judge or panel that the soldier should be found guilty or acquitted.

The prosecution also has the opportunity, following the defense argument, to give the final argument. The prosecution has the last argument because the burden of proving the case is on them.

If the trial is before a judge alone, he or she will decide the verdict. In a panel trial, the judge will instruct the panel on the law before the panel decides its verdict.



The panel decides the verdict by secret written vote. All panel members are equal regardless of rank; each vote counts once. It requires two-thirds or more members to find a soldier guilty. If less than two-thirds vote for guilty, then the soldier is found not guilty. There are no hung juries in a court-martial on findings.

It is important to remember that the government bears the burden of proof in a court-martial, just as it does in the civilian court system.

This article has been very general and may not answer all your questions. If you have a legal question, get your advice only from a lawyer. If your question is about military justice or an administrative elimination, call your local Trial Defense Service office.

In the next article we will see what occurs next if a soldier is found guilty.

COMMUNITY CARE

Editor's note: This weekly column will share information about the soldier and family medical care system at Martin Army Community Hospital. Questions will be answered, improvements explained and the hospital's system of health care outlined.

By Ken Franklin
Martin Army Community Hospital

What is longitudinal care? As a family physician, my goal is to provide top-quality longitudinal care to the active duty and retiree families of the Fort Benning and Columbus area.

What does that mean? Simply put, it means you should have a single clinic that oversees your family's care.

Longitudinal care is health care that covers a patient's needs in one place over time. All of us have had the experience of retelling our medical history four or five times to different doctors. It's frustrating, it takes extra time, and it can lead to lost information.

Longitudinal care works to eliminate that retelling. If people have one clinic (or one doctor) to use for their care, then a small staff gets to know them. They recognize patients as people. They remember their problems. They become a friend in the health care system.

A good family doctor, or small group, can handle 90 percent of your health problems without referrals. When you need another specialist, the family doctor can usually take their advice and complete the treatment in your family clinic, which limits the number of visits you have to make to different places.

Our grandparents all received longitudinal care without knowing its name. Our parents grew up with it. Unfortunately, with the boom in subspecialists, we didn't see it much in the '60s and '70s. The country — and the Army — have seen that longitudinal care saves money and improves efficiency and quality.

Does everyone need longitudinal care? No. Healthy young adults can get along without it — for a while.

However, annual checkups and preventive medicine are much easier with a family doctor; and if you do get sick, you already know the place to go. So, our goal at the Community Care Service is to provide longitudinal care to all families and all ages.

Emergency rooms are the exact opposite of longitudinal care. An ER's job is to see acute problems and ensure that those problems won't kill or disable you.

After that, an emergency room doctor may start treatment; but you need your regular clinic to do the follow-up and full diagnosis.

So, longitudinal care is nothing more than having a family clinic to turn to. Such clinics provide caring, efficient and cost-effective care.

Martin Army Community Hospital's four family clinics (MACH Family Practice, Winder, Aviation, and PRIMUS) can give you that care.

If you would like to learn more about the services at Martin Army Community Hospital or have a particular medical concern, send your questions or comments to: Community Care Corner, Martin Army Community Hospital, Attn.: HSXB-F, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905-6100

CHAMPUS SELECT

saves hospital, beneficiaries money

By John S. Wynn
Martin Army Community Hospital

Hospital officials recently announced record savings from the preferred provider network, CHAMPUS Select, which works to support the hospital's Gateway To Care program.

The network, which has been in operation since May 1991, has saved the government more than $1.8 million in our area alone.

Local beneficiaries have also saved money by using CHAMPUS Select providers.

So far, beneficiaries in the Fort Benning area have saved more than $480,000 by using the preferred providers rather than those civilian providers who do not participate in the program.

"The CHAMPUS Select program has truly shown its merits and complements our Gateway To Care program," said Mark Holloway, chief of the hospital's Coordinated Care Division.

"With the rising cost of civilian health-care services, active duty family members, retirees and family members can save money and receive quality health care by using CHAMPUS Select," Holloway said.

CHAMPUS Select is a health-care benefits program that supports Gateway To Care by providing access to civilian medical care when services cannot be obtained from the military.

It provides this care at a reduced rate to both the beneficiary and the government.

CHAMPUS Select is available to CHAMPUS eligible beneficiaries by a contract with the Department of Defense, and offers access to civilian health-care services to all CHAMPUS beneficiaries living or traveling in the Southeastern region of the United States.

The Southeastern region consists of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee and the Fort Campbell area of Kentucky.

In the Fort Benning area, the Bradley Center and Doctors Hospital, as well as about 80 local health-care professionals, provide care through the CHAMPUS Select network.

Since CHAMPUS Select is not a supplemental insurance plan, there are no insurance premiums.

CHAMPUS Select saves beneficiaries money on health care by lowering their cost share, and saves them time because their claim forms are filed for them by their providers.

Beneficiaries may take advantage of this program by coordinating their next civilian appointment through the hospital's health-care finder office located in Building 9204, Room 107.

A health-care finder will work for you to find the quality, cost-effective health care you may need, usually through the CHAMPUS Select network.

The finder saves you time and money by coordinating appointments directly with providers who have agreed to give military beneficiaries a discount.

If you can't come to the finder's office in person, you can call 544-1591 or 544-1447 to receive more information about this service.

Call the beneficiary information line at (800) 824-3570 or the Fort Benning CHAMPUS Select office at 682-5949 for more information.

Improve children's health, future

By John S. Wynn
Martin Army Community Hospital

"Our children are our future" — a nice slogan. When asked, parents generally regard their children's medical well-being and safety as one of their chief concerns.

However, all too often we take for granted some of the basic precautions we as parents are responsible for.

In recognition of Child and Adolescent Health Month, health-care providers at Martin Army Community Hospital have joined other military health-care providers in an attempt to increase the awareness of child and adolescent health problems.

Their goal is to improve the health and the future of our children.

In recent years, the United States has experienced an epidemic of preventable childhood diseases, especially measles, mumps, rubella and whooping cough. Despite our wealth and power, the United States lags behind 21 nations in infant mortality.

One of the areas of medical concern is the occurrence of measles. There has been a resurgence in the outbreak of measles: between 1989 and 1991 some 55,000 cases of measles and more than 150 deaths were reported.

Nearly half of the cases occurred in preschool children, most of whom were not vaccinated.

You can take an active part in ensuring your child's good health. Before it's too late, vaccinate. Check your child's immunization records and get your child immunized on time.

See your health-care provider regularly. Routine physical examinations or well-baby appointments are important to your child's well-being, and should not be missed.

Vaccination is just one part of a child's total health care.

Good nutrition goes a long way to help keep your child healthy. Be sure your child eats regularly, has a variety of nourishing food choices, and gets plenty of exercise.

Avoid serving salty or sugary foods; offer fresh fruits and vegetables instead of potato chips and candy.

Have your child eat a balanced diet from the five food groups. Realize that your child will have likes and dislikes; offer choices during meal time to avoid control struggles.

Injuries have been the leading cause of death in children, adolescents and young adults for nearly 40 years.

This year, one out of every four children in the United States will suffer an injury serious enough to require medical attention.

However, 90 percent of all childhood injuries are preventable.

Here are a few safety precautions:

- Give your home a safety check.
- Ensure your home has a working smoke detector.
- Turn down your water heater temperature to 120 degrees Fahrenheit.
- Be careful not to put hot foods or liquids near the edge of a table where a child can reach up and grab them.
- Turn pot handles toward the back of the stove.
- Use window guards and stairway gates.
- Never leave children alone in the tub.
- Store poisonous cleaners, chemicals, matches, lighters and all small objects out of reach.
- Use child-proof caps on medicines and keep the medicines out of reach.
- Know how to access emergency services. Learn cardiopulmonary resuscitation.
- If you have a gun, keep it unloaded and locked away.

Help your child be safer. Buy bike helmets and insist that your children wear them.

Bicycle helmets have been shown to reduce the risk of head injury by 85 percent and the risk of brain injury by almost 90 percent, yet only 5 percent of child bicyclists nationwide wear helmets.

Children up to age 4 should be in safety seats when in automobiles. All others should wear safety belts.

Inspect your children's playgrounds for hazards such as concrete or hard dirt surfaces under climbing equipment.

If you would like more information concerning these issues or other health issues, call your Gateway To Care family practice clinic or the hospital's Pediatric Clinic at 544-3218.

Cellular phones: Buying may be costly call

Better Business Bureau

Cellular phone services are becoming more popular as first-time buyers look to mobile phones as social outlets and safety mechanisms in our transient society. If you are considering becoming mobile, the Better Business Bureau offers the following information on the costs and commitment involved in signing up for a service.

A cellular telephone may be purchased in a variety of places, including electronics or department stores, providing an opportunity to compare prices and find the best deal. However, there is little choice in selecting a phone service because Federal Communications Commission regulations allow only two cellular phone system services to operate within a designated area or market.

All cellular phone service companies require you to sign a service contract, which is an agreement to use the phone service for a set period of time, possibly one month, one year or even two years. Before committing to an extended contract, find out if there are penalties for early termination.

You will be charged an activation fee to begin service and obtain a phone number. You will also be charged a monthly fee for using the services of the cellular telephone company. The fee will be specified in the service contract and most likely will remain the same for the term of the agreement.

In addition, you must pay a usage charge — a per-minute rate on incoming and outgoing calls.

This flat rate will vary depending on your service contract, and will be lower for calls originating from and going to your local service area than for those outside the service area. If you plan to make many long-distance calls, ask if you can use your own long-distance carrier.

Other charges you may face include surcharges, such as a 911 service fee, and a "roaming" charge, which is incurred on calls originating from a place outside your local service area. Cellular phone services may also charge you for reaching a busy signal, for calls that are not answered, or for retrieving voice-mail messages.

With more and more people buying cellular phones, many companies may offer enticing incentives to try to win your business. Before signing a contract, be sure you understand all the fees involved and the length of the commitment. And check out the cellular phone service with your local BBB.

Your Guide to Prime-Time TV: Cable and Broadcast Schedules

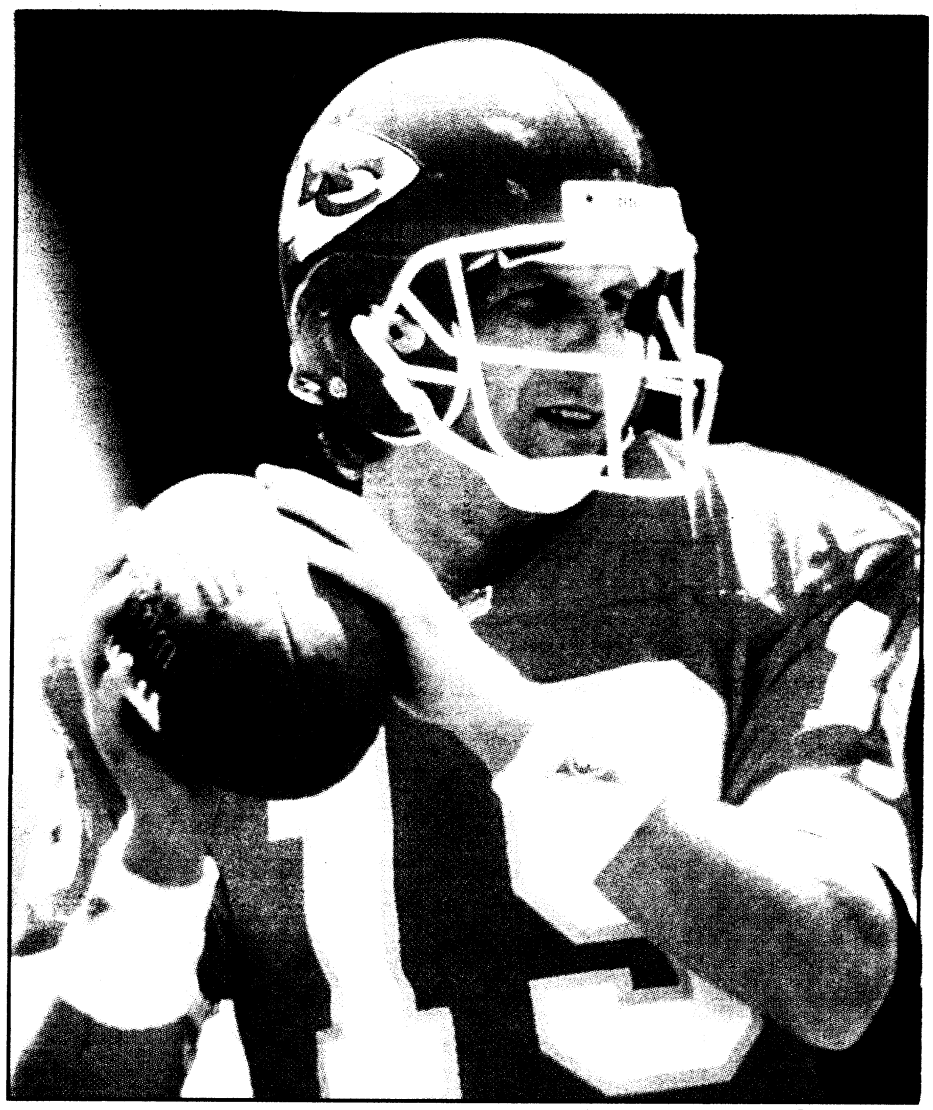
Prime-time football returns to ESPN

By Matt Meachem
Tribune Media Services

This Sunday, the best gets better.

NFL football returns to ESPN that night as the Washington Redskins play host to the Indianapolis Colts. The prime-time NFL games join ESPN's "NFL GameDay" and "NFL PrimeTime" to form the most complete pro football coverage on television today.

What: 'NFL GameDay' and 'NFL PrimeTime'
When: Sunday, noon and 7 p.m. on ESPN



SPOTLIGHT

"GameDay" is required viewing for pro football fans. Chris Berman is joined by Tom Jackson, Joe Theismann and Chris Mortensen for an in-depth preview of the day's NFL games. No fancy sets. No slick graphics. No studio guests. Just 60 minutes of NFL news, notes and features.

"NFL PrimeTime" airs Sunday nights at 7 p.m. with Berman, Jackson and Robin Roberts recapping all of the day's NFL action, as well as providing in-depth highlights and analysis.

"GameDay" — which airs Sundays at noon — won Sports Emmy Awards in 1989 and 1991 and received its second CableACE Award in the sports news series category last January. For Berman, the reason for the success of the network's critically acclaimed NFL coverage is simple.

"We really enjoy the game of football, and we really enjoy talking about it," said Berman, who has anchored "GameDay" since its inception in 1986. "This isn't Hollywood. If we wanted to act, we'd do something else. Joe and Tommy were great players, yet they are great fans of the game, which isn't always the case. Chris Mortensen is a big fan of the game, in addition to being respected throughout the league.

Prime-time NFL returns to ESPN Sunday.

"Once you sit and watch us," Berman said, "you stick with us, because you like people who like football like you do. That's very basic, but there it is in a nutshell."

The numbers back up Berman's claim. Over the past six years, "GameDay" has seen its ratings rise 113 percent (from 1.5 to 3.2) and its viewership increase 232 percent. Many of those viewers are converts from the network pregame shows, a fact not lost on Berman.

"Hey, viewers have a choice of any pregame show," he said, "or they can just wait until the games start. The fact that our ratings have gone up every year, even when we went head-to-head with the other guys ("GameDay" moved from 11:30 a.m. to noon in 1990), speaks volumes (for) what we do."

This week's Colts and Redskins game kicks off nine consecutive weeks of Sunday-night coverage for ESPN. Mike Patrick and Theismann — who have developed into one of the NFL's top announcing duos — return for their sixth season together in the booth.

For Theismann, the start of ESPN's NFL telecasts marks his shift from the studio to the broadcast booth. While he still contributes to "GameDay" via satellite, he also provides color commentary on each week's game.

Favorite Americans

Exhibit showcases portraits

Columbus Museum

The Columbus Museum will showcase portraits of some favorite Americans through Jan. 2.

Georgia O'Keefe, Dr. Seuss, Grandma Moses, Leonard Bernstein, Eleanor Roosevelt and Gypsy Rose Lee are just some of the famous people whose portrait will be on hand.

Photographic portraits of each of these Americans are included in the exhibition "Arnold Newman's Americans."

Featuring 101 black and white gelatin silver prints by famed photographer Arnold Newman, the exhibition will be on view until Jan. 2.

In the portraits, Newman shows the subjects at home or in their studios with personal objects that symbolically convey the subjects' personalities, accomplishments, ambitions and creative powers.

Newman shows artist Jackson Pollack standing behind a table crammed with cans, jars and brushes with a skull gazing at him from the shadows. Another portrait features a droll Truman Capote lying on a Victorian sofa in his bathrobe.

In his famous photograph of Igor Stravinsky, for example, the composer appears in the lower left corner with his hand supporting his head, dwarfed by the dark silhouette of a raised piano lid that dominates the photograph.

Newman, commenting on photographers, once said, "We don't take photographs with our cameras; we take them with our hearts and our minds. They are a reflection of ourselves — what we are and what we think."

Newman first achieved national recognition in 1946 through a highly successful one-man exhibition of his "environmental" portraits of artists at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Since then he has been one of the dominant figures in American portrait photography, acquiring an international reputation that has been maintained by the constant appearance of his work in magazines, scholarly books and museum exhibitions in this country and abroad.

Even now, at the age of 74, he remains a pre-eminent figure in the field and continues to be in considerable demand around the world for portrait commissions, lectures and exhibitions.

"Arnold Newman's Americans" is organized and toured by the National Portrait Gallery, Smithsonian Institution, from its extensive collection of Newman's work. Local presentation is made possible by support from the Edward Swift Shorter Bequest Fund.

The exhibition is accompanied by a catalog, which is for sale in the Museum Shop, and a free brochure. The museum is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and on Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

For more information, call the museum at 649-0713.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some business appointments may be changed this week. However, the time is favorable for new starts in business and making important decisions. Get-togethers with friends are not favored this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A relative seems uncertain about his or her plans this week. Business delays may get you down for a while, but things pick up nicely for you later in the week. Pleasure plans this weekend involve travel.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Don't be upset if someone does not give you the feedback you want for your ideas. A financial agreement may be hard to finalize. A co-worker may be jealous of your accomplishments. Family celebrations are highlighted this weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Some money that is owed to you may be late in coming. A partner changes his or her mind about a shopping matter. You may have to say no to a gift with strings attached. Communicative skills are tops.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) A partner may be reluctant to go along with one of your plans early in the week. Some things seem unsettled at work. You are charismatic and impress others favorably. Judgment is good where money is concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 To Sept. 22) Things seem to go at a snail's pace as the week begins. You will be enjoying a career or financial success. Shopping leads to a special purchase. Your self-assurance impresses others favorably.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Some friends are hard to pin down now, and a child may test your patience. A friend's attitude toward money may turn you off this week. Time by yourself proves very rewarding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You will have to give an older relative time to make up his or her mind. Despite some mixed messages in business, your work week will end on a bright note. You are not ready to take someone into your confidence now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some people are slow in getting back to you now. You may incur some extra expenses this week. Innovative ideas bring you success now. New chances for financial gain arise this week.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Financial matters seem involved this week, but an important breakthrough comes in business now. You may get a sudden urge to take a trip or to explore new intellectual horizons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Family and financial interests are highlighted this week. Someone in business rubs you the wrong way. You must be careful now not to throw cold water on someone's good ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Don't let inner doubts hold you back. Once you put a plan in motion, you will find that things will indeed go better than you had expected. Partners are in accord.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: When Fields said he wanted to have an active part in Kendall's life, Dimitri threatened to kill him. Kendall later secretly visited her father who told her he never raped Erica. Livia couldn't get Tanner to drop murder charges against Laurel. Wait to see: Kendall makes a potentially dangerous decision.

ANOTHER WORLD: Lorna was stunned to learn the man she believed raped her is Morgan, Cass' brother. Tipped by Donna about the meeting, Jake secretly taped the Cory offspring discussing their own ghosts about Mac and how they could help Rachel face the truth about their father. Ryan and Vicky tried to get through a romantic evening without discussing her pregnancy. Wait to see: Donna faces danger.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: As Lily helped Holden remember, they both became aware of their mutual attraction. Kirk was upset when Lucinda pushed Craig to join Worldwide. Ellen learned, Susan was pregnant. Emily told Royce, she'll marry him as they originally planned. Wait to see: Janice becomes increasingly upset about Holden and Lily.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: While Sally was trying to get Jack into the right romantic mood so that he could impregnate her, Stephanie turned up at the hotel room and accused Sally of lying about her pregnancy. After seeing his designs, Bill told Sally, either hire Anthony or go out of business. Wait to see: Sheila may have an unexpected ally.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: John was devastated when Kristen told him she was engaged to Tony DiMera. Lucas found an old photo of Curtis and Kate and realized the man who took money from her at the fair was the man who beat her all those years ago. Victor gave Kate $100,000, no questions asked, without telling her he knew about Curtis' blackmail. Wait to see: Vivian makes the first move in her plot to wreck Victor's marriage.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: The idyllic Canadian setting turned chaotic, forcing Luke and Laura into a suddenly dangerous situation. Meanwhile, their son, Lucky, put his own plan into action. With Jagger's support, Karen confronted Ray about his sexual abuse of her. Brenda manipulated Ned into retracting his sexual harassment charges against her sister, Julia. Wait to see: Scott may have underestimated Lucy.

GUIDING LIGHT: Bridget lied when asked if Hart was Peter's father, leaving Vanessa uneasy. Later, Bridget promised Dyland she wouldn't take the baby from Vanessa and Billy unless she felt she could give him a good home. Patrick Cutter told Frank, Alan-Michael and Lucy that Eleni's rented van had been found. Meanwhile, Eleni fought with George when George got too close to her baby daughter, Marina. Wait to see: Josh and Tangie rendezvous.

LOVING: Leo didn't tell Shana about the doctors' concern for baby Patti's neurological problems. Angie met FBI agent Charles Harrison. Despite Alex's misgivings, Clay told Gwyn about the plot to kidnap him and his decision to hire Alex as a bodyguard. Wait to see: Clay has another surprise coming.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Max went to the Moody farm to try to get Luna to come back. At Olanov's grand opening, Alex lost her singing voice, but Asa stepped in to perform, and saved the day. Dr. Ben Price told Nora she had a brain tumor. Clint helped Sloan when Emily's friends attacked him. Viki became suspicious when she saw Dorian and Emily in a confrontation. Wait to see: Nora makes a decision about the surgery.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nikki, upset that Cole was no longer in her life, left town for a few days. Victor reassured Cliff that his intentions toward Hope were strictly honorable. Jack told John he no longer wanted to work at Jabot or in any cosmetic business. Jill accepted Nina's living arrangements when she saw how well Ryan and young Phillip got along. Wait to see: Victor is faced with a challenging situation.

RANGER MEMORIAL

75th remembers its heroes

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

Six rangers who were killed in action near Mogadishu, Somalia, Oct. 3 were memorialized Monday at 10 a.m. by fellow rangers in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall.

Upholding the part of the Ranger Creed that says," ... I will never leave a fallen comrade to fall into the hands of the enemy," the six rangers gave their lives while forming a defensive perimeter around the injured crew of a downed UH-60 Blackhawk helicopter in Somalia.

The six members of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, killed in action Oct. 3 in action near Mogadishu were Sgt. James C. Joyce, 24, of Denton, Texas; Cpl. James M. Cavaco, 26, of Forestdale, Mass.; Sgt. Lorenzo M. Ruiz, 27, of El Paso, Texas; Cpl. James E. Smith, 21, of Long Valley, N.J.; Sgt. Dominick M. Pilla, 21, of Vineland, N.J.; and Spc. Richard W. Kowalewski Jr., 20, of Crucible, Pa.

Capt. Mike Steele, Company B commander, 3rd Ranger Battalion, described the six soldiers from his company who lost their lives.

"They were proud to be Americans," he said. "They were fiercely proud to be rangers, and they were proud to wear the black beret."

Family members of the deceased attended the ceremony along with many other members and friends of 3rd Ranger Battalion.

Stephanie Krawczyk/Special to The Bayonet

Six sets of empty boots with black berets and M-16A2 rifles represent the six fallen rangers at the memorial ceremony Monday.

Steele was one of several leaders from 3rd Ranger Battalion to pay tribute to the fallen soldiers during the service. "They fought like rangers," he said. "I love them and will always remember them."

Lt. Col. Danny McKnight, commander of 3rd Ranger Battalion, said the rangers were "involved in the most fierce, most intense, most significant combat operation" in the battalion's history.

"The numerous and countless acts of courage, bravery and heroism during those extraordinary hours on the third and fourth of October are far too many to truly comprehend," McKnight said. The rangers killed were "six of the most valorous soldiers" he has known in his 20 years of service.

First Sgt. Glenn Harris from Company B, 3rd Ranger Battalion, eulogized the fallen rangers. He spoke about the motivation of the soldiers and their commitment to the mission in Somalia.

The traditional military memorial service also included the last roll call, the firing of volleys and the playing of "Taps."

The Ranger Creed was written in 1974 by Command Sgt. Maj. Neal R. Gentry, the first to hold that position in the 1st Ranger Battalion.

The six-stanza creed defines the standards by which all rangers conduct their private and professional lives.

The 3rd Ranger Battalion was activated in Oct. 3, 1984. The battalion participated in Operation Just Cause in Panama in 1989 and began sending troops to Somalia in August.

Combat

3rd Bn 75th Rangers face ultimate challenge in Somalia

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Combat. Every soldier trains for it, but not all of them experience it. For some, combat is a dreaded possibility. For others, it is a "baptism by fire."

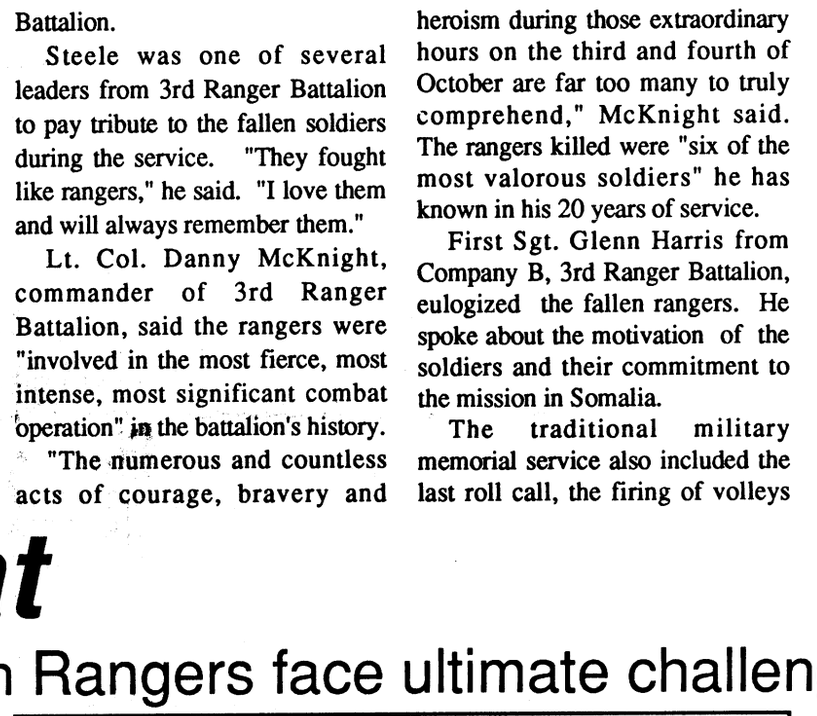
For Staff Sgt. Edward Yurek, combat in Somalia completed a program he felt was laid out for him years ago — joining the Army, going to Airborne School, through the Ranger Indoctrination Program, then training for war ...

"Now that I've used that training, I feel like the cycle's complete," Yurek said.

Yurek, a squad leader in Company B of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, deployed to Somalia with his unit in late August to augment the Quick Reaction Force there.

The rangers were sent Oct. 3 to support a mission to capture supporters of clan leader Mohammed Farrah Aidid.

During that mission, two Blackhawk helicopters were downed, six rangers from the 75th were killed and about 30 others wounded.



Yurek and Sgt. Derrick W. Van Vugt, another squad leader in 2nd Platoon, Company B, said they had been on the ground with their squads less than 30 minutes when they looked up and saw one of the helicopters go down.

It crash-landed in an alley, and they moved in with their squads to set up security on both sides.

"As soon as the bird went down, the Somalis crowded around to get to it," Van Vugt said. "We had to fight our way to it."

The large, hostile crowd had them vastly outnumbered, Yurek said — even some of the children acted as soldiers.

"It was confusing — you didn't know where a lot of the fire was coming from," said Van Vugt.

Ruth J. Spaller

Rangers from the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, disembark the plane that brought them home from Somalia.

Muzzles stuck out of doorways and shooters hid behind unarmed women, firing between their legs and armpits, Yurek said.

Yurek and Van Vugt spent the duration of the 17-hour battle at the helicopter, where, after rescuing the two crew chiefs, they safeguarded the bodies of the two pilots who died in the crash.

"It's in our creed never to leave a fallen comrade," Yurek said.

"Tactically, by the numbers, maybe that doesn't make sense, but to us, that was (our pilot). He was our friend. He would have given his life for us, so we weren't going to leave him ..."

Living up to the Ranger Creed — both in combat and in their everyday training — was what they credited with getting them successfully through their mission.

"The discipline that makes a person a better ranger, makes you a better soldier in battle," Van Vugt said.

"(Rangers) take everything a hell of a lot more seriously. When we train, we train hard, and we train as realistically as possible," Yurek said. "We wouldn't have made it if we didn't have the training program we have."

The training that probably prepared them best for the situation they faced in Somalia, Yurek said, was going to Fort Benning's McKenna military operations in urban training site, a small village set up to practice combat actions in a city environment.

Working in platoon-sized elements against an opposing force, they learned to deal with each situation as it came up.

"Every now and then during training when things went wrong, we worked out a way of handling it," he said.

But doing things the right way in training helped, too.

"I was focused all the time," said Spc. Melvin DeJesus of 1st platoon. "Because of training, I knew how to control stress, and everything happened like this," he said, snapping his fingers.

"There was a high probability of getting shot or killed .. but I was looking around. I wasn't worried."

Now that it is over, DeJesus said, he feels different. "I'm proud of what we did and the way we did it. I look at life differently. I've got more confidence in myself."

Van Vugt said he wants to pass on some of the lessons he learned to those who did not go over and make sure they do not take training for granted.

As for Yurek, he said he is already getting ready for the next time.

"There's always been wars and combat," Yurek said. "We're not the first ones to face this ... we won't be the last."

43rd sends more troops to Somalia

By David Greer
36th Engineer Group

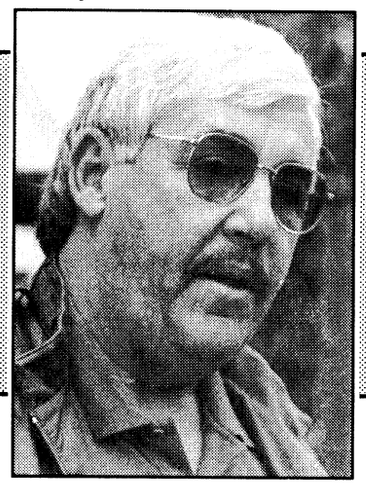
Two hundred eighty-four members of the 43rd Engineer Battalion departed Wednesday deploying to Somalia.

Because of routine scheduled maintenance on the runways at Lawson Army Airfield, the soldiers were bused to Hartsfield International Airport in Atlanta for a 10:50 p.m. departure from the Lockheed terminal.

The soldiers will join some 118 soldiers from the 43rd who previously deployed to Somalia Oct. 21.

According to 1st Lt. Henry Brown, the battalion intelligence officer, the 43rd will construct a base camp to be used by U.S. forces assigned to Somalia and provide construction support to U.N. forces that will include improving and reinforcing existing structures and building quality of life facilities such as showers and latrines.

"Our soldiers didn't expect to go back," Brown said. "But, somewhere up in the chain of command, the decision was made to send the best, and that meant the 43rd.



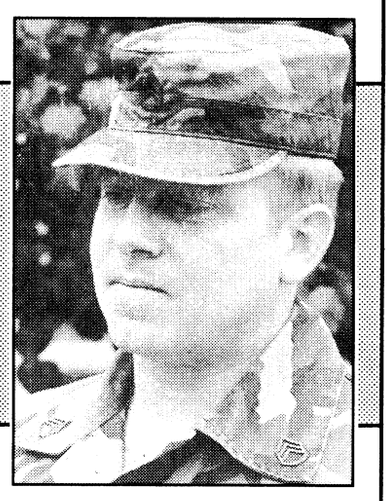
"Our soldiers are proud of the trust and confidence placed in them, and they are ready to return to Somalia and give fellow soldiers the best construction support possible," he said.

However, not all soldiers are eager to return to Somalia; some are somewhat apprehensive. Master Sgt. Augusto Sanchez, the battalion maintenance non-commissioned officer, said he is a bit apprehensive after escorting home the body of his nephew who was "one of the first" American soldiers killed in Somalia.

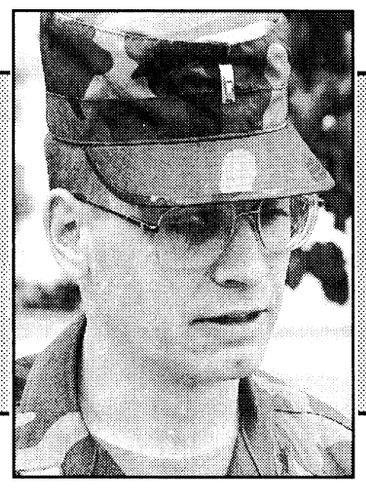
"My nephew, Sgt. Ferdinand Richardson, was assigned to the 10th Mountain Division," Sanchez said. "He was killed in a helicopter that was shot down. But, I'm willing to go back. The mission needs to be accomplished."

VARIOUS VOICES

In honor of Native American Heritage Month, do you think Native Americans have been portrayed accurately in history?



Morris Armstrong, Directorate of Public Works — "It's just a fact that Native Americans got a raw deal all around. They were lied to, their land was taken away — and they are still getting a raw deal today."



Spc. Valerie Greene, 498th Medical Company — "If you're not white, you are always going to be treated differently, regardless of your background."

Sarah Allen, family member — "Yes. A lot has been said about Native Americans and what they have done for the country."

Staff Sgt. James A. Englebert, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment — "It depends on your point of view — the winner always writes history. If you ask Native Americans, I'm sure they'll say they've been mistreated."

2nd Lt. Brad D. Nadig, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment — "I think recently they have been portrayed more accurately. They weren't in the past, but there has been a change. Take "Dances with Wolves" for example — it's getting better."

Pvt. 1 Jose A. Marmolejos, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 75th Ranger Regiment — "No, I think Native Americans have been robbed and raped. The U.S. government never kept our commitment to them. If you've ever been to a reservation, you would see how life is there — it's not pretty."

It's hard to reduce stress when ...

... you work for a slave-driving, whip-cracking megalomaniac

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

COMMENTARY

Did you ever work in a place where it seemed no matter what you did, it was wrong?

I seem to be having that problem with the people who run this here newspaper. This conversation I had with Ms. Uppity-Up is what I'm talking about.

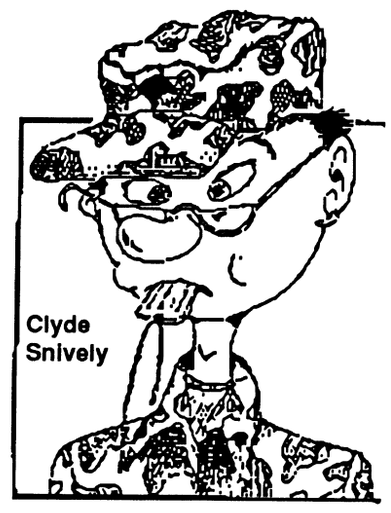
"Snively, what are you doing?" Ms. Editor said in her best stentorian voice, nearly causing me to fall out of my chair.

"Practicing," I said, humbly.

"Practicing what?" she demanded to know, "sleeping at your desk. You haven't moved a muscle for a full five minutes."

"As a matter of fact," I began, trying to sound huffy, "I was practicing doing nothing."

"Come again," Ms. High and Mighty said, "I don't think the Army ever intended to pay you to practice doing nothing."



"Listen," I said, becoming emotional, "I just read a book that said a good way to reduce stress was to do nothing. Let your mind wander ..."

"Your mind is always wandering; how else can you explain your columns?"

"To make it devoid of thought ..."

"You haven't had a thought since you've been here."

"And, according to the book," I continued, undeterred, "people who can do this have a higher performance rate. If you can reduce your stress, you can think more clearly, make rapid decisions, speed your work process."

"Snively," she began in her wickedly snide voice, "you need to have an appreciation of what's going on in the world to have stress. You don't have a clue. As for speeding up your work process, I can help you speed it up and you don't even need to practice for it."

I didn't want to ask, but I had to. "How's that?"

"By planting my size eight, pointy-toed shoe in a rapid and vigorous movement up your ..."

"I understand," I said. "You don't want me breathing deeply, relaxing my arms and shoulders, and trying to do a stress dump.

"Instead, you want me to keep tense. Keep my emotions bottled up. Keep plugging away at my computer, turning out column inch on top of column inch of copy until one day I blow a gasket, suffer a stroke and DIE BEFORE YOUR VERY EYES!" I shrieked, my eye balls bulging from their sockets as the chords on my neck stood out like a chicken's and my entire body shook and quavered.

"Exactly," she said. "That's what you get paid to do, so do it."

As for me, I went back to turning out column inch on top of column inch, telling myself she'd be sorry when I had a heart attack at my desk and she had to fill out all the paperwork.

I smirked as I thought about that and wondered if anyone else out there worked for a megalomaniac.

Solving the mysteries of good fat, bad fat

By R.J. Struth Jr.
Fitzsimons Army Medical Center

COMMENTARY

Cholesterol, saturated fats, unsaturated fats, polyunsaturated fats, lard, blubber, lipids, lipoproteins, good fats, bad fats, Minnesota Fats — what's it all about, Alfie?

If you are like most of us, you are concerned about your health and want to do the best you can to take care of yourself. Preventing heart disease is certainly high on any list of nasty things to try to prevent.

But the never-ending list of fats and all the different types of fats can be confusing. Trying to figure it all out is almost enough to give you a heart attack.

Here is how it works: If you have too much fat (or lipid) in your blood, your risk of heart disease is much higher. But this is not the whole story.

The fat in your blood comes in an assortment of flavors. Some are good (high-density lipoproteins or HDL). Some are not so good (low-density lipoproteins or LDL, very low-density lipoproteins or VLDL and triglycerides to name a few).

The HDL is the good guy and can actually help prevent heart disease by removing cholesterol from arteries. You want lots of HDL in your blood, and the best way to increase it is to exercise.

The other blood lipids should be kept as low as possible. Reducing the fat in your blood is best done by combining diet, exercise and weight control. Exercise and weight control are fairly straightforward. The diet part is where all the confusion over types of fat comes into play.

Your total intake of fats of all types should be reduced to no more than 30 percent of your total calories for each day. Cut back on food containing fats, such as sauces, gravies, butter, margarine and high-fat meats. An easy rule for keeping fat at less than 30 percent is to limit fat to about 30 grams for every 1,000 calories.

Cholesterol is a waxy, fatty substance found only in animals. Animal products like meat, fish, poultry, eggs and dairy products all include differing amounts of cholesterol. Cutting back on meat and animal products can help reduce your cholesterol intake.

Saturated fat is another one of the bad guys. It tends to raise the level of fats in the blood. It is usually found in animal products but can also be found in other foods. Saturated fats are usually hard or solid at room temperature (such as the fat in meat, butter and lard). The harder the fat the harder it works to clog your arteries.

Replace solid fats with liquid ones, such as vegetable oils and products with vegetable oils (but not hydrogenated ones because hydrogenation makes them saturated!).

Unsaturated fats are the good guys. They reduce the amount of cholesterol in the blood. Polyunsaturated fats (soy, corn, safflower and sunflower oils) help lower cholesterol levels.

Recent studies indicate that monounsaturated fats (canola, peanut or olive oils) also reduce cholesterol levels. Increase those oils in your diet, hopefully by replacing saturated fats.

Have the mysteries of the fat family been solved for you?

Remember to exercise more, try to lose a few pounds and cut the fat you eat. Replace solid animal fats with liquid vegetable oils. And keep fat to about 30 grams for every 1,000 calories.

Now the only mystery left to solve is how many years you can add to your life.

Editor's note: Struth is a registered dietitian with Fitzsimons Army Medical Center in Colorado.

Commanding general calls for holiday safety

The month of November will provide this command with two holidays.

This signals a special need to alert our soldiers to a very real threat of motor vehicle accidents and instill in them a general sense of safety awareness.

Last November, accidents on our nation's highways seriously injured 48 soldiers. Six of these died of their injuries.

During fiscal 1993, five Fort Benning soldiers were killed in vehicle accidents.

The most common causes of traffic fatalities are: speeding, not wearing seat belts, driving after drinking beer or other alcoholic beverages and fatigue.

To emphasize the dangers of privately owned vehicles, leaders should inspect vehicles and brief soldiers concerning safety.

My goal is to protect the lives of the soldiers entrusted to me.

I want your whole-hearted support to reduce traffic accidents.

PROCLAMATION

Nov. 1 to 30 is proclaimed Native American Heritage Month at Fort Benning to recognize the contributions of Native Americans. This year's theme is "An Ancient Culture — Rich in Tradition."

The military and civilian contributions of Native Americans reflect a deep commitment to the principles of freedom and democracy that are the strengths of the United States.

The Native American community has given us artists, sculptors, musicians, authors, poets, artisans, scientists and scholars, and Native Americans have made important contributions in many fields including agriculture, medicine, music, language and art.

Various Native American cultures continue to contribute significantly to our American society.

I encourage all Fort Benning personnel and those in surrounding communities to participate in this observance through the planned activities by units, staff and other agencies.

Morale, Welfare, Recreation

Post eyes improvements, renovations for facilities

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

"Our mission is to give the soldiers and their families great Morale, Welfare and Recreation facilities and programs that are equal to or better than what they could get off post."

Al Stewart, director of Community Activities, said this about the MWR facilities and programs that his directorate establishes and runs for Fort Benning with its capital purchase and minor construction nonappropriated funds (less than $500,000) and major NAF monies (more than $500,000).

This year, he expects minor construction to include:

• Renovation of the Kelley Hill Recreation Center

• Further renovation of the Follow Me Golf Course

• A new swimming pool at Uchee Creek

• A new swimming pool at Destin Recreation Area, Fla.

• A Youth Activities Outreach Center at McGraw Manor

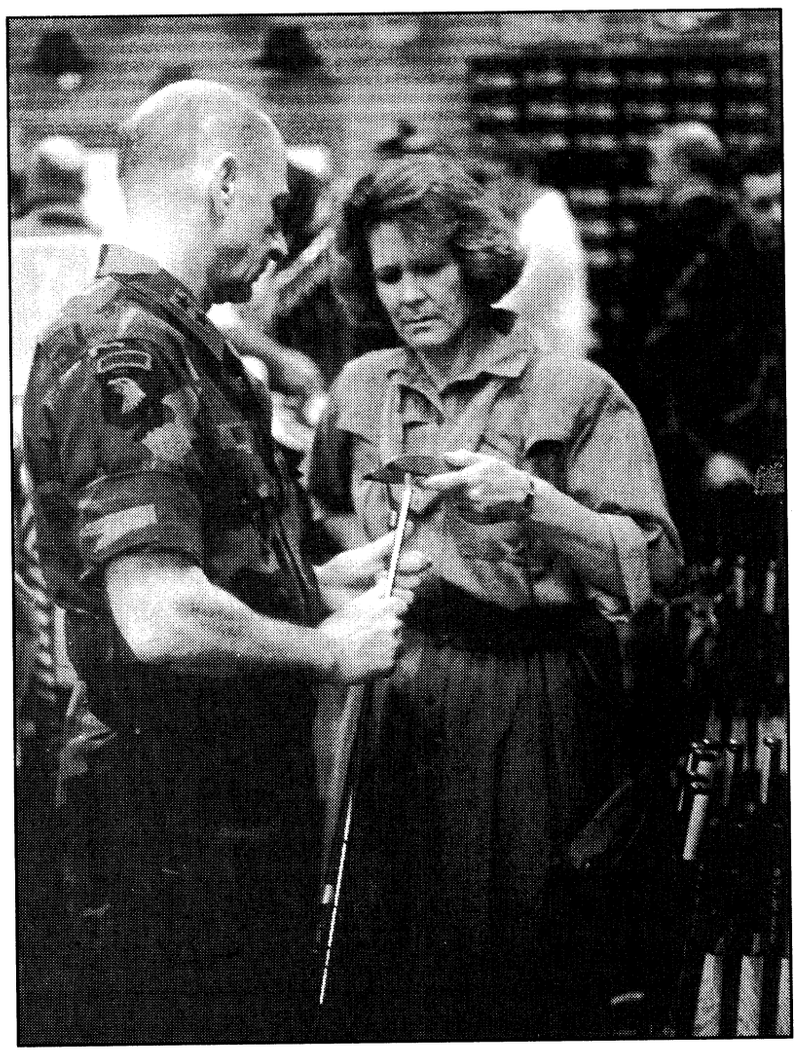
Then on the list for major construction, both NAF and military construction Army funds, are:

1993

• A 198-capacity child care center (completed)

• A 60-unit Guest House between the Officers' Club and Burger King

• A new junior enlisted club at the intersection of Wold Avenue and Anderson Street (across from the cuartess) to replace the Hidden Door (nonappropriated funds)



• A Sand Hill Recreation Center, (MCA)

• A new miniature golf course next to the mini-mall post exchange and laundromat (NAF).

1994-1995

• A new larger Auto Craft Shop near Soldiers' Plaza to replace the other two (NAF).

Stewart noted that DCA's projects are a continuous improving, modernizing, adding-on process. How much DCA is able to do is dependent on what soldiers want and on how much nonappropriated funds are available.

Stephanie Krawczyk/Special to The Bayonet

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. and Linda White check out a putter in the newly renovated pro shop at the Follow Me Golf Course, which opened Nov. 5, one of many construction projects this year.

Nonappropriated funds are monies from endeavors supported by soldiers' dollars, as opposed to appropriated funds, which are tax-supported activities.

Examples of sources for nonappropriated funds include whatever surplus revenue there is after paying expenses for such on-post operations as the clubs, bowling centers, golf course, child care facilities, laundromat, car washes, package stores, pay phones and Destin and Uchee Creek recreation areas.

Stewart has a "Vision 2000" five-year strategic plan laid out for these nonappropriated resources.

"We run it like a business," he said. "Since 1984, $47 million has been spent in updating or building new MWR facilities at Fort Benning."

This has been done in a scientific way through finding out what is important to soldiers and their families by comprehensive personal interview surveys every three years, customer comment cards and focus groups.

The last two surveys have demonstrated the importance of upgraded outdoor recreation facilities on post.

