Powell visits Fort Benning

Tri-city area honors Gen.

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

The architect of America's military strategy during Desert Shield and Desert Storm dealt with changes in social climate as well as a change in the weather during a visit to Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City Jan. 7.

Gen. Colin L. Powell, accompanied by his wife, Alma, stood under a tent in the pouring rain to speak to well-wishers in Phenix City during a road dedication in his honor. The Powells lived in Phenix City while stationed at Fort Benning in 1964.

Powell's visit also included a session with soldiers from the 36th Engineer Group and a dinner in Columbus attended by dignitaries, city officials and local residents.

Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, included in his remarks in Phenix City several references to the Southern storm he and his family experienced here in the 1960s.

Soldiers describe conditions in Somalia

By Patrick Buffet
Army News Service

BALEDOGLE, Somalia — Life is drastically changing in Somalia, thanks to the multinational presence there. At the same time, the country is having its own effect on the American soldiers assigned to Operation Restore Hope.

Some soldiers of the 210th Forward Support Battalion, 10th Mountain Division (Light Infantry) explained how they feel about their deployment.

They all agreed that they've never felt in danger," said Staff Sgt. Gayle R. Rosalez. She recalled that when she was notified about deploying to Somalia, she was more concerned about her finances and other personal matters than where she was going.

"Somalia doesn't really have an organized army, so I wasn't really worried about being in fire fights or anything," she said. "I wasn't afraid that I was going to die or even that I was coming to a dangerous area."

Spc. Heather Rudd agreed. She said that, while she never felt as though she would be in any danger, she was concerned about how she would handle seeing people starving to death and living in such poor conditions.

"It's unlike anything we've dealt with before, so there was really no way to prepare for it," Rudd said.

The difficulty of daily living in Somalia is something the soldiers think about a lot. The hardest thing to get used to, according to Sgt. Bruce D. Truesdale, are the temperatures, which loom around 100 degrees during the day with 90 percent humidity.

"Coming from single-digit temperatures at Fort Drum, N.Y., to here took a few days to get acclimated to," he said. "Unfortunately, it was in the first few days here that people really had to be moving to get everything set up. So the heat really took its toll on a lot of soldiers."

Enduring the heat is made even harder by the requirement of flak vests, load bearing equipment and helmets, Truesdale said. Eventually, soldiers reach a point where they can tolerate the heat, but that doesn't make it any less intense, he said.

36th departs

Soldiers of the 36th Engineer Group stand ready to deploy to Somalia to provide engineer support for Operation Restore Hope. The group will be deployed indefinitely and has sent approximately 600 soldiers so far. The deployment began Thursday and more groups are scheduled to leave around Jan. 23.

WRCG airs Army news

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

You can catch up on the latest Fort Benning news three times a week by just turning your radio to AM 1420 WRCG.

"Fort Benning News," a three-minute update of the latest post happenings, airs Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 6:33 a.m., 7:15 a.m. and 5:45 p.m.

Program anchor Sgt. Sydni Redmond of the Public Affairs Office said the show highlights the most important post events and is an excellent way for anyone in the tri-community area to catch up on Fort Benning news.

"If there is ever any doubt or concerns about deployments, major changes, road closures or any other important concerns, you can conveniently tune in on your way to or from work and find out what is going on," Redmond said.

She also encouraged units or individuals with newsworthy information to contact her with their ideas for consideration for inclusion on the program.

Redmond can be contacted during weekday duty hours at 545-4622 or 545-2201.

Post employees observe holiday

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Monday is a holiday for most Fort Benning employees in observance of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

Martin Army Community Hospital clinics will be closed. Emergencies should be referred to the hospital's emergency room.

All troop medical clinics will be closed with the exception of TMC 5. It will operate sick call from 7 a.m. to noon on the holiday.

The hospital's outpatient pharmacy will be open from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 6 p.m. The Main Mall refill pharmacy will be closed.

The Primary Care for the Uniformed Services Clinic will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the holiday. PRIMUS is located on Boxwood Place in Columbus.

The Main Mall and Mini Mall post exchanges will both operate from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday, and the Custer Terrace Shoppette will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Commissary will be closed both Monday and Tuesday.

Trash will not be picked up in Fort Benning family housing areas on the holiday. Areas normally scheduled for pick up on Monday will be picked up Tuesday, and those normally scheduled for Tuesday will be picked up Wednesday.

SJA to provide tax help

Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Free assistance with tax form preparation by Legal Assistance Office personnel will be available at the Post Exchange at the Main Mall Feb. 6, March 6 and April 3 from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Be sure to bring all necessary paperwork and the tax forms.

Every person age 1 or older must have a Social Security number before that person may be claimed as a dependent on a tax return. The Social Security Office will accept applications for Social Security numbers Feb. 11 from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Main Post Chapel Center next to the Doughboy Stadium. Applicants must bring a certified copy of the person's birth certificate and some other type of identification such as school records or shot records.

For details, call 545-3281.

Soldiers may not have to pay ad valorem tax

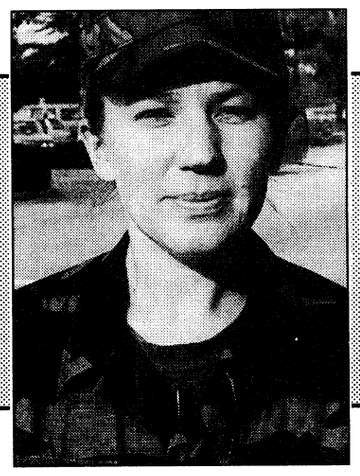
Nonresidents of Georgia, Alabama are exempt

Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Georgia and Alabama levy ad valorem property tax on residents' vehicles, payable upon registration of that vehicle.

Soldiers who are not legal residents of the state of Georgia or Alabama are exempt from this tax under the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act.

Vehicle registration is currently under way in Georgia. The tax commissioners of Muscogee and Chattahoochee counties prescribe the method for verification of the soldier's nonresident status for the purpose of granting the exemption.



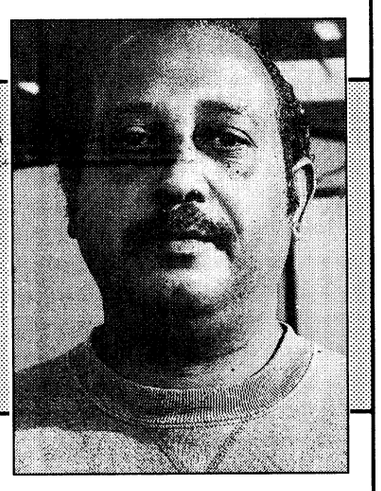
Soldiers must present a "Serviceman's Special Affidavit" signed by their commander or a Judge Advocate General officer as well as a current leave and earning statement (dated within the past three months) to register without paying the ad valorem tax.

Commanders are reminded that when they are signing the form, as a commissioned officer, the form must be completely filled out and the soldier's legal residence, as declared by the soldier in block 25 of the leave and earning statement must be verified.

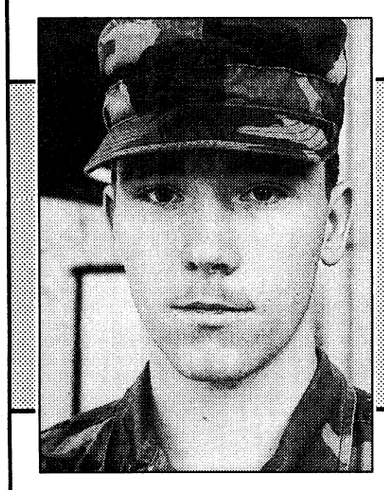
For more information, call Jane Winand at 545-3281 or 545-3282.

VARIOUS VOICES

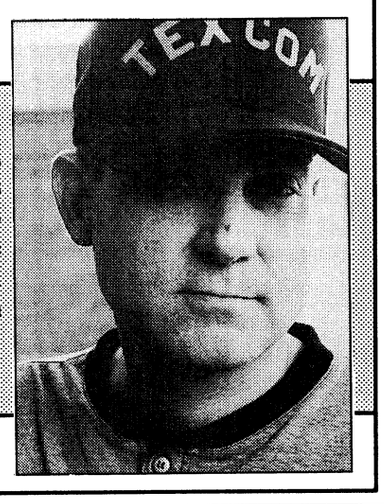
How do you feel about the status of civil rights?



Spc. Kelly Wonn, Company A, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment —"I think civil rights has room for improvement. I believe and live my life by Martin Luther KIng Jr.'s message, and I hope that everyone else does too."



Spc. Laine Biggerstaff, Company A, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "A lot of progress has been made in the status of civil rights, but we've still got a long way to go. Martin Luther KIng Jr.'s message of nonviolence is the way to go."



Bethany Urueta, Army and Air Force Exchange Service Employee — There's been a dramatic change in the status of civil rights since the '60s, but there's always room for improvement."

Retired 1st Sgt. Richard Lee — "I think there's been vast improvement in civil rights, but it needs a little work. The civilian world needs to take after the military because the military leads the way."

Pfc. John Wilt, Company C, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment — "I think people are treated better now than they were in the '60s. There's room for improvement in some areas, but in others, there's too much."

Sgt. 1st Class Gary Erpenbach, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Test and Experimentation Command — "I think the status of civil rights is pretty good. There doesn't need to be much changing done."

Soldiers believe in fair leaders

COMMENTARY

When it comes to rank, my position on the chain is about boot top level.

I can tell you what I like about leaders, but couldn't begin to tell you what makes a good leader.

I guess the characteristics listed on evaluation reports are supposed to tell the story, and probably would. But ... do you know of any noncommissioned officer who didn't get all the "yes" blocks marked under values, or any officer who got lower than a two under professional competence?

Unless the person is deceitful, totally contumacious, and down right despicable, chances are, he'll usually max out in those categories.

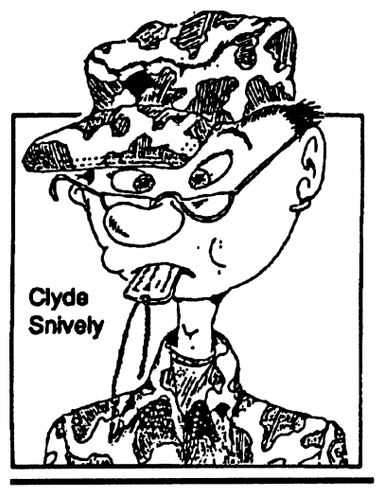
Yet how many sergeants and officers have you served under who've left you wondering, "how did he ever make sergeant (or major)?

I've heard many times, usually while eating in the Infantry Hall cafeteria, solutions to ensuring good leaders get promoted while those just out for themselves — the ticket punchers — get the boot.

One of the more novel approaches is to give subordinates and peers input to evaluation reports.

These people say, "if you want to know the true character of a man, ask the people who work for him. Or ask his peers. They'll tell you. No holds barred."

Those who don't think that's such a good idea contend this can lead to blackmail. They ask, "how can a leader be expected to be stern and demanding of his troops if he knows they'll have a say about the kind of "grade" he gets on his evaluation report.



I say that's underestimating soldiers. That soldiers who are treated fairly and made to meet standards will, in turn, render an honest observation.

In the "for-what-it's-worth department," I have some thoughts on how we as soldiers want to be treated.

I think I speak for most soldiers when I say we want to be treated as adults, not a bunch of adolescents just out of high school.

We might not have college educations or hold important positions, but we are soldiers.

Further, we soldiers have rights. Maybe not as many as our civilian counterparts whom we're sworn to defend, but we still have rights and believe they should be respected.

We have ambition. Challenge us to succeed.

We believe in fair play. If we have to bust our humps to get ahead, we will, but we want to know the next guy's doing the same.

We're imaginative. We can figure out all sorts of ways to get things done (and get over too). The good commander will stimulate our imagination in a positive manner by asking for our input rather than just ordering us to do things his way.

We might only be privates and specialists, but we do have our personal dignity and pride.

So we need to know that what we're doing is useful and respected.

Give me all this and I'll give you my loyalty because loyalty has been given to me.

Last week, Gen. Colin Powell, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, paid our community a visit.

From what I saw of him during his short visit here, I think he treats soldiers in this manner.

He had regal bearing, yet appeared to be a humble man.

In Phenix City, he asked to be remembered not as Gen. Colin Powell, but as Capt. Colin Powell and that in doing so, the people in the community would remember all our soldiers and care for them.

At the 43rd Engineer Battalion's motor pool, he climbed on a stack of plywood and talked to us person to person. Used our language, our type of jokes and told us the way it is.

He made us feel important, showed he respected us as peers, fired our ambition and gave us a new sense of pride and dignity.

I still don't know what attributes you need to be a good leader, but I'd follow Powell anywhere, even if it meant going where the steel was flying.

Fort Benning to honor Martin Luther King Jr.

This day is set aside to commemorate not only the memory of a great American, but also to remind us of the lasting influence that King has had on American society.

It is a time to reflect on the past and to rededicate ourselves to the future, to the principles for which King lived and died ... a dream of dignity for all.

In recognition of King's many lasting contributions to great country, a commemorative service will be today in Marshall Auditorium at 11:30.

All members of Fort Benning and the surrounding community are encouraged to participate in this service.

CG calls for safety

Martin Luther King, Jr. Day, celebrated Monday, provides the first long holiday weekend for 1993.

With the chance of bad weather at this time of year and increased traffic associated with any long weekend, the potential for traffic accidents is great.

To compensate for this risk, I ask everyone to:

• Stay under the speed limit. Reduce speed during limited visibility or other adverse road conditions.

• Stay alert and sober. Take a rest break at least every two hours on long trips.

• Fasten your seat belt every time you get into a vehicle. Even the best driver cannot avoid an accident when another driver runs into them.

• Ensure a window is slightly open to combat fatigue and carbon monoxide poisoning. Carbon monoxide is odorless, colorless and deadly.

I encourage all soldiers and civilian employees to enjoy a safe holiday weekend.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White

TRADOC experiences no holiday traffic fatalities

Superb effort by all members of TRADOC command prevented a traffic or vehicle-related fatality during the exodus period. Your leadership efforts, along with the efforts of members of your command, cadre, drill instructors, first and second line supervisors, made traffic safety over this past holiday season a resounding success.

Movement of TRADOC personnel during this period for exodus, leave, etc., is comparable to a corps deployment. This was an excellent achievement.

I encourage you to work toward making 1993 the safest and best in TRADOC history.

Well done.

Gen. Frederick M. Franks Jr.
TRADOC commander

LETTER

Retiree feels slighted

I just read The Bayonet's letter (Jan. 8) "Retiree expects more" and would like to extend my sympathy to retired Maj. Cindy Richardson.

I too retired from Fort Benning in July 1991 with nothing but disappointment and a little bitterness.

I served honorably on active duty for 23 years. Other than the mandatory post retirement ceremony (the commanding general was busy elsewhere and didn't attend), I received nothing in the way of thanks for spending my entire adult life serving my country.

Even my retirement award was allowed to fall through the cracks. I was awarded an interim Meritorious Service Medal pending approval of the Legion of Merit.

After 18 months, however, I have given up all hope of ever seeing it. I suppose I could write to the commanding general or a congressman for assistance, but if no one cares enough to show appreciation without a push from me then the Army can keep it.

To Maj. Richardson, thanks for your sacrifices and contributions to the security of this great nation.

To future retirees, expect nothing but the door closing behind you when you leave and you won't be disappointed. You will immediately go from being a somebody to nobody upon retirement and that is the hardest transition of all.

"We came to live here (Phenix City) in January of 1964. A few months earlier, I had returned home from my first tour in Vietnam," Powell said. "I was a young infantry captain who had been married just a few months before I went to Vietnam."

"In the year that I was away, my wife had given birth to our son Mike," Powell said. "Alma and Mike had spent that year just up the road in Birmingham, Alabama, Alma's home town."

"We have to speak frankly here," the general said, "You remember what it was like in Birmingham in 1963. As joyous as this day is, we have to remember where we came from. We know how far we've come, but we also remind ourselves that there's still a road to travel. We have to keep moving forward.

"In 1963 black churches were being bombed," Powell said. "Intolerance was throughout this land. My wife was glad to see me home from Vietnam.

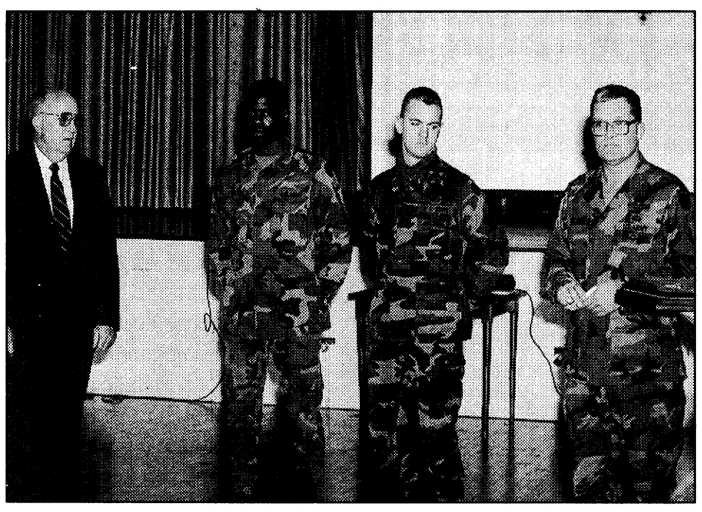
"We were assigned to Fort Benning," the general continued, "but it was difficult for a young infantry captain, a black one, to find housing at that time. We looked around for weeks, and finally we found a place here in Phenix City. It was the first home that our family had.

"Times have changed markedly over the past 30 years," Powell said, "and we're a much, much better America. One of the other Americans that you have honored recently (by naming a street for him) was Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Although he can't be with us today, I know he would be happy to see the continued progress we have made during the years since he left us."

Powell went on to say that he and his wife were nearing the end of their time in the Army. "This time next year we'll be civilians," he said, "but the Army will always pull at our heart strings and our memories.

"The Army is a living thing and it is always with you," Powell said. "The Army is always with the people of Phenix City and Columbus. You are still doing what you were doing when I arrived. You are still taking care of soldiers, those proud infantrymen who are so much a part of this community.

"Let me tell you," the general said, "that the need for such support is as vital as it has ever been. The Cold War is over, the old enemy is gone, and the armed forces are getting a lot smaller. But when you look around the world, you see that our soldiers are as busy as they've ever been. I'm going to Fort Benning today to talk with some soldiers who are leaving to perform humanitarian action in Somalia.



"You are important to the men and women in our armed forces," Powell said. "You are the home front. You are the families they leave behind, the ones they live for and the ones they wait to return to.

"This street sign stands for those troops, and for your love of those troops. And so I thank you for this sign, but I want to ask you one favor. When you pass this sign, don't think of Gen. Colin L. Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Think of Capt. Colin Powell, and let that young captain remind you of today's captains, lieutenants, sergeants and privates. Take care of them as you took care of me, and keep them close to your heart always. They deserve it."

AUSA gives presentation to Sledgehammer soldiers

By Susan Dutton
3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division

The officers and noncommissioned officers of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) welcomed retired Lt. Gen. Benjamin Register to their homes on Kelley Hill Dec. 28.

Register is the president of the Chattahoochee Valley–Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army and was accompanied by a former 197th Infantry Brigade command sergeant major, retired Command Sgt. Maj. Jim Gallagher.

Following a luncheon at the 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Battalion dining facility, they conducted a presentation on AUSA's objectives, support programs and benefits to the military. The gathering took place at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center.

According to Register and Gsallagher, at the beginning of this uncertain year for the military, it was appropriate that the role of the AUSA was emphasized.

Their support of the Army and its families has proved to be invaluable in the establishment of military health care and retirement benefits, said the officials. Their affiliation with the local community, industry, and commercial institutions has benefited Fort Benning in countless ways. Their resolutions for 1993 show a dedication common to both the U.S. Army and AUSA.

Col. Robert St. Onge Jr., 3rd Brigade commander, recognized two soldiers from the brigade. Spc. David Wilson from Company A, 317th Engineer Battalion, and Staff Sgt. John Lowthorpe, from Company A, 1st Battalion 18th Infantry Battalion, were recognized as the brigade's top soldier and NCO of the quarter.

Lowthorpe went on to win the post competition and become Fort Benning's NCO of the quarter.

Both soldiers received plaques from Register and the local chapter of AUSA in recognition of their accomplishments.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Dec. 22 to Jan. 3. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt and/or innocence of any person.

• This week's hot topic concerns home burglaries. No dwelling is burglar proof, however, homes can be made a less attractive target for burglary.

Lock all windows and doors when not at home, and use some type of stick or bar in windows to prevent someone from prying them open. If possible, invest in a timer to turn lights on and off when not at home.

If you re going to be away for an extended period, contact the Military Police desk to coordinate checks of your quarters. The most effective deterrent to crime is being alert for suspicious people or vehicles in your neighborhood and reporting them to the MPs.

• A family member was charged with assault, interference with government property and communicating a threat after telling another family member he was going to kill him. Upon arrival of the MPs, the subject became combative and kicked a dent in the MP sedan.

• A private was charged with fraud, false official statement and larceny of government property, after submitting a falsified Department of Army Form 4187 reflecting a promotion from E-3 to E-4. Subsequently, the private received $1,200 in pay and allowances to which she was not authorized.

• Two privates were charged by civil authorities with criminal damage to property and possession of dangerous weapons, after tipping over a Pepsi machine. They were apprehended and searched, at which time both were found to be in possession of switchblade knives.

• A private was charged with larceny of government property and making a false official statement, after removing four money orders from the unit mail bag and cashing them. After initially denying any knowledge of the money orders, he later admitted to stealing and cashing them.

• A captain reported that persons unknown accepted $1,451.43 worth of collect telephone calls from Korea on the unit telephone.

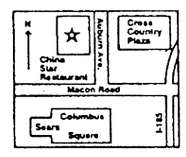
• A private was charged by civil authorities with theft after stealing money from a tip jar at a local nightclub.

• A specialist was charged with rape after an incident involving a female soldier assigned to the same unit. The two soldiers were kissing and fondling each other when the male soldier removed the female's clothing and had intercourse with her without her consent.

• Booby prize: This week's award goes to the specialist who was walking in the middle of St. Mary's Road while intoxicated. He saw a police sedan approaching and flagged it to get a ride.

The officer transported him to the local jail for four hours of protective custody, because of his high state of intoxification. During a search of the soldier's personal property, a small container of marijuana was found.

• Other activity included 17 traffic accidents and eight reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were 15 cases of driving under the influence, 16 reported case of larceny of private property and six reported cases of larceny of government property.



• Remember to help " Make Our Post The Best — Give Crime Arrest! "

Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 5222 or the "Crime in Progress" line, 545-2222.

Trash Collection

There will be no trash collection in family housing areas Monday. Trash usually picked up Monday will be picked up Tuesday. Areas normally scheduled for pick up Tuesday will be picked up Wednesday. For more information, call 545-4749.

PET OF THE WEEK

This black domestic shorthair (female, age 15 weeks) is looking for a home. If you would like to adopt her or another pet, contact the Veterinary Services office in Building 265, with the Animal Adoption Facility in Building 263 next door. Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. For more information, call 545-1127.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility. Animal control on post is a division of the Military Police Activity. An officer will pick up strays and take them to the stray impoundment kennels, located in building 263. Once the animal arrives, it has three working days to be claimed. If the pet is not claimed, it becomes government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are important, too, because it's the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner. Pet owners should update their records when changes occur and register pets. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

POST BRIEFS

5th Ranger Training Bn. to change commanders

The 5th Ranger Training Battalion, located at Camp Frank D. Merrill in Dahlonega, Ga., will conduct a change of command ceremony Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the mountaineering training area.

Lt. Col. Ralph F. D'Elosua will take over command of the battalion from Lt. Col. Brian M. Pentecost.

D'Elosua is currently chief of the Doctrine Division of the Directorate of Combined Arms and Tactics.

Pentecost is slated to become the commander of the 1st Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment at Hunter Army Airfield in Savannah, Ga.

ADEC classes resume

Advanced Driver Education Course classes will resume Jan. 23. Classes will meet in Classroom 3 in Infantry Hall. Those required to attend will be notified by memorandum from the Provost Marshal Traffic Regulation Enforcement Office.

The schedule for regular classes on the third Saturday of each month will resume Feb. 20.

Civilians awards lunch to be at Officers' Club

The January civilian awards luncheon will be at the Supper Club at the Fort Benning Officers' Club Jan. 28 at 11:30 a.m. The Directorate of Logistics will serve as host.

The cost of the luncheon is $4.35 and tickets may obtained by contacting Gayle Pollock at 545-4803. Advance tickets are required to ensure adequate seating and food for all attendees. Tickets should be purchased by Jan. 22.

In addition to award recipients, guests, family members, managers, supervisors and co-workersmay attend.

For more information, call Gloria Weber at 545-2956.

Uchee Creek Bridge to close for repair

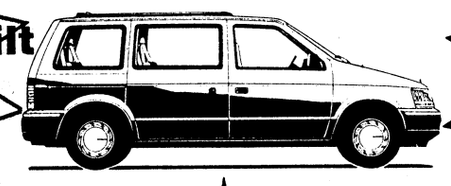
Uchee Creek Bridge, located on 101st Airborne Division Road south of the entrance to the Uchee Creek Recreation area, has been undermined during recent heavy rains.

According to the Directorate of Public Works, the bridge has been closed until permanent repairs can be made. Until further notice, all traffic to Fryar Field, Lae Field and other points south of the Uchee Creek Recration area must use an alternate route via Alabama State Highway 165. No detour is necessary to access the Uchee Creek Recreation area from Main Post.

Permanent repair to the bridge will be accomplished as soon as possible, but will take several months at a minimum.

Burning begins Mon.

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place Tuesday to Jan. 24.



If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-9,C-2 D-2, D-7, D-10, D-16, E-8, J-1, K-6, L-4, M-1, N-1, O-1, O-4, O-7, O-9, O-13, P-2, Q-5, R-2, T-3, T-6, U-1, U-5, V-4, W-l, W-4, X-2, Y-3, Z-4, BB-3, BB-5, BB-6 and CC-1.

Hunters and others proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 10 a.m. daily.

Training units and hunters using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

PROFILE OF EXCELLENCE

Horn

Name: Kathleen S. Horn

Award or recognition: Bartender of the Month

Organization: Fort Benning Officers' Club

Time on the job: 6 months

What were your reasons for joining the staff of the Officers' Club?
I joined the Officers' Club because I worked for the NCO Club in Germany, and I had a great time working, so I wanted to work for the Officers' Club as well.

What are your future career plans?
I want to start college.

Define your style of tending bar?
I am outgoing and friendly and customer are always first. I make a great drink and I care, too.

What person has most influenced your career?
My family has most influenced my career. My parents say I'm a really good bartender; and, if I like what I'm doing, stay in it.

What is the most memorable moment in your career?
I love to tend bar because it is fun and the people are great. The most memorable experience I've had is seeing someone I was stationed with in Germany who I hadn't seen for 2 1/2 years. That was great!

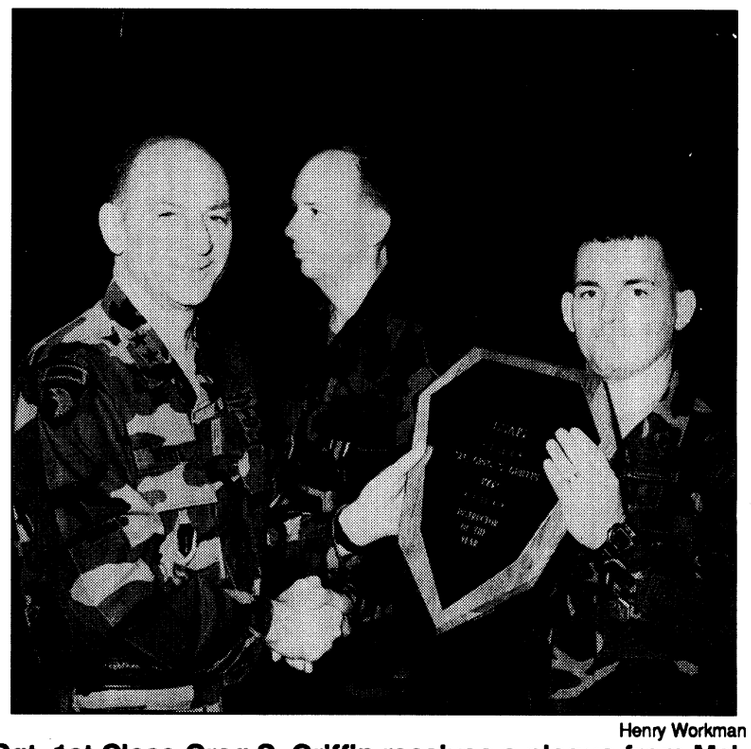
Benning names top instructors

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning recognized its top instructors at a recent ceremony. Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general, presented awards to the U.S. Army Infantry School's Instructors of the Year Jan. 8 in Infantry Hall.

The instructors were chosen from three categories: officer or civilian, senior enlisted and junior enlisted instructors. Those selected were chosen from previous winners of the Instructors of the Quarter competition.

"Training is where we excel," said White. "Every day, our instructors are out in the classrooms and training areas, providing quality instruction to soldiers, noncommissioned officers and officers."



The winners, all military, received the Army Commendation Medal, a certificate of achievement and a memorandum of commendation signed by the commanding general. Also, their names were placed on a plaque in the Infantry School.

Additionally, retired Lt. Gen. Ben Register, president of the local chapter of the Association of the United States Army, honored all three winners with a plaque, a $100 savings bond and a jacket.

The officer awardee received a plaque and a $100 savings bond from retired Lt. Col. George Osborne from the Reserve Officers Association.

The enlisted soldiers were recognized by the Non-commissioned Officers Association with plaques and gold watches, presented by Command Sgt. Maj. Eddie Roberts of the 11th Infantry Regiment. The recipients were:

- Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Roger C. Welsh, assigned as an instructor and writer with the combined Arms and Tactics Directorate.
- Sgt. 1st Class Greg S. Griffin, assigned as a senior instructor and writer with the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry and the Airborne School.
- Staff Sgt. Robert P. Landrum, assigned as an airborne instructor and squad leader with the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry and the Airborne School.

AAFES extends layaways for deployed

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service has established guidelines to help soldiers who have deployed or will deploy to Somalia and who have accounts with AAFES stores.

According to Pitt Vogel, acting post AAFES general manager, soldiers who have merchandise on the layaway program will be granted an extension of 60 days from the the date their accounts become delinquent.

Customers who have deployed will also have an extra 30 days from the time they return to pay dishonored checks before collection is taken.

Special orders and raincheck merchandise will be held indefinitely for deployed soldiers, Vogel added, as well as property left at concessionaires, such as clothing left at the AAFES cleaners or alterations shops.

Equipment rentals will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

"AAFES personnel will work with the commanders or whoever is the authority to have the equipment returned if the soldier who rented the equipment has deployed, but the soldier will not be penalized," he said.

"Large scale deployments always cause special concerns," said Vogel. "AAFES wants to work with its customers to recognize these concerns and keep them happy."

TAQ program establishes bulletin board

Directorate of Resource Management

A local Total Army Quality bulletin board has been established. Officials said the purpose of the TAQ share bulletin board is to share experience and to gain expertise from others.

According to Sarah McLaney, TAQ coordinator, the bulletin board is ready for "sharing those great TAQ initiatives."

The purpose of the bulletin board is two-fold, McLaney said. One is to share with others what TAQ improvements have been implemented and are working in various areas, she said. The other is to use the network as a sounding board to gain the expertise of subject matter experts in other organizations when problems are being experienced.

McLaney said the Communities of Excellence and TAQ coordinators for each organization should screen the input and follow the organization's policy for approval to disseminate information on the network.

Instructions for using it are simple, she said. At the first PROFS screen, select "send a note." The "send to addressee" is: TAQ. This allows the user to enter TAQ initiatives. The user should make sure the organization and a point of contact are named with each entry.

To access the TAQ share bulletin board to read only, select "bulletin boards" from the first PROFS screen. Once inside the bulletin boards, type TQ. This accesses the TAQ bulletin board to view ideas from across the installation.

Periodically, the Directorate of Resource Management will clean out ideas that have been on the bulletin board for a period of time.

McLaney asked users not to confuse the "good ideas" bulletin board with the TAQ share bulletin board.

The "good ideas" BB is operated by Headquarters, Training and Doctrine Command and is not accessible locally for input, only to view.

Army Career and Alumni Program

Most people leaving the military find themselves at a disadvantage when they start looking for a job, according to Ted Craig, Fort Benning's Army Career and Alumni Program transition services manager.

They have never had to submit resumes, sit through job interviews or decide what type of work they want to do, he said. They haven't thought about where they want to live or worried about a work wardrobe.

"It's important to think far ahead," Craig said. "We offer career guidance to people. It's never too early to begin thinking about what you may want to do after the military. We help people based on their individual needs."

ACAP offers:

- A three-day workshop within 180 days of separation that helps military members prepare for transition.
- A one-day "advanced course" dealing with resume writing and interview skills.
- The Defense Outplacement Referral System process that provides a free service to match a person's abilities to civilian employment positions and by sending a mini-resume to a data base used by hundreds of employers throughout the world.
- Career Day provides an opportunity for employers to meet, brief and interview soldiers.
- The Educational Opportunity Program makes it possible for a person to get a help and information about tuition assistance, enrollment procedures, or data on any college or university.
- Referrals for separation benefits to include Special Separation Benefits, Voluntary Separation Incentive and retirement.

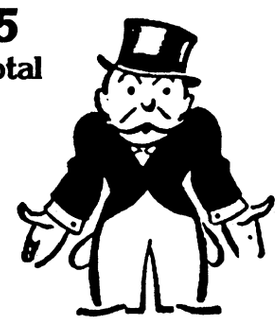
12 months before leaving:

- Talk with local transition center personnel.
- Visit the Retirement Services Office if you are retiring.
- Discuss with your family, possible options, setting goals for the job and location search.
- Decide where you want to live after leaving the military.
- Decide what types of jobs you qualify for and the income you will need.
- Start subscriptions or check the local library for professional or trade journals.
- Make sure you have or can acquire any necessary license you need for your chosen profession.
- Check your financial status and make plans to have enough money to cover several months of expenses if you don't find a job immediately.
- Research job possibilities, job markets and the economic conditions in the area you want.

9 months before leaving:

- Decide what type of work you are going to look for.
- Do first drafts of your resume.
- If possible, visit the area where you plan to move to after leaving the military; if you can't visit, write the local chamber of commerce for information.
- For job and real estate information, subscribe to weekend newspapers from the area where you plan to move.
- Continue research.
- Keep in touch with the local transition point.

6 months before leaving:



- Attend an ACAP transition class whether retiring or getting out of the Army.
- Finalize your resume; decide if you need help in developing the best possible resume and if you need to hire a professional resume writer.
- Develop a list of employers in the field in which you are interested; also, determine any friends you might have in the private sector who may be able to help you.
- Contact an executive recruiter for assistance if you qualify and are looking for a job in this category.
- Begin developing a contingency plan for job and location in case your plan falls through.

3 months before leaving:

- Send out resumes and begin making telephone calls to check on their arrival.
- Begin replying to want ads in newspapers and magazines.
- Visit the state employment agency where you plan to live.
- After each job interview, evaluate your performance and decide what you did right and what you need to improve.
- Keep in touch with your local transition office.

For more information, call 545-4892 or 545-4902 or drop by the office in Building 2617 (upstairs) in Soldiers' Plaza.

Two of the most important things to look for when buying a new car.

They're probably two things you don't think about when you're shopping: What it will cost to insure and what it will cost to repair. Call GEICO and the answer can be — surprisingly little.

First, there's GEICO Auto Insurance. If you're a good driver, you've probably always known GEICO can help save you money on car insurance. In fact, we may be able to make your buying decision easier by providing an estimate of your premium before you buy.

Second, there's GEICO Mechanical Breakdown Insurance. This policy provides you extended service protection for your new car, so you'll never have to pay more than $25 per covered repair. And it costs up to 50% less than many car dealers' extended warranties. Best of all, you can choose any licensed repair facility, nationwide.

For over 55 years, GEICO has provided the military with special services and savings on auto insurance. Now, with Mechanical Breakdown Insurance, we're pleased to offer the military another money-saving benefit.

Get the details on two ways to save money when buying your new car. Call GEICO, today.

Bandits

Team 'shoots' down opponents

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Women's Basketball League is heating up and it looks like the team to beat this year is the Bandits.

On Wednesday night Jan 6 at Briant Wells Field House, the Bandits improved their record to 7-0 with a 31-25 win over the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity.

The Bandits overcame a 15-9 halftime deficit behind Tammy White, Sonya Mitchell and Avis Matthews with each scoring 7 points apiece.

The Bandit defense also came alive in the second half limiting MEDDAC to only 10 points for the half.

Renee Alford led all scorers for MEDDAC with 8 points but was able to score only one basket in the second half. Lillie Sims, Anita Sanders and Lechia Jones finished with 4 points each for MEDDAC.

On Wednesday night, the Bandits improved their league leading record to 9-0 with a 40-37 buzzer-beating win over the Ladyhawks.

Avis Matthews hit a three point shot at the buzzer to keep the Bandits from going into overtime and undefeated.

"The defense played a box and one defense on me all night so I didn't even try to shoot the ball." said Matthews. "Coach set up the play during our time out; and, when the defense backed off, I took the shot. We were either going to go into overtime or win on that shot," said Matthews.

> "This is what happens when you think you have a game won and there's still time left on the clock.
> — Robert Jackson
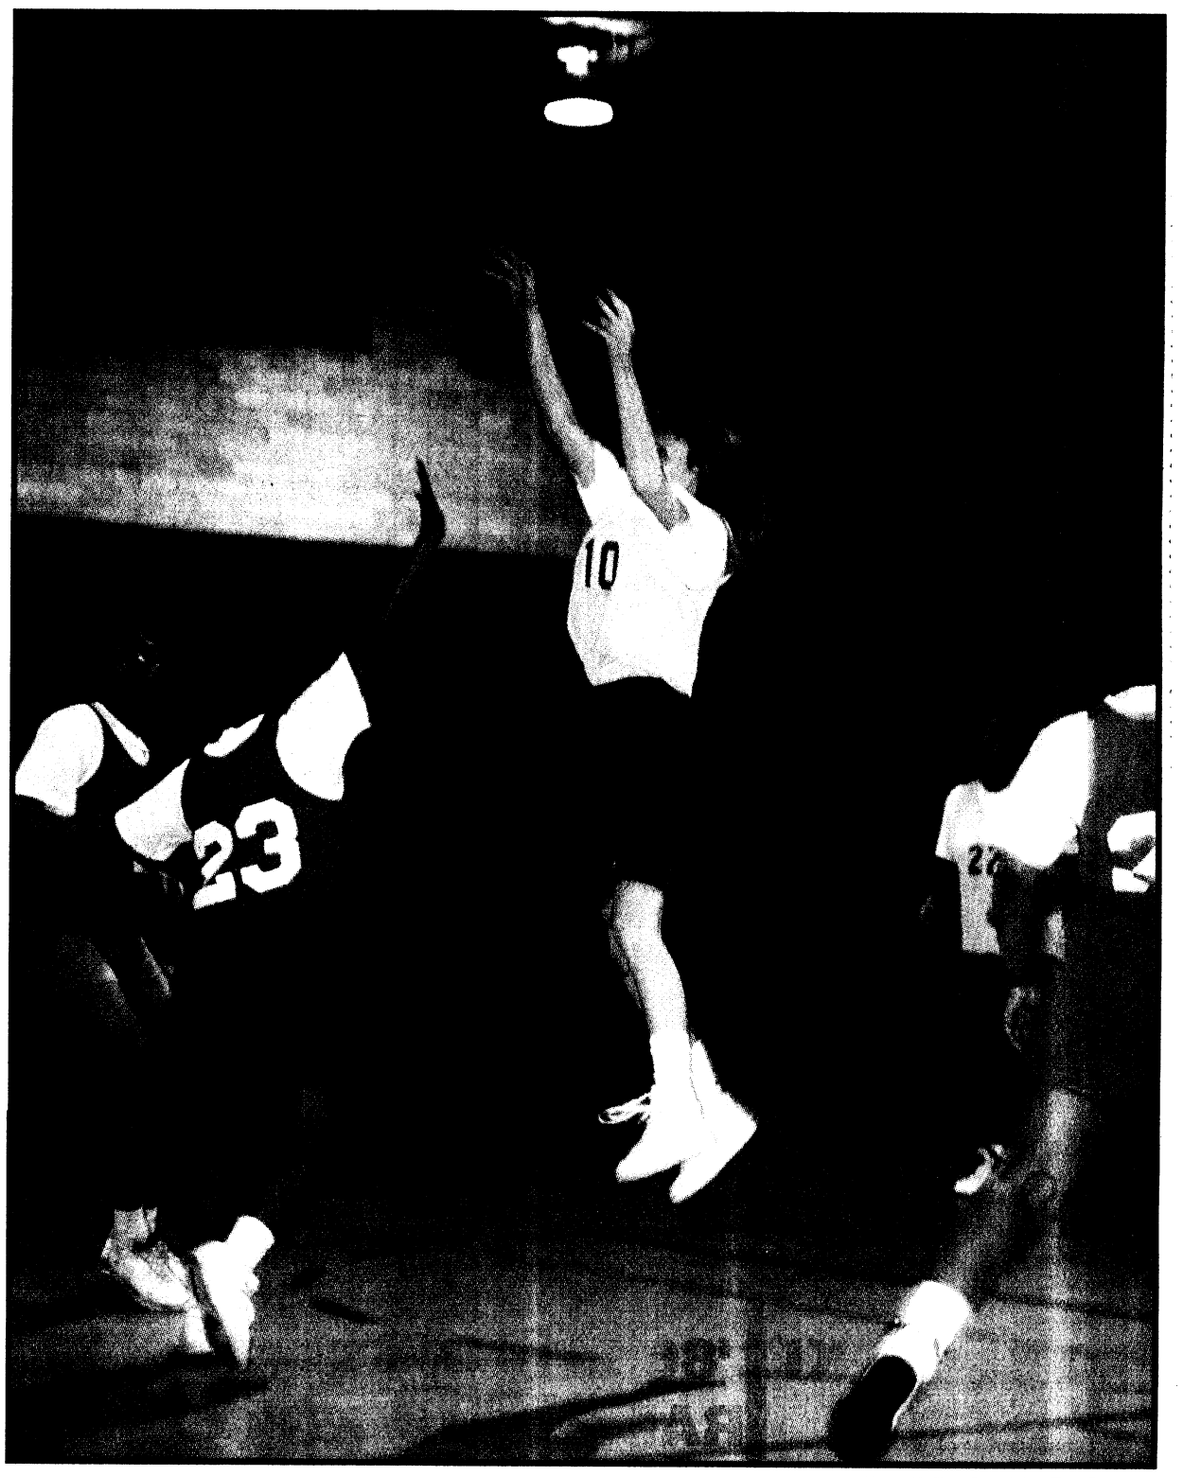
> Bandit coach

The Bandits controlled the first half with Kim Shawver hitting 8 points and Sonya Mitchell adding 7 to take a 19-11 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Ladyhawks, led by Tasha Taylor, who finished with 11 points and Indhira Layton, who chipped in 9, slowly cut the lead down to one point at 29-28 with less than five minutes left in the game.



The Ladyhawks grabbed their first lead of the game at 31-29. The score seesawed back and forth; and, with less than a minute left, Bridgett Green hit two free throws to give the Bandits a two-point edge. The Ladyhawks came right down the court and tied the game at 37-37 on a jumper by Taylor.

Bandit coach Robert Jackson called a time out to settle his players and set up his offense for the final 29 seconds of the game.

"I told the girls to play the way we've played all season and then set up our back offense, which puts everyone down low except for our point guard and our shooting guard," said Jackson. "When the defense backed off Avis, she stepped up and hit the shot. She's our best three-point shooter so our chances were pretty good at that point," said Jackson.

Shawver led all scorers for the Bandits with 12 points with Green right behind with 11 and Sonya Mitchell chipped in 10. But, the biggest basket of the night went to Matthews for her only points of the game.

"In the first half, we executed our offense the way we wanted to and on defense we pressured the ball and crashed the boards for the defensive rebound, which opened up our fast-break opportunities," said Jackson. "In the second half the girls got a little tired and over-confident. This is what happens when you think you have a game won and there's time still left on the clock. You have to give the Ladyhawks credit, they fought back and made a game of it," said Jackson.

USAMU offers chance to lock, load and shoot

By Anthony Jackson
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

Weapons marksmanship has long since been a critical skill in the military dating back to the days of the Alvin Yorks and Herbert McBrides of the Army.

Continuing in the tradition of this art, the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit hosted a "Holiday Soldier Shoot" Dec. 23 and 29 at Fort Benning's Easley Range.

According to Capt. Jon McMullen, the unit's assistant operations officer, "Holiday Shoots" were invented to give single soldiers and soldiers with no plans for the holidays an opportunity to fire small arms service weapons in a relaxed environment.

"Just because a soldier is in the military doesn't necessarily mean that that soldier has the chance to fire a weapon as much as he or she would like," said McMullen. "In fact, the soldier may even be firing it incorrectly."

Not only were Fort Benning soldiers invited to fire service weapons, they were even given a "refresher" course in the basics, said McMullen.

Between the two days of shooting, more than 30 soldiers fired more than 1,000 rounds through the weapons available to them to include the M-9 pistol, the M-16A2 rifle and the M-60 machine gun.

"This event had been in the planning stages for a long time and the holidays afforded the unit a unique opportunity to implement it," explained Maj. Charles Wilbur, AMU operation officer.

To keep in the spirit of firing in a relaxed atmosphere, the only requirements to fire was that each soldier bring his or her military identification card — no uniform, no kevlar helmet, no load carrying equipment.

All-Army hopefuls go through hoops

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The All-Army basketball screening held Dec. 12 and Saturday by the Physical Activities Branch fielded 12 potential All Army candidates.

According to Chris Winterman, Physical Activities Branch sports director, all the applications will be sent to the Department of the Army Sports Office for evaluation.

The Department of the Army will then select from all the applications sent to them from around the world to determine who will go to the All-Army Basketball Trial Camp.

Listed are the 12 candidates from Fort Benning.

Pvt. 1 Tony Jackson - Headquarters and Headquarters Company 1st Battalion (Airborne) 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment.

Medical center to host heart run

East Alabama Medical Center

East Alabama Medical Center's Department of Cardiology is again hosting the annual "Love Your Heart" run Feb. 20.

It will be a 10K and one mile walk/run and will be certified by the Athletic Congress. Registration begins at 7 a.m. at Auburn High School in Auburn, Ala., with the one-mile starting at 8 a.m. and the 10K following.

"Last year, we had a lot of military participating," said race co-director Sandy Reeve. "I encourage them to come again this year."

Entry fees are $10 until Feb. 15 and $12 after that and on race day, with proceeds to support the Cardiac Rehabilitation Scholarship Fund at EAMC.

Long-sleeved T-shirts will be given to all participants and awards for overall and age group winners.

Club and team entries of three runners or more are welcome.

For additional information, call Reeve at (205) 705-1700.

These lures catch winter bass

By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine corporation

One of the nice things about winter bass fishing, according to tournament pro Cliff Craft, is that it narrows your choice of lures considerably.

"Basically, all you need is a jig and pork chunk, or possibly a spinnerbait or spoon," said the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler. "Other lures may work at different times, but one of these three will almost always catch bass in cold weather."

The key, explains Craft, is being able to fish the lures slow and usually fairly deep, although if bass happen to be shallow, both the jig and spinnerbait can still be used.

"Jigs are effective because when used with a big pork chunk trailer they'll sink very slowly," he says. "You can hop them along the bottom, bounce them down steep channel drops, or even drop them into thick cover.

"With the silicone skirts now used on many jigs, the lures really do look alive, too," continues Craft. "I think every bass angler owes it to himself to learn how to fish jigs."

Another lure Craft often uses in cold weather is a jigging spoon. It resembles an injured shad and can be extremely effective, he says, when bass are suspended in deep water somewhere between the top and bottom.

"You can work a spoon at various depths and at different speeds," explains the Evinrude pro, "and you usually have to experiment with different speeds until you find the correct presentation.

"I believe many fishermen work spoons too fast. That is, they jig them too much with their rod tips. A spoon actually jumps much higher than most anglers realize, and bass don't usually want it that way."

Another tip Craft offers to spoon fishermen is to let the lure fall on a slack line so it will wobble from side to side and appear more natural. Many fishermen let the lure fall on a tight line, which keeps it from moving freely.

If bass don't want jigs or spoons, Craft turns to a big spinerbait. For deep water fishing, he prefers a heavy three-fourth or one-ounce spinnerbait with large Indiana or Colorado blades. This is most effective when fished around rocky riprap or deep channel drops and bluffs.

"One of the best ways to fish a spinnerbait like this is to let it windmill down a steep drop," said Craft. "You can stairstep it down by letting it touch the bottom occasionally, but basically, you pull it down a slope with your rod tip.

"If you're after big bass, this is one of the best lures to use."

America honors King

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Martin Luther King Jr.'s birth will be celebrated Monday as Congress has designated the third Monday in January as a federal holiday to honor the life and dreams of King.

This year will mark the eighth observance of the legal holiday honoring King, who believed strongly in universal peace with justice. He wanted all Americans to work together to create a more peaceful world.

King, who was born Jan. 15, 1929, in Atlanta,was a Baptist minister, scholar, author, Nobel Peace Prize recipient, founder of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and leader of the Civil Rights Movement in the United States.

Above all, he was a symbol of hope for oppressed people.

A great orator, King moved people with his voice and words. He promoted human rights, fundamental freedoms and the elimination of racial and religious discrimination.

The Unit Ministry Team at Fort Benning will honor King's birthday by celebrating memorial services Sunday at 11 a.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel and Sunday at 10 a.m. at the Regimental Chapel, Sand Hill. Chaplain (Col.) Roy Plummer, post chaplain, will be the speaker Sunday, and Chaplain (Maj.) Robert Cox Monday.

Retreat set for multi-cultural couples

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

An Asian woman tries to capture the dreams and hopes promised to be found in the country of "great opportunities."

What has happened? Why does the reality seem to shatter the dreams she had?

Many foreign-born wives of soldiers enter the United States with unrealistic expectations. They have been painted a picture in pink. The grass seems always greener on the other side of the fence.

After "awakening," she may find herself without the familiar surroundings, customs and most devestatingly without family and friends.

The Fort Benning Chaplains' Family Life Center is offering a retreat to help multi-cultural families understand how life in the United States affects their cultural and spiritual values. The retreat is free of charge and will be Jan. 29 and 30 at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, Building 101.

The guest-speaker, Dr. Dan Moon of Riverside, Calif., was born in Seoul, Korea, and will lead the seminar relating to the Asian families in the military community.

Moon, a former California pastor, researches cultural trends, needs and strategies related to Asians in America. He is the director of the Institute of Asian-American Pacific Rim Missiology at California Baptist College, which is designed to be a center for research and strategy development of Asian-American culture and ministry.

In addition to an earned doctorate and another honorary doctorate, he received the honorary degree of doctor of divinity from California Baptist College in 1991.

For more information or registration, call Chaplain (Maj.) James Rayburn at 545-1760 or 545-5301.

MACH children receive new toys

By Nicole Cochrum
Special to The Bayonet

Broken, unusable toys. Puzzles with missing pieces. Old, torn books. That's what the playroom on the pediatric ward looked like last August.

For sanitary reasons, little patients cannot bring their own toys to the ward and have to entertain themselves with toys and games in the playroom. But there was nothing usable to play with last fall when Luke Ace and Mark Allen were patients at the pediatric ward.

Their mothers brought this problem to their coffee group, the wives of the Directorate of Combat Development and Dismounted Warfighting Battle Lab. They decided to collect and raise money to buy new toys and used books.

In December they had put together $120 for toys and games and went to K mart. The manager, gave a 10 percent discount to contribute to the cause.

In coordination with the head nurse, Capt. Karen Carter, Maryellen Canada and Nicole Ace brought the gifts Dec. 21. Lots of patients, parents, and nurses gathered around to inspect the gifts.

"This is great!" said Spc. Liza Peoples. "Games and puzzles for the older kids were desperately needed. This generous gift really brings in the Christmas spirit."

Canada agreed, "Usually our coffee group spends money once a year on ourselves, such as going out to eat. But it feels wonderful to use our money for a good cause and be rewarded in a special way, bringing the Christmas spirit to others."

The hospital's littlest patients will be smiling all year long.

Mrs. Powell visits OWC

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

"Together we can all make a difference because no matter where we are, we are all the same."

Alma Powell, wife of Gen. Colin L. Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told this to members of the Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club at a reception for her Jan. 7.

She was speaking about the strength in numbers she finds in the common ground that military spouses have around the world.

Pointing out several examples in the Washington, D.C., area, she pointed to the military in providing the models for several institutions such as child-care centers and family support groups.

Powell also termed soldiers' wives "the bedrock of the military."

In a visit to the former Soviet Union, she said she even discovered the universality of what wives do when their husbands are away from home.

During a luncheon with cosmonauts' wives at Star City, she learned that when Soviet husbands were in space, their wives held activities similar to those hosted by United States soldiers' wives when their spouses are deployed — potluck suppers, craft get-togethers and cookbook sessions.

Being the wife of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs has also meant developing friendships that have caused her great concern.

"The headlines of our world have become very personal," Powell said.

She was referring to the coup in the Soviet Union when Mikhail Gorbachev lost power, and she worried for the safety of the family of Gen. Powell's counterpart in that country.

The Powells hosted the wife of Gen. Powell's Russian counterpart for five days across the United States noting her amazement at the size of single family dwellings and the vast amount of refrigeration and available food and post commissaries.

When this woman left the United States, she told Powell that she was not jealous of anything she had seen. However, she was sad that her country had wasted 70 years under their form of government.

The Powells also spent some time with this family during a visit to the Soviet Union that cemented their friendship.

It made her concern greater when after the coup, the family disappeared from public life. Powell said it was only several weeks ago at a military attache corps gathering that she learned that the family was truly alive and well.

When her husband became chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Powell said she lost the ability to belong to just one branch of the military, but not her memories of the Army.

In 33 years of marriage, she has had 20 different homes.

She said that she has thought if she ever wrote a book she would call it, "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep" or "Bodies of Water That I Have Slept By," and there have been many around the world.

Their first home in this area was a little brick house in Phenix City in 1964 when they couldn't get housing on post. This served as the reason for their visit here this time as the city named a street after her husband.

From here, her husband left for Vietnam, and she went to Birmingham, Ala., where she was born and married, to stay with family while she was pregnant and delivered their first child, Michael, now 28.

Their second child, Linda, now 26, was born at Fort Benning while they lived at 172-A Arrowhead Road, just down the street from Fort Benning's present commanding general, Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, and his wife, Linda, who were at 141-A Arrowhead Road.

She said those were the days of Vietnam when houses on post were more often than not empty "until they made the doctors move on post."

Powell recalled one particular incident while living here when her dishwasher broke, and she was told it couldn't be fixed because it had been decided that only generals could have dishwashers.

She said she told the maintenance people to never mind, "just leave the dishwasher be, and she'd make it work."

The Powells later had a third child, Annemarie, now 21.

In introducing her to the OWC, White called Powell a "beautiful partner, gracious hostess and an avid volunteer." Then she asked for a "warm hoo-ah infantry welcome" for Powell.

The wife of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff was back at the "home of the infantry," White said.

GARRISON HIGHLIGHTS

Publications reduces operating hours, days

Post publications has changed hours as a result of reduced manpower resources.

Hours of operation will be 8 a.m to noon, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and will be closed each Wednesday. Emergencies will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Units must monitor oil levels of collection tanks

Units are reminded that oil collection tanks, from oil/water separators that are part of vehicle wash racks, must be monitored daily to determine oil levels.

When tanks are three-quarters full, units must contact Charles Sanders at 545-4749 or 545-4232 to have waste oil pumped.

Monitoring is a manual process requiring the units to verify the level of the oil either visually or by stick measure.

If the oil tanks are filled too much, an oil spill could result, which is a direct violation of the Clean Water Act.

Units will be responsible for the subsequent cleanup and disposal costs. The cost for disposal is $1.85 per pound.

For more information, call 545-4749 or 545-4232.

TSC sets up schedules for taking official photos

The Training Support Center has implemented an appointment system for Department of the Army photographs.

Appointments may be made either in person at Building 108 or by calling the appointment desk at 545-1381. Hours of operation are Monday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Wednesday from 8 a.m. to noon.

Shoppette hours set

The Mini Mall Shoppette, Building 1711, is open from 7:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.

Barber shop closed

The Kelley Hill Barber Shop will be closed for renovation until further notice.

Teens can join council

Teens who want to become involved in the community can develop a teen action plan and learn leadership and team-building skills by joining Youth Services' Teen Council. The council is for youths ages 13 to 18.

For more information, call 545-3070 or 545-7945

Spouses to form group

A new support group for "waiting spouses," those who are waiting for their spouse to return from a permanent change of station, is being organized.

For more information, call Ava Morrow at 545-5602 or 545-3016.

Outdoor recreation equipment available

Canopies are available for rent at the Outdoor Recreation Equipment Rental and Storage Facility. A dunking booth and log splitters are also available for rent.

For more information and rental fees, call Kelley Hill Recreation Center at 545-7978 or 545-3504.

Blood ban on vets lifted

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Some Gulf War veterans can again give blood, according to a Defense Department announcement.

In late December, DoD lifted the ban on blood donations from personnel who served in the Persian Gulf area, with several modifications. The ban was ordered in November 1991 to prevent transmission of leishmaniasis, a parasitic infection caused by a sandfly bite.

Dr. Enrique Mendez Jr., assistant secretary of defense for Health Affairs, lifted the ban on donations beginning Jan. 1.

The 14-month deferral period has not scientifically proven that the viscerotropic form of leishmaniasis is a serious threat to the blood supply.

During the deferral period, only 28 cases of leishmaniasis were confirmed in members of the U.S. armed forces who participated in Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm. Eleven of those were found to have the internal, or viscerotropic, leishmaniasis. The remaining 17 cases were the cutaneous, or skin disorder, variety.

No cases of transmission of leishmaniasis involving blood donations of service members have occurred.

The Defense Department will continue to screen for the disease in military blood donors, who will be asked if they have travelled outside the United States in the past three years. Those who answer "yes" will be asked if they were deployed to the Persian Gulf region.

Those who were there will be asked if they are ill, under a doctor's care, or have had any of the following symptoms for a month or more since returning from the Gulf: diarrhea, significant fatigue, night sweats, fever greater than 101 F, or aching joints. These people will be indefinitely deferred from blood donation and will be referred for medical examination.

The policy is not expected to be affected by the deployment of personnel to Somalia for Operation Restore Hope. Restore Hope service members are taking malaria-preventive medication. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention direct that individuals who have taken malaria medications may not donate blood for three years.

Col. Robert St. Onge Jr. passes the colors to Col. Burwell Bell, symbolizing the relief of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) from its mission as the division ready brigade.

Sledgehammer Brigade passes colors

2nd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division soldiers take mission

By Susan Dutton
3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division

In a quiet ceremony outside its brigade headquarters, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), passed on the division ready brigade colors to representatives of the 2nd Brigade from Fort Stewart, Ga., symbolizing the assumption of this mission by the soldiers of the Vanguard Brigade.

Col. Burwell Bell, commander of the 2nd Brigade, received the guidon from Col. Robert St. Onge Jr., commander of the 3rd Brigade.

Accompanying Bell from Fort Stewart was Command Sgt. Maj. Benjamin Palacios, 2nd Brigade's command sergeant major and keeper of the colors.

While fulfilling its mission as the division's most readily deployable force for the last three months, the 3rd Brigade achieved a readiness status never before experienced in the unit, said St. Onge.

Its designated immediate ready company was prepared to deploy with 18 hours of notice, a battalion-size division ready force was prepared to deploy within 48 hours, and the brigade was prepared to deploy within 72 hours.

This preparedness was tested on several occasions as the brigade underwent three emergency deployment readiness exercises during the division ready brigade period.

During the first, held in October, the brigade deployed 566 soldiers and approximately one-fourth of its fleet of wheeled and tracked vehicles to Fort Drum, N.Y., and Fort Stewart. It easily proved its ability to deploy from Fort Benning within the required time frame, officials said.

The division ready brigade mission rotates among the three active duty brigades of the 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized). In June, the 3rd Brigade will again assume the mission of the division ready brigade.

Company reassigned to 2/29

Philip Mandile
29th Infantry Regiment

Company B, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry has been reassigned as Company E, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment. A ceremony marking the occasion took place Jan. 2 in the Harmony Church Field House.

Company B's mission is to train One Station Unit Training soldiers on mortars and to provide instruction for the infantry mortar platoon leader.

Col. Gregory Camp, commander of the 29th Infantry Regiment, presided over the ceremony.

The casing of Company B's colors, and the uncasing of Company E's colors finalized the transfer. Camp noted that the 1st Battalion's loss is the 2nd Battalion's gain.

Soldiers encounter devastated country

American Forces Information Service

U.S. service members in Somalia find a country devastated by a long drought and a breakdown in government.

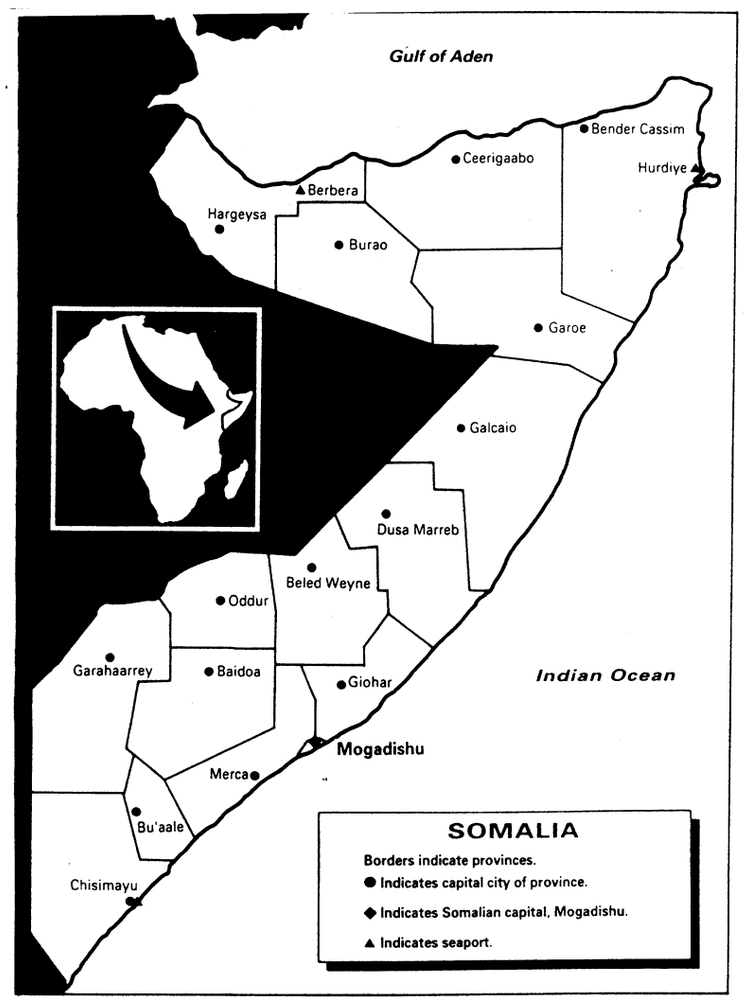
Somalia is on the Horn of Africa and during the Cold War was a strategic spot. In the north is the Gulf of Aden, which leads to the Red Sea and Suez Canal. To the east is the Indian Ocean. In the west is Ethiopia, a country with which Somalia has had many border disputes. To the south lies Kenya, a base for much of the relief effort.

Somalia shifted sides during the Cold War, being tied to the West from independence in 1960 through 1969, then turning to Moscow until 1977. In 1981, the United States agreed to supply substantial military and economic assistance in return for use of ports and airports.

No census has been taken in Somalia, but U.N. officials estimate the population is around 4.9 million in an area about the size of California. U.N. officials estimate up to 2.2 million people are in danger of starvation. The area hit hardest is in the south.

The population is rural with concentrations in the capital city of Mogadishu and the ports of Merca, Hurdiyo and Berbera. Almost 99 percent of the population ethnic Somalia and Sunni Muslims.

The northern portion of the country is mountainous with plateaus reaching 3,000 to 7,000 feet. The climate is tropical with year-round temperatures between 85 and 105 degrees Fahrenheit. In good years, there are two rainy seasons — from March to May and September to December. The weather is somewhat cooler in the mountains. The current drought began in 1986.



Somalia was ruled by dictator Gen. Mohamed Siad Barre from 1969 through 1990. Upon his ouster, local warlords filled the gap.

To a country already suffering under drought, this was the final blow. The army broke down, and warlords were able to arm gangs. Relief shipments were stolen to feed local gangs and the more powerful warlords used the shipments to increase their standing. Food, in other words, became a weapon. Many warlords and gangs are based around families. Clan grouping are the important aspect of Somali life, and their importance will render putting a government in place impossible, some observers say.

The British and Italians split the country before World War I. During World War II, the British occupied Italian Somalia. Both British and Italian Somalia united when the country gained independence in 1960.

Somalia is a desperate country. Even before the drought and civil war, the country's infant mortality rate was 145 per 1,000.

The average life expectancy was 47 years, and the country had a 40 percent literacy rate.

Kuwait buys U.S. equipment

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Congress was recently notified of an offer by the government of Kuwait to purchase an Army weapons, equipment and training package worth about $4.5 billion, according to defense officials.

This sale will contribute to the foreign policy and national security of the United States by helping improve the security of a friendly country that is an important force for stability and political and economic progress in the Middle East, officials said.

The purchase includes:

- 256 Abrams tanks,
- 46 recovery vehicles,
- 52 command post carriers,
- 125 personnel carriers,
- 30 mortar carriers,
- 1,178 machine guns,
- 967 SINCGARS radio systems,
- 132 trailers, and
- 130,000 rounds of 120mm tank ammunition and small caliber ammunition.

Also included is U.S. government and contractor technical support, spare and repair parts, personnel training and training equipment, design of training ranges and training device facilities and other assistance to ensure total program support, officials said.

This purchase would be the first increment in equipping the expanded Kuwaiti Land Forces recommended by the U.S.-Kuwait Defense Review Group, officials said.

The DRG developed a 10-year plan to build Kuwaiti forces capable of deterring an attack on Kuwait and defending it in concert with regional and extraregional partners.

The proposed buy is scheduled to conform to Kuwait's projected ability to man and support the expanded force over the coming decade.

The sale of this equipment and support will begin correcting the basic military imbalance in the region, officials said. It will not, however, give Kuwait the ability to sustain aggression against any of its neighbors.

Officials added that no adverse impact on U.S. defense readiness will result from the sale.

10th Mtn. Div. quells food riot

87th Infantry Regiment troops safeguard food, supplies

By Cindy Killion
Army News Service

BALEDOGLE, Somalia — Shots were fired and bayonets attached to rifles in Wanlaweyn, Somalia, during a riot at a food distribution site Dec. 29.

About 150 soldiers from the 1st and 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry Regiment, 10th Mountain Division (Light Infantry) were called in during the early afternoon to disperse the crowd and restore order.

The riot in Wanlaweyn, about 20 miles southeast of Baledogle, started over a perceived unequal distribution of food. The food was being distributed by Somalis hired by the International Committee of the Red Cross.

One soldier received a minor cut during the incident.

Order was restored only after the wind from a UH-60 helicopter was used to push the crowd of about 600 away from the site, according to Lt. Col. James E. Sikes, commander of the 2nd Battalion.

The food distribution site is a warehouse stocked with bags of rice and beans. At the time of the riot, the warehouse was guarded by members of a local clan. The guards were hired by International Committee of the Red Cross.

Apparently, said Sikes, the Somali guard at the site was either overwhelmed or not present when several trucks driven by members of a second clan entered the center and began taking bags of food.

"When they filled their truck and left, that opened the door for the local population to come in and start looting," Sikes said.

When the riot began, there were no U.S. soldiers present. Shortly afterward, the committee brought a message to Baledogle asking for help to restore order at the distribution site.

First to respond were platoons from 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry. When they arrived, the looting had escalated to an exchange of gunfire between the two clans. But the arrival of the troops temporarily calmed the crowd enough for the soldiers to establish a perimeter and try to reestablish the orderly distribution of food.

A call went out for reinforcements as the crowd again surged toward the warehouse. Elements of the battalion's Company B, scouts and a psychological operations team then arrived at the scene.

The order was given to attach bayonets to rifles and use rifle butts to push back the crowd. Shortly thereafter, Sikes arrived with additional reinforcements.

Sikes said the soldiers tried to move the crowd by firing shots in the air. When that didn't work, the infantrymen followed Sikes' lead and began firing into the ground in front of the crowd.

That slowed the press of the rioters enough for a helicopter to hover overhead and "sandblast the crowd," driving the people away with its rotor wash. The soldiers then drove trucks between the crowd and the warehouse to form a barrier.

When control was again established, U.S. forces, with permission from the Red Cross committee and village elders, handed out the remaining bags of food to prevent any further looting.

Before 2nd Brigade forces left Wanlaweyn, the village elders, members of the two clans and the committee director agreed to meet with Col. William E. Ward, commander of the 2nd Brigade, the next morning to discuss the incident.

Once food was distributed and soldiers left the town, minor skirmishes continued as the villagers fought among themselves over the food.

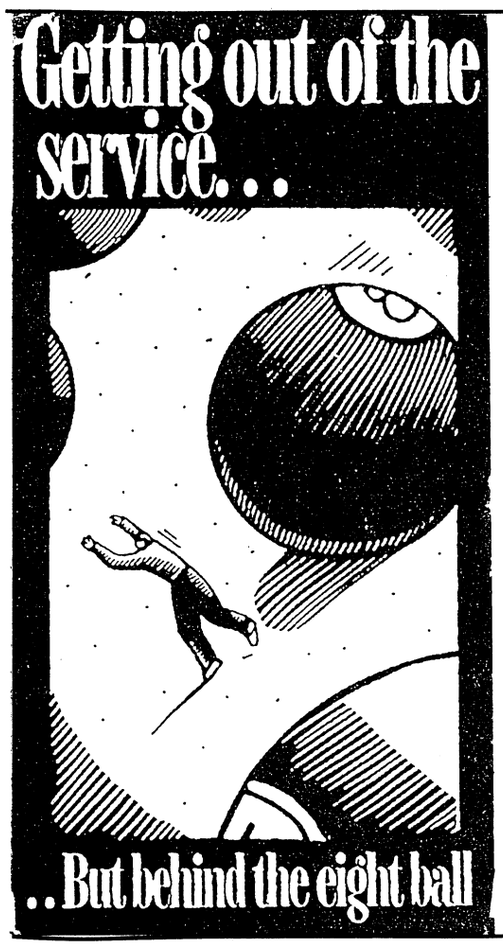
WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week ...

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets continued to make steady ground gains against battered Axis forces. In a week of fierce fighting, the Soviets secured Leningrad, captured nine cities, a railway station near Belaya Kalitva and a considerable number of German, Italian and Hungarian soldiers to include more than 52,000 in the Voronezh offensive alone. The Soviets succeeded in carving out a 10-mile wide corridor from Leningrad that allowed for the safe transport of both supplies and soldiers.

• In North Africa, Britain's Eighth Army, under the command of Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery, resumed its attempt to break through the German position at Bucrat. The effort succeeded as British troops advanced for several days, eventually occupying Homs and Tarhuna in Tripolitania.

• Also in North Africa, German forces employed "Tiger" tanks for the first time, attacking British and French forces in the Bou Arada sector of Tunisia. The French forces suffered heavy losses in terms of Allied equipment.



• In the world of political developments, Iraq declared war on germany, Italy and Japan. Additionally, Chile announced its intention to formally divorce itself from any existing diplomatic relationship with the Axis powers.

• At Fort Benning, the recently activated 300th Infantry Regiment used both Marine and Army training techniques as part of an experiment conducted with the aim of improving Army doctrine concerning the use of the bayonet.

• Post officials honored three former Fort Benning soldiers, Gens. George S. Patton, Lloyd R. Frendendall and Charles W. Ryder, who had recently received Distinguished Service Medal.

Katharine Hepburn hosts 'All About Me'

By Lawrence Eisenberg
Tribune Media Services

Katharine Hepburn stoops down in front of her fireplace, making an "oof" sound as she stokes a log on the faltering flame, her third try in less than an hour. "Someone cleaned out all my ashes, and if the buggers don't have ashes, they're reluctant to start ..." She laughs. "Maybe I'll smoke us out."

SPOTLIGHT

Typical. Yet everything Hepburn says and does seems familiar, thanks to the persona she's projected in her occasional TV interviews: Spare, elegant, feisty. Maoist-type black outfits, flat shoes, legs crossed, with soles facing the camera. Hair in a bun that looks as though it was tied a minute ago, her voice resembling a car engine that won't turn over.

She's almost too easy to caricature and she knows it, though she's never seen Martin Short's imitation on "Saturday Night Live" and, when told of it, says she wishes she had.

The actress, who has spent a lifetime steeped in privilege and achievement, is also famous for not suffering fools gladly. Yet at 85, she shows a secret dimension — warmth — in "Katharine Hepburn: All About Me," (TNT, Monday, 8 p.m.; repeated at midnight and on other dates thereafter). The 90-minute biography, for which the actress was host, narrator and co-writer (with Joan Kramer and David Heeley, who also produced) presents Hepburn alternately in her Manhattan townhouse and at "Fenwick," her family home in Connecticut. Previously unseen home movies and snapshots from her childhood, as well as from movie sets, are among the show's highlights.

Katharine Hepburn

Weaving through Hepburn's characteristically no-nonsense narration are occasional sentimental asides. ("I've been around so long, people treat me as an oracle or grandmother of the world.") Of Spencer Tracy, with whom she had a 27-year relationship, she says, "I've been lucky. I've really known a lot about love. Thank you, Spencer." And she talks fondly of her only husband. "Luddy" (Ludlow Ogden Smith, whom she convinced to change his name to S. Ogden Ludlow, so she wouldn't be known as Kate Smith). On camera she displays the gold-trimmed white Parisian gown from her 1928 wedding, which she later shows to her interviewer. After 64 years, the white is now cafe au lait and the gold nearly brown, but the velvet fabric is as delicate as baby skin. She hasn't tried it on since the wedding, she says, "but it would be all right. It would fit me."

Yet she won't wear it or anything else modish, insisting on living in "my rags": black turtleneck, tan pants, red cardigan sweater turned inside out because she likes the way it feels. Her interviewer, trying to flatter, says, "They don't look like rags to me." She laughs. "Then you have no education. They're rags."

She also makes no apology for her face, which, today, has no makeup and is covered with what appears to be petroleum Jelly. "I began to play tennis when I went to California, and my poor old skin couldn't stand the burden of the sun. I just put this grease on because I could hardly have an expression." Which leads to one of her regrets: "not being a really brilliant tennis player. I was a very good golfer because we had a golf course at Fenwick. So at 10, 11, 12, I learned golf. But I never found it that fascinating. And then the minute I played tennis I thought: this was a remarkably good game — fast and speedy and a quick sweat. I like that."

She still plays tennis, ice skates, canoes and toboggans. She also takes a daily cold shower ("it's good for the character") and swims in Long Island Sound all year ("that's cold"). One wonders what the gain is from this. She says, "That you've done it, thank God, and don't have to do it again until tomorrow. I just think it's good for you. My father was a nut on ice water." Hepburn is in the living room on the second floor of her four-story Manhattan townhouse, where she has lived, on and off, since 1932. The room has the feel of a New England cottage: casual white-covered sofa and chairs, a rocker with a unicorn throw-pillow, a table filled with paperweights. Not an Oscar in sight, but hanging from the ceiling is a large wooden bird that she once gave to Spencer

Powell tells Columbus about past, present, future of Army

Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, visited the tri-city area last week.

Next week, the U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel will air Powell's keynote speech at the Columbus Chamber of Commerce annual membership dinner Jan. 7.

USAIC TV will air his presentation on the past, present and future of the Army in its entirety.

Soldiers Television Service reports on many of last year's accomplishments and several of its changes.

1992 was a year of monumental transformations around the world. For the Army, it marked a year of adjustments. And as the year began its close, the Army

Columbus Museum presents 'Starstruck Images' exhibit

Columbus Museum

The Starstruck Images from Hollywood's Golden Age exhibition will be on view from Jan. 24 through March 21, in the Shorter and Leebern Galleries at the Columbus Museum.

There will also be a public lecture Jan. 24 at 2:30 p.m. in Patrick Theater. Anne Timpano, director of the museum, will provide facts, figures and faces of glamour photography in Hollywood from 1910 to 1960.

Drawn from a collection of photographs given last year to the museum by George W. Dudley Jr., this exhibition focuses on exceptional examples of vintage photographic portraits created in Hollywood from 1910 to 1960 to publicize movie celebrities and the films in which they starred.

These photographs provide a record of the changing photographic tastes techniques and materials that shaped the evolution of this genre of photography.

Captured on film are the enduring likenesses of such cinematic notables as Theda Bara, Gloria Swanson, Jean Harlow, Gary Cooper, Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, James Dean and many others.

Publicity photography began in Hollywood almost as early as the movies themselves. Commercial distribution of films had barely begun before filmmakers were looking for new ways to publicize them. Magazines catering to the movie-going public appeared as early as 1911, and they quickly became a primary avenue for the promotion of films. So successful were these magazines in familiarizing audiences with movie personalities that celebrity status was achieved by some individuals even prior to appearance in a film.

The photographs included in Starstruck; Images from Hollywood's Golden Age represent three major stylistic phases of the development of this genre of photography. The earliest period coincides with the era of the silent film and is noted for its similarity to nineteenth-century photography. Poses were generally simple and straightforward, usually focused upon the head and upper torso.

The second phase of photography arrived with the Great Depression and lasted about as long. Hollywood responded to the economic times with movies that were increasingly glamorous and light-hearted. Portrait photography of these years reflected these attributes, emphasizing heightened effects through dramatic lighting and exaggerated figural poses.

A third phase or style evident in the exhibition emerged in the mid-1940s and is recognizable for a much more informal and natural approach to the depiction of celebrities. Thus we encounter portraits from the post-war period featuring movie celebrities at home or out-of-doors in an informal setting.

Developments in Hollywood portrait photography demonstrate the range of artistic skill possessed by Hollywood photographers. Employed in a role that was intended to serve the needs of the film industry in an essentially utilitarian manner, photographers demonstrated that they were capable of producing images of such exceptional quality that today they are recognized as works of art in their own right. Not only are these photographs a record of the imagination and skill of their producers, but they also serve as enlightening reflections of pivotal events that have affected our culture during this century.

Museum gallery to showcase 'regionalist' art

Columbus Museum

The Columbus Museum will present Lasting Impressions: Drawings by Painter Thomas Hart Benton Feb. 28 through April 25 in the Hardaway Gallery.

Throughout his career, Benton (1889 to 1975) traveled across the nation and kept drawings as a record of his observations of farmers and city-dwellers, rural homesteads and factories.

He often used this vast collection of drawings as inspiration and documentation for his paintings and murals.

The exhibition of Benton's works on paper, will include 66 pencil and crayon sketches, ink washes and watercolors.

Benton was born in Neosho, Mo., but he spent much of his life in the East. Benton's father served in Congress, and Benton spent eight years of his childhood in Washington, D.C.

His fascination with mural painting began in the Beaux Arts-decorated halls of the Library of Congress. He began his formal art studies at the Art Institute of Chicago and later studied in Paris at the Academie Julian.

In 1911, disillusioned with the European art world, Benton returned to New York. He supplemented his income by working as a set designer for films and as an art teacher.

Active in New York for 24 years, Benton established a reputation as one of America's foremost mural painters with works such as his New York scenes for the New School for Social Research.

During this time, Benton began to develop his distinctively sinuous and robust painting style in the studies of the inhabitants of Martha's Vineyard, Mass., where he and his wife vacationed.

Benton returned to his home state of Missouri in 1935, accepting a teaching position at the Kansas city Art Institute. There, particularly after his completion of a controversial mural, known as "A Social History of Missouri," for the State House of Representatives lounge in the Missouri State Capitol.

Benton became a spokesman for the so-called regionalist movement. Regionalist painters such as Benton, John Stewart Curry (1897 to 1946) and Grant Wood (1892 to 1942), rejected European modernism in favor of a bold narrative realism and explored popular imagery inspired by the heroic lives of ordinary people.

Characterized by a distinctly chauvinistic celebration of the American scene, their work embraced all aspects of contemporary life, from the seedy to the noble.

Benton once boasted, "A windmill, a junk heap and a Rotarian have more meaning to me than Notre Dame or the Parthenon."

USAIC TV

found itself in a precarious state.

Transition, change and diversity were the key elements as the old year passed on to the new.

Also featured on USAIC TV next week will be a report on how U.S. service members serving in areas of hostile fire or difficult conditions are able to send mail back home for free.

USAIC TV will also feature "Victory News," the news show of the 24th Infantry Division.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 32 Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For more information, call the Public Affairs Office at 545-2201.

HEPBURN

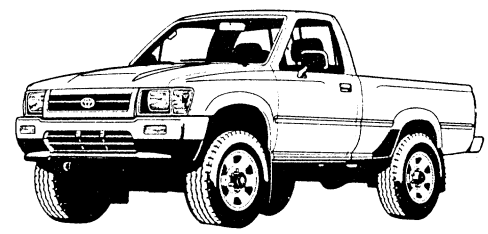
Tracy ("It looks like a wild goose to me.").



What one concludes in talking to Hepburn is that she's been asked nearly every question before and is gracious enough to give answers that sound spontaneous. Yet she also seems something of a tease and a cutup and laughs triumphantly when she's fielded a new question successfully.

Her interviewer mentions that he once passed a Broadway theater where she was appearing and she pulled up in a convertible and dashed backstage. He asks her, "Why would a notoriously private person like yourself have a license plate that says, 'KH'?" Without a pause she says, "So I could tell which was my car."

Post gets satellite dish

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning's television station will include even more programming capabilities and the full-time services of the post's first Army broadcaster since 1971.

Sgt. Sydni Redmond of the Public Affairs Office, who graduated from the Defense Information School's Broadcast Journalist course in November, said that the final adjustments have been made to a new satellite dish antenna at Infantry Hall that allows the post to pick up broadcasts from the Soldier's Radio Satellite Network. These audio broadcasts will be aired on the post command information television channel, U.S. Army Infantry Center TV, channel 32 on CVI Cable, and will feature popular music, hourly Army news updates and important press briefings.

"Few posts can afford staffing their own radio stations, so this is an excellent alternative," Redmond said. "It is also an excellent way for Fort Benning personnel to stay current on what is happening with the Army all over the world and about vital issues that could affect them."

The station will still feature timely reports from the Soldiers Radio and Television Network and the latest editions of "Victory News," a program out of Fort Stewart, Ga., which covers issues concerning the 24th Infantry Division. The newest feature will be a scrolling community bulletin board that lists the latest post events and happenings.

"We are also working on 'Fort Benning Today,' the post's own news program," said Redmond.

In addition to her television duties, she prepares tri-weekly post news updates that air on AM 1420 WRCG.

"It's both challenging and rewarding to be in a position where you are working nearly solo," said Redmond. "It requires a lot of extra hours, but it's a rare opportunity. Few people in my field get to work on radio and television programming simultaneously.

"I get a lot of support from the Public Affairs Office and the civilians of Educational Television of the Directorate of Operations and Training. Without Tim Spain, Don Cox and Richard Dickerson, my TV dreams would often turn into nightmares," she added.

Redmond said she is pleased with the changes made and looks forward to making 'Fort Benning Today' one of the best news programs in the Army.

Benning 2000 takes off

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning is joining an educational movement designed to take America into the 21st century with a revitalized educational system.

Fort Benning 2000 is the local counterpart of America 2000, a set of goals developed by the nation's governors under the direction of President George Bush.

According to Dr. Rolla Baumgartner, superintendent of Fort Benning Schools and a member of both the Fort Benning 2000 steering committees, the program is designed to combine efforts for educational improvements on a community level infants through adults.

Baumgartner said the Fort Benning 2000 steering committee, headed by Col. Robert M. Tesdahl, Training and Doctrine Command System Manager-Soldier, has formally adopted the six educational goals set forth by the national committee.

The goals, slated for achievement by the year 2000, are:

- All children in America will start school ready to learn.
- The high school graduation rate will increase to at least 90 percent.
- American students will leave grades four, eight and 12 having demonstrated competency in challenging subject matter including English, mathematics, science, history and geography; and every school in America will ensure that all students learn to use their minds well, so they may be prepared for responsible citizenship, further learning, and productive employment in our modern economy.
- U.S. students will be first in the world in science and mathematics achievement.
- Every adult American will be literate and will possess the knowledge and skills necessary to compete in a global economy and exercise the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.
- Every school in America will be free of drugs and violence and will offer a disciplined environment conducive to learning.

Baumgartner said the projected scope of the program will include educators, parents, churches, social services and the business community pooling their resources to learn, first, where the community stands in relation to the goals and next, what is required to achieve them.

The program, said Baumgartner, which was kicked off at a luncheon with committee members and the commanding general, Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, could eventually include, among other initiatives, programs designed to bring parents into the schools on a regular basis.

"We at Fort Benning have already established such a program at Wilbur Elementary School," Baumgartner pointed out. "It is, however, the type of program that could come out of Fort Benning 2000.

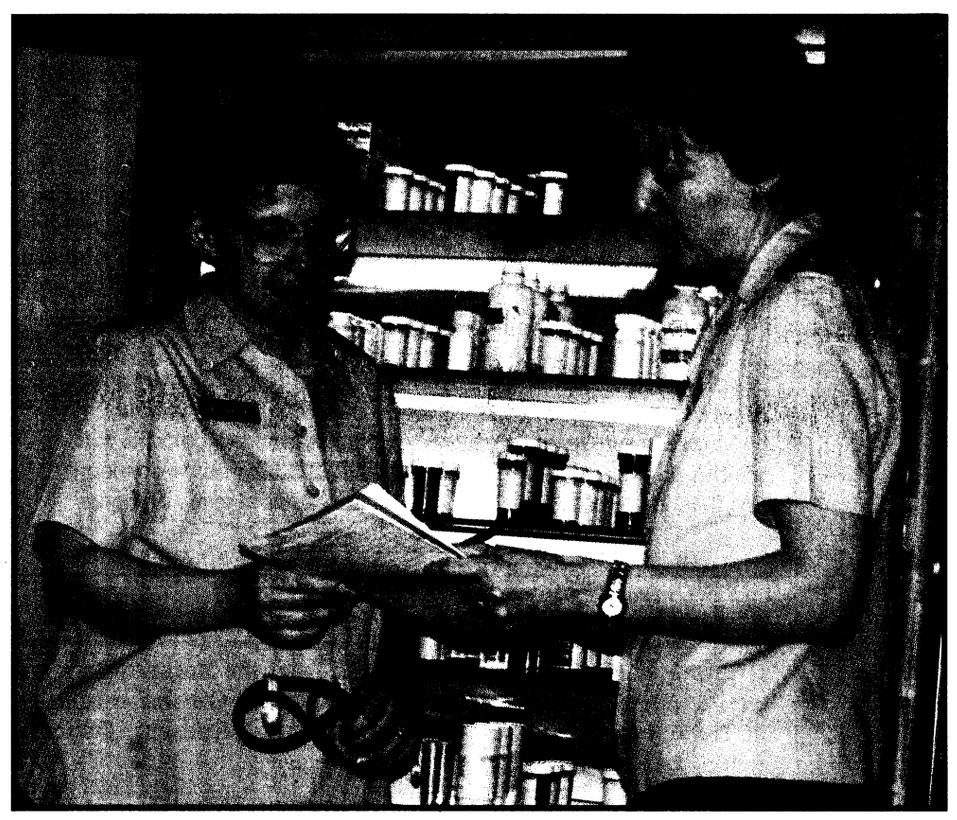
"Another community, which is ahead of us by about a year, has implemented an in-school "latchkey" program in which child care workers coordinate with teachers to provide after-hours care in the school setting, and including emphasis on schoolwork.

"The large committee which will ultimately come about," said Baumgartner, "should, if it follows the national focus, establish a report card to periodically measure how far we've come toward meeting the goals."

Excellence to be honored

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White will host the Excellence Appreciation Day continental breakfast Feb. 18 from 8 to 9 a.m. at the Supper Club of the Fort Benning Officer's Club.



The purpose of the breakfast is to recognize the civilian and military personnel who have contributed to making Fort Benning a community of excellence.

Selection of individuals to be recognized will be determined by commanders, directors and principal staff officers. Individuals should be selected based on their overall positive impact on the achievement of excellence within the workplace and community.

Names of each organization's attendees, including honorees, should be submitted no later than Jan. 29.

Tickets for the breakfast are $4 per person and will be available in the basement of the Parrish Building, Building 66.

To submit names, call Anne Pallotta at 545-2936 or Patricia Burch at 545-1713.

Family practice clinic opens

USAIC Public Affairs Office

A ribbon-cutting ceremony for the newly expanded Winder Family Practice Clinic was conducted Tuesday.

The clinic is located in Fort Benning's Sand Hill training area, on the corner of Scott Avenue and 13th Street. Patients began using the new annex Monday.

Col. Vernon C. Spaulding, Martin Army Community Hospital commander, hosted the ceremony with Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, Fort Benning commanding general, who served as the guest speaker.

The clinic was named after Pfc. David F. Winder, a senior medical aidman with 1st Infantry, 11th Infantry Brigade, Americal Division, who posthumously received the Medal of Honor for his efforts to help fallen comrades in Vietnam in 1970.

The expanded clinic will serve as a primary entry point into the hospital's Gateway To Care Program, which is designed to provide family practice medical care to those enrolled. In addition to the opening of the clinic annex, Monday also marked the closure of the Kelley Hill Family Practice Clinic which is being merged into the renovated Winder facility.

Gateway To Care briefings for retirees and active duty families will be 6 p.m in the Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall Tuesday, Feb. 2 and Feb. 9.

Network for deployed now on-line

Family members can call units if group chain can't be reached

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

Family unit networks have been set up for family members of soldiers deployed to Somalia as part of Operation Restore Hope.

The 36th Engineer Group has rear detachment members available to assist family members in times of crisis when the family member chain network, set up by spouses of deployed soldiers, is unable to assist or cannot be reached, according to 1st Lt. Alex Lucas of the 43rd Engineer Battalion, 36th Engineer Group.

"Family members should try to use the posted roster of contacts given to them at the family member briefings," said Lucas. "But if the contacts are unable to give them the help they need or cannot be reached, they can call us."

The unit phone numbers are as follows:

608th Ordnance Company — 545-4783

598th Maintenance Company — 545-4306

533rd Transportation Company — 545-2619

43rd Engineer Battalion — 545-7616

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 36th Engineer Group — 545-2886

63rd Engineer Company (Combat Support Equipment)— 545-6404.

MLK Day speaker weighs progress of leader's dream

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

"... little children will one day live in a nation where they will no longer be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character."

Nearly 1,000 people gathered to hear the product of King's dreams speak — an African-American soldier who overcame civil rights obstacles to succeed in his career.

Maj. Gen. Fred A. Gorden, assistant deputy chief of staff for personnel, reflected on many of King's teachings as they applied to his life.

Gorden, an Alabama-born soldier, said the assassination of King "plummeted a major obstacle into the fight for equality."

Gorden acknowledged that Americans have made vast improvement in the years since he was a child.

"From my foxhole, it's clearer today that America is closer to the constitutional idea of equality," said Gorden.

"From the present, we must cast our headlights to the road ahead," said Gorden.

Gorden is a 1962 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. He graduated as the only African-American in a class of 601.

He served with the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam in 1967. His career reflects service at prominent military organizations, including assignments with the 7th Infantry Division (Light) and as director of Inter-American Region of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs.

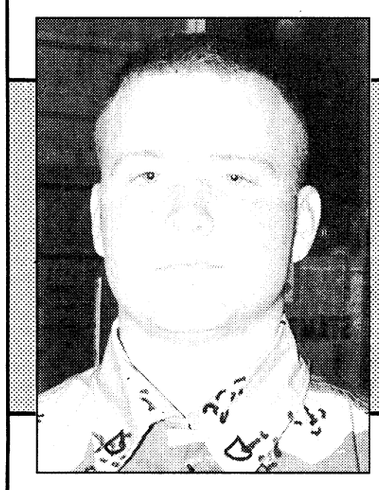
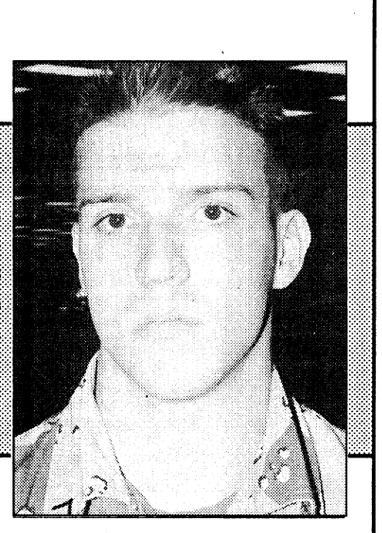
VARIOUS VOICES



What do you think is the best way to handle the situation in Iraq?



Sgt. Clyde Mitchell, Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment —"If an agreement can't be made with Iraq, I think the best way to handle it is to go in and not make the same mistake we made last time by pulling out too early."

Staff Sgt. Charles Scroggins, Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — I think the best way to handle it is to continue sanctions and try to get some cooperation from Saddam Hussein."

Pfc. Victor Deason, 43rd Engineer Battalion — I think the best way to handle the situation is to kill Saddam Hussein. Nothing else seems to have worked."

Pvt. 2 Scott Allman, 43rd Engineer Battalion — "I think the best way to handle it is to have more military action. If we would have done it right the first time, we wouldn't be there now."

Phebe Brewer, Army and Air Force Exchange Service employee — "I think the best way to handle it is to go in there and put an end to it."

Sexual harassment no joke

COMMENTARY

POSH. The sound of a can of Busch being opened? No, an acronym for Prevention of Sexual Harassment.

We at Fort Benning have gone into a full court press to educate men and women, military and civilian, as to just what sexual harassment is.

Some would say "it's in the eye of the beholder," or "what the recipient of unwanted attention makes it out to be."

Opinions on what sexual harassment is may differ, but what is certain is that the classes being taught are very necessary.

The current slew of classes are for civilians and for supervisors of civilians.

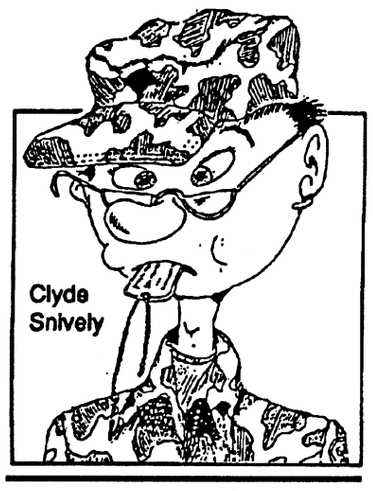
But one captain working in Infantry Hall proves how necessary they are while concurrently raising the question of their effectiveness.

During the class he attended, he directed his macho male, stereotypical remarks toward one of the women in the class.

He let her know that he couldn't believe she was a supervisor, said she looked too young to be a supervisor, thought she was a secretary and said the office she worked in had far too many women supervisors.

To cap it off and put his other size 10 boot into his mouth, demonstrating how much he hadn't learned, he told her, "I'd like to sexually harass you."

Unfortunately she didn't drive a heel into his toe or a knee into his groin, demonstrating a lot more maturity than he'll ever possess.



I think sexual harassment stems from two sources.

We are ignorant of what we are doing. Ignorant of the fact that what we do offends others. And we are such insensitive clods we'll never wise up to it unless hit upside the head with a two by four.

Unfortunately, the classes being given are mere twigs. They will reach those who are already sensitive and are willing to learn, but aren't even going to reach the closed minded and bigoted.

Those raised south of the Mason-Dixon line, the center of Southern gentility probably will never understand that some women, especially those "Damn Yankee women," will always be uncomfortable when some gentleman calls them "honey," and thinks he has to touch them to let them know that he as a Southern gentleman is happy to be around them (although he still can't see women in the work place).

Southern women also tend to call everyone, no matter what age or gender "honey" and "dear."

The people teaching the classes call this "static."

Then there are the pig-headed, obtuse dolts who are so insecure in themselves they are always looking for someone to put down, conquer and dominate.

They purposely practice sexual harassment, telling off-color stories in front of women to see if they blush, suggesting after hours rendezvous, and pawing these women in the work place.

All the sexual harassment or sensitivity classes in the world won't reach these Neanderthals. But what will hopefully reach them are supervisors who know better and know what action to take. And in the Army, everyone has a supervisor.

And yes, women can be guilty of sexual harassment against men (or other women) just as male supervisors can be guilty of sexual harassment against other men — if they pick out women for special favors over male subordinates.

