Now, therefore I, Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, hereby proclaim March as National Nutrition Month and urge all citizens to join the "Eat Right America" campaign and become concerned about their nutrition and the nutrition of others in the hope of achieving optimum health for both today and tomorrow.

545-boss

Dial 545-BOSS is the commander's action line for soldiers, family members and civilians to call when they have problems or complaints that can't be resolved elsewhere.

While it is not a substitute for the chain of command or for agencies established to provide assistance, the line offers another means of communication between Fort Benning's community and commanders.

The Bayonet features some of the calls that may benefit other members of the Fort Benning community.

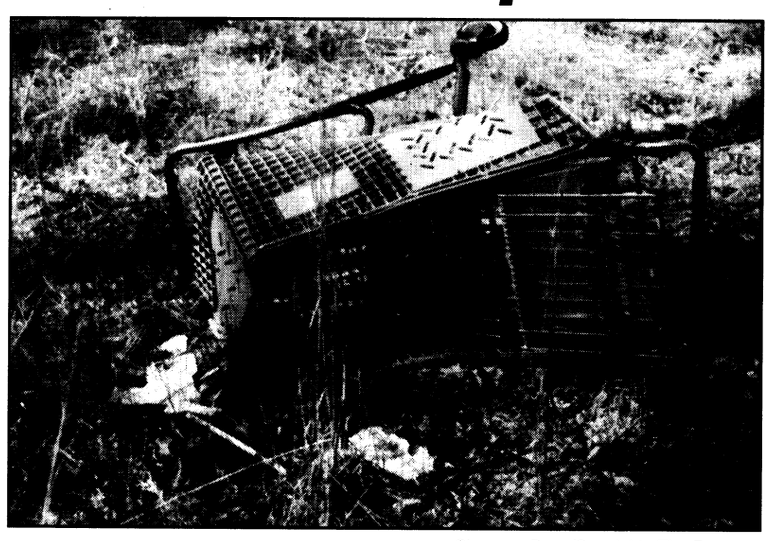
'Dumpers' trash out post

By Shannon Day
Special to The Bayonet©

Everyone should be familiar with the phrase "give a hoot, don't pollute," but it seems that for years, there have been people in the Columbus and Fort Benning area who just don't understand what this simple phrase actually means.

There are the few, the thoughtless, 'the dumpers,' who seem to think Fort Benning is the perfect place to dump their garbage.



Peter Swiderek, fish and wildlife supervisor, Natural Resources Management Branch and Michaele S. Nuckols, manager of the hazardous waste program at the Environmental Programs Management Branch, would both like to tell you that it's not.

"It's illegal to begin with," said Swiderek. "It looks terrible. The biggest problem is if someone throws out some environmental contaminants."

"Dumping chemicals is the worst thing you can do," Nuckols agreed. "It's against federal law."

Some common examples Nuckols cited were used vehicle oil, batteries and paint.

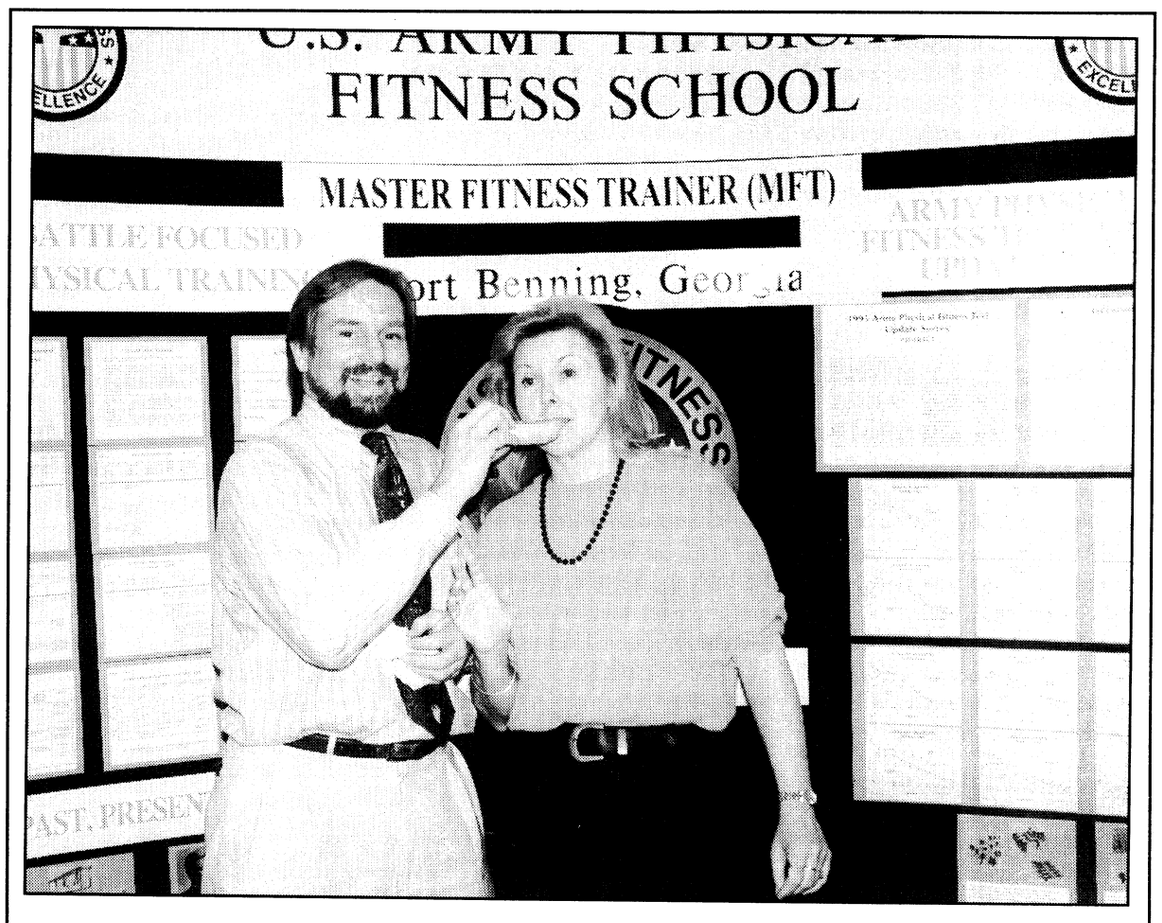
He said the reason these contaminants become a problem is because they get washed into the ground water resources, which Fort Benning residents use as drinking water.

Shannon Day /Special to The Bayonet

This shopping cart is just one of the many items people dump on post.

They also contaminate the aquatic life in some of the pristine fishing areas at Fort Benning, Nuckols said.

He said another problem they have is with people dumping old furniture in the woods.



Nuckols said once someone dumps out a piece of furniture, it becomes a breeding ground for other dumpers because once people see some garbage there, they think it is okay to add more.

To discourage dumping, the Military Police patrol areas people seem to dump the most, and have caught people in the process of throwing out trash.

Nuckols said right now they are working on prosecuting someone who dumped 10 drums of cutting oil, which is used for manufacturing metal parts. It was contaminated with chromium and lead, which would have killed a lot of fish if it had leaked into the streams.

He said that is the worst case of dumping he has seen at Fort Benning.

Walter P. Nichols, manager of the solid waste program, Directorate of Public Works, said there is no reason Fort Benning residents should have to dump anything in the woods because of the facilities and services the post has provided.

Here's how to get rid of your 'stuff'

By Shannon Day
Special to The Bayonet©

"All Fort Benning residents are expected to recycle," said Walter P. Nichols, manager of the solid waste program, Directorate of Public Works. Although the amount of recyclable materials collected each month increases, he said there is room for improvement.

Here are some guidelines Nichols recommends following to make recycling easy:

• Glass, metal and plastic food or beverage containers are recyclable. The tops or lids should be removed and the containers should be rinsed out. They should be placed in the recycling bins Fort Benning provides to residents. The recycling bins should be placed at the curb on the day designated for trash pick-up in individual housing areas.

• Paper products such as used paper, magazines, books, junk mail, paperboard and paper bags are recyclable. Items should be placed in a paper bag or tied together with twine and placed in or next to recycling bins on trash pick-up days. Sanitary products, diapers and cigarettes are not recyclable and should not be put in recycling bins.

• Batteries should be wrapped in paper and put in regular trash. Nichols encourages people to buy long-life or rechargeable batteries. Vehicle batteries should be turned in to the store where the new one was purchased.

• Vehicle fluids, such as used oil, can be turned in, free of charge, to the Material Recovery Facility, Building 4000, at Harmony Church. The phone number is 544-6147. Fluids can also be turned into an Auto Craft Shop, but there is a disposal fee.

• Tires should be turned in where new ones were purchased. If there is still a problem, they can be turned into the Defense Reutilization Marketing Office.

• Personal furniture should be used as long as possible or given to a needy family or charity. If it is no longer usable, it may be placed on the curbside on trash pick-up days.

• Yard waste, such as small twigs and leaves, can be put in plastic bags and placed on the curbside for pick-up by 7: 30 a.m. on Mondays.

Nichols recommends letting grass clippings remain on the lawn to naturally decompose. It has to be cut more often, but it is generally easier to cut it than to rake cuttings and bag them.

• Aerosol cans and cleaning product bottles should be placed in the regular trash. Be a smart consumer when buying household cleaning products. Some are high priced and often old-fashioned remedies clean just as well for much less money.

For more information on garbage disposal, call Nichols at 545-1007 or Tom Moore at 544-6142.

Health risk appraisal set for today

The School of the Americas will conduct a health risk appraisal today in Building 35 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Family members of SOA staff, students and guest instructors are encouraged to attend. For more information, call the SOA Public Affairs Office at 545-1923.

AER campaign set

The Army Emergency Relief Fund Campaign kicked off March 1 and will continue through May 15.

AER, which was established Feb. 5, 1942, is a nonprofit organization dedicated solely to "Helping the Army Take Care of its Own."

AER offers loans and grants or a combination of the two to soldiers, family members, Reserve and National Guard soldiers on extended active duty, retirees, widows and orphans of soldiers who died on active duty or after retirement.

Women's History Month luncheon set

A Women's History Month luncheon will be March 28 at the Fort Benning Officers' Club at 11:30 a.m. Anyone interested in buying tickets should contact 1t Lt. April Olsen at 545-2212.

Delta Force team to conduct orientation

The Delta Force team will conduct general orientation briefings April 1 at 1 p.m. and April 2 through 4 twice daily at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. in Infantry Hall, classroom 9.

The physical fitness qualification test will be administered on April 5 at 7 a.m. on Stewart-Watson Field. Following the test will be a 100-meter swim test at Briant Wells Swimming Pool. Uniform for all is battle dress uniform and combat boots. For information, call Carol Gilchrist at 545-1917 or 545-4702.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland areas will take place Monday through March 16. If weather permits, the following compartments will be affected: A-2, A-6, A-9, B-5, C-1, F-2, G-4, H-1, J-1, K-13, L-4, O-1, O-4, O-7, O-13, P-2, Q-1, Q-5, U-1, Z-2, BB-3.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species' habitat and training areas. Personnel proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while travelling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Units using ranges and training areas are reminded to remove flammable debris, such as pinestraw, leaves, grass and trash from around structures in accordance with U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-4, Paragraph 5-22, Organizational Maintenance.

For more information, call Jack Greenlee, Natural Resources Management Branch, at 544-6206.

CID seeks assistance

The U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Division is offering a $150 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person(s) responsible for removal of five gas powered leaf blowers; six gas powered weed eaters; three gas powered hedge trimmers; one gas powered lawn mower; one cordless drill; one circular saw; a 200-piece tool set and one wrench set from Building 1198. The items are valued at $3,848.90.

A $300 reward will be given for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person(s) responsible for a larceny that occurred between 5 p.m. Jan. 5 and 9:30 a.m. Jan. 8.

Someone entered Building 2755A on post and removed three central processing units, two monitors and one computer printer.

Anyone with information concerning this incident can contact J. Taylor at 545-7950 or 545-7052 or the Military Police at 545-5222.

CID is seeking information concerning a person or persons who stole a vehicle between 6:45 a.m. Feb. 5 and 9:30 p.m. Feb. 6 from a parking lot adjacent to building 9073 on Kelley Hill. The Bronco was green with a white top and grey primer on the rear corner panel. The vehicle also had a 2-inch body lift with 33-inch BF Goodrich Mud Terrain tires and a "Warn" winch bumper.

The assistance of the local community is being requested in an effort to identify and apprehend the perpetrator(s). The identity of anyone providing information will be strictly confidential. For information concerning this incident call Special Agent James Newsome at 545-7950 or the Military Police at 545-5222.

CID is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for an attempted robbery which occurred at the Harmony Church gas station Feb. 26 around 2 p.m.. Preliminary investigation revealed that a black male, wearing a knit cap pulled over his face and Army green insert gloves on his hands entered the gas station and attempted to rob the facility using an empty pop bottle as a weapon.

The assistance of the local community is being requested in an effort to identify and apprehend the perpetrator(s). For information concerning this incident call Special Agent James Gressley at 545-7950 or the Military Police at 545-5222.

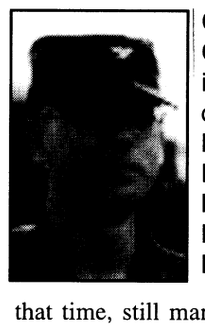
DPS, MP provost marshal changes command, Feb. 29

By Lisa M. Hibbert
Bayonet staff writer

In a change of command ceremony, Col. Ronnie D. Alton, Director of Public Safety and Provost Marshall, retired and Col. Thomas Cain assumed command Feb. 29 on York Field, in front of Infantry Hall, Building 4.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix commended Alton on his career and the consolidation of fire, safety and the military police into the Directorate of Public Safety.

In his parting comments, Alton joked about the colonels versus the sergeants major softball game last spring.



"This is what happens to colonels who coach the colonels' softball team that lost to the sergeants major, 29-17," Alton said.

Alton, who had been at Fort Benning since 1991, said that now is a good time for him to be leaving.

"The first general who I worked with here told me to get rid of the cones, the second said get rid of the stop signs," Alton said. "I think I had better leave before the next general decides to get rid of the speed limit!"

Col. Ronnie D. Alton is the outgoing commander of Military Police, Provost Marshal and Director of Public Safety

Col. Thomas Cain is the incoming commander of Military Police, Provost Marshal and Director of Public Safety

It was the companies that he commanded that made his time at Fort Benning great, Alton said.

"While the 988th MP Company was deployed to Haiti and the 24th MP Company was deployed to Saudi Arabia, the U.S. Army Infantry Center MP Company, the only MP company on post during that time, still managed to win the Stem Award for the best MP company in TRADOC," Alton said. "It was really the soldiers I commanded who made me look so good."

Alton got choked up as he told the crowd about his life in the Army.

"I was an Army brat," Alton said. "My father was in the Army and my mother was a (Department of Army) civilian. I attended Department of Defense schools all of my life. I did two years of my bachelor's degree on an Army installation, and I got my entire master's degree on post. My wife is an Air Force brat."

Alton, who will be leaving the Army to work with the Olympics, said that he is looking forward to the challenge.

He also said that he's "looking forward to having to stand in the back of the line at the pharmacy."

Cain, who will be replacing Alton, was welcomed by Hendrix.

"Today is a homecoming for Colonel Cain," Hendrix said. "He was commissioned through reserve officer training into the infantry. We're glad to have you back — even if your crossed rifles have turned into pistols."

Cain, who will be replacing Alton, has replaced him in a previous assignment and said that he is happy to be back at Fort Benning.

"I am privileged and blessed to be given this opportunity today," Cain said. "I will strive to follow in Colonel Alton's footsteps."

Fort Benning salutes excellence at quarterly awards breakfast

By Lisa M. Hibbert
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning commended soldiers and civilians at the 14th Excellence Appreciation Breakfast Tuesday at the Supper Club, Fort Benning's Officers' Club.

In his opening comments at the breakfast, Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix talked about how the post is striving for excellence.

"Fort Benning is a place where quality is the goal and excellence is the standard," Hendrix said. "It's also home of the proudest commanding general in the world. I appreciate what you do for the post. But, it's not just about us being the best that we can today. We have to be better tomorrow than we were today."

The crowded room was filled with more than just the Total Army Quality award recipients and their well-wishing supporters. Members of the Army Communities of Excellence, Army Performance Improvment Criteria evaluation team attended as well.

va q&a

Department of Veterans Affairs

Q: Does the home loan entitlement provide any cash to the veteran?

A: It does not. The amount of the entitlement is a measure of the portion of the loan that Veteran's Assistance will guarantee. A guarantee against loss that is provided the lender.

Q: Are veterans with compensable service-connected disabilities required to pay a funding fee for VA home loan guarantees?

A: No, these veterans are exempt. Also exempt are surviving spouses of veterans who died as a result of service where the spouse never remarried.

Q: I am a mortgage banker and my office has several VA buyers who need an adjustable rate loan to buy the home they want. What is the latest on reinstating the adjustable rate home loan program?

A: This program expired when Congress failed to pass a proposal for a 90-day extension before Sept. 30. Meanwhile, VA will honor loans for veterans who have commitments for ARMs from lenders on or before Sept. 30, 1995. VA will continue to work with Capitol Hill on possible legislation making the ARM program permanent.

Q: What are the minimum service requirements to be eligible for a VA home loan?

A: If you served in a wartime period before Sept. 7, 1980, (enlisted) or Oct. 16, 1981, (officer) the service requirement is at least 90 days. For veterans of peacetime eras, the requirement is 181 continuous days of service. Veterans serving after those 1980 or 1981 dates must have served 24 months or the full period for which they were called, but not less than 181 days peacetime or 90 days wartime. If you are now on active duty, you are eligible after 90 days.

Q: I have seen ads in the paper listing VA properties for sale. Are these also available to people who were never in the military?

A: Yes. Where VA is disposing of a property, such as the result of a foreclosure of a VA-guaranteed loan, it can be purchased by a nonveteran. In such cases, it was the original VA-guaranteed loan for the purchase or repair of a home that was available only to eligible veterans.

Editor's note: If you have a question regarding your VA benefits, call the VA regional office at (800) 827-1000.

Risk Management

Goal no. 4

Noncommissioned officers will ensure military vehicles are operated safely.

Objectives

1. NCOs will ensure all military vehicles are treated as extremely dangerous. Unit vehicle safety programs will include:
   - NCO Supervision
   - PMCS
   - Load Plans
   - Assistant Driver Responsibility
   - Seat belts
   - Vehicle limitations
   - Passengers vs equipment load limits
   - DDC
   - Safety straps
   - Procedures for emergencies
2. NCOs will ensure ground guides walk two meters outside the path of vehicles when space permits and a minimum of 10 meters from the vehicle they are guiding. NCOs will ensure two ground guides are used while backing a vehicle and while maneuvering in close quarters or in or near bivouac areas. NCOs will ensure ground guides have portable lights during periods of reduced visibility.
3. NCOs will ensure all personnel exposed to eye and or hearing hazards wear eye and/or hearing protection.
4. NCOs will caution ground troops, drivers, and vehicle commanders on the dangers of ground troops and vehicles training together during hours of darkness.
5. To increase safety awareness, NCOs will question soldiers on what safety measures they would take in different situations pertaining to their particular mission.

SSI now located at Fort Jackson

By Jim Caldwell
TRADOC News Service

The Soldier Support Institute has been open for business at Fort Jackson since July 1995 but a considerable amount of mail from Army correspondents continues to be addressed to its old home, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

The Defense Finance and Accounting Service, which is still at Fort Benjamin Harrison, in particular, continues to receive a large volume of mail for the schools, said Charlie Vines, of SSIs directorate of training support at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

SSI was named the Soldier Support Center. Its three schools — Finance School, Adjutant General School and Recruiting and Retention School — were relocated to Jackson, as well.

Official mail continues to be erroneously addressed to Fort Benjamin Harrison despite correspondence informing the Army of the new address, according to Vines.

The correct mailing address is:

Commander

U.S. Army Soldier Support Institute

ATTN: ATSG-CG

Fort Jackson, S.C. 29207-7035

Mail intended for each of SSI's schools can be sent to that address, too.

It will be given to the proper school, according to Vines.

Inactivity sets tone for unhealthy life

By Christine N. Parker
Martin Army Community Hospital

Watching television and the creation of "armchair athletes" and "couch potatoes" is compromising adolescent nutrition-fitness status.

The prevalence of obesity increases by 2 percent for every hour of television watched. Television watching promotes obesity because it encourages snacking, requires no energy and is a substitute for exercise.

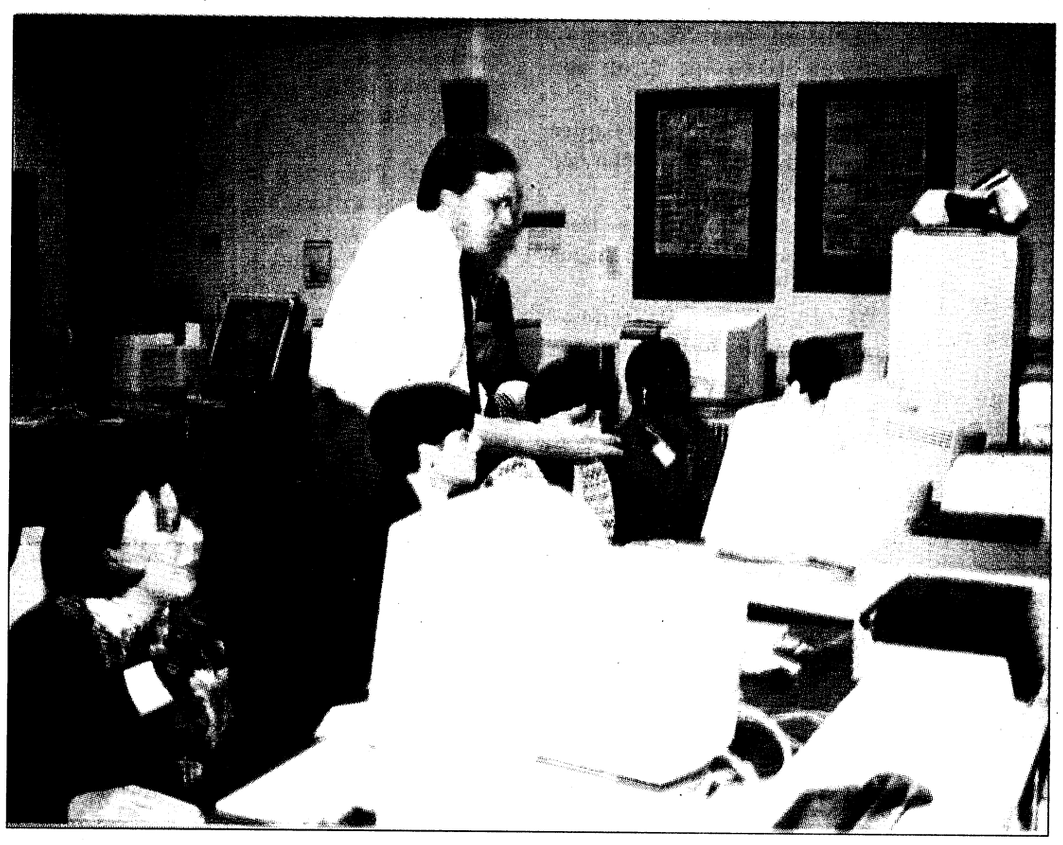
Less physical activity leads to less physical strength, less muscle mass and increased body fat. These external effects are important, but equally important are the following internal effects: high blood pressure, cardiovascular disease and elevated cholesterol.

Studies have shown that children who watch more than two hours of television per day have higher serum cholesterol levels than do more active children. Obesity is a known risk for medical problems and should not be ignored. "Baby fat" should not last into the teen-age years.

But should the responsibility for good nutrition and exercise be left up to a child? No, definitely not. Parents should be the gatekeepers who control food availability and promote exercise for their children. Children learn what they live so parents should plan nutritious meals, snacks and regular exercise. If children live among mounds of candy and high-fat foods, amidst various remote controls and video games, this becomes normal for them. It will also be the standard they set for their own families in the future.

Why do parents feel guilty if they don't buy sweets for their children? Cultural traditions and media advertising all promote high-fat, high-sugar foods. The average child is exposed to an estimated 10,000 commercials a year—predominantly luring them to buy sugar-coated cereals, candy, chips, fast foods and sweetened drinks. The sugar, fat, and salt found in these foods do not provide any nutritional or health benefit. Very few of the advertisements discuss tooth decay or obesity as side effects, but when eating excess amounts of these foods, health issues are real problems.

Nutrition at a glance



What: Healthy Shopping Tours.
When: Throughout March
Where: Commissary
Information: 544-1974

Providing healthy snacks is a must. Children who spend a lot of time at home tend to graze the cupboards and refrigerator, so make sure they are stocked with "legal" snacks. Fruits, vegetables, low-fat yogurt, skim milk, unsweetened cereal, low-fat granola bars, cheese and peanut butter are just a few possible nutritious snacks.

Don't set your children up for nutritional failure. Promote and provide a healthy, well-balanced, nutritional environment for your children. Set nutritionally positive examples for them to imitate and carry forward. Put good nutrition on your schedule every day.

WEEKEND WORKSHOP

Parents, educators share ideas

Photos by Amy Durham

Technology coordinator Jerry Christy discusses internet technology with parents during one of the Parent Academy computer sessions last Saturday. While some parents experienced the latest craze at work or home, many saw just how involved their children become while surfing the internet and world-wide web in Fort Benning's classrooms.

Focus on children succeeding in life

As students enjoyed a spring-like weekend, Fort Benning parents packed classrooms, shared new ideas and studied creative techniques to help their children succeed.

Several hundred people attended Fort Benning Schools' third annual Parent Academy at Faith Middle School Saturday to not only understand what their children are learning in today's classrooms, but to also learn new strategies to help them help their children.

Expectant parents, Capt. Nicholas and Ines Potito, attended the weekend workshop to get a headstart on parenting. Due May 20 with the couple's first child, Potito said it would be better to learn all she could before she had to.

Potito, a teacher said, "I've educated other people's children, but the biggest challenge is your own child."

But getting new ideas for dealing with other people's children was family member Cris Smith's primary goal. A family child-care provider, Smith picked up several new game and reading material ideas for the children in her care.

"This is wonderful," she said, referring to the Games to Enhance Learning at Home. (The children) so hungry for new things to do and this (session) is providing good new ideas."

Bobbie Markum, a third-grade teacher and one of the Games session facilitators, said the schools always tell parents to help their children at home.

"Parents and children are tired after work and school," she said. "If you turn (education) into a game, it's still learning but it is a game, and children retain interest."

However, many parents were catching up with their children. Throughout the three technology sessions, parents had the opportunity to learn about computers in the classroom, specifically the internet and how it is used in the curriculum. While some families have computers, including the internet, in their homes, others were convinced during the weekend seminar of benefits of catching up.

"I've been trying for three years to get (my husband) to get a home computer," said Dalinda Roach, "and now he's sold on the idea."

Although Staff Sgt. Vernon Roach could not defend his delay, he certainly could justify his recent conversion. Besides the obvious educational benefits a home computer would have for their 6- and 7-year-old children, the upcoming permanent change of station move to Germany was a major factor in the soldier's decision. Roach learned that for about $35 per month, his family could reach out to relatives in the states via computer internet much cheaper than by conventional telephone.

"I was expecting my phone bill to soar, increasing as much as three or four times what it has been," he said. "Why not get a computer for that."

Not all academy workshops dealt with hands-on aspects of education. From survival skills for families and study skills for children to the "Rs" of parenting and helping children understand the alternatives of conflict resolution, academy participants walked away with a well-rounded package of ideas to incorporate into their quality time at home with children.

As Vernon Roach put it, "I found out the way one person learns is not the same as another learns. We'll probably teach our two children with totally different approaches."

Speaker challenges adults to reach out to children

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Dr. Lonise Bias stresses all children are teachable, loveable, reachable and saveable.

All children are worth reaching out to again and again, according to Dr. Lonise Bias.

Speaking to a packed crowd in Faith Middle School's gymnasium March 1, Bias stressed the importance of treasuring what she called our nation's greatest resource — young people.

"Children are reachable, teachable, loveable and saveable," she said.

Fathers and mothers listened intensely as Bias, with great passion and animated presentation, told them the time of sitting back and saying, "let the schools handle it," is over.

"It takes an entire community to raise children," she said, "and good advice with poor example is reproachable.

Warning parents of the danger of worrying too much about their children's future, college education and cars. Bias suggested they concentrate on what is going on in their children's lives now.

"Blind parents cannot lead blind children," she said. "Young people expect us to provide their immediate and future needs."

Bias explained to the crowd, which ranged from expectant parents to those with teen-agers, there are six basic lies that cause young people to make poor decisions. Those lies are:

• If I do it my way, life will be okay. Rebellion against positive and legal authority. Parents should enforce home rules so children will embrace those principles outside the home, in schools and in society.

• If I wear the right clothes, my life will be okay. Children should understand the greatest love of all comes from what you put on the inside, not what you wear on the outside.

• If I join the right group, everything will be alright. Parents should remember children face various forms of character assassination each day. Children can be cruel to others who seem different.

• If I do what the group is doing, that will be great. In the long run, the less-traveled path reaps the greatest rewards.

• No one has problems like me. Children can learn and understand problems are designed to maximize a person's potential. However, parents can find ways to show children that someone always has it worse.

Family child-care provider Cris Smith looks through games and projects to add to what she already provides the children for whom she cares.

• If it feels good, do it; sex is okay. Acquired immune deficiency syndrome and sexually transmitted diseases are devouring the young population of America.

"Teach girls their identity is not validated by their relationships with boys," Bias said, "and parents, teach boys that manhood is reflected in their character, integrity and principle."

Bias told the crowd love should be the motivator because there is always hope.

afap update

Directorate of Community Activities

The Army Family Action Plan is the management tool used to implement issues and give policy guidance in an ongoing commitment to improve the quality of life for the total Army family. It identifies concerns of the Army family, determines actions required and assigns responsibility for implementing actions to resolve the issues.

Since the last symposium, agencies have worked to resolve many issues .

Delegates attending the symposium addressed many concerns. Each week, those concerns and the measures taken to resolve those concerns will be presented.

Action agency: Medical Department Activity and Dental Activity

Issue: Troop clinics. The environment and atmosphere of the troop medical clinics needs improvement. The clinics are physically unappealing and the service provided resembles "assembly-line service" rather than the quality of care soldiers are entitled to.

Response: The troop clinics are visited once a month by a member of the command group plus their normal chain of supervision. They are maintained in a clean and proper fashion. Building maintenance is sometimes deferred by post engineers but normally is corrected in a timely manner.

Existing policy is to treat all patients with respect.

Issue: Pharmacy service. It takes active duty members too long to obtain prescriptions when they need to get back to duty.

Response: The waiting time seldom exceeds 45 minutes. Soldiers in duty uniform who are waiting for a prescription to be filled and are pressed for time may ask the pharmacy personnel to put a "rush" on their prescription. This "rush" will move the prescription request to the head of the processing line and decrease waiting time. When the prescription is filled, the soldier's name will be called at the dispensing window for pickup.

Issue: Civilian employees at the hospital. Many civilian employees at the hospital are rude and have unpleasant attitudes when dealing with customers.

Response: Classes are provided to all employees and the number of complaints are monitored monthly. They have been reduced by 30 percent in the last two years and currently average less than a dozen a month for perceived rudeness or bad attitude for both military and civilian personnel combined.

Issue: Lack of organization in the Pediatric Clinic. A child or infant is seen by several different doctors, each of which does not usually look back at previous visits, often for the same problem, i.e. ear infections. As such, the child is treated for the immediate problem and the issue of it is overlooked.

Response: We have four physicians in the clinic. Assigning patients to two physicians is not practical in that a minimum of three is required to ensure one is always available. The numbers just don't make this suggestion possible. Physicians routinely review the patient's entire record for an understanding of all medical treatments the patient may have received.

Issue: Birthing room at the hospital. Why doesn't the hospital offer a birthing room?

Response: The fiscal 1996 life safety upgrade will allow the hospital to renovate and provide a birthing room. Hospital renovations were placed on hold because the construction of a new hospital was scheduled to begin in 1995-96.

Issue: Delta Dental Plan. Delta Dental will pay 80 percent of the allowed amount for sealants on the first permanent molars for patients under the age of nine. This restricts access of preventive dentistry. My daughter is 11 and has regular checkups, but her molars have not completely erupted and cannot be sealed yet. The dentist says this is not uncommon and the second permanent molars may erupt after the age of 14 (also not covered by Delta Dental). Because of her age, Delta Dental will not cover any part of her sealants even though there is no neglect in care or attention to her dental care.

Response: Sealants are only covered on first molars until age 9 and on second molars until age 14. Because of variations in individual eruption times and patterns, an individual may not be ready for sealants until after the above ages.

Because of the importance of preventive dentistry, a time period after eruption of the molars noted by a dentist rather than a specific age limit should be considered.

The actual terms of the Tricare Family Member Dental Plan are negotiated several echelons above the Fort Benning Dental Activity. This issue should be elevated for DOD-wide action.

Although the dental plan does have the aforementioned restrictions, family members may seek space available pediatric dental care not covered by the terms of the dental plan at the Love Dental Clinic. The telephone number is 544-2051.

The issue has been forwarded to the Training and Doctrine Command for further consideration because it is locally unattainable.

Issue: Dental clinics. There is only one crown and bridge dentist for Fort Benning. Appointments must be scheduled two to three months in advance.

Response: The Fort Benning Dental Activity has just added its fourth prosthodontist. These dentists specialize in prosthetics such as crowns and bridges. As of July 11, the average waiting time for a routine appointment with a prosthodontist was three weeks.

Additionally, our 19 general and comprehensive dentists have the capability of providing prosthodontic care. These dentists can normally see routine patients within two to three weeks or on a walk-in basis if there is an emergency.

Family members are encouraged to use the Tricare Family Member Dental Plan for their prosthodontic care. Family members not enrolled in the dental plan may seek very limited space available prosthodontic care at their sponsor's servicing dental clinic.

State park hosts photo, poster contests

Providence Canyon State Park

A "1996 World Olympics" poster contest and an amateur photography contest are sponsored by Providence Canyon State Park in conjunction with the Farmers State Bank of Stewart County.

The purpose of the contests is to expose students to the value of a culturally diverse world.

The poster contest is for students in kindergarten to sixth grade. Fifty-dollar saving bonds will be given to first-place winners in kindergarten or first grade, second or third grade, and in fourth, fifth or sixth grade.

All photographs and posters must be submitted by April 3 to Providence Canyon State Park, Route 1, Box 158, Lumpkin, Ga. 31815.

All entries will be on display from April 3 to 8. Winners will be announced April 10. Participants do not have to be present to win..

A cash award of $100 will go to the first-place winner and $50 will go to the second-place winner.

Providence Canyon State Park is located seven miles west of Lumpkin, Ga. on Highway 39C.

ask the judge

By Jane M. Winand
Legal Assistance Division

Q: Last month, while at the National Training Center, I was tasked with some other guys in the platoon to dig fighting positions. My platoon sergeant told us to put our load bearing equipment and Kevlar helmets in a pile by our truck and start digging.

I expressed concern over my equipment, but the sergeant told me he would worry about it. After the fighting positions were dug, the platoon sergeant sent us to help with communications at the tactical operations center. I asked about my equipment again, and the sergeant finally let me go.

I immediately went back to where I was told to leave my equipment, and it was gone. A couple of the other guys who had been told to leave their gear there also got ripped off. The platoon sergeant said he didn't know anything about it. He also said that I was signed for the equipment, and I'd have to pay for it. The company gave me a statement of charges to sign. What do I do?

A: First — think before you sign. A statement of charges is like a check. Sign your name and the money comes right out of your pay from the government. If you know you're responsible for the loss, damage or destruction of government property, signing a statement of charges is a quick way to take care of the matter and get on with your life. However, if there is a nagging thought in the back of your mind that you don't think it is your fault, don't sign.

If you don't sign the statement of charges, the unit will initiate a report of survey to determine who, if anyone, will be responsible for the loss. A report of survey is an investigation to determine what was lost or damaged, the value of the items and who, if anyone, will have to pay to replace the items.

A survey officer is appointed, and he will get statements from all of the relevant witnesses and examine the damaged property, if any, and the scene of the damage or loss. He will also check all of the pertinent regulations and seek legal advice from the Administrative Law Division of the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate.

If, after the investigation is complete, the survey officer recommends that you pay for the loss or damages, you must be given a complete survey copy. If the survey was delivered, you have seven days to prepare a response (response time is increased if you are not available to receive the delivered survey or if you are in a different country than the survey officer).

Although you will have another opportunity to appeal a finding of liability to the approving authority, this is your only chance to submit a rebuttal to the survey officer. Call the Legal Assistance Division at 545-3281 and make an appointment. Bring to the appointment the copy of the survey, all your statements and exhibits and anything else that you think will be helpful. You'll also need to prepare a detailed written statement giving your version of the facts. A Legal Assistance attorney will review the evidence and your statement and the recommend a course of action.

In your situation, your platoon sergeant, as your supervisor, had supervisory responsibility over the property for which you signed. That means he had to provide proper guidance and direction, enforce security, safety and accounting requirements and maintain a proper physical and psychological environment for the proper care and use of government property. From what you said, the platoon sergeant appears to have prevented you from safeguarding your own property and thus, by his actions, may be responsible for all of the missing property he said he would safeguard.

Mouth guards provide smile protection

U. S. Army Dental Activity

Athletes who seek to protect life and limb can choose from a variety of sports safety equipment.

Helmets, knee pads, goggles, face masks and mouth guards help prevent serious injury on the playing field. Mouth guards, also called mouth protectors, are particularly important in safeguarding smiles.

The American Dental Society recommends that if you engage in active sports, you should consider wearing a mouth guard. Some active sports include football, basketball, soccer, hockey, skateboarding and volleyball.

However, there are many other sports that present a risk of injury to the head, face or mouth as a result of head-to-head contact, falls, tooth clenching, or from impact with equipment. A well-constructed mouth guard used during any of these sports can help prevent injury to the mouth, teeth, lips, cheeks and tongue.

There are three types of mouth guards. One is ready-made or stock mouth guards. Another type is mouth-formed guards and the last is custom-made mouth guards. The three types differ in comfort, fit and cost. The most effective mouth guards are resilient, tear-resistant and thin enough for comfortable breathing and speaking.

Stock mouth guards and mouth-formed guards are available at sporting goods stores. A custom mouth guard made by the dentist is closely shaped to fit the player's teeth for extra comfort.

No matter which type of mouth guard is worn, only the upper teeth should be covered for the following reasons:

- The upper teeth usually overlap and therefore protect the lower teeth.
- The front teeth are the most frequently injured.
- Covering the lower teeth may create additional bulk, diminishing comfort and fit while providing little extra protection.

Some special circumstances, such as a protruding jaw or the presence of orthodontic appliances (braces) may require that the lower teeth also be covered. Your dentist can determine if such a condition might apply. The American Dental Society cautions parents that orthodontic retainers should not be used when participating in contact sports.

Athletes of all ages have discovered that wearing a mouth guard during practice, a game or while simply skateboarding in the park makes good sporting sense.

Rocky road less traveled, but worth it

By John R. Houser
Martin Army Community Hospital

My family and I were able to take a vacation to Orlando, Fla., the week before Christmas. While in Orlando, we visited Disney World and Universal Studios.

Yes, we enjoyed all the amenities of these famous theme parks. We waited in long lines that produced sore and aching feet. We purchased and ate overpriced food that created tourist indigestion. We endured stroller buggy injuries to our ankles. We truly experienced the best of an Orlando vacation!

While touring Universal Studios, I was reminded of a special truth in life — the difficult road is always less crowded. We arrived at Universal Studios around 9 a.m. on an overcast morning with the temperature in the high 40s — 15 to 20 degrees lower than the previous day's temperature.

Our family immediately headed for the attraction we had wanted to go on for a number of years, Jaws. To our amazement, when we arrived at the ride, there was no line. The attendant was actually attempting to recruit tourists to ride. Within one hour, we experienced this action-filled attraction twice. Usually the wait is two hours or longer, but no one wanted Jaws to splash them with cold water on this cold morning.

Yes, the difficult road in life is always less crowded. Choosing dangerous professions, tackling the elements of nature and living life in a nontraditional manner will always assure one a free and untraveled highway of life.

"Enter by the narrow gate; for the gate is wide and the way is easy that leads to destruction, and those who enter by it are many. For the gate is narrow and the way is hard that leads to life, and those who find it are few." (Matthew 7:13-14 RSV).

I pause to honor a special group of individuals who qualify for choosing the road less traveled — the men and women of the armed forces of the United States, past and present, especially those who have been or will soon be deployed to Bosnia in support of the current peace mission.

The poem "Easy Road Crowded"' speaks to the calling and life of the professional soldier:

"The easy roads are crowded, and the level roads are jammed; the pleasant little rivers with the drifting folks are crammed. But off yonder where it's rocky where you get a better view, you will find the ranks are thinning and the travelers are few.

reflections

"Where the going is smooth and pleasant you will always find the throng, for the many more is the pity, seem to like to drift along; but the steps that call for courage, and that task that's hard to do in the end results in glory, for the never wavering few."

Soldiers, may God bless and protect you as you serve your country and may 1996 be a great year for you and may your road of life never be crowded!

reflections

I stood in the foyer, surrounded by people, most of whom were three times my age. My mother said they were all relatives, but I had never seen most of them.

Once in a while, I caught glimpses of my immediate family — my father standing tall, arm around my eldest brother or my mother, sitting with the women, talking about people as they walked by.

Most of my brothers and sisters had found people to talk to. Being the youngest in my family by nine years, I shared no common friends with my siblings, so I searched for something to fill my afternoon.

A small, introspective group stood in one corner, looking at a mural on the floor. It was covered mostly with names and embellished with decorative drawings. It was a large, elaborate family lineage chart (genogram).

I soon found my great-grandparents, my grandparents, and then my family.

"I found my name!" I said.

A man standing nearby glanced at me, then to where I pointed on the mural. He smiled slightly.

"That's nice," he said.

I had heard that our line had royalty in it, that King David might have been one of our ancestors, hundreds of years ago. As I looked back, generation after generation, I recognized names that I'd heard Grandma and Grandpa talk about. After a few generations, I no longer recognized any names but read on. Every name held a story, and I wished that I could know each.

Then I reached a place on the chart where a portion had been blacked out. I tried to read underneath the black but could make out no words. I asked a woman standing near me, "Why is this blacked out? Who was this?"

The woman glanced at the spot I pointed to and said, "Don't worry about that part. The woman got pregnant before she was married; we aren't sure who the father was. The son turned out to be a criminal who brought disgrace on our family."

"But what was his name," I asked. "What did he do?"

"I'm sure you'll hear the story someday," she said. She walked away quickly, leaving me staring. I wondered what could be so horrible.

I stared at the black on the mural and then slowly turned to leave. As I turned, I almost ran into a boy about my size. He looked at me and smiled. I smiled back.

"I heard you talking about the black mark on the mural," he said.

"Yes, do you know anything about it?" I asked.

The boy looked both ways, then motioned for me to sit down. We sat next to the mural on the floor.

"His name was Jesus," he said. "Have you ever heard of him?"

PISTOL MATCH

Shooters take aim during night fire match

Shooter Chris Edwards and team shooters Morris Lewark and Wanda Rodriguez showed that firing in the dark was not a problem when they took first place in the Bad Moon Rising Tactical Pistol on English Range Saturday.

Edwards scored a 133 with a time of 44.71 with a hit factor of 2.975.

"This match was successful," said Jim Graham, Fort Benning Pistol Club. "The numbers were good. The weather was good, and everyone seemed to leave happy."

Ed Wisener of LaGrange, a first time shooter, said he came out because a friend was a club member.

Although Wisener has been shooting for 30 years, he said he had never shot in a Fort Benning night tactical pistol match.

Wisener said the one difference of shooting in the match would be shooting at the dots on the sight instead of shooting at the sights. Another different event was having to shoot around a hostage, he said.

Joan Warren, also a first-time shooter, said her shooting strategy was just to aim in the general direction of the target.

Warren said she brought her husband and her daughter, who was also a beginner.

The next tactical pistol match will be the Powerplus Ammo April 6 at 10 a.m. on English Range.

The match is patterned after the Glock Sport Shooting Foundation Match that will be May 4 and 5.

Awards will be given for first, second and third place in the competitor, standard, law enforcement, high female and high new shooter categories. There will also be a team category.

The entry fee is $12 if paid by April 3 and $16 after that date. For information, call Jim Graham at 689-3371.

Gretsky's trade to St. Louis won't bring the Stanley Cup

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

Brian R. Voller believes Wayne Gretsky's trade to the St. Louis Blues will not help the team.

commentary

If you're in the National Hockey League look out! At least that's what a lot of people are saying about "The Great One," Wayne Gretsky, being traded to the St. Louis Blues.

I personally am not so convinced that his being traded is going to be the best thing in the world for the Blues.

His coming to St. Louis is going to be detrimental to the team simply because he is so good. The Blues already have a world-class athlete in their scoring and defensive star Brett Hull, who has been leading the Blues for several years.

Plain and simple, Hull has been their emotional and their scoring leader since he's been with St. Louis. The arrival of Gretsky will basically strip Hull of all his leadership with a team he has formed into his own.

The other problem that starts to happen to a team with too many all stars is the overdependence problem. The only way that a team can win is if its members play as a team. If a team becomes too dependent on one or two players, that team starts to consistently lose big games because their star players fail to come through.

The Blues could very easily fall into this trap, especially if Head Coach Mike Keenan starts to put both Gretsky and Hull on the ice in a tight hockey game. That little ego problem mixed with a team's overdependence could kill the Blues chances of winning that game.

Gretsky and Hull and the entire St. Louis Blues are professional athletes. Technically speaking, a battle of egos is not supposed to happen and neither is overdependence. But human nature has a really bad habit of sneaking its way back into the lives of even the most skilled of players.

Grapplers try for championship spots

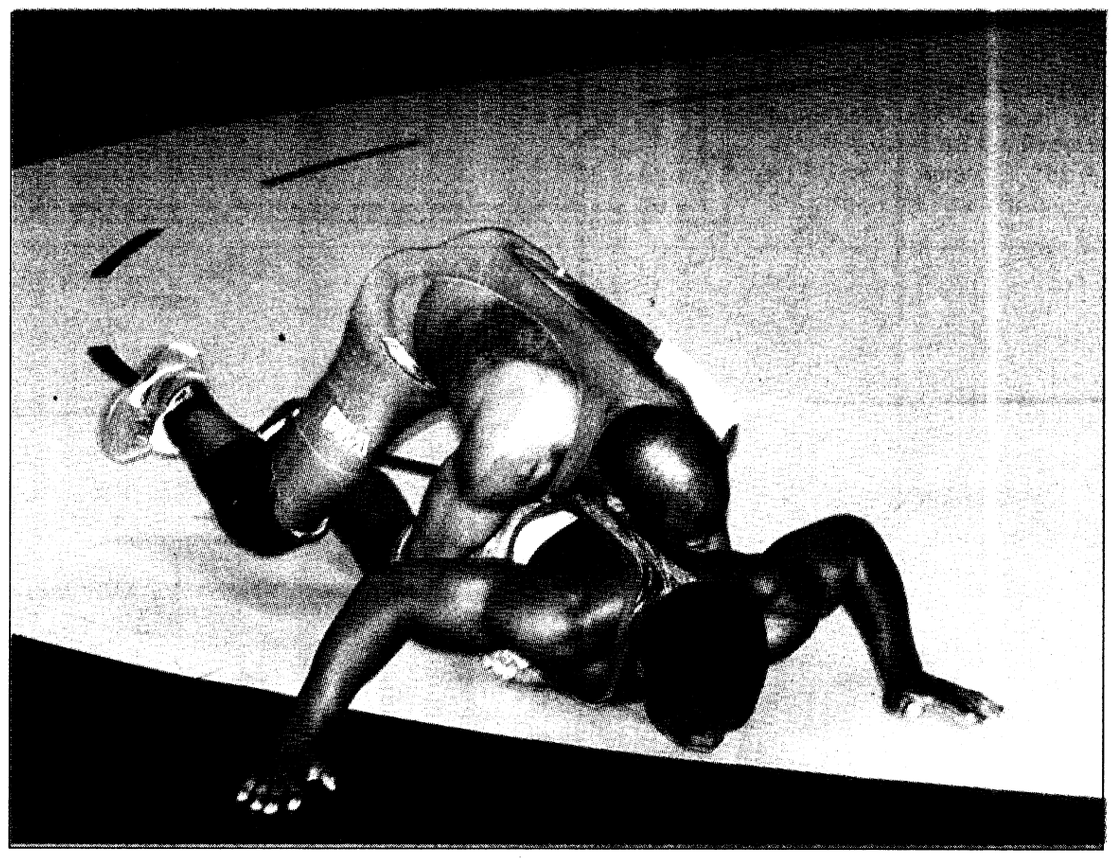
The All-Army Wrestling Program conducted its annual wrestle-off Tuesday at Kinsman Barracks on Sand Hill.



The winners will compete in the Armed Forces Championships in Quantico, Va., March 13 to 17.

The Armed Forces Championship is the first in a series of tournaments where Army wrestlers can qualify for the U.S. Olympic trials June 1 to 2 in Concord, Calif., said sports director James Brown.

The Army trials began on January 17 with 78 wrestlers reporting to camp, 14 of which were in the World Class Athlete Program.

During the past two months members of the WCAP have trained in Colorado Springs, Colo., and have trained and competed in Bulgaria, Norway and Greece.

Listed below are the final selections by weight class for freestyle and Greco-Roman competition.

Army boxers take championship

By Stephen Barrett
American Forces information Service

FORT HUACHUCA, Ariz.,— To many military boxers, holding the 1996 armed forces championships here was like playing the Chicago Bulls at home. Experienced talent, supported by vocal fans, equals easy victory in the home arena.

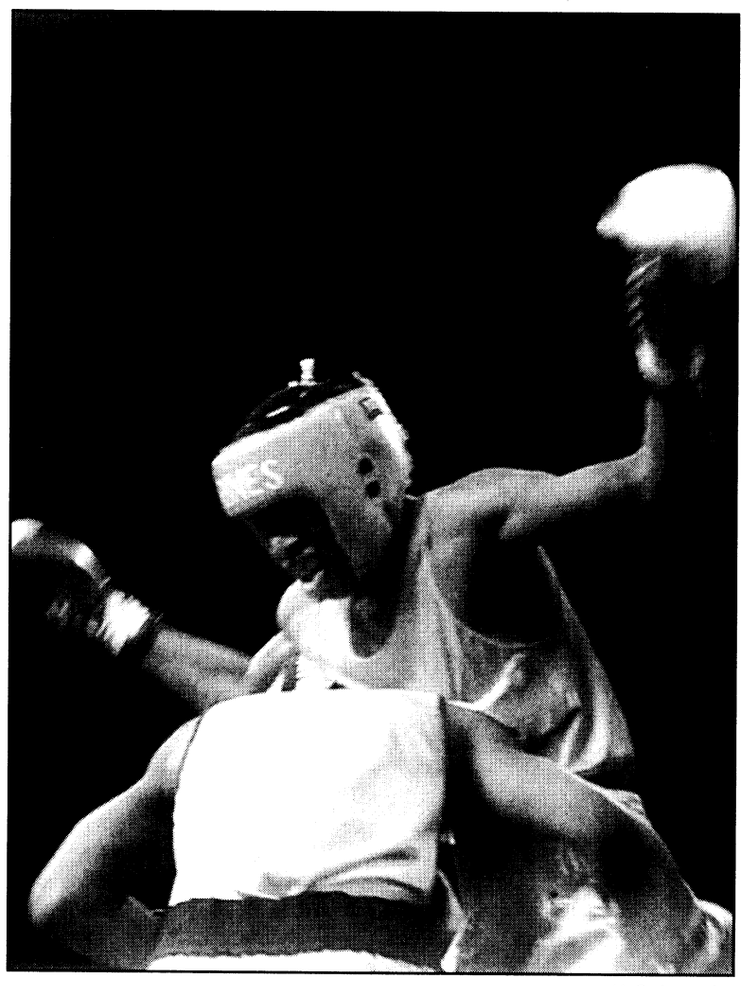
"When you've got a crowd like the crowd tonight rooting against you and your team, it's hard to keep your concentration on the fight," said Marine Lance Cpl. Lee Gladden. "I lost mine and it cost me."

Gladden wasn't alone in losing. It happened to almost all who stepped into the ring against Army boxers. Spurred by the home crowd, Army claimed 11 of 12 weight titles in winning its fourth straight interservice boxing championship.

In collecting the team honors, Army boxers claimed 11 championship title fights, defeated two defending service champions and saw four fighters retain their 1995 titles.

"We were ready to come out here and fight," said Sgt. 1st Class Jesse Ravelo, coach of the Fort Huachuca-based Army boxing team. "There was a lot at stake in these bouts, and the guys knew what they had to do."

In addition to armed forces titles, each weight class winner received a berth in the 1996 Olympic boxing trials, set for March in Oakland, Calif. Fighters who failed here still have a shot for the Olympic trials, but must earn bids at other boxing competitions.



In Gladden's case, it was Fort Huachuca's Spc. Robert Bailey who postponed the Marine's Olympic hopes. After an even first round, Bailey surprised the defending champ by scoring a right hook to the head, stunning the Camp Lejeune fighter in the round's first minute.

Backed by a supportive Army crowd, Bailey continued his attack on the surprised and distracted Gladden. A minute later, Bailey again nailed Gladden—this time with a left jab—prompting a second standing eight count. From there, Bailey scored continuous punches to Gladden's head and body, forcing a second-round stop at 2:53.

Another losing his title was Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Kimberly Evans, also of Camp Lejeune. The defending welterweight champion fell to Sgt. Fareed Samad of Fort Bragg, N.C.

Like the Bailey-Gladden fight, both boxers fought an even first round. In the second round, however, Samad used a series of punches to set up a devastating left jab to Evans' face. That punch ended the fight at 2:23 of the middle round.

If the two upsets were highlights, the middleweight title fight between Spc. Benjamin McDowell and Air Force Staff Sgt. Ronald Simms was a disappointment. In a split 3-2 decision booed by many, McDowell won the fight but showed little of the style that made him the Department of Defense's 1995 athlete of the year.

Marine Lance Cpl. Lee Gladden holds up his arms as Spc. Robert Bailey ties up the defending champion.

"McDowell had a very sloppy first round," said Ravelo. "He didn't box well. He was very slow and didn't throw the punches he should have been throwing.

"The way he fought the third round was the way he should have fought the entire fight."

Four defending Army champions had little or no problem retaining their boxing titles. Huachuca's Spc. Bradley Martinez captured his third straight light flyweight title, stopping Airman 1st Class Steve Franco of Luke Air Force Base, Ariz., in 1:36. Huachuca featherweight Sgt. William Clay Jenkins won his third straight title, stopping Navy Seaman Oscar Vallerodreguez of Camp Hunter, Calif., cold in 1:58.

Spc. Olanda Anderson of Fort Huachuca defended his light heavyweight title with a 4-1 decision over Cpl. Bryan Fields of the Marine Barracks, Washington D.C. In the light middleweight championship, Fort Bragg's Sgt. Jeffrey Clark scored a 5-0 decision over Staff Sgt. Mack Gadsden, the 1992 light-middleweight champion from Robins Air Force Base, Ga.

In other bouts, Pfc. DeRon Ferguson of Fort Huachuca became the light welterweight champion, scoring a 5-0 decision over Marine Cpl. Vincent Russell of Camp Lejeune.

The flyweight title went to Pfc. John Medina of Fort Huachuca. Medina grabbed a first-round victory, stopping Senior Airman Samuel Aponte of Moody Air Force Base, Ga., in 2:59.

Spc. David Washington of Fort Bragg claimed the heavyweight title with a 5-0 decision against Marine Sgt. James Harris of the Military Entrance Station, Montgomery, Ala. Pfc. Ryan Brieske of Fort Carson, Colo., completed the Army dominance with a 5-0 super heavyweight victory over Marine Sgt. Richard Oliver from Camp Lejeune.

3rd Bde has victory in focus

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

The 3rd Brigade recently took its final step in preparation for its annual rotation to the National Training Center in Fort Irwin Calif., by deploying its combat team to the field for Operation Victory Focus.

During the three-week exercise, which began Feb. 20, the mechanized infantry brigade has been concentrating on company- and battalion-level maneuvers to improve soldiers' skills for the training they will undertake at the NTC.

The training is designed to elevate the skill levels of the approximately 5,000 soldiers who are participating in the operation, said Lt. Col. David Kingston, commander of the 317th Engineer Battalion.

"I can speak for my battalion and say that we have an approximately 50 percent turnover rate. So, about half of them rotate out and will be left with 50 percent new folks to work with," Kingston said. "That is why we continually have to come out to the field and work with the new people."

By Brian R. Voller

Soldiers from the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, maneuver through a simulated mine field during a lane training exercise at Operation Victory Focus.

"We had another training exercise called Hammer Focus in which we trained at the platoon level," he said. "Hammer Focus is the ramp up to Victory Focus where we train at a company or battalion level."

One of the new innovations that is being incorporated into Victory Focus is the lane training concept.

"Lane training is not a new concept to the Army, but it is new to Fort Benning," Kingston said. "Lane training maximizes the use of the terrain. Each lane has a specific terrain that the people running it can maneuver on and can master.

"The other thing it does is it really focuses on those skills we want to develop," he said. "We can focus on the breach exercise or on the movement-to-contact exercise."

The lanes that have been built for the infantry and armor companies to drill on are assembly area procedures, breaching operations, the hasty attack, movement to contact, the deliberate attack and fire control techniques.

After the lane training ends, the brigade soldiers will concentrate on operations similar to those they will conduct while training at the NTC. During this concentration period, there will also be a joint Army-Air Force training exercise Saturday through Tuesday.

Sgt. Stacey Milliner, Company D, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, who has been in the field for several days, said the training is a good opportunity for younger soldiers to learn from.

"I've been doing this for quite a while," Milliner said. "It's pretty good for the younger soldiers who haven't been in too long. It's also good training for our counterparts in (2nd Bn., 69th Armor and 2nd Bn., 18th Inf.) and preparing for NTC."

"This kind of training is also good for the younger soldiers because they learn how to read maps or they learn how to use the different kinds of weapons they will need in the field," Milliner said.

For Pfc. Kelly Graves, Co. D, 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., the biggest advantage of Victory Focus is getting a chance to experience life as a dismounted soldier.

"This is better than being a driver," Graves said. "I've been driving a Bradley up until now. This is my first experience with being a dismounted soldier. It's better than sitting in hatch just waiting to go somewhere."

The 3rd Bde., 24th Inf. Div. (Mech.), will deploy for the NTC during the middle of April and will return at the end of May.

Bushmasters conduct platoon movement STX

By Brett J. Riddle
Infantry Officer Basic Course

The Bushmasters of Company B, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, Infantry Officer Basic Course completed their eighth week of training by conducting a platoon movement situational training exercise.

The students seemed to be in high spirits throughout the exercise in spite of uncharacteristically cold weather early in the week. The training focused on movement to contact, battle drills, field operation orders, how to conduct an after action review and advanced land navigation techniques.

As soon as the rucksacks hit the ground, the Bushmasters were busy practicing their individual movement techniques for the movement to contact. The company rehearsed both squad and platoon battle drill live fires to enhance the soldiers' skills for the blank and live fires that would take place on Wednesday.

After two days of low crawling, high crawling and three-second rushing, the Bushmasters were ready to start the live-fire exercise. This was the first platoon level live fire exercise for many students.

"(The STX) starts with the basics and culminates into the platoon battle drill attack, which is the bread and butter for platoon leaders"

— Capt. Lance Patterson
Third platoon's senior leader

What made the exercise even more challenging was that the students were responsible for conducting their own training while cadre only supervised. The result of this challenging training was an exceptionally well executed mission, according to Capt. Ara Megerdician, primary instructor for the exercise.

Students were selected to write a plan, brief the plan, and supervise their plan. Once the plan was briefed, the students then executed both the blank and live-fire movement-to-contact missions. After-action reviews were conducted after each mission.

"The purpose of the STX is to familiarize the students with conducting a movement-to-contact mission, while at the same time giving them a chance to train and maneuver with live rounds," Megerdician said.

The platoon movement STX was executed in four phases.

The first phase was a walk through dry fire. The dry fire consisted of each group using basic techniques to understand the process of a platoon movement-to-contact.

The second phase was a blank fire using multi-integrated, laser engagement system. Platoons reacted to opposing forces at combat speed. This was basically a rehearsal for the live-fire exercise.

Phase three was the actual live-fire exercise.

The fourth phase of the field exercise was the negotiation of the advanced land navigation course.

"This movement STX is one of the best training exercises we have," said Capt. Lance Patterson, third platoon's senior trainer. "It starts with the basics and culminates into the platoon battle drill attack, which is the bread and butter for platoon leaders."

Q. What is the policy governing the inspection of family living quarters?

A. According to U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-50, while preservation of health and sanitation is ultimately the responsibility of the individual, the government has a valid interest in preventing hazardous health and sanitary conditions and deterioration of family quarters.

The commander, USAIC and Fort Benning, reserve the right to conduct inspections of family housing to ensure that family housing areas provide a healthy, sanitary environment for all occupants residing of Fort Benning.

He reserves the right to conduct unannounced inspections based upon complaints of alleged violations of health and sanitary conditions or damage to government quarters received by any of his delegated representatives.

Editor's note: Questions are provided to help soldiers prepare for the board.

Largest computer network to power Task Force XXI

By Derrick Crawford
TRADOC News Service

FORT GORDON — When Task Force XXI participates in an advanced warfighting experiment at Fort Irwin, Calif., in Feb. 1997, it will be using the world's largest mobile computerized network.

The tactical internet is probably the most complex mobile router-based computerized network that the world has ever seen, said Maj. Robert Burchell of the Signal Center's Regimental directorate of training.

We are deploying a network larger than one managed by AT&T, said Capt. Michael Kell, of the architecture branch in the Signal Center's directorate of combat developments. More than 1,200 computers, including notebook-sized models will be used on the NTC battlefield, according to Kell.

"What makes the tactical internet so complex are the routers supporting the large number of computer systems," Burchell said. "These are decision points within the network that determine where information goes. They are responsible for moving data from one link to the next."

Task Force XXI is 1st Brigade, 4th Infantry Division, Fort Hood, Texas. It is being equipped with the latest in digital communications and information systems. In the 1997 AWE, it will experiment with them under battlefield conditions to help develop organizational concepts and tactics, techniques and procedures for the future Army — Army XXI.

All the brigade's tanks, Bradley Fighting Vehicles, high mobility, multipurpose wheeled vehicle and a number of mechanized platforms are being outfitted with computers. Dismounted soldiers will also have computers, literally carrying them in their rucksacks, according to Burchell.

The 1st Battalion, 5th Infantry Division (Light), Fort Lewis, Wash., is also part of Task Force XXI. In addition to digital communications, its soldiers will also be outfitted with their own nightfighting equipment.

Other battle command equipment, or initiatives such as the Single Channel Ground and Airborne Radio System Improvement Program and the Enhanced Position Location Reporting System Very High Speed Integrated Circuts will be experimented in the AWE.

The new SINCGARS handles both voice and data transmissions. It will be interconnected to the EPLRS-VHSIC network, and, in turn, connected to the mobile subscriber equipment creating a system of systems better known as the tactical internet.

"We are arming soldiers with information systems so commanders can make better decisions and increase the lethality of our forces," Burchell said.

"It will provide greater situational awareness, knowledge of where everyone is on the battlefield, which will prevent fratricide."

A combination of commercial and military software and hardware will be used to create the internet.

Fort Gordon's BCBL and the Signal Center DCD developed the concept for the Tactical Internet. Communications Electronics Command and the Armament Research and Development Engineering Center, Fort Monmouth, N.J., plus civilian contractors made the internet a reality.

Observers from the BCBL and Signal Center will assist in data collection during the AWE and record lessons learned from the use of the Tactical Internet.

"We will use the information to write doctrine and determine training requirements for the digitized force," Burchell said. "We also intend to capture things that need to be taught at all Traing and Doctrine Command schools.

"With computers and automation comes a new level of tactics, techniques and procedures to maximize capabilities given to the force.

"I wouldn't want to be the bad guy on the receiving end of all of this stuff," he said.

Soldiers to hone skills during gunnery

Five hundred soldiers to deploy to Fort Stewart, Ga.

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

Brian R. Voller

Soldiers from the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, inspect the overhang of the tank treads as the tanks are driven onto the rail head in preparation for deployment to Fort Stewart, Ga. for the Gunnery Training Exercise.

Five hundred soldiers from the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment will deploy to Fort Stewart, Ga. to participate in the 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) annual gunnery training exercise March 20 through April 12.

"For the tankers, gunnery is the first time they get to work together as a crew," said Staff Sgt. Richard White, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt. "They get to shoot live bullets and they get an opportunity to bore sight their tanks, which is the equivalent of zeroing an M-16 rifle."

Gunnery is also the time when the tankers get evaluated on several different tasks, White said.

Some of the tasks the tankers will be evaluated on are crew duties, timing and how fast they can engage single, double and multiple targets.

"There are 12 tables that the tankers will be evaluated on during gunnery," White said. "Tables one through eight are for individual crew coordination, tables nine and ten are for section evaluation and tables 11 and 12 are for platoon-size coordination.

"Table eight is the main qualification round for the crew size coordination. In order to qualify a crew has to shoot 700 to 800 during qualification.

"For a crew to be superior they have to shoot 800 to 900, and for a crew to be distinguished they have to shoot 900 to 1000."

Along with being the qualification period for the tankers, Table 8 is also used as a type of competition for the different companies, said Maj. David Bishop, battalion S-3.

"We're the top battalion in the division," Bishop said. "The last three gunneries in a row 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt. has won top tank platoon and top tank company. Company D has taken the top company the past few qualifications."

The gunnery is also one of the only times the tankers get to train with real wartime tasks, said 1st Lt. Tom Rippert, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt.

"The thing I try to tell my guys is that I use this not only as an evaluation tool but as a training experience," Rippert said. "This is just about the only time prior to the National Training Center that we will get a chance to fire as a platoon, and get to practice actual fire control measures up to and including firing while in complete NBC (Nuclear Biological and Chemical) gear.

"It's one of the few times that you will fire in your protective masks, but it is a real war time issue."

The gunnery exercise is the final training exercise the battalion will participate in prior to deploying for the NTC on April 26.

The training they received during Operations Hammer Focus and Victory Focus, and the training they will receive at gunnery are strong training enhancers before deploying to the NTC.

"The training the soldiers received during Hammer Focus and Victory Focus was some of the best training the soldiers here have ever received," Bishop said. "The lane training was fast-paced, focused training.

The training concentrated on one task at a time, and we didn't have any wasted time the entire time we were out there.

"While participating in the gunnery exercise, soldiers will also be evaluated on their individual soldiering skills.

"The tasks include a 12-mile road march, going through the NBC chamber and qualification with M-16 rifle, " Bishop said.

TRADOC IG team to visit

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Inspector General for the Training and Doctrine Command, Col. Charles Beckwith, will visit Fort Benning for an assistance visit Monday through March 21.

A team accompanying Beckwith will visit commanders, directors and activity chiefs and conduct sensing sessions in selected organizations.

Soldiers, family members, retirees and civilians will be given the opportunity to file complaints or request assistance with the Inspector General at the following times and locations:

- Retirees — Tuesday from 4 to 5 p.m. in Infantry Hall, classroom 52.
- Soldiers and civilians — Wednesday from 9 to 11:30 a.m. in Infantry Hall, classroom 52.
- Family members — Wednesday from 6 to 7 p.m. at the Family Unit Network Center, Building 359 on Ingersoll St.

Post puts finishing touches on Olympic Village

By Lisa M. Hibbert
Special to The Bayonet

With just 126 days left until the opening of the Olympic Games, Fort Benning is preparing to put the finishing touches on its Olympic village, a place on post where athletes participating in the Olympics will stay during the competition

Fort Benning has the distinction of having the only Olympic village that will provide athletes single rooms, said Chuck Walls, venue staffing manager for the Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games and former garrison executive office at Fort Benning.

"(The post) was lauded by ACOG for Fort Benning having a one-of-a-kind Olympic village," Walls said.

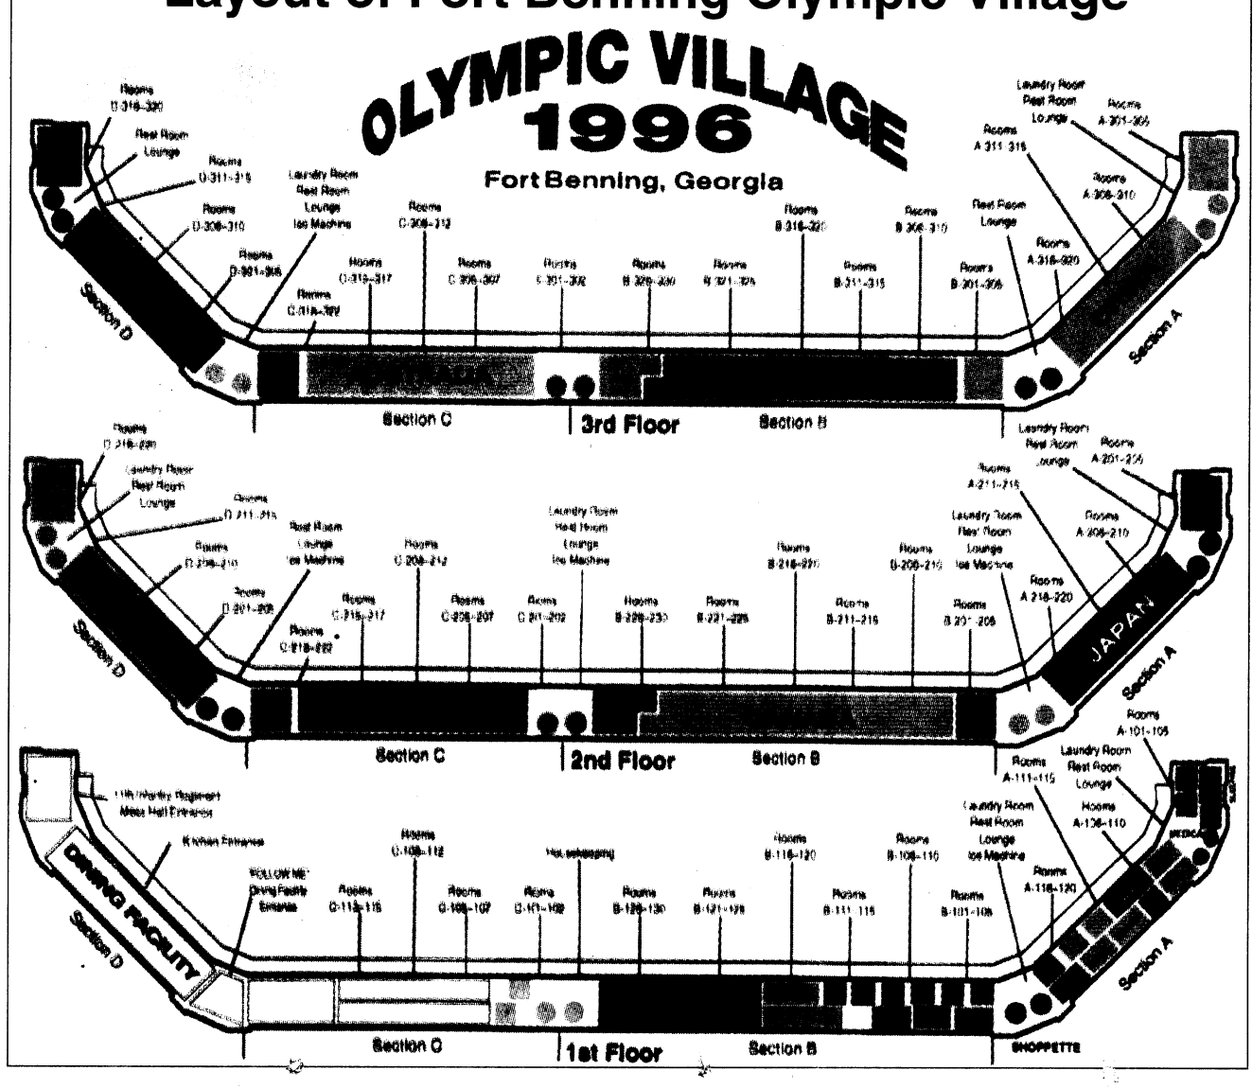
The post Olympic village will be located in Henry Hall, Building 73.

The rooms the athletes will occupy are ready, said Ken G. Hankins, chief, Housing Division, Directorate of Public Works.

"No changes are being done to the rooms for the Olympics," Hankins said. "We renovated 12 of the lounges in the building, but that had been planned before Fort Benning became involved in the Olympics."

Each room is equipped with a refrigerator, microwave, television, iron, ironing board and a safe for storing valuables.

"Everything that is in the rooms now, has been there all along," Hankins said.



The post does have to make some comprises with ACOG.

"The television that we have in the rooms are made by Zenith who is not the official sponsor so we have cover the name up on the sets." Hankins said. "We also have to remove the Pepsi Cola machines from Henry Hall because Coca-Cola is the official soft drink of the Olympic games."

The building that will be housing the village is part of

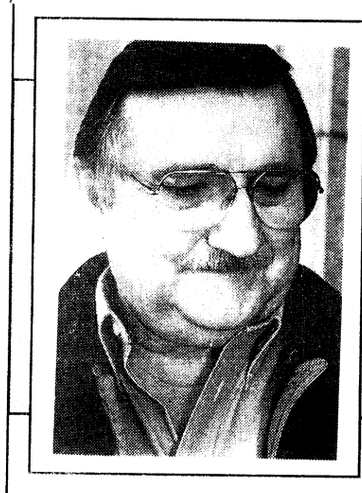
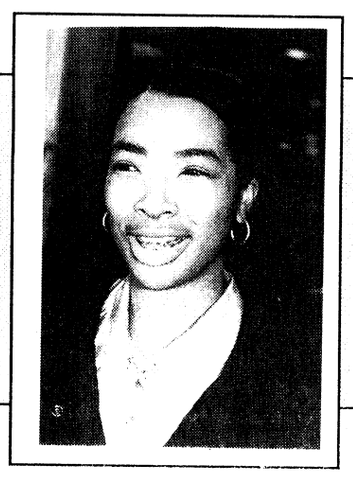
VARIOUS VOICES

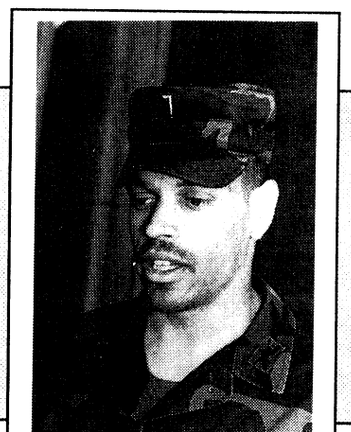


Is it important to vote? Why or why not?



Mary Tuggle, Allied Forces Liaison Office — "So many have fought just so we as women and African Americans could have the right. I feel everyone should be heard and what better way to do so than to vote.."

Claire Fuller, family member — "It's very important. This is our heritage, and we have to do this to preserve our freedom of choice. That's what makes our democracy so wonderful."



Andrew Britton, retired — "Sure it is. If you want to have a say in your government, you need to vote."

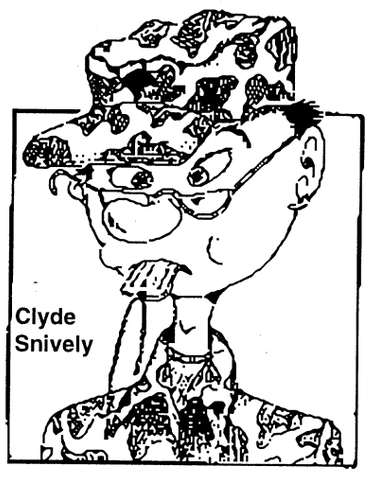
Nikki Hightower, family member — "I've never voted, but one vote can make a difference."

Spc. Elvin Rosa, 6th Ranger Training Battalion, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. — "Yes, because the government needs to know my opinion. If they don't know what we want, what will they do in the future.."

2nd Lt. Brandon Johnson, Company A, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment — "If you don't vote, you can't complain about what's right or wrong. You can say what you want in the near future for your kids.."

To suggest future topics or questions for Various Voices or to volunteer your opinion on upcoming questions, call 545-2201.

America's freedom is preserved by REGISTERED VOTERS



There will be a twist to this year's national elections.

People will have to qualify to vote.

All wannabe voters will have to pass not only a reading comprehension exam, but also a test on U.S. Government, to include a heavy dose on the Constitution. Individual states will require their state voters to know something about their state's constitution and history too.

Lawmakers passed this new law because they decided an uninformed electorate could not make good decisions about who should represent them in Congress or in the executive branch. Makes sense to me, but I'm sure some of you are rather irate and want to know how our government can pass such a law restricting our right to vote.

And of course, our government hasn't done that. Why should it?

Heck if we get a turnout of 60 percent of eligible voters, we think we've done well. But cast your eyes across the ocean and you'll see Europeans, Asians, Africans and others who take voting seriously and the number of voters easily passes 90 percent.

Maybe the numbers are high because they know how precious freedom is, many of them having lived under suppressive regimes.

But we Americans haven't been under the heal of dictators or monarchs for more than 200 years.

So we forget. Sure, we go off to fight in troubled lands, to preserve freedom for ourselves and others, but we don't know what it's like to be ruled by tyrants, so voting to most of us is not a big deal, in fact if it's at all an inconvenience — cold, rain, The Simpsons on TV, we skip it and let someone else do the voting — heck what's my one vote worth.

Obviously nothing if you don't cast it.

But wait until the year 1998, the next general election when in order to register, we have to earn at least $50,000 a year, have a college degree, and have parents who are registered to vote. Maybe then we'll want to vote. Sure, being perverse Americans that we are, just as soon as someone tells us we can't do something, or puts certain requirements on us we immediately want to do it. But by then it could be too late.

Can't happen, won't happen here. How can we be sure? The fewer people vote, the fewer people it takes to get some demagogue elected. They get together with others of their ilk, and before you know it, freedoms we take for granted today are no longer there.