Brian Smith, Fort Benning Marketing director, said that the last survey especially pointed to the value that soldiers and their families place on recreation facilities due to their stressful lifestyle of frequent moves and deployments.

He added it is evident that soldiers and their families do not mind paying a fair price for these services as long as the quality is high.

Among the specific projects completed since 1984 are:

• Golf course improvements (the last year has seen an increase in junior enlisted use by 17 percent)

• Car wash facilities (two built)

• Laundromat (one built)

• Bowling (computerized scoring and synthetic lanes that have increased scores and usage)

• Sports (such improvements as the running track in front of Infantry Hall, racquetball courts and three lighted sports fields)

• Uchee Creek improvements

• Destin Recreation Area improvements

• Officers' Club party rooms renovations

• NCO Club ballroom, kitchen and dining room renovations.

Smith said all of this was able to be accomplished because DCA listens to its customers, and then efficiently provides the quality services and facilities needed.

Also, soldiers seem to realize, he said, that the dollars spent here at Fort Benning remain here for improvements to be made.

Stewart said it is expected that the downsizing of the military will affect Morale, Welfare and Recreation nonappropriated funds by no more than 10 percent. Through proper marketing of the facilities they have to offer to all of their constituents, including retirees during off-seasons, DCA sees continued progressive improvements in post facilities into the future.

'Antibiotics' are available; prevention is key

Directorate of Threat and Security

Computer users are aware of many threats to their systems: severe weather, power surges and hackers.

One of the most severe threats to computer systems today is the computer virus.

Computer viruses are programs that infect computers much like biological viruses infect people.

They attach themselves to files and multiply. They can do as little harm as display a message and as much harm as erasing a hard drive.

The following is a list of indicators that signal possible virus infection:

- Computer is slower than usual.
- New files appear unexpectedly.
- Files become corrupted.
- Unexpected messages appear.
- Files grow in size.

During the past three years, Fort Benning has been the victim of a variety of computer virus attacks. Most have been introduced by infected diskettes; however, some have come from brand new equipment.

Fortunately, just as there are antibiotics for human viruses, there are "vaccines" for computer viruses.

There are several antivirus products available for computer systems. Some will scan while others will clean infections.

The Department of the Army recently purchased an Armywide site license for McAffee's VSHIELD, SCAN and CLEAN-UP.

- VSHIELD is a "memory resident" program that will continuously scan your system and prevent virus infection from occurring.
- SCAN will scan diskettes, files, and hard drives for the presence of a virus.
- CLEAN-UP disinfects computer systems and files.

The best defense against computer viruses is prevention. Never introduce a diskette into a computer system without scanning for infection first.

New viruses are discovered weekly — no computer system is safe.

If you suspect your system is infected, you should:

- Write down any messages on the screen.
- Shut down the system — do not attempt to use it.
- Contact your information systems security officer immediately.

The information systems security officer has the software available to detect and clean your system.

- If the incident occurs after duty hours, keep the system turned off — notify the information systems security officer promptly the following duty day.
- If, for any reason, your information systems security officer is unavailable, contact the information systems security manager, Directorate of Threat and Security, at 545-4772.
- Should the information systems security manager be unavailable, contact the Directorate of Information Management at 545-2178.

What to do if your system is infected

- Write down any messages on the screen.
- Shut down the system — do not attempt to use it.
- Contact your information systems security officer immediately.

Program offers help for job-related injury, illness

Occupational Health screens military, civilians in hazardous jobs

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Whether you're a soldier or civilian at Fort Benning, your job may make you sick. Fortunately, help is available.

Certain workers — mechanics, for example — are exposed to dangerous substances, including asbestos and solvents, during their workday. Because of this, soldiers and civilians working such jobs are monitored by the Occupational Health program in accordance with Occupational Safety and Health Administration law.

According to Helen Butterfield, Occupational Health program manager, the program is intended to measure the effects of job environments on the people who work there.

"Soldiers in field artillery, for example," she said, "or those who do a lot of weapons training have a significant danger of hearing loss."

Butterfield said some other high-risk jobs include health care, tractor operating, fire protection and prevention, equipment maintenance, laboring, welding and warehouse work.

Soldiers and civilians in these jobs may be exposed to bloodborne pathogens, high noise levels, dangerous substances or hazardous working conditions, Butterfield said.

The program provides yearly screenings of people in high-risk jobs, she said, testing their hearing, vision, lung capacity, blood pressure and cholesterol levels.

"Our involvement is triggered if an injury is work-environment related," she said. "The hospital and troop medical clinics handle illness and injuries, but we refer people to them for treatment."

Job-related screening of civilians takes place in the Occupational Health building at Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2630, Butterfield said, where results of yearly screenings are compared with the employee's initial or "base-line" screening to see if any work-related loss has taken place.

"Hearing loss is one of our major concerns," Butterfield said. "In 1990, civilian hearing loss cost the federal government $27,451,585 in compensation expenses. Of that, $6,360,205 was for Army federal civilians.

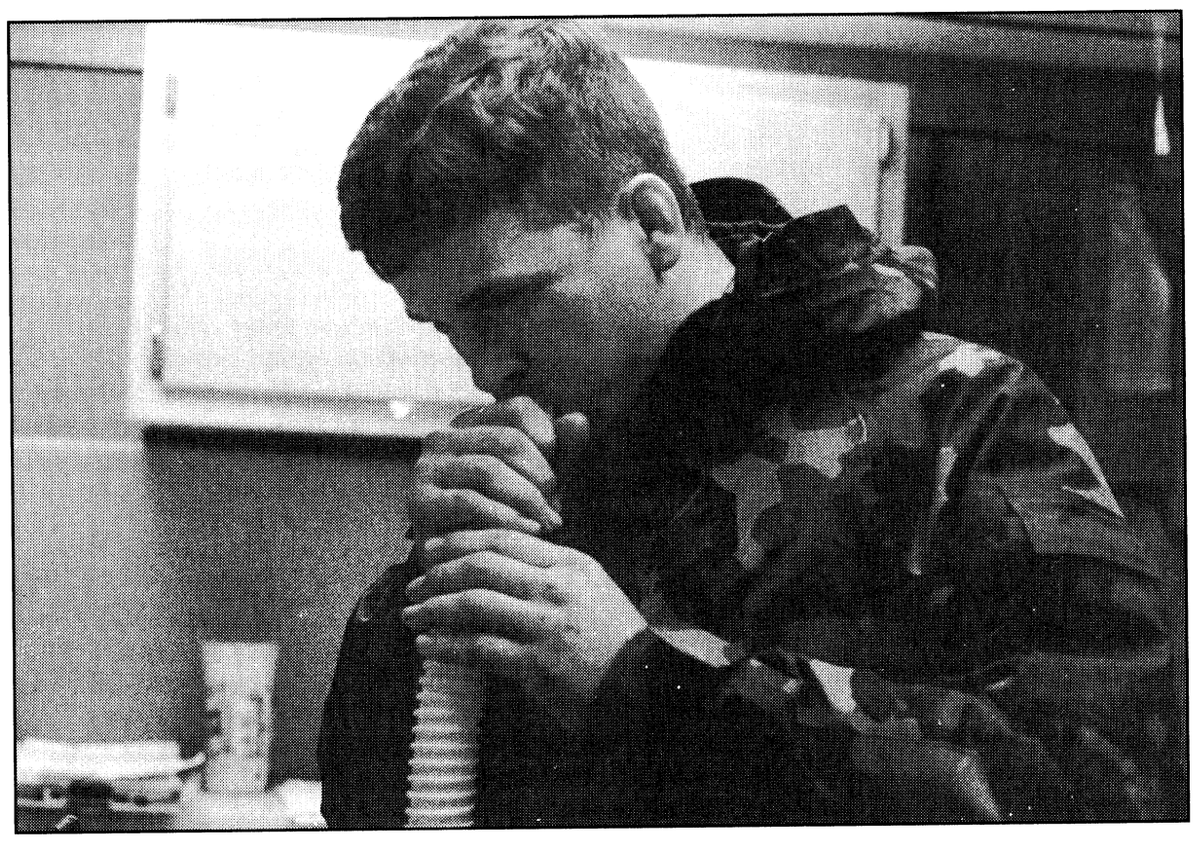
"Soldiers run an even greater risk of hearing loss," she said. "Depending on their exposure to noise, they may need single protection — earplugs — or double protection— earplugs and some kind of ear covering, such as earmuffs.

"We know earplugs protect hearing," Butterfield said, "but some soldiers think they're too tough to wear them. I'd like to tell soldiers they can choose whether to wear their earplugs and save their hearing, or to be 'macho' and risk hearing loss."

Soldiers' job-related screenings are done in the military Occupational Health Vehicle, a trailer outfitted to test lung capacity, vision, blood pressure, cholesterol level and hearing.

Gary Tubbs, an Occupational Health technician and caretaker of the vehicle, said they take the mobile screening equipment in the vehicle to soldiers who can't come to the office.

"We can take the trailer and hook it up at several spots around post," he said, "and we go to Camp Merrill in Dahlonega, Ga., and Camp Rudder, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., to do screenings there. We've had some problems on the road, and it sometimes gets crowded in the trailer when we have a lot of people to test, but we always seem to get through. It's an adventure. "



Cindy Dykes, an Occupational Health nurse who conducts screenings in the vehicle, said that if soldiers are found to have a loss in hearing, lung capacity or other areas, they are referred to the hospital for further testing.

Occupational Health employees, Butterfield said, are trained in multiple subject matters from occupational to non-occupational.

"Prevention is our main theme," she said.

Butterfield, who was named Georgia's occupational health nurse of the year at the recent fall conference of the Georgia Occupational Health Nurses' Association, said the program achieved a record number of screenings this year with 10,350.

She expects the program to continue to escalate when the new Kelley Hill site, Building 9076, opens.

ACAP plans federal employment seminar

Army Career and Alumni Program

A seminar about federal employment will be Thursday from 8 to 10 a.m. in Infantry Hall, Classroom 30.

Sponsored by the Army Career and Alumni Program and the Directorate of Civilian Personnel, the seminar is available to soldiers who are retiring from the military and family members.

The seminar is designed to provide information about federal employment opportunities with primary emphasis on Fort Benning .

The seminar covers the basics of how the federal employment system functions, the various agencies, where to find job announcements and veteran's preference.

Participants will be given a detailed explanation of the federal employment application, Standard Form 171.

James Fleming, a 20-year veteran of the Directorate of Civilian Personnel, and Cathy Murray, an instructor with Conwal Inc., will be available to answer questions.

Murray assists the Georgia Department of Labor with the ACAP Transition Assistance Program workshop, and she conducts personal assessments Thursday and Friday of each week from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the ACAP office in Soldiers' Plaza.

The assessments include instruction in the use of an automated Standard Form 171.

For an appointment, call 545-7073 or 545-4892 and ask for Judy McKibben, or stop by Building 2617 in Soldiers' Plaza.

Physical fitness qualification tests will be administered Dec. 3 on Stewart Field at 7 a.m. Immediately following the test, a 100-meter swim test will be administered at Harmony Church swimming pool.

For information, call 545-1917.

Native American Month

Luncheon honors Indian cultures

By Karen S. Morarle
Bayonet staff writer

The post Equal Opportunity Office sponsored a luncheon in honor of Native American Month Wednesday at the Officers' Club.

More than 300 guests turned out for the event, which included remarks from Col. Richard L. Rutledge, garrison commander; Command Sgt. Maj. William H. Acebes, post command sergeant major; and Sgt. Maj. Virgil Oliver of the Defense Accounting Office.

The luncheon was followed by performances by the Blue Earth Singers and Dancers, Native Americans from Cherokee, N.C. Native American books, jewelry, beadwork and moccasins were available for purchase.

Oliver, the featured speaker at the event, is a member of the Navajo tribe, as is his wife, Master Sgt. Alyce J. Oliver, chief legal noncommissioned officer with the office of the Staff Judge Advocate. The two, who met in high school, have three children: daughters Cheryl, a senior at the University of Texas in El Paso, and Loni, 12, and son Marc, 10.

Oliver spoke of the Navajo reservation, where he was born and raised, and his experiences in boarding school, where, when he was growing up, most Navajo children received their education.

"We were enrolled in boarding school at the age of 6 or 7," he said, "and stayed there nine months of the year. It was culture shock for us — many of the students had come from homes with no electricity or running water, homes where beds were sheepskins on the floor. Many spoke no English, and we weren't allowed to speak our native language."

Oliver said as a child in boarding school, he felt he was being turned against his culture. "Even the movies we saw were propaganda," he said. "We saw every John Wayne movie ever made. He's what you call a folk hero, but not to us. Every time John Wayne fired his pistol, six Indians fell off their horses."

Oliver said that although the reservation has been improved, with new roads, schools and clinics, young people leaving the reservation still face culture shock.

"We're raised to love the land and to respect it," he said. "Many places off the reservation, you see only fences, buildings, and the land being destroyed. That's what sends our young people back to the reservation."

Wildlife officials: Prescribed burning is good game management

Natural Resources Management Branch

The use of fire by the Natural Resources Management Branch to improve wildlife habitat is not a new concept. In the southeastern United States, Indians began using fire more than 10,000 years ago to clear areas for agriculture and to aid in the harvest of game.

The use of fire was common practice until the late 1800s when high fuel loads caused catastrophic wild fires in the northern United States, which resulted in the loss of hundreds of lives.

It wasn't until 1931 when a book, "The Bobwhite Quail," was published that prescribed fire became widely accepted again.

Prescribed burning is used to "top kill" the small hardwoods that allows for an increased growth of herbs. Although the hardwoods are top killed by fire, the root stocks remain intact and produce sprouts the following year.

It would require at least 20 years of annual growing season burning to totally kill all hardwoods on most areas. Acorns and other mast produced by large hardwoods are a major food of quail, turkey and deer, but the smaller hardwoods have little value as a food source.

Deer will eat the woody twig ends, particularly in the spring; however, woody browse provides less than 10 percent of a deer's diet.

Some plants require fire to rupture the seed coat before they can germinate. Many of these plants are important sources of food and cover for quail and turkey.

Burning during growing season and dormant season is used at Fort Benning. While growing season burns can destroy nests of quail and turkey, many birds will renest spreading out the hatching dates throughout the season.

Improved habitat conditions should provide the greatest long-term effect on wildlife.

Growing season burns provide better hardwood kill and tend to favor grasses. Grassy areas provide insects, which feed young quail and turkey, while adult birds will eat the grass seeds.

Dormant season burns favor shrubs and herbs, producing seeds and fruits favored by deer and game birds. For one or two years after a burn, the new growth of plants have a higher nutritional value than if they were unburned.

To control the small hardwoods and improve wildlife habitat, controlled burning is used in pine stands once every three years. Without burning on a regular basis, hardwoods soon shade out the smaller plants that provide food and cover for game.

By thinning pine stands followed by regular prescribed burning, the amount of food and cover available to game animals is increased.

Football championships

Teams clash Monday night

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

With the U.S. Army Infantry Center post flag football championship left to be decided, two teams have battled their way to the final showdown.

One will come from the winner's bracket while the other, fighting for their playoff lives every night, will come from the loser's bracket to clash Monday night at Doughboy Stadium for the right to be called post champion.

Games played Tuesday and Wednesday evening at Doughboy Stadium paired down the final two opponents.

The Bulldogs of Company B, 317th Engineer Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, went to the wall with the Bandits of 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment, for the final spot in the winner's bracket Tuesday coming away with a 13-12 win. The victory propelled the Bulldogs into the championship game. Dogs quarterback Robert Taylor engineered a 42-yard opening drive then finished off the drive with a 2-yard touchdown run giving the Dogs the early lead at 6-0.

The Bandits tied the game at 6-6 on their first possession of the second half when running back Duvowel Peaker dove in from 2 yards out. The Dogs came right back to reclaim the lead for good when Taylor found Alvin Anderson in the end zone for a 1-yard touchdown pass. Taylor hit Terry Nash with what would prove to be the winning extra point try for a 13-6 lead.

The Bandit defense got into the scoring column when cornerback Corey Demps picked off a pitch from Taylor at the 17-yard line and scrambled into the end zone closing the gap to 13-12. The Dog defense put its mark on the game when the Bandits had a chance to win the game on their last possession. On four downs, the Dogs bristled the hairs on their necks and shut down the Bandit drive before it got started, ending the game at 13-12.

The Bradley Instructor Company, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., Regt., got a free pass into Wednesday night's game when Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div., had to pull out of the tournament because of a military commitment.

In the second game of the night, the Bad Boys of Co. B, 2nd Bn., 29th Infantry Regt., hooked up with Rock Steady of the 608th Ordnance Co., 36th Engineer Group, with the winner moving on to Wednesday night.

Bad Boys quarterback Mathew Cecere put the Boys on the board first with a 38-yard bomb to wide receiver Jimmy Fairbanks on the Bad Boys first play from scrimmage early in the first half.

Rock Steady came back to tie the game at 6-6 late in the half on a 2-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Marcus Rawls to receiver Richard Schanderra.

A four-play, 35-yard drive by the Bad Boys to open the second half gave the Bad Boys their only lead of the game when Y.T. Jones scored from one yard out for a 12-6 advantage.

Rock Steady stormed right back, going 60 yards to take the lead for good at 13-12 on a 2-yard sweep by Rawls. Rawls tacked on the extra point on a pass to Corey Long for what would be the final points of the game. The Bad Boys had one final shot with less than a minute to play and the ball on the Rock Steady 17. Rawls ended the Bad Boys chance when he picked off a Cecere pass in the end zone to seal the victory.

In Wednesday night's action at Doughboy Stadium, the Bradley Instructor Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, Instructors staved off elimination with a 13-point second half comeback to eliminate Rock Steady of the 608th Ordnance Company, 19-18, and send them into the second game of the evening against the Bandits of 1st Bn., 50th Inf. Regt.

Three touchdown passes from quarterback Michael Jones to big tight end Tony Tebben, the last one a 20-yard pass to the corner of the end zone with no time left on the clock, gave the Instructors the one-point margin for victory climaxing a storybook finish.

Rock Steady quarterback Marcus Rawls also had three scoring passes. Two went to wide out Darrell Hawkins in the first half and the third one went to Cory Long who galloped 40 yards for the score.

Down 18-6 early in the second half, the Instructors started the comeback when Jones found Tebbens over the middle for a 35-yard strike. Adding on the extra point with a pass to Milton Fields out of the backfield, the Bandits had cut the lead to 18-13.

On the Instructors' last possession of the game and down to their last play, Rock Steady lineman Steven Walters was called for roughing the passer giving the Instructors one more shot from the 20-yard line.

Jones let fly to the front corner of the end zone; and, with a defender all over him, Tebbens pulled in the game-winning touchdown.

In the final gridiron tilt to determine the final spot for the championship, the Instructors held up the Bandits of 1st Bn., 50th Inf. Regt., and squeaked out a tough hard-fought 7-6 victory to gain a berth in the championship game Monday night at Doughboy Stadium beginning at 6 p.m.

Grand opening

Pro shop ceremony tees off

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet©

The Fort Benning Follow Me Golf Course officially opened its newly renovated pro shop despite rainy weather Nov. 5. The grand opening ceremony began with remarks from Fort Benning golf pro George Cliff and Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry White.

"Anytime you can renovate or build a new facility that contributes to the quality of life of soldiers and their families, then you've done something right," White said.

Fort Benning will continue quality of life improving efforts, according to White.

"We have not reached the destination, " he said. "We're on a journey and will continue to make improvements everyday."

Refreshments and a complimentary golf ball and package of tees were passed out after the ribbon cutting. A large crowd of attendees toured the renovated facility and checked out the new merchandise in the pro shop.

Inclement weather caused a few changes to be made in the opening schedule.

Golf professional Paul Bumann, also known as the clown prince of golf, performed his trick-shot show in less than ideal conditions. Because of rain, the demonstration had to be moved into the clubhouse using a net to stop the flying golf balls.

Bumann warmed up the crowd with a series of jokes before beginning his routine. The show included shots with a variety of ridiculous clubs, exploding golf balls and three-foot high tees.

After the demonstration, Bumann and assistant golf pro Terri Norris teamed up to give a clinic teaching the fundamentals of golf and golf swinging.

Renovations of both the locker room and pro shop began in September by a Directorate of Community Activities maintenance crew under the direction of Charlotte Jackson. Total cost of the project was $61,000. An improved display area in the pro shop now features an expanded line of Professional Golf Association golf equipment with a best-price guarantee. The shop will also offer a special-order service.

The locker room has been equipped with oak face lockers and benches and a lounge area with bar and television.

In addition to other changes, the driving range has also been upgraded. It is now fully lighted with an automatic golf ball dispenser, change machine and new driving mats.

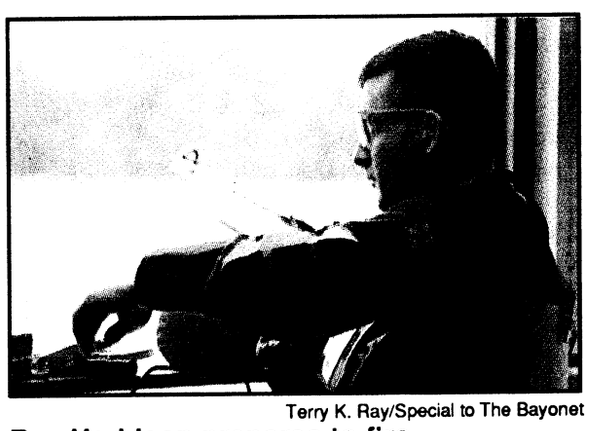
USAMU captain hits the mark

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

For Rob Harbison, shooting is not just a sport but a way of life.

Harbison, a captain with the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, was named the athlete of the year in the rifle discipline by the U.S. Shooting Team at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"It's as big an honor as winning the medals themselves," said Harbison, "maybe a little bit bigger." With some of the people around me such as Glenn Dubis, a world-record holder and world champion, Bob Foth an Olympic Silver Medal winner, to be given this award above them gives more meaning to the award."



Harbison, 27, won three medals at World Cup competitions in 1993. Harbison defeated world-record holder Rajmond Debevec to win the men's air rifle crown at the 1993 Seoul World Cup. At the Milan World Cup, Harbison captured a Silver Medal in three-position then duplicated that effort at the World Cup Finals in Munich, Germany.

Harbison a native of Fallston, Md., has shooting in his blood so to speak. His father was a National Collegiate Athletic Association All-American while in college.

"I can still remember going to watch him shoot on Friday nights," he said.

While attending the University of Tennessee at Martin, Harbison was a three-time NCAA All-American and won the NCAA air rifle title in 1987.

Harbison came to Fort Benning from Fort Hood, Texas, where he was an executive officer with a tank unit. When Harbison joined the Army, his first goal was to come to Fort Benning and become a member of USAMU and then become a member of the Olympic shooting team.

Terry K. Ray/Special to The Bayonet

Roy Harbison prepares to fire.

With a little more than two years on the U.S. Shooting Team, Harbison hopes by the time the 1996 Olympics come to Atlanta, he will have secured a spot on the team.

"Being able to go to places like Italy, Germany, Sweden and Korea to compete against the world's best shooters only enhances my chances to gain a berth on the team," he said. "I have my work cut out for me. Shooting is a sport for flashes in the pan, if you will. Because of the mental side of shooting, you see strange things happen all the time. People choke or have really bad days; then on the other side, someone has a hot day and like a lighting bolt you have a national champion or an Olympic champion come out of the blue," he continued.

With that in mind Harbison will continue to put in the dedication and hard work that it takes to become a world champion. For now his sights will be set on the World Championships in Milan, Italy 1994.

300-METER CHAMPIONSHIPS

bring three new national winners into the shooting spotlight

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The 1993 300-Meter U.S. National Championships at Pool Complex Nov. 5 through Monday brought three new national champions into the light.

The event was hosted by the U.S. Army Marksmenship Unit.

In the 300-meter free rifle three-position, Glenn Dubis of USAMU won the national crown with a score of 3,498. Bob Foth of the Olympic Training Center Shooting Club captured second firing a 3,495. Webb Wright III finished third with a score of 3,487.

Dubis, Rob Harbison and Ken Johnson won the 3x40 team championship with a combined score of 3,480. Foth, Dave Johnson and Gary Hardy of the OTC club placed in the second spot with a total of 3,474. The U.S. Army Reserve team of Eric Uptagrafft, Kurt Fitz-Randolph and Dave Erickson rounded out the third spot with a score of 3,471.

In the 300-meter free rifle prone position, Johnson of USAMU captured the national title with a score of 1,781. Uptagrafft of the USAR finished in second, one point behind Johnson at 1,780 and two points better than third place finisher Foth at 1,778.

In team competition, Ernie Van Zande, Erickson and Uptagrafft captured top honors for U.S. Army Reserve One. Jim Meredith, Lance Hopper and Johnson of USAMU Red took second place while USAMU Blue team members Boyd Goldsby, Harbison and Tommy Tamas laid claim to the third spot.

In the 300-meter standard rifle 3x20, Steve Goff of the National Guard outpointed Fitz-Randolph by one point to win the national title. Erickson finished with a score of 1,145 for third place.

The standard rifle 3x20 team championship went to Dubis, Harbison and Wright with a score of 1,711 for USAMU Blue. The USAR One team of Erickson, Uptagrafft and Fitz-Randolph gathered 1,710 to give the team second place while USAMU Gold team members of Rick Hawkins, Meredith and Hopper finished in third with 1,701 points.

The high visitor award was given to the French team in each competition with team member Roger Chasset receiving a championship medallion for his participation in 3x40, prone and standard rifle.

In range: Shooters practice night firing

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Fifty shooters turned out for the Fort Benning's Rifle and Pistol Club tactical pistol night match Saturday at English Range.

In the competitor class, Richard Hopp beat out Eric Woodson for first place by one percentage point 92 percent to 91, while Wyatte Pittman finished in third place at 90 percent.

In the standard class, Dusty Holcomb finished in the top spot with a score of 95 percent. Danny Stearns took second at 86 percent and Charles Rolling rounded out the top three with a score of 80 percent.

Lawrence Cox captured first in the military division with 100 percent, while Bruce McCauley finished in second at 80 percent and Todd Armstrong took the third with 69 percent. High service revolver went to Mark Olson with a score of 80 percent. The high law enforcement award went to Terry Hunt with a score of 48 percent, and Daun Broneske captured the high female category with a percentage of 60.

Ms. Manners could teach hunters a lesson

Etiquette may save lives

By Kevin L. McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Now comes the time for all deer hunters to exhibit what I call proper "hunter etiquette" as the Georgia deer season kicks into high gear.

Only three weeks into the season, many hunters out there are already on my "black list." You know them, those guys who continuously commit those heinous crimes that really "tick you off."

They intentionally walk into your hunting area knowing you're there; they set up a stand within sight of your stand; they come blasting down a logging trail at 50 mph or they aim a rifle in your direction when they first spot you.

Ignorant. That's a good word to describe them (I have others but they wouldn't be appropriate for young children). Over the past 10 years, I've seen some stupid hunters on public lands; but, I have to say, we definitely have our share hunting on post.

Last week, I was set up on a hill overlooking a creek bed, and my truck was parked on a logging trail that ended a ways back. Now there's no easy access into this area except the trail my vehicle was parked on.

Nevertheless, I'm sitting against a tree scanning my sectors of fire, when I see this blob of blaze orange coming down the trail, right past my truck.

The guy wasn't even looking around for another hunter as he approached me. Finally, about five feet away, Mr. Eagle Eye spotted me. Reluctantly, he turned around and walked out of the area.

What an idiot! He saw my truck, knew someone was hunting in the area and kept on coming down a dead-end trail. Luckily, a deer hadn't jumped between us because I'm sure he would have opened up on it and "hosed me down" in the process.

My hunting partner had another situation happen to him two weeks ago. After parking his truck, he was walking down a trail and got about 50 yards from a field he had planned to hunt when some nimrod came roaring past him at light speed in a beat-up 4x4.

Sliding to a halt at the edge of the field like Starsky and Hutch, the guy jumped out and started putting on his hunting gear. When my buddy reached the field, he asked the guy (alias Mario Andretti) what he was doing.

The hunter answered, "I'm gonna hunt this field." Well, my buddy explained to Mr. Claim Jumper that he had planned on hunting it and the man knew it. The guy's only, and quite brilliant I might add, reply was, "OK."

So, my hunting partner, now extremely irritated, went ahead and set up his stand as the guy climbed into an old permanent stand just a few yards away. After a few minutes my friend, now thoroughly disgusted, packed up his stand and headed home.

What's wrong with that guy? He knew my partner was planning on hunting there and that they'd be only a few yards apart (and facing each other), but he went ahead and climbed into a stand.

If the stand had been marked with the guy's name, telephone number and hunting year, then my buddy would have had to hunt elsewhere (if you're confused, read the regulations); but it wasn't.

The guy, once he spotted my buddy, should have turned around and left the area. What a cretin!

On another occasion last year, I was hunting the Alabama side of Fort Benning on opening day. I had just finished setting up my stand when a truck appeared at the far end of the field.

Five minutes later, a young man

Kevin L. McIver

COMMENTARY

walks to a tree only a couple yards from my stand and climbs up. Now, it's still dark, but my truck was still parked in front of my stand!

Bewildered, I finally asked him what the heck he was doing. His reply was, "I've been hunting from this tree all week, and this is my tree!"

Now in a situation like this, many questions come to mind. Is this guy brain dead? Is this guy stubborn enough to start a confrontation? Is that guy even authorized to hunt on post? Is that .30-.30 he's packing loaded? Is he as mad as I am? Well, after about five minutes of explaining the post regulations and questioning him about how he could have been hunting from that tree all week when today was opening day, he finally climbed down and walked back to his truck. Imbecile.

At the archery range last week (yeah, some people are still using bows out there), an archer related another story to me. A few days before, he was walking into an area when he spotted another hunter about a hundred yards away.

As he approached the gentleman, he continuously tried to get his attention but to no avail. This was because every few steps, Mr. Jumpy would throw his rifle to his shoulder and aim at imaginary whitetails breaking out of the nearby scrub brush.

Finally, he yelled at him (bad move) and scared him so bad that he spun around and pointed his rifle at him. My friend ducked (and probably muttered some profane words) before the guy lowered his weapon.

You don't stalk whitetail deer using quail tactics, and you sure enough don't hunt from main roads. Hunting like this can only result in somebody getting hurt or killed. Anyone who knows me would find it hard to believe that I can handle situations like these "delicately" without flying off the deep end.

If someone made an honest mistake however, say approached my stand inadvertently while doing some still hunting (that's stalking for you novice deer hunters), then I'll accept that.

But, when they blatantly approach your stand, cross in front of your engagement area, or commit some other dastardly deed, you need to keep a cool head and keep that finger off the trigger.

One hundred years ago, I would have said "blast em." But, the days of the Old West have long since passed, and it's not the time or place to relive Custer's Last Stand.

All you can do is quietly talk to the hunters (or trespassers as I call them) and explain what they did wrong. Ask them to leave the area. If all else fails, pack up your gear, take down their license plate number or access pass number, head out of the area, and report the incident to Hunter Control or the Military Police.

With only 1,600 hunters hunting on 284 square miles (182,000 acres) of Fort Benning land, it's hard to believe you would even see another hunter near you; however, it happens. When it does, keep a cool head and negotiate.

Now if you're one of those hunters who consistently violates the rights of other hunters, get your act together.

Stop walking up on hunters; hunt another spot if you see a parked vehicle, and educate yourself on hunting safety.

If none of this works, quit hunting and stay out of the woods because everyone isn't as nice as I am. Plus, your luck is bound to run out sooner or later.

Good luck (to the good hunters) and see you in the woods.

Hunter snapshot

According to the Department of Defense Police the "shotgun only" hunting areas are AA; A4-10, A19; BB1-6; CC3; C1-3; EE; P1-3;Q2-3; R1-2; S1-3; W4; and Y1.

There has also been some incidents with hunters failing to call in when hunting "bow hunting only" areas. If you plan to hunt one of these areas, you must call hunter control and check in.

Golf tournament — The 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, will host its annual Red Leg Open golf tournament at 12:30 p.m. Nov. 24. It will be a four-man scramble. Hole-in-one prizes and door prizes will be given away. Cost is $15 for members and $25 for nonmembers.

To sign up, call 2nd Lt. Herman Jones at 544-2545 or 544- 2214.

Alabama deer check opens — A deer check station will be open temporarily in Alabama for its opening weekend of gun season .

The check station will operate Nov. 20 and 21 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. The location will be along the southeast side of Fryar Field Loop Road that leads to Highway 18. Information is obtained from ages and weights of deer, which is then used to determine population trends, herd health and the next season's hunting regulations. Hunters are encouraged to bring all deer harvested to the check station for measurements during the times indicated.

Adult flag football — Phenix City Parks and Recreation is now accepting teams for its adult flag football league. For more information, call Morris Galloway at 291-4719.

Parish awards medal

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The St. Maurice parish at Fort Benning honored one of its members Sunday at the 11:30 a.m. Mass at Main Post Catholic Chapel.

Retired Col. Robert Nett was awarded the Medal of the Archdiocese for Military Services. This award is presented to people who have demonstrated qualities worthy of special recognition by their character and extraordinary service to the church and the community.

According to members of the parish, Nett has been an outstanding member of the parish community for more than 20 years and has used his talents as a carpenter and craftsmen to make the chapel a special place for worship.

Chaplain (Maj.) Michael Travaglione presents Military Archdiocese award to Ret. Col. Robert Nett who stands beside his wife, Frances.

He used his talents and initiative to help renovate the chapel that included a baptistry, a baptismal font, decorative wooden hangers for banners, blessed sacrament sanctuary and many other repairs, parish members said. All of the work was done voluntarily.

"He is a role model for all who come in contact with him," Chaplain (Maj.) James Coindreau said.

Nett is a humanitarian motivated by his religious beliefs, Coindreau said. He practices his religion faithfully serving as a lay eucharistic minister in the parish.

Nett, who was awarded a Medal of Honor for his service in World War II, makes his home in Columbus with his wife, Frances.

11th renovates chapel

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The Regimental Road Chapel, formerly the Lavoie Manor Chapel, was dedicated in a ceremony Nov. 2.

The chapel was renovated and renamed to "provide a comfortable atmosphere for soldiers," said Col. Walter Wojdakowski, commander of the 11th Infantry Regiment, in his welcome remarks.

Spc. Carlos Rodriguez of the Infantry Band, played "Church Call" on the trumpet as a large crowd formed outside for the ceremony .

Members of the 11th Infantry Regiment worked day and night to get the chapel ready for soldiers said Maj. Rod Brown, executive officer for 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment.

The project to renovate the chapel was a self-help project through the Directorate of Public Works at "no cost to Fort Benning," said Wojdakowski.

John G. Cochran, Sgt. Robert Champeau and Spc. Dwayne K. Henderson of 1st Bn., 11th Inf. Regt., were instrumental in completing the renovation. Their continuous work with the help of soldiers in their unit and soldiers in 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, helped to make the chapel what it is today, said Wojdakowski.

Command Sgt. Maj. Robert Thompson and Lt. Col. Florian Rothbrust, commander of 1st Bn., 11th Inf. Regt., helped organize the soldiers needed for the renovation, and some of the spouses in the regiment helped with the finishing touches.

Chaplain (Col.) Roy G. Plummer, staff chaplain, was the guest speaker for the dedication. Chaplain (Capt.) Kevin Weston gave the invocation. Chaplain (Maj.) James Coindreau blessed the chapel and Chaplain (Maj) Gil Richardson gave the benediction and was host for the ceremony. Guests were invited to a barbecue after the ceremony.

The chapel is open to all soldiers and family members. There is a Protestant service at 8:30 a.m. on Sundays.

ITB: Soldiers comprehend basic tasks

By Shelby Carr
Infantry Training Brigade

Training techniques used by the Infantry Training Brigade ensure soldiers comprehend the basic tasks they are required to perform, according to unit officials.

To enhance training effectiveness, one station unit training is divided into five phases and each phase contains features related to that segment of the OSUT process.

Soldiers are tested by their unit cadre at the end of phase two and three on 31 common tasks. Phase three testing is conducted during the seventh week of training, which completes the soldier's basic combat training requirements.

Soldiers from all other initial entry training posts are tested at the end of basic training, and testing is conducted by an external committee of noncommissioned officers.

Drill sergeants and OSUT soldiers compete against Army standards when testing, not against statistics or other soldiers, said Staff Sgt. Rory Malloy, Fort Benning drill sergeant of the year.

Numbers and statistics can be achieved by any drill sergeant through the use of personal techniques, but that does not guarantee soldiers will be trained to the standard set by the Army.

The training at ITB concentrates on the individual soldier and his ability to comprehend and perform the tasks required instead of platoon-level test statistics," said 1st Sgt. Douglas Hathaway, Company B, 3rd Battalion, 32nd Infantry.

External testing places more pressure on soldiers than unit testing does, Hathaway said.

Hathaway, who served at Fort Dix, N.J., for five years training IET soldiers, said he initially preferred the external committee testing, yet after his experience with unit testing, he would not switch back to the technique of external committee testing.

"Unit testing brings ITB more in line with FM 25-101," said Maj. Willie Lane, ITB executive officer.

"Some drill sergeants at Fort Jackson, S.C., will go to the 'Super Bowl', phase three testing, three times a cycle to determine what the graders from the external committee are looking at when they test soldiers," Command Sgt. Maj. Sylvan Bauer, ITB, said.

Bauer said the pressure on drill sergeants now is to produce good quality soldiers and not for the results of the test and they are more concerned about the quality of the soldier they train than how well he tests.

"Our job as noncommissioned officers is to train soldiers," Bauer said. "It is our responsibility to test soldiers."

Bauer said drill sergeants are rated on their leadership skills, technical knowledge and professional attributes since statistics are no longer the standard used.

Quality of the drill sergeants and the quality of the training is being judged by feedback from the units OSUT soldiers go to upon graduation.

The Department of the Army is now looking to ensure the quality of the drill sergeant by sending only the highest noncommissioned officers to Drill Sergeant School, according to Bauer, and this results in higher quality graduates from OSUT.

"In most cases, the drill sergeants are the top of the noncommissioned officers corps," said Bauer.

The ITB quality control team consists of personnel from the brigade's training and operations division and the drill sergeant of the year.

The chain of command from the brigade commander, Col. Theodore R. Severn, and brigade command sergeants major to battalion commanders, command sergeants major, company commanders to first sergeants ensure the training is done correctly, said Bauer.

The quality of the soldier from ITB is affected by the quality of the civilians who enter Fort Benning for training, said unit officials, but unit training is used to assess their progress and guarantee the finest infantrymen leave Fort Benning.

IOBC training prepares students for 'real world'

By Joshua P. Frank
2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment

Before the company attack was over, elements from 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, had successfully infiltrated and secured Mobley Strip below the haze of smoke and artillery simulators.

At precisely 7:30 a.m., artillery simulators were thrown onto Mobley Strip. Occupying seven bunkers and one armored vehicle, elements from Company D, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, had the mission of defending Mobley Strip.

The students from Co. D, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, all members of Infantry Officer Basic Course Class 8-93, had been moving for most of the night preparing for the attack.

After Mobley Strip was fired upon with simulators, a bangalore torpedo used to breach the wire obstacle was employed by 2nd Lt. Ryan Polny. With practiced skill and hard work, the lieutenants and several captains assaulted the objective. Although the first element was practically destroyed, it became obvious to the second element that more smoke was needed on the objective.

Once the second element had moved onto the objective, the students quickly knocked out each bunker and set up a security perimeter.

"They really did a good job. They had excellent bunker clearing techniques and cleared each one," said one of the noncommissioned officers with the opposing forces.

The company attack was the culmination of a week-long exercise for the officers who will soon become platoon leaders in units around the world. This exercise consisted of little sleep and constant movement.

Capt. Dave Heinlen, a platoon trainer with 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, said the company attack taught the students the importance of preparation and rehearsals. Once the smoke had drifted off and the students had reorganized and consolidated, there were simulated casualties and only 12 soldiers from the initial element remained to secure the perimeter.

The inclusion of the multiple integrated laser engagement system into the scenario provided valuable training feedback on a personal level to each of the simulated casualties, according to those participating.

"These are the men who will lead in tomorrow's conflicts," Maj. Douglas Burrer, commander of Co. D, 2nd Bn., 11th Infantry Regiment, said.

"We, the officers and noncommissioned officers of 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, have a vested interest in them. They will serve as platoon leaders in battalions where we serve as operations and training officers, executive officers, company commanders and platoon sergeants.

"These lieutenants are an investment in our collective futures," he continued. "In a world full of uncertainty and an increasingly smaller Army with global commitments, we are dedicated to producing the finest infantry platoon leader anywhere. These young men will lead soldiers in combat — most certainly sooner than later."

Space

TRADOC gets into the business

TRADOC News Service

FORT MONROE, Va. — Training and Doctrine Command has taken the lead to ensure that space-based military systems serve today's force-projection Army with the creation of a new agency at TRADOC headquarters.

The Space and Electronic Combat Directorate will perform the same mission for space operations that TRADOC does for the Army, according to Col. Michal Robinson, SECD director.

"We will operate in our domains of doctrine, organization development, leader development, training, materiel development and soldier support," Robinson said.

"What we want to do is normalize space so that the use of space-based systems becomes everyday actions."

The directorate is also developing doctrine for space operations, to be published as Field Manual 100-18, Space Support to Army Operations.

"It's going to be the Army's first space doctrine," Robinson said. "We've needed it for a long time. It fits FM 100-5 (Operations) very well — hand in glove, really. It supports Army operations and it supports the force-projection Army."

The colonel said that TRADOC and the Army's Space and Strategic Defense Command will be working together as recommended by the Army Science Board. The goal is to ensure that the Army "is an equal partner among the services in the establishment of the requirements for space-based systems."

"We want to get in on the ground floor as we develop those systems, many of which should be, and are, joint systems," Robinson said.

He said there are four mission areas being developed to exploit joint development of potential space systems for the American military.

They are force enhancement, force application, space control and space support.

"Force enhancement includes those things we do in space now that help us do our terrestrial mission better, or more effectively," Robinson said. "(global positioning system) is an example of a space-based system we use right now."

"When we plan for a deployment now as a force-projection Army, we often won't have a forward presence. We've got to launch the operation and sustain it from a (continental United States) base. That leads us to the concept of split-based operations."

Space-based systems are vital to the functions of split-based operations — communications, sustainment, resupply, logistics, and intelligence gathering, processing and distribution.

"All of these functions rely on a satellite to pass intelligence data, voice communications, or even television imagery that will allow a doctor in CONUS help a medic in the theater of operations save a soldier's life," Robinson said.

The three other mission areas are still in developmental stages. Force application is the actual use of weapons from space against ground targets. Space control means protecting American satellites and other equipment while having the means to destroy an enemy's resources. Space support refers to ground-based assets — launch facilities and terminals.

Robinson said the functional areas that have a part of the space mission, such as the Signal and Intelligence centers, train personnel very well for these roles.

"What we don't have is crosswalk," he said. "We really haven't gotten the idea of space as force enhancement, a combat multiplier, into the mainstream."

The example he uses to illustrate that point is the leader who wants intelligence data from a satellite but doesn't understand the satellite doesn't cover the area in which he is interested. A warfighter who wants to use satellite communications also must be aware that the satellite's orbit only makes it available for certain time periods.

Robinson says using space-based systems should become as normal for soldiers as driving an automobile. The place to begin treating space capabilities as a normal adjunct to Army operations is with young leaders in courses such as the Combined Arms and Services Staff School.

Although the space operations portion of the directorate's mission probably attracts the most immediate attention, Robinson said the electronic warfare role is just as important.

"The United States Army today is not well postured for electronic warfare," he said. "That's because we really haven't had a focus on electronic warfare."

The directorate has a field element at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., which supports warfighters and combat and materiel developers by keeping track of charges in worldwide electronic signature information.

The directorate will also support TRADOC's six battle laboratories, including the Dismounted Warfighting Battle Lab at Fort Benning, which explore and test concepts, methods and equipment to keep the Army prepared to face the full range of combat operations, the battle dynamics, that are possible in today's world.

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week...

• In Europe, the Royal Air Force Bomber Command initiated its extensive 'Battle of Berlin' campaign, dropping more than 700 tons of bombs on the German city in a nightmarish 30-minute period. Before the month ended, more than 4,000 tons of munitions fell on Berlin, as part of the four-month campaign devised by Air Marshal Sir Arthur Harris.

The battle was one of three similar major efforts undertaken by Harris — a major proponent of area as opposed to strategic bombing, which culminated in the infamous bombing of Dresden.

• In Italy, the lethal combination of harsh weather, difficult terrain, and an expert German defense forced Operation Commander British Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander to reassess the U.S. Fifth Army's position and call off its attack of the Reinhard Line. Alexander made his decision after conferring with Fifth Army Commander Gen. Mark Clark.

• In the Aegean Sea, the German 22nd Infantry Division seized the Dodecanese island of Leros, capturing more than 5,300 Italian and 3,500 British soldiers in the process.

• In the Pacific, the third wave of the invading U.S. force, including the 21st Marines and the remainder of the 37th Infantry Division, landed on Bougainville in the Solomons as U.S. Flying Fortresses launched daily raids against Japanese forces on Tarawa Atoll in the Gilbert Islands.

• On Fort Benning, Pvt. John M. Eibert made a parachute jump from a plane piloted by his brother, Paul, marking the first such occurrence in recorded history.

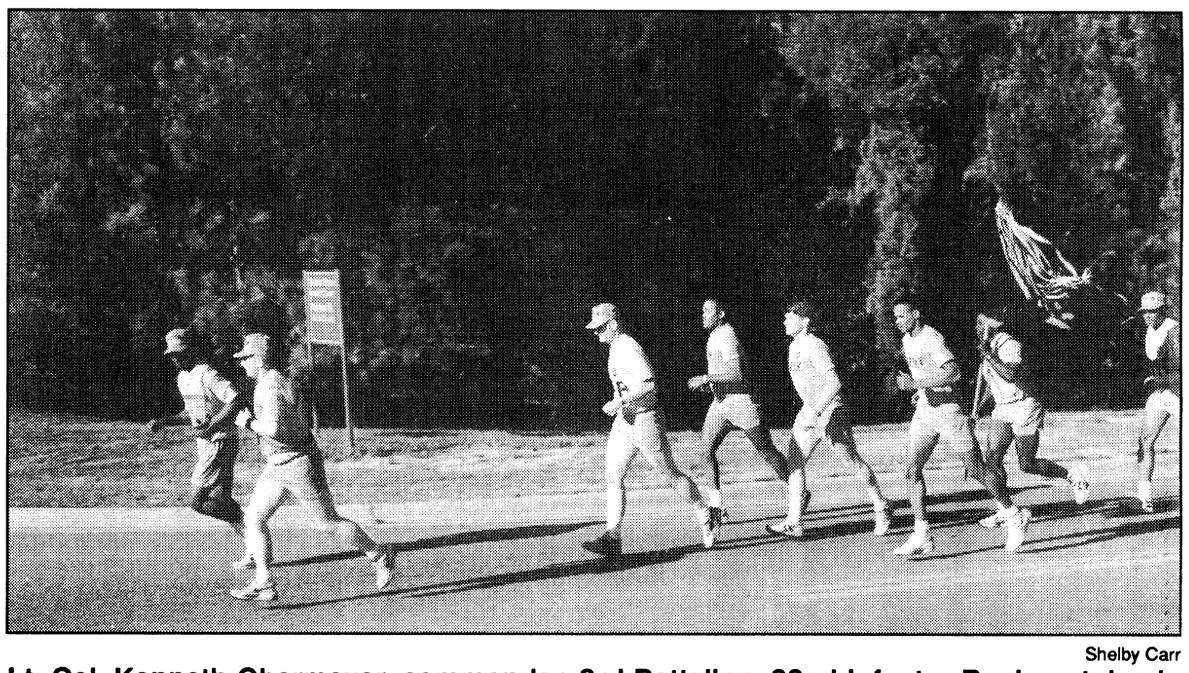
War Eagle Run

Brigade builds morale

By Shelby Carr
Infantry Training Brigade

More than 6,000 soldiers participated in the Infantry Training Brigade's War Eagle Run Nov. 1 at 3 p.m. on Sand Hill.