Of course as more people are educated about sexual harassment, they will also know when they are being sexually harassed and will know what to do about it.

My advise: treat others with respect, keep your hands to yourselves and call people by name rather than terms of endearment (save that for your spouse or girl/boy friend).

OPERATION RESTORE HOPE

Group commander sends message

Greetings from Mogadishu. After the safe arrival of three C141Bs, a 757 and an L1011, 614 soldiers from the 36th Engineer Group are on the ground in a secure base camp in the western suburbs of the city. Most of our vehicles and equipment have been off loaded from our first ship, the Bellatrix, and 23 new M916A1 trucks will be off loaded from the Algol today.

Morale is very high and all are anxious to start work. We ate our first T-ration meal for breakfast this morning, and a more normal work routine has been established, focused on constructing latrines and showers.

Although we've not received the formal order yet, all indications are that we will work the main supply routes from Mogadishu to Kismayu to Bardera to Baidoa to Oddur, a total of 1,200 kilometers of road constructed along existing "goat trails" or road repair as required.

Our carpenters, masons, plumbers and electricians will likely find themselves building base camps at many of these locations for American, Australian, Belgian, French and Indian forces. Our goal is to complete as much work as possible before the rainy season begins in mid-March.

Weather for now is great, warm with dry and breezy days and comfortable nights. All sleep on cots with mosquito netting but the insects are not as much of a problem as predicted. Most everyone is getting six to eight hours of sleep a day.

Fort Benning did an absolutely superb job of preparing us for this mission. Our personnel and equipment have arrived in good shape, ready for the task at hand.

Safety and security are emphasized constantly to prevent serious injury and equipment damage.

The biggest morale booster of all is knowing we enjoy the love and support of our families back home, and that a caring Fort Benning community will ensure their safekeeping until we return.

Col. Phillip R. Anderson
Commander
36th Engineer Group

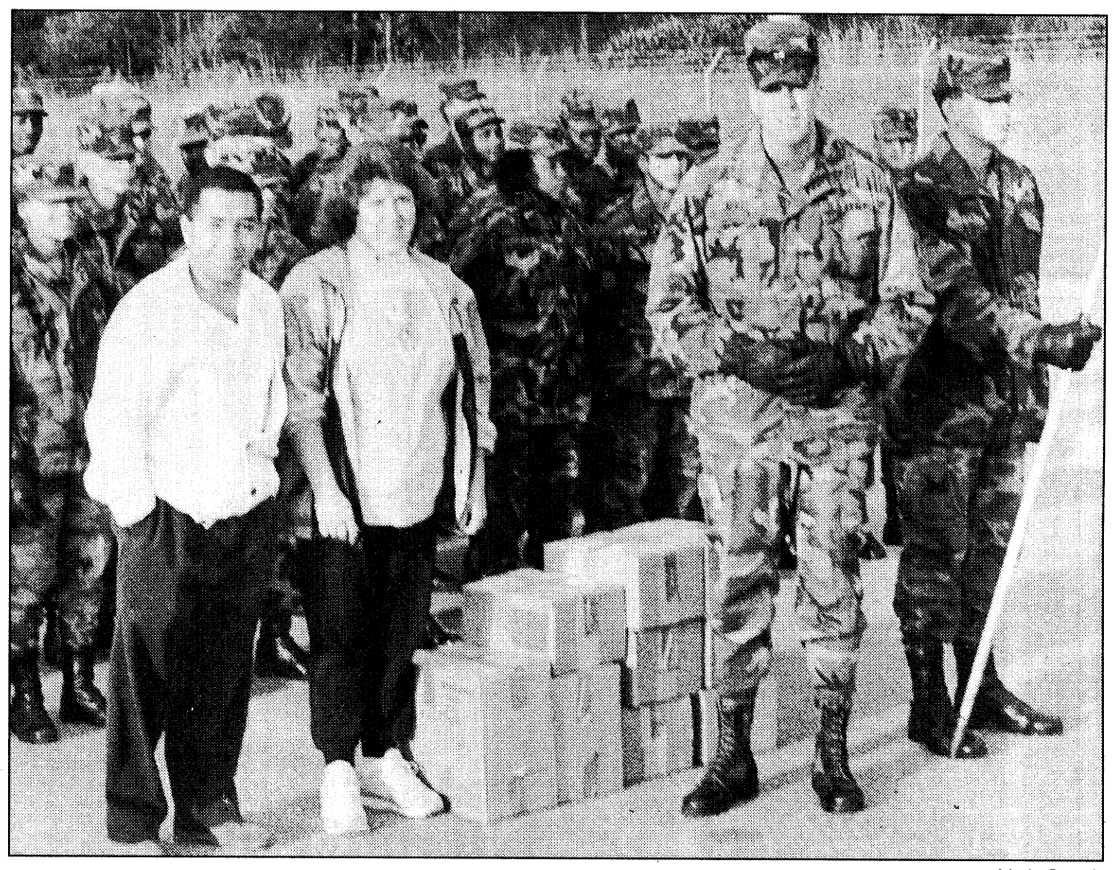
OCS candidates to branch

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Seventeen Officer Candidate School candidates will branch field artillery and air defense artillery and nine will branch Army aviation in ceremonies today.

The artillery ceremony will be at 1:30 p.m. and the aviation ceremony will be at 4 p.m. in Wigle Hall.

The aviation candidates are: Brett Clark, Thomas Copeland, Robert Donat, Jeffery Gardner, Lance Kolb, Lawrence Micklus, Paul Rogers, Ciro Stefano and Joseph Woody.



Col. Thomas Garrett, deputy assistant commandant, U.S. Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, Ala., will speak and present the officers with their first set of aviation brass. Each candidate will also receive a letter of welcome from Maj. Gen. John. D. Robinson, commanding general of the Aviation Center.

The candidates, who graduate Thursday, will continue their Army careers as second lieutenants by attending the Aviation Officer Basic Course and Initial Entry Rotary Wing Course at Fort Rucker.

Thomas Acklen, Gordon Crawford, Wilber Everritt, Steven Foster, Dannell Gamel, Jay Gardner, Daniel Harper, Anthony Heigard, Timothy Hight, Herman Jones, Fobert Machen, Johnny Mack, Michael Millward, Robert Neitzel and Robert Orsi will branch field artillery while Jeffery Gun and Gregory Kentel will branch air defense artillery.

Lt. Col. Reid Lund of the U.S. Army Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Texas, will speak and present them with their first set of field artillery or air defense brass. Each candidate will also receive a letter of welcome from their respective branch's commanding general.

The candidates, who will also graduate on Thursday, will attend either the Field Artillery Officer Basic Course at Fort Sill, Okla., or the Air Defense Artillery Officer Basic Course at Fort Bliss.

Books to go

Capt. John Riley, commander of Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, accepts nine boxes of books and magazines from David DeLeon and Denise MacDonald of the Red Cross. The books were donated to the Red Cross by Anderson News to be given to soldiers deploying to Somalia.

Legion gives aid to families

The American Legion

Families of American service men and women deployed in support of Operation Restore Hope can find help with everyday needs from minor car repairs to baby-sitting to an understanding ear from the Family Support Network of the American Legion.

The network is easily accessed 24 hours a day by calling toll free (800) 433-3318.

More than 28,000 American military members are involved in Operation Restore Hope, an international effort to protect needed food supplies and distribution workers in famine-plagued Somalia.

The 4.2 million members of the American Legion family realize that military deployments can cause unusual problems for the spouse and family left at home.

The hot line is answered from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. An American Legion representative will discuss a caller's needs and begin the process of locating a legion family member in the caller's hometown who can provide assistance.

After business hours and on weekends, callers may leave their name and the city they are calling from, the return phone number and a brief explanation of their need on an answering machine and action begins on the next business day.

The network handled more than 35,000 calls During Operation Desert Storm in six months.

Legion volunteers across the nation responded to a variety of needs, including driving a car from Texas to New England for a family member, providing driving lessons for a spouse who needed the skill, securing an apartment after a burglary, and providing minor home repairs.

Additionally, $548,000 in grants to Desert Storm families have been provided.

The 3.1 million members of the American Legion are wartime veterans, including those from Desert Storm, Operation Just Cause, Lebanon and Grenada, who understand the special challenges of a military family separation.

The 1 million members of the American Legion Auxiliary and 125,000 members of the Sons of the American Legion have joined again to ensure the success of the network.

The resources of these community volunteers are ready to provide service as American military members help to bring critical food supplies to starving Somalians.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were extracted from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Jan. 4 to 10. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt and/or innocence of any person.

• This week's hot topic concerns bicycle larcenies. Several bicycles have been stolen in the last three months, with a majority of them left unsecured in government housing areas.

Residents are asked to secure bicycles to a permanent fixture (telephone pole, fence, etc.). Keep a picture of your bicycle along with a copy of the serial number; this helps police recover stolen bicycles.

• A specialist was charged by civil authorities with driving under the influence of alcohol without headlights, driving without a valid driver's license and giving false information to a law enforcement officer.

• A sergeant first class was charged with failure to obey a lawful written order and cruelty to animals after allowing one of his dogs to wear a collar which was too small, causing a deep laceration and infection to the dog's neck.

• A civilian was charged with murder after a young woman's body was found in an isolated wooded area on post. The suspected cause of death was a gunshot wound to the head.

• A specialist was seriously injured and his brother was murdered during a shooting incident in Mississippi. The specialist and his brother were arguing with an unknown individual when the individual got a pistol from his car and shot both the specialist and his brother twice. The specialist is listed in stable condition in a Mississippi hospital.

• A sergeant was charged with indecent acts with a child under the age of 16, after fondling a 14-year-old girl who was residing at his quarters.

• A specialist was charged with assault consummated by battery, failure to register a weapon and failure to obey a written order or regulation. He pointed a pistol at his wife during an argument and slapped her in the face. A search of the quarters revealed a .25-caliber pistol that was not registered on post.

• Two juveniles were apprehended for robbery after holding up the Mini Mall Gas Station at gunpoint. They took the cash drawer, which contained $735.89 and fled the scene in the direction of I-185. The police identified them that night.

• Two privates were charged by civil authorities with rape after they took a woman to a local motel and had intercourse with her against her will. The privates were later identified by the victim in a police lineup.

• This week's booby prize is awarded to a civilian who drove her car into a staff sergeant's car, then took a hammer and beat on his windshield. She was apprehended three days later, at which time it was discovered that she had been barred from post last January because of a similar incident.

Other activities included 19 traffic accidents and three reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were four cases of driving under the influence, four reported cases of larceny of private property and six reported cases of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest!"

Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

CALFEX may cause loud noises Monday

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Weapons firing in the northeast part of Fort Benning may cause louder noises than usual between the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday during the U.S. Army Infantry School's Combined Arms Live Fire Exercise rehearsals and demonstration.

Weapons scheduled to be fired at Cactus Range include the main guns on the Bradley Infantry Fighting Vehicle, the Abrams Tank, 155mm artillery, 4.2 inch mortars, 2.75 inch rockets and Hellfire Missiles. Tactical aircraft will drop 500-pound bombs.

Students from the Air Force Staff College and Fort Benning's Infantry Officers' Advanced Course are expected to attend the CALFEX. The CALFEX shows students the planning and execution process of a combined arms operation, along with the difficulty of synchronizing such an exercise.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Rick Parker

Staff Judge Advocate's office

Q: My spouse and I are having marital problems, so I have moved out of the house. It looks like we need a legal separation. What do we need to to get one?

A: A legal separation occurs when a husband and wife intend to stop living as a married couple and act on that intent by physically separating themselves.

As a result, if you have moved out of the home with the intention of not being together as a man and wife, you are legally separated. It does not require a written agreement or court order to accomplish this.

However, because a marriage is a financial partnership, and because in some cases there are children to consider, a written separation agreement can be important to have — it can be used to establish ground rules for the conduct of your financial affairs, property affairs and family affairs during the course of your separation.

While in a state of separation, some decisions have to be made about who pays the bills, who gets the use of the property, who has custody of the children and what financial support is necessary. Some couples are able to make these decisions and abide by them without the benefit of a written agreement. Many couples, because of the emotions involved, need the rules to be written.

If you are going to pursue this course of action, you need to sit down with your spouse and discuss these issues, negotiate where necessary and reach at least a verbal agreement that can later be put in written form. Try to approach this discussion with an open mind, putting aside for the moment any hurt or anger that may be associated with the need for the separation.

A separation agreement will only work if it is practical to both parties — demanding to receive or agreeing to pay excessive support, or, on the other hand, demanding to pay or agreeing to receive inadequate support, will only lead to arguments and court battles later on down the line.

If the spouses later decide to get divorced, a good separation agreement can usually serve as the basis for the resolution of the custody, property and financial issues that arise in the court action.

If the parties find, after entering into an agreement, that changes need to be made, these changes should also be done in writing and signed by both parties.

If you need advice in this area, and assistance with the preparation of a written separation agreement, the attorneys in the Legal Assistance Division are available on an appointment basis.

Because these cases involve two spouses who are in conflict with one another, the division is only able to advise and assist one of the spouses. If the other spouse desires legal assistance, an appointment can be set up, through the division, with an attorney outside of the division.

The division cannot represent either party in a divorce action however.

Igloos 'cold storage' for used motor oil

Available for use in 3 weeks

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Ready to change the oil in your car and looking for a place to dispose of it?

Within three weeks, the oil igloos at the Main Post and Custer Road fire stations should be in operation for this purpose, according to Mo Armstrong, Fort Benning's Solid Waste and Recycling manager for the Office of Environmental Management at the Directorate of Public Works.

Currently, the foundations for these storage units have been poured, and Armstrong is waiting for the gravel to be placed in the plastic liners before lowering the igloos. These precautions are taken as protection in the event of a leak.

Armstrong said the procedures for dumping motor oil will include checking with someone at the fire station prior to dumping, dumping oil only (no gasoline, anti-freeze or other contaminate), and taking home the container the oil was brought in.

When full, the igloos will be pumped, and the oil, like other waste oil, will be burned at the energy plant for heating purposes on the installation.

Two 360-gallon containers also are scheduled to be placed at the Main Post Exchange Service Station.

Armstrong noted that this is just part of a comprehensive recycling program under way at Fort Benning.

A Material Recovery Facility building is currently under construction and should be completed in about 2 1/2 months.

Collectables such as aluminum cans, glass, plastics and cardboard will be gathered at the facility, sorted and prepared for resale to contractors.

Armstrong has estimated that having this facility will increase recycling profits from $800,000 per year to $1 million per year.

Funding is now being appropriated to equip the facility with balers, glass crushers and plastic shredders.

Recycling containers for each set of quarters will also be purchased so that perhaps as early as May curbside pickup of recyclables can begin.

Armstrong noted that contractors are on line for all of the recycled materials, and his office will be hiring two people to run the trucks doing the curbside pickup with another five persons to process materials inside the Material Recovery Facility.

School bells to ring in changes

USAIC Public Affairs Office

School assignments will be changing for many Fort Benning Schools' students in grades kindergarten through five when the bell rings to start school next fall.

The opening of the new Stowers Elementary School, which will serve all students living in the Bouton Heights and Davis Hill communities, will also result in new assignments for other Fort Benning children.

Both Wilbur and Patch Schools will be closed with those students who currently attend Wilbur moving to Loyd. Main Post Patch students will attend White. A few other changes have been made to balance the attendance load.

Attendance for children in grades kindergarten through five will be as follows:

South Main Post - Dexter School (no change)

North Main Post - White School (no change)

McDaniel Manor - White School (moved from Dexter)

Upatoi Terrace - White School (moved from Loyd)

McGraw Manor

Grades kindergarten though third - McBride School (no change)

Grades fourth through fifth - White School (no change)

Bouton Heights - Stowers School (moved from Loyd, Patch and White)

Davis Hill - Stowers School (moved from Wilbur)

Custer Terrace - Loyd School (moved from Wilbur)

Battle Park - Loyd School (moved from Wilbur)

Old Officer Capehart - Loyd School (moved from Wilbur)

Indianhead Terrace - Wilson School (no change)

The new Stowers School is scheduled for completion late this spring and will accommodate 650 students in the Davis Hill and Bouton Heights communities.

The school includes a media center/library, computer room, special education facilities, music and art rooms, gymnasium and cafeteria/auditorium.

The school is centrally located in the housing area permitting all students to walk to school. Paved and lighted trails are being built between the school and the neighborhoods.

Wilbur School Principal Gail Wilson will be the principal of the Stowers School when it opens in August.

Parents with questions about where their child will go to school next year can call the Fort Benning School's administrative office at 545-2500.

Talks focus on young children

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The fourth session of Talks About Young Children (ages 0 to 5) series, "Children's Behavior Patterns and Preferences: How to Make the Most of Your Child's Strengths," will be Feb. 8 at Dexter School from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

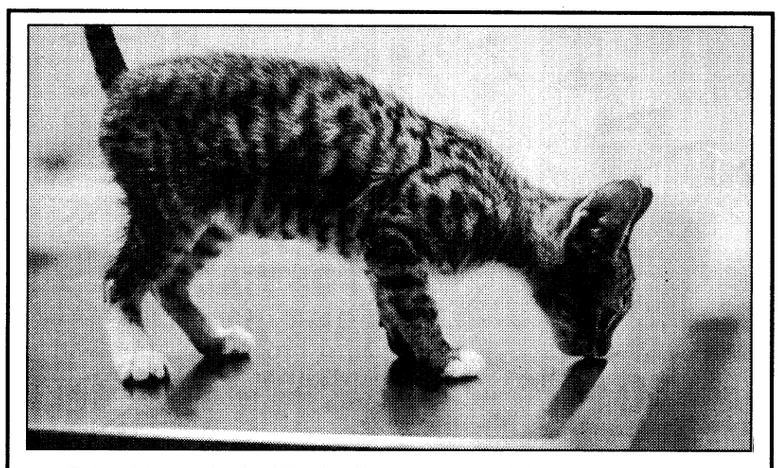
The free lecture series, aimed at Fort Benning parents, caregivers and educators features programs about young children. Participants can choose to attend any or all of the lectures, however, a phone reservation for each session will be required since space in each session is limited.

Dr. Judy Archer, coordinator of Language Arts and Social Studies for the Fort Benning Schools, will present the program.

The focus of this session will be on understanding the ways in which children learn; how to recognize and build upon their strengths; how to motivate children to follow parental directions and requests; and strategies to help children develop critical readiness skills for school.

Reservations for this lecture will be taken until Feb. 5 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. or until the session is full.

Children are not permitted to attend.



Tot Town will be open from 6:15 to 9:15 p.m. on the evenings of the series. Parents are responsible for registration and payment.

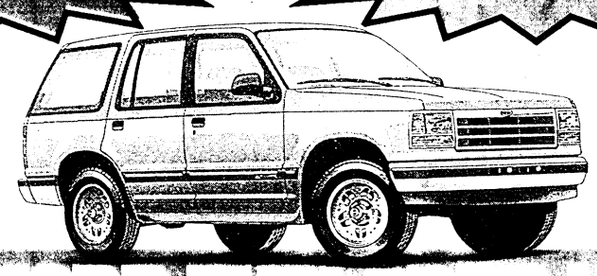
The final session, "Learning Together: Creative Activities at Home and the Community Resources for Parents and Young Children," will be March 3.

It will be presented by members of the Fort Benning Schools staff and speakers from the Fort Benning and Columbus region.

This the second year that the Fort Benning Schools have sponsored this series. It was developed to address one of the national goals for education — that children who enter school will be ready to learn.

PET OF THE WEEK

This white-socked tabby (male, age 5 weeks) is looking for a home. If you would like to adopt him or another pet, contact the Veterinary Services office in Building 265, with the Animal Adoption Facility in Building 263 next door. Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. For more information, call 545-1127.



If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility. Animal control on post is a division of the Military Police Activity. An officer will pick up strays and take them to the stray impoundment kennels, located in building 263. Once the animal arrives, it has three working days to be claimed. If the pet is not claimed, it becomes government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are important, too, because it's the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner. Pet owners should update their records when changes occur and register pets. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

Fish 'light' for bass

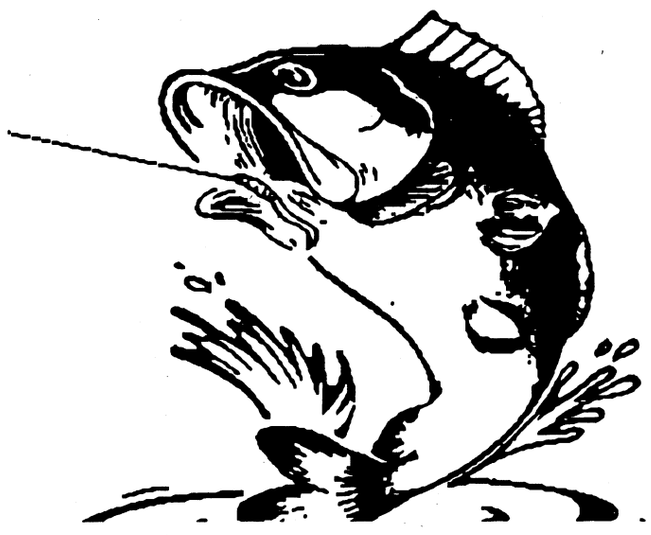
By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corp.

If you lose more than your share of bass because of missed strikes, the problem may not be finicky fish or dull hooks on your lure.

It might be your fishing rod.

That's the opinion of Texas guide and professional tournament angler Randy Dearman, who says changing to lighter action rods has solved the lost-bass problem for him.

"It's especially critical with topwater lures like buzz baits and spoons," explained the professional angler, "because the fish need an extra second or two to actually engulf the lure before you set the hook.



"A limber rod that flexes easily gives you this time because it bends as soon as the fish hits, and it continues to flex as you set the hook.

"With a stiff rod, you actually take the lure away from the bass before the bass has a chance to get it."

This is one reason many serious bass fishermen now use fiberglass rods instead of graphite rods for crankbaits, adds Dearman. A limber fiberglass rod flexes the instant a fish strikes, and because the lure is normally moving rapidly when the strike does come, the fish hooks itself.

"Anglers probably miss more bass with topwater buzz baits than on any other lure," said the pro, "because of the way the fish strike it. Some of the problems are due to the lure design, but most anglers miss because their rods are too stiff and don't allow the bass to completely get the lure.

"As soon as the bass feels the resistance of the rod, it opens its mouth and drops the lure."

Dearman, who has been a bass fishing guide in east Texas for two decades, formerly used only heavy action rods for all his fishing, because that was the accepted practice in fishing.

"Today, I don't use any heavy action rods," he said. "My favorite rods are medium action, and they have limber tips so the rods bend easily. I use them for spinnerbaits, jigs, and even plastic worms, and don't have any problems with getting a good hook-set.

"Many fishermen believe you need stiff, heavy action rods to be able to bring bass out of heavy cover and up to the surface, but in truth, a lighter action rod will do the same thing, and do it better. Just look at the size of the fish fly fishermen hook and land with their light rods.

"All you have to do is learn to use the rod properly."

Get sharp for fishing

By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corp.

For more than 20 years, Guy Eaker has watched bass anglers make the same mistake: fishing with dull hooks.

"I'm amazed," said Eaker, a former fishing guide and now a full-time bass tournament competitor.

"I've watched fishermen use hooks that were so dull and rusted you could break them with your fingers, so you know they would never hold a bass."

Many of the pros actually change hooks on their lures almost as often as they change fishing line.

Eaker takes boxes of new hooks in various sizes with him to each tournament, and checks his lures after each day of competition. If a hook appears the least bit dull, it gets replaced.

On the water, he keeps a special file in his tackle box so he can sharpen hooks that may get dull after continually running through rocks, brush or other heavy cover.

What's important when sharpening a hook, explained the pro, is making an angular point on the barb of the hook so it cuts as it penetrates.

"You know you have a sharp hook when the barb will scratch and hold on your fingernail," says Eaker. "You know how a lot of bass will just bump a lure rather than actually bite it? Well, I want my hooks to grab the fish when they do that.

"It only takes a few minutes using a pair of pliers to completely replace a treble hook on a lure; and, if you use a sharpening stone, it only takes a few seconds to make a sharp point," he said. "Dull or broken hooks really should never be an excuse for losing fish."

'Strike' it rich with bowling specials

By Kimberly Bennett
Directorate of Community Activities

Bowling has been a popular pastime for years, and at the Fort Benning Bowling Centers, it is becoming even more popular thanks to state-of-the-art lanes and computer systems, leagues and daily specials.

Two years ago, both the Main Post Bowling Center and the Mall Bowling Center under went extensive renovations in order to provide its customers the best lanes possible.

Each center now has 24 synthetic lanes, which allow for easier maintenance and higher scores. With the new lanes, the bowler now has more control of the ball.

"Since we got the new lanes, our number of customers has increased," said Daisy Arrington, an employee at the Main Post center. "We've had several 300 games since we got the new lanes."

The centers also added a new computerized scoring system. The new system is fast, accurate and easy to learn, Arrington said.

All this makes league bowling even more competitive. Both centers host leagues every Saturday morning and every weekday except Tuesday.

Anyone interested in joining a league should contact the bowling centers for more information.

The newest league is the Company Level Bowling League. This active duty league bowls Monday nights at both the Main Post and mall centers.

Wednesdays, the Officers Mixed Doubles League for active duty and retired military members bowls at the Main Post center, while the Fort Benning Mixed Doubles meet at the mall center.

On Thursday mornings, the Main Post center hosts the Officers' Wives' Club League. In the evening, the Main Post center is the site for the Soldier/Major League, which is open to active duty and retired military personnel, family members and civilians. At the mall center, the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity League bowls.

The Friday Night Misfit League meets at the Main Post center every Friday night; this league is also open to active duty and retired military personnel, family members and civilians. At the mall on Friday, the Lads and Lassies, a mixed league, takes to the lanes.

And on Saturday mornings, the lanes belong to the children's league — the Saturday Morning Sleepers. Children ages 6 to 18 can bowl while their parents rest.

The bowling centers also offer a variety of specials to keep bowlers returning. The specials are offered during the week except on holidays.

The Pot of Gold special is the largest. With the $2 entrance fee, bowlers can bowl three games and have a chance to win $2,000. All the bowler has to do is score a strike in each of the frames designated by the bowling center. The winning frames are changed every week.

Another on-going special is the Winter Special. Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; a game is 75 cents.

Monday through Thursday evenings, the centers have a "Nine O'Clock" special. Bowlers can bowl three games from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. for $3.90.

The Retired Military Special allows retired military personnel to bowl for 85 cents a game. This special runs Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Main Post center and Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the mall center.

The Red Head Pin special is in effect anytime during open bowling. If a red head pin is included in a strike, the bowler wins a free pass.

The mall center offers a late night special every Friday and Saturday night. Bowlers can bowl for $6.50 per person from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m.

The center even has a children's special. This special is based on the grades of first- through eighth-graders.

For every "A" on the report card, the student wins a free pass and free shoe rental. The teachers distribute the passes.

Specials are offered in the Main Post center's snack bar as well. With every purchase of $3 or more, the customer receives a free game, and on Monday through Friday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., all snack bar customers can enter their names for a free lunch drawing.

And when customers spend more than $50 in the centers' pro shops, they receive five free passes.

Discount ticket books are also available. The book contains 15 tickets that can be used anytime. The book itself, however, can only be purchased Monday through Friday.

Because bowling is such a popular activity, the bowling centers are often sites for parties. Hails and farewells can be held at the Main Post center on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights for $7 per person.

Children's birthdays are great times to have a bowling party, and the bowling centers try to make it an enjoyable day. Parties can be held on the weekends until 5 p.m. and include two games, shoes, favors, drinks, french fries and coupons for free games.

For young bowlers, the centers provide bumper bowling. Bumpers are inflated in the gutters so small children can have a chance to knock down as many pins as possible. The bumpers can be inflated for parties, when they are requested, or when space is available.

And when the game is over, customers can gather in the centers' lounges or snack bars. The mall center's newly renovated lounge, Chatters, is a full bar and grill with a laser beam CD player.

The Fort Benning bowling centers provide countless hours of entertainment for young or old, active duty or retired military personnel, and skilled or beginning bowlers.

Bowling is a sport that can be played alone or in a group. But no matter who is playing or how it is being played, the bowling centers on post and at the mall make it fun, said officials.

Mike Brown sets sights for '93 season

Columbus RedStixx

Mike Brown will return to manage the Columbus Redstixx for the third straight season, the Cleveland Indians announced recently.

Brown, who led Columbus to the South Atlantic League playoffs last season with a 77-62 regular-season record, will be entering his fifth season as a minor-league manager.

In his first four seasons as a coach, Brown has compiled a 255-228 record. His teams have always finished above .500. Brown's Columbus record over the past two seasons is 150-131.

Under Brown, the '92 RedStixx won the first-half pennant. They went 20-7 in June, including an eight-game winning streak. Brown was named the league's manager of the year.

Columbus led the South Atlantic League in runs scored in '91, and their five-runs-per-game average in '92 was the league's second best.

"We're excited to have Mike (Brown) back," said RedStixx general manager John Dittrich. "It isn't often that a minor league team gets to keep someone as good as Mike for three years. He is dedicated to winning, and is a good influence on the young players who come here."

Returning as pitching coach will be Fred Gladding, regarded as one of Cleveland's best teachers of pitching mechanics. When the Indians drafted righthander Paul Shuey with the second pick in last June's draft, they sent him (and his $600,000 bonus) to Columbus to work with Gladding.

Gladding is a former relief pitcher with the Detroit Tigers and Houston Astros, and enjoyed an 11-year big league career.

Gladding had a previous stint as Columbus' pithcing coach from 1987 to '89 with the Astros.

Former Indians farmhand Dan Williams will serve as bench coach for the RedStixx. He is entering his fourth year as a coach.

Ted Blackwell returns for his third year as RedStixx trainer. Dan Norman, who coached at Columbus last season, was assigned elsewhere for '93.

Opening Day is April 8, against Charleston, W.Va., at Golden Park.

Cols. team offers new ticket package

ReddStixx

The RedStixx front office staff has devised a ticket package for the 1993 season. It's called a "Stixx Pak," and contains one ticket for 25 selected ball games.

At $99, the pack offers a 20 percent savings off the regular gate price.

The "StixxPak" begins April 8, opening day, and continues throughout the season. Since each ticket is a box seat, fans will receive each give-away item, no matter what time they get to the game.

Tickets included in the "StixxPak" cover 17 weekend games, and can be used for general admission on any of the 11 unused ticket nights throughout theseason.

The "StixxPak" also includes tickets for at least one game with each of the RedStixx' 13 opponents.

Workshop to help 'mega' parenting

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

How can I help my children to succeed in school and beyond?

Parents can find answers to that question at "Megaskills," a workshop that will be presented by the Chaplains' Family Life Center and Columbus College for parents and their children.

The workshop is scheduled at 11 a.m. until noon on Feb. 3, 17 and 24 and March 3, 10, 17, 24 and 31 at the Chaplains' Family Life Center, Building 2606, Soldiers' Plaza.

The workshop is free, but no baby-sitting is available.

Megaskills will teach parents about the importance of their role as educators, reinforcing the work of the school. Also, parents will learn not only what to do, but how to teach easily and with fun.

The basic theme throughout the workshop is to support parent efforts as they support the needs of their children.

Megaskills are the very basic values, attitudes, and behaviors that determine a child's achievements.

The topics discussed during the workshops are:

Confidence: feeling able to do it

Motivation: wanting to do it

Effort: being willing to work hard

Responsibility: doing what's right

Initiative: moving into action

Perseverance: completing what you start

Caring: showing concern for others

Teamwork: working with others

Common Sense: using good judgment

Problem Solving: putting what you know and what you can do into action

For more information and to register, contact Chaplain (Maj.) James Rayburn at 545-1760.

Evangelism class uses video, drama

USAIC Chaplains' Office

Join the members of a lifestyle evangelism class as they learn to be living proof of the gospel in their daily encounters with friends neighbors, and co-workers.

Designed for small groups, this video series is a call to lifestyle evangelism.

Through real-life drama, it will show how to develop relationships with non-Christians, model the Christian message in life, and eventually present the Bible's claims in a nonthreatening manner.

Session 1: The Culture Gap

Session 2 : Our Spiritual Resources

Session 3: Mini-Decisions

Session 4: Finding Common Ground

Loyola offers graduate program

By Bill Putman
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The Religious Education Center is still accepting applications for the Loyola master's program.

This program offers a master's degree in either religious education or pastoral studies and will be conducted at Fort Benning.

The program consists of 10 courses, three semester hours each. These courses are made up of 10 class sessions of three hours each, as well as homework assignments.

Classes will meet once each week.

The program is sponsored at the Department of the Army level by the chief of chaplains and will be offered on many Army posts throughout the United States and overseas.

This will enable a student to begin the program here, and if he or she is transferred to another post prior to completing the program, the student can join the program at the new post.

The graduate program has been approved for DANTES and Veterans Administration.

For more information or registration, call 545-2366, or leave a message at 545-5508 or 545-2288.

Confirmation classes set

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

"Do you confess Jesus Christ as your Savior, put your whole trust in his grace, and promise to serve him as your Lord, in union with the church that Christ has opened to people of all ages, nations and races?"

This is one of several questions asked during a confirmation ceremony.

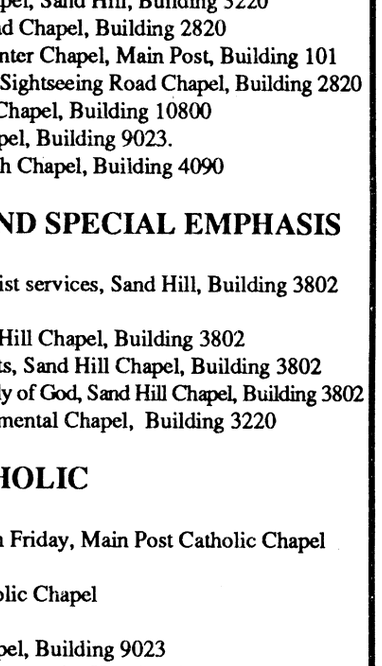
A new series of confirmation classes will be held Feb. 2 until April 6 each Tuesday from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the Religious Education Center, Building 2518.

The children will be on a journey of faith.

The journey promises to be an exciting one, filled with fun and laughter, with new discoveries and ideas, with the pain and struggle of growth, according to chapel officials.

The children in the confirmation class will share the adventure according to the book titled "Journey into Faith."

The class will be taught by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Roger Kappel.



"All protestants in grades five and six, who are interested in being confirmed are encouraged to attend," Kappel said.

Upon the conclusion of these classes, specialized denominational classes will be arranged in accordance with the choice of the student and parents.

For more information and registration, contact Kappel at 545-2288.

CHAPEL NOTES

Free retreat — The Chaplain Family Life Center offers a free retreat relating to cross cultural marriage to Asian families on Jan. 29 and 30.

A special guest-speaker, Dan Moon of Riverside, Calif., will be featured. Born in Seoul, Korea, he is researching cultural trends, needs and strategies related to Asians in America at the Pacific Rim Asian American Institute of Missiology at California Baptist College.

The retreat will be at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, Building 101. For registration and more information, contact Chaplain (Maj.) James Rayburn at 545-1760 or 545-5301.

Prebaptism class — A prebaptism class will be Jan. 31, Feb. 21 and March 14 at 1 p.m. at the Religious Education Center, Buildings 2517 and 2522, located off Indianhead Road, behind the Quartermaster Laundry.

There are three sessions in each cycle. All parents who wish to have their child or children baptized in the Catholic church are required to attend prebaptismal instruction.

To register, call Phil Reilly at 545-4715.

Pre-marriage seminar — A premarriage seminar will be 1 p.m. Sunday at the Religious Education Center, Building 229. Attendance at this seminar is required for all couples who wish to be married in the Catholic church.

To register, call Phil Reilly at 545-2771.

Christian Military Fellowship — Christian Military Fellowship will meet today at 7 p.m. at the Custer Terrace Chapel.

The group meets every second and fourth Friday of the month.

For more information, call 545-2050 or 689-6090.

MCCW —The Military Council of Catholic Women invite all women to increase their knowledge of the faith, join together for prayer and celebration of Mass, participate in opportunities of service and form feminine friendships.

The MCCW meets every Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. until noon at the Infantry Center Annex, and every first Friday from 9:30 a.m. until noon at the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

Child care is free. For more information, call Teresa Zepeda at 682-3918 or Jackie Place at 689-6496.

Life and love series — The Military Council of Catholic Women is presenting a series of talks by Scott and Kimberly Hahn and Dr. Thomas Zepeda.

The series, titled "Life Giving Love," examines the meaning of sex and marriage from a Christian standpoint. The topics for each week are:

Wednesday - Marriage Covenant and Birth Control

Feb. 3 - Natural Law and Birth Control

Feb. 10 - The Bible and Birth Control

Feb. 17 - Medical Ethics on Birth Control

The series will be at the Infantry Center Annex from 9:30 a.m. until noon. Child care is free of charge.

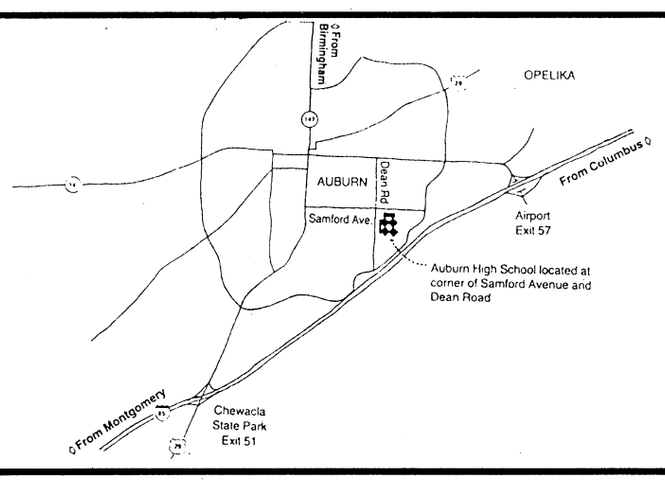
PARTY for children — PARTY, the youth group for children 4 years old through sixth grade, will start a new series called "Bible Boot Camp."

It will give children a "Basic Course in God's Army," teaching them who their commander in chief is, how to study their "training manual," what to wear for battle and the weapons to use in "spiritual warfare."

Each session will last from 1 to 3:15 p.m. at the Religious Education Center and will feature games, crafts, videos and snacks.

The Religious Education Center is located in Building 2522 on Thorston Road behind Quartermaster Laundry.

National prayer breakfast — The commanding general's annual National Prayer Breakfast will be Feb. 11 at 6:30 a.m. at the Main NCO Club ballroom.



Everyone is welcome. For tickets, contact the USAIC Chaplains' Office at 545-2288.

POST BRIEFS

Patterson Award ceremony Feb. 12

The 1993 Patterson Award ceremony will be Feb. 12 at 9:30 a.m. in Building 2769, Wigle Hall.

The guest speaker will be Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, Fort Benning commanding general.

For more information, call Capt. Mary Crowder at 545-4711 or 545-4510.

Civilian employees may need tax form

All civilian employees who made a permanent change of station move to Fort Benning during 1992 should contact Della Bursey, Travel Section, at 545-7385 for instructions on how to file a Relocation Income Tax Allowance claim.

Telephone number for repairs changes

The telephone number to report needed repairs to the Hudson Construction Company in the Davis Hill and Bouton Heights housing areas has been changed from 685-2274 to 596-8313.

New recruiting list at Civilian Personnel

A new Department of Defense Positive Recruiting Recruiting List has been received in the Directorate of Civilian Personnel. The list may be reviewed in the Personnel Services Center in Meloy Hall, Building 6, Room 115.

Orders being taken for Spencer year book

The Spencer High School 1992-1993 Year Book can now be ordered for $35.

The cost after March 1 will be $40.

The annual staff is still accepting advertisements if any student, parent or business would like to advertise in the publication.

For more information, call Spencer High School at 685-7652 between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. or Corrine Walker, Year Book Booster Club, at 682-1260.

Burning begins Mon.

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place Monday to Jan. 31.

If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-9, D-2, D-7, D-10, D-12, D-16, E-3, E-8, F-2, G-1, G-4, H-1, I-2, I-4, J-1, K-1, K-6, K-13, K-22, L-4, M-1, M-3, N-1, O-4, O-7, O-9, O-13, R-2, T-3, T-6, U-1, U-5, V-4, W-1, Z-4, BB-3, BB-5 and CC-1.

Hunters and others proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 10 a.m. daily.

Training units and hunters using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Civilians awards lunch to be at Officers' Club

The January civilian awards luncheon will be at the Supper Club at the Fort Benning Officers' Club Thursday at 11:30 a.m. The Directorate of Logistics will serve as host.

The cost of the luncheon is $4.35 and tickets may obtained by contacting Gayle Pollock at 545-4803.

Advance tickets are required to ensure adequate seating and food for all attendees.

Tickets should be purchased by today.

In addition to award recipients, guests, family members, managers, supervisors and co-workers may attend.

For more information, call Gloria Weber at 545-2956.

ADEC classes resume

Advanced Driver Education Course classes will resume Saturday. Classes will meet in Classroom 3 in Infantry Hall.

Those required to attend will be notified by memorandum from the Provost Marshal Traffic Regulation Enforcement Office.

The schedule for regular classes on the third Saturday of each month will resume Feb. 20.

Uchee Creek Bridge closes for repair

Uchee Creek Bridge, located on 101st Airborne Division Road south of the entrance to the Uchee Creek Recreation area, has been undermined during recent heavy rains.

According to the Directorate of Public Works, the bridge has been closed until permanent repairs can be made. Until further notice, all traffic to Fryar Field, Lae Field and other points south of the Uchee Creek Recration area must use an alternate route via Alabama State Highway 165.

No detour is necessary to access the Uchee Creek Recreation area from Main Post.

Permanent repair to the bridge will be accomplished as soon as possible, but will take several months at a minimum.

Publications changes hours of operation

Post publications has changed hours as a result of reduced manpower resources.

Hours of operation will be 8 a.m to noon, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and will be closed each Wednesday. Emergencies will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Oil collection tanks must be monitored

Units are reminded that oil collection tanks, from oil and water separators that are part of vehicle wash racks, must be monitored daily to determine oil levels.

When tanks are three-quarters full, units must contact Charles Sanders at 545-4749 or 545-4232.

Airlines agree to waive some ticket restrictions

An update from the Military Traffic Management Command states that American, Northwest, TWA, Continental, Delta, United and USAir have agreed to waive restrictions on nonrefundable tickets that personnel involved in Operation Restore Hope purchased for holiday travel.

To confirm eligibility requirements and applicability of the airlines' waiver policy, soldiers and family members can check with the Leisure Travel Office or the airline involved.

Terms and conditions of the refund, reticket, waiver and itinerary change policy varies from airline to airline.

Auto exam May 4, 6, 11

Automotive Service Excellence examinations will be administered May 4, 6 and 11 at all Fort Benning education centers.

The fee is $15 if the test is taken for certification or recertification.

The registration fee is $20 and registration must be completed by March 12 at any of the education centers.

For more information, call 545-4863.

VA offers scholarships for Ready Reservists

Department of Veterans Affairs

The Department of Veteran Affairs is announcing the availability of scholarships for the 1993-94 school year for members of the Selected Ready Reserve who are interested in careers in nursing, and occupational or physical therapy.

The Reserve Member Stipend Program provides financial support to associate degree nursing students in their last year of study and third- and fourth-year students in baccalaureate or entry-level masters' degree programs in nursing, occupational therapy and physical therapy. Reservists must be members of the Selected Ready Reserve and eligible for the Montgomery GI Bill (Selected Reserve).

Recipients receive $400 monthly for each month of full-time study. In exchange, participants agree to serve as a full-time registered nurse or occupational or physical therapist in a VA medical center for a period of two years.

Individuals interested in applying can request an application by writing to the Reserve Member Stipend Program (143B), Department of Veterans Affairs, 810 Vermont Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20420 or by calling (202) 535-7528.

Applications must be postmarked no later than May 25. Awards will be made in August with financial support beginning in the fall term.

VA: Beware of faulty insurance dividends

Department of Veterans Affairs

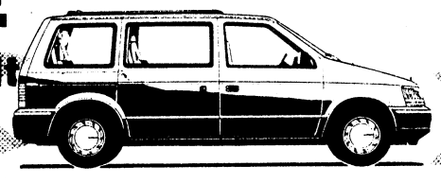
An insurance hoax that first appeared more than 40 years ago continues to plague the Department of Veterans Affairs, this time with a new target — active duty military personnel.

VA's Regional Office and Insurance Center in Philadelphia, Pa., reports that requests from military personnel for a non-existent insurance dividend have increased since the Persian Gulf War.

For many years the principal victims of the rumor were World War II and Korean Conflict veterans who were told that VA was sending a check for hundreds of dollars — a so-called insurance dividend — to any veteran who requested it. In more recent years, however, bogus brochures have been targeting veterans of the Vietnam Era. The current hoax focuses on holders of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance.

The phony applications claim dividends or refunds have been recently authorized by Congress. In fact, there is no such dividend for veterans who do not keep their insurance in force, nor a rebate for active duty military personnel. No legislation has been proposed in Congress.

The hoax causes thousands of veterans, active duty military personnel and dependents wasted effort, and generates needless labor and mailing expense at VA's 58 regional offices across the country.



The hoax applications usually are unwittingly printed in magazines, newspapers and newsletters, or distributed in handbills. Recently, hoax mail has been printed on military unit or company letterhead. Attempts to trace the origin of the hoax have been unsuccessful, but it is believed that its life has been perpetuated by the innocent duplication of bogus information.

VA's legitimate insurance dividends are paid annually to current policyholders, usually on the anniversary date of the policy. Some 3.5 million veterans share in an annual dividend distribution. Payments are automatic to those who continue to pay premiums and no application is needed.

Post chooses Drill Sgt. of Yr.

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

"I can take a 55-man platoon of civilians and at the end of 13 weeks, they're soldiers, ready to take their places at any post around the world."

Staff Sgt. Rory Malloy of Headquarters Service Compnay, Infantry Training Brigade, age 27, married and the father of two, is Fort Benning's Drill Sergeant of the Year. He volunteered for the rigorous duty and has voluntarily extended his commitment to three years, explaining that he loves the work.

"I think it's one of the most rewarding jobs in the Army," Malloy said. "I have the initial influence on the trainees in my platoon. Whether they start off right or wrong depends on the training I give them — it's up to me to make them good soldiers and show them the Army's a good place to be."

Distinguished honor graduate of his class at Drill Sergeant's School, Malloy has been named drill sergeant of the quarter twice at both the brigade and battalion levels, and was selected trainer/maintainer of the month at the brigade level.

"The post Drill Sergeant of the Year competition was tough," said Malloy. "There were a lot of good drill sergeants there, and it was really close. I performed the best I could; I was satisfied with my performance."

Malloy shares credit for his achievement with his partners and his chain of command, crediting them with providing teamwork and support.

"Being a drill sergeant means a lot of long hours and hard work," Malloy said. "I've had excellent partners and an excellent chain of command — we've given a lot of soldiers a good start in the military."

Malloy said the main difference in training since he entered the Army is in emphasis. "Soldiers still learn the same things, but we approach it differently," he said. "The training is broken down into phases, so we give the soldier short-term goals to work on. At the same time, we reinforce the skills throughout training, so they don't learn something and then forget it."

Married seven years to his wife, Deborah, and father to 5-year-old Rory Andrew and 3-year-old Danielle, Malloy admits that the job can be hard on his family. "My wife and I talked it over before I volunteered," he said. "We decided to expect the worst and hope for the best; it's been better than we expected."

Malloy

Malloy explained that the first three or four weeks of a cycle, when the workdays can last from 5 a.m. to 10 p.m., are the toughest on his family. "But when I was in Italy, I would be in the woods for weeks at a time. Here, I see my kids every day. It's harder in the winter, because I get home after dark and don't get a chance to play outside with them."

After he comes "off the trail" as a drill sergeant, Malloy said, he would like to attend Ranger School. "I want to stay with the troops," Malloy said. Judging by his success, "with the troops" is right where he belongs.

Chief only one here to make new rank

By David Greer
36th Engineer Group

Fort Benning had another "first" happen this month.

That historic event was the promotion of Pedro Arroyo to the newly created rank of chief warrant officer 5.

Arroyo, assigned to the 36th Engineer Group as the engineer equipment maintenance officer, is the only soldier on post to hold the new rank. Armywide there are only 33 as of Jan. 1 and they're spread across all the warrant officer career fields.

"Chief" as Arroyo prefers to be called, is the only chief warrant officer 5 in the Army's engineer equipment repair technician field.

"I feel extremely proud to be the first," said 52-year-old Arroyo. "It shows the younger soldiers that regardless of age you can improve yourself through hard work and ethical conduct."

The new chief warrant officer 5 rank was created through the Warrant Officer Management Act. WOMA was inacted to improve the management of warrant officers. Under WOMA, the Army will be allowed to promote chief warrant officer 4 and master warrant officer 4 to the rank of chief warrant officer 5. No more than 5 percent of the warrant officer force may hold the new rank. This provides a needed incentive to retain high quality, experienced officers.

Experience is what Arroyo has plenty of. He was drafted in 1958 and then re-enlisted for three years.

"I thought that Army life wasn't so bad and that I'd stick around to see what would happen and I've been around ever since," said Arroyo.

Arroyo

When asked about the key to his success, Arroyo smiles and laughs.

"People make it so complicated sometimes and the true secret is so very simple," said Arroyo. "First, surround yourself with good people both in your personal and professional life. Then find yourself a good and loving spouse. Most important of all is to take care of both, and never forget that everyone needs a little help now and then."

Caring has long been an Arroyo trademark. Both he and his wife, Josefina, have reached out in a unique manner to help those less fortunate. They're clowns. They dress up in the funny costumes and put on face paint whenever asked for a worthy cause.

"We try to bring a smile and laughter to those who need it most." said Arroyo. "For years I've been a member of the Shriner Clowns, and I go to the crippled children's hospital and perform for the children. I don't know who enjoys it more, the kids or me."

During his long career, Arroyo served three tours in Vietnam and overseas assignments in Okinawa, Korea, Panama, Germany and Hawaii. Currently he's awaiting transportation to aid in the deployment to Somalia.

His future plans remain the same as before. Said Arroyo, "I think I'll stick around a little longer to see what happens."

New rank available to warrant officers

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

Warrant officers who hold the rank of chief warrant officer 4 or master warrant officer 4 now have a new rank for which to compete.

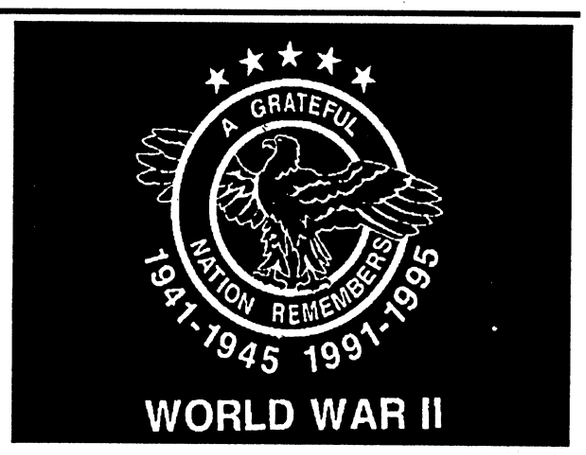
The new rank, chief warrant officer 5, was devised after policy-makers decided the warrant officer program needed revision.

According to the Fort Benning Adjutant General's Office, the education system that trains warrant officers has also been changed to better train individuals in technical proficiency and leadership development. A new course, the Warrant Officer Staff Course, is due to replace the Master Warrant Officer Training Course Oct. 1.

The course is designed to prepare officers selected for promotion to chief warrant officer 5 to serve at the highest levels of major command and Department of the Army staff positions.

According to officials at the Pentagon, the new warrant officer rank will be treated like any other officer rank. Eligible chief warrant officer 4s who are passed up for the promotion twice will be required to separate from active duty.

WORLD WAR II—A LOOK BACK



50 years ago this week...

• President Franklin Roosevelt and Britain Prime Minister Winston Churchill, concluded the 10 day Casablanca Conference, having worked with the Combined Chiefs of Staff from both countries to formulate plans for Allied offensives scheduled for 1943 to include the invasion of Sicily. Additionally, the groundwork has been laid for a major cross-channel attack planned for the following year. Roosevelt referred to the conference as "the unconditional surrender meeting."

• On the Eastern Front, Soviet forces made further gains in Russia, capturing Salsk and Armavir in the Caucasus Mountain area, Starobielsk in the Donetz sector, and a railway station in Kastornaya on the Voronezh front. The continued Soviet success forced the Germans to completely abandon a former strong-point at Voronezh.

• The Eighth United States Army Air Force flew the first American bombing mission over Germany, raiding the city of Wilhelmshaven and successfully destroying 22 enemy aircraft while losing only three of its own.

• In Japan, Prime Minister Hideki Tojo reviewed the country's current wartime conditions while addressing its parlimentary council, the Diet.

• Infantry School instructors teaching the art of warfare at Fort Benning added realism to simulated battlefield operations by incorporating the chaos of sound effects into the training.

Veterans receive 3% raise

Department of Veterans Affairs

Compensation payments for disabled veterans were increased by 3 percent effective Dec. 1, according to a recent announcement from the Department of Veterans Affairs.

The cost-of-living allowance was included in legislation signed by President George Bush Oct. 24. The increase will be reflected in veterans' January checks.

Affected are some 2 million veterans whose monthly payments will range from $85 for a single veteran with a 10-percent disability rating to $1,730 for a single veteran with a 100-percent disability rating.

Also affected are some 312,000 survivors of service members or veterans who died from service-connected causes.

Veterans whose service-connected disabilities are rated at 30 percent or more may receive additional allowances for dependents, based on the number of dependents and the extent of disability.

U.S. still attempting to account for POW/MIAs

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

Is it possible American service members are still alive and being held captive in Indochina?

Are Americans from World War II still held in Russia? Could the Soviets have taken some Americans to the former Soviet Union during the Korean and Vietnam wars?

These and many other questions must be answered before the United States will be satisfied with the accounting. With unresolved live sightings, other unexplained incidents and recent announcements by Russian leaders, the U.S. government is not ruling out any possibilities, said Department of Defense officials.

DoD is dedicated to providing all the means necessary and checking any lead that could resolve a missing prisoner of war or missing in action case.

"The past year has seen a sweeping expansion in our efforts DoD wide," said Dick Cheney, Defense secretary. "From the formation of the Office of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for POW/MIA Affairs to the activation of the 150 member Joint Task Force Full Accounting, we have more than doubled the manpower and resources dedicated to resolving this issue."

The recently published DoD POW-MIA Fact Book lists 2,266 Americans as missing and unaccounted for from the Vietnam War; 78,750 from World War II; and 8,100 from the Korean War. In Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm, 13 individuals are listed as killed in action but remains not recovered.

> "The past year has seen a sweeping expansion in our efforts DoD wide."
>
> — Dick Cheney
> Defense secretary

For the Vietnam War POWs and MIAs, DoD provides a breakdown by service, where they were lost and from what state. The report traces the political situation between the United States, Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. It also charts a chronology of U.S. government efforts to determine the fate of American service members.

The report highlights discrepancies by Indochinese governments. Evidence that leads the U.S. government to believe the Indochinese know the fate of an individual and then to classify it as a discrepancy case includes post-capture photography, eyewitness reports, propaganda broadcasts and intelligence reports.

In addition, the "North Vietnamese had a consistent policy of finding and burying Americans killed in action and sending to central authorities a report of the burial location along with the man's personal effects and identification," said DoD officials.

Dog tag reports are one of the most frequent reports of a POW or MIA that DoD receives. In the last 10 years, the department has received more than 7,200 such reports. According to defense officials, a dog tag report occurs when an individual in Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia claims to have the remains of one or more American service members. The person offers information copied off the dog tag or an identification card as proof.

Most of these reports are false, said DoD officials. About 92 percent of the names reported belong to service members who returned to the United States after serving in Southeast Asia. About 3 percent of the reports actually relate to Americans still missing.

If the Vietnamese soldiers followed the policy of reporting the burial to central authorities, "the present Vietnamese government should have knowledge of most of the missing men whose names have appeared in the dog tag reports," added DoD officials.

Only recently have Vietnam and Cambodia permitted U.S. investigators to conduct short-notice live-sighting checks for POWs and MIAs. Even though Laos has not agreed to short-notice checks, DoD said the Laotian government cooperated, providing valuable information.

Very little is known concerning missing American service members who may have been in the hands of the former Soviet Union. In May, Russian leaders announced the possible existence of American prisoners. The United States and Russia formed a joint commission to research former Soviet archives records. Researchers will correlate the information from those records with information taken from U.S. government files, said DoD officials.

The joint commission's goals, which encompass incidents from World War II until the end of the Cold War, are three-fold. They are to pursue all reports that allege the presence of Americans, to establish a means to positively identify American remains and to gain access to documents and people who may have knowledge concerning American POWs and MIAs.

No live American prisoners of war have been found at this time, said DoD officials, but the search through the records continues.

The department investigates all "last known alive cases," which include live sighting investigations, joint field investigations in the three Indochinese countries and lastly, the excavation of crash sites and grave sites when evidence confirms that the individual is dead," said DoD officials.

"The investigators have no preconceived notions of fate and go where the evidence takes them. If the evidence confirms death, we attempt to recover and identify remains to fully resolve the family's uncertainty," they said.

GIs need sleep to perform

U.S. Army Safety Center

Chronic fatigue was cited as a factor in accidents that took 14 lives and cost $43 million in lost equipment in the first four months of Operation Desert Shield.

Convoy drivers are especially vulnerable to the effects of fatigue because tired soldiers are driving long distances in heavy traffic.

Soldiers become ineffective and accident prone after 48 hours without sleep. They're unable to focus on the task at hand and unable to make sound decisions — whether they're on the loading dock or the battlefield. They make mistakes and have difficulty following instructions.

To make fatigue harder to deal with, soldiers can't be trained to overcome sleep loss. Nor can leadership get them through it. The only thing that can overcome sleep loss is sleep.

Soldiers need a minimum of four to five hours of uninterrupted sleep a day, and they need it in a designated area away from rolling equipment and other hazards.

Commanders should ensure a reasonable sleep plan is included in their unit standard operating procedure, and first-line leaders should make sure it is enforced.

The following are leaders' guidelines for sleep plans.

• Six to eight hours' sleep each night will maintain mental task performance indefinitely.

• Three to four hours' sleep each night will maintain mental task performance for five to six days.

• Less than four hours' sleep each night over a six-day period will impair military effectiveness.

• Best sleep periods, given limited choice, are 3 to 6 a.m. and 4 to 7 p.m. Try to avoid fragmented sleep periods.

• Provide for a minimum of four to five hours' uninterrupted sleep; however, after six days, accumulated sleep loss will equate to 48 hours without sleep.

• After 24 to 36 hours without sleep, decisions and calculations should be cross-checked by a second person.

• Allow for naps as often as possible. Four one-hour naps in a 24-hour period are as beneficial as four hours sleep in the short term; however, accumulated sleep loss is more severe with fragmented sleep.

Sleep plans should include provisions to recover from sleep loss. At least eight hours of sleep are required after 36 to 48 hours of acute sleep loss.

This rises to at least 15 hours for the same amount of sleep loss in high-stress conditions. This is particularly important for those with high mental-task work loads. After 72 to 96 hours' sleep loss, two to three days of rest are required. This includes eight to 10 hours' sleep per day and light duty.

Panel offers suggestions on preparing tots for school

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Parents, child caregivers and educators learned Jan. 12 that "childhood should be a journey, not a race" is a philosophy behind preparing children for kindergarten in the Fort Benning Schools.

Dr. Dell Karr, assistant superintendent for instruction, headed a panel of local kindergarten teachers who spoke at one of a series of "Talks About Young Children," sponsored by the school system.

She said kindergarten at Fort Benning is meant to provide a "happy place" for social, emotional and intellectual growth in which a positive self-concept and deep love of learning is promoted.

Expectations for entering kindergarten are that the children will be able to recognize some letters, number concepts to 10, their own name and color words, and be able to share, express themselves orally and listen to others.

Karr noted that children who have already mastered the pre-reading program will be allowed to go on, but kindergartners aren't pushed into formal reading.

Peggy Gindville, Fort Benning kindergarten teacher, spoke of how children grow at different rates physically, emotionally, socially and intellectually. She also went through the developmental stages of children from ages 3 to 5 and what parents can see as normal.

Another member of the panel, Barbara Hutchins, a teacher at Wilbur School, gave practical suggestions for activities to do at home with pre-schoolers.

Reading to children several times a day was high on her list. She also noted that beads, peg boards and blocks help with counting, sorting by shapes, colors and spatial relationships, and verbalizing about patterns, etc., helps with language development.

She recommended paper-tearing newsprint, making designs and rearranging the pieces. Glue, paste, tape and staples are okay to use as long as the children are told in advance about how much to use of each. Painting should begin with just using water, then one color, and moving on until they realize that mixing colors makes different ones than the originals they started out with.

According to kindergarten teacher Marianne Smith, many studies show that reading to children increases their growth in language, and hearing stories read to them increases their interest in learning to read independently.

In recommending the types of stories to choose, Smith said to start with old favorites like Mother Goose, The Three Bears, and The Gingerbread Man.

Children this age are egocentric and like to hear stories they can identify with like "I Hate to Go to Bed." They also enjoy happy endings such as "The Little Engine That Could."

Taking your children to the library as a family and letting them see you read are two other activities recommended by Smith.

Carolyn Phillips, another kindergarten teacher, showed slides from the classroom of activities that take place once the child is actually in school.

She called Fort Benning parents the schools' greatest resource when it comes to help in the classroom.

"If you get involved in the classroom and show your child that you consider education valuable, then they will too," Phillips said.

Karr concluded the program by asking parents to mark May 4 as Kindergarten Roundup Day on their calendars. At this time, they will pre-register their children for kindergarten, meet the school principal and find out about their individual kindergarten programs.

Any parent living on post who is not sure as to which school their child will be assigned can contact the Fort Benning Schools Central Office at 545-2500.

Children should know their name, address and phone number, and parents must notify the teacher in writing of any changes in how the children are getting home from school, such as with a friend.

"We don't want to take any chances with the children's safety," Karr said.

Parents are kept informed through the Parent Teacher Association, newsletters and a Very Important Parents telephone line with recorded school news after hours.

Also, parents are always welcome in the classroom, but it is recommended that the first day of kindergarten, parents leave as soon as possible to help alleviate the separation anxiety that is inevitable on that first day.

The next program in the series will be Feb. 8 at 7 p.m. in the Herbert J. Dexter School auditorium with Dr. Judy Archer, Fort Benning coordinator for Language Arts and Social Studies, speaking on "Children's Behavior Patterns and Preferences: How to Make the Most of Your Child's Strengths."

Center teaches crafts

By Kimberly Bennett
Directorate of Community Activities

You want a new canister set for the kitchen, but you can't find the right color.

You need that family portrait framed, but the portrait studios charge too much.

You want a desk for the den, but you can't find what you're looking for.

Well, you can find everything you are looking for at Fort Benning; all you have to do is make it yourself.

Fort Benning's Arts and Crafts Center, which is open to active duty military, National Guardsman, Reservists, retirees, family members and civilian employees of Fort Benning, has all the supplies for ceramics, framing, woodworking, trophy making, silk screening and full-color copies.

Instructors will show you how to create original items that can be additions to your home or the for friends.

Choose a canister set from the 500 molds in the ceramic shop. If the center does not have the mold you want, the center's staff can order the greenware from a local vender and have it ready in three or four days. The Arts and Crafts Center supplies stains, glazes, cleaning tools and any other equipment needed to make your project just what you want.

You can pour the greenware for only 2 percent of the cost of the mold. The center will then fire it in one of its kilns for 3 percent of the cost of the mold.

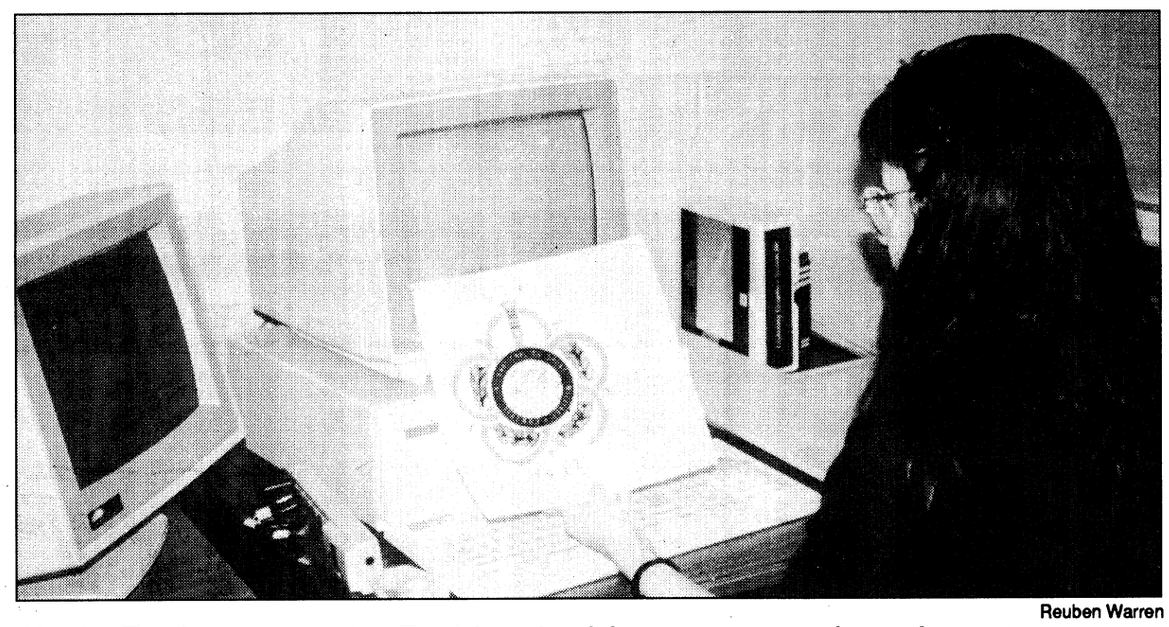
In the framing room, you can put together a frame for pictures of any size. Frame colors range from blue to gold and cost $1 to $6. Mats are also available and can be sized on mat cutters in either oval or rectangular shapes. Glass, plexiglass and mirrored plastic are available to add the finishing touches.

And if you do not think you can frame it yourself, the instructors at the Arts and Crafts Center will do it for you. The charge is 15 cents per inch plus the cost of the materials.

Wooden items can be created in the wood shop where all the cutting and finishing tools are available. You can choose from walnut, ash, birch, poplar, oak, cedar and some veneers to make your woodwork exactly what you want. You can cut, assemble and even store your project at the Arts and Crafts Center.

And if you are proud of someone, you can give them a custom-made trophy. The Arts and Crafts Center has trophy tops for anything from bowling to football to fishing. A wide variety of marble stands and decorative pieces can be put together to reward someone's accomplishments.

The final work on the trophies is done in the Arts and Crafts Center's engraving shop. Using a special machine, the instructors will engrave name, dates or words of appreciation on plastic, brass or aluminum.



In the graphics room, T-shirts and hats can be made to order. You can select the design you want and the center's instructors will put the design on the shirt or hat using silk-screening techniques.

You can even have a favorite picture put on a T-shirt. The Arts and Crafts Center's color copy machine can enlarge photographs up to 400 percent using negatives, positives or slides. The picture can then be transferred onto a pale colored shirt or framed.

Direct color copies are $3 and enlargements are $4.

The Arts and Crafts Center is open Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 1 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. And for a small user fee, you can work one-on-one with any of the four instructors.

If you cannot find what you are looking for, you do not have to settle for something that's close. You can get exactly what you want if you spend a few hours at Fort Benning's Arts and Crafts Center.

New year marks chance to solve personal problems

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

January is almost over but it's not too late to make or renew your New Year's resolution.

In fact, said Yvonne Wilbanks, civilian program coordinator for Civilian Counseling Services, the beginning of a new year is a perfect time for making a commitment to solving personal problems.

"With the new year, many people desire to make a fresh start and to live their lives differently," she said.

"Thoughts of new beginnings, whether they involve quitting smoking, losing weight, abstinence from alcohol and drugs or restoring damaged relationships seem possible in the new year," she added.

Wilbanks said that serious problems, such as those involving drugs and alcohol, usually need more than just a personal commitment in order to be solved successfully.

"Once bad habits develop they are not easy to break, so willpower is not always enough to overcome them," she said. "Sometimes the individual will also need professional counseling and a comprehensive, long-range plan in order to follow through with the good intentions of a new year's promise," said Wilbanks.

A sign that you may need professional help to overcome a personal problem is whether or not you have tried to overcome the problem before but failed.

"If you have tried repeatedly to quit smoking or drinking or to resolve any other problem but have continuously failed, then it is a sign that you need to seek professional help," she said.

Wilbanks added that seeking outside help is not anything of which to be ashamed of.

"Many people are very independent-minded and feel they can solve anything themselves. Some personal problems, however, are just too serious and cannot be solved by the individual," Wilbanks said.

Where can you go if you need help?

"Civilian Counseling Services is an available resource for these employees to discuss plans to change their lives for the better, regardless of the problem," Wilbanks said. "Confidential evaluations and a referral service are available at no cost to these employees and their families."

To make an appointment with Civilian Counseling Services, call 545-2475 or 545-2742.

Alcoholics Anonymous: 1 (800) 344-2666.

• Alcohol and Drug Hot Line : 1 (800) ALCOHOL.

• Drug Hot Line: 1 (800) HELP.

• Cocaine Hot Line: 1(800) COCAINE.

• Local Veterans' Assistance Office: 649-7879.

• ADAPCP: 545-4821.

"Remember," Wilbanks said, "that many people don't know what they are getting into when they begin habits such as drinking heavily or smoking. Bad habits, if not broken, often lead to even more problems and at the very least will become chains that bind you and prevent you from living life to the fullest."

Thrift shop business really moving since the move

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

A new location appears to have done wonders for business at the Officers' Wives' Club Thrift Shop just off Ingersol Street across from Herbert J. Dexter School.

According to Barbara Seim, Thrift Shop manager, in November 1991, total sales were at $12,000. In 1992, November sales climbed to 17,600; and after expenses, $2,100 was contributed to the OWC's Welfare Fund.

Seim credits the increase in business to several factors. She said the shop's new location is more accessible, and the arrangement of the building allows for greater visibility. Free public service announcements in The Bayonet has also helped to let people know where it is.

Instead of being in three buildings as it was before with the Furniture Barn, Thrift Shop Clothing and the Craft Cabin, now everything is in one building called simply the Fort Benning Thrift Shop.

Also, she said, people can see better what the store has to offer.

"We're also stricter on quality now, too," she said. "We don't take in anything that is not clean or that has holes. It's more like shopping in a normal department store. We have clothes separated by age and sex now. Children even have a room of their own. Customers don't have to go through every rack."

The Craft Corner is also spotlighted in the center with a room of its own. In addition, there are two back rooms for what she calls "odds and ends" including such items as bikes and lawnmowers.

In the consignment area, Seim said things are moving in and out faster. Now they take in as many as 900 items in one day.

As before, the only paid employees are the manager, assistant manager and bookkeeper. All of the rest are volunteers.

"The oldest is 73, but most of them are in their 50s and can outrun me," Seim said. "I have a commitment to them, the shoppers and the consignors, to keep everyone happy. Sometimes it's difficult because we run this as any other business, and there's bound to be conflicts."

The store's biggest problem is shoplifting, she noted, and that has been helped by the locked jewelry cases that the Thrift Shop has acquired. All sales are final too, as at any store of this type.

Store hours are Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Saturdays, from 8 a.m. to noon on the first and third Saturday of the month.

Florida law sets safety standard

U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary

A new law in Florida applies to infants and young children aboard all private and commercial motorboats, sailboats and other vessels measuring less than 26 feet in length, according to J.R. Addington of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

The law requires personal flotation devices for children, when the vessel is "under way", meaning at all times except when anchored, moored or aground, Addington said. Violators face a $35 fine for each infraction. Boat owners and operators will be held responsible for compliance, he said.

Addington urges all parents and boat owners to use care in selecting the proper device for their youngsters. Some tips are:

• Read the label to make sure the measurements are appropriate for your child's weight and size.

• Make sure the device is Coast Guard approved and the right type.

• Check to see if the fits by putting it on the child, fasten all snaps and straps around the child and lift the child by lifting on the shoulders of the device. If it gives more than three inches, it is too big. It's better to go a slightly smaller size than to have one too big where the child can slide out when in the water. Also for small children, look for one with straps that go between the legs.

"We can't stress enough the importance of selecting a high-quality, proper-fitting device," Addington said. "Collared PFDs are recommended for those children who have a fear of water, and high visibility colors (such as fluorescent) should be considered when making a selection.

"Whenever possible, PFDs should be tested in shallow water to see how they work and to let the child become familiar with it, prior to any boating trips.

Addington added that if boating at night, a small emergency strobe light should be attached to the child's personal flotation device. These small lights can be seen seven miles away and can provide 60 flashes per minute for 24 hours on a D-cell battery, he said.

Maintenance and storage of personal flotation devices are important; these devices must be in good serviceable condition and must be accessible in an emergency, he said.

"It is recommended that all persons wear a PFD when a vessel is under way — the law requires a PFD on board for each person," Addington said.

For more information concerning the use of PFDs or other boating safety regulations, contact the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary at 568-1235.

Inflation a plus in tire care

Derus Media Service, Inc.

There's no question about it. There are times — economically speaking — when "inflation" is a good thing.

Proper inflation of tires is good economics. You'll save money on tire replacement and fuel and drive more safely. Here are some questions and answers about tires.

Q: What works the hardest on a vehicle?

A: Tires work harder than any other vehicle component — bearing the load, cushioning the ride and making it possible to steer, move and stop.

Q: What supports a vehicle on the road?

A: The tire tread makes contact with the road, but the vehicle is supported by the air inside the tire. Correct inflation (air) pressure is a major factor in tire safety, tread life, fuel economy and overall vehicle performance.

Q: How much air should be put in my tires?

A: The correct inflation is the number of pounds per square inch of air specified by the vehicle manufacturer for tires that are "cold" or haven't been running for three miles or more.

This information for front, rear and spare tires can be found on the tire placard or sticker on the vehicle door jamb or in the glove compartment. Load capacity for the tires is also shown.

Tire inflation, including that of the spare, should be checked monthly and before and after long trips. It's normal for a tire to lose one pound per square inch of air per month and with each 10-degree drop in weather temperature.

Q: How can a person tell if a tire is properly inflated?

A: "Eyeing" a tire doesn't work, especially with radials, which when underinflated five pounds per square inch or less, tend to "look" all right. A tire pressure gauge must be used.

Gauges built into air pumps at service stations are often inaccurate because they get so much abuse. Hand-held gauges can be purchased for as little as $2 for the convenient pocket-type an up to $20 for a digital one.

Q: What happens when a tire runs underinflated?

A: Wear will show on the sides or shoulders of the tire. When severely underinflated, a tire is overloaded, flexes more, develops heat build-up and runs hot which can cause damage and possible failure. Less severe underinflation results in sluggish handling and response

Q: What happens when a tire runs overinflated?

A: Wear will show on the middle of the tread. Beyond causing the vehicle to ride harder, overinflation increases stress on the tire, affect traction and strains the suspension system.

Q: What about checking tires on long trip?

A: Inflation pressure will increase four to eight pounds per square inch or more when the tire becomes hot from high speeds and/or long drives. Never "bleed" or reduce air pressure when tires are hot.

Q: Can a person save money with properly inflated tires?

A: Yes, in both tire and fuel costs. Tire technology engineers report the life expectancy of a tire drops approximately 25 percent and fuel efficiency decreases by about 2 percent if tires are five pounds per square inch below proper inflation.

Eating disorders more common now

Need byline

Most of us have known people we described as "too skinny" ... someone who "ate like a bird" ... people who just "picked at their food."

Today some of these people might be diagnosed as having an eating disorder.

Many health experts say that eating disorders are more common today than in the past. Some believe that current social pressures for thinness tend to encourage the unhealthy eating patterns that form the foundation for eating disorders.

Fortunately, research on the subject has provided a clearer picture of the symptoms and causes of eating disorders.

Mary Helen Gunkler, a registered dietitian, explains that two of the most common eating disorders are anorexia nervosa and bulimia nervosa.

In simple terms, anorexics have distorted views of their bodies, seeing themselves as much heavier than they actually are. They frequently skip meals, which can cause extreme and unhealthy weight loss. In contrast, bulimics repeatedly binge and then purge their bodies using laxatives or vomiting.

Researchers have recently defined a third eating disorder called binge eating. It is marked by frequent "binges" or periods of uncontrolled eating.

Unlike bulimics, binge eaters do not purge their bodies of the excess calories. They simply gain weight.

The frequency of these binges is what differentiates this disease from the occasional compulsion to eat that many people experience.

Anorexics and bulimics risk becoming malnourished. However, binge eaters may or may not suffer from malnutrition.

Gunkler says that anyone with symptoms of an eating disorder should consult a health professional who specializes in eating disorders and who can help develop a comprehensive treatment plan.

U.S. women, children don't meet iron RDA

General Mills, Inc.

Alarming numbers of American women and children are not getting the recommended dietary allowance for iron, according to current research.

The following figures show how many people in each of several population groups consume less than their RDA for iron:

- Children ages 2 to 10 - 38 percent
- Males ages 11 to 18 - 21 percent
- Females ages 11 to 18 - 83 percent
- Females ages 19 to 50 - 85 percent

For many years health professionals have emphasized the need for iron to build and maintain healthy blood, said Mary Helen Gunkler, a registered dietitian.

If you've recently questioned whether you should be concerned about the iron in your diet, be assured that it is still important.

If the body is too short on iron, healthy red blood cells cannot be produced and anemia can develop.

In fact, iron deficiency anemia is the most common nutritional problem among premenopausal women, children and infants.

Iron also plays a role in the immune function, mental performance and work capacity .

The Dietary Guidelines for Americans suggest two to three daily servings — totaling six ounces — of iron-rich foods, such as meat, poultry and fish. Lean cuts are best because they can contain less saturated fat.

Other sources of iron include dry beans, peas and eggs. Iron fortified cereals plus enriched and whole-grain breads also supply iron, said Gunkler.

You can get iron from a variety of vegetables, too, with dark green, leafy types being the best sources.

Iron from plant sources is not as readily absorbed as iron from meat. Gunkler advises that foods rich in vitamin C, such as citrus fruits and juices, can be combined with these foods in a meal to help improve the absorption.

Recommended Dietary Allowance for Iron

Infants - 0 to 6 months, 6 milligrams

Children 6 months to 10 years - 10 milligrams

Adolescent males 11 to 18 - 12 milligrams

Females 11 to 50 - 15 milligrams

Adult males 19 and up - 10 milligrams

Adult females 51 and up - 10 milligrams

Pregnant women - 30 milligrams

Lactating mothers - 15 milligrams

PRIMUS

PRIMUS IS CHANGING

On February 1, 1993, the Columbus PRIMUS Clinic will become the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic. As of this date, the clinic will be open only to non-active duty military beneficiaries registered in the Army's Gateway To Care Program and enrolled to receive their primary health care at PRIMUS. As a Family Practice Clinic, PRIMUS will expand its services and offer its enrolled members:

- Comprehensive family practice medicine, including routine physicals, treatment of a wider range of acute and chronic conditions, and extensive laboratory and radiology testing.
- Guidance for all healthcare treatment, including diagnostic testing, speciality referrals, and follow-up care.
- Both scheduled appointments and walk-in visits.

50 YEARS OLD, NEW EVERY WEEK.

For more than 50 years, The Bayonet has been serving the Fort Benning community like no other publication can. Published every Friday by The Public Affairs Office, The Bayonet contains news and information that can't be found anywhere else. It's news that directly affects Fort Benning's military and civilian population, as well as the huge number of retired military personnel in the Columbus area.

83% READ THE BAYONET

A survey done recently by the PAO shows that of the 55,000 post personnel, 83% are regular readers of The Bayonet, and 85% think The Bayonet is a good/excellent source of post information.

If you don't think The Bayonet can help make your business more successful. . .

THINK AGAIN!!!

For complete information on how The Bayonet can help your business, call The Advertiser Company, printers of The Bayonet, at 706-682-3346.

TIPS FOR MAKING YOUR AD MORE EFFECTIVE

- Start Your ad with the item you are selling, service you are offering, or job title you are looking to hire.
- Be descriptive. The more information you provide to the reader, the better the responses will be to your ad.
- Use bold type, white space of decorative characters such as stars, to bring attention to your ad.
- Run your ad for an ample length of time. Remember, as soon as you get results, you can cancel at any time during regular business hours.
- Always include the price of your item.

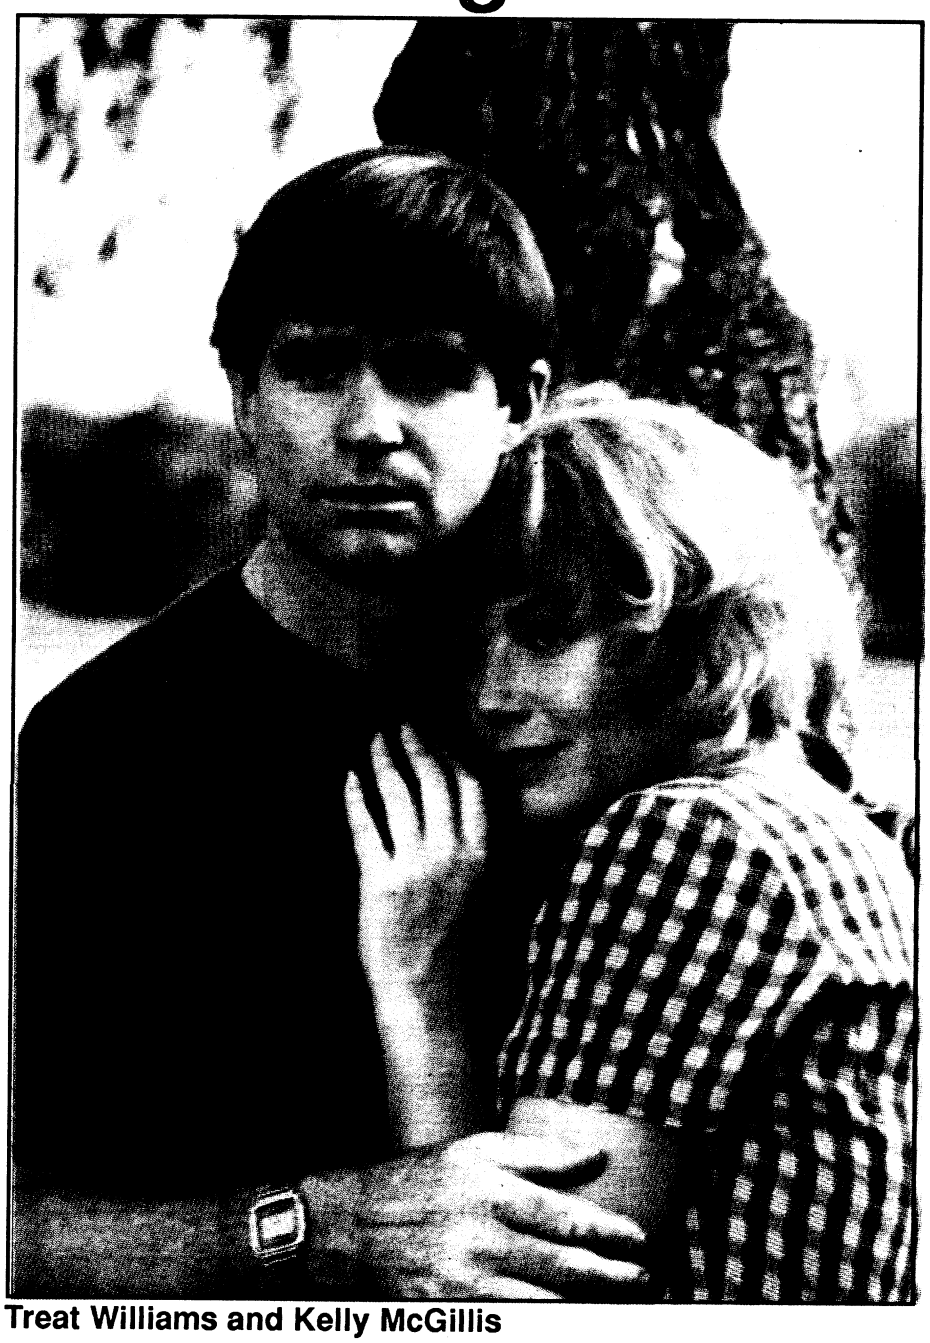
'Bonds of Love' are tight for Treat Williams

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services



As much as performers enjoy performing, the real treat for many of them lies in having creative control over their projects.

SPOTLIGHT

Such is the case for someone whose name happens to be Treat — Treat Williams, that is — as the first film that he has produced, as well as starred in, is televised. In Sunday's fact-inspired new CBS drama "Bonds of Love," he plays Robby Smith, a mentally challenged man who begins a romance with a woman (Kelly McGillis, of "Top Gun" and "The Accused") with two marriages in her past. However, the quickly blossoming relationship is of grave concern to his parents ("Evening Shade's" Hal Holbrook and Grace Zabriskie, of "Twin Peaks") and his brother (Steve Railsback, of "Helter Skelter"), who have spent most of their lives trying to shelter him from the kind of emotional harm that they're certain he will suffer from the affair.

Though they use everything in their power to keep the couple apart, Robby and his new flame become determined to give themselves a chance for unencumbered happiness by fighting back. The movie was directed by Larry Elikann, whose many other credits of recent seasons have included the critically acclaimed, high-rated 1989 miniseries "I Know My First Name Is Steven."

Though he also appeared recently as a murderous husband in NBC's "Deadly Matrimony," the open and sincere Williams considers "Bonds of Love" one of his biggest stretches to date. Calling it "my pet project," he says it has allowed him "a natural progression" into the producing realm. "If you've worked for 20 years in this industry as I have, you see a variety of people who are producers.

Treat Williams and Kelly McGillis

Some are brilliant at it, and some are not so good ... and eventually, I realized that the person who knows what's best for me is me. I know what I like, so it was up to me to go out and find the best material (in which to act), and that certainly would make it a much-shorter discussion about what stories I wanted to do. Also, I know what can go wrong on a film, which gave me the background to keep that from happening as this was in development. We started this with a three-page treatment, then went to first and second drafts, then onto the casting. In all of that, I had a voice."

The idea for "Bonds of Love" was presented to Williams by his talent agency, "and the minute I saw the story, I was immediately taken with this notion of a man who never really grew beyond the age of 6 mentally, but has all of the sexual and emotional passion of a 35-year-old man. I couldn't stop thinking about that, but this is also a wonderful story about fathers and sons. It's really a coming-of-age movie about a grown man, since in the course of the film, he leaves the home nest because he's fallen in love. His parents and his brother want to stop (the relationship), because they feel he's being taken advantage of, but he must get out from under their wing. Something like that is much easier when everybody's behavior hasn't been solidified over a 35-year period, but he was always going to be the child at home. Then, he suddenly says, 'I'm in love.'

"As it progressed, the real story was better than any writer could have conceived, in terms of dramatic stuff," Williams continues. "The couple ran away, his brother came and kidnapped him, then they went to court to determine whether he was capable of being in and understanding a marriage. Finally, (the couple) won, and they are now legally married and living in Kansas."

Williams reports that he visited a number of mental institutions to prepare for the part, seeking "a role model" instead of basing his performance on the real man, whose actual name is Terry. "For some reason, and I can't even remember why, I was hesitant to meet him. I was afraid that I would immediately lock in and play him exactly, but if he turned out not to be the right role model, I wanted to be free to find that. In traveling and meeting other folks who had mental retardation, though, none of them quite fit the character; the writer, Mary

Veterans' insurance one of the big changes for 1993

There have been changes in the overall compensation package given to service members for fiscal 1993.

Some of the major changes have been in the area of insurance coverage offered to military members and the changes in the Veterans' Group Life Insurance program offered to departing service members. Some of the changes are fairly self-explanatory, but not all of them.

To ensure soldiers and family members have a complete understanding of the insurance changes, USAIC TV will present a three-part series next week, that answers the who, what, when, where and how of Officers' Club to hold chicken-eating contest

Fort Benning Officers' Club

The Fort Benning Officers' Club will introduce an "all you can eat" Airborne Challenge chicken dinner for $5.95 as the latest addition to the Hungry Warrior Menu.

This contest will establish the "all you can eat" Airborne Challenge chicken dinner for $5.95 as the latest addition to the Hungry Warrior Menu.

The contest will establish the "Chicken Pogey Master" standard by which future challenges will be measured.

The first 20 customers (noncontestants) who order an "all you can eat" Airborne Challenge will receive a Hungry Warrior T-Shirt.

During the month of February, anyone who exceeds the standard will receive a free Hungry Warrior T-Shirt.

Entries are limited to one per platoon size unit for a maximum of 15 contestants.

Registration starts at 1:30 p.m. today. The contest will begin promptly at 6:30 p.m. today.

Cypress Gardens to relive big band era

Cypress Gardens

Cypress Gardens will put a song in your heart as the central Florida theme park presents sounds from the masters of big band music, including Lombardo, Dorsey and Goodman.

Visitors to Cypress Gardens can listen, dance and reminisce to the music of the Guy Lombardo Band, under the direction of Al Pierson, Jan. 30 and 31. Guests will return to the days when the music of Lombardo and his Royal Canadians welcomed in the New Year at New York's Waldorf Astoria.

Show performances will be at 11:30 a.m, 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Another musical marathon begins Feb. 1 and lasts through May 5 as Buddy Verdi plays tunes from the past for 90 full days. Each day Verdi's orchestra can be enjoyed at 11:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Original orchestra classics, rhythm and blues, intricate ballads, progressive jazz and pop music can all be enjoyed under one roof at the Cypress Gardens pavilion. Recognized as one of the greatest dance bands of all time, Tommy Dorsey's orchestra, directed by Buddy Morrow, will perform Feb. 14 at 11:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2 p.m.

"A Tribute to Benny Goodman," directed by Terry Myers, will entertain guests on March 6 and 7, with performances at 11:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Cypress Gardens guests can enjoy the sounds of this concert before, or after a stroll through the park's annual Spring Flower Festival.

Cypress Gardens is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The park is located midway between Tampa and Orlando, 45 minutes southwest of Walt Disney World and Sea World, off U.S. 27 near Winter Haven.

Other theme parks include Sea World marine life parks in Orlando, Fla., San Antonio, Texas, Aurora, Ohio, and San Diego, Calif.; Busch Gardens in Tampa, Fla.; and Williamsburg, Va.; Sesame Place in Langhorne, Pa.; and Adventure Island in Tampa; Fla.

O'club offers treats for Valentine's Day

Fort Benning Officers' Club

Treat your valentine to a special Valentine's Day dinner or brunch.

The Fort Benning Officers' Club will be serving chateaubriand for two served with classic sauces, a glass of Cabernet Sauvignon, tossed salad and potato for $24.95.

Or bring your sweetheart to the Offices' Club for a romantic breakfast for $7.95 per person.

Make reservations in advance for either of these specials and a rose will await you.

For more information, call 682-0640.

Rodeo, concerts offer music with a 'kick'

Georgia National Fairgrounds

Tickets are on sale for the third annual, state-sponsored Georgia National Rodeo and concerts, to be held Feb. 25, 26 and 27 in Reaves Arena in Perry, Ga.

This Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association-sanctioned Rodeo will feature cowboys and cowgirls from across the country competing in six events.

Country music concerts will take place during the rodeo intermission at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 25 through 27.

In addition to the rodeo and concerts, the Georgia National Stock Show will be Feb. 24 to March 6 and will highlight Georgia 4-H and FFA students competing for state championships. Classes include hogs, heifers, steers and breeding ewes. There also will be open events for beef and dairy cattle.

"A rodeo is great entertainment for the entire family," said Michael A. Froehlich, executive director of the Georgia National Fairgrounds and Agricenter. "The stock show also gives families, especially our children, the opportunity to see young agricultural enthusiasts compete for statewide honors," he added.

Points earned at the Georgia National Rodeo qualify riders for the National Rodeo Finals to be held in December in Las Vegas, Nev.

For more information, call (912) 987-2214.

Columbus Museum to offer classes

Columbus Museum

Get rid of the winter doldrums by taking an interesting and instructive class at the Columbus Museum, which is offering a full roster of art classes and workshops designed to interest people of almost every age and skill level.

Class registrations are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis until the week prior to the beginning of the class or until maximum enrollment is reached. As classes are limited in size, early registration is suggested.

For more information, call Marjorie Drury in the Museum's Education Department at 649-0713.

For children

Kites class, March 7 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. for children in grades first through third. The teacher will be Sharron Del Gobbo. Cost is $8 for museum members and $10 for nonmembers.

Make and decorate a kite to fly at home. Supplies are included in registration fee.

For families

African checkers and other games will be held Feb. 14 with session I at 1:30 p.m. and session II at 3:30 p.m. The instructor is Jule Anderson. The class is for children in grades second though sixth when accompanied by a parent. Cost is $10 for museum members and $12 for nonmembers.

In this family workshop in celebration of Black History Month, families will design, construct and learn to play a game often called African checkers.

Played for centuries in Africa and Asia Minor, it has been lauded as a game that assists in the development of mathematical reasoning and logic. Oware is the West African name for this game. Mankata is its East African name and Ohoro is its South African name

Bring a cardboard egg carton. The class is limited to 26 participants each session.

Anderson is an educator at the High Museum of Art in Atlanta and owner/director of Edjulecational Tours Inc., a company that offers tour programs to West Africa.

For adults

Life drawings will be held Saturdays through March 13 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The teacher is Garry Pound. Cost is $80 for museum members and $85 for nonmembers. Participants provide their own supplies.

Colored Pencils will be held Wednesdays Feb. 3 through March 24 from 2 to 4 p.m. The teacher is Joan Yoe. Cost is $35 for museum members and $40 for nonmembers.

Learn to portray three-dimensional subjects in still life and landscape, giving the illusion of contour, distance and depth.

The basic techniques of outline, proportion, perspective, light and shade will be taught, with emphasis placed on brilliant colors and rendering.

A list of supplies will be sent to participants upon registration.

A glamour portrait photography workshop will be held Feb. 27 from 1 to 4 p.m. The teacher is Kenny Gray. The cost is $25 for museum members and $30 for nonmembers.

Inspired by the exhibition Starstruck: Images from Hollywood's Golden Years, portrait photographer Gray will lead a workshop on Hollywood-style glamour portraits.

This workshop will be a combination of fun and learning, with the emphasis on fun. Participants will shoot 24 exposures of their favorite model in a studio setting with professional lighting. The Springer Opera House will supply costume props.

Participants supply their own camera, model and one roll of Ilford XP-1 or XP-2 film, 24 exposures, (black and white). Registration fee includes cost of developing one roll of film and printing one contact sheet. Class size is limited, so register soon.

The Columbus Museum, located at 1251 Wynnton Road, features exhibitions of American art and regional history and includes a hands-on discovery gallery for children.

Admission is free. The museum is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and on Sundays from 1 until 5 p.m.

For more information, call the museum at 649-0713.

Lecture series recognizes Columbusites

Columbus Museum

This year's Columbus Museum's Lunch and Lecture Series will focus on the lives of famous Columbusites and their contributions to the community and the nation.

The series will be held Thursdays at noon through March 11 in the museum's Wright Community Room. Participants may bring a sack lunch if desired.

Lectures begin promptly at 12:15 p.m. and last approximately 30 minutes. Coffee and tea are available at the museum. Admission is free.

For more information, contact the education department at 649-0713.

Schedule of lectures:

• Feb. 4, Eugene Bullard: From Rose Hill to Paris Craig Lloyd, professor of history and director of archives Columbus College

• Feb. 18, Alma Thomas: The Color of Rain Amalia Amaki, doctoral candidate Emory University Institute of Liberal Arts

• Feb. 25, You Done Taken My Blues and Gone: The Musical Legacy of Gertrude "Ma" Rainey Worth Long, cultural historian, filmmaker, producer Atlanta, Georgia

• March 4, The Lonely Hunter: Carson McCullers Thornton Jordan, professor of English Columbus College

• March 11, Nunnally Johnson's "Riverside" Thornton Jordan, professor of English Columbus College

Crafts festival set April 24

Telephone Pioneers of America

An arts and crafts festival will be April 24 and 25 at Central City Park in Macon, Ga. The festival is sponsored by the Dixie Chapter of the Columbus Georgia Life Member Club, Telephone Pioneers of America.

All craft exhibitors are welcome to participate. The fee for each site will be $35 for the two-day event. If electricity is required, the fee will be $45.

A parking area will be available to all exhibitors separate from the general public. No manufactured items will be allowed.

The festival will be co-located with a Flag City softball tournament and the 1993 March of Dimes Walk-a-Thon.

The softball teams will number about 600 and will play 24 hours around the clock. This should provide all booths with plenty of potential customers as well as visitors to the fair.

