The program will be institutionalized through a TRADOC circular.

"Basically it's going to be a 'how to' manual — how to implement a total fitness program at your installation," White said.

"Eighty-five percent of what I'm calling 'Total Fitness 2000' is probably already implemented on most posts," White said.

"Almost every post you go to will have an aerobics program, a youth sports program and gyms with exercise equipment, but it's not all tied together," White said.

Using a Total Army Quality approach, this program will integrate and tie together all the different branches and activities, White said.

By looking at different programs that are already successful and testing things here not being done anywhere else, White said, they hope to come up with example programs.

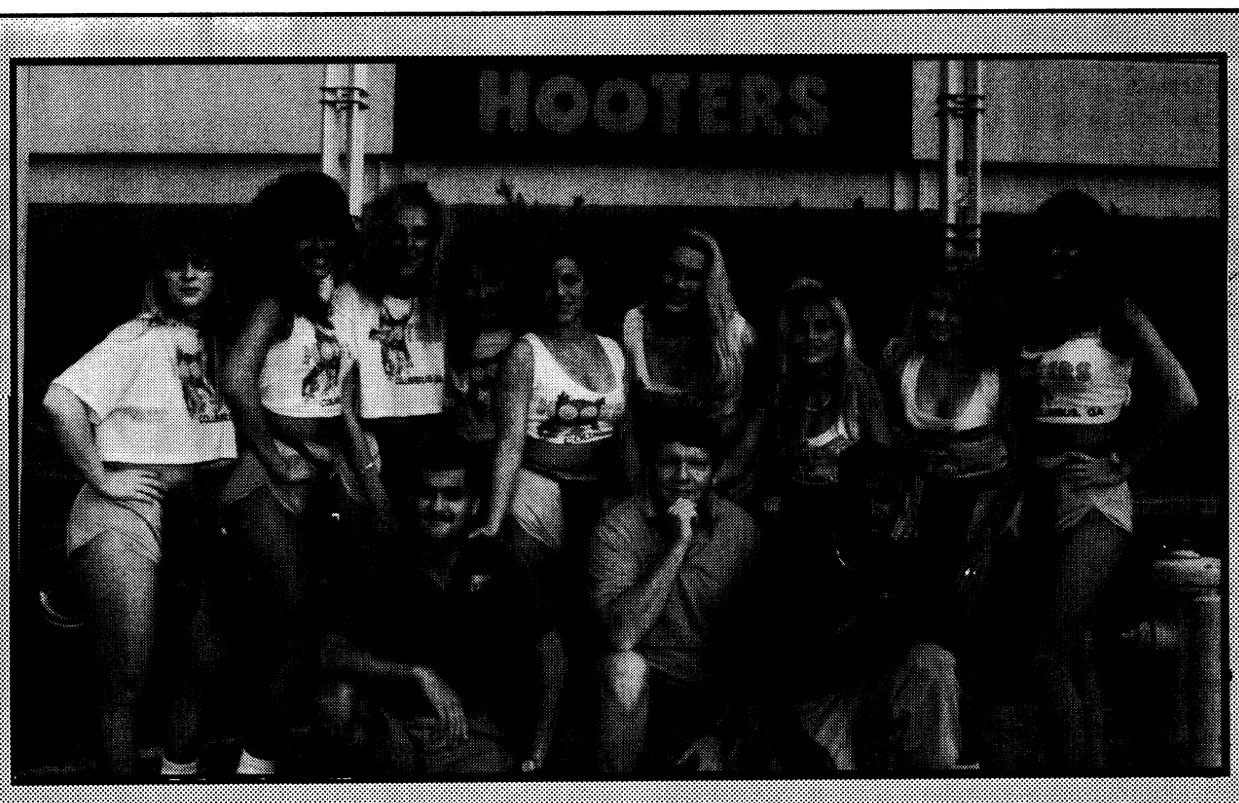
Fort Knox, Ky., for example, has a good maternity fitness program that can be used as a model, White said.

Example programs can be used to explain the steps to setting up a program and the cost, materials and resources needed.

"Our notion is to make it as complete as possible," White said.

"The program will also be integrated into our officer and noncommissioned officer evaluation systems so that as you go through the professional education system in the Army each step raises you one level in terms of your own ability to monitor your personal fitness program, and, when you assume a leadership position, to advise your subordinates on how to put together a fitness program," White said.

A model program for civilians is up and running, after being tested here in a program run through the Directorate of Civilian Personnel.



"The biggest component is education," White said. "It's not that people don't want to be fit, but often that they don't know how to or don't have all the pieces."

Hopefully this program will help people choose to make fitness a value, White said.

Total Fitness 2000, White said, is a "vision for a healthy Army family into the next millennium."

THANKS BAYONET!!!

"Before we began advertising in The Bayonet, we didn't see too many military guys at Hooters," says Manager Ed Duncan. "We began running ads a couple of months ago and have seen a dramatic increase for lunch and for dinner.

"Fort Benning was an untapped market for us, and we weren't sure how to reach the soldiers until we realized The Bayonet could deliver our message to the people we wanted to reach and at a price we could afford."

"I'm convinced that The Bayonet does a great job for us. We will certainly continue to promote Hooters in The Bayonet."

You, too, can reach the some 55,000 people, both military and civilian personnel, by advertising in Fort Benning's authorized publication. For information call. . .

Transition

It's never too early to think about life after the military; here's a timetable

Army Career and Alumni Program

Most people leaving the military find themselves at a disadvantage when they start looking for a job, according to Ted Craig, Fort Benning's Army Career and Alumni Program transition services manager.

They have never had to submit resumes, sit through job interviews or decide what type of work they want to do, he said. They haven't thought about where they want to live or worried about a work wardrobe.

"It's important to think far ahead," Craig said. "We offer career guidance to people. It's never too early to begin thinking about what you may want to do after the military. We help people based on their individual needs."

ACAP offers:

• A three-day workshop within 180 days of separation that helps military members prepare for transition.

• A one-day "advanced course" dealing with resume writing and interview skills.

• The Defense Outplacement Referral System process that provides a free service to match a person's abilities to civilian employment positions and by sending a mini-resume to a data base used by hundreds of employers throughout the world.

• Career Day provides an opportunity for employers to meet, brief and interview soldiers.

• The Educational Opportunity Program makes it possible for a person to get help and information about tuition assistance, enrollment procedures, or data on any college or university.

• Referrals for separation benefits to include Special Separation Benefits, Voluntary Separation Incentive and retirement.

12 months before leaving:

• Talk with local transition center personnel.

• Visit the Retirement Services Office if you are retiring.

• Discuss possible options with your family and set goals for the job and location search.

• Decide where you want to live after leaving the military.

• Decide what types of jobs you qualify for and the income you will need.

• Start subscriptions or check the local library for professional or trade journals.

• Make sure you have or can acquire any necessary license you need for your chosen profession.

• Check your financial status and make plans to have enough money to cover several months of expenses if you don't find a job immediately.

• Research job possibilities, job markets and the economic conditions in the area you want.

9 months before leaving:

• Decide what type of work you are going to look for.

• Do first drafts of your resume.

• If possible, visit the area where you plan to move to after leaving the military; if you can't visit, write the local chamber of commerce for information.

• For job and real estate information, subscribe to weekend newspapers from the area where you plan to move.

• Continue research.

• Keep in touch with the local transition point.

6 months before leaving:

• Attend an ACAP transition class whether retiring or getting out of the Army.

• Finalize your resume; decide if you need help in developing the best possible resume or if you need to hire a professional resume writer.

• Develop a list of employers in the field in which you are interested; also, determine any friends you might have in the private sector who may be able to help you.

• Contact an executive recruiter for assistance if you qualify and are looking for a job in this category.

• Begin developing a contingency plan for job and location in case your plan falls through.

3 months before leaving:

• Send out resumes and begin making telephone calls to check on their arrival.

• Begin replying to want ads in newspapers and magazines.

• Visit the state employment agency where you plan to live.

• After each job interview, evaluate your performance and decide what you did right and what you need to improve.

For more information, call 545-4892 or 545-4902 or drop by the office in Building 2617.

ARMY FAMILY ACTION PLAN ISSUES

Garrison Commander's Office

More than 100 issues and questions were presented for action, comment or status to the garrison and installation staff at the Fort Benning Family Action Symposium recently.

The issues were broken down into functional areas and each directorate, activity or area was asked to respond.

Q: Why aren't there more family quarters for junior enlisted soldiers?

A: Personnel private 1 through private first class are combined on the waiting lists with specialists through staff sergeants and compete equally for available housing.

These junior enlisted soldiers are presently allocated more than 70 percent of all government quarters at Fort Benning.

By congressional directive, the primary source of housing for soldiers is the local community. An evaluation of the community's ability to house soldiers is conducted annually to ensure adequate, affordable housing for all.

As long as there is an adequate supply of off-post housing that meets suitability standards, additional quarters will not be constructed at Fort Benning.

Q: What is the criteria for clearing housing?

A: Quarters occupants are asked to request a pretermination inspection 45 to 60 days prior to clearing quarters. An inspector will explain all requirements for clearing quarters and anything pertaining to that particular quarters at the inspection.

Occupants are asked to remove all personal property, return any borrowed government furniture to the furnishings warehouse, accomplish any self-help items needed, have all required preventive maintenance accomplished, police the lawn, cut the grass and clean the empty quarters.

Soldiers who wish to hire a cleaning team are provided written instructions and a blank contract. Any of the above requirements not included in the contract are the responsibility of the soldier.

Q: What's the policy regarding fireplace usage on post?

A: Many of Fort Benning's older quarters are equipped with fireplaces. Fireplaces and chimneys are cleaned and inspected on a recurring basis by the DPW contract.

Firewood is available for issue at the post stockade. There are no restrictions when or how often occupants may use their fireplaces.

Q: Why do houses sit vacant for so long?

A: Family housing that appears vacant for an extended period usually is in maintenance status. The time required to complete necessary repairs is affected by several factors, including the number of DPW shops involved, availability of parts or the need to obtain an outside contractor to perform specific work.

Presently, 290 sets of quarters in the Custer Terrace area are programmed for whole-house renovation for a period of 540 days.

The renovations necessitate quarters remaining vacant to permit work access to buildings containing several housing units. Quarters will be assigned as work is accomplished in each building.

Q: What is the policy regarding friends and relatives in family housing?

A: Civilian visitors or military personnel not attached to this installation are considered bona fide guests and may visit up to 90 days.

Written permission must be attained from the chief of the housing division through family housing for all visitors, guests and other nonfamily member residents whose stay in government quarters will exceed 30 days.

Military members assigned to this installation or whose duty station is within commuting distance are permitted a social visit of no more than 14 continuous days in any month and not for repeated prolonged periods.

Military personnel or their family members visiting in excess of 14 days will be considered as joint occupancy for purpose of basic allowance for quarters forfeiture.

A: Provisions in U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-50 establish the guidelines for priority assignments at Battle Park homes as follows: allied students, permanently assigned enlisted personnel and permanently assigned officer and warrant officer personnel, all of whom must be accompanied by their families.

Q: To whom do you report pet owner rules or infractions?

A: Animal bites and other serious infractions should be reported directly to the Military Police. Less serious infractions should be reported to the building or area coordinator who will initiate appropriate actions.

U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulations 40-905 and 210-50 provide guidance to owners on responsibilities for pets maintained on the installation.

Q: Affordable housing in the local area is inadequate based on BAQ and variable housing allowance. Can more quarters in the installation be provided for soldiers assigned to Fort Benning?

A: VHA is the sum of money paid to soldiers to compensate for the difference between BAQ and the cost of housing in the local community.

VHA rates are based on the prices soldiers are currently paying for housing, and it is important every soldier returns his or her VHA questionnaire, complete with accurate data, in order to allow the VHA committee to establish fair payment rates.

By congressional mandate, the local community is designated the prime supplier of housing for soldier families. As long as there is an adequate supply of suitable housing, on-post construction will not occur.

75TH REGIMENT

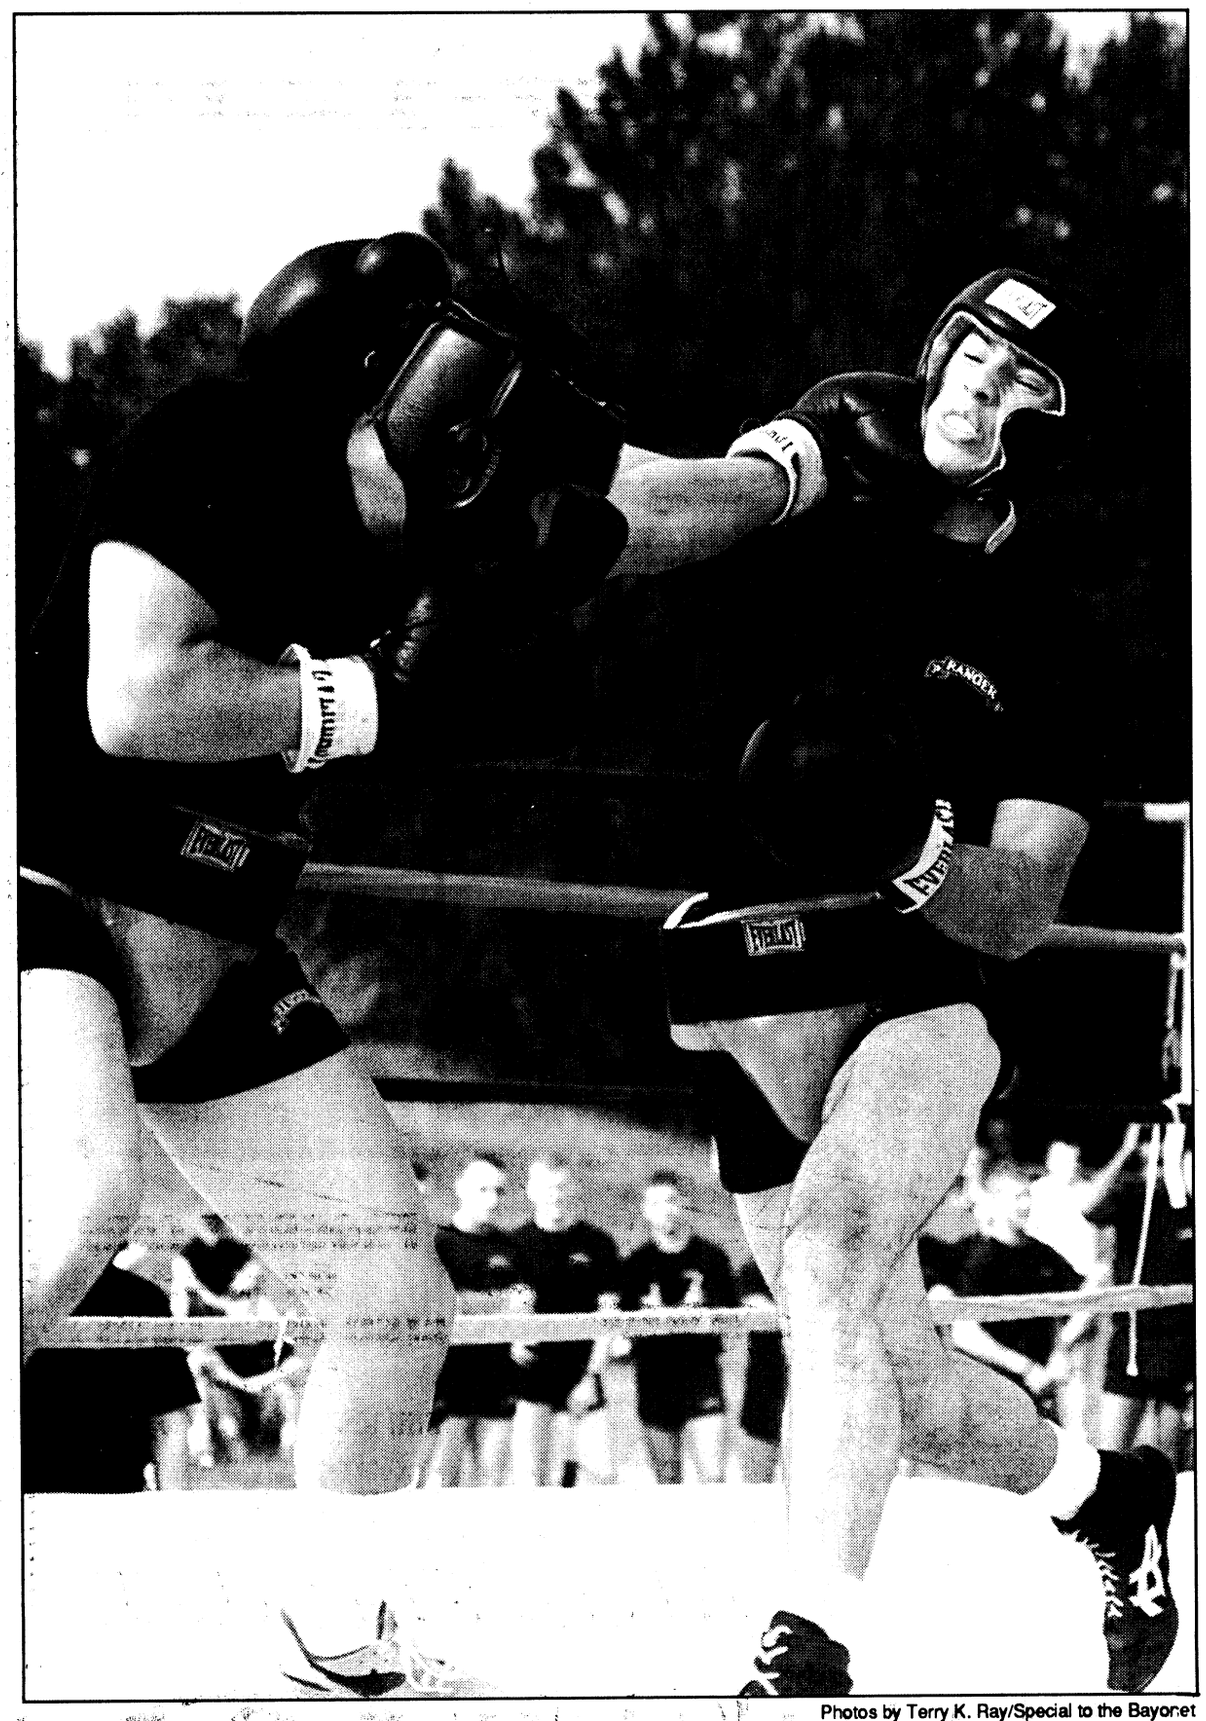
Rangers find out just who 'Leads the Way'

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

"Ranger Rendezvous" officially began Saturday morning when almost 2,000 rangers from the three battalions in the 75th Regiment parachuted into Fort Benning at Fryar Field.

Sunday was play day for the rangers.

Competitions ranged from night weapons fire that began Saturday night at various ranges on post to sporting contests that ended with the shout of "Hooah" at the boxing matches at Sergeants Major Field Sunday evening.



All of the battalions would be able to boast to each other about being the best in a certain event, but no battalion would be declared an overall winner this year.

The ranger motto says "Rangers Lead The Way," and in the eyes of a ranger, he is always the best.

Listed below are the first-, second- and third-place winners from each event. Regimental Headquarters is listed as RHQ.

Competitors get 'kick' out of tourney

Tae kwon do championships bring contestants from North, South Carolina

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The 1993 Southeast Military Tae Kwon Do Championships at Briant Wells Field House Saturday brought competitors from as far away as Fort Bragg, N.C., and Fort Jackson, S.C.

Staff Sgt. Edward Givans, tournament director, said that fighting in the competition would have been easier to deal with than being in charge of the competition.

"It was a good showing for Fort Benning. The competition was excellent and the crowd got into the fights almost as much as the participants," said Givans. "I made some mistakes that were easily corrected, but the most important thing is I learned from those mistakes and we won't see them at the tournament next year."

"Seeing all the young children participating in the tournament means more parents are getting involved with tae kwon do," said Harris. "Hopefully the children will be encouraged by their parents to continue on up through the ranks and make it to the black belt stage."

Harris was also impressed with some of the black belts that fought at the tournament and hopes to see some of them at the All-Army tryouts next year.

Although the heat and humidity took some of the starch out of the crowd as the day wore on, they hung tough and cheered to the end for their favorites.

Listed below are first-, second- and third-place winners from each age group and belt color in fighting and forms.

Lifters pull their weight at championships

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

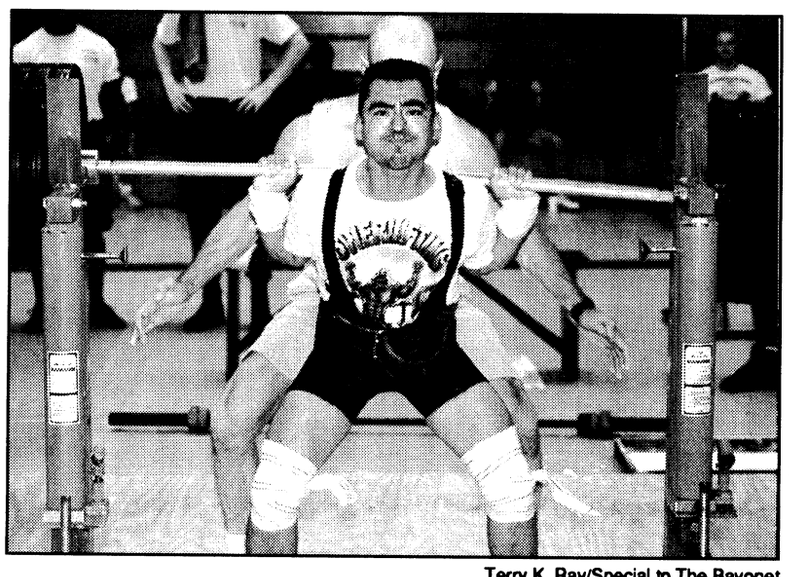
More than 200 spectators turned out to watch 24 lifters — nine male and five females — compete in 11 weight classes.



Nine lifters traveled down from Fort Jackson, S.C., to participate and according to Jim Howell varsity sports coordinator for Fort Jackson, the team was thrilled to be invited.

"We had hoped to bring more with us but some people had to stay and work," said Howell. "We hope to be able to reciprocate the invitation to Fort Benning in the near future when we have our second meet."

According to Chris Winterman, sports director for the Physical Activities Branch, the competition was excellent and recommendations were under way to increase the competition for next year.

"The volunteers did an outstanding job and the esprit de corps was an obvious factor for the success of the championships," said Winterman.

Triathlon

attracts winning Benning athletes

The recent Hooters Atlanta Triathlon July 11 attracted almost 1,000 competitors.

The race, conducted in Carrolton, Ga., started in six waves and consisted of a one-fourth mile swim in John Tanner Lake, followed by a 13-mile bicycle race over rolling terrain and finished with a 3.4-mile run.

Blain Reeves, 1993 winner of the Best Ranger competition, captured first place in the men's 25 to 29 age division, with a time of 1 hour and five minutes. Terri Lang was third in the women's 30 to 34 age division with a time of 1:14. Jeff Lang of the 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment was fifth in the men's 35 to 39 age group, also with a time of 1:05. Terry Hemminger, from the Army Research Institute, took first in the men's 40 to 44 age division with a time of 1:07.

One of the highlights of this race was the visit of Dave Scott, six-time winner of the world championship Ironman Triathlon, which is annually in Hawaii. Scott presented a motivational lecture to the athletes.

Post softball season reaches final stages

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Fort Benning softball season is in its last stages with most leagues finishing up this week. The Infantry Training Brigade teams are in a dog fight for first place. Here is a wrap-up of two games played Thursday evening at Hobbs Field on Sand Hill.

Game one

The Bandits of the 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment knocked the 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment Rock Steady out of first place with a 14-3 pasting in game one.

The Bandits put runs on the board in every inning except for the first, while allowing Rock Steady the chance to score in only the second, third and fourth innings.

In the top of the second inning, the Bandits grabbed a 2-0 lead they would never relinquish on singles by Sean Bebe and Gary Hurley sandwiched around a Luis Rivera triple.

Rock Steady cut the lead to 2-1 in its half of the inning on a two-out double from designated hitter David Brewer and singles from David Wilkens and Chuck Arnone.

In the top of the third inning, the Bandits boosted their lead to 6-1 on a single by shortstop Jay Norton. Rock Steady short fielder Steven Shipp misjudged a fly ball off the bat of James Beckman for a two-base error. One out later, Bebe lined a single to left field for two runs. A double by Larry McMillin scored Bebe. Rivera drove in McMillin for the final run of the inning with a single to center and a five run bulge at 6-1.

Rock Steady put up a single run in the bottom of the third inning on a single from Richard Webb. Webb moved base to base on ground outs by Glenn Edwards and Shipp. Webb scored on a single from Wilbert Gaskins to cut the lead to 6-2.

Rock Steady tacked on its final run of the evening in the bottom of the fourth inning on a solo home run by right fielder Jason Wilkens when he lifted a long fly ball over the right field fence.

The Bandits added to their five-run lead with two more runs in the top of the fifth inning on a bases-loaded single to center off the bat of Anderson for a 10-3 bulge.

The top of the sixth inning spelled doom for Rock Steady. A two-run triple by Bandit first baseman Vito Pierce and a two-run homer from Bebe pushed the score to 14-3. With the 10-run rule looming over its head, Rock Steady needed to score at least two runs to prolong the game for another inning. The Bandits didn't let that happen. They closed out the bottom of the sixth inning with only one runner reaching base before the final out.

Game two

The Patriots of 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment regained first place with a 7-6 win over 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry Regiment, Rock of the Marne in the late game. Combined with the loss that 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment suffered in game one, the Patriots were able to finish out their season in first place.

The Patriots got on the scoreboard first in the bottom of the first inning on RBI singles from left center fielder Bart Talley and right center fielder Greg Ellerbee for a 2-0 advantage after one inning of play.

The Rock cut the lead in half in the top of the second when Patriot pitcher Chris Fry walked hitter Ronald Heater with the bases loaded and two outs. Right center fielder Eddie Devalle ended the inning with no more damage done on a fly out to the short fielder.

The Patriots tacked on another run in the bottom half of the fifth inning on a RBI single from catcher Tim Fritz to take a 5-1 lead with two innings to play.

The Rock scored a single run in the top of the sixth inning on a RBI double from second baseman Styles Underwood who replaced Heater at second in the third inning.

The Patriots got the run back plus one in the bottom half of the inning on a two-out, two-run shot from designated hitter Brian Sayer when he slammed a shot over the right center field fence for a 7-2 advantage. The Pariots would need both of those runs in the seventh inning.

The Rock put on a rally in the seventh inning scoring four runs on a one-out, two-run homer off the bat of second baseman Fernando Torres and a two-run single from pitcher John Bednar to cut the Patriot lead to 7-6, with two out and the tying run on second. But it was not to be for the Rock; Sayer ended the game with Bednar still at second when he hit a weak fly ball to left field for the final out.

"This was a big win for us," said pitcher and coach Chris Fry. "After losing first place earlier in the week, it was important for us to come back and play strong in our last game of the season. "Now it's time for the playoffs."

AIDS

Soldier fights for life against virus

By Sandor Szabo
Hawaii Army Weekly

Bill used to be bullet-proof. During the Gulf War, he led his squad through several fire fights, where they were outnumbered by Iraqi forces. He dodged enemy fire plenty of times, and he always survived without a scratch. It was as if he were immortal. He couldn't lose.

Today, Bill (not his real name) works in a Fort Shafter, Hawaii, office with palm trees swaying outside his window, a breeze blowing overhead, and no mortar rounds to worry about. Yet he fears for his life.

Every day now, Bill fights an enemy that tries to steal precious hours from his life. If he sneezes, for instance, it may indicate a slowly developing sickness that progresses for years — until death occurs.

Developing pneumonia could be more like stepping on a land mine. Slowly or quickly, there's no telling for sure — the AIDS virus can be like that.

"Sometimes I'm up and other times I'm down," Bill said. "There are days when I think I'll win; then there are days when I know I'll lose. It's like one big roller coaster ride where there's no getting off."

Only about a year ago, though it seems like forever to him, Bill learned he had been infected with HIV, or human immunodeficiency virus. He found out shortly after earning a Bronze Star and marching in a hero's welcome parade in Washington, D.C.

"I was sitting in a hospital room on the Mainland, getting my wisdom teeth pulled, when some doctors, my commander and some other members of my chain of command came in my room. My first reaction was that somebody died," he said.

Positive test

"They told me I tested positive for HIV, concluding from results of a test I took about a month before. It hit me real hard.

"It couldn't happen to me, I thought. I'm straight. This is a gay disease — right? I made them take another blood test right then and there because I had to know for sure."

The second test was also positive. I t was the first day of his new life — one where on the outside he often appears much the same, but on the inside he is dying ever so slowly.

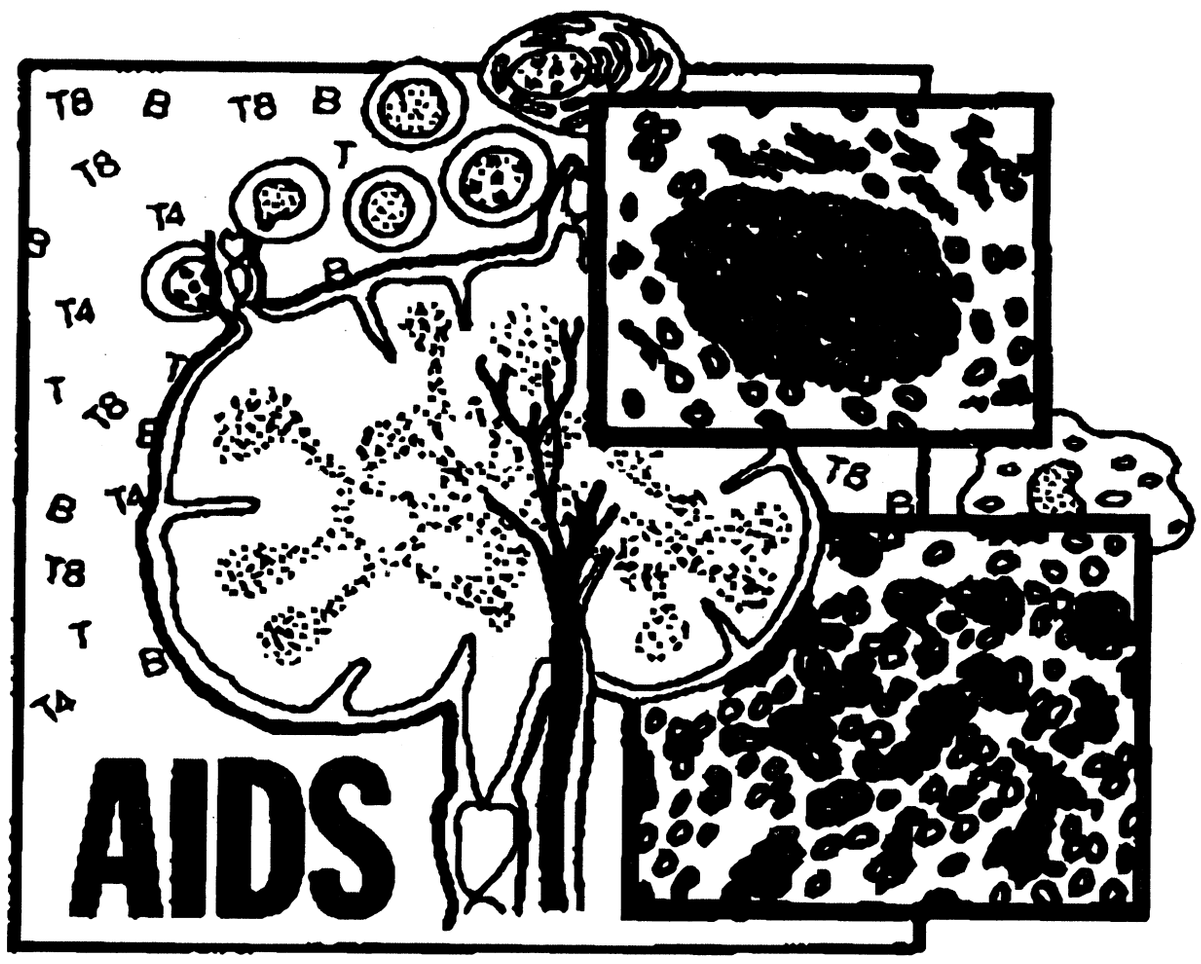
Only a year after testing positive for HIV, Bill is on the verge of falling into the later stages of infection. Though he does not have full-blown acquired immune deficiency syndrome, his T-helper cells that assist in fighting the disease have dropped below 400 per cubic milliliter of blood. A healthy person has twice that many.

Since his T-cell count was so low to begin with, Bill's doctors at Tripler Army Medical Center believe he had the virus for two years before it was detected.

Partners

"We went through every sexual partner and every blood transfusion. Everything," Bill said. "We determined, from all people, that I got it from my fiance. Now if you can't trust somebody you're going to marry, whom can you trust'?

"She got it from a former boyfriend who used needles to shoot up hard drugs. So she had it but didn't know it."



Later. Bill's fiance tested positive for HIV, and the couple broke up. Though they barely talk anymore, Bill has never been one to hold a grudge.

"We're still friends. But no more — no less," he said. "I'm going on with my life, and she's going on with hers."

The sad truth is that Bill has also spread the disease unknowingly. Ironically, it happened about the same time former Los Angeles Lakers basketball player "Magic" Johnson publicly announced he had HIV.

Bill was watching the newscast with a girlfriend and the conversation curiously centered on HIV and whether or not Bill had been tested.

"I told her that she had nothing to worry about, but what I didn't know was that I had (HIV) the whole time," he said. "I still feel guilty about it, but I just didn't know. That's why having this disease makes you not only worry about yourself, but about everybody you have contact with."

Bill said because he was so ignorant about the virus, catching it was bound to happen. In fact, it was his mother who told him he better not have unprotected sex. She tried to help. But like most teen-agers, he thought he knew better.

When I was 14, my mom found out I was fooling around with a couple of girls, so she went out and bought me some condoms," Bill said. "They stayed in the box. I told her I didn't need them. I never used a condom in my life and that's why I got this disease. I thought AIDS was something that only homosexuals and drug users got. Boy, was I stupid."

When Bill became infected, he quickly discovered he had an illness that was not only feared by most of the world's population, but was also misunderstood. He found that some people thought HIV and AIDS were the same thing. Others feared if he drank from the same water fountain or accidentally touched them, he would pass on the disease

It was then that he knew he must educate people.

"I make it clear to them that I have HIV, not AIDS. AIDS does not occur unless my condition gets worse and I develop a complication," Bill said. "If I continue with my treatment ... my health stays the same. I'm not that bad now. I can do just about everything I could before being infected. I just get more worn out sometimes, that's all."

Bill keeps in good spirits about his illness by teaching others not to make the same mistake he has made. He speaks at schools and at HIV education seminars about HIV and how he caught it.

"I see myself as a preacher of AIDS awareness," he said. "When I first learned of contracting the virus, I was in shock. I thought I was going to die immediately. But I realize now that it could be many years before I do go. And when I do, I hope that I have made a difference in this world."

Bill's family and closest friends have been at his side from the very beginning. His parents wear red ribbons on their shirt lapels when they go out, he said. It is a symbol, or an awareness, that salutes all those who are suffering from HIV or AIDS.

"My brother also wears one," Bill said. "The best therapy is knowing that those you love are behind you every step of the way."

Bill has also learned that he has friends he never knew he had. At work, most of his co-workers support him, never treating him as being different.

"It's good that way," he said "I'm just like them. Only my blood is messed up."

Having someone there during his time of crisis has changed Bill.

"I used to freak out every time I got cut or caught a cold. I'm only 24 years old, and I'm going bald from stressing out all the time Family and friends gave me something positive to believe in."

Bill has chosen to leave the Army, because he feels he can do more of his "preaching" as a civilian. He will receive disability benefits from the Veteran's Administration — somewhere between 30 to 50 percent, but he does plan on working — for an AIDS foundation or as an educator.

"It's something I have to do. I know that there are others who are ignorant on the subject like I was. If I help them, maybe they won't wind up in the same situation I am in. Education is the only cure we have right now."

Bill believes that "the future is our children, and our future is dying." He thinks AIDS education should start as early as the fifth grade. Bill's niece, who happens to fall into that group, has already benefitted from his advice.

"That's one life I know I saved," he said. "She knows I have HIV and is very aware of the disease and how to prevent it. Some people think that fifth-graders are too young to be taught, but that is wrong. They should learn before they get sexually active."

Bill has dedicated the rest of his life to help others, young and old, to fight AIDS.

"If I can save someone's life and make that person safer, then my life will amount to something," Bill said. "All the hardships and depression I had to face won't matter anymore. When I pass away, I can feel good because my life will be fulfilled. Sometimes I'd like to think I will never go, but will live on forever through others."

Maybe, in his own way, Bill has never stopped being bullet-proof.

Blood centers need platelets

Especially military blood banks

By Evelyn D. Harris
American Forces Information Service

Blood is truly the gift of life. But many patients don't need whole blood. Sometimes they need just a portion of it.

Navy Lt. Cmdr. Jerry Holmberg is looking for military and civilian members of the Department of Defense community to give platelets — the part of blood that helps it clot. So are his counterparts at military blood donor centers around the United States. Holmberg heads the blood bank at Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital.

Without platelets, people would bleed to death if they cut their finger. Leukemia and other cancer treatments often decrease the body's ability to make this crucial blood component, said Holmberg.

According to Holmberg, the process of donating, called pheresis, takes about two hours. Donors must go through the screening process every time they donate. Then they are hooked up to the pheresis machine for an hour and a half.

Donors don't lose red blood cells and electrolytes, so they don't feel tired after donating platelets. Although health officials recommend waiting eight weeks before donating whole blood again, they say people can safely give platelets as often as every other day.

Holmberg said military blood banks can get as many platelets from a single donor through pheresis as they could from eight to 12 pints of whole blood.

"This is much safer for the patients because there aren't as many exposures," he said.

The danger of adverse reaction to something in the blood products increases with the number of donors. Also, said Holmberg, the risk of human immunodeficiency virus or other infection also increases. Blood or platelet donors cannot contract HIV from donating.

Donors should be between 18 and 65. Donors over 65 must take a physical every year to donate platelets.

Holmberg said platelets have a shelf life of only five days, hence the need for many donors.

Most large military hospitals in the United States have platelet donation equipment. Military hospitals share platelets with other military and civilian hospitals.

"I urge everyone, no matter what their service, to donate to the Armed Services Blood Program, whether it is platelets or whole blood," said Holmberg.

Child care providers receive CDA certification

Family Child Care

CDA is the only major national effort to improve child care by evaluating and recognizing the skills of individuals providing care.

She has provided child care at Fort Benning since 1991 and has attended additional training with Georgia Extension and Georgia Association for Young Children.

As lead education technician at the new Santa Fe Child Development Center, Suggs has demonstrated extensive experience.

She received her CDA for her work with toddlers. She has worked with children in Germany, Columbus and at the McGraw CDC. She is from Florida and has taken advantage of extensive training opportunities.

She has worked with children as a family child-care provider and center staff in Germany, teacher's aide in Columbus and at the McGraw CDC.

She has demonstrated her skills in working with infants, pre-toddlers, toddlers and their families by completing the CDA assessment process.

The six-month process included a three-hour observation of interaction with children, a two-hour knowledge assessment and an oral interview. Each candidate demonstrated their understanding of child development.

Three other FCC providers, Mary Rush, Nydia Mejias and Verlinda Boyd, were also assessed May 10, but each have relocated from Fort Benning.

Training: Recruits learn skills to survive

By Nathan S. Webster
1st Bde., 76th Division (Training)

Pfc. Liberty Provost and Pvt. 2 Tobias Meister had found themselves in a bit of a predicament.

Both of them were pinned down by a sniper who had had no problem wiping out the previous two teams, and Meister's Multiple Integrated Laser Engagement System gear had already sounded the series of "beeps" that signaled a near miss.

All in all, it was an ugly scene.

About 200 more new privates in Company B, 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry Regiment, Infantry Training Brigade were undergoing the same trial by fire as their training reached the individual tactical training stage.

This was where they would learn the tools of their trade.

"This is the backbone of what they need to know to live, work and survive in combat," said Staff Sgt. Ronald Troyer, an Army Reserve drill sergeant with the 1st Battalion, 304th Regiment, 1st Brigade, 76th Division (Training), in Manchester, N.H.

Troyer, along with a dozen more Reserve drill sergeants have been performing displacement training with the 1st Bn., 38th Inf. Regt., taking over the unit's mission and responsibilities.

"We're trying to get the fundamentals down," Troyer said. "Ninety percent of what we do is reinforcement."

Much of it is the basics — the low and high crawl, the rush, the combat roll and safety checks, Troyer said.

"We want to ensure they do the movements together, and we stress the safety check and not crossing their buddy's line of fire," said Staff Sgt. Greg Ikerd, also with Co. B, 1st Bn., 304th Regt. "They need to cover each other. Teamwork is one of the fundamentals of offense."

Nathan S. Webster

Pvt. 1 Aaron King leads the way during a muddy day of high-crawl practice.

More than a few battered elbows are proof that the trainees have taken the training to heart.

"It's good if they get some cherries on their elbows," said Staff Sgt. Laurel Hubbard, another Co. B, 1st Bn., 304th Regt. drill sergeant. "That teaches them to (learn to deal with pain)."

"They're banged up more than usual," said Sgt. 1st Class Eric Fraser, Co. B's senior drill sergeant. "They're elbows are hurt from the high crawl, and their feet from yesterday's road march.

"This is a big morale booster. The privates need it; they've been through (a lot) the last couple days," Fraser said. "Night fire, road marches, bivouacking and low and high crawling all day. Whatever they do today, it ought to be entertaining."

That it is, according to the privates who are going through it.

"This is the best part of the training we've had yet," said Provost, who, with his partner, Meister, had managed to beat the sniper by surviving to get within grenade range.

Part of the reason was their use of a set of codes to stand for the usual "you move, I'll cover" commands.

"We knew the sniper could speak English, so we used numbers. An odd number meant that person would move, and an even number meant the other person could cover them," Meister said. "We used 'strawberries' for weapon jams, and 'life' for a magazine change."

"These (soldiers) have been great," said Sgt. Gerald Jenkins, an evaluator from the 70th Division (Training). "I make sure they get the basics. I'm not too concerned if they get 'killed' or not."

At the same time, the drill sergeants can use the opportunity to refresh themselves on infantry tasks they need to stay skilled at for the day they return to the career field.

"It's good to see our drills getting back in the infantry frame of mind," Fraser said. "They don't do it that often."

Yet another milestone of training is the night infiltration course, featuring flares, explosives and M-60 rounds fired over the privates as they navigate a 400-meter pit.

"It's motivational and it builds confidence," said Co. B's active duty commander, Capt. Jim Glackin. "It exposes to them to the sights and sounds they'll see in combat."

Pvt. 1 Stephen Graham understands the value of repetition in this kind of training.

"We might lack some of the skills, but that's nothing a little bit of practice can't help," said Graham, of the Tennessee National Guard's 117th Infantry Regt. "My unit squared me away on this before I came. We were always out in the field.

"I love the infantry skills," he said. "I know it's deadly serious in combat, but we make it fun out here."

Still, training is training. And the goal is the discipline to survive in combat.

"Training should instill a sense of discipline," said Staff Sgt. Jonathan Myers, an active duty drill sergeant with the 1st Bn., 38th Inf. Regt., who earned his Combat Infantryman Badge with the 4th Bn., 7th Infantry Regt. in Desert Storm. "Combat experience makes you more demanding, and I can relate it to the troops. There won't be anybody in combat to tell you to drink water or go to sleep.

"If you don't have the discipline to shine your boots or stand at attention, you won't have the discipline to do a good low crawl in combat," Myers said.

WORLD WAR II — A LOOK BACK

50 years ago this week ...

• Britain's Royal Air Force Bomber Command conducted its most devastating raids on Hamburg, Germany, launching the first two of four major night missions against the city in an eight-day period ending Aug. 2. The munitions used in the attacks topped 3,200 tons, producing a fire storm that caused 50,000 civilian casualties and left 800,000 people homeless.

Indicative of the intensity of the attack, a fire storm is a phenomena that occurs very rarely and only when a fire becomes so intense that it consumes all area oxygen and creates its own sweeping winds to feed it.

• On Sicily, U.S. forces captured Palermo, Trapani, Marsala, Termini Imerese, Cefalu and Nicosia, while successfully isolating 50,000 Italian troops on the western sector of the island. • In Italy, the Fascist Grand Council met for the first time since late 1939 and voted Benito Mussolini out of power. Italian officials then formally arrested Mussolini.

• The Bayonet reported that Fort Benning soldiers saved their money after hearing that actress and pin-up girl Jane Russell would sell war bonds and stamps at the Patio Grill in Columbus.

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Command of the 317th Engineer Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), changed hands July 16 during a 9 a.m. ceremony on Dickman Field in Harmony Church.

Lt. Col. Kenneth S. Kasprisin, formerly the deputy commander of the Sacramento District Corps of Engineers, took command from Lt. Col. Donald J. Whitten.

Whitten took command of the 317th Engineer Battalion in Germany and redeployed the battalion to Fort Benning and Fort Stewart, Ga. in November and December 1991, where it was assigned to the 24th Infantry Division.

He is a 1974 graduate of Virginia Military Institute and he has a master of science degree from the University of Washington and a master of business degree in finance from Golden Gate University.

Whitten's awards include the Meritorious Service Medal with two oak leaf clusters, three awards of the Army Commendation Medal, Ranger Tab, Parachutist Badge and the Air Assault Badge.

He and his wife, Barbara, have two children.

He will become the deputy commander of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division following his command assignment.

He has held a number of infantry, ranger and engineer positions, including command of an infantry company in the 24th Infantry Division, Fort Stewart. He attended the Infantry Officer Advanced Course and the Air Command and Staff College. He served as the deputy commander of the Corps of Engineers' Hurricane Andrew Recovery Office in Miami, Fla., in the aftermath of Hurricane Andrew.

Kasprisin has a master of science degree in structural engineering from Carnegie-Mellon University and has completed requirements for a doctorate at the University of Minnesota.

Among his awards and decorations are the Meritorious Service Medal with two oak leaf clusters, Army Commendation Medal with four oak leaf clusters, Army Achievement Medal, Expert Infantryman Badge, Ranger Tab and the Parachutist Badge.

He and his wife, Michelle, have four children.

36th Engineer Group celebrates

By Allen C. Estes
36th Engineer Group

For one brief moment, the Fort Benning Officers' Club became a sea of red as almost 100 engineer flags were spread throughout to celebrate the Engineer Ball July 1.

The soldiers of the 43rd Engineer Battalion moved the brick castle, which stands in front of their headquarters, to the front of the Officers' Club to be displayed with a scraper from the battalion and an M-9 armored combat earthmover from the 317th Engineer Battalion.

The Engineer Ball, which celebrated the birthday of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, included preparation of an engineer punch, the requisite toasts and a musical presentation from the Infantry Chorus, which deviated from its usual program to include "The Engineer Song." Halfway through its presentation, the Infantry Chorus switched from its familiar powder blue scarves to engineer red in honor of Fort Benning's engineers.

The guest speaker was Brig. Gen. Stanley Genega, the director of Civil Works for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Genega, who has served in various engineer assignments, related personal experiences, spoke about leadership, paid tribute to the families of service members and discussed where the Army is heading for the future.

Genega and Col. Phillip Anderson, the commander of the 36th Engineer Group, presented four Bronze Order of the DeFleury medals to engineers. The medal was named after Francois DeFleury and his valorous actions during the Revolutionary War. It was the first congressional medal authorized and is currently given by the Army Engineer Association for individuals who have "rendered outstanding service to the Corps of Engineers."

Honorary col. visits 2/54th

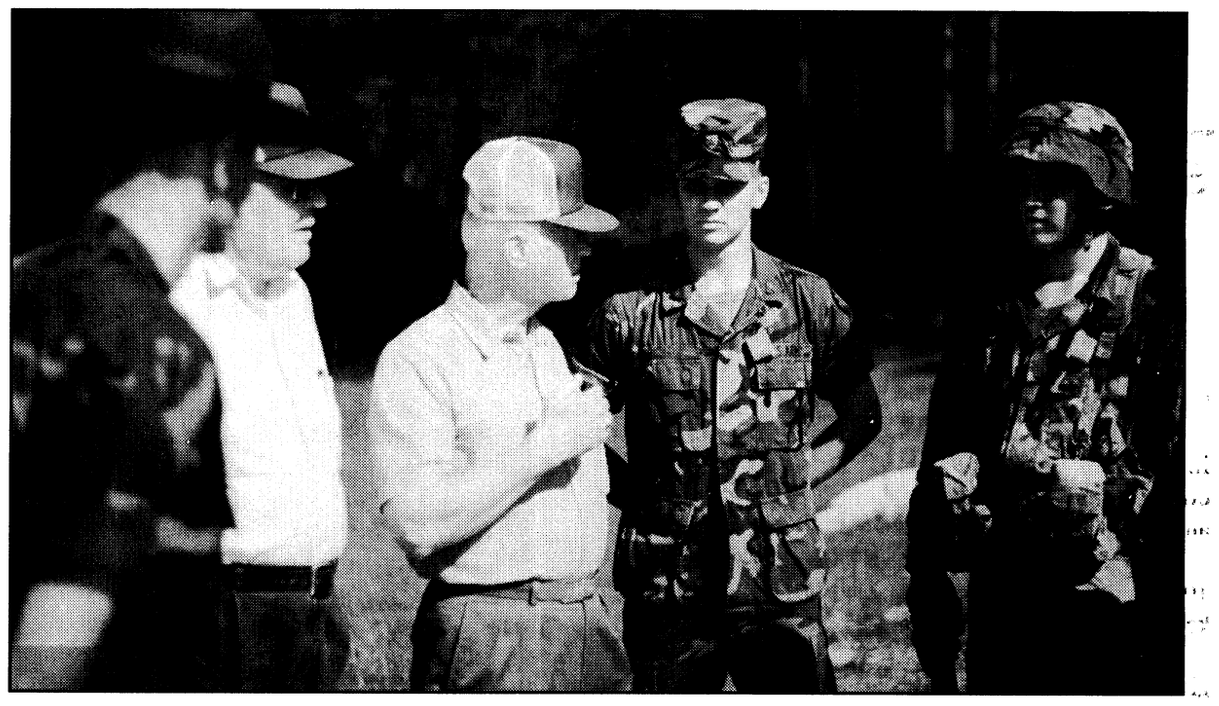
By Daniel J. Ullman
2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment

The week of June 13 was a busy one for the soldiers and cadre of 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment.

In addition to the normal routine of turning civilians into disciplined soldiers, the battalion had the responsibility of welcoming retired Lt. Gen. Sidney B. Berry to the battalion. Berry is honorary regimental colonel for the battalion.

Although retired, Berry remains active in both civilian and military life. His visit to 2nd Bn., 54th Inf., was primarily to discuss officer and noncommissioned officer development, relations and responsibilities, according to battalion officials.

Coinciding with the general's visit was an instructional working visit by 15 cadets from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. The cadets worked and learned to assist drill sergeants.



During his week-long visit, Berry conducted discussions with personnel of 2nd Bn., 54th Inf. including trainees, West Point cadets, drill sergeants and the officers of the battalion.

During these meetings a wide range of topics pertinent to the military were discussed.

Berry, with many years of experience, had a lot of good advice for the young soldiers, according to Lt. Col. Gary G. Dacey, commander 2nd Bn., 54th Inf. Regt. He also took time to talk to individual soldiers asking them questions and listening to the ideas and concerns of the soldiers.

All in all it was a very productive week for the men and cadre of the battalion, said Dacey.

Dacey said he would like to thank Berry for his time and consideration in his visiting and sharing his wealth of knowledge and experience with the soldiers and cadre of the battalion.

Special operations honors World War II rangers

Member of original unit reflects on crucial battles, requirements

By Linda A. Thompson
U.S. Army Special Operations Command

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — The special operations community dedicated a memorial stone to the ranger battalions of World War II July 9. One of those rangers attending the ceremony was James Altieri.

Altieri was a member of the 1st Ranger Battalion — first, as in the very first one. Most of those original rangers were volunteers. Fifty years later, Altieri remembers why he volunteered.

"While I was in northern Ireland, a call came out for volunteers, " said Altieri. "It called for people who wanted action, who wanted to join a commando-type outfit, and it described the qualifications — physically fit, mentally alert, daring and aggressive. I didn't know if it was me, but it was who I would like to be, so I volunteered."

After the volunteers were screened, the new rangers traveled to northern Scotland for commando-type training conducted by the British. The training was intense and realistic.

"They brought us to a halt in front of a line of graves with crosses. The commando leading us said, 'I want you to observe, rangers, where you will be if you are not alert because we are going to be firing live ammunition. And here you must either be quick or more realistically you will be dead.'"

Indeed, training was very close to real-life situations yet to be faced. The new rangers practiced opposed amphibious landings in collapsible boats while being fired upon.

"We'd have our paddles shot out of our hands, " said Altieri. "One of the bullets hit the top of my bayonet and just whizzed by my neck. "

They acquired other skills in survival, cliff climbing and reconnaissance. And there was no copping out.

"We were given strict instructions that only the lame — the truly lame — and the near dead would ever report for medical call," said Altieri. If a soldier failed any of the training, he was sent back to his original unit.

When the ranger units were originally formed, it was stipulated that the ranger-trained soldiers would be returned to their parent units once the need for the battalions had passed. This attitude underlined the continuing status of these battalions existing as temporary units.

"Once you left, unless you failed, you would go back and you would be respected because it was a superhuman effort, " said Altieri.

The rangers definitely left their mark on the World War II North African campaign. Altieri praised his comrades.

"We won distinguished unit citations and our casualties in the entire North African campaign were only four or five rangers actually killed in battle and about 10 or 15 wounded. We had been in some very crucial battles and we had won."

The performance of the rangers in north Africa and the continuing need for troops to spearhead amphibious landings led to the forming of additional battalions. The men of the original 1st Ranger Battalion were split into groups to form the cadre for the new battalions. The training included what the British commandos had given the original rangers and what those rangers had learned in actual combat.

"We were a little cocky because we had won battles," said Altieri. "We thought we were invincible, and we carried this invincibility to the new recruits. "

There were various speculations as to where the new ranger battalions would fight. Some thought it could be England, northern Italy, southern France or even the Pacific.

> "They brought us to a halt in front of a line of graves with crosses. The commando leading us said, 'I want you to observe, rangers, where you will be if you are not alert ...
> — James Altieri

"We didn't know where we were going and at that time we didn't care, " said Altieri. "We just wanted to get our outfit lined up with a high peak of efficiency so that when we went into battle we knew we were up to the job. We knew it was a dangerous job because they didn't organize us for patty-cake jobs. "

We worked out what our company would do, what this company would do, where the objectives were, and so forth. We knew our job," stated Altieri. "We knew our commanders. We knew the proven ones and we knew that those yet unproven in battle had exhibited all the qualifications. We knew that we would win. "

Even though the rangers exhibited the winning attitude, major problems surfaced at the onset of Operation Husky. Altieri recalled how the first major problem rose in the form of a severe storm. "

We were on the British boat the Prince Albert and the waves were so horrific that many of the rangers were ill. We thought it might be called off and if it was called off and we were out there at sea in broad daylight, we would be patsies for the aircraft coming in. "

But the operation was not called off, and William O. Darby, then a lieutenant colonel, led his rangers in toward their objective. Altieri was in Company F of the 4th Ranger Battalion, led by Capt. Walter F. Nye. He remembers a brave decision Nye had to make during the beach assault.

"On our way in, the searchlights were holding on the ships and we were under heavy fire. Several of the assault craft went down under and men were screaming in the water. Yet to stop our boat and expose it further, standing almost still in the water, to the searchlight and enemy fire was dangerous to everyone concerned. But we couldn't leave those men. It was a hard decision, but Captain Nye made the compassionate and risky one and picked up those men and still went on to our mission. We were lucky."

There were many other acts of bravery as the rangers landed on the beaches of Sicily. Company D of the 4th Ranger Battalion landed on a strip of mines under heavy machine gun fire. The company commander was killed and a number of others were killed or wounded. Altieri praised the actions of 1st Sgt. Randall Harris, who was wounded in the stomach during the invasion.

"He pulled his ammunition belt over his wound, took command of the company, attacked the pillboxes, cleaned them out, and then went to the medics after his company had completed their job. But he got at the end of the line instead of getting up where priority should have been. He wanted the others to go before him. The medical officer had to pull him up there. "

Sometimes soldiers must also do things that conflict with childhood memories and personal convictions. Company F's objectives included taking control of the cathedral where enemy snipers continually fired at soldiers on the ground.

"Getting into the cathedral was a tough sting for me, " said Altieri. "My thoughts went back to my days of being an altar boy and choir member, and here I was throwing grenades in a holy church. That was a sacrilege. "

So was the victory worth the personal sacrifices? Certainly, according to Altieri.

"Operation Husky proved very importantly that the United States could affect a major amphibious landing against opposition. It proved that coordination between the Navy and the Army was quite effective, and it proved that even when threatened with disaster, the rangers had the gumption to hang on. We had pushed back the enemy instead of being pushed back into the sea. Operation Husky was a real prelude to the Normandy landings."

The entire Sicilian campaign lasted 38 days and gave the Allies important experience they would need later during the invasion of France. The invasion of Sicily knocked Italy out of the war. It was the catalyst that caused the ouster of dictator Benito Mussolini July 25, 1943.

ROA names new director

Reserve Officers Association

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Maj. Gen. Roger W. Sandler, 59, Chief of the Army Reserve, was named the new executive director of the 100,000-member Reserve Officers Association of the United States.

Sandler

Sandler will assume the ROA duties early in 1994, succeeding retiring Maj. Gen. Evan L. Hultman, who has served in the position since 1986. Sandler's selection was the culmination of a year-long search for a replacement after Hultman announced his intended retirement a year ago. The final selection was made by ROA's elected executive committee.

Sandler is a permanent resident of Mound, Minn., but now resides at Fort Myer, Va. He has four grown children, Christie, Kathey, Steve and Scott.

PRIMUS

PRIMUS IS CHANGING

On February 1, 1993, the Columbus PRIMUS Clinic became the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic. As of this date, the clinic will be open to non-active duty military beneficiaries registered in the Army's Gateway To Care Program and enrolled to receive their primary health care at PRIMUS. As a Family Practice Clinic, PRIMUS will expand its services and offer its enrolled members:

- Comprehensive family practice medicine, including routine physicals, treatment of a wider range of acute and chronic conditions, and extensive laboratory and radiology testing.
- Guidance for all healthcare treatment, including diagnostic testing, speciality referrals, and follow-up care.
- Both scheduled appointments and walk-in visits.
- Telephone consultation with qualified healthcare personnel to determine whether and when to seek medical care.

To enroll as a member of the PRIMUS Family Practice, active duty family members and retirees and their families should attend one of the Army's Gateway To Care briefings or contact the MACH Health Care Finder at 544-1447/1591. Enrolled members can receive more information on our Family Practice services by calling the clinic at 561-7066.

World War II stamp series highlights events of 1943

U.S. Postal Service

WASHINGTON— The U.S. Postal Service has introduced its third addition to a five-year commemorative stamp series marking the 50th anniversary of World War II.

The comprehensive series involves the issuance of 10 stamps in each year, 1991 to 1995, documenting key events of the corresponding years, 1941 to 1945.

"The World War II series is meaningful because it gives us the opportunity to do what stamps do best — tell a story," said Postmaster General Marvin Runyon, a World War II-era veteran who served with the Army Air Corps.

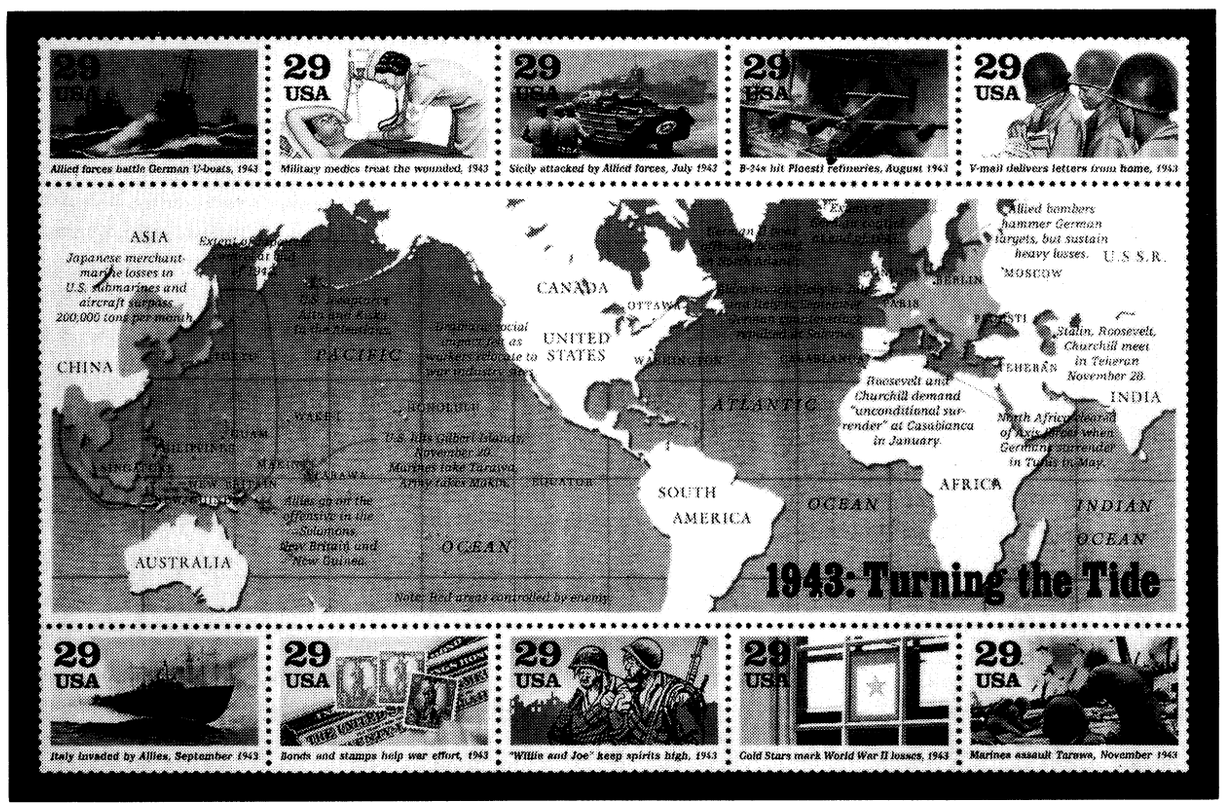
The 1993 stamps highlight the following 1943 events and subjects: Allied forces battle German U-boats; military medics treat the wounded; Sicily attacked by Allied forces; B-24s hit Ploesti refineries; V-mail delivers letters from home; Italy invaded by Allies; bonds and stamps help war effort; "Willie and Joe" keep spirits high; Gold Stars mark World War II losses; and Marines assault Tarawa.

In addition to the stamps themselves, the Postal Service is publishing five books, one for each year in the series.

Each book gives an overview of the history of the events and subjects depicted on the corresponding year's stamps.

The foreword to this year's volume was written by Bill Mauldin, Pulitzer Prize winning cartoonist. The books are available by mail and phone order.

The 10 stamps are printed in two rows of five, with a map depicting the location of the events in between. The format is the same for each of the five parts of the series.



However, the 1993 map that accompanies the stamps inadvertently shows Wake Island as being outside the rule of Japan, when it was actually still Japanese territory in 1943.

1943: Turning the Tide, the third of five annual collections includes a 44-page hardbound book and two World War II commemorative stamp sheets with an assortment of mounts for displaying the stamps in the book. It is available by mail order (item no. 8843) by sending $15.95 per collection, in check or money order, to:

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from June 22 to 28. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 600-5, Civilian Clothing Standards. Civilian attire worn by post personnel will be in good repair and worn as the manufacturer intended.

Shirts and footwear will be worn in public except when engaged in running, working or sunbathing in yards of quarters, exercising in gyms or using post swimming pools. Items of clothing prohibited from being worn in on-post facilities include underwear when worn as an outer garment, tank tops, muscle shirts, mesh shirts, shirts from which the sleeves have been removed and shirts which expose any part of the midriff.

Modified items of military clothing, such as cut-off battle dress uniform trousers or jackets without sleeves are also prohibited.

Shorts that do not have at least one outside pocket, running shorts and the Army physical training uniform are not authorized.

Military Police will be conducting spot checks of on-post facilities to ensure compliance with this regulation.

• A captain was charged with adultery, communicating a threat and conduct unbecoming an officer after he had an affair. He later telephoned his mistress and threatened to kill her if she told anyone about their affair.

• A staff sergeant was charged with a traffic accident, driving under the influence of alcohol striking a fixed object, and no proof of insurance, after driving his car into a telephone pole while leaving a local bar. He registered .18 on the intoximeter.

• A private was charged with wrongful making or altering of an identification card after he photocopied his ID card and changed the year of his birth date.

• A private first class was charged by civil authorities with aggravated assault after attempting to run over an individual with his car during an altercation.

• A civilian was charged with theft of public money after negotiating 109 personal checks against a closed account. The total loss of funds was in excess of $3,000.

• Two civilians were charged with murder and aggravated assault after shooting and stabbing two men during an argument over a card game. One of the men died and the other is in critical condition in a local hospital.

• A civilian was charged with theft of a bicycle that had been reported stolen from government quarters after he was observed riding it by the MPs.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the civilian who placed six cartons of cigarettes in his shirt and exited the Mini Mall without paying for them.

A soldier observed the incident and followed the individual, who attempted to hide in the dumpster behind Burger King. The soldier detained the individual until the arrival of the MPs, at which time he was apprehended and charged with shoplifting.

Other activities included 16 traffic accidents and five reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were four cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, 10 cases of larceny of private property and seven cases of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Lloyd N. Bell
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q: I have just transferred to Fort Benning and I am looking for an apartment in town. My friends have warned me, however, that Columbus is notorious for slumlords and crooks.

I have heard many stories about landlords who refuse to return your security deposit when you move out; I have also heard that it is not uncommon for landlords to charge you more than your security deposit to repair so-called damages to an apartment.

How can I best protect myself from these landlords?

A: The best way to protect yourself from these types of problems is to thoroughly document all the pre-existing damage to the apartment before you move in.

Georgia law requires that every landlord conduct a premove inspection to determine if the apartment (or house) is in any way damaged. Usually, the landlord will simply give you a standard form, tell you to list any damages, and return the list to the leasing office.

A word of advice: FILL OUT THE FORM! Far too many tenants do not take the time to properly complete the form and return it to the landlord.

Consequently, when the landlord withholds the security deposit for "damages" to the apartment after you move out, there is no way to dispute the claim other than to pit your word against his or hers.

If you take plenty of time to thoroughly inspect the apartment and fill out the form, it could save you an enormous amount of trouble down the road.

Once you move out of the apartment, the landlord must conduct an inspection within three business days and compile a comprehensive list of any damage that he or she plans to offset with your security deposit.

Of course, the landlord may only charge you for damages beyond normal wear and tear that did not exist when you moved in.

As the former tenant, you have the right to inspect the apartment within five business days of termination to determine if the list is accurate. If the list is not accurate, you must write a statement to that effect and submit it to the landlord immediately.

Assuming the apartment is in substantially the same shape as when you moved in, the landlord must return your deposit within 30 days.

The reason it is so important to accurately complete the pre-move inspection sheet is to guard yourself against the errant landlord who tries to get you to pay for damage to the apartment that existed prior to your occupancy.

In Georgia, a detailed inspection sheet signed by both you and the landlord is conclusive proof as to the condition of the apartment at the time you moved in.

But what do you do if the landlord still won't return your security deposit despite your "conclusive" proof?

If the landlord still refuses to return your security deposit, or worse, charges you more than your security deposit to repair damage to your apartment that existed prior to moving in, don't take the law into your own hands — take him or her to court.

Georgia law allows you to recover three times the amount of the security deposit if it is determined by the judge that any portion of the security deposit was wrongfully withheld.

If you decide that this course of action is necessary, you should make an appointment with the Staff Judge Advocate's Office to discuss the best way to proceed.

In limited cases, a Judge Advocate General attorney may represent you in an action to recover your security deposit.

You can make an appointment by calling 545-3281 between 8 and 8:30 a.m.

Calculate costs before renting to own

Better Business Bureau

If you're strapped for cash, but are in need of a major appliance, or feel you can't live without a television or a stereo, you may be considering a rent to own proposition.

While renting to own may be advantageous to some, the Better Business Bureau warns that you should be aware of certain drawbacks that come with rent-to-own transactions.

Rent-to-own contracts are usually weekly or monthly rental agreements that can be renewed at the end of each rental period.

After a specified number of payments you will own the goods, although an additional payment may be required. If you choose not to buy, you may discontinue the rental agreement and return the merchandise to the store at any time.

Understand that you generally will not own the merchandise until the total cost, indicated in the contract, is paid.

Even though you are making payments every week or month for the merchandise, you are not building up any ownership in the item (unless required under your state's law).

The weekly or monthly rate may sound low and affordable, but when it is multiplied by the number of weeks or months before the merchandise is owned, the total cost may be three to four times higher than prices charged by many traditional retailers.

Many rent-to-own contracts don't allow grace periods and payments must be made on or before the specified date.

That means if a you miss a payment, the merchandise can be repossessed, regardless of how much you have paid on the contract.

The BBB recommends that before signing a rent-to-own agreement, you compare the total cost of renting to own with the cost of purchasing the merchandise outright, on credit through installment sales, or by the use of credit cards.

If you are seriously considering rent-to-own contracts, compare the contracts of different companies, including the total charges for ownership.

Learn what will happen if the payments are late and the merchandise is repossessed; find out who is responsible for any necessary repairs; clearly understand all terms and conditions of the contract; and check with the BBB on the reliability of the company.

Officers' Wives' Club awards scholarships

Group rewards students' academic performance

By Christine Schroeder
Officers' Wives' Club

The Officers' Wives' Club has announced the recipients of the 1993 merit scholarships for graduating seniors.

Erin Alina McLennan, daughter of 1st Lt. Bruce and Elizabeth McLennan, is the recipient of a $1,500 scholarship. She graduated from Shaw High School in June where she has won numerous awards in music with most for piano.

She is a member of the National Honor Society and has received the Shaw Academic Letter. Alina plans to work toward a bachelor of arts degree in early childhood or special education.

Peter Lettre, son of Col. Marcel J. and Mary Lettre, is the recipient of the $1,000 annual USPA-IRA Scholarship. He attends Pacelli where his classmates chose him as "the best all-around senior." Peter has been active in sports and was captain of his cross-country and soccer teams.

He plans on attending University of the South-Sewanee where he would like to major in English and continue studying music, acting and writing.

Lindsey Barth, also graduating from Pacelli, has been active in Teen Advisors, a club which encourages having fun without the use of drugs and alcohol. This group was recognized as one of former President George Bush's "points of light" for January. Lindsey is the daughter of Col. Wayne and Genie Barth. She plans on attending Baylor University where she will pursue a degree to teach at the high school level. She will receive a $1,000 scholarship.

Laura Mebyne Boyd is the daughter of retired Navy Lt. Cmdr. Gerald Boyd and is the recipient of a $1,000 scholarship. She will graduate from Shaw High School in June where she was named to the All-City Honors Chorus.

She is a member of the literature team and the academic bowl team. Mebyne will attend Agnes Scott College where she plans on pursuing a double major in English literature and physics or astronomy.

Thomas Williams attends Spencer where he has been active in basketball, cross-country and soccer. He is a member of the National Honor Society and has won the Georgia Merit Scholar Award.

Tom is the son of Lt. Col. Randall C. Jr. and Peggy Williams and the recipient of a $1,000 scholarship. He plass on attending Mercer University, majoring in criminology then going on to law school.

Abi White is the daughter of Col. Larry K. Jr. and Signe White and is the recipient of a $1,000 scholarship. She attends St. Andrew's School in Middletown, Del., where she is active in cross-country, swimming and crew. Abi is the co-captain of her swim team and was recognized as the most valued person on the team. Abi will attend University of the South-Sewanee where she plans on studying medicine and hopes to become a doctor.

Erik Cole, son of Chief Warrant Officer 2 William Z. and Ruth Cole, is the recipient of a $1,000 scholarship. Until he moved here in February, Erik was attending Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology in Alexandria,Va., where he received the honor of National Merit Commended Scholar. He plans on obtaining a bachelor's degree in engineering.

The OWC continuing education scholarships have been awarded to the following members.

Debra Gerner, wife of Lt. Col. Mark H. Gerner, will receive a $1,000 scholarship. She is going to Columbus College working toward a bachelor of science degree in nursing.

Lisa Compton, wife of 1st Lt. Gerald H. Compton, will receive the Columbus College scholarship. She is working on an associate's degree in nursing.

Lee Miller, wife of Capt. William B. Miller, is the recipient of the Troy State University scholarship. She is working toward a master of science in human resource management.

Jacqueline Crist, wife of Staff Sgt. Charles T. Crist, also attends Troy State University. She is working toward a bachelor of science in social science and will receive a $500 scholarship.

Lorelei Bolze, wife of Capt. Michael X. Garrett, will receive a $500 scholarship. She is attending Columbus College studying toward an associate's degree in nursing.

Karen K. Cook, wife of Maj. Dennis B. Cook, is the recipient of a $500 scholarship. She is attending Columbus College working toward a bachelor's degree in health science.

Kathy D'Elosua, wife of Lt. Col. Ralph D'Elosua, is working toward a bachelor of science in secondary education. She is attending Columbus College and will receive a $500 scholarship.

Jeanne Brown, wife of Capt. Stephen R. Brown, is the recipient of a $500 scholarship. She is going to Chatttahoochee Valley Community College working toward an associate's degree in nursing.

Venezuelan officer gets promotion

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Capt. Alfonso J. Colmenares, Republic of Venezuela, was promoted to major by the commander of the 29th Infantry Regiment, Col. Robert L. Jordan, at a ceremony June 30 in Infantry Hall.

Colmenares arrived at the U.S. Army Infantry School in July 1991 to attend the Infantry Officer Advanced Course and the Psychological Operations and Instructor Training Course at the School of the Americas.

Later assigned as the Venezuelan Exchange Officer for the USAIS, Colmenares is currently assigned to the Tactics Division of the Combined Arms Tactics Directorate.

He is married to Dr. Betty Colmenares, and they have two children; Maria Victoria, 4, and Alfonso Jose, who was just born on the Fourth of July.

Chaplains celebrate 218 years

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

One of the Army's smallest branches celebrates its 218th anniversary this month — the Chaplain Corps.

Since July 29, 1775, chaplains have sought to bring God to soldiers and soldiers to God in the total Army of both active and Reserve forces. With roots deep in the pages of the Old Testament, clergy men and clergy women in uniform have accompanied troops into battle for more than two centuries. Deuteronomy 28:4 is just one example of such spiritual leadership, "And it shall be when ye are come nigh into battle, that the priest shall approach and speak unto the people."

The origin of the title 'chaplain' goes back in time to an old legend about a soldier named Martin of Tours, France. He was traveling on horseback with a group of well-dressed companions. As they passed through one of the city dates of Amiens, they met an importunate beggar. He was shivering in his rags on a bitterly cold winter night. The others passed by heedless of the cry for alms. Martin, touched with compassion, opened his purse but found it empty. He drew his sword and with a stroke divided his heavy cloak. One half he gave to the beggar, the other he kept.

That night in a dream, Martin saw Jesus, the Christ, clad in that half cloak. He was so moved by the vision that he sought baptism. Soon afterward, he abandoned his military career and devoted himself to the church. In time, he became the patron saint of France. His cloak was kept as a sacred relic by the French kings and was often carried into battle with them as a good omen. After the battle, the cloak was returned for safekeeping by the "chaplelain." This word is derived from medieval Latin, 'cappa' or 'cappela,' and means keeper or keeping place for the cape or cloak. Later the French word 'chaplelain' was anglicized to 'chaplain' and was understood to mean compassionate one wearing the 'cloth' who goes about doing good to others in the service of God.

The American Revolution began with clergy appearing at Lexington and Concord. They fought alongside their soldiers with a Bible in one hand and a rifle in the other or they followed their congregants. Most served without appointment or pay. A total of 219 chaplains served during the Revolutionary War.

Chaplain duties were essentially limited to the functions associated with the care of souls. Then, as now, their primary focus was service as pastors to the spiritual needs of soldiers. That same priority continues today in a broader sense. It includes family members and Department of the Army civilians. Using the traditions of pastoral care and spiritual fitness as motivators, chaplains and chaplain assistants of the Unit Ministry Team provide a ministry of presence for all tactical and garrison situations. The UMT has also pioneered in such areas as race relations, drug and alcohol programs, community outreach, organizational effectiveness and crisis intervention.

In the early days, Army chaplains were sometimes schoolmasters as well as prophets and priests, and it was in this context that the first chaplain's assistant was selected to serve. In 1868, the Army decided that a soldier found competent to teach common school subjects should be detailed to do so under the supervision of a local chaplain. He was not awarded the title chaplain's assistant nor was he given that job description, but a relationship was established between an enlisted soldier's detailed duty and a chaplain's functions.

Now 18 years into its third century of service to the Army and our country, the chaplaincy UMT look forward to new opportunities. The service of the UMT has made the Army a better institution in which to serve, both by delivering the message of hope and by making practical applications to that message and adding to the total Army community's quality of life.

Anniversaries and birthdays are always important opportunities to remember and reflect, if just for a moment. The United States from its beginning as a nation has a meaningful history of taking care of soldiers and military families in war and peace. To its great credit our nation has long recognized that soldiers do not live by bread alone — they have physical, emotional, and spiritual needs. For 218 years the chaplaincy has been a model for other nations. They send their chaplains to train here. Today Russia and other states that used to make up the Soviet Union are seeking to establish a similar chaplaincy in their armed forces modeled after our own.

So, happy anniversary to the little branch that does so much for the good of the Army. To use your phrase, "God bless you" and may you continue to bless our Army with wise counsel and leadership.

PET OF THE WEEK

This mixed breed puppy is looking for a home. He is approximately 8 months old and is just one of many dogs and cats which can be adopted.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127.

Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner of a lost pet. Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records when changes occur.

There is no cost to register a pet unless a rabies vaccination is required.

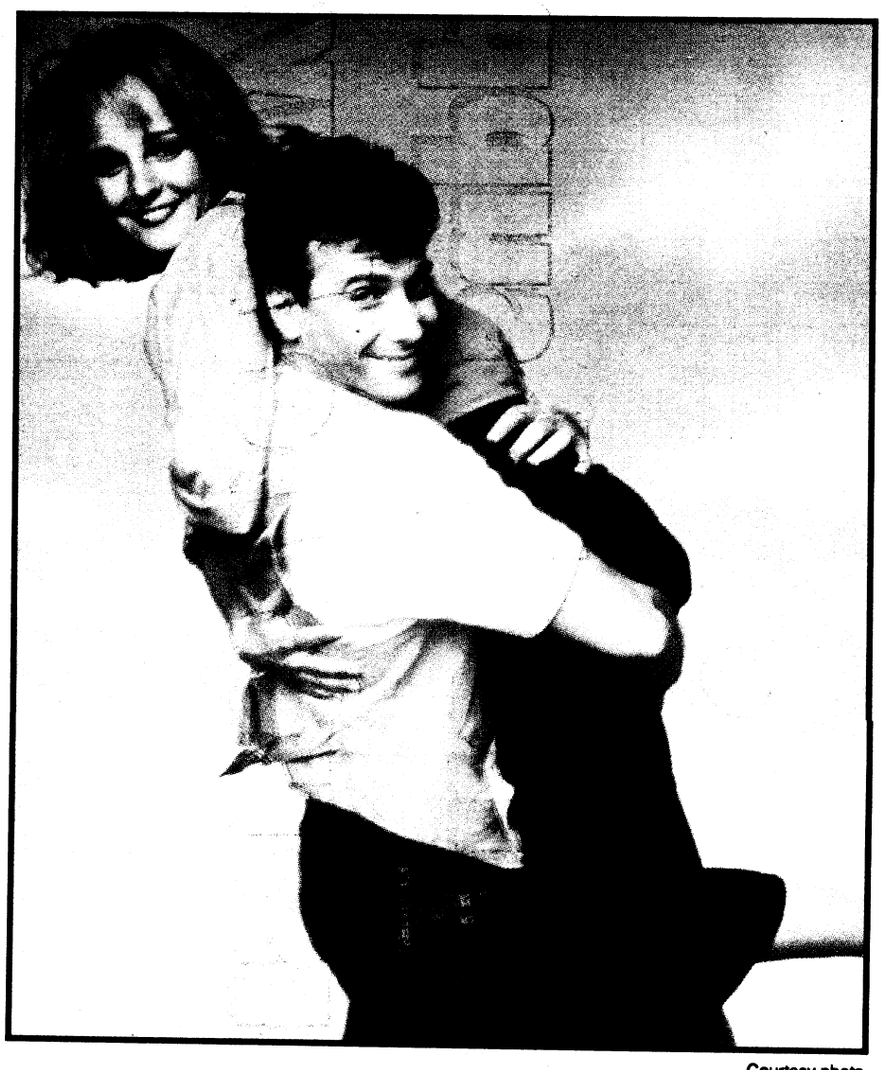
'Mad About You' heads for second year

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

It's the little things that can make a marriage work ... and that also applies in the case of a certain TV series about a marriage.



SPOTLIGHT

Originally scheduled as a companion piece to "Seinfeld," the NBC comedy "Mad About You" has held its own since being moved away from that program last winter, a fact that has earned it a renewal for a second year. In preparation for that, it relocates to its new time slot for the fall season this week, leading off the network's Thursday-night lineup.

Paul Reiser — also the show's co-creator and co-producer, in tandem with Danny Jacobson ("Good Advice") — and Helen Hunt star as Paul and Jamie Buchman, relative newlyweds who still are adjusting to their married life in Manhattan as various dilemmas and idiosyncrasies come to the fore.

Adding even more potential for crises are their closest acquaintances, who drop by regularly: Paul's bachelor pal Selby (played by Tommy Hinkley) and cousin Ira (John Pankow, in a recurring role); Jamie's hapless sister Lisa (Anne Ramsay); and another couple, Dr. Mark Devanow (Richard Kind) and his wife Fran (Leila Kenzie), who had separated at the end of the series' maiden season ... giving Paul and Jamie new fears, as well as new hopes, about keeping their own union on solid ground.

While Reiser has been married for four years in real life, Hunt remains single, and she says that working on "Mad About You" has been "interesting" for her because of that. "I'd like to think that if I get married, I'll be as good a fighter as Jamie is. In those times on the show that (Paul and Jamie have) gone head-to-head, we've tried to have that sense that even though they want to strangle each other, they're also very grateful to have a partner who's willing to fight fair."

Paul Reiser and Helen Hunt

What: "Mad About You"
When: Thursday, 8 p.m on NBC

Reiser agrees that marriage takes work and a lot of negotiation. "There are changes, and you have to be committed to making them," he said. "Without that, it's way too easy to say (to your spouse), 'You know what? This has been a lousy day. I'm moving in with a 19-year-old girl. See ya.' What works best for us in the show, and I think for the audience as well, are the things that ring true ... the things that make people say, 'Hey, that's what we do.' "

Reiser maintains that he didn't develop "Mad About You" specifically as a match for "Seinfeld," though both shows do have a somewhat similar comedic sensibility, but he allows that the programs "worked nicely together" when they shared the same Wednesday hour last fall. Then, "Seinfeld" went to Thursday and "Mad About You" was shifted to Saturday, but Reiser claims he never was worried about losing the audience. "Married couples don't go out on Saturday night," he insists, while the good-humored Hunt adds that spouses don't even like "to get off the couch" on that evening.

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Rangers from all three battalions of the 75th Ranger Regiment were on the move Saturday with exercise Caisson Warrior, a mass tactical parachute jump that kicked off the five-day Ranger Rendezvous.

Watch "Fort Benning Today" to see highlights of the exercise.

Rangers from Fort Lewis, Wash., joined those from Forts Stewart and Benning in the rendezvous, which culminated with the regimental change of command Wednesday.

USAIC TV Schedule

Fort Benning Today: 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 1:30 to 2 p.m.
Specials: 2 to 4:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 4:30 p.m. to 8:30 a.m.

Next week, "Fort Benning Today" also includes highlights of the farewell ceremony for Fort Benning's deputy commanding general and assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School, Brig. Gen. John Hendrix.

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel highlights post events and lists classified advertisements on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board featuring news and music from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good week for furthering career ambitions and getting things done around the house. Talks with higher-ups are favored now. Avoid domestic disputes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An argumentative type may cross your path this week. You may find the usual job routine somewhat boring. Friends are liable to distract you from your work. Satisfaction now comes from cultural interests.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A money dispute is possible, yet dealings with bankers, brokers and insurance agents are favored. It is a good time to apply for a mortgage and to make home repairs. You are able to bring a project to a successful conclusion this week. Don't mix business with pleasure over the weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It is an excellent time to go after what you want and to work in cooperation with others. Social interests are favored, but you must avoid quarreling. Extra expenses may arise in connection with the household.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Business-related discussions will leave you in a better financial position. Career progress comes this week, but a co-worker may be difficult and jealous. A partner may not be enthusiastic about one of your plans. Watch extravagance. Go easy with the credit cards.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Sharp words may be exchanged between you and a friend this week. However, things go very much your way. Fun comes through creativity, romance and children this weekend. Enjoy!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid direct confrontations in business. You work best from behind-the-scenes. Maintain a low profile. You will work on a home decorating project. Guard against an inclination to be lazy and lethargic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You should stay clear of disputes about ideological concerns. It's a good week for creative interests. You may have ambivalent feelings about a social engagement. Home responsibilities are a priority.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Success awaits your efforts. Avoid quarrels about money. A private worry diminishes your enthusiasm for socializing this weekend, so accent family interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You may be consulting with a new adviser this week. Travel and distant matters are highlighted. Angry words could mar your relationship with a close tie. A business client may be slow in paying. Stay on top of commitments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Aggressiveness serves you well in business. Get an early start on the week. Financial developments now are positive, yet a disagreement could occur about money.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) You will certainly be making a good impression on your friends this week. Your handling of money may be somewhat erratic. You could be both stingy and extravagant now. Couples will enjoy a special outing together this weekend.

Fishing village set for seafood festival

Savannah Area Convention

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Dates for the second annual Seafood Harvest Festival in Thunderbolt, Ga., have been set for July 30 to Aug. 1.

This fishing village located on the Wilmington River and Intracoastal Waterway could be considered one of Savannah's secret little treasures.

Geared toward 'family,' a few of the events in store on the bluff along River Drive include a beauty pageant at the Savannah Band Marina, Dolphin watch cruises, live entertainment, arts and crafts, a variety of local seafood and more.

Thunderbolt business owners and residents are awaiting the chance to share their little town and welcome visitors to the Seafood Harvest Festival, according to town officials.

For a free copy of the Savannah Visitors Guide or reservations through the historic reservations system, call toll free (800) 444-2427 or write to Savannah Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, P.O. Box 1628, Savannah, Ga. 31402-1628.

Summer

Georgia state parks offers array of seasonal events

Georgia Parks and Historic Sites

ATLANTA — The Georgia state parks and historic sites are packed with programs to help entertain families through the hot summer months. The summer interpretive program is among this host of events, offering an array of activities.

Designed for all ages, the interpretive program instructs visitors about the stewardship of nongame wildlife and of natural resources such as plants and animals.

Through Labor Day, interpretive specialists are hired to guide visitors on nature hikes, bird walks, through living history programs, evening campfires and outdoor recreation such as canoeing and backpacking.

Thirty park facilities participate in the summer interpretive program, and it is enormously popular, with more than a quarter of a million people taking advantage of the activities.

Ramona Chandler is a first-time interpretive specialist working at Roosevelt State Park near Pine Mountain. A biology, life science and Earth science teacher during the school year at Flint River Academy High School, Chandler applies her knowledge to the myriad of activities she conducts at Roosevelt State Park.

As an interpretive specialist, Chandler covers a broad area, conducting woodland walks, impromptu interpretations, and sharing snakes, turtles and other animals with children.

Roosevelt State Park is the largest state park in Georgia, spanning 10,000 acres, and containing many hiking trails, cabins and even a liberty bell pool.

Warren Faulk, another interpretive specialist, was a retired serviceman before becoming a permanent employee at Jarrell Plantation Historic Site in Juliette May 11. Besides running the visitor center and taking care of maintenance, Faulk guides walking tours of the houses and other antique sites on the property.

Faulk also is involved in one of the site's more intriguing programs — the presentation of a working honey bee farm. In the 1800s, the Jarrell family kept honey bees as a hobby, and Faulk pays homage to this tradition through a discussion of the bees and display of their apparatus.

He stresses, however, that honey bees are merely a slice of what he offers as an interpreter; he also teaches about sugar cane syrup production, spinning yarn, how to operate a hand loom and run a steam engine.

Faulk is 52 years old, and he possesses a diverse repertoire. In addition to his 20-year stint as a soldier in the Army, he has been a farmer, has worked as a probation officer and as a poultry inspector.

Jarrell Plantation State Historic Site features a grist mill, lumber mill, cotton gin and 20 buildings, two of which are historic houses.

There is a $2 park pass fee for entrance into Georgia's State Parks. Call your nearest state park for more information .

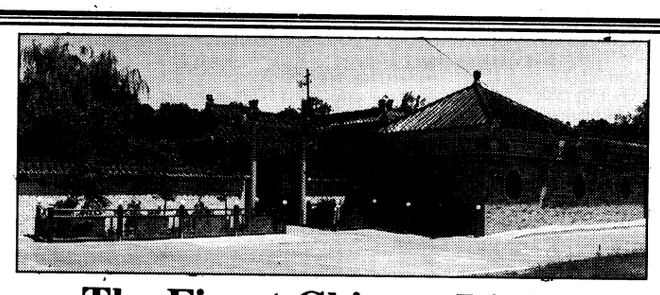
SOAP SCRAPS

By Sell Groves
King Features Syndicate

Daze of our lives: Three popular actors on "Days of Our Lives" are winding up their stints on the long-running NBC soaper. Crystal Chappel and Michael Sabatino, a real-life romantic duo who play the erstwhile lovers Lawrence Alamein and Carly Manning on the show, are expected to leave the series some time in October. This will allow for a wrap of the Carly/Bo (Robert Kelker-Kelly) oft-tempest-tossed romance which, said one setsider, "will be a satisfying conclusion" for the fans.



Matthew Ashford, the third actor to play Jack Deveraux on "DOOL," and the first to give the character some delightful touches of humor, will also leave the series in the fall when his contract expires in September.

Stone rocks Port Charles: Michael Sutton joins "General Hospital" in the role of Stone, who will make his first appearance on the soap today. Stone is a clever young man who befriends Karen. He has strong ties to the teen-age runaway community, and while he'll interact with several Port Charles citizens, he'll share an especially strong storyline with one.

Sacks of gold for Goldin/Sach: Well, we could be jumping the gun here, but there's no doubt Ricky Paull Goldin (Dean, "Another World") and his partner in Goldin/Sachs Entertainment, are off to a fine start as enterprising producers now that their new show, "Street Match," landed on the ABC summer schedule for five weeks starting Wednesday.

Savannah to show seafaring spirit

Festival promises visitors cultural, ethnic events

Savannah Maritime Festival

SAVANNAH, Ga. - The true seafaring spirit of Savannah will be highlighted for nine days this year with the second annual Savannah Maritime Festival. The festival, July 31 through Aug. 8, offers many new events and activities for people of all ages.

The festival was recently named one of the top 100 events in North America for 1993 by the American Bus Association. Thousands of visitors are expected to visit Savannah during the festival.

"The sports, cultural and ethnic events are all designed to bring residents and visitors closer to the sea community," says festival president Patrick Shay of Patrick O. Shay and Associates Architects. "The focus on our 'seafaring spirit' is a natural event for Savannah — especially with the 1996 Olympic yachting events to be conducted here."

Kicking off the festival will be the Maritime 10K Run on Tybee Island. This event will be followed by a sailing regatta, a lifeguard competition, a savage tan contest and a boat show. The first day culminates with a roaring '20s gala — the Tybrisa Ball.

Throughout the nine days, festival participants will delight in a wide variety of activities including arts and crafts exhibits, ecology programs, fishing and golf tournaments, more sailing regattas and a gospel songfest. In all, more than 28 events will be conducted during the festival.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Country concert — Country music sisters Patty and Paula Noore, twin sisters from Carrollton, Ga., will be at Franklin D. Roosevelt Park Saturday.

The Noore's singing career has taken them many places, including auditions for the Nashville Network and recording for three original songs.

The country music performance, which is open and free to the public, will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the stone amphitheater next to the FDR State Park information center on Highway 190 East.

For further information, contact Ramona Chandler, seasonal naturalist, at (706) 663-4858.

The Klicking Kloggers from LaGrange, Ga.; and Valley, Ala.; will be performing at the stone amphitheater next to the FDR Park information center on Highway 190.

They will be clogging from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. tonight. Admission is free.

For further information contact, Ramona Chandler, seasonal naturalist, at (706) 663-4858

Summer play — The Human Experience will present its summer show, "The Double Edmondson," a black comedy written by local playwright, Mel Coe, and directed by William Troy Heard. Curtain times are 8 p.m. tonight and Saturday and July 30 and 31. Tickets are $8 for adults and $6 for students, seniors and military members. Food and spirits will be offered by Twelfth Street Deli. The theater is located at 1037 Broadway.

For reservations, call 323-3689.

Annual ranger muster — The U.S. Army Ranger Association Inc. will sponsor the annual ranger muster Oct. 14 through 17 at the Tacoma Dome Hotel in Tacoma, Wash.

The guest speaker will be Lt. Gen. Carmen J. Cavezza, commanding general, I Corps and Fort Lewis, Wash. Cavezza was the former commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning.

Aviation reunion - The 174th Aviation Company will have a reunion Oct. 8 through 10 at Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

Cavalry bivouac — The U.S. Cavalry Association will hold its 1993 annual bivouac at Manhattan, Kan., and Fort Riley, Kan., Sept. 24 to 26.

For hotel reservations, write to the Holiday Inn, 530 Richards Drive, Manhattan, Kan. 66502-3143 or call (913) 539-5311.

For additional information, contact the USCA's Headquarters, P.O. Box 2325, Fort Riley, Kan. 66442-0325 or call (913) 784-5797. All are welcome.

Bluegrass jam session — A bluegrass jam session will be the last Sunday of every month at the Uchee Creek Lodge on post.

The sessions will begin at 2 p.m. Donations of $2 per person older than 16 years will be accepted to help pay the rent.

For more information, call Bonnie Tyer at 298-4870.

Post turns off air to save $$$

Implements new plan to reduce curtailment in housing to 2-hour periods with max of 4 hours daily

As the long summer days drone on and the Georgia sun relentlessly beats down its torrents of heat, post residents and office workers can feel the heat turn up in more ways than one.

That's because post officials have an agreement with the Georgia Power Company to curtail energy usage during certain hours when the demand is greatest.

Although electricity comprises only 27 percent of the energy used on post, according to the Energy Management Branch of the Directorate of Public Works, it is the most expensive type of energy used. Electricity costs Fort Benning more than $9.6 million a year.

Because of an increased demand statewide for electricity to run air conditioners during the summer months, Georgia Power Company requests the curtailment when the demand is greatest.

The curtailment is part of a six-year-old agreement with the utility and Fort Benning. The post benefits from purchasing electricity at a reduced rate.

Under the agreement, which began in fiscal 1987, Fort Benning curtails certain electric systems such as air conditioning at its own discretion. The post curtails usage in administrative work areas first and in areas such as family housing last.

Fort Benning has 30 minutes to curtail its electrical demand to a preset negotiated limit when notified by Georgia Power.

According to the energy officials, a common misconception is that curtailment is a means to meet energy goals by cutting back on electrical use. The true reason for curtailment, however, is to comply with the contractual agreement Fort Benning has made with Georgia Power, from which the post's electricity is purchased.

The objective, according to the Energy Management Branch, is to obtain the cheapest prices for energy, not to save energy.

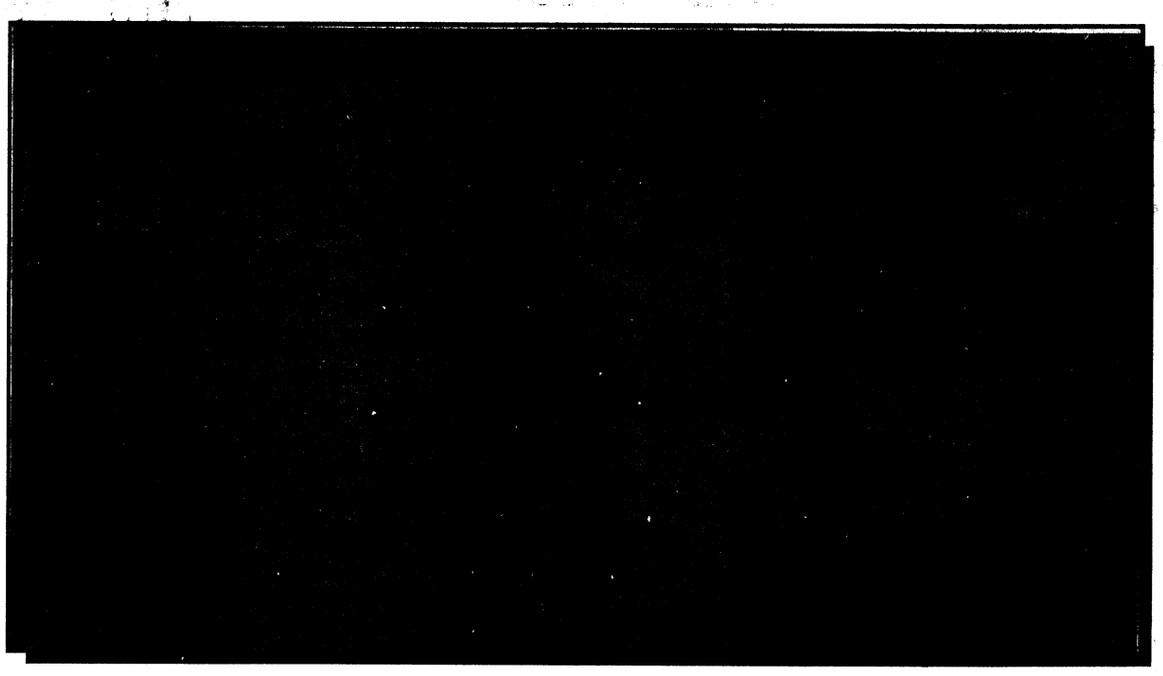
"As temperatures rise, energy demand throughout Georgia also rises," said Richard J. McDowell, post public affairs officer. "Through programs such as this, Georgia Power helps ensure its ability to provide a reliable supply of electricity to all of its customers."

In fiscal 1992, Fort Benning, the fourth largest user of electricity in Southwest Georgia and the 12th largest in the state, saved more than $1 million as a result of the agreement.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White approved a plan to reduce the length of curtailment of air conditioning in family quarters.

The plan went into effect July 23 and includes curtailing previously exempted buildings and paying a surcharge to Georgia Power for additional power.

With the plan, curtailment in family housing will be no longer than two hours at any one time and no more than four hours in a day.



"In the records that we have," said McDowell, "6 1/2 hours is the longest that the air conditioning has been off. That's obviously too long a period of time, and that's what we're trying to fix."

With the additional electricity available, the post will curtail two-thirds of family housing while providing air conditioning to the other third.

This schedule will rotate every hour until the curtailment period ends.

The monthly surcharge to Georgia Power will amount to $20,000 a month to provide an additional 1,700 megawatts of electricity, and will not jeopardize Fort Benning's special savings rate.

Facilities being taken off the exempted list include post headquarters, Infantry Hall; the Main Mall Post Exchange and the Commissary facility; Kelley Hill Barracks; and Building 75, a cuartel that houses the Directorate of Resource Management offices and transient quarters.

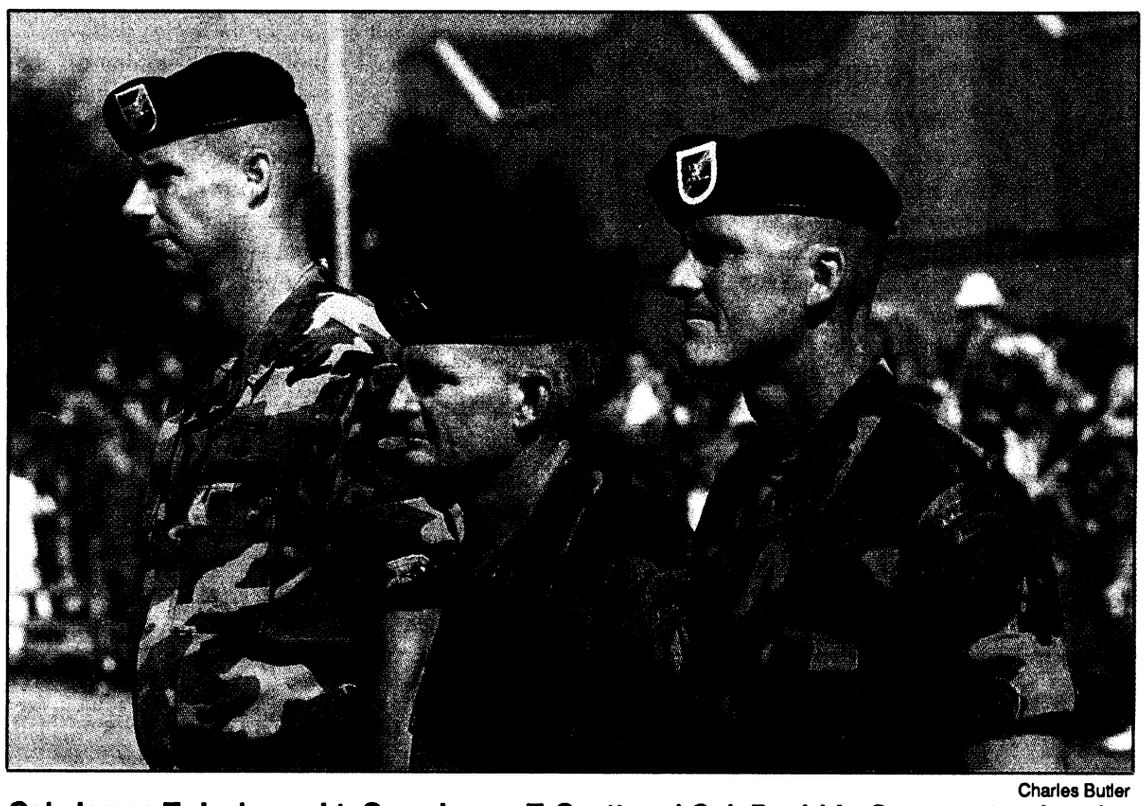
75th Regt.: Rangers get new leader

By Connie Bridges
Special to The Bayonet©

Col. David L. Grange termed his last two years as commander of the 75th Ranger Regiment "the greatest years of soldiering that I have ever experienced."

Grange said this after turning over command of the unit July 21 to Col. James T. Jackson, who comes to Fort Benning following an assignment as chief of the Master Plans Branch for the U.S. Special Operations Command at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla.

Speaking of his time with the 75th Rangers, Grange noted that he had no regrets, except one, that he didn't go into combat with them "for there are none better." He called his soldiers a "tough and dependable band of brothers."



He also thanked his mother and father, retired Lt. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., Fort Benning commanding general from June 1979 to August 1981, for the standards they gave him because he needed them here. Grange's next assignment will be operations officer for the Joint Special Operations Command.

He and his wife, Holly, have two sons, David and Matthew.

Following the change of command, Fort Benning Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, presented Holly with a humanitarian service award for her work with soldiers and their families.

Scott told the 75th Rangers, "Under Colonel Grange, you have grown. Only the best should lead the best. You have that in Colonel Jackson."

Jackson served at Fort Benning two years ago as commander of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, after which he attended the U.S. Army War College.

He said the opportunity to command is a cherished assignment, and this command is an "infantryman's dream come true" for this regiment "embodies dedicated loyal service" to our country.

New commander spending time talking to troops

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

For Col. Walter Wojdakowski, who assumed command of the 11th Infantry Regiment July 9, commanding a regiment means talking to people.

He started, he said, by getting to know the people in the diverse organization that makes up the 11th Infantry Regiment.

Wojdakowski

"I've been going around visiting the battalions, seeing the people and what their missions are and learning how they go about the day-to-day affair of training soldiers here," he said.

"Our mission is to provide quality training for all the courses run by the regiment, which includes Basic Airborne Training, Jumpmaster, Pathfinder, the Infantry Officer Basic and Advanced courses and Officer Candidate School," he said.

"But there is a second part of our mission," he said, "and that is providing a positive, healthy, safe environment and high quality of life for our soldiers and their families.

"We would like all graduates of all of our courses to leave here proud to have been a member of the

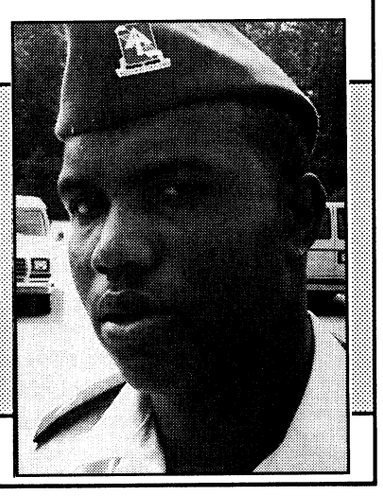
What can Fort Benning do to conserve energy?

Capt. Mary E. Wallace, 30th Adjutant General Reception Battalion — "The post is already working hard to conserve energy with the air conditioning shut-off program."

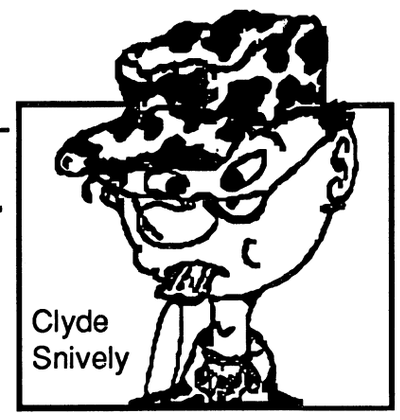
Spc. Anthony L. Warren, Adjutant General Replacement Detachment — "They should encourage people to keep lights off during the day and use natural light as much as possible."



Staff Sgt. Ronnie Jones, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment — "People need to turn off their lights and the television when they're not using them. If people were paying their own electricity bills, energy conservation would come naturally."

Shannon Fryman, family member — "At home we try not to run the water excessively — turn it off when we brush our teeth and things like that — and we keep lights turned off as much as possible."

Pfc. Tina L. Pitts, Adjutant General Replacement Detachment — "I turn off lights and the TV when I'm not using them, unplug appliances not being used, don't leave the radio on all night and don't turn on the air unless I really need to."



Sgt. Milton A. Hamilton, Battery C, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment — "They should cut down the air conditioning, turning it off and on at scheduled times in the afternoon."

If you can't stand the heat ...

There are ways to cool off; use common sense, your imagination

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

COMMENTARY

Everyone in family quarters was about to march on post headquarters last week if you believe what you see and read in the local media.

Why? Because they were hot about being hot.

Am I sympathetic to these people? Of course I am.

You have to be sympathetic to anyone who lacks the imagination to do nothing but whine to the media when the uncomfort index rises.

No one likes to be uncomfortable. But just how comfortable can we expect to be?

No one likes to swelter in a hot house all day, but who says we have to?

We do have to swelter at our work places, but not our home places.

Sure, if you have a pod of youngsters hanging from apron strings, clinging to ankles and screaming from a crib, I can imagine it would take some effort to get mobile. But it's not impossible.

How many family quarters occupants have absolutely no, zero, nil, cars? Of those cars, how many are without air conditioning? As my son Bubba asked, "Dad, isn't it a law you have to have air conditioning in your car in Georgia?"

So where is the car of the stay-at-home spouse? It's probably sitting in some unit parking lot, baking, while the soldier-spouse does his or her thing.

Why is it there and not at home so the stay-behind-spouse can, at the very least, drive around the block in an air-conditioned car until curtailment ends?

Because either the soldier is a complete boor who has no sense of family responsibility, or the stay-behind spouse is a willing prisoner of the house and can't drive, or the stay-behind spouse didn't want to get up early enough to take the soldier to work and he or she can't get home for lunch.

That's one solution. Cars with air. And who says more than one family can't drive around in one?

Heck, load up the neighbors and head out to the pool, to Flat Rock Park or to one of the malls.

There is no rule, written or unwritten, that says, "when the inside of a house is unbearably hot, the occupant must stay in it and suffer."

We've got people complaining about heat in the home, yet drive past the golf course and men and women are there, even walking.

Drive by ranges and troops are lying in the hot sun firing their weapons.

Go into town and sanitation crews are driving about picking up garbage, folks with power packs strapped to their backs are wacking weeds.

The world does not stop when it gets hot.

People just have to use common sense and make the most of the situation.

And I guess if all else fails, you can always get a bucket of ice water, stick your feet in it, open the refrigerator door and sit in front of it fanning yourself.

I never recommended that.

MESSAGES

All-volunteer Army is a 20-year success story

On the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the all-volunteer Army, we can take great pride in the quality of the soldiers that comprise our Army.

Since 1973, when the all-volunteer force was implemented, nearly 4 million young Americans have voluntarily joined the uniformed ranks of the total Army — the active Army, the National Guard and the Army Reserve.

Nearly one-third of these volunteers still wear the Army uniform today.

As we transitioned from the draft to voluntary service, many doubted whether the Army could enlist enough young men and women to serve without incurring exorbitant costs and without compromising the quality and effectiveness of the fighting force.

After 20 years of enormous effort on the part of many soldiers, after winning the Cold War, after the success of operations like Urgent Fury, Just Cause, Desert Storm and many others, we can point with pride to the success the volunteer Army.

As we celebrate the 20th anniversary of the all-volunteer Army, I want to express my appreciation for the selfless service the Americans who volunteer to shoulder the responsibility and bear the burdens for defending our nation.

My thanks to the young Americans who have joined us and to the U.S. Army Recruiting Command, which deserves much credit for making the all-volunteer Army "experiment" a resounding success.

Quality people are not in the Army — they are the Army.

I am confident that the soldiers of the all-volunteer Army will continue to serve the American people with courage and distinction far into the future.

Gen. Gordon R. Sullivan
Army chief of staff

Commanders must prevent, be accountable for heat injuries

This is the hottest summer in history at Fort Benning.

Commanders at every level must be personally involved in preventing heat injuries.

All of us are accountable to our soldiers and must accept full responsibility.

In addition to normal preventive measures, commanders must ensure that:

- Common sense has priority over programs of instruction.
- Commanders have full authority to modify training and, if necessary, cancel.
- There is nothing magic about graduation dates or cycle completions. Protecting soldiers comes first.

I am prepared to deal with late graduations, etc., when and if necessary.

"Soldiers first — always."

I am writing to ask for the assistance of your readers in collecting information for my doctorate thesis in military and strategic studies.

The topic is a comparison of lifestyles and social issues affecting the U.S., Canadian and European militaries.

Anyone who is willing to help is asked to contact me. All ranks and services are welcome.

Of particular interest are those members who possess special military qualifications (such as rangers, SEALS —(Sea/Air/Land special operations warriors, Special Forces personnel.)

All contacts will be acknowledged and participants will be compensated for their time.

Capt. Shella Bashan
Brantford, Ontario

Why must our soldiers always bear life's discomforts?

In response to the current agreement between Fort Benning and Georgia Power, several disturbing facts have surfaced.

Fort Benning families have been made to suffer the brunt of the blistering heat.

These are families of soldiers who have put their lives on the line in Grenada, Panama, and yes, the sweltering heat of the Saudi Arabian desert during Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

When called upon, Fort Benning soldiers immediately deploy to all parts of the world to protect our country; however, when the heat becomes too much to bear, the very same people are forced to have their air conditioning cut off by the people they protect.

Why are the soldiers always forced to bear the discomforts of life? Haven't they suffered enough?

Soldiers pay taxes just like any other red-blooded American, so why don't they get to enjoy the comforts of life like any other tax payer?

Soldiers are waiting to see if their leaders will set the example by putting an end to the suffering and return the true "Follow Me" spirit into the soldiers hearts and souls.

Name withheld by request

Turning off air conditioning is a problem when it's 100°

I would like to address this letter to the people responsible for the energy policy.

There is a problem with turning off the air conditioning when it is 100 degrees outside.

Every day last week (Monday through Friday) the air conditioning was turned off. Again this week, the air is off usually for six hours each day.

There have been several days in which the air conditioning was not (turned on again) until after 9 p.m.

The heat index is more than 100, and the advice of all professional health-care providers is to be in a cool place. It is extremely difficult to work or even function in this environment.

There is something fundamentally wrong with depriving residents and employees of Fort Benning of the ability to exist comfortably.

It is the equivalent of turning off the heat to residents of northern states during the middle of winter.

At least most of the employees of Fort Benning can go home to a cool place.

We are not allowed this in our government quarters.

Of what value is air conditioning if you can't use it? Is this the Army's (idea of) community of excellence?

One more question, is this "taking care of soldiers?"

P.S. Please don't respond to this letter by telling me how much money this policy saves the Army. My primary concern is my family's health and welfare. Unfortunately I have no control over this particular situation.

Mary Jane Glebe
Fort Benning

Editor's note: The commanding general is concerned about the health and comfort of the people who live and work on post.

This is the reason a new policy, diverting energy from previously exempted buildings to family housing was implemented this week.

Post officials continue to believe the curtailment policy is a good policy, noting that since the post entered into its contract with Georgia Power six years ago the number of hours needed for curtailment, prior to this summer, averaged about 20 hours a year.

To cancel the contract at this time would cost Fort Benning an additional $1 million for electricity next year.

This translates into fewer funds for upkeep of facilities and more civilian positions being abolished.

The result is lost training time for soldiers and longer lines for all. In other words, this would result in an overall reduction in the quality of life at Fort Benning.

Program available for infants, toddlers from birth to 36 months

By Deana Kussman
Martin Army Community Hospital

Martin Army Community Hospital will be hosting an open house for the Early Intervention Program Tuesday in Building 392 behind the National Infantry Museum from 1 to 4 p.m.

"This new program is an exciting addition to the services we offer military families," said Col. Michael J. Kussman, hospital commander. "We hope the Fort Benning community will take advantage of this new resource and attend the open house."

The Early Intervention Program is a family-centered program that provides services for developmentally delayed infants and toddlers from birth to 36 months.

Eligible children must have a diagnosed condition, such as Down Syndrome, cerebral palsy, spina bifida and chromosomal disorders or be developmentally delayed in one or more of five areas.

They include walking, talking, thinking, interacting or fine motor skills.

The program is available to children who are eligible for military medical care and education from the Department of Defense in accordance with the Individuals with Disabilities Act.

The program is comprised of a network of trained providers in a community-based setting.

Available services include speech and language therapy, language stimulation, occupational therapy, early childhood special education and in-home infant stimulation.

Currently, the staff is comprised of a program coordinator, an early childhood special educator, a speech pathologist, an occupational therapist and a pediatrician.

Therapy is conducted in the family's home and in the clinic.

Children who continue to need services after the third birthday are referred to the Fort Benning School System.

According to Mindy Butler, program coordinator, each eligible child will receive a transdisciplinary assessment and an individualized family service plan.

The child's family will be assigned a service coordinator to assist with accessing necessary services and to ensure seamless transitions to other programs or posts, said Butler.

Following an interview with the family, a play-based assessment is scheduled to determine the child's developmental levels and needs. The family prioritizes goals they have for their child, which are then incorporated into the individualized family service plan.

Military children residing off-post who require EIP service will be referred to the Columbus Early Intervention Program for assessment, but they may receive some of their service at Fort Benning, officials said. This may include such services as speech and occupational therapy.

Military retirees

Defense consolidates military retired pay

American Forces Information Service

A new pay system for military retirees and individuals who receive annuities promises better service for customers, said Defense Finance and Accounting Service officials.

The Defense Retiree and Annuitant Pay System now being phased in should be completed by December 1994. This new system, said finance officials, replaces the eight current retiree and annuitant pay systems with one central, standard plan.

Under the program, the Cleveland finance center takes over all retiree pay accounts. The Denver center will handle all annuities, including survivor benefit payments.

Finance officials said the system switchover should not cause any problems or interrupt anyone's pay. Direct deposit information, including the location of the individual's financial institution, will be automatically forwarded to either Cleveland or Denver. Payment will continue to be made on the first business day of each month as required by law.

The proposed dates for retiree changeover are Air Force, September; Marine Corps, December; and Army, December 1994. Annuitant dates are Marine Corps in December with the Army, December 1994. The Navy annuitants' pay program recently switched over to the Colorado center.

Look for better, faster customer service when the pay system is in place, said finance officials. Just a few of the program's advantages are improved service with toll-free telephone numbers, automatic call distribution systems and the availability of customer service at some military installations. Another plus finance officials see is expanded data communications support at field level. Officials said they will be able to perform the same amount of work with about 175 fewer employees.

Currently, each military service handles its own retiree and annuity pay programs at its own finance center, said finance officials. The Army pays Army retirees from its Indianapolis center. The Navy pays Navy retirees from Cleveland, and the Air Force pays its retirees from the Denver center.

Until the Defense Finance and Accounting Service notifies you that your pay account has been switched, continue to write or call the finance center that currently handles your account.

When your retired pay changes to the Cleveland center and you have problems or questions, call (800) 321-1080 or (216) 522-5534. Or write to: DFAS, Cleveland Center Directorate for Retired Pay, Anthony J. Celebreeze Federal Building, 1240 E. Ninth St., Cleveland, Ohio 44199.

Individuals with pay problems or questions who receive annuities should call (800) 435-3396 or (303) 676-6039, 676-6149 or 676-6646. Or write to: DFAS Denver Center, DFAS-DE/RB, 6760 E. Irvington Place, Denver, Colo. 80279-6000.

11th REGIMENT: Wojdakowski

regiment," Wojdakowski said.

The way to make them proud is to make sure they are treated with respect when they are part of the unit and to ensure that they are properly supported, he said.

To make sure that support aspect of the mission gets accomplished, Wojdakowski has also been talking to people in the community.

"I have been learning what kind of relationships they have with the regiment, what they do for the regiment and what the regiment does for them," he said.

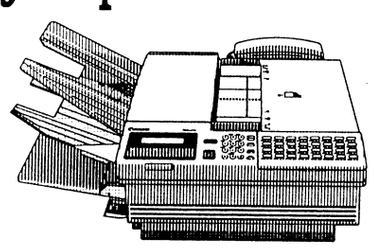
"In this fiscal year, close to 30,000 soldiers will train with the 11th regiment," Wojdakowski said. "This has a big impact on the overall community so it's very important that our relationship be a good one."

As far as the training itself, Wojdakowski said that one thing he has learned from his experience in the Army is that disciplined units and disciplined soldiers are the most successful.

"By disciplined I mean soldiers who will do what is right whether someone is watching them or not," Wojdakowski said. "So as I go around, what I'm talking to people about is training soldiers to have discipline.

"Our newest capstone Field Manual 100-5, 'Operations,' says good commanders and good units win, but great commanders and great units win at minimum cost.

"So the goal," Wojdakowski said, "is to put out great graduates from all of our courses and to ensure all permanent party soldiers in the regiment epitomize the discipline necessary."



For the regiment's training mission to be successful, he said, every course must produce confident and competent graduates who go out and become great leaders and trainers.

"In the three weeks I have been in command, I have been to five graduations of various courses and I always take the time to talk to the families, friends and spouses attending them," Wojdakowski said.

"Each of the people I have talked to has indicated that their loved one felt special for having been part of training, part of the regiment and part of Fort Benning. That's one measure of our success. The goal will be to maintain, and even enhance, this special relationship," he said.