The purpose of the run was to build morale, esprit de corp and unit cohesion among the seven battalions and Headquarters and Service Company, according to Col. Theodore R. Severn, ITB commander.



The run, led by Severn and his staff officers, began at Ouellette Hall. Headquarters and Service Company followed directly behind the command group. The lead battalion, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment, was followed by 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, and 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, at the start of the run.

Runners passed by 3rd Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment, and its soldiers fell in behind the 1st Bn., 19th Inf. Regt. runners.

Soldiers from the 30th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception), 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment and 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry Regiment, joined the runners as they passed their battalion headquarters.

The run concluded at the brigade's headquarters with the 1.5-mile column of soldiers running by Severn.

Many of the runners wore shirts and baseball hats with their unit crests, which were sold to support the brigade's family unit networks.

Army chief of staff treats rangers to West Point visit

Soldiers discuss time in Somalia

By Sgt. Todd Oliver
U.S. Military Academy ,West Point, N.Y.

It's been said that they were involved in the worst fighting since American troops saw action in Vietnam. Thirteen hours of grueling hell. "Complete chaos," as one Army ranger from the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, put it.

He was speaking of Somalia of course. Having spent a little more than two months in that country, the rangers recently returned to the United States. Because of their service, several of those rangers, along with some soldiers from the quick reaction force, Fort Drum, N.Y., were treated to a visit to the U.S. Military Academy for the Army vs. Western Michigan football game by Army Chief of Staff Gen. Gordon R. Sullivan.

"I wanted them to know how proud I am of them, both the rangers and the soldiers from the 10th Mountain Division," said Sullivan at a reception in Cullum Hall before the game. "I hope the cadets understand by talking with them what it is that wins wars — I want them to understand that it's soldiers such as these. They have the courage and the competence to get out there on the front line."

"This is a beautiful place," said Sgt. James Telscher, Company B, 3rd Bn., 75th Ranger Regiment, as he stood on the rear balcony of Cullum Hall overlooking the Hudson River Valley. "It's a lot nicer than what I've been seeing," he added, referring to Somalia.

Telcher and the members of his company had been training for deployment to Somalia for months; it was no surprise when word came down that they were going.

"We just wanted to go and get the job done; everyone was pretty motivated," he said. He and his company flew into the country and expected to see devastation, a freefire zone. What actually was there was a secure air strip, garrisoned by UN soldiers.

"When we landed, the crew of the C-5 Galaxy were wearing flak jackets and said we were going to make a combat landing," said 1st Lt. Larry Perino, a 1990 West Point graduate and now a member of Company B, 3rd Bn., 75th Ranger Regiment. "I thought we were going to have to IMT (individual movement technique) off the aircraft. It wasn't like that at all. The Egyptians had already secured the area and the UN forces were all the way around us; it was kind of funny."

While still aboard the C-5, flying over the city of Mogadishu, said Perino, "It looked like Beirut — just a big hunk of ruins, with no power. It made us a little nervous."

Pfc. Eugene Pamer and Spc. Christopher Devers of C and B companies, 2nd Battalion, 14th Infantry, Fort Drum, N.Y., agreed.

"The place was devastated," said Pamer. "Everything looked like it had been shot at. None of the people there had power or running water. The conditions were dreadful. While we were flying over, I just thought, 'God, where am I?'"

"Our living conditions were OK but off the airfield it was a whole different world," added Devers. "The people were getting food and everything, but all around us were ruined buildings, garbage even dead bodies. I'll never forget it."

Capt. John Magness speaks with cadets at Cullum Hall.

The conditions, for both the soldiers and the Somali people, were OK according to Telscher. The rangers were given the things they needed to live comfortably, and the Somali relief effort was well under way when they arrived.

"We all stayed in a giant hangar," said Perino. "We had showers and the ranger cooks. We had two 'hots' and a cot — what more could you ask for?"

"It started out to be a successful mission," said Telscher. "It was going pretty well, and we had accomplished the mission. We had done what we needed to do and were getting ready to leave when a couple of the aircraft got shot down."

"It was a search and seizure mission," said Perino. "We had actually completed it and were extracting when one of the helicopters went down. We moved to secure it. Once there, we started to take casualties. By this time our vehicles were moving toward the aircraft and they were also getting hit.

"As it wound up, we couldn't get one of the pilots out. We ended up pulling a security perimeter around the helicopter. We stayed inside the buildings and waited for somebody to punch though. Because the firefight was too hot and there was no room to land the helicopters, we knew we'd have to wait.

"We knew we were going to either have to walk out, which we couldn't do because of the amount of people, or wait for someone to come and get us out," Perino said.

"All I could think was 'don't get shot'," said Telscher. "There aren't any lessons you can learn from something like that. It's just so chaotic and all you can think about is fight hard; try to get everybody out."

"I thought about a major career move," joked Perino. "Actually I thought about the soldiers who were wounded and if we could get any kind of medevac and if we would get resupplied. We were getting very low on ammunition. I wondered if they were ever going to come get us."

According to both Telscher and Perino, their training paid off, especially realistic training.

"I was speaking to (Sgt. Maj. of the Army Richard A. Kidd) and I really plugged realistic training," said Perino. "In the rangers, we do a lot of realistic training, and I could really see the results of that training in the soldiers. Even the soldiers came up to Kidd and said what a help realistic training was."

To the cadets at the Academy, Perino also had some advice.

"I didn't write this, but 'mission first, men always' is a good rule to live by. Take care of your soldiers and they'll take care of you. Second, I'd tell them to listen to their noncommissioned officers. There are quality NCOs in the Army, and the NCO corps is a strong one. Under the conditions we went through is where I found their quality."

Other visiting rangers from Fort Benning were Capt. John M. Magness, 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment, and Pfc. William M. Breen II, A Co., 3rd Bn., 75th Ranger Regiment.

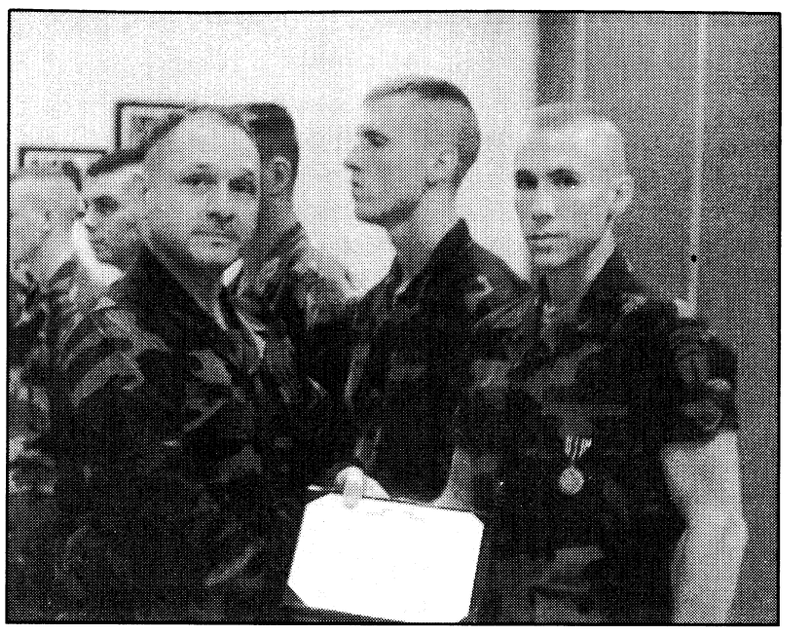
Soldier, NCO of Year

RTB picks its best

By Mark Wafler
Ranger Training Brigade

The Ranger Training Brigade conducted its annual soldier and noncommissioned officer of the year board at Camp Rogers in Harmony Church Oct. 5 through 7.



Eight soldiers from the four battalions within the brigade competed three days for top honors.

The competition included the Army Physical Fitness Test, selected Common Task Testing events and concluded with a formal question and answer board.

The awards ceremony was at Pruden Hall, Ranger Training Brigade Headquarters, Oct. 7.

The winners were Staff Sgt. Michael H. Reed, Company C, 6th Ranger Training Battalion, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. and Pfc. James A. Bell, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Ranger Training Battalion.

Each received the Army Achievement Medal, a plaque from the Noncommissioned Officers Association, a $50 Savings Bond from the Association of the United States Army and dress blue uniforms from the Ranger Association.

Former Fort Benning IG joins Columbus Chamber

Columbus Chamber of Commerce

A former inspector general at Fort Benning has joined the staff of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce as vice president of Military Affairs.

Retired Col. Mayo A. Hadden III joined the chamber Oct. 18 after a 31-year military career.

At the chamber, he is responsible for the day-to-day running of the Need For Land project that will provide land for recreation, landfill and economic development. Hadden will also take the lead in working with Fort Benning to find and recruit new units and missions for the installation.

Hadden, a Holland, Mich., native, has been stationed in Vietnam, Iceland, Germany, the Middle East and South America.

His career has included various leadership, operations and training positions. A few of his awards include the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star (with V device and three oak leaf clusters) and the Purple Heart.

"Hadden's wealth of experience in the Army will help us in completing the Need for Land project and securing new missions and jobs through an aggressive pro-active military recruitment effort," F. Michael Gaymon, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said. "He will be a great addition to our team of professionals. He was chosen through an extensive search of candidates."

The retired officer received a bachelor's degree from the University of Alabama and a master's degree from Hardin-Simmons University.

Hadden's military schools include the Command and General Staff College, the Air Force War College and the Army War College.

"I am excited about becoming a member of such a notable organization," Hadden said. "Military Affairs will provide many opportunities to move our program forward."

Smokeout: Be a quitter

American Cancer Society urges cigarette smokers to just give up for a day

By Clifette Johnson
Martin Army Community Hospital

The third Thursday of November has been designated by the American Cancer Society as the Great American Smokeout day.

One purpose of the Great American Smokeout is to place emphasis on the hazards of tobacco use.

The other purpose of this day is to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours.

Many smokers who can quit for 24 hours are given the jump start that they need to quit forever.

The Great American Smokeout, now 17 years old, is a nationwide effort.

It focuses supportive attention on cigarette smokers from coast to coast, and nonsmokers join in to help them quit for the day.

Cigarette smoking is now the chief, single, avoidable cause of illness and death in the United States.

Smoking is responsible for 435,000 American deaths each year.

Some of the health hazards of smoking include: chronic bronchitis, emphysema, chronic obstructive lung disease, heart attack, stroke, circulation disorders and cancers.

Smokeless tobacco is also a focus of the Great American Smokeout. Smokeless tobacco includes chewing tobacco and snuff.

The hazards of smokeless tobacco have been downplayed during the past 20 years. However, smokeless tobacco poses many serious health threats to users.

The health risks from smokeless tobacco include:

- Gum disease
- Tooth decay
- Mouth and other cancers
- Increased blood pressure and pulse.

Smokeless tobacco users also run the risk of horrid bad breath.

Cigarette smoking, tobacco chewing and dipping tobacco each place high levels of nicotine into the blood stream.

Nicotine not only poses health risks, it is also an addictive substance.

Nicotine causes physical and psychological addiction. Heavy users and light users are at risk. There is no safe level of tobacco use.

Second-hand smoke

Smokers also place nonsmokers at risk. Nonsmokers who frequently inhale others smoke basically become light smokers themselves.

These nonsmokers are placed at an increased risk for lung disorders and other illnesses.

Children are highly susceptible to the hazards of second-hand smoke.

Small children with asthma or any heart or lung disease are placed in jeopardy by cigarette smoke. Second-hand smoke also affects adults.

Research has shown that passive smoking stresses the oxygen demand of the heart. This can decrease physical work capabilities.

Adults with coronary artery disease may even experience angina attacks (chest pains) when exposed to cigarette smoke in an enclosed area.

Many nonsmokers experience eye and throat irritation when exposed to secondhand smoke. Sometimes sneezing, wheezing and headaches also occur.

Tobacco facts & figures

• The Army Tobacco Cessation Campaign was proclaimed April 17, 1986.

• The Fort Benning chief of staff has issued specific guidelines for smoking in Policy Memo 92-26, Aug. 28, 1992.

• A smoker who takes two 15-minute smoke breaks per day costs the employer three weeks of productivity each year.

• It is estimated that 50,000 nonsmokers die annually from illnesses caused by second-hand smoke.

• A tobacco user uses the health-care system at least 50 percent more than a nontobacco user.

• Smokers have about twice the risk of dying from coronary heart disease compared with lifetime nonsmokers.

• Women who smoke during pregnancy are at higher risk for a low birth-weight baby and perinatal mortality.

• Smoked and smokeless forms of tobacco contain 43 known carcinogens.

• Tobacco use is a learned, triggered, automatic behavior.

• 90 percent of ex-tobacco users quit on their own without any formal help.

• Nicotine replacement therapy (gum, patches) only helps ease tobacco users through nicotine withdrawal symptoms. Tobacco users must find methods to break the habitual and psychological addiction.

How units can participate

• Encourage all smokers to participate.

• Post a list of all smokers who plan to participate.

• Encourage non-smokers to adopt a smoker. Adopting a smoker means providing support, words of encouragement and items to help the smoker make it through the day.

• Compete with other units to have the highest percentage of smokers to quit for one day.

• Acknowledge those smokers who made it through the 24-hour smokeout period.

Note: Fort Benning units or office groups who participate in the Great American Smoke-out are asked to have a representative contact the smoking cessation coordinator at Martin Army Community Hospital.

Call Capt. Clifette Johnson at 544-1254 or 544-1255.

To quit plan ahead

_ Make a list of your reasons for quitting. Post that list in several places as motivators. Determine what your smoking, chewing or dipping triggers are. Plan strategies to eliminate those triggers. Visualize yourself enjoying life as an ex-tobacco user.

_ Reflect on the times that you've tried to quit before. Learn from those past attempts.

_ Set a quit date. The Great American Smokeout is a good day to quit.

_ Get a Smokeout buddy who'll be supportive. Do not select someone who will nag. You need support.

_ Plan your survival kit to get you through those first few smoke-free days Survival kit ideas: gum, low-calorie snacks, cinnamon sticks, etc.

_ Plan your strategy for nicotine withdrawal attacks. Strategy ideas: taking walks, exercising, busy work, relaxation tapes, etc.

_ Discuss nicotine replacement therapy with your health-care provider if you anticipate withdrawal symptoms (nicotine gum or nicotine transdermal patches).

_ Stop buying large amounts of tobacco. Purchase only one pack, can or pouch at a time.

_ Switch brands — change to one with less tar and nicotine.

_ Continually decrease the number of areas in which you allow yourself to smoke, dip or chew.

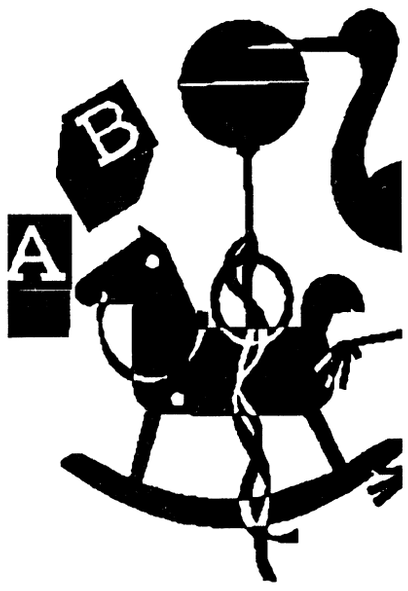
_ Prepare your surroundings: clean out ashtrays, eliminate all but one ashtray or spit container, have smoke-filled drapes and carpeting cleaned, etc. Get your teeth cleaned. Plan a self-reward for quitting tobacco.

Aspects of smoking:

1. Is it extremely difficult for you to go a half-day without smoking?
2. Do you have an intense recurring hunger for cigarettes?
3. Do you feel a need to smoke a certain minimal number of cigarettes each day?

4. Do you often find yourself smoking a cigarette when you weren't aware of lighting one up?
5. Do you link your smoking with other behaviors, like drinking coffee and smoking, or talking on the phone and smoking?
6. Do you sometimes unintentionally go a whole day without smoking?

7. Do you smoke more after having an argument with someone?
8. Is smoking one of your most important pleasures in your life?
9. Does the thought of never smoking again make you feel unhappy?



• Questions 1, 2 and 3 address chemical addiction to nicotine.

• Questions 4, 5 and 6 address habitual smoking.

• Questions 7, 8 and 9 address psychological dependency on cigarettes.

If you answered yes to two or three from each group, you have that type of addiction. Many tobacco users have all three addictions.

FOR THE RECORD

• In the Oct. 15 issue of The Bayonet, the top disabled employee was referred to as Arthur L. Bass Jr. He is Arthur L. Bass Sr.

• In the Nov. 5 issue of The Bayonet, the Tot Town story contained some information that may be confusing to soldiers and family members.

Tot Town is not the only hourly care program in the military worldwide.

All military installations are mandated by the Department of Defense to provide hourly care services. Tot Town is, however, one of only two private organizations worldwide that are authorized to provide child-care services on an Army installation.

The other program, also at Fort Benning, is the Fort Benning Early Childhood Development Program, which is better known as Patch Preschool. Both private organizations come under the authority of the Fort Benning Child Development Services Program and must follow Army child-care rules and regulations.

Combined Federal Campaign continues

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

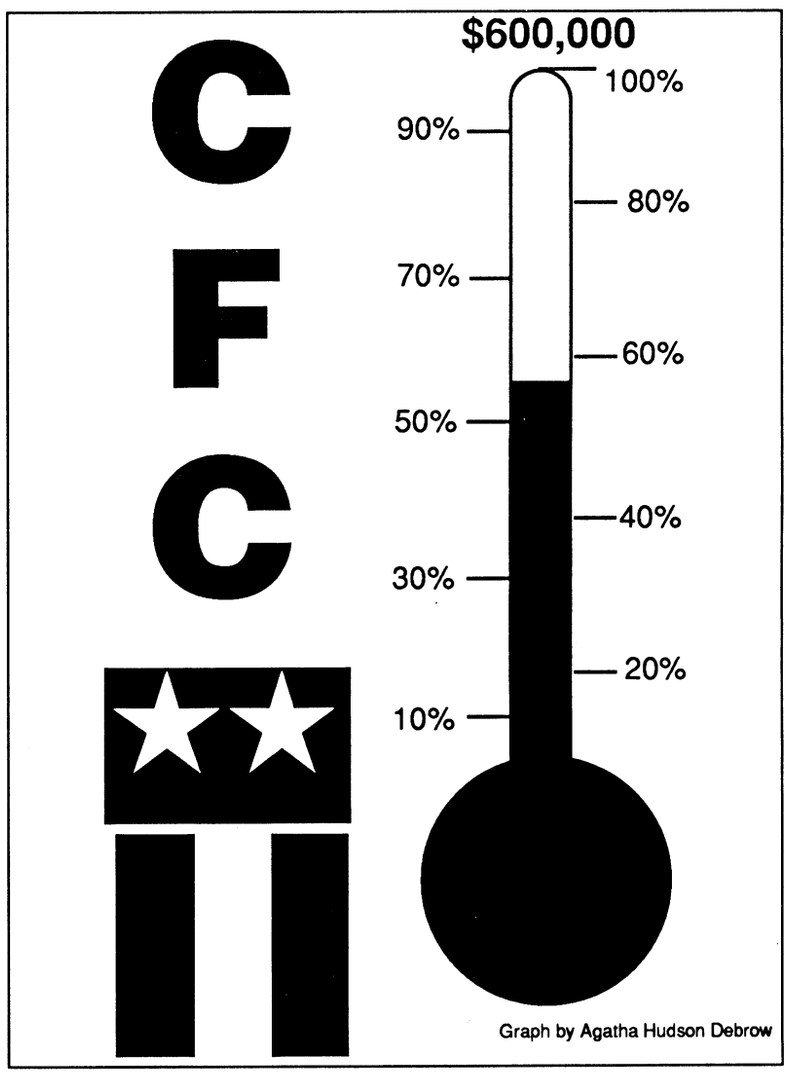
Donations to the 1993 Combined Federal Campaign have reached $334,133 or 56 percent of the $600,000 goal as of Thursday morning.

The CFC allows military and civilian personnel from Fort Benning to donate to charitable organizations through a monthly payroll deduction.

The campaign is a system that allows numerous private volunteer organizations to raise funds through a single campaign effort.

The six-week campaign kicked off Oct. 1.

A listing of the more than 900 agencies that are eligible to receive funds and donation forms can be obtained from unit or organization project officers or the Fort Benning CFC office.



National agencies eligible for donation are approved by the Office of Personnel Management.

Local organizations also appear on the CFC list and are approved by the local federal coordinating committee.

The CFC office is located on the second floor of the First Union Bank.

Last year's campaign goal of $500,000 was met and exceeded.

The campaign is a part of the local United Way drive.

CHAMPUS

Beneficiaries are advised to know their rights

By Joe Thornton
CHAMPUS Select

The Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services has implemented a program of medical peer review that ensures that CHAMPUS beneficiaries' rights are upheld.

Implementing this program in the Southeastern Region of the United States is Wisconsin Physicians Service, the CHAMPUS claims processor, and its subcontractor, Health Care COMPARE Corporation.

Specifically, when CHAMPUS beneficiaries receive civilian medical care, they are entitled to care that is necessary and appropriate for the proper diagnosis and treatment of their illness or injury.

Also, their discharge date should be determined solely by their medical needs, not by their method of payment.

Beneficiaries are also entitled to be fully informed about decisions affecting their CHAMPUS coverage or payment for their hospital stay.

Upon admission, the hospital is required to issue the beneficiary a copy of a document titled: "An Important Message from CHAMPUS."

Beneficiaries should read the document carefully and sign it. It will then be filed by the hospital with the medical record.

"The regional review program is a great benefit to military beneficiaries," said John Wynn, Martin Army Community Hospital's director of marketing. "The program gives beneficiaries piece of mind because now, there is an organization who is looking into the care rendered in our region," Wynn said.

If a beneficiary receives written notice stating that CHAMPUS will no longer pay for his or her hospital stay, the beneficiary has the right to request a review, a reconsideration and ultimately, an appeal of the decision.

For more information regarding CHAMPUS Regional Review, contact Health Care COMPARE Corporation at (800) 824-3570.

For information regarding billing or coverage, contact Wisconsin Physicians Services at (800) 866-6337, or call the Fort Benning CHAMPUS office at 544-3461.

Military courts-martial

Soldiers need to know sentencing, appeal process

U.S. Army Trial Defense Service

If a soldier is found guilty of an offense at a court-martial, the court must then determine an appropriate and just sentence.

The court that decided the case on the merits, whether it was a military judge or a panel, determines the sentence. During sentencing, the government and the defense have the opportunity to present evidence concerning the soldier's service record, duty performance and rehabilitative potential.

The government presents evidence in aggravation that typically includes the following: the impact of the crime on the victim, the unit or the Army; prior convictions, Article 15s, letters of reprimand and other adverse information contained in the soldier's personnel records; and evidence of the soldier's poor duty performance or low rehabilitative potential.

The defense presents evidence in extenuation and mitigation. Any evidence that shows why the offense was not a serious one or supports a lesser level of punishment is admissible.

Evidence in extenuation or mitigation typically includes the following: personal, financial or health problems of the soldier or a family member; past and present service record, good duty performance evidenced by awards, training or character testimony of supervisors; and any evidence that can assist the sentencing authority in determining an appropriate sentence.

During sentencing, the soldier has the right to speak to the judge or panel on his or her own behalf. The soldier can make a sworn statement that subjects him or her to cross-examination or he or she can make an unsworn statement that the prosecution can only rebut if he or she makes factually inaccurate statements.

If the soldier feels uncomfortable making a statement of either type, he or she can have his or her defense counsel make a statement or present a combination of both methods.

After the presentation of all evidence by both sides, each side is permitted to make a sentencing argument.

If the soldier is to be sentenced by a court-martial panel, then the military judge will instruct panel members on the sentencing process and the different types of punishment that may be imposed.

General courts-martial can impose any sentence allowed for that offense by the "Manual for Courts-Martial," including the death penalty if authorized.

The judge or panel is not limited to a certain type of punishment. The judge or panel can impose a punishment that includes any of the following: death or confinement, a punitive discharge, reduction of grade, forfeiture of pay and allowances, restriction to a certain area, hard labor without confinement, reprimand and a fine.

There are two factors that limit the quantity and quality of punishment that may be imposed — the offenses for which the soldier is convicted and the type of court-martial.

The "Manual for Courts-Martial" sets out the maximum punishment that may be imposed for each offense.

The maximum punishment that can be imposed at a court-martial is calculated by simply adding together the maximum punishment for each offense for which the soldier is convicted.

The maximum punishment may be limited by the type of court-martial to which a case was referred.

Regardless of the maximum punishment set out in the manual, a special court-martial can only impose a maximum punishment that provides for confinement for six months, forfeiture of two-thirds pay per month for six months, and reduction to private 1.

A special court-martial may be empowered by the commanding general to adjudge a bad conduct discharge. A court is free to punish a soldier in its own discretion. The court need not impose the maximum punishment and may impose no punishment at all.

The maximum punishment that may be approved by the convening authority may be limited by the existence of a pretrial agreement.

If the convening authority has approved a pretrial agreement involving a guilty plea, the soldier's punishment may be limited to the terms of the pretrial agreement.

After the trial, the soldier is afforded the opportunity to submit matters in clemency to the convening authority.

During the same period, the soldier's defense counsel has the opportunity to review the record of trial and the Staff Judge Advocate's post-trial recommendation for errors.

Any errors may be brought to the attention of the convening authority along with the submissions for clemency.

If a soldier receives a punitive discharge or at least one year in confinement, his or her case is automatically reviewed by the Army Court of Military Review.

A defense counsel from the Defense Appellate Division is detailed to present the soldier's case to a three-judge panel of the Army Court of Military Review.

Although appellate defense counsel is provided free of charge, the soldier may hire civilian counsel at no expense to the government.

The soldier may further appeal to the U.S. Court of Military Appeals (and have his or her case heard by a panel of three civilian appellate judges). Ultimately, a soldier may appeal his or her case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Commanders or soldiers with questions concerning the sentencing and appeals for courts-martial should contact the local Trial Defense Service office at 545-1520.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Oct. 20 to 26. Such items may be incomplete and are not the determination of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns date rape. Date rape, also known as acquaintance rape, is a sexual assault against a woman committed by a person the victim knows.

Some people still believe there is a typical rapist — a stranger lurking in the shadows waiting for an innocent victim. However, in many situations, the opposite is actually true. The rapist can be a date, boyfriend, co-worker, boss, neighbor or even an ex-husband or fiance. Regardless of who the rapist is, date rape is still rape.

There are several steps you should take to prevent date rape. Know your limits and make them clear before getting into a sexual situation. Beware of alcohol or other drugs. Watch what you drink and be aware of how much your date drinks also. Avoid going to secluded places with someone you've just met; if possible, go out with a group or double-date.

If you are attacked, report it. Seek help and support from rape-crisis centers, police, doctors, clergy or counselors. Being a victim does not mean you should feel guilty or ashamed. Date rape is just as serious as rape by a stranger. By reporting date rape, it lessens the chance that it will happen to other women.

• A civilian reported that unknown person(s) removed her Ford Mustang from the hospital parking lot.

• A private was killed and a specialist was injured in a training accident at an explosive demonstration. Two staff sergeants were charged with negligent homicide in this incident.

• A civilian reported that while spending the night in a soldier's room after a party, a civilian forced her to engage in sexual intercourse against her will.

• A civilian was charged with larceny of nonappropriated fund government property after she negotiated 63 worthless checks totaling $8,062 while she was employed at the Army and Air Force Exchange Service Post Exchange.

• A specialist was charged by civil authorities with felony obstruction of a police officer, battery and family violence after he hit his wife in the face and threw a civilian to the ground. Then, the specialist assaulted two civilian police officers while he was attempting to get his wife.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the specialist who obtained an AT&T card and made 118 calls totaling $4,195.83 from Korea to his hometown. The specialist was charged with larceny of private property.

Other activities included 13 traffic accidents and eight cases of driving under the influence of alcohol. Sixteen cases of larceny of private property were reported.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

COMMUNITY CARE

By Ken Franklin
U.S. Army Medical Department Activity

Prevention is a wonderful concept. We all know that preventing problems is better than dealing with them. But prevention takes time and money. At what point do we spend more than we save? The answer has changed in recent years.

In the 1960s, medicine developed the idea of the "annual physical exam." Doctors reasoned that a head-to-toe exam, with easy lab tests, a chest X-ray, and electrocardiograph, would pick up any problems in time to fix them. As the pap smear, stool blood check, mammogram and cholesterol screen became practical, they were added to the list.

Some people argue that these tools simply cost too much. Cost, however, includes suffering and death and the huge treatment bills for disease that could be prevented.

However, the conventional idea of a full annual physical doesn't work anymore — for two reasons.

First, medicine has discovered that the annual physical picks up many diseases after it's too late. Lung cancer, for example, has usually been growing for many months by the time a chest X-ray shows it.

Second, most of today's worst diseases don't appear in an annual physical. In these cases, doctors have to rely on patient symptoms. Heart disease is a classic example; a person can have significant heart disease with a normal EKG.

In 1989, the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force looked at 169 preventive tests. They proved that the annual physical, by itself, is not only wasteful — it can lead you to ignore important warning symptoms.

For that reason, military physicals are usually only given every four to five years (except in special cases, like pilots). Martin Army Community Hospital is extending that practice to retiree physicals starting Jan. 1.

In place of the annual physical, the Physical Exam section will offer a set of reliable preventive measures. They will include a health-risk assessment, cholesterol screening, blood-pressure check, and other tests appropriate for each patient's age.

The full physical will still be offered to retirees, but it will be offered only once every four years.

Of course, if you are having symptoms, you should go to your family doctor instead of Physical Exam. Your doctor will order tests appropriate for your symptoms.

Prevention is a wonderful concept — and still as important as it was 200 years ago. We'll help you get the most out of prevention — without wasting your tax money and without giving you a false sense of security.

Experts still call for cholesterol cutbacks

General Mills

The caution flags are still flying about the need to cut back on cholesterol in the diet.

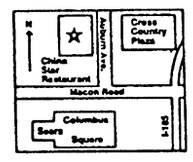
Yet experts still aren't sure why the same amount of dietary cholesterol will have a different effect on the blood cholesterol levels of one person vs. another, said Karen Wilder, a registered dietitian.

Even so, health experts still advise limiting dietary cholesterol to 300 milligrams or less daily as a precautionary measure against developing high blood cholesterol, a major risk for heart disease.

This doesn't mean diets need to be cholesterol-free. However, controlling how often we eat foods that contain cholesterol as well as how much of these foods we eat can help keep cholesterol intake at 300 milligrams or less.

Only foods of animal origin contribute dietary cholesterol. Egg yolks, meat, poultry and dairy products are all examples. And what may be a surprise to many is that cholesterol is present in both low-fat and high-fat foods.

Scientific research indicates that saturated fat in the diet may have even more influence than dietary cholesterol on the blood cholesterol level.



That's why foods containing saturated fat and fat in general also have been targeted by health experts as something to limit.

Examples of foods high in saturated fat include whole milk and other full-fat dairy products as well as fatty steaks and roasts from red meats. Because of their animal origins, these foods also contribute dietary cholesterol.

Wilder recommends identifying sources of cholesterol and fat in the diet. Then cut back on them or find substitutes that are lower in fat and cholesterol. Small, ongoing changes can really make a difference in achieving a lower-fat, lower cholesterol diet, Wilder said.

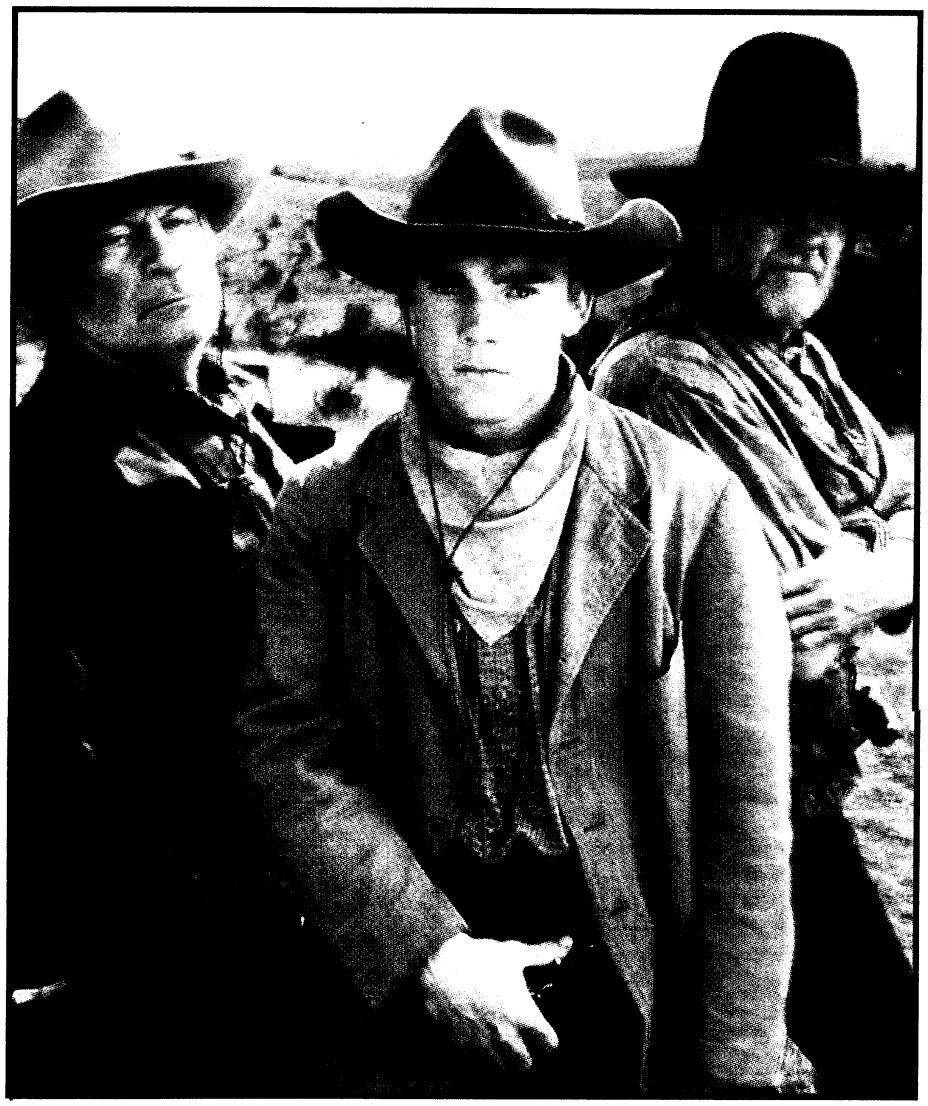
'Return to Lonesome Dove' to air on CBS

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

Any sequel faces instant comparison to its predecessor; but, for any follow-up to be a hugely popular film or TV program, expectations run even higher.



SPOTLIGHT

That fact will be faced this week by CBS as it airs the much-anticipated "Return to Lonesome Dove" Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday.

A seven-hour spinoff of the 1989 miniseries — that earned huge ratings as well as a Peabody Award and seven Emmys and confirmed that there still was life left in the television western — the new drama is missing certain elements that were staples of its forerunner: a story by renowned novelist Larry McMurtry; several beloved characters, including Gus McCrae (played by Robert Duvall) and Joshua Deets (Danny Glover); and some of the original actors whose roles are continuing, such as Tommy Lee Jones and Anjelica Huston.

Oscar winner Jon Voight now assumes Jones' earlier part as Capt. Woodrow Call, who has brought the body of his close friend McCrae back to Texas for burial. While there, he attempts to purchase horses for his Hat Creek Cattle Company from the love of Gus' life, Clara Allen (Barbara Hershey, replacing Huston).

Meanwhile, literally back at the ranch in Montana, Call's illegitimate son Newt (portrayed again by Ricky Schroder) becomes involved with a young woman (Reese Witherspoon) who is married to a much-older land baron (Oliver Reed). Among other pivotal figures introduced in "Return": Gideon Walker (played by William Petersen), a comrade of fellow ex-Texas Rangers Call and McCrae; Isom Pickett (Louis Gossett Jr.), another mutual friend; Agostina Vega (Nia Peeples), McCrae's illegitimate daughter; and a sinister fellow named Cherokee Jack (Dennis Haysbert of last season's "Queen"). Also reprising their roles from "Lonesome Dove" in the continuation (which was directed by Mike Robe, whose previous credits include "Murder Ordained") are Chris Cooper as July Johnson, Tim Scott as Pea Eye Parker, Barry Tubb as Jasper and William Sanderson ("Newhart") as Lippy.

What: 'Return to Lonesome Dove'
When: Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday on CBS

Now owned by Turner Broadcasting — which already has shown it twice on WTBS, and reportedly plans several more encores of it over the next few years — "Lonesome Dove" generated rumors, after its initial success, of a "prequel" that would date back to the early years of Call and McCrae.

Voight is pleased that the saga has ended up moving forward instead. "I can't hope that we could do something equivalent, because it's like trying to do 'Midnight Cowboy' again," he said. "You can't, so you just decide to do the best you can. If the story's good, you simply serve the story because it is worthy. Each night (of the sequel) has an extraordinary event in it. It's romantic and it's epic, uust as the first one was."

75th Regiment memorializes fallen heroes

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Rangers from the 75th Ranger Regiment who were killed in action in Somalia Oct. 3 were honored Monday in Infantry Hall's Marshall Auditorium.

Soldiers and civilians filled the auditorium to pay their last respects to the rangers. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" Monday morning for highlights of the memorial.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general, [illegible] employees. The event took place in the commander's office amid several representatives of the Directorate of Civilian Personnel. For more, watch "Fort Benning Today" beginning Monday.

Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" Monday to see highlights of the Blue Earth Singers and Dancers who recently performed native cultural music and dance with traditional dress in honor of Native American Month. The troupe is from Cherokee, N.C.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

For information, call 545-5921.

Park plans Buzzard Day

Georgia State Parks

ATLANTA — Reed Bingham State Park is "abuzz" this fall about the arrival of the turkey buzzards. Tired of the cold atmosphere of the North, they vacation each winter in Georgia.

In celebration of the buzzards' arrival, the park is hosting its third annual Buzzard Day Dec. 4.

Begin the day at the park with a scenic pontoon boat ride up Little River. A naturalist will lead a discussion about the integral role that buzzards play in the ecosystem. Throughout the 40-minute boat ride, see thousands of buzzards roosting together in the trees.

Reed Bingham will host an educational program titled Ed-Zoo-Cation from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. A representative from Chehaw Animal Park will lead the discussion with the help of Charley, a 10-foot snake, and Aladdin, a buzzard.

The main concession stand will feature hamburgers, hot dogs, funnel cakes and other refreshments.

There will also be an arts and crafts show with local artists exhibiting their creations. Sculptures, quilts and clothing are a few of the items that will be on sale. Gospel singers, cloggers and a wide array of other entertainers will take part in Buzzard Day as well.

The festivities begin at 9 a.m. and last until 5 p.m. There is a $2 park pass fee per vehicle for entrance into the park as well as $1 charge per person for the pontoon boat ride. Call Reed Bingham State Park at (912) 896-3551 for more information.

Operated by the Department of Natural Resources, Reed Bingham is located six miles west of Adel on Georgia Highway 37 via Interstate 75, Exit 10.

Native American Month

Solve puzzles to win prizes

Equal Opportunity Office

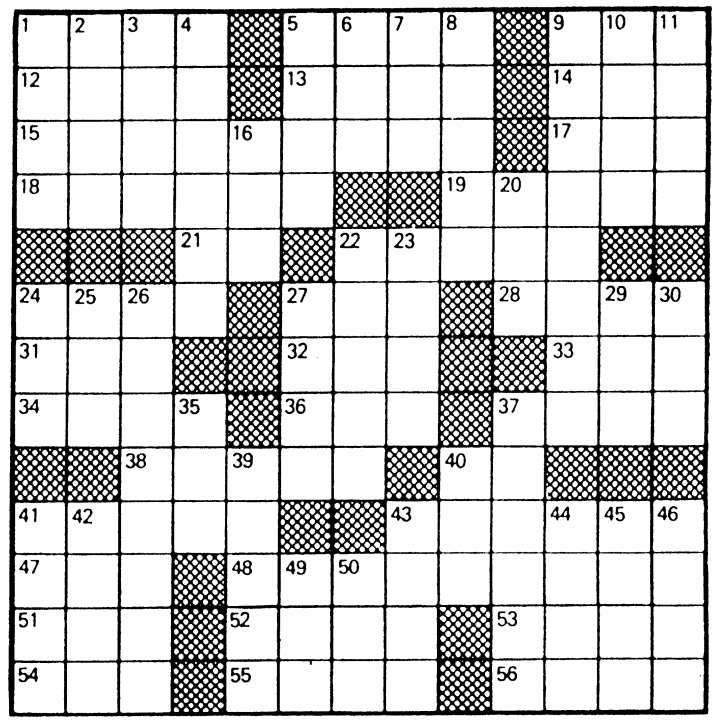
In conjunction with Native American Heritage Month during November, The Bayonet will feature word puzzles and quizzes to test your knowledge of Native Americans.

See how many Indian tribes you can find in the adjacent puzzle.

Bring answers to the Equal Opportunity Office, Building 2515, no later than Wednesday.

The first person with a majority of the correct answers will be declared the winner.

Prizes will be donated by the Directorate of Community Activities and the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.



The answers to this week's puzzle will appear next week.

All-Army band rocks Fort Benning

USA Express stops on post as musicians tour country

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Ruth J. Spaller

Spc. Antony Carr plays the base for USA Express at the Main NCO Club Nov. 3.

USA Express, the All-Army Soldier Showband, made the 20th stop of its 29-show tour at the Main NCO Club Nov. 3.

The band, sponsored by Morale, Welfare and Recreation and Miller Beer, has made its way from post to post across the country playing an assortment of rock 'n' roll, rhythm and blues, country and top hits from the '50s through the '90s, said Andrew E. Gilliam, manager of logistics and tours for Army Entertainment.

Now in its second year, the concept for the All-Army Showband came out of a "brainstorm" of ideas catering to the 18 to 20-year-old crowd, Gilliam said.

"We have the Army Soldier Show, which caters to families," Gilliam said. "We wanted something we could take to the clubs."

And take to the clubs they did. They started at the National Training Center in California, Gilliam said, and played their way across the country to the Grand Ole Opry in Tennessee before coming to Fort Benning.

The musicians were chosen as the best from a "Battle of the Bands" competition in late August, then given about a month to rehearse before they "put the show on the road," Gilliam said.

"If they want to go into music professionally, this will ultimately give them the experience they need," Gilliam said.

The band members act as their own roadies, he said. They are involved in every step of setting up and tearing down the stage, lights and sound system as well as performing.

"This has given me the opportunity to play for a lot of people," said Spc. Julian Cunningham, lead guitarist.

He has played in bands before, he said, but touring with USA Express has taught him how to be a "real" professional.

"I've learned how to conduct myself professionally," he said, "which is what you need if you're going to make it in this business."

Spc. Dave Tennant, the show's technical director, said he "handles everything from the moment the show steps into the club."

Working with the band, the Army Soldier Show and the Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers concert series has given him some good experience, and he has had a few job offers for when he gets out, he said.

Cunningham's advice to aspiring musicians in the military is to get a group together and watch for the battle of the bands.

Performers may submit videotapes for consideration for the All-Army Soldier Show to the Army Entertainment Division, P.O. Box 439, Fort Belvoir, Va., 22060. Soldiers with technical experience can also submit resumes to that address.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Guard against unfeasible business tangents. Conservative tactics are best this week. Heart-to-heart talks early in the week bring couples closer. Some will sign a contract now.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It is not a good time to experiment with off-beat health regimens. Judgment is good where business is concerned now. Higher-ups may be difficult to deal with now, yet your performance on the job is sterling.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Stay clear of gambling and taking financial risks early in the week. Judgment may be off where money interests are concerned in general. Fulfillment comes through a creative project. Fantasy could interfere with good judgment where romance is concerned.

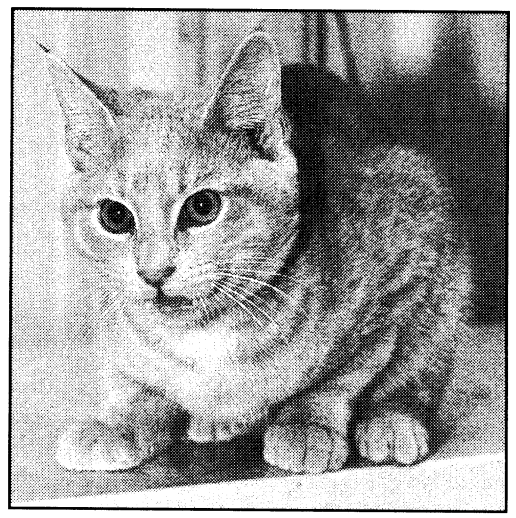
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Keep your feet on the ground regarding manners of the heart. You are effective in getting your views across to others. An extra expense incurred now may be simply unavoidable. Don't fret about it. Instead, welcome the week's good news about property interests and family concerns.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Make sure you follow through on commitments made this week. Others will expect you to keep your word. It is the right time for making important phone calls. It will take a while for you to win a partner over to your way of thinking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Common sense and practicality should be your key words in financial dealings this week. Don't be tempted by a get-rich-quick scheme. A business delay is followed by a breakthrough.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sure not to take on more than you can handle. Otherwise, you will end up the week making excuses. Think twice before making what may be unnecessary changes at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Absent-mindedness could cause you to misplace something of importance. Research, studying and answering correspondence are favored now. Despite distractions, you will be successful in completing some unfinished business.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A friend's money-making scheme sounds wonderful, but it may be impractical. It is best that you don't go along. Group interests are accented this week. You may receive a wonderful social invitation this weekend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) A business proposal made this week seems too good to be true. Don't be tempted by this proposition. Talks with higher-ups are favored now. You will meet with bona fide chances to get ahead now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Bad timing and poor planning make this an unwise time for travel. Be sure to attend to current obligations. A meeting with an adviser goes very well. Guard against gullibility now. Don't believe everything you hear at face value.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) It is not a good idea to lend money to others now. What others think is a sure thing is not so at all. Avoid dubious financial involvements with others.