All interested exhibitors can call (404) 391-4481.

WILLIAMS

Gallagher, had met Terry and done the script with him in mind. I finally realized that I was going to have to make a decision about meeting him, so I flew to Wichita and spent a week with Terry and his wife, Tina. I realized quite quickly that indeed, Terry would be perfect as a model for what I had to do."

Williams adds he isn't sure that Terry completely understood the purpose of that visit: "I think it was a very difficult concept for him to grasp, being who he is — or anyone from a small town, for that matter — to have someone come and say, 'Hollywood wants to tell the story of your life.' I think he knows someone is telling his story, but it's hard for him to perceive what's going on. The interesting thing is that he's completely without defenses ... so when you're with him, you find that he lives very much in the present, instead of talking about what's happened in the past. He's really a great model for not letting go of the child inside all of us. It's a very tough thing in my case, because once I've met the real person, there's a tendency for me to want to take on every personal and physical attribute and actually get inside that person's skin."

36th soldier clears path

SFC expedites Somalia effort

11th Public Affairs Team

When hundreds of heavy-construction vehicles are subjected to continuous use, it takes a well-managed maintenance team to keep them running. To do the same thing while operating in Somalia, it takes an ace in the hole.

For the 36th Engineer Group, that ace in the hole is Sgt. 1st Class Ajay Vyas.

The 36th Engineer Group deployed from Fort Benning in early January as part of the U.S. Joint Task Force in Operation Restore Hope.

The 36th Engineers were especially suited for the task of improving and constructing more than 800 miles of roads so that humanitarian relief supplies flowing into the port of Mogadishu could then be moved by truck to Somalia's impoverished interior.

The task is compounded by Somalia's fast-approaching rainy season in March. In order to support the night and day use of the unit's bulldozers, graders and haulers, the 36th Engineer Group got creative and sent Vyas to Kenya to reduce the current delay in acquiring replacement parts.

Born in Nairobi, Kenya, Vyas lived there until he graduated from high school and then traveled until 1975, when he made the United States his new home.

After four years as a television repairman, he enlisted in the Army. He currently serves as the 36th Engineer Group's retention noncommissioned officer.

What does Vyas think about the new job ordering replacement parts in his native Kenya?

"I've always wanted to go back," he said with a grin on his face, "and I'm excited to be supporting my soldiers in this unique way. I just happened to be the right person in the right place at the right time. That's what a professional Army is all about."

Expert: Do it right first time, every time

By Richard J. McDowell
USAIC Public Affairs Office

"Fired up, fired up, fired up, airborne!"

Dr. John Allen, director of total quality management for a company that manufactures drapes and curtains, used airborne training analogies to drive home his points before key Fort Benning leaders and commanders last week at the Officers' Club.

Talking about "do it right the first time, every time," the former master parachutist noted the consequences of not doing it right every time in airborne training.

"When is a parachute jump a good jump?" the former 101st airborne officer asked. "When you can walk away from it," a chorus of voices from the audience answered.

Allen, the head of Louis Hornick and Company's quality management program, noted that the company's drapes are done right 99.75 percent of the time.

"The buyers at K mart, Sears, J.C. Penney don't want to hear excuses about why one drape is longer than another, or why we can't deliver what they order, when they order it. They expect us to have what they order when they order it," he said.

Allen said that is the only way his unionized company can compete with foreign firms that pay a fraction of his firm's labor costs.

For total quality management to succeed, there has to be a 100 percent commitment, from top to bottom, according to Allen.

He said there had to be an obsession with quality, a spirit among the people that they are part of a team, and a means to identify and correct problems by means of data, not opinions.

According to Allen, too often commitment to total quality management is stymied because people, managers, aren't willing to break out of the mold.

"You can't break out of a paradigm incrementally, you have to break out 100 percent. It's like being only partly pregnant," he said.

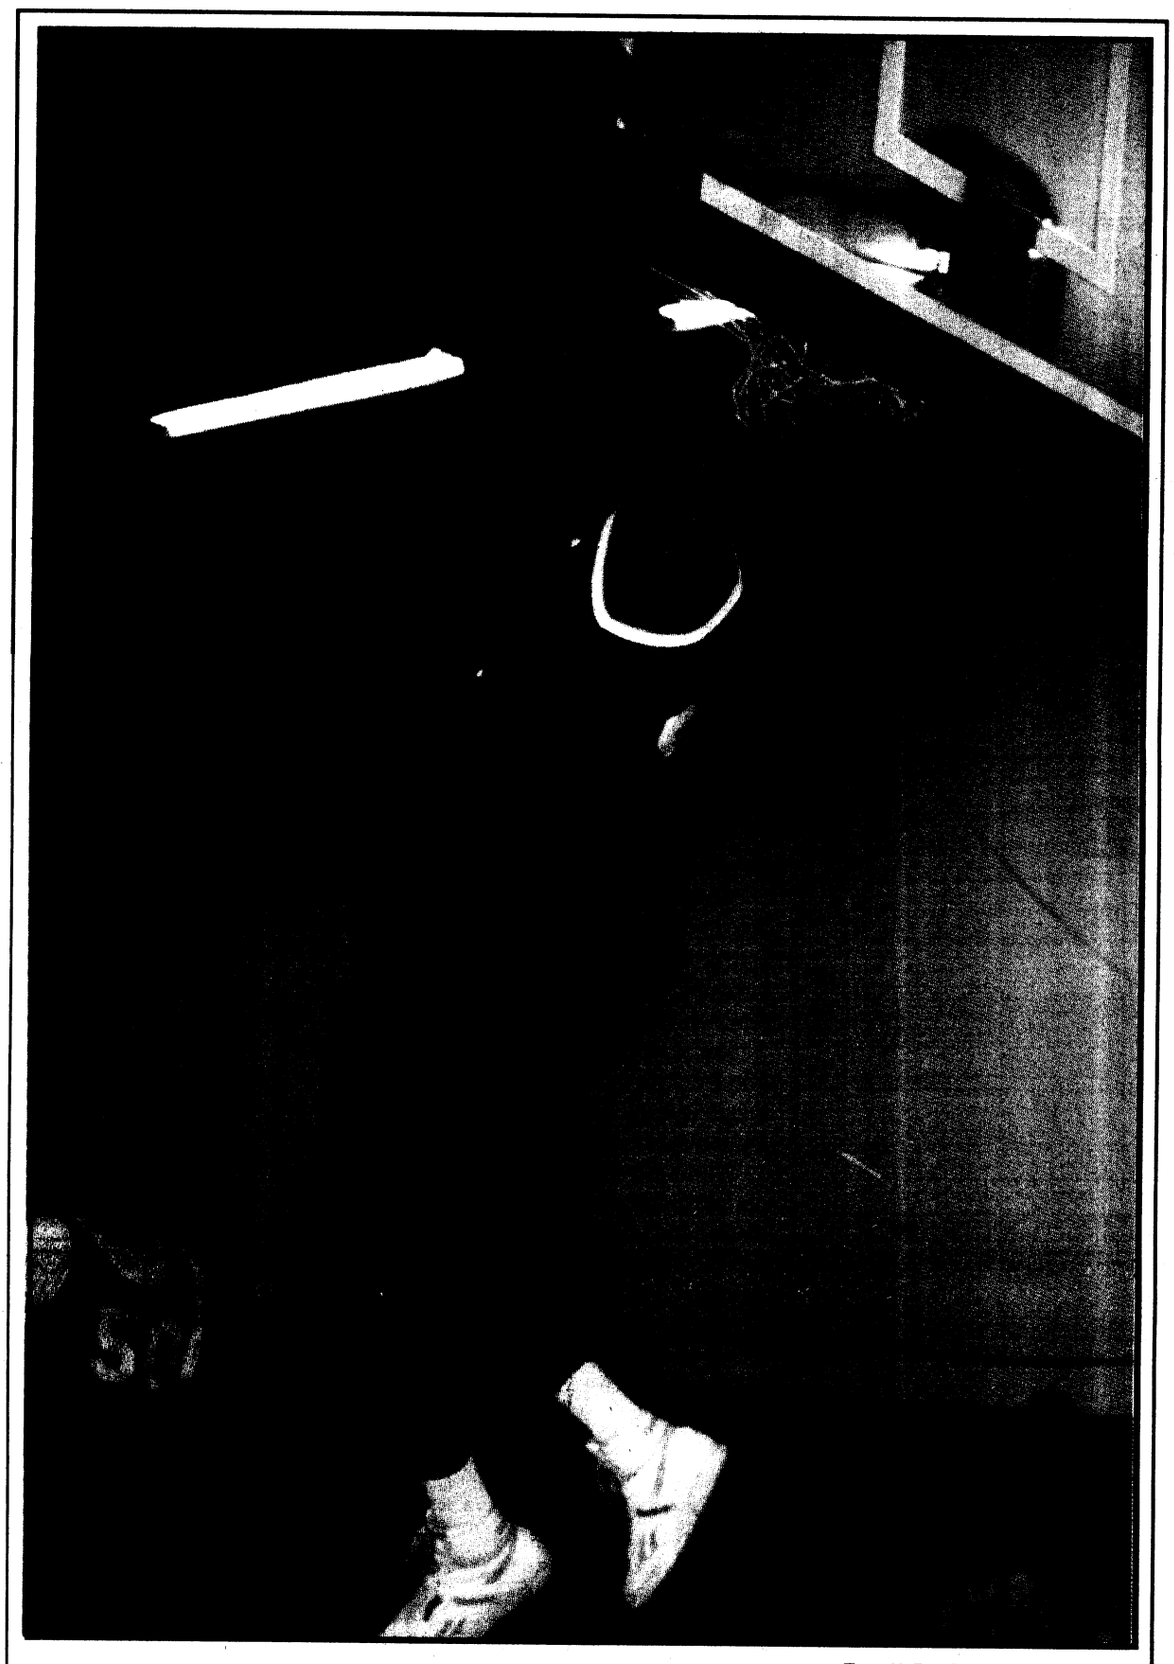
Allen said for total quality management to work, leaders and managers need a plan that is simple, invites everyone to participate and instills team work.

One stumbling block to guard against, according to Allen is "ego." He said leaders must empower their people to do things and must listen to their suggestions.

He noted how thousands of dollars were spent in his company studying a problem with a weaving machine over a number of years. The operator of the machine had the solution, but no one listened to her until all the money and time was spent fruitlessly seeking a solution, he said.

Allen told his audience that it was key for them to identify their customers, to learn the needs of the customers and meet those needs.

But, he also said that they need to talk to their suppliers to make sure the suppliers also understood what was needed.



He said everyone needs to identify value added tasks and do away with nonvalue tasks or tasks that were not right, eliminating the latter.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, post commanding general, concluded the presentation by adding his emphasis on the need to be fully committed to Total Army Quality and getting everyone on post involved.

"Some organizations are right on track and are doing great things," he said. "Others still have a way to go."

How well the post is doing in TAQ will be a part of the Community of Excellence team's inspection during its Feb. 16 to 19 visit.

This will be one of the key factors in determining which post will win the ultimate prize of best post in the Army, according to White.

Fort Benning to observe black history

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning will observe Black History Month this year with nearly 40 official events already planned, according to officials at the post Equal Opportunity Office.

The theme for this year's Black History Month is "Afro-American Scholars: Leaders, Activists and Writers."

Sgt. 1st Class Freddie Purvis of the Equal Opportunity Office said the observance of Black History Month is designed to show the American public what African-Americans have done.

"Many people don't realize the contribution African-Americans have made because their accomplishments have been lost in history," Purvis said.

He said the ultimate goal of this year's observance is to bring African-Americans from out of the history archives and place them in the forefront of the public's mind.

"It's how we learn," said Purvis. "We need to enlighten the general public about what African-Americans have done for society."

The post's month-long observance will include activities from displays and luncheons to ethnic meals and fashion shows.

One of the highlights of the month will be a Feb. 24 program arranged by the Directorate of Community Activities.

The program will be held in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. It will feature a well-known black celebrity, who will be announced later.

Persons interested in the various activities are encouraged to call the point of contact to verify dates and times, Purvis said.

Official looks at safety, environmental programs

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

A top Department of the Army official was briefed on Fort Benning's safety and environmental programs during a recent visit here.

Lewis D. Walker, deputy assistant secretary of the Army, learned that Fort Benning had reduced civilian injuries by 43 percent since establishing a Civilian Injury Reduction Team in 1991.

Gary Burkhalter of the Directorate of Civilian Personnel and Jim Ozley of the Infantry Branch Safety Office told Walker how, through process action teams, the number of civilian injuries was being reduced toward a goal of 50 percent.

Lt. Col. John Orosz, Environmental Management Division of the Directorate of Public Works talked of the programs being used to ensure protection of the environment and endangered species.

According to Capt. Tracy M. Porter of Protocol and project officer for Walker's visit, Walker is a key person in ensuring that the Army complies with environment and safety laws.

Walker maintains a close relationship with key peoplewithin the Army, the Department of Defense and other federal agencies and will use the information he received during his visit to help improve and develop Army policies and programs involving the environment, safety and occupational health, said Porter.

According to Ozley and Burkhalter, the Civilian Injury Reduction Team was established in 1991 with the mission of reducing the post's civilian injuries by 50 percent. By fiscal 1992, civilian injuries were reduced by 43 percent as a result of the CIRT's efforts, they said.

Walker was briefed on how the program works and on key points that included the financial consequences of noncompliance with safety guidelines, the use of light-duty positions for employees who are injured on the job and the use of a comprehensive staff assistance program to help managers identify unsafe conditions in the workplace.

Orosz gave Walker an overview of the post's environmental program with particular emphasis on endangered species and the disposal of hazardous wastes. Orosz also expressed his concern that inadequate staffing and resources are preventing the Army from initiating full compliance with environmental laws.

"We are looking into that right now," Walker said. "As the Army downsizes, we are losing a lot of people and talent. There needs to be a way to steer people into the safety and environmental departments."

Walker added that he was impressed with the post's environmental program.

"You have a very aggressive program that is going in the right direction. The key is showing that we are sensitive to environmental needs and at the same time are sensitive to training needs," said Walker.

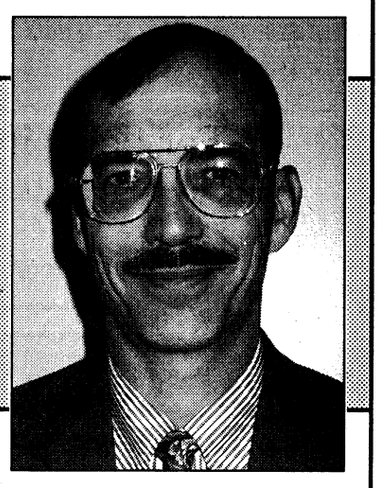
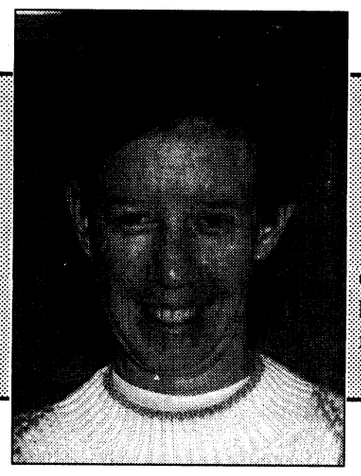
VARIOUS VOICES

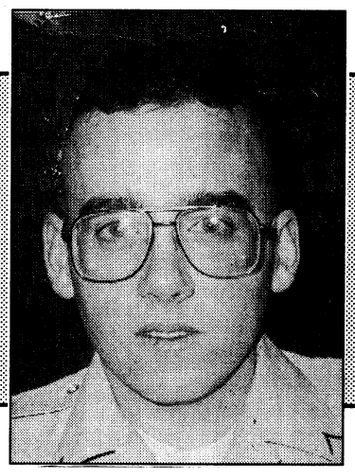
What message would you like to give our new president?



Deborah Gutierrez, Infantry Branch Safety Office — "I would tell him his appointments are good — he's included women and minorities, and he has a really diverse group of people."



Pvt. 1 Mel Dodson, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment — "I'd tell Clinton I think it's a bad idea to let gays in the military. With close quarters in the barracks and the field, I think a lot of people would be uncomfortable."



Capt. Mattie Harper, Martin Army Community Hospital — "I would tell him that in making major decisions, he should consult the supreme authority and trust in him."

Lynn Sample, manager, Battle Park Homes — "I would say that with massive defense cuts already scheduled, it's important that President Bill Clinton should consider that any additional cuts would severely impact the ability of the force to accomplish its world mission."

Jill Carlson, Infantry Branch Safety Office— "I'd tell him that putting Hillary, his wife, to work is a good move. I think President Bill Clinton will make a good president — he's more focused on people than on international relations."

Pvt. 2 John Hodges, USAIC Military Police Company — "I would tell him to keep homosexuals out of the military."

Hurry up and wait for forms

By Clyde Snively

COMMENTARY

On the first working day of 1993, my post office gave to me, one Form 1040 EZ.

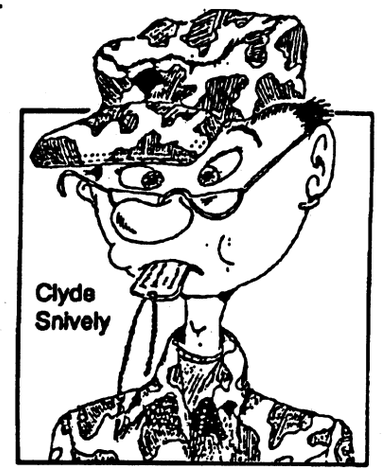
On the last working day of January 1993, I hope to get from my Army my form W2.

Every year I ask myself, "How can the IRS get its forms to 60 million tax payers right after we ring in the new year, while we are still recuperating from our revelling, but our Army can't seem to find its 600,000 members for another 30 days?

Does it come as a surprise each year that soldiers are going to need their W2s in order to file their tax returns?

I know all the information is available, it's there on our December Leave and Earning Statements. So while these are being printed out, why can't the same information be put on that small piece of paper with all the carbon copies and sent out with the December LES instead of the January LES?

Someone told me one reason is they also want to provide that fact sheet that tells us how much our money is "really" worth.



By calculating in tax breaks we get, "someone up there" comes up with a figure that should make us feel good about our meager pay.

All it does is depress me. I get to thinking about what I would do with that extra money if I had it to spend. You can't spend "Woulda bucks" down on Victory Drive.

I'd rather get the money up front and pay the taxes later. But anyway, from what I hear, one of the delays in getting our W2s is having to wait for that computer-generated form to roll off the presses.

But in the meantime, I put my 1040 form away in a safe place and forget about it.

Finally the January payday rolls around and we get our W2 forms. By then I've forgotten where my 1040 is and additionally, I no longer have a burning desire to fill out the form, no matter how easy and simple it might be.

So by procrastinating even longer, I extend my interest free loan to the government on the money I'm due back — some cynics claim the Army is in cahoots with IRS, that this is a way to help fight inflation, combat the soaring national debt by using our "due back" money interest free for another 30 days and more.

I would NEVER believe that of my government.

I wonder if I could bill the Army on interest due. Let's see, if my refund is $30, at 8 percent, would that come to $2.40?

It's true you can use your December LES to fill out your 1040s, then just hang onto them until your W2s show up. You then whip them into the mail or do it electronically (at major cost to you) so you'll be one of the first in line to get your refunds.

That's assuming you're organized (or really need the refund).

For those of you who have complications built into your lives, such as tax deductions — moving costs, medical costs, loss of property, and mortgage payments — once again the Staff Judge Advocate's office is offering tax assistance.

You can visit these tax gurus in their office or see them when they staff the Main Mall Feb. 6, March 6 and April 3 from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

It's a great service because it's free.

Just remember to bring along your tax forms and that pile of paper you call "records."

Now let's see, just where did I put my 1040?

OPERATION RESTORE HOPE

Greetings from Mogadishu to our families and friends. Greetings from Somalia!

Well, the rumors are true — bugs, snakes, monkeys, sand, heat and, at times, unfriendly Somalis; but nothing nearly so bad as it looks on Cable News Network.

The soldiers who deployed from Fort Benning have performed magnificently. We literally "hit the ground running."

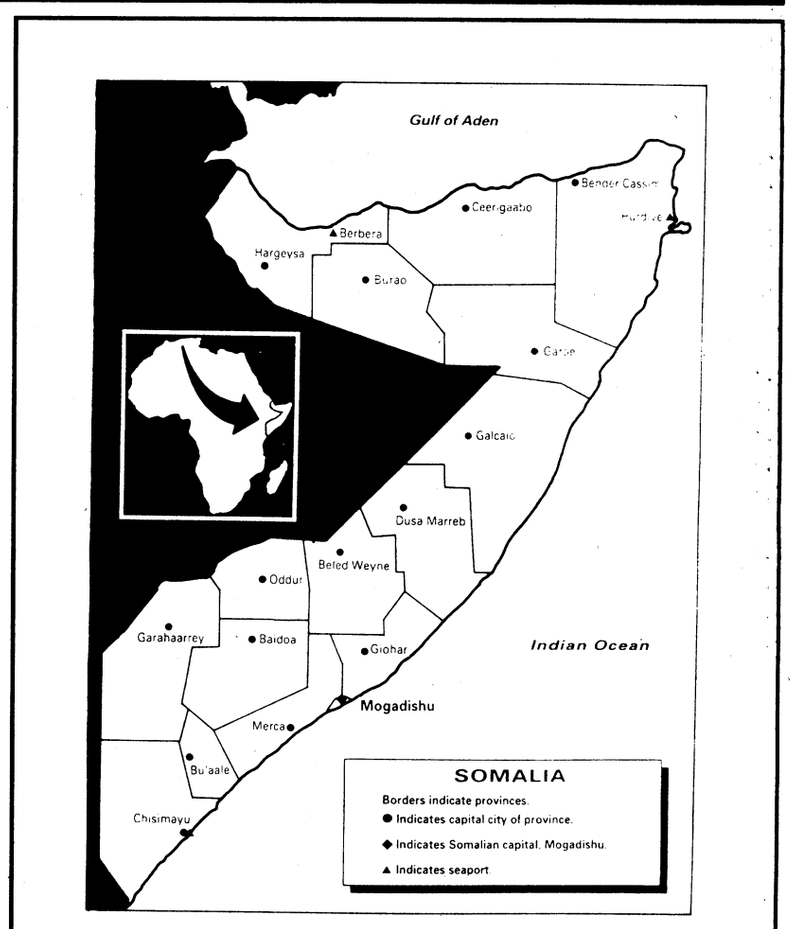
Within the first hours of arrival, our soldiers had erected tents, cleared land, built latrines and provided vehicles and operators for a variety of missions throughout the area. So far, the 36th Engineer Group has unloaded two of the four ships that have arrived for Army forces.

The Group Headquarters, 43rd Engineer Combat Battalion and 63rd Engineer Company have set up an area that has been dubbed "Engineer Base." Morale has been high as soldiers tackle their missions with an esprit and gusto that would make you very proud.

Life in Engineer Base is probably among the best in Somalia. We have lights, tents, latrines and even occasional hot showers. Temperatures range from 75 to 90 degrees in Mogadishu, but it gets to an average of 10 degrees hotter inland.

We are all taking care to protect ourselves from the danger of heat and sun. Later this week, we will be setting up our recreation tent and laundry. No matter how nice we make it though, there is still no place like home.

I would like to again thank the Fort Benning staff who prepared us and worked hard to provide the supplies and equipment for this operation. Having been here for 10 days, we see other units still struggling to prepare for missions, while we are ready to go.



Somalia is a harsh country and, with the upcoming missions of road repair and upgrade and vertical construction, our soldiers will be truly challenged.

The group is preparing to assume responsibility for more than half the military engineer effort in-theater. The other half will belong to a Navy engineer regiment comprised of Navy Seabees and Marine engineers. On Jan. 19, Companies A and C and the 43rd Engineer Combat Battalion departed for Baidoa and Marka, respectively.

Our mission is to repair and construct 1,200 kilometers of roadways, which are the main supply routes that connect the major cities.

We will also be constructing base camps for U.S. and U.N. coalition forces in the sector. This work will include latrines, showers, kitchens, tent floors and strong-backed administrative tents.

Our goal is to complete these tasks before March 1 — the beginning of the rainy season here in Somalia. Of course, the 36th may receive additional missions at the time.

Everyone is very excited about our mission here in Somalia, and the media is tracking our accomplishments with interest. We enjoy the full support of Maj. Gen. Steve Arnold and the great soldiers of the 10th Mountain Division.

We're all glad to be such an integral part of such a positive mission for the U.S. Army and to be Fort Benning's representatives in Operation Restore Hope.

CG names February Black History Month

In recognition of the numerous contributions of Black Americans to America's diverse ethnic, racial, social, political and religious history, the month of February is proclaimed "Black History Month" at Fort Benning.

The 1993 theme for Black History month is "Afro-American Scholars, Leaders, Activists and Writers."

Black History Month is a means to help increase awareness, promote harmony and improve understanding among all Americans.

I encourage all personnel at this installation and in surrounding communities to join with fellow soldiers and citizens in enjoying activities during Black History Month 1993.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White
Commanding general

Bone marrow donors needed

The Fort Benning military community has been asked by the friends of Kendall Crawford to participate in a bone marrow donor screening today from 10 a..m. to 7 p.m. at the Wynnton United Methodist Church, 2412 Wynnton Road.

Crawford is an 8-year-old child with leukemia. Because of the incredible turnout at the Jan. 22 screening, this second date has been scheduled.

There will be a $45 lab charge for those who participate. An individual's blood type does not matter.

For more information call 563-6178 or 563-8578.

Army helps youth

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

During peacetime, the Army faces challenges that are often as diverse and difficult as those in wartime, from feeding the needy of Somalia to building roads and bridges.

On Jan. 22 the post demonstrated how the Army can positively influence the nation's youth by letting 50 of Atlanta's at-risk teen-agers tackle the Leader Reaction Course and observe training by the Infantry Training Brigade.

The group of teen-agers, dubbed the "Future Force" by Forces Command, were members of the Atlanta Project, a program initiated by former President Jimmy Carter to address the problems of poor families in Atlanta.

Neil Shorthouse, head of community development for the Atlanta Project, said that the Army can be one of the best influences in helping at-risk youths develop maturity and leadership skills.

"The Army probably knows more about turning people around than anyone else, and we wanted the Army to play a major role in this," said Shorthouse.

The Leader Reaction Course consists of various physical obstacles that test the participants' ability to quickly identify and overcome problems.

"For the first times in their lives these kids are working together constructively to solve problems," said Shorthouse. "They are learning that they can take control of their lives rather than simply letting life control them."

Future Force members are selected by principals, social workers, and student government leaders, said Shorthouse. It targets at-risk youngsters who have the leadership potential to change their lives and who can help to change others in their schools and communities. Future Force members are taught basic academic skills, self-esteem improvement, community service training, drug abuse prevention and sex education.

"These students are at a critical point in their lives where they can make a change for the better, or even for the worse, for that matter. It's important that we reach them before it is too late," Shorthouse said.

"There are thousands of youth like these in Atlanta, and the members of Future Force can take the positive experiences gained at Fort Benning and apply them in helping not only themselves but their peers."

Dental fair Feb.13

U.S. Army Dental Activity

Children and parents are invited to the Dental Health Fair Feb. 13 at Peachtree Mall from noon to 4 p.m..

The fair will feature clowns, puppet shows, a magician, balloons, and prizes. There will be free exams for children under 13 and table clinics on dentistry.

The Fort Benning Dental Activity personnel will present puppet shows, and the Western District Dental Society will have table clinics.

The district dental hygienist will have a tooth fairy, help with the games, and have drawings for prizes.

The district dental assistants will have clowns and will give away balloons and gifts.

The Columbus College dental hygiene students will be dressed in costumes and will entertain the children.

The Muscogee County Public Health Department will have coloring books and face paints.

The dentist in the 3299th U.S. Army Reserve Dental Service Detachment will perform dental examinations.

Toll-free help-line available for vets

Department of Veterans Affairs

The Department of Veterans Affairs is encouraging veterans who were exposed to radiation during military service, including Reservists and National Guard personnel who served during the Persian Gulf War, to call a special toll-free telephone help-line for current information and assistance.

The 24-hour number – (800) 827-0365 – was inaugurated in August 1991.

VA counselors will explain benefits, services and medical research related to radiation exposure and provide assistance in filing or reopening radiation-related disability compensation claims.

The help-line is available to veterans and family members weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and is staffed by counselors at the VA Regional Office and Insurance Center in Philadelphia, Pa. After-hours and weekend callers may leave a recorded message, which will be returned the following business day.

The radiation help-line supplements VA's single, nationwide, toll-free number – (800) 827-1000 – inaugurated Oct. 26.

DOL highlights ACOE efforts

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

The Directorate of Logistics' commitment to the Army Communities of Excellence program was highlighted at the Civilian Awards Luncheon Thursday.

According to David Dye, a DOL industrial engineer, the directorate has many success stories to tell.

"We've really got a lot to be proud of, and I think the main reason for our success is the quality of the people in DOL," said Dye. "We have excellent people doing excellent work and management that supports and recognizes its employees. Ninety employees have received Department of the Army level awards and every quarter we recognize an outstanding manager and an outstanding employee."

"I truly believe that the personnel of DOL really exemplify ACOE," he added. "They greet customers with a smile and are prepared to go the extra step if they can to make the customer happy. This existed even before ACOE, but now we have a way to formally recognize this and provide an incentive."

Here are some of the recent DOL success stories that Dye said are typical of the directorate's commitment to ACOE and customer service.

• The Transportation's Personal Property Section cross-trained its personnel to handle more than one type of job. This allows them to serve customers faster because now soldiers do not have to wait for a particular person to handle a particular need. The section is also supplementing individual counseling sessions with group counseling sessions, and employees have volunteered to take early or late appointments for soldiers who are unable to come at any other time.

"They have actually been able to double the number of people that they can see but have in no way lowered the quality of the service," said Dye.

• DOL has made a commitment to improving its facilities. "A poor facility reflects poor service," he said. "A lot of projects are being accomplished through the self-help program. At the Transportation Motor Pool, for example, some of the drivers put planters outside and used their painting skills to make the workplace a more enjoyable place for both the employees and the customers."

• Dining facilities are offering take out service for soldiers who are in a crunch for time.

• The Maintenance Division recently installed a special telephone line in one of its offices for use by an employee who is hearing impaired. "Now she won't have to rely on other employees to help her make calls and I'm sure she can have the peace of mind that she will be able to communicate with her family members over the phone if the need arises," Dye said.

• The Supply and Services Division has added handicapped rest room facilities at the post cemetery.

• The Maintenance Division has consolidated the weapons pool and other equipment pools so that units can get the equipment they need for an exercise at one location.

Dye said that DOL employees truly strive to live up to the motto "Service Guaranteed."

"We feel this is very important because the motto is not only a promise to our customers, it is also a challenge to our employees. We owe all of our customers the best that we can offer," he said.

Benning 2000 kicks off toward goals

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning 2000: unites the Fort Benning community to develop better citizens, stronger families and a more productive and competitive work force.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White
Commanding general

Fort Benning 2000, Fort Benning Schools' program based on the national education goals set forth in America 2000, officially got under way Jan. 22.

Following a luncheon at the Main NCO Club, Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White presented a proclamation about the program to Col. Robert M. Tesdahl, Training and Doctrine Command System Manager — Soldier and chairman of the Fort Benning 2000 Steering Committee.

Other members of the steering committee are Dr. Rolla Baumgartner, superintendent of Fort Benning Schools; Lt. Col. Howard Willis Jr., Army National Guard adviser; Alan Stewart, director of Community Activities; Kathy Crawford, director of Patch Preschool; Inez Gardner, parent; and Laverne Worth, director of the Education Center.

The goals included in Fort Benning 2000, said Tesdahl, cover everything from preschool to adult education. "Now that the program is under way, the next step is to put meat on the bones," said Tesdahl. "We need to find people to form action committees that will work on the individual goals. We'll also be contacting post agencies for their input."

Tesdahl said areas of concern range from prenatal care to law enforcement, as goals include having children start school ready to learn and maintaining a drug-free, disciplined school environment.

"Once we prioritize our tasks and build an action plan, we'll begin issuing reports, perhaps semi-annually, that will measure our progress," he said.

Tesdahl pointed out that since Fort Benning has a transient population, the program will face unique problems. "We hope we can instill in students and parents not only skills, but attitudes, that will follow them and help them wherever they go.

"We need a lot of involvement from parents," Tesdahl said. "We'll want their input on the action committees, to tell us what they think about the schools now.

"We'd also like to see parents' continuing involvement in their children's educations both in the school and at home," Tesdahl said. "This would include supervising and helping with homework, interacting with teachers and providing a structured learning environment in the home."

Tesdahl said Fort Benning 2000 also has potential benefits for adults. "This program addresses life-long learning," he said. "Soldiers are already involved in continuing education — the Army encourages that. A want-to-learn attitude can help prepare a soldier not only for success in the Army, but for life after the Army."

Civilians receive awards

Outstanding employees recognized at FBOC luncheon

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning's Directorate of Logistics took the spotlight at the quarterly Civilian Awards Luncheon held Thursday at the Fort Benning Officers' Supper Club.

"DOL's Commitment to Army Communities of Excellence," was the theme of the luncheon, which featured a slide presentation that chronicled some of the directorate's achievements.

The luncheon also served as a forum for awarding the following civilian employees and organizations for their outstanding work.

• Employee of the Month for October: Yamill Collazo, School of the Americas.

• Employee of the Month for November: Clifford Davis, Directorate of Community Activities.

• Employee of the Month for December: Elwin E. Gilchrist, Office of Infantry Proponency.

• Training and Doctrine Command Community of Excellence Award: Equal Employment Opportunity Office.

• Commanding General's Safety Award: Raymond J. Xuereb, Directorate of Public Works.

• Achievement Medal for Civilian Service: Lawrence B. Bartlett, Directorate of Logistics.

• Employees recognized for more than 40 years of federal service: Kenneth I. Wilmarth, DPW; Frankie E. Sharp, Directorate of Operations and Training; James A. Ennis Jr., Directorate of Information Management; and Juan W. Santamaria, SOA.

• Employees recognized for more than 35 years of federal service: James F. Johnston, DPW; Joseph A. Hatchett, Directorate of Resource Management; Lawrence J. Frost, James C. Harnage, Charles A. Piper and Bobby F. Tucker, DOL; John W. Marshall, DOT; and Eleonora A. Aguirre and Maria Barcenas, SOA.

• Employees recognized for more than 30 years of federal service: Harold H. Lusano, Directorate of Contracting; Nathaniel Goldwire and James R. Jensen, DPW; Dona C. Carty, Joaquin B. Fejeran, Billy Miller and Robert E. Spencer, DOL; Larry H. Hutchens, DIM; Joseph Johnson and Frederick L. Lemon, DCA; Gilbert Soto, SOA; and Beverly M. Kindrick, Martin Army Community Hospital.

"We do a lot of things in DOL that should be of interest to everyone on post," said DOL Director Dale Ellis. "Seeing how we have improved customer relations and applied self-help (techniques) and the principles of Total Army Quality can help everyone on post to improve."

Ellis added that he is excited about the upcoming visit by the ACOE team. "We are all really excited about the team's visit and the chance to show how we have improved," he said.

Excellence appreciation breakfast set Feb. 18

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White will host the Excellence Appreciation Day breakfast Feb. 18 from 8 to 9 a.m. at the FBOC Supper Club.

The purpose of the breakfast is to recognize the civilian and military personnel who have contributed to making Fort Benning a community of excellence.

Selection will be determined by commanders, directors and principal staff officers.

Names of each organization's attendees, including honorees, should be submitted no later than today.

Tickets for the breakfast are $4 per person and will be available in the basement of the Parrish Building, Building 66.

Feb.'s focus is children's dental health

U.S. Army Dental Activity

February is National Children's Dental Health Month, and the theme for this year is "Get on the Path to a Healthy Smile."

This month was initiated 44 years ago to emphasize the importance of good oral health care for children.

Dental Activity staff members will present dental health programs at all post day-care centers, Patch Preschool, all elementary schools and Faith Middle School. through the month, and they will conduct a dental fair at Peachtree Mall.

The programs will include screening by a dentist and instruction by hygienists and dental assistants on brushing and flossing and food selection for life-long oral health.

Parents will receive the results of their child's dental examination, officials said.

36th Engineers build road to playoffs

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

With the post basketball season winding down, the 36th Engineer Group has its sights set on the playoffs.

The following are the results of the three games played Wednesday night at Audie Murphy Gym.

The 533rd Transportation Company (Rockets) vs. 2nd Mobile Army Surgical Hospital

The Rockets performed their own surgery on the 2nd MASH without any anesthesia, with a 51-38 victory.

The first half was close with the Rockets taking a 25-23 lead at halftime. In the second half, the Rockets opened up a lead of 11 points behind the hot shooting of Charles Flippen, who finished the game with 13 points — 11 of his points coming in the second half. Teammates Gerald Johnson and Henry Clark each chipped in 10 points.

The 2nd MASH was led by James Johnson who led all scorers with 17 points and Jerel Jessie had 12 points.

Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 13th Supply and Services Battalion (Warriors) vs. the 586th Engineer Company (River Rats)

Forrest Toombs scored 13 points and Chuck Brown added 10 to lead the Warriors to a 58-39 drowning of the River Rats.

The Warriors opened up a 29-21 lead by halftime and pushed it up to as many as 14 points early in the second half. The Warriors were able to use their size advantage to overpower the River Rats on the low post pushing the ball inside almost at will.

Willie Davis scored 12 points and Troy Jones added 8 for the River Rats, but were unable to stop the Warriors rampage in the second half.

The 608th Ordnance Company (Rock Steady) vs. the 598th Maintenance Company (B team) (Scrappers)

Marvin Lancaster and Marcus Rawls each scored 15 points for Rock Steady to blow away the Scrappers 68-56.

The inside play of Lancaster and James McClain along with the outside shooting of Rawls and Cory Long, countered the hot shooting of Freddie Clemens, who finished the game with 20 points for the Scrappers. Eric Knight and William Johnson tallied 11 points each in a losing effort.

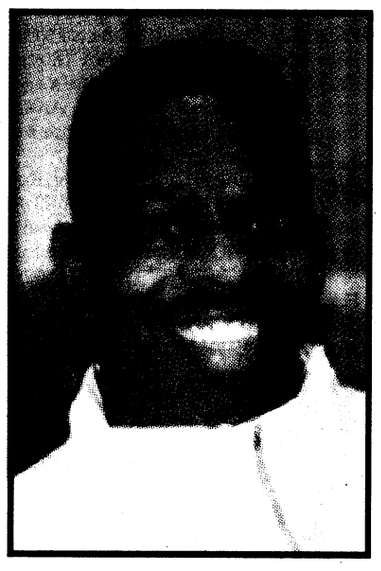
DARE, Olympic medalist team up against drug abuse



By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

"I am somebody. I am loved." These two sentences spoken by 1992 Olympic bronze medalist, Spc. Rodney Smith of the 29th Infantry Regiment, brought more than 1,000 students, parents, faculty and police officers to their feet Tuesday.

Smith, the 1992 Army Athlete of the Year, was the guest speaker at the 1993 Drug Abuse Resistance Education graduation held at the Three Arts Theater in Columbus.

The Columbus Police Department and the Muscogee County School District sponsor the DARE program, which educates elementary students in the art of staying drug free.

"When Sgt. Warren Dunlap of the Columbus Police Department asked if I would speak at the graduation," said Smith, "I felt it was a big opportunity to spread the word to the kids that drugs are a bad thing and that they shouldn't be involved with them." Smith also praised the kids for their dedication and resolve to stay drug free.

Smith

Dunlap said he asked Smith to speak because his name is recognized and he would be getting someone who cares about the kids.

"When we sat down and talked with Rodney, his primary concern was delivering a positive message that might benefit these kids, " said Dunlap.

"That's the kind of speaker we were looking for and that's exactly what we got. We couldn't have asked for anything more."

Smith closed his speech with the help of everyone in the building when he asked the audience to repeat these words after him. I love myself, I love myself, I love myself. The roar of the crowd was their response.

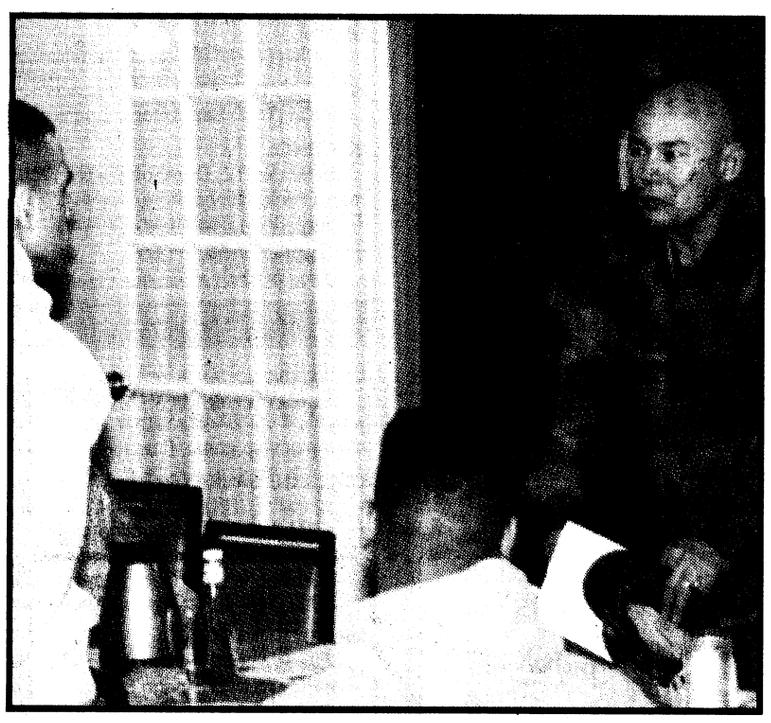
Wrestling hopefuls to sweat out trials

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The 1993 All-Army Wrestling Trial Camp officially began Jan. 6 with the arrival of 37 wrestlers from around the world.



Fort Benning will have 11 wrestlers returning from last year's All-Army Team.

A welcoming breakfast was Jan. 22 at the NCO Club to introduce the wrestlers to Fort Benning.

Chief of Staff Col. Burnet R. Quick was on hand to welcome the soldiers to the camp and Fort Benning.

All-Army wrestling coach Sgt. 1st Class Tony Thomas said this year the team should be fairly competitive with the exception of the 198-pound weight class due to the ankle injury to Sgt. Derrick Waldroup, the top rated wrestler in that weight class.

The first test for the aspiring wrestlers will come Feb. 7 at the Michigan Wrestling Open in Detroit, Mich., with competition in both Freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling.

3rd Bde. units all-around champs

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Two units from the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division captured the Commander's Trophy for 1993 with a total of 785 points each.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment and Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 324th Forward Support Battalion, won the trophy by accumulating points in basketball, football, softball, volleyball and other sporting events during the past year. It is the first time two teams have tied for the trophy.

Lt. Col. Marshall Reed, deputy brigade commander for 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, accepted the Commander's Trophy from Fort Benning Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White on behalf of Col. Robert St. Onge at the command and staff briefing Friday.

Bass Club winner reels in 10

By Jack Pines
Bass Club of Fort Benning

The Fort Benning Bass Club's monthly tournament was held at Lake Jordan, Ala., Jan. 17, with 18 people participating.

There were 22 fish caught with a total weight of 42 pounds, 6 ounces, and 22 fish released alive.

The first place honors went to George Mendez with a total of 10 pounds, 10 ounces. David Moore captured second place with 10 pounds, 4 ounces. Third place was taken by Skip Ray with 6 pounds, 8 ounces.

The big fish award went to Mendez with 4 pounds, 8 ounces.

The club's next tournament will be Feb.13 at Lake Harding, Ala.

The Bass Club held its annual award banquet on Jan. 15 at the Main NCO Club. Ben McGuire was named the top fisherman of the year and Ray was selected the club's Sportsman of the Year.

For more information, call Mendez at 687-7700 or Jack Pines at 687-8000.

Co. C rocks Echo

By Philip Mandile
29th Infantry Regiment

The Cougars of Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment defeated Company E, 2nd Bn., 29th Inf. Regt. for the opportunity to compete in the post basketball playoffs. Co. E was recently redesignated and had played the majority of the season as the Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Regt. Barbarians.

The Cougars established a definitive lead in the first half. Company E dominated outside shooting, but was no match for the Cougars' lethal inside game. The Cougars won handily with a final score of 59 to 39, finishing the season with five wins and three losses.

Co. C will participate in the post playoffs representing 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Regt. A meeting has been set for Feb. 10 at Doughboy Stadium to determine the playoff schedule. The playoff season will be from Feb. 16 to 25.

Philip Mandile

Staff Sgt. Patrick Miller of Co. E takes a free throw.

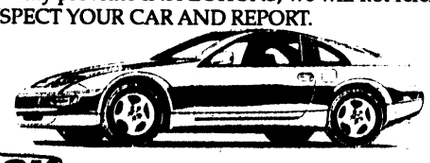
Eliminate Your Worst Fears About Buying A Used Car...



Buying Someone Else's Car Without Buying Someone Else's Problem!
Sure you've thought about buying a used car, but you're afraid of the problems that might be lurking between its bumpers. Was it properly maintained? Had it been in any accidents? Is the mileage correct? How much is this car really worth? AUTO-CHECK OF COLUMBUS was created to answer these and 3,500 other questions about the condition and value of any car...

Computerized Diagnostics for the Thorough Examination.
Simply looking under the hood or listening to the engine is no way to determine what shape the car is in. When you call, we perform a ACAT-SCAN on the used vehicle. That's our name for AUTO-CHECK AUTOMATED TESTING. Using state-of-the-art computers, we analyze over 3,500 mechanical and electrical components. We test the compression, timing, fuel injection, on-board computer, emissions, brakes, transmission, exhaust system and much more

If it's Been in an Accident, We'll Know It.
We start by looking under the car to see if the frame is bent or damaged, using our laser analyzer. Then using an Ultrasonic sensing devise, we measure the paint thickness on each panel. If there's any variation, it's a sign that it's been repaired with putty/bondo or repainted. And if it's been repainted, or putty/bondo under that paint, there's a good chance it's been in an accident.

Are You Getting A Steal Or Getting Robbed!!
To top it off, the AUTO-CHECKERS service tells you the value of the car based on its wholesale book value, retail book value, the mileage and condition. We also appraise ANTIQUE and EXOTIC cars, and use Lemon Law arbitration.

For more information call (706) 561-6011
You now have a service that only provides INSPECTIONS, we will not refer you to any one. ALL WE DO IS INSPECT YOUR CAR AND REPORT.

Four chaplains make sacrifice

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

"War is dangerous. Pray that God will make me adequate." Those words were written by Clark Poling to his father during World War II. Poling and his three colleagues soon proved themselves to be more than "adequate" on Feb. 3, 1943. They became known as "The Four Chaplains" who heroically gave their lives that others aboard the SS Dorchester might live.

These four chaplains represented the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths. They were among the 904 persons aboard the troop transport, the SS Dorchester, when it was hit by a Nazi torpedo and sank within 20 minutes in the icy waters off the coast of Greenland.

It was reported that they "gave their own lifebelts to enlisted men, and while praying together went down with the ship."

One of the 226 survivors said, "The chaplains stood hand in hand, praying to the God they served for the safety of those men who were leaving the stricken ship on all sides of them. This is the picture engraved in our minds and hearts as the SS Dorchester disappeared beneath the waves."

Another survivor told how one of the chaplains gave him his own gloves. After spending eight hours in a crowded lifeboat he was rescued. "Without the chaplain's gloves," he said, "my fingers would have frozen stiff. I would never have made it. As it was, only two of us survived of the 40 who were on the boat. I owe my life to the chaplain who gave me those gloves."

Those four chaplains were from diverse backgrounds. George L. Fox was a Protestant country boy from Vermont. Alexander D. Goode was a Jewish city boy from Washington, D.C., Johnny P. Washington was a Catholic boy from a poor immigrant family in Newark, N.J., and Clark V. Poling was a Protestant minister's son from New York City.

At Fort Benning, the Field of Four Chaplains is honoring those men. This year marks the 50th anniversary of the sinking of the SS Dorchester. A memorial service is set for 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Infantry Center Chapel.

The guest speaker will be retired Chaplain (Brig. Gen.) Charles McDonnell, who was a former Fort Benning post chaplain and a former deputy chief of chaplains.

McDonnell is a native of Brooklyn, N.Y. He has served at installations throughout the United States, Vietnam, Korea and Germany.

He entered active duty in August 1965 and his ecclesiastical honors include being named Prelate of Honor to His Holiness, Pope John Paul II, with the title of Monsignor in December of 1983.

Furthermore, McDonnell will celebrate the Mass at noon Wednesday at the Main Post Catholic Chapel. A pot-luck luncheon will be at 12:30 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex.

For more information, call Chaplain (Capt.) Gilley Richardson at 545-3715.

This monument at the field of Four Chaplains is dedicated to George L. Fox, Alexander D. Goode, Johnny P. Washington, Clark V. Poling who gave their lives that others might live.

Prayer breakfast time for reflection

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

What: Prayer breakfast
When: 6:30 a.m. Feb. 11
Where: Main NCO Club

The Fort Benning annual National Prayer Breakfast will be at the Main NCO Club Feb. 11 at 6.30 a.m.

The Prayer Breakfast is held in conjunction with the yearly National Prayer Breakfast in Washington, D.C.

It is designated as a time of spiritual reflection for post leadership and is a reminder of our country's roots.

The National Prayer Breakfast, which is sponsored by the U.S. Senate and House prayer groups, was established with President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1953.

The first National Prayer Breakfast, formerly known as the Presidential Prayer Breakfast, was designed to seek divine guidance for the nation's leadership and to declare their dependence on God and faith in him.

Every year thereafter, the prayer breakfast has gathered the President, members of the U.S. House and Senate, members of the Cabinet, the Supreme Court and the military leadership of the armed forces.

The guest speaker for this year's post gathering will be Chaplain (Brig. Gen.) Donald W. Shea, deputy chief of chaplains, Washington, D.C.

Shea is a native of Montana. He has served at installations throughout the United States, Vietnam, Korea, Panama and Germany.

Shea entered active duty as a Chaplain in August 1966 and brings a rich background and a wealth of experience from which to offer spiritual insight.

On July 27, 1990, former President George Bush nominated Shea to the U.S. Senate for promotion to brigadier general, which was approved Oct. 27, 1990.

Tickets for the USAIC National Prayer Breakfast must be purchased in advance and cost $3 each.

For more information or tickets, contact your unit chaplain or Chaplain (Maj.) Robert Helton at the USAIC Chaplains' Office, 545-2288.

Ramadan begins in Feb.

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Public Affairs Office

The holy month of fasting for the people of the Al-Islamic faith, called Ramadan begins on or about the first sighting of the new moon on approximately Feb. 22 or 23 begins

During this period, the Muslims (the people who submit their will to do the will of God) will not partake in eating, drinking, sex, loud talking or any act of aggression (unless defensive) during sunrise to sunset for 29 to 30 days, for the pleasure of God (Allah). This period is to pull spiritual maintenance on themselves.

For more information, contact Imam Yahya Islam at 689-6922 or Al-Muhsee Muhammad at 1233 Garrett St., Indianhead, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905.

CHAPEL NOTES

Protestant Women of the Chapel — Protestant Women of the Chapel will hold its monthly general meeting Thursday.

This month's theme is "God's Peace Puts a Song in Your Heart." All are invited to listen to the music and inspiration of Gregg Kennard, music director of a local church.

PWOC meets 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. each Thursday in Building 2521. Baby-sitting is provided free of charge in adjacent Building 2517. These buildings are located just off Indianhead Road and Thorson Street.

For more information, contact Gwen Chandler at 682-5546 or Loree Smith at 685-0809.

Free retreat — The Chaplain Family Life Center offers a free retreat relating to cross cultural marriage to Asian families today and Saturday.

A special guest speaker, Dan Moon of Riverside, Calif., will be featured. Born in Seoul, Korea, he is researching cultural trends, needs and strategies related to Asians in America at the Pacific Rim Asian American Institute of Missiology at California Baptist College.

The retreat will be at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, Building 101. For registration and more information, contact Chaplain (Maj.) James Rayburn at 545-1760 or 545-5301.

Prebaptism class — A prebaptism class will be Sunday and Feb. 21 and March 14 at 1 p.m. at the Religious Education Center, Buildings 2517 and 2522, located off Indianhead Road, behind the Quartermaster Laundry.

There are three sessions in each cycle. All parents who wish to have their child or children baptized in the Catholic church are required to attend prebaptismal instruction.

To register, call Phil Reilly at 545-4715.

Premarriage seminar — A premarriage seminar will be 1 p.m. Sunday at the Religious Education Center, Building 229. Attendance at this seminar is required for all couples who wish to be married in the Catholic church.

To register, call Phil Reilly at 545-2771.

Megaskills — The Chaplains' Family Life Center and Columbus College will present workshops for today's parents and children Wednesday and Feb. 17 and 24 and March 10, 17, 24 and 31 from 11 a.m. to noon at the Chaplains' Family Life Center.

For more information, call Chaplain (Maj.) James Rayburn at 545-1760.

MCCW —The Military Council of Catholic Women invite all women to increase their knowledge of the faith, join together for prayer and celebration of Mass, participate in opportunities of service and form feminine friendships.

The MCCW meets every Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. until noon at the Infantry Center Annex, and every first Friday from 9:30 a.m. until noon at the Main Post Catholic Chapel. Child care is free. For more information, call Teresa Zepeda at 682-3918 or Jackie Place at 689-6496.

Life and love series — The Military Council of Catholic Women is presenting a series of talks by Scott and Kimberly Hahn and Dr. Thomas Zepeda.

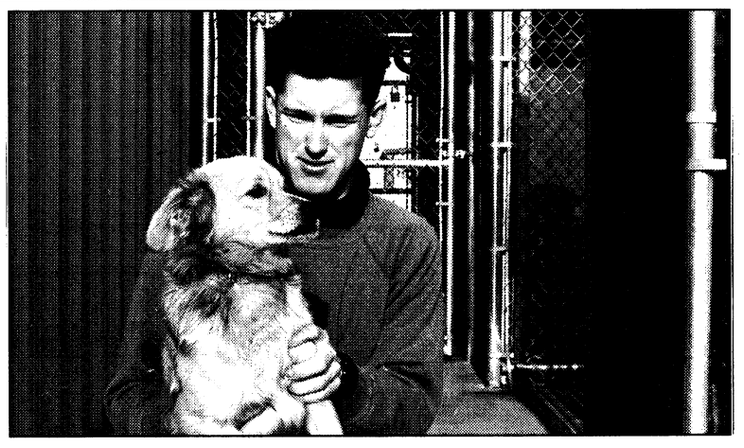
The series, titled "Life Giving Love," examines the meaning of sex and marriage from a Christian standpoint. The topics for each week are:

Wednesday - Marriage Covenant and Birth Control

Feb. 3 - Natural Law and Birth Control

Feb. 10 - The Bible and Birth Control

Feb. 17 - Medical Ethics on Birth Control



The series will be at the Infantry Center Annex from 9:30 a.m. until noon. Child care is free.

PET OF THE WEEK

Mark Montgomery holds this week's pet, a mixed-breed male which is approximately 1 year old. If you would like to adopt him or another pet, contact the Veterinary Services office in Building 265, with the Animal Adoption Facility in Building 263 next door. Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. For more information, call 545-1127.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility. Animal control on post is a division of the Military Police Activity. An officer will pick up strays and take them to the stray impoundment kennels, located in building 263. Once the animal arrives, it has three working days to be claimed. If the pet is not claimed, it becomes government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are important, too, because it's the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner. Pet owners should update their records when changes occur and register pets. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

43rd Engrs. plug up holes

Battalion restores roads

By Ed Loomis
11th Public Affairs Team

MOGADISHU, Somalia — The main road through the hamlet of Golweyn had a hole "the size of a humvee (high-mobility, multi-purpose, wheeled-vehicle)," according to 1st Lt. Kevin P. Landers, leader of Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion's Earthmover Platoon. The 43rd Engineers plugged the hole.

The 43rd Engineers and other units of Fort Benning's 36th Engineer Group have begun their efforts to repair the Somali infrastructure enough to ensure humanitarian assistance can flow from Mogadishu and Kisimayu to towns and villages.

Damage like the humvee-sized hole in Golweyn's main road was the rule, not the exception, of Somalia's road network. Although some stretches of road in the country's interior are still intact, Landers said, "We had to tear up asphalt in other areas because more than 50 percent of it was destroyed."

"Our goal is to upgrade 30 miles of road to allow 30 mph travel by a Class 35 (35-ton) vehicles every day," Landers said. "We've been keeping up with that."

The platoon, augmented by equipment and soldiers from the 63rd Engineer Company, is also widening the road 25 to 30 percent to make two-way traffic safer.

"The locals have helped us out a lot," said Staff Sgt. Andre Williamson, a squad leader with the Earthmover Platoon.

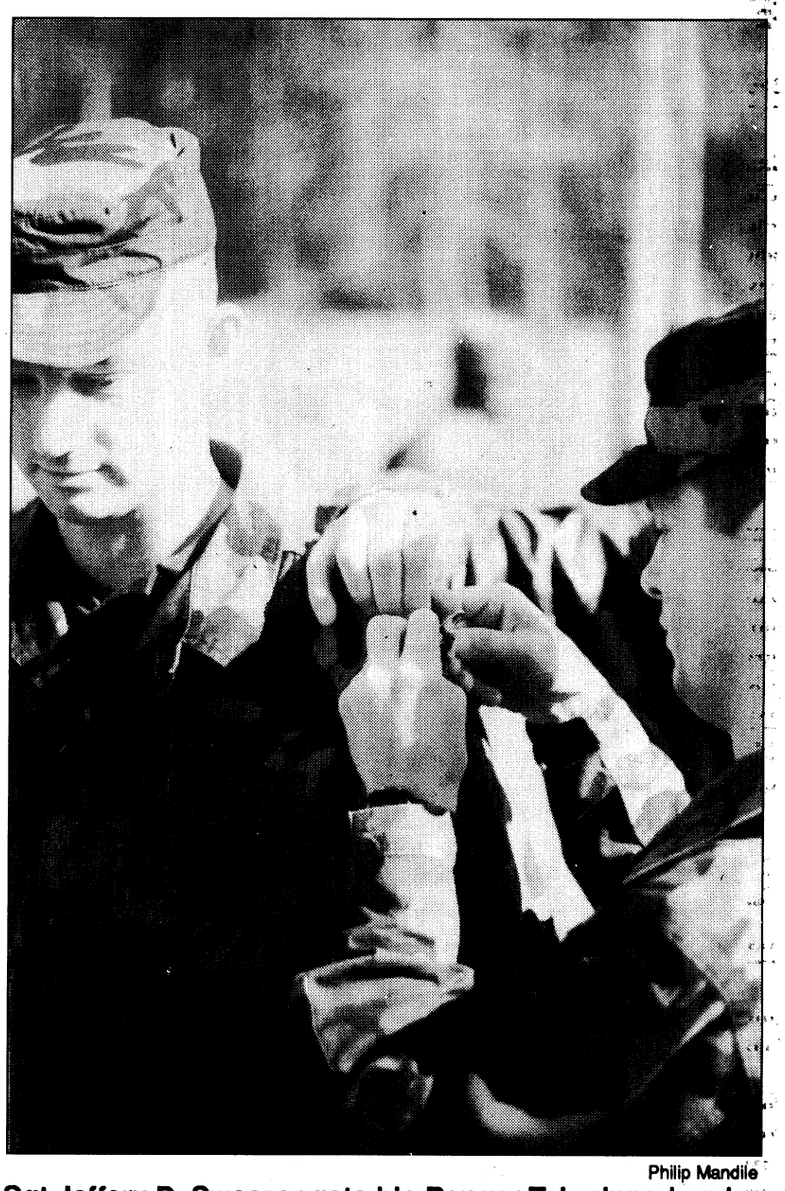
Williamson said a Somali showed the 43rd Engineers the location of an old Soviet anti-vehicle mine just off the road the unit was repairing. The engineers detonated the mine in place.

Route reconnaissance by the engineers ahead of their scrapers and graders is also enabling the unit to meet its objective to improve the road from Afgooye, a town on Mogadishu's outskirts, to Jilib.

Jilib is the site where 10th Mountain division soldiers from Fort Drum, N.Y., and 36th Engineer Group soldiers are scheduled to erect a Bailey Bridge in the next week.

Work must progress quickly because Somalia's rainy season normally begins in mid-March and will put a virtual halt to road improvements.

The engineers' work became the biggest attraction in Golweyn, as Somalis of all ages gathered to watch the steady improvement of what had been a traffic-stopping obstacle.



Some of the children gathered around the engineers and medics, speaking the English words they knew and trying to learn more. One young Somali demonstrated his mastery of the English alphabet.

The American soldiers were bombarded by questions like "How are you?" and "What is your name?"

Golweyn is only the latest in a series of towns the unit will pass through as it nears the equator. Capt. John G. Reilly, commander of Company C, 43rd Engineers, said the unit's next move will be to move their base of operations from Marka to Baraawe.

"I didn't think we could make it down here in the time we did,' Reilly said.

As the 43rd and 63rd Engineers' soldiers made a thoroughfare out of what had been a crater, Reilly said, "I haven't seen them reach their limit."

Warrant Officers Corps undergoes changes

Army News Service

Since the Second World War, the rapid growth in technology has caused a greater need for specialization, launching new careers for warrant officers in many fields across the Army.

The Army warrant officers' role has varied over the years, but the basic requirements remain the same. They're highly skilled technical officers in positions ranging from systems operations and maintenance to management and medical care. Warrant officers remain in their chosen career fields for repetitive assignments.

In 1984-85, the Army conducted the Total Warrant Officer Study, a comprehensive review of the WO program. TWO's goal was to see if accessions, placement and retention could be improved to meet future Army requirements.

In the process, a new definition for warrant officers emerged: "An officer appointed by warrant by the secretary of the Army based on a sound level of technical and tactical competence. The warrant officer is the highly specialized expert and trainer who, by gaining progressive levels of expertise and leadership, operates, maintains, administers and manages the Army's equipment, support activities or technical systems for an entire career."

This new definition recognizes the warrant officer as an officer who exhibits personal and professional ethics, integrity, confidence and competence. Through progressive training and assignments, each warrant officer acquires technical and tactical competence needed for his grade and occupation. These elements in the definition — tactical knowledge, progressive levels of expertise and leadership — are important new requirements of today's Army warrant officer.

Before 1987, Army WO requirements were defined only by occupational specialty without regard to skill and experience levels. The Army leadership has always suspected that WO requirements varied by levels of skill within their specialties. But finding a credible analysis process to identify these variances was a tough task.

The TWO study succeeded in designing that process. It identified three distinct levels of skill and experience within most specialties; it also showed that the specialties have a hierarchy of training and placement. The three levels now are coded in Army manning documents as warrant officer, senior warrant and master warrant.

Warrant officers would be assigned to positions commensurate with their rank and military education level, or with the next lower rank group. Before the study, WO management took place through a mix of programs and separate "quick fix" policies that created perceptions of career uncertainty within the WO corps. Career expectations for service as a warrant officer varied considerably from one soldier to another.

For example, some soldiers entered the program with as little as one year of prior service, while others entered with as much as 15 years. Because of this, some soldiers had insufficient time remaining in service to compete for promotion to CWO 4.

System overhaul

To help dispel past management problems and career disincentives, a new WO personnel life-cycle management system was created. The system consists of personnel policy initiatives as well as legislative changes needed to align the WO personnel management system to that which governs commissioned officers under the Defense Officer Personnel Management Act.

A much more disciplined process than its predecessor, the new WO system aims to offer careers that attract and retain the proper levels of WO experience and maturity, yet remain cost-effective. The new system focuses on moving soldiers into WO programs earlier, training and employing them more efficiently, and retaining them longer. The two elements behind the new system are the Warrant Officer Management Act and the Warrant Officer Leader Development Action Plan.

WO Management Act

A few years ago, the Army initiated the Defense Department legislative proposal to provide the service secretaries with the management tools necessary to better manage warrant officers within their organizations. The proposal led to a new law -- the Warrant Officer Management Act.

The law replaced outdated WO management regulations, and more closely aligns the WO system with its DOPMA counterpart. The new law established a single promotion system. Now, when selected for promotion to CWO 3 through CWO 5, soldiers will have that selection carried as permanent. This system also allows for below-the-zone consideration of warrant officers for permanent promotion to CWO 4 or CWO 5, and allows the secretary of the Army to consider officers twice nonselected for permanent promotion for selective continuation.

The act, however, excludes below-the-zone promotion to CWO3. Before the act, warrant officers who were twice non-selected for promotion were separated in 60 days. Now, such warrant officers will be separated on the first day of the seventh month after non-selection. This brings the WO system in line with commissioned officers.

In pre-WOMA days, regular Army warrant officers were required to retire after 30 years' active federal service. That provision kept many warrants from competing for promotion to CWO 3 and CWO 4 — because of the years of enlisted service they logged before being appointed. To retain valued experience, the system now provides for retirement based on years of WO service.

Mandatory retirement for soldiers selected for promotion to CWO 4 comes at 24 years' WO service. Those selected for promotion to CWO 5 must retire at 30 years of WO service or at age 62, whichever comes first. WOMA provisions also allow the secretary of the Army to extend people beyond these points if the officer is serving well in a critical specialty.

New CWO 5 grade

Warrant officers in selected critical specialties had been leaving the Army too early, causing some severe shortfalls. The new grade of CWO 5 offers the retention tool that may keep the most senior warrant officers on active duty, retaining their valuable experience.

CWO 5 status comes with some restrictions. Only 5 percent of the total warrant officers on active duty may occupy the grade, and the secretary of the Army may convene boards to recommend selective retirements.

Also, all warrant officers with 20 years' active federal service may be considered by a board of officers for retirement. The first selective retirement board for warrant officers convened in November, and recommended 261 warrant officers for retirement.

Two 1/29th soldiers pin on Ranger Tabs

By Philip Mandile
1st Bn., 29th Inf. Regt.

Ranger Class 2-93 graduated Jan. 22 at Malvesti Field. Within seconds, smoke filled the air as the command "Rangers, fall in" was given.

Artillery simulators detonated while the new rangers charged into formation from the woodline.

The graduation ceremony began as Sgt. Maj. Joe N. Heckard of the 4th Ranger Training Battalion introduced retired Maj. Gen. Kenneth C. Leuer.

Leuer spoke on what being a ranger is all about. "There are three key words," he said, "that sum up how a ranger should think of the word 'quit' — never, never and never."

At the conclusion of Leuer's speech, family members and friends of the graduates pinned on the Ranger Tabs. Congratulations were exchanged, pictures were taken and the ceremony continued.

The honor graduates were recognized, and the graduates recited the Ranger Creed. They were then called to attention while the U.S. Army Song was played.

Two soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment graduated: Sgt. Jeffrey D. Sweezer and Sgt. Cory S. Allison.

After the ceremony, they were awarded a regimental coin by Col. Gregory C. Camp, commander of the 29th Inf. Regt.

VA to study women vets

New division looks at stress

Department of Veteran Affairs

The Department of Veterans Affairs is announcing the establishment of a new division within the National Center for Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder devoted to the study of the impact of military trauma on women veterans. The Women's Health Science Division is the first of its kind in the country.

While research and educational programs at the national center have included women veterans, the division will be devoted exclusively to studying the effects of traumatic stress on women veterans' mental health and physical well-being. This will include problems caused by sexual harassment and sexual assault. Located at the VA Medical Center in Boston, Mass. the division will be under the direction of Jessica Wolfe, Ph.D.

The division will conduct studies designed to improve the assessment, diagnosis and treatment of PTSD in women, as well as PTSD training. "We also will be offering a broad range of educational activities for professionals and the community, and plan to continue our collaboration with other treatment facilities serving women veterans, and federal, state and private institutions conducting research related to the care of women," said Wolfe.

VA's National Center for Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder — a center for clinical research, training and information on PTSD — was established in 1989. The multi-site center is a collaborative effort based at four VA hospitals located in White River Junction, Vt.; West Haven, Conn.; Boston, Mass.; and the Menlo Park Division of the VA Medical Center in Palo Alto, Calif.

VA has long led the way in PTSD treatment and research. Specialized PTSD treatment programs and clinical teams are located at VA facilities throughout the country. Veterans also receive PTSD treatment in VA's medical centers and mental health clinics, as well as from a network of 196 veterans' outreach centers, which provide counseling to veterans and their families on a variety of readjustment problems.

Research conducted by the National Center for Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder has helped guide evaluation and treatment efforts for this disorder.

WORLD WAR II — A LOOK BACK

50 years ago this week ...

• In the Solomon Islands area, U.S. naval forces engaged large Japanese forces withdrawing from Guadalcanal in a week-long air and naval battle. During the battle, the Americans succeeded in sinking two destroyers, crippling four others, damaging seven additional ships and destroying 60 aircraft, while losing the heavy cruiser Chicago, a destroyer, three smaller vessels and 22 planes.

• In Adana, Turkey, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill met with Turkish President Ismet Inonu to discuss the Allied aid available to Turkey in the event of an invasion by German forces. Churchill offered to fortify the country's external security by supplying both troops and equipment. Despite this and many other overtures from Allied and Axis powers alike, Inonu's fear of Nazi occupation followed by Soviet "liberation" motivated him to maintain a policy of strict neutrality to the war's end.

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets completed their annihilation of the beleaguered German Army at Stalingrad, killing a total of 146,700 German soldiers and capturing more than 45,000 more, including 17 generals, in the last two days of fighting alone.

• In Berlin, the Nazis celebrated the 10th Anniversary of Adolf Hitler's rise to power. As part of the event, Joseph Goebbels addressed the German people and Herman Goring spoke to the armed forces.

• In the India-Burma region, Britain's Royal Air Force continued to conduct heavy bomber raids daily on Axis positions.

• Fort Benning's Parachute School graduated a stepfather and son team, awarding wings to Pvts. Delphis "Bud" Bearor and John Campbell. Bearor had made several previous jumps as part of a barnstorming act which had toured the country in the 1930s.

Post honors employee

Directorate of Information Management

At a retirement reception held in her honor at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex Jan. 4, Annette H. Phelps, acting chief, Operations and Systems Integration Division, Directorate of Information Management, received the Department of the Army Achievement Medal for Civilian Service for her more than 33 years of service with the United States government.

Phelps began her civil service career in April 1959 as a clerk stenographer with the United States Army Infantry Board. She moved up through the ranks, attaining the grade of GM-13 as chief of the Software Management Branch, Directorate of Information Management, supervising seven computer programmer analysts.

She and her staff were formally recognized for sustaining the lowest system abnormal ending rate for the Southeastern Region by the Regional Data Center in Atlanta.

Another achievement of Phelps was the establishment of the Information Center, where one-stop support for the Fort Benning microcomputer computer users was accomplished. This included hardware and software installation, troubleshooting user problems and providing technical support, sponsoring computer user group meetings to present technological innovations and share ideas, and providing computer literacy and PROFS system training to computer users, both civilian and military.

Phelps assumed this additional responsibility as acting chief of the Information Center in addition to her regular duties as chief of the Software Management Branch. The results of her efforts will provide more effective and efficient use of information resources for years to come, officials said.

Phelps' record of truly outstanding achievements, professionalism, and selfless devotion to duty exemplifies what all members of this command should strive to emulate, according to DOIM officials.

The Department of Army Achievement Medal for Civilian Service and certificate signed by Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, was presented to her by Stephen D. Hearn, director of Information Management for her contributions to the DOIM and Fort Benning throughout her 33-year career at Fort Benning.

29th Infantry Regiment

The 29th Infantry Regiment held graduation ceremonies at Collins Training Center Jan. 13 for 39 newly qualified Bradley Fighting Vehicle master gunners.

The guest speaker was Col. Gregory Camp, commander of the 29th Infantry Regiment.

"You are now the experts in your units from what you've learned in this course," said Camp.

Master gunners from the 29th Infantry Regiment teach the 12-week course, which gives the students the knowledge to run ranges, provide company training, and improve the overall skills of Bradley crews in their unit.

First Steps program needs volunteers, infant supplies

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

First Steps, an intervention child abuse prevention program at Martin Army Community Hospital, is going through a cyclical need for volunteers and supplies.

Coordinator Mona Petro said her program sees about 50 newborn (first-time and problem) cases per month, and currently she has two volunteers plus herself since losing three of her staff members to pregnancy and others to moves out of the area.

First Steps makes personal visits by trained volunteers on the hospital floor to new mothers, follows up with phone calls to clients for three to six months, offers a 24-hour helpline of support for parenting questions, and makes referrals to community resources that can make parenting easier.

Petro said that because of their small staff, they are currently seeing just single mothers, teen-age mothers, a few first time mothers and those referred to them by Social Work Services, the Pediatric Clinic or military units aware of a family problem.

The program is also trying to raise funds for baby beds, bassinets, strollers, clothes and other infant accessories. From monday through Feb. 7, they also will be conducting a clothing and furniture drive for these items, which are lent out to their clients.

Anyone interested in contributing can bring donations to the Pharmacy entrance of Martin Army Community Hospital that week or Custom Radio, 2313 N. Manchester Expressway in Columbus.

The program has meant many long hours for a volunteer position, but Petro said she does it because she has seen the good that First Steps offers and doesn't want to see it fold.

"If we don't intercept these people while we can during their first pregnancy, they'll be back the following year with twice as many problems," she said.

Petro was referring to the statistic that says about 80 percent of teen mothers have a repeat pregnancy within two years of delivery of the first child.

These figures come from First Steps parent organization, the Georgia Council on Child Abuse. The program is also sponsored by Social Work Services and operates under American Red Cross rules and regulations. In addition, it works with the Department of Nursing, the Community Health Nurse and Army Community Services.

Vital people to keeping the program at Fort Benning going have been Denise MacDonald, Chairwoman of volunteers for the hospital, Frieda Greenway, maternity ward clerk, and Gail McClure, First Steps coordinator at the Medical Center in Columbus.

Greenway has offered tips on which moms need a little extra help, MacDonald knows what direction to send Petro when the program needs a little help, and McClure hosts the volunteer orientation with her own volunteers at the Medical Center.

Petro noted that in the past few months they have received assistance from several sources on post including umbrella strollers from Larry Bentley at the Commissary, and formula, diapers and baby clothing from the wives of 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment.

Connie Bridges/Special to The Bayonet

They have two children, Alicia, 3, and Michael, 2.

Petro's volunteering has meant time away from them, but she said she sets limits because she won't neglect her own family.

However, if additional volunteers come forward, the services First Steps provides would be easier on everyone involved.

The program requires that volunteers have two days of training, a tuberculosis tine test and a hepatitis shot. Child care, if needed, will be paid for while the volunteer attends these sessions.

Anyone interested in volunteering can reach Petro at 544-3213 (work), or 682-3766 (home) or can leave their name with the Red Cross Office at 545-5194.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Jan. 11 to 17. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt or innocence of any person.

• Hot topic: This week's hot topic concerns date rape. It's a crime and it can carry a stiff prison sentence.

• A specialist reported that persons unknown had stolen her Nissan Sentra from the parking lot of the Main NCO Club.

• A staff sergeant was charged with raping his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

• Two juveniles were charged with shoplifting after they exited the Main Post Exchange and retrieved a Mini-Maglite and keychain they had placed outside the fence of the Lawn and Garden section.

• A civilian reported that persons unknown removed a Zenith computer with keyboard, a Hewlett-Packard printer, and a Zenith monitor unsecured room of an on post administration building.

• This week's booby prize goes to a 13-year-old driver who was speeding, operating a vehicle with no driver's license, and attempted to elude the police by driving off post.

The juvenile was then stopped and charged by the Columbus Police with numerous traffic violations. He was transported back to the Military Police Station and his father was notified.

Other activities included 11 traffic accidents and five reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were nine cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, 11 cases of larceny of private property and four cases of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Bradley Vanderau
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q: I recently took my car to a local mechanic to have it repaired. The mechanic told me that the problem was minor, and that he would have to replace a few parts to correct the problem.

He gave a verbal estimate, and said that it may end up being plus or minus a few dollars. The estimate seemed reasonable, so I told him to do whatever it takes to get the car in working order.

The next day I went to pick up my car. To my amazement, the total bill was almost triple the estimate. The mechanic said the car needed more parts than originally anticipated. When I asked what the additional parts were, he said that it was "bearings and stuff."

I reluctantly paid the bill and drove off in frustration. What should I have done to prevent this unfortunate situation?

A: Although most mechanics are reputable individuals who pride themselves on honesty and service, some mechanics are unscrupulous, and will do almost anything to "rip off" the consumer.

The following tips may help you protect yourself when your car or truck needs repair:

• Find a reputable mechanic or repair shop before your car needs to be repaired. Ask your friends if they know a reliable mechanic.

After you have selected several repair shops, call the local Better Business Bureau, and ask if anyone has complained about the shops you are co. idering.

Ask the shops for some past customers you can contact to see if they were satisfied with the shop's work.

• Make sure to ask whether or not there will be a charge for initially checking the car to determine if there is a problem.

Ask for a full explanation of what is to be done to your car before you agree to anything.

• Ask the repair shop to give you a written itemized estimate before work is started. Ask your mechanic about guarantees and warranties on parts and labor. It is advisable to have these guarantees in writing.

If you are satisfied with the estimate and guarantees, tell the mechanic to start the work. However, tell the mechanic to call you before proceeding if the car requires additional parts and labor over the written estimate.

• Ask the mechanic for your old parts back. However, some parts are returned to the parts supplier, so you may not be able to get them.

• When you pick up your car from the mechanic, make sure the final bill shows each part's number, cost and cost of labor.

If you feel you have been overcharged or if work has been done without your authorization, question the bill. Try to settle disputes agreeably with the shop owner.

Hostess retiring after 38 years' service at Fort Benning

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

If you want to know how Fort Benning has changed in the last 38 years, there's a woman here who can tell you.

Naomi Harbin, hostess (manager) of the post's Guest House, who is retiring this month, says she has seen a lot of changes during her time here.

"When I started working here in 1955, the Guest House was part of the Post Exchange system," Harbin said. "I alternated between housekeeping at the guest house and filling in as manager at the PX .

"The price to stay at the Guest House then was $1.50 per person, 50 cents for children under 12. People could only stay for three days, and the rooms had metal-framed Army beds."

Harbin, a petite woman with salt-and-pepper hair and warm brown eyes, said she always enjoyed her job, although it was never easy.

"God's help has kept me going," she said. "I read the Bible every day before I come to work.

"I've met so many people that I've enjoyed, working here," Harbin said. "Even if they couldn't speak English, I could communicate with them and understand what they needed.

"I've seen a lot of young women who needed help," she continued. "Sometimes they wouldn't have money to feed the children — I'd help them out, give them my lunch or cook something at home and bring it in."

Harbin's supervisor, Leroy Johnson, agreed. "Some foreign-born spouses have come here who didn't know how to operate the appliances — she's taught them. The children have always loved her," he said. "To many people who've been here, she's a mother, counselor, adviser and friend. She gets Christmas cards from all over the world."

Harbin discussed her strategies for dealing with problems at the Guest House. "Sometimes the housekeepers will come to me and say some guests are arguing," she said, smiling. "I try to tease the people out of it — I'll say, 'Is there a problem? Just checking — we don't cut up here, now!'

"The guests would settle down, and they'd take it well," she said.

Harbin said one event she remembers well happened in 1963. "We had a racially mixed couple staying here, the first at that time" she said. "There were no quarters available on-post, and because of the laws in Columbus at that time, they had to get a court order before they could get housing in the city. They ended up staying with us for three months."

Harbin has worked at the Guest House through changes in management and changes in location.

"We've been located at Sand Hill, at Camellia Apartments and various locations on Main Post," she said. "When we were at the apartments, we also had a Guest House on Main Post that I operated by phone." Now the Guest House is located on South Lumpkin Road on Main post. Guests can remain there for 30 days.

Harbin said she's always been close to the people she works with. "They're like my family, my sons and daughters," she said. "I'll really miss them, and I'll miss coming to work every day, meeting new people."

Angela McKinnie, desk clerk at the Guest House, said she will miss Harbin. "I've only been here four months — my husband's in the military," McKinnie said. "But Ms. Harbin's been like my grandmother-away-from-home. She's been my adviser and a good friend; I'm going to keep in touch with her."

Dorothy Alexander, a housekeeper who has worked at the Guest House for 24 years, said of Harbin, "She's a kind person. She's easy to work with, and dedicated to her job. We're going to miss her very much; it'll take someone special to replace her."

Harbin has several activities planned for after her retirement. "I like to sew, do crafts and work with flowers. There's a lot I want to do, but I think first I'll rest for a while."

Pleasure is their business

Information, Ticketing and Registration is the place to go when planning a vacation or weekend getaway if the worries of vacation planning are too burdensome.

ITR provides information, makes reservations, gets discounted tickets to special events and amusement parks, and even charters buses for active duty and retired military personnel and their families, Department of Defense civilians, and legitimate guests of eligible personnel.

ITR makes the first stages of planning a getaway easy by providing information on any place imaginable.

The walls of the ITR office are lined with brochures detailing the sites of exotic locales, scenic countrysides, and adventurous excursions.

All customers have to do is tell ITR's consultants where they want to go, what hotel they want to stay at, and how many days they want to stay. ITR takes care of the rest and plans an excursion that matches the customer's budget and vacation desires. It even calls the hotel and makes the reservation at discounted military rates. ITR also has a bilingual clerk who can help Spanish-speaking customers plan the ideal trip.

In addition to providing information and making reservations, ITR also has tickets and military discounted coupon books for regional and national attractions.

Sports, theater and concert enthusiasts can go to ITR for advance sale tickets for a variety of events within the Southeast region.

Eligible personnel can also go to ITR for discounted passes for amusement parks and other attractions in the area.

ITR can provide low priced passes to Six Flags, Walt Disney World, Sea World, Busch Gardens, Universal Studios, Callaway Gardens, and Pine Mountain Wild Animal Park.

ITR also has a comfortable 24 passenger charter bus, which is perfect for getting a group together to go shopping, watch a baseball or football game, or enjoy an amusement park.

The bus can be booked by individuals or organizations, and if the event has more than 24 people interested, ITR will arrange for another charter service to accommodate everyone.

On March 11, ITR and SatoTravel will co-sponsor a travel show to help familiarize military personnel with the services offered at ITR and SatoTravel.

Various tickets and discounts on cruises will be available at the show.

ITR takes all the worries of planning a vacation off the customer. Whether it is a day trip or a week-long vacation, ITR has all the resources to help its customers get away from it all.

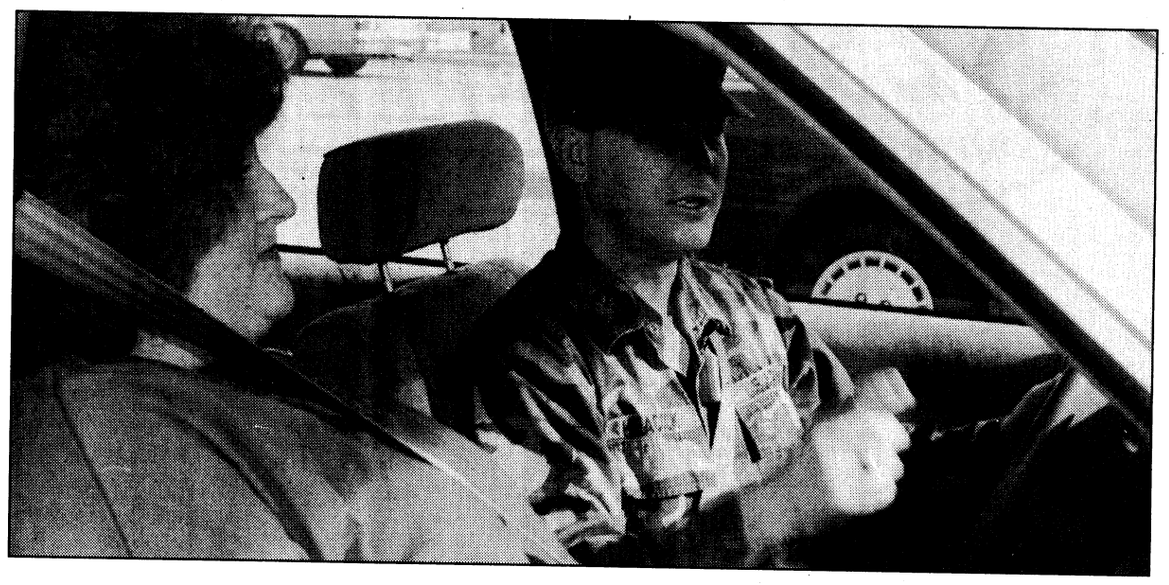
Mayors, MPs work to make communities safe

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Working together to improve the safety of their communities, Fort Benning housing area mayors and the Military Police Activity have been using a Ride-Around Program for the past three years to share information about problems.



"It's been very successful," according to Linda Matheny, in her second term as mayor of Indianhead Terrace.

Maj. Jack Heacock, MPA operations officer, is also Matheny's point of contact for the Ride-Around Program.

He said that they get together usually on a monthly basis, depending on schedules, and share information unique to the housing area, problems patrol officers have come across, or things the mayor has seen or had brought up at town meetings.

As part of getting together, Heacock and Matheny ride around Indianhead Terrace looking for infractions of regulation, that violate the safety or clean look of the housing area. Sometimes this means running radar.

"This is a positive program," Matheny noted. "We're not trying to nail anyone. If residents abide by the regulations, they have nothing to worry about. However, if they have been notified of a problem and refuse to cooperate, we're not afraid to use the resources available."

Connie Bridges

Linda Matheny, mayor of Indianhead Terrace and Maj. Jack Heacock, Military Police Activity operations officer, participate in the Ride-Around Program designed to keep Fort Benning Housing areas safer and up-to-standard.

Heacock said the program goes hand-in-hand with the MPA Community Relations Program so that mayors can automatically elevate a problem from the desk sergeant to the policy-making area of the Provost Marshall's Office just by calling to do a ride-around.

"It is also our stab at community policing, a growing trend in law enforcement over the past several years," he added. "Mayors know their housing areas better than anyone."

What do they look for?

• Someone doing vehicle repairs in the housing area instead of at the auto craft shops,

• Loud noise from homes or vehicles,

• Pets running loose,

• Unattended children under age six at the playgrounds or schools,

• Someone knowingly parking where they shouldn't and being inconsiderate of their neighbors,

• Frequent violations of the 15 mph speed limit in most of the housing areas,

• Unsecured bicycles that cannot be claimed for replacement by the government,

• Keeping trailers/ boats more than 22 feet long at the quarters instead of the camper and recreational vehicle lot.

Regulations do vary from post to post, Heacock admits, but when anyone moves into quarters at Fort Benning they are required to take a Self-Help Class offered by the Directorate of Public Works at which time they are given the U.S. Army Infantry Center regulations approved for this post. Sometimes these are altered by the commanding general in charge.

"There is no excuse for not knowing the rules. Sometimes people forget so we help them to remember," he said.

> "Only neighbors can help bring down the number of property crimes on Fort Benning."
>
> — Maj. Jack Heacock
> Military Police Activity

It is through the Ride-Around Program that the military police and mayors exchange such information as impersonators without identification trying to get into quarters pretending to be government employees of one kind or another, residents who have had visitors for more than 30 days without written permission, or upcoming teen dances.

Matheny said the program has been helpful in policing her housing area. Before leaving office, she would also like to see a Crime Watch Program established.

Heacock agreed that only neighbors can help bring down the numbers of property crimes occurrences on Fort Benning.

By watching out for each other, he said, there will be fewer bicycles stolen and vehicles broken into.

CCSC needs tutors

Talks to focus on young children

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The fourth session of Talks About Young Children (to age 5) series, "Children's Behavior Patterns and Preferences: How to Make the Most of Your Child's Strengths," will be Feb. 8 at Dexter School from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The free lecture series, aimed at Fort Benning parents, caregivers and educators features programs about young children. Participants can choose to attend any or all of the lectures, however, a phone reservation for each session will be required since space in each session is limited.

Dr. Judy Archer, coordinator of Language Arts and Social Studies for the Fort Benning Schools, will present the program.

The focus of this session will be on understanding the ways in which children learn; how to recognize and build upon their strengths; how to motivate children to follow parental directions and requests; and strategies to help children develop critical readiness skills for school.

Reservations for this lecture will be taken until Feb. 5 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. or until the session is full.

Children are not permitted to attend.

Tot Town will be open from 6:15 to 9:15 p.m. on the evenings of the series. Parents are responsible for registration and payment.

The final session, "Learning Together: Creative Activities at Home and the Community Resources for Parents and Young Children," will be March 3.

It will be presented by members of the Fort Benning Schools staff and speakers from the Fort Benning and Columbus region.

This the second year that the Fort Benning Schools have sponsored this series. It was developed to address one of the national goals for education — that children who enter school will be ready to learn.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Codependency group — A codependency group meets at Community Mental Health Service. It is open to both active duty and family members. A screening interview is required.

For more information, call Capt. Michelina Regazzi or 1st Lt. Steve Lewis at 545-1717 or 545-2587.

La Leche meeting — The Columbus chapter of La Leche League will meet Feb. 9 from 10 a.m. to noon and from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at St. John United Methodist Church, 6507 Moon Road, on the corner of Moon Road and Weems Road in Columbus.

Auto crafts — The Main Post Auto Crafts Center hours are: Monday and Tuesday closed; Wednesday through Friday, 1:30 to 9 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Young mathematicians — Fort Benning's Edward A. White School will host a day devoted entirely to math and problem-solving skills Feb. 12 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The day will focus on the school's goal to enhance the ability of students to solve problems using clear, logical thinking.

The "Young Mathematicians's Conference," as it has been named, will be for kindergarten through fifth-grade classes. Students will attend sessions with visiting teachers and community leaders.

Presenters from Alabama, Columbus and Fort Benning have been invited to participate. Each presenter will host two sessions relating problem-solving and math to their particular occupation or area of interest.

Engine exchange — The Arts and Crafts Automotive Centers now offer an engine and transmission exchange program.

Rebuilt engines and transmissions can be ordered at a reduced cost to the soldier or family member and installed by them or for an additional fee by the automotive center.

For more information, call the Main Post Auto Crafts Center at 545-2337 or the Kelley Hill Auto Crafts Center at 544-3101.

Reading retreat — Wilson School's fourth-grade students and parents are invited to a parent-child reading retreat Feb. 5 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Wilson School.

Fourth-grade teachers have planned an evening of varied activities to include a play, a drama game, a sing-along and guest storyteller Rosa Childs.

Each child and parent will spend time in reading to each other. Parents will be given tips for encouraging and helping children enjoy and improve their reading for pleasure and information.

Family night supper — The Parent Teacher Organization of White School will host a Family Night Supper Feb. 5 from 6 to 8 p.m.for families of all White School students.

The supper will include spaghetti, salad, bread, dessert and drinks. The cost will be $2 for adults and $1 for children.

All children must be accompanied by parents. Proceeds will go toward sponsoring future family events.

Reservations can be made by sending in the reservation slip or by calling the school at 545-4623.

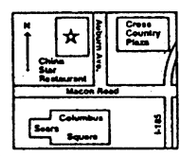
A free 50-hour training program designed to teach active listening skills and crisis intervention will begin Feb. 18.

For more information or to register, call 327-3999.

Barber shop renovation — The Barber Shop in the Main Mall will be closed for renovation Feb. 8 through 14.



Braves tickets — A limited number of Braves Baseball tickets for home games are available at a military discount through the Information, Ticketing and Registration Office, Building 247, Ingersoll Street. The tickets are only for the upper deck and cost $8 each.For more information, call 545-4155 or 545-7535.

IT TAKES TIME TO DEVELOP STRENGTH AND STABILITY. WE'VE TAKEN THE TIME.
USAA. 70 YEARS IN THE MAKING.
From our beginning in 1922, USAA has been built on a powerful idea - be the best at servicing our members and all else will follow. It's a way of doing business that has kept us a step ahead of the ever-changing economic climate. And a way that has helped us develop into a rock-solid financial services company with more than 2 million members and associate members worldwide.
Our approach to service is simple. You talk. We listen. Then we mutually decide on the right insurance and financial products to fit your special needs. And we back it up with the financial stability you've come to depend on. Year after year after year.
Throughout our 70 year tradition of serving military officers and their families, we've constantly looked for new ways to improve our products and services - from insurance and investments to banking and discount buying services.
So if you're looking for a company with a long-standing reputation of strength and stability, look to USAA. We're here to offer you a lifetime of service at your command. Call 1-800-815-3678.

Your Guide to Prime-Time TV: Cable and Broadcast Schedules

Bob Trumpy ready for Super Bowl XXVII

By Matt Meachem
Tribune Media Services

NBC analyst Bob Trumpy admits to being excited about broadcasting one of the most-watched television programs of the year.

"It's hard not to be excited," says the former Cincinnati Bengals tight end. "Even though some of the Super Bowls have never really lived up to the hype, you are watching history that I've been involved in since I was 14 years old. Having done two Super Bowls on radio, I realize the significance. It will be great fun to experience, and I'm very much looking forward to it."

Trumpy, along with veteran sportscaster Dick Enberg, will call Sunday's Super Bowl XXVII between the Buffalo Bills and Dallas Cowboys from the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. "Super Bowl Live," the network's 2 1/2 hour pregame show, begins at 3:30 p.m (ET) with the game scheduled to kick off at 6:18 p.m. (ET).

Trumpy, a four-time All-Pro during his 10-year career with the Cincinnati Bengals (1968-77), was selected to the Pro Bowl in 1971 and 1974 but never had the opportunity to play in a Super Bowl.

'It's an unfulfilled career as a player if you don't make it to Super Bowl —the ultimate goal," says Trumpy.

As for Sunday's game, Trumpy believes this may be the AFC's best chance in years to wrest the Vince Lombardi Trophy away from the NFC. And although both Buffalo and Dallas enter the contest at the top of their games, Trumpy feels both squads may be carrying some negative baggage into the contest.

Dick Enberg and Bob Trumpy

"The Cowboys' only weakness is youth," he says. "They've played wonderfully, but playoff inexperience can have an effect. There is so much history with the Dallas Cowboys and so many previous playoff appearances by Tom Landry's Dallas Cowboys that Jimmy Johnson's Cowboys will be compared to. That is emotional baggage that the new Cowboys have to carry and I don't think it's good baggage. It's not healthy."

"Buffalo carries the baggage of having been there before and been within one field goal of winning it (in 1991)," continues Trumpy. "They carry that baggage, and they're also getting up there in years. There might be the feeling that, 'This is our last shot, and I've got to go out and play a Super-Bowl-type game,' instead of a player going out and saying, 'Hey, if I just play my game, do my job, we've got superstars on this team to carry, that responsibility.' That could be a problem."

The Bills are looking to shed the image of Super Bowl losers after losses to the Giants and Redskins in the last two years. A Super Bowl triumph would push Buffalo's Jim Kelly into the company of Super Bowl-winning quarterbacks such as Joe Montana, Terry Bradshaw, Bob Griese and Bart Starr. A loss could link him forever with John Elway, Dan Marino and Fran Tarkenton as good quarterbacks who couldn't win the big game.

FORSCOM Bold Shift program to train Total Army

By Sydnl Redmond
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm proved as never before that the total Army works. All three components — active, Army National Guard and the U.S. Army Reserve — are equal partners in the Total Force. But economic and political events around the world are causing dramatic changes. The Army is becoming a smaller, leaner force, yet it must remain able to respond to worldwide contingencies. To help meet this challenge, Forces Command has developed Bold Shift — a Total Army effort to ensure that forces are trained and ready. Next week USAIC TV will present a nine-minute special exerpt from a FORSCOM briefing explaining the demand for higher levels of readiness for both active and Reserve components.

Also featured on USAIC TV next week will be a look into the job market awaiting the soon-to-be unemployed soldier and the options available to them as they separate from the military.

Many soldiers anticipating separation may find themselves on the unemployment line for the first time in their lives. USAIC TV will show some of what they can expect.

USAIC TV will also feature "Victory News," the news show of the 24th Infantry Division, and previews of movies showing on post. USAIC TV will highlight music and news from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network as well as post events on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on channel 32, 24 hours a day.

USAIC TV is expanding and changing to improve the quality of the show you receive.

In an effort to better serve our audience, the staff at USAIC TV is open for suggestions and welcomes your ideas.

For more information or to make suggestions, write to or call the Broadcast Section of the Public Affairs Office, Infantry Hall, Room 602, 545-2201, Ext. 108.