Researchers wrestle with Gulf vets' syndrome

Mystery illness has medical community baffled

By Mark S. Kallnoski
Army News Service

WASHINGTON — The top officer at the Army's largest medical facility has been a media focal point in recent days, as the Army tries to identify the cause of the "mystery illnesses" that reportedly plague hundreds of Gulf War veterans.

At a recent Pentagon press conference, Maj. Gen. Ronald R. Blanck explained ongoing efforts by the Army's medical community to isolate the chemical, substance or organism that causes symptoms experienced by Gulf vets.

"The illness many veterans are complaining of is characterized by fatigue, weakness, joint and muscle aches and pains, loss of hair, skin rashes, sore gums and those kinds of conditions," he said.

No common source of exposure to infectious disease, microwave radiation, petrochemicals, environmental hazards or toxic materials has yet been linked to the syndrome.

Blanck said the first step to finding the cause of the illness was to set up a reporting system for all the services and the Veteran's Administration to track patients who complain of the syndrome and to ensure that appropriate medical evaluations and treatments are made.

"The Army's response to health issues prior to, during, and after the Persian Gulf War was — and continues to be — aggressive, open and proactive," Blanck said recently in his testimony before a House Veterans Affairs subcommittee.

He dismissed the administering of anthrax and botulism vaccines, and pyridostigmine bromide (a nerve agent pretreatment), to service members as a cause of the illnesses.

"Neither the vaccines nor the pretreatment are experimental. They are well known and have been in use for many years," Blanck said.

Many of the people who are ill did not receive the medications. However, the Army is focusing on two issues that merit special study: exposure of soldiers to the smoke generated by Kuwaiti oil fires, and exposure to depleted-uranium dust and fragments.

Studies conducted by allied services on the effects of the oil-fire smoke were labeled inconclusive, but studies are ongoing as the U.S. Army Environmental Hygiene Agency conducts a long-term risk assessment.

The USAEHA assessment consists of an environmental monitoring effort, an industrial hygiene sampling study and biologic surveillance.

According to Blanck, "The second specific health issue is related to ... exposures to depleted-uranium dusts or particles" — a low-level radioactive substance used in tank armor and as penetrators in munitions because of its density.

The depleted-uranium dusts can be inhaled or ingested when a penetrator strikes a hard target or burns in a fire. The Army fired about 24 tons of the material during the course of the war in the form of 105- and 120-millimeter anti-tank rounds.

Heavily armored vehicles can cause the penetrator to completely consume itself in the destruction of the target, leaving a heavy metal dust on exposed surfaces.

Officials say the radiological danger from depleted uranium is not significant. But when ingested, it can be chemically toxic like other heavy metals, such as lead or cadmium.

The Army has identified soldiers having the greatest potential exposure, and those with confirmed exposure, to depleted uranium.

"Half of those soldiers have undergone medical evaluation at the Boston VA Medical Center; and the results of those examinations have shown no effects of uranium toxicity, and no uranium residues or byproducts were detected," Blanck said. The entire group will be retested later this year using an even more sensitive technique at USAEHA.

Regarding treatment of the problem, Blanck said the "success ratio to date is variable. A number of people have gotten better, or even recovered. In other cases, it has remained stable. In some others, it's been a decline."

The ongoing studies "will be integrated to obtain a complete picture of the environmental situation in the Persian Gulf region and the resultant health consequences to DoD personnel," he said.

Another major tracking study, being run by the U.S. Army and Joint Services Environmental Support Group Desert Storm Task Force, will identify each service member who served in the Gulf region and track the daily movement of all U.S. units in the theater of operations. The study is expected to be completed by June 1995.

All veterans of the Persian Gulf conflict will continue to be evaluated on a case-by-case basis Blanck said.

POST BRIEFS

Temp. office hours set for trial defense office

Because of the Regional Defense Counsel's Conference, the Trial Defense Office located in Building 65 will be closed Monday through Wednesday. Normal operating hours will resume Thursday.

In case of emergency, contact the Senior Defense Counsel at 545-2175 or 545-2176.

Stress class Sept. 16

The Civilian Counseling Service of the Directorate of Community Activities is sponsoring a seminar, "Understanding and Reducing Stress," Sept. 16 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The seminar will be at the Youth Activities Center, Building 1056.

There is no cost for this training.

The agenda is as follows:

8:30 to 9:30 a.m. — "Stress in our Daily Lives," Lt. Col. Roberta Dyer, chief of Community Health Nursing.

9:45 to 10:30 a.m. — "Humor and Stress," Dr. Ron King, executive director, the Pastoral Institute.

10:30 to 11:15 a.m. — "Reducing Family Stress," Dr. Melton Strozier, The Medical Center.

The seminar is open to civilian employees, supervisors, union stewards, counselors, military personnel, family members, Equal Employment Opportunity counselors and other interested personnel.

To attend, contact your unit or activity training coordinator. Nominations must be made by Sept. 13.

Call 545-5580 or 545-5656 for more information.

Headquarters, Department of Army is recruiting qualified applications for warrant officer military occupational specialty 670A (biomedical equipment repair).

The closing date for accepting applications at the U.S. Army Health Professional Support Agency is Oct. 29. Cutoff date for applications to arrive at Adjutant General, Personnel Operations Division is Oct. 19 to allow sufficient time for processing.

All applicants are required to have completed at least one of the following courses or have equivalent training: advanced medical equipment maintenance, biomedical electronic equipment maintenance, biomedical X-ray equipment maintenance, and biomedical equipment specialist advanced.

For more information, call Sina Evans or Marie Lee at 545-3341 or 545-4702.

Reminder: Stop DDP before Saturday

Saturday is the last day to disenroll in the Delta Dependents Dental Plan. Soldiers were automatically enrolled in the expanded Delta Dependents Dental Plan April 1 and given 120 days to disenroll if they did not desire to participate.

Failure to disenroll by Saturday or use of the program between April 1 and Saturday obligates soldiers to participate in the program for two years.

Soldiers not automatically enrolled may voluntarily enroll if they are eligible to re-enlist and have the intent to remain on active duty 24 months or more.

For more information, contact your personnel administration center.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Aug. 8.

If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-6, C-1, C-2, C-3, D-11, D-17, E-2, E-4, E-5, K-8, K-9, K-18, M-2, M-6, M-8, O-1, O-3, O-5, O-6, O-7, O-14, Q-2, S-1, T-5 and T-6.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas.

People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

Stress classes available for civilians

The Directorate of Civilian Personnel will conduct stress classes for civilians affected by the reduction in force.

The classes will be Aug. 31 and Sept. 2 from 9 to 11 a.m. in Infantry Hall. Those employees who have received separation letters should attend the seminar Aug. 31.

Employees who are being displaced (bumped or retreating to other positions) should attend the Sept. 2 seminar.

Nominations may be made by calling the Training and Development Division, DCP, at 545-5580 or 545-5656 by Tuesday. Coordination should be made through activity training coordinators.

Band wants members

The Infantry Band is looking for qualified soldiers to become band members.

The band is at 75 percent strength and is in need of soldiers who are proficient at playing the following instruments: trumpet, saxophone, trombone, baritone, tuba and the snare drum.

Anyone interested should call the Infantry Band for an appointment to audition. Soldiers who wish to audition must bring a letter of permission from their commander to audition.

Included in the letter should be a statement of release from present assignment if accepted by the band.

70th wants soldiers

The 70th Division (Training), a Reserve unit with units throughout Indiana and southeastern Michigan, has drill sergeant and instructor vacancies available.

Preference will be given to troops who are qualified as 11B, 11C, 11H or 11M with active duty experience.

However, those who agree to become military occupational specialty qualified will be considered.

For more information, call the 70th Division's Strength Management Office at (313) 458-6425.

DoD implements new homosexual policy

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Les Aspin has directed the Department of Defense to implement President Bill Clinton's new policy on homosexual conduct in the military following the commander-in-chief's announcement at the National Defense University at Fort McNair July 19.

In a memo to the Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman and service secretaries, Aspin relayed Clinton's policy in which homosexual conduct, not sexual orientation, would be the litmus test for entrance into, or continued service in, the U.S. armed forces.

The interim policy on homosexuality in the services established Feb. 3 will remain in effect until Oct. 1, by which time Aspin directed the service secretaries and other responsible officials to "take such actions as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this directive."

In Aspin's introductory speech, he said that "seasoned military judgment" had a vital role in formulating the policy that Clinton described as "a sensible balance between the rights of the individual and the needs of our military ...."

Though Clinton said the policy "is not a perfect solution," it is "a major step forward," and is "an honorable compromise that advances the cause of people who are called to serve our country."

In summary, military service applicants will no longer be asked or required to reveal their sexual orientation, but they will be informed of the conduct proscribed for members of the armed forces. Sexual orientation will not be a bar to service, unless manifested by homosexual conduct.

The military will discharge members who engage in homosexual conduct, defined as a homosexual act, make a statement that they are homosexual or bisexual; or marry or attempt to marry someone of the same gender. No investigations or inquiries will be conducted solely to determine a service member's sexual orientation.

Commanders will initiate inquiries or investigations when there is credible information that a basis for discharge or disciplinary action exists.

Sexual orientation, absent credible information that a crime has been committed, will not be the subject of a criminal investigation.

An allegation or statement by another that a service member is a homosexual, alone, is not grounds for either a criminal investigation or a commander's inquiry.

Bodily contact between service members of the same sex that a reasonable person would understand to demonstrate a propensity or intent to engage in homosexual acts (such as hand-holding or kissing) will be sufficient to initiate separation from service.

However, activities such as association with known homosexuals, presence at a gay bar, possessing or reading homosexual publications, or marching in a gay rights rally in civilian attire will not, in and of themselves, constitute credible information that would provide a basis for initiating and investigation or serve as the basis for an administrative discharge under the new policy.

The listing by a service member of someone of the same gender as the person to be contacted in case of an emergency, as an insurance beneficiary or in a similar context, does not provide a basis for separation or further investigation.

Also, speech within the context of clergy-penitent, husband-wife or attorney-client communications remains privileged.

No distinction will be made between off-base and on-base conduct. From the time a member joins the service until discharge, the service member's duty and commitment to the unit is a 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week obligation.

Military members are required to comply with both the Uniform Code of Military Justice, which is a federal law, and military regulations at all times and in all places. Unacceptable conduct, homosexual or heterosexual, is not excused because the service member is not "at work."

Neither investigations nor inquiries will be conducted solely to determine an individual's sexual orientation. Commanders can initiate investigations into alleged homosexual conduct when there is credible information of homosexual acts, prohibited statements or homosexual marriage.

Commanders will exercise sound discretion regarding when credible information exists, and will evaluate the information's source and all attendant circumstances to assess whether the information supports a reasonable belief that a service members has engaged in proscribed homosexual conduct.

Commanders, not investigators, determine when sufficient credible information exists to justify a detail of investigative resources to look into allegations.

Credible information of homosexual conduct exists when the information, considered in light of its source and all attendant circumstances, supports a reasonable belief that a service member has engaged in such conduct. It requires a determination based on articulable facts, not just a belief or suspicion. Questions pertaining to an individual's sexual orientation are not asked on personnel security questionnaires. An individual's sexual conduct, whether homosexual or heterosexual, is a legitimate security concern only if it could make an individual susceptible to exploitation or coercion, or indicate a lack of trustworthiness, reliability, or good judgment that is required of anyone with access to classified information.

As long as service members continue to be separated from military service for engaging in homosexual conduct, credible information of such behavior can be a basis for extortion.

Although the military cannot eliminate the potential for the victimization of homosexuals through blackmail, the policy reduces the risk to homosexuals by making certain categories of information largely immaterial to the military's initiation of investigations.

Only credible information that a service member engaged in homosexual conduct will form the basis for initiating an inquiry or investigation of a service member; suspicion of an individual's sexual orientation is not a basis, by itself, for official inquiry or action.

Extortion is a criminal offense, under both the UCMJ and U.S. Code, and offenders will be prosecuted. A service member convicted of extortion risks dishonorable discharge and up to three years confinement. Civilians found guilty of blackmail under the U.S. Code may be subject to a $2,000 fine and one-year imprisonment.

The risk of blackmail will be addressed by educating all service members on the policy and by emphasizing the significant criminal sanctions facing convicted extortionists.

A mere allegation or statement by another that a service member is a homosexual is not grounds for official action. Commanders will not take official action against members based on rumor, suspicion or capricious allegations.

However, if a third party provides credible information that a member has committed a crime or act that warrants discharge (for example engages in homosexual conduct), the commander may, based on the totality of the circumstances, conduct an investigation or inquiry, and take nonjudicial or administrative action or recommend judicial action, as appropriate.

Commanders are responsible for initiating an investigation when credible information exists that a crime or basis for discharge has been committed. The commander examines the information and decides whether an investigation by the service investigative agency or a commander inquiry is warranted, or if not action should be taken.

Commanders are responsible for maintaining good order and discipline. All service members will be treated with dignity and respect. Hostile treatment or violence against a service member based on a perception of his or her sexual orientation will not be tolerated.

Homosexual policy at a glance

✓ Sexual orientation will not be a bar to service, unless manifested by homosexual conduct.

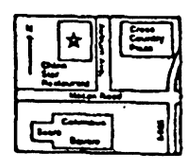
✓ The military will discharge members who engage in homosexual conduct, defined as a homosexual act, make a statement that they are homosexual or bisexual; or marry or attempt to marry someone of the same gender.

✓ No investigations or inquiries will be conducted solely to determine a service member's sexual orientation.

✓ Commanders will initiate inquiries or investigations when there is credible information that a basis for discharge or disciplinary action exists.

✓ Sexual orientation, absent credible information that a crime has been committed, will not be the subject of a criminal investigation.

✓ An allegation or statement by another that a service member is a homosexual, alone, is not grounds for either a criminal investigation or a commander's inquiry.



✓ Bodily contact between service members of the same sex that a reasonable person would understand to demonstrate a propensity or intent to engage in homosexual acts (such as hand-holding or kissing) will be sufficient to initiate separation from service.

✓ However, activities such as association with known homosexuals, presence at a gay bar, possessing or reading homosexual publications, or marching in a gay rights rally in civilian attire will not, in and of themselves, constitute credible information that would provide a basis for initiating and investigation or serve as the basis for an administrative discharge under the new policy.

Football opener

Columbus Stars lose 9-6 to Atlanta Colts

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Columbus Stars opened their 1993 football season Saturday night at Memorial Stadium on a down note. The Atlanta Colts kicked their way to a 9-6 win on the foot of kicker Ely Dorsey.

With the game tied at 6-6 and time running out in the fourth quarter, the Colts moved the ball down to the Stars' 27-yard line on two big plays, one from Mark Truitt who recovered a Colt fumble for a first down to keep the drive alive and running back Jerome Johnson on a catch-and-run play that netted 19 yards and another first down for the Colts at the Stars 27-yard line.

The Colts stalled on the Stars' 22-yard line and Dorsey came on to try a 35-yard field goal. The Stars' defense broke through the line and blocked the kick, only to have Dorsey snatch the ball off the ground and head around left end. Dorsey was stopped at the eight-yard line where the Colts set up first and goal with under six minutes left in the game.

Three plays later, the Colts had not moved any closer to the Stars' end zone and out came Dorsey once again, this time to try a 21-yarder.

The kick was good, but a penalty on the Colts for having 12 men on the field nullified the kick and moved the Colts back 15 yards.

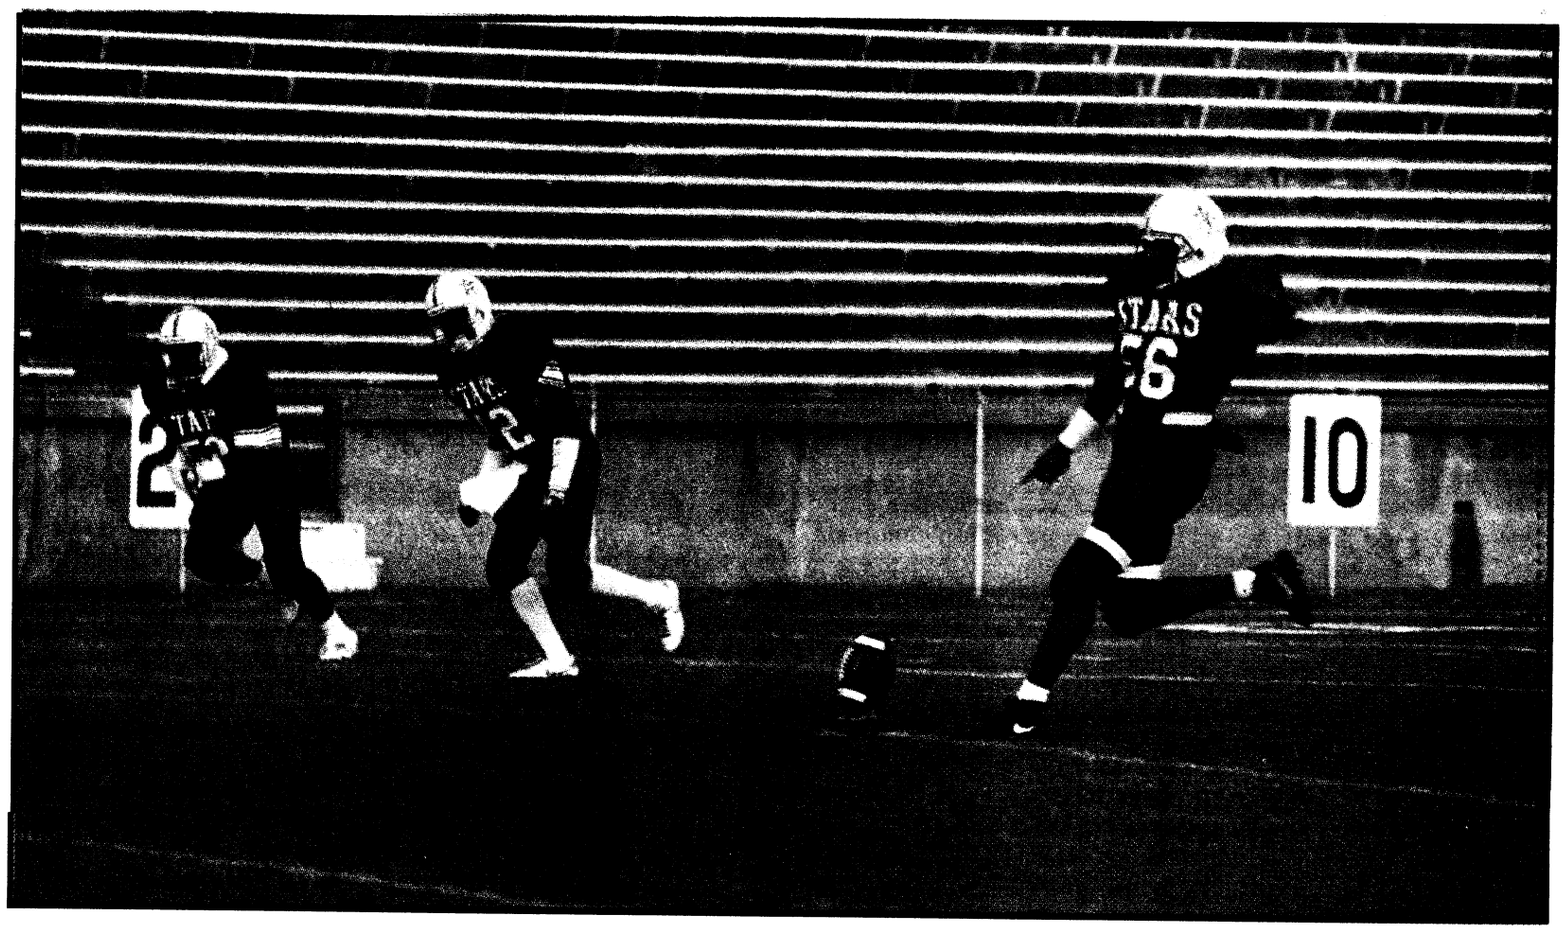
The Stars would have two more shots at either tying the game or winning it outright, but on both possessions the Stars failed to move the ball any closer than the Colt 46.

The Stars missed a golden opportunity to score when wide receiver Jeff Seidel was stopped at the Colt goal line on a fourth down and goal pass play from Mitchell in the first quarter.



Moments later the Stars opened the scoring when Colt fullback Henry McLemoren fumbled the ball in the Stars' end zone and cornerback Calvin Adams recovered for the Stars for 6-0 lead with three minutes and 48 seconds left in the first quarter.

The Stars returned the favor midway through the third quarter when quarterback Eddie Mitchell was hit at the Stars' 10-yard line and fumbled the ball back toward his own end zone. Colt lineman Dante Ferguson pounced on the ball in the end zone to tie the game at 6-6.

From that point on, the Stars couldn't mount any offensive threat while the defense held the Colts in check until the final moments of the fourth quarter and Dorsey's field goal to win the game.

"We had some good drives in the first quarter," said offensive coach Mike Dunbar. "We didn't adjust well in the next three quarters to what the defense was changing. We had some good plays and a lot of near misses.

"For a first game, its not too bad. The important thing is where we go from here and how we build on what we did this week."

Terry K.Ray/Special to The Bayonet

Columbus Stars kicker Terrance Perry gets the season under way.

Head coach Tom Staton agreed with Dunbar saying the team was too anxious to put points on the board. "There is a lot of talent on this team for us not to score," said Staton. "Give credit to the Colt defense — they did a good job of stopping what we wanted to do. They've been in this league for 13 years — we're in our fourth. Things will get better."

The Colts outgained the Stars' 240 yards total offense to the Stars' 216 yards. On defense, the Stars were led by linebacker Connie Burnham with 10 tackles and five assists. The Colts' outstanding defensive player was defensive back Mark Campbell with five tackles and two assists.

The Stars' next game will be Saturday at Memorial Stadium against the Outlaws of College Park beginning at 8 p.m.

Assassins nip Kats as 69th rounds up season

Competition gets tougher as teams move on to playoffs

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The post softball playoffs are just around the corner. Teams are wrapping up regular season games and some units are holding their own playoffs to determine who will represent them at the post tournament.

One playoff game was played Monday night at Essebagger Field 2 in between the raindrops and lighting bolts that canceled three other games.

The Assassins of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) went head to head with the Killer Kats of Co. B., 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div. and nipped the Kats in seven innings 9-8.

The Kats scratched out a 6-0 lead in the first inning on a three-run dinger by left fielder Clyde Williams. A bases-loaded walk to catcher Howard Baker plated another run.

Fernando Belmaris drew a free pass to first base scoring the fifth run of the inning. Four balls to shortstop Joe Sapanza pushed the lead to 6-0. Third baseman Eric Fore ended the inning on a ground out to short.

With two outs and runners at the corners, designated hitter Don Sanks smacked a single to right scoring one run. Reginald Curry attempted to go to third from first but was thrown out by right fielder Pablo DeJesus to end the inning.

The Assassins cut the lead in half at 6-3, with two more runs in the bottom of the second inning.

Third baseman Daniel Reeger led off the inning with a single to left center. Second baseman Michael Butler reached base on a throwing error on Fore at third, Reeger came around to score from first and Butler moved to third. Shortstop Brian LaRoche drove in Butler with a ground ball out to second, for 6-3 deficit.

A single run in the bottom half of the third inning for the Assassins trimmed the Kat lead to 6-4. Pitcher Hugh Hardin opened the frame with a single to left.

Curry lined a single to center, Hardin moved to third and Curry sneaked into second on the throw to third. Left fielder Daniel Dailey flied to left to score Hardin from third Curry was again thrown out at third trying to move up.

In the bottom of the fourth inning, the Assassins made it a one-run ball game at 6-5. With runners at first and third and two out, left center fielder Robert Purvis lined a single to left to score the runner from third. Catcher Samuel Blunt ended the scoring threat for the Assassins on a grounder to the pitcher James Manning.

In the top of the fifth inning, the Kats got back into the scoring column with a run on a single by Manning, a walk to to first baseman Jeffrey Bernosily and a fielder's choice from second baseman Eric Eichner to score Manning.

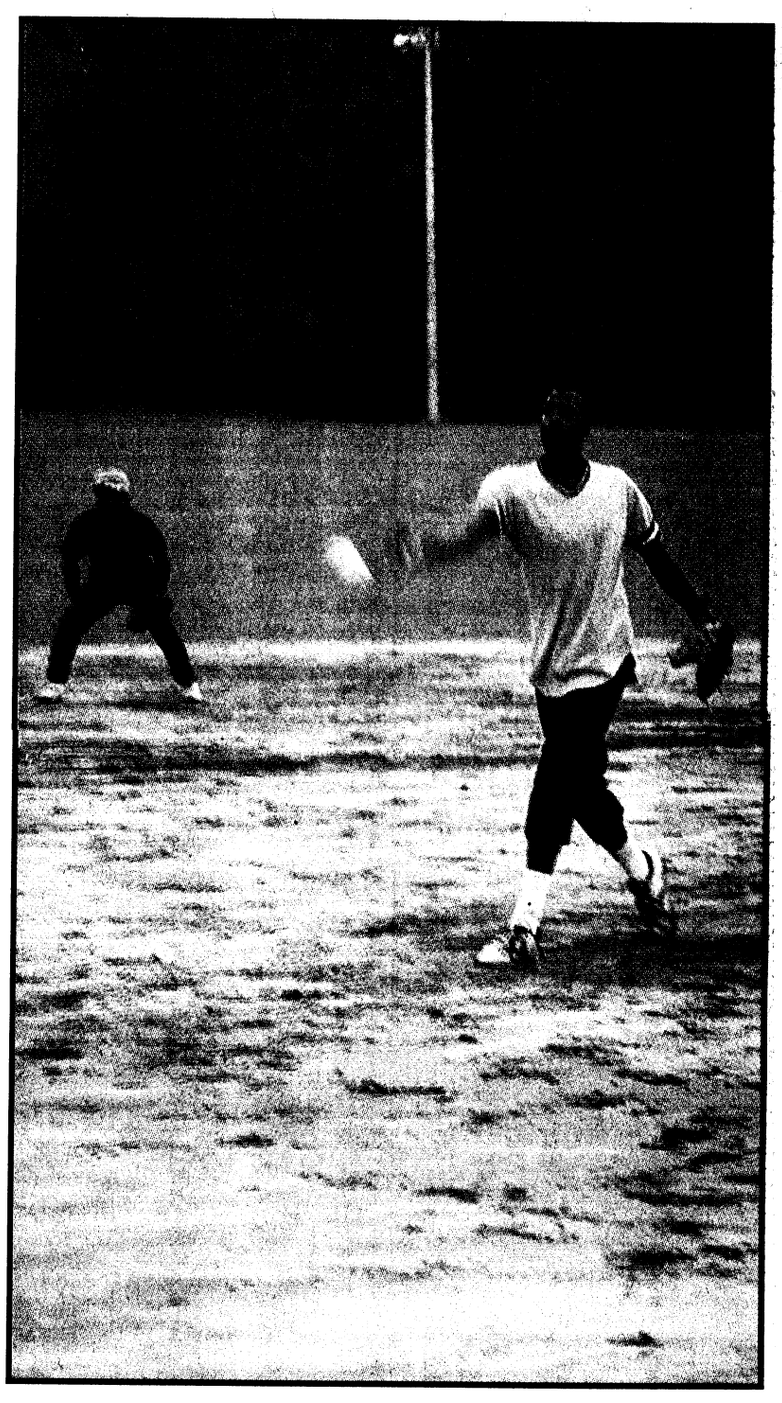
With the one hour time limit fast approaching, the Assassins needed to score at least two runs to tie the game or three to win. They got two. An infield single from Sanks brought the tying run to the plate in the form of Reeger. Reeger promptly slammed a two-run shot to the gap in left center to tie the game 7-7.

The Assassins couldn't plate the winning run in the sixth and because of darkness; a hurry-up rule was put into effect. In the seventh inning, each team would be allowed to put the person who made the last out from the last inning at second base, giving each team a scoring opportunity.

The Kats took advantage in their half of the seventh, scoring one run to go up 8-7 on a double from DeJesus. That would be all the scoring they would get.

In the bottom of the seventh, the Assassins had to work a little harder to get the tying run across. A single from Blunt moved the runner from second and put the winning run at first. Hardin grounded a single off the glove of Eichner at second scoring the run from third.

With the winning run at second in the form of Blunt, Curry sliced a single to right to plate the run and give the Assassins a miraculous come-from-behind 9-8 win.



The Assassins moved on to play the Headhunters of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div. Tuesday evening for the battalion title.

The Assassins came away with an 11-10 victory to become battalion champions and earned the right to move up to the brigade playoffs.

FOR THE RECORD

In the July 23 issue of The Bayonet, it was reported that 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment had taken first place in the Infantry Training Brigade softball league.

The correct standings for the top three places should have been: first, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment; second, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment; and third, 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment.

Bass destiny to get caught

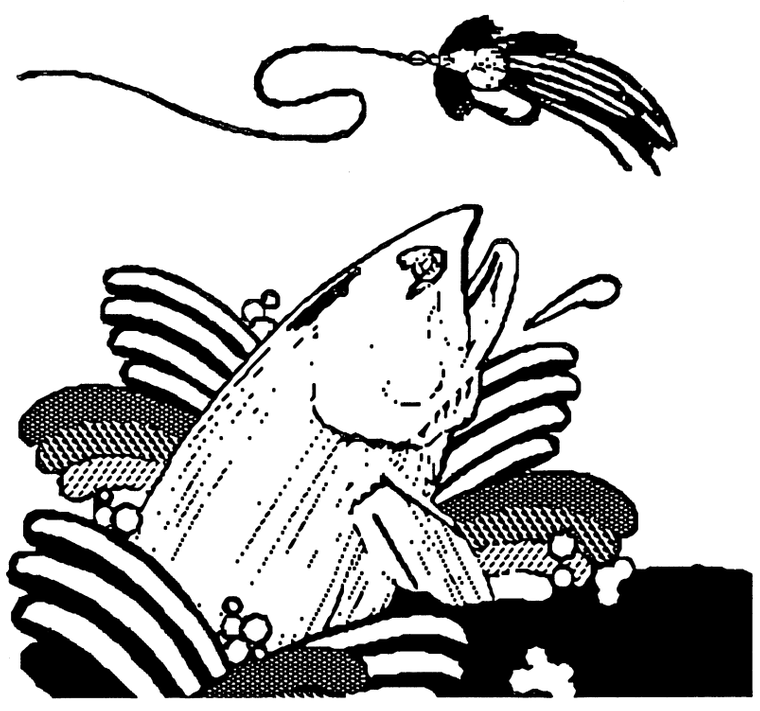
By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

Some bass, it seems, are destined to be caught, no matter how hard they try to escape.

At least that's what angler Randy Dearman thought after reeling in a 2-pound largemouth during a national bass tournament in South Carolina's Lake Murray recently.

"The fish hit right beside a bush," says Dearman, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and long-time guide on Lake Livingston in Texas, "and as I set the hook, my line broke right above the reel.

"I tried to grab the line as the bass pulled it through the rod guides, but I missed it. Then I missed it again as it floated across the water as the bass swam away."



By all rights, that fish should have been on its way to freedom then, but Dearman yelled to his partner to try to snag the line, which by now had disappeared below the surface, with a lure.

Amazingly, the line was snagged on the second cast, but again, Dearman missed grabbing it and the line disappeared into the water once more.

Somehow the line was snagged again with another lucky cast, and this time Dearman caught it. Carefully he started pulling in the bass, wrapping line around his hand a few inches at a time.

"I brought him on board," laughs the Johnson pro, "and it was a keeper weighing about two pounds. It went into the live well as part of my limit that day.

"Tournament rules state only that bass must be caught by rod and reel in a 'sporting manner,' and I think my method was about as sporting as it could be.

"That bass had every opportunity possible to escape, but it just seemed destined to be caught that day."

"When you're fishing the thick grassbeds down in Florida's Lake Okeechobee, bass occasionally land in the boat as they try to jump out of the way," says fellow Johnson Outboards Pro Staffer Ron Shuffield.

"I've had 2- and 3-pounders jump into the boat with me, and a friend once had a bass weighing more than 9 pounds jump into the boat with him as he eased through the grass. I don't know who was more surprised, the bass or my friend."

In falling water fish everything

By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

The popular adage "Points point out bass in falling water" may be an accurate description of where to look for fish, but it doesn't say anything about catching them.

If anything, continually falling water makes bass extremely finicky and difficult to catch, regardless of where they locate.

"Falling water always makes bass fishing more difficult," says professional angler Denny Brauer, "because it not only moves bass from day to day, it also seems to make them more spooky and hesitant to bite.

"The fish move tighter and tighter to cover as long as that cover remains under water, but patterns are more difficult to establish because the bass won't all be attracted to the same type of cover.

"That means you have to fish everything you see."

That's the technique Brauer had to use recently in winning the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society Virginia Invitational at Buggs Island Lake, in which he spent three tournament days pitching a plastic lizard into shoreline cover to catch 15 bass weighing 48 pounds, 4 ounces.

"During the six continuous days of practice and competition, the water level dropped at least three feet," explains Brauer.

"By the final day, cover I'd fished in practice was dry on the bank."

Under these conditions, he says, the bass naturally move further and further out from the shoreline, and they appear to abandon the very backs of creeks entirely.

The primary places to look for them are at the ends of points, and closer to the mouths of the tributary creeks.

"Because bass in falling water use any cover available, you have to fish everything," says the pro, "and that takes a lot of time. You can't key on a certain type of tree, such as willows or cedars, because bass will be holding on to anything.

"What I did in the tournament, and this has helped me before, was key on steeper shorelines where the bass did not have to move as far. On a very gradual bank, falling water forces fish to move further, and the further they move, the more cover options they usually have.

"On a steeper bank, the bass don't have to move as far to reach safety, so they usually pick some of the first cover available."

Because bass under these conditions are usually spooky and difficult to catch, Brauer prefers pitching or flipping jigs or plastic lizards to them. In Virginia, he chose lizards, after finding they brought more strikes.

"I kept fishing the same creek all three days of the tournament because I knew the bass were there," he explains, "and they were not getting much pressure from other anglers.

"I'm glad no one else was fishing for them, because the bass were spooky enough as it was, and I feel very fortunate to have won."

SPORTS SHORTS

Pistol match — The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club will conduct a tactical match Aug. 14 at English Range beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Entry fee is $10 if paid before Aug. 8 and $13 after that date. Shooters do not have to be affiliated with the club or in the military to shoot in this match.

For more information, call the rifle and pistol club at 689-3371.

Handgun safety — A handgun safety course for women will also take place at English Range Aug. 14 and 15. The cost for this course will be $15 if paid before Sunday and $20 after that date.

The course will offer four hours of classroom instruction on avoiding criminal attack, controlling violent confrontations and the legal ramifications of deadly force. The afternoon will be devoted to ammunition choice, weapon function, basic safety, care and cleaning and handgun choice. The following day will be a live-fire session.

Participants will need hearing and eye protection, a serviceable handgun, 200 rounds of ammunition and note-taking material. The textbook "Basics of Personal Protection" is free with the course. The text "Handgun Primer and Gun Proofing Your Child" by Massad Ayoob is strongly recommended. This book can be purchased at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club for $5.

For more information, contact the club at 689-3371.

Golf tournament — The Columbus Council Telephone Pioneers of America is sponsoring its fifth annual benefit golf tournament at Callaway Gardens' Mountain View Course Aug. 14 at 9 a.m.

Proceeds from the tournament will benefit the Georgia Sheriffs Youth Home Pineland Campus in LaGrange, purchase close captioned decoder devices for disadvantaged hearing impaired children throughout Georgia and other local charity projects.

Entry fee is $75 per person, which includes greens fee, cart, garden admission, light breakfast, refreshments during play, awards and lunch.

For more information or to obtain an entry form, contact Sheila Burkes at 571-3633 or 571-3628.

Fitness classes available — The Fort Benning Officers' Club is introducing new classes along with new instructors for a variety of aerobic and bench classes. Included in these are step, high- and low-combo aerobics and water dynamics.

The cost is $16.50 for 12 visits or $3 drop-in fee per visit. The first class is free.

For information, call 687-0871.

Fishing tournament — The Field of Dreams is once again conducting a series of striper tournaments on Lake Lanier Aug. 28, Sept. 18, Oct. 16, Nov. 27 and Dec. 11. There are also plans for a two-day "classic" event Jan. 8 and 9.

It is a team tournament and will be headquartered out of Brantley Marine on Buford Highway in Buford, Ga. Entry fee is $75. Bring two best fish to the scales. Hours are from 5 a.m. until 7 p.m. All boats meet at Brantley Marine and then depart to launch anywhere on the lake. Leave the lake and come back as many times as you like. Live bait or artificial. No chumming. No off limits. Open to pros and guides alike.

To get a registration form or more information, call (404) 683-8680.

Golf clinic — The pro shop is offering golf lessons for women and youth. The youth clinics are broken into age groups. They are all conducted the same dates but at different times. The remaining dates are Wednesday and Thursday. Instruction for those in the 7 to 10 age group is from 8:30 to 9:15 a.m. for those 11 to 14, from 10 to 10:45 a.m. and for those 15 to 17, 4 to 4:45 p.m.

There will also be instruction for the 15- to 17-year-olds Aug. 9, from 6 to 6:45 p.m. Cost for the youth instruction is $10. For more information, call the pro shop at 687-1940.

Soldier survey

Post's single soldiers want changes

By Richard Brill
Special to the Bayonet

Fort Benning soldiers recently gave recreational opportunities here top marks, but they expressed dissatisfaction about their personal living quarters.

These are two results of a recent postwide survey among single soldiers about the quality of life on Fort Benning.

The following are the results of six areas on the survey, which was conducted by the Single Soldier Living Community Advisory Board and Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers.

• Recreation: Overall, this was one of the highest-rated categories in terms of satisfaction postwide. These questions reflected how soldiers felt about the availability and quality of recreational facilities on post. The only major point of dissatisfaction was that soldiers felt they were not adequately informed about what facilities were available to them.

• Safety and Security: Soldiers expressed a mixed degree of satisfaction depending on their location in this category, which determined how they felt about security on post. Concerns expressed included a desire for more lighting in some of the parking lots, more Military Police patrols and dead-bolt locks on barracks doors.

• Social: Kelley Hill personnel were largely dissatisfied in this area, which focused on what soldiers felt about their opportunities to interact with others on post. Kelley Hill soldiers said they desire more company events and more enlisted clubs. Soldiers living in other areas on post were generally satisfied across the board.

• Spiritual: Overall, soldiers were satisfied with the quality and quantity of religious services and activities, although some soldiers expressed a desire for more Bible study classes and retreats. Harmony Church soldiers expressed a desire for a new church there.

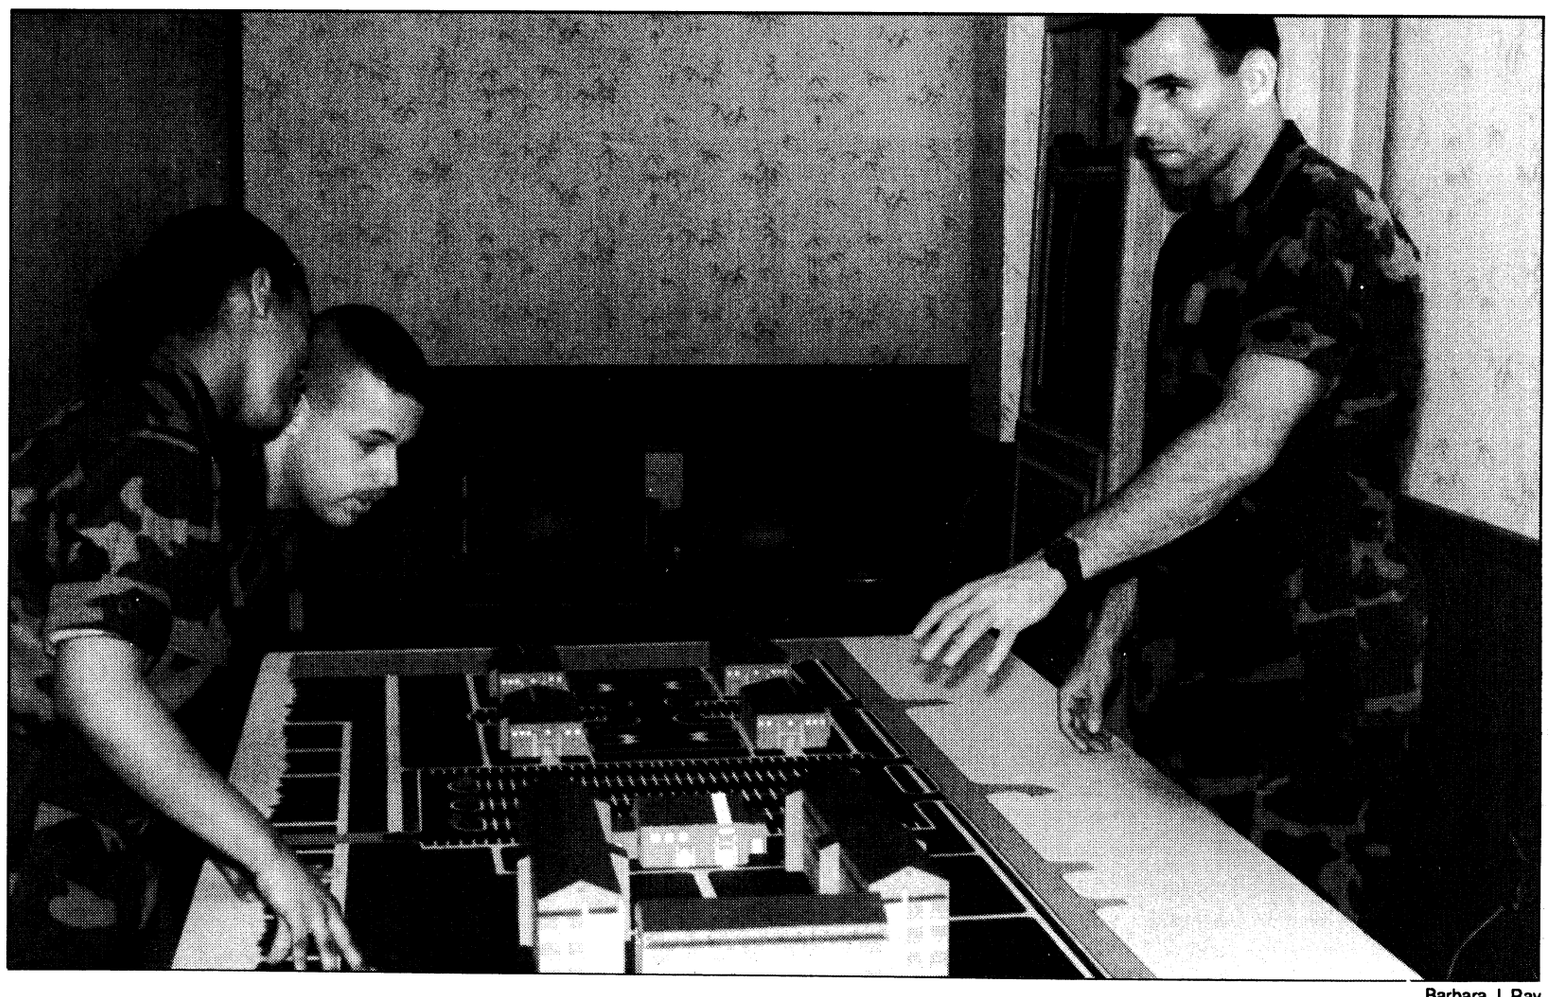
• Professional Development: Main Post and Sand Hill soldiers expressed the highest degrees of satisfaction in this area, which was aimed at determining soldiers' opinions of the learning centers, libraries and educational opportunities. Soldiers indicated a desire for more counselors and longer hours at the learning centers, longer library hours, a bookmobile and a military occupational specialty library on Kelley Hill.

• Facilities: Soldiers postwide expressed a high degree of dissatisfaction about the quality of life in their personal living quarters, day rooms and company areas.

Soldiers were dissatisfied most with in-room temperature controls, furniture, policies concerning wall art, bathing facilities, the amount of physical fitness equipment in day rooms, laundry facilities, the number of parking spaces, the quantity of bulk storage facilities and the number and location of telephones.

Kelley Hill soldiers were by far the most dissatisfied with their living conditions, but soldiers from every area on post indicated high degrees of dissatisfaction with various aspects of their living conditions.

"Many of the concerns that the soldiers indicated in the survey are already being attended to," said Brian Smith of the Directorate of Community Activities, who helped analyze the survey.



"For example, plans for a new junior enlisted club, to be completed in June or July of 1994, have already been finalized, and facilities at Uchee Creek and Destin were recently improved tremendously," he said. "These changes came about because soldiers and their family members expressed a desire for them and because the Directorate of Community Activities has been doing some intensive professional listening to soldiers and their families for several years to find out what they want."

Renovation of barracks on Kelley Hill is scheduled to start in 1994 as well as renovation of the 2800 block of buildings on Main Post.

Smith also encouraged commanders to ensure that their soldiers know what is available to them on post.

"The truth is that Fort Benning is one of the finest posts in the Army in terms of recreational facilities and opportunities for soldiers to develop culturally and professionally, but many soldiers just are not aware of what is available to them. I welcome any commander on post to give my office a call and we will help them get the word out to their soldiers through slide presentations or pamphlets or by giving guided tours to members of the unit BOSS councils to help spread the word. If a soldier doesn't know what's on post, he or she is being cheated out of an improved quality of life."

Editor's note: The results of the other five survey areas: cultural, economic, health and fitness, political and personal development, appeared in The Bayonet July 16.

SCHOOL TIME

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Student registration for the Fort Benning Schools 1993 to 94 school year is Aug. 9 through 20 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. at each of the seven post schools. The school year begins Aug. 31.

Kindergarten through eighth-grade students registering with parents are able to choose the day and time that best fits their needs.

Past practice indicates there are large crowds at the schools the first couple of days of registration, and this should be considered when choosing a registration time, according to a school spokesperson.

Students who attended Fort Benning Schools last year must register for the 1993 to 94 school year, but it is not necessary for parents of students to bring any forms to the school.

However, there will be registration forms at the school to be signed.

Children who preregistered during kindergarten roundup last May will also need to complete the registration process.

New students and children ages 3 to 5 requiring special education services should contact the Special Education Office at 545-2500 beginning Aug. 9.

Special education services include learning, intellectual and physical disabilities and behavior or emotional disorders, and speech-language disorders.

In order to meet the requirements for registration, parents should bring certain items to the school when they register students as outlined in the registration requirements shown on this page.

The items are determined by the student's age, grade and whether he or she previously attended a Fort Benning school.

For information on registration in the Fort Benning Schools, call 545-2500.

Fort Benning Schools Registration Requirements

In order to register, parents should bring certain items to the school when they register their children. The items are determined by the student's age, grade and whether he or she previously attended a Fort Benning school.

- A child must be 5 years old on or before Step. 1 to attend Fort Benning schools.
- Birth certificates or other proof of birth will be required for children to be enrolled in either kindergarten or first grade, unless they attended kindergarten at Fort Benning last school year.
- Pupils registering at Fort Benning for the first time will be required to present a record of immunization at registration. This requirement will be strictly enforced.

Immunization requirements

- Diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus (DPT) completed and booster if indicated.
- Polio series completed or begun with booster if required. Measles, mumps and rubella vaccine. (Booster is recommended)

Other requirements

- All pupils, except kindergarten, must have a report card or grade placement record.
- A Georgia Certificate of Eye, Ear and Dental screening is required for all students entering the Fort Benning Schools for the first time. An appointment for the screening and a Georgia Certificate of Immunization can be obtained by calling 544-3350.
- Children transferring into the Fort Benning Schools must show proof of a prior eye, ear and dental screening.

School assignments

Fort Benning Schools

There will be new school assignments for some Fort Benning students when school begins Aug. 31.

The new school assignments are necessary because of the opening of the new Stowers School and the closing last June of Patch and Wilbur schools.

Students who attended Wilbur School last year will attend Loyd School this year, and Main Post students who would have attended Patch School will attend White School.

For information on which Fort Benning school your child will attend, locate your housing area and find school assignments for students in kindergarten through fifth grade.

Phenix City Public Schools, Muscogee County schools set registration dates, times

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Registration and re-identification of students in kindergarten through eighth grade for Phenix City Public Schools for the 1993-94 school year will be Aug. 12 and 13 from 9 a.m. to noon at each of the following local schools:

Central Elementary
Westview Elementary
Sherwood Elementary
Ridgecrest Elementary
Meadowlane Elementary
Susie E. Allen Elementary
Phenix City Middle South Girard

For more information, call (205) 298-0534.

Muscogee County schools

All students of the Muscogee County School District should have received a letter of assignment to their designated school.

If the letter was not received or if a student is new to the area, call the Columbus Roberts Center student registration at 649-0624.

Female shooter comes home with gold

Takes women's trap title at international competition

By Anthony Jackson
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

It seems that there is an unwritten law in this world that says nothing truly compares to the very first time we do it. A first tooth, that first spoken word, that very first kiss.

To add to this list of first encounters, a U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit soldier recently established herself as a world class shotgun contender by sweeping the ranks and coming home with a gold medal.

Spc. Theresa Wentzel, a U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit shotgun team member set her sights on first place and ended up walking away with the women's trap title gold at the 1993 International Shotgun Championships at Fort Carson, Colo., July 13 to 15.

According to the one-year Army Marksmanship Unit veteran, winning her first gold medal was "awesome and very addictive."

"I'm hooked now," she said. "I don't intend to give up my lead now that I've got it."

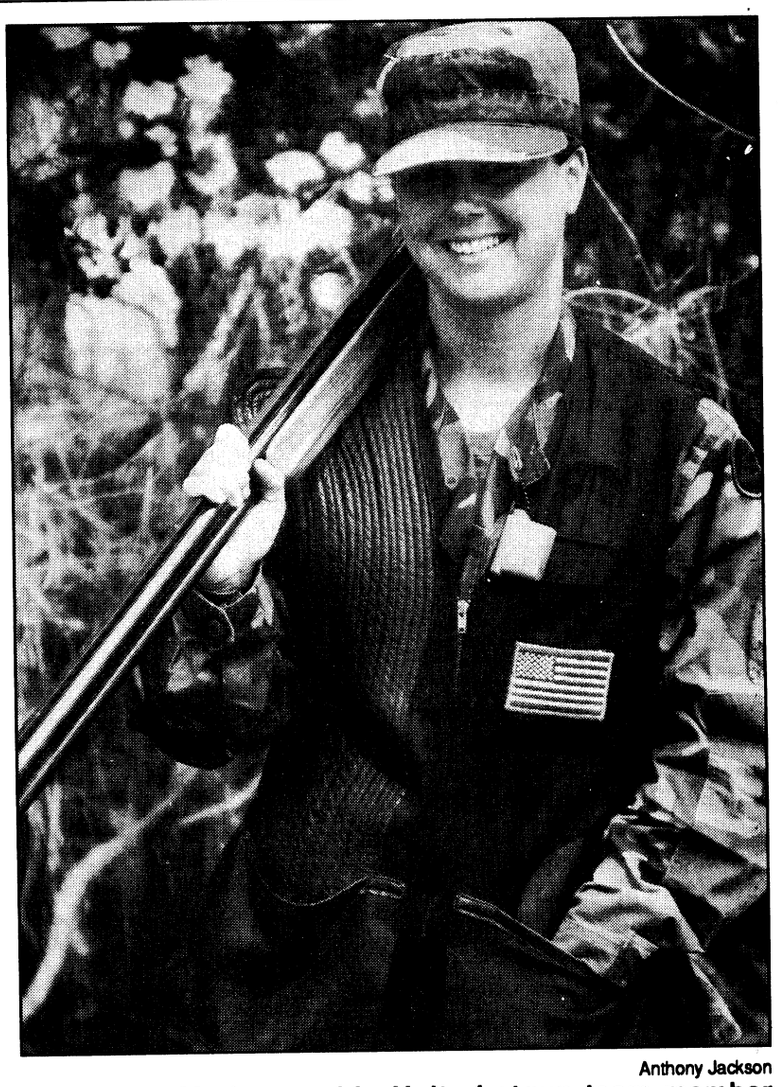
The second of the three selection matches is to be in Colorado Springs, Colo., in September; and, according to Wentzel, she's determined to excel and be victorious there, too.

"I believe in myself and abilities now more than ever," said the 5-feet, 9-inch hazel-eyed Wentzel. "By remaining focused, I realize I can accomplish anything I set my mind on doing," she said.

Wentzel pitted her four years of shooting experience and determination against a field of 14 seasoned competitors. Having been properly trained, she focused on her objective and was not the least bit intimidated. She shot a score of 295 out of a possible 325 to claim the honors, with her closet competitor a long seven points behind her.

"I suppose if I hadn't been so focused, I would have been a little surprised at taking the gold," she said. "I was confident I was going to win, and I wouldn't let myself think anything else.

"When the matches were finally over, however, I felt relieved," she continued. "I had been so focused for the entirety of the match that the pressure had built so it was almost overwhelming.



"It's the true champions who learn how to deal with the pressures and use them to their advantage," said Burl Branham, U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit shotgun coach.

"Terry played her game, shot extremely well and never lost sight of her goal — the gold medal," he said.

"Coach Branham works with me in keeping me focused on what I have to do," she said. "I've had a taste of being on top; I plan to stay there now."

Staff Judge Advocate

pursues two professions as an Army lawyer

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning's new Staff Judge Advocate Col. Paul Benjamin Anderson Jr. says being an Army lawyer allows him to pursue two great professions: the profession of arms and the profession of law.

His recent assignment to Fort Benning will allow him to continue both.

Anderson, an Alabama native, said that he and his wife, Glenda, are excited about being at Fort Benning and are impressed by the changes on post since he was stationed here in the 1970s.

"In the 14 years that have passed since I've last been here, the post has improved tremendously. Fort Benning's Office of the Staff Judge Advocate in particular is one of the best, if not the best in the Army," he added.

Anderson replaced Col. Donald J. Morgan, who was recently assigned to Washington, D.C. Anderson brings to Fort Benning not only a life-long fascination with the military and the law but experience gleaned from numerous assignments that have ranged from trial counsel at Fort Benning from 1977 to 1979 to deputy chief, Administrative Law Division, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate General, Washington, D.C., from 1991 to 1993.

Anderson said his foremost goal for Fort Benning is to continue the high level of excellence already practiced by the post's Staff Judge Advocate.

"Colonel Morgan left this place in top shape. The military and civilian personnel here are well trained and disciplined, work well together and are totally dedicated to the service of their clients," he said. "Of course, we not only want to maintain this excellence, but we want to strive to surpass it. My philosophy is that no matter how good a place is when you get there, you should always try to leave it a little better."

Anderson also pledged to continue both the quality and the quantity of services offered by the Staff Judge Advocate.

"Many people don't realize that we are a service organization and that matters pertaining to criminal law are a very small part of what we do. Our clients include not only the members of the post's top command structure, but soldiers and retirees and their family members as well. From advising the post commander on contract requirements and compliance with environmental law to providing legal assistance to soldiers, we offer our wide variety of clients a wide variety of services."

Other services offered include assistance with making wills, powers of attorney, separation agreements, damage or loss to household goods claims, advice on legal contracts, financial counseling, legal representation to federal employees sued within the scope of their employment and limited representation in downtown courts involving civil matters.

"I encourage soldiers with problems to give our office a call and see if we can help them. If we cannot, our personnel will be happy to direct them to the proper agency," Anderson said.

The biggest challenge for the Staff Judge Advocate, said Anderson will be maintaining a high quality of service in the face of budget cuts and the drawdown.

"Even into the future, we will be striving to do more with less. Army leaders in every branch will have to seek innovative ways to do things with less money and less personnel."

Anderson added that some of Fort Benning's specific challenges will be dealing with several legal changes that are affecting the post, including changes in ethics laws and in environmental compliance laws."

"We will be working hard to educate post personnel and lead them through the intricate legal spider webs," Anderson said.

He added that meeting these challenges could not be done at a more enjoyable post than Fort Benning.

"Being here really is a dream come true," Anderson said. "The most rewarding thing about my job is the opportunity to help soldiers and the command, and Fort Benning is the best place to do that."

Financial seminar begins Monday

UGA Cooperative Extension Service

Military and consumer credit counselors, extension agents and others who counsel clients on money matters will gather from Monday to Wednesday at the Columbus Iron Works Convention and Trade Center for the fifth annual Financial Counseling Seminar.

The seminar helps counselors meet clientele needs as a restructuring economy continues to bring change, stress and transition. Financial counselors work with individuals, families, businesses, agencies and creditors.

The seminar is sponsored by The University of Georgia Cooperative Extension Service, Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Columbus and Fort Benning Army Community Service.

Topics to be covered in the three-day seminar include: Helping Families Communicate About Money, Buying Strategies, Investment Strategies, Consumer Protection Issues, How To Develop Educational Programs for Clients, Professional Organizations, How to Deal with the Media, Effective Communications and Presentations, Counseling Skills for New and Experienced Counselors, Buying a Home, Housing and Urban Development Programs.

Montgomery GI Bill

Soldiers advised to protect benefits

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Confusion over time-in-service requirements is causing hundreds of soldiers to lose their Montgomery GI Bill education benefits earned while on active duty, according to personnel officials.

Failure to meet the time requirement for the benefit by even one day results in forfeiture of the entire benefit, officials warned.

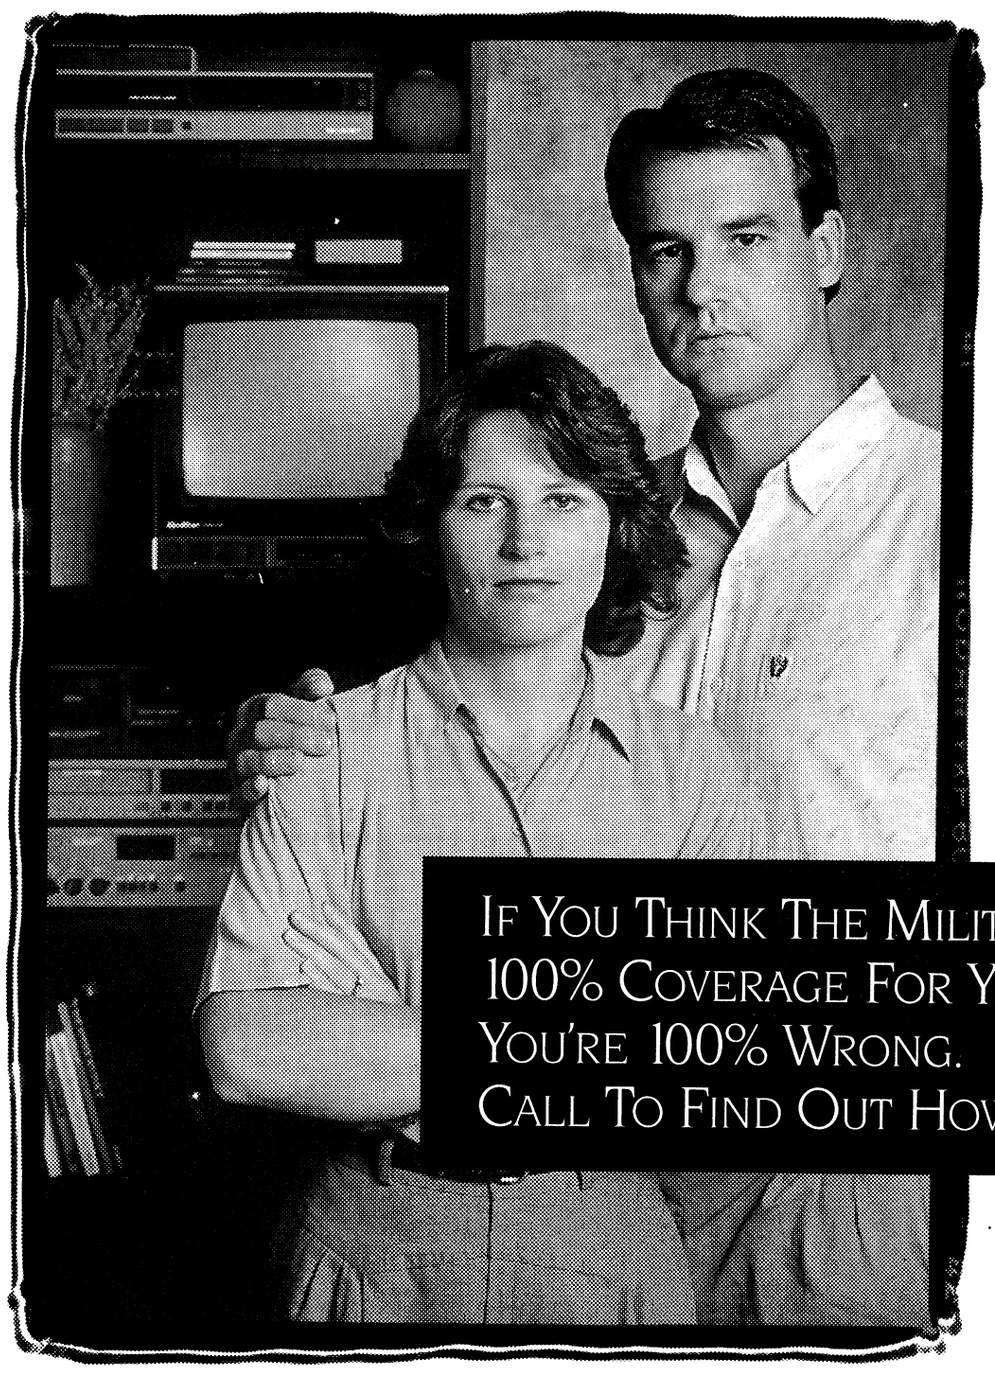
Under normal circumstances, soldiers must serve for 24 months on a two-year enlistment, or 36 months on a three-or-more-year enlistment to be MGIB-eligible.

In the case of early separations, such as those associated with service-connected disabilities, pre-existing medical conditions, or circumstances of hardship, a month of benefits will accrue for each month served on active duty.

However, time-in-service eligibility rules change when the separation is for the convenience of the government.

Soldiers separating with a convenience-of-the-government discharge must serve 20 months of a two-year enlistment or 30 months of a three-or-more-year enlistment.

Convenience-of-the-government discharges do not include volunteering for separation because of a bar to re-enlistment, officials said.



To be eligible in this category, soldiers must complete their entire enlistment, or a maximum of 36 months.

For information on eligibility for the Montgomery GI Bill, contact your local education counselors or write: Commander, PERSCOM; Attn: TAPC-PDE-EI (Room 940); Alexandria, Va. 22331-0472.

Whether you live on post or off, rent or own your home, it's up to you to make sure your family's possessions are protected. But that can be easier and cost a lot less than you think with a Renter's or Homeowner's Insurance policy offered through Family Protection Plus℠.

The government won't reimburse you for household and personal items that are stolen or destroyed unless you live in on-post housing, or they are being moved or stored for a PCS. Then you still can't be sure you are fully protected because the government limits the maximum amount it pays for personal property. It also deducts depreciation from the original value of damaged or stolen items. So you may not even get enough money to replace your losses.

Renter's and homeowner's insurance coverage available through Family Protection Plus provides comprehensive protection for all your possessions—at home, in transit, or in storage—with a replacement value option available. These policies give you automatic coverage on TDYs anywhere in the world for up to 179 days. And they also include liability coverage that protects you against law suits and damage claims.

The Family Protection Plus program was created by Academy Life Insurance Company with the specific needs of NCO families in mind. COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Warrant officer book — All Army warrant officers are invited to be a part of warrant officer history by leaving their thumbprint (biographies and pictures) in the first hard cover 9 by 12-inch warrant officer history book ever published.

In addition to biographies and pictures of individual warrant officers, the book will represent the official history of the corps from its inception in 1918 through its evolution to the Army's technician, officer and soldier of today.

Included in the history will be a description of the warrant officer technical specialties, warrant officer insignias and uniforms of the past and present, with illustrations.

For a brochure describing the warrant officer history book, write to U.S. Army warrant officers Association, 462 Herndon Parkway, Suite 207, Herndon, Va. 22070 or call (703) 742-7727.

This book is a history of the Warrant Officer corps and membership is not required.

Music scholarship available —A $1,000 scholarship is being offered to aspiring Georgia music students. Students, ages 15 to 18, are receiving the chance to earn a scholarship and to be invited to perform on stage Sept. 25 during the live telecast of the "Georgia Music Hall of Fame Awards Dinner."

Entry forms have been sent out statewide to Georgia Chamber of Commerce and Convention and Visitor Bureaus in order to recruit interested musicians. Individual singers or instrumentalists in Georgia, ages 15 to 18, are invited to send in up to two songs on cassette for consideration of selection.

Cassettes, which are non-returnable, should be mailed to the Atlanta Pops Orchestra, P.O. Box 723172, Atlanta, Ga. 30309 by Aug. 10.

The talent search program is coordinated by Grammy Award Nominee, Georgia Music Hall of Fame member and Atlanta Pops Orchestra Maestro Albert Colemass.

Management meeting — The Fort Benning Management Association will have a "homecoming" luncheon Aug. 19 at the Officers' Club at 11:30 a.m.

The president and executive officers are searching for all old and new members who have formed and preserved history in the association.

Past and present members are encouraged to contact association officers because the program will focus on past and present members. Also, photos (baby or recent) are needed so they can be placed on a poster at the meeting.

For more information, call Myrtle Chalkley at 545-4539 or 568-7841.

Parent training — The Children and Adults with Attention Deficit Disorders meeting for August will feature a three-hour parent training workshop, titled "Understanding Your Child's Educational Rights."

The workshop, Aug. 10 from 7 to 10 p.m. at The Medical Center auditorium, will be presented by Parents Educating Parents. The session is free for CHADD members; nonmembers must pay $1. For more information, call 561-1337.

Food drives — Army Community Service is soliciting organizations or activities to conduct food drives for the Emergency Food Locker program. For more information, call Arthur Deane at 545-2536, 545-7517 or 545-4043.

Dancing classes — Fall dancing classes for tap, jazz and ballet will begin Sept. 1 at the Officers' Wives' Club. Beginner and advanced classes are available for 2 1/2 years old to adults. Classes are one hour long, one day a week at $20 per month for one child, $35 per month for two children and $50 per month for three children. Teacher Jennifer Page has 15 years teaching experience. All military are welcome. For more information, call Page at 323-5735.

New hours for ID card section — The Identification Card Section, Building 2638, located in Soldiers' Plaza, has new operation hours. The hours are:

- Monday to Friday - 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
- Saturdays and Sundays - closed

Youth registrations — Youth Services soccer, football and cheerleader registration will take place Monday to Aug. 6 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The soccer program will be open to children ages 4 to 15. Flag football is open to 6- to 8-year-olds, and tackle football is for 9- to 15-year-olds with a maximum weight of 160 pounds. Cheerleading is open to 6- to 15-year-olds.

Parents may register children at the Youth Activities Center, Building 1056, located on McIver Street. Tackle football players must be present at the time of registration.

Practices will begin Aug. 16 and the first games will be Sept. 11. The season will run through Oct. 30.

Also, coaches for the upcoming season are needed. Anyone interested may call 545-3070 or 545-3913.

School examinations — It is mandatory that any child entering Georgia schools for the first time be given a dental, eye and hearing examination.

The results of the exam will be entered on a Georgia Department of Human Resources Certification of Ear, Eye and Dental Examination, which must be presented to the school upon enrollment.

For a screening appointment, call 544-3350 at Martin Army Community Hospital or your county health department. The child's immunization record must be up to date. Parents should take the immunization record to the hospital or health department at the time of the screening exam.

For more information, call Cathy Hatfield at 544-1503.

Welcome coffee — The International Wives' Club will host a welcome coffee for all foreign-born spouses in the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City area Aug. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in Building 2642, Collins Loop, Fort Benning.

For more information, call Olga Kelly at 687-6471 or Regina Colon at 682-7221.

Promotional items — Recently, a 6-year-old child called the Army Community Service Office and reported that he had been left alone to watch his 4-month-old brother and his 4-year-old sister. The child stated that he did not know where his mother was and that he was afraid. When asked how he got the ACS telephone number he replied, "From a T-shirt I got from school."

During the conversation with the child, the child's name, street and phone number were obtained. Toward the end of the conversation, the child's mother came to the phone and reported that she had been out cleaning the yard.

If this had been a crisis situation — thanks to promotional items given to the school by the Family Advocacy Program — this child would have been able to get help.

Host families needed — Families are needed to host English-speaking French students age 13 to 20 Wednesday to Sept. 2. Each student brings sufficient spending money and is thoroughly insured. The American family needs only provide room and board, friendship and understanding.

Call Carol Driskill at 685-2072 for more information.

Volunteer tutors needed — The Muscogee County School District has a need for volunteer tutors in all of the adult education programs. Interested persons would have a choice of dates, times and locations. No prior training is necessary. A qualified teacher is available to assist the volunteers. Call 649-0864 for information.

Red Cross classes —

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation: Aug. 18, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., $25.

Standard first aid progressive: Aug. 19, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., $20.

Baby-sitting for youth: Aug. 20, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., $15.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation - professional rescuer instructor class, Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Must have current CPR instructor certification).

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation and standard first aid instructor class, Aug. 6 (precourse session), 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Aug. 26 (instructor candidate training) from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.; Aug. 27 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

For registration information, call 545-5194 or 545-5117.

Youth basketball — Youth Services Main Gym, Building 1055, will conduct basketball tournaments as follows. Registration will be at 12:30 p.m. and games will start at 1 p.m.

Aug. 7 — 5-on-5 basketball tournament

Aug. 12 — Preteen (9 to 12 years old) 21-point contest

Participants must have valid military identification or Youth Services card to enter the tournament. For information, call 545-3070 or 545-3540.

Car show — The 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, will conduct a car show Sept. 11 on Stewart Field from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Approximately 400 cars will be on display. For more information, call 545-1868.

AA — The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous group meets every Monday, Thursday and Saturday at 7 p.m. in the basement of the Directorate of Community Activities, Building 241. Entrance is in the rear of the building.

Diabetic luncheon club — If you have diabetes and would enjoy meeting and sharing with other diabetics, join University of Georgia Extension Home Economist Joanne Cavis Aug. 12 from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at W.D. Crowleys, Peachtree Mall, for lunch and a program.

The Diabetic Luncheon Club meets monthly in a variety of restaurants. It provides an opportunity for fellowship, practice in following a diabetic meal plan when eating out and education about diabetes. There is no membership fee. To attend, call Cavis at 571-4793.

Cake decoration class — The Kelley Hill Recreation Center will sponsor a cake decorating class Sept. 10 at 6:30 p.m. with continuing classes every Friday thereafter for five weeks.

The fee is $25 per individual. Early registration is required because of limited space.

For information, call 544-3079, Wednesday to Sunday after noon.

Youth services — There are a variety of activities at Youth Services this summer for children ages 6 to 18. Some of the activities include swimming, craft classes, field trips, tournaments, dances and much more.

The Youth Services staff ask that parents come and sign in their children and find out what activities are available for the day. Also, the staff asks parents to pick up children before or at closing time.

Hour of operation for the main center are Wednesdays through Saturdays from 11 a.m to 8 p.m. and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The center is closed on Monday and Tuesdays. Because of special events, the operating hours may change.

For more information, call Quintella Thorn, Youth Services at 545-79945 or 545-3070.

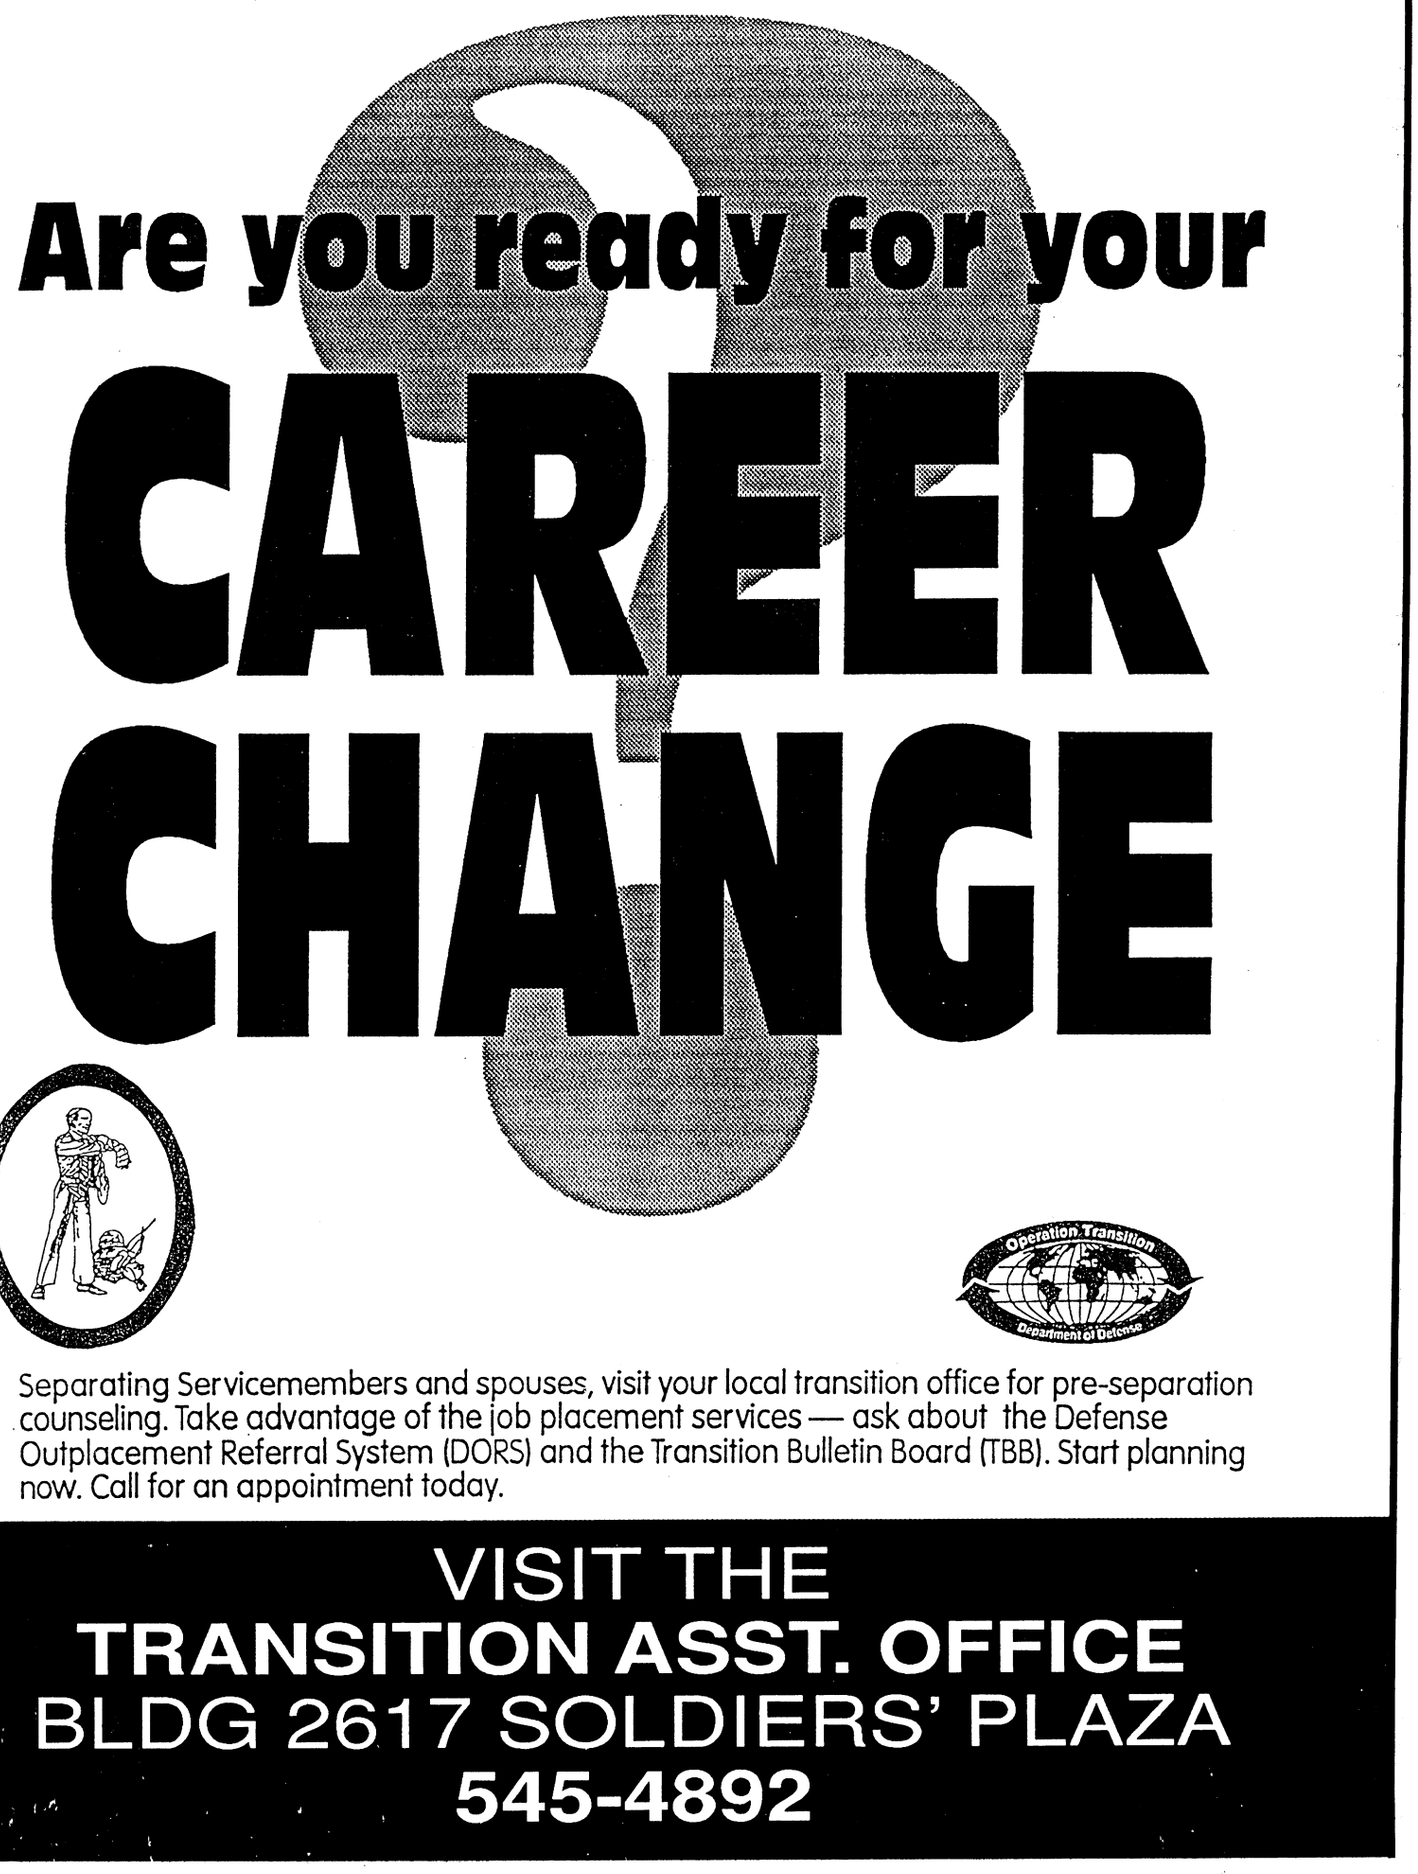
PET OF THE WEEK

This male Siamese cat is looking for a home and is just one of many dogs and cats that can be adopted on post.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127.



Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner of a lost pet. Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records when changes occur.

DE-VO-Te' lets the harmony ring out as they practice their single, "You are the Apple of my Eye," during a studio rehearsal session.

DE-VO-Te'

Singing quintet strikes five-part harmony

By Anthony Jackson
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

If charm and personality were all that is needed to be successful and famous then most certainly this young singing quintet would already be a household name.

Unfortunately more is required such as talent, business suave acumen and opportunity.

DE-VO-Te', made up of Amber Grimes, Evangeline DeBose, Kanetha Brown, Natasha Thorn and Nikitia Huff are the latest creation of entertainment scout and Kealock Productions chief executive officer Capt. Lillian Common, a logistic officer for the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit.

New to the singing field, DE-VO-Te' merged as a singing force in January of this year and with much dedication and perseverance has begun to "turn the heads" of the entertainment world.

"I've always loved to sing and was very much inspired by my aunt who supported my love of singing," explained Grimes, founder of DE-VO-Te'. "I knew I wanted to sing professionally, but I didn't want to do it alone.

That's when I set out to make-up what is now DE-VO-Te', she added.

Grimes approached her best friend Thorn and another young woman in her first attempts to form a group, but to no avail. Grimes then approached Brown and Huff along with Thorn and a foursome was established. DeBose later joined the group and thus DE-VO-Te' was born.

"At first, I really believed it was a phase Natasha was going through," said Quintella Thorn, who works at Youth Services on post. "As she continued with her singing aspirations however, I realized my daughter was quite determined to make this dream become reality.

"To be truthful though, I never had realized she could sing so well," Thorn added.

DeBose plays the flute, Grimes plays clarinet, Thorn and Brown play the keyboards and Huff is a percussionist and writer. But if that wasn't enough, they are also honor roll students of Spencer High School in Columbus. Not bad for a group of sophomores and juniors.

Anthony Jackson

Kealock Productions chief executive officer and a logistical officer for the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, Capt. Lillian Common, discusses the goals of Kealock Productions and how they pertain to DE-VO-Te'.

"Kealock Productions was created on the basis of finding talented, fresh, young entertainers to help guide them in the right direction and to help them reach their fullest potentials," said Common.

"These girls are every bit as good as any group you hear out there now," she continued. "The thing that is so incredible about the members of the group is their talent for their age. The voices these 15- and 16-year-olds have are unbelievable and they're steadily improving with each practice."

"We found something we love to do and we found others whom we love to sing with," said Brown.

"We're successful because we're determined and strong," said Huff. "In harmony we grow; divided we can fall."

It is this type of attitude that allows these five girls to subject themselves to constant practice — daily. Whether at home, in the studio or just hanging out at the mall, this quintet eats, sleeps and lives to sing. "We sing to grow and be the best, but we still have fun," said Thorn.

"We love to eat fast foods, especially Ni-Ny (Huff); we love to talk on the phone, hang out with our friends and all the other things that teen-agers do."

"We just happen to know that singing is what we're really good at and it's something we want to do," said Grimes.

It seems to be something they're so good at that they already have a double-sided single to be released in September and enough bookings to last the rest of the year. So with six months of group singing under their belts, a music video and several live appearances all over the South, it would seem DE-VO-Te' is on the road to a successful singing career.

People speak the truth about the vocal blend and dynamic gospel cord structure these girls sing in, Common said. "Their abilities have impressed the studio technicians every time we go to record, and that's what it takes to make it in this business."

VA benefits handbook available

By Rudi Williams
American Forces Information Service

The surest way to get current information about Veterans Affairs benefits and claims is to contact the nearest VA regional office. The next best way is to order the revised, updated Federal Benefits for Veterans and Dependents.

Published by the Department of Veterans Affairs, the handbook describes federal benefits for veterans and dependents. The U.S. Government Printing Office sells the perennial best seller for $3.25. Service members can also get the handbook at installation transition offices.

VA benefits include medical care, education, disability compensation, pension, life insurance, home loan guaranty, vocational rehabilitation and burial assistance. The handbook explains requirements for eligibility and outlines claims procedures.

The book also has special sections on veterans benefits administered by state and other federal government agencies. Sections include unemployment compensation, the Job Training Partnership Act, federal employment, transition assistance, Federal Housing Administration home mortgage insurance, Small Business Administration assistance and Social Security.

The handbook notes that beneficiaries living in foreign countries are also eligible for certain benefits. VA compensation, pensions, educational assistance, burial allowances, for instance, are payable regardless of place of residence or nationality. Beneficiaries living overseas should contact the nearest American embassy or consulate for information and claims assistance. In Canada, veterans should contact the local office of Veterans Affairs Canada.

A list of where to go for help includes addresses and phones numbers for all VA offices, medical centers, national cemeteries, Vietnam veterans' counseling centers and other VA facilities. The list includes the states, the District of Columbia, Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and the Philippines. Veterans in American Samoa should contact the VA medical center in Honolulu for information about getting medical care from community providers. In Guam, VA operates a small community clinic which coordinates care with the Honolulu medical center.

To buy a handbook, send a $3.25 check or money order payable to "Superintendent of Documents" to:

Consumer Information Center P.O. Box 11OZ

Pueblo, Colo. 81009., or request GPO stock number 051-000-00200-8 and send the check to: Superintendent of Documents U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Election time

Fort Benning is looking for mayoral candidates for each of its housing areas

By Darryl L. Foster
Special to The Bayonet©

The Community Life Office has put the word out on the street. It wants you to apply.

Have you been longing to put those administrative and coordination skills into action? Tired of gazing restlessly out of the front door waiting for something big to happen?

Just a stairstep away from the hustle and bustle of real life politics, a position as mayor or vice mayor of a Fort Benning housing area may be what you need.

Each of the installation's six mayoral districts (housing areas) will be up for grabs come Sept. 6.

These housing areas include: Indianhead Terrace, Bouton Heights and Davis Hill, West Main Post, Custer Terrace, Upatoi Terrace and Battle Park, McGraw Manor and East Main Post.

Applications for these offices will be screened against eligibility criteria and candidates who qualify will be listed on official election ballots.

Major qualifications, as outlined in U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-1, are:

• Candidates must reside in post family housing

• There must be no evidence of criminal activity in background checks

Darlene Perry, the community life officer, said each candidate should possess a "proactive attitude of improving the quality of life for their respective residents."

"The main focus they should have is to find out community opinion and present it to the command group," said Perry.

Mayors will also be expected to keep the lines of communication flowing "upward and downward" and to confront the issues facing each community. The job's term is one year.

Although the job might get a little hectic, mayors have an extended arm of their duties in the person of the community life noncommissioned officer, said Perry.

Support units, according to Perry, assist in the setup of safety carnivals for neighborhood youngsters, participate in spring cleanup, give much needed support in pitching tents for special events, and are called in to arbitrate in local disputes.

This year's election may see some small changes. Currently, all housing areas are governed by women mayors; however, Perry said they have received an inquiry from one male who might run.

The elections are open to male and female candidates. Some areas will see heated races as incumbents seek a second term in office, she said.

After a whirlwind week of training, high- and low-level introductions and visits to other advisory councils, they will assume office Oct. 1.

Varied community matters await them such as air conditioning, heating, power outages, maintenance, safety of children and keeping their communities abreast of post plans, said Perry.

Residents can expect to see ballots on or before Sept. 6 and voting boxes will be centrally located in each Community Life Center.

Voting is scheduled for Sept. 8 to 10.

New tutors

learn to teach English as a second language

By Nancy Huff
Special to the Bayonet

One of the features that makes life interesting in the Fort Benning and Columbus area is the presence of many foreign-born soldiers and family members with the enriching influences of their diverse cultures and languages.

However, life can be difficult for those needing to acquire English as a second language. The problem lies in the lack of bilingual teachers.

The Muscogee Area Literacy Association is attempting to remedy the situation by providing a free training workshop for those wishing to tutor individual adult foreign born students or to teach small groups.

The workshop was July 19 to Thursday at Edgewood Baptist Church for a total of 15 packed teaching hours. The workbooks and other study materials have been provided by the Laubach Literacy Action, which maintains the largest network of adult literacy programs in the country.

The Laubach teaching system, because of its use of visual aids, hand gestures, and dialogue repetition, guarantees that there is absolutely no need for the tutor trainee to speak any language besides English.

Glenda Hendrix, a veteran school teacher who volunteers her time as a supervisor tutor trainer for the Laubach program, expects from 10 to 15 students to complete the workshop and become certified as tutors.

She said that the real commitment for the trainee is not the completion of the 15 hour training, but the commitment of one to two hours each week for individual instruction of a foreign-born student.

Anyone interested in helping family members or friends learn English as a second language should direct them to the Muscogee Area Literacy Association.

The new crop of enthusiastic volunteer tutors will be available and eager to begin their work. Call 649-0865 for more information.

WHAT'S UP DOC?

Directorate of Contracting

A common problem with requisitions seems to be how to get the status and what to do if you get the wrong item or you aren't happy with the item or service required.

The procurement system definitely has a method to handle both situations.

The most important thing to do is to accurately document the problem, date, issues, etc.

For action to be taken, these must be accurately reported so the contracting officer may go after the vendor or contractor. The worst thing you can do is remain silent.

To take full advantage of the system in place, you need to know your "functional manager." Very few activities on Fort Benning are authorized to deal directly with the Directorate of Contracting.

Functional managers are in place to help you define your needs, screen sources that the item or service might already be available from, and to run interference with the Directorate of Contracting. So, use them.

Generally, if it has to do with construction or base operations, the Directorate of Public Works is your functional manager. If it's for automated data processing equipment or services, it's the Directorate of Information Management. All other items and services will probably be handled by the Directorate of Logistics.

If your manager is DOL and you get the wrong item, are unhappy with the service or get more than you asked for, a Report of Discrepancy, Standard Form 364, is prepared by DOL and forwarded to DOC for action.

Call 545-1797 and let them know the problem so that the form may be completed. They will then follow-up with DOC every 30 days until the discrepancy is resolved to your satisfaction.

You may check on the status of your problem by calling the same number or writing to the Supply and Services Division, DOL. You should have a response within two days. The same process should be followed if you just need to know the status of your requisition.

If your functional manager is DOIM, use the following procedures to redress issues concerning purchase of automated data processing equipment.

Your first point of contact is the assigned primary information management officer for your activity or unit. Explain the nature of your problem to this person.

Daniel Maloney

SOA: Honduran cadets take refresher jump training

By Devon Kerbow
School of the Americas

A Saturday parachute jump onto Fryar Drop Zone happens all the time on Fort Benning, right?

But toss in 58 cadets from Honduras and it becomes something out of the norm.

The cadets have only jumped twice at Fort Benning. They last jumped two years ago at the airborne school in Honduras, according to the School of the America's Special Operations Division Operations Officer Capt. Richard Heaton, a jumpmaster on the cadet's flight.

To prepare, Heaton said they started with an eight-hour block of jump refresher training, a standard in the U.S. Army.

Staff Sgt. Philip Durant, an instructor for special operations at SOA, said he noticed the students' biggest difficulty was not knowing how all their equipment should be worn.

Luckily, even in the 90-degree heat, the sweltering SOA jumpmasters were up to the arduous task of examining every cadet for possible equipment problems.

There's an emphasis on safety here, said Staff Sgt. Felix Davila, assistant Special Operations and Civil Military Operations noncommissioned officer.

Davila added that the mandatory refresher course right before the jump demonstrating the proper technique is longer than in a regular combat unit.

The Cadet Branch Qualification Course at SOA also teaches basic military skills, leadership principles and human rights awareness training.

Prior to being commissioned as officers in Honduras, the cadets are required to complete the eight-week course.

As a way of showing support for the students in their training mission. Assistant Commandant Col. Carlos Molina arranged for the Latin American guest instructors, SOA's commandant and command sergeant major and qualified cadre to take the next flight and parachute after the students.

Panel to examine readiness issues

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

Defense Secretary Les Aspin announced during a recent press conference he has appointed a panel of retired flag officers to look into readiness issues facing the Department of Defense.

The panel, chaired by former Army Chief of Staff retired Gen. Edward C. Meyer, will act as an "early warning system" for the department.

"Right now, we've got the best, most ready force in the world," Aspin said. "To keep it that way, we're going to have to do something that has proved very difficult in the past — maintain readiness during a major drawdown in our forces."

Aspin said the eight-member panel will "go beyond the numbers." DoD needs experienced judgment about the readiness of the force, the secretary said.

"Our job essentially is to wave yellow and red flags across the bow of the secretary of Defense and the chairman and others when we see things that indicate problems are over the horizon," said Meyer.

The panel will examine all readiness issues on an ongoing basis. It will issue its first report in January.

Aspin said this kind of report is crucial. "The drawdown we're engaged in comes after the Cold War and we don't have the luxury of a breathing spell (like we had after other wars)," he said. "Today we find forces engaged in a number of areas around the world with a potential of greater involvement.

"All this means is we can't hang a 'Closed For Remodeling' sign on the door while we complete the resizing and reshaping of our forces."

Aspin said the panel will examine changes in roles and missions of the military. It will also assess what effects changes such as women in combat roles and homosexuals in the military will have on readiness. "We've just announced a major change (with) women in combat," Aspin said. "The question these gentlemen will ask is, is there some impact on readiness of the force, and if so, what might be done about it?"

Aspin said he chose Meyer for the role because he sounded the alarm in the late 1970s and coined the term "hollow force." "His phrase came to mean a force that was undermanned, underled and underprepared," Aspin said. "It is the opposite of the ready-to fight force that we intend to maintain."

Members of the panel will testify before Congress and help keep readiness issues before the public, Aspin said.

They will look into anecdotal evidence of a "softening" of readiness. They will examine the readiness of the reserve components.

Aspin said the panel will not take the place of any readiness assessments the Joint Staff or services already perform. "This should give us another perspective on the issue," he said.

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week ...

• The Allies pressed their advance through Sicily. The American 45th Division took Santo Stefano despite facing heavy resistance from Axis forces positioned on the outskirts of the city.

The British drove through Catania, Paterno and Catenanouva. Meanwhile, Canadian forces advanced into Regalbuto and Centuripe as the U.S. First Division continued its efforts to capture Troina.

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets occupied Orel after taking Znamenshaya and before capturing Belgorod, successfully splitting Germany's Fourth Panzer and Eighth armies.

• Elsewhere on the Eastern Front, the Germans launched a failed attempt to seize the initiative, as Soviet forces on the River Mius north of Taganrog withstood the counterattack efforts of the Third Panzer Corps.

• In the world of political developments, Tokyo announced that Burma had declared war on the Allies after gaining its independence as Ba Maw, the figure head of the Burmese puppet government, secretly signed a treaty with the Japanese.

• On Fort Benning, future major league pitcher Ewell Blackwell pitched his way into the post's Hall of Fame, throwing a no-hitter on the Harmony Church field.

Blackwell, already a minor league veteran, had a sparkling 0.27 ERA to date as the ace of the 124th Infantry Regiment's staff.

Army draws on 218 years experience

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — The Army of the '90s is shifting gears as it crosses rocky terrain — all the while drawing on its 218 years of knowledge and experience in defending America.

In explaining why and how the Army has developed new doctrine for its "power projection" future, Army Chief of Staff Gen. Gordon R. Sullivan referred to doctrine as the "engine of change."

The first was the 218th anniversary of the Army's founding.

The second was the publication of the Army's revised bible on doctrine, Field Manual 100-5, Operations.

The Army chief recognized the Army birthday with a salute to the success of such earlier doctrine as the "AirLand Battle" doctrine applied by allied forces in the Persian Gulf War.

He used the phrase "continuity, change and growth" to describe where the "engine of change" will be taking the Army in the 21st century.

The new doctrine, he said, "reflects a values-based Army; enables the Army to think as a body; links to joint and combined operations; drives combat development and training; aligns leader development; and focuses soldiers and leaders."

In its 1993 edition, FM 100-5 discusses the Army's role as a strategic, power-projection force, and looks at the expanding arena of space-related operations.

It also updates the theory and practice of mobilization and deployment operations, elaborates on the role of intelligence and explains the combat doctrine behind armored, light and special operations.

Acknowledging the highly technical environment in which soldiers train and operate, the new edition includes material on anticipation and forecasting, battle dynamics and joint and combined operations.

Whether projecting power in wartime, for what Sullivan called "decisive victory," or in peacetime emergencies and humanitarian relief, America's Army has a single-minded goal, Sullivan said. "That goal is serving the nation at home and abroad."

TRADOC

publishes battlefield wisdom in pamphlet form

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — A new pamphlet from the Army's Training and Doctrine Command samples the leadership and doctrinal insight from battlefield commanders of Operations Just Cause (Panama) and Desert Storm (the Persian Gulf).

Titled "Leadership and Command on the Battlefield: Battalion and Company," the 76-page TRADOC Pamphlet No. 525-100-2 gives a capsule view of "how commanders of battalions and companies took the fight to the enemy with their soldiers in direct-fire combat.

"It is at this tactical echelon where the tough, hard uncompromising fighting happens that brings victory at least cost to American soldiers."

TRADOC commander Gen. Frederick M. Franks Jr. notes, "This is the second pamphlet (from TRADOC) on the art of battle command.

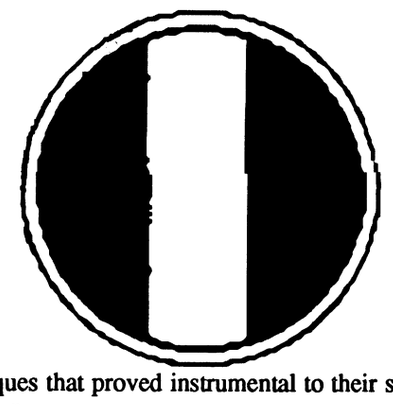
"The first concerned how corps, division and brigade commanders got battalions to the right place at the right time and in the right combinations."

The first two pamphlets lead off a series of five dealing with various aspects of warfare.

Three currently in production will discuss the battle staff, noncommissioned officer leadership and family support.

The second oral-history pamphlet covers command insights from "Preparation for Combat" and "Conducting the Fight" to "Proven Successful Leadership Techniques" and "Maintaining the Edge."

In the chapter on preparation, commanders' experiences and views focus on "the more significant aspects of teamwork, cohesion and preparing for war at battalion and company level."



As summed up by one commander, Lt. Col. Bill Feyk, "There was teamwork, trust and confidence between the battalions in our brigade.

Chapter 2, "Conducting the Fight," describes the orders process and how commanders relied on flexibility and communication feedback.

In this regard, says infantryman Lt. Col. Randy L. Gordon, "commanders must talk to soldiers as much as possible. You have to love soldiers. In battle they have to see your tank, and they have to see you."

In both Just Cause and Desert Storm, notes Chapter 3, "many commanders shared several leadership techniques that proved instrumental to their success in combat."

One technique, says airborne company commander Capt. Scott McBride, relies on inspections: "I can point out just a small example of the importance of inspections: If a squad leader doesn't check, and the guy on point has no batteries for his night-vision goggles, he has just degraded the effectiveness of the entire unit."

As to "maintaining the edge," the commanders confirm in Chapter 4 that "realistic training, sound doctrine and disciplined soldiers allowed commanders to develop and maintain the edge needed to fight and win on the battlefield."

Explains one ranger commander, Capt. Dan Allyn: "There is no magic as to why there are successful units on the battlefield. What makes the difference is a tough training program trained to exacting standards, regardless of the task. You must train the way you expect to fight."

The pamphlet's four appendixes start out with aphorisms keyed to the chapters. Appendix B summarizes "lessons learned," while C lists the survey questions to which the 41 commanders have responded. Those commanders are listed in Appendix D.

Each pamphlet in the series will be distributed to every Army major installation and training center. Technical libraries are expected to carry them. Authorized requesters may order individual copies of the published pamphlets from the Commander, Fort Monroe, ATTN: ATZG-BO-PS, Fort Monroe, Va. 23651-5000.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Kurt A. Mieth
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q: I'm looking to buy a new car and have heard reports that I may be losing money if I finance my purchase through the local car dealership. A friend says this is because of practice of "indirect lenders." What's this all about?

A: Shopping for car financing is as important as actually shopping for the car. Consider the example of a $10,000 car purchase being financed with a four-year loan that carries an 11 percent annual percentage rate.

By the time the car is actually paid off, the consumer will have paid more than $2,000 beyond the original purchase price. This makes financing charges one of the biggest costs, if not the biggest cost, associated with car ownership.

Car buyers who go to local dealerships often find that they and the salesperson will simultaneously start negotiating the terms and methods of financing their purchase along with the actual purchase price of the car.

While some car buyers may find this "one stop shopping (for both the car and loan)" a convenience, it usually results in greater costs to the customer and increased profits for the dealership.

Consider the following hypothetical example of a potential customer looking to buy a new van. While negotiating a sales price of about $18,000, the customer and salesperson also discuss how this purchase is to be financed.

The salesperson offers to "go to our finance representative" in order to have the dealership arrange financing for the customer. What customers should understand however, is that the funds actually used to finance the purchase rarely come from the dealership.

The way the system often works is as follows: The salesperson will approach the dealership's finance representative who will in turn usually report to the general manager of the dealership.

The general manager will then contact an "indirect lender," such as a bank located in another state. After receiving financial data on the customer, this bank may agree to finance 90 percent of the purchase price (or more than $16,000) at 7.5 percent annual interest.

This bank is called an "indirect lender" because it will not provide the loan funds directly to the buyer, rather the money and the loan papers will be given to and made with the dealership.

The dealership will then provide this same money to the customer and sign a separate financing agreement with the customer.

In practice, many large car dealerships may regularly contact up to eight different "indirect lenders" as they try to arrange for financing for a particular purchase.

This whole arrangement is often never explained to car buyers, who are then left with the impression that they are negotiating financing directly (and only) with the car dealership.

Having received the 7.5 percent quote from the "indirect lender," the customer may then be called into a meeting with the salesperson and dealership finance representative. At this meeting the customer may be offered a loan at a higher rate, say 11.5 percent annual interest.

If the customer is dissatisfied with this offer, the dealership will agree to "negotiate further" and eventually lower its quoted rate to about 9.5 percent annual interest.

During these negotiations the dealership doesn't make any additional calls or efforts in working with indirect lenders.

Pleased customers (who are often complimented by the salesperson on having driven a "hard bargain") accept this latest offer feeling that they have won a 2 percent savings (the original quote of 11.5 percent minus the agreed upon rate of 9.5 percent).

However, if anyone can be said to have come out ahead in this deal, it is the indirect lender and the dealership since they are collecting 9.5 percent interest from the customer on a deal being financed by the indirect lender at only 7.5 percent interest.

While customers may question the ethics of such a practice, they can take steps to protect themselves. Most importantly they can make shopping around for a car loan a separate deal from shopping for the car.

While this involves a little extra work, consumer groups agree that the savings can amount to hundreds, and often thousands of dollars over the time it takes to pay off the car.

Since most banks generally use the same criteria in offering loans, car buyers who arrange for car financing with local banks and credit unions (either on-post or off-post) will often be quoted an interest rate similar to that which the "indirect lender" quotes to the dealership.

In fact, national consumer groups estimate that a car buyer is almost always going to receive a better financing rate from a bank or credit union than they would if they arrange financing directly through the dealership.

The rare times when the dealer can beat a bank or credit union's deal is usually the result of a manufacturer's (the actual car makers such as General Motors, Chevrolet, Ford, Honda and Toyota rather than the local dealerships for these company's cars) offer designed to move excess inventory.

Customers are usually made aware of these manufacturers' deals through national advertising on the major television networks and other media.

However, should customers choose to arrange financing terms with the dealership, they can better protect themselves when quoted a rate by asking the salesperson and finance representative questions such as: What is the ultimate source of funds used to finance this purchase? Whose "indirect rate" are you quoting to me? Are you quoting me the same rate that the "indirect lender" quoted to you?

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from July 6 to 13. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-50. Occupants of government quarters are not permitted to perform major repairs and maintenance on motor vehicles within the family housing area, to leave vehicles on jack stands, or to leave component parts apart from the vehicle.

Vehicles found dismantled or abandoned will be impounded by the Military Police with a report of action forwarded to the owner or sponsor's commander. Inoperable or unlicensed vehicles will not be parked in the family housing area.

• A lieutenant was charged by civil authorities with attempted rape and aggravated assault after he held a knife to a woman's throat, forced her to undress and attempted to have intercourse with her.

• A specialist was charged by civil authorities with cruelty to children after his 3-month-old child was diagnosed by medical personnel with fractured ribs, retinal hemorrhaging and a head injury.

• A private was charged with damage to government property and failure to obey a lawful order or regulation (underage drinking) after he broke a window in his barracks laundry room. Investigation revealed the soldier to be 18 years of age and he registered .18 on the intoximeter.

• A staff sergeant was the victim of a hit-and-run incident while jogging. A driver exited the roadway, hit the jogger and then fled the scene without rendering any information. The staff sergeant was admitted to The Medical Center for spinal and head injuries.

• A sergeant first class reported that persons unknown broke into his quarters and stole a rifle, a BB gun, keys to two vehicles and a necklace.

• A sergeant first class was charged with failure to obey a general regulation and possession of a firearm after he responded to an alarm activation with a privately owned weapon. Further investigation also revealed that the weapon was not registered on post.

• A civilian contractor reported that persons unknown removed a radar detector, a rechargeable drill and two toolboxes from his unsecured truck.

• A specialist is pending charges in a traffic accident that resulted in a fatality. The car she was driving flipped twice, struck several trees and came to a final rest on its top. A 14-year-old occupant was thrown from the car and died from the injuries sustained.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the specialist who was observed by civil authorities traveling 80 mph in a 55 mph zone.

When the police officer attempted to stop him, he increased his speed and turned off his headlights.

He was eventually stopped and charged with speeding, fleeing and eluding and reckless driving.

Other activities included 26 traffic accidents and four reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were five cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, 17 cases of larceny of private property and nine cases of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the MIlitary Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

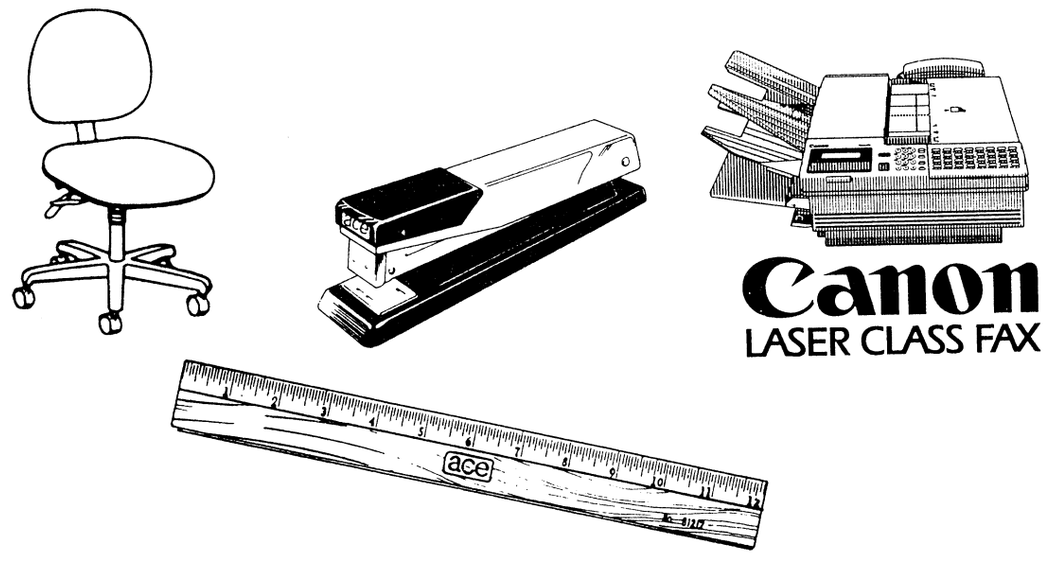
COMMISSARY CORNER

Defense Commissary Agency

The Defense Commissary Agency was established in May 1990 by the secretary of Defense in a consolidation of all four services' commissaries as recommended by the 1989 Jones Commission Report.

The agency is headquartered in Fort Lee, Va., and operates more than 380 commissaries in the United States and Europe. The system encompasses 22,000 employees and handles more than $6 billion in annual sales.

The system is divided into geographic regions and each region is administered from its respective region headquarters. The region headquarters for the Fort Benning area is located at Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala.



What are the rights of a commissary customer?

The DeCA believes strongly in customer rights. The DeCA Customer Bill of Rights states customers have a right to expect professional, courteous service; a clean, pleasant store; fresh, high-quality merchandise; well-stocked shelves; the best possible prices and quick, efficient checkout.

Customers who feel these rights are not being met can turn to their customer service representative for assistance, or voice their concerns to the installation Commissary Advisory Council.

SEALANTS
protect against decay

U.S. Army Dental Activity

Remember your first cavity? And your second one? And your third one? And so on? Despite the lectures your parents may have given you for letting those cavities form, believe it or not, there may have been nothing you could have done to entirely prevent them. You were avoiding sweets. You were brushing. You were using fluoride toothpaste. Still, you were getting cavities.

You may now wonder "why is that?" and "can children today protect against it?" The answer to the first question is "Pits and fissures." The answer to the second one is "Yes, with sealants."

Sealants are protection.

While regular brushing and flossing remain the best ways to prevent dental problems, the chewing surfaces of children's newly developed permanent teeth are still susceptible to decay.

Regardless of how well children practice dental care, this period of susceptibility will last from the time they are approximately 6 years old until they are well into their teens. In recent years, however, dentists have developed a highly effective form of protection that can help kids avoid cavities.

The method is the use of sealants, plastic films that are applied to the chewing surfaces of the teeth to protect them from decay.

The back teeth are the prime candidates for sealants because they are the most prone to decay. this is because of their peaks and valleys.

Invariably, at the bottom of each tooth's valley, there is a microscopic crevice. This is called a fissure. Their formation is quite common and quite unavoidable, during normal tooth development. On smaller teeth, it may only be a pit.

Brushing and fluoridation are not effective enough.

Because these openings are so tiny, the bristles of the toothbrush cannot reach the food and bacteria that collect in the crevices. Fluorides have proven to be quite effective in protecting the smooth surfaces of the teeth, but not very effective in the pit and fissure areas.

Best of all, the entire process is simple and painless. Because there is no tooth structure removed in sealing, no anesthetic is required. Chemical cleansers etch the enamel lightly to allow the sealer to thoroughly wet the surface, and hence, develop a strong, protective seal.

The fluid restorative sealing resin is then allowed to flow into the fissures and harden. Some types of sealants harden with exposure to air, while others need exposure to ultraviolet or visible light from a hand-held light source.

Decay in pits and fissures is one reason why most children get cavities. When you were young, this decay may have been unavoidable. Today, though, sealants afford excellent protection.

They should be applied to children's teeth as soon as possible, before decay has had a chance to begin. The modest investment in time and dollars will be more than repaid in better dental health through the ensuing years.

False want ads lure job seekers

Better Business Bureau

Better Business Bureaus across the country are warning consumers not to be taken in by "help wanted" advertisements for "assistant managers" or "manager trainees" that promise huge earnings but require no experience.

These ads, which never mention that selling is required, may lead job seekers into commissioned sales positions for products, such as perfume, cookware, video tapes or vacuum cleaners.

BBBs report that job seekers are not told that selling is involved until after they have been selected for the position. In addition, new hires may be asked to pay up-front fees for bonding, training materials or product samples. Even if the fees are said to be refundable, the conditions may be so strict that it may be hard to qualify for a refund.

While salaried positions are promised or implied, the workers may be required to make an impossible-to-achieve "minimum" number of sales per week in order to be paid the advertised salary. In some instances, companies have asked new hires to sign a contract prior to working so they will be considered independent contractors and not salaried employees of the company.

In another twist, these thinly disguised sales jobs are targeted toward college students as summer internship opportunities. The students also are promised high pay, as well as class credit and scholarships. What disappointed students have found is that the arrangement for class credit is solely up to them and scholarship money is tied to the volume of sales of the company's product.

Complaints against these companies by workers include being asked to misrepresent products in the sales pitch, being encouraged to make door-to-door solicitations, in spite of local laws prohibiting such solicitations, and being told to bypass "no solicitation" signs posted on businesses.

Job seekers who are considering answering an overly-appealing "help wanted" ad should be realistic about what the job entails and what it can deliver. They should watch the ads over a period of time. If the same ad for the same appealing job continues to appear day after day, and week after week, the job probably does not exist, or at least, won't live up to all that the ad promises.

Avoid lawn equipment accidents

Infantry Branch Safety Office

Every year more than 50,000 adults and children are treated at hospital emergency rooms for injuries associated with power lawn mowers.

Probably three times that many people are injured, but fortunately not seriously enough to require professional medical attention.

The extra care that you take when mowing grass whether at home or on the job is certainly worthwhile when you consider some of the alternatives.

What's the cause?

Serious lawn mower accidents are caused by objects picked up and thrown by mowers, riding type mowers tipping over when used on steep slopes, garden tractors or riding mowers used in reverse and running over or into innocent victims and contact with the lawn mower blade when clearing grass from the discharge chute or adjusting the machine before the blades have fully stopped.

Victims of hedge trimmer accidents are most often hurt while changing hand position with the trimmer still running, operating the trimmer with only one hand, or trying to hold the cord away from the blade.

Lawn mowers

• When buying a power mower, make sure it has a rear guard to protect hands and feet from blades and a downward-aimed discharge chute so debris is less likely to hit anyone nearby.

• Before mowing, rake up wires, cans, rocks, twigs or other litter cluttering the lawn.

• Don't ever cut a wet lawn — since grass often clogs the discharge chute tempting you to clear it with the machine running.

• Always turn off the mower and disconnect the spark plug wire or electric plug before unclogging or adjusting the machine. Even a slight rotation of the blade could start the engine.

• Never refuel a mower while it is running or the engine is hot.

• Mow across slopes if using a walk behind mower. With a riding type mower, drive up and down slopes for stability.

• If using an electric mower, take care not to run over the cord.

• Push, don't pull, a hand mower.

• Don't smoke near a power mower or near gasoline.

• Keep children and others out of the area being mowed.

• Wear safety glasses or goggles when mowing.

• The use of ear plugs is recommended for nearly all gasoline powered mowers.

• Don't store either the lawn mower or gasoline in a heated or utility room, or other confined area, where fires or explosion may occur.

Hedge trimmers

• Buy a trimmer with cutting teeth and guards close enough together so you finger can't fit between them.

• Be sure the trimmer has two handles, including a wide forward handle high above the cutting blades.

• Make sure the trimmer is a lightweight machine that you can handle easily.

• While cutting bushes, don't stand on a chair or ladder.

• Keep your hands away from the blade.

• Use a three-wire extension cord with three-pronged plugs.

• Never clean or adjust the trimmer while it is plugged in.

• Periodically check the cord for cuts, cracks or breaks in insulation. If you must repair the cord, use only recommended electrical tape, available at any hardware store.

• Keep the children and others out of your working area.

IOAC graduates leaders

By Jill Guerin
Special to The Bayonet ©

The graduation ceremony for 115 students of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course took place July 16 at 2 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

The students' graduation followed five months of rigorous training and intensive schooling in areas ranging from land navigation to battle analysis. Those selected to attend the course, which is geared toward preparing the officers for company command, include infantry officers, international officers and those officers who are most likely to be assigned to combat arms units.

The guest speaker for the event was retired Gen. William J. Livsey. Livsey served 35 years on active duty and is a veteran of both the Korean and Vietnam wars. Speaking to the guests and students, Livsey, a graduate of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course, stressed the importance of military preparedness and discussed the qualities of leadership.

"The American soldier is the best fighting soldier in the world and, as such, deserves the best leadership" Livsey said. "Leadership," Livsey told the graduates, "that's your job."

Airborne!

Class 34-93 jumps to graduation day

By Evalyn Williams
Special to The Bayonet©

"Move like lightening, sound like thunder," Lt. Col. Kevin Shea, guest speaker of the the ceremony, echoed the sentiments of Airborne Class 34-93 during its graduation July 16.

The graduation at Eubanks Field concluded a three-week course for Company C, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry that began June 28.

Airborne students are exposed to a grueling three-phase experience that begins with ground week where the trainees are taught how to jump from mock doors. The second phase is tower week, which consists of making practice jumps from a 34-foot tower. During jump week, practice jumps are made from C-130 and C-141 aircraft.

To complete their training, students must accomplish five successful jumps.

Throughout the course they participate in daily physical training that includes a mandatory nine-minute mile and leads up to a final four-mile run.

Each week, a company of cadets made up of soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines graduate. As with any military graduation, there were special honors awarded.

Two distinguishable awards are the William T. Ryder Award named in honor of the first officer paratrooper, and the "Red" King Award named for the first enlisted paratrooper. Sgt. Lee Deckelman was the officer honor graduate and Pvt. 2 Marriah Lee was the enlisted honor graduate.

Special honors also went to the guidon bearer, Cadet Sean Stanley; Keeper of the Wings, Cadet Matthew Szary; and Staff Sgt. Terry Davis was presented the Black Hat Instructor of the Cycle Award.

Rangers go up in smoke

By Darryl Foster
Special to The Bayonet©

First one lone grenade was popped and lobbed onto the field. Smoke poured out as the wind picked it up with haste. Someone, still unseen, tossed yet another grenade. A third and fourth followed. The smoke thickened and billowed with each gust of wind.

Two explosions heightened the anxiety of those watching the unfolding spectacle. Suddenly, swarms of shouting soldiers began breaking through the smokescreen.

This was the exciting prelude to the "hooah" charged graduation ceremony of Ranger class 8-93 July 16 at Malvesti Field.

LaTonya Parks sang a very soulful rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" drawing cheers and applause from the audience. She is the wife of ranger graduate Staff Sgt. King 0. Parks.

Command Sgt. Maj. Joe N. Heckard, the brigade's top enlisted soldier, presented the speaker, Col. David L. Grange. Heckard said Grange was a lifetime member of the ranger community. Grange is also the son of Lt. Gen. David E. Grange, after whom the Best Ranger Competition is named.

Grange immediately reminded the ranger graduates of their predecessors and the honorable profession they would now be a part of.

"These men who stand before you are about to receive the greatest symbol of honor any soldier can get," Grange said. In his short speech, Grange praised and at the same time charged the men saying, "You deserve to strut, but live the life. Hold up the standards, don't get fat and out of shape. That is the committment of a ranger."

"Be a ranger with all your heart, soul and body," he said.

Those honored as best among the best were: Capt. Kenneth R. Miller Jr. of the 193rd Infantry Regiment who was the Distinguished Officer Honor Graduate.

The Cpl. Glen N. Hall Enlisted Honor Graduate and award recipient was Pfc. Michael D. Balsaldu.

The Col. Tex Turner award for officer and enlisted were presented to National Guardsman 2nd Lt. Scott K. Rutherford of the 2nd Battalion, 6th Cavalry, and Spc. Jeffery P. Plank, 38th Infantry Division.

Also, the officer and enlisted leadership awards for the class was given to Capt. William H. Sheehy, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry and Spc. Roger J. Gance, 24th Infantry Division. Capt. Paul V. Marnon of 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry and Sgt. 1st Class Jose Ferreira, 10th Special Forces won the officer and enlisted Merrill's Marauders Award.

Love: More than a feeling

By Stephen Fry
324th Support Battalion (Forward)

"We love each other so very much" is the affirmation that couples always make as they plan their weddings. They always have sweet smiles on their faces. I guess my wife and I were that way as well two decades ago.

What happens to nearly half of those smiling couples? Statistics tell us that there are nearly as many divorces as marriages in our country.

As a counselor for more than twenty years, I keep hearing the same things over and over again- "We don't love each other any more." The question that always comes to mind when I hear this is, did you ever really love each other to begin with?

Love is often defined by couples as this warm, nice feeling. How do you know you are in love, I ask. "Because we just feel great when we are together."

I suggest that love is much more than a feeling. The New Testament tells us that true love is a giving of one's self.

In John 3:16 I find the essence of true love, "God so loved the world that he gave his son." Love means giving the best that you have to your partner.

All too often in relationships, partners are wanting or demanding. They need to be giving to each other and willingly meeting each other's needs.

We see so much of what is called love on television and at the movies. There the relationships and problems are built, worked out or destroyed in a matter of minutes.

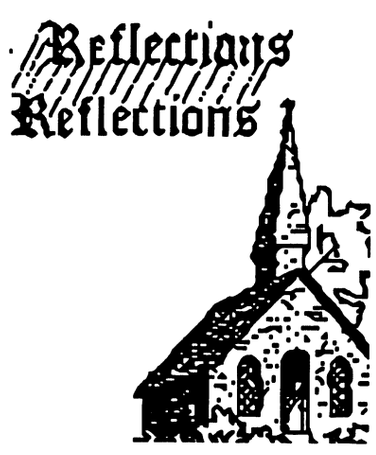
Real love means commitment, yes commitment. That is commitment to each other and to the marriage vows.