PET OF THE WEEK

This orange tabby is playful and affectionate, said Veterinary Services personnel.

He is approximately 2 years old.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127.

Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner of a lost pet.

Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records when changes occur.

College to present classics

Columbus College

Columbus College's International Studies Program and the Schwob Department of Music are sponsoring an evening of Indian classical music at 7 tonight in the Davidson Center auditorium.

Dr. Chandan Ghosh, who has been studying and playing the sitar since 1969 and has giving concerts throughout India, will perform a concert on the sitar.

"We want people in the Columbus area to become more familiar with the very rich cultural heritage of India " said Rajgopal Sashti, director of the International Studies Program at Columbus College.

Admission to the program is free. For details, call 568-2062.

Musicians to perform masterpiece concert

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra will perform a masterpiece concert under the baton of Patricio Cobos Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Three Arts Theatre.

The program will include Haydn's Symphony No. 83 "The Hen," Ravel's "Piano Concerto in G" featuring Philippe Bianconi, and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 4."

Bianconi has been described by the Washington Post as "playing always close to the soul of the music, filling the space, with poetry and life."

Winner of the Silver Medal in the Seventh Van Cliburn International Competition, Bianconi has mesmerized audiences and critics throughout the world with his performances in recital and as soloist.

Tickets range from $11.50 to $17.50 for adults and $5 to $9 for students and are available at the Columbus Symphony office located in the lower level of the Barnett Bank on First Avenue or at the Three Arts Theatre the day of the performance.

Special discounts are available for advanced purchases for groups of 10 or more. You may also purchase tickets over the phone at 323-5059.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Jamal was furious with Timmy for smoking pot, but he agreed not to tell Trevor about it. Later, Timmy was persuaded to buy LSD. At Erica's request, Dimitri told Kendall he was sending her away because her presence reminded Erica of the rape. Kendall pretended to agree but vowed to remain. Wait to see: Trevor makes a shocking discovery.

ANOTHER WORLD: Although shaken by her meeting with Morgan, Lorna opted to go through with the trial. Morgan was stunned when Cass chose not to lose his friendship with Felicia by defending his brother. Puzzled Cory board members got messages about a sudden meeting called by Rachel, who refused to meet with anyone before the meeting except Maggie and Carl. Wait to see: Amanda makes a difficult decision.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Damian refused to approve Linc as a Kingsley-Malta account executive. Lucinda hoped the news about Royce's twin would divert his attention from getting married. Lisa asked Lily for details about Eduardo. Damian tried to persuade Eduardo to return to Rome to keep an eye on Renata. Iva met Jason on the deck of the cruise ship. Wait to see: Damian and Eduardo plan strategy.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Taylor caught James as he was about to bring a bowl of poisoned cereal into Sophia's bedroom. She rushed into the room, followed by Charlie, the building manager, and let out a scream at the sight of a big, dead rat. After Ridge said working late would give him an opportunity to discuss the Forrester takeover with Brooke, Taylor agreed to have dinner with James. Wait to see: Playing cat-and-mouse on Catalina upsets everyone involved.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Billie found Curtis making a drug deal and argued with him while the dealer listened in unseen. Curtis drugged her and dragged her back to the basement. As he started making advances, Kate arrived with the money. The two fought and Curtis scratched her and then began to beat her. Austin found a barefoot and barely conscious Billie in the basement. The next day, a dead man was found in the nearby alley. Wait to see: Bo is faced with a difficult decision about Billie.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Alan defended Rhoda when Ray attacked her after she confronted him about Karen's sexual abuse charges. Luke and Laura went on a wildly adventurous odyssey on their return to Port Charles. Scott was announcing his engagement to Katherine when a call came through from Lucy. Wait to see: Alan faces the possible recriminations of his actions.

GUIDING LIGHT: Lucy and Alan-Michael had a lead to Eleni's kidnapper and the document that would return Spaulding to its rightful owners. Alex cautioned Jenna not to tell Roger she was pregnant because he would work harder to keep her, but Nadine spilled the beans. Wait to see: Josh sees his life being changed by Tangie.

LOVING: Charlie attempted to retrieve a videotape Frankie made of his meeting with Alex. Shana and Leo learned Patti might have developmental problems. Ava was puzzled by Alex's lack of interest in her now that she broke up with Jeremy. Buck asked Trucker to tell him about Jack. Prompted by old resentments, Clay and Alex got into a fight. Wait to see: Dante makes plans to go beyond the threatening calls to Clay.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Todd told Zach he faked his religious conversion. Viki and Marty got Emily to talk about Dorian's part in the sexual harassment charges against Sloan. Nora told Rachel about her medical condition. While Max continued his wedding preparations, Tina was striking out in trying to persuade Luna to return. Wait to see: Rebecca is drawn further into Todd's web of deceit.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nina asked Flo for more information to help Paul find her missing father. At the same time, a man with a scar was preparing to pay his bill at a local diner. Scott continued to hide the true status of his health from Lauren. When Eric said he and Sheila were going to Catalina, Lauren didn't let on that she and Scott would be there at the same time. Wait to see: Hope begins to question her place in Victor's life.

MPs on the way to Egypt

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

More than 100 soldiers from the 988th Military Police company left Tuesday to participate in Operation Bright Star.

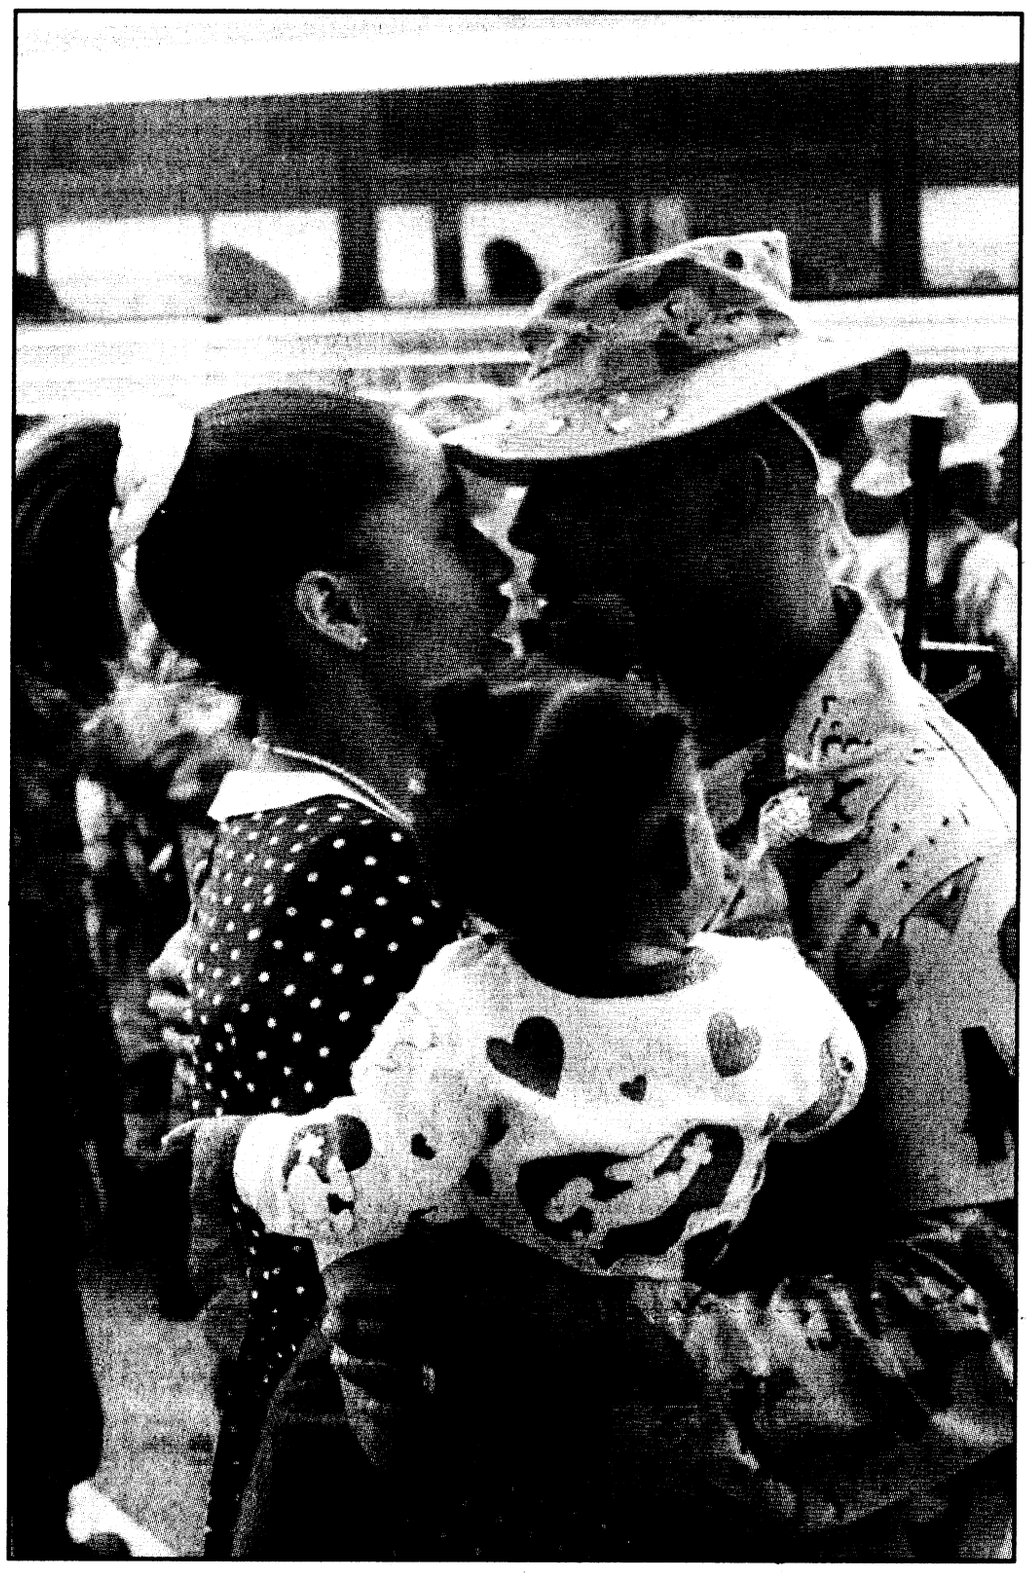
They began their journey by busing to Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport to board a flight for Egypt, the site of the exercise.

Operation Bright Star is a joint exercise combining ground, air and amphibious elements. United States and Egyptian troop numbering about 20,000 will conduct maneuvers including helicopter assaults, combat swimmer training and air assault raids.

The four platoons from the 988th will provide support for Bright Star in the areas of law enforcement and post security, and will maintain a quick reaction force.

Capt. Michael Walker, commander of the company, is quick to point out while the operation is an exercise for most of the units participating, the 988th has a real-world mission. "They will have live ammunition and are being sent to protect American interests and the lives of Americans" participating in Bright Star, he said.

The military police have been preparing for the mission for the past few months. Training has included courses on military customs inspections and rehearsing learned techniques at practice custom check points.



The MPs will be based at the port area in Egypt that American troops will pass through when leaving the country. During the course of the operation, the MPs will provide security for the exercise site in Egypt and will accompany convoys of equipment and vehicles to and from the port area.

The soldiers will really be putting their training into action when the exercise is complete and United States troops begin leaving Egypt. All departing soldiers and equipment must move through the port site and be inspected for customs violations. The MPs will be looking for numerous violations, which include too much dirt or sand on equipment and items in soldiers' bags that are prohibited from entering the United States.

Spc. Stephen Martin, from 1st Platoon, 988th, pointed out that there are many black-market items available for purchase in Egypt that cannot be brought back to the states. "Items made in countries that have slave labor are prohibited," he said. Other examples include animal by-products like items made from leather or camel hair. There will also be dogs at the site to check equipment and bags for drugs and ammunition.

Customs inspection is expected to run smoothly, though, as guidelines have already been given to units participating in Bright Star. "You always get one or two who will try to slip something through though, added Martin. There will be an amnesty box set up to allow troops to discard any prohibited items before they reach the inspection point.

The 988th is expected to finish in Egypt in early December.

DENTAC

gets new leader

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

A new commander took charge of the U.S. Army Dental Activity Nov. 12 in a 10 a.m. ceremony at Love Dental Clinic.

Col. Richard A. Nurnberg's assumption of command was marked by bright sunshine, DENTAC soldiers at their parade best and the surprise presence of his mother and father.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, who handed the unit's colors to its new commander, welcomed David and Edith Nurnberg, Nurnberg's parents, saying, "I'm glad you could be here for this special day in your son's life. I know he didn't know you would be here until you arrived last night, so you've made this occasion even more special."

White also announced DENTAC will soon be part of the new Dental Command, rather than Health Services Command.

"For the soldiers and civilians of DENTAC, the challenges will increase," White said. "You deployed with Desert Storm and performed admirably there, but your job has just begun."

Nurnberg, whose latest assignment was as commander of DENTAC at Fort Ord, Calif., pledged the support of his new unit to the support of the soldiers of the U.S> Army Infantry Center.

"Our first priority is to help maintain soldier readiness," Nurnberg said.

Nurnberg replaces former commander Col. Gene Withrow, who left Fort Benning for his new command at Fort McPherson in Atlanta. Interim commander was Col. Louis Hollinger, who will resume duties as officer in charge of Bernheim Dental Clinic.

Nurnberg's assignments have included duties in Germany, Korea and Japan, as well as several stateside postings. He is a member of the American Dental Association, a fellow of the Academy of General Dentistry, and received a diploma from the Federal Services Board of General Dentistry. Nurnberg and his wife, Karen, have two sons, Craig and David.

Post gears up for loaded 45

Today begins time period for highest risk of accidents

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning is gearing up for the "loaded 45," the 45 highest-risk days for accidents and seasonal hazards, which begins today and continues through Jan. 2.

Post and community officials will be focusing their attention on safety in order to combat the risks soldiers, civilian employees and family members may face during this period.

By zeroing in on this time of year — when people are traveling long distances, weather conditions are often hazardous, hunting season is in full swing and there are more parties and less daylight — accidents can be reduced dramatically, said Regis P. Beighley, post safety manager.

By stressing the importance of weapons, fire and driving safety during this period, the Infantry Branch Safety Office is hoping to help prevent accidents, Beighley said.

The Military Police will be out in force with an "aggressive safety enforcement campaign," said Staff Sgt. Jeffrey F. Bishop, chief of the traffic section.

MPs will have checkpoints set up throughout the holiday season to enforce holiday safety. They will be checking for adherence to weapons safety regulations, seatbelt use and drunk drivers, Bishop said.

Safety Cab, a program providing free rides with no questions asked to anyone in the tri-community area who has too much to drink, is a program that plays a definite part in making the holidays safer, Beighley said.

The program, sponsored by local businesses, will begin Dec. 17. The phone number to call for a ride will be distributed through the club systems, food services and post units.

"The program keeps people from being on the road after they've been drinking," he said.

"We really push the designated driver program, too," Beighley said. "If you go to a party with a group, you should have one person who is the designated driver who only drinks nonalcoholic drinks," he said.

National Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month will coincide with the "loaded 45" this year in an effort to reduce and prevent impaired driving, which accounts for one death on U.S. highways about every half hour, according to information from the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention Program.

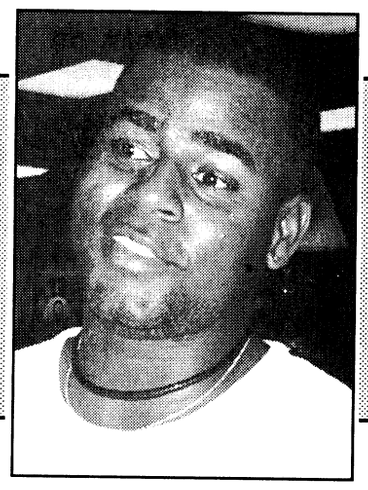
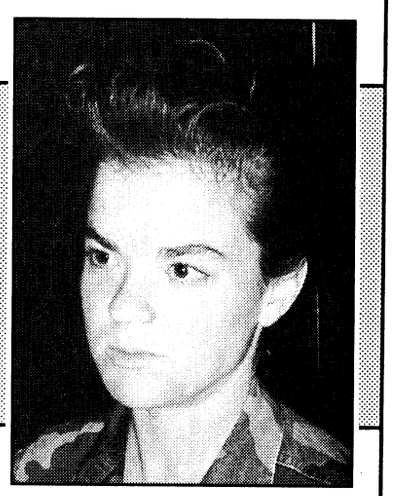
VARIOUS VOICES

Should smoking be allowed in the PX Mall area?



Staff Sgt. Timothy Teig, Company C, 2nd Battalion, 135th Infantry Regiment (Mechanized) — "No, it would degrade the atmosphere and my enjoyment of shopping."

Staff Sgt. Bernard Jenkins, Advanced Noncommissioned Officer course student — "Definitely not. I think you should take all smokers outside and shoot them."



Betty Gibbs, Army and Air Force Exchange Service concessionaire — "If they have got to smoke, they have got to smoke — I'm neutral on that question."

Romanuel Heard, AAFES concessionaire — "No, I don't think they should, because secondary smoke is more dangerous than first-hand smoke."

Jacqueline Glasgow, AAFES employee — "If they sell (cigarettes) to you here, why not let you smoke them here? If you buy a beer at one of the restaurants here, will they make you drink it outside?"

Spc. Donna Wedeberg, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity — "No, because there's no way to separate the smokers from the nonsmokers, so everyone would be inhaling someone else's smoke."

Staffers 'blow' Smokeout

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

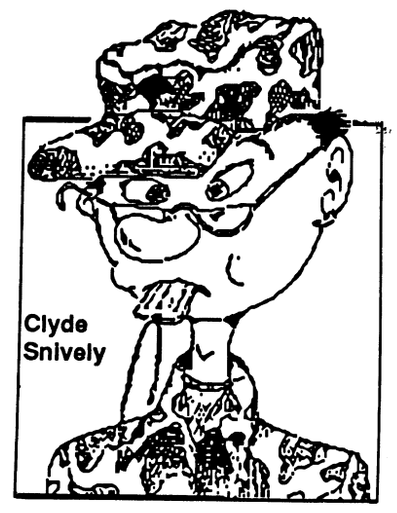
One thing I learned Thursday, the day of the Great American Smokeout, is it doesn't apply to smokers in The Bayonet office.

Talk about dilatory dilettantes — our staff writers take the cake.

I tried my best to dissuade them from smoking, to persuade these hard-core smokers to quit, at least for one day. I even brought in celery sticks, carrot sticks and chewing gum.

They looked at me like I was the one with the disease.

"Hey, I could give up smoking anytime I want," the blonde chick said. "But why should I? I like to smoke, and it sure isn't hurting me any. In fact as I recall, Snively, I trashed you on the PT test, big time," she hacked.



COMMENTARY

"We'll see how it is when we're both 40," I mumbled, my pride once again zapped by this long-legged, fleet-footed gazelle who knocks out push-ups and sit-ups like they're nothing, then dances around the track, knocking out two miles in under 14.

"Snively, I'll always have your number, even if I get emphysema and have to do my PT from a rocking chair," she smirked.

"Oh yeah, well at least I won't have sucking wrinkles around my lips like you will from dragging on those cigarettes," I blurted out.

Next I took my campaign, along with the carrot and celery sticks next door, thinking maybe the male smokers would be easier to reach since they obviously are given to more rational thinking.

But the portly, rotund specialist wouldn't hear my plea to quit for a day either.

"Hey Snive," he said, punching me in the arm. "Like I don't smoke that much anyway, so how's a few cigarettes a day going to hurt a stud like me?

"Besides," he said, lowering his voice, "I hear you're liable to put on weight if you quit, and well, you know, I'm kind of borderline with this weight thing, and well, you understand."

Sure, I understood. Why reduce your chances of lung cancer, stroke and emphysema if it means you might add a few pounds? Heaven forbid, we should discipline ourselves.

When you're in your 20s, you're immortal. That's why we drink and drive; that's why we smoke or chew tobacco. And I guess at this age there are plenty of smokers of the opposite sex who don't mind the smell of stale smoke in our hair and on our clothes, who can break through the smell barrier to kiss a smoker or chewer.

Yuk.

But I knew I was defeated. So I took my carrot and celery sticks and ate them myself.

Getting articles published is no trick

Editor's note: Many people call us with questions about how to get their information in the paper or with erroneous information about deadlines, so we have compiled the following for your information.

Our mission

The Bayonet is here to serve you — our audience. Our mission is to provide timely, accurate and truthful information that supports Army goals and directives.

We get a lot of feedback from readers, and we appreciate your letters, story ideas and comments. We appreciate the positive comments, and we do our best to address the negative ones.

As Fort Benning's authorized newspaper, we are dedicated to giving you the most complete coverage possible. In order to do this, we rely on members of our audience to keep us informed about their units' activities.

Requesting coverage of events

The staff of The Bayonet enjoys covering newsworthy events on post that are timely and pertinent to our readers. Some events we cover include brigade-level changes of command, changes in post policies or procedures and other postwide events.

We don't have enough personnel to cover everything on post, so we focus on the events that affect most of the post.

Some events we do not send a reporter to cover are parties, dinners, dining events, dances, balls, teas, coffees, club and organization meetings and elections, award presentations, changes of command below the brigade level, check presentations and group photos.

The frequency of such events on post and the small number of photojournalists on The Bayonet staff prohibits us from covering these sorts of events.

Also, Army Regulation 360-81, which governs the production and content of Department of the Army newspapers, states covering such events is not a function of the post newspaper or the Public Affairs Office.

If you need a photographer to record events for official purposes, you need to call the Training and Audiovisual Support Center's photo lab at 545-4417.

Deadlines

Film, photos, stories, letters to the editor and other news items intended for The Bayonet must arrive in our office no later than noon Friday prior to the next week's publication.

Copy must be typed and doubled-spaced. The only handwritten items we will accept are letters to the editor. Everything else must be typed. Typed copy is easier for us to edit, easier for our typesetter and results in fewer errors.

Use civilian dates and times, and the name of the building as well as the building number. You may include the street or road if desired. Also, be sure to include the first and last names of all individuals mentioned in the story, and spell out all acronyms on first reference.

If you submit an announcement for post briefs or community briefs, check it when it appears in The Bayonet. Then, if you must resubmit it at a later date, submit it as it ran in the paper.

Story ideas, submission

If you believe you have a good story idea and want to write the story yourself, call us to see if we're interested. If you don't want to write the story, call us and we'll arrange a time for you to talk with a reporter.

We reserve the right to edit all stories for publication, and we cannot guarantee if or when submitted stories will appear in the paper. Stories that are submitted after the deadline will be published in the next week's paper.

Stringers

Stringers are people belonging to various units who write about and take photos of unit activities for The Bayonet.

Without stringers our coverage of unit activities would be decreased. Unit commanders who would like to arrange for a stringer should call The Bayonet command information officer at 545-2201.

Stringers need not be trained or have experience as journalists; The Bayonet will provide training and materials including film and photo processing.

Letters

The Bayonet welcomes letters to the editor and readers' responses to the paper's contents. Letters should be typed, if possible, and should include name and telephone number. Names may be withheld on request.

Photos

We will accept photos that are black-and-white glossy prints or color prints. We also accept black-and-white and color negatives and color slides. We prefer action shots — people doing their jobs or interacting with other people. Head and shoulder shots of individuals are also acceptable.

Complaints

If you have a complaint, question or comment about The Bayonet, call the editor or the command information officer at 545-2201.

Corrections

We strive for accuracy, so if we make a error, we will correct it in the next edition of The Bayonet. Call us at 545-2201.

Classified advertising

Free classified advertising is available for Fort Benning soldiers, family members and Department of Army civilians. To place a classified ad, call 682-3346.

LETTERS

Reader says letter insults Army family

This is in response to a letter written by Heidi M. Baine, which appeared in the Nov. 5 issue of The Bayonet, titled "Thievery, honesty exist everywhere."

Unfortunately, Baine lost her purse somewhere on Fort Benning. Fortunately, a young man whose name was not mentioned returned her purse, minus the $88 she claimed was in it.

It would have been an excellent idea to mention this honest young man's name in order to send out a message to our community that honesty does pay off and he would be an example to his friends.

However, it was not correct of Baine to insult anyone on Fort Benning just because she did not get her $88 back, which she stated was the food money for her children for two weeks.

I have several recommendations for Baine to think about.

- This in not a slum community, this is an Army family community, with hard-working people. Don't insult your own family.
- Take care of your personal property properly and you won't lose your purse and money.
- And last, be an example to our Bayonet readers by personally saying thanks to the finder of your purse by mentioning his name.

Round up all the kids around your neighborhood and teach them the importance of returning lost properties to its rightful owners or the Military Police.

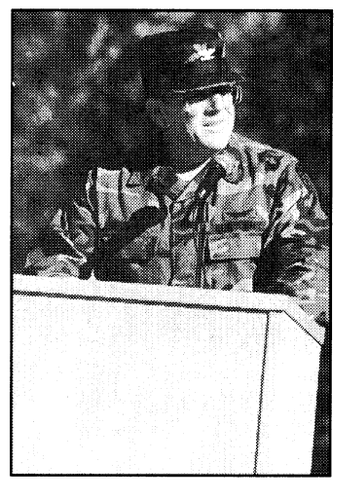
New DENTAC leader takes reins

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

For the soldiers of the U.S. Army Dental Activity, there's a new sheriff in town.

OK, it's really Col. Richard A. Nurnberg, the new commander, but he did bring two horses with him from Fort Ord — and shipped another one.



Riding is a family activity for Nurnberg, his wife, Karen, and their sons, Craig and David. "With an 11-year-old and a 13-year old," Nurnberg said, "if you can find something you like doing together, you're fortunate."

Nurnberg also brought with him a photo presented by the Fort Ord DENTAC in which he is cowboy-hatted, blue-jeaned and on horseback. The inscription reads, "The Trailboss."

His first priority, he said, would be to help unit commanders maintain the dental readiness of Fort Benning soldiers.

"We have a lot of category three and four soldiers right now," he said.

Category three means a soldier has a condition that could become a dental emergency within six to 12 months, while category four means "condition unknown" and includes those who haven't had an exam within the last year. Both categories mean a soldier cannot deploy without a exam.

"We need to work with unit commanders to make dental readiness a priority."

— Col. Richard A. Nurnberg
Dental Activity commander

"We need to work with unit commanders to make dental readiness a priority," Nurnberg said. "We'll adjust our schedules to meet their needs, but it's important for people to realize that a few minutes with us now could keep a commander from losing a soldier for a lengthy time during a deployment."

"The Dental Corps has become much more militarily oriented in the past several years," Nurnberg said.

"I think the Army has the best dentists in the world. We're constantly undergoing new training, we have frequent peer reviews, and we're expected to keep current on new techniques and information and to maintain our professional credentials."

The major crisis facing the Dental Corps, he said, is attracting young dentists. "A dentist comes in as a captain with no time in service, and usually has school loans to pay off. Just recently, a program offered by the Surgeon General's Office that helps pay for medical school has been extended to dentists as well, but the funding only goes so far."

Nurnberg said that although he believes the Dental Corps offers a good career choice for new dentists, the corps is currently 120 under strength.

"That has implications for the rest of the Army as well," he said. "We're at the limit of being able to do more with less. If we get much more under strength, we'll be in a position of doing less with less."

With all the challenges facing the Army and the Dental Corps, Nurnberg said, he's glad to be here and ready to go to work.

He and his family are enjoying settling in to Fort Benning, he said, and his sons have already made friends at school.

"Before we ever got here, we heard that this is one of the best places to live and work in the Army. Since we got here, we've learned how true it is — the people, the programs and the facilities here really do live up to their reputation."

Task force to study how to prevent workplace violence

By James A Caldwell
Training and Doctrine Command

The fatal shooting of three civilian employees in an office at Fort Knox, Ky., last month has prompted the commander of Training and Doctrine Command to take steps to try to head off similar incidents in the future.

Gen. Frederick M. Franks Jr. directed that a task force be formed to develop strategies to try to prevent violence in the workplace.

"The tragedy at Fort Knox has shown theat TRADOC and the Army are not immune to violence in the workplace," said Col. Richard Pomager, TRADOC's director of law enforcement and security, who heads the task force.

"This period of downsizing in the Army is bound to be stressful for people who do not know whether they will lose their jobs or not. That is the case for military personnel, as well as civilian employees.

"We must help leaders find ways to prevent incidents, and to protect all personnel if one person goes on a rampage," Pomager said.

On Oct. 18, Arthur A. Hill shot his supervisor and two other employees were wounded in their office at the Training Support Center.

He then drove to the Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Louisville and shot himself.

He had not been receiving treatment for psychological or emotional problems. Hill later died.

Apparently, Hill had been upset because he did not receive a permanent promotion to GS-7. He had been promoted to that grade on a temporary basis.

Hill coached youth baseball and football, and was described as "a super guy" by neighbors. One did say that Hill said he was having problems at work.

"Leaders must remain aware of individuals who are vulnerable to job uncertainty and tenure," said Maj. Gen. John P. Herrling, TRADOC chief of staff, in a letter to commanders.

"We want civilian and military leaders sensitized to potentially disruptive or violent behavior that threatens the TRADOC family.

"The task force will develop and forward to you a long-term strategy to address the well-being of the TRADOC family.

Herring also offered some suggestions that might help to identify potentially violent employees, or that could prevent such accidents.

Among the ideas are:

• Establishing a local task force that can identify possible issues causing employee dissatisfaction.

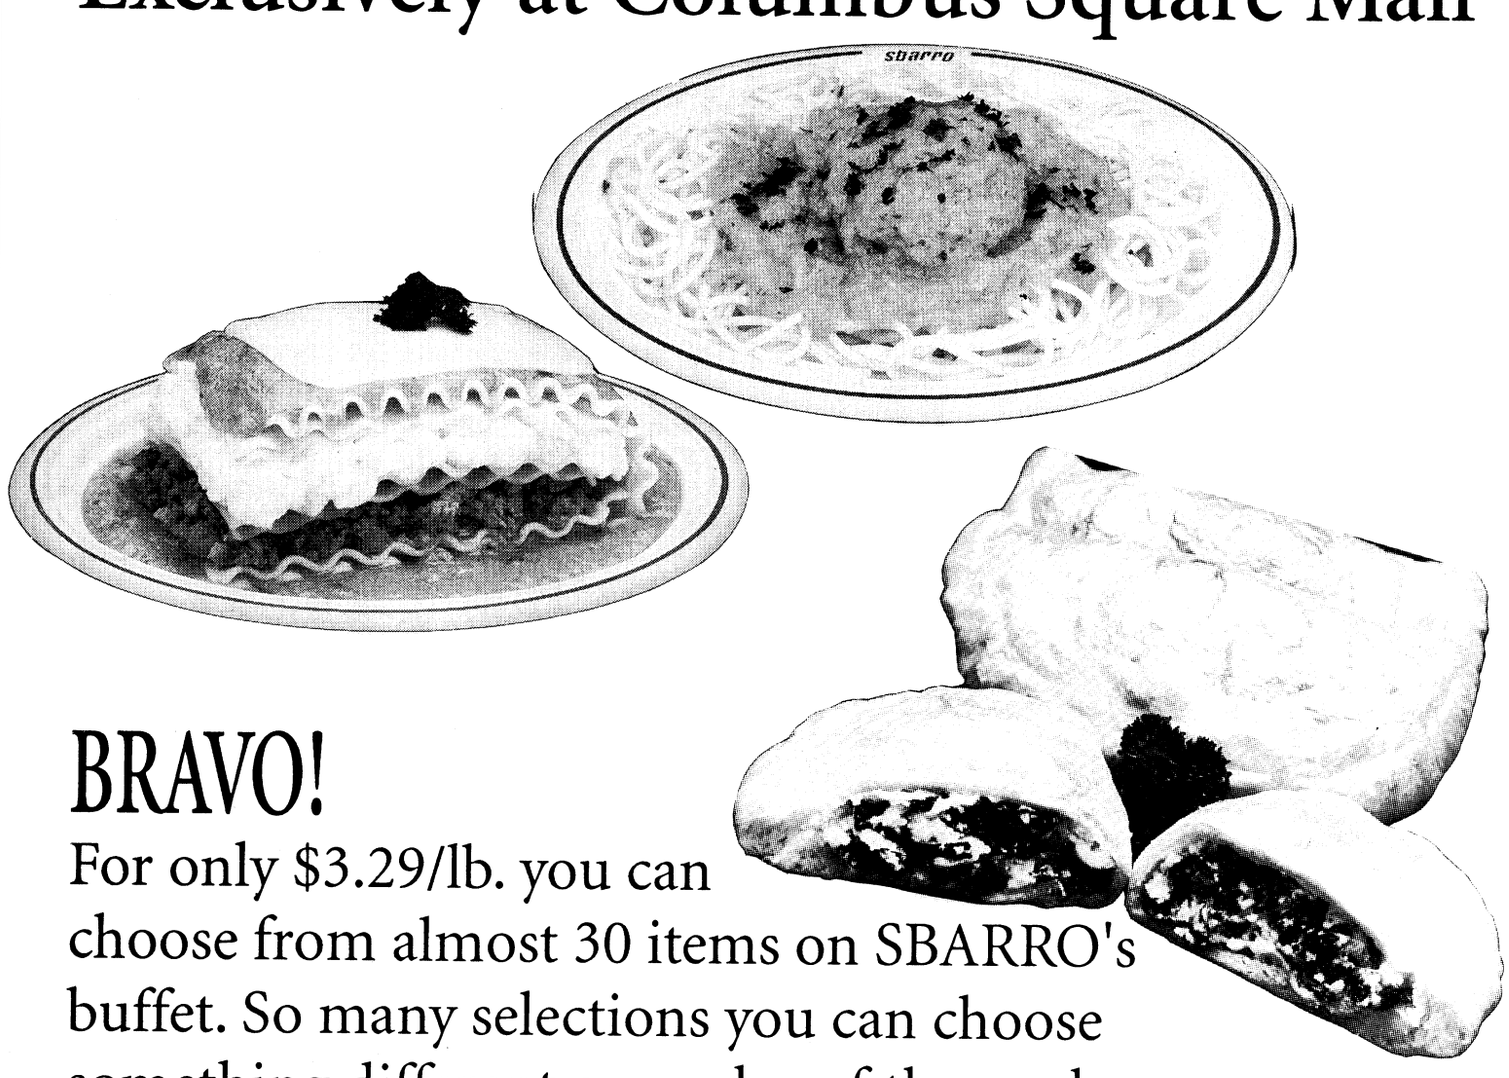
• Conduct periodic "boss" meetings with workers so grievances can be aired without the presence of supervisors.

• Keep employees informed of pending personnel actions.

• Ensure supervisory level training includes methods for effective listening and conflict resolution.

MPs, CID seek radio thieves

Criminal Investigation Command



Between 4 p.m., Sept. 16 and 2:30 p.m., Sept. 20, person(s) unknown broke into Building 84 (MARS Station), Directorate of Information Management, Main Post, and stole two Kenwood transceiver digital radios, two desk-top microphones and one headset.

The items stolen were used to send and receive trans-continental radio messages to and from families and deployed soldiers. To operate this equipment requires a certain degree of technical training as well as an Federal Communications Commission license.

The assistance of the local community is requested in an effort to identify the perpetrators and locate and recover the radio equipment.

Anyone who can provide information regarding the stolen radio equipment can contact the Military Police at 545-5222 or the Criminal Investigation Division duty office at 545-2414. The identity of anyone providing information will be kept confidential.

Agent Orange: VA links herbicide to cancer, skin disorders

By Rudi Williams
American Forces Information Service

Evidence links three cancers and two skin disorders to Agent Orange, an herbicide used as a jungle defoliant during the Vietnam War, according to a new Department of Veterans Affairs study.

In response to the findings, VA Secretary Jesse Brown added Hodgkin's disease and a skin-blistering condition known as porphyria cutanea tarda to the three illnesses—nonHodgkin's lymphoma, soft tissue sarcoma and a skin condition called chloracne—previously acknowledged as related to service in Vietnam.

The National Academy of Sciences' Institute of Medicine, an independent, Washington-based body that advises the federal government, conducted the study.

"This study confirms earlier VA decisions on the health risks of Vietnam service," Brown said after the report's release. "It also gives us new information that I believe will help to further resolve the lingering concerns of Vietnam veterans and their families. While VA has been providing health care to veterans for conditions they believe may be related to Vietnam service, this decision means that we can now add two conditions to our existing list for compensation purposes.

"I have ordered that we move as quickly as possible to develop and publish regulations on Hodgkin's disease and porphyria cutanea tarda so that we can begin paying benefits to veterans or their survivors," Brown said. "I have also asked that, as soon as final rules are published, a review be undertaken to identify and reopen claims of Vietnam veterans who may have these two conditions."

Veterans in this category who haven't filed compensation claims can get assistance from VA once the final rule is published, he said. The registry program identifies Vietnam veterans who believe they may have health problems related to Agent Orange exposure.

Many Vietnam veterans face continuing uncertainty about whether a myriad of diseases and health effects are associated with exposure to herbicides used during the war, the report noted. "Some of these veterans and their families feel their pain and suffering have been ignored and their questions have not been adequately addressed," it states.

VA's latest statistics show the department had 40,097 Agent Orange-related claims on file as of July 13. This includes claims for disability compensation and death claims. Compensation has been paid in 553 cases, although not all are related to Agent Orange exposure. Some 29,000 claims are pending due to the provisions of a lawsuit and Public Law 102-4, the 1991 Agent Orange Act.

Congress authorized the $995,000 study, Veterans and Agent Orange: Health Effects of Herbicides Used in Vietnam, in the act. The lawmakers' aim was to resolve more than two decades of controversy surrounding diseases and health effects associated with exposure to herbicides used in Vietnam.

The term Agent Orange is derived from the orange-striped barrels the defoliant was shipped in.

"More than 19 million gallons of herbicides were sprayed over South Vietnam between 1962 and 1971 before reports of health effects in laboratory animals ended herbicide spraying," Harold Fallon, dean of the University of Alabama's School of Medicine and chairman of the study committee, said. "Most large-scale spraying took place from the air, but a considerable amount of spraying was also done from boats and ground vehicles and by soldiers carrying back-mounted equipment."

The report said veterans as a group had substantially lower exposure to herbicides and dioxins than did farm and factory workers. However, Fallon said, "Veterans who were participants in Operation Ranch Hand — the extensive spraying of some 19 million gallons of herbicides over 3.6 million acres of South Vietnam from airplanes — are an exception to this pattern because of their direct involvement in the spraying missions."

Fallon said further studies should be done on Ranch Hand veterans, Army Chemical Corps personnel and others who handled herbicides to determine if they're experiencing adverse health effects from exposure to the chemicals.

He also noted that some former ground troops who were not directly involved in the spraying may have been exposed to high levels of herbicides.

The 16-member committee, drawn from universities and the private sector, concluded that new studies piecing together different types of information could help determine how much the risk of disease increases in veterans exposed to such herbicides as Agent Orange. Committee members were leading, well-respected authorities in their scientific fields, including occupational and environmental medicine, toxicology, epidemiology, pathology, clinical oncology, psychology, neurology and biostatistics.

They found "limited or suggestive evidence" of an association between exposure to herbicides used in Vietnam and respiratory cancers, prostate cancer and multiple myeloma.

The scientific data for most cancers and other diseases, such as adverse neurological and reproductive effects, were inadequate or insufficient to determine whether an association exists, the report said. The committee found no association between the herbicides or dioxin and the occurrence of skin cancer, gastrointestinal tumors (colon, rectal, stomach and pancreatic), bladder cancer and brain tumors.

The two-inch-thick report resulted from a review of more than 6,000 abstracts of scientific and medical articles, and a detailed analysis of 230 epidemiologic studies.

Vietnam veterans who believe they have health problems related to their exposure to Agent Orange while serving in Vietnam should contact the nearest VA regional office or call VA's nationwide toll-free number, (800) 827-1000.

Veterans target of benefit scam

U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs

ATLANTA — Some Georgia veterans have recently been contacted by an organization offering assistance in filing a claim and guaranteeing results for service-connected disability compensation from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs for a $500 fee, according to Commissioner of Veterans Affairs Pete Wheeler.

"If a veteran is approached by someone offering assistance and guaranteeing results in filing a claim with VA or any agency for a fee, a red flag should immediately go up, " said Wheeler.

"Veterans can get assistance in filing claims from any of our field offices free of charge or they can obtain help from the respective agency."

In the current scam, the organization charges $500 in advance for its service to cover administrative costs. Additionally, the firm is to get 20 percent of the first payment the veteran receives from VA.

"The individual offering to help is knowledgeable of the VA, its forms and administrative procedures. Because of this, he can probably be very convincing," Wheeler said.

"However, he can't do anything that our benefits counselors can't do and they will do it free of charge," he emphasized.

Wheeler encourages anyone who has been approached to contact the Department of Veterans Service central office.

VA Q & As

Q: I am a World War I veteran and read in the newspaper recently that the Department of Veterans Affairs will be distributing medals to World War I veterans. Could you tell me about the medal and how I can receive one?

A: Designed by the U.S. Army Institute of Heraldry, the commemorative medal is a replica of the World War I Victory Medal that was awarded to U.S. servicemen who served in "the war to end all wars."

The newer medal is sponsored by the Chicago-based McCormick Tribune Foundation and is being presented to veterans under the auspices of the VA and the Department of Defense.

VA planned to distribute all of the medals by Veterans Day, Nov. 11, the 75th anniversary of the Armistice that ended World War I.

The medal is intended for every living U.S. veteran of the war, estimated by VA at about 30,000. World War I veterans or their representatives must apply for the medal.

An application can be obtained by calling VA at (800) 827-1000.

Q: My ex-husband is receiving VA compensation benefits and is claiming our three children as dependents. However, he provides me with no financial support for our children. Can the Department of Veterans Affairs help me?

A: Yes. You can apply for an apportionment of the VA benefits your ex-husband is receiving for dependent children he claims but are in your custody. Call the nearest VA regional office at (800) 827-1000 and ask a Veterans benefits counselor to help you with that application.

Q: I am a veteran who receives VA compensation and medical care at both a VA outpatient clinic and VA hospital for a nonservice-connected condition. Can VA bill my health insurance company for reimbursement for such care?

A: Yes. All veterans applying for medical care at a VA facility are asked if they have medical insurance.

VA is authorized by law to bill insurance companies for the cost of medical care furnished to veterans, including service-connected veterans, for nonservice connected conditions covered by health insurance policies.

Editor's note: If you have a question about your veterans benefits, call the Department of Veterans Affairs at (800) 827-1000.

Propane plant ready for winter use

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning's Propane Peak Shaving Plant, Building 1750, conducted a test recently to ensure that it would be fully operational when needed in the winter.

The plant is used to supplement the post's supply of natural gas on the coldest days of the year when not enough natural gas is available to meet the post's energy needs.

Mark Fincher, chief of the Energy Management Branch of the Directorate of Public Works, said that using propane allows the post to save money and ensure that residents don't have to go without heat, hot water or the use of stoves in post housing during the times they need it most.

"A lot of installations, including Fort Stewart (Ga.) and Fort Bragg (N.C.), have increased their propane use or have built propane facilities," he said. "The Fort Benning plant has been here since the 1950s."

When demand for natural gas on post exceeds the available supply the propane plant is activated, Fincher said. Normally this occurs on the coldest days of the year, in February or March.

The reason for using propane lies in the way that natural gas is purchased, Fincher said. Fort Benning purchases natural gas in two categories — firm and interruptible.

"The firm gas is a guaranteed amount that we will always get," he said. "The interruptible gas is not guaranteed, and is only there if the contractor we buy the gas from has it available. When demand for gas on Fort Benning exceeds the amount we purchase, and firm and interruptible gas is not available, then we use the propane to make up the difference."

At 40 cents per hundred cubic feet, interruptible gas costs less than firm gas, which costs 50 cents for the same amount, Fincher said. When the installation is notified that interruptible gas is no longer available, the strategy is to keep the amount of firm gas purchased below a predetermined level to avoid contract penalties that could exceed $75,000 per day.

Putting the plant into operation is a relatively simple process, said Tony Riles, instrument mechanic.

"The entire plant is self-operational and some of the components are self-regulating," he said.

Liquid propane from a 210,000-gallon tank farm is pumped to a vaporizing chamber that changes the liquid into the gaseous state. The gas then flows through a mixing chamber that combines air with the propane to cause it to simulate the properties of natural gas. The propane, now ready for use, then flows to the main gas yard for distribution to plants on Main Post, Kelley Hill and Martin Army Community Hospital. A control panel at the propane plant allows the operator to control both the amount of propane and the amount of natural gas being used.

"The propane plant is economical and easy to use and has saved the installation $544,000" said Fincher. "The curtailment of natural gas use is similar to the curtailment of electricity in the summer, but in this case no one knows the difference," he said.

ACAP plans employment seminar

Army Career and Alumni Program

A seminar about federal employment will be Thursday from 8 to 10 a.m. in Infantry Hall, Classroom 30.

Spossored by the Army Career and Alumni Program and the Directorate of Civilian Personnel, the seminar is available to soldiers who are retiring from the military and family members. The seminar is designed to provide information about federal employment opportunities with primary emphasis on Fort Benning .

The seminar covers the basics of how the federal employment system functions, the various agencies, where to find job announcements and veteran's preference. Participants will be given a detailed explanation of the federal employment application, Standard Form 171.

Personal assessments are conducted Thursday and Friday of each week from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the ACAP office in Soldier's Plaza.

For an appointment, call Judy McKibben at 545-7073 or 545-4892, or stop by Building 2617 in Soldiers' Plaza.

DOIM: working to provide quality

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

When the Army Communities of Excellence Team visits next year, the Directorate of Information Management will be one of many post organizations ready to demonstrate the installation's commitment to quality customer service.

Paul Yates, DOIM director, said he and his employees will have plenty to show the team.

"As a rule, DOIM is committed to Total Army Quality," said Yates. "When the team visits, it will be a welcomed chance to show the Army how true our commitment to excellence is."

DOIM's mission, said Yates, is to provide quality communicatioss, automation and other information systems services and support. DOIM's mission is even more important with the downsizing of the Army because the information technology it provides can help post organizations improve customer support, increase productivity and reduce manpower intensive functions, he said.

"As the activities on Fort Benning scale back, it becomes critical that they leverage our services so they can continue with their missions and maintain high standards of excellence," he said.

Yates said because many of the projects in his directorate are long-term, the team will get to see the final results of what were only plans during the last visit.

Among DOIM's accomplishments this year:

• The completion of the enhanced 911 project, a computer aided dispatch and centralized alarms system currently being installed and scheduled for completion in fiscal 1994. Yates said the system will significantly enhance public safety on post and save the Army money by eliminating contract guards at select locations.