Atlanta bus tour revisits Civil War

Atlanta History Center

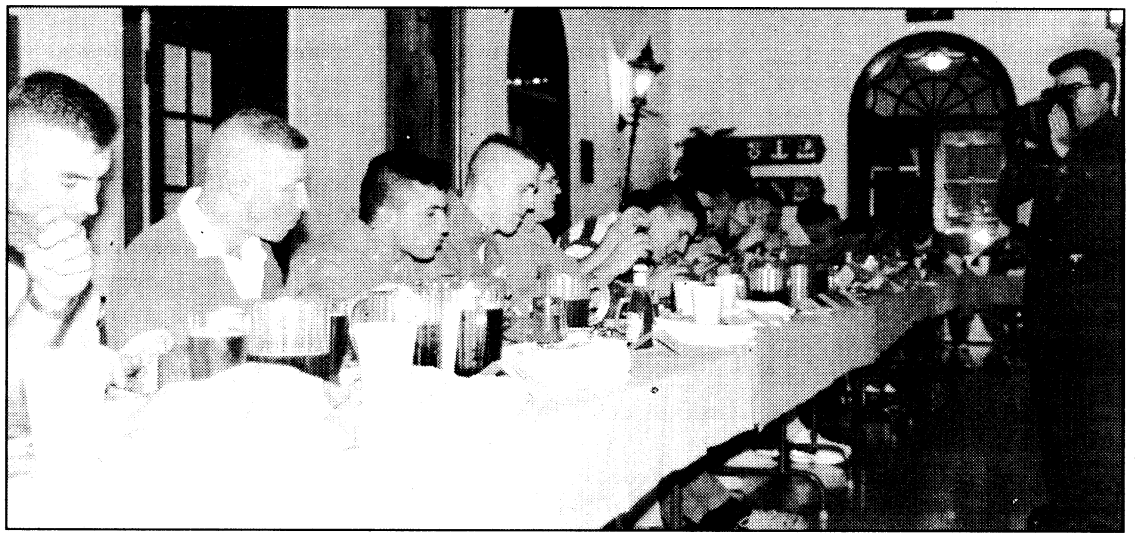
Revisit the Civil War with the Atlanta History Center.

On Feb. 20, the center will trace "The March to Atlanta" on a day-long bus tour of important battle sites in the metro area. Civil War historian and author Richard McMurry will lead the tour along the route taken by federal armies as they marched through Atlanta on their way to the sea.

Cost of the tour is $55 ($50 for Atlanta Historical Society members). The tour includes breakfast and snacks on the bus, as well as lunch at T's Trackside Grille in historic Marietta.

Participants should wear comfortable walking shoes. The bus will leave the Atlanta History Center, 3101 Andrews Drive N.W. at West Paces Ferry Road, at 8 a.m. and return by 4 p.m.

Preregistration is required; registration deadline is Feb. 10 and space is limited. For more information or to register, call (404) 814-4116.



McMurry, a Decatur resident and native Atlantan, earned his master's degree and Ph.D. in history from Emory University and has taught at Emory and North Carolina State Universities and Valdosta State College. His most recent books are "Footprints of a Regiment" (edited 1992) and "Two Great Rebel Armies" (1989).

The bus tour will include Allatoona Pass, a major Civil War supply center on the Western & Atlantic Railroad and an October 1864 battle site; New Hope Church, site of a bloody battle between Confederate Gen. Joseph E. Johnston's Army of Tennessee and Federal Gen. George H. Thomas's Army of the Cumberland; and Pickett's Mill, the site of more fierce fighting. Pickett's Mill is considered to be one of the best-preserved Civil War battlefields in the country and is the only Atlanta campaign battlefield owned by the state.

The tour will also visit Gilgal Church, the site of a minor engagement and today a well-preserved site showing Confederate entrenchments; Pine Mountain, site of the death of Confederate Gen. Leonidas Polk; and Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park, site of Gen. William Sherman's unsuccessful and costly assault during the Battle of Kennesaw

Chicken chow-down promotes challenge

By Brian Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

Contestants chowed down at the Fort Benning Officers' Club Chicken Eating Contest Jan. 22. The contest was to promote a new dinner at the Officers' Club called the Airborne Challenge.

The winners for the men's division, tie-for-first, was 2nd Lt. John Fuller, Company A, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment and 2nd Lt. Blase Hansen, 2nd Bn., 11th Infantry Regt. Women's division winners were Patty Francis of the Officers' Wives' Club, and Capt. Paula Vincent, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment.

PLEASE HELP
Kendall Crawford
with her desperate attempt to find a bone marrow donor.

Friday 10 am-7pm
Wynnton United Methodist Church
medical personnel will be on hand to conduct blood tests on potential donors.

Kendall Crawford is suffering from sudden onset leukemia.

This Friday, the search for a donor continues. It's a desperate attempt to find a bone marrow donor fast enough to save young Kendall's life. The lab fee for each test is $45.00. Educational materials describing the donating process will be available at the church Friday. The Friend's of Kendall Crawford are asking everyone to either come by for testing as a donor or to donate money through the church to help pay the lab fee for someone else who may be willing to be a donor but cannot afford the fee.

Please do not hesitate to call if you have any questions.

Camellia festival offers more than flowers

American Camellia Society

The annual Camellia Festival will be held at Massee Lane Camellia Gardens just south of Fort Valley Feb. 5 through 14.

The 10 days of activities will get under way Feb. 5 with a dinner theater in the gardens' Fetterman Museum. A 5K Run, Fun Run and Health Walk, Arts and Crafts Festival with food and an antique auto display will be Feb. 6, followed by a two-day art show and sale in the Fetterman Museum.

The Festival's first golf tournament will be held at the Waterford Golf Club, Bonaire Feb. 9, while American Camellia Society members visit area businesses with armsful of camellia blossoms.

There will be a luncheon and fashion show in the gardens museum Feb. 10, followed by a day of flower designs and displays in the museum Feb. 11.

The fourth annual Candlelight and Camellia Ball, a formal dinner-dance, will highlight activities in the museum Feb. 12, and Feb. 13 will be devoted to the novice camellia show featuring hundreds of blossoms. A workshop for beginners will also be held that morning.

One of the highlights of the activities Feb. 13 will be an afternoon tour of homes in the Marshallville historic district.

A continuation of the novice camellia show and a grafting workshop Feb. 14 will close out the annual celebration.

Massee Lane Gardens, home of the American Camellia Society, is located on Georgia Highway 49 between Fort Valley and Marshallville.

For more information, call (912) 967-2358 or (912) 967-2722 or write Massee Lane Gardens, 1 Massee Lane, Fort Valley, Ga. 31030.

Unicoi State Park to host Fireside Show

Georgia State parks

Looking for a great Georgia getaway to rid yourself of the winter blues? Unicoi State Park will be rousing the North Georgia mountains out of their winter hibernation for the finest regional craft show of the season Feb. 20 to 21.

The 18th Annual Fireside Craft/Art Show will include 65 hand-picked artisans and crafters from across the Southeast exhibiting their work at the Unicoi Lodge and Conference Center.

The annual Fireside Craft/Art Show is traditionally one of the most anticipated special events held at the 1,081 acre park. Juried by event planners, the show includes only the top 60 of more than 200 applicants. Fireside has an excellent reputation for showcasing a good working balance between fine artwork and quality craft pieces.

Fireside maintains its reputation by selecting works ranging from traditional folk skills to more contemporary art. Blacksmithing, spinners, weavers, woodcarving, and quilting are intertwined with oil, acrylic and watercolor paintings, applehead and fiberart dolls, jewelers and sculptors to produce an one-of-a-kind show.

All participating crafters and artisans at the Fireside Craft/Art Show produce 100 percent of their pieces.

The Fireside Craft/Art Show will be Feb. 20-21 from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Saturday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Operated by the Georgia Department of Natural Resources, Unicoi State Park is located two miles northeast of Helen via Georgia Highway 356.

For more information on the Fireside Craft/Art Show, contact the programming office at Unicoi State Park at (706) 878-2201, Ext. 282.

Westville offers 'drive through' for visitors unable to walk

Westville Historic Handicrafts, Inc.

Residents of the area who have wanted to see Westville's Village, but have been unable to do so recently, or at all, because they are limited in their ability to walk distances, will have an opportunity to ride into the 1850 town.

Monday, Feb. 1 the village will be open from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. to those who wish to drive into the area and view the houses.

In order to provide access to those who, because of age or disability, cannot take a walking tour, Westville will annually set aside a "drive through". Access to vehicles is by way of the employee parking lot off Trotman Road beyond the main gates of the museum.

Columbus College to commemorate black history

Columbus College

Columbus College commemorates the many accomplishments of African-Americans by observing February as Black History Month.

With speakers and special programs for the campus and the community, the college focuses attention on the heritage, culture, pride and future of African-Americans.

The upcoming events featured at the college emphasize the contributions made by African-Americans and are open to the public.

Wednesday — Beyond the Dream V: The Writers, The Stories, The Legacy, 1 p.m., Elizabeth Bradley Turner Center.

The three-part video conference focuses on the history of storytelling, the resurgence of contemporary African-American writers, and the literary contribution of Alex Haley.

Contact Continuing Education at 568-2023 or the Simon Schwob Memorial Library at 568-2042 for more information. Admission is free.

Thursday— Presentation by Martin Luther King III, 12:30 p.m., Fine Arts Hall auditorium sponsored by Columbus College's Student Union. A reception, hosted by the Top Ladies of Distinction, will follow the program.

For more information, call 568-2404. Admission is free.

Feb. 21 — The Fourth Annual Columbus College Gospelfest, 3 p.m., Davidson Student Center auditorium.

For information, call Cathy Anderson at 568-2139. Admission is free.

Feb. 25 — African-American Extravaganza, 7 p.m., Davidson Student Center auditorium. Sponsored by the African-American Student Union, the program includes fashions, poetry and music. For information, call 568-2054.

Feb. 26 — 10th Annual Black Applause Banquet, 6:30 p.m., wine and cheese reception, 7 p.m., dinner in the Elizabeth Bradley Turner Center for Continuing Education.

Highlighting the dinner will be the presentation of the Dr. John Townsend Award. For reservations, call Sharon Jamison at 568-2133 or Flora Aplin at 568-2063.

During the entire month of February, the Simon Schwob Memorial Library will feature a display of books and other material celebrating Black History Month. For more information, call 568-2042.

Flags unfurl for museum's art show

Columbus Museum

The flags will unfurl in February for the grand opening of the Columbus Museum Guild's Flying Colors Art Show and Sale.

Featuring national, regional and local artists, this biannual fund-raiser will open to the public Feb. 13 and close Feb. 20.

The show includes paintings, sculpture and prints and offers a variety of techniques, sizes and prices.

The Columbus Museum, located at 1251 Wynnton Road, is open free of charge from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and on Sundays from 1 until 5 p.m. For details, call 649-0713.

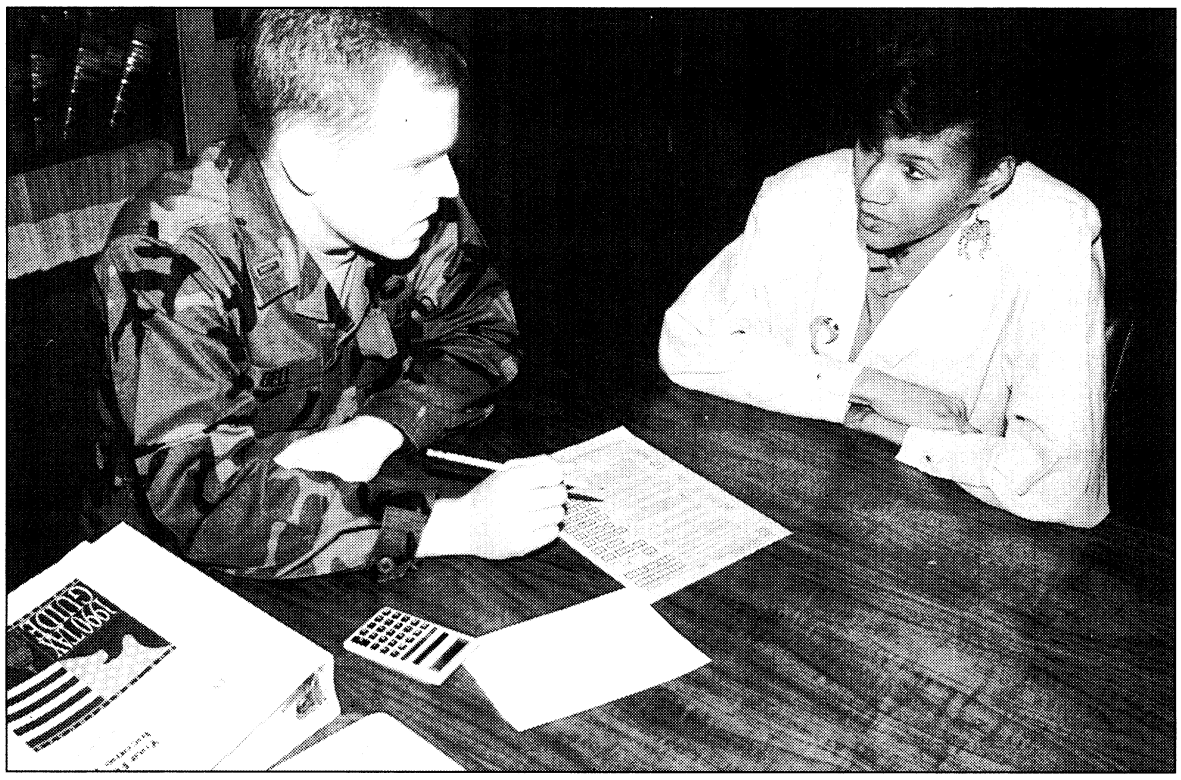
Post tax office opens for business

Free tax preparation available

By Agatha Hudson James
Bayonet editor

Fort Benning's Tax Office, located on the second floor of Building 2613 in Soldiers' Plaza, is open for business. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.



The office is being operated jointly by members of the Staff Judge Advocate's Office and Army Community Service.

Tax experts will prepare state and federal tax forms, provide assistance and file forms electronically for soldiers, retirees and family members on a walk-in basis.

"We encourage soldiers to go to their unit tax advisers first, said Jane Winand, chief of the Legal Assistance Division.

Tax return preparation is free, and individuals who use the tax office may have to wait depending on the number of people there, said Winand.

Taxpayers should bring with them all the appropriate paperwork, Winand said. Some of the items taxpayers should bring with them are:

Cynthia Barnes

First Lt. Lloyd Bell, Legal Assistance attorney, advises Sabrina Randall about her income taxes.

- All W-2 forms.
- Form 1099 from banks showing interest earned.
- Social Security numbers for every family member more than 1 year old, including a nonworking spouse.
- Employer identification number or Social Security number and address of child-care provider (if applicable.
- Detailed itemized deductions.
- Mortgage interest statement.
- Spouse, if filing jointly.
- Power of attorney, if filing for absent soldier.
- A copy of last year's federal income tax return, if available.

The tax office also has electronic filing capability. Taxpayers who want a faster return may use this service instead of mailing in their returns. Electronic filing can speed up a return by as much as three weeks, according to Michael Lane, an attorney in the Legal Assistance Office.

Lane said tax office personnel will electronically file returns prepared at the tax office, those filled out by unit tax advisers or those completed by paid tax preparers or individuals at home.

Lane said it is not advisable to pay someone to prepare most military tax returns.

"We do the preparation here and can file the return electronically," he said. "I would advise anyone to let us do the whole thing."

To file a return electronically, an individual must have a completed tax form and the supporting documents.

If an individual has direct deposit and wants his income tax return deposited directly into his account, he must bring proof of the account number, said Lane. The proof can be a check, a deposit slip, a bank statement or a Leave and Earnings Statement. The wallet-sized cards with the account numbers are not acceptable, Lane said.

For tax assistance or for more information, call the tax office at 545-4267. Tax preparation is available for all military identification card holders, Winand said.

IRS provides some tips for filing income tax returns

American Forces Information Service

The Internal Revenue Service's "bestselling" free publication every year is "Guide to Free Tax Services." The pamphlet lists all the free IRS services, ranging from toll-free telephone numbers and publications to tax counseling and overseas assistance. In addition, it lists every IRS form and publication available.

For your free copy of Publication 910, call (800) 829-3676 or write to: Internal Revenue Service, Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 25866, Richmond, Va. 23289.

IRS forms, publications

The Internal Revenue Service has a free form or publication that covers every possible tax situation, including money laundering. Some forms and publications are available at installation tax assistance offices, libraries, banks and post offices, and at some U.S. embassies and consulates.

For copies, call (800) 829-3676 or write to: Internal Revenue Service, Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 25866, Richmond, Va. 23289.

Earned Income Credit

You may qualify for the Earned Income Credit, if your income level qualifies, you had a child living with you, are filing for a 12-month period and live in the United States.

Internal Revenue Service officials said the credit reduces the federal taxes owed. The Department of Defense continues to try to get the residency requirement lifted for service members living overseas, but was again unsuccessful for 1992. For more information, call (800) 829-3676 and ask for IRS Publication 596, Earned Income Credit.

Check refund status

If you expect a tax refund and more than eight weeks have passed since you filed your federal tax return, the Internal Revenue Service will check on the status of the refund.

Call the Tele-Tax Refund Status Information System, which is updated once a week, at (800) 829-4477 and the IRS will track refund status down for you. You'll need to provide your Social Security number, filing status and the exact amount of the refund expected.

Touch-tone telephone users can call Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. and those with rotary dial, Monday through Friday 9 a.m. through 5 p.m. Best time to call, said the IRS, is Wednesday morning.

Military publications

Two Internal Revenue Service publications deal specifically with the military member and federal taxes.

IRS Publication 3, Tax Information for Military Personnel, and Publication 945, Tax Information for Those Affected by Operation Desert Storm, are available free of charge.

For copies, call (800) 829-3676.

Help available at Main Mall

Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Free assistance with tax form preparation by Legal Assistance Office personnel will be available at the Post Exchange at the Main Mall Feb. 6, March 6 and April 3 from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Persons needing assistance should bring all necessary paperwork and the tax forms.

Every person age 1 or older must have a Social Security number before that person may be claimed as a dependent on a tax return.

The Social Security Office will accept applications for Social Security numbers Feb. 11 from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Main Post Chapel Center next to Doughboy Stadium.

Applicants must bring a certified copy of the person's birth certificate and some other type of identification such as school records or shot records.

For more information, call Jane Winand at 545-3281.

IRS pamphlets make military tax matters easier

American Forces Information Service

Military members and their families face special problems when it comes to filing federal income taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service recognizes this, putting out two free publications specifically for the military.

One publication, Tax Information for Military Personnel, covers such topics as what pay and allowances are taxable and nontaxable, re-enlistment bonuses, moving and travel expenses, hazardous duty pay, separation pay and itemized deductions. For a copy, request IRS Publication 3.

IRS compiled a special booklet, IRS Publication 945, for individuals involved in Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

Tax Information for Those Affected by Operation Desert Storm handles combat pay exclusion, when to file tax returns and other tax-related matters.

In addition, it includes the latest administrative and legislative changes relating to these individuals' tax issues.

Copies of these two publications and others are available by calling (800) 829-3676 or writing to:

Internal Revenue Service, Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 25866, Richmond, Va. 23289.

All military pay not taxable

American Forces Information Service

When it comes to military pay, exactly what is taxable can be confusing.

Housing allowances, re-enlistment bonuses, combat pay and base pay are just a few of the many different pays and allowances service members receive – some are taxed; others are not.

Internal Revenue Service officials said generally the following military pay is taxable:

- Active duty pay;
- Reserve training pay;
- Military retirement pay based on length of service or age;
- Service academy pay;
- Re-enlistment bonuses;
- Amounts received by retired personnel serving as instructors in Junior ROTC programs;
- Special pay for hazardous or foreign duty; and
- Lump-sum payments upon separation or release to inactive duty. Generally, the following items are not taxable:
- Basic quarters allowance;
- Variable housing allowance;
- Other quarters cost-of-living allowances;
- Basic allowance for subsistence;
- Department of Veterans Affairs benefits;
- Uniform allowance;
- Forfeited pay, but not fines;
- Family separation pay;
- Certain disability retirement pensions;
- Benefits under Servicemen's Group Life Insurance; and
- Moving and storage expenses or reimbursements for actual expenses for permanent-change-of-station moves.

For more information, contact your installation tax assistance office or IRS.

In addition, IRS publishes two pamphlets on military pay, IRS Publication 3, Tax Information for Military Personnel and IRS Publication 945, Tax Information for Those Affected by Operation Desert Storm.

For copies, call (800) 829-3676 or write to: Internal Revenue Service, Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 25866, Richmond, Va. 23289.

Extra time can reduce errors

American Forces Information Service

If you take a little extra time when you work on your federal tax return and follow six easy steps from the Internal Revenue Service, your tax return should be error-free.

Don't wait until the last minute to gather the tax forms and schedules and to start looking for your finance records, said IRS officials.

The six IRS-recommended steps are:

- Get all the records together for the 1992 filing season, including W-2 wage earning statements, interest earning statements and those for deductions and tax credits.
- Before you sit down and actually begin filling out the tax forms, make sure you have all the necessary forms, schedules and publications.
- Complete the tax forms by following the instructions in the tax package.
- In addition to checking for common errors, double check your return to make sure you have taken every deduction you are entitled to, that the math is correct and that items are on the correct lines.
- Make sure the forms are signed and dated, and that your spouse also signs and dates the return, if you are filing a joint return.
- Ensure that all forms, schedules and payments are properly attached to your Form 1040.

If you have questions concerning your federal income tax, check with your installation tax assistance office or the nearest IRS office.

Another option is to call the IRS's telephone tax assistance office at (800) 829-1040; if you live overseas, call the IRS's international assistance office in Washington, D.C., at (202) 874-1460.

IRS forms and publications are available by calling (800) 829-3676 or writing to: Internal Revenue Service, Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 25866, Richmond, Va. 23289.

An Inside Look: From Their Mailbox to Yours

Electronic filing speeds up refund

Refund may be returned in as little as two weeks

American Forces Information Service

Computer-assisted tax filing takes weeks out of waiting for the federal refund check, said Internal Revenue Service officials.

It usually takes about eight weeks to receive a refund check when you file your tax return through the mail. However, electronic filing speeds the process. It eliminates the hand processing of tax returns and does away with missing schedules and math errors.

For the taxpayer, this means a refund check could be in hand in about three weeks. Or, said IRS officials, if the check is to go to a checking or savings account, it could be deposited within two weeks.

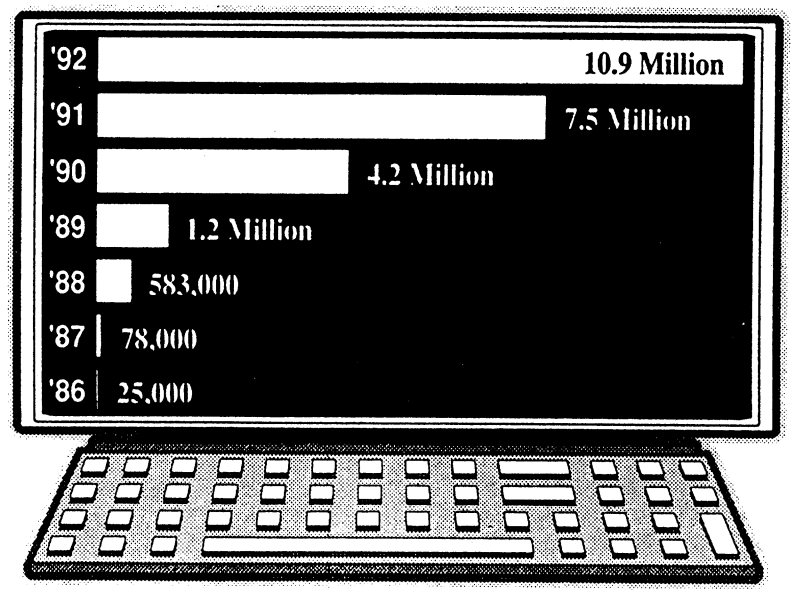
If you owe additional taxes, you can file electronically now, but you don't have to pay until April 15, said IRS officials. Filing ahead of time gives you IRS confirmation and the benefit of knowing that your tax return has been received.

In 1986, only 25,000 federal tax returns were filed electronically. In 1992, the number jumped to 10.9 million.

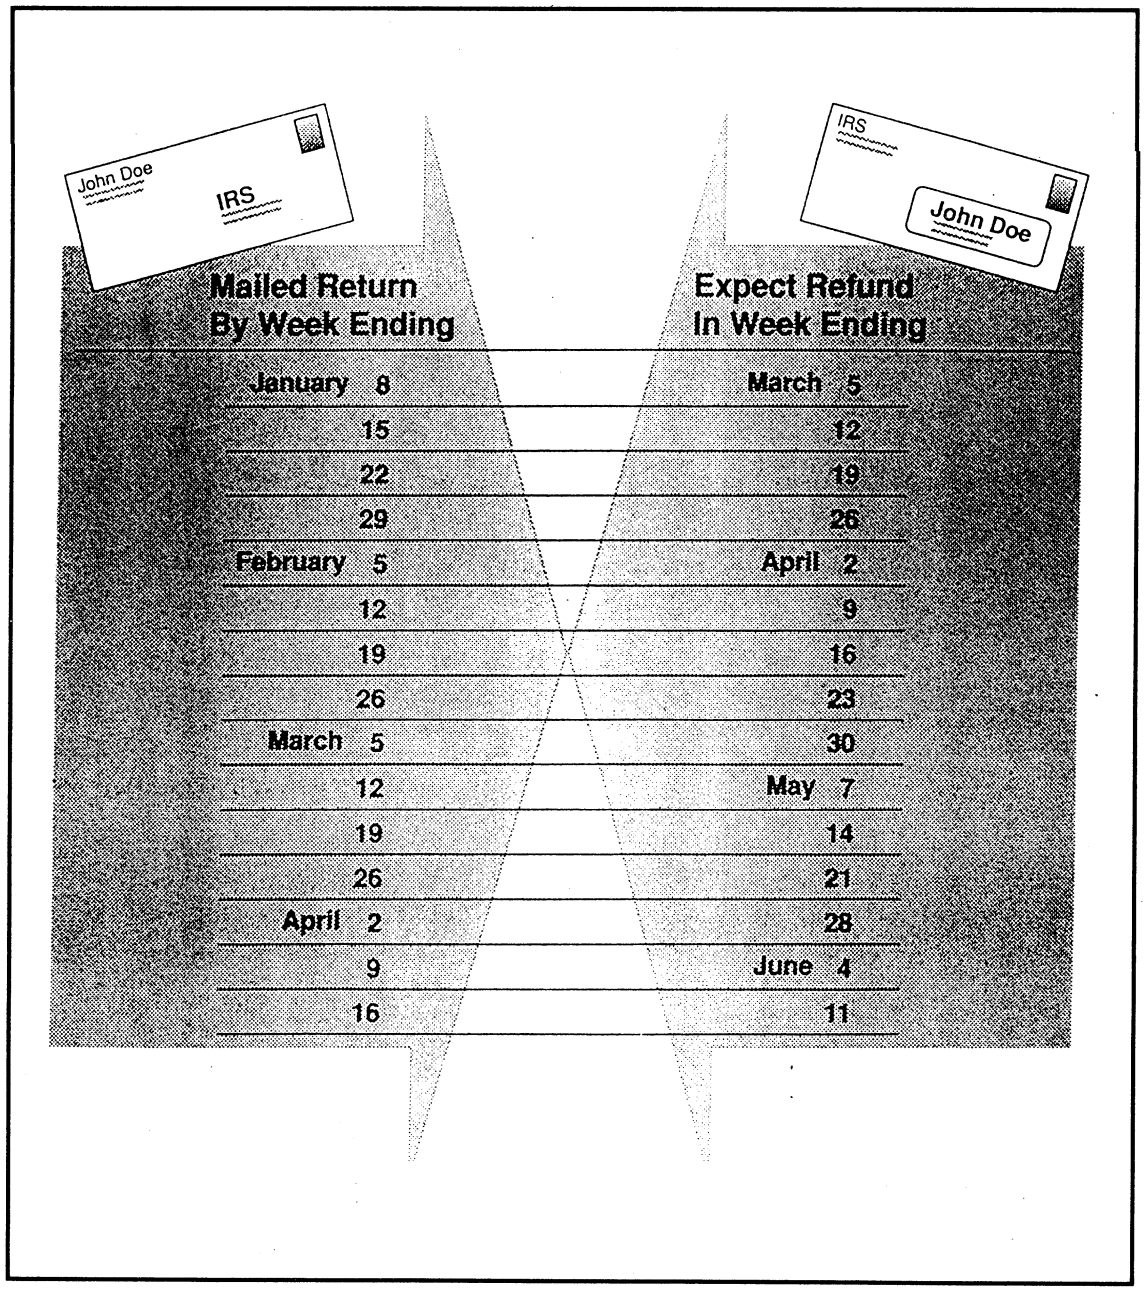
If you decide to file your tax return electronically or have a tax preparer compile your taxes for you, the IRS suggests you:

• Choose a preparer who will be available to answer questions concerning the return months after it has been filed.

• Don't hire an individual who promises a larger tax refund than other tax preparers can get or one who bases his fee on a percentage of your refund.



• Consider hiring a certified public accountant if your taxes are complex.



• Never sign a blank tax form.

• Make sure you get a copy of every form sent in as part of your tax package.

•You are responsible for everything in the tax return, whether you filled it out or not.

The number of tax returns filed electronically increased from 25,000 in 1986 to 10.9 million last year.

Avoid refund delays

American Forces Information Service

When you move, avoid delays in getting your tax refund. Include the IRS and your old post office on your list of those to notify of your address change.

By giving your new address to the post office servicing your old address, your tax refund check can be forwarded to you. Changing your address with the IRS not only helps to get your refund delivered to you, it also helps to ensure that you will receive other important IRS correspondence.

Bills or notices of tax deficiency sent to your last known address are legally effective, even if you never receive them.

If you have not yet filed your 1992 federal income tax return and have moved since you filed last year's return, correct the address on the peel-off label of your new tax package. Attach it to your return before you mail it. The IRS will update your records when the return is processed.

To correct your address with the IRS after you have filed, write to the IRS service center (listed in the tax package) where you filed your last return, or to the chief of the Taxpayer Service Division in your local IRS district office (check your local directory).

The IRS needs your full name and any prior name(s), signature, old and new addresses and your Social Security number to process the change of address. Filers of joint returns should provide this information for both spouses.

IRS Form 8822, "Change of Address," can be completed and mailed instead. If needed, call (800) 829-3676 to order it.

Itemizing may ease tax bite

American Forces information Service

Millions of taxpayers will find it to their advantage to itemize deductions on the 1040 form.

You may benefit from itemizing deductions if, during the year, you paid interest and taxes on a home you own, or had unusually large medical expenses, or made large contributions to qualified charities, or had major uninsured losses.

Those who can't itemize can still use Form 1040 to claim other items, such as the penalty on early withdrawal of savings.

Records of deductible items should be kept, including cancelled checks and receipts, in case the IRS examines your return.

36th soldiers face challenge

Ed Loomis

USAIC Public Affairs Office

BAIDOA, Somalia — Robert Frost, the poet, once said, "I have promises to keep and miles to go before I sleep."

For the engineers of the 43rd Battalion, 36th Engineer Group, that is their way of life.

"Our biggest obstacle is the distance involved," said Lt. Col. Larry Davis, the battalion commander. "We currently have about 650 soldiers who we have to shuttle out to the work areas."

These engineers are building roads from Baidoa, north to Oddur and west toward Berbera, a total of about 230 miles. The standard is a two-lane road capable of sustaining 30-ton vehicles at speeds of 35 mph.

Amid crowds of curious natives, the soldiers grade, scrape and plow the existing trails to make the roads that will facilitate the distribution of food to the areas where it is most needed.

To the north, the soldiers of Company A are contending with extremely rocky terrain, cutting the road to Oddur. As they make their daily way, the rocks eat at their tires and make it a real challenge.

To the west, Company B soldiers work in softer terrain building the road to Berbera, one of the major food distribution sites. During the three weeks in the area, the company has accomplished 18 miles of two-lane road.

But it's not all work for these soldiers; they do find time to play a little football and entertain the local Somalis.

Soldiers get creative in field

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

WAAJED, Somalia — With deployments come innovations, and Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion, 36th Engineer group is putting a new spin on an old idea.

The soldiers based here are constructing a road from Baidoa to Oddur, a distance of nearly 108 miles.

After completing nearly 60 miles of roadway, soldiers say this work is hot and dusty, making the uniforms, as well as their bodies, covered with dirt from head to toe.

Pfc. Ryan Sekel, a carpentry and masonry specialist with the 43rd, takes his uniform to the company laundromat.

The unit may not have a household washing machine, but they do have a 51 series cement mixer.

Ryan and other members of the unit dump clothes, water and soap into the small mixer and let it spin and rock for a few minutes and then simply bring the clothes out, dump the dirty water and rinse the clothes using the same method with clean water.

This "washing machine" saves the soldiers the tedious and lengthy process of hand washing.

"It gets clothes pretty clean," said Sekel. "We do anything we can to make our lives here a little more comfortable."

According to some soldiers, although life here in Somalia may not be easy for the 43rd, field innovations make living one step closer to home.

Program makes family members VIPs

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

The Directorate of Community Activities and the Family Unit Network Center are helping to make life easier for the family members of soldiers who have been deployed to Somalia.

Both organizations have worked to create an identification card that will entitle the holder to various discounts around post. The actual cards will be distributed to the family members through the rear detachments of the deployed units.

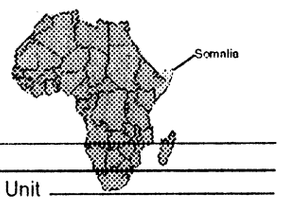
According to Ava Morrow, FUN coordinator, eligible family members should automatically receive their cards; but, if they do not, they can contact their rear detachment representative or call the FUN Center at 545-5602 or 545-3016.

The Operation Restore Hope Identification Card will entitle the holder to:

• A 10-percent discount on all user fees on Thursdays and Fridays at the Arts and Crafts Center (545-3677).

• Free use of ceramic molds on Fridays at the Arts and Crafts Center.

• $5 off of a computerized automotive analysis at either the Kelley Hill Auto Crafts Center (544-3101) or the Main Post Auto Crafts Center (545-2337). The discount is good for one time only.



• A 10-percent discount off of lodging rates at the Destin Recreation Area Mondays through Fridays. Call toll free (800) 642-0466 for reservations.

• A 10-percent discount off rentals and lodging at the Uchee Creek Campground/Marina Mondays through Thursdays (545-7238).

• Discount bowling (75 cents per game) at either the Mall Bowling Center (544-1985) or the Main Post Bowling Center (545-4272) Mondays through Fridays.

• Burger King, Anthony's Pizza and Army and Air Force Exchange Service coupons will be available through the rear detachment commanders.

Benning readies for ACOE visit

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning is in the running for "Best Army Installation in the World."

After having achieved the title of "Best Installation in Training and Doctrine Command" in July, the post will now vie with other major command winners for the world title.

The judging will be done through the evaluation of the Army Communities of Excellence Team, which will visit the post Feb. 16 through 19 to evaluate Fort Benning's commitment to ACOE.

The 11-member team will be led by Col. Tom White, chief of the Communities of Excellence Office and is made up of military and civilian personnel who are experts in the various areas that will come under evaluation during the visit.

The team will evaluate the post's efficiency in 13 major areas, with emphasis placed on the types of services that Fort Benning offers to its customers.

Most employees give Fort Benning high marks

By Paula J. Randall
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Most people at Fort Benning think it's a pretty good place to work, according to a recent survey.

The overall perception of Fort Benning's work force is that the post's quality and productivity climate is good, according to the survey, which is being conducted by the post's Inspector Genera's Office. On a scale from one to six, Fort Benning was rated 4.37 by its workers.

The IG Office is conducting the survey to determine the knowledge, performance, commitment and attitudes of Fort Benning personnel concerning Total Army Quality.

Nearly 300 people have been surveyed so far; those surveyed were from the directorates of Resource Management, Civilian Personnel, Community Activities, Logistics, Information Management, Public Works and the offices of Equal Employment Opportunity, Equal Opportunity, Chaplains and Public Affairs. The IG plans to continue to survey other directorates and offices in the next few weeks.

Fort Benning's strengths

The results of the survey identified the post's top six strengths as:

• Awareness of strategic challenge — that people in an organization are aware of its overall mission, how their jobs contribute to that mission and that it is in everyone's best interest for the organization to be successful.

• Customer orientation —that the people in the organization know who their customers are, that people care about their customers, that customers know that the organization cares about what they think and the customers are asked for their opinions about the services and products they receive from the organization.

• Quality policy/philosophy — that the quality of work produced is the primary focus, that people see that the continuing improvement of work produced is essential to the success of the organization and that the organization emphasizes doing things right the first time.

• Social interactions — that people in the work unit are friendly with one another and enjoy their co-workers.

• Attitudes/morale — that people in the work unit take pride in their work, share responsibility for the success or failure of the work produced and believe that their work is important to the success of the organization.

• Involvement — that people in the work unit look for ways to improve their work and often discuss ways to improve the work produced.

Areas for improvement

No weaknesses have been identified in the survey; weaknesses are any areas scoring 3.5 or below on the one-to-six scale. However, the areas identified as the opportunities for most improvement are:

• Rewards/recognition — that the pay scale is fair for people in the work unit, attempts are made to promote the people who do good work, people receive promotions because they earn them, there is quick recognition for outstanding performance and the organization rewards the people in the work unit for working together.

• Communications — that effective communication channels exist between work units in the organization, people do not have to rely on rumors for information and the facts and information needed to do a good job are available to people in the work unit.

• Innovation — that creativity is actively encouraged in the organization and the innovators are the people who get ahead.

• Leader's involvement —that leaders in the organization ask people about ways to improve the

Should gays be allowed in the military?

Ban attacks basic freedoms

By Karen S. Morarie

PRO

Military service. It's a way for men and women to serve their country, guarantee the freedoms of others and defend the Constitution our society is based on.

Remember the Constitution? How about the Declaration of Independence? Maybe these phrases ring a bell — "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. " "All men are created equal."

OK. All men (and women) are entitled to certain rights, no matter their color, religious beliefs or ethnic background. That's what America is all about, right?

Unless you're gay.

That's the message the military has been sending an estimated 10 percent of the population that is homosexual. They have been excluded from service and denied the right to defend their country.

What a freedom-loving society we are. Have we made progress in civil rights? Not enough, but some. Have women become a force in business, industry and government? Again, we've at least made a start.

But keep the gays out. We won't tolerate that.

Do you feel obligated to share the details of your personal life with your fellow soldiers? Let's be blunt — is your sex life any of their business? Does it affect your performance on the job or your ability to serve your country?

Get real. What goes on between consenting adults is their business.

I've heard a lot of fellow soldiers, male and female, say they'd be "uncomfortable" around gays. Why? How would you deal with unwelcome advances from a member of the opposite sex?

In a work setting, that's sexual harassment — state your feelings about the matter and if the advance is repeated, make a formal complaint.

In a social setting, say no. If the advance is made politely, refuse politely. If not, be as forceful as necessary to get your point across.

Why should the other person's sex really make a difference? Why threaten to beat the — out of someone because he or she is not attracted to the same people you are?

Sex has no place in the workplace and the Army has no place in the bedroom.

Sexual preference has no relation to job performance, although I'm sure there are some gays, as there are some heterosexuals, who would use the power of their rank or office to gain sexual favors. We have procedures in place to deal with people like that — remember those sexual harassment classes?

The defense of freedom doesn't necessarily mean the freedom for others to do what we think is right. Sometimes it means defending human dignity and the right of other human beings to enjoy the same freedoms and opportunities we do.

I feel anyone who has the desire and ability to serve in the military and who is willing to abide by the regulations should be allowed to. Let's keep irrelevant issues out of it.

Gays represent military threat

By Phillip Mandile

CON

The disadvantages of allowing homosexuals into the Army far outweigh the so-called advantages. It is true that the military has been a social testing ground for society, but the line has to be drawn somewhere.

Homosexuals and those who engage in homosexual acts pose a threat to the military way of life. Soldiers in garrison and especially in the field reside in relatively close quarters. This evokes a degree of trust among soldiers.

Some of these trusts are openly discussed, like. "Don't be late when relieving your buddy on guard."

Others more closely resemble an unspoken code of conduct like, "Don't hit on your buddy's girlfriend while on a double date," or, "Don't point out your roommate's uniform deficiencies in front of his superiors."

Among these more discreet trusts is the trust that you do not make your fellow soldier feel threatened — physically, morally or ethically.

While sitting in a foxhole you want the guy next to you to be doing his job and covering your back, not thinking about whether or not he will be accepted because of his sexual preferences.

The tightly knit combat unit is where this is of peak importance. When these soldiers are told they must allow this type of conduct in their unit, morale drops and soldiers become edgy.

Someone will try to rectify the situation and there will be those who will follow because they want things back to the way they used to be. When this happens a combat-ready unit can become infected with mistrust and a feeling of betrayal. This weakens our national defense.

An incident occurred last weekend that is a prime example of how this change will be accepted. Two Marines were arrested for beating a known homosexual. They said they were dissatisfied with the idea of allowing homosexuals into the armed services.

Gen. Colin Powell said he was entirely against allowing homosexuals in the military and implied he would resign if such a change were mandated.

What it boils down to is those of us in the military are sworn to follow the orders of the commander in chief.

If he directs that homosexuality be allowed in the military, that is what we must accept.

The right to openly exercise homosexuality in the military is going to be a long hard fight, a fight I personally hope is not won, for we as a nation will be the ones who will suffer.

Gays, animal activists, fanatics

By Clyde Snively

COMMENTARY

Last week was "bad hair day." It seemed every time I turned around, there was something new to get mad about.

First, there was the "60 Minutes" piece about animal lovers getting research on brain damage stopped because cats were being used in the experiments.

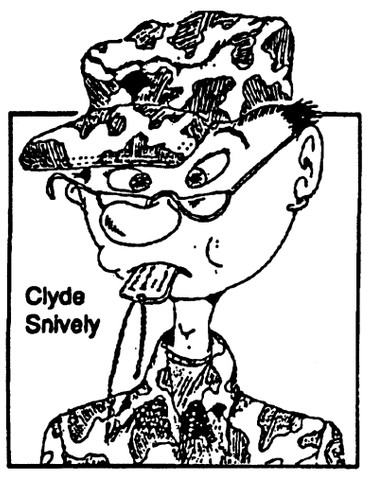
Well, excuuuuuuse me.

The research was being conducted by a former Army physician who saw too many soldiers die from head wounds. His research was designed to find ways to heal these death-dealing wounds. And he was making progress.

But the animal rights activists prevailed and there's no more federal funding for the program.

As one mother said, "My son's life is worth a lot more to me than some cat."

These animal activists are the same people who strolled through the ranks of the unfed and homeless to attend their swanky meeting in a Washington, D.C., hotel.



That really made my hair stand up on end.

Next came the brouhaha over the gays in the military business.

Every day of the week, great soldiers are doing great things at Fort Benning. And this doesn't even take into account the soldiers who deploy from here for Hurricane Andrew relief and to Somalia.

But do we get any news coverage beyond the local media? Heck no.

But then the gay controversy hits the streets. In a matter of days two Atlanta TV stations, CNN, the New York Times, USA Today and Baltimore Sun all send reporters down to interview people at Fort Benning about their feelings, while NBC News calls to track down some people to talk to.

What it all boils down to is we in the Army will either do what we're told to do, that means from the top down, or we'll exercise our right to leave when our enlistments are up.

I personally believe that if the media would drop the issue, and the gays would serve without flaunting their status, the problem would go away.

But I guess that's not the way it works in America today. Anyone who's different or perceives himself as being in a minority, has to grab a soap box and let the world know he's different and demand his special right to be different.

Whatever happened to the idea of treating everyone equally? Looks to me like everyone wants to be treated more equally than others.

Maybe I could get protected status as a transplanted Californian. How about as a Catholic Californian? As a republican, Catholic Californian? Darn, I wish I were left-handed.

I guess fanatics are all alike. They believe the end justifies the means and they don't care who gets hurt along the way.

And if that weren't bad enough, often times the ends themselves aren't justified.

I guess that's why this country has 740,000 lawyers.

OPERATION RESTORE HOPE

Greetings from Mogadishu to our families and friends. The 36th Engineer Group deployed from Fort Benning in early January as part of the U.S. Joint Task Force Operation Restore Hope.

The group is repairing and constructing more than 800 miles of road so that humanitarian relief supplies flowing into the ports of Mogadishu and Chisimayu can then be moved by truck to Somalia's impoverished interior. This task is time sensitive because of Somalia's fast-approaching March rainy season.

In order to complete the roads before that rainy season, the group has been reorganized into two task forces — Task Force Durham and Task Force 43, with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 36th Engineer Group providing support from Mogadishu.

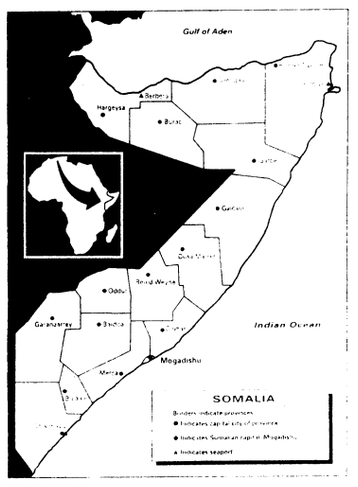
Task Force Durham consists of the 63rd Engineer Company Combat Support Element, Company C, 43rd Engineer Combat Battalion personnel from Headquarters Company, 36th Engineer Group.

This task force takes its name from the commander, Lt. Col. Dwight S. Durham, the group executive officer.

The primary mission is to build and repair the roads from Mogadishu to Jilib and Chisimayu, then north toward Berbera. The soldiers' other mission is to construct base camps for United States and United Nations coalition forces operating in these areas.

Relief of Marka

Company C, 43rd Engineer Combat Battalion's advance party, set out Jan. 28 for Marka, a small beleaguered port-town literally cut off from the rest of Somalia by sand and civil war destruction. The 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry, Fort Drum, N.Y., has had its 320 soldiers there since Dec. 14.



Back in Mogadishu, the 36th learned of the primitive conditions and lack of supplies the soldiers of the 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry were experiencing because of poor road conditions.

When Capt. John Reilly and his company rolled over the hill into Marka on Jan. 19, they could not believe it — toilets, showers, building materials and field kitchens with their first hot meal in Somalia — a Christmas dinner long overdue. The engineers quickly installed hygiene and survivability improvements.

The commander of the 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry was anxious to voice his pleasure when he said, "We expected nothing, but we got everything we needed and then some. You just can't ask for more than that."

Fill in that hole

Golweyn, a tiny hamlet, had a huge hole in the main thoroughfare. It was the size of a high-mobility, multi-purpose wheeled vehicle. according to 1st Lt. Kevin P. Landers, leader of Charlie Company's earth-moving platoon.

The 43rd plugged the hole.

Damage like Golweyn's hole was the rule, not the exception on Somalia's road network; however, some roads in the country's interior still have asphalt intact.

The engineers' work became the biggest attraction in Golweyn, as Somalis of all ages gathered to watch the steady improvement of what had been a traffic-stopping obstacle.

Some of the children gathered around the engineers and medics, speaking the English words they knew and trying to learn more. One young Somalia demonstrated his mastery of the English alphabet. Golweyn is only the latest in a series of towns the unit will pass through as it nears the equator.

"The locals help us out a lot," said Staff Sgt. Andre Williamson, a squad leader with Company C, said. "A Somali showed us the location of an old Soviet antitank mine just off the road the unit was repairing. We took care of the mine by safely detonating it in place. It sure helps to have friendly locals."

In many areas, the Somalis have been employed to clear a 10-foot swath of brush on either side of the road. At $1 an hour, it may sound like inexpensive labor, but it helps to get the roads built, boosts the local economy and has other obvious advantages.

By placing route reconnaissance ahead of their graders and scrapers, Charlie Company is running ahead of schedule. Just south of Jilib on the road to Chisimayu is the site of a new Bailey Bridge the 10th Mountain Division and 36th Group soldiers are scheduled to erect in the next few days.

Task Force 43 is also progressing ahead of schedule, with Alpha Company tackling the roads to Oddur, and Bravo Company pushing its way from Baidoa to Berbera.

I will focus on the efforts of those units in the next letter.

My most sincere thanks to our families and friends your cards, letters and care packages. I am confident the talent and determination of our soldiers, coupled with continued good fortune will speed the completion of our mission and bring about the safe return of the group to Benning.

LETTERS

IG sends 'thank you'

I want to thank all of you at Fort Benning for the support you have given me during my assignment as the inspector general for Fort Benning.

The past 4 1/2 years have been challenging and rewarding, thanks, in large part, to the professionals who work at Fort Benning.

I sincerely appreciate the special effort of those with whom I have jointly worked. You have been quick to provide the assistance we needed to resolve problems for soldiers, family members and members of the civilian workforce.

You have been superb in assisting our forces through deployment, sustainment and redeployment during Just Cause, Desert Shield and Desert Storm, and now Restore Hope.

You have been key during the past two years as we have been going through downsizing the Army and meeting the challenge of keeping it totally professional.

The support various activities provided as we assessed, inspected, studied and measured where we are so that we could make recommendations to make Fort Benning an even better place to live and work has been the key to our success.

I consider all of you true professionals with a sense of commitment and caring that makes each day in the Army personally gratifying. Best of luck to all of you in the future and thank you.

Col. Mayo A. Hadden III
Inspector General

Family seeks help

I'm writing this letter to ask for help in locating our dog. Our children, like most, wanted a pet, so we saved and had a fence put in. Then we saved up some more money and my kids received a puppy for Christmas. That puppy sure won our hearts right away, especially my 10-year-old daughter. The two of them were never separated for any length of time, until now.

On Jan. 25, our daughter was diagnosed with scoliosis, (curvature of the spine). The only thing that kept her mind off this problem was her puppy.

On the same evening at 9 p.m. we let the puppy out to relieve himself before going to bed. He was outside less than 10 minutes before he was taken out of our fenced yard.

Neighbors and the Military Police were called to help us with the search, only to discover that two other rottweiler puppies were stolen earlier in the day.

It really tears out our hearts when our daughter cries because she misses her puppy. We need help in locating the person or persons responsible for these missing puppies.

Our puppy was 12 weeks old and his name is Jake. If the person responsible is reading this, please just put Jake back in our fenced yard on Logan Avenue. If anyone has any information, please call the Military Police.

A loving family

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Jan. 18 to 24. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt and/or innocence of any person.

• This week's hot topic concerns animal registration and care requirements. Garrison regulation 40-905 requires all dogs and cats maintained on post be registered at the veterinary clinic within 14 days upon arrival to post. The animals will receive a medical examination and immunization (if needed), at which time a rabies tag will be issued to the pet's owner. The owners are required to provide adequate living space and appropriate shelter from the elements according to weather or season and proper amounts of food and water.

• A private first class was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, leaving the scene of an accident and several other related offenses. He was driving the wrong way on a one-way street when he ran head on into another car. He fled the scene and was later apprehended at his unit. A breathalyzer test resulted in a .18.

• A first sergeant reported that persons unknown moved his car from the bowling center parking lot and parked it in the Post Exchange parking lot. Persons unknown also sprayed paint on the seats, dashboard and interior roof and removed a radar detector from inside the ear.

• Three civilians were charged with wrongful possession and distribution of cocaine after selling nearly 15 grams of cocaine to an undercover narcotics officer.

• A private was charged with larceny of private property and forgery after stealing the checkbook, identification card and driver's license of another soldier. He then forged six checks at the Army and Air Force Exchange Service facilities for a total of $828.

• A specialist was charged with assault and disorderly conduct after hitting a civilian who refused to stop slam dancing.

• A specialist was charged by civil authorities with robbery and assault after pointing a gun at three individuals and demanding their car keys. He allegedly struck one of the individuals with a cane before leaving in his car.

• This week's booby prize is awarded to the private who decided to let his fingers do the walking while he did the talking. He called home and charged the calls to someone else's telephone number. With today's technology, the call was traced back to the private, who admitted to the offense. Not only did he have to pay the telephone bill, he now has a criminal record.

Other activities included 12 traffic accidents and four reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were eight cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, 10 cases of larceny of private property and two cases of larceny of government property.

OCS to recognize top

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The 41st annual Robert P. Patterson Memorial award ceremony will be Feb. 12 at 10 a.m. in Wigle Hall, located in the battalion area of the 3rd Battalion (Officer Candidate School), 11th Infantry Regiment.

This year's recipient is 2nd Lt. Mark A. Jackson, 34, who graduated from OCS in June.

The award goes to the officer selected as the outstanding infantry graduate of OCS during the previous year. Selection is based on qualities of leadership, academic effectiveness, aptitude and character.

Patterson, for whom the award is named, served as a captain in the Army during World War I. His battlefield exploits earned him the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Purple Heart.

He later served as judge in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and as secretary of war during the administration of President Harry Truman.

When Patterson died in 1952, a trust fund for the award was established with monetary contributions from friends.

As the winner of the Patterson Award, Jackson will receive $3,000, a Certificate of Achievement signed by the secretary of the Army and an engraved 9mm pistol.

Before entering OCS, Jackson was the noncommissioned officer in charge of Fort Benning's exhibition parachute team, the Silver Wings. He is currently serving as a rifle platoon leader with the 2nd Battalion, 325th Infantry, 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Patterson entered the Army in October 1982. His first assignment, after completion of initial entry training and the Basic Airborne Course, was to Company A, 2nd Battalion (Airborne), 187th Infantry at Fort Kobbe, Panama. He later served with the 1st Battalion, (Airborne), 507th Infantry here as an airborne instructor.

Jackson graduated from Garfield High School in Woodbridge, Va., and Troy State University at Fort Benning, where he achieved a 4.0 grade point average.

He was named to the Commandant's List upon graduating from the Primary Leadership Development Course and was honor graduate of the Jumpmaster Course at Fort Sherman, Panama.

He was the distinguished honor graduate of the Officer Candidate Course and the honor graduate of the Infantry Officer Basic Course at Fort Benning.

Jackson, his wife, Xenia, and their two sons live in Fayetteville, N.C.

Army Emergency Relief celebrates birthday

By Agatha Hudson James
Bayonet editor

Army Emergency Relief is celebrating its 51st birthday today, and the post's AER officials are planning an information booth at the Main Mall from 9 a.m. to noon.

"We'll be passing out literature explaining AER services and we'll be available to answer questions," said Alfonso Deane, the post's AER officer.

Army Emergency Relief is a nonprofit organization dedicated solely to helping the Army take care of its own, according to Deane.

AER has been the Army's emergency financial assistance organization since it was established Feb. 5, 1942.

AER is governed under bylaws established by the national AER board of managers.

According to Deane, eligibility for AER emergency financial assistance is limited to:

• Soldiers on extended active duty and their family members.

• Army members of Reserve components (U.S.Army Reserve and Army National Guard) on continuous active duty for a period in excess of 30 days and their family members.

• Soldiers who retired after 20 or more years of active duty, by reason of physical disability, upon attaining age 60 (Reserve components) and their dependents.

• Widows, widowers and orphans of soldiers who died while on active duty or after retirement.

Deane said AER financial assistance is available when:

• Soldiers and their family members have a valid emergency need.

• Widows, widowers and orphans of deceased soldiers have an emergency need.

• Soldiers, their spouses and unmarried dependent children need financial assistance for undergraduate level study.

AER emergency financial assistance is available wherever Army people may be, Deane said. Primary outlets are the 127 AER sections at Army installations Armywide.

AER assistance may also be obtained through any local Red Cross chapter, any Navy/Marine Corps Relief Society Auxiliary, any Air Force Aid Society Section or any Coast Guard Mutual Assistance Office, Deane said.

Public Affairs seeks help with TV station

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

The Public Affairs Office is seeking talented soldiers who are interested in working for the post television station.

"I encourage commanders and directors to identify interested soldiers," said Lt. Col. John M. Van Dyke, public affairs officer. "Interviews will be conducted at the Public Affairs Office and prospective soldiers can call to set up a time."

Duties will include news gathering, writing scripts, reporting post news and the operation of camera and editing equipment.

According to Sgt. Sydni Redmond of the Public Affairs Office, experience is a plus but is not necessarily required.

"Training will be provided, but interested soldiers should at least have a good military appearance, a desire to work in the broadcasting field and have good communications skills, including strong English skills and a good speaking voice," said Redmond. "They should also have at least six months of retainability at Fort Benning and be able to be released from their current positions in order to work for the station."

Redmond also said that glamour-seekers need not apply.

"Broadcasting is not all lights, camera, action," she said. "There are a lot of mundane duties that go into television production, from editing tape to filing documents. This is an excellent opportunity for soldiers to gain valuable experience in public speaking, news gathering and communication skills, but they must be willing to put in the work."

Soldiers will be selected through an interview-audition process. Those who are interested can contact Paula J. Randall, command information officer, at 545-2201 for more information or to schedule an interview.

work produced, encourage people to voice their concerns and follow up on suggestions for improvement.

• Task characteristics — that the right tools, equipment and materials are available to get the job done, the distribution of work is well balanced and there is time to perform jobs in a professional manner.

• System/structure for quality improvement — that the structure of the organization makes it easy to focus on producing quality work and people know how the work produced in their work units fits in with the work produced by other work units.

"I want to personally challenge every soldier and civilian at Fort Benning to look for ways to improve your work processes," said Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White. "I encourage everyone to contribute by submitting your ideas and suggestions. With full cooperation from every member of the work force, we can set the standard throughout the Defense Department."

PROGRAM: Family members are VIPs

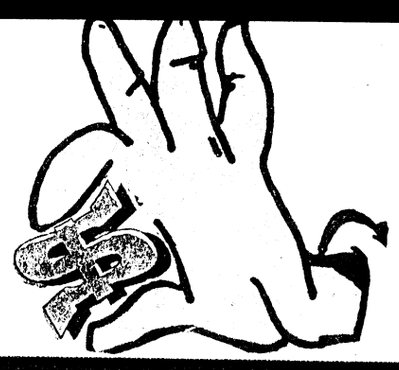
The cards will be good until the deployed units return to post, Morrow said.

He said the Operation Restore Hope Identification Cards are a way for the post to show that it supports the family members of deployed soldiers.

"The commanding general is really dedicated to showing his support to the family members," Morrow said.



"We want to focus our attention on the families and help make things easier for them. This is one small way that we can do that."

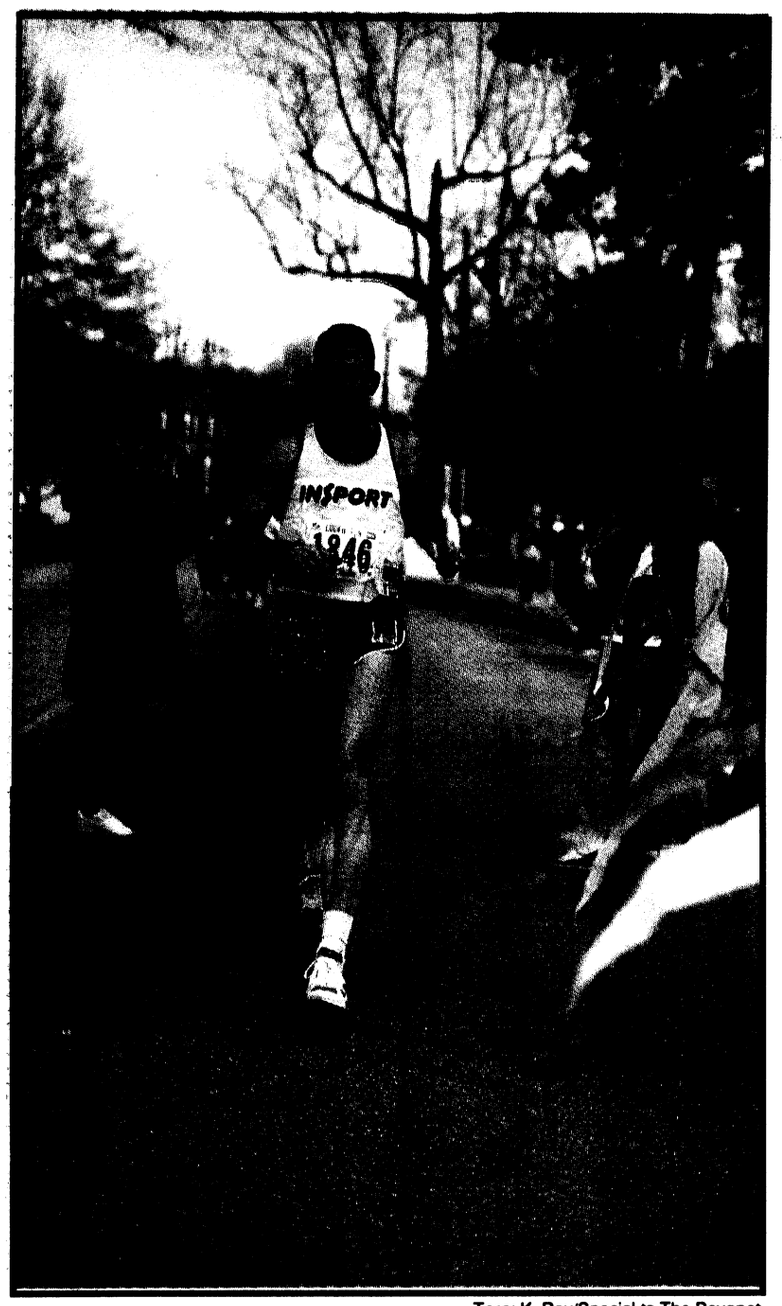
Martial arts teacher continues to excel

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

In Chinese, he is known as "Sifu Shur Lung," the gentle dragon; in the Army, he is known as Sgt. Carl R. Burnett of the 206th Transportation Company, an instructor and competitor in martial arts.

Burnett teaches Chinese Kuo'shu (Northern Chinese style) at the Shur Shen Lung Chinese Martial Arts School on Fort Benning. He specializes in the seven animal styles — tiger, crane, leopard, dragon, snake, monkey and praying mantis.



Last year was a good year for Burnett in fighting, forms and weapons competition. Traveling throughout Georgia and Alabama, Burnett placed first, second or third in 10 competitions last year. This year is off to a sizzling start with a first-place win in fighting at the fourth Annual Atlanta Open Jan. 23.

Along with teaching his form of the martial arts, Burnett is also a member of the Fort Benning Tae Kwon Do team and the All-Army Tae Kwon Do team.

"Everything I have accomplished over the past year I couldn't have done without the support of my company commander, Capt. Robert Vetzel, or my first sergeant, Master Sgt. James Fuller and the rest of the 206th for their support and understanding," said Burnett.

"An extra special thank you goes out to the staff of Briant Wells Field House, my family and students for their unwavering belief in me, but most of all to God for giving me the ability to perform at my very best," said Burnett.

For more information on learning the Chinese style of the martial arts, contact Burnett at 322-3500.

Scout's Cookie Run boasts 'Southern' style of running

• Cookie Run results, B-2

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The 13th Annual Barnett Bank/Girl Scout Cookie Run held Saturday at Weracoba Park in Columbus drew more than 900 runners out on a cool, but otherwise beautiful morning.

Capt. Curtis Southern of Company B, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, blew away from the pack at the start of the five-mile run, winning with a time of 25 minutes, 52 seconds.

Southern easily outdistanced his nearest competitor Duane Robinson by almost a full minute. Dave Millet, also of Fort Benning, captured third place with a time of 27 minutes, 14 seconds.

Connie Robertson captured the female crown for the second straight year with a time of 29 minutes, 50 seconds. Robertson, of Atlanta, put more than a minute and a half between herself and second-place winner Jennifer Yancey. Terri Lang finished third with a time of 31 minutes, 27 seconds.

Post teams hustle to playoffs

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The regular basketball season is almost over. With less than a week left to play, teams are hustling to try and make the playoffs. The following is a run down of two games played Monday night at Santiago Fitness Center on Sand Hill.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, (Hawkeyes) vs. Company E, 2nd Bn., 18th Inf. Regt. (Cobras).

The Hawkeyes attacked the Cobras from every vantage point they could find, skinning the Cobras 58-20.

Orlanda Edwards scored 15 points in close while teammates Tony Kennedy and Tim Nettles each hit for 10 points from the outside.

The Hawkeyes went on a 29-4 first-half run that put the Cobras in a hole they would never get out of. The Hawkeye defense left little to the imagination, allowing only one field goal for the Cobras in the first half.

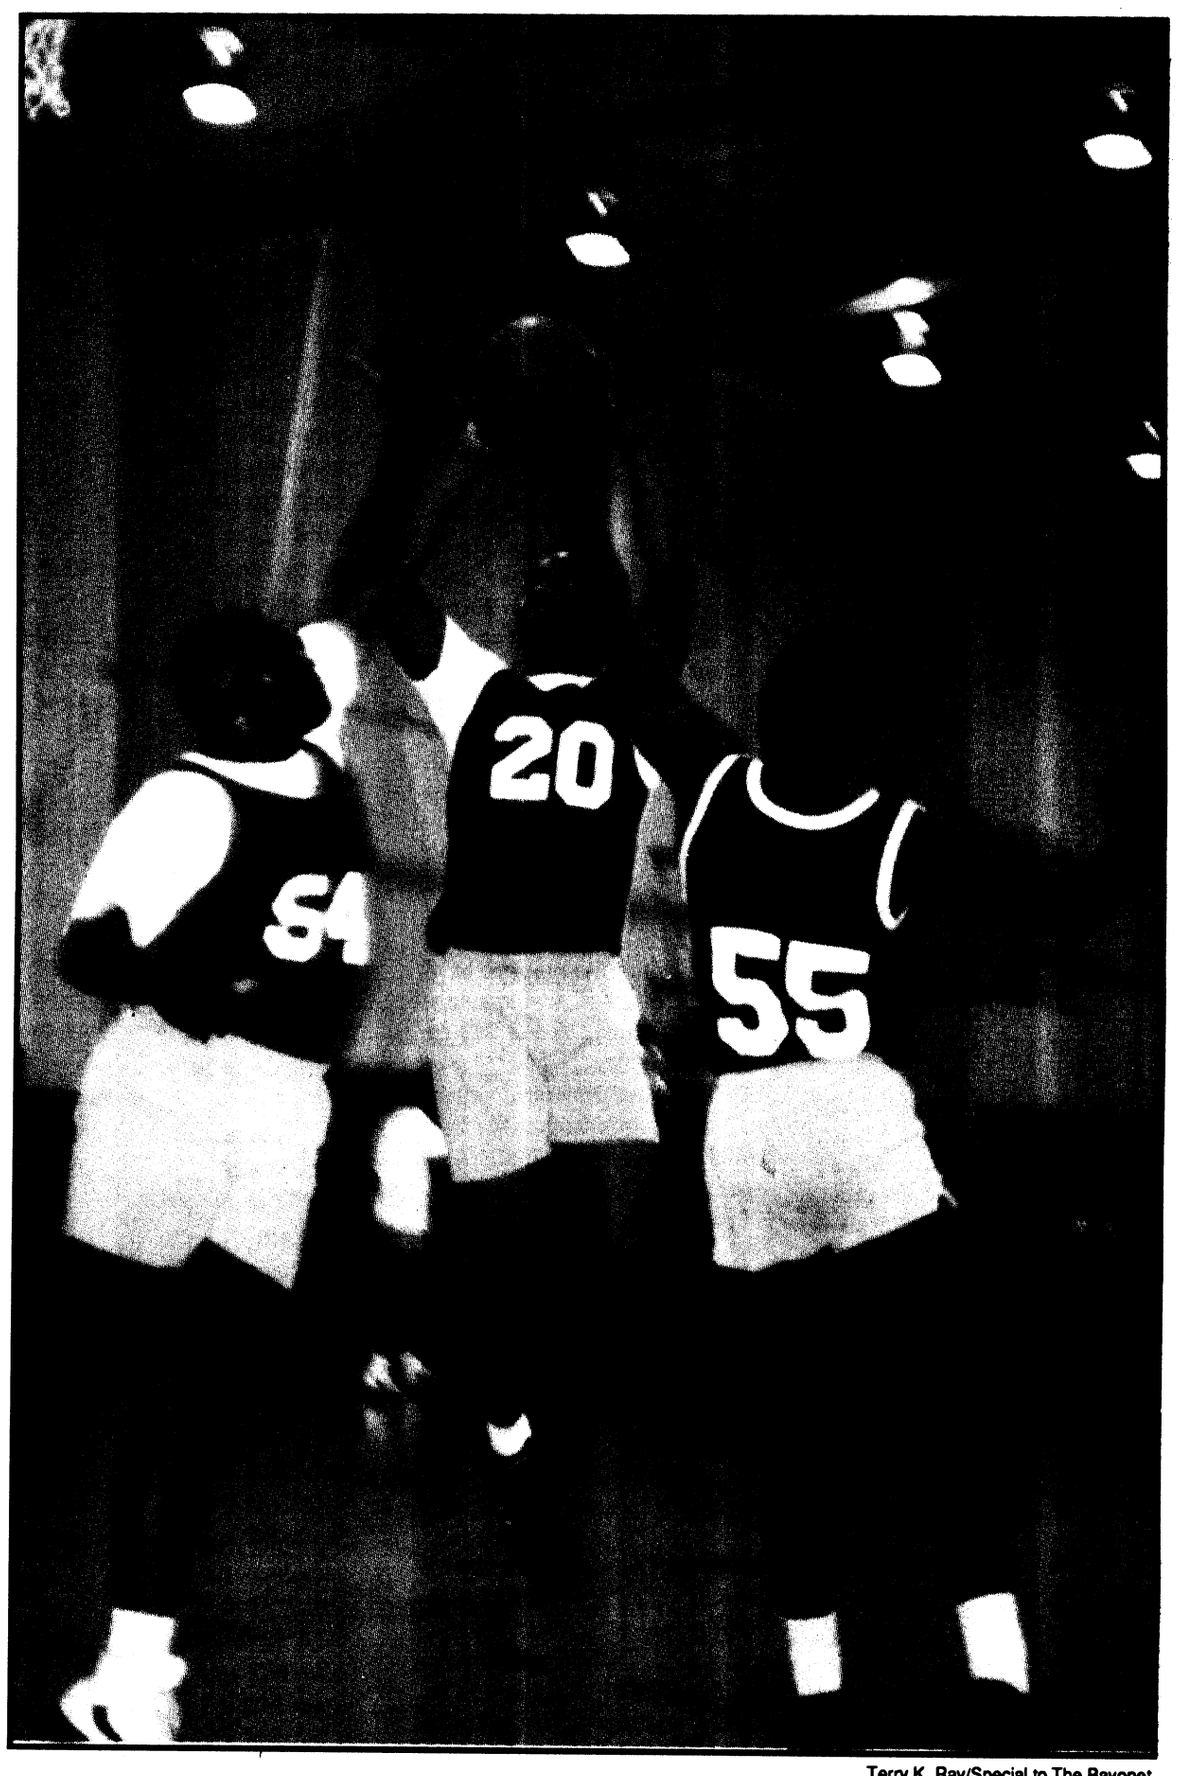
It didn't get any better in the second half as the Cobras tried to get back in the game on three-point shots, but almost every missed shot turned into a defensive rebound and a basket at the other end for the Hawkeyes.

John Miles scored 11 points for the Cobras.

Company B, 2nd Bn., 18th Infantry Regt. (Bulls) vs. Company A, 2nd Bn., 18th Inf. Regt. (Bears).

In a complete turnaround from the first game, the Bears and the Bulls went down to the wire with the Bulls holding off the Bears for a 35-32 win in the waning minutes of the second half.

With the Bears up by three at the half, 15-12, the Bulls came back and opened up a seven-point advantage late in the second half, but the Bulls refused to lie down and die.



With the clock showing less than two minutes left in the game, the Bears cut the lead down to two at 31-29. Two free throws by Mario Gabriel pulled the Bears even closer at 33-31; and, seconds later, Thomas McCain hit one of two free throws to cut the lead to one at 33-32.

With 21 ticks left on the clock, Cedric Dixon hit a free throw to give the Bulls a two-point edge at 34-32. Richard Brown hit the most important point of the game when he hit a free throw with four seconds left in the game, giving the Bulls a three-point advantage and putting the Bears in the position to have to shoot a three-point basket to send the game into overtime.

A last second miracle shot was not to be when Gabriel fired from the left side of the court and watched the ball sail too far to the right.

Rounda Dickson and Perry Taylor each hit for 12 points and Jeff Gibbs added six for the Bulls.

Larry Dailey popped in 11 points and teammate Thomas McCain tipped in nine for the Bears.

Wrestling team trims the fat

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The All-Army Wrestling trial camp is a month old and the hopefuls are fewer and leaner.

For All-Army wrestling coach Sgt. 1st Class Tony Thomas, the decision to send some of the wrestling hopefuls back to their units can be a very difficult decision and at other times it can be very easy.

"The decision to send someone home based on his talent and work ethic is very hard to do; you lose sleep at night wondering if the kid is going to come around," said Thomas. "If a kid comes to the camp and doesn't put out 100 percent or loafs through practice, he will be one of the first on a plane home. Those who break curfew or don't follow the trial camp rules are the easy ones to send home."

A regular day for a wrestler at the camp begins at 6 a.m. with barracks maintenance at 8 a.m. Then they run either a timed four miles or five miles of sprints.

The rest of the morning session is spent going through drills. One drill is five minutes of one wrestler on the top position working offense while the bottom wrestler works on defense, then they switch.

The next station is five minutes of drills on their feet offensively then five more minutes on defense.

The next phase is straight live wrestling in four, three-man groups. Each wrestler must go through 30 to 40 minutes of wrestling each man in his group. Greco-Roman circuits round out the morning workout at 10:30 a.m..

At 2 p.m., the wrestler's return to the camp for two hours of straight live work, then an evening session of one-on-one drills with a buddy ends a day's practice. A wrestler goes through this type of training six days a week and on Saturday they go through live wrestling matches. This way they get as much experience as they can before the wrestle off.

"If a wrestler doesn't have the desire to be an Olympic champion and thinks he can come to the trial camp and bluff his way through, he will be sadly mistaken," said Thomas. "We as a team want only the ones who are willing to go that extra step to put out the sweat, blood and tears that is called for to become an Olympic champion."

Tourney to benefit paralytic

Bargain Barn

The Bargain Barn in Jasper, Ga., with cooperation from the North Fulton Bassmasters Bass Club in Alpharetta, Ga., will present the Bargain Barn Benefit Bass Tournament March 14.

The event, which will take place at Holiday Marina on Lake Lanier, is to raise money for Kelly Hayes, victim of a car accident. Hayes, who was not expected to live, was left paralyzed from the neck down, with only limited movement in her right arm.

It will be a team tournament with first place guaranteed $2,500. Entry fee is $100, with $10 automatic big fish pot.

Big fish pot will be split between the person who catches the biggest large-mouth bass and the one who catches the biggest spotted bass. Tourney hours will be from 6 a.m., or safe light, until 3 p.m.

Registration forms are available at the Bargain Barn or your nearest tackle store. For more details, call (706) 735-3340.

Annual race to assist Enlisted Heritage Hall

Gunter Air Force Base

The 10th Annual Government Employees Insuranc Company Enlisted Heritage Hall Race will be April 24 at Gunter Air Force Base, Ala.

During the past nine years, this race has grown into a favorite for serious runners as well as for others who are just serious about having a good time, according to race officials.

The races begin at 7:30 a.m. at Gunter. Also this year is the all-male and all-female 5K races. For those who prefer more fun than run, the one-mile fun run/walk will begin at approximately 9 a.m. or after completion of the two 5K races. Group participation in this event is encouraged with trophies to be awarded to a number of winners.

Through the support of local sponsors, everyone who registers for the race and is present on race day has a chance to win a prize. Everyone is guaranteed refreshments after the race, such as pizza, red beans and rice, fruit and beverages. Each entrant will receive a distinctive T-shirt.

All proceeds from this race go to support the U.S. Air Force Enlisted Heritage Hall, the only museum in the U.S. Air Force dedicated to recognizing the contributions of enlisted men and women. This year's race at Gunter also will be in conjunction with a worldwide effort, started in 1990, to host Heritage Hall races at bases all over the world.

In Korea, Greece, Germany, England, and at bases all over the United States, the military and civilian communities will be coming together to compete, have fun, and help a worthwhile cause. Pre-registration is $10 and $12 on race day.

For more information, contact Sgt. Maj. Dennis Riehle at (205) 416-4882 or 416-4887 or Chief Master Sgt. Danny Chestnut at (205) 416-3202.

Academy plans 10K at Lakebottom Track

Achievement Academy

The Leprechaun Leap 10K road race and fun run will be March 20. At 8:30 a.m. the one-mile fun run will begin, and at 9 a.m. the 10K road race will begin at Weracoba Park (Lakebottom Track) in Columbus.

The cost for the fun run pre-registration is $6 (before March 10) and $10 for the 10K Run. Late registration will be from 7 to 7:45 a.m. the day of the race.

Cost will be $8 and $12 on the day of the race. Family discounts are available.

T-shirts will be given to all registered participants and all registered one-mile fun-runners get ribbons. All registered participants will receive free food coupons from Burger King, and there is a wheelchair category.

The course is measured with a Jones counter. (TAC certification #GA 92012WN) Results can be used for seeding in the Peachtree Road Race. All proceeds go to benefit the scholarship fund for the Achievement Academy. The Achievement Academy is a private, nonprofit educational facility serving the needs of children with learning problems.

Navigators set course for life

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Have you ever wondered how to be an effective witness for your belief?

Do you feel inadequate to share the gospel?

The Navigators is offering a weekly video series on life.

"Witnessing can be as natural as a cup of coffee with a neighbor or a lively tennis game with a co-worker," states a pamphlet describing the series. "Find common ground with non-Christians, communicate in a way they can relate to, and demonstrate a friendly, Bible-centered lifestyle in their midst."

The series is designed for small groups and promises to be an inspiring call to lifestyle evangelism. The real-life drama is used to portray how to possibly develop relationships with non-Christians, model the Christian message in your life, and eventually present the Bible's claims in a nonthreatening manner.

The seminar will start Saturday at the Infantry Center Chapel and will be conducted weekly for 12 weeks. Following are the titles for each session:

Session 1 - The Culture Gap
Session 2 - Our Spiritual Resources
Session 3 - Mini-Decisions
Session 4 - Finding Common Ground
Session 5 - Being a Good Testimony
Session 6 - Can We Please Everyone?
Session 7 - Strategies of Sowing the Word
Session 8 - Time and Teamwork
Session 9 - Guiding Through the Scriptures
Session 10 - Sparking Interest with Questions
Session 11 - Making the Decision
Session 12 - Launching the New Believer

The local representatives of the Navigators will conduct the series.

"The Navigators" is an international, non-denominational, evangelical ministry committed to bringing people together and closer to God. "They strip away the thin veneer of religious talk and plant roots deep in the Christian walk," says Charles Swindoll, author.

The Navigators began in southern California in 1933, when founder Dawson Trotman taught sailors how to grow in their Christian faith.

During World War II, Navigators Bible study groups spread to a thousand ships and military bases. In 1949, the first missionary was sent to China. Now, more than 40 years later, there are hundreds of short-term and career missionaries abroad.

In 1951, the Navigators outreach was extended to the college campuses; and in 1971, the Navigators extended its ministry to the community.

Today, in almost 70 countries, the Navigators staff ministers through local churches, on military bases, college campuses, in homes and in work places.

With a love for individuals, the members teach on a one-on-one basis and in small groups, according to group officials. They reach people through spiritual multiplication: "What you have heard from me ... entrust to faithful men who will be able to teach others also." (II Timothy 2:2). This specialized training seems to produce a special kind of Christian — a laborer — who has learned to study the Bible, have a daily devotional time, develop a deepening prayer life, articulate one's faith to family and friends, and invest his life in discipling another.

Navigator staff members on hundreds of U.S. college campuses spend time with students, helping launch their careers.

Military services seem to surface a person's spiritual needs. Young adults are away from home for the first time; families are strained by extended separations caused by duty assignments; combat soldiers face danger and terrorism — even death.

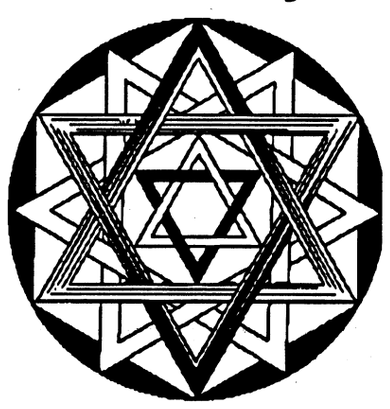
The group supports base chaplains at various locations in America, Europe and the Far East.

Anyone interested in the program can contact Eric Kennedy at 322-7161 or Andy Chandler at 682-5546.

Holiday celebrates life, growth, beauty

USAIC Chaplains Office

On the hills surrounding Jerusalem, amid the melting snow, almond trees are blooming. Tu B' Shevat has arrived. The festival of trees is here.



The 15th day of the Hebrew month Shevat, also called Tu B' Shevat, decreed the New Year's Day for trees by Hillel, a rabbinic sage who lived almost 2,000 years ago, falls on Saturday this year.

But what does it mean? How do we celebrate? By worshipping trees? Not quite.

Tu B' Shevat, initially intended as the day to mark off the years of a tree's existence to determine the time to tithe the tree's produce, has taken on even greater significance.

In medieval Europe, the Jews of Spain, believing themselves to the furthest removed from the Holy Land of Israel, would celebrate Tu B' Shevat by eating the native fruits of Israel mentioned in the Bible (Deuteronomy 8:8) with great ceremony.

Today, in Israel, the most common way to celebrate the holiday is by planting trees. From 1891 to 1947, Jewish settlers planted trees to anchor the soil, drain the swamps and provide shelter for their homes and fields. Trees are still planted in Israel to beautify the land, retain the topsoil and contribute to the health of the environment.

Not only is Tu B'Shevat the Jewish Arbor Day, it is also the Jewish Earth Day. It is a day to be conscious of the Earth's needs.

Trees provide so many of those needs — carbon dioxide elimination, production of oxygen, preservation of soil, homes for the birds and the bees and shelter and shade for humanity.

Plant a tree on Saturday and celebrate a Jewish holiday. Plant a tree and add immeasurably to the health and long life of Earth.

Group shares fellowship

By Gabriele Sonnenberg
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Christian Military Fellowship Bible study sharing group meets at 7 p.m. at the Custer Terrace Chapel, every second and fourth Friday of the month.

The group is a non-denominational fellowship of believers, building up individual members to spiritual maturity in their walk with God, according to its mission statement. The fellowship is dedicated to encouraging, training and equipping for Christian service.

The group is committed to the great commission of the Lord Jesus Christ, who said, "All authority in heaven and on Earth has been given to me. Therefore, go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you." (Matthew 28:18 to 20 New International Version). These objectives are emphasized by the group's motto: "To win, to disciple, to equip, to win."

The group is an outgrowth of the Christian Servicemen's Fellowship, which existed under the National Association of Evangelicals. In May 1977, that organization ceased to exist and its members became part of Christian Military Fellowship, which is a separately incorporated organization and was established May 1, 1977.

Today, CMF has more than 2,300 members at hundreds of Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard bases, stations, and ships all over the world.

It developed into a peer ministry to military people by military people within the military society. Therefore, the support for chaplains and participation in the military chapel program is encouraged.

During the semi-monthly fellowship at Fort Benning, each prayer request is honored and each praise report is joyfully shared by the group. The Bible is the primary tool for this fellowship and everyday application of scriptures is discussed in detail.

The coordinator of this group is Staff Sgt. Kenneth Harper and the chaplain adviser is Chaplain (Maj.) Kerry Steedley.

CHAPEL NOTES

Ramadan — Ramadan, the holy month of fasting for the people of the Al-Islamic faith, is expected to begin the evening of Feb. 21, the first evening that the new moon is due to set after sundown.

Beginning the following morning, Muslims all over the world will abstain from eating, drinking (even water), sexual gratification and smoking each day from first light until sundown.

This period of abstinence includes refrain from loud talk, arguments, frivolity and other displays of emotion; it is designed to keep Muslims' minds focused on spirituality.

For more information, call Imam Yahya Ansar Islam of Masjid Al-Nur Islamic Community at 689-6922 or write to Al-Muhsee Muhammad at 1233 Garrett St., Indianhead, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905.

National prayer breakfast — The commanding general's annual National Prayer Breakfast will be Thursday at 6:30 a.m. at the Main NCO Club ballroom.

Everyone is welcome. For tickets, contact the USAIC Chaplains' Office at 545-2288.

Support group — A survivors of sexual abuse support group for adults started Wednesday and is from noon until 1:30 p.m. and runs every Wednesday through April 14 at the Chaplains' Family Life Center, Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2606. For more information, contact Chaplain (Maj.) James Rayburn at 545-1760.

Life and love series — The Military Council of Catholic Women is presenting a series of talks by Scott and Kimberly Hahn and Dr. Thomas Zepeda.

The series, titled "Life Giving Love," examines the meaning of sex and marriage from a Christian standpoint. The topics for each week are:

Wednesday - The Bible and Birth Control
Feb. 17 - Medical Ethics on Birth Control

The series will be at the Infantry Center Annex from 9:30 a.m. until noon. Child care is free.

For details, call 682-3918.

PARTY for children — PARTY, the youth group for children 4 years old through sixth grade, will start a new series called "Bible Boot Camp."

It will give children a "Basic Course in God's Army," teaching them who their commander in chief is, how to study their "training manual," what to wear for battle and the weapons to use in "spiritual warfare."

Each session will last from 1 to 3:15 p.m. at the Religious Education Center and will feature games, crafts, videos and snacks.

The Religious Education Center is located in Building 2522 on Thorston Road behind Quartermaster Laundry.

Dates are: Feb. 13 and 27, March 13 and 27, April 10 and 24, May 8 and 22.

For registration or more information, call Margaret Alberici at 689-1164.

Protestant Women of the Chapel — Protestant Women of the Chapel meets 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. each Thursday in Building 2521. Baby-sitting is provided free of charge in adjacent Building 2517. These buildings are located just off Indianhead Road and Thorson Street.

For more information, contact Gwen Chandler at 682-5546 or Loree Smith at 685-0809.

Prebaptism class — A prebaptism class will be Feb. 21 and March 14 at 1 p.m. at the Religious Education Center, Buildings 2517 and 2522, located off Indianhead Road, behind the Quartermaster Laundry.

There are three sessions in each cycle. All parents who wish to have their child or children baptized in the Catholic church are required to attend prebaptismal instruction.To register, call Phil Reilly at 545-4715.

Megaskills — The Chaplains' Family Life Center and Columbus College will present workshops for parents and children Feb. 17 and 24 and March 10, 17, 24 and 31 from 11 a.m. to noon at the Chaplains' Family Life Center. For more information, call Chaplain (Maj.) James Rayburn at 545-1760.

IG bids post farewell

Looks forward to, makes plans for civilian life

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Sometimes it seems the better you are at solving problems, the more problems you're given to solve.

Col. Mayo A. Hadden III, who retired Jan. 29 after 4 1/2 years as Fort Benning's inspector general, has had a lot of experience in problem-solving during his military career.

"The most memorable experience in my 31-year career," said Hadden, "was in 1963 as a private first class assigned to 2nd Battalion, 509th Airborne (Mechanized) Infantry Division.

"Along with a group of about 40 other lower enlisted soldiers," he continued, "I was ordered to figure out how to rig an M-113 (armored personnel carrier) to be part of an airborne unit."

Hadden said the plan was eventually scrapped by the Army. "But," he said, "that experience convinced me to go to Officer Candidate School. I knew I could issue orders that would make more sense than that."

Although that particular problem was unsolvable, Hadden said, he's been able to help resolve difficulties for many people in his role here.

"Each day has been a new challenge," the inspector general said. "I've gotten a lot of satisfaction out of helping people — soldiers, civilians and family members."

"We've handled problems at every level, for individual soldiers of all grades and for units," said Hadden. "Our office is equipped to handle anything from pay problems to family nonsupport cases to unit equipment shortfalls."

"When I got here," he said, "the office didn't have a computer. Now we're the most automated IG site in the Army and a test site for new technology."

Hadden said his office communicates electronically with other IG offices worldwide on a daily basis.

"That helps us a lot," he said. "If we need information, or someone else has something we're short of, we can find it in a hurry."

Hadden said the Inspector General's Office is prepared to handle even "hot" issues that may come up, including sexual harassment and the question of homosexuals in the military.

"We've gotten much better," he said, "at using the latest programs developed by corporate America to measure compliance and noncompliance.

"We're also using the latest processes in systems analysis," Hadden said, "which helps us in completing our tasks quickly. All of this is paying dividends in effectiveness and efficiency."

Hadden said the skills he's developed as inspector general will serve him well in his post-retirement plans.

Hadden said his wife, Susan, daughters, Tracy and Terri, and son, Robert, will be closely involved with any decisions about the family's future plans. "We always make decisions as a family," he said. "We've been very happy in the Columbus area, and the new opportunities interest us."

Hadden also plans to spend some of his civilian time continuing to work with the Boy Scouts, the Columbus Aquatics swim team and other youth sports programs.

Col. Mayo A. Hadden III

Now that he's leaving the military, Hadden said, his career has taught him that, "We have a great Army — I've been impressed with commanders at all levels and the well-thought-out steps they take in problem-solving.

"It's been very gratifying," he said, "to work with the people in today's Army. They're professional, they're dedicated and they're superb leaders.

"I've always thought of myself as basically a soldier at heart," Hadden said. "The grade carries its own responsibilities, but we all have the same standards and we're all soldiers."

Workshops set for volunteers

Volunteer Resource Center

Several workshops are planned for post volunteers.

Developing a volunteer handbook

Wednesday, 10 a.m. to noon, Building 359, Family Unit Network Center, Ingersol Street.

Presenter: Dr. Beth Middlemiss, director of Staff Development for Fort Benning Schools.

Middlemiss has created a volunteer program within the Fort Benning Schools.

Team building with volunteers

March 17, 10 a.m. to noon, Building 359, Family Unit Network Center, Ingersol Street.

Presenter: Chaplain (Capt.) Gil Richardson

Richardson will share tools to assist volunteers and managers in working through conflicts to attain agreement and organizational goals.

For more information, call 545-5602.

Wilbur school hosts artist in residence

Fort Benning Schools

Fort Benning's Wilbur Elementary School began a six-week residency Wednesday of its artist-in-residence, Bill Johns, a director, playwright and actor.

During the residency, Johns will use theater-related teaching methods in the classroom and work with several core groups of students in a intensive program studying improvisation, vocal and physical technique, mime and scene study.

According to Johns, he hopes this core of young actors will provide a group of students dedicated to continued growth — both their own as well as that of the program at Wilbur Elementary.

Johns will be involved with several community groups and arts organizations during his residency at Wilbur.

"With support from parents, administration and teachers, the arts can flourish as a part of everyone's life, not just as a one-hour a week elective or an occasional movie," Johns said.

"Try to imagine a world without the arts — no architecture, no songs, no stories, no culture, no inventive ideas. What better and more important place to prepare our next generation to be contributors to a world filled with art than the schools?"

The residency is sponsored by the Fort Benning School System and Wilbur School Parent-Teacher Organization.

Lectures focus on young children

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The fourth session of Talks About Young Children (to age 5) series, "Children's Behavior Patterns and Preferences: How to Make the Most of Your Child's Strengths," will be Monday at Dexter School from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The free lecture series, aimed at Fort Benning parents, caregivers and educators, features programs about young children.

Participants can choose to attend any or all of the lectures, however, a phone reservation for each session will be required since space in each session is limited.

Dr. Judy Archer, coordinator of Language Arts and Social Studies for the Fort Benning Schools, will present the program.

The focus of this session will be on understanding the ways in which children learn; how to recognize and build upon their strengths; how to motivate children to follow parental directions and requests; and strategies to help children develop critical readiness skills for school.

Reservations for this lecture will be taken today from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. or until the session is full.

Children are not permitted to attend.

Tot Town will be open from 6:15 to 9:15 p.m. on the evenings of the series. Parents are responsible for registration and payment.

The final session, "Learning Together: Creative Activities at Home and the Community Resources for Parents and Young Children," will be March 3.

It will be presented by members of the Fort Benning Schools staff and speakers from the Fort Benning and Columbus region.

This the second year that the Fort Benning Schools have sponsored this series. It was developed to address one of the national goals for education — that children who enter school will be ready to learn.

Artist visits school

Fort Benning Schools

The second in the series of Fine Arts concerts took place in each of the Fort Benning Schools Tuesday and Wednesday.

Dr. William E. Fry, director of bands and saxophone instructor at Columbus College, presented the program. He was accompanied on piano by Rexford Whiddon of Columbus College.

The Fine Arts Series is in its ninth consecutive year at Fort Benning Schools.

According to school officials, it is designed to provide children with a quality artistic experience while teaching them appropriate concert behavior.

Guest artists for this series were professional musicians, most of whom are associated with Columbus College.

This Fine Arts concert is sponsored by the Enlisted Wives' Club.

Schools expand science program

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Science studies at Fort Benning Schools will soon include not just experiments in the classroom, but classrooms that are experiments.

As one of five pilot schools selected by the National Science Center in Fort Gordon, Ga., Fort Benning Schools will soon be able to offer new learning opportunities to its students.

The National Science Center was authorized by Congress in 1985 and is a private, nonprofit organization administered by the Army. Its facility at Fort Gordon is toured by schoolchildren during the week and open to the general public some Saturdays.

Jerry Christy, curriculum coordinator for science, math and computers for Fort Benning Schools, said, "It's an exciting program — this is the kind of opportunity you'd never expect."

Dr. Rolla Baumgartner, superintendent of Fort Benning Schools, explained the three phases of the program.

"It will kick off this spring, when the Mobile Discovery Center — a semi-trailer set up as a classroom and science lab — will visit Faith School for a week," he said.

"It's staffed by Army personnel," he said, "which will not only give us access to new experience and expertise, but it will show the students that people use science in their daily lives."

The second phase, Baumgartner said, will be the installation of a satellite dish at Faith School.

"We'll receive programming from them, and from around the world," he said. "Some will be geared toward the students, but there will also be programming directed toward the teachers."

R
Baumgartner said, will be "Starlab," a portable, inflatable planetarium that will accommodate around 30 students.

"It can be moved in a van, and inflates with a household fan, so it will be accessible to virtually all of our students," said Baumgartner.

Baumgartner said Starlab will have multiple uses.

"Besides astronomy, we'll be able to project the globe on the dome," he said. "It will bring geography to life. I'm sure, too, that when teachers get involved with Starlab, they'll come up with all sorts of ideas to put it to use."

Both Starlab and the satellite receiver, Baumgartner said, will be permanent additions to the school district.

Baumgartner said the program will provide science instruction that's "virtually hands on, not something static in a book. We're very excited to be partners with the National Science Center."

Christy agreed, adding "I'm really impressed with the enthusiasm and commitment of the people at the center. They're our benefactors in this, and they really want to make it work."

"We're doing everything we can to expand our science curriculum," Christy said. "These new resources will complement our existing curriculum and give us new opportunities not just in science, but across the curriculum."

PRIMUS converts to family clinic

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The new Fort Benning Primary Care for the Uniformed Services Family Practice Clinic opens today at the same location of the existing PRIMUS Clinic, 1727 Boxwood Place (off Macon Road, behind K mart).

The clinic's new contract converts the previous minor illness and walk-in clinic into a primary care entry point in Martin Army Community Hospital's Gateway To Care/Coordinated Care Program.

The new PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic offers comprehensive family medicine for acute and chronic (stable) conditions to include routine physicals.

Laboratory tests, X-rays, immunizations and prescriptions are available at the clinic. The clinic will also maintain its patients' medical records.

According to Martin Army Community Hospital officials, thousands have already elected to receive their primary medical care from the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic.

Patients enrolled at the clinic will have the convenience of calling the clinic to schedule an appointment or, if necessary, walk-in.

The clinic also offers a telephone consultation service with qualified health-care personnel who will determine whether and when to seek care.

To be eligible for care at the clinic, a military beneficiary must be registered in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System and have completed a Gateway To Care application requesting this clinic. The clinic will not treat active duty soldiers.

To find out more about the Gateway program or to receive an application, call Martin Army's Coordinate Care Division at 544-1447 or 544-1591.

The new PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic's hours are from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday.

The clinic will be closed on Sundays and federal holidays.

Beneficiaries who are enrolled at the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic may call 561-7066 for more information regarding the services available at the clinic.

Excellence to be honored

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Excellence Appreciation Day Breakfast will be Feb. 18 from 8 to 9 a.m. at the Supper Club of the Fort Benning Officers' Club.

The continental breakfast will be hosted by Fort Benning Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White.

The purpose of the breakfast is to recognize civilian and military personnel who have contributed to making Fort Benning a community of excellence.

Tickets are $4 and are available in the basement of the Parrish Building, Building 66.

For more information , call Anne Pallotta at 545-2936 or Patricia Burch at 545-1713.