So, if you're not registered, register. If you're registered, vote. And for those of you who live in other states, see your voting officer for assistance. We as soldiers defend this country 24 hours a day, we certainly have a vested interest in how it's run, so if anyone votes, you'd think it would be us. So let's do it.

And finally, confound the media, make a reasoned decision about who and what you're voting for.

Dial 545-BOSS is the commander's action line for soldiers, family members and civilians to call when they have problems or complaints that can't be resolved elsewhere.

While it is not a substitute for the chain of command or for agencies established to provide assistance, the line offers another means of communication between Fort Benning's community and commanders.

The Bayonet features some of the calls that may benefit other members of the Fort Benning community.

Call: Several calls were received regarding designated quarters. The callers felt students should not be allowed to move into designated quarters and then, when they become permanent party, are allowed to make a do-it-yourself move out of the quarters into other quarters on post.

One caller expressed frustration that people are allowed to move once they become promotable, such as a captain moving to quarters designated for majors.

Another caller was frustrated about not being offered company grade quarters due to the current Infantry Officer Advanced Course requirements. He felt that being permanent party entitled him to quarters being held for Advance Course students who are not assigned yet.

All the callers said once assigned quarters, occupants should be required to remain where they are until their time at Fort Benning is over.

Department of Public Works response:

The chief of Quarters Management Family Housing explained that in addition to IOAC requirements, there will be no significant permanent change of station movement of quarters until the peak season. Waiting times are subject to change and are affected by the backlog of quarters, repairs or renovations, number of soldiers on the waiting list coming out of leases and scheduled contractor painting. It can take six to eight months or more to receive housing.

There are quarters dedicated to IOAC students. The post commander desires that IOAC students have quarters dedicated to them. After graduation, IOAC students must vacate these quarters so that the units are available for the next incoming class.

Regarding personnel changing quarters, the number of IOAC graduates with follow-on assignments who become permanent party assigned to other Fort Benning units is usually minimal, approximately four to five per class.

Personnel who attain promotable status may be authorized to go on the appropriate waiting list for his or her promotable status. When authorized to relocate to different quarters, the move is at the resident's expense. If it is a do-it-yourself move, this actually reduces the cost to the government in lieu of a fully-funded move at government expense.

Call: The caller said she received notification that their garages will be torn down and no replacements will be built. She said the occupants will need a place to store the lawn equipment they are required to have to keep the lawns in shape. The caller feels the garages should not be torn down until the Army can ensure new ones will be built.

Department of Public Works response:

DPW explained that the garages were a safety hazard and must be removed. There is storage in the basements for some items and DPW will pursue exterior storage facilities.

However, the Georgia State Historic Preservation Office requirements make it improbable that the work will be done this year.

PROCLAMATION

In recognition of the numerous contributions of women to every aspect of our nation, March is designated as Women's History Month.

This year's theme is "See History in a New Way." To see history in a new way, we must uncover those hidden stories of women's contributions throughout our nation's history. Accounts of women's roles in American history and their contributions have been notably absent or minimized in portraits depicting them as secondary characters in supporting roles to men. It is now time to unveil the truth.

Women's strength can be illustrated by their tenacity against the obstacles they have encountered, the divergent perspective they bring to issues and their unique ability. These qualities have added to the richness of our nation and cannot continue to be overlooked. We must strive to ensure that future generations are inspired by the accomplishments of women.

I encourage maximum participation in the many events scheduled to celebrate Women's History Month.

CG speaks

The visit by the Army Community of Excellence Team last week was a huge success. Once again, you, the soldiers and civilians of Fort Benning, established the bench mark for all Army posts. This was not lost on the team members who made a most thorough evaluation of what we do, day in and day out.

I, too, was overwhelmed by your enthusiasm and the way you adapted to the new system under the Army Performance Improvement Criteria concept.

The areas of infantry training, infantry doctrine, infantry future, force projection and base operations came in for close scrutiny, but thanks to your team work and professionalism, you demonstrated that Fort Benning recognizes the need for constant improvement in order to move ahead.

You proved to them that there is no post like Fort Benning and no work force like Fort Benning's work force.

I congratulate each of you on your efforts. You put in 110 percent and it showed.

Thank you for being the world's best.

billeting and is currently housing students of various course on post.

"We will begin phasing the students out of Henry Hall in late May, early June," said Rose M. Lynn, assistant billeting officer, Fort Benning Billeting. "The students will be housed in other billeting facilities on post and by our current class-load projections, we will still have adequate space for all of our students while Henry Hall is used for the Olympics and the students occupying the other rooms."

There are more than 1,400 billeting rooms on post and of the 30 schools on Fort Benning, billeting has the responsibility of housing students for 29 schools — the Noncommissioned Officers Academy provides its own accommodations, Lynn said.

What's left to be done is the security fence that will surround the village and setting up the offices inside the building, said Lt. Col. Kelly Cook, garrison executive officer.

Inside the village there will be a 24-hour dining facility, administrative offices for each of the teams, medical offices, pastor offices, a post exchange and a bank that will provide currency exchange services.

"The games will be played in the mornings and evenings, and the athletes cannot eat large meals before their games so they will need 24-hour dining facility," Cook said.

Each team will have its own practice field downtown, so they have the option of practicing 24 hours a day, Cook said.

The Olympic village will open July 7 but several teams will be arriving early to get acclimated. The teams will be staying in various hotels in the area until the village officially opens, Cook said.

Customs, courtesies part of Olympic tradition

By Lisa M. Hibbert
Special to The Bayonet

Preparations for the Olympics involve more than just ensuring proper accommodations for the Olympians. It involves making sure the people who will come into contact with them know international etiquette is just as important.

The customs that Americans employ are not the customs used in other countries. For example:

Australia

Australians greet each other with a casual "Good Day" and a warm handshake. They eat with the fork in the left hand — the knife remains in the right; and, while English is the national language, many phrases are used that are uncommon to North Americans.

Japan

A bow is the traditional greeting between Japanese, however a handshake is more appropriate for foreign visitors. It is considered impolite to yawn or chew gum in public. The Japanese point with the entire hand and beckon with all fingers, palm down.

China

A polite nod or a slight bow is the proper greeting. Chinese refrain from loud boisterous speech or actions. They do not like being touched by people they do not know and the open hand rather than one finger is used to point.

Chinese Taipei (Taiwan)

Asking someone if they have eaten is a common Chinese greeting that stems from the tradition of never letting anyone go hungry. Guests recognize and greet the elderly first. Visitors should not admire an object too much as the host may feel obligated to present the object as a gift.

Puerto Rico

People usually shake hands when greeting and close friends embrace after a long absence. When eating, both hands should remain above the table, and it is inappropriate for adults to eat while walking in public. Beckoning is done by waving all fingers with the palm down.

The customs of the Canadians are similar to that of Americans.

All Olympic volunteers, as well as the post Military Police and billeting personnel will be attending special training classes provided by the Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games, said Marcus Alexander, personnel supervisor, ACOG.

Onsite offers job opportunities

By Mary Allen
Army Career and Alumni Program

Onsite Environmental Staffing continues to provide employment opportunities for soldiers getting out of the military through Fort Benning's Army Career and Alumni Program.

Onsite employs exiting soldiers, veterans and family members in the field of environmental remediation. A soldier can train at Fort Benning and then work in the area of his or her choice. Starting wages at Onsite range from $9 to $15 per hour depending on a soldier's skills. A benefit package is also offered to include a 401K plan and dental and health insurance.

Soldiers can use skills learned in the Army to earn a higher starting wage. Heavy equipment operators are in demand at Onsite, as are field technicians, soil and water samplers and people with commercial driver's license.

Onsite offers a 40-hour training course at a cost of $270 per person. A training course will be conducted from March 25 to 28 at the Main NCO Club.

Columbus Vietnam Veterans Memorial to be dedicated

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial, located on the corner of Buena Vista Road and Lawyers Lane, is scheduled to be unveiled at a dedication ceremony on Saturday at 2 p.m.

Lonnie Jackson, co-chairman of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park Committee, said the memorial was built to honor the soldiers from Columbus who died in Vietnam.

According to Jackson, there are 119 soldiers whose names will appear on the wall.

Jackson said 119 American flags will be flown around the memorial and that local Boy Scout Chris Fisher raised money to purchase the flags.

The dedication is open to the general public.

For more information, contact Lonnie Jackson at 687-5357.

AER campaign set

The Army Emergency Relief Fund Campaign kicked off March 1 and will continue through May 15.

AER, which was established Feb. 5, 1942, is a nonprofit organization dedicated solely to "Helping the Army Take Care of its Own."

AER offers loans and grants or a combination of the two to soldiers, family members, Reserve and National Guard soldiers on extended active duty, retirees, widows and orphans of soldiers who died on active duty or after retirement.

Women's History Month luncheon set

A Women's History Month luncheon will be March 28 at the Fort Benning Officers' Club at 11:30 a.m. Anyone interested in buying tickets should contact 1st Lt. April Olsen at 545-2212.

Delta Force team to conduct orientation

The Delta Force team will conduct general orientation briefings April 1 at 1 p.m. and April 2 through 4 twice daily at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. in Infantry Hall, Classroom 9.

The physical fitness qualification test will be administered on April 5 at 7 a.m. on Stewart-Watson Field. Following the test will be a 100-meter swim test at Briant Wells Swimming Pool. Uniform for all is battle dress uniform and combat boots. For information, call Carol Gilchrist at 545-1917 or 545-4702.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland areas will take place Monday through March 23. If weather permits, the following compartments will be affected: A-2, C-1, D-7, D-16, E-3, E-5, J-1, J-5, L-4, O-1, O-4, O-7, O-13, P-2, U-1, W-1, W-4, X-4, BB-3 and BB-5.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species' habitat and training areas. Personnel proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while travelling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Units using ranges and training areas are reminded to remove flammable debris, such as pinestraw, leaves, grass and trash from around structures in accordance with U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-4, Paragraph 5-22, Organizational Maintenance.

For more information, call Jack Greenlee, Natural Resources Management Branch, at 544-6206.

Top drill sergeant to be honored

A ceremony honoring Sgt. 1st Class Gregory J. Mance, Fort Benning's 1996 Drill Sergeant of the Year will take place April 12 at 3:30 p.m. in the Sand Hill Recreation Center.

Weapons to be fired

Heavy weapons will be fired from midnight until 4 a.m. through March 23. This will occur in the northeast section of Fort Benning and firing will occur at various times.

The weapons include Bradley main guns, rockets, mortars and aircraft with up to 500-pound bombs.

Hospital to require SSNs for patients

Martin Army Community Hospital's computer data base was updated during February.

The new version requires Social Security numbers for all patients to include children and infants for registration purposes.

While patients not possessing this data will not be refused care, some delay could occur if the Social Security numbers are not readily available.

Tax Office is open

The Fort Benning Tax Office is open for business. The office is located in Building 2640 at Soldiers' Plaza and will be open Monday to Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Electronic tax filing is available for most federal returns. The office has many federal and state tax forms available.

Unit tax advisers have also been appointed for units throughout the post. Persons having tax questions should see their unit tax adviser first.

For more information, call Capt. Scott L. Frost at 545-3281.

New traffic signs to be posted

In an effort to ease traffic flow and better serve the patrons of Fort Benning, several changes are being made to existing traffic control devices.

The Directorate of Public Safety and the Directorate of Public Works are working together to figure out the best way to move traffic around the installation, especially the Main Post area.

So far, the following changes have been made:

- "Stop" sign at Holtz and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Chesney and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Indianhead and Merchant changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" signs on Moye and 11th Airborne Division removed

A traffic study is currently under way at Edwards and Burr streets to evaluate the feasibility of changing this light to a two-way stop.

All drivers on Fort Benning should be made aware of and adhere to the posted traffic control devices.

ROTC scholarships are still available

The Columbus College Reserve Officers' Training Corps still has scholarships available for eligible soldiers. The application deadline is today.

For information on how to earn a college degree, a commission as a second lieutenant and have the Army pay for all of your college education, call Maj. Brian Luedtke, Capt. Sheila Denham or 2nd Lt. Angela Soto at 568-2058.

Registration rules set

The Chattahoochee County Tax Commissioner's Office will accept only cash and money orders as payment for 1996 motor vehicle registration.

The Tax Office will no longer accept personal checks as payment.

Soldiers who are stationed at Fort Benning but are not Georgia residents may avoid the payment of the ad valorem tax.

To avoid the tax, soldiers must obtain an ad valorem exemption form for each vehicle to be registered from the Fort Benning Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, Building 5, located on the corner of Vibbert and Sigerfoos avenues on Main Post.

The soldier must bring a leave and earnings statement from the past three months, proof of insurance, his or her military identification card and the previous year's paperwork. Call 545-3281.

Center changes hours

The Welcome Center is now open Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday 2 to 10 p.m.

Inprocessing will be from opening hours until 20 minutes prior to closing hours.

Outprocessing soldiers may report to the Welcome Center or call to make an appointment 10 days before departure from the installation. For more information, call 545-5404.

The U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Division is offering a $150 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person(s) responsible for removal of five gas powered leaf blowers; six gas powered weed eaters; three gas powered hedge trimmers; one gas powered lawn mower; one cordless drill; one circular saw; a 200-piece tool set and one wrench set from Building 1198. The items are valued at $3,848.90.

A $300 reward will be given for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person(s) responsible for a larceny that occurred between 5 p.m. Jan. 5 and 9:30 a.m. Jan. 8.

Someone entered building 2755A on post and removed three central processing units, two monitors and one computer printer.

Anyone with information concerning this incident can contact J. Taylor at 545-7950 or 545-7052 or the Military Police at 545-5222.

CID is seeking information concerning a person or persons who stole a vehicle between 6:45 a.m. Feb. 5 and 9:30 p.m. Feb. 6 from a parking lot adjacent to building 9073 on Kelley Hill. The Bronco was green with a white top and grey primer on the rear corner panel.

The assistance of the local community is being requested in an effort to identify and apprehend the perpetrator(s). The identity of anyone providing information will be strictly confidential. For information concerning this incident call Special Agent James Newsome at 545-7950 or the Military Police at 545-5222.

CID is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for an attempted robbery which occurred at the Harmony Church gas station Feb. 26 around 2 p.m.

Preliminary investigation revealed that a black male, wearing a knit cap pulled over his face and Army green insert gloves on his hands entered the gas station and attempted to rob the facility using an empty pop bottle as a weapon.

The assistance of the local community is being requested in an effort to identify and apprehend the perpetrator(s).

For information concerning this incident call Special Agent James Gressley at 545-7950 or the Military Police at 545-5222.

A $250 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the larceny of two lap top computers from the Directorate of Resource Management conference room, Building 75. The larceny occurred between 8 p.m. Feb. 28 and 7:30 a.m. Feb. 29.

This reward will expire Aug. 5

The assistance of the local community is being requested in an effort to identify and apprehend the perpetrator(s).

For information concerning this incident call Special Agent Richard McDowell at 545-7950 or the Military Police at 545-5222.

Security positions open for Olympics

Army Career and Alumni Program

Five thousand men and women are needed to serve as security officers during the Olympic Games in Atlanta this summer and applications will be available today from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Job Assistance Center.

Many positions are already open and may be filled on a part-time basis, including weekends and night shifts.

The peak requirements will be during the games July 15 to August 4.

To date, a recruiting team has visited Fort Benning twice and currently has more than 50 applications.

The applications will be available at Building 2634 in Soldiers' Plaza.

Benefits include hourly wages, a framed Olympic pin set, two "Look of the Games" Olympic uniforms, a certificate of training, the opportunity to earn free tickets, or a discount on a home alarm system.

SAFETY gram

Safety concerns

Recently, two Fort Benning soldiers were injured in a fire that destroyed their barracks room. One soldier received minor burns to his hands, and the other was treated for smoke inhalation. The fire is still under investigation, but improper use of smoking materials is suspected to have started the fire.

The soldiers are lucky to be alive. The smoke detector in their room was not working and the fire aroused one of the soldiers enabling their escape. One of the soldiers had disconnected the smoke alarm because it would go off when he smoked.

Smoke alarms are designed to alert people of a fire. Disabling smoke detectors may eliminate the only means of saving their life. Smoke from a fire usually will not awake a sleeping person.

Commanders and directors should ensure that building occupants:

- Check battery-powered smoke detectors by pushing the test button. If they are not working, change the battery.
- Change batteries when you change your clocks for daylight saving time (every six months).
- Check hard-wired smoke detectors by standing directly below the smoke detector and looking for a small flashing light. If they are not working, call 545-2135, Work Order Section, Directorate of Public Works, to have it repaired.

Taxpayers must claim household workers

Under new law, employers must file once a year for those they pay $1,000

By Charles Coiner
Social Security Administration

People who hire maids, baby sitters, handymen and other household workers are reminded that under a recent law, they are required to file a report of the wages paid and pay taxes due with their federal income tax return due by April 15.

The law has simplified reporting requirements to make it easier to report the wages on which many household worker's Social Security benefits will depend.

Under the new law, employers only have to file once a year instead of quarterly as in the past, and they only have to pay taxes for those household workers to whom they pay $1,000 or more during the year.

"Instead of filing a report each calendar quarter and paying tax on the earnings of workers who are paid $50 or more during the quarter, no tax will be due unless the earnings are at least $1,000 for the entire year," said Charles Coiner, manager of the Columbus district office.

"You'll need to report the earnings and pay the employer portion of Social Security taxes (7.65 percent)," he continued. "You also need to withhold the same amount of Social Security taxes from the household worker's earnings and send that amount to the Internal Revenue Service."

However, if the worker is under age 18, you do not have to report the wages unless household work is the worker's primary profession, he said. Under this rule, most baby sitters would be excluded.

If you have questions about the changes in reporting household employment and paying the Social Security taxes on household employment, call (800) 772-1213, he said.

Transition Assistance Classes

Army Career and Alumni Program

If you're getting out the military, the Army Career and Alumni Program is available to help you make the transition.

All service members getting out of or retiring from the military must process through the Army Career and Alumni Program's Transition Assistance Office, Building 2617, Soldiers' Plaza, before attending a Transition Assistance Program class in Infantry Hall.

The National Defense Authorization Act Fiscal 1991, Public Law 101-510 states that soldiers within 180 days of expiration term of service are required to attend a Transition Assistance Program class.

Classes are given in three-day blocks and are scheduled throughout the year.

Classes are in Classroom 30, Infantry Hall, from 7:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

For more information, call 545-7020 or 545-7009.

Date	Type of Class
Monday to Wednesday	ETS
March 25 to 27	ETS
April 1 to 3	ETS
April 8 to 10	retirement
April 15 to 17	ETS
April 22 to 24	ETS
April 29 to May 1	ETS
May 6 to 8	ETS
May 13 to 15	ETS
May 20 to 22	ETS
June 3 to 5	ETS
June 10 to 12	retirement

Classes are conducted in Classroom 30, Infantry Hall, from 7:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Benefit deadlines set for March, April

By Charles Coiner
Social Security Administration

People who want to stay on top of their Social Security coverage should mark their calendars for March and April.

These are the months when several important reporting deadlines take place for Social Security beneficiaries and workers, according to Charles Coiner, Social Security district manager in Columbus.

If you received Social Security benefits while working in 1995 and earned above the annual limit, you need to report your earnings to Social Security no later than April 15.

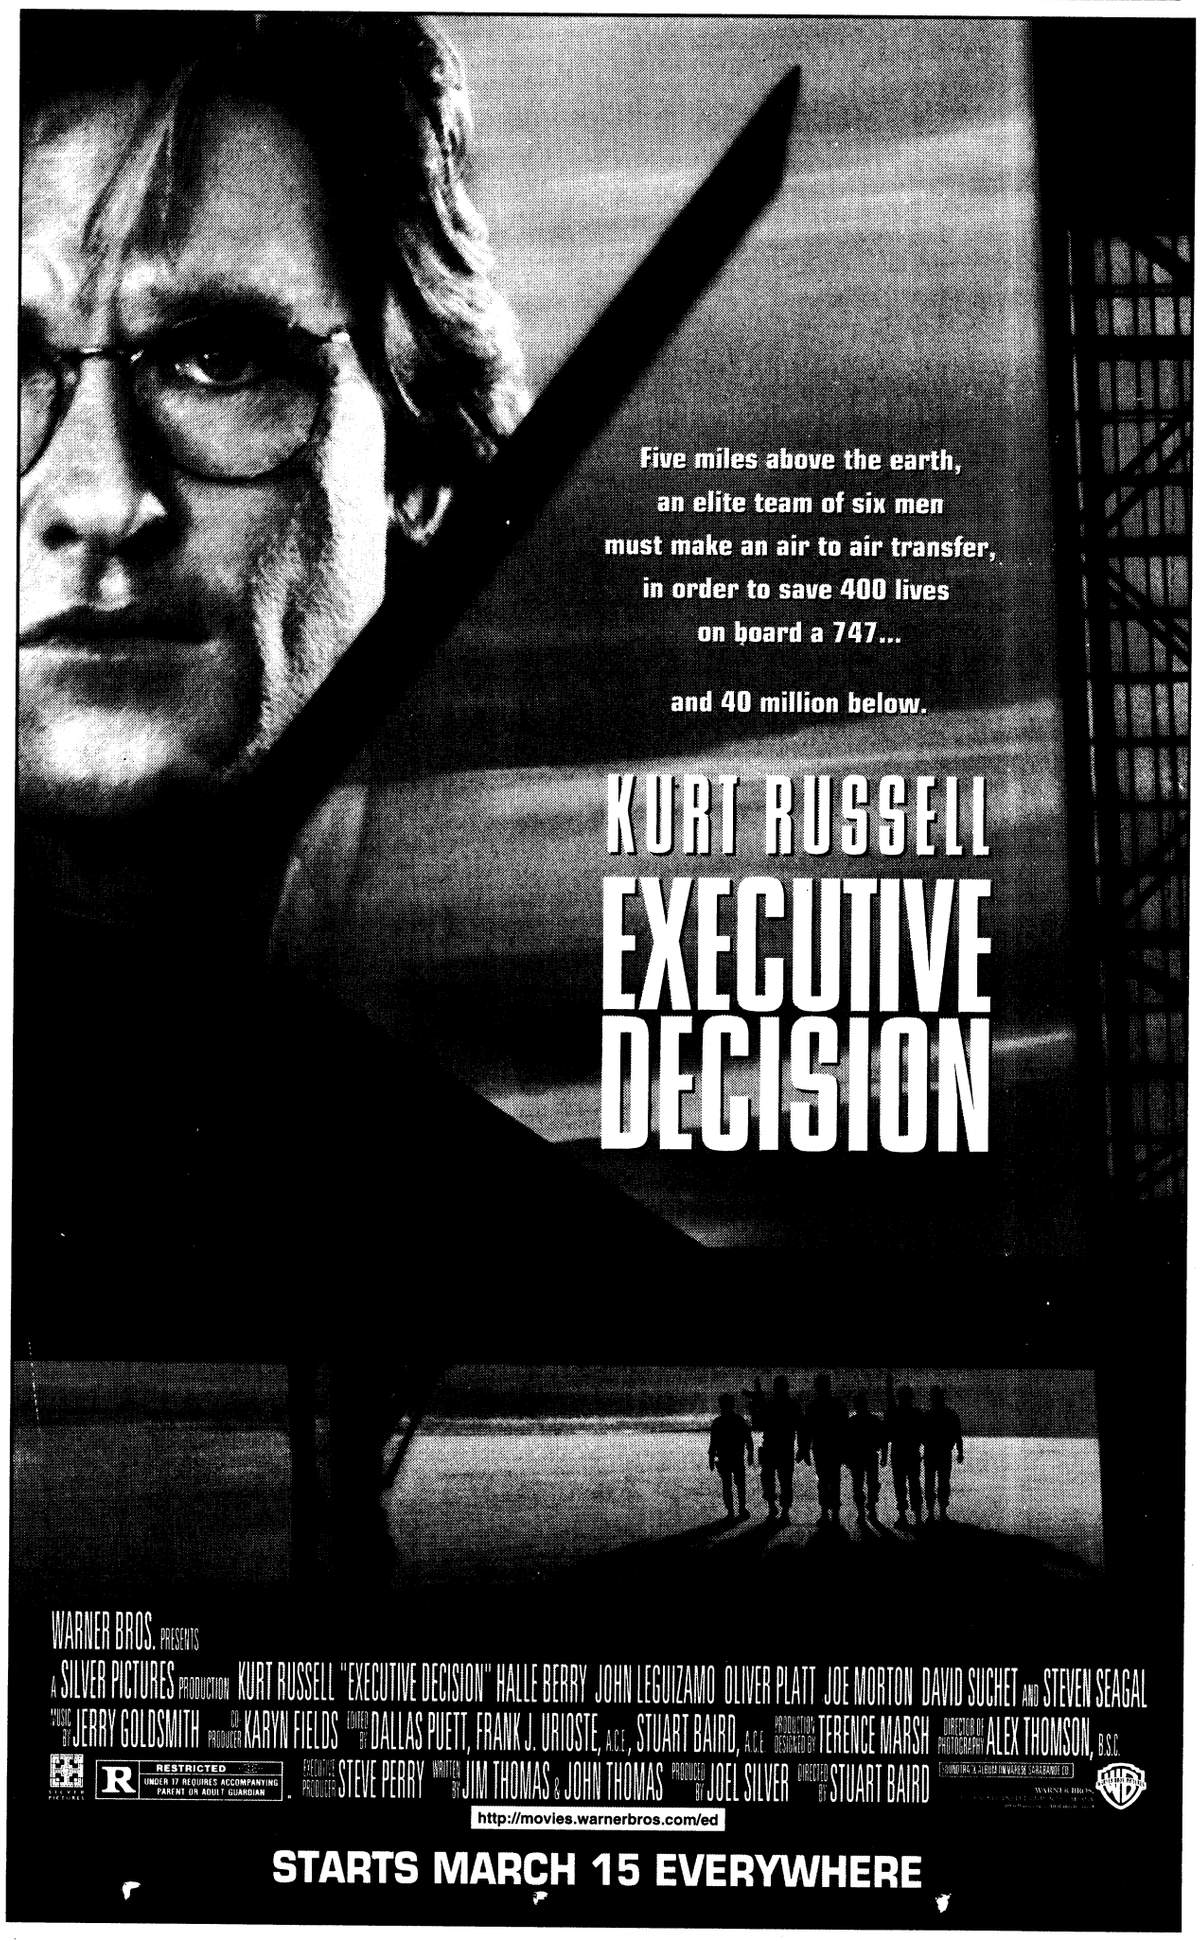
The 1995 limits were $8,160 for people under 65 and $11,280 for people ages 65 to 69. If you were age 70 for the entire year, the earnings limits do not apply to you.

If you are self-employed, it's time for you to report your earnings and pay Social Security tax with your income tax return by April 15. If you operate a trade, business or profession, either by yourself or as a partner, and have actual net earnings of $400 or more this year, you must report your earnings on Schedule SE.

If you are eligible for Part B of Medicare, you have until March 31 to sign up for Part B during the annual enrollment period. Part B, also called "medical insurance," helps pay for doctor's services, outpatient hospital care and other medical services.

If you did not enroll when you were first eligible, your Medicare Part B premium will be 10 percent higher than the basic monthly premium for each 12-month period you were eligible but not enrolled. The next open enrollment period will begin in January 1997.

If you employ others to work around the house you should remember that you should report their wages on your federal income tax return by April 15 if you paid them wages of at least $1,000 during the year.



Workers under age 18 are exempt unless household employment, including baby-sitting, is their main occupation. If you have questions about reporting household employment and paying the Social Security taxes, call the Internal Revenue Service at (800) 829-1040.

AIRBORNE!

Marine gets blackhat

By Shannon Day
Special to The Bayonet©

After months of training, all four Marines assigned to the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, have gotten their blackhats. They are now certified to instruct airborne students.

The first Marine began training in August 1995. The last Marine received certification March 1, according to Command Sgt. Maj. William B. Cox, 1st Bn. (Abn.), 507th Inf., 11th Inf. Regt.

He said that while they are all certified to instruct, two of them still need to attend the Jumpmaster School.

"The Marines have really added a second dimension to the Airborne School," he said. "They have come in, filled in and not missed a beat."

He said all the Marines will serve three-year tours here, just like any Army soldier, and they would like to keep rotating new Marines in as the current ones go to new duty stations.

Marine Sgt. 1st Class Jeff A. Snow, Company A, 1st Bn. (Abn.), 507th Inf., said he was glad to get certified.

"It was a big relief, " Snow said. "There was a lot of pressure to get certified. I like (instructing) a lot."

Marine Staff Sgt. Jim Jakes, Company B, 1st Bn. (Abn.), 507th Inf., said he was also relieved to get certified.

"It feels like a big weight has been lifted off my chest," Jakes said. He said that although he is teaching now, he is one of the two who still needs to go through Jumpmaster School.

He also said presenting a class on mass-exit of the 34-foot tower to Cox was the most challenging part during his certification process.

Although he has been in the Marine Corps for 11 years, Jakes said he has not had any trouble fitting in on an Army post because he grew up in Columbus and has been through many Army courses.

"I didn't know what to expect when I first got here," he said. "The only thing that is different is basically the uniform. I've met a lot of hard chargers in both the Army and the Marine Corps."

"Indicative of Marine Corps (noncommissioned officers), they are high-caliber professionals who, like their Army counterparts, are focused on mission accomplishment and taking care of their soldiers," said Lt. Col. Tom E. Sittnick, commander, 1st Bn. (Abn.), 507th Inf.

Maintenance award goes to 1st Bn, 29th Inf Regt

1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, received the Training and Doctrine Command's Maintenance Excellence Award for fiscal 1995 at the Army Communities of Excellence Breakfast March 5.

The unit began preparing for the competition in October 1994 by ensuring that its maintenance program incorporated the Department of the Army maintenance standard, said Chief Warrant Officer 3 David Baker, battalion maintenance technician.

"Throughout the year, the unit not only met, but surpassed the DA standards in records keeping and daily operations and by experiencing zero accidents."

Master Sgt. Michael Haugen, battalion motor sergeant and Sgt. 1st Class Curtis Hardy, administrative noncommissioned officer in charge, began compiling the unit's statistical data in June and submitted the unit's maintenance profile to Fort Benning headquarters in October 1995, Baker said.

In November, 1st Bn, 29th Inf. Regt., was selected as Fort Benning's maintenance award winner for the eighth consecutive year, and their maintenance profile was forwarded to the TRADOC level.

December brought notification of a first-place finish at the TRADOC level — for the sixth time.

The unit placed among the top three semi-finalists and received an on-site inspection Feb. 7 and 8.

"We only had 10 days (from the time the unit learned of the pending visit) to prepare our best showing," Baker said. "While we had maintained the standards throughout the year, there was a great deal of fine tuning that had to be done."

The battalion put forth a combined effort to prepare for the inspection, he said.

"Despite the battalion's heavy training commitments, we were able to put on an excellent showing," said Capt. Kenneth C. Kelley.

Upon their arrival at the 1st Bn, 29th Inf. Regt., the evaluators were given an in-briefing outlining the unit's structure, mission and maintenance operations. Every area of the battalion's maintenance program was evaluated and the soldiers received numerous commendable comments from the evaluators. Kelley said.

The unit is expecting to receive notification from the Department of the Army level of the competition in April.

If presented with the award, this will be the sixth win for the battalion.

Iowa students receive grad honors

Upper Iowa University

Upper Iowa University students who have completed degree requirements for the October and December 1995 graduations will be eligible to take part in the May 25 commencement exercise, where a record number of graduates are again expected to participate.

The first commencement of baccalaureate degrees at Upper Iowa University was an outdoor ceremony.

The tradition evolved into a processional march across campus with commencement held indoors in Dorman Memorial Gymnasium.

Candidates for graduation in October and December include students from the Fayette Campus, 11 campus centers and the external degree program.

Outstanding graduates include:

* Donald Madison Auburn, Ala.
Fitness Leadership and Management

* Miguel Sanchez Gaston, S. C.
Fitness Leadership and Management

* Mohamed Yasin Fort Benning, Ga.
Fitness Leadership and Management

* Denotes cum laude — Grade Point Average 3.3-3.59.

Volunteers drive youth sports program

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Amidst padded players attempting touchdowns on football fields or those going for layups on basketball courts, are the coaches and assistant coaches.

Without the more than 800 soldiers, civilians and family members who volunteer their time and skill to Fort Benning children year after year, the Youth Services Sports program would not exist, according to Linda Laine, program director.

"Without all those people, we don't have a program," Laine said.

Although any game is competitive and one team has to win and one must lose, to Laine and the coaches, winning is not everything.

"This is a recreational program," she said. "We try to put winning second and the athlete first."

Al F. Harvey, Jr., volunteer coach, agrees. "If you ever want a hand in shaping the future," he said, "there (youth sports) is no better place to be."

Although Youth Services conducts a 16-hour training block for new volunteers twice a year, coaches also receive training specific to the sport before each season begins.

With spring and fall soccer, winter and summer basketball, baseball, football and cheerleading offered, Laine said coach training is used to reiterate the philosophies and strategies of each sport. Discipline, teamwork, respect for other players and rules are all aspects of the game coaches need to be able to communicate to the participants.

Staff Sgt. Tony Coffee, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor, agrees. "To work with youth at that level," he said, "you're able to teach them the fundamentals of how to work together as a team."

> "If you ever want a hand in shaping the future, there's no better place to be."
> — Al F. Harvey, Jr
> Directorate of Threat and Security volunteer coach

Harvey, chief, Foreign Analysis Division, Directorate of Threat and Security, believes working with children in sports gives him the chance to make a real difference. "If you ever want a hand in shaping the future," he said, "there's no better place to be."

A strong commitment to children as well as to sports is a driving force behind many coaches. Laine said because they certainly are getting nothing else from their commitment, it is the coaches' desire to work with children that makes the program.

"If they don't have that desire," she said, "then I, and certainly the kids, don't need them."

The Youth Services sports program operates year-round. Individuals interested in volunteering can call 545-3070.

Custom car, motorcycle show set

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The 11th Infantry Regiment will host the third annual Rod Run Custom Car and Motorcycle Show in the east parking lot, Infantry Hall, Building 4, April 6 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The event, sponsored by the Noncommissioned Officer Association, will offer a little of everything for the avid car, truck and motorcycle enthusiast.

Twenty-two classes of vehicles will be judged in this year's competition with a people's choice award going to the best overall vehicle of the show. A car corral will also be set up for the owners desiring to sell their fully- or partially-restored vehicles.

Event coordinator, Sgt. 1st Class Jeffrey Porter, said the proceeds from the event will be used to support Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers, Fort Benning's chapter of Noncommissioned Officer Association and various other functions for soldiers on the installation.

Registration fee for the car show is $10 until April 5 and $12 on the day of the event. Registration fee for the car corral is $8.

Participants should have vehicles in their designated class areas no later than noon with judging for the event beginning at 1 p.m.

Registration forms may be obtained from the 11th Inf. Regt. Operations Office, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regiment, Operations Office, or NCOA located at 2029 South Lumpkin Road in Columbus.

Food and refreshments will be available and the kiddie jump tower will be open from 1 to 3 p.m.

For more information on the event, contact Sgt. 1st Class Jeffrey Porter, 11th Inf. Regt. at 545-5499.

Soldier uses first aid skills, quick thinking to Save a life

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

While dressing for work, a man hears a loud crash and the sounds of glass breaking and tires squealing outside his window. As he pulls up the shade on his window, he sees two badly damaged cars and a woman who is running around in hysterics.

Without a moment's hesitation, the man runs for his household first aid kit and lends immediate first aid to one of the victims.

Staff Sgt. Jonathon R. Flora treated an accident victim outside his home on Custer Road.

This is not a scene from a movie, or the story of some hero who is just a figment of someone's imagination. This is what happened the morning of March 8, when Staff Sgt. Jonathan R. Flora, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, witnessed a two-car accident behind his house on Custer Road.

"I heard the accident; and, when I looked out the window I saw this woman who was screaming and hollering," Flora said. "I immediately, almost instinctively, ran for my hallway closet where I keep a first aid kit, and I ran out the door. As I ran out the door I saw my neighbors standing around and I screamed, 'quick dial 911, Custer Road and Craig Drive." They were standing around in bewilderment, and I couldn't figure out why everyone was just standing and not doing anything."

Flora said as he made his way down to the accident, he found the driver to be in complete hysterics. After telling her to calm down he looked inside the car and saw large amounts of blood all over the dash board of the vehicle, and what appeared to be chunks of flesh on the ceiling and the front windshield.

"The whole side of the door had been completely caved in against the passenger's side," Flora said. "When I went around to the other side, I saw that she had a wound that looked like a Pit Bull had taken a huge chunk out of the side of her cheek."

The victim was identified as Luz Maria Dowling, 14, and the driver as Andrea Dowling, 17; both daughters of Lt. Col Jorge Dowling of Chile and guest instructor at School of the Americas.

Flora said he used the techniques he was taught in basic training, and the same techniques he taught when he was a drill sergeant to administer first aid to the injured woman.

"I was patting her on the head trying to calm her down," Flora said. "I was using a field dressing, just like the field dressings we used in basic training. I popped it out of the plastic; I made sure I didn't touch the white portion. There was one lady there, and she was the only bystander who was helping me apply pressure to the wound."

Flora said he continued to try and calm the victim down, especially when the people standing around the accident kept referring to how bad the wound on the woman's face was. After about five minutes, Flora said an emergency medical team arrived and took over the situation.

"To me, I felt good about myself," Flora said. "I felt like a good Samaritan. I just did what I would want someone else to do if that were my family involved in the accident."

"The training, I think, was instinctive," Flora continued, "(especially) after being a drill sergeant and teaching soldiers how to evaluate a casualty and treat for shock and keep the casualty calm. I just treated the wound like it was a wound on a dummy, like one of those plastic wounds you train on."

Later that day, Flora said he called The Medical Center to find out Dowling's condition. She received plastic surgery and was later released.

Currently, Flora's unit is making plans to reward him for his actions.

Think healthy, read food item labels

By Julie A. Del Rio
Martin Army Community Hospital

When grocery shopping, consumers may feel as if they're bombarded with food choices.

For example, which package of cheese has the least amount of fat? Which breakfast cereal has the most fiber or which canned fruit has the most vitamin C — peaches or pears?

Consumers can quickly and easily find answers to these questions and make informed food choices by reading the new food label and using the information called daily values and percent daily values.

Daily values are new and are based on current nutrition information. Daily values refer to the healthy amount of a nutrient to eat in one day.

Some daily values are based on the number of calories consumed. These include daily values for total fat, saturated fat, total carbohydrate and dietary fiber.

Other daily values, such as cholesterol, sodium, vitamins and minerals, are the same regardless of the number of calories consumed. Most food labels list the daily values for the typical 2,000 and 2,500 calorie diets; however, depending on individual needs, more or fewer calories may be needed.

The percentage of daily value shows how a serving of food fits a 2,000-calorie reference diet. That's a "user-friendly" number that allows consumers to easily adjust the percentage of daily values to their own diet and calorie intakes.

Consumers can quickly check the percentage of daily value to get a general idea if a food item contains a lot or a little of specific nutrients. A high percentage of daily value means the food contains a lot of a nutrient; a low percentage means it contains just a little.

Nutrition at a glance

What: Healthy Shopping Tours
When: Throughout March
Information: 544-1974

The percentage of daily value also allow consumers to quickly compare similar food products. For example, a package of macaroni and cheese may show the percentage of daily value for total fat as 20 percent. A similar product with low-fat cheese as an ingredient may have only five of the daily value for total fat.

In addition, consumers can use the percentage of daily value to see how foods fit into their overall daily eating plan and to see if their diet fits within current nutrition recommendations.

The goal is to choose foods that, together, provide close to 100 percent of each nutrient for a day.

Let's say a person eats 2,000 calories a day. If their total percentage of daily value for fiber in all the foods they eat in one day adds up to 100, their diet fits within the recommendations for fiber.

For nutrients that most people need to eat in moderation — total fat, saturated fat, cholesterol and sodium — try to set 100 percent as a top limit.

The percentage of daily value makes grocery shopping easier and allow consumers to choose foods that provide the balance of nutrients they need. So take another look at the column — it provides help for eating healthy.

Q: I got a surprise in the mail last week. A debt collector sent me a nasty, threatening letter. He is trying to collect $2,500 that he says I owe to a credit card company. I have never had dealings with that company and do not owe it anything.

This week I've been getting nasty phone calls from a guy that works for the debt collector. He calls at all hours of the day and night both at home and at my unit. He won't believe me when I tell him that he has the wrong person. How can I get this guy to stop harassing me? Is my credit life over?

A: You are in luck. The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act protects consumers from certain outrageous practices of debt collectors. You have the right, within 30 days of initial receipt of the notice of the debt, to demand, in writing, verification of the debt.

Once you dispute the debt in writing, the debt collector must stop collection activities until the requested information is provided to you.

Copies of contracts, promissory notes and other documentation will clearly show that either someone used your name and forged your signature or that the creditor and debt collector have the wrong person.

If your name is common, a clerical error may result in someone else's debt being listed under your name.

The act also limits the contact that a debt collector may have with an alleged debtor. Generally, a debt collector may not call you before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m. Furthermore, the debt collector should know that your employer prohibits you from receiving communications from debt collectors at work.

Therefore, the debt collector cannot call you at your place of employment. Another way to limit your exposure to the debt collector is to have an attorney represent you.

Once the debt collector knows or should know that you are represented by an attorney, the debt collector in most cases cannot have any further contact with you but must communicate directly with your lawyer.

The act has some teeth in it for debt collectors who violate its provisions. The act provides for the award of actual damages, court costs, attorney's fee and additional damages up to $1,000 if the court finds that the debt collector failed to comply with the provisions of the act.

I suggest that you call the Legal Assistance Office at 545-3281 or 545-3282 and make an appointment to speak with an attorney.

That attorney can dispute the debt in writing on your behalf and then request that all future communications regarding your case be directed to the attorney.

SOA students benefit from recent health risk appraisal

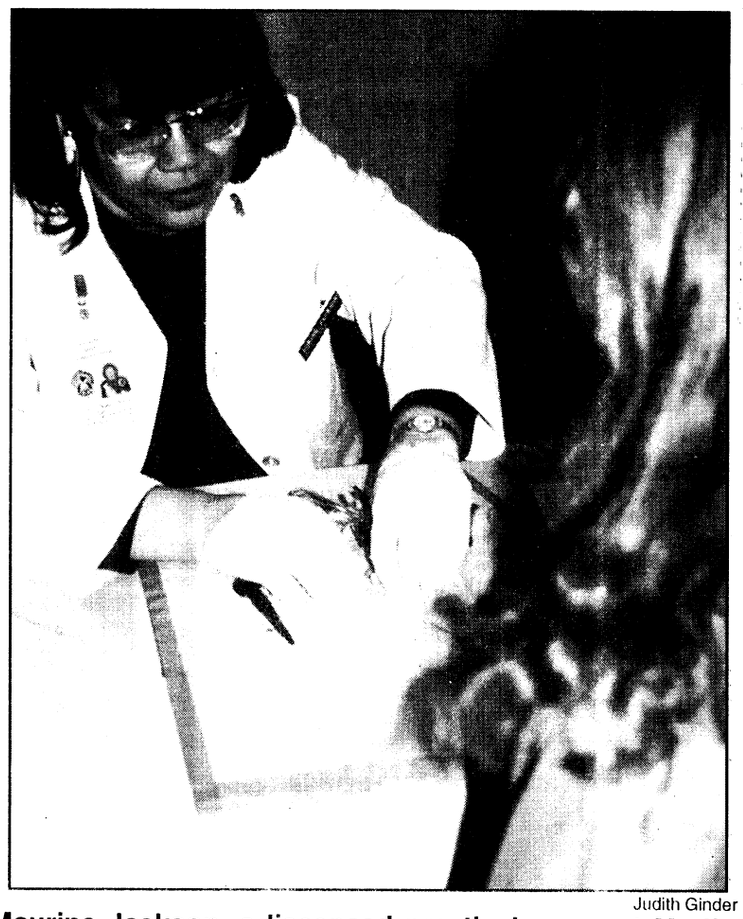
By Judith Ginder
School of the Americas

The School of the Americas and the Health Promotion Center at Martin Army Community Hospital conducted a Health Risk Appraisal, March 7 and 8 at Building 35.

SOA staff, students and guest instructors participated, as well as their family members.

During the screening, applicants filled out a questionnaire that gave the health-care specialists an idea of the person's lifestyle.

After filling out the information, participants had their blood pressure and cholesterol checked, and reviewed the information with a health care specialist. At that time, they sat down together and assessed the applicant's risk factors. The applicant was then referred to specific clinics, if needed.



On the second day of the Health Risk Appraisal, the Officers' Wives' Club at SOA and the Department of Joint and Combined Operations sponsored activities for the spouses of the Command and General Staff Course and the Department of Joint and Combined Operations.

In addition to the health screening, there were booths set up with crafts, facial products and travel literature from different places in the community for those who attended.

Representatives from the hospital and police department were also present at the event.

U.S. Marine Corps Maj. Mark A. Burger, a Command and General Staff Course director, said that it is very important to keep everyone in the unit, including family members, informed and up to date, especially with health-care prevention.

Burger, whose wife, Kim, played a role in getting the day organized for all of the spouses said that because of the language barrier for some of the family members at SOA, it is very important to make sure everyone is taken care of.

Seuss: Parents read books

Reading the books was a culmination of two weeks of learning about Dr. Theodore Seuss Geisel and reading his books," said Barbara Culwell, first-grade teacher.

"We're celebrating Dr. Seuss' birthday because a lot of the first-grade curriculum can be worked into Dr. Seuss books," she said. "Dr. Seuss used a lot of invented spelling, make-believe words, rhyming words and antonyms in his works."

After listening to a long and a short Dr. Seuss story, the children played a game activity that related to one of the stories. For example, the children played the game, Initial Consonant Bingo after listening to a reading of "The Lorax."

"It's a famous book," said first-grader Alan Ricks. "Dr. Seuss is a good illustrator because he writes a lot of books."

John Howard, another first-grader, quickly said, "I think wearing these hats to celebrate Dr. Seuss' birthday's a lot of fun, too!"

Culwell said she and Louise Frazier, also a first-grade teacher, try to get the children to put their thoughts on paper, through creative writing.

"Dr. Seuss did lots of creative writing," she said, "and teachers want the children to follow his excellent example."

Dr. Seuss was born March 2, 1904, and died in 1991 at the age of 87.

Culwell has been celebrating Seuss' birthday with first graders for the past three years by inviting parents to the school to read his books to their children.

"We've done this in the past and we'll do it again," said Frazier. "It's been a great success! We ate green eggs and ham yesterday" she said, referring to Seuss' famous "Green Eggs and Ham" book.

"We had excellent participation this year," Frazier said. "We only expected 16 parents, but 22 showed up."

Glenn Hughes, principal of Stowers Elementary, said the birthday celebration coincided with VIP or Very Involved Parent day. This day occurs two Fridays a month. It is a day when parents who are able come to the classroom and get involved in reading or performing hands-on activities and games with the children.

Sgt. 1st Class James Bodecker, parent, said it's good to spend time with the children no matter how short the time is.

"I think it's wonderful being here to read," said Veronica Simpson, parent. " I know my child is happy to see me here. I'm thrilled, especially to help the kids become aware of popular authors like Dr. Seuss. It encourages kids to know that reading is important!"

Most parents read their own child's favorite Dr. Seuss book. Marjorie Fitzwater, a parent who read "The Grinch Who Stole Christmas" said she didn't have a choice.

"My daughter volunteered her favorite book for me to read," she said.

As the "sharing party" was drawing to a close, the children showed their appreciation by saying, "Thank you, Mommies and Daddies, for reading to us!"

Some of the Dr. Seuss books that were read to honor him during the birthday hour included: "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," "Green Eggs and Ham," and "The Cat in the Hat."

Home-buying seminar set

Army Community Services

A two-part home-buying seminar will be Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Family Unit Network, Building 359.

The Consumer Affairs and Financial Assistance Program of Army Community Service will present the seminar.

The first night will focus on the terms used in the home buying process, considerations in the buy versus rent decision, calculating the costs associated with home ownership, determining how much house you need and how much house you can afford, who the players are in the home-buying process, and the consumer protection issues in the home-buying process.

The second night will feature Vicki Pimental, manager of the First Union Bank on Main Post. She will cover the various types of mortgages, costs included in the purchase transaction, the sales contract, dealing with the real estate agent, dealing with the financial institution and tricks to making the process work to your advantage.

Registration is required by calling 545-7517 or 545-4043 or by stopping by Army Community Service, Building 2643, in Soldiers' Plaza.

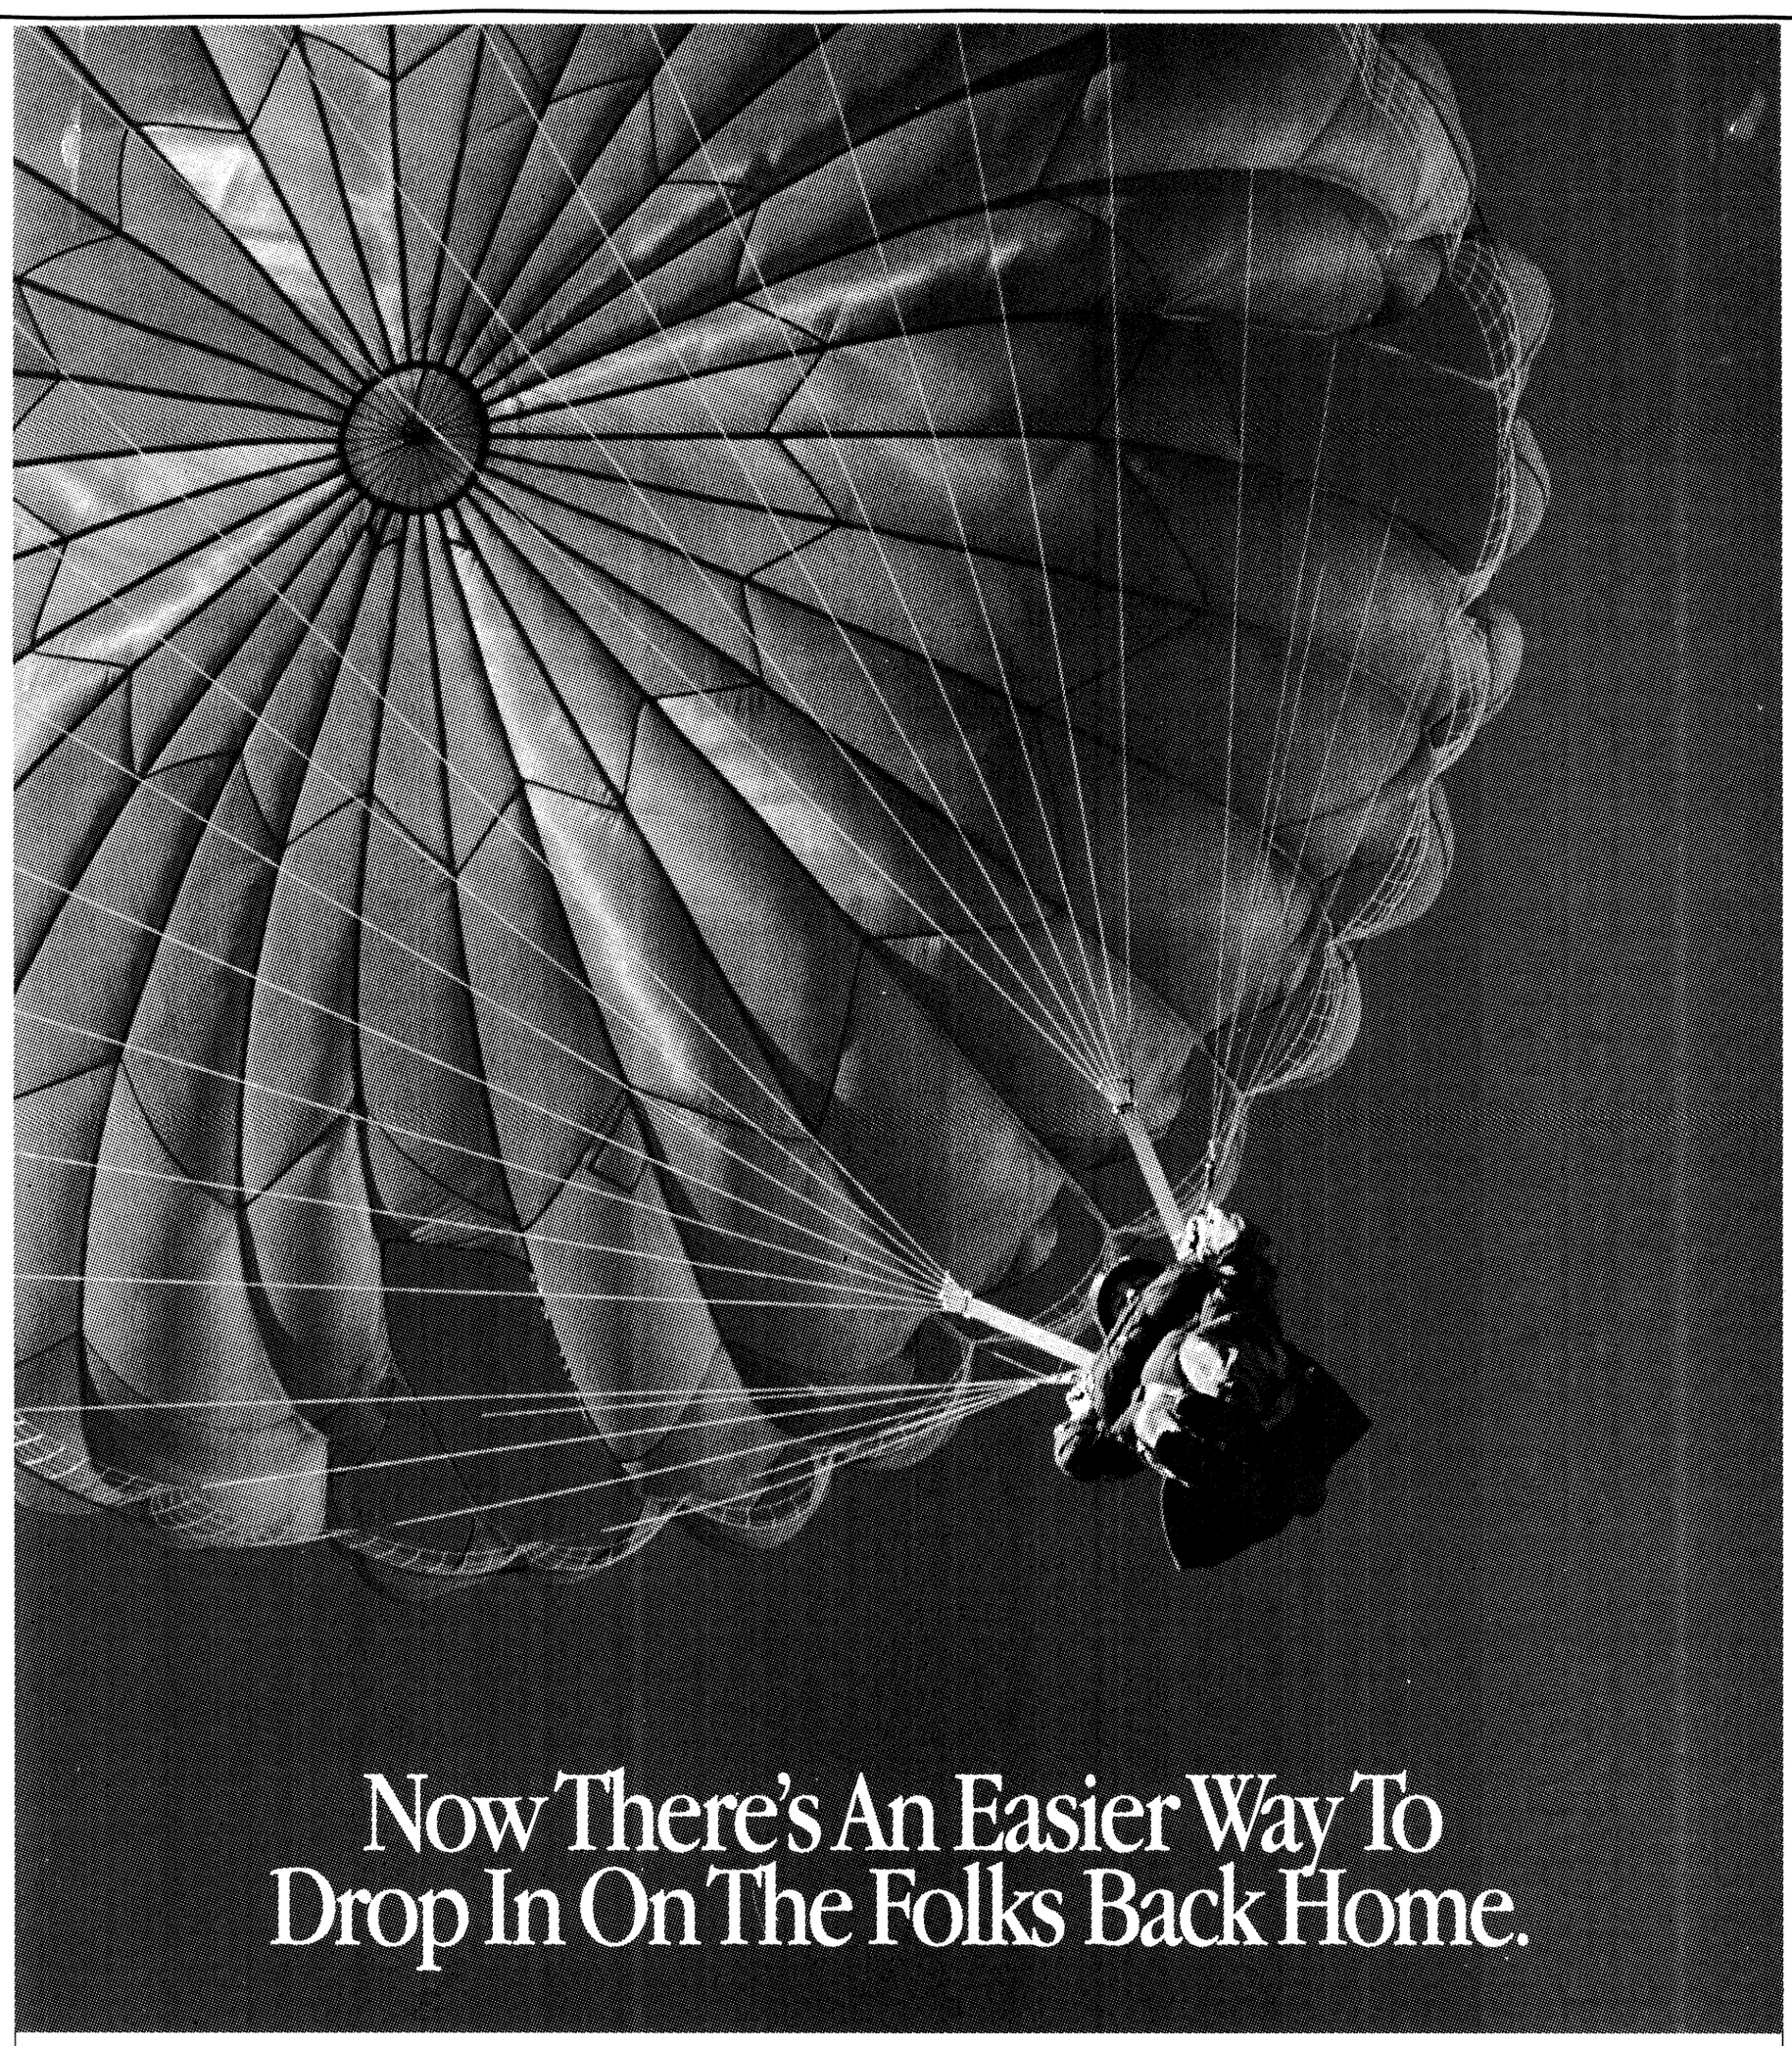
A minimum of 20 registrants is necessary for the seminar to be presented. The deadline for registration is today.

For more information, call Ann Pratcher at 545-7517.

Pine Mountain Forestry Day scheduled

Pine Mtn. Soil & Water Cons. Dist.

High school students interested in forestry-related careers can compete in the Pine Mountain Forestry Field Day March 26 at the Tri-County High School near Buena Vista.



To compete, students must identify native tree species, learn how to read and use a compass and estimate production.

Pole felling, pole climbing and bow-sawing competitions are included as recreational events.

"Last year, more than 250 high school students from middle and central Georgia participated. University of Georgia's School of Forest Resources students will assist with event set-up and answer questions about education options for forestry careers.

The event is hosted by the Pine Mountain Soil and Water Conservation District.

For more information, contact the Georgia Soil and Water Conservation Commission at (912) 430-4408.

Hope in God gives certainty to future

By Clarke L. McGriff
3rd. Bde., 24th Inf. Div. (Mech.)

How bright is your future? How high is your hope? What does this year hold for you? Can we do something to ensure success?

Some have made resolutions, while others have set goals. Just about everybody is hoping for a better tomorrow and good today. In spite of the multiple crises that are present in the world — budget stalemate, layoffs, crime, political corruption, deployments, and even war — many still maintain hope.

What is your hope based on? I Peter 3:15 (NIV) says, "But in your hearts set apart Christ as Lord. Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have..."

None of us is immune from the various dilemmas of living. Sickness, pain and disappointment come at some point to all of us. We are all subject to the highs and lows in life. Externally, everyone is in the same boat.

The difference lies not in the external, but the internal. How we are adorned inside is much more vital than our makeup on the outside. If our hope is based on the outside things: rank, money, position, health or appearance, then we must recognize that these things are subject to change at any time.

But if your hope is in Christ who abides in us and who never changes, then your hope is one that will endure.

There are numerous reasons to base your hope in Christ, but here are four to consider:

• With no strings attached, God loves you. No matter who you are, where you have come from, what you possess, or what you can or cannot do, God truly loves you. Age is not a factor and neither is race. God does not put you on a scale to check your weight. God's love for you is unconditional. That's a good place to put your hope.

• God does not change. The electorate cannot vote him in or out. A dip in the economy does not affect his power. We change. We change jobs, hair color, spouses and political parties. But, God does not change. As he was with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, so is he today — all powerful and almighty. That's a good place to put your hope.

• God died for you and me, to purchase our freedom. Sin had us bound as slaves and only through the shedding of Christ's perfect blood could the power of sin be broken.

Nothing else could repair the relationship between God and us except that his son, Jesus, would die. Even though Christ is the only son of God, still God allowed this death because of his great love for us. And so, he died so that we might be free from the death grip of sin. I believe that a God who would do that is a good place to put your hope.

reflections

• God succeeded — I'm free! "I once was lost in sin, but Jesus took me in..." Because Christ died and I have trusted him as my Savior and Lord, I am free from the ultimate consequence of death and separation from the presence of God. I no longer count on the outside things but my hope is on the inside thing, Jesus Christ. I am free in Christ, the only true place to put my hope.

How about you? What's the reason for your hope?

No one can succeed alone

By Richard Gary Moore
U. S. Army Infantry School

We have rushed through another year, only to remember those unkept promises we made to ourselves.

To keep life and success in perspective, let's go back to our high school English class and remember "Ozymandias," a poem written by Percy Bysshe Shelley. It's about the Egyptian King Rameses II, who ruled 3000 years ago and completed many majestic construction projects:

"I met a traveler from an antique land who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone Stand in the desert... Near them, on the sand, Half sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frown, And wrinkled lip, and sneer of cold command, Tell you that its sculptor well those passions read which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things, The hand that mocked them, and the heart that fed: And on the pedestal thee word appear: "My name is Ozymandias, king of kings: Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair! Nothing beside remains. Round the decay Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare The lone and level sands stretch far away."

How great thy glory O Ozymandias. But who remembers? Or who cares? When success pays us a visit — as we climb up the corporate ladder, or ascend the steps of government service pay increases or pin on higher rank in the Army — prideful king Ozymandias reminds us not to "breathe in." The "great king's" pride ruined his legacy. In our success-oriented society, coming in second seems to point out a character defect. Pride and vanity can bubble up and may discourage our fellow workers, our friendships and our families.

No one ever succeeds alone. Each of us can point to a pack of people who have helped us directly or who have influenced our lives by setting the stage for our personal successes. The one person who holds all things and people together is Jesus, our living Lord. The scripture says, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he will direct your paths."

Let's keep it simple in 1996, let's trust him every day. When we trust the Lord for the little things, those big successes will be times for "breathing out" gratefulness to the living God.

To register, call Phil Reilly at 545-5508.

Protestant lenten services — Continuing to April 3, lenten lunch programs will continue at the Infantry Center Chapel each Wednesday during Lent.

The program will begin with a devotional service in the chapel at 11:30 a.m. and will be followed by a lunch of soup and bread in the annex.

Volunteers are needed to prepare the soup and bread. Child care will be provided.

For more information, call the Infantry Center Chapel at 545-2931 or 545-2050.

Catholic Lenten services — Each Friday during Lent, a service of praying the Stations of the Cross will be conducted.

The services will be at the Main Post Catholic Chapel at 6:30 p.m. A soup and bread supper will immediately follow the service at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex at 7:15 p.m.

BOSS bible study — The Fort Benning Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers program is sponsoring a single soldiers' Bible and prayer fellowship for Christian single soldiers of all denominations.

The goals of this group will be to organize and plan a quarterly event, to meet once or twice a month for ministry and fellowship and to provide Christian single soldiers a better opportunity to join others in growth of Jesus Christ.

Contact Spc. Michael Will at 544-9269, your unit chaplain to join the group, or call 545-2813 for more information.

Musicians needed — Watch-care givers, pianists and choir directors are needed.

For more information, call Staff Sgt. Phyllis Swinson at 545-1934.

Praise and worship service — A nondenominational general Protestant service, including worship, praise, singing, prayer, teaching and preaching will be conducted every Sunday at the Infantry Center Chapel from 6 to 8 p.m.

Everyone is invited, including single, married, active duty, retired, families, friends, relatives, National Guard, Reserves, enlisted, non-commissioned officers and officers.

Refreshments will be served and fellowship will take place after the service in the chapel annex. Child care will be available.

Confirmation classes — Confirmation classes are conducted at 3:45 p.m. every Tuesday at the Religious Education Center, Building 2518.

Open to junior and high school students, these classes, also referred to as communicants classes, are considered preparation for joining the church or making a public profession of faith.

The classes will be general Protestant in faith. Upon completion, students will be referred to chaplains of their faith group for further instruction as requested.

Call 545-2359 for more information.

First communion classes — First communion classes are conducted at 7 p.m. Tuesdays in the Religious Education Center, Building 2521.

Children in second to sixth grade are eligible to attend, provided they attended Confraternity of Christian Doctrine or Catholic school last year.

BI-CITY STARS

Stars take Tornadoes in icy 32-14 victory

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

Brian R. Voller

The Bi-City Stars defensive line collapses around the full back from the Tallahassee Tornadoes Saturday at Garrett Stadium. The Stars defense held the Tornadoes offense to just 14 first half points and a shut out in the second half.

The Bi-City Stars improved their season record to 4-1 by defeating the Tallahassee Tornadoes 32-14 on a very cold Saturday at Garrett Stadium in Phenix City.

The Tornadoes made quick work of the Stars' defense and marched the ball down the field, scoring an early touchdown with 6:18 left in the first quarter. After converting on the extra point, the Tornadoes were on top 7-0.

The Stars' offense came to life soon after the Tornadoes touchdown by putting together a scoring drive of their own. After chewing up 60 yards of field, Stars' fullback Levell Renfro powered his way into the end zone on a four-yard rush. Place kicker Vernon Laree came onto the field and converted the extra point, tying the game at 7-7 with 14:56 left to play in the half.

But the Tornadoes answered quickly when they completed a 20-yard reception for a touchdown with 8:57 left to play in the half. The extra point put the Tornadoes back on top 14-7.

With 1:52 left in the half, McCarrie brought the game back to even odds when he connected with Tim Taylor for the first McCarrie-Taylor touchdown of the game. The 7- yard reception and the extra point tied the score at 14-14.

On the return drive, the Tornadoes were put in prime scoring position by two penalties committed by the Stars' defense. A late hit out of bounds and an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty put the Tornadoes on the Stars 20-yard line and prime position for scoring. But an interception in the end zone by corner back John Harris ended the half with the score tied at 14.

When the Stars came back onto the field to return the second half kick off, they seemed like a completely different team. McCarrie connected on the first play of their drive with Taylor for a big 60-yard gain that put the Stars' offense in prime position for the score, which they got when 6-foot-4-inch, 320-pound offensive lineman Eric Thomas smashed through the Tornadoes' defensive line for the touchdown. The Stars failed on the extra point conversion after a bad snap, but the touchdown put them in front of the Tornadoes for the first time 20-14, with 10:19 left in the third quarter.

The touchdown was all they needed to win the game but McCarrie and Taylor weren't ready to stop as they connected for two more touchdowns. The Stars finished the game with an easy second half win 32-14.

"We knew a little bit about the Tallahassee defense, so we wanted to come out here and run a passing offense," said offensive coordinator Mike Kelley. "We thought we'd be able to pass on them and it seemed to work out for us."

"They kept changing their defense during the first half of the ball game, so we had to make our changes. It was basically just a combination of taking what they were giving us and trying to do what works best."

McCarrie said the combination of a great second-half performance by the defense combined with the players settling down were the keys to the win.

"Our defense came together and really shut them down in the second half of the ball game," McCarrie said. "Also our offensive line really came out and gave me a lot of time to throw the ball, they really dominated the line.

"I think the real key was telling everyone to just calm down and keep their eye on the ball."

Not standing should end NBA career

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

Brian R. Voller believes Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf should be kicked out of the National Basketball Association

commentary

Recently Denver Nuggets guard Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf was indefinitely suspended without pay from the National Basketball Association for not standing for the national anthem.

Abdul-Rauf said he would not stand because the U.S. flag is "a symbol of oppression and of tyranny" and "this country has a long history of that."

First of all, if you don't like this country, there are hundreds of flights that leave the United States every single day. I would suggest that Abdul-Rauf consider using what money he has left from his NBA contract to purchase one of these tickets.

Second, the NBA has a very clear rule concerning the actions of its players during the U.S. and Canadian national anthems. It requires that players, coaches and trainers stand in a dignified posture during the playing of the national anthems.

Abdul-Rauf was more than likely informed of this rule, and he chose to break it. As it stands right now, Abdul-Rauf is being suspended until he decides to obey the rule and comply with standing during the national anthem. Abdul-Rauf has already said he will never stand for our flag, so I say the NBA just forgets that Abdul-Rauf every walked onto the basketball court. Even if he does someday change his mind, I feel Abdul-Rauf should get permanent walking papers.

Now, as far as freedom of speech and freedom of religion goes, Abdul-Rauf was made aware of the rules of the NBA. He consciously chose to disobey the rules, and he should be punished for breaking the rules. Besides, the NBA is not exactly a political arena. The people on the basketball court are there to play basketball, not to make sweeping political statements.

Finally, Abdul-Rauf said he doesn't like the United States and what it stands for. Despite this fact, I'm sure his beliefs didn't keep him from spending the huge salary the Denver Nuggets were shelling out to him. Odds are, Abdul-Rauf takes a lot of pleasure shelling out those bills that say, really big, across the top "The United States of America."

Abdul-Rauf wants to say that America is a bad place to be, Americans are bad people to be around and the NBA should not be bothered by him not standing during the national anthem. But what Abdul-Rauf is forgetting is that the NBA was formed in the United States, and it will remain in the United States; and, if Abdul-Rauf doesn't like it that way, I say "have fun finding another team in another country to play on!"

USAMU Action Shooting Team prepares for pistol tournament

By Marlene English
USAMU

TITUSVILLE, Fla. — The setting is tranquil, but the atmosphere is anything but that for members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit's Action Shooting Team participating in the Florida Invitational Pistol Tournament March 22 to 24.

Beneath the Spanish moss and sunny sky over Titusville Rod and Pistol Club, 350 of the nation's top action shooters gathered with one objective in mind — to emerge as the FIPT champion.

Among these shooters, Capts. Gregory Way and Harold Christy, Sgt. 1st Class Merle Edington and Sgt. Kenneth Surratt represent USAMU.

To say these shooters have their work cut out for them is an understatement, Ray Arrendondo, coach of the USAMU Action Shooting Team, said.

Arrendondo said what he means by "work" as he describes the course of fire the shooters undergo during the three-day match.

"The match course is broken down into nine stations," Arrendondo said.

The shooters, who are organized into 12- and 13-man squads, rotate through stations named after a particular theme — such as "Marine Madness" and "In the Trenches."

"Each station has its own peculiarity (or theme)," Arrendondo said.

As examples, the station entitled "Marine Madness" simulated the deck of a rolling ship while "In the Trenches" uses plywood walls with holes cut in them to simulate firing from an entrenched position.

Since shooters must move through these stations in a limited amount of time — all the while continuing to fire at targets — it's these peculiarities that require shooters to think and react quickly, Arrendondo said.

This is evident as Edington stands ready for his run through station number four — "Hats and Feathers." The timer sounds and within seconds he has glanced at a diagram of "friendly" and "hostile" targets — memorizing the diagram before he proceeds in engaging the "hostile" targets.

The course takes anywhere from 20 to 30 seconds for Edington to complete.

"It can be a lot of pressure if you allow it to be," said Edington, who was the 1995 International Practical Shooting Confederation's — Action Shooting's governing body — European champion.

But the pressure is something Edington, who has been shooting professionally since 1987, had learned to deal with.

"Over the years I have learned to develop a checklist for each station. I visualize everything ahead of time in my mind — what a perfect run would be like," Edington said. "The best thing for me is to just block everything else out and just go out there and do it."

Even though to a casual spectator it would seem Edington and his fellow USAMU marksmen are the best of the bunch, when all is said and done, the match champion will not be determined until all 350 shooters have completed all nine stations, Arrendondo said. It's then the combined ratio of targets hit in the least amount of time is totaled and the FIPT champion named.

Whatever the results, Arrendondo said, there's always going to be a match somewhere the USAMU marksmen are expected to shoot and win.

"That's just the nature of our business," Arrendondo said. "And shooting to win is the name of the game."

Soccer championship set for June 25

Columbus Youth Soccer Association

The City of Columbus and the Columbus Youth Soccer Association will conduct the 1996 Snickers and USYSA Region III Championship June 25 to 30.

Through the combined efforts of the Georgia Soccer Association, the Georgia Youth Soccer Association, the Columbus Youth Soccer Association, the Columbus Parks and Recreation Department and the Columbus Convention and Visitors Bureau, Columbus was selected after submitting a bid to regional representatives in Baton Rouge.

Fourteen teams from each of 12 southeastern state associations will send approximately 3,700 team participants to Columbus. The seven age groups range from 13 to 20 years old and each age group has both a male team and a female team.

With a projected economic impact of $10 million plus, CYSA and the city of Columbus look forward to having both Region III participants and soccer fans in Columbus in 1998.

22 fish were caught for a total weight of 33 pounds, 2 ounces

By Stephen W. Ward
Fort Benning BASS Club

The local chapter of Bass Anglers Sportsman Society of Fort Benning conducted tournament number two for the 1996 club fishing trail. The tournament was at Lake Martin, Ala., launching out of the public access ramp on the eastern shore.

This tournament fielded 10 anglers to do battle with the largemouth bass and spotted bass of Lake Martin.

Local sportsmen also had to compete against anglers in another tournament that day, the Redman Tournament Trail. The day started cool with water surface temperatures of 47 degrees.

As the day progressed, the weather warmed and the sun warmed the water to 57 degrees in some parts of the lake. The majority of lures used were some type of Carolina-rigged soft plastic and jigs with either pork trailers or soft plastic trailers.

The results of the day's contest are as follows:

First place: Larry Jones with a creel limit of seven fish weighing 7 pounds, 6 ounces.

Second place: Jack Pines with a weight of 4 pounds, 13 ounces.

Third Place: George Mendez with 4 pounds, 11 ounces.

Big Bass: Mark Myles with a 4-pound, 8-ounce largemouth caught on a black and blue jig with a black and blue Aircraw.

A total of 22 fish were weighed in and released in good health for a total of 33 pounds, 2 ounces.

For more information on the BASS Club of Fort Benning, call 569-5705 and ask for Steve. The club is opened for membership to all service members (active and retired), their family members and eligible Department of Defense civilians.

Officials discuss possible relocation of SHL

Southern Hockey League

Lou Corletto, commissioner of the Southern Hockey League, met with representatives of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce to officially discuss the possible relocation of the SHL offices from Charleston, S.C. to Columbus.

The SHL is the league in which the Columbus Cottonmouths will begin play in the Fall of 1996

On Wednesday morning, Corletto and Cottonmouths owner and President Charles Morrow met with several Chamber officers. The group discussed the continued growth of Columbus as a progressive sports market.

"Our conversations were mainly concerned with the growth of sports in this community," Corletto said. "I am very excited about those prospects. I am extremely happy with reception this league has received in Columbus. "

The meeting represented the initial discussions of SHL office relocation. Corletto said he expects to meet with Chamber officials again in late April and reach a decision by mid-May at the SHL League meeting in Lakeland, Fla.

Morrow, owner of the Cottonmouths and the Columbus RedStixx professional baseball team, said he felt the Chamber made Corletto feel welcome.

"It's (relocation to Columbus is) something Lou (Corletto) is interested in discussing further," Morrow said. "We talked about several things, including the possibility of forming a minor-league hall of fame and enhancing the Columbus Riverwalk to include an interactive hockey exhibit."

The fitness center offers a wide variety of fitness classes for everyone in your family; step and low impact aerobics, martial arts and a personal trainer.

For more information contact the Fitness Center at 687-0871 or 545-4162.

Pistol match — The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club will conduct a pistol match on English Range April 6 beginning at 10 a.m.

The match will be patterned after the Glock Sport Shooting Foundation Match that will be conducted May 4 and 5.

For more information contact Jim Graham at 689-3371.

Crappie tourney — Florence Marina State Park and Farmers Bank are sponsoring the annual Crappie Tournament Saturday at Florence Marina State Park.

Registration is 7 to 9 a.m. at the boat ramp. Weigh-ins will begin at 3 p.m. at the boat ramp.