I remember one couple that was on the verge of breaking up. They had heated arguments about various subjects.

In one argument it came out that one spouse entered the marriage with the idea, "if the marriage doesn't work out, I'll just get a divorce." With a lack of commitment such as that, it is no wonder that the marriage was on the verge of breaking up after only a short while.

A couple I knew had fallen in love and married. Early on, they experienced that warm feeling of love. One night she went to the pharmacy to pick up some medication.

As she went through a green light, her car was hit on the driver's side by a speeding drunk driver that had run the red light.



When a deputy sheriff came upon the accident scene, he removed her from the car and covered her body assuming she was dead.

When the paramedics arrived, they were treating the other driver's broken arm when one of them heard her low moan. They took her to the hospital where surgery was performed that saved her life.

After several more surgeries and therapy, she could lead a fairly normal and productive life.

Since things were not exactly as they had been before the accident, her husband divorced her and left her to raise their small son. The husband was not willing to give a little extra to meet his wife's new needs in life. True love is "patient. . . kind. . . endures all things. . . (I Corinthians 13).

The warm feelings of true love come after a couple overcomes obstacles and grow far beyond that stage of initial warm love.

GOOD MARRIAGES
take love, work, commitment

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Many statistics tell us that most marriages occur during the month of June. Well, June has come and gone; and, like every year, many couples got married.

The feeling of love has filled their hearts and has led them to the altar. At the altar, they promise to love each other until death.

Statistics also tell us that love until death is very rare.

The statistics show us that many couples divorce within the first year of marriage.

What happened to that feeling of love they felt for one another? What happened after the honeymoon?

What happened to that great guy or gal they married?

Does this sound familiar to you?

You are not alone — many married couples wake up to this same reality everyday.

In order to maintain the happy marriage you had in the beginning, you have to work at it. That's right, work! This is what it takes to build any relationship. In order to work at it successfully, you must know the proper skills.

The Family Life Center is offering a marriage enrichment seminar in Custer Terrace Chapel to teach those skills. The class will be every Thursday to Oct. 7 at 7 p.m.

The class is open to the first 15 couples who make a reservation. For more information, contact Chaplain (Capt.) Pete Criner or Sgt. Sophia Boykins at 545-2017 or 545-1760.

Your Guide to Prime-Time TV: Cable and Broadcast Schedules

Richard Grieco is 'Born to Run' on Fox

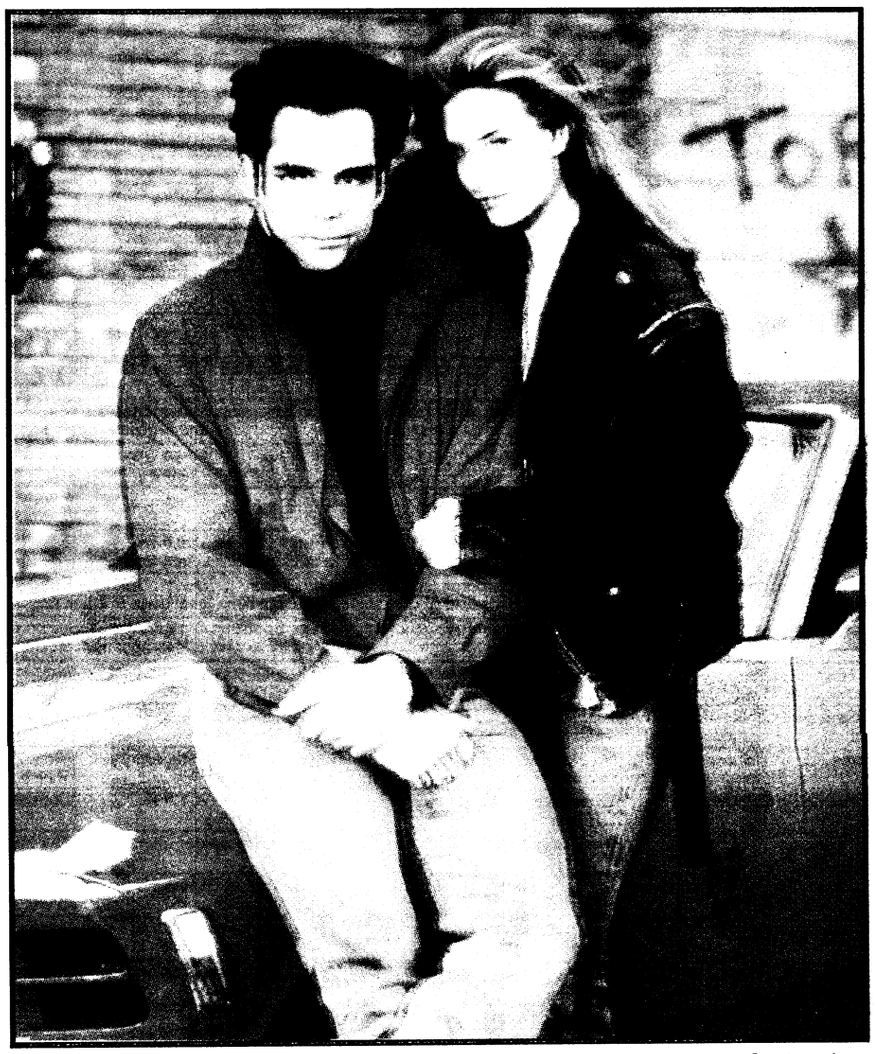
By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

He's been away from television for a while, but in a new TV-movie this week, Richard Grieco is making another run at it.

SPOTLIGHT

Formerly the star of the series "Booker"— which was spun off from "21 Jump Street," the show about young undercover police officers — the actor returns Monday to Fox Broadcasting in "Born to Run," a drama about a Brooklyn youth whose passion for fast cars and excitement gets him into considerable trouble with the underworld.

Big money is involved in the street-racing racket of which Nicky Donatello (Grieco) is the king, since individual bets of more than $50,000 can be placed on a single contest, and a local crime kingpin (played by Joe Cortese, of "C.A.T. Squad" and "Something Is Out There") wants a substantial share of the profits.



When Nicky's fortune-seeking brother (ex-"Beauty and the Beast" co-star Jay Acovone) wagers too much and loses his used-car lot to the mobster, the stage is set for a showdown between the other two men ... whose animosity is fueled even more by their mutual passion for the same woman, a sophisticated model (portrayed by real-life model Shelli Lether, in her acting debut).

The film was directed by Albert Magnoli, who also guided Prince through "Purple Rain."

"It's a fun movie," Grieco says. "The quarter-mile, outlaw street racing obviously is the main part of it, but it's also a real nice drama of the relationship between two brothers and a love interest. The racing is my character's way of feeling comfortable, and his way of getting out of Brooklyn. It's a real dramatic role for me, and I love the character. He has a wonderful sense of morality and of his own purpose, and his only rebellion is his honesty. He has to own up to his own decisions about what's right and wrong, based on seeing someone who is doing wrong — and losing his friends because of that — or selling out and not doing the right thing, just to stay friends with people. The story has a lot of aspects (that relate to) everybody's life, then, about what to do and what not to do.

"It's also a wonderful story of a young man dealing with the adult world in his own way," Grieco continues, "which is the only way he knows how to. Some of the adults (in the tale) have unjust power, and he has to confront that, so it's an interesting story." For all the emotional elements though, the behind-the-wheel action also is a major component.

The sports-inclined Grieco came to the film with better-than-average knowledge in that area, since he explains, "I've raced cars for three years, so I've had a lot of training. I did about 85 to 90 percent of all my character's driving. There's some stuff I couldn't do because of the complexity of some stunts; but, I'm a good driver, and I showed (the filmmakers) that."

Post opens armed forces' first sports medicine clinic

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Winder Health Clinic on Sand Hill was once just a facility supplying medical care to family members under Gateway To Care and Family Practice programs. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" to see highlights of the ceremony dedicating part of the facility as the Family Practice Sports Medicine Clinic of Fort Benning.

Stay tuned to "Fort Benning Today" beginning Monday to find out what Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White has done to keep Fort Benning's offices and family housing cooler as the summer heat continues.

Fort Benning news crews were invited into the office of the new commander of the 11th Infantry Regiment, Col. Walter Wojdakowski, Monday. See and hear highlights of the interview on "Fort Benning Today."

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel highlights post events and lists classified advertisements on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board featuring news and music from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

Music in Meadow concert says goodbye to summer

Barnsley Gardens

As summer winds to a close, Barnsley Gardens at Woodlands says goodbye to the season with the last in its subscription concert series, Music in the Meadow.

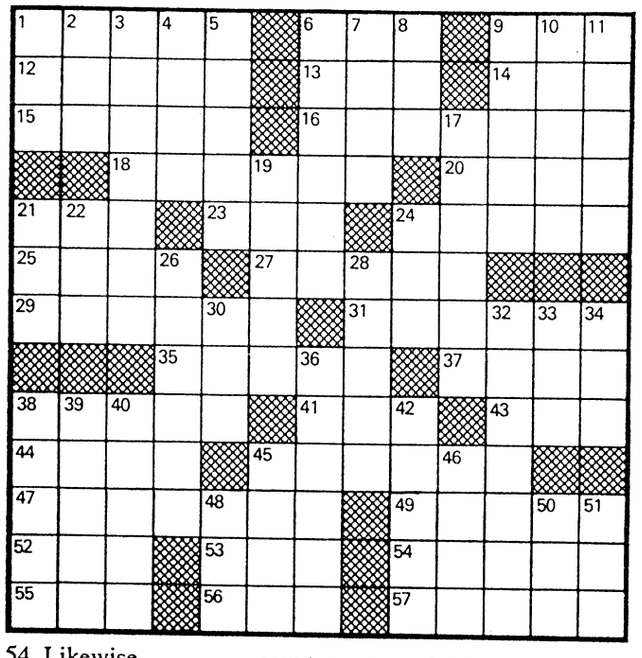
The stage will come alive at 7 p.m. with the music of the Pumphouse Players with selections from their upcoming production of Carousel.



Following this opening, the master of ceremonies Joe Tilley, will set the stage for the featured act.

Bring your family and your friends and enjoy this night of music and fun under the stars at Barnsley Gardens.

Everything from tasty meal baskets to quick snacks will be offered by the Green Rose Cafe. Picnic baskets and coolers are welcomed. Your blankets and lawn chairs will make for great seating or you may rent a chair for only $1. Admission is $6 for adults and $5 for students and seniors. Children 11 and under are free with paying adults.

Barnsley Gardens is located at 597 Barnsley Gardens Road, just off Hall Station Road between Adairsville and Kingston. Coming from I-75, take Exit 128, go west on Georgia Highway 140 and follow the signs. For information call (404) 773-7480.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Tad reassured Brooke that he told Dixie he was a happily married man. Ted, meanwhile, fibbed to Dixie that he had no romantic feelings for her. Derek called off the wedding. Edmund admitted to Brooke she was the model for the love of his life in his autobiographical novel. When Brooke insisted she wouldn't leave Tad, Edmund quit Tempo. Jack helped Lily communicate through the computer. Erica and Jack went to see Bianca in Seattle, while Kendall tore up Erica's note for Dimitri. Opal told Palmer she lied about coming home. Later Palmer confronted Tad, then sadly said goodbye to Peter. Gloria feared her marriage wouldn't stand up to Adam's convalescence. Wait to see: Dimitri makes a difficult decision.

ANOTHER WORLD: Grant followed Ryan into the cave where he saw two men fighting. In a panic, Grant fired his gun and realized he hit Vicky. Ian helped Vicky, then fled. The police asked Ryan to corroborate Grant's story. Carl reminded Ryan that if he had been honest with his feelings, Vicky might not now be fighting to live. Dennis and Marley broke up. Unaware she planned revenge for his part in the Cory takeover, Jake joined Paulina at the altar. After telling an unconscious Vicky he loved her, Ryan was upset when Grant later made her believe it was he who had been with her all along. Lorna received an upsetting telegram from Carl. Wait to see: Ian has another surprise for Grant.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Simone was puzzled by Leslie's forgiving attitude toward Linc. Hutch wrongfully assumed Rosanna and Evan had an intimate relationship. Later, Evan did not react when Rosanna called out Hutch's name in her sleep. Hal went to Peoria to find Cynthia. John asked Lily to support Iva in her battle against Holden for Aaron's custody. Graham paid off a witness who offered new evidence linking Royce to Neal's murder. Iva turned down John's proposal and left town with the children. Janice threatened Jeffrey about his gambling. Scott wrote Lisa he's not returning to Oakdale. Wait to see: The case against Royce seems airtight.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Jack told Sally about Brooke's claim to the Belief patent. Later, Sally told Connor her company could do more with Brooke's process than the Forresters could offer. After Connor rejected the family's offer of $3.5 million, he insisted on a detailed accounting of all profits from Belief. Thorne was upset that Macy wouldn't go to her Alcoholics Anonymous meetings. Ridge told a distraught Stephanie to call Jack and have him cheer her up. After hearing Jack agree to meet Stephanie, Saul took Sally to the cafe where she (unaware that it was a bye-bye buss) saw Stephanie kissing Jack. Wait to see: The Forresters now face two spurned women, but this time, Sheila is on their side.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: As Carly lay trapped underground, Vivian taunted her through a two-way radio, describing the limited oxygen and water supply in the coffin. Unable to sway Vivian, Carly tried to soften up Ivan to rescue her. Kate sent herself flowers, letting Kiriakis assume they were from Jack. Billie was shaken when she realized the man she saw firing at John and Kristen now knew she saw him too. After being hit by the bullet meant for Kristen, Rebecca told John she's leaving town, and warned him about Ms. Blake. The mysterious gunman was shaken when he overheard Carrie call Austin by name. Wait to see: Jennifer's "hooker" disguise brings trouble from an unexpected source.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: As Rhonda became increasingly upset with Karen for her new involvement in the underground party scene, Karen became closer to Stone whom she assumed was on her side. At Dominique's grave, Lucy expressed concern that Katherine could cause trouble for a troubled Scotty. After dinner with Alan, A.J. went on a wild bender. Seeing A.J. drunk at work, Julie stepped in to help him out. Felicia told Jagger she would help him find his younger brother. Victoria realized Bill's not the man she remembered. Wait to see: A puzzled Bill tries to unravel new complications in his life.

GUIDING LIGHT: Roger warned Holly he'll spurn her the next time she wants him. She warned him to be afraid if he tried to come to her house again. Jenna was puzzled when Buzz (who assumed she preferred Roger) rejected her. Marina was christened in a Greek Orthodox ceremony. Later, Marina's doctors told Frank and Eleni their daughter had a hearing problem which could be corrected with very expensive surgery. Nick arrived at Mindy's place to find her having a barbecue dinner with Macauley. Later, he searched Macauley's old police file and was alarmed at what he found. Wait to see: Hart defies Jenna's warnings not to come between her and Roger.

LOVING: Ava and Jeremy fled to Universal Studios after their trained pulled into Orlando. Meanwhile, Faison, followed by Shirley, whose passion for him grew stronger by the minute, followed the pair to their hiding place. Trucker was stunned to see Mac at the Tides. Mac was stunned when his friend, Dolly, turned up in town. Tess began her plan to reconcile Trucker with his long-absent father. Buck re-injured his back when he and Gwyn were stranded in a deserted boathouse. Casey began to suspect Cooper's disinheritance was a scam. Buck learned more about Gwyn's past. Jeremy contacted Europol. Wait to see: Jeremy and Ava face inevitable capture by Faison.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: On the stand, Todd swore Marty was a willing sexual partner. Urged by Kevin and Jason, Carol Swift agreed to tell Hank that Todd raped her two years earlier. Hank, however, was unable to recall her as a witness. Meanwhile, Nora realized the boys were guilty and put Powell on the stand, hoping he'll confess. Cord was released from the hospital as Angela fed Cain's fears about Cord and Tina. Viki and Bo returned from visiting Clint. Hank apologized to Kevin. Wait to see: Angela plays on Cain's rising jealousy.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Jill told John she would name their baby after her father, William Foster. John was not sympathetic to Jack's complaints about the baby's all-night crying. Kay told Liz she had a new grandson. Victor asked Hope to let him stay on the farm for a while. Later, Cliff asked Hope for her answer to his proposal. Cricket suggested Lynn let Paul know how she felt about him. Brad gave Sherman the tape incriminating Jack in a conspiracy. Cricket warned the tenants their fight with their landlord wasn't over. Victoria felt increasingly drawn to Cole as Douglas tried to find a way to tell Nikki Victor was still alive. Wait to see: Danny makes a potentially risky decision.

Les Miserables returns to Fox

Fox Theatre

Les Miserables also received Best Musical honors from the New York Drama Critics Circle, The Outer Critics Circle and The Drama Desk. In addition, Les Miserables received the 1987 and 1991 Grammy Award for Best Cast Recording.

Based on Victor Hugo's classic novel, Les Miserables is an epic saga that sweeps through three turbulent decades of 19th century France. The show is also the story of one man, the fugitive Jean Valjean, who is pitted against the cruel and self-righteous Inspector Javert in a lifelong struggle to evade capture.

The $4.2 million production returning to the Fox Theatre is one of the most expensive and elaborate Broadway shows ever mounted for touring and replicates the Broadway production in its entirety.

This production has set numerous attendance records, selling out in virtually every city it has visited.

In addition to the Broadway company, three United States touring productions of Les Miserables have been mounted. On Broadway, Les Miserables has been seen by more than 3.2 million people for a total gross exceeding $135 million.

In the United States, Les Miserables has been seen by more than 11 million people for a total gross of more than $400 million. Worldwide, Les Miserables has been seen by more than 29 million people, for a total gross of more than $750 million.

Internationally, there have been 25 productions of Les Miserables, in 12 different languages, in 16 countries: the United Kingdom, the United States, Japan, Israel, Hungary, Australia, Iceland, Norway, Austria, Canada, Poland, Sweden, Holland, Denmark, New Zealand and France. Les Miserables has been performed in 105 cities across the world.

There have been 24 recordings of Les Miserables, including the Grammy Award-winning original Broadway cast album, which recently went platinum (more than 1 million albums), the London cast recording which has sold 1.3 million albums, and the Grammy Award-winning Complete Symphonic Recording.

The film version of Les Miserables will be produced by Tri-Star Pictures and Cameron Mackintosh and will be directed by Bruce Beresford. ("Driving Miss Daisy," "Breaker Morant")

Presented by Cameron Mackintosh, Les Miserables was written by Alain Boublil and Claude-Michel Schonberg. Adapted from the French by Herbert Kretzmer, with additional material by James Fenton, Les Miserables was first brought to life at the Royal Shakespeare Company's Barbican Theatre in London by co-directors Trevor Nunn and John Caird, the team behind the RSC's triumphant production of "The Life and Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby."

Originally presented as a double LP pop opera recording, Les Miserables sold 250,000 copies in France alone, while one single from the album went on to sell 500,000 records.

Les Miserables was subsequently staged as an arena attraction at Paris' Palais des Sports in the Fall of 1980, where it was a critical and popular success.

The English language premiere of Les Miserables was presented by Cameron Mackintosh and the Royal Shakespeare Company at the Barbican Theatre in October of 1985.

Following a record-breaking engagement at the Barbican, Les Miserables transferred to the West End's Palace Theatre, where it has continued to be a sell-out attraction ever since.

Barnsley sets War Days

Festival honors past Southern heroes, history

Barnsley Gardens

Stroll through the days when cotton was king as Barnsley Gardens at Woodlands, Ga., presents War Days, a festival of Southern heroes and history.

Set for Saturday and Sunday, the past will come to life through toe-tapping entertainment, unparalleled craftsmanship and living history celebrating the triumph and tragedy of a time all but "gone with the wind."

In the meadow, the Civil War encampment awaits. Re-enactors representing both Johnny Reb and Billy Yank will be on hand to show you around their camp, display their gear and firearms and maybe even offer a sample of Army rations — salt pork and hard tack. The blow of the bugle and the rattle of the drums means it's drill time. Witness the soldiers engage in marching, firing practice and drills as they prepare for the big battle. Nearby, their spouses and children keep the home fires burning with day-in-the-life presentations in the civilian camp.

Saturday holds two extra special events not to be missed. At 2 p.m., the blue and the gray will square off in the old hay field in a skirmish reminiscent of those in the area leading up to the Battles of Atlanta 129 years ago. And on Saturday night, put on your best suit for the first Rose Garden Ball to be in the main parlor of the manor house. Who cares that it doesn't have a roof? We will dance the night away beneath the stars to the authentic period music of the 8th Regimental Band. The ball begins at 8 p.m. with an admission of $10 per couple in period attire or $20 per couple in modern dress. Refreshments and dance cards will be provided.

On Sunday, enjoy a day of rest beginning with an authentic period church service in the Woodlands Amphitheater at 11 a.m. Hymns and meditations will be offered by the duet Southern Lace and Jim McGaw on hammer dulcimer. Following, the event will resume in full speed for a second exciting day of action and fun.

The event opens each day at 10 a.m. with the last ticket sold at 5 p.m. The ticket price is $6 for adults and $5 for students and seniors. Children 11 and under are free with paying adults. Saturday's Rose Garden Ball requires separate admission and entry. Group rates are available.

Barnsley Gardens is located at 597 Barnsley Gardens Road, just off Hall Station Road.

Savannah: Summer ends with fall activities

Savannah Area Convention

SAVANNAH, Ga. — When August rolls around, thoughts turn to the return of school, Labor Day and the last summer 'fling,' warm days and cooler nights and back into a more routine lifestyle.

The feel of fall will soon be in the air ... and a round of new activities.

The second annual Savannah Maritime Festival, which coincides with the pre-olympic sailing regatta, runs through Aug. 8.

The spirit of Savannah's nautical history is celebrated in cultural and sporting events taking place throughout the week.

Wednesday will be the last candle lantern tour of the Tybee Lighthouse of the summer season providing an opportunity to enjoy the view of the sunset from atop Georgia's oldest and tallest lighthouse. Refreshments will be served.

On Aug. 7, the First Saturday Festival will feature a boat show and the Maritime Festival events celebrating Savannah's close relationship with the sea. Activities will include seafood vendors, art and crafts exhibits, mimes, Dixieland jazz, clowns, pirates and minstrels for a celebration of Savannah's past.

Aug. 25 marks the anniversary of the establishment of the National Park Service in 1916 and during the National Parks Day celebration special programs and films will be presented on Fort Pulaski National Monument and its place among the more than 350 national parks.

There will be free admission all day.

Labor Day weekend brings a variety of activities. The First Saturday Festival on Sept. 4 will feature an antique car show on the historic waterfront with arts and crafts beginning at 11 a.m.

Join several "Confederate soldiers" as they perform the routine tasks of Civil War soldiers on Sept. 4. Learn about the soldiers' uniforms, weapons, drill routines, diet and living arrangements. Tour the fort and view a movie presentation to be shown throughout the day.

Sept. 4 through 6, the theme of Labor Day Weekend, "Tools and skills that built a colony," will honor those first settlers who labored to make Georgia a success.

Ongoing demonstrations show visitors the various crafts and skills needed to build the colony of Georgia out of the wilderness.

Fort Pulaski will come alive with living history volunteers in period costume during the Labor Day weekend encampment of troops on Sept. 5 and 6.

There will be demonstrations of soldier life, musket and artillery demonstrations and other special programs.

Sept. 10 through 12 the Savannah Jazz Festival features jazz and blues legends and current chart toppers.

The different venues include River Street, City Market and Forsyth Park. This event was selected as one of the "Top Ten events in the Southeast."

Each class includes a complete copy of all recipes and a tasting of all dishes prepared and runs 6:30 to 9 p.m., $20 per class.

Sept. 25 brings open house at the aquarium when the public aquarium and associated marine science center facilities feature tours, lectures, field trips, lab studies and other special activities.

The Savannah Symphony may also play 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For additional information, a free copy of the Savannah Visitor's Guide or reservations through the Historic Reservation System, call (800) 444-2427, Ext. 2427.

Tybee Island schedules military appreciation

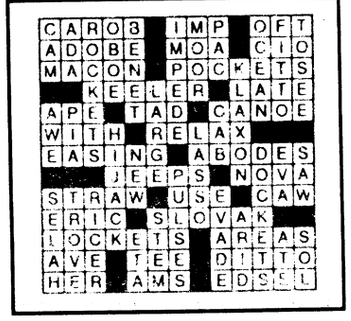
Savannah Area Convention and Visitors Bureau

SAVANNAH, Ga. — The City of Tybee Island, Ga., and the Colonial Island Lodging Association have scheduled the first of what will become an annual Armed Forces Appreciation Weekend Aug. 7 and 8.

This beachfront community has always been patriotic. Over Tybee's salt marshes and sand dunes have flown the flags of pirates and Spaniards, the English and French, and the Confederate States of America.

The Tybee area has been the site of other war-related activities with the formation of Fort Screven on the northern side of the island. It began as a coastal artillery station and evolved into a training camp for countless numbers of troops in World Wars I and II.

The celebration will allow civilians and their children the opportunity to mingle with military personnel and see some of the fascinating equipment they use.



"Armed Forces Appreciation Weekend" will feature a military volleyball tournament, a small parade of troops, live bands, free food and drinks along with great discounts from Tybee Island merchants, a civilian Miss Military bikini pageant and a King of the Beach hard body contest and the opportunity to enjoy Tybee's white sand beaches with swimming, surfing and lots of sun.

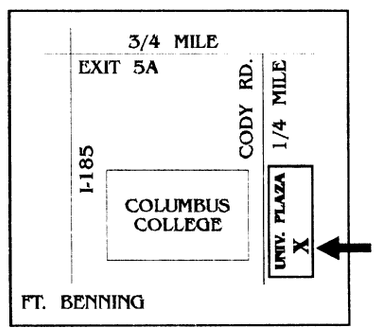
The parade will include units from all branches of the armed forces in addition to units from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Alee Temple units.



For additional information and free brochures on Tybee Island contact: Tybee Island P.O. Box 1628 Savannah, Ga. 31402-1628 or call (800) 868-BEACH for reservations and information.

HOROSCOPE

For the week of Aug. 2 to 8

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This week's positive business developments require your full participation. A loved one wants to share some time with you now. You could attend a very boring social gathering over the weekend, but you'll liven things up.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You start the week off on a lazy note. The chance arises for a fabulous trip. There are certain work obligations that must be tended to before you can go away with a clear conscience.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Money that comes in this week could go out quickly. Even if you have extra funds now, it is important that you budget and manage them skillfully. Try not to be overly familiar with someone you deal with in business.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An old bill may come due this week. Make sure you are up to date on your record keeping. Try not to let a domestic problem anger you. The good news is that partnership interests are highlighted.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) You have exciting new career plans this week that you are eager to act upon. Be patient when faced with pesky details that will delay your progress a bit. In some area of your life, you may feel that your feelings aren't being reciprocated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) You are on sure ground where work interests are concerned. A partner may feel neglected in some way this week. Be sure to be attentive and considerate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to October 22) A higher-up is easily provoked. Do your best not to upset the apple cart. Some family issues are presently unclear. Extra self-discipline is needed to offset an inclination to take things easy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Some duties at home will have to be attended to this week. Changes in plans or difficulties in reaching others may try your patience. You express yourself well now. You need to be discriminating about which social invitations you accept.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) This is not a good week to get involved with others financially. You may have to say no to a request for a loan. What starts out as an easygoing affair turns into a serious discussion between you and a friend about priorities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You have new offbeat plans, but this week is not a good time to present them to others of a more conservative bent. It is a week to rely more on self-discipline and hard work rather than charm where business matters are concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) You are able to turn a difficult situation at work around to your advantage. Curb a tendency to be impatient early in the week. Extra expenses may arise in connection with travel. The weekend finds you poetic and reflective.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) You may volunteer for an assignment in connection with a group activity. Your urge to help others is strong now, but refrain from extending cash loans. You could go on a shopping binge this week and must be careful not to burden yourself with too much debt.

Gardens not soaked by water bill

Cypress Gardens

At Cypress Gardens, less is more.

It takes a lot of water for visitors to experience the millions of blooms at Cypress Gardens' three annual floral festivals, so maintaining a state-of-the-art water conservation program is critical not only in keeping Cypress Gardens from getting "soaked" by its water bill, but in helping maintain an ecosystem balance in the central Florida region.

Since 1980, Cypress Gardens' water usage efficiency has continued to improve, an important factor given the increase in botanical and flower festivals at the park.

"Our staff of master horticulturists is constantly looking for ways to improve our conservation efforts," said Bill Reynolds, Cypress Gardens general manager and executive vice president.

"Through their ongoing efforts, we have been able to cut water usage at Cypress Gardens by approximately 60 percent over the past 12 years, while expanding botanical and floral offerings by 50 percent.

"The environmental educational experiences provided to our guests are put into practice throughout the park every day by Cypress Gardens' horticulturists," Reynolds said.

The design and implantation of a low-volume irrigation system is most responsible for controlling Cypress' water usage level. Water wastage and

New garden captures South

Cypress Gardens

Plantation Gardens, part of Cypress Gardens' "Wings of Wonder, the Butterfly Conservatory" expansion, captures the flavor of the South with four new botanical gardens featuring plants and flowers known to thrive in the southern United States.

Designed and planted to form geometrical shapes, these new gardens encompass 40,000 square feet and provide a picturesque view from Cypress Gardens' Kodak Island in the Sky, a revolving platform that lifts guests 153 feet in the air.

"Plantation Gardens truly showcases the specialty expertise of our horticulture staff," said Bill Reynolds, general manager and executive vice president of Cypress Gardens. "These unique interactive gardens, where guests are encouraged to touch and smell many of the plants, are a perfect complement to the sensory experience found in our Wings of Wonder exhibit."

This Southern-style encounter begins immediately upon entering the Plantation Gardens area where guests find themselves entering an outdoor "butterfly" experience. Shaped in the likeness of a butterfly wing, the butterfly garden displays blooming plants and flowers, such as "pentas" and "Mexican flame vine," that are appealing to Florida butterflies.

Next, visitors can stroll through an herb and scent garden where they will find an array of familiar scents such as oregano, garlic and mint, along with several less common herbs including lemongrass, rue and mallow.

In addition to being able to touch and smell many of the plants in the herb and scent garden, educational signs enable visitors to learn more about gardening in an environmentally friendly way.

After exploring the herb garden, guests will enter a vegetable and fruit garden filled year-round with several varieties of crops, including burgundy queen cauliflower, red Boston lettuce, tango onions, sparlder radishes and jade pagoda cabbage. For visitors and avid gardeners, educational information is provided on both conservation and home grown vegetables.

Finally, a multitude of colors will delight guests as they enter Plantation Gardens' own breathtaking rose garden which contains numerous varieties of the ever-popular flower including "Europeana" red, "french lace" white, "summer fashion" yellow and "angel face" lavender hybrid.

Plantation Gardens and Wings of Wonder, the butterfly conservatory, are located near Cypress Gardens' Southern Mansion, adjacent to Lake Eloise.

Cypress Gardens, an Anheuser-Busch theme park, is known for its botanical displays, flower festivals and water-ski shows. The park also offers other shows, museums, a children's ride and game area and much more.

Other Anheuser-Busch theme parks include Busch Gardens in Tampa, Fla., and Williamsburg, Va.; Sea World marine life parks in Orlando, Fla., San Diego, Calif., San Antonio, Texas, and Aurora, Ohio; Sesame Place in Langhorne, Pa., near Philadelphia; Adventure Island in Tampa; and Water Country USA in Williamsburg. The Anheuser-Busch theme parks employ more than 15,000 people nationwide.

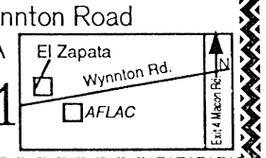
The system consists of polytubing, with the diameter approximately the size of a pencil, being placed into the plants' soil directly into the root system.

The direct placement of the tube, along with the resulting decreased sunlight exposure, reduces water evaporation.

A continuous drip or "oozing" system nourishes the soil and root system with water on a regulated basis according to the needs of each individual plant.

In addition to special water conservation efforts, Cypress Gardens' staff compost nearly 70 percent of the horticulture waste plant material. This recycled material is used to amend existing soil and new landscape installations.



Cypress Gardens' conservation efforts are just part of the "A Pledge and a Promise" corporate environmental commitment program established in 1970 of parent company Anheuser-Busch. "A Pledge and a Promise" was developed by the late August A. Busch Jr., who recognized what it would take to address environmental issues. Each day, employees at Anheuser-Busch subsidiaries strive to maintain the high standards established since the company was founded in the 19th century.

As one of the Anheuser-Busch theme parks, Cypress Gardens is committed to environmental and conservation. Anheuser-Busch Theme Park educational programs reach millions of people each year.

MEDICAL MAINTENANCE

Hospital has 'best' in HSC

By John Wynn and Deana Kussman
Martin Army Community Hospital

Running the Army's best medical maintenance branch has long been the goal of Martin Army Community Hospital; and, for 1992, the best is at Fort Benning.

Health Services Command, which oversees the operation of all stateside medical facilities, recently announced that the hospital had won the prestigious Medical Equipment Maintenance Award of Excellence.

The award recognizes the command's best medical equipment maintenance section based upon the state of readiness of the facility's medical equipment, utilization of manpower, successful completion of all administrative and maintenance requirements, an on-site inspection and the initiation of cost-saving innovations.

During the past year, the maintenance branch used a minimal number of commercial contracts and expanded its training program. This resulted in a savings to the government of more than $80,000.

"In the area of saving money, the branch did exceptionally well," said Col. Michael Kussman, the hospital commander.

When Kussman learned the hospital had won the award, he extended his personal gratitude to the men and women of the section. He credited much of the success to the excellent leadership of the section as well as the teamwork of the entire group.

"This is a perfect example of what can be achieved when good people work together on a common goal," Kussman said.

> "This is a perfect example of what can be achieved when good people work together on a common goal.

> — Col. Michael Kussman
> Hospital commander

Not only is this an accomplishment for the Medical Equipment Maintenance Branch, but the entire hospital and its patients have benefited from the high state of readiness at which the hospital's equipment is maintained.

The commander's praises were echoed by Maj. Peter Vandervoort, Logistics Division chief. The Medical Equipment Maintenance Branch is a dedicated, professional group of military and civilian personnel, he said.

"Standards of the highest order are maintained to assure support to the quality health care delivered at Martin Army, and I'm extremely proud of their untiring efforts," said Vandervoort.

Chief Warrant Officer 2 Daniel Callahan orchestrated the operations of the Medical Equipment Branch that lead to this honor. Maintaining today's sophisticated medical equipment and complex systems requires both highly trained technicians and administrative personnel, he said.

Trail under construction

Heavy construction equipment operator Spc. Brian Miller of Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, lowers the blade of his grader to begin the refurbishing of the Follow Me Fitness Trail. The 43rd will enhance the 20-station, 32-exercise fitness trail, which is located at the intersection of First Division and Dixie roads, by installing side ditches and water drainage culverts. The trail is designed to develop cardiovascular conditioning, flexibility and muscle tone. The project is expected to be completed by Sept. 30.

3rd BDE

to change commanders August 13

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Command of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), will change hands Aug. 13 during a 9 a.m. ceremony on York Field.

Col. Michael Deegan, formerly the operations officer of the Berlin Brigade, will assume command from Col. Robert J. St. Onge Jr.

St. Onge took command of the 3rd Brigade in October 1991. The 1969 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., also holds a master of science degree in industrial relations from Purdue University and a master of arts and science degree from the School of Advanced Military Studies. He is a graduate of the U.S. Army Command and Staff College and the Army War College.

St. Onge previously commanded the 4th Battalion, 18th Infantry, 3rd Armored Division during operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

He and his wife, Joan, have three children.

His next assignment will be as the chief of staff of the 1st Armored Division in Germany.

He has held a number of command and staff positions both in the United States and overseas, including command of the 5th Battalion, 5th Cavalry, 3rd Armored Division in Germany and during operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

He previously served in the 24th Infantry Division as an enlisted soldier.

Deegan holds a master of science degree from Stanford Business School and studied as an Olmsed Scholar at the University of Heidelberg.

He also graduated from the U.S. Marine Corps Amphibious Warfare School, the Armed Forces Staff College and was a national defense fellow at the Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway Center for International Studies at the University of Pittsburgh.

He and his wife, Isabel, have two children.

- There will be new school assignments for some Fort Benning students when school begins Aug. 31.
- In order to meet the registration requirements, parents should bring certain items to the school when they register students.
- Registration and reidentification of students in kindergarten through eighth grade for Phenix City Public Schools will be Thursday and Aug. 13 from 9 a.m. to noon.
- Fort Benning needs parents to serve as school crossing guards.
- All Muscogee County school students should have received a letter of assignment to their designated school. New students should call 649-0624.

Fiscal 1994

Health care faces budget cut

By Evelyn D. Harris
American Forces Information Service

The president's proposed fiscal 1994 Department of Defense budget includes a $226 million decrease for health care over the fiscal 1993 budget.

This decrease equals more than $400 million when inflation is considered.

The cut is due to the drawdown of military forces. Officials expect the number of beneficiaries to drop from 8.5 million to 8.2 million.

In addition, management improvements will allow the department to save money while continuing to provide accessible, quality health care, officials said.

The budget requests $9.4 billion to fund the Defense Health Program.

The program unifies the armed services' medical programs and budgets under the assistant secretary of defense for health affairs.

Most of the request — $9.1 billion — will fund operation and maintenance of existing facilities as well as the cost of Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services, the military health insurance program.

Last year's operation and maintenance budget was $9.3 billion, $205 million more than this year's request.

The 1994 budget includes $273 million for procurement, including equipment for new and updated hospitals.

The CHAMPUS portion of the budget is $3.9 billion, 10 percent higher than 1993's $3.5 billion figure, said Dr. (Rear Adm.) Edward D. Martin, acting assistant secretary of Defense for health affairs.

The White House Task Force on Health Care, headed by Hillary Rodham Clinton, is studying ways to reform the nation's health-care systems.

Martin expects the task force's report to affect the way the Department of Defense delivers health care.

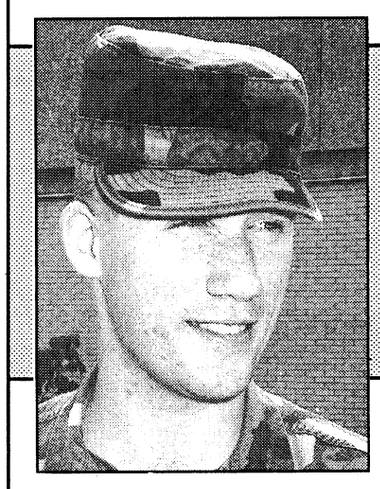
Therefore, DoD has delayed expansion of some coordinated care elements until details of the task force efforts are known.

Officials will hold off on adding the third "plus" option to Tricare until they hear the task force recommendations.

Tricare is a triple-option coordinated care demonstration project in the Norfolk, Va., area.

The plus option allows enrolled beneficiaries to receive health care from military facilities or from a network of preferred providers.

Beneficiaries not enrolled in the plus option can save money by using the network (the "extra" option) or choose to stick with basic CHAMPUS (the "basic" option).



Coordinated care is the name DoD has been using for its effort to restructure the military medical system.

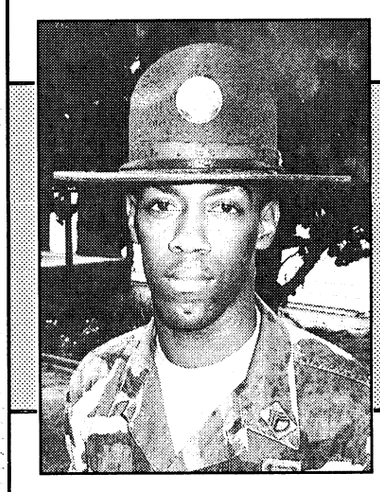
It coordinates military and civilian components of the military health services system and emphasizes using military facilities as much as possible.

Over the past year, Martin said, DoD has made significant progress toward coordinated care and can transition to it if the task force and Congress approve.

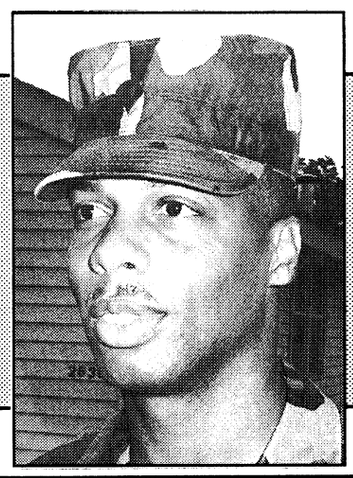
VARIOUS VOICES

What is the most common military courtesy violation you have observed?

Spc. John J. Betham, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "Soldiers are neglecting to say 'sir' or 'ma'am' when talking to officers."



Pfc. Amy B. Bruno, Adjutant General Replacement Detachment — "It seems to me soldiers don't treat noncommissioned officers the way they are supposed to and don't address them properly."



Spc. Richard E. Coffey, Headquarters, Ranger Training Brigade — "Soldiers don't salute general officers' vehicles, and people don't stop their cars on the road in front of Infantry Hall to get out and salute when the flag is raised and lowered."

Staff Sgt. Sherrard A. Thomas, Company C, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment — "When a ranking officer enters the mess hall, no one calls 'at ease' or 'attention.'"

Spc. Darrin N. Johnson, Adjutant General Replacement Detachment — "I see soldiers violating standard procedure when talking to NCOs or officers by not coming to the position of parade rest or attention."

Salute! It shows pride

That includes you officers, too — especially company-grade types

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

COMMENTARY

Maybe it's the heat. But it seems people aren't saluting as often as they should.

And by "as often as they should," I mean like when encountering any officer for us enlisted types or a higher ranking officer for those in the officer ranks.

At first glance, one might suggest it's soldiers with attitudes who aren't doing the saluting.

But company grade officers seem to have developed a kink in their elbows that prevents them from bringing their right hand to their right temple and rendering a snappy salute.

Soldiers who don't want to salute find all sorts of ways to avoid this time-bound ritual.

They cross the street when they see officers approaching; if that's not possible, they pretend to be looking at something else.

But the lieutenants and captains just seem bent on not saluting.

And they especially fail to salute vehicles with colonels and generals inside.

Maybe they think those plates with eagles or stars are just for decoration, that someone wanting a personalized front plate went to the Post Exchange at the Main Mall and bought one.

Guess again, officer breath, those vehicles have real, live colonels and generals riding inside.

So what's the harm in passing up an opportunity to render a salute?

The occupant may have his driver stop the vehicle in order for him to teach the nonsaluter some manners.

But more than likely, he'll go about his business, yet wonder about the morale and esprit on the installation, especially if he's a visitor from another post, or even a visitor from one unit area to another.

After all, unit areas and posts where soldiers are eager to salute anything that moves and especially like to sound off with a loud, cheerful greeting are considered to be posts where morale is high and soldiers trained for anything.

On the other hand, where salutes are rendered grudgingly, if at all, a visitor concludes there's a leadership problem.

Salutes rendered willingly and enthusiastically are signs of good unit morale and discipline and mark the difference between mediocrity and military maturity.

A salute from an unwilling soldier is as meaningless as the moving of a leaf on a tree; it's a sign only that the subject has been caught by a gust of wind.

But salutes from soldiers who take pride in the gesture because they feel privileged to wear the uniform, having found military service good, is most effective and is the mark of military virtue.

One way of instilling discipline, of course, is through on-the-spot corrections.

If soldiers or junior officers see noncommissioned officers and officers letting this nonsaluting business slide, then it sends the wrong message.

The noncommissioned officer or officer who belittles and harangues a soldier who failed to salute is not going to develop a desire to salute in that soldier who walks away from his tail-chewing thinking, "what a jerk."

Instead, the NCO and officer need to point out the reasons for saluting, but he or she should do it without giving a 20-minute lecture, complete with visual training aids.

Now for all those who called in to let me know I'm a jerk because of last week's air-conditioning column, let me end with this quote from Harold Ickes, a public official in the 1930s and '40s:

"The columnist's stock in trade is falsification and vilification. He is journalism's Public Enemy No. 1; and, if the American press is to improve itself, it must get rid of him."

LETTERS

Who's who in cashing checks at Post Exchange at Main Mall

My wife and I went to the Post Exchange the other day, and she was going to cash a check from her sister to purchase some items.

To our great dismay, the Post Exchange would not cash the check because the name on the identification card was not the same (as the one on the check). The check was made out to Patti, and my wife's name is Patricia.

After a long conversation with the head cashier concerning an investigation by the Criminal Investigation Division, she said explicitly Maj. Gen. (Jerry A.) White informed the Post Exchange not to cash checks if the names are not exactly the same.

Why is this a problem all of a sudden?

So all you Roberts, Williams, Jameses, Richards, Davids, Thomases, Michaels and the rest of the people who have (common names that are changed to nicknames), beware, the Post Exchange head cashier says she will not cash your checks (if the name on the check does not match the one on the identification card).

To add to this absurdity, the head cashier will cash a check if only the initial to your first name and your last name are on the check. This policy sounds stupid.

Add this to the equation. I called the Secretary of the General Staff to check. White made no such recommendation. I called Eugene Wheeler, the Post Exchange manager. He knew of no such policy.

I know the Post Exchange is not a bank, but it is not practical to change bank accounts whenever the Army reassigns its personnel. Let us see if the Post Exchange management can let common sense prevail.

Master Sgt. Richard E. Rhodes
Fort Benning

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service has implemented a policy that tightens the rules on the cashing of two-party checks.

This is primarily because of a recommendation made by the Criminal Investigation Division, not only here at Fort Benning, but throughout the Army.

A fairly large number of the returned checks we receive are two-party checks, and it is very difficult to collect when the maker (writer of the check) is not either a service member or a family member.

I am not sure how Maj. Gen. (Jerry A.) White's name got in this conversation and it certainly shouldn't have been.

To defend myself a little, when Rhodes called, I told him that I wasn't aware of a policy change, but that I would like to check on it and get back to him.

With the volume of regulations, policies, etc. that we operate under, there are many policies of which I am not aware.

Upon checking with the store manager and his personnel, I discovered that there was in fact a new policy.

Quite frankly, it appears that we have established an overly restrictive policy that penalizes our customers.

I am forwarding instructions to all AAFES facilities to use common sense in the cashing of checks where there is a nickname used. This policy was effective Sunday.

Reader is offended by Snively's 'heat' commentary

As a military family member and an intelligent person, I am greatly offended by Clyde Snively's commentary "If you can't stand the heat ..." that appeared in The Bayonet July 30.

To say that we lack imagination and common sense to do something about the heat index in our quarters is not only ridiculous but slanderous.

How dare Snively (a male reporter who wrote this column) pass judgment on and ridicule family members.

I suggest he spend several long, hot afternoons and evenings in family quarters with small children where the air conditioning has been and is cut off for six hours a day.

Then see how much imagination, creativity and energy you have left to do your job, whatever it may be.

In these trying times for the military, the Army should be encouraging family members, not making us feel like second-class citizens if we complain about the lack of comfortable living conditions in government quarters.

Family members should not have to spend hard-earned money on fans to keep temperatures bearable when their quarters already have air conditioning.

We sacrifice enough for the U.S. Army with never-ending deployments and long hours away from families.

Morale is bad enough right now without "our own" putting us down.

I demand an apology to family members for this condescending attack on our intelligence, imagination, common sense, stamina and right to free speech.

However, after a commentary like Snively's, I don't know if we'll believe you.

Some community of excellence, huh?

I am writing to ask for the assistance of your readers in collecting information for my doctorate thesis in military and strategic studies.

The topic is a comparison of lifestyles and social issues affecting the U.S., Canadian and European militaries.

Anyone who is willing to help is asked to contact me. All ranks and services are welcome.

Of particular interest are those members who possess special military qualifications (such as rangers, SEALS —(Sea/Air/Land special operations warriors, Special Forces personnel).

All contacts will be acknowledged and participants will be compensated for their time.

Summer employment

Post provides jobs for Columbus youths

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

About 185 Columbus youths found jobs at Fort Benning this summer.

They participated in a federal government-sponsored summer youth employment program providing jobs for economically underprivileged youths ages 15 to 21.

The Directorate of Civilian Personnel, working with installation managers and the local community, placed youths in offices and activities all over post.

The program is designed to give youths their first work opportunities, said Bill Phillips, one of the counselors who acts as a liaison between the program participants and their supervisors.

The program provides participants the chance to "learn what it's like to work in a business setting," Phillips said, and gives them a variety of entry-level skills.

Many youths work in clerical positions, where they practice skills like typing, filing, answering telephones and using computers.

They also work in food services, at the hospital and in skilled-labor positions like carpentry and painting, Phillips said.

Eligibility for the program is based on family income and determined by the Georgia Department of Labor, said Bob Swygert, a Columbus youth program coordinator.

Installation managers work with local community to place youths in offices, activities all over post

Handicapped youths are also eligible, regardless of income level, he said.

The program originated in 1983 with the Job Training Partnership Act, Swygert said, and operates in eight counties.

Before 1983, similar programs were supported under the Comprehensive Education and Training Act.

Fort Benning provided positions for 185 of the 472 participants in Muscogee County this summer and is the only program that provides transportation to and from work for the participants, thanks to Post Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White.

Four buses provided by the Directorate of Logistics pick up participants at several locations in Columbus and drop them off at their work sites on post.

"Fort Benning should be proud," said Gary B. Burkhalter, a senior personnel staffing specialist for the Directorate of Civilian Personnel, which coordinates the placement of youths on Fort Benning.

"This has been a very successful program. It is a wonderful opportunity for the participants to develop skills and career paths," he said.

Participants work 8 a.m. to noon for six weeks. During that time, Burkhalter said, "our purpose is to give the participants meaningful employment so they learn, or reinforce, good work ethics."

"Not only does this program assist the community and the youths themselves, it helps us," Burkhalter said.

"With downsizing, there are a lot of areas that need the extra support," said Julie A. Hartmann, who had two extra employees this summer in the Personnel Management and Systems Support Division thanks to the program.

"They have been critical in helping to keep things running," she said.

One of these employees was Joseph Thomas, 15. This was his first job, he said, and he looks forward to coming back next year.

"There were a lot of people here who helped me learn how to work in an office area," he said. "It was a nice job to have."

Alvin Owens, 18, worked in the Training and Development Division.

He will be a senior this year at Carver High School and plans to go on to study computer graphics or engineering in college.

He was glad of the chance to become familiar with state-of-the-art office equipment, he said, and "was glad to be here and learn more about how office work is done."

"This program provides an important first step for many of these youths," Burkhalter said.

"Many participants go on to receive other jobs based on the experience they gain here."

"The support rendered for this program by the entire Fort Benning chain of command is another example of the military and civilian community working together," said Theresa V. Gunter, director of the Directorate of Civilian Personnel.

"It is an indication of their continued commitment to quality of life issues," Gunter said.

VA encourages vets to refinance home

Department of Veterans Affairs

The Department of Veterans Affairs is encouraging veterans to increase their net monthly income by refinancing their VA-guaranteed home loans at lower interest rates.

It's a win-win-win situation for veterans, the economy and lenders, VA Secretary Jesse Brown said. Veterans increase their ready cash to improve their home or start a college fund, for example. The lender gets a loan of greater quality with less risk of default and new income from fees for originating new loans.

Veterans can refinance their VA-guaranteed loans in two ways — through a regular refinancing loan or through an interest rate reduction refinancing loan. This type of loan is used strictly to reduce the interest rate on a loan and requires no property appraisal or credit underwriting and, therefore, no out-of-pocket expense to the veteran.

There are currently more than 880,000 veterans with outstanding VA-guaranteed home loans with interest rates of 9 to 9.99 percent. More than 700,000 still have loans at interest rates of 10 percent or more.

At an average of $90,000 for a VA loan, the minimum monthly savings would be $257 million for those 1.58 million loans if they were refinanced at a current low rate of 7 percent.

Jobs bill to aid new veterans

Department of Veterans Affairs

WASHINGTON — Recent veterans whose military skills don't readily transfer to civilian jobs may now get help from a new federal training program that will pay certain costs to participating private employers.

The Service Members Occupational Conversion and Training Act is aimed at veterans discharged after Aug. 1, 1990, who have had difficulty getting steady work. Jointly implemented by the departments of Defense, Labor and Veterans Affairs, the program will pay wage reimbursements up to $10,000 to employers who establish approved training and offer prospects of long-term employment. Reimbursement of up to $12,000 is available for training certain disabled veterans.

"This program not only provides jobs for veterans, but it also provides an excellent opportunity for employers, including small businesses, to add employees to their work force and get help in offsetting training costs at the same time, said VA Secretary Jesse Brown, whose agency has been assigned the lead in implementing the bill.

VA will perform program administration activities along with the Department of Labor. VA will also provide educational, vocational and readjustment counseling to qualified veterans who are interested in these services. The Department of Defense is funding $75 million earmarked for employers who provide jobs to qualified veterans.

To qualify, a veteran must have been honorably discharged from active military service after Aug. 1, 1990, and served for more than 90 days, unless discharged earlier because of a service-connected disability.

Eligibility is then based on either the Defense Department's determination that the veteran's primary or secondary military occupational specialty is not readily transferable to the civilian work force, or the veteran is unemployed at the time of application and for at least eight of the 15 weeks immediately preceding application.

Eligibility also is extended to veterans discharged after Aug. 1, 1990, who have a VA service-connected disability rating of 30 percent or more.

Employers can apply to participate in the program by contacting the nearest employment or job service office for details, applications and assistance in establishing approved training programs.

Veterans also may contact their nearest employment or job service office for assistance or call their nearest VA regional office at (800) 827-1000.

PRIMUS

PRIMUS IS CHANGING

On February 1, 1993, the Columbus PRIMUS Clinic became the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic. As of this date, the clinic will be open to non-active duty military beneficiaries registered in the Army's Gateway To Care Program and enrolled to receive their primary health care at PRIMUS. As a Family Practice Clinic, PRIMUS will expand its services and offer its enrolled members:

- Comprehensive family practice medicine, including routine physicals, treatment of a wider range of acute and chronic conditions, and extensive laboratory and radiology testing.
- Guidance for all healthcare treatment, including diagnostic testing, speciality referrals, and follow-up care.
- Both scheduled appointments and walk-in visits.
- Telephone consultation with qualified healthcare personnel to determine whether and when to seek medical care.

To enroll as a member of the PRIMUS Family Practice, active duty family members and retirees and their families should attend one of the Army's Gateway To Care briefings or contact the MACH Health Care Finder at 544-1447/1591. Enrolled members can receive more information on our Family Practice services by calling the clinic at 561-7066.

Power specialists provide relief

Generators add energy during curtailment

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Generators pumping 3,000 kilowatts of electricity into the Fort Benning system came on line July 8 to help provide relief from the summer heat.

Prime power specialists from Fort Belvoir, Va., linked their four 750 kilowatt generators with the installation's electrical distribution system to provide additional power. The electricity produced by the prime power unit allows the Directorate of Public Works to provide air-conditioning to residents of the post during curtailments.

Set up in the Harmony Church area, members from Team D, Company B, Prime Power Battalion, operate the five heavyweight diesel generators that can provide, while running four at a time, 3000 kilowatts of power, said Sgt. 1st Class Pat Gleason, team chief.

In an agreement with Georgia Power, post officials curtail energy usage during certain hours when the demand is greatest. Fort Benning profits from this deal by buying electricity at a reduced rate all year long.

When the utility notifies Fort Benning to curtail usage, the post shuts down certain electrical systems such as air conditioning at its own discretion.

When notified, Fort Benning has 30 minutes to curtail its demand for electricity from Georgia Power to a preset negotiated limit.

The objective, according to the Energy Management Branch officials, is to obtain the cheapest prices for energy, not to save energy.

Georgia Power notifies the post every morning of the possibility of curtailment, said Glen Todd, utilities sales and services officer. When the curtailment takes affect, the Energy Management Branch will contact the power specialists when to come on line with the generators.

The energy produced by the generators reduces the demand for energy from Georgia Power, resulting in more energy for Fort Benning without having to break the curtailment agreement, Gleason said.

A single generator unit can use 120 gallons of diesel fuel an hour. With the four units running during curtailment periods, 480 gallons of diesel are expended per hour, at the cost of 71 cents per gallon; a total cost of $340.81 for the 3,000 kilowatts produced.

That energy, if not produced by the generators, would be billed at $100 per kilowatt. The same 3,000 kilowatts would come to a total cost of $360,000 per year, Todd said.

William Riley Hall

Staff Sgt. Robert Siegworth, prime power specialist, adjusts controls on a generator.

The power specialist team came to Fort Benning through a request to their headquarters at Fort Belvoir from post officials.

Fort Benning is now their permanent duty station, but they are on call to leave their mission here if needed for emergency relief in another area, Gleason said.

POST BRIEFS

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Aug. 15.

If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-6, C-1, C-2, C-3, D-11, D-17, E-5, K-8, K-9, K-18, M-2, M-6, M-8, O-1, O-3, O-5, O-6, O-7, Q-2, S-1, T-5, T-6, V-1, V-2, V-3, V-4, W-2, X-1, X-3, X-3 and X-4.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas.

People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

Stress classes available for civilians

The Directorate of Civilian Personnel will conduct stress classes for civilians affected by the reduction in force.

The classes will be Aug. 31 and Sept. 2 from 9 to 11 a.m. in Infantry Hall. Those employees who have received separation letters should attend the seminar Aug. 31.

Employees who are being displaced (bumped or retreating to other positions) should attend the Sept. 2 seminar.

Nominations may be made by calling the Training and Development Division, DCP, at 545-5580 or 545-5656 by Tuesday. Coordination should be made through activity training coordinators.

Band wants members

The Infantry Band is looking for qualified soldiers to become band members.

The band is at 75 percent strength and is in need of soldiers who are proficient at playing the following instruments: trumpet, saxophone, trombone, baritone, tuba and snare drum.

Anyone interested should call the Infantry Band for an appointment to audition. Soldiers who wish to audition must bring a letter of permission from their commander to audition.

Included in the letter should be a statement of release from present assignment if accepted by the band.

For more information, call 1st Sgt. Robert Tolton or Staff Sgt. Kevin Twyeffort at 545-5313.

Suggestions

Put your ideas to work, trade them in for cash

By Rick MacHamer
Army News Service

Simple solutions to major problems are as good as gold to soldiers who put their ideas to work in the Army's Ideas for Excellence Program.

Just ask Sgt. 1st Class Chris A. Roth, who is about $1,400 richer for suggesting a simple fuel hose replacement for M-1 Abrams tanks undergoing maintenance.

The cheaper and more durable replacement part performed better and saved the Army more than $22,600 in just one year.

The Ideas for Excellence Program is designed to reward soldiers who save Army dollars by suggesting ways to work smarter and do their jobs more efficiently. It's significance is increasing as budgets shrink and dollars dwindle.

An idea of Capt. Paul Rivette netted him more than $2,100. He suggested that Bradley Fighting Vehicle's intake/exhaust grill screens could be repaired instead of replaced, and saved the Army almost $47,000 in the process.

Likewise, Sgt. Randy Staten's suggestion to reduce the number of protective control boxes needed to train soldiers on the M-1's electrical system saved $14,437.

The amount of the cash award is based on a percentage of the dollars saved, up to a maximum award of $25,000. In fiscal 1992, the Army adopted 590 suggestions from soldiers that saved more than $7 million.

Those savings are reinvested to provide improved equipment and expanded Army programs.

To submit an idea for a cash award, you only need to fill out a simple suggestion form.

For more information on cash awards and the program, contact your installation resource management office Ideas for Excellence Program manager.

Editor's note: For more information about Fort Benning's suggestion program, call Twyla Shmizu at the Directorate of Resource Management's Manpower Office at 545-IDEA.

ACAP Q & A

Army Career and Alumni Program

Here are some of the most frequently asked questions about the Army Career and Alumni Program. The answers to these questions reflect the most current policies and positions.

For additional information or clarification about ACAP — call 545-4892 or call 545-4902 or stop by Building 2617.

What is ACAP?

The Army Career and Alumni Program is designed to provide services and counseling to assure soldiers, Department of Army civilians and family members quality transition from military life to civilian life.

Why does the Army and the nation need ACAP?

ACAP provides transition service to departing personnel. It creates a recruiting multiplier. It establishes strong partnerships with the private sector.

ACAP allows career soldiers to concentrate on the Army mission because they know that when they need services, they will be available.

It reduces unemployment and other associated costs.

What benefits do members of the Army family, employers, and/or the nation at large derive from ACAP?

In addition to those above, the Army family leaves better prepared to make the transition into the civilian sector; employers receive a better trained and motivated employee with skills and abilities not generally available in the civilian sector; the nation receives individuals who will serve as role models and who are willing and able to contribute to the community at large.

If ACAP did not exist, who/what could fill the void?

There are many private sector companies who can supply these services, but they'll cost the individual between $1,000 and $10,000.

There are also many government agencies that supply some of the services (i.e., Army Community Services, Department of Labor, etc.). ACAP ensures that these services are coordinated and directed towards those who need them.

There seems to be a large number of government agencies performing the same mission. What makes ACAP unique?

ACAP is designed specifically for members of the Department of Army; it's easily accessible; and it's an integral part of the Army's personnel system. These allow ACAP to give individualized and complete service to its clients.

The downsizing is projected to end in fiscal 1995. What are the plans for ACAP after it completes that mission?

ACAP is an enduring program; it has an important mission that will survive after the downsizing is completed. It adds an important dimension to an individual's productivity life cycle — to the Army, future employers and the nation.

What services are provided?

Every individual who visits ACAP first receives a needs assessment and an individual transition plan. Based on this appraisal, clients are then sent to the appropriate service providers who will assist them in their transition.

If they need job assistance, they will be sent to the Job Assistance Center where they will receive job search workshops and seminars, individual assistance and counseling, assistance with writing resumes and cover letters, and access to various job data base — including the Army Employer and Alumni Network.

Are there any plans to add/subtract/modify those services? How? Why?

Yes. ACAP is continually evolving. We will alter our services as the needs of our clients change.

How much do those services cost the American taxpayer?

The fiscal 1992 budget for ACAP was $34.5 million, which comes out to about $243 a client.

Why should they be willing to pay that bill?

An individual who is prepared for the job search will more quickly find employment and will reduce the social welfare and unemployment rolls.

The smooth transition back into the civilian work place will allow former military members to continue to contribute to the nation's economy as a whole and help make it more competitive in the global marketplace.

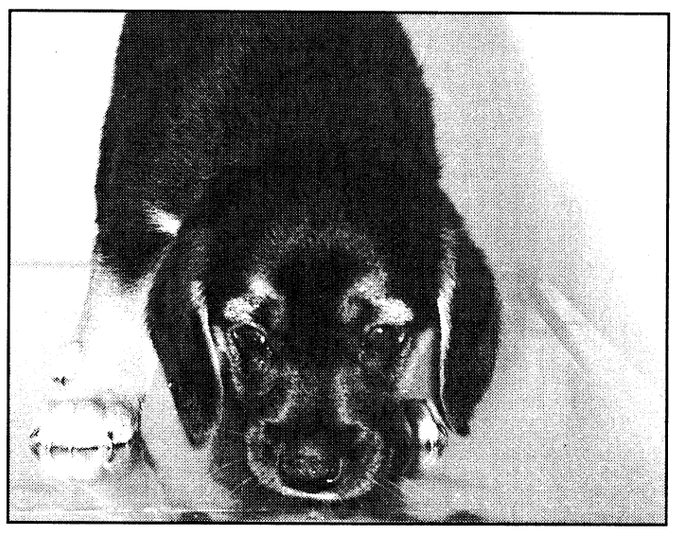
How much would those services cost individuals if they didn't use ACAP?

Such services can cost between $1,000 and $10,000. In fact, many outplacement services charge individuals about 15 percent of their annual salary in fees.

How is it different from the Defense Outplacement Referral System and the Transition Bulletin Board?

The Army Employer and Alumni Network lists employers that have expressed an interest in hiring Army alumni (listed by job type and location); the Defense Outplacement Referral System allows individuals to place a mini-resume on an employer-accessible network; and the Transition Bulletin Board provides actual job announcements and employment information from numerous government agencies and private sector employers.

Both DORS and TBB are Department of Defense automated referral programs and are available at all ACAP offices and selected ACS centers.



How many jobs have you gotten for transitioning Army personnel?

ACAP is not a placement service and does not get jobs for transitioning personnel. The Job Assistance Centers train personnel through seminars, workshops and individual counseling to confidently and competently seek and secure employment.

To whom do you provide services?

Soldiers who have had at least 180 days of continuous active service, Department of Army civilians, and family members of transitioning individuals. Individuals remain eligible for services for up to sixty days after their separation.

PET OF THE WEEK

This female mixed-breed puppy is approximately 8 weeks old and is looking for a home.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Bandits steal post championship

Women's softball ends with summer sizzler

Terry K. Ray/Special to The Bayonet

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Bandits of the women's softball league are the U.S. Army Infantry Center champions. A 13-12, come-from-behind win July 30 at Gowdy Field against the Silver Foxes rewarded the Bandits with their first title.

The Bandits stole their way to victory on a bases-loaded walk to Kim Shawver in the bottom of seventh inning after scoring three runs earlier in the inning to tie the game at 12-12.

Silver Foxes coach Bob Fors intentionally walked the bases loaded when he put Bandit right fielder Sachaico Cyrus on first base with a free pass. Shawver who was 0-for-3 on the day watched as Trena Mobeley dropped four balls across the plate to send the winning run in from third base.

The Silver Foxes dropped their second championship game in as many years, losing to Tuff-E-Nuff last year in the championship.

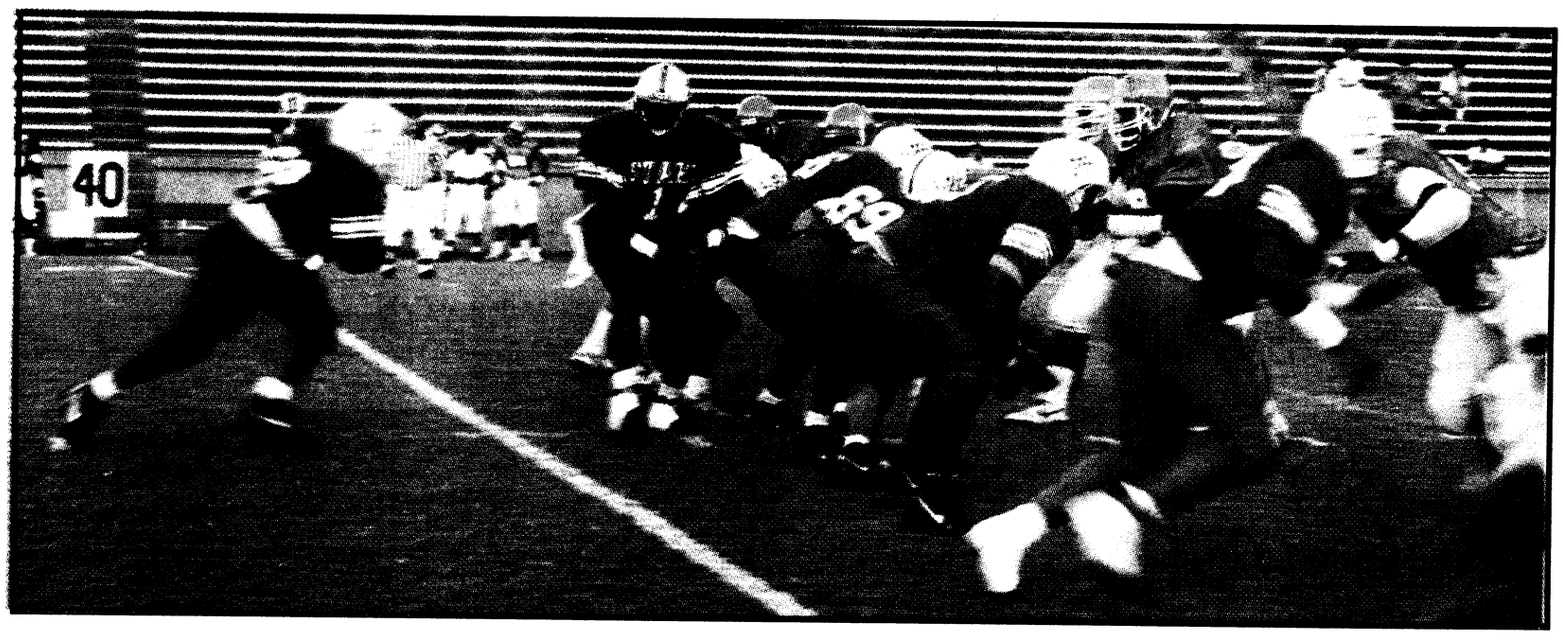
"We just can't get over the hump," said Fors. "Give the Bandits credit — they came back to win when they needed to most."

The Foxes looked like they were on their way to an easy win when they opened the top of the first inning with a four-run outburst.

The Bandits chipped away with a run in the bottom of the first to cut the lead to 4-1.

In the third inning, the Foxes pushed the lead back up to 7-1 on a two-run triple from third baseman Dawn Davis and an RBI double from second baseman Becky Castalon.

The Bandits closed the gap to 7-4 in their half of the third. A three-base throwing error on Davis at third allowed Shawver to reach third base to open the inning. A single from first baseman Liltensie Ferguson scored Shawver. Two outs later, an infield single from Gaynell Henton scored Ferguson. Another infield hit off the glove of second baseman Becky Castalon by Valerie Patterson drove in Hinton who kept running after the ball got away from Castalon and scored from second base.



The Silver Foxes put the pressure back on the shoulders of the Bandits when they added two more runs in the fourth inning to go up 9-4. With two out and the bases loaded, left center fielder Mary King doubled to the left field gap scoring two runs. The Bandits avoided further damage when right fielder Rhonda Felton grounded to short for the third out of the inning.

In the bottom half of the fifth inning, the Bandits climbed right back into the ball game with a four-run outburst of their own, to trim the Silver Foxes lead to 9-8. A three-run homer from Hinton and a short pop fly RBI single off the bat of designated hitter Janice Randall drove in all four runs of the inning.

The Bandits tied the game at 9-9, in the sixth inning when pitcher Vivian Womack reached third base on a three-base error by second baseman Leigh-Ann Haines who had just swapped positions with Castalon who moved to shortstop, and a single by Cyrus to right.

The Silver Foxes jumped right back out in front in the top of the seventh inning with a three-run explosion to take a 12-9, lead with a half inning to play.

The Bandits' "never-say-die" attitude showed up in the bottom half of the seventh. A double by right center fielder Tammy White and a single from Hinton put runners at first and third with no one out. A force out at second from Patterson scored White from third. Catcher Regina Jackson reached first when Hinton was safe at second on a fielder's choice. Randall plated Patterson on a single to right. Third baseman Renthia Robbins tied the game with an RBI single down the left field line. An infield pop fly by Womack turned into an out when home plate umpire called the infield fly rule. Coach Fors then had his pitcher walk Cyrus to load the bases and set a force at any base. The one thing he couldn't defend against was a walk, and that's what he got.

Columbus Stars take down Outlaws

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Columbus Stars evened their record at 1-1 with a 12-6 win over the Outlaws of College Park Saturday night at Memorial Stadium.

The Outlaws, led by quarterback Darrell Brooks, took the early lead late in the first half 6-0 after the Stars were unable to push the ball into the end zone on three different possessions.

Two turnovers and a change of possession on downs hurt the Stars in the first half, especially when they had the ball in the Outlaws end of the field for most of the half.

In the second half, the Stars offense got in the game. On their second possession of the third quarter, quarterback Eddie Mitchell moved the offense on a short drive that started from the Outlaw 28-yard line.

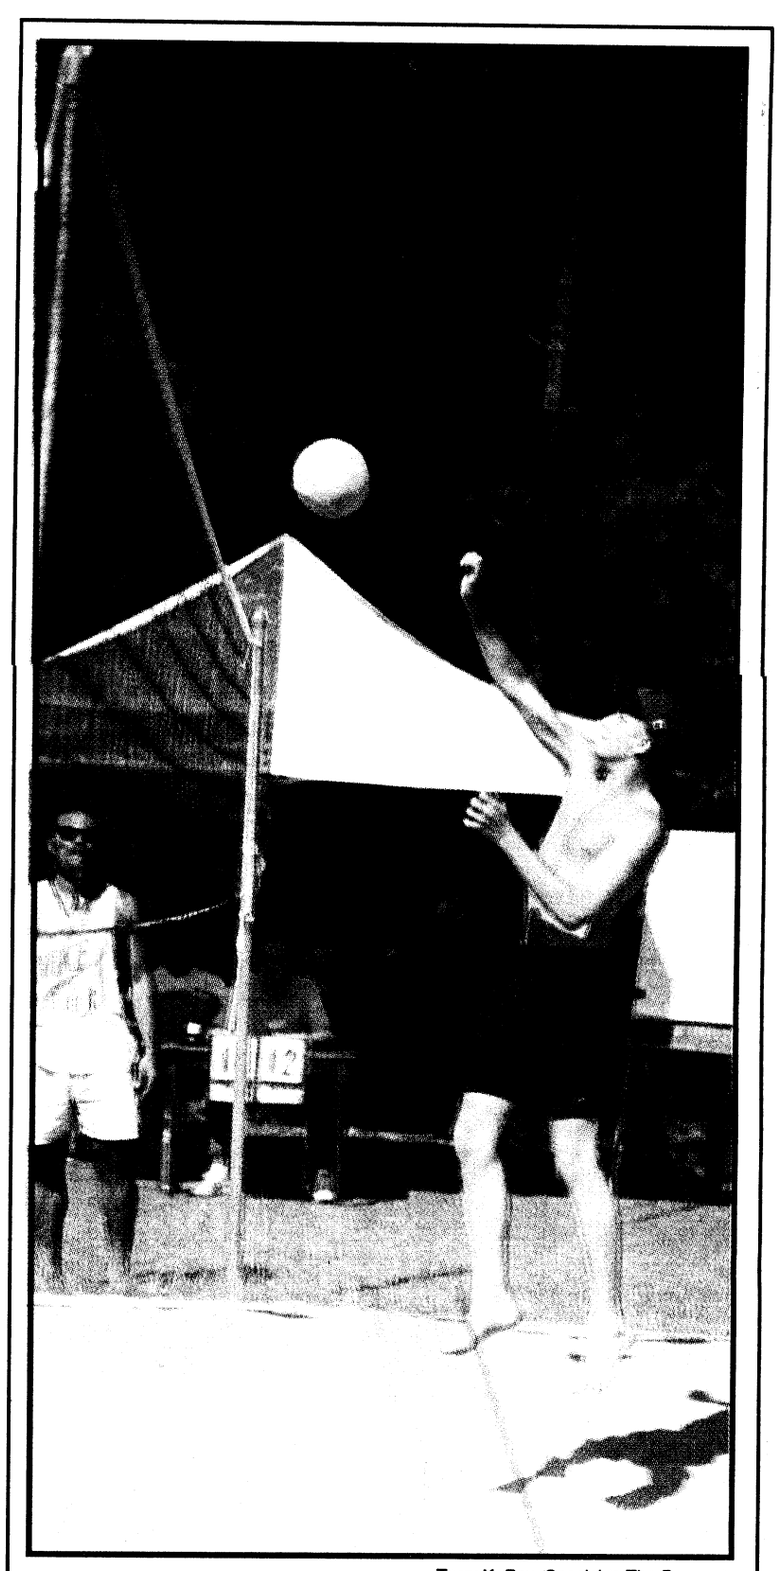
Fullback Jamon Smith was used on three plays, gaining all 28 yards and the Stars first touchdown of the season on a 5-yard rumble around right end to tie the game at 6-6.

The Stars got their second score of the night with just under five mintes left in the game when Mitchell hit wide receiver Rodney Simmons with a 19-yard touchdown pass that was originally supposed to be a hand off to tailback Michael Bailey.

"Eddie made a great read on the play," said Bailey. "If he had given the ball to me, the linebacker had moved up and was in position to ring my bell. When the cornerback moved up, that left Simmons wide open in the corner for the touchdown."

Coach Tom Staton was a little peeved with his team at the half.

"I'm normally a quiet person, but I let them have it at the end of the first half," said Staton. "We should have been up by at least two scores; instead we were down by one. The team had their mind on everything but football."



The defense for the Stars has been the difference in the last two games. Giving up 15 points in eight quarters of football, the Stars defense has been able to keep the team in the game until the offense can get untracked.

It was no different Saturday when the Stars defense shut down the Outlaws late in the game with the ball resting at the Stars own 10-yard line. Four plays later the ball was still outside the Stars goal line, and the Stars had the ball.

The ground game went to the Stars with a total of 153 yards to the Outlaws 149.

On defense, the linebacking corps of Thomas Bryant, Terrance Perry and Frank Lewis combined for 17 tackles, two assists and one interception.

The Stars are on the road Saturday to play the North Georgia Wolfpack. The next home game will be Aug. 14 against the Atlanta Cannibals at Memorial Stadium at 8 p.m.

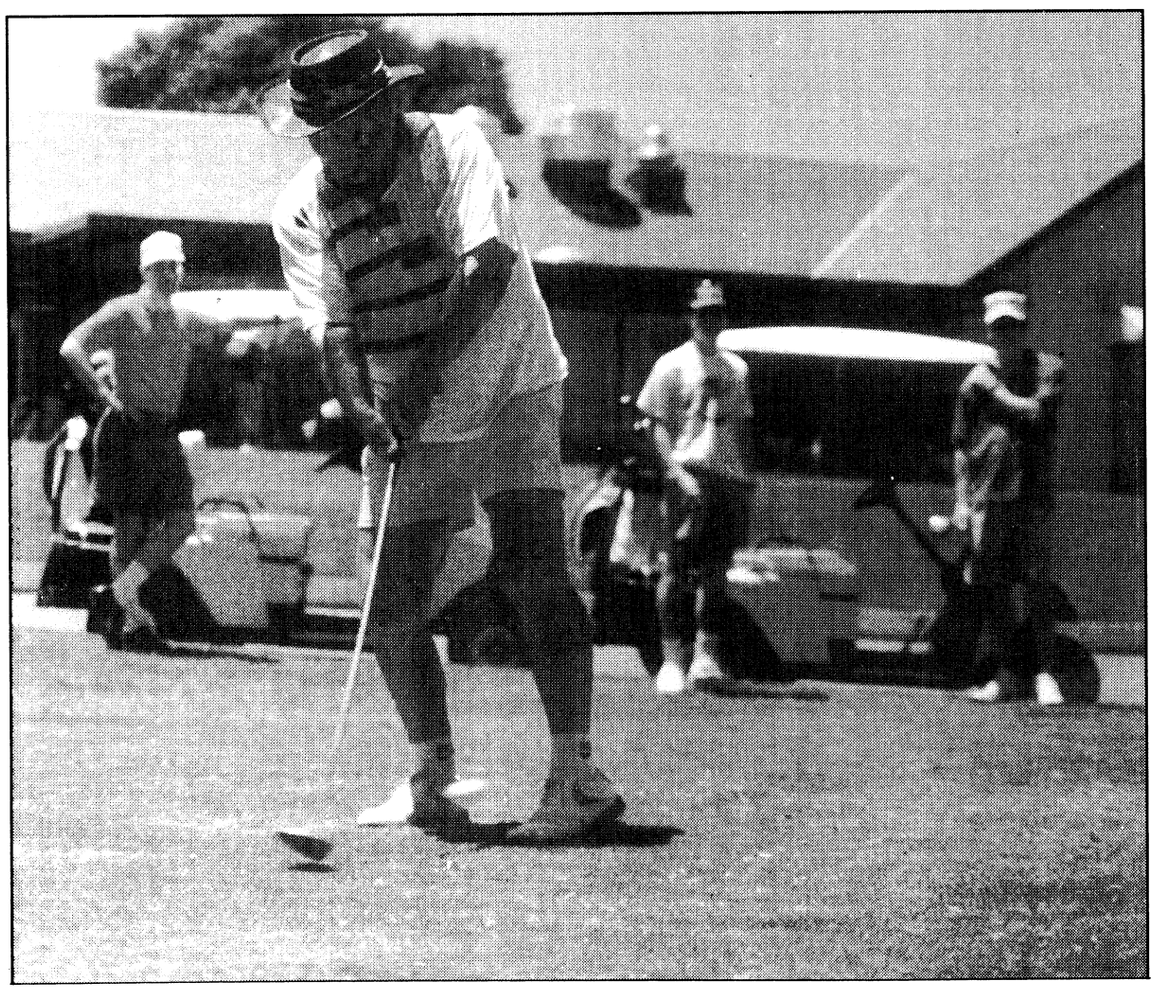
RedStixx: South Atlantic season draws to close

Columbus RedStixx

With just over a month remaining in the season, each series becomes crucial for the Columbus RedStixx in their quest for the second-half Southern Division title.

The Savannah Cardinals — winners of the first-half title — continue to lead the pack in the Southern Division, but the RedStixx have been playing their best ball of late and are currently just 1.5 games back.

After this current road trip ends, the RedStixx and Cardinals will have just two head-to-head games remaining (today and Saturday). Otherwise, it will be up to each team to win its games and hope the other one loses. That feat begins this week as the RedStixx host the Greensboro Hornets and the Albany Polecats.



Greensboro won the first-half Northern Division title with a 45-25 record, but could only win one of four from the RedStixx when they met in Greensboro in June.

Greensboro currently leads the Sally League in batting (.277), runs (587), hits (944) and home runs (75). They have a hot hitter at nearly every position, but here's a few names that have carried the New York Yankees farm club this season.

Short stop Derek Jeter, named as the Yankees second best prospect by Baseball America, is batting over .300, but could use some more work on his defense.

First baseman Nick Delvecchlo is tied with RedStixx Derek Hacoplan for the league lead in home runs (18), and has only missed one game this season.

Both were South Atlantic League All-Stars.

Medical Department Activity sponsors July's payday activities tournament

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The U.S. Army Medical Department Activity hosted the July payday activities golf tournament July 30 at Follow Me Golf Course.

More than 90 golfers turned out to play in the sweltering heat.

The team of Gilbert Velez, John Richards, Marcia Flo and Dwight Fancher fired an 18-hole score of 61 to take top honors.

Second place went to Bruce Williams, David Flo, Harry Linsenbigler and Ben McCallister with a round of 62.

Mike Reese, Richard Cisco, Kim Ward and Bobby Jones shot a score of 63 for third-place honors. A score of 63 placed Bob Antoskow, Ron Martere, Cecil Ramsey and Terri Wentzel in fourth place.

Low score on the back nine was used as a tie breaker.

Fifth place went to Bill Powell, P.J. Threatt, Patrick McKenzie and Rick Soules with a final score of 64.

Rounding out the top seven spots was the team of Errol Moran, Hector Silva, R. Hercules and Richard Marcure with a score of 64.

There were individual winners for closest to the hole on four different holes.

On the sixth hole, Angela Jerman won a $25 gift certificate. Other winners were Eugene Powell for hole number eight, Robert Anderson for hole number 13, and Bob Antoskow on hole 16.

On the ninth hole, Threatt won a pack of 15 golf balls for the straightest drive.

The longest drive on hole 10 went to Antoskow and a dozen golf balls was the prize. Slats Henderson scored the longest putt on hole 18 for a $25 gift certificate.

Mary sets the example

By Michael Travaglione
USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

The Roman Catholic feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin was established in 1950.

Her divine maternity is regarded as the immediate reason for her assumption into heaven.

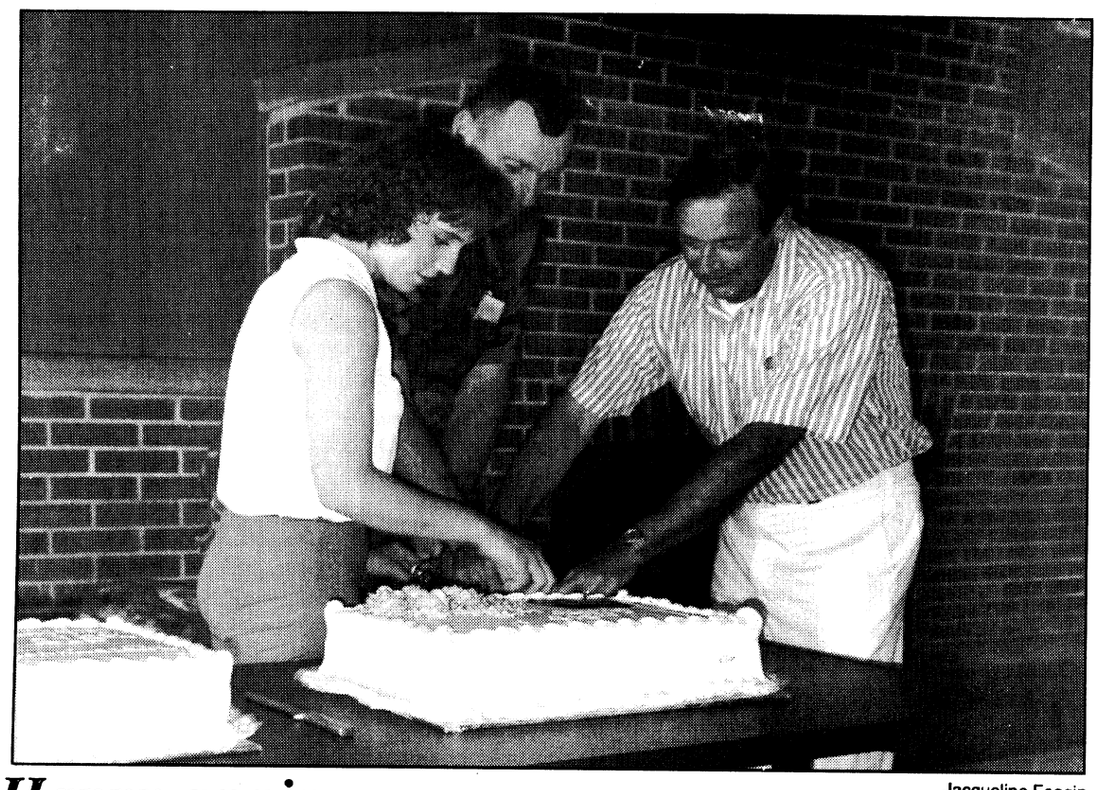
The formal reason for the preservation of her body from corruption and for her privileged assumption into heaven is found in her immunity from all stain of original sin.

Assumption means that our heavenly mother entered into the glory of heaven not only with her soul but also with her body.

Since the Son of God took his body from Mary's most pure womb, it is fitting that her body was glorified as soon as her life here on Earth was ended.

Now our blessed mother sits on a sublime throne in heaven.

There she is queen. Every time she asks Jesus to give his graces, he listens to her plea.



We believe she was not subject to the corruption of the grave but was raised up by the omnipotence of God. She was taken up, body and soul, into heaven.

We also believe that in heaven she occupies a higher place than all other creatures. She is enthroned queen at the right hand of her son. We believe in her maternal goodness.

After the resurrection from the dead, we too will go to heaven with this body of ours. This will occur because of our baptism into the body of Christ.

After the resurrection, our body will be perfect. It will not be subject to illness any more. It will not need any more food and drink to stay alive. It will be able to go every place without time or effort. It will be beautiful and splendid.

Let us prepare for our glory in heaven by imitating our blessed mother's virtues, especially obedience, charity, purity and patience. And finally, let us rejoice with our celestial mother and ask her intercession now and at the hour of our death.

Happy anniversary

Nurturing, admonition

Families share responsibility

By Robert McCroy
USAIC Chaplains' Office

This morning on my way to physical training, I walked by my neighbors who were also starting the duty day.

She was in civilian clothes loading a child into a child seat in the rear of the car. He was dutifully standing at his door serenely drinking a cup of coffee awaiting the completion of his wife's task.

I saw a young family starting the day with the agreed upon division of labor. He would arise and get ready for work; she would do the same and likewise prepare the child.

I thought of the time on Sunday morning when our children were small. I wanted to be early for services, practice the sermon and greet early arrivals. So I would be up and ready and in the car in plenty of time, utterly oblivious to the time required to prepare our two children for Sunday worship. My wife was never pleased when I honked the horn to speed up the process.

Recently I came across a passage in the Bible in Ephesians 8:4. "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

I thought again of the young family I saw early that morning. Did Dad ever take the nurturing role, getting that little one up, bathing him, dressing him? Would Dad take time reading and playing with his son or would those tasks routinely fall to Mom?

How quick we are to analyze performance, pick out the incorrect action and make the necessary "on the spot" correction. Yes, corrections need to be made. That is the flavor of admonition. But have we earned the right of leadership by our expression of caring nurturing? Can we include in our definition of manliness tender-hearted encouragement? Is there a place for praise lavished upon our children, so they know they are loved and have value and worth? That is the flavor of nurture.

"Lord teach me to nurture those in my care. Help me to encourage them often with my words while they are still with me. Let my corrections appear only as momentary interruptions to the ongoing care I provide to those entrusted to me. May you, dear Lord, receive the praise for my effort to strengthen those I love. Amen."

God: He is the 'final reality'

USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

Dr. Francis A. Schaeffer wrote a manifesto to Christians warning them about the valueless society that is certain when humanistic relativism is adopted — lots of big words.

What it means is that our nation and our world are rapidly adopting a perspective with no absolute values — no "higher law" to determine right from wrong. Fewer and fewer people acknowledge the existence of God and the unchanging moral code established by him.

Instead, it is popular to believe that the "final reality" is only material energy shaped by pure chance. There is no real right or wrong, only legal or illegal, or permissible and prohibited, as determined by the individual.

In this kind of world, excellence is measured by conformity, and goodness has no real meaning. To talk of evil is to be old-fashioned or superstitious.

When striving to be the best, we need to set our goals beyond the stars and the world's humanistic goals.

Looking good is not enough. Being good is only possible with God. His absolute standards show us the difference between good and evil, right and wrong.

In the light of these absolutes, God judges our lives and actions. God is the "final reality" and we are responsible for all of our actions. The burden seems too much to bear. It is still God who holds us responsible to the standard of absolute perfection.

Alone we are doomed to failure. With Jesus Christ, we find forgiveness and are declared acceptable to God once again.

Christians should 'get the log out'

By Dale Forrester
USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

The folks who study genetics for a living tell me I probably inherited a gene from my dad that makes me prone to alcoholism.

When I was a younger man, I discovered that even if I didn't understand genetics all that well, I could experience the reality of my inheritance.

I liked to drink. There's no getting around it — I liked it. I guess you might say I was born an alcoholic. Now that doesn't mean I have to go out and get drunk. (I don't.) It just means I'm bent that way. You could say that alcoholism is my orientation.

The fact that I'm oriented toward a self-destructive behavior shouldn't come as a surprise to anyone. After all, I'm not alone in this boat. We're all bent in one way or another. The Bible calls this being bent "sin."

The funny thing about sin is that it is never as bad in me as it is in the people around me. Have you ever noticed that other people's bents are always far worse than ours? Our shortcomings are just minor peccadilloes compared to the transgressions of others.

Jesus talked of this tendency in bent people to condemn others and forgive themselves. He told the story of this man who had a log sticking out of his eye.

Now I imagine if you had a log sticking out of your eye it could get to be quite uncomfortable, especially with it banging into things and all. But this fellow didn't seem to notice he had a log sticking out of his eye, although having it there made him very sensitive to wood products.

In fact he could spot flecks of sawdust in the eyes of others at 20 paces. And he was quick to point out their need. And he was more than willing to help get their problem corrected immediately.

Now Jesus didn't say this fellow should just leave well enough alone. He didn't encourage him to learn to live with his log and let others live with their flecks. No, he told him to have eye surgery and get the log out. Then he would be able to help others wash the sawdust from their eyes.

Sin is the reality of the human condition. The question is, what are we going to do about it? We can wallow in it, we can ignore it or we can condemn it. The one thing we can't do about it is cure it — but God can! And he will if we'll just let him.

CHAPEL NOTES

Loyola University master's program — The Fort Benning Religious Education Center is sponsoring a master's degree from Loyola University of New Orleans.

Degrees will be in religious education or pastoral studies. The entire program can be completed on post or at any Army installation. This program is approved by DANTES and Veterans Affairs benefits.

For more information contact Bill Putman at 545-4715, 545-2366 or 545-2288.

Marriage seminar — The Family Life Center is sponsoring a marriage enrichment Seminar every Thursday at Custer Terrace Chapel, Thursday to Oct. 7 at 7 p.m. The class is open to the first 15 couples who make reservations.

For more information, contact Chaplain (Capt.) Pete Criner or Sgt. Sophia Boykins at 545-2017 or 545-1760.

Position available — A director is needed for the Sightseeing Road Youth Choir. All interested candidates can call Jackie Feagin at 545-4960 or Chaplain (Col.) Roy Plummer at 545-2288.

Adult Bible study — The Religious Education Center will host an adult Bible study through Aug. 28 at 9:30 a.m. The study, titled "The Reality of the Holy Spirit," will be taught by retired Col. Bob Williams in Building 2521. For more information, call Bill Putman at 545-4715.

Christian Military Fellowship — The Christian Military Fellowship meetings will resume Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. CMF will be available for outside ministry during this time.

For more information, call Staff Sgt. Ken Harper at 689-6090.

Muslim community — Koranic reading classes are at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522, every Monday at 7 p.m. Classes will provide a better understanding of the Koran. For more information, contact Imam Yahya Ansar Islam at 689-6922.

Protestant Women of the Chapel — "The Practice of Godliness" will be the topic of study for meetings during the summer months. Sessions are designed to allow attendance at one lesson or all 10.

Protestant Women of the Chapel meet 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. each Thursday in Building 2521. Free child care is provided in Building 2517. These buildings are located off Indianhead Road and Thorson Street.

For more information, contact Marti Maas at 682-0101 or Janie Hodges at 682-3465.

Officers' fellowship — Officers' Christian Fellowship offers all officers assigned to or visiting Fort Benning the opportunity to fellowship with other officers in pursuit of the message of Jesus Christ.

Everybody wins when you save energy

Here are some Army success stories

NCO Call

The Army is working hard to save energy. There's a powerful incentive: Energy savings mean extra dollars you can spend elsewhere.

Experience shows that low-cost and no-cost measures can cut an installation's energy bill by 10 to 25 percent. This means millions of dollars in savings at a typical installation.

Here are some Army success stories in energy conservation:

• U.S. Army Europe has saved more than $154 million. That's equal to the transportation costs of three Return of Forces to Germany exercises.

• Fort Bragg, N.C., cut its electrical peak demand and saved $750,000. That's the cost of a new child-care center.

• Fort Lewis, Wash., is working with Tacoma Public Utilities to install $10 million worth of energy-efficient equipment. The utility is picking up 85 percent of the cost; the savings over the life of the project would light the city of Tacoma for five years.

• Tooele Army Depot, Utah, is installing natural-gas lines that will save more than $34 million. That's the cost of three new barracks.

• Fort Irwin, Calif., is installing a geothermal power plant that will make the installation self-sufficient for energy. The savings equal the cost of four unit training rotations at the National Training Center.

High technology and new ways of doing business are part of this endeavor. Fort Hood, Texas, uses a high-tech FM radio system to control peak loads. Weapons in this effort are new kinds of lighting, fuel cells powered by natural gas that produce electricity and hot water with unmatched efficiency, and modern, highly efficient boilers and heat pumps.

But the individual efforts of soldiers, civilians and family members at home and work are equally important.

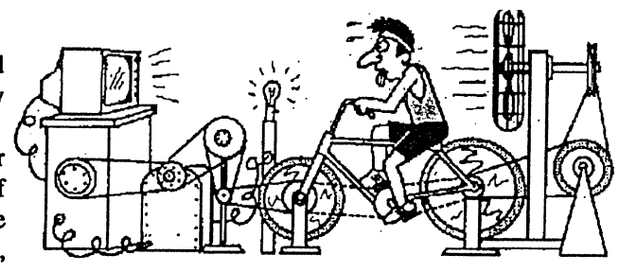
And saving energy leads to immediate benefits for you and your post. Your installation keeps $2 out of every $3 saved by energy conservation. You'll use one of these dollars to improve fitness centers, recreation centers, child-care centers and playgrounds or to carry out other quality-of-life projects; you'll "plow back" the second dollar into energy-conservation projects.

There are other good reasons to save energy:

• Energy conservation is good for the environment. When we burn less fossil fuel, we release fewer pollutants into the atmosphere.

• Energy conservation affects national security in a very direct way: Using less oil reduces our nation's dependence on imports.

• Conserving fuel for tactical vehicles means your unit will have fuel available for training and exercises.



• And finally, conserving fossil fuel means America will have fossil fuel to use for a longer time, while our scientists develop alternative sources of energy.

You can do much to help the Army save energy at home and at work. Here's how:

• Turn off lights, computers and other electrical equipment when you aren't using them.

This can easily save several kilowatt hours during a day.

increase installation demand by as much as five kilowatts, which will cost your installation as much as $1,500 over the course of a year. Your housing office can tell you when peak demand occurs in your community.

• Use public transportation when you can. It uses one-thirtieth the energy, per person, of driving alone in a car. Next best: Car pool, especially to and from work. Even better: Walk, or ride your bike.

• When you must drive, combine errands. Try to accomplish several goals in one trip.

• Obey speed limits and drive smoothly. A car gets 20 percent better gas mileage at 55 mph than at 70 mph. Experts say you can increase gas mileage 5 percent by making your starts and speed-ups smoothly. Anticipate what's ahead and ease into it.

• Insulate, weatherstrip and install drapes to reduce drafts all year. Close drapes during the warmer months to reduce solar heating.

• Don't fight your furnace or air conditioning. When they're on, keep your doors and windows closed. Leaving them open wastes energy. (But do open windows and doors instead of using air conditioning to cool off a hot room. Window exhaust fans work well on cool summer evenings.)

• Re-use things. Use them as long as they're useful. Find new uses for old things. Don't rush to buy a new appliance if the old one can be repaired. You'll save money as well as energy.

• If you must buy appliances, purchase the most energy-efficient models. You'll recoup the extra cost within a couple of years. Many utilities will pay part or all of the added cost of energy-efficient refrigerators, heat pumps and other major appliances.

• Support recycling. Does your installation recycle waste paper, bottles and aluminum and steel cans? If so, support the program. If not, talk with your installation environmental coordinator and energy coordinator to see if one can be started.

• Support restrictions on smoking indoors. Tobacco smoke raises energy costs for heating and cooling buildings, especially cooling. Why? Because ventilating and filtering air to remove smoke make air conditioners work much harder, boosting energy consumption greatly. What's more, the extra energy used does not guarantee that indoor air quality will be healthy or acceptably free of odor.

• Form a "green squad." With guidance from your first sergeant or noncommissioned officer in charge, join others in your unit or agency who care about energy conservation. Hold meetings, inspect for energy waste, make suggestions to management, get everybody involved and keep energy awareness high.

Make energy conservation a year-round habit. You'll save money for yourself and the government; at the same time, you'll help the environment.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were extracted from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from July 14 to 20.

Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns Garrison Regulation 210-5. Children are prohibited from playing in the streets, in or around construction or repair projects, in the vicinity of troop training, on the golf courses (to include walking, jogging and bicycling), or in public buildings, except those designated for this purpose.

The Military Police have apprehended several juveniles for vandalizing the golf course and an elementary school.

Sponsors of these juvenile family members have been notified that their on-post housing privileges have been revoked and they must now seek off-post housing for themselves and their family members.

The Military Police have increased security patrols of the schools and the golf course. It is the sponsors' responsibility to ensure that their family members comply with regulations.

• An Army and Air Force Exchange Service employee reported that persons unknown removed a camcorder from the display shelf of the appliance rental store and exited the store without paying for it.

• A staff sergeant was charged with bigamy and fraud after marrying a woman while he was legally married to another woman.

TAKE A BITE OUT OF CRIME

• A lieutenant was charged with rape, sodomy, robbery and kidnapping, after he and an unknown accomplice picked up a woman from a local motel parking lot, drove her to an unknown location, raped and sodomized her, and forced her to remain there overnight against her will. The next day, she was driven to an unknown location on Fort Benning where the men robbed her of $110, forced her out of the car and drove away.

• A specialist was charged by civil authorities with theft after he removed a tip jar from its location in a local club, proceeded to the rest room and removed $16.50 from the jar.

• A staff sergeant was charged with fraud, larceny of government property, and submitting a false official statement, after he continued to receive basic allowance for quarters after signing for government quarters in February 1990. In November, he signed recertification documents stating that he did not live in government quarters, at which time the situation was discovered. The amount of funds wrongfully received totalled $14,977.

• A civilian reported that an unknown male forced her out of an on-post club, walked her to a grassy area and pushed her to the ground. He attempted to force himself on top of her and fondle her, then attempted to force her into a taxi. When she refused, he entered the taxi and left the area.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the specialist who stopped his car in the middle of the road to obtain information from a police officer who was responding to an incident. The officer detected a strong odor of alcohol and administered the specialist a field sobriety test, which he failed.

He registered .14 on the Intoximeter and was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and no driver's license.

Other activities included 27 traffic accidents and two reports of shoplifting at facilities on post.

There were six cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, nine cases of larceny of private property and one case of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

Engineers build more than bridges

586th Engr. Co. teaches fundamental techniques

By Derik W. Crotts
40th Public Affairs Detachment

Engineers from Fort Benning and Fort Campbell, Ky., are spending their summer at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., training and developing future Army leaders.

Company A, 326th Engineer Battalion, 41st Engineer Company (Medium Girder Bridge), and a Fort Benning assault float bridge platoon from the 586th Engineer Company are participating as members of Task Force 3-327 from Fort Campbell.

The engineers are training the cadets in mobility, countermobility and survivability operations, said Capt. Christopher Sallese, commander, Co. A, 326th Engr. Bn.

According to Sallese, each cadet receives hands-on training with live demolitions, builds a five-bay, single story medium girder bridge, and participates in a mobility and sapper situational training exercise.

In addition, the cadets' training includes light water operations, sapper minefield and wire breaching and training on various U.S. made mines, said Sallese.

"This training gives the (cadets) an idea of some of the different things engineers can offer them," said lst. Lt. Earl D. Lawson, platoon leader, 586th Engr. Co.

The cadets also get an idea of the diversity of the engineers and they get the chance to work with soldiers, added Lawson.

> "The familiarization will benefit them and us in the long run."
> — Sgt. Joseph C. Cole
> Co. A., 326th Engr. Bn.

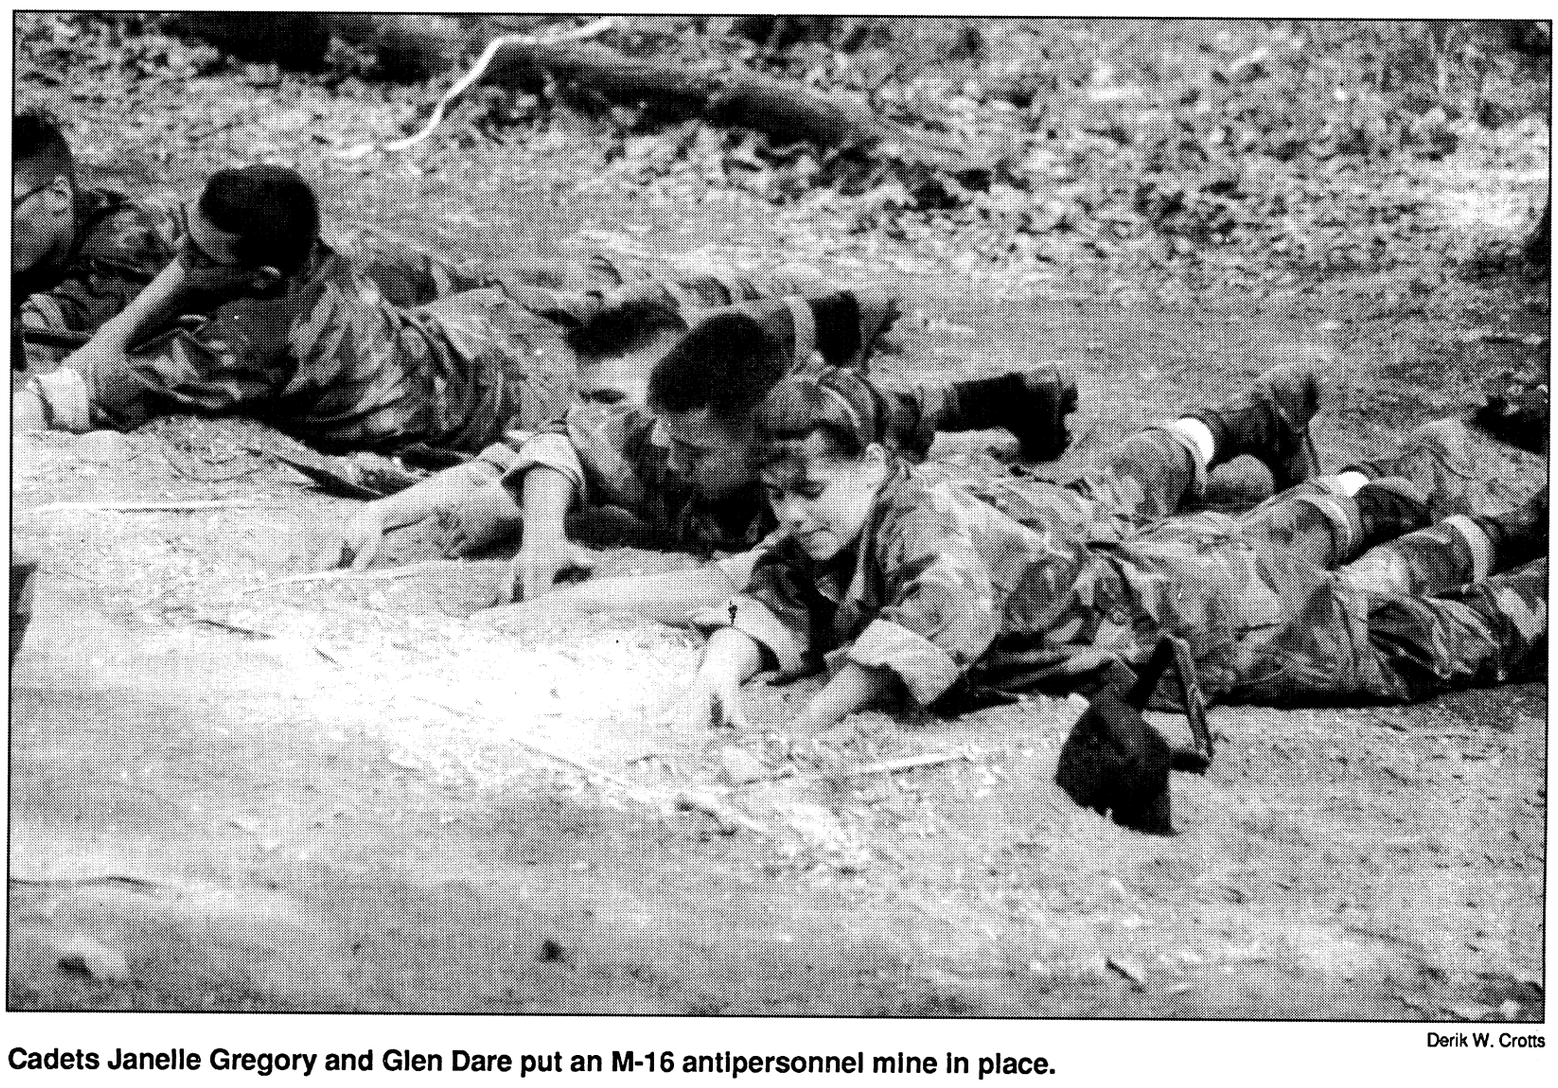
Working with the demolitions and the heavy equipment made the engineer training exciting, said Diane E. Lyne, a cadet from Springfield, Mass.

"They may not become tactically and technically proficient," said Sgt. Joseph C. Cole, general construction equipment operator, Co. A, 326th Engr. Bn.

"But the familiarization with (the equipment) will benefit them and us in the long run (as) our future platoon leaders."

The academy's faculty members also see the training as an opportunity for cadets to learn about one of the Army's oldest branches.

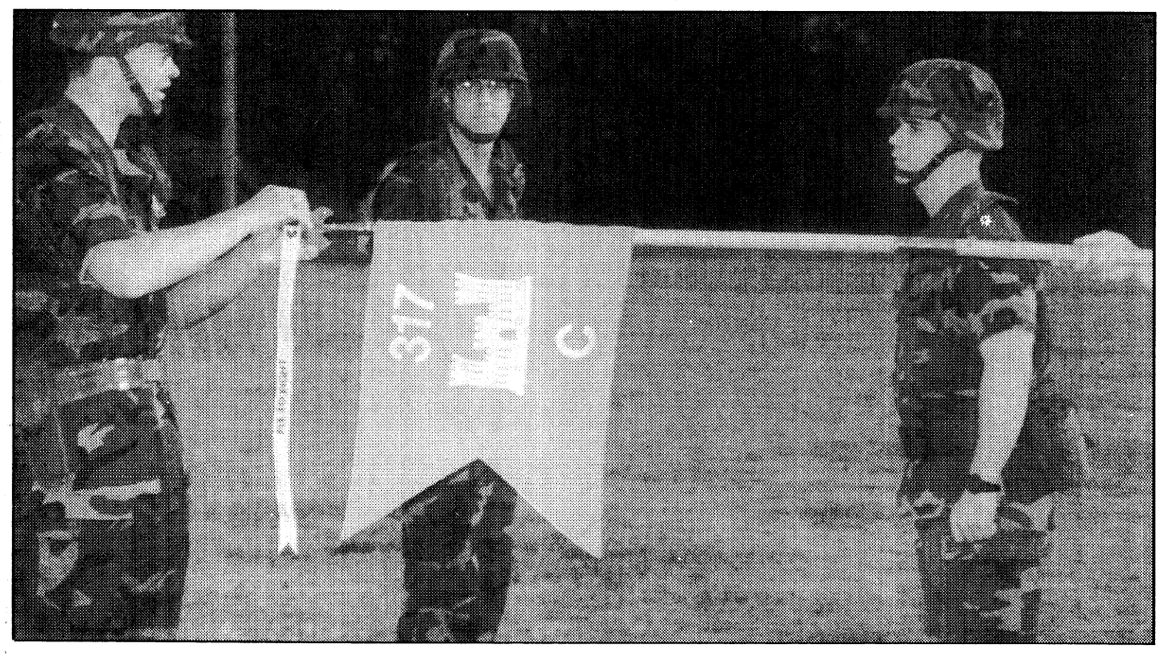
"The hands-on leadership experience the (cadets) get out here gives them the exposure as to how the engineers are part of the combined arms team," said Maj. Dave L. Diedrich, Engineer Committee chief, USMA.



"We know we're not going to make them expert engineers in two days, but we're going to give them an exposure to the branch and an opportunity to practice their leadership."

The training at USMA gives young soldiers the opportunity to show their stuff, said Lt. Col. Kemp Littlefield, commander, 326th Engr. Bn.

"A lot of the young soldiers have to be up in front of people assisting, and in some cases actually conducting the instruction," Littlefield said. "I think that's a real confidence builder for them."



According to Littlefield, this training allows the cadets the opportunity to see the quality of soldiers that are in the Army.

"When I was a cadet, the 101st was training us," Littlefield said. "It looks like the tradition is still going on, only we're doing it better."

Fit to Fight

317th receives streamer

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Company C of the 317th Engineer Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), was awarded the "Fit to Fight" streamer for excellence in fitness at the 317th change of command ceremony July 16.

Lt. Col. Donald J. Whitten attached the streamer to the company's guidon as one of his last acts as commander of the 317th Engineer Battalion before Lt. Col. Kenneth S. Kasprisin took over.

The streamer was initiated several months ago by the commanding general of the 24th Infantry Division, Maj. Gen. Paul E. Blackwell, said Company C 1st Sgt. Larry V. Lepkowski.

"We are the first company in the engineer brigade to be awarded the streamer," he said.

To be awarded the streamer, 95 percent of the unit must pass the Army physical fitness test, qualify on individual weapons, complete a four-mile run in 36 minutes or less and complete a 12-mile road march in less than four hours.

"It's an attainable goal, but it's hard to do," Lepkowski said. "You really have to concentrate on those four events."

The division standard is that each of these events must be performed quarterly, Lepkowski said, and the unit must maintain the standard every quarter to keep the streamer.

"It's a good morale incentive," Lepkowski said.

WORLD WAR II — A LOOK BACK

50 years ago this week ...

• On the Eastern Front, Soviet forces continued to make significant ground gains, steadily advancing through the battered German armies.

The Soviets dealt another serious blow to the already precarious German supply situation. By week's end, the Germans lost Chuguyev, Khotinets and Zolochev.

• In Sicily, Allied forces pressed their attacks against Axis positions, making steady progress throughout the area. The British captured Adrana, Bronte and Acireale, as the Americans occupied Cesaro and Sant Agata. Additionally, the U.S. First Division secured Troina.

• In the Pacific, six U.S. destroyers intercepted and sank three of four Japanese ships carrying men and equipment to Kolombangara in the Solomon Islands.

• Fort Benning welcomed Col. Thomas W. Doyle who began his assignment at the Infantry School after serving as technical adviser for the $2 million Claudette Colbert film, "So Proudly We Hail." Doyle's wealth of knowledge stemmed from his firsthand experiences during the fall of Bataan.

Cutbacks to continue

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Officials at the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel have released information that will guide the Army through its next round of officer, warrant officer and enlisted personnel cutbacks.

The fiscal 1994 drawdown program is designed to "maximize the use of current voluntary separation incentives to shape the force, minimize involuntary separations and maintain readiness," officials said.

The major difference between the fiscal 1994 and fiscal 1993 program is an expanded offering for the early retirement program.

> Fiscal 1994 program is designed to maximize use of current voluntary separation incentives to shape the force.

Early retirement

Early retirement will be offered to selected officers, warrants and enlisted soldiers with 15-20 years' service. However, personnel officials stress that early retirement is not an entitlement. It will be offered to:

• year group 1978 Army competitive category majors being considered for promotion by the fiscal 1994 ACC lieutenant colonel promotion board;

• other ACC majors in excess skills who have been nonselected one or more times for promotion to lieutenant colonel;

• special branch officers nonselected one or more times for promotion to lieutenant colonel or colonel;

• chief warrant officers 2, 3 and 4 in overage military occupational specialties who have at least 17 years' service;

• captains and warrants nonselected once for promotion, if eligible for other voluntary separation incentives;

• enlisted soldiers in select specialties and grades designated by PERSCOM who are approaching 20 years' service;

• promotable sergeants reaching their retention control point of 15 years;

• promotable sergeants currently "grandfathered" toward 20-year retirement.

VSI/SSB

Fiscal 1994 Voluntary Separation Incentive and Special Separation Benefit programs will not fundamentally change, officials said. Soldiers eligible for the fiscal 1994 VSI/SSB are:

• ACC captains previously nonselected for promotion to major (primarily year group 1983);

• ACC captains in year group 1985 who will be considered for involuntary separation by the February reduction-in-force board;

• warrant officers once nonselected for promotion by the fiscal 1993 chief warrant officer 3, 4 and 5 promotion selection board;

• warrant officers who will be considered for RIF by the board scheduled to convene in February;

• select excess warrant officers and special branch officers;

• promotable sergeants and sergeants in all specialties with a basic active service date of Sept. 30, 1983, or earlier;

• sergeants with a basic active service date of Sept. 30, 1985, or earlier, in select specialties designated by PERSCOM;

• and enlisted soldiers in any grade or specialty with a basic active service date of Dec. 6, 1985, or earlier who are fully qualified for retention, but are denied retention by HQDA.

VERRP/VET

The fiscal 1994 Voluntary Early Release/Retirement Program and Voluntary Early Transition Program will apply to different categories of officers with more than two years' service through retirement eligibility. The major change is a pilot program for lieutenants with two-to-three years' active duty who will transfer to Reserve component units. The VET will again be offered to enlisted soldiers in select specialties and grades who have more than three years' service. Officials said the number of soldiers separating under this program will be strictly limited.

SERB/SRB

Selective Early Retirement Boards/Selective Retirement Boards and Reduction-in-Force Boards Involuntary separation programs for enlisted soldiers are not planned for fiscal 1994, officials said.

However, a SERB for colonels, lieutenant colonels and majors, and a SRB for warrant officers will be conducted. Fiscal 1994 will be the last year for colonels to have multiple-SERB consideration, barring any further strength reductions. Also, officials have estimated the SERB selection rate for lieutenant colonels at below 10 percent.

The ACC major SERB will focus on the "promotion COHORT," primarily from year group 1978, before officers from this year group are considered by the lieutenant colonel promotion board. A SERB for select excess special branches will also be necessary, officials said.

Hospital recognizes year's top volunteers

By Deana Kussman
Martin Army Community Hospital

Officials at Martin Army Community Hospital recognized the year's top volunteers in a special ceremony July 25.

Col. Herbert K. Reamey, the hospital's deputy commander for administration, commented about the critical importance of the American Red Cross volunteers during these times of budgetary reduction.

"Volunteers give an immense service to the hospital and contribute greatly to the manpower required to run the hospital," said Reamey. Reamey went on to praise the efforts of all hospital volunteers.

Receiving top honors was Johnnie Ingle Dennis, who was recognized as the hospital's Volunteer of the Year for 1992-1993.

"Exceptional service comes easily to outstanding volunteers like Ms. Dennis," stated Reamey.

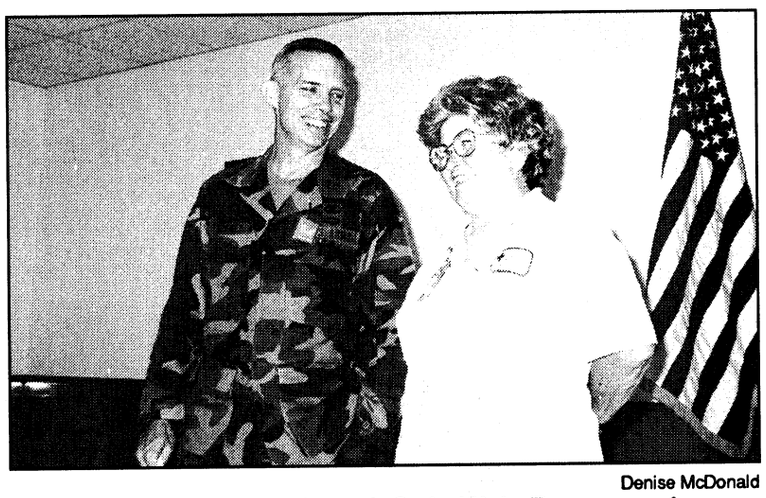
Dennis has worked with the Red Cross for more than 26 years, totaling more than 16,000 hours. David DeLeon, Red Cross field director for the hospital, nominated Dennis for a special citation for exceptional volunteer service.

At the hospital, Dennis is known as the "Cookie Lady."

"Ms. Dennis warmly distributes cookies throughout our hospital, and is an inspiration to our patients," said Reamey. The cookies are provided by various units on post.

Dennis fondly recalls her days working in the double and triple amputee orthopedic wards at Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, during the Vietnam war. There she acquired another nickname, "Popcorn Lady," as she made popcorn for her patients daily.

Once, she escorted John Wayne through a ward to meet patients. He told her, "I like my coffee as black as my heart and as sweet as you are."



"Volunteer" is only one feather in this energetic woman's cap. She is in her senior year at Troy State University in Phenix City, working toward her major in human services. She is also a professional genealogist and is the author of two books. With all this, she still finds time to substitute teach at Russell County and Phenix City schools and enjoys working with ceramics.

Kimberly Baker was also recognized at the ceremony as the Adult Volunteer of the Quarter for April through June. She volunteers five days a week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on ward 3B where she fills in as ward clerk.

"Baker's dedication has prevented a decline in patient care since the loss of the ward's clerk," said Reamey.

For May, Mildred Garcia was named Volunteer of the Month. She works in the Maternal Child Office and modestly admits that she gets more out of their service than she puts in.

June's volunteer of the month was Rose Valdez, who assists in the First Steps program. Valdez said she is proud and truly enjoys helping in the hospital.