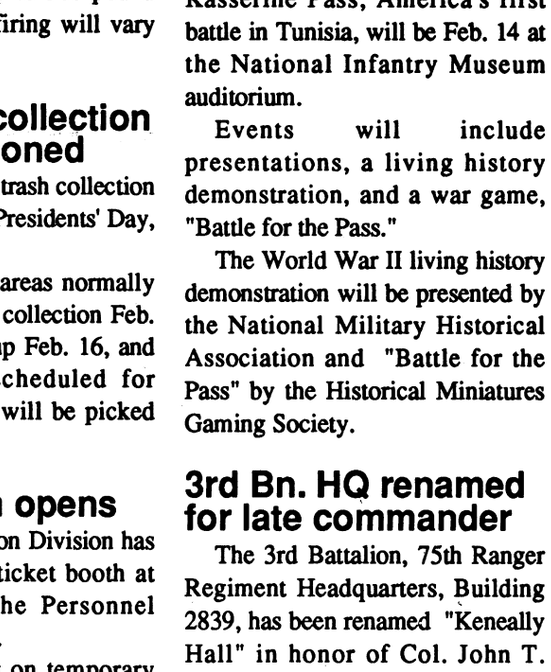
Buying a Used Car?



Eliminate your worst Fears about buying a car. Sure, you've thought about buying a used car, but you're afraid of the problems that might be lurking between the bumper.

Was It Properly Maintained?
Had It Been In Any Accidents?
Is The Mileage Correct?
How Much Is The Car Actually Worth?

Auto-Check of Columbus was created to answer these and 3,500 other questions about the condition and the value of any car. Simply looking under the hood or listening to the engine is no way to determine what shape the car is in. When you call we perform a ACAT-SCAN on the used vehicle. That's our name for AUTO-CHECKER AUTOMATED TESTING. Using future State of the Art computers and laser equipment, we're able to test 3,500 mechanical and electrical components, on-board computer, struts, tie-rods, compression, timing, fuel injection, brakes, transmission, exhaust system, emissions and much, much more... If the automobile has been in an accident, we'll know it! We use an ultrasonic sensing device to measure under the paint.

PET OF THE WEEK

This mixed-breed domestic shorthair (female, age approximately 1 year) is looking for a home. If you would like to adopt her, or another pet, contact the Veterinary Services office in Building 265. Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. For more information, call 545-1127. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in building 263. Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are important, too, because it's the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner. Pet owners should register pets and update their records when changes occur.

PRIMUS

PRIMUS IS CHANGING

On February 1, 1993, the Columbus PRIMUS Clinic became the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic. As of this date, the clinic will be open only to non-active duty military beneficiaries registered in the Army's Gateway To Care Program and enrolled to receive their primary health care at PRIMUS. As a Family Practice Clinic, PRIMUS will expand its services and offer its enrolled members:

- Comprehensive family practice medicine, including routine physicals, treatment of a wider range of acute and chronic conditions, and extensive laboratory and radiology testing.
- Guidance for all healthcare treatment, including diagnostic testing, speciality referrals, and follow-up care.
- Both scheduled appointments and walk-in visits.
- Telephone consultation with qualified healthcare personnel to determine whether and when to seek medical care.

To enroll as a member of the PRIMUS Family Practice, active duty family members and retirees and their families should attend one of the Army's Gateway To Care briefings or contact the MACH Health Care Finder at 544-1447/1591. Enrolled members can receive more information on our Family Practice services by calling the clinic at 561-7066.

THANK YOU FORT BENNING

Our job here at The Advertiser Company is to assist Fort Benning's Public Affairs Office in publishing The Bayonet, your authorized post newspaper, every week. In a nutshell, we oversee the business side of the operation - advertising sales, production, distribution, etc. - while The Bayonet staff, consisting of trained military and civilian personnel under the direction of PAO, takes care of the editorial content.

Every week, you are one of 55,000 who read The Bayonet. Your continued support of your post newspaper is vital to the continued success of this 50-year-old publication.

Also, your support of those who advertise in The Bayonet is very important. It's the advertising dollars that literally make The Bayonet available to you each week. The command of 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment will change hands Feb. 12 during an 11 a.m. ceremony on Kyle Field.

Lt. Col. Robert I. Hoidahl, whose most recent assignment was the chief of the Leadership Division, Combined Arms and Tactics Directorate of the Infantry School, will take command from Lt. Col. John C. Cray, who will be reassigned as the commander of Joint Task Force Full Accounting-Hanoi in Hanoi, Vietnam.

Cray had previously commanded companies in the 82nd Airborne Division and the 2nd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment. He has commanded the 2nd Battalion since February 1991.

Cray and his wife, Kathy, have two children, Cheryl and John Adam.

Hoidahl, born in Chicago, Ill., graduated from Purdue University in 1973 and subsequently enlisted in the Army.

He graduated from Officer Candidate School in January 1975. He has previously served as a detachment commander in the 5th Special Forces Group, and commanded companies in the 82nd Airborne Division and the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment.

His wife, Leann, is originally from Lake Bluff, Ill.

PT: It's not like it used to be

By Philip Mandile
29th Infantry Regiment

Officers of the 29th Infantry Regiment participated in some nostalgia Jan. 22 when they were administered the old Army Physical Training test.

Known as the Army Physical Readiness Test, the series of events was standard from 1973 to 1979.

Five events were included: push-ups, sit-ups, horizontal ladder, run-dodge-jump and the one-mile run. All events were conducted in battle dress uniform and combat boots.

The consensus was the push-up and sit-up events were relatively easy, since they were only for one minute.

The horizontal ladder seemed to be the most difficult event, according to participants. Those who practiced their techniques agreed it made a marked difference in their score.

The run-dodge-jump event was not as strenuous as the horizontal ladder, participants said, but it required a high degree of balance, coordination and agility.

Spectators said this was the most enjoyable event to watch as the participants' styles varied — from extended arms for balance to a turning side-step to aid in changing direction.

To complete the series, the officers ran a mile course in combat boots.

Somalis say conditions have improved since Dec.

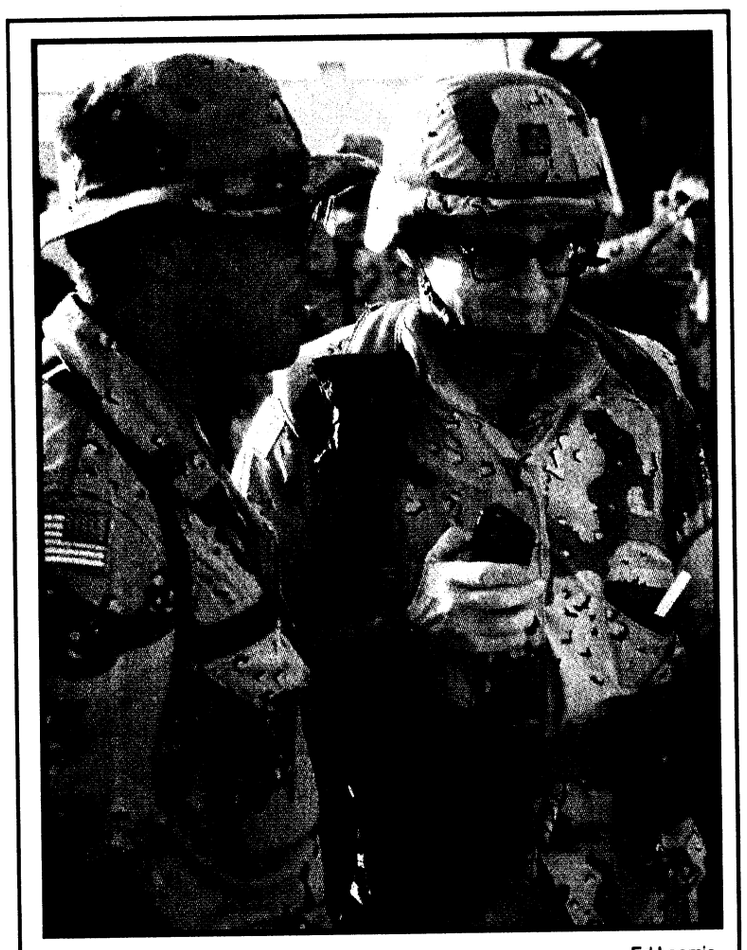
Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

WAAJED, Somalia — For Somalis in the hard-hit village of Waajed, conditions and the people's health are improving, according to Fian, a villager who managed to survive the famine.

"People are no longer as sick," he said, in broken English.

Fian said children are not dying as often as they were before Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion, the French Foreign Legion, and the Australian Army moved into the area in December and early January.

Although the 43rd's mission isn't to feed the Somalis, it has opened roadways for relief convoys to make it to remote villages like Waajed.



"We like American soldiers," said Fian. "We don't like to make enemies."

Fian said the soldiers have helped the village a great deal, but it is up to the Somali people to help themselves by maintaining roads and growing crops.

He said his village elders know the coalition forces may not be there much longer, and he voiced concern that conditions would revert to the way they were.

When asked what life would be like when the Americans left, Fian said only, "The same. Everything will be the same."

A soldier trains with a claymore training mine, which uses the same firing device, cord and test set as the real mine. The practice claymore was designed to simulate the kill range of the real mine.

Army research to pay off in lives saved

Army Research Laboratory

Inexpensive training aids are currently being developed at the Army Research Laboratory to help save soldiers from being maimed or killed by unexploded ordnance in future conflicts.

During Operation Desert Storm, many American and allied soldiers and supporting personnel were wounded or killed from unexploded ordnance on the battlefield. Although Desert Storm ended well over a year ago, the Kuwait desert remains cluttered with unexploded ordnance, much of it submunitions from cluster bombs, artillery and other devices that, for various reasons, didn't detonate. A major clean-up effort is under way but, tragically, some of these submunitions are now exploding and killing or injuring soldiers who are unfamiliar with what the submunitions look like or how they react when touched or moved.

ARL's Sensors, Signatures, Signal and Information Processing Directorate has developed prototypes of a number of training submunitions (M-118 bomb submunition or "rockeye," M42 artillery submunition and the BLU-26 bomb submunition) for use at the National Training Center in Fort Irwin, Calif., and other Army training centers. They are compatible with the Multiple Integrated Laser Engagement System and Man-Worn Laser Detector harness, used by soldiers during training exercises to alert them to when they have been hit by an enemy weapon. These training aids will be used in field tactical exercises to help soldiers learn the dangers of unexploded ordnance.

"Soldiers rotating into Kuwait for duty sometimes try to pick up unexploded munitions for souvenirs or because they are curious," points out Carl Campagnuolo, chief of the Field Assistance in Science and Technology Demonstration Program at ARL. "These devices will demonstrate during training what can happen if they are disturbed."

The training submunitions, which are nearly identical in appearance to the live submunitions, contain electronic circuitry, a buzzer and a flash bulb inside. If picked up or moved, they flash and emit a pulsating sound. These audible pulses trigger the MWLD harness to go off-alerting the soldier wearing it that he has been killed. These devices have been designed to simulate real field occurrences. Some go off instantly when moved and others are delayed to go off a few seconds later, perhaps after a soldier has picked one up for a souvenir and put it in his pocket. Some are duds and don't go off at all.

"They are designed to simulate what actually happens in the field as much as possible," Campagnuolo says. "They 'kill' not only the soldier who retrieves them, but also those around him. Multiple casualties were reported during the Gulf War."

While other weapons used during training emit a laser beam to set off the MWLD harness, the training submunitions use acoustic modulation technology invented and developed by ARL engineers for other training aids including a practice grenade, a claymore mine and bouncing Betty mine.

The reason was cost, according to Campagnuolo, and because sound propagation from a source is spherical and is similar to that from an explosive.

He explains that a laser practice hand grenade was developed that cost about $1,500 because it required laser emitters to be placed on the surface. This new family of training aids using acoustic techniques can be produced for about $60 each, he says, adding that produced in bulk, the price could be less than $20 each.

ARL is currently fabricating a number of prototypes expected to be sent to the National Training Center for a demonstration and test.

According to Campagnuolo, Maj. Gen. William Carter, commander of the Training Center, initiated the request for the training submunitions less than a year ago because of his personal experiences as a field commander in the Persian Gulf War.

"That's the advantage of a laboratory like ARL. We have the technology, the scientists and engineers who can do the job fast and if a solution cannot be found with present techniques, we will invent one," Campagnuolo says. "Through the FAST program, we keep in constant touch with scientists stationed with troops worldwide."

Work on the development of the submunitions is being sponsored by the Combined Arms Command-Training and the Simulation, Training and Instrumentation Command.

Early development work on the training hand grenade, claymore mine and other devices was sponsored by the Army FAST office and by the Army Research Laboratory.

WORLD WAR II — A LOOK BACK

50 years ago this week ...

• Soviet forces continued to dominate the fighting on the Eastern Front, making vast gains throughout Russia.

In one week, the Soviets reached the Sea of Azoz, capturing Azoz, Kursk, Bielgorod, Shevekino and Lozovaya, as well as seven cities in the Ukraine and three others in the Voronezh sector.

The battered German Army steadily withdrew, showing no signs of being able to stop the Russian onslaught.

• In England, Prime Minister Winston Churchill addressed the House of Commons, announcing the reconstitution of all Allied forces in North Africa, to include Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery's Eighth Army, under the sole command of Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

• In Chunking, China, British Field Marshal Sir John Dill and U.S. Gen. H. "Hap" Arnold concluded a series of conferences aimed at coordinating Allied strategy with Chinese Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

• The Japanese armed forces officially announced their complete evacuation of Guadalcanal during a public radio broadcast in Tokyo.

• Spain signed a secret pact promising Spanish-led Fascist resistance to any Anglo-American invasion of its territory.

• The French Imperial Council appointed Gen. Henri Giraud to the position of civil and military commander in chief, granting extended powers of government.

• Fort Benning welcomed newly commissioned Capt. Hank Gowdy, for whom the installation's baseball field was already named, as he assumed his duty of overseeing all post athletic and recreational activities as the special service officer for the Infantry School.

Known affectionately as "Old Sarge," Gowdy was a former All Star caliber catcher who had become the first major leaguer to enlist in the Army and fight in World War I.

29th soldier earns badge

By Philip Mandile
29th Infantry Regiment

Friends and family members gathered in Lillyman Hall to watch the graduation ceremony for Pathfinder class 3-93.

Cpl. Eric Linch, from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment graduated from the course among 49 other graduates.

Maj James Yoman, executive officer, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507 Infantry, told the graduates that they had earned the right to wear the badge, but had not yet earned t pathfinders. He advised them to keep their newly learned skills well honed because if there was ever another conflict they would be sure to put their skills to the test.

Rowan & Martin's "Laugh-In" recalls 25 years

By Kate O'Hare
Tribune Media Services

"Sock it to me!"

If you've never heard that phrase, you likely lived in a cave from 1968 to 73 or are young enough to think that Rowan & Martin are accountants. If any of you fall into one of these deprived categories, NBC will help further your comedy education with "'Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In' 25th Anniversary," airing Sunday.

SPOTLIGHT

When it premiered in January 1968, "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In" provided a sorely needed comedy tonic for a country torn by racial strife, anti-war protests and the horror of Vietnam. The wry, unflappable duo of Dan Rowan and Dick Martin was the centerpiece of a show that borrowed heavily from pop culture, pop art and popular figures of the day.

Edited in a frenetic style, each one-hour episode was a blitzkrieg of sketches, one-liners, musical numbers and cameo appearances, all dressed up in the loudest colors that late '60s psychedelia could provide. Among its most memorable standbys was Lily Tomlin's telephone operator Ernestine (with extreme nasality and a killer '40s coif), Arte Johnson's curious German soldier ("Verrry interesting ..."), Henry Gibson's flower-child poetry, Jo Anne Worley's unique approach to singing, Judy Carne (the "Sock it to me!" girl), Ruth Buzzi (and her hair net) as everyone's favorite hostile old lady, and America's beloved ditzy blonde, a very young Goldie Hawn.

'I hate to admit it," says Dick Martin, "but 25 years ago we did it. Oh dear me, it doesn't seem that long. Oh my God, it was scary too, because we all got together for a press bash, and I hadn't seen some of the kids in a long time. I must say, they all look spectacular. They look marvelous. ... I kind of wish Dan could have been there."

Dan Rowan passed away in 1987, but several members of the show's original company turned up for a gathering that will form part of the two-hour special, along with a lot of clips. Appearing from the regular cast are Martin, Hawn, Buzzi, Tomlin, Carne, Gibson, Johnson, Chelsea Brown, Barbara Feldon, Alan Sues, Gary Owens, David Madden, Billy Barnes, Tiny Tim, Jeremy Lloyd and Barbara Sharma. Many stars also did guest appearances on the series. From that group appear James Garner, Milton Berle, Buddy Hackett, Tim Conway, Connie Stevens and Tony Curtis.

Even though "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In" went off the air almost 20 years ago, "Sock it to me," "You bet your bippy," "beautiful downtown Burbank" and "Here comes da judge" endure. Sometimes, that fact throws Martin a bit. "Isn't that amazing? I still go into a market and someone will say, 'Say goodnight, Dick.' You look at them to see how old they are."

What about a "Laugh-In" revival? "People say, 'Why don't you do the show again?' We couldn't afford Goldie, are you crazy? We feel like proud fathers."

President George Bush says goodbye to military

By Sydni Redmond
USAIC Public Affairs Office

The U.S. military said farewell recently to its commander in chief at a ceremony at Fort Myer, Va. In his address to the crowd, President George Bush discussed his views on the military's downsizing. He explained that the size of an organization, to include the U.S. military, is only one factor in the organization's ability to be effective. The former president stated that it is the quality of the United States military, not the quantity, that he is most proud of. Hear more of his farewell to the military next week, when USAIC TV will air an eight-minute segment of the president's goodbye address.

Also featured on USAIC TV next week will be a look at the skyrocketing number of attacks on foreigners in Germany. USAIC TV will show some of the dangers they face while stationed there.

Demonstrations have also increased in Germany causing a different kind of problem for soldiers. USAIC TV will air an interview with the provost marshal in Mannheim, Germany, who will explain what actions soldiers should take should they come upon a demonstration.

USAIC TV will also feature "Victory News," the news show of the 24th Infantry Division, and previews of movies showing on post. USAIC TV will also highlight music and news from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network and will show post events on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 32, 24 hours a day.

USAIC TV is expanding and changing to improve the quality of the show you receive. In an effort to better serve the military community, the staff at USAIC TV is open for suggestions and welcomes your ideas. For more information or to make suggestions, write or call the Broadcast Section of the Public Affairs Office, Infantry Hall, Room 602, 545-2201, Ext. 108.

Symphony presents concert Saturday

Columbus Symphony Orchestra

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra will perform a Masterpiece Concert under the direction of Maestro George Del Gobbo Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Three Arts Theatre.

The program will include Rossini's Overture to L'Italiana in Algeri, Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 featuring pianist Lee Luvisi and Mozart's Symphony No. 41. The Denver Post has described Luvisi as "...one of today's finest soloists with immaculate pedaling and trills, plenty of power when needed, and a poetic lightness of touch."

A preconcert lecture on the evening's music will be given by Del Gobbo at 7 p.m. This concert is sponsored by CB&T with additional funding provided by the Georgia Council for the Arts.

Luvisi's European engagements have included performances in London, Vienna, Berlin and other major cities.

In addition to his solo career, Luvisi regularly performs chamber music with many of the world's finest musicians. He has worked with the Julliard Quartet, Itzhak Perlman, Leonard Rose and Richard Stolzman among many others. He is also artist in residence at the University of Louisville School of Music where he is professor of piano.

The concert will open with Rossini's Overture from his comic opera, L'Italiana in Algeri" Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Minor, in which there is a great deal of interaction and dialogue between the solo piano and orchestra, will follow and the evening will close with Mozart's Symphony No. 41 in C Major.

Tickets range from $9 to $15 for adults and $5 to $8 for students and are available at the CSO office located in the lower level of the Barnett Bank on First Avenue or at the Three Arts Theatre the day of the performance.

Special discounts are available for groups of 10 or more. Ticket may also be purchased over the phone at 323-5059.

Museum displays abstract expressionist work

REVIEW

The Columbus Museum continues to offer fascinating and outstanding art and talented artists.

In 1992, The Richard Pousette-Dart Exhibit was on display. The exhibit was among many great paintings on display at the museum.

Dart, one of the founding members of the Abstract Expressionist Movement of the 1940s and '50s had spectacular paintings.

Quietly intense to explosive paintings that spread into universal states of mind and unconsciousness graced the museum on Wynnton Road.

His spectacular paintings and brilliant colors reminded one of the Alma Thomas Exhibit at the museum before the renovations of the late '80s.

In 1992, internationally renowned artist, Benny Andrews, and his father, George Andrews shared in the African-American artists' exhibit organized by the Memphis Brooks Museum of Art.

Benny, a long time advocate for the art of African Americans and women, founded the Black Emergency Cultural Coalition in exhibit.

And the "Masterworks of Americans" in exhibit, premiered a national debut from the Richard Pfeil, a Chicago inventor, collection in the Edward Swift Shorter Gallery.

And now in 1993, fun, music, romance, thrills and suspense await all at the Columbus Museum's Classic Film Series.

The Columbus Museum will present the conclusion of the series tonight.

The series features full-length movies beginning at 7 p.m. It is free and open to the public.

The films will be shown in the Museum's Patrick Theatre, and they feature many of the Hollywood legends from the current exhibit Starstruck: Images from Hollywood's Golden Age exhibition, which premiered Jan. 24.

The dazzling black-and-white photographs of Hollywood's brightest stars from the silent era to the mid-1950s, the exhibition will be on view through March 21.

"Starstruck highlights publicity photographs produced in Hollywood from 1910 to 1960," said Anne Timpano, the organizer of the exhibition. "They are a fascinating record of the imagination and skill of their producers, and reflect the pivotal events that have shaped our culture during this century."

Horses give gala performance

REVIEW

The Wonderful World of Horses, starring the world-famous royal Lippizzaner stallions, graced Columbus a recent show at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

The Lippizzaner stallions, (formerly horses of the nobility, dating back to the 16th century,), gave a gala command performance to an extremely receptive audience. It was a one-performance-only show and it was great. Four hundred years of talent and training were apparent.

The Lippizzaner stallions are world famous. Their rescue by Gen. George Patton from Czechoslovakia and the movie, "The Miracle of the White Stallions" helped make it so.

The Lippizzaner horse had been considered the aristocrat of the equestrian world and the aerialist with their spectacular leaps into the air.

They did not disappoint their audience. They were beautiful, they were nimble from the overture and introduction through the complicated and varied steps of the program.

The royal Lippizzaner stallion show featured as its stars the world famous royal Lippizzaner stallions, many of which were imported form Austria.

They were presented in the style and tradition of the world-renowned "Spanish Riding School."

Again they were beautiful and royally entertaining. Whether white Lippizzaner stallions from Vienna or those bred from stock in the United States from breeding stock that was imported from the Piber Stud of Austria, they were talented and well trained, from the nimble dances to the intricate and acrobatic maneuvers. They were magnificent.

Art show and sale opens Feb. 13

By Va Ebron
Special to The Bayonet

The Columbus Museum Guild's grand opening of "Flying Colors Art Show and Sale," a biannual fund-raiser will be open to the public Feb. 13 through 20.

All proceeds will be used by the guild to benefit the museum and its programs. The show features region and national artists. Paintings, sculpture and prints are in the show and offer a variety of techniques, sizes and prices.

"We are extremely excited that a couple of nationally known artists, Dorothy Dierks Harris and George Cress, will be represented," said Claude Scarbrough, chairman of this year's Flying Colors.

The week-long event will feature a number of programs including lunch and lectures, a cartoonist, and entertainment.

On March 6, the Columbus Museum will host a gardening symposium, the Art of the Southern Garden, which will focus on how to create and nourish a Southern garden.

The Legacy of Southern Craftsmanship, three exhibitions showcasing the work of Southern artists, was on view at the museum. The variety of art and diversity of the museum's art collection was presented.

Also on display was the Contemporary American Craft from the permanent collection. The African-American Folk and Decorative Arts, also from the permanent collection, showcased the works of artists from the southeast; including a chinaberry bed made by Horace King, a pine-burr quilt by Frances Chapman, a letter box made by John Thomas King, paintings by Mose Tolliver and Thomas Jefferson Flanagan.

Photographs from the permanent collection, An Other World: Contrast, Confluence and the Columbian Encounter, organized by the Columbus Museum to recognize the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' first voyage to the western hemisphere, illustrated the cultural difference between the Old World of Europe and the "Other World," otro mundo, as the new land was described by Columbus were all available for the tri-city's enjoyment.

The Columbus Museum was selected as one of the only three museums in Georgia to receive a general operating support grant from the Institute of Museum Services during fiscal year 1993.

For more information, contact Dannell M. Pitts at 649-0713.

The museum is now featuring Famous Columbusites: Home Grown and Long Gone!, a lunch and lecture series in the museum's Wright Community Room. The lectures begin promptly at 12:15 p.m. and last approximately 30 minutes. Coffee and tea are available at the museum. Admission is free.

Upcoming lecture subjects include:

Feb. 18 — Alma Thomas

Feb. 25 — Gertrude "Ma" Rainey

BLACK HISTORY QUIZ

Black Employment Program Committee

To increase the awareness of some of the contributions of African Americans, the Black Employment Program Committee has developed a series of four quizzes to be published each Friday during Black History Month. Test your knowledge of African Americans in history.

1. First Black Medal of Honor winner. Civil War hero assigned to Company C, 54th Massachusetts Colored Infantry.

In 1863, he was cited for valor during the Battle of Fort Wagner, S.C., where he carried the colors and led the charge to the parapet after the standard bearer had been hit by rifle fire. During this battle, he was severely wounded twice. For his actions, he was awarded the Medal of Honor.

2. He devoted his life to research projects connected primarily with Southern agriculture.

The products he derived from soybeans and peanuts revolutionized the economy of the South.

He was born a slave in Diamond Grove, Mo., in 1864. While working as a farm hand, he managed to obtain his high school education; he was the first black student at Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, and graduated from Iowa Agricultural College where he also obtained his master's degree.

He spent most of his life at Tuskegee Institute where he was buried in 1943.

3. Pioneer in open heart surgery. First to perform "open heart surgery" in the United States in 1893.

Born in 1856, he was orphaned and abandoned as a child. He worked as a roustabout on Great Lakes steamers and as a barber to put himself through Chicago Medical School where he graduated in 1883.

He founded Provident Hospital in 1893, and while working in the emergency ward, performed a procedure, that successfully re-attached a severed artery a fraction of an inch from the patient's heart.

4. Founder of the Black Freemasonry and one of America's first civil rights leaders.

Born in the British West Indies in 1735, he migrated to Boston as a young man and became an influential member of the black community there.

Many Masonic lodges celebrate Sept. 7 in honor of him.

5. One of the most prominent black journalists involved in the flourishing black press of the post Civil War era.

He was born in 1856, the son of a reconstruction politician in Florida. He attended Howard University for two years and moved to New York City in 1878.

In 1883, he founded the "New York Age" newspaper, which became the leading black journal of opinion in the United States.

Answers: 1. William H. Carney 2. George Washington Carver 3. Daniel Hale Williams 4. Prince Hall 5. T. Thomas Fortune

Benning students to go on parade

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Baton twirling and flag classes have begun at a local beginners class of the Georgia's Youth on Parade Program on Wednesdays at the Benning Hills Center, 101 Lafayette Drive, in Columbus.

Last year Fort Benning students took part in the Martin Luther King Holiday Parade and the Peach Bowl Parade, both in Atlanta, and the Columbus/Phenix City Bi-City Christmas Parade.

Students are also eligible to perform in other GYOP activities throughout Georgia and the rest of the country, such as Atlanta Hawks basketball games, Atlanta Falcons football games, the Orange Bowl Festival in Miami, Fla., and the International Baton and Flag Convention in Acapulco, Mexico, etc.

Beginning twirlers from ages 5 to 8 and 9 to 18 meet from 6:30 to 7:15 p.m., beginning and experienced flag students from 7:15 to 8 p.m., and experienced twirlers from 8 to 8:45 p.m., according to Terre Williams, class secretary.

A program based out of Atlanta, Georgia's Youth on Parade also offers training in modeling, poise and confidence at its weekly classes.

In addition to parades, the students of these Columbus Parks and Recreation Department classes will have the opportunity to appear in modeling festivals.

Williams said that there are opportunities for accelerated training, expense paid travel, performance experience and college scholarships. Funds for this come from instructional fees and fund raising activities.

Currently, the GYOP Program is considering three trips including performances for outstanding students during the spring and summer. These include the Kentucky Derby in Louisville, Ky., the National Baton and Flag Twirling Convention in Michigan and the Miss America Pageant and Parade in Atlantic City, N.J.

Connie Bridges/Special to The Bayonet

Janan Dowell (left), 10, Danerys Encarnacion, 12, Misti Williams, 11, and Teddi Greaves, 11, were recently selected to travel with the Georgia Youth on Parade's flag and baton corps.

Army Cares About People!

Train to be financially fit, debt free

Editor's note: This is the first of a series of articles covering financial issues. Future articles will deal with topics including car purchasing, savings plans, planning for retirement and more.

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

You may be the most sharply creased, highly polished, squared-away soldier the Army has ever seen; but, if your finances are in trouble, so are you.

According to Fort Benning Command Sgt. Maj. William H. Acebes, soldiers often don't realize the career risks that can go along with poor financial planning.

Bankruptcy, especially, can put serious obstacles in a soldier's career path, said Acebes. It can affect security clearances and consideration for promotion.

"Noncommissioned officers, especially," said Acebes, "need to remember that leaders are counselors and advisers. It's hard to advise soldiers on finances if yours are in disarray."

"A lot of soldiers think that bankruptcy will solve all their problems," said Acebes. "They get in debt over their heads and don't know what to do. But it's really not something you want to get into if you can avoid it."

There are agencies on post to help soldiers and family members cope with consumer problems, Acebes said, adding that bankruptcy can usually be avoided with a little help.

Ann Pratcher, manager of the Consumer Affairs and Financial Assistance Program operated by Army Community Services, works with financial counselors in her office to help clients manage their debt.

"When someone comes in and wants to file bankruptcy," said Pratcher, "my first answer is, 'don't.'"

Pratcher explained that there are two types of personal bankruptcy, Chapter 7 and Chapter 13. Chapter 13, she said, involves working out a payment plan through the court, while with Chapter 7, the filer "puts his assets on the table" to discharge his debts. In Chapter 7, the filer's property is liquidated and the proceeds divided among the creditors by the court.

Assistance is available, in some cases, from the Staff Judge Advocate's Office in filing Chapter 7 bankruptcy.

"My opinion," said Pratcher, "is that if you have enough resources to file Chapter 13, you have enough to go into a debt management program.

"Chapter 7 is the only bankruptcy that I think makes some semblance of sense," she continued, "and then only as an absolute last resort and if you have no other options."

"You don't want to go into Chapter 7 if you own or are purchasing a home — you could lose it. This is a total liquidation of assets — you may, in some cases, be able to retain an asset, but the payments remain."

Pratcher recommends a debt management program to most clients, she said. "You sit down with a financial counselor, who will help determine your income, review your needs for living expenses and work with what's left.

> "When someone comes in and wants to file bankruptcy, my first answer is don't.'
>
> — Ann Pratcher
> Consumer Affairs
> and Financial Assistance

"We look at what money is available for repayment and negotiate with creditors to determine payments that they'll accept," Pratcher said.

She added that the financial counselor handling the case also keeps in touch with creditors to monitor the program.

"Some of our cases are joint programs with the Consumer Credit Counseling Service at the Family Counseling Center in Columbus," said Pratcher. "They offer debt management.

"We work with 300 to 400 cases a year in the debt management program," she said. "The average debt load is $15,000 to $30,000, although we've had clients with as little as $3,000 debt and others with as much as $150,000."

"The length of the program is usually 36 months," said Pratcher, "though that varies. Participation in the program does not stay on your credit record like bankruptcy does.

"Use of credit is suspended while you're in the program," she said, "and that's what keeps some people out — they don't want to give up the credit cards. When you complete the program, though, the financial counselor will work with you to re-establish credit and use it effectively."

Pratcher said the factors that bring people into a debt management program vary. "It could be the unemployment of a spouse, which is common with a military lifestyle. It could be the serious illness of a spouse, child or parent. We had a client stationed in Korea who made three emergency trips home in a year, and lost both a parent and a child."

Pratcher said some of the other factors are people living beyond their means or not maximizing the use of their money.

"Ninety percent of our clients are not irresponsible," she said, "They just have never learned to budget. They may not even know what their income is.

"If you live paycheck to paycheck without knowing the big picture, you can get into trouble," Pratcher said. "It's important to read your leave and earnings statement, and pay attention to any changes that are made."

"If you don't know where you're going, any road will get you there," she said. "You have to know what your situation is before you can manage it effectively."

Next week: When bankruptcy is your only option — how does it work, what help can you get and what are the financial consequences.

Parents should baby their children's infant teeth

U.S. Army Dental Activity

New parents may not realize the importance of caring for their infant's primary teeth. However, according to Lt. Col. Andrew Chandler, chief, Pediatric Dentistry, Fort Benning Dental Activity, serious tooth decay may develop by a child's first birthday.

Even though the primary teeth are replaced by permanent ones, the primary teeth are critical for proper chewing, speaking and appearance. They also reserve space in the jaw for the permanent teeth.

Baby bottle tooth decay is a condition that can destroy the primary teeth of an infant or young child. It can develop when a baby constantly receives a bottle with juice, formula, milk or sweetened liquids as a pacifier or comforter, especially when the child is allowed to fall asleep with a bottle. In this case, the teeth most likely to be damaged are the upper front teeth, but other teeth may be affected.

Bacteria are present in a thin film of plaque that constantly forms on the teeth. The bacteria use sugar as an energy source. In this way, bacteria produce acids that attack tooth enamel. Lengthy exposure to sugary liquids can result in acids attacking the child's tooth for up to 20 minutes.

All types of sugars incuuding those found in milk, formula and juices can cause plaque bacteria to produce decay-causing acids. The important factors are the length of time the child's teeth are exposed to the acids and how often the exposures take place.

The following steps can be taken to protect the infant's teeth:

• After each feeding, wipe the child's teeth and gums with a damp washcloth or gauze pad to remove plaque. Begin brushing the child's teeth as soon as the first tooth erupts (around six months). Continue cleaning the gums in areas that remain toothless. Flossing should begin when all primary teeth have erupted, usually by age 2 to 2 1/2.

• Never allow an infant to fall asleep with a bottle of milk, formula or juices. If your child needs a comforter between regular feedings, at night or during naps, fill a nursing bottle with cool water or give the child a clean pacifier (one that is recommended by a dentist or pediatrician).

• Avoid filling a nursing bottle with sweetened liquids.

• Make sure your child gets the fluoride needed for decay-resistant teeth.

• Chandler recommends beginning a child's regular dental checkups at age 1.

One way to ensure that your child gets on the path to a healthy smile, is for service members to join the Delta Dependent Dental Plan. According to Col. Gene Withrow, commander, Fort Benning Dental Activity, dental care for family members will become more and more limited as the Dental Corps is downsized.

Post prepares for ACOE team

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

How well does Fort Benning serve the needs of its soldiers and civilians?

The Army Communities of Excellence team will attempt to answer that question during an intensive, four-day evaluation that begins Tuesday.

According to Sarah McLaney, post ACOE coordinator, the visit is the final phase of the ACOE Best Army Installation in the World Competition.

"We really want to give a special welcome to the team," said McLaney. "We are happy they are here and are looking forward to showing them all the great things that Fort Benning has accomplished."

Fort Benning is one of 13 Army installations worldwide that will vie for the Army's Commander-in-Chief Award, an honor that includes a cash award of $1.5 million. However, if the post does not win the CINC award, it will still be eligible to compete against Fort Sill, Okla., and Fort Lewis, Wash., for the Best Large Installation Award worth $1 million.

The runner up of that category will receive $250,000, while the post placing third will receive $100,000.

"Any way you look at it, we are winners already, even if we don't take any more honors," said Dave Flo, director of Resource Management. "We are one of the top three large Army installations, and that's an accomplishment in itself." Large installations are defined as those having populations of 30,000 or more.

Fort Benning became eligible for the final phase of the competition after taking best large installation in Training and Doctrine Command in July. After winning at the TRADOC level, the post submitted a nomination packet to the Department of the Army and was chosen as one of 13 Army posts worldwide to continue to the last phase.

The winner will be chosen based on the results of visits to each of the posts by the ACOE team. The team visiting Fort Benning will consist of 11 members, plus an observer from TRADOC Head-quarters, and it will be led by Col.

Excellence breakfast is Thursday at 7:45 a.m.

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning's Excellence Appreciation Day breakfast will be Thursday from 7:45 to 9 a.m. at the Fort Benning Officers' Club Supper Club.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White will host the breakfast.

The breakfast will recognize the civilian and military personnel who have contributed to making Fort Benning a community of excellence.

Selection of personnel has been determined by commanders, directors and principal staff officers.

Tickets for the breakfast are $4 per person and will be available in the basement of the Parrish Building, Building 66.

For more information, call Anne Pallotta at 545-2936 or Patricia Burch at 545-1713.

Program reduces injuries

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning received recognition for leading the way with an innovative program to reduce the number of civilian injuries on post.

Chief of Staff Col. Burnet R. Quick presented the Civilian Injury Reduction Team with an Army Communities of Excellence award during a meeting held Feb. 5. The plaque was accepted by CIRT team leader Jim Ozley on behalf of the entire team.

The CIRT also received praise from William Walker, deputy assistant secretary of the Army, during a visit to the post in January. As a result of his visit, the CIRT program will be adopted Armywide, said Ozley.

The CIRT was established in 1991 with the goal of reducing the post's civilian injuries. By fiscal 1991, civilian injuries were reduced by 43 percent, Ozley said. Training and Doctrine Command's goal was only 2 percent reduction annually, he added.

Ozley said that the team owes its success to Total Army Quality principles and strong command support.

"Without those two ingredients you can't have a successful program," Ozley said. "This program is truly a frontier program, and without the tremendous help of Mary Burt, post TAQ coordinator, who showed us how to create an efficient process action team, we never could have done it."

The 35-member team is made up of one representative from each directorate. Members are not paid or rated for their participation on the team, Ozley said.

Team members are formed into subteams depending on their areas

Fort Benning is committed to excellence

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning will have plenty of opportunities to toot its own horn when the Army Communities of Excellence Team begins its evaluation Tuesday.

According to Sarah McLaney, post ACOE coordinator, the tune will be a lively one.

"Fort Benning has so much to be proud of," she said. "This is the chance for everyone on post to show the team what a great installation this is and how much we have improved."

McLaney added that post personnel should think of the visit not as an inspection, but as a chance to share with the team examples of their commitments to excellence.

"This is as much a celebration as an evaluation," she said. "The team is here to discover by being shown, not to search and inspect everything on post."

Some of the many examples of excellence on post that were cited in the nomination packet that was submitted to the Department of the Army by Fort Benning include:

• A commitment to the civilian communities of Columbus and Phenix City that included helping Columbus procure 18 Latin American flags for display in one of the entrance ways built for the Columbus Gateways Project and the establishment of the Doughboy Ambassadors Program, by which newly assigned commanders are welcomed downtown and Columbus officials are invited to special functions on post.

• A commitment to Total Army Quality principles that has included the conducting of TAQ training for more than 8,500 military and civilian personnel, the establishment of a state-of-the art training center dedicated to TAQ and civilian leader development training, the formation of process action teams to study and improve post processes, and the establishment of post corporate membership in the Columbus Quality Council.

• The development of programs and activities to promote a greater understanding of the lessons, technological contributions and history of World War II that led the Department of Defense to designate the tri-community as a World War II commemorative community.

• A dedication to outstanding customer service through facilities improvement that has included the expansion of the U-Do-It program, refurbishment of the School of the Americas, the construction and dedication of Meloy Hall, Building 6, the renovation of the Mini Mall shoppette and other Army and Air Force Exchange Service facilities, the development of a $2.8 million project to construct two child development centers that will accommodate approximately 300 children, and planning for 14 barracks renewal projects for fiscal 1994.

• A commitment to providing quality recreation for post personnel that has included the construction of a multi-purpose outdoor recreational facility at Uchee Creek with a campground, picnic area and marina.

• The development of a Family Unit Network Center, a one-stop location where newly arriving spouses can learn about the services available to them.

• The development of a customer feedback system that has included the conduct of a comprehensive survey of post personnel by the Directorate of Community Activities to determine their customers' wants and needs, the development of the Field Officer of the Day Program, by which the FOD travels around post and asks individual soldiers questions about the command climate and the quality of life on post, and the Mystery Shopper Program that is used to evaluate and reward outstanding customer service.

These are just a few of the many examples cited in the packet.

"I envision Fort Benning providing a multitude of diverse services to our soldiers, family members, civilians and retirees in an environment that is appealing to the eye, professional in manner, and where people are treated with dignity and respect," said Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general. "We constantly strive to make Fort Benning a community where people enjoy working, living and playing — a place that attracts and retains the very best."

OPERATION RESTORE HOPE

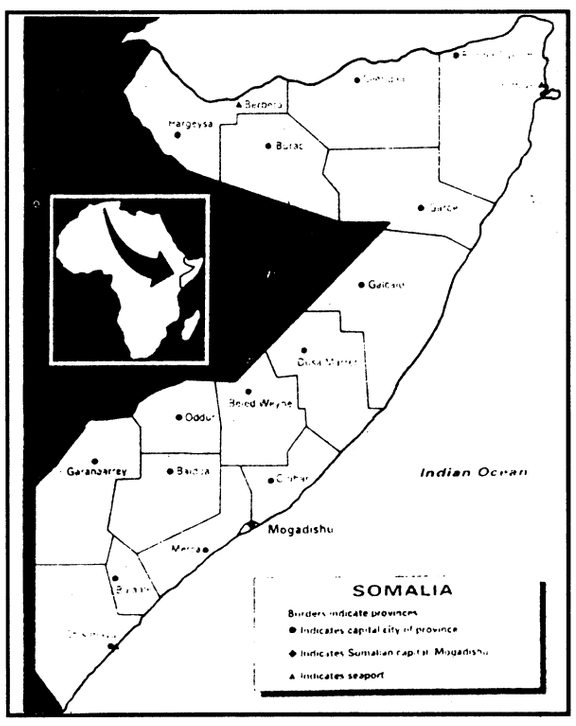
Greetings from Mogadishu to our families and friends.

The Jan. 28 safe arrival of 290 more soldiers from Fort Benning completed the airflow of our personnel to Somalia. They all looked great as they stepped off the plane ready and anxious to do their part in the important peacemaking and humanitarian relief mission.

All deploying subordinate 36th Engineer Group units are now in position, upgrading the roads critical for food distribution, and constructing base camps for U.S. and U.N. coalition security forces.

The relief organizations and Somali elders are very enthusiastic and supportive of the work we are doing.

Because of the cut between several major cities, base-camp living conditions are steadily improving throughout our assigned sector as a direct result of hard-working, talented engineers.



Baidoa base

Some 245 kilometers north to northwest of Mogadishu, Task Force 43rd has established its headquarters at the airfield just outside Baidoa.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Larry Davis, it consists of the 43rd's Headquarters Company, Companies A and B and the 642nd Combat Support Element from Fort Drum, N.Y.

At the Baidoa base camp, Command Sgt. Maj. Larence Maxwell has performed miracles with rock-lined, gravel-covered walkways that provide dirt and mud (when it rains) and frees travel to and from tents, dining facilities, latrines and showers.

Stand-up eating tables in the mess tent make T-rations a little more enjoyable. The Task Force's Australian neighbors in Baidoa share in the mess and maintenance operations and provide security for the combined force there.

The Australians, who are quick to greet you with a "Good day, Mate," are great partners in this worthy cause.

Headquarters and Support Company, under Capt. Johnnie Walker, is doing a phenomenal job providing heavy engineer equipment and maintenance support to keep road construction operations on schedule.

Huge bulldozers, 20-ton dump trucks and concrete mobile trucks are dispatched to wherever they are needed most. Potholed asphalt roads and overgrown roadway shoulders are rapidly disappearing as Headquarters Support Company soldiers attack the work for which they are best equipped.

Working in Wajiid

Alpha Company, 43rd has pushed 100 kilometers northwest of Baidoa to Wajiid, a modest Somali town with very friendly people.

The company quickly established itself through a civic-action project that improved the accessibility and usefulness of three water welis in the town. En route to Wajiid, the company transformed a rock-rutted, almost impassable trail into a two-lane, 30 to 35 mph road.

Soldiers have built a base camp with all the comforts of home: sleep tents, showers, latrines and even a makeshift laundry, using a small concrete mixer.

The French Foreign Legion, also in Wajiid, has proved to be a valued coalition partner, offering Alpha Company supplementary medical, helicopter and security support.

Their field rations are reportedly a welcome change to several days of Meals Ready to Eat. Wonder if the French think they are getting the better part of the ration-exchange deal?

Bravo in Bardera

Lead elements of the 43rd's Bravo Company have now reached Bardera, 200 kilometers west of Baidoa. The trip between Baidoa and Bardera is like an African safari at Army expense, with plentiful wildlife along the way, to include baboons, boars, gazelles and small deer.

Just outside Baidoa, Bravo Company's earthmovers have already transformed 22 kilometers of badly potholed road into a smooth two-lane, 35 mph running surface.

At Bardera, the vertical platoons will have their hands full with a major base camp to be constructed for long-term housing and operational needs of a substantial U.N. coalition force.

Back in Mogadishu, the contingent from the 608th Ordnance Company has assumed responsibility from the Marines for the ammunition supply point. The supply point is at the end of the airfield, a busy place both night and day.

It is comforting to know the same unit that supported the engineer force so well at Fort Benning is also here to meet our needs in Somalia.

Speaking of great support, 1st Lt. John Kelly and his platoon from the 533rd Transportation Company have literally moved our military van with repair parts, tent material and construction materials all over the country.

They are the mission-focused, hard-charging nucleus of what we call "team haul," which shuttles supplies and equipment to the engineer force wherever they are needed most.

Finally, Task Force Durham continues to make great progress. Charlie Company, 43rd has made the road along the coast from Mogadishu to Chisimayu passable for 30 to 35 mph traffic. The 63rd Combat Support Element has pushed 17 kilometers north of Jilib in their effort to build a new road to Bardera.

With your continued support, cards, letters and care packages, we will certainly succeed.

Our objective remains to complete our current missions before the March rainy season begins. Additional missions are always possible, and a residual stay-behind engineer force of some kind is likely.

As the situation develops, I will keep you fully informed. Rest assured we are all focused on the safe and successful completion of our missions and a speedy return of the group to Fort Benning.

Steer with safety on President's Day

Fort Benning personnel will have an extended weekend this weekend to celebrate President's Day.

Long weekends increase the potential for serious injury or death in traffic accidents.

However, my goal for Fort Benning is to be accident free.

The key to this prevention effort is the involvement of first-line leaders. They know their personnel and can make safety briefings effective. Leaders will emphasize the following with their personnel:

- Consider commercial transportation instead of driving.
- Check the car for sufficient tire tread, operational lights, good windshield wipers and nonleaking exhaust system.
- Check the weather forecast for the area to be traveled in.
- Take frequent breaks (at least every two hours) on long trips.

- Drive defensively and be sober and alert.
- Wear seat belts.

I wish all personnel, military and civilian, a safe and enjoyable holiday.

Benning TV show under way

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

You can catch up on the latest post and Armywide news by tuning in to "Fort Benning Today."

There are two different versions of the 3 1/2-minute show that can be seen every week on WLTZ Channel 38 (Channel 5 on post Cable and Channel 8 off post) on Monday mornings. The first version airs at 7:26 and 8:26 a.m. and the second version airs at 7:56 and 8:56 a.m.

According to Sgt. Sydni Redmond, program anchor, a 30-minute version is produced for air on U.S. Army Infantry Center TV Channel 32.

Program content is determined by the Public Affairs Office, but the show is filmed at the facilities of WLTZ Channel 38, the local NBC affiliate station.

WLTZ News Director Borden Black said that the station is happy to be filming and airing the show.

"We know from past experience that the show is a quality product," she said. "We are happy to film it and maintain our good relationship with Fort Benning.

"There is a large population of military personnel, including retirees, off post who will benefit from the program," she added. "This is a great way for them to keep up on Army news and get a lot of news that they might not get from other sources."

Redmond said that with Fort Benning's many media outlets post personnel should be some of the best informed.

"Soldiers and civilians on post now have three excellent ways to keep informed — television, newspaper and radio," she said. "These not only provide excellent coverage of post activities, but of Army news worldwide."

Redmond encouraged units on post that think they have newsworthy items for consideration to be aired on "Fort Benning Today" to contact her or Paula J. Randall, command information officer, at 545-2201.

The Public Affairs Office is also looking for personnel who are interested in working for the post television station. Either Redmond or Randall can be contacted for more information or to set up an interview.

ACOE:

Tom White, chief of the ACOE Office. The team members are subject matter experts in the 14 areas that will be evaluated, McLaney said.

Areas to be evaluated will include strategic planning for services and facilities, public affairs, engineer services and facilities, information management and facilities, housing services and facilities, military personnel services and facilities, civilian personnel and equal employment services and facilities, and morale, welfare and recreation and family support services and facilities.

Also evaluated will be resource management and financial services and facilities, chaplain services and facilities, medical and dental services and facilities, legal assistance services and facilities and Army and Air Force Exchange Services and facilities.

"Services is the key word when it comes to ACOE," said Flo. "ACOE is not about who has the prettiest flower beds. The real criterion is what kind of services are post personnel receiving. They should get service with a smile and have their needs met in an efficient and timely manner. That's what the ACOE team will be looking at."

Both Flo and McLaney felt confident about Fort Benning's prospects of taking top honors.

"The attitude of the post's soldiers and civilians is super," Flo said. "We truly believe that we provide the best services."

"You can really feel the excitement around post as the ACOE team's visit approaches," McLaney said. "Fort Benning personnel are working together as one big team and this is one of our greatest assets. When things need to be accomplished, we put our heads together and get it done."

Chief of Staff Col. Burnet R. Quick shared in the excitement.

"The commanding general and I want to convey our appreciation to all the fine members of this installation for your untiring support and superb efforts in reaching this milestone," he said.

"Everyone needs to continue to adhere to Total Army Quality goals and Community of Excellence plans as we accept the challenge to be named as the Best Army Installation in the world," Quick continued.

McLaney said that the competition winners will probably be announced some time in April. The award ceremony will be May 20 at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Jonathan J. Hunt
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q: I am a married noncommissioned officer with two sons. I am contemplating a legal separation from my wife. What are my responsibilities to my wife and children during a separation?

A: You should visit a Judge Advocate General lawyer in order to determine the exact amount of your financial support obligation to your wife and two children.

Rates may vary during the entire process, for example, you and your wife may revise an earlier agreement.

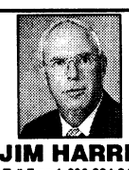
The following paragraphs offer a rough sketch of payment plans soldiers would likely see.

Perhaps you and your wife will separate and she will take the two children to an off-post apartment. If neither spouse has any time or desire to agree on the proper support payments, then under Army regulations, you must pay your wife the amount of basic allowance for quarters at the "with dependents rate" for the support of the family.

You must continue to pay this amount even if you stop drawing BAQ because this minimum amount cannot be altered except by later agreement between the two spouses or by a court order.

If the housing situation were reversed and you left your wife and children in on-post housing and moved to an off-post apartment, you would owe a smaller amount — your BAQ at the "without dependents rate."

During a legal separation, you must never draw BAQ for your family members and later decide to keep it for yourself. If you draw BAQ, you should use all of it for that purpose.



In time, couples eventually may discuss more issues than merely BAQ support. They may wish to draft a verbal or written agreement to stabilize the marriage until the couple can work through their differences.

For those couples who wish help with a written separation agreement, the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate can provide both the husband and wife with their own separate lawyer (one for each spouse).

A separation agreement cannot save all marriages heading for divorce. These marriages often end up in the local divorce court.

For more information or to set up an appointment for a legal separation agreement, call the Legal Assistance Office at 545-3281 or 545-3282.

The Criminal Investigation Division is looking for two persons suspected of kidnap, rape, robbery and sodomy.

One suspect is white and in his early to mid-20s; 170 to 180 pounds; medium build; blond with a "high and tight" haircut; fair complexion; and approximately 5 feet, 6 to 7 inches tall.

The other suspect is white and in his mid-20s; about 150 pounds; 5 feet, 6 inches; stocky build; brown hair with a "high and tight" haircut; blue or hazel eyes; and a fair complexion.

A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the identity, apprehension and subsequent conviction of these individuals.

Any information should be provided to the Fort Benning Military Police at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the Criminal Investigation Division at 545-2414 or 545-7905.

Kasserine Pass demo today

A World War II 50th anniversary commemoration of Kasserine Pass, America's first battle in Tunisia, will be today at the National Infantry Museum auditorium.

Events will include presentations, a living history demonstration, and a war game, "Battle for the Pass."

The World War II living history demonstration will be presented by the National Military Historical Association and "Battle for the Pass" by the Historical Miniatures Gaming Society.

INJURIES: Focus on prevention

of expertise to conduct annual safety evaluations of the various directorates.

"We are not in the business of telling commanders or directors what to do, and we are not here to fix blame on anyone," said Ozley. "We provide the commander or director with our observations and recommendations. The team members simply serve as private safety consultants."

The team has also established numerous other services and programs including a safety questionnaire, a safety film, a new employee orientation course, a system for work order tracking, a basic supervisors course, a light duty program and a team bulletin.

Ozley said that the team members are proud of the phenomenal success of the program.

"We are doing tremendous things to help the post's budget and its personnel," he said. "Every injury we prevent means that the cost is prevented as well, and we are at the same time lessening the suffering that injury causes."

Saxophonist Bill Fry gives Patch School first-grader Michael Parker a try at playing his wind jammer, while Torey Corsette, Trey Willis and Virginia Polley watch.

Saxophonist teaches students

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

An alto saxophone, a soprano saxophone and a wind jammer were the instruments that saxophonist Dr. Bill Fry demonstrated and entertained Fort Benning School students with this past week.

Fry performed at all Fort Benning schools as part of the fine arts concerts series, sponsored by the Enlisted Wives' Club. The director of bands and saxophone at Columbus College, he was accompanied by Rexford Whiddon, also of Columbus College, on the piano.

With the alto saxophone, he performed the 1960s instrumental piece, "Take Five."

Fry also noted that contemporary saxophonist, Kenny G., plays the soprano saxophone. Then he performed "On Broadway" with this instrument.

It was the wind jammer, a relatively new instrument, that caught the attention of many of the children as he played a rap piece with it. He said that it was a saxophonist's opportunity to "have fun with amplifiers" as guitarists have had for some time.

This concert was the second in a series of fine arts concerts that will be presented in the Fort Benning Schools.

The series is in its ninth consecutive year. Designed to provide children with a quality artistic experience while teaching them appropriate concert behavior, the programs feature guest artists who are professional musicians.

Airline ticket booth opens on post

Transportation Division

The Personnel Movements Section of the Transportation Division, Building 2627, has opened an airline ticket booth enabling people to drive by and pick up their airline tickets.

Personnel going on temporary duty or making a permanent change of station can drop off orders and can pick up tickets. Reservations must still be made through SatoTravel at 687-4900.

Soldiers must fax one copy of the orders to the Personnel Movements Office. The fax number is 685-0318. Tickets will be ready one day prior to the departure day.

Hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. The office is closed Tuesdays.

When customers come in to pick up their tickets, they must have two more copies of the orders to receive the tickets. There is also a drop-off box at the drive-by booth. Customers can drop off three copies of their orders anytime.

A SatoTravel representative will be available from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. to handle credit card leisure travel tickets. Reservations must be made in advance and credit card information and date of pick-up given to SatoTravel, so the tickets can be ready at the drive-by window.

STD Clinic gets new name

Martin Army Community Hospital

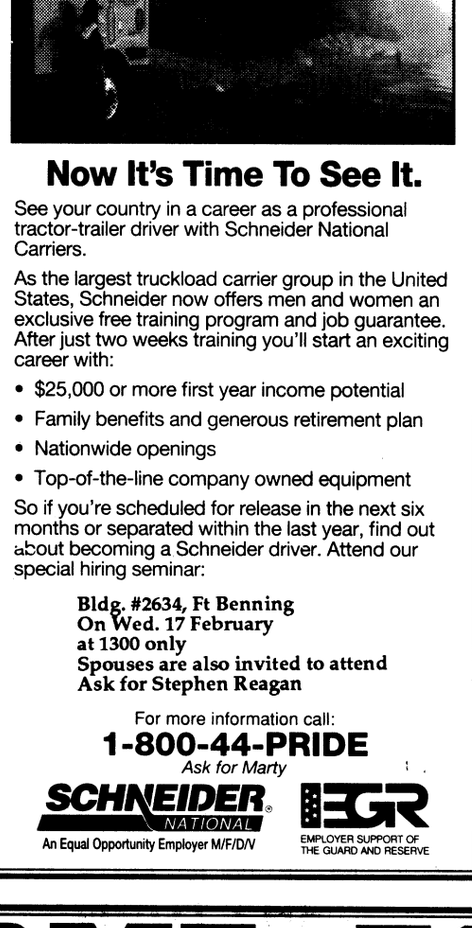
There's a new clinic in town, but it isn't really new. Just different. It's located in Soldiers' Plaza on Main Post, on the first floor of Building 2616.

It's the improved, modernized version of the old Sexually Transmitted Disease Clinic. Now it will be known as the Preventive Medicine Clinic.

The clinic is part of the Preventive Medicine Service of Martin Army Community Hospital. It plays a vital role in the maintenance of good health and providing up-to-date information on a variety of health issues, according to Lutz Aguirre, a physician assistant in charge of the clinic.

"The purpose of the clinic is to provide services for patients in a variety of areas," Aguirre said. "Patients and clients are referred or walk in for information, counseling, testing, consultation, examination and follow-up visits. Also, interviews are done to gather statistical information, monitor disease outbreaks or trends and to prevent the spread of communicable diseases."

Epidemiology, the study of disease trends, is an important part of the clinic's work, Aguirre said. A wide variety of diseases can be seen, including: animal bites related to rabies exposure, tick bites related to Lyme Disease, human immunodeficiency virus /acquired immune deficiency syndrome evaluation and consultations, hepatitis, respiratory infections, traveler's diseases and sexually transmitted diseases. Community members need to be aware of the services provided by this clinic, Aguirre said.



"Prevention is the key to good health," Aguirre said. "If that fails, modern medicine can help out most of the time. But it is much better to avoid disease than to have to treat it."

Preventive Medicine Clinic Hours

Monday, Tuesday and Friday mornings:
8 a.m. to noon: Male patients, referrals or walk-ins
Thursdays:
8 a.m. to noon: Genital Wart Clinic, male patients
Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons (By appointment only):
1 to 4 p.m.: Referrals for female patients (On Thursdays, Wart Clinic and obstetric cases have priority)
On Friday afternoons, only emergencies will be seen with prior coordination from referring clinics or departments.

For information or assistance call: 545-1900 or 545-1448.

Two of the most important things to look for when buying a new car.

They're probably two things you don't think about when you're car shopping: What it will cost to insure and what it will cost to repair. Call GEICO and the answer can be — surprisingly little.

First, there's GEICO Auto Insurance. If you're a good driver, you've probably always known GEICO can help save you money on car insurance. In fact, we may be able to make your buying decision easier by providing an estimate of your premium before you buy.

Second, there's GEICO Mechanical Breakdown Insurance. This policy provides you extended service protection for your new car, so you'll never have to pay more than $25 per covered repair. And it costs up to 50% less than many car dealers' extended warranties. Best of all, you can choose any licensed repair facility, nationwide.

For over 55 years, GEICO has provided the military with special services and savings on auto insurance. Now, with Mechanical Breakdown Insurance, we're pleased to offer the military another money-saving benefit.

Get the details on two ways to save money when buying your new car. Call GEICO, today.

Killer Cats scratch Delta Dogs

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

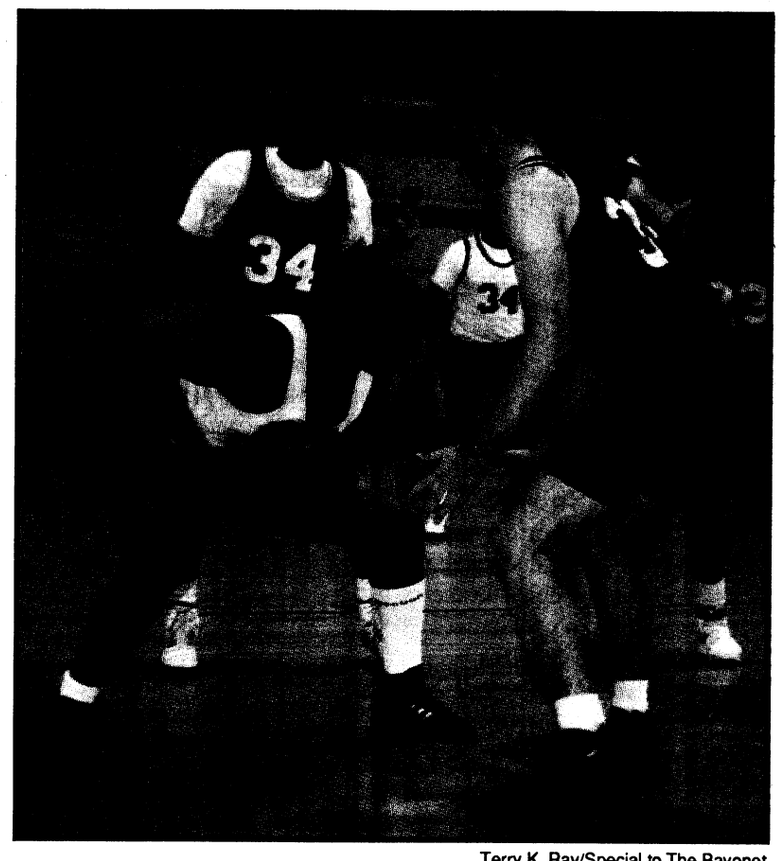
The regular season for intramural basketball is officially over. With the final week of pounding the hardcourt gone by the wayside, teams are now preparing for the playoffs, which are set to begin Tuesday at Harmony Church Field House, Audie Murphy Fitness Center, Briant Wells Field House and Santiago Fitness Center.

Two games were played Monday night at Harmony Church Field House between units of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division.

Company D, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment (Delta Dogs) vs. Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt. (Headhunters).

The Dogs fell prey to the Headhunters' defense, 53-29. A close first half at 23 to 20 turned into a massacre midway through the final period with the Headhunters' offense scoring on almost every possession.

The Dogs offense went south early in the second half withering under a stifling Headhunter defense that gave up only nine points in the second half.



The Headhunters were led in scoring by Scott Holden with 11 points and Tyrone Walton with 10. Teammates Jeff McCowan and Travis Scott also added to the scoring totals for the Headhunters with nine and eight points each.

Anthony Taylor was the only bright spot for the Dogs scoring 17 of the Dogs' 29 points. Donald Wing and War Mobley tallied the rest of the points for the Dogs with six points each.

Co. B, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt. (Killer Cats) vs. Co. D, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt. (Delta Dogs).

The Dogs went down to their second defeat of the night, falling to the Killer Cats 56-37.

The Dogs were simply run down by the Killer Cats' full-court style of play. The Dogs could only muster six players for both games and finally fell to the hounding pressure put on by the Cats.

At the end of the first half, the Cats were up 24-14. The second half belonged to the Killer Cats defense, which in turn keyed their offense.

Turnovers also helped put the dogs to sleep in the second half, allowing the Cats numerous break-away baskets. With under four minutes to play, the Cats had built a 47-29 lead and were able to coast through garbage time.

Anthony Murray scored 13 points and Lenard Calmes hit for 10 to break double digits for the Cats. Falcon Webber chipped in nine points with teammate Ken Davison adding seven more for the Killer Cats' offense.

Mobley topped the scoring for the Dogs with 14 points. Robert Johnson and Anthony Taylor each hit for six points to round out the scoring for the Dogs.

Rangers celebrate unit's birthday

HHC, 75th soldiers take to the field to compete in varied sporting events

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 75th Ranger Regiment turned 9 years old Wednesday.

The unit celebrated its birthday in the ranger way with sporting competitions at Sergeant Major Field ranging from pugil stick to weightlifting.

In shooting competition, Staff Sgt. Bruce Hayes of the Ranger Indoctrination Program captured the M-16A2 rifle competition.

The M-9 9mm pistol competition went to Chief Warrant Officer 2 Marc Zieder with Maj. Chuck Wentworth of the Marine Corps taking second place.

The pugil stick title went to Spc. Ernesto Velazquez with Staff Sgt. Joseph Cain placing second.

In the weightlifting competition, Capt. Jeff Cain had the heaviest lift with 375 pounds.

In the 176- to 195-pound class, Sgt. 1st Class Clement Green placed first. Capt. Tom Guthrie captured first place in the 157- to 175-pound class, and in the lightweight division, Sgt. 1st Class Martin Miller took top honors.

In team competition, the RIP-S-2 team dominated the volleyball and soccer events.

Fish size should dictate tactics

Outboard Marine Corporation

Even though there may be only two inches of difference between a 12-inch bass and a 14-inch bass, it takes vastly different techniques to catch them.

That's the opinion of professional tournament fisherman Larry Nixon, winner of more than $1 million in prize money and an active member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff.

"The 14-inch bass are much harder to catch," explains Nixon, "and in many cases, you don't even find them in the same places you find the smaller fish. When you're trying to catch a limit of 14-inch bass, it usually takes a lot longer than for a limit of 12-inch bass."

These lengths are the two most common minimum size regulations the pros encounter on the different lakes where they compete.

States most often impose the larger 14-inch size limit to protect bass for one additional year, which usually allows them to grow to maturity and spawn.

"When I'm on a lake with the larger size limit, I usually change to larger lures," continues Nixon, "and I'll start fishing the same water I would for smaller bass and just see what I catch.

"If I catch nothing but undersized bass, I have to assume the larger bass are not using the same cover or structure, so I change tactics. I'll either start fishing deeper water, or at times, even fish more shallow."

The larger bass grow, said Nixon, the closer they seem to stay to dropoffs and breaklines. Even though the larger bass may actually be in very shallow water, they are usually closer to deeper water than the smaller bass.

"It may take a day or more to completely determine this," acknowledged Nixon, "which is why it really is important to study not only the size of the bass you're catching, but the type of water they're using.

"A lot of tournament fishermen keep catching smaller 12-inch bass hour after hour, believing a larger one will eventually hit, but if you don't pick up more than an occasional 14-inch bass, you're really wasting your time in a tournament.

"You can't take those little fish to the weigh-in scales."

The larger lures Nixon uses include heavier spinnerbaits with larger blades, jigs with bulkier trailers, longer plastic worms and topwater lures that create a lot of water movement.

"Big bass hit by reflex just like smaller bass, said Nixon, "but it often takes more action and commotion to generate that strike. The smaller bass just don't hit the larger lures, either, so sometimes it's a long time between strikes.

"Most fishermen don't realize there is so much difference between bass just two inches apart in size, but there is."

Georgians to participate in multiple sclerosis walk

National Multiple Sclerosis Society

ATLANTA, Ga. — At nine sites in Georgia, including Atlanta, Augusta, Columbus, Macon and Savannah, 3,000 Georgians will participate in the fourth annual 10-kilometer MS Walk to be March 27 and 28.

A.W. Dahlberg, President and Chief Executive Officer of Georgia Power Co., is the honorary chairman for the MS Walk. "Let us work together for a cure for multiple sclerosis," said Dahlberg. "Join your co-workers, friends and family in a day filled with fun and team spirit."

Walkers collect pledges for every mile they walk. The walk will have a live band, clowns, activities and awards.

"In 1992, the MS Walk was a tremendous success for more than 4,000 Georgians with MS," said Terri Pendergast, executive director, National Multiple Sclerosis Society - Georgia Chapter. "We hope to exceed last year's goal and raise $200,000 with the help of Georgia communities."

The MS Walk is sponsored by Supercuts, Kicks 101.5, Georgia Power, Southern Bell, Atlanta Magazine, Kroger, Sportslife, Crystal Springs, 10-K, Tanner's, Gorin's, Super Donut, Belca Foodservice, Basinger & Associates and Keebler.

Lincoln's legacy lives on

By Herbert Marbury
USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

As the nation prepares to celebrate Presidents Day Monday, thoughts turn to the contributions of the leaders that this holiday was created to honor. One of those leaders was Abraham Lincoln, our 16th president.

Lincoln began his political career in 1834 and was a member of the Illinois legislature until 1842. In 1846, he finally won a seat in Congress. Although he lost the Senate race against democrat Stephen Douglass, he had by 1858 established himself as a leader of the Republican Party.

Three years later in March of 1861, Lincoln was inaugurated as president of the United States.

It was the crisis that engulfed the nation in 1861 that propelled Lincoln to heights of political achievement. At his inauguration, the country was embroiled in controversy and on the verge of civil war. Some of the Northerners wanted to let the Southern states depart in peace in order to end a war that was causing heavy losses for the Union. But Lincoln believed his sole challenge was to keep the nation unified at all costs.

So the president dedicated himself to this task. To this end, he issued an 1863 proclamation freeing all slaves in the Confederate states, in order that they might disrupt the Southern economy, join the Union fight, and hopefully turn the tide of a failing war.

A hands-on commander in chief, Lincoln and his secretary of war actually commanded the troops from Washington, D.C., until he appointed Ulysses S. Grant as commanding general in 1864. Although he took the nation to war, he believed that the United States was on the side of right and justice and that this was the only route to avoid separation.

His Gettysburg Address of 1863 further proved him as a master of politics. In it, he touched the hearts of millions of people convincing them that the war was not simply a Northern or a Southern cause, but a cause for all U.S. citizens to unify the whole nation.

Finally, at the end of the war, Lincoln again showed himself adept as political leader. Instead of adhering to popular sentiment and punishing the South as many Northerners had wished, his policies and personal attitudes reflected his desire for restoration of the South and reunification of the nation.

Throughout his life, Lincoln upheld his allegiance to the United States of America. He met challenges of separation and war as a result, his legacy is the United States of America, one nation under God.

In terms of Lincoln's noble qualities, he was compassionate. He was forgiving. He was great. Time continues to support the greatness of his time and fame. He was pure and incorruptible. He was a patriot. He loved his country; he poured out his soul unto death for it. He was human and thus touched the chord that makes the world akin. His religious character was strong, because he was a man of profound faith. He believed in God. He believed in Christ. He believed in the Bible and he believed in men. His faith made him great.

Sighting of new moon critical to Ramadan

By Richard S. Voss
Special to The Bayonet

During the month of Ramadan on the Islamic calendar, more than a billion Muslims worldwide will fast from the first light to sunset every day for a month. According to Yahya Ansar Islam, the iman of Masjid Al-Nur Islamic Community in Columbus, fasting for Muslims involves complete abstinence from eating, drinking (any liquid), sexual gratification and smoking. During the hours of fasting, Muslims adopt a subdued emotional temperament as well, although this is a natural byproduct of the indicated physical privations.

Fasting begins at first light, which for Muslims is a few minutes prior to beginning morning aeronautical twilight. Muslims often eat a very early prefast meal called "suhur" at least a half hour before that time. The fast ends precisely at sundown, when the Muslims will literally partake of "breakfast," known as "futur."

The first day of fasting follows the first sighting of the new moon closest to the calendar first day of Ramadan. The 354-day Islamic calendar year is shorter than the 365-day Gregorian, and so the holy month begins about 11 days earlier each year. This year, according to astronomical calculations, the new moon will occur at 8:05 a.m. Feb. 21. Moonset is expected about 22 minutes after sunset that evening.

As prescribed by tradition, Iman Yahya and other local Muslims will attempt to view the new moon physically that evening in order to declare the commencement of Ramadan for the year 1413 A.H. "If we don't see the moon, we'll try again on Monday," says Iman Yahya, "But if that happens, we'll first contact LaGrange and other nearby Muslim communities and ask if they've seen it. Lots of things can get in the way, even so much as a little cloud. But we'll definitely be looking for it."

Although the new moon can be predicted accurately using an almanac, Muslims nevertheless insist on seeing it for themselves. Asked why Muslims seem reluctant to trust modern science, Iman Yahya replied, "It's not that we don't trust it. Muslims were writing almanacs before Charlemagne could write his name. They invented algebra and trigonometry and applied it to astronomy to improve the accuracy of their predictions. But that didn't keep them from looking. Science tells us when to look, but it's up to us to make the effort.

"Society's success depends on us, the individuals. Second, a Muslim does not talk about the future without saying "In sha Allah," if God wills. Whether we see the new moon on the first night or not depends on conditions that only Allah can control. We make our intentions, but it is Allah who makes the way clear for us to see them through."

Masjid Al-Nur Islamic community intends to publish information on Ramadan in forthcoming issues.

For more information, call Iman Yahya at 689-6922.

The community also plans to prepare a recorded message (687-1228) the evening of Feb. 21, and, if necessary, the following evening to announce whether the moon has been sighted and when to commence the fast day.

Soldiers can make healthy choices with field rations

By Sarah Van Eden
Martin Army Community Hospital

Healthier lifestyle habits, including sound nutrition, have become an important part of wellness for many soldiers.

Practicing good nutrition while at home or in garrison may seem relatively easy because many choices are available, but what about in the field?

The choices in the field are limited to "rations", which include A (perishable), B (semi-perishable), T (tray pack), and the ever-popular MRE (Meals, Ready-to-Eat).

Whether going to the field for training exercises or actual wartime operations, it is imperative to gain some knowledge about eating in the field to maintaining combat readiness.

For some, this may include maintaining proper military appearance through weight control to maintaining ideal body weight and overall fitness while training in a noncombat situation.

Operational rations are well-suited for their purpose — increased energy (caloric) needs in combat and field situations. The MRE is also designed to be mobile, light and occupy a relatively small space.

Additionally, MREs must be able to withstand extremely hot and cold temperatures.

Every food item in the MRE has its purpose whether for variety, seasoning or providing sufficient calories and nutrients. (One MRE provides about one-third of the calories, protein, vitamins and minerals needed in 24 hours of field experience.)

During Desert Storm, it was reported by the U.S. Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine that soldiers were discarding items from MREs to tailor their personal food selections to the heat or to the mission such as cocoa beverage powder, peanut butter and the crackers thinking that these foods were too high in fat and calories.

Unfortunately, these products were fortified with vitamins and minerals that the soldier inevitably lacked without sufficient intake.

Vitamin-fortified components include cocoa powder, cheese spread and coating for oatmeal cookies and brownies with Vitamin A, ascorbic acid (Vitamin C), thiamin and pyridoxine.

Peanut butter is fortified with Vitamin A, ascorbic acid and thiamin; and the crackers are fortified with calcium, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and pyridoxine.

Therefore, it is important to consume all components of the MRE for nutrients.

With a few modifications in the MRE or operational ration being consumed, weight control can still be achieved during training activities while maintaining adequate nutrients, vitamins and minerals.

Here are some guidelines for weight control in the field:

- A or T Ration — control portion sizes of A or T Rations (no seconds) and limit sweets and fats
- MRE — Eat half of everything; skip sugar, cream, jelly and commercial candy — if eating three MREs a day, spread two complete packages over a 24-hour period.
- Two hot A-Ration meals and one MRE
- Omit the following from the MRE menus

Menu 1: Cookies, sugar, cheese and cocoa
Menu 2: Pineapple nut cake and sugar
Menu 3: Brownies, sugar and candy
Menu 4: Cookies, sugar and candy
Menu 5: Cherry nut cake, sugar and peanut butter
Menu 6: Candy, sugar, jelly and cocoa
Menu 7: Maple nut cake, sugar and jelly
Menu 8: Brownie and sugar
Menu 9: Fruitcake, sugar, cheese and cocoa
Menu 11: Nut roll, sugar, cheese and cocoa
Menu 12: Cookies, sugar and candy

With the proper education, the soldier can make good choices in eating while in the field, yet maintain optimum performance to meet the Army's mission.

Keep body young; eat healthy diet

By Jeff Graber
U.S. Army Physical Fitness School

Today in America, you can hardly stroll down an aisle in a grocery store, read a magazine, watch television or even read a newspaper without being confronted with claims of "fat-free," "low in cholesterol," "low-cal," "performance enhancing" or "super fat-burning."

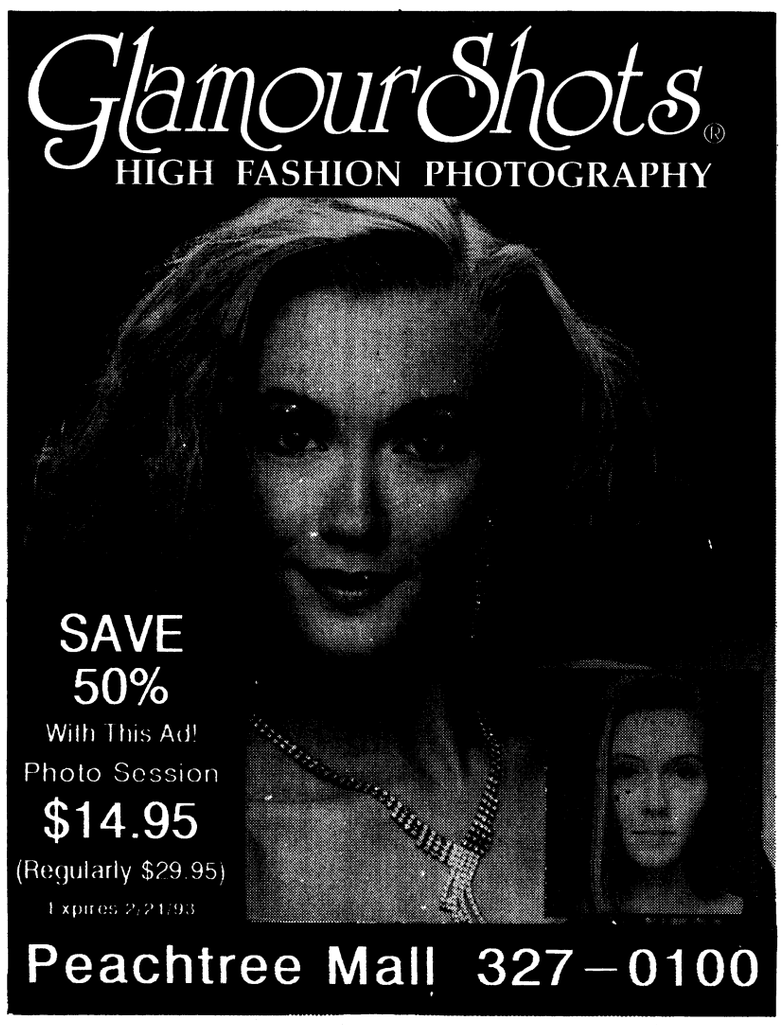
Advice on nutrition abounds; some of it is truthful, but most of it is unfounded.

The typical American diet consists of inadequate carbohydrates and fiber, too much fat, protein and sodium, improper spread of calories throughout the day (including an inadequate breakfast), and an intake of unnecessary supplements.

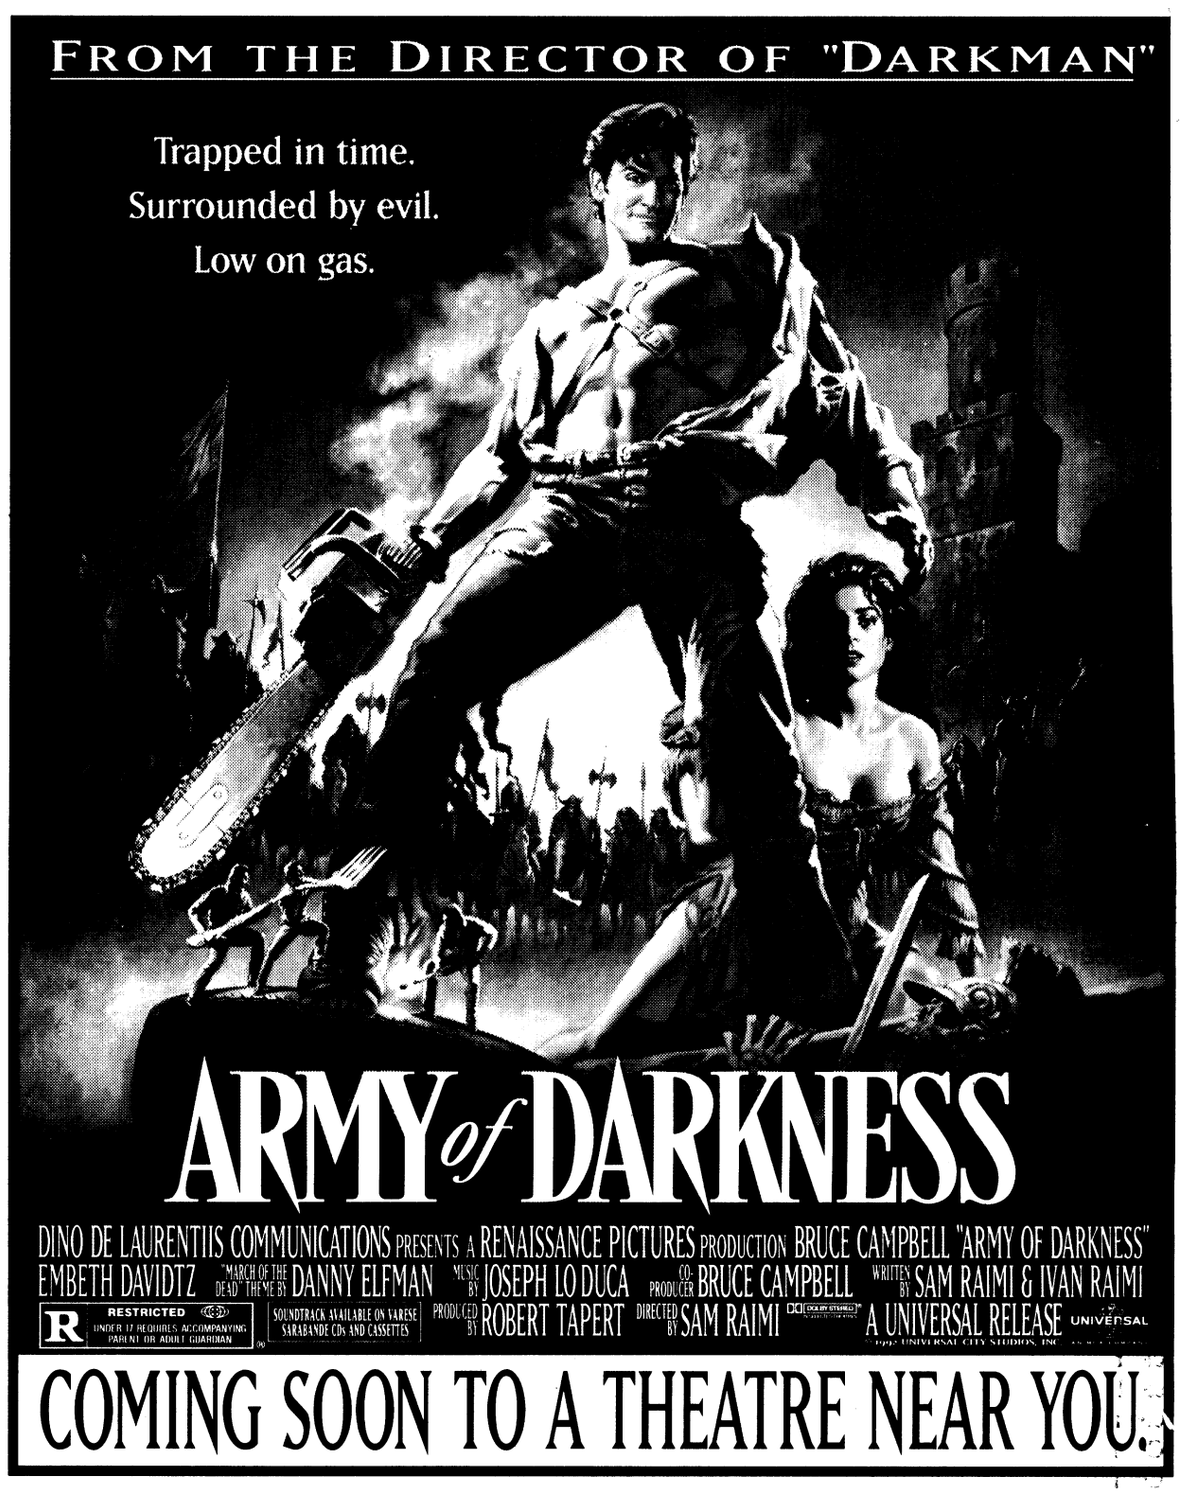
Take an inventory. Do any of these shortfalls apply to you?

The old cliche, "You are what you eat," holds true. By adhering to the following nutritional ABCs, you can eat your way to a you that will resist disease and stress, feel more energetic and be far younger physiologically than you are chronologically:

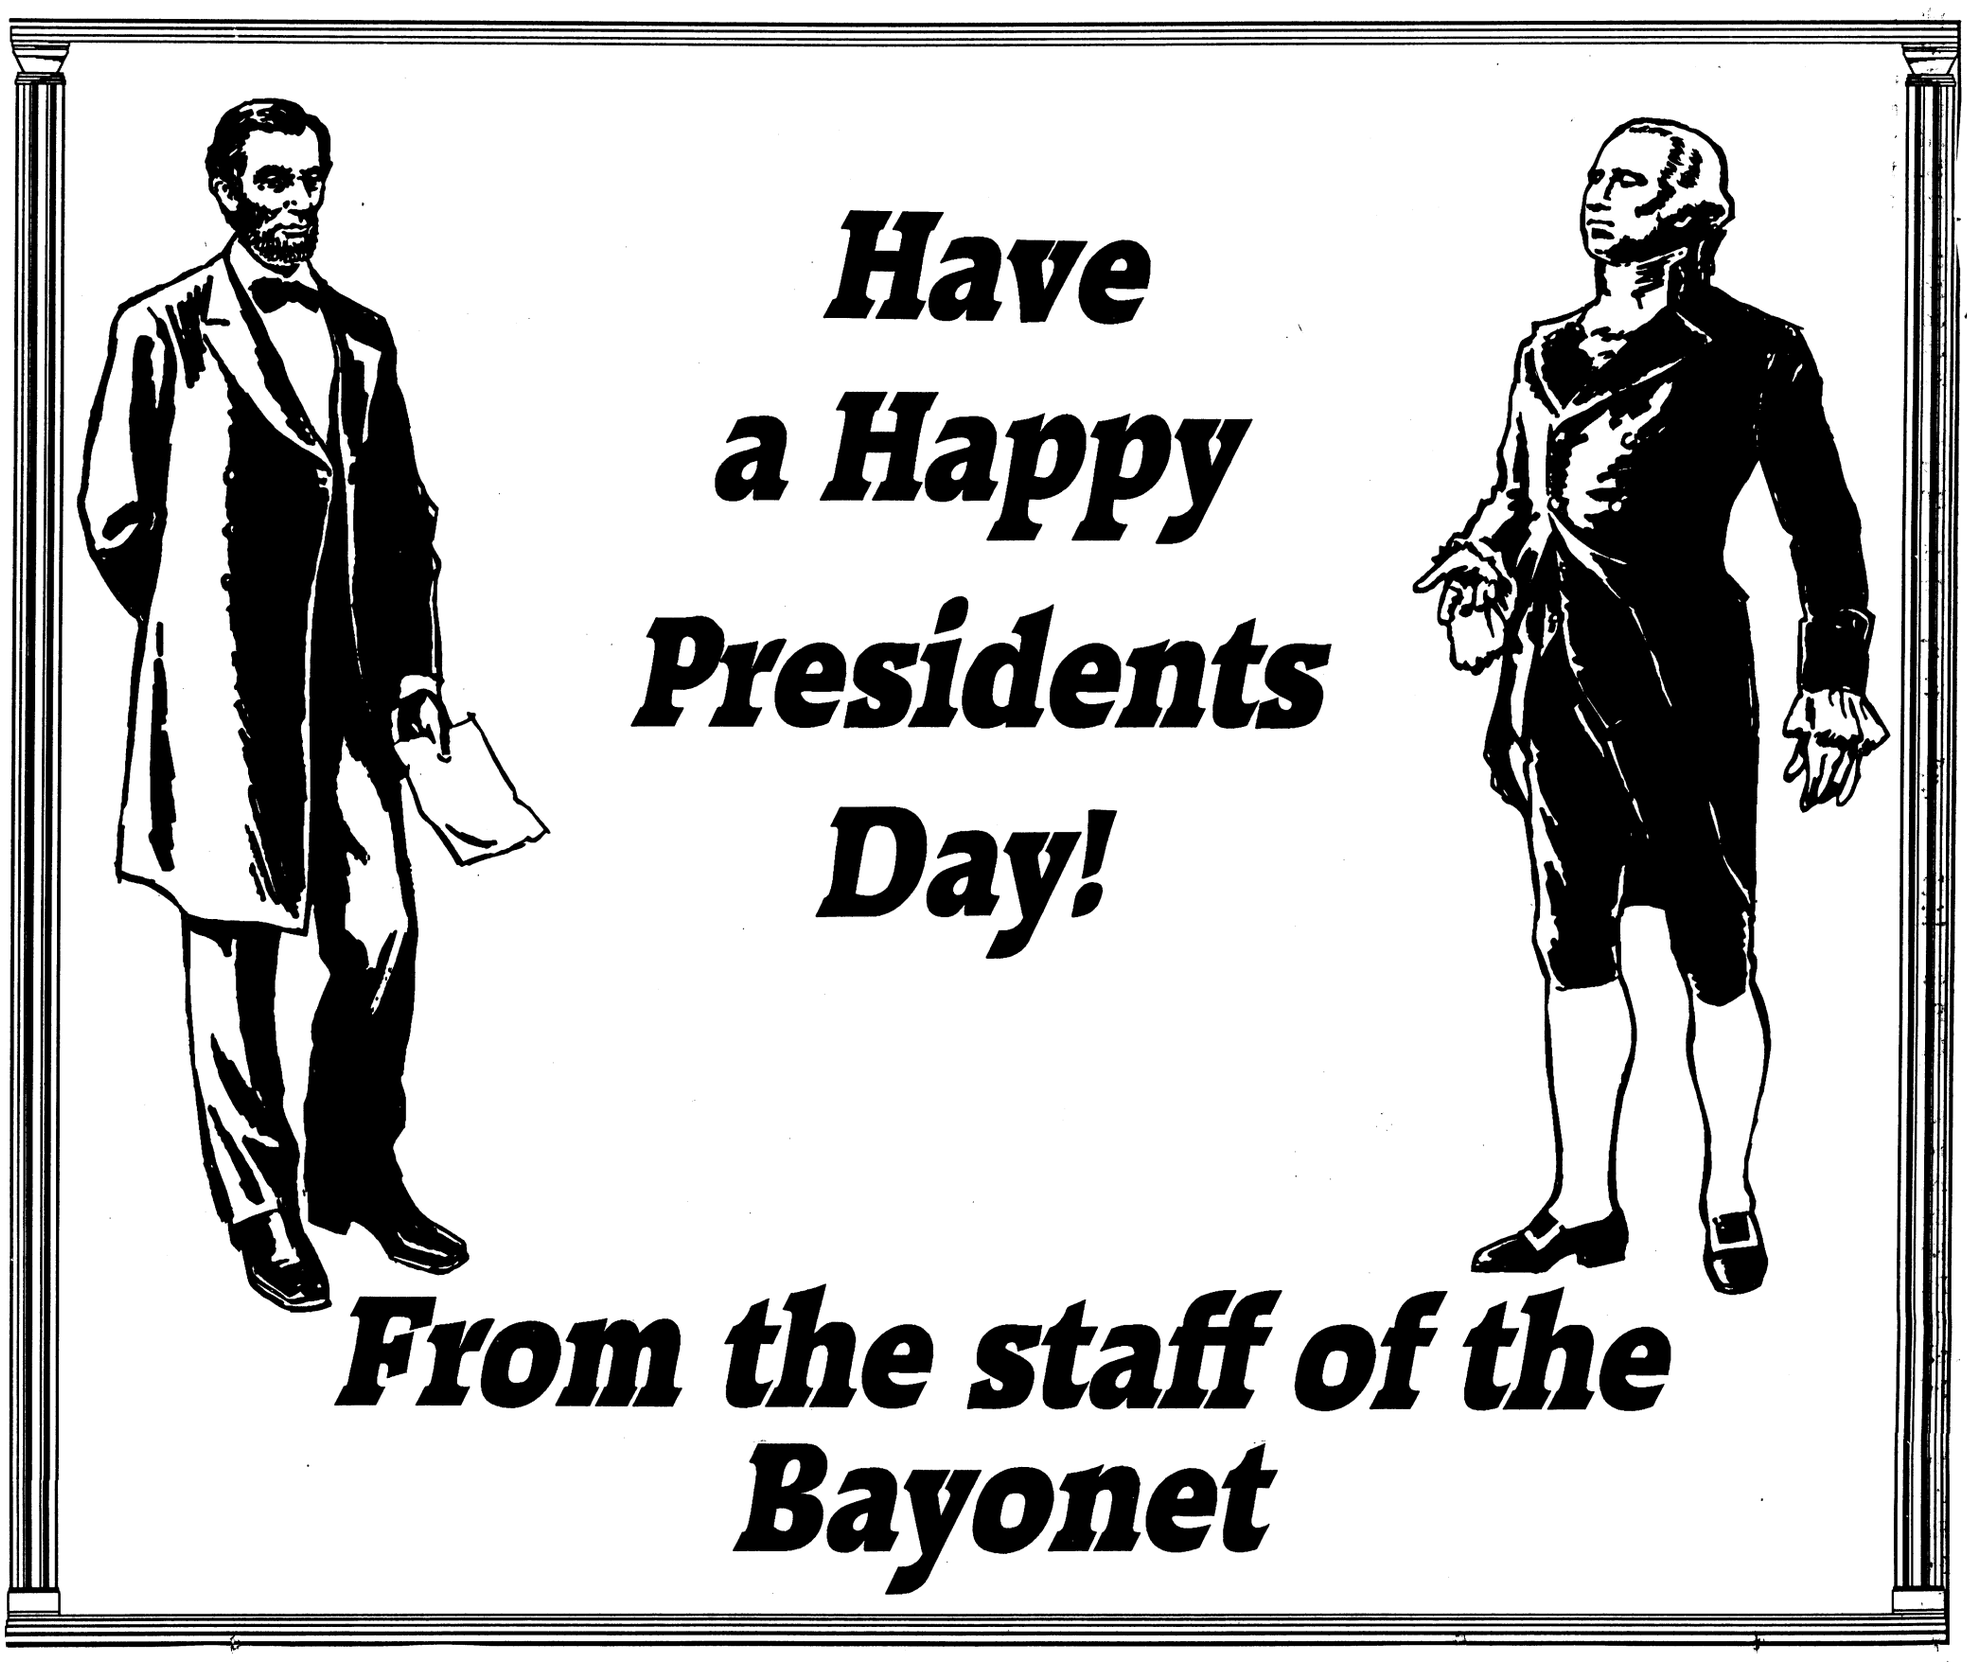
- Adequacy - characterizes a diet that provides all the essential nutrients (carbohydrates, fat, protein, vitamins, minerals and water).
- Balance - prevents overemphasizing any food type or nutrient at the expense of another (vary your food intake; be daring).
- Calorie control - control of energy intake (body weight times activity factor equals calories required).



To determine your activity factor, assign yourself appropriately:



- 13 = sedentary — job requires little physical effort and includes standing or light walking. Exercise is performed less than three times per week.
- 14 = light activity — job requires light physical effort including bending, light lifting, walking or standing. Exercise is performed a minimum of three times per week.
- 15 = moderate activity — job requires physical effort and repetition of tasks throughout the work shift. Exercise is performed more than three times per week.



Additionally, ensure that the breakdown of your caloric intake falls within these parameters:

- Carbohydrates - 50 to 70 percent.
- Protein - 10 to 25 percent
- Fat - less than 30 percent of caloric intake (no more than 10 percent saturated fat)

By making these changes a permanent part of your daily eating lifestyle, you will find yourself being and feeling much healthier.

Soldiers get explosive mission

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

JILIB, Somalia — A demolition team from Task Force Durham destroyed ordnance found in and near its camp Feb. 1 and 3 in Jilib.

The ordnance, totaling nearly 250 pounds was discovered lying around the compound by soldiers while moving into and working around their billets.

Sgt. 1st Class Fletcher L. Bailey, Task Force Durham's first sergeant, said soldiers are constantly finding more explosives to report to him.

"Every day either I find something or one of my soldiers finds something that needs to be destroyed," said Bailey.

Bailey said a lot of the materials found are still dangerous so it is important for his demolitions team to handle the ordnance with care and precision.

Soldiers on the demolition team say some of the weapons, including anti-tank warheads, anti-tank ammunition and hand grenades are of Chinese and Soviet make, and date back as far as the 1930s.

"We've seen the old bombs that used to be hand-dropped out of airplanes," said Bailey.