For more information call (921) 838-4244.

Youth baseball — Youth Services will conduct baseball registration through March 29, Mondays to Fridays 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Building 1056.

Baseball is open to family member, ages 5 to 15 of active duty and retired military personnel as well as Department of Defense civilians.

Coaches will also be needed. For more information, call 545-3070.

Army marathon — The 21st running of the Mule Mountain Marathon and relays at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., has been designated as the site of the 1996 Army marathon, which will be conducted April 13.

Events included in the Army marathon include the 26.2-mile marathon, a six-man marathon relay, a 52.4-mile dual marathon, a 13.1-half marathon and walk wheelchair half and a two-mile fun run.

Entry forms must be postmarked by April 1.

For more information, contact the Sierra Vista Tourists Center at (520) 458-6940.

Slam and Jam — The March of Dimes presents the Pittsburgh Steelers' Brentson Buckner Slam and Jam, 3-on-3 basketball tournament March 23 and 24 beginning at 9 a.m. at the Comer Gymnasium.

The tournament will be a two-day single elimination tournament with each team being required to have three players plus a substitute player.

All participants must be pre-registered by March 20 by 5 p.m. The fee for entering is $40 for the 19-years-old and under teams and $60 for the 20-years-old and over teams.

All proceeds from the tournament will benefit the March of Dimes campaign for healthier babies.

Registration will be conducted at Neil's Sports Shop and Sports Fantasy in Peachtree Mall, at the March of Dimes, 3907 Macon Road, and at the Comer Recreation Center, 107 41st Street.

For more information, call the March of Dimes at 569-8302.

Track and field — A battalion-level track and field competition will be Wednesday and Thursday at Doughboy Stadium.

The competition is a preview of track and field athletes prior to Military Appreciation Week. The events offered during this competition and for the next competition April 17 and 18 will comprise the Military Appreciation Week competition.

Registration for each day's competition will be at 10 a.m. the day of the competition. All events will be conducted between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. each day.

Events being conducted include: 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,500 and 5,000 meter runs; the high jump; the shot put; the discus; and a variety of relays.

Battalion team awards will be provided to the three battalion accumulating the most points at the conclusion of the track meet. The points will be retained and the most total points accumulated by each battalion for the three meets will determine the 1997 track and field champions.

For more information, contact Christopher Winterman, event coordinator of the Sports Branch, at 544-1747.

104th Trans Co Supports Victory Focus

By Matthew D. Redding
104th Transportation Company

The 104th Transportation Company deployed to local training area BB3 Feb. 22 to support the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), in order to prepare for its upcoming National Training Center rotation.

The training, which was conducted through March 6, focused on honing the soldiers' ability to defend supply convoys, defend the unit area and provide transportation of supplies and materials in preparation for their rotation at Fort Irwin, Calif.

"As soldiers, it is important that we are able to defend ourselves from enemy attacks," said 2nd Lt. Ciecel Woode, platoon leader. "The mission of the 104th Transportation Company is to deliver critical supplies forward to units that require logistics support. This often means driving into a combat zone where the enemy may attack our convoys."

"It's good to train like this with our soldiers," said Sgt. 1st Class Tony Loper, platoon sergeant. "We all know it will be much more difficult at the National Training Center, but this allows soldiers to practice the systems that will allow us to succeed under tough conditions."

Soldiers from the company delivered all classes of supply to the brigade and worked on developing convoy tracking systems and conducting drivers training on new pieces of equipment.

"Driver training is critical to our mission," said Sgt. 1st Class Rickey Gethers, truck master. "Soldiers need to know how to load, unload and maintain their vehicles so we can perform our mission."

Soldiers from the company trained on and drove the newest transportation system called the "Palletized Local System" and commercial refrigerated vans.

In total, company soldiers drove more than 13,000 miles and moved 252 tons of supplies and equipment in training or support of the brigade.

"This has been my first field exercise, and I have learned a lot about our mission," said Pvt. 2 Karen Durham. "I feel much more prepared to drive and perform our mission in the field."

Soldiers from the 104th Transportation Company will deploy to Fort Irwin, Calif., in late April to support the training rotation. Soldiers from the 13th Corps Support Battalion and soldiers from Fort Stewart, Ga., will deploy to perform the same functions as they did to provide transportation, supply, and services to the soldiers of Kelley Hill.

"We can look forward to a successful training rotation," said 1st Sgt. Neslie Ethridge, vehicle operator. "The soldiers have to stay motivated and do the right thing."

Bayonet staff writer

Q. What do you do when you hear "To the Colors," while in uniform?

A. According to Department of the Army Pamphlet 360-501, one should stop the car, get out and face the direction of the music or flag and salute.

Q. What should you do while driving in a car in civilian clothes and you hear "To the Colors," being played?

A. Stop the car, get out and face the direction of the music or flag and stand to attention. If wearing a hat, take it off and hold your right hand over your heart.

Editor's note: Question provided by The Bayonet to help soldiers prepare for the board.

ISTD: Students learn US skills at Fort Benning

they're in, and for most, this is their first time in the U.S.

A special organization was put together to handle the international officers. It was officially organized in 1949 and it came under the director of Instruction at the U.S. Army Infantry School. Its mission was to give academic and administrative assistance to Allied students attending the courses and to conduct programs to help students get to know American military and civilian, social and home life and local business activities.

Sometimes people confuse the ISTD with the School of the Americas, Millet said.

"ISTD is not part of SOA," he said. "ISTD students go to American schools with American soldiers taught by U.S. instructors in English. The courses they attend at Fort Benning are part of the curriculum at the U.S. Army Infantry School. The foreign students here have the same academic requirements as the U.S. students attending the same courses. The international students are treated no differently."

Many of the international students appreciate the opportunity to attend school with American soldiers.

"It's been a great experience," said 1st Lt. Martin Smejkal from The Czech Republic (formerly Czechoslovakia). "I hope it'll open a door in my career. It helped improve my English and my views on U.S. military skills, tactics and orders."

Maj. Fazly Laphir from Sri Lanka, attending the IOAC course said, "I increased my military knowledge, especially about mechanized tactics. I learned a lot from the IOAC course, especially that the American Army should put more emphasis on low intensity operations, like counter-insurgency."

Millet said that even though students are administered an English language test before coming to the U.S., the biggest problem for most international students is English language comprehension.

"The international soldiers want to get to know Americans, what they're like, and their culture," Millet said. "And they want to understand our Army doctrine so they can go back home to train their army as instructors in their infantry school."

We try to encourage the international students to train the soldiers in their country's army on what they learned here when they return home," said Millet. "so they get our U.S. military manuals to take home with them."

"Since I've arrived in the U.S., I've learned more about your military system," said Smejkal. "Your commanders and leaders are really professionals and really prepared to fight anywhere in the world for any conflict."

"I've never known too much about enlisted soldiers as you do in the U.S. Army," Smejkal said. "The Czech Republic has a conscript army where everybody must join the army for one year."

"I've developed a really good opinion about noncommissioned officers," he said. "They're highly prepared and they have a lot of duties. My one wish would be to have at least one of them as an NCO in my company!"

"U.S. soldiers also go to other countries to study the Army doctrine of that country for six months or a year," Millet said. "But language is often the issue. Our soldiers have to be fluent in the language of the country."

Usually, they'll go to Great Britain or Australia to study at the country's Command and Staff College or to India to take the Infantry Tactics Course. These countries teach in the English language.

International students learn US training, doctrine

By Anna Oleska
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Soldiers in the International Student Training Detachment come to Fort Benning from countries around the world to attend the Infantry Officer Advanced Course or the Infantry Officer Basic Course.

Ten to 25 international students arrive every month and remain at Fort Benning from three weeks to nine months, depending on the number of courses they go through.

Some of these students also attend other courses, such as airborne, pathfinder, ranger, infantry mortar leader, long range surveillance leaders or jumpmaster courses.

"It's been a great honor to train along with U.S. officers in the Infantry Officer Advanced Course, which teaches us how to command units and emphasizes the leadership aspect of commanding," said Capt. Adrian T. Bulea from Romania.

He said he learned a lot about U.S. doctrine and tactics and gained experience and knowledge about the American way of fighting.

"I believe this course has been a great opportunity to develop better relations between Romanian and American officers," he said.

Although these soldiers can come from as many as 110 different countries, recently a greater percentage has been coming from the Eastern European countries, such as the Republic of Georgia, the Ukraine, Latvia, Poland, Albania, Romania and the Czech Republic, said Maj. M. David Millet, commander of the ISTD.

Russian officers will be coming this summer for the first time, Millet said.

Some countries such as Iran, Iraq and China aren't allowed to participate for political reasons or because of human rights violations, although in the 1960s, Iraq and Iran participated in the program.

"The soldier who is sent here is screened well and usually represents his country's best," Millet said. "Congress must approve who comes to U.S. military schools. Students are handpicked, and countries must be aligned with our philosophical ideas."

Millet said the real importance of the detachment is that the U.S. is allowing officers and noncommissioned officers from foreign countries to come into the U.S. to train in U.S. Army doctrine.

It helps during times of coalition warfare, where four or five countries work to achieve the same mission as in Desert Storm, Millet said.

"With all the international countries involved, if we have common doctrine, it makes life that much easier, " he said.

"If the U.S. has to fight with other countries, we don't have to start at zero," he said. " They have our manuals and our doctrine. They understand our system, tactics, and our equipment. Training in simple things like our graphics, equipment and doctrine at high levels is a benefit to our military. For example, the symbols we draw on a map are different from the symbols soldiers from other countries draw. If we have to fight together, they can understand our graphics if they've been trained in the U. S."

"Training in U.S. doctrine gives foreign countries the opportunity to be more self-reliant and not ask the U.S. for military troop assistance all the time," Millet continued.

"Although many countries spend a large amount of money to train and send their soldiers to U.S. Army schools, 80 percent of the international students who come here are funded by the U.S. as part of a foreign aid package," Millet said. "The U.S. does this so they can understand our military and our doctrine. "

"A little money invested now pays great dividends in the future in regards to money and soldiers lives," he said.

During the last five years, the U.S. has conducted joint operations involving coalition countries, he said.

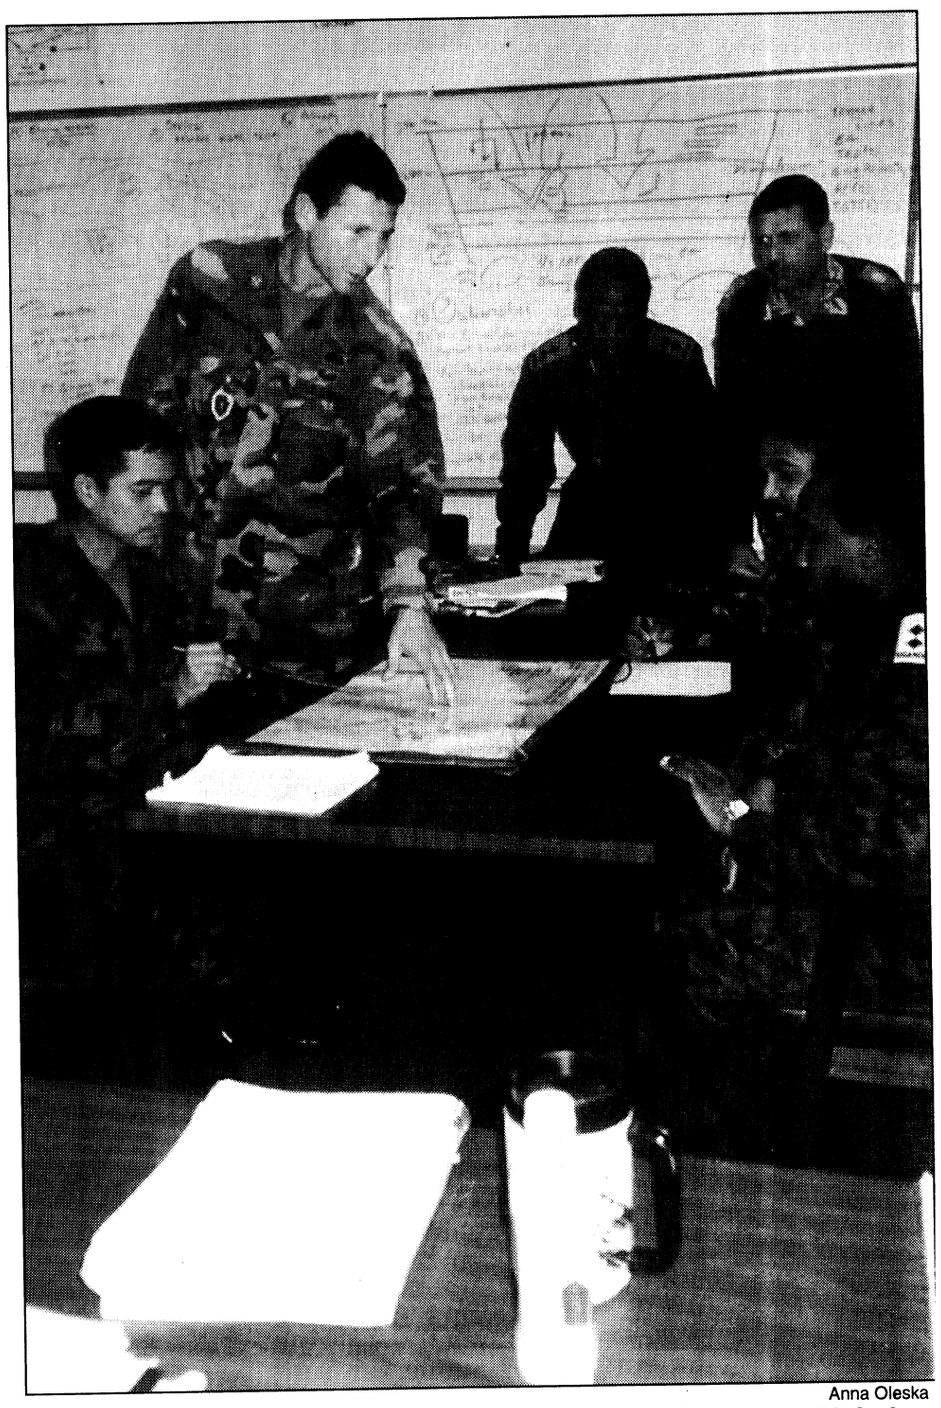
"Very few conflicts in the future will be fought just by U.S. forces," he said. "We'll need support from other countries, whether money, troops, or equipment."

Fifth largest in Army

The post's ISTD is the fifth largest international student program in the Army and coordinates training for as many as 280 students a year, Millet said.

All services nationwide have similar programs, Millet said. The Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard also have programs that prepare international students administratively for the schools they'll attend.

The ISTD performs support functions for students while they're attending the infantry school, Millet said.



"We have tactics and orientation classes for the newly arrived student, monitor a student's progress throughout the course and provide all administrative and logistical support," he said. "We also arrange trips, gatherings, military and civilian sponsors and welcome and farewell ceremonies for students so they can have the opportunity to see another side of American life."

The ISTD originally started in 1921 when officers from allied nations came to Fort Benning for infantry training. Training gave them an advantage in technology and education that they didn't have at home. Officers and their families were taken care of by volunteers in The Student Brigade, now the 11th Regiment.

In the U.S., the school system wasn't structured to handle international students.

These officers have special needs. The English language is their second or third language. They don't understand the culture

USNG, USAR seeks qualified soliders

Public Affairs Office

The Army Reserve is looking for qualified soldiers to serve three years active duty in the Active Guard or Reserve program. The program is one in which Reservists support the Army Reserve full time.

The Active Guard or Reserve program soldier carries a green identification card and receives all the benefits and advantages of being on active duty.

Those benefits include active duty pay, housing and subsistence allowances. Additional benefits include soldier and family health care, Servicemen's Group Life Insurance — up to $200,000 and 30 days paid leave per year.

An Active Guard or Reserve program soldier usually serves a minimum of a three-year tour in a Reserve unit location. Assignments include hometown units and overseas destinations.

The Full Time Support Management Center, an agency of the Office of the Chief, Army Reserve, manages the Active Guard or Reserve force. They are always looking for qualified applicants for the program.

Under the center's management, the Active Guard or Reserve program can be a career program, meaning once a soldier has served 20 qualifying years of active duty, he or she can retire with full Army retirement benefits.

The center is accepting applications for enlisted grades private first class through sergeant first class in all military occupational specialties and officers in the grades of second lieutenant through majors.

For more information or to request an application, interested applicants should call (800) 325-4118, and at the chimes, press 4.

Soldiers leaving active duty or in transition to the Reserve, and Army Reservists seeking a full-time career in the Army Reserve, are encouraged to apply.

The deadlines for submitting a completed application are April 15 and October 15. Accessions board convene in July 1996 and January 1997 to select new soldiers for the AGR program. Applicants will the be notified of their board results.

Latin American noncommissioned officers at the School of the Americas learn training, and LEADERSHIP SKILLS

Sgt. Segundo Puyen of Peru explains the task, conditions and standards of his station to one of the students.

As a soldier, good leadership skills are an asset to have in today's army.

Latin American noncommissioned officers are learning these valuable skills during a five-week Enlisted Training Management Course, taught at the U.S. Army School of the Americas.

"Setting a good example for our future noncommissioned officers is something that we as leaders should take pride in," said Staff Sgt. Edgardo Andino, primary course instructor. "Once a soldier becomes an NCO and begins to lead other soldiers, he intends to become a reflection of the leadership that was passed down to him."

According to Andino, SOA's course is very similar to the Primary Leadership Development Course that U.S. soldiers attend.

The purpose of this course is to prepare noncommissioned officers to plan, execute and evaluate as a leader, he said.

"If we can get the students to properly train and evaluate their soldiers, then it will better upgrade their respective agencies," said Staff Sgt. Carlos Rivera, Enlisted Training Management Course instructor.

"The ultimate goal is to send back highly trained NCOs and to have them upgrade their training process and enhance their leadership skills," Rivera said.

"I am learning how to be an instructor," said Sgt. Raul Romero, Colombian student. "I'm learning the basic skills of how to train other soldiers and to develop and implement proper training plans."

During the course, students covered such areas as planning, analyzing and conducting training plans; teaching a class; and common task testing. They also learned about the fundamentals of doctrine and training management, as well as human rights training.

Also, during the course, students apply what they've learned in the classroom to a series of practical exercises, as well as human rights training, as was done recently with a common task testing evaluation.

Students were given the task of setting up and running a standard CTT training site. The site included such tasks as map reading, identifying terrain features, first aid, radio communications and challenge and password.

During the evaluation, the students and instructors exchanged roles. As the students tested the instructors on common soldiering skills, they were being evaluated on their ability to teach as well as their knowledge of the tasks they were in charge of.

"Because of the training that I have received here at the School of the Americas," Romero said, "when I return to my country, I will not hesitate to encourage continuous participation in sending students to SOA."

Staff Sgt. Jose Rodriguez, SOA instructor, applies a splint to Staff Sgt. Sergio Ledesmas' arm, while Sgt. Segundo Puyen evaluates the task.

Volunteers to receive recognition

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning will soon recognize those who give their time, energy and talents selflessly to agencies and organizations.

During a volunteer recognition ceremony April 25, the post's top 20 volunteers will be presented awards by Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, post commanding general..

The ceremony will be from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Supper Club in the Fort Benning Officers' Club. Supervisors can obtain ceremony invitations for their organizations effective immediately.

According to Michelle Aldridge, volunteer resource coordinator, there are more than 1,000 individuals volunteering their time and talents and working alongside soldiers and civilians everyday.

Among those numbers, Aldridge said, "We're looking for those who've gone above and beyond (what is required)."

Aldridge said that although only those chosen as the top volunteers for 1995 can be individually awarded, she encourages all Fort Benning agencies and organizations to take the time to say thank you to volunteers.

"Since April 21 through 27 is National Volunteer Week," she said, "it would be a good time to recognize volunteers."

Supervisors who wish to nominate the top five volunteers within their organization to be selected as the installation's top 20 volunteers must do so by close of business today. Supervisors must submit nominations as follows:

- Complete the Volunteer Nomination Form (obtained from the Volunteer Resource Center)
- Complete the Department of the Army Form 1256, Incentive Award Nomination and Approval (cannot be photocopied)
- Submit both forms to the Volunteer Resource Center in the Family Unit Network Center, Building 359.

For information, call 545-5602.

Post plans activities for Women's History Month

USAIC Public Affairs Office

March is Women's History Month and post personnel have planned various activities to commemorate the month.

Activities are as follows:

- The U.S. Army Infantry Center Equal Opportunity Office will have a luncheon March 28 at 11:30 a.m. at Fort Benning Officers' Club.

Guest speaker will be Col. Jeanne M. Picariello, commandant of the U. S. Army Physical Fitness School.

Tickets are $6 and can be purchased from any Equal Opportunity adviser, unit or activity representative, or by calling 545-6665.

- An essay contest is being conducted for students in grades six and seven in Fort Benning schools. The theme this year is "Which woman in history do you admire most and why?"
- The Infantry Training Brigade is hosting a presentation at the Sand Hill Regimental Chapel on March 22 at 11:30 a.m., featuring guest speaker Kathy Anders, a professor at Columbus College. For more information, call 544-9125.
- Martin Army Community Hospital will conduct a luncheon March 28 from 10:55 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the hospital dining facility.

Guest speaker will be Julie Collins, a civilian aviator.

The female civilian who has worked the longest period of time at the hospital will be recognized.

- Drawings by the first- through fifth-graders from Stowers Elementary School of the most influential woman in their lives will be on display in classrooms, hallways and in the cafeteria during the month.
- Martin Army Community Hospital staff members will elect the female hospital staff member who most influenced their lives. Votes can be placed in ballot boxes throughout the hospital — outside the dining facility, in the pharmacy area and near the information desk. The winner will be announced March 28 during the hospital luncheon. For more information, call 544-3680.
- The U. S. Army Dental Activity is hosting a "tea" to celebrate Women's History Month March 29 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. at the National Infantry Museum.

Guest speaker is Lt. Col. Stephanie Willson, deputy staff judge advocate, who will speak in the museum's auditorium.

DENTAC will host a reception following Willson's speech in the Bond Gallery.

For more information, call 545-3198.

Easter Bunny to visit

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Easter Bunny will be leaving quite a few treats for children at Fort Benning for Easter.

The post's Easter Egg Hunt will be from 10 a.m. to noon April 6 at Riverside, home of Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix and his wife, Cheri.

Children of active duty, retired military and Department of Defense civilians, ages 18 months to 10 years old, can join in the hunt. The hunt will be conducted in age-appropriate groups: 18 months to 2 years; 3 to 4 years; 5 to 6 years; 7 to 8 years; 9 to 10 years old.

Clowns, games, the Moonwalk, train rides and hay rides will provide entertainment for hundreds of children in addition to the hunt.

Free soft drinks, cotton candy and balloons will be available. The Army Family Advocacy Program staff will also provide numerous give-away items for children.

Children are encouraged to bring a basket. Pets will not be allowed on the premises.

For more information, call 545-3070.

Defense orientation association members tour sites

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Members of the Defense Orientation Conference Association visited Fort Benning Monday and Tuesday as part of a continuing program to voice concerns of the Department of Defense and Department of Sate as interpreted by each member of the DOCA.

Members of the DOCA were taken on a two-day tour of Fort Benning. During their tour, members got to see such sights as the Infantry Museum, a live-fire exercise performed by the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, and a tour of the Infantry Training Brigade at Sand Hill.

DOCA was founded March 30, 1952, by participants in the Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences. DOCA is a nonpolitical, nonpartisan and nonprofit association directed toward the interest of national defense without special advocacy of any particular military service or defense concept.

The objectives of DOCA are to provide a means of continuing the education of its members in matters pertaining to national security under the direct jurisdiction and supervision of the Department of Defense. Enabling members to pass on such information to others and to provide a permanent medium for cooperation between its members and DoD.

DOCA membership is obtained by one of two methods. The first method is to be selected by the secretary of Defense for participation in a Joint Civilian Orientation Conference. Following such participation, admittance to DOCA is by invitation. The second method is for a present member of DOCA who is in good standing to nominate a candidate. Such nominees must be approved for membership by the DOCA selection board and subsequently attend a DOCA field trip or other trip arranged by the DoD.

DOCA has no direct or indirect affiliation with business, political or religious groups or organizations. Members seek no special favors, political advantages or material gains through DOCA.

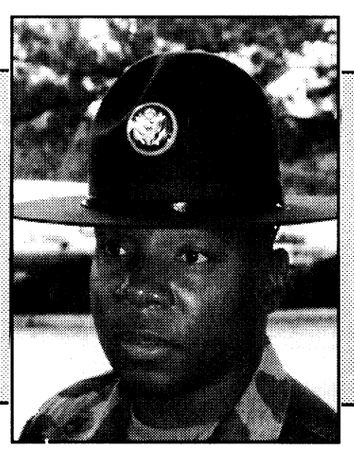
VARIOUS VOICES

Fort Benning is celebrating Women's History Month. What woman do you most admire?

Staff Sgt. Anthony Augustine, Bradley Instructor Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment — "Mariah Carey, entertainer — she sang a love song that I really liked."

Sgt. Maj. Charles DeJarnett, U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit — "My wife — she's put up with the Army for 23 years through Desert Storm and many moves."



Spc. Eyndiyah Whitehead, Company B, 324 Forward Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) — "My mother — she raised five children on her own, and we all turned out well."

Dorothy James, Army and Air Force Exchange Service employee — "Maya Angelou, writer and professor — I think she's a great inspiration to women. She gives good advice in her books because she's been there and has experienced things herself."

Ennis Walter, family member — "Elizabeth Dole, Red Cross — I have worked with her in the Red Cross, and I think she's a good role model and a well-qualified person."

Staff Sgt. Michael Jones, Company C, 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, Infantry Training Brigade — "My grandmother — I think she's someone special and has been a positive role model for me."

Women posed as men in order to serve in the AMERICAN REVOLUTION

By Linda Lee
American Forces Information Service

American women have served in war throughout the years, from nursing in the Civil War to clerical jobs in World War I. They could also be found at the battlefront in France in World War I as telephone operators.

commentary

Women weren't meant to be a permanent part of the military services. Following the armistice Nov. 11, 1918, the gradual phase out of women in the military began. By the end of 1919, all women were transferred to inactive status, then discharged.

Times changed. World War II came along with war fronts in Europe and the Pacific. To free men for combat duty, the services allowed women to enlist, to wear the uniform. There were the WAACs for Women's Army Auxiliary Corps soon to be WACs after "auxiliary" was dropped; Coast Guard SPARS (from the service's motto, "semper paratus'); Navy Emergency Service and WMs for Women Marines. The WASPs for Women's Air Service Pilots were civilians who flew for the U.S. government under civil service rules.

Women served on all fronts in traditional areas such as clerical supply and medical jobs. They also served in nontraditional jobs, driving vehicles, rigging parachutes, ferrying airplanes and doing intelligence work. They spent times as prisoners of war; they were killed in bombings; they did their jobs. These women, almost 265,000 of them set the stage for women to get the chance to make the military a career.

The personnel strength of women following World War II dropped to just over 14,000. In 1948, the first permanent step for women in the military was taken with the passage of the Women's Armed Services Integration Act. Women were now a permanent part of the military. Soon after the law went into effect, the services enlisted and commissioned women into their ranks.

Though the law gave women the opportunity to join the military, it limited their numbers to just 2 percent of the total military strength. It capped promotions for women officers to lieutenant colonel or commander. In 1967, a public law repealed the 2 percent ceiling, allowed promotions to flag rank, opened up more job opportunities and equalized promotions and retirement for women.

Women in the Coast Guard faced a different set of problems following World War II. When the United States is at war, the Coast Guard comes under Navy control as part of the Defense Department. In peacetime, however, it belongs to the Department of Transportation.

Congress terminated legislation in 1947 that allowed women to serve in the Coast Guard. Two years later, it adopted measures reauthorizing a Coast Guard Women's Reserve. Women joined the regular Coast Guard in 1973, when their separate reserve dissolved.

During the Korean and Vietnam wars, women primarily served as nurses on the battlefield. In the 1983 rescue mission of Americans from the Caribbean island of Grenada, military women served in aerial supply operations, security and various other combat support missions.

More than 30,000 U.S. military women served in key positions in the persian Gulf area during operation Desert Storm in 1990 and 1991. They flew and crewed helicopters and planes, directed artillery, handled security and prisoner of war facilities and served in medical units. Two women were captured by the Iraqis, and some were killed in action.

Today, women make up about 11 percent of the Department of Defense's active force and 7 percent of the Coast Guard. Currently, 52 percent of Army skills are open to women; Marine Corps, 20 percent; Navy, 59 percent; Air Force, 97 percent; and Coast Guard, 100 percent.

Lifesaver recounts traffic accident

Editor's note: The writer is taking exception to an article that was published in last week's edition of The Bayonet. The story was based on a call from a person in the soldier's chain of command, and the writer feels the story gives the appearance that the soldier was the only one who rendered assistance.

In reference to the article published in the March 15 edition of The Bayonet about the soldier who helped save a life, there were quite a few things I disagreed with in that article. Here is the situation as I remember it. I was the first person on the scene.

I was sitting in my car waiting to make a left turn into the Custer Terrace housing area where my 3-year-old catches a bus to Headstart when all of a sudden a white car swerved around the right side of my car. The driver had lost control of the car, crossed over the line and slammed into a brown van. The driver of the car was crying and car to see what I could do.

The driver of the car, a young lady, had a head wound. The only thing I could think of to use as a bandage was the T-shirt I was wearing so I took it off, wadded it up and placed it on the wound applying direct pressure. After a while, someone handed me another shirt.

While I was doing this, the owner of the van, Sgt. 1st Class George W. Gallegos came over to the car and assisted with the victim's wound, trying to calm her. Her sister, who was also in the accident, helped to calm down the victim who did not speak English.

Yes, Staff Sgt. Jonathan Flora was there and attempted to wrap a bandage around the victim's head however, the bandage didn't stay in place. I remember him getting a phone for the driver to inform her family of the accident. While the emergency medical technicians stabilized the casualty in order to remove her from the car, I tried to comfort her sister (the driver of the car). Gallegos and I were the last ones to leave the accident scene. After we finished our sworn statements to the Military Police, I got some of the blood off my arms and hands.

I just want it to be clear that it was a joint effort; and, thanks to our military training, we were able to react quickly and effectively. I am a veteran of 13 years prior service, and I believe that your integrity as a noncommissioned officer or civilian is your most valuable attribute.

Pitbulls are friendly animals

We wish to comment on the article about the soldier who used first aid skills to save a life, which ran in the March 15 issue of The Bayonet.
on a vehicle accident, Staff Sgt. Jonathan R. Flora made the following statement:

"Her wounds looked like a pitbull took a huge chunk out of the side of her cheek."

My questions are as follows:

- How can you compare a pitbull bite to a vehicle accident?
- Why was the type of dog a pitbull and not another breed?
- If Staff Sgt. Jonathan R. Flora is an authority on pitbull bites, which of the following pitbull breeds did this wound represent?
  a. Stafford pitbull
  b. American pitbull
  c. English pitbull
  d. Bull terrier

It is common sense that anything with teeth can bite — this includes humans!

As an owner of a Stafford pitbull, this statement has upset me and other owners of pitbulls.

Pitbulls are fun, loving animals. The the way your animal acts depends on how you raise it!

Obviously, this man is uneducated about pitbulls. Until he gets educated and has seen a pitbull bite, he should not make accusations of that nature.

People need to get educated about pitbulls and see what wonderful pets they really are!

— Sgt. Dale E. and Lisa Detar
Company B, 324th Forward Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 24th ID (Mechanized)

Police calls waste soldiers' time

I have noticed that each year there is an article about Fort Benning's police call. I have not seen one this year so I wrote this letter not to complain, but to appeal to people who are part of the Fort Benning community and shed a little light on the "nuts and bolts" of the thing called "police call."

Early each morning, five of my soldiers hit the road to conduct approximately two hours in the morning picking up fast food containers, beer cans, clothing items and other things people discard with no regard, no environmental concern or awareness whatsoever.

These soldiers, who are here to defend the United States, clean up after the people they are supposed to be defending. They also waste valuable training time doing so. I am not saying that police calls are not necessary — I think they are and always will be until each member of society is willing to do his or her part, but I am not so naive to think this will ever happen.

After the morning police call, the soldiers come back to the battalion, eat lunch and are sent out for another two hours of police call in the afternoon to clean up after people who are in too much a hurry to properly discard their trash.

This is how they spend the majority of their days and most of their time until there is an outbreak of war and they are needed to defend the nation (during which time they will "cram" the training in that they missed while out on police calls).

Now let's talk about money — the communities' money, the taxpayers' money because isn't that what it really boils down to? A soldier is a soldier 24 hours a day. The soldiers I send out on police call are usually specialists. Based on the specialists' base pay and his or her 24 hours on call status, each soldier will earn $1.75 per hour. Multiply the $1.75 by four hours a day of police call and you will get $7.

Take the $7 and multiply that by five soldiers and the total is $35. Police call is conducted seven days a week, so $35 multiplied by seven is $245. The $245 is the cost of manpower only per week. Add in the $11.80 for fuel per week and the total is $256.80 per week.

Multiply this figure by the police call on post. Usually at least one company per brigade is on "Red Cycle" at any given time, so for quick figuring let us assume that $256.80 (we'll use $250) multiplied five times is approximately $1,250 of taxpayers' and community members' money is spent per week on police call.

It is my sincere hope that community members do not realize the cost factors or the security factors involved in "police call."

Again, I am not naive enough to think that police calls will ever go away, but I am optimistic enough to hope that I might have enlightened a few community members.

Vets unveil Vietnam memorial

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet

Amidst the overcast skies and threatening weather, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial was unveiled in Columbus Saturday.

A crowd of more than 200 gathered for the dedication and unveiling ceremony to honor the 119 men who gave their lives in the defense of their country.

The ceremony began with the singing of the national anthem by Faye Strong of Columbus and with the Pledge of Allegiance led by Eagle Scout Candidate Chris Fisher.

Guest speaker Retired Capt. Willie Pitts Jr., Georgia's most decorated Vietnam veteran, said that the soldiers who fought in Vietnam fought bravely and the "119 names on the wall attest to that."

Pitts said he saw the sacrifices the soldiers made in Vietnam and that the 119 soldiers on the wall had made the ultimate sacrifice.

Pitts is currently the Commander of the Department of of Georgia American Legion and served five tours in Vietnam. Pitts said he came up through the ranks from private to command sergeant major and received a battlefield commission to captain.

The centerpiece of the wall portrays three soldiers with an American flag in the background and was designed by Russell County High School student Larry Phelps. One hundred nineteen bricks surround the centerpiece with the names of soldiers who enlisted in Columbus and died in Vietnam.

Lonnie Jackson, co-founder of the memorial, said the memorial would not have been possible if it were not for the support for the city government and the people who contributed from the monument.

The memorial park, where the monument is located, is surrounded by 119 American flags donated by Hardaway sophomore Chris Fisher.

Fisher, a member of Chattahoochee Council Georgia-Alabama Scout Troup No. 205 and Eagle Scout candidate, raised the money to purchase the flags through bake sales and donations from various organizations.

The memorial park is located on the corner of Buena Vista Road and Lawyers Lane and is open to the general public.

Future plans for the park involve clearing some of the surrounding land for more parking and installing picnic tables.

VA planning expansion of 5 cemeteries

The Department of Veterans Affairs

The Department of Veterans Affairs is planning to expand five national cemeteries in New York, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas.

The transfer of 12.1 acres of land to the Biloxi National Cemetery from the adjacent VA medical center will allow VA to keep the cemetery fully open until the year 2015. Without the additional acreage, the cemetery would have reached its capacity for new gravesites by 2004.

VA has accepted a 14.5-acre donation from the State of South Carolina to add to the Florence National Cemetery, expanding its capacity by 7,200 gravesites.

Recently signed legislation approved the transfer of land from the Department of Defense to VA's National Cemetery System for continued service at national cemeteries in Calverton, N.Y., Fort Bliss, Texas, and Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, Texas.

The Department of the Navy is transferring 150 acres east of the existing Calverton National Cemetery to expand VA's largest cemetery and provide the space necessary for full service to continue beyond the year 2030.

The Department of the Army is transferring 53 acres to the Fort Sam Houston cemetery to provide 30,000 new gravesites and full service until the year 2010. Fort Sam Houston is VA's seventh busiest cemetery.

The Army also is transferring 22 acres to VA to expand the Fort Bliss cemetery, providing 15,400 new gravesites on land west of the existing cemetery. This addition to VA's 19th busiest cemetery will extend its capacity to 2020.

Coast Guard Auxiliary helps rangers

U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary

During recent night parachute operations training, soldiers from the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, received on-the-water safety support from the local Coast Guard Auxiliary.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary, a volunteer auxiliary of the United States Coast Guard, provided two patrol boats to support parachute drops onto Lawson Army Airfield on three different nights.

According to J.R. Addington, division captain of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, the mission was coordinated as result of a request from Maj. Eddie Daly, executive officer, 3rd Bn., 75th Ranger Regt.

Operational requirements, such as the number of boats required, on-station times and locations were coordinated by the battalion operations shop. Two patrol boats with crews were required for each parachute drop mission. The patrol boats met and picked up the battalion water rescue teams at Engineer Landing behind the airfield at 5:30 p.m.

After an operational briefing by the ranger team leader on patrol locations, drop times and rescue procedures to be followed in the event of a parachutist landing in the river, each boat moved to its designated patrol location and prepared for the drop.

After arriving at the designated patrol areas (one down river near the release point and one up river in case of late exits), boat coxswains determined water depth, current flow, wind direction and speed and any hazards in the water.

These are important to safe operations, Addington said, and even more so because the drops are conducted under blackout conditions.

About 10 minutes before the arrival of the aircraft over the drop zone, boat crews and rescue teams also went under blackout conditions. Ranger teams used night vision devices for control and observation. On all three missions, all jumpers landed on the designated drop zone.

On two of the night missions, one the boats and crews came from Dothan, Ala. Crew members were John Davis, coxswain, and Tom Patterson. The other boat and crew were from Columbus.

For the third mission, both boats and crews were from Columbus, and Don Wilbourn was coxswain on one. On the second boat, Addington was coxswain and Maggie Addington was the crew member.

One of the Coast Guard Auxiliary's missions is to provide operational support to the U.S. Coast Guard. Auxiliary patrol boats or "facilities" as the auxiliary calls them, are member-owned.

To be classified as a "Coast Guard facility," the auxiliary member offers his or her boat to the Coast Guard for use to meet Coast Guard missions.

The auxiliary member provides all the necessary equipment required to be designated a facility, receives a Coast Guard facility decal and agrees to display patrol boards and flags. This includes radios, depth finders, a compass and other required search and rescue or safety equipment.

Facility operators and crew members must meet U.S. Coast Guard coxswain and crew training qualification requirements like any other Coast Guard boat crew.

Missions such as the ones to support the rangers are classified as official Coast Guard operational support missions.

AER campaign set

The Army Emergency Relief Fund Campaign kicked off March 1 and will continue through May 15.

AER, which was established Feb. 5, 1942, is a nonprofit organization dedicated solely to "Helping the Army Take Care of its Own."

AER offers loans and grants or a combination of the two to soldiers, family members, Reserve and National Guard soldiers on extended active duty, retirees, widows and orphans of soldiers who died on active duty or after retirement.

Post drug program changes name

The Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program or ADAPCP and community counseling center has been changed to Substance Abuse Rehabilitation Department.

The office is still located in the same area, Building 324, behind the Infantry Museum. For more information, call 545-6167 or 545-2742

Delta Force team to conduct orientation

The Delta Force team will conduct general orientation briefings April 1 at 1 p.m. and April 2 through 4 twice daily at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. in Infantry Hall, classroom 9.

The physical fitness qualification test will be administered April 5 at 7 a.m. on Stewart-Watson Field. Following the test will be a 100-meter swim test at Briant Wells Swimming Pool. Uniform for all is battle dress uniform and combat boots. For information, call Carol Gilchrist at 545-1917 or 545-4702.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland areas will take place Monday through March 30. If weather permits, the following compartments will be affected: A-2, A-6, A-9, A-14, A-19, B-3, B-5, D-10, D-12, D-16, E-3, E-5, F-2, G-4, I-2, I-4, J-5, K-6, K-17, K-22, L-4, M-1, O-1, O-4, O-7, O-13, Q-5, and U-1.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species' habitat and training areas. Personnel proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while travelling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Units using ranges and training areas are reminded to remove flammable debris, such as pinestraw, leaves, grass and trash from around structures in accordance with U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-4, Paragraph 5-22, Organizational Maintenance.

For more information, call Jack Greenlee, Natural Resources Management Branch, at 544-6206.

Top drill sergeant to be honored

A ceremony honoring Sgt. 1st Class Gregory J. Mance, Fort Benning's 1996 Drill Sergeant of the Year will be April 12 at 3:30 p.m. in the Sand Hill Recreation Center.

Retreat ceremony set

The Commanding General's Monthly Retreat Ceremony will be April 4 at 4 p.m. on York Field in front of Infantry Hall. All are welcome and encouraged to attend.

For more information, call Capt. Brian Pigg at 545-3816 or 545-1132.

Tax Office is open

The Fort Benning Tax Office is open for business. The office is located in Building 2640 at Soldiers' Plaza and will be open Monday to Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Electronic tax filing is available for most federal returns. The office has many federal and state tax forms available.

Unit tax advisers have also been appointed for units throughout the post. Persons having tax questions should see their unit tax adviser first.

For more information, call Capt. Scott L. Frost at 545-3281.

Center changes hours

The Welcome Center is now open Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday 2 to 10 p.m.

Inprocessing will be from opening hours until 20 minutes prior to closing hours.

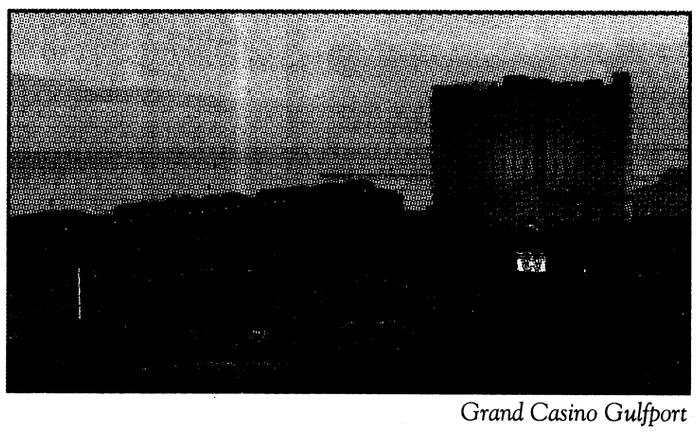
Outprocessing soldiers may report to the Welcome Center or call to make an appointment 10 days before departure from the installation. For more information, call 545-5404.

New traffic signs to be posted

In an effort to ease traffic flow and better serve the patrons of Fort Benning, several changes are being made to existing traffic control devices.

The Directorate of Public Safety and the Directorate of Public Works are working together to figure out the best way to move traffic around the installation, especially the Main Post area.

So far, the following changes have been made:



- "Stop" sign at Holtz and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Chesney and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Indianhead and Merchant changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" signs on Moye and 11th Airborne Division removed

A traffic study is currently under way at Edwards and Burr streets to evaluate the feasibility of changing this light to a two-way stop.

All drivers on Fort Benning should be made aware of and adhere to the posted traffic control devices.

Students receive awards at Spencer

By Anna O'Leska
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Ninth- and tenth-graders participating in the Honors Plus Program at Spencer High School received certificates of recognition March 13 for maintaining an A average the first semester of the 1995-96 school year.

The ninth- and 10th-grade students who received the awards excelled in any one of four core areas or in all of them — math, English, science, and social studies. Nineteen of these students were Fort Benning family members.

Students gathered in the auditorium in a ceremony recognizing them as the elite of Spencer High School's freshmen and sophomore student body.

Individually, as names were called, each student walked up to his or her teacher to receive a certificate upon which was written the subject(s) the student excelled in during the semester.

The Honors Plus Program is a four-year accelerated program designed for students who excel in math and English to complete three years of math and English in two years.

The junior year is free for advanced classes and the senior year for advanced placement classes for which they can receive college credit. Currently, 120 students are in the program.

They also take additional advanced classes in biology, world geography, economics, business and free enterprise, citizenship and history, said Delbert L. Pratt, assistant principal.

The third and fourth years, students take advanced English as well as advanced trigonometry and algebra, calculus, and foreign language, he said.

"I am a ninth-grade math teacher," said Barbara Reese, coordinator of the Honors Plus Program. "Next year in the 10th grade, I'll take these students through geometry and algebra II. They'll get 1 1/2 credits of math in one year. It's an accelerated and an advanced program. I also teach 11th and 12th grades."

"The program was designed to encourage students who haven't maintained A's during the first semester to get A's the second semester, Pratt said.

"It will also send a message to ninth-grade students already in the Honors Plus Program to look forward to next year when the awards will be given again, so they can strive to make good grades next year as 10th-graders," he said.

"This is the third year for the program for ninth- and 10th-graders," said Principal Joseph Gosha. "It's an excellent program, and we have good kids."

"They prepare intensively in math and English, and we have high expectations of these students," he said. "They have to have a 3.0 average to get into the program; and, if they fail in one area, they're dropped from the program. They must maintain a 3.0 average."

These students are also involved in community service and take educational field trips while in school, he said.

The program is open to all eligible eighth-graders in Muscogee and Chattahoochee counties. Students selected generally have all A's and B's at the middle school level, have a high test score on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills, and have good teacher recommendations.

"I feel honored being rewarded for getting A's," said Luis Jimenez, a ninth-grader and recipient of four of the Honors Program Certificates of Recognition in math, English, biology, and civics.

He is the son of Sgt. 1st Class Oscar Jimenez, an instructor, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, School of the Americas.

"Hard work, study and doing your best academically in class is all that's required. Math is my favorite subject. Everything requires math." he said.

"My parents are proud of me getting good grades and they always encourage me to do better. I owe all my good grades to my parents because of how they raised me," he said.

Another Fort Benning family member and recipient of four of the Honors Program Certificates of Recognition is Michael Fabery, a 10th-grader, who is the son of Sgt. 1st Class John Fabery, an engineer in the 598th Maintenance Company.

These ninth- and 10th-graders will go on to complete their second semester and will receive similar awards for their efforts both for the second semester and for the entire year, said Pratt.

Risk Management

Goal no. 5
Noncommisioned officer will ensure training in adverse weather is conducted safely.

Objectives
1. Soldiers who have had previous cold and hot weather injuries will be identified prior to training in adverse weather conditions and will be closely monitored by NCOs in accordance with unit standing operating procedure. Soldiers exhibiting signs of cold or hot weather injuries will be immediately evacuated.
2. During hot weather training or activities, NCOs will ensure that water is available to soldiers at all times. In addition, NCOs will ensure that soldiers carry at least one quart of water and as a minimum drink the following amounts:
Heat category 1: one-half quart per hour
Heat category 2: one-half quart per hour
Heat category 3: one quart per hour
Heat category 4: one-and-one-half quarts per hour
Heat category 5: two quarts per hour
3. During sever storms or lightning, NCOs will direct soldiers to disperse and squat down in an area away from tall tress or other hazards, ground weapons and load bearing equipment away from themselves, and reduce the use of tactical radio to a minimum.
4. Adverse weather safety will be evaluated as a part of risk management worksheets. NCOs in the field will adjust training if weather conditions present imminent danger to soldiers.
5. NCOs will advise soldiers to reduce speed during adverse weather.
6. During prolonged training under adverse weather conditions, NCOs will reinforce the use of buddy teams to monitor soldiers and will ensure transportation/shelter has been arranged.

profile in excellence

Name: Spc. Mark Stoneman

Award or recognition: Post Soldier of the Quarter
MOS: 67T
Unit: 498th Medical Company (AA)
Job title: UH60 repairer
Years on the job: 2 years

What were your reasons for joining the Army? My country has given me a lot, and I wanted to give something back.

What person has most influenced your career?
My platoon leader, Capt. Ian Ashcraft, for showing me how important moral courage is to a leader. He makes the hard call regardless of how it affects him personally.

If you were sergeant major of the Army for a day, what improvements would you make?
I would change the enlisted promotion system, removing the time constraints currently required for promotion. This would allow motivated, exceptional soldiers to quickly advance to a level where they could be most productive.

What were your reasons for choosing your MOS?
I wanted to be a door gunner.

Describe a memorable moment in your career.
Being selected as the Post Soldier of the Quarter.

What are your future career plans?
To graduate from the Special Forces Qualification Course and to stay on active duty for as long as possible.

What others have to say: Since Spc. Stoneman has arrived in the 498th, he has proved himself as a true professional. He is setting the example for others to follow.

— Staff Sgt. Ron Chapman

Spc. Stoneman is a motivated and professional soldier. He is very dedicated, and it is a pleasure working on a daily basis with someone who takes his business seriously.

— Capt. Ian Ashcraft

TRADOC selects SADBUS Specialist of the Year

By Shannon Day
Special to The Bayonet©

Robert L. Battle is TRADOC's top small and disadvantaged Business Utilization Specialist

The Training and Doctrine Command has chosen a recipient for the Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization Specialist of the Year award. He is Robert L. Battle, procurement analyst, Fort Benning Directorate of Contracting.

In the four years he has been the Fort Benning SADBUS, Battle has been proactive in the development of the small business program. He has participated in numerous Chamber of Commerce small and minority business committees. He developed a tri-community small business breakfast to promote the small business program on post. He is also the 1995-96 chairman of the Southeastern Area Small Business Council.

"He won because of his enthusiasm, customer service and dedication to Fort Benning, " said John M. Machovec, director of Contracting.

"He's the finest SADBUS that I have ever had the pleasure of working with in 26 years of contracting," Machovec said.

Battle, however, attributed his success to a team effort.

"It is a team effort with DOC and all of its customers," Battle said, adding that this includes all functional managers and tenant activities on Fort Benning.

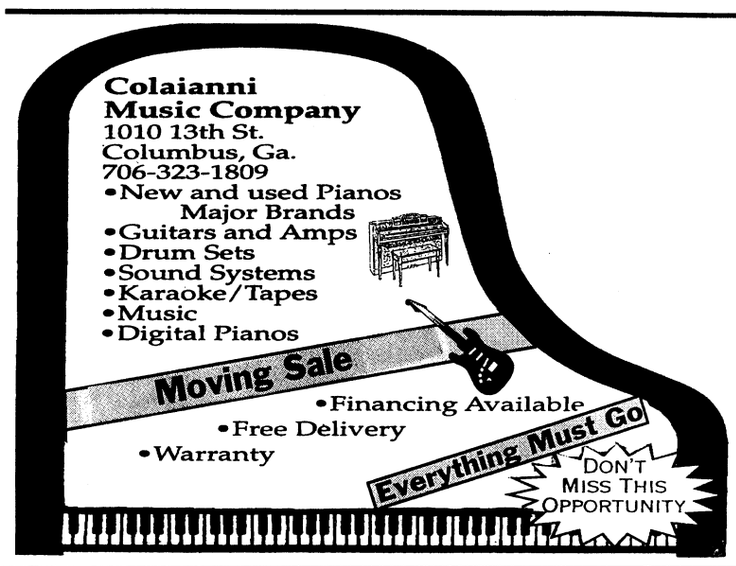
"It is an honor to win (this award) on behalf of Fort Benning," he said.

Battle was also named the runner-up TRADOC SADBUS in 1995.

Fort Benning recognizes units for contributions to Santa's Castle

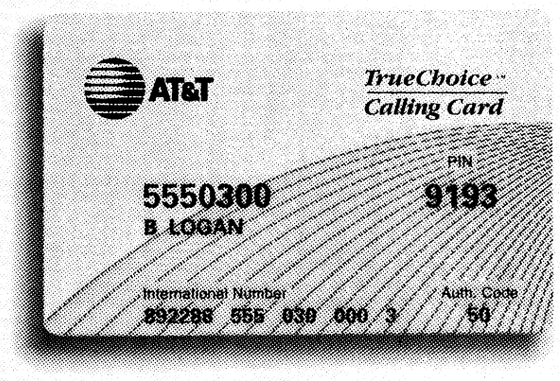
By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

Fort Benning recognized four units and an individual for their contributions to Santa's Castle March 7 at Infantry Hall, Building 4.



Fort Benning Commanding General Major General John W. Hendrix was on hand to present the awards.

Hendrix said earning the awards really took "a lot of hard work" and challenged everyone present to go back to their units and find their Santa's Castle point of contact.



Hendrix also said that he was sure the children of Fort Benning greatly benefited from the volunteers and that this is one more way the Army takes care of its own.

Units recognized for their volunteer efforts were 3rd Brigade (Mechanized), 24th Infantry Division; 11th Infantry Regiment; 29th Infantry Regiment and the Infantry Training Brigade.

Also recognized was Susan Turner, Secretary General Staff.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Girl Scouts celebrate service

Hundreds carry on tradition of goodness for eighty-four years

By Anna O'Leska
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Girl Scouts worldwide celebrated their 84th birthday March 10 to 16. The organization was founded March 12, 1912, to meet the special needs of girls in their development as well-rounded, resourceful individuals who are willing to share their abilities as citizens in their homes, communities and country.

The ages of Girl Scouts range from 5 to 17 years old.

The Girl Scouts at Fort Benning celebrated by attending and participating in various activities on post throughout the week:

• March 10 — Girl Scout Sunday. All Girl Scouts were recognized at their place of worship the first Sunday of the anniversary week.

• March 12 — All Girl Scout troops on post attended an ice cream social.

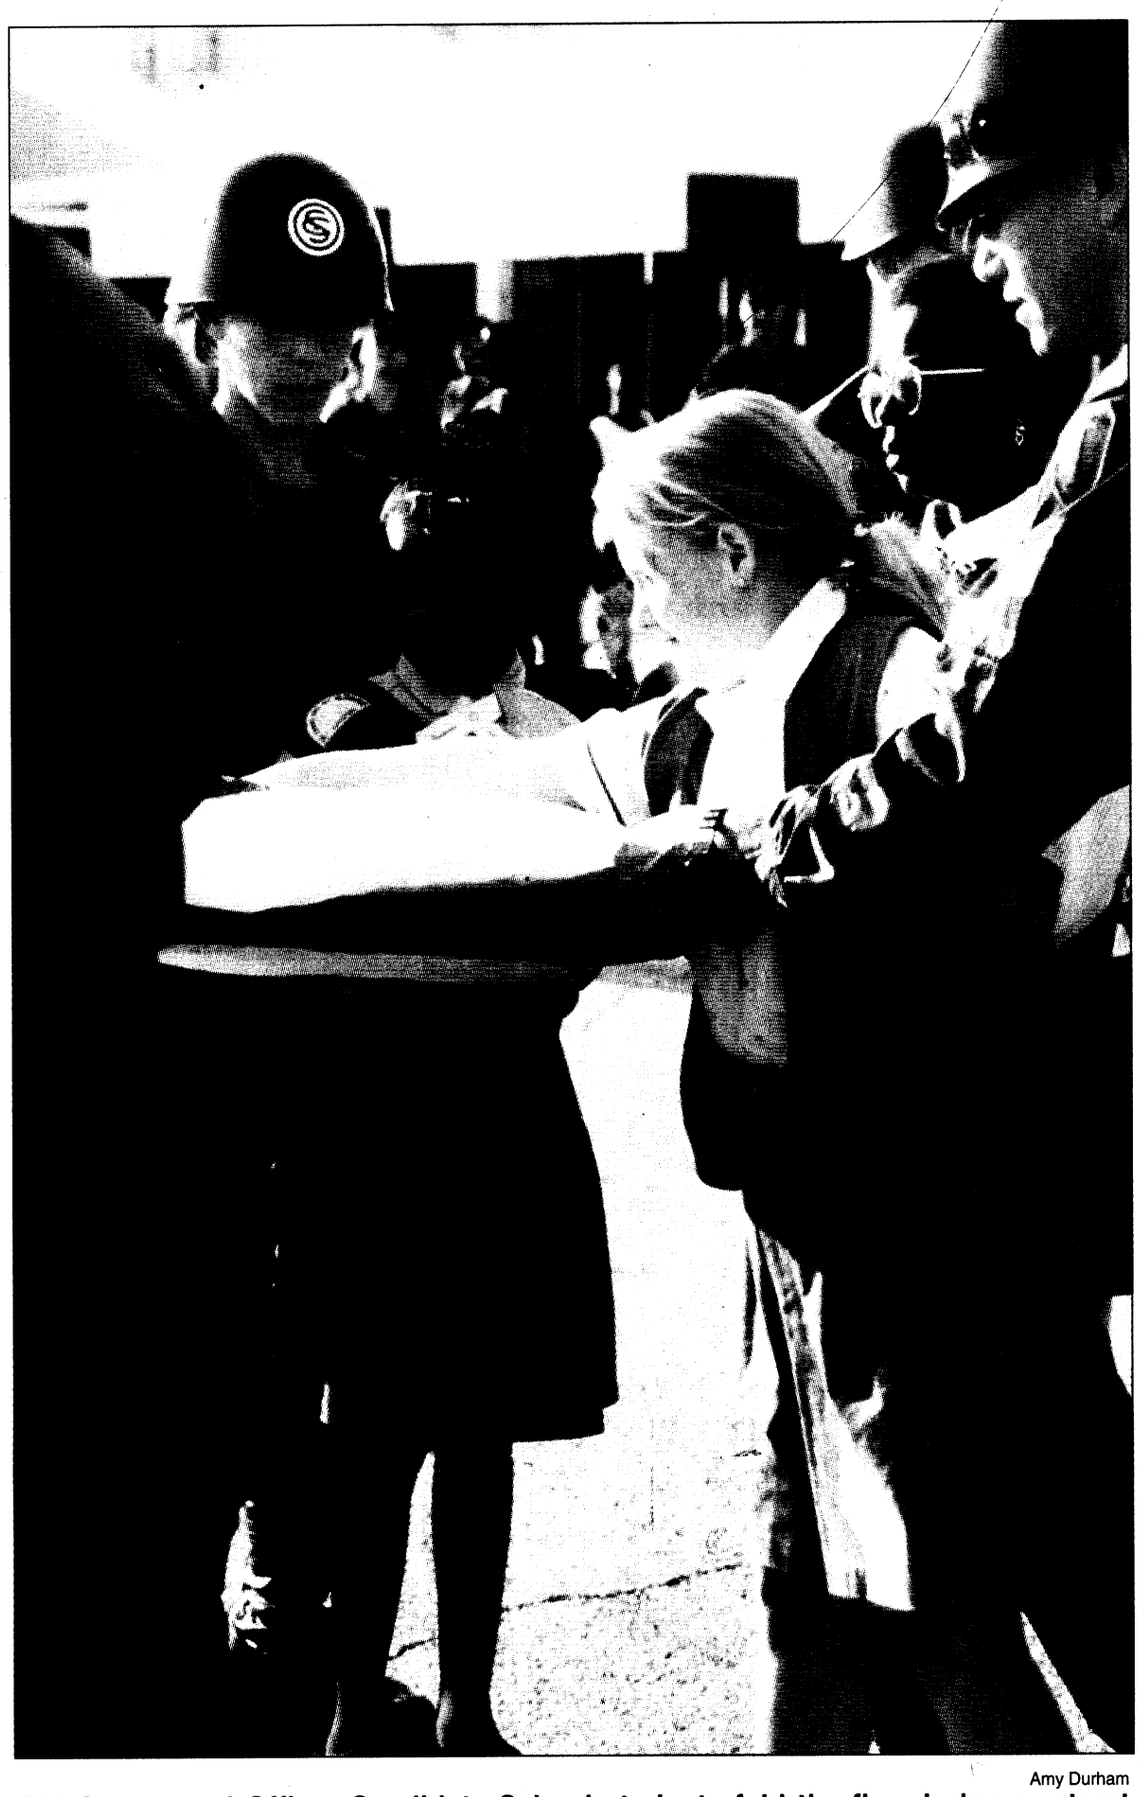
• March 14 — A baby shower was given for the first baby girl born at Martin Army Community Hospital during Girl Scout Week.

• March 14 — "Be Your Best Day." Fort Benning Girl Scouts participated in a food drive for the Army Community Service Food Locker.

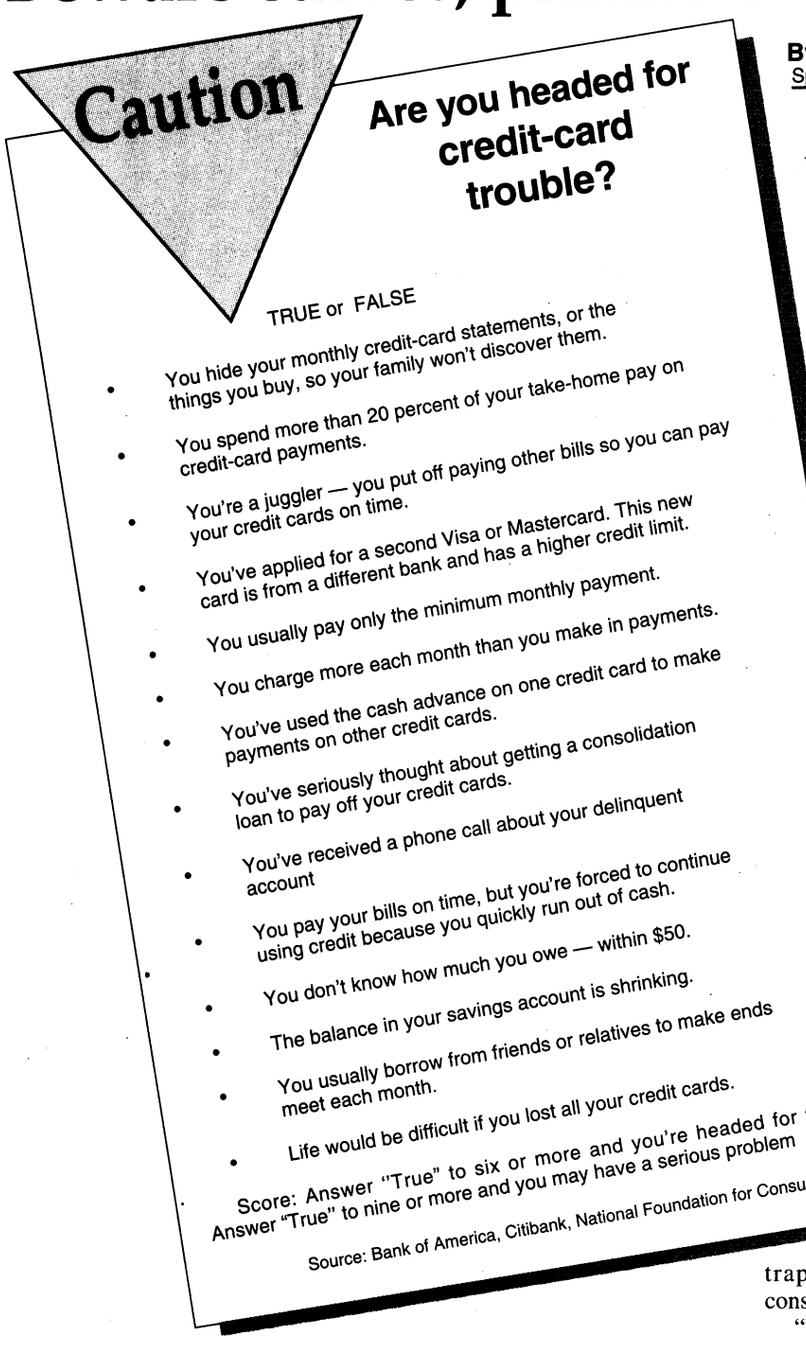


• March 16 — Girl Scouts delivered the collected food to the ACS Food Locker.

Since the organization was founded for girls, performing these activities reminded them why they participate in a community organization like the Girl Scouts, said Sally Pearson, junior Girl Scout troop leader on Fort Benning.

"The girls feel special because they learn they can be what they want to be and do what they want to do," Pearson said.

And they can have fun while they're learning and developing social skills as well planning, organizing, helping and giving skills and performing volunteer activities, she said.



"They learn that they can be recognized for the work they do and the contributions they make," she said. "The flag retreat ceremony is the most important because by respecting the flag, they learn about its importance."

Beware curves, pitfalls on road to financial stability

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

With a young child and married to an Army private who was bringing home less than $1,000 per month, Denise Perdue was determined to get her family out of their $30,000 debt.

Caught in the fast lane of college loans and credit card bills, Perdue and her husband, Staff Sgt. J. Derrick Perdue, U.S. Medical Department Activity, were typical of today's financially overextended growing population, according to Ann Pratcher, financial counselor for Army Community Service.

"There is a proliferation of credit (consumption) in the U.S.," Pratcher said. "Many of us are getting numerous unsolicited credit deals a week."

And the average age of consumers eligible for credit continues to drop. Pratcher said although it is not uncommon for high school students to receive mail offers, most college students are presented credit opportunities that are seemingly too good to pass.

Accompanied with a lack of budgeting, Perdue said it was the accessibility that led to eventual numbers shock. "We (used credit) to shop for clothes, groceries and other things," she said, "until we racked up the credit cards."

Impulsive buying, or the need or immediate gratification, is one of the traps into which Pratcher said most consumers fall.

"Young people, whether they're soldiers or not, want at age 20 what their parents may have attained by 45."

Although credit card consumption is not a problem unique to the military, Pratcher said there are several things that can often cause financial problems for soldiers and the their families.

Two of the most common financial pitfalls soldiers experience time and time again extend from constant permanent-change-of-station moves and housing costs. Each time a soldier leaves a duty station with his family, he or she incurs another housing deposit. Spouses change jobs, often resulting in one-income family status for various amounts of times. Setting up house — from installing phone and cable service to buying curtains — can deplete accounts.

Pratcher said soldiers often get into housing contracts that are too expensive based on income. Between basic allowance for quarters and their variable housing allowance, military families agree to rent or mortgage payments that, when coupled with extraneous expenses — utilities, water, etc. — they cannot afford to pay.

"The problem comes basically from not understanding the pay and entitlements system," she said.

This confusion also extends to more common agreements such as car payments and other big-item buys as well as mishandling checking accounts and getting behind in phone bill payments.

According to Pratcher, getting confused by advertisers' terminology and salespeople's pitches can lead to soldiers promising to pay more than they can afford. Although ACS financial counselors often see soldiers and their families when they're already in a downward financial spin, Pratcher suggested anyone who feels he or she might be headed for trouble contact ACS.

Students do 'shamrock shake'

By Anna O'Leska
USAIC Public Affairs Office

Kindergarten students at McBride Elementary School celebrated St. Patrick's Day and National Nutrition Month March 15 by making shamrock milkshakes.

Seven children sat around a crescent-shaped table where kindergarten teacher Pam Young taught lessons in nutrition while preparing ingredients for making the shakes in a blender.

"It's a milkshake that's green because it's St. Patrick's Day and Irish," Young said. "We're making shamrock shakes, keeping in mind Nutrition Month by concentrating on foods that are good for you."

Ingredients that went into the shakes were: fat-free milk, fat-free vanilla ice cream, vanilla flavoring and green food coloring.

Every student got to measure a portion of the ingredients. Everyone helped scoop ice cream, pour milk and add drops of green food coloring to the blender.

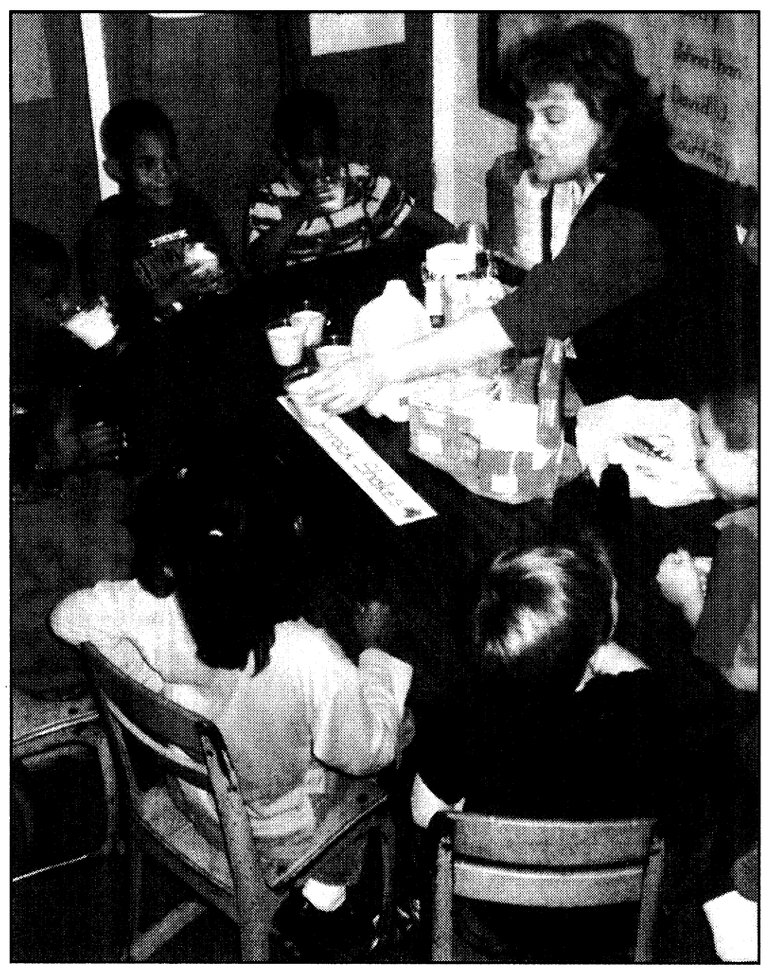
"Why use green?" Young asked.

"'Cause it's St. Patrick's color," said David Jenkins, 5.

"Why be careful with green food coloring?" Young asked her students.

"Because it stains," they answered.

After each student smelled the vanilla flavoring, the teacher added a few drops of the spice to the mixture and turned on the blender.



"What's vanilla?" Young asked.

"It's a spice," the children answered.

Everyone watched as the white mixture turned into shades of green within a very short time. Then, everyone had a chance to sample the shamrock shakes.

"This is good," Jenkins said.

"Mmm. Tastes kinda yummy," said six-year-old Cory Holt. "Can I have some more?"

Anna O'Leska

Kindergartners and their teacher, Pam Young prepare, serve and taste their own shamrock shakes March 15 at McBride Elementary School in celebration of St. Patrick's Day and National Nutrition Month.

"Tastes like green ice cream," said Preston McCallum, 6.

"They like cooking activities," Young said. "I'm also trying to explain the new food pyramid," she said. "You eat most of the foods at the bottom of the pyramid. You eat less of the foods at the top of the pyramid."

"Milk, ice cream and butter belong to the milk group at the top of the pyramid," she said. "These products have too much fat, so we don't eat a lot of these foods."

"But milk contains calcium so it is considered very important," she said. "Choosing a milkshake is better than choosing a soda, which has no nutrition."

"I drink milk every day for lunch," Jenkins said.

"It makes strong bones and healthy teeth," another child said.

Principal Del Hicks said he's all for the children making shamrock shakes for St. Patrick's Day.

"It makes the curriculum more interesting for the youngster. Anything you can do to provide excitement for the youngsters is wonderful."

As groups of children took their turn making shamrock shakes, the remaining students colored leprechaun figures with green and black hats, green jackets and green and black boots.

A smiling leprechaun figure was waving from the bulletin board surrounded by green painted shamrocks hanging from the classroom walls.

The Irish people traditionally believe green is a lucky color and many people wear green on St. Patrick's Day. Most of the children were wearing green, too.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Top 10 things women should know

By Charles Coiner
Social Security Administration

Although Social Security coverage is the same for men and women, there are still things a woman should know about Social Security that can make a difference in how well she does under the program.

The following are 10 steps a woman should take to protect your Social Security coverage as a woman:

• Be sure to change your name with Social Security. If you marry, change your name on your Social Security card if you use your married name at work.

If you don't make the change, your earnings may not be properly credited to your Social Security record. This means that when you retire, or if you become disabled or die, the benefits for you or your family will be incorrect.

• Watch your disability coverage. Remember, you need recent work under Social Security to qualify for disability benefits. The amount of work you need depends on the age at which you become disabled.

If you become disabled before age 24, you need to have earned six credits in the 1 1/2 year period ending with the quarter you become disabled. If you become disabled between 24 and 30, you need credit for half the time between age 22 and the time you became disabled.

After age 30, you need credits for five years of work out of the last 10. The point is, you want to maintain your protection by making sure you keep it current. It's not hard to do. You need only earn a certain amount of money a year ($2,560 in 1996) to get credit for the entire year. The amount required increases each year with increases in average wages.

A recent study noted that women are less likely to have private disability insurance than men. Social Security may be the only protection for families that have come to rely on the mother's paycheck as an essential part of the family income. Thus, it is important to take steps to see that the Social Security disability coverage is kept current.

• Note your benefit options. Women often find themselves in the position of having to decide whether to take a benefit on their own work record or their husband's work record or whether to take a benefit at age 60 or wait until age 65.

Sometimes the decision is whether to claim a benefit on their new husband's earnings or a previous husband's earnings. Look at all the options. The Social Security Office will show you how much your benefits would be under any of the scenarios listed above.

• Be aware of your rights as a divorced wife. Remember, if you have been married for 10 years, you have the same rights to benefits on your ex-husband's Social Security earnings as a current wife. And, your benefits will not affect those of the current wife.

• How marriage affects your benefits. Generally, marriage terminates entitlement to divorced spouse's or mother's benefits. Benefits as a widow are not affected by remarriage.

• Get a benefit statement. You can get a personal earnings and benefit estimate statement from Social Security at any time to get an estimate of the benefits you would get on your own earnings record.

Your husband would need to request a statement of his earnings to see what benefits you could get on his earnings record.

• Check your family protection. Note that your earnings give you the same family protection that your husband's earnings do. This means that if you retire, die or become disabled, your minor children could receive Social Security benefits even if your husband can't because he is still working.

• Note government pension offset. If you receive a pension from work in a government job that is not covered by Social Security, remember that it could reduce your Social Security spouse's benefit.

• Note windfall elimination provision. If you receive a pension based on noncovered government employment, your Social Security benefits may be reduced because of the windfall elimination provision.

Your benefit would be figured under a special benefit formula which would give you a lower rate than that of a person who worked full time under Social Security at low wages.

• Note household workers reporting. If you hire a household worker, remember, you are responsible for reporting her or his wages and collecting and paying the Social Security tax.

This is a perennial problem, and one that could result in tax penalties when overlooked. You may recall the publicity this issue received last year when several administration nominees revealed they had neglected to pay what has become known as the "nanny tax".

The rules have changed to make it easier for people to keep track of their responsibilities as employers of household workers.

Call Social Security and ask for more details on the issue, or the Internal Revenue Service for information on how to report household worker's earnings.

BEWARE:

Know financial status

"Everyone should take stock of their situation," she said. "Evaluate your monthly income against your monthly expenses; and learn to budget."

When Perdue and her husband started looking at their finances, she said they knew they had to redirect their spending habits.

Because of personal beliefs, the Perdues knew they did not want to file bankruptcy and, because they felt Denise should stay at home to raise their children, a second income was not an option.

Being willing to cut back on spending and learning how to budget was what the Perdues needed. The couple bought an older model car and paid $500 cash. They learned how to do general vehicle maintenance. They also purchased an automobile travel club plan and never traveled outside a 100-mile radius from home; with car trouble their package covered towing expenses.

Pratcher agreed there are many possibilities when it comes to making the necessary adjustments. The bottom line is what the individual is willing to sacrifice.

She said couples need to ask themselves, "Can the spouse work?" "Can the soldier work a part-time job?" "Can they do without cable?"

People who need budgeting assistance can make an appointment Monday mornings on a walk-in basis. At that time, a packet will be given to individuals to complete before the actual counseling appointment.

ACS also provides finance-related seminars for post units.

For information, call 545-7517.

Five years and a second child later, the couple is debt-free. The Perdues continue practicing the finance-saving principles they learned to employ years ago and the ACS counselors stress to those trying to correct money problems. The parents also teach their children budgeting skills so, as she put it, "they won]t make the same mistakes we did."