Mayors needed

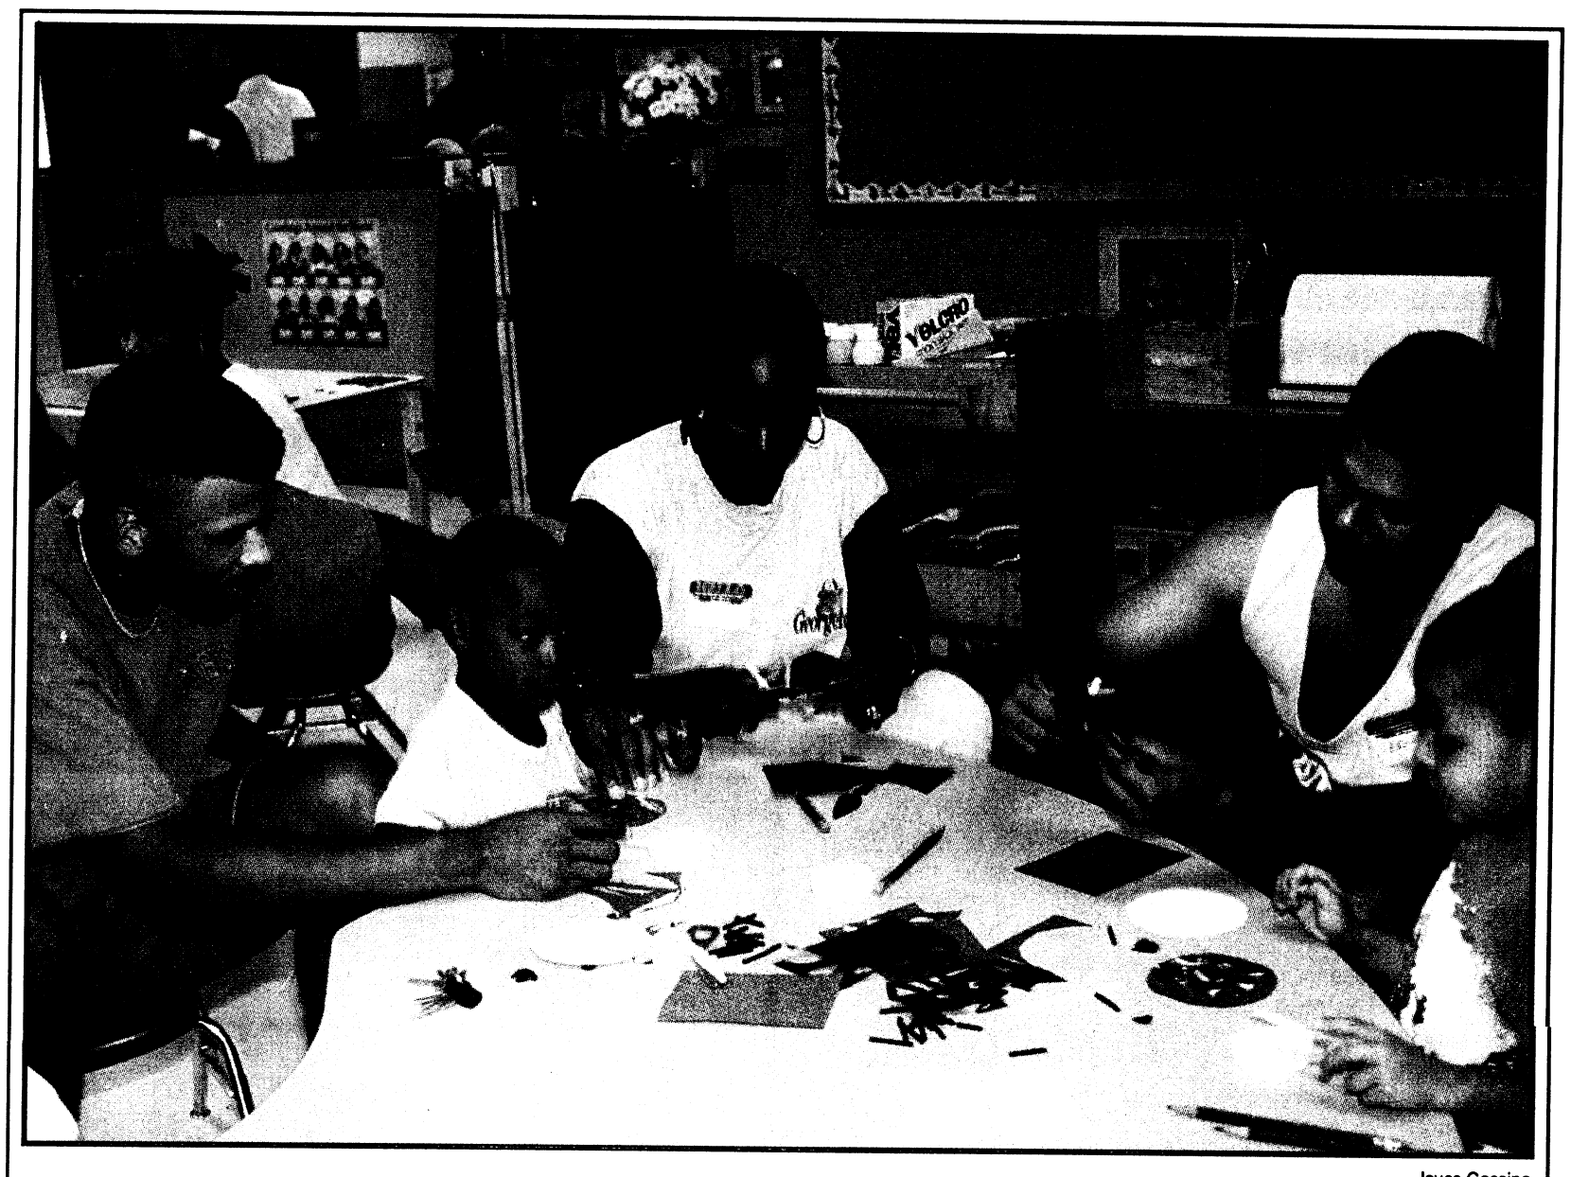
Turn in your applications to CLO today

By Darryl L. Foster
Special to The Bayonet©

Applications for the positions of mayor and vice mayor for housing area elections should be in to the Community Life Office by today.

Have you been longing to put those administrative and coordination skills into action?

Tired of gazing restlessly out of the front door waiting for something big to happen?



Each of the installation's six mayoral districts (housing areas) will be up for grabs come Sept. 6.

- Candidates must reside in post family housing
- There must be no evidence of criminal activity in background checks

Voting is scheduled for Sept. 8 to 10.

Parent involvement

Parents and children cut and paste together at the Custer Terrace Child Development Center parents' workshop "Learning Through Play" July 21. The workshop was designed to allow parents hands-on learning experiences through developmental play. Parent involvement is an integral part of the center's program of supporting and encouraging a "parents as partners" attitude with the caregiving staff. From left to right are Spc. Derrick Sankfield of the 598th Maintenance Company, Jonathan Starks, 5; Stark's mother Spc. Janiece Starks, 598th Maintenance Company; Staff Sgt. Edwin Nieves of Company A, 3rd Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment; and his son, Edwin Nieves, 5.

NEW LAWS protect children

Egleston Children's Hospital

Children will travel safer along the roadways and bike paths of Georgia thanks to new child safety legislation passed during the recent session of the Georgia General Assembly.

The new safety belt law is designed to protect all children ages 3 to 17 by requiring them to wear safety belts in the front and back seats of all passenger vehicles.

The bike helmet law requires every child under 16 to wear a federally approved bike helmet whenever riding a bicycle on public roads, bike paths and sidewalks.

In Georgia, 109 children were killed last year and more than 8,900 were injured in motor vehicle crashes, while 390 children were either injured or killed as the result of a bike crash.

Buckling a safety belt will increase your child's chance of surviving uninjured by 70 percent and approved bicycle helmets can reduce the risk of head injury by 85 percent.

For more information about selecting a bicycle helmet, call the child safety experts at Egleston Children's Hospital at 321-KIDS.

OCS candidates graduate, branch aviation, artillery

Combined Arms and Tactics Division

Ten new second lieutenants will continue their Army careers by attending either the Aviation Officer Basic Course at Fort Rucker, Ala. or the Field Artillery Officer Basic Course at Fort Sill, Okla.

The Officer Candidate School students will branch Army aviation and field artillery in ceremonies at Wigle Hall at 2 p.m. Thursday.

The aviation candidates are:

- David Bond
- Samuel Cain
- John Davis
- Michael Fiscus
- William Kronke
- Jason Osberg
- Armand Watson

The field artillery candidates are:

- Chris Childers
- Donald Darnell
- Jason Hunsberger

Col. Mario Meola, deputy assistant commandant for the National Guard, Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, will speak to the candidates and present them with their first set of aviation or field artillery brass.

The candidates will also receive a letter of welcome from the commanding general of their respective branches.

Soldiers help scouts earn merit badges

Perform fitness tests, demonstrations at 1993 National Scout Jamboree

By Brian C. Sutton
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Soldiers from the All-Army Wrestling Team, the U.S. Army Physical Fitness School, the Command Exhibition Parachute Team, better known as the Silver Wings, a team from the Directorate of Combat Development and a Bradley crew are participating in the 1993 National Scout Jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill, Va., through Wednesday.

Two teams will be doing more than demonstrations for the scouts; they'll be helping them earn their merit badges.

Members of the All-Army Wrestling Team and the U.S. Army Physical Fitness School are conducting workshops to assist the scouts in earning their merit badges for physical fitness.

The wrestling team consists of 1992 Olympic Bronze Medalist Spc. Rodney Smith; Sgt. Derrick Waldroup, who placed second in the World Team Trials and second in National Open; Spc. James Demos, who placed third in the World Team Trials; Capt. Jeffrey Green, who placed second in University Games for his age group and 2nd Lt. Trevor Humphrey.

Staff Sgt. Dennis Guaglianone of the Physical Fitness School and other master fitness trainers from various units on post are also helping the scouts with a battery of fitness tests.

"The scouts will participate in up to seven physical activity events, said Guaglianone, "such as speed and endurance runs, walking and jumping."

Guaglianone said these events, if completed successfully, will give the scouts points toward merit badges.

The Silver Wings will make a parachute jump Sunday and remain in the area Monday to do an equipment layout and discussion with scouts.

Sgt. 1st Class Kevin A. Perry, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment and Staff Sgt. William T. Breedlove, HHC, 29th Infantry Regiment will provide a static display that will include mannequins with variations of combat clothing and equipment.

According to Perry, the Directorate of Combat Development display will feature the new individual tactical load-bearing vest, current nuclear, biological and chemical warfare equipment and the new M-40 protective mask with a voice inducer.

In addition, Perry's team will display new and old rations, as well as eye-protection devices.

Sgt. Kevin Schools and Pvt. 2 Gerald W. Brown Jr., both of Company A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, will man a Bradley Fighting Vehicle static display.

Community Life clarifies issues

Community Life Office

Occupants of government quarters are subject to various post regulations and policy memorandums.

Here is information about a few topics of concern.

Yard Sales: A permit must be obtained form the Community Life Center in your community. Sales may take place only on Saturdays, Sundays and federal holidays. Rules are listed on the back of the permit form.

Recreational vehicles: RVs (campers and boats with trailers) under 22 feet long may be parked in authorized parking spaces for driveways as long as they do not interfere with the parking rights of other residents.

If such spaces are unavailable, they may be parked in the grass along the side of quarters, as long as occupant maintains the grass underneath and around the item. Any ruts or damage to grass must be repaired by the owner.

Any RVs more than 22 feet long must be stored the Directorate of Community Activities Outdoor Recreation and Rental Storage Office, Building 1707, Kilgore Street, Main Post.

Trash cans: Cans or bags must be put at the curb no earlier than the morning of trash pickup, but no later than 7:30 a.m., and removed from the curb no later than 7 p.m the same day. Trash put out the night before attracts wild animals and can constitute a health hazard. Cans left out after 7 p.m. are considered "abandoned property" and will be confiscated.

On nonpickup days, trash must be kept behind quarters, unless a built-in trash receptacle area is part of your quarters. Smelly and unsightly garbage in front of quarters violates standards.

Children: No children under 12 years old are allowed to be left without supervision in quarters. No children under 8 are allowed to be left in parked vehicles alone. No children under 6 are allowed to be outdoors unaccompanied by a competent baby sitter over age 12. Children 6 to 11 must be in line-of-sight supervision.

Pets: All cats, dogs and horses must be registered on post and all pets must be confined or leashed at all times. They may not be tied to trees, shrubs, signposts or structures.

Owners are responsible for immediately removing any pet waste left by their animals. Pets may not be walked on designated playing fields or playgrounds.

Excessive barking, biting, running loose or other behavior constituting a nuisance can result in loss of the privilege to own a pet on the installation.

Loud music: The following are prohibited: playing a radio or electronic sound device in a motor vehicle, in quarters, or while walking or running around the military reservation, which is audible to a person with normal hearing at a distance of 15 feet from the vehicle, quarters or person. While running outside of a running track, the wearing of earphones or headphones is also prohibited.

Yards: For the privilege of living in quarters, residents are responsible for maintaining yard areas 150 feet out from their quarters.

This does not mean that all others are prohibited from the 150-foot area. However, reasonable privacy will be maintained; residents may expect privacy within 50 feet of their quarters.

However, if a child's ball rolls into a yard within that 50-foot limit, it is reasonable to assume that the child can retrieve it without retribution.

Pools, fences and miscellaneous: Any resident-installed pools (other than shallow wading pools) must be within a locked fence and securely covered when not in use. This is not only to protect children, but also to protect residents from liability in case of accidents.

Play equipment and pools (including wading pools) may be installed in back or side yards only. Coordinate with the Family Housing Office for permission to install pools and fences or before erecting storage sheds, dog houses or playhouses.

Curfew: All family members under 18 years of age are required to be inside quarters from 10 p.m. until 5 a.m., except when accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Exceptions will be made for authorized social functions, emergencies or other occasions deemed appropriate by a parent or legal guardian. Unsightly storage of barbecue grills, bicycles and toys is not permitted. Areas in front, beside and on top of carport storage sheds are to be kept clear.

Violation of post regulations constitutes grounds for loss of the privilege to occupy government quarters. Post regulations including 210-5 and 210-50 are enforced.

These regulations also stipulate that conduct of sponsor, family members or guests that is contrary to good standards of behavior safety, health or morals and failure to live in harmony with one's neighbors are not tolerated at Fort Benning.

For more information, call the Community Life Center noncommissioned officer in charge or mayor for your community or call the installation Community Life Office at 545-5931 or 545-5246.

Chemical dependency

Post's ADAPCP touted as Army's 'flagship' program

By Darryl L. Foster
Special to The Bayonet©

She was despondent and had lost all of her self-image. Everything that she used to be she had altered to fit his lifestyle of dependency on drugs and alcohol.

Even though he refused to be helped, she decided to begin her life anew. She returned to school and got a teaching degree and later rose to become a well-respected instructor at a prestigious school.

This is one of many success stories to come out of the Army's "flagship" chemical dependency out-patient facilities, according to Sidney Levine, its director.

The clinic isn't located in San Antonio or Washington, but it is quietly nestled behind Fort Benning's National Infantry Museum on Main Post. It's the Fort Benning Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program, and it's quiet location lends an air of solitude and calmness much like the facility's mission of clearing hearts, minds and bodies of chemical dependency.

The post's Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program is one of the Army's finest, says Levine. So much so that the Joint Commission on Accreditation for Healthcare Organizations has touted Fort Benning's clinic as one of the premier facilities even among its civilian counterparts.

"What sets us apart is this particular accreditation," said Levine. "It validates that the quality of care (rendered here) meets the most stringent standards placed on any health-care facility anywhere.

"We are in search of excellence," he said, "and the driving force is to continue to provide and enhance the quality of care for patients under our supervision."

The program's primary focus is soldiers and their family members, Department of the Army civilians, retirees and their family members for this region to include those members of other services who are stationed at Fort Benning.

Care at the facility covers a full spectrum of treatment, including spiritual, financial, emotional, legal, physical and even just plain common sense counseling.

"Women are not the same as men. Their issues dealing with addictions are unique, such as using drugs during pregnancy or child rearing," said Levine.

"There are also cultural aspects that we deal with in counseling. We set up specialty groups to help blacks and Hispanics recognize problems that face them," he said.

"This has been possible because of the support we get from the hospital proper. If an individual needs chiropractic care or has psychological problems, then the hospital works along with us, " said Levine.

Currently, the enrollment at the outpatient facility is about 350.

"Summertime and holidays cause the numbers to swell," he said.

"Celebrating and sadness are the boundaries that a lot of people find themselves in during these seasons," he said. "Some holidays are not very happy times for some people; and, after the boozing and drugs, they think they can just put on the skids and stop."

Because of a rise in drug and alcohol dependency among adults and adolescents, Levine said the program has plans to open an inpatient clinic. It would include two weeks of treatment and extensive follow-up care. Additional counselors, nurses, and therapists would increase the current staff of 12.

This is intended to enhance the facilities "holistic approach to treatment and recovery, " he said.

Fort Benning has an impressive and well-qualified staff, according to Levine. Almost all of the staff have master's degrees, and there are about 150 years of combined experience at ADAPCP among staff members.

Levine credits his staff with being dedicated, concerned people who "worry about the patients and are not clock-watchers."

The facility received its first accreditation in 1988. Then the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations gave them a much higher accreditation.

Three years later, the Joint Commission bestowed its current honor — with commendation — to Levine and his staff.

Levine seems most proud that Fort Benning's program is the "cream of the crop" and he says it is the fruit of their search for excellence.

"We have had all sorts of people come through here, from high-ranking soldiers to wives who felt that they were at the very end. We've worked extremely hard to make this facility second to none and we've got this (the joint accreditation) to prove it," he said.

Program director receives award

By Darryl L. Foster
Special to The Bayonet©

The director of Fort Benning's Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program was awarded the Army Superior Civilian Service Award, one of the highest awards for civilians, June 23.

Levine

Sidney Levine, who said he is an extremely tenacious man with a string of "it can and will be done philosophies," has spearheaded Fort Benning's ADAPCP for 20 years.

His small, cramped office in Building 324 implies much about his involvement in this "gold-standard" drug and alcohol treatment and recovery program. With purpose and commitment driving him, Levine said he has helped the local out-patient program to become a much sought-after model of excellence Armywide.

Levine is known in the military as well as civilian medical circles as a result of his being a field consultant to the Army's Health Services Command in San Antonio, Texas. In addition, he is a regional consultant of all military bases located in the Southeast. Add to that his teaching job at the Health Services Academy Medical University and one can see he is a busy man.

"I work a lot of late hours," said the ex-Army aviator of his packed schedule.

As a direct result of his efforts, the Fort Benning Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program became the first and remains the only out-patient program to be accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations.

Levine's accomplishments and awards include:

- Holds two doctorates in psychology and health services administration from Auburn and Columbia universities, respectively.
- Professionally trained in reality therapy, rational emotive therapy, gestalt therapy and hypno therapy.
- Recognized by the American Academy of Family Practice Physicians.

Sleep problems can end child's peaceful slumbers

Egleston Children's Hospital

Nighttime sleep problems can bring a child's peaceful slumber to an abrupt end. If monsters live under your child's bed and bears lurk in her closet, don't despair. There are ways to fight these intruders on a good night's rest.

Nightmares are among the most disturbing nighttime problems according to Emory-Egleston pediatric pulmonologist and sleep specialist Dr. Alan D. Harsch of Egleston Children's Hospital's Sleep Center.

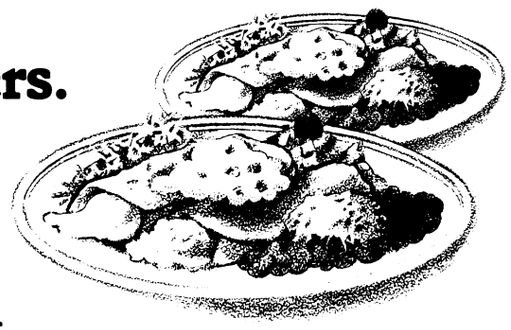
"These kinds of nighttime problems are usually no cause for alarm if they occur rarely," said Dr. Harsch.

Children are especially susceptible to nightmares because they spend a large amount of their time in rapid-eye-movement sleep, which is when dreaming occurs. Occasional nightmares are normal for children.

They help the mind process complicated events or information, and they are often related to developmental stages such as separation anxiety in toddlers or emotional trauma in older children. Frightening stories or explicitly violent movies or news programs can also produce nightmares.

To deal with children's nightmares, Harsch advises parents to:

- Comfort and cuddle their children; reassure them that all children have nightmares.
- If their children are still concerned about their dreams the next day, have them act out the dream through play. For recurring dreams have them think of other ways the dream could have turned out. Encourage them to imagine a magic weapon or a hero to protect them.
- Discuss the dream with their children during the daytime as many times as it takes to help them work through the fear.
- Not to expose children under 13 to violent shows or horror movies. Even then, carefully consider their children's sensitivity and maturity before allowing them to watch this type of program.
- Discuss the nightmares with their doctor if they become worse or more frequent, or if the fear they produce interferes with daytime activities.



To diagnose a sleep disorder, a child should have a sleep study in a laboratory staffed by technicians and physicians who can recognize disorders in children.

For more information on sleep problems, call Egleston's sleep center at 325-6650.

Schools set registration requirements, assignments

Fort Benning school students prepare for 1993-94 school year

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Student registration for the Fort Benning Schools is Monday through Aug. 20 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. at each of the seven post schools.

The school year begins Aug. 31.

Kindergarten through eighth-grade students registering with parents are able to choose the day and time that best fits their needs.

Past practice indicates there are large crowds at the schools the first couple of days of registration, and this should be considered when choosing a registration time, according to a school spokesperson.

Students who attended Fort Benning Schools last year must register for the 1993 to 94 school year, but it is not necessary for parents of students to bring any forms to the school.

However, there will be registration forms at the school to be signed.

Children who preregistered during kindergarten roundup last May will also need to complete the registration process.

New students and children ages 3 to 5 requiring special education services should contact the Special Education Office at 545-2500 beginning Monday.

Special education services include learning, intellectual and physical disabilities and behavior or emotional disorders, and speech-language disorders.

In order to meet the requirements for registration, parents should bring certain items to the school when they register students, as outlined in the registration requirements shown on this page.

The items are determined by the student's age, grade and whether he or she previously attended a Fort Benning school.

For information on registration in the Fort Benning Schools, call 545-2500.

Fort Benning Schools Registration Requirements

Parents should bring certain items to the school when they register their children. The items are determined by the student's age, grade and whether he or she previously attended a Fort Benning school.

- A child must be 5 years old on or before Sept. 1 to attend Fort Benning schools.
- Birth certificates or other proof of birth will be required for children to be enrolled in either kindergarten or first grade, unless they attended kindergarten at Fort Benning last school year.
- Pupils registering at Fort Benning for the first time will be required to present a record of immunization at registration. This requirement will be strictly enforced.

Immunization requirements

- Diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus (DPT) completed and booster if indicated.
- Polio series completed or begun with booster if required. Measles, mumps and rubella vaccine. (Booster is recommended)

Other requirements

- All pupils, except kindergarten, must have a report card or grade placement record.
- A Georgia Certificate of Eye, Ear and Dental screening is required for all students entering the Fort Benning Schools for the first time. An appointment for the screening and a Georgia Certificate of Immunization can be obtained by calling 544-3350.
- Children transferring into the Fort Benning Schools must show proof of a prior eye, ear and dental screening.

School assignments

Fort Benning Schools

There will be new school assignments for some Fort Benning students when school begins Aug. 31.

The new school assignments are necessary because of the opening of the new Stowers School and the closing last June of Patch and Wilbur schools.

Students who attended Wilbur School last year will attend Loyd School this year, and Main Post students who would have attended Patch School will attend White School.

For information on which Fort Benning school your child will attend, locate your housing area and find school assignments for students in kindergarten through fifth grade.

All middle school students (grades sixth to eighth) will attend Faith School on Ingersoll Street.

School screening set Aug. 25

U.S. Army Dental Activity

Martin Army Community Hospital will conduct a walk-in (no appointment needed) school screening for all eligible beneficiaries Aug. 25.

This is for any child who will be five years old by Sept. 1 and who needs the Georgia "Certificate of Ear, Eye and Dental Examinations."

This certificate is needed by every child, regardless of age or grade, when entering school for the first time in Georgia. Children who attended school in Georgia last year do not need to duplicate this process.

The following schedule contains the times for people to report based on their last names. Parents should report to the Eyes, Ears, Nose and Throat Clinic in the basement of the clinic wing of the hospital.

- 8 to 9 a.m. — A to D.
- 9 to 10 a.m. — E to J.
- 10 to 11 a.m. — K to N.
- 1 to 2 p.m. — O to S.
- 2 to 3 p.m. — T to Z.

Parents should bring only the child or children being screened, the child's medical record, medical card and identification card. Also, bring the child's glasses, if any.

Hospital officials are asking that parents NOT bring any children who are not being screened. Remember, children under the age of 5 will not be screened.

This "walk-in" screening is in addition to the normal school screenings that are done each Wednesday by appointment only. Parents who cannot bring their children to this walk-in school screening can make an appointment by calling 544-3350.

Hospital officials said the walk-in screening is being planned to take care of as many children as possible before school starts.

Your child's immunizations must be up to date before entering the school system. The Immunization Clinic is open every duty day on a walk-in basis. Parents should bring medical records, shot records and ID cards.

Fort Benning needs parents to serve as school crossing guards

Military Police Activity

Because funds are not available to pay contract crossing guards, parents of school children are asked to sign up for duty as volunteer crossing guards this year.

If all parents participate, duty will probably be no more than once or twice per school year, according to Capt. Rebecca A. Rouse of the Fort Benning Military Police Activity.

While MPs will continue to vigorously enforce speed limits in school zones, children must be provided supervised and safe crossing in key school areas, Rouse said.

The exact locations include:

- White School at Lumpkin and Baltzell
- Dexter and Faith schools at Ingersoll and Yeager
- Dexter and Faith schools at Lumpkin and Yeager
- White School at 1st Division Road and Madden
- White School at Baltzell and Access Road
- Faith and White schools at Vibbert and Lumpkin Road
- Faith School at Ingersoll and Vibbert
- Faith School at Ingersoll and Gaudette
- Stowers School general vicinity

The safety of school children is a concern for everyone at Fort Benning and maximum participation by parents will minimize worry, Rouse said.

More information will be provided Monday during elementary school registration.

Interested parents should contact the mayor of their housing communities.

Identification cards

New system saves $$$, cuts fraud

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

The Department of Defense wants to make forged and faked military identification cards things of the past. To do this, the services will issue new machine-readable, tamper-resistant identification cards to almost 15 million people starting in 1994.

The credit-card-sized identification looks much like those currently in use, said Department of Defense personnel officials. A computer system prints the one-piece card using a central data base in which digitized black-and-white photographs and personal information are stored.

A security feature on the new identification card makes counterfeiting almost impossible, Department of Defense personnel officials explained. The computer generates a four-character security code linked to the individual's Social Security number, places it on the card and enters it into the central data base. If the individual uses a card and the number isn't in the data base, the card is fake, said officials.

Security measures also include a laminate that bonds directly to the plastic-coated identification card paper. Currently, the photograph is glued to the card and can be replaced with another person's photo, said personnel officials. The laminate now used can be peeled away easily from the card, allowing tampering.

Printed on the back of the new card are two bar codes. One contains all the identification information and the digitized photo on the card. The second bar code allows for access to local or central data bases. Personnel officials said the codes will save time because organizations can scan them to determine the cardholder's eligibility for access and benefits.

The new bar-coded card could be used by dining facility managers to determine usage. It could also replace membership cards that require much of the same information, such as officer and noncommissioned officer club cards, officials noted.

The services will issue the cards to members of the active and Reserve components, retirees and all eligible family members. Also participating in the changeover are the Coast Guard and the commissioned officers in the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Card colors remain the same, with active duty cards, green; Reserve components, red; retirees, blue; and family members, tan.

Field testing of the new card begins in October for the Army at Fort Belvoir, Va.; Air Force at Kelly Air Force Base, Texas; Marine Corps at Quantico, Va.; and Navy at Little Creek, Va. Implementation starts at the same time for the Coast Guard at its Washington headquarters, and Public Health Service and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, both in Rockville, Md.

Department of Defense personnel officials said installations and agencies will be brought on line one at a time. Full implementation begins in January and is expected to take about four years. Once the capability is in place at an installation, the new cards will be issued as individuals need replacements.

Savings begin almost immediately, said Department of Defense personnel officials, because the new identification cards take less time to process and don't require controlled card stock, application forms or photographic film. Another benefit is elimination of duplicate forms and photos, and name boards. Estimated savings total several hundred million dollars over the life cycle, added officials.

Since the forms are not preprinted and the computer software contains all of the service-specific seals, an individual can receive a new card at any service's identification card facility once the capability is in place, they said.

Personnel officials are exploring the possibility of a Department of Defense-wide civilian employee identification card.

Forerunners of today's identification cards were first issued in September 1950, said Department of Defense personnel officials. The last major changes to the active duty card were made in 1974, when fingerprints were removed and the Geneva conventions statement was added. In 1979, fingerprints were taken off of the retired and Reserve component identification cards; a medical care statement was placed on retiree cards.

COMMISSARY CORNER

The Defense Commissary Agency

Defense Commissary Agency officials say they are making extensive efforts to provide quality products to their customers. Stores are staffed with trained medical food inspectors and written policies are in place to ensure quality inspection is a high priority.

When customers receive a poor quality product, they should return that product to the Commissary and ask to see the inspector.

Inquire at the ID Desk for assistance. The customer will then be invited to fill out a portion of the DeCA Form 40-45, Food Quality Report, describing the situation with that particular product. The inspector will dispose of the bad product and ensure a satisfactory replacement product is provided or money refunded.

Every commissary has a suggestion box. Suggestions, comments, compliments and even complaints are all welcomed.

Beware of calling cards

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Some "money-saving" calling cards aimed at the soldier market may end up costing more in the long run, Directorate of Community Activities officials warn.

In a consumer advisory released by DCA, soldiers are warned that some of these cards that talk about big savings have pitfalls of which soldiers need to be aware.

In the case of one company's card, a telephone call for three minutes or less during normal duty hours will save the caller money. However, go over that period and prices rise dramatically.

DCA officials also point out that the rates for this card are also higher when soldiers would normally make long-distance calls, from 5 to 11 p.m.

The bottom line, officials say, is to check the contract carefully and comparison shop when looking for the best rates on calling cards.

FBI youth rally — The Lower Chattahoochee Valley Public Safety Youth Program will conduct its annual FBI youth rally Wednesday at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Columbus Mayor Frank Martin will open the program and introduce Special Agent Frank Pickens from the Atlanta Regional Office.

Special guests include Milton L. Creagh, an internationally known drug prevention speaker, and "Harry the Hawk," Atlanta Hawks' basketball mascot and one of the Atlanta Hawks cheerleaders.

There will be police and fire exhibits by public safety officials, a drug sniffing dog demonstration from Fort Benning, dance groups, giveaways and more.

The public is invited. For more information, call Chief Bruce Sanborn at 571-2830 or 571-2800.

Cardiac, diabetic support group — A meeting of the cardiac and diabetic support group will be Aug. 16 in the dining facility (on the basement floor) of Martin Army Community Hospital at 6 p.m. Participants are asked to bring a covered dish.

Also, bowling will be at the Main Bowling Center Tuesday and Aug. 24 at 5:30 p.m.

For more information, call Thomas E. Valitzski at 561-3077.

Management meeting — The Fort Benning Management Association will have a "homecoming" luncheon Aug. 19 at the Officers' Club at 11:30 a.m.

The president and executive officers are searching for all old and new members who have formed and preserved history in the association.

Past and present members are encouraged to contact association officers because the program will focus on past and present members. Also, photos (baby or recent) are needed so they can be placed on a poster at the meeting.

Celeste Lee and Sandra Wansley will provide entertainment featuring "oldies but goodies" at the meeting.

Luncheon tickets may be obtained by Aug. 13 from the following members: Sadie Dennis, Building 2608 (545-2992); Mary Allen, Building 2617 (545-4902); and Robin Dennis, Meloy Hall (545-4246).

For more information, call Myrtle Chalkley at 545-4539 or 568-7841.

AA — The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous group meets every Monday, Thursday and Saturday at 7 p.m. in the basement of the Directorate of Community Activities, Building 241. Entrance is in the rear of the building.

Parent training — The Children and Adults with Attention Deficit Disorders meeting for August will feature a three-hour parent training workshop, titled "Understanding Your Child's Educational Rights."

The workshop, Tuesday from 7 to 10 p.m. at The Medical Center auditorium, will be presented by Parents Educating Parents. The session is free for CHADD members; nonmembers must pay $1. For more information, call 561-1337.

Food drives — Army Community Service is soliciting organizations or activities to conduct food drives for the Emergency Food Locker program.

For more information, call Arthur Deane at 545-2536, 545-7517 or 545-4043.

Dancing classes — Fall dancing classes for tap, jazz and ballet will begin Sept. 1 at the Officers' Wives' Club. Beginner and advanced classes are available for 2 1/2 year-old, to adults.

Classes are one hour long, one day a week at $20 per month for one child, $35 per month for two children and $50 per month for three children.

School examinations — It is mandatory that any child entering Georgia schools for the first time be given a dental, eye and hearing examination.

The results of the exam will be entered on a Georgia Department of Human Resources Certification of Ear, Eye and Dental Examination, which must be presented to the school upon enrollment.

For a screening appointment, call 544-3350 at Martin Army Community Hospital or your county health department. The child's immunization record must be up to date.

Parents should take the immunization record to the hospital or health department at the time of the screening exam.

For more information, call Cathy Hatfield at 544-1503.

Welcome coffee — The International Wives' Club will host a welcome coffee for all foreign-born spouses in the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City area Aug. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in Building 2642, Collins Loop, Fort Benning.

For more information, call Olga Kelly at 687-6471 or Regina Colon at 682-7221.

The following American Red Cross classes are scheduled:

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation - professional rescuer instructor class, Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Must have current CPR instructor certification).

TIPS FOR MAKING YOUR AD MORE EFFECTIVE

- Start Your ad with the item you are selling, service you are offering, or job title you are looking to hire.
- Be descriptive. The more information you provide to the reader, the better the responses will be to your ad.
- Use bold type, white space of decorative characters such as stars, to bring attention to your ad.
- Run your ad for an ample length of time. Remember, as soon as you get results, you can cancel at any time during regular business hours.
- Always include the price of your item.

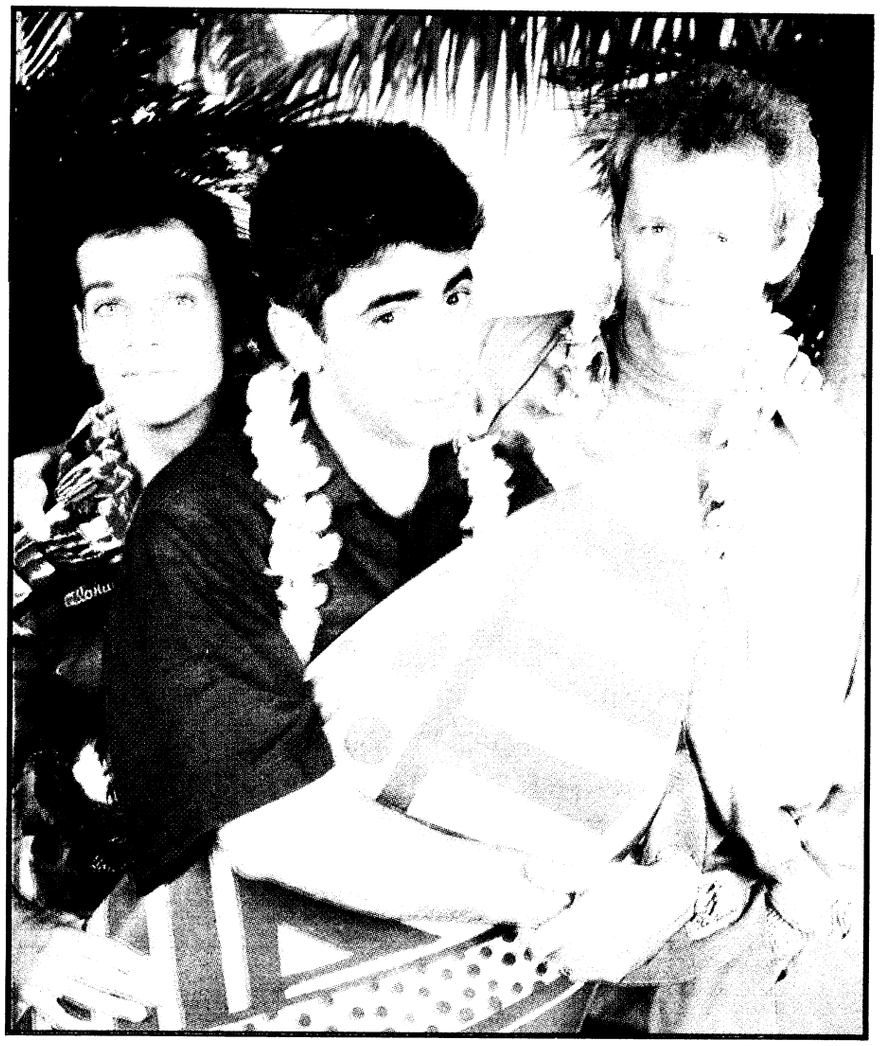
Surf's up at 'Big Wave Dave's' on CBS

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services



Life in the Windy City is virtually a world apart from life in the island tropics, as the main characters of a new series are about to discover.

SPOTLIGHT

Premiering Monday on CBS for a scheduled six-week run, the comedy "Big Wave Dave's" features Adam Arkin (a current Emmy nominee for his recurring role as the reclusive Adam on "Northern Exposure"), former "St. Elsewhere" co-star David Morse and Patrick Breen (a "Melrose Place" semi-regular as a magazine employee last season) as three Chicago friends who decide to embark on a long-dreamed-of quest ... to pack up and move to Hawaii, where they run a surf shop on Oahu, though they really don't know the first thing about catching or riding a wave.

Nevertheless, they receive support and encouragement from the Arkin character's wife, portrayed by Jane Kaczmarek ("Equal Justice"); unfortunately, they also manage to run afoul of a native islander who likes to emulate "Hawaii Five-0" veteran Jack Lord, going as far as to borrow the actor's name.

The show's executive producers are David Isaacs and Ken Levine, who worked as a writing team on "Cheers" and "M*A*S*H," and who also have been creative consultants for NBC's "Wings."

Given those latter credits, it's clear that the principal behind-the-scenes forces on "Big Wave Dave's" are quite familiar with ensemble-cast humor, but they acknowledge that nothing is a sure success in network television.

What: "Big Wave Dave's"
When: Monday at 9:30 p.m on CBS

"Especially when you start a show," Isaacs concedes, "you don't know what's going to happen. We know the drill pretty well, but it's just that starting up a new show is always filled with particular surprises and things that you didn't expect, and you have to sort of leave yourself open for that."

Production on the show (beyond Monday's pilot episode) began only 2 1/2 weeks ago, and Isaacs confirms that staying on schedule to meet the air dates is "tough, but at the same time, you can do better work because it's kind of like summer stock. It's very intense, very quick. You don't tend to obsess about (the final product) as much; you just go on and do it, and sometimes, that comes out better."

"Big Wave Dave's" shares an aim with most other summertime starters, since Levine confirms, "The ultimate goal is to find an audience and get a permanent slot.

"This gives us kind of a head start, in that we're not just one of 40 new shows that premiere (in September). In a sense, I think this could work out real well."

Fort Benning animal shelter asks for residents' help

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Officials at Fort Benning's Veterinary Clinic on 10th Mountain Division Road are in need of cooperation from installation residents. Domestic pet populations have grown on post and consequently so has the number of stray pets and instances of animals turned in to the shelter.

Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" starting Monday for more details on the severity of the problem and interviews with the facility's staff members.

Last week, Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general, showed his appreciation for the work done by outstanding civilian employees. Stay with "Fort Benning Today" for highlights of the Civilian Awards Luncheon July 27 at the Fort Benning Officers' Club and see some of the installations' recipients.

USAIC TV Schedule
Fort Benning Today: 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 1:30 to 2 p.m.
Specials: 2 to 4:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 4:30 p.m. to 8:30 a.m.

What is it like holding a Miss Association of the U.S. Army title at Fort Benning? Tune in to "Profile - Fort Benning" starting Monday at 2 p.m. and hear from Miss AUSA title-holder Pfc. Lasandra Smith who recently qualified to compete for the national title of Miss Teen USA.

USAIC TV will highlight post events and list classified advertisements on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board with news and music from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network.

If you are a subscriber to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on channel 3, 24 hours a day.

SOAP UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Laurel told Jack she killed her ex-husband Denny in self-defense. Fearing she'd be convicted of murder, Jack refused to let Laurel turn herself in. Jack and Laurel rolled Denny's body in the Oriental rug and planned to dump him in the abandoned mine on Dimitri's property. Mimi learned Taylor forged her name to get her pregnancy test results. Later, Taylor cajoled Derek into coaching her on her final police academy exam. Brooke told Tad she was going to a fertility clinic. Dimitri was upset to learn Mona and Myrtle invested their life savings in a condo for seniors. Wait to see: Laurel and Jack face discovery.

ANOTHER WORLD: Angry that Paulina rejected him for his part in the Cory takeover, Jake vowed to take Cory from her in revenge. A worried Rachel learned Carl had enough stock in Cory to help her if she would help him gain respectability. Jake drove his motorcycle into the stockholders meeting. As things worsened for the Corys, Rachel sadly accepted Carl's offer. Maggie hid Ian on the Cory estate. As Ryan searched for the missing Vicky, Grant whisked her, Donna and Stephen away. In Switzerland, Vicky lied that Ryan shot her in the cave. Wait to see: Felicia fears for Lorna's safety.

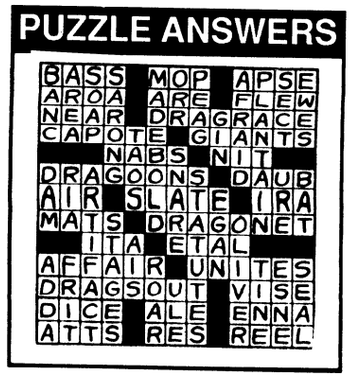
AS THE WORLD TURNS: Royce protested his innocence in Neal's murder, and later broke down in his jail cell. After returning from the in vitro clinic, Emily rushed to be with Royce. Holden decided to begin proceedings for sole custody of Aaron. Although he was over his head at Argus, Lamar spurned Duncan's offer of help. Damian was upset with Lily for offering to help Connor. Barbara believed Margo was luring Hal back to dangerous police duty. Lily overheard Damian tell Eduardo about his inroads at a local television station. Mac refused to wear his identification bracelet. Wait to see: Emily's flicker of doubt is suddenly reinforced.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Karen was hurt when Connor stood her up to spend the night with a suddenly "passionate" Brooke. Eric developed chest pains. Sheila told a worried Stephanie he'd been worked up about Brooke and the Belief patent. Sheila suggested Stephanie join with her to fight Brooke. Later, Connor advised Brooke to accept Eric's settlement offer, but citing the pain the Forresters caused her, she rejected it. Sally asked Jack for more time before deciding whether the wedding was postponed or canceled. Later, Ridge told Stephanie Sally didn't marry Jack, and told her to go after him before he got away again. Wait to see: Brooke's plan for revenge could backfire.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Billie realized Curtis was her presumed dead father. Moved by his profession of love for her, she agreed not to tell Bo about seeing the man who shot at John and Kristen. Curtis later called his boss to report he may have scared John and Kristen into staying apart, and if they don't, they'll be sorry. Bo spotted a blur in the photo. Swayed by Nikki's grief, Vivian told Lawrence she had buried Carly alive. As Bo set out to visit Carly's grave, Lawrence feverishly dug up the coffin to find her barely alive. Kristen sent a warning to her brother to leave John alone. Billie decided not to tell Austin their father was still alive. Wait to see: New pain awaits Bo.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: After offering to help Katherine pay off her late husband's debts, Scotty learned his money was caught in a legal web. Julie came to the rescue with a timely loan. Karen took Stone's business card and visited the club where he works. Without telling Mac, Felicia agreed to help Jagger find his missing brother. Tiffany returned, but continued to keep Sean at a distance. Bill decided to leave Port Charles for a while. Julia had to mediate the growing tensions between A.J. and Ned. Brenda offered, and Jagger accepted, an evening on the Quartermaine boat. Wait to see: Jenny is in for a surprise.

GUIDING LIGHT: Holly told Ross she bought a gun for her protection. Kat refused to tell the police where to find David. Holly told Blake she always loved her, and was sure she would have a better life with Ross than Holly had with Roger. Against Frank's wishes, Eleni asked Alan-Michael for her divorce settlement money for Marina's surgery. Macauley told Mindy that Nick had rifled through his houseboat. Nick's "lead" prompted Harley and Mallet to suspect a police coverup.



Hart, furious at how Jenna created bad feelings between him and his father, Roger, told her Roger had also proposed to Holly. Wait to see: Roger is caught in a new dilemma.

LOVING: Ally and Casey agreed on a trial reconciliation. Gwyn and Buck were rescued. Tess' campaign went on, as Trucker learned Mac was dying. Faison was arrested after an explosive boat chase. Fearing Ava was dead, Jeremy nearly confessed his love for her, but after she was rescued, the couple began to bicker again. Despite Trucker's attempt to bring his father and brother together, Buck refused to get to know Mac. The sonogram showed no abnormalities, but the doctor cautioned Shana not to assume that all was well. Stacey asked Buck for a date. Wait to see: A jealous Gwyn has plans for Buck.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Ty considered Alex's bid for a second chance. Dr. Jonas was unable to put Cord under hypnosis. Angela and Cain conned Dorian out of $50,000. Todd created chaos in the courtroom to stop Powell from confessing. Nora was upset that her guilty clients would go free, but the judge refused to let her withdraw from the case. Viki assured Sloan his book on Victor Lord, her late father, wouldn't affect their relationship. Cassie was upset by the book's suggestion that Dorian may have killed Victor. Later, Dorian realized Angela had conned her. Wait to see: Cord has a "revelation" about his past.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nina seethed when Victoria turned up with Brandon at Ryan's surprise party. Brandon decked Ryan for saying Victoria was chasing after her ex-husband. Jill's mother, Liz, arrived to see her new grandson, whom Jill named for her late father, William Foster. Douglas found it hard to follow Victor's instructions not to tell Nikki he was alive. Nikki turned down Jack's bid for dinner. Victor told Hope that working on the farm gave him a new outlook on life. The judge ruled Jabot was to return to John Abbott. Lauren fantasized about intimate moments with Brad. Wait to see: Cricket faces a crisis in her marriage to Danny.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Business and pleasure don't mix this week. Small problems could arise now in connection with a friendship. Career concerns may take priority over recreational pursuits. Guard against a tendency to spend too much money.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Feelings deepen in romance, and couples will enjoy good times together this week. Home life may be upset in some way. It is not the best time to have company over. The weekend finds you in an extravagant mood. Make sure that your plans are down to earth.

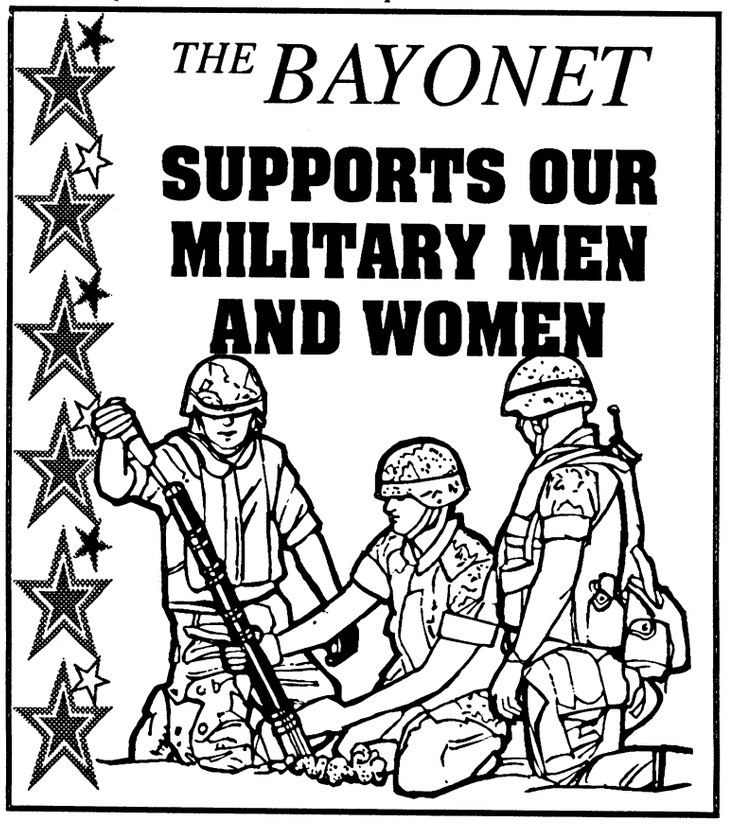
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): Not everyone will agree with you this week. It is a poor time for financial negotiations, though some progress will be made in a career endeavor. You could overlook some important details now. Someone you deal with this week tends to exaggerate.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22): Plans for shopping should be put off until another time. Some extra expenses could arise this week. Make sure you get the proper compensation for your services. Social life is active this weekend and you will spend a bit too freely. Happiness comes through romance and leisure activities.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22): You will be able to bring an end to a family problem this week. Guard against a tendency to overdo and watch your sweet tooth. It is not a good week for work interests. Hence, an existing assignment may take more time to complete than anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): You could be fretting about little things this week. Try not to dwell on problems, but make a point of getting outside of yourself through relaxing endeavors. Not all is clear in the romance department. Advice you receive may be misleading. Weigh opinions carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A family member with hurt feelings needs extra attention this week. Shoppers may come home with an unusual purchase. An obstinate partner may not want to join you at a social function. The weekend spells merriment, but watch a tendency to go overboard on spending or the use of credit.



SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You have charisma this week and are effective in getting your ideas across to others. It is not the best week for career interests, however. Be less critical of others. This weekend, your moods veer from over-optimism to unjustified fears. Seek a middle ground.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): There could be something you are taking for granted on the job this week. Stay on top of small details. There is some concern about a financial matter. Be tolerant of those whose beliefs differ from your own. Travelers could meet with extra expenses this weekend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Be careful not to abuse credit this week. Partners may disagree about the use of joint funds. Singles meet with romantic introductions. Group activities are favored. Penny-pinching ways alternate with extravagant spending. Self-indulgence is a possibility this weekend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): This week's behind-the-scenes developments may benefit your career. You may be a bit short-tempered now with a close tie. You may inadvertently hurt this person's feelings. Try to be more trusting of others. Rise above a tendency toward suspicion of others' motives.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20): You may have to forget about that plan to work on a pending project this week. Constant interruptions mean that little will be done. Friends from afar contact you. You may somehow become unduly involved with a friend's problems. Remember your priorities.

Beginning Sept. 7 — to reach an off-post number

Dial 7

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Beginning Sept. 7, the access number for off-post telephone calls will change from 9 to 7.

According to Faye Tucker, E-911 project officer for the Military Police Activity, the change is being made to avoid problems when the E-911 service is implemented.

"We don't want people to try to dial 911 and end up with off-post access," she said.

"Changing the off-post access number to 7 will avoid that problem."

Tucker said the change won't affect the access number for the Defense Switched Network, or DSN, which will remain 8.

Tucker said the equipment is not yet in place for the E-911 system.

"We don't know yet when it will be on line," she said, "but this change will avoid problems when 911 is activated."

Somalia bound

36th to deploy

USAIC Public Affairs Office

More than 460 members of the 13th Corps Support Battalion, 36th Engineer Group, are deploying between now and Tuesday on a planned rotation to Somalia.

Approximately 100 soldiers from the battalion headquarters and the advance party are leaving by Tuesday, while the main body will leave between Thursday and Aug. 30.

The battalion, which will provide combat service support to United Nations forces, is preparing for a six-month stay in Somalia.

"This is a much more dangerous mission than we first thought it was going to be," said Lt. Col. Spike Rupert, commander of the 13th Corps Support Battalion. "We are preparing our soldiers to go over there and defend themselves in a very dangerous environment as well as do their primary mission of conducting combat service support operations."

Rupert said the 13th is also undergoing additional training to help ensure soldier safety.

"We are sending (soldiers) through lane training where they learn to identify potential hazards on the roads such as mines, where they learn how to react to crowd control, crowd problems, possible attacks and ambushes along the roads," he said. "Our number one goal is to bring every soldier back healthy and to do a good mission while we are there."

Fort Benning units deploying include 150 soldiers from the 533rd Transportation Company; 200 from the 598th Maintenance Company; four from the 926th Medical Detachment; 50 from the 608th Ordnance Company; and 60 soldiers from the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment of the Support Battalion.

The 533rd Transportation Company is capable of providing heavy transportation of supplies and equipment throughout the country.

The 598th Maintenance Company will maintain all types of Army ground equipment, while the platoon from the 608th Ordnance Company will establish and operate a theater ammunition support center.

Also, the battalion will provide command and control for approximately 720 soldiers, to include the 364th Supply and Service Company from Fort Bragg, N.C., an explosive ordnance detachment and a fire fighting detachment.

3rd Bde. to change command

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Command of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), will change hands today during a 9 a.m. ceremony on York Field.

Col. Michael Deegan, formerly the operations officer of the Berlin Brigade, will assume command from Col. Robert J. St. Onge Jr.

St. Onge took command of the 3rd Brigade in October 1991.

The 1969 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., also holds a master of science degree in industrial relations from Purdue University and a master of arts and science degree from the School of Advanced Military Studies.

St. Onge previously commanded the 4th Battalion, 18th Infantry, 3rd Armored Division during operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

He and his wife, Joan, have three children. His next assignment will be as the chief of staff of the 1st Armored Division in Germany.

Deegan was commissioned a second lieutenant at the U.S. Military Academy in 1972.

He has held a number of command and staff positions both in the United States and overseas, including command of the 5th Battalion, 5th Cavalry, 3rd Armored Division in Germany and during operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

Deegan holds a master of science degree from Stanford Business School and studied as an Olmsed Scholar at the University of Heidelberg.

He and his wife, Isabel, have two children.

Javelin

A soldier shoulders the Javelin missile system, a new antitank weapon that was recently tested by the 29th Infantry Regiment and by soldiers at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., Saturday. Javelin gets its name from the trajectory that it flies. As the missile leaves the launcher, it flies gradually upward then dives onto of a tank's turret, where the protective armor is the thinnest. The missile's 'fire and forget' is new weapon's technology. More than 100 missile firings are planned before before fielding to units in fiscal 1996. See story on C-2.

Hot line

available for reporting discrimination problems

Equal Opportunity Office

Fort Benning has instituted a special Equal Opportunity "Sexual Harassment and Discrimination Hot Line." The number is 545-3206.

Calls may be made 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Calls placed during normal duty hours (8 a.m. until 5 p.m.) will be answered immediately, while calls placed after duty hours will receive a response the next day.

Calls will be monitored during each 24-hour period.

The hot line has been installed at the direction of the Army's chief of staff that installations have such an avenue available for Equal Opportunity and Equal Employment Opportunity concerns and issues.

Callers may be either active duty military or Department of Defense civilian workers, family members or retirees.

Calls may be placed for information regarding the installation's Equal Opportunity and Equal Employment Opportunity programs or policies, information on how to file complaints on sexual harassment or other forms of discrimination.

This is a joint effort of the Equal Opportunity and Equal Employment Opportunity offices to ensure another avenue is available throughout the Fort Benning area regarding Equal Opportunity and Equal Employment Opportunity issues or concerns.

The hot line is not intended to replace the functions of the military's advisers or the Equal Employment Opportunity specialists.

Homosexuals

DoD outlines its 'don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue' policy for gays in military

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

President Bill Clinton eased the military's homosexual ban, saying that those who want to serve their country in uniform should be allowed the opportunity to do so.

Clinton, who spoke before officers at the National Defense University in Washington recently, said conduct, not sexual orientation, should be the determining factor.

Department of Defense officials characterize the new homosexual policy as "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue." The new policy goes into effect Oct. 1.

Under the policy, no one will ask recruits their sexual orientation. Homosexuals in the service may not reveal their sexual orientation in public or private. Commanders and investigators will not start inquiries solely to determine a service member's sexual orientation.

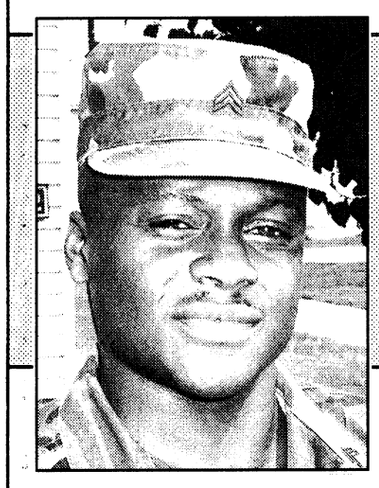
Clinton said the policy is a "sensible balance between the rights of the individual and the needs of our military to remain the world's No. 1 fighting force."

He said the policy consists of four essential elements. The first is that service members will be judged on conduct and not sexual orientation. The second is to continue the practice of not asking recruits their sexual orientation.

The third is that a declaration by a service member that he or she is a homosexual creates a "rebuttable presumption that he or she intends to engage in prohibited conduct."

Clinton said service members will be given the opportunity to refute the presumption and demonstrate they intend to live by the rules of conduct.

The fourth essential point is that commanders enforce all provisions of the Uniform Code of Military Justice evenhandedly as regards both heterosexuals and homosexuals. In a memorandum to the service secretaries and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Defense Secretary Les Aspin spelled out the Clinton policy in greater detail.



While applicants will not be asked their sexual orientation, they will be informed of the accession and separation policy.

While commanders and investigators will not start investigations solely to determine sexual orientation, inquiries will continue

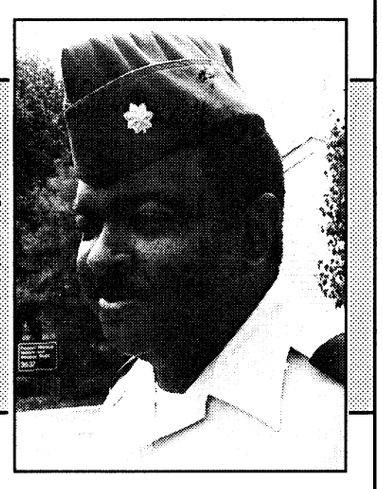
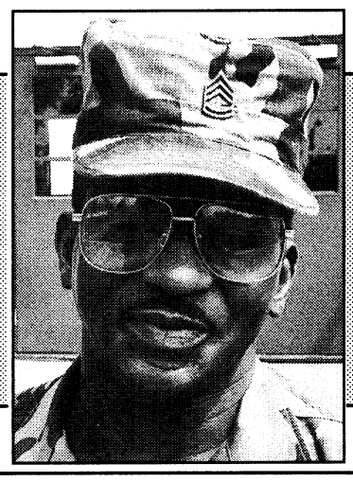
What kind of entertainment would you like in the post clubs?



Sgt. Wayne Pennington, Adjutant General Replacement Detachment — "I'd like to see live bands and a comedy act."

Pvt. 1 Scarlet Heath, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity — "I would like to see live theater, especially Shakespeare."



Laura Sims, family member — "I'd like to see a comedy night or plays — I'm not really interested in the disco scene."

Maj. Melvin McDaniel, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I think the clubs are fine the way they are, but I don't really use them."

Pvt. 2 Mohammad Newman, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity — "I'd like to see dance bands and light shows. A water park would be good, too.'"

Sgt. 1st Class Eddie Simon, Adjutant General Replacement Detachment — "I'd like to see some blues bands — a little Johnny Taylor or B.B. King would get me to go to the club."

Mission impossible!

You just can't make everybody happy

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

COMMENTARY

Pleasing people is tough. I know because I sure struck out the last two weeks.

But at least I still draw my paycheck. And there are no deductions based on how many irate letters and phone calls I get.

But if I were running the Officers' Club or NCO or enlisted clubs, I can tell you I'd be out of business. When these club managers and all their workers can't please their customers, they're out of a job.

And I gotta think, keeping so many people with so many different tastes happy is as close to a "Mission Impossible," as I'd ever want to come.

Capt. Rock may like the steak but not the music at the O'Club, while 1st Lt. Shaver might like the music but not the menu. And Col. Myway probably doesn't like either the menu or the music, but he does like the decor.

The Main NCO Club and the Sand Hill NCO Club are probably the same. Different ages, different cultural backgrounds, different tastes.

The enlisted club might be the easiest. Basically turn up the volume, pour the booze and bring on some girls and most of us wanna-be-NCOs are happy — at least until someone from another unit tries to cut in on our girl or they start playing the wrong music.

So how does one please these people? Well that's one reason for advisory boards.

Over at the Officers' Club, the lieutenants say, "give me quantity and make it cheap, and oh, by the way, I want a sand pit so I can show off my volleyball skills."

Middle grade officers probably are looking for cheap children's menus and the senior officers probably want Mantovoni piped in while they sip beaujolais with their prime rib.

Noncommissioned officers want bingo.

Of course that's not all. That's what drives managers crazy. They have to cater to all the people. Be they white, African-American, Latino, male, female, old or young, tone deaf, connoisseurs of music and food or not.

Managers have to not only decide what to put on the menu, the wine list, the booze list, but also what to put down for entertainment. Heavy metal, rap, clogging, karaoke or elevator music.

Some might want dinner theater, but then do they want drama, musicals, comedy or a combination?

Do they want to spend money on arcade games; and, if so, what's hot and what's not?

These people have to ask "why?" They can't just do it. They need to know when and where.

I think a prerequisite for the position of club manager is time spent dealing with the mentally challenged.

Additionally you need the hide of a rhinoceros yet the tact of a diplomat.

You have to endure customer complaints, warranted or not, with the aplomb of a saint, then make the person happy before he or she storms off.

So what can we do to keep these people in the service industry from becoming suicidal?

First, if you do have a complaint or problem, tell someone. Tell someone who can do something about it, right there on the spot. Even if you are Mikey Milquetoast.

But, if you can't get your courage up, then tell someone on the advisory council or fill out one of the "How did you like our service?" cards.

Get to know who your advisory council members are. If you've got an idea, let them know so they can pass it on to the movers and shakers.

And finally, patronize your clubs. The money you spend there goes back into post funds.

LETTERS

Snively's suggestions don't solve problem

I would like to take issue with several opinions expressed by Clyde Snively in his July 30 column. In a genre not known for its sensitivity, Snively sets a new low in callous disregard for and ignorance of the conditions under which many of our soldiers and their families live.

Snively would have the very spouses for whom he is ostensibly concerned drive their service member spouse to work at 6 a.m. or earlier, then return that afternoon, after having spent the curtailment period driving about the neighborhood with the air conditioner on. Let us not even discuss the environmental impact of such doubling and tripling of mileage as well as gasoline and automotive repair costs.

With many married soldiers already on a shoestring budget, who's got the extra cash to burn buying gas to cruise around the neighborhood, especially considering the length and intensity of the present heat wave? And to sit in front of the refrigerator wasting energy attempting to deal with the conservation measure is ludicrous.

Beyond these practical considerations, I am most disturbed by the tone of Snively's message. Speaking of whining and mentioning, even by implication, a lack of common sense on the part of those of whom the Army asks much in any case is downright irresponsible.

Curtailment is a necessary evil and not a pleasant time for anyone. Snively's attempt to make light of it, while probably initiated with good intentions, has resulted in an inflammatory and insulting message that makes no progress in resolving the problem.

Civilians

Does the Army really need them?

By Dan Hassett
Northwest Guardian, Fort Lewis, Wash.

"This post would be a great place if we got rid of all the civilians." I've heard that and similar comments fairly regularly during my career.

Soldiers complain about civilian employees not having to work past close of business or on weekends or holidays. Soldiers gripe about civilians getting higher pay and better relocation benefits. Troops say the civilians just care about their paychecks, not about the soldiers they serve.

But I've also heard the other side, too. Civilians complain about soldiers' better medical or dental benefits. They complain about soldiers' commissary and exchange privileges.

And civilians gripe about soldiers getting time off for training during working hours and about training holidays.

It sometimes seems as if we are adversaries rather than partners in this defense business.

The bottom line is just that — this defense business. And to properly carry out that business. we soldiers need the help and support of our civilian employees, and they benefit from helping us get the job done.

We haven't always operated that way. When I first came into the Army in 1967, I saw very few civilian employees, and the ones I did see were technical specialists working for companies contracted to the Army.

The Army began changing in the '70s and '80s. Many civilian positions were created so administrative slots could be changed into combat slots, producing a more combat-ready Army without increasing the number of soldiers serving on active duty.

Civilians could perform many garrison support functions while troops were free to train for their wartime missions.

That's where we stand now. We are better prepared for mobilization and combat because we have been able to concentrate manpower and resources to the defense mission rather than garrison service and support tasks.

In this period of drawdown, our civilian partners are even more important in allowing us to maintain deployable, capable combat forces.

The civilian work force is being cut as the active forces are cut, but the ones who remain still provide the vital support we need.

Yes, differences in benefits, working hours and pay do exist. But they exist because of differences in our jobs and missions.

If we sit and stew about the unfairness of the differences, we can quickly lose sight of that bottom line, the reason we are all in this together: " ... to support and defend ..." our nation and its citizens — all its citizens.

Ranger Memorial

Buy a piece of a dream fast becoming a reality

Architectural plan for the Ranger Memorial.

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Plans to construct a significant memorial dedicated to U.S. Army rangers, past, present and future, at Fort Benning are reaching their final stages.

The Ranger Memorial Foundation Inc. recently received approval for the "Ranger Memorial Walk" from Acting Secretary of the Army John W. Shannon, who wrote to the foundation that he was pleased to accept the foundation's generous offer to construct the monument at no cost to the government.

The "Ranger Memorial Walk" will consist of 2,456 cut and polished Georgia granite stones inscribed with the names of rangers past and present to be memorialized and honored.

Designed in the shape of a spearhead to symbolize ranger strike operations, the walk will feature a 24-foot bronze commando knife and granite monuments to the various ranger associations.

It will be constructed at Ranger Field in front of Infantry Hall.

The foundation has raised $300,000 of the $500,000 needed to build and maintain the monument.

The money was raised through contributions and donations and by selling engraved stones that will become a permanent part of the monument's walkway.

"We have sold about 1,200 stones in the past 10 months," said retired Maj. Gen. Kenneth C. Leuer, chairman of the foundation, "and sales of the remaining stones should be completed by the end of the year.

"We are hoping to have the funds in place to begin construction by October," Leuer said.

The goal is to have the memorial ready for dedication at next summer's Ranger Hall of Fame induction ceremony in July.

Leuer said that making this monument a reality is a wonderful feeling. "The idea for a ranger monument has been around for more than 25 years. This is happening in short order — typical of ranger missions," Leuer said.

The fact that the stones are selling well shows pride in the ranger family, Leuer said.

"People really want to be a part of it," he said.

There are about 1,200 stones remaining for purchase. Each stone costs $240 and may be purchased personally or in memory of a fallen ranger by family members or third parties.

Individuals to be named on the stones must meet one of the following criteria:

- Be a graduate of the U.S. Army Ranger School.
- Have served in a provisional or operational long-range patrol or long-range recon patrol company during the Vietnam War.
- Have served in an operational ranger unit during peace or wartime.
- Been awarded the U.S. Army Ranger Tab by general or executive order for service in the World War II ranger battalions, Merrill's Marauders or the ranger infantry companies (airborne) of the Korean War.
- Been attached to a ranger unit during combat operations.

Purchase of granite stones may be made by check, credit card, money order or Army pay allotment.

For more information about purchasing a stone or making an individual or corporate contribution, call the foundation at 323-4461, fax a request to 649-2257, or write to retired Col. Ralph Puckett at the Ranger Memorial Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 5948, Columbus, Ga. 31906-0948.

Courtesy campaign to be implemented in Veterans Affairs

Department of Veterans Affairs

WASHINGTON — A new nationwide awareness campaign is being inaugurated by the Department of Veterans Affairs among its 250,000 employees that will emphasize themes of caring and courtesy under the banner of "VA — Putting Veterans First."

"Because we are undoubtedly the government's largest single employer of direct public contact personnel, we have a special need to emphasize customer service," said VA Secretary Jesse Brown in announcing plans for systemwide adoption of the program.

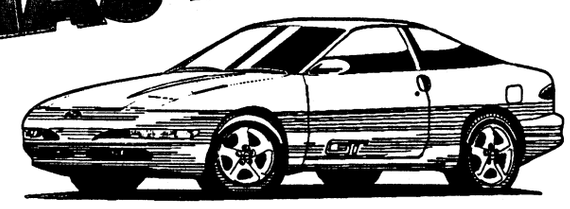
"The tone we establish with our veterans in their encounters with VA must communicate a total sense of caring and courtesy."

VA operates a system of benefits offices, several hundred hospitals and clinics and national cemeteries.

The nation's living veterans combined with family members and survivors represent an estimated one-third of the total population.

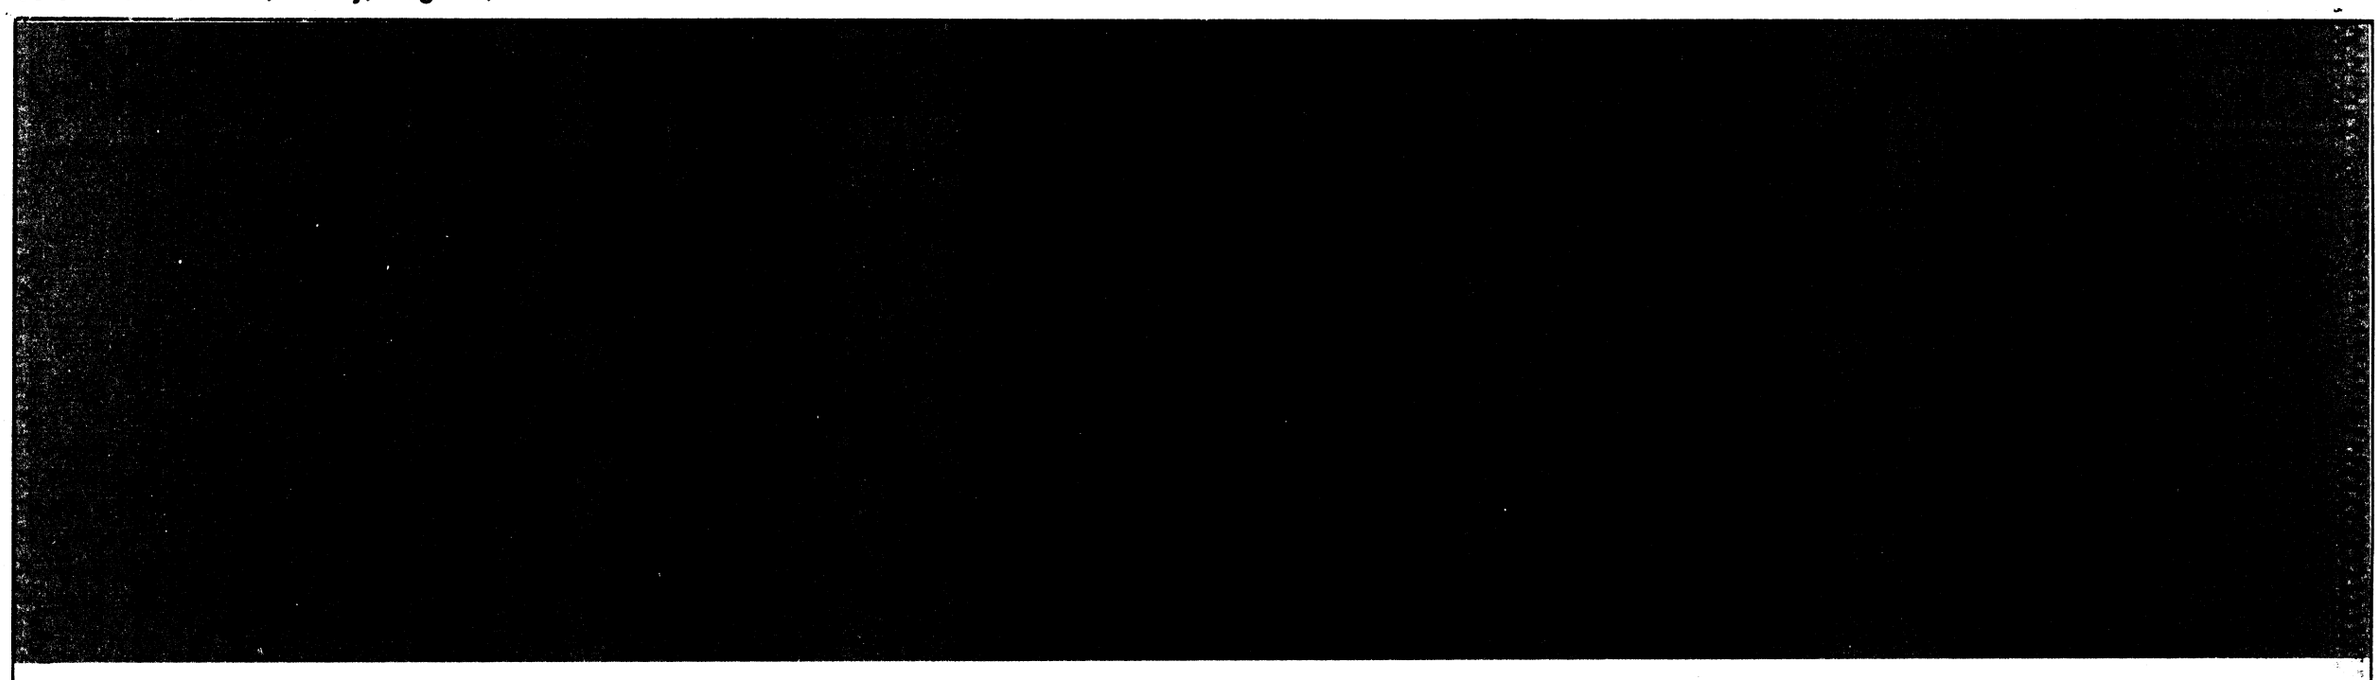
Each year VA staff handle more than 15 million telephone calls, process more than 1 million hospital admissions and 25 million outpatient visits, and have countless one-on-one contacts with veterans and family members.

Brown said the campaign will begin with stepped-up emphasis on courtesy-based training and orientation programs.



"We want to provide clear guidelines to our employees not only to reinforce a sense of responsibility for being pleasant and helpful, but also to demonstrate that in the long run it helps us be efficient," he said.

Brown explained that by reducing time spent on consumer complaints and by taking an early interest in individual concerns, VA could increase its productivity.



The "VA — Putting Veterans First" motto will soon appear throughout the system in stationery, publications, posters and other communications media.

"We not only want this theme to serve as a constant reminder to our employees," Brown said, "but we want veterans themselves to know that we take our commitment to them seriously."

ASK DR. FIT

U.S. Army Physical Fitness School

Editor's note: "Ask Dr. Fit" is a column that is written by the U.S. Army Physical Fitness School. It is intended to spread physical fitness knowledge.

The topics will actually be generated by the readers through a question-and-answer forum. Topics to be covered, but not limited to, include: training methods to perform your mission, nutritional information, prevention and care of physical training injuries, current physical training ideas, correct Army physical fitness test methods, interpreting Field Manual 21-20 Physical Fitness Training, and reading the regulations to include Army Regulations 350-41 (training), 600-9 (body composition) and 600-63 (health promotion).

Write your questions and forward them to U.S. Army Physical Fitness School, Building 468, ATTN: ATZB-PF, Dr. Fit, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905-5000.

Q: Is the U.S. Army Physical Fitness School still in existence?

A: Yes, the school is presently located in Building 468, Fort Benning, behind the firehouse across from Doughboy Stadium (The previous location of the Headquarters of the School of the Americas).

Q: Is the Master Fitness Trainer course still taught?

A: Yes, the course is still taught both locally and through mobile teaching teams. Currently, there are active component courses planned for Forts Leonard Wood, Mo.; Jackson, S.C.; Stewart, Ga.; Gordon, Ga.; Riley, Kans.; Clayton, Panama; Schofield Barracks, Hawaii; and Fort Benning.

Additionally, the Reserve component has classes planned for Fort Benning, the National Guard of Illinois, Washington State, California, Texas, Delaware, New York, Wisconsin, Puerto Rico and numerous courses planned for the Reserve Professional Education Center, Arkansas.

Q: What is Army Regulation 350-41, Training in Units and what happened to Army Regulation 350-15, Physical Fitness Training?

A: Army Regulation 350-15 no longer exists; it is now part of Army Regulation 350-41, Training in Units. The physical fitness regulations are located in Chapter 9 and address physical training implementation, objectives, training policies, unit and individual physical training, testing procedures, incentives and corrective action, safety, and sports-related programs.

Q: What is Total Fitness 2000?

It is a program to encourage the entire Army community to be responsible for their health and wellness. It includes active and Reserve components, their family members, Army civilians and retirees.

The goal is to encourage physical training, aerobic and muscle development, and to lower illness and sickness rates thereby decreasing health-care costs.

Studies show those in regular exercise programs have half the health-related costs of those not in regular exercise programs.

Officials describe process behind policy

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

Defense officials said the new policy for dealing with homosexuals in the military can be characterized as "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue."

Speaking on background, the officials also said they expect the new policy to withstand court challenges.

The policy resulted from recommendations of a military working group and another study group at the Rand Corporation and through consultations with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, representatives of the gay community and members of Congress, officials said. They said the negotiations on the policy were "tough."

The recommendation is the end of a six-month process begun by the president in January. A Clinton memo asked Defense Secretary Les Aspin to recommend a way to end discrimination based on sexual orientation. The memo also directed that the recommendation could not impair military readiness, unit cohesion or morale. Officials said it was important to have a policy that the Joint Chiefs of Staff would support. They said the recommendations made by Aspin are supported by the Joint Chiefs.

Aspin received the Rand proposal June 1, and the military working group presented its proposal June 9. "At that point the nature of the work changed from fact collecting to consultation," an officials said.

Much of the study detailed how the military dealt with other significant changes in the past. "In a nutshell, the military has to be part of the solution," the official said. "They have to be part of the process. That was part of why the military working group was involved."

Officials said the two groups approached the project differently. Rand looked at a code of conduct for all service members. The military working group option was "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue."

The homosexual policy is the result of a working group study with representatives of the gay community

"I think these shorthand terms we've been using don't do justice to the complicated nature of the personnel policy," one official said.

Both groups discussed whether homosexuality itself was incompatible with military service; they looked at issues of free speech and what the investigative policy would be in respect to enforcement of the new policy.

"The heart of this effort has been to reconcile some views that were at times in conflict," an official said. "First, that people who are interested in volunteering to serve their country in the military should have that opportunity.

"Second, military life is clearly different from civilian life. The military unit is focused on the unit. In civilian life, we very often focus on the individual and the rights of the individual. In the military, the rights of the group very often outweigh the rights of the individual."

Under the policy some aspects of behavior will not, by themselves, be sufficient to trigger an investigation or form the basis for an administrative separation. Going to a gay bar, attending gay rights marches or displaying photographs upon a desk are protected. Declaring homosexuality in public or in private is not, however, considered protected speech.

Retirement material available for loan

The Retirement Services Office has available for loan two videotapes, "Military Preretirement" and "The Survivor Benefit Plan." The tapes may be used for professional development by a group or individuals to allow eligible soldiers to better prepare for retirement.

For more information, call 545-5369 or 545-2541.

Weapons Pool to be closed September 4

The Crescrenz Consolidated Equipment Pool Branch (formerly called the Weapons Pool), Maintenance Division, Directorate of Logistics, Building 9106, will be closed for business Sept. 4 because of the Labor Day holiday, which will be officially observed Sept. 6.

Captain needed for Western Sahara duty

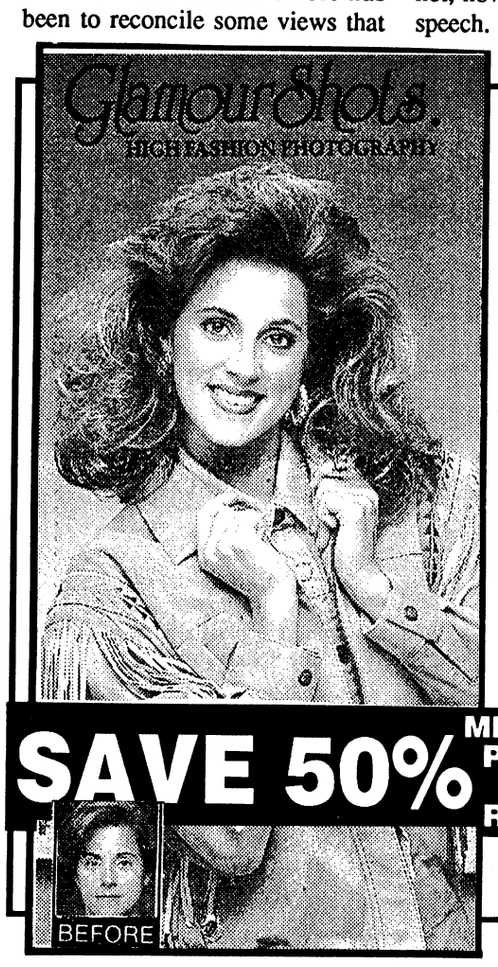
Headquarters, Department of Army is looking for a captain as a replacement in the Western Sahara. Temporary duty would start around Sept. 2 for a six-month period. The job is a military observer for the United Nations.

Officers must have completed their advanced course, have a minimum of six years active duty (not waiverable), be on active duty, have a secret clearance, be eligible to obtain a passport (have birth certificate in hand), not have any medical condition or profile that would prohibit duty in extremely hot weather or away from a medical facility. Also, the individual must have passed a physical training test within three months.

Fund cite and orders will be provided by DA. The officer will receive per diem in accordance with U.N. rates. All volunteers must contact their installation tasking office.

Reservists eligible for Delta Dental Plan

A Reserve officer on extended active duty with less that 24 months to the date of separation may voluntarily enroll in the Delta Dependents Dental Plan if the intent of the individual is to remain in the service past his or her projected separation date.



The intent provision for enrolling these officers is similar to the guidelines for enlisted members, the member must express an intent and there must be nothing that would prevent continuation of service.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Sunday. If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-6, C-1, C-2, C-3, D-11, D-17, E-2, K-8, K-9, K-18, M-2, M-6, M-8, O-1, O-3, O-5, O-6, O-7, Q-2, S-1, T-5, T-6, U-5, V-1, V-2, V-3, V-4, W-2, X-1, X-3 and X-4.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas. People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

VA Q&A

Department of Veterans Affairs

Q: What are the limitations on the selection of a tutor in the tutorial assistance program?

A: He or she must be qualified in the subject area and not be a parent, spouse, child, brother or sister of the veteran or eligible person.

Q: Is entitlement charged for remedial or deficiency training under Chapter 35 (Survivors' and Dependents' Educational Assistance)?

A: Not for the first five months or equivalent.

Q: Who is eligible for the Student Work-Study Allowance Program?

A: A student enrolled on a three-quarter time basis or higher under Chapter 30 (Montgomery GI Bill), Chapter 31 (Vocational Rehabilitation), Chapter 32 (VEAP), Chapter 35 (Survivors' and Dependents' Educational Assistance), and Chapter 106 (Selected Reserve Program) is eligible to apply for work-study.

Q: What are the requirements for receiving an education advance payment check?

A: One-half time training, agreement by the school to handle the payment and receipt by VA of enrollment certification at least 30 days before classes begin.

Q: I have been in the Army Reserves since 1989. Am I entitled to payments under the Montgomery GI Bill (Selected Reserve) for attendance at a vocational welding school?

A: You may be eligible for this type of training. However, you will need to provide evidence that, since Oct. 1, 1990, you have re-enlisted or extended your enlistment to have six years of obligated service remaining after the re-enlistment or extension is signed.

Q: May VA authorize education benefits to active duty servicemembers for pursuit of courses during "nonduty" time if the individual receives tuition assistance from the armed forces for the same courses or training?

A: No. As long as the individual is on active duty status, the bar applies, regardless of whether the individual has specifically assigned military duties.

Q: May I use my VA home loan guaranty to purchase a motor home?

A: No. Motor homes are not included in the VA loan guaranty program. Manufactured homes, with or without a lot, are included.

Q: Is there a time limit in which a veteran must use his or her Certificate of Eligibility for a VA-guaranteed home loan?

A: No. There is no expiration date on a VA home loan Certificate of Eligibility. Once issued, the veteran may use the certificate at any time.

Although the maximum loan guaranty entitlement amounts may increase, it is not necessary to have the certificate updated to reflect the increased amount.

This will automatically be done at the time of loan processing.

Q: My husband was killed in the Vietnam Conflict. Am I eligible for a VA-guaranteed home loan to buy a house?

A: Yes. Unremarried spouses of veterans who died on active duty after September 1940 or as a result of service-connected injuries are eligible for VA-guaranteed loans to buy a home.

To apply, you should complete VA Form 26-1870, "Request for Determination of Loan Guaranty Eligibility — Unremarried Surviving Spouse.

Q: Does VA have toll-free numbers to obtain information on benefits?

A: The Department of Veterans Affairs inaugurated a single, nationwide, toll-free number Oct. 26 to make it easier for veterans and their dependents to inquire about and apply for VA benefits.

The number — (800) 827-1000 — can be dialed anywhere in the United States, Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands. Dialing automatically connects the caller to the nearest VA regional office during normal office hours.

There are 58 regional benefits offices — at least one in each state — which process applications for veterans benefits and provide information and referral to veterans interested in VA medical care and nonVA programs for veterans.

Prior to the new nationwide number, each regional office had its own toll-free number.

VA is encouraging veterans who live in the local calling area for a regional office to continue to use the local phone number.

VA also maintains a national toll-free telephone number accessible by a telecommunications device to assist deaf and hearing-impaired veterans and their families.

Veterans with this special equipment, known as TDD, can call (800) 829-4833 for information on VA benefits and programs.

This service is available from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. CDT, Monday through Friday. Calls received after normal business hours and on weekends and holidays will be returned the following business day.

Q: Does VA offer mortgage insurance for VA home loans?

A: The only mortgage insurance offered by VA is Veterans' Mortgage Life Insurance.

VMLI coverage is available to those disabled veterans who have received grants for the purchase of specially adapted housing or to certain severely disabled veterans who are entitled to compensation for service-connected permanent and total disability.

Q: I was in the Reserves for six years. I recently heard that Reservists are eligible for VA-guaranteed home loans. Is this true?

A: A new program for members of the Selected Reserve was signed into law Oct. 28. Individuals with six years of service in the Selected Reserve will now be eligible for the VA's loan guarantee benefit. Individuals no longer in the Selected Reserve must have served at least six years and have received an honorable discharge.

The program requires a 2 percent funding fee on a no-downpayment loan. Reservists will pay the same funding fee as other veterans for manufactured home loans (1 percent), and interest rate reduction refinancing loans and assumptions (.5 percent).

You may apply for a certificate of eligibility for this program using VA Form 26-1880, Request for Determination of Eligibility and Available Loan Guaranty Entitlement.

Contact your nearest VA regional office for information. You may call VA's new nationwide number (800) 827-1000; or, if you live in the local calling area, continue to use the local phone number.

HOMOSEXUALS: DoD outlines policy

where commanders believe there is credible information that a basis for discharge or disciplinary action exists. Commanders have sole authority to initiate investigations.

Commanders will not tolerate harassment or violence against other service members.

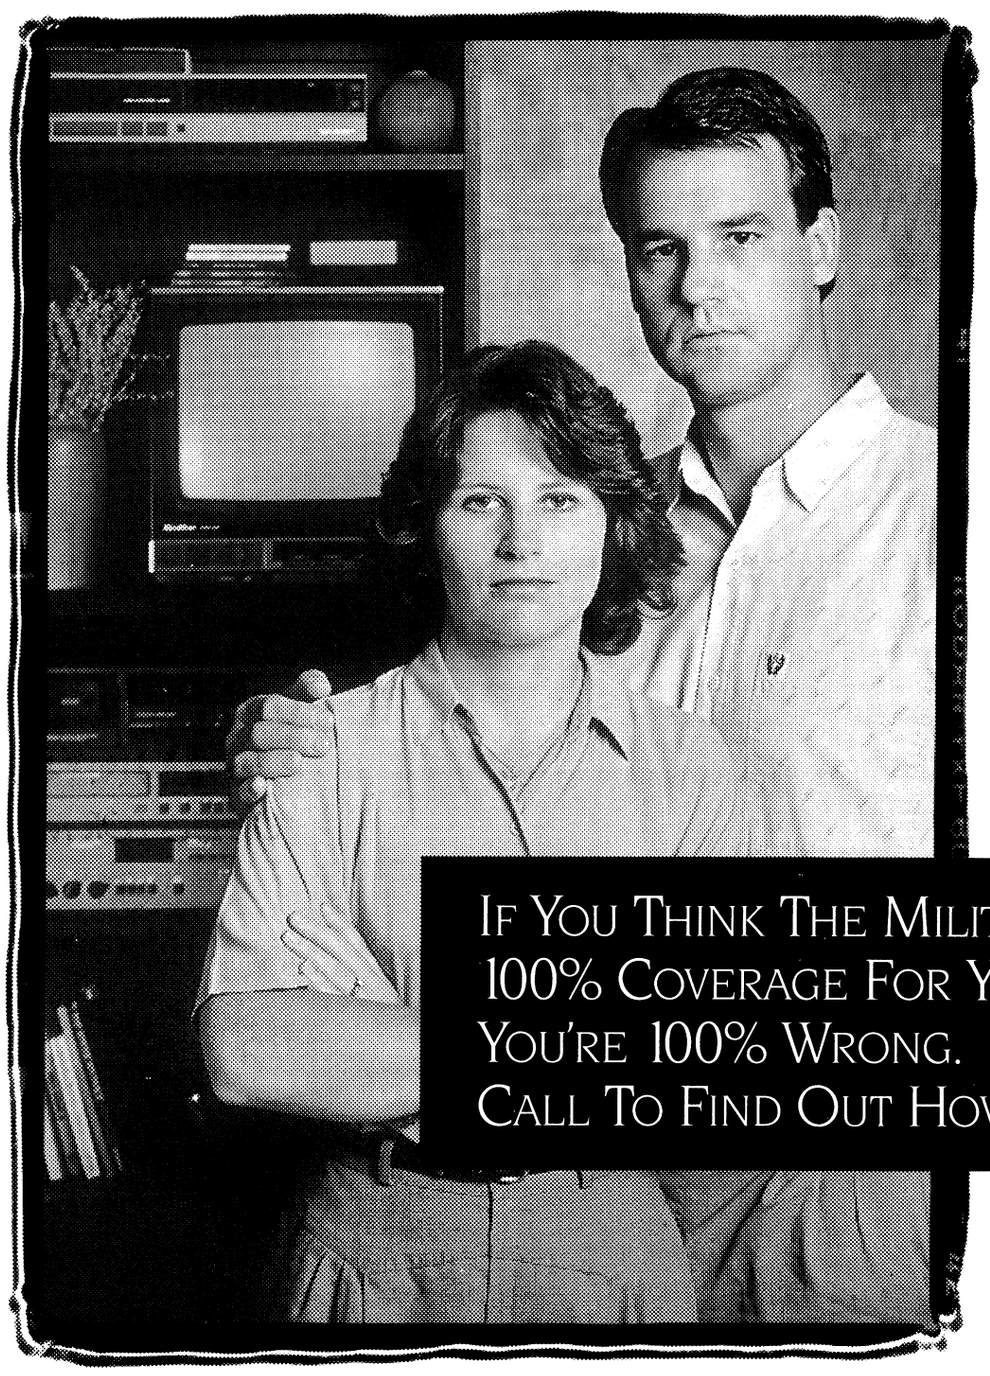
The memo defines homosexual conduct as "a homosexual act, a statement by the service member that demonstrates a propensity or intent to engage in homosexual acts, or a homosexual marriage or attempted marriage."

The memo says a homosexual act includes any bodily contact, actively undertaken or passively permitted, between members of the same sex for the purpose of satisfying sexual desires. This includes handholding or kissing under most circumstances.

Other activities will not lead to a presumption of homosexuality. These include associating with known homosexuals at gay bars, possessing or reading homosexual publications, and marching in civilian clothes in a gay rights parade. Further, listing a person of the same sex as the one to be contacted in an emergency or as an insurance beneficiary does not provide basis for further investigation.

Communications between a chap' in and a service member, husband and wife, and attorney and client remain privileged.

Officials will not ask service members their sexual orientation when screening for security clearances.



"An individual's sexual conduct, whether homosexual or heterosexual, is a legitimate security concern only if it could make an individual susceptible to exploitation or coercion," according to a fact sheet released by the Pentagon.

"Outing," which means exposing homosexuals against their will, is also covered. According to the fact sheet, the "mere allegation or statement by another that a service member is a homosexual is not grounds for official action." Commanders cannot take action against service members based on rumor, suspicion or capricious allegations.

"The time has come for us to move forward," Clinton said. "As your commander in chief, I charge all of you to carry out this policy with fairness, with balance and with due regard for the privacy of individuals. We must and will protect unit cohesion and troop morale. We must and will continue to have the best fighting force in the world."

Whether you live on post or off, rent or own your home, it's up to you to make sure your family's possessions are protected. But that can be easier and cost a lot less than you think with a Renter's or Homeowner's Insurance policy offered through Family Protection Plus℠.

The government won't reimburse you for household and personal items that are stolen or destroyed unless you live in on-post housing, or they are being moved or stored for a PCS. Then you still can't be sure you are fully protected because the government limits the maximum amount it pays for personal property. It also deducts depreciation from the original value of damaged or stolen items. So you may not even get enough money to replace your losses.

IF YOU THINK THE MILITARY GIVES YOU 100% COVERAGE FOR YOUR BELONGINGS, YOU'RE 100% WRONG. CALL TO FIND OUT HOW WE CAN HELP.

Renter's and homeowner's insurance coverage available through Family Protection Plus provides comprehensive protection for all your possessions—at home, in transit, or in storage—with a replacement value option available. These policies give you automatic coverage on TDYs anywhere in the world for up to 179 days. And they also include liability coverage that protects you against law suits and damage claims.

The Family Protection Plus program was created by Academy Life Insurance Company with the specific needs of NCO families in mind. Family Member Employment Assistance

Computer training for military spouses and soldiers who are leaving the service is being offered by Army Community Service Family Member Employment Assistance Program.

A registration session will be Aug. 31 from 9 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. at the Family Unit Network Center, Building 359, on Main Post.

Interested soldiers and military spouses will have an opportunity to register and receive training in the following courses:

Introduction to Computer Keyboard — Sept. 13, 14, 16, 20, 21, 23, 27, 28, 30 and Oct. 4, 5 and 7. Hours are 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

Introduction to Computer Keyboard is designed for beginning computer users.

However, interested individuals should have basic typing skills and have knowledge of the typing keyboard. At least one year of office work experience is desired but not mandatory.

WordPerfect — Sept. 13, 14, 16, 20, 21, 23, 27, 28, 30 and Oct. 4, 5 and 7. Hours are 6 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

WordPerfect is not designed for beginning students.

Individuals must have at least two years computer operating work experience and type at least 40 to 45 words per minute on a word processor.

Classes will meet each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday of each week. There are 20 slots available in each class.

Study lab hours will be available each Wednesday.

Additional computer training will be offered in October.

Registration requirements and course subjects will be announced at a later date.

Currently more than 100 military spouses and soldiers have been trained in Computer Keyboard, WordPerfect and Lotus 1-2-3.

The computer training sessions were taught by Troy State University personnel from the Fort Benning branch.

Military family members and transition soldiers received 30 hours of classroom instruction, course books for future usage, and certificates of completion.

Army Community Service has obtained additional funding to continue the training during fiscal '93.

For additional information and assistance, visit Army Community Service Family Member Employment Assistance Program in Building 2643 in Soldiers' Plaza.

Fort Benning golfer is family member champ

Fort Benning Ladies Golf Association

Mavis Hill

Mavis Hill, a member of the Fort Benning Ladies Golf Association, participated in the 1993 Military Dependents' Championship Golf event at Camp Le-Jeune, N.C., June 22 to 24.

Hill attended the annual tournament after receiving an invitation from her golf association, said her husband, retired Chaplain (Col.) Charles F. Hill. This is the second tournament she has attended, the first being in Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1990.

Out of a field of 167 women, Hill won the handicapped low net of the field, low gross in her flight and low putts for the first day of the three-day tournament. Her three-game scores were 82, 86 and 86.

Hill received two gold necklaces and a jacket with crest as her prize winnings.

"She played for herself and did really well," her husband said. "She was really surprised that she had won. She never led, not even when going into the third and final game. She was two strokes behind and didn't think she had a chance. She really won the game on the last hole; a birdie set up the win."

Men's softball heads for finals

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

The dust never settled as double-elimination softball semi-final games were played Monday through Thursday at Engineer fields one and two.

Tuesday, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade met 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment at 6 p.m.

The 2nd Bn. started off strong in the first, scoring Anthony Taylor, Russ Thoma and Frederick Aper. HHC attempted to retaliate in the bottom of the inning when their first batter, Jose Roa, lost a close call at home in what would have been a home run.

"I should have slid," said Roa, to the agreement of teammates in the dugout. HHC finished the inning scoreless.

Thomas continued to contribute for 2nd Bn. throughout the game, scoring in the second, fourth and sixth innings. Michael Ryan batted in three base runners to score four runs in the second inning.

Aper, also 2nd Bn., scored in the second and sixth, with Dorflein coming home in the second and fifth innings.

Teams tear up Engineer fields as tournament progresses — final game Sunday

HHC put seven runs on the board, with three runners crossing the bag in the third for the team's best inning.

"This is our pitcher's first game," said HHC coach Cruz Rios. "We've had trouble keeping people lately, with some moving, some getting out, and some on leave. We're here to have fun, and we're doing that."

The game went only six innings as time ran out, and it finished with a score of 12 to 7.

Scores in other playoff games as of Wednesday were:

School of the Americas, 8; Infantry Training Brigade, 7.

U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, 7; Infantry Training Brigade, 0.

Trout fishing offers challenge, rewards to dedicated anglers

By Kevin Lee McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

COMMENTARY

The rising of a rainbow trout to take a dry fly can be one of the most challenging and exhilarating experiences that an angler can possibly enjoy.

I've got to tell you, seeing a rainbow trout explode out of the water to devour a hovering insect is an example of nature at its best. And if you haven't experienced it, then it's time you did.

Any experienced angler will tell you that trout are one of the most difficult species of fish to catch. You might catch your limit of small ones, but you certainly will have a tough time landing a trophy trout.

Trout, specifically rainbows, are well known for their acrobatic ability, finesse and cunning, unknown to most other species of freshwater fish.

For those of you who are avid trout anglers, Georgia offers some great fishing locations. And if you're new to trout fishing, then you're in for the thrill of a lifetime.

With 4,000 miles of trout inhabited waters stretching across Georgia, you have ample opportunities to try and fill your creels.

The majority of the trout inhabited streams are located in the North Georgia mountains, although they can be found as far south as Atlanta.

The reason for this is two-fold: trout need highly oxygenated and cold water in order to live. In fact, once the water temperature reaches 70 degrees, there isn't enough oxygen for them to survive. Fast moving streams and rivers can produce enough oxygen for trout to live and this is why they survive in even the hot climate of North Georgia.

But let's get away from all the scientific stuff and get to the business at hand. With all the trout streams available, you're virtually unlimited as to where you can go, but I'll try to narrow it down to three great locations with easy access.

The closest location is the Chattahoochee River National Recreation Area located in Atlanta. This area offers the wide-open expanses of the Chattahoochee River within a two-hour drive.

For those of you who have fished large trout streams in other states, this is what you are looking for. The water is fast, cold and fairly deep. It is stocked regularly and offers plenty of room for any angler wielding a fly-rod.

Although you'll be fishing right in the middle of Atlanta, once you get out on the river you wouldn't know it. In fact, except for tubers floating down the river, you could be in Colorado or Montana.

If you want to venture farther away, the next location I would recommend is Helen, Ga. A good spot to head for a long weekend, Helen is located about four hours away from Fort Benning.

Once you get there, you can again fish the waters of the Chattahoochee, but this time the river is narrower and not as deep. But there is still plenty of room to cast a fly or two, and the fishing is excellent. You probably won't catch a big trout, but you can definitely take some nice pan-sized ones.

The last location I recommend is Waters Creek, located inside the Chestatee Wildlife Management Area.

About 15 miles from Helen, Waters Creek is definitely for experienced trout anglers only, and the "novice" should stick to the waters of the Chattahoochee. This area is a designated trophy trout stream and is managed and regulated by the state.

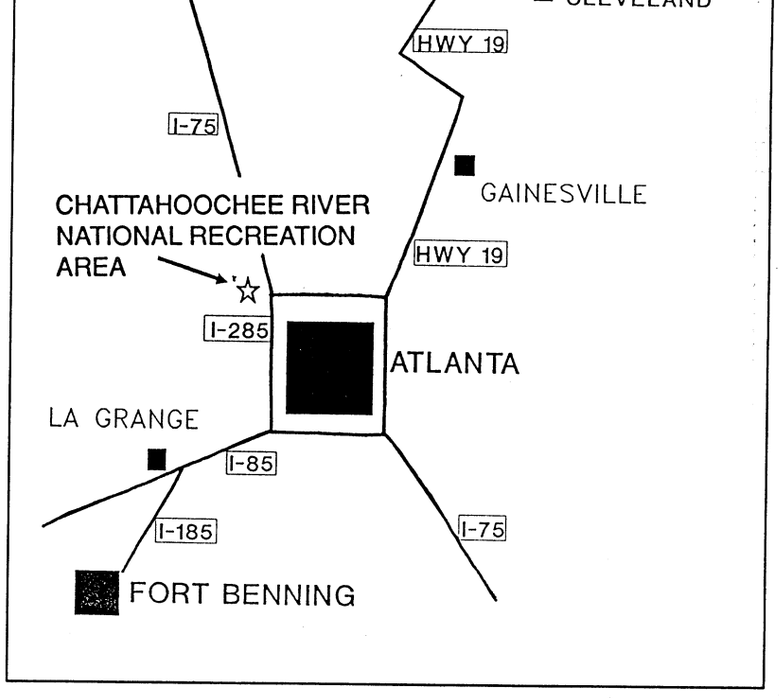
Here you can see 20-inch plus trout swimming in some of the deep holes of this little creek.

As I said, Waters Creek is highly managed and regulated. In fact, it was easier to gain entry into the former Soviet sector of East Berlin back in the early 1980s than it is to fish this stream.

With a 22-inch minimum for rainbow trout, a one fish-per-day (three-per-year) limit, artificial lures only with "barbless" number six hooks or smaller, mandatory check-ins, fishing allowed only three days a week, and "stiff" penalties for any violation, Waters Creek is not for the average fisherman.

In addition to your state fishing license and trout permit, you must have a Georgia Wildlife Management Area Stamp to gain access to Waters Creek. But if you want trophy trout, its one of the few places to fish in the state.

Anyway, I've given you a little information to get started. Pick up a copy of the 1993-94 Georgia Trout Fishing Regulations, a fishing license, trout permit, grab your gear and go for broke.



Good luck and see you at the fishing hole.

TROUT REGULATIONS

- CREEL & POSSESSION LIMIT (EXCEPT ON WATERS CREEK) 8

Squirrels beware!

Benning's hunting season starts Sunday

By Kevin McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

COMMENTARY

It's time to get ready for some great hunting action as squirrel season begins Sunday.

If you haven't prepared your gear, then you'd better be quick as Fort Benning offers some of the best squirrel hunting in the state.

Many of us got our first taste of hunting by chasing these little critters around the woods when we were youngsters. We developed and sharpened our hunting skills that would carry us through future hunting seasons.

If you haven't hunted squirrels before, then you've missed out on one of the best game animals there is.

It takes a lot more than most people think to bag your limit. Squirrel hunting requires a lot of walking, stealthy approach methods, precise marksmanship techniques and plain old "hunting" sense. I know what you're thinking — there are hundreds of them romping around Main Post and it's easy to get close to them. But step into the woods and it's a different story.

Wild squirrels move about as fast as rabbits, and you're lucky if they stop long enough to get a good shot. Add to this that they'll seek cover at the first sign of danger, and you have a most challenging hunt.

Opening day should find most of the squirrels in the tops of tall trees since the limbs are still sturdy and abundant with their favorite food source — acorns and hickory nuts.

With thick leaves covering the trees, some hunters find it difficult to even spot them. This is especially true if you have a strong wind blowing around up there.

But with a little patience, moving slowly through the woods, stopping periodically to look and listen, you can pick them out. Then you have to get close enough to get a good, clean shot.

That brings us to what type of gun is best for squirrel hunting. Many hunters restrict themselves to either a .22 caliber rifle or a shotgun, but my choice depends on the terrain and the amount of foliage.

If it's early in the season, I like to use my trusty old 20-gauge shotgun. With a lot of foliage, it's easier to make a clean shot and you don't have to worry about a bullet ricocheting off a leaf.

Once the trees drop their leaves, I then switch to my .22 caliber rifle, since there is less concealment and you have to take longer shots.

Whichever you decide to use, a shotgun or a rifle, you can't go wrong. The only disadvantage to using a rifle is that you must first head to the range to zero your scope.

Some other points I recommend are taking some essentials along with you. A good knife, some insect-repellent, a snakebite kit, canteen, compass, binoculars, bee-sting kit (if you're allergic), first-aid kit and something to eat.

You might think this is a lot of stuff when added to your gun, ammunition, hunting vest, hat, boots and clothes; however, if you do much walking, you could be a mile or more from your vehicle. That's a long way to hike or crawl back if you're injured.

As for a snake-bite kit, well, I've killed a couple of big rattlesnakes on Fort Benning, and I don't care what the "experts" say about whether you should cut the wound or not. Anyway, it gives you little "insurance" if you do need it.

If you're already an old squirrel hunter, then there probably isn't much that you need to know (except I bet you don't carry a snake-bite or bee-sting kit with you).

You know that you have to just get out there and do what I like to call the "mountain man" thing. That's creeping through the woods very quietly until you can take that shot.

Whether you're a first-time squirrel hunter or an old pro, you shouldn't miss any of this great action. It's challenging, exciting and squirrel meat is very tasty when fried or boiled. An all-time favorite where I come from in Tennessee is squirrel dumplings! Makes your mouth water, eh?

Squirrel hunting is also a good time to do some preseason scouting for the deer-archery season, which starts Sept. 18.

For more information on hunting seasons, license requirements and regulations, stop by Outdoor Recreation, Building 1707, or call 545-7978. Good luck and see you in the woods.

SPORTS SHORTS

Track and field — The Sprinters Choice Track and Field Meet will be conducted Aug. 25 and 26 at Doughboy Stadium.

Active duty personnel, Department of Defense civilians, retirees and family members 18 years of age and older are eligible to participate.

Registration will begin at noon Aug. 25 at the Doughboy Stadium track.

For more information, contact Fred Woods or Christopher Winterman at 545-5777.

Food sellers needed — Midland Food Services is looking for groups to sell drinks at seven home football games at the Jordan-Hare Stadium in Auburn Ala.

It is an opportunity for groups to make extra money but members must be available for all home games.

For more information, call (205) 826-1884.

Youth soccer registration — The Columbus Youth Soccer Association will hold open registration at the new complex next to Fort Middle School on Woodruff Farm Road in Columbus Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Youth ages are 4 to 18. There is also an adult league for ages 19 years and up.

For information, call 571-5882 or 571-5883.

Pistol match — The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club will conduct a tactical match Saturday at English Range beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Entry fee is $13. Shooters do not have to be affiliated with the club or in the military to shoot in this match.

For more information, call the rifle and pistol club at 689-3371.

Handgun safety — A handgun safety course for women will also take place at English Range Saturday and Sunday.

The cost for this course will be $20.

The course will offer four hours of classroom instruction on avoiding criminal attack, controlling violent confrontations and the legal ramifications of deadly force.

The afternoon will be devoted to ammunition choice, weapon function, basic safety, care and cleaning and handgun choice.

The following day will be a live-fire session.

Participants will need hearing and eye protection, a serviceable handgun, 200 rounds of ammunition and note-taking material.

The textbook "Basics of Personal Protection" is free with the course.

For more information, contact the club at 689-3371.

Do anything

God gives strength in need

USAIC Chaplains' Office

One day, a small boy was trying to move a heavy stone, but he couldn't budge it.

His father, passing by, stopped to watch his efforts. Finally he said to his son, "Are you using all your strength?"

"Yes I am!" the boy cried, exasperated.

"No," his father said calmly, "You're not. You haven't asked me to help you."

How often do we give up when the obstacle in our way seems too big for us to move.

Though we strain with all the strength we have, though we try every idea we think of, the problem we are facing just will not move.

Yet, we cannot estimate our ability properly unless we include immeasurable resources at our disposal through the help of our Father who is in Heaven.

We may be limited in what we can make happen, but with God, all things are possible.

We should never give up. When attempting a task, big or small, we would do well to stop for a moment and pray, in all humility, for God's help.

God wants to help us with those small things that frustrate us as well as those giant things that overwhelm us.

The Apostle Paul learned that God the Father is both reliable and resourceful when it comes to helping his children. Through experience, Paul learned that God was faithful to help him regardless of what faced him.

It was Paul's confidence in God enabling him to proclaim, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me."

If you are trying to move a boulder in your life, look to God as a source of strength to help you.

You may not be able to handle everything yourself; but, with God on your side you can do anything.

Don't settle for less in relationships

Love is more than dependability

USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

A few years ago, I was asked to answer a survey that asked the question, "What is the greatest virtue or quality that a person could strive for?" The choices were fidelity, purpose, competence, care, wisdom, love, will or hope.

The most chosen answer was fidelity — trustworthiness or dependability.

Strangely enough, if the same question had been asked of one of the great Christians of old, he probably would have said "love."

Do you see how attitudes have changed? From love that desires the greatest happiness and well being for another, we have stepped over to faithfulness and dependability, which while certainly important, implies only that one "be there" and live in a predictable way.

Have we lowered our sights too much? Are we too easily pleased?

If you truly love someone, you'll risk much and give more for them. But if you're merely dependable, they just know you'll be home for dinner tonight.

Perhaps I'm "straining at gnats to swallow camels," but I think the greatest problem I see in relationships today is that we could have so much.

I think Paul meant something like this when he said, "I keep striving to win the prize for which Christ Jesus has already won me..." (Philippians 3:12). He wouldn't be pleased with anything less than the best that God had set aside for him.

Maybe God has set aside something so good, so wonderful for you that you've never even dreamt of the possibility.

Maybe you've been pleased with the crumbs under the table when above your head a banquet has been spread. It's something to think about.

Reflections

Don't get lost in the WILDERNESS

USAIC Chaplains' Office

All great men and women have come to a certain event in life and were broken, but of these ashes arose the phoenix of maturity, determination, love, self respect and other centeredness that will influence all who are around them.

The truth is, we all need moments of wilderness in our lives to mature, test and bring out the best in us. While unpleasant, uncomfortable and at times dangerous, these wilderness experiences really shape our lives.

The truth is even closer when we realize that it is not the events or circumstances of life that molds us, but how we react to them.

Consider Moses for a moment. Abandoned as a child, he is raised in the best home of the Egyptian society and for 40 years is taught in the best schools.

His future is flawless, power is unlimited. He was, as we say, born with a silver spoon. Or was he? What caused his desire to kill a guard to save the beating of a slave? Moral justice?

Moses still had to learn a few things. So he was driven from Egypt into the wilderness. He became a shepherd and learned the value of life, silence and vast expanses. For 40 more years, he learned the beauty and danger of the desert and the power of God.

What would have happened if Moses had just mentioned the beating to the captain of guard and let him do something about it? Delegation is, after all, a good leadership trait, right?

Where would Israel be today if Moses had watered the message down so as not to "offend" Pharaoh? After all, Pharaoh wanted Moses's neck for the murder of the guard, so why should Moses push his luck? What's wrong with this Moses? Why did he not just go along?

What is right with Moses is his integrity and that is not learned too often without trial and tribulation. It is the phoenix from the desert and wilderness of our lives that rises above the circumstances and find some good in every one instead of throwing stones as others do. It is the refusal to peck at the chickens in the coop when "chicken-pecking" is in vogue, because it is not right.

Wilderness in our lives teaches us to react to circumstances the right way, choose the right path, walk with the right friends and do only the right things. That is integrity. Wilderness and storms come in different shapes and times. Perhaps you are in one now. Choose right. Be a Moses.

Domestic violence

hits where it hurts — at home

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

"He was calling me all kinds of names — I mean things you wouldn't even call your worst enemy — and slapping me. I started to cry and put my hands over my face."

"He told me to take my hands away ... and as I sat there, (waiting for him to hit me again) something went numb inside me."

That was when Julie (not her real name) finally left her husband and went to the police.

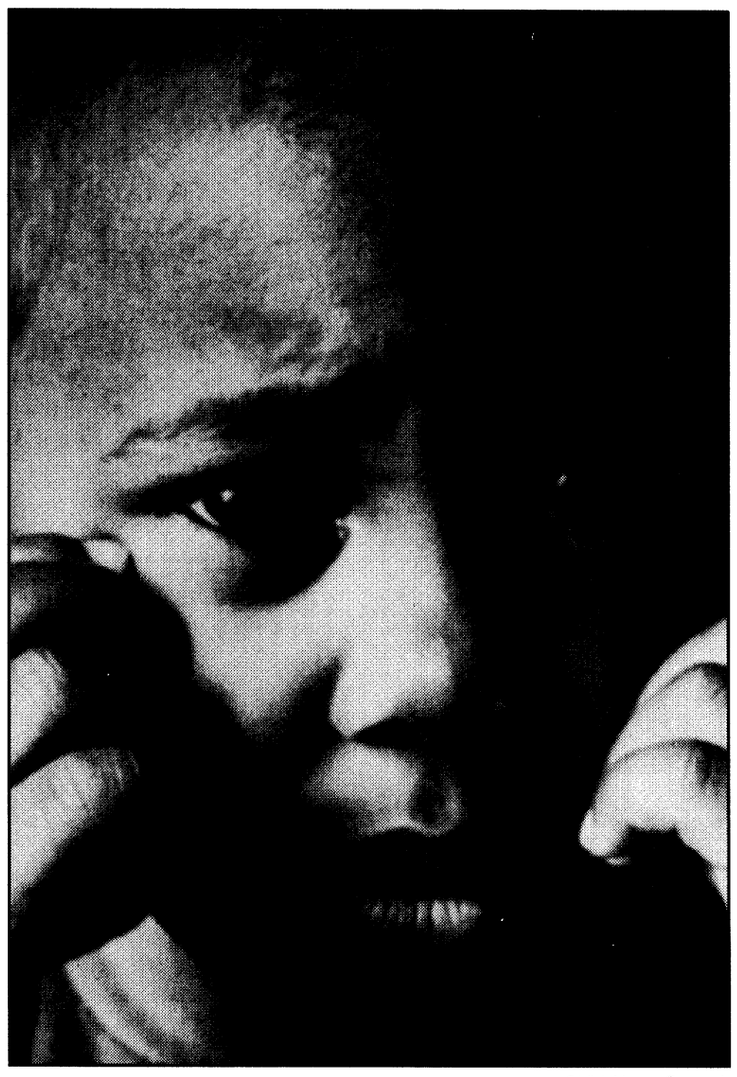
Now staying at a local spouse abuse shelter, Julie is working on healing the physical and mental wounds of domestic violence.

Julie is just one of an estimated 3 to 4 million American women who are beaten each year by their husbands or partners.

In fact, domestic violence is believed to be the most common, yet least reported, crime in the nation, according to information distributed by the National Woman Abuse Prevention Project.

Domestic violence, which encompasses spouse abuse, sexual abuse and child abuse and neglect, occurs among families of all races and economic groups.

It even occurs here on Fort Benning — the Military Police have handled 61 assault and nine aggravated assault cases since October.



There is no single cause for domestic violence, said Debra Howell, chief of the Army Family Advocacy section at Social Work Services.

A combination of things such as work or financial stress, poor communication, a spouse feeling isolated at home, limited support systems and poor anger or impulse control can result in abuse in any given family, Howell said.

Some behaviors common among men who batter their partners, according to the National Woman Abuse Prevention Project, include:

• denying the existence or minimizing the effects of violence and its effect on the victim and family members,

• extreme jealousy and possessiveness, often leading to the isolation of the victim from family and friends,

Child Abuse Campaign

• refusing to take responsibility for the abuse by blaming it on a loss of control due to the effects of alcohol or drugs, frustration, stress or the victim's behavior and

• holding traditional views of sex roles and parenting or negative attitudes toward women in general.

Julie's husband was excessively jealous, she said, and many of her beatings occurred after he accused her of having illicit affairs.

While many batterers have substance abuse problems, there is no evidence that alcohol or drugs cause violent behavior, according to an NWAPP fact sheet on men who batter.

Battering incidents involving alcohol or drugs may be more severe, but batterers are just as likely to abuse their partners when they are sober, according to the fact sheet.

One study found that 90 percent of abusers do not have criminal records and are generally law abiding outside the home.

Battering is the extreme expression of the belief in male dominance over women, according to the fact sheet.

It is not a sickness, but a learned behavioral choice, experts say. In one batterers program, 70 percent of the participants came from violent homes.

Although the percentage is low, men are not always the abusers — sometimes they are the victims.

"A large number of the cases we see (at Social Work Services) involve spouses hitting each other," Howell said.

The numbers of men who are the sole victims are largely unreported, she said, but there are many men who have been taught not to hit women and won't fight back.

Children in violent homes are also victims of abuse. If they are not already targets of abuse themselves, many become victims while trying to protect their mothers from violence, said Becky Welch, manager of Fort Benning's Army Family Advocacy Program.

"Also, when they see their parents hitting, 90 percent of the time, that's the way they grow up to be," Welch said.

Violent behavior can be unlearned by teaching batterers how to choose and develop nonviolent behaviors, emotions and attitudes, Howell said.

"Our program (at Social Work Services) focuses on personal responsibility. Each individual has the choice of how to deal with any given situation. No one deserves to be hit no matter what," Howell said.

"Conflict between couples is normal," Howell said. But how a person deals with the anger that conflict generates is a choice — and some people choose violence.

Because Fort Benning stresses reporting domestic violence, MPs respond quickly and probably better than civilian authorities, Howell said.

The MPs are the main point of contact for crisis intervention, and Howell urges people not to hesitate to report cases of domestic violence.

Army Regulation 608-18 governs the investigation of incidents of domestic violence and mandates that any blottered family dispute be investigated by Social Work Services.

"The Army has some of the best resources available," said Welch. "Whatever the problem may be, there is a place to go. There are services available for all types of situations.

"If an abused wife needs a safe haven, we coordinate with the shelters off post," she said. "If the couple wants to salvage the marriage, we make an appointment with Social Work Services. If the couple is having problems but there is no abuse, the Chaplains' Family Life Center will provide help.

"There are a lot of women who think there is no way out," said Welch. They stay in marriages because they think they may not have the skills necessary to get a job to support themselves and their children. Some, like Julie, have strong religious beliefs. She was torn by Christian values that say get married and stay married.

"This is my second marriage," Julie said. "I'd already been through one divorce and the thought of another ate at me. I kept thinking, if I pray long enough and believe hard enough, he'll change."

But until batterers get some treatment, the problem will continue, said Welch. The abuser has to be willing to change.

"There is not enough love or prayer in the world to change someone who doesn't want to change," Julie said.

Julie is moving home to live with her adult daughter and put her life back together. Her advice to women in violent homes is "Get out — by whatever means possible."

"When I leave here, I am walking away with only the clothes on my back," she said. "I'm leaving everything I ever owned.

"But I realized — nothing is as important as my life."

GENERAL FACTS ABOUT DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

❑ Violence will occur at least once in two-thirds of all marriages.