Soldiers agree training cannot entirely prepare a soldier for the real mission. Bailey said there's a fear factor involved with live ammunition.

"Normally, we get to blow up pieces of old equipment, " said Bailey. "The difference is that this stuff could blow us up."

Staff Sgt. Glenn Ford, Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, assigned to the demolition team, said safety is always foremost when planning to blow ordnance.

"I always take my most experience guy out with me to do reconnaissance," said Ford. "That person will help me figure out what is the best course of action and calculate the materials needed to destroy the ordnance."

Ford said he enjoys his work as a task force demolition expert.

"After 11 1/2 years in the Army getting training, it sticks to you," said Ford. "Besides, it's always easy to remember things that you like to do. This is fun."

Soldiers, Somalis share customs

By Tom Wilkinson
USAIC Public Affairs Office

JILIB, Somalia — Dances, parties and ceremonies?

It doesn't seem as though those activities would take place in this war-torn country, but thanks to Task Force Durham, a composite unit comprised of the 63rd Engineer Company (Combat Support Equipment) and Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, the Somalis are restless.

"Last night the villagers came and showed us their tribal dances," said Capt. Walt Trierweiler, the 36th Engineer Group legal officer.

The Somalis are restless because the engineers have opened the roads to their city enabling them to once again get their crops to market. It also allows the food distribution trucks to get to the harder hit areas.

"Jilib is an old Chinese rice plantation," said Lt. Col. Dwight Durham, the task force commander. "Being near the Jubba River, this is the bread basket of Somalia — very fertile land. The civil war caused the infrastructure of this valley to fall apart. The city was virtually cut off due to the destruction of two bridges, it was like an island."

> "Last night the villagers came and showed us their tribal dances."
>
> — Capt. Walt Trierweiler
> 36th Engineer Group

"Our mission is to re-establish the road to Bardera, north of here, so the nongovernment organizations can get the food through," he said.

Engineers from the 642nd Engineer Company out of Fort Drum, N.Y., are working south from Bardera, while the 63rd works north.

Somewhere in the middle the two units will meet completing the essential road network to Somalia's interior. However, these soldiers have encountered an obstacle that is slowing them down — anti-tank mines.

The possibility of 10 to 12 kilometers of mines were reported by the villagers and the soldiers immediately began a mine-clearing operation to get the road open.

With the help of Company A, 41st Engineer Battalion from Fort Drum, the unit is clearing the road and working toward the primary goal — the road to Bardera.

"This is the textbook answer to restoring hope here," said Durham. "You come in and establish the peace, then give the natives physical evidence that we are helping them — the roads."

"The tribes here are very happy we are here," he said, "They've even been working on the roads with us. They even went as far as to show us their gratitude by putting on their tribal dances for us; it was great."

"They awarded the colonel with a tribal chief's walking stick — an honor not bestowed to many," said Trierweiler.

The task force expects to complete the road by Feb. 20 and then they will assume whatever other missions are needed.

"The soldiers' morale is great," said Durham. "They are the Army's best — engineers, truck drivers, mechanics, fuelers, plumbers and electricians. Once we get the road fixed, we hope to be able to work on their hospital here."

Yes, the Somalis are restless, but it's restlessness of the best kind — a restoration of hope.

36th 'sweeps' clean

By Tom Wilkinson
USAIC Public Affairs Office

JILIB, Somalia — A winding road along the Jubba River represents hope for the valley, but there's one drawback; it's laced with anti-tank mines.

"I'm running the operation to clear the mines in three phases," said Capt. Troy Wilson, the commander of the 63rd Engineer Company (Combat Support Equipment). "First a "Sapper" platoon does a deliberate sweep with hand-held mine detectors. Then we run over the ground with the Mine Clearing Apparatus attached to a D7 armor-plated bulldozer. Finally, we go back over the ground by hand."

The natives are very helpful, too," said Staff Sgt. Brad McMeekan, a company construction supervisor. "They told us to expect mines and showed us where to look."

During the clearing operation, a bulldozer hit a mine that exploded, damaging a small portion of the bulldozer blade.

"It's real; it's out there. We hit a mine," said Wilson. "It turned out to apparently be an Italian mine made of plastic. Our mine detectors only detect metal — that makes it tough."

Once they clear the mines, they can start work in the road north to Bardera. "It's exciting and adventurous out here," said Sgt. Terence Dollar, a company truck driver. There's lots of wildlife. In fact, this is the first time I've ever seen a camel outside of the zoo. As a truck driver, I'll get plenty of experience keeping the logistical supplies rolling. We're like a support platoon for the company.

"This road is really a good mission for us," said McMeekan. There's a lot of improvement to be made out here. If we do it right, when we leave, these people will have some assurance of keeping their way of life."

"The people love us being here," said Wilson. "They feel a big sense of security. There used to be 50 people dying per day here, and now it's only about three per week."

"Helping people is what it's all about," concluded Pvt. 2 Wilson Hoffer, a small excavator equipment operator.

Company C restores roads, hope

200-mile repairs open avenues of opportunity for Somali villagers

By Tom Wilkinson
USAIC Public Affairs Office

JILIB, Somalia — In a country torn apart by famine and despair, an engineer task force is making a difference — restoring hope.

Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, attached to Task Force Durham, started working the road from Mogadishu to Jilib, nearly 200 miles, and completed it in eight days. The road opens traffic for the villagers to Jilib to get their crops to market — a trip that used to be a 20-day walk.

"We're restoring order and hope here," said Capt. John Reilly, the company commander. "We'll continue to sweep the road, keeping it maintained."

"We're doing great things helping the people here, said 1st Lt. Lynn Cowley, the company executive officer. "Their city has turned around 100 percent for the better."

These soldiers are a fine-tuned outfit, working 'round the clock, making sure all aspects of the mission are accomplished, said Lt. Col. Dwight Durham, Task Force commander.

"These engineers are really safety-minded," said Spc. Amy Drinkwater, a medic with the company. "We haven't had many problems, mostly the heat, but the soldiers are very conscious of the risk and are doing very well."

"As far as the equipment is concerned, the operators are taking really good care keeping it operating," said Pvt. 2 Kevyn Hanley, a mechanic from the 602nd Maintenance Company from Fort Hood, Texas, attached to the company.

"We haven't had any major problems. The operators are doing good preventive maintenance checks and services."

"I've been building latrines," said Pvt. 2 Michael Stowell, a carpentry and masonry specialist with the company. "We're building 36 here in the base camp and I built six yesterday."

The environment is so austere here, the soldiers are experiencing things and feelings that will make a lasting impression, said Reilly.

"It's such a different culture," said Hanley. "We're living in these buildings, yet the natives choose to live in huts. It's also hard having food, but we can't give it to them because of the nutritional shock it may cause to their bodies."

"I'm from Vermont," said Stowell, "and we don't get heat like this. It's definitely a culture shock, but it's enjoyable to meet the Somalis. It's been an experience I will never forget."

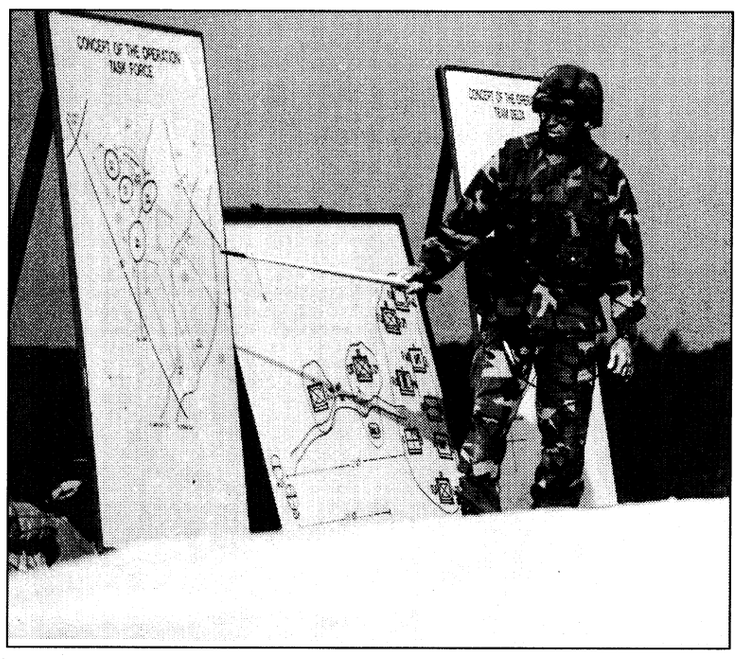
29th blasts Cactus with live-fire exercise

By Gregory Hart
1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

The 29th Infantry Regiment conducted a Combined Arms Live Fire Exercise at Cactus Observation Post Jan. 28.

The CALFEX was executed by soldiers from both the 1st and 2nd Battalions of the 29th Regiment. Also supporting the exercise were the 317th Engineer Battalion; 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment; and Company B, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, all from the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division.

Aviation support was provided by the 2nd Battalion, 229th Aviation Regiment from Fort Rucker, Ala., and by the 347th Fighter Wing from Moody Air Force Base, Ga.



Medical support was provided by medics from the 36th Engineer Group.

Opening remarks were made by Col. Gregory Camp, commander of the 29th Infantry Regiment. Also in attendance at the CALFEX were the Infantry Officers Advanced Course, the Air-War College with members from all branches of the military, and family members of the soldiers participating.

The exercise was divided into two parts. The first part was a capabilities exercise, which demonstrated the accuracy and firepower of the Bradley Fighting Vehicle, M-1A1 Abrams main battle tank, M-109 improved vehicle, M-106 mortar carrier and the U. S. Army Sniper Team.

Also included were four AH-64 Apache attack helicopters and two F-16 fighter aircraft. The first part of the exercise was concluded with a combined air-artillery-mechanized attack to demonstrate the combined capability the military can bring to bear on the enemy.

The second part of the exercise was designed for Infantry Officer Advanced Course students and consisted of an attack including the clearing of enemy bunkers, breaching of wire obstacles, clearing of mines, signals for lift and shift fire, combat casualty evacuation and vehicle recovery.

4th RTB to change hands

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Command of the 4th Ranger Training Battalion, Ranger Training Brigade, U.S. Army Infantry School, will change hands Feb. 25 during a 9 a.m. ceremony on Malvesti Field.

Lt. Col. William D. Ivey Jr., whose most recent assignment was as a battalion maneuver and operations observer and controller with the Joint Readiness Training Center, Fort Chaffee, Ark., will take command from Lt. Col. Clyde M. Newman.

Newman will be reassigned as the operations officer of the Joint Readiness Training Center, which is being relocated to Fort Polk, La.

Ivey was commissioned in the infantry in 1975. He is a graduate of the Infantry Officer Basic Course, the Infantry Officer Advanced Course and the Command and Staff College. He has commanded companies at Fort Knox, Ky., and in the 2nd Infantry Division, Korea.

He and his wife, Debbie, have one daughter, Heather.

3/75 gets new commander

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Command of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, changed hands Thursday during an 11 a.m. ceremony on Peden Field, across from the battalion headquarters.

Lt. Col. Danny R. McKnight, former commander of the 4th Battalion, 27th Infantry Regiment, 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii, assumed command from Lt. Col. Frank Kearney.

McKnight was a distinguished military graduate from Florida State University in 1973.

He previously commanded a company in the 197th Infantry Brigade, Fort Benning, and he deployed to Panama during Operation Just Cause with the 75th Ranger Regiment.

His wife, Barbara, is from Gainesville, Fla.

DoD clarifies medal requirements

TRADOC News Service

The military awards branch has recently received several inquiries regarding award of the Humanitarian Service Medal.

The HSM is an individual Department of Defense service medal awarded to service members who distinguished themselves by meritorious, direct, nonroutine participation in a DoD approved operation of a humanitarian nature.

Nonroutine participation is defined as actions above and beyond one's normal duties and of a major significance. Direct participation is defined as "hands-on" activity at the site, or sites, of the military act or operation. The individual must be physically present at the designated location having contributed to and influenced the action.

The president of the United States must have declared the act or event a federal disaster or the secretary of state must have requested emergency assistance from the DoD for any act or operation to be considered for designation as a humanitarian act or operation. The following types of military acts or operations may qualify for award of the HSM:

- Significant assistance in the event of national or international disasters, natural or man-made, such as, but not limited to, earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, typhoons or conflagrations.
- Relief of a starvation area
- Evacuation of personnel from an area threatened by a hostile force
- Support or resettlement of refugees or evacuees
- Other military acts or operations of a similar nature as determined by the secretary of defense or the secretary of transportation.

Service rendered in the act or operation being considered must meet the following criteria;

- Be above and beyond normal duties, and of a major significance.
- Provide immediate relief, relieve human suffering and should save lives (property may be a factor)
- Must have affected the outcome of a situation (nonaction could produce definite consequences)
- Must have specific dates
- Must have evidence that the emergency assistance was requested by the president of the United States for assistance within the United States (such as, presidential emergency declaration or established contingency plans issued under presidential authority) and requested by the Department of State for overseas areas.

Other significant points regarding the HSM are as follows:

- The HSM is categorized as a service medal and, as such, no orders are issued to announce its approval.
- The HSM does not preclude or conflict with other service medals or decorations awarded on the basis of valor, achievement or meritorious service.
- DoD is the approving authority for operations that qualify for the HSM regardless of whether peacetime or wartime conditions prevail.
- Recommendations must be entered into official military channels within two years of the act or operation to receive consideration.

Headquarters, Personnel Command (TAPC-PDA) is responsible for notifying the major command and principal Headquarters, Department of the Army agencies of final decision and forwarding by name lists as appropriate.

For more information, call DSN 221-4759 or (703) 325-4759.

Hunt Club has horses, facilities

By Chris Hurley
Fort Benning Hunt Club

What is one of the best-kept secrets on Fort Benning for those who love horses and horseback riding?

No, it's not a military secret, but it's the 30-year-old Fort Benning Hunt Club.

The biggest problem for the hunt club may be a misunderstanding about what it does, officials say.

The members don't use firearms; they ride horses. The club frequently get calls from people wanting to hunt on club land or get licenses to hunt. But the club is strictly for horseback riding.

The Hunt Club has a variety of features, including English riding instruction. The club has both English and Western horses and riding, numerous trails and several riding arenas including a jump ring and a barrel racing arena.

The Benning Hunt Club began in the late '60s as a place for active and retired military to stable their horses on post. The club is a private, nonprofit club that has memberships and charges stable fees and rental fees.

The post club has several miles of riding trails. Rates are $12 an hour for riding or $8 hourly for club members. One-hour trail rides are now offered on Sundays. There are five different rides scheduled each Sunday.

The guides will assist beginners and the guided rides provide a way for interested people to check out horseback riding. Trail rides are conducted at a controlled pace, established by the trail guide.

Riders can sign up in advance, beginning one week before the scheduled ride. It is recommended that riders make reservations early to ensure a horse is available for the desired date and time.

Riders must be present at least 15 minutes before their scheduled ride or they may lose their horse to a standby rider.

Riders are encouraged to dress for the weather. If the weather is questionable, riders may call the Hunt Club to see if the ride is a "go." If the weather is too severe and the ride is canceled, the rider will be allowed to reschedule for another ride within 30 days of the canceled ride.

For accomplished riders, open rentals are available. Children's pony rides are also available.

For more information, call the Fort Benning Hunt Club at 680-3945.

Chinese New Year

Third-graders from Penny Wilson's class at Morris McBride School, Anthony Ward (left), Jon Robinson, Jordan Hudson, Darla Davis, Blake Montana and John Slazas celebrate the Chinese New Year by snaking down the halls with a Chinese dragon, gongs and drums. Studying communities around the world brought the focus on China, its customs, fairytales and zodiac. The dragon's head was designed by art teacher Walter Blanks.

Field to be dedicated

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment is conducting a memorial and dedication service in honor of the late Lt. Col. Ben Frank Taylor Wednesday at 11 a.m.

The ceremony will dedicate Taylor Field in front of Kyle Hall (Building 74), the battalion headquarters.

Taylor, an Officer Candidate School graduate, entered the Army in 1961. He served for 29 years in the Army.

Taylor died Feb. 17 while serving as the deputy commander of the U.S. Army Infantry Training Center.

His widow, Shirley, and daughter, Terryl, of Houston, Texas, will attend the ceremony.

CHAMPUS lowers cap

CHAMPUS News

The Defense Authorization Act has reduced to $7,500 the annual "catastrophic cap" on civilian medical expenses under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services for eligible military retirees, their family members, surviving family members of deceased active or retired service members, and eligible former spouses of military members.

The new, lower cap began with the new government fiscal year on Oct. 1. Previously, the cap for everyone, except family members of active duty members, was $410,000 per fiscal year (Oct. 1 through Sept. 30).

CHAMPUS contractors will adjust their computer systems to account for the reduction in the cost cap, officials said.

Students create sculpture

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Herbert J. Dexter School students will dedicate their new site sculpture today at 1:30 p.m. in the school courtyard thanks to artist-in-residence Jeff Mather.

Mather, who has been teaching at Dexter for the past three weeks, used the technique of incorporating a variety of disciplines in showing the students and parents how sculptures come about.

Photography, drawing, body movement in dance and juggling, design, construction and painting were just some of the areas he focused on.

Third- through fifth-grade students were even able to use a computer program to scan a photo of the courtyard and construct proposed designs here, as well as on paper.

Dexter Principal Vicki Rogers said Mather's residency at the school has fit in well with the school's focus on synthesizing ideas through reading, writing and thinking.

"The idea of art is a broad concept encompassing everything from architecture to dance," Mather said. "We began by using juggling clubs and dance sticks to learn how these could become extensions of body movement. Then, we drew flat pictures on a copied photograph, followed by dimensional pictures with vanishing points."

After designs were created on the computer, Mather took bits and pieces of everyone's best and came up with an original design.

Using wooden poles, the students then primed and painted their structure, even digging holes for them in the courtyard and getting involved in setting the poles in concrete.

"I'm very respectful of the construction process," Mather noted. "You also see things as you build and make changes here as well."

Project coordinator for this artist-in-residence at Dexter was fifth-grade teacher, Carroll Thebaud, who temporarily moved her class into a trailer for Mather's stay.

This site sculptor has exhibited his work in Georgia for the past eight years.

With a bachelor's degree from Hobart College, Mather is in his third year as an artist-in-residence through the Artists in Education Program of the Georgia Council for the Arts.

Most recently, he developed a project called "Rockaway" at the Center for Puppetry Arts in Atlanta.

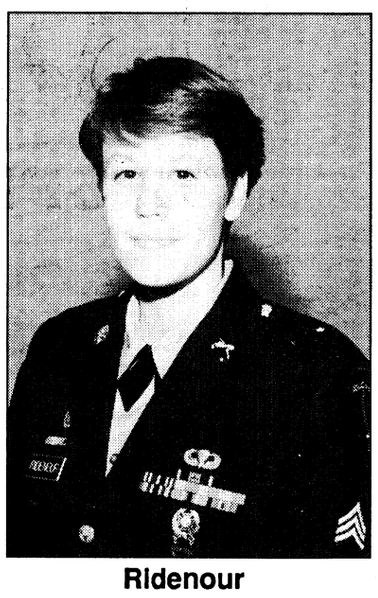
Benning MP is 'high speed'

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

For Sgt. Rachael K. Ridenour of the Military Police Activity, there is only ~~one~~ speed — high speed.

From jumping out of airplanes to practicing tae kwon do, her many accomplishments recently won her top honors from a local civic organization.

Ridenour was named Military Policeman for 1992 by the Exchange Club of Columbus at the 31st Annual Crime Prevention Banquet held at the Columbus Sheraton Feb. 4. The honor came with a plaque and a check for $250 that were presented to Ridenour by Col. James Crockert, commander of the Military Police Activity.



Ridenour was selected for the award by a panel of senior noncommissioned officers who conducted a question and answer board.

"The board was challenging," Ridenour said. "It was similar to a promotion board except that we wore our everday duty uniforms and were asked job-related questions rather than obscure trivia questions."

At the conclusion of the board, Ridenour and another soldier were tied for first place. After an additional round of questioning, Ridenour was declared the winner.

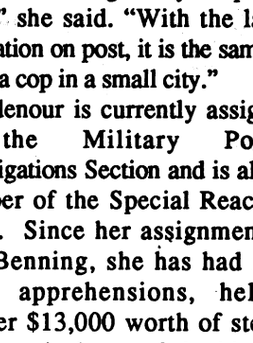
"Winning the award was an honor," she said. "It was also an honor to meet Georgia Supreme Court Justice Carol W. Hunstein, who was the guest speaker at the presentation and is the first woman Supreme Court justice in Georgia."

Ridenour joined the Army in 1988. She was distinguished honor graduate of her Basic and Advanced Military Police Training class. Her other training included graduating from Airborne School and the Rappeling and Mountaineering School. She is also a member of the All-Army Tae Kwon Do Team.

Ridenour

Fort Benning is her first stateside assignment. She saw previous duty in Korea and Panama, where she was soldier of the month, quarter and year for 1991.

"Fort Benning really keeps me busy," she said. "With the large population on post, it is the same as being a cop in a small city."



Ridenour is currently assigned to the Military Police Investigations Section and is also a member of the Special Reaction Team. Since her assignment to Fort Benning, she has had five felon apprehensions, helped recover $13,000 worth of stolen property, had one of the highest driving under the influence conviction rates on post and conducts volunteer work with the Columbus Police Explorers.

"I love my job. I've wanted to join the Army all of my life and I've been an MP from the beginning," she said. "The best thing about being an MP is that we aren't just preparing for something that is going to happen in the future, like a war. We are out on the street every day fighting crime and helping people."

The Bayonet would like to highlight any of your outstanding accomplishments. Be sure to include first and last names as well as proper unit designations.

Alex Haley's 'Queen' begins Sunday

By Kate O'Hare
Tribune Media Services

In a way, for Alex Haley, the story of "Queen" came full circle at a grave.

While preparing the story about his paternal grandmother, which airs as a six-hour miniseries Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday on CBS, Haley visited the cemetery at what was once the grand Alabama plantation called Forks of Cypress. There one day, he met a local white teacher, Curtis Flowers, who came to check her family's graves. As it happens, Flowers and Haley discovered they shared a common great-great-grandfather, James Jackson Sr., an Irish horseman who owned the plantation before the Civil War. Both were happy and excited to know they were family.

On another day at the Jackson family graveyard, Haley had quite a different experience, one that would have become the opening scene of "Queen" if Haley had not died in February 1992.

As Haley stood in the graveyard, a station wagon full of people drove up, apparently also Jackson descendants. One politely directed Haley to the slaves' cemetery. When Haley instead claimed he was a descendant of James Jackson Jr., the younger people of the group seemed glad, but an elderly member abruptly drove away.

Halle Berry (left), Jasmine Guy and Tim Daly

Comments producer Mark Wolper ("Roots"), "Alex wanted the story of his grandmother told now. He said, 'There's a new danger in the air in America.' And he was right. 'Roots' was about his mother's ancestry and the search for black identity in the '70s. 'Queen' deals with his father, Simon's, side of the family, and it speaks to today's complex relationships between black and white. It says that all our roots are intertwined. The gentleman at the gravesite not only turned away from a real part of his history, he missed out on meeting one of America's great minds, a man who influenced a generation of Americans, both black and white."

Tim Daly portrays James Jackson Jr., whose illicit love affair both created and almost destroyed his daughter. Says Daly, "The truth about this character is that he's a terrible hypocrite. But yet, given the time and place, he does the most that he can. He knew who he really loved. But again, he ultimately rejects his own daughter. He can't bring himself to acknowledge her. He's a very sad guy really." In terms of family, Daly himself is one link between "Roots," its sequel, "Roots: The Next Generations" and "Queen": "My brother-in-law, Georg Stanford Brown, was in one (miniseries), and my father (James Daly) was in one."

In the course of history, some people have been both slave and oppressor at different times. Whether servant or master, the condition of slavery links the people involved and has a profound effect on both. In America many white and black families now share common ancestors or common ties to the same pieces of land. Ironically, James Jackson Sr., the plantation patriarch in "Queen," recalls how, growing up in Ireland, he fought against British masters who had enslaved his people. He comments that he didn't believe in slavery until he came to America and became a rich master himself. The war Jackson fought continues even today, as does the strife and conflict between black and white in America.

What does it take to become a ranger?

By Sydni Redmond
USAIC Public Affairs Office

The motto "Rangers Lead the Way" is heard so often at Fort Benning, it's accepted as a daily greeting. But just what does it take to be a ranger and how can a soldier be sure he really can lead the way? Watch "Fort Benning Today" on USAIC TV next week and find out what's required of a soldier before he earns the Ranger Tab. See the training in all of its phases that has molded the character of many soldiers.

Special forces stretches people and equipment to their limits under the worst conditions imaginable, so developing weapons that can stand up to its demands is a special challenge. A new handgun for special operations is being tested at the Naval Surface Warfare Center in Crane, Ind., and next week USAIC TV will highlight details on the new weapon. Should one of the new pistols being tested at Crane make it into the special operations inventory, it will replace up to 15 different handguns now in use.

Also featured on "Fort Benning Today" next week will be a look at the operations of a Fort Drum, N.Y., aid station in Bale Dogle, Somalia, the 86th Evacuation hospital in Somalia and Fort Benning soldiers in Somalia.

USAIC TV will also feature "Victory News," the news show of the 24th Infantry Division, and previews of movies showing on post. USAIC TV will also highlight music and news from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network as well as post events on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 32, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can catch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

For more information or to make suggestions, write or call the Broadcast Section of the Public Affairs Office, Infantry Hall, Room 602, 545-2201.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Country music — The Silver Moon Music Barn in Buena Vista, Ga., features a dance every Saturday night. T.G. Sheppard and Martin Delray will be appearing Saturday.

Featured artists Feb. 19 will be Lee Roy Parnell and Joe Stampley, with the band Shenandoah appearing Feb. 27.

For ticket information, call (800) 531-0677.

College concert — The Columbus College Schwob Department of Music will present the 11th Annual Musical Extravaganza Monday at 7 p.m. at the Columbus Iron Works.

The extravaganza will showcase student performing groups from the department including the College Orchestra, the Symphonic Wind Ensemble, the College Jazz Band and the Columbus College Civic Chorale. The showing of a silent movie accompanied by theater organ music will be presented during dinner.

Corporate sponsorship of the extravaganza is provided by American Family Life Assurance Corporation; AFLAC President Dan Amos will serve as master of ceremonies.

All proceeds from the extravaganza will benefit the college's Music Scholarship Fund. For additional information, contact the college's Schwob Department of Music at 568-2049.

Retired Officers' Association — Jim Forsythe, program chairman of the Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of the Retired Officers Association, has announced the following schedule of social activities for the chapter for 1993: Valentine dinner-dance, Saturday; St. Patrick's Day dinner-dance, March 13; Caribbean cruise, April 18 to 25; golf tournament, June 6; bus trip, June 17 to 20; party, Sept. 10; trip to Branson, Mo. , Sept. 23 to 27; Octoberfest, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary, Oct. 16; state convention, St. Simons Island, Nov. 4 to 6; Veterans Day dinner-dance and election of officers, Nov. 13; and Christmas party and installation of officers for 1994, Dec. 11.

The chapter has 493 members and its social activities complement an active business agenda affecting the active duty and retired military communities.

Bach concert – An Evening with Kapelmeister Bach - the fourth concert of Columbus College's Faculty Concert Series will be presented Thursday at 8 p.m. in the sanctuary of Trinity Episcopal Church, 1130 First Avenue in Columbus.

Featured artists will be members of the college's Schwob Department of Music faculty who will perform a varied program of music written by Johann Sebastian Bach.

The Columbus College Faculty Concert Series serves as a showcase for the college's artist faculty and guests, and it generates income to support music scholarships for talented students.

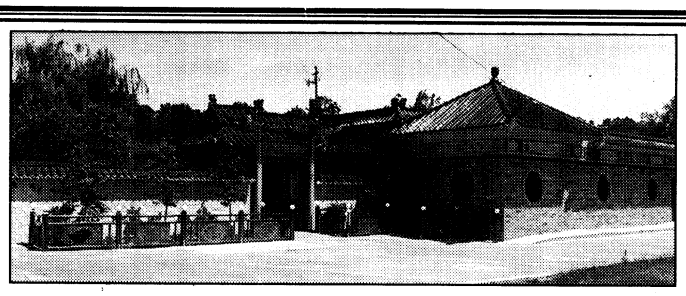
Admission is $7 and is free to Columbus College faculty, staff and students. All concerts are accessible to the physically impaired.

For additional information, contact the college's Schwob Department of Music at 568-2049.

Black history observance breakfast — The Sixth Annual Black History Observance Breakfast will be 7:30 a.m. Monday, at the Columbus Iron Works Convention and Trade Center.

Featured speakers at the breakfast will be Maj. Gen. Albert J. Edmonds and Rep. Craig A. Washington. Edmonds is vice director for Command, Control, Communications and Computer Systems Directorate and deputy director for Defensewide C4 support, the Joint Staff, Washington, D.C.

Washington represents the 18th Congressional District of Texas in the U.S. House of Representatives.



Tickets are $25 with all proceeds going to the Columbus House of Mercy — a local shelter for the homeless.

For tickets or information, call Dr. Henry Cook, chairman of the Black History Observance Committee, at 322-3218 or Rep. Sanford Bishop, honorary committee member, at 687-5138.

Museum grand opening — The Columbus Museum Guild's grand opening of "Flying Colors Art Show and Sale," a biannual fund-raiser, will be open to the public through Feb. 20.

All proceeds will be used by the guild to benefit the museum and its programs. The week-long event will feature a number of programs including a lunch and lectures series a cartoonist and entertainment.

The Columbus Museum is located at 1251 Wynnton Road and is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and on Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

'Inherit the Wind' at Springer

Springer Opera House

The Springer Opera House will add a third weekend of performances for its popular production of "Inherit the Wind." Additional shows will be performed tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m.

"Audience response for 'Inherit the Wind' has been fabulous," said director Paul R. Pierce. "We've got a very strong show, and it's certainly gratifying to hold over a production that is neither a musical nor a comedy."

"Inherit the Wind" is the American epic by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee that dramatizes the "Scopes Monkey Trial" in Dayton, Tenn. in 1925. The trail pitted three-time presidential candidate William Jennings Bryan against America's most feared trial lawyer, Clarence Darrow in a fight over the Tennessee law against the teaching of evolution science in the classroom.

Tickets are $12 for adults, $10 for senior adults and $7 for students. Group rates are also available. Reservations may be made by calling the Springer Box Office at 327-3688.

BLACK HISTORY QUIZ

Black Employment Program Committee

African American men and women have made significant day-to-day contributions to the social, cultural and economic progress of the nation; yet, standard references have largely ignored their historical roles.

Test your knowledge of some of these contributions.

1. America's first black woman artist and also the first of her race and sex to be recognized as a sculptor.

Born in 1845 in upstate New York, she was the daughter of a Chippewa Indian mother and a free black father.

She was educated at Oberlin College, the first to admit women on a nonsegregated basis.

She lived her adult life in Boston, Mass., and Rome, Italy.

Some of her many notable works include: Hiawatha, the Marriage, Hagar in the Wilderness, Forever Free, The Death of Cleopatra.

2. First black Catholic bishop in the United States. For 25 years, he presided over a diocese covering Maine and New Hampshire.

He was born in Macon, Ga., in 1830, educated in New York and later, Holy Cross University, Mass.

As a pastor in primarily Irish congregations, he performed his priestly duties with devotion and eventually won the respect and admiration of his parishioners.

He was named bishop of Portsmouth, Maine, in 1875. His brother Patrick, a Jesuit priest was President of Georgetown University from 1873 to 1882.

3. He invented the shoe lasting machine, which revolutionized the shoe industry, cut shoe prices in half and doubled wages in the shoe manufacturing industry.

He was born in Dutch Guiana in 1852. He moved to Philadelphia and then to New England.

His invention made Lynn, Mass., the shoe manufacturing center of the world.

He died at age 37, before he had a chance to realize a share of the enormous profits derived from his invention.

4. In 1935, he was the first person to successfully apply mechanical refrigeration techniques to railroad cars and trucks, enabling them to ship perishable food products over long distances.

This new method inaugurated a change in the eating habits and patterns of the entire nation and allowed the development of food production facilities.

He first obtained notoriety in the 1920s when he developed a series of devices to adapt silent movie projectors to talkies.

He also developed an air conditioner for military field hospitals, a portable X-ray machine and a refrigerator for military field kitchens. He died in 1961 at the age of 70.

5. He was in charge of developing and producing the control rocket systems that guide lunar modules during moon landings.

He was the first black person to be hired by Republic Aviation Inc. as an aeronautical engineer.

Later he joined Greer Hydraulics Inc., where he became a group project engineer and helped develop the first airborne radar beacon for locating crashed aircraft.

Fort Benning shows its best

Team evaluating services, facilities to wrap up visit today

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

The Army Communities of Excellence Team will wrap up its visit to post today.

The team arrived Tuesday to begin an intensive evaluation of the quality of services that Fort Benning has for its soldiers and civilians.

At stake is the Army's Commander-in-Chief Award, an honor that includes a cash award of $1.5 million. If the post does not win the CINC award, it will still be eligible to compete for the Best Large Installation Award worth $1 million.

But, more important than the cash award, the Evaluation Team's visit serves as an excellent motivator for managers to purposely seek out opportunities to improve the way we do business, according to Sarah McLaney, post ACOE coordinator. The value added aspect of the ACOE program must not be overlooked, she said. When a team visits specifically to look at the "good things" we are doing, ideas are generated and process improvements are implemented that are critical to managing our resources today, she said. When we all practice the principles of ACOE on a daily basis, everyone wins — our soldiers, families, employees and the Army, she said.

The winners will be chosen based on the results of visits to each of the competing posts by the ACOE team.

The team visiting Fort Benning consists of 11 members, plus an observer from Training and Doctrine Command Headquarters, and is led by Col. Tom White, chief of the ACOE Office.

The team members are subject matter experts in the 14 areas that are being evaluated, she said.

"Personnel all over post have been giving the team members a taste of what life on Fort Benning is like and especially what kinds of services we offer and how they have improved," said McLaney.

Areas that were evaluated included strategic planning for services and facilities, public affairs, engineer services and facilities, information management and facilities, housing services and facilities, military personnel services and facilities, civilian personnel and equal employment services and facilities, and morale, welfare and recreation and family support services and facilities.

Also evaluated were resource management and financial services and facilities, chaplain services and facilities, medical and dental services and facilities, legal assistance services and facilities and Army and Air Force Exchange Services and facilities.

McLaney said that after leaving Fort Benning the team will travel to the remaining posts that will be evaluated for the competition.

Fort Benning is one of 13 Army posts world-wide that is in the running for the ACOE Best Army Installation in the World.

McLaney said the competition winners will probably be announced some time in April. The award ceremony will be May 20 at the Pentagon.

Finance wins TRADOC competition

By William Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning's Finance and Accounting Office are winners in the Training and Doctrine Command's 1992 FAO Peer Competition Program, according to a recent TRADOC News Service release.

The post was named best FAO in the large category and won in the best civilian pay category.

Fort Benning won the Best Civilian Pay award last year also, according to Ouida G. Newsom, chief of civilian pay for Fort Benning.

The criteria for selection is based on installation size and how quickly personnel and payroll actions are processed throughout the whole year, said Bobby N. King, chief of the accounting services division for Fort Benning.

"Payroll is an area where you need to process your actions timely," said King.

There is no preparation for the competition, explained King. "It's just business as usual," said Newsom.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general, will receive a plaque for the award that will later be presented to the FAO, said King.

"Awards that people receive from outside (of the office) helps the morale in any office," said King. "Every worker likes to be recognized for his or her achievements. It shows that we are the best in TRADOC."

Newsom said one of the reasons why Fort Benning's FAO is an award winning office is all of the employees have worked there many years.

"We have three people who have worked here for 20 years, and most of the other employees have been here five to 10 years. All work hard and do whatever is necessary to meet our paydays," said Newsom.

"All of this is made possible by the quality people who work in the office. We are all dedicated to our customers, the soldiers and civilians of Fort Benning," said King.

The competition program has been in existence for five years, according to the release.

"The program's ultimate goal," said Capt. William R. Lewis, staff finance officer at Fort Monroe, Va., "is to encourage through competition, a desire to be the best FAO in TRADOC, while providing the best possible service to our soldiers and civilians."

The winners in the remaining categories, according to the news release are:

- Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., won the medium category;
- Carlisle Barracks, Pa., won small category;
- Fort Jackson, S.C. and Carlisle Barracks, best accounts payable;
- Carlisle Barracks, best travel;
- Fort Jackson, best military pay;
- Fort Bliss, Texas, best central accounting; and
- Carlisle Barracks, best accounting.

TRADOC's program, according to Col. James E. Chambers, director of FAO at Fort Monroe, has continually paid high dividends in both improved performance and employee morale.

Post lauds excellence

• Quality employees, C-3

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Hundreds of the people whose efforts contribute to making Fort Benning the best large installation in the Training and Doctrine Command gathered at the Officers' Club Thursday to celebrate quality.

The quarterly Excellence Appreciation Day breakfast, said speaker David Flo of the Directorate of Resource Management, "is our opportunity to award people for excellence and quality in their day-to-day work."

After a prayer from Chaplain (Col.) Roy G. Plummer, U.S. Army Infantry Center chaplain, the Infantry Chorus swung into action with a clapping, marching entrance while chanting, "hard work, work."

The chorus presented an a capella program, featuring "This is the Army, Mr. Jones." The chorus provided a blending of harmony as background for a solo rendition of "It's Hard to say Goodbye," and a trio singing "Under the Boardwalk."

The program concluded with a gospel-flavored rendering of "When We Were Needed, We Were There" by the entire chorus and an exit to the tune of "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general, presented remarks following the chorus' performance. "I feel like a proud papa every time I hear the Infantry Chorus," he said. "These soldiers just keep getting better."

White then presented commander's coins to the members of the chorus in appreciation of their efforts.

He echoed Plummer's remarks in thanking the Army Communities of Excellence team for their presence, while emphasizing his appreciation for "the team that's here at Fort Benning every day."

"You can't roll up your sleeves and wring your hands at the same time," the commanding general said. "We're dedicated to excellence at Fort Benning, and I know that I have the support of all of you in the effort to continually improve in efficiency, quality and excellence."

White presented awards to more than 130 soldiers and civilians from a wide range of post organizations.

Flo's concluding remarks summed up, "Quality is an attitude, and when you've got that attitude, you can't help but be excellent. That's what makes this the best installation in the Army."

Study to focus on living conditions

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Single soldiers living in the barracks is the focus of an advisory board appointed by the commanding general. The board will study implementing a single soldier living communities program.

Lt. Col. Dennis D. Harrison and Post Command Sgt. Maj. William H. Acebes will spearhead the team.

"Key to the success of our program will be soldier participation in the design and planning of the total barracks environment," said Harrison. "Improving services and barracks upgrade will be our top priority."

"The commander's advisory board, comprised of the personal, special and garrison staffs at Fort Benning, will develop a multi-year, multi-resource coordinated program," he said.

The units' Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers councils will provide the forum for soldier participation.

"The BOSS councils will get input from soldiers on specific needs through a needs survey," said Sgt. Major Ireland D. Pulley, garrison sergeant major and BOSS chairman. "This is a change from past programs where someone other than the customer decided what the soldier needed in the way of barracks and services," he said.

The needs survey will cover 10 categories: recreation, economic, social, political, safety and security, health and fitness, cultural,

COMMENTARY

Life's a game. But unlike most games, it's played by unwritten rules.

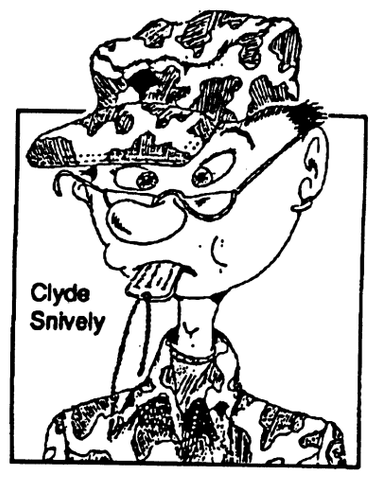
With that revelation welling up inside, I took the week off and spent it contemplating my navel and consulting my local guru high atop Pine Mountain to see what some of the more common, unwritten rules were.

You've all heard them: "what goes around, comes around," "don't spit into the wind," "those you step on, on the way up the ladder will meet you on your way down," to cite a few.

Both my guru and my belly button told me that last rule was key. They said there is absolutely no reason we can't be nice to people.

"Courtesy," the guru explained, "is what it's all about. If we were courteous to one another, there'd be no wars, spouses wouldn't batter one another and work wouldn't be work, it'd be a pleasant place to be."

I thought about that and decided Mr. Guru had a point.



I thought about how angry I get when people don't have the courtesy to signal turns when driving cars. I thought about the uncourteous klutzes who toss their Burger King wrappers from their cars as they drive down 1st Division Road.

I remembered how a woman golfer wanted to wrap her driver around another woman's throat because the other woman burst into laughter as they came alongside the golfer who was just beginning her swing.

As the golfer fixed them with an icy stare through the chain link fence, the discourteous one proclaimed loudly to her friend, "If golfers think I'm going to be quiet when I walk by them, they have another thought coming."

Common courtesy. How uncommon it is.

We go through the check out lines at the Post Exchange or Commissary and remark how friendly and courteous the clerks are. Yet just behind us is a war zone.

We have patrons snarling at one another, trying to steal things and letting kids run amok.

Out in the parking lot people are blasting one another with their horns because "that was MY space you just pulled into."

And if it's not horns blasting, it's stereo systems assaulting our ears. Have some courtesy, sense of others, and save my ear drums.

We visit or phone other offices and come away marvelling at how helpful the office staff is and how they go that extra mile to help.

Yet when someone from that same office asks a co-worker for a hand, he gets one of those icy stares and a brusque brush off.

Courteous people respect the rights and property of others. They don't rip off fellow soldiers, key cars, or practice their BB gun marksmanship on light posts.

Life is a game. The unwritten rules categorize people by who they know, how they dress, how much money they have, and what they know and even by things we can't help, such as our sex and our race.

But no matter whose game of life you play, one rule always makes the top 10 and it's a rule we can all live with.

And that is, "there's no reason not to help a fellow human being."

The rules of life don't stipulate that you help the person because you're an all-around good guy or because you hope to get something else in return ("what goes around, comes around," or "do unto others as you'd have them do unto you").

But, it does clearly state that no matter how great we may think we are, we can't do it alone — "it's not what you know, but who you know."

What's your reason for not donating blood?

By Kelly Boozell
Tripler Army Medical Center

TRIPLER ARMY MEDICAL CENTER, Hawaii — Chances are, someone out there is dying for something you have in abundance. Do you have a good excuse for not giving it?

There are very few good reasons not to donate blood. Being ill at the time, travel to a country where malaria is prevalent, or taking certain prescribed medications are acceptable outs.

Fortunately, most deterrents are temporary; only a few will permanently keep you from donating blood. Yet only 2 to 3 percent of the population donates all the blood in America.

Every day, blood donor teams across the country hear various excuses from prospective donors.

Here are just 10 of the "lousy" reasons not to donate blood:

• "I'm afraid of needles." Contrary to popular belief, there is very little pain in the actual donation process. The feeling is no different than pinching your arm in the bend of the elbow.

• "Other people must be giving blood."

Only 2 to 3 percent of the eligible donor population bother to give blood. New donors are needed to replace those who become ineligible because of age or medical reasons, and to keep pace with the rising need for blood each year.

• "My blood isn't the right type." If your blood is O, A, B or AB — positive or negative — your blood is the right type. All types of blood are needed every day.

• "You wouldn't want my blood." Each donor's medical history is reviewed before drawing blood to protect the donor as well as the person who will receive the blood. Let the technician decide.

• "I don't have any blood to spare." If you are in generally good health, you have 10 to 12 pints of blood in your body. You may safely donate one pint of blood every eight weeks.

• "I'm afraid of being turned down." If you are deferred for any reason, that's all right. At least you tried. The deferral may only be temporary, so try again later. The need for blood is continuous.

What: Blood drive

Where: Infantry Hall, Classroom 3

When: Today, 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

• "I don't donate unless it's an emergency." If people wait until a relative or friend needs blood, it could be too late to donate. It takes at least six hours for the necessary typing and testing of the blood after donation. Blood has to be available before it is needed.

• "They throw a lot of blood away." The majority of blood collected by the Hawaii Area Joint Blood Program at Tripler Army Medical Center is used at Tripler or shipped to other military medical units for transfusion, one to five days after its donation.

Last year, less than 5 percent of the blood collected was not used within 35 days after donation. The figures for your facility are probably quite similar.

• "I can pay for any blood I need." If dollars could be transfused, there would be no need to donate. However, only blood can be transfused, and only people can donate. All the money in the world is useless if no blood is available.

• "I don't have the time to donate." It only takes 30 minutes to give a pint of blood. If you donated every time you were able in one year, it would only take three hours of your time.

By not donating blood, you may be robbing someone of the most precious gift of all, the gift of life. It's safe, and it's simple. Give because it's in your heart.

36th soldiers prove they're humanitarians

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

MOGADISHU, Somalia — Often soldiers complain that combat engineers don't have a mission in peacetime.

Although it's true that the role of the engineer is somewhat limited in peacetime, engineers excel during a conflict or special duty.

Fort Benning's own 36th Engineer Group proved during Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm that engineers are capable of performing effectively.

However, the 36th is currently showing a drive that far exceeds their performance in Southwest Asia.

They're working harder and faster than they ever have, with a goal of completing nearly 800 miles of roadway, building semi-permanent basecamps, and building latrines and shower facilities for themselves and other coalition forces by Feb. 28.

With only 1,100 soldiers on the ground with the group, this is quite a goal. Some might say it's impossible.

Still, the engineers work hard as a team, fighting the rock-laden earth to scrape out a road from a 200 year-old goat trail. Occasionallv. the engineers will tear up a tire. With determination to complete the mission, the soldiers quickly replace the punctured tires, and it's back to work.

Work doesn't seem a problem.

All soldiers are up before dawn, taking care of personal hygiene, eating their Meals, Ready-to-Eat for breakfast and preparing their equipment to move out.

At the first crack of light, vehicles are loaded and are already outside the compound gate. The soldiers quickly move down the few miles of road to their jobsite and hurry to start their work.

Back in basecamp, finance, legal, maintenance and the command group are busy taking care of soldiers' needs and getting replacement parts for vehicles.

You see, it all boils down to two simple facts:

1. Soldiers know that the sooner the roads are finished, the sooner the Somali children will receive the badly needed food and medicine. Soldiers want to help the children. The completion of their mission has a tangible result (i.e. Somali children will live healthier lives.)

2. The soldiers want to come home. If they're not motivated and hard-charging, the mission will take longer to complete. Result: they won't come home. Every soldier I talked to in Somalia desperately wants to come home.

No one has asked these soldiers to work 14-hour days and no one expects them to — except themselves. Each soldier has made a personal commitment to coming home as soon as possible and to help the Somali children.

That's why the engineers of Fort Benning are doing such a great job in Somalia to complete this "impossible" mission.

LETTER

Scouts say 'thanks'

The Cub Scouts, leaders and parents of Pack 217 are grateful to the residents of Custer Terrace, Upatoi Terrace and Battle Park for their contributions and support during the 1992 Cub Scout year.

The popcorn sales, Christmas tree sales, bowl-a-thon, Scouting for Food and other numerous contributions enabled our Cub Scout pack to achieve many goals and made the year a more enjoyable one for the boys.

Commander sends thanks

The Training and Doctrine Command had the best safety year ever in fiscal 1992. Accidents and fatalities were down in every category. Success was the result of a commitment of commanders, staff, cadre and supervisors at all levels. I extend to your command a "well done."

STUDY: Single soldiers' quality of life to improve professional development, spiritual and facilities. "The focus will be on needs not being met," said Pulley.

The surveys will be tailored to each area since the needs in the Kelley Hill area may be different from the needs of soldiers in the Main Post area, according to Pulley.

"If soldiers take an active part in the survey, we will have a clear idea of the needs in each soldier living community," said Acebes. "We will have soldiers solving problems," he said.

"The goal is to make the quality of life in the barracks more comparable to the living standards of soldiers living off post or in post housing. Hopefully, there will be more privacy, greater freedom of expression and more latitude as to how they conduct their personal life," said Harrison.

Hospital serves food 'a la carte'

By Karen Schultz
Martin Army Community Hospital

Things have changed in the hospital dining facility. To better serve the staff, patients and the many visitors who come to the hospital, a cafeteria pricing system, "a la carte," was recently implemented.

Under this new system, enlisted soldiers receiving subsistence in kind (not on separate rations) will not have to pay for their meals if they have their meal card.

Enlisted soldiers on separate rations will pay the food cost only. Officers and civilians pay food cost plus a surcharge that is prorated into the cost of each individual menu item.

Under the old pricing system, a customer paid one price whether he or she chose a complete meal or only a soup and salad.

The "a la carte" pricing system allows the customer to buy individual food items, instead of paying a single price for an entire meal. The bottom line is to give the consumer the control to make his or her own choice.

This approach has been implemented at other military hospitals with great success according to Maj. Brenda Forman, chief, Nutrition Care Division.

At Martin Army Community Hospital, the response thus far by visitors and staff indicates another success story in the making, Forman said.

Another benefit of this new service is the extended hours of operation. Breakfast is served from 6 to 10 a.m., lunch from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and dinner is available from 4 to 6 p.m.

"By being open nearly the entire day, we hope our staff and visitors will take advantage of these extended hours," Forman said.

Staff members, visitors, or patients who are sitting in one of the hospital's waiting areas should try this new service, Forman said. When they do, they will find this new system very convenient whether they just want to buy a cup of coffee and a donut, a hamburger, popcorn, or a complete meal, she said.

"A la carte" is yet another example of how the hospital is striving to meet the needs of customers, Forman said.

"This initiative is definitely a change for the better and is in line with the Martin Care spirit of customer service," said Forman.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Jane M. Winand
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q: I put some lamps on layaway at a local store before Christmas. I had made several payments when my girlfriend told me that it wasn't such a good idea for me to move in right now.

I don't have room in the barracks for the lamps so I decided to stop my layaway purchase.

The store did cancel my layaway, but kept one-half of my money as a "cancellation" charge. They did have some signs at the layaway counter that mentioned they could do this, but it isn't fair. They got $30 of mine and the lamps. Is it legal for the store to keep my money?

A: Layaways can be a problem for consumers. The first thing you must realize is that a layaway is not a purchase. The store holds that merchandise for you until you make final payment.

Problems usually arise during the time the merchandise is still being held by the store and you are still paying.

During this time, the merchandise is the store's and you must abide by any reasonable rule that the store makes in regard to the layaway.

In this case, the store had a posted policy that it could keep the merchandise and a portion of your payments should you cancel the layaway. This may not seem fair, but it is legal.

There is no federal or Georgia law that specifically regulates layaways. As long as the store does not use unfair or deceptive sales practices, as defined in federal law, the store is free to make its own rules in regard to layaways. To protect yourself, you must make sure you know and understand all the store's rules. Make sure to ask for a copy of the rules.

If none are printed, have the store write them down on your receipt and have the salesperson sign it. Make sure you know the refund policy. Keep good records of the description of the merchandise and of all your payments.

Remember, the store keeps the ownership of the merchandise and should anything happen to it, such as fire, flood, theft or bankruptcy, you may not be able to receive the merchandise or a full refund. Layaways can be a good idea, but you must understand the rules before you decide to play the game.

If you have more specific questions, you may call the Legal Assistance Division at 545-3281 and make an appointment to speak with an attorney.

The Military Police Activity is spearheading a drive to collect soda can tabs to benefit 8-year-old leukemia victim Kendall Crawford. Anyone who wants to turn in tabs can call the MP desk at 545-5223 or Ina Davis at 545-3306.

VA announces Persian Gulf family support

Department of Veterans Affairs

The Department of Veterans Affairs has announced a program that is designed to provide a variety of services to veterans and families who participated in the Persian Gulf War.

This new opportunity for veterans is called the Persian Gulf Family Support Program and provides information and assistance on education, family counselling, benefits and other services available for Gulf War veterans.

The program will work closely with the Department of Defense, National Guard and Reserve units, the Red Cross, Vet Centers and community agencies to conduct outreach and coordinate services. Additionally, case management and consultation services will be provided at various locations throughout the state.

The goal of the program is to provide early and extensive intervention with Persian Gulf veterans, reduce the negative psychological impact of war and enhance healthy readjustment for these veterans and their families.

The program for Georgia is being managed by the VA Medical Center in Atlanta, but it will have mobile teams that will support the entire state.

Veterans interested in this program can contact: Bruce N. Rooney, program coordinator with VA Medical Center (Atlanta), 1670 Clairmont Road, Decatur, Ga. 30033, or call (404) 329-4659 or (404) 321-6111, Ext. 7400, or fax (404) 728-7779.

Students chill with the arctic

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Sub-zero winds knife across the frozen waste, where even the sun won't raise its head above the horizon during the long arctic winter.

This is a scene Fort Benning children probably wouldn't be too comfortable in, but students at Wilbur, Faith and Dexter Schools are nevertheless participating in an extended science project tied in with the arctic region.

Jerry Christy, curriculum coordinator for science, math and computers at Fort Benning Schools, said the Arctic Project is a coordinated effort involving, at this stage, 14 states and nine countries.

"By the time the project culminates in 1996, schools around the world will be involved," said Christy.

The project, he explained, focuses on environmental studies, which will tie in eventually with an arctic exploration slated for 1996.

"Will Steiger, one of the explorers, visited us in December," said Christy. "The students took him exploring at Victory Pond."

"Each group participating will focus on a different area," he said. "Our focus is 'the land' — we're taking a historical perspective, with the students learning how the local environment has been affected by changes in this area, mostly over the last 50 years."

Christy said the students, from grades four and above, will eventually compare their findings with the findings of the exploration team.

"They'll learn how environmental changes at a local level can eventually affect the global environment," he said. "The purpose of the project is to raise awareness of what effect we're having on our planet."

Nurses celebrate birthday

Martin Army Community Hospital

Nurses at Martin Army Community Hospital celebrated the 92nd anniversary of the founding of the Army Nurse Corps Feb. 2.

The theme of this year's celebration was "The Spirit of Nursing" and was highlighted by a program in the hospital's Baugh Memorial Conference Room.

Army nurses, active Reserve and retired, as well as the hospital's executive staff, gathered to pay tribute to the nurse corps. The program included a representation by 2nd Lt. Liza Ludovico on "The Junior Officer Perspective" and "The Military to Civilian Nursing transition" by retired Lt. Col. Amelia Perez.

The anniversary theme was highlighted by a presentation by Col. Anthony Riester, chief, Nursing Administration-days, who spoke about the contributions of Jane Delano.

Delano, a former superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps, was best known for her work with the Red Cross. Her career was devoted to the service of taking care of those who could not care for themselves.

Delano proved herself to be a true professional and significantly contributed to the early establishment of the corps as a profession worthy of recognition, officials said.

Another part of the program was a three-screen, multi-media slide presentation set to music that depicted Army nurses throughout the history of the corps.

Nurses were shown in settings all over the world and at Martin Army. One segment included pictures of people of many different cultures set to the song of "Heal the World."

Col. Vernon Spaulding, hospital commander, cited the significant role nurses play in the overall health-care mission and the strides the corps has made. The ceremony concluded with the traditional cake cutting.

Wielding a ceremonial sabre, the most junior officer, 2nd Lt. Julie Stanfill, and the most senior officer, retired Maj. Bernice Gay, cut the anniversary cake.

"This event was a special opportunity for Army nurses to celebrate their pride and commitment to each other and their profession," said Maj. Sandra Lynch, anniversary coordinator and head nurse of the postpartum ward. "The history of the Army Nurse Corps is both a record of service to others and a chronicle of the nursing profession."

Math maestro says changes adding up

Fort Benning Schools

Mathematics is more than just counting numbers. It's a means by which we think logically, communicate, reason and solve problems, according to Dr. Mary M. Lindquist, president of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

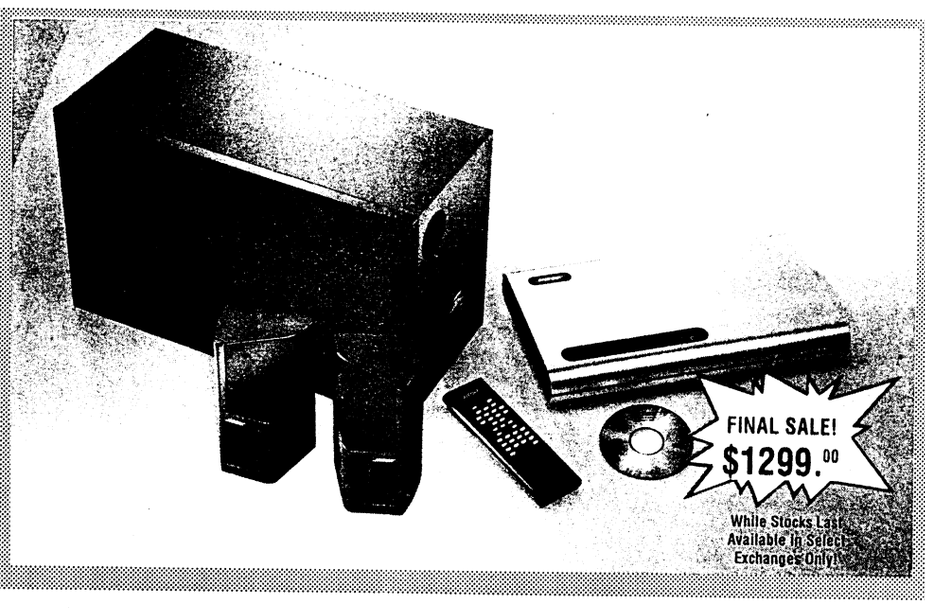
Lindquist visited Don C. Faith Middle School and Edward A. White School, Wednesday. Meeting with administrators, teachers and students, Lindquist discussed the importance of mathematics education and the positive changes taking place in the teaching and learning of mathematics.

Don C. Faith Middle School was Lindquist's first stop at 8:30 a.m. where she met Principal Olin Harp and classroom teachers Kelly Martin, Martha McKindra and Gail Cooper.

At Faith Middle School, Lindquist observed the numerous ways teachers have integrated the NCTM standards into a total curriculum approach to teaching and learning mathematics.

Forty states and the District of Columbia have adopted or are adopting a state mathematics curriculum framework to include activities that correlate with the teaching-reform principles set forth in NCTM's "Curriculum and Evaluation Standards for School Mathematics."

The 54 standards detailed in that 1989 document depict a vision of mathematics reform where every student possesses a suitable mathematics background to function in a complex informational and technological society.



NCTM is one of the world's largest organization dedicated to the improvement of mathematics education and to meeting the needs of mathematics educators.

Through its many publications, conferences and information services, this professional organization of more than 92,000 members and 245 affiliated groups in the United States and Canada serves as a forum for discussing new developments in mathematics education and sharing innovative classroom techniques.

New laundry facility opens on Kelley Hill

3/24 officials participate in grand opening

By Susan Dutton
3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division

The grand opening of the new coin-operated laundry facility at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center was Jan. 29.

Col. Robert St. Onge, the brigade commander, and Command Sgt. Maj. Charles Jackson, the brigade command sergeant major, participated in the honors by cutting the inaugural ribbon, surrounded by guests and members of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division.

Lamar Caldwell, chief of Community Recreation Division, led the gathering on a tour of the new facility.

Creation of the facility is a result of effort by several agencies, according to Jackson.

Soldiers had requested more washers and dryers through the Brigade Commander's Advisory Council, he said, and this prompted the request for a laundry facility.

With help from the Community Recreation Division, the needed appliances were installed at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center, he added.

The new laundry has 20 washers, 12 dryers, detergent vending machines, a lounge area with a television and five video arcade machines.

With the recreation center adjacent to the laundromat, soldiers have the opportunity for drinks and food, pool, or music while their clothes are washing and drying.

The hours of operation are tailored to meet the needs of the single soldier, officials said.

The laundry is open to all service members and their families from noon to 9 p.m., seven days a week.

POST BRIEFS

Briefing to focus on 36th Engineer Group

Columbus television and newspaper personalities in conjunction with the U.S. Army Infantry Center's Public Affairs Office and The Bayonet will present a special briefing to the spouses of the 36th Engineer Group's soldiers.

The television and newspaper reporters recently returned from covering the 36th's soldiers in Somalia and will focus on the 36th's soldiers and how they are doing.

The briefing will be Saturday at Infantry Hall, Building 4, from 2 to 4 p.m.

For more information, contact your Family Unit Network or call 545-1400.

Post playoffs begin

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Fort Benning basketball playoffs are under way with 21 teams vying for the chance to play in the post championship.

Here is a run down of two games played Tuesday night at Audie Murphy Fitness Center and scores from Briant Wells Field House, Santiago Fitness Center and Harmony Church Field House Tuesday and Wednesday evening.

Noncommissioned Officer Academy (Professionals) vs. 598th Maintenance Company (Hit Squad)

The Hit Squad ambushed the Professionals 65-37 behind the hot shooting of Ronald James and Bobby Matthews. James scored 18 points, with 10 in the second half, and Matthews added 13 to key the offense. The defense allowed only one Professional to reach double figures. Tyrone Robinson popped in 12 points to lead the Professionals in scoring.

In the first half, the Hit Squad claimed the lead early and never looked back. James scored 8 points while Matthews added 7. Willie Tucker chipped in 6 of his eight points. Up by 10 at the break, 29-19, the Hit Squad turned up the defensive pressure in the second half creating numerous turnovers which led to fastbreak baskets at the other end.

Midway through the final period and up by as many as 20 points, the Hit Squad went to the bench to give the second team some playing time in the tournament.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Hawkeyes) vs. 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment (The Rock)

The Hawkeyes got 32 of their 61 points from the duo of Orlando Wesley and Orlando Edwards who each hit for 16 points in a runaway 61-40 win over The Rock.

Up by 6 at the half at 30-24, the Hawkeyes zeroed in on the basket with Wesley and Edwards doing damage inside while Timmie Nettles and Anthony Buie popped from the outside. Nettles burned The Rock for 11 points and Buie added another 10 to help open up the inside for Edwards and Wesley.

Dallas Hogans led The Rock with 14 points and Ralph Dudley chipped in 8 points for a team that was simply out gunned in the second half.

Tuesday night scores.

Cruise-matics swamp Florida State Seminoles

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Columbus-Fort Benning Rugby Football Club Cruise-matics pulled their version of the tomahawk chop out of the closet Saturday when the Seminoles of Florida State University came to Stilwell Field and ended up getting scalped 64-0.

The Cruise-matics scored early and often against the Seminole defense, at times running around, through and over it.

"We owed them a little payback for the whipping we got in Florida, the last time we played them." said reserve player Brent Neilson, "We only had 11 guys on the travel squad and they put it to us good."

In the first half, outside center Bill Boice put the Cruise-matics up on the board with the first try of the match and kicker Malcolm Frost added the extra point kick to give the Cruisers a 7-0 lead that they would never relinquish.

Minutes later, eight man Paul Morton ran over the Seminole defense for his first try and a 12-0 lead.

Wing forward Chuck Hensley scored his first try on a line in at the Seminoles' goal line. Frost added the kick for a Cruise-matic lead of 19-0.

Midway through the half, Frost playing wing went outside the defense for his first try and then added the kick to boost the lead to 26-0. Inside center Tim Butterfield slipped into the end zone for the Cruise-matics fifth try of the half and with Frost kicking the extra point pushed the score to 33-0.

Fly half Matt Lisner closed out the scoring for the Cruisers when he kicked the ball toward the Seminoles' goal line then picked up the ball and ran it into the end zone for a try. Brian Mennes gave Frost a rest and kicked the extra point for a 40-0 lead at the break.

To add insult to injury, the Cruise-matics opened the second half with outside center Ken Wolfe getting into the end zone for his first score of the day. Wolfe replaced Boice in the first half after Boice was taken to the hospital for a cut over the right eyebrow. Frost put in the extra point kick for a 47-0 lead with more to come.

Winger Steve Bunch got into the scoring column with his first try when the Cruise-matics pushed the scrum over the goal line with Bunch putting the ball down for the try and a 52-0 lead.

Late in the half with the ball out of bounds to the Seminoles at the Nole goal line, the duo of Jerry Soho and Roy Kruger stole the inbounds pass and fell into the Seminoles' end zone, neither man would give up possession of the ball so they split the score. Frost lifted the score to 59-0 with the extra point kick.

With time running out in the match Morton added the final cut to the Seminoles with his second try of the day and a final score of 64-0. The Cruise-matics are 3-0 at the start of the season with wins over Auburn, High Country of Atlanta and now FSU.

Bass can add new twist

By Steve Price and Earl Bentz
Outboard Marine Corporation

Jigging spoons rank high in popularity as cold weather bass lures, but they would probably be even more popular if fishermen could avoid getting line twist when they use them.

The spoons, which imitate injured baitfish, are jigged up and down in deep water. The jigging motion, which causes the lure to jump rapidly upward and then fall back, is what causes fishing line to twist and become unusable.

"Actually, there is a simple way to avoid line twist with a jigging spoon, and you don't have to use a swivel," notes professional bass tournament angler David Wharton of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff.

"The mistake fishermen make is dropping the spoon back down on a tight line, rather than a slack line. If you can feel your spoon falling back, you're not fishing it properly."

Line twists, says Wharton, when the spoon jumps with the upward jigging motion of the rod. When allowed to drop back freely, it untwists itself. If tension is kept on the line while the spoon is falling, the line can't untwist itself.

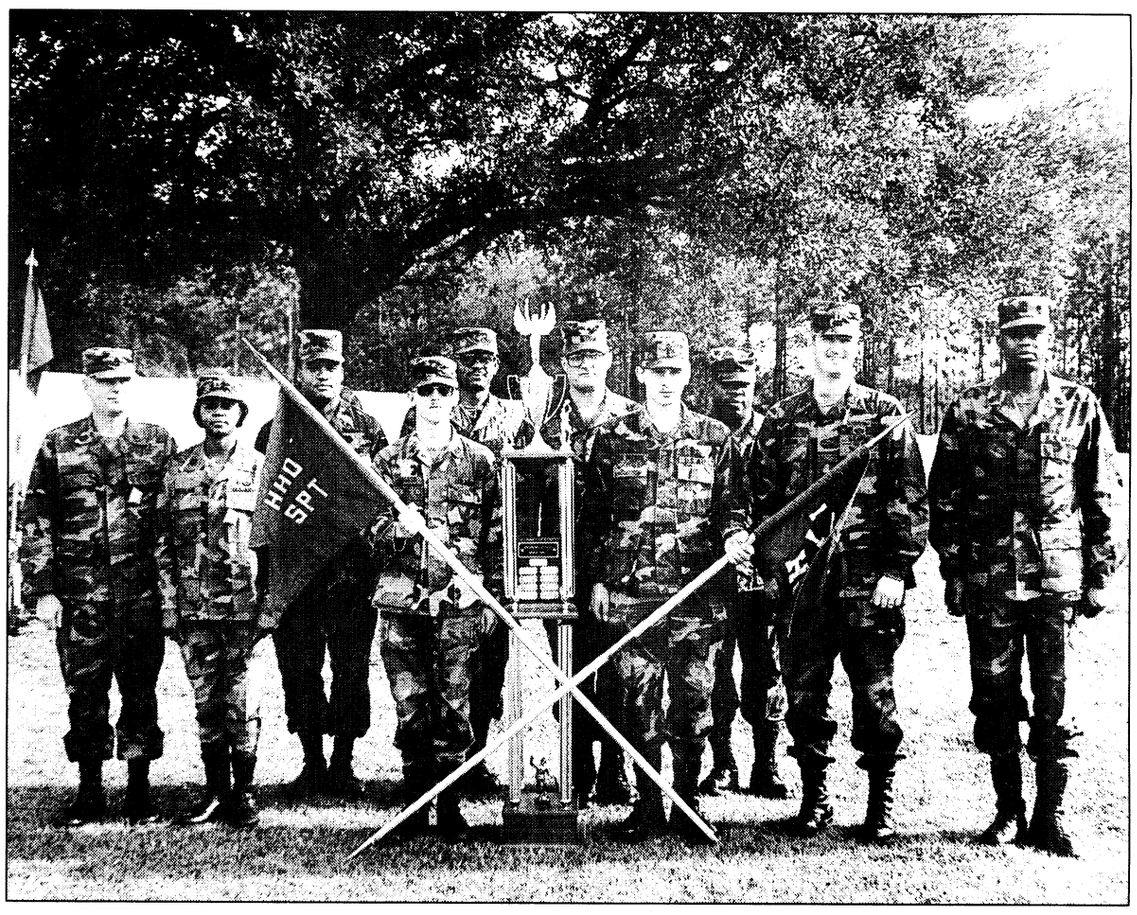
"Basically, all you need to do is drop your rod tip quickly right after you jig the spoon up," explains

Wharton. "Not only will the line untwist itself, but the spoon will appear much more natural as it's falling."

This slight change of technique requires spoon fishermen to become dedicated line-watchers, since strikes on a falling spoon may not be felt.

"All you have to do is watch your line where it enters the water," says the Johnson pro. "When you have a strike, the line will jerk slightly. After you experience it a few times, you won't have any trouble recognizing it, but you need to be looking for it so you can set the hook immediately."

Spoon jigging can be an extremely productive way to fish in cold weather because the lure works well in deep, open water where bass often concentrate this time of year. The lure is simply pitched out and allowed to sink to the proper depth, then worked up and down with the rod tip.



"Because bass gather in large schools in the winter, you can easily find them with depthfinders," says Wharton. "I suggest crisscrossing a large bay or cove that has a deep channel and putting a marker buoy on anything that looks like it may be a school of fish.

"Then, drop a spoon down to them. The spoon may even show up on your depthfinder so you know when you're at the proper depth."

Wharton also suggests trying different jigging actions until bass start hitting. At times bass may want a rapid vertical jigging motion while at other times they may prefer a more subtle presentation.

"Remember, also," he says, "that a spoon jumps up much more than your rod tip moves, so you don't need to jig your rod very much. You may be pulling your spoon completely away from the bass.

"Then, lower your rod tip quickly so the spoon falls naturally on a slack line. If the bass are in a feeding mood, they'll hit it."

Two 3rd Brigade units get trophy

By 2nd Lt. Susan Dutton
24th Infantry Division

Two units from 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) took the Commanding General's Sports Trophy for 1992 in an unprecedented tie.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, and Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 324th Forward Support Battalion, each accumulated a total of 785 points in basketball, football, softball, and volleyball competitions.

Fort Benning units compete in these sports throughout the year and are awarded points based on their standing in intramural and installation competition.

HHD, 324th FSB, won the post competition in football in 1992.

In a ceremony outside 3rd Brigade Headquarters at Kelley Hill, Col. Robert St. Onge presented the trophy to representatives from both units' various sports teams.

The 3rd Brigade will keep the trophy until it is awarded next year.

Army Cares About People!

Holy month of fasting to begin

By Richard S. Voss
Special to The Bayonet

Ramadan, the holy month of fasting for the people of the Al-Islamic faith, is expected to begin the evening of Feb. 21, the first evening that the new moon is due to set after sundown.

Beginning the following morning and continuing for 29 or 30 days, Muslims the world over will completely abstain from eating, drinking (even water), sexual gratification and smoking each day from first light until sundown. Their minds focused on their spirituality, they will also refrain from loud talk, arguments, frivolity and other displays of emotion during the same period.

Supervisors should understand some of the effects the ritual of fasting may have on those engaging in the fast.

First, fasting tends to be debilitating, particularly in terms of stamina. The absence of water in the Muslim's daily activity is the most important factor, since overexertion in certain environments may lead to dehydration. In those cases in which there may be any such risk, the Muslim must regularly cool himself with cold water, especially the head, neck and back, and preferably apply a wet cloth to maintain the benefit of the water as long as possible. Observing much of the fast outdoors in the sun will cause a person to dehydrate to such an extent that, with the exception of water, almost any kind of drink consumed at sundown, when the Muslim's thirst is naturally at its peak, will cause sudden drowsiness.

Carbonated beverages should be strictly avoided in such environments. However, a Muslim soldier fasting while on maneuvers in the desert environment at the National Training Center at Fort Irwin, Calif., in 1989 found drinking two quarts of Gatorade to be a particularly effective way to break the fast while avoiding drowsiness.

Muslims should avoid having their-blood taken during fasting. A Muslim fasting outdoors in the sun may pass out if his blood is taken, and medics could find it difficult to get the pulse rate back to normal. Medics who encounter such situations should immediately inform their patient that he has a medical condition. According to the Qur'an, a Muslim may break the fast if he becomes ill, and make up for missed days after Ramadan is over. Once he agrees to break the fast for that day, the medics may administer whatever is necessary to remedy the problem.

Physical training should be avoided during the fast or at least postponed each day so that it can be terminated just before fastbreaking at sundown. However, this routine is demanding, as it is necessary to provide daily for adequate time to rest and opportunities to eat at night.

Muslims should consume a well balanced, prefast meal or suhur every morning, complete with plenty of liquids. Diuretics such as caffeine are discouraged too close to fajr, since they will undermine the benefits of the meal. Suhur, which is a full meal, should not begin less than an hour prior to fajr, which means that Muslims will have to awaken between 4 and 4:30 a.m. every day if they wish to eat in relative comfort. This means that some sleep may have to be made up.

A good suhar is low in fat and high in protein and carbohydrates. A good fastbreaking meal or futur should also be low in fat, but need not be planned quite as dietetically. Each meal should begin with water or a non-carbonated drink high in electrolytes. At least two quarts are recommended at each meal for those whose daily work includes outdoor physical activity. It is normal for an active, adult male, such as an active-duty soldier, to lose ten pounds by the end of the month of fasting so diet and exercise routines must be planned.

For more information, contact Imam Yahya Ansar Islam at 689-6922.

On Feb. 21 you may call 687-1228 for a recorded message.

Fasting times at a glance

Special to The Bayonet

This table indicates the beginning and end times for fasting during Ramadan 1413/February to March 1993. Expressed in military time for the eastern time zone, it covers the entire area of Fort Benning and all applicable scientific error has been factored in.

Because fasting must begin no later than first light, when the sun is 19 degrees below the horizon, while the fajr prayer must be performed no earlier than first light, and given the geographical expanse of the area in question, three minutes must be added to "begin" times to calculate fajr prayer times. For maghrib prayer times, the indicated "end" times are identical to the actual time for prayer.

On Feb. 21, the time for the sighting of the new moon is the same as the"end" time. The same applies on March 23, when the sighting of the new moon will indicate the end of the month of fasting. Early on the morning following the last day of fasting at a scheduled time after sunrise, the Salat al-Fitr or prayer of the cessation of fasting will be performed in a large gathering, followed by gift giving and visitation.

Fort Benning celebrates National Prayer Breakfast

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Hundreds attended the National Prayer Breakfast at Ft. Benning NCO club Feb. 11 at 6:30 a.m. The National Prayer Breakfast at Ft. Benning was held in conjunction with the National Prayer Breakfast in Washington, D.C.

The Guest speaker Chaplain Brig. Gen. Donald W. Shea, deputy chief of chaplains, Washington, D.C., reminded all of the meaning of the prayer breakfast.

Shea said, "it is a time set aside to take a stop action shot of the things of value in our lives. We as Americans live out of a bank of national values."

Shea spoke of new soldiers mirroring our national values, long before they were adopted as national values, basic values like commitment, discipline, stamina, skill, loyalty, duty, self sacrifice and compassion.

Above all he reminded that we are all world leaders who must see the handwriting on the wall to help change.

Center offers English classes

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC chaplains office

The Religious Education Center offers English classes to all foreign born spouses on Tuesdays at 9:30 a.m. in Building 2522. Classes are open to family members of U.S. military, School of the Americas and Allied students.

The classes are free with baby-sitting provided and focus on speaking and readings skills. Religious education and American lifestyle is also taught. This class enables foreign born spouses a chance to learn English at their own pace.

Those interested can enroll in these classes at any time. The classes run from September to May. For more information, contact Bill Putman 545-4715 or 545-2366.

Problem-solving skills add up

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

With a focus on enhancing the ability of students to solve problems using clear, logical thinking, Edward A. White School's Young Mathematicians Conference Feb. 12 hosted 21 presenters from all walks of life showing how math affects their everyday lives and jobs.

According to Principal Janet Wynn, the conference for kindergartners through fifth-graders was organized by the school's Curriculum Committee.

The committee, with representatives from each grade level, sent out invitations to possible presenters from Fort Benning, Columbus and Alabama, asking them to commit to four 30-minute sessions.

Responding presenters included visiting teachers and community leaders.

Dr. Judy Archer, coordinator of Language Arts and Social Studies for the Fort Benning Schools, worked with second-graders on counting money and ordering from catalogs based on their funds.

School nurse Liliane Baumgartner talked about the math skills needed for weighing and measuring and counting heartbeats.

Col. Greg Camp, commander of the 29th Infantry Regiment, explained how math is used in instructing groups of soldiers.

Cindy Givens, Don C. Faith Middle School media specialist, had fifth-graders doing technical problem-solving in teams with equal resources using common items such as marshmallows, toothpicks and cups.

Chief Warrant Officer 2 Bryan Branham, an Army pilot and White School parent, took fourth-graders on an imaginary trip from the school to Hawaii. He spoke about using math for such things as determining that they were not too heavy before take-off and filing a flight plan.

Dr. Greg Foster explained how math is used in treating patients and figuring billing.

Richard Skinner of the Fort Benning Schools showed how a school system uses numbers to budget and know how many personnel it requires to meet its needs.

The conference is just one of the school's efforts to increase student achievement and the ability of the students to use higher level, critical thinking skills by showing their practical application.

Last year White School hosted a Young Writers' Conference.

Dr. Judy Archer uses a "magic microphone" to tell if students have counted their money correctly.

Talks to focus on children

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The fifth and final session of Talks About Young Children (to age 5) series, "Learning Together: Creative Activities at home and Community Resources for Parents and Young Children," will be March 3 at Dexter School from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The free lecture series, aimed at Fort Benning parents, care givers and educators, features programs about young children.

The program has consistently been conducted in a lecture format in previous sessions. The final session in this year's series will be conducted using a different format.

A variety of topics will be presented as parents move from station to station learning about specific activities and ideas that they can use with their young child.

Activities are designed to enhance parent-child relationships and to provide meaningful experiences for parents and children to share.

Sessions will be conducted on activities related to reading to your child, mathematics-related activities to do with young children, cooking activities to do with young children, activities that use wood and other supplies, a presentation on local places to visit with your child, and a session on effective discipline for young children.

Presenters for the evening will be Fort Benning teachers Ernestine Ezekiel, Kathy Joyner, Nora Lester, and Ann Saunders; Kathy Einhorn, assistant director of Special Education in the Fort Benning Schools, and Jennifer Williams, coordinator of Child Development Services.

Reservations for this lecture will be taken through March 1 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. or until the session is full.

Children are not permitted to attend.

Tot Town will be open from 6:15 to 9:15 p.m. on the evenings of the series.

Parents are responsible for registration and payment.

This is the second year that the Fort Benning Schools have sponsored this series. It was developed to address one of the national goals for education — that children who enter school will be ready to learn.

Expert schools parents on children's behavior

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

How to make the most of your preschooler's behavior strengths in patterns and preferences was the focus of Dr. Judy Archer's lecture to parents and care givers at the Fort Benning Schools Feb. 8 "Talks on Young Children" at Dexter School.

Beginning by having the audience take a forced-choice test, Archer demonstrated that adults have different behavior preferences making up their personalities that they then try to project on their children or those whom they look after.

She divided these into several categories:

Introvert/Extrovert

• Extrovert - recharges himself by being in action, new situations and talking. (75 percent of the population)

• Introvert - recharges himself by having time alone, likes to reflect, daydream and rehearse responses. (25 percent of the population)

Intuitive/Sensing

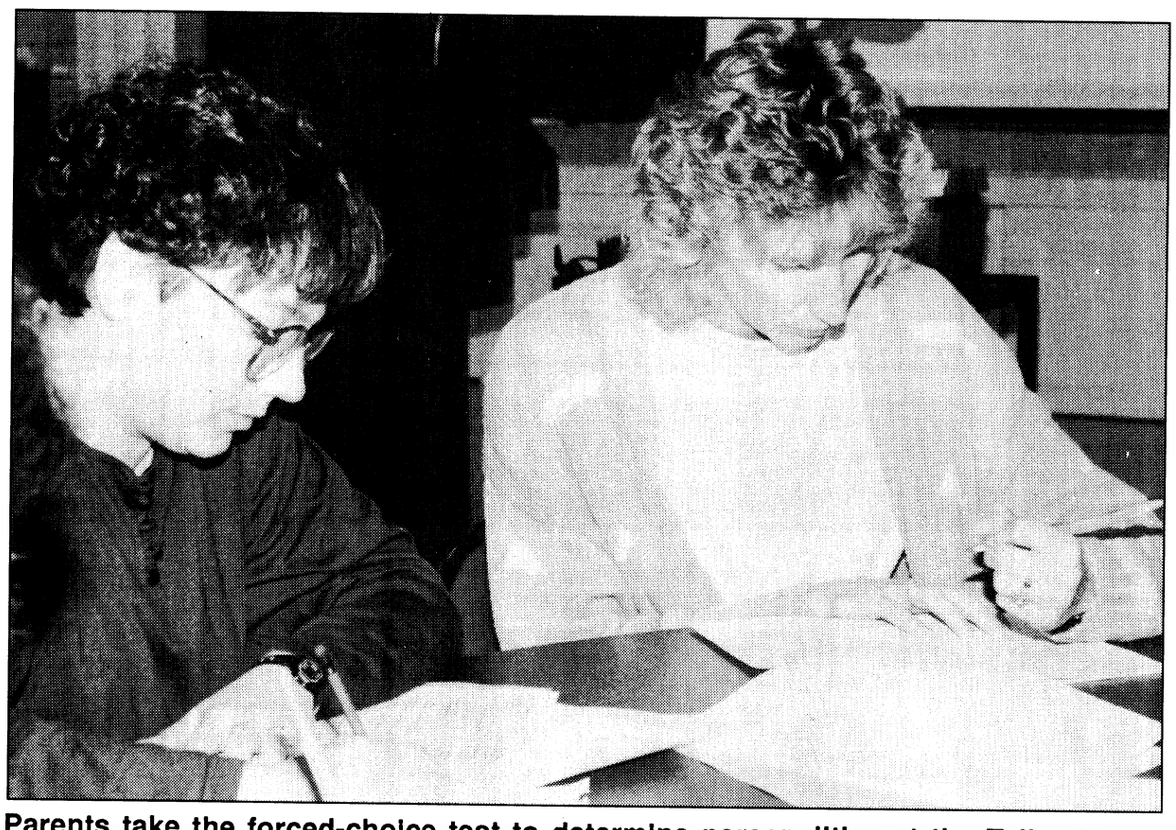
• Intuitive - imaginative, fantasizes, looks to the future, has strong sense of self. (50 percent of the population)

• Sensing - practical, shows great attention to detail, facts and figures, goes along with and is tolerant of others. (50 percent of the population)

Feeling/Thinking

• Feeling - makes decisions based on emotions, wants to please, competitions makes him feel sorry for loser, hyper-sensitive to conflict and wears emotions on his face. (50 percent of the population)

• Thinking - makes decision based on logic, always wants to know "why?," wants to bargain, learns by questioning. (50 percent of the population but more males)



Perceiving/Judging

• Perceiving - takes an open-ended, explorer approach to life, plans little, spontaneous, indifferent to schedules, routines or order. (50 percent of the population)

• Judging - takes an organizational approach to life, thrives on routine and order, sure of himself. (50 percent of the population)

Archer noted that differences such as these in the communication skills of one household can require coping mechanisms for everyone to get along, stressing that people are different. One is not necessarily better or the other flawed — just right for each individual.

Her coping mechanisms included:

Parents take the forced-choice test to determine personalities at the Talks About Young Children lecture Feb. 8.

• For the extrovert - help him or her to learn the concept of "taking turns talking." Provide a small object to pass around. Only the person with the object can talk. Have the extrovert practice counting to three before he or she speaks. This may help curb the spontaneous urge to interrupt others.

• For the introvert - Allow him or her to take the needed time before jumping into new situations. Let the introvert watch from a distance first. Don't push him or her to join in performance-oriented activities. Realize that while it may seem the introvert is daydreaming, he or she is processing their world. Encourage thought to be shared one-on-one.

• For the perceiver (explorer) - provide them with short quiet times throughout the day to prevent them from becoming over-stimulated. Compliment them on their ability to manipulate objects and use tools. When giving a task, be specific. Reward them with free time between completed tasks.

For the judge (organizer) - keep a schedule posted and talk about the sequence of events for the day. Allow him or her to organize things in the house such as canned goods and laundry. Compliment them on how carefully they have done their work.

Help the judge to understand that plans can change, and all will be well, and that siblings and friends may not appreciate the desire to organize them.

For the feeling child (lover) - let the feeling child know he or she is pleasing you when he or she does as you ask.

Provide personalized praise and lots of physical affection. Assure the feeling child he or she is special and unique.

For the logical child (thinker) - Understand that the logical child is usually not arguing with you to be disrespectful, but he or she is only testing his or her own intellectual capacity and competence.

Help the logical child to be aware of how his or her behavior affects others by verbalizing a rational cause/effect statement.

According to Dr. Beth Middlemiss, director of Staff Development for the Fort Benning Schools, the last in the series of these lectures for this school year will be presented March 3 at Dexter School. It will feature not one lecturer, but a variety of stations for parents looking for ways to prepare their children for school.

Celebrity plans visit to Benning

By Reuben Warren
Directorate of Community Activities

A Black History Month celebrity program will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall, Building 4. The program will feature Vesta Williams, a singer and actress, and Dr. John L. Rhodes, professor of History at Fort Valley State College.

Vesta

The program is sponsored by the Fort Benning Equal Employment Opportunity Office, in conjunction with the Directorate of Community Activities' Marketing Department.

Rhodes will speak about "Buffalo Soldiers," the first black soldiers in the U.S. Army, and their roles in history.

Williams recently completed a feature film called The Posse, which is about the "Buffalo Soldier." It is scheduled for release in May.

Vesta has provided background vocal support to such artists as: Jeffrey Osborne, Julio Iglesias, Christopher Cross, Gladys Knight, Anita Baker, Stephanie Mills and many, many more.

Some of her film credits include: "Soul Man," "Mississippi Burning" and "Women of Brewster Place," and she has appeared on Arthur Ashe's weekly television show, "Other Side of Victory."

SOA hosts media

By Daniel Maloney
School of the Americas

The School of the Americas Command and General Staff Course hosted a media round table Feb. 10 with participants from national news organizations and a former chief of public affairs.

The topics discussed ranged from the concept of a free press to the responsibilities of the media and the military when coverage occurs during military operations.

The panelists for the round table were: Beatrice Vargas of the Miami Herald; Juan Abreu of the Diario de las Americas (a Latin American publication in Miami); retired Maj. Gen. Robert A. Sullivan, former chief of public affairs for the Department of the Army; and Robert Lukeman of ABC News in Washington, D.C.

The round table is an annual event hosted by the CGSC in order to expose students to the inner workings of the mass media and how it impacts on the military.

During the question-and-answer session, Lukeman was asked about the actions taken by the media to obtain photos during the initial landing in Somalia.

According to Lukeman, the Department of Defense invited the media to a fenced-in area on the beach so they could cover the assault. However, he called attention to the use of bright lights by the media as dangerous.

"It was a mistake on the part of the press probably, and it was a mistake on the part of the Department of Defense for setting it up that way. The press didn't realize that the action on their part of using bright lights could possibly have endangered the troops' landing," he said.

"In the future, both the media and the military must think a little more carefully about the actions they take. It's a two-edged sword, because the military wants publicity when it's to their advantage and the media likes to cover the military because of the action; but, we both need to look at the action and what the results will be if we cover the action," Lukeman said.

In addition, Lukeman pointed out the increased speed of media coverage not only provides information quickly, but it can affect change.

However, when it comes to military operations where people's lives are at stake, coverage of such actions requires responsibility in order to ensure that lives are not put in jeopardy, he added.

When it comes to the military and the media, controlling media access may be the only alternative to "pandemonium", according to Sullivan.

As the chief of public affairs for the Army and a former post public affairs officer for Fort Benning from 1967 to 1968, Sullivan has experienced media coverage and inquiries on a local and national level.

"The press will get their stories, so is it better to let them go or control them," he said. "As far as the incident in Somalia, they would have been on the beach anyway."

Following the round table, which was attended by Col. Jose R. Feliciano, commandant for the School of the Americas, and Col. Carlos Molina Johnson, assistant commandant, the participants received a briefing on the school and its mission.

Sapper classes train the trainers

By Daniel Maloney
School of the Americas

The School of the Americas will begin teaching a Countermine Operations Course March 8 to prepare Latin American soldiers for the dangerous task of mine clearing.

Currently casualties continue to mount from mine detonations in Central America, chiefly among civilians who mistakenly set the mines off.

The problem is most grave in Nicaragua where years of civil war have left the land infested with deadly explosives.

This reality led the Organization of American States and the Interamerican Defense Board to seek help from the U. S. military to develop a plan to clear Central America of its lethal mine problem.

The Department of Defense subsequently assigned SOA the mission of training Latin American soldiers in countermine operations.

According to Capt. Norberto Cintron, chief of the Sapper (Engineer) Division of the school's Special Operations/Civil Military Operations Department, the four-week course will train approximately 15 soldiers from throughout Latin America for the mission of countermine operations.

These soldiers will in turn teach other soldiers when they return home.

This is essentially "train the trainer," Cintron said, evoking the same terminology used throughout U.S. installations for similar training techniques.

The mission takes on a humanitarian emphasis, Cintron added, because many of the casualties in Nicaragua are farmers.

In order to prepare for the course, Cintron and his "Sapper" instructors (U.S. Army combat engineers and one guest instructor) used some of their materials from other engineer courses taught at the school and developed their own manuals, which had to be cleared through the U.S. Army Engineer School at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Once the material had been cleared, it also became necessary to familiarize the instructors with the mines they would be teaching soldiers to diffuse.

Although all of Cintron's U.S. Army instructors are combat veterans from Desert Storm, they decided to get first-hand knowledge of the devices they would be dealing with and so, they traveled to Nicaragua Feb. 7 and brought back some of the actual mines their students will encounter.

The school was given the mission directly from the Joint Chiefs of Staff in September and have brought together the necessary materials to begin the course on time.

According to Cintron, the mission of clearing mines from Central America will take approximately two years with this course being the first step in that mission.

13th takes over the home front

By David Greer
36th Engineer Group

What happens when a unit splits and is separated by thousands of miles?

For the 36th Engineer Group, which deployed to Somalia in December to support Operation Restore Hope, the unit remaining behind at Fort Benning, the 13th Corps Support Battalion, took over the operations normally run by the 36th Engineer Group. Both halves are doing what every other unit in the Army is doing, accomplishing its mission.

"Our soldiers are doing just great; they are performing to the high standards set by the 36th Engineer Group," said the 36th's acting commander at Fort Benning, Lt. Col. Spike Rupert.

"When the 36th received the word to deploy, plans were set in motion for the 13th Corps Support Battalion to take over," said Command Sgt. Maj. Herbert Nicholson. Nicholson is the current command sergeant major for the 13th Corps Support Battalion and the acting command sergeant major for the 36th Engineer Group.

"The whole operation can boggle the mind if you let it," said Nicholson. "What happened was that our battalion-level staff took over all day to day functions of the 36th and retained the mission of also running the 13th's day to day affairs. The staff, to include the noncommissioned officers and officers, are wearing two hats at the same time."

"This is the normal way the group works," said Rupert. "When one unit deploys, the next highest level unit moves in to take care of the units and missions that are left behind. During Hurricane Andrew when the 36th deployed, the 13th was the unit that came in and assumed control of the 36th. That experience was great training for us.

"When we were notified that we would be the ones assuming control again, we knew just what to do and how to do it. Very little confusion was incurred and the deploying soldiers were sent off well prepared for their mission in Somalia."

> — Lt. Col. Spike Rupert
> 36th Eng. Grp.

> at Fort Benning

"Our soldiers are motivated and dedicated to the overall mission," said Nicholson. "A lot of (the soldiers) are very disappointed about not going to Somalia to help, but they realize that we still have very important missions here at Fort Benning to accomplish. Their upbeat, can-do attitude attests to their resolve to accomplish any mission given them."

"Besides running the day-to-day activities of the group, the staff must contend with missions such as cyclic support for the installation, maintenance and training of the 130-soldier Ranger Support Element (the 36th deploys with the element on an 18-hour notice anywhere in the world) and the continuance of the warrior support mission of working with the Directorate of Logistics on various post activities and providing them with special skilled soldiers as their needs require.

"Add this to the 13th's regular missions such as line haul support, ammunition handler support at the Ammo Supply Point and the 586th Assault Float Bridge Company's training and support of the 3rd Brigade during Victory Focus and you can see we have a very full plate," said Rupert.

Both Rupert and Nicholson said that the number one priority is the family members left behind by the deploying soldiers.

"We are going to do business as usual," said Rupert. "But, if we must stop doing something to take care of a family member having a problem, then that is just what we will do.

"I have visibility on all family concerns of soldiers who deployed. I do that by choice to ensure that all assistance is being rendered in an appropriate and timely manner. I want no deployed soldier to worry about his or her loved ones left behind. We will do whatever we can to help a family member with a problem."

"All we ask is that the family member use his or her Family Unit Network set up at the unit level first; and, if they can't resolve the matter, then someone at the group level will get involved," said Nicholson.

Rupert expressed his thanks to the Fort Benning installation staff and directorates.

"Never have I seen a staff or installation support a unit better than here at Fort Benning," he said. "From Major General (Jerry A.) White (post commanding general) to the soldiers delivering supplies, the support has been just super. People here are dedicated, and they do a quality job. If we have a problem, they help solve it. Directorate employees are willing to lend support whenever asked. This is one winning combination I wish other posts would copy."

Soldier goes the extra mile

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

JILIB, Somalia — In the 100 degree heat of the day, one can find a soldier killing poisonous snakes, blowing up abandoned ordnance, picking up trash, serving chow, washing the dishes afterward and participating in staff meetings.

By night, one can find the same soldier still sweating with the labors of deployment. As the sweat rolls down the soldier's face and he stares intently at the war-torn wall of his billet room, one will discover what he's laboring over now is just as important as all the other jobs he does during the day.

Sgt. 1st Class Fletcher L. Bailey, first sergeant of Task Force Durham based in Jilib, gives his body the extra workout he feels it needs to keep him going throughout the day.

"I'm the guy who can do anything," said Bailey, "I exercise nearly every day to keep my energy level up."

However, Bailey said only a few in the camp are able to maintain a strenuous physical training schedule.

"A couple of people try to get up and run with me in the morning," said Bailey. "But after they work 12 to 14 hours a day doing hard labor on the roads, they are too tired to get out of bed early."

Bailey has coached for the All-Army and Army-Europe track teams and recently has run his best time on the 100-meter sprint with a time of 11 seconds.

Bailey said a training schedule has not been set up for the task force because of the work schedule and because of the environment.

"I don't really expect my soldiers to get out and do PT," he said. "They get enough of a workout doing their jobs all day. Besides, it's very hard on the body in this heat and humidity."

The average temperature the task force has experienced since its arrival in January is near 100 degrees. Aside from the temperature, the humidity is normally around 90 percent.

Despite the heat and humidity, Bailey said it's important for him to get out and give his body that extra push.

"If you can't keep up with the soldiers, you can't lead them," said Bailey.

WORLD WAR II — A LOOK BACK

50 years ago this week ...

• In North Africa, Allied forces halted the German advance in Tunisia. Initially, the German forces succeeded in breaking through the defensive position at Kasserine Pass approaching Thala and Tebessa, only to be driven back by an Allied counterattack. In a week of fierce fighting, the Allies effectively halted the Germans, forcing them to completely withdraw from Kasserine Pass.

• Near India, Allied forces launched a successful seaborne raid on Myebon, south of Akyab, suffering no casualties while destroying Axis equipment to include several buildings and jetties.

• On the Eastern front, the Soviet advance slowed for the most part, allowing the Germans the opportunity to finally mount a strong counterattack in the Donetz Basin after weeks of retreating. Despite this development, the Russians still managed to capture Sumi and Lebedin on the Kharkov front.

• In diplomatic affairs, the Polish government released a statement asserting that the previous status quo concerning territorial boundaries established before the German invasion of Poland on Sept. 1, 1939, was in effect.

The Russians responded by declaring that the Polish government had no current claim on either the Ukraine or Belorussia.

• In Italy, Joachim von Ribbentrop, the Foreign Minister of Nazi Germany, met with Dictator Benito Mussolini and several other Italian leaders, presumably to discuss Axis strategy and the current situation facing the alliance.