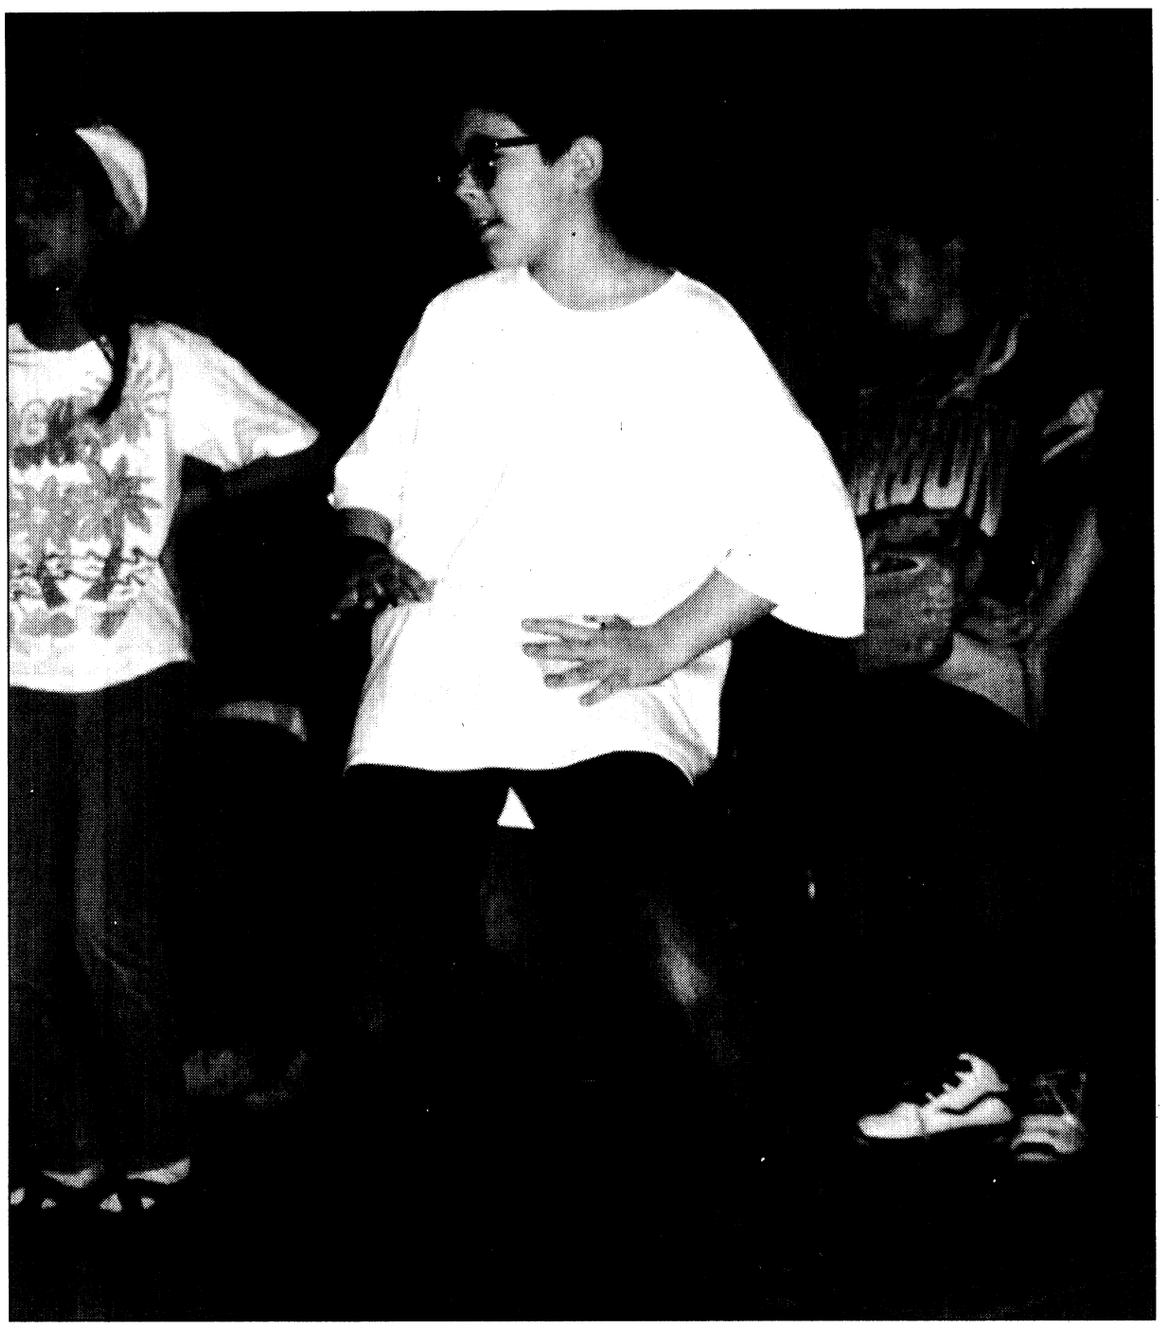
Soldiers, students share in celebration

By Judith Ginder
School of the Americas

Celebrate!

Students at Johnson Elementary School in Columbus shared in a celebration of differences March 11 in the school auditorium. The children performed songs, dances and even poems about differences in people, places and things.



The kindergarten class sang about the months of the year. First, they sang the song in English, then in Spanish to celebrate the differences in language. The fourth-graders sang about respecting each other. They also made up a dance to go with their song.

Adelyn Scott, a fifth-grade teacher at Johnson, and her students decided they wanted to learn how to do a Spanish dance for their portion of the assembly, so Scott called Cecilia Alexander, the international military student officer at the School of the Americas. Alexander arranged for three soldiers from SOA to teach the students a Latin line dance.

"It was a lot of fun learning the dance," said Ashley Wilbourn, one of Scott's students. Wilbourn and several other students said they practiced the dance with the SOA soldiers a few times and thought it was "pretty easy to do."

Sgt. Hector Hernandez, one of the soldiers who worked with the children, was also at the school for the performance. He said he thought the students did a great job and he enjoyed being able to show the students a part of his culture.

After the assembly, Johnson Principal Paul Grimes said he encourages local group to come to the school to share their experiences and differences with the students.

Judith Ginder

Fifth-grader Chris McCormick gives the Latin line dance his all during the recent celebration of differences at the School of the Americas.

"There is nothing the kids enjoy more than to be able to do things like this," he said.

Alexander said the same thing about SOA helping in the community.

"We go to the schools in the area and talk to students about the different Latin American cultures," she said. "But, this was the first time we actually taught the students a dance -- usually, we just dance for them."

But Alexander said she liked being able to teach the students how to do it themselves. This way, she said, it's something they'll always remember.

ask the judge

By Jane M. Winand
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q. Is my old will still good?

A. Every once in a while, a client will ask one of the Legal Assistance attorneys this question. More often though, a widow or widower is asking the question about the deceased spouse's will. The answer can save your loved ones more than $100 in court filing fees (and perhaps more than $1,000 if you have property outside of Georgia).

A last will and testament is valid until you, as the testator, decide to revoke or nullify it.

A will is revoked by tearing it up or marking through it with the intent to revoke it or by signing a new will. Thus, your Vietnam-era will, if you haven't revoked it, is still your current will. So now you can rest easy because you have a will, huh?

Well, not so fast. In the old days, it was necessary to locate one of the witnesses that signed the will (imagine trying to round up one of the folks that signed that Vietnam-era will — the witnesses probably put down Fort Benning or Columbus addresses they haven't occupied in 25 years).

However, the laws in each state changed in the 1980s to allow for the addition of a self-proving clause at the back of the will. This extra page, signed by the testator, the witnesses and a notary public, makes it unnecessary to locate the witnesses. The probate of the will is much easier with the self-proving clause.

OK, so you have a self-proving clause as part of your will. You're good to go now, right? Well, yeah, sort of. The probate will be relatively simple. The filing fee runs around $85 to $95 (the court charges you by the page). The Legal Assistance attorneys, who are licensed to practice law in Georgia, provide assistance with the drafting of Probate Court petitions for soldiers, retirees and family members with military identification cards. Our services are free.

Yet, many married couples simply want to leave their worldly possessions to their spouses. Is there a simpler way to make sure your spouse gets your assets? Yes. You may want to consider titling your real estate and investments jointly with right of survivorship.

In Georgia, the warranty deed on your house and land must clearly indicate an intent to hold the property with right of survivorship by using such words as "joint tenants with survivorship" and "jointly with survivorship."

Some states, such as Florida, by statute declare property that is owned by a husband and wife to be automatically held with survivorship. Investments such as stocks and mutual funds may also be held jointly with right of survivorship.

The attorneys at the Legal Assistance Division can draft survivorship deeds and provide advice and assistance on these matters.

The Fort Benning Legal Assistance Division attorneys have been providing estate planning services for years. However, it is not uncommon for the attorneys to meet a widow or widower whose spouse may have died either leaving a will without a self-proving clause or no will at all.

It is a good rule of thumb to have your estate planning documents reviewed every four or five years by an attorney.

Call the Legal Assistance Division at 545-3281 and make an appointment.

Is your energy bar really what you need?

By Christine N. Parker
Martin Army Community Hospital

Meal replacement or energy bars score high in a "convenience-oriented" society such as ours. They are in good company with microwave dinners, fax machines, cellular phones and drive-through windows.

Competitive, as well as novice athletes, recognize nutrition's impact on physical performance and endurance and frequently use performance bar-type products to get that nutrition.

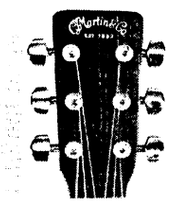
There are many brands of these bars available now, targeted toward athletes. They are not all created equally, however, and some offer no more nutritional advantages than a candy bar.

Selection should be made after analyzing the nutrition labels and testing the product, not by claims made by paid advertisements or catchy names.

Convenience is a big drawing card for using an energy bar, but it is an expensive luxury that could be avoided by purchasing other commercial products that provide similar nutritional contributions.

Low-fat granola bars, breakfast bars, cereal, raisins, peanut butter and fresh fruit are just a few inexpensive alternatives. Ideally, athletes should continuously maintain a high complex carbohydrate, low-fat diet to avoid relying on meal-replacement bars as their primary nutrition source. These bars should only supplement a balanced diet, not be the balanced diet.

Carefully review the nutrition labels of the currently available performance bars. Determine which bar or commercial alternative is right for you by comparing the nutritional and economic breakdown of the bar with that of a commercial alternative.



Your nutritional needs can be met through a proper diet and healthy snacks.

Don't be swayed by false advertising and don't sabotage your fitness goals with inadequate nutrition.

The bottom line is performance bars can be used before and during physical activity, but the same nutrients can be provided through other, less expensive commercial items or by eating a complex carbohydrate diet with high carbohydrate snacks on a regular basis.

Every person has worth, value in life

By Lane Stockeland and Paul Davidson
11th Infantry Regiment

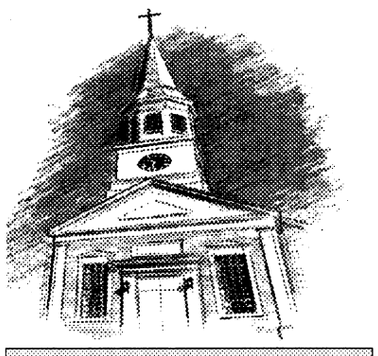
We live in a world today where a person's worth or value is quite often determined by his looks, performance, status or bank account.

Some time ago a reliable baseball card authority told me a 1952 Mickey Mantle card is worth around $30,000. Quite a bit of money for a little piece of cardboard.

When I enlisted in the Army a number of years ago, I received an initial issue of clothing and uniforms. It was valued at $531.18. When soldiers process through the Central Issue Facility at Fort Benning, most receive a full issue of organizational clothes and equipment, i.e., TA-50. It is valued at around $1,300 to $1,400. (For some soldiers, the amount may differ.)

The investment the Army makes in each soldier of time, training, food, uniforms, schooling, etc. is thousands and thousands of dollars. Yet, soldiers are worth much more than those figures.

What does the Bible say about a person's worth or value? Jesus said, "Look at the birds of the air, they do not sow or reap or store away in barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not much more valuable than they?" (Matthew 6: 26 NIV).



Jesus is not saying that he doesn't care about birds, for Matthew 10:29-31 indicates he does. In Verse 26, he is simply using God's concern for birds to illustrate his greater concern for us.

The same kind of thought is conveyed when Jesus said, "Don't be afraid, you are worth more than many sparrows." (Matthew 10:31, NIV). In this verse, the word "worth" is significant. It literally means "to differ."

The main point is that we are different from sparrows. This diversity and difference gives us worth and value.

Dr. Paul Brand, co-author of "Fearfully and Wonderfully Made," grew up in India where his parents were missionaries. Many people came to the Brands for medical help. Some of these people were lepers.

In India, young Brand saw first-hand effects of this dreaded disease. Since that time he has dedicated his life toward research of this disease and helping people afflicted with it. He has concluded that leprosy results from people losing their sense of pain. This sense was lost because of one single type of cell being attacked, the nerve cell.

"The gradual loss of the sense of pain leads to misuse of those body parts most dependent on pain's protection," Brand said.

In summary, all cells of the body are important and have value.

"The same physical body that often impresses us with specialization and diversity also affirms that each of its many members is valuable and often essential for survival," he said.

The same is true in the spiritual world. Each member of the body of Christ has worth and value.

The same should also be true in the military. Each soldier, regardless of rank, gender, ethnic background, ability or status is equally important and valuable.

Let us all strive together to treat each other with respect, dignity and compassion and so fulfill the law of Christ. I encourage you to personally explore your sense of worth and value by attending the chapel or church of your choice.

Christians: Olympians for Christ

reflections

Every four years, the world prepares for the Olympics, and the 1996 Olympics will be in Atlanta. This will be a great event, and an exciting time.

Athletes from around the world will come to this important event not only to demonstrate their talents and abilities, but also to compete and run the race that is set before them.

Before the Olympics begin, all athletes will have been preparing and training to be fit for their certain kind of sport such as running, shooting, tennis, volleyball and many others. They have been training their bodies day and night under strict discipline, diets and weight control. They constantly live under rules and standards, so they can be qualified for service. These athletes will not be afraid of any difficulties, and they are trained to endure any hardships.

In the Olympics, many will come to compete, but some will fall by the wayside and quit for some reason. Only a few will win a Gold Medal in the Olympics. The greatest hope athletes have in coming to the Olympics is to win a Gold Medal for themselves and their nation. They come to represent their country and their people. Spectators also will come from all over the world to witness and to cheer their candidates.

Whether we realize it or not, we all have a race to run, to compete and to finish the race successfully. In the U.S. Army, some are running a race and want to be a sergeant major, while others want to be a general. Many will fall by the wayside and quit.

Christians also have a race to run and to finish faithfully. Hebrews 12:1 and 2 (NIV) says: "Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, let us throw off everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles, and let us run with perseverance the race marked out for us. Let us fix our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfector of our faith, who for the joy set before him endured the cross, scorning its shame, and sat down at the right hand of the throne of God.

As we are running the race, we have the great cloud of witnesses that ran before us and won the race faithfully. We do not struggle alone, and we are not the first to struggle with the problems that we face. Their faithfulness is a constant encouragement to us, and their witness stirs us to run and win.

What an inspiring heritage we have. In order to run well and finish this race faithfully, we must lay aside all external things and sins that pull us down. Sins are like quick sand. The more a person struggles once he is in its grip, the deeper he sinks helplessly into it.

The Christian life involves hard work. It requires us to give up whatever endangers our relationship with God, to run patiently and struggle against sin with the power of the Holy Spirit. To run the race faithfully, we should not look to others because they will fail us, but we must keep our eyes on Jesus.

He is our example to follow to run in this race. Two thousand years ago, Jesus Christ came to earth and ran a race to Calvary for you and me, and he was exalted above all names. Therefore, you and I can finish this Olympic race by keeping our eyes on Jesus Christ.

Local Special Olympians compete in annual games

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The Muscogee County Special Olympic Games were at Kinnett Stadium in Columbus March 15.

Columbus resident William Paterson kicked off the games by lighting the Special Olympics torch with assistance from Mark Mills, Fort Benning Exceptional Family Member Program recreational specialist.

Students from local area schools and more than 300 volunteers from Fort Benning participated in this year's games.

Students competed in events in the 100-meter relays, 200-meter run, 100-meter run, 50-meter run, 100-meter walk, standing long jump, running long jump, softball throw, soccer, tennis ball throw, 10-meter walk, 25-meter walk, and the 25-meter wheelchair.

"I'm here to help the children because it's something special for them" said Pvt. 1 Reuben Bermudez of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment.

Marie Hebron, coach for Lloyd Elementary School, said it was important to encourage the children every step of the way and to let them know that no matter what, they are winners.

Linda Jones, from the Muscogee County Committee for the Special Olympics, said "huggers" are assigned to each participant in each event to be there for the child.

Jones said the huggers' primary purpose was to give the participant someone to focus on and to be there to hug, give high-five's and to congratulate the child when he or she finished an event.

Mills said approximately 75 students from Lloyd Elementary School and Faith Middle School from Fort Benning participated in this year's games."

"The children who participate in these games must have medical exams and medical waivers completed prior to competing in the games," he said. "The liability waiver basically says the participant will not sue the school should something happen during the event."

Mills said the school then has to train the students and conduct preliminary races and events so when the students show up at the games they can be seeded with other competitors as close in ability to each other as possible.

"Thousands of hours go into the setup of the games, not to mention the amount of volunteer hours that are put in once the games start," Mills said. The bottom line is if the kids have fun and feel good about themselves."

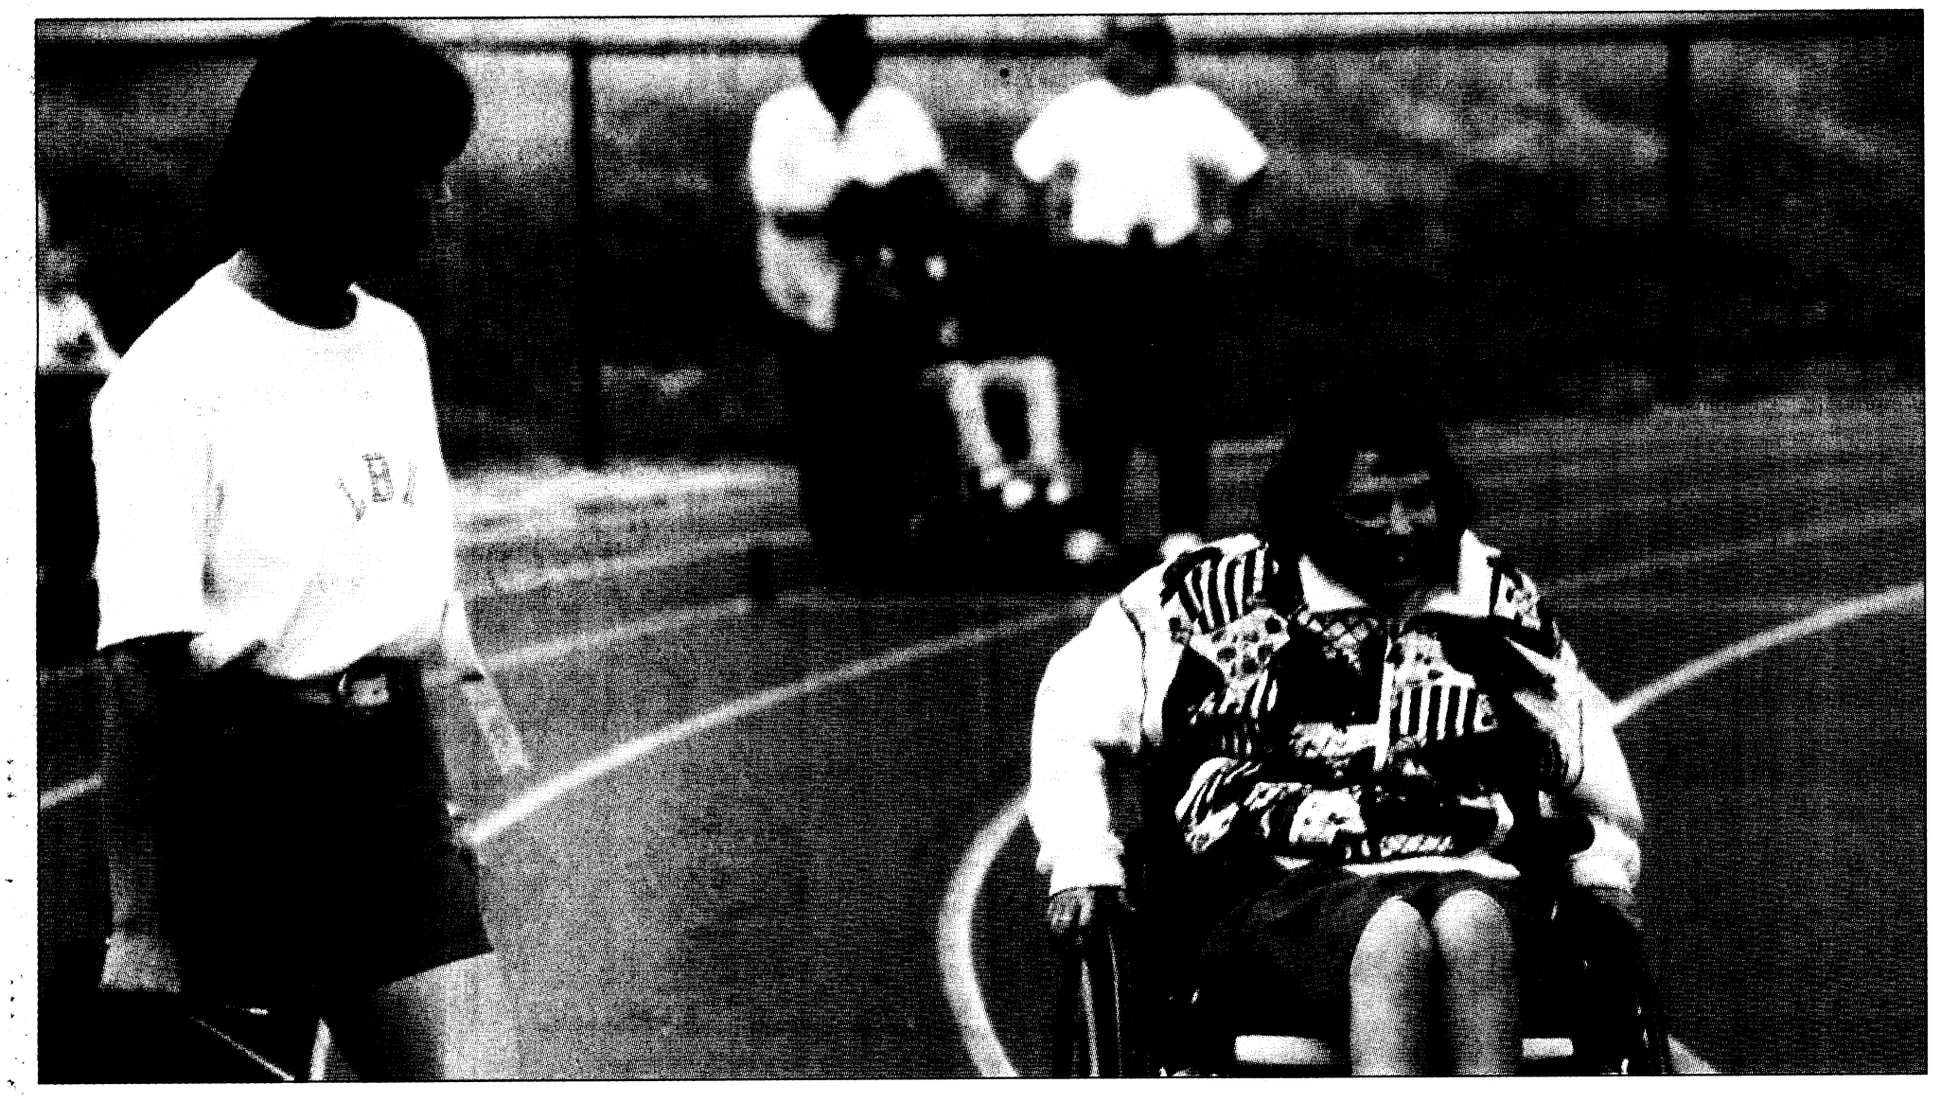
Mills said that 85 to 90 percent of the volunteers come from Fort Benning and that it would be much more difficult without the volunteers from Fort Benning.

"Over 25 percent of the volunteers this year were previous volunteers, so we are building a pool of volunteers who know the system pretty well," Mills said. "We also had several people from other states"

Mills said a lot of behind-the-scenes preparation goes into making the Junior Olympics a success.

"Myra Pfeiffer (a volunteer) is the person who makes the Special Olympics go," Mills said. She is probably the hardest worker on the entire committee"

Mills said this year's local games are a preliminary event for the area games that will be in April at Kinnett Stadium.



"The winners from these games will compete in the area games later in the year then will go on to the state games" he said.

"There is personal satisfaction after the games are over,"he continued "Just to get a hug shows they really appreciate what we are trying to do for them."

In a pre-game ceremony emcee Dee Armstrong, television news anchor for WTVM Channel 9, introduced J. Edgar Wilson, assistant to the mayor, to present a special award to Sgt. Willie Briskey, 75th Ranger Regiment.

Briskey was honored by the City of Columbus Mayor's Office for his volunteer contributions to the tri-community area both past and present.

Briskey served as the military liaison from Fort Benning to the Muscogee County Special Olympic Committee.

Pro athletes need to wake up

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

John W. Peeler believes some pro athletes need to get a life.

commentary

The Special Olympics March 8 changed the way I look at sporting events, professional athletes and life in general.

I witnessed more than 350 children, with all the enthusiasm, determination and willpower they could muster, competing in events to have fun and just to feel good about themselves.

Fans applauded, cheered and encouraged each of the children as they participated in their events. Each child had the look of a winner after he or she had finished — win or lose.

More than 300 volunteers, civilian and military alike, offered their time, enthusiasm, attention and love to each competitor.

Can you believe it? No money involved, no arbitration, no front page headlines, no endorsements.

When I returned home, I noticed Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf had now said he would stand during the national anthem, but he would do so in silent prayer. Why this sudden change of heart? Probably because he lost $31,707 for the game he was suspended.

This year, it's basketball players; last year it was baseball, basketball officials and some high-priced football players. When will professional athletes finally figure out there is more to life than the almighty dollar or some statement they think they need to make?

When did we, common every-day Americans, decide or nominate professional athletes as our spokespersons?

These prima donna professional athletes could learn a thing or two from spending a day at an event like the Special Olympics. Of course, not all professional athletes fit this selfish, self-centered, money-hungry category; and, I'm sure "they" would be the first to let you know it.

To some of the children who competed in the Special Olympics, professional athletes are their heroes and someone they would like to be like.

After Friday, I realized these so-called professional athletes would be dwarfed on the same field as the children who participated in the Special Olympics. Some people call these children challenged; I call them champions and heroes.

Next time your favorite sport has a strike or your favorite player is not playing because he or she wants more money, volunteer your time to someone or an organization who will really appreciate it.

Don't waste your time on professional athletes who "need to get a life."

Tae kwon do students win medals

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

Six students from the Fort Benning Tae Kwon Do School qualified for the Junior Olympics Saturday by winning at the state championships at Rome High School in Rome, Ga.

"To compete in the Junior Olympics, students must place either first, second or third in their respective age, weight and belt division" said chief instructor Felix Davila.

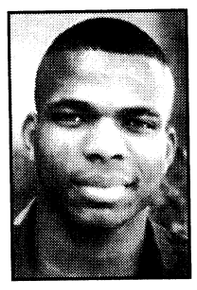
For Davila, this is the greatest number of children he has had to qualify for Junior Olympic competition.

"With the Junior Olympics being so close, this year will be the best and maybe the only opportunity our students will have to compete on this scale," he said. "Last year the Junior Olympics were in California and it really wasn't feasible for our qualifying students to go."

This year Junior Olympics will be at the Orange County Convention Center June 24 though 30 in Orlando, Fla.

Davila said the key to his students' success in competition was "pointing out to the kids how important this opportunity was and making them understand this event would be remembered the rest of their life."

Davila also said the school's success was attributable to the students' hard work, dedication to the sport and application of the five basic principles (tenants) of tae kwon do.



Tae kwon do, known as the way of foot and hand, is scheduled to become an official part of Olympic athlete of the week

Name: Spc. Samuel A. Bobbitt

Award or recognition: Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) Selection, Cross Country
Unit or activity: Army Physical Fitness School
Sport: Cross Country Runner
Years in the sport: 9

What were your reasons for choosing to compete in this sport? I felt I could outrun anyone and I liked to travel and to be part of a team.

What do you feel are your major accomplishments in your sport? I ran to a position where I am now sponsored by Adidas and Powerbar.

What person or people have most influenced you in your sport? My high school coach Brian Winham and my collegiate coach Bill Cason.

What training regiment has proved most successful to you? Consistency is the best policy. Getting out everyday is key but listening to your body is how you keep in the top of the field of competitors.

Describe your most memorable moment in your sport. My most memorable moment was missing a 24-minute 5 miler by four seconds. I missed the time, but after the event was over I was still pumped.

What do you feel are the biggest challenges facing Army sports programs today? Many athletes are overlooked due to the way in which soldiers are selected. If a unit is not involved in their athletic program, then their athletes may end up being overlooked.

What improvements would you make to your sport to make it more competitive? Cross country running is very competitive. In order for Army athletes to be able to compete on an international level, they need more time to train if they are expected to be successful.

What are your future plans in your sport? Once this summer comes, I will take a break and refocus on my true goal in this sport. I want to qualify for the Olympic trials and compete in the Olympics.

What advice would you give others desiring to compete in your sport? Stay focused, train smart, and be determined to succeed.

Channel bends usually best when fishing creeks

By Earl Bentz & Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

In tournament bass fishing, the pros have turned creek fishing into a science, but it's a science any angler can master.

"The easiest way to fish a creek is to concentrate on the bends," said Missouri veteran Denny Brauer. "Spend your time fishing either the inside or the outside of the bends, and most of the time you'll be close."

Brauer said tributary creeks are among the first places professional anglers go when fishing large impoundments or major river systems. He recently finished fourth in a national tournament by spending all his time in a small creek where he fished both the inside and outside bends of the channel.

"Channel bends usually offer several features bass like, including depth changes, cover, current and protection from that current, and because of the current, a constant supply of food," Brauer said. "Not only are all or most of these features present, they're usually very close together. Bass have all they need to survive in a small area."

> "Whenever you have shallow cover very close to deeper water, you practically have a magnet for bass."
> — Denny Brauer
> Bass pro

Inside bends, said the pro, are often like points, and feature a gradual depth change from shallow to deep. In rivers, these points are often like big sand bars and may even have a small pocket of protected water behind them.

"The upstream side of these points may also have brush that has washed in with the current, while right behind it on the back side of the point the water depth changes much faster," Brauer said. "Whenever you have shallow cover very close to deeper water, you practically have a magnet for bass."

The outside bends may be void of cover or they may have an abundance of it, depending on the current, noted Brauer. The water will be deeper than on the inside of the bend because of the current, and often attracts bass after sudden cold fronts or other weather changes.

Several different lures can be used effectively to fish channel bends, depending on water depth. Crankbaits will help locate underwater brush and debris, while jigs may be more productive when working the brush itself. Spinnerbaits, plastic worms, and possibly even topwater lures can also be used, depending on the season of the year.

"Visible cover can also be a factor in your lure choice," Brauer said. "If there is cover, such as lily pads or other vegetation, bass will usually be relating to it in some way.

"You may want to use a spinnerbait around cover on the inside of a bend, and a jig or other lure in the cover in the deeper water on the outside of the bend," he said.

Consider a favorite lure when fishing gets tough

By Earl Bentz & Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

When bass fishing turns really tough, most professional tournament anglers have a favorite lure they start using. Former world champion Larry Nixon is no different.

"If the bass just aren't co-operating for whatever reason, I put on a 3/16-ounce spinner bait with two gold willow leaf blades," said the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler. "It's a lure I can fish slow and deep, which is what you need when bass are hard to catch.

The gold willow leaf blades are size three in front and size four on the end. .

"When you have to keep a spinner bait down, the tandem willow leaf blades do a much better job," says Nixon.

The Evinrude pro has used this particular spinnerbait many times during his career and can't begin to estimate how much money the lure has won for him. He does remember that it was directly responsible for one of his four B.A.S.S. MegaBucks* victories and earned him $89,000.

"With that tournament format you're forced to fish water that has already been fished by as many as nine other anglers, so by the time you get there the bass have seen plenty of lures and generally aren't very aggressive," he said.

"That's why I like this spinner bait. Not very many anglers use this particular blade combination so the bass haven't seen it very often," he said. "The vibration pattern is slightly different, and I can put it in places other spinnerbaits may not reach.

"Besides all that, I simply have confidence in the lure," laughs Nixon, "and that may be the most important ingredient of all."

Students combine training with Air Force

A C-130 preparing to load ranger students gets swallowed by the dust cloud it created while landing on the dirt air strip of McKenna Strip Saturday.

Air Force training combined with ranger training Saturday when students from the Company C, 4th Ranger Training Battalion, participated in a mass tactical parachute drop that took off from the dirt landing strip at McKenna Strip.

"The ranger students will be dropping into a tactical scenario exercise out on Fryar drop zone," said Staff Sgt. Richard D. Chandler Jr., operations officer. "What this is, is the first day of the Darby phase for the ranger students.

"What we've done is taken this dirt air strip that has been on post for a long time and we've completely refurbished it to a point where it is usable again," he continued. "It's taken two years to get the strip to a point where the aircraft can use the strip to land on again."

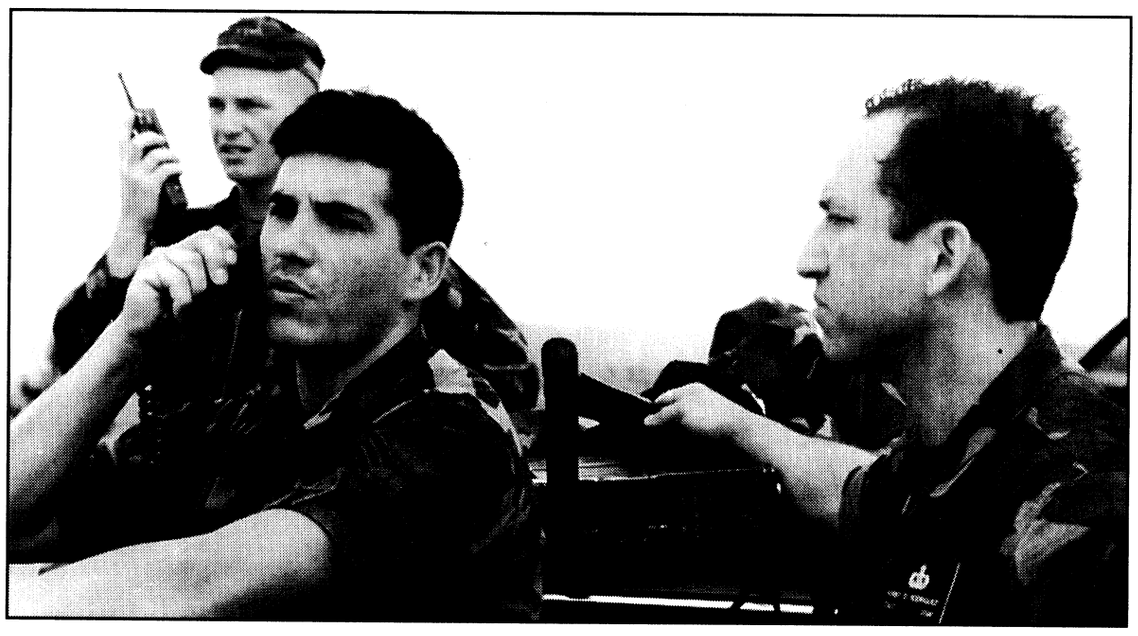
The training for the day began with the aircraft coming in and doing a low-level flyover to check out the runway, Chandler said. After the flyover, the aircraft performed a dirt landing and then moved into position on the Tarmac to pick up the ranger students.

The aircraft then moved back onto the landing strip and took off in the same direction it landed. The aircraft then headed for Fryar drop zone where the ranger students performed a tactical drop scenario, Chandler continued.

The training of the ranger students was done in conjunction with the training that was involved with the dirt landings of the Air Force pilots.

"This landing strip (McKenna) is one of three dirt landing strips in the Southeastern United States," Chandler said. "When a pilot lands on a concrete runway, they have all the benefits of a properly maintained runway. Here we have a situation that is more like an actual combat landing.

"When you're in a combat zone, you have to build and maintain a landing strip. McKenna landing strip is the exact type of landing strip that would be built in combat environment."



Landing on a dirt airstrip is different for the pilots because of the way they need to make their approach for landing, said Air Force pilot Capt. Stan Davis, from Little Rock Air Force Base, Ark.

"A dirt landing strip tends to be a little bit loose," Davis said, "so when you fly onto a dirt strip, direction control is key; and, you want to plant the plane into the landing strip a little bit firmer to get good established traction on the runway."

Chandler said landing on a dirt air strip is a requirement, like qualifying with the M-16, for the Air Force pilots. He said in the past, getting an aircraft would require making phone calls to try to coordinate with pilots for the use of the aircraft. With the dirt landing strip, Fort Benning is getting requests for the use of the dirt air strip.

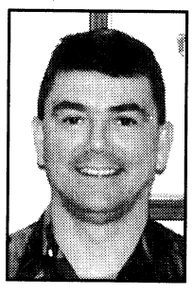
"What this basically means," Chandler said, "is almost a guarantee of aircraft whenever we need them."

Chandler said the training that took place Saturday was only the second use of the air strip since the McKenna strip was updated.

Sgt. Thomas Lapham and Tech. Sgt. Kirby Rodriguez, 62nd Combat Control Squadron coordinate with pilots from a mobile air traffic control system.

Ranger PAO NCO goes beyond duty call

By Lisa M. Hibbert
Bayonet staff writer



Sgt. Chuck Devers, assistant noncommissioned officer-in-charge of public affairs at the Ranger Training Brigade, Harmony Church goes beyond the call of duty in his job.

A soft-spoken man with graying hair and warm eyes, one would never know he had a hand in so many activities unless he told you. Responsible for the Phenix City adopt-a-ranger for the holidays program and the Phenix City schools adopting the Ranger Training Brigade, as well as being instrumental in getting the first Ranger Visa card, Devers is very modest about his accomplishments.

"I don't think I've gone beyond the call of duty," Devers said. "I was just doing my job."

He was also instrumental at Ranger Rendezvous and Ranger Hall of Fame programs. It was Devers who solicited the funds, helped plan the events, designed the invitations and made sure everything ran smoothly.

A PERSONAL LOOK

Name: Chuck Devers

Title: Assistant NCOIC, Public Affairs Office, RTB

Family: Wife, Cindy and son, Ross, 6

Professional vision: God, country and family

Interests: Basketball fanatic

QUOTE

Not a public affairs specialist through military occupational specialty, this former infantryman was put into his position in public affairs at RTB.

"I worked closely with Sgt. Maj. Patrick Hurley who was killed during Operation Desert Storm in 1991," Devers said. "The rangers renamed Victory Pond in his honor, and I had the privilege of driving the family around when they came to Fort Benning.

"Lt. Col. Danny W. Davis, who was the executive officer at RTB at that time was impressed with me and asked me to come work there," Devers said.

One of the highlights of his job has been the people that he met, Devers said.

"I got the opportunity to get to know people like retired Col. Ralph Puckett and former Lt. Philip B. Piazza whom I have adopted as my grandfathers."

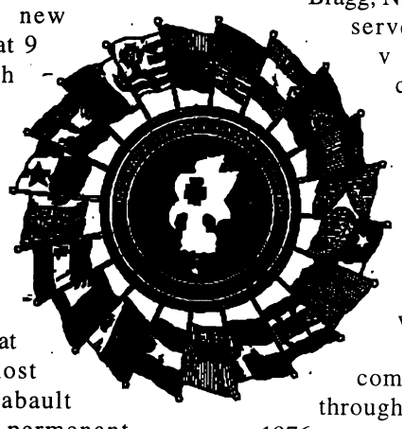
Devers got to know Puckett, a Ranger commander in both the Korean War and Vietnam, through working with him on the Ranger Foundation.

"Devers is a solder with a lot of initiative who is dedicated to doing what is right," Puckett said. "I have a lot of respect for him."

Not only does he like his job in public affairs, Devers really enjoys being a soldier and a ranger.

Devers was originally a Marine. He stayed in the corps for four years and transferred to the Army in 1984.

After serving for three years, he had risen in the ranks to staff sergeant. He got out in 1988, but he reenlisted in 1991 — as a private 2 due to his break in service, and has worked his way back up to sergeant.



"I didn't mind taking the cut because I knew that I would be able to make my rank back," Devers said.

Devers is leaving the Ranger Training Brigade and will be moving on to Fort Bragg, N.C.

SOA School Battalion gets new head honcho

By Judith Ginder
School of the Americas

The School Battalion at the School of the Americas will get a new commander, at 9 a.m. on March 27 at Ridgway Hall.

Lt. Col. Stephen E. Keeling replaces Lt. Col. Ahmed E. Labault, who has been at SOA for almost two years. Labault will make a permenant change of station to Washington, D.C. He will become the division chief of the Psychological Operations for the Special Operations Agency at the Pentagon. Col. Roy R. Trumble, SOA commandant, will be the reviewing officer for the ceremony.

Before this assignment, Keeling commanded the Psychological Operations Dissemination Battalion at Fort Bragg, N.C. He also served in various command-stations in Germany. As a field artillery officer, Keeling was commissioned through ROTC in 1976.

Keeling earned a bachelor of arts degree from Jacksonville State University, Fla., and a master's degree in area studies from Cornell University. His military education includes the Field Artillery Basic and Advanced courses and the Armed Forces Staff College.

Fire! Fire!
Post burns woodland

Lori Egan
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning is on fire! At least, that's what most post residents or people in the tri-community area probably think when they see the burned areas from January to August.

The Natural Resource Management Branch conducts controlled burns from January to August 30 each year.

According to Tom Brooks, red-cockaded woodpecker program coordinator for the Natural Resources Management Branch of the Directorate of Public Works, the three primary objectives for the burns are:

- To maintain and restore the longleaf pine ecosystem
- To open pine lands for training
- To reduce the amount of fuel on the ground, which reduces the likelihood of catastrophic wild fires similar to the Yellowstone fire in the late 1980s.

A benefit of the burns is it helps maintain and restore the natural habitat of the red-cockaded woodpecker, an endangered species, which lives in the mature pine forests of the Southeast, Brooks said.

Fort Benning received a directive from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in 1994 to burn on a three-year rotation to help promote the habitat of the red-cockaded woodpecker.

There are 180 active woodpecker clusters on Fort Benning and the Fish and Wildlife Service has requested that the population be increased to 360, Brooks said.

The ideal tree for the red-cockaded woodpecker to make a home (called a cavity) is the longleaf pine, Brooks said.

At one time, there were more than 90 million acres of longleaf pines in the Southeast. Now there are approximately 3 million.

"If the sections of the Natural Resource Management Branch could say we have one common objective, it would be to restore the longleaf pine ecosystem at Fort Benning," Brooks said.

"That is the system that has been lost and why the red-cockaded woodpecker is an endangered species, as well as some other species that rely on the longleaf pine ecosystem," Brooks continued.

Logging in the late 1800s and early 1900s is one of the reasons the longleaf is gone, Brooks said. Trees were taken off and weren't replanted. A lack of fire is another reason for the loss of trees.

"Ecosystems need to have periodic fires to stay healthy," Brooks said.

The longleaf pine is a very fire resistant species, which is why it is a better home for the woodpecker than the loblolly pine, Brooks said.

> Red-cockaded woodpecker program manager

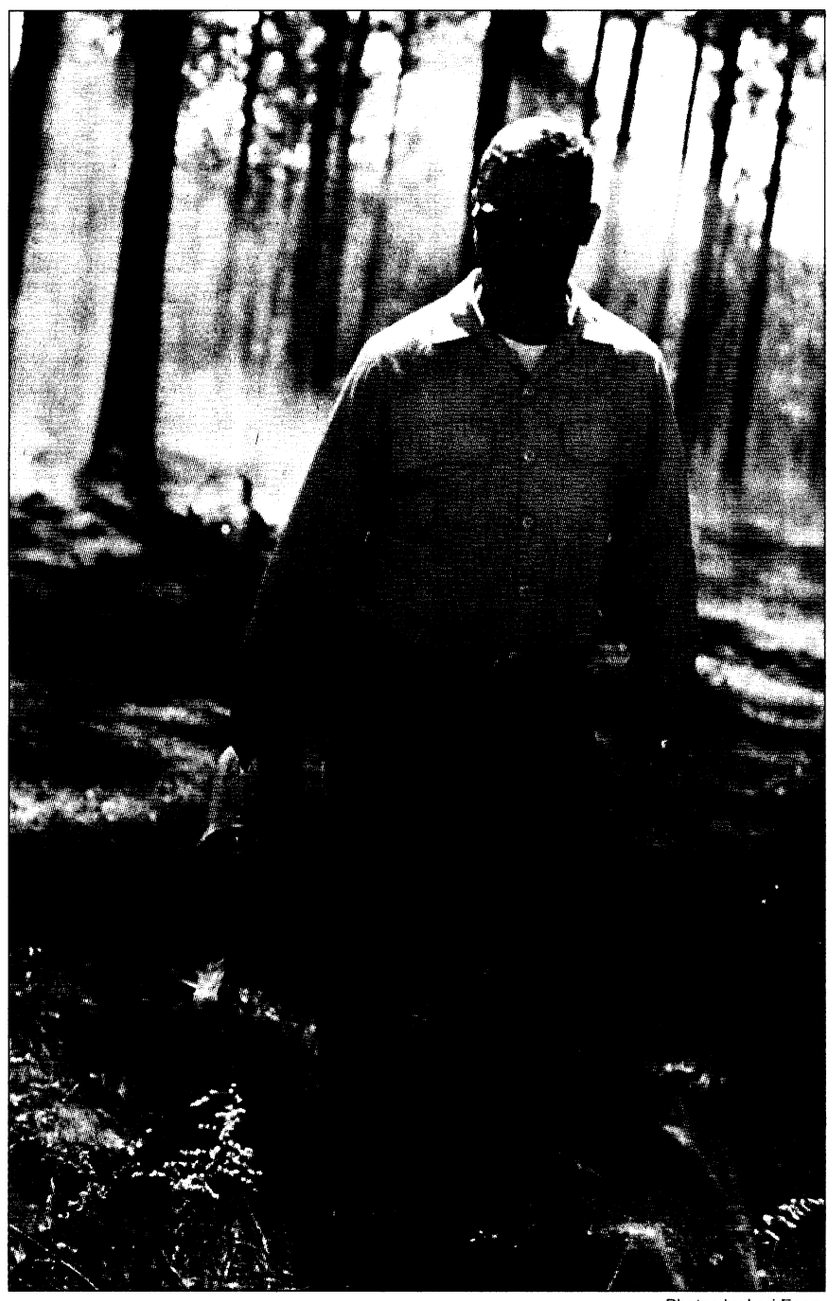
Although burning occurs January through August, in order to meet the fish and wildfire service three-year burn rotation requirement, the best time to burn is during the early growing season, from mid-March to May, because the trees have the rest of the growing season to recover and manufacture food for their dormant period, Brooks said.

During controlled burning, trees may experience some crown scorch on the lower branches, but live trees aren't harmed, said Jack Greenlee, program manager for fire management at NRMB.

"The fuel load is reduced every time we burn the underbrush," Greenlee said.

"The woodpeckers prefer an open, park-like habitat because historically this is the habitat where the birds have thrived and evolved," Greenlee said. "Snakes will climb the trees and get into the cavities and eat the eggs."

"Burning the underbrush also opens the land for more military training," Brooks said. "We have a lot of lands that haven't had fires for many years. And soldiers aren't able to train on those lands. Now that we're doing the growing season burns, we'll see a positive benefit to military training areas."



"We are seeing less occurrence of fires with the three-year rotation of burning," Greenlee said. "Fires don't burn as intensely or get as large because the fuel is not there as it was in the past. It's a safety feature for the trees."

"Our goal is to burn 25,000 acres on post per year," Greenlee said. "No two adjacent compartments are burned in the same year, which enhances biological diversity."

The fires are controlled by natural boundaries such as creeks and roads. Fire breaks are plowed if necessary, Greenlee said.

"We try not to plow fire breaks because there is a potential for erosion," Greenlee said.

"The bottom line is ecosystems have to undergo periodic fires in order to stay healthy," Brooks said. "And burning during the early growing season best mimics the natural fire season, during which lightning was the primary ignition source."

82nd punishes skinheads

American Forces Information Services

In December, the 82nd Airborne Division initiated an investigation that identified 22 soldiers as being allegedly involved in skinhead activities.

The following information summarizes the actions taken against these 22 soldiers.

Only nine of the identified soldiers were suspected of holding extremist views. They are all believed to be racist (neo-Nazi) skinheads. Three of those nine soldiers are in civilian confinement, awaiting trial for murder and conspiracy. One is facing a court-martial for an April 1995 shooting incident.

The remaining five soldiers are receiving nonjudicial punishment. This punishment ranges from rank reduction, pay forfeiture, restriction and extra duty. All nine of these soldiers alleged as racist skinheads will face possible separation from the Army.

Thirteen soldiers identified in the investigation are not suspected of being extremists.

Two were former racist skinheads, but allegedly quit. One of those soldiers is being separated from the Army for other misconduct; the other soldier has been counseled, reprimanded in writing and barred from re-enlisting.

Another five of the 13 soldiers are suspected of being Skinheads Against Racial Prejudice. SHARPs are not extremists but are prone to fight with racist Skinheads. All of these soldiers have been counseled and barred from re-enlisting. Two of the soldiers also received Article 15 punishments for other misconduct; the other three soldiers received written reprimands.

The remaining six soldiers were only nominally associated with skinheads. One soldier received an Article 15 for misconduct related to the April 1995 shooting. One soldier was the shooting victim. One soldier was already being separated for other acts of misconduct. The remaining three soldiers were counseled, with no further action required at this time.

A follow-on investigation required the division to recall one former division soldier from a military school. Suspected of being a racist, he was reassigned to division, counseled and barred from re-enlisting.

SGLI to increase coverage amount

By Lisa M. Hibbert
Special to The Bayonet

Effective April 1, the Servicemember's Group Life Insurance coverage amount for all soldiers will automatically be increased to $200,000. Payments for this coverage will also automatically be withdrawn from soldiers' pay at the end of April, regardless of previous amounts elected on the form by the soldier.

"If soldiers already have a $200,000 SGLI policy then they don't need to do anything," said Janie Seldon, chief, Records Section, Adjutant General's Office. "Those desiring no insurance or an amount less than $200,000 must come the Personnel Records Branch before April 30 and fill out a new form."

Reduced coverage is available at $10,000 increments and costs 90 cents per increment.

"The increase will only affect the amount of coverage," Seldon said. "The monthly cost to the soldier with a $200,000 policy will still be $18 per month."

Soldiers desiring to change their coverage amount may do so by making an appointment with the Personnel Records Branch at 545-5646 or 545-2611. Soldiers whose records are maintained on Kelley Hill can call 544-2216.

Group finds no widespread extremist activity

Army News Service

Secretary of the Army Togo D. West Jr. recently announced that his "Task Force on Extremist Activity: Defending American Values" found no widespread or organized extremist activity in the Army.

The task force, formed Dec. 12, 1995, did find that individuals or small, informal groups of individuals hold extremist views. Allegations or suspicions of widespread, concerted recruitment of soldiers for extremist causes, and participation by soldiers in extremist activities, were not substantiated.

"This tells us that the Army is composed of soldiers who reflect the American belief that extremism is unacceptable in our society and in the Army. It also recognizes the continuing challenge posed by even a minimal number of individuals who hold extremist views which are contrary to good order and discipline," West said.

The task force report addresses the assessment of extremism in the Army and human relations climate. It includes a review of current policies and the circumstances surrounding the Fayetteville homicides. Additionally, it contains conclusions, recommendations, background and methodology.

Based on the overall findings, West directed the Army to take immediate steps to improve its approach to extremist activities and its efforts to provide a human relations environment that fosters teamwork, respect for human dignity, and pride in oneself and the Army.

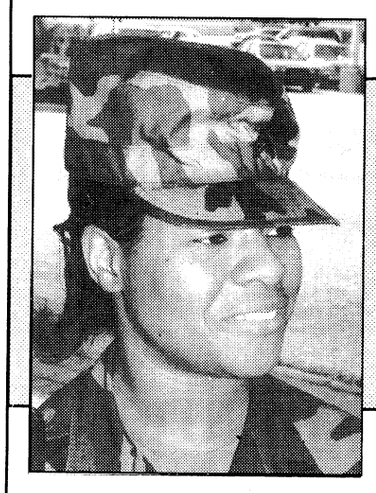
He directed that the Army:

- Revise, strengthen and clarify the current regulation governing involvement in extremist organizations
- Write and implement comprehensive regulations governing policies and procedures for quality of life initiatives
- Make substantial changes to the current Army Equal Opportunity Program. This program will be expanded to embrace all human relations issues, to include, but not be limited to, the elimination of extremism in the Army.

Two of the actions will involve the Department of Defense. Secretary West directed his staff to coordinate with the undersecretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness, Edwin Dorn, in a review of enlistment policies to see if there are ways to screen applicants who participate in extremist organizations. West also asked for Dorn's support in reviewing DoD's equal opportunity and race relations training.

West created the task force after the murders of Michael James and Jackie Burden on Dec. 7, 1995, in Fayetteville, N.C. Three soldiers assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg are charged in the murders.

The task force charter was to assess the influence of extremist groups in the Army and examine the effects of those groups on the human relations environment.



The task force conducted interviews at 28 installations, to include Fort Benning, in 16 states, Germany and Korea within a six-week period. More than 50 officers, noncommissioned officers, and Army civilian employees assisted the task force members in this effort. Less than one percent of the 7,638 interviewed reported that a soldier or civilian employee was an active participant in an extremist group. Less than 1 percent reported having any type of contact with extremist groups on or near Army installations.

The Army Research Institute analyzed 17,080 surveys completed by Army personnel. In the survey, 3.5 percent of the participants reported they have been approached to join extremist

HONORING THE COLORS

Do stars have a right to defame flag?

By Gary Sheftick
Army News Service

Recently, Denver Nuggets basketball star Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf was briefly suspended without pay for refusing to stand for the national anthem.

In reply to the suspension, Abdul-Rauf publicly denounced the flag as a "symbol of oppression and tyranny."

Abdul-Rauf's behavior and venomous words have been offensive to many fans, especially veterans. All season, as the rest of his teammates lined up for the anthem, Abdul-Rauf remained disrespectfully seated or hiding in the locker room. Since lining up for the national anthem is an NBA rule, the star was finally suspended. But justice was short-lived for the fans who saluted the NBA for its principles.

After just one game, Abdul-Rauf struck a deal with the NBA. Now the basketball star stands for the anthem, but covers his face as he supposedly prays to Allah. Does covering one's face during the anthem qualify as standing "in a dignified posture" as the NBA rule requires? Apparently many of the fans don't think so as they loudly boo in protest.

Ed Wearing, commander of the American Legion state organization in Colorado, suggested that Abdul-Rauf renounce his U.S. citizenship. Personally, it seems that denouncing allegiance to the nation and the flag is almost synonymous with renouncing citizenship.

After all, are not all naturalized citizens required to pledge allegiance?

Perhaps at age 18 those born in this country should take an oath of allegiance before gaining the full privileges of citizenship?

Maybe some of us take our citizenship a little too much for granted. All those who immigrate to this nation are required to become educated about the American political system before becoming citizens. No such requirement exists for native-born Americans like Abdul-Rauf, who was known as Chris Jackson before converting to Islam five years ago.

Regardless of religion or creed, all service members and DoD employees have taken a solemn oath to support and defend the U.S. Constitution and thereby the flag for which it stands.

Abdul-Rauf has denounced the flag for which more than a million Americans have given their lives over the years to defend.

Abdul-Rauf says the United States has "a long history of oppression and tyranny" and he can't pledge allegiance to that.

Maybe he would rather pledge allegiance to Iraq or Libya?

Some may applaud Abdul-Rauf for standing up for his beliefs.

If he were simply voicing dissent for a U.S. policy or suggesting improvements, it would be another matter. But Abdul-Rauf has nothing constructive to add to public debate. He just denounces the flag and all that it stands for.

Some may say that he has a first-amendment right to denounce the flag and the nation — or say anything else he wants to say.

Ed Wearing disagrees. He believes what Abdul-Rauf is doing is "tantamount to treason."

Free speech is only free until it infringes on the rights of others. After all, you can't scream fire in a crowded movie theater, and you can't advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

What message, I ask you, is Abdul-Rauf sending to our youth who look up to sports stars as role models?

Commissary should be customer friendly

I have a suggestion to help you in your $8.6 million renovation, and it's free. When I come to the Commissary, I get mad every time because of the baggers.

Yesterday, I went shopping and bought about $50 in groceries; they were bagged and carried out to my car. I handed the women $1 and I said thank you.

She frowned upon the dollar, turned and walked away. I really thought she was the one who should have said thank you.

That's my free advice for the renovation — for the baggers to appreciate what they get. One dollar may not be much but then again neither is five minutes of bagging.

It's not my fault they have to wait for a customer so long. I would actually rather bag myself but someone makes it to difficult for us by not allowing the push carts outside and the pull carts can't be borrowed.

If you are going to compete with the civilian grocery stores, Publix and Lewis Jones have no tipping bagger policies and they still smile and say thank you. I know they get paid by the hour ($4.50) but maybe the surcharge could pay for the baggers salaries after the renovation.

I'm sure you know by October 1998, we'll only be paying an additional 2 percent for our groceries, so I just thought since it is so easy to smile and say thanks, why not do it.

— Retired 1st Sgt. C. R. McGurk

Hospital gives good service

This is a letter of thanks. At the end of February, I spent some time at Martin Army Community Hospital.

There is only one comment I must make about my stay there.

I never dreamed (one hears so many contradicting voices) that the personnel of the Emergency Room, the Intensive Care Unit, and Ward 5B could be so sympathetic and pleasant without losing one minute of their efficiency.

Everyone of them — the doctors, the nurses, all the people involved — were just wonderful.

One can see that at times they seemed overworked, but they did not let this affect the care for their patients.

I am sure they all have problems of their own (who does not?), but they left them at the entrance of the hospital and put a smile on their faces.

So, thank you dear people! You do a wonderful job and should be proud of yourselves.

Call: The caller wanted to know why the military is giving furniture to agencies that help prisoners instead of giving it to military family members who need it.

Department of Public Works response:

The chief of the Furnishings Management Branch informed the caller that FMB's governing regulations would not permit DPW to give furniture to any type of agency. The caller was told that FMB issued furniture to troop units on this installation and to the School of the Americas instructor personnel. It was explained to her that FMB stopped issuing furniture to family quarters occupants effective Aug. 22. The caller was informed that FMB did turn in unserviceable and excess furnishings to the Fort Benning Defense Reutilization and Marketing Office. It was further explained that Dec. 2, DRMO had a quarters furniture sale out of one of FMB's furniture warehouses. The furniture had been turned in to DRMO by FMB on the proper documentation and DRMO was in charge of this furniture sale. She was also told that another sale of furnishings may be conducted with the approval of DRMO.

Call: The caller said she received notification that their garages will be torn down and no replacements will be built. She said the occupants will need a place to store the lawn equipment they are required to have to keep the lawns in shape. Caller feels the garages should not be torn down until the Army can ensure new ones will be built.

DPW response:

DPW explained that the garages were a safety hazard and must be removed. There is storage in the basements for some items and DPW will pursue exterior storage facilities. However, the Georgia State Historic Preservation Office requirements make it improbable that the work will be done this year.

Call: The caller said he was told that the minimum number of days for reservation of cabins at Destin would be decreased to allow a weekend stay for soldiers. He said the way it is now, soldiers have to take leave instead of a pass in order to reserve a cabin. He said you can't use the cabins on a three-day weekend because of the four night minimum required.

Directorate of Community Activities response:

The chief of the Recreation Division, DCA, explained that the Destin reservation policy allows for the 34 motel rooms at the Destin Recreation Area to be booked for one, two, or three nights with no minimum stay period. However the limited number of cabins have a minimum stay period and are designed with full kitchens for long periods of occupancy. Average cabin occupancy time during the busy season in fiscal 95 was six days. The 34 motel rooms were constructed especially for soldiers and students at Fort Benning who wanted to stay at Destin for shorter periods of time.

BOSS Program receives new SSQL program manager

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

After five years in the Army and spending 17 months with the 75th Ranger Regiment as a single soldier with limited experience with the Fort Benning Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers program, Sgt. Jason A. Ruby stepped into the position of Single Soldier Quality of Life Program manager.

Ruby took over the position of program manager from Stacey Smith after being told by a friend at the Ranger Regiment that he would excel in the position.

"I've had limited exposure to the BOSS program prior to applying for the position," Ruby said. "Being a single soldier ever since I've been in the Army, BOSS was something that had an effect on me, but I never really had a lot of exposure to the program.

"I came to learn about the job through Sgt. Willie Briskey, the Regimental BOSS representative, who told me to look into the position because he thought I would excel at the position and bring fresh blood to the program."

Ruby said his point of contact for the position was supposed to be Smith, but because of her hectic schedule, he had a difficult time getting in contact with her.

"I ended up calling over to the office and talking with Spc. (Michael) James, the BOSS president," Ruby said. "Through the few conversations I had with Spc. James, I got a rough idea of what the job was all about. So, I wrote up a resumé of my military accomplishments, and I interviewed with Sgt. Maj. (Steven) Chittum who gave me a letter of recommendation."

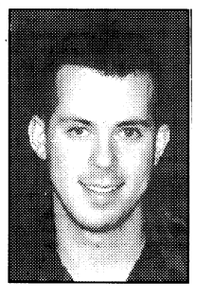
When he entered the job, Ruby said his limited exposure to the BOSS program allowed him to enter the job with no preconceived notions or ideas.

"Prior to coming into this position, the only things I really knew about the BOSS program were the blue recycle bins and the supplement I read," Ruby said. "I didn't see BOSS as a really active program because the things that apply to other units don't necessarily apply to the soldiers over at the regiment.

"But now that I've seen more of the job I see the potential of the program and I see a lot of the exciting things that can be done," Ruby continued. "I'd like to see the program take any action or make any decisions keeping in mind how it's going to affect the single soldiers living in the barracks."

The former program manager, Smith, said she thinks Ruby has a lot of potential to bring great things to the BOSS program.

"From my standpoint, I think the program needed someone who is highly intelligent, motivated and a self initiator," Smith said. "I saw all of those qualities in Sgt. Ruby. When I was with the program, we laid the foundation for a great program, I think someone of Sgt. Ruby's high quality can take that foundation and build it into a great thing."



After interviewing Ruby and eventually giving the position to him, Chittum said he thinks Ruby's past military experience and his potential will do great things for the program.

"I think he's an outstanding noncommissioned officer, he's motivated, aggressive and he's a self initiator," Chittum said. "He came into the program during the week of the Army Community of Excellence and within a day, he was already briefing the ACOE team.

"He was with the Ranger Regiment, which has provided him experience with high-speed operations. His position is one that is appointed, not elected, which means he has proven that he is the most qualified person for this position."

Ruby will be serving as the SSQL program manager for one year or until his marital status changes.

Students provide info to school board

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Students from Dexter Elementary School shared information about various extracurricular activities that support the school system's strategic plan benchmarks with school board members during the March meeting Monday.

Vicki Rogers, principal, assisted students from kindergarten through fifth grade in providing an overview of 11 different before- and after-school programs.

Some of those clubs include: Dyno-Tech, Sign Language, Ambassadors, Peacemakers, K Club, Math Club and Green Thumbs.

Col. Gregory Camp, board president, said Fort Benning school children are a testament to the great additional educational support the teachers provide.

"The extracurricular activities we offer throughout the entire school system are unbelievable," he said.

In her report, Dr. Dell Karr, schools superintendent, informed the board, Fort Benning Schools have received funding for a half-day preschool program to begin the 1996-1997 school year.

Karr said surveys had been distributed throughout all post housing communities to determine eligibility and needs of Fort Benning families. In order to be eligible to participate in the program, children must be 4 years old before or on Sept. 1.

Karr also informed board members that steel and sheeting arrived, on schedule, for the re-roofing of McBride Elementary School.

According to new school board instruction, Karr said Fort Benning School Board elections should be conducted at the same time of local elections — November.

In other business, the board approved the recommendation that the Fort Benning Schools not make up the two and one-half days missed due to Hurricane Opal, thereby maintaining the current calendar.

The board also approved the recommendation to appoint Sgt. Joe Todd to serve as the Loyd School representative effective with the April meeting, with his term to run until the next board election.

The board approved the Consolidated Income Statements for the School Lunchroom Fund for January and February. Monthly net income for January was $6,581 while the current year-to-date loss was $4,936. The fund equity for January was $60,272.

For February, the monthly net income was $20,833 while the year-to-date income was $15, 897. The current fund equity stands at $81,408.

Other board members present were: Chap. (Maj.) EXTREMIST: Army identifies areas of concern

Also, 7.1 percent reported they knew another soldier whom they believed to be a member of an extremist organization.

Although the task force found minimal evidence of extremist activity in the Army, it identified areas of concern.

- The Army regulation on participation in extremist organizations is misunderstood and confusing to soldiers and junior leaders.
- Existing Army training programs and assessment tools do not adequately address extremism.
- Gang related activities appear to be more pervasive than extremist activities on and near Army installations and are becoming a significant security concern for many soldiers.
- Existing open installations combined with less regulated barracks policies have degraded commanders' knowledge about soldiers activities after duty hours.

The efforts of the task force have given the Army a good idea of where it can focus its efforts to improve the environment in which soldiers, civilians and families work and live.

EO Office to conduct planning meeting

The Equal Opportunity Office is having a planning meeting for the Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month today at 11 a.m. at Building 2515.

The EO Office is requesting all activities and units to send representatives to this meeting.

For information, call Sgt. 1st Class Victor Wynn at 544-6961 or 545-6665.

AER campaign set

The Army Emergency Relief Fund Campaign kicked off March 1 and will continue through May 15.

AER, which was established Feb. 5, 1942, is a nonprofit organization dedicated solely to "Helping the Army Take Care of its Own."

AER offers loans and grants or a combination of the two to soldiers, family members, Reserve and National Guard soldiers on extended active duty, retirees, widows and orphans of soldiers who died on active duty or after retirement.

Post drug program changes name

The Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Program or ADAPCP and community counseling center is now the Substance Abuse Rehabilitation Department.

The office is still located in the same area, Building 324, behind the Infantry Museum. For information, call 545-6167 or 545-2742.

Delta Force team to conduct orientation

The Delta Force team will conduct general orientation briefings Monday at 1 p.m. and Tuesday through Thursday twice daily at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. in Infantry Hall, classroom 9.

The physical fitness qualification test will be administered April 5 at 7 a.m. on Stewart-Watson Field. Following the test will be a 100-meter swim test at Briant Wells Swimming Pool. Uniform for all is battle dress uniform and combat boots. For information, call Carol Gilchrist at 545-1917 or 545-4702.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland areas will take place Monday through April 6. If weather permits, the following compartments will be affected: A-9, A-14, B-3, B-5, C-1, D-2, D-7, D-10, D-12, E-3, E-5, F-2, G-4, H-1, I-2, J-5, K-6, L-4, M-1, O-1, O-4, O-7, O-9, Q-5, V-4,.W-1, W-4, X-4 and Z-2.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species' habitat and training areas. Personnel proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while travelling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Units using ranges and training areas are reminded to remove flammable debris, such as pinestraw, leaves, grass and trash from around structures in accordance with U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-4, Paragraph 5-22, Organizational Maintenance.

For information, call Jack Greenlee, Natural Resources Management Branch, at 544-6206.

Top drill sergeant to be honored

A ceremony honoring Sgt. 1st Class Gregory J. Mance, Fort Benning's 1996 Drill Sergeant of the Year will be April 12 at 3:30 p.m. in the Sand Hill Recreation Center.

Retreat ceremony set

The Commanding General's Monthly Retreat Ceremony will be April 4 at 4 p.m. on York Field in front of Infantry Hall. All are welcome and encouraged to attend. For information, call Capt. Brian Pigg at 545-3816 or 545-1132.

Tax Office to close

The Fort Benning Tax Office will accept the last tax returns for electronic filing April 8. The office will continue to offer forms and other limited services through April 15. The office will close for the season April 15.

The office is located in Building 2640 at Soldiers' Plaza and will be open Monday to Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Unit tax advisers have also been appointed for units throughout the post. Persons having tax questions should see their unit tax adviser first. For more information, call Capt. Scott L. Frost at 545-3281.

Center changes hours

The Welcome Center is now open Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday 2 to 10 p.m.

Inprocessing will be from opening hours until 20 minutes prior to closing hours.

Outprocessing soldiers may report to the Welcome Center or call to make an appointment 10 days before departure from the installation. For more information, call 545-5404.

New traffic signs to be posted

In an effort to ease traffic flow and better serve the patrons of Fort Benning, several changes are being made to existing traffic control devices.

The Directorate of Public Safety and the Directorate of Public Works are working together to figure out the best way to move traffic around the installation, especially the Main Post area.

So far, the following changes have been made:

- "Stop" sign at Holtz and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Chesney and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Indianhead and Merchant changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" signs on Moye and 11th Airborne Division removed

A traffic study is currently under way at Edwards and Burr streets to evaluate the feasibility of changing this light to a two-way stop.

All drivers on Fort Benning should be made aware of and adhere to the posted traffic control devices.

Armor Center seeks nominees for Frederick M. Franks Jr Award

Adjutant General's Office

Fort Benning is seeking nominations for the annual Frederick M. Franks Jr. Award, which has been established by the U.S. Army Armor Center to recognize individuals who make long-term contributions to the ground warfighting capabilities of the U.S. Army.

The award will be presented to an active duty or reserve officer, noncommissioned officer, department of the Army civilian, or a leader of business and industry.

The individual should possess two or more of the following characteristics of duty performance during the year or years preceding the award. He or she must have:

- Offered a vision for the future of the mounted warfighting force that significantly improved combat survivability, lethality, maneuverability or mobility.
- Developed an innovation in equipment, material or doctrine that significantly enhanced the effectiveness of mounted elements of the combat arms.
- Exemplified professional excellence in demeanor, correspondence and leadership on issues relevant to mounted warfare.
- Revealed a love of soldiering through leadership skills, recognition of the sacrifice and achievements of subordinates and must have shown attention to the intent and directions of higher commanders.

Nominations can be made in the form of a letter to the president of the Franks Award Panel , detailing the achievements of the nominee according to the criteria listed above.

The eligibility period is the calender year. Recommendation of an awardee will be made by the Franks Award Panel and forwarded to the chief of Armor for final approval.

The winner will be presented his or her award at the annual armor conference June 4 through 6. Expenses for the temporary duty will be paid by the U.S. Army Armor School.

Fort Benning can only forward one nominee for consideration of the award. Therefore, all recommendations will be forwarded to the commanding general for decision on which nominee will be forwarded to the Fort Knox, Ky., award selection panel.

Any individual can recommend another individual for the award. Recommendations are to be submitted through the brigade level or equivalent military or civilian organizations, as appropriate, to the AG, Soldier Actions, Attn: ATZB-AGP. Award packets must be received by April 1.

For more information, call Shirley Covington at 545-4702 or 545-3341.

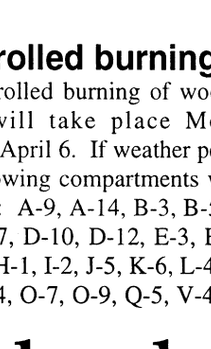
Columbus '96 needs Olympic volunteers

By Lisa M. Hibbert
Bayonet staff writer

Looking for a way to help your community and meet the athletes that will be competing in the upcoming Olympic games?

"Columbus '96 is looking for volunteers to help drive the athletes to and from the Olympic games and the Olympic village this summer," said Brian Newman, Columbus '96 official.

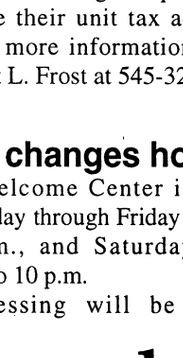
To be eligible, volunteers must:



- Be over 21
- Have a valid U.S. drivers license
- Have a good driving record

"Volunteers will be provided with uniforms that they will be able to keep as lasting souvenirs of the games," Newman said.

Volunteers are needed between July 5 and Sept. 1. Applications must be in by April 1.



For more information, call Newman at 660-1996 or 569-1066.

SCHOOL OF THE AMERICAS

Soldiers deploy to Dominican Republic

Photos by Kim Anglesey

Four Soldiers from the Dominican Republic Army train with night sticks during the School of the Americas crowd control and civil disturbances training.

By Judith Ginder
School of the Americas

As soldiers from the United States have embarked in the recent past to places like Haiti or Bosnia helping those nations maintain peace, leaders from the Dominican Republic have decided to take a more proactive route.

That's where the School of the Americas fits in. Last month, five members of the SOA tactics section went to the Dominican Republic to train its armed forces in crowd-control techniques.

The Dominicans requested the training for their armed forces to assist their civilian police force, said Capt. Kim Anglesey, tactics team chief. Upcoming elections in the country may cause civil unrest; and although the national police force is well-trained, crowds may become too much for them to control alone. The armed forces haven't been trained in riot control in a while, and what they do remember has not been maintained and is not standard throughout the force, Anglesey said.

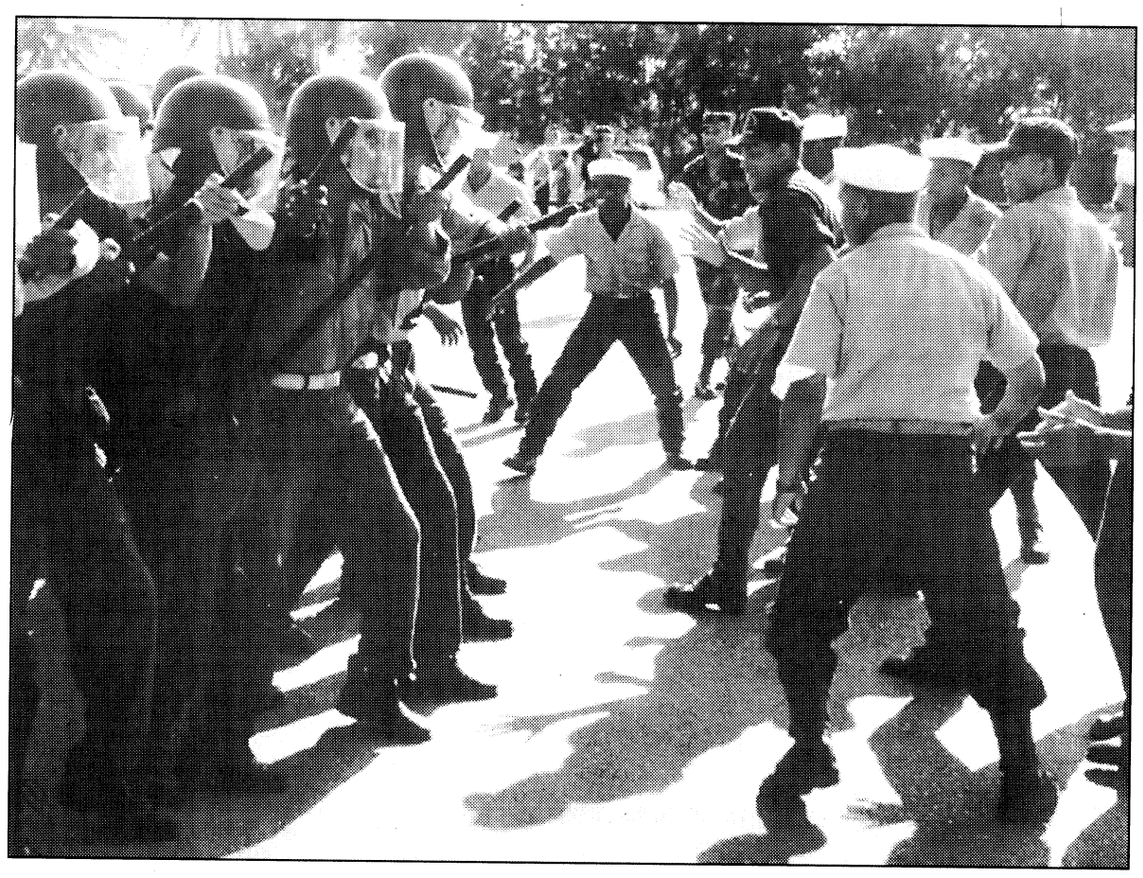
The five-man team from SOA went to three different bases in the Dominican Republic to train its army, navy and air force. Anglesey said that the team spent 3 1/2 days training each group of 50 to 60 officers, noncommissioned officers and enlisted members.

"We first gave them an introduction to civil disturbances," Anglesey said.

Then, he said, they showed how to train for a civil disturbance, how to plan it, how to lead and conduct formations and how to use a riot baton and other protective equipment.

"Human rights training is always important," Anglesey said. "But it is especially the case with civil disturbances."

He said that rules of interaction and the use of force were highly stressed.



"Each phase of training had practical exercises," Anglesey said. "And at the end of the training, there was a seven-hour practical exercise where we had different crowd-control scenarios set up."

In addition to the training received by everyone, the officers received training specific to their role in riot control techniques, he said. That training included crowd behaviors, the mental preparation of their soldiers, how to train their soldiers, and making sure the officers knew the commands for crowd control formations and how to give the commands for the formations.

The team from SOA was instructed by a civil disturbance instructor from the Military Police School at Fort McClellan, Ala. The instructor was at SOA for several days and showed the team how to teach crowd-control formations and other things necessary for teaching the Dominicans.

Anglesey said since SOA doesn't normally instruct crowd control, the team derived the lesson plans and training aids from scratch, using materials from the MP School and from FM 19-15 (Civil Disturbance Operations).

Although he was the only MP on the team, Anglesey said all of the members had experience with civil disturbance operations and were trained and ready to give first-class instruction to the Dominican Republic forces.

Soldiers from the Dominican Republic are attacked by the Dominican Republic Navy during the riot control scenario of the School of the Americas training.

Senior Status

Capt. Kevin L. Leonard, Company B, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, commander, helps the regiment's new honorary colonel, retired Brig. Gen. Walter J. Bickston, tie the senior status banner to the Co. B guidon. The ceremony, conducted in Building 4's Marshall Auditorium, formally granted the students of Class 2-96 senior status, which is composed of the last three weeks of the 14-week course and represents the final preparations for the class to be commissioned as second lieutenants April 11. During the ceremony, retired Command Sgt. Maj. Eddie L. Roberts was named the 11th Inf. Regt. honorary sergeant major.

New M-2A2 BFV unveiled

By Ron McLendon II
MDW News Service

An M-2A2 Bradley Fighting Vehicle parked in the Pentagon's mall entrance lower-level parking area earlier this month became the forum for demonstrations on the effectiveness of the new Battlefield Combat Identification System.

The purpose of the demonstration March 13 and 14 was to show how the system, BCIS for short, greatly reduces the risk of fratricide for land vehicles in combat, said Staff Sgt. Richard Gano, of the Gunnery Doctrine at Fort Knox, Ky.

In the language of developers, BCIS is a ground-to-ground, multi-function, all-weather, day-or-night, low-probability-of-interception, low-probability-of-detection, question-and-answer system that provides positive identification of friendly targets.

"We have taken the lessons learned in Saudi and put them to use," Gano said.

"Basically what BCIS does is send out a frequency to a target; and, in less than a second a gunner will know if it is friendly or not if other (friendly) vehicles are equipped with BCIS," Gano said.

The system allows the gunner or commander to make a rapid shoot-or-don't-shoot decision at the point of engagement, Gano said. The interrogation process is triggered by activation of the shooter's laser range finder, automatically sending an encrypted query to the "target platform." If the target is friendly, its transponder sends back an encrypted answer.

When the interrogator receives the answer, it gives a "friend" response to the gunner. If there is an invalid answer, or no answer is received, an "unknown" response is provided. All responses are provided visually in the gun sight, or as audible tones on the intercom system, or both, Gano explained. The gunner has no need to remove his eyes from the target.