• The migration of the post toward a single-line telephone system that will allow personnel to have separate telephone numbers, group pickups, call transfer, hold, call forward and three-way call. Infantry Hall is currently being rewired for this purpose and Martin Army Community Hospital will follow soon after.

• Relocation and equipment upgrade of the Telecommunications Center. Yates said this effort brings the post into the forefront of electronic messaging by providing the ability for automatic forwarding of incoming, unclassified narrative electrical messages to the PROFS mailbox of the intended recipient.

Eventually selected offices on post will be able to originate and transmit unclassified computer messages via personal computer terminals within the work area, which will reduce handling time, allow the messages to be read right after they are written and contribute toward a paperless office environment.

• The Enhanced In-Processing Adjutant General Management Support System, which consists of software packages that have significantly reduced the amount of time required to process incoming personnel .

Yates said that these are just a few of many projects DOIM is working on to provide Fort Benning with the best possible information technology services.

"As the staffs of post organizations and budgets get smaller, post activities need to seek innovative ways to do business," he said.

"In many ways, innovation starts with DOIM because information technology is becoming ever more important. I hope Fort Benning personnel will feel free to come to us for assistance with that innovation. At DOIM, we are always focused on the customer's needs."

Fort Benning has won first place in the extra-large installation category of Training and Doctrine Command's Communities of Excellence competition for the second year in a row.

The Army- level COE team is tentatively scheduled to visit between Feb. 1 and April 8.

ACAP workshops: classes designed for those getting out of the military

The following is the Army Career and Alumni Program Job Assistance Center calendar of events:

Today: "Employers' Day"

Tuesday: noon to 1 p.m., focus hour; interview techniques

Wednesday: 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., job assistance workshop; 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Education Opportunity Center

Nov. 26: "Employers' Day"

Nov. 30: noon to 1 p.m., focus hour; negotiating techniques

Dec. 1: 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., job assistance workshop; 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Education Opportunity Center

Dec. 2: noon to 2 p.m., mock interview practice session

Dec. 3: "Employers' Day"

Job assistance workshop

Time: Wednesdays, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Location: Infantry Hall, Building 4

The workshop is conducted every Wednesday at Infantry Hall. Topics discussed include objective setting, resume preparation, expanding opportunities, networking, interviewing, salary negotiating, stress management and financial planning.

The workshop is for anyone in federal service (both military and Department of the Army civilians) and their family members, whether leaving voluntarily, involuntarily or retiring.

Education Opportunity Center

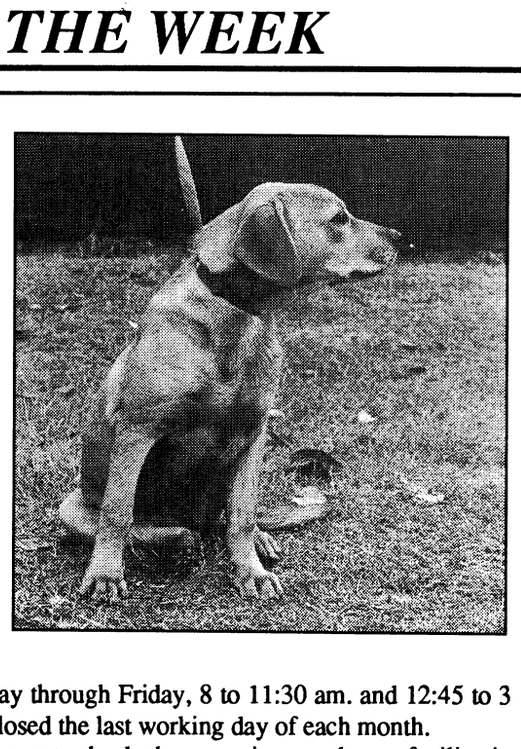
Time: Wednesdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

Participants will receive information from all over the country about college and university admissions requirements and proficiency exams. Education counselors can also discuss student loans and grants.

Small Business Development

Time: Monthly, 2 to 4:30 p.m.



Location: JAC Office, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza

A short, free, monthly seminar is offered by the Small Business Development Center of the University of Georgia. It is designed to provide assistance and training in starting a new business.

The seminar serves as a focal point for linking together resources of the federal, state, and local governments and the private sector.

For registration info call Army Career and Alumni Program Job Assistance Center, located in Building 2634, at 545-2308 or 545-2309 .

PET OF THE WEEK

This labrador retriever/hound mixed breed puppy is looking for a home. She is one of many cats and dogs available for adoption on post.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner of a lost pet.

Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records when changes occur.

In memory ...

Staff Sgt. Bryan Patrick (left) and Staff Sgt. James Camp from Company D, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, carry a wreath to the 555th monument in front of the National Infantry Museum on Veterans Day in memory of deceased members of the 555th, Ray Wynn and Nathan N. Parks. The 555th became the 507th after World War II.

Monument honors veterans

The Retired Officers Association

The Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of The Retired Officers' Association dedicated a memorial monument near the American flag on the Walk of Honor at Fort Mitchell cemetery as part of a Veterans Day program Nov. 11.

The monument was erected to pay homage to all persons who have served honorably in the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Retired Army Maj. Gen. Robert A. Sullivan, a past president of the local chapter of TROA, was the dedication speaker.

The memorial monument was accepted on behalf of the Department of of Veterans Affairs by Jimmy T. Jackson, director of Fort Mitchell National Cemetery.

POST BRIEFS

Thrift Savings Plan open season begins

Thrift Savings Plan open season will continue through Jan. 31. TSP updates and TSP-1s have been issued to all administrative offices for distribution to all eligible employees. All elections must be reviewed in Civilian Personnel by close of business Jan. 31.

Welcome Center to close Thanksgiving

The Welcome Center, Building 2607, Soldiers' Plaza, will be closed Thursday. It will reopen Nov. 26 and 27 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Nov. 28 from 1 p.m. to midnight. For more information, call 545-7510 or 545-4149

GRE testing to resume

The Army Continuing Education System will resume the Graduate Record Examination Dec. 16 at 8 a.m. at the Main Post Testing Center, Building 2612.

All requests for testing must be made to education centers no later than Tuesday.

Call one of the following education centers for assistance:

Main Post Education Center - 5454-3093

Kelley Hill Education Center - 544-1714

Sand Hill Education Center (Harmony Church) - 544-9146

Hot water outage

An emergency steam and hot water outage is scheduled from 8 p.m. today until approximately 6 p.m. Saturday. This outage is necessary to make repairs to miscellaneous valves in the pit by Building 2784 (Main NCO Club).

The outage will affect part of Main Post to include the 2700 and 2800 blocks. It will also affect Buildings 73 (Follow Me Dining Facility), 399, 83, 75 and 17. During this outage, the affected buildings will have no heat and no hot water. For more information, call 545-4944.

Delta Force Team to visit Fort Benning

The Delta Force Recruiting Team will conduct general orientation briefings Nov. 29 at 1 p.m., Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 and 2 at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. in Infantry Hall, Classroom 20.

Physical fitness qualification tests will be administered Dec. 3 on Stewart Field at 7 a.m. Immediately following the test, a 100-meter swim test will be administered at Harmony Church swimming pool.

For information, call 545-1917.

Weapons to be fired

Weapons will be fired in the northeast section of Fort Benning through Saturday. The weapons include Bradley main guns, rockets, mortars and aircraft with up to 500-pound bombs. Hours of firing will vary each day.

Incoming traffic to be rerouted until 8:15 a.m.

Because of road construction, normal incoming traffic rerouting will be extended until 8:15 a.m. until construction is complete.

Museum to feature World War I exhibit

The National Infantry Museum will feature a special 12-unit exhibit titled "11 November 1918" until Jan. 1.

The display includes World War I posters, paintings and uniforms and equipment of the period from Italy, France, Germany and the United States.

The display also includes a rare uniform of an Army nurse who served in Europe. The donor is 104 years old and lives in California.

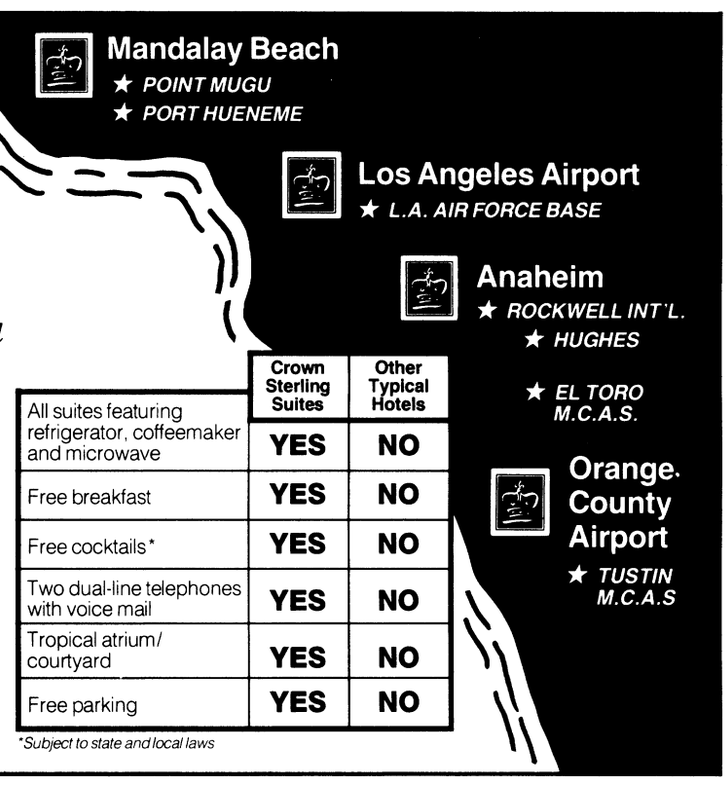
The exhibit marks the 75th anniversary of the end of the World War I.

1994 SDT dates set

The fiscal 1994 self-development testing dates have been set. By-name test schedules and SDT notice pamphlets have been distributed for the October through December test period.

Primary military occupational specialty and skill levels to be tested are 13M2/3/4, 73C3/4, 76J2/3/4, 83E2/3, 91R2/3/4, 91S2/3/4, 92B2/3/4, 95C2/3/4 and 98C2/3/4. The test dates for these specialties are scheduled for Dec. 1, 2, 13, 14, 15 and 16 in Brown Hall, Building 328.

Soldiers are to report no later than 8:30 a.m. on the date scheduled in military uniform with a valid identification card.



Soldiers who need to be scheduled or those who cannot report as scheduled should notify their unit first sergeant or training noncommissioned officer.

Soldiers who fail to test because of their own negligence may receive an official zero.

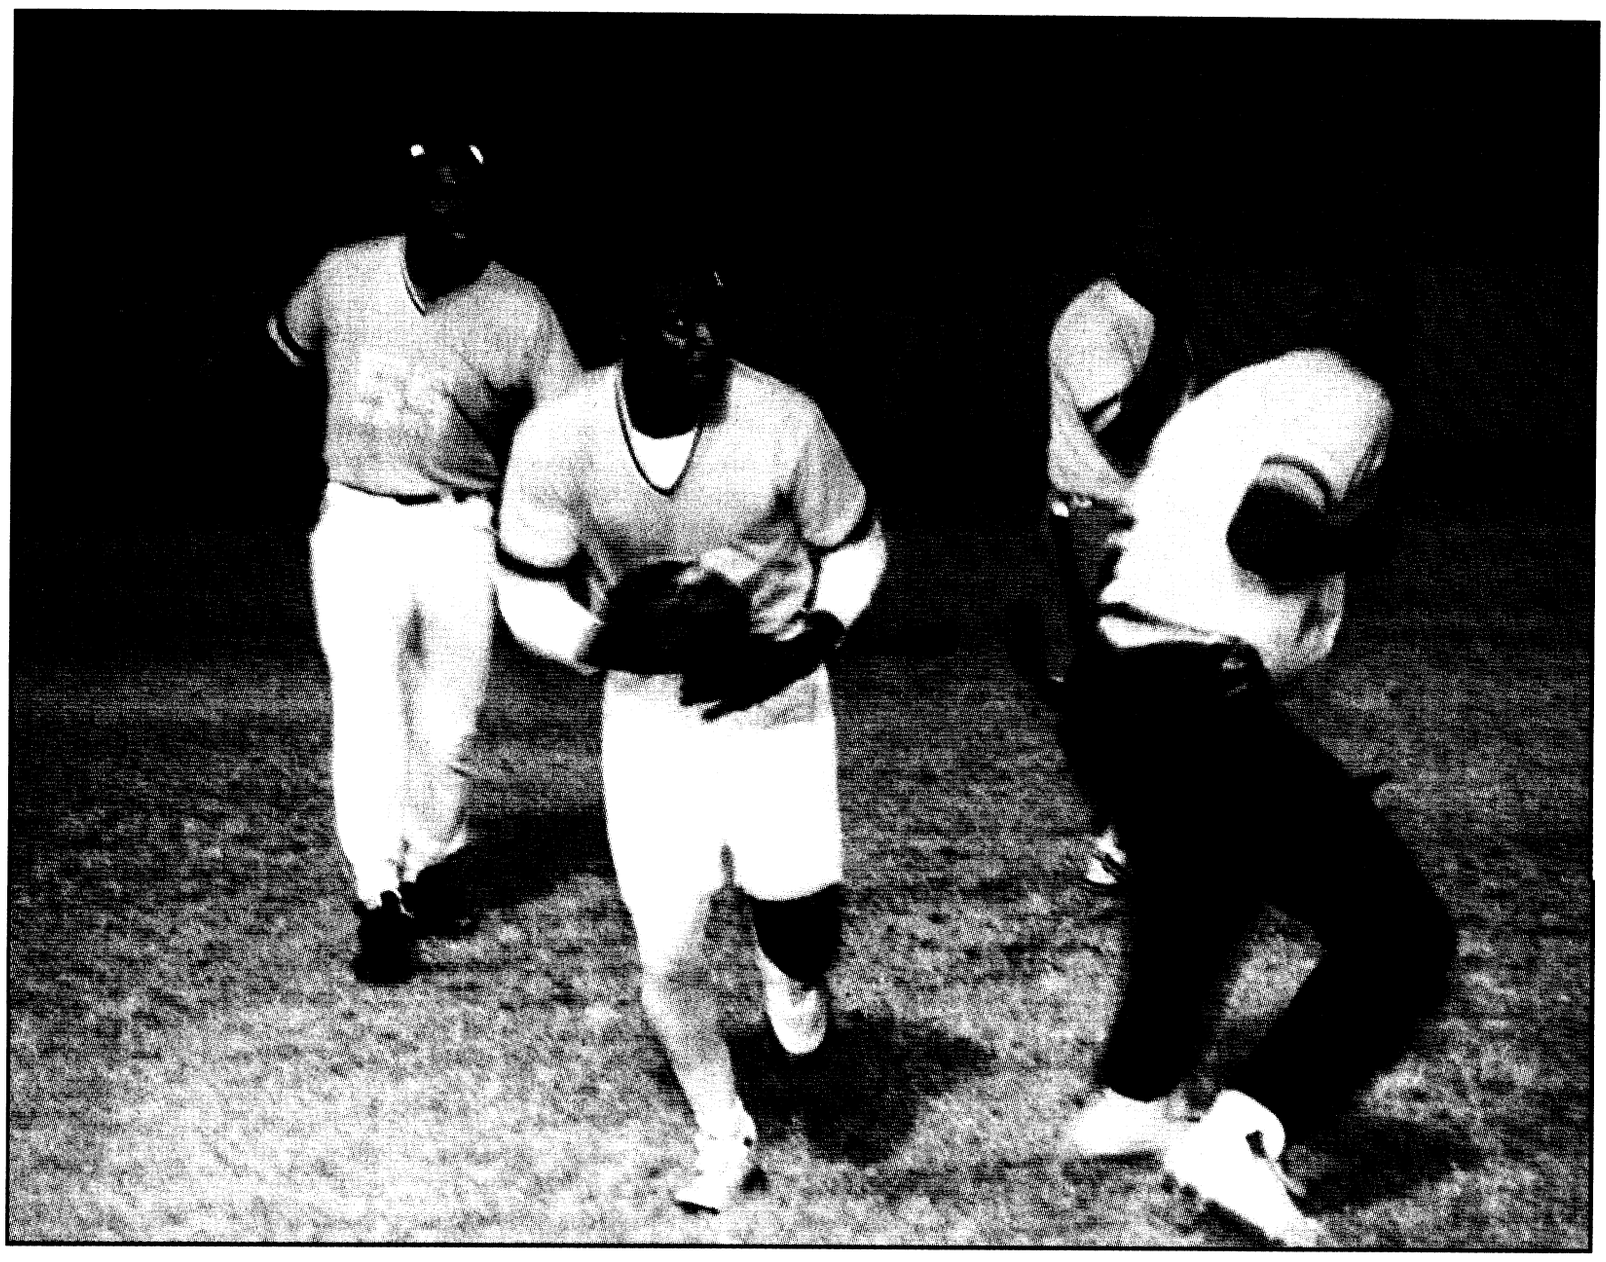
Bulldogs edge Instructors 14-13 in championship

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The 1993 U.S. Army Infantry Center flag football championship Monday night at Doughboy Stadium came down to one play.



A missed two-point conversion by the Instructors of the Bradley Instructor Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, propelled the Bulldogs of Co. B, 317th Engineer Bn., 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, to a 14-13 overtime victory for the post championship.

For the Instructors, it was a microcosm of their season. One game after another, the Instructors found a way to win, be it on a touchdown, an extra point or the last play of a game.

But it was not to be on this night. A hurried pass to the back of the end zone from Instructor quarterback Michael Jones to intended receiver Milton Fields sailed out of the end zone, dashing the Instructors' hopes of a come-from-behind victory.

"I wanted to go to our big man Tony Tebbens, but I thought that the defense would be expecting us to do just that, so we used Tebbens as a decoy and looked for Fields to be open," said Jones. "I got some pressure from the left side and it forced me to step up and throw before I wanted to.

"I have to compliment the Bulldogs; they played a heck of a ballgame," Jones said. "We had them down early in the first half and I thought our defense was strong enough to the point where we were shutting them down, but they kept fighting and scratching until the end. It was an outstanding ballgame."

On the Instructors' first possession of the game, Jones sent wide out Kenneth Varnes on a stop-and-go pattern down the right sideline and hit him in full stride for a 55-yard bomb, setting the Instructors up with first and goal at the Bulldog 5. Three plays later, Jones hit Varnes on a fade route in the corner of the end zone for the first score of the game. Jones found Tebbens for the extra point try and a 7-0 lead.

The Bulldogs had two opportunities to put points on the board in the first half, but the Instructor defense and a timely penalty kept the Dogs off the scoreboard.

The Dog defense also rose to the occasion time and time again, not allowing the Instructor offense a chance to increase its lead. The first half came to an end with the Instructors clinging to a 7-0 advantage.

On their first possession of the second half, the Instructors tried a gimmick play. A halfback pass by Fields was picked off by linebacker Reginald Anders, setting the Bulldogs up at their own 35-yard line.

A 25-yard scramble by running back Warren Jackson put the Bulldogs on the Instructor 1-yard line for first and goal. Running back Nakia Maxon dove in for the Bulldogs' first score, trimming the lead to 7-6. Dogs quarterback Robert Taylor tacked on the extra point on an option play to the left, tying the game at 7-7.

With under two minutes to play in the game, the Bulldog offense drove down to the Instructor 1-yard line, only to be turned back on three consecutive plays by the Instructor defense, forcing the game into overtime.

On the Bulldogs' second play from scrimmage in the overtime period, Jackson broke the tie with a 4-yard scamper to the right. The extra-point attempt was good on a swing pass from Taylor to running back Terry Nash, giving the Dogs a 14-7 lead.

An unsportsmanlike-conduct penalty on the Instructor defense on the extra-point try moved the Instructors back to the 20 yard line instead of the 10.

A second-down pass to Fields moved the ball down to the 3, and on fourth down Jones sneaked in to cut the lead to 14-13, setting up the crucial extra-point try. The Instructors decided to end the game one way or another with a two-point conversion try. When Jones' pass sailed out the back of the end zone it sealed the victory for the Bulldogs.

"After that first pass, we knew we were in for a game, and our secondary was going to have to step up and play strong," said Taylor. "This had to be our second-toughest game of the tournament. We had a five-overtime game against 3rd Bn., 32nd Infantry Regt., early in the tournament that was probably the toughest, but this one was definitely the best," he said.

Smart hunters spend lunch hour 'at work'

COMMENTARY

The analogy could be made that deer hunting is like sex: either you're lucky or you're not. You know the deal, you'll go for days, not seeing even one doe, and then the next hunt there'll be more than you can handle.

A philosopher could probably explain this phenomenon, some profound hogwash about the natural coexistence of man and beast interacting frequently in the wild.

On the other hand, a mathematician would brainwash you with some statistics based on a mathematical hypothesis. Something like the number of hunters, times the deer per square mile, divided by the number of hunts, equals the probability of success.

And if that's not enough, you would be even more perplexed with information from a biologist. Like deer activity is based on the feeding cycles, moon phases, temperature, humidity, wind direction, mast crops...

Although all of this is true, it baffles my country mind!

All I know is that the deer are out there, and if you stay on them long enough, you'll bag one.

What the heck am I talking about? Well, even though I hate to admit it, I guess the mathematician is on target.

If you spend enough time in the stand, on a good trail, close to a food and water source, you'll eventually have a shot.

The trick is, you have to stay in that stand.

Many hunters hunt by the clock (and their stomach). In at first light, out by mid-morning, back in late afternoon, out at dark. Well, this is all fine and dandy, but deer don't move according to your wristwatch.

The books will tell you the percentages for deer harvested are the highest between sunrise and 9 a.m., followed next at 5 p.m. to sunset.

Yeah, we know this is true, but any experienced hunter will tell you a lot of deer (and big bucks) are still taken around noon when deer aren't supposed to be moving. That's why you need to stay in that stand. Deer rely a lot on instinct and their senses of sight, smell and hearing. They aren't Einsteins, but they know when you've left an area.

And every year, deer that have survived a couple of hunting seasons know that before midday, hunters make a lot of noise and leave the area.

So, what better time for a buck to head to a new feeding or bedding area, or to a scrape to intercept a doe during the rut.

I have to tell you, the time to hunt is when other hunters have left for their afternoon siesta. While they're back at the gas station, gorging themselves on ham and cheese sandwiches, those older, mature bucks are moving and you need to be there.

I have taken two deer between the hours of 10 a.m. and noon.

On the first occasion, I remember sitting in my stand, when around 9:30 a.m., I could hear truck doors slamming, engines starting, and hunters driving away, probably intending to return to hunt in the evening. Now, if I could hear them, any deer within two miles could too.

It wasn't long after all the other hunters had left, and the woods had quieted down, that four deer approached my stand. Patience was indeed a virtue that day, and a boon to filling my deer tags and new deep-freeze.

If you've already bagged a deer or two, than you probably won't sit around all day waiting on another whitetail to get within range, and I guess I don't blame you.

On the other hand, if you're one of the hunters, and I've recently talked to quite a few, who has yet to get that first deer, stick it out.

Pack some sandwiches, coffee, stand, and wait.

When that buck comes prancing out at noontime, you'll be glad you did. Good luck and see you in the woods.

Hunter Snapshot

According to Jeff Brooks, post wildlife biologist, a total of 80 deer have been turned in at the check-in station located off 1st Division Road as of Sunday. Although it's not indicative of the total number harvested on Fort Benning, it's a good sign.

Here's the breakdown:
57 bucks
23 does
8 fawns
3 button-bucks
Largest buck: 142 pounds, 9 points with a 15" spread

Modifying harvest, improving habitat keeps deer healthy

By Jeff Brooks
Natural Resource Management

The Natural Resources Management Branch manages the deer population by modifying harvest and improving habitat conditions to achieve a balanced, healthy deer herd that has not degraded the habitat.

Habitat management requires knowledge of the year-round needs of the animal. For example, increasing winter foods may create little overall improvement where summer foods are lacking.

Habitat for deer can be improved by thinning pine stands, prescribed burning, and, to a lesser extent, planting food plots.

Thinning pine stands allows more sunlight to reach the forest floor, increasing growth of understory vegetation. Dramatic increases in forage can be accomplished by thinning.

Fort Benning is working toward a three-year burn cycle in pine forests. Prescribed burning can provide a number of advantages to the deer herd. Fire "prunes back" vegetation making it more accessible to deer. Fruit production increases for some plants up to three years after a burn.

There are also short-term increases in the nutritional quality of vegetation following prescribed fire. Recently burned areas within a deer's home range can provide more nutritious forage than would be available on unburned areas.

Fertilized food plots can provide a high-quality food source; however, only a small percentage of the total area can be planted, so the overall impact on the deer herd is limited. Food plots do facilitate harvest and may improve habitat for other animals.

Maintaining hardwood stands is important in providing hard mast production. Although acorns provide an important fall and winter food source for many animals including deer, deer in this area are not as dependent on acorns as they are in the mountains or coastal areas.

Habitat improvements that affect deer also impact a number of other animals. Any change in habitat conditions will be favorable for some animals while others may be unaffected or adversely affected.

The habitat management scheme at Fort Benning should improve habitat for a variety of animals.

Hunter offers recipes for cooking what you catch

COMMENTARY

One of the most enjoyable parts of hunting is the preparation, cooking and eating of game meat.

Approach a game dinner as you would a meal on a foreign vacation — delightfully different and out of the ordinary. Game has a different flavor, and many people who say they don't like game probably were expecting it to taste like something they are used to eating.

Deer is perhaps the most popular game animal in the United States, and venison is one of the most common game meats. The flavor of venison will vary depending on the condition of the animal and the care given the meat. I've never been disappointed by the flavor of fat deer. It is best to remove all natural body fat and bone from the venison to avoid the stronger "gamey" flavors.

I simply panfry most prime cuts of venison. The tenderloins (same as filet mignon), the backstraps (rib eyes), sirloins and even the meat from the hams (round steaks) are all delicious when seasoned with pepper and garlic and fried, either floured or plain, in oil. Other cuts from the shoulders, flank steaks and hams are great in any good chili recipe. Venison roasts require marinating and larding to remain tender and moist.

A roasting and grilling marinade (which works well with all red meat) is: 1 1/2 cups cooking oil, 3/4 cup soy sauce, 1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup red wine or sherry (personal taste), 1/2 cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons mustard, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 teaspoons crushed parsley and 2 cloves garlic (or more to taste). Pin on bacon strips to lard game meat.

Ducks and geese are a dark meat and are most often roasted with a fruit-based stuffing. Apples and oranges are the most popular, but I also have enjoyed waterfowl roasted in a bed of sauerkraut. Add onions, garlic, sage and other spices to taste. Lard with bacon and roast at 325 to 350 degrees for two to three hours (uncover for the last 30 minutes or so to brown) or until tender. The breasts of young ducks and geese may be fileted from the breast bone, seasoned and panfried exactly like venison.

Dove, snipe and woodcock are small dark-meated birds. All may be floured, seasoned with pepper, onion and/or garlic and simply panfried. For moister meat, add wine and flour to make a gravy and "smother" fry.

I often charbroil doves, small ducks and even venison using a marinade and basting sauce consisting of equal parts of melted margarine, lemon juice and red wine and the juice of one large orange. Add soy sauce, ginger, salt and pepper to taste. Wrap birds in bacon strips and grill (covered) over medium heat for 30 to 45 minutes. When the bacon is done, so are the birds. Simmer the sauce on the grill, dipping birds for basting. The sauce makes a great gravy over wild rice. Young white-meated birds, quail, grouse and pheasant, may be fried exactly like chicken. Older birds may be roasted or baked in a casserole with mushroom or celery soup. This also works nicely with dove and woodcock.

There are numerous wild game cookbooks with a mouth-watering array of recipes available. These cookbooks also cover the "special" cooking methods preferred for lean wild meats.

Editor's note: Aaron Pass has written hundreds of articles about hunting, fishing and camping for newspapers and magazines.

Faith race

Run to benefit phys ed program

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Students, parents, teachers and members of Fort Benning and surrounding communities are invited to participate in this year's Faith Holiday Race Dec. 4 at Fort Benning's Faith Middle School, 1375 Ingersoll St.

Proceeds from the 15th annual event will go to provide additional equipment and incentive awards to students in Faith's physical education program.

There are three different races that begin and end at Faith. A one-miler for boys and girls, ages 14 and under, is at 8:30 a.m.; and two- and five-milers for all ages are at 9:15 a.m. and 10 a.m., respectively.

Race preregistration for ages 14 and under is $4, and $6 for those 15 and older. Race-day registration begins at 7:30 a.m. with a $5 fee for those 14 and under; $7 for runners 15 and older.

For more information, contact physical education teacher Susan Emerson at 545-5524. Race entry forms and maps of the route are available at Faith School.

Post manages deer population

By Jeff Brooks
Natural Resource Management

The Natural Resources Management Branch is responsible for the management of fish and wildlife populations.

Army regulations governing the responsibilities of resource management state that habitats will be managed according to accepted scientific principles with emphasis on maintaining and restoring wildlife habitat. Population control will be used to maintain wildlife populations within the carrying capacity of the land.

These goals are accomplished for the deer herd by monitoring the physical condition of the animals. This determines if the population is within the carrying capacity of the habitat. Herd health is assessed based on check station data (body weights and antler development) and periodic herd health checks conducted in late summer when deer tend to be in poor condition.

A herd health check involves harvesting deer and evaluating body fat, parasite loads and any evidence of disease. After determining the condition of the herd relative to carrying capacity, deer harvest and habitat management can be modified accordingly to improve herd condition.

During the 1980s, Fort Benning had a high deer population that resulted in body weights of deer well below the average for this region of Georgia. Herd health checks conducted in 1983 and 1989 indicated generally poor health with high loads of parasites and some disease problems.

A reduction in the deer population was needed to improve herd health. All-season, either-sex hunting began on Fort Benning in 1988 when the average field-dressed weight of a yearling (1.5 years old) buck was 72 pounds and yearling does averaged 57 pounds.

In 1991 and 1992, the deer weights began to show substantial improvement. Last year, the average yearling buck weighed 81 pounds field-dressed and yearling does averaged 66 pounds.

Deer harvest should not focus on one segment of the population. Last year, 57 percent of the bucks brought to the check station were yearlings or button bucks (6 months old). Fewer adult bucks are present because they are killed as button bucks or yearlings.

Although not a reliable indicator of age, the number of points can be used as a criteria for harvest. On Fort Benning, the average number of points for a yearling buck is 2.9 while the average for a 2.5-year-old buck is 6.5. If we limit the harvest of young bucks, both hunters and deer herds will benefit. More antlered bucks will be seen, with improved chances of harvesting an adult buck. Fewer young bucks in the harvest should improve the sex ratio. If there are not enough bucks to breed the does on their first cycle (does cycle every 26 to 30 days), they will be bred at a later cycle, resulting in a later drop for those fawns. Fawns born later in the year tend to have low body weights and poor antler development as yearlings.

Hunters can assist the deer management program by bringing harvested deer to the check station and providing accurate information on the kill cards. Selective harvest of does and adult bucks can further improve the deer herd. Future recommendations for management will be based on the best available information, with the objective being a healthy deer herd that will not adversely affect the habitat.

SPORTS SHORTS

Basketball tourney — The Fort Benning Physical Activities Branch is conducting a basketball tournament today and Saturday at Briant Wells Field House and Audie Murphy Fitness Center. Eight men's teams and four women's teams from the Southeast will participate in the round robin tournament.

Tip off for today's games will be 5 p.m at Briant Wells and 5:30 for Audie Murphy. Saturday's games will start at 8 a.m. and conclude with the women's championship at 6:30 p.m. and the men's final at 8 p.m.

For more information, contact Jim Brown at 545-5777 or 545-2332.

Tae kwon Do — The Fort Benning Tae Kwon Do School is now accepting male and female adult students. Classes are Wednesday and Friday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and are free of charge to military personnel and their family members. The school is located on the second floor of the Arts and Crafts building on the corner of Eckels and Sightseeing roads. For more information, contact Edward Givans at 544-6604.

Pistol match — The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club is hosting a tactical pistol match at 1 p.m. Dec. 4 at English Range.

The entry fee is $12 if paid before Dec. 1 and $15 after that date.

Novice shooters are welcome. All entrants will receive a sweatshirt from Alpine Sporting Goods.

Mail entrance fees to the Rifle and Pistol Club, P.O. Box 1469, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905 or register in person at the club between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Golf tournament — The 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, will host its annual Red Leg Open golf tournament at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. It will be a four-man scramble. Hole-in-one prizes and door prizes will be given away. Cost is $15 for members and $25 for nonmembers.

To sign up, call 2nd Lt. Herman Jones at 544-2545 or 544- 2214.

Alabama deer check opens — A deer check station will be open temporarily in Alabama for the opening weekend of gun season .

The check station will operate Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. The location will be along the southeast side of Fryar Field Loop Road that leads to Highway 18. Information is obtained from ages and weights of deer, which is then used to determine population trends, herd health and the next season's hunting regulations. Hunters are encouraged to bring all deer harvested to the check station for measurements during the times indicated.

Adult flag football — Phenix City Parks and Recreation is now accepting teams for its adult flag football league. For more information, call Morris Galloway at 291-4719.

Bus available — The Information, Ticketing and Registration Office has a 24-passenger bus available for sports fans to charter to their favorite games this fall. Call or visit ITR, Building 247, Ingersoll Street, 545-4155.

Deer Check Station — The Deer Check Station, Building 5883, Harmony Church, is now open for the hunting season. Hours of operation will be Monday through Friday, 7:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. During gun season, beginning Saturday, the check station will be open weekdays from 7:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. and weekends from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Hunters should bring all deer harvested to the check station for measurement during the times indicated. This is encouraged, not mandatory.

Fitness classes available — The Fort Benning Officers' Club offers a daily program of aerobic classes, including step and body toning. Classes are open to all ranks of military and civilians at a cost of $16.50 for 12 sessions or $3 for a drop-in ticket. The first class is free.

Time schedule is available at the Officers' Club Fitness Center or call 545-4162 or 687-0871 for information.

Fishing tournament — The Field of Dreams is once again conducting a series of striper tournaments on Lake Lanier Nov. 27 and Dec. 11. There are plans for a two-day "classic" event Jan. 8 and 9.

Entry fee is $75. Hours are from 5 a.m. until 7 p.m. All boats meet at Brantley Marine and then depart to launch anywhere on the lake. Live bait or artificial. Open to pros and guides alike.

To get a registration form or more details, call (404) 683-8680.

Street hockey — For anyone interested in playing hockey on roller blades, games will be played on weekends in Columbus, whether it is raining or sunny. For more information, call 682-1973.

Powerlifters overwhelm competition

By Terry K Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Four powerlifters from Fort Benning traveled to Fort Jackson, S.C., Saturday to participate in a powerlifting competition hosted by the Physical Activities Branch at Fort Jackson.

Henry Garcia, Regan Ward, Thomas Pettaway and Ed Rosa returned from Fort Jackson with medals around their necks.

Garcia captured first place in the 123-pound weight division. Garcia also won for overall best squat, overall best deadlift and overall best lift.

In the 165-pound class, Pettaway came home with a third-place finish. Rosa took the third spot in the 181-pound weight class and Ward took top honors in the 220-pound division.

"We did OK for only having four people participate," said Rosa. "Fort Benning needs more powerlifters, both male and female. You don't need any experience, just the will to compete; we will help supply the power."

For more information on how to get started on powerlifting, contact Rosa at 545-4388 or 545-4726.

Bible answers life's important questions

By Kwon Pyo
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Are you searching for the answers to these questions?

- What is the purpose and meaning of life?
- Where did I come from and where am I going?
- What happens after death?
- Is there heaven and hell?
- Who is Jesus?
- Who is God?
- Does God love me?

The Bible answers all the important questions of life.

The Bible says, "God loves you."

The Bible is "the book." The name originates from the Greek equivalent "ta biblia." The Bible received its name as being superior to all other books. The Bible is the holy word of God for Christians. It has many other names, such as "the Holy Scriptures, the Oracles, the Word, the Testaments or the Law. Each name reveals a characteristic of the Bible.

The Bible is composed of 66 different books written by at least 36 different people. God, the true author of the Bible, used human hands to pen his holy word over a period of 1,500 years. These people were from many different countries and various walks of life. Their jobs included king, general, farmer, mechanic, tax collector and doctor. Some were rich, some were poor.

Regardless of the different backgrounds of all these people, the Bible maintains unity in its content from the first book, Genesis, to the last book, Revelation, for God directed those hands to write his holy word. The last book of the Bible does not contradict the first book written more than 1,500 years before.

The Bible consists of two distinct parts, the Old and New Testaments. The Old Testament is the recording of God's covenant with his people for salvation through the "Law."

The New Testament is the recording of God's covenant with his people for salvation through the death and resurrection of his son, Jesus. Together, the Old Testament and New Testament speak consistently to one theme, that is, the salvation of fallen man. The Bible points sinners to the way of God's salvation from sin.

The Old Testament was originally written in Hebrew with the exception of a few Scriptures written in the Chaldee language. Later, the Old Testament was translated into Greek by 72 Jewish translators and given the title "The Septuagint."

The New Testament, unlike the Old Testament, was written entirely in Greek. Then, in A.D. 405, Jerome, an early church scholar, completed his translation of the Old and New Testaments into Latin. The Roman Catholic church adopted this translation as its authorized versions of the Scriptures.

The first English Bible was translated by John de Wickliffe between the years of 1324 to 1384. Later, in 1611, 47 scholars under the authority of King James of England agreed upon the translation known as the 'King James Version.'

The Bible does wonderful things to those who believe and put it into practice. It gives light to those wandering in darkness. It gives wisdom to the simple. It reveals the way of salvation to lost souls. It also gives hope and peace to those who are discouraged. Broken lives find their healing. Weary souls find their deliverance.

The Bible is full of God's promises to bless us. God has the power to do what he has promised in the Bible.

Find God's promise for your situation and take him at his word. Then you will find the peace of God that transcends all human understanding.

Children express hope, trust

By Joseph E. Miller
Post Chaplain, Fort Monroe, Va.

"Kids say the darndest things!" Art Linkletter used to say.

I've heard some delightful things from small children in church and chapel setting. There's something refreshing about children's conversations. They are spontaneous with their honest thoughts.

Following one morning service, a youngster asked the chaplain, "Do you get paid for being good, or are you good for nothing?"

During a tour of the chapel on one post, a youngster in the Scout troop who had been listening thoughtfully to the chaplain asked, "What are all these gold plaques around the walls?"

The chaplain replied, "Those are memorials to persons who died in the service."

With big eyes and nervous voice the youngster asked, "Which one — the 9:30 or the 11 o'clock?"

My wife and I were browsing in a Washington bookstore when we found a delightfully refreshing book titled "Children's Letters to God" by Eric Marshall and Stuart Hample (Workman Publishing, New York).

As the authors said, "Some of the letters are disarmingly wise, others are naive; some are knowing, some simple; some reverent, some not so reverent. Many are weighted with seriousness; others are lit with smiles. All of them are addressed to God with much hope and trust."

What follows are a few of those letters, written and spelled as they appeared.

Puzzlements, dilemmas other imponderables:

- Dear God, is it true my father won't get in heaven if he uses his bowling words in the house?
- In Sunday School they told us what you do. Who does it when you're on vacation?
- Dear God, instead of letting people die and having to make new ones, why don't you just keep the ones you got now?
- Did you really mean do unto others as they do unto you, because if you did, then I'm going to fix my brother.

Wishes, suggestions, complaints:

- Dear God, please put a new holiday between Christmas and Easter. There is nothing good in there now.
- Dear God, maybe Cain and Abel would not kill each so much if they had their own rooms. It works with my brother.
- Please send me pony ... I never ask for anything before ... You can look it up.

Approvals, confidences and thanks:

- Dear God, if you watch in church on Sunday, I will show you my new shoes.
- We read Thomas Edison made light. But in Sunday School they said you did it. So I bet he stoled your idea.
- Dear God, I didn't think orange went with purple until I saw the sunset you made on Tuesday. That was cool!
- Dear God, I don't ever feel alone since I found out about you.

I always listen very closely when a child speaks. Sometimes it takes the faith expressed in the mind of a child to grasp the unfathomable depth of God's mercy and grace.

Spc. Frank B. Eaton, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 324th Forward Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), cuts a 4 by 4 to size. Eaton and three other soldiers are building a covered deck in the battalion area for use by single soldiers.

BOSS: Soldiers from 324th FSB build themselves a deck

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Members of the Repair and Utilities section of 324th Forward Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), are using old and new skills to build a covered deck and grill area in the battalion area as one of their Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers initiatives.

Spc. Lisa Ragan, battalion BOSS council president, got the single soldiers interested in improving the battalion area, according to Command Sgt. Maj. Richard G. Skinner.

"After we received funds from the brigade for our BOSS program, the barracks council decided how to spend it," said Ragan. "In addition to purchasing the materials to build the deck we also did landscaping in the battalion area and bought three new television sets and videocassette recorders for the dayrooms, a bike rack, two picnic tables, four barbecue grills and lawn mowers and weed eaters for each company."

Staff Sgt. Paul A. Terriault, Spc. Frank B. Eaton and Pfc. Jason A. Fink of Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, and Pfc. Todd G. Merrill of Company C, make up the crew building the deck.

The project is expected to be completed by Thanksgiving according to Terriault, non-commissioned officer in charge. "It will be a 20-by-24 foot roofed deck with a special area for grills when it is finished," he said.

Terriault, Eaton and Fink have all had some experience with carpentry. Merrill never has and he said "I've learned how to measure, use a level and I completed a safety course on how to use the power tools. I might even try building something on my own," he said.

"We work on the project about 10 hours a week," said Terriault, "and we get a lot of comments that range from 'can you come and build a deck at my house' to 'it looks good.'"

"The soldiers are doing an outstanding job," said Skinner. "They are working hard on the deck and everyone is looking forward to using it."

2nd Bn 58th Infantry Regiment

Honorary leaders preserve history

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

After years of retirement from active duty, two combat veterans donned their uniforms once again to become the honorary colonel and command sergeant major of the 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, Nov. 11.

Retired Col. Paul R. O'Mary and retired Command Sgt. Maj. James Gallagher were the recipients of the honor. They served together previously as the actual commander and sergeant major of the regiment's 1st Battalion (Mechanized) in 1969.

As honorary colonel and command sergeant major, O'Mary and Gallagher will help preserve the history and traditions of the regiment and ensure that they are passed on to the soldiers currently serving.

"The job of the honorary colonel and sergeant major is to ensure that we learn from history and to continue the traditions of our regiment," said Lt. Col. Bruce D. Grant, regimental commander. "It's important because those traditions have an undeniable link to the esprit de corps of this unit."

The highlight of the ceremony was the placing of the regiment's battle streamers on the regimental colors by O'Mary and Gallagher, followed by remarks from both men.

O'Mary told those present that no profession on Earth is as honorable as that of soldiering because soldiers have pledged their lives for their country. He also reminded those present not to forget the debt today's soldiers owe to those who have served before.

"I would ask that each of you here reflect upon what has gone on before you," said O'Mary.

"Listen to the messages that flow from Flanders Field, the national cemeteries and unmarked graves in overseas places where soldiers rest who have paid the supreme sacrifice and who somewhere I sense look down on us and say to us all the time, duty, duty, duty! Don't let us down. Yours is the great job. Yours is to keep the nation free. Don't let us down!"

Gallagher said that it is great to be back with the 58th Infantry Regiment.

"My first battalion sergeant major assignment was with the 58th Infantry, and although I've served in a lot of great infantry units since then, I want you to know that being selected as the honorary sergeant major of the 58th Infantry really makes me proud," he said.

"I'm proud to once again be associated with the Patriots. I'm proud of the mission you are doing for the Army. I'm proud of the young soldiers training here under the 58th Infantry colors who will soon leave and take their places in infantry units around the world. But I would ask you that as you leave the 58th, that you always remember the motto of the 58th Infantry — Love of Country."

The honorary positions are held for three years, at which time they are renewable for an additional three years.

Gallagher currently serves as the executive officer of the Directorate of Combined Arms and Tactics and the executive vice president of the Chattahoochee Valley-Fort Benning chapter of the Association of the United States Army. O'Mary currently lives in Tuscaloosa, Ala., with his wife Jane.

IOBC student helps injured buddy

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Check for responsiveness. Check for breathing. Check for bleeding. Check for pulse.

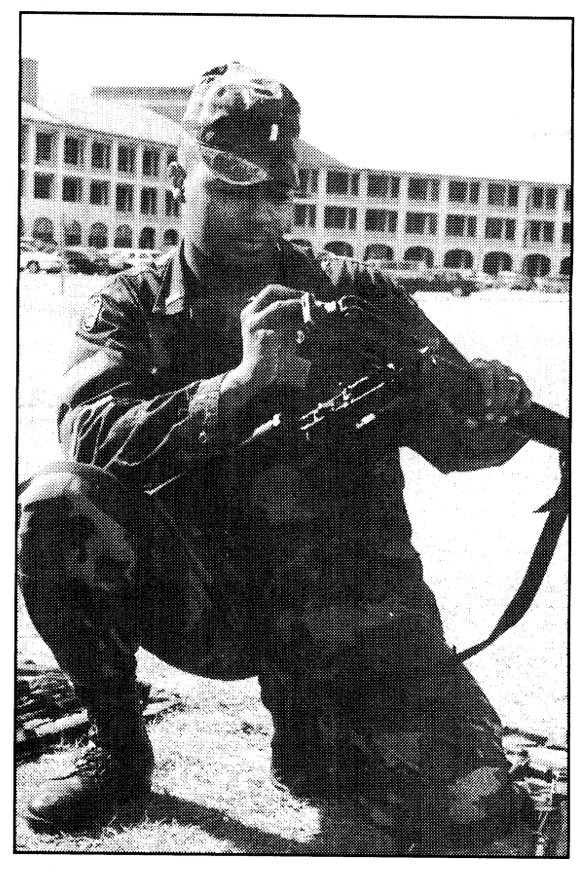
Evaluating a casualty and performing first aid are things everyone in the military learns, but many of us never have to put that training into practice.

Not so for 2nd Lt. James Brady, who is about to graduate from Infantry Officer Basic Course class 8-93. He proved he has the training and swift reactions he may need to save lives in combat situations.

Brady, from Warren, Ohio, had just returned with his platoon from a field exercise. It was a sunny, mid-October day, and the IOBC students were relaxing under a tree near their headquarters while they cleaned their weapons.

"We heard a branch start to crack," Brady said. "One of the guys, (2nd Lt.) Christopher Shay, twisted his ankle while he was trying to get out of the way, and the branch came down on him. It clipped him on his head, with the full weight landing on his shoulder."

Brady applied first aid that, he said, every soldier is trained to perform.



"I made sure he was conscious, checked his breathing, applied a pressure dressing to stop the bleeding from his head, and tried to immobilize his shoulder," Brady said. "He seemed to be going into shock, so we loosened his boots and elevated his feet, and covered him up to keep him warm. After that, I talked to him and joked with him to keep him calm until the ambulance arrived."