❑ Domestic violence is believed to be the most common, yet least reported, crime in the nation.

❑ The Federal Bureau of Investigation reports that 30 percent of female homicide victims are killed by their husbands or boyfriends, and 6 percent of male homicide victims are killed by their wives or girlfriends.

❑ Domestic violence occurs among all races and socio-economic groups.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND CHILDREN

❑ Children in homes where domestic violence occurs are seriously abused or neglected at a rate 1,500 percent higher than the national average in the general population.

❑ Children from violent homes have higher risks of alcohol and drug abuse and juvenile delinquency.

❑ Boys who witness domestic violence are more likely to batter their female partners as adults than boys raised in nonviolent homes.

❑ Children are present in 41 to 55 percent of the homes where police intervene in domestic violence calls.

❑ Research results suggest that battering is the single most common factor among mothers of abused children.

❑ A study of more than 900 children at battered women's shelters found nearly 70 percent of the children were also victims of abuse or neglect.

❑ A 1984 study found mothers were eight times more likely to hurt their children when they were being battered than when they were safe from violence.

❑ Some emotional effects of domestic violence on children include taking responsibility for the abuse, constant anxiety that another beating will occur, guilt about not being able to stop the abuse or for loving the abuser and fear of abandonment.

❑ Children in homes where domestic violence occurs may experience cognitive or language problems, developmental delay, stress-related physical ailments such as headaches, ulcers and rashes, and hearing and speech problems.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND WOMEN

❑ Approximately 95 percent of the victims of domestic violence are women.

❑ An estimated 3 to 4 million women are battered each year by their husbands or partners.

❑ In the United States, a woman is more likely to be assaulted, injured, raped or killed by a male partner than by any other type of assailant.

❑ Research suggests wife beating results in more injuries requiring medical treatment than rape, auto accidents and muggings combined.

❑ Each year, more than 1 million women seek medical assistance for injuries caused by battering.

❑ More than 1,000 women per year — about four women per day — are killed by their husbands or partners.

❑ National Crime Survey data shows that during a six-month time period following an incident of domestic violence, approximately 32 percent of women are victimized again.

Dental care

Checkups important part of school prep

U.S. Army Dental Corps

In preparation for back to school, your time is probably filled with buying school supplies and choosing new wardrobes and filling out countless forms. Through it all, don't forget to schedule back-to-school dental visits for your children. These visits are important for many reasons.

While tooth decay remains the primary cause of tooth loss in children, sealants have proven to be extremely effective in preventing cavities. These are clear or shaded plastic materials that are painted onto the decay-prone surfaces of children's teeth.

Periodontal disease, in some form, affects about 40 percent of children and 70 percent of youth. Daily, effective brushing and flossing are the best ways to prevent gum disease.

When your children come in for an exam, dentists will show them how to properly brush and floss, and will also check for gum disease. If your child's teeth are crowded, crooked or out of alignment, your dentist may recommend orthodontic work.

Misaligned teeth can create tension and pain in the jaw joints. When teeth are out of alignment, they are also more difficult to clean and are more susceptible to decay and gum disease.

Braces typically produce a more attractive smile, but they also do important work behind the scenes when they move teeth into more functional positions. In the last 10 years, there have been many advances in the field of orthodontics. Today there are invisible braces, brightly colored braces and even porcelain braces, which absorb the tooth's natural color.

Chewing tobacco continues to be frighteningly popular among adolescents. While they probably won't listen to your remonstrations, children might pay attention when the dentist graphically explains the hazards of smokeless tobacco.

From ugly precancerous lesions to peridontal disease and life-threatening oral cancer, the effects are devastating. Tobacco, in any form, can jeopardize your child's health and cause incurable damage.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Volunteer Resource Center

• The Concharty Council of Girl Scouts needs a community director, co-director and an assistant Daisy leader.

• Spouses of enlisted soldiers are invited to become actively involved in the Enlisted Spouses' Club.

• Volunteers are needed in the Thrift Shop Tuesdays and Thursdays and the first Saturday of each month. Individuals will gain retail experience while helping others.

• The Fort Benning Tae Kwon Do School needs volunteer instructors for children ages 5 to 17 years. Interested individuals must have a black belt in tae kwon do.

• The Directorate of Public Works needs individuals to assist with clerical tasks. Some assignments will provide word processing and data base experience.

• Fort Benning Red Cross needs adult volunteers to supervise the Youth Volunteer Program during the summer.

•Volunteers with library experience are needed at Sayers Memorial Library to assist the staff with shelving books, data entry and story time for children. Training and child-care costs are provided.

• The Rape Crisis Intervention Program is looking for volunteers. Training and child-care costs are provided.

• Several agencies need individuals to assist with clerical tasks. Some assignments will provide word processing and data base experience.

• Volunteers are needed in each housing area to assist community mayors.

For more information, contact the housing area Community Life Center or the post Community Life Office.

• Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Columbus need adults to share love, support and time with children from single-parent families. For more information, call 327-3760.

• Army Community Service needs volunteers to assist in budget counseling and clerk-typists for the Family Member Employment Assistance Program.

• The National Infantry Museum needs volunteer tour guides and assistance in the Gift Shop. Tour guides can schedule volunteer time around their paid jobs or other activities.

• Project Voice needs volunteers to serve as tutors, mentors and coaches to work with youths. Individuals working in this program will serve as role models through their efforts in sports, educational and recreational programs. For information, call Nick Holt at 571-4975 or 571-4976.

For those interested in volunteering, call 545-5602.

It's time for back to school

Fort Benning schools, students prepare for 1993-94 school year; registration continues through Aug. 20, and school begins Aug. 31

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Student registration for the Fort Benning Schools continues through Aug. 20 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. at each of the seven post schools.

The school year begins Aug. 31.

Kindergarten through eighth-grade students registering with parents are able to choose the day and time that best fits their needs.

Past practice indicates there are large crowds at the schools the first couple of days of registration, and this should be considered when choosing a registration time, according to a school spokesperson.

Students who attended Fort Benning Schools last year must register for the 1993 to 94 school year, but it is not necessary for parents of students to bring any forms to the school.

However, there will be registration forms at the school to be signed.

Children who preregistered during kindergarten roundup last May will also need to complete the registration process.

New students and children ages 3 to 5 requiring special education services should contact the Special Education Office at 545-2500 beginning Monday.

Special education services include learning, intellectual and physical disabilities and behavior or emotional disorders, and speech-language disorders.

In order to meet the requirements for registration, parents should bring certain items to the school when they register students, as outlined in the registration requirements.

The items are determined by the student's age, grade and whether he or she previously attended a Fort Benning school.

For information on registration in the Fort Benning Schools, call 545-2500.

Dental screening

Martin Army Community Hospital will conduct a walk-in (no appointment needed) school screening for all eligible beneficiaries Aug. 25.

This is for any child who will be five years old by Sept. 1 and who needs the Georgia "Certificate of Ear, Eye and Dental Examinations."

This certificate is needed by every child, regardless of age or grade, when entering school for the first time in Georgia. Children who attended school in Georgia last year do not need to duplicate this process.

The following schedule contains the times for people to report based on their last names. Parents should report to the Eyes, Ears, Nose and Throat Clinic in the basement of the clinic wing of the hospital.

- 8 to 9 a.m. — A to D.
- 9 to 10 a.m. — E to J.
- 10 to 11 a.m. — K to N.
- 1 to 2 p.m. — O to S.
- 2 to 3 p.m. — T to Z.

Parents should bring only the child or children being screened, the child's medical record, medical card and identification card. Also, bring the child's glasses, if any.

Hospital officials are asking that parents not bring any children who are not being screened. Remember, children under the age of 5 will not be screened.

This "walk-in" screening is in addition to the normal school screenings that are done each Wednesday by appointment only. Parents who cannot bring their children to this walk-in school screening can make an appointment by calling 544-3350.

Hospital officials said the walk-in screening is being planned to take care of as many children as possible before school starts.

Your child's immunizations must be up to date before entering the school system.

The Immunization Clinic is open every duty day on a walk-in basis. Parents should bring medical records, shot records and ID cards.

Crossing guards

Because funds are not available to pay contract crossing guards, parents of school children are asked to sign up for duty as volunteer crossing guards this year.

If all parents participate, duty will probably be no more than once or twice per school year, according to Capt. Rebecca A. Rouse of the Fort Benning Military Police Activity.

While MPs will continue to vigorously enforce speed limits in school zones, children must be provided supervised and safe crossing in key school areas, Rouse said.

The exact locations include:

- White School at Lumpkin and Baltzell
- Dexter and Faith schools at Ingersoll and Yeager
- Dexter and Faith schools at Lumpkin and Yeager
- White School at 1st Division Road and Madden
- White School at Baltzell and Access Road
- Faith and White schools at Vibbert and Lumpkin Road
- Faith School at Ingersoll and Vibbert
- Faith School at Ingersoll and Gaudette
- Stowers School general vicinity

The safety of school children is a concern for everyone at Fort Benning and maximum participation by parents will minimize worry, Rouse said.

More information will be provided Monday during elementary school registration.

Interested parents should contact the mayor of their housing communities.

New law requires child bikers to cover up

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

A Georgia law effective July 1 makes it mandatory for all children between the ages of 5 and 16 to wear helmets when riding bicycles.

According to Harley Chase, Infantry Branch Safety Office safety and occupational health specialist, the law has been adopted on Fort Benning as well.

"Children have to wear helmets whenever they're on a bike, even on sidewalks and in housing areas," said Chase. The helmets have to be approved by either the Snell Memorial Foundation or the American National Standard Institute.

Chase said the law also requires children between the ages of 1 and 4 be in child safety seats when they are passengers on bicycles.

"Children under 1 year old are not allowed, by law, to be passengers on bicycles, even in a carry pack," said Chase.

The law is enforced on Fort Benning by the Military Police, and according to Staff Sgt. Jeffrey Bishop, chief of Traffic Section for the Military Police Activity, sponsors will be held responsible for violations.

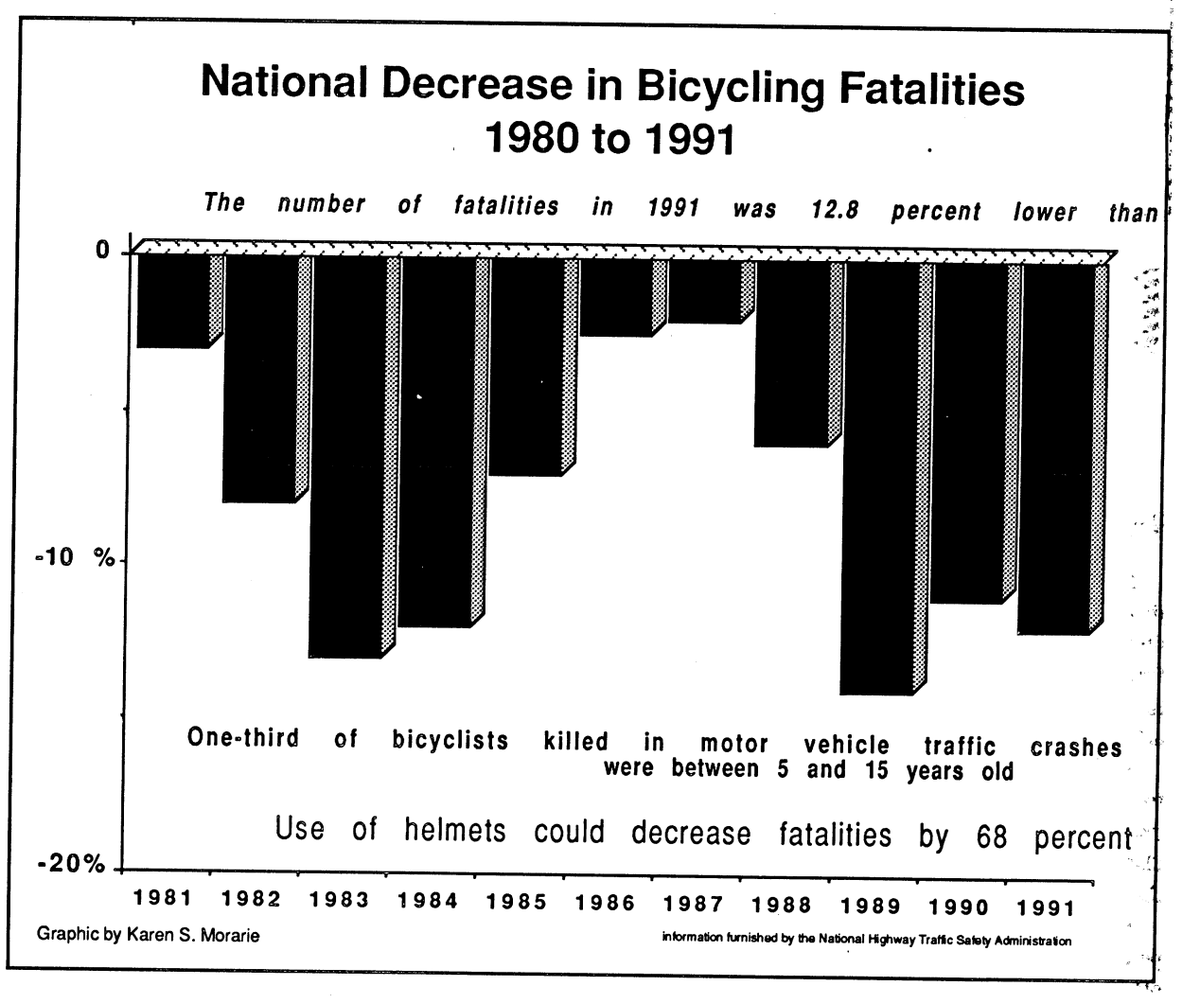
"The state legislature hasn't set fines for violations yet," said Bishop, "so what we're doing now is writing Armed Forces Traffic Tickets. These won't affect a person's driving record or insurance, but they will be forwarded to the soldier's commander for action."

Bishop said the legislature is expected to set fines next year, and the post's policy for offenders may change then.

A policy memo issued Sept. 10, 1992, by Col. Burnet R. Quick, chief of staff, sets forth further requirements for bikers of all ages on Fort Benning.

All bikers are required to wear reflective vests and helmets on any road with a speed limit of 35 mph or more.

The policy also states bicycles must be equipped with front and rear reflectors, and if ridden at night, must be equipped with headlights and taillights visible from a distance of 300 feet.



Why wear a helmet?

In 1992, in Georgia:
- eight children under the age of 14 were killed in bicycle accidents
- 382 children under 14 were injured while biking

Nationally, in 1992:
- one child daily was killed in bicycle accidents
- 1,000 children daily were injured while biking
- 80 percent of biking fatalities result from head injuries

Use of helmets reduces head injuries by 85 percent and reduces brain injuries by 90 percent

Bowling centers have something for everyone

State-of-the-art lanes, computer systems, leagues, daily specials make post bowling centers popular hangouts

Directorate of Community Activities

Bowling has been a popular pastime for years, and at the Fort Benning Bowling Centers, it is becoming even more popular thanks to state-of-the-art lanes and computer systems, leagues and daily specials.

Two years ago, both the Main Post Bowling Center and the Mall Bowling Center underwent extensive renovations in order to provide its customers the best lanes possible.

Each center now has 24 synthetic lanes, which allow for easier maintenance and higher scores. With the new lanes, the bowler now has more control of the ball.

"Since we got the new lanes, our number of customers has increased," Daisy Arrington, an employee at the Main Post center, said. "We've had several 300 games since we got the new lanes."

The centers also added a new computerized scoring system. The new system is fast, accurate and easy to learn, Arrington said.

All this makes league bowling even more competitive. Both centers host leagues every Saturday morning and every weekday except Tuesday. Anyone interested in joining a league can contact the bowling centers for more information.

The newest league is the Company Level Bowling League. This active duty league has bowling Monday nights at both the Main Post and mall centers.

Wednesdays, the Officers Mixed Doubles League for active duty and retired military personnel has bowling at the Main Post Bowling Center, while the Fort Benning Mixed Doubles meet at the mall center.

On Thursday mornings, the Main Post center hosts the Officers' Wives' Club League. In the evening, the Main Post Bowling Center is the site for the Soldier Major League, which is open to active duty and retired military personnel, family members and civilians. At the Mall Bowling Center, the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity League bowls.

The Friday Night Misfit League meets at the main post center every Friday night; this league is also open to active duty and retired military personnel, family members and civilians. At the mall on Friday, the Lads and Lassies, a mixed league, takes to the lanes.

And on Saturday mornings, the lanes belong to the children's league — the Saturday Morning Sleepers. Children ages 6 to 18 can bowl while their parents rest.

The bowling centers also offer a variety of specials to keep bowlers returning. The specials are offered during the week except on holidays.

The Pot of Gold special is the largest. With the $2 entrance fee, bowlers can bowl three games and have a chance to win $2,000. All the bowler has to do is score a strike in each of the frames designated by the bowling center. The winning frames are changed every week.

Another ongoing special is the Winter Special. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., a game is 75 cents.

In the evenings, on Monday through Thursday, the centers have a Nine O'Clock Special. Bowlers can bowl three games from 9 to 11 p.m. for $3.90.

The special for military retirees allows retirees to bowl for 85 cents a game. This special runs Monday and Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Main Post center and Tuesday and Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the mall center.

The Red Head Pin special is in effect anytime during open bowling. If a red pin is included in a strike, the bowler wins a free pass.

The mall center offers a late night special every Friday and Saturday night. Bowlers can bowl for $6.50 per person from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m.

The center even has a children's special for first- through eighth-graders.

For every "A" on the report card, the student wins a free pass and free shoe rental. The teachers distribute the passes.

Specials are offered in the Main Post center's snack bar as well. With every purchase of $3 or more, the customer receives a free game, and on Monday through Friday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., all snack bar customers can enter their names for a free lunch drawing.

And when customers spend more than $50 in the center's pro shops, they receive five free passes.

Discount ticket books are also available. The book contains 15 tickets that can be used any time. The book itself, however, can only be purchased Monday through Friday.

Because bowling is such a popular activity, the bowling centers are often sites for parties. Hails and farewells can be conducted at the Main Post center on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights for $7 per person.

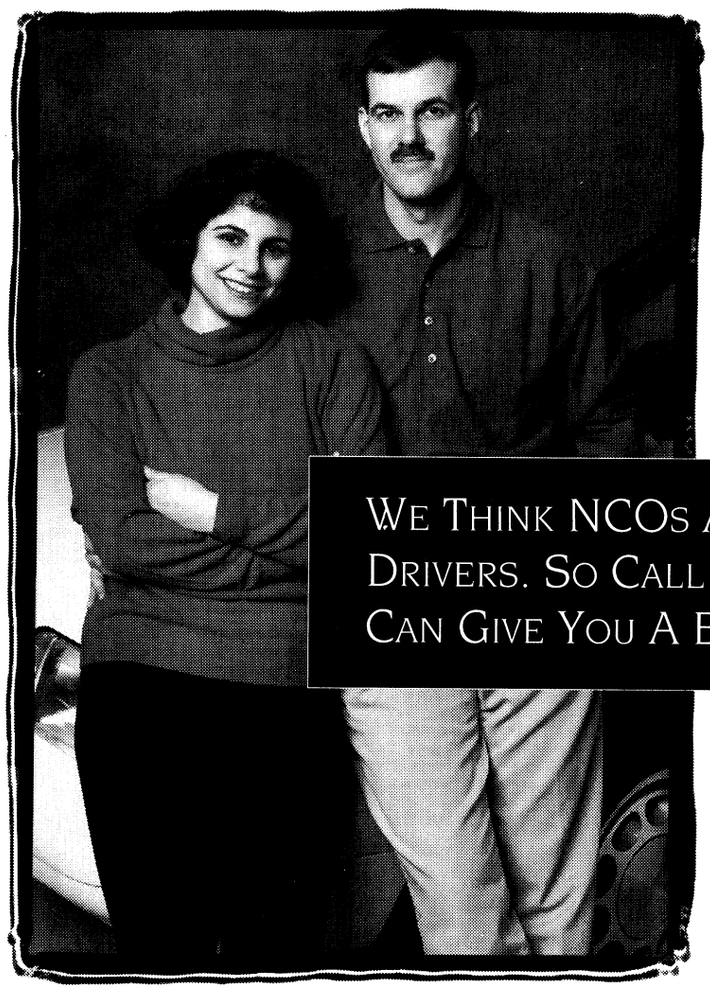
Children's birthday parties are great times to have a bowling party, and the bowling centers try to make it an enjoyable day. Parties can be weekends until 5 p.m. and include shoes, favors, drinks, french fries and free games.

For young bowlers, the centers provide bumper bowling. Bumpers are inflated in the gutters so small children can have a chance to knock down as many pins as possible. The bumpers can be inflated for parties when they are requested or when space is available.

When the game is over, customers can gather in the centers' lounges or snack bars. The mall center's newly renovated lounge, Chatters, is a full bar and grill with a laser beam CD player, which helps create an entertaining atmosphere.

The Fort Benning bowling centers provide countless hours of entertainment for young or old, active duty or retirees and skilled or beginning bowlers.

Bowling is a sport that can be played alone or in a group. But no matter who is playing or how it is being played, the bowling centers on post and at the mall can make it fun.



Anyone can offer you an auto insurance policy. But at Family Protection Plus,℠ we believe NCOs tend to be better drivers. So we provide highly competitive rates on policies geared to the realities of NCO family life.

For example, when you're transferred, your coverage follows you to most of the states where military installations are located. All it takes is a toll-free call, and we'll handle the details.

You'll also find our other features very attractive.*Like special savings if you keep your car in a storage facility while you're on a TDY. And a waiver of deductible if someone in your household has an accident while you're deployed in a war or combat zone.

If that seems like a sensible approach, there's a good reason. Family Protection Plus, created by Academy Life Insurance Company, was designed specifically for NCOs and their families. And it's recommended by NCOA®.

So if you'd like us to quote you a rate, call us. We'll be glad to put you on the road to a more sensible car insurance policy.

Ballet registration — Youth Services is accepting ballet registration Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Classes are available for children 3 through 18.

A "mothers" tap and jazz class will be offered, also. For more information, call 545-3070.

Food drives — Army Community Service is still in need of food for the Emergency Food Locker.

Some specific items that are needed are dry cereal, tuna fish, powdered milk, grits, oat meal, peanut butter, jelly, rice, soup, spaghetti, oil and lard.

Food collection boxes are located in the Commissary near the exits at the cashier stands, and food items may be delivered to Building 2642, Soldiers' Plaza, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday.

For more information, call Arthur Deane at 545-2536, 545-7517 or 545-4043.

Dancing classes — Fall dancing classes for tap, jazz and ballet will begin Sept. 1 at the Officers' Wives' Club. Beginner and advanced classes are available for 2 1/2 year-olds to adults.

Classes are one hour long, one day a week at $20 per month for one child, $35 per month for two children and $50 per month for three children.

Retirement — The Retirement Services Office has available for loan two videos that may help prepare soldiers for retirement. The videos, "Military Preretirement" and "The Survivor Benefit Plan," are available for loan. Retirement Services is located in Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2635, and the telephone number is 545-5369 or 545-2541.

Columbus College — Representatives from Columbus College will be on post today from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Post Exchange at the Main Mall. They will have information about admission procedures, deadline dates for fall quarter, financial aid and veterans benefits.

For more information, call Rosabelle Milligan at 689-8668 or 545-1085.

Cardiac, diabetic support group — A meeting of the cardiac and diabetic support group will be Monday in the dining facility (on the basement floor) of Martin Army Community Hospital at 6 p.m. Participants are asked to bring a covered dish.

Also, bowling will be at the Main Bowling Center Tuesday and Aug. 24 at 5:30 p.m.

For more information, call Thomas E. Valitzski at 561-3077.

Keys are identified as follows:

- Juelson, Samuel L. - identification tag - 474-03-2790 - set of five keys with one key appearing to be that of a car key.
- Photo of baby identified as Malikka Laconya Caige, born Feb. 22, 1992, with many keys on the key ring that appear to be car keys, house keys and a small leather "baby boot" that is black and brown.
- Set of five keys with no specific identification except a car key identified as Toyota. No further identification on any other keys on the ring.

For more information or to claim the keys, call Sgt. 1st Class Annie L. Williams at 545-7510.

Blood drive — A child, man or woman somewhere needs blood, according to the American Red Cross. A blood drive will be Aug. 20 at Infantry Training Hall, Building 4, in Classroom 3, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Tot Town — Tot Town Child Development Center will offer transportation to and from Dexter, White and Stower elementary schools beginning Aug. 31. Children must be registered at Child Development Services Central Office and at Tot Town. For more information, call 689-8698 or 689-8772.

Our Lady of Lourdes School — Registration for the 1993-94 school year at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic school is under way. The school office will be open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Call 689-5644 or 689-5184 for more information. Final registration is Wednesday.

Keeping strength in Reserve

Officer class completes five-day exercise

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The booming sound of artillery rounds filled the air as soldiers piled out of the Blackhawk that had just touched down on a hot landing zone. After rushing to organize the platoon, the camo-clad warriors stormed off into the brush for cover.

From Aug. 5 to 9, Company C, 2nd Battalion (Infantry Officer Basic Course), 11th Infantry Regiment, conducted a field training exercise for IOBC Reserve Component Class 1-93.

The five-day exercise was the culmination of an eight-week training course for U.S. Army Reserve component lieutenants, said Capt. Joseph A. Arata, Company C, 2nd Bn., 11th Inf. Regt.

The field training exercise was designed to place the lieutenants in a scenario similar in type to the one at the Joint Readiness Training Center at Fort Polk, La.

The operation included air assault operations onto Eelbeck Landing Zone, platoon attacks, a live-fire ambush, a company movement to enemy contact and a deliberate attack on an enemy strong point.

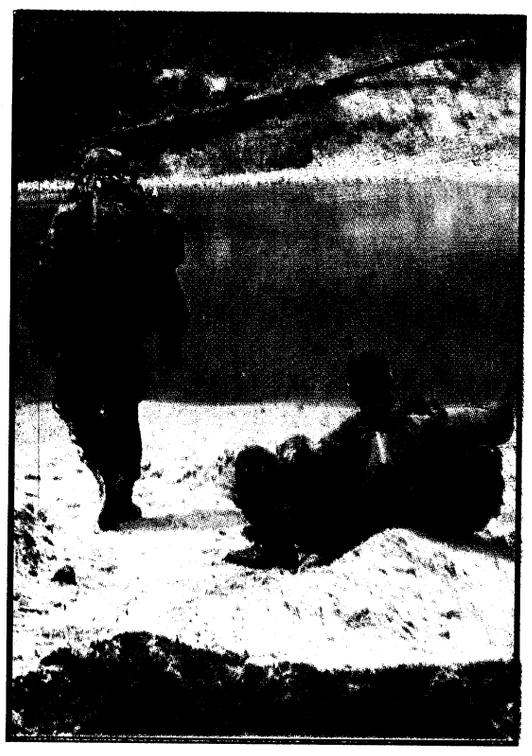
"This exercise put together all the things the students had learned in the course," said Maj. Rick E. Gordon, Company C, 2nd Bn., 11th Inf. Regt. commander. "It demonstrated to them how squads combine in platoon and company-level operations.

"The Reserve component IOBC class is a once-a-year event," said Gordon. "In the eight weeks, most of the same material is covered as in the 16-week course for the regular IOBC students. After receiving a certificate of training upon finishing the course, Reserve soldiers must complete their training through correspondence.

"The class was a fast grueling pace for the students and the cadre as well, but it was fun," said Gordon. "The Reserve classes tend to be a more colorful group overall because of the diverse lives led by the students."

Reserve soldiers also regularly attend the full-length IOBC course.

IOBC is designed to educate lieutenants to lead rifle platoons into combat, and the course includes hands-on training with various infantry weapons and communications equipment. Students are exposed to the latest infantry doctrine and tactics in the classroom and in the field, said Gordon. Instruction also includes physical training, land navigation and live-fire exercises.



"In this class the students came here with some experience — the majority of the students are platoon leaders in their units," said Gordon. "They were forced to assimilate a lot of information in a short period of time, but they really did well given the pace of the course."

The last attack the students encountered was the capstone of the whole operation, said Gordon.

"Our success here is due to the high quality officer and noncommissioned officer cadre. They make the program work smoothly and bring our training to a higher standard."

Benning soldier first to shoulder-fire Javelin

Missile's 'fire and forget' is new weapons technology

By Sanford E. Parr
TRADOC System Manager Anti-Tank Missiles

Fort Benning's Sgt. Anthony Morish, Company B, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, had his wish come true as he became the first soldier to fire the Javelin missile at a moving T-72 tank.

After hitting his target at 1,000 meters, Morish said, "I've been waiting ever since November to fire the Javelin. I told them I wanted to be the first and I got my wish. I found out it works. I'll be on a high horse for awhile."

When asked how the Javelin performed, Morish, a gunner for the tube-launched, optically tracked wire-guided missile system, said the best thing about the Javelin is its fire-and-forget capability that allows the gunner to "kill the tank and get away." Unlike the old anti-tank weapons that are wire guided or short-range direct-fire systems, Javelin has "no strings attached" and guides itself to the selected target.

Marine Cpl. Cameron Mauldin, a Dragon gunner, fired the first night shot and hit the moving T-72 tank at 1,600 meters downrange.

The infrared that's incorporated into the Javelin provided the corporal with the ability to "see into the night" and detect and recognize his target. After the shot, Mauldin said "fire and forget is a big advantage. Also, the Javelin is easier to fire than Dragon. With the Javelin, you just squeeze (the trigger) and the missile is gone."

> "With the Javelin, you just squeeze and the missile is gone."
> — Cpl. Cameron Mauldin
> U.S. Marine Corps

Javelin gets its distinct name from the trajectory that it flies. As the missile leaves the launcher, it flies gradually upward, then dives into the target tank on top of the turret, where the protective armor is the thinnest.

The top attack trajectory can be changed by the gunner to direct attack or line of sight by a flip of a switch for targets hiding under bridges or under thick cover.

Once fired, the Javelin requires nothing of the gunner as the missile has "no strings attached" and guides itself to the selected target. Performance has been excellent, according to Program Manager Col. Jim Gribschaw at Redstone Arsenal, Ala. Unofficial scoring results show 44 "hits" out of 52 launches during the recent testing. In fact, the first man-fired warhead shot that hit the target was conducted Aug. 7 at Redstone, Gribschaw said.

More than 100 missile firings are planned before the end the year and before fielding to units in fiscal 1996.

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Command of the 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, changed hands Thursday during a 9 a.m. ceremony on York Field in front of Infantry Hall.

Lt. Col. Donald B. Chung, most recently assigned as a manpower analyst with the Program Analysis and Evaluation Directorate, Office of the Chief of Staff, Army, at the Pentagon, took command from Lt. Col. Kevin P. Shea.

Shea, who has commanded the Officer Candidate School since August 1991, also was commissioned from OCS in 1973. He received a bachelor's degree from Stonehill College and a master of science degree from Central Michigan University.

His awards and decorations include the Meritorious Service Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Ranger Tab and the Senior Parachutist Badge.

His next assignment will be as a small group instructor with the Combined Arms Staff Services School, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Chung was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry from the Reserve Officer Training Corps at the University of Hawaii in 1974. He has held a number of command and staff positions both in the United States and overseas, including command of companies in the 1st Cavalry Division at Fort Hood, Texas, and the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii. Chung holds a master of science degree from the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif.

Among his awards and decorations are the Meritorious Service Medal, the Army Commendation Medal, Army Achievement Medal, Expert Infantryman Badge, Ranger Tab and Parachutist Badge.

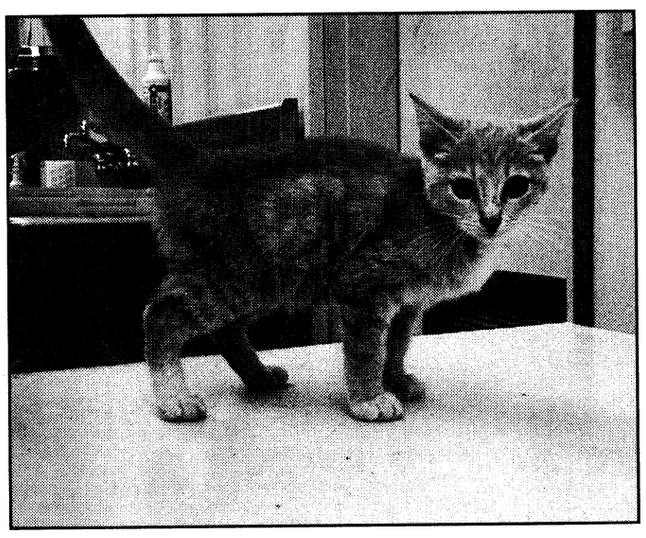
He and his wife, Cynthia, have five children.

The Officer Candidate School trains selected soldiers in leadership and basic military skills, instills professional ethics, and evaluates leadership potential. Those who qualify are commissioned as second lieutenants in the U.S. Army, the Army National Guard or the U.S. Army Reserve.

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week ...

• Gen. George S. Patton's 7th Army entered Messina, signaling the successful conclusion of the campaign to wrest Sicily from Axis control. The Allies sustained more than 22,000 casualties, including 7,000 dead, while capturing or killing more than 110,000 German and Italian men. The campaign served as the impetus for Benito Mussolini's recent fall from power.



The evacuation to the Italian mainland of 102,000 Axis troops, along with 50 tanks, 100 large guns and a vast amount of supplies, however, tempered the feeling of success, and alarmed many among those planning for the impending Allied invasion of Italy.

• In Quebec, U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill met to chart Allied strategy while conferring with the military leaders of both countries. British Gen. Sir Frederick Morgan presented the tentative outline for the planned invasion of Europe, while he and Churchill accepted the idea that the supreme commander of the operation would be an American.

• In Europe, American Army air forces staged a costly daylight raid directed against the German cities of Schweinfurt and Regensburg. The attack was generally unsuccessful as the Americans lost 51 American planes without causing significant damage to the targeted ball-bearing plants in either city.

PET OF THE WEEK

This cute mixed-breed kitten is looking for a home. He is approximately 7 weeks old.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from July 21 to 27. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the adjudication of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns Garrison Regulation 210-5. No person assigned to, in temporary duty status or employed on Fort Benning, their family members and guests, will be in possession of privately owned weapons, other than in quarters, except to and from hunting, sports shooting or other recognized functions involving that particular weapon.

No weapon will be fired, discharged or used within the limits of the garrison and cantonment area. Additionally, U.S. government weapons will not be transported in privately owned vehicles.

• A private reported that persons unknown removed his motorcycle from the parking lot adjacent to his barracks.

• A civilian was charged with leaving the scene of a traffic accident, failure to report a traffic accident, defective brakes and no driver's license after he hit an unattended car and fled the scene without notifying the Military Police.

TAKE A BITE OUT OF CRIME

• A private first class was charged by civil authorities with driving under the influence and possession of cocaine after he was stopped for speeding. He was searched and found with a cube of cocaine in his pocket.

• A sergeant first class was charged with shoplifting after he removed a box of baseball cards from the display shelf and exited the main Post Exchange without paying for the cards.

• A private was charged with wrongful possession of a prohibited item, underage drinking and violation of a knife ordinance after he entered the Hidden Door Club with a buck knife attached to his belt. During apprehension, it was discovered that he was 18 years of age. He was administered a breathalyzer test with a result of .16.

• A specialist was charged by civil authorities with simple battery and act of family violence after he slapped, choked and hit his wife several times in the presence of their small child.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the sergeant who was charged with nine traffic related offenses after he was observed traveling 65 in a 35 zone on a motorcycle.

He attempted to elude the Military Police by illegally passing several cars, causing many of them to exit the roadway to avoid a collision. He then drove the wrong way on a one-way street where he failed to stop for a posted stop sign.

He then lost control of the motorcycle, exited the roadway and hit a tree. He attempted to flee on foot, but he was apprehended approximately 250 yards from the scene of the accident.

Further investigation revealed that the motorcycle belonged to a specialist who was charged with allowing the sergeant to operate the motorcycle without a driver's license.

Other activities included 27 traffic accidents and nine reports of shoplifting at facilities on post. There were five cases of driving under the influence of alcohol, 18 cases of larceny of private property and four cases of larceny of government property.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police Station at 545-5222 or 545-5223 or the "Crime in Progress" line at 545-2222.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Jill Stebbing
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q: A friend and I went together to purchase a house while we were stationed at Fort Benning.

My friend is now relocating, and I am going to buy out his interest in the house. He is willing to give me a quitclaim deed. Is this my best option?

A: A deed is a formal written document by which title to real property is transferred from one owner to another.

Depending on the type of deed used to convey property, the seller makes certain promises to the buyer as to the quality of title of the property.

The quality of title indicates the nature of the legal interest that is being sold.

The prevailing practice is for the parties to agree that the seller will convey a good and marketable title, which is generally understood as an estate free of liens, restrictions, easements and encumbrances.

In addition to the quality of title, the parties may specify the type of deed that will be used to convey the property.

The two most common types of deeds are the general warranty deed and the quitclaim deed.

The general warranty deed conveys not only all the seller's interest in the title to the property, but also warrants that if the title is defective, the buyer may hold the seller liable.

Examples of defects in the title are mortgage claims, tax liens, title claims, judgments and mechanic's liens against the real property.

A quitclaim deed transfers whatever interest the seller of the deed may have in the particular parcel of land.

A quitclaim deed is often given to clear the title when the seller's interest in the property is questionable.

By accepting such a deed, the buyer assumes all the risks.

This type of deed makes no warranties as to the title, but it simply transfers to the buyer whatever interest the seller has.

Thus, the buyer in this situation would take the property subject to any mortgage claims or tax liens.

Therefore, the general warranty deed is the best option for the buyer. However, the need for a general warranty deed would be eliminated if the buyer obtains title insurance on the property.

Basically, title insurance is a contract of indemnity against loss arising out of defects in, or liens on, the title to the real property.

Because a title insurance policy issued only to the lender does not protect the buyer, the buyer should get an owner's title policy.

If you have questions about property deeds, contact the Legal Assistance Office at 545-3281 or 545-3282 for an appointment to speak with an attorney.

So you want to start your own business ...

Georgia Society of Certified Public Accountants

You need more than a good idea; you need a good business plan, marketing savvy and capital

You need more than a good idea to launch a small business. To join the ranks of successful entrepreneurs, the Georgia Society of Certified Public Accountants says you need a good business plan, marketing savvy and sufficient capital, as well as a lot of self-discipline and energy.

Not everyone starts a business for the same reason. Clearly, owning a business has become increasingly enticing to employees who are victims of corporate restructuring or layoffs. Others seek self-employment to escape the bureaucracy and frustration of the corporate world.

Whatever your reasons for starting your own business, it's important to recognize both the risks and opportunities it will entail. CPAs say you will need both personal and professional commitment to make your business prosper.

Find your niche

Butcher. Baker. Candlestick maker. With the right skills, in the right business, in the right location, you can be successful in these and hundreds of other occupations. However, you should make sure the business you select suits your personality, interests and experience.

If you don't enjoy what you're doing on a day-to-day basis, it will be difficult to put in the time and energy necessary for your business to succeed. Once you come up with a list of businesses you are qualified to run, narrow the scope as much as possible.

Remember, you can't be all things to all people. For example, if you're considering starting an executive search business, focus on several industries you know and in which you have contacts. Also consider the market's need for your services as well as the competition you may face.

If you're thinking about opening a dry cleaning business, for example, but there are already three dry cleaners stores in your chosen locale, you'll have little chance of being successful. On the other hand, if you're thinking about opening a small print shop, even if there are no others in the area, you'll need to determine whether there are a sufficient number of businesses and organizations that need and can afford your services.

Select a location

Once you've identified your niche, carefully research the best site for your new business. The primary consideration in locating your business should be potential customer traffic. A business that may thrive in a shopping mall may flounder in a suburban main-street location, or vice versa. Also, keep in mind how the cost of the location is likely to affect the cost of your product or service. Typically areas that generate the greatest customer traffic charge the highest rent. However, it may not be necessary for you to incur such costs if your business isn't dependent on day-to-day customer contact.

Have a plan

A business plan can help you organize your thoughts and observations, point out potential problems that require more thought and analysis, and guide you through a maze of business decisions.

Your plan should include a detailed description of the business, an inventory of your skills and those of other key members, an explanation of your market, information about your competition, management policies, marketing and distribution strategies and financial information.

Raise cash

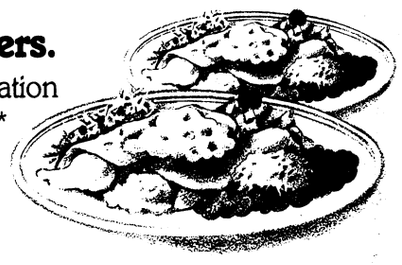
Raising the capital you need to get your business up and running is often the most difficult and frustrating step. Your written business plan will be a critical factor in your ability to secure financing. However, no matter how much homework you've done, count on facing a few stumbling blocks.

For starters, banks seldom lend anyone start-up capital for a new business. The few that do usually expect you to put some of your own money on the line.

If you don't have enough savings, you may have to cash in some of your investments, borrow against the cash value of your life insurance policy, take out a home-equity loan, or even refinance your mortgage to obtain the equity in your home.

You may also need to turn to family and friends for capital. You can either borrow the money or offer these people a stake in your business. Also, consider seeking out private investors — businesspeople who have the financial resources to assist you and perhaps a personal interest in the nature of your business.

Other considerations



Even after you obtain the financing you need, CPAs say you'll be faced with a host of other decisions — such as how to structure the business, obtain adequate insurance coverage, secure appropriate licenses, set fees for your products and services, and establish bookkeeping and accounting systems. Advice from professionals, such as CPAs and attorneys, will help you launch and nurture a thriving business venture.

Are your electrical appliances killing you?

By F. Peter Wigginton
American Forces Information Service

What! You still use an electric shaver, hair dryer and electric blanket? You mean you still sit close to your television set, personal computer terminal and allow your mother to live in that house under those utility lines?

Before you throw out all your appliances and move your mother into a tent, it's not as bad as the reports on the health effects of low frequency electric and magnetic fields make it seem.

Take, for example, The Wall Street Journal article that reported on a study suggesting men suffering from leukemia were more than twice as likely to have used an electric razor for more than 2.5 minutes daily than have shaved with a razor blade.

Or the high school science teacher who had difficulty conceiving and had two miscarriages in 10 months. According to the article in USA Weekend, she bought a gaussmeter and flipped on her lights, oven, microwave, dishwasher, clothes washer and dryer, coffee maker and mixer.

These, added to the already operating refrigerator and Dust Buster charger, caused the meter to leap to 50.2 miligauss.

(The meter indicates the strength of a magnetic field in gauss, named after German mathematician Karl Gauss, 1777-1855. A milligauss is one-thousandth of a gauss.)

The article said she held the meter at stomach level as she cooked at the stove, ironed or chopped vegetables on the butcher block atop her running dishwasher. She discovered her breasts and reproductive organs were exposed to huge doses of electromagnetic fields.

Oak Ridge Associated Universities convened a panel of highly qualified scientists to study this issue at the request of then-President George Bush.

The group independently evaluated the reported health effects from exposure to extremely low-frequency electric and magnetic fields. It was especially concerned as to their effect upon heart, reproductive glands and central nervous system.

The panel concluded its 350-page report by declaring, "There is no convincing evidence in the published literature to support the contention that exposures to extremely low-frequency electric and magnetic fields generated by sources such as household appliances, video display terminals and local power lines are demonstrable health hazards."

The Defense Department added its support to the report.

"For many DoD individuals responsible for health and safety, the panel confirmed that commonly encountered extremely low-frequency field levels are not sufficient to cause adverse human health effects. An adequate scientific base did not exist to justify protective measures," said Navy Capt. William Flor, Defense Nuclear Agency.

Flor represents DoD before the Committee on Interagency Radiation Research and Policy Coordination, which requested the study. The group is a subcommittee of the Federal Coordination Council on Science, Engineering and Technology, Executive Office of the President.

The report's executive summary said the scientific methods various groups used to assess electromagnetic fields' health risks were uncertain. It said there were difficulties explaining the causes of pregnancy complications and shortcomings associated with epidemiological studies.

Reproductive risks have multiple causes, it said. One difficulty stems from the normal incidence of fetal loss.

A large proportion of embryos are lost in early pregnancy; 50 percent of the losses occur within the first three weeks.

"Of the live-born infants, 3 percent to 6 percent will be recognized as congenitally malformed," said the summary.

Epidemiological studies look for relationships that provide clues, explained Robert Yacovissi, Naval Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

Much of the present-day concern over electromagnetic fields has been generated by studies attempting to correlate health problems with exposure to magnetic fields.

Yacovissi noted that obesity can be associated with the number of hours of watching TV, but the cause is something other than magnetic fields around a TV set.

Nor are the associations clear-cut like those seen in studies on smoking that can relate health effects with the years and number of cigarettes smoked.

Similarly, The Wall Street Journal article said biopsychologist Richard Lovely "stressed that the findings about shaver use aren't proof of a cause-and-effect relationship, and aren't a recommendation for men to stop using electric razors."

The Oak Ridge report also noted that per capita electricity consumption has greatly increased in this country. If widespread exposure to magnetic fields from electricity were strongly associated with childhood cancers, there should be an epidemic of childhood cancers.

But there is little, if any, evidence of such an epidemic, it added.

In fact, it stated that no evidence proves that electric or magnetic fields initiate or promote cancer or influence tumor progression.

Further, the report argued against the possibility of adverse health effects because fields do not induce currents in humans that even equal those naturally occurring in the body.

People live immersed in electric and magnetic fields produced by natural and manmade sources, explained the summary. Electric and magnetic phenomena are intimately related. Every moving electric charge produces a magnetic field around itself.

Natural exposure arises from magnetic fields around the Earth and normal functions of the body, continued the report. Earth has a magnetic field of about 500 milligauss and an electric field of about 120 volts.

Man-made electric fields and magnetic fields, on the other hand, are produced by the generation, distribution and consumption of electric power.

Yacovissi explained that in developing permissible exposure standards, a health criterion or some biological goal is identified to ensure that exposures will be maintained below that level.

"The International Radiation Protection Association, in developing their guidelines for electric and magnetic field exposures, could not determine an identifiable health effect," he said. "But the group chose to limit magnetic field exposures, to five gauss (5,000 milligauss) for workers and one gauss for the general public.

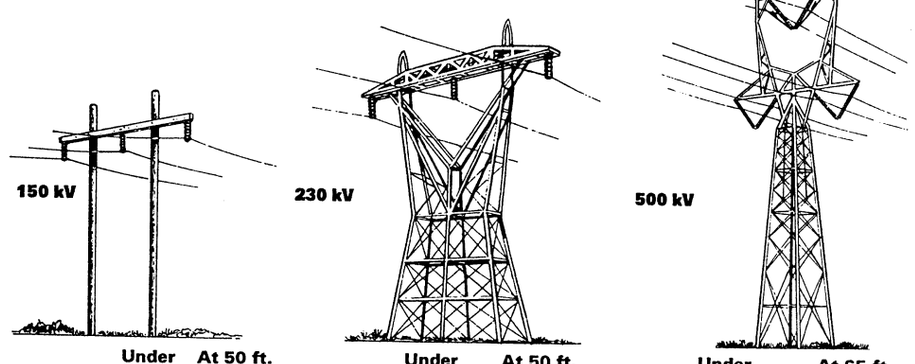
"They selected five gauss to indicate the level at which induced currents would not exceed those occurring naturally within the body from normal functions."

Therefore, he continued, magnetic field exposures from common appliances, power lines and typical office equipment are quite low in terms of these limits.

If you use a level of two or three milligauss, it is easy to show that high levels or hot spots can be found near power lines, household appliances and in office work place, said Yacovissi.

However, "no health standard-setting organization or regulatory agency has endorsed a level of two or three milligauss as being a dividing point between safe and unsafe exposures," he emphasized.

Are Your Appliances Killing You?



It takes at least 5,000 milligauss to exceed the magnetic field of your body. Here is the range of some common electrical appliances:

APPLIANCE	TYPICAL RANGE IN MILLIGAUSS
Electric Range	1 - 80
Toaster	2 - 6
Electric Blanket	3 - 50
Electric Shaver	50 - 300
Hair Dryer	1 - 75
Refrigerator	1 - 8
Can Opener	30 - 225
Coffee Maker	1 - 2
Mixer	2 - 11

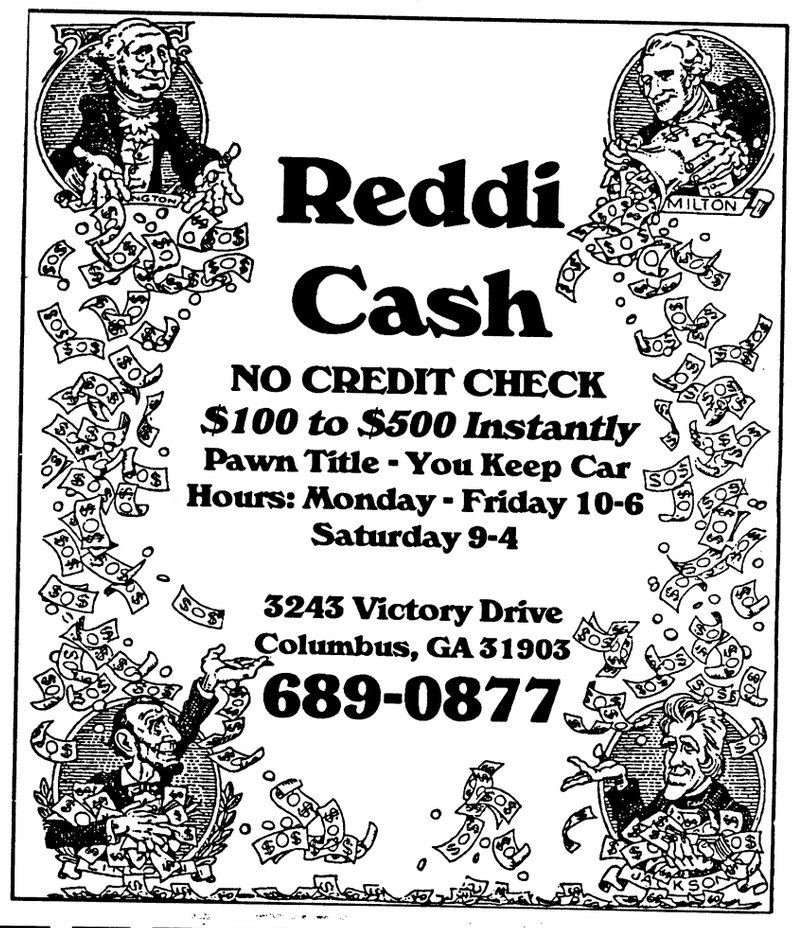
It takes 5,000 milligauss to exceed the natural electrical current in your body. Walking and living under power lines — even during peak periods — does not approach this threshold.

Will It Kill You To Walk Or Live Under High Voltage Transmission Lines? (ONLY IF IT FALLS ON YOU)



Magnetic Fields at Average, Peak Times

	150 kV Under	150 kV At 50 ft.	230 kV Under	230 kV At 50 ft.	500 kV Under	500 kV At 65 ft.
Avg. Load	20	5	35	15	70	25
Peak Hrs.	40	10	70	30	140	50

'Seinfeld' breaks out as a top comedy hit

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

It's currently in the running for 11 Emmy Awards.

It recently earned the Television

SPOTLIGHT

Critics Association award for Outstanding Comedy Series, for the second consecutive year. And it's now a regular Top 20 performer in the Nielsen ratings ... Top 10 on many occasions.

Not bad for a show largely acknowledged to be about "nothing."

Though reviewers generally liked it from the start, it took a while for NBC's comedy "Seinfeld" to grow into a popular hit, but it accomplished that during the past season. A move from Wednesdays to the post-"Cheers" slot on Thursdays helped to cement that. With the long-running "Cheers" departing, the network needed another successful program to anchor its Thursday-night lineup for the coming year, and "Seinfeld" has turned out to be it.

The stars certainly have benefited from its success, since Jerry Seinfeld appeared before sell-out audiences everywhere he stopped last spring during a multi-city concert tour, while co-stars Jason Alexander (alias Jerry's pal George), Julia Louis-Dreyfus (Jerry's ex-flame and close friend Elaine) and Michael Richards (wacky neighbor Kramer) have stayed busy with other projects during hiatus periods. For instance, Alexander recently appeared in the Showtime film "Sexual Healing," and also teamed with Louis-Dreyfus for the forthcoming movie "North"; Louis-Dreyfus herself has been very evident in recent months in hair-product commercials, joyfully squealing "I'm so luck-EEEEE!" about her own coiffure; and Richards turns up in the current "Coneheads" feature.

Jerry Seinfeld

What: "Seinfeld"
When: Thursday, 9:30 p.m on NBC

Since "Seinfeld" began with only modest aspirations, initially having had only a single airing as a supposed one-time special in July 1989, many of its ardent devotees have feared that its broadening success might inspire the powers that be to tinker with its formula. "It's actually easier when you're not a hit to do what you want," Seinfeld says. "It's just a matter of fighting for it, believing in it, and convincing other people that it'll work." To a degree, last season was an experiment, testing how viewers might respond to a sustained storyline; however, the art-imitates-life plot about Jerry making a TV show ended with the fictional pilot not being picked up, and the related episodes were intermingled with others that had nothing to do with that story arc.

Happily, if Seinfeld continues to have his way — which virtually is guaranteed at this point — his show's growing number of followers can expect much more of what they've already gotten used to. "We have to do what we feel is, creatively, the right thing," he reasons. "When we want to take a chance, we take a chance. We don't consider the risk. I think that's what you have to do as an artist."

Groundbreaking to take place for Ranger Memorial

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

The secretary of the Army recently approved a plan to build a significant memorial to U.S. Army rangers.

Ranger Field, on the southeast lawn of Infantry Hall, is the site of the planned memorial dedicated to rangers past, present and future. The monument is focused on a large spearhead-shaped plaza symbolizing rangers' strike operations. More than 2,450 cut and polished Georgia granite stones with the name of rangers etched into them, will make up the Ranger Memorial Walk.

Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" to find out more about the Ranger Memorial.

USAIC TV Schedule
Fort Benning Today: 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 1:30 to 2 p.m.
Specials: 2 to 4:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 4:30 p.m. to 8:30 a.m.

Also featured will be the 4th Ranger Training Brigade's Staff Sgt. Edward Givans, a black belt and former champion in tae kwon do and tournament director for the second annual Military Tae Kwon Do Championship conducted at Briant Wells gym July 17.

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel highlights post events and lists classified advertisements on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

Cows come home to Ga. National Fair

Georgia National Fair

PERRY, Ga. — The Georgia National Fair is Oct. 8 to 17.

Entertainment and programs revolve around livestock events, horse shows, youth exhibits and home and fine arts competitions in the Georgia Living Center, McGill Market Place ("the shops of the Georgia National Fair").

Also featured will be Reaves Arena concerts, daily free entertainment, midway rides and games, free circus under the big top, food and nightly fireworks.

"The Georgia National Fair offers something for everyone," said Michael A Froehlich, executive director. "The scope of the fair covers a wide range of programs and entertainment."

Daily free entertainment includes the Royal Hanneford Circus, clogging, Alberti Flea Circus, Dune Buggy the Clown and the Peanut Tractor Pull, Ed Aragoni's Mystifying Magic, Zambelli fireworks, Heinz Hitch of Percherons, "The New Laurel and Hardy" (walk-around characters), Fred Wynn's Petting Zoo and Pony Rides, Weaver Brothers' Miniature Circus, Granpa Cratchet and his puppet mobile, Tony Ford the Piano Kid, International Stiltwalker, Wild West Stunt Show, Robinson's Barnyard Follies and more.

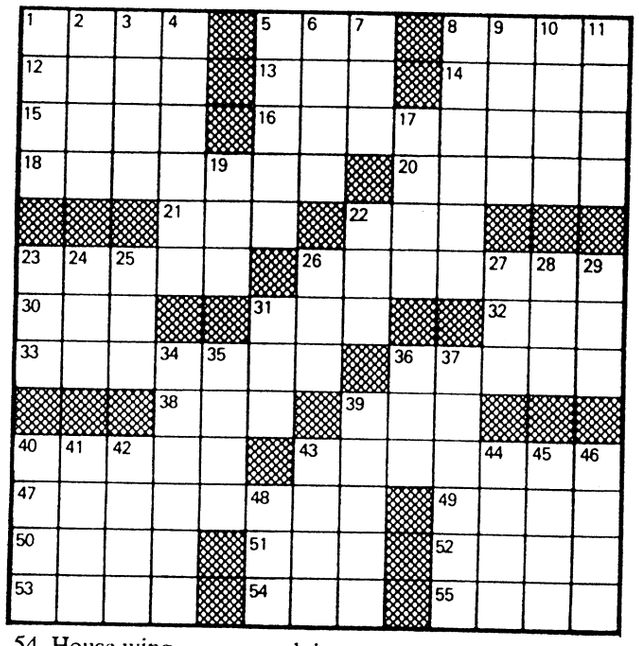
Concerts in Reaves Arena will feature Joe Diffie with Toby Keith and Lee Roy Parnell at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 9 for $16.50 and Brooks and Dunn with Radney Foster at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 for $19.50. All seats are reserved.

Tickets include the gate admission to the fair and the service charge. Tickets go on sale Aug. 28 at 10 a.m.

Georgia National Fair admission for adults is $4, senior citizens $3, children 10 and under free. Parking is free.

Special rates are offered for groups of 20 or more. School field trips are free Monday through Friday only. Advance reservations are required for school field trips.

Discounted midway ride tickets will be available Sept. 20 through midnight Oct. 7. Each sheet contains 31 tickets for $10.



Each ride requires three, four or five tickets.

Discounted midway ride tickets are available at participating Piggly Wiggly stores or by mail order from the fair box office.

Premium books are available for livestock, horses, llamas, rabbits, youth exhibits and home and fine arts competitions.

For more information, write the Georgia National Fair, 401 Larry Walker Parkway, P.O. Box 1367, Perry, Ga. 31069, or call (800) YUR-FAIR or (912) 987-2774.

FESTIVAL

features beach music

The Jekyll Island Authority

JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. — This year will mark the 10th consecutive summer that beach music lovers from throughout the Southeast will unite at Jekyll Island to shag in the sand and turn back the clock to the good time music of the late '50s and early '60s.

However, this year the "twist" may be as popular as "shagging" as Chubby Checker and The Wildcats headline the 10th annual Beach Music Festival from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 28.

Joining the inventor of the dance craze that swept the nation in the early '60s, will be the Shirelles, Swingin' Medallions, and Maurice Williams and The Zodiacs.

Known as the man who helped change forever the way people dance, Chubby Checker is best known for his introduction of "The Twist" in the early '60s. Checker produced more then 20 albums with 40 singles and his latest album, "The Change Has Come," continues the strong rock 'n' roll sound with his group The Wildcats.

Festival tickets are $7 per person in advance and are available at the Jekyll Island Welcome Center and Convention Center, and at Lil' Champ and Jiffy Stores in Southeast Georgia and select Jacksonville locations. Tickets will also be available at the Friday night dance party.

Tickets are $10 the day of the show and will be sold at the festival's main entrance gates and at the Jekyll Island Welcome Center.

Fans should arrive early to avoid traffic congestion and to get a good spot on the beach. Festival gates open at 10 a.m.

Absolutely no food, alcohol, pets, coolers, glass containers or recording devices may be brought into the festival site.

Food and beverages will be available and proper identification will be required for the purchase of alcoholic beverages. Also, Georgia law prohibits powered vessels from coming within 1,000 feet of the beach.

The festival weekend begins with the Beach Music Festival Golf Tournament and Friday night dance party Aug. 27.

The Beach Music Festival Golf Tournament will begin at 10:30 a.m. on Jekyll's Indian Mound course.

The $65 per person entry fee (deadline Aug. 23) includes greens fees, one-half cart rental, food, beverages, prizes and two tickets to the Friday night dance party.

The dance party in the Convention Center Aug. 27 will feature memorable oldies by Rocky and The Rollers backup band for the Shirelles from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Admission is $5 per person and is open to ages 21 and over only. Tickets are available at the Jekyll Island Welcome Center and Convention Center and at the door.

For more information about Jekyll Island's 10th annual Beach Music Festival weekend, call the Jekyll Island Convention and Visitors Bureau at (800) 841-6586 or (912) 635-3636.

Kudzu: Fair has fun with vine

Georgia Department of Natural Resources

Kudzu Takeover Day and Crafts Fair will be at Providence Canyon State Park Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Providence Canyon's Kudzu Takeover Day and Crafts Fair takes a look at the lighter side of the kudzu vine. With a little imagination, kudzu can be transformed into a tug-of-war rope, a basket or a wreath.

On this day packed with activities, attendees can do things with the infamous vine, such as jump rope, weave baskets and even make lemonade.

Kudzu was planted in Providence Canyon by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the 1930s in order to hold the canyon walls together. The experiment failed, but the kudzu vines kept growing.

Don McGee, manager of Providence Canyon State Park, says the Kudzu Takeover Day was designed to get a kind of humorous "revenge" on the creeping vine, and he expects a large turnout for this year's festivities. About 1,000 people attended last year.

Kudzu Day will be a day filled with games, basket making, craftsmen, cloggers, line dancers, gospel and blue grass music. Chehaw Wild Animal Park will present an edzoocational animal program. A concession will also be available.

Spaces are still available for craftsmen. All spaces are $15. All programs are free and open to the public. Visitors are reminded of the $2 parking fee required of each vehicle on state parks.

Providence Canyon State Park is located on Highway 39C and is seven miles west of Lumpkin, Ga.

Cotton pickin'

Barnsley to celebrate crop

Barnsley Gardens

Bask in the warm memories of harvest time in the South as Barnsley Gardens at Woodlands presents the first Cotton Jamboree on two consecutive weekends, Sept. 25 to 26 and Oct. 2 to 3 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily.

While strolling among the golden hue of the changing trees on this historic, 1,400-acre plantation, learn from countless artisans who will be demonstrating their time-honored crafts in a "by invitation only" show and sale. An array of talents from the local traditions of quilting and spinning to such exotic offerings as hand-carved statuary and the fine art of jewelry making will be featured. Demonstrators will be awarded prizes for the best expression of the theme.

The entertainment will be as diverse as the working artists and craftsmen featuring musical acts from across the north Georgia mountains. In addition, dance troupes representing Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, headlined by Special Edition, Barnsley's host team, will be kicking up their heels offering clogging, western dance and historic pieces such as the Virginia reel in full period attire.

Another feature will be timeless displays saluting farm life across the past century. Throughout the gardens, learn from a priceless collection of antique vehicles and farm implements from horse-drawn plows to vintage pick-up trucks; cotton gins to Model "A" Fords. Climb aboard and relive the feel of the rural experience long, long ago.

On Sept. 26, another feature will "bolt" through the gardens. It's the Cotton Bolt cross-country road race. This 5K run will cover about three miles of trails and paths winding throughout the gardens and nearby meadows.

Everyone completing the run will receive a custom printed T-shirt as a memento of the event. Runners in all age and skill levels may additionally qualify for more than 40 awards to be presented at the race's end. Individual registration is $8 in advance or $10 on race day. A team category and family packages are also available. For more information and an application, call (404) 773-7480.

A menu of festival foods will provide a quick snack or a hearty meal. An oldtime photograph or a souvenir from the Gift Shop will provide a keepsake of the day in the northwest Georgia mountains. Don't miss a stroll through the cotton patch leading to the Barnsley Garden Shop. There, a wide variety of native and heirloom plants are available for viewing and purchase, including cotton bushes busting open in snowy white profusion.

Barnsley Gardens at Woodlands is located between Adairsville and Kingston just minutes off I-75. Take exit 128, go west on Georgia Highway 140 and follow the signs. Admission is $6 for adults and $5 for students and seniors. Children 11 and under are free with their families.

An outdoor event, portions of the Cotton Jamboree is subject to weather. For more information, call (404) 773-7480.

Activities abound at state parks

Georgia Dept. of Natural Resources

Georgia state parks are offering a variety of activities during the upcoming months.

Amicalola Falls State Park near Dawsonville will host the Fall Ecology Forum and Wildlife Fair Sept. 25 and 26. This event emphasizes seasonal changes in nature and features various workshops on wildlife rehabilitation, photography and sculpture.

A program fee is required in addition to the $2 park pass fee per vehicle. Preregistration is required as well.

For more information, call Amicalola Falls State Park at (706) 265-8888.

Hear singing and storytelling about the north Georgia mountains at the annual Old Timer's Day. Vogel State Park in Blairsville hosts this annual event Sept. 18 from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The entire family can learn about the history of the fiddle, banjo and the mountain dulcimer, as well as enjoy the various styles of music from across the state.

A program fee in addition to the $2 park pass per vehicle is required.

For more information, call Vogel State Park at (706) 745-2628.

Hamburg State Park hosts the annual Hamburg Harvest Festival Sept. 18 and 19 from 10 a.m to 5 pm. The festival features arts, crafts and Southern cuisine from around the state, as well as live gospel and country music.

The event is free; however, there is a $2 park pass fee per vehicle.

For more information, call Hamburg State Park at (912) 552-2393.

Innsbruck Theatre reveals 'Love Letters'

Innsbruck Theatre and Artists Colony

The Innsbruck Theatre and Artists Colony announces its return for a third season in Pine Mountain at the Pine Mountain Club Chalets Clubhouse.

This year the theatre presents A.R. Gurney's drama, "Love Letters" with Clif Bolton and Diane Dowis-Bolton.

It is a theatre piece that is comprised of letters exchanged over a lifetime between two people who grew up together, went their separate ways, but continued to share confidences.

The play, as the actors read the letters aloud, creates an evocative, touching, frequently funny, but always telling pair of character studies in which what is implied is as revealing and meaningful as what is actually written.

"Love Letters" will run today, Saturday and Aug. 19, 20 and 21. A preshow dinner package is available for $22 per person, or the cost is $10 per person for just the show. Dinner service begins at 7 p.m. and the show is at 8 pm.

Reservations are required. Call (706) 663-2211 for reservations and information.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Theatre

League announces season 'hits'

Theatre League of Atlanta

Theatre League of Atlanta, a long-standing tradition in Atlanta, announces its 1993-1994 season, and its new association with Pace Theatrical Group Inc.

The season includes Richard Chamberlain in "My Fair Lady," "Jesus Christ Superstar," The Who's "Tommy," "Five Guys Named Moe" and Carol Channing in "Hello, Dolly!," all coming to the Fox Theatre.

Theatre League of Atlanta is now under the direction and management of Pace Theatrical Group, the largest presenter and producer of Broadway shows outside of New York.

A star of television, film and theater, Chamberlain stars in what Newsweek has called a masterpiece of the American Musical Stage, Lerner and Loewe's romantic musical comedy "My Fair Lady," coming Oct. 19 through 24.

"Jesus Christ Superstar," the original rock musical by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice is playing Feb. 15 through 20. The production reunites the stars of the enormously popular motion picture of 20 years ago, Ted Neeley as Jesus and Carl Anderson as Judas.

Winner of five 1993 Tony Awards, the new theatrical staging of The Who's "Tommy," with music and lyrics by Pete Townshend, and book by Townshend and Tony Award-winning director Des McAnuff, will make its Atlanta premiere March 15 through 20. The show, which opened on Broadway April 22, received historic critical acclaim.

"Tommy is not only the real rock musical Broadway has so long pined for, but it is a stunning surprise that has brought this Broadway season to life, heralded Frank Rich, The New York Times.

Brilliant, bloody brilliant" said Clive Barnes, New York Post. Jeremy Gerard of Variety said, seeing — not to mention hearing, feeling and touching — is believing: Tommy is the best rock 'n' roll show ever produced on Broadway. Tommy stimulates senses you didn't know you had, said David Patrick Stearns, USA Today.

The Cameron Mackintosh production of the hit Broadway musical "Five Guys Named Moe," a musical celebration of the songs of the 1940s jazz great Louis Jordan, will be performing the week of April 12.

Winner of two Olivier Awards (Outstanding Entertainment of the Year and Best Choreographer - Charles Augins), Clarke Peters' "Five Guys" is directed and choreographed by Charles Augins with vocal arrangements by Chapman Roberts.

For the season finale, Channing stages a return to Atlanta in the record-breaking musical classic, winner of 10 Tony Awards, "Hello, Dolly!," April 26 through May 1. Based on Thornton Wilder's original play, "The Matchmaker," and the hilarious book by Michael Stewart, "Hello, Dolly!" bubbles with the music and lyrics of Jerry Herman.

Originally staged by the late Gower Champion, the show is directed by Lucia Victor with choreography recreated by Jack Craig.

As a special option on the season package, the stage of the Fox Theatre will come alive with the new, fully staged musical version of "The Wizard of Oz" Dec. 23 through 26. Based on the MGM film, this family favorite contains the Oscar-winning score by Harold Arlen and E.Y. (Yip) Harburg, including "Over the Rainbow," "If I Only Had a Brain," and "We're Off to See the Wizard," plus flying witches, winged monkeys, a tornado, Munchkins, lavish scenery and sumptuous costumes.

Theatre League of Atlanta is now under the direction of Pace Theatrical Group Inc., a division of Pace Entertainment, with offices in Houston, New York and Miami. Formed in 1982, the group has risen into prominence by developing a touring circuit for Broadway shows.

Pace is also actively involved in producing and developing.

Theatre League of Atlanta was also founded in 1982. Largely through the firm's efforts, Atlanta has gained national prominence as a significant market for theatrical touring productions.

The league has presented dozens of musicals, dramas and comedies, including "Les Miserables," "The Will Rogers Follies," Robert Goulet in "Camelot," "Cats," Lily Tomlin in "Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe," "Amadeus," Neil Simon's trilogy: "Broadway Bound," "Biloxi Blues" and "Brighton Beach Memoirs," and Hal Holbrook in "Mark Twain Tonight," as well as set tour records for "Dreamgirls" and "The Wiz."

Ticket prices for the season range from $49 to $162 and are available now. To order season tickets, call (800) 477-7974.

For further information, call (404) 873-4300. Discounts are available to groups of 20 or more by calling (404) 873-4300.

Seminar will target women's issues

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

A symposium, "All About Women," will take place from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday as part of Fort Benning's observation of Women's Equality Day.

The Fort Benning Federal Women's Program committee is sponsoring the seminar, which will feature the following topics and speakers:

Political Power for Women — Meryll Penson, director, Columbus College Library;

How AIDS Affects Women — Sherry Kellerman, registered nurse, Preventive Medicine; and Violence Against Women — Debra Howell, social worker, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity;

Other activities will include a "Women's Wall for Change," where attendees may write their suggestions on bringing about change for women and girls.

Representatives of several local organizations will be on hand to discuss what they are doing about women's issues.

All activities will be in Room 21 of Infantry Hall, Building 4. Attendees are encouraged to bring their lunches.

For more information, call Lavonda Forbes at 545-2454.

Cleanup

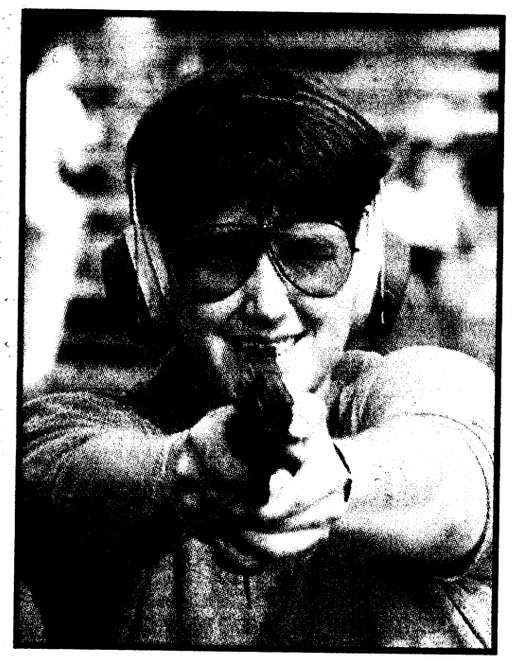
efforts aim to 'square away' Fort Benning

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Monday through Aug. 27 has been designated Post Cleanup Week by Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White.

All units, directorates and family housing areas must work to improve their appearance for the Training and Doctrine Command Communities of Excellence inspection from Aug. 30 to Sept. 2. said Darlene Perry, Community Life officer.

The designation of cleanup week is to remind people to continue to keep their areas up to standard, she said.



"The reason we won the Army Communities of Excellence competition last year is because the community was involved in keeping the quarters areas and common areas neat," said Perry.

"We are an Army community of excellence, and the goal is to show TRADOC that we are continuing to be a community of excellence," she said.

According to Perry, the duty of the on-post community in quarters is to make sure that grass is cut, weeds are pulled and the whole yard is up to Army standards.

Mowers, weed-eaters and other tools available to post residents for cleanup. Call the Self-Help Center, Building 385, at 545-3633.

Sledgehammer

brigade gets new leader

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

The "Sledgehammer" brigade passed to a new hand Aug. 13 when Col. Michael Deegan took command of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division from Col. Robert J. St. Onge Jr.

The 9 a.m. ceremony at York Field was attended by Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, Fort Benning commanding general, and featured remarks from Maj. Gen. Paul E. Blackwell, commander of the 24th.

More than a thousand 3rd Brigade soldiers stood in rank and file as the outgoing and incoming commanders reviewed them from the back of an open high-mobility, multi-purpose wheeled vehicle.

"The men and women of the Sledgehammer brigade have performed magnificently under the leadership of Colonel St. Onge," Blackwell said, "and are ready to deploy anywhere in the world at 18 hours' notice."

Blackwell congratulated St. Onge for his concentration on the three focuses of the brigade — deployability, warfighting skills and taking care of soldiers and their families.

"Colonel Deegan is ready to command," Blackwell said. "He's proved himself in peace and at war, and he has an understanding of those focuses that will continue to be the aims of this brigade."

"I look forward to building on the momentum of this great team, and doing it in a climate where soldiers know that leaders care."

— Col. Michael Deegan
3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division

St. Onge thanked White for ensuring 3rd Brigade soldiers' quality of life while at Fort Benning.

"You've provided everything a soldier could ask for," St. Onge said.

"The 12 outstanding battalion commanders of this brigade have been exceptional, and the staff officers are probably the hardest-working brigade staff in the Army," St. Onge said, addressing his officers.

"Here, at the National Training Center, and I know, at war, you have never and would never let me down," he said, applauding his soldiers.

"I look forward," Deegan said to the troops he now commands, "to building on the momentum of this great team, and doing it in a climate where soldiers know that leaders care."

St. Onge, who commanded the 3rd Brigade since October 1991, will assume duties as chief of staff of the 3rd Armor Division in Bad Kreuznach, Germany. He and his wife, Joan, have three daughters: Jennifer, 19; Allison, 17, and Mary Louise, 12.

Deegan comes to Fort Benning from assignment as operations officer, Berlin Brigade. He served previously with the 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) as an enlisted soldier.

Deegan and his wife, Isabel Teresa Adan, have two sons: Christian, 7, and Arthur, 15 months.

School of the Americas hosts Latin American conference

School of the Americas

The School of the Americas hosted the fifth Latin American Conference Aug. 11 to 13 at the school's headquarters building.

The conference, a forum on national security issues as they pertain to Latin America, consisted of U.S. and Latin American panelists from government, military, education and private-sector positions.

This year's conference focused on the economic development of Latin America and the military's role in that development.

The conference coordinator, Dr. Russell W. Ramsey, visiting professor at SOA, said this year's conference included a "mix of diplomats, bank officials and economists not previously seen in the past."

The emphasis on private-sector panelists demonstrated the importance of the military's role in economic development and the privatization in Latin America, Ramsey said.

In addition to the panelists, the School's Command and General Staff Course students (a course equivalent to the CGSC at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.) engaged in question-and-answer sessions with the panelists.

Take care of your pet

Keep your animal indoors or provide a fenced-in area outdoors

By Clyde Snively

COMMENTARY

Ralf is not what I'd call a smarter-than-average dog.

In fact on the intelligence quotient scale, she rates between a rock and moss. But she's friendly, she's loyal, she's forgiving — everything a man could ask for in a wife — but of course, she's a dog.

She's also neutered. (Holy Father, forgive me.)

But somehow I don't think birth control pertains to animals. In fact, if you listen to the humane society they'll practically accuse you of criminal neglect if you own a "whole" animal.

A "whole" animal is what people with unneutered pets call them. "Why I wouldn't dream to neuter Sweet Pea until she's had at least one litter. It'll help settle her. Make her feel all woman."

Or, "Heck no, I ain't taking away Ol' Blood's manhood; why he'd just get fat and lazy if he ain't got no sex drive."

These people are kin to those who think all cats need to be outdoors where they can get fleas, ticks, into fights and kill birds and chipmunks.

"Well, gosh, I wouldn't dream of keeping Charlie in the house all day. That'd be so cruel. Cats need to be outdoors you know, communing with nature."

Hey, I don't know about your cat Charlie, but I can tell you Ralf would be in seventh heaven if she could be a house dog.

And I might make her a house dog if she didn't weigh 47 pounds, didn't have a tail that'd dent the side of a Bradley Fighting Vehicle, and didn't shed enough hair in a 24-hour period to stuff a pillow case.

What I did do for Ralf was put up a fence in the backyard and build her a house (no, it's not air-conditioned). I do let her inside when it rains — she actually likes to be out in the rain but uses this as an excuse to come indoors.

So despite all this "abuse," Ralf, who is 10 human years old, is still as lively as a puppy, and has held her weight since reaching maturity.

By keeping her penned in the backyard where she can pursue her dream of catching the squirrels that race across the top of the fence or the rabbits that nibble our weeds, I can be assured that I won't have to scrape her body off Macon Road, go to the pound to reclaim her after I pay her bail money (no small amount), or rescue her from the jaws of some pit bull or similar dog.

In fact, the only scar she has right now is when the neighbors' cat paid a visit and Ralf tried to get friendly, ending up with claw marks down the side of her nose.

I can also tell you this. It's no fun to visit the pound to do "Pet of the Week," knowing that the next time I visit, most of the animals I see there on one day will have been put to permanent sleep by the vet by the next time I visit.

If an animal is going to end up in a pound, it'd better hope the Fort Benning pound is the one it lands in. Some others are downright nasty, not because the people there are nasty, but because they don't have room, don't have money to buy food and provide basic medical care.

So do your pet and your neighbors a favor.

Neuter your animal and either make it an indoor pet or provide a fenced-in area that it can't jump over or climb under (and will also keep kids out — yeah, so what if the brat climbed the fence, beat your pet then got clawed or bitten, Papa Jerk's still going to report you and your pet to the Military Police and try to sue to boot).

Life's not fair but that's still no excuse to neglect your pet. And Ralf agrees. "Hua-roof."

Would you call Hillary Rodham Clinton a girl?

COMMENTARY

Women's Equality Day is coming up again, and I'm issuing a personal invitation to Spc. Clyde Snively to attend the festivities.

Snively would see business women, counselors, nurses and soldiers — all female. In other words, he'll get back in touch with the reality of women in the '90s.

If you read his column last week, you know what I'm talking about. Snively was describing the plight of the post clubs as they try to determine what will please their clientele.

He was doing fine until he wrote, "The enlisted club might be the easiest. Basically turn up the volume, pour the booze and bring on some girls and most of us wanna-be-NCOs are happy — at least until someone from another unit tries to cut in on our girl or they start playing the wrong music."

Whoa, dude. First of all, if you're taking girls into the enlisted club, there should be some angry parents on your tail. A female who has reached the age of 18 is a woman, thank you very much. Would you call Margaret Thatcher, Mother Theresa, or Hillary Rodham Clinton a girl? (Don't take my word for it, men. Check Webster's II New Riverside University Dictionary, The Associated Press Stylebook and Libel Manual, and "The Nonsexist Communicator" by Bobbye D. Sorrells)

More importantly, you seem to be forgetting the many accomplished enlisted soldiers you work with every day who don't go to the enlisted club to chase "girls" or women. Some of us might occasionally pursue some of you men, though.

Wake up, my friend. Not everyone in camouflage has a high-and-tight, and the just-us-guys attitude was passe in this woman's Army a long time ago.

Fort Benning has made a point of "leading the way" in stressing the importance of awareness, and avoidance, of discrimination to its soldiers and officers. Discriminating against a female simply because she's female is officially a no-no, and some of the "humorous" remarks I've heard, from many people besides Snively, are anything but funny.

Some of you may think that some women are overly sensitive on the subject, but remember your Army classes — if someone finds a remark offensive, it's offensive.

Female soldiers aren't the only women my friend has managed to belittle lately, though. In the column on this very page, Snively describes his dog: "... on the IQ scale, she rates between a rock and moss. But she's friendly, she's loyal, she's forgiving — everything a man could ask for in a wife."

With that attitude, I'll bet that dog is your best friend — at least, your best female friend. A lot of women, besides being friendly and loyal, are more than ready to match you brain cell for brain cell, paycheck for paycheck, and shot for shot at the range. Even (is nothing sacred?) at the golf course.

So, Snively, why don't you attend the Women's Equality Day seminar with me? I'd enjoy hearing you explain to the audience all you've done to advance the cause of equal rights and respect for women.

PROCLAMATION

On Aug. 26, 1973, the president of the United States designated Women's Equality Day.

This denotes the ratification of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution giving women the right to vote and reminds us of women's continuing efforts toward equality in all spheres of our society.

From its radical beginning in 1848 at the Seneca Falls, N.Y., Women's Rights Convention, women in the suffrage movement had a long, uphill fight.

Elizabeth Cody Stanton drafted the Declaration of Sentiment listing the legal disadvantages of women, which became the catalyst for future suffrage conventions.

From 1870 to 1910, there were 480 campaigns in 33 states for passage of the amendment. They resulted in 17 referenda; only two of which, Colorado and Idaho, were successful.

Wyoming was the front-runner state for women's rights as stated in their Constitution. Finally, Aug. 26, 1920, Tennessee became part of the U.S. Constitution.

The right to vote is a precious privilege that should not be taken lightly by those who enjoy it.

The entire governmental process is enhanced by men and women who cast their votes.

Women's Equality Day is an excellent opportunity for soldiers and civilians at Fort Benning to acknowledge their responsibilities to vote and to acknowledge the continuing efforts toward equality in the United States.

Veterinarians ensure food 'wholesome'

Inspectors check food destined for dining facilities, commissaries

Ensuring food is handled properly to prevent outbreaks of food-borne illnesses in military organizations is the most important mission of Army veterinarians.

— Dr. (Col.) Paul L. Barrows
Army Surgeon General Office

By Rudi Williams
American Forces Information Service

With an attache case in hand, Naomi J.H. Stewart gingerly walked into a civilian doughnut shop in Woodbridge, Va. Donning a snowwhite smock, she quick-stepped through the shop and out the back door.

"They're gone," Stewart said. "Two bags of garbage were back here when I drove up; they've moved them. I always check out back, particularly the dumpster area, first because all kinds of insects and rodents get into the garbage, then into the restaurant through the back door," Stewart explained.

Stewart, an Army warrant officer, serves as a food inspector with the veterinary office at Fort Belvoir, Va. She and her counterparts around the world ensure that food destined for dining facilities, snack bars and commissaries is wholesome. Army veterinarians are responsible for inspecting food for all services worldwide.

Ensuring food is handled properly to prevent outbreaks of food-borne illnesses in military organizations is the most important mission of Army veterinarians, according to Dr. (Col.) Paul L. Barrows, veterinarian in the Army Surgeon General Office.

Barrows said different illnesses can result from not handling food properly, but his major concern is Escherichia coli 0145:H7, or E. coli. The major sources of E. coli are undercooked ground beef and raw milk.

"Unwholesome means food has the potential to make people sick because harmful bacteria is growing in it," said Stewart.

Stooping to inspect a large metal doughmixing bowl, Stewart signals the owner-manager: "This needs to be cleaned," she said, pointing to brown stains circling the top third of the bowl.

"That's from the cinnamon," the manager explained.

"OK," said Stewart, "but it still has to be cleaned."

Stewart went about her work, meticulously checking the cleanliness of trays full of assorted doughnuts. She inspected on, under, around and atop everything, looking for anything that might contaminate the pastry, including roaches and rodents.

But the workers had done their jobs well. Stewart gave them a score of 95. Inspections are conducted quarterly, but can be reduced to semiannually or annually if a food-producing establishment maintains a score of 95 or above.

"The worst thing I ever found was a bakery using a mixing bowl with broken welds in the bottom," said the 31-year-old former staff sergeant. "Food particles were trapped in the cracks and metal fragments got into baked goods. That was a small mom and pop operation. Most large bakeries have metal detectors on their lines."

Stewart headed for her next inspection site, the commissary at Quantico Marine Corps Base, Va. A team of veterinary inspectors work out of a trailer behind the commissary.

Army Sgt. Cynthia D. Walker was on duty. She related her famous contaminated dog biscuit story:

"A customer returned a box of dog biscuits infested with bugs," said Walker. "We took them to the trailer instead of opening them in the store. Some things look like bugs, but they're not."

What they saw this time was the real thing. When the inspectors opened the box, a bunch of Indian meal moths flew out. "The moths are a common grain pest that gets into flour, rice and other grain products," Walker explained. "They love dog food. We found them in other boxes of dog food."

Inspecting the large volume of delivery trucks at the Quantico commissary is a taxing, time-consuming job for the three inspectors, Walker noted.

"Some days, we get up to 100 trucks bringing all kinds of food — frozen and fresh meats, fresh seafood, fruits and vegetables, eggs, canned good and baked goods," she said. "We also check deliveries of cold and dry storage items for troop issue, trucks going to the officers and noncommissioned officers clubs and vending machine trucks.

"We check every food item that comes onto the base, except for regular pizza and Chinese food deliveries," Walker said. "But if a pizza operation comes on base wanting to sell 25 to 50 pizzas, we'll check them."

Checking food means taking the temperature inside delivery trucks and the temperature of different food items, Stewart explained. For instance, dairy products should be delivered at 32 to 40 degrees, and frozen items at 10 degrees and below.

Using a truck carrying 50 different line items as an example, Walker said the first thing inspectors do is break it down by pallets. "Sometimes there are six different kinds of items on one pallet — frozen vegetables, frozen or chilled juice. We have to check the temperature of everything."

Checking temperatures during winter months can be tricky, Walker said. "Just because it's cold outside and cold inside the truck doesn't mean the food is at the correct temperature," she said.

Sweaty packages of bread is a constant problem. "We send it back," Walker said.

In the case of frozen foods, "Before we send frozen foods back, we put our initials somewhere on the box so we'll know if the vendor refroze it and sent the same food back to us," she said. "We do little tricky things like that to keep suppliers from tricking us — and the customers."

There have been cases of seafood companies covering up evidence of tainted seafood.

"We randomly open packages and run cold water on the fish to wash away any baking soda solution that was used to cover up the smell and slime," she said.

"Sometimes such things as Cajun catfish and lemon-pepper-flavored fish is marinated to cover up the smell. But we can detect it by washing and smelling the fish."

Stewart said the ordering officer decides when products should be returned, "But they usually listen to her (Walker) because if they start letting a vendor slide, the vendors say, 'We can send this place older, poor-quality stuff and they'll take it and we get the same price. So let's keep sending them this garbage.'

Stewart's next stop was a small Navy commissary at Dahlgren, Va. There she met with the commissary officer, Chief Petty Officer Donald M. Good. It was a short visit because everything was in tip-top shape.

"I've only found minor defects here because it's so small," said Stewart. "The smaller the store, the less they have to mess up."

About an hour later, Stewart arrived at the sprawling McLane Food Corp. in Falmouth, Va. A few minutes later, Rod Schlemm, the quality assurance supervisor, ambled into the waiting room to escort Stewart on a walk-through inspection of the food preparation and storage areas.

Big bucks are at stake here because the company sells thousands of dollars worth of ready-to-eat sandwiches, pizzas and beverages to military installations every day.

Walking into the sandwich preparation area was similar to walking into a pristine scientific research laboratory. Workers wore smocks, hair covers and plastic gloves.

They prepare more than 25,000 sandwiches per day. Some food plant managers become peeved when military food inspectors show up, Stewart said. But not Schlemm.

"We view military inspections as another set of eyes looking at things, even though we have quality assurance in-house," Schlemm said. "We're looking at things the same way she is. She may find things we may overlook.

"Things she may see in different plants may help us," Schlemm continued. "Overall, military inspections benefit the whole operation. We're after the same things she is — preventing E. coli infection."

E. coli can cause severe, often bloody, diarrhea and painful abdominal cramps.

The infection can also lead to a condition known as hemolytic uremic syndro, causing kidney failure and other complications, including seizures and stroke — and death.

En route back to Fort Belvoir, Stewart said, "The biggest problem in food contamination is the human factor. But if everyone does his or her job right, the chance of contaminating food is much less."

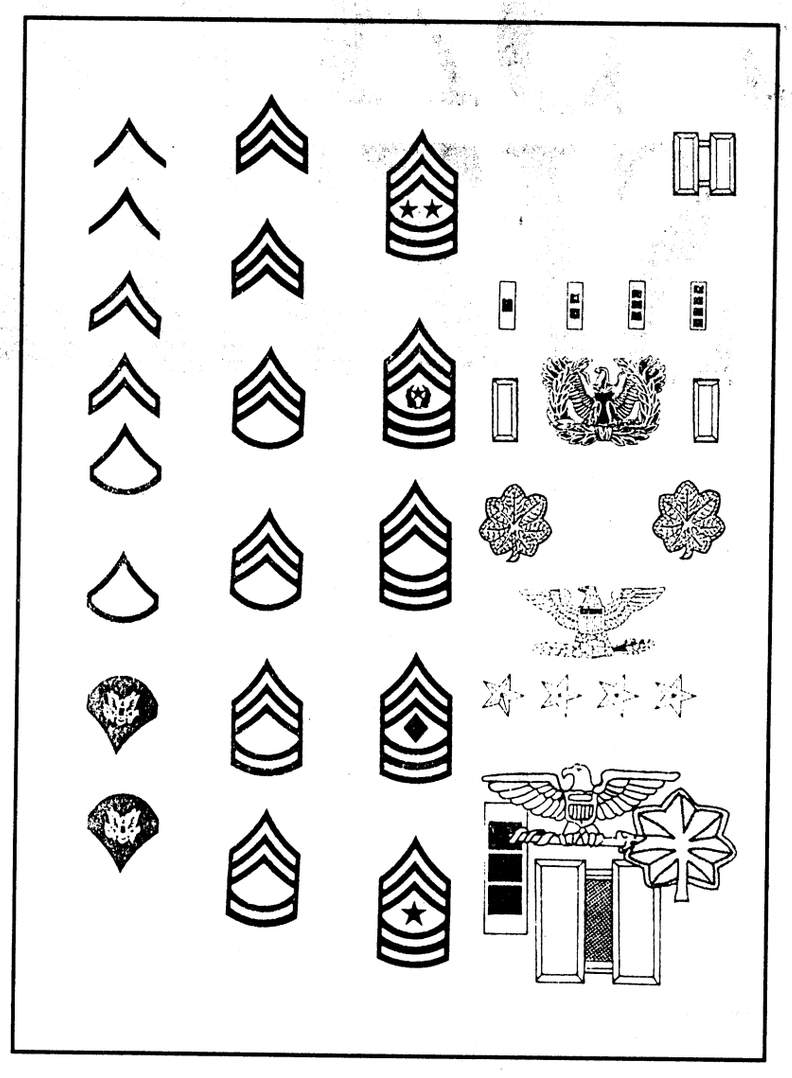
Rank reflects military history, development of doctrine

Army Reserve Magazine



The evolution of rank in the Army is a fascinating and revealing reflection on both military history and the development of battlefield doctrine. The most recent development came with the introduction of the new chief warrant officer 5 rank earlier this year.

The earliest rank insignia in the American Army began with George Washington's Continental Army. Sergeants were distinguished by an epaulette or red stripe on the right shoulder.

Chevrons were first used as insignia for privates and sergeants when Sylvanus Thayer used them as cadet rank at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

Through the year that followed, particularly in times of war, development of insignia continued. A complete history parallels the history of naval and military progress and mirrors advancements in the science and tactic of warfare.

The earliest rank insignia in the American Army began with George Washington's Continental Army. Sergeants were distinguished by an epaulette or red stripe on the right shoulder.

Private

According to researchers, the rank of private began in 16th century Europe when individuals were given the privilege of making private contracts of enlistment, thereby distinguishing themselves from the rabble drafted into feudal military service.

In 1951 the U.S. rank of private first class (E-2) was indicated by the "mosquito wing" chevron. The present day insignia for private first class (E-3), consisting of an arc beneath a chevron, began in 1968. The single chevron became the insignia for private (E-2).

Corporal

The position of corporal originated during the 15th century. Used originally in Italy, the capo de squadra were leaders of tactical squadra (square) formations. During the 16th century, the French adopted the term caporal and the British followed suit in the 17th century. In 1803 the British gave their corporals two stripes.

Sergeant

The term sergeant started out in medieval times as "servant," describing assistants in service to a knight. These servants quickly became experienced warriors, and as the term evolved into "sergeant" it referred more to the occupation than it did the rank. Although originally a French word and spelled by the English as "serjeant," the American pronunciation remains "sargeant."

The technician grades such as technical sergeant began in 1942 and were designated with the letter 'T' placed in the center field of a sergeant's chevrons.

Specialist

In 1955, in an effort to distinguish between combat leaders and soldiers with special skills, the Army split the top enlisted grades into two groups — sergeants and specialists. Noncommissioned officers continued to wear the traditional chevrons while the new category of specialist — enlisted personnel who performed technical or administrative duties — received new insignia. Grades were master specialist (E-7), specialist first class (E-6), specialist second class (E-5) and specialist third class (E-4).

In 1958, Congress authorized the supergrades E-8 and E-9 and specialists were included in these new ranks. Since the name master specialist was in use, a decision was made to use the rather uninspired numbered titles of specialist 4 through specialist 9.

The highest of the new specialist ranks were never used and disappeared in 1965, because the Army found few master sergeants or sergeants major willing to be called specialist 8 or specialist 9.

Lieutenant

Evidence suggests that the rank of lieutenant dates to the 12th century, and the word "lieutenant" comes from the French words lieu (place) and tenant (holder). It denoted the person who acted in place of a superior officer when that officer was not present, becoming his deputy (such as lieutenant general and lieutenant colonel).

Although used for centuries in Britain, it became an officially designated rank in 1650 and was given to British noblemen who were in training to become British ship captains. Within the rank of lieutenant, three grades distinguished their seniority and duties — first, second and third lieutenant.

The rank of lieutenant appeared in the Continental Army in 1775.

Captain

The word "captain" comes from the Latin word capitaneus (chieftain), which was derived from a more archaic Latin word caput (head). The armies of the Italian city states had captains as early as the 10th century. In the 11th century, the British navy had captains commanding soldiers serving on ships. By the 16th century, a captain headed a company of roughly of 100 to 200 men.

Major

The word "major" comes from the Latin major (greater). The rank traces its beginnings to the 16th century rank of sergeant major, considered the greater of the sergeants.

In Britain, the sergeant major served as the second or third in command of a regiment. By the 18th century the rank of sergeant major gave way to simply, major — the regiment's staff officer — and the rank of sergeant major remained as the top sergeant for enlisted personnel.

Colonel

"Colonel" and "lieutenant colonel" originated in Spain, probably around the 16th century when King Ferdinand arranged a portion of his army into units called colunelas. The commander of the colunela was the cabo de colunela (head of the column) or colonel. Imitating the Spanish example, the French developed colunelas in the 17th century, and subsequently the British copied the French.

Generally, colonels were noblemen with assistants who took their place when the colonels were absent, and thus evolved the rank of lieutenant colonel.

General

The term general was used as early as the days of the Roman armies. The United States adopted it from the British army and have used it since the days of the Continental Army.

VA announces more services for women

Department of Veteran Affairs

WASHINGTON — A series of health-care initiatives for women veterans has been announced by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

The initiatives include establishing four comprehensive health centers and four stress-disorder treatment teams, as well as hiring counselors in 69 locations to treat the aftereffects of sexual harassment and assault will be launched by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

"I am strongly committed to meeting the health-care needs of women veterans," said VA Secretary Jesse Brown.

"VA is moving quickly to implement these new programs and services that will provide state-of-the-art treatment to specific populations of women veterans and serve as models for similar programs across the nation," he said. "I'm pleased that these efforts also will build on existing VA programs for women veterans."

Authorized by the Women Veterans Health Programs Act of 1992, some $7.5 million was appropriated in 1993 for these and other expanded services for a growing population of women veterans.

The four Women Veterans Comprehensive Health Centers will operate clinics and programs focusing on the unique health-care needs of women veterans, providing a full range of services in specific geographic regions.

The locations of the centers are: the Southeast Pennsylvania Network, comprised of VA medical centers in Coatesville, Lebanon, Philadelphia, and Wilmington, Del.; and the VA medical centers in Minneapolis; Tampa, Fla.; and San Francisco.

The Women Veterans Stress Disorder Teams will treat stress disorders resulting from active duty military service, including those arising as a consequence of sexual assault.

Each team will have three clinicians, including one psychiatrist.

Teams also will provide training to local VA and non-VA clinicians on stress disorders in women. VA is in the process of selecting the sites, one to be based in each of VA's four medical regions.

In addition to the health centers and stress-disorder treatment teams, VA is augmenting staff at 69 of VA's 201 community-based vet centers throughout the country to provide counseling for the aftereffects of sexual assault or harassment sustained by women veterans while on active military duty.

The full- and part-time counselors will have specialized experience and skills in counseling women with difficulties stemming from sexual trauma.

Other women veterans' initiatives include appointing full-time women veterans coordinators in each of VA's four medical regions to coordinate health-care services.

Full-time coordinators also will be placed in 22 medical centers to evaluate the need for converting existing positions from part-time or collateral duty.

Committee to examine DoD's finances

By F. Peter Wigginton
American Forces Information Service

Responding to congressional concerns, Defense Secretary Les Aspin has established a Senior Financial Management Oversight Council to solve serious problems within the department.

"Financial management in an enterprise of the size and complexity of the Defense Department requires sustained, high-level attention across a number of functional areas — not just traditional financial management," Aspin said. "This council will provide that attention."

The council will address a lengthy list of issues. In general, these relate to inadequate financial management practices, the future of the Defense Business Operations Fund, consolidation of accounting systems and improved defense inventory controls.

Deputy Defense Secretary Bill Perry will chair the nine-member council.

"We intend to face up to the longstanding financial management problems and to demonstrate that we have specific plans to fix them, to implement proactive solutions as quickly as possible and to monitor the results to ensure that actions taken have been effective," Perry said.

Members, who will meet monthly with Perry, include the service secretaries, vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, undersecretary of defense for acquisition, and DoD's comptroller and general counsel.

The council will address several issues including inadequate financial management practices, consolidation of accounting systems and improved defense inventory controls

Sen. John Glenn, chairman of the Committee on Governmental Affairs, expressed his committee's concerns in a three-page April 23 letter to Aspin.

Glenn referred to the Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act of 1982, which was designed to improve internal controls and financial accountability of federal agencies.

He said recent audit findings reveal significant problems that remain uncorrected.

Glenn said the Air Force's primary accounting system produces inaccurate and unreliable data. He said about $20 billion of expenditures in fiscal 1989 were not recorded nor could they be traced.

Also, lack of basic internal Air Force controls enabled an employee to embezzle about $2 million over the past three years. He was caught because neighbors, believing his lavish lifestyle stemmed from the sale of illegal drugs, reported him to the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Because of ineffective controls over parts inventories and contractor-used government equipment, managers cannot prevent billions of dollars of Army assets from being stolen or lost.

Further, billions of dollars in Navy disbursements cannot be matched with bills. The reason for issuing about $12 billion worth of checks cannot be identified, Glenn said.

Rep. Earl Hutto, chairman of the House Armed Services Sub-committee on Readiness, added his subcommittee's concerns in a six-page April 8 letter to Aspin.

Speaking of "the breakdown of DoD's financial systems," Hutto said projected savings of the 1989 defense management report are illusory.

He said the department's "books are so out of whack, financial managers cannot agree" on savings and costs. "These are not idle bookkeeping and accounting issues. The implications are enormous and the effects are insidious," Hutto wrote.

Hutto said the director of the Office of Management and Budget has characterized DoD's finances as a "disaster." Also, U.S. Comptroller General Charles Bowsher called it a mess, with billions of dollars unaccounted for.

"We must move fast to solve these problems if Congress and the public are to have full confidence in our ability to manage the department's resources and maintain a high level of national security," Perry said.

Open season nears end for veterans' insurance

Department of Veterans Affairs

Disabled veterans' chance to increase their supplemental insurance will end Oct. 31, the close of open season.

The Department of Veterans Affairs is encouraging eligible disabled veterans to apply for an increase in their Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance coverage during open season.

The increased coverage is available as a result of legislation passed in 1992 that allowed eligible Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance policyholders to obtain up to $20,000 in additional insurance coverage.

Policyholders must be under the age of 65 and eligible for a waiver of premiums, which is available only to policyholders who are totally disabled.

Premiums are not waived, however, for the supplemental insurance.

Premium rates for the supplemental insurance are based on the policyholder's current age.

The supplemental insurance can be purchased in increments of $500, starting at $1,000 with a maximum of $20,000.

Eligible policyholders interested in the increased coverage can contact the VA's Regional Office and Insurance Center at SRH, P.O. Box 7208, Philadelphia, Pa. 19101.

The toll-free number for the center is (800) 669-8477.

POST BRIEFS

Medical Department plans organization day

The U.S. Army Medical Department Activity, including Martin Army Community Hospital, will conduct Organization Day activities Thursday beginning at noon at Uchee Creek.

Previous MEDDAC employees are invited to attend this year's activities.

Activities will include a softball game between former and current employees.

All medical clinics will participate in the organizational day activities. After 1 p.m., only the following services will be available:

- The hospital's emergency room remains open 24 hours.
- The hospital's outpatient clinic will be available for limited walk-in services.
- The Primary Care for the Uniform Services Family Practice Clinic will be open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.
- Troop Medical Clinic 5 will be open from 12:30 to 4 p.m. to handle sick call for active duty soldiers. All other troop medical clinics will be closed.
- The hospital's outpatient pharmacy will close at 12:30 p.m. The Refill Pharmacy in the Post Exchange at the Main Mall will be open from 9:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. Patients may use the 24-hour phone-in refill service by calling 544-1352.
- The hospital's family practice clinic, Winder Family Practice Clinic and the Aviation Medicine Clinic will also be closed.

Military early retirement information available

The Retirement Services Office is now accepting applications for early retirements for military personnel.

For information pertaining to eligibility, contact your Personnel Administrative Center. More information will appear in next week's Bayonet.

Retirement material available for loan

The Retirement Services Office has two videotapes, "Military Preretirement" and "The Survivor Benefit Plan," available for loan.

The tapes may be used for professional development by a group or individuals to allow eligible soldiers to better prepare for retirement.

For more information, call 545-5369 or 545-2541.

Crescrenz weapons pool to close Sept. 4

The Crescrenz Consolidated Equipment Pool Branch (formerly called the Weapons Pool), Maintenance Division, Directorate of Logistics, Building 9106, will be closed for business Sept. 4 because of the Labor Day holiday, which will be officially observed Sept. 6.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Aug. 29. If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-6, C-1, C-2, D-11, D-17, E-2, E-7, J-1, M-2, M-8, O-1, O-3, O-5, O-6, O-7, Q-2, S-1, T-5, T-6 and U-5.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas. People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

Stress class Sept. 16

The Civilian Counseling Service of the Directorate of Community Activities is sponsoring a seminar, "Understanding and Reducing Stress," Sept. 16 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The seminar will be at the Youth Activities Center, Building 1056.

There is no cost for this training. The agenda is as follows:

8:30 to 9:30 a.m. — "Stress in our Daily Lives," Lt. Col. Roberta Dyer, chief of Community Health Nursing.

9:45 to 10:30 a.m. — "Humor and Stress," Dr. Ron King, executive director, the Pastoral Institute.

10:30 to 11:15 a.m. — "Reducing Family Stress," Dr. Melton Strozier, The Medical Center.

The seminar is open to civilian employees, supervisors, union stewards, counselors, military personnel, family members, Equal Employment Opportunity counselors and other interested personnel.

To attend, contact your unit or activity training coordinator. Nominations must be made by Sept. 13.

Call 545-5580 or 545-5656 for more information.

Control #'s needed for overseas calls

Effective immediately, prior booking with the post telephone operator is no longer required to place official telephone calls overseas.

However, a control number is required.

To make an overseas call, call the post operator and give the control number and the number being called.

The operator will place the call. If the line is busy, the operator will recommend that the caller wait, then the operator will try to place the call again.

A control number is good for three attempts to place the call within 48 hours. If no connection is made within the 48-hour time period, a new control number will be required.

For calls after 4:30 p.m., if the unit telephone control officer is not available, control numbers can be obtained from the field officer or the staff duty officer of the day.

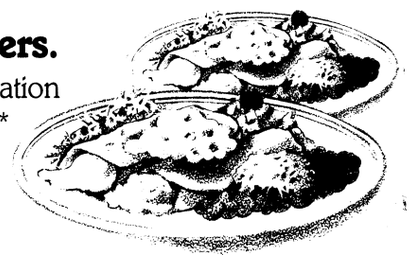
Insurance reps to visit Fort Benning Sept. 8

Representatives from CNA and Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance companies will be available for consultation on Sept. 8.

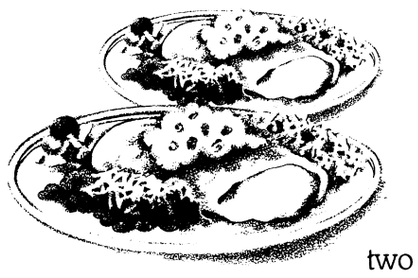
James Rice from CNA and Frank Williams from Blue Cross and Blue Shield will be in Building 2506, Classroom 2 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Appointments may be made by calling the Directorate of Civilian Personnel at 545-3374 or 545-2470.

Commanding general to host excellence appreciation breakfast



Post Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White will recognize military and civilian employees for superior job accomplishments at a quality awards breakfast at 8 a.m. Sept. 1 in the Supper Club at the Fort Benning Officers' Club.



The Training and Doctrine Command Communities of Excellence Team will be special guests.

Make plans now for life after the military

Here's a timetable for those getting out

Army Career and Alumni Program

Most people leaving the military find themselves at a disadvantage when they start looking for a job, according to Ted Craig, Fort Benning's Army Career and Alumni Program transition services manager.

They have never had to submit resumes, sit through job interviews or decide what type of work they want to do, he said. They haven't thought about where they want to live or worried about a work wardrobe.

"It's important to think far ahead," Craig said. "We offer career guidance to people. It's never too early to begin thinking about what you may want to do after the military. We help people based on their individual needs."

ACAP offers:

• A three-day workshop within 180 days of separation that helps military members prepare for transition.

• A one-day "advanced course" dealing with resume writing and interview skills.

• The Defense Outplacement Referral System process that provides a free service to match a person's abilities to civilian employment positions and sends a mini-resume to a data base used by hundreds of employers throughout the world.

• Career Day provides an opportunity for employers to meet, brief and interview soldiers.

• The Educational Opportunity Program makes it possible for a person to get help and information about tuition assistance, enrollment procedures or data on any college or university.

• Referrals for separation benefits to include Special Separation Benefits, Voluntary Separation Incentive and retirement.

12 months before leaving:

• Talk with local transition center personnel.

• Visit the Retirement Services Office if you are retiring.

• Discuss with your family, possible options, setting goals for the job and location search.

• Decide where you want to live after leaving the military.

• Decide what types of jobs you qualify for and the income you will need.

• Start subscriptions or check the local library for professional or trade journals.

• Make sure you have or can acquire any necessary license you need for your chosen profession.

• Check your financial status and make plans to have enough money to cover several months of expenses if you don't find a job immediately.

• Research job possibilities, job markets and the economic conditions in the area you want.

9 months before leaving:

• Decide what type of work you are going to look for.

• Do first drafts of your resume.

• If possible, visit the area where you plan to move after leaving the military; if you can't visit, write the local chamber of commerce for information.

• For job and real estate information, subscribe to weekend newspapers from the area where you plan to move.

• Continue research.

• Keep in touch with the local transition point.

6 months before leaving:

• Attend an ACAP transition class whether retiring or getting out of the Army.

• Finalize your resume; decide if you need help in developing the best possible resume and if you need to hire a professional resume writer.

• Develop a list of employers in the field in which you are interested; also, determine any friends you might have in the private sector who may be able to help you.

• Contact an executive recruiter for assistance if you qualify and are looking for a job in this category.

• Begin developing a contingency plan for job and location in case your plan falls through.

3 months before leaving:

• Send out resumes and begin making telephone calls to check on their arrival.

• Begin replying to want ads in newspapers and magazines.

• Visit the state employment agency where you plan to live.

• After each job interview, evaluate your performance and decide what you did right and what you need to improve.

• Keep in touch with your local transition office.

For more information, call 545-4892 or 545-4902 or drop by the office in Building 2617 (upstairs), in Soldiers' Plaza.

Free counseling available for military family members

Army Career and Alumni Program

All family members of personnel leaving the service — military or civilian (including retirees) — are eligible for more than $1,000 of free counseling and training to improve their personal image and job search skills.

The Army Career and Alumni Program is a program to help make the transition from the daily military lifestyle to the civilian alumni life.

Military spouses need to be within six months of leaving to begin that new career or, maybe just to relax for some time. If your spouse has already transitioned, ACAP still offers the service 60 days after separation.

ACAP provides a personal transition services specialist at the Transition Assistance Office to answer questions including transportation home, how finances are handled, VA benefits, when spouses start receiving retirement pay and when must families clear post and how?

ACAP customers get written information and referrals, so they do not even have to take notes.

A transition services specialist will also provide customers with a referral to obtain training to improve or polish their job search skills.

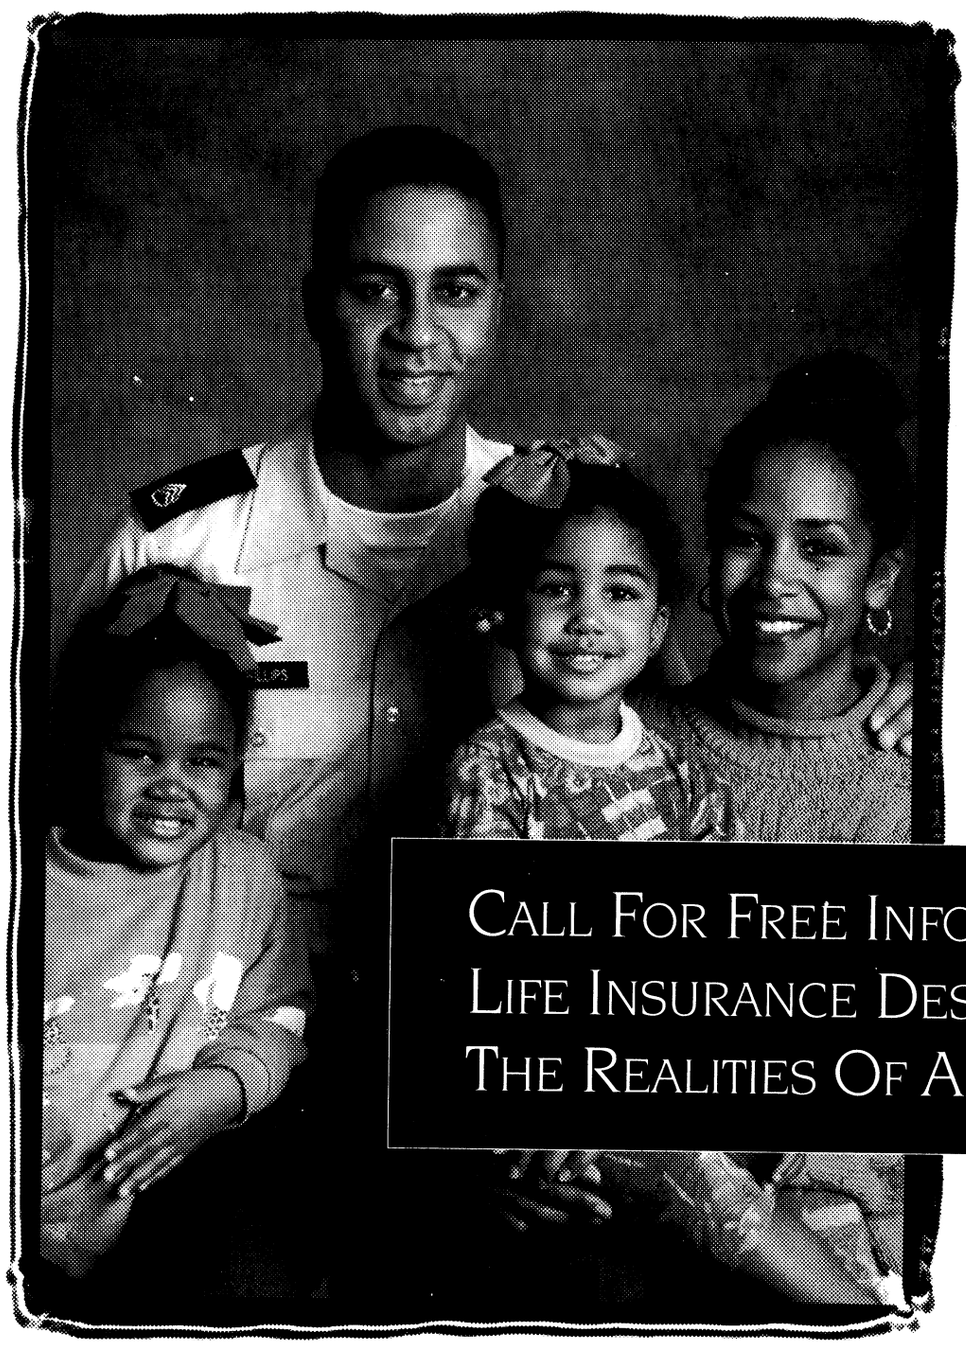
The Georgia Department of Labor provides a training course every Tuesday and Wednesday — "The Basic Job Search Skills Training Course" — that provides the foundation for all other training to follow. The next step is the "advanced" course taught at the Job Assistance Center as a one-day workshop every Thursday.

The transition services specialist will guide each person through the process to meet the needs of the individual.

In order for each person to maximize services, the first stop should be the Transition Assistance Office, Building 2617.

The Job Assistance Center will provide additional one-on-one job search counseling.

All of these services are available to soldiers, their spouses and children if they are of working age.



ACAP is a whole family program, and customers do not have to be accompanied by their sponsors.

For information or to make an appointment visit the Army Career and Alumni Program office in Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2617, or call 545-4892 or 545-4902.

Veterans' supermarket Wednesday in Columbus

Ga. Department of Veterans Services

A special supermarket of veterans' benefits will be Wednesday at the National Guard Armory in Columbus from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"The focus of the supermarket will be on jobs and assisting individuals who recently left the military," said Pete Wheeler, commissioner of Veterans Affairs.

In addition to representatives from the Department of Veterans Service, the Georgia Department of Labor, Small Business Administration, U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and Georgia National Guard will have representatives present to answer questions and assist individuals in filing claims for veterans' benefits.

The Georgia Department of Labor and the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs representatives will be able to inform veterans about the Service Members Occupational Conversion and Training Act.

"This is a new program designed to help veterans whose military skills do not readily transfer to civilian jobs," Wheeler said.

Jointly implemented by the departments of Defense, Labor and Veterans Affairs, the program will pay wage reimbursements up to $10,000 to employers who establish approved training and offer prospects of long-term employment.

VA Q & A

Department of Veterans Affairs

Q: Does VA offer mortgage insurance for VA home loans?

A: The only mortgage insurance offered by VA is Veterans' Mortgage Life Insurance.

VMLI coverage is available to those disabled veterans who have received grants for the purchase of specially adapted housing or to certain severely disabled veterans who are entitled to compensation for service-connected permanent and total disability.

Q: What is the current interest rate on VA-guaranteed home loans?

A: With the signing of new legislation Oct. 28, The Department of Veterans Affairs will not be setting the interest rate on VA loans.

The Veterans Home Loan Program Amendments of 1992 authorized VA to permit veterans to negotiate interest rates on VA-guaranteed home loans with lenders.

Veterans can also negotiate the number of points the lender charges for making the loan. The program will be in effect through Dec. 31, 1995.

This new law also authorized a three-year program for VA-guaranteed adjustable-rate mortgages, which will be similar to FHA adjustable-rate mortgages, with the interest rate index corresponding to the specified national interest rate index.

The rate may be adjusted annually (limited to 1 percent), with adjustments to the loan rate limited to a 5-percent increase for the life of the loan. Adjustable-rate mortgages may be used to refinance existing loans.

Q: What is the funding fee for interest rate reduction refinancing loans?

A: Legislation signed into law Oct. 28 reduced the funding fee from 1.25 percent to .5 percent.

Q: Is a general discharge a bar to receiving Chapter 30 (Montgomery GI Bill) education benefits?

A: Yes. The law requires that to be eligible for educational assistance under the Montgomery GI Bill (active duty), also known as Chapter 30, a veteran must have received an honorable discharge. No other type of discharge is acceptable.

Q: I have a private pilot's license. I am a veteran and desire to obtain flight training. What is the reimbursement for flight training?

A: The Department of Veterans Affairs reimburses 60 percent of the cost of the course.

Q: I am entitled to benefits under the Montgomery GI Bill. I want to take some courses at a community college to help me decide if I want to return to school full time. Will the GI Bill pay for those courses?

A: No. You must be pursuing an educational, professional or vocational objective.

Q: My spouse and I are veterans and plan to take advantage of the education assistance benefits available to us under the Montgomery GI Bill-Active Duty to get college degrees. May we claim each other as dependents?

A: Only those veterans who had remaining entitlement under the Vietnam Era GI Bill on Dec. 31, 1989 may receive additional educational assistance under the Montgomery GI Bill-Active Duty. If this applies to both you and your spouse, be sure a certified copy of your marriage license is in each of your VA files.