BCIS comprises four line-replaceable units: an interrogator antenna; an armor-plated receiver and transmitter; a transponder antenna mast mounted on the receiver and transmitter, and an interface unit with digital components, including the encryption function.

"These four pieces of equipment are easily mounted onto the Bradley, Humvee, or Abrams (M-1A1 and M-1A2 Abrams Tank)," Gano said. Platform-specific installation kits will integrate the BCIS onto these and other platforms.

"We've tested at Camp Roberts, Calif.; Fort Greely, Alaska; Camp Grayling, Mich.; and Yuma Proving Ground, Ariz.," Gano said. Tests have used Abrams tanks, the Bradley, fire-support-team vehicles and Humvees.

During field tests, BCIS was subjected to environmental conditions ranging from clear sky to fog, severe cold conditions (down to 42 degrees below zero), ice, snow, wind, severe heat, sand, rain, shock and vibration.

"The system has met and exceeded performance requirements," Gano said, "and it is something that is going to save lives."

The Bradley on display also showed other improvements made to it since Operation Desert Storm. Other product improvements include: eye-safe laser range finder, a global positioning system, a digital compass, driver's infrared-viewer enhancer, missile-countermeasure device, improved gunner's hand station and stowage to accommodate more missiles.

11th Regt names honorary Col, CSM

11th Infantry Regiment

The 11th Infantry Regiment conducted an Honorary Colonel and Honorary Command Sergeant Major Induction Ceremony Monday at 2 p.m.

Retired Brig. Gen. Walter J. Bickston was inducted as honorary colonel of the 11th Infantry Regiment, and retired Command Sgt. Maj. Eddie L. Roberts was inducted as honorary command sergeant major.

The positions of honorary colonel and command sergeant major are approved by the Department of the Army and provide for past distinguished members of the regiment to establish a historical link to today's soldiers.

Commissioned in 1954, Bickston has commanded the 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, in Vietnam in 1969. His final assignment before retirement, was chief of staff, 18th Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg, N.C.

His awards include the Distinguished Service Medal Silver Star with oak leaf cluster, the Legion of Merit with two oak leaf clusters, The Soldier's Medal, Bronze Star with valor device and two oak leaf clusters, and the Defense Meritorious Service Medal.

He was promoted to brigadier general on Oct. 1, 1982. He and his wife, Barbara, have three children and currently reside in McLean, Va.

Ruth J. Spaller

Col. John P. Lewis, commander of the 11th Infantry Regiment (right), passes the regimental colors to retired Brig. Gen. Walter J. Bickston, honorary colonel.

Retired Command Sgt. Maj. Eddie L. Roberts entered the military in February 1965. He has served in Vietnam, Korea, Germany and Panama. His assignments include command sergeant major of the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry, 11th Infantry Regt.; command sergeant major of the 1st Bn., 23rd Inf. Regt.; and command sergeant major of the 11th Inf. Regt.

Robert's military awards and badges include the Legion of Merit, the Purple Heart with oak leaf cluster, Meritorious Service Medal with three oak leaf clusters, the Army Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters, the Combat Infantryman Badge Master Parachutist badge and the Ranger Tab.

Roberts lives in Columbus, and is employed as a manager at the Columbus Bank and Trust Company.

1/29 receives Department of the Army Maintenance Award

1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment received the Department of the Army's Maintenance Excellence Award for fiscal 1995 Monday and will be honored at a ceremony at the Pentagon, June 5.

> "Despite the battalion's heavy training commitments, we were able to put on an excellent showing."
> — Capt. Kenneth C. Kelley
> 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

"This is the sixth time the unit has won this award," said Master Sgt. Michael Haugen, battalion motor sergeant.

The unit had previously won the Training and Doctrine Command's Maintenance Excellence Award for fiscal 1995 and was presented with that award at the Army Communities of Excellence Breakfast March 5.

Preparation for the competition began in October 1994 by ensuring that its maintenance program incorporated the Department of the Army maintenance standard, said Chief Warrant Officer 3 David Baker, battalion maintenance technician.

"Throughout the year, the unit not only met, but surpassed the DA standards in records keeping and daily operations and by experiencing zero accidents."

The unit began compiling the unit's statistical data in June and submitted the unit's maintenance profile to Fort Benning headquarters in October 1995, Baker said.

In November, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Regt., was selected as Fort Benning's maintenance award winner for the eighth consecutive year, and their maintenance profile was forwarded to the TRADOC level.

December brought notification of a first-place finish at the TRADOC level — for the sixth time.

The unit placed among the top three semi-finalists and received an on-site inspection Feb. 7 and 8.

"We only had 10 days (from the time the unit learned of the pending visit) to prepare our best showing," Baker said. "While we had maintained the standards throughout the year, there was a great deal of fine tuning that had to be done."

The battalion put forth a combined effort to prepare for the inspection, he said.

"Despite the battalion's heavy training commitments, we were able to put on an excellent showing," said Capt. Kenneth C. Kelley.

Upon their arrival at the 1st Bn, 29th Inf. Regt., the evaluators were given an in-briefing outlining the unit's structure, mission and maintenance operations. Every area of the battalion's maintenance program was evaluated and the soldiers received numerous commendable comments from the evaluators, Kelley said.

AAFES accepts American Express

Army News Service

DALLAS — American Express Cards will be accepted at Army and Air Force Exchange Services worldwide beginning April 8.

With the addition of American Express cards, AAFES now accepts Discover, Visa and MasterCard.

Exchange customers may use any of these credit cards to make purchases in any stores that now accept credit. Exchange Mail Order Catalog customers have been able to use the American Express card for purchases since March 1.

"We're responding to requests from American Express Card holders that we accept American Express cards," stated Maj. Gen. A.D. (Doug) Bunger, commander, AAFES. "We're pleased we can offer our customers this additional service which basically rounds out the credit card program we began over 10 years ago."

American Express offers six types of credit cards, and all will be accepted by AAFES: the original green card, the gold card, Optima, American Express and Delta Airlines Sky Miles Card, American Express Hilton Card and the Government American Express card.

Purchases with the Government American Express card, which has been issued to many military members for use in conjunction with temporary duty assignments, will be be accepted for a limited range of merchandise and services, such as gasoline, authorized for TDY.

Any purchase that exceeds the authorized levels for the government card must be approved by American Express, which monitors the contract the card company has with the government agencies.

Everyone is invited to attend the service.

Firemen and Company strike up harmony

By Pam Newbern
Special to The Bayonet

Harold Kelley is a singing fireman.

It's not that he whistles while he works or hums his favorite song while inspecting houses as part of his fire prevention duties.

Instead, the engineer at Fort Benning's Fire Station 2 at the airfield really is a "Singing Fireman."

Specifically, he's one of four firemen and two others who sing in a group known — not surprisingly — as "The Singing Firemen and Company."

The four firemen — Kelley, Eddie Alexander; Willie Walden and Bernard Baker, together with Mattie Bryant and Willie Hale — bring gospel music to a wide variety of settings, including churches, schools and retirement ceremonies.

It's a calling the group has followed for the past three years.

"One of the guys in the group had an engagement — he was asked to sing a solo," said Kelley. "He asked the others to help him."

It's a service to the community, said Bryant, who chooses most of the group's songs.

Pam Newbern

"We're relaying a message to the people," she said. "When you sing before an audience, you don't know what needs need to be met. You don't know what lives are touched."

"These firemen have a good relationship with kids," she continued. "They've done so many beautiful things to help underprivileged kids."

Bryant said the firemen have provided shoes, clothes and toys to needy children.

They also provide their services as singers — without charge — to whomever asks.

"We enjoy doing what we do," said Kelley. "We try not to turn down any engagement."

Their singing — done on their days off — has taken the group throughout the Columbus and Phenix City areas, as well as Birmingham, Ala. They are currently looking for both a pianist and someone who would be willing to donate a keyboard to the group.

The Singing Firemen and Company has had a busy year so far, with two engagements in January, six in February during Black History Month, and two so far in March. They sing for young and old, striving to touch others with their faith.

"When I sing, I like to have a message," Bryant said. She explained her message is, "regardless of the circumstances, the Lord and you can handle it."

Kelley agreed, saying, "When I sing, I sing what I feel and I feel what I sing. I'm hoping who I'm singing to will get that message."

While the firemen don't go around singing all day, Baker said the two jobs do overlap.

"We carry ourselves in a spiritual way," he said. "It always spills over. At least, we hope it does."

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

Faith School students write winning essays

Editor's note: An essay contest was conducted in honor of Women's History Month. Students from Faith Middle School used writing and creativity styles to participate in the contest. The theme was "Which woman in history do you admire most?

First-place winner was Michael Smith; second place went to Debra Hernandez. The following are the winning essays.

By Michael Smith
Faith School seventh-grader

Harriet Beecher Stowe is a famous American whom I admire. This essay is about her. Harriet was the daughter of an orthodox minister. She had a difficult childhood for she always felt she could never please her father. She once said she would like to "...take her faults to an early grave...."

In 1832, Harriet's father got a job as president of Lane Theological Seminary in Cincinnati, Ohio. Just across the river was slave territory. On her visits to plantations, Harriet saw for herself the inhumanity of slavery and she began to despise it. It was also in Ohio that Harriet met her husband, Calvin Stowe. He too strongly opposed slavery. Together they helped many slaves escape to safety.

Another important year in Harriet's life was 1850. The Fugitive Slave Law was passed that forcibly returned slaves to their owners and fined and imprisoned anyone who helped a runaway slave. Also, it was 1850 when Harriet moved to New Brunswick, Maine.

While in Maine, Harriet's sister-in-law encouraged her to "write something that would make this whole nation feel what an accursed thing slavery is!" This encouragement along with the Fugitive Slave Law prompted Harriet to write "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

After reading parts of "Uncle Tom's Cabin, I would like to briefly tell about it. Uncle Tom was a nice man who was owned by the Shelby family. Because of a debt, Mr. Shelby was forced to give up Tom to a New Orleans dealer. On their journey to New Orleans, Tom saves the life of a girl named Eva and her father, St. Clair, buys Tom. For two years, Tom is content with his new family. Suddenly, without a warning Eva is killed. Tragedy strikes again when Eva's father, Tom's owner, dies in an accident. Simon Legree then buys Tom.

As the story nears its end, Tom is aware of the location of two runaway slaves. He refuses to tell Simon. Consequently, Simon beats Tom to death. While Tom lay dying, Mr. Shelby's son, Tom's first owner, appears and pledges to become an abolitionist.

Since the publication of the book, the name Simon Legree has become synonymous with cruelty.

Some historians believe that Uncle Tom's Cabin was one of the reasons that there was a Civil War. In fact, when Harriet Beecher Stowe visited Abraham Lincoln, he asked, "Is this the little woman who made the great war?".

Why did Lincoln say this? Well, the book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or "Life Among the Lowly," was first published in The National Era, in serial form. With this wide distribution and the book's "vivid descriptions of suffering and oppression," a strong antislavery feeling was provoked in the North.

Even after the Civil War, the book continued to influence millions for it has been translated into more than 20 languages and has been performed on the stage and in movie productions.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" however, was not the only book Harriet wrote. She also wrote a housekeeping manual for women, "The Mayflower;" a collection of tales; "Ored;," "A Tale of the Dismal Swamp;" and "The Minister's Wooing," one thought equaled the success or longevity of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Although, Harriet died in 1896, about 100 years ago , she is still thought of as a great American to this very day.

Susan Brownell Anthony was a U. S. refomer. She was born in Adams, Mass., in 1820. She died in 1906. Her participation in the woman's suffrage helped to bring about the 19th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution in 1920.

She received her early education from her father, then went to a boarding school in Philadelphia. Miss Anthony became a teacher and advanced to the head of the Female Department of Canajoharie Academy in New York (1846-49). After she left her teaching, she went into reform activities.

In 1852, she helped organize the Woman's State Temperance Society of New York. By 1853, she was active in women's rights causes, working close to Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Both of them organized the Women's National Loyal League to support the Union in the Civil War. They were among the first to advocate Negro suffrage.

After the war, she devoted herself to the women's suffrage, lecturing in one state after another. With Stanton, she founded the National Woman Suffrage Association in 1869. In 1842, Anthony led a small group of women in voting at Prachester, New York, claiming this privilege under the 14th Amendment. She was arrested; however, Anthony's trial focused national attention to securing voting rights for women. From 1892 to 1900, she was president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association.

Anthony was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1950 and 1979. She became the first woman to be depicted on United States currency-the dollar coin.

ask the judge

By Michael H. Lane
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q. We bought our first home recently. The agent told us that our house payment would be "about" $500 per month on our 30-year mortgage. When we got the coupon book from the mortgage company, our monthly payments were more than $650. The agent says that the $650 reflects $495 for payments on the mortgage itself, and that $155 is for the escrow account. What is this escrow account, and can they make me pay the higher amount?

A. An escrow account is a fund that a lending institution establishes in order to pay charges assessed against property on which they hold a mortgage or loan.

The account is authorized in your contract with the lender and provides for the payment of property taxes, insurance and other charges against the property. This allows the lender to protect his investment in your home.

For example, if you did not pay insurance premiums on the home, and it burned, the lender would lose his security for the repayment of the loan. If your property taxes went unpaid, the property could be foreclosed and sold to pay the taxes, again affecting loan security. Most mortgage loans require escrow, whether VA, FHA or a commercial loan.

The escrow account is a part of your contract. Many of them operate on a 12- or 14-month average of all bills paid by the particular account. Assume that your annual property tax is $1,200 on the property, payable in January and July and that your homeowner's insurance is $300 per year. The bank totals the bills ($1,500), divides by 12 ($125) and adds that amount to each month's payment. If the taxes go up during the year to $1,500, the escrow will be adjusted up to $150 per month. An escrow account may hold up to two extra payments per year, called a "cushion," to cover unexpected increases in the bills in the account.

This is only an example of the workings of the account, not the only way the account may operate. Your escrow agent has a customer service department that will respond to written, specific questions about your account.

If you do not understand the explanation, a real estate agent or mortgage agent may be able to help.

For general advice, the Legal Assistance Office, Building 5, is available to assist you in these and other matters by appointment. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; the telephone number is 545-3282.

Military Police Activity

This week's hot topic is about bicycle safety.

Spring is near and the weather is improving. As the weather becomes nicer, more children will ride their bicycles to school and spend more time playing outside.

It's time to remind ourselves of a few safety tips when we see children playing outside. Posted speed limits, especially in the housing areas, must be observed at all times. Children are often unpredictable, and it is your responsibility as the driver to expect the unexpected.

Parents should be aware that the Georgia Legislature has passed a law requiring children 16 years old and younger to wear a bicycle helmet while operating a bicycle, either on the road or in the backyard. The bicycle helmet must be a helmet approved by the Snell Memorial Foundation or another approving authority.

As a parent, it is your responsibility to ensure that your children obey governing traffic laws and regulations. Children should cross the street only at intersections, walk on sidewalks and always ride their bicycles on the right side of the road with the flow of traffic. Adult bicyclists are also required to wear a helmet when traveling on any Fort Benning roadway.

Part of being a responsible rider is caring for your bicycle. Proper maintenance is essential to safe operation. Keeping the moving parts lubricated prevents breakdowns and ensures smooth operation.

Putting the manufacturer's recommended air pressure in the tires prolongs tread life and helps prevent flats or blowouts. Locking your bicycle when it is unattended keeps thieves from stealing it.

Remember to help "Make Our Post the Best — Give Crime Arrest." Report any activity that seems wrong or out of place to the Military Police at 545-5223 or 545-5224 or the "Crime In Progress" line at 545-5222. For bona-fide emergencies, dial 911.

Christians prepare for time of Passover

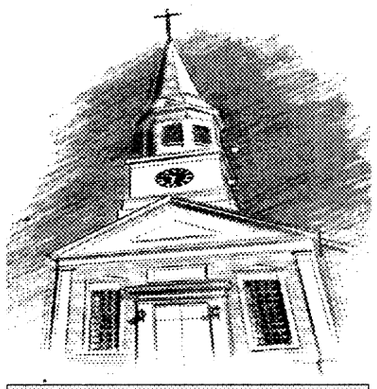
By Chana Timoner and Bill Putman
USAIC Chaplain Office

Passover begins Wednesday with the most festive and famous meal in all human history — the Seder.

Some of the gospel writers report that this was the last meal that Jesus ate. It has been written about in thousands of texts, and painted into hundreds of paintings called "The Last Supper."

Because of the extraordinary historical significance, this Jewish service in the home has come to serve as a wonderful link between many Christians and Jews.

More and more churches are inviting rabbis to come and teach about the origins and significance of the Seder and to have their own commemorative Seders. Over the centuries, many Gentiles have been guests in the home of a Jewish family during the Seder meal.



The significance of this meal is heavily laden with many layers of meaning. Every food item, every prayer that is said and song that is sung is symbolic of a religious and historical meaning.

The book that is used to narrate the Seder is called the Haggadah (the Telling). Interestingly, one thing that is not discussed is the actual story itself. That is, the story of the exodus of a group of slaves from Egyptian bondage.

Throughout the Bible there are accounts of God telling the Jews to keep the Passover and of their keeping it. Of course, the Passover originated when the Jews were captives of the Egyptians, and God was about to deliver them.

God told the Jews specific things to do to prepare for the time when the angel would pass over each house, and the first born of houses that did not have blood sprinkled on the door posts would be killed.

This was the last plague before Pharaoh let the Jews leave Egypt.

reflections

God also told the Jews the kind of meal they should eat that night, and even how they were to be dressed while they were eating the meal.

After this night of the first Passover, the slaves were allowed to leave Egypt. Not all the slaves were Hebrews. Exodus tells about the mixed multitudes of people who were slaves and escaped with the Hebrews into the Sinai Peninsula (Exodus 12:38).

The Seder will be observed by Fort Benning's Jewish community and guests April 3.

Hosanna! Christ is coming

reflections

This Sunday is Palm Sunday, and many churches know this Sunday as Passion Sunday. That is the day the passion of Christ starts.

Some churches gather to celebrate the journey Jesus took the last time he entered the city before his betrayal, trial and crucifixion.

The tradition of this celebration seems to have started back in 383 A.D. according to a reference in the Dictionary of Christianity in America. There, a man by the name of Egeria, a pilgrim of the faith, describes a procession in which the participants laid down palm branches to mark the occasion of Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem. This practice spread throughout Europe and eventually to America.

This custom comes from the various detailed scriptural accounts (Matthew 21; Mark 11 and Luke 19) describing the event when it occurred in Jesus' day.

Jesus stopped in Bethpage, which is about two miles from Jerusalem. He asked two of his disciples to go into town and secure a donkey and her colt. He made it sound as if the owners were waiting for this request. The disciples did find a donkey and he-colt, which had never been ridden.

The owner gladly gave them to the disciples when he found out who had asked for them.

Most people would not consider a donkey, much less her colt a majestic animal fit for a king to ride. The commentator Warren Wiersbe sheds some light on this event in his commentary. He tells us that, much to our surprise, in those days the donkey was just the animal a monarch would use.

Jesus also fulfills Zechariah's prophecy (Zechariah 9:9) by riding the colt as its first rider. He also noted that this is the only time Jesus allowed a public demonstration on his behalf to take place.

The people who were laying the palm branches and garments before Jesus were in the city for Passover. They were from the outlying regions where the miracles Jesus performed were well known.

This is in contrast to the crowd who called for his execution just a short time later. The practice of laying down of outer garments, along with a festal branch was a sign of reverence. This same practice happened to Jehu, when he became king in 2 Kings 9:13. The shouting of Hosanna, which means save now, comes from Psalm 118:25-26.

Palm Sunday is a joyous time and a sad time for Jesus. The people wanted a savior and had one in their midst. They just did not understand God's plan.

Today, people sometimes have the same problem in trying to reconcile finite understanding of an infinite God. Jesus said he would come again as king. People must be faithful as they wait and watch for his return.

Protestant services scheduled for holiday

USAIC Chaplain Office

Holy Week is the most sacred time of the year for Christians. Beginning with Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday and culminating in the celebration of his glorious resurrection on Easter Sunday, Christians contemplate the meaning of the death, burial and resurrection for their lives and faith.

To assist members of the Fort Benning community to grow spiritually during this week, a full schedule of special services is planned.

Palm Sunday, all Protestant Services will celebrate the triumphal entry with palms.

Maundy Thursday, Thursday, at 7 p.m., at the Infantry Center Chapel, the chapel choir will present the cantata, "Stations of the Cross" by Lani Smith. The service will conclude with the Lord's Supper.

Good Friday, April 5 at noon, a special memorial service marking the death of Jesus will be held at Sight Seeing Road Chapel. Easter Sunday, April 7 at 7 a.m., the annual Sunrise Service celebrating Jesus' glorious resurrection will be held on the Field of Four Chaplains adjacent to The Infantry Center Chapel. Chaplain (Brigadier General) G. T. Gunhus, the deputy chief of Army Chaplains, will be guest speaker. All chapels will conduct special Easter Services at the regular times.

Easter: Conquering death

By Xuan Ngoc Tran
4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment

In the Christian church, Easter is the most significant date because Easter recognizes the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Christians celebrate his conquering sin and death and the grave. To make Easter more meaningful, some other days leading to Easter are observed. One of these is Holy Thursday, or Maundy Thursday, the day before Good Friday.

The word maundy is derived from a Latin word meaning to command and is related to the words of Jesus in John 13:34 (KJV),

"A new commandment I give unto you, That you love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another."

On this special day, Jesus and his disciples gathered around a table and participated in the feast of Passover. It was Jesus' final meal with the disciples. Two significant events took place on this Holy Thursday evening: Jesus Christ instituted the Holy Communion, or the Lord's Supper, and he washed the feet of the disciples.

"And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, blessed it and broke it, and gave it to the disciples and said, Take, eat; this is my body. Then he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them saying, 'Drink from it, all of you. For this is my blood of the new covenant which is shed for the remission of sins." (Matthew 26:26-28 KJV).

It is interesting to note that of the gospel writers, only John mentioned Jesus' washing the feet of the disciples. John 13:5 states, "After that, he poured water into a basin and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel with which he was girded."

reflections

Jesus took upon himself the form of a servant that he might serve others.

Matthew Henry, a biblical commentator, states that there are four reasons Christ did this.

- He wanted to show his love to the disciples.
- He was willing to humble himself as a servant.
- He taught them a spiritual lesson about foot washing.
- He wanted to set an example for them.

The key text on this holy Thursday evening was, "Having loved his own, he loved them to the end." (John 13:1 KJV)

Therefore, the observation of this special night on which Jesus was betrayed by Judas Iscariot, is one of mixed feelings — joy and sorrow between Jesus and his disciples.

Whether a church that observes the foot-washing as well as the Lord's Supper or from one that only observes the Lord's Supper, Jesus Christ said and did on this Holy Thursday evening. On this Holy Thursday evening, Jesus took the bread and the wine and designated them to symbolize that his body was sacrificed on the cross at Calvary for our sins so that thy could be pardoned.

Furthermore, Christians should obey the Lord's new commandment: "Love one another as I have loved you."

Because he loved us with his everlasting love by giving his life and humbling himself as a servant, Christians should show love for others not only by words, but by actions. How can others know that we are his disciples? They will know if Christians follow Christ's example of loving others and serving them.

Charlie Dawgs capture basketball title

Schulman overpowers Top Notchers

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The Charlie Dawgs denied Top Notchers the opportunity for a repeat performance as the Fort Benning champions by winning the U.S. Army Infantry Center Intramural Basketball Championship 60-55 Wednesday.

When the final buzzer sounded at the Audie Murphy Physical Fitness Center, coach Timothy Gladney and his Battery C, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery, Charlie Dawgs could be heard shouting "king of the hill."

The Charlie Dawgs made it to the final game by handily defeating Company A, 317th Engineers, 66-58 Monday.

Before the game, Gladney said his game plan was to play "box and run and maybe play some man-to-man to see what they've got."

"We really haven't had any tough opponents this season," he said. "We went the whole season and only lost one game to a team we had already beat. I'm pretty confident we're going to do it (win) this time."

Gladney predicted a Charlie Dawg win by 13 points before the start of the game.

The Top Notchers from 63rd Engineer Company (Combat Support Equipment) made it to the finals for their second straight year by demolishing Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, in the semifinals 67-49 Monday.

Coach Roy Burrell said before the game that his game plan was to "spread the floor."

"I have a big man on point and hope for an off-balance," he said. "I have Michael Jackson, who is our leading scorer and an experienced ball player in Charles Tucker. With Tucker to the left and Jackson to the right, if they are in a zone, they are going to have to come out of it to respect both players.

"We're averaging about 72 points per game so if we can get to 72 points first then I think we'll come out ahead," Burrell said.

From the opening tipoff, it appeared that Burrell's well-thought-out game plan would give them their second consecutive intramural title.

The Top Notchers quick break offense had them on top early in the game with the defense controlling the boards.

The Charlie Dawgs could not get on track, missing scoring opportunities and being "outmuscled" both offensively and defensively.

Midway through the first half, the Charlie Dawgs loosened up, led by the shooting of guard Paul Schulman.

The Top Notchers were unable to stop Schulman as he put on a basketball demonstration and 13 first-half points on the scoreboard.

"Schulman is a tough, street basketball player" coach Gladney said. "I don't know what he is doing here; he should be in the pros."

The Dawgs bench erupted with one minute and 42 seconds left in the first half as the Dawgs took their first lead of the game.

As the second half began, the entire Dawg offense caught fire with their fast-break offense and strong offensive rebounding by guard David Jones.

Schulman continued his scoring spree in the second half putting up 19 second-half points.

The Top Notchers were unable to break the rhythm of the Dawgs but were able to keep within striking distance going into the last 41 seconds of the game.

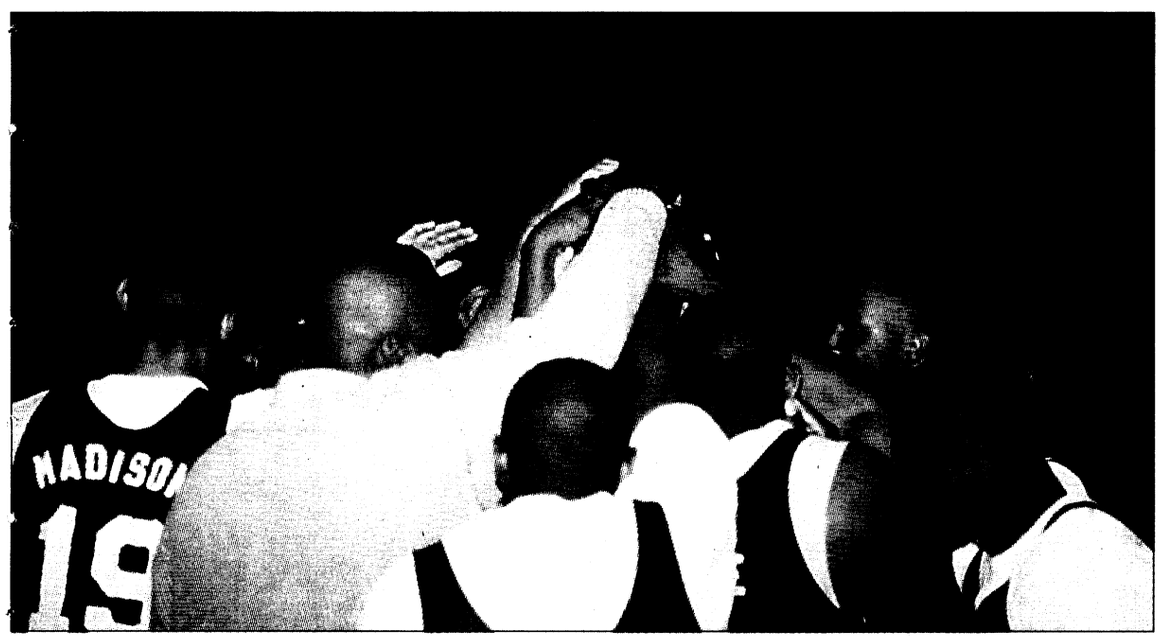
The Dawgs offense ran the clock down to 15 seconds as Schulman sank a two-pointer that would ultimately put the game out of reach for the Top Notchers.

As the clock ran down, the fans' celebration erupted as the Dawgs counted down the seconds to victory and the championship coach Gladney had predicted.

After the game, Gladney said one of the keys to the game was controlling their (Top Notchers) three-point shooters.

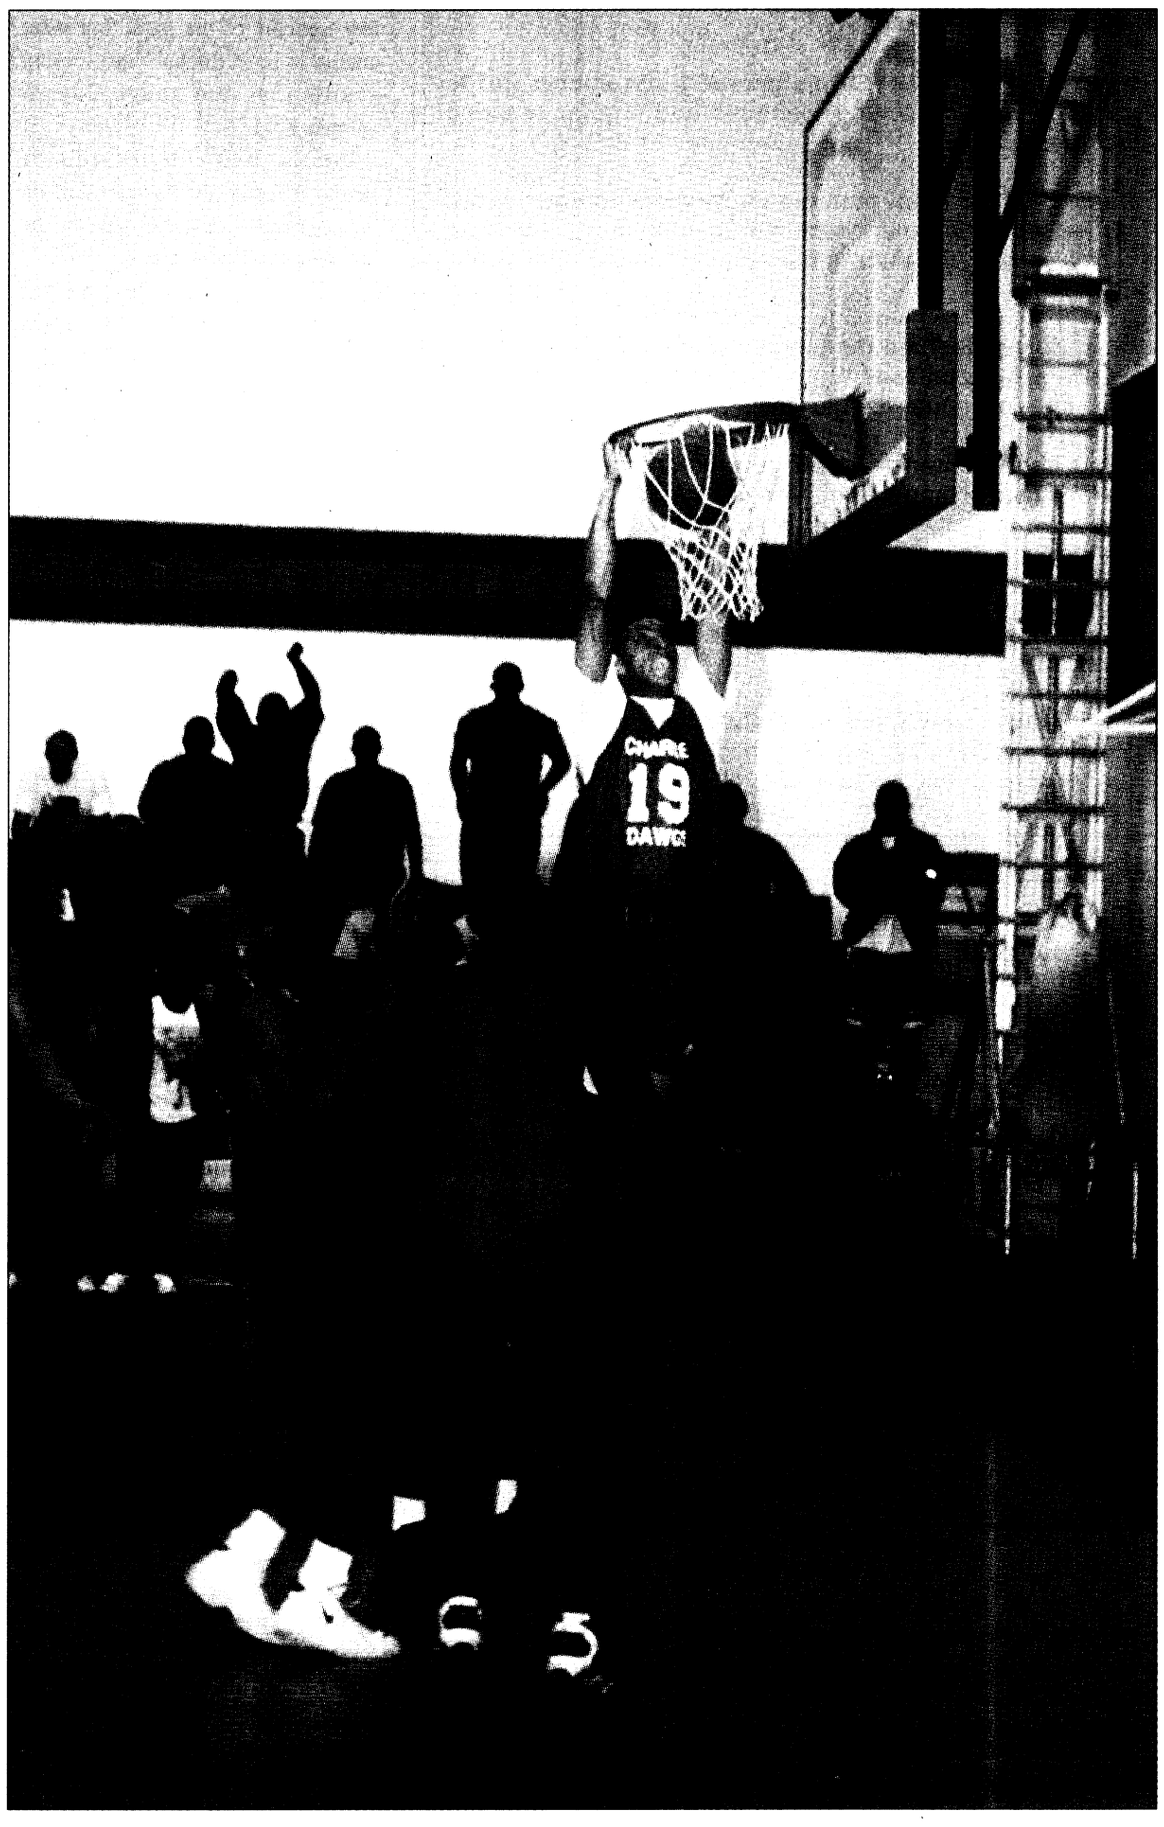
"I told my team at halftime to stay with themand to move with them. Wherever they go, stay with them.

"We had co-captain Adrian White," Gladney said. "He played a good defensive game. Hey, we did outstanding; we get an A-plus."



Gladney said the player of the game was definitely Schulman, captain of the team.

"He was the floor leader out here, the high point man," Gladney said. "He motivated the team. My two team captains did an outstanding job."



After the game, Top Notchers coach Roy Burrell said his team didn't play well during the final 41 seconds of the game.

"A rebound here or there and the game may have ended up differently," Burrell said. "If we could have gotten three points here and two points there during the last 41 seconds, the game would have been ours."

The Dawgs Paul Schulman finished the game as the leading scorer with 32 points.

athlete of the week

Name: John W. Peeler Jr.

Award or recognition: Junior Olympic Qualification
Unit or activity: Fort Benning Tae Kwon Do School
Sport: Tae kwon do
Years in the sport: One

What were your reasons for choosing to compete in this sport? Because I wanted to be like the White Ranger on the Power Rangers.

What do you feel are your major accomplishments in your sport? Winning gold medals at the Junior World Cup Championships and the Battle of the Champions.

What person or people have most influenced you in your sport? My instructors Felix Davila, Charles Lewis and my mom and dad.

What training regiment has proved most successful to you? Proper stretching, pushups and regular sparring practices.

Describe your most memorable moment in your sport. My most memorable moment was winning at the state championships and earning the right to compete in the Junior Olympics.

What do you feel are the biggest challenges facing Army sports programs today? Not enough recognition for the sport and not enough tournaments.

What improvements would you make to your sport to make it more competitive? I would have more tournaments and more publicity so people would understand it as a sport and not just fighting.

What are your future plans in your sport? To be an instructor, go to the Olympics and help people understand the sport.

What advice would you give others desiring to compete in your sport? Find a good school with a good instructor, pay attention, practice hard and choose your tournaments carefully.

Soccer

Regulators and Jaguars tie in opener

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The 6- to 7-year-old Jaguars and Regulators opened the Youth Services soccer season Saturday on French Field playing to a tough 2-2 stalemate.

The Regulators aggressively attacked the Jaguars during the first few minutes of the game but were unable to push the ball into scoring position as the tough Jaguar defense held.

As the half progressed, the Jaguar offense put the pressure on the Regulator defense driving the ball into scoring territory.

Although most of the first half was played in the Regulator backfield, the Jaguars were unable to put any points on the scoreboard.

Regulator Yasha Blount broke the scoring stalemate as she dribbled the ball through the Jaguar defense putting the ball in the net for a 1-0 Regulator lead.

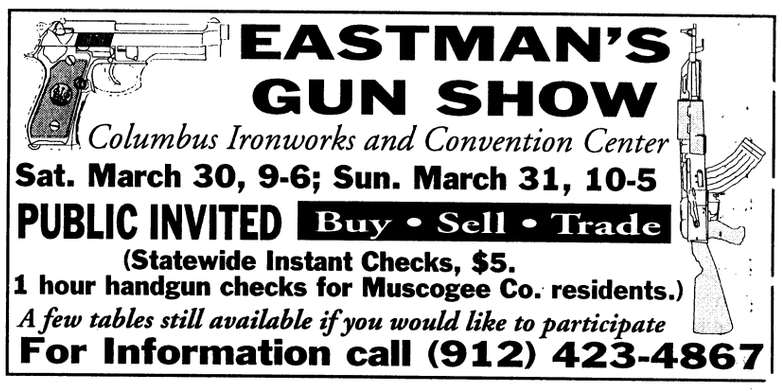
The lead would not last long as Jaguar Jason Schroeder answered the Regulator goal with a goal of his own.

The goal knotted the game up at 1-1 with time running out in the first half.

Schroeder was not finished as he quickly scored another goal giving the Jaguars a 2-1 lead as time expired in the first half.

Regulator coach Oscar Hill told his team at halftime not to worry, that they would get it (the goal) back.

Regulator Ronald Bray put the ball in play as the second half got under way.



Both teams battled back and forth into each others end of the field and were unable to score until Bray drove the ball into the net knotting the score at two apiece.

After the game, Jaguar coach Jonathan Rackard told his team they had played a good hard game and that in his mind they had come out winners.

The two teams will battle again April 13 at 10:15 a.m. on French Field.

U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit shooters win at championship

By Paula J. Randall
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

Members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit's Action Shooting Team dominated the Alabama State Championships March 16 in Birmingham in which more than 100 shooters competed.

Capt. Gregory S. Way took first place, followed by Sgt. 1st Class Merle P. Edington in second and Sgt. Kenneth S. Suratt in third. The fourth USAMU member of the Action Shooting Team who competed in the championships was Capt. Harold A. Christy Jr. who came in sixth.

Way, who began shooting in 1985, has numerous marksmanship accomplishments. In 1995, he won the International Practical Shooting Confederation Area 7 Championship and the Kentucky, Georgia and Arizona state IPSC matches, as well as placing fifth in both the European and North American IPSC championships.

In 1995, Edington won the IPSC European Championships, the IPSC Midwinter Championships. and the Alabama State Championships. He was the U.S. Practical Shooting Association Open National champion in 1994.

Suratt is a U.S. Army Combat Arms Match pistol champion, a U.S. Army Combat Arms Match rifle runner-up and a Sportsman Speed Event Champion.

Christy is a two-time limited gun champion, a second-place team member of the European IPSC Championship, a second-place team member and a second-place military shooter of the Bianchi Cup.

Sports Trivia

March 29, 1991:

Dena Head of Tennessee and concensus Player of the Year Dawn Staley of Virginia each score 28 points to break the women's NCAA final game record of 27 points, but Head also pulls down 9 rebounds, makes 3 steals and has 3 assists to lead the Lady Vols to a nerve-racking 70-67 upset victory in overtime. This would be Tennessee's third title in five years.

AER campaign nears midpoint

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

As the 1996 Army Emergency Relief campaign nears the halfway point, AER officer Alfonso Deane said he is optimistic about reaching the installation's goal of $155,000.

In its fifth week, Capt. Calvin C. Thomas, campaign coordinator, said the installation has reached 5.62 percent of its goal as of March 29 compared with 16 percent this time last year.

"This year's campaign is computer automated and the project officers are having to learn the system," Thomas said.

AER officially began its annual campaign drive March 1 and will continue the campaign through May 15.

Deane said Army retirees and civilian personnel employed by the Department of Defense may contribute by contacting their project person or directorate.

Deane also said that civilians working on the installation not employed by DOD, are not necessarily solicited; however, they may still contribute but only by cash, check or money order.

As the theme for this year's AER campaign indicates, "Helping the Army Take Care of its Own," assistance to qualified individuals is not dependent on the amount collected on the installation.

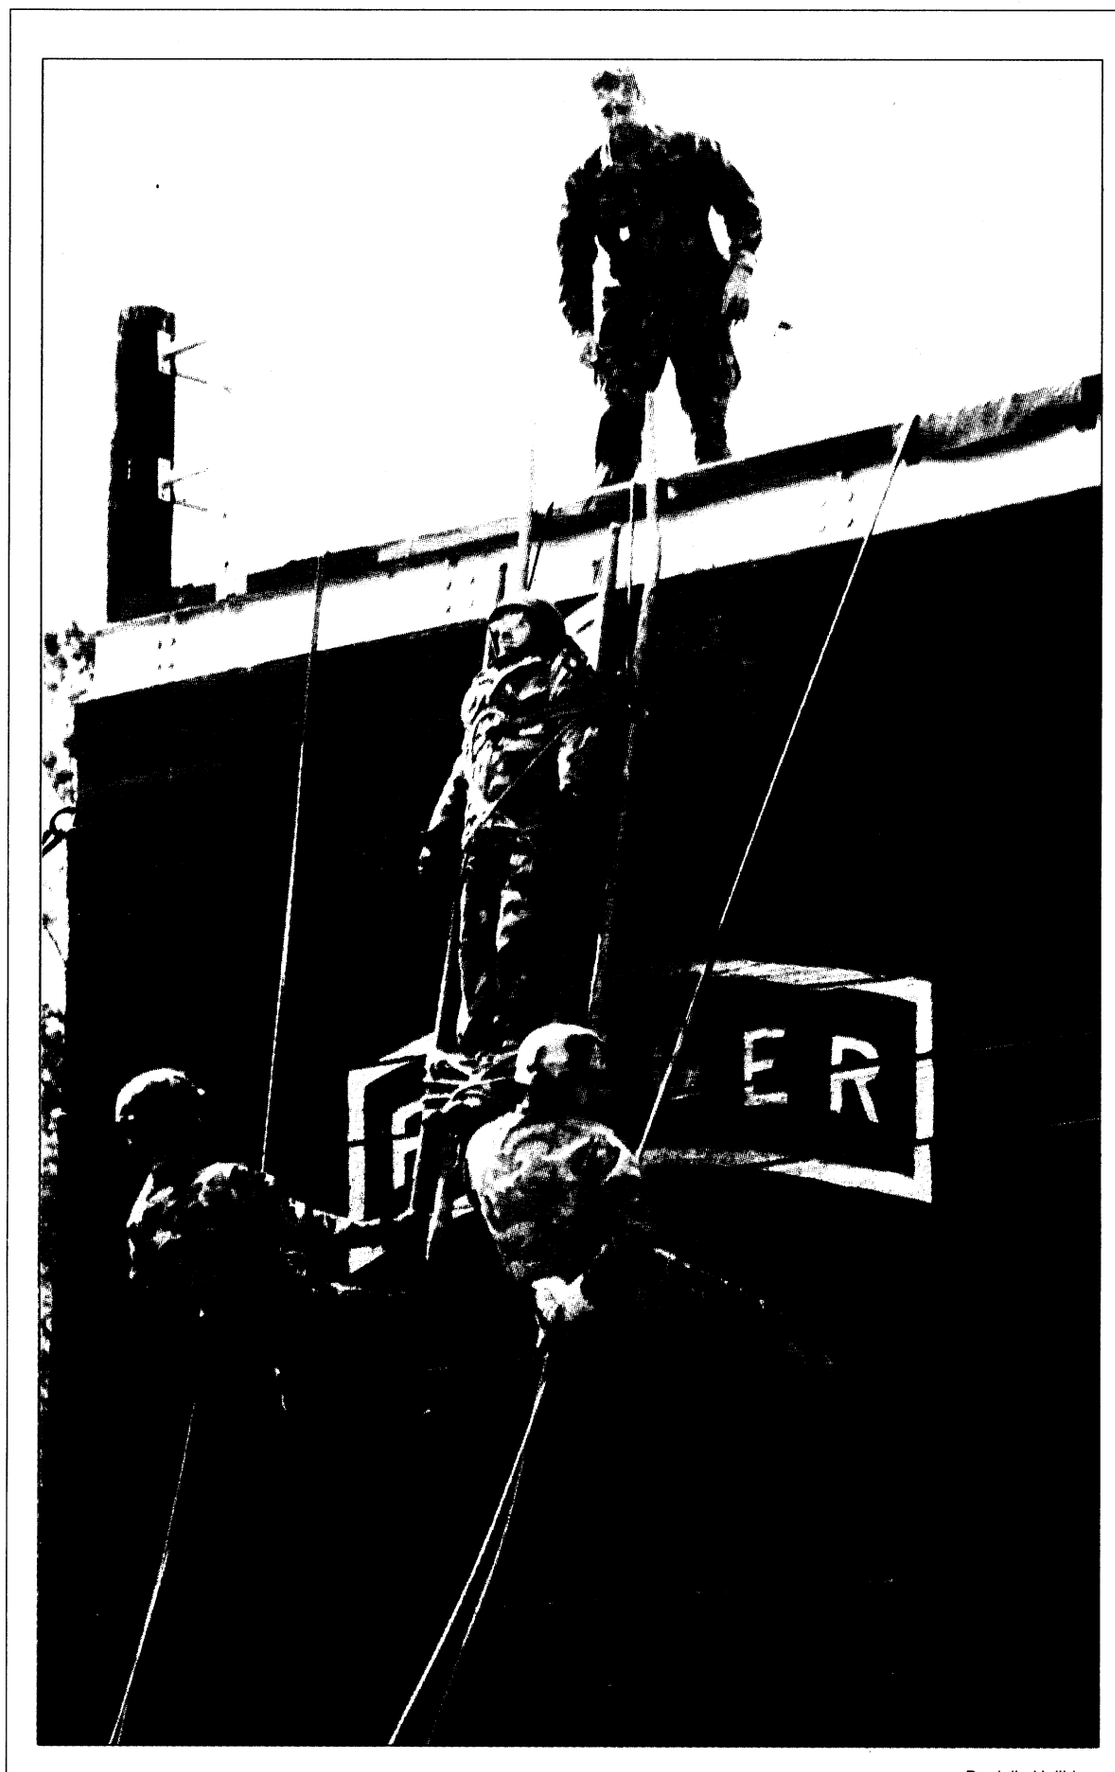
"Last year 1,296 eligible soldiers, retirees, widows and family members were assisted with $724,573.27, which was about six times the amount collected on the installation," Deane said.

The major objectives of the campaign are to increase awareness about AER to all soldiers; publicize procedures so all Army personnel know how to obtain assistance; raise funds to support AER assistance programs; and to inform people that their contributions help the Army take care of its own.

AER provides emergency financial assistance to active duty soldiers, retirees, widows and family members of active duty soldiers and retirees.

Assistance is provided on a case-by-case basis and is given as a no interest loan, grant, part loan, or part grant.

Assistance may be provided for emergency leave, initial rent and deposits, automobile repairs, funeral expenses and non-receipt of pay.



AER also has an education scholarship program for dependent children's undergraduate study.

Contributions to the campaign may be made by allotment, cash, or check to unit key personnel or directly to AER located in Building 2436, Soldiers' Plaza.

For more information on the campaign, call Alfonso Deane at 545-4043 or see your unit project person.

Staff Sgt. Anibal A. Rosario from the School of the Americas watches to ensure rappellers receive a litter carrying Staff Sgt. Carlos Montalvo during a Medical Assistance Course training exercise. The exercise simulates litter evacuation on mountainous terrain. During the six-week course, students learn various medical techniques, such as emergency births, medical evacuations, water purification, suturing and how to administer intravenous fluids. In addition to basic life saving measures, the course is beneficial to units with civic action missions.

Sunrise service at 7 a.m. Sunday

USAIC Chaplain Office

Fort Benning's annual Easter Sunrise Service will be Sunday at 7:00 a.m. on the Field of Four Chaplains adjacent to the Infantry Center Chapel. This service provides Christians from all denominations an opportunity to join together and celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ through singing and scripture readings.

Gunhus

Chaplain (Brig. Gen.) Gaylord T. Gunhus, Deputy Chief of Army Chaplains will be the guest speaker. The Infantry Center Band will lead the Easter music.

Gunhus is an ordained clergyman of the Lutheran Church, Lutheran Brethren of America Synod.

In case of inclement weather the service will be in the Infantry Center Chapel, Building 101.

For more information, call 545-2288, 545-2931

Easter Bunny to visit

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Easter Bunny will be leaving quite a few treats for children at Fort Benning for Easter.

The post's Easter Egg Hunt will be from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday at Riverside, home of Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix and his wife, Cheri.

Children of active duty, retired military and Department of Defense civilians, ages 18 months to 10 years old, can join in the hunt. The hunt will be conducted in age-appropriate groups: 18 months to 2 years; 3 to 4 years; 5 to 6 years; 7 to 8 years; 9 to 10 years old.

Children are encouraged to bring a basket. Pets will not be allowed on the premises.

For more information, call 545-3070.

TRADOC commanders to meet on Fort Benning

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning will host the Training and Doctrine Command Commanders' Conference April 9 through 11.

This is another of a series of periodic, routine TRADOC-internal commanders conferences that allow for face-to-face meetings, discussions and updates on TRADOC internal business.

It will be attended by all TRADOC senior installation commanders and school commandants as well as TRADOC headquarters' senior staff.

Presentations and discussions will cover a broad range of TRADOC and Army issues of interest to commanders, commandants and staff. According to TRADOC officials, the conference will assist the commanders in the execution of their missions to be architects of the future Army, to prepare the Army for war.

The conferences are held at various TRADOC installations on a rotating basis.

Proposed DoD budget calls for 3% pay increase

By Jim Garamono
American Forces Information Service

Service members and civilian workers will receive a 3 percent pay raise if Congress approves President Clinton's $243.4 billion fiscal 1997 defense budget.

Clinton asked for a 3 percent raise in basic allowance for quarters and money to begin acquisition of new systems.

The Navy and Marine Corps get the lion's share of the fiscal 1997 request with $74 billion. The Air Force receives $72 billion and the Army $59.8 billion. Defense agencies get $36.9 billion.

Defense Secretary William J. Perry said the budget preserves the U.S. military as the best in the world. The budget also fits under a balanced budget plan.

The fiscal 1997 request breaks with the past by budgeting for contingency operations. Officials are asking for about $1.1 billion — $590 million for Southwest Asia and $541.7 million for Bosnia.

"For the Southwest Asia contingencies — Southern Watch and Provide Comfort — we've had four years of experience. We know how much that will cost. In fact, Congress told us to take those operations out of the contingencies and budget for them," said a senior budget official. The money requested for Bosnia is an estimate and includes Implementation Force ground operations, Operation Deny Flight and Able Sentry in Macedonia.

DoD's share of the federal budget continues to shrink. The department's budget request is only 3.2 percent of U.S. gross domestic product, the lowest percentage for the military since 1938, a senior defense official said. Defense as a share of federal outlays is 15.1 percent compared to 27 percent in the 1980s.

Defense officials stressed the military drawdown is largely complete, but the civilian drawdown continues. Officials said they are pleased with the way they have been able to draw down the military without adversely affecting readiness. They said DoD has reduced civilian strength by 260,000 with only 21,000 involuntary separations. The department needs to reduce civilian rolls by another 98,000 by 2001. Officials said they hope to accomplish these reductions as smoothly as they have previously.

Proposed budget at a glance

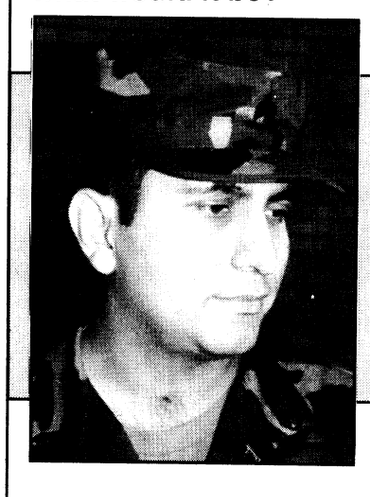
What: President Clintons $243.4 billion fiscal 1997 defense budget

Budget includes :
- 3 percent pay raise for service members and civilian workers
- 3 percent increase in basic allowance for quarters
- $74 billion — Navy and Marine Corps
- $72 billion — Air Force
- $59.8 billion — Army
- $36.9 billion — Defense agencie

The 1997 budget request continues the administration's No. 1 priority of readiness, said Perry. Operations and Maintenance funds are set at $89.2 billion, down from $93.6 billion in fiscal 1996. Officials said the reduction is due to fewer troops who must be trained, fewer civilian employees who are paid from Operations and Maintenance accounts and economies in health care.

Perry said the biggest danger to readiness — funding contingency operations — should be less of a problem if Congress goes along with the $1.1 billion slated for Southwest Asia and Bosnia.

The 1997 budget also enhances quality of life programs for service members.



"It takes a lot longer to develop an armored battalion command sergeant major than it does to build a tank," the senior defense official said. The administration therefore considers keeping personnel happy and satisfied with military life as key to readiness.

Under the budget, there will be a 3 percent raise for military and civilian

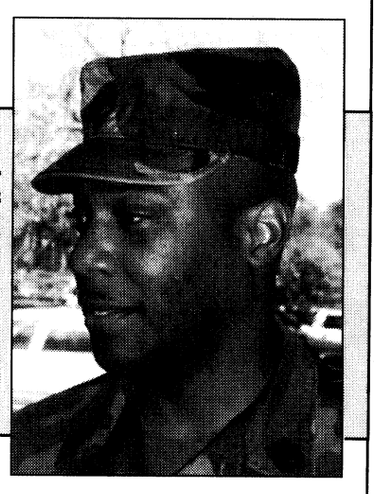
VARIOUS VOICES

If you could change something in the Army what would it be?

Staff Sgt. Jose Castro, Company D, Detachment 1, 121st Infantry Regiment, Perry Ga. — "We need more parking lots; everywhere we go, there is a lack of parking spaces."

Sgt. Rodney Lee, Company A, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I think we deserve more money."



Gloria Miller, family member — "I would change the way they do housing; the waiting list for housing is too long."

Staff Sgt. Petra Zavitz, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Noncommissioned Officers Academy — "I would like to see better pay for the soldiers, and I would also like to see that the veterans get taken care of better."

Christina Taylor, family member — "I would change the promotion system and the amount of money soldiers get paid. Also, I'd like to see better noncommissioned officers who take care of their soldiers."

Staff Sgt. Dwight Washington, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I think the living quarters for single soldiers should be changed. I think there should be only one person to a room. Also, I think the pay should increase and the promotion system should be changed."

How to get your news in The Bayonet

Editor's note: Many people call us with questions about how to get their information in the paper or with erroneous information about deadlines, so we have compiled the following for your information.

Film, photos, stories, letters to the editor and other news items for publication must arrive at The Bayonet office no later than noon Friday prior to the next week's publication

Our mission

The Bayonet is here to serve you — our audience. Our mission is to provide timely, accurate and truthful information that supports Army goals and directives.

We get a lot of feedback from readers, and we appreciate your letters, story ideas and comments. We appreciate the positive comments, and we do our best to address the negative ones.

As Fort Benning's authorized newspaper, we are dedicated to giving you the most complete coverage possible. In order to do this, we rely on members of our audience to keep us informed about their units' or directorates' activities.

Requesting coverage of news events

The staff of The Bayonet enjoys covering newsworthy events on post that are timely and pertinent to our readers. Some events we cover include brigade-level changes of command, changes in post policies or procedures and other postwide events.

We don't have enough personnel to cover everything on post, so we focus on the events that affect most of the post.

Also due to our limited number of personnel, we prefer that coverage requests be submitted at least two weeks in advance.

Some events we do not send a reporter to cover are parties, dinners, dining events, dances, balls, teas, coffees, club and organization meetings and elections, award presentations, changes of command below the brigade level, check presentations and group photos.

The frequency of such events on post and small number of photojournalists on The Bayonet staff prohibits us from covering these sorts of events.

Also, Army Regulation 360-81, which governs the production and content of Army newspapers, states covering such events is not a function of the post newspaper or the Public Affairs Office.

If you need a photographer to record events for official purposes, call the Training and Audiovisual Support Center's photo lab at 545-4417.

Deadlines

Film, photos, stories, letters to the editor and other news items intended for The Bayonet must arrive in our office no later than noon Friday prior to the next week's publication.

Also, you may leave stories, film, photos for publication in The Bayonet's drop box located in the Information Office, Room 111, Infantry Hall, Building 4. The deadline for items left in the drop box is noon Friday, also.

Copy must be typed and doubled-spaced, except for letters to the editor which may be handwritten. Everything else must be typed. Typed copy is easier for us to edit, easier for our typesetter and results in fewer errors.

Use civilian dates, times, the name of the building as well as the building number. You may include the street or road if desired. Also, be sure to include the first and last names of all individuals mentioned in the story, and spell out all acronyms on first reference.

If you submit an announcement for post briefs or community briefs, check it when it appears in The Bayonet. Then, if you must resubmit it at a later date, submit it as it ran in the paper.

You may fax briefs or announcements only. However, we need the original typewritten copy of stories (anything longer than one page).

Story ideas, submission

If you believe you have a good story idea and want to write the story yourself, call us to see if we're interested. If you don't want to write the story, call us and we'll arrange a time for you to talk with a reporter.

Address

We are located in Infantry Hall, Room 601. Our mailing address is: The Bayonet, Infantry Hall, Room 601, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905. Our fax number is 682-0095, and our PROFS identification is BAYONET.

Post speed limit during PT needs to be changed

This letter is written, after much thinking, in light of our third try at the Army Commander in Chief Award.

The command group has entrusted the personnel of this post to the welfare and morale of the soldiers of Fort Benning. They have entrusted many of us to the nation's top secrets. They have obviously boasted about the loyalty and reliability of the personnel on Fort Benning and as being the best working force in the world. After all, we did win the Army Communities of Excellence award twice.

What confuses me is the fact that the command group cannot trust us to drive at a normal rate of speed in the morning. Usually, there is some underlying reason that the "normal civilian" cannot understand, or simply has not been told. The best reason I could come up with is that the post relies heavily on revenue from the speeding tickets that it issues. Let's face it, this post looks like a K-Mart blue light special prior to 7:30 a.m. And from the people I have talked to, it seems that the majority of people getting speeding tickets are visitors or those here on temporary duty assignments.

If that is the case, I have come up with a sure-fire solution to lost revenue from the changed (hopefully) 15 miles per hour speed limit: Post Military Police cars on the I-185 stretch of road from 1st Division Road to Exit 1 between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Every evening when I go home, doing the legal speed limit, I see more "birds" than most members of the Audubon Society see in a month."

I realize that many people do not like to see a "smart aleck" letter in The Bayonet, but, come on guys, we are adults. How about treating us as such? We love our soldiers; they are the world's protectors. We are not here to hurt them.

— Karen Ferris
Firepower Division
Directorate of Combat Development

Editor's note: The speed limit is 15 mph on Main Post during the established physical training hours (6 to 7:30 a.m.) Monday through Friday.

The speed limit when passing individual runners or formations is 10 mph. Both have priority on post during the stated hours, according to a post policy. The following roads are exempt from the new speed limits because all running is banned on those roads.

- 10th Division Road
- Dixie Road, except the portion from Sightseeing Road (Sandy Patch) to Lawson Army Airfield
- Sunshine Road
- Lumpkin Road from Dixie Road to Custer Road
- Custer Road from Benning Road to Eisenhower Exchange

Also, the 82nd Airborne Division Road from Sunshine Road to Bradshaw Road will be closed to traffic from 6 to 7:30 a.m. Monday through Friday for use by formations and individual runners. Kelly Hill is completely closed to traffic during this time.

The speed limit is 15 mph on Sand Hill Monday through Saturday from 5:30 to 7 a.m.

Also, 11th Airborne Division Road on Sand Hill is permanently closed.

Also, the post does not benefit from traffic fines; the money goes to the U.S. Treasury.

Veterans express thanks for support

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park committee wishes to express our appreciation to the tri-community for its continued support of contributions and presence at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park, co-founded by Robert Leonard and Lonnie Jackson.

The unveiling ceremony March 16 honored 119 deceased veterans named on the wall. At that time, we also celebrated the completion of the Vietnam Veterans Wall, built by Willie King Masonry, and the installation of the centerpiece sculpture that Larry Cannon built and Larry Phelps designed.

The centerpiece sculpture depicts three Vietnam veterans of diverse backgrounds. The 119 American flags that were flying so majestically in the park were contributed by Eagle Scout candidate Chris Fisher through donations from VFW Post 665 and the Ladies Auxiliary. The eye-catching flowers were planted by Kimberly Fisher and Troop No. 205 in Columbus.

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park was made possible solely by donations of time, labor, materials and monies from concerned business and community groups. These are veteran organizations and individuals that helped to make the impossible probable.

The event was attended by both state and national-level veteran organization leaders. The speaker for the occasion was Willie Pitts, Georgia American Legion commander and the highest decorated Vietnam veteran in the state of Georgia.

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park committee thanks everyone for their tireless, unselfish efforts made on behalf of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park. To those that may not have been mentioned, our heartfelt gratitude for helping the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park committee accomplish its goal of remembering our fallen comrades.

I encourage children and adults in the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning community and adjacent areas to remember a significant part of our history. Visit the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park. The park is located at the intersection of Buena Vista Road and Lawyers Lane. Do not allow its size to overshadow the tribute we pay to those who died for our freedom. Our future intentions are to make this park a place of honor, pride and beauty.

We can hear our fallen warriors on this wall and wherever Old Glory flies saying, "Speak for us! We cannot speak because we are dead. We died in Southeast Asia fighting for our country. We died in Cambodia, An Khe'Dong Tam, Bong Son."

During the Cuban Crisis, when the threat of nuclear destruction of the world hung by slender threads, President John Kennedy reminded us of similar periods of our nation's history. He said words to this effect: "Who can foresee precisely what casualties of suffering might be endured or what path we might take. The cost of freedom has always been high, but Americans have paid for it. One path that I hope we should never take and that is the path of surrender or submission."

Let's say together, "Let the word go forward from this place and time that we shall never forget you, and we shall now and forever more speak for you, so help us God, Amen."

Auto Craft centers can save money

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Is your car in need of repair and you can't afford off-post prices? Fort Benning has two auto craft centers to help keep costly car repairs to a minimum.

The centers offer state-of-the-art engine analysis, hydraulic lifts, "and all of the hand tools a person would ever need," said William Place, Arts and Craft manager.

And the centers have technical instructors that are automotive standard of excellence certified who are available to help customers.

"We prefer to help the person do the work, rather than us doing the work," Place said. "That way, they learn more about the vehicle and are less likely to be taken advantage of by someone downtown."

One thing you still have to go off post for is front-end alignments, Place said.

"Right now we don't have the space to do them, but in the future we will be able to do them," Place said, referring to the soon-to-be-built 41 bay facility, which is to be built near the corner of Lumpkin and Dixie Roads.

"We're in the contract phase of the project, so I don't know how soon the facility will be up and running; but; when it is, we'll even have a quick lube at the new facility," Place said.

By using the auto craft centers on post, customers can save 25 to 40 percent from downtown prices, especially when doing costly engine or transmission repairs, Place said.

The Main Post Auto Craft center, Building 2843, is located on Way Street. It is open Wednesday through Friday from 1:30 to 9 p.m. and weekends from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information, call 545-2337.

The Kelley Hill Auto Craft center, Building 9064, is located on Marne Road. It is open Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 1:30 to 9 p.m. and weekends from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information, call 544-3101.

Women's history in military sports highlighted during post luncheon

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Just as the perspective of women has changed in American society, so it has changed in the military, according to Col. Jeanne Picariello, commandant, U.S. Army Physical Fitness School.

"Women push for gender equity now more than ever before," Picariello said at the March 28 Women's History Month luncheon at the Fort Benning Officers' Club.

With slides from Department of Defense archives, Picariello, took the crowd of about 130 through the history and progress of women military sports.

From the days of badminton and golf of the early 1940s to the days of basketball and gymnastics as late as the '70s and early '80s, Picariello said the early perception, supported by field and training manuals, was that women were physically incapable of performing at higher physical standards.

According to Picariello, who was the first woman to be selected to the U.S. Army Modern Pentathlon Team in 1975 and a former member of the All-Army Track Team, battle-focused physical training is reflective of changing attitudes.

The attitude about women's abilities has changed in the '90s. Training standards are high for women and men in the military.

"We can be battle-focused and feminine as we head into the year 2000," she said.

Other luncheon highlights included a performance by Pfc. Philip Mackey and Spc. Greg Grund, both of the 498th Medical Company (Air Ambulance), 36th Engineer Group. The two performed an original song, "Gary, Indiana, Homemade Pie." Mackey also recited a poem, "Dreampower," to honor women as mothers and sisters among the other roles in which they live.

Winners of the Women's History Month essay contest were also recognized. Students were asked to write about a woman in history they most admired. Faith Middle School seventh-graders Michael Smith won first place and Debra Hernandez won second.

The contest was sponsored by the Fort Benning Public Affairs Office and the Association of the United States Army. Jim Gallagher, AUSA executive vice president, presented the students a plaque and Col. Gregory Camp, chief of staff, presented $10 gift certificates from the Army and Air Force Exchange.

BOSS needs volunteers for building blitz

By Jason A. Ruby
Better Opportunity for Single Soldiers

The annual Habitat for Humanity Blitz Build will once again be constructing a home Aug. 9 through 17.

The Fort Benning Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers Office was approached with the task of trying to round up volunteers, both single and those with family members, for help with the construction project.

Habitat for Humanity is an organization that supports groups of volunteers who want to give a part of themselves by helping to build homes.

The homes are built by an all volunteer work force from the ground up in a week's time. While the group is erecting the soon-to-be-home, the Habitat Foundation supports the workers with the proper tools, guidance and nourishment to sustain them through the duration of the project.

The last time Fort Benning soldiers participated in a BOSS sponsored event of this type was May 1994. They worked on three houses on 30th Avenue off Victory Drive.

Volunteers for the construction project can contact the BOSS Office at 545-6688.

EO Office to conduct planning meeting

The Equal Opportunity Office is having a planning meeting for the Asian American and Pacific Islander Month today at 11 a.m. at Building 2515.

The EO Office requests all activities and units send representatives to this meeting. For more information, call Sgt. 1st Class Victor Wynn at 544-6961.

AER campaign set

The Army Emergency Relief Fund Campaign kicked off March 1 and will continue through May 15.

AER, which was established Feb. 5, 1942, is a nonprofit organization dedicated solely to "Helping the Army Take Care of its Own."

AER offers loans and grants or a combination of the two to soldiers, family members, Reserve and National Guard soldiers on extended active duty, retirees, widows and orphans of soldiers who died on active duty or after retirement.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland areas will take place Monday through April 13. If weather permits, the following compartments will be affected: A-2, A-8, A-19, B-3, B-5, C-1, D-2, D-7, D-10, D-16, E-3, E-5, G-4, I-2, K-6, L-4, M-1, M-7, N-2, O-1, O-4, O-7, O-9, Q-5, V-4,.W-1, W-4 and X-4.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species' habitat and training areas. Personnel proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while travelling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Units using ranges and training areas are reminded to remove flammable debris, such as pinestraw, leaves, grass and trash from around structures in accordance with U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-4, Paragraph 5-22, Organizational Maintenance.

For more information, call Jack Greenlee, Natural Resources Management Branch, at 544-6206.

Top drill sergeant to be honored

A ceremony honoring Sgt. 1st Class Gregory J. Mance, Fort Benning's 1996 Drill Sergeant of the Year will be April 12 at 3:30 p.m. in the Sand Hill Recreation Center.

Tax Office to close

The Fort Benning Tax Office will accept the last tax returns for electronic filing on Monday.

The office will continue to offer forms and other limited services through April 15. The office will close for the season April 15.

The office is located in Building 2640 at Soldiers' Plaza and will be open Monday to Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Unit tax advisers have also been appointed for units throughout the post. Persons having questions should see their unit tax adviser first.

For more information, call Capt. Scott L. Frost at 545-3281.

Special Forces briefs continue on post

The Special Forces recruiting office conducts briefings every Wednesday at 10 a.m., 2 and 6 p.m. in McVeigh Hall, Bldg. 75B, room 109. For more information, call Sgt.1st Class Ernest Donaldson at 545-3079.

SJA accepts theft or burglary claims

Individuals who suffer a loss due to theft at their assigned quarters may be able to recover part of their loss by filing a claim with the Claims Division, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate. People who take the time to record the purchase dates, model numbers and serial numbers of electronics item and other high-value property have a better chance of recovering the maximum amount allowed under government regulations.

In addition, this information may assist the military police in their efforts to recover the stolen goods.

For more information, call 545-2285.

New traffic signs to be posted

In an effort to ease traffic flow and better serve the patrons of Fort Benning, several changes are being made to existing traffic control devices.

The Directorate of Public Safety and the Directorate of Public Works are working together to figure out the best way to move traffic around the installation, especially the Main Post area.

So far, the following changes have been made:

- "Stop" sign at Holtz and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Chesney and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Indianhead and Merchant changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" signs on Moye and 11th Airborne Division removed

A traffic study is currently under way at Edwards and Burr streets to evaluate the feasibility of changing this light to a two-way stop.

All drivers on Fort Benning should be made aware of and adhere to the posted traffic control devices.

Center changes hours

The Welcome Center is now open Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday 2 to 10 p.m.

Inprocessing will be from opening hours until 20 minutes prior to closing hours.

Outprocessing soldiers may report to the Welcome Center or call to make an appointment 10 days before departure from the installation. For more information, call 545-5404.

BUDGET: DoD outlines funding

personnel. In fiscal 1998 through 2001, the budget calls for a 3.1 percent yearly raise for military personnel — the highest the law allows. Civilians will receive 1.5 percent below the rise in the Employment Cost Index.

DoD officials say the proposed budget will maintain health care and commissary benefits for military personnel. The DoD health program is set for $9.4 billion, down from $9.8 billion in fiscal 1996. Again, fewer people need care, and DoD's switch from CHAMPUS to the TRICARE health maintenance organization program is saving money.

Family housing continues to be a hot button item for military personnel, officials said. The fiscal 1997 budget funds construction for replacement of 2,300 units and 13 support facilities. It further funds improvements in 4,100 units. The budget provides $20 million for family housing built in conjunction with the private sector.

Other quality of life initiatives starting in the fiscal 1997 budget include the construction or modernization of 208 barracks, affecting 48,891 living spaces by 2001. The budget also funds building child development centers to raise the overall percentage of requirements covered to 60 percent. The DoD goal is to have spaces for 65 percent.

The budget request calls for more reserve component funding as part of a program to have guardsmen and reservists perform active duty missions.

In the budget, military construction drops to $5.3 billion from $6.9 billion. Research and development remains stable at $34.7 billion.

Procurement in the fiscal 1997 budget drops to $38.9 billion from $42.3 billion in 1996. Defense officials said the future years defense plan calls for a significant increase beginning in fiscal 1998.

Now is the time for DoD to start investing in weapons modernization, Perry said. DoD will hit the low point for procurement this year. Between fiscal 1990 and 1997, there will be a 60 percent real decline in procurement funds. However, the future years defense plan calls for a 40 percent real increase through fiscal 2001.

Defense planners believe base realignment and closure process and acquisition reform savings will keep DoD procurement and modernization healthy. Fiscal 1997 will be the first year we realize savings in the BRAC process, Perry noted.

Basically, DoD will continue to invest in projects that give U.S. forces dominance rather than just an advantage, Perry said. "We had air dominance during Desert Storm, and we liked it," he said. Dominance also pertains to sea and ground activities.

As a result, the department will invest in "leap ahead" systems such as the F-22 advanced tactical fighter and upgrade other systems such as the M-1 Abrams tank. DoD will invest $2 billion in the F-22 program in fiscal 1997 and $11.1 billion for 40 aircraft from fiscal 1998 to 2001. The budget calls for $600 million for the joint strike fighter in the fiscal 1997 budget.

Other procurement highlights are:

- $1.1 billion for the V-22 tilt-rotor aircraft with another $3.9 billion from fiscal 1998 to 2001. This will buy 35 aircraft.
- $2.6 billion for the F/A-18 E/F aircraft and $14.3 billion in the outyears. This will provide 162 aircraft.
- Continued funding for the Comanche helicopter system.
- $300 million for M-1A2 Abrams tank and $300 million for Bradley fighting vehicle system upgrades.
- Money to upgrade early model F-14s and the B-lB bombers.

One possible bone of contention between the administration and Congress is $10 billion through 2001 for theater missile defense and only $2 billion for national missile defense. Perry said theater commanders say the missile threat exists now; DoD agrees and wants to field missile defense systems as quickly as possible. Because DoD does not see the same immediate threat on a national scene, national missile defense will remain a research project for at least three years.

Airlift and sealift are important parts of power projection for a largely U.S.-based force. DoD is asking for $1 billion for two sealift ships and $2.3 billion for eight C-17 airlifters.

In addition, DoD is asking for $3.4 billion for two Arleigh Burke-class destroyers and continued funding for aircraft carrier replacement.

DoD sees great advantages to enhancing battlefield awareness. The budget calls for funding unmanned aerial vehicles, the Army's digitization of the battlefield project, Joint Surveillance Target Attack Radar System aircraft and Airborne Warning and Control System.

A senior defense official said the "fundamental colors" of the budget are to prevent threats from emerging, to deter threats that are out there and, if deterrence fails, to defeat an enemy.

Objectives of the budget are to reach the personnel numbers of the Bottom-up Review, keep readiness high, identify and fund known contingencies and enhance quality of life programs. Finally, DoD wants to expand the modernization program.

A senior defense official said the budget process was enhanced this year through the input of the Joint Requirements Oversight Council. The council, chaired by the vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, looks at requirements from the combat commanders and makes recommendations.

Perry said people remain the most important resource for the department. That is why he stressed quality of life issues and pay in the budget

Perry says fiscal 1997 budget reflects new era

By Linda D. Kozaryn
American Forces Information Service

WASHINGTON—DoD's fiscal 1997 budget supports the defense strategy of preventing, deterring and defeating post-Cold War era threats, according to Defense Secretary William J. Perry.

Threats of rogue nations acquiring doomsday weapons, instability in Eastern and Central Europe, and ethnic or nationalistic wars have replaced Cold War threats of nuclear holocaust and a Warsaw Pact blitzkrieg, he said.

Reducing the nuclear threat from the former Soviet Union and nonproliferation programs aimed at preventing new nuclear threats from emerging are part of DoD's prevention policy. Encouraging defense reform and building confidence among newly emerging nations in Eastern and Central Europe can also stop threats from developing, he said.

Partnership for Peace, defense and military contacts such as bilateral exercises and the Defense Ministerial of the Americas held last year in Williamsburg, Va., and international military education and training programs are examples of efforts to promote understanding and prevent conflict, Perry said.

State National Guards have formed partnerships with 12 Eastern and Central European countries, he said. Kazakstan is partners with Arizona, for example. The South Carolina National Guard helped its partner, Albania, rehabilitate a military hospital in Tirana last summer.

"All of these [programs] are very important in building defense-to-defense relationships with Eastern and Central European countries, Perry said. "Perhaps most significant is the relationship we're forming with Russia."

U.S. forces have conducted four bilateral exercises with Russian troops, he said. The United States has also helped Russia denuclearize, accelerating the removal of nuclear warheads, missiles and launchers.

"We are very much concerned about reducing the probability of nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass destruction proliferating to other countries," Perry said.

"An extensive program includes the denuclearization of Ukraine, Kazakstan and Belarus because of the danger of nuclear material or weapons going from those countries to aspiring nuclear nations."

Project Sapphire, which involved the U.S. purchase of highly enriched uranium in Kazakstan, improved warhead security in Russia, the North Korea Framework Agreement — all of these programs are key to preventing threats from emerging, Perry said.

If prevention fails, the next step in the U.S. defense strategy is deterrence — maintaining the force necessary to defend U.S. interests and maintaining the credibility that it will be used if necessary.

"Deterrence does work in this modern world," Perry said. "It worked in Korea during the crisis we had in June 1994 when we feared they were developing nuclear weapons. It worked very impressively in Iraq in October 1994 when the rapid deployment of military systems prevented Iraqi forces from actually crossing the Kuwaiti border and starting another desert war."

No matter how successful the deterrence policy may be, Perry said, the United States still has to be ready and able to deploy its forces. If U.S. interests are threatened as they were in Desert Storm, the United States will use military force, he said. U.S. forces may also be called upon for peacekeeping operations as in Haiti and now in Bosnia. In Rwanda, military forces helped relieve a humanitarian disaster.

Protecting vital U.S. interests, peacekeeping, humanitarian aid — for all those reasons, Perry said, the United States might use military power. "If a military conflict arises, the United States is prepared to fight and to win," he said. "Therefore, the bulk of the programs which are in this budget submission are to provide the capability to maintain the deterrence and to have a warfighting capability."