An observer can still see where the branch, reported to weigh close to 300 pounds, sheared away close to the trunk of the tree. The officer struck by the branch literally didn't know what hit him.

"I remember talking to a couple of my buddies," Shay said, "and then I really don't remember anything until I woke up in the hospital. I was conscious after the accident, and talking, but I don't remember it. I do know I owe a lot to Brady — I was left with some nerve damage in my arm, but the doctors told me if he hadn't stopped the bleeding from my head, the situation could have been much more serious."

Brady responded instinctively, he said, when someone yelled, "Medic!"

"I was a medic in the Reserve Officer Training Corps in college," he said, "and my unit was called up during Desert Storm. I was in my senior year of college, and I found myself in the desert, wearing sergeant's stripes and working in an emergency room."

Karen S. Morarie

Second Lt. James Brady cleans his weapon following the final field exercise of his IOBC class.

Brady said his experience as a medic made him respond quickly when Shay needed help, but he wouldn't call himself a hero. He was, however, awarded an Army Achievement Medal for his actions. The medal was presented — in the field, with Brady in kevlar and load-bearing equipment — by Lt. Gen. Griffin, Department of the Army inspector general.

"I've gotten a lot of ribbing from my classmates about the whole thing," Brady said, "but I only did what any of them would have done. One of the main things we're taught is to look out for each other."

Brady is scheduled to go to Ranger School in January, and hopes to make a career as an Army officer.

Shotgun team member hits national skeet record

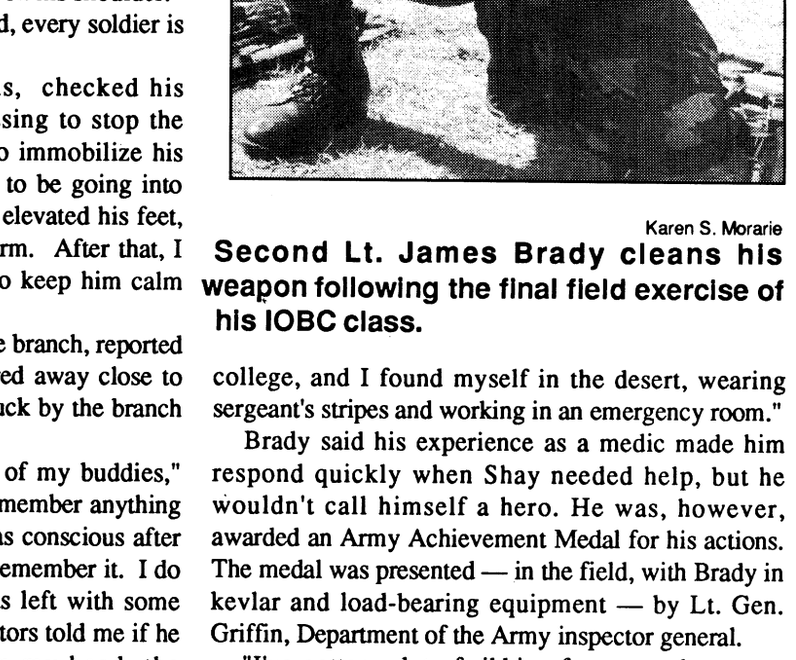
By Anthony Jackson
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

"He's hard charging, fit to fight and a new national skeet record holder," said U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit Shotgun noncomissioned officer in charge Sgt. 1st Class Robert Wiese.

Spc. Bill Moran, 22, a native of Columbus, and an AMU shotgun team member, took the shotgun community by surprise as he outshot 32 competitors and shot his way to a new national skeet record during the Tall Pines Skeet Championships Oct. 15, 16 and 17.

With a score of 195 out of a possible 200, Moran's score was confirmed last week as a new record, said shotgun coach Burl Branham. "It was a sight to see. Saturday Moran lit the range up as he blanked everyone when he shot 95 and Sunday you couldn't touch him after he retired every pigeon and went 100 for 100."

According to shotgun members, the new course of fire for skeet is more challenging then last year. There are more targets to shoot at the fourth level and instead of shooting at a high and low target, a double target is included during the fourth stage.



"Moran was definitely on target and unfortunately for me, he's kickin' butts and taking names with a vengence," said AMU trap and skeet member Sgt. Todd Graves.

Graves, who also competed at the Tall Pines tourney, edged Moran out of first with a score of 194, a final round score of 25 and a "sudden death" score of 8. According to Graves however, first place isn't the limelight anymore; it's being a record holder that is.

"When you're assigned to the AMU, you're expected to come home with the gold all the time," said Graves. "If you train constantly and are always looking for the chance to improve, then you should be able to take home a gold every time. But to set the standards for the rest of the world to follow and set a national or world record, that's every shooter's dream."

"I knew I had shot well, but a new record was the last thing on my mind," said Moran. "Actually I was just out to beat Sergeant Graves."

"Some people might think it's too intense and that such a high degree of this competitive spirit isn't good, but it's what I like to see and it's what makes this shotgun team so good at what they do," said Branham. "We're a tight knit group, a family that thrives off each others accomplishments."

IOBC gives leaders knowledge they need to succeed

Infantry Officer Basic Course

Infantry Officer Basic Course Class 7-93 began in July with 105 students. Graduation ceremonies for the class were Nov 2.

The 16-week course is designed to give the newly commissioned infantry lieutenants the knowledge needed to succeed as platoon leader.

Second Lt. Eric Hefner was named the distinguished leadership graduate.

Hefner enlisted in the Army and was assigned to the 7th Infantry Division in 1984. He entered the Army Reserve in 1987 and served as a drill sergeant.

While serving in the Reserves and attending the University of Oregon, Hefner volunteered for active duty during Operations Desert Storm and Desert Shield. He served with the 1st Cavalry Division until April 1991.

In June, he graduated from the University of Oregon as the distinguished military graduate.

His awards include the Expert Infantryman Badge, Drill Sergeant Identification Badge, Parachutist Badge and the Army Commendation Medal.

Hefner will receive the Army Commendation Medal for his outstanding performance during the Infantry Officer Basic Course. After graduation he will attend the U.S. Army Ranger School.

State sets 90-day deadline for residents to claim 1993 refund checks

Georgia Revenue Department

ATLANTA — The Department of Revenue is attempting to locate t

Georgia income tax refund check for the 1992 tax year was returned by the U.S. Post Office as undeliverable.

DOR Commissioner Marcus E. Collins Sr. is requesting that newspapers throughout the state publish the following list of taxpayer names and hometowns to facilitate distribution of the returned checks.

For security reasons, taxpayer addresses are not included.

"Georgia law provides that persons entitled to such checks must claim them within 90 days after publication of the list," Collins said.

"The refunds cannot be made to taxpayers after the 90-day period expires unless formal application is made to the Revenue Department."

Any taxpayer whose name appears on the following list must communicate in writing with the Georgia Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 38098, Atlanta, Ga. 30334, to obtain the refund.

Letters must include "Social Security" numbers and signatures as shown on the tax return.

Taxpayers who have questions or need additional information should call (404) 656-4167.

Students plan Thanksgiving feast

Stowers School students are developing a better appreciation for the Thanksgiving holiday as they prepare to re-enact the original pilgrim and Indian feast held nearly 400 years ago.

In 1620, a group of determined Englishmen and women sailed to America in search of new freedoms and a different life. Following a harsh winter, the Pilgrims discovered new hope through a friendship with English-speaking Indians in Plymouth, Mass.

These Indians helped the settlers learn to survive in the wilderness, and as a gesture of thanks the Pilgrims entertained their comrades with a fall harvest feast. This first feast of thanks led to a tradition that was officially recognized in 1863 as the national holiday of Thanksgiving.

The performance at Stowers School "will demonstrate the ways the Indians helped the Pilgrims," said assistant principal Ken Stettes.

The play will help children appreciate the Thanksgiving tradition as well as enhance the current social studies curriculum, Stettes added.

"Thanksgiving Feast" by playwright Susan Nanus represents a joint effort among parents, students and teacher Anna Smith.

Parent volunteers LaLoni Moore, Cathy Campbell and Liz Johnson are working with the aspiring young actors and actresses as they prepare for the drama scheduled for Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

The children will be dressed in period costumes on loan from parents or designed by Sharon Del Gobbo, the art teacher at Stowers School.

Parents and teachers provided the colorful props of bright Indian corn and squash and traditional dishes like turkey and pie that will decorate the elaborate but artificial feast table.

A genuine feast of turkey and trimmings is scheduled to follow the morning play. Smith and her volunteers are arranging a traditional Thanksgiving meal courtesy of parent volunteers, Smith's family members and "anybody else that would like to contribute," she said.

The children can then enjoy the tasty finale to their drama while considering the origins of this unique American holiday called Thanksgiving.

Benning Bazaar draws crowd of shoppers

By Stephanie Krawczyk

More than 60 vendors showed off their workmanship Saturday as part of the 1993 Benning Bazaar.

The annual event, sponsored by the Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club, is one of their main fund-raising efforts.

Vendors lined the halls of Infantry Hall offering handcrafted items like baskets, stained glass and numerous Christmas items for sale. The OWC operated a Country Store selling baked goods and gingerbread men, which was the theme for this year's bazaar.

The event attracted more than 890 people, who shopped throughout the day.

"We're very pleased with the turnout; we're doing very well," said Lynn Byrne, who was selling her handmade baskets. She and friend Regina Miller, who was selling handmade resin and wood crafts, teamed up for the event by sharing a table.

The Columbus Studio was one of a handful of area businesses to participate in the bazaar. Their display included framed and unframed prints, many containing Civil War themes. Bea Andrews, owner of the studio, has participated in the bazaar for the past 10 years and has seen it outgrow both the Officers' Club and Faith Middle School.

Her husband Bob said that while the bazaar has grown, people are now much more cautious when it comes to spending money at the event. "People are worried about discretionary spending now that military careers have become less secure," he said.

But cautious spending was hard to find Saturday as most people left the event with a purchase in hand.

Kris Crevelino, who has been stationed here with her husband for about a year, bought a handcrafted basket. "I'm Christmas shopping for myself," she said after completing the purchase.

Profits from the bazaar go to the OWC welfare and scholarship fund according to Chris Rupert, bazaar chairwoman. The fund benefits groups like the Scouts, Red Cross and Meals on Wheels.

The club offered opportunities for a quilt, framed print and a gingerbread house as an additional way to raise money.

Santa's Castle gearing up

'Elves' get toys ready for holiday gift giving

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

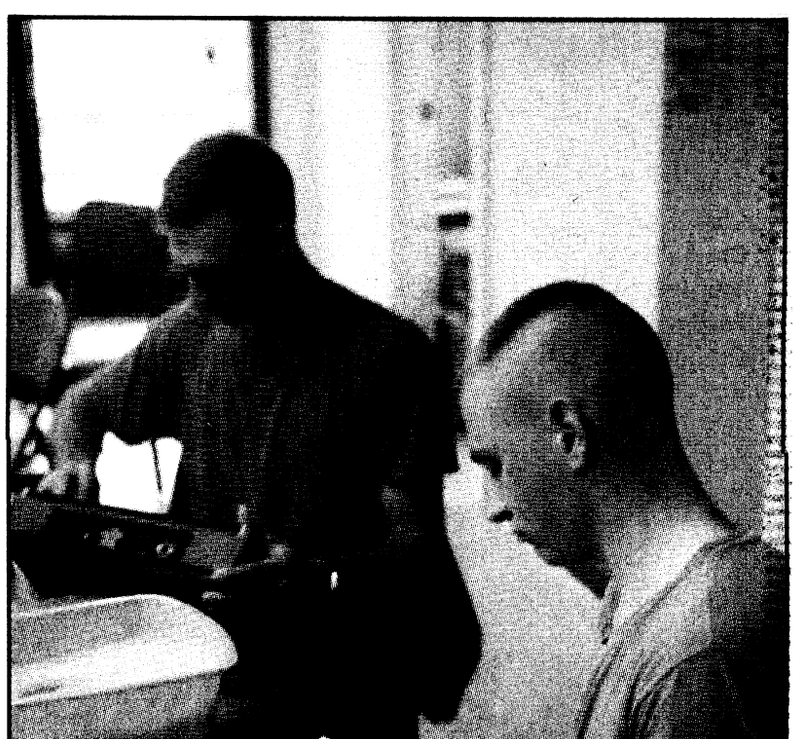
Volunteers at Santa's Castle are busily preparing for the fast-approaching Christmas Season.

Referred soldiers will begin selecting free toys or "shopping" for their families Dec. 6 for a two-week period.

Santa's Castle is a nonprofit, all-volunteer organization that provides free toys to needy military families at Christmas.

Supported completely by donations of money and new and used toys, the group projects they will provide gifts for more than 1,200 children this year.

With deadlines just around the corner, the group needs volunteers to perform various tasks. Donated toys need to be sorted, cleaned, packaged and inventoried. There is also repair work to be completed on items like stereos, tape players and bicycles.



After preparation of each toy is complete, it is placed in the "shopping area" according to age group and approximate worth. The referred soldiers will be guided through the facility during a scheduled time by volunteer "elves" who will help them in selecting free toys for their children.

Santa's Castle has received donations from many Fort Benning units, clubs and local businesses. Units have sponsored fund-raising events like golf tournaments and conducted toy drives.

Donations of new toys or money would be most helpful for the 1993 holiday season, according to officials. While donations of used toys are always welcome, their refurbishing process is done meticulously and can be time consuming.

Soldiers requiring assistance this Christmas must be referred to Santa's Castle by their chain of command, usually their first sergeant or company commander. The deadline for referring soldiers this year is Monday.

Santa's Castle is open Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Any individual or group interested in volunteering can stop by Santa's Castle, Building 2639 in Soldiers' Plaza or call 545-1233 for more information.

SatoTravel offers ocean cruises

SatoTravel

Cruising to beautiful and exotic ports was once considered to be a vacation only for those with lots of money and leisure time.

Today, lower and more schedules can be found than ever before.

Travel agents say one of the greatest advantages of a cruise vacation to individuals and families is the cost. The price of the cruise is all-inclusive, meaning transportation, lodging, food and entertaiment are included. Free airfare or low-cost flights from almost all cities in the United States are provided by cruise lines departing from major ports. About the only extra costs are special beverages or casino games.

Cruises may be booked for as little as one day or up to four months long. The ratio of staff to passengers on most lines is one to two.

Food is prepared around the clock. Some type of dining is available 24 hours a day, even pizza and ice cream, and room service is free.

Think you will be bored? You will be, unless you enjoy jogging, exercise, swimming, skin diving, snorkeling, dancing, golf, tennis, ping-pong or pool games. By all means don't forget the big three: sunbathing, sightseeing and shopping.

A SatoTravel agent can help make that dream a reality. Stop by the Leisure Travel Office, Building 247, Ingersol Street and pick up a brochure, or call 687-4900.

ACS welcomes new families

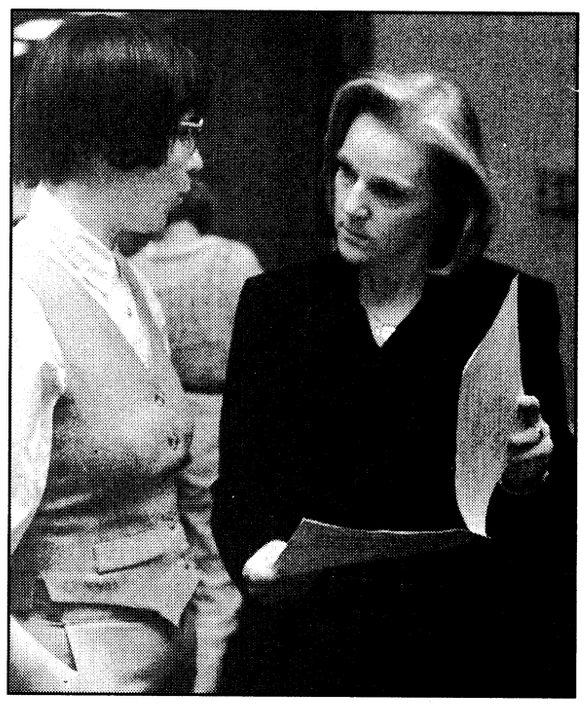
By Jerrie Macintire
Special to The Bayonet©

Soldiers and their spouses new to Fort Benning received a welcome in addition to an overview of the post with a half-day orientation Nov. 4, covering topics from recreation to financial planning.

Presented by the Family Support Division, the seminar is a monthly event recommended by unit commanders to their new personnel.

"This orientation is to let the spouses know what services are available and how to gain access to those services," said Michelle Aldridge, Family Unit Network coordinator.

The seminar is designed to increase family preparedness for life at Fort Benning and covers a wide range of topics. Rebecca Carroll, chief of the Family Support Division, Army Community Service, said she usually begins the orientations with an overview of what soldiers and spouses can expect to hear. Approximately 20 speakers usually address the audience.



Carroll said, this spouse orientation reflects an interest those in command have in helping spouses adjust to life in the Fort Benning area.

"Orientations of the past presented some information to soldiers," she said "but spouses were not always getting that information would help them adjust from a move."

"When Major General Jerry A. White arrived on post, he had an interest in the family support program," said Marsha Collins, family services coordinator.

For the past year, the orientation has been a thorough and positive experience for spouses, and the volunteer efforts of an experienced military spouse, Frances Quick, have helped improve the seminar, said Collins. Quick is the wife of chief of staff Col. Burnet R. Quick.

When the Quicks arrived at Fort Benning from Europe, she noticed that their orientation there was more comprehensive. Using the orientation they were given in Germany as a model, she helped restructure the seminar for soldiers so it would include the spouses.

Jerrie Macintire/Special to The Bayonet

Baby-sitting is provided for participants, and the seminar ends at noon, giving spouses a chance to have lunch together, Quick said.

In order to accommodate a large audience, video equipment, and a number of speakers, the orientation is conducted in the auditorium of Building 359, the FUN building.

An array of refreshments and a variety of brochures and information packets were available. Many speakers remained afterward to give detailed individual answers to special problems voiced by soldiers or spouses.

The chief of staff presented a welcome and the opening remarks, followed by briefings from various speakers representing all aspects of life at Fort Benning.

AMU sponsors Green Wings shoot

By Anthony Jackson
SU.S. Army Marksmanship Uint

The Muscogee County chapter of Ducks Unlimited of Columbus, celebrated its 11th anniversary with its annual Ducks Unlimited shoot at Fort Benning's Hook Range Nov. 7.

Sponsored by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit's shotgun team, young "Green Wing" shooters competed in American-style skeet and received instruction in the basics of marksmanship.

Topics included good stock-to-shoulder placement, trigger squeeze and breathing techniques.

Ducks Unlimited, an international conservation organization, formed the Green Wing program to teach children ages 5 to 17 the benefits of wildlife, land ecology and preservation, according to Larry Neal, local Green Wing chairman.

"We try to teach children," said Sgt. Bret Erickson, a 1992 Olympic trap team member and AMU shotgun team member, "that guns, no matter what type, are more than deadly tools used by gangs to shoot people."

Neal said the Green Wings program members visit Fort Benning every year to help reinforce gun safety and marksmanship skills.

Combined Federal Campaign continues

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©

The 1993 Federal Combined Campaign has been extended for two more weeks to help meet the goal of $600,000.

Donations had reached $383,936, or 64 percent, of the $600,000 goal as of Thursday morning.

The CFC allows military and civilian personnel from Fort Benning to donate to charitable organizations through a monthly payroll deduction.

There are more than 28,700 individuals who are eligible to participate in the campaign at this post. Of that figure, 8,700 have made contributions this year.

Donation forms are available from unit or organization project officers or the CFC office.

The fiscal 1993 campaign goal of $500,000 was met and exceeded.

The CFC offices will be open until Dec. 3. They are located on the second floor of the First Union Bank.

Native American couple is military success story

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Kit Carson led the cavalry against his people. Their crops and stock were destroyed, they were taken prisoner and kept in captivity for three years, and their population fell to 300.

Sgt. Maj. Virgil Oliver, Defense Accounting Office sergeant major, is a Navajo, and along with about 3,000 other Native Americans, (including his wife, Alyce, who is Navajo, a master sergeant and chief legal noncommissioned officer with the Staff judge Advocate's Office) now serves the country that once tried to destroy its native people. The couple have, between them, more than 40 years of active duty in the Army.

Oliver is not the first of his family to serve. His father was one of the Navajo "Codetalkers" who served with the Marines during World War II. Their code, based on the Navajo language, was the only one not broken by the Japanese.

"They were always in the front of an assault," Oliver said. "They were top secret, of course, and many of them were captured by Army soldiers, who thought they were Japanese."

There are about 200 surviving Codetalkers, Oliver said. "They are our heroes, and we're very proud of them."

Cultural roots

The Navajos (or Dineh, in their language — meaning "people") now number more than 200,000 and the reservation, which includes the "Four Corners" where Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Colorado meet, is roughly the size of the state of Virginia.

The Navajo tribe has its own government, police, colleges and judicial system. Reservation land offers timber, coal, oil and uranium. The land is mostly dry and rocky, and includes Monument Valley, the Petrified Forest, Grand Canyon and many other canyons and ruins. The climate is snowy in winter and very hot in the summer. While many Native American tribes were "relocated" to lands far from their original homes, the Navajos were returned to the land they had inhabited as far back as they could remember.

"That land is sacred to the Navajos," said Oliver. "Traditional members of the tribe believe we were put there for a purpose by the great spirit."

Diet staples include tortillas and potatoes, Oliver said, with mutton stew and "fry bread" on special occasions. Traditional crafts include weaving, silversmithing and beadwork.

Adaptation

The Olivers, who have come far from their traditional culture, were raised at a time when Navajo children were commonly required to leave their families and attend boarding schools, where they were, Oliver said, made to feel they weren't Indian.

"It was very regimented," Oliver said. "We had haircuts very similar to the haircuts the rangers wear now. On the first day of school, many of the students didn't know any English — only Navajo, which we weren't allowed to speak. Those of us who knew a little English interpreted for the rest."

Oliver said the cultural differences children in boarding school faced were almost overwhelming.

"Many of the children came from homes with no electricity, no running water. They were used to sleeping on a sheepskin on the floor. At night, you'd hear the sounds of boys talking in their sleep, and you'd hear bodies falling off bunkbeds."

Both remember standing in line for meals, studying and doing chores according to a strict schedule, and experiencing swift punishment when they didn't perform as expected.

Oliver said there are now more public schools on the reservation, but since the population is very scattered, students often have to walk miles to catch a bus that may travel 60 to 100 miles to the nearest school.

After he left boarding school, Oliver said, he went to a private Catholic school, which he worked during the summers to pay for.

"The nuns there were very strict, too," he said, "but I think I learned a lot of my independence and self-reliance during that time. I knew I'd have to work for what I wanted."

His wife, too, learned determination early. She was also a boarding school student, and spent summers with her grandmother.

"She was a strict Protestant, so I didn't go to the traditional ceremonies," she said. "I didn't know that much about the culture, though I find it interesting now."

She said she got in trouble with her grandmother more than once for letting the sheep wander off.

"I would herd the sheep for her in the summer," Alyce said. "Once a month, a bookmobile would come to the trading post, and I would leave the sheep grazing close by and go get some books. I would go back to the sheep and start reading, and they would be gone before I knew it."

Both the Olivers remember, as children, staring at the horizon and wondering "what was beyond." In the Army, they've both seen many new horizons.

Reaching for success

Oliver said when he enlisted, the Army was his only chance to reach his goal of going to college. He had missed the deadline for a tribal scholarship and didn't want to go to a trade or technical school.

"I wanted to be an architect," Oliver said, "but there wasn't much encouragement then for young Navajos to go to college. We were steered into the trade schools. I thought the Army and the GI Bill would give me a chance to go to college."

His wife, on the other hand, dates her wish to join the military from a time in high school.

"I saw a couple of female soldiers downtown," she said, "and I thought they looked very neat — they kind of got my interest."

Oliver originally intended to enlist for only three years, he said, but after Vietnam, when he was told to re-enlist or get out, he decided to stay a little longer.

He said he was often called "Chief" during his early years in the Army. It wasn't meant respectfully. "That was before we had much equal opportunity training," Oliver said.

Although military life was very hard at times, "there was always another challenge," he said.

His wife agrees. "The most important thing," she said, "is to always go the extra mile. Be prepared, and be willing to work." She will reach her goal, she said, when she joins her husband as a sergeant major. She's slated to attend the academy in January.

They say they've enjoyed working in leadership positions, with people from all different backgrounds. Each plans to continue with school after retiring.

Oliver said he hopes his children will choose to go to college and pursue careers outside the military. One daughter, Cheryl, is a senior at the University of Texas in El Paso. the Olivers have another daughter, Loni, 12, and a son, Marc, 10.

"Our children haven't really been brought up in their culture," said Oliver, "but they have an interest in it. I don't think life on the reservation will change much — the people there are attached to the land, family and their way of life."

COMMUNITY CARE

By Ken Franklin
Martin Army Community Hospital

There are two big differences between military and family clinics.

Military clinics, by civilian measures, have superior quality; however, civilian clinics have much larger support staffs.

Civilian doctors have many nurses, clerks and technicians who speed patient flow — about three for each doctor. Military doctors usually have about one helper per doctor.

Despite this difference, Martin Army Community Hospital's clinics do well. In the drawdown era, Martin Army will never be able to hire all the people that civilian doctors use.

Red Cross volunteers can fill this gap.

In many family clinics, a dedicated core of Red Cross volunteers assist the assigned staff. They make appointments, check patients in, take vital signs, file records and chaperone. Because they are also beneficiaries, they understand patients and can readily meet their needs.

The Community Care clinics, especially Winder and Aviation, have very few Red Cross volunteers.

They are actively recruiting more.

Volunteers are asked to work four hours per week. In return, they are offered enrollment at that clinic. The end result is patient involvement in the operation of the clinic.

There are significant job requirements volunteers must meet. They must respect patient confidentiality, as well as other regulations about appointments and patient care. They must also be available for a relatively stable half-day every week or two.

The Martin Army Hospital Red Cross Office will provide the training needed — free. It's phone number is 544-3213 or 544-4223.

Send questions about family care at Martin Army Community Hospital to: Community Care Corner, Martin Army Community Hospital, Attention: HSXB-F, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905-6100.

SUMMARY COURTS-MARTIAL

exercise justice promptly for relatively minor offenses

US Army Trial Defense Service

The summary court-martial is a form of court-martial authorized by the Uniform Code of Military Justice to exercise justice promptly for relatively minor offenses under a simple form of procedure.

Most, but not all, of the protections available to the accused in a special and general court-martial are available in a summary court-martial.

Evidence must still be presented to prove guilt beyond reasonable doubt; the rules of evidence apply; the accused may confront and cross-examine witnesses against him or her, make motions to dismiss charges or suppress evidence, and call witnesses on his or her behalf. The accused may also testify or remain silent, according to his or her desires.

A summary court-martial is usually ordered by a commander in the grade of lieutenant colonel or higher. This commander will designate an impartial officer to act as a judge in the case, called the summary court officer. At a summary court-martial, there will be no prosecutor, no military judge from the U.S. Army Trial Judiciary and no panel; the summary court officer fills all these roles.

A military lawyer of the Trial Defense Service is available to consult with soldiers pending summary court-martial and assist them in putting together and presenting the case.

Except for extremely limited cases, however, the accused is not entitled to have a military lawyer actually represent him or her in a summary court-martial. Soldiers represents themselves. The accused can, at their own expense, hire a civilian lawyer to represent them in a summary court-martial.

Because the accused's rights are limited at a summary court-martial, he or she has the right to refuse to be tried by summary court.

If the soldier refuses to be tried by summary court-martial, the case usually is referred to either a special or general court-martial; there is no right to refuse to be tried by these other two types of courts-martial.

There are significant limitations on the amount of punishment a summary court can adjudge. For soldiers above the fourth pay grade, the maximum punishment is reduction of one grade, forfeiture of two-thirds pay for one month, and restriction for two months.

For soldiers in the fourth pay grade or below, the maximum punishment is reduction to private1, forfeiture of two-thirds pay for one month and confinement for up to 30 days.

In lieu of confinement, the accused may be sentenced to either hard labor without confinement for 45 days or restriction for two months. These punishments are higher than the maximums authorized at an Article 15 but significantly lower than that which can be adjudged at special and general courts-martial.

After the commander prefers summary court-martial charges, the soldier may see a TDS counsel, who will explain his rights and options.

Even though the summary court officer is obligated to act neutrally, the defense counsel can advise the soldier on how to clarify issues and identify witnesses who need to be called.

The TDS counsel will also make suggestions on tactics and can help prepare written briefs or documents. If the soldier desires to obtain civilian counsel, then that attorney may actually represent the accused at the summary court-martial if such an appearance will not unreasonably delay the proceedings and it is not precluded by military exigencies.

If the soldier is found guilty and a sentence adjudged by the summary court-martial officer, the accused may submit written matters to the convening authority within seven days after the sentence is announced. This period may be extended for up to 20 additional days upon a showing by the accused that additional time is necessary.

Q: I have heard that certain vitamins can reduce the risk of heart disease and cancer. Is this true?

A: "Free radical" and "antioxidant" are terms tossed around as things that are bad for you. Free radical are unstable by-products of many everyday reactions in the body. Most often these free radicals are converted to water and are harmless. In some people, there is a temporary decrease in the body's ability to use the free radicals, therefore the number builds. When they accumulate on the fats, it is detrimental and may lead to cancer and heart problems.

Antioxidants, vitamin C (a beta-carotene), and E neutralize these free radicals. Eat these vitamins in their natural state. Good sources of vitamins are yellow, orange and deep green fruits and vegetables. i.e. carrots, cantaloupe, apricots, squash, yams, broccoli, kale, and spinach. Good sources of vitamin C are all fruits and vegetables. also approximately 500mg/day of Vitamin C seems to decrease the number and severity of upper respiratory infections (colds). Vitamin E is usually located in wheat products and some healthy cooking oils.

Q: What is the best method to stop smoking?

A: When you are considering smoking withdrawal, remember to do it gradually. "Cold Turkey" simply does not work! Today's high success rates associated with tobacco cessation are achieved through gradual tampering of the habit. When you quit smoking, you'll most likely have some symptoms of withdrawal. Some people have more, some less. The great news is that these symptoms are signs that your body is recovering from the addiction.

When symptoms occur, decrease your awareness to them, and withdrawal symptoms will be over soon (when the nicotine clears from your healthy body).

Q: What is AR 350-41, Training in Units, and what happened to AR 350-15 Physical Fitness Training?

A: AR 350-15 no longer exists; it is now part of AR 350-41, Training in Units. The Physical Fitness regulations are located in Chapter 9.

It addresses physical training application, objectives, training policies, unit and individual physical training, testing procedures, incentives and corrective action, safety and sports-related programs.

ASK THE JUDGE

Q: Several years back I bought a new stereo system. Somehow I got behind on my payments. Recently I have been receiving telephone calls at all hours of the day from this guy who says he is an attorney for the credit bureau. The calls are very annoying and embarrassing, especially since this guy is calling me at my unit. Is there anything I can do to stop him from harassing me?

A: You are entitled to some protection under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act. The act covers personal, family and household debts. Its purpose is to prohibit abusive debt collection practices. However, this law does not release you from your legitimate debt obligations.

If you are contacted by a debt collector, you should be aware that they are prohibited from using certain tactics in collecting the debt from you, and must treat you fairly.

For example, debt collectors are prohibited from calling you at inconvenient times or places, such as before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m., unless you agree. Debt collectors cannot contact you at work if your employer disapproves.

In the Army, your supervisor or commander is deemed to be your "employer." Thus, if a debt collector calls you at work, and your commander prohibits such communications, the debt collector will be in violation of the law.

Debt collectors may not harass or abuse anyone. In particular, they may not use threats of violence or harm to your property or reputation to collect a debt.

They cannot publish a list of consumers who refuse to pay their debts, except to a local credit bureau.

They may not use obscene or profane language, repeatedly use the telephone to annoy someone, and telephone people without properly identifying themselves as a debt collector.

Debt collectors are also prohibited from using false statements in collecting the debt. They may not imply that they are an attorney or a government representative. Additionally, they may not falsely imply that you have committed a crime, falsely represent that they work for a credit bureau, or misrepresent the amount of the debt.

Furthermore, debt collectors may not say that you will be arrested if you do not pay your debt or that they will seize, garnish, attach or sell your property or wages, unless the collection agency intends to do so and it is legal.

A new federal law allows collection agencies to garnish military wages to pay debts once they have gone to court and had a final judgment entered against you.

The actual procedures for setting up an involuntary allotment have not been finalized yet but service members need to be aware that their pay is now subject to garnishment.

If a collection agency contacts you, there are several things you can do to protect yourself if you feel you do not owe the money.

First, write a letter to the collector and keep copies of all correspondence and messages. The debt collector may not continue to contact you if you send the collector a letter saying you do not owe the money.

However, he or she can start collection activities again if they send you proof of the debt, such as a copy of the bill or note.

In addition, you can demand a written notice telling you the amount of money you owe, the name of the creditor you owe, and what to do if you feel you do not owe the money.

If you ever encounter a debt collector who uses illegal practices or fails to verify the alleged debt, you can contact the Legal Assistance Office at 545-3281.

States' drivers license rules vary for military

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

Extensions, renewals and expiration dates for state drivers' licenses can confuse service members. Rules vary, as some states offer automatic extensions while others permit renewal by mail.

For states with automatic extensions, the driver's license must have been current and valid when the individual entered the service. In some states, service members can drive on an expired license for 30 days or more after leaving the service.

A breakdown of state motor vehicle requirements and procedures, traffic rules, taxes and liability laws, as well as driver's license information and vehicle inspection requirements, is available in the 1993 edition of American Automobile Association's Digest of Motor Laws.

For answers to questions or for specific information, check with your state division of motor vehicles.

The following list offers a quick look at each state's automatic extension policy, as well as addresses and telephone numbers for the divisions of motor vehicles.

• Alabama: No automatic extension; renewable by mail; Motor Vehicle Div., Montgomery, Ala. 36130, or call (205) 242-9000;

• Alaska: No; renewable by mail; Division of Motor Vehicles, Department of Public Safety, 5700 E. Tudor Road, Anchorage, Alaska 99507, or call (907) 269-5551;

Retirement planning: state CPAs offer advice

Georgia Society of Certified Public Accountants Inc.

Retirement — the time to start living life to its fullest. What type of lifestyle do you want after retirement?

Whatever the choice may be, you should start to plan for the future now. Social Security, pension plans, individual retirement accounts and personal investments are just half of the choices you must make in deciding where your dollars will go.

You may relieve your retirement worries by calling Georgia Society of CPAs. A representative from the speakers' bureau will speak to any group or organization about retirement planning, free of charge.

Issues from all aspects of retirement planning can be discussed, including topics such as inflation rates between now and the date of retirement, the number of years you plan to be retired and lifestyle adjustments.

Don't wait until it's too late, because you are never too young to start planning for the future. For more information about how to arrange for a speaker, contact Casey O'Neal, communications coordinator, at (404) 231-8676, Ext. 814.

The Georgia Society of CPAs is a nonprofit organization serving more than 8,700 CPAs statewide.

Dietitian shows myths and facts of vitamin B

General Mills

While B vitamins do contribute to a healthful diet, research does not support the extraordinary benefits that some people have assigned to them, says Mary Helen Gunkler, a registered dietitian.

Here are a few of the myths associated with B vitamins:

• Myth: Symptoms of premenstrual syndrome are caused by vitamin B-6 deficiency.

• Fact: At this time, there is no proof of a direct relationship between one's diet and the onset of PMS. Some have theorized that a B-6 deficiency may be responsible for an estrogen imbalance resulting in PMS. However, there is no sound evidence that women who suffer from PMS have estrogen imbalances or B-6 deficiencies. Vitamin B-6 does help keep skin and nerves healthy.

• Myth: Vitamin B-12 can make people feel more energetic.

• Fact: There is no proof that vitamin B-12 supplements can cure fatigue, except in extreme cases of medically diagnosed B-12 deficiency. Vitamin B-12 is important for proper cell functioning. Most Americans store plenty of B-12 in their livers.

• Myth: B-complex supplements help reduce stress.

• Fact: There is no scientific proof that B vitamins reduce stress. However, thiamin, niacin and B-6 help maintain a healthy nervous system. The B vitamins are essential for many functions in the body. They break down protein, carbohydrates and fat and are necessary for almost every reaction in every cell of your body.

Gunkler recommends getting plenty of B vitamins by including these sources in the diet: meat and dairy products, whole-grain breads and cereals, dry beans and green leafy vegetables.

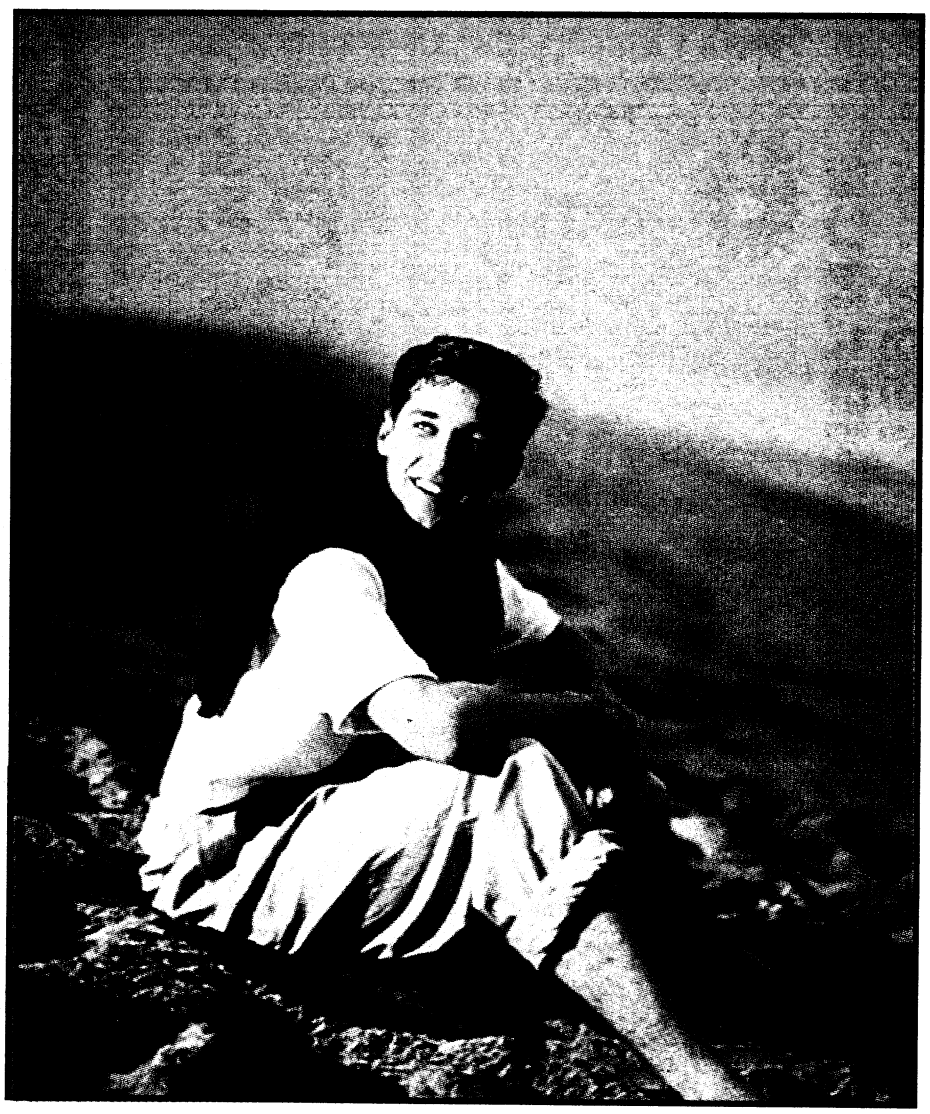
ABC miniseries dramatizes John F. Kennedy's youth

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

This week, as the nation marks the 30th anniversary of the assassination of John F. Kennedy, a new miniseries recalls his younger years.

SPOTLIGHT



Adapted from Nigel Hamilton's best-seller by "China Beach" co-creator William Broyles Jr., Sunday and Tuesday's ABC offering "JFK: Reckless Youth" casts Patrick Dempsey — of such films as "Mobsters," "Can't Buy Me Love" and "In the Mood" — as the politician-to-be, a career for which Kennedy's family background virtually destined him. While he had a continual rivalry with his older brother Joe Jr. (played by Loren Dean, of "Billy Bathgate"), he was given support and solace by his sister Kathleen, nicknamed "Kick" (and portrayed by Robin Tunney).

Problems arose over John, or "Jack's," passionate romance with a married journalist (Yolanda Jilot) believed to be a German spy; that led to a major conflict with his father (Terry Kinney, of "thirtysomething"), who feared the liaison would damage his future irreversibly. Despite persistent health problems, Kennedy later entered the Navy, becoming a hero for his service aboard PT 109 ... and setting up his entry into politics, as a candidate for Congress in 1945.

With the actual image of John Kennedy still so prevalent, those who know Dempsey's film work are likely to feel the actor doesn't bear much of a resemblance to him. Dempsey had similar doubts himself, and he admits to being "totally surprised" at having been chosen for the role: "I had just finished a movie with Joe Pesci in Chicago (the forthcoming 'With Honors'), and my hair was very long in that, a completely different look from JFK. I wasn't really in the mood to audition for anything, since I'd just come off 3 1/2 months of work, but I had read the book and thought it would be a fascinating role to play. Still, I didn't think I had a chance at all. I had a very nice meeting with (producer-director) Harry Winer and (executive producer) Judy Polone, but they passed on me. Two weeks went by, and there had been a lot of lobbying by my agent and the casting director for me to go in again and do a reading. I didn't think I looked enough like JFK, and I didn't want to work on a miniseries because of the pace; the more I worked on (the material), though, the more I felt it would be a great learning experience."

Ultimately, Dempsey got another shot at trying out to play Kennedy, "and they offered me the role. I was just doing (the second audition) as an exercise, not thinking I'd actually get the part since they'd already passed. That was sort of my attitude throughout the whole project: 'I'm lost anyway, so I've got nothing to lose.' I felt there was no way I could pull it off, so I decided to have a great time."

Initially, efforts were made to approximate Kennedy's looks through the application of prosthetics, but Dempsey muses, "That just made me look really frightening, more than anything else."

Native American Heritage Month celebrated on post

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

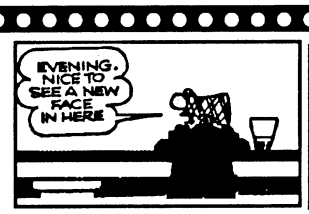
Nov. 1 through 30 is Native American Heritage Month. Fort Benning's Equal Opportunity Office sponsored a luncheon and performance by The Blue Earth singers and Dancers Nov. 10. See highlights of the performance and speakers beginning Monday on "Fort Benning Today."

German prisoners of war, who were captured during World War II, died during captivity and are buried at Fort Benning, were honored Sunday at the post cemetery. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" next week to see highlights and some distinguished guests attending the ceremony.

Friday marked a new beginning for the post Dental Activity. A new commander took the reigns during a ceremony at Love Dental Clinic. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" for highlights.

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel announces post events, post movie listings, and offers free classified advertisements on "Fort Benning Update," a community information service.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.



For more information call, 545-5921.

Native American Month

Knowledge of heritage wins prizes

Equal Opportunity Office

It's Native American Heritage Month. Test your knowledge of Indian tribes by completing the puzzle below.

Bring answers to the Equal Opportunity Office, Building 2515, no later than Wednesday. The first person with a majority of the correct answers will be declared the winner.

Prizes will be donated by the Directorate of Community Activities and the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

Answer the following questions

1. A few years after his death, Red Cloud and his wife were formally baptized as_____ _____; he took the baptismal name "_____", and she became "_____."

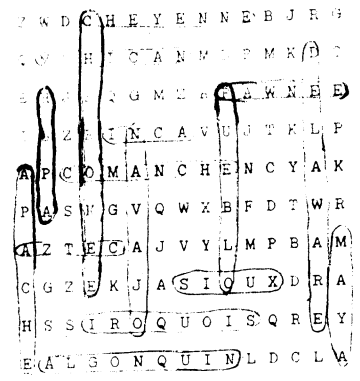
2. The Army proceeded to carry out orders to fortify the Bozeman Trail. When Red Cloud's protests were ignored, he organized his forces, threatened death to any whites who ventured onto the trail, and began a constant harassment, which was to go on for two years and become known as "_____ _____ _____."

3. The _____ _____ Treaty created the vast area known as the Feat Sioux Reservation.

4. The wildest and fiercest of Comanches was the _____ band. In 1835, This band attacked a small settlement in east Texas and carried away several captives, among them a little girl, _____ _____ _____, then about 10 years old. This woman grew up to marry _____, a Comanche chief.

5. The man _____ _____ the most esteemed Indian of his tribe, died in 1911, at about 76. In 1957, he was reburied in the post cemetery at Fort Sill, Okla., with military honors.

6. _____ _____ was born in what is now South Dakota about 1831, the son of a Hunkpapa Teton generally known as Jumping Bull.



7. The Battle of Little Big Horn was the last great _____ _____ victory.

8. The battle that followed on June 25 was the spectacular Indian triumph known as "_____ _____ _____," in which the general and every one of his _____ were annihilated.

Rock 'N Country

Travis Tritt, Trisha Yearwood, Little Texas bring tour to Columbus

Anheuser-Busch Inc.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Budweiser Rock 'N Country Tour, starring Southern rocker Travis Tritt, Trisha Yearwood and Little Texas, will make a stop at Municipal Auditorium in Columbus Dec. 5.

Tritt, Yearwood and Little Texas are starring in the 110-city Budweiser Rock 'N Country Tour, which kicked off in Memphis Feb. 13. Most recently, Rolling Stone magazine highlighted the show as one of the top summer tours this year.

Tritt, who won a Grammy earlier this year along with Marty Stuart for best country vocal collaboration, burst onto the country music scene in 1989 and has never slowed down. Since then, he has added seven No. 1 hits to his growing repertoire of awards and accomplishments, which included winning Billboard's "Top New Male Artist" award (1990) and being named the Country Music Association's Horizon Award winner (1991).

In addition, he received the CMA award for best "Vocal Event" (1992), which he shared with Marty Stuart for their "No Hats" tour. His album, "t-r-o-u-b-l-e," has ranked in Billboard's Top 20 for several months.

Yearwood's debut in country music was one of the most impressive ever as her first single, "She's In Love With The Boy," shot to No. 1. Her latest album, "Hearts In Armor," has been on Billboard's Top Country Albums chart for almost a year. Yearwood does not hesitate to mix it up with a touch of pop, rock or heart-felt rhythm and blues. She's often compared with Linda Ronstadt and other artists whose country style is wide-ranging and long-lasting.

Little Texas' high-energy performance is among the most popular in modern country. Their latest album, "Big Time," has broken into the Top 30. An earlier hit, "Some Guys Have All the Love," rose to No. 8 on Billboard, while their video by the same title hit No. 1 on The Nashville Network.