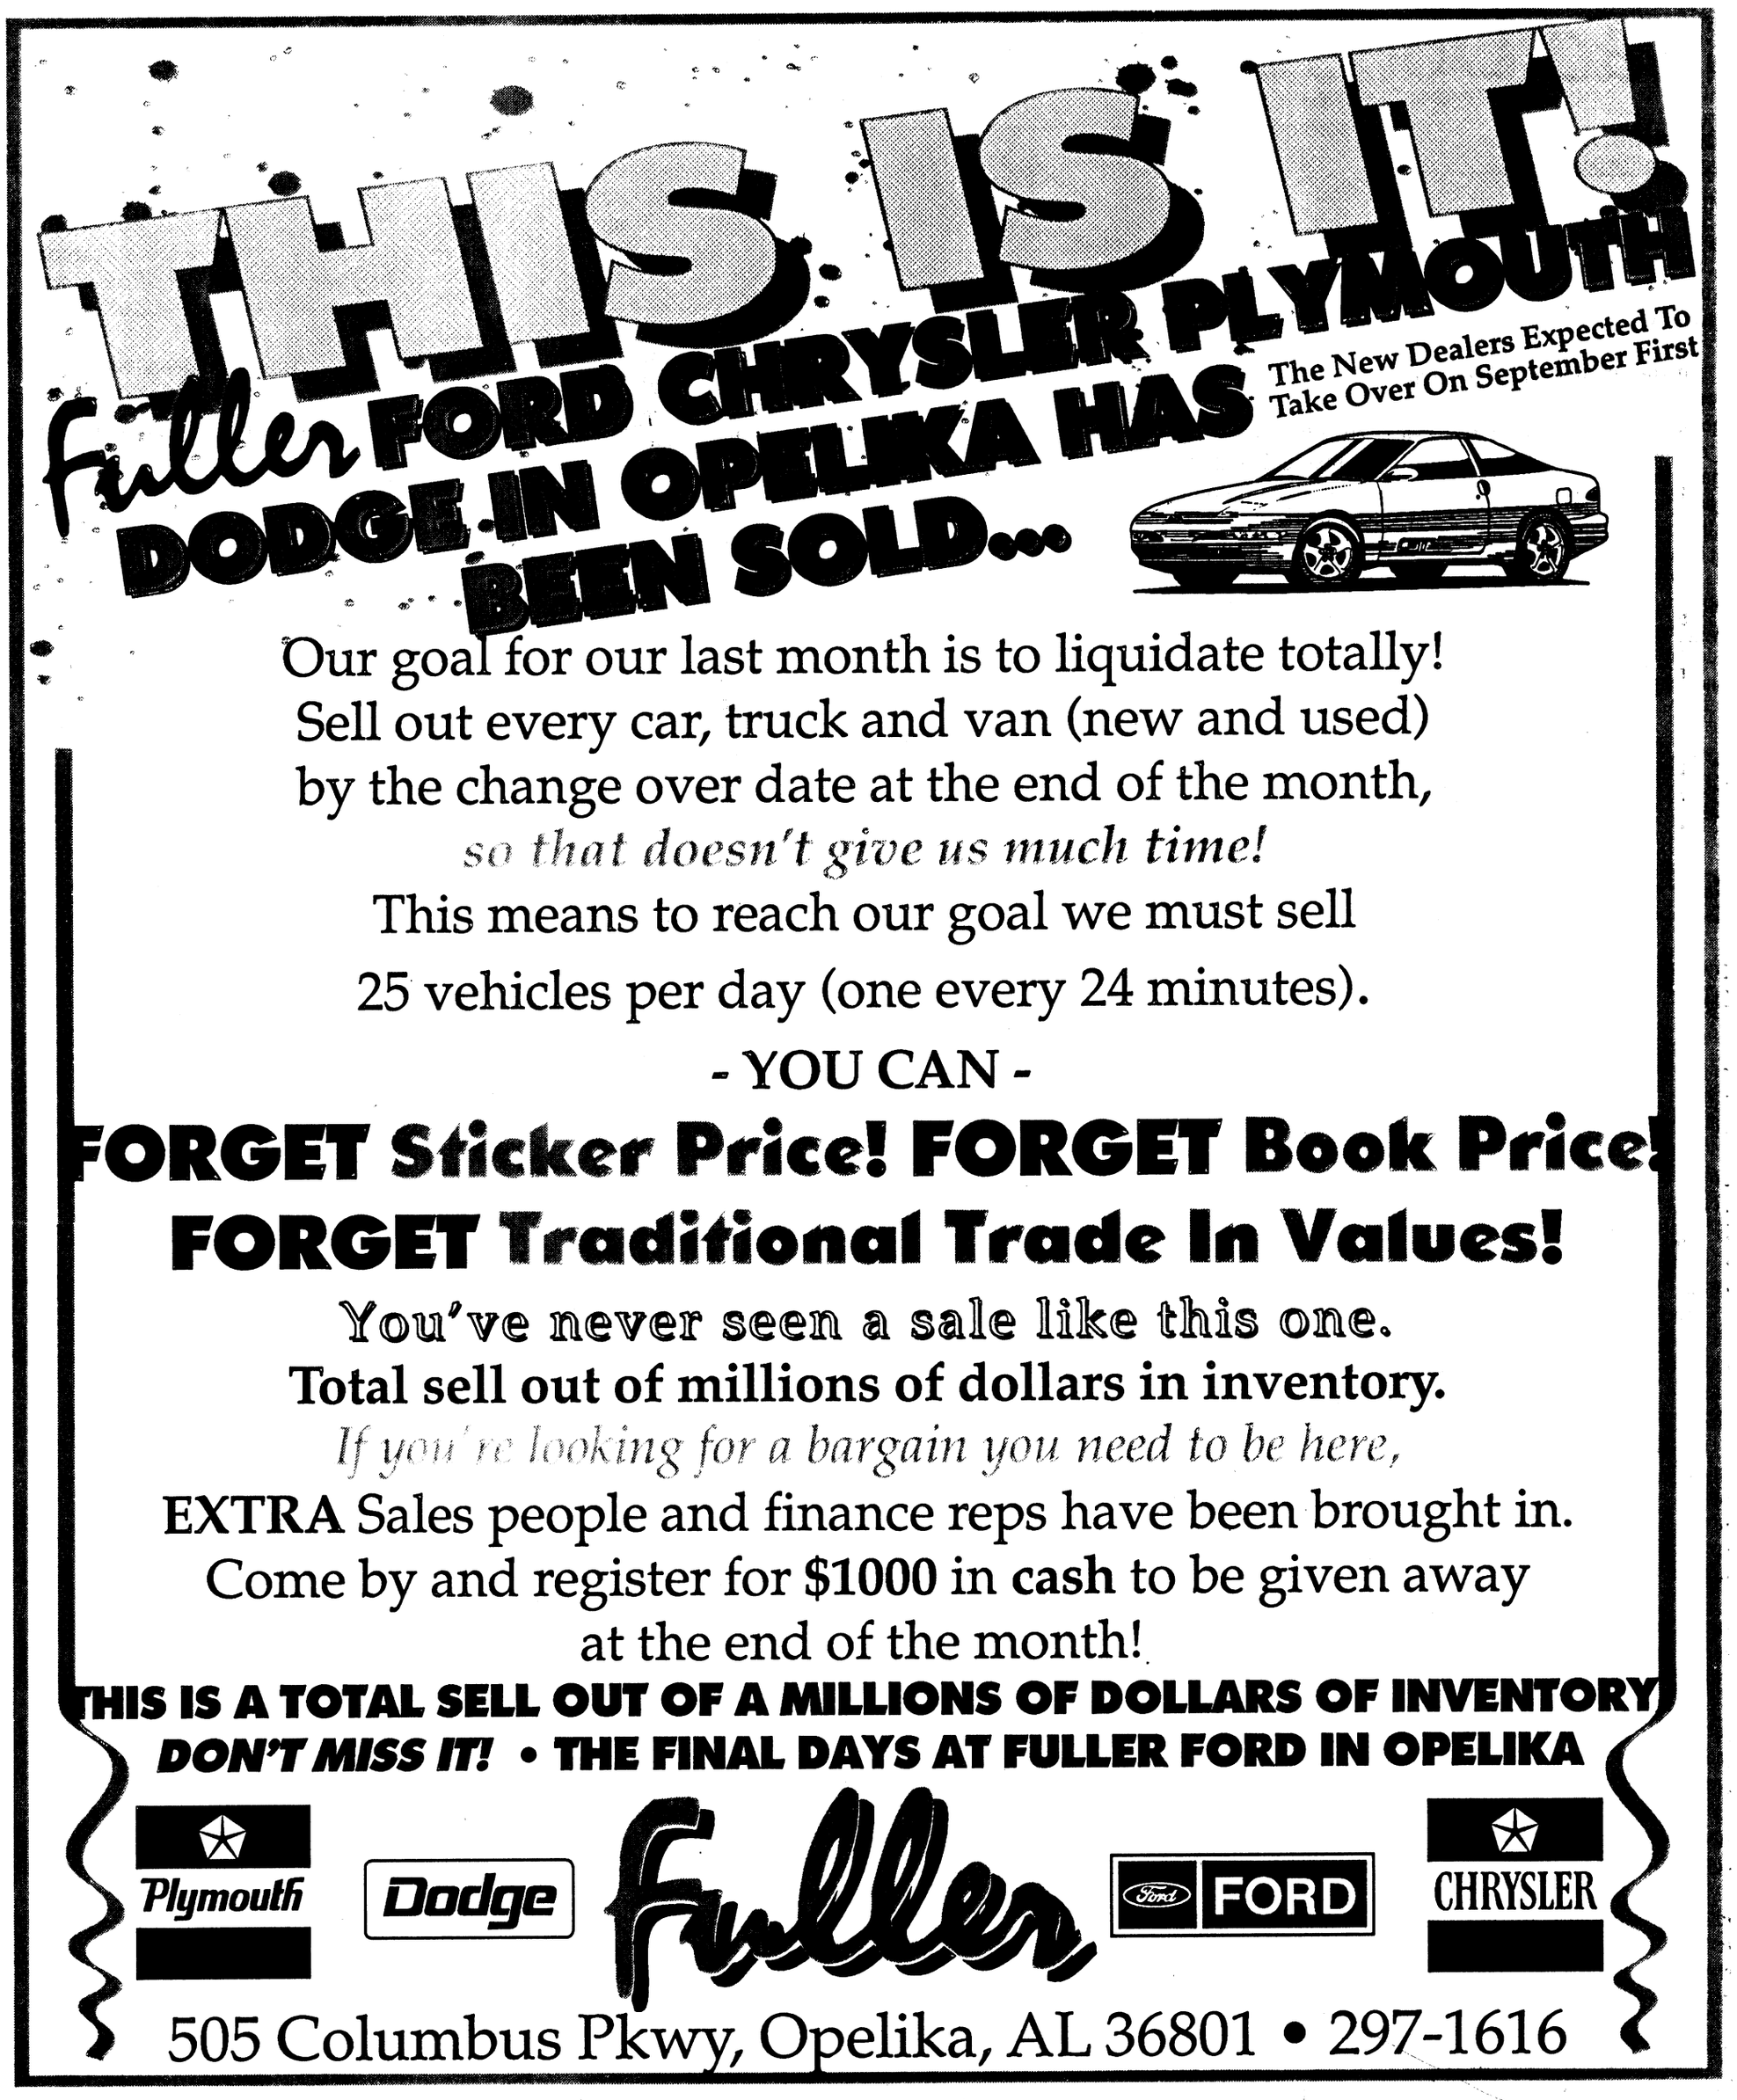
Post plans to break ground for new guest house

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

A ground-breaking ceremony to officially recognize the start of construction for Fort Benning's new guest house will take place Aug. 23.

The ceremony will be from 9 to 10 a.m. on Ingersoll Street behind the Defense Printing Service, Building 130.

The 31,856 square-foot house will include 60 units and will cost approximately $2.7 million.



The two-story facility will provide 29 guest suites for 174 persons, three suites designed for handicapped guests and accomodating 12 people, and 28 single rooms that will hold a total of 112 guests. Units will include self-contained kitchens.

Ray Wagner, chief of the Billeting Branch under the Directorate of Public Works, will discuss the construction of the guest house and will officially break the ground with Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White at the ceremony.

The new guest house is an addition to three guest houses already on Fort Benning at Richardson Circle.

The permanent-party soldier strength is so heavy, Wagner said, that additional guest houses are needed for family members.

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Band will perform during the ceremony, and refreshments will be available. Planned completion date for the guest house is November 1994.

Marksmen unit to host BIATHLON

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The 1993 Summer Biathlon competition will take place Sept. 26 on Fort Benning's English Range and Olive Field.

The U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit and the Directorate of Community Activities will host the two-event competition, which consists of running a total five kilometers and shooting at 10 targets — five targets from the prone firing position and five from a standing position.

Preregistration for the competition will be Sept. 1 through 24 at the Outdoor Recreation Center on Gillespie Street. The preregistration fee is $12.

A fee of $16 will be charged to entrants who register on Sept. 25 at the site of the competition.

All competitors must attend a shooting safety class on English Range at 1 p.m. Sept. 25 or at 8 a.m. on the day of the competition.

The Summer Biathlon began as summer training for the regular biathlon (an event consisting of skiing and shooting) athletes. Since its growth in popularity, it has now become a sport.

For more information on the event, contact James Brown, Physical Activities Branch director, at 545-7978, or James Graham, Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club, at 689-3371.

Mad Dogs bite Otto's Boys, 14-13

By Terry K. Ray

The U.S. Army Infantry Center softball tournament has reached the semi-final stage, with one team already qualified for the championship game.

The U.S. Army Medical Department Activity's Mad Dogs fought their way back from a 12-6 deficit against Otto's Boys of Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion, to capture a spot in the championship game with a 14-13, nine-inning victory Monday night at Gowdy Field.

Down by four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning, the Mad Dogs clawed, scratched and scored four runs to tie the game and send it to extra innings.

"It wasn't pretty, but it's a win and we'll take it."

— Jeff Newman
Mad Dog third baseman

In the top of the ninth inning, Otto's Boys put a run on the board to take a 13-12 lead when left fielder Luis Soto doubled to left center field to score teammate Purdie Burkes from second. The lead would not last for long.

In the bottom half of the ninth, the Dogs put runners on the corners with only one out. First baseman Ralph Salazar promptly ended the game with a solid single to right field to score both runners and propel the Mad Dogs into the finals.

"It wasn't pretty, but it's a win and we'll take it," said Mad Dog third baseman Jeff Newman.

In four other games played Monday night at Essebagger Field on Kelley Hill, Headquarters Service Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion, eliminated 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 17-16, then were eliminated themselves by 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 6-5.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, eliminated 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, 10-6, then eliminated the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit 16-10.

Tuesday night, the final spot was battled for with two games being played at Gowdy Field.

HHC, 1st Bn. (Abn.), 507th Infantry, 11th Inf. Regt., defeated 2nd Bn., 29th Inf. Regt., 14-3.

Co. A., 43rd Eng. Bn., eliminated HHC, 1st Bn. (Abn), 507th Inf., 11th Inf. Regt., 11-10 to claim the final berth in the championship game and a rematch against MEDDAC.

Cannibals digest Stars

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Columbus Stars' record dropped to 2-2, after the Atlanta Cannibals came to town and feasted upon the Stars 26-0, at Memorial Stadium Saturday night.

The Stars had hoped to improve to 3-1 with their third straight win, but the Cannibals were not in an obliging mood. Cannibal quarterback Horace Lockett threw two touchdown passes, one a 40-yard bomb to wide receiver Wesley Middlebrook late in the second quarter and a short strike to wide receiver Terrance Williams early in the fourth quarter.

Cannibal running back Robert Lamar opened the scoring with a nine-yard run around left end for the Cannibals first score of the game, capping a 59-yard drive early in the first quarter.

Cannibal free safety Derrick Heard finished off the scoring when he picked off Columbus Stars quarterback Donald Stroy at the Cannibal 12-yard line and raced down the left sideline for an 88-yard interception return and touchdown.

"We were flat," said head coach Tom Staton. "We have a better ball team than the one that played tonight. We played a good team in the Cannibals, but I thought we had a chance to beat these guys.

"We were unable to get any momentum going whatsoever. When we got close to the end zone something would happen to kill the drive."

That something proved to be turnovers. The Stars offense gave the ball away four times. Three fumbles and one interception canceled any chance the Stars had of scoring. The Stars were also outgained in total yardage — 243 for the Cannibals to 112 for the Stars.

Linebacker Terrance Perry of the Stars was a bright spot for the Stars on defense. Perry had nine tackles and two assists to lead the crunch bunch.

The Stars will try to improve their record to 3-2 when the Forrest Park Vikings come to town Saturday at Memorial Stadium. Kickoff is at 8 p.m.

Benning prepares for 1993-1994 hunting season

Bow hunting tests skills, discipline

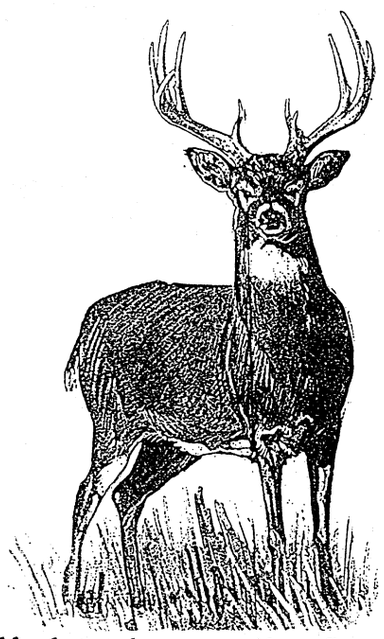
By Kevin Lee McIver
Public Affairs Office

Bow hunting for whitetail deer takes you to the edge and tests your hunting skills to the max. It requires far more shooting practice than gun hunting; and, overall, it takes a lot of discipline.

There's something about using only a bow and arrow to take your game. Perhaps there's something nostalgic, reminiscent of our native forefathers. Maybe it's the fact that you only have one shot and you have to make it count. Either way, many hunters find it to be the most challenging method of hunting.

The best way to describe this is by relating a typical day's hunt from last season. As with most hunts, the day began with wake-up at 4:30 a.m. After taking half an hour to load my gear in the truck, I headed out for the Georgia side of Fort Benning.

Arriving about 5:30 a.m., I quietly checked the area to ensure my stand was still intact and that no other hunter was "home-steading." After returning to the truck, I unpacked my bow, attached my broadheads, sprayed on plenty of bug spray, collected the rest of my gear and had one more cup of coffee.



At 6 a.m., I moved to my stand. After placing out some orange-tape distance markers and some covering scent (acorn and doe-in-heat) around my stand, I climbed aboard.

After fidgeting for another 15 minutes, I finally settled in. Then the waiting began. Although I knew that my deer "should" be moving through the area at around 7:15 a.m., one can never be certain.

At 6:30 a.m. the sun crested the horizon and the squirrels started to rustle in the tree tops. The waiting continued.

I began scanning the area with my binoculars, looking for any sign of movement. The rustling of a leaf, a bending of a branch, or movement in the shadows — anything that would give me advanced warning.

At 6:50 a.m., I spotted some movement about 100 yards out. Shortly thereafter, I heard what sounded like a herd of buffalos moving through the woods. Man, the blood started to pump. About five minutes later, unfortunately, a flock of turkeys crossed to front. The waiting continued.

At 7 a.m., I rechecked everything. Arrow nocked — check; release strap tight — check; broadhead tight — check; sight pins clear — check; orange distance markers visible — check. Come on out you big buck. The adrenaline was maxed-out.

At 7:15 a.m., I looked to my right, no buck, but a good-sized doe about 25 yards out. My hunter's mind quickly analyzed the situation. How did she get there undetected? How long had she been there? Was the wind blowing and in which direction? Should I use the 20- or 30-yard sight pin? Could I turn 90 degrees and take the shot without spooking her?

Taking about a minute to make the turn, I got pointed in her direction. She raised her head, cocking an ear. Did I make a sound? No, or she would have bolted. She dropped her head to munch another acorn. I raised my bow. She raised her head again — she

Natural Resources Management Branch

U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-2, the installation's hunting and fishing regulation, outlines information about the 1993-1994 hunting seasons and bag limits for Fort Benning.

Opening dates begin 30 minutes before sunrise and closing dates end 30 minutes after sundown on date specified, except as indicated or migratory birds.

Persons born on or after Jan. 1, 1961, desiring to hunt in Georgia or on Fort Benning must complete a state hunting safety course.

The next course will be conducted Sept. 7 in classroom 2, Infantry Hall from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Only seasons and bag limits are listed. The regulation must be referred to for more complete information.

For more information, call Robert L. King Jr., Wildlife biologist, Natural Resources Management Branch, 544-6206.

BOW: Hunting requires skill

knew something was amiss. She moved closer a couple of feet, but a tree was blocking my shot. I waited.

Now about 20 yards out, she caught wind of the covering scent. Nose in the air, she could smell another deer, and looked around the area, but couldn't spot one. After about two minutes, she dropped her head again to graze. I drew back and she instantly snapped her head up.

I hesitated for a second because something just didn't feel right. About two seconds later, a fawn stepped out of the brush and moved to her right. Even though it didn't have any spots on its coat, I'm sure it was her offspring. Anyway, some hunters may have taken the shot, but not this one.

A few minutes later, both deer had disappeared back into the thick underbrush. It was their lucky day; and, since there would be more opportunities to bag a deer later on, I could afford to be selective.

Anyway, you can see the difference between gun and bow hunting. First, bow hunting is up close and "personal." No 150-yard shots here — 20 to 30 yards is the norm.

Second, it requires everything to be perfect or you won't even get close enough for a shot. Wind direction, cover scent, clearing branches that could deflect an arrow, distance markers, camouflage, cable silencer and more.

Third, you can't just pick up a bow and go hunting. You have to spend countless hours at the range until you can hit a target about the size of a coffee can lid at 30 yards. If you don't, you'll either miss the deer completely, or you'll end up tracking a wounded deer for a long way.

Now's the time to get out there and start practicing. Don't wait until opening day to dust the cobwebs off your bow. And if you haven't bow hunted before, you still have time to buy your equipment and get in a month of target practicing.

Fort Benning offers some great hunting areas and has an excellent archery range that includes a walk-through course. Remember, you still have time remaining to get in gear and opening day is Sept. 18. Bow hunting isn't easy, but that's what makes it challenging. Good luck and see you in the woods.

Post checks deer herd

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Fort Benning Department of Natural Resources conducted a deer herd health check this week. Fifteen deer were taken from the Georgia and Alabama side of the reservation and checked for various bacteria and parasites.

The Southeastern Cooperative Wildlife Disease study was conducted by the College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Georgia under the supervision of professor Randy Davidson.

"The study of the deer herd on Fort Benning will take us a couple of weeks of lab work to determine whether the environment can sustain the herd on Fort Benning," Davidson said. "It will also give us an understanding of the overall health of the deer population on Fort Benning."

The check is a follow up to see if the raise in bag limit from three to five does in Georgia has helped the overall health of the deer herd, according to Fort Benning wildlife biologist Tom Brooks.

The last herd health check was conducted in 1990 by Davidson and his staff. According to Brooks, this is the first check that has been done on the Alabama side of the reservation.

Entomologist Jack Chandler Jr. of the U.S. Army Environmental Hygiene Activity at Fort McPherson, Ga., was also in attendance to collect blood samples and ticks for study of Lyme disease.

Night match draws shooters

By Terry K. Ray

The Rifle and Pistol Club's second night tactical pistol match Saturday drew 65 shooters to English Range.

In the competitor class, Jim Kotto walked away from the field firing a 282 for first place. Richard Hopp hit a 172 for second and James Diehl placed third with a score of 160.

In standard class action, Lawrence Cox of Company B, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, fired a round of 241 for first. Trey Carmack came in second with a score of 210 and Greg Long rang up a third-place finish with a final score of 206.

In the female class, Dawn Broneske shot a score of 171 for a first-place win. Darleda Cox came in second with a score of 126, and Wanda Rodriguez finished third with a final score of 80.

Benjamin Tibbs, a patrolman with the Marrietta Police Department, captured the High Law Enforcement trophy with a score of 155. Staff Sgt. David Bonanno of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit captured the High Military Trophy with his score of 197.

Jason Olson, a 14-year-old, won the High Service Revolver with a final score of 196.

The Fort Benning Rape Crisis program will receive the proceeds from this match.

The next match will be a tactical rifle match Sept. 25 at English Range. Entry fee for this match will be $11 if paid by Sept. 19, and $14 after that date. For more information, contact the Rifle and Pistol Club at 689-3371.

Religious Education Center accepting Loyola applications

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The Religious Education Center is accepting applications for the Loyola master's program.

This program offers a master's degree in either religious education or pastoral studies and will be conducted at Fort Benning.

The program consists of 10 courses, three semester hours each. These courses are made up of 10 class sessions of three hours each, as well as homework assignments.

Classes will meet once each week.

The program is sponsored at the Department of the Army level by the chief of chaplains and will be offered on many Army posts throughout the United States and overseas.

This will enable a student to begin the program here; and, if he or she will be transferred to another post prior to completing the program, the student can join the program at the new post.

The graduate program has been approved for DANTES and Veterans Administration.

For more information or registration, call 545-2366 or leave a message at one of the following numbers: 545-5508 or 545-2288.

Unity

Denominations should work together

USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

Throughout the New Testament, the Bible uses different metaphors to address the subject of Christian unity and speaks of the interdependence Christians should have among ourselves.

In the 15th chapter of the Gospel of St. John, Jesus speaks of himself as the "true vine." In this metaphor, his disciples are referred to as branches that cannot live apart from the vine.

During this week, when emphasis is placed upon Christian unity, the theme of this metaphor will be relevant in understanding the significance of Christlan unity, which should exist among those who comprise the church of Jesus; since all believers in Christ Jesus, belong together as do branches of the same vine. To understand this is to overcome the need to see any individual, who is a part of the family of God, as being more important than another.

In 1 Corinthians 12:12, the apostle Paul speaks of the church as the body of Christ. Here he speaks of the church as being Jesus in the world. As members of the body of Christ, each member has a vital part to play and each is of equal value. It is important to remember that this body of believers represent individuals instead of denominations, and in their diversity of function work harmoniously together in the unity of one body — the church.

In Ephesians 2:19, the Apostle Paul uses another metaphor and refers to the church as the household of God. Christians, who are the members of the household of God, are built upon the foundation of prophets and apostles, with Jesus as the chief corner stone.

Once again the emphasis is on unity. The whole structure is joined together in Christ. You may be asking, with so much talk of unity among Christians, "Why are there so many denominations in Christendom?" An adequate answer to this question would require a lot more space than is allotted for this brief article.

Though theological and sociological difficulties are real, there does exist between churches today, a mutual tolerance and willingness to explore the possibilities of coming together. Various churches unite both for worship and for the purpose of social ameliorations. A church united would be a dynamic instrument of mission to bring others to Christ, which is why Jesus prayed that his disciples may be one, as he and the Father are one. I think Charles Wesley stated it well when he said

"He bids us build each other up; and, gather into one,
To our high calling's glorious hope
We hand in hand go on."

This hope for unity, though not yet realized, is an ecumenical approach, which requires an obedience of the church to the leading of the Holy Spirit.

Chaplain assistant leads the way

BY Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Staff Sgt. Elden Woodland, the first ranger-qualified chaplain assistant at Fort Benning, graduated from Ranger School Aug. 13 at Malvesti Field.

Woodland said he learned all the basic skills to survive while in the course. He said thought about quitting everyday but Chaplain (Maj.) John Hash and Sgt. Charles Ferrell of 4th Ranger Training Battalion kept his morale up.

Woodland, a native of the District of Columbia, enlisted in the Army in February 1984. He has served at Fort Bragg and Germany where he has won boxing championships for several years.

He is assigned to the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, where he serves with Chaplain (Capt.) David Moran providing spiritual leadership for the battalion.

Church offers conversion program

By Jacqueline Feagin
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Are you thinking about becoming a Catholic Christian?

Are there some questions about the Catholic church that you want answered?

The Catholic parish at Fort Benning extends an invitation to all who are willing to follow in their faith.

The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults will be offered by the Religious Education Center in Building 2522 Sept. 8 at 7 p.m. All interested adults are encouraged to sign up in advance.

The rite is a process of gradual conversion into the Catholic faith. One will not only be seeking membership into the church but also into the parish.

Through the program, one will learn direction, have questions about the church and its teachings answered and learn about spiritual life and relationship with God.

Those participating will not become an expert of the Catholic religion or be forced to convert to Catholicism; it is simply a time to begin resolving some questions about the faith.

For more information on the program or any other Catholic programs, contact Phil Reilly at 545-5508.

CRIME WATCH

Military Police Activity

The following entries were taken from the Fort Benning Military Police blotters from July 28 to Aug. 3. Such entries may be incomplete and are not the determination of the guilt or innocence of any person.

This week's hot topic concerns the responsibility of owners to secure their property when it's not in use. Lawn mowers and bicycles are popular items for thieves because many owners fail to secure them. In many instance, larcenies occur simply because the opportunity presents itself. You may not have an affect on an individual's desire to commit a larceny, but you can affect their opportunity. Make it as difficult as possible for someone to steal your property.

• A captain reported that persons unknown removed a locked box containing $3,309 in travelers checks, money orders and cash, from an unsecured desk in the company area.

• A civilian employee reported that persons unknown entered a gymnasium through an unsecured window, pried the lock off an office door and removed approximately 45 sodas and candy bars.

• A family member was charged with leaving her children unattended after she left her 1-, 2-, and 3-year old children alone in their quarters.

• A specialist was charged with indecent exposure and a civilian was charged with public indecency after they urinated in public.

• A staff sergeant was charged by civil authorities with burglary and aggravated assault after breaking into a house and threatening the occupant with a knife.

• A sergeant reported that persons unknown removed an unsecured portable compact disc player from the charge of quarters desk.

• A private was charged by civil authorities with driving under the influence of alcohol and striking a fixed object, after he struck a guard rail on I-185. Upon arrival of the police officer, the private was having difficulty attempting to change a flat tire, and the officer detected an odor of alcohol on his breath. He registered .14 on the intoximeter.

This week's booby prize is awarded to the private first class who stole a personal check from a specialist who used the same bank, forged the specialist's signature on the check, and negotiated it at a credit union in California for $700. The check was returned for insufficient funds, and the bank took the money from the private first class' account instead of the specialist's. The private first class was charged with larceny of private property and forgery.

TAKE A BITE OUT OF CRIME

ASK THE JUDGE

By Jonathan J. Hunt
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q: I purchased a used automobile last month and it broke down twice during the first week. I have spent more than $600 in repairs, and it still does not run well.

I tried to return the car to the dealer for my money back, but the dealer refused to accept the car or even to fix the problems because he says that they are not "covered." Can he do that?

A: The answer depends largely on your warranty, if any. An express warranty comes in two forms, written or spoken.

Most major purchases such as new automobiles and large appliances have express written warranties, but the law does not require it.

Since every warranty can be different from the next one, you must first shop around and compare the warranty of each individual product before making the purchase.

Never forget that if you purchase a product "as is," such as a used car, you may have very little if any protection if the product fails.

To protect yourself, ask these questions prior to buying the product:

• What parts and repairs are covered by the warranty?
• What costs are not covered by the warranty?
• How long will the warranty be in effect?
• What does the seller promise to do if the product does not work properly?
• What are my duties as the buyer?
• What are the restrictions on the warranty coverage?

Implied warranty

What can you do if your product fails? First, remember to read your written warranty. Are you covered? Determine from the warranty if the seller has the right to repair or replace the defective product, at his discretion.

Thus, most often you, the buyer, do not have an absolute and immediate right to a new item.

If you are covered, contact the seller and explain the problem. If no success, consider writing to the manufacturer.

Where you still get no satisfaction, try a local consumer protection group, such as the Better Business Bureau.

CID is looking for robbers

Criminal Investigation Division

Fort Benning's Criminal Investigation Division is cautioning motorists about remaining in parked cars for extended periods of time, especially when parked in remote, secluded or unlighted parking areas.

Since Aug. 1, there have been six reported robberies in the Columbus and Fort Benning area, in which at least two men, wearing black ski masks have robbed at gun point motorists who were sitting in parked cars, officials said.

The majority of attacks have occurred between midnight and 3 a.m. and seem to be concentrated in the area between St. Mary's Road and Victory Drive and within two miles east or west of I-185.

In the known incidents involving parked cars, the gunmen have approached the vehicle from the rear, reaching in through open windows and placing guns against the victims heads. The victims are instructed to exit the vehicle and then are robbed of any valuables they may be carrying.

The gunmen are described as, black males, dark complexion, between 5'6" and 5'8" tall, probably in their early 20s, and wearing dark colored knit ski masks and dark clothing.

In one incident, a female occupant of the vehicle was raped; and, in another, one of the gunmen attempted to shoot an occupant when she attempted to flee.

As a precaution, everyone is being warned against sitting in a parked car for an extended period of time.

Anyone who has any information that might help identify the individuals responsible for these robberies or any other crime can contact the Fort Benning Criminal Investigation Division Office at 545-2414 or 545-7907 or the Columbus Police Department Bureau of Investigation Division Office at 545-2414 or 545-7907 or the Columbus Police Department Bureau of Investigative Services at 596-7162.

Make plans for retirement

By Maureen Ranft
Prudential Securities

The earlier you retire, the longer the period of your retirement you will need to finance

It seems that early retirement is becoming the rule rather than the exception these days. Not only are many people choosing to retire before the traditional age of 65, but companies are seeking to reduce costs by offering employees attractive severance packages before they reach 65.

Regardless of the reasons, early retirement places a premium on sound advance financial planning. Among the many financial realities you must anticipate are:

• Without a full-time job, your current income likely will drop off sharply.

• Your company's pension and profit-sharing plan probably will pay you less on a monthly basis than you made while working full time.

• If you have an Individual Retirement Account, you can't make withdrawals until age 59 1/2 without incurring substantial penalties.

• The earlier you retire, the longer the period of your retirement you will need to finance, especially with people living longer and healthier lives more than ever before.

• If you accept an early retirement or severance package, you may receive a large lump sum that will need to be invested carefully over a long term.

The complexity of these and related retirement issues suggest that you start your planning process well in advance of your projected retirement date. As you will see, a candid look at your finances may suggest you rethink your retirement plans.

The key to retirement planning, as with any investing, is to set realistic objectives. Lifestyle questions, such as where and how you plan to live, are critical, as is your health and that of your spouse. Any long-term illness or special medical needs could place severe limitations on your retirement plans.

Next, make a thorough analysis of your present financial situation. Start with a review of your assets, which include your home, bank account balances, investment, pension and profit-sharing benefits and personal property — anything that could be converted

Go through the same process with your liabilities, which include any amounts that you owe, including mortgages, car loans, credit card balances. Deduct the liabilities from your assets to calculate your "nest egg" — the funds you can use to finance your retirement.

Here's where the planning process gets tricky. You must match the income and growth potential of your assets against your retirement objectives to see if you prudently will be able to afford your desired lifestyle. If not, you may need to make some trade-offs in your retirement choices or consider postponing your retirement for a few more years.

If you have ample assets, the next major issue is how you will invest them. Conventional wisdom has been to invest for income and minimize risk of principal in such fixed-income investments as bonds, treasury bills and certificates of deposit. However, this strategy ignores the effects of inflation. Even today's moderate inflation rate can have a devastating effect on the purchasing power of your investment income in 10 or 20 years.

There is no single investment strategy that is right for early retirement. An ideal portfolio will incorporate current income, growth of principal and tax advantages to help ensure that you do not outlive your assets — a real concern with early retirement.

This is a simplified look at early retirement planning. In reality, few individuals are in a position to accurately assess such variables as retirement costs, tax consequences, health costs and insurance, the impact of inflation and maximized yield from assets.

Therefore, it is always prudent to consult a qualified financial adviser early in the planning process. A professional not only can help you find solutions, he or she also can help you ask the right questions to help you enjoy the rest of your life.

2nd MASH trains for 'real'

Medical unit, hospital staff practice working in the field

By David Greer
36th Engineer Group

The 2nd Mobile Army Surgical Hospital conducted a "real" field training exercise Aug. 2 through Monday on the parade field in front of Martin Army Community Hospital.

It was "real" because for the first time soldiers of the 2nd MASH along with Martin Army Community Hospital medical staffers were practicing working in a field environment on 28 live patients.

According to Sgt. 1st Class Steven Ellis, senior wardmaster, this training came about as a result of lessons learned during Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

"One of the things we learned," Ellis said, "was that there was a great need for training between field components like 2nd MASH and medical professional fillers (doctors, nurses and other medical professionals assigned to the hospital on a regular bases but who deploy with the 2nd MASH when called on).

"We give soldiers quality care just like they would receive at Martin Army," said Ellis "but some of our equipment and procedures are different so we need to be familiar with working with each other."

The 2nd MASH conducted outpatient surgery ranging from podiatry cases to oral surgery. All patients were volunteers like Pfc. Anthony Rhodes, a medic with the 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, who came in to undergo oral surgery.

"I'm a medic," said Rhodes, "and I work in an aid station, so I know everything is going to be clean as it is going to be. I need the work and they need the training, so here I am."

For the 2nd MASH, this was a first. Prior exercises had consisted of mock mass casualties dressed out in 'mulage" (fake but realistic-looking wounds and injuries). Never had the 2nd MASH trained in a field enviroment actually treating patients with real medical problems.

According to 2nd MASH commander, Lt. Col. James H. Brooks Jr., this type of training will continue.

In November, the 2nd MASH, along with its Martin Army Community Hospital counterparts, will again set up on the parade field, but this time the medical professionals will perform general surgery that requires general anesthesia, he said.

The goal of the 2nd MASH is to have this type training exercise at least once a year in addition to other training, Brooks said.

Officials discuss Army's future

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Army personnel officials at the Pentagon have recently expressed concern that well publicized media accounts of military downsizing may lead many soldiers to question the viability of an Army career.

Despite being caught up in the steepest drawdown since the end of the Vietnam War, the Army's top personnel official predicts that promotion and schooling opportunities will be comparable to those of the past — "or in some cases, even better."

As the ranking manager of Army force levels, Lt. Gen. Thomas P. Carney seeks to eliminate the anxiety soldiers may experience in regard to the drawdown. He feels the best way to do this is by keeping them tuned to "fast, factual and focused" information as the restructuring process unfolds.

Carney acknowledges that "We're going through a period of turbulence that naturally causes some uncertainty among our soldiers," but added that, "The major reductions appear to be behind us.

"We are committed to maintaining a quality force," Carney said. "Personnel programs will continue to be focused on maintaining readiness, while caring for soldiers and families.

"As we downsize today and in the future, we must remember the Army remains a great institution in which to serve. Education, training, family programs and job satisfaction still figure high in our work to restructure the Army," Carney said.

Voluntary separation incentives and offers of early retirement will continue to be the primary means by which the Army will achieve it end-strength goals and are expected to continue through fiscal 1996.

Personnel officials offer the following by-rank look-ahead into the next two years based on the most current information, with some speculation regarding force structure and budget reductions that may occur within that period.

Colonels

• Selective Early Retirement Boards will continue if voluntary retirements remain at projected rates. Fiscal 1994 will be the last year in which colonels will have multiple SERB reviews (if a file is reviewed by the fiscal 1994 board, it will not be reviewed again). The fiscal 1995 board will review those colonels who complete two years in grade that year. Joint duty assignments will remain high priority for qualified officers.

• There is now a significant pay longevity increase for colonels with 24 years' service. Waivers to retire with two years in grade are still available.

Lieutenant colonels

• SERBs will be conducted throughout the drawdown period, with a significantly lower select rate — about 5-10 percent.

• Promotion rates to colonel have increased to 50 percent opportunity, and should remain stable at this level. "Pin-on" point to colonel will remain about 22 years, eight months.

• Selection for battalion-level command will remain competitive at historic rates. Senior Service College should not change from its present selection rate of about seven percent and will remain extremely competitive.

• As with colonel, waivers to retire with two years in grade are still available.

Majors

• The Army is replacing reduction-in-force procedures and the Voluntary Separation Incentive Program for field-grade officers by implementing the Early Retirement Program also known as the "15-year retirement."

• The Early Retirement Program will be used to size and shape the field-grade force. The first priority is to offer early retirement to senior majors in overage skills, and generally those non-selected for promotion. Early retirement will be used to properly size "promotion COHORTS" prior to consideration for lieutenant colonel.

• There are no plans to offer early retirement to critically short specialties. Promotion selection rate to lieutenant colonel will remain at about 70 percent.

• "Pin-on" point average to lieutenant colonel has decreased from 17 years, four months to 16 years, 10 months. It will decrease further to 16 years, six months.

• Competition for resident Command and General Staff College will remain keen. Completion of resident or non-resident CGSC remains necessary to be competitive for promotion. Resident selection rates will increase from 50 percent to 60 percent.

• More majors will be assigned joint duty and Reserve component positions in the future.

• Majors twice non-selected for promotion to lieutenant colonel will be selectively continued until retirement-eligible, but the period of continuation may be curtailed prior to 20 years' service. Early retirement will then be offered.

Captains

• A fiscal 1994 RIF board is scheduled for February. It will consider officers in year group 1985 for early separation. However, if enough Voluntary Separation Incentive and Special Separation Benefit applications are received, the board will be canceled. A similar board will be scheduled in fiscal 1995 to consider year groups 1986 and 1987.

• Promotion rate to major will remain at 80 percent opportunity throughout the drawdown period and beyond.

• "Pin-on" point average to major is averaging 11 years, 10 months. It should decline to about 11 years, five months, with an objective of reaching 11 years.

• The VSI/SSB will be offered to officers in the RIF zone and to those who are once non-selected for promotion to major. One-time non-selects with more than 15 years' service will be offered early retirement.

Lieutenants

• The Army will gain 3,700 active-duty lieutenants in fiscal 1993 and will probably continue that number throughout the remainder of the drawdown period.

• The Voluntary Early Release/Retirement Program will be offered. A pilot program in fiscal 1994 will be offered to a limited number of lieutenants with 2 to 3 years' active duty, provided they transition to Reserve component units for the remainder of their service obligation.

• The fiscal 1994 Captain, Army, Promotion/Lieutenant Retention Board is projected for October. The fiscal 1993 captain selection rate was 92 percent after retention losses were removed. This compares to 91 percent over the last five years and should remain in the 92-percent range during the remainder of the drawdown.

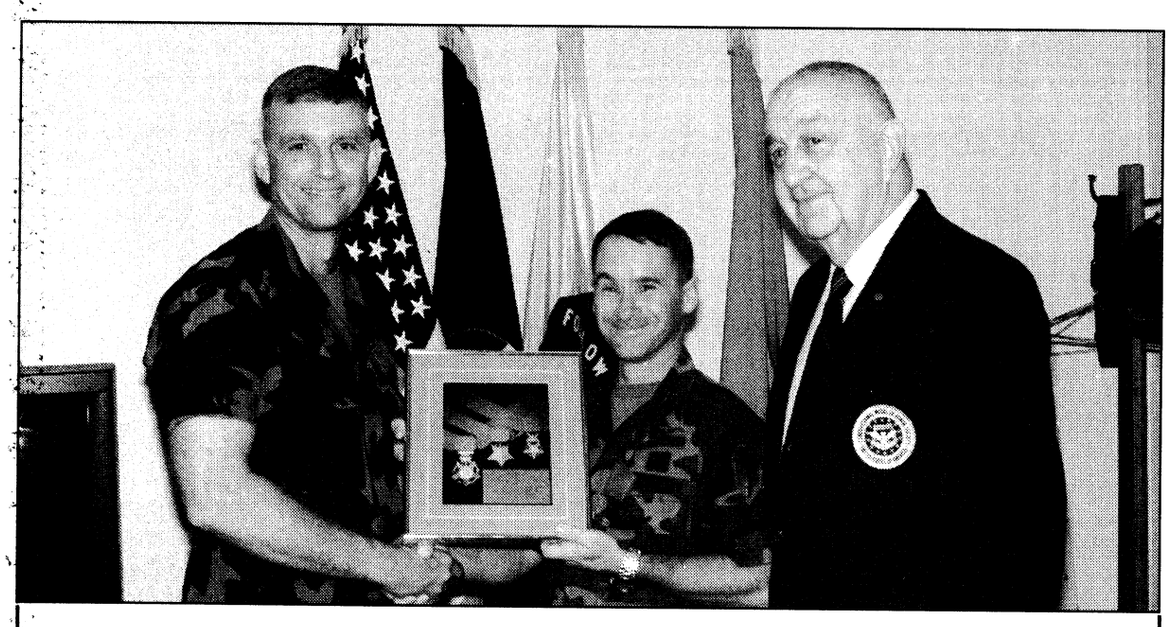
WORLD WAR II



50 years ago this week ...

• On the Eastern Front, the Soviets continued their offensive, advancing against German positions throughout the country. The Soviet surge forced the Germans to finally withdraw from Kharkov, conceding defeat only after mounting a stubborn defense there. The decision to abandon the position stemmed from German commander Field Marshal Erich von Manstein's realistic fears of reliving the horrific Stalingrad situation in which the German insistence on holding the line ultimately resulted in isolation and costly defeat. The Soviets immediately occupied Kharkov, before moving on to capture Zenkov and Akhtyrka.

• In Denmark, Danish resistance forces successfully incited numerous strikes in the country's shipyards, as well as creating general disorder as a result of several bomb incidents in Copenhagen.

• At Fort Benning, operators from the local long distance telephone pay station announced that "moms" received the most calls from the post's soldiers, with wives placing second and girlfriends a close third.

Student wins math award

U.S. Achievement Academy

A Fort Benning soldier's daughter has been named a U.S. national award winner in mathematics.

Crystal Karrmen Currin, daughter of Sgt. 1st Class Frederick and Cynthia Dupont of Columbus, will appear in the U.S. Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally. Dupont is assigned to Company A, 30th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception), Infantry Training Brigade.

Currin, who attends Columbus High School, was nominated for this national award by Patty Bovaird, an algebra teacher at the school.

Currin

This award is an honor few students attain. The academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history," said Dr. George Stevens, executive director of the U.S. Achievement Academy.

The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Helpers: Benning Boy Scouts recognize volunteers

Fort Benning District Boy Scouts

The Fort Benning District, Boy Scouts of America recently honored its volunteers for their work during 1992-1993.

Approximately 75 people gathered at the local Scout center for the annual banquet.

Retired Col. John Fuller of First Union Bank was the guest speaker. He spoke of the spirit of volunteerism in the Fort Benning community and of the importance of Scouting to today's youth.

The following volunteers received awards for their work with the Cub Scout program.

Order of the Spark Award — Johnny Hemingway, Eddie Baldwin, Hattie Sledge, Dana Pund, Kelly Conaway and James Conaway.

Eager Beaver Award — Benjamin Watts, Conrad King, Ann Justice, Lue Kendrick, William Kendrick and Lee Oliver.

Unit Committee Member of the Year — Marv Garza.

Den leader of the Year — Anna Pignato.

Cubmaster of the Year — Lisa Brady.

Cut Scouter of the Year — Julius Welch.

Order of the Spark — Herman Farley and Diane Ganey.

Eager Beaver Award — Oscar Valdez.

Unit Committee of the Year — Tina Bates.

Assistant Scoutmaster of the Year — Alan Blatterman.

Scoutmaster of the Year — Charles Ingram.

Boy Scout of the Year — Mary Schevey.

The Scouting Family of the Year was awarded to the family of Julius and Nancy Welch.

The district also honored those who did not work with a particular pack or troop but helped to perform the operations of the entire district for the good of each and every unit.

The Commissioners Spirit Award was given to Jeanette Stone. The District Committee Member of the Year was Tom Lytle.

Inge Wills, Charles Sweeney, Jeff Stone and Jeanette Stone were presented with the commanding general's Fort Benning commemorative coin for their work with the youth of the community. They contributed hundreds of hours of time to not only the Scouting program but to many other organizations in the community.

The "Follow Me" Award was presented to retired Col. Jim Jackson. This award is presented to the individual who best exemplifies the spirit of Scouting.

Jackson has been involved in Scouting for more than 35 years.

The highest award a district can bestow on a volunteer is the District Award of Merit. This award was presented to Nancy Welch and Debbi Lytle.

PET OF THE WEEK

This mixed-breed puppy is looking for a home. He is approximately 7 weeks old and is just one of many cats and dogs that can be adopted.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Animal control on post is a function of the Military Police Activity.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way Veterinary Services can contact the owner of a lost pet. Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records when changes occur.

There is no cost to register pets on post unless a rabies vaccination is required. If the vaccination is required, the pet owner must pay for the vaccination.

Women's handgun course teaches personal safety

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

The sound of breaking glass awakens her. She reaches for the telephone on her nightstand and dials 911, telling them there's an intruder in the house.

After giving her address, she puts the receiver down, careful not to hang up, and reaches for the small box containing a gun under her bed.

She punches in the combination, opens the box, and takes out the gun.

She quickly loads it and levels it at the door.

This was one scenario presented at a women's handgun safety course hosted by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club Saturday and Sunday.

The course, taught voluntarily by Forsyth County deputy sheriff and certified police academy instructor Donald R. Coleman and his wife, Sara, focused on personal protection and the safe operation and handling of handguns.

The decision to buy a handgun or other firearm is a personal one, according to the course text, "The Basics of Personal Protection," a National Rifle Association handbook, and should be made only after considering whether you have the will to use it in a life-threatening situation, whether any possible risk to your personal safety justifies that decision and how the use of a firearm for self-protection affects your family.

Some people buy handguns for self-protection hoping they will never have to use them, so they do not learn the operation and potential of their gun, according to the book.

Anyone who buys a handgun for personal protection needs to learn to handle it safely, according to the NRA.

Coleman began by covering the basics of home security, recommending the installation and use of peepholes, deadbolt locks and good lighting around houses and apartments to discourage criminals.

Never open the door to strangers, Coleman said. Employees of utility companies will carry identification, and they will wait while you verify their identity with the company.

If someone comes to the door with an emergency wanting to use the phone, he said, let them wait outside while you make the call for them.

When "out and about" Coleman said, be alert. Avoid walking alone at night, park in well-lighted areas and trust your instincts. If someone makes you nervous, avoid them or ask someone else to escort you to your car, he said.

Do not hesitate to call the police. Coleman said that, as a police officer, he'd rather respond to 1,000 false alarms than to one situation where he was too late to help.

Many people live with the idea that nothing bad will ever happen to them, so they are not prepared when something does, he said.

Having a defense plan, knowing exactly what you will do if someone breaks into your house for example, can keep you from becoming a victim, Coleman said.

Using a handgun for personal protection is the last line of defense, he said.

"If you have a handgun, you have to ask yourself if you can pull the trigger if necessary.

"It's a very personal decision — there are a lot of people who just can't or won't use lethal force — but it is a decision that has to be made long before you ever pick up a gun," he said.

Introducing a gun you are not willing or don't know how to use into a violent situation can often make it more dangerous, Coleman said, because you might find it turned against you.

With the decision to use a handgun for personal protection comes the responsibility of using and handling it safely, he said.

Special consideration must be given to keeping a gun with children in the home, Coleman said.

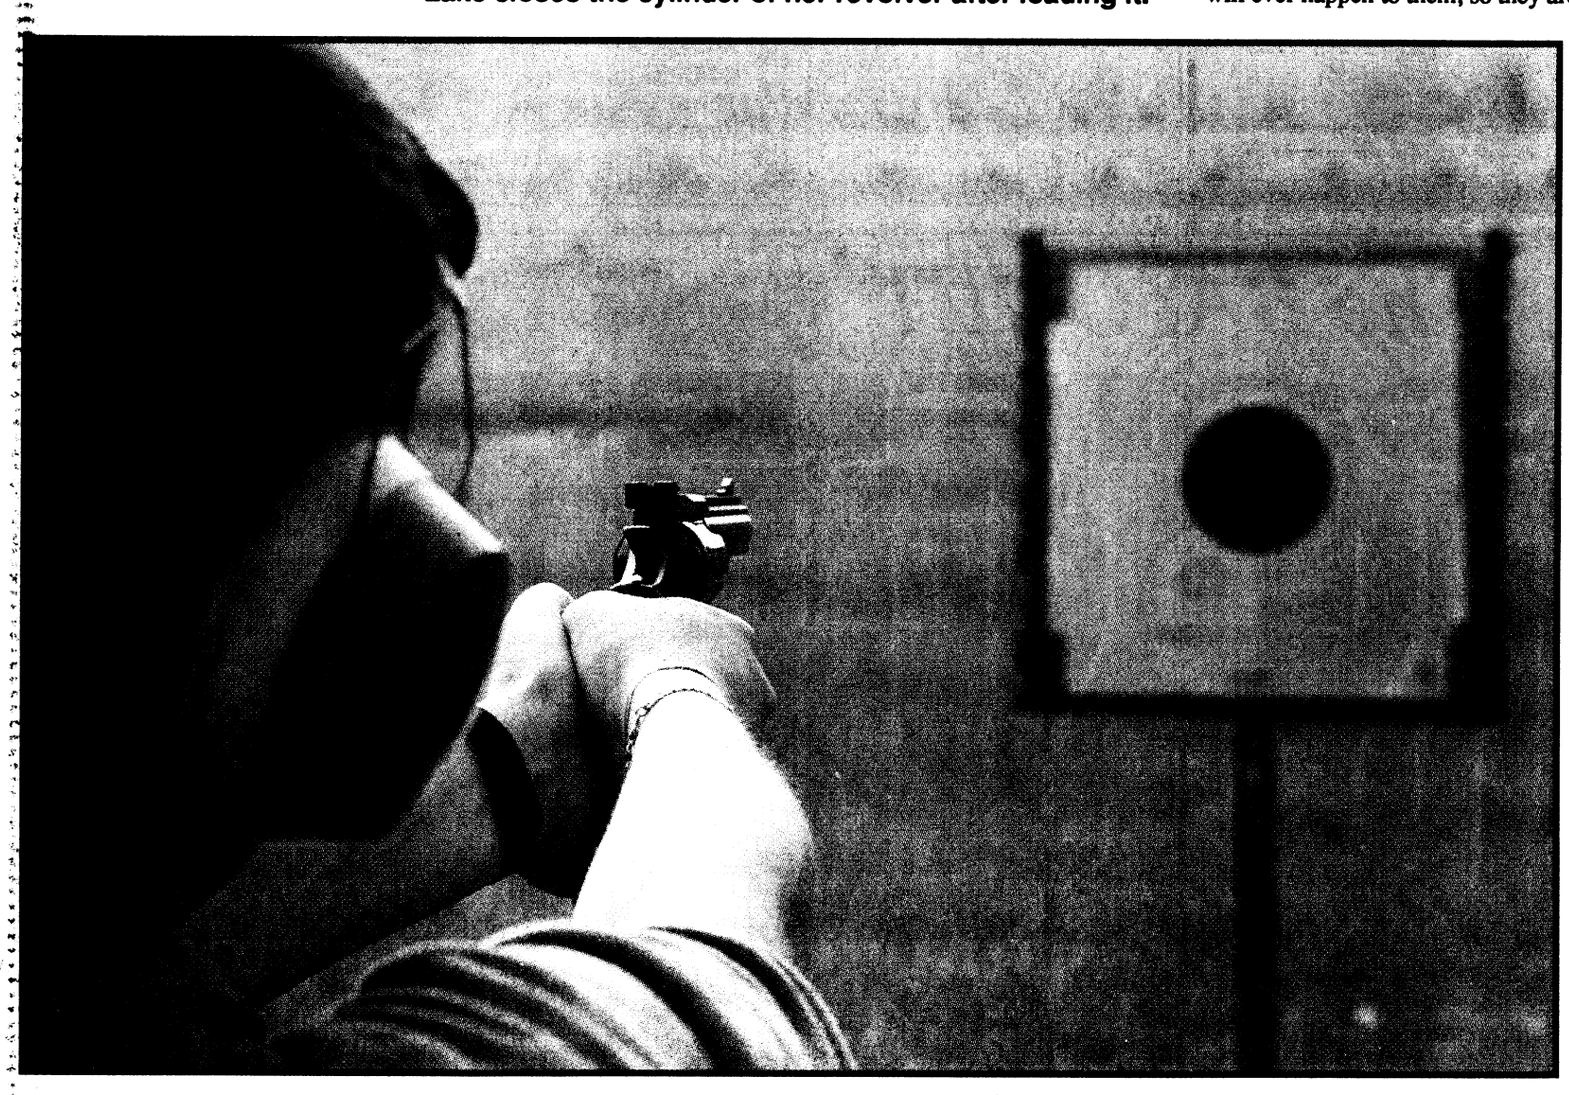
Trying to hide a gun from a child is impossible, Coleman said. "Even if you hide the gun in one place and the ammunition in another, they'll find it," he said.

In his book, "Gun Proof Your Children," Massad Ayoob recommends recognizing childrens' curiosity and finding a safe way to satisfy it.

He suggests taking away the taboo by teaching children that they can never "play with" and should only "handle" the gun in their parents presence and educating them to respect firearms.

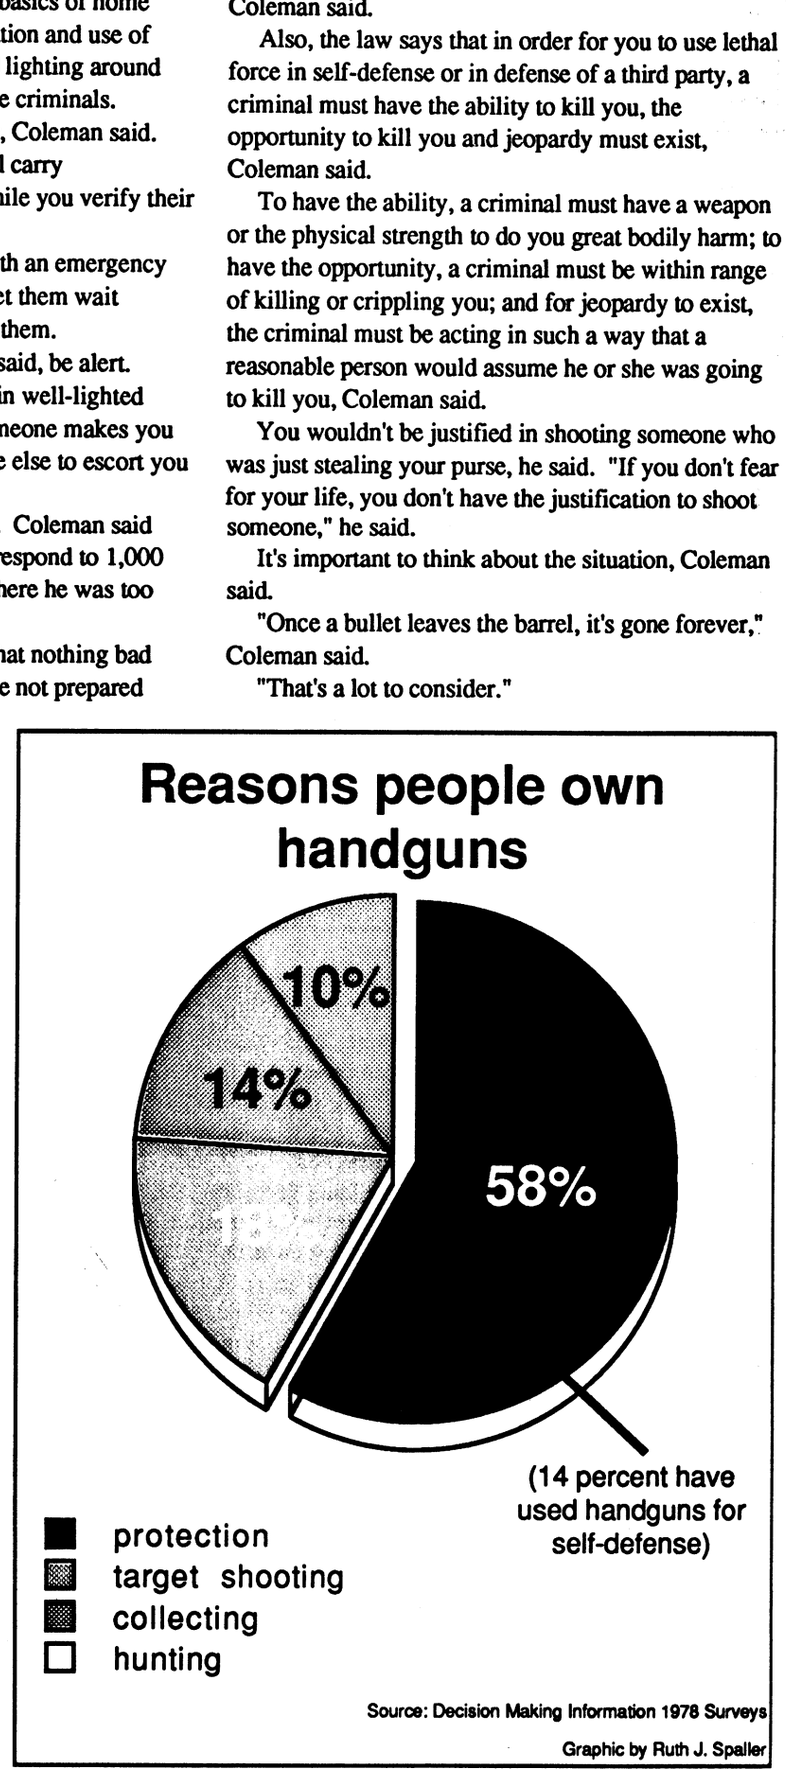
Handgun owners need to educate themselves, too, Coleman said. Different states have different laws about owning, transporting and carrying firearms, and it is important to know the laws where you are, Coleman said.

Also, the law says that in order for you to use lethal force in self-defense or in defense of a third party, a criminal must have the ability to kill you, the opportunity to kill you and jeopardy must exist, Coleman said.



To have the ability, a criminal must have a weapon or the physical strength to do you great bodily harm; to have the opportunity, a criminal must be within range of killing or crippling you; and for jeopardy to exist, the criminal must be acting in such a way that a reasonable person would assume he or she was going to kill you, Coleman said.

You wouldn't be justified in shooting someone who was just stealing your purse, he said. "If you don't fear for your life, you don't have the justification to shoot someone," he said.



It's important to think about the situation, Coleman said.

"Once a bullet leaves the barrel, it's gone forever," Coleman said.

"That's a lot to consider."

Lake concentrates on the target downrange.

Spiderman

Spiderman drops in on the Fort Benning Main Exchange to visit with local soldiers and patrons July 31. Before visiting the Exchange, "Spidey" spent time at Martin Army Community Hospital where a swing through the Pediatrics Ward brought smiles to the patients' faces. At the Exchange, a crowd of children and adult fans stood in line to get Spiderman's autograph and to talk to him about his upcoming cartoon, slated for Saturday morning television and the Spiderman movie coming out next spring.

Customs pamphlets make coming home cheaper

Brochures outline rules for imports

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

Take a few minutes to check out the customs laws before traveling overseas or moving back to the United States, U.S. Customs Service officials advised.

The time spent should make your trip home much quicker and, in some cases, a lot cheaper.

What looks like a bargain in a shop overseas — including a so-called duty-free shop — can be more expensive if you have to pay U.S. customs duties or federal excise taxes when you return. Or, customs officials added, the item may be restricted, like ivory or counterfeits of U.S. copyrighted material, and is confiscated upon entry.

Also, the United States generally prohibits imports from several countries. The Customs Service confiscates items made in these countries even if they were purchased legally in a third nation — for instance, Cuban cigars bought in Europe. The prohibition affects Yugoslavia, Cuba, Libya, Iraq, Iran and North Korea, and the list is subject to change.

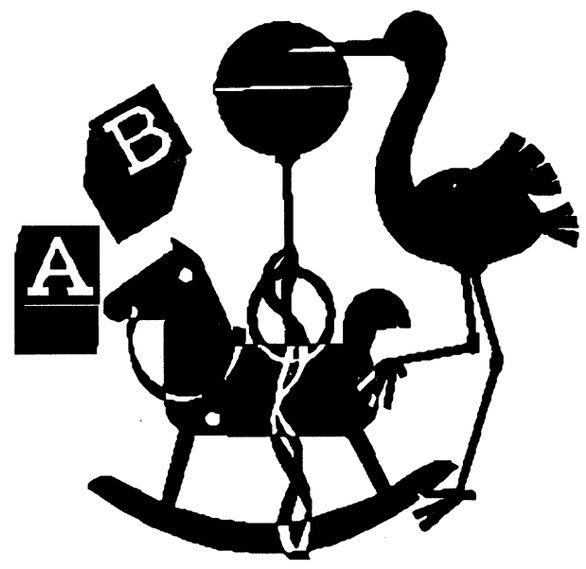
The U.S. Customs Service publishes free pamphlets to help with the ins and outs of customs travel, which include personal exemptions, duty-free imports, gifts, prohibited items and shipping hints.

Customs officials said several that make travel and moving easier, especially for Department of Defense personnel, are U.S. Customs Pocket Hints, Know Before You Go, Importing a Car and U.S. Customs Highlights for Government Personnel — Civilian and Military.

• Pocket Hints offers a quick rundown on restricted and prohibited items, personal exemptions and customs declarations. The pamphlet offers tips such as registering foreign-made items and their serial numbers with the Customs Service before leaving the United States.

Families traveling together can prepare a joint customs declaration, with children having the same exemptions as adults. The only difference, according to the pamphlet, is that children cannot declare or use the exemption for alcoholic beverages.

• Know Before You Go provides in-depth customs information for returning residents on numerous topics. These include exemptions, duties on gifts mailed to friends or relatives, prohibited and restricted articles, duty rates and pointers on making your trip easier. For example, pack your luggage so that customs inspection will be easier. Customs officials suggest packing goods bought overseas separately.



• Importing a Car provides information on bringing a vehicle into the United States. It discusses required documentation, duties and taxes, emission standards and who can ship a vehicle back to the United States duty-free. Customs officials recommend contacting the Environmental Protection Agency and Department of Transportation for their requirements.

• Highlights for Government Personnel talks about military and civilian personnel stationed overseas who receive orders returning them to the United States. Under special provisions, personal and household effects are duty- and tax-free.

Subjects addressed in the pamphlet include baggage, automobiles, customs declarations, and prohibited and restricted imports. Firearms, pets, foods, medicines and trademarked items are also discussed.

If you'd like a copy of any or all of these pamphlets, send your name and address, along with the pamphlet title, on a postcard to: U.S. Customs Service, P.O. Box 7407, Washington, D.C. 20044.

Brigadier general speaks at regiment's graduation

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

One Station Unit Training soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment had their infantry careers christened with the words of a warhorse who's seen action in three conflicts.

Retired Brig. Gen. Oliver B. Patton, the honorary colonel of the 50th Infantry Regiment, acted as reviewing officer for the unit's OSUT graduation ceremony Aug. 13.

Patton's military career began in 1940 as a private in the Tennessee National Guard. After attending the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., he fought in Belgium and Germany and was twice wounded and captured by the Germans.

Patton also served in combat in Korea, where he was again wounded, and he later served in Vietnam as the assistant chief of staff, intelligence, XXIV Corps. Patton retired from active duty in May of 1974 with more than 33 years of active service.

During the graduation ceremony, Patton also had the opportunity to tell some war stories and give some advice to the graduates.

"Don't depend on the Army to automatically give you the education you need to be an effective soldier," he said. "Be aggressive in seeking admittance to various Army schools that can enhance your career and also take advantage of the Army's great educational benefits to attend college. If you can't get in, then get the manuals and teach yourself."

Patton said he considers his role as honorary colonel a tremendous honor. "It gives me the opportunity to renew my acquaintance with the Army I left 20 years ago," said Patton. "I am very proud and honored to do it."

General works to 'protect' commissary benefit

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

"Protecting the benefit" is the phrase Army Maj. Gen. Richard Beale uses to describe his moves to improve customer service at the Defense Commissary Agency.

Beale, 50, is agency director, and protecting the benefit is his lodestar.

"The commissary benefit is certainly under the greatest scrutiny in my 29 years of service," he said during an interview.

To protect the benefit, Beale advocates expanding commissary privileges for the Reserve components. He will also scrub the commissary system looking for savings.

Beale said that as a last resort, he may have to close some stores. Beale also spoke about a test of a combined commissary and exchange at Carswell Air Force Base, Texas.

Currently, Reserve component members are limited to 12 commissary shopping trips in a calendar year. "If you take the strings off and give them full benefits, it allows us to capture those sales and keep the trust fund robust," Beale said. "The trust fund, of course, pays for a fairly significant part of our operations."

Keeping the fund robust means Congress could appropriate less money to fund commissary operations.

Beale sees a spin-off benefit. "There is a direct correlation between shoppers in the commissary and shoppers in the exchange system," he said. Profits realized in the exchanges go to the morale, welfare and recreation offers of the services.

> "If you take the strings off and give them (Reserve component members) full benefits, it allows us to capture those sales and keep the trust fund robust."
> — Maj. Gen. Richard Beale
> Defense Commissary Agency

Taxpayers paid nearly $1.13 billion for the agency this year. Beale said this amount has to come down if the benefit is to survive. He said the merging of the service commissary systems has already yielded savings, but more needs to be done. The DoD inspector general recommended combining commis-sary regions and reducing the number from seven to four. Officials estimate this will save $5 million.

"That's probably realistic, but I'm not prepared to do that right now," Beale said. First, the agency wants to field its interim business system, which Beale estimates will save $18 million. The agency inherited 27 different types of business systems from the services. "Frankly, it costs us quite a bit of money to splice them all together," he said. The new system should be in place by the end of fiscal 1994.

Beale is also looking at the possibility of closing some low-sales, high-cost stores. The agency will do this only in areas where larger stores are still convenient for shoppers.

"I cite three specific stores: Pope Air Force Base, N.C.; Edgewood Arsenal, Md.; and Yorktown Naval Weapons Station, Va.," he said. Closing these stores would have little impact on patrons, he said, but would realize significant savings to the taxpayer. Pope patrons, for example, would drive five minutes to the Fort Bragg commissary.

"I hope it doesn't come to that," he said. "If it does, I hope the patrons and local commanders affected will understand what we're doing in the long run is save the benefit for the majority."

Troop reductions in Europe are an ongoing challenge. The agency and the Army and Air Force Exchange Service have a pilot program at Robinson Barracks in Stuttgart, Germany.

"We've combined the commissary and exchange operation into what we call a 'Comex,' " Beale said. "Most items that were sold in the commissary will still be sold under commissary pricing guidance. Other items will increase to variable AAFES pricing — such as cigarettes, health and beauty aids and some household goods."

Without the combined facility, service members would have had to drive across town to Patch Barracks.

Beale said the agency is looking at whether it must reduce operations in smaller outlying communities in Europe.

"Again, it will depend on where those communities are in relation to the larger communities," Beale said. "We'd be more reluctant to close facilities overseas than in the continental United States because folks overseas have no alternative."

There are stateside communities where commissaries are closing along with the installation. Providing an "alternative to zero" is the aim of a test at Carswell Air Force Base, Texas. AAFES will run the test at the installation. The base, on the 1988 base closure list, will close, leaving retirees and reservists in the Dallas-Fort Worth area without a commissary or exchange. "The intent of the Carswell test ... will provide an alternative to zero in communities faced with a base closure," Beale said.

Like the pilot program in Germany, AAFES will charge cost plus 5 percent for edibles. Nonedible items currently sold in the commissary will revert to AAFES prices.

"It doesn't give the beneficiary quite the same benefit as preclosure," Beale said. "On the other hand, it's still a substantial savings on edibles, and AAFES will be able to beat the commercial market."

Beale warned not to expect more from the test than intended. "If, in fact, it's successful, does that mean the commissaries will be rolled into the exchange services entirely?" he asked. "No. We have a perfectly good system now. This is only for communities where bases are closing."

LONG HAUL: ACAP offers trucking jobs

Army Career and Alumni Program

A recruiter from a major long-haul truck line will visit Fort Benning today and periodically in the following weeks in search of 300 drivers.

Schneider National Inc., a major truck line, plans to hire 300 new drivers in the Atlanta area over the next few months, according to a company spokesman.

Driver recruiter Cedric Lash will visit the Fort Benning Army Career and Alumni Program Job Assistance Office about every two weeks to conduct interviews.

Persons interested in signing up for an interview can call 545-2308 or 545-2309. Those interested in talking directly to Lash may call him at (800) 752-5319, Ext. 6208.

This is one of our larger hiring efforts," Schneider spokesperson Mike Norder said. "Atlanta is a key strategic area because of the volume of freight and highway network in the area."

Schneider already has several hundred drivers based in the Atlanta area, Norder said. The company had 1992 revenues of more than $1 billion and is expecting volume to grow 20 percent this year , he said.

Norder said applicants need no experience and those hired will be trained by the company. First-year wages for inexperienced drivers range between $25,000 and $35,000, Norder said.

Applicants must be at least 21 years old, have a good driving record and be drug free, he said.

Schneider has about 14,000 employees, 10,000 of them company or independent contract drivers.

Registration continues

Fort Benning students prepare for back to school

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Student registration for the Fort Benning Schools continues through today from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. at each of the seven post schools.

The school year begins Aug. 31.

Kindergarten through eighth-grade students registering with parents are able to choose the day and time that best fits their needs.

Past practice indicates there are large crowds at the schools the first couple of days of registration, and this should be considered when choosing a registration time, according to a school spokesperson.

Students who attended Fort Benning Schools last year must register for the 1993 to 94 school year, but it is not necessary for parents of students to bring any forms to the school.

However, there will be registration forms at the school to be signed.

Children who preregistered during kindergarten roundup last May will also need to complete the registration process.

Returning students enrolled in special education may register at their assigned school.

New students and children ages 3 to 5 requiring special education services should contact the Special Education Office at 545-2500.

Special education services include learning, intellectual and physical disabilities and behavior or emotional disorders, and speech-language disorders.

In order to meet the requirements for registration, parents should bring certain items to the school when they register students, as outlined in the registration requirements.

The items are determined by the student's age, grade and whether he or she previously attended a Fort Benning school.

For information on registration in the Fort Benning Schools, call 545-2500.

School screening

Martin Army Community Hospital will conduct a walk-in (no appointment needed) school screening for all eligible beneficiaries Wednesday.

This is for any child who will be five years old by Sept. 1 and who needs the Georgia "Certificate of Ear, Eye and Dental Examinations."

This certificate is needed by every child, regardless of age or grade, when entering school for the first time in Georgia. Children who attended school in Georgia last year do not need to duplicate this process.

The following schedule contains the times for people to report based on their last names. Parents should report to the Eyes, Ears, Nose and Throat Clinic in the basement of the clinic wing of the hospital.

- 8 to 9 a.m. — A to D.
- 9 to 10 a.m. — E to J.
- 10 to 11 a.m. — K to N.
- 1 to 2 p.m. — O to S.
- 2 to 3 p.m. — T to Z.

Parents should bring only the child or children being screened, the child's medical record, medical card and identification card. Also, bring the child's glasses, if any.

Hospital officials are asking that parents not bring any children who are not being screened. Remember, children under the age of 5 will not be screened.

This "walk-in" screening is in addition to the normal school screenings that are done each Wednesday by appointment only. Parents who cannot bring their children to this walk-in school screening can make an appointment by calling 544-3350.

Hospital officials said the walk-in screening is being planned to take care of as many children as possible before school starts.

Your child's immunizations must be up to date before entering the school system.

The Immunization Clinic is open every duty day on a walk-in basis. Parents should bring medical records, shot records and identification cards.

Crossing guards

Because funds are not available to pay contract crossing guards, parents of school children are asked to sign up for duty as volunteer crossing guards this year.

If all parents participate, duty will probably be no more than once or twice per school year, according to Capt. Rebecca A. Rouse of the Fort Benning Military Police Activity.

While military police officers will continue to vigorously enforce speed limits in school zones, children must be provided supervised and safe crossing in key school areas, Rouse said.

The exact locations include:

- White School at Lumpkin and Baltzell
- Dexter and Faith schools at Ingersoll and Yeager
- Dexter and Faith schools at Lumpkin and Yeager
- White School at 1st Division Road and Madden
- White School at Baltzell and Access Road
- Faith and White schools at Vibbert and Lumpkin Road
- Faith School at Ingersoll and Vibbert
- Faith School at Ingersoll and Gaudette
- Stowers School general vicinity

The safety of school children is a concern for everyone at Fort Benning and maximum participation by parents will minimize worry, Rouse said.

More information will be provided during elementary school registration.

Interested parents should contact the mayor of their housing communities.

'Friends of Scouting' campaign meets goal

Fort Benning District Boy Scouts

The Fort Benning district "Friends of Scouting" campaign met its goal of $10,000. This campaign is to raise funds to meet the operational expenses of the local Scouting programs.

In 1992, there were more than 1,600 youth involved with Scouting in the Fort Benning area.

It costs about $65 per boy to provide them the program of Scouting through the recruiting, training, activities, literature, camps, and local service center.

In order for the parents not to have to bear this expense, which may prohibit some boys from joining, the Boy Scouts of America finds alternate ways of funding its program.

The United Way is a strong supporter of the Boy Scouts and provides about 27 percent of the operating costs locally.

The Boy Scouts have various fund-raisers through the year, including popcorn sales and Scouting festival ticket sales.

The largest source of income, however, for the Scouts is friends of Scouting. This is a campaign for individuals, businesses, and organizations to contribute to the Scouting program.

The return on their investment is the opportunity for the youth of our community to participate in a quality character building program and becoming productive citizens of the community rather than destructive.

Under the leadership of Chaplain (Col.) Roy G. Plummer, several teams of volunteers contacted more than 200 friends of Scouting and raised $10,000, which is the Fort Benning communities fair share for the support of the Scouting program.

The following teams helped to make the fund drive successful

- U.S. Army Medical Department Activity — Col. Thomas Hoffer, team leader
- U.S. Army Infantry School — Col. Rich Rutledge, team leader
- 324th Forward Support Battalion — Sgt. Gerald Fambro, team leader
- 75th Ranger Regiment - Capt. Shane Hampton, team leader
- Ranger Training Brigade — Col. Michael Church, team leader
- School of the Americas — Maj. David Munyon, team leader
- Infantry Training Brigade — Lt. Col. Mark Gerner, team leader
- 13th Combat Support Battalion, which fielded three teams led by Capt. Kent Earls, Capt. Brian Amberger and Capt. Ed Buckner.

Blood drive — A child, man or woman somewhere needs blood, according to the American Red Cross. A blood drive will be today at Infantry Hall, Building 4, in Classroom 3, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

29th plans reunion — The fourth reunion of the 29th Infantry Regiment, celebrating the 92nd year of active service of the regiment, will be Oct. 7 to 10 at Fort Benning.

The headquarters for this year's reunion will be the Holiday Inn (Airport) on the Manchester Expressway, Columbus. The telephone number at the reservation desk is 324-0231.

Scheduled events are:

Oct. 7: afternoon — registration

Oct. 8: morning — tour of Andersonville Civil War Prison and Prisoner of War Museum

Oct. 9: morning — weapons demonstrations; evening — 29th Infantry Association "Pioneer Ball"

Oct. 10: morning — memorial service and brunch

For more information, contact retired Command Sgt. Maj. Frank C. Plass at 561-0744 or Capt. Jon J. McMullen, regimental adjutant, at 544-6008.

Craft class teachers needed — The Officers' Wives' Club is looking for individuals who are interested in teaching craft classes. If you have talent you would like to share with OWC members, contact Conie Reamey at 682-7669 or Sue Rutledge at 689-0504. The list of classes must be complete by Aug. 30.

Scouts needed — Soldiers who have been Scouts are needed to work with the "Rendezvous with Brownsea" fall encampment 1993 at Fort Benning's King's Pond Oct. 22 to 24.

More than 1,000 Scouts in the Chattahoochee Council, Boy Scouts of America will participate in this event.

The "Rendezvous with Brownsea" originated July 29, 1907, on England's Southern Coast. Twenty-one boys from Poole and Bournemouth went camping on Brownsea Island in Poole Harbor with Lord Robert S.S. Baden-Powell, a major general in the British army who had written a manual called "Aids to Scouting."

Even though "Aids to Scouting" was written for soldiers, Baden-Powell wanted to know if his ideas would work with boys.

During these 12 days, the boys were given instructions in camping skills, observation and tracking, woodcraft and nature lore, lifesaving and first aid and the virtues of honor, chivalry and good citizenship.

This gathering of boys became the first Scout campout and helped to launch a program for boys that has reached and services boys throughout the world.

For more information about "Rendezvous with Brownsea" at Fort Benning or to volunteer, call Lt. Col. Howard Willis at 545-5741.

Sports registration — Youth Services has extended football, soccer and cheerleader registration until Sept. 10. Registration is Monday to Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Youth Services, Building 1056.

Individuals interested in tackle football must be 9 to 15 years old and must be present at the time of registration.

Also, Youth Services is in need of coaches for the upcoming season. Those interested in coaching can call 545-3070 or stop by Youth Services.

Patch Preschool — Patch Preschool has openings available for its morning and afternoon programs. For more information, call 687-2404.

Ballet registration — Youth Services is accepting ballet registration Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Classes are available for children 3 through 18.

A "mothers" tap and jazz class will be offered, also. For more information, call 545-3070.

Food drives — Army Community Service is still in need of food for the Emergency Food Locker.

Some specific items that are needed are dry cereal, tuna fish, powdered milk, grits, oat meal, peanut butter, jelly, rice, soup, spaghetti, oil and lard.

Food collection boxes are located in the Commissary near the exits at the cashier stands, and food items may be delivered to Building 2642, Soldiers' Plaza, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday.

For more information, call Arthur Deane at 545-2536, 545-7517 or 545-4043.

Dancing classes — Fall dancing classes for tap, jazz and ballet will begin Sept. 1 at the Officers' Wives' Club. Beginner and advanced classes are available for 2 1/2-year-olds to adults.

Classes are one hour long, one day a week at $20 per month for one child, $35 per month for two children and $50 per month for three children.

Retirement — The Retirement Services Office has available for loan two videos that may help prepare soldiers for retirement. The videos, "Military Preretirement" and "The Survivor Benefit Plan," are available for loan. Retirement Services is located in Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2635, and the telephone number is 545-5369 or 545-2541.

Tot Town — Tot Town Child Development Center will offer transportation to and from Dexter, White and Stower elementary schools beginning Aug. 31. Children must be registered at Child Development Services Central Office and at Tot Town. For more information, call 689-8698 or 689-8772.

Senior class trip meeting — A senior class trip meeting, sponsored by the Spencer High Parent Booster Organization, will be Saturday at Spencer High Library at 10 a.m. Seniors and parents are encouraged to attend to discuss plans for a three-day class trip to Disney World.

Motorcycle safety course — All persons who operate a motorcycle or moped on the installation are required to complete the Army Motorcycle Safety Course and must have the completion card and license in their possession while operating the motorcycle.

The class is Aug. 28 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Classroom 3, Infantry Hall.

Class size is limited to 12 persons; preregistration is required. All cancellations or rescheduling must be made 72 hours prior to the scheduled class date.

AA — The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous group meets every Monday, Thursday and Saturday at 7 p.m. in the basement of the Directorate of Community Activities, Building 241. Entrance is in the rear of the building.

School examinations — It is mandatory that any child entering Georgia schools for the first time be given a dental, eye and hearing examination.

The results of the exam will be entered on a Georgia Department of Human Resources Certification of Ear, Eye and Dental Examination, which must be presented to the school upon enrollment.

For a screening appointment, call 544-3350 at Martin Army Community Hospital or your county health department. The child's immunization record must be up to date.

Parents should take the immunization record to the hospital or health department at the time of the screening exam.

For more information, call Cathy Hatfield at 544-1503.

Welcome coffee — The International Wives' Club will host a welcome coffee for all foreign-born spouses in the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City area Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Building 2642, Collins Loop, Fort Benning.

For more information, call Olga Kelly at 687-6471 or Regina Colon at 682-7221.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation and standard first aid instructor class, Thursday (instructor candidate training) from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.; Aug. 27 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation: Sept. 22, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., $25.

Standard first aid: Sept. 23, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., $20.

Baby-sitting for youth: Sept. 18, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., $15.

For registration information, call 545-5194 or 545-5117.

Car show — The 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, will conduct a car show Sept. 11 on Stewart Field from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Approximately 400 cars will be on display. For more information, call 545-1868.

Cake decorating class — The Kelley Hill Recreation Center will sponsor a cake decorating class Sept. 10 at 6:30 p.m. with continuing classes every Friday thereafter for five weeks.

The fee is $25 per individual. Early registration is required because of limited space.

For information, call 544-3079, Wednesday to Sunday after noon.

Youth services — There are a variety of activities at Youth Services this summer for children ages 6 to 18. Some of the activities include swimming, craft classes, field trips, tournaments, dances and much more.

The Youth Services staff ask that parents come and sign in their children and find out what activities are available for the day. Also, the staff asks parents to pick up children before closing time.

Hours of operation for the main center are Wednesdays through Saturdays from 11 a.m to 8 p.m. and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The center is closed on Monday and Tuesdays. Because of special events, the operating hours may change. For more information, call Quintella Thorn, Youth Services at 545-79945 or 545-3070.

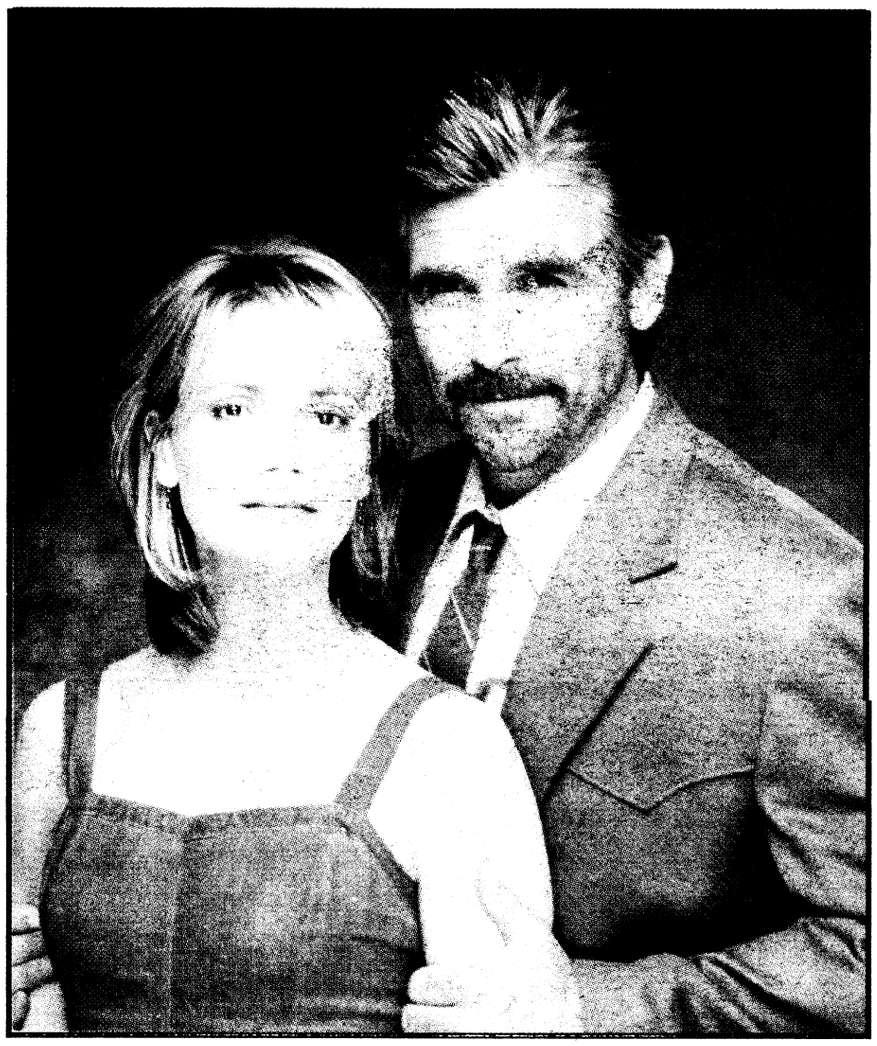
Your Guide to Prime Time TV: Cable and Broadcast Schedules

CBS introduces residents of 'Angel Falls'

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services



"Knots Landing" may be gone, but its former time slot is being inherited by another fictional community packed with passion and intrigue.

Premiering Thursday on CBS, the drama "Angel Falls" focuses on another group of neighbors whose lives are linked in ways that usually are quite emotional. As the series begins, single parent Rae Dawn Snow (played by Chelsea Field, previously of "Nightingales" and such movies as "The Last Boy Scout") is moving back to Angel Falls, Mont. — along with her teen-age offspring Sonny (ex-"I'll Fly Away" regular Jeremy London) — to operate her late father's pool hall. She's soon reunited with her high-school boyfriend, Eli Harrison, (Brian Kerwin, of "Switched at Birth" and "Murphy's Romance"), now wed rather unhappily to former beauty queen Genna (Kim Cattrall, of such films as "Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country" and "The Bonfire of the Vanities"), with whom he has two daughters (Cassidy Rae, Ashley Lauren) ... and Genna is becoming involved extramaritally with ranch hand Toby (Robert Rusler).

"Angel Falls" also marks the weekly return of two very familiar TV faces, since James Brolin ("Marcus Welby, M.D.," "Hotel") and Peggy Lipton ("The Mod Squad," "Twin Peaks") appear as basketball coach Luke Larson and his wife, Hadley, who are struggling to cope with the devastating death of their infant son. Created and co-executive-produced by TV-movie veteran Joyce Eliason ("Small Sacrifices," "The Jacksons: An American Dream"), the show also features esteemed actress Jean Simmons as Luke's mother Irene, who doesn't have the smoothest of relationships with Hadley.

James Brolin and Peggy Lipton

What: "Angel Falls"
When: Thursday, 10 p.m. on NBC

Brolin was the first actor hired for "Angel Falls," though he claims he wasn't looking for another series. He recalls that part of the first script was "sitting on my manager's desk when I went to visit him, and I said, 'What's this?' I read it and thought it had really good dialogue, and he said, 'Are you interested? It's a big cast.' I said, 'If all of it reads like this, yeah, I'm interested.' Then I got the full script, and I just went, 'Wow.' "

Additional writers normally work on new TV shows, but all of the initial "Angel Falls" episodes are being done by series creator Eliason herself. "As long as she's around," Brolin maintains, "we're in good shape."

"Angel Falls" was a relatively late pick for CBS' fall lineup, so fellow executive producer Larry Sanitsky explains that those first six episodes "are actually being filmed simultaneously, but we're shooting now on the same schedule that we'll have to do this on if we're on for five years. One of the reasons I think this cast came together so well, and so strongly, is that actors responded like crazy to the material."

13th Corps Support Battalion departs for Somalia

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Soldiers from the 13th Corps Support Battalion departed Fort Benning Monday for Somalia. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" beginning Monday to see highlights of the departure ceremony conducted at Lawson Army Airfield.

"Sound-Off," the Public Affairs Office's opinion poll, follows "Fort Benning Today" and will bring you points of view from workers in the Directorate of Training. Hear their responses about whether they believe Fort Benning should be a closed post. This week's "Profile-Fort Benning" segment features Dr. Jim Brewbaker, chairman of Columbus College's Curriculum and Instruction Department for the latest on what the college is offering.

USAIC TV Schedule
Fort Benning Today: 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 1:30 to 2 p.m.
Specials: 2 to 4:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 4:30 p.m. to 8:30 a.m.

Don't miss the U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel's special presentation of the "Best Ranger" competition conducted in May. This will feature film footage never seen before on any installation. The station also highlights post events and lists classified advertisements.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

MASH

Resort plans military week

Sandestin Resorts Inc.

DESTIN, Fla. — Sandestin Resorts Inc. will present "MASH," or Military Appreciation Sandestin Holiday" Aug. 29 through Sept. 3.

The week-long event begins with a Beach Blast welcome reception Aug. 29 from 2 to 7 p.m. at the Elephant Walk Pool deck. Live entertainment by Jones & Company, a high-energy, top 40, five-piece ensemble, will be featured.

For golf enthusiasts, a tournament is planned for Aug. 30. Guests are encouraged to organize teams to compete in an interbase challenge or ask for parings. The tournament entry fee is $35 per person.

A special accommodations rate of $24.50 per person per night based on double occupancy in a golf view room at The Inn at Sandestin is being extended to military guests. Additional discounts on golf, recreation, food and beverages is being extended to guests presenting military identification.

Sandestin, located in northwest Florida, eight miles east of Destin, is a 2,400-acre residential resort community that features 15 holes of golf, 14 tennis courts, a health facility, a 98-slip marina, two waterfront restaurants, a deli, shopping center and 7 1/2 miles of beach and bayfront property.

What: Military Appreciation Week

Where: Destin, Fla.

When: Aug. 29 to Sept. 3

For additional information regarding the Military Appreciation Sandestin Holiday, call (904) 277-0800.

To register for the interbase golf challenge, call (904) 267-8211.

Stars to come out

Florence Marina to present classes on astronomy Sat.

Georgia Department of Natural Resources

Florence Marina State Park will conduct its annual evening of astronomy Saturday from 9 to 11 p.m.

Bryan Mason from the Center for High Angular Resolution Astronomy of Georgia State University will be the guest astronomer. Mason will instruct on what to look for in the night sky. There will be two high-powered telescopes on hand, but attendees are encouraged to bring a pair of binoculars. It also helps to bring lawn chairs or blankets to spread on the ground.

This program is open to the public and anyone from experts to persons who have never viewed the stars through a telescope are invited to attend.

For further information on this program, contact the staff at (912) 838-4706. Admission to the program is free, but a $2 park pass is required for each vehicle.

Florence Marina State Park is located 16 miles west of Lumpkin, Ga., on Highway 39. Florence Marina is operated by the Georgia Department of Natural Resources.

SOAP UPDATE

King Features Syndicate

ALL MY CHILDREN: An angry Erica overheard Kendall tell Dimitri she may have influenced Bianca's decision to run away. Meanwhile, Bianca was being harassed by a fellow bus passenger. Later, as Kendall watched an old Eric Kane (Erica's father) film, Erica gasped when she saw Richard Fields on the TV screen, and identified him as Kendall's father, the man who raped her. Wait to see: Charley and Hayley agree there's something strange about Alec.

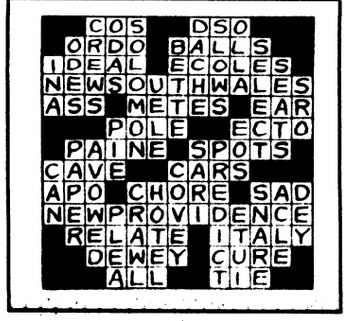
ANOTHER WORLD: After overhearing Victoria beg Donna to help her phone Ryan, Grant professed his love for her and insisted on helping her make the call. Secretly, however, he arranged for the call not to go through. Maggie told Ian where to find Paulina. Spencer advised Jake to keep trying to get control of Cory, and to use his new seat on the board to help him. Wait to see: Maggie reacts to news that Rachel kept her from singing on Dean's album.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: An anguished Emily confided her doubts about Royce to both Holden and Larry; and, after some soul-searching, made a decision. Connor agreed to Damian's request to remove Holden from the Kingsley-Malta account. Lucinda deduced that Iva had run away with Aaron, and no one could find her. Wait to see: Andy's condition worsens.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Macy was in an upbeat mood when she entered Thorn's apartment and found the divorce papers on his desk. Thorn insisted he didn't want her to sign them, but cautioned her that until she could stop drinking, they could have no real relationship. Then he kissed her and asked her to move back in with him. Wait to see: Brooke worries that her ties to Ridge may be weakened if Taylor is pregnant.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Tom broke the devastating news to Jennifer and Jack: Amy has aplastic anemia and would need a bone marrow transplant. Marlena confided her worries about Sami to John. Later, Marlena made a startling discovery in Sami's closet: a huge stash of junk food and laxatives. Wait to see: Curtis makes another demand on Billie.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Felicia was arrested while she was doing undercover work with some runaway teens, but she did make some progress in locating Jagger's brother. Scott asked Julia not to tell anyone he paid off Katherine's debts, explaining that Lucy would flip if she found out. Steve and Audrey testified in Ryan's trial, much to their discomfort. Wait to see: A surprise lies in wait for Mac.



GUIDING LIGHT: Hart was in a position to turn David over to the police when Joe, Vinny's uncle, arrived. Meanwhile, Kat lied to Mallet about David. Macauley was upset to learn Nick had influenced both Mindy and Gilly to be wary of him. Nadine was overjoyed when Buzz bonded with Frank and Harley, and vowed to do better by Marina than he did for his son and daughter. Nick came up with a plan to learn more about Macauley's girlfriend. Wait to see: David faces a new dilemma.

LOVING: Ava continued to be the focus of Shana and Leo's ongoing bickering. Meanwhile, Ava planned to get Leo back by luring him into spending a night on her couch, correctly guessing that Shana would be furious once she learned where he'd been. Tyler developed a high fever. Wait to see: J.J.'s action to bring Buck into Stacey's life takes an interesting turn.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: When Nora was unable to deliver her closing arguments, the judge declared a mistrial. Blackmailed by Dorian, Angela made an appeal to Cassie on Dorian's behalf, but Cassie refused to listen. With the new trial coming up, Marty got Suede and Kevin to help her find the missing sweatband, which could be the one piece of evidence that would almost certainly result in conviction. Wait to see: Marty may have found more than she expected.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Victor saw Cliff's engagement ring on Hope's finger, but Hope insisted she hadn't yet made the decision to marry him. Jill told Liz about her marital problems with John before the birth of their baby. John and Jack toasted the return of Jabot while Ashley gave Jill the good news. While Cricket agonized over the eviction proceedings against her clients, Danny urged her to come to New York with him. Wait to see: Cricket's decision creates a new problem in her marriage.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

H & R BLOCK INCOME TAX COURSE STARTS SEPTEMBER 13

Thousands of people learn how to prepare income tax returns from H & R Block and then earn money as income tax preparers. H & R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, offers its Income Tax Course starting September 13, 1993. Morning, evening, and Saturday classes are available.

Experienced instructors teach tax law, theory, and application. Classroom discussion and practice problems provide students with a thorough understanding of each tax topic included in the course. Students learn how to handle increasingly complex income tax situations as the course progresses.

Ideal for people who want to increase their tax knowledge, the course teaches students how to save money on their taxes and also prepares them for a rewarding career.

The affordable fee includes textbooks and supplies. Graduates receive Certificates of Achievement and continuing education units (CEUs). Qualified graduates of the course may be offered job interviews with H & R Block but are under no obligation to accept employment.

Those interested in more information about the H & R Block Income Tax Course may contact the H & R Block office at 2511 Airport Thruway, Columbus, Georgia. You may also call (706) 324-5603 or 1-800-TAX-2000.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You could go overboard on spending for the home this week. A friend may disappoint you, but love is exciting. Career interests go nicely now. You may revise your thinking now about investments and long-range financial security.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't take on more work than you can handle. Romance sizzles, and singles meet potential lovers. Any impasses in family relationships this week will be overcome by a frank and heartfelt talk. Forget differences and accent teamwork.

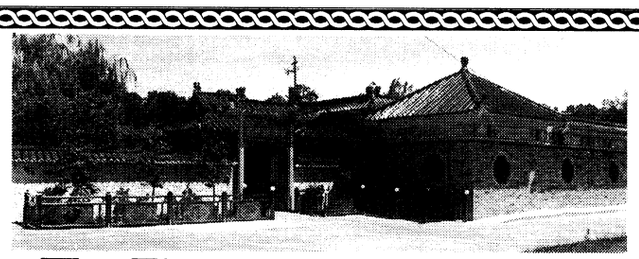
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Initiative and charm combine to bring you important work gains. Some meet with a new romance through the job. You may be busy now with a do-it-yourself project. Common sense thinking is your ally in all that you do this week.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Couples make important plans affecting a child's well being. Company that drops by may overstay their welcome. You may overspend this week, but you will be able to tighten your belt. Romance is exhilarating.

LEO (July 21 to Aug. 22). A new idea for a do-it-yourself project comes to you this week. Curtail a tendency to exaggerate in talks with others. You are involved in important discussions relating to both work and family. You are inclined to excessive credit card spending. Avoid crankiness this weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Your creative juices are really flowing this week. Artistic types feel inspired. A loved one may be out of sorts. Singles will meet someone who appeals to them. This weekend, see a movie or rent a videotape for your home enjoyment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ambitions are stimulated this week, and you will make progress toward the realization of your career goals. Income improves and romance captivates you. You have good judgment now when shopping. Those with a sweet tooth need to guard-against dietary indiscretion.



SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have a take-charge attitude this week and will accomplish what you set out to do. It is a good time for creative work. Put aside a domestic concern and concentrate on enjoying life this weekend. Travel may be on impulse and dating will be a delight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A private talk this week relates to financial interests. You should save part of this week for the completion of an unfinished task. Friends are lively, perhaps boisterous. You will be a homebody this weekend. Entertaining guests and romance are both favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Business talk at a social gathering may be just small talk. A partner may be easily ruffled. This weekend, a more carefree you will be attracting friends and admirers. Be sure to accept social invitations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Career success will surpass your expectations. Overcome self-doubt and embrace this week's wonderful opportunities. As a result, business interests are foremost on your mind now. You have a new approach to an old problem.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Try not to be extravagant in your use of credit. Shared cultural interests will be the topic of conversation between you and a friend this week. This is a good time for matters of the heart. In fact, the weekend should prove to be very romantic.

Excellence

Post to try for world's best

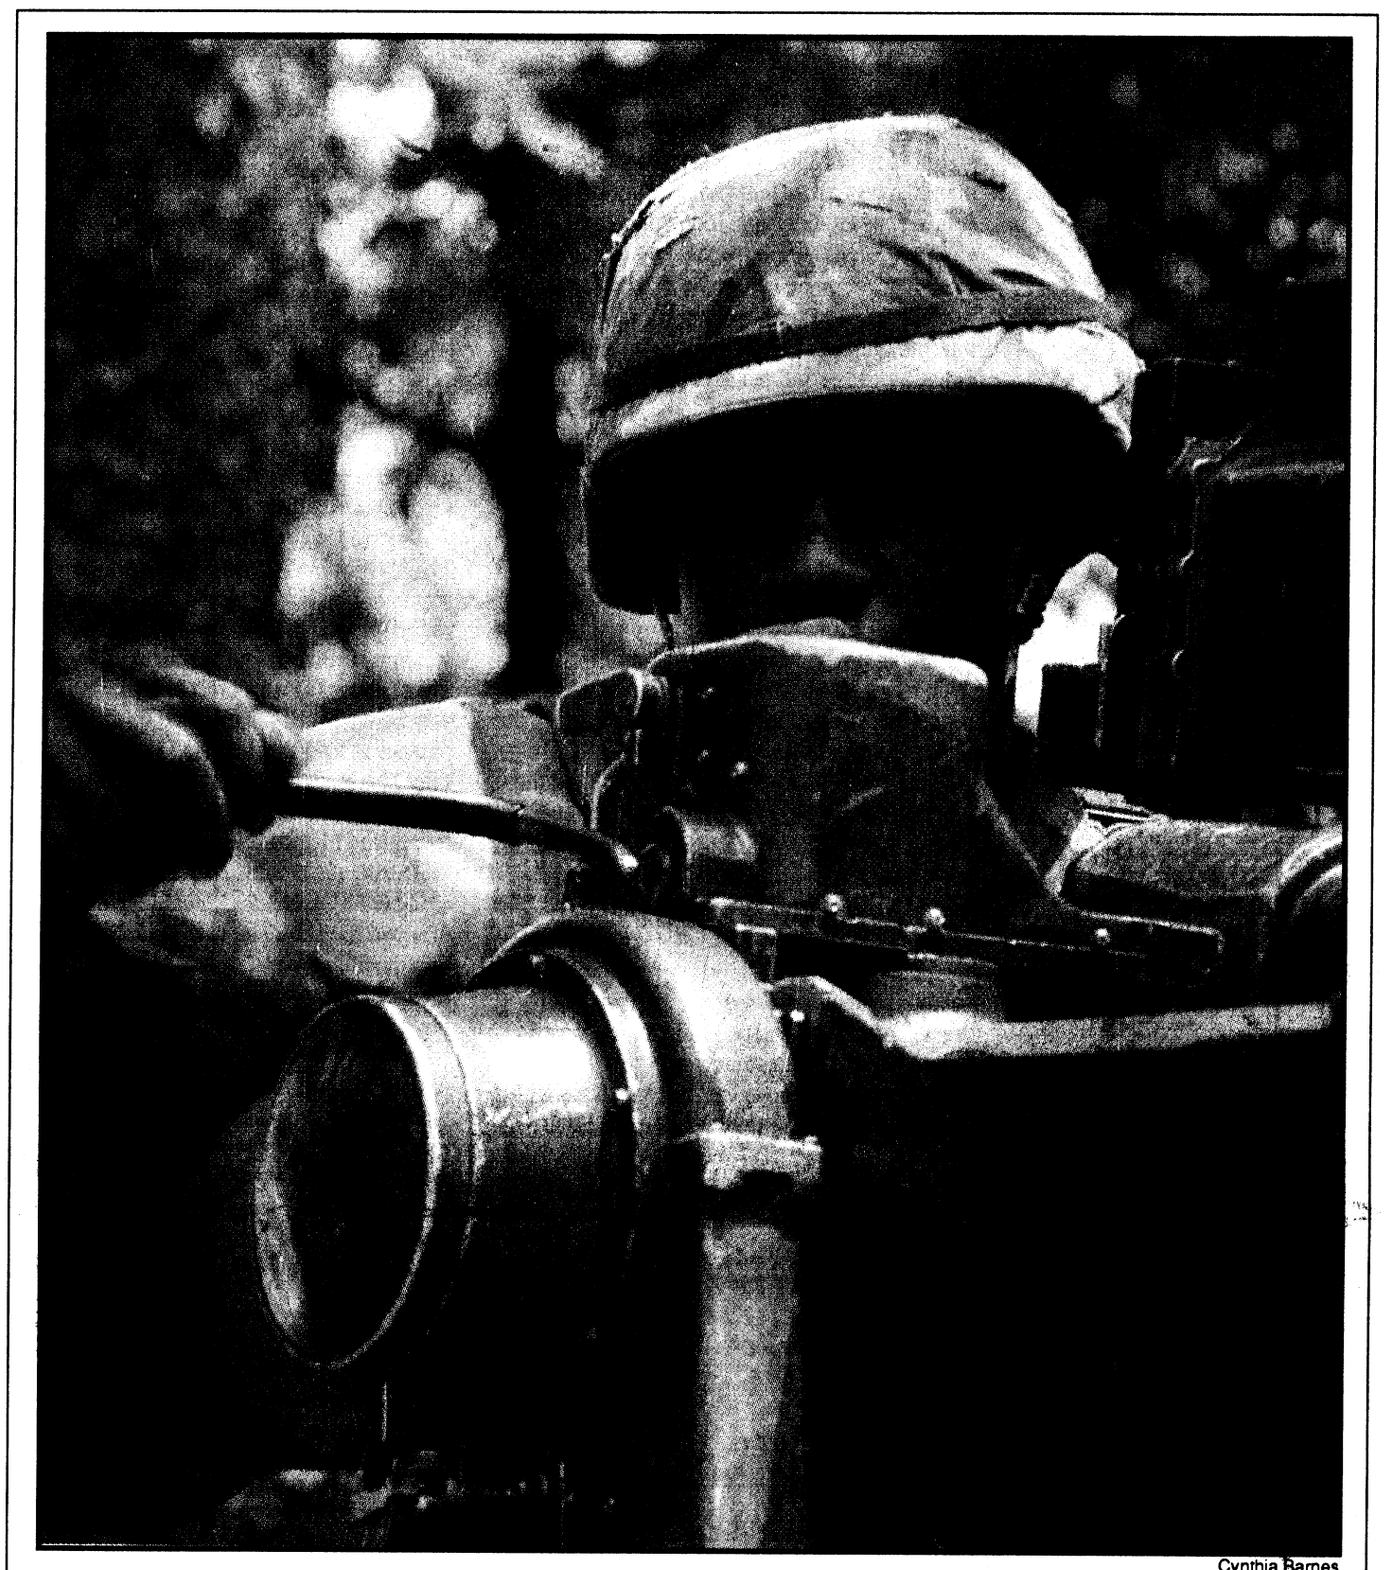
By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

A four-person team from the Training and Doctrine Command Communities of Excellence program will visit Fort Benning Tuesday through Friday.

Fort Benning and Fort Sill, Okla. were selected to represent TRADOC in the Department of the Army Communities of Excellence Competition for 1993-1994.

Having won the Army Chief of Staff ACOE award for 1993 and the $1 million that comes with that honor, Fort Benning is again competing for a "Community of Excellence" title, setting its sights this year on the $1.5 million Commander in Chief Award for best Army installation in the world.

"More important than the money that comes with winning the COE award is making our military community an excellent place to live, work and play," said Sarah McLaney, Fort Benning's Communities of Excellence coordinator.



The TRADOC COE team will tour the post to validate information submitted in the nomination packet, visiting the Commissary, the directorates of Public Works, Civilian Personnel and Community Activities, the Adjutant General's Office and other post activities.

They will be handing out "hats of excellence" to deserving personnel who have achieved excellence in customer services and facility appearance.

Other areas of focus are Total Army Quality initiatives, the Better Opportunity for Single Soldiers program, self-help and U-Do-It projects and environmental programs, McLaney said.

The team will also attend the quarterly Excellence Appreciation Breakfast Wednesday at 8 a.m. in the Supper Club at the Officers' Club, where selected military and civilian employees will be recognized for their superior job accomplishments and contributions to customer service on Fort Benning.

Also, on behalf of the U.S. Army Claims Service, Post Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White will present a Certificate of Excellence to the Staff Judge Advocate Claims Office for exceptional achievement in affirmative claims medical care recovery.

Pvt. 1 Damon Pierce, Company D, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, participates in crew drills on the tube-launched, optically tracked, wire-guided 2 missile system. Results from the drills, along with feedback from other One Station Unit Training soldiers, were gathered at a demonstration for the Improved Target Acquisition system, an upgrade of the TOW, Tuesday at Harmony Church.

Powell's successor chosen

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — President Bill Clinton announced his choice Aug. 11 to fill the post of the nation's top-ranking military officer, currently held by Gen. Colin Powell.

Supreme Allied Commander, Europe, and Commander-in-Chief, United States European Command Gen. John M. Shalikashvili will assume duty as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Oct. 1 pending Senate confirmation.

Clinton described Shalikashvili as "a soldier's soldier, a proven warrior," and "a creative and flexible visionary," in his White House announcement.

"He is also a shining example of what is best about the United States and best about our armed services," Clinton said.

"I look forward with great enthusiasm, Mr. President, to helping you keep America's armed forces the very best that we have ever had," Shalikashvili said.

He thanked the president for "... this opportunity ... to repay my country through service in such a position of such high responsibility."

Clinton said he nominated Shalikashvili because "... his skills are uniquely well-suited to the security challenges we face today."

He cited Shalikashvili's contributions in the revamping of NATO's military and political flexibility, and called him "... the right man to lead our forces in this challenging era."

Civilian Injury Reduction Team adds TLC

Occupational Health nurse lends 'human touch'

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

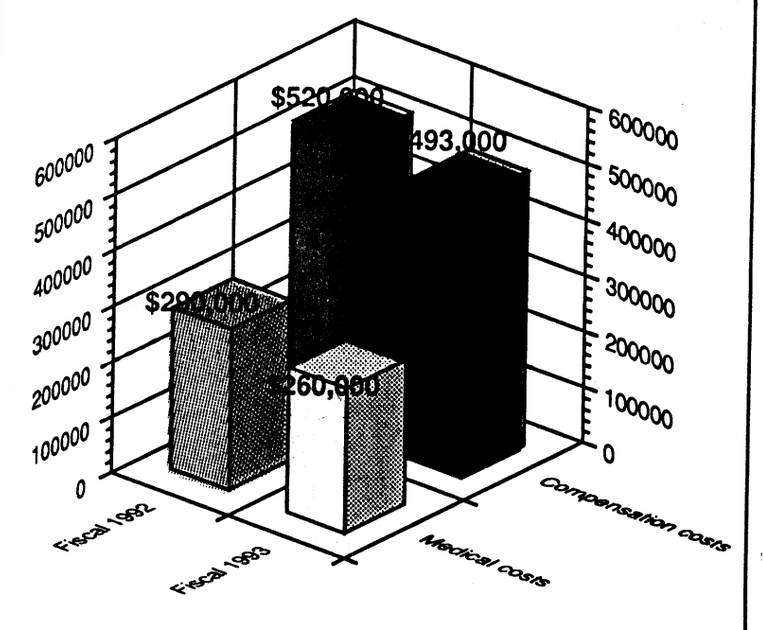
The Fort Benning Civilian Injury Reduction Team, established in 1991 to reduce costs associated with the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, has added a new element to its program.

Helen Butterfield, Occupational Health nurse, now visits injured civilian employees at their homes to help encourage them in their recovery and eventual return to work.

The team also works to improve workplace safety, adjust job requirements to bring disabled employees back to work and coordinates with Martin Army Community Hospital in the treatment of injured civilian workers, according to Judy Pennington, chief of Personnel Management and Systems Support Division.

"This team shows what the use of Total Army Quality principles can achieve," Pennington said.

"We have people from all over post working on this team," she said, "and we've managed to integrate team members so we can handle any aspect of the process of reducing injuries — from engineering out unsafe practices in the workplace to coordinating with doctors to bring patients back to work.



"The home visitation program was really the one element missing," Pennington said, "and we're really excited to have this in place. In the past, injured workers would have to deal with different organizations to complete their paperwork and so forth. We (the team) work together to make this process easier."

Butterfield explains her role in the visitation program as providing support to those injured.

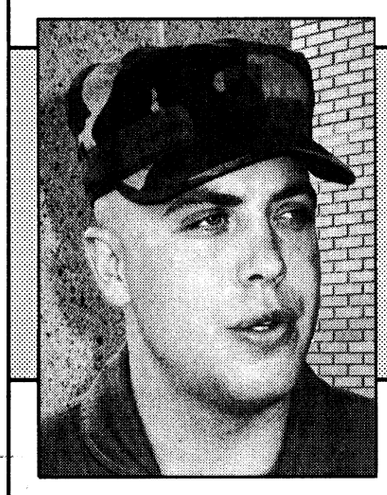
Rangers receive alert for deployment to Somalia

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Elements of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, were alerted for deployment to Somalia, a Department of Defense official announced Tuesday.



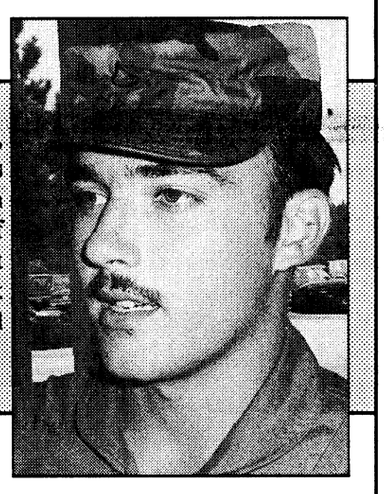
Escalating violence in south Mogadishu, targeted against U.N. forces since early June, resulted in the decision to alert for deployment a 400-soldier task force of rangers and support personnel under the command of Lt. Col. Danny McKnight, 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment commander. The task force will reinforce the Quick Reaction Force presently in Somalia from the 10th Mountain Division, officials said.

The rangers' mission will be to further augment the capacity of the Quick Reaction Force's ability to provide a rapid response and greater security to U.N. forces in the area, officials said.

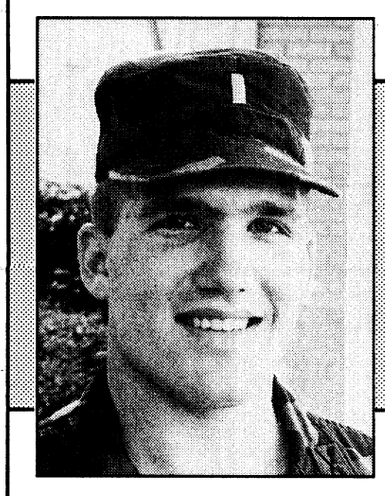
There are no plans at this time for deployment from Fort Benning.

VARIOUS VOICES

Who at Fort Benning provides the best customer service?



Staff Sgt. James Smith, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "The Staff Judge Advocate has been very helpful to me when I've gone there with a problem."



Staff Sgt. Blanca Adams, School of the Americas — "The people in the Post Exchange are prompt and efficient. They give good, fast customer service."

Sgt. Robert L. Wall, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I think housing referral does a great job. One lady there helped me out with some problems I was having in an apartment complex."

Pfc. John Cookerly, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "The Staff Judge Advocate claims department helped me out when I came back from Korea after a forklift had stabbed through my belongings."

2nd Lt. Edward Davis, Company D, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "The people at Student Operations provide everything a student on post needs. From tansportation to finance and housing, they take care of it all."

Patricia Bush, family member — "I work at the Ear, Nose and Throat clinic at Martin Army Community Hospital, and we are courteous and try to help patients and direct them to the services they need. People need other people to be nice to them, especially when they're not feeling well."

Fit to lead means fit to fight

NCOs must display, always set example for subordinates

By Henry Bone
NCO Journal

COMMENTARY

Noncommissioned officers must always be at the forefront of the soldiers they lead. Not only in time of war but also in training. NCOs must display and constantly set the example for subordinates. This is especially true in the area of physical fitness.

Successful NCOs must project the image of mental, physical and spiritual wellness to soldiers, adversaries and to the people of their country. Their bearing, shown by posture, overall appearance and manner of physical movement, is an outward display of the state of inner feelings and confidence. Bearing can either hurt the confidence of soldiers or help inspire them.

History teaches the importance of fitness on the battlefield. A demonstration of the physical qualities of leadership under the most adverse of conditions was exhibited by Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, who organized and led the retreat from Burma of an unorganized mob of men and women — Chinese, British, Burmese and a few Americans — in May 1942.

A rapid advance and unexpected enveloping movement by the Japanese had resulted in a disastrous defeat for the Chinese and British forces. The line of retreat was cut off and there was no choice but to hike through the jungle.

Stilwell led the group 140 miles from Burma into India and more than half of that distance on foot. The group had to contend with heat and almost incessant rain, tangled jungles, insect-ridden swamps and 7,000-foot mountains. Many became ill with dysentery. Some of these, and those wounded prior to the march, had to be carried on stretchers.

After 20 days, however, Stilwell led a well-organized and disciplined band into India. Stilwell, at age 59, had accomplished this feat through what one author has called "superb leadership coupled with indefatigable energy and excellent physical condition."

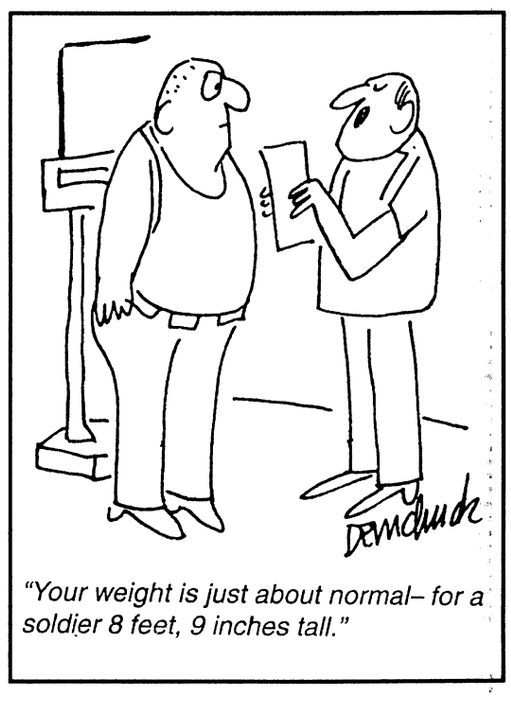
Imagine the outcome if this leader hadn't the physical stamina to endure. He soon would have found his mental and spiritual faculties deteriorating. More lives would have been lost.

The late Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, who served as a division, corps and Army commander, spoke of physical fitness as one of the most important ingredients of leadership.

"I was able to keep up with the best of my troops in the hottest sectors and the toughest terrain and climate," Ridgway said.

Ridgway also prescribed what he believed should be the standard for commanders of large units.

"The division commander should have the physical endurance, stamina and reserves of his best infantry battalion commanders, because that is where he belongs — with them — a good part of he time," he said.



Ridgway said that he believed a leader should be in excellent physical condition at all times, since at any time he could be thrust into a combat situation, with no time to get into shape.

NCOs aren't exempt from this notion. Staff Sgt. Webster Anderson found himself in such a situation while serving in Vietnam. Anderson was the section chief for Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 320th Artillery, 101st Airborne Division.

During the early morning hours of Oct. 15, 1967, a North Vietnamese infantry unit, supported by heavy mortar, recoilless rifle, rocket-propelled grenade and automatic weapons fire, attacked his battery. When the initial enemy assault breached the defensive perimeter, Anderson climbed to the exposed parapet to lead the defense. He directed effective howitzer fire against the attackers and personally killed a number of those attempting to overrun his position.

During the action, Anderson was severely wounded by grenades. Unable to stand, he propped himself against the parapet and continued to direct fire and to encourage his men. When an enemy grenade landed within the gun pit near a wounded crew member, Anderson, heedless of his own safety, crawled to the grenade and tried to throw it.

It exploded in midair, grievously wounding him. Although now only partially conscious, he refused medical attention and continued to rally his men in the defense of their position. Anderson looked after his soldiers and for his actions he was awarded the Medal of Honor.

"Your weight is just about normal– for a soldier 8 feet, 9 inches tall."

It's hard to predict the kinds of physical challenges soldiers will face in future wars. Anderson's situation is one example of the physical, mental and spiritual circumstances today's NCO might meet on the battlefield. It's also likely that enemy rear operations will pit truck drivers, clerks and cooks against enemy parachutists in hand-to-hand combat.

NCOs have a responsibility to ensure they and their soldiers are physically fit and able to endure the rigors of combat. In addition, NCOs must have an understanding of the three key elements of fitness — physical, mental and spiritual —and how they are dependent on each other for a complete "Total Fitness" package.