DoD's warfighting capability is based on a force structure of 10 active Army divisions, 42 reserve component brigades and three active and one reserve Marine Corps divisions. It also includes 357 Navy ships, including 11 active and one reserve aircraft carriers, and 10 active and one reserve carrier wings. The Air Force has 13 active and seven reserve fighter wings in the fiscal 1997 structure.

Forward deployment of about 230,000 troops around the world serves as concrete evidence of the U.S. policy to prevent, deter and defeat, Perry said. "We will have 100,000 troops in Europe, another 100,000 in the Western Pacific, about 20,000 in Southwest Asia and about 10,000 in Southern Command," he said.

"Forward deployment is crucial to our strategy both because of the deterrence value of the presence and because if we get in a conflict, these are the first troops that are going to be able to engage," he said.

Funds are allocated in the fiscal 1997 budget to ensure U.S.-based forces can get to world trouble spots, Perry said.

"We have to be able to project power of the remaining forces in the United States because those 230,000 are not enough to fight a major regional conflict," he said. "Our forces in Fort Lewis, Wash., are 5,000 miles from Korea. Our forces in Fort Bragg, N.C., and Fort Hood, Texas, are 8,000 to 9,000 miles from Southwest Asia. We have a substantial problem in projecting this power forward."

The solution, according to Perry, lies in such programs as pre-positioning equipment and purchasing more C-17 transport aircraft and fast sealift ships.

Overall, Perry said, the fiscal 1997 budget aims to ensure U.S. forces are equipped and ready to maintain air, land and sea dominance. "We had it in Desert Storm, and we liked it," he said. "We want to continue to have it in any future military conflict."

va q&a

Department of Veterans Affairs

Q: Does the home loan entitlement provide any cash to the veteran?

A: It does not. The amount of the entitlement is a measure of the portion of the loan that Veteran's Assistance will guarantee. A guarantee against loss that is provided the lender.

Q: Are veterans with compensable service-connected disabilities required to pay a funding fee for VA home loan guarantees?

A: No, these veterans are exempt. Also exempt are surviving spouses of veterans who died as a result of service where the spouse never remarried.

Q: I am a mortgage banker and my office has several VA buyers who need an adjustable rate loan to buy the home they want. What is the latest on reinstating the adjustable rate home loan program?

A: This program expired when Congress failed to pass a proposal for a 90-day extension before Sept. 30. Meanwhile, VA will honor loans for veterans who have commitments for ARMs from lenders on or before Sept. 30, 1995. VA will continue to work with Capitol Hill on possible legislation making the ARM program permanent.

Q: What are the minimum service requirements to be eligible for a VA home loan?

A: If you served in a wartime period before Sept. 7, 1980, (enlisted) or Oct. 16, 1981, (officer) the service requirement is at least 90 days.

For veterans of peacetime eras, the requirement is 181 continuous days of service. Veterans serving after those 1980 or 1981 dates must have served 24 months or the full period for which they were called, but not less than 181 days peacetime or 90 days wartime. If you are now on active duty, you are eligible after 90 days.

Q: I have seen ads in the paper listing VA properties for sale. Are these also available to people who were never in the military?

A: Yes. Where VA is disposing of a property, such as the result of a foreclosure of a VA-guaranteed loan, it can be purchased by a nonveteran. In such cases, it was the original VA-guaranteed loan for the purchase or repair of a home that was available only to eligible veterans.

Editor's note: If you have a question regarding your VA benefits, call the VA regional office at (800) 827-1000.

BOSS breakfast set

By Anna O'Leska
USAIC Public Affairs Office

The quarterly Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers breakfast will take place April 18 at 6:15 a.m. at the Main NCO Club.

The breakfast is hosted by Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, and BOSS program representatives. It will bring together unit commanders, sergeants major and key leaders from the post with the soldiers who make the program work to recognize outstanding contributors, said Sgt. Jason A. Ruby, Single Soldier Program manager.

There will be an awards ceremony at the breakfast to recognize individuals on post and local businesses who have been supportive of the BOSS program.

The main focus of the breakfast, however, will be the presentation of the Single Soldier Quality of Life Award to the most deserving major subordinate command judged by the BOSS president and by the Single Soldier Living Community manager and based on the following criteria:

- The major subordinate command that shows the greatest support of the BOSS program
- Good soldier involvement with quality of life issues and projects
- Soldiers' awareness of the command planned projects
- Compliance of the major subordinate command with Regulation USAIC 600-19, the written guidance for the quality of life on Fort Benning
- An effective repair and utilities program in use.

The BOSS breakfast is open to all single soldiers and their chains of command. This time together gives them a chance to have breakfast with their commanding general and the post-level representation, officials said.

ITB conducts Women's History Month program

By Aaron Solich
U.S. Army Infantry Training Brigade

The Infantry Training Brigade conducted a Women's History Month program at the ITB Regimental Chapel March 22.

Catherine J. Anderson, the assistant director of Financial Aid at Columbus College and co-host of NBC-38 "Coffee Break," was the guest speaker

Anderson spoke about her personal experiences of starting a career after the death of her husband in 1985.

Anderson's charm and wit captured the audience's attention throughout the speech as she shared her personal experience on the long process that she had to go through to get her career started. Anderson stated that one of the main steps to achieving her goals was to, "accept the challenge to make the change."

According to Anderson, some women need to "take a detour" in building their careers in order to raise their children.

Events such as the Women's History Month show that the military has broadened its view to focus on the individual person, officials said. Anderson said she hoped the program would help build women's attitudes , self-esteem and motivation and help men to be more supportive of women on their journey to be successful.

A special touch was added to the program by Beverly J. Hammonds, a gospel vocalist from Columbus, who sang two gospel songs.

profile in excellence

Name: Sgt. 1st Class Matthew J. West

Award or recognition: Instructor of the Quarter

MOS: 11B4V

Unit: Company C, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infanttry Regiment (Infantry Officer Basic Course)

Years on the job:
Service -11 years, eight months
Job - Six months

What were your reasons for joining the Army? To serve my country and defend it when necessary.

Define your style of leadership.
Be, know, do. A leader has to be able to get his or her hands dirty to accomplish the mission.

What person has most influenced your career?
Commanding Sgt. Major Cory McCarty for teaching me as a young staff sergeant how to lead with repsect and compassion.

If you were sergeant major of the Army for a day, what improvements would you make?
I would change the pay scale. The responsibilities of the noncommissioned officers do warrant comparable pay.

Describe a memorable moment in your career.
A memobrable moment in my career was when I graduated from Ranger school after wanting to become a ranger since I was 15 years old.

What are your career plans?
I intend to stay in the Army as long as they will let me and eventually attain the rank of command sergeant major.

What others have to say:
Sgt. 1st Class West is a hard charging NCO. He has pride and professionalism that everyone should strive for.

Organizations provide scholarship opportunities

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Two area organizations are providing scholarship opportunities for individuals interested in pursuing a higher education.

The Fort Benning Management Association is seeking business and management students to compete for its yearly scholarships. Scholarships will be awarded to graduates and undergraduates.

All active duty or retired military members, or federal civil service employees and their family members residing within a 50-mile radius of the Fort Benning area are eligible. Applicants must be pursuing a degree in a field related to business or management.

The association will select recipients for graduate- and undergraduate-degree scholarships donated by Troy State University (Fort Benning branch) or funded by the Fort Benning Management Association. A recipient will also be selected for a scholarship to the school of choice.

Applicants are required to write a letter to the association scholarship committee, formally requesting consideration. The letter must include highlights of the applicant's academic career and extracurricular activities. Applicants should also explain why they feel they should receive a scholarship.

Undergraduate applicants should also provide a high school transcript with a completed college application, three letters of recommendation, college transcripts and a statement of employment including name, address and applicant's job title.

However, instead of high school transcripts, graduate applicants should include a copy of their undergraduate degree and transcripts along with a completed college application fulfilling graduate requirements.

Submit applications to: Building 4, Room 452, Fort Benning, Ga., Attn: Myrtle Chalkley. Applications must be submitted no later than July 26.

For more information, call 545-4539 or 545-4426.

Engineers build education opportunity

The Society of American Military Engineers is accepting applications for a $1,000 scholarship.

The scholarship will be awarded to a student enrolled in or accepted into an approved two- or four-year curriculum leading to an engineering degree. Students' permanent home residence must be within a 50-mile radius of Fort Benning. Priority will go to high school seniors; however, currently enrolled college students will be considered.

Award of this scholarship will be based on past and present academic achievements, student activities, recommendations and financial need. Also, interest in the science of military engineering, often evidenced by enrollment in a Reserve Officer Training Corps program, will be considered, although this is not a requirement.

Award of the scholarship will be recommended by a panel of judges in accordance with the by-laws of the Society of American Military Engineers.

Applications must be postmarked no later than April 30. The award of the scholarship is anticipated by the end of June. To obtain an application, call John Mills at 568-2482 or Glenn Todd at 545-2117.

Stowers student assists lost schoolmate

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Six-year-old Shawna Roseman was almost an hour late walking home from Stowers Elementary School Feb. 6.

In a panic, her mother, Cheryl Roseman dialed 911 and called the school looking for her daughter.

In response to the mother's call, Shawna's kindergarten teacher, Kris Lubelski, walked the trail the new student was supposed to take home after classes, but to no avail.

Roseman

Shawna had somehow made her way down another of the school's three wooded paths. However, first-grader Michael Hulgan was there and stopped to help a fellow schoolmate. And with a child's open heart not yet cold to a stranger's needs, 7-year-old Michael turned what was beginning to be a nightmare into a happy ending. Michael saw the blue-eyed, brown-haired girl, upset with fear.

"I was scared," Shawna said. "A lot."

Michael asked her if she was lost; asked her what her telephone number was and her address.

Hulgan

Having lived on Fort Benning only a couple of days, Shawna was not sure where she lived in the Davis Hill/Bouton Heights community. But Shawna's parents had made sure she knew her phone number.

So Michael did what he'd learned at home and in school: he took Shawna home to his mom.

"Our teachers tell us if someone is lost," he said, "we should take them to an adult."

"When he came home," Wandalee Hulgan, Michael's mom, said, "the first thing he said was that he had brought a friend home."

Thinking he must have found a dog or cat along the way, Hulgan was surprised to see Shawna come through the door. But when Michael told his mom Shawna was lost, Hulgan immediately called the girl's mom.

"Anything could happen these days," Cheryl said. "The first thing she (Shawna) said to me was, 'Don't be mad.'"

Principal Glenn Hughes said both sets of parents should be extremely proud of their children, as should the children themselves. To recognize the students for handling a possibly dangerous situation, Hughes recently presented both with certificates. Michael received a Stallion Award — the school's highest award — for using good citizenship skills to help a fellow schoolmate in need. Shawna was awarded a Stowers School Quick Thinker certificate for knowing her phone number — something that made it possible for her to help herself — and for making the right decision.

Hughes said teachers and faculty recognize the need for children to carry what they learn in school to the community and noted Michael and Shawna epitomized knowing what to do in a possible crisis. Because Shawna knew her phone number and Michael knew to get help from a trusted adult served as great feedback to Hughes that students, parents and schools are communicating well.

The Stowers principal also commended both sets of parents for their actions. He said it was

Seminars develop born leaders

By Donna S. Budjenska
Special to The Bayonet

Some say leaders are born, not made. But, Fort Benning's Leadership Seminars try to amend that expression.

Week-long courses instructed by volunteers, Leadership Seminars are geared to officers' spouses who may be called upon to lead groups and participate in volunteer programs. For those spouses who choose not to be involved in such activities, the program is still effective, as it enhances self-awareness, according to attendee Leigh Timmerman.

"I would recommend it," she said. "I learned a lot about myself."

Seminar leaders conduct several sessions annually and teach such topics as group dynamics, effective communication, situational leadership, family support groups and coping with trauma. Lectures and group discussion are fleshed out with role-playing exercises and questionnaires. Panel discussions with spouses of commanders and senior noncommissioned officers postwide are meant to enhance the younger spouses' understanding of their future leadership potential.

Gender differences affect social security rights

By Charles Coiner
Social Security Administration

Women need to be especially alert to their Social Security rights and responsibilities to get the most out of their Social Security protection. Although Social Security is the same for men and women, differences in lifestyles and work patterns that characterize the genders can mean different patterns of Social Security benefits and coverage.

For example, women are more likely to qualify for benefits on the basis of their husband's earnings than men are to qualify for benefits on their wife's earnings. Women may qualify for spouse's benefits, mother's benefits, widow's benefits or a divorced spouse benefit. This means that women need to be aware of how Social Security treats them as workers, wives, widows, divorced wives and mothers.

If you choose to be a homemaker, you are covered under Social Security through your husband's work. When the family income is reduced because of his retirement, death or disability, you may qualify for Social Security benefits at age 62, at any age if you have minor children in your care receiving benefits, or as early as age 60 as a widow, or from age 50 to 59 as a disabled widow. However, if you divorce after less than ten years of marriage, this protection is not available to you.

If you choose a career outside the home — about 60 percent of all women do — you earn Social Security protection of your own for yourself and your family. If you die or become disabled, your children get benefits until they're 18, or 19 if still in school. Your husband could also qualify for benefits on your earnings.

If you alternate between a career and homemaking, you need to be aware that you can maintain your full Social Security protection with a little attention.

Any Social Security credits you earn remain on your record. After 10 years of work in which you have earned the maximum of four credits each year, you are fully insured for retirement, disability, and survivors benefits.

But for disability benefits, you also need to have recent work. For example, if you're over 30, you need the maximum amount of credits for five out of the last 10 years (20 credits). Younger workers need less, as little as six credits for a year and a half of work, under age 24.

If you qualify for benefits both as a spouse and as a worker, you get the higher of the two. That is, you get your own benefit plus the difference between the two. Whether to take a benefit on your own earnings or a spouse's benefit may be more complicated than that, however. For example, if you take a widow's benefit at the earliest possible age, age 60, it is reduced to 71.5 percent of the worker's benefit. But if you take it at age 65, you get 100 percent of the deceased worker's benefit.

The important thing is that you recognize the need to stay on top of your Social Security protection. For more information, call Social Security at (800) 772-1213.

LEADERS: Seminars polish innate abilities

"There's no way you could walk away without benefiting," Timmerman said. "You can never learn too much."

Just as the Infantry Officers' Advanced Course is designed to prepare new captains to assume company command, Leadership Seminars are geared to advanced course spouses who might want to become part of a command team.

"We are like a pre-command course for Infantry Officers' Advanced Course wives," said Kris Johnson, past president and instructor for Leadership Seminars. "We started in 1984 and have evolved to be more specific to company-level command time."

"I'm just more prepared to be a part of my husband's command team," said D'Lyn Hardy after she completed a recent Leadership Seminar. "I never thought of myself in that role, and (Leadership Seminar) better prepares you to do a good job at that."

So, while some may believe leaders are born, not made, a better motto for Leadership Seminar might be "Leaders are born — and trained."

The course is free and materials — ranging from a course manual to dozens of related handouts — are supplied. For more information about Fort Benning's Leadership Seminars, call 545-1240.

Community awareness helps stop child abuse

Family Advocacy Program

April is Child Abuse Prevention Month and this year's theme is "Constructing Creative Solutions to a Community Problem."

Building interest in child abuse prevention is a task that sometimes seems never-ending. Just a few years ago, the public was much less aware that child abuse was a serious problem in our country.

To understand why it is so important to educate the community on child abuse, look at the history of child abuse.

Children have suffered abuse and neglect for centuries. To Aristotle, children were considered property and "there can be no injustice to one's own property." Children were sold into slavery and used as a sacrifice during biblical times. Children were taught to beg for the family in England as early as the 1700s.

In America in 1874, a little girl named Mary Ellen was horribly abused by the people responsible for her care. When friends and neighbors tried to help her, they learned there were no laws against abusing and neglecting children. So they asked the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to help. The society went to court, claiming that Mary Ellen, a human, was also an animal and therefore entitled to protection. The court agreed and Mary Ellen was helped.

In 1946, the first x-rays to show injuries to children done by their parents were used. National attention was brought to the battered child in 1962 by Dr. C. Henry Kempe. In 1963, the first reporting laws were written. Since then, all 50 states have passed laws requiring that all professionals report child abuse and neglect. Awareness of the problem in our country has resulted in thousands of reports each year.

The Army, too, is concerned about abuse and neglect of children. The Army Family Advocacy Program was established as a specialized prevention program Armywide to focus on child and spouse abuse. Army Regulation 608-18 requires every soldier, employee and family member of the military installation to make a report if they suspect a child being abused.

The Family Advocacy Program also sponsors the Parent Education Program, First Steps Program, Respite Child Care and the Safety Education Program at Fort Benning.

For additional information on child abuse and reporting abuse or any of the programs listed, call Rebecca Welch, Family Advocacy Program manager, at 545-3344 or 545-6969.

important that Cheryl Roseman communicated her concerns with school staff right away. And about Michael's mother's approach to the situation, he said, "Knowing that (Michael) responded, whether or not (Shawna) knew her phone number, I have no doubt Michael's mother would have had her back down here (at the school)."

Since the incident, Michael celebrated his seventh birthday with a party Shawna's family did not miss. He also received a Fort Benning certificate of appreciation for citizenship during the commanding general's retreat ceremony Thursday.

Cross symbolizes sacrifices impossible to ignore

By Pat Cote
1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment

In the expression of your Christian faith, have you ever wondered what really matters?

According to the Scriptures, the part that really matters is the cross — no more and no less.

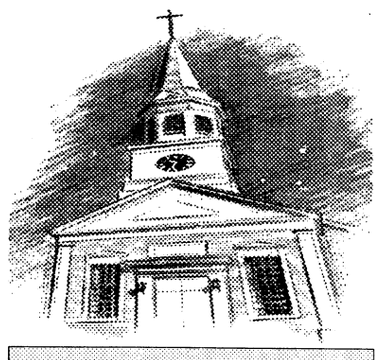
The cross is almost too simple in concept, yet it takes a predominant position on the time line of history.

The cross is almost too simple in structure; only wood, yet what a piece of wood it is. History has idolized it and despised it, gold-plated it and burned it, worn it and trashed it.

History has done everything to it but ignore it. That's the one option the cross does not offer. No one can ignore it. You can't ignore a piece of wood that suspends the greatest claim in history.

The reason for the cross is stated so plainly in John 3:16: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only son that whoever believes in him would not perish, but would have eternal life."

It is the cross and the death of Jesus Christ on that cross that is the heart and center of the gospel. The whole event only spanned a six-hour time frame. Think about it — six hours on a Friday; not a lot of time compared to eternity. Yet the most famous event in history took place during those hours.



God was on a cross. The creator of the world was being executed. Spit and blood were caked to his cheeks, and his lips were cracked and swollen. Thorns ripped his scalp. His lungs screamed in pain. His legs knotted with cramps.

You can't help but ask, "Jesus, didn't you give any thought to saving yourself? What kept you there? What held you to the cross? What made you stay?"

You have to wonder if Jesus ever wanted to quit. Did his human heart ever hope his heavenly father would find another way?

We don't know. We do know there was a time when, if he could have, he would have turned his back on the whole mess and gone away. But he couldn't.

He couldn't because he saw you and me. Right there in the middle of a world that isn't fair, he saw us. He saw us cast into a river of life we didn't request. He saw us with bodies that become tired and hearts that grow weak.

reflections

As Christ mounted the cross at Calvary, it was you and me that were in his thoughts. As the nails tore through his flesh, it was you and me that were in his prayers. As Jesus hung on the cross and looked into heaven, it was you and me that were in his vision.

When we really reflect on it, those six final hours were for us. His final pain was for us. His final passion was for us. You see, Jesus was determined to go through hell alone rather than to go to heaven without us.

During this holy week, find the time to take a good look at the cross. Examine those hours in history and see if you can find the part that matters.

Special Easter services set

USAIC Chaplain Office

Holy Week is the most sacred time of the year for Christians. Beginning with Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday and culminating in the celebration of his glorious resurrection on Easter Sunday, Christians contemplate the meaning of the death, burial and resurrection for their lives and faith.

To assist members of the Fort Benning community to grow spiritually during this week, a full schedule of special services is planned.

Today at noon, Good Friday, a special memorial service marking the death of Jesus will be conducted at Sight Seeing Road Chapel.

Easter Sunday, at 7 a.m., the annual Sunrise Service celebrating Jesus' glorious resurrection will be as the Field of Four Chaplains adjacent to the Infantry Center Chapel. Chaplain (Brig. Gen.) G. T. Gunhus, the deputy chief of Army chaplains, will be the guest speaker.

All chapels will conduct special Easter services at the regular times.

For more information about any of the services, call the USAIC Chaplain Office at 545-2288 or the Infantry Center Chapel at 545-2931 or 545-2050.

Good Friday marks coming of Easter

By Bob Blessing
2nd Battalion, 69th Armor

When Christ died on that Good Friday 2,000 years ago, most of his followers were faced with the possibility they had probably been some of the biggest fools in history.

reflections

They had been following a man who was literally demonstrating power for healing, deliverance and proclaiming peace with God and freedom for men and women. Jesus said all hope for these blessings came through a relationship with him as the source of this new life. Now he was dead and gone.

As far as his followers were concerned, they were left with nothing. The government and religious leaders were now looking to get them. They had been fools. They had been taken.

The crucifixion was a radical questioning of the validity of Jesus' work and words. He claimed to be the Messiah, the Son of God, who came to free his people as he healed, performed miracles, raised the dead and preached freedom and peace for people. Then he died, leaving them powerless. They were betrayed. They were in a worse position than before he came.

Had he just been a magician? No! Easter Resurrection happened and changed their whole perception of Jesus. The resurrection was God's vindication of the words and work of Jesus. God set his seal on all that Jesus said and did in his earthly life.

Easter is the day of victory. Listen to the words of the hymn celebrating the awesome day 2,000 years ago when Jesus arose.

"Hail thee festival day, blest day that art hallowed forever.

Day whereon Christ arose, breaking the kingdom of death."

This hymn proclaims that death and separation from God no longer rule our lives. Jesus has now made it possible for us to live forever. Alleluia!

God's raising Jesus does not mean that the earthly ministry of his Son becomes a thing of the past. No. Rather it is through the resurrection that all that Christ stood for in his earthly life — his word, his healing and liberation from the bondage of sin and the devil — all this can now continue in the lives of his people today.

Christianity is not to be a religion of the past with an influence of a good person challenging us to be good today. It is not like Socrates, who continues today to influence our social norms and education from the past with his philosophy and teachings.

Christianity, or our life with Christ, is the continuation of the same work and words that Jesus did and said. It is the continuation of the same power through which Jesus did his work in the world — the power of the Holy Spirit flowing through us. We aren't living in past glories; we are living in the present with new life and power coming from Jesus through the Spirit of God living in us. Part of the meaning of Easter is that what Jesus stood for continues.

Therefore, those who live now with the risen Jesus in their lives are truly the wise ones, with eternity as a hope and heaven as a reality for their lives.

Let us, too, be wise. Let us live with the reality of the risen Jesus in our lives today. Let this Easter morning be a time for a new life resurrection experience with Jesus. Let us respond as the early Christians proclaimed to one another, reciting the faith, hope and love that kept them strong.

"He is Risen!"

Book of Revelation to be studied — The Adult I Sunday School Class is beginning a study of the Book of Revelation.

This class will meet every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in Building 2521, at the Religious Education Center.

Sunday school bus — Families who would like transportation to and from Sunday School at the Religious Education Center, Building 2517, can call 545-4715.

A bus will be scheduled to pick up participants at their homes before Sunday School and then drop them off after the meeting.

Vacation Bible School — Children, from age four to junior high school, are encouraged to attend Vacation Bible School June 17 to 21.

VBS will be conducted each day from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Edward A. White School. The program will consist of bible study, music, recreation and refreshments.

Volunteers are needed as teachers, assistant teachers, administrators, as well as refreshment personnel and in other positions.

For more information, call Bill Putman at 545-4715, or leave a message at 545-2288.

BOSS bible study — The Fort Benning Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers program is sponsoring a single soldiers' Bible and prayer fellowship for Christian single soldiers of all denominations.

The goals of this group will be to organize and plan a quarterly event, to meet once or twice a month for ministry and fellowship and to provide Christian single soldiers a better opportunity to join others in growth of Jesus Christ.

Contact Spc. Michael Will at 544-9269, your unit chaplain to join the group, or call 545-2813 for more information.

Praise and worship service — A nondenominational general Protestant service, including worship, praise, singing, prayer, teaching and preaching will be conducted every Sunday at the Infantry Center Chapel from 6 to 8 p.m.

Everyone is invited, including single, married, active duty, retired, families, friends, relatives, National Guard, Reserves, enlisted, non-commissioned officers and officers.

Refreshments will be served and fellowship will take place after the service in the chapel annex. Child care will be available.

Several religious materials are available at the Faith and Family section at Sayers Memorial Library.

Listed below are some examples.

Books

• "Reinhold Niebuhr: Selected Writings" by Larry Rasmussen

Reinhold Niebuhr, a theologian, addresses social and political issues from a "Christian realism" perspective — a blend of liberalism, social analysis and elements of Augustinian belief. The key texts and concepts included are set in historical and theological context.

• "After Jesus the Gospels" by Robert M. Grant

Grant, a theologian, explores theological interpretations of Jesus written soon after the New Testament and before the classical formulations of the 4th century. He examines the origins of 2nd century thinking, including the humanity of Christ, agnostic Christology, the Christological thinking of the early church fathers and other relevant issues.

• "Jesus: An Interview Across Time" by Andrew G. Hodges

In this book, Hodges surmises what Christ would have said if he shared his side of the story of being God's Son on earth — childhood experiences of alienation, being baptized by John, realizing for the first time that he was the Son of God. This is a poignant look into Christ's humanity, firmly grounded in scripture.

• "Ethics," Volume 1 by Trutz Rendtorf

Rendtorf developed his theory of an ethical theology, which is, in fact, the idea of ethics being independent from theology. He discusses the place of ethics in relation to theology and gives a view of the three basic elements of an ethical life as well as an analysis of the methodological structure of ethics.

Beware of credit card offers in the mail

Better Business Bureau

Tucked in among the bills, circulars and other assorted mail that arrives every day is a pre-approved credit card with a $7,500 line of credit. You don't remember ever applying for it. Are you therefore liable for charges made to that card?

According to the Federal Trade Commission, you would not be liable in any way for the unauthorized use of any kind of credit card sent to you without your first having applied for the credit.

In fact, under the Federal Truth In Lending Act, it is illegal for a creditor of any kind, including banks and department stores, to extend credit without either an oral or written application.

It is, however, perfectly legal for a creditor to issue renewal or replacement credit cards, since your earlier application is on file.

If you activate one of these cards, mistaking it for a replacement card, you could open a credit line you don't want. In such cases, the prior account is closed when the new one activated. To terminate a credit agreement, you must inform the creditor in writing.

Under ordinary circumstances, you can be liable for up to $50 per card for the unauthorized use of your legitimate credit cards, but there is no liability at all for the misuse of credit for which you never applied.

If you receive an unsolicited credit card, the Better Business Bureau suggest the following:

• Make a photocopy of the card, then cut it up. Write to the issuer, stating that you decline the offer and are requesting that any information added to your credit record be removed immediately.

• Keep a record of the card offer and your letter. Never give out personal or confidential information over the telephone.

• If you are interested in keeping the card, don't use it until you have verified all of the terms of the agreement, including credit limit, annual fee, interest rate and length of time for which the rate is guaranteed.

For more information, contact your Better Business Bureau or the Federal Trade Commission.

ask the judge

By George R. Smawley
Staff Judge Advocate's Office

Q. My car was recently vandalized in the parking lot of the Officers' Club. When I called the Claims Office I was told that, while I was welcome to file a claim, Army regulations generally prohibit payment of claims that occur at a location other than assigned housing. What are the standards used in evaluating these kinds of claims?

A. The national epidemic of auto theft and vandalism has expanded to military installations with increasing frequency. Fortunately, the military claims system offers some relief to active duty service members who find themselves the victim of this type of crime.

Army Regulation 27-20, Chapter 11, defines vehicles as "automobiles, motorcycles, mopeds, utility trailers, camping trailers, trucks, motor homes, boats, boat trailers, bicycles and aircraft." Damage or theft to these vehicles may be compensated up to $3,000 where the following conditions are met:

• The damage/theft occurred while the vehicle was located at the soldier's assigned government quarters or authorized off-post lodging (hotel while on temporary duty but not off-post housing at permanent duty station).

• The vehicle must be properly insured and registered with a state Department of Motor Vehicles and the Fort Benning Provost Marshal's Office.

• At the time of the incident that gave rise to the damage or theft, the vehicle must have been lawfully parked in accordance with post regulations and directives.

Claimants are also required to secure their vehicles and any property contained within. Motorcycles and bicycles should be secured inside a locked storage shed or chained to a fixed object such as a rack, post or tree.

In accordance with recent changes to the Claims regulation, AR 27-20, "There is a presumption that vehicle theft or vandalism occurs off the military installation and is generally not compensable. Such claims are only payable when the claimant proves that the theft or vandalism occurred while the vehicle was located at his or her authorized quarters (e.g. a military police report indicating broken glass from the window is on the driveway)."

Failure to register, insure or properly secure your vehicle contrary to law and regulation could result in the denial of the claim. This includes property located inside of the vehicle. For example, radar detectors are not compensable because they are used to evade the law, and stereo equipment must be bolted to the vehicle in such a way that tools are required to remove it. Small high-value items such as radio headsets and expensive sunglasses should be secured in the trunk of the vehicle or locked in the glove compartment.

While the Army Claims system offers limited relief from theft and vandalism, a service member's best guarantee against a loss continues to be private insurance.

For more information, call the Fort Benning Claims Office, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, at 545-2285.

Savings-conscious shoppers clip cost-cutting coupons

Better Business Bureau

While many consumers can acquire abundant coupon savings through newspaper ads and mailings, some people are willing to pay money to save money.

Some discount books contain two-for-one or up to 50-percent-off coupons for numerous restaurants, fast food chains, theaters, sporting events, hotels, airline and other retail establishments. The books theoretically can save you hundreds of dollars over the course of a year.

Coupon books are typically designed, developed and sold by commercial marketing companies. The companies encourage businesses in the area to participate by offering the opportunity to advertise and attract new customers. Companies may market the books through schools or other nonprofit groups that receive a portion of the profits in exchange.

Coupon books can be true money savers, but their value depends on how you use them. The following tips can help with your purchasing decision:

• If you are not sure about the coupon promoter, call your Better Business Bureau for a report on the company.

• Calculate the actual cost of the book, including shipping and handling fees and determine how many coupons you would have to use to recoup the cost.

• Consider your own habits and lifestyle. Does the book offer products and services you plan to buy anyway or are interested in trying or will it persuade you to spend money on an item you would not typically purchase?

• Consider the type of discounts offered. Remember that two-for-one deals are not necessarily the equivalent of a 50 percent discount. If the coupon book contains mostly two-for-one savings, take account of whether you would actually need or want two products or meals.

• Lou Marcotte, president of the Better Business Bureau, said to read the fine print. Some coupons may restrict the days or hours when they may be used or the locations where they are accepted. Also, some coupons may not be applied in combination with other discounts, such as daily specials.

Exchange coupons with friends or other families. Their discards may add to your savings.

Agents assist travelers with vacation plans

Better Business Bureau

Many consumers spend billions of dollars each year traveling in the United States and abroad. Whether you choose to be your own travel agent or use the services of a professional, good planning is a major factor in making vacation travel a delight.

If you choose to use the services of a travel agent, ask your friends and business associates to refer you to travel agents they have used to plan their vacations.

To provide efficient assistance, the travel agent will need to have a good idea of your travel budget and your special interests.

Some considerations might include:

•Arranging reservations for air, sea, bus and rail travel, cruises, and car rentals here and abroad.

• Providing information on travel and luggage insurance, visas, passports, inoculations, travelers checks, currency exchange, and weather.

• Preparation of individual itineraries and arrangements for package tours and for personally escorted tours or group tours, within the U.S. and abroad.

Travel agents are compensated from commissions earned from carriers, tour operators, and hotels. Their services are provided at no charge to the customers. However, you may have to pay for any special or unusual services you request.

When using a travel agent, you have every right to assume that the tour and its accommodations will be exactly as they were represented — the oceanfront hotel will be on the beach instead of a mile away, the charges you pay will match the charges you expected and that your charter flight will actually get off the ground at the promised time of departure (barring, of course, impossible flying weather, mechanical difficulties or airport strikes).

Also, consider the line that generally appears (in small print) in many tour brochures: "We reserve the right to change accommodations without prior notice." No one should mind changing accommodations if the facilities are at least equal to those originally contracted for.

Contact your Better Business Bureau of West Georgia-East Alabama for a reliability report on the travel company before making your purchase.

Players capture spring racquetball titles

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The 1996 spring singles racquetball tournament was conducted March 29 and 30 at the Audie Murphy Physical Fitness Center.

The double-elimination tournament consisted of three men's and one women's division with trophies for first, second and third places.

"This year we had competition in four different divisions, men's open 34 and under, seniors 35 to 39, men's masters 40 and over and women's open," tournament director Lulu Michenor said.

Michenor said the competition consisted of all types of players from novice to intermediate and advanced players.

"The competitors officiated each others games during the tournament," Michenor said.

Michenor said that having the players officiate for each other fostered good sportsmanship and allowed the players to coach each other on the court.

In the men's open division Charles Scott needed to win four straight games to capture the division title; however, Craig Clayton, unbeaten in the winners' bracket, took two straight games from Scott to earn the men's open championship.

In the men's senior division, Edward Marin defeated Christopher Winterman two straight games to capture the senior's championship.

In the 40 and over division, James May beat out Connie Joyner to win in the master's bracket.

In the women's division, Nancy Hadley beat out Pamela Alonza to win the women's open division.

Winners of the spring racquetball tournament were:

Men's open division:
Craig Clayton, first place
Charles Scott, second place
Antoine Cannon, third place

Men's senior division:
Edward Marin, first place
Christopher Winterman, second place
Joshua Mitchell, third place

Men's master's division:
James May, first place
Connie Joyner, second place
Barry Pigg, third place

Women's open division:
Nancy Hadley, first place
Pamela Alonza, second place
Melissa Rosa, third place

Karate dojo win awards in North Alabama classic

Yoshukai Karate Dojo

The Fort Benning Yoshukai Karate Dojo competed in the ninth annual North Alabama Karate Classic March 16 in Atalla, Ala., bringing home 16 first through fourth place honors.

The Yoshukai (Japanese style) dojo is a member of Mike Foster's Yoshukai International Karate Association with the main school (hombu) located in Titusville, Fla.

The schools instructor, Ron Ziss, has been training students at the dojo located at the Fort Benning Officers' Club for four years.

"The students work very hard; and, when they compete it shows," Ziss said. "They always do very well at tournaments as a school and not just as one or two individual stars.

"The students help motivate each other to higher standards and are very supportive to each other in those tough times in their dojo," Ziss said.

Children's classes are conducted Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons as well as weekends. For more information, call Ziss at 324-3113.

Winners in the ninth annual North Alabama Karate Classic were:

Adult Beginner (white and yellow belt):
Ron Bomkamp, first in Sparring, second in kata

Adult Intermediate (green belt):
Lynn Mettler, first in sparring, second in kata
Chris Mettler, first in sparring, third in kata

Youth Beginner (white and yellow belt):
Chantal Denson, first in Sparring, second in kata
Eva Daly, fourth in kata

Youth Intermediate (green belt):
Lizbeth Walker, first in kata
Michael Tomczewski, second in sparring

All-Army team finishes in first

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The All-Army wrestling team recently returned from the 1996 Armed Forces Meet conducted at Quantico, Va. placing first in overall team competition.

Wrestlers from Fort Benning accounted for eleven gold, twelve silver and one bronze medal in freestyle and Greco-Roman competition.

The total team results of the freestyle competition had the Army in first with 35 points, the Marines in second with 30 points, the Navy in third with 27 points and the Air Force in fourth with 16 points.

In the Greco-Roman style competition, the Army team finished in first with 44 points, the Marines in second with 27 points, the Navy in third with 26 points and the Air Force in fourth with 12 points.

The Army had seven wrestlers to qualify for the U.S. Olympic trials to be conducted June 1 to 2 in Concord, Calif.

Derrick Waldroup won his 18th armed forces championship, tying him for the most championships with Marine Greg Gibson.

Army wrestlers winning at this year's Armed Forces Meet were:

Life jackets, they float, you don't

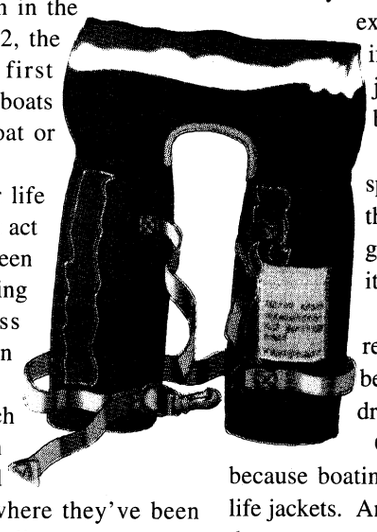
U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary

Life jackets have been saving lives for nearly 150 years, but even though no one has ever given them an award for heroism, tens of thousands of people have given them credit and provided all the proof necessary that they do the job for which they are designed.

They are personal flotation devices — "life preservers" or "life jackets" (with emphasis on the word "life") — and they've been in the forefront of lifesaving since 1852, the year Congress passed the first requirement that passenger steamboats on the nation's rivers carry a float or life preserver for every passenger.

A lot of water has swept over life jackets in the years since the first act of Congress. Life jackets have been there when it counted, aboard sinking passenger liners, on countless pleasure cruises and amid storms on oceans, lakes and rivers.

Soldiers wore them during beach landings, aboard troop ships and in aircrafts through several wars and they still wear them. And anywhere they've been worn, they've brought people back alive.



Tragically, approximately 75 percent of the boating fatalities that occur could have been prevented if the victim would have been wearing a life jacket. However, a great percentage of the 75 percent had life jackets on board.

Why then, with the means of survival available do very few people wear life jackets. The reasons vary, but the excuses are poor.

Some of the more common are: "its too restricting...", "it's too hot...", "it's too bothersome...", or "I can't fish, hunt or paddle with it on."

What is your excuse?. Considering the special tailoring and styling now available for today's boaters, these excuses should no longer exist.

When you leave for a day on the water, you seldom expect to find yourself in the water. But if you do and you are not wearing a life jacket, you increase your chances of becoming a boating accident statistic.

Boating accidents can happen in a split second. When an incident happens that fast, the only way your life jacket is going to help you is if you already have it on before you end up in the water.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary reminds recreational boaters and anglers that the best "insurance policy" against accidental drowning is to wear a life jacket.

Countless lives have been saved because boating accident victims were wearing their life jackets. And as many lives have been lost because they were not.

Life jackets could have saved the lives of at least 550 boaters who drowned in 1994, including approximately 30 children age 12 or younger.

In 1994, 75 percent of the victims involved in fatal boating accidents were not wearing their life jackets. Remember, life jackets float; you don't.

Members of 2nd squad, 2nd platoon, pause for a photo after breaching a minefield during the tactics field training exercise.

Senior Officer Candidate Curtis D. Wiley paints a white line, signifying the change from intermediate to senior status, on the "company street" formation area.

Officer candidates Glenn O. Mellor (front), Jason A. Miller and Steve I. Toker put on camouflage during a briefing at the start of "Capstone," the final field training exercise.

Soldiers work to earn lieutenant bars at Officer Candidate School

By Ruth J. Spaller
Officer Candidate School

They have done countless numbers of push-ups and four-count flutter kicks, road marched miles through the darkness on Fort Benning's back roads, spent weeks on ranges with rain dripping off their camouflaged faces into half-warmed field rations and sat for hours fighting off sleep in classes in Infantry Hall.

They stood in formation studying "required knowledge" cards until they could recite verbatim the definitions of leadership dimensions like "influence" and "physical stamina," and honed their writing skills on five-paragraph operation orders.

They studied for tests on subjects ranging from infantry tactics to military justice and rated their peers' performance in student leadership positions.

This is how the candidates of Class 2-96, Company B, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, Officer Candidate School, have spent the last 13 weeks.

The culmination of their efforts will come with graduation April 11, when 104 of the original 116 candidates will trade in the white ascots and infantry blue helmet liners that are the trademark of the "senior" and final phase of OCS for the gold bars of second lieutenants.

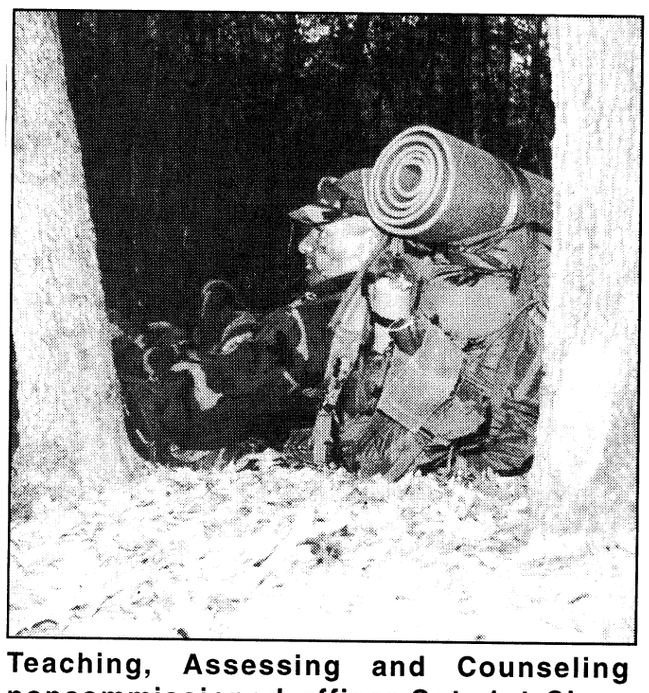
Officer Candidate School takes soldiers with prior military service and "molds them and develops them into leaders — officer leaders," said Capt. Kevin L. Leonard, Company B commander.

The experience levels of the candidates range from 10 to 12 weeks of basic training to former NCOs with 10 to 12 years of prior military experience, Leonard said, so much of the focus of the course is on basic military skills and discipline centered around a core of military education classes intended to "baseline" the group.

The entire class is run by a student chain of command that begins with team leaders and works up to the "top three" — the student first sergeant, executive officer and company commander.

The students in these positions plan and organize the company's schedule and training, handle all logistics and lead all formations.

This provides "tremendous" training benefits, Leonard said, because even the most experienced candidates have never worked at that level and "this gives them a basis they will draw on as senior or company level officers."



Some of the most valuable lessons come from just observing the candidates in those leadership positions, said Senior Officer Candidate William P. Eckstein, one of those who came to OCS from basic training.

"I got to observe different styles of leadership and work on my own that way," he said.

"Being in such a large pool of experience has reinforced my own," said SOC Marc Blair, who spent three years in the infantry before coming to OCS. "I've reaped the benefits of former NCOs and gained experience from different branches that can be directly applied to what I'll be doing in the future."

As a second lieutenant, an OCS graduate "has experience on his or her side," Leonard said.

"The professionalism and experience an OCS grad brings to a unit is definitely a benefit," he said. "I know we are sending highly capable officers out into the force."

Teaching, Assessing and Counseling noncommissioned officer Sgt. 1st Class William T. Muehsam observes candidates during training.

TSM makes new generation of soldier

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

By fiscal 2000, more mobile, lethal and combat-effective soldiers will be modernized for the 21st century battlefield.

It is the job of Training and Doctrine Command System Manager, Soldier, to make this new generation of troops possible. "What we do here is very important to the soldiers," Alberta M. Reaves, secretary, TSM-Soldier, said. She believes that almost every aspect of a soldier's work is affected by decisions TSM-Soldier makes.

TSM-Soldier manages everything soldiers wear, carry and consume in a tactical environment through several programs. These include the Warrior Programs, consisting of Air Warrior, Land Warrior and Mounted Warrior; the Soldier Enhancement Program; and the Organizational Clothing and Individual Equipment Program.

These are all programs in which TSM-Soldier has developed ideas for improving soldiers' combat-effectiveness through more modernized clothing, food and weapons from many different sources. For example, some ideas previously implemented have come from colleges, businesses and soldiers. Each idea had to pass specific criteria before it was approved for development.

"Our mission is to be the conscience of the Army for the soldier," said TSM-Soldier Deputy Richard R. Wright. "We are responsible for insuring that all soldiers have the equipment necessary to accomplish their missions on the battlefield.

"Land Warrior is our centerpiece," he continued. "It is our most important program." The purpose of the Land Warrior Program is to modernize the dismounted soldier through an integrated system of a computer, radio, weapon, helmet, protective clothing and computer software. TSM-Soldier is working very closely with other government agencies and contractors to produce the items that comprise the Land Warrior System.

According to studies performed by the Army Science Board, soldiers equipped with the Land Warrior System will be more lethal, survivable and sustainable than current soldiers.

TSM-Soldier also manages the Soldier Enhancement Program, a program used for developing more modern equipment for soldiers. Processed through this program are items that can be taken from idea to production in less than 36 months. Ideas must be required by soldiers and affordable to the government to be accepted and produced through the Soldier Enhancement Program

"Our best sources for ideas are the soldiers themselves and their leadership," Wright said. "E-5's are very good sources, in my opinion." According to Deputy Wright, E-5's have usually been doing their jobs long enough to be familiar with their work and equipment and therefore, are able to propose good ideas.

Although only 43 out of 155 items submitted last year to the Soldier Enhancement Program received development approval for fiscal 1997, several of last year's projects were approved for continued production. Some of the ongoing projects include stabilized binoculars, a stun hand gun and an individual soldier radio

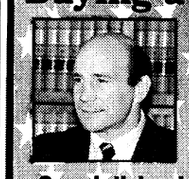
The Organizational Clothing and Individual Equipment Program managed by TSM-Soldier is the continuous modernization of soldiers' clothing and equipment so that, as with all of the programs TSM-Soldier manages, the troops are always prepared to do their jobs as well as possible, Wright said.

SF conference to be conducted

USASOC Public Affairs Office

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — The third annual Special Forces Branch Conference, set for April 18 and 19, is a forum for discussions on the future of Special Forces, the operational environment, geo-political issues and technology advancements.

Maj. Gen. William F. Garrison, the conference host and commander of the U.S. Army John F. Kennedy Special Warfare Center and School, invites active duty Special Forces officers and non-commissioned officers to participate in the conference and discussions with peers, leaders, doctrine writers and guest speakers.



After registration and welcoming remarks by Garrison, presentations include an update on the U.S. Army Special Forces Command (Airborne) by Maj. Gen. William Tangney; the commander-in-chief's view of the future by Gen. Hugh Shelton, U.S. Special Operations Command; the future national security environment by Brian Sullivan, author; the Army of the future by Gen. William Hartzog, commander, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command; and Force XXI by Maj. Gen. Joseph Rigby, chief, Army Digitization. A social mixer for guest speakers and participants at the Green Beret Sport Parachute Club concludes the first day's activities.

Presentations April 19 include Special Forces C4I (command, control communication, computers and intelligence) by Col. John Meyers III, director C4I; the value of the Special Forces Branch by Ms. Diana Smith, a retired political adviser; and, the health of the branch by Lt. Col. David McCracken, chief, Special Forces Officer Branch and Maj. Adrian Erckenbrack, chief, Special Forces Enlisted Branch for the Department of the Army. Activities will conclude by 2:30 p.m., April 19, to prepare for the Special Forces Ball which begins at 6 p.m.

The conference will be in the JFK Auditorium of Kennedy Hall on Fort Bragg, N.C. A $10 fee is due at registration on April 18, by 7 a.m., in the auditorium. Reservations may be made by writing to Commander, U.S. Army John F. Kennedy Special Warfare Center and School, Attn: AOJK-DT-SF (SFC 96), Fort Bragg, N.C. 28307-5000; fax reservations to (910) 432-5341; or telephone responses to (910) 432-5333 or 3416 and DSN 239-5333 or 3416. The conference committee needs responses from attendees as soon as possible or before April 12.

For more information, contact the Special Forces Division, Directorate of Training and Doctrine, USAJFKSWCS, at (910) 432-5333 or 3416.

Post wins again

USAIC Public Affairs Office

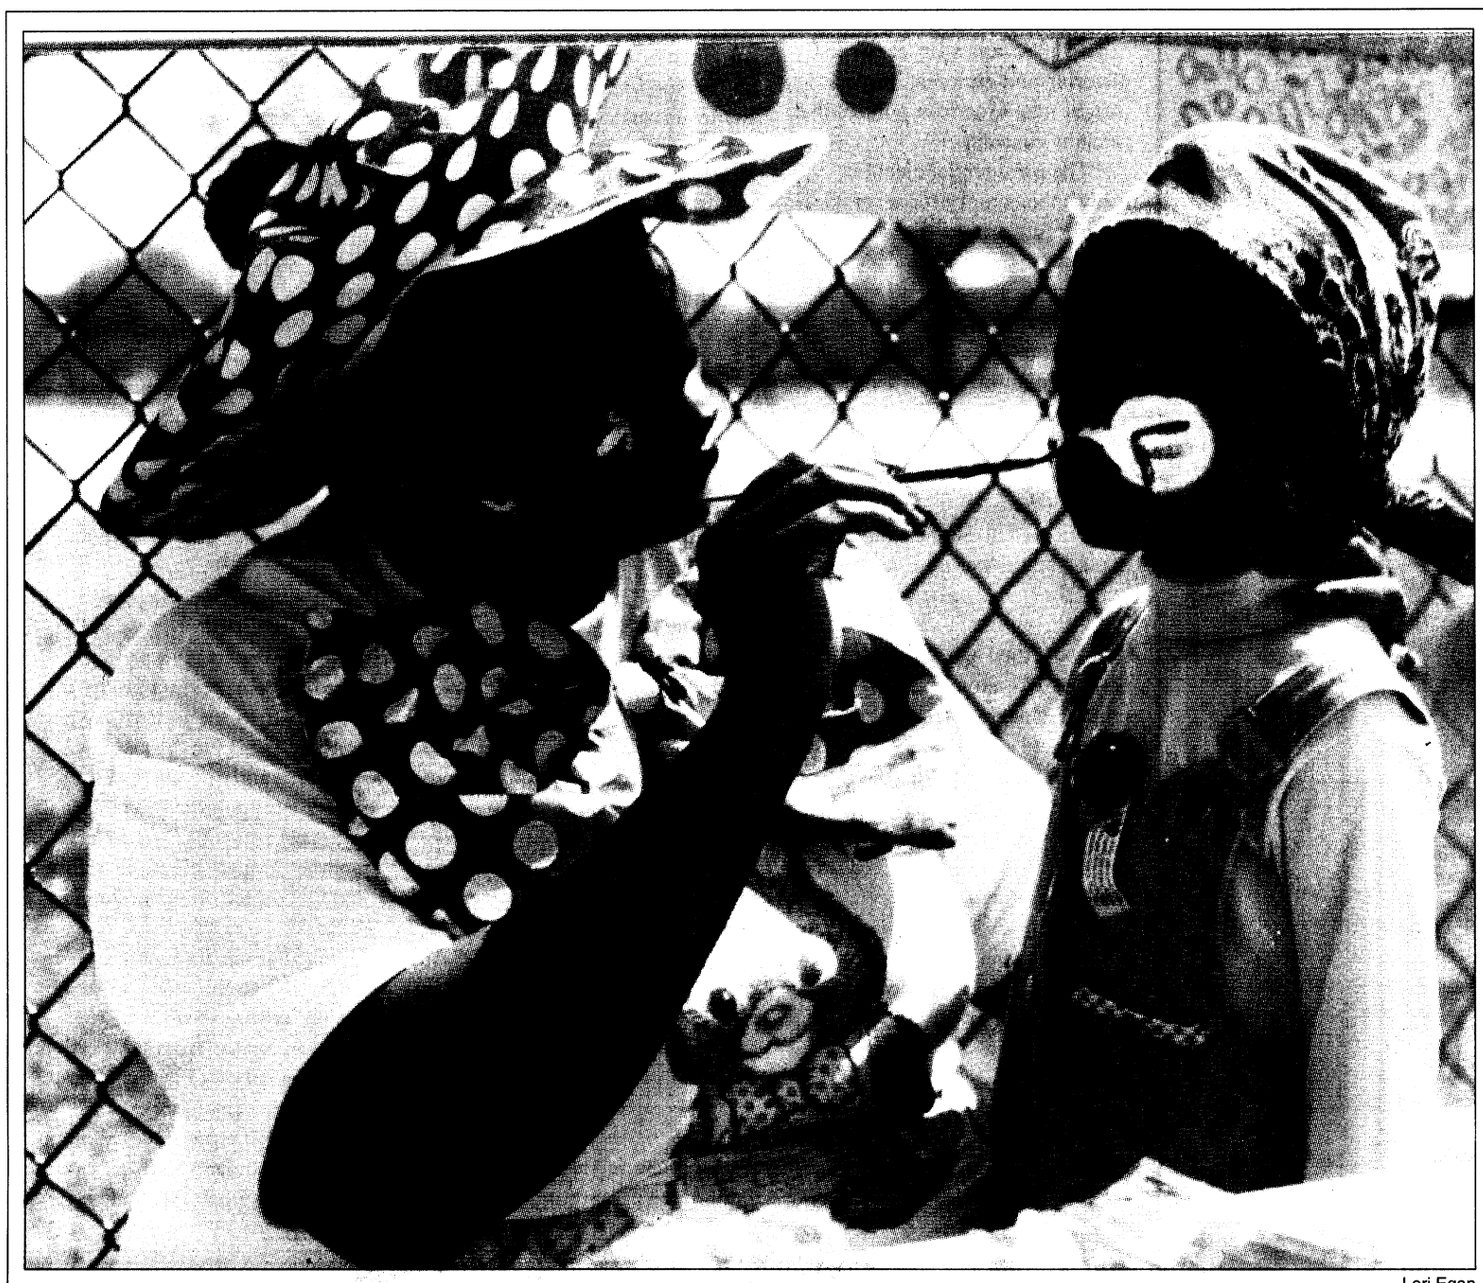
For the fourth year in a row, this post is the best large Army installation in the United States.

Fort Benning beat out two of the Army's other premier Army posts, Forts Bragg and Sill, to once again, cop the coveted Chief of Staff of the Army award in this category.

"I'm very proud of the men and women, soldiers and civilians at Fort Benning," Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix said.

Speaking before a standing-room only Victory Rally crowd in Marshall Auditorium yesterday, he said, "You gave it the very best shot, and because of your efforts, Fort Benning today, is better than it was a year ago, and that's what this competition is all about — improvement.

"By entering this competition, we learn new and better ways of doing things, how to work more efficiently, how to produce a better product -- be it improved doctrine, improved equipment, or better trained soldiers."



While Fort Benning did not "three-peat" as the Commander-in-Chief's winner for best Army installation in the world, Hendrix said he was still just as proud of the people at Fort Benning.

"I know the effort they put into winning," he said. "They truly did their best. They are winners. And while I salute Picatinny Arsenal, I'm putting them on notice that we'll be back next year."

Hendrix also extended his thanks to the people of the Chattahoochee Valley for their support during the entire process.

"We wouldn't have gotten as far as we did without their support," he said.

Hendrix will lead a contingent of Fort Benning employees and leaders from Phenix City and Columbus to Washington, D.C., May 9, where the formal award presentation will take place.

Military Appreciation Week approaches

By Lori Egan
Bayonet staff writer

It's time to dust off those musty sneakers and get ready for the upcoming Military Appreciation Week events beginning May 13 and culminating with Armed Forces Day May 18.

Military Appreciation Week is sponsored by the civilian communities in conjunction with Armed Forces Day.

It is also being hosted by the Association of the U.S. Army to foster goodwill between the military and the local community.

Military Appreciation Week activities will include unit competitions, military demonstrations and equipment displays, a business fair, an open house, selection of Mr. and Mrs. AUSA, a picnic, and the ever-popular "Burn the General" run.

The idea behind Military Appreciation Week is to enhance morale, to demonstrate the Army's preparedness and to share the spirit of cooperation between Fort Benning and the local communities.

The week begins with a River Walk Relay which begins at 7 a.m. This is the first time for this course. The course begins at the National Infantry Museum and follows the Riverwalk Trail to Uptown Columbus.

The festivities will conclude on Armed Forces Day.

Awards will be presented to the winners of all the sporting competitions conducted throughout the week of May 18, Armed Forces Day.

Armed Forces Day will feature a demonstration by sky divers, the awards ceremonies, entertainment and midway booths.

The award ceremony will be at 11, with the carnival and picnic activities beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Small business, banking workshop set

USAIC Public Affairs Office

A banking and electronic data interchange luncheon will be April 24 from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Fort Benning Officers' Club.

Sponsored by the Directorate of Contracting and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, local financial institutions and small businesses are invited to attend.

Registration is $10 per attendee including lunch. Wednesday is the registration deadline.

The purpose of the workshop is to foster a working relationship between financial institutions and small businesses through the use of electronic data interchange.

Fort Benning's Directorate of Contracting and many other government agencies are currently using simplified acquisition procedures to procure goods and services suitable for EDI ranging from than $2,500 to $100,000.

Among invited speakers to the workshop are representatives of the Atlanta Electronic Commerce Resource Center, Defense Finance and Accounting, Fort Benning Directorate of Resource Management and industry experts. There will also be a round-table discussion.

For more information concerning the workshop, call Robert Battle at 545-1013 or 545-5173.

10-plex theater coming to post

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning will be the site of the first multi-screen theater on an Army or Air Force installation when Military Services Inc. of Columbus constructs a 10-screen multiplex theater.

Ground breaking began this week and the grand opening of the new theater is expected in December.

The new theater will be located on Gordon Field at the intersection of Ingersoll and Burr Street. An official ground-breaking ceremony is scheduled for April 26.

"We're absolutely delighted to have this theater coming to Fort Benning," said Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, post commanding general. "This theater will be an asset to the soldiers and family members."

The new theater will feature recently released motion pictures at competitive prices. It will have more than 1,600 seats in auditoriums ranging in size from the two largest at 262 seats to the smallest pair with a capacity of 106.

"(The theater) will show first run motion pictures at the new Fort Benning theater, at the same time they are released on the circuit in Columbus area theaters," said Larry Phillips, director of media for the Army and Air Force Exchange Service. "After the Fort Benning command explored various alternatives, the Army and Air Force Exchange Service was asked to contract with a concessionaire to build and operate the theater," Phillips said.

"Military Services Inc. has a management agreement with Carmike Cinemas for the theater construction and operation over the next 20 years. AAFES had to obtain congressional approval before finalizing the contract for the project."

When the new theater complex opens, AAFES will close the 1,500-seat Fort Benning Main Post Theater — a building which is 59 years old and in deteriorating condition — and the theater at Sand Hill.

Currently AAFES operates 182 paid admission theaters worldwide, with 111 located on installations in the United States, 50 in Europe and 21 in the Pacific region. All of them are single screen theaters.

Other auditoriums in the new complex will seat 140, 144 and 133 patrons. Approximately 40 handicap accessible spaces will be available in the complex for patrons with disabilities.

"Admission prices will be competitive with prices of off-post theaters," Phillips said. As with all multiplex theaters, this size range of auditoriums will allow the theater operator to show a variety of motion pictures and allocate additional screens to the more popular titles, he said. A full-service concession stand will provide food and beverages.

"MSI will spend $2.7 million dollars to build the new theater complex," Phillips said. "AAFES and Fort Benning will not have to spend any funds. Fort Benning will provide the land to build the theater and parking lot. After construction, the theater will become the property of Fort Benning."

Carmike Cinemas has 2,500 motion picture screens in operation in its system.

National election: Politics, military are not a good mix

By John W Falkenbury
Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

What happens every four years? Leap year and presidential elections.

In 1888, James Bryce, British historian and diplomat, provided an insight into American politics that remains constant.

"The presidential election throws the country for several months into a state of turmoil, for which there may be no occasion.

"Perhaps there are no serious party issues to be decided, perhaps the best thing would be that the existing administration should pursue the even tenor of its way.

"The Constitution, however, requires an election to be conducted, so the whole costly and complicated machinery of agitation is put in motion; and if issues don't exist, they have to be created."

While voting is a right and a privilege, the Department of Defense has a long-standing policy of not "engaging in activities that could be interpreted as associating with political causes, issues or candidates."

This year's elections are no different.

In addition to the presidential race, elections are being conducted for all seats in the U.S. House of Representatives and one third of the U.S. Senate. State and local political offices are also being contested.

Feb. 3, 1994, the new Hatch Act was signed that provides the "dos" and "don'ts" for civilian employees. According to Ralph Eddy, U.S. Office of Special Counsel, the rules under the new act were changed to allow federal civilian employees the opportunity to take part in the political process.

When off duty and off post, civilian employees may support candidates, contribute money, attend fund-raisers, join rallies, write and make speeches for candidates, serve as delegates to conventions and other activities.

Eddy cautions employees from bringing political activities to work. "On-duty employees must remain 'pure.'"

Restraints are in place to protect workers from possible conflicts of interest. Civilian employees may not use their official authority to influence or interfere with an election; may not solicit, accept or receive political contributions; may not engage in political activities on duty, in any government office, or in uniform; may not be candidates for public office in partisan elections; and may not wear political buttons on duty.

There are rules and guidelines for all employees — military and civilian. According to DoD, inquiries from political campaigns are considered a public inquiry. Only information that is available to the general public may be released.

Command information material, such as post newspapers, Soldiers' Radio and Television outlets, and post bulletins, may use only factual information about federal voting assistance programs, voting laws or absentee ballot information. Department of Defense regulations prohibit printing political advertisements, cartoons or conducting surveys, straw votes or polls.

The Army has one of the largest community relations programs involving speakers, color guards, bands and other activities. Requests for community relations elements to support political meetings or ceremonies are not permitted.

Soldiers and civilians who participate in post speakers' program are reminded to omit any political opinions or references from their speeches to civilian audiences.

On-post facilities — including those operated by nonappropriated fund personnel for morale, welfare and recreation activities — can't be used for political meetings, media events, fund-raising socials or other activities that are political in nature.

"It's important, in order to reduce these occurrences and to preclude embarrassment to the command and hosting group, that all concerned are as sensitive as possible to asking the right questions early on and ensuring proper staff coordination internal to the organization," said Col. George Stinnett, chief of Training and Doctrine Command Public Affairs.

Installations throughout TRADOC are regularly visited by elected government representatives. Whether a visit is at the invitation of an installation or at the request of an elected official, post representatives should remind candidates the visit can't be used as a campaign vehicle.

Other candidates for public office who are not incumbents are permitted the same access as any other visitor, but the rules for political activities still apply.

Media coverage of candidates on post is prohibited unless it's part of an official installation activity. Candidates may appear on camera and be photographed while participating in a function, but political statements or responses to political questions are not permitted on post.

If the president or vice president should use a military installation as a point of arrival and departure during a trip to campaign for a local political candidate, the media may use his presence as a "photo opportunity." However, the local candidate can't be present for the event.

News coverage of other elected officials passing through an Army installation while on political campaigns will not be permitted.

However, political candidates can be interviewed on tape and film and be photographed outside an installation while using the post as a backdrop.

While there are DoD regulations and federal statutes regarding political activity by military and civilian personnel, none deny any individual the right to vote.

For more information, contact your unit voting assistance officer.

PROCLAMATION

In recognition of remembering the Holocaust, Congress has designated April 14 to 21 as "Days of Remembrance" for victims of the Holocaust.

The theme for this year's observance is "Crimes Against Humanity, Nuremberg 1946."

The Holocaust was the most extensive and systematic genocide in human history, an event of unprecedented evil.

Past generations cannot forget, but neither should future generations.

Let us make our remembrance always in the manner and spirit of those who liberated the concentration camps and freed and cared for the survivors.

Together, we will remember the past so that together we might build a better future.

The Days of Remembrance provide us an opportunity to reflect history and to contemplate our individual legal and moral responsibilities to humankind.

I encourage maximum participation in the events scheduled to celebrate "Days of Remembrance" for victims of the Holocaust.

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, child abuse prevention is a community problem and finding solutions depends on involvement among people throughout the community;*

Whereas, statistics of children who are abused and neglected escalate each year;*

Whereas, the effects of child abuse are felt by whole communities and need to be addressed by the entire community;*

Whereas, effective child abuse prevention programs succeed because of partnerships created among social service agencies, schools, religious organizations, law enforcement agencies and the business community;*

Whereas, youth-serving prevention programs offer positive alternatives for young people and encourage youth to develop strong ties to their community;*

Whereas, all citizens should become more aware of child abuse and its prevention within the community and become involved in supporting parents to raise their children in a safe nurturing environment;*

Now, Therefore, I, John W. Hendrix, major general, U.S. Army, do hereby proclaim April as Child Abuse Prevention Month at Fort Benning, Ga., and call upon all citizens, community agencies, religious organizations, medical facilities and businesses to increase their participation in our efforts to prevent child abuse thereby strengthening the communities in which we live.*

Band plans to rock lunch time crowd

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

Infantry Lite, a 12 member band ensemble, will showcase its talents April 24 from noon to 1 p.m. at Marshall Auditorium.

Although band members play mostly rock'n'roll, some other types of music will also highlight the ensemble's performance.

"We play some jazz fusion, rhythm and blues and some pop ballads," said 1st Sgt. Richard W. Fine, director of Infantry Lite. "We also do a little bit of country and western music," he said.

According to Fine, Infantry Lite tries to play music that everyone will enjoy. "I would like to please everybody (with the music selection)," he said. "We don't really aim at a particular age group."

The ensemble's vocalists do not sing offensive lyrics, Fine said.

"We change the words, when possible, to avoid offensive lyrics." According to Fine, if a song is too offensive, the ensemble does not play it at all.

Every member of Infantry Lite is also a member of the Infantry Band. They have been playing music together as an ensemble since August, performing mostly for recruiting tours.

Infantry Lite's members include Spc. Christopher Andresen, bass player and assistant sound technician; Spc. Brian Archer, drummer; Staff Sgt. Robert Boyce, saxophone player and wind controller; Sgt. Samuel Brown, vocalist and bass player; Spc. Kelly Brunson, saxophone player and Spc. James Daniel, saxophone player.

Other members of Infantry Lite are 1st Sgt. Richard Fine, director and keyboard player; Sgt. Danny Hurlbut, trombone player; Spc. Russell King, pianist; Spc. Roberta Pollard, trumpet player; Staff Sgt. William West, sound engineer and announcer and Spc. Jennifer Whitaker, vocalist and flute player.

The ensemble's performance at Marshall Auditorium will be free to the public and Fine said members of Infantry Lite are excited about the event.

"We would like everybody to be there," he said. "Wives, bring your husbands and families, bring your kids!"

Credit card to report delinquent accounts

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

Monday, American Express began reporting the delinquent accounts of government cardholders to national credit reporting bureaus.

American Express has always had the contractual option to report such delinquent accounts, but has not exercised its right to do so in the past.

According to a letter sent to agency program coordinators from the Government Travel Management Services of American Express, the cardholder accounts that will be reported are those accounts that are at least 120 days delinquent, have been canceled and have balances greater than $100.

The letter also states that every cardholder meeting the reporting criteria will receive notice of their situations and have 45 days to pay their balances before they are reported to the bureaus.

"They (American Express employees) have bent over backwards for Fort Benning," said Minit I. Robertson of the Directorate of Resource Management. "I really think it is another great customer service move by American Express to notify everyone ahead of time and give them an opportunity to clear up any problems prior to being turned over to the credit bureaus," she said.

When a military or civil service employee applies for credit through his employer, Robertson explained, the applicant's credit history verification that is typically required by American Express is waived. Then, the government cards are issued for use by account holders while on temporary duty assignments.

Robertson pointed out that in theory, a person with an American Express government card will use the credit while on temporary duty assignment, then pay the balance with travel voucher funds received after completing the assignment.

In addition to sending notification of past due accounts to cardholders with balances 120 days delinquent, American Express will send notification to customers with accounts 75 and 90 days delinquent.

American Express acquired the contract to operate government accounts in November 1993. Since that time, the amount of government cardholders has more than doubled, according to Robertson.

Stars & Stripes keeps Bosnia GIs informed

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

Service members in Bosnia may not be able to have a beer, but they do get their daily newspaper. They may not have "three hots" a day, but they do have television and radio.

The Stars and Stripes newspaper and American Forces Network in Europe ensure U.S. service members in the area covered by Joint Endeavor get news and entertainment daily.

The European edition of The Stars and Stripes had reporters and a photographer on the ground in Tuzla, Bosnia, before Bosnian; Serb and Croat readers signed the Dayton agreement. The team started sending reports around Thanksgiving from what was to be the headquarters of the U.S. effort in the country. The newspaper currently has three reporters and a photographer covering the area.

The day before leaders signed the agreement, the paper printed a special section titled "What U.S. Forces Will Find Inside Bosnia." The 32- page section gave U.S. service members and their families a look at conditions in the war-torn country.

The paper sent a correspondent to Hungary to report on the U.S. buildup to support the Bosnia mission. It also received stories from reporters covering the operation in Italy and aboard ships. When American forces started arriving in Bosnia, one of the first vehicles off the plane ramp was an AFN high-mobility, multipurpose wheeled vehicle. Conditions in the area are tough for television. Television works on line of sight, and the mountainous area U.S. forces are occupying means network personnel must set up many television satellite antennas and several transmitters. Making the job more complicated is the number of base camps. Officials originally planned nine base camps; there are now 23. Tuzla Main was the first camp equipped with television and radio. Service members at the camp receive radio and television service.

Radio listeners can hear everything from National Public Radio shows to the Rush Limbaugh talk show and a full range of sports, according to Army Capt. Ken McDorman, AFN operations officer.

Broadcasters and engineers went along on the deployment. At first, AFN used broadcasters from its facilities in Europe. However, Army reservists with the 209th Broadcast Public Affairs Detachment from Rome, Ga., just relieved the 15 AFN engineers and broadcasters in country, McDorman said.

AFN set up a radio studio in Tuzla to allow broadcasters in Bosnia to go on the air live.

"Monday through Friday from 5 to 9 a.m. we broadcast a live radio show," McDorman said. "We also are on live during the afternoon drive time from 3 to 6 p.m. On Saturdays, we have an 8 a.m. to noon live show."

He said this allows local commanders to put in any command information they deem important. Soldiers, sailors and airmen also call in and request songs.

AFN also covers the news in the region. Right now, according to McDorman, teams rotate from Frankfurt, Germany, to Bosnia. The broadcast public affairs detachment sends reports to the

MACH begins X-ray improvements

By Melanie Smizawski
Martin Army Community Hospital

The Radiology Department at Martin Army Community Hospital has begun a $2 million renovation project to upgrade six of its seven radiographic rooms.

This project will include the addition of state-of-the-art equipment with digital radiography and fluoroscopy, computed radiology and dry-view image processing.

Digital radiography and fluoroscopy use computers to "digitize" images of the body. These images are captured in the computer and enhanced to provide higher quality images before being printed, much like the contrast, density and detail that can be adjusted on a television screen. This can decrease the need for repeat films by technologists and be a tool for radiologists when making difficult diagnoses.

Computed radiology also involves the use of computers by sending captured images to networked laser printers as well as networked workstations. This often reduces re-examination and allows other health care providers at various sites in the hospital to view images on screens rather than having to look at the typical X-ray film.

The new dry-view processing involves laser printers instead of the darkroom and chemical development.

Along with these technological advances comes some temporary change in services. The project may create slightly longer waiting time for some X-rays and fluoroscopic exams.

Emergency and seriously ill patents will be given priority as usual. Martin Army Community Hospital customers are asked to be patient during these next few months, officials said.

Hospital officials said the Radiology Department staff will work as quickly and efficiently as possible to minimize any delays.

Airborne Awards festival set

USAIC Public Affairs Office

This year marks the 56th anniversary of the birth of the U.S. airborne.

Fort Benning's 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry Regiment, will host a dedication ceremony of a 34-foot tower in honor of John Swatish, the original designer of the 34-foot tower. An 11:30 memorial service will follow at the Airborne Walk, Eubanks Field, as part of the four-day 19th annual Airborne Awards Festival in Atlanta.

Following a barbeque lunch, a classroom in Lillyman Hall, the Pathfinder School, will be dedicated in honor of Rolley Duff, a World War II pathfinder. Duff died last year in a parachuting accident in Russia.

Members from the original test platoon of parachutists, formed at Fort Benning in 1940, will be here for a day of activities along with other distinguished guests and many airborne veterans from all wars. Fraternal members of the airborne community, both retired and active duty will attend also.

While here, festival members will visit the Airborne School, attend the memorial service at the Airborne Walk, observe an Airborne-in-Action demonstration, including a jump by the Silver Wings Parachute Team on Eubanks Field and attend a 2:15 jump and 3 p.m. graduation of the Basic Airborne Course at Fryar Drop Zone.

During the memorial ceremony, the youngest officer and enlisted airborne graduates will participate in the "Carry the Flame" mission. It represents the continuing spirit of airborne.

The 19th Airborne awards Festival at the Atlanta Airport Sheraton Hotel is April 24 through 26 and a highlight for airborne veterans of all wars and peacetime service. Several Medal of Honor recipients and airborne veterans of more recent wars and peacetime service will be in attendance.

Hazardous waste training tape

Copies of the training tape used for the 8-hour environmental manager's course are available to units wishing to hold training sessions on hazardous waste management.

The tapecovers the proper management of hazardous waste including testing, storage, disposal, personal safety and transportation. It is intended to be used for an 8-hour course but can also be used for short training sessions.

Copies of this tape can be checked out in the Environmental Programs Management Branch office located in room 413, Meloy Hall, Building 6.

For more information call 545-7570.

Mobility Branch to conduct class

A class will be conducted by the Mobility and Survivability Branch at Infantry Hall, Classroom 21 April 19 from 8 a.m. until noon.

Units must submit a memo to Mobility and Survivability Branch, Combined Arms and Tactics Directorate, Infantry Hall room 331, or fax 545-7500. Students must review Field Manual 5-250 (Explosives and Demolitions) prior to class. Units must send one FM 5-250 with each group of soldiers that they send to the course.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland areas will take place Monday through Saturday. If weather permits, the following compartments will be affected: A-2, A-8, A-19, B-3, B-5, C-1, D-2, D-7, D-10, D-16, E-3, E-5, G-4, I-2, K-6, L-4, M-1, M-7, N-2, O-1, O-4, O-7, O-9, Q-5, V-4,.W-1, W-4 and X-4.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species' habitat and training areas. Personnel proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while travelling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Units using ranges and training areas are reminded to remove flammable debris, such as pinestraw, leaves, grass and trash from around structures in accordance with U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-4, Paragraph 5-22, Organizational Maintenance.

For more information, call Jack Greenlee, Natural Resources Management Branch, at 544-6206.

Top drill sergeant to be honored

A ceremony honoring Sgt. 1st Class Gregory J. Mance, Fort Benning's 1996 Drill Sergeant of the Year will be today at 3:30 p.m. in the Sand Hill Recreation Center.

Special Forces briefs continue on post

The Special Forces recruiting office conducts briefings every Wednesday at 10 a.m., 2 and 6 p.m. in McVeigh Hall, Bldg. 75B, room 109. For more information, call Sgt.1st Class Ernest Donaldson at 545-3079.

SJA accepts theft or burglary claims

Individuals who suffer a loss due to theft at their assigned quarters may be able to recover part of their loss by filing a claim with the Claims Division, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate. People who take the time to record the purchase dates, model numbers and serial numbers of electronics item and other high-value property have a better chance of recovering the maximum amount allowed under government regulations.

In addition, this information may assist the military police in their efforts to recover the stolen goods.

For more information, call 545-2285.

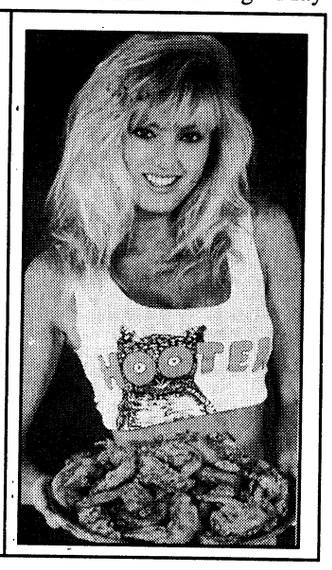
Soldiers to escort contestants

By Ron Tillman
11th Infantry Regitment

The Ms. Wheelchair Georgia Pageant of 1996 will be hosted by the Columbus Mayor's Committee for Persons With Disabilities April 25 to 28.

For the second year in a row, units of the 11th Infantry Regiment will provide officers and a color guard in support of the pageant.

The officers attending the Infantry Officer Basic Course are continuing a tradition of support and assistance to community events that has always marked the positive relationship between Fort Benning and Columbus, Ga., according to Director Gail McCoon, Columbus Mayor's Committee for Persons With Disabilities.



The purpose of both state and national pageants is to provide an opportunity for women, whose only limitation is mobility, to demonstrate their respective personal accomplishments and to become a spokesperson for some 43,000 Americans with disabilities.

Another purpose of the pageant is to promote public awareness of the disabled. Although established in 1972 in Warm Springs, Ga., the pageant has been hosted by Columbus since 1992.

profile in excellence

Name: Staff Sgt. Shawn M. Powers

Award or recognition: 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry Regiment. Noncommissioned Officer of the Quarter, second quarter 1996
MOS: 18E, Special Forces communications
Unit: Co. B.,1st Bn. 38th Inf. Regt.
Job title: Drill sergeant
Years on the job: Eight years

What were your reasons for joining the Army? To travel to different countries around the world and meet new people, to see how people from other cultures live and do things and to gain first-hand experience in the work place. The Army provides you with the best available hands-on training that can be used in all workplaces.

What person has most influenced your career?
Master Sgt. Edwin R. Goodrich — he is the most technically and tactfully proficient NCO who fully understands the value and importance of teamwork, be it training or real world operations and he always deals in reality.

If you were sergeant major of the Army for a day, what improvements would you make?
Develop a better rifle marksmanship program, I feel we don't spend enough time in this department. I would also incorporate an education system for the NCO that resembles that of the officer branch, provide them a chance to finish their degree.