• Fort Benning participated in a "Salvage Day" program established by the War Production Board with the goal of salvaging all the scrap metal in the state of Georgia. Post officials sent Army trucks to various collection points in local counties.

Victory Focus set to begin

By Susan Dutton
24th Infantry Division

Units from the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) will be deployed on Victory Focus, a three-week field training exercise from Wednesday to March 23.

Movement to field sites will take place from Wednesday to Feb. 28, and units will return to garrison March 18, 20 and 23. Deployment and redeployment may cause congestion along Cusseta Road and Eighth Division Road.

Hourglass Road will be a major traveling route. Drivers are advised that military vehicles will conduct night movements in blackout drive. Traveling with lights on will blind the soldiers who are using night vision goggles.

Blackout areas will extend from Pinetree Road to Buena Vista Road. Third Brigade will place road guards at key intersections during the hours of darkness. Extreme care should be taken while traveling through these areas.

29th blasts Red Cloud for infantry officers

By Gregory Hart
29th Infantry Regiment

The 29th Infantry Regiment conducted a machine gun demonstration at Red Cloud Range for the Infantry Officer Basic Course students on Feb. 1.

The 2nd Battalion demonstrated the techniques used to fire many of the automatic weapons, as well as the firing commands used to control the weapons. Following this demonstration, 1st Battalion provided a demonstration of the firing capabilities of the Bradley Fighting Vehicle.

The future platoon leaders were shown different light infantry weapons used in the Army to include the M-249 squad automatic weapon, M-60 machine gun, M-2 .50 caliber machine gun, and the MK-19 40mm automatic grenade launcher. Soldiers exhibited the firepower of the Bradley Fighting Vehicle and the role it can play in support of a tactical mission.

At the conclusion of the demonstration, the officers were given the opportunity to fire these weapons and speak with noncommissioned officers from the 1st and 2nd Battalions about the technical aspects of the weapons.

43rd wheels and deals

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

WAAJED, Somalia — What started as a necessity for some, has become an "international past time" for the majority: Bartering.

Members of Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion have become experts at trading with other coalition armies to make their lives here more enjoyable.

Soldiers have become used to having visitors from the Australian Army, the French Foreign Legion and the British, according to Sgt. Jeffrey Murchison of the 43rd.

Soldiers said curiosity about the other nations is what started the visits. The visits soon developed into trading sessions, each soldier happily exchanging rations with another to get a taste of what other nations' soldiers are eating.

"The British and Australian rations are great," said Murchison. "They like our Meals Ready to Eat and we like their food, so we switch to give ourselves something different."

Soldiers will trade just about anything to get something rare, according to Murchison. Soldiers reportedly trade excess personal equipment, such as extra canteens that were purchased for the trip, or something authentic from a coalition soldier.

"A few days ago, I struck a goldmine," said Murchison. "Some Aussie came into the compound and wanted my canteen and canteen cover. I told them I wanted four complete meals for the canteen. He walked back to his camp and about 30 minutes later, he came to my tent with two complete meals.

"I told him that wasn't good enough, so he pulled out a big bag of main meals to let me pick what I wanted. I ended up getting about 20 meals for a $5 canteen and cover."

This international past time may continue for some time, as redeployment dates have not yet been set for a return to Fort Benning.

Patriots take on Darby Queen

Infantry Training Brigade cadre meet Ranger School monarch

By Capt. Alan Klyap
2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry

The cadre of the 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry, Infantry Training Brigade, known as the Patriots, recently had the opportunity to run the Darby Queen confidence course located at Camp Darby.

The Darby Queen is an eight-tenths mile confidence course normally run by Ranger School students as part of their instruction. It is designed to build confidence and teamwork while challenging soldiers physically.

This experience was the idea of the battalion's commander, Lt. Col. Bruce D. Grant. His intent was simple — to build teamwork, camaraderie and esprit de corps while having a little fun, he said.

The course was originally scheduled for mid-December but was postponed because of rain. The battalion chaplain, Maj. Robert L. Cox, said he had prayed for rain because he had the opportunity to run the course earlier as part of officer physical training and hoped the idea would just go away, but no such luck.

A new date was set for the day after block leave ended, Jan. 6. Grant said this was a good way to check how well everyone stayed in shape over the holidays.

When the day arrived, the chaplain's prayers had been answered — it was raining again. But, the rain ended about the time the Patriots arrived at the course.

Staff Sgt. Gabriel Maddox, a drill sergeant in Company D, 2nd Bn., 58th Inf., and a former ranger instructor, organized the event and ensured the obstacles were in good working order and safe to negotiate. Maddox said he had high expectations for his fellow drill sergeants and the other soldiers running the course. He also said that with the proper motivation and drive everyone would do well.

After some stretching and a course safety briefing, the unit was ready, with Co. A to go first. Groups of three to six moved out. They went over the walls, crawled under the barbed wire, up and down ropes, and over and under obstacles of all kinds.

Before he began, Sgt. 1st Class Eddie Wilcox, Co. A commented, "I had been waiting for this all through leave. It doesn't look so bad." He said his thoughts were different at the end of the course.

Soldiers participating in running the course were a mixture of males and females from different military occupational specialities including 71Z, 71L, 76Y, 11H, and 11C. Command Sgt. Maj. Bobby L. Jordan, the battalion command sergeant major, commented that all Infantry Training Brigade personnel should have to run the course, but recanted when he thought of the ramifications this comment could bring from his peers.

Staff Sgt. Mark Whelchel of Co. D, said it was very enriching and he would like to see it done as often as possible.

According to those involved, after all the anticipation and worries, the commander's intentions were met and everybody had an unforgettable experience — complete with war stories to bring back to Patriot families.

Army separation benefits change

Adjutant General

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal 1993 makes several changes to transition entitlements and separation incentive benefits for soldiers separating in fiscal 1993 and beyond. The following paragraphs provide a summary of these changes.

All Voluntary Separation Incentive separatees are authorized the same transition benefits as Special Separation Benefit separatees and involuntary separatees.

These benefits include the continuation of family members in DoD schools for high school seniors; hiring priority in nonappropriated fund activities; continued use of family housing for up to 180 days (if locally approved); identitification cards issued for Commissary, post exchange, and most morale and welfare program privileges (good for two years); and transition medical care (if locally approved).

The U.S. Army Personnel Command will identify and contact all qualifying soldiers on active duty or who have separated from active duty under VSI/SSB and provide them an additional opportunity to enroll in the Montgomery GI Bill. Further implementation instructions will be provided by PERSCOM and the defense finance and accounting system.

All VSI/SSB separatees are authorized transportation to their home of selection regardless of the number of years of continuous service.

Conversion health insurance policies (currently through Uniformed Services Voluntary Insurance Plan) lengths are increased from 12 to 18 months.

The mandatory offset of monetary benefits received for VSI soldiers who subsequently receive active duty or reserve drill pay is eliminated. However, VSI and SSB recipients will still have separation incentive monies recouped from their retirement pay if they eventually qualify for military retirement. Decrement of subsequent active or reserve pay is a voluntary option for those soldiers who separate under VSI/SSB.

The following chart summarizes the eligibility of benefits. An X under the category indicates entitlement.

Entitlement	VSI	SSB	Vol Ret	Invol Sep	SERB
PX/COM	X	X	X	X	X
180 Days Family Housing	X	X		X	X

PRIMUS

PRIMUS IS CHANGING

On February 1, 1993, the Columbus PRIMUS Clinic became the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic. As of this date, the clinic will be open only to non-active duty military beneficiaries registered in the Army's Gateway To Care Program and enrolled to receive their primary health care at PRIMUS. As a Family Practice Clinic, PRIMUS will expand its services and offer its enrolled members:

- Comprehensive family practice medicine, including routine physicals, treatment of a wider range of acute and chronic conditions, and extensive laboratory and radiology testing.
- Guidance for all healthcare treatment, including diagnostic testing, speciality referrals, and follow-up care.
- Both scheduled appointments and walk-in visits.
- Telephone consultation with qualified healthcare personnel to determine whether and when to seek medical care.

To enroll as a member of the PRIMUS Family Practice, active duty family members and retirees and their families should attend one of the Army's Gateway To Care briefings or contact the MACH Health Care Finder at 544-1447/1591. Enrolled members can receive more information on our Family Practice services by calling the clinic at 561-7066.

Employees furthering education

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Four civilian workers at Fort Benning have met changes in the acquisition career field by acquiring unusual educational opportunities.

Charlene Cowman, contract specialist, and Angela Holloway, purchasing agent, are attending Troy State University; while Donna Knight, procurement clerk, and Margie Usry, procurement analyst, are taking courses at Columbus College. In all four cases, the Department of Defense foots the bill.

According to John Machovec, director of contracting, the National Defense Authorization Act of 1991 set new criteria for the DoD acquisition workforce.

"In essence," he said, "the act required that anyone entering or wishing to be promoted within the acquisition career field (1102 series) after October of 1993 have a four-year degree or 24 semester credit hours of study in certain fields relating to business."

Machovec said the act also stated that the DoD would provide funds for attainment of degrees at the undergraduate level. "In the civilian workplace, we are normally prohibited from funding an undergraduate degree," he said, "so this is a unique opportunity."

Karen S. Morarie

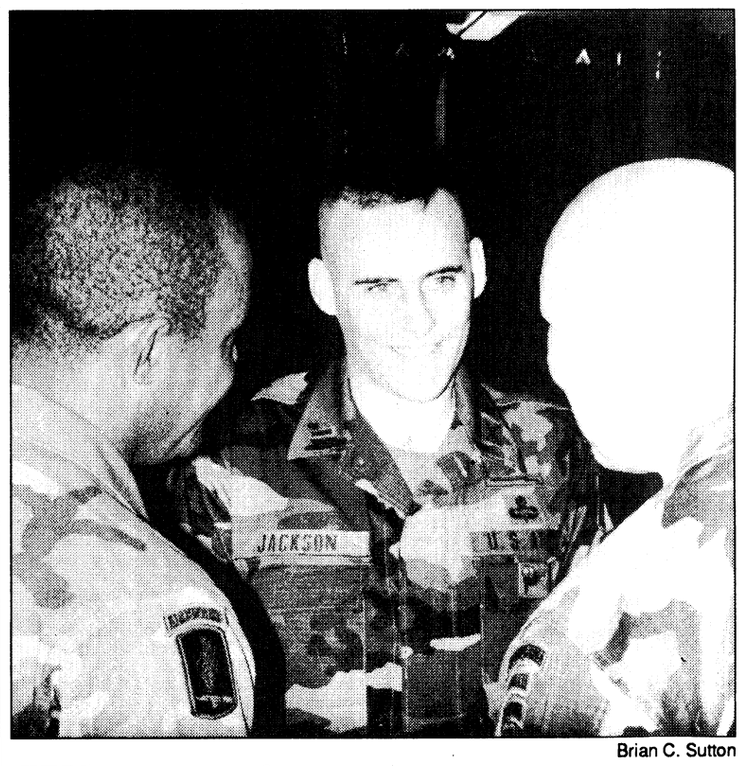
Machovec said he expects significant results from the course work the civilian workers will complete. "This program will greatly enhance professionalism in the acquisition arena," he said. "In the types and methods of contracting for supplies and services to Fort Benning, the quality and responsiveness to mission should improve appreciably.

"Instead of the run-of-the-mill type of contract," he said, "we can look for something that's responsive to the commanders' needs."

"The Army implemented the scholarship program this year," said Machovec, "and we encouraged people to apply. We had four applicants and all were accepted — that's the most scholarships awarded at any Training and Doctrine Command installation."

The four women said they had a lot to get through before the scholarships were awarded. "It was designed to be a competitive selection process," said Knight.



Holloway and Usry explained that while past awards were considered in the selection process, career objectives and the desire to advance in the acquisition career field seemed to be the most heavily-weighted items.

"The crucial questions, I think," said Machovec, "were, 'How will you (the applicant) benefit from this program? How will the Army benefit from your participation?' "

Cowman said it took weeks to get the required paperwork together, and about 2 months elapsed after that before the winners were notified.

The women, who are slated to complete their degrees between 1994 and 1996, said they now fit their classes in between work, home and family responsibilities. All agreed the schedule was tough, but said they were glad to have the chance.

"The sky's the limit (in the career field) now," said Knight. "We want to go all the way."

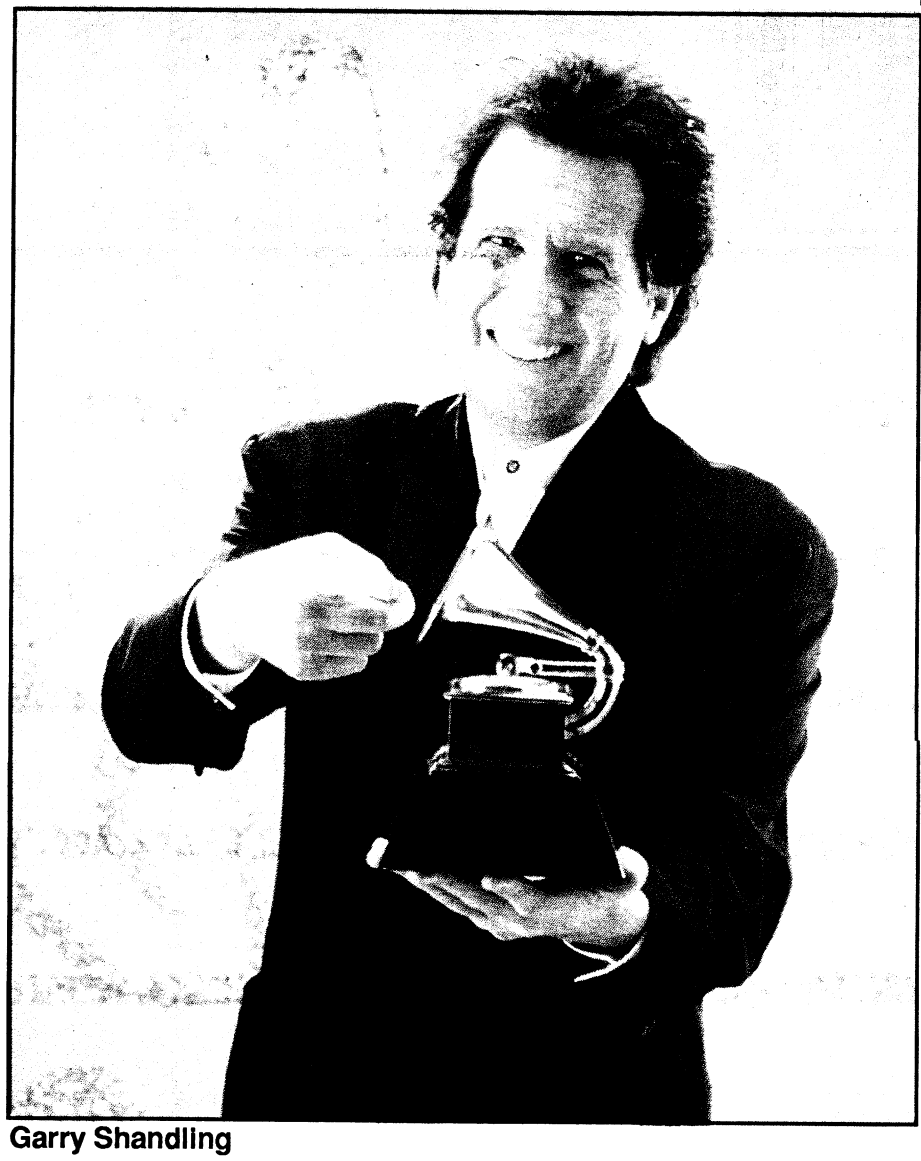
Stars gather at 35th Grammy Awards



By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

For the winners of the recording industry's top honors this week, the news — appropriately — will be music to their ears.

Though numerous other honors exist in the field, the Grammy Awards generally remain the most coveted to those in the business, and CBS will televise the 35th annual edition of the traditionally star-packed ceremony Wednesday.

This year, Eric Clapton leads the nominations with nine, including Album of the Year ("Unplugged") and Record and Song of the Year (both for "Tears in Heaven," from the soundtrack of the movie "Rush"). He's scheduled to appear on the three-hour special, as are fellow nominees Celine Dion and Peabo Bryson (who did the "Beauty and the Beast" duet), Arrested Development, Billy Ray Cyrus, En Vogue, Peter Gabriel, Genesis, Julio Iglesias, Elton John, Kris Kross, k.d. lang, Annie Lennox, Nirvana, Jon Secada, U2, Tom Waits and Vanessa Williams.

Now in his fifth year as president of the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences, the organization that bestows the Grammys, Michael Greene deems "a very positive thing" for music during 1992 to have been the so-called "crossover" aspect ... as with the success on both the pop and country charts of the aforementioned Cyrus' hit "Achy Breaky Heart," to cite one clear example. "A lot of the lines that used to isolate and insulate some of the genres have started to blur," Greene reflects. "You have a lot more people who are interested in country music now, and I also think many more are interested in jazz."

Garry Shandling

Still, the committee that finalizes the Grammy nominations has been taken to task in recent years by numerous music critics, who have alleged that the selections suggest the choosers are out of touch with the tastes of consumers. "You really have to consider the people who are writing (such complaints) and understand their motives," Greene reasons. "We just have to look at our process and make sure that what we're doing is inclusive and that our membership base grows and continues to attract younger musicians. A real music critic will consider the fact that we are seeing an incredible diversity of talent and recordings coming up through the process now. "

Following are the nominees in the designated "general" categories in this year's Grammy Awards, though the full number of separate categories — including honors in such specific areas as pop, jazz and country — totals 80:

Record of the Year: "Achy Breaky Heart," Billy Ray Cyrus; "Beauty and the Beast," Celine Dion & Peabo Bryson; "Constant Craving," k.d. lang; "Save the Best for Last," Vanessa Williams; "Tears in Heaven," Eric Clapton. (Note: All five tunes also are the nominees for Song of the Year.)

Album of the Year: "Achtung Baby," U2; "Beauty and the Beast," film soundtrack; "Diva," Annie Lennox; "Ingenue," k.d. lang; "Unplugged," Eric Clapton.

Best New Artist: Arrested Development; Billy Ray Cyrus; Sophie B. Hawkins; Kris Kross; Jon Secada.

Operation Restore Hope becomes Operation Restore Life

By Sydni Redmond
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Operation Restore Hope — the name of the mission speaks for itself. While food relief assistance is the main focus of the operation, the mission has also had moments when it has helped restore life.

Next week on "Fort Benning Today" as requested, there will be more Somalia footage, but one of the week's segments will veer from food and supplies. It will instead focus on the life-saving surgery performed by Army doctors on a four-year-old Somalia boy.

The surgery was first attempted by Navy doctors who, because of limited facilities, were unable to help the child.

Watch "Fort Benning Today" on USAIC TV and find out how Army surgeons were able to step in, take over and perform the surgery that saved a childs' life.

Also featured on "Fort Benning Today" next week will be a look at the operations of the Seventh Transportation Group in Somalia and how the group's soldiers are maintaining control of the Mogadishu port by streamlining turn-around time.

USAIC TV will also feature a 20-minute interview with Command Sgt. Maj. Richard Kidd, the sergeant major of the Army. "Victory News," the news show of the 24th Infantry Division, and post movie previews will also be showing. USAIC TV will also highlight music and news from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network as well as post events on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 32, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can catch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26, and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

For more information or to make suggestions, write or call the Broadcast Section of the Public Affairs Office, Infantry Hall, Rooms 601 or 602, 545-2201.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Georgia National Rodeo — Tickets are now on sale for the third annual, state sponsored Georgia National Rodeo and concerts Thursday through Feb. 27 in Reaves Arena, Perry Georgia.

Cowboys and cowgirls from across the country will compete in six rodeo events.

During intermissions, Darryl and Don Ellis, Lee Roy Parnell and T. Graham Brown will perform in concert.

For more information, call (912) 987-2774.

Country music — The Silver Moon Music Barn in Buena Vista, Ga., features a dance every Saturday night.

Featured artists tonight will be Lee Roy Parnell and Joe Stampley, with the band Shenandoah appearing Feb. 27.

For ticket information, call (800) 531-0677.

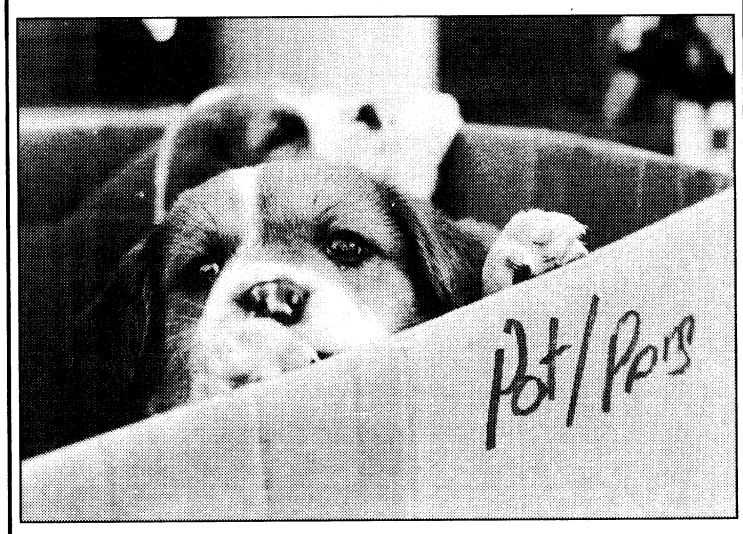
Retired Officers' Association — Jim Forsythe, program chairman of the Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of the Retired Officers Association, has announced the following schedule of social activities for the chapter for 1993: St. Patrick's Day dinner-dance, March 13; Caribbean cruise, April 18 to 25; golf tournament, June 6; bus trip, June 17 to 20; party, Sept. 10; trip to Branson, Mo. , Sept. 23 to 27; Octoberfest, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary, Oct. 16; state convention, St. Simons Island, Nov. 4 to 6; Veterans Day dinner-dance and election of officers, Nov. 13; and Christmas party and installation of officers for 1994, Dec. 11.

The chapter has 493 members and its social activities complement an active business agenda affecting the active duty and retired military communities.

Museum grand opening — The Columbus Museum Guild's grand opening of "Flying Colors Art Show and Sale," a biannual fund-raiser, will be open to the public through Saturday.

All proceeds will be used by the guild to benefit the museum and its programs.

The week-long event will feature a number of programs including a lunch and lectures series, a cartoonist and entertainment.



The Columbus Museum is located at 1251 Wynnton Road and is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and on Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

For details, call 649-0713.

Bluegrass jam session — A bluegrass jam session will be the last Sunday of every month at the Uchee Creek Lodge on post.

The sessions are open to anyone who wants to play, sing or listen and will begin at 2 p.m. Donations of $2 per person older than 16 years will be accepted to help pay the rent. For information, call 298-4870.

PET OF THE WEEK

"Please take me home," this week's pet seems to be saying. This 6-week old St.Bernard mix is one of a litter of five who are looking for homes. For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in building 263. Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel. If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are important too because it's the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner. Pet owners should register pets and update their records when changes occur.

Columbus Museum presents exhibit

The Columbus Museum

With a pack on his back and a sketchbook in hand, Thomas Hart Benton traveled throughout his career, into the mountains and down the rivers; through the South, the West and the Midwest; into the hamlets of Appalachia and the boom-towns of East Texas. He drew farmers and city dwellers, homesteads and steel mills.

A number of these works will be on view at the Columbus Museum from Feb. 28 to April 25 in the exhibition, Lasting Impressions: Drawings by Thomas Hart Benton.

Benton was often reluctant to part with his drawings, for he constantly referred to them as raw material for his paintings. Consequently, at the time of his death in Kansas City at the age of 86, some 1,900 drawings remained in his studio. It is from this rich legacy of work that the 66 works in this exhibition were chosen.

Benton was born in Neosho, Mo., in 1889. A great-uncle had served in the U.S. Senate and Benton's father served in Congress. Drawing upon this heritage, Benton applied himself as an artist to exploring the American people and landscape, and celebrating democratic politics.

He began his studies at the Art Institute of Chicago and later studied in Paris at the famed Academie Julian.

In 1911, disillusioned with the European art world, Benton returned to New York where he remained for the next twenty-four years. It was during this period that he established his reputation as one of America's foremost mural painters.

This exhibition has been organized through Lyman Field and United Missouri Bank of Kansas City, N.A., co-trustees of Thomas Hart Benton and Rita P. Benton Testamentary Trusts.

The Columbus Museum features exhibitions of American art and regional history and includes a hands-on discovery gallery for children. Hours are 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

For more information, call 649-0713.

Columbus College commemorates black history

Columbus College

Columbus College commemorates the many accomplishments of African-Americans by observing February as Black History Month.

With speakers and special programs for the campus and the community, the college focuses attention on the heritage, culture, pride and future of African-Americans.

The upcoming events featured at the college emphasize the contributions made by African-Americans and are open to the public.

Sunday — The Fourth Annual Columbus College Gospelfest, 3 p.m., Davidson Student Center auditorium.

The musical program features the college's Gospel Choir and local gospel choirs.

For information, call Cathy Anderson at 568-2139. Admission is free.

Thursday — African-American Extravaganza, 7 p.m., Davidson Student Center auditorium. Sponsored by the African-American Student Union, the program includes fashions, poetry and music.

For information, call 568-2054.

Feb. 26 — 10th Annual Black Applause Banquet, 6:30 p.m., wine and cheese reception, 7 p.m., dinner in the Elizabeth Bradley Turner Center for Continuing Education.

Highlighting the dinner will be the presentation of the Dr. John Townsend Award. For reservations, call Sharon Jamison at 568-2133 or Flora Aplin at 568-2063.

During the entire month of February, the Simon Schwob Memorial Library will feature a display of books and other material celebrating Black History Month.

For more information, call 568-2042.

BLACK HISTORY QUIZ

Black Employment Program Committee

African American men and women have made significant day-to-day contributions to the social, cultural and economic progress of the nation; yet standard references have largely ignored their historical roles.

In an attempt to increase the awareness of some of these contributions, the Black Employment Program Committee has developed a series of four quizzes to be published each Friday in Black History Month.

Test your knowledge of African Americans in history. Match the name of the African American to the description.

1. A prolific inventor born in 1856, he obtained some 50 patents over his lifetime.

His inventions include an incubator, the forerunner of present machines capable of hatching 50,000 eggs at a time, and the Synchronous Multiplex Railway Telegraph designed to avert accidents by keeping each train informed of the location of the train immediately ahead and behind of it.

He died in New York City in 1910.

2. He developed techniques for separating and preserving blood. His advanced research in the field of blood plasma helped save countless lives in World War II.

Born in Washington, D.C., in 1904, he graduated from Amherst College in Massachusetts where he was an outstanding scholar. He received his medical degree from McGill University in 1933.

During World War II, he set up the first blood bank in England and was appointed director of the American Red Cross blood donor project.

He died in an automobile crash in 1950.

3. Selected as an astronaut by NASA in 1980, he completed his one-year training and evaluation period in 1981, making him eligible for assignments as a pilot on future space shuttle flight crews.

Born in 1946, he received his degree from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1968, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps and became a naval aviator.

He earned his master's degree in systems management from the University of Southern California in 1978.

4. He was an international leader in transplant surgery who performed more than 500 kidney transplants.

He was responsible for finding out that large doses of the drug methylprednisolone could help reverse the acute rejection of a transplanted kidney.

He made history in 1964 by transplanting a kidney from a mother to a daughter — the first transplant between humans who were not identical twins.

Born in 1930, he was the first black to enroll at the University of Arkansas Medical School at Little Rock.

His brilliant career was brought to an end in 1970, when he contracted an undiagnosed illness on a trip to South Africa. He remained brain damaged until his death in 1981.

5. He was perhaps the most famous black man in colonial America; he was a mathematician, astronomer, inventor, and gazetteer; and he helped lay out the city of Washington, D.C.

He was born free in Maryland in 1731 and was educated to eighth-grade level in an integrated private school.

In 1754, at age 22, he built the first clock made in North America though he had never seen one; it chimed the hour unfailingly and kept accurate time for more than 20 years.

His aptitude in mathematics and astronomy enabled him to predict the solar eclipse of 1789 and he published an almanac.

In 1791, on the recommendation of Thomas Jefferson, he was appointed to serve as one of six members of the commission charged with surveying and laying out a blueprint for the city of Washington, D.C.

When the chairman of the planning committee, Major L'Enfant, abruptly returned to France taking the plans to the city with him, this black man's precise memory enabled him to reproduce the plans in their entirety.

He died in 1806.

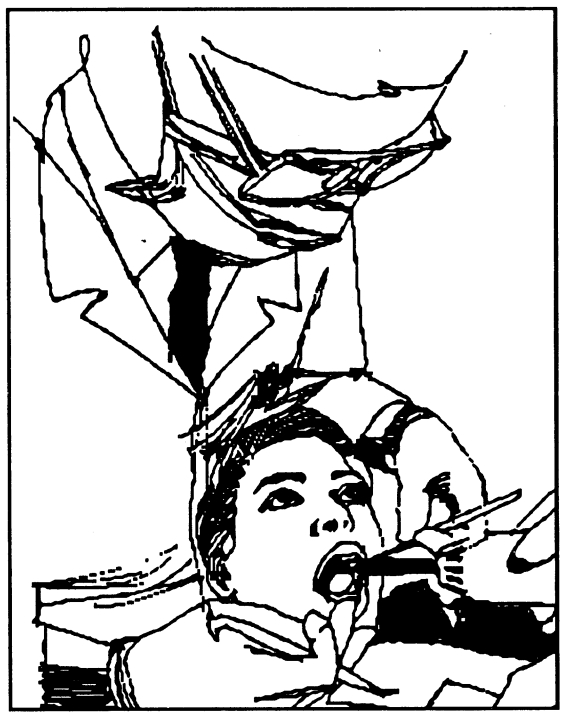
Hearing can be aided by teeth

Academy of General Dentistry



The dentist may be able to help hearing-impaired people, thanks to a new scientific advance. According to the Academy of General Dentistry, a hearing aid has been developed that is placed in the mouth and uses the teeth and skull to receive sound vibrations, sending them to the inner ear.

A small transmitter, which can fit into a shirt pocket or on a tie, catches the sound and sends it by radio waves to the patient's mouth. The waves are picked up by a retainer or partial denture equipped with an antenna and amplifier.

A special crystal, bonded to the enamel on the inside edge of a tooth, transforms the radio signals into vibrations that then travel through the skull to the "listener's" inner ear.

The traditional hearing aid relies on tiny bones and joints in the ear to receive and transmit sound. Infections and aging can damage bones and joints, making the hearing aids ineffective for many people.

"The roll of dentists in improving the overall health and well-being of their patients continues to expand," said William Kuttler, a dentist and spokesman for the Academy of General Dentistry, "this is an opportunity to give some of our patients a new lease on life."

Earache? Check your mouth

Academy of General Dentistry

Damaged nerves connected to teeth can trigger an earache, according to the Academy of General Dentistry.

"If a soft tug on the ear makes the ear hurt, you probably have an ear infection and should see a physician," said James Tennyson, a dentist and spokesman for the Academy. "If it doesn't hurt, see your dentist, since the ache may stem from a dental problem."

Though the problem is not as common as earaches caused by ear infirmities, the possibility of oral causes should not be discounted.

Ear pain can be caused by a damaged pulp, the tissue at the heart of a tooth that nourishes the tooth and senses heat, cold, pressure and pain.

"If the pulp becomes swollen or dies, the nerve connected to it can no longer transmit the sensation of pain from the tooth to the brain," said Dr. Tennyson. Because the sensation is coming from the ear, the patient interprets the pain as an earache."

Help your children to buckle up

Egleston Children's Hospital

Now is the time to help your child develop a life-long habit of buckling up.

Car crashes are the leading cause of death in children and 70 percent of these deaths are preventable with the proper use of child safety seats. The following tips will help you to choose and use the right child safety seat (infant, convertible, or booster) for your child.

All child safety seats

- Only select child safety seats that meet U.S. Department of Transportation requirements. Look for a label stating: "This child restraint system conforms to all applicable Federal motor vehicle safety standards," with the date of manufacture after Jan. 1, 1981.
- The center of the back seat is the safest place for your child to ride whether he or she is in an infant, convertible, or booster seat.
- Never place your child's safety seat in a seat with an air bag.
- Fasten all types of safety seats with your vehicle's lap belt, properly routing the belt through the car seat frame.
- Your child should not wear a bulky sweater or jacket while strapped into his safety seat.

Infant seat

- Use infant seats for babies up to 20 pounds.
- Infants should ride facing the rear to protect the neck.
- Place a rolled towel or blanket around the infant's head and neck for extra support.

Convertible seat

- A convertible seat is appropriate for infants from birth to 40 pounds.
- Use it in a reclined, rear facing position when your child is 7 to 20 pounds.
- When your child reaches 20 pounds, turn the convertible seat forward and secure in a semi-reclined or upright position.

Booster seat

- Once your child reaches 40 pounds and is uncomfortable in the safety seat, he or she is ready to use the vehicle's lap and shoulder belt. If the shoulder strap crosses at your child's face or neck, use a booster seat to raise your child to a level where your vehicle's lap belt fits properly across the hips and the shoulder belts fit comfortably across the shoulder and chest.
- If your vehicle does not have a lap/shoulder belt combination, use a shield-type booster seat with your vehicle's lap belt.

Choose calories by company they keep

General Mills

Seniors need fewer calories as they age, but the calories they do take in should be accompanied by lots of nutrients.

Foods that provide many nutrients in proportion to their calories are called nutrient-dense, explains Mary Helen Gunkler, a registered dietitian.

Seniors may require more of specific nutrients as well. For example, calcium plays a significant role in reducing the bone loss that can lead to osteoporosis.

Increased consumption of vitamin D also is recommended as it is necessary for calcium absorption. Also, some researchers have identified a correlation between aging and the decline of vitamin D in the body.

Other nutrients that researchers believe are especially valuable in the senior diet include riboflavin, vitamin B-12, folic acid, zinc and fiber.

Gunkler recommends that seniors eat nutrient-dense foods in order to get many of these vitamins and minerals. Here's how:

- Vegetables and fruits are rich in a wide variety of nutrients. Green leafy vegetables are especially good sources of riboflavin and folic acid.
- Low-fat milk and other low-fat dairy products provide calcium, riboflavin and vitamin D as well as other essential nutrients.
- Lean meats, fish and poultry, eggs and dry beans are protein rich foods that also provide vitamin B-12 and zinc plus other nutrients.
- Fortified cereals plus enriched and whole-grain breads provide fiber as well as vitamins and minerals.

Gunkler suggests that the best way to get an adequate supply of essential nutrients is to follow dietary guidelines.

Emergency 911 coming to post

New system designed to improve how emergency calls are handled

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning is establishing a 911 emergency system for use on all telephones on post, according to Capt. David F. Lewis, operations officer for the Military Police Activity.

The system, scheduled to be fully operational by Aug. 1, will replace the current system of dialing the Military Police Activity to get assistance in an emergency, Lewis said.

The computer system, after an emergency call is made, will be able to determine what patrol in the area will be able to react first to the situation, said Lewis. The 911 operator will be able to contact and dispatch a military police officer, firefighter or ambulance as soon as the call comes in, reducing reaction time.

Lewis said the 911 system, "will put us (Fort Benning) into the 21st century in how we respond to emergencies."

As a call comes in, a colored map of the area from which the call is being made comes onto the computer screen. The operator can instantly see where the patrol cars are located and is able to give directions to the car responding to the call, said Brent Sumner, senior field engineer for the Intergraph Corporation, a civilian company contracted to install the electronic system.

When 911 is called, an operator can dispatch a patrol without talking to the caller. This is useful when the person calling, for whatever reason, is not able to talk, said Lewis.

Emergency 911 at a glance

How 911 will work:

- Person dialing 911 will be connected with an operator.
- Operator will dispatch a military police patrol car, ambulance or fire truck.
- No need to give address or telephone number.

The new system also possesses call-back capability. If 911 is dialed and the line is disconnected, the operator will have the number to call that person back, Lewis said.

The system was installed with main line power and two back-up power sources that will totally support the system in case of a power outage, said Lewis.

This project has been a combined effort of the Directorate of Information Management, Directorate of Public Works and the Military Police Activity, Lewis said, and has been years in development.

"I think the 911 system, in conjunction with the other new equipment," said Lewis, "will improve our capabilities, making us comparable to our civilian counterparts in providing emergency services."

Grand opening

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, post commanding general, and Lajole Bradley, center director, cut the cake at the grand opening of the Main Post Child Development Center Feb. 18. The facility, off Ingersol Street between Faith School and the Officers' Wives' Club Thrift Shop, will handle up to 98 children. See story, B-6.

March 19 is holiday

By Richard Brill©
Special to The Bayonet

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White has declared March 19 a training holiday.

The reason, said Infantry Branch Safety Officer Regis Beighley, is the post's outstanding safety record for the first quarter of fiscal 1993.

The post had no accidental fatalities during this time, he said — a record unmatched since the third quarter of fiscal 1990.

Accidental fatalities include, but are not limited to, vehicular fatalities, parachute accidents, weapons accidents, drownings, hunting accidents, heat injuries, aircraft fatalities, electrocutions, and fatalities caused from explosions.

"As an incentive, the commanding general has decided to declare a training holiday every-time the post goes 90 days without an accident-related fatality," Beighley said. "Also, major subordinate commands and separate battalions that go a year without having an accidental fatality will receive a special award."

Beighley said that Fort Benning has done a good job in decreasing fatalities over the past decade. As an example, he cited that during the 1980s an average of nine soldiers were killed in vehicular accidents each year, while now the average is less than four.

"I think that a dedication to Total Army Quality principles has really helped to decrease fatalities and injuries," said Beighley. "People are identifying, reporting and correcting safety hazards on an increased level. There is also tremendous command emphasis on safety at all levels, which shows that leadership on post is truly concerned with the safety of soldiers and civilians."

AAFES now offering credit payment plan

By Richard Brill©
Special to The Bayonet

Need a new battle dress uniform or a stereo system but are a little short on cash? With the Army and Air Force Exchange Service deferred payment plan you can enjoy just about any AAFES merchandise now while paying later in monthly installments.

DPP became available to Fort Benning personnel Feb. 17.

"DPP is a great way for any soldier, especially young soldiers who don't have a lot of credit yet, to make purchases," said Eugene Wheeler, post AAFES general manager. " One of the best things is that the annual percentage rate each month is only 12 percent of the remaining balance. You would have a hard time beating that."

Personnel eligible to use DPP include active duty personnel (except for private 1s with more than six months of service or personnel who have less than six months of service remaining or whose check-cashing privileges have been suspended), Reservists, National Guard members, AAFES associates and military and AAFES retirees. Family members 18 and older can use their authorized sponsor's account.

Credit limit is based on your grade, Wheeler said. Credit limits for each grade are:

- Private 1 — $300.
- Private 2 — $500.
- Private first class — $750.
- Specialist — $1,000.
- Sergeant — $1,000.
- Staff sergeant — $1,200.
- All other grades — $1,500.

All grades have a $300 maximum limit for military clothing purchases, which is a separate account from the regular DPP account.

DPP can be used to purchase almost any item in stock and can be used to charge home delivery, assembly and auto repair. DPP cannot be used to purchase catalog orders, special orders or gasoline and is not offered at shoppettes, Class Six Stores, theaters, food activities or concessionaires.

Apply for DPP at the Post Exchange at the Main Mall during regular business hours. Forms can be picked up at the Sand Hill Exchange and at the Military Clothing and Sales Store, but the completed forms must be turned in to the exchange at the Main Mall.

When applicants return their forms, they need a copy of their latest leave and earnings statement and proof of identification.

Military personnel, specialist and below, must have the form signed by their unit commander or first sergeant, said Wheeler.

Monthly DPP payments can be made at the store or mailed in. Wheeler encouraged personnel who get DPP accounts to use the mail-in option in order to prevent long lines at the store.

"This is a great program and just one more way that AAFES is working to meet the needs of its customers," said Wheeler. "We expect the program to be popular and have already increased our stock of an assortment of merchandise."

Astronaut returns Benning mementos from space

USAIC Public Affairs Office

National Aeronautics and Space Administration astronaut Lt. Col. James S. Voss visited Fort Benning Monday.

While here, Voss viewed an Airborne-in-Action demonstration on Eubanks Field and presented the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment with a Basic Parachutist Badge he took with him on his second trip into space in December aboard the Space Shuttle Discovery.

"I tend to take items into space with me that represent something significant in my life," Voss said.

Voss said the reason he took a parachutist badge into space with him is the school meant something to him.

"Becoming an airborne soldier significantly affected me and my career," said Voss. "Being airborne is like nothing you'll ever do."

The Army astronaut also talked to the officer candidates at the Officer Candidate School and presented the school with an OCS patch that also accompanied him on his last flight.

Voss was last at Fort Benning in February 1992 and presented the post with a bayonet that flew with him aboard the Space Shuttle Atlantis in November 1991.

Voss attended Fort Benning's infantry officer basic and advanced courses and Ranger School and is a graduate of Opelika High School in Opelika, Ala. and Auburn University in Auburn, Ala.

He is currently assigned to the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas. He and his wife have one daughter.

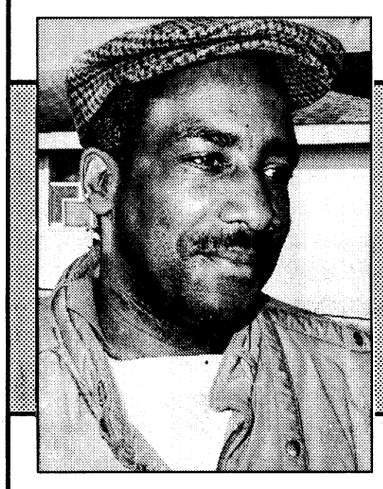
VARIOUS VOICES



What black leader do you admire the most, and why?

1st Lt. Barry Huggins, Company C, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I think Martin Luther King Jr. was a great leader. He espoused togetherness as opposed to segregation and the willingness to work within the system to change the system."

Dollie Stutson, Adjutant General's Office — "I admire Martin Luther King Jr. He believed in justice for everyone, not just for black people."

Staff Sgt. James Beamon, Service Battery, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, — "I most admire Martin Luther King Jr. He was a great civil rights leader who did a lot for all races. He was a man of his word."

Martha Cleveland, Army Continuing Education System— "I admire Martin Luther King Jr. He made so many changes in the whole concept of integration and segregation."

Spc. Myron Moy, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment — "I think Martin Luther King Jr. was a great leader. He did a lot to promote racial harmony."

TAQ man fights for truth, justice

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

Two key issues facing the military today, in my humble opinion, are the ever-shrinking number of Americans who have any military experience and the ever-shrinking defense budget.

This sounds like a job for TAQ-man the caped crusader who fights for truth, justice and the Army's way.

TAQ-man combats inefficiencies, is mightier than the most stubborn non-value added task, defends customers everywhere and leaps out of paradigms in a single bound and above all, he does it right the first time, every time.

So I sought him out and told him what my problem was, how I wanted to make the American public aware of our great military and find new sources of revenue so we could continue to be the best in the world.

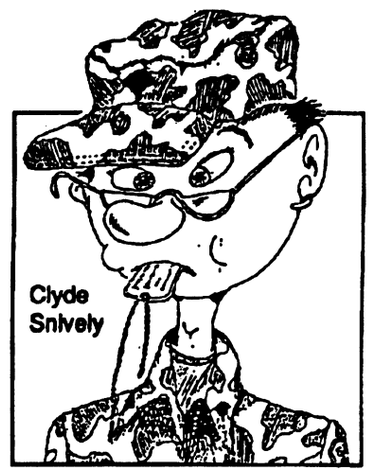
First, he asked me if I was pure of heart. Then if I was totally committed. I assured him I was and that's when he empowered me to form a process action team.

I immediately went to the finest minds I knew (who didn't out rank me). There was Chuck at the 29th Infantry, Larry in the 11th Infantry, Harry at the rangers, and Karen from right here in the Public Affairs Office.

COMMENTARY

As TAQ-man's anointed leader, I kicked the meeting off by restating the mission: find a way to make Mr. and Mrs. Joe Average more aware of the Army while concurrently discovering a way to develop more funds.

I told them we'd brainstorm these issues, told them not to be shy about speaking up and all ideas, no matter how hare-brained were good ideas.



I kept notes and tried to fill in my process model worksheet as best I could.

I did not fill out a Gantt Chart or Pert Chart and avoided Pareto analysis because I'm a soldier-journalist, not one of those brainy number crunchers. But we came up with some great suggestions without all those trappings of esotericism.

Karen got the ball rolling by saying we needed to get the public out to military installations for more than just Armed Forces Day and Independence Day.

Chuck, Larry and Harry all agreed that each of their units had some really great things to show, but they added most were labor intensive and costly.

Karen suggested that perhaps we could charge the public. "You know how they have paint-ball wars. We could have citizens come out for MILES wars. You know, they pay their $40, and become a member of a fire team and go war. Plus they don't even have to wash yellow paint off their uniforms if they get hit."

Chuck liked that. "Yeah, we could make them members of Bradley squads. They could ride in a Bradley Fighting Vehicle when we do an exercise, fire the co-ax, or if they have $10,000 even a TOW missile."

Harry jumped in with, "We could have them go on patrols with rangers, learn hand-to-hand combat and, for a thrill, do the slide for life."

Larry thought going through the leadership reaction course with officer candidates and going off some of the jump towers would pull in some money.

He also suggested that whenever we planned on a helicopter trip, we could have a waiting list of people wanting helicopter rides who'd be willing to pay to offset that cost.

Then Harry began thinking big. "Maybe we could get corporations to do their team building out here. We could have mini ranger courses, survival training, patrolling and, of course, the Darby Queen."

I said we could set up a 900 number on post for people who wanted information about the post and the Army to call to learn what resources we had here, what units were stationed here in 1944 and what the velocity of an M-16 round was.

For those into heavy breathing, we could have recordings of tanks driving, machine guns firing and rockets being launched.

We all felt self-satisfied after our session. We all agreed this was a win-win situation, that not only would more people learn about the great things the Army does, but we could almost become self-supporting.

Now all we needed to do was to convince others this was a good idea and change a few laws to make it legal. No job's too great for TAQ-man!

Editor's note: As usual, Snively and his gang of four felt satisfied too soon. All of his suggestions are forbidden by Army regulation. The Army cannot charge civilians for use of post facilities or to view activities.

OPERATION RESTORE HOPE

Greetings from Mogadishu to our families and friends. Here in Somalia the "engineer end-state," which defines the requirements for mission-completion, appears to be very clear and readily achievable.

Although unforeseen circumstances or additional missions could alter our current plans, it is beginning to look like we could start returning to Fort Benning sometime in March.

Remember, this is just a best guess. So that you better understand the situation at hand, let me give you a synopsis of work remaining to be done before we can report mission success.

First, do you remember all that construction material we bought back in December and how it made the 43rd's motor pool look like "Sam's' lumber yard? Well, after almost two months, that material is finally here where it is desperately needed — 120 containers full of lumber, cement, corrugated metal roofing, plastic pipe and electrical supplies.

After working with rough-cut 2x4s of varying lengths from Mombasa, Kenya, that smooth-finish Georgia pine sure looks good. These materials will make a huge difference in getting the job done. Let me give you an update on the base camp projects.

Task Force Durham completed base camps for U.S. and Belgian forces at Kismayo and Jilib through the efforts of hard-working soldiers of Charlie Company, 43rd. The company has now moved on to Marka along the coast where they are renovating an existing 60,000 square-foot concrete block facility to house 600 10th Mountain soldiers. The work includes a new roof, doors, window frames and screens, latrine, showers and electrical service. The projected completion date at Marka is March 4.

Up in Oddur and Wajiid, Alpha Company continues to work on accommodations for the French Foreign Legion and the French Marine Demi (half) Brigade. Thirty-five tent floors and 15,000 square feet of roofing are all that remains before we can declare mission success there; should be complete by Sunday.

The "long pole in the tent" appears to be the base camp in Bardera for 500 Marines of the Amphibious Armored Vehicle Battalion. Bardera is not the end of the earth, but you can see it from there. So it's Bravo! The 43rd's objective was to make the base camp as attractive and livable as possible. Supplemented by one vertical platoon from Alpha Company, they will build 52 hard-backed tents, 11 Southeast Asia huts, latrines, showers, dining facilities, maintenance hardstands, walkways and provide electrical service throughout.

Here in Mogadishu, we are focused on trucking in the materials they need (some 12 hours away) to get the job done. Target for completion is March 10, and I wouldn't be surprised if we do a little better than that.

Speaking of finishing ahead of schedule, the next 225-kilometer road from Bardera to Jilib has been completed. The 63rd's bulldozers pushing north, and the 642nd Combat Support Element (Fort Drum) heading south, met in the wide-open spaces of the Jubba River Valley. This was a major undertaking completed six days early. A formal opening ceremony took place Feb. 18 to dedicate what will be called Restore Hope Road.

U.S. and Somali officials will drive a golden, U-shaped picket and hang an appropriate sign to mark the location where the two companies met. Invited guests and African dancers will also be present in a ceremony orchestrated to promote peace and prosperity. Let's all pray this road lives up to its name.

As reported previously, circumstances require us to leave a stay-behind, residual engineer force here in Somalia to maintain the roads and base camps we have worked so diligently to construct.

Current plans call for the 63rd CSE and one vertical platoon from Bravo Company to pull the first 120 days' rotation, which should end in May. Additionally, the platoon from the 68th Ordnance Company will remain in Mogadishu to operate the theater ammunition supply point. Their scheduled return-date is unclear at this time. Rest assured, we continue to look for other coalition force and contractor-options that will bring these stay-behind soldiers and their equipment home sooner to reconstitute the entire

CG says 'thank you'

I was very proud of Fort Benning during the Army Communities of Excellence Team visit last week.

Each and everyone of you demonstrated to the team that we are true winners — the very best in the Army.

From the appearance of the installation to your spirit on the job, you made a very favorable impression on the team — you make me proud to be your commander.

I just wish I could go around to each of you and personally tell you what a great job you are doing. But since that is not possible, I am taking this opportunity to say, "Thank you."

Proclamation

The importance of nutrition and fitness are substantiated and well known for enhancing wellness. National Nutrition Month is a worthy effort to increase nutrition awareness. Along with millions of Americans, the military community has the opportunity to increase nutrition awareness in order to make healthy food choices.

During March, good nutrition is promoted throughout the country. This year's theme, "Eat Right America," emphasizes the relationship between a healthy lifestyle and a healthy longer life. It is a time to examine our eating habits and improve nutritional practices with information about healthful selections and sound nutrition.

I strongly urge all of the Fort Benning community to take advantage during National Nutrition Month. Let's make an extra effort to "Eat Right America."

Symposium to address issues concerning family

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The annual Army Family Action Plan Symposium will be March 30 from 7:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Officers' Club.

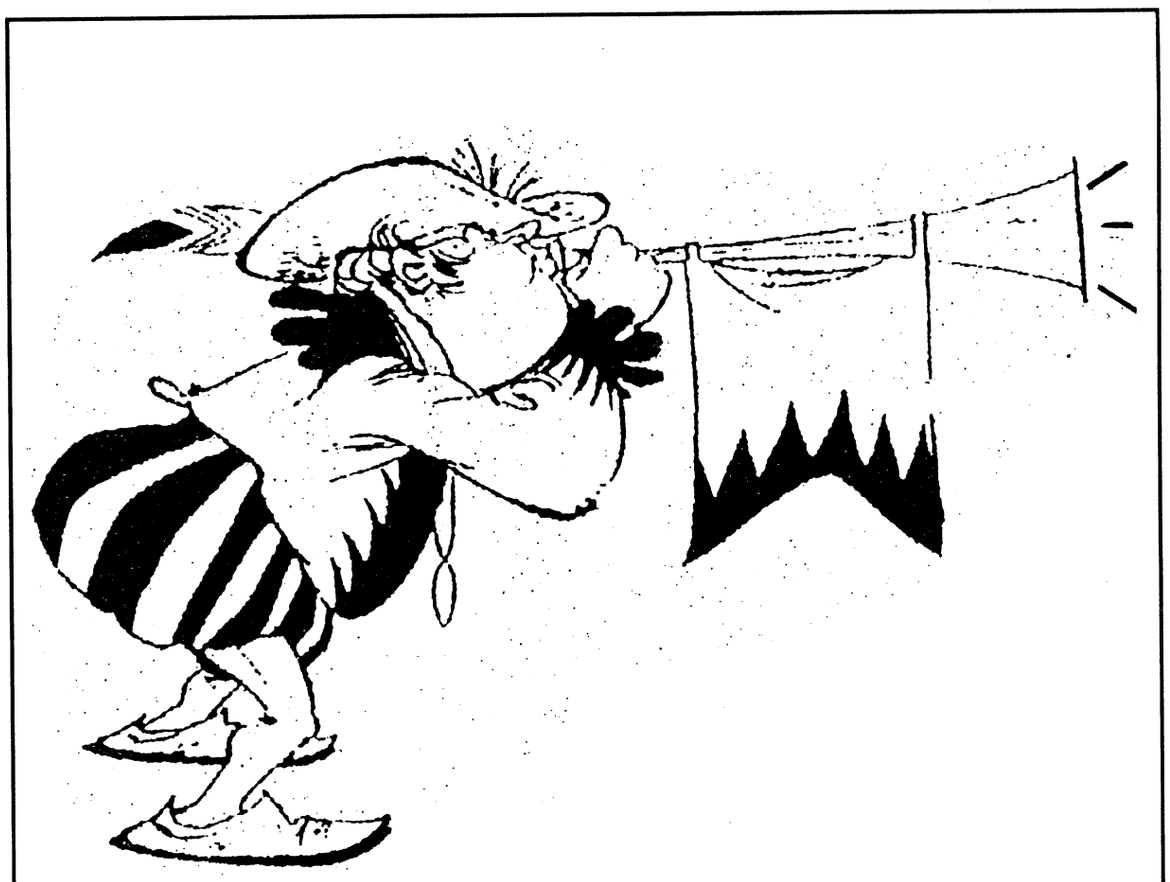
Sponsored by the Family Unit Network Center, the symposium is a forum for delegates to discuss issues and look into ways to improve the post or the Army overall for soldiers and family members.

Delegates are selected by the post units to attend the conference, said Ava J. Morrow, Family Unit Network coordinator.

Issues that cannot be worked out on a post level will be brought up at the Training and Doctrine Command-level symposium, said Morrow.

Morrow said that more than 75 issues were brought up at the symposium last year.

The Family Unit Network Center compiles issues all year long in preparation for the symposium with the Army Family Action Plan issue card. When anyone has a problem, they may fill out the issue card and drop it off at the center. These cards are available through the family unit networks, said Morrow.



"This is our way of letting the entire post forward their issues," she said .

Persons who want to be a delegate at the symposium may get more information through their unit's family unit network group, said Morrow.

"We want to get to those issues that family members feel are important, not just to them, but issues that will impact the quality of life for everyone in the military," added Morrow.

Morrow said that a valuable lesson was learned during Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm about how positive family support groups can work.

For further information on the symposium, contact Morrow or Kathy Case at the Family Unit Network Center in Building 359. The phone number is 545-5602 or 545-3016.

Post hosts Arbor Day

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

In celebration of Arbor Day, Fort Benning hosted a tree-planting ceremony Feb. 18 at the new Main Post Child Development Center, just off Ingersol Street between Don C. Faith Middle School and the Officers' Wives' Club Thrift Shop.

In opening remarks, Col. Burnet Quick, chief of staff, noted that the trees on this post are one of the lasting things of beauty people remember about their assignments here.

Helping Quick with the ceremonial planting at this newly completed facility were four student winners of a writing contest about trees at Edward A. White School.

They included Stephanie Villanueva, second grade, who wrote "Plant a Tree;" Nate Logsdon, third grade, who wrote "Trees;"J.B. McDonald, fourth grade, who wrote "Arbor Day;" and Christopher Diaz, fifth grade, who wrote "My Tree Homes."

The students read their winning pieces after being introduced by the coordinator of the contest at White School, Candace Foster.

Certificates were presented to them by Col. Wm. David Brown, director of Public Works.

Math expert to update educators

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Observing the numerous ways that Faith Middle School and Edward A. White School teachers have integrated National Council of Teachers of Mathematics standards into a total curriculum approach to learning and teaching math was Dr. Mary Lindquist on Feb. 17.

Lindquist, president of NCTM and professor of mathematics education at Columbus College, is a member of several national and state boards and committees on math education.

Dr. Rolla Baumgartner, Fort Benning Schools superintendent, called Lindquist "the number one math educator in the United States."

As NCTM president, she will also present "Teaching: The Profession of Today with Tips for Tomorrow" at the opening of the organization's Southern Regional Conference March 11 to 13 with activities taking place at the Columbus Iron Works Convention and Trade Center, the Columbus Hilton Hotel, the Springer Opera House and the Hardaway Building.

Nearly 2,500 professional educators are expected to attend the event with the theme being, "Mathematics — The Common Thread."

NCTM is the nation's largest organization dedicated to the improvement of mathematics education and to meeting the needs of mathematics educators.

Through its many publications, conferences and information services, this professional organization of more than 92,000 members and 245 affiliated groups in the United States and Canada serves as a forum for discussing new developments in math education and for sharing innovative classroom techniques.

On-site registration will take place unless they run out of space.

There will be one-hour sessions open to everyone, as well as 90-minute workshops and three-hour mini-courses and an administrator mini-conference that require tickets.

Open to teachers and lay people, the conference will demonstrate how math has changed today with new technology, with different ways to "have it all make sense," with allowing more collaborative learning situations and by taking problems from the real world to show where the concepts can be used.

Lindquist noted that the math of tomorrow will no longer be used to filter out certain students but rather as something everyone needs.

Also on hand will be exhibits offering what will be available for classrooms of the future with regard to textbooks and computer software.

ACAP Q&A

Army Career and Alumni Program

Here are some of the most frequently asked questions about the Army Career and Alumni Program. The answers to these questions reflect the most current policies and positions.

For additional information or clarification about ACAP — call 545-4892 or call 545-4902 or stop by Building 2617.

What is ACAP?

The Army Career and Alumni Program is designed to provide services and counseling to assure soldiers, Department of Army civilians and family members quality transition from military life to civilian life.

Why does the Army and the nation need ACAP?

ACAP provides transition service to departing personnel. It creates a recruiting multiplier. It establishes strong partnerships with the private sector.

ACAP allows career soldiers to concentrate on the Army mission because they know that when they need services, they will be available. It reduces unemployment and other associated costs.

What benefits do members of the Army family, employers, and/or the nation at large derive from ACAP?

In addition to those above, the Army family leaves better prepared to make the transition into the civilian sector; employers receive a better trained and motivated employee with skills and abilities not generally available in the civilian sector; the nation receives individuals who will serve as role models and who are willing and able to contribute to the community at large.

If ACAP did not exist, who/what could fill the void?

There are many private sector companies who can supply these services, but they'll cost the individual between $1,000 and $10,000.

There are also many government agencies that supply some of the services (for example, Army Community Services, Department of Labor). ACAP ensures that these services are coordinated and directed toward those who need them.

There seems to be a large number of government agencies performing the same mission. What makes ACAP unique?

ACAP is designed specifically for members of the Department of Army; it's easily accessible; and it's an integral part of the Army's personnel system. These allow ACAP to give individualized and complete service to its clients.

The downsizing is projected to end in fiscal 1995. What are the plans for ACAP after it completes that mission?

ACAP is an enduring program; it has at mission that will survive after the downsizing is completed. It adds an important dimension to an individual's productivity life cycle — to the Army, future employers and the nation.

What services are provided?

Every individual who visits ACAP first receives a needs assessment and an individual transition plan. Based on this appraisal, clients are then sent to the appropriate service providers who will assist them in their transition.

If they need job assistance, they will be sent to the Job Assistance Center where they will receive job search workshops and seminars, individual assistance and counseling, assistance with writing resumes and cover letters and access to various job data base — including the Army Employer and Alumni Network.

Are there any plans to add/subtract/modify those services? How? Why?

Yes. ACAP is continually evolving. It will alter its services as the needs of its clients change.

How much do those services cost the American taxpayer?

The fiscal 1992 budget for ACAP was $34.5 million, which comes out to about $243 a client.

Why should they be willing to pay that bill?

An individual who is prepared for the job search will more quickly find employment and will reduce the social welfare and unemployment rolls.

The smooth transition back into the civilian workplace will allow former military members to continue to contribute to the nation's economy as a whole and help make it more competitive in the global marketplace.

How much would those services cost individuals if they didn't use ACAP?

Such services can cost between $1,000 and $10,000. In fact, many outplacement services charge individuals about 15 percent of their annual salary in fees.

How is it different from the Defense Outplacement Referral System and the Transition Bulletin Board?

The Army Employer and Alumni Network lists employers that have expressed an interest in hiring Army alumni (listed by job type and location); the Defense Outplacement Referral System allows individuals to place a mini-resume on an employer-accessible network; and the Transition Bulletin Board provides actual job announcements and employment information from numerous government agencies and private sector employers.

Both DORS and TBB are Department of Defense automated referral programs and are available at all ACAP offices and selected ACS centers.

How many jobs have you gotten for transitioning Army personnel?

ACAP is not a placement service and does not get jobs for transitioning personnel. The Job Assistance Centers train personnel through seminars, workshops and individual counseling to confidently and competently seek and secure employment.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Lloyd N. Bell
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q: Joe's Merchandise Mart sends you a beautiful Swiss Navy knife even though you never ordered it. You plan to send it back, but never get around to it, and the company sends you a bill. Can you keep the knife? Can you throw away the bills? Can you plunge it into the neck of the company president for all the hassle?

A: The answer to the first two questions is "yes." If you are sent clothing, compact disks, cookware or any other merchandise that you did not specifically order, you have a legal right to keep the goods as a free gift.

It is a good idea, however, to notify the seller in writing that you consider the shipment a gift. Such a letter may discourage the seller from sending you repeated bills. It may also help clear up an honest error. Such a letter should be sent by certified mail and a copy of the return receipt kept for your protection.

Some items may be sent legally without your consent. For example, free samples of shampoo or soap or other goods that are clearly marked "free" may be sent legally. Charitable organizations may also mail merchandise while asking for contributions from you. In either case, you may keep the merchandise as a gift.

But how can you protect yourself from receiving unordered and unwanted merchandise? Be careful and be smart. If you participate in a sweepstakes or order goods advertised as "free," "trial" or "unusually low priced," be especially cautious and realize you may be disappointed. It is generally best to deposit such materials in the the trash.

If you are considering purchasing something through a mail order catalog, it is a good idea to learn as much as possible about the company before sending for merchandise. They can sometimes trick you into ordering items you never wanted.

If you place an order by telephone, always keep a record of the clerk who takes your order, the company's name, street address and phone number.

There are several places you may go for help in dealing with unordered merchandise problems. The best place to begin is with the company itself. If this approach is unsuccessful, you can often get help from your local U.S. postal inspector, your state or local consumer protection office, or the Better Business Bureau in your area. You may also contact the Federal Trade Commission, which can take action against the company.

Last, you can always call the SJA office at 545-3281 and make an appointment to talk to one of the attorneys if you have any additional problems.

As for the second question, whether you can plunge the knife into the neck of the company president, the answer is "no." Just follow the above advice and don't let him stick it to you.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were extracted from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from Feb. 1 to Feb. 7. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt and/or innocence of any person.

• This week's hot topic concerns the responsibilities of service members who sign in guests at clubs on post. Club members are the only persons authorized to sign in guests and must present a club card to do so.

Each member is allowed to sign in two guests and is personally responsible for the behavior of those guests while in the club. Members are subject to loss of club membership if their guests are involved in activity disruptive to club operations, (i.e. fighting, profanity, intoxication).

If the guest is involved in an incident, the club manager may submit a request to the Staff Judge Advocate's office to have that individual barred from post.

• A private was charged by civil authorities with possession of alcohol in a park, driving on a suspended license and no proof of insurance. He was taken to the local jail to await recorder's court, at which time it was discovered that the vehicle he was operating had been reported stolen.

• A specialist and his wife were charged with assault consummated by battery after hitting each other during a domestic dispute. The wife hit the specialist with a vase in the neck, causing an injury that required 11 stitches.

• A sergeant was charged with wrongful possession of marijuana after an individual reported that the specialist and other unidentified persons were smoking marijuana at the specialist's quarters. A consent to search was obtained, at which time a marijuana cigarette was found in the master bedroom.

• A specialist was charged by civil authorities with pointing a pistol at another person and making terroristic threats after he pointed a 9mm pistol at an individual and threatened to kill him.

• A sergeant and his wife were charged with failure to obey an order or regulation and unattended child after they left their 7-year-old child alone in their quarters for approximately 45 minutes.

• A private was charged by civil authorities with driving under the influence of alcohol, fleeing and eluding, and reckless driving, after he attempted to outrun the police at speeds in excess of 100 mph. He registered .16 on the intoximeter.

• This week's booby prize is awarded to a sergeant first class Army recruiter who decided to play "doctor" with a female applicant. He informed her that prior to processing at the military entrance station, he would have to give her a medical examination. He took her into the main examining room (female latrine) of the recruiting station and conducted a rather thorough examination. Fortunately, the young woman realized that this examination was different from others she had received and reported the incident to the local authorities.

Other activities included nine traffic accidents and two reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were nine cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, 10 cases of larceny of private property and four cases of larceny of government property.

• Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest."

Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

FOR THE RECORD

• The Military Police Activity wishes to retract the Jan. 22 listing of Capt. Patricia D. Leahy as a person driving under the influence of alcohol. Leahy was mistakenly entered onto the listing of DUI offenders.

• Last week, The Bayonet inadvertently listed Col. Jose Feliciano as retired. Feliciano is active duty and currently commands the School of the Americas.

Benning basketball gets semi-tough

Playoff teams compete for top spots

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Tuesday night, six teams took to the hardcourt at Briant Wells Field House to decide who would play for the post championship. Something went wrong in the first two games.

In the women's semi-final matchup between the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity and the Ladyhawks, MEDDAC failed to show up giving the Ladyhawks a bye into the championship round against the Bandits.

In the first matchup in the men's semi-final playoff between Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 13th Corps Support Battalion (Warriors) of the 36th Engineer Group and 3rd Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment (Queen's Own) of the Infantry Training Brigade, both teams showed up and the tip off was on time.

After 24 hard-fought minutes Queen's Own pulled out what seemed to be a 53-46 victory and a date in the championship game, but this is where things went wrong.

According to Intramural Sports Coordinator Paul Lawrence of the Physical Activities Branch, the Warriors filed a protest of the game claiming that Queen's Own had ineligible players on its roster and on the game book.

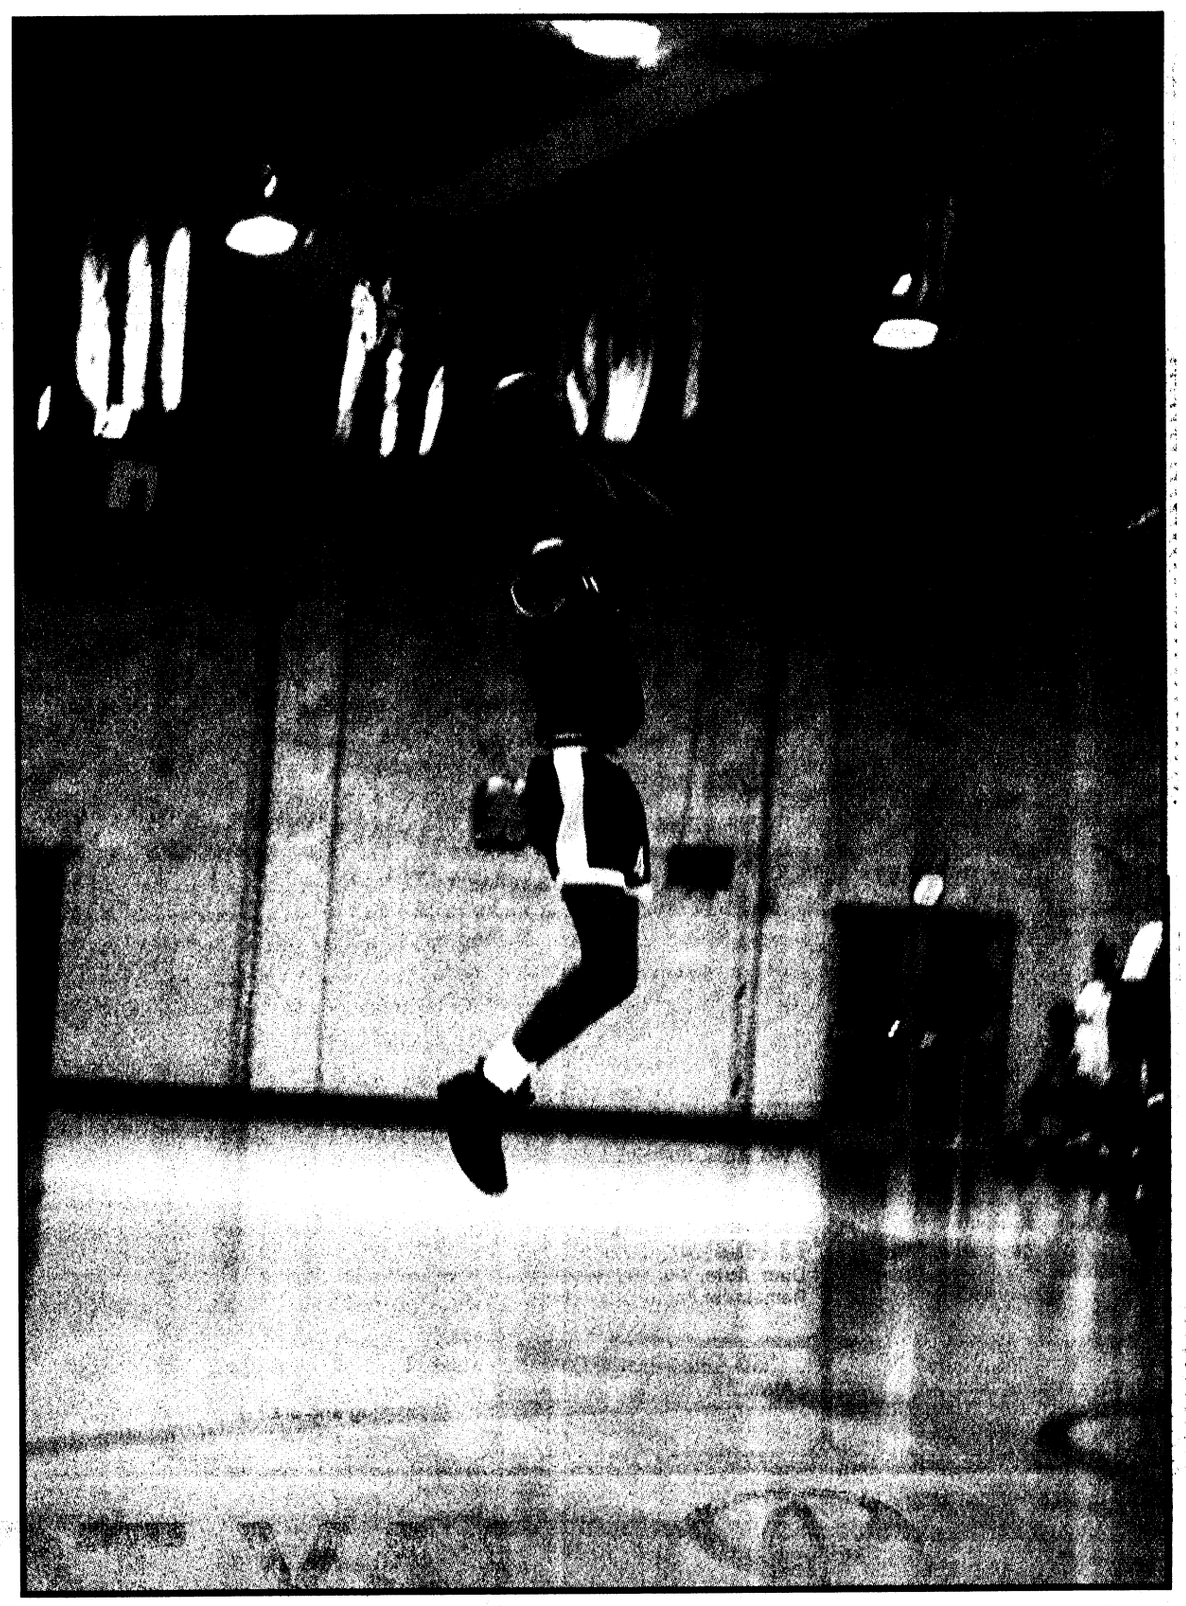
A meeting Wednesday morning at the Sports Office with representatives of both teams determined that Queen's Own did have an illegal player on its roster, causing the 3rd Bn., 32nd Inf., Regt. to forfeit the game, reversing the decision on the court and propelling the Warriors of HHD 13th Corps Support Bn., into the championship.

Now onto a game that counted.

Company B, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, (Intellects) vs. Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Hawkeyes)

The Hawkeyes proved to be too strong in the end for the Intellects pounding out a 66-56 win and a Wednesday night date in the post championship against the Warriors of HHD, 13th Corps Spt. Bn.

The Hawkeyes used their inside game of Orlando Wesley and Orlando Edwards to bang the boards for offensive rebounds that turned into layups, then Anthony Buie and Tony Kennedy took over from the outside. Buie had game high honors with 19 points, Wesley added 15 while Kennedy hit for 12 and Edwards dropped in nine points.



Up by eight at the break, 34-26, the Hawkeyes looked to blow the game wide open in the second half, but the Intellects had a game plan of their own and came out firing from the three-point line.

Intellect guard Brian Smith led the way with 22 points, 14 in the second half. Alphonso Thomas added 12 points and Mitchell Lentfort chipped in with nine.

With under four minutes to play, the Intellects had cut the lead down to two at 47-45, with Smith keying the offense with his three-point shooting.

The Hawkeyes battled back scoring nine unanswered points to take a 56-45, lead with just over two minutes left in the game.

The Intellects were forced to send the Hawkeyes to the charity stripe with hopes of climbing back into the game on missed free throws. It worked for a minute then the Hawkeyes went into a four corners delay game making the Intellects run after the ball. A back door cut to the hoop by Timmie Nettles resulted in a wide open lay up that gave the Hawkeyes a 10 point lead at 66-56 with seconds left on the clock closing the book on the Intellects.

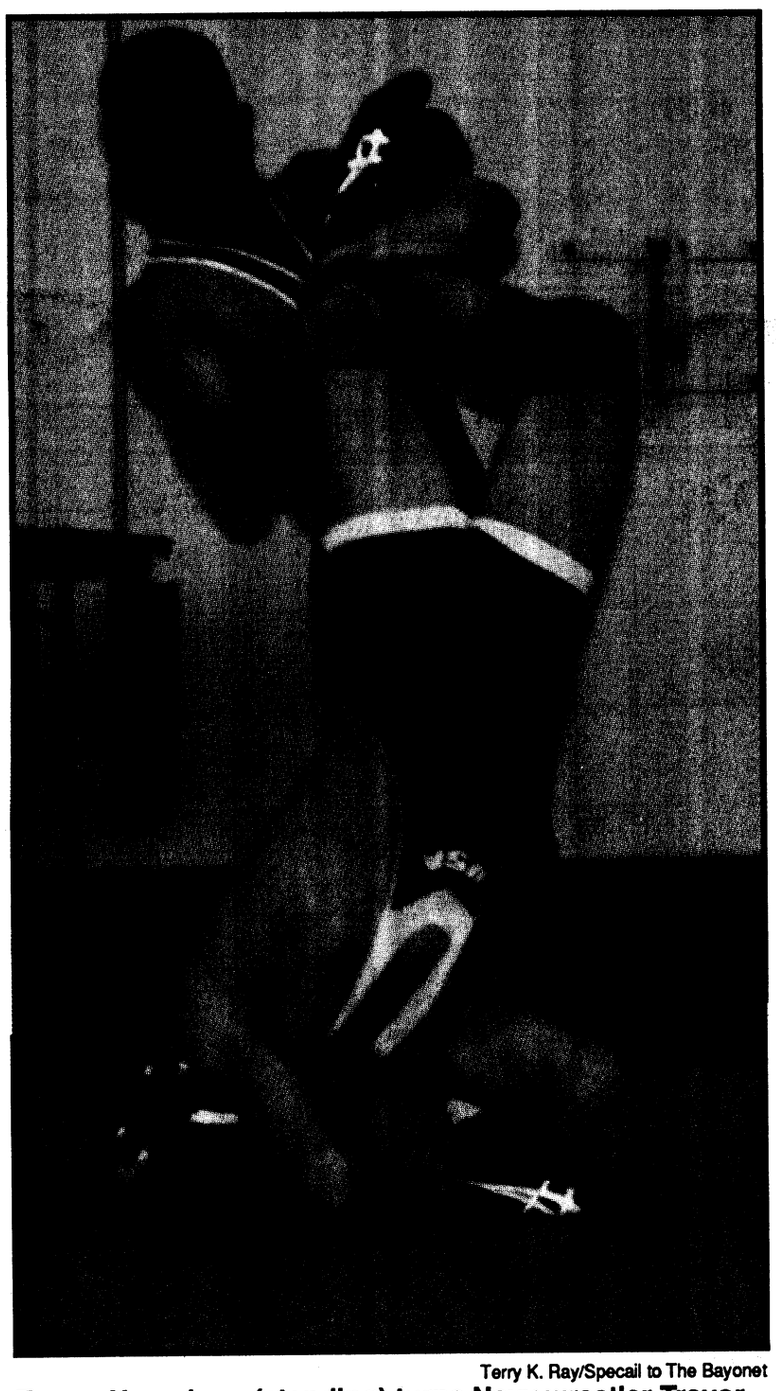
All-Army pounds sailors to deck



By Terry K. Ray

All-Army wrestling hopefuls teamed up against the Navy Saturday at a dual meet held at the trial camps training facility on Sand Hill.

The All-Army candidates pounded out wins in every weight division execpt the 105.5 pound class in freestyle and Greco-Roman.

All-Army wrestling coach Tony Thomas told his wrestlers before the match that the point wasn't whether they won or lost but to gain experience in competition. For some of the newer wrestlers, this was a chance for them to show the coach just how far they had come in the last two months.

This meet was the last competition for the All-Army hopefuls before the wrestle-off for the final spots on the All-Army team that will take place this Saturday, Sunday and Monday at Santiago Fitness Center, Sand Hill beginning at 9 a.m.

PT? Just do it — with attitude

By Mike Burley
U.S. Army Physical Fitness School

COMMENTARY

The last time I took an Army Physical Fitness Test, I noticed what we've all seen before: soldiers standing in line, bored and apathetic, waiting to fulfill just "another Army requirement."

What should be an opportunity to display those qualities important in our profession — excellence, confidence and the will to win — turns into an unprofessional quest to meet the minimum standards.

I see the APFT as a small facet of our lives, but indicative of the bigger picture relating to a soldier's dedication to excellence. Those who perform at minimum levels are not the soldiers I want to go to battle with. They are not the ones I would trust to protect my back because I know they will look for the easy way out. They do not have a winning attitude.

The best soldier is not necessarily the one who scores 300 on the APFT.

The soldier who gives 100 percent — who never gives up and spends the extra seconds trying to get that extra pushup — is the one with whom I want to spend my Army career.

This soldier is a winner and that's what commanders need to accomplish a mission. You see, there's an attitude there that is the very essence of being all we can be.

As leaders, we cannot demand that winning attitude unless we display it ourselves.

We must demand excellence, not mediocrity, from ourselves as well as our subordinates.

Editor's note: Maj. Mike Burley is a Texas National Guardsman on Title 10 tour at the U.S. Army Physical Fitness School. He participated as an atthlete in the modern pentathlon in the 1976 and 1980 Olympics and as a team official in 1988 and 1992.

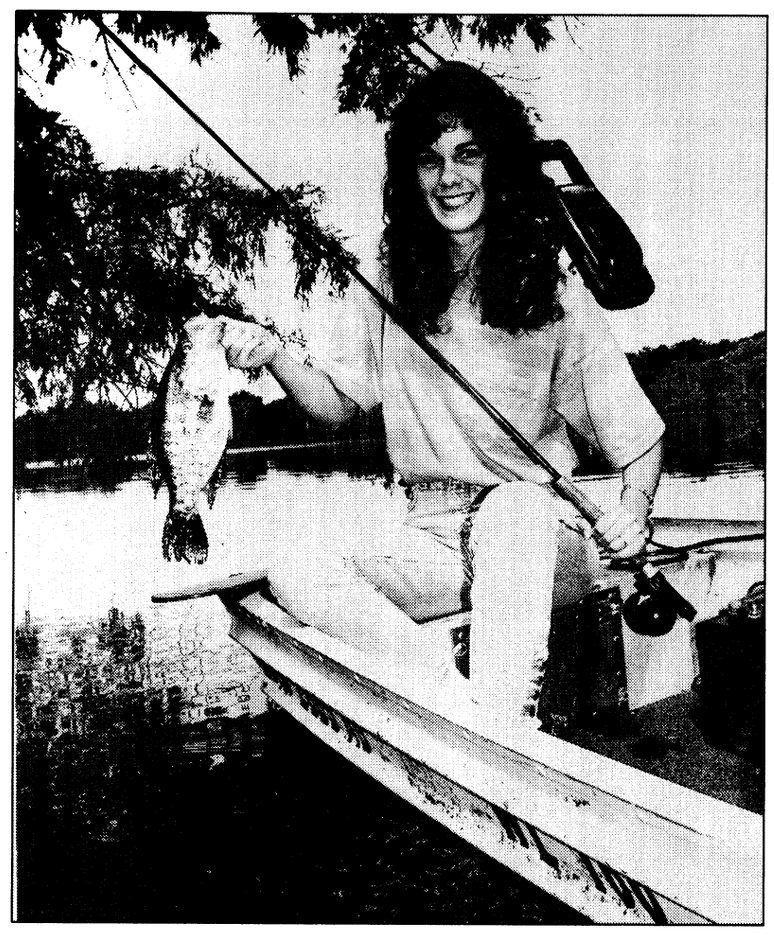
Put the bite on crappie

Nighthawk Publishing Company



You can catch crappie all year long if you understand where to find these fish and how to make them bite. Here's what some of the nation's best crappie fishing experts suggest to take crappie in all seasons.

• Look for brush shelters on the edges of deep water and drop-offs near spawning areas or sink brush there yourself. Brush shelters in these areas can produce papermouths four to six months out of the year — during the pre-spawn, spawn and post-spawn but not in very hot or extremely cold weather.

• Fish bridge pilings on the edges of creek and river channels. Bridge pilings provide vertical structure near deep water where baitfish concentrate and crappie can hold and ambush bait.

• Troll jigs. Trolling jigs consistently yields crappie at all times of the year. "I let the crappie determine the color of jig I troll since they will prefer one color of jig over another," says Allen Padgett of Kathleen, Ga. "According to which color I catch the most fish on, then I change the jigs on the rest of my lines to that color.

• Angle shallow lakes in 100-degree weather. Dr. Omar Smith, a biologist from Memphis, Tenn., explains, "In shallow lakes with live standing timber, you often can catch crappie in one to three feet of water if you fish on the shady side of a tree using a jig pole and a 1/24-ounce crappie jig.

Courtesy photo

With the right techniques, crappie can be caught throughout the year.

• Use a depthfinder and a fly to fish under the ice. Dave Genz, of Minneapolis, Minn., said, "You can find crappie by using a sensitive depthfinder and shooting its signal through the ice. After drilling a hole in the ice, fish with a 1/32-ounce fly, and put the depthfinder's transducer in the ice hole.

"Then you can watch your fly fall to the bottom and the crappie move toward your fly to take the bait."

• Fish streams, creeks and shallow spawning bays as well as banks during the spawn with four to six pound line. Because these areas will warm up first, spawning fish will be there and will hit the light line more readily.

• Make set-outs. As Red Cotton of West Point, Miss., says, "I put 12 to 15 poles that beavers have chewed the bark off of in the bottoms of eight to 10 shallow spawning bays, 10 to 15 yards from the bank.

"I place these sticks 15 to 20 yards apart. I've found big crappie prefer to hold on isolated cover like these sticks."

Angler thrives under reel pressure

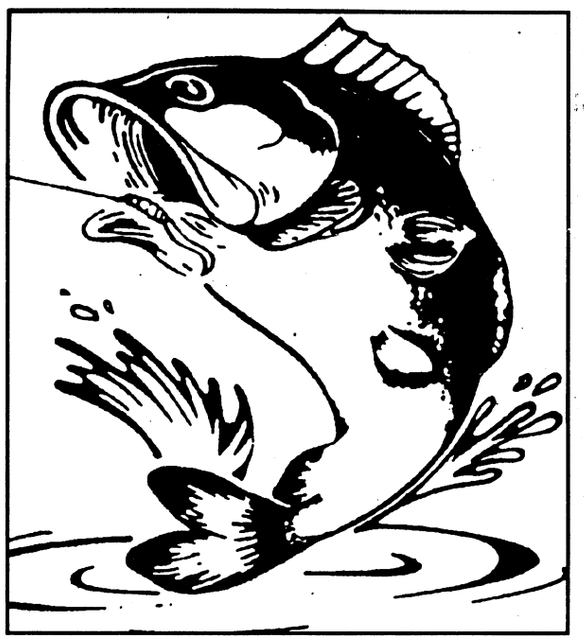
By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

Bass fishing pro Denny Brauer knows about the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat, especially in the unique Bass Anglers Sportsman Society event known as Megabucks.

Brauer won this year's event, in which 10 anglers spend 50 minutes fishing each of 10 designated "holes" for two days. The contestants are the top 10 ranked fishermen after four grueling tournament days where more than 100 other fishermen are eliminated. Several years ago Brauer finished 11th, by just 5 ounces.

"The biggest challenge to me," said the angler, "is dealing with the pressure and using your time efficiently."

"In any tournament, we're fishing against the clock, but we're fishing where we want to fish and we have complete confidence in the area.



"In this tournament, we're fishing places we're forced to fish, and we may not have any confidence in them at all."

Brauer led both days of this event, and said the pressure of being in front didn't bother him.

"I feel comfortable leading a tournament," said the pro, "because if I am leading, at least I know I'm doing something right. I think I feel the pressure a lot more if I have to worry about catching more or larger fish to beat someone in front of me."

Brauer did experience some doubts during this tournament, however, particularly on the first day when a big bass ripped the blade off one of his spinnerbaits but never took the hook.

"It was a big bass that probably would have won the tournament for me the first day," he said, "but something like that happens to someone in nearly every event we fish. In my case, everything worked out just fine without that bass."

Brauer began his second day of the tournament by catching two fish in five minutes on the first hole he fished. He followed with another bass in the next hole, and then a big fish of nearly 6 pounds in the third hole. All four hit a jig.

"At that point I was feeling happy," said Brauer, "because in a Megabucks tournament, you hope to catch your bass early. As the day progresses, the bass become really spooky.

"When I caught that big bass, I think most of the pressure I had been feeling disappeared."

For his win, Brauer won cash and prizes valued at $70,000, including a fully-rigged boat and a tow vehicle.

What is love?

By Pat Hash
Ranger Training Brigade

What is love? Someone has said, "If life is one crazy thing after another, love must be two crazy things after each other."

A cartoonist depicted two people on a dog sled in Alaska. The man said to the woman, "I'd drive my dog team 100 miles to say 'I love you'" to which the woman responded, "That's a lot of mush!"

Is that what love is? Two crazy things after each other or a lot of mush? What is love?

One of the most beautiful biblical answers to that question is the Song of Solomon. It provides some insight into the key ingredients of genuine love.

In Song of Solomon 2:2, the man, addressing the woman, declared, "Like a lily among the thorns is my darling among women."

The first ingredient is appeal. Psychologists use the term "halo effect" to speak of this phenomenon. Your general feeling about someone else influenced your evaluation of his or her specific abilities.

Judith Viorst, writing in Redbook, humorously illustrated this quality of love. She defined the difference between infatuation and love like this: "Infatuation is when you think he's as sexy as Robert Redford, as smart as Henry Kissinger, as noble as Ralph Nader, as funny as Woody Allen, and as athletic as Jimmy Conners. Love is when you realize he's as sexy as Woody Allen, as smart as Jimmy Conners, as funny as Ralph Nader, as athletic as Henry Kissinger, and nothing like Robert Redford — but you'll take him anyway."

When you love someone, you see the best in that person. The woman in the Song of Solomon said of her sweetheart in verse 3: 'Like an apple tree among the trees of the forest, so is my dearest compared to other men. I love to sit in its shadow.'

When you love someone you want to be with him or her and your thoughts are tuned in to that person. That is the second ingredient.

A story is told about a young man who followed behind a beautiful young woman. After a mile, the young lady wheeled around and demanded, "Why do you dog my footsteps?" With fervent emotion he replied,

"Because you are the loveliest thing I have ever seen, and I have fallen madly in love with you at first sight."

"'You only have to look behind you and you will see my younger sister who is 10 times more beautiful than I."

He turned quickly to see as ugly a girl as he had ever seen. He replied, "What a mockery! You lied to me!" "So did you," she replied. "If you were so madly in love with me, why did you turn around?"

When love is real, you won't turn around. You will enjoy sitting in the shadow of his or her presence.

Song of Solomon 2:4 says, "He brought me to his banquet hall and raised the banner of love over me." Genuine love not only thinks about the other person; love acts out that concern in providing for the person's needs.

And that's no mush!

Hispanic-American workshops set

Topics target multicultural concerns

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The Chaplain's Family Life Center and Army Community Service, Family Advocacy are sponsoring Hispanic-American Multicultural Family Workshops.

The first session will be March 5 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Infantry Center Chapel Annex.

The session will be in English and directed to family enrichment for multicultural couples with one spouse from a Hispanic background.

The second session will be March 6, 9 a.m. to noon in the Main Post Catholic Chapel. This session will be in Spanish and directed to family enrichment for Hispanic couples.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Virgil F. Elizondo, rector of San Antonio's San Fernando Cathedral and founder of the Mexican American Cultural Center in San Antonio, Texas.

Elizondo has written several books on religion and Hispanics. His works include the Anthropological and Psychological Characteristics of the Mexican American.

He is an international speaker of Hispanic family vocations and mission. He has appeared on ABC Evening News with Peter Jennings discussing Hispanic support for their families in the military.

The retreat is free, but pre-registration is required by Wednesday. To register, call the Family Life Center at 545-1760.

PARATROOPERS WANTED to jump in RUSSIA and partake in their Annual Paratroopers Day —parades, demonstrations

"OPERATION RED STAR"
Join Your Brother Paratroopers From All Around the World for an Action-Packed Airborne Expedition to the Soviet Union!
30 JULY - 7 AUGUST 1994

This once-in-a-lifetime adventure and international para-reunion will put you in the slip-stream over Russia, with the Airborne Forces of the Soviet Union. If you're a regular, reserve or veteran military static-line jumper, then you'll want to stand in the door for:
• Ground training refresher and static-line parachute jump from an AN-2T Soviet Bi-plane or MI-8 Helicopter.
• Your official Soviet Army para-wings and certificates to be awarded by a senior officer of the Russian Paratroopers.
• A special programme of military displays and demonstrations.
• A Tour of the Soviet Army Museum. This eight-day tour includes: round trip airfare from New York (special connecting airfares available); ground transportation; deluxe hotel accommodations with breakfast; many lunches and dinners: all military, historical and scenic tours. And, of course, a jump from the historic Soviet AN-2T Bi-plane or MI-8 Helicopter.
This is the National Paratrooper Day in Russia on August 2nd. We have been invited to participate in their celebrations, parades, parties and banquet. This is the first time foreigners have been invited to these events. An historic occasion.
The total price is $2,988.00 including airfare from New York and return.
Numbers have been strictly limited by our Soviet hosts, so we must make this a first-come, firstserved registration. You'll receive your complete information packet and itinerary as soon as possible, and your slot on the jump will be guaranteed A $250 (U.S.)* deposit fee is required. (*Registration fee is refundable up until 60 days prior to the tour). Spectators and guests are allowed in strictly limited numbers and will be specially catered for. For information packet send a stamped self-address #10 envelope to: International Association of Airborne Veterans to Suite 340, 2568 No. Clark St., Chicago, IL 60614.

Follow pyramid to promote overall good health

Sound nutrition is key

By Sarah Van Eden
Martin Army Community Hospital

Whether you rate your eating habits as poor or good, there is usually room for improvement. So what's the best nutrition advice?

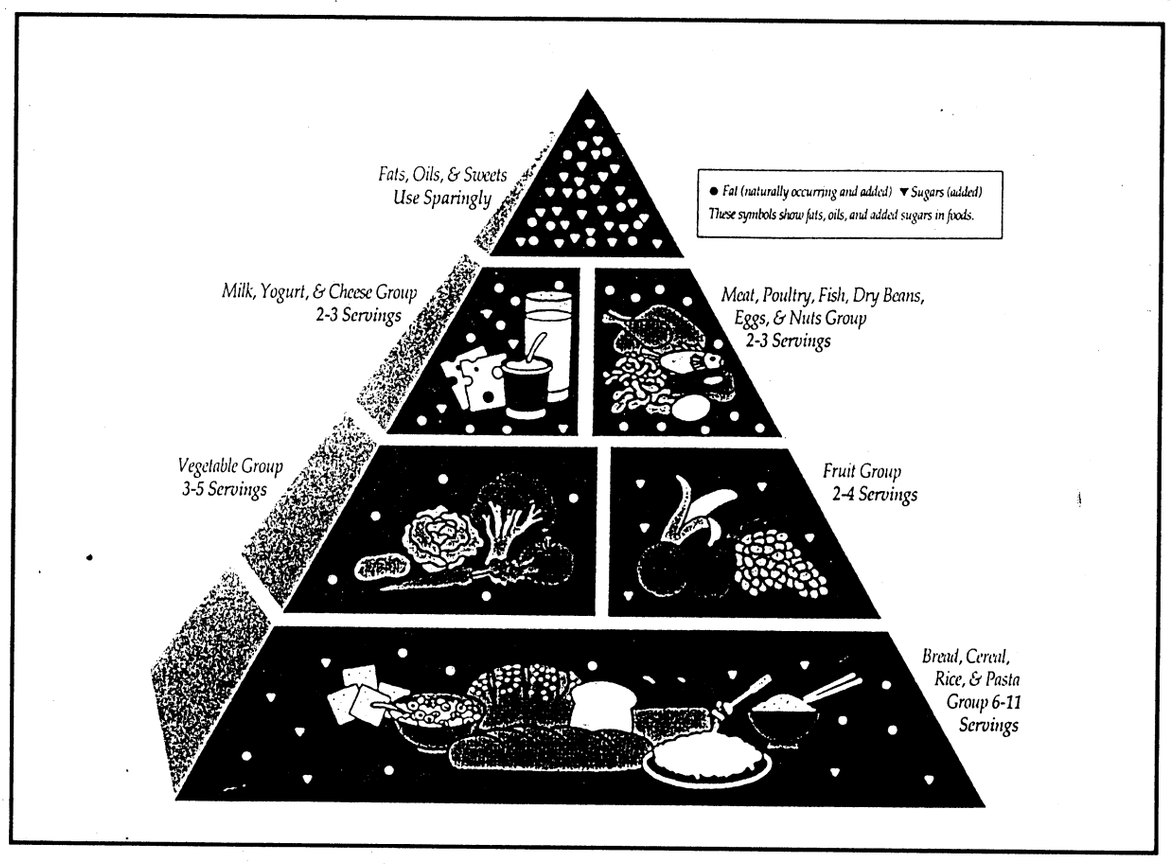
The Dietary Guidelines for Americans provides guidelines that the new food guide pyramid illustrates.

The pyramid is based on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's research on what foods Americans eat, what nutrients are in these foods, and how to make the best food choices for you.

The pyramid focuses on fat because most Americans eat too much fat, which increases chances of getting certain diseases and makes weight loss or weight maintenance difficult.

What is the food guide pyramid? First, it is important to eat a wide variety of foods in moderation. There are no "good" or "bad" foods.

The pyramid calls for eating a variety of foods to get the nutrients you need and at the same time the right amount of calories to maintain an ideal weight.



The pyramid emphasizes foods from the five food groups shown in the three lower sections of the pyramid. No one food group is more important than another for good health.

The small tip at the top of the pyramid shows fats, oils and sweets. Foods such as salad dressings, butter or margarine, sugars, soft drinks and sweet desserts are represented at the top of the pyramid.

These foods provide calories and little else nutritionally. They should be used sparingly.

The second level from the top is two groups that come mostly from animals including milk, yogurt, cheese, meat and eggs. These foods are important for protein, calcium, iron and zinc.

The key is portion control, lowfat diary products and lean meats.

The third level from the top includes foods that come from plant sources — vegetables and fruits. Most people need to eat more fruits and vegetables for vitamins, minerals and fiber.

Eating the peels or skins on fruits and vegetables provide additional dietary fiber important in prevention of certain cancers, weight control and lowering cholesterol.

Examples include cucumbers, zucchini, apples, pears and peaches.