Once NCOs understand that philosophy they need to practice and preach it to their soldiers. If any of those elements had been a weakness for Anderson, chances are he wouldn't have been able to function as effectively as he did. He truly was able to lead from the front.

Physically fit soldiers are better able to withstand stress in peace or war, partly because of the psychological dividends of physical conditioning. These dividends come in the form of increased alertness, greater self-confidence and aggressive, competitive mental and spiritual attitudes — critical factors on any battlefield.

Somaliagram: 13th CSB settling in

By Murray J. Rupert
13th Corps Support Battalion

COMMENTARY

The advance element of the 13th Corps Support Battalion arrived safely in Mogadishu Aug. 17 after a relatively short 18-hour flight from Fort Benning.

By the way, we were treated very well by Rich International Airways. The service was super, the food was very good (by airline standards) and the coffee was the best I have ever tasted on an aircraft. All in all, it was a very comfortable trip.

Upon our arrival in Mogadishu, we were greeted by the commander and some soldiers of the 68th Corps Support Battalion, the unit we are replacing.

They were well organized and got us quickly out of the airport and safely over the 17 miles of road from the airport to our home here in Somalia — Sword Base.

Immediately upon our arrival at Sword Base, we moved into the offices and living areas that we will be using for the next six months.

The commander of the 68th, Lt. Col. Rich Gula, made it easy on us by not making us transition through a temporary tent city arrangement until they departed.

Instead, the 68th CSB personnel occupied the tent city so we could feel at home immediately, and, of course, so that we could relieve them of the mission more quickly.

I think we will carry on this procedure for those personnel who replace us only 170 days from now — but who is counting days?

Sword Base is much more comfortable than any of us had expected, but it's not Fort Benning by any stretch of the imagination.

The weather is beautiful, with hot, but not so humid, days characterized by blue skies, scattered clouds and a constant breeze, which makes it feel cooler.

The nights are breathtaking with crystal clear skies full of stars and pale white fluffy clouds (there is no pollution to reduce visibility). Sleeping is comfortable as long as we keep fans turned in our direction.

Many years ago, Sword Base was home to the Soviets. They manufactured tanks here and did a lot of other types of metal fabrication and vehicle repair.

Today, the base is occupied exclusively by U.S. forces (I am base commander) and is used as a logistics base for supporting the U.N. forces here.

The place is a real hodgepodge of old buildings, metal scrap heaps, tents, latrines, guard posts and parking areas.

We even have a small burial plot where two Somalis were laid to rest years ago.

We have a nice headquarters building, which flies the American and U.N. flags and our own battalion flag.

We have the only military chapel in Somalia, and we have enough shower heads for all of our soldiers to take a shower every day.

The food is OK and will continue to improve during our stay here. The flies and mosquitos are few in number relative to what we expected.

Last night while visiting guard positions, a private first class and I surprised a porcupine that had to weigh somewhere between 30 and 40 pounds — a very major porcupine. We did not try to get any closer.

Now for the not-so-good news. The Mogadishu area is still very tense with frequent incidents of attacks against the U.N. forces by a few supporters of Gen. Mohammed Farrah Aidid, one of the Somali warlords.

Sword Base itself has received some fire in the form of mortars, rocket-propelled grenades and small arms, although we have experienced no mortar or rocket attacks during our brief stay here.

We are taking every possible precaution to protect our soldiers both on base and while off base performing missions.

We wear our flak vests and helmets as required, operate a very comprehensive base security system and we "own the night" with our night vision devices.

Additionally, our vehicles always travel in convoys with gun trucks to provide security.

We are hopeful that the United Nations will get Aidid under control in the near future so that life here can get back to normal.

I'm not telling you these things to frighten you, but merely to inform you because I know you expect to hear the truth.

All in all, morale is very high (I check this constantly), and all our soldiers in the advance element are smiling and making the best of the situation.

We are looking forward to receiving the main body of the battalion very soon so we can get on with this mission and come home by the end of February.

help. They have my undivided attention, and they appreciate knowing they're missed and are needed."

The program is aimed, butterfield said, at getting injured workers back on the job as soon as they are ready. "Historically," she said, "once people are out of work with an injury for 6 months, 60 to 80 percent won't return. After a year, you might as well give up."

Another element of the program is expanding the light-duty program, according to Dan Fusco, FECA administrator with the Directorate of Civilian Personnel.

"We're looking at ways to keep injured employees on the job, performing light-duty tasks they can handle," Fusco said. "If we can keep people off of Workmen's compensation, and help bring back those already on the rolls, we can reduce costs and protect our work force.

"People want to work," Fusco said, "and we find ways to help our injured employees stay on the job."

So far, Fusco said, the team has been responsible for saving more than $1 million during the first three quarters of fiscal 1993. Savings range from injuries prevented to reduction of medical and Workmen's Compensation expenses.

Pennington said the next phase of the program will include some type of investigative element. "The vast majority of injury cases are legitimate," she said, "but there are occasional abuses. We need to be able to investigate those cases when they occur."

The team includes members from the directorates of Civilian Personnel, Public Works and Resource Management, the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity, the Infantry Branch Safety Office, Preventive Medicine and Fire Prevention. Chief of Staff Col. Burnet R. Quick is also a member of the team.

"None of us could do it alone," said Pennington. "We've been successful because all the necessary people are involved to make the program work."

Butterfield agrees. "It's exciting to see this program continue to grow," she said.

"All the important aspects are working in sync — the program is doing even better than we'd expected."

Recreation

Camp managers attend workshop

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning's Community Recreation Division and the Army Community and Family Support Center hosted a joint service outdoor recreation management training workshop at Uchee Creek Aug. 16 through 20.

Fifty-two travel camp managers from military installations throughout the United States attended the workshop, said Bob McKeta, director of Army Outdoor Recreation.

The workshop covered organizational, marketing and revenue-generating ideas for campgrounds and recreational activities.

Guest speakers at the workshop included Col. Douglas J. Middleton, chief of staff of the Army Community and Family Support Center, two landscape architects and the general manager of the St. Petersburg, Fla., KOA campground, among others.

Subjects covered ranged from campground design and maintenance to software applications for campground reservations.

"Fort Benning should be proud of having an area like Uchee Creek."

— Bob McKeta
Director, Army Outdoor Recreation

"We want (the participants) to leave with ideas on how to improve their operations," McKeta said.

The workshop was planned for Uchee Creek, McKeta said, because "it made sense to host a campground operation at one that is well developed and has new facilities."

"Fort Benning should be proud of having an area like Uchee Creek, with so much to offer," McKeta said. "We have had a lot of positive comments."

About half of the group stayed in the cabins at Uchee Creek. One guest was Patricia Gardner, a campground manager from Fort Knox, Ky.

"We are looking at doing some renovations and are interested in how the cabins went up here," she said.

"This is a beautiful area."

80 percent of military exercise right to vote

American Forces Information Service

Recent reports indicate service members and their families got out in record numbers to vote in the 1992 federal election.

More than 80 percent of the military voted in the election, compared to 63 percent in 1988, said Department of Defense voting officials.

In addition, the percentage of votes by family members in the 1992 election increased by 23 percent over the 1988 figures.

The figures are derived from post election surveys of military communities by DoD's Federal Voting Assistance Program office.

In comparison, the national average increased by a little more than 5 percent, to 55.9 percent.

In 1988, just over 50 percent of the general public voted.

Service breakdown shows that 72.9 percent of the Army voted compared to 56.4 percent in 1988; Navy, 79.9 percent to 74.3 percent; Air Force, 82.2 percent to 59.6 percent; Marine Corps, 81 percent to 65 percent; and Coast Guard, 84.1 percent to 67.3 percent.

"These 1992 increases can be directly attributable to the aggressive voter assistance programs conducted by the commanders and to the progress made with the states in simplifying the absentee voting process," said Phyllis Taylor, DoD's federal voting assistance program director.

Electronic transmission of election materials, to include ballots, and increased acceptance and use of the federal write-in ballot are just a couple of the measures some states have adopted to make it easier for absentee voters, said Taylor.

Those who didn't vote said they had no candidate preference, did not know how to vote absentee or did not trust either the candidates or the political parties.

POST BRIEFS

Rigging facility ground breaking planned

A ground-breaking ceremony to officially recognize the start of construction for a Ranger Rigging Facility will be Sept. 7 at noon between the Publications Warehouse and Lawson Army Airfield. Parking will be available in the vicinity of McCarthy Hall.

For more information, contact Capt. Guy Mallow at 545-5136.

Luncheon set for civilian awards

The Civilian Awards Luncheon will be Sept. 28 at the Supper Club at the Fort Benning Officers' Club from 11:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. The U.S Army Infantry School will be the host. Nominations for employee of the month for August should be sent to Pat Beasley, Management and Employee Relations Division, Directorate of Civilian Personnel, by Monday. For information, call 545-4483.

Stress classes available for civilians

The Directorate of Civilian Personnel will conduct stress classes for civilians affected by the reduction in force.

The classes will be Tuesday and Thursday from 9 to 11 a.m. in Infantry Hall. Those employees who have received separation letters should attend the seminar Tuesday.

Employees who are being displaced (bumped or retreating to other positions) should attend the Thursday seminar.

Nominations may be made by calling the Training and Development Division, DCP, at 545-5580 or 545-5656 by Tuesday.

Insurance reps to visit Fort Benning

Representatives from CNA and Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance companies will be available for consultation Sept. 8.

James Rice from CNA and Frank Williams from Blue Cross and Blue Shield will be in Building 2506, Classroom 2 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Appointments may be made by calling the Directorate of Civilian Personnel at 545-3374 or 545-2470.

CG to host excellence appreciation breakfast

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White will recognize military and civilian employees for superior job accomplishments at a quality awards breakfast at 8 a.m. Wednesday in the Supper Club at the Fort Benning Officers' Club.

The Training and Doctrine Command Communities of Excellence Team will be guests.

Layaway warehouse

The Post Exchange layaway warehouse is located at the rear of the Main Post Bowling Center, Building 2785.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Sept. 5. If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-6, C-1, C-2, D-11, D-17, E-2, E-7, J-1, M-2, M-8, O-1, O-3, O-5, O-6, O-7, Q-2, S-1, T-5, T-6 and U-5.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas. People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

Crescrenz weapons pool to close Sept. 4

The Crescrenz Consolidated Equipment Pool Branch (formerly called the Weapons Pool), Maintenance Division, Directorate of Logistics, Building 9106, will be closed for business Sept. 4 because of the Labor Day holiday, which will be observed Sept. 6.

Women's memorial

CFC to accept donations

Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation

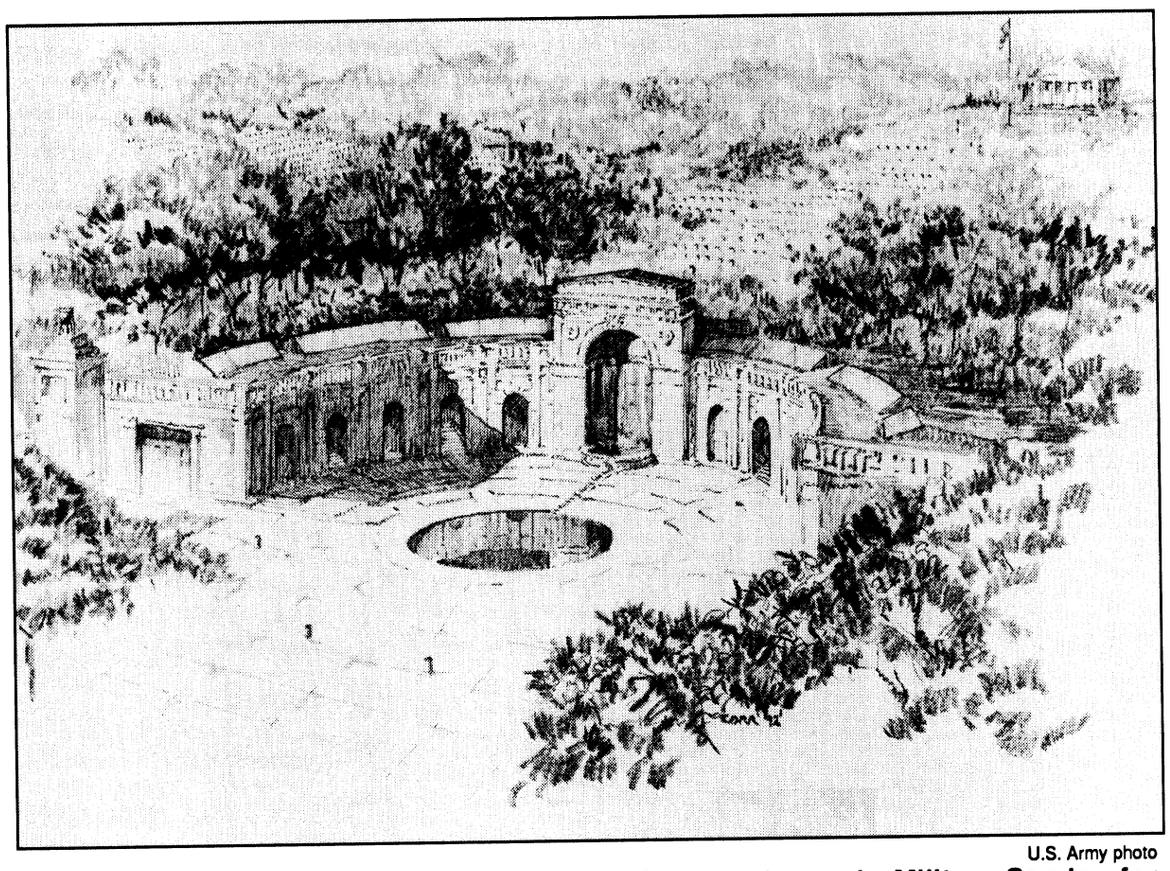
WASHINGTON — The Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation has announced its participation in the annual Combined Federal Campaign, the only authorized charitable fund-raising drive in the federal workplace.

The foundation was established to construct a memorial to the women who have served the American armed forces throughout history.

The memorial, to be built at the gateway to Arlington National Cemetery, will be a living memorial documenting the history and service of the 1.8 million women who have served since the American Revolution, as well as those who will serve in the future.

Funding for the memorial and its computerized "register" preserving the history of women in the military will come solely through nonfederal sources to include special projects, underwriting, and donations through the CFC and by individuals, corporations, organizations and foundations.

A nonprofit organization, the foundation must raise approximately $15 million to begin construction of the memorial. More than $1.1 million has been set aside in the building fund.



In addition to honoring America's service women, the memorial will restore the historic gateway to Arlington National Cemetery, an existing retaining wall that is badly in need of repair.

The memorial is a registered participant in the 1993 Combined Federal Campaign, the annual workplace fund-raising drive conducted by the U.S. government for all military, civilian agency and postal workers worldwide. The agency code is 1025.

In state and corporate campaigns, donors should designate "Women in Military Service for America Memorial" on their pledge card.

To donate or pledge through the CFC, designate Agency Code 1025.

For further information or to register and honor an American woman for her military service, call (800) 222-2294.

U.S. Army photo

Sketch of the approved architectural design for the Women in Military Service for America Memorial by John Carr. Planned for the gateway to Arlington National Cemetery in Washington, D.C., the memorial will honor the 1.8 million women who have served in the U. S. military.

About The Memorial

What: A memorial to honor the more than 1.8 million women who have served or are serving in the armed forces starting with the American Revolution.

Where: The gateway to Arlington National Cemetery.

When: Ground-breaking ceremony when money set aside in building fund meets estimated construction costs. Dedication 18 to 24 months later.

Who: Spearheaded by the Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation.

Those to be honored: All U.S. service women. The foundation is seeking names, addresses, photos and memorable experiences of women who have served. Descendants of deceased service women are asked to register them.

Design: Marion Gail Weiss and Michael Manfredi of Weiss/Manfredi, New York City, winners of national competition. The Memorial features an upper terrace with views of Arlington National Cemetery and the monuments of Washington. On the terrace, there will be an arc of glass "pages" in which quotations from service women are etched. This arc of glass also introduces natural light into the Memorial's education center. At the lower terrace in front of the hemicycle wall are the reflecting pool and court of honor. The education center located behind the hemicycle houses a hall of valor, theater and a computer register of service women. Through the data base, visitors may access photos, military histories and individual stories of registered women.

Funding: The cost for building the memorial — an estimated $14 million — must be raised through nonfederal funds. This sum must be available by November. So far, $1.1 million is committed to the building fund.

Donations and registrations: Donations and histories of service women can be sent to: Women in Military Service Memorial, Dept. 560, Washington, D.C., 20042-0560. Telephone: (800) 1-SALUTE or (800) 472-5883.

The memorial is a registered participant in the 1993 Combined Federal Campaign, the annual workplace fund-raising drive conducted by the U.S. government for all military, civilian agency and postal workers worldwide. Agency code is 1025. In state and corporate campaigns, donors should designate "Women in Military Service for America Memorial" on their pledge card.

TRADOC senior NCOs meet

TRADOC News Service

Attendees at the recent Training and Doctrine Command's Command Sergeant Major Workshop focused on several mutual concerns regarding soldier training, according to the command's top noncommissioned officer.

"The sessions were productive and provided the sergeants major with the command's view of issues," said Training and Doctrine Command Command Sgt. Maj. Walton E. Woodall.

"We found that what may be an issue at one installation or school is not necessarily the issue at another installation or school. But, through talking and listening at the workshop, sergeants major were able to come up with or share solutions to similar problems and concerns. That, as well as updating them on Army and TRADOC issues, is what the workshop is all about."

More than 70 command sergeants major and sergeants major from throughout TRADOC, Forces Command, U.S. Army Reserve and the Army National Guard attended the Aug. 9 to 12 workshop.

Several speakers, including Sgt. Maj. of the Army Richard A. Kidd, said the soldiers of the noncommissioned corps, as the Army's senior trainers of soldiers, have unique challenges in today's environment.

The bottom-line mission continues to be providing quality soldiers capable of adapting to a variety of missions.

This versatility, according to Kidd, is a key component to maintaining a trained and ready Army, prepared for decisive victory.

TRADOC Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. John P. Herrling described the command's role as the Army changes to a continental U.S.-based force.

He said that during these transitional actions, the Army must strive to "maintain a versatile and balanced stance" and TRADOC will continue to "train soldiers and develop leaders."

A major challenge is assuring relevance and excellence in leader development and training as the Army looks at ways to find economies and efficiencies, Herrling said.

Woodall echoed those thoughts and added that "as the senior trainers of soldiers, we have an obligation to the nation to give them our very best. We will do that. We will make sure that every training day counts."

An important part of the workshop occurred on the last day when installation command sergeants major gave briefings about their single soldier living community action plans.

TRADOC's plan gives better focus to improving the quality of life for single soldiers at posts. It is a primary concern of Gen. Frederick M. Franks Jr., TRADOC commander. Woodall heads efforts to ensure single soldiers issues and needs are being met.

"We took on the challenge and got every installation command sergeant major involved," Woodall said.

"Their seven months of hard work — and let me say that most of the groundwork was done by the single soldiers themselves — was evaluated during their briefing."

"We are doing some good for our soldiers," Woodall said. "This is the first time we've tried to do something like this, and it's a great learning and teaching experience for everyone. We're going to keep this going and do the best we can to take care of soldiers."

The next step in the process includes further evaluation of the installations' action plans.

Woodall will brief Franks on the program for acceptance into the budget process.

"We're not going to stop doing this," Woodall said. "It has shown a new, better and less costly way to put resources against a very important quality of life concern of our soldiers. General Franks is supporting our efforts, and command sergeants major are committed to this soldiers' program."

DPW makes room for guests

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

The ground-breaking ceremony marks the beginning of a guest house being built to meet the demand for housing by Fort Benning's soldiers and family members.

The ground-breaking ceremony to officially start construction of Fort Benning's new guest house took place Monday at 9 a.m. on Ingersoll Street behind the Defense Printing Service, Building 130.

The ceremony began with the national anthem and honors performed by the Infantry Band. After an invocation by Chaplain (Col.) Roy Plummer, Ray Wagner, chief of the Billeting Branch under the Directorate of Public Works, took the podium for his opening remarks and the introduction of the guest speaker, Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White.

"I consider quality of life for soldiers and their families my top priority," White said. "What we are doing here is just one more example of where we are looking to the future to take care of soldiers and their families in a quality way, so I'm very proud to be able to take part in this ceremony.

"As resources get tight, it's not very often that we get the opportunity to break ground for a new facility, and we are going to have that opportunity ... so we are on the move at Fort Benning, Georgia, and we are not looking back," White said.

After White's remarks, he was joined by Wagner and Mike Ryan, construction superintendent for MW Builders, the contractor for the facility, in officially breaking ground on the site.

The two-story, 31,856 square foot facility will house 60 units and will cost an approximate $2.7 million.

The facility will provide 29 guest suites for 174 persons, three suites designed for handicapped guests to accommodate 12 people, and 28 single rooms to hold 112 guests.

All units will include self-contained kitchens.

The new guest house is an addition to the three guest houses that Fort Benning already has on Richardson Circle.

Wagner said the new guest house is necessary because the permanent-party soldier strength is so heavy that additional guest houses are needed for family members.

The facility is expected to be completed by November 1994.

New program to evaluate quantity, quality of post facilities, services

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning is one of three Training and Doctrine Command installations to participate in a unique new test program that will assess the post's needs and communicate them to Department of the Army officials.

The Installation Status Report will compare the quantity and quality of Fort Benning's facilities and services with Armywide standards.

"For the first time in history, the Army has come up with standards for posts Armywide," Bill Crane, team leader, said. "Before, different posts had different standards. Just as units train to meet Army standards, individual posts will now strive to meet standards that apply to all posts."

Crane said the report is a potentially valuable management tool that will allow Army leaders at all levels to identify the strengths and weaknesses of a particular post.

"This is especially important when the Army's installation management needs are being aggravated by downsizing and budget cuts," Crane said.

Other Training and Doctrine Command installations conducting the test include Fort Gordon, Ga., and Fort Knox, Ky. Forces Command installations and the Military District of Washington are also conducting the test.

The Installation Status Report concept test is divided into three phases. The first phase, infrastructure, will provide an assessment of the quality of all of the post's permanent facilities in five areas: mission facilities, strategic mobility facilities, housing, community facilities and utility systems.

To accomplish the evaluation, the post has established a team, comprised of personnel from various directorates.

Team members include Kathy Watts and Tom Rentschler of the Directorate of Public Works, Sally Dudley of the Directorate of Resource Management, Tom Zachary of the Directorate of Logistics, Debbie Addison of the Directorate of Community Activities and Crane and Theresa Bermudez of the Directorate of Operations and Training.

The team members are overseeing the operation of the entire test, while the actual assessments of the post's facilities are being done by representatives of the particular unit or facility according to a worksheet.

If a unit's barracks, for example, were being assessed, the inspector would go through the barracks and rate areas listed on the worksheet according to a color code.

Areas inspected would include living areas, bathrooms, the building's exterior and grounds.

A green rating means everything is in overall good condition, while an amber rating means that the facility is in overall fair condition but does not meet the standards.

A red rating means the area is substandard and in overall poor condition. To assist the inspectors in rating the facility properly, the worksheet includes representative pictures for each of the color conditions.

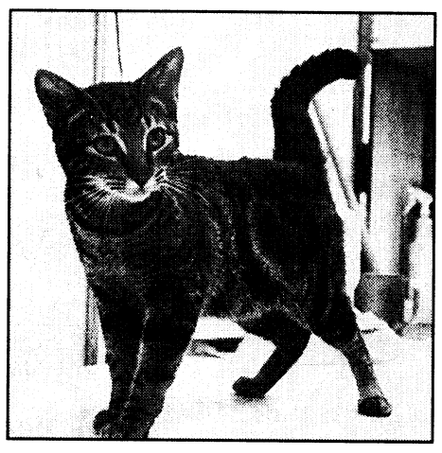
Crane said the program will serve not only as a means for identifying the post's needs, but as a tool for meeting them as well. Because the report will keep the Department of the Army better informed of Fort Benning's needs, there is a better chance the post will receive the necessary funding to meet them, he said.

Crane said the test has been made easier to administer because of the interest and cooperation shown by the units and activities.

"The system appears to be user friendly," Crane said. "One of the reasons for this is that it uses the same language that commanders are already used to seeing in their unit status reports."

"For the first time in history, the Army has come up with standards for posts Armywide."

— Bill Crane
Team leader



The infrastructure phase of the test is scheduled for completion by the end of this month. The other phases will include assessments of the environment and the post's services.

When the first phase is complete, the results will be sent to the Department of the Army for evaluation and adoption Armywide.

PET OF THE WEEK

This young male tabby is looking for a home. He is approximately 2 years old and is just one of many cats and dogs that can be adopted on post.

For more information, contact the Veterinary Services Office in Building 265 at 545-1127. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 8 to 11:30 am. and 12:45 to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed the last working day of each month.

If you have lost a pet, check the stray impoundment facility in Building 283.

Animal control on post is a function of the Military Police Activity.

Stray pets are given three working days to be claimed from the time they are picked up by animal control personnel.

If the pets are not claimed, they become government property and may be adopted or destroyed.

Rabies tags are the only way that Veterinary Services can identify the owner of a lost pet. Pet owners are reminded that they are required to register their pets and update their records if changes occur.

There is no cost to register a pet. If a rabies vaccination is required, however, then the owner must pay for the vaccination.

Champion Mad Dogs chew up competition

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

Between lightning bolts and raindrops, the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity's Mad Dogs split a two-game playoff with Otto's Boys from Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion, 4-6, and 17-14 to win their first post title in more than 10 years.

In the first game, Otto's Boys grabbed the lead in the first inning on a three-run homer from left center fielder Wes Francis. They tacked on a single run in the top of the fourth inning on an RBI sacrifice fly by first baseman Mark Baldwin to go up 4-2.

In the fifth inning, Otto's Boys pushed the lead to 6-2 on an RBI foul out by second baseman LaNeil Davenport and an RBI double off the bat of Francis for his fourth RBI of the game.

The Mad Dogs chipped away at the lead in the second inning by scoring their first run of the game on a sacrifice fly by left fielder Frank Espoda. In the third inning, the Dogs added another run to cut the lead to 3-2, on a fly ball out to left field by second baseman Sammy Diaz.

The Dogs closed out their scoring in the bottom of the seventh inning on a two-run homer by Espoda to cut the lead to 6-4, before third baseman Jeff Newsome made the final out to end game one and force a second game for the title.

"We came out a little tight, and they took full andvatage of it," said left center fielder Tommy Lynn.

Game two was the exact opposite of game one.

The Mad Dogs got the first scoring opportunity in the top of the first inning, scoring two runs on a single to center field off the bat of Lynn for a 2-0 advantage.

A single run in the top of the third for the Dogs pushed the lead to 3-0. A double play by the infield and a base-running mistake on Dogs right fielder Trent Collins cost the Dogs a chance to score at least two more runs in the inning.

A four-run outburst in the top of the third inning by the Dogs pushed the lead to 7-0. A three-run homer by relief pitcher Jeff Newman and a sacrifice fly by Diaz looked to be the final nail in the coffin for Otto's Boys.

Terry K. Ray/Special to The Bayonet
Wes Francis of Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion, rounds third base headed for home.

Otto's Boys put two runs on the board in the bottom half of the third, when pitcher Bryan Wolfley singled to center field for one run and shortstop Otto Leone hit a sacrifice fly to right center field for another run cutting the lead to 7-2.

The Dogs pounced right back in the top of the fourth inning with three more runs for a 10-2 bulge.

Three straight singles loaded the bases for the Dogs with no one out. A sacrifice fly to right field by Espoda scored one run and allowed the runners to move up a base. Lynn hit a deep fly ball to left center field for another sacrifice RBI. Newman slapped a single down the left field line to score the third run of the inning.

In the bottom of the fourth inning, Otto's Boys scrapped for two more runs to cut the lead to 10-4. With the bases loaded and only one out, Baldwin hit a sharp grounder to shortstop Wyatt Mayes who flipped to second baseman Diaz for a force at second and an RBI. With two out and runners now on the corners, a single by right fielder Pete Marshall plated the second run.

In the fifth inning, the Dogs added to their lead by putting two more runs on the scoreboard for a 12-4 lead.

In the bottom of the fifth inning, Otto's Boys got the two runs back. An RBI single by Davenport and an RBI double from right center fielder Bill Schaffer cut the lead in half at 12-6.

A single run in the top of the sixth inning pushed the lead to 13-6 for the Dogs. With an inning and a half of softball left to be played, the Dogs seemed to be on the last lap home, but Otto's Boys pulled the leash tight on the Dogs in the bottom half of the sixth.

Five bases-loaded situations for the Boys scored five single runs with either a walk or a base hit. With runners on second and third and two out, a single to left field by third baseman Ronald Craig scored the final two runs of the inning. When the smoke cleared, Otto's Boy's had scored seven runs to tie the game at 13.

The Dogs went rabid in the top of the seventh, scoring four runs to break the tie and take a 17-13 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning. In the final frame, Otto's Boys could muster only two hits and one run before succumbing to the rabid bite of the Mad Dogs of MEDDAC.

"It was a heck of a ballgame," said Schaffer, one of Otto's Boys. "You couldn't ask for anything more. Nobody gave up; everyone gave 100 percent. Give them credit, they are a good ball club or they wouldn't have won. There was a lot of hitting in the second game. What can you say?"

Jekyll to sponsor annual triathlon

By Betty Thompson
The Jekyll Island Authority

Jekyll Island will conduct its ninth annual triathlon 8 a.m. Sept. 11 at the Jekyll Island Recreation Department. Registration is from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m. in the Convention Center "B" Hall.

The course will consist of a 1K ocean swim, a 40K flat blacktop bicycle course and a 10K run.

The entry fee is $30 per person in advance and $35 the day of the race. Entry forms are available on Jekyll Island at the Recreation Department and the Welcome Center; on St. Simons Island at Charter Health Center, Athletic Attic, Athletes Plus, Benjy's Bike Shop, Ocean Motion Shop and The Casino; and in Brunswick at Athletic Attic and Brunswick College.

There will be 10 men's divisions from ages 19 and under to 60 and over and eight women's divisions from ages 17 and under to 50 and over.

Helmets are required; there will be no drafting and wet suits are allowed. T-shirts will be provided to all participants. Refreshments will be provided after the race.

A prerace pasta dinner 6:30 p.m. Sept: 10 in "A" Hall at the Convention Center is included in the cost of registration.

Discounted lodging rates are available for race participants. Call the Jekyll Island Convention and Visitors Bureau at (800) 841-6586 or (912) 635-3636 for more information.

Benning hosts '93 summer biathlon

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

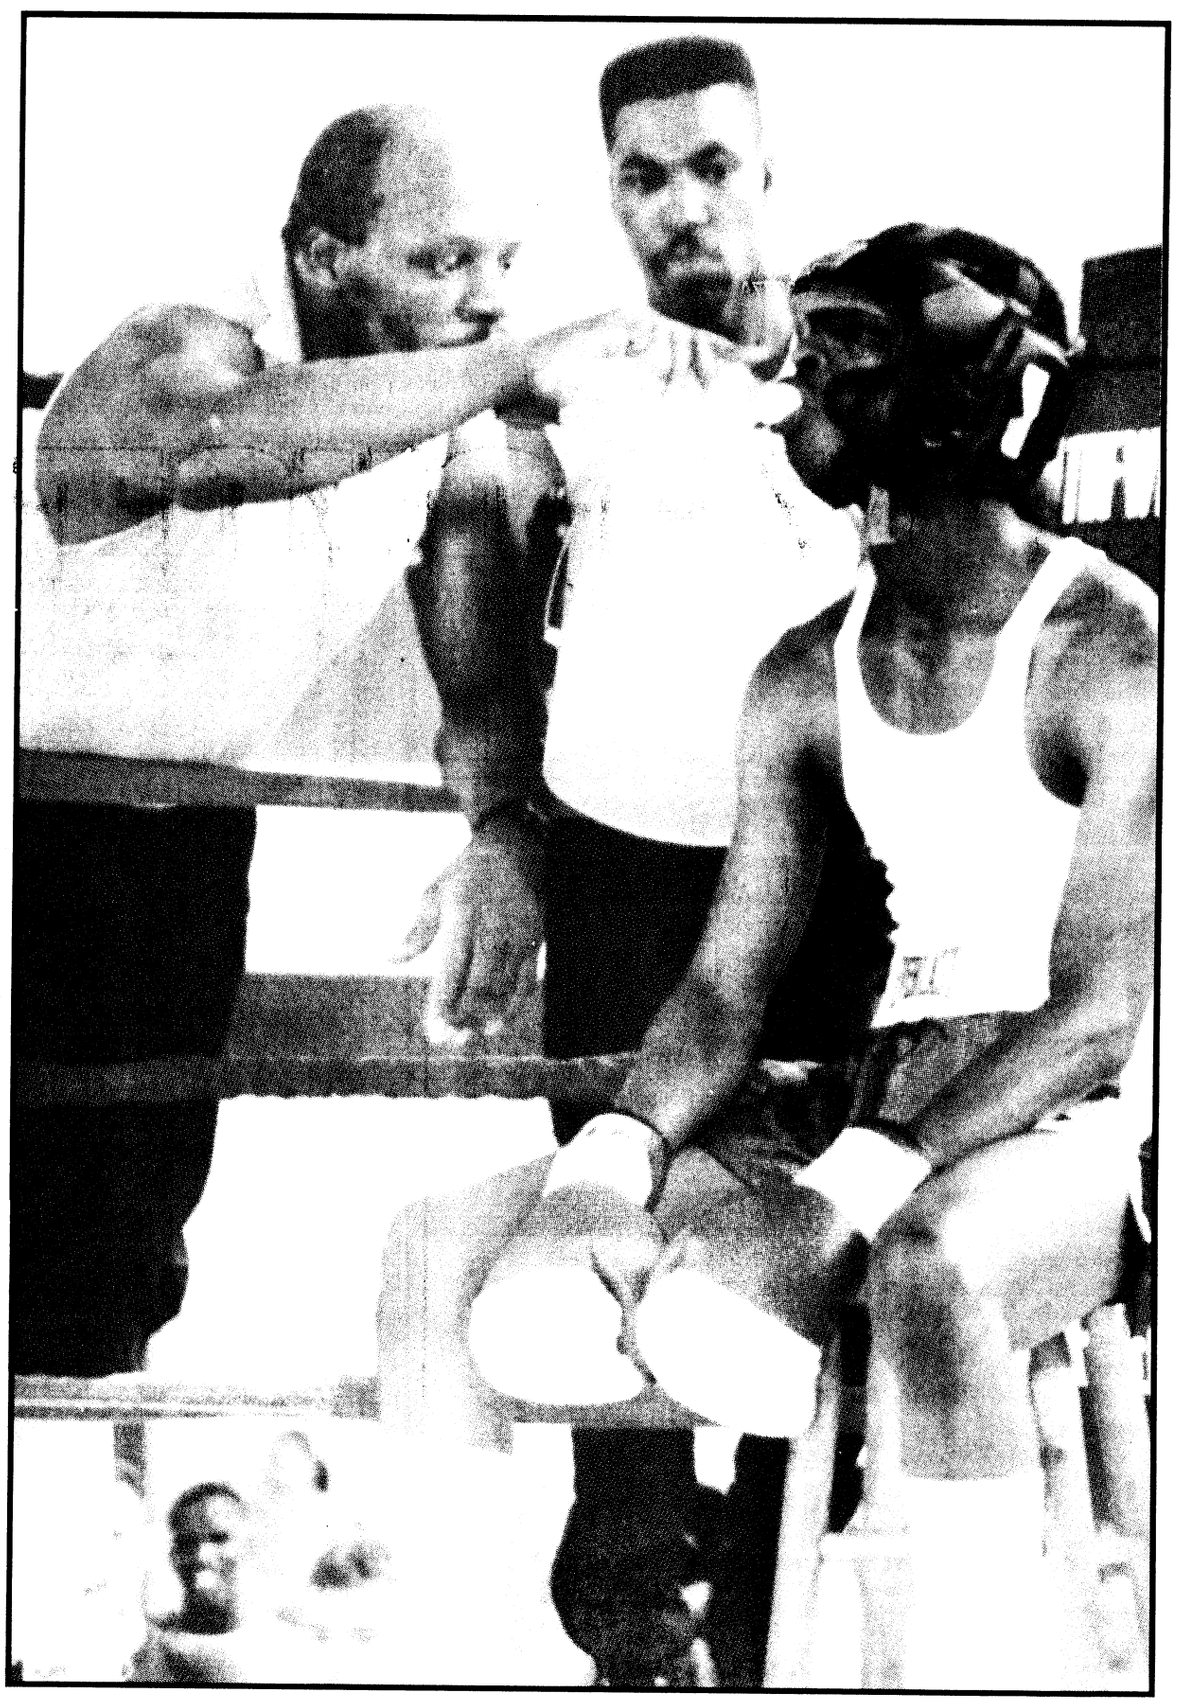
As part of the Summer Biathlon Series, Fort Benning's 1993 Doughboy Summer Biathlon will be Sept. 26 at English Range and Olive Field.

The Directorate of Community Activities and the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club will host the competition.

The race begins with a one-mile run, which will bring competitors to a shooting range where they will walk to a firing lane, pick up a rifle, and fire five shots at the metal knock-down targets from the prone position (lying down). After firing, the competitors will head out to run their second mile run, then take another five shots at the targets from the standing position. The competition ends with a final dash to the finish line.

The total run distance is five kilometers, and targets are at a range of 25 meters. For each target hit in the prone position, a 15-second deduction in overall finish time is awarded, with a 30-second deduction awarded from the standing position.

A .22-caliber biathlon rifle is used for the competition. Personal rifles are allowed, but must be .22 caliber, bolt action and magazine fed. All equipment will be furnished to competitors.



All competitors must attend a shooting safety class, presented by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit on English Range at 1 p.m. Sept. 25 or at 8 a.m. on the day of the competition. A certification card, good for two years in all summer biathlon races, will be issued after classes.

The competition is open to anyone 14 or older who completes the mandatory prerace safety clinic. Awards will be presented to the top three competitors in all of the six age groups, which run from 14 to 19, 20 to 29, 30 to 39, 40 to 49, 50 to 59 and 60 and up. Beginners are welcome.

Preregistration will be Wednesday through Sept. 24 at the Outdoor Recreation Center on Gillespie Street.

The preregistration fee is $12; fee for late registration, which begins Sept. 25 at the competition site, is $16. Registration fees include equipment, T-shirts, clinic, awards and refreshments.

For more information on the event, contact James Brown, Physical Activities Branch director, at 545-7978, or James Graham, Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club, at 689-3371.

Fort Benning soldiers won six of seven bouts to claim the "overall" title in a boxing smoker Aug. 20 at Kelley Hill Fitness Center.

Nine bouts between teams from Fort Benning, Fort Campbell, Ky., and the Atlanta South Ring Boxing Club were hosted by the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division.

In the novice class at 139 pounds, Joseph Arenas of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div., won a decision over Ryan Rimsek of Fort Campbell.

Davis Williams of Battery B, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, received more points than Charles Keel in the 147-pound weight class.

Ronald Jenkins, also of Battery B, won a decision from Carlos Sims of Columbus.

Rene Gomez of the 533rd Transportation Company pounded out a decision over Lamont Burgin of Fort Campbell to complete the sweep at 147 pounds.

At 156 pounds, Dale Hoover of Fort Campbell handed Fort Benning and Troy Ryan of HHC, 2nd Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., the only loss of the night. Ryan lost by retirement.

Raymond Jefferson of the 75th Ranger Regiment decisioned Maurice Underwood of Fort Campbell at 178 pounds.

Dyld Blast of Atlanta South Ring Boxing Club won a first-round retirement over John Wylie of Fort Campbell in the heavyweight division.

In the final bout of the evening, Andres Landor of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., scored a decision over Rick Garvin of Fort Campbell.

Stars fall on Vikings

By Terry K. Ray
Special to The Bayonet©

The Columbus Stars got back on the winning track Saturday night when they defeated the Forest Park Vikings 10-7 at Memorial Stadium to improve their record to 3-2.

The Stars' defense once again played a key role in the Stars' win.

Linebackers Terrance Perry and Frank Lewis combined for seven tackles — four by Perry and three by Lewis. Lewis also had a fumble recovery, and Perry blocked a third-quarter field goal attempt by the Vikings to keep the game knotted at 0.

The Stars also had their share of turnovers. Quarterback Donald Stroy was picked off twice for interceptions to kill drives and possible scores. Punt returner Michael Bailey also lost a fumble on a punt return deep in Viking territory.

On the positive side of the coin, the Stars put points on the board for the first time in more than 10 quarters of play. Stroy hit tight end Tyrone Ivory with a 24-yard touchdown on a swing pass to the right side. Pedro Cardnenas added the extra point for a 7-0 lead with less than 10 minutes left in the game. Minutes later defensive end Timothy O'Brien recovered a fumble on the ensuing kickoff to give the Stars the ball at their own 44-yard line.

The drive stalled at the Viking's 5-yard line and Coach Tom Staton opted for the field goal with less than three minutes to play. Cardnenas split the uprights to give the Stars a 10-0 bulge.

"Some of the guys on the offense were upset that I chose to go with the field goal," said Staton. "We have a lot of guys on this team who don't get the chance to play all the time and I felt that they needed the opportunity to do their jobs and get a little playing time."

The Vikings got their only score late in the game when quarterback Lloyd Harris found wide receiver Felix Green in the corner of the end zone for a 25-yard touchdown. With the extra point conversion, the Vikings pulled to within 3 with 1 minute and 15 seconds left in the game.

The Stars took possession of the ball at their own 39-yard line then ran out the clock on the Vikings.

The Stars outgained the Vikings, 228 yards to 99 yards. The Stars were scheduled to play the Decatur Colts in Decatur, Ga., but a change in plans has moved the game to Memorial Stadium Saturday at 8 p m.

Take a stand — but choose carefully

COMMENTARY

Here's another deer-hunting dilemma in the vigilant search for the best hunting equipment. Should you buy a deer stand or head to the woods and build one?

This can be a tough choice for some hunters to make. A deer stand can cost anywhere from $49 to more than $200 depending on the make, model and accessories.

If you get some good scrap lumber, you can simply build one for only a couple of dollars.

Let's take a look at the first option. If you are considering a portable deer stand, there are three basic models available. You can buy a climbing stand, a ladder stand or a strap-on model.

Climbers seem to be very popular these days. In only a couple of minutes you can scale up a tree like a lumberjack. Versatility is the key here. You can position them at the desired height and in the direction that you want — two critical factors when setting up on any good deer trail. Also, they're fairly compact and will fit in the trunk of a car.

As for their disadvantages, well, there are a couple. More than one hunter has had a heart attack trying to scale up a tree.

It requires good muscular strength, coupled with a "rhythmic" climbing sequence: lift the upper portion with your arms, pull down, lock on tree; lift the bottom section (that your feet are strapped to), push down, lock on tree. Sounds fun, eh?

Another shortcoming is that some models aren't adjustable and you can't climb wide-trunked trees. Also, in rainy weather, some have a tendency to "slip or slide" down the tree.

Another fact is that once you get up there, if you drop something or leave something in your vehicle, then you have to repeat the climbing process.

I'm not knocking climbing stands, but you need to know what you're getting into.

Next comes the ladder stand. Here's a simple system that is very sturdy, requires little maintenance and can be set up in seconds. Most are comprised of three pieces — two "ladder" sections and the seat section.

To put this rascal into operation is easy — simply slide each section into the next one. Once it's together, put the bottom section on the ground about 3 to 4 feet from the base and lean the top seat section against the tree.

Next, you climb up and hook the chain around the tree, lock it down, climb back down and push the legs in until it's tight. That's it! Now this sounds easy, and it is (I own two of them). But, let's look at the disadvantages.

First, a ladder stand, once erected, is usually 10 to 13 feet long. You have to drag this thing through the woods, assembled or disassembled, and it will snag on every limb. And once you stand it up, well, it is just at the height that most pine tree limbs start to branch out (bring a saw).

Next, since it's standing on two legs, inevitably, one of them sinks deeper into the ground. And if that's not enough, to disassemble this creature, you may have to use a hammer to "bang" the legs apart. Except for their length, ladder stands are a good way go.

The last portable stand is the strap-on type. It doesn't climb, it doesn't lean, and you have to get it up to the desired height and strap it around the tree.

It has many of the advantages of the climber, except it doesn't climb. I haven't used this type, but it seems that you would have to either climb up the tree using limbs (very unsafe) or use nails or steps screwed into the trunk (not good for the tree).

It seems like it takes a lot of work that can be remedied by using a climber or ladder stand. But you have to make the choice for yourself.

Of course, the other option available is to simply build yourself a good stand. Scrap wood is available; and, since Fort Benning allows you to do this, it's an excellent option.

If you've been out in the woods anywhere on post, you'll see hundreds of these things — some probably date back to when the post was established in 1918.

Take a walk around sometime, you'll see every type imaginable. From the simple single-wood plank stuck between two limbs, to the big daddy of all stands, they're out there. I've seen some that must have been designed and constructed by a rocket scientist!

Anyway, you can be very creative when it comes to building a stand. Even though I have two ladder stands, I still build a few on post in areas that I frequently hunt. Yeah, you have to drag the materials through the woods; but, once it's done, all you have to do is grab your bow or gun, your gear and move out.

A word of caution: if you decide to use one already constructed that isn't being used by another hunter, be careful since the wood may be rotted. You don't want to take a nasty fall.

Choosing a stand can be a tough decision but one you'll have to make unless you use a blind on the ground or stalk through the woods.

I don't know about you, but there are too many hunters on opening day for me to be on the ground, and I feel a whole lot safer perched in the trees like an eagle.

Using a stand will give you a greater chance of success when that big buck comes around. With a little research, you can decide on the stand that is best for your type of hunting. Good luck and see you in the woods.

Stand Safety Tips

- Always use a safety strap
- Don't climb with a loaded weapon
- Use a rope to raise and lower your weapon into the stand
- Don't hook your stand to a dead tree

Show highlights school fashions

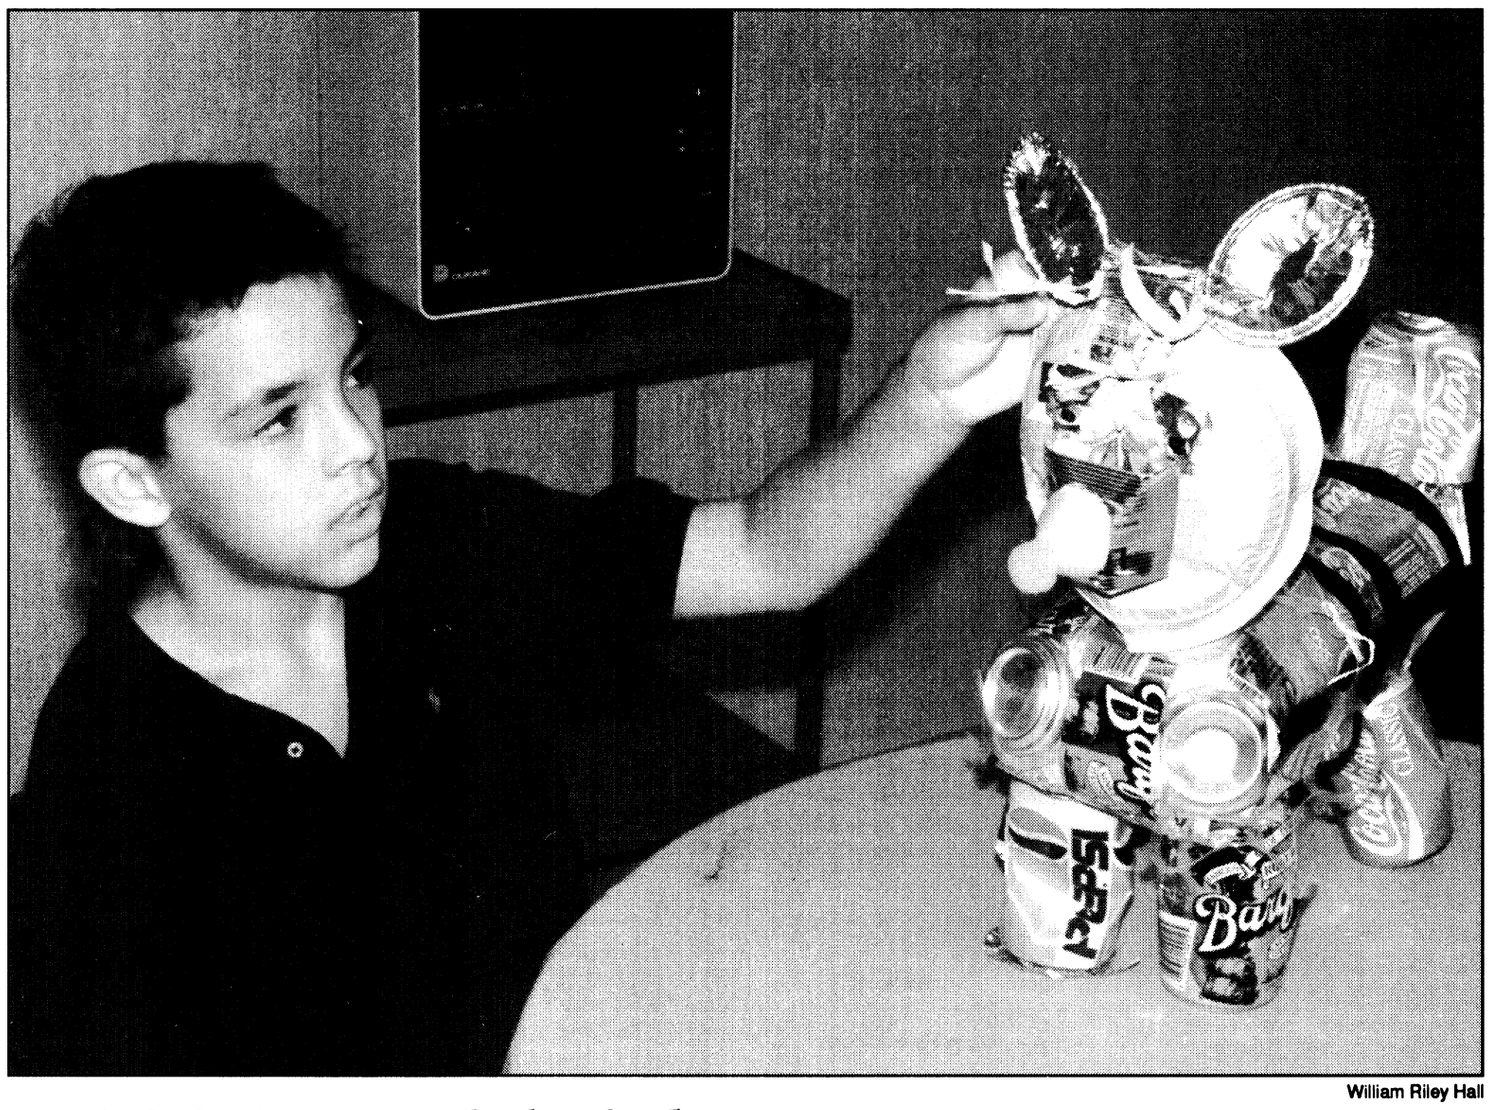
By Anthony Jackson
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

Big and small, short or tall — all were welcome to the festivities Aug. 20 and Saturday during Peachtree Mall's "Fall Back-To-School Lineup" fashion show.

Sponsored by the mall, WFXE Foxie105 FM and local businesses, the fashion show provided young and old a source of entertainment while advertising for business, said show officials.



Tryouts for the show were conducted earlier in the week; and, according to registration totals, more than 800 children and teens ages 5 to 19 attended in full force to show off their modeling talents.

"I went down with a friend and her son to see the tryouts, and it was overwhelming," said U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit ammunition specialist Diane Lowe. "I took my daughter, Kiersten, with me and the next thing I knew Kiersten and my friend's son, Sean, had been selected to model clothes in the show."

Nothing seemed to have been left to chance either, she said.

Fashions for sportswear, evening wear, large and small children were on display along with choreographed dance routines sprinkled throughout the show to add a touch of variety to the extravaganza.

"The entire show was well constructed and drew a large crowd all three times it ran," said Lowe. "The staff and choreographer were excellent with the children and the entire event gave the children a constructive way to be young and have fun."

Ceremony pays homage

By Denise MacDonald
American Red Cross

Two Red Cross volunteers who died earlier this year were honored in a ceremony Aug. 4 at Martin Army Community Hospital.

Retired Sgt. 1st Class Calvin Reece and retired Sgt. 1st Class William Harwell were remembered by family and staff as an "In Memory of Red Cross Volunteers" plaque was dedicated.

Reece worked in the pharmacy pre-pack section and donated more than 600 hours of service in six years.

Harwell worked in many areas of the hospital, from the information desk to the emergency room, and donated more than 400 hours of service.

Their volunteer services were greatly appreciated, and they will be missed, said David DeLeon, assistant station manager.

Family nurses woodpecker to health

Surrogate parents feed bird as many as 16 times a day

By Deana Kussman
Martin Army Community Hospital

No one can accuse Col. Kirk Reamey and his wife, Conie, of not protecting the environment. For the past two months, they have nursed an injured red-bellied woodpecker chick to health.

The injured bird was first discovered by Reamey June 2 as he began his daily jog near their residence on 1st Division Road. He noticed it hopping from the cover of a bush, but he was unable to find any trace of a nest or companions. Wary about disturbing the bird in its natural habitat, he left it.

An hour later, he returned from his run and found the woodpecker hunched on the cement walkway, covered with ants. Reamey took the bird inside, fearing that all he would be able to do was make the woodpecker more comfortable in its last hours. The woodpecker had a different plan.

After a few minutes of dripping water from their fingers into the bird's beak, the Reameys began to see a change. Before long, the woodpecker was drinking from an eyedropper and perking up rapidly.

Stephanie Crawczyk

Conie Reamey feeds pet woodpecker.

The Reameys first fed the woodpecker smashed bugs, then changed his diet to cat food at the advice of a veterinarian. For three weeks, the bird's surrogate parents fed him as many as 16 times a day.

The woodpecker soon was living in a cage outside during the day and taken back in the house at night.

With dedication to their feathered child, the Reameys allowed the bird to fly, first in the house, then outside. When the top was removed from its cage, it would fly around the trees in the Reameys' backyard, but it always returned to the cage as the sun set.

One day, Reamey saw the woodpecker flying around the cage, agitated, and he understood that the bird was ready to be free. Since then, the bird has slept in the wild, but it always returns to its "home" with the Reameys.

When the Reameys recently returned home from temporary duty, they were greeted by the now-healthy bird. He swooped down from the trees, skimming their heads and chittering his greetings. Within moments, the woodpecker landed at shoulder level on his favorite dogwood, demanding to be fed with loud vehement cries.

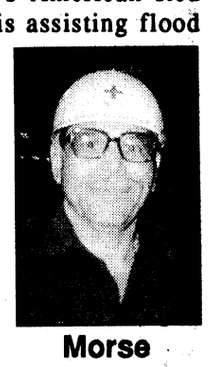
"It was an exciting homecoming and pleasing to know that he had been well kept by our neighbors," said Conie.

Now, in addition to his natural diet, the woodpecker eats a mixture of peanut butter and bird seed that she created.

In the afternoon when Reamey comes home, the woodpecker swoops down on him and buzzes his head, then lands on the nearest tree, impatiently waiting to be fed.

Reamey laughed at how he first thought he had saved a mockingbird, until his wife saw the bird hammering at a tree.

"It never dawned on me I had a woodpecker," he said.



"It was immensely satisfying to take a baby bird that was obviously near death and be able to return it to health and its natural environment."

Morse

Retired Sgt. Maj. Calvin Morse joined other Red Cross personnel in the flood area Aug. 11.

Morse, a volunteer at Martin Army Community Hospital, will be volunteering his time for three weeks as a damage assessment technician.

His duties will consist of determining whether private residences have been destroyed; and, if not fully destroyed, whether the damage is major or minor.

From these decisions, the amount of federal or Red Cross assistance will be decided.

Red Cross volunteers and staff members nationwide are responding to the flood areas of the Midwest.

Red Cross provides aid with food, shelter, clothing and other emergency needs for flood victims.

Later, other Red Cross personnel will be joining the forces in the flood areas.

Anyone wanting to assist the flood victims may make a cash donation at the Red Cross office, Building 1699.

For more information, call 545-5194.

ASK DR. FIT

U.S. Army Physical Fitness School

Q: What is a yo-yo diet?

A: A yo-yo diet is a food management program whereby the dieter loses weight, gains it back, loses it again, gains it back, etc. Up to 95 percent of dieters gain the weight back and even gain a few more.

These yo-yo diets actually harm the body.

These people's metabolism actually slows to preserve the energy supplies it presently holds in fat reserves.

Here are some guidelines:

- Instead of eating three big meals a day, try eating four smaller meals a day. It is called "grazing."
- Sip, savor and sit for your meals. Yes, like your mom told you, chew your food and eat slowly!
- Leave some food on your plate. There are starving people around the world who want food. So, do not buy as much food and send a donation to your favorite charity. If guilt forces you to eat it all, take smaller portions.
- Learn to read food labels and look for grams of fat. Decrease your fat intake by six grams a day.

Q: Is jogging or walking more effective?

A: Generally, running burns more calories per unit of time; however, if you are beginning a program, remember this: If a walker and a jogger are each moving at a 10-minute mile pace, the walker is burning more calories.

Q: What is the greatest distance one person has traveled on a bicycle in 24 hours?

A: This has little to do with losing weight, but it's a good statistic. The answer is 507 miles.

The event is a chance for all eligible spouses to become members of this year's OWC as well as sign up for the numerous activities being offered.

Among this year's classes, spouses will find: quilting, calligraphy, aerobics, cooking, smocking, how to make Christmas wreaths, rag baskets, floral swags and corn husk dolls. This is also the time to sign up youngsters for karate, gymnastics and piano.

Representatives of many organizations will be on hand for the event, including the Benning Bells, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts and Weight Watchers. Also Santa's Castle, the Columbus Museum and the National Infantry Museum will be represented to name a few.

Cub Scouts — Cub Scout Pack 271 of White School will host a roundup Sept. 9 at 7 p.m. All boys who are in first through fifth grade who are interested in joining should bring their parents to White School auditorium.

For more information, call Capt. Lee B. Oliver at 545-3915 or 545-2841.

Diabetes education — The Columbus Health Department will sponsor diabetes education classes Sept. 7 through Oct. 5 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Adult Physical Health, 1514 13th Ave. Columbus. Registration is $3.

The classes are designed to teach diabetics and family members how to monitor blood sugar, about proper nutrition and other kinds of self-care techniques.

For more information, call 327-1918.

Tax note — Georgia no longer collects the tax on casual sales of vehicles between private parties. The new law took effect Aug. 19. A casual sale is a sale from one private party to another of a car, boat, trailer or the like.

In the past, this tax was collected at registration. In Muscogee County, the rate was 6 percent of the value of the vehicle.

Sato food drive — A food drive is being conducted by SatoTravel. Register for free prizes just by dropping a food item in a shopping cart at one of SatoTravel's three locations through Tuesday.

Locations are Building 2628, Soldiers' Plaza; Building 247 on Ingersoll Street and Building 3245, Hanson Drive, Sand Hill.

Transition assistance classes — Transition assistance classes are as follows from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Each class will be conducted in Infantry Hall, Classroom 30.

- Retirees — Nov. 15 to 17 and Dec. 13 to 15.
- For others getting out of the service — Nov. 22 to 24, Nov. 29 to Dec. 1 and Dec. 6 to 8.

Soldiers within 180 days of getting out of the service are entitled to preseparation counseling before separation or retirement.

Before attending preseparation or counseling classes, all military personnel must process through the Transition Assistance Office, Building 2617, Soldiers' Plaza.

For more information, call 545-4902 or 545-4892.

Volunteer teachers, aides needed — The Combined Communities of Southeast Columbus organization needs volunteer teachers and aides for its tutorial program, which is at Eastway School on Buena Vista Road across from Wal-Mart.

Each instructor will be asked to tutor for one, two, three or four weeks on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon.

Instruction will be core type education, second through eighth grade. Aides are defined as high school graduates, seniors, juniors and college students.

Teachers are needed in reading, math, science and other fields.

For more information, call Lonnie Jackson at 687-5357 or Daisy Honor at 687-8808.

Weight loss group — Tops, a nonprofit support group for people trying to lose or maintain weight loss will have a free motivational meeting Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. in Building 2521 on Main Post.

For more information, call 689-8069 or 568-7111.

Tutor workshop — Volunteer tutors may attend a free training workshop Sept. 14, 16, 21 and 23 from 6 to 9 p.m. at Columbus College, Elizabeth Bradley Turner Center for Continuing Education. Each volunteer must attend all four nights of the workshop to be certified as a literacy tutor.

The workshop is sponsored by the Muscogee Area Literacy Association. For more information, call 649-0865.

29th plans reunion — The fourth reunion of the 29th Infantry Regiment, celebrating the 92nd year of active service of the regiment, will be Oct. 7 to 10 at Fort Benning.

The headquarters for this year's reunion will be the Holiday Inn (Airport) on the Manchester Expressway, Columbus. The telephone number at the reservation desk is 324-0231.

Scheduled events are:

Oct. 7: afternoon — registration

Oct. 8: morning — tour of Andersonville Civil War Prison and Prisoner of War Museum

Oct. 9: morning — weapons demonstrations; evening — 29th Infantry Association "Pioneer Ball"

Oct. 10: morning — memorial service and brunch

For more information, contact retired Command Sgt. Maj. Frank C. Plass at 561-0744 or Capt. Jon J. McMullen, regimental adjutant, at 544-6008.

Craft class teachers needed — The Officers' Wives' Club is looking for individuals who are interested in teaching craft classes. If you have talent you would like to share with OWC members, contact Conie Reamey at 682-7669 or Sue Rutledge at 689-0504. The list of classes must be complete by Aug. 30.

Sports registration — Youth Services has extended football, soccer and cheerleader registration until Sept. 10. Registration is Monday to Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Youth Services, Building 1056.

Individuals interested in tackle football must be 9 to 15 years old and must be present at the time of registration.

Also, Youth Services is in need of coaches for the upcoming season. Those interested in coaching can call 545-3070 or stop by Youth Services.

La Leche meeting — The La Leche League meets the second Tuesday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon and 7 to 8:30 p.m. at St. John United Methodist Church, 6507 Moon Road, Columbus. The next meeting is Sept. 14. For information, call 563-0684 or 568-7315.

Scouts needed — Soldiers who have been Scouts are needed to work with the "Rendezvous with Brownsea" fall encampment 1993 at Fort Benning's King's Pond Oct. 22 to 24.

More than 1,000 Scouts in the Chattahoochee Council, Boy Scouts of America will participate in this event.

For more information about "Rendezvous with Brownsea" at Fort Benning or to volunteer, call Lt. Col. Howard Willis at 545-5741.

Ballet registration — Youth Services is accepting ballet registration Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Classes are available for children 3 through 18.

A "mothers" tap and jazz class will be offered, also. For more information, call 545-3070.

Food drives — Army Community Service is still in need of food for the Emergency Food Locker.

Some specific items that are needed are dry cereal, tuna fish, powdered milk, grits, oat meal, peanut butter, jelly, rice, soup, spaghetti, oil and lard.

Food collection boxes are located in the Commissary near the exits at the cashier stands, and food items may be delivered to Building 2642, Soldiers' Plaza, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday.

For more information, call Arthur Deane at 545-2536, 545-7517 or 545-4043.

Dancing classes — Fall dancing classes for tap, jazz and ballet will begin Wednesday at the Officers' Wives' Club. Beginner and advanced classes are available for 2 1/2-year-olds to adults.

Classes are one hour long, one day a week at $20 per month for one child, $35 per month for two children and $50 per month for three children.

Retirement — The Retirement Services Office has available for loan two videos that may help prepare soldiers for retirement. The videos, "Military Preretirement" and "The Survivor Benefit Plan," are available. Retirement Services is located in Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2635, and the telephone number is 545-5369 or 545-2541.

Tot Town — Tot Town Child Development Center will offer transportation to and from Dexter, White and Stower elementary schools beginning Tuesday. Children must be registered at Child Development Services Central Office and at Tot Town. For more information, call 689-8698 or 689-8772.

Early retirements, C-2

SECTION C

Master gunner is post's top NCO

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

You will find him in one of the most congested sections of Kelley Hill, where you may also see armed soldiers with camouflaged faces crowding the sidewalks and company areas.

He is a master gunner for Company A, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division. He is also Fort Benning's Noncommissioned Officer of the Year.

Staff Sgt. John P. Lowthorpe, brown hair cut in a high-and-tight, 6 feet tall in his highly shined boots, is an airborne-qualified infantryman who would like to divide his time between going "on the trail" as a drill sergeant and serving in a line unit.

> "I plan now to stay (in the Army) until they kick me out."
> — John P. Lowthorpe
> Company A, 1st Battalion
> 18th Infantry Regiment

He seems to have two passions: his family and the Army. Lowthorpe briefly relaxes his military bearing as he talks of his wife, Maria, and their children. The couple has two sons: Justin, 6, and Johnny, 4. They have a daughter as well, 1-year-old Elisabeth-Ann.

"My wife got fancy when it came to my daughter's name," Lowthorpe said, smiling. He admits to having a soft spot for his small daughter: "Elisabeth-Ann is just starting to walk now, and I try to spend a lot of time with her."

He seems to have no trouble making sure he spends time with his sons, too.

"They're at that age when they follow me around and want to do everything I do," Lowthorpe said. "I brought Johnny to work with me over the weekend, and we got in a Bradley simulator. It showed the 'course' of the vehicle, and he was surprised when we got out and were still in the same place."

Maria is a student at Troy State University, Lowthorpe said, taking night classes in pursuit of a major in veterinary medicine. The couple met while both were students at Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wis. Lowthorpe also studied at Boston University as a physical therapy major.

"I enlisted in the Army shortly after we got married," he said. "I wanted a career, and I plan now to stay until they kick me out — at least 30 years."

While Lowthorpe says college life didn't do much to prepare him for the Army, he credits the Jesuit style of education he received at Marquette and while growing up for preparing him for military life.

"The Jesuit attitude was, you will learn everything and you will thank me later," he said. "That was the way I was trained when I began my career in the Army and the way I train my soldiers."

Lowthorpe admits it took him a year or so to appreciate the value of his Army training.

"I may not have liked it while it was being drilled into my head," he said, "and my soldiers may not like it while I'm drilling it into their heads, but it does pay off in the long run."

Lowthorpe, who is in the process of applying for Drill Sergeant School, said he looks forward to the opportunity of working with brand-new soldiers.

"The Bradley crewmen in our company, the guys I work with, are great," he said, "but they're mostly experienced soldiers, around the rank of specialist. I'd like the chance to be the first influence on some new soldiers, to give them the kind of leadership I was given."

Lowthorpe thanks his first sergeant, 1st Sgt. Carlos Vera, for encouraging him in the NCO of the Year competition. He also credits Sgt. 1st Class Lewis Worrell, now stationed here, who was his squad leader at Fort Hood, Texas, and his platoon sergeant in Germany.

"He (Worrell) always stressed training, and he expected you to be proficient in your job," Lowthorpe said. "He set a lot of the standards for me that I expect of my soldiers now."

As a master gunner, Lowthorpe's responsibilities include the maintenance of Bradley fighting vehicle weapons systems and training of crewmen assigned to the company, maintenance of the 25mm guns used on the Bradley and crew training with conduct of fire simulators. He also participates in training on the simulation network, 13 Bradley simulators and 13 M-1 tank simulators set up in tactical situations.

"My primary responsibility with SIMNET is working up target arrangements and threat array," Lowthorpe said.

Lowthorpe's company commander seems to have a lot of confidence in the master gunner.

"Staff Sergeant Lowthorpe is the most professional and technically competent NCO I've served with in 11 years of active duty," said Capt. Lance David Lombardo, Company A commander.

Lombardo said at the company's recent National Training Center rotation, Lowthorpe's efforts were largely responsible for keeping the readinesss rate of the company at 93 percent.

"He (Lowthorpe) worked a minor miracle when the thermal site on the command track (Lombardo's Bradley) broke," Lombardo said. "Within eight hours, he had moved to the maintenance point, had the site replaced and rejoined the company in time for the next movement."

"Staff Sergeant Lowthorpe is doing a great job," said Lt. Col. Roy Adams, 1st Battalion commander. "We're proud to have him around." Adams laughed as he added, "He's every mother's dream of a son."

Lowthorpe's parents, brother and stepsister live in England, he said, so he doesn't get to see them as much as he'd like. His own role as a parent is important to him, though.

"I want to see my kids go to college," he said. "I want them to have some choices — and if they choose the military after college, that's fine with me."

She's a first-class pfc.

Rigger 'hooks up' to Benning Soldier of the Year award

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

She is an avid sports participant, with softball and flag football among her favorite games. She has a collection of 45 to 50 baseball caps, but probably her most prized headgear is her red rigger's cap.

She is Pfc. Elizabeth Haight, and Aug. 18 she was named Fort Benning's Soldier of the Year. A member of Company E, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, she has overcome a lot of obstacles on her way to the top of the lower-enlisted pile.

> "You'll almost never catch me watching TV — I'd rather be doing something active."
> — Elizabeth Haight
> Company E, 1st Battalion (Airborne)
> 507th Infantry

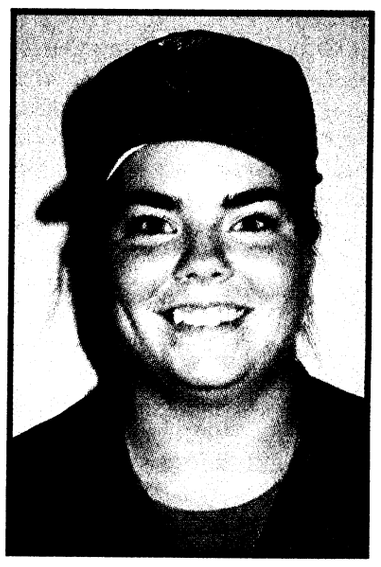
"I hurt my knee playing softball last July," Haight said, "but being hardheaded, I kept running and did two airborne jumps before I saw a doctor. I didn't know I had actually torn the ligament off the bone."

She underwent reconstructive surgery in November, she said, during which a section of tendon was removed from the front of her knee and grafted in place of the torn ligament. Two pins were also attached to the joint.

"They told me I'd never be a pantyhose model again," she said, laughing. More seriously, she added, "They also said I wouldn't jump again or lead the athletic lifestyle I was used to."

The 5 foot, 7 inch soldier, with green eyes and waist-length brown hair (tightly braided and pinned back when she's in uniform, but otherwise her "pride and joy," she said), wasn't about to take that verdict lying down.

"I could have gotten out on a medical board, but that's not what I came in the Army to do," Haight said. "I told my physical therapist I wanted to jump again, and I go back on jump status at the end of this month."



She credits the people at physical therapy with a lot of her recovery. "They started me out on two sessions a day; and, for a long time, I couldn't even do a kneebend. I think it's important for people to realize that being on a profile doesn't mean you're not a soldier. I thought that for a long time, but it's not true — you can come back from a profile, if that's what you really want."

Haight has been working in the orderly room of Company E for the past several months, during which time she created a computer program to keep track of the number of parachutes each rigger packs.

"We have a rigger-of-the-month competition," she said, "and that's what we use the program for. It also keeps track of the total number of chutes a rigger packs, so when they get out we can give them a certificate that says, 'This soldier packed 5,000 malfunction-free parachutes.' "

On a recent visit to the parachute rigger shed, where she worked before her injury, Haight took some good-natured teasing from her fellow riggers. "Let me see your paper cuts!" one soldier said, while another chimed in, "What's the breaking point of a paper clip?"

In the greetings and back slaps, the teasing and camaraderie, it was obvious that the riggers are, as Haight said, a tight group. "There are about 115 riggers here at Fort Benning, and we pretty much all know each other," she said. "The red hat kind of makes you stand out."

Haight credits much of her success to the people in her company, especially 1st Sgt. Tamara Zehner.

"She encouraged me to go to the board and to have confidence in myself," Haight said. "She also helped me get ready — get my uniform squared away and that kind of thing."

Others in the company, Haight said, would come into the office where she worked, grab up her study guide and start asking her questions.

"My family was very supportive as well," she said. Her mother, now in Europe, called to wish her well, and Haight's father called every day.

"My dad is probably my best friend," Haight said. She's also close to her sisters, she said, one of whom is 27 and the other 7.

Besides sports, including golf once or twice a week, Haight spends her leisure time reading, especially authors like Robert Ludlum and Tom Clancy, listening to country music and having fun with her friends.

"You'll almost never catch me watching TV," she said. "I'd rather be doing something active."

For a soldier whose future ambitions include ROTC and a career as an officer in the active Army in either military intelligence or the military police, she seems to have made the active lifestyle work well for her.

Cadets learn the ropes

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

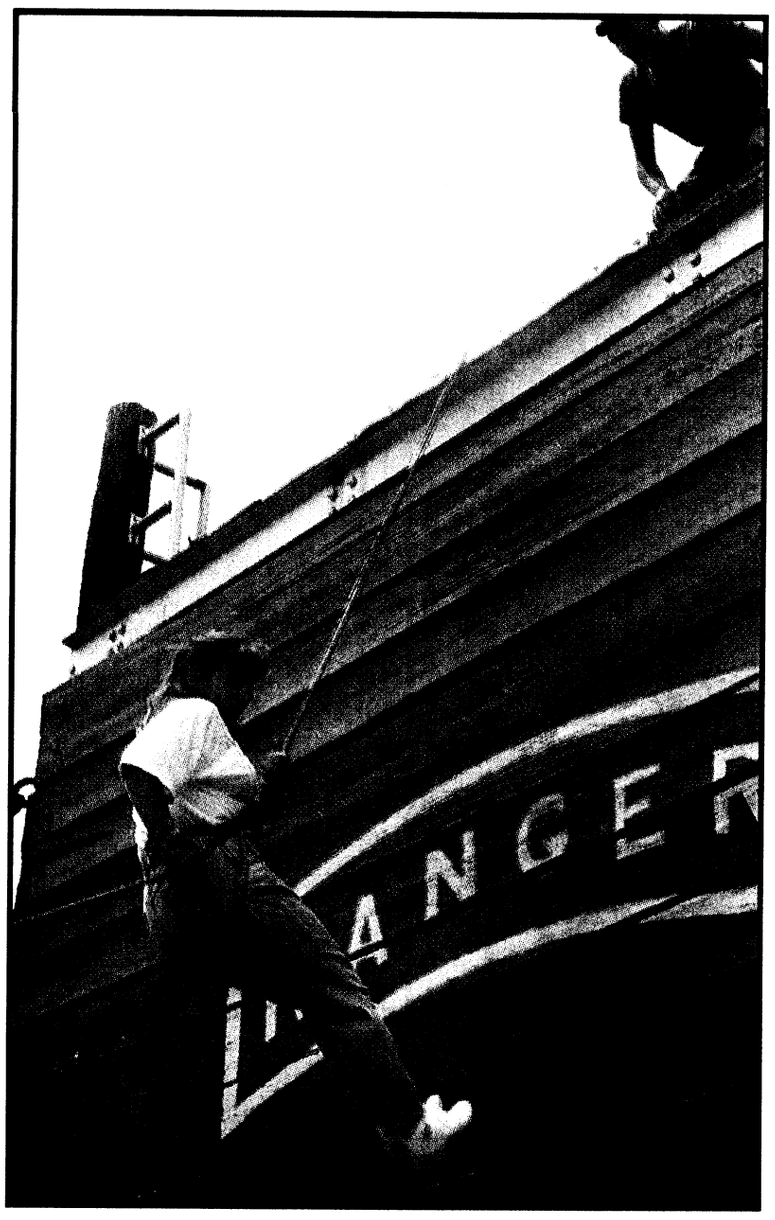
"Momma, momma can't you see? What JROTC has done for me!"

Todd Field on Fort Benning was the location for cadets learning to rappel Aug. 18 as part of the Muscogee County School District Junior ROTC Leader's Course.

From Aug. 16 to 20, the course ran at Columbus College's Davidson Center for five mornings and various locations around Fort Benning during four afternoons.

In addition to the rappelling, the cadets jumped from a 34-foot tower, ran a confidence course, observed weapon demonstrations and had classes on training and development, said retired Maj. Al Brinkman, senior Army instructor for Carver High School.

"The classes are directed toward self-development, leadership and ethics," said Brinkman. "The afternoons at Fort Benning are more exciting because of the personal challenges."



Local business personnel managers and the Columbus Police Department also got involved with the program by giving the cadets classes on how to perform on a job interview and how to be a leader among peers.

Approximately 12 cadets from each of the seven high schools in Muscogee County were hand picked for the course because of the key leadership positions in the JROTC battalions they will hold next school year, Brinkman said.

"The goal is to provide these young people with instruction and training that will not only improve their personal leadership skills, but will allow them to have a consequent positive impact on their entire JROTC program next school year," said retired Col. Floyd G. Stephenson, JROTC director for Muscogee County School District.

"This course has been a unique success for the last five years," said Stephenson. "With revisions and improvements based upon past experiences, we are confident the cadets will be better prepared to perform their duties next year, as well as more prepared for life beyond high school.

"All the instructors in this program are very grateful to every organization on the post for the support they have given this program and the cadets who are in it," he said.

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week ...

- The Allies continued their intense bombing campaign over Western Europe, ending a month in which expended munitions topped 22,600 tons and beginning another in which they dropped an additional 22,000 tons of bombs. September objectives for the Royal Air Force Bomber Command included Berlin, Mannheim and Hanover, while the U.S. Eight Army Air Force targeted Paris, Stuttgart and Nantes.
- In the Pacific, U.S. carriers from the recently established Fast Carrier Task Force, which included the USS Independence, USS Yorktown and USS Essex, attacked the Japanese positions on Marcus Island with little initial effect.
- Elsewhere in the Pacific, U.S. forces prepared for the impending campaign in the Gilbert Islands, beginning construction of an airfield on the newly secured Baker Island.
- In the Solomons, U.S. forces progressed, reaching Orete Cove on Vella Lavella and taking the Nauro Peninsula on Arundel without encountering significant opposition.
- On the Eastern Front, the Soviets pressed their offensive, taking numerous important cities throughout Russia. In the Donets sector, Soviet forces captured Lisichansk and Kommunarsk, while securing Sumy and Glushkovo on the Bryansk Front, as well as Sevsk on the Central Front.
- Fort Benning officials announced a plan using 500 Italian prisoners of war to harvest crops within a 40-mile radius around the post for a wage of 80 cents per day.

FOR THE RECORD

In the Aug. 20 edition of The Bayonet, a story stated Col. Robert J. St. Onge Jr., outgoing commander of 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division, would be serving as chief of staff with the 3rd Armor Division in Bad Kreuznach, Germany.

St. Onge will actually serve with the 1st Armor Division there.

In the Aug. 13 edition of The Bayonet, credit fot the photograph on page C-2 should have been given to John T. Rhodenizer.

New window opens for early retirement

By Frieda McDonald
Retirement Services Office

As a continuation effort to reshape the Army, a new window has been opened for early retirements. This year's eligibility population has increased over last year's.

Officers

■ Army Competitive Category A: Majors in year group 78 who will be in the fiscal 1994 primary promotion zone (not below the zone) for promotion to lieutenant colonel.

Application window closes Oct. 19, unless closed earlier by Headquarters, Department of the Army. The overall target is about 200. If target numbers are not reached by volunteers, HQDA may convene an early retirement board to select majors in this category for early retirement. The board would convene in late October with retirement date of not later than June 30. Officers selected for early retirement with less than 20 years armed forces service will not be continued until 20 years.

■ ACCB: Majors who are one or more times nonselect for promotion to lieutenant colonel (and are not on an approved promotion list) with at least 15 but less than 20 years active service as of the requested retirement date. Not eligible are those holding the following branch or functional area codes: 25D, 25E, 35G, 48B, 48E, 48G, 74A and 88A. The overall target is about 200. If target numbers are not reached by volunteers, HQDA may convene a board to curtail selective continuation for two-time nonselect majors with 17 to 20 years active service. Majors who are selected by the board will have to retire no later than June 30.

■ ACC captains: Captains who are one-time nonselect to major by fiscal 93 major promotion board with at least 15 but less than 20 years active service as of the requested retirement date. The overall target is about 75.

Warrant officers

■ At least 17 but less than 20 years active service as of requested retirement date, in certain military occupational specialty and grade. The overall target is about 60 chief warrant officer 2 and about 60 chief warrant officers 3 and 4.

If target numbers are not reached by volunteers, HQDA may convene a board to curtail two-time nonselects in overage MOS with 18 to 20 years service and offer them early retirement in lieu of retention to 20 years AFS. Warrant officers who are selected for curtailment will have a mandatory retirement or release date of no later than June 30.

Warrant officers who are one-time nonselect for promotion from the fiscal 93 promotion boards with at least 15 but less than 20 years of service as of requested retirement date are eligible to apply for consideration for early retirement regardless of MOS.

Army medical, dental officers

Officers with approved early retirements who are drawing special pay will be required to reimburse the government for the unserved portion of the active duty specified in the special pay agreement. Multi-year specialty pay recipients with consecutive service obligations must be aware that all amounts received, but not yet earned by completed obligation, must be recouped.

The overall target for early retirement applications is about 300. If the target is not reached by eligible volunteers as outlined below, the Army may convene a board to curtail selective continuation for officers two or more times nonselect for promotion with 18 to 19 years service and offer them early retirement in lieu of retention to 20 years. Captains one-time nonselect for promotion to major from the FY93 major promotion board except those holding AOC 66F, with 15 but less than 20 years active service as of Aug. 31, are eligible to apply for consideration for early retirement.

* indicates officers with remaining active duty service obligation (ADSO for training that will not expire prior to the requested retirement date or those receiving special pay) who are not eligible to apply.

* Medical Corps lieutenant colonels with date of ranks of Sept. 30, 1988, or earlier, who are one or more times nonselect for promotion to colonel, not on a promotion standing list, with at least 15 but less than 20 years service as of requested retirement date.

* Medical Corps lieutenant colonels with DOR of Oct. 1, 1988 or later, with at least 18, but less than 20 years as of requested retirement date.

* Medical Corps majors with DOR of Sept. 30, 1988, or earlier, who are one or more time nonselect for promotion to lieutenant colonel and not on an approved promotion standing list, with at least 15, but less than 20 years as of requested retirement date.

* Dental Corps colonels with at least 18 but less than 20 years as of the requested retirement date.

* Dental corps lieutenant colonels with DOR of Sept. 30, 1988, or earlier, who are one or more times nonselect for promotion to colonel and not on an approved promotion standing list, with at least 15, but less than 20 years as of requested retirement date.

* Dental Corps lieutenant colonels with DOR of Oct. 1, 1988 or later with at least 18 but less than 20 years as of requested retirement date.

* Dental Corps majors with DOR of Sept. 30, 1988, or earlier who are one or more times nonselect for promotion to lieutenant colonel and not on an approved promotion standing list, with at least 15 but less than 20 years as of requested retirement date.

■ Captains who are one time nonselect for promotion to major, and not on an approved promotion standing list, with at least 15 but less than 20 years.

■ Majors who are one or more times nonselect for promotion to lieutenant colonel and not on an approved promotion standing list, with at least 15 but less than 20 years as of requested retirement date.

The overall target for early retirement from this category is 17. If the target number is not reached by volunteers, HQDA may convene a board to curtail selective continuation for two or more times nonselect majors with 17 to 20 years and offer them early retirement in lieu of retention to 20 years. Majors who are selected by the board for curtailment of their selective continuation will have a mandatory retirement or release date of no later than June 30.

Officers with ADSO for advanced civil schooling must have served at least three years after completing civil school to apply for early retirement. Officers with any remaining ADSO for advanced civil schooling are subject to reimbursement for the unserved ADSU.

Soldiers can contact their Personnel Administration Center for applicable restrictions, approval and ineligibility criteria as well as application procedure. For more information, call Frieda McDonald, Pat Harris or Martha Holloway at 545-2541 or 545-2715.

Fiscal 1994 early retirement program eligibility

As a continuation effort to reshape the Army, a new window has been opened for early retirements. This year's eligibility population has increased over last year's. Soldiers of the below listed categories are eligible to apply without exception.

'Whole' diet needs whole grains

Three servings recommended daily for fiber, other nutrients

General Mills

Americans could benefit from more whole grains in the diet, say health and nutrition experts who gathered recently at a conference on whole-grain foods in the diet.

Nutrition experts recommend eating more whole-grain foods because they contribute dietary fiber and other important nutrients to the diet, according to Karen Wilder, a registered dietitian.

These nutrients include trace minerals and certain vitamins, such as antioxidants.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends that each day Americans should consume between six and 11 servings of food made from grains, such as bread, cereals, rice and pasta.

Currently, Americans eat two to three servings daily of these foods.

Furthermore, Americans consume less than one-half serving of whole-grain foods per day.

At least three servings of whole-grain foods are recommended daily to help meet nutrient requirements, indicates research from the USDA.

Common whole-grain foods include whole-wheat bread, brown rice and whole-grain cereals.

Reading labels will help you find other whole-grain foods. Look for words such as "whole grain," "whole wheat" and "whole grain oats."

Keep in mind that other terms, such as "10grain" and "wheat bread," do not necessarily mean that the product is made in whole or in part from the whole grain. So, always read the ingredient statement for more detailed information.

With so many good sources of whole grains available, it's not difficult to incorporate more whole grains into daily meals.

This can add appealing variety and flavor to your diet, said Wilder.

Check diet for whole grains

Whole-grain foods can fit into a healthy eating plan in so many ways. Here are some ideas:

√ Include whole-grain wheat or buckwheat flour in pancake or muffin batter.

√ Try it in cookies and breads as well .

√ Substitute whole-grain bagels, pita bread and English muffins for those made with refined grains.

√ Use whole-grain breads for sandwiches, French toast and toast.

√ Prepare salads, soups and main dishes with whole-grain pasta or brown rice.

√ Enjoy whole-grain crackers or whole-grain minibagels as snacks.

√ Start your day with a bowl of whole-grain cereal and a slice of whole-grain toast.

ASK THE JUDGE

By Michael H. Lane
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q: We bought our first home recently.

The agent told us that our house payment would be "about" $500 per month on our 30-year mortgage.

When we got the coupon book from the mortgage company, our monthly payments were more than $650.

The agent says the $650 reflects $495 for payments on the mortgage itself, and that $155 is for the escrow account.

What is this escrow account, and can they make me pay the higher amount?

A: An escrow account is a fund that a lending institution establishes in order to pay charges assessed against property on which they hold a mortgage or loan.

The account is authorized in your contract with the lender and provides for the payment of property taxes, insurance and other charges against the property. This allows the lender to protect his investment in your home.

For example, if you did not pay insurance premiums on the home, and it burned, the lender would lose his security for the repayment of the loan.

If your property taxes went unpaid, the property could be foreclosed and sold to pay the taxes, again affecting the security for the loan.

Most mortgage loans require escrow, whether Veterans Affairs, Federal Housing Administration or a commercial loan.

The escrow account operates on a 12-month average of all the bills paid by the particular account. Assume that your annual property tax is $1,200 payable in January and July and that your homeowner's insurance is $300 per year.

The bank totals the bills ($1,500), divides by 12 ($125) and adds that amount of each month's payment. If the taxes go up during the year to $1,500, the escrow will be adjusted up to $150 per month.

The Legal Assistance Office, Winship Hall, Building 5, is available to assist you in these and other matters by appointment. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The telephone is 545-3282.

SELFISHNESS

can block path to Christianity

By Robert L. Cox
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary defines unselfishness as the opposite of selfishness. This is to say that an unselfish person is a generous person. One that does not focus upon himself; one that does not glamorize his ego. Selfishness is an illness that weakens the moral and spiritual fibers of our society.

The patriarchs of this great nation who wrote, "We the people of these United States ..." were thinking of their generation and generations to come. They were looking outside of themselves. This great nation of ours is teetering on the edge of destruction because of this illness called "selfishness."

To get back to the "center," we must change our perspective in terms of how we relate to our neighbor. "To form a more perfect union," according to the Constitution, requires all the energies and efforts we can muster to bring that idea to fruition.

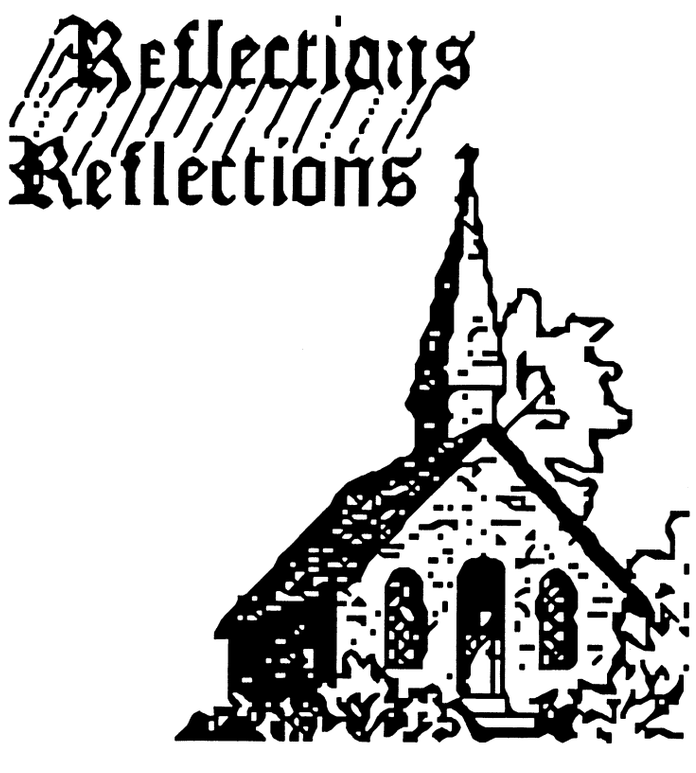
I Corinthians 10:24 comes to mind. "Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth." In this particular verse, St. Paul is telling people that Christian freedom must be used to help others. A man has a duty to himself, but a still greater duty to others.

Paul insisted that the Corinthians must be good examples to the Jews. Even to his enemies, a man must be an example of the fine things. They had a duty to the Greeks to show a good example to those who were quite indifferent to Christianity. It is, in fact, by that example many are won.

There was a minister who went far out of his way to help a man who had nothing to do with the church and rescued him from a difficult situation. That man began to come to church and in the end made an astonishing request. He asked to be made an elder that he might spend his life showing his gratitude for what Christ through his servant had done for him.

It is the plain fact of life that somebody takes the cue for his conduct from every one of us. We may not know it, but a younger or weaker brother is often looking to us for a lead. It is our duty to give that lead that will strengthen the weak and save the tempted from sin.

Consider these verses: "Do nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit, but in humility consider others better than yourselves. Each of you should look not only to your own interests, but also to the interest of others..." (Philippians 2:3-4)



Here Paul is expounding on the danger of disunity that threatened the Philippian church. The cause of the disunity was selfish ambition. So it is today, "this is a dog- eat-dog world."

What a tragic testimony upon our society. Selfish ambition is a danger that motivates people to focus upon themselves rather than on the good of the community.

Out of this comes the desire for personal prestige. Prestige is for many people an even greater temptation than wealth. To be admired and respected, to have a platform seat, to have one's opinion sought, to be known by name and appearance, even to be flattered are for many people most desired things.

But the aim of the Christian ought to be not self-display, but self-obliteration. He should do good deeds, not that men may glorify him, but that they may glorify his father in heaven. The Christian should desire to focus man's eyes not upon himself but on God.

If a man is forever concerned first and foremost with his own interests, he is bound to collide with others. If for him life is a competition whose prizes he must win, he will always think of other human beings as enemies, or at least as opponents who must be pushed out of the way. Concentration on self inevitably means elimination of others, and the object of life becomes not to help others up but push them down.

'Golden Rule' can make life brighter

By Kwon Pyo
USAIC Chaplains' Office

Treat others the way you want to be treated

—Matthew 7:12

REFLECTIONS

A long, long time ago, Korean people thought old parents were a useless, heavy burden on a family once they were too old to work. So people sent their old, unproductive parents out to the mountains to die alone.

It is still dark outside. Morning comes slowly in this small village surrounded by high mountains. Most of the village people are poor peasants.

In the quiet early morning hour, a man is busy preparing for a trip, loading some food and a jar of water in a "jigae," a Y-shaped wooden frame used for transportation. He can hear his old mother sobbing quietly, holding on to his wife and his children. His heart is heavy.

The story goes like this:

When the man came home after leaving his mother in the deep mountain cave, he found his teenage boy making a jigae. So the man asked his son, "Why are you making that?"

The son answered sadly, "Dad, you dumped Grandma in the mountain. I am making a jigae that I may use it someday to dump you in the mountain when you are old."

The man, stunned by his son's answer, turned back and brought his old mother back home. After that, the family lived happily. The boy never used his jigae.

The Bible says in Matthew 7:12, "Treat others the way you want to be treated." This is called the Golden Rule.

If we apply the Golden Rule in our homes and work, our lives will be much happier and brighter. I pray that God will help you put the Golden Rule into practice daily.

CHAPEL NOTES

TIPS FOR MAKING YOUR AD MORE EFFECTIVE

- Start Your ad with the item you are selling, service you are offering, or job title you are looking to hire.
- Be descriptive. The more information you provide to the reader, the better the responses will be to your ad.
- Use bold type, white space of decorative characters such as stars, to bring attention to your ad.
- Run your ad for an ample length of time. Remember, as soon as you get results, you can cancel at any time during regular business hours.
- Always include the price of your item.

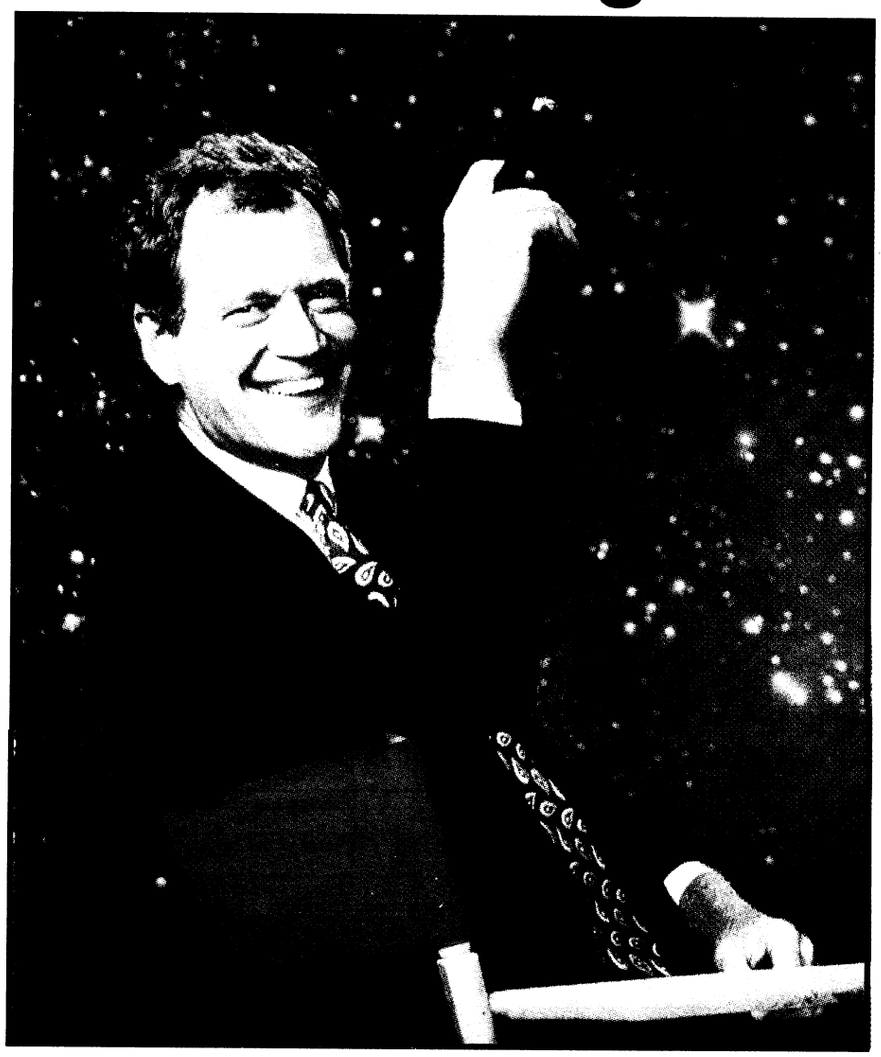
Letterman moves late night show to CBS

By Jay Bobbin
Tribune Media Services

This week, Dave is back ... and, just in case there's anyone who still doesn't know, CBS has him.

SPOTLIGHT



Though NBC has been airing repeats of his past programs, David Letterman actually has been on a two-month hiatus, preparing for the launch of his much-heralded move to a rival network.

"Late Show With David Letterman" finally begins Monday, and CBS' reported a $14 million deal with the star suggests its best chance in its history to carve a substantial slice of the late-night audience for itself.

Band leader Paul Shaffer is making the switch along with Letterman, but the status of some other familiar aspects — specifically, "Stupid Pet Tricks" and "The Top Ten List" — remained in doubt at press time, since senior NBC executives spent the summer maintaining that they wouldn't release the rights it held on those segments, deeming them to be "intellectual property."

Nevertheless, Letterman's distinctively skewed sense of humor is one element it can't hold back, much to the delight of fans who watched him during the 11 1/2 years he was a wee-hours fixture on NBC.

Virtually the entire behind-the-scenes staff, including executive producers Robert Morton and Peter Lassally, also has followed Letterman across Manhattan from his former Rockefeller Center studio to the newly refurbished Ed Sullivan Theater.

David Letterman

Regardless of what NBC may or may not allow him to bring to CBS, the everwry Letterman said, "It's going to be the same show. I'm the same guy, these are the same producers, this is the same musical director. If they let us do the stuff that we did before, that's great. If they don't let us do it, that's great, too, because I have a feeling that there is an infinite number of ideas.

What: "Late Show With David Letterman"
When: Monday, 11:30 p.m on CBS

"One of the things we liked to try to do on the show in the past was (to use) as many different ideas as we could steal, then just keep them going," he said. " I'm really not worried about this, and it would really surprise me if we didn't somehow all find ourselves together on the high road. I think a lot of what may have been said and written is sort of in fun, and I honestly don't anticipate any problems."

Nevertheless, NBC President Robert Wright said, "The David Letterman situation is really not about Dave ... it's about copyright protection. There are certain intellectual-property issues that do not travel with Dave, and we have to work that out, or they have to understand that that's the way it is."

"It is essential for a corporation to protect the properties that it owns, and I think that's something we cannot escape, nor should we," NBC programming chief Warren Littlefield said.

Post makes room for guests with new guest house

By Lawrence K. Hughes
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Post officials broke ground on a new guest house Monday on Main Post.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, Fort Benning's commanding general, was joined by Ray Wagner, chief, Billeting Branch of the Directorate of Public Works, and Mike Ryan, construction superintendent for MW Builders, contractor for the project, at a ground-breaking ceremony. Tune in to "Fort Benning Today" beginning Monday to see highlights of the event.

USAIC TV Schedule

Fort Benning Today: 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 1:30 to 2 p.m.
Specials: 2 to 4:30 p.m.
Fort Benning Update: 4:30 p.m. to 8:30 a.m.

"Sound-Off" the Public Affairs Office's opinion poll follows "Fort Benning Today" and will bring you points of view from workers in the Directorate of Operations and Training. Hear their responses about whether they believe Fort Benning should be a closed post.

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Command Information Channel highlights post events and lists classified advertisements on the Fort Benning Community Bulletin Board featuring news and music from Soldiers Radio Satellite Network.

If you subscribe to Fort Benning Cable, you can watch USAIC TV on Channel 3, 24 hours a day. Anyone living off post can watch "Fort Benning Today" Monday mornings at 7:26, 7:56, 8:26 and 8:56 on WLTZ TV-38.

If you do not wish to renew your golf membership, you must contact the membership office at 682-1120 to remove your name from the automatic billing system or monthly billing will continue.

The Officers' Club pool is open every Wednesday until 8 p.m. Rafts are allowed in the pool from 6 to 8 p.m. and snack bar hours are also extended.

Beginning Sept. 7, the pool will close through the week. However, weather permitting, the pool will be open Fridays from 4 to 8 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Rafts will be permitted on Fridays.

The pool also now has a new sand volleyball court that was constructed by the 43rd Engineer Battalion.

Club 22-100 is the billeting restaurant located in Towle Hall. The name of the club refers to an Army leadership manual.

The club offers free movies each Sunday at 7 p.m. Operating hours are Sunday 3 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday 4:30 to 10 p.m.

Summer youth activities are available at the fitness center. For a fee, children can take tennis, martial arts or aerobics classes. Classes are available for adults as well. An additional $5 fee is required for nonmembers. Call 687-0871 for details.

For more information, call Pat White at 298-3204 or 297-5613.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 21) Misgivings about a personal relationship are ill-founded. You will meet with a challenging situation on the job this week and may feel temporarily stymied. Patience, however, will win out. Watch overspending on pleasure interests.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Friends may burden you with their problems. A new business opportunity that comes now pleases you very much. Family interests prosper this week. Unexpected company drops by this weekend, and you may fall behind on chores.

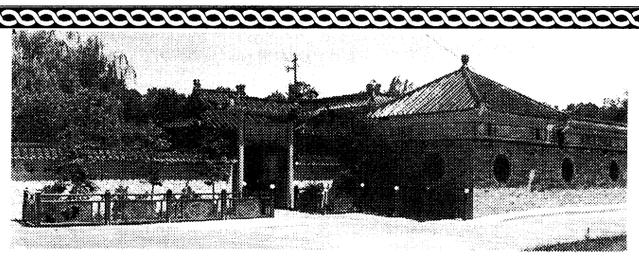
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You may be worried about a business matter now. Delays at work get you down. Social life provides you with a quick pick-me-up. A person who flatters is insincere. More information is needed about an investment.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Communicating with a certain someone is like talking to a stone wall this week. There is no sense in arguing with an opinionated type. Social life is fun, but guard against costly expenditures. Share happy times with family this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Monies due you may be delayed in arriving this week. You sparkle with creativity and will find the right words to get your points across to others. Reaching agreements about financial interests won't be difficult. Your routine at work may be upset in some way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) You are likely to meet with some opposition to your plans now, so it is best to be low key and wait until a more propitious time. Feedback is likely to be negative if you don't give others sufficient time to make up their minds.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Work priorities may take precedence over socializing this week. Still, you will receive a lovely invitation now. Pace yourself accordingly. Guard against overspending when socializing. Get-togethers with friends are short but sweet.



SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A problem related to child rearing may concern you and may interfere with your concentration for a while. A bonafide career opportunity comes now. Coming on too strong with a romantic interest may cause this person to get cold feet. Be patient.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A home matter will have to be settled to your satisfaction for you to feel free to accept a social invitation. It may take a few days, but things will work out. A co-worker is touchy this week and it may be difficult now to keep on top of things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Business developments will put you in a better position. You may be hesitant about a financial concern and have a right to be cautious. You can't be forced into making up your mind now. Tell the other party you need more time to think things through.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Getting a financial matter straightened out will take a few days. Don't look for immediate solutions. A close tie is sensitive now and needs special consideration. Partnership rapport is a bright note this week.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) A tendency to sell yourself short will work against you now. A new career offering that comes this week is worth your while. Be up for the challenge. Partners seem to be at odds about a personal matter. Avoid distractions.

SOAP UPDATE

King Features Syndicate

ALL MY CHILDREN: Tad punched Edmund after finding him with Brooke, but later apologized when she explained he had pulled her out of quicksand. A tabloid TV show "exposed" the Tad/Dixie/Ted scandal, forcing Tad, Brooke, Ted and Dixie to seek damage control. Erica was unable to stop Dimitri from telling Travis that she had Bianca. Wait to see: Dimitri makes a potentially "damaging" decision.

ANOTHER WORLD: Paulina hid Ian from the police, but insisted he had to get out her life. Amanda tried to get Jake to understand that only he was responsible for his breakup with Paulina. Carl learned Felicia, Frankie, Cass and Kevin were plotting to nail him. Vicky was able to place a call to Ryan who then asked Bridget to help him find her. Felicia worked through a difficult time resisting taking a drink on the anniversary of Lucas' death. Wait to see: Ian is shocked at Carl's revelation.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Royce turned down Lucinda's offer to put a detective on the trail of his supposed twin. Emily told Royce how Graham could have framed him. Jessica was concerned that Larry, Susan and Emily had begun the in vitro process without signing the right legal papers. Tom raised the issue of Hal legally signing away any parental claim to Adam. Lucinda told John where Iva and the children were. Wait to see: Royce is forced to make a desperate decision.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Brooke told Connor her goal was to pay Stephanie back for the years of pain and humiliation she caused her. Eric comforted Stephanie when she blamed herself for the mess the family was in. Much to everyone's surprise, including Sheila's, Brooke named her as her new executive liaison. Wait to see: Macy faces a difficult lesson.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Jack was barred from donating bone marrow to his daughter, Abby, because of his history of Hodgkins disease. Carly awoke believing she was back in Paris 10 years earlier, unaware of who Bo or Nikki were. She called to Lawrence as James. Lucas got Brandee to imply to Carrie that she and Austin had spent a steamy night in the cabin. Marlena was stunned to find Sami's stash of laxatives and junk food. Wait to see: Kate realizes she must make a decision before it's too late.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Karen enjoyed the attractive and exciting ambience of Sonny's club, while Sonny, in turn, found her exciting and attractive. Stone was devastated to learn that his friend, Crystal, had apparently overdosed. Mac and Felicia learned that Crystal's death complicated their search for Jagger's brother. Monica declared war when she mistakenly assumed Alan's conversation with Rhonda portended more than just talk! A.J. got Edward to allow him to go on a business trip to the Bahamas with Ned and Julia. Julia, meanwhile, asked Katherine to represent "Deception" at a convention in Montreal while she (Julia) was away. Sean, Mac and Felicia were upset at the way Jessica handled the case against Ryan. Wait to see: Ryan's jury reaches a decision.

GUIDING LIGHT: David came out of hiding and faced Kat and Hamp, and left without taking Kat with him. Later, a reluctant Mallet was forced to arrest Kat, while Hart and Bridget set David up in an unusual hiding spot. Eleni told Frank, Buzz paid for Marina's ear surgery. Unaware he had planned to propose, Blake gave Ross an ultimatum about marriage. Mindy betrayed Macauley's confidence when she told Nick about his romantic past. Stavros revealed he had been badly injured by Vinny's beating. Wait to see: Mallet and Harley learn more about Macauley.

LOVING: Dinah Lee locked Ava and Jeremy in a wine cellar to try to get them to admit their true feelings for each other. Meanwhile, Shana decided the best way to get Ava out of Leo's life would be to have him pretend he wants her back. After freeing Jeremy and Ava, Leo "confessed" that he had made a mistake letting her go. Wait to see: Tess and Trucker grow closer.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Dorian crashed Sloan's publication party, humiliating herself, and causing Cassie to fall. Although Cassie's unborn child escaped injury, the incident firmed up Cassie's decision to have nothing more to do with her mother. Dorian's pain deepened when Jason walked out on her. As Marty and her friends searched for the sweatband, Elmer, a homeless man, stashed it in his bag. Wait to see: Dorian is determined to win back Cassie's love, no matter what she may have to do.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Liz returned to England, but assured Jill that Kay was wrong: her daughter had done nothing to alienate her. Brad had Jack evicted from Victor's office pending the final decision about who will run Newman Enterprises. Mitchell suggested Nikki and Brad should agree on who that person should be. Ashley told Jack she won't support his bid for the job. Neil insisted to Brad his promotion to assistant to the CEO of Newman didn't involve betraying confidences to Jack. Wait to see: Victor faces his real feelings about Hope.

Thousands of people learn how to prepare income tax returns from H & R Block and then earn money as income tax preparers. H & R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, offers its Income Tax Course starting September 13, 1993. Morning, evening, and Saturday classes are available.

Experienced instructors teach tax law, theory, and application. Classroom discussion and practice problems provide students with a thorough understanding of each tax topic included in the course. Students learn how to handle increasingly complex income tax situations as the course progresses.

Ideal for people who want to increase their tax knowledge, the course teaches students how to save money on their taxes and also prepares them for a rewarding career.

The affordable fee includes textbooks and supplies. Graduates receive Certificates of Achievement and continuing education units (CEUs). Qualified graduates of the course may be offered job interviews with H & R Block but are under no obligation to accept employment.

Those interested in more information about the H & R Block Income Tax Course may contact the H & R Block office at 2511 Airport Thruway, Columbus, Georgia. You may also call

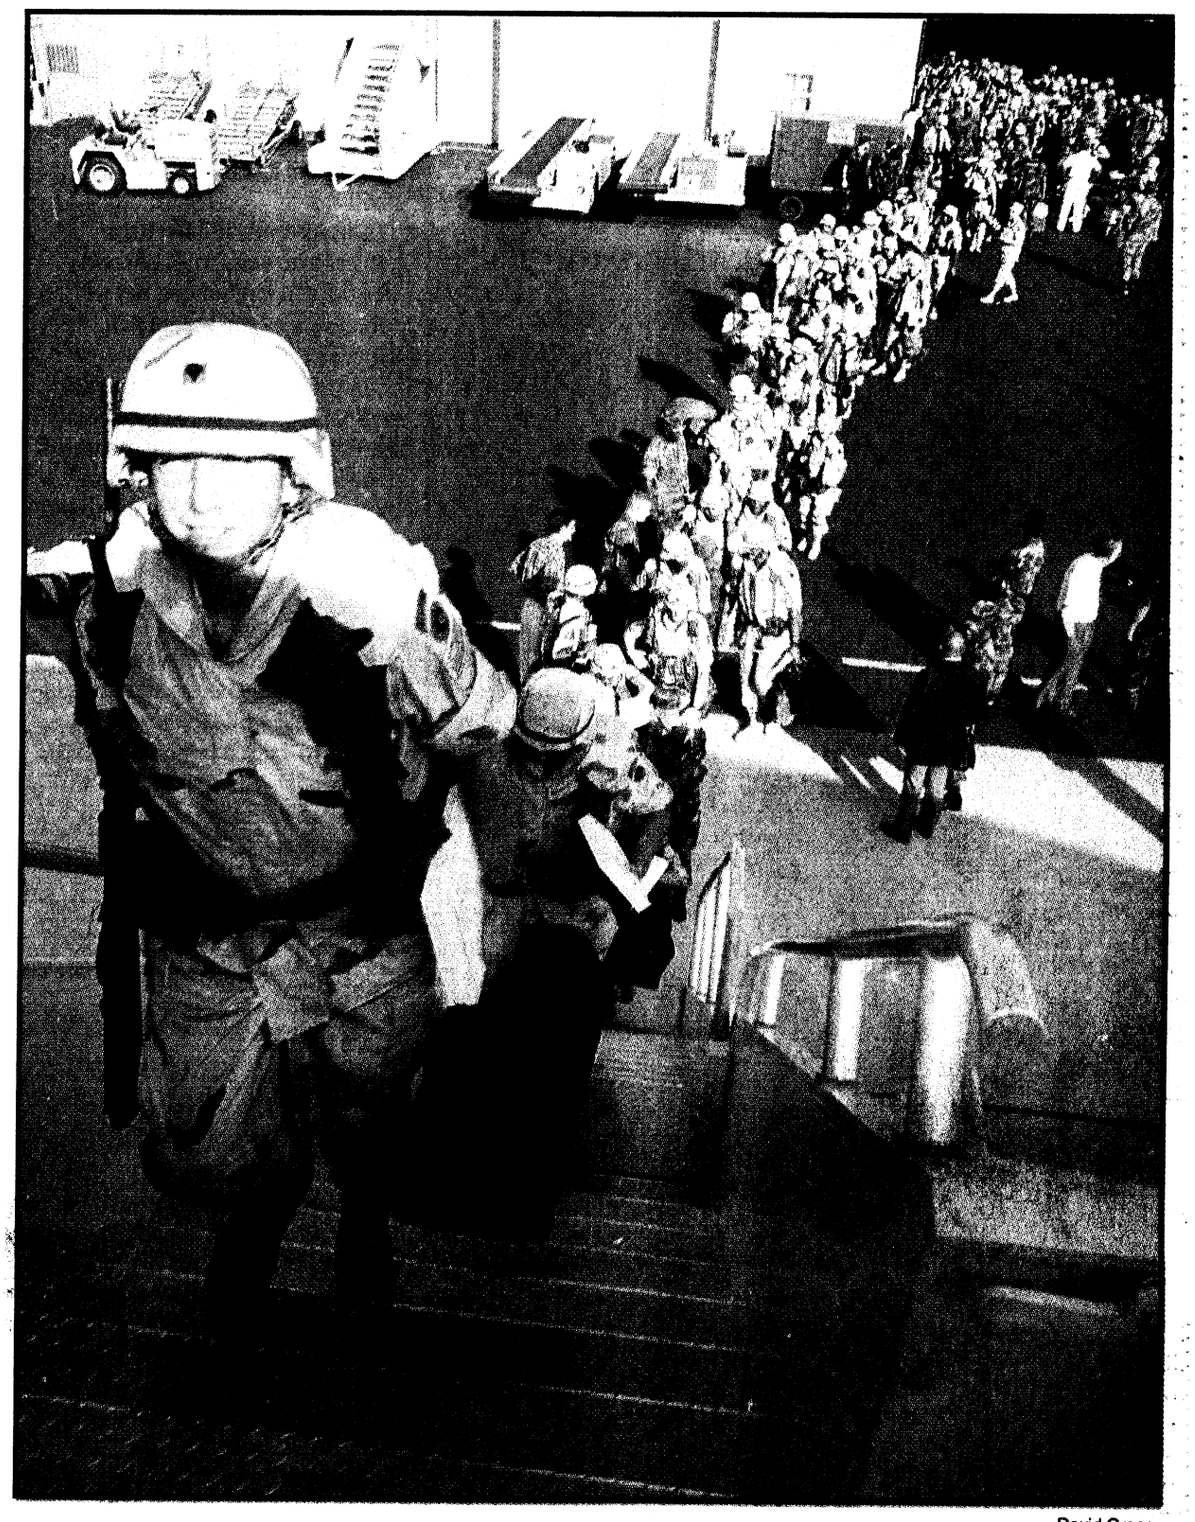
More soldiers deploy

Engineers to stay in Somalia 6 months

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Approximately 262 soldiers from the 13th Corps Support Battalion, 36th Engineer Group, deployed Monday from Lawson Army Airfield at 6:30 p.m. on a planned rotation to Somalia.



Fort Benning units deploying include soldiers from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, the 598th Maintenance Company, the 608th Ordnance Company and several members from a Fort Rucker engineer unit.

The battalion, which will provide combat service support to United Nations forces, is planning to stay for approximately six months. The 598th Maintenance Company will maintain all types of Army ground equipment, while the 608th Ordnance Company will establish and operate a theater ammunition support center.

Also, the battalion will provide command and control for approximately 720 soldiers, to include the 364th Supply and Service Company from Fort Bragg, N.C.

Approximately 100 soldiers from the battalion headquarters and the advance party arrived in Somalia Aug 17.

The remaining elements of the 13th scheduled for deployment to Somalia left Lawson Army Airfield Wednesday at 5:30 p.m.

Excellence

Breakfast honors post employees' commitment to quality

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

The quarterly Excellence Appreciation Breakfast Wednesday honored Fort Benning military and civilian employees and their dedication to quality and customer service.

David Flo, director of Resource Management, welcomed the honorees and members of the Training and Doctrine Command Communities of Excellence Team, who were special guests at the breakfast.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White also welcomed the TCOE team. "We are proud of what we do here and we are always anxious to show it off," he said.

"We do a lot of talking about excellence and we do a lot of talking about quality, and we walk our talk," White said. "We demonstrate excellence in everything we do."

White pointed out that it is easy to provide quality and a smile when everything is going well, but that with drawdowns and reductions in force, times are not easy.

"When the going gets tough," he said, "that's when good people like you really get going."

White credited "a special spirit and character" that has developed here as the secret to the success Fort Benning has enjoyed, and the secret to continuing that success through the hard times ahead.

SJA claims office receives award

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

At the quarterly Excellence Appreciation Breakfast Wednesday, Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White presented a Certificate of Excellence to the Claims Office of the Staff Judge Advocate.

The award, presented on behalf of the U.S. Army Claims Service for exceptional achievement in Affirmative Claims medical care recovery, is "only given to about 10 claims offices worldwide," said Col. Ben Anderson, Fort Benning's staff judge advocate.

The award is for collecting about $90,000 in affirmative claims (claims collected from insurance companies for medical care on behalf of someone injured and treated at Martin Army Community Hospital, for example) in 1992, Anderson said.

A portion of the money collected from the claims then goes into the funds at Martin Army for its operating budget, he said.

Connie Lalka, affirmative claims examiner for SJA, accepted the award at the breakfast.

Lalka said the recognition was wonderful, pointing out that the SJA attorneys are the ones ultimately responsible for securing the claims.

Capt. Eric Storey, chief of claims in 1992, Capt. Keith Moore-Erickson, current chief of claims, Capt. David Dalition, recovery judge advocate, and all the people at Martin Army who were part of the award all deserve special thanks, she said.

Beginning Tuesday — to reach an off-post number

Dial 7

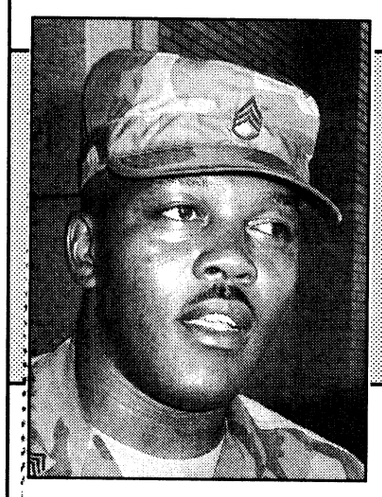
By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Beginning Tuesday, the access number for off-post telephone calls will change from 9 to 7.

According to Faye Tucker, E-911 project officer for the Military Police Activity, the change is being made to avoid problems when the E-911 service is implemented.

"We don't want people to try to dial 911 and end up with off-post access, she said.

"Changing the off-post access number to 7 will avoid that problem.



Tucker said the change won't affect the access number for the Defense Switched Network, more commonly known as DSN, which will remain 8.

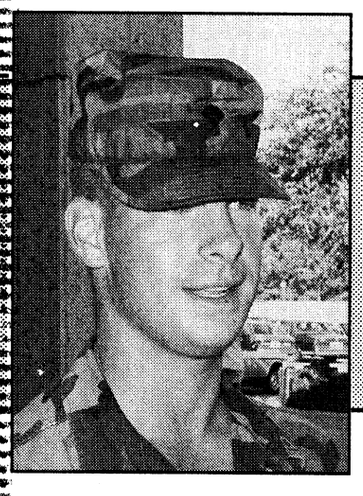
Tucker said the equipment is not yet in place for the E-911 system.

"We don't know yet when it will be on line," she said. "But, this change will avoid problems when 911 is activated."

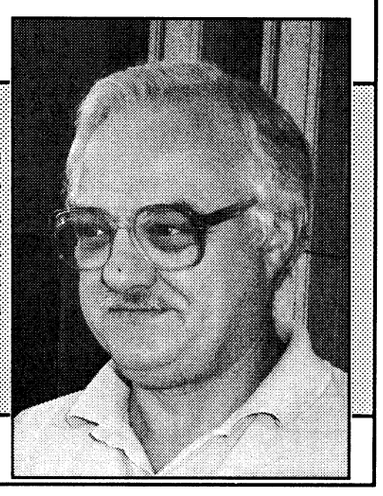
VARIOUS VOICES

What can be done to improve the Columbus-Fort Benning relationship?

Staff Sgt. Lewis Jefferson, Company A, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment — "I think we should have more social events where the public is invited, and we should solicit more community support."



Sharon D. Willis, family member — "I think people downtown see uniforms and take advantage of the soldiers. I'd like to see them treated as real people."