What were your reasons for choosing your MOS?
Special Forces soldiers are "quiet professionals." We do our job and don't look for credit or recognition; and, when the job's done, we come home, clean up and get ready for the next one.

Describe a memorable moment in your career.
I really don't think about what I have done and live in the past. The Army has been a great experience for me, and I go to my job each day and focus on the tasks at hand. I guess it would be the day I joined and started learning.

What are your career plans?
Return to the Special Forces community and try to attend High Altitude, Low Opening and Jumpmaster schools military wise and get a degree in criminal justice.

What others have to say: "A truly professional NCO who demonstrates on a daily basis all the traits it takes to be a drill sergeant. He is the epitome of the NCO Corps."

Name: Staff Sgt. John R. Sego

Award or recognition: Drill sergeant of the Year, 1996, 1st Battalion., 38th Infantry Regiment
MOS: 11C, Mortarman
Unit: Company C, 1st Bn., 38th Inf. Regt.
Job title: Drill sergeant
Years on the job: Eight years

What were your reasons for joining the Army? Service to country, travel, adventure and the Army college fund.

Define your style of leadership.
Participative. Assist soldiers in meeting standards, insist they maintain standards, allow soldiers to solve simple problems for development.

What person has most influenced your career?
Sgt. 1st Class Robert Buster. He was my last platoon sergeant. He taught me a great deal about leadership and how to be a professional soldier. My wife, Tami Sego, also greatly influenced me by supporting my decisions and pushing me for career enhancement.

If you were sergeant major of the Army for a day, what improvements would you make?
Do away with needless spending. In order to obtain the new fiscal budget, all money from the previous budget would be spent. Let's set aside the same budget every year. If money is left over, throw it into the pot and utilize it somewhere it is needed.

What were your reasons for choosing your MOS?
The infantry provided the most opportunities for excitement in regards to physical training.

Describe a memorable moment in your career.
My entire tour in the Berlin Brigade. I was there during the unification of Germany. I saw the wall when it was torn down. I realized that I was a part of history in the making.

What are your career plans?
To attend Officer Candidate School in the near future and retire from the military whether I'm an officer or a noncommissioned officer.

What others have to say: "Drill Sergeant Sego's performance as a drill sergeant is characterized by his total dedication and his loyalty to the US Army and the Drill Sergeant Branch. He emulates the drill sergeant motto: 'This we'll defend.'

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

AROUND POST

Post blood drive — The American Red Cross will sponsor a blood drive from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. today in Building 4, Classroom 2.

Spring cleanup — Fort Benning residents can get a variety of yard beautification items from the U-Do-It Center, Building 385.

Beginning April 19 and continuing through May 18, each household can receive one flat of bedding plants to enhance their yard.

·Top soil, grass seed, pine straw, fertilizer and lime are also available for issue.

Each Friday, a new shipment of plants will be delivered to the center.

Faith students correspond with soldiers serving in Bosnia — Students from Faith Middle School and the U.S. Postal Service joined together to send letters to U.S. soldiers currently serving in Bosnia.

In celebration of National Card and Letter Writing Week, 150 students from the post school wrote letters in which they discussed themselves and their interests as well as best wishes to the soldier who receives the letter.

Linda Estelle, supervisor of customer service, worked with Faith students and their teachers by providing stamps, writing paper and envelopes.

National Card and Letter Writing Week was sponsored by the U.S. Postal Service, the Smithsonian Institute and the National Letter Carriers' Association.

Teen work force workshop set — Youth Services continues its series of workshops for teens, ages 15 years and older, who want to prepare for the job market.

Each workshop is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. Upcoming seminars are listed below.

• Thursday — Managing Money

• April 25 _ How to Dress and Show Initiative on the Job.

For more information, call Quintella Thorn at 545-7945 or 545-3070.

Safety carnival coming — The annual Mayors' Safety Carnival will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 27 at Riverside, home of Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix and his wife, Cheri.

For children in grades kindergarten through eight, carnival displays and demonstrations will spotlight safety concerns.

All children will also be able to participate in a bicycle and rollerblading safety course.

In case of inclement weather, the safety carnival will be postponed.

Fort Benning updates recycling program

Environmental Management Division

The Fort Benning recycling program is increasing the amount of materials recycled and the number of people who participate in the program is also increasing, said Tom Moore, recycling program manager for the Directorate of Public Works .

"This is to be commended as landfills reach their maximum capacity across the nation," Moore said. "Recycling has become an investment in our future. It is a fact that the typical American family cannot prepare and consume a meal without generating recyclable materials."

The Environmental Management Division of DPW is updating the current policy on recycling, which is due out in October. The update will improve the safety and efficiency of the recycling program because it will update the proper handling of recyclable materials, Moore said.

"The continued success of this program depends on how the Fort Benning community works together to optimize the recycling program," Moore said. "This means learning how to recycle."

Listed below are some dos and don'ts to improve the recycling program in family housing:

• Attend self help training on how to recycle. Call the Unit and Housing Support Branch at 545-1121.

• Recycle aluminum and steel cans.

• Recycle all plastic material containing the recycling triangle (three chasing arrows). This includes soft drink bottles, milk jugs and other food containers.

• Separate recyclable waste from other household waste.

• Place all household waste pick-up items at the curb before 7:30 a.m. on the appropriate day.

• Place recyclable materials other than paper products in the brown plastic recycling bins.

• Recycle glass containers such as soft drink, beer, juice, ketchup, wine, liquor and food containers (Be sure to rinse with clean water before recycling.).

• Place paper products including newspapers, magazines, cereal boxes and other paper, except for personal items in brown paper bags or tie into bundles and place at the curbside.

• On Mondays, place tree limbs, bagged grass clippings and leaves at the curbside.

• Place one to five collapsed cardboard containers with the other recyclables at the curbside for pick up.

• Coordinate the pickup of more than five cardboard containers by calling the Recycling Center at 545-6142 from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

• Recycle used motor oil and filters by taking them to the auto craft centers or the Recycling Center, Building 4000, in Harmony Church.

• Don't recycle personal paper items such as tissue and napkins.

• Don't place ashes in recycling bins.

• Don't place food or scrap items in recycling bins.

• Don't recycle plastic motor oil or paint containers.

• Don't recycle mirrors, ceramics or window glass.

Units can also participate in recycling by bringing sorted office paper, expired or excess publications and recyclable collapsed cardboard to the Recycling Center.

For information, call Walter Nichols, solid waste program manager, at 545-1007 or Tom Moore at 544-6142.

Post children celebrate Easter despite weather

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

A constant rain might have caused a change in activities planned for the Easter Egg Hunt April 6, but the weather could not dampen the spirits of thousands of Fort Benning children who participated in the event.

Youth Services Director Lamar Caldwell said about 4,000 people converged at the Youth Center for a chance to see the Easter Bunny, approximately 3,000 of which were children of all ages.

"This is one of the biggest turnouts we've ever had," Caldwell said.

The hunt was originally scheduled to be at the home of the Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, but due to inclement weather, Youth Services staff members relocated activities.

"We made a rain call at 8:30 a.m.," Caldwell said.

Rain and long lines were anything but a deterrent to the fun. Aside from a visit with the legendary Cottontail, children participated in pony and train rides as well as a bean bag toss and paint project. Volunteers and staffers also provided cotton candy and other treats.

Two children from each of the following groups won a stuffed Easter Bunny: 18 months to 2 years; 3 to 4 years; 5 to 6 years; 7 to 8 years; and 9 to 10 years old.

Staff Sgt. David Debose, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment, also won a bicycle donated by Military Benefits Association.

Video arcade features state-of-the-art games

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

With a gleam in his eyes, the strangely-dressed, well muscled man lunges forward at his waiting opponent. As his fist flies toward his nemesis' head, the adrenaline rushes through his body in anticipation of the coming blow. The muscled man's fist connects hard with his opponent's jaw sending him reeling backwards until he loses his balance and falls to the ground.

Slowly the man on the ground tries to get up, but it is wasted effort because the well-muscled man runs forward and with a driving kick knocks the man out completely. As the well-muscled man sits back and observes his victory, the words "Game Over" flash in front of him.

This is a scene from one of the many new games that have been placed inside the new Fort Benning Video Arcade. The arcade, which began as a concept two years ago, opened its door to the Fort Benning public March 1.

"Through customer surveys, it was decided that the post wanted a family-fun, park-type set-up," said Tim Brown, manager of Outdoor Recreation. "The arcade and the batting cages are the first part of the plan; there are plans to add a go-cart track and mini-golf course."

The arcade began construction July 7 and cost a total of $200,000 to build and features many state-of-the-art games currently on the market, including ones that use virtual reality and the newest pinball games, Brown said.

While the arcade has only been open for a short time, Brown said reception has been good.

"So far the reception of the arcade has been very good," Brown said. "The APIC (Army Performance Improvement Criteria) team came through when we opened and they were very pleased."

The new arcade is open Monday through Friday from 2 until 11 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from noon until 11 p.m. The arcade offers a variety of games and has vending machines and a snack bar that serves nachos, hot dogs and popcorn.

Scanning errors cost consumers

Better Business Bureau

Today, most retail establishments use an electronic scanner to ring up sale items.

When a cashier scans an item, a computer decodes the universal product code, sending the price and other product information to the register. At the same time, the price is shown on the display screen and a receipt is printed for the customer.

But is the scanned price always right?

It is estimated by consumer advocates that scanner errors can overcharge consumers millions of dollars each year. Sometimes there are inconsistencies between the advertised or posted prices and prices stored in the computer.

Lou Marcotte, president of the Better Business Bureau, suggests consumers consider the following tips if they are concerned about the accuracy of scanned prices.

Watch the display screen for prices. If you think you're being overcharged, speak up. Ask the store's policy on pricing errors. If you spot a pricing error, ask the cashier to make the appropriate adjustment before you pay.

You may want to bring a copy of the store's flyer or newspaper ad to the checkout counter. Some advertised specials may not be in the computer yet and must be entered manually by the cashier.

Check your receipt before you walk away. If you notice an error, ask the cashier to adjust the total. If you've already left the cashier's lane, see the store manager or the customer service department to correct any mistakes.

"If you notice a pattern of electronic scanning errors in your particular store, talk to the customer service department or the store manager," Marcotte said. "You also may want to write a letter to the company's corporate headquarters. The retailer may not realize such a problem exists."

Report recurring problems to your local BBB, state attorney general's office, or state or local consumer protection office.

How To Recycle

Post housing residents may place recyclable materials in brown plastic bins for weekly curbside pickup.

Here is a list of the items that can and cannot be placed in the bin for recycling.

• Glass: Recycle soft drink, beer, juice, ketchup, wine, liquor and food containers. All caps and lids are to be removed and containers are to be rinsed out.

Special care should be taken to avoid breaking glass when placing it in the recycling bin.

• Cans: Only aluminum and steel cans are accepted at this time. Cans must be rinsed out. Labels may remain on the cans.

• Plastic: All plastic materials containing the Recycling Triangle (Three Chasing Arrows) may be recycled. This includes soft drink bottles and milk jugs. Caps must be removed and may be placed in the recycling bin. All containers must be rinsed out.

• Paper: All paper products except used personal type materials may be recycled. These items should be placed in brown paper bags or bundled together and tied; then they should be placed beside the recycling bin.

• Inert Waste: Tree limbs, grass clippings and leaves will be picked up on Mondays only. Clippings and leaves should be placed in a garbage bag and tied.

• Motor Oil: • Recycle used motor oil and filters by taking them to the auto craft centers or the Recycling Center, Building 4000, in Harmony Church.

Trash and recycle pickup schedule

Household trash and recycling will be collected once a week on the same day. If there is recyclable material mixed in with the trash can, it will not be picked up until the following week and recyclables are separated.

Q. I filed my income taxes on Jan. 31 at a local tax service. My refund was a cool $2,500, with the earned-income-credit and the head-of-household filing status my buddy told me about. My wife says that I should have told them about the money from our second jobs, and that we should have filed jointly, since we live together on post. I'm getting a little nervous that the IRS may come after me. Is there anything I can do?

A. You as a citizen declare taxable income, filing status, number of dependents and the amount of taxes owed. No government official decides what your tax should be. You are, however, responsible to file an accurate tax return. You are not entitled to claim an inaccurate filing status or to falsify the facts to increase your refund. If you do so, you may be subject to serious civil and criminal penalties.

In your case, there is reason for concern, but no need to panic just yet. Since April 15 has not yet arrived, you have the opportunity to refile your taxes, or better yet, to file an amended tax return. This is IRS Form 104OX, "Amended Individual Income Tax Form." You file this form to correct erroneous information on your return. This may be a failure to report income, claiming deductions or credits you should not have claimed or changing your deductions or credits to claim items you forgot to claim, or changing an erroneous filing status.

The concept is simple: the income, deductions and credits as originally reported are entered on the 104OX form. You figure a new tax return using correct information and enter it onto the 1040x. The difference between the original tax return calculation and the new tax figure is compared, and you will then see if you have to return any of that big refund.

If you do not have a copy of the tax return, go to the preparer and get one. If the preparer does not have a copy, you can order one from the IRS using Form 4506, at a cost of $14. The preparer will likely charge you to prepare a 104OX. If so, save money and try the Fort Benning Tax Office.

If you have a copy of the tax return you submitted, go to the Tax Office and request assistance in refiguring your tax return and submitting the 104OX.

The preparer will prepare a new tax return including the new information. Once you have this information, you can calculate the new taxes, and will know whether you must return any of the money. The faster you have the return refigured and submit a 104OX, the less interest and penalties you owe. Interest and penalties apply to any money the government gave you to which you were not entitled.

The Tax Office is located in Building 2640, Soldiers' Plaza. Operating hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, through Monday. After that time, make a Legal Assistance appointment to discuss the matter.

Fort Benning to remember victims of Holocaust

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning will remember the victims of the Holocaust during a Days of Remembrance symposium April 17 at 11 a.m. in Classroom 4 of Infantry Hall, Building 4.

Holocaust survivor Mady B. Chrismond, executive director of Columbus Day Care, and Rabbi Arthur Rutberg of Shearith Israel Synagogue in Columbus will be on the symposium panel.

The theme of this year's Days of Remembrance of the Victims of the Holocaust observance is "Crimes Against Humanity, Nuremberg, 1946."

The observance will be conducted from Sunday until April 21.

Family Advocacy Program

"You never listen to me" is a complaint heard as often from children as parents.

Good communication helps children and parents to develop confidence, feelings of self-worth and good relationships with others. You can help teach children how to listen by being a good listener yourself. Try these tips.

• Give your undivided attention when your children want to talk to you; don't read, watch television, fall asleep or make yourself busy with other tasks.

• Respect children and use a courteous tone of voice. If parents talk to their children as they would their friends, children may be more likely to seek out parents as confidants.

• Practice listening and talking. Talk with your children about school and their friends. Talk with your family about what you see on television, hear on the radio, or see at the park or store.

• Use door openers that invite children to say more about an incident or their feelings, for example: "I see," "Oh," or "Tell me more," "Really?" "Say that again. I want to be sure I understand you."

• Speak in a quiet voice. Whisper sometimes so that children have to listen; they like this.

• Look a child in the eyes so you can tell when they understand. Bend or sit down so you are on the child's level.

5 tools to build your child's Self-esteem

- Hugs
- Praises
- Talking and listening
- Time together
- "I love you"

Source: National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse

• Catch children and teens being good. Praise them for cooperating with you or their siblings, for doing those little things that are so easy to take for granted.

• Praise builds a child's confidence and reinforces communication. Unkind words tear children down and teach them that they aren't good enough.

• Children are never too old to be told they are loved. Saying "I love you" is important. Writing it in a note provides the child with a reminder that he can hold on to.

Society offers educational assistance

Society of American Military Engineers

The Fort Benning-Columbus Post of the Society of American Military Engineer is accepting applications for a $1,000 scholarship.

The scholarship will be awarded to a student enrolled in or accepted into an approved two- or four-year curriculum leading to an engineering degree. Students' permanent home residence must be within a 50-mile radius of Fort Benning. Priority will go to high school seniors; however, currently enrolled college students will be considered.

Award of this scholarship will be based on past and present academic achievements, student activities, recommendations and financial need. In addition, interest in the science of military engineering, often evidenced by enrollment in a Reserve Officer Training Corps program, will be considered, although this is not a requirement.

Award of the scholarship will be recommended by a panel of judges in accordance with the by-laws of the Fort Benning-Columbus Post of the Society of American Military Engineers.

Applications must be postmarked no later than April 30. The award of the scholarship is anticipated by the end of June. To obtain an application call John Mills at 568-2482 or Glenn Todd at 545-2117.

Post organization provides scholarships

Fort Benning Management Association

The Fort Benning Management Association is seeking business and management students to compete for its yearly scholarships.

All active duty or retired military members, or federal civil service employees and their family members residing within a 50-mile radius of the Fort Benning area are eligible. Applicants must be pursuing a degree in a field related to business or management.

The association will select recipients for graduate- and undergraduate-degree scholarships donated by Troy State University (Fort Benning branch) or funded by the Fort Benning Management Association. A recipient will also be selected for a scholarship to the school of choice.

Applicants are required to write a letter to the association scholarship committee, formally requesting consideration. The letter must include highlights of the applicant's academic career and extracurricular activities. Applicants should also explain why they feel they should receive a scholarship.

Undergraduate applicants should also provide a high school transcript with a completed college application, three letters of recommendation, college transcripts and a statement of employment including name, address and applicant's job title.

However, instead of high school transcripts, graduate applicants should include a copy of their undergraduate degree and transcripts along with a completed college application fulfilling graduate requirements.

Submit applications to: Building 4, Room 452, Fort Benning, Ga., Attn: Myrtle Chalkley. Applications must be submitted no later than July 26.

For more information, call 545-4539 or 545-4426.

Radio flyers to host air show

Columbus-Fort Benning Flyers Assn.

The Columbus-Fort Benning Radio Controlled Flyers Association will host its Spring Model Air Show April 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the club's radio control airport south of Fort Mitchell, Ala.

At a glance

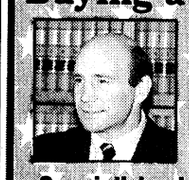
What: Spring Model Air Show

When: April 27, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Admission: None for spectators

Radio control pilots from other clubs throughout Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee will participate in the air show and about 80 pilots will show their skills with a large variety of airplanes, helicopters, gliders and sky divers.

The models will range from small aircraft with 18-inch wingspans weighing less than 2 pounds to giant-scale airplanes with 12-foot wingspans. Air speeds will vary from 0 (featuring an airplane that operates as a helicopter and hovers in place) to more than 125 miles per hour. Pilots will perform acrobatic maneuvers throughout the day.



A skydiving competition between radio controlled scale model sky divers and real jumpers from Fort Benning's Silver Wings is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. This competition is contingent upon helicopter availability.

There is no admission charge for spectators and a concession stand will be open from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The club airport is located five miles south of the Fort Mitchell National Cemetery. To get there, take U.S. Highway 431 south from Phenix City, turn left on Alabama Road 165 and continue south to Russell County Highway 18. Turn left and go eight-tenths of a mile to the field entrance.

School of the Americas

The wind beat on our desert battle dress uniforms as we finished the religious service. The sun is beautiful in the Middle East, and the image of the sun going down made a nice background for the service. We were on a mountaintop overlooking the Red Sea, serving a tour with the multinational force and observers in the Sinai. Slowly, the soldiers drifted from the scene of our religious service, walking to their stations on the observation post. My assistant and I enjoyed the verbal banter as the soldiers wandered away; it was good talking to them.

You get close to people when you live with them day and night, and we had worked together for about three years. We were a cohort light infantry unit, and this was our last mission before the unit broke up due to rotations.

The wind on the mountaintop continued to blow hard. The road down was treacherous, and we didn't want the wind to help in our descent. So we decided to stay for a few hours, waiting for the wind to let up. To pass the time, my assistant and I walked over to the east side of the observation post to get a better look at the setting sun. As we passed the side of one of the huts, I glanced at a cement memorial marker set in the red granite rock: "Blessed are the peacekeepers, for they shall be called the children of God." (Matt 5:9) Soldiers from a previous rotation had left this as a tribute to fallen comrades, intentionally exchanging the biblical quote "peace maker" for the Sinai role.

I reviewed what I knew of the marker, which silently reminded all who passed that some soldiers had died in an accident on the mountain. The brakes on a 2 1/2-ton truck had failed on the steep, winding road, causing the soldiers' deaths. We were quiet as we walked by. The memorial was set apart from the rest of the of the observation post and seemed to demand a certain amount of respect.

The years passed, and rarely did I think of the marker on the mountaintop — until recently. I was waiting for a meeting to begin when someone called out my name. It was a soldier from the old cohort unit. He was now a staff sergeant; I remembered him as a private first class. We exchanged the usual pleasantries, updating each other on our careers and families. Then we talked about our peacekeeping experience in the Sinai.

"You know, that really was a good mission," he said. "They didn't think that 'grunts' like us were good for peacekeeping. I think we did a good job."

I was interested in what he was saying and asked what he meant. "Well, when we got done with our rotation in the Sinai, I knew that we had helped to maintain the peace between two countries that didn't care much for each other. That meant something to me."

Recently I was tasked to give a religious service to a group of soldiers heading for Bosnia as part of a multinational peacekeeping force. I enjoyed performing the religious service. The men and women were excited about the deployment, and the conversations after the service were lively with stories about home and lives put on hold. I thought about how, this time, they were going and I was staying. I thought briefly of another place far away, of a memorial marker on a mountaintop.

That mountaintop marker has become a reminder to me of all the men and women on foreign soil who serve so selflessly far away from home. The dynamics and policies that govern peacekeeping are important. However, the soldiers on the ground who perform the mission on a daily basis are the ones to be remembered.

Retreat refocuses Fort Benning families

USAIC Chaplain Office

Fort Benning's Spring Family Retreat will be April 19 through 21 at Uchee Creek.

Families can receive fresh, practical ways to live out the gospel in their homes, neighborhoods and jobs.

Retreat participants can also take advantage of Uchee Creek facilities, including: fishing, boating, basketball and softball.

Cost of the weekend seminar ranges from $52 to $80 (less registration fee) depending on rank and cabin size, plus $6 per person. The seminar fee includes one catered meal Saturday evening. All other meals are the responsibility of participants.

Individuals and families who wish to attend the seminar but do not want to stay in the cabins can pay a $10 commuting fee per person. This fee covers the Saturday evening catered meal and seminar.

The nonrefundable $25 registration fee is due at the time of registration.

There is no charge for children under 6 years of age. A children's program and nursery will be provided during meetings.

For more information about rates, availability and registration, call 569-0890 or 545-2050.

Bible study focuses on childrens' attitudes

USAIC Chaplain Office

A children's Bible study titled "Personal Attitudes Relating to You" or PARTY will begin May 11 and continue through December.

Children will learn to develop a positive attitude about Christianity and to live in a Christ-like manner.

"The basic idea of the program is to direct the children in the right kind of attitude based on biblical principals," said LaTanya Wagstaff, program director. "The children will have fun; there will be games, stories, arts and crafts, refreshments, music and biblical videos to make the Bible come alive."

The program is designed for children 5 years old through sixth grade. It will be from noon until 2 p.m. one Saturday a month at the Religious Education Center, Building 2522.

The children will be in groups according to age and gender. Adult supervision is provided and a trained teacher will be responsible for each group. The program is general Protestant. Registration will be at the study.

For information, call the Religious Education Center at 545-4715.

Army marksmen to shoot for gold

By Rhonda Syler
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

Six members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning won slots on the 1996 U.S. Olympic team earning them the chance to shoot for gold this summer in Atlanta.

Glenn Dubis and Rob Harbison, both international rifle shooters, won slots in two events while David Alcoriza, Theresa (Wentzel) DeWitt, Bret Erickson and James Todd Graves earned team positions in their respective shotgun events.

"I've never been on an Olympic team," Harbison said. Harbison, an armor officer, was a young shooter in his first attempt in 1988. The next Olympic dream, the 1992 games, was shattered after he spent time in the Gulf and missed one of the necessary selection matches.

Harbison, a Phenix City resident, won slots in air rifle and three-position rifle.

"I'm just happy to be part of the whole Olympic experience," he said. "I feel honored, and I'm looking forward to it (the Olympics)."

"I feel a sense of satisfaction I just can't describe," he said.

Dubis, on the other hand, is a veteran at Olympic competition making the Olympic team in both 1988 and 1992.

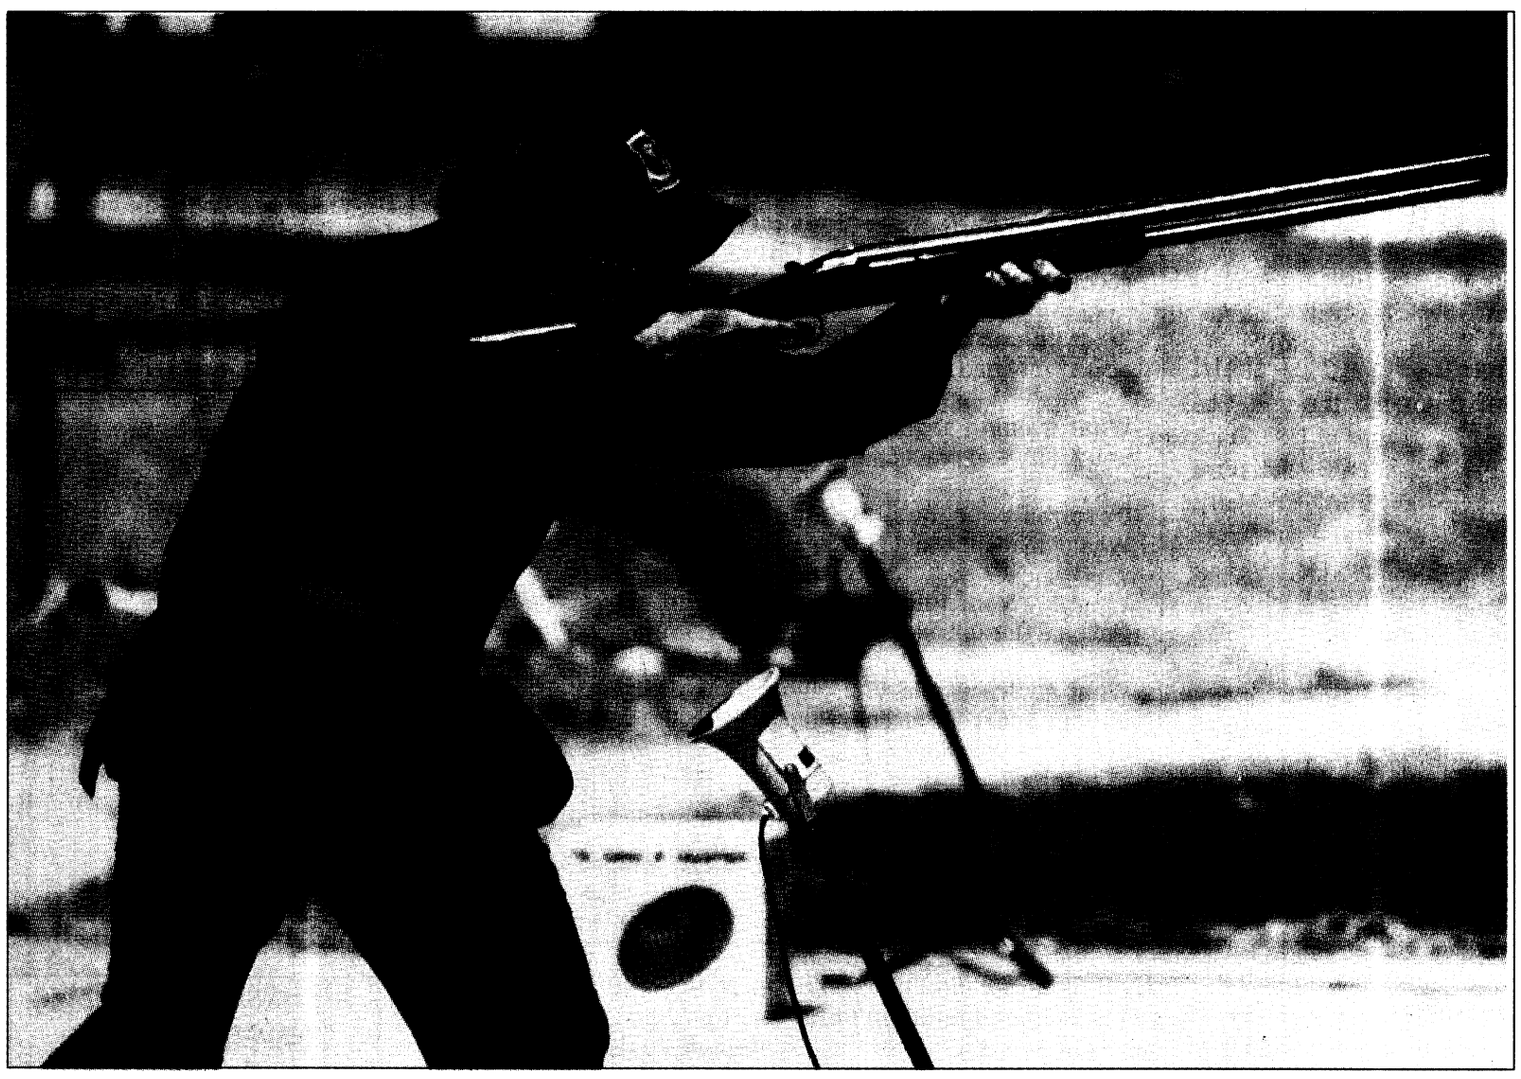
"I'm relieved the competition is finally over," he said.

"It's like being on top of the world," he said. "The pressure is off, at least for a while. Everything is looking up."

Other USAMU Olympians who are veterans are Erickson and Graves. While they both have competed in the 1992 Olympics, Graves is the only one to ever qualify in both trap and skeet events.

Graves accomplished that feat in 1992.

"No one has ever done it before," said Sgt. 1st Class Richard Haynie, noncommissioned officer in charge of the USAMU shotgun team. "And he'll probably be the only one to ever do it."



This year, Graves qualified in skeet while teammate Erickson won a position in trap. Being seasoned shooters, both have excellent possibilities for bringing home Olympic medals.

Alcoriza earned his slot in the double trap event.

"This is an unbelievable feeling," Alcoriza said. "It all happened so fast; and, when it came down to it, I was amazed."

Unlike the other Olympians, Alcoriza hasn't shot his minimum qualifying score in world-level competition. A minimum qualifying score must be achieved by all Olympians before they can join the U.S. team in Olympic competition.

His opportunity to earn that score is later this month at the World Cup competition in Atlanta.

Olympic team shooter James Graves takes aim in men's skeet competition at the 1996 Olympic trials in Atlanta.

DeWitt is also a new Olympian for the USAMU. After taking up the sport at her dad's club in Cincinnati, DeWitt excelled to championship level.

The shooters now head back to the ranges for intense training and preparation for the games to be held at the Wolf Creek Olympic Shooting Complex in Atlanta July 20 to 27.

"They were under a lot of pressure before the trials," said Robert Alyward, USAMU deputy commander. "The pressure is really on now."

RedStixx open '96 season

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The spirit of baseball is alive and well in the tri-community area when the Columbus RedStixx are at home.

The RedStixx, a Class A affiliate of the American League Champion Cleveland Indians, started their chase for the South Atlantic League title April 4 with a four-game home stand split against Charleston, W.Va., and have just completed a four-game stand with the Augusta, Ga., Greenjackets.

The RedStixx finished the 1995 season in third place in the South Atlantic League posting an 80-62 mark.

On the mound, the RedStixx pitching staff hurled 11 combined shutouts during the season last year led by ace pitcher Jeff Sexton. Sexton was promoted to the Cleveland Indians' 40-man roster this season.

On the offensive side of the plate, Russell Branyan led the RedStixx with 19 home runs and six triples, while outfielder Bryan Warner paced the squad with 58 RBIs.

Eric White posted a .317 average to lead the team in batting with Chip Glass (.289) Chan Perry (.285) and Darren Stumberger (.270) close behind.

Joel Skinner, 35, enters his first season as the RedStixx manager and his second as a professional manager after guiding the Watertown Indians to the New York-Penn League championship in 1995.

Skinner started his professional career in the White Sox organization and made his major league debut with Chicago in 1983.

His last year in the majors was 1991 when he hit .243 during 99 games. Skinner had off-season shoulder surgery in November of 1991 and never fully recovered. Skinner retired midway through the 1994 season with the AAA Charlotte club.

All games for the 1996 season will be played at Columbus College's Cougar Field with starting times for the games Monday through Saturday, 7:15 p.m., Sunday (April through May), 2:15 p.m. and Sunday (June through September), 6:15 p.m.

Tickets for all home games are available from Carlson-Wagonlit located at the Main Mall or tickets may be purchased at the gate.

Military identification card holders presenting their identification at the gate will receive a $1 discount off general admission ticket prices.

All 142 games of the 1996 RedStixx season will be broadcast on WPNX AM 1460.

For more game information, call the RedStixx' administrative offices at Golden Park at 571-8866.

Anglers win in BASS tournament

By Stephen W. Ward
Fort Benning BASS Club

The Fort Benning chapter of the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society Club, recently conducted its third tournament for the 1996 fishing trail.

This tournament was at Lake Seminole, out of Trails End Marina and fielded ten local anglers from the club.

The majority of the tournament contestants arrived for a two-day, pre-tournament fishing activity in addition to the two-day tournament.

The weather was cooperative for the pre-tournament fishing activity Thursday and Friday, but things changed Saturday when it rained.

The results of the contest are as follows:

- First place — Jack Pines with a creel of fish weighing 13 pounds, 7 ounces
- Second place — Randy Blake with a fish weighing 11 pounds, 15 ounces
- Third place — Russ Hurley with an 11-pound, 9-ounce catch
- Big Bass Award — Bob Billman, with a 4-pound, 4-ounce large-mouth bass.

Twenty-five fish were weighed in and released in good health at a total weight of 61 pounds, 1 ounce.

The organization encourages participants to catch and release all uninjured, healthy fish caught during tournaments.

For more information on the BASS Club of Fort Benning, call 569-5705. The club is open for membership to all service members (active and retired), their family members and eligible Department of Defense civilians.

Sports trivia

March 30, 1966

After a month-long joint holdout, Los Angeles Dodgers pitching stars Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale sign contracts with the team. Cy Young winner Koufax, who was 26-8 with a major league record 382 strikeouts in 1965, and former Cy Young winner Drysdale, who went 23-12 for the World Champions, had shaken up management by joining forces, hiring lawyers (a first for baseball players) and demanding a total of $1.05 million over three years, to be divided evenly. Koufax settled for $130,000 (for what would be his final season due to arm problems), and Drysdale signed for $105,000.

AIRBORNE SCHOOL

AF Staff Sgt earns blackhat

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

For the second time this year, an Air Force staff sergeant became an Airborne School blackhat.

Staff Sgt. Franklin D. Stout, Company A, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry Regiment, transferred from Fort Polk, La., in September and has since earned the right to wear the Airborne School instructor blackhat, and to train students trying for their Airborne wings.

"I was an enlisted terminal air controller at Fort Polk, and I've been working with the Army since I've been in the Air Force," Stout said. "While I was at Fort Polk, they asked the Air Force personnel if they wanted to volunteer, so I did."

A 10-year veteran in the Air Force, Stout said he has made a total of 48 jumps after he earned his jump wings in 1991. Stout said he decided he wanted to go to the school because half of his unit was Airborne qualified.

He arrived at Fort Benning and had to go through the same processes that the Army and Marine Corps black hats have to complete to qualify.

According to Stout some of that training included being a student again, going through the Instructor Training Course, observing the whole Airborne School training process, and giving an entire class for the unit commander, the master trainer and the command sergeant major.

Sgt. 1st Class Greg Barmer, platoon leader, Company A, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry Regiment, said Stout adds several good qualities to the Airborne School.

"He's an outstanding blackhat," Barmer said. "He's got a good attitude and he sets high standards for the students to strive for.

"He also brings some of the cohesion of the sister units that come to Airborne School. He gives the students some of the experience he's gotten in the Air Force and sets a good example for the students to follow."

Aside from what he brings to the Airborne School as a whole, Stout said he likes to reach out to the Air Force students who are going through the class.

"I like to show the Air Force students that there is another Air Force person here they can come to," Stout said. "I try to be that link between the way the Army people do things and the way the Air Force does things."

Despite some initial troubles adjusting to the Army way of life Capt. William Harrison, company commander, Company A, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry Regiment, said Stout has been a fantastic blackhat.

"Initially he had trouble with simple things, like cadence calling and marching, that are different between the Air Force and the Army," Harrison said. "But, he has spent his entire military career in support of the Army so it didn't take him long to adjust to the way the Army does things."

Harrison also said Stout adds something extra for the Air Force students who come to Fort Benning.

"He really allows the Air Force guys to identify with someone," Harrison said. "He gives the students a role model, someone they can look up to and say 'hey there's someone who did it, I can too.'"

SOA School Battalion gets new commander

By Judith Ginder
School of the Americas

The School Battalion at the School of the Americas got a new commander Mar. 27 at Ridgeway Hall.

Maj. Shepard A. Sawyer replaced Lt. Col. Ahmed E. Labault, who was at SOA for almost two years. Labault will transfer to the Pentagon, where he will become the Division Chief of Psychological Operations for the Special Operations Agency.

Labault said that he had been blessed by the expert advice, tireless work and genuine care of the officers, noncommissioned officers and soldiers at SOA. He said that no commander could have been better served.

It was previously stated that Lt. Col. Stephen E. Keeling would take command, but he was unable to take the position. Therefore, Sawyer is taking the reins.

Col. Roy R. Trumble, SOA commandant, was the reviewing officer for the ceremony. He said that the job of running the School Battalion at SOA is not always an easy job.

"SOA is unique," Trumble said. "We are an Army-run training academy, but we are also a national security asset. We get a lot of attention on any given day, and those two priorities are completing for our attention."

He said that since SOA is the only U.S. military school dedicated to instructing other nations in their own language, it is a special challenge and a heavy responsibility for a commander.

"We are extremely fortunate to have an officer of Sawyer's caliber available to assume command of this battalion," Trumble said. "He knows the battalion as well as anyone in the school. Sawyer is an outstanding trainer, a common-sense decision-maker, and a positive leader."

Before this assignment, Sawyer commanded the SOA Special Operations Detachment.

A Special Forces officer, Sawyer has served in both infantry and special forces positions. His infantry assignments include platoon leader, ranger instructor, company commander and battalion executive officer. His Special Forces assignments include detachment executive officer, detachment commander and company commander.

Sawyer was commissioned from the U.S. Military Academy. He has a master's degree in human resource management from Troy State University.

He said that he looks forward to continuing to serve the school in this new capacity.

Officer candidates renovate OCS Hall of Fame

By Ruth J. Spaller
Officer Candidate School

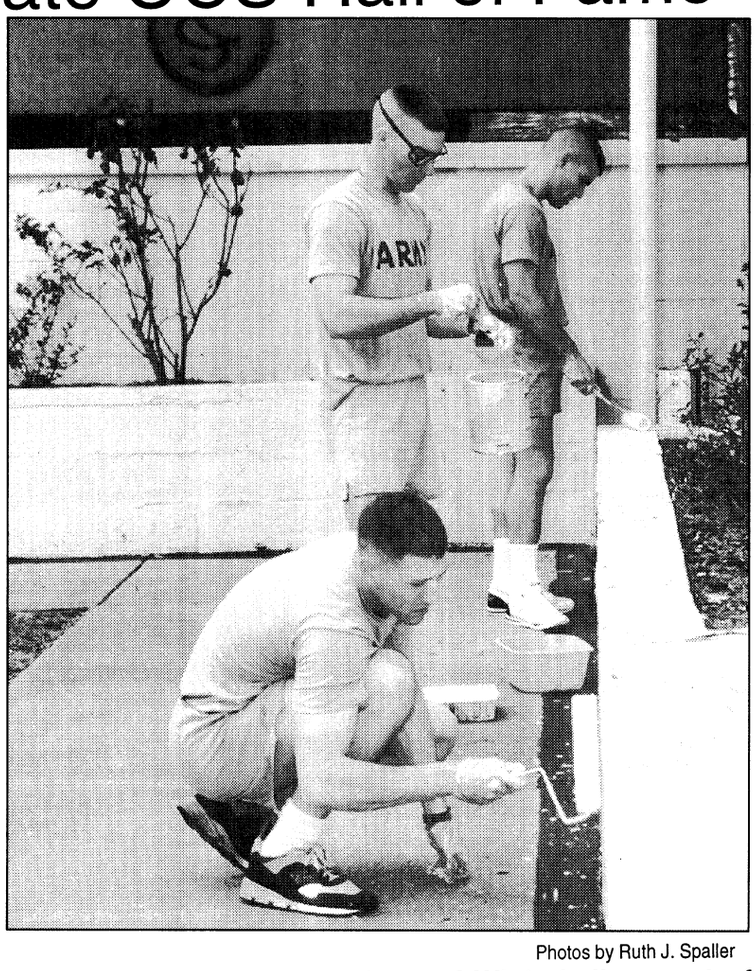
Members of Officer Candidate School Class 2-96 have been working to improve their future by investing in their past.

During the last few weeks, the candidates have spent more than 3,000 man-hours renovating Wigle Hall, the OCS Hall of Fame, as part of their class project.

"This project is super important because the way we take care of our past indicates what we expect from our future," said project coordinator Senior Officer Candidate Erik O. Hinckley.

The project is broken down into several work areas, Hinckley said, including interior and exterior beautification and a major reworking of the Hall of Fame inductees photo display.

The first project area, run by SOC David A. Demartelaere, involves reducing in size and reframing the more than 1,700 photographs of Hall of Fame inductees that cover the walls of Wigle Hall.



Another large part of the project is the research effort being led by SOC James H. Hayes. Research efforts include verifying the class number and year inductees graduated by looking through old yearbooks, said Hayes.

"It's been a painstaking effort. We've looked through countless yearbooks trying to match names," Hayes said, "but it's been interesting to see, based on the cartoons, articles and comments in past yearbooks, how similar OCS is today to when it began in 1941."

SOCs Gary P. Rogers, Curtis D. Wiley, Thaddeus D. Shaffer, Michael J. Smith and August Muller have all invested their time and background experience in the project, respectively drawing up a landscaping plan, painting several signs, woodworking and filming a video about OCS and Wigle Hall to show to future visitors.

"The command has been really supportive and all the students have worked really hard," Hinckley said.

A tree-planting ceremony Tuesday, coordinated by SOC Deborah Siler, marked the end of the project for Class 2-96.

MOS restructuring to occur during June

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

In June, 145 of Fort Benning's soldiers will be affected by the Armywide restructuring of several military occupational specialties.

According to Sgt. 1st Class Teresa L. Meagher, non-commissioned officer in charge of Enlisted Strength Management, Adjutant General's office, the conversion and combination of MOSs is done for several reasons, including better individual soldier skills and flexibility.

She said the main reason for the changes is to strengthen the skills of soldiers because of the loss of manpower due to military downsizing.

"(Since the downsizing began) the bodies just are not there, so we are revamping the MOSs to gain more productivity out of the soldiers we do have," she said.

"(Restructuring MOS's) provides more flexibility," said Meagher. She believes this flexibility is important because the military has fewer soldiers now to perform the same duties as required before the downsizing began.

"Some MOSs also must be restructured to meet revised personnel demands associated with new or obsolete systems and equipment," Meagher said.

Included in the MOS restructuring scheduled for June are 55Z, ammunition supervisor; 68L, avionic equipment repairer; 68Q, avionic flight system repairer; 68R, avionic radar repairer and 71C, executive administrative assistant.

Also included in this restructuring are 75B, personnel administrative specialist; 75C, personnel management specialist; 75D, personnel records specialist; 75E, personnel actions specialist; 75F, personnel information system management specialist; 75Z, personnel sergeant and 93D, air traffic control equipment repairer.

"By June 30, all of the MOS transactions will be accomplished," said Dena R. Reid, military personnel clerk.

Meagher believes restructuring the MOS's will benefit soldiers.

"Combining and converting MOS's provides greater promotional opportunities for soldiers," she said.

"Because of more training, (the soldiers) will have greater backgrounds and be more competitive in civilian life when they retire," said Meagher. "They will have broader qualifications as a result of the MOS changes."

According to Reid, restructuring of MOS's takes place twice each fiscal year. Another one is scheduled for Dec.

MOS transactions are processed by the Department of the Army and Fort Benning's Adjutant General for the Standard Installation and Division Personnel System.

Public Notice

PURSUANT TO THE NATIONAL PRESERVATION ACT OF 1966 (AS AMENDED) ADVISORY COUNCIL ON HISTORIC PRESERVATION REGULATION 36 CER § 800.5 (e)(3) Proposed Demolition of Buildings 90 and 227 Fort Benning GA

Fort Benning proposes to demolish Buildings 90 and 227, which are part of the Fort Benning Main Post HIstoric District nominated to the National Register of Historic Places. Building 90 is a movie theater and Building 227 is an enlisted soldiers club constructed in 1939 and 1932, respectively. A new "ten-plex" theater replacing Building 90 will be constructed in the near future. A new enlisted soldiers club replacing Building 227 has already been constructed. No future missions for building 90 and 227 are currently planned nor are missions for these structured anticipated. Government estimates for maintaining or preserving Buildings 90 and 227 in their present or past use is in excess of $1.6 and $1 million, respectively. Fort Benning does not consider it to be in the best interest of the public to continue to utilize scarce resources for the continued maintenance and uneconomical repair of structures for which there is no mission. Any questions or comments regarding this proposal can be referred to: Commander, US Army Infantry Center ATTN: ATZB-PWN-P (Mr. Larry R. Jones) Bldg. 6, Meloy Hall, (Room 415) Fort Benning, GA 31905-5122. Written comments must be received no later than (THIRTY DAYS FROM THE INITIAL PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE.)

Speeders beware!

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Fort Benning Military Police have two words for drivers who speed on post: "slow down."

The Directorate of Public Safety has begun a "saturation" attack on speeding.

According to Col. Thomas J. Cain, provost marshal and director of Public Safety, MPs will be targeting speeders all over post, and particularly in the housing areas.

"We issued 1,472 citations from Jan. 1 to March 8 just for speeding, 534 of those were in housing areas," Cain said. "We've had numerous complaints in the past few months from the housing areas.

"People use them as shortcuts or cut-through to avoid school zones — (drivers) are just not obeying the signs."

Cain said the speeding problem is not isolated, but is occurring in all housing areas.

The word Cain uses to describe the tactic MPs will use to catch speeders is "saturation."

"Our intent is to observe all drivers in a particular area," he said. "We will be looking for speeders, and we'll concentrate on the housing areas."

Cain said drivers have been observing "Operation Slowdown," the decreased speed limit during physical training hours, and he hopes to make drivers equally aware of speed limits at all other times.

The aim is not to write citations for everyone on post, Cain said, but rather to increase drivers' awareness of their speed.

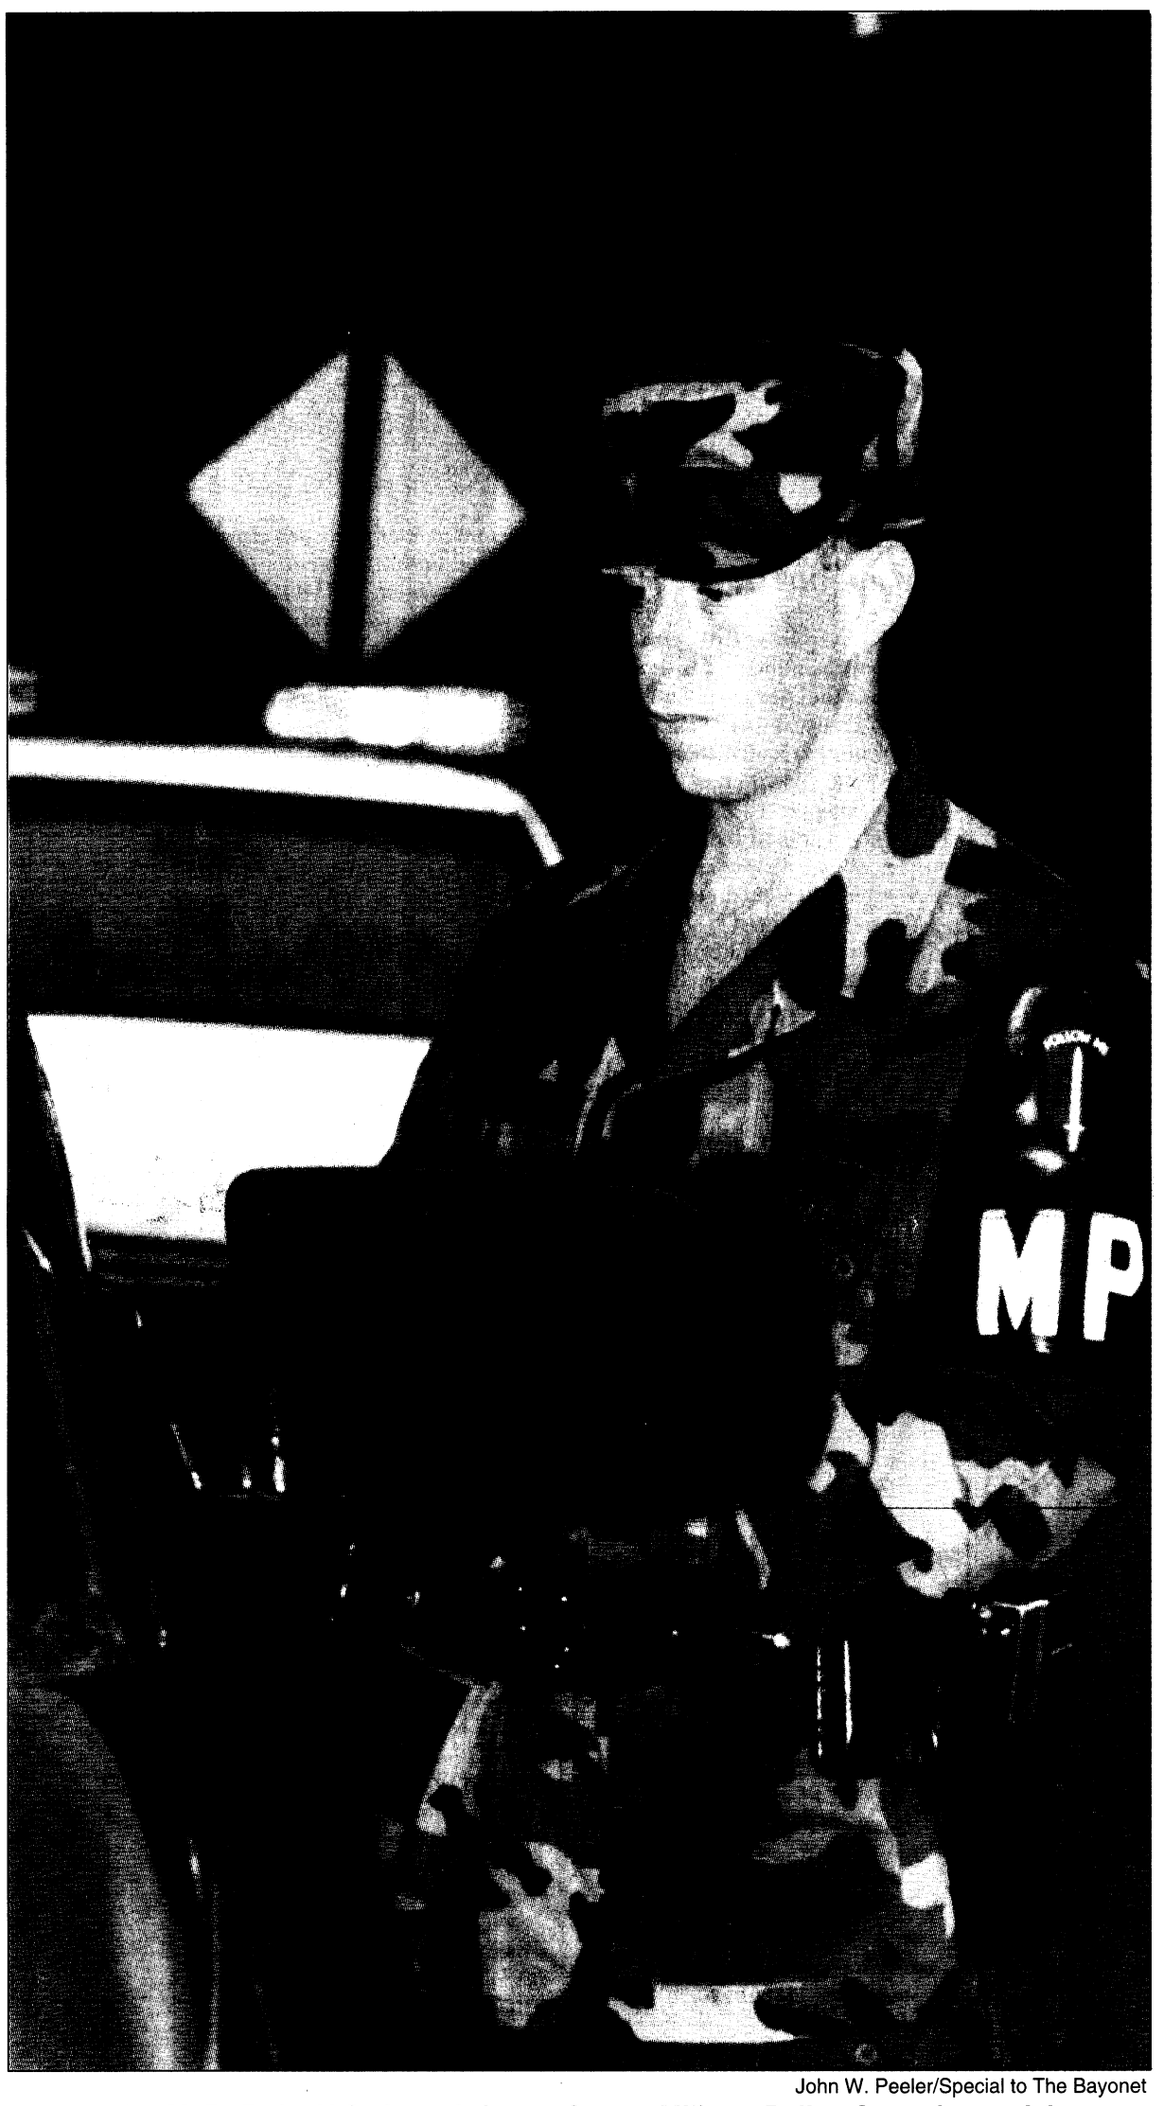
"Our goal is to provide a safe and secure environment for personnel to live, work and play," Cain said. "The weather is getting warmer, and there are a lot of children out playing. Speeding through housing areas puts those children in danger."

Cain said drivers should not assume there is a "tolerance" or safety margin that enables them to drive above the speed limit.

"Drivers sometimes think if the speed limit is 30, they can drive around 35 and not get ticketed," Cain said. "That's not so," he said. "We've got sophisticated radar equipment, and it's very accurate. Don't rely on tolerances."

Master Sgt. Eddie Cosby, noncommissioned officer in charge of Law Enforcement Operations, said the Military Police are equipped with 56 radar guns, and all incoming MPs are trained in their use by an in-house, state-certified radar instructor.

"A lot of times, people aren't even aware they're speeding," Cosby said. "Almost anybody will do it — if they're late to work, or have to pick up their kids, they'll step on the gas."



Cosby said fines for speeding are $30 for those traveling less than 10 miles over the speed limit, $50 for 11 to 20 miles over the limit, and a mandatory court appearance with fines ranging up to $150 for those driving more than 20 miles over the speed limit.

Those cited for speeding in government vehicles, Cosby said, are subject to have points levied against their licenses. More than 12 points in a year can result in license suspension. Repeat offenders on post are subject to loss of post driving privileges, at the commander's discretion.

Sgt. 1st Class Dan Downs, noncommissioned officer in charge of the Traffic Section, said the units have been very helpful in emphasizing the speed limit during physical training hours.

"They make it a part of inprocessing briefings," Downs said. "We want to make people aware of all the speed limits."

PAO seeks feedback

By Agatha Hudson Debrow
Bayonet editor

Readers of the post newspaper and viewers of the post television channel will have an opportunity to express what they like or do not like in an upcoming survey.

Set for distribution April 26, the survey is designed to help the newspaper and television staffs meet the readers' and viewers' needs and improve services, according to Rich McDowell, post Public Affairs officer.

"I believe an informed soldier is a better soldier, and family members and retirees care about what is happening in our Army and on our post," Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, post commanding general, says in the survey's cover letter, which will accompany each survey. "I am genuinely interested in feedback on how well soldiers, family members, retirees and civilians are kept informed."

The survey is being mailed to more than 1,800 active duty soldiers, family members, retirees and Department of Army civilians.

Readers and television viewers will have an opportunity to answer questions, such as "How much do you believe of what's printed in The Bayonet?" "To what extent do you find The Bayonet a reliable source of news about what is going on in the Army?" "Do you find USAIC TV a reliable source of post news?"

Survey participants are asked to complete the survey and return it to the Public Affairs Office, either directly to Room 601 of Infantry Hall, Building 4, or by placing it in distribution at units or offices or by mailing it back to the Public Affairs Office, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905.

A copy of the survey will also be printed in The Bayonet April 26. Persons who were not selected randomly can complete one of the copies of the survey in the newspaper and return it.

The Bayonet will print the survey results at a later date.

Post to honor volunteers

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

National Volunteer Week is Sunday through April 27 and Fort Benning will honor those who, by dedicating their time, energy and talents selflessly to post agencies and organizations, epitomize this year's theme, "Volunteer, we belong together."

During a volunteer recognition ceremony Thursday, the post's top volunteers will be presented awards by Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, post commanding general, for the impact their efforts have made to the mission and quality of life at Fort Benning

According to Michelle Aldridge, volunteer resource coordinator, there are more than 1,000 volunteers working alongside soldiers and civilians everyday.

Among those numbers, Aldridge said, "We're looking for those who've gone above and beyond."

Aldridge said that although only those chosen as the top volunteers for 1995 can be individually awarded, she encourages all Fort Benning agencies, units and organizations to take the time to say thank you to people who make a difference every day.

The ceremony will be from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Supper Club of the Fort Benning Officers' Club. Supervisors may obtain ceremony invitations for their organizations now.

Airborne anniversary set

USAIC Public Affairs Office

This year marks the 56th anniversary of the birth of the U.S. airborne.

Fort Benning's 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry Regiment, which conducts basic and advanced airborne training, will host the airborne community during their one-day visit to the post April 25 for the 19th annual Airborne Awards Festival.

A 10 a.m. dedication ceremony of a 34-foot tower in honor of John Swetish, the original designer of the 34-foot tower still used in airborne training to simulate the opening of a parachute is at the Eubanks Field demonstration area. An 11:30 memorial service will follow at the Airborne Walk, Eubanks Field, as part of the four-day 19th annual Airborne Awards Festival in Atlanta.

Following a barbecue lunch, a classroom in Lillyman Hall, the Pathfinder School, will be dedicated in honor of Rolley Duff, a World War II pathfinder. Duff died last year in a parachuting accident in Russia.

The guest speaker at the memorial service is retired Lt. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, an early airborne pioneer, World War II airborne battalion commander and 1st Cavalry Division. commander at Fort Benning and in Vietnam.

Members from the original test platoon of parachutists, formed at Fort Benning in 1940, will be here for a day of activities along with other distinguished guests and many airborne veterans from all wars. Fraternal members of the airborne community, both retired and active duty will attend also.

While here, festival members will visit the Airborne School, attend the memorial service at the Airborne Walk, observe an Airborne-in-Action demonstration, including a jump by the Silver Wings Parachute Team on Eubanks Field and attend a 2:15 jump and 3 p.m. graduation of the Basic Airborne Course at Fryar Drop Zone.

During the memorial ceremony, the youngest officer and enlisted airborne graduates will participate in the "Carry the Flame" mission. It represents the continuing spirit of airborne.

The 19th Airborne awards Festival at the Atlanta Airport Sheraton Hotel is April 24 through 26 and a highlight for airborne veterans of all wars and peacetime service. Several Medal of Honor recipients and airborne veterans of more recent wars and peacetime service will be in attendance.

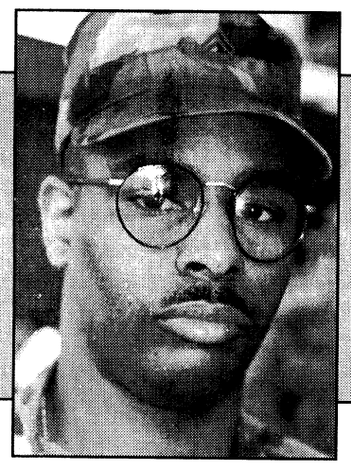
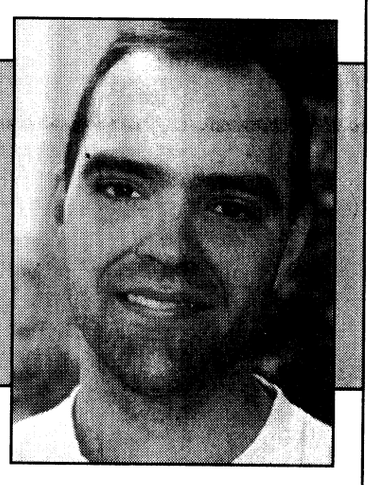
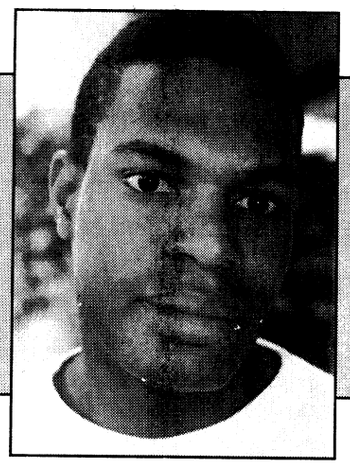
VARIOUS VOICES



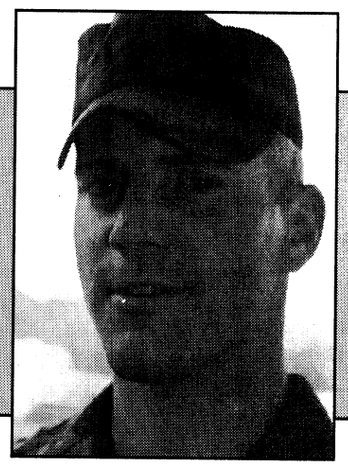
If you could have any job in the military, what would it be and why?



2nd Lt. Joe B. Palaoro, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "The most rewarding job for me in the near future is platoon leader because I'll have the most direct impact on people and those who serve with me."

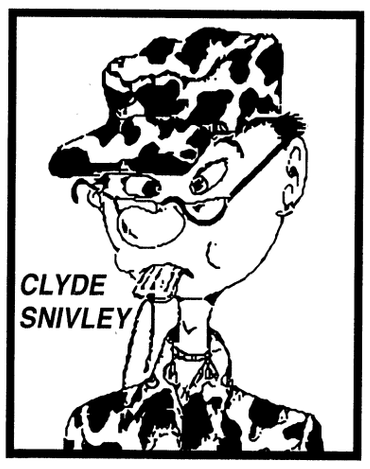


Chief Warrant 3 David L. Baker, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment — "The job that I have right now because I like being with soldiers, seeing things get fixed and running well."



Cpl. Douglas E. Newton, 608th Ordnance Company, 36th Engineer Group — "Platoon sergeant — I believe that's where most of the manpower in a company comes from."

Spc. Thomas L. Smith, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division — "I'd be a first sergeant. They're able to take care of the troops first hand."



Staff Sgt. David Wilson, 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment — "Squad leader in the infantry because that's the most demanding job in the Army."

Sgt. Jeff R. McCloud, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 5th Battalion, 87th Infantry, Panama — "I like my job. I'm a sniper team leader in Panama. A great deal of responsibility rests on the shoulders of two people, the sniper and the spotter."

New job doesn't necessarily bring joy

commentary

As smart as our editor is, she can sure come up with some woozies for questions for our Various Voices column.

This week it's something like, if you could have any job in the Army, what would it be and why?

My answer's simple: I'd keep the job I've got — it's the only one I'm trained for. Picture me sitting up there as chief of staff of the Army or post commander. You can't, can you. And neither can I.

Plus, I like my job. Working for The Bayonet, I get to go all over post, meet interesting people and tell their stories. It's an interesting job, and I feel like I'm contributing to the cause. And one of these days, if I work hard and display the potential to lead soldiers, who knows, I might get promoted.

Then I'd be a leader, but I'm not sure I'm cut out for leadership.

Leaders have it tough. They have to take care of their soldiers. And as one of my heroes in the 3rd Brigade pointed out, when you get the 2 a.m. phone call from one of your drunken troops, asking to be picked up and brought back to the barracks, you can't just say, "well, I'm drunk too, get a taxi." You have to do something.

So in the meantime, I'll work at being the best journalist I can and think about getting promoted. The neat thing about the Army is that the potential for advancement is there for everyone. Each of us can aspire to be a sergeant major or general officer.

Few will make it, but if we possess the brains, the moxy, the drive and ambition, we can certainly go a long way towards those goals, if that's what we want.

And we enlisted types can even dream of being generals. Just last week, one of our star journalists was commissioned a second lieutenant.

Ruth Spaller had the drive and desire to serve. She was an award-winning journalist, was promoted to sergeant, but thought she could make an even greater contribution to the force as an officer. So she applied for OCS, was accepted and graduated with honors, just as she did from the primary leadership course.

For her, excelling is a way of life. And that's the way I think it should be for everyone. If we don't want to do our best and if we don't enjoy what we're doing, then we should think about a career move, like into the civilian world.

In today's small force, all soldiers need to pull their fair share of the load and then some. Because we ain't cutting the slackers no slack.

Yeah, as an alternative to doing what I'm doing now, I'll work in the office helping process deadbeats out of the Army. That's the ticket.

Politics of 'The New Army' not palatable

Ever since I came back in the military, I have heard the phrase "The New Army" time and time again.

Up until recently, the meaning eluded me. Now I know politics is the meaning of "The New Army."

When I joined the military in 1985, we had a close knit military. Everybody watched everybody's back and stuck up for one another. I believe the backbone of the military then was Vietnam Veterans.

My first noncommissioned officer in charge and first sergeant were both Vietnam veterans and had served together in Vietnam as lower enlisted men. They had seen soldiers die for their country, our true purpose. They respected their soldiers for that very reason. They knew that if they had to, they would be trusting their very lives to those soldiers.

They always took care of their soldiers. They knew they could have served with a soldier's older brother, cousin, or even father, so they gave all soldiers the respect they deserved just because they were soldiers — the way it should be.

About 1989 to 1990, the military had had enough of the Vietnam veterans and started force retiring them. Slowly, but surely, this new Army moved in like a bad storm bringing its political system with it.

Promotions by friendship, tasking by mistakes and one strike you are out are all abominations of "The New Army's" political system.

Well, my expiration term of service is soon and you can have it. For all the rest of you that share my beliefs, may God have mercy on you, because the politics will not.

— Pfc. Robert Davis
Company A, 1st Battalion,
29th Infantry Regiment

Battalion's response:

Every new generation of soldier brings with it misinterpretations and false perceptions about what the Army is all about, or in this case, what it was all about.

It is true that the Army of today is not what it was during Vietnam. To me, the Army of today is a lot better than it used to be. At the end of the Vietnam war, there was a mass exodus of disgruntled soldiers who left because they were not happy with what the Army had become. I hope we never return there.

The soldiers of today are highly motivated and intelligent. They are well-trained, well-equipped and well-prepared. And, most of today's leaders meet challenges head-to-head and always strive towards completing the mission. Many leaders have built upon the foundations of experience and knowledge learned from older generations of leaders in making their units better.

If soldiers are developed into a close-knit team, it is because that cohesion was developed — by leaders. It didn't just appear out of thin air.

Additionally, the soldier who looks out for his buddy was not limited to only the Vietnam era. Inherently, this trait belongs to all generations of soldiers.

Hopefully, younger non-commissioned officers who learn from the older generations of NCOs past, will learn traditions and values, such as respect and trust. Leadership from all levels can develop those attributes. It takes commitment and a lot of hard work.

DCA thanks sponsors

On behalf of the Directorate of Community Activities, I would like to thank those companies, organizations and individuals who made the annual Easter Egg Hunt a tremendous success. More than 4,000 people attended this gala event.

The Easter Egg Hunt April 6 at Youth Services could not have been possible without the support of the following sponsors:

TIC Federal Credit Union, Military Benefit Association, Team Office Products, Officers' Wives' Club, NCO Wives' Club and the Soldier and Family Support Fund who gave so generously to this event, as well as Buffalo Rock Pepsi, Sunny 100, the Fort Benning Commissary and the Army Family Advocacy Program, which provided products and giveaways.

Additionally, thanks to all the volunteers who gave their time so selflessly to make this event successful.

Such dedication truly makes Fort Benning a better place to live, work and play for all our soldiers and their family members.

PROCLAMATION

In recognition of the power of prayer, May 2 is proclaimed as the National Day of Prayer. This year will mark the 45th consecutive observance of the annual National Day of Prayer. Americans will gather to honor God and pray on behalf of our nation.

Americans, from our earliest beginnings, believed in the importance of prayer. Leaders, such as George Washington and Benjamin Franklin, believed that prayer could protect and direct the course of our nation.

Americans will unite at specific times in prayer for our nation to acknowledge our dependence on God, to give thanks for many blessings our country has received, to recognize our need for personal and corporate moral renewal and to ask for God's continued guidance and blessings on May 2.

The National Day of Prayer is a means to help increase our awareness of the importance of prayer for our government and ourselves. I encourage all personnel on Fort Benning and the surrounding communities to join with Americans across the country in a spirit of national unity.

— Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix

Post to conduct spring cleanup

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The spring post cantonment and housing area cleanup is scheduled to be conducted April 29 to May 2.

The cleanup, conducted yearly, gives all members of the Fort Benning community an appropriate time to improve the appearance of the housing areas, single soldier quarters, athletic fields, storage facilities and motor pools.

Garrison Sgt. Maj. Steven G. Chittum said May 1 has been designated as family housing cleanup day. He added, soldiers or their family members living in government quarters were required to police their areas of responsibility and correct any deficiencies.

"Area coordinators, not mayors are responsible for ensuring residents clean up their areas of responsibility," Chittum said. "There have been some misunderstandings in the past about that — I want that to be clear."

Commanders have been encouraged to allow for maximum participation by soldiers living in government quarters.

Post housing residents may pick up pine straw, fertilizer and other material for beautification at the U-Do-It center located at Building 385 on Vibbert Ave.

Residents who require removal of large debris (scrap aluminum, tree limbs', etc.) should contact their area coordinator for removal.

Area coordinators and Community Life noncommissioned officers will make initial inspections of the housing areas before May 1 with area reinspection May 2.

The NCOs will distribute cleanup fliers to all residents and conduct resident meetings to explain the responsibilities of the residents during the cleanup.

For additional information, call your Community Life NCO or Master Sgt. Gregory Lee at 545-2910.

Fraud, waste, abuse hot line available

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

Anyone who notices fraud, waste or abuse is urged by the Criminal Investigation Command to call Fort Benning's hot line for such problems, according to Bruce L. Simon, CID's Economic Crime Team chief.

"Soldiers, civilians or anyone with knowledge of fraud, waste or abuse can call," said Simon. "We prefer that the call pertains to the military, but it does not necessarily have to be a problem at Fort Benning. People can call about (fraud, waste and abuse) they notice elsewhere, too."

According to Simon, CID's mission is to conduct and control all Army investigations of serious crimes.

"Not all fraud, waste and abuse is serious, but it does need to be stopped," he said.

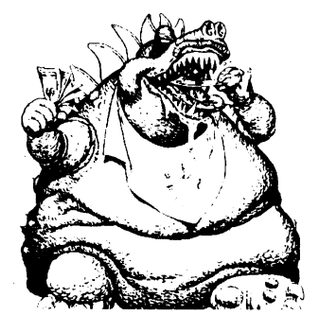
CID established the hot line to help prevent further fraud, waste and abuse. Simon said he is confident that anyone with information regarding such activities will call to report them.

"People are inherently concerned. They get upset when they see waste and they want to report it," he said.

"Fraud is stealing through deception to gain money, property or services, such as the use of a government telephone for private business use," said Simon, calling fraud an economic crime.

"Larceny and wrongful appropriation are also examples of fraud," he said.

Waste and abuse are not necessarily crimes, according to Simon.



"Normal activities that could be done better or that are not in accordance with Army regulations are wasteful and abusive," he said.

Some examples of waste and abuse are illegal dumping and wrongful disposition of government property.

"Citizens who want to report activities they feel are criminal or abusive should call the hot line," said Simon. "The callers can remain anonymous and the calls are confidential."

Persons wishing to report fraud, waste or abuse can call the 24-hour hot line at 545-7908. Callers may either leave a message at this number or dial 545-7872 to speak with someone from CID.

Simon urges everyone to help stop fraud, waste and abuse.

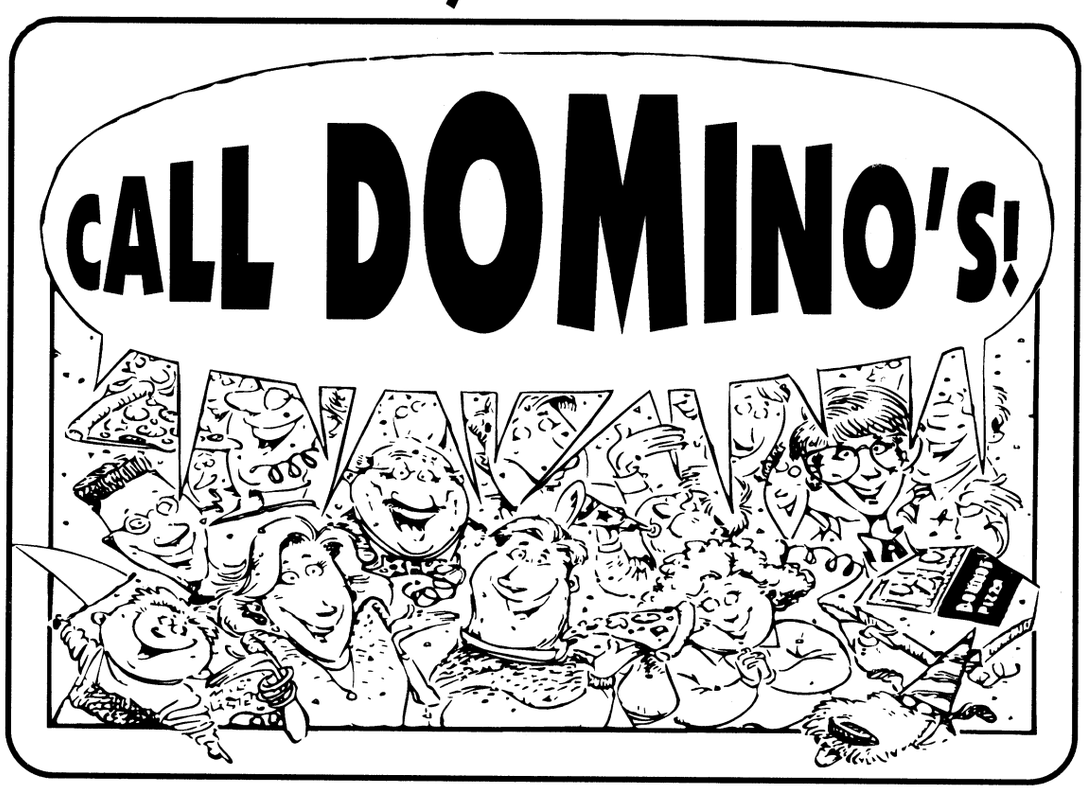
Single soldiers living in Wilkins Hall, Building 17, are beginning to reap the benefits of the work of the Building 17 Command Council.

The council is composed of unit representatives, commanders from the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity; Headquarters and Company A, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment; the Infantry Band; 988th Military Police; U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit; and others.

The council was formed Oct. 25 to resolve quality of life issues affecting all residents in Building 17. The council meets monthly with attendees including battalion commanders, BOSS representatives, command sergeants major, repairs and utilities NCOs, and representatives and from the Department of Public Works. Minutes are maintained and commanders are empowered to act on the recommendations of the council.

So far, all washers and dryers have been replaced, vending machines installed, and vacuum cleaners, steam cleaners, and ice machines have been obtained.



Future plans call for complete carpeting and painting of all rooms, the installation of a covered barbecue grill area, the purchase and installation of ceiling fans, the installation of a covered motorcycle parking area and the installation of more washers and dryers. A Building 17 "block party" is also in the works.

Recruiters wanted

The U.S. Army Recruiting Command is sending a "Recruit the Recruiter" team to Fort Benning to give presentations and answer questions concerning duty within the Recruiting Command.

The team will be at Infantry Hall, Classroom No. 6, May 21 to 23 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. each day.

The purpose of the visit is to brief all interested soldiers in the ranks of sergeant to sergeant first class on opportunities as a U.S. Army recruiter and to encourage qualified noncommissioned officers who have more than 12 months time on station to volunteer for recruiting duty.

All NCOs interested in recruiting duty can attend the briefings. Spouses are also encouraged to attend.

For more information, call (800)-223-3735 or DSN 536-0233. At Fort Benning, call Master Sgt. Carlos Bernardini, Retention Services Division, Adjutant General's Office, at 545-6955 or 545-1131.

DPW Supply to close for inventory

The Supply and Equipment Division, Directorate of Public Works will be closed for inventory May 3 though 6.

No deliveries will be made after May 1 and emergency issues will be made only with the division chief's approval.

For more information, call Gary S. Glenn at 545-1114.

1996 Infantry Ball scheduled for June

The Infantry Ball is scheduled for June 14 at 6 p.m. at the Fort Benning Officers' Club. The ball is hosted by Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix and his wife, Cheri.

The military dress is dress or mess blues or whites with a bow tie and civilian dress is formal. RSVP no later than May 31.

OCS needs female captain

Officer Candidate School needs a female captain to serve as a training assessment and counseling officer as a leader and mentor for officer candidates. Applicants must be in top physical condition.

For more information, call Capt. Mary Martindale at 545-4711 or 545-4907.