At the base are grains — breads, cereals, rice and pasta. You need the most servings from these foods every day.

The bottom half of the pyramid represents the complex carbohydrates. Over half of our diet should come from complex carbohydrates.

Some fat or sugar symbols are shown in the food groups to remind you that some food choices can be high in fat or added sugars depending on the preparation and ingredients.

For example, one baked potato contains 120 calories and a trace of fat while 14 french fries contain 225 calories and one gram of fat.

The pyramid shows a range of servings for each food group. The number of servings right for you depends on age, sex, size and activity level.

Almost everyone should have at least the minimum number of servings.

For many sedentary women and older adults, 1,600 calories or the minimum servings is adequate.

Most children, teen-age girls, active women and many sedentary men need about 2,200 calories. Pregnant and breastfeeding women may need more.

Teen-age boys, many active men and some very active women may need about 2,800 calories or the higher end of the serving recommendations.

Following the message of the food guide pyramid helps promote sound nutrition and overall good health to "Eat Right America."

How safe is your home?

By Alfreta Gibson
Community Health Nursing Service

Now that the sights and sounds of the holidays are over, now what?

Eager little hands and mouths will explore the toys they received. Unfortunately, things that light up a child's play can also injure him.

Last year alone, 163,000 emergency room visits were made by children who were injured in toy-related injuries, according to the Injury Reduction Institute. This nonprofit institute further states that between 1986 and 1990, 700,000 children died.

Community Health Nursing emphasized the need to child-proof your home during a Christmas Toy Safety Program, which was held during the Christmas season.

Child-proofing your home is a seven day-a-week, 24-hour, year-round responsibility. Now that we are enjoying all of these toys, let's focus on these simple guidelines for a fun-filled year.

• Examine every room in the house for child-proofing: laundry room, kitchen, bathroom, living room, nursery, child's room, halls and stairs, bedroom and garage.

• Put your child in a safety seat and fasten your seat belt every time you are in the car.

• Keep matches out of the reach of small hands.

• Install smoke detectors.

John Wynn

Walde Cummings, 5, shows the prize he won during the Christmas Toy Safety Project sponsored by Community Health Nursing Service. The toys were donated by the Post Exchange at the Main Mall.

• Design a fire escape plan and practice it.

• Keep perfume, after shave, punch and cocktails out of your child's reach. Alcohol can poison your child.

• You may want to install an intercom so you can listen to your baby and children playing.

• Never leave a child in a bathtub, swimming pool or around a body of water, including the commode.

• Don't leave hair dryers or other electrical appliances plugged in near the sink or tub.

• Keep plants out of children's reach and watch for falling leaves. Indoors, children are poisoned most by philodendron and diffenbachia.

• Remember what cleans your clothes can poison your children. Of course, you still have to watch your children. You still have to teach them what can hurt them. You still have to say "no" sometimes.

Your children will be safer if you greatly reduce the number of ways they can get injured.

SJA can help with bankruptcy

Editor's note: This is the second of a three-part series on bankruptcy. The first segment discussed how Army Community Services helps soldiers with debt management. This section outlines how the Staff Judge Advocate's Office can assist those for whom bankruptcy is unavoidable.

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

"What we try to do is help the client avoid bankruptcy if at all possible. We refer clients to Army Community Service for a debt management program whenever we can."

Jane Winand, civilian lawyer and chief of the Legal Assistance Division at the Staff Judge Advocate's Office, said that while managing debt is always the first choice, in some cases bankruptcy may be the only option.

"Working through a counselor leaves you with a better credit record," Winand said, adding that soldiers have the advantage of free financial counseling available through ACS.

Winand suggests that bankruptcy be considered only if the client has exhausted all other avenues. "If you have no resources and no prospects for additional resources — a second job, for example — and your debt is truly unmanageable, bankruptcy may be something you have to consider," she said.

"The main thing to consider," said Winand, "is what bankruptcy will do to your credit record. It stays on your credit report for seven years, and will show up after that if you apply for a loan of $50,000 or more. You need to consider this if you anticipate applying for a home or business loan."

"People also need to know that bankruptcy won't erase all debt," she said. "Alimony and child support will still have to be paid, as will federal taxes. If you retain a house or car, those payments must still be met, and often student loans will also have to be paid off."

Winand said Legal Assistance assists only with Chapter 7 bankruptcy, in which assets are liquidated to satisfy creditors.

"Chapter 7 works best with unsecured debt, such as credit cards," she said, adding that an uncomplicated Chapter 7 procedure can usually be completed in three to four months.

SJA will help clients file Chapter 7 bankruptcy if they can demonstrate financial need. "It really depends what our program can absorb," Winand said. "Army regulations state that we can provide assistance to soldiers specialist and below. Higher ranks can also qualify, depending on their circumstances."

Winand explained that because of personnel constraints at Legal Assistance, the number of cases that can be handled is limited. "For instance, one of our attorneys is working full-time on tax assistance now," she said, "so that cuts back on the bankruptcies we can process. As our program expands, we hope to be able to assist more soldiers."

Before renting, read lease, set inspection

Columbus Board of Realtors

The decision has been made, you're going to rent a house, apartment, or trailer. This may or may not be your first time renting, but it will be well worth your time to go over a few essential items.

Keep copies of everything you have signed.

First and foremost is the lease. This is the agreement that details your agreement. It should have the term of the lease (six months, one year, etc), the amount of the rent and when it is due, late charges and dishonored check fees, repairs and default (what happens if you do not pay the rent).

It may provide terms for early termination. If you sign a lease for six months, you are liable for six months rent. Moving on post to government quarters is not cause for terminating your lease without penalty.

Permanent change of station orders, and in some cases temporary duty orders, do allow you to terminate your lease with notice. Make sure you understand the terms of the lease before you sign it; it may save you a lot of grief later.

When you move in, you should be asked to prepare a move-in inspection. The sole purpose of this inspection is to establish the condition of the property when you occupied it. It is not a work order, but is important when you move out.

While you are renting, the landlord has certain responsibilities. Foremost is to maintain the property in a livable condition. This means the landlord is responsible for making repairs to the systems (electrical, plumbing, heating, etc.) and structure in a timely manner as they are required. It will be between you and the landlord as to if and when cosmetic fixes are made.

Under certain conditions, if the landlord does not make repairs in a timely manner after you have notified him, you may make the repairs and deduct the cost from your rent (check with the Legal Assistance Office before you do this). However, you should not refuse to pay rent because a repair has not been made.

When you move out, give notice that you are moving as is stipulated in your lease. Within three business days after you move out, the landlord should inspect the property and determine if you will be charged for any damages.

Remember the move-in inspection form? This is the document used to determine damages to the property during your tenancy. Fair wear and tear are not considered damages, but it is a judgment call as to what is fair wear and tear. The notification of any charges should be in writing.

If you disagree with any charges, you must do so in writing within five days after terminating occupancy. If you cannot resolve the dispute, it can go into court for resolution. If money is to be returned to you, the landlord has up to 30 days to return it.

What has been covered here is but practical information based on the experience of the author and is only general in nature. There are laws in Georgia that govern the relationship of landlord and tenant. The Columbus Board of Realtors can help you with general information. If you have questions, you should consult the Legal Assistance Office at 545-3281.

Help children keep healthy smiles

Georgia Dental Association

February is the 44th observance of National Children's Dental Health Month. In recognition of this event, the Georgia Dental Association has a few tips to help parents maintain their children's healthy smiles.

• Put only water in a child's bottle for a nap or at bedtime.

• Start brushing the child's teeth as soon as the first tooth appears (six months).

• Make sure your child gets the fluoride needed to develop decay-resistant teeth. Ask your dentist how this can be done.

• Brush and floss young children's teeth daily until they can be taught to do this alone. Then encourage them to brush and floss.

• Take your child to see the dentist regularly. Schedule the first visit by the child's first birthday.

• Ask your dentist about dental sealants. Sealants are used to protect the chewing surfaces of the child's back teeth.

The Georgia Dental Association also notes that a good diet is essential for you child's growth and development and to maintain a healthy body. Like the rest of the body, the teeth, bones and the soft tissues of the mouth require nutrients supplied by a well-balanced diet.

Many factors determine how foods affect the teeth. The more often a child snacks on foods containing sugar and starch, the greater the chance for tooth decay. Other factors include:

• Frequency of snacks. Limiting the number of times you snack between meals will minimize the number of acid attacks on your teeth.

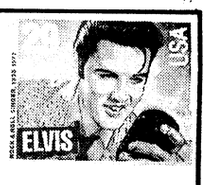
• The amount of time the food is in the mouth. Foods such as hard candy and breath mints stay in the mouth a long time, leading to extended acid attacks on teeth.

• Physical characteristics of the food. Foods that tend to stick to the teeth may prolong the acid attack.

• The time of day a food is eaten. Carbohydrates eaten as part of a meal are less harmful to teeth than if eaten alone.

Foods eaten just before bedtime can stick to the teeth through the night.

• What is eaten. Research indicates that certain foods, such as cheese, may help counter the effects of the acids produced by plaque bacteria.



For more information on this topic or any other concerning oral health, contact the Georgia Dental Association at (800) 282-1993.

3rd Brigade shoots it up during gunnery

Spc. David Webber, gunner for Company D, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment prepares to fire from a M-3 Bradley Fighting Vehicle.

Richard Ritz

By Susan Dutton
3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division

The 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, recently returned from Fort Stewart, Ga., after completing Bradley gunnery qualifications.

The companies from 1st Bn., 18th Infantry Regiment qualified at Fort Stewart's state of the art multi-purpose range complex from Jan. 31 to Feb. 14.

As the battalion command sergeant major commented about the modern range complex, "The facilities are better and the ranges offer a real challenge," said Command Sgt. Maj. Robert Thompson.

The soldiers took that challenge seriously. "Our goal is to outshoot anybody on any range," said Sgt. Michael Karpew, a gunner for Company C. "We're very disciplined and competitive. We're motivated with pride."

During the gunnery, Maj. Gen. Paul Blackwell, commander, 24th Infantry Division, escorted Lt. Gen. Gary Luck, commander, 18th Airborne Corps, to observe the shooting. Luck presented 24th Infantry Division coins to the Bradley crew who had qualified with a perfect score of 1,000 for the second year in a row. The two leaders seemed impressed with the professionalism and accomplishments of these soldiers. Their comments later brought Georgia Sen. Paul Coverdell to the scene, who mounted a Bradley and proceeded to engage the targets. The soldiers left Fort Stewart after two weeks.

The results from the gunnery are 34 distinguished crews, of which 16 had fired perfect 1,000s, 11 superiors crews, eight qualified crews, and a qualified refire crew.

36th's mission supports Somalia

By Cindy Killion
14th Public Affairs Team

JILIB, Somalia — Now that the major clan battles have stopped and food looting is the rarity rather than the norm, it's time for Somalia to rebuild the wreckage that was once a united country.

It's time to reopen banks, restore electrical wires, jump-start power generators and resettle people into the homes and villages they fled.

It's time for the farmers to return to Jilib and the Jubba River Valley and start feeding Somalia again.

Laying the foundation for this entire process are the engineers of Task Force Durham — a 600-soldier team of heavy equipment operators, construction workers and mine clearing specialists.

The Task Force, taken primarily from Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion and 63rd Engineer Company, 36th Engineer Group of Fort Benning has the ambitious mission of clearing, building and improving nearly 500 miles of war and nature-ravaged roads.

Good roads support the clan cease-fire agreements and also stop local bandits from extorting travelers, said Capt. Kevin Lindsay, Task Force operations officer. For instance, some roads have had a sand dune or a washout or something that has made it difficult to pass through. It seems anyplace there's been a constriction, someone has set up a roadblock and charged a tariff to get through.

When the people realize there's a safe and clear path to return home, the United Nations resettlement plan can begin in earnest along with the plans to re-open schools, re-establish markets and charge the economy's dead battery, he added.

The coalition road improvement network extends from Mogadishu 360 miles southwest to Jilib then cuts north 300 miles to Bardera, northeast 200 miles to Baidoa where it meets with the Baidoa/Mogadishu road that's already been cleared by Navy Seabees. "We're also handling the spur that runs 50 south from Jilib to Kismayo," Lindsay said.

Task Force Commander Lt. Col. Dwight Durham said the 36th Engineer Group, headquartered in Mogadishu, has some engineers pushing west to Jilib. But the bulk of the road by his unit which is based in Jilib with some engineers bulldozing their way north to Bardera and some moving out of Bardera south. "We're going to meet in the middle," he said.

In addition, a triangle of road that begins and ends in Baidoa will be improved, Durham said. Each side is about 75 miles and will connect the villages of Oddur and Waajid — northern desert areas that have been hit especially hard by famine and starvation.

"By the end of February, we want all these roads to have at least one passable lane," Durham said.

That means filling in potholes, smoothing washouts, building culverts and digging drainage ditches.

"We're using as much of the existing road as possible," Lindsay said. "But we are going to build about 100 miles of new road to move it out of the flood plain in the Jubba Valley.

Then there's the land mine problem. Various stretches of road, primarily in the Jilib/Bardera/Baidoa route have anti-tank mines left the factional warfighters.

"We know for certain that there are two stretches of road that are been mined between Jilib and Bardera," Durham said. "One area is three to eight miles long and the other is 12 to 18 miles long."

The loose-surface road was built in the late 1960s by the Soviets Durham explained. The mines were planted as deep as six inches during the rainy season when the sand and gravel was soft and muddy. "Now it's dry and the road is hard. It's like looking for mines under a half foot of concrete."

In addition, a lot of scrap metal and spent ammunition cartridges are buried in the road "so our minesweepers are getting a lot of false positives," Durham said.

And, he said, soldiers have to be on the constant lookout for unexploded ordnance laying around. "I've seen areas along that road where some major battles were fought," he said. "Not only are there a lot of empty cartridges there's still a lot of live ammunition."

When a mine is found by dismounted engineers equipped with mine-sweeping equipment "it's blown in place," Lindsay said.

The process goes something like this: engineers walk the road first with minesweepers and find all they can. A tractor equipped with mine clearing armor protection follows a kilometer or so behind. Between these two all the mines should be found. But just to make sure, "we're rolling the road too," said Sgt. Maj. Bobby Wisdom. "We want to know that this road is 100 percent clear."

"We are taking it very slow and careful," he said. "This isn't an assault breech; we have the luxury here to take some time.

"Our number one concern is the safety of our soldiers — and of the civilian population," he said.

Durham said the local citizens have been "ecstatic" about the engineers work. "This is a tangible thing they can see," he said. "Security is paramount, but you can't reach out and touch it. But when you walk outside in the morning and see that the road in front of your house doesn't have big potholes anymore you can see the results of having coalition forces here," Durham said.

"The people of this area are proud of their heritage. They're proud they're farmers — that they used to feed people as far away as Italy and Egypt.

"They know that having their road back is the first step in doing that again. They want to be independent. They don't want to be parasites of relief agencies."

Jilib emerges from solitude

By Brian C. Sutton
Bayonet staff writer

JILIB, Somalia — The sun beats down on the the man in the field as he toils, digging the grave that serves as a reminder of the devastation the faction fighting and famine have done to his small village. The man's sweat is accompanied by tears for his dead son, both draining what little water he has had to drink for the day.

The temperature is somewhere near 100 degrees and with the intense humidity, the weather in this Southern Somali village is almost unbearable.

The man's daughter sits by the grave, barely aware that her brother who is to be buried is the last of her four other siblings, all have died from the famine. Her hunger and thirst wipe away any emotions her mind could possibly conceive. So there she sits — watching her father bury one of the last parts of her family.

Scenes like the one above could be found as many as 50 times a day in the small village of Jilib, a town 60 miles northeast of Kismayu.

But then the coalition forces came to the area, led by Task Force Durham, the majority of which is made of elements of the 36th Engineer Group from Fort Benning.

According to local villagers, the death rate of 50 a day has dropped to barely three a week, due largely to the efforts of the task force to clear the roadways and build bridges. The clearing and improvement of roadways has opened up the village to commerce, taking a village that three weeks ago had no crops to harvest and bring to market, and turning it into a village abundant with fresh produce — and customers.

"Three weeks ago Jilib was an island," said Lt. Col. Dwight Durham, commander of Task Force Durham.

Durham said the area was cut off from commerce because the road leading to the village was impassable.

The task force got to work quickly repairing roads and building bridges, linking Jilib to the surrounding area. Their first priority was to get the roads up and running so the relief agencies could step in and quell the famine.

"We have big hopes for the Americans here," said Col. Abrahim Duale, an officer with the Somali Liberation Army who lives in Jilib.

Duale said the coalition forces restored the peace. He said that was a key element in saving the village because, aside from the starvation, the militant factions would come into the village to kill and steal.

"Ninety percent of the trouble is gone now," said Duale. "But only God knows what will happen in the future.

Duale said the villagers have weapons to protect themselves against any intruders that come to steal or rape the women, which were common occurrences when the factions ruled the area.

"We fear the fighting will come back when the Americans are gone," said Duale.

For now, the villagers may move freely in the area. And with a little restoration of hope, and a little rainfall, never again will Somali children have to witness the starvation of a brother.

WORLD WAR II — A LOOK BACK

50 years ago this week...

• Allied planes from the Fifth Air Force, commanded by U.S. Maj. Gen. George C. Kenney, repeatedly attacked a Japanese convoy transporting 7,000 reinforcements en route to New Guinea in a pivotal three-day battle in the Bismarck Straits. The attacks were successful as the combined Australian and American force lost only three fighters and one bomber, while sinking 22 ships in the convoy, including 10 destroyers and inflicting 3,500 casualties and put 102 out of 150 enemy escort fighters out of action. The disastrous battle forced the Japanese high command to seriously re-evaluate its prospects for the island.

• In Norway, a demolitions team of Norwegian commandos parachuted in from Great Britain and destroyed the Norsk Hydro power plant that had produced the "heavy water" that was vital to the continuation of the Nazis' atomic research and development program.

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets captured the city of Demyansk as part of an offensive launched by Marshal Semyon K. Timoshenko against the German 16th Army north of Moscow. Additionally, Russian forces occupied Rzhev, Lgov, Olenino, Chertolino, Sevsk, and Sudzka. Despite these and other Soviet gains, German Field Marshal Erich von Manstein began the next phase of his own offensive, dispatching units from the Fourth Panzer Army and the SS Panzer Corps with Kharkov as the objective.

• In Tunisia, North Africa, the British repelled a German attack as American forces advanced, regaining Sbeitla before moving on to Feriana.

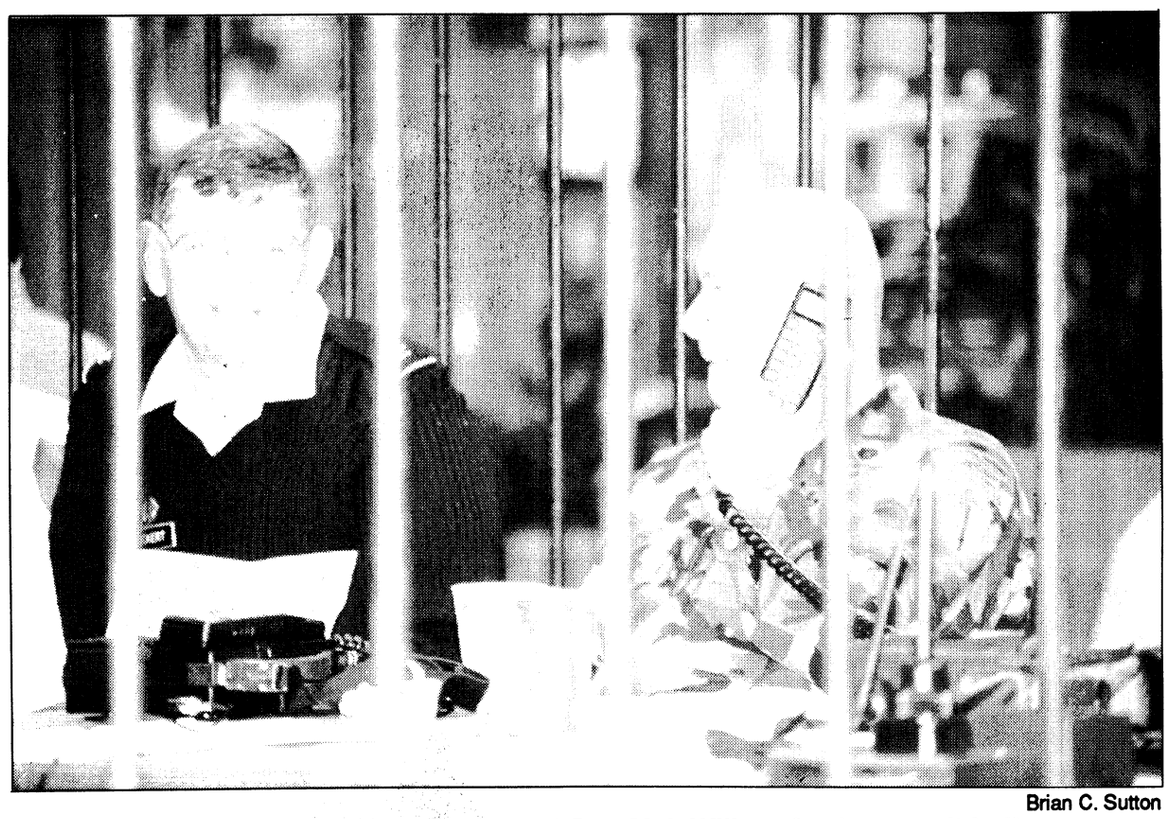
USAIC Public Affairs Ofice

Eight Officer Candidate School candidates branched field artillery or air defense artillery during ceremonies at Wigle Hall Wednesday.

The candidates were: Matthew Dougan, Daniel Hoss, Christopher Lackovic, Paul Osborne, Seth Pilgrim and Richard Redfield branching field artillery, while Joseph Day and Charles Nesloney branched air defense artillery.

Lt. Col. Randall C. Williams Jr., chief of the Combined Arms Division, spoke to the candidates and presented them with their first set of field artillery or air defense artillery brass.

Each candidate also received a letter of welcome from their respective branch commanding general.



The new second lieutenants will contiune their careers by attending either the Field Artillery Officer Basic Course at Fort Sill, Okla. or the Air Defense Artillery Officer Basic Course at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Seven OCS candidates branched Army aviation during ceremonies conducted at Wigle Hall Thursday. The candidates were: Clarence Carrol, Wiliam Denny, William Girard, William Kraeling, Donald Lee, Timothy Payne and John Roberts.

Col. Thomas Garrett, deputy assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, Ala., spoke to the candidates and presented them with their first set of aviation brass.

Each candidate also received an aviation branch letter of welcome from Maj. Gen. Dave Robinson, commanding general of the Aviation Center.

The new second lieutenants will continue their Army careers by attending the Aviation Officer Basic Course and Initial Entry Rotary Wing Course at Fort Rucker.

Soldiers jailed for charity

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Several Fort Benning soldiers and a civilian found themselves in the "slammer" Feb. 16 awaiting bail, including the post command sergeant major and the Military Police Activity commander, according to post military police officials.

Sgt. 1st Class Bobby Jones, noncommissioned officer in charge of the Physical Security Section of the Military Police Activity, said the soldiers were jailed at Peachtree Mall in Columbus as part of Crimestoppers "Jail and Bail" program.

Under the program, which ran Feb. 16 and 17, tri-community residents could call the police departments to have someone picked up and put in a "jail cell" set up in the mall area.

SOA to get new chief

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The School of the Americas will welcome a new commander March 18 at 10 a.m. during a ceremony at the front entrance to the school, Building 35.

Lt. Gen. Wilson A. Shoffner, deputy commanding general of the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command and commandant of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., will pass the school's colors to Col. Jose M. Alvarez who succeeds Col. Jose R. Feliciano.

Feliciano, who has been the commander at the SOA since May 1991, graduated from the University of Puerto Rico in 1963. He has served in various command and staff positions at Fort Gulick, Panama, Fort Meade, Md.; Vietnam and at Fort Benning as a ranger instructor, battalion commander and as brigade commander of the 1st Infantry Training Brigade.

Feliciano is retiring from the Army and intends to remain in the Columbus area. He and his wife, Carol, have two children, Marc and Marisa.

Alvarez was commissioned in the infantry upon graduation from Pennsylvania Military College in 1970. His most recent assignment was as the chief of the Reserve Component Training Integration Division in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Plans, Department of the Army.

Date rape is a crime — not passion

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

It happens for a variety of reasons and circumstances, but whatever the reason, date rape is a serious offense.

A large number of soldiers are finding this out the hard way, said Sgt. 1st Class Bobby Jones of the Military Police Activity's Physical Security Branch.

"Regardless of how willing to have sex a woman seems, if she requests that you stop and you don't, then you have committed the offense of rape," Jones said. "In the eyes of the law, it is the same as if you pulled an unknown woman off of the street and had sex with her."

Date rape is defined as sexual assault against a woman that is committed by someone the victim knows; however, the law makes no distinction between date rape or rape by a stranger, said Jones. Article 120 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice defines rape as "the commission of an act of sexual intercourse by a person with a female not his wife, by force and without her consent. It may be committed on a female of any age. Any penetration, however slight, is sufficient to complete the offense."

Jones said that at least 75 percent of the rapes reported on post last year involved people who knew each other. In the majority of cases, one or more of the persons involved had been drinking.

"Alcohol can seriously impair people's judgment and their willingness to control their sexual urges," he said.

Date rape, said Jones, can occur for a variety of reasons.

"Some men think that if they paid for an expensive night out, they deserve something in return at the end of the date," he said.

Date rape can also occur because of poor communication between people who don't have an understanding of each other's sexual intentions or expectations, or because of mixed messages.

"Some men might think that a woman is just playing hard to get or that she really means yes when she says no," said Jones. "The bottom line is that 'no' means 'no' and 'stop' means 'stop.' My advice to men is that if a woman does not give her verbal consent, then stop." Jones also gave some practical advice that can be taken to prevent date rape, including avoiding secluded places, having your own transportation, expressing what you want clearly and being aware of the effects of alcohol.

"Females should be careful about placing themselves in a compromising position with someone they have just met or don't know very well. Know whom you are with and be careful," he said.

Jones also encouraged women who believe that they have been raped to contact the military police as soon as possible. A prolonged delay between the rape and contacting the authorities reduces the chance of finding conclusive evidence, he said.

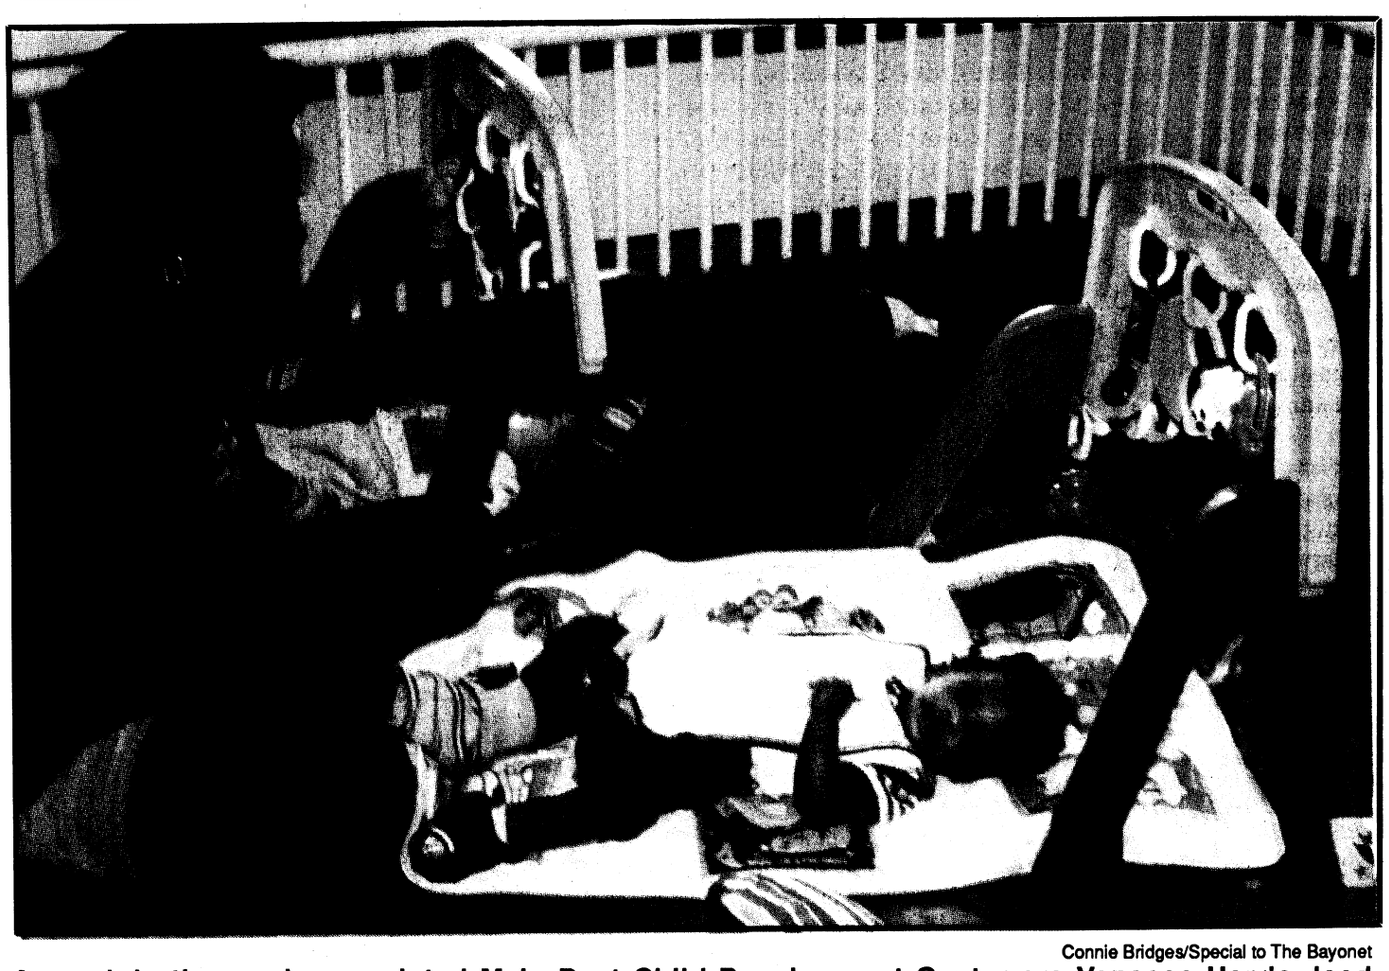
Jones said that the punishment for date rape varies.

"The punishment is decided on a case-by-case basis and depends on the amount of force used and other circumstances. The maximum penalties include dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of pay and allowances and several years of confinement at hard labor."

Travel fair has vacation ideas

SatoTravel

A travel fair will be March 11 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Infantry Hall, Building 4.



Sponsored by SatoTravel and the Information, Tickets and Recreation Office, the fair is a great opportunity for people to acquire travel ideas from representatives of airlines, cruise lines, tour companies, hotels, car rental agencies, and attractions such as Walt Disney World and the Pine Mountain Zoo, according to Linda Guerrero, branch manager of the SatoTravel Leisure Center.

In addition to learning about exciting vacation destinations, visitors will have the opportunity to participate in fantastic giveaways, with prizes including round trip tickets to Europe from Delta Airlines, weekend getaways and other fabulous vacations, Guerrero said.

"If you plan to take a vacation this year, whether it's at three-day weekend, a two-week dream trip, or a 30-day excursion home to visit your family, you should attend the travel fair," said Guerrero. "At the very least, you'll get valuable information about travel opportunities; at the most, you might win two airline tickets to Europe and take a dream vacation."

SatoTravel has three locations on Fort Benning: the main office at Soldiers' Plaza, the Leisure Travel and Vacation Center on Ingersol Street and the Sand Hill Office located on Hanson Drive.

The office is a full-service travel company, and services are available to anyone on Fort Benning.

"That chorus really has me fired up. The Infantry Chorus had better watch out. They have competition now."

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White said this of the preschoolers' performance of "Good Morning to You" at the Main Post Child Development Center during the opening ceremony for the new facility Feb. 18.

"So many great things are going on at Fort Benning," White said, "that I wish I could spend more time thanking people for all they do. Today I want to thank Al Stewart and his staff for making facilities like this come true."

According to Lajoie Bradley, director of the Main Post Child Development Center, the capacity of the facility is 98 children. The center opened Jan. 4, moving its staff and children from the center that had been located at the Main Post Exchange mall.

Bradley said the move came about because there were other businesses wanting their space in the mall, and funds became available to build their center.

Another Child Development Center, near Dental Clinic 1 on Santa Fe Road, is also under construction. According to Jennifer Williams, Child Development coordinator, it will open sometime in early to mid-April with a capacity for 198 children. No name has been selected yet for this facility.

The Main Post center offers a staff that includes Vanessa Harris, lead technician for the infant room; Leila Jones, toddlers and pretoddlers; and Mollie Floyd, preschoolers.

In addition, the Fort Benning Schools staffs a Preschool Special Needs Program for 3- to 5-year-olds at the facility under Tommye Woods, special education director.

According to Carolyn McCollum, preschool special education teacher, this program is just one segment of the Preschool Special Needs Program in which physically handicapped, speech/language impaired and developmentally-delayed children are integrated with nonhandicapped children in an appropriate learning environment.

Another segment will open in the other new center when it is completed.

Parents interested in enrolling their youngsters at the Child Development Centers on post should contact the Central Registration Office on Custer Road, Building 11302, or call 544-1623.

SJA plans birthday celebration

By William Riley Hall and Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writers

From easing legal procedures for some of the millions of inductees during World War II to providing help for today's soldiers and retirees, the Army legal assistance program has been aiding military members for half a century.

On March 16, legal assistance will be celebrating its 50th birthday, said Jane M. Winand, chief of the Legal Assistance Office here.

On that date in 1943, the first legal assistance program was implemented for the Army by the publication of a war department circular, according to the Staff Judge Advocate's Office.

In honor of the golden celebration, Winand said that a reception is in the planning process at the office. "We plan to have the commanders and directorate chiefs in to give them a chance to see what we do," she said.

Winand said legal assistance plays a role in helping soldiers with adoptions, separation agreements, bankruptcies, small claim suits, probate, wills, juvenile hearings and other actions.

"We're blessed with a great staff," she said. "We have six attorneys on staff full time, three civilian and three military, plus another attorney who works with us part time.

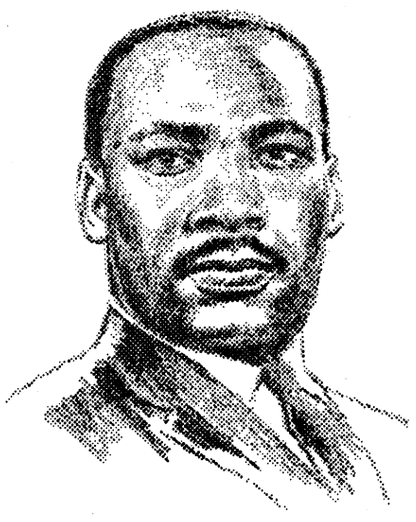
"We won the Training and Doctrine Command Army Communities of Excellence Award for best legal assistance program," said Winand. "We've also been given the Chief of Staff award for legal excellence three years in a row."

Winand said that one thing Fort Benning's program has in its favor is the presence of attorneys licensed in Georgia. "At most installations, attorneys are not licensed in-state," she said. "It does make a difference. Also, the attorneys we have are very good — there's a combined total of 45 years of experience in this office."

Winand, who first came to Fort Benning as a legal officer in 1984, said the program has expanded a great deal in her time here.

"We do a lot more court representation now," she said. "We also do quite a few referrals to attorneys in the local area." Winand said the Legal Assistance Office saved soldiers more than $400,000 in fiscal 1992.

"Through the expansion of our program," she said, "we've established ourselves with attorneys and businesses in the area. They take us seriously, and that helps us be of more help to the soldiers."



Schools celebrate black history

Fort Benning Schools

Black History Month continues throughout the month of February in the Fort Benning Schools as kindergarten through eighth-grade students participate in a variety of studies and special programs designed to focus on this year's theme, Afro-American Scholars: Leaders, Activists and Writers.

Students are celebrating the month in each of the eight schools through a variety of bulletin boards, displays and posters. Research has been a key component in many classrooms, as students read and write about important people and events in our nation's history.

Student activities range from a skit on Jackie Robinson and a choral reading about Martin Luther King Jr. at Dexter School, to choral readings and a student luncheon at Loyd School, to a full month of activities arranged by the week at Faith Middle School.

At Faith Middle School, African Heritage Week was Feb. 16 to 19, and Cultural Awareness Week was Monday to today. Each of the four weeks includes a variety of activities centered around the theme of Black History Month. The month will culminate with a Dress-Up Day today, when students will dress according to their own cultural background or a culture they choose to "adopt" for the day.

Field trips have also been a part of the celebration. Several classes visited Tuskegee Institute in Tuskegee, Ala., and the King Center in Atlanta.

In addition to student activities, several speakers are joining Fort Benning Schools students and staff in their celebration of the month. Loyd, McBride, Wilbur and Wilson Schools will continue the study of black history with the visit of the Georgia Sea Island Singers March 8.

The Georgia Sea Island Singers' performances are presented to give young audiences an opportunity for a unique glimpse into the Afro-American folk heritage. The Georgia Sea Island Singers will perform songs, games, dances and stories handed down for more than two centuries.

Benning students learn about dental health

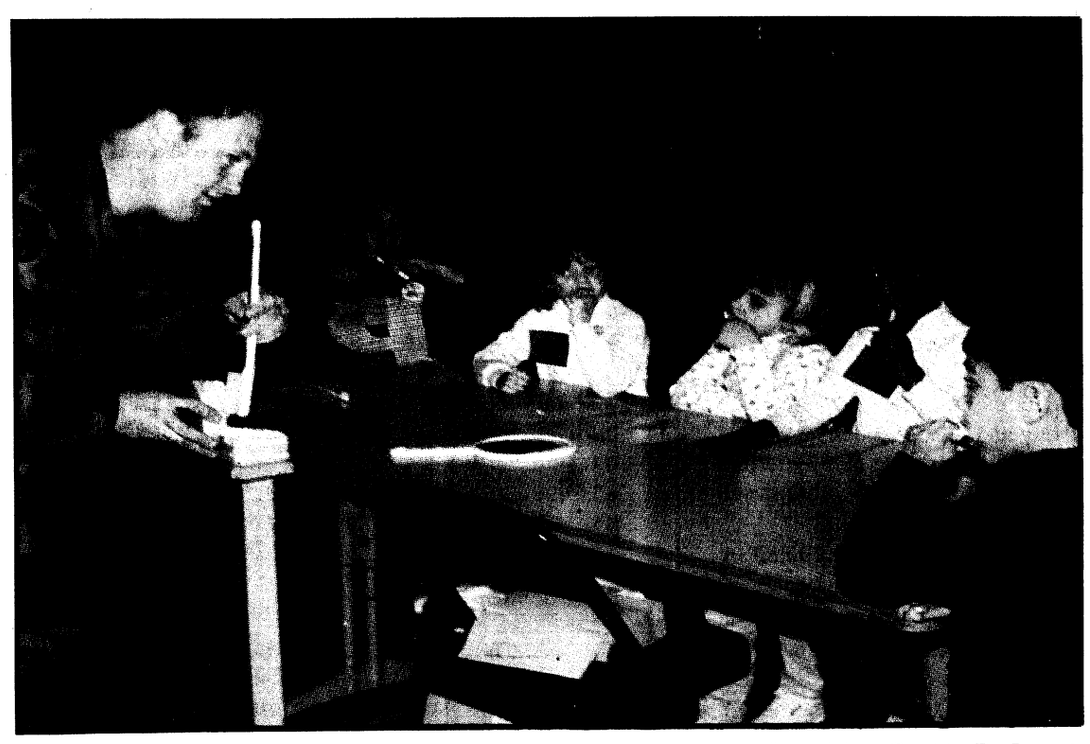
By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

About 4,000 children at Fort Benning schools and child development centers are being screened this month by the U.S. Army Dental Activity as part of Children's Dental Health Month.

According to Maj. Monroe Ginsburg, preventative dentistry officer, this is an annual effort to identify dental problems in young children and to give basic instruction in dental hygiene.

The children begin by viewing a film about dental hygiene. Hygienists then show them how to brush and floss properly, followed by dentists screening for cavities and crowding.

One of three follow-up forms regarding the findings is then sent home to parents.



"Dudley," the mascot for Children's Dental Health Month, usually makes a visit, and sometimes a puppet show is presented.

Ginsburg said the fluoride program in the schools is also an approach to prevention.

According to Dr. Beth Middlemiss, director of staff development for the Fort Benning Schools, once a week teachers in the elementary schools have the children rinse out their mouths with fluoride as part of a "Swish Program."

Planning for Children's Dental Health Month usually begins the June before, according to officials. All of the pre-organization for this year was done by Betty Loftin, registered dental hygienist.

During Valentine's weekend, DENTAC also took part in a health fair at Peachtree Mall, which Loftin organized for DENTAC.

'Triple Nickels' soldiers focus on black history

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

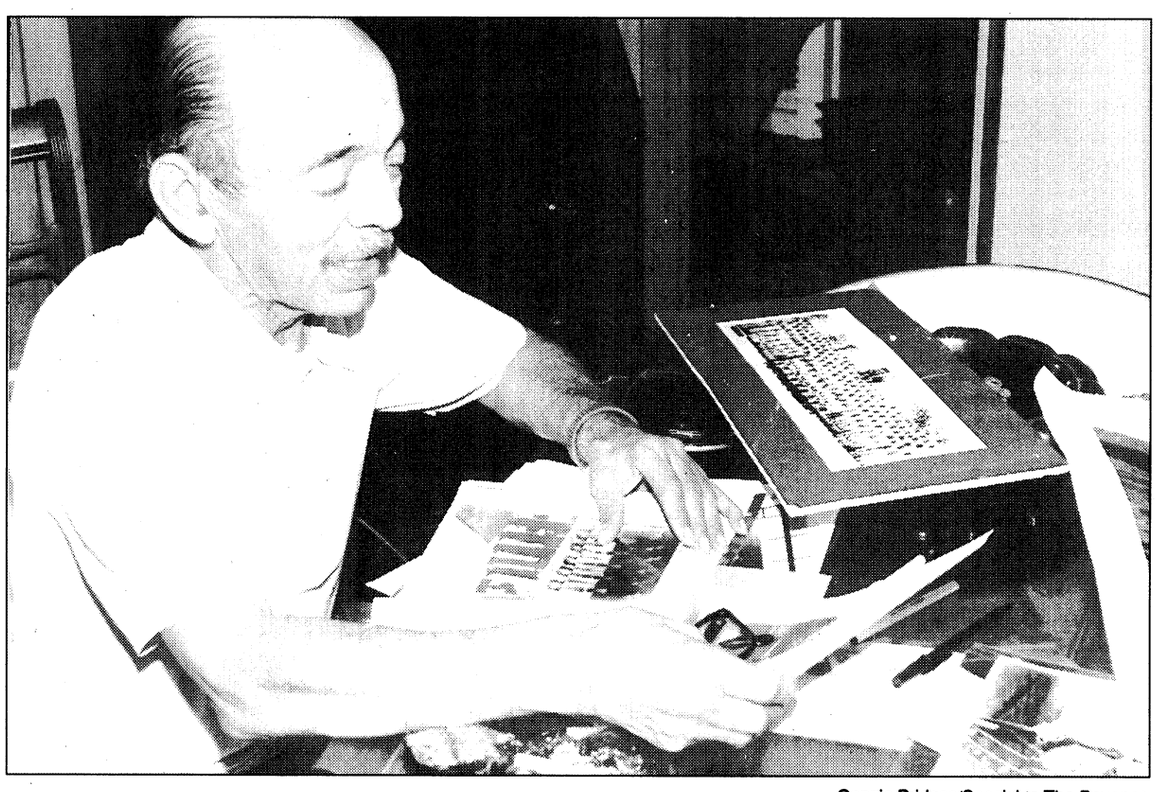
"Many years before 'black pride' became a popular slogan, a small group of black American soldiers gave life and meaning to those words. This is their story. Born within an army that had traditionally relegated blacks to menial jobs and programmed them for failure, the 555th Parachute Infantry Battalion, or Triple Nickels, succeeded in becoming the nation's first all-black parachute infantry test platoon, company and battalion."

Retired Lt. Col. Bradley Biggs, the first black officer accepted for airborne duty and a member of the "Triple Nickels," wrote this about the 555th in his 1986 book on the unit.

Some of their remaining members reside in the Columbus area. They include retired Sgt. lst Class Carl Reeves and retired Sgt. lst Class Lawrence Estell.

Both have unique memories of their days with the unit.

Reeves was the earlier member of the unit. He remembers tales of the original test platoon of 20 men, which was whittled down to "Sweet Sixteen."



Even before they were officially approved, they would emulate the white paratrooper in training, double-timing it everywhere they went and 20 push-ups before dinner. Their four instructors were whites, "who tried to bust 'em," Reeves said.

Before the enlisted received their wings in early 1944, other soldiers bet them they wouldn't jump, but they did, and the War Department assigned them the name, "Triple Nickels." 2nd Lt. Bradley Biggs was one of seven black officers who graduated with them.

It was when the first provisional company was formed that Reeves came on the scene. He recalls his orders saying "colored" would serve in this unit.

On the train from New York to Fort Benning, Reeves had to ride in the one coach for blacks, right behind the coal car, where soot blew in their faces.

Once reaching the post, there were no hotels that accepted blacks. He said you had to find a boarding house or know someone who would take you in. Only black noncommissioned officers could get housing in barracks on post, and there were two NCO clubs, one for blacks, one for whites. If a black soldier had a family, he had to find a place for them off post. Also, no blacks were allowed on Main Post without a pass.

Connie Bridges/Special to The Bayonet

Yet still volunteers for this unit came, many from Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

Brig. Gen. Ridgley Gaither, commander of the Parachute School, selected Walter Morris as 1st sergeant for the company. The first company commander, Capt. William V. Johnson, was white.

Reeves said their instructors were the "Sweet Sixteen," who dished out the same rough treatment they had been given.

Unlike the white paratroopers, the "Triple Nickels" packed all of their own parachutes during training. The white paratroopers had riggers.

After graduation, the 555th grew to battalion-size training to go overseas until it looked like World War II was winding down. Then their orders changed to being "Smoke Jumpers" for "Operation Firefly," an assignment to counter forest fires in the Pacific Northwest started by Japanese air balloons.

Following this assignment, the unit was sent to Camp McCall, N.C., and the 13th Airborne Division in 1945. A year later they were attached to the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C., under then Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin.

Reeves termed Gavin "a hell of an officer. If you could do a job, you could be red, white or blue. He didn't care."

In 1947, the "Triple Nickels" were deactivated when President Harry Truman ordered an end to segregated troops. They became the 3rd Battalion, 505th Airborne Regiment.

Two months before this, another soldier who retired in Columbus, Lawrence Estell joined the "Triple Nickels."

He went with the unit to Fort Benning to become the first blacks to be ranger-qualified. Then his company was attached to the 7th Infantry Division and deployed to the Korean conflict.

Estell was wounded in the arm by machine gun fire three months later at Tangyang Pass and spent 13 months recovering in a hospital at Camp Atteryberry, Ind. The "Triple Nickels" began to split up after Korea.

He recalls life in the South in the Army not being as bad as he'd heard in his native Detroit, Mich., but the tales were bad enough that his marriage split up because his wife was afraid to join him because of the prejudice.

"The post was segregated," Estell noted, "and you had to take a special troop bus or sit at the back of the bus, things like that. However, there weren't blacks hanging from every pine tree in Georgia as we'd been told."

He did recall an instance when a group of 15, on a break from ranger training, stopped at a bakery before going into the Mayfair Restaurant and Lounge in downtown Columbus. After purchasing about $12 worth of cupcakes, they went to the Mayfair to eat. A total of 15 squad cars and two paddy wagons were sent by the bakery owner to arrest them for "stealing a light bulb" when she became nervous of a large group of black soldiers.

Today, both Reeves and Estell feel life is better for black soldiers.

"It started getting a lot better in the late 1950s," Estell said. "However, it's still very difficult for young blacks even today, especially in Ranger School."

Reeves noted that wars help to eliminate the differences between people, and in a time of war or conflict, everyone is promoted.

However, he said that in today's Army blacks still need to be over-qualified to make rank as a noncommissioned officer.

Retired SFC remembers 50 years of experiences

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Wounded in both the Korean and Vietnam conflicts, retired Sgt. 1st Class Lawrence Estell, 60, began his military career serving as a member of the "Triple Nickels," America's first all-black paratroop unit.

Highlights of his career have been:

• Joining the Army in 1947 because a friend home on leave from the 555th Parachute Battalion, Fort Benning, "looked good in his uniform"

• Basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

• Becoming member of the 555th Parachute Battalion until it was deactivated by President Harry Truman to end segregated troops, Fort Bragg, N.C.

• December 1947 - 3rd Battalion, 505th Airborne Regiment (former "Triple Nickels") came as a unit back to Fort Benning to Jump School

• 1950 - Former "Triple Nickels" went as a unit to the ranger company and became the first blacks allowed to be ranger qualified.

• Deployed with unit to Korea attached to the 7th Infantry Division.

• Wounded in the arm by machine gun fire three months later at Tangyang Pass.

• Spent 13 months recovering in a hospital at Camp Atteryberry, Ind.

• 1952 - Ranger instructor, two months.

• Fort Custer, Mich., field first sergeant for in-processing, seven months.

• Fort Knox, Ky., special duty, two months, then first sergeant for basic training unit, seven months.

• 1954 to 1960 - Quartermaster non-commissioned officer, Elson Air Force Base, Alaska.

• 1960 - Quartermaster NCO for division, Fort Campbell, Ky.

• 1961 - Quartermaster NCO for the Student Brigade, Fort Benning.

• 1962 to 1965 - Airborne instructor, Fort Benning.

• 1965 - Quartermaster NCO for division, 82nd Airborne, deployed to Dominican Republic, two months.

Connie Bridges/Special to The Bayonet
Retired Sgt. 1st Class Lawrence Estell admires the wall hangings for the "Triple Nickels" in his workshop.

• Closed reception station at Fort Benning, then went to Vietnam as the Quartermaster NCO for the lst Cavalry, 1st Brigade, lst Forward, and was made platoon sergeant of the lst Forward upon arrival.

• 1966 - Fort Benning for five months, then returned to Vietnam.

• Operations sergeant, II Corps, Log Command, in the mountains near Pleiku.

• 1967 - Fort Benning for 10 months, then back to Vietnam to the same position, later that year to Sniper School on Okinawa.

• 1968 - First sergeant for Headquarters Company, 4th Infantry, lost part of his foot stepping on a booby-trap set by an enemy "sapper" during the Tet Offensive.

• 1969 to 1971 - Martin Army Community Hospital, then Medical Holding Company first sergeant.

• 1972 - Medical Board and retired from active duty.

• Started lawn service.

• Worked for ARCCO, four years.

• Extended workshop at home making original wooden gifts.

• Worked for Ranger Joe's, three years.

• Attends every Airborne School and Ranger School graduation since retirement

• Treasurer for the Army Airborne Rangers from the Korean conflict.

• Vice president of the 555th Parachute Battalion's National Association

• Treasurer for the 555th Parachute Battalion's local chapter.

Reeves' career began in 1940

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Retired Sgt. 1st Class Carl Reeves, 72, a member of the "Triple Nickels," America's first all-black paratroop unit, began his military service at a time when the Army still had horses.

His career included:

• 1940 - joining the Army when he had a falling out with his girlfriend.

• 1940 to 1944 - 10th Cavalry Squadron taking care of horses for U.S. Military Academy cadets, West Point, N.Y.

• June 1944 - graduating from Jump School with the first company belonging to the "Triple Nickels," the 555th Parachute Battalion, Fort Benning.

• Late 1944 - part of Operation Fire Fly jumping over blazing forests in the American northwest searching for Japanese balloon bombs.

• 1945 - being assigned with rest of the "Triple Nickels" to 13th Airborne Division at Camp McCall, N.C.

• 1946 - attached to the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C.

• 1947 - "Triple Nickels" were deactivated when President Harry Truman ordered an end to segregated troops; they became the 3rd Battalion, 505th Airborne Regiment, 82nd Airborne Division.

• 1951 - Ranger School (couldn't go earlier with rest of former "Triple Nickels" because of father's death).

• 1953 - Butzbach, Germany, platoon sergeant.

• 1956 - Fort Devens, Mass., head lifeguard.

• 1957 to 1959 - helped form Recondo School for 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky.

• 1960 to 1962 - Ranger instructor in rappelling and hand-to-hand combat, Fort Benning.

• 1962 - retired from active duty

• 1962 to 1983 - supervisor in Linen Exchange for Martin Army Community Hospital.

• 1983 - retired from Civil Service.

Terms of the sale are cash or check with a bank letter guaranteeing the check up to a specific amount and date.

Army Emergency Relief changes appt. schedule

Army Emergency Relief has changed its scheduling procedures for appointments. Appointments can now be made on Friday morning at 8 a.m. for the upcoming week.

AER hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

During nonduty hours, emergency assistance can be obtained by contacting the U.S. Army Infantry Center staff duty officer or staff duty noncommissioned officer at 545-2218.

Post office to be open Saturdays from 10 to 2

The Fort Benning Post Office will be open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.for a test period of about eight weeks.

Benning's tax office provides free assistance

The Fort Benning Tax Office, located on the second floor of Building 2613 in Soldiers' Plaza, offers free tax return preparation of state and federal forms and free electronic filing.

Services are available for soldiers, retirees and family members on a walk-in basis.

Free assistance with tax form preparation will be available at the Post Exchange at the Main Mall Saturday from 9:30 a.m to 1 p.m.

Taxpayers should bring with them all the appropriate paperwork, said Jane Winand, chief of the Legal Assistance Division at the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate.

The tax office is being operated by members of SJA and Army Community Services.

For more information, call the office at 545-4267.

Seminar to focus on substance abuse

A substance abuse seminar will be March 18 from 8:15 to 11:15 a.m. at the Youth Activities Center, Building 1056.

The seminar, sponsored by the Civilian Counseling Services of the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program, will be limited to 100 participants, and no costs are involved.

The purpose of the seminar is to provide awareness of substance abuse issues and to describe the impact substance abuse has at work and in the community.

Topics include: substances of abuse, role of Civilian Counseling Services, drunk driving consequences, teen-agers and substance abuse, supervisory intervention and the effect of substance abuse on the family.

Nominations can be made by calling the Training and Development Division of the Directorate of Civilian Personnel no later than March 15 at 545-5580 or 545-5656.

Nominations should be made through unit or activity training coordinators.

CID seeks suspects

The Criminal Investigation Division is looking for two persons suspected of kidnap, rape, robbery and sodomy.

One suspect is white and in his early to mid-20s; 170 to 180 pounds; medium build; blond with a "high and tight" haircut; fair complexion; and approximately 5 feet, 6 to 7 inches tall.

The other suspect is white and in his mid-20s; about 150 pounds; 5 feet, 6 inches; stocky build; brown hair with a "high and tight" haircut; blue or hazel eyes; and a fair complexion.

A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the identity, apprehension and subsequent conviction of these individuals.

Any information should be provided to the Fort Benning Military Police at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the Criminal Investigation Division at 545-2414 or 545-7905.

Kindergarten teacher Ernestine Ezekiel works with Blake Barrilleaux on showing patterning with wood blocks as a possible activity for parents of preschoolers. She will be on hand for the final session of the "Talks About Young Children" lecture series Wednesday.

Talk to focus on children

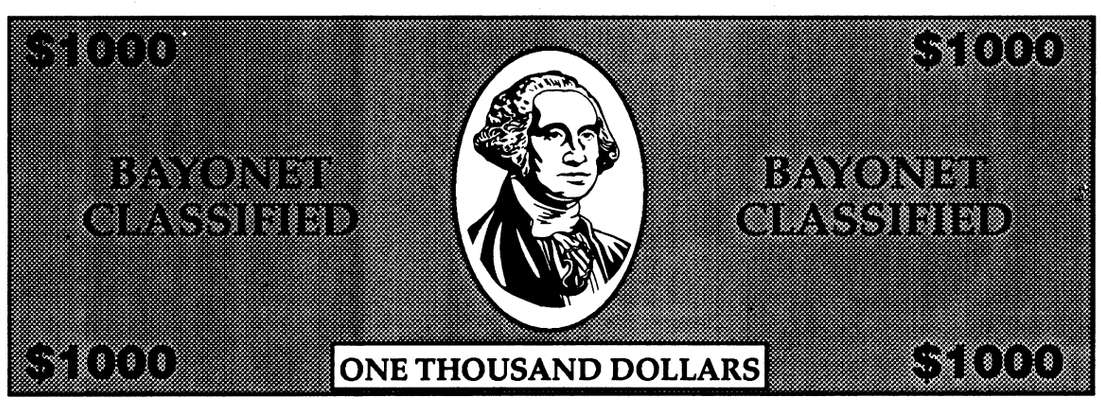
By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Activities to do with your preschool child involving reading, math, cooking, local places to visit, discipline and using wood and other supplies will be on the schedule for the fifth and final session of "Talks About Young Children (Ages 0 to 5)" Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Herbert Dexter School Auditorium.

According to Dr. Beth Middlemiss, director of Staff Development for the Fort Benning Schools, the focus will be "Learning Together: Creative Activities at Home and Community, Resources for Parents and Young Children."

The session will use a different format than previous lectures with participants moving from station to station learning about specific ideas from each of these areas.

Presenters for the evening will include Fort Benning teachers, Ernestine Ezekiel, Kathy Joyner, Nora Lester and Ann Saunders; Assistant Director of Special Education Kathy Einhorn; and Coordinator of Child Development Services Jennifer Williams.



Participation in the session is free and open to all Fort Benning parents, caregivers and educators. However, since space is limited, a telephone reservation is required.

To register, call 545-2500 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Reservations will be taken until the close of business Monday or until the session is full.

Children are not permitted to attend. Tot Town will be open from 6:15 until 9:15 p.m. that evening. A reservation with Tot Town as well as payment is the responsibility of the parent.

Remember!
The speed limit is 15 mph weekdays from 6 to 7:30 a.m. on most roads on Main Post.

Shirley Taylor, wife of late Lt. Col. Ben F. Taylor, speaks with Col. Lawrence K. White Jr., 11th Inf. Regt. commander, and retired Col. John D. Fuller at the Feb. 17 field dedication.

Field honors late commander

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

A large crowd sat solemnly, attentive to the words of retired Col. John D. Fuller as he spoke at the Feb. 17 field dedication for the late Lt. Col. Ben F. Taylor, former commander of the 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment..

The field, located between Building 74 and 76, was dedicated on the first anniversary of Taylor's death, at the request of his wife, Shirley Taylor.

The ceremony started with an invocation by Chaplain (Maj.) Gilley G. Richardson of the 11th Infantry Regiment. Col. Lawrence K. White Jr., commander of the 11th Inf. Regt., took the podium for his opening remarks and to introduce Fuller.

The ceremony was then turned over to Fuller, a close friend of Taylor's.

Taylor entered the Army in 1962. He was commissioned by direct appointment to infantry in 1970.

Fuller said that Taylor, a former sergeant first class, was, "a strong leader ... a professional in every respect. He had natural courtesy and a warm and pleasant smile."

"He served as a role model (at the training center) not only for the lieutenants, but for cadre members and even some of those who commanded him," said Fuller.

During his years of duty, he had assignments in Vietnam; Saudi Arabia and with the Central Command, MacDill Air Force Base, Fla.

His service includes command of 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment; staff leader, U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; company commander, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry (Mechanized) , 197th Infantry Brigade; a battalion executive officer, 4th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade and an instructor with the Ranger Department, U.S. Army Infantry School.

Taylor's military awards include the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star, the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, the Meritorious Medal with four oak leaf clusters, the Air Medal, the Army Commendation Medal, the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal (Korea), the Combat Infantryman Badge, the Parachutist and Air Assault Badges, the Ranger Tab, the Vietnam Campaign Medal, the Republic of Vietnam Cross of Gallantry with Palm and various service and campaign medals.

Fuller is the former chief of staff of the U.S. Army Infantry Center. He is now the general manager of the First Union Bank.

Taylor is survived by his wife Shirley; his son, Larry; and his two daughters, Terryl and Chermaine.

Museum to display 30 bronze medallions

USAIC Public Affairs Office

In recognition of the 50th Anniversary of World War II, the National Infantry Museum will exhibit a special collection of 30 bronze medallions from Monday to March 31. The medallions commemorate significant military actions during World War II.

The medallions feature the likeness of military leaders and political figures on one side of the coin, with an important event relating to the person on the other side. Among the 30 coin-like medallions are infantrymen:

Joseph Stilwell and the 1942 China-Burma Campaign

Omar N. Bradley and the breakout at St. Lo in 1944

Dwight D. Eisenhower and the invasion of Europe June 6, 1944

Mark Clark and the invasion of Italy, September 1943

Courtney Hodges and the defense of Bastogne, December 1944

George C. Marshall and victory in Europe, 1945

The medallions were sculptured over a five-year period by E. R. Grave. The first was completed in 1966.

In addition to the infantrymen honored, Ernie Pyle, Harry S. Truman, Winston Churchill and the mother and father of Queen Elizabeth II are also remembered.

The coins have been a part of the museum collection since 1969 when they were donated by Thomas A. Lewis, a member of the Officer Candidate School Hall at Fort Benning.

Kenny Rogers saddles up for 'Rio Diablo'

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

Now that he's an old hand at making TV movies, Kenny Rogers can teach a thing or two to his friends ... and that's just what he's doing.

SPOTLIGHT

After four "Gambler" projects and several other acting vehicles, the long-popular entertainer teams with his country-music peers Travis Tritt (making his debut as an actor) and Naomi Judd (in her first major fictional role) in "Rio Diablo," Sunday's new CBS western that airs at 9 p.m. and incorporates many traditions of the genre. Rogers plays a bounty hunter with a very personal agenda against felons, but it becomes complicated by his encounter with a newlywed (Tritt) whose wife has been kidnapped — on their wedding day, no less — by the same robbery gang being pursued by Rogers' character. The two men then become reluctant partners in hunting the villains, with Judd appearing as the owner of a frontier stopover where they find shelter during their quest.

Also a co-producer of "Rio Diablo," Rogers always has maintained that being an actor is less of a priority to him than his three-decade-long career as a singer, but he admits that his part in the new film "was a stretch for me a little bit, because by nature, I'm not a confrontational person. This was a role that required that of me somewhat, and that's what I think made it so much more fun for me. We've kind of taken Brady Hawkes (alias "The Gambler") everywhere there is to go, or at least (everywhere) that I can think of at this point. I think the difference between this character and Brady is that this guy can hit first, and that's kind of a new dimension for me."

Acting itself is something new for co-star Tritt, the Country Music Association Award-winning artist behind such hits as "Here's a Quarter, Call Someone Who Cares." He credits Rogers with helping him "tremendously. When there was discussion about whether or not I could do this part, Kenny was nice enough to call and put in a good word for me." Though "Rio Diablo" does mark his first professional job as an actor, Tritt reasons, "I think that any time you go out and do what we do, which is to entertain people on a nightly basis, there's a certain amount of acting involved in that."

Though "Rio Diablo" also might be considered the first acting stint for Naomi Judd — who retired last year from her music act with daughter Wynonna, after disclosing that she had chronic hepatitis (which currently remains in remission, leaving her "free from symptoms and feeling great," by her own declaration) — but she actually had a much smaller part 10 years ago in "Living Proof: The Hank Williams Jr. Story," a TV-movie. "All I had to do was walk on and sort of flirt with him, and that was it," she muses. "That's not acting. Maybe people think that because you've been on stage, singing to millions of people live, there's some sort of crossover. There's no similarity at all, and I'm so used to being Naomi Judd, it was real hard for me to come out of those beliefs and that personality and be somebody else."

What: "Rio Diablo"
When: Sunday, 9 p.m. on CBS

The Army's 'Radio Rajo' sounds off in Somalia

By Sydni Redmond
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Somalia is virtually shut down. There's no running water, little or no electricity and no government.

But, soldiers from Fort Bragg's 4th Psychological Operations Group and translators keep Somalis informed about Operation Restore Hope and other events in their country.

Next week, "Fort Benning Today" will feature PSYOPS' radio program, "Radio Rajo," as well as the newspaper PSYOPS prints and delivers.

"Fort Benning Today" will also feature a segment on the Department of Defense separation bonus offered to civilians.

Secretary of Defense Les Aspin was welcomed by Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at Fort Myer, Va. Aspin's complete speech and Powell's welcome will both be shown on "Fort Benning Today" next week.

"Fort Benning Today" will also show unedited footage of Benning soldiers in Somalia.

"Victory News," the news show of the 24th Infantry Division, and post movie previews will also be showing.

USAIC TV will also highlight music and news from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network as well as post events on the Fort Benning community bulletin board. For more information on the Soldiers Radio Satellite Network, see the schedule inside The Bayonet's TV section.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 32, 24 hours a day.

Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

For more information or to make suggestions, write or call the Broadcast Section of the Public Affairs Office, Infantry Hall, Rooms 601 or 602, 545-2201.

Biltmore gardens come out of cocoon

Biltmore Estates

During the 19th century, in an era when collecting became a passion, butterflies were a prized possession for which enthusiasts would search the world over.

Back then, these whimsical, winged insects were caught, mounted on a board, and displayed. Today, this 19th century hobby has evolved into a different kind of collecting where the aim is to enjoy live butterflies in their natural habitats.

Although butterfly gardening is a relatively new phenomenon, it's likely renowned 19th century landscape architect Frederick Law Olmsted knew that his arrangements of native plants at America's largest private residence would attract butterflies and hummingbirds, providing another natural element to the gardens. Modern-day gardeners at George Vanderbilt's 255-room Biltmore House have taken Olmsted's lead, incorporating many of the same species first used at the estate in the creation of a more modern haven for butterflies in a section of the Walled Garden.

The Walled Garden is best known for the annual display of nearly 50,000 tulips during Festival of Flowers, scheduled this year from April 9 through May 9. While visitors admire ornate pattern beds with a multitude of tulips, the first few blooms are showing in the butterfly garden, a prelude to summer when flower petals and butterflies mingle in a flurry of color.

"People like to see wildlife in a garden and in their backyards," says Suzanne Habel, a Biltmore Estate landscaping supervisor who oversees work in the Walled Garden. "What we are doing here is representative of a nationwide trend toward gardening not only for the beauty and love of plants, but with the aim of re-creating natural landscapes."

At the turn of the century, there was no need to attract butterflies to a garden. Lepidoptera — butterflies and moths — were plentiful, freely flitting across the landscape.

In George Vanderbilt's garden, Olmsted used a variety of indigenous plants and wildflowers alongside popular 19th century perennials giving it a natural English cottage style look that also was conducive to butterflies and even the ruby-throated hummingbird. Many of the original plant species such as Joe-Pye weed, sunflowers, phlox, tickseed, and asters were native plants readily found in forests and meadows throughout the region. The flowers provide the nectar which butterflies rely on for food.

With the continued urbanization of America however, the numbers of native wildflowers and plants began to dwindle throughout the nation. Soon after, butterflies began disappearing.

The renewed interest in butterflies is obvious to anyone browsing through a bookstore where a wide array of butterfly guides and how-to books on butterfly gardening have cropped up in the last few years.

The resurgence of butterfly gardening has led to the reestablishment of the native landscaping, albeit in a small way, in many parts of the country. "Butterfly gardening besides being pleasurable," says Habel, "plays a role in the conservation of native species of flora."

"Another reason why butterfly gardening has caught on," she adds, "is that it provides an active element to a garden and gives people a chance to closely study these wonderful creatures. I think butterflies transport us back to our childhoods and remind us of the days when we were chasing about with homemade nets looking for that elusive swallowtail."

Beginning a butterfly garden does not have to be a major project according to Habel and Ellen Blair, a crew leader on Biltmore Estate's landscaping staff who helped develop Biltmore's butterfly garden. It can be as simple as setting out a plant aptly named butterfly bush on a condominium porch — or as complex as devoting an entire backyard to butterflies.

PET OF THE WEEK

These cuddly mixed-breed kittens are very affectionate and are looking for homes. The one on the left is a male approximately 4 months old and the other is a female between 8 months and 1 year old.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in building 263. Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel. If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

UPCOMING EVENTS

BLACK HISTORY QUIZ

Black Employment Program Committee

Match the name of the black American to the description.

1. He was the first black general officer in the U.S. military. He began a 50-year distinguished military career in 1898 during the Spanish American War. Born in Washington, D.C., in 1877, he graduated from Howard University and was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1901, made colonel in 1930 and brigadier general in 1940. In addition to his military commands, he was a professor of military science and tactics at Wilberforce and Tuskegee.

2. Civil War hero assigned to Company C, 54th Massachusetts Black Infantry. In 1863, he was cited for valor during the Battle of Fort Wagner, S.C., where he carried the colors and led the charge to the parapet after the standard bearer had been felled by rifle fire. During this battle he was severely wounded twice. For his actions, he was awarded the Medal of Honor.

3. First black officer to graduate from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., (1877) and the first to be assigned to a command position in a black unit after the Civil War. Born in 1856, he was the victim of a controversial court-martial proceeding that cut short his career.

4. He devoted his life to research projects connected primarily with Southern agriculture. The products he derived from soybeans and peanuts revolutionized the economy of the South. He was born a slave in Diamond Grove, Mo., in 1864. While working as a farm hand, he managed to obtain his high school education; he was the first black student at Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, and graduated from Iowa Agricultural College where he also obtained his master's. He spent most of his adult life at Tuskegee Institute where he was buried in 1943.

5. He was born in 1892 and became a philanthropist and one of the leading skin specialists in the United States. From 1924 to 1941, he did special research in Vienna, Freiberg and Paris where he made valuable contributions to the scientific treatment of syphilis and leprosy. The dermatology clinic at Beilinsen Hospital Center for Israel bears his name as does a chapel at Dillard University in New Orleans, La.

6. Pioneer in open heart surgery. Born in 1856, he was orphaned and abandoned as a child. He worked as a roustabout on Great Lakes steamers and as a barber to put himself through Chicago Medical School in 1883. He founded Provident Hospital in 1893 and while working in the emergency ward, performed a procedure that successfully reattached an artery severed a fraction of an inch from the patient's heart.

7. A prolific inventor, he obtained some 50 patents over his lifetime. He was born in 1856. His inventions include an incubator, the forerunner of present machines capable of hatching 50,000 eggs at a time, and the Synchronous Multiplex Railway Telegraph designed to avert accidents by keeping each train informed of the location of the train immediately ahead and behind of it. He died in New York City, N.Y., in 1910.

8. First black Catholic bishop in the United States and for 25 years he presided over a diocese covering Maine and New Hampshire. He was born in Macon, Ga., in 1830, educated in New York and later, Holy Cross University, Mass. He was named Bishop of Portsmouth, Maine, in 1875. His brother, Patrick, a Jesuit priest, was president of Georgetown University from 1873 to 1882.

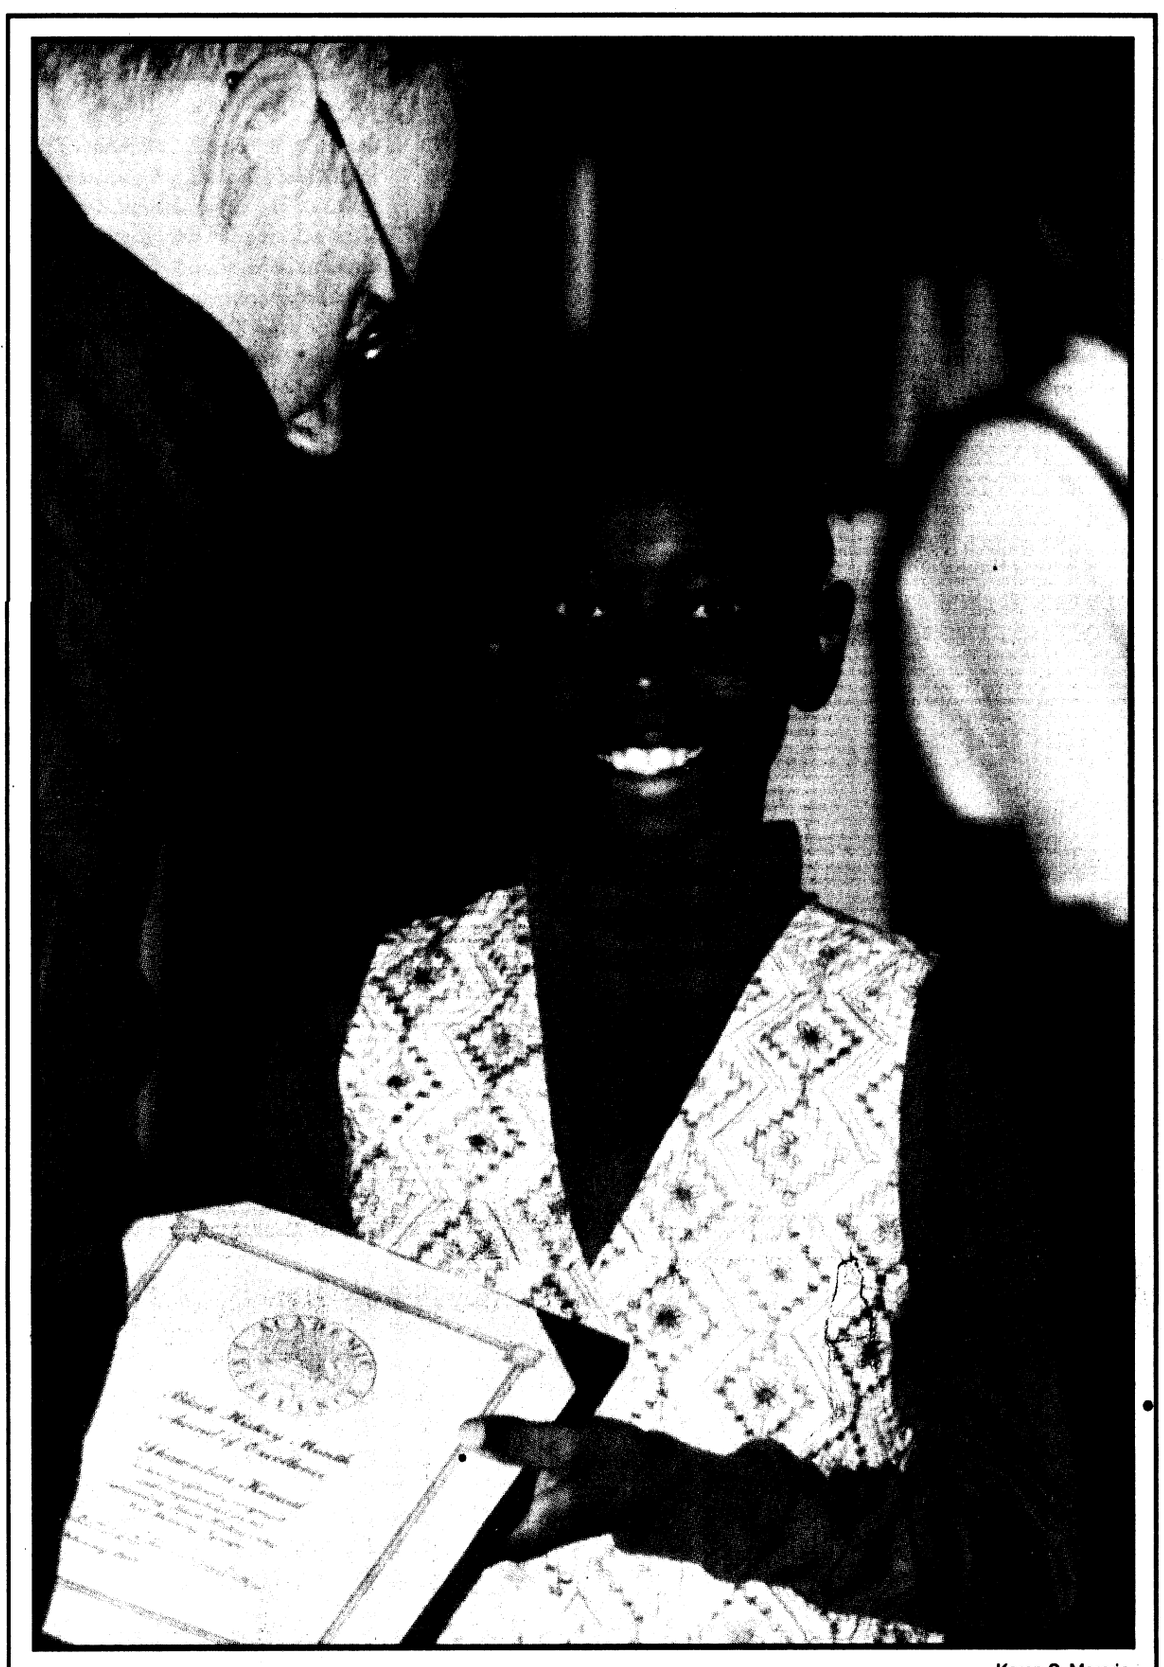
29th Inf. receives awards

By Gregory Hart
29th Infantry Regiment

The 29th Infantry Regiment's 1st and 2nd Battalions recently received Army Maintenance Excellence Awards.

The competition for the awards judges maintenance sections in seven different categories: maintenance management, prescribed load list, dispatch capabilities, driver training, vehicle service, operational readiness and overall maintenance organization.

The 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry won both the Fort Benning and Training and Doctrine Command Maintenance Excellence Awards for the intermediate density category. The last time the 2nd Battalion won the TRADOC award was in 1989. The battalion won the Fort Benning award in 1991.



"It's just teamwork and cooperation — everyone doing the job as best he can," said Spc. James Smith mechanic, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment.

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment won the Fort Benning and TRADOC Maintenance Excellence Awards in the heavy density category.

"Our success in this motorpool is due in a large part to the hard work and teamwork we have here," said Gary Williams, civilian turret mechanic. Without every-body working together we would not have the facilities or support we have here."

Maj. Gen. Jerry White, commanding general, presented the awards to the members of the 29th Infantry Regiment Feb. 16.

"I could not be more proud of any unit in the Army," said White. "I know that the men and women of this motorpool are the finest that we have."

Karen S. Morarie

And the winner is ...

Shawndrea Kinard, a third-grade student at Wilson School, receives an award from Dr. Rolla Baumgartner, superintendent of Fort Benning Schools, for her Black History Month essay about Langston Hughes. In all, 40 Fort Benning students were recognized for their entries in the contest.

AER kicks off annual drive

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

"All soldiers should be offered the opportunity to give to the Army Emergency Relief Fund," Command Sgt. Maj. William H. Acebes, post command sergeant major, told unit representatives Monday at the campaign kick off. "For some, $2 per month will be a great deal out of their budgets. Others can be more generous."

AER, an emergency financial organization that is specifically for helping Army active duty personnel and retirees, will be conducting its annual appeal Armywide through May 15.

Serving as chairman of the drive will be Roy B. Burns, chief of Army Community Services, with Sgt. 1st Class Marmion S. Montgomery acting as the campaign coordinator.

According to Alfonso Deane, AER campaign officer and financial counselor, unit representatives received their packets for conducting the drive within their units Feb. 25.

"AER belongs to us," he said. "It exists solely to help us take care of our own. Our great strength as an institution is the genuine interest soldiers exhibit in helping comrades in time of need; AER is our tool for making this a reality."

Since 1942, AER has distributed donations and helped more than 2 million people with more than $410 million. Last year alone, AER assisted more than 60,000 active duty soldiers and retirees. At Fort Benning, 762 soldiers and their families received more than $1 million in the form of interest-free loans or grants.

Operated by civilians and military personnel, AER understands the need to provide an alternative to commercial financial assistance, Deane added.

Those eligible for assistance include active duty and retired soldiers and their family members, National Guard and Reservists on active duty for more than 30 days, and widows, widowers and orphans of deceased soldiers.

AER loans may be made on the spot if documentation showing a valid emergency need is shown.

Loans may be made for emergency medical expenses, travel, food, rent or utilities, just to name a few.

However, Deane did point out that AER is limited as to the types of assistance it can provide. It cannot help with nonessentials such as legal expenses, purchases, financing, covering bad checks or paying credit bills.

Anyone eligible for assistance may stop by the Fort Benning AER Office, Building 2643 in Soldiers' Plaza, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, or call 545-7517 to schedule an appointment.

After-hours assistance is available through the Infantry Hall staff duty noncommissioned officer at 545-2218.

The annual drive will accept donations from anyone wishing to contribute. For more information, Deane may be reached at 545-4043.

Troops to return

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fifteen soldiers from the 498th Medical Company are returning from Kuwait March 5 aboard a C5A Galaxy aircraft. They will arrive at Lawson Army Airfield at 6 p.m.

The air ambulance unit, which deployed to Kuwait Aug. 12 with two UH-60 Black Hawk helicopters, provided medical evacuation support during Exercise Intrinsic Action.

Intrinsic Action is an ongoing training exercise intended to demonstrate continued U.S. commitment to the security and stability in the Persian Gulf region. The exercise tested procedures for contingency operations in the region.

Many of the 498th Medical Company's deployed soldiers are also combat veterans from Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

About 300 36th Engineer Group soldiers are expected to return from Somalia next week.

3rd Bde. zooms in on Victory Focus

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) is conducting field exercise "Victory Focus" through March 23 at Fort Benning.

More than 5,000 soldiers, 100 M2-A2 Bradley Fighting Vehicles, 38 M1-A2 Abrams tanks and a fleet of combat support vehicles and aircraft are participating in this major field exercise.

Units from Forts Stewart, Ga., Drum, N.Y., and Bragg, N.C. are undergoing individual skill validation, squad and crew proficiency drills, range live-fire exercises and combined arms training.

The exercise is designed to prepare units of the 3rd Bde. combat team for the National Training Center rotation at Fort Irwin, Calif., in April and May of this year.

Tax help available at Main Mall

Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Free assistance with tax form preparation by Legal Assistance Office personnel will be available at the Post Exchange at the Main Mall Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Persons needing assistance should bring all necessary paperwork and the tax forms.

Every person age 1 or older must have a Social Security number before that person may be claimed as a dependent on a tax return.

Tax assistance is also available Monday through Friday at the post's Tax Office, located on the second floor in Building 2613, Soldiers' Plaza. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For more information, call Jane Winand at 545-3281.

Sexual harassment

A recent survey by the Inspector General at Fort Benning reveals:

- 20 percent of all women interviewed said they had been sexually harassed at work within the last year.
- Among female soldiers who reported harassment, 43 percent reported the offenders were co-workers.
- 40 percent of female civilian employees who reported sexual harassment said their supervisors took no action.

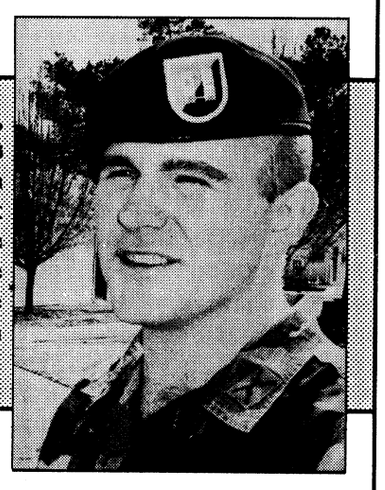
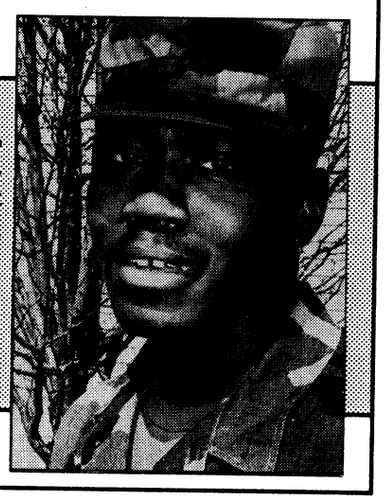
VARIOUS VOICES

Are women really equal in today's society, and why or why not?



Pvt. 2 Jean M. Wiersma, Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry , 11th Infantry Regiment — "In some things we're equal, in some we're not. You don't see too many women in construction jobs, and there are jobs you don't really see men in."

Pvt. 1 Brian T. Ciciva, Headquarters Co., 1st Bn. (Airborne), 507th Inf., 11th Inf. Regt. — "I think women are not yet equal — there are still jobs that men dominate and women can't really get, and there are jobs where women dominate. It's still unequal."



Leola M. Smith, Personnel Service Branch, Ajdutant General — "I think women are more equal today than yesterday, and I think in the future there will be more women leaders."

Capt. C. Brian Paarmann, Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 5th Ranger Training Battalion — "I think women are equal. I think they have an equal opportunity in the job market, and they have the same rights under the Constitution. In the Army, it's a different story; but, on the whole, I think they're equal."

Noemi Holton, SatoTravel agent — "I think women are achieving equality. Females are finally getting that little edge. Times are changing, and women are getting very independent."

Pvt. 2 Edward L. Scott, Company A, 1st Bn., 11th Inf. Regt. — "Women are able to do a lot more now than they were in the past, but they still have one more step. When a woman is elected president, I think women can say they've achieved equality."

Take a look at stereotypes

COMMENTARY

Last month was Black History Month. This month is Women's History Month. Soon we'll have Hispanic-American and Asian Pacific Islanders Months.

Some people ask, "What's the purpose of all these special months?" Others look on these months as times to eat spicy meals in dining facilities or dance the fandango to a mariachi band.

I look on them as a time to break down stereotypes.

I came upon this stunning revelation all by myself. And I have the rangers to thank.

You know rangers. Those hurly burly macho men. The ones who'd just as soon stomp you into the ground as look at you. They wouldn't be caught dead eating vegetables. They take their meat raw, off the hoof.

Culture to them is listening to a jute band in a local bar. It's spitting their chew into a coke can instead of on the floor.

Well guess again Dick Tracy.

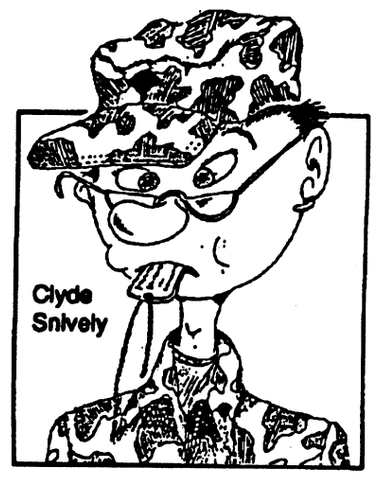
Or pop over to the 75th Ranger Regiment. One of their rangers is an animal-rights activist. Don't give him any meat. Animals have the right to live just like the rest of us.

In fact, he'd probably prefer to shoot a human rather than a deer.

(Maybe we need a ranger history month.)



There's a lot of stereotypes and prejudices we need to break down.

Yankees hear a Southerner speak in a slow Southern drawl and immediately assume that's the way the person thinks. Figuring he'll jump in his rickety pick-me-up truck and ride off with a shotgun hanging from a rack over the back seat.

Southerners need only think of Yankees and know they're mean, crude and always in a rush. And they know people aren't safe on Northern city streets day or night.

See a wealthy black and what do we think — he's in the entertainment industry, sports (is sports and entertainment a redundancy?) or a drug lord.

We forget about people like

Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. We've never heard of Harvey Coleman, who, after working his way through the ranks at IBM, founded his own consulting company whose clients include AT&T, Coca Cola, the Federal Reserve Bank, Southern Bell and other Fortune 500 firms.

We still look on women as auxiliary components. The ones who fetch the boss a cup of coffee and answer phones.

Watch two professionals, a man and a woman walk into a restaurant for a business lunch and immediately onlookers think, "ahh, the boss taking his secretary to lunch, isn't that nice."

Fortunately, most waiters and waitresses are being sensitized to the fact that this lunch might be dutch treat or even being hosted by the woman, so they'll ask if separate checks are the order of the day instead of assuming the man is picking up the tab.

We are finally waking up to the fact that women can sit on the Supreme Court and hold down cabinet positions and get elected as governors and senators.

The same is happening in our hyphenated cultures. Hispanic-Americans, Asian-Americans, they, too, are breaking the mold and finally earning their rightful place in American society.

A Japanese-American film maker, commenting on ethnic diversity in this country, said "It's America's strength."

Joking how she hates to go back to Japan, she says, "I can never find my friend at the train station. Everyone looks alike."

And that's one of the purposes of these special months. To remind us that in America, while we don't all look alike, we should all be treated alike — given the same opportunity to succeed as everyone else.

Let's make a strength of our diverse cultures instead of a weakness.

Post clarifies sexual harassment policy

The policy of the U.S. Army is to provide equal opportunity and treatment of all personnel, military and civilian, irrespective of race, color, gender or national origin and to provide an environment free of sexual harassment. Sexual harassment violates acceptable standards of integrity and impartiality required of all Army personnel and interferes with the mission accomplishment and unit cohesion.

Sexual harassment is not limited to the work environment; it can occur at any time, on or off post.

The Department of the Army defines sexual harassment as a form of sexual discrimination that involves unwelcomed sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when any of the following occurs:

• Submission to or rejection of such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a contract or condition of a person's job, pay or career.

• Submission to or rejection of such conduct by a person is used as a basis for career or employment decisions affecting that person.

• Such conduct interferes with an individual's performance or creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment.

Any soldier or civilian employee:

• In a supervisory or command position who uses or condones implicit or explicit sexual behavior to control, influence or affect the career, pay or job of another soldier or civilian employee is engaging in sexual harassment.

• Whoever makes deliberate or repeated unwelcomed comments, gestures or physical contact of a sexual nature is engaging in sexual harassment.

It is the responsibility of every member of this command to promote a work environment free of sexual harassment.

Military and civilian personnel will avoid conduct that does not maintain the high standards of honesty, integrity and impartiality. Many of the acts that constitute sexual harassment are punishable under civil and military law as criminal acts and should be treated as such by all military members and civilian employees.

Allegations or complaints of sexual harassment may be handled through the chain of supervision or command, the Office of Equal Employment Opportunity for civilian employees and job applicants, the military Equal Opportunity Office or the Office of the Inspector General for the military.

I support the Department of the Army policy on the prevention of sexual harassment and expect the personal commitment and involvement of military and civilian personnel throughout the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

There's more than green on this team

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

One of the first things we are taught in the military is how to work as part of a team. From basic training onward, teamwork — the ability to share goals and combine efforts — is essential to completing the mission, whatever the mission may be.

We are also taught that every job is important because everyone contributes to the functioning of the organization as a whole.

So who's on the team?

Here at Fort Benning, and I would say at most other Army installations, soldiers and officers are far from the only people you see. In case you hadn't noticed, there are a lot of civilians working side-by-side with military members every day.

The other day I saw an example of teamwork that didn't happen.

My noncommissioned officer and I were waiting to exchange some equipment at the Training and Audiovisual Support Center. A sergeant in front of us was having a problem and not handling it well.

It seems someone from her organization had signed out some equipment to her account number. The equipment had not been returned, and the sergeant's account had been frozen.

It's understandable that she was less than happy about that. However, the man assisting her, John Wynn, a training aid services clerk, was doing his best to untangle the situation.

While Wynn was searching through records and computer files to track down the source of the error, the sergeant was becoming increasingly more upset.

She progressed from criticizing the sign-out system to focusing on Wynn personally, finally demanding to see his supervisor because, "You're only a clerk here, anyway!"

He maintained his courtesy, resolved her problem and sent her on her way, but the sergeant left a lasting impression. She had treated a fellow worker without respect for his ability or his dignity, and he had treated her far better than she deserved.

Wynn was honored at one of the quarterly excellence appreciation breakfasts and can certainly take pride in the way he performs his job. He is a civilian, and he performs a function vital to many organizations on post.

The point is, as soldiers, where do we get this attitude? Can we afford to be arrogant with civilian workers because they're not in our chain of command? Even if we can, what does that say about us?

My editor is a civilian, and she too has been officially recognized for the way she performs her job. I know that no matter how many hours I put in each week at work, she'll work more.

No, our civilian co-workers don't wear green suits or camouflage, they don't do push-ups and they don't salute. They do give as much of their time and effort to making this post run as soldiers do.

They are part of the team.

LETTER

Reader: homosexuality is not a basic right

I had to respond after reading Karen S. Morarie's "At Issue" regarding gays in the military. (Feb. 5, The Bayonet).

She talked about "making progress in civil rights and women becoming a force in business, industry and the government."

My question is what do civil rights and women have to do with homosexuals. There is absolutely no comparison. Homosexuals are not a race. Homosexuals are not born gay. Homosexuality is a choice people make. What an absolute insult to categorize them along with blacks and women.

Just like the massacre at Jonestown. We are being fed a deadly poison, that if ingested will threaten to destroy not only the U.S. military, but our nation as a whole. This poison (is) being pushed by 2 percent of the U.S. population, (and they) want to make us drink the lie that homosexuality is a right between two consenting adults.

I believe in equal rights, but homosexuality is not a basic right or freedom. Homosexuality is a basic wrong — just like murder, adultery and robbery is wrong.

Our world is made to operate on a certain order. Fish belong in water. Take them out of water long enough and they will die. They were made to survive in water, not out of it. Men and women were made for each other. Put men with men or women with women in a way that was meant only for men and women and death will occur.

Homosexuality in the military will result not only in the death of our military but ultimately in the death of our nation.

Don't drink the poison. Don't allow the 2 percent to rule the 98 percent. Homosexuals don't belong in the military. Homosexuals belong in rehabilitation.

Karen S. Morarie is wrong. Homosexuality is not an irrelevant issue. It is a vital issue that can determine if America remains the greatest nation on Earth.

Driving speeds air travel

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The Fort Benning Transportation Office opened a drive-through "ticket-booth" for airline tickets in Soldiers' Plaza Feb. 1.

This service is open for both official and leisure travel arrangements, according to a SatoTravel news release.

For official business, soldiers may drop off three copies of their orders and their phone number 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and a ticket will be ready one day prior to travel, said Joanne L. Johnson, chief of personnel movements for the Transportation Division.

Another option for soldiers is to transmit a copy of orders to the office by fax, and bring the other two copies when they come to pick up the ticket, said Johnson. The fax number is 685-0318.

The ticket booth is open from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. for official travel arrangements. Orders are required at least two workdays prior to travel, the release stated.

For leisure travel, the ticket booth may be used from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Reservations for leisure travel may be made with a SatoTravel agent over the phone, and the ticket can be picked up at the booth, said Johnson.

A customer drives up to the Transportation Division's new ticket booth in Soldiers' Plaza.

By paying for the ticket over the phone with a credit card, the "prepaid fees" that are usually charged for this service can be eliminated.

Only customers paying with a credit card may use the booth for leisure travel. All cash transactions will continue at the SATO offices on the main post or at Sand Hill, the release said.

"A lot of people have been really enthusiastic about the booth," said Johnson, "and the response has been great. We even give you a piece of candy when you come by, just like the banks."

Jessie B. Horn, travel clerk for the temporary duty section at the Transportation Office, said, "We thought (the booth) would provide faster and better customer service. The parking here can sometimes be terrible, and we were looking for some ways to keep people moving and to save time."

For additional information on official travel, you may call the Transportation Office at 545-1223. For leisure travel, the SatoTravel office number is 687-4900.

Power specialists wanted

535th Engineer Detachment

The U.S. Army Prime Power School is looking for highly motivated men and women to train as prime power specialists for military occupational specialty 52E.

The top five of the Army enlisted applicants are selected. Graduates receive up to 55 college semester hours, which are awarded by the American Council on Education. Also, students graduate with an additional skill specialty in electrical maintenance, mechanical maintenance or instrument maintenance.

Post to celebrate nutrition month

Martin Army Community Hospital

Fort Benning is charging full force into the National Nutrition Month campaign "Eat Right America" in order to encourage good nutrition, promote physical fitness, and enhance wellness and readiness, according to hospital officials.

Activities will be made available on post for all military families. A free nutrition assessment will be March 25, designated as "Eat Right America" day, in Martin Army Community Hospital pharmacy area from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Representatives from the military and civilian community will offer nutrition information along with a cardiac risk appraisal. Information will be available about high blood pressure, high cholesterol, high blood sugar and weight loss.

On March 17 and 24, Commissary tours with Martin Army Community Hospital dietitians will educate shoppers about label reading and healthy food choices.

Nutrition will also be promoted in post dining facilities during March with healthy meal choices, nutrition information, displays, and dining hall competitions.

Post library and elementary schools will stress good nutrition to children.

For more information, contact the Nutrition Clinic at 544-1542 or 544-1674.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Rick Parker
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q: I'm getting ready to prepare my tax return, and I've been hearing about itemizing my deductions. What is "itemizing" and can I do it?

A: In the income tax setting, a deduction is an amount of money that the government allows you to subtract from your total income in order to figure out how much of your income is actually going to be subject to taxation.

The assumption is that there are certain types of expenses incurred by people that ought to be subtracted from the income they had available before the government taxes them.