Sherry Page, family member — "We should educate people about what the military is really like — bring more people on post. Children from the Columbus schools would be a good place to start."

Spc. Andrea K. Jones, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment — "If there were more to do in Columbus, that would improve things."

Spc. Frank L. Stanley, Company E, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment — "We need more interaction with the community to share more activities than just going to the clubs."

Robert Whitehurst, civilian contractor, Army and Air Force Exchange Service— "I've been here off and on since 1975, and I think Fort Benning and Columbus have a better relationship now than they've had in 10 years."

Sign up your child for soccer

It'll challenge him or her more than that 'other' sport

By Clyde Snively
Bayonet columnist

It's that time of year again. It's the time of year when the only thing on the brain of good old boy sports writers, announcers and fans is Southeastern Conference football.

Oh, sure you still have the hunters who want to go out and slaughter Bambi's mom, but we still have a month before that happens.

In the meantime, unless you're an SEC football fan, forget about learning how your team is expected to do and just hope you can find out how your team did in the teeny, tiny type of the scores.

Of course, if you're from the West Coast, you'll probably never know.

I was reminded of this as I drove past a park last night and saw children so small they couldn't leap over a chalk stripe to those big enough to carry a refrigerator under each arm, smashing into one another as coaches yelled encouragement, "hit 'em, hit 'em. My grandmother can hit harder than that and she's 90 years old and confined to a wheel chair," and other terms of endearment.

Yep. Welcome to Georgia in September.

Now, I've got nothing against that "other" sport — football. In fact, I used to enjoy college ball when I still had a team I could follow. But I've often wondered about the sanity of putting pads on 6-year-olds and telling them to smash some other kid's face into the ground.

What are they learning? That a helmet in the gut hurts? That an elbow in the eye causes swelling? Is this preparing them for manhood?

Parents, if you want your child to learn team sports, have a chance to run off some energy and be challenged mentally, sign up him or her for soccer.

In football, a child is drilled into a few basics — mainly, knock someone down. About the only one's whose brain cells are activated are the quarterback's and after a few hits, you wonder about that.

In soccer, all children are quarterbacks. They have to make hundreds of decisions a minute. They all get to "handle" the ball. Need to decide when to pass, whom to pass to, or when to dribble.

COMMENTARY

They have to be able to get open when not controlling the ball and be prepared to receive a pass. On defense, they need to decide when to attack the person with the ball or when to drop back to cut off a pass.

And soccer is a nonstop sport. It's not 30 seconds of inactivity disrupted by seven seconds of action. It's a constant go, go, go.

Further, the child who has trouble seeing over the top of grass has as much chance at success as the child who has to bend over when he walks through doorways.

Agility and coordination are more important than size and brute strength.

There are of course some drawbacks. If your child's on a soccer team, forget about media coverage. Remember, this is football country.

Additionally, you as a parent will need to learn to yell things besides, "kill 'em," or "smash 'em." This is not to say soccer isn't a contact sport. It is, but contact is not the objective of soccer.

Putting the ball into the goal is.

You'll also be confused about the rules (although you'll know more than the referees). So don't feel inhibited. Go ahead and yell at them; they're fair game in all sports.

Especially yell about off sides calls or noncalls. Again, ignorance of the rules should be no reason to sit mum on the sidelines.

Of course, it would be better to yell encouragement to your child; but hey, this is America and what fun is that?

And finally, if you like abuse and want to become a referee in this sport, there's a training course for new referees.

It'll be conducted at the new soccer complex near Fort Middle School on Woodruff Farm Road, Columbus, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sept. 14 and 16, from 6 to 10 p.m. Sept 17 and from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept 18. Attendance at all four classes is mandatory.

To sign up, call Gary Stern at 563-0500 or 563-4279.

If you pass, you can referee at Fort Benning, in Columbus, or anywhere else there's soccer being played.

Help the blind; get a seeing-eye dog as a puppy

Dogs and the military family seem to be inseparable. However, everyone seems to be getting puppies and keeping them for 12 to 18 months or until they relocate.

Then, the puppy gets a new owner; and, when the old family gets to its next duty station, family members get a new puppy. This is a vicious cycle.

Well, I have a solution — one everyone can feel good about.

Why not enroll to get a seeing eye puppy. Guide dogs for the blind don't start their intensive training until they're 12 to 18 months old.

Before that, they live with volunteers to give them a foundation of love, security and trust in people and an exposure to the kinds of situations they will encounter later.

The puppies learn basic obedience and get used to being around people. They also accompany their temporary masters as much as possible for a crash course in proper behavior in public.

You can enroll in the program by calling the nearest dog-guide training school (or call the National Federation of the Blind at (410) 659-9314 for the name and address of the school nearest you). The school will put you in touch with its local puppy club.

Why not just call to see what it's all about.

I am not only a concerned member of the military family but the mother of a blind 7-month-old little boy.

I urge you on his behalf and many more like him to just call.

'Fitness 2000' program should be available for all

Recently I read about "Total Fitness 2000," a Training and Doctrine Command program that was initiated by TRADOC commander's level. Again, I saw it mentioned in "Ask Dr. Fit."

In the "Ask Dr. Fit" column, it was stated that this is a program" to encourage members of the entire Army community to be responsible for their health and wellness. It includes active and Reserve components, their family members, Army civilians and retirees."

I think that the concept is great. There are a lot of us who are overweight and want very much to reduce to the proper weight while maintaining a healthy nutrition program.

TRADOC's "Fitness 2000" is a pioneer program in the health and fitness area for personnel at Fort Benning. Members of the program are to be commended since fitness should be tackled as a multi-dimensional endeavor.

As a spouse of an active Army soldier, I am concerned about fitness for both my husband as well as myself. A fitness program, water aerobics, was mentioned in the first article I read.

I called for more information since water aerobics is low-impact and an excellent way to begin a total fitness program.

The information I was given is that it is only offered at 11:30 a.m. week days. Unfortunately, that time is not convenient for me. I have a full-time job and need a program either before or after working hours.

I would like to see more options offered for spouses such as nutrition courses, including how to learn about fat grams and how to correctly read food labels.

Also, I think that bike paths would be very helpful. Other posts and bases have marked paths just for bicycling.

I think that bike paths would enhance biking safety for youngsters as well as be a great place to exercise for adults.

For beginning, a long, safe bike path could be installed at Uchee Creek. There are other excellent locations around the post, too.

While I commend TRADOC's efforts, it is frustrating to learn of programs offered in the daytime that are unavailable for those of us who work.

Also, living off post is a disadvantage when trying to participate in activities.

Mary Secrist

U.S. Army Physical Fitness School response:

Thank you very much for your interest in Total Fitness 2000. As you may be aware, the benefits of physical training are many.

Your concern to begin a physical training program will reap benefits when you simply commence exercise.

The greatest decline in premature deaths is evident when your physical condition improve from the lowest 20 percent of the population to the next 20 percent.

In other words, a brisk walk from 30 to 60 minutes a day and performed three days a week will decrease the incidence of all causes of deaths drastically. So, congratulations on your desire to start exercising.

Your other concern about the limited offering of structured physical training courses is a major concern to us as well.

I personally called the Directorate of Community Activities, Physical Activities Section, about your question of limited exercise classes.

Presently, some instructors from the Army Physical Fitness School teach an excellent series of classes at the Officers' Club during the lunch time.

The attendance was limited initially, but the attendance has increased. The primary reason this is the only aerobic, step aerobic and water aerobic class is that DCA had very limited interest in previous aerobic classes.

Your point of a late afternoon or early evening class is an excellent concept. I suggest a group of people approach DCA and ask to have a class.

If there is a sincere interest in aerobic training, I'm sure DCA will provide an instructor. Remember numbers talk!

In future Dr. Fit articles, some topics to be addressed are the topics of interest to the readers.

Reading a food label is an excellent idea and it will be addressed soon. For the time being, start looking at the food labels to familiarize yourself with the grams of carbohydrates, fats, and proteins in food. Pay particular attention to the fat grams and try to reduce them by 6 to 10 grams a day.

Your idea of bike trails is a growing concern across the United States. There is an organization called Rails to Trails. This group finds old railroad right-of-ways and converts them to bike trails. They are flat and require little upkeep.

There is a local group in Columbus trying to do just that. Rick Gordon, Columbus Parks and Recreation director, recently said the city is seeking a $750,000 grant that will be used to help finish a cycling and walking path from the new Riverwalk to Fort Benning. The local telephone number is 571-4785.

Student 'shadows' soldier

As a part of Minority Enterprise Development Week, sponsored by the Columbus Minority Business Development Center, Fort Benning hosted minority students who were participating in a youth internship program Aug 23. through 26.

"Our goal was to place a hundred youths with professionals and business owners to give them insight to future careers and develop an entrepreneurial spirit in the young people," said Joyce Lawson, business development specialist for finance at the Columbus Minority Business Development Center, also the coordinator.

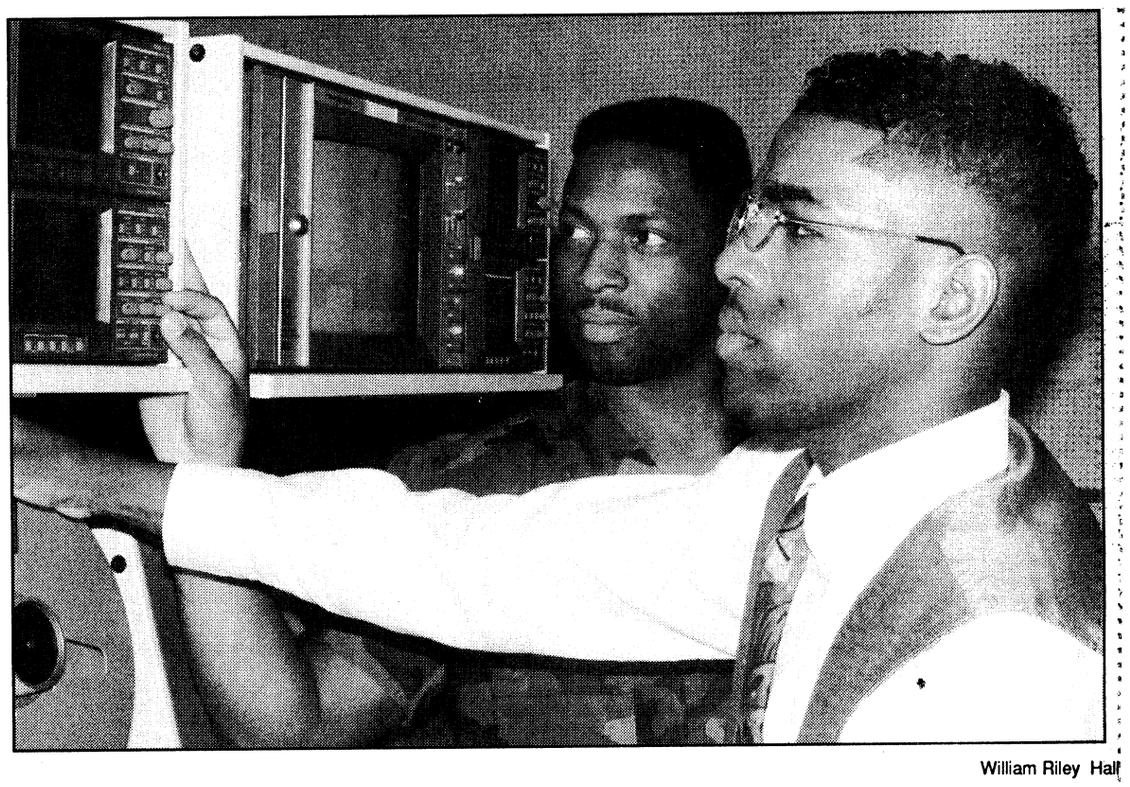
Lawson said that the youths were chosen from teen groups and attended a sign up at Columbus Square Mall Aug. 12. Businesses and organizations were listed, and the youths were placed according to their interests.

The idea for the program came from Tim Nolan, general manager for Columbus Square Mall, Lawson said .

"I think this program is a real good idea," said Vaughn Slaughter, a youth in the program that spent a day at the Television Section of Fort Benning's Public Affairs Office. "If I ever get into a job like this, I'll now know what I'm getting myself into from the experience of being here."

On Sept. 21, from 7 to 9 p.m., the youth program will come together for a youth entrepreneurial day at Columbus Technical College that will summarize the whole program, Lawson said.

"I think the program has been an excellent experience for the youths," said Lawson. "I've gotten a lot of positive feedback from the professionals and business owners that volunteered in the program and from the kids in the program. Our goal is to make a lasting impression on the youths and make the program on-going, not just a one-time thing."



The week is an annual celebration to honor the contributions of America's minority entrepreneurs and individuals and organizations that support minority business development, said Lawson.

It was authorized by President Ronald Reagan in 1982, and is celebrated on a national level during the first full week of October. Regional and local events are held weeks prior to the national celebration, said Lawson.

Local activities will include a kick-off worship service at Wynnton Hill Baptist Church on Sept. 17 with Rep. Carl Von Epps as guest speaker, a trades fair on Sept. 22 that is co-sponsored by and held at the Chamber of Commerce from 4 to 7 p.m. and a live radio call-in banking forum.

Activities will culminate with an awards breakfast Sept. 24 at 7 a.m. at the Ironworks Convention and Trade Center. Rep. Cynthia McKinney will be the keynote speaker.

The Columbus Minority Business Development Center, headed by Greg Dawson, project director, is located in the Corporate Center at 233 12th St., Suite 621. For more information or tickets, call 324-4253.

POST BRIEFS

Housing available

The Family Housing Branch of the Directorate of Public Works has available for immediate occupancy company-grade officer quarters. Three- and four-bedroom units are available.

Company-grade officers with waiting list numbers 001 through 050 can contact the Family Housing office for quarters assignment.

Also, the Family Housing Branch has available for immediate occupancy junior-enlisted quarters. Two- and three-bedroom units are available. Junior-enlisted soldiers on the two-bedroom waiting list with numbers 1 through 150 can contact the housing office for quarters assignment.

Junior-enlisted soldiers on the three-bedroom waiting list with numbers 1 through 80 can also contact the housing office for quarters.

Fort Benning to honor POW/MIAs Sept. 10

The U.S. Army Infantry Center will pay tribute to all former American prisoners of war, those still missing and their families in a ceremony in Marshall Auditorium, Building 4, at 2 p.m. Sept. 10.

Retired Col. Benjamin H. Purcell, who spent more than five years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam, will be the guest speaker. Everyone is invited to attend.

Self-Help Store to be closed Saturday

In observance of the Labor Day holiday, the Self-Help Store, Loan Equipment Section and Venetian Blind and Shade Shop will be closed Saturday and will reopen for business at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Rigging facility ground breaking planned

A ground-breaking ceremony for a new parachute rigging facility will be noon Tuesday behind Building 2409 next to the airborne hangar at Lawson Army Airfield.

According to a project officer, the new rigging facility will replace an older building currently in use and fulfill all Fort Benning's needs for packing, maintenance, storage and drying of parachutes. Also, the facility will provide an alert-ready hangar designed to meet the training and contingency requirements for 75th Ranger Regiment deployments.

Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, commanding general; Col. James T. Jackson, 75th Ranger Regiment commander; and Col. Walter Wojdakowski, 11th Infantry Regiment commander, will participate in the ceremony, signifying the facility's postwide use.

Construction for the 47,000-square-foot facility will begin in September and is scheduled for completion in this month at a cost of approximately $3.67 million. Parking will be available in the vicinity of McCarthy Hall.

The entire military community is invited. For information, contact Capt. Guy Mallow at 545-5136.

Luncheon set for civilian awards

The Civilian Awards Luncheon will be Sept. 28 at the Supper Club at the Fort Benning Officers' Club from 11:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. The U.S. Army Infantry School will be the host.

Insurance reps to visit Fort Benning Wed.

Representatives from CNA and Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance companies will be available for consultation Wednesday.

James Rice from CNA and Frank Williams from Blue Cross and Blue Shield will be in Building 2506, Classroom 2 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Appointments may be made by calling the Directorate of Civilian Personnel at 545-3374 or 545-2470.

Layaway warehouse at rear of bowling center

The Post Exchange layaway warehouse is located at the rear of the Main Post Bowling Center, Building 2785.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland and range areas will take place through Sept. 12. If weather permits, the following compartments may be affected: A-6, C-1, C-2, D-11, D-17, E-2, E-7, J-1, M-2, M-8, O-1, O-3, O-5, O-6, O-7, Q-2, S-1, T-5, T-6 and U-5.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species habitat and training areas. People using these areas for recreation must vacate the areas before 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to these areas may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while traveling in these areas because of the potential for reduced visibility.

Crescrenz weapons pool to close Saturday

The Crescrenz Consolidated Equipment Pool Branch (formerly called the Weapons Pool), Maintenance Division, Directorate of Logistics, Building 9106, will be closed for business Saturday because of the Labor Day holiday, which will be observed Monday.

Stress class Sept. 16

The Civilian Counseling Service of the Directorate of Community Activities is sponsoring a seminar, "Understanding and Reducing Stress," Sept. 16 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The seminar will be at the Youth Activities Center, Building 1056.

There is no cost for this training.

The agenda is as follows:

8:30 to 9:30 a.m. — "Stress in our Daily Lives," Lt. Col. Roberta Dyer, chief of Community Health Nursing.

9:45 to 10:30 a.m. — "Humor and Stress," Dr. Ron King, executive director, the Pastoral Institute.

'Green to gold' scholarships available

Columbus College Department of Military Science

Soldiers can qualify for an early release from active duty to finish college work and earn a commission in the active Army, Reserves or National Guard, with the Army's Green to Gold Program.

Green to Gold allows soldiers with at least two years of active service and two years of college to apply for early release from the military. Once early release is granted, the soldier enrolls in ROTC, completes the requirements for a bachelor's degree and receives a commission in the active Army or Reserve component.

According to Capt. Justina Reed, Columbus College ROTC instructor and recruiter, the basic requirements to be released from active duty to complete college include: having 90 quarter hours or 60 semester hours with a grade point average of 2.0 on a 4.0 scale, a general test score of 110 or higher and at least two years of active service. A soldier must complete the ROTC program, graduate and be commissioned before reaching the age of 30.

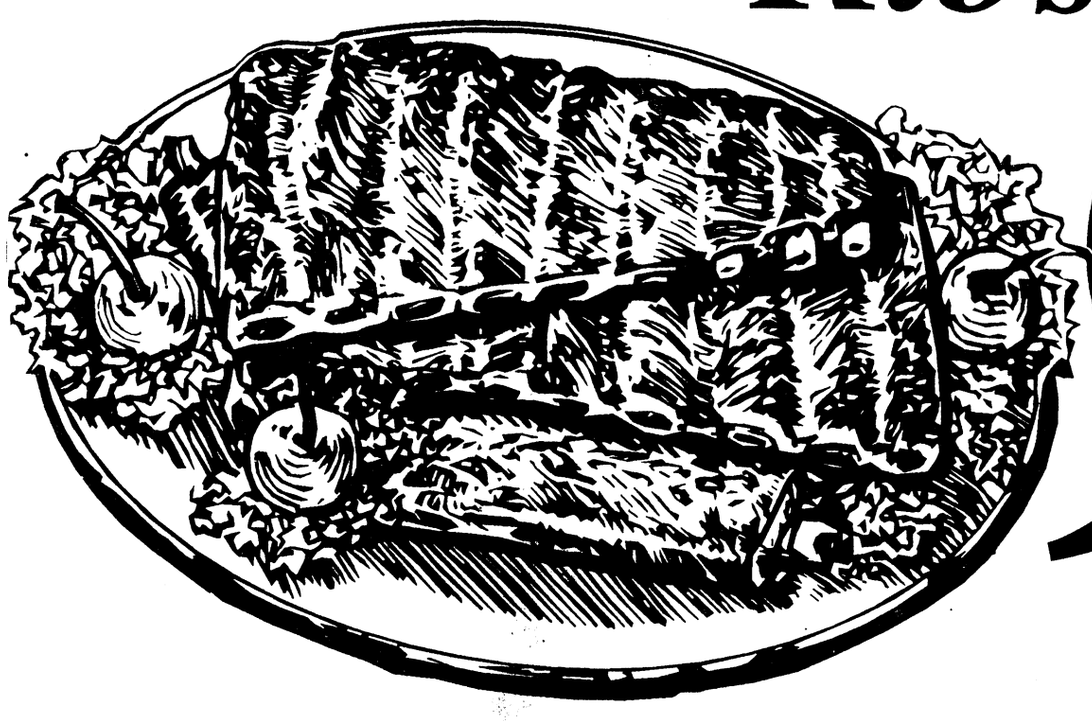
ROTC scholarships pay up to $8,000 per year toward tuition and fees, includes a $450 allowance for books and pays the scholarship winner an allowance of $100 a month for ten months for each year of the scholarship.

A service member participating in VEAP or the New GI Bill can receive these benefits along with the scholarship adding some extra pocket money.

To compete for the scholarships the minimum requirements include a GPA of 2.5 on all college work, a general test score of 115 or higher and have not reached age 25 by graduation and commissioning date.

According to Reed the age requirement can be waived for each year of active service up to four years.

Scholarship application packets will be available Oct. 1. with selection beginning Dec. 1 and ending March 15. Scholarships are awarded by June 30. Recipients are released from active duty in August to begin the fall term.



To see if you qualify, contact the Columbus College Department of Military Science at 568-2058 or your unit commander.

Post looks at women's equality

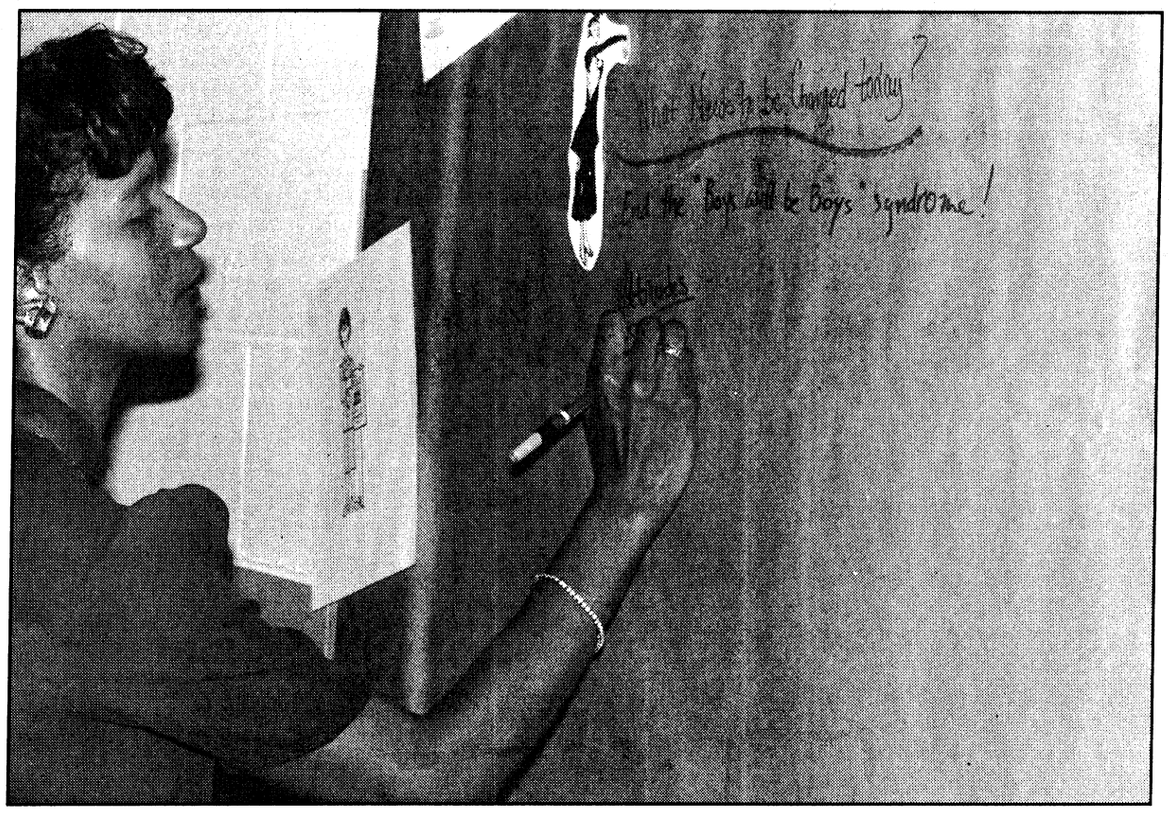
Seminars examine women's health, careers, opportunities

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning celebrated Women's Equality Day Aug. 26 with a symposium and displays reflecting women's issues.

Equality Day, according to Winnie Torain, Federal Women's Program manager, was designed to commemorate passage of the 19th Amendment, which gave women the right to vote. The day is also an opportunity, she said, to gauge the progress women are making.

A seminar in Classroom 4 of Infantry Hall featured speakers on political power for women, AIDS and women and violence against women.



More than 50 audience members, some of whom brought lunches, attended the seminar and viewed the displays set up by various girls' and women's groups, including the Girl Scouts, the American Association of University Women, and the Fort Benning Management Association.

"Our organization isn't just for women, but we're hoping to get women's attention today," said Myrtle Chalkley, president of the FBMA. "Our purpose is to encourage strong leadership among civilians and military members, and we fund scholarships. We're hoping to get more women involved in our organization."

Patricia Myers, an editorial clerk at the Combined Arms and Tactics Directorate and editor of the AAUW branch newsletter, said the purpose of her organization is to inform women of employment and educational opportunities available to them.

"We support women's education, equal opportunity and women's health," Myers said. "The national organization has 140,000 members and provides $2 million yearly in scholarships and grants."

Speakers at the seminar included Sherry Kellerman, a registered nurse with Preventive Medicine; Debra Howell, a social worker with the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity; and Meryll Penson, director of the Columbus College Library.

Karen S. Morarie

Marie Brooks, an office automation clerk at the Ranger Training Brigade, adds her thoughts to the "Women's Wall for Change" at the recent seminar.

Kellerman addressed the rising incidence of human immunodeficiency virus and AIDS among women.

"Any form of sex can put you at risk, especially if drug use is involved," said Kellerman. "Alcohol is considered a drug, so if you're having sex and using drugs, even beer, your risk increases."

Kellerman outlined testing procedures and explained the progress of the disease.

"There is a window from six to 12 weeks after exposure when you won't test positive," Kellerman said. "Once you test positive for HIV, you may be asymptomatic — showing no signs of the disease — for 7 1/2 to 10 years.

Women's Equality Day is designed to commemorate the passage of the 19th Amendment, which gave women the right to vote.

— Winnie Torain
Federal Women's Program manager

"Most women," Kellerman said, "are infected through contact with heterosexual male partners who are intravenous drug users."

Kellerman said AIDS is on the rise among other populations, particularly some minority groups, and is found among all ages, races and economic levels.

"It affects all of us," she said. "Let's make sure it doesn't infect all of us."

Howell spoke on the issue of domestic violence, particularly as it's directed against women.

"Domestic violence is an issue that parallels AIDs in the effect it can have," Howell said. "It's hard to talk briefly on a subject so vast, a subject that can be potentially fatal. Even if I stand here and talk forever, the violence won't stop."

Howell said violence is perpetuated partly because women are in a state of denial.

"Whether they are being abused or are abusing their children, they are afraid to admit, afraid to report what's going on," Howell said.

Another topic discussed at the seminar and elsewhere was political power for women.

Penson spoke on the topic to the Infantry Hall audience, while the 30th Adjutant General Battalion hosted Dr. Jeanne Dugas, an industrial psychologist and faculty member at Columbus College.

Dugas spoke to a mostly male audience on women in the workforce, men's perceptions of women, and women in combat.

According to 1st Lt. Ashleah Bechtel, adjutant for the 30th Adjutant General (Reception) Battalion, Dugas' remarks centered on the possibility of changing perceptions.

"She asked for audience opinion on the question of women in combat, and got a mixed response," said Bechtel.

Dugas summed up the session, Bechtel said, by saying it takes education, listening skills, and changes in belief systems to change the way people view each other.

Is this equality?

▼ 1 million women yearly seek medical assistance after being battered

▼ 30 percent of female homicide victims are killed by a male partner, while 6 percent of male victims are killed by a female partner

▼ 20 percent of women who seek treatment at a hospital or emergency room are victims of abuse

Violence occurs in an estimated two-thirds of all marriages, and statistically, will recur a second time. The second incident is usually more violent than the first.

3.3 million children witness domestic violence in their homes yearly.

Studies suggest women who are battered are predisposed to abusing their children.

Army News Service

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Efforts are being made to allow enlisted soldiers more influence in their duty assignment selections, according to officials at U.S. Total Army Personnel Command.

Soldiers with assignment preferences should visit their local personnel service center to update their continental United States and overseas duty choices on the Standard Installation/Division Personnel System, officials said.

Soldiers are also encouraged to employ the traditional methods for assignment consideration, such as submitting DA Forms 4187, Request for Personnel Action, to PERSCOM; calling their assignments managers; or by visiting PERSCOM.

Officials stress that the needs of the Army will always remain paramount, but soldiers will be afforded an opportunity to have a hand in the assignments process.

Self-Help program

Rangers renovate living, play areas

6th Ranger Training Battalion

"Self Help." For the "enlightened," the words may trigger thoughts of countless books, ensuring to cure all that troubles you, or they may trigger the proverbial talk show guaranteed to solve life-long problems in one hour.

However, for members of the 6th Ranger Training Battalion, located on Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, the words self help bring thoughts of improved work facilities and a better community.

The 6th Ranger Training Battalion, Ranger Training Brigade, is at Camp James E. Rudder. It rests on a remote part of the base, and members of the 6th battalion have improved the quality of life by successfully using Fort Benning's expanded Self-Help and U-Do-It programs.

Since the battalion has occupied Camp Rudder, buildings have been added and many renovations have been made.

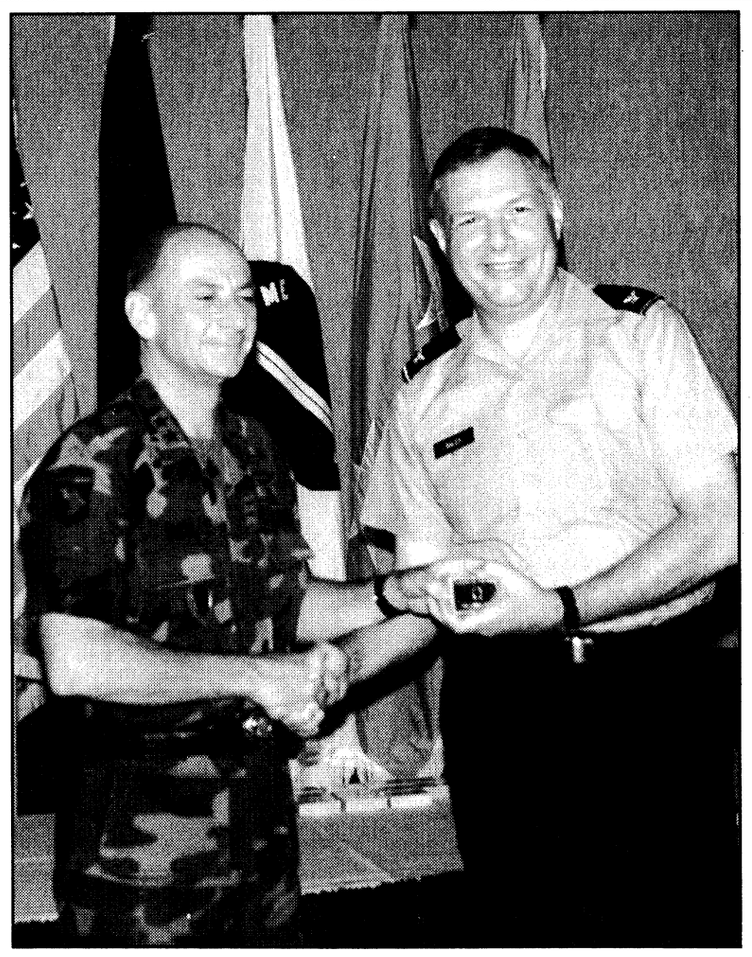
"None of the previous renovations have built a sense of pride and improved the quality of life on Camp Rudder as much as the recent Self Help projects," said Capt. Jon P. Heidt, special projects officer for the refurbishing.

Over the past several months, numerous projects have been completed. The distinguished visitors quarters have been remodeled. The Gator Lounge and Community Center have been improved by adding decks and refurbishing the interior.

Better office space has been provided for several companies in the battalion. Training facilities, such as new planning bays, have improved training conditions for ranger students.

Additionally, a fishing pier and picnic area with pavilion have been added near the housing area enhancing the quality of life off duty as well.

The unit purchased materials through the Self-Help program and labor was provided by soldiers of the battalion with some assistance from visiting units and federal inmates.

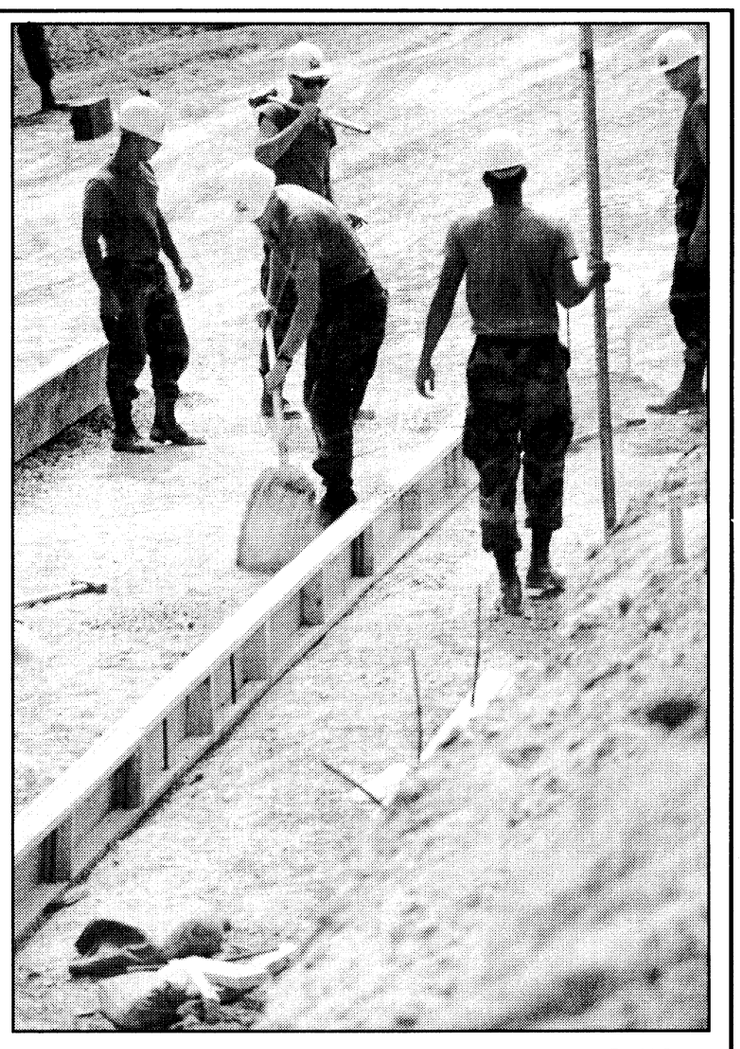


Technical assistance, training and project inspection was provided by the civil engineers assigned to Camp Rudder.

"The projects completed by this unit saved the Army a tremendous amount of money while improving buildings and upgrading standards," said Carlos Duncan, foreman of the civil engineers, Camp Rudder, who monitored the work to ensure it met with engineering standards.

Further projects are continuing. Currently, the reptile facility, or "Snake House" is being renovated as are the basic enlisted quarters and transient quarters.

"The system helps those who help themselves," said Lt. Col. Anthony Coroalles, the battalion commander.



"With the help of Fort Benning's Directorate of Public Works; technical expertise by Spc. Richard L. Irwin, our great part-time carpenter; and a lot of effort by our cadre, we have been able to greatly improve the looks and the quality of life in the camp at very little cost."

BOSS addresses soldiers' concerns

By Shelby Carr
Infantry Training Brigade

The Infantry Training Brigade's BOSS program provides an opportunity for single soldiers to express their concerns, their problems and their desires

The Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers program at the Infantry Training Brigade enhances the quality of life for soldiers by providing a venue for them to express their concerns, according to ITB officials.

The BOSS program provides an opportunity for single soldiers to express their concerns, their problems and their desires to the brigade's top enlisted soldier, Command Sgt. Maj. Sylvan B. Bauer.

Bauer said he uses the program to address the issues of the single soldiers or to express those issues to a level where they can be addressed in a timely manner and to disseminate information about activities to single soldiers.

Program activities include bi-monthly breakfast meetings for all single soldiers and monthly meetings for the battalion BOSS representatives. At these meetings, single soldiers and Bauer discuss concerns that affect the soldiers' quality of life.

Col. Theodore R. Severn, ITB commander, said he takes the opportunity whenever possible to attend the meetings and hear soldiers' concerns so he will be better able to address their interests.

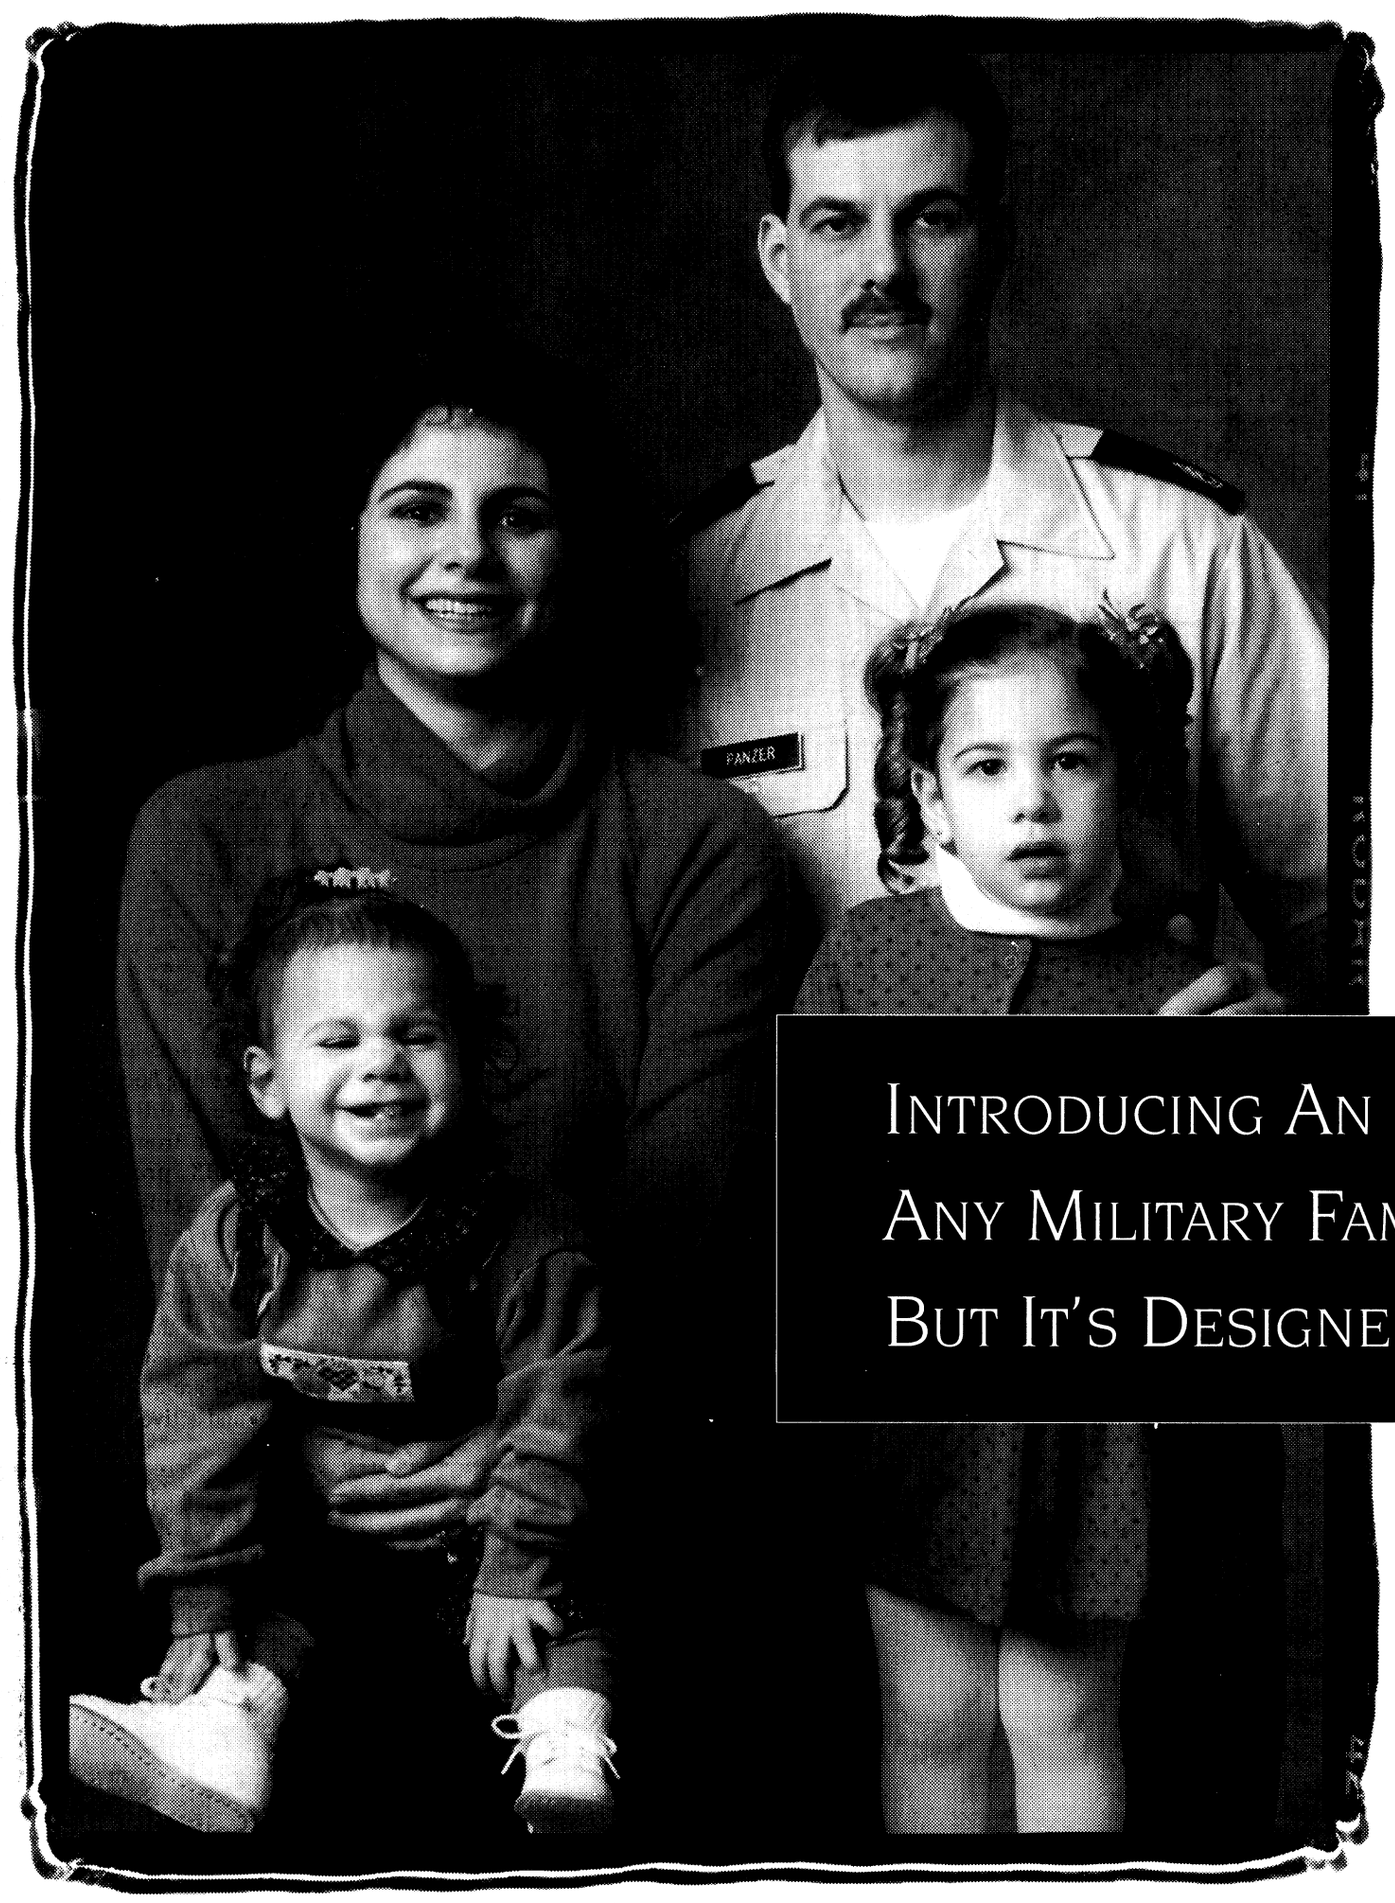
One concern members of the BOSS program have addressed is the placement of a Quartermaster Laundry Facility on Sand Hill. The BOSS program received a recommendation to locate a laundry facility on Sand Hill, and a facility will open in October to provide laundry services for all soldiers on Sand Hill.

Another activity recently conducted by the ITB BOSS program was a tour of the morale, welfare, and recreation facilities available to soldiers on Fort Benning. Many of the facilities on Fort Benning were unknown to the soldiers.

The availability and affordability of the Uchee Creek campground and marina was a surprise to most of the soldiers, and many expressed a desire to rent the cabins at Uchee Creek as soon as possible. The tour's success in spreading the information about facilities on post is indicative of the overall BOSS program at ITB.

Other activities include a trip to Six Flags over Georgia during October.

New carpeting, washers and dryers and cooking facilities have been added in the barracks. This is an ongoing activity being done as funds become available to the BOSS program.



To improve the fitness of all soldiers at ITB, changes in the hours at the Santiago Gym and the Sand Hill pool were made at the request of BOSS officials. Also, an aerobics class was started during lunch and evening hours.

As more soldiers see the benefits gained from participation in the BOSS program, more activities are being planned and more concerns are being addressed in order to improve the quality of life for ITB's single soldiers, said Bauer. Most of the single soldiers look upon the BOSS program favorably and are glad the program is in place and active, he said.

Enjoy end of summer but be safe

By George Morgan
TRADOC Command Safety

As the summer months come to a close, Labor Day weekend is a time for families to travel, to visit relatives and friends, picnic, go boating and swimming, and participate in other recreational activities. Many Training and Doctrine Command soldiers and civilian employees will participate in these activities during this holiday period.

Commanders, leaders and supervisors are required to make that last push for safety before their people start the holiday. They should reinforce defensive skills and attitudes for a safe holiday, officials said. Personal attention to safety prior to Labor Day activities can and does make a difference.

Army family members, soldiers and civilians, should include safety in the preplanning of all holiday activities to reinforce safe attitudes before starting long trips.

Privately-owned vehicle accidents continue to be the major cause of accidental death and injury to our soldiers and family members. Buckle up and ensure your passengers are wearing seatbelts before starting the car. Recognize fatigue. Stop driving every two hours and rest. Use good judgment. Drive defensively. observe speed limits. Be aware of road conditions, and drive accordingly.

Sports activities that seem to be the most popular or the most fun are also among the most dangerous. Water-related accidents are second only to privately-owned vehicle accidents as the biggest off-duty killer of soldiers.

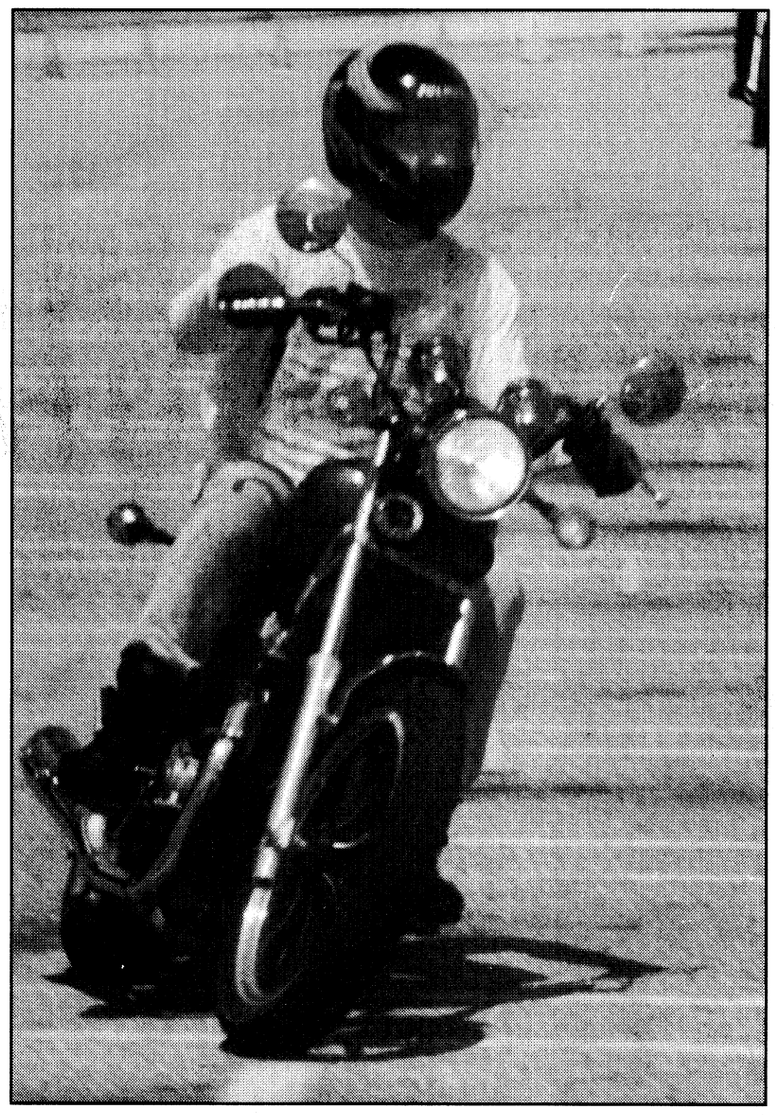
Swim with a buddy, know your capabilities, and stay within those limits. Weak swimmers should use a life preserver, stay out of deep water, and swim with a strong swimmer when possible.

Swim only in authorized areas and only where lifeguards are present. Avoid swimming when tired, overheated or chilled. Swim only when sober. Use sunscreen.

Be very careful about diving into ponds, lakes or unfamiliar bodies of water. Broken necks, spinal injuries are results of unknown underwater hazards.

Another water sport enjoyed by many people is boating. Follow safe boating operations. Know the rules of the water. Never operate a boat while drinking. Boating accidents involving alcohol are rising at an alarming rate.

Most injuries incurred during physical sports and related activities are the result of overextending the body. The game does not have to be competitive to enjoy the sport. Wear the proper shoes and clothing for the sport you are playing.



Cookouts are also popular over the holiday. Follow safe procedures when starting a fire. Never leave the fire unattended. Never use gas to start a fire.

The objective is for TRADOC families to enjoy themselves. Enjoy the holiday, and return home and to work without a loss of life or injury.

Another reminder: the end of Labor Day marks the beginning of the school year throughout most of the country. Children will be on the streets walking to and from school

School buses will reappear on the roads after the summer's absence. Watch for them and protect the children.

Make your Labor Day weekend a safe one.

Motorcyclists learn safety

By William Riley Hall
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning's Driver Testing Branch sponsored another Army Motorcycle Safety Course Aug. 28, from 7:45 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Attendance of the eight-hour course is a requirement for any person who rides a motorcycle on post, said Lee Morris, motorcycle safety instructor.

The course is split between four hours of classroom instruction and four hours of practice riding in the Infantry Hall parking lot.

Morris said that the material covered in the classroom is presented to change the behavior of the riders to make them more aware of the dangers they face.

"We try to get people to think ahead before they get themselves into a dangerous situation," he said.

The hands-on riding portion of the course is to teach the riders new techniques and brush up on skills they already possess to "make them safer, better prepared riders," Morris said.

Nine exercises are practiced while riding and four additional exercises are run to evaluate the riders.

The course concentrates on three basic skills of motorcycle riding: swerving, cornering and braking.

"If all riders would apply these skills and think ahead, the accident rate at Fort Benning would decrease," Morris said.

To ride a motorcycle on post, Morris said that the riders must complete the safety course and register the bike on post.

Also, riders must wear a helmet, eye protection, gloves, leather shoes that cover the ankle and have a heel, long pants, a jacket or long-sleeve shirt and a reflective vest.

Military personnel are always required to wear the same gear regardless whether they are on post, off post, on duty, off duty or on leave by Department of Defense requirements, said Morris. DoD civilians must also wear the same gear if they are on post or while on duty off post.

The course is Saturdays every two weeks from March to September and once a month from October to February.

The Army Motorcycle Safety Course was established by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation and was initiated on Fort Benning in 1988.

"I think the course has been a big success," Morris said. "The accident rate at Fort Benning is significantly lower than before the course was implemented."

The course is open free of charge to anyone that has the need to get their motorcycle registered on post.

The Columbus Stars were stampeded 13-7 by the Decatur Colts Saturday at Memorial Stadium. The loss dropped the Stars to 3-2 on the season and improved the Colts to 4-2.

The Stars jumped out to an early lead on a 62-yard touchdown bomb from quarterback Donald Stroy to split end Rodney Simmons for the longest pass play of the season. Simmons broke off a post pattern at the Stars 48-yard line, caught the pass and turned on the afterburners going the rest of the way untouched. The extra-point attempt was no good giving the Stars a 6-0 lead with two minutes and 35 seconds left in the first half.

The half ended with the Stars still up 6-0.

The Colts took the lead with under three minutes to play in the third quarter when Stroy dropped back to pass in his own end zone and was hit by Colt linebacker Guy Bryant causing Stroy to fumble the ball. Middle linebacker C.J. Johnson recovered the ball in the end zone for the Colts first score of the day. Kicker Jimmy Callahan added the extra point for a 7-6 advantage.

The Colts tacked on another touchdown on a 40-yard interception return for a touchdown by defensive back Tim Perkins, who slipped in behind the receiver on the near sideline and picked off the pass and galloped to the end zone for a 13-6 lead with under two minutes left in the game.

The Stars had one more shot at lassoing the Colts but a third down pass attempt by Stroy was picked off by Colt defensive back Mark Truitt to close the gate on the Stars. Colt quarterback Wendell Reynolds took one snap and ran out the clock on the Stars.

The Stars' old nemesis, turnovers, once again played a role in the game. Three interceptions and two fumbles killed drives or gave points to the Colts. The Stars' defense held the Colts to a total of 169 yards total offense and no points. The Stars had 195 yards of total offense, 136 coming in the first half.

"We had too many turnovers to win. It's that simple," said head coach Tom Staton. "We were right there despite all the turnovers. One break our way and it's a win in our column, not theirs. Don't take anything away from the Colts; they're a good team," said Staton.

The Stars have an open date Saturday. They will take on the Chattanooga Blues Sept. 11 at Memorial Stadium beginning at 8 p.m. On Sept. 18, the Stars will play the North Georgia Wolfpack at Doughboy Stadium on Fort Benning at 8 p.m.

When you're hunting deer, use some COMMON 'SCENTS'

By Kevin L. McIver
USAIC Public Affairs Office

COMMENTARY

It looks like hunters everywhere are gearing up for the start of deer season Sept. 18. Stores are stocking the shelves with hunting items, and mail-order hunting catalogs are starting to arrive in the mailboxes.

If you haven't stocked up, then it's time you did. You know the drill. If you wait until opening day, then most of the good items will be gone and you'll be stuck with buying something you really don't want or can't use. Let's take a look at two items that most hunters use: deer scents and cover scents.

First, let's look at deer lures. You know, those awful-smelling liquids in those little bottles that cost $5 to $8 a pop and are supposed to lure in a big buck.

Now I've been using them for a number of years and have tried every different one on the market. From fox urine, buck lure, doe-in-heat and acorn lures to apple lures and corn scents, you name it and I've bought it.

I'm here to tell you that most of them work if a deer gets downwind. They'll follow their nose straight to the source — unfortunately, so will foxes, coyotes, raccoons and other creatures.

Last year, I had the same gray fox visit my stand about 10 times, and one time he even followed in a doe that stopped to see what was smelling so good. It was quite a sight. The deer stopped on one side of a big bush, and the fox on the other side. They both stood there, about four feet apart for about five minutes, then they went on their merry way.

If you opt to use a deer scent, there are many different placement methods you can use. You can place them around your stand, on your body, or near your stand.

I used to prefer the first method, but I don't anymore. The reason is you're smack-dab in the middle of the scent area, and naturally, the deer's attention will be fixed there. This can make it extremely difficult to make a shot without spooking the animal.

The second method, spraying it on your body, is the least preferred. Think about it — here you are in the middle of the woods, smelling like fox urine or a doe in heat. Again, the animals' attention will be on the source of the scent — you!

One of my hunting partners last year loved this method; and, since he used the same hunting clothes every hunt, I sure didn't like to drive very far with him in the truck. We definitely had to keep the windows rolled down!

Placing your scent near the stand seems to be the ticket to me. I like to place scent out about 20 yards from my stand, so the deer will be within bow range as it moves in to locate the source. With his attention fixed away from me, it makes it far easier to take a shot.

A good technique is to put out some 35-mm film canisters, filled with cotton balls and scent. Since the stuff is so expensive, this is a better method than pouring it on the ground. This way, you can use the same bottle of lure throughout the entire hunting season.

As for cover scents that "hide" your human odor, there are many brands on the market. I find "dusting" your hunting clothes with plain old baking soda will do the trick. It's less expensive; and, if you keep your clothes outside or wash them after every hunt, you'll get the same effect.

Hunting whitetail deer is not only an art, but a science. Yeah, there are a few lucky hunters who can drive down any road, step out of the truck, set up in a stand, and get a trophy buck.

But most of us have to work at it. And with a whitetail's exceptional sense of hearing and smell, it's easy to spook one long before you're able to get a shot. You need every advantage you can get, and this hunter strongly believes in deer lures for that extra help.

I hope I've provided you with some "hunter's sense." Deer archery season is drawing near, so it's time to get ready. Good luck and see you in the woods.

Club lands nearly 50 pounds of bass

Fort Benning Bass Club

The Bass Club of Fort Benning's monthly tournament was Aug. 15 at Lake Point on W.F. George Lake.

The club fielded 12 hardy fishermen that day.

Despite the hot muggy weather, the club totaled 49 pounds of fish caught and released alive.

The big fish of the day weighed in at a hefty 7 pounds 4 ounces and was caught by Bob Billman.

Billman said his prize catch was tempted into biting a mere 45 minutes before the tournament ended.

The big winners of the day were:

First place: Billman, total 13 pounds, 10 ounces

Second place: Gene Clark, total 12 pounds, 6 ounces

Third place : George Mendez, total 10 pounds, 2 ounces

The club holds meetings twice a month, with one club tournament per month. Any active duty, retired, department of defense on family member desiring to improve their fishing skills and socialize with others of like interest are invited to contact any club member.

For more information, call David Moore at 298-5955 or Steve Ward at 569-5705.

NIM to host run, biathlon

National Infantry Museum

The 1993 National Infantry Museum Road Races are part of the 75th Anniversary of Fort Benning. The races consist of a three-mile formation run for units, a five-mile individual race, and a biathlon consisting of a five-mile run and a 20-mile bike race. The biathlon is a new event just added this year.

To celebrate Fort Benning's 75th birthday, a one-mile Founder's Run/Walk will also be conducted. The 75th finishers in both the five mile run and the biathlon will receive the Fort Benning Founder's Award.

Preregistration is from Oct. 1 to 13 and may be done at either the National Infantry Museum, the Kelley Hill Recreation Center, or Outdoor Recreation at Building 1707. Late Registration is on Oct. 15 and must be accomplished at Outdoor Recreation (Building 1707) only.

Night fishing: better than you dreamed

By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

If things that go "thump!" in the middle of the night don't bother you, then perhaps fishing after dark is something you should consider now and in the weeks ahead.

"Night fishing from early spring throughout the summer and into the fall months is one of the best ways I know to catch some huge stringers of bass," said angler Ron Shuffield, a long-time fan of after-dark fishing.

"Bass move shallow to feed after the sun goes down and the lake traffic ends," he said. "You can fish the very same places you worked during the day without a strike, and have excellent action."

Shuffield's favorite night fishing lure is a 1/2-ounce solid black spinnerbait with a single size four to six nickel Colorado blade. He adds a black or black and blue pork trailer, and casts to any type of cover he can find along the shoreline.

"I think one of the keys is casting and retrieving parallel to the shore rather than casting straight toward the bank, he said. "I believe bass come shallow to feed and patrol back and forth along the shoreline, so you have a better chance of intercepting them if you work parallel, too."

The Johnson pro aims his casts at any potential bass cover the shoreline might offer such as logs, weeds, rocks and flooded timber. Each of these, he feels, will hide baitfish and thus possibly attract bass.

Shuffield lets the bass tell him how to retrieve. He stops, starts and bumps cover with his spinnerbait until he gets a strike.

Shuffield's favorite night fishing times are three days before and three days after the full moon. Moon phases aside, however, he enjoys after-dark fishing whenever he can go.

"I really prefer the period around a full moon because not only do the bass seem to bite a little better, there is more light to see the shoreline and cover," he said.

COMMENTARY

"I don't know if the bass can see any better or not during a full moon. I just know they come into shallow water and they're usually pretty active."

Labor Day offers chance to rest, reflect on human work, worth

By Gil Richardson
USAIC Chaplains' Office

The one who tells us labor is honorable, that human life is worthy of dignity ... is the Lord.

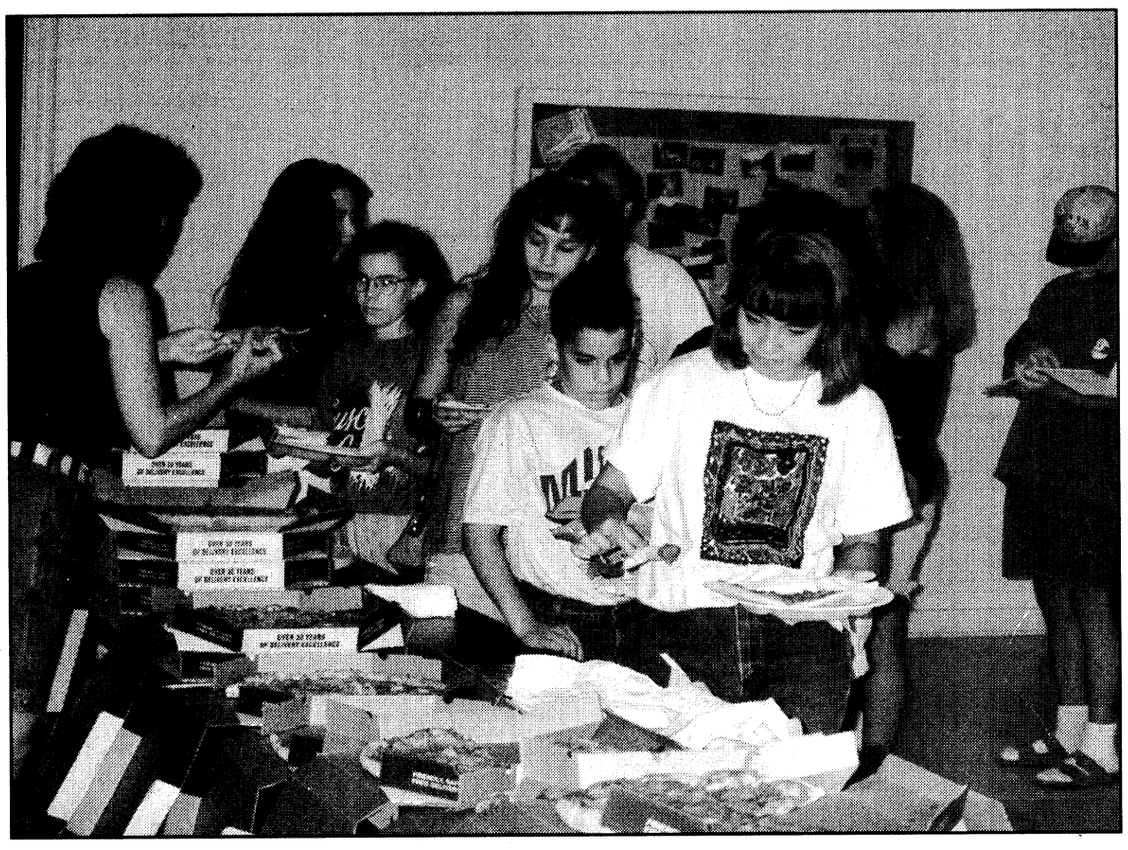
REFLECTIONS

The end of summer — the first Monday in September — back to school lament — last weekend the swimming pools are open — last big blowout of the summer season are all possible 'Final Jeopardy' answers to the question, 'What is Labor Day?'

As the lucky chaplain selected for this final Jeopardy question, I turned to the encyclopedias to find the 'who, what, when, where, why and how' of Labor Day.

With the advent of the Industrial Revolution, our nation witnessed great strides in technology and, sadly, continuing exploitation of workers. By the mid-19th century, labor movements began to emerge. With the objectives of safe and sanitary work places, sane working hours, and decent wages, labor movements evolved into labor unions. Behind these objectives was a struggle for dignity of life and labor.

Two men, Peter McGuire of New York and John Maguire of New Jersey, organized the first Labor Day parade (in the United States) on Sept. 5, 1882, in (where else?) New York under the auspices of the "Knights of Labor." In 1887, five states (Oregon was first) recognized Labor Day on the first Monday in September. Most European countries celebrate "labor" on May Day (May 1). "'Down Under" Australia has various Labor Day celebrations (each state has a different day) and New Zealand celebrates Labor Day in October. A celebration of American labor and the triumph of labor movements and trade unions to provide decent working conditions and wages is one reason why we have a Labor Day.



For a religious reflection for Labor Day, let's look at another page of history. Decades before labor unions arose in this country and in Great Britain, men, women and children slaved for a daily pittance in the factories and mills six days a week. Some owners, calloused to the poor working conditions and inhumane treatment of workers (particularly children), granted Sunday as a day off only because they had to observe the Church's influence.

"Remember the sabbath, and keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work" (Exodus 20: 8-9).

An English pastor 200 years ago saw the plight of the workers, especially the children. They could not go to school; indeed, free public schools were hard to find. He decided to include with Sunday worship classes, to teach the children how to read and write so they could learn to read the Bible. He felt powerless to change their working world. However, he felt encouraged to change their lives through literacy and the word of God. This simple act was the beginning of modern "Sunday School" a 'labor movement' that has done more to improve life and lives than any trade union ever could.

So go enjoy the last big blowout of summer with swimming, cookouts and games, and let's look at this time as more than a three-or four-day weekend. Labor Day arose to recognize and celebrate the workers and laborers of the country.

Let's look beyond the heroes of the trade union movement and even beyond the English pastor's Sunday School movement to the fourth commandment. Think of the Lord who commands us on a weekly basis to set aside a day of rest to spend with God. The one who tells us labor is honorable, that human life is worthy of dignity, that we should celebrate is not any secular authority, but is the Lord. Spend some time celebrating with God and may all our labors and leisures bring glory to God.

Money: How important should it be?

By Robert Hestor
USAIC Chaplains' Office

REFLECTIONS

Money!

How many times have you said to yourself, "If I only had a few more bucks."

All of us have uttered those futile words at one time or another. Money is the driving force behind our economy. It influences our plans and dreams for the future. And yet, I sometimes feel like we put too much emphasis on the role that money plays in our lives.

Now, don't get me wrong. I am not against having nice things or being smart with the money that God has given us. But a materialistic society breeds materialistic priorities that are often in conflict with the priorities of God's word.

I was reminded of this conflict recently as I watched a new 4x4 roar down Victory Drive. There on the back of this vehicle was a bumper sticker that stated "He Who Has The Most Toys Wins!

Was I supposed to feel like a loser as I puttered along in my '81 Plymouth Reliant station wagon?

Fortunately, the beacon of God's word knives through the fog of misplaced priorities and with penetrating clarity, puts life, money and the use of wealth in proper perspective. In speaking with his disciples, Jesus challenged their thinking about money when he said, "Does a person gain anything if he gains everything the world has to offer but loses his own soul? Of course not!" (Mark 8:36).

As Christians who reside in an affluent society, it is very easy to become more concerned about what we have, rather than what we are. In an earlier, simpler time, we would love people and use things. Now, sadly, as money grips our priorities and bends our thinking, we love things and use people.

Tell you what, let's break out of the mold of materialism and be content with what we have, whether it be much or little. Remember, God's way and his perspective is always different from the world's. The world system says "Buy, sell, get, gain, and acquire," but God says "He who is generous will be blessed, for he gives some of his food to the poor" (Prov. 22:9).

If you are a Christian caught on the treadmill of chasing after more, pray about your attitude toward possessions. Be honest with God and yourself. Ask him to change your perspective and priorities. Pray for a generous spirit that is willing to help others who are suffering lack and hardship. Ask God what you can do to help.

And by the way, you can laugh all you want at my '81 Plymouth Reliant station wagon as I putter down Victory Drive, but I don't have car payments. Do you?

CHAPEL NOTES

Protestant Women of the Chapel — Protestant Women of the Chapel will begin their fall Bible study of the 93-94 year Thursday at 9:30 a.m. The theme for this study is "Lord, I need Grace to make it." PWOC invites and encourages new members at all meetings.

PWOC meets 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. each Thursday in Building 2521. Free child care is provided in adjacent Building 2517. These buildings are located off Indianhead Road and Thorson Street. For more information, contact Marti Maas at 682-0101 or Janie Hodges at 682-3465.

Christian Military Fellowship — The Christian Military Fellowship meetings have resumed. For more information, call Staff Sgt. Ken Harper at 689-6090.

Sunday School — Beginning Sunday, the Custer Terrace Sunday School will consolidate with Main Post Sunday School. The Sunday School meets in the Religious Education Center at 9:30 a.m.

Bus transportation is available. To register and schedule pick up, call Bill Putman at 545-4715. Buses will be at Custer Terrace Chapel at 9:10 a.m. on Sunday.

Positions available — Contract positions are available through the USAIC Chaplains' Office for several chapels on Fort Benning. Positions include watchcare workers, organist, choir directors, pianists, bus drivers, publicists and custodians.

Anyone interested can call Sgt. 1st Class Donald Wilkerson at 545-1934.

Also, a director is needed for the Sightseeing Road Youth Choir. All interested candidates can call Jackie Feagin at 545-4960 or Chaplain (Col.) Roy Plummer at 545-2288.

Marriage seminar — The Family Life Center is sponsoring a marriage enrichment seminar every Thursday at Custer Terrace Chapel through Oct. 7 at 7 p.m. The class is open to the first 15 couples who make reservations.

For more information, contact Chaplain (Capt.) Pete Criner or Sgt. Sophia Boykins at 545-2017 or 545-1760.

Muslim community — Koranic reading classes are at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522, every Monday at 7 p.m. Classes will provide a better understanding of the Koran. For more information, contact Imam Yahya Ansar Islam at 689-6922.

PRIMUS

PRIMUS IS CHANGING

On February 1, 1993, the Columbus PRIMUS Clinic became the PRIMUS Family Practice Clinic. As of this date, the clinic will be open to non-active duty military beneficiaries registered in the Army's Gateway To Care Program and enrolled to receive their primary health care at PRIMUS. As a Family Practice Clinic, PRIMUS will expand its services and offer its enrolled members:

- Comprehensive family practice medicine, including routine physicals, treatment of a wider range of acute and chronic conditions, and extensive laboratory and radiology testing.
- Guidance for all healthcare treatment, including diagnostic testing, speciality referrals, and follow-up care.
- Both scheduled appointments and walk-in visits.
- Telephone consultation with qualified healthcare personnel to determine whether and when to seek medical care.

To enroll as a member of the PRIMUS Family Practice, active duty family members and retirees and their families should attend one of the Army's Gateway To Care briefings or contact the MACH Health Care Finder at 544-1447/1591. Enrolled members can receive more information on our Family Practice services by calling the clinic at 561-7066.

Soldiers take part in hands-on weapons test

TOW enters new era with improved sight, rangefinder

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning soldiers were given a chance Aug. 23 to 26 to give their opinions on a weapons system they may one day be using in combat.

Soldiers from 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, the 29th Infantry Regiment and the 36th Engineer Group were asked to evaluate the improved target acquisition system for the tube-launched, optically-tracked, wire-guided anti-tank missile system.

In a demonstration hosted by Col. James Gribschaw, Training and Doctrine Command system manager for antitank systems, one station unit training soldiers from 1st Bn., 19th Inf. Regt., were trained in the operation of the new system.

The soldiers then performed drills, combining into three-man teams to simulate bringing the system out of stowage and into action, then restowing it, in combat situations on the ground and with the TOW mounted on a high-mobility, multi-purpose wheeled vehicle.

The purpose of the soldier's involvement, according to Sanford Parr of TRADOC System Manager Antitank Systems, was to gauge their reaction to the improvements included in the system. Their input would then be considered for possible modifications to the system, which is scheduled to begin fielding in September of 1997.

"We're approaching this process with a Total Quality Management team approach," said Parr. "Beth Redden, our human resources person, is collecting data from the soldiers that will then be given to the engineers for consideration in possible design modifications. This gets the soldiers in the loop before the weapon is in the field, so it can be as closely matched as possible to the people who'll actually use it.

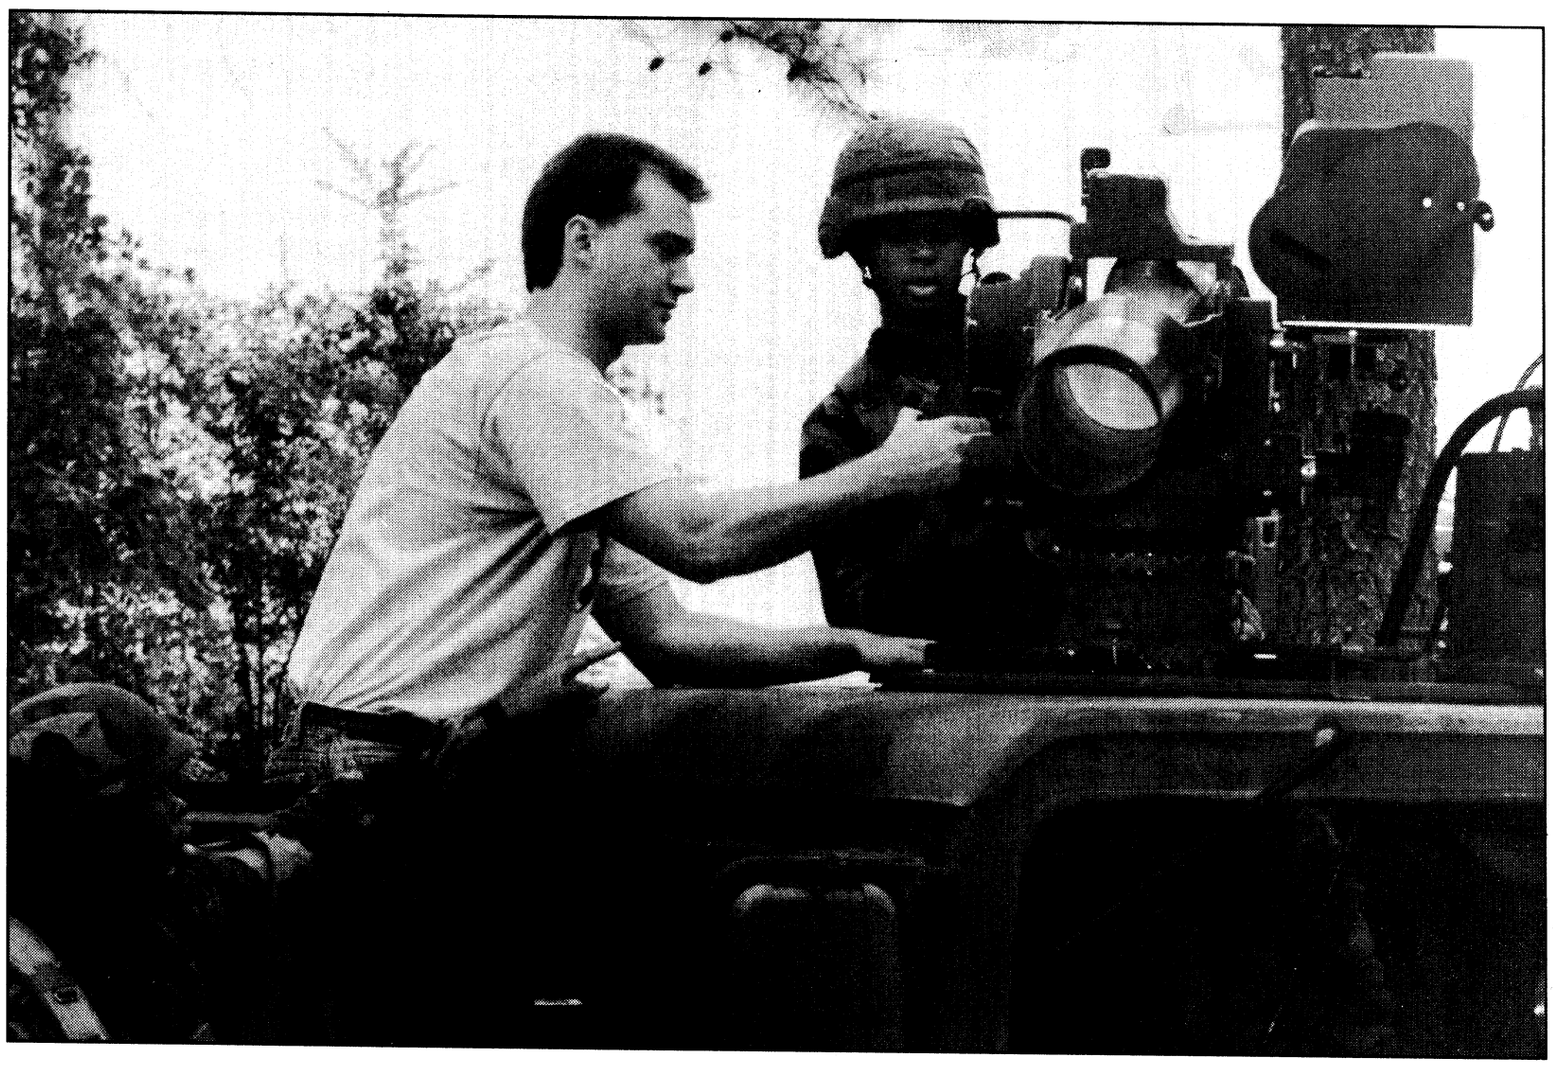
"The handgrips have been redesigned and the controls have been moved to make the system easier to handle," said Parr. "Another major improvement is there is now a single sight for day or night use, instead of two separate sights.

"What these improvements do," Parr said, "is to make the entire weapon more effective. An autotracker and laser rangefinder have been included, and the combination of these elements means targets can be detected, recognized and acquired at the maximum range of the weapon."

Reaction from the soldiers using the system seemed positive.

"The new system's a lot better," said Pvt. 1 Robert J. Lingo Jr. of Company D, 1st Bn., 19th Inf. Regt. "It's easier to mount than the old one, too, so it should be much quicker to use."

Pvt. 2 Anthony Kyles, also of Company D, agreed. "This system is a lot easier," he said. "It takes four to five minutes off the assembly time."



Lt. Col. Randy Tatum, assistant system manger for antitank systems and site manger for the demonstration, said the ITAS will improve lethality and survivability.

"It increases the probability that if you take a shot, you'll hit something," Tatum said. "This will mean fewer missiles used because each one will be a hit. We'll lower munitions cost, increase reliability and the system is easier to train on."

Tatum observed the soldiers participating in the demonstration.

"It's incredible watching these (soldiers) run, throwing the system together in full MOPP (mission oriented protective posture) gear, which they wore in one part of the drill, in 95-degree weather," Tatum said. "They were so enthusiastic because this is the right kind of training for them to be doing, and they know they'll benefit the Army.

"I think everyone on Main Post should see how enthusiastic these (soldiers) are about doing their jobs."

Cynthia Barnes

Special Forces

Top enlisted soldier remembers career

By Susan Jackson
U.S. Army Special Operations Command Public Affairs Office

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — The United States Army Special Operations Command's top enlisted soldier has seen more military life than most Americans in uniform.

Command Sgt. Maj. Jimmie Spencer began his career in 1961, at a time when patriotism and the draft were at all-time highs. Thirty-two years after beginning his military journey, Spencer looks back.

"We had just gotten out of Korea and the general consensus back then was you get out of high school, join the Army to grow up, and then go on with life after you did your time. The draft was going to take everyone anyway; it was a fact of life," Spencer said.

For $76 a month, he joined the Army as an infantryman. The athletic 17-year-old saw a poster of the 250-foot jump tower at Fort Benning, Ga., while at the recruiting station. He decided on the spot to go airborne. After graduating Airborne School, his income increased $55, "which was a significant amount of money in those days," Spencer said.

Spencer said he enjoyed Airborne School but didn't necessarily feel the same about his first permanent-duty assignment. At the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky., he said he was treated like a second-class citizen by the majority of officers and noncommissioned officers.

"If you didn't have a combat patch, you didn't open your mouth. I decided that I'd probably never get a chance to go to war. I thought those days were behind us."

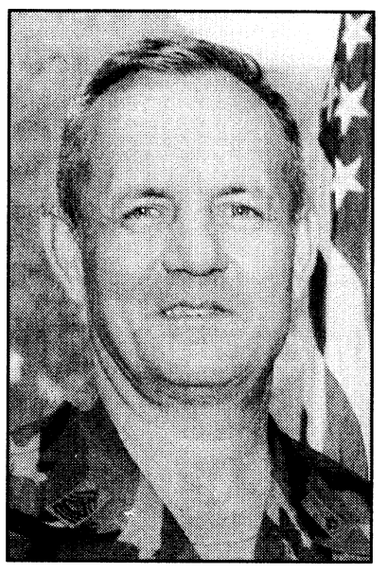
The only combat he saw during his first tour was on the training fields pitted against the 82nd Airborne Division. "Back then, we were very competitive and we were always trying to outdo each other. I grew up in the 101st thinking the 82nd was our adversary rather than our sister division," he said.

Spencer admits he was only a marginal soldier during that first tour and he didn't grow up much. "I don't want to say I was in and out of trouble, but I was always on the edge. It was easy to get into trouble because the Army was so regimented."

He didn't commit himself to the Army so it was easy for him to leave it after his first enlistment. But Spencer only remained a civilian for three months. He realized how much he missed his friends and being part of a team, so he came back in. This time, he was a lot more serious about being a soldier.

"I decided the Army was going to be my career and I'd be good at it. The first thing I did was apply for Ranger School — which was the top school you could go to. From there, I continued a steady climb," Spencer added.

Spencer then began to grow up very quickly. In 1964, he finally got his chance at combat. He earned the Combat Infantryman Badge in Vietnam. He also received a Purple Heart after he was hit by grenade fragments.



While on this tour, Spencer also observed Special Forces operations in war and compared them to the infantry's role. When he left Vietnam, he decided to go SF. He graduated SF training and went back to Vietnam, but this time as an advisor to the South Vietnamese Army.

By then, Spencer had established an energetic, aggressive attitude. He wasn't a very experienced NCO, but he said he was considered a pretty good one. He was very proud to be a part of the "most elite" group in the Army.

"This was about the time the Ballad of the Green Beret was number one on the hit parade. We got a lot of attention and I guess it kind of went to my head," he reminisced with a smile.

He also learned that relationships with people are probably the most important things in life. "The biggest reward a soldier or leader in the Army can get is to be entrusted with the responsibility of other soldiers."

Spencer said his dream was always to become a platoon sergeant because he thought "it was the center of the universe." When he became one, his goals began to shift a little higher. It wasn't long before he worked himself out of a job as a first sergeant. He then became a command sergeant major.

"The biggest reward a soldier or leader in the Army can get is to be entrusted with the responsibility of other soldiers."

— Command Sgt. Maj. Jimmie Spencer
U.S. Army Special Operations Command

Spencer said it's been one emotional experience after another along the way.

"I started out as an SF CSM which sounds about right for an SF-qualified soldier. My next step was to take the 2nd Engineer Group in Yongsan, Korea.

"Then I went to the 2nd Infantry Division, Camp Casey, Korea; then became the CSM for the Combined Republic of Korea/United States Field Army in Uijongbu, Korea; and then the CSM for the Total Army Personnel Command. Finally, I came here. It's been one complete 180-degree job after another. I don't think it's supposed to be like that," he said with raised brows.

Ironically, the man who wanted so badly to see combat only saw it once himself. Instead, Spencer was in a variety of positions where he was sending others into combat. For Spencer, sending soldiers to war while he was left behind was the hardest task the Army ever required him to do.

Although Spencer sees his military career coming to a close, he sees nothing but great things in USASOC's future. "Special Operations will stay relatively stable during the drawdown. We're a significant part of the Army's defense of the nation.

"We have a part to play in practically every aspect of the warfare spectrum, from the very beginning when we're providing humanitarian support and foreign internal defense, to Desert Shield and Storm types of battle where we're engaged in coalition warfare. I think we have a very bright future."

He said the future includes technology that will enhance special operations, but "technology only takes you so far. The so-called smart bombs have to be employed by smart people. We have some very smart people who use very sophisticated equipment, but the strength of our organization is the people."

Soldiers are light-years ahead of where they used to be, said Spencer. "Soldiers are much brighter, better educated, capable of doing the things that we ask them to do. They're head and shoulders above what they were 10 or 20 years ago.

"That's not to say we were all a bunch of dummies back then, but the Army didn't ask us to do the same things. Soldiers today are asked and they rise to the occasion. The quality of soldier is just phenomenal. There's no place anymore for the stereotype dumb guy who just carries a rifle around."

Spencer's advice to all soldiers who haven't yet made a commitment to the Army is for them to have a long talk with themselves. He said they have to decide what they want, and then go after it 100 percent.

"There's really no mystery to what a person has to do. Quite frankly, it's do your very best at everything. The rewards are there. If you choose the Army, there's no reason why you can't fulfill all your goals."

WORLD WAR II

50 years ago this week ...

• Italian leader Pietro Badoglio, who helped overthrow Benito Mussolini only a few weeks before, signed an armistice with the Allies. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced Italy's surrender.

• In New Guinea, a major Allied offensive forced the Japanese to abandon Salamaua, after the 503rd U.S. Parachute Regiment and the 7th and 9th Australian divisions successfully landed and began driving across the island.

• In the Solomons, the fighting between American and Japanese forces on Arundel intensified as both sides sent reinforcements to the island.

VSI recipients gain offset options

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Former active-component soldiers serving in the Reserve components now have more flexibility in dealing with the offset of any "voluntary separation incentive" payments they may be receiving.

The flexibility comes from legislation passed last October, said Lt. Col. Art House, spokesman for the Office of the Chief of Army Reserve. "Originally, the law authorizing the voluntary separation incentive to separating active-component soldiers stipulated that any basic pay later received as a result of active or Reserve duty must be offset against subsequent VSI payments," House said. The new law makes the offset optional on the part of the VSI recipient. He or she now may elect full, partial or no collection from the annual VSI installment.

House noted that a recipient expecting to become eligible for retirement pay at a later date may use the offset procedure to reduce the amount of VSI later subject to collection from retirement pay. The offset request must be sent in writing to the Defense Finance and Accounting Service, Cleveland Center; Attn: Code FDAE; 1240 East 9th Street; Cleveland, Ohio 44199-2056.

Restructuring

Officials face drawdown, discuss Army's future

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Army personnel officials at the Pentagon have recently expressed concern that well publicized media accounts of military downsizing may lead many soldiers to question the viability of an Army career.

Despite being caught up in the steepest drawdown since the end of the Vietnam War, the Army's top personnel official predicts that promotion and schooling opportunities will be comparable to those of the past — "or in some cases, even better."

As the ranking manager of Army force levels, Lt. Gen. Thomas P. Carney seeks to eliminate the anxiety soldiers may experience in regard to the drawdown. He feels the best way to do this is by keeping them tuned to "fast, factual and focused" information as the restructuring process unfolds.

Carney acknowledges that "We're going through a period of turbulence that naturally causes some uncertainty among our soldiers," but added that, "The major reductions appear to be behind us.

"We are committed to maintaining a quality force," Carney said. "Personnel programs will continue to be focused on maintaining readiness, while caring for soldiers and families.

"As we downsize today and in the future, we must remember the Army remains a great institution in which to serve. Education, training, family programs and job satisfaction still figure high in our work to restructure the Army," Carney said.

Voluntary separation incentives and offers of early retirement will continue to be the primary means by which the Army will achieve it end-strength goals, and are expected to continue through fiscal 1996.

Personnel officials offer the following by-rank look-ahead into the next two years based on the most current information, with some speculation regarding force structure and budget reductions that may occur within that period.

Warrant officers

• Promotion consideration is projected to 80, 76 and 44 percent opportunity to chief warrant officers 3, 4 and 5, respectively.

• Warrant officers can expect to be considered for promotion every six years after selection to chief warrant officer 2.

• The Selective Retirement Board for warrants will continue in fiscal 1994 and possibly through the drawdown period.

• The Army is seeking legislative approval to conduct a regular Army warrant reduction in force. When approved, a RIF board will be conducted in fiscal 1994 and possibly through the remainder of the drawdown period.

• Early retirement and voluntary separation incentive/special separation benefit bonus will be offered to selected warrant officer grades and specialties based on requirements. A RIF may be precluded if sufficient voluntary separation applications are submitted.

Sergeants major

• No anticipated Selective Early Release Board/Senior Enlisted Release Board will be held if voluntary retirements remain at projected rates.

• No change is anticipated in the 30-year retention control point.

• Retention beyond 30 years' service will continue for nominative positions.

Master sergeants

• Promotions to sergeant major will sustained at a rate of 300 to 400 yearly.

•"Pin-on" point average for promotion to sergeant major will hold steady at 20.9 years.

• Master sergeants will be considered for promotion to sergeant major about six times during their career. Nearly one of three will be promoted. However, if a master sergeant has not been selected during the first four selection boards for which eligible, the likelihood for promotion decreases to less than one in 25.

• Sergeant Major Course attendance will continue at about 700 resident and 300 nonresident seats in 1994. When the course converts to nine months in length, attendance will be about 600 residents and 25 nonresidents yearly.

• Noncommissioned Officer Education System linkage to promotion will be completed by Oct. 1, when all master sergeants selected for promotion will be required to complete the SMC prior to promotion. NCOs without SMC who are selected for promotion will receive first priority for attendance at the resident course.

• Master sergeants will not be considered for early retirement.

• There will be no change to the retention control point of 24 years.

• A longevity pay increase has been added for 24 years of service, and is received for retirement purposes by the master sergeants and promotable sergeants first class who reach their retention control point.

Sergeants first class

• Anticipate promotions to master sergeant to be sustained between 1,500 to 2,100 per year (compared to 2,333 in fiscal 1992).

• "Pin-on" point average to master sergeant will hold steady at 17.9 years.

• Sergeants first class may be considered for promotion on an average of eight times during their career. Nearly one in four will be promoted. However, if a sergeant first class has not been selected during the first four selection boards for which eligible, the likelihood for promotion drops to less than one in 30.

• Early retirement may be offered in select overage specialties as published by U.S. Total Army Personnel Command.

• There will be no change to the retention control point of 22 years.

> "Education, training, family programs and job satisfaction still figure high in our work to restructure the Army."
> — Lt. Gen. Thomas P. Carney
> Ranking manager, Army force levels

Staff sergeants

• Anticipate promotions to sergeant first class to be sustained between 5,600 to 7,000 per year (compared to 5,473 in fiscal 1992).

• "Pin-on" point average to sergeant first class will hold steady at 13.7 years.

• Staff sergeants may be considered for promotion more than 10 times during their career. Nearly two out of three staff sergeants will be promoted to sergeant first class. However, if a staff sergeant has not been selected during the first four boards in which eligible, the likelihood decreases to less than one in 15.

• Beginning Oct. 1, staff sergeants selected for promotion must complete the Advanced Noncommissioned Officer Course before promotion can take effect. Promotion selectees who haven't completed ANCOC will receive priority placement on the ANCOC list.

• ANCOC attendance will be sustained in proportion to authorizations by specialty at about 7,000 seats in fiscal 1994, projected to about 6,300 seats in fiscal 1995 and 1996.

• Early retirement will be offered in select overage specialties as published by PERSCOM.

• No change will occur in the retention control point of 20 years.

• VSI/SSB will continue to be offered in select specialties for fiscal 1994.

Sergeants

• Anticipate promotions to staff sergeant to average between 10,000 to 12,000 per year (compared to about 10,000 in fiscal 1992).

• "Pin-on" point average for promotion to staff sergeant will hold steady at 7.6 years.

• Basic Noncommissioned Officer Course will be in proportion to the drop in authorizations by specialty to about 18,000 seats in fiscal 1995 and 1996.

• Noncommissioned officer evaluation system linkage to promotion was complete Oct. 1. All sergeants selected for promotion are required to complete BNCOC prior to promotion.

• Beginning Oct. 1, the retention control point for promotable sergeants will be 15 years' service. Early retirement will be offered to this group of soldiers in fiscal 1994 at 15 years', 29 days' service.

Corporals, specialists

• Expect 23,000 to 25,000 promotions a year to sergeant (compared to 26,700 in fiscal 1992), with slightly lower time-in-service average upon promotion.

• "Pin-on" point average for promotion to sergeant will hold steady at 3.9 years.

• Promotable corporals and specialists must complete the Primary Leadership Development Course prior to promotion. The retention control point will remain at eight years' service.

Privates first class

• Promotions to specialist are not projected to change.

• "Pin-on" point average for promotion to specialist will hold steady at less than two years.

• Soldiers not promoted to specialist by the end of their first term of enlistment must separate from service.

Santa Fe
new child development center opens

By Richard Brill
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning renewed its commitment to quality care for family members Tuesday with the grand opening of the Santa Fe Child Development Center.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White, who spoke at the ceremony, said that the opening of the new center represents a real milestone in the development of the post's ability for quality child care.

"I believe that Fort Benning now has the capability of providing care for every child who needs support on the installation," said White. "I have never been anywhere else in the Army where that has been true."

White said that it is especially difficult for soldiers with children, particularly when both they and their spouses work, to find adequate care. White said that he was proud that Fort Benning could play an important part in helping these soldiers.

"We really care about soldiers on Fort Benning and we mean business when we talk about services and quality," he said.

The ceremony included a group song by children who are receiving care at the center and a ribbon cutting by White and single parent Staff Sgt. Aretha Thomas of the Bradley Instructor Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, and her daughter, Frankie, 3.

The Santa Fe Child Development Center serves 242 children, ages 6 weeks to 12 years. The $1.3 million structure offers a variety of services that include full-day care, part-day preschool, including children with special needs, and summer care for school-age children.

The facility is located next to the Love Dental Clinic off Dixie Road and I-185.

Rebecca Carroll, chief of the Family Support Division of the Directorate of Community Activities, said that no new child care facilities will be built in the forseeable future.

"Funds for the construction of new centers are drying up and the Department of Defense is looking at other alternatives to child care," Carroll said. "We were very fortunate to get the funds to build this beautiful new facility here when other posts are having their budgets cut for such construction."

"With this new facility we should be able to adequately accommodate the needs of post personnel for child care," she said.

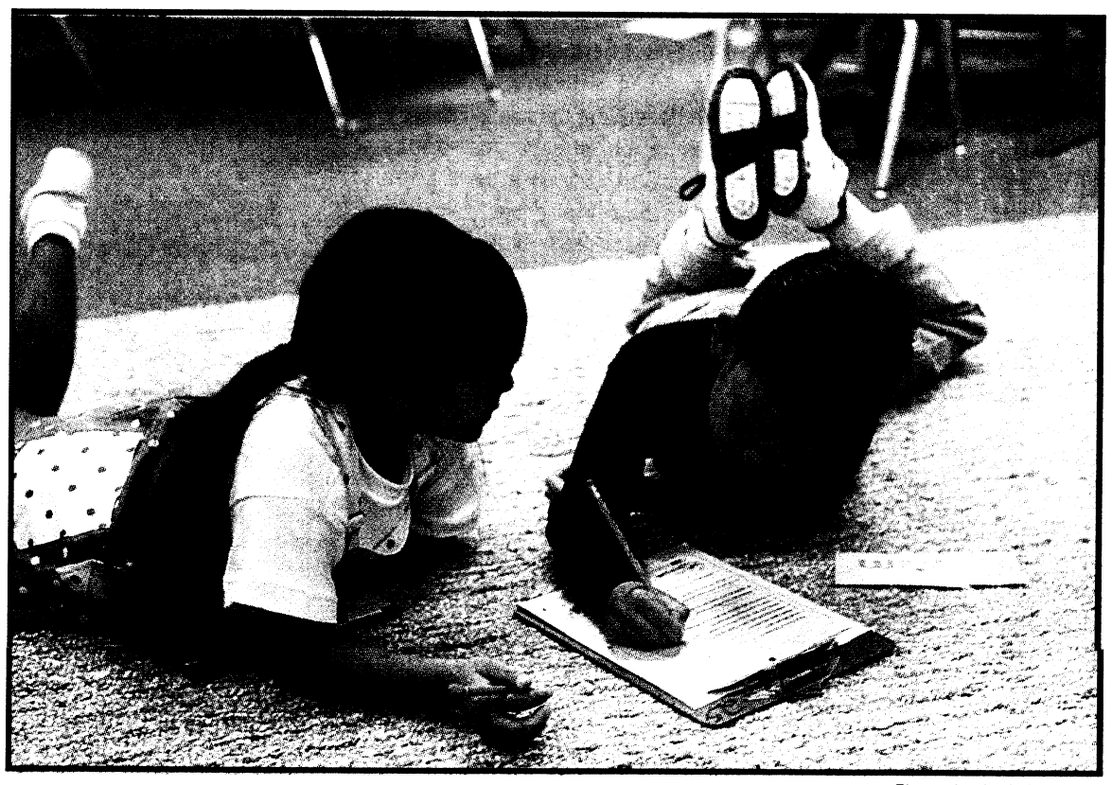
SCHOOL TIME

School year brings new beginnings

By Jerrie Macintire
Special to the Bayonet©

A total of 3,320 children, most wearing brightly colored backpacks bulging with new school supplies, streamed through the doors of Fort Benning schools Tuesday morning, the first day of the 1993-94 school year.

The enrollment figure is not final, according to Dr. Beth Middlemiss, director of Staff Development. "We anticipate more students" to enroll in the next few days, she said.



The scene at newly opened Stowers School was typical of the first day, with children shyly meeting new classmates, memorizing names, making lists of needed supplies, and excitedly filing past the state-of-the-art computer lab and the Learning Resource Center.

"This is a whole new beginning for us," said Gail Wilson, principal at the new school. The entire population of about 600 children is new to Stowers Elementary, which draws most of its student body from nearby housing areas Bouton Heights and Davis Hill.

The first day of classes ran smoothly, and "the children seem excited to be here," said Wilson. Most children had heard from their teachers via telephone or mail the week before, and some even toured the building with their parents on Monday. If children had any further questions about their teachers, they were welcome to look through the scrapbook displayed in the entry hall picturing the faculty and detailing hobbies, interests and backgrounds.

Awestruck kindergartners sporting names tags shaped like ice cream cones, balloons or teddy bear paws filed through the school on their way to lunch. Over the course of the 180-day school year, these youngsters will learn their way through the sprawling building as quickly as they learn the basics of reading and math.

The scene in the upper grades was different; these kids had been through first-day routines before, and were ready for challenges right away.

Stowers School students Christina Reyes and Billy Youngblood interview one another using the new learning style preference, a program emphasizing individual study preferences.

In Deborah Dionne's room, classmates got acquainted and interviewed one another using the new learning styles technique. Dionne, who received formal training in this style of education, explained that it enables students to work in a less formal environment, enhancing learning by promoting individual study preferences. The new technique is a supplement to teaching, but does not replace the traditional classroom.

Meanwhile, in Sue Ann Dixon's fifth-grade class, children were briefed on how to use the computer to gain information on the international arctic program. A phone line in the classroom enables students to communicate with explorers involved in the program, she explained. This modem link is only one of many ways these students will use the computer this year.

Also at Stowers this year, parents and teachers will work together under the Very Involved Parents program, said Wilson. This program enables parents to schedule one hour every other week to work directly with their child in the classroom. "Of course, parents are welcome anytime" said Wilson. The VIP program is merely a structured time that allows parents regular access to their child's classroom.

Another advantage of the program is that parents can reinforce what they see children learning in the classroom.

Fifth-grade teacher Sue Ann Dixon and student Larry Marks demonstrate the computer the classroom will use this year to communicate with explorers in the international arctic program.

Organization day

NCO Academy has 'fun in sun'

By Jody Bellamy
Henry Caro NCO Academy

The Henry Caro Noncommissioned Officer Academy's annual organization day picnic was Saturday at Uchee Creek.

The fun and excitement began at 9 a.m. The annual picnic is one of the many activities hosted by the NCO Academy.

The activity is an annual event to bring soldiers, family members and friends together to have a fun-filled day.

Soldiers, family members and friends gathered around as Command Sgt. Maj. Allan R. Halstead, commandant, gave the opening remarks. He welcomed everyone to the picnic and gave a brief description of the activities.

The activities included various tournaments such as sack racing, volleyball, horseshoes, basketball, a fishing tournament (for the children), a dunk tank and also a boat tour.

The highlights began with Halstead take the first seat in the dunk tank. The first throwers were the Primary Leadership Development Course cadre. One throw of the ball and Halstead went down.

The volleyball court was certainly fun in the sun, said Spc. Willie Thomas of Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment as he saved the team play.

The basketball tournament brought out the best in the PLDC and the Advanced NCO Course cadre, when Sgt. 1st Class Connie E. Burnham made the winning points.

"On your mark, get set, go!" yelled Sgt. 1st Class Richard M. Thomas of ANCOC to start another lineup of sack racers.

Another event that took place down in the cool shade was horseshoes, where luck combined with skill wins the game.

To cool off a hot day, the children participated in a boat ride up and down the Chattahoochee River.

Staff Sgts. Julio Orteo and William B. Crawford of PLDC navigated the tour as the children waved to on lookers of the fishing tournament.

After the boat ride and participating in the picnic activities, a variety of food and drinks were served.

At the same time, a crowd gathered around the dunk tank to watch Fort Benning's Command Sgt. Maj. William H. Acebes splash down after one throw of the ball.

Get educated the easy way

By Ruth J. Spaller
Bayonet staff writer

Next week, Staff Sgt. Robert A. Anderson is going before the Officer Candidate School Board. If all goes well, he will begin OCS in February or March.

"A year ago, I had no education," Anderson said. "No correspondence courses, no college, no nothing."

Now he has 74 semester hours of college credit, he has taken five correspondence courses and he has raised his general technical score from 99 to 124.

Spc. Rick J. McConnell will also be going before the board. He is five classes short of an associate's degree in criminology. "I'm finishing a two-year degree in one quarter," he said.

How did they do it? They went to their education center.

Anderson, of Company E, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, and McConnell, of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, have nothing but good things to say about the Kelley Hill Education Center and the people there who helped them get where they are today.

"We realize that it is difficult for soldiers to take courses, even at night because the units (on Kelley Hill) are so mission-oriented," said Aurie B. McCrary, chief of the Kelley Hill Education Center.

With the cooperation of the commanders and leaders on Kelley Hill, the education center has implemented special college courses for soldiers that run only 12 half days, McCrary said.

The courses, taught by Troy State University, are scheduled during block leave periods and rotate between battalions.

"We try to 'make it happen' for the soldiers during these periods of time," McCrary said.

The center also offers correspondence courses for military education and promotion points, and video courses and College Level Examination Program tests for soldiers to earn college credits outside of the normal classroom setting.

McConnell said that when he was in a line company, he found it a struggle to complete college courses. With all his unit's training and support commitments, "it just wasn't practical to go to school on the weekends or at night," he said.

Both soldiers say the CLEP tests are the best way to get around that problem.

"CLEP tests don't cost anything and they only take about two hours," Anderson said. He has passed eight CLEP tests, which translates into about 40 semester hours of credit.

Many soldiers join for the GI Bill, and they don't start looking into education until they are clearing, McConnell said.

"I think a lot of them don't realize that with no money and very little time, you can 'CLEP' out of the first two years of college," he said.

Anderson said he was afraid to come in and take the tests at first; but, when he did, he discovered you really don't have to be a genius to do well.

The tests are not always easy, they admit. "Some of those tests will smoke you," McConnell said.

"I've failed a couple of tests, but I study and take them again. I've never failed one the second time," Anderson said.

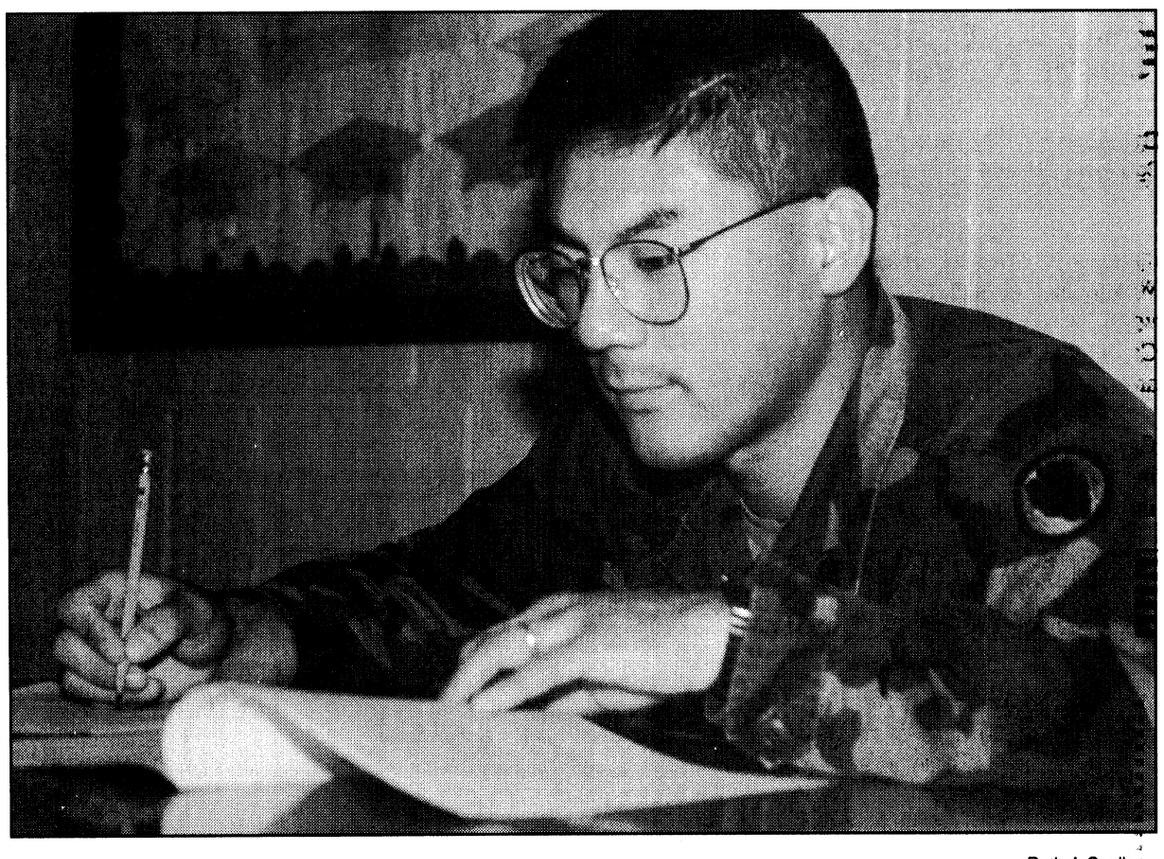
Both soldiers said the pretests are a strong indicator of whether you'll do well on the test itself.

Anderson said he gets books from the library or a used book store to help him prepare for the tests he needs more work on, while McConnell said the Officer Service Battery and Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery study guides are especially good to help refresh math and other skills.

Also, Anderson said, the people at the education center are always willing to help.

"I've come in at the last minute asking to take a test when it's not the scheduled time and they always help me out," Anderson said.

"The Army wants you to be all you can be. We try to help the soldiers do that," said Mike M. Hodge, one of the center's four guidance counselors.



The main thing, Hodge said, is getting the soldiers involved and encouraging them to keep going.

"It's a matter of personal desire" McConnell said. "You have to have the personal drive and initiative."

His initiative, he hopes, will take him through OCS to a master's degree in business administration.

Anderson said no matter what happens with OCS, his main goal is to continue college.

"I just wish I had started this when I came in," Anderson said. "Who knows what I could have knocked out by now."

USO scholarship program beckons applicants

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Soldiers with college-age children or with qualifying spouses have the chance to seek award of one of 25 $1,000 scholarships sponsored by the Budweiser/United Services Organization Scholarship Program.

In announcing this opportunity for the 1994-95 academic year, officials of the Washington-based USO explained that the program draws on a trust endowed by Anheuser-Busch Inc.

The USO-administered program seeks to "provide financial assistance, in the form of direct scholarships, to family members of active-duty service members," officials said. Selections are limited to undergraduate studies at accredited institutions.

Candidates may write for a procedural brochure and application form to the following address: USO World Headquarters Scholarship Program; 601 Indiana Avenue, N.W.; Washington, D.C. 20004.

Applications must be postmarked no later than March 1, officials said.

Candidates for mayor, vice mayor seek community improvement

By Karen S. Morarie
Bayonet staff writer

Elections for mayors and vice mayors of housing areas will be Wednesday through Sept. 10, with voting taking place at the Community Life centers in each area.

According to Darlene Perry, Community Life officer, it's important for residents to take an interest in the leadership of their communities.

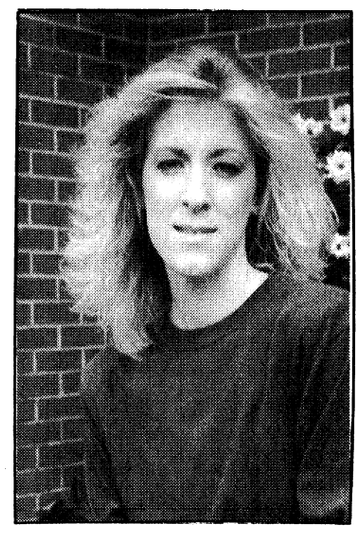
"We'd like to see a big turnout for these elections," she said. "Voting is your chance to participate in what happens in your community."

Hours for voting will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

Results will be announced as soon as ballots can be counted.

For more information, call Perry at 545-2830.

Candidates

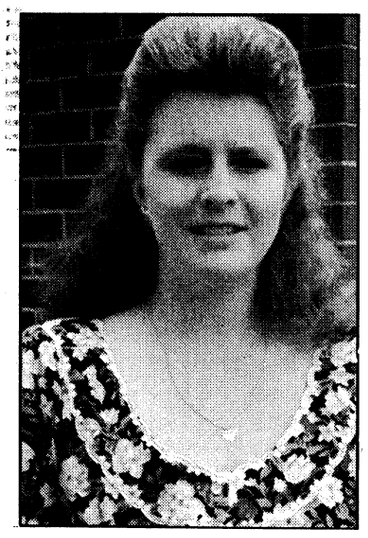


Name: Peggy Marshall

Running for: Vice mayor, Bouton Heights

Qualifications: "I'm prior service, so I have some idea how to get things done. I'm interested in helping people and improving the community."

Goals: "I hope to be elected along with Regina Posavec, since we have the same goals and can work well together. First priority would be to clean up the area."



Name: Lisa G. Sabol

Running for: Vice mayor, McGraw Manor

Qualifications: "I want to be involved in the community and be in a position to help others."

Goals: "I hope to organize community functions that will bring neighbors together and foster the desire for them to assist one another."

Name: Tina L. Chunkleen

Running for: Mayor, Custer Terrace, Upatoi Terrace and Battle Park

Qualifications: "I've had previous experience as a mayor when we were in Germany about 2 1/2 years ago and I have much concern for our community."

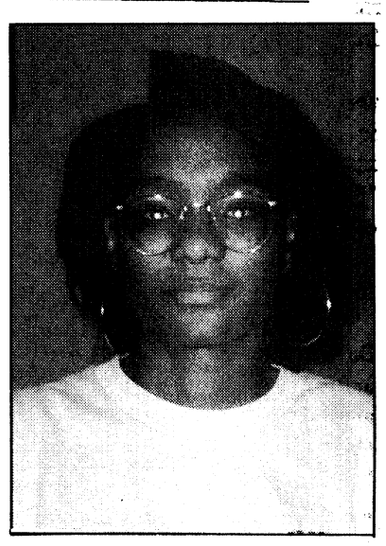
Goals: "To seek input on residents' wants and work with residents to accomplish them. Togetherness is the key to a safe and happy community."

Name: Linda Matheny

Running for: Mayor, Indianhead Terrace

Qualifications: "I think my past years as mayor, and my concern for the residents and the community, qualify me for the job."

Goals: "I want to start a community Crime Watch program and start some activities for the children who live in Indianhead Terrace."



Name: Malissa Thomas

Running for: Vice mayor, Custer Terrace, Upatoi Terrace and Battle Park

Qualifications: "I have volunteered for two years at the Community Life Office and have learned a lot about the community and how to help."

Goals: "I'd like to start a tutoring program and a welcome committee for new residents. I also hope to gather a lot of ideas from the residents of the community."

Name: Julie E. Cushing

Running for: Mayor, McGraw Manor

Qualifications: "My 10 years as an Army wife has shown me many family problems and concerns."

Goals: "I would like to let people know their ideas will be heard. I'd like to see more Military Police activity to cut back on crime. I would also like to see parking improved."

Name: Mikki C. Morris

Running for: Mayor, McGraw Manor

Qualifications: "I feel qualified because I'm a people person and a good listener. I try to stay on top of what's happening in the community."

Goals: "I would like to see the MPs get more involved with community safety, and we need to work together as a community to complete projects that have been started."

Name: Diane Winmon

Ranger Memorial

Plans to construct a memorial dedicated to U.S. Army rangers, past present and future, at Fort Benning are reaching their final stages. Retired Maj. Gen. Kenneth C. Leuer, chairman of the Ranger Memorial Foundation Inc., said he is hoping to have the funds in place to begin construction by October. The money for the memorial is being raised through the sale of engraved stones that will become part of the monument's walkway. For information about purchasing a stone or to make a donation, call 323-4461 or write the Ranger Memorial Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 5948, Columbus, Ga. 31905-0948.

Managers' homecoming brings back memories

By Myrtle Chalkley
Fort Benning Management Association

The Fort Benning Management Association had its homecoming luncheon Aug. 19. Homecoming will become a tradition each year, officials said.

Judy Booth, treasurer, collected the tickets at the door. Virginia Dickerson, secretary, arranged the seating of the attendees. Myrtle Chalkley, president, welcomed everyone, and Judy Hodder gave the invocation.

Celeste Lee and Beth Mabry performed solos, and Dean Crosby was selected as the FBMA queen and Robert Battle was crowned FBMA king.

Wynona Johnson gave the history of the organization and Chalkley introduced executive board members.

Homecoming host and hostesses were Chalkley, Yvonne Wilbanks, Virginia Dickerson, William Thomas, Patty Pfeiffer, Mary Burt, John Machovec, Judy Hodder, Marie Lee, Carol Gilchrist, Wynona Johnson, Olive Jordan, Helen Remppel, Mary Allen, Shirley Sellers, Ann Pratcher and Brenda Barfield.

The next FBMA meeting will be Sept. 16, with featured guest speaker Maj. Marcus Alexasnder of the U.S. Army Physical Fitness School.

Chorus performs at Polk

Infantry Chorus

Twenty-seven members of the Fort Benning Infanty Chorus traveled to Fort Polk, La., Aug. 18 to peform during the opening ceremony of the Jr. ROTC.

The Infantry Chorus was selected over both the Army Chorus and the 82nd Airborne chorus to participate in this historic event. The chorus sang at a formal dinner and at a public concert with about 250 people attending.

The officer in charge of the chorus was 1st Lt. Lorraine Ferrell of the 11th Infantry Regiment. The chorus was conducted by Sgt. Gregory Butler of U.S. Army Dental Activity.

Members of the Chorus were from the following major subordinate commands: 11th Infantry Regiment, 29th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infanry Division, 36th Engineer Group, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity, Infantry Training Brigade, Ranger Training Brigade, School of the Americas and Military Police Activity.

ASK THE JUDGE

Staff Judge Advocates Office

Q: (Husband): My wife and I are separated. She is always threatening to sell my property such as the television and video cassette recorder. Even worse, she calls my commander at home and complains that I don't give her enough money, even though I give her more than my basic allowance for quarters. I'm afraid she is going to ruin my career. What should I do?

(Wife): My husband and I are separated. He never gives me enough money to raise our child, and I don't have a job. I always have to call my husband's commander in order to get money out of him, which is humiliating to say the least. What should I do?

A: The answer to both of these questions may be a separation agreement. Such an agreement is a binding contract between the husband and the wife that establishes the rights and responsibilities of the parties.

Specifically, it resolves issues such as who gets what property and who pays which bills. More importantly, the separation agreement can set the specific amount of support which one spouse pays the other.

If there are children involved, the agreement can establish who gets custody and how often the noncustodial parent may visit the child.

Why is a separation agreement desirable?

From the wife's perspective, it protects her from the uncertainty of not knowing when her husband will send the support.

Typically, the separation agreement provides that the husband will pay a certain amount on a specific day.

It provides further that if a husband is late on his payment and the wife has to retain a lawyer to get the money, the husband has to pay the legal fees.

The most effective guarantee, however, is found in Army Regulation 608-99, which states that the commander will enforce all valid agreements between the parties.

If the soldier fails to pay the amount specified in the agreement, the commander can order the soldier to pay. If the soldier still refuses to pay, the commander may prosecute the soldier under the Uniform Code of Military Justice for failure to obey a lawful order.

The separation agreement is also beneficial for the husband, in this case. All too often, commanders are forced to respond to allegations from spouses that soldiers are not paying enough support, that the spouse has "the" car, etc.

When confronted with such charges, soldiers can show their commanders exactly what they have agreed to do.

If the soldier can prove through canceled checks or money order receipts that he or she has provided the support in the agreement, the soldier can protect himself or herself from adverse action from the commander.

In addition, the separation agreement can protect the soldier from disputes over who gets what property because the agreement will specify who gets what.

How do you get a separation agreement?

The best way to approach a separation agreement is to make an appointment with the Judge Advocate General's office. Both spouses are entitled to JAG services, but potential conflicts of interest are avoided by making sure that each spouse is represented by a lawyer from a different division.

Prior to your meeting with the JAG lawyer, you must complete a worksheet on separation issues that is available at the JAG office.

Of course, if you and your spouse cannot agree, there can be no separation agreement. If there are sticking points in your negotiations with your spouse, the best approach is to simply not address those issues but settle those issues in which you do agree.

Once the worksheet is completed, return it to JAG, and the lawyer will draft up the formal agreement.

Both parties then sign the agreement in front of witnesses, and a binding contract is formed.

It is important to realize that the separation is not an agreement to get a divorce.

On the contrary, it is designed to help the husband and wife catch their breath while they decide which way the marriage will go.

If the parties do agree to a divorce, the separation agreement is often incorporated into the divorce decree.

This is one reason it is a good idea to consult an attorney before signing the agreement.

Courts uphold personal property law

Army News Service

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Recently enacted legislation has mandated that service members' personal property shipments cannot be used as bargaining chips during payment disputes between commercial shippers and subcontractors.

The Military Traffic Management Command-proposed law was underscored of late when 187 military household goods shipments from Texas were ordered released by U.S. district courts that determined the contractors did not have lawful liens on the personal property.

The dispute was between line haul carriers and moving and storage facilities.