During the Budweiser Rock 'N Country Tour's summer break, Little Texas played before President Bill Clinton and Vice President Al Gore at a Democratic Party fund-raiser in Washington, D.C. Additionally, Texas Gov. Ann Richards named Little Texas Honorary World Ambassadors of the Lone Star State.

"There will be something for everyone," said August A. Busch IV, vice president, Budweiser brands. "Whether it's Travis' hot Southern rock, Trisha's sizzling ballads, or Little Texas' fast-paced versatility, there will be something for everyone who attends a show along the Budweiser Rock 'N Country tour."

In addition, throughout the course of the tour, 25 cents per ticket sold will be donated to the "Cities In Schools" program, a nationwide, nonprofit organization that works to prevent students from dropping out of school.

Tickets are available at the Municipal Auditorium box office or other local ticket outlets.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: An eyewitness confirmed Laurel's story of self-defense. Dixie realized Ted planned to kill Tad during their Canadian hunting trip. After failing to stop them at the airport, she chartered an airplane to Canada with Adam's help. Hayley made a quick exit after overhearing Alec tell Gloria he was falling in love with her. As they started to make love, Adam approached and Gloria hid. Wait to see: Dixie fears she may be too late.

ANOTHER WORLD: Grant told Vicky he would get medical proof of her baby's paternity. Cass found Morgan about to destroy crucial evidence. Carl set off to find Rachel after blasting the Cory offspring for their ingratitude to her. Meanwhile in New York, Rachel called Amanda to say she was fine, but needed time alone. After Grant apologized to Vicky and Ryan, Ryan confessed he had lied about being the father of her unborn child. Wait to see: Rachel is confronted with a new dilemma.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Holden told Janice he could remember last Thanksgiving, but no others. Hutch was stunned when Linc told him Mary Campbell is his mother. Connor feared Linc might sue her if she fired him. Bob and Kim asked Dawn to move into the garage apartment. Wait to see: The Sierra "mystery" is about to be resolved.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: In Catalina, Lauren introduced Scott to Sheila, expecting to see Scott react with surprise to find his former wife was still alive. To Lauren's dismay, Scott pretended this was the first time he'd met Mrs. Forrester. Sheila got a call from Scott who said he couldn't find Lauren, and needed help. Wait to see: James has another shocker for Taylor.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: To keep Roman from learning he wasn't Isabelle's father, Sami unplugged the computer to try to erase the new blood test results. Bo recognized the fabric found near Curtis' body as part of Billie's "Juliet" dress. Later, Bo noticed the needle mark on Billie's might be on drugs again. John spirited Kristen away to the Horton cabin hoping she would respond to the memories they shared.Wait to see: Jennifer makes another discovery.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Bill was shot trying to protect Lucky and Sly from thugs in the catacombs. Luke and Laura arrived just moments before he died. At Bill's funeral, an angry Jenny vented her fury at the Quartermaines. Luke and Laura shared an intimate wedding anniversary in the abandoned house. Wait to see: Danger continues to stalk Luke and Laura.

GUIDING LIGHT: Frank and Buzz fought George as they tried to find Eleni. When Frank finally found her in the Spa steam room, he was stunned to see Alan-Michael there. Lucy feared she may have been spotted by George. Tangie and Josh had a night of fun and romance. Buzz fought with George as the stuffed lamb went from hand to hand. Although Jenna threw him out, Roger vowed to save his marriage. Wait to see: Both Roger and Alex set another ploy into action.

LOVING: Alex told Ava he really loved her, but she was afraid she would wind up being hurt again. Gwyn consulted a psychic about finding Curtis. Tess told Jeremy about her relationship with her husband. Trucker was suspicious of Joe's (Dante) rapidly blossoming friendship with Dinah Lee. Later, Dante's memories centered on his wife, Tess. Wait to see: Dante shifts his terror campaign into higher gear.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Alex defied Asa's attempts to thwart her successful singing debut at Olanov's. While Viki, Sloan, and Andrew tried to keep Cassie from learning of Dorian's role in the smear campaign, Dorian mistakenly told her daughter everything. Cassie collapsed and was rushed to the hospital where she lost her baby. Wait to see: Marty worries about Rebecca's ongoing friendship with Todd.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Taking Chris' advice, Nina told Ryan about Flo's past. Later, Nina spotted a man in the diner with a scar on his neck, but was unable to reach him before he left. Brad told Victor neither John nor Ashley would return to Jabot if Jack was barred. Kay tried to assess the real status of Victor and Hope's relationship. Wait to see: Nina becomes obsessed with finding her father.

MACH checks for lead paint

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Recently completed surveys for lead in paint in all housing areas, child-care centers and schools on post have confirmed the existence of lead in a limited number of quarters on Fort Benning.

The Preventive Medicine Service at Martin Army Community Hospital and the Directorate of Public Works have instituted a lead management program, which checked a sampling of homes in each housing area, all post schools and child-care centers.

Paint samples were obtained and sent to an accredited laboratory to determine if lead was present.

Five areas on post were identified as having high levels of lead in paint. The streets where these quarters are located include: Austin Loop, Miller Loop, Sigerfoos, Bjonstad, 1st Division Road, Lumpkin Road, Yeager, Stewart, Gaines, Harris Circle and Ingersoll Loop.

These areas all contain older quarters with peeling paint or wood surfaces in poor condition.

For the most part, the lead is limited to the outer wood surfaces and porches, said Maj. Daniel Davidson, chief of the hospital's Preventive Medicine Service.

Years of rain and wear have also carried lead into the soil around these homes.

The existence of lead poses a risk mainly to children age 6 and under, Davidson said, because they have a greater potential of lead exposure than older children and adults.

High levels of lead can cause learning disabilities and other health problems in young children, he said.

"But," said Col. Michael J. Kussman, commander of the U.S. Medical Deparment Activity, "this is not a crisis. They have to be exposed to a high level of lead for a long time for problems to develop."

Lead-based paint is only a health risk if the paint is found chipping or peeling, which causes old lead paint to become exposed, Davidson said.

Children may eat paint chips or

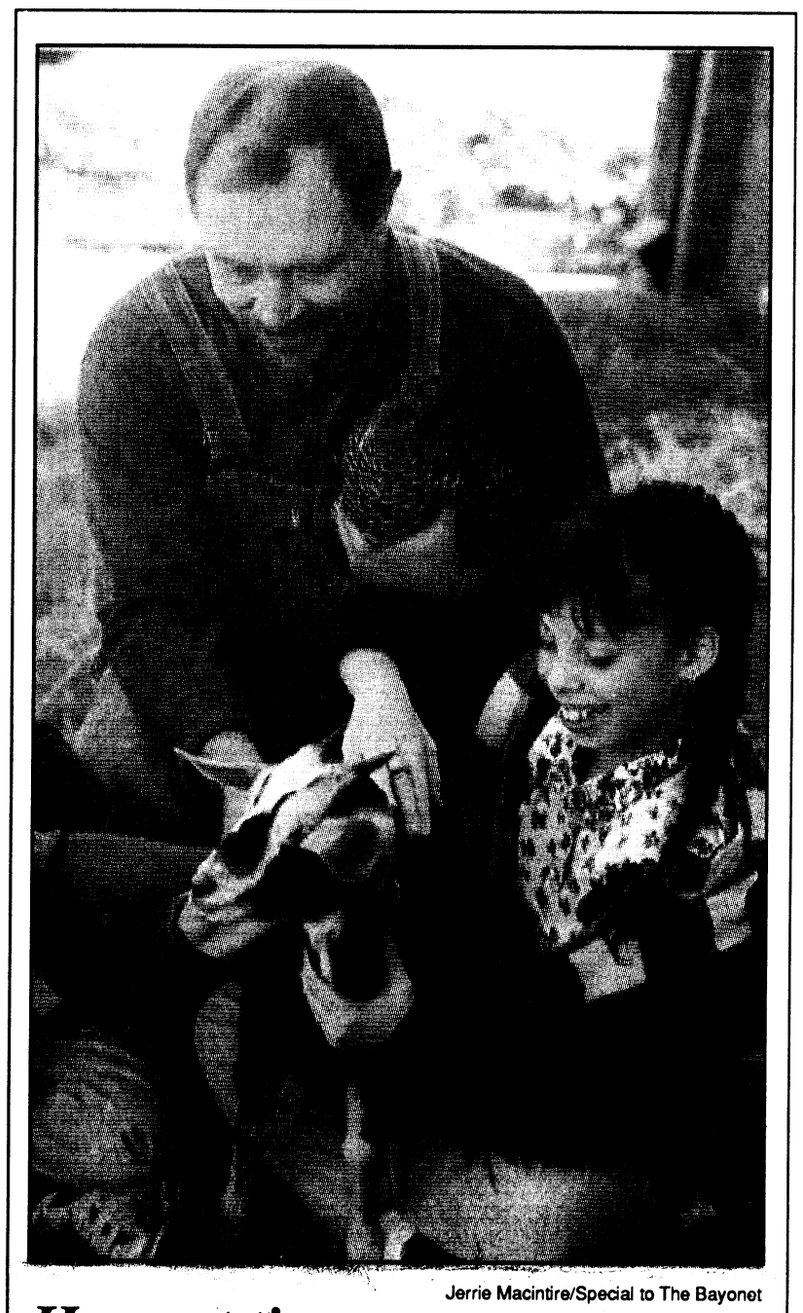
Questions about lead



Should I be concerned about my home?
High levels of lead in paint have been identified in quarters on: Austin Loop, Miller Loop, Sigerfoos, Bjonstad, 1st Division Road, Lumpkin Road, Yeager, Stewart, Gaines, Harris Circle and Ingersoll Loop.

What are the dangers of lead?
High levels of lead in children age 6 and under may cause learning disabilities and other health problems. Younger children have a greater potential risk of lead exposure because they crawl, play on the floor and place their fingers in their mouths.

Is there any danger?
There is no immediate danger unless paint that contains lead is chipping or peeling and children are exposed to the chips or dust.

What if I suspect my child has been exposed to lead?
Blood screening tests will be available Monday from 2 to 4 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m. in Classroom 1, Infantry Hall, Building 4. Call 545-1144 to schedule a time.

Who do I contact if I have further questions or problems?
For questions about lead paint in quarters, call the Directorate of Public Works at 545-4766. For questions about lead and children's health, contact your family practice physician.

Operation Holiday

Season to kick off

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

OPERATION HOLIDAY

Each year, Operation Holiday comes to the rescue of soldiers who have to spend the Christmas season alone on post.

Since 1980, Operation Holiday has offered soldiers a variety of free activities, including musical entertainment, tours of local attractions and tickets to college and professional sporting events.

Jim Gallagher, executive vice president, Association of the United States Army, Chattahoochee Valley-Fort Benning Chapter, said this year is no exception.

According to Gallagher, transportation to and from various events will be provided as well as the cost of admission. However, any additional items, such as refreshments at sporting events, must be paid for by the soldier, he said.

The list of events has not been finalized. Unit representatives will be given the final schedule when it is finished and soldiers will be able to register through their units at that time. Space for many events is limited, so soldiers should sign up early, Gallagher said.

Gallagher also reminded soldiers that Operation Holiday is intended primarily for those who cannot go home for the holidays, who are separated from their families or who have no transportation.

This year, family members of soldiers deployed to Somalia also will be included in Operation Holiday. Gallagher said a special Christmas party, which will be at the Main Post Bowling Center, is being planned for the families.

"There have been some misconceptions in the past," he said. "We just don't have unlimited tickets to pass out. Quotas are set for each of the units on post."

Operation Holiday will kick off Dec. 21 with a ceremony at the Government Center in Columbus. Fort Benning commanders and Columbus and Phenix City officials are scheduled to attend.

Operation Holiday is sponsored by AUSA and donations are made by individuals and organizations.

"Operation Holiday is not supported out of AUSA's general budget," Gallagher said. "It is supported entirely from donations and fund-raisers. The Columbus and Phenix City communities have always been extremely supportive and a great help.

"Operation Holiday continues to promote meaningful activities for soldiers who can't be with their families during the holiday period," he said.

Post gets automated operators

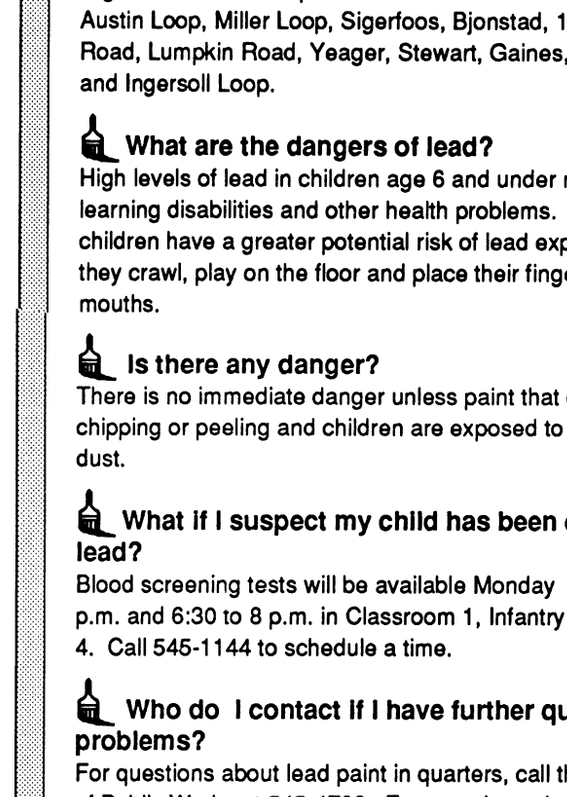
By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

If you dial "0" for the Fort Benning operator after Dec. 10, you'll hear something new.

According to Paul Yates, director of Information Management, an automated call-forwarding system known as Dial Services Attendant will go into effect on that date.

"When people call the operator," Yates said, "they'll hear a recorded greeting and a number of options. The system will automatically dial the number of the office the person chooses."

Yates said the activities and numbers chosen for the automatic call forwarding are those most often requested from operators.



Yates said that beginning some time in January, operators won't be on duty after regular business hours.

"This will reduce costs," he said, "but it shouldn't degrade service. If operator assistance is required after hours, calls will be transferred to a regional operator facility at Fort Gordon, Ga."

Yates said DSA is already in use at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., among others.

Government grants locality pay

By Evelyn D. Harris
American Forces Information Service

Houston-area federal employees come out the big winners in the locality pay formula announced by the Federal Salary Council. Houston workers will receive a 6.52 percent raise in January.

President Bill Clinton approved the council's recommendations Oct. 28.

Almost 630,000 Department of Defense general schedule employees will receive locality pay raises. Members of the Senior Executive Service will not receive locality pay unless Clinton signs an executive order including them.

Locality pay is part of the Federal Employees Pay Comparability Act of 1990. The act seeks to close the pay gap between federal employees and their counterparts in the private sector.

Approximately 88,000 special-rate recipients will not receive locality pay. They already receive higher salaries for their grade levels because they are in hard-to-fill jobs. These special-rate recipients include clerical workers, engineers, scientists and medical personnel.

A presidentially appointed salary council figures locality pay. The council consists of government, private and union labor experts. Anthony F. Ingrassia, acting chairman, said the council's complex locality pay formula uses Bureau of Labor Statistics surveys. The formula matches 445 federal occupations, each split into 15 pay grades, with comparable private sector jobs.

The council presents its findings to the president's pay agent. The pay agent is actually three people: the directors of the Office of Personnel Management and the Office of Management and Budget and the Secretary of Labor. The

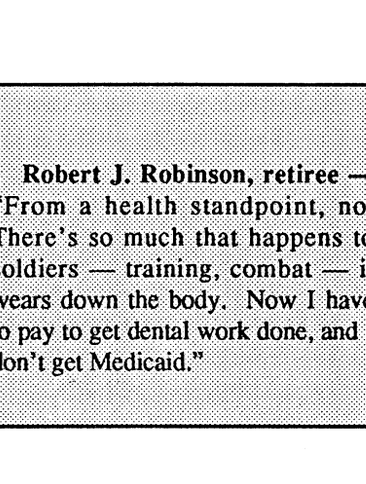
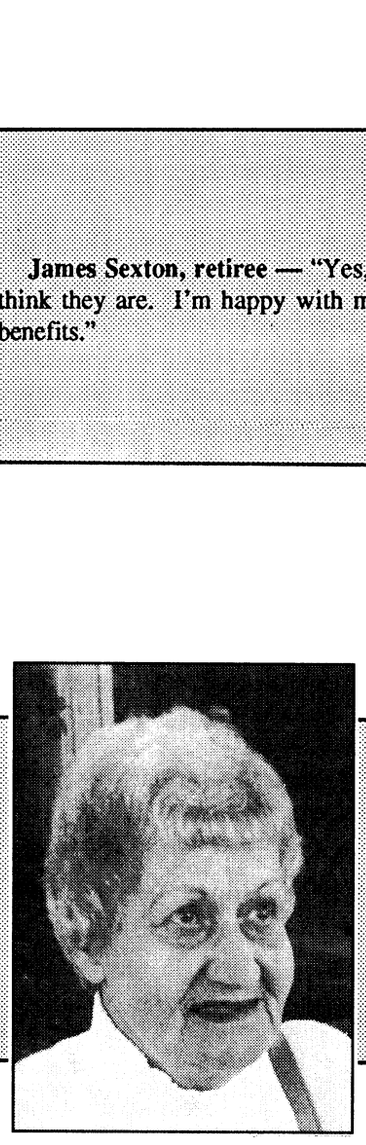
Are retirees receiving the benefits they deserve?



Spc. Donald L. Garren, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment — "No, I don't think veterans are getting the disability and benefits they deserve — especially Vietnam veterans."



William C. Strong, retiree — "No. I'm a retired dentist and I can't even get dental care. I used to get free medical care, but I don't anymore."

Robert J. Robinson, retiree — "From a health standpoint, no. There's so much that happens to soldiers — training, combat — it wears down the body. Now I have to pay to get dental work done, and I don't get Medicaid."

James Sexton, retiree — "Yes, I think they are. I'm happy with my benefits."

Hannelore Dickens, family member — "Yes, I think they are getting the benefits they deserve. I hope we get to keep them."

Retirees get short end of stick

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

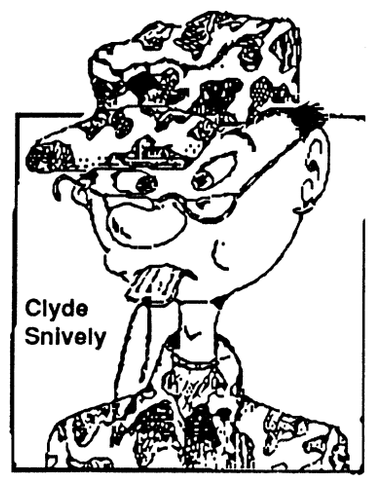
COMMENTARY

As if retirees didn't have it tough enough. First, after spending 20-plus years wearing whatever uniform their commanders dictate, upon retirement, they suddenly learn mornings are stress time as they face the big decision: what to wear.

It's not enough to spit shine the quartermaster shoes, slip on the polyester, need-no-ironing pants, and find a clean tie whose only fashion statement is, "I needed something to cover a gravy stain one day," and head to work.

No, as I'm sure the good people at the Army Career and Alumni Program are telling you, you need to dress for success. Even shoes must be selected with care. Wing tips? Loafers? With or without tassels? Pants, with or without cuffs. And just how loud should your new necktie be?

So there's our retirees with these heavy thoughts weighing them down. That's until they pick up a newspaper and read that some bureaucrat wants to do away with cost of living increases until they reach age 62.



On top of that they read that even though they may have spent countless time in foxholes dodging incoming rounds, they are no longer considered equal to the soldier still on active duty.

Nope, now there's some wizard looking to cut costs figures at commissaries.

And how will the cost-cutter do that? Why he'll triple the surcharge retirees pay.

Right now, everyone pays 5 percent. But over a three-year period, the rate the retiree pays will rise to more than 16 percent (commissaries save patrons about 17 percent).

Sure our retirees will feel pain in the pocketbook, but that's not all. They'll feel it in their heart of hearts, having always considered themselves the equals of those on active duty.

For, after all, they know should a national emergency arise, they too can be called back to active duty.

The faceless people behind this proposal claim the government is not in the business of subsidizing retirees by providing them commissaries, that if retirees want to shop in commissaries, they need to contribute more to the operational costs of the commissaries.

Somehow, I'd always thought just shopping in commissaries contributed to their support.

I think if this surcharge increase becomes reality, retirees will take their shopping elsewhere.

That, to me, will raise the cost of commissary shopping to us soldiers because if I understand how things work, commissaries rely on volume purchases to get good prices.

With less demand, prices increase. As prices increase, customers leave and it becomes quite the vicious circle; and, before you know it, no more commissary.

Of course, that might be the intent of this proposal ... to do away with stateside commissaries.

I know commissaries used to be a ticklish subject in the past because grocery store owners wanted soldier business. And I'm sure they still do.

But the grocers can't be hurting that much in Columbus.

Evidence of that is two brand new, large markets coming on line practically at the post's front gate.

Go figure.

Post prepares for holidays

The Fort Benning Christmas and New Year's holiday schedule will begin Dec. 20 and end Jan. 2.

Commanders, directors and chiefs of activities will ensure effective operations are maintained throughout the holiday period.

Commanders are authorized to staff offices with duty personnel beginning at noon on weekdays. A liberal leave policy is encouraged for civilians and military.

Commanders, directors and activity chiefs will ensure proper supervision with meaningful work are offered for those who do not wish to take leave.

Supervisors are encouraged to contact the Directorate of Civilian Personnel's Management and Employee Relations Division at 545-5562 for assistance and additional information.

The post chaplain will host the annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony at the Field of Four Chaplains Thursday at 5 p.m.

This is an excellent program and will include a band concert and refreshments following the ceremony. All personnel and families are invited.

In keeping with energy conservation efforts, nonelectric decorations will be used in office and operational facilities throughout the post.

Exterior and interior lighting is authorized in housing areas and lighting use should be kept to modest and prudent levels.

For safety and fire protection, family housing residents should ensure that appropriate safety practices are observed.

Traditional Christmas parties for the office may be conducted Dec. 17.

Post chief of staff

Proclamation

Whereas, drivers and pedestrians impaired by alcohol and other drugs account for nearly 17,700 highway deaths annually; and

Whereas, motor vehicle crashes are the number one cause of death for children, adolescents and young adults in the United States; and

Whereas, alcohol is involved in nearly half of all traffic fatalities; and

Whereas, injury and property damage resulting from impaired driving cause physical, emotional and economic hardship for hundreds of thousands of adults and young people; and

Whereas, a decade of intense public education effort has proved that alcohol-related highway crashes are not accidents and can be prevented; and

Whereas, comprehensive, community-based strategies to further reduce and prevent impaired driving tragedies are known; and

Whereas, if we take a stand now, we can prevent impaired driving;

Now, therefore, I, Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, do hereby proclaim December as National Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month at Fort Benning.

As the commanding general, I also call upon all citizens, government agencies, public and private institutions, businesses, hospitals and schools in our total military community to promote awareness of causes of driver impairment, existing and proposed laws intended to further reduce and prevent impaired driving, and opportunities to establish safer and healthier norms regarding the use of alcohol and other drugs for all citizens, particularly the young.

LETTERS

Observances help us get to know each other

Throughout the U.S. Army, special observances such as Native American Heritage Month, Black History Month, Hispanic Heritage Month, Women's Equality Day and several others officially recognized by the Department of Defense have become "a drag" in some organizations.

Some of these observances are often poorly planned and executed.

However, these observances are important, and they should not be discontinued.

Special observances are a time to share the beauties and strengths of our multiethnic, multiracial, multicultural heritage.

As a member of the Equal Opportunity Office and the commanding general's staff, I challenge all commanders and unit equal opportunity representatives to make the coming year's observances the best at Fort Benning.

The same support given to Martin Luther King's Birthday, Black History Month and Women's History Month must be given to other observances such as Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month, Native American Heritage Month and Women's Equality Day.

MESSAGE

The holiday season of Hanukkah and Christmas should be a joyous time of worship services, festivities and celebrations.

For Jews and Christians, it is a time to reaffirm our faith in God and our dedication for peace.

Hanukkah, or the Feast of Lights, commemorates a hard-fought Jewish victory over oppression and tyranny.

We remember those who have gone before us and give thanks for the sacrifices they made and the inspiration their lives give. It is a time of celebration.

The Christmas season celebrates the birth of the Christ child in Bethlehem. The first Christmas message of "peace on Earth, good will toward men" remains a goal with which people throughout the world can identify, but none more closely than those of us who serve in the armed forces.

May the spirit of Christmas inspire us to work harder than ever toward that noble goal.

I extend to each of you best wishes for a happy and safe holiday season and ask God's richest blessings for you and your loved ones during the new year.

Secretary of Army takes oath

Army News Service

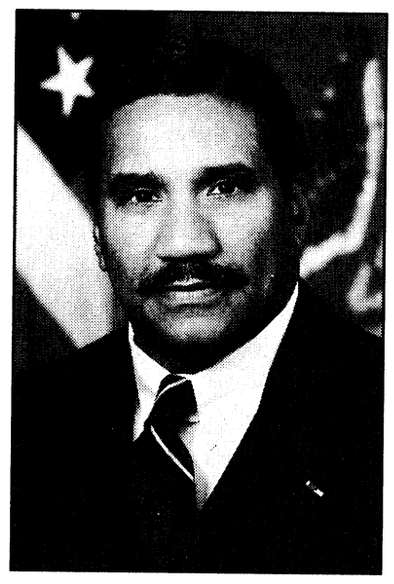
WASHINGTON — A former Army legal officer returned to the Army Nov. 22 as its new secretary.

Togo D. West Jr. took the oath of office during a private ceremony at the Pentagon.

"I am honored to serve the men and women of our Army," he said at the ceremony. "I promise to ensure that the Army of tomorrow is a trained and ready force able to continue its outstanding tradition of service to this nation."

As secretary, West oversees Department of the Army policies and programs consistent with national security objectives and policies set by the president and the secretary of Defense.

Formerly senior vice-president of the Northrop Corporation, a position he served in since 1990, West had practiced law since 1968.



After his commission in the Army's Judge Advocate General Corps, he served on active duty with the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army (Manpower and Reserve Affairs) from 1969 to 1973. He then worked in private law practice until joining the Department of Justice as associate deputy attorney general in 1975.

In 1977, he became the Department of the Navy's general counsel, a position he served in until 1979. He also served as the special assistant to the secretary and deputy secretary of Defense from 1979 to 1980, as the Defense Department's general counsel from 1980 to 1981, and in private practice as a partner with Patterson, Belknap, Webb and Tyler from 1981 to 1990.

The new secretary received a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from Howard University in 1965; also he earned a juris doctorate with honors from the same university in 1968.

For his military service, West received the Legion of Merit and the Meritorious Service Medal. In honor of his other public service, he was awarded the Defense Medal for Distinguished Service.

A native of Winston-Salem, N.C., West is married to Gail Berry West, also an attorney, who served as deputy assistant secretary of the Air Force in 1980 to 1981. Their daughter Tiffany attends the Yale University School of Law; their daughter Hilary attends Connecticut College.

pay agent must forward the proposal, with recommendations, to the president by Nov. 30.

Locality raises cover 27 metropolitan areas and a statistical category called RUS for "Rest of the United States." The rest of the United States would receive a 3.09 percent pay raise in January.

The raises apply only to cities in the 48 contiguous states. Employees in New York City, Los Angeles and San Francisco areas won't get the recommended locality pay because they already receive an 8 percent differential. The formula yielded a lower pay raise for Memphis and San Antonio, but the council recommended they get the same as the RUS locality in the interest of fairness. The average raise is 3.96 percent.

Locality raises differ from the national 2.2 percent cost-of-living increases that Clinton canceled for 1994. The national raise would have gone to all workers. It is scheduled to resume in 1995 and include all general schedule workers. If the government sticks with its current formula, the 1995 raise would be 2.6 percent.

Ground-breaking ceremony

Enlisted soldiers to get new club

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

The ground-breaking ceremony for a new Fort Benning enlisted club was Tuesday.

The club, to be located at the intersection of Marchant Street and Indianhead and Bradshaw roads, is slated to open in October.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general, was joined at the shovel by Spc. Pamela D. Jackson, president of the Enlisted Club Council, and Spc. James G. Shoemaker, president of Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers.

"The happiest I ever am in this job is when I can do something for soldiers and their families," White said. "We've been working on quality-of-life issues since I got here; and among other things, we've broken ground on a new guest house, cut the ribbon on the golf course, completed a new child-care center and made improvements at Destin.

"An important thing to remember," he said, "is that the money for these projects is not brought about by some magic fund given to us by the Department of the Army or Congress. It's all generated right here on Fort Benning, through morale, welfare and recreation programs."

Construction of the new club is expected to cost about $1.5 million. Plans for the 13,000-square-foot club include two large multi-activity rooms, game and quiet rooms and a dining area featuring a drive-through window.

The club was designed and will be built by Ajax Construction of Tallahassee, Fla.

When the new club opens, the Hidden Door Club will close.

"No one will be happier to see the Hidden Door close than I will," White said. "It's not the kind of facility our soldiers deserve."

A contest to name the new club is planned through Feb. 28, with the winner receiving a $100 Savings Bond. Entry forms are available at all Fort Benning clubs; entry is restricted to authorized club patrons.

LEAD: Post forms management program

put their hands in dust from the peeling paint. Ingestion of lead-based paint remains the most common high-dose source of lead exposure for children, according to the Center for Disease Control.

DPW has plans to scrape and repaint the quarters identified and remove and replace 3 inches of soil 3 feet around them, according to Col. William D. Brown, director of Public Works.

Unfortunately, he said, the funds necessary to completely remove lead paint from the 493 affected units — more than $4.5 million — are not readily available.

But since Fort Benning is among the first to address the problem of lead, Brown said, he is hopeful the post will be among the first to receive resources as they become available.

In the meantime, Brown said, DPW has put a policy into effect that will keep families with children age 6 and under from being assigned to the areas where lead has been detected, and they will relocate any family living where lead is a danger to young children.

Preventive Medicine Services and Martin Army Community Hospital are offering blood screening tests to any family that has concerns about their children being exposed to lead.

The goal of lead management is to ensure living conditions at Fort Benning are as safe as possible, especially for children.

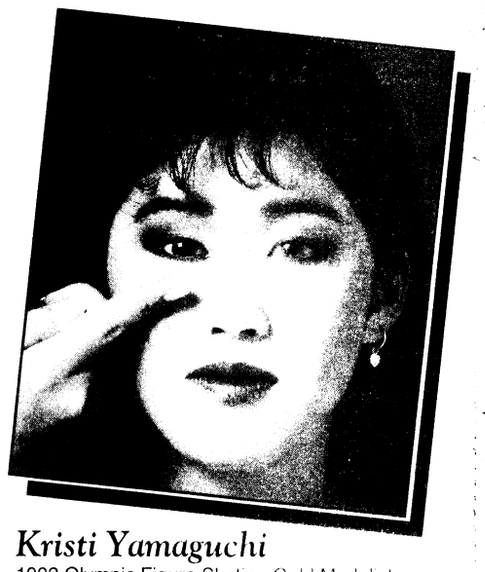
If you have any questions about lead paint, contact the Directorate of Public Works at 545-4766.

For questions about lead and children's health, contact your family practice physician or pediatrician.

Hints for reducing lead risk

- Wash your child's hands and face before eating, especially if they play in dirt where lead may be present.
- Wet mop floors and wipe window ledges weekly using a detergent with a high phosphate content like dishwasher detergent.
- Wash your child's toys and pacifiers frequently.
- Vacuum or wet mop any time you see dust build up.
- If you have a hobby or occupation which uses lead, such as working at a firing range or packing shotgun shells, you may come into contact with lead dust.

You should change your clothes and wash your hands before coming in contact with young children.



- Do not try to remove paint yourself because it generates lead dust. Call DPW at 545-4766.

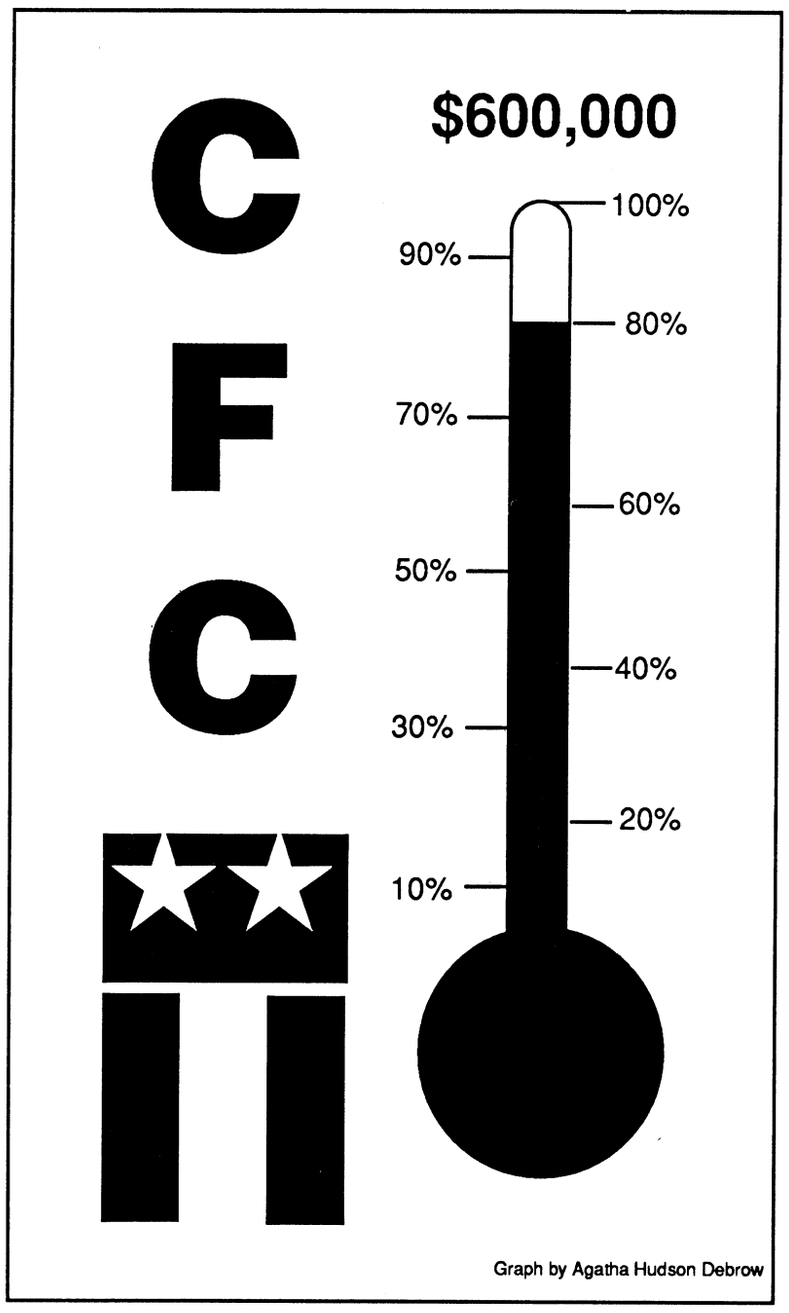
Post ends Combined Federal Campaign

By Stephanie Krawczyk
Special to The Bayonet ©



The 1993 Combined Federal Campaign came to a close this week after eight weeks of fund raising for more than 900 charitable organizations. The campaign kicked off Sept. 15.

The final tally of donations reached $483,620, or 81 percent, of the $600,000 goal.

Awards were given to individuals who donated high dollar amounts to the campaign. Eagle trophies for a donation of $500 or more for the year were passed out to 92 contributors.

Cathy White, CFC coordinator, pointed out that last-minute donations can still be turned in.

"There's a chance we still might get some late contributions that would help us reach the $500,000 mark," White said. Also, she extended thanks to all those who made donations as well as key unit personnel and campaign workers.

Bluebirds call Benning home

By Greg Lee
Natural Resources Management Branch

When the settlers first arrived on these shores, they were greeted by the soft, sweet warble of the eastern bluebird. This common bird soon became a symbol of love, hope and happiness, and they were used as a subject by poets and writers. Henry David Thoreau, a noted naturalist and author, once described the bluebird as "carrying the sky on its back."

Although these birds were once common throughout the eastern United States their populations may have declined as much as 90 percent since 1920 for a variety of reasons.

The removal of nesting habitat (dead trees, wooden fences and posts), declining winter food supplies, the use of insecticides and cavity competition from introduced species such as the starling and house sparrow have all contributed to the loss of bluebirds.

These factors had a dramatic influence on bluebird reproduction; in some areas, bluebirds failed to nest and disappeared altogether.

Experts quickly determined that the bluebirds would need help from man to survive. In the 1930s, Dr. T.E. Musselman of Quincy, Ill. created a concept called "bluebird trails." Musselman erected nesting boxes for bluebirds and arranged them so that they could be easily monitored by someone going from box to box. Bluebird trails increased the number of suitable nesting sites and helped bluebirds compete with starlings and house sparrows.

Although these birds were once common throughout the eastern U.S., their populations may have declined as much as 90 percent since 1920

The concept of erecting nesting boxes and creating bluebird trails has succeeded far beyond anyone's predictions. Bluebirds have a long breeding season (February through October) and can raise two to three broods per season. Once the bluebirds were given a nesting area and protection from competitors, they were able to use this high reproductive potential to recolonize areas from which they had been absent for many years. Even though bluebird populations have begun to recover in some areas, the overall population is still declining. Bluebirds still need our help.

With many threatened and endangered species, the average citizen cannot do much to physically help in the recovery process. Bluebird trails are one of the few opportunities for birders and other wildlife enthusiasts to participate in the recovery of a declining wildlife species.

Bluebird trails have been monitored by landowners, Audubon clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and interested citizens.

Fort Benning has a bluebird trail consisting of 110 boxes scattered throughout the installation. At present, the Natural Resources Management Branch checks them once per year. Officials would like to expand the bluebird program, and they invite volunteers to assist with checking and monitoring boxes.

If you are interested in volunteering or would like more information about bluebirds on Fort Benning, contact the Natural Resources Management Office.

Post's counseling service helps civilian workers deal

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning's Civilian Counseling Service helps employees deal with a variety of problems.

The CCS offers assessment, crisis intervention, short-term counseling, community referral information and supervisory consultation, said Yvonne Wilbanks, Civilian Program coordinator.

These services are free of charge and are available to all civilian employees (Department of the Army and Non-Appropriated Fund) and their families.

"We have no restrictions on what kinds of problems we deal with," Wilbanks said. "Stress, family problems, problems with children, depression, anger, substance abuse...anything that affects the well-being of employees and their performance at work."

Wilbanks said that the CCS will help employees recognize what problems they are having and determine a course of action. If it is necessary to refer the employee to outside counseling or services, then the CCS will work with the employee to try to find services that the employee can afford.

Civilian counseling services are conducted on a completely confidential basis.

"No one will ever know that you came unless you tell them," said Wilbanks, "and participation in the program will not adversely affect your employment or promotion status."

Wilbanks encouraged employees to seek help while their problems are still small.

"If the problem is tackled while it is still small, it will be easier to overcome; but, no matter what the problem, large or small, we are here to help," she said.

She also encouraged supervisors to refer employees experiencing problems to the program as a form of nondisciplinary assistance.

Anyone desiring more information on the program or to schedule an appointment with a counselor can call 545-2475, 545-2742 or 545-4821.

"I look at the program as an employee benefit. Similar services downtown cost money and our services are free," Wilbanks said.

ACAP

Soldier benefits from job retraining

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Will the Army really pay you to go to school? Just ask Staff Sgt. Michael J. Houlihan — he'll tell you "yes."

Houlihan has spent the last few weeks of his 19-year Army career attending the Columbus College Regional Police Academy under the Job Retraining Program co-hosted by the Georgia Department of Labor and the Army Career and Alumni Program.

Houlihan, of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, had decided to take early retirement and was in the Job Assistance Office working on his resume, he said, when he heard about a job retraining seminar and decided to go to see what it was all about.

The Army Career and Alumni Program, Georgia Department of Labor and U.S. Department of Labor, with funding provided under the Job Partnership Training Act, have networked to provide additional-skills training for soldiers transitioning out of the service.

To be eligible, soldiers must normally be leaving the Army (or have left the Army) as a result of downsizing, said Ted Craig, ACAP Transition Services manager.

"Because of downsizing, a large number of soldiers with combat arms skills are getting out of the Army and finding their skills aren't transferable to civilian jobs," said John Lopez of the Georgia Department of Labor.

This was a worry for Houlihan. "As a scout, I am not trained for a civilian job," Houlihan said. "I knew I wanted to be a police officer. When they offered (to pay for) training, I jumped on it," he said.

But, Houlihan admits, it was not quite that easy. Other soldiers in the program are training at Columbus Technical Institute, Alliance Tractor and Trailer Driving School and others', but, because he is the first soldier to go through the Police Academy under the retraining program, he had to do a lot of work.

"There were a bunch of requirements to meet ... I spent a week running around like a chicken with my head cut off trying to get everything done," Houlihan said.

"It's a learning process," Craig said. "He was our guinea pig. When an individual soldier finds out how to get in, the next group can go in more prepared."

The whole thing takes work, Lopez said. "It takes the soldier's desire, the OK of his or her command, coordination with an ACAP counselor and finally approval by the Georgia Department of Labor to get into the program, he said.

"We cannot get them into school," he said. "They have to get themselves tested and accepted, then study and attend class."

Houlihan's unit helped by giving him the time he needed to get into and attend the academy.

"As a first sergeant, I have 325 soldiers," said Houlihan's first sergeant Michael Reidy. "Houlihan had 19 years in, and I truly believe in helping soldiers get ready for the 'outside.'"

Reidy said he was proud that his unit was the first to send a soldier through the academy, but he pointed out that all first sergeants give retiring soldiers time to go through the ACAP transition program.

Houlihan's advice to other soldiers leaving the Army is to get involved in the Job Retraining Program.

"There are a lot more soldiers who could follow Houlihan's example," Craig said, "by taking advantage of the many other training options."

"There's hesitancy," Lopez said. "Soldiers ask themselves is this for real or is it another walk-through?'"

According to Houlihan, though, It works. "I could actually go out now and get a job as a police officer — I've even had a few offers," he said.

Houlihan's wife, Yon Im, and children Colleen, 9, and John, 7, are waiting for him in Tacoma,Wash., where he plans to join them after he retires Jan. 19.

He'll have to take two to four weeks of Washington state law once he gets there, he said, "then I'll be ready to go."

DCP: commitment to excellence

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Being recognized as the best civilian personnel office in the world by the deputy chief of staff for personnel should be enough for members of Fort Benning's Directorate of Civilian Personnel to convince the Army Communities of Excellence Team of their commitment to outstanding service, said Judith Pennington, chief of the Personnel Management and Systems Support Division.

Pennington said she looks forward to the team's visit as an excellent opportunity to show the team the directorate's accomp-lishments.

"We can't wait to show them what an enthusiastic, motivated staff is capable of," she said. "We are truly dedicated to customer service. We always put the customer first, and that is why we are so successful."

"We are constantly searching for ways to provide quality assistance in the face of diminishing resources and personnel and have been very successful. We are actually doing more than we used to with less than we used to have," she said.

The directorate's managers are particularly proud of the expanded and centralized Personnel Service Center, said Pennington, which provides walk-in processing, career counseling, upward mobility, merit promotion and employment information to more than 45,000 employees, applicants, family members, veterans and single soldiers annually. The center also features a full-time veterans counselor from the Georgia Department of Labor who has access to the state's labor database.

"With the center, our employees can go to one location for help with just about all of their questions and concerns, said James Fleming, chief of the center. "I would say 90 percent of those who use the center get what they need without being shuffled from place to place."

The enthusiastic attitude of the center's staff is typical of all of DCP's services, said Pennington.

"When a customer walks in, the staff members know their number-one priority is attending to that customer's needs," she said. "The members of the staff are noted for their tact, patience, sympathy and willingness to help."

Other accomplishments include:

• Receiving the Training and Doctrine Command COE award for best civilian personnel services for the third consecutive year in 1993.

• Recognition by the Office of Personnel Management and the U.S. Army Civilian Personnel Evaluation Agency as "administering an excellent program, providing proactive, quality services within a framework of regulatory compliance and innovative practices."

• Winning the Columbus Mayor's Committee Persons with Disabilities Employer of the Year Award for the 14th consecutive year in 1993.

• Establishing, for the second year in a row, a centrally located Outplacement Center to help employees affected by reductions in force. The center offered stress, budget and career placement counseling.

• Providing more than 15,200 training instances — the largest number of installation personnel ever trained in a single year. More than 96 percent of the training occurred on the post through the use of volunteer instructors and resulted in a savings of $7.9 million.

• Establishing a civilian training computer lab with state-of-the art software and hardware to support the training required for the installation to move to a more advanced information management system.

"These are just a few of the many, many areas where we continue to excel every day," said Pennington.

Pennington credited DCP's outstanding performance to the directorate's dedicated leadership, including Director Theresa Gunter, who was recently awarded the Exceptional Civilian Service Award from the secretary of the Army.

"How can we not do well when our leader does so well," said Pennington. "She inspires us with her leadership and has really made us excited. She is never static but constantly seeks improvement."

This is the second year in a row that Fort Benning has been named a first-place winner in the extra large installation category of the TRADOC Communities of Excellence competition.

DoD discusses adoption policies

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

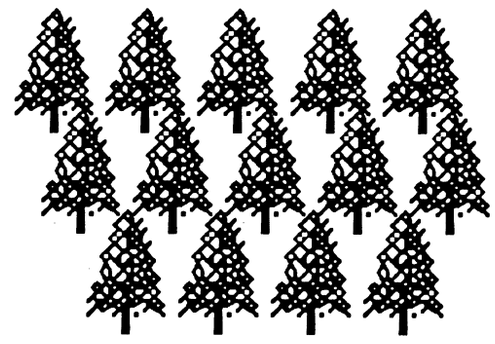
Some misunderstandings and confusion surround who can adopt and types of adoptions allowed under the Defense Department's adoption reimbursement policy, said personnel support, families and education officials.

Directed by public law, this policy states DoD may reimburse a family up to $2,000 per child adopted. One individual may collect no more than $5,000 a year under this program. A single person adopting a child qualifies as a family.

This program applies only to persons on active duty for more than 180 days and only for adoptions of children under age 18.

To qualify for reimbursement, the adoption must have become final after Dec. 5, 1991. A state or local governmental agency authorized by law to place children for adoption must arrange the adoption. Adoptions not made through these recognized agencies will not be reimbursed.

Reimbursement covers such expenses as legal fees, court costs, public and private agency fees, temporary foster care and placement fees, including adoptive parent counseling, said DoD family officials.



This reimbursement may also cover medical expenses. This includes medical care given to the child before adoption and hospital expenses of the biological mother and the newborn infant, explained family officials.

While waiting for the adoption to become final, military members may take the child to a military treatment facility. However, the individual must apply at the facility for special "secretarial designee" status.

For information on DoD's adoption reimbursement policy, check with the installation family center, finance and accounting office or local legal assistance office. For specific questions concerning payment, contact the Defense Finance and Accounting Service office in Cleveland at (216) 522-5344.

Fire: Burning controls forests

By Robert King
Directorate of Public Works

Fire has been a major force in shaping Fort Benning's 90,000 acres of pine and hardwood forests.

Historically, lightning, Native Americans and early settlers were the sources of fires. The pine forests and plants that were established here were tolerant of fire and took advantage of the conditions it created. Today, in order to maintain these stands, periodic burning is needed.

The Natural Resources Management Branch uses fire to improve wildlife habitat and maintain pine forests.

Forest management agencies have not always viewed fire as a natural event that was compatible with goals. There were periods during the industrial revolution in which fire was largely suppressed.

Smokey Bear portrayed fire as an event that incinerated the entire forest. Many years of fire suppression resulted in a heavy accumulation of fuels. It was usually during drought or high winds that they were ignited. The resultant wildfires were often catastrophic.

The use of controlled fire as a forest management tool began in the 1940s. It was used to reduce fuels and decrease the frequency and intensity of wildfire. It proved to be cost effective. Controlled fire is the only tool that foresters and wildlife biologists have that has naturally occurred for thousands of years. Forest managers use fire to kill small hardwood trees that constantly encroach into stands that have always been dominated by pines. Most natural resource managers in the Southeast recognize the necessity of fire in maintaining these pine forest communities.

Hardwoods are more competitive for forest nutrients, sunlight and moisture than pines. But hardwoods are less tolerant of fire, while the pines have numerous adaptations to survive fire. If not for fire, hardwoods would eventually dominate stands that have been dominated by pines for centuries.

The Natural Resources Management Branch applies fire to pine stands about every three years. Only the tops of the young hardwoods are killed; the roots survive and resprout the following year. Pines require fire if the stand is to remain pine dominant over the long haul.

All prescribed burns are conducted within stands that have been dominated by pines for centuries. None are done in hardwood-dominant stands. The Natural Resources Management Branch applies fire during the growing season and dormant season. Burning to reduce excessive fuel loads is done in the dormant season when temperatures are cooler and winds are more predictable. Growing season burns are most lethal to the tops of encroaching hardwoods and promote the growth of a variety of native grasses.

The Natural Resources Management Branch fire management staff has more than 120 years of combined experience with controlled burns and wildfire suppression. Initial training is received from the most experienced burn managers in the Southeast.

Controlled burning is always done around Fort Benning's primary mission of training the Army's infantry. To assure troop safety, all burning is closely coordinated with Range Control.

December events to highlight prevention of

DRUNKEN DRIVING

By Evelyn Harris
American Forces Information Service

Members of a long list of groups will join together in December to dramatize the issue of drunk and impaired driving. There are so many groups with so many ideas that one week isn't enough to cover them as it was in the past. So December is National Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, in conjunction with the National Commission Against Drunk Driving, is coordinating the efforts. The commission is a coalition of public and private organizations. Governors of the 50 states and Puerto Rico, as well as the leadership of the Indian nations, are joining with national and grassroots safety organizations to drive the message home.

The theme for the month is "Let's Take a Stand: Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk." However, some events will concentrate on related issues, including underage drinking and seat belt use. Safety groups are also encouraging states to reduce the legal blood alcohol concentration to .08.

The national coalition is sponsoring a number of events. Last year's activities included candlelight vigils and alcohol-free beverage contests. Fort Jackson, S.C., staged a mock accident complete with emergency medical service personnel to care for the "victims" and a press conference. Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho, and Letterkenny Army Depot, Pa., distributed brochures, posted displays and gave promotional items to military and civilians on base.

This year, some states will have "ghost outs" in high schools, where a group of students come to school dressed as "Death." Every 22 minutes, "Death" will touch another student to dramatize how frequently someone dies from an alcohol-related crash. Cities as far apart as Honolulu and Annapolis, Md., will hold nonalcoholic, multicultural celebrations called "First Night Festivals" on New Year's Eve.

For more information about events, call Dawn Langford, National Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month Coalition 1910 K St., N.W., Suite 810 Washington, D.C. 20006 The coalition's telephone number is (202) 452-6004.

UCHEE CREEK offers fishing in the winter

COMMENTARY

By Kevin L. McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Many of us hang up our fishing rods and tackle as the fall hunting season kicks into high gear, only to dust them off the following spring.

This is especially true during deer season. But even with hunting season open and the drop in temperatures, fall fishing shouldn't be overlooked.

Largemouth bass, crappie, stripers and catfish continue to eagerly take both live and artificial baits, and the fishing can be just as good as during early summer.

Fishing during the winter months (if you think Georgia really has a winter) is a bit more challenging and requires more patience than fishing for largemouths during the spawn. All it takes is the right tackle, bait and location.

Fort Benning's Uchee Creek Recreation Area affords anglers vast opportunities to sink a line.

Located on the Alabama side of the Chattahoochee River just minutes from Main Post, the area affords would-be anglers excellent camping facilities, a well-stocked bait and campground store and boat rentals.

If you haven't fished the area before, then it's time you did. Bank fishers can cast a line anywhere along the boundaries of the recreation area.

Or if cruising "the Hoochee" is more to your liking, you can rent a boat or bring your own; either way, Uchee Creek is an excellent place to do it.

With pontoon boats, V-hull jon boats, and high-speed bass boats available, you can "pick the speed" at which you choose to head down the river. Then all you have to do is to decide where to fish.

Since the water table is still three feet low, anglers accustomed to fishing structure (wood piles, stumps, etc.) may have to work a little harder at locating fish.

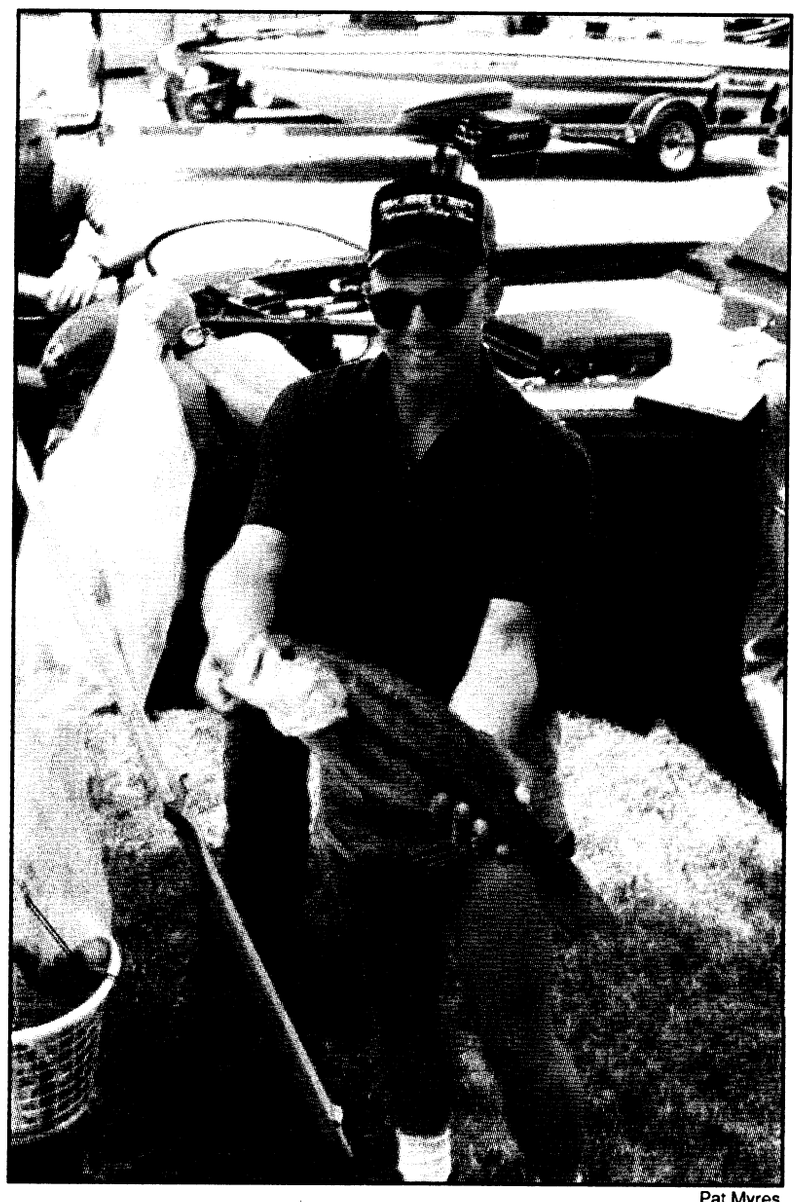
Coupled with the lower water temperatures, this may prove a problem. However, the answer is to go "deep" for largemouth bass as they will be located much deeper than during the summer months.

A good lure to use when largemouths are "hunkered down" deep is the old-fashioned spoon (it's not the eating kind, but anything's possible). A time-proven, bass-catcher, a seven-eighths to 1-ounce silver spoon, fished 20 plus feet down should do the trick.

If you prefer live bait, then bass shiners (large minnows that look as big as the fish you keep) fished at the same depth should work equally well.

Since largemouths are slower to strike during winter months (heck, they're cold down there), anglers can expect strikes to be only a slight tightening of the line.

When you notice the line tightening, it's time to set that hook. Personally, I don't use the "rip their lips off" hook set normally associated with summer fishing.



I prefer to wait a second, then set the hook as it gives them more time get a grip on the bait. I figure they're freezing their little fins off down there; thus, they're moving slower.

For wintertime largemouth fishing, I prefer to head south down the Chattahoochee from Uchee Creek. A few miles downstream, you can find River Bend Park and there the river broadens into its widest point until becoming Walter F. George Reservoir (Lake Eufaula).

Across from River Bend, you can find deep water by fishing the river channel itself. Fish the edges of the channel (you need a depth finder); and, if you can't locate it, just look for the other boats nearby and mosey on over. There's nothing wrong with being neighborly.

Crappie fishing is equally challenging during the winter months, and many Northern anglers prefer fishing for "slabs" when ice covers the water (you won't see any ice around here).

You need to locate crappie off existing structure. A good place to head is north up the Chattahoochee River. A couple of miles upstream, anglers can fish around the bridge pilings just south of Lawson Army Airfield. The bridge offers existing structure and excellent opportunities for winter crappie.

Pat Myres

If hauling in an old lunkerhead is more to your liking, you may want to go striper fishing. These monsters reach 30-plus pounds and prove to be one of the largest fresh-water game fish around next to catfish.

Some of the best striper action is during the cold-weather months, and the fishing report from Uchee Creek is that stripe fishing is "picking up."

Around Atlanta, stripe fishers troll trout as bait, but they're a little hard to find around here. You can thaw some out from the frozen food section if you like, but a large bass shiner will also work exceptionally well.

Since stripes like to school bait fish, basically maneuver them into bays and creek channels where they can't escape. You can also try your luck in these areas.

Any of the backwater areas along the Chattahoochee near River Bend should provide anglers with ample opportunities to catch these "ambushers."

Uchee Creek also reports that catfish are "easily" being caught. I prefer to fish for "old ugly" during a lazy summer day, but anytime is a good time for catfish.

Using heavy tackle with minnows, chicken livers, bread dough or cheese for bait should prove effective. If you decide to fish for cats from Uchee Creek, ensure you fish the river and not the creek since this seems to be more productive.

Winter fishing can be an exciting time to haul in the big ones; and, if you're a hunter, it will give you an opportunity to take a break from the hunting action.

If you decide to do some fishing, head on over to Uchee Creek Recreation Area. The camp store is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends and hoildays. They have a friendly staff will assist you in every way. Good luck and see you at the fishing hole.

Cookie Run

Scouts promote physical fitness

Concharty Council of Girl Scouts Inc.

The 14th annual Cookie Run will be Jan. 29 at Weracoba Park and Lakebottom in Columbus.

Sponsored by the Concharty Council of Girl Scouts Inc., the run is a family-oriented event to encourage physical fitness among youth and to provide a challenging winter activity for the community.

The highlight of the run each year has been the participation by various Fort Benning units — both large and small — dressed in unit athletic attire. The participation by Fort Benning units show the excellent condition of the military and provides encouragement to youth, who are often making their first effort at a competitive athletic activity, officials said.

Runners from all over the states of Georgia and Alabama, as well as the rest of the Southeast, are expected to participate in this event. Adults and children of all ages are involved.

Units that field 20 or more runners will receive a discount price of $6 per person if the unit preregisters by Jan. 25. All unit members who register will receive a T-shirt. Units that register by Jan. 16 will have their T-shirts delivered to the unit prior to the run.

Any unit member who would like to compete for the run trophies or age-level medals is invited to register as an individual at the discounted price of $6 as well, officials said.

SPORT SHORTS

Faith Race — The 15th annual Faith Holiday Race will be Saturday at Faith Middle School, 1375 Ingersoll St.

There are three different races that begin and end at Faith. A one-miler for boys and girls, ages 14 and under, is at 8:30 a.m.; a two- and five-miler for all ages is at 9:15 a.m. and 10 a.m., respectively.

Race day registration begins at 7:30 a.m. with a $5 fee for those 14 and under; $7 for runners 15 and older. For more information, call Susan Emerson at 545-5524.

Basketball screening — Screening for the All-Army Basketball Team will be 9 a.m to 2 p.m. Saturday and Dec. 18 at Audie Murphy Fitness Center. Any active duty military member who has an interest in trying out for team can call Robert Shelley at 545-1940 or 545-4592 for more information.

Pistol match — The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club is hosting a tactical pistol match 1 p.m. Saturday at English Range.

The entry fee is $15 and novice shooters are welcome. All entrants will receive a sweatshirt from Alpine Sporting Goods.

For more information, call 689-3371.

Golf tourney — The commanding general's pay day golf tournament will be 12:30 p.m. today. The tournament will be sponsored by 43rd Engineer Battalion, 36th Engineer Group.

Hunter safety — A hunter safety course will be conducted from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at Infantry Hall, Building 4, Classroom 4. Students must attend both nights and need to bring their Social Security number.

All persons born on or after Jan. 1, 1961, must attend an approved hunter safety course, if they want to hunt on Fort Benning or in Georgia. For more information, call 545-3267.

Good hunting: Not necessarily a kill

COMMENTARY

By Kevin L. McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Every time I return to work after a weekend of hunting, someone asks me if I bagged a deer, smirking if I reply "no." It doesn't matter if I saw 10 deer or if I had several shots but didn't take any.

The only thing that matters to them is that I came home empty-handed. Years ago, I too thought this way; that is, success coincided with a deer in the back of the truck.

Since that time, I have changed my way of thinking — specifically, the manner in which I decide if a hunt was a "success."

No longer does a filled tag or an entry on my kill card signify a good hunt. There are many other factors involved like the number of deer seen, the location of a stand site, or the difficulty in hunting the area.

Take for instance last weekend. I was hunting the swamps down off the Alabama side of the Chattahoochee River, back in what I consider the "Badlands" since the area is inaccessible by vehicle. I had chosen the hunting location after conducting a good map reconnaissance, and knew I would see a deer as the remote area offered plenty of food, water and cover.

After rigging my equipment Thursday night, I backpacked Friday morning about 1,500 meters into the swamps, carrying only the bare necessities: rifle, pistol, hunting knife, lock-on stand, screw-in steps, water, compass and first aid kit-a total of about 20 pounds.

After reaching the area, I placed my stand on the edge of the swamps and backed up to a stand of hard woods. With the water level as low as it was, I envisioned deer walking across areas of the swamps that normally would be filled with water.

From my stand, I could see about 500 yards across the swamps in three directions and about 50 yards behind my stand into the hard woods. I have to say, it was the best stand location I had ever hunted.

At 7:30 a.m., three does approached my stand from the south, and I hoped a buck would soon follow. An hour later, I still hadn't seen any bucks, but I noticed movement about 500 yards on the other side of the swamp.

After scanning the area, I identified the source of the movement: a white crane on the nearby bank searching for fish trapped in the swamp mud.

Five minutes later, a young raccoon got my attention as he walked up to the bank about 40 yards from my stand. After looking at the formidable obstacle in his path, he opted to swim across the stagnant waters, emerging on the near side covered with dirt and silt.

I then turned my focus to the hard woods behind the crane and saw the silhouette of a deer moving in its direction. About two minutes later, seven more deer followed her down to the bank.

As they emerged from the far side of the swamp, I continued to watch them for half an hour, determining that was the spot that I would hunt the next morning.

Saturday morning, I trekked across the swamps to the location I spotted them previously. I have to tell you, although the water level was low, I still sunk up to my waistline as I journeyed to the far side.

Nevertheless, as I approached downwind from the location I had previously spotted the herd, I saw them again. After seeing me, they broke through the woods and emerged about 350 yards down.

After scanning them with my rifle scope, I identified only one buck, a small spike that was trailing the herd. I made the decision not to shoot since I have already filled one buck tag and I'm looking for one of those "big boys" you see on the front of hunting magazines.

A couple of minutes later, the herd moved again, heading for the safety of a nearby pine grove, and I went ahead and set up my stand.

An hour later, the shrill of a small hawk filled the air as it dove from high above the treetops and snatched a small sparrow from the sky. I hadn't witnessed this before, and it reminded me of watching one of those nature shows on television.

Several hours later, I headed for the house, cleaned up my gear and reflected on the hunting experience. No, I didn't shoot the spike buck, and I came home empty-handed. Again, I would have to tell my co-workers I got "skunked."

But it was one of the greatest hunting trips I had ever experienced. I saw more deer together than ever before on post. I had selected a good hunting area from a map reconnaissance that turned out to hold deer. I hunted an area with no other hunters nearby, and I watched several species of wildlife in their natural habitat.

Yes, it was a good hunt and one that I will remember for years to come. I will continue to hunt the area and know that I'll take a swamp buck out of the black, brackish waters before the season ends.

Each hunter must make the decision as to whether a hunt was successful. Bringing home the bacon is the best that a hunter can hope for, but getting "skunked" doesn't negate a successful hunt.

Hunting isn't solely about killing wildlife; it's about interacting with it, enjoying the total hunting experience and witnessing animals in their own environment. Good luck and see you in the woods.

Early retirement

FY '94 program nears end

By Freide McDonald
Retirement Services Office

The closing date for the fiscal 1994 Early Retirement Program will be Feb. 1.

After that date, no further applications will be accepted.

All eligible soldiers interested in applying for early retirement need to act prior to that date.

As of Oct. 31, the Retirement Services Office has processed a total of 118 early retirement applications.

Any sergeant (promotable) with a basic active service date between Oct. 1, 1978, and Sept. 30, 1979, can consider applying for early retirement.

Failure to do so will result in involuntary separation upon reaching the 15-year retention control point.

Soldiers involuntarily separated will only be entitled to involuntary separation pay and will not be held past the end of the month in which they attain 15 years active federal service.

Enlisted soldiers not affected by the retention control point prior to reaching 20 years may consider the Qualitative Management Program.

Once selected for separation under the QMP, soldiers will not be eligible to apply for early retirement unless they have 18 years or more of active duty.

Soldiers interested in applying for early retirement before the Feb. 1 closing date need to submit a request, DA Form 4187, approved through their commanders, to the Retirement Services Office not later than Dec. 30 to allow for an appointment to be scheduled and the application to the processed before the Feb. 1 deadline.

Applicants are strongly encouraged to bring their DA Form 4187 before January.

The list below indicates current eligibility zones in each military occupational specialty and grades as of Nov. 23.

Airborne!

Sgt. Doug Hare, a student in a recent Jumpmaster Parachute Instructor Course, gives the one-minute time warning during the "Actions in the Air" phase of the course. The course, run by the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, lasts two weeks and qualifies officers and noncommissioned officers to supervise parachute jump operations.

AMU soldier is first private to graduate from instructor trainer course

By Anthony Jackson
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

The Instructor Training Course recently graduated its first private since its existence at Fort Benning.

Pvt. 2 Anibal Candelario Jr., U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit international pistol shooter, recently earned the distinction.

"At first, I was a little intimidated because I was the lowest-ranking individual, Candelario said. "But, after everyone became acquainted, I quickly realized the class was fun and pretty easy."

The course is designed to provide instructors (primarily U.S. Army Infantry School assigned personnel) with training in organizing and presenting resident instruction in a service school environment.

"Our primary focus is to give the U.S. Army Infantry School instructors a standardize way of instructing with a second emphasis on instructing other personnel assigned to Fort Benning, space allowing," said Bobby Pounds, Staff and Faculty infantry training specialist and instructional techniques training instructor.

Candelario

"All personnel assigned to the Infantry School are required to complete the course prior to performing instructional duties," Pounds said.

"Candelario received a slot for the course because of his position as an instructor and shooter at the Marksmanship Unit and because we had an available opening.

"He conducted himself as a professional soldier and did extremely well in the course," Pounds said.

Candelario, 21, and a native of Vineland, N. J., was recruited to the Marksmanship Unit as a pistol shooter because of his talent for the sport and potential for growth. According to Candelario, coming to the unit gave him the opportunity to excel as a marksman.

"I've always had a passion for shooting since I was young," he said. "While competing as a junior, I first heard of the Marksmanship Unit and I knew then I wanted to come here," he said. "After I enlisted into the Army, I realized shooting wasn't the only thing in which I wanted to excel."

According to Ronnie Boles of the Marksmanship Unit and Sgt. 1st Class Vincent Yuille, section noncommissioned officer in charge, Candelario is not only a talented pistol shooter but also a "top notch" soldier.

"Candelario is an over-achiever," said Yuille, "and is the epitome of a quality soldier and a world-class shooting competitor."

"I've always wanted to perform well at everything I've ever attempted to do," said Candelario. "Since I started shooting at an early age, I learned young that to be good and to excel it takes hard work. The feeling you get when you have done your best is a reward like no other."

It's this type of attitude that helped Candelario ace the course.

"ITC was much like an oral speaking course I had taken in college except that it focused more on forms and styles of giving instruction," Candelario said. "More than anything, the course gave us the opportunity to build our confidence in our public speaking abilities.

"I'm scheduled to go to Airborne School, and I'm making plans to attend the Air Assault Course," Candelario said. "I figure with the coaching of Mr. Boles, not only can I become a world-class pistol shooter; but I have the chance to become an outstanding soldier, too."

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week ...

• Allied forces continued to press forward throughout Italy. The British 56th Division overcame fierce German resistance to capture Monte Camino as the U.S. II and VI Corps repelled German counteroffensives and attacked Monte Sammucro and San Pietro.

• Italian and French troops, spearheaded by the 2nd Moroccan Infantry Division, moved forward, strengthening the Allied line, and Canadian units reinforced the British Eighth Army that drove through Orsogna while making its way along the Moro River.

The success of many such efforts afforded the Allies the opportunity to consolidate their position and begin withdrawing seasoned units to send them to Britain in preparation for Operation Overlord.

• Elsewhere in Italy, the Allies suffered a significant setback as German bombers sunk an ammunition ship and 18 transport vessels carrying 38,000 tons of supplies in the harbor near the port of Bari.

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets captured Dovsk near Gomel and Mederovo having successfully crossed the River Ingulets only days before. The thrust of the renewed offensive concentrated on isolating Znamenka, which the Soviets attacked after cutting the two major rail lines to the city.

• On the Marshall Islands, five battleships and 12 destroyers joined six carriers and nine cruisers as the U.S. launched a series of successful attacks against Kwajalein at the cost of only five of its own aircraft. Japanese forces defending the island sustained losses of 55 planes and six transports, with additional damage befalling two cruisers and one destroyer.

• On Fort Benning, 2nd Lt. Milton L. Honeman, a Parachute School instructor, fell 10,000 feet in seven minutes, to set the height record for a static line jump.

HANUKKAH

Importance lies in holiday's meaning

By Arthur Rutberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

How do you spell that? Is it Hannuka? Chanuka? Hanukkah? Take your pick. The spelling or pronunciation is not important. What is important is the meaning of the holiday.

Within the Jewish festival cycle, Hanukkah is one of the least important holidays. It is not mentioned in the Bible. Its observance does not involve a cessation from work. There is no special synagogue service for it.

Hanukkah has received increased notice in the last few years because of its proximity to Christmas. Although it is a minor holiday, it does have an important message.

Hanukkah commemorates a victory won by a band of Judean priests, teachers and soldiers known as Maccabees. It was a miraculous victory of the few over the many. This small band of freedom fighters defeated the mighty Greek army. The cause of the war was the imposition by the Greek of martial law over the people of Judea in 168 B.C.E. No longer could the Judeans worship God through holy sacrifices at the temple.

The Greeks forced the Judeans to bow down to Zeus and offer pig sacrifices on the desecrated altar. The righteous people would not stand for it. Through Mattathias and Judah, his son, the people called the Maccabees and rebelled. They fought for three years, defeated the Greeks, regaining their religious freedom and rededicated the temple.

Hanukkah means dedication referring to the dedication of the temple in Jerusalem in 165 B.C.E. Before the Judeans could resume worship at the temple, it had to be cleansed of the pagan altars and Greek idols. The Maccabees rededicated the temple, relighted the menorah in the holy of holies and celebrated for eight days. Today, we still celebrate for eight days, lighting lights and giving gifts.

This year our menorahs will be lighted from Wednesday through Dec. 16 increasing the light each day and displaying the menorah in windows facing out. The primary significance of Hanukkah has nothing to do with gifts or games, candles or candy, but with religious freedom. The story that many know about the oil in the menorah lasting eight days is a nice story, but it misses the point.

The true miracle and the key lesson of Hanukkah is that no matter what the odds, the people of Judea fought for their religious freedom in opposition to the controlling government, and they were successful.

Each year, when the menorahs are seen in the windows on Hanukkah, it is a reminder of the need to fight for and maintain religious freedom. It is a fundamental human right. It is a right guaranteed to all Americans by the First Amendment to the Constitution. It is one of our highest values. There is an obligation to protect and preserve that freedom. When you see the lighted menorah in the window on Hanukkah, remember that just as the Maccabees fought for religious freedom, we must as well.

Program helps parents rear responsible children

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The Family Life Center at Fort Benning offers a training program to help parents raise their children.

Systematic Training for Effective Parenting is a guide that teaches parents how to relate to their children in a democratic way. It helps parents rear responsible children who grow up to be responsible adults.

STEP is a seven-week program designed to teach parenting through problem analysis. Each week parents analyze a problem and work on a solution.

Through class meetings, parents share common experiences with other parents and learn the goals of behavior. STEP offers realistic and practical approaches to child rearing. It encourages a diplomatic process for raising children.

Ninety-three percent of STEP graduates think it is an effective method in their household. STEP encourages graduates to begin support groups to enhance their knowledge and provides a means to use the program continuously. Continued use is the key to responsible children, according to most graduates of the course.

The Family Life Center will offer STEP classes in January. Three classes will be offered for different age groups. Noon or night-time classes will be available once a week for 90 minutes in the Family Life Center in Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2606.

Parents can call Chap. (Maj.) Robert Thompson at 545-1760 or 545-5301 for preregistration.

COMMUNITY CARE

By Ken Franklin
Martin Army Community Hospital

The Aviation Family Medicine Clinic moved Wednesday to temporary facilities because of remodeling that is expected to take three to four months to complete.

The clinic will maintain all current services in temporary facilities that will be in the Outpatient Clinic at Martin Army Community Hospital.

The outpatient clinic will remain open. The two clinics will share the facility on the first floor of the hospital

The Aviation Medicine Clinic opened in a converted simulator hangar several years ago. Despite difficult conditions and aging heating and cooling systems, the clinic quickly developed a reputation of family medical care. These renovations should allow the clinic to continue that reputation.

The remodeling will include new ceilings and walls, improvements in the heating and cooling systems and improved examinations and treatment room facilities.

Medical records will be moved to the temporary location. Telephone and appointment systems will remain the same during the move.

Although the Outpatient and Aviation clinics will share the same space, the two missions will remain separate.

The Outpatient Clinic will provide acute minor illness care in support of the Emergency Room; the Aviation Clinic will provide family practice care to enrolled families and supported soldiers.

Patients will be told when they call for their appointments where to report for care. Patients getting family care at Aviation Family Medicine Clinic can call 545-2162 or 545-2163 with any questions.

Do you have any questions about your family care at Martin Army Community Hospital?

Send questions to Community Care Corner, Martin Army Community Hospital, ATTN; HSXB-F, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905-6100.

Separation: Soldiers can be 'put out' for variety of reasons

U.S. Army Trial Defense Service

Separations that are initiated against soldiers by commanders may occur for a variety of reasons.

Chapter 5, Army Regulation 635-200, covers those separations for the convenience of the government.

Soldiers diagnosed with a personality disorder that interferes with duty performance can be separated under this chapter. The soldier may be discharged with an honorable discharge unless an entry-level separation is authorized.

Other situations under Chapter 18 involve those soldiers whose parental obligations interfere with fulfillment of military responsibilities and those soldiers who fail to meet Army weight control standards. In the majority of cases, soldiers separated under this chapter will receive an honorable discharge certificate.

Chapter 7, AR 635-200, covers separations for soldiers who fraudulently enlisted or re-enlisted.

If a soldier did not provide, lied about or concealed information that, if known and considered by the Army at the time, might have resulted in rejection, a soldier can be separated for fraudulent enlistment.

Some examples are concealment of convictions, prior service, or medical defects and misrepresentation with regard to legal custody of children. Soldiers separated under this chapter can receive an uncharacterized, honorable, general (under honorable conditions) or under other than honorable conditions discharge.

Chapter 9, AR 635-200, authorizes separation for soldiers who are alcohol or drug abuse rehabilitation failures.

A soldier is a rehabilitation failure when he or she is enrolled in the Alcohol, Drug Abuse Prevention and and Control Program and the commander, in consultation with the counselors at ADAPCP, determines that further rehabilitation efforts are not practical and declares the soldier to be a rehabilitation failure. The soldier's service will be characterized as either general or honorable.

Chapter 13, AR 635-200, will discharge a soldier with either an honorable or general discharge certificate when his or her duty performance is unsatisfactory. The soldier's performance may be unsatisfactory in any area.

Examples include inability to pass an Army Physical Fitness Test, to pass academic requirements or to perform duties effectively.

Chapter 14, AR 635-200, describes the policy for separating soldiers for misconduct. This can include a single serious act of misconduct, such as use of an illegal drug or a pattern of minor misconduct.

A positive urinalysis, for example, can be the basis for proving drug use. Soldiers can receive an honorable, general, or under other than honorable conditions discharge under this chapter.

Chapter 15, AR 635-200, governs Army policy for the separation of soldiers for homosexuality.

Depending on the specific circumstances of each case, a soldier may receive an other than honorable, general or honorable discharge certificate.

In all cases initiated under Chapter 15, a soldier is entitled to have his or her case heard by a board and be represented by an attorney.

For all types of administrative elimination actions, certain procedures must be followed in each case, and all soldiers are entitled to certain basic due process rights. The soldier is entitled to see those documents the separation authority will use in making a decision.

The soldier must always be informed of the specific reason separation is contemplated, must be given an opportunity to respond to the allegations and he or she is entitled to the services of a lawyer in preparing the response.

Normally, the response is at least initially in writing.

If you are facing administrative elimination, a written statement in reply may be your only chance to tell your commander you wish to remain in service or why you believe separation is not justified.

You are authorized the services of a Trial Defense Service counsel in preparing this statement; normally, your unit will make an appointment for you.

If you do not want to be separated, take advantage of this opportunity to respond. Think about what you want to say in your statement before you come to see your lawyer; draft your statement beforehand and your defense counsel will assist in putting it in final form.

Think about the noncommissioned officers or officers in your chain of command or other persons you believe will support either your staying in the Army or having you receive a favorable discharge.

Your reply should give your commander all the facts he or she needs to make the best decision.

You may also use the services of a civilian attorney at your own expense. Some soldiers will be entitled to a hearing before a board of officers.

Soldiers who have questions should get advice only from a lawyer. If the questions is about military justice or an administrative elimination, call the Trial Defense Service office at 545-1520.

Be safe — don't leave home without the right Bike helmet

Infantry Branch Safety Office

Cycling helmets are an important safety consideration, even if you're just a casual bike rider. They are especially important for children.

There are about 96 million cyclists in the United States. Of that number, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that 950 riders die and another 580,000 suffer injuries each year in collisions that involve head injuries.

The risk of injury is three to seven times greater for people who do not wear helmets. Yet fewer than 2 percent of American children and fewer than 10 percent of all bicyclists wear helmets.

Three types of helmets are available. The "soft-shell" helmet consists of a thick styrofoam liner with a fabric cover. Its light weight makes it a good choice for young riders. The "hard-shell" and "micro-shell" helmets have a firm plastic cover over the styrofoam liner and offer extra protection against objects that might penetrate the helmet.

No helmet will protect you, however, if it is not properly manufactured and properly worn. Consumer Research magazine offers suggestions to help ensure that your helmet is a safe one.

• No matter which helmet you choose, be sure that it fits snugly. It should touch your head on the top and all sides without squeezing. If it is a little loose on one side, you can use "sizing pads" — pieces of soft foam — to fill the space for a better fit.

• Make sure the helmet has sufficient ventilation to keep your head cool, especially if you plan to ride for an extended period of time.

• The helmet's straps should allow for adjustments so that you can secure it firmly and comfortably to your head. Test it before you start your ride. Push on the helmet from various angles to make sure that it will stay on your head in case of a collision.

• The helmet should carry an approval sticker from the American National Standards Institute or the Snell Memorial Foundation. Both organizations run tests that hold manufacturers to certain safety standards.

• Take care of your helmet. Clean it with a mild soap and water. Excessive heat, paint, stickers and solvents may damage the shell or styrofoam lining.

• Finally, nothing lasts forever. If your helmet is damaged or shows wear, replace it.

Editor's note: Georgia law requires children under the age of 6 to wear helmets while cycling. Fort Benning policy requires any cyclist traveling 35 mph or faster to wear a helmet.

Make plans now for life after Army

Army Career and Alumni Program

Most people leaving the military find themselves at a disadvantage when they start looking for a job, according to Ted Craig, Fort Benning's Army Career and Alumni Program transition services manager.

They have never had to submit resumes, sit through job interviews or decide what type of work they want to do, he said. They haven't thought about where they want to live or worried about a work wardrobe.

"It's important to think far ahead," Craig said. "We offer career guidance to people. It's never too early to begin thinking about what you may want to do after the military. We help people based on their individual needs."

ACAP offers:

• A three-day workshop within 180 days of separation that helps military members prepare for transition.

• A one-day "advanced course" dealing with resume writing and interview skills.

• The Defense Outplacement Referral System process that provides a free service to match a person's abilities to civilian employment positions and by sending a mini-resume to a data base used by hundreds of employers throughout the world.

• Career Day provides an opportunity for employers to meet, brief and interview soldiers.

• The Educational Opportunity Program makes it possible for a person to get a help and information about tuition assistance, enrollment procedures, or data on any college or university.

• Referrals for separation benefits to include Special Separation Benefits, Voluntary Separation Incentive and retirement.

Below is a timetable for job hunting while still in the service.

12 months before leaving:

• Talk with local transition center personnel.

• Visit the Retirement Services Office if you are retiring.

• Discuss with your family, possible options, setting goals for the job and location search.

• Decide where you want to live after leaving the military.

• Decide what types of jobs you qualify for and the income you will need.

• Start subscriptions or check the local library for professional or trade journals.

• Make sure you have or can acquire any necessary license you need for your chosen profession.

• Check your financial status and make plans to have enough money to cover several months of expenses if you don't find a job immediately.

• Research job possibilities, job markets and the economic conditions in the area you want.

9 months before leaving:

• Decide what type of work you are going to look for.

• Do first drafts of your resume.

• If possible, visit the area where you plan to move to after leaving the military; if you can't visit, write the local chamber of commerce for information.

• For job and real estate information, subscribe to weekend newspapers from the area where you plan to move.

• Continue research.

• Keep in touch with the local transition point.

6 months before leaving:

• Attend an ACAP transition class whether retiring or getting out of the Army.

• Finalize your resume; decide if you need help in developing the best possible resume and if you need to hire a professional resume writer.

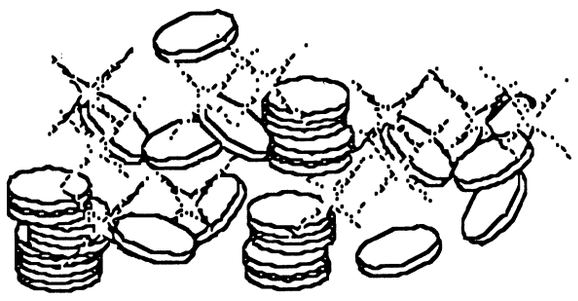
• Develop a list of employers in the field in which you are interested; also, determine any friends you might have in the private sector who may be able to help you.

• Contact an executive recruiter for assistance if you qualify and are looking for a job in this category.

Taxes: CPAs answer questions on new regs

Georgia Society of CPAs

To help taxpayers better understand how current tax law affects their 1993 tax liability, the Georgia Society of Certified Public Accountants provides answers to questions taxpayers have been asking.



Q: My husband and I have a joint taxable income of $150,000. Are we subject to a retroactive tax increase as a result of the new tax law?

A: Yes. A new 36 percent tax rate — up from 31 percent — applies to taxable incomes in excess of $140,000 for married couples filing jointly. Similarly, the 36 percent rate applies to taxable incomes in excess of $115,000 for single individuals, in excess of $127,500 for heads of household, and in excess of $70,000 for married individuals filing separate returns.

Q: What is the highest tax rate for 1993?

A: As a result of a new 10 percent surtax imposed on taxable income more than $250,000 for singles, heads of household and married individuals filing jointly $125,000 for married individuals filing separate returns), the top individual tax rate has been raised to 39.6 percent.

Q: What if I can't pay all my taxes by April 15?

A: You'll get a break from the Internal Revenue Service, provided that the retroactive tax increase is the reason you can't meet your tax liability. In this case, you have the option to pay your taxes in three equal, interest-free installments, beginning on or before the due date (without extensions) of your 1993 tax return, with subsequent payments made on an annual basis over the next two years. However, if you're not subject to the new, higher tax rates and can't meet your tax liability by April 15, you will owe interest on any tax not paid by the regular due date of your return. You may also be subject to a late payment penalty.

Q: We lost $20,000 this year on the sale of our home as a result of the poor real estate market. I know that gains can be deferred by buying another house of equal or greater value within two years of the date of sale, but is there any way to write off the loss?

A: No. When you suffer a loss on the sale of your principal residence, the IRS doesn't give you any tax relief.

Q: During the last six months, my mother has lived with my husband and me, and we have paid for her food, clothing and other expenses. Can we claim her as a dependent on our tax return?

A: You may claim her as a dependent if you meet the following criteria: 1) you provided more than 50 percent of your mother's support for the year; 2) your mother's gross income was less than $2,350; 3) your mother does not file a joint return; and 4) your mother is a U.S. citizen, national, resident or a resident of Canada or Mexico. However, be aware that dependency exemptions are phased out for high income taxpayers. For joint filers, this begins when your adjusted gross income reaches $162,700. The threshold for single filers is $108,450; for heads of household, $135,600; and for married individuals filing separately, $81,350.

Q: Can I take a tax deduction for medical expenses I incurred for myself and my family over the past year?

A: You may claim a tax deduction for qualified medical expenses that exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. Qualified medical expenses include amounts paid for the diagnosis, cure or prevention of disease, related transportation expenses and special equipment expenditures that are recommended by a physician and are necessary for your medical care.

Q: What are the guidelines for deducting individual retirement account contributions?

A: You can still fully deduct your IRA contribution if neither you nor your spouse participated in an employer's retirement plan in 1993 or if your adjusted gross income is under $25,000 if single or $40,000 if married. If you satisfy either of these requirements, you can contribute and deduct up to $2,000, if single, and up to $4,000 if married and both spouses work. If only one spouse works, the most you can contribute is $2,250. Keep in mind, too, that you have until April 15 to make your contribution and claim a deduction on your 1993 tax return.

Think about money when planning resolutions

Georgia Society of CPAs

Here's an item the Georgia Society of CPAs recommends you include on your new year's resolution list: Put your financial house in order.

The beginning of the year is a good time to assess your financial situation and needs so you can ensure your financial security now and in the years to come. Here's how to get started.

Take stock of assets

Make a list of all your assets, including securities, retirement accounts, life insurance, real estate and collectibles. Be sure to include cash in money market accounts, certificates of deposit and checking accounts.

Determine whether your assets are allocated in a way that will help you achieve your short- and long-term financial goals, such as saving for a larger home or providing for a secure retirement.

Also, take a close look at how your investments fared over the past year and decide whether you should reallocate your assets to obtain greater returns.

Homeowners' insurance

Victims of such casualties as the Midwest floods learned the hard way that inadequate homeowners' insurance may make it impossible to replace your home and its possessions in the event of a catastrophe.

Your home should be insured for 100 percent of the cost of rebuilding it.

If your coverage falls below 80 percent, you may not be reimbursed in full for lesser claims.

Get rid of debt

Review all your outstanding loans, such as your mortgage, home equity and car loans. Determine if you should refinance any of these loans to obtain a lower interest rate.

If lower loan payments will enable you to recover the costs of refinancing in a year or two, chances are you'll be better off refinancing.

Make a list of all your assets, including securities, retirement accounts, life insurance, real estate and collectibles. Be sure to include cash in money market accounts, certificates of deposit and checking accounts. Review all your outstanding loans, such as your mortgage, home equity and car loans. Determine if you should refinance any of these loans to obtain a lower interest rate.

Calculate your current credit card debt. If it's more than 15 percent of your after-tax income, adopt a strategy for reducing your debt. One way is to pay off high-interest credit card balances with a lower interest home-equity loan. Also, look at the interest rate on your credit cards and shop around for those that offer lower rates.

Plan for health care

Escalating health-care costs can eat into your savings unless you have adequate health-care coverage.

Read your policy to review your deductibles and to determine what the insurance company will pay for specific medical situations.

If your policy sets limits for certain procedures, compare these limits to the actual costs in your region of the country.

If you discover that there is a big difference, you may want to select another policy, even if the premiums are higher.

Update your will Review your will at least every three years. That way, it will stay current with change. Also, be sure to review the beneficiary designations in your will.

Review life insurance

Review your life insurance to determine if it will adequately meet your family's needs.

Factors that influence the amount of life insurance you need are the number of your dependents, how long you must provide for them, their day-to-day living expenses, anticipated big expenditures (such as college tuition) and amount of other assets and income that are available to help meet your family members' needs.

Save for retirement

No matter how young you are, it's wise to sock away money every year into a retirement plan. Take advantage employer-sponsored program, such as a 401(k) plan.

If your company doesn't offer such a plan, open an individual retirement account.

Your contribution will earn interest, tax deferred, until the time of withdrawal and may also be tax deductible.

Begin your tax return

Whether you hire someone to prepare your tax return or do it yourself, take the time now to locate receipts and documents that can help you claim tax deductions. A look at last year's tax return will get you started.

Little expenses can make big tax deductions

Georgia Society of CPAs

You can't afford to overlook any miscellaneous expenses you incurred this past year.

The Georgia Society of Cerified Public Accountants points out that these expenses may add up to a valuable tax deduction on your 1993 tax return.

Miscellaneous expenses include unreimbursed employee business expenses, job-hunting costs, costs associated with the production of income, as well as tax-return preparation fees.

Here's what you should know about these and other miscellaneous expenses.

Allowable deductions

If you itemize on your tax return, you may deduct miscellaneous expenses that exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Taxpayers with AGIs more than $108,450 ($54,225 if married filing separately) face another limitation: They must reduce the total of their itemized deductions (excluding medical expenses, investment expenses, casualty and theft losses and gambling losses) by 3 percent of the amount by which their incomes exceed these limits.

Employee business expenses

As an employee, you can deduct miscellaneous business expenses that are "necessary" and "ordinary" for your job.

This means that you must demonstrate to the IRS that your employer expected or required you to incur these expenses. Other qualified miscellaneous expenses may include union dues, dues to professional organizations, subscriptions to professional journals and magazines, and work clothes and uniforms.

You may also deduct educational expenses, including tuition, books, supplies and lab fees, as long as the educational program is necessary to maintain or improve your present work skills or is required by your employer or the law to keep your present job.

Unreimbursed travel, transportation and 80 percent of business entertainment costs are also deductible on your 1993 tax return, subject to the 2 percent floor. Strict tax rules apply, so be sure to check with a tax advisor.

Also, be aware that beginning in 1994, only 50 percent of employees' unreimbursed business meals and entertainment costs will qualify as miscellaneous expenses.

Job-hunting expenses

You can fully deduct expenses associated with looking for a job in your current line of work. These can include costs of preparing resumes, assembling a portfolio of your work, as well as traveling to and from job interviews.

Keep in mind that if you recently lost your job as a construction worker and decide to pursue a sales career, your job-hunting costs are not deductible. That's because the tax law does not allow a deduction for costs associated with looking for a job in a new line of business.

Miscellaneous expenses

If you hired a CPA or another tax professional to provide tax or estate planning assistance, you can deduct the costs you paid for such advice. Similarly, you can deduct the costs you paid for advice in connection with the preparation of a will or trust.

Finally, be aware that in most situations, costs incurred to hire a tax advisor to prepare your income tax return, to advise you on making a claim for a tax refund, or to appear with you in tax court are also considered qualified miscellaneous expenses.

Investment-related expenses

Qualified miscellaneous expenses also include costs associated with the production or collection of income or for maintaining income-producing property.

For example, if you seek advice from an investment advisor about your securities portfolio, the fees you pay to the advisor are deductible.

In addition, you can deduct annual fees paid to a bank or another custodian of your Individual Retirement Account and Keogh plan, as long as the fees are paid with funds separate from your contributions to these plans.

Fees to rent safe deposit boxes that are used to store investment-related documents are also considered miscellaneous expenses.

CHAMPUS claim filing deadline approaches

Martin Army Community Hospital

The filing deadline for claims for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Service is fast approaching.

All CHAMPUS claims must be filed with the appropriate contractor no later than one year after the services are provided; or, in the case of impatient care, the claim must be filed within one year of the date he patient is discharged for the hospital.

If professional or outpatient services were provided Jan. 1, 1993, the claim must be postmarked no later than Jan. 1, 1994.

If services received from an inpatient facility have a discharge date of Jan. 1, 1993, the claim must be postmarked no later than Jan. 1, 1994.

For services provided before the end of 1992, claims must be filed with the proper CHAMPUS contractor by Dec. 31 or the year after the year in which the services were provided.

In other words, for treatment of services provided any time during 1991, the claim must be filed with the CHAMPUS contractor by the end of 1993.

This change is based on the Federal Register's final rule, dated Oct. 1, 1993.

The dates contained in the most recent CHAMPUS News, dated Oct. 5, 1993, No. 93-16, page 13 should be disregarded.

Further questions concerning CHAMPUS or the filing deadline can be directed to the health benefits adviser at Martin Army Community Hospital at 544-3361.