Green to Gold briefings set

The Columbus College ROTC Department will host Green to Gold briefings today at Kelley Hill Theater at 10 a.m.and Building 4, Room 30 at 1 p.m. The May 17 and June 21 briefings will be at 1 p.m. in Building 4, Room 30.

Representative from the Columbus College ROTC Department will assist all applicants in attending the college of their choice. All those interested are strongly encouraged to attend.

For more information, call Capt. Sheila Denham at 568-2058.

Utilities Center has new requirement for clearing

Beginning April 30, soldiers will no longer be able to pay telephone bills at CB&T on post. Beginning May 1, soldiers must pay any outstanding telephone bills at Big B Drugs, Phenix Plaza, Phenix City or at All Services, 2457 Airport Thruway, Columbus.

To clear the Utility Coordination Center, soldiers need to ensure that their telephone bills are paid in full and bring the receipt for payment to the UCC clearing appointment.

For more information, call Staff Sgt. Willie J. Moss at 545-5485.

Hazardous waste tape available

Copies of the training tape used for the eight-hour environmental manager's course are available to units wishing to hold training sessions on hazardous waste management.

The tape covers the proper management of hazardous waste including testing, storage, disposal, personal safety and transportation. It is intended to be used for an eight-hour course but can also be used for short training sessions.

Copies of this tape can be checked out in the Environmental Programs Management Branch office located in Room 413, Meloy Hall, Building 6.

For more information, call 545-7570.

Mobility Branch to conduct class

A class will be conducted by the Mobility and Survivability Branch at Infantry Hall, Classroom 21 today from 8 a.m. until noon.

Units must submit a memo to Mobility and Survivability Branch, Combined Arms and Tactics Directorate, Infantry Hall room 331, or fax 545-7500. Students must review Field Manual 5-250 (Explosives and Demolitions) prior to class. Units must send one FM 5-250 with each group of soldiers that they send to the course.

For more information call 545-2760.

Earth Day displays in Building 4

In recognition of Earth Day, a display is placed in the main vestibule of Building 4 today through April 26.

AER campaign continues

The Army Emergency Relief Fund Campaign is under way and will continue through May 15.

AER, which was established Feb. 5, 1942, is a nonprofit organization dedicated solely to "Helping the Army Take Care of its Own."

AER offers loans and grants or a combination of the two to soldiers, family members, Reserve and National Guard soldiers on extended active duty, retirees, widows and orphans of soldiers who died on active duty or after retirement.

Controlled burning set

Controlled burning of woodland areas will take place Monday through Saturday. If weather permits, the following compartments will be affected: A-8, A-9, A-14, A-19, B-3, D-12, I-4, K-17, K-22, N-1, N-2, O-7, P-2, Q-3, T-3, V-4,.W-1, W-4, X-4, BB-3, BB-5, and CC-3.

Burning will occur in pine stands within these compartments to enhance endangered species' habitat and training areas.

Personnel proposing to use these areas for recreational purposes must vacate these areas prior to 9:30 a.m. daily.

Training units using compartments adjacent to those listed above may experience drift smoke and are reminded to exercise caution while travelling in these areas due to the potential for reduced visibility.

Units using ranges and training areas are reminded to remove flammable debris, such as pinestraw, leaves, grass and trash from around structures in accordance with U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 210-4, Paragraph 5-22, Organizational Maintenance.

For more information, call Jack Greenlee, Natural Resources Management Branch, at 544-6206.

Center changes hours

The Welcome Center is now open Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday 2 to 10 p.m.

Inprocessing will be from opening hours until 20 minutes prior to closing hours.

Outprocessing soldiers may report to the Welcome Center or call to make an appointment 10 days before departure from the installation.

For more information, call 545-5404.

New traffic signs to be posted

In an effort to ease traffic flow and better serve the patrons of Fort Benning, several changes are being made to existing traffic control devices.

The Directorate of Public Safety and the Directorate of Public Works are working together to figure out the best way to move traffic around the installation, especially the Main Post area.The following changes have been made:

- "Stop" sign at Holtz and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Chesney and Burr changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" sign at Indianhead and Merchant changed to "Yield" sign
- "Stop" signs on Moye and 11th Airborne Division removed

A traffic study is currently under way at Edwards and Burr streets to evaluate the feasibility of changing this light to a two-way stop.

All drivers on Fort Benning should be made aware of and adhere to the posted traffic control devices.

Speeders face fines

Staff Judge Advocate' Office

Fort Benning is an exclusive federal legislative jurisdiction. Accordingly, traffic offenses are under the criminal jurisdiction of the U.S. Magistrate Court, Columbus Division, Middle District of Georgia.

Fines for those sentenced by this court range from $50 to $1,000 and may include up to six months confinement.

There is no "set" fine. Each sentence is tailored to the individual offender and the gravity of the offense by the U.S. Magistrate.

For certain minor offenses, including minor moving violations, a collateral forfeiture is authorized.

This is a procedure whereby an offender is allowed to mail a prescribed amount to the court and, by failing to appear in court on the appointed date, forfeit this amount in lieu of being sentenced by the court.

Collateral forfeitures are set by law and range from $25 to $75, depending on the offense. Not all offenses are subject to a collateral forfeiture. Many require a mandatory court appearance.

In addition to any fines or collateral forfeitures that are paid by traffic offenders, they are assessed points against their individual driving record in according with Army Regulation 190-5.

Exceeding the authorized point accumulation will result in a loss of installation driving privileges. Also, insurance companies monitor traffic offenses and adjust liability insurance rates according to an individual's driving record.

MILITARY APRECIATION

Fort Benning invited to fair

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

The Chattahoochee Valley-Fort Benning Chapter Association of the U.S. Army is sponsoring its third annual Job Fair in celebration of Military Appreciation Week May 16.

All active duty and retired military, Department of Defense civilians and their family members are invited to attend the event, according to Bruce C. Tait, chairman, AUSA Job Fair.

"Last year, we had roughly 1,100 attendees," Tait said. "This year, we're hoping for an attendance between 1,100 and 1,500."

The Job Fair will be free, but attendees are urged to come prepared, according to Mark C. Mills, acting manager of the Family Member Employment Assistance Program, Army Community Service.

"We recommend that everyone have résumés done with numerous copies ready," Mills said. "Last year, our recommendation was 20 copies, but most people discovered that amount was not adequate. I suggest having 40 to 50 copies prepared for the event."

Mills also said a copy machine will be available at the site, but still recommends attendees prepare résumés in advance.

FMEAP is joined by the Georgia Department of Labor and the Army Career Alumni Program in helping AUSA organize the Job Fair.

These organizations are hoping that attendees use the event for several purposes, according to Mills.

"The Job Fair is not only good for those seeking employment and businesses' recruiting purposes; it is also great for people in the process of career planning," he said. "With so many types of businesses on site, it is a perfect opportunity for some people to discover more about particular careers."

According to Tait, numerous businesses are expected to participate in the Job Fair.

"We are anticipating 70, or more, businesses to participate this year," he said. "Local, state and national businesses will be on site."

Representatives from the FBI and Secret Service and David Poyphress, labor commissioner for the state of Georgia, are expected to participate, according to Tait.

The Job Fair will be May 16 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Main NCO Club, Building 2784.

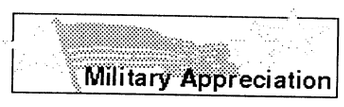
For information about the event, call Bruce Tait, AUSA, at 649-7423; Mark Mills, FMEAP, at 545-6969; or Mary Allen, ACAP, at 545-7020.

Countdown begins for Military Appreciation Week activities, events

By Lori Egan
Bayonet staff writer

It's time to dust off those musty sneakers and get ready for the upcoming Military Appreciation Week events beginning May 13 and culminating with Armed Forces Day May 18.

Military Appreciation Week is sponsored by the civilian communities in conjunction with Armed Forces Day.



It is also being hosted by the Association of the U.S. Army to foster goodwill between the military and the local community.

Military Appreciation Week activities will include unit competitions, military demonstrations and equipment displays, a business fair, an open house, selection of Mr. and Mrs. AUSA, a picnic, and the ever-popular "Burn the General" run.

The idea behind Military Appreciation Week is to enhance morale, to demonstrate the Army's preparedness and to share the spirit of cooperation between Fort Benning and the local communities.

The week begins with a River Walk Relay which begins at 7 a.m. This is the first time for this course. The course begins at the National Infantry Museum and follows the Riverwalk Trail to Uptown Columbus.

The festivities will conclude on Armed Forces Day.

Awards will be presented to the winners of all the sporting competitions conducted throughout the week of May 18, Armed Forces Day.

Armed Forces Day will feature a demonstration by sky divers, the awards ceremonies, entertainment and midway booths.

The award ceremony will be at 11, with the carnival and picnic activities beginning at 11:30 a.m.

14th annual Retiree Open House to be conducted

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning will host its 14th annual Retiree Open House May 16 through 18.

During the three-day event, retirees can receive up-to-date information about their benefits and entitlements as well as learn the latest Army operational developments.

Among activities in which retirees can participate are: physical examinations at Martin Army Community Hospital, a tour of the Infantry Museum and a tour of the Dismounted Battlespace Battle Lab's Simulation Network Facility.

A barbeque dinner is also scheduled for May 17.

Registration for physicals must be received at the Retirement Services Office no later than May 3. Registration for all other activities must be submitted to the Retirement Services Office no later than May 10.

Individuals who wish to participate in the Retiree Open House may receive more information by calling 545-1813, 545-2541, or 545-5369.

Post prepares for athletic extravaganza

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

Military Appreciation Week will begin May 13 culminating May 18 with an Armed Forces Day celebration.

The post is making preparations for a week of military displays, entertainment, recreational activities and sporting events for civilian and military of all ages.

Military Appreciation Week, sponsored by the civilian community, provides an opportunity for individual and unit size team participation in unit and post level competition as well as a chance to share the cooperation enjoyed between the post and the local communities.

Events in 21 sporting and recreational activities are scheduled to be conducted with awards in all events.

Entrants will be scored in each event depending on place of finish from first through ninth.

The top prize, the "Follow Me" Cup, will be awarded to the overall unit winner at the awards ceremony, scheduled for 11 a.m., May 18.

The race for the "Follow Me" Cup began March 20 with the first of three meets in track and field events.

The second meet was conducted April 17 to 18 with the final event to be May 15 to 16.

After the first meet, the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, was in first place with 38 total points.

For more information, contact your unit point of contact or call Lt. Col. Kelly Cook at 545-7392.

AROUND POST

DPW to provide flowers — Fort Benning residents can get a variety of yard beautification items from the U-Do-It Center, Building 385.

Beginning April 19 and continuing through May 18, each household can receive one flat of bedding plants to enhance their yard. Residents can choose from geraniums or begonias.

Top soil, grass seed, pine straw, fertilizer and lime are also available for issue.

Each Friday, a new shipment of plants will be delivered to the center.

Teen work force workshop set — Youth Services will complete its series of workshops for teens, ages 15 years and older, who want to prepare for the job market.

The last workshop is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m.

• Thursday _ How to Dress and Show Initiative on the Job.

For more information, call Quintella Thorn at 545-7945 or 545-3070.

Annual Airborne Awards scheduled — The annual Airborne Awards program will be Wednesday through April 28, with activities on Fort Benning and in Atlanta.

All paratroopers, past and present, regardless of national origin or theater of service, can participate in the program.

Special guests will include more than 100 British paratroopers. Planned activities include an airborne training demonstration, mass jump, parade of colors and a special Airborne Walk ceremony. A banquet is also planned.

For more information, call (770) 478-5301.

Parent-Daughter bingo — The Fort Benning Girl Scouts are hosting Parent-Daughter Bingo games Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. Hosted by Cadet Troop 135, the games will be at the Main Post Girl Scout hut located in Building 1796 on Ingersoll Street.

Entry fee is one item of nonperishable food per card. All food donated to the Scouts will go to the Army Community Service Food Locker.

For more information, call 682-5051 or 682-0377.

Alcoholics Anonymous meetings provide support — The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous group meets at 7 p.m. every Monday, Thursday and Saturday.

Meetings are conducted in the basement of the Directorate of Community Activities building (241) next to the Infantry Museum. Individuals interested in attending meetings can use the rear entrance to the building.

For more information, call 545-4993 or 545-1138.

ENVIRONMENTAL AWARENESS

Post celebrates natural resources

Theme highlights pollution prevention through recycling

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

"Save our resources: recycle, reuse, reduce" is Fort Benning's theme for the Earth Day celebrations Monday.

Since Earth Day was founded in 1970 by former Senator Gaylord Nelson, it has been celebrated in the United States annually in April.

"The purpose of Earth Day is to make people more aware of our environment and how we can protect it and our natural resources," said Environmental Specialist Erin D. Knighton, Environmental Program Management Branch, Directorate of Public Works.

"This year, emphasis is being placed on pollution prevention by recycling and conserving our natural resources," said Knighton. "The reason we chose the theme 'Save our resources: recycle, reuse, reduce' was because we spend so much money on disposal of items, such as paper and plastics, that we can reuse," she said.

Walter P. Nichols, also an environmental specialist with DPW, agreed this year's theme was a good choice for the community's celebrations.

"The amount of material people at Fort Benning recycle has risen, but we need to recycle even more," he said.

Several activities are planned by DPW in celebration of Earth Day.

DPW will place a display emphasizing the Earth Day theme in the main vestibule of Building 4 today through April 26.

Individual and organizational Stewards of the Year will be awarded at a luncheon April 26 in recognition of Earth Day. These Environmental Steward Awards are being given to the persons and organization most aware of their environments, according to Knighton.

"This year, we are awarding those we feel have shown environmental stewardship through awareness," she said.

Recipients of the awards include Clayton Bell, Director of Logistics, Maintenance Division; Staff Sgt. William Harris, Headquarters Service Company, U.S. Army Infantry Training Brigade; 1st Lt. Justin Pierce, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized); and the 29th Infantry Regiment.

DPW will also celebrate Earth Day by planting a tree in honor of deceased Natural Resource Management Branch Chief Charles R. Ford. The tree will be planted at Natural Resources, Building 5884, according to Knighton.

Spring fever

Nora Stebbins, a past winner of the post's yard-of-the-month program, takes advantage of warm weather, planting a few flowers in front of her Fort Benning home. As spring turns to summer, post residents will settle into planting and pruning, mowing and clipping to make their yards beautiful.

Program provides pointers for Positive parenting

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

April is Child Abuse Prevention Month and this year's theme is "Constructing Creative Solutions to a Community Problem."

To keep life from overwhelming Fort Benning families, the Army Community Service Army Family Advocacy Program offers these tips for parents.

10 steps to positive parenting

- Show love and affection.
- When necessary, take time to cool down.
- Compliment your child.
- Set basic rules and limits.
- Teach values.
- Introduce your child to books.
- Listen and talk to your child.
- Be the kind of person you want your child to be.
- Offer guidance.
- Call your ACS Family Advocacy Program.

10 steps to teach a child discipline

- Teach self-control by your example.
- Set routines for bedtime, meals and chores.
- Explain reasons for your rules.
- Let your child make rules.
- Let your child help decide consequences for broken rules.
- Try to understand your child's feelings.
- If your child breaks a rule, control your anger.
- If you lash out, apologize.
- Compliment your child often.
- Call your ACS Family Advocacy Program.

10 steps to cool down

- Take a deep breath. And another. Remember you are the adult.
- Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
- Press your lips together and count to ten. Or better yet, to twenty.
- Exercise to release tension.
- Phone a friend.
- If someone can watch your child, go outside and take a walk.
- Take a hot tub bath or splash cold water on your face.
- Turn on some music, maybe even sing along.
- Drink a glass of cold water.
- Call your ACS Family Advocacy Program Manager.

The Family Advocacy Program, established as a specialized prevention program Armywide to focus on child and spouse abuse. To meet their goals, the FAP sponsors the Parent Education Program, First Steps Program, Respite Child Care and the Safety Education Program at Fort Benning.

For additional information on child abuse and reporting abuse or any of the programs listed, call Rebecca Welch, Family Advocacy Program manager, at 545-3344 or 545-6969.

Safety carnival: One-day event focuses on personal protection information for children

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Whether it is work or play, safety is a concern for every activity in a person's life. So is the lesson the Community Life Mayors' Association is trying to drive home to Fort Benning children.

The Community Life Mayors' Association will conduct its fourth annual Mayors' Safety Carnival April 27 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the home of Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix.

Open to all Fort Benning children in grades kindergarten through eight, the purpose of the safety carnival is to provide information about safety concerns for children, according to Jennifer Morgan, community life officer.

"We hope to make children aware of safety hazards, both inside and outside the home," she said.

To meet that goal, individuals from various post units and agencies will provide displays and demonstrations. McGruff, the Crime Dog, and Blinky, the robot police car, will be present to provide entertainment while being an education tool. Military Police will also conduct their Ident-A-Kid fingerprinting program as well as a bicycle and rollerblading safety course for children. Other agencies providing displays and demonstrations will include the fire department, the American Red Cross, Georgia Power Company, Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control, Army Family Advocacy Program and 89th Ordnance Company (Explosive Ordnance Disposal).

According to Morgan, approximately 300 people attended the first carnival in 1992 and last year's crowd reached the 1,500 mark.

"We expect more than that this year," Morgan said.

To combat the long lines, volunteers from Child Development Services will provide free face painting to all children.

Fort Benning Parent-Teacher-Organizations will provide refreshments at a minimal charge. The PTOs will use the money raised to fund their school projects.

In case of inclement weather, the event will be postponed to a later date.

ON POST

Survivors of Incest Anonymous meetings set — Survivors of Incest Anonymous conducts weekly meetings each Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Burger King Parliament Room at 2033 Wynnton Road.

SIA is a 12-step recovery program for women 18 years and older who have been sexually abused by a family member or anyone else they, as children, were led to trust.

The program is open to the public and free of charge. For information, call Charlene at 571-9002.

Post to host retiree open house — Fort Benning will host its 14th annual Retiree Open House May 16 through 18.

During the three-day event, retirees can receive up-to-date information about their benefits and entitlements, as well as learn the latest Army operational developments.

Among activities in which retirees can participate are physical examinations at Martin Army Community Hospital, a tour of the Infantry Museum and a tour of the Dismounted Battlespace Battle Lab's Simulation Network Facility.

A barbeque dinner is also scheduled for May 17.

Registration for physicals must be received at the Retirement Services Office no later than May 3. Registration for all other activities must be submitted to the Retirement Services Office no later than May 10.

Individuals who wish to participate in the Retiree Open House may receive more information by calling 545-1813, 545-2541, or 545-5369.

ITB Spring Formal set — The Infantry Training Brigade will host its Spring Formal at 6 p.m. Saturday.

The event will be at the Columbus Convention & Trade Center (Iron Works).

Guest speaker will be Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix. Entertainment will be provided by Chaz from Atlanta.

Call 544-9590 for more information.

Town hall meeting set — The mayor of the Davis Hill/Bouton Heights community will host a town hall meeting for residents at 6:30 p.m. April 29.

The meeting will be at Stowers Elementary School cafeteria.

For more information, call 544-1195.

Fort Benning School Board to meet — The Fort Benning School Board will meet April 29 at 1 p.m. in the Fort Benning Schools Administrative Building, Conference Room 201, Building 2670. Copies of the agenda will be in the schools Thursday afternoon.

If you wish to attend this meeting please call 545-7276.

Orchids available— The American Red Cross has available cymbidium orchids for National Secretaries Week Monday through April 26. One hundred percent of the net proceeds from each orchid sold will go to support the programs and services of the local Red Cross.

For more information, call 545-5194.

Society to provide tuition assistance — The Fort Benning-Columbus chapter of the Society of American Military Engineers is accepting applications for a $1,000 scholarship.

The scholarship will be awarded to a student enrolled in or accepted into an approved two- or four-year curriculum leading to an engineering degree. Students' permanent home residence must be within a 50-mile radius of Fort Benning. Priority will go to high school seniors; however, currently enrolled college students will be considered.

Award of this scholarship will be based on past and present academic achievements, student activities, recommendations and financial need. In addition, interest in the science of military engineering, often evidenced by enrollment in a Reserve Officer Training Corps program, will be considered, although this is not a requirement.

Award of the scholarship will be recommended by a panel of judges in accordance with the by-laws of the Fort Benning-Columbus Post of the Society of American Military Engineers.

Applications must be postmarked no later than April 30. The award of the scholarship is anticipated by the end of June. To obtain an application, call John Mills at 568-2482 or Glenn Todd at 545-2117.

Scholarship applications accepted — The Fort Benning Management Association is offering business and management students a chance to compete for its yearly undergraduate and graduate scholarships.

All active duty or retired family members, or federal civil service employees and their family members residing within a 50-mile radius are eligible.

Applicants are required to write a letter to the association scholarship committee, formally requesting consideration. The letter must include highlights of the applicant's academic career and extracurricular activities. Applicants should also explain why they feel they should receive a scholarship.

Undergraduate applicants should also provide a high school transcript with a completed college application, three letters of recommendation, college transcripts and a statement of employment including name, address and applicant's job title.

However, instead of high school transcripts, graduate applicants should include a copy of their undergraduate degree and transcripts along with a completed college application fulfilling graduate requirements.

Submit applications to Building 4, Room 452, Fort Benning, Ga., Attention: Myrtle Chalkley. Applications must be submitted no later than July 26.

For more information, call 545-4539 or 545-4426.

Employment assistance — Army Community Service's Family Member Employment Assistance Program provides service to those seeking employment.

The first and third Wednesday of each month, local temporary agencies will be available at the Family Unit Network Center, Building 359, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

For more information, call Mark Mills, acting manager, FMEAP, at 545-6969 or 545-5516.

• The Family Fitness Center has a tanning bed and booth available for those who want to get started on that summer glow early.

Cost is $25 monthly for unlimited tanning; $20 for a punch ticket and $3 for a drop in visit.

• A wide variety of fitness classes are also available for everyone which include step and low-impact aerobics, martial arts and a personal trainer.

A new low-impact aerobics class is available on Saturdays from 4 to 5 p.m. along with regular classes Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5 to 6 p.m. A Saturday class is also available from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. These classes are in addition to the current schedule.

• Swedish, Russian and sports massages will be given by Frank Rodrigues, certified massage therapist, at the Officers' Club Fitness Center.

Cost for the half-hour sessions is $22 for members and $27 for non-members. For hour-long sessions, the price is $40 for members and $45 for nonmembers.

A personal trainer is available by appointment only. Cost is $35 per month for members and $45 per month for non-members.

Call 687-0871 for more information about any of the services provided.

OWC welfare requests — The Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club has funds available for charity for private, non-profit organizations. Requests for funds should be submitted and approved by the OWC board of directors and should include the following:

• Amount of money requested
• Total amount of money needed
• Specific purpose of money requested
• Fund-raising efforts
• Other organizations from which you are requesting funds
• Number of military affected
• Name and phone number of your point of contact.

For more information, contact Steffani Dyer, OWC welfare chairwoman at 685-1364.

Craft corner consignments — Anyone with a valid military identification card is eligible to consign craft items for sale at the Craft Corner located inside the Officers' Wives' Club Thrift Shop.

The Thrift Shop, Building 229, is located at the corner of Dixie and Ingersoll avenues. The shop is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday and on the first and third Saturday of each month.

Local flyers to host model air show

Columbus-Fort Benning Flyers Assn.

The Columbus-Fort Benning Radio Controlled Flyers Association will host its Spring Model Air Show April 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the club's radio control airport south of Fort Mitchell, Ala.

Radio control pilots from other clubs throughout Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee will participate in the air show and about 80 pilots will show their skills with a large variety of airplanes, helicopters, gliders and sky divers.

The models will range from small aircraft with 18-inch wingspans weighing less than 2 pounds to giant-scale airplanes with 12-foot wingspans. Air speeds will vary from 0 (featuring an airplane that operates as a helicopter and hovers in place) to more than 125 miles per hour. Pilots will perform acrobatic maneuvers throughout the day.

There is no admission charge for spectators; a concession stand will be open from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The club airport is located five miles south of the Fort Mitchell National Cemetery.

ask the judge

By Michael H. Lane
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q. I saw in the news that President Bill Clinton has signed into law a bill to provide tax breaks for soldiers that serve in the former Yugoslavia. My spouse was sent to Germany to support operations there and a friend's husband is in Bosnia now. What will the law mean for our taxes?

A. This law is significant for anyone serving in the Implementation Force as part of "Operation Joint Endeavor." Several parts of the tax law have been changed to allow members of the force to take advantage of tax rules and tax benefits previously available to soldiers serving in Desert Storm and in Vietnam.

Specifically, the law establishes a new category of assignment, called a "qualified hazardous duty area." Anyone who is assigned to this area and who receives hazardous duty pay, is eligible for tax benefits. The area of Bosnia, Herzegovina, Croatia and Macedonia has been designated as a qualified hazardous duty area, effective Nov. 21.

The major benefit available is the virtually unlimited military pay exclusion. Officers and enlisted personnel serving in the area will pay no taxes on their income in the designated area.

The law increases the previous $500 limit for officers to exclude an amount up to the highest enlisted pay grade, about $4,000 per month. Because of the effective date, corrected military W-2 forms for 1995 will be provided and should be available on or after April 30.

Soldiers in the designated area will be allowed a delay of 180 days or more to file and pay income taxes, as well. This may be a significant benefit for the 1995 tax year, if the soldier served in this area after Nov. 21.

This means that there are no penalties or interest on taxes due until at least six months from the date they left the area. This differs from the general rule, which may allow a delay in filing, but always requires payment by the due date.

Even those soldiers supporting the operation will qualify for limited benefits. If any soldier was deployed away from his permanent duty station, is serving overseas and is performing services as a part of Operation Joint Endeavor, he or she is eligible for a delay in filing and paying taxes. The soldier cannot exclude military pay.

Persons who may be able to take advantage of the law include anyone deployed to replace personnel from units sent to the former Yugoslavia.

profile in excellence

Name: Staff Sgt. Agapito Rodriguez, Jr.

Award or recognition: Drill Sergeant of the Quarter
MOS: 11B, Infantry
Unit: Company A, 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry Regiment.
Job title: Drill sergeant
Years on the job: 14 years

What were your reasons for joining the Army? Traditional — my father was in the infantry in the 1950s, and he inspired me to serve my country. My mother always displayed the flag on all holidays so the choice wasn't hard.

What person has most influenced your career?
Command Sgt. Maj. Percy Purdy was a true professional and a man to emulate.

If you were sergeant major of the Army for a day, what improvements would you make?
I would improve the quality of training for the enlisted soldiers and attempt to get them to attend more college. The enlisted soldier is rarely thanked or rewarded for his or her hard efforts. I would also like to better educate leaders so more would stay in.

What were your reasons for choosing your MOS?
I wanted a challenging job that people could respect and others that know me could be proud of. I also wanted to be a part of the heart of the defense for my country.

Describe a memorable moment in your career.
I think that the victory in the Gulf and my participation made me proud. Our country supported our efforts for a job well done.

What are your future career plans?
I plan to complete my career and retire, then I will complete my degree in business. I will then join the reserves and pursue my civilian career.

What others have to say: "Drill Sergeant Rodriguez gives 100 percent of his time, effort and ability to ensure that his soldiers receive the quality of training they deserve.

— 1st Sgt. Royce Jarman,
Company A, 1st Bn., 38th Inf. Regt.

"Drill Sergeant Rodriguez is a total professional and an outstanding role model for his peers as well as subordinates. He pours his heart and soul into training and transforming young undisciplined civilians into proud, disciplined Infantrymen in a few short weeks. Drill Sergeant Rodriguez will be at the forefront of the NCO Corps as we move into the 21st century.

— Lt. Col. Kevin Conners,
Battalion commander, 1st Bn., 38th Inf. Regt.

Operation Vigilant Warrior units eligible for award

By John Walston
Fort Stewart, Ga., Patriot

Units which participated in Operation Vigilant Warrior are being recognized for their soldiers' efforts.

Members of the 1st and 3rd Brigade Combat Teams and soldiers from the 24th Corps Support Group who were in Kuwait are now authorized to wear the Army Superior Unit Award. The award recognizes units for extraordinary performance in a non-combat situation.

Operation Vigilant Warrior was an emergency deployment to the country of Kuwait in October 1994 when Iraqi leader, Saddam Hussein, moved six army divisions within 40 miles of the Iraq, Kuwait border.

Victory Division soldiers took up defense of the country within hours of notification, forcing the Iraqi military to stop any further aggressive actions and pull their forward units back to their bases. The combat teams returned to Fort Stewart and Fort Benning in December of the same year.

"For an award like this to be given, it must be approved by a board at the Department of the Army level." said Fred Oliver, the assistant chief of awards at Forces Command, "and it must also meet certain criteria set forth in the Army Regulations."

The ribbon for the ASUA will be worn on the right side of the Class A jacket and for color bearing units, a streamer will be added to each unit's guidon.

Authorization for wear of the ASUA is already approved. Contact your unit personnel administrators for more information.

The units authorized to wear the ASUA are:

- 2nd Battalion, 7th Infantry
- 3rd Battalion, 69th Armor
- 1st Battalion, 41st Field Artillery
- 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry
- 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry
- 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor (minus C and D companies)
- 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery

24th Infantry Division reflagging ceremony scheduled for April 25

Army News Service

FORT STEWART, Ga. — The 24th Infantry Division, stationed at Fort Stewart since 1975, will reflag officially April 25 when the colors of the 3rd Infantry Division, the unit's new designation, will be unveiled in a massive reflag ceremony set for 9 a.m.

A number of units within the 24th Infantry Division will also undergo name changes and acquire new unit colors during the ceremony. This action was prompted by the military downsizing which has taken place in the Department of Defense since the end of the cold war. Downsizing, reduced the Army's list of active duty divisions to 10. The 3rd Inf. Div. was retained and the 24th Inf. Div. selected for reflagging.

Since its activation at Fort Stewart in 1975, the 24th Ind. Div., known as the "Victory Division," for its part in the liberation of the Philippines during World War II, steadily assumed a more prominent role in Army planning and worldwide power projection. It is the armored force of the XVIII Airborne Corps, the Army's contingency corps.

During the past 20 years it has deployed to the Middle East on many occasions, training in Egypt and in Turkey on military exercises. Its services at Fort Stewart were highlighted in 1990-91 by its combat role in Operation Desert Storm which pushed Iraqi forces out of Kuwait.

It has since made a number of highly publicized deployments to Southwest Asia on Operations Vigilant Warrior and Intrinsic Action. It also deployed an armored task force to Somalia, Africa, in 1993, and provided part of the initial U.S. task force sent to Haiti in 1994.

For the 3rd Inf. Div., the reflag ceremony marks the unit's return to the United States and to Georgia from Germany, where it has been stationed since 1958. Between World War II and the Korean War and again after its service in Korea, it was garrisoned at Fort Benning.

The division is known as the "Rock of the Marne," for its actions in France at the Battle of Chateau-Thierry on July 15, 1918. In World War II the 3rd Inf. Div. fought in North Sicily, Italy, France and Germany. It also saw action in the Korean War. Forty-nine members of the division have been awarded the Medal of Honor, including Audie Murphy, the most decorated soldier to emerge from World War II.

Churches cannot preserve world from moral decay without unity

reflections

By Alex C. Brown
13th Corps Support Battalion

Have you ever watched the performance of a pit crew during a stock car race like the Daytona 500? As the race car rolls into the pit, the crew frantically scrambles to change tires, add fuel, clear the windshield and refresh the driver. Their goal is to get back in the race and not lose position.

Maybe you have watched the Dallas Cowboys in one of their three Superbowl victories in the last four years. Taking possession of the ball on their own 5-yard line, an offensive team of 11 men systematically synchronized with the strength of a locomotive, the grace and balance of ice skaters and the keen focus of a sniper, begin to move that odd-shaped piece of leather down the field. It seems they ignore the presence of the other 11 men who want to stop their progress.

You may be more familiar with the crew of a M-1 Abrams, a Bradley Fighting Vehicle or a field kitchen. Individual crew members and cooks concentrating on their unique task of driving, loading, gunning, or cooking grits, eggs and sausage are focused on one mission, one target, one stomach. They harmoniously link individual tasks into a united effort to put ammunition down range and food in the mouths of tired and hungry soldiers.

The Bible describes the thread of unity that is common in each of these scenarios. "How good and pleasant it is when brothers live together in unity." (Psalm 133:1) The Psalmist describes what this unity among brothers is like. It is like the precious oil used in God's tabernacle to anoint the high priest. The high priest represented the people before God and led the people of God in worship. The oil poured on the head of the priest descends on his beard and onto his robe. (133:2) It spreads over his breastplate bearing the names of the tribes of Israel symbolizing the unity between brothers who dwell together united in the worship of God.

This unity among brothers is like the dew of Mount Hermon descending on the mountains of Zion. (133:3) This dew is refreshing and invigorating. It gives life to the forest and vineyards in the valley at the foot of the mountains. Unity among brothers is refreshing and invigorating, giving life to a parched land of disunity and fighting.

The good and pleasant experience of brothers living together in unity was demonstrated at the Promise Keepers Pastors' Conference in Atlanta February 13 to 15. Coach Bill McCartney arrived at the Georgia Dome with a conference team of Christian ministers committed to "fan into flame" reconciliation between races and Christian denominations. The Dome was filled with 42,000 pastors from all over the United States and other parts of the world.

Racial and denominational unity within the Christian church seems an impossible mission for man, but what is impossible for man is possible for God when God's people will obey. This mission is possible when Christian leaders of all races and denominations confess their sins; racism, pride, preferential treatment, favoritism, disobedience to the word of God, (the list is long) to one another and model the truth and power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to congregations they shepherd.

This mission is possible when Christians submit to the authority of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and then in obedience to him do the impossible (i.e. love even one's enemy) by the supernatural power of the Holy Spirit.

If we who are Christian leaders and congregations fail to forgive one another of our racial sins and those of our forefathers, our offensive line will not hold, our quarterback will be sacked, balls fumbled and passes intercepted.

If we, who believe in the name of Jesus Christ and thus are called the children of God (John 1:12), fail to dwell together in unity as his church, then there will be no light to shine in the dark world of sin. If we fail to unite under the lordship of Jesus Christ, we the church will no longer be the salt that preserves the world from moral decay.

Field manuals reflect Bible teachings

reflections

By Kevin Dougherty
2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

Field Manual 22-100, Military Leadership, challenges us to "be a role model." It explains that "whether you like it or not, you are on display at all times.

Your actions say much more than your words. Subordinates will watch you carefully and imitate your behavior. You must accept the obligation to be a worthy role model and you cannot ignore the effect your behavior has on others."

This military notion of setting the example has direct applications to our requirements as Christians. We must set a good Christian example in all that we do. Timothy 4:12 tells us to "...be an example to the believers in work, in conduct, in love, in spirit, in faith, in purity."

We all know that actions speak louder than words, or as FM 22-100 phrases it, "behavior is believable." FM 22-100 cautions us that "Saying all the right words and having all the right values and knowledge will have no meaning if not reinforced by your actions." Jesus relays the same caution about the scribes and Pharisees in Matthew 23:3 saying, "Therefore whatever they tell you to observe, that observe and do, but do not do according to their works, for they say, and do not do."

We find a much more positive example of leadership as a role model in Paul. In Philippians 4:9, Paul said, "The things which you learned, and received, and heard and saw in me, these do, and the God of peace will be with you." Likewise in 1 Corinthians 11:1, Paul said to "Imitate me, just as I also imitate Christ."

Paul understood the FM 25-100 principle that "Your soldiers will imitate your behavior. Your personal example affects your soldiers more than any amount of instruction or form of discipline. You are their role model." That is a big responsibility, but more importantly, it is a big opportunity.

People observe our actions everyday. Let's make it a point to give them something worthwhile to look at and use this opportunity to be a Christian witness by setting a good Christian example.

Local ex-prisoners of war carry on tradition, plan Fort Benning daisy distribution

American Ex-Prisoners of War

Four members of the Valley Chapter, American Ex-Prisoners of War, presented Fort Benning Chief of Staff Col. Gregory C. Camp with a daisy April 9 to commemorate the anniversary of the "Fall of Bataan" to the Japanese 54 years ago.

The ex-POWs presented the daisy to Camp to open their proposed daisy drive on the post. The former prisoners of war plan to offer their daisies to the Fort Benning public April 26 and 27.

Daisy distribution points will be set up at various points on the post to include the Main Mall, Mini Mall, the hospital and Burger King. Distribution points will also be established at the many shopping malls in Columbus.

Valley Chapter members establish their daisy drive each year in conjunction with the anniversary of the "Fall of Bataan" April 9. This date marked the origin of the POW organization, which was formed by two wives of prisoners of war taken by the Japanese on April 9, 1942.

The women, from Albuquerque, N.M., joined their efforts to comfort one another over their loss.

Brian Voller

Valley Chapter, American Ex-Prisoners of War member Rex Ellis presents Chief of Staff Col. Gregory C. Camp with a daisy. The group will distribute buddy poppies at various post locations April 26 and 27.

Other wives throughout the nation soon joined. They combined their efforts in sending food parcels, letters, cards and care packages of clothes and personal necessities to the prisoners. They called their organization "The BRO" for the Bataan Relief Organization. This was the forerunner of the present American Ex-Prisoners of War which was chartered by Congress in 1948.

The Valley Chapter of the American Ex-Prisoners of War is one of ten chapters in Georgia and of more than 200 chapters countrywide. There are 45 members in the local Columbus chapter, which includes veterans of World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War.

The organization has a goal and motto of "We help those who can not help themselves." From the contributions received during the daisy drive, the former POWs assist the needy and particularly veteran groups. The former POWs support veterans hospitals, Army Community Service, national cemeteries, Sara Spano Clothing Bank, Salvation Army, Valley Rescue and Red Cross.

In the past five years, the chapter has been instrumental in the construction of a prisoner of war memorial museum at the Andersonville National Historic Site by contributing $10,000. This is the largest contribution of any chapter within the country, and it has been made possible through the support of the military personnel at Fort Benning and the citizens of the Columbus area.

The daisy was selected as the official flower for the POW organization from an old love song titled "Daisies Won't Tell." The song is symbolic of the prisoners' of war oath not to tell their captors more than their name, rank, date of birth and serial number.

afap update

Martin Army Community Hospital

To continue providing the Fort Benning community with the best service possible, the following is a response to the Martin Army Community Hospital Army Family Action Plan issues published several weeks ago. This information provides up-to-date information on one of the issues that concerns the hospital's customers.

Issue: It takes active duty members too long to obtain prescriptions when they need to get back to duty.

Updated response: The pharmacy service waiting time seldom exceeds 35 to 40 minutes because of prescriptions for hospital patients being entered by their physicians via the Composite Health Care System. Soldiers in duty uniform, who need their CHCS-entered prescription immediately can request the physician to put a request in the comment field of the computer for a "rush." Once the computer prescription label is printed, this rush message will allow the prescription to be processed expeditiously and the patient's name to be called out at the dispensing window for pickup.

If an active duty person in duty uniform is being seen in a clinic that is not yet utilizing CHCS, they may come to the front of the turn-in line and present their prescription. In addition, active duty personnel in their duty uniform are given priority to pick up their prescriptions at the dispensing window. This service is only for the active duty soldier in duty uniform and not their dependents.

As one of its many community services, the Fort Benning Red Cross will offer various lifeguard certification courses throughout the coming months.

The following are the courses being offered.

• Lifeguard training — A Lifeguard Training course will be conducted from April 22 to May 13 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 5 to 9 p.m., and Saturday April 27, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The course is open to anyone 15 years and older. Other classes will be formed as needed later in the summer.

• Professional Rescuer CPR — Currently certified lifeguards need to recertify in cardiopulmonary resuscitation for the professional rescuer. A class has been scheduled for May 29 and 30 from 5 to 9 p.m. The Red Cross has new lifeguard training material. Current certifications are valid until their expiration dates, however retraining is highly encouraged.

• Lifeguard Training Instructor Course — The course for March has been postponed until late June. Persons interested need to be at least 17 years old and have the current Lifeguard revised 1994 certification. Precourse skills and a written test are required. There are 10 spaces available.

This class includes training as an instructor in lifeguard training, professional rescuer CPR and first aid.

• Head Lifeguard Course — Individuals must possess a nationally recognized lifeguard certification to register.

Scheduled for May 22 and 24 at the American Red Cross, the course will cost $15. Class time is from 5 until 8 p.m.

• Safety Instructor updates — Current water safety instructors must receive update training on newly released materials prior to Dec. 31. After this date, an individual's certification will expire. An update class is being scheduled.

• Water Safety Instructor Certification — Individuals who wish to become water safety instructor-certified need to be at least 17 years old and pass a skills test that includes swim strokes. Current rescue techniques and a written exam. The class is scheduled for the evenings of May 9, 11, 15, 17, 18 and 19.

Call the Red Cross at 545-5194 for entrance requirements and registration information.

PISTOL MATCH

Sport pistol shooters win at match

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

Sport pistol competitors braved unfriendly, rain-soaked conditions April 13 to test their shooting skills in the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's monthly competition at English Range.

Sixty-two competitors turned out for the shooting event designed to give shooters a warm-up for the upcoming Glock Sport Shooting Foundation's Old South Regional Classic IV.

Categories used for match competition were competitor class, standard (civilian) class, military (active duty) class and law enforcement class.

The course of fire for the match included three stages, standard position six tombstones at seven and 15 yards, standard position three tombstones at 25 yards and six tombstones and eight poppers from a new Glock review position.

Awards were given to first through third place winners in four major classes.

In addition, awards were given to the high female shooter, high new shooter and to first through third in a team category consisting of one male and one female shooter.

"Although we use a hybrid scoring method for the match, it (the match) at least allows the competitors to see what the course of fire looks like for the GSSF match," said rifle and pistol club assistant manager James Graham.

"The real benefit is for the competitors to see the shape of the target in their target sight," Graham said.

Graham said the match was essentially for competitors with stock guns and that modifications to the weapons, except those that did not substantially alter the gun, were not permitted in the tournament.

Graham said the rationale behind using stock guns was to allow equality among the competitors and not to give an unfair advantage to any competitor due to financial ability to upgrade their gun.

"Although we have both male and female new shooter categories, this is the first time a female shooter has taken the trophy for overall new shooter," Graham said.

The next tactical pistol match will be the Glock Sport Shooting Foundation's Old South Regional Classic IV May 4 and 5.

More than $5,000 in Glock pistol prizes and cash awards will be awarded during the match.

The entry fee is $25 for all divisions. For more information, call Jim Graham at 689-3371.

BOSS car races in derby

By John W. Peeler

In what resembled a pit-stop at a NASCAR race, 20 competitors from around the southeast, ranging in age from nine to sixteen, met atop an access road between Schomberg and Blackmon roads to compete in the All-American Soap Box Derby Spring Rally April 13 and Sunday.

Soap box derby racing became popular in the early 1930s with the cars being made from old wooden soap boxes. Cars today are classified in two divisions, Superstock and Stock.

Columbus Soap Box Derby Association member Steve Holt said the cars of today can reach speeds in the 40 to 45 mile per hour range and that some of the first-time contestants were amazed at the speed of the cars.

"The cars today come as kits and are mostly made out of fiberglass," said Holt. "The cars have really come a long way from the old soap boxes they used in the early days."

Holt's two sons compete in the meets and one of them races the "BOSS" car, which is sponsored by the Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers program.

"It's a great thing that BOSS is sponsoring the car," Holt said. "One of the hardest thing to get is manpower or someone to help with the events.

"We had about eight to ten soldiers helping with transporting the cars and getting cars on the ramp," Holt said.

The next race will be the annual All American Soap Box Derby Race June 15 and will determine who will represent the Columbus area August 10 at the World Wide Race in Akron, Ohio.

Holt said the World Wide Race will have cars entered from all over the world.

"The winners at the June 15 race will get a paid trip to the race in Akron," Holt said. "The Columbus representatives will go up to Akron and stay a week at the camp before they compete."

Holt said the June meet in Columbus would last two days with the Stock Division competing on June 15 and the Superstock Division on June 16.

Holt said more than 140 cars competed last year, making it the world's largest field of cars assembled in one regional event.

Holt also said he expects to have more participants in this year's race.

Winners of the rally were:

April 13th
Superstock Division:
First place, Jeffrey Valiant

SOA students receive training in life saving

Photos by Danielle Holliday

Sgt. Pablo Trujillo, Peru, leads his squad through a trench carrying a wounded soldier.

By Danielle Holliday
School of the Americas

Medical Assistance Course students at the School of the Americas challenged their endurance recently during the Litter Obstacle Course.

The one-kilometer Litter Obstacle Course tested the four-man squads as they carried a "wounded" soldier through the simulated battle environment. Maneuvering their "patient" over a high wall, low crawling under barbed wire and crossing a deep swamp were just some of the various obstacles they tackle as a part of the final training exercise.

The field training exercise is comparable to the U.S. Army Expert Field Medical Badge and the finale of their six weeks at SOA, said Sgt. 1st Class Alex Figueroa, SOA medical instructor.

The obstacles were only a small part of the students' training. Yet they combined many of the skills that they'd learned during the course. Before taking on the obstacles, the students had to evaluate the "patient's" injuries, treat his wounds and load him on a stretcher. Then using various carries, they took him through the course, without causing him further injury.

Medical Assistance Course students cross a narrow smoke filled passage during the School of the Americas' Litter Obstacle Course.

In the Medical Assistance Course, the students learn about the human anatomy, treating complicated injuries, fluid replacement, splinting and suturing.

"The students sometimes serve in remote areas far away from medical care," Figueroa said. "The training they receive here will help to sustain life, stabilize and evacuate the patient for more definitive treatments."

The course also provides units with civic action missions with training that consists of emergency child birth, preventative medicine, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, immunization programs and minor surgical procedures.

Besides benefitting units with civic action missions, the course also helps units whose mission is to stop narcotics operations.

"The majority of the students in this particular course are serving in units that are the first line of defense in the war on drugs," said Sgt. 1st Class Robert Saenz, SOA medical instructor.

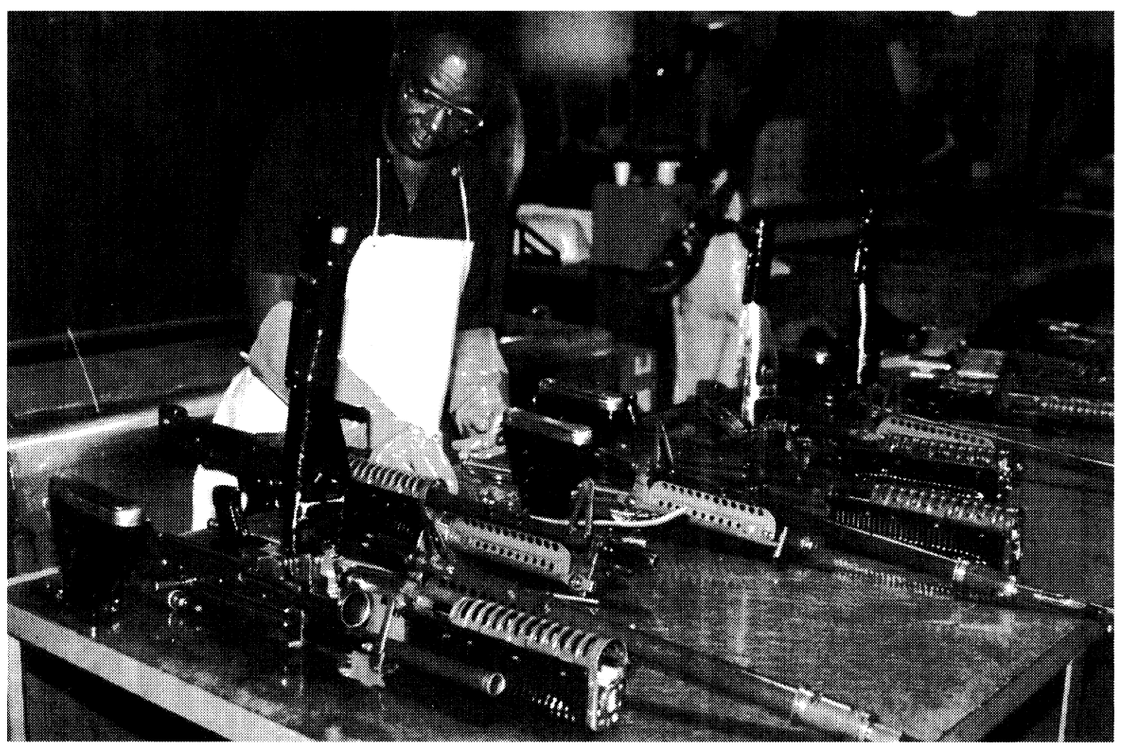
Saenz said injury and illness are common to counternarcotics operations and that medical evacuation is slow. With such a slow response time, that leaves the soldiers as the primary care providers for the sick and injured.

The students graduated from the Medical Assistance Course April 4.

Upon their return to their various countries, they will have gained valuable knowledge that should help provide better care to their fellow soldiers and communities, Figueroa said.

Weapons Pool specializes in quality

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer



As the Army continues to down size and more areas of the military are forced to do more with less, the need for more efficient ways to do things increases.

The Weapons Pool located on Kelley Hill is one of those areas that has tried to develop the most efficient means of serving their customers, the soldiers.

"We are the lone issuing and receiving facility for the training that takes place on this installation in the areas of small arms and radio communication equipment and accessories," said John Tyer, training and equipment support branch chief. "We are in essence a self-supporting facility for all of the small arms and radio communications — all under one roof, which is a very unique situation."

Tyer said the reason the consolidated equipment pool is unique is because it is one of a kind in the U.S. Army. He said there are other installations that have smaller versions of the weapons pool, but no where near the magnitude of the Weapons Pool on Fort Benning.

"The primary mission of the weapons pool is to lend support to the infantry school," said Ken Strumpler, maintenance division chief. "We give support to the Infantry Training Brigade, Officer Candidate School, the 29th Infantry Regiment, the Ranger Training Brigade, and all the other elements of the infantry school."

Brian R. Voller

J.R. Edwards, a small arms repairer, cleans 10 M-60 machine guns in the service section of the Weapons Pool.

"Bottom line: customer service is what we're all about," Tyer said. "There is not a civilian employee working here that doesn't understand that customer service is his purpose for being here. They know that they have to supply the soldiers with a safe, reliable weapon to train with."

Tyer said in the past there had been cases of weapons malfunctions but none of those incidents have ever been traced back to the Weapons Pool.

"This whole operation is an extremely high speed operation," Strumpler said. "The amount of training that goes on at Fort Benning and the amount of weapons that get issued and turned back in, forces this operation to be high speed.

"Also, the rate at which we take in weapons, service them, repair them and have them ready for reissue; that is a challenge in itself."

Tyer said the Weapons Pool processes more than 6,000 weapons per month, and has approximately $59 million worth of equipment under its roof. He said there have been times in the past were they have processed orders for more than 400 items at a time.

The weapons pool is open Monday through Friday from 5 a.m. until midnight, and Saturday from 6 a.m. until 11 p.m.

NG and reserve units called to active duty

Army News Service

FORT MCPHERSON, Ga. — U.S. Army Forces Command announced recently the following list of 29 U.S.-based Army Reserve and National Guard units identified to begin training in preparation for possible deployment to Bosnia in support of Operation Joint Endeavor. Not all units identified will actually deploy, but those that do replace Reserve Component units currently deployed. Units will conduct as much training as possible at their assigned armories or reserve centers or at nearby local training sites. Upon mobilization, units will report to an active military installation to complete training and processing for deployment.

RING parachute competition to be conducted

Army News Service

The 14th annual Rhode Island National Guard Parachute Competition will take place August 16-18 in Rhode Island.

This year's competition has a few changes. All jumpers must be certified by their commanders as having completed a minimum of 10 parachute jumps utilizing the MC1-1C static line parachute. All jumpmasters also must be current in the Ground Marker Release System. To be considered current, the jumpmaster must have used GMRS in the last six months.

As in past years, each team consists of 6 members, four jumpers, one alternate and one jumpmaster. All jumps will be from a UH-1H aircraft at an altitude of 1500 feet. All rules will be provided the night before the competition at the rules briefing.

The entry fee for the competition is $300 per team.

Public Notice
PURSUANT TO THE NATIONAL PRESERVATION ACT OF 1966 (AS AMENDED) ADVISORY COUNCIL ON HISTORIC PRESERVATION REGULATION 36 CER § 800.5 (e)(3) Proposed Demolition of Buildings 90 and 227
Fort Benning, GA

Fort Benning proposes to demolish Buildings 90 and 227, which are part of the Fort Benning Main Post Historic District nominated to the National Register of Historic Places. Building 90 is a movie theater and Building 227 is an enlisted soldiers club constructed in 1939 and 1932, respectively. A new "ten-plex" theater replacing Building 90 will be constructed in the near future. A new enlisted soldiers club replacing Building 227 has already been constructed. No future missions for building 90 and 227 are currently planned nor are missions for these structured anticipated. Government estimates for maintaining or preserving Buildings 90 and 227 in their present or past use is in excess of $1.6 and $1 million, respectively. Fort Benning does not consider it to be in the best interest of the public to continue to utilize scarce resources for the continued maintenance and uneconomical repair of structures for which there is no mission. Any questions or comments regarding this proposal can be referred to:
Commander, US Army Infantry Center

Movie complex to break ground

USAIC Public Affairs Office

A groundbreaking ceremony for a new 10-screen multiplex theater, the first such facility on an Army or Air Force installation, is scheduled for noon today at Gordon Field.

Breaking ground for the theater will be Maj. Gen. A.D. Bunger, commander, Army and Air Force Exchange Service; Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, commander of Fort Benning and Mike Patrick, president and chief executive officer of Carmike Theaters of Columbus.

AAFES awarded the contract recently to Military Services Incorporated, which entered into a management agreement with Carmike Cinemas of Columbus to build the $2.7 million theater. MSI will operate the multiplex theater for 20 years as an AAFES concessionaire.

Construction is scheduled to begin on the project May 7 with completion expected in December along with the grand opening. Seating capacity of the theater auditoriums will range from 106 to 262 seats. Total seating capacity will be 1,500. A concession stand will also be included.

Completion of the new facility will result in the closure of the old Main Post Theater and Theater No. 3 on Sand Hill.

"(The theater) will show first run motion pictures at the new Fort Benning theater, at the same time they are released on the circuit in Columbus area theaters," said Larry Phillips, director of media for the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

"AAFES and Fort Benning will not have to spend any funds," Phillips said. "Fort Benning will provide the land to build the theater and parking lot. After construction, the theater will become the property of Fort Benning."

Gordon Field is adjacent to the Fort Benning branch of Columbus Bank and Trust Company on Ingersoll Street.

Carmike Cinemas operates 2,500 motion picture screens across the country.

Maj. Gen. Joseph E. DeFrancisco ties a streamer on the colors during the Superior Unit Award ceremony.

3rd Brigade units receive awards for mission accomplishments

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

For their accomplishments during Operation Vigilant Warrior, units of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) were presented with the Army Superior Unit Award.

It is because these units deployed to Southwest Asia within 48 hours and performed their missions in an excellent manner that the honor was bestowed upon them, according to 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) Commanding General Maj. Gen. Joseph E. DeFrancisco.

"(Earning this award) is a very, very stringent process," he said. "It has very strict criteria.

"It is indeed indicative of only the very best units of our Army," he said.

During a ceremony at Essebagger Field April 18, DeFrancisco further acknowledged the difficulty of achieving this award.

"The Army awards (this) particular honor very, very infrequently," he said. "It is very hard to earn."

After praising the units earning the award, DeFrancisco tied a streamer bearing the words "Vigilant Warrior" to each unit's guidon. Soldiers stood proudly as he proceeded to the units' colors to attach this symbol of excellence.

> "The Army awards (this) particular honor very, very infrequently. It is very hard to earn."
> — Maj. Gen. Joseph E. DeFrancisco
> Commander, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized)

According to Sgt. Joseph B. Hart of 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), even soldiers who were not with these units during Operation Vigilant Warrior are honored and proud to be commended.

"I feel honored to be a part of unit that received the Army Superior Unit Award and I feel like it means more than just a ribbon," said Hart. "Even though I didn't participate in Operation Vigilante Warrior, I feel like I was part of it and I feel our current training has prepared us for future participation in a war situation," he said.

Included in the units of 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), honored at the ceremony are 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment; 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment; 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment and 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment.

Also receiving the Army Superior Unit Award were 317th Engineer Battalion; 324th Forward Support Battalion and Headquarters and Headquarters Company of 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized).

DeFrancisco said he was proud of these units' accomplishments.

"I have a great deal of pride in them," he said. "Even though they're far away, I look at them as if they were next door. I'm very proud of them."

Several of these units were also recognized for having no one absent without leave for one year and some were honored for having none of their soldiers receive a driving under-the-influence citation for one year. DeFrancisco believes both of these honors are highly commendable.

"Certainly, these two accomplishments, no DUI for a year and no AWOL in a year, are a sign of a superb unit," he said.

498th returns

498th Medical Company

The 498th Medical Company (Air Ambulance), 36th Engineer Group, deployed one Forward Support Medical Team, consisting of three UH-60A helicopters and twelve people to Fort Polk, La., from April 12 to Tuesday, in support of a joint special operations task force.

A company evacuation team also deployed in support of the task force.

"This exercise is outstanding training and will enhance the combat readiness of the 498th," Maj. Tracy O. Wyatt, commander of the 498th, said.

The 498th deployed from Lawson Army Airfield to Alexandria Airport, La.

The crews conducted the 395-mile deployment using night vision devices. The aircraft were equipped with medical evacuation supplies, including extended range fuel stores, rescue hoists, global positioning systems and personnel locator systems.

The air crews worked with various Joint Special Operations Forces conducting simulated and real world medical evacuation missions.

The 498th also conducted combat search and rescue and rescue missions in support of the Task Force.

"The 498th enjoyed the opportunity of training with the military's elite special operations units," Wyatt said.

"The 498th dustoff executed this mission and training in the manner which is our hallmark, professionally, proficiently and safely," 1st Lt. Brian Stinchfield, the Forward Support Team leader, said.

CPO director sends thanks

My sincere thanks to the wonderful, kind and thoughtful people of Fort Benning. If only I could find the words to convey my appreciation to each and every one of you.

I am convinced that your prayers and thoughts had everything to do with me getting through my surgery and my continued improvement. I truly appreciate all you did for me and my family.

God bless you and thank you from the bottom of my heart.

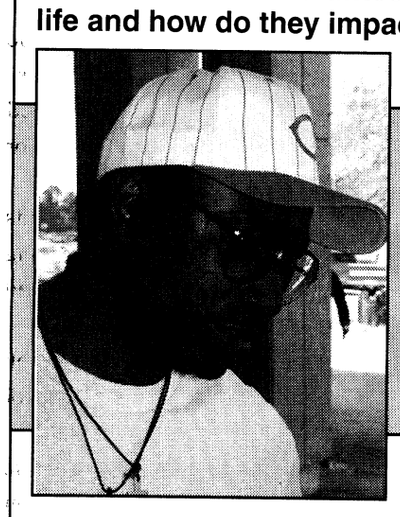
Closures bring changes in outprocessing procedures

Utility Coordination Center

Bell South Telecommunications will close its payment center at 13th Street and 13th Avenue on May 31. The payment of telephone bills at the CB&T bank on post by soldiers clearing the Utility Coordination Center will continue through May 24, not Tuesday as previously announced.

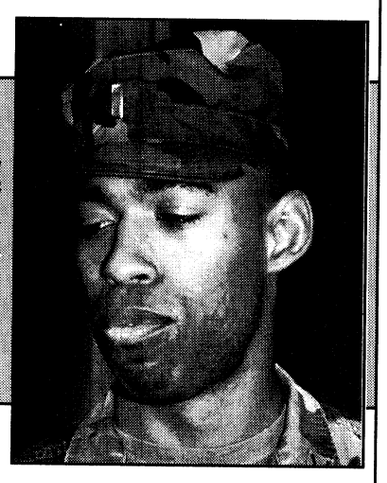
After May 24, any soldier clearing the installation who has a past due debt with the telephone company will need to pay that debt at one of Bell South's payment centers and bring the receipt when clearing the Utility Coordination Center.

Bills may be paid at the 13th and 13th location (near Red Lobster) in Columbus through May 30. Two other locations will be available beginning May 1: Big "B" Drugs, Phenix City, Ala., and All Services, 2457 Airport Thruway, Columbus.

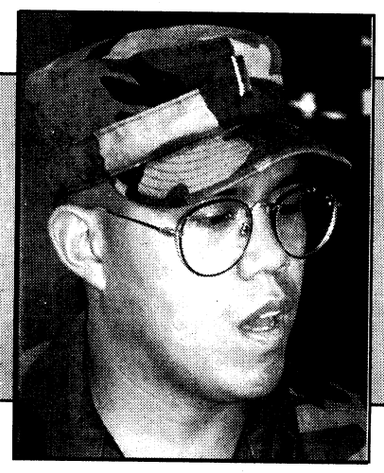


Bell South plans to open two other payment locations around the middle of May, locations to be announced. There will be a $.50 (fifty cents) charge at the Big "B" and All Services locations, which must be paid with correct change.

Any questions about the new changes may be directed to Staff Sgt. Willie Moss, noncommissioned officer in charge, Utility Coordination Center, Building 2633, at 545-5485.



VARIOUS VOICES



How much do volunteers affect your everyday life and how do they impact the work force?

Sgt. 1st Class Evondale Coburn, Company B, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "I think they are very helpful to the work force, but they don't impact my everyday life."

2nd Lt. Curtis Green, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — "They don't take jobs from civilians, but they do help out where people don't necessarily get jobs."

2nd Lt. Tomas Carona, Company C, 317th Engineer Battalion — "I think they impact the work force positively. They make up the difference now that we have a limited budget. They are an invaluable asset."

Col. Gerald Cross, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity — "We couldn't survive without volunteers. They help our patients. They help our staff; they're critical."

Martha Vargas, family member — "I volunteered in the schools. Volunteering saves money. People are willing to do a job out of their heart, not for money. They want to help."

Regina Szollosy, family member — "We volunteer on our off time. I like to do it. Volunteers add a lot to society."

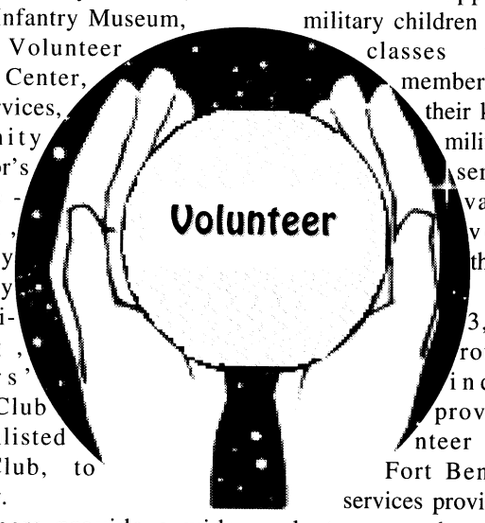
HELPING HANDS

Volunteers dedicate time, talent

By Michelle Aldridge
Volunteer Resource Center



This week Fort Benning observed National Volunteer Week. In celebration of this most appropriate anniversary, there was a Volunteer Recognition Reception Thursday from 4 to 6 p.m.

commentary

As hosts for this celebration, Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix and his wife, Cheri, took the opportunity to thank volunteers for their many contributions to Fort Benning.

The theme for this year's celebration was "Volunteer! You Gotta Have Heart!" This theme was certainly appropriate when you consider volunteers and their selfless generosity.

Volunteers provide services to many agencies, such as Army Community Services, American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, the National Infantry Museum, the Volunteer Resource Center, Youth Services, Community Life Mayor's Association, Army Family Team Building, Officers' Wives Club and Enlisted Wives Club, to name a few.

Volunteers provide a wide variety of services, from assembling welcome packets to mail through the world to soldiers preparing for permanent change of stations, providing information on community resources to spouses of deployed soldiers, providing guidance and assistance to first-time mothers, helping to make Christmas a happier day for military children and teaching classes to family members to increase their knowledge of military life. The services are as varied as the volunteers themselves.

More than 3,000 generous, selfless individuals provided volunteer services to Fort Benning. The services provided by these volunteers saved our community an estimated $2.6 million. Few agencies have escaped the personnel and budget cutbacks and as a result, many services we expect utilize volunteers to assist in the delivery of these services.

If you are looking for an opportunity to gain new and marketable skills, expand your horizons, meet new people, learn about community, increase your proficiency or simply get out of the house, consider volunteering. You determine the hours you are willing to work and many agencies will pay for childcare while you volunteer with their agencies.

If you are interested in volunteering and would like to know about volunteer positions, call the Volunteer Resource Center, 545-3016.

So, to each and every volunteer, the entire Fort Benning Community says, "Your actions and generous spirit are proof that you have taken to heart that famous quote, 'Ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country.' Thanks for all you do. Your contributions are greatly appreciated."

Volunteering

means giving of one's time

By Tom Fraley
Bayonet editorial assistant

Remember Lou Gehrig's farewell speech when he said he was the luckiest guy on the face of the earth?

Luck may have played some part in his success, but I am sure that the people who worked around Lou Gehrig would tell you that he was one of the hardest workers on the team. The great ones work on their skills constantly, that's how they make whatever they do look so easy.

commentary

Like Gehrig, I would be the first one to admit that I have been lucky in life, but I believe that most of my modest success has come about through plain old fashioned preparation and work. This included getting the education I needed to do a job and learning the skills to work with others.

Having recently retired from the military, I intended to take some extended time off, play golf and relax while my wife attended the School of the Americas. It wasn't too long before I found that I was losing my edge as far as dealing with people and I felt a lack of challenge. I disliked sitting on the sidelines of life. I had to get back in the game. It's true, if you rest, you rust.

Since we are going to be at Fort Benning for only a short time, I decided to try my hand at a job that I had no particular experience in to give myself a challenge. As I read The Bayonet one day, I saw a list of openings for volunteers, including an opening at The Bayonet. So here I am; I'm the one who writes the Escapades section.

I don't except to be another Bob Woodwater or Jimmy Breslin, but I have learned a new computer program and even learned a little about how a military newspaper is put together, plus it gives me an opportunity to be in a work environment with others.

Since then, I also started volunteering at the School of Americas Library. Both jobs provide opportunities to expand my horizons, to learn skills beyond what I originally volunteered for and to help me prepare for my eventual future entry into the civilian work force. In the hard-nosed, what-have-you-done-lately business world, it's important to stay current in your marketable skills.

I see volunteering as a way to help me prepare for the future, but that's not the only reason that I volunteer. The jobs I do are an opportunity to share my experiences with others and hopefully I can help them grow as well. It also fills the need in the organization to do more with less. Let's face it, the military is probably not going to expand in the next few years. Budget dollars will become more scarce, which will mean that services performed by Department of Defense personnel or contractors will have to be terminated, a cut back accomplished by volunteers.

So, if you want to help others in the age of downsizing, jump on one or more of the many opportunities to get back in the game and improve yourself and others by volunteering.

PROCLAMATION

The week of April 21 through 27 is designated National Volunteer Week. The Army will honor its volunteers for their vital contribution to the readiness of our soldiers and the quality of life on military installations during this week.

Fort Benning joined other organizations world-wide in recognizing volunteers April 25. Since the beginning of time, volunteers have contributed numerous services. Accordingly, our Armed Forces and service organizations have benefited from their support through many dedicated volunteer hours.

Here at Fort Benning, our volunteers serve many areas and capacities such as American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, GIrls Scouts, Army Family Team Building, the Officers' Wives Club Thrift Shop and the Enlisted Wives Club.

The theme of Fort Benning's celebration is "Volunteer! You Gotta Have Heart." This is certainly appropriate, as volunteers demonstrate compassion, concern and act as a partner to ensure mission accomplishment for our Command.

They set the tone for fostering improved morale and readiness through committed concern and assistance to soldiers and their families. In addition, they act as a cornerstone offering their valuable talents and skills for our Command.

Therefore, I proclaim the week of April 21 through 27 as Installation Volunteer Recognition and Appreciation Week. I urge all in the Fort Benning community to celebrate, recognize and honor all our volunteers for their contributions to the success of our mission, our soldiers, their families and the installation.

— Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix

Army goes high tech

Modern equipment will fight the Army's future battles, enemies

By Linda D. Kozaryn
American Forces Information Service

Modernizing the force is a top priority in DoD's fiscal 1997 budget, senior defense officials said recently.

Procurement funds will increase by about 40 percent over the next four years, officials said. The fiscal 1997 budget dedicates $38.9 billion to modernization and procurement.

Under this budget, DoD will continue developing leap-ahead weapon systems, speed up equipment upgrades and expand DoD's ability to move troops and equipment to world trouble spots. The request would also improve battlefield intelligence and reconnaissance, and strengthen missile defense programs.

From fiscal 1990 to this year, officials said, procurement funds dropped 60 percent and DoD reduced the armed forces by about onethird. The services phased out older equipment, resulting in a drop in the average age of equipment. With the drawdown nearly over, officials said, it's time to modernize the force.

The procurement budget includes $7.4 billion for leap-ahead systems like the F-22 advanced tactical fighter and $1.8 billion to upgrade current systems like the M-lA2 Abrams tank and Bradley fighting vehicle.

Defense officials are placing major emphasis on expanding the nation's power-projection capabilities. The fiscal 1997 budget includes $7.3 billion to improve airlift and sealift capability by developing and purchasing equipment like the C-17 Globemaster III, the B-2 Stealth bomber and fast sealift ships.

Officials will enhance battlefield awareness through funds to improve intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance capabilities. About $3.2 billion is budgeted toward this effort. This includes such technology as the Global Broadcast System, the E-8A Joint Surveillance and Target Attack Radar System, and unmanned aerial vehicles.

Operations in Bosnia, including the deployment of Predator unmanned aerial vehicles, have renewed emphasis on DoD's ability to provide real-time, accurate information in the field, an official said.

Strengthening theater missile defense programs is another modernization priority, DoD officials said. Theater commanders asked DoD to emphasize theater missile defense. About $2.8 billion is going to deploy defensive technology such as the Patriot III missile and to develop other systems such as Theater High-Altitude Area Defense. The administration also budgeted $2 billion for research on national missile defense through fiscal 2001.

The fiscal 1997 budget allocates $2 billion for the F-22, the Air Force's next-generation air superiority fighter, officials said. The F-22 will eventually replace the F-15 fighter and is designed to penetrate enemy airspace and achieve first-look, first-kill capability against multiple targets, they said. DoD plans to buy 40 for $11.1 billion during the next four years. The first F-22 squadron will be operational in 2004, officials said.

Nearly $600 million is allocated for the Joint Strike Fighter program to develop an affordable next-generation strike fighter for the Air Force, Marine Corps, Navy and U.S. allies. The fighter will replace the F-16, the AV-8B and F/A-18 and supplement the Navy's F/A-18E/F. Between fiscal 1998 and 2001, DoD projects $3.2 billion for the program.

DoD is buying 12 F/A-18E/F Hornet aircraft in fiscal 1997 for $2.6 billion. The Navy and Marine Corps will deploy the twinengine, multimission, tactical aircraft to fighter and attack squadrons. It will have enhanced range, payload and survivability features compared to earlier models of the aircraft. The Hornet E/F will replace the C/D model and partially replace the A-6E Intruder and the F-14A Tomcat.

The new Hornet will perform strike, interdiction, close air support, fighter escort and fleet air defense missions. During the next four years, DoD plans to buy 150 of the aircraft for $14.3 billion.

DoD is buying four V-22 Osprey aircraft for $1.1 billion in fiscal 1997. The tilt-rotor9 vertical take-off and landing aircraft will perform airborne assault, vertical lift, combat search and rescue and special operations missions. Between fiscal 1998 and 2001, DoD plans to buy 31 Ospreys for $3.9 billion.

Funds are allocated to accelerate upgrading 120 M-lA2 Abrams tanks at a cost of $300 million. Another $300 million will go to upgrade Bradleys. Apache Longbows, F-14 fighters, AV-8B Harriers and B-lB Lancer bombers will be upgraded at a cost of $120 million.

Improving airlift and sealift capabilities includes purchasing eight C-17 Globemasters in fiscal 1997, officials said. Between fiscal 1998 and 2001, DoD plans to buy another 52 C-17s at a cost of $12.9 billion.

About $3.4 billion will go to buy four DDG-51 Aegis destroyers. DoD plans to buy 11 Aegis destroyers between fiscal 1998 and 2001 at a cost of $11.8 billion. About $600 million is going to the B-2 Stealth bomber program in fiscal 1997; another $1.4 billion will go to the Stealth bomber program between fiscal 1998 and 2001.

Fiscal 1997 Defense budget at a glance

- $7.4 billion for leap-ahead systems like the F-22 advanced tactical fighter
- $1.8 billion to upgrade current systems like the M-1A2 Abrams tank and Bradley fighting vehicle
- $7.3 billion to improve intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance capabilities
- $2 billion for the F-22, the Air Force's next-generation air superiority fighter

Nurses Week : Post plans activities for Army nurses, community

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

Martin Army Community Hospital is ready to join the celebrations for National Nurses Week May 6 to 10.

This annual event is expected to spark excitement at the hospital, according to Maj. Kelly A. Wolgast, National Nurses Week Committee chairwoman.

"We are looking forward to having a really fun week," said Wolgast.

According to Col. Roslyn D. Booker, chief, Department of Nursing, celebrating and recognizing members of the nursing profession is vital.

"It is important to celebrate National Nurses' Week to recognize the talents and acknowledge the many outstanding contributions made by nurses worldwide," she said. "As clinicians, researchers, administrators and educators, nurses have been pivotal in defining the future of health care delivery.

"Many of the pioneering efforts and innovative changes would go unnoticed without an organized way of making them known," said Booker.

To kick off the week's festivities, the hospital's National Nurses Week Committee will sponsor a five-kilometer run or walk. It is scheduled for May 4 and anyone may participate. A $10 entry fee is required and each entrant will receive a T-shirt commemorating the race.

A staff ice cream social is slated for May 6. Wolgast said more than 415 people comprise the hospital's nursing staff.

"Registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, medics, nursing assistants and our clerical support personnel all contribute to the provision of nursing care at MACH," she said.

Several nurses will travel to local elementary schools May 7, where they will teach individual 2nd grade classrooms a little about the nursing profession. The nurses will also provide the students with coloring books featuring nursing themes.

A staff breakfast will take place May 8. Because it is difficult for some nurses to participate in several of the other events because of their work schedules, events have been scheduled to include all three nursing shifts, Wolgast said.

A reception is planned for May 10 when a guest speaker will appear and awards will be presented for nursing excellence.

"These awards will be given to people from each of the major hospital sections as chosen by their superiors," said Wolgast. "There will also be one overall honoree."

Throughout the week, a display emphasizing this year's National Nurses' Week theme, "Celebrate Our Past, Envision Our Future," will be placed at the hospital. Booker believes this is an appropriate theme.

"National Nurses Week also gives us an opportunity to reflect on our past in order to remain focused on a future dedicated to health maintenance and prevention," she said.

Included in the display will be artwork about "what nurses do" provided by the elementary school students the nurses will speak to. Nursing memorabilia contributed by the staff will also make up the display.

Nurses Week T-shirts will be sold for $10 the entire week. Wolgast said all monies earned from these sales and the 5-k run or walk will go to good cause.

"All of our funding proceeds this year, after expenses, are going to the Fort Benning American Red Cross," she said.

Wolgast believes Nurses' Week provides a positive atmosphere for staff members.

"It is good for the camaraderie of nurses," she said. It's important that we all come together to say 'thank you and we appreciate what you do here and around the world.'"

For further information, contact Maj. Kelly Wolgast at 544-3297.

Computer network expanding with information for everyone

By Ron Allen
USAIC Public Affairs Office

The World Wide Web can help you chart, advance and keep track of your Army career. That maybe a bold statement, but visit the sites listed below and you will see.

There are literally tens of thousands of home pages on the web, many of a military nature. The Army alone has hundreds of home pages. The list below is only a small sampling, but it will give you a good idea of what is out there.

• http://www.benning.army.mil/ — Fort Benning, Ga., and the Home of the Infantry home page. This site contains information about infantry training, the Ranger Training Brigade, infantry doctrine development, Infantry Force XXI, Dismounted Battlespace Battle Lab and Martin Army Community Hospital. It has all the information you could ever need about Fort Benning — maps, geographical information, the command group, telephone directory, organizational chart, units, missions and much more. There are even links to many other Army home pages.

• http://www-tradoc.army.mil/ — If you want information about Fort Benning's major army command, here is the site for you — the Training and Doctrine Command's home page. TRADOC's unique history is documented as well as its mission, vision and strategic plan. The site also contains information about all of TRADOC's deputy chiefs of staff. One of the more interesting features of this page is the link to other TRADOC installations with information about that post and its activities.

• http//www-perscom.army.mil/ — Trying to keep track of what is happening in the area of promotions and selection boards has always been mind boggling. Now it's not so difficult. The U.S. Army Personnel Command Online Resources home page has put all the information you need right at your fingertips on this site. But that is not all. PERSCOM Commander's Notes, weekly hot topics and an alphabetical listing of every personnel subject imaginable can be found here. It begins with Accessioning Reserve Component soldiers into the Regular Army to evaluation appeals, Infantryman's Guide to His Stripes, officer early retirement program, re-enlistment options for soldiers in overstrength skills and ends with warrant officer news. If you are trying to keep your career on track, this site is a must.

• http//www.cec.army.mil/ — This site has a wealth of information concerning computers as they relate to military use. The U.S. Army Information Systems Engineering Command at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., is tasked with Army information systems (computers) engineering. One of the most informative features of this site is the Technology Integration Center updates. These updates contain evaluations and assessments of a wide variety of information systems. There is an evaluation report of six Pentium/100mhz personal computers, and a feasibility study on upgrading the Army to Windows 95. This is a must site for all Army computer gurus.

• http//www1.whitehouse.gov/ — When all else fails, go straight to the top — The President of the United States home page. The commander in chief has his own site. There is information about the president and the vice president, their accomplishments, their families and even how to send them e-mail. Look into the history of the White House and take a tour. Check out the interactive citizens' handbook. Go to the virtual library and search through White House documents, listen to speeches and view photos. Get the latest news releases, government statistics and other hot topics. If you cannot find it, visit the White House help desk. Even the kids can get something from this site with White House for Kids. This is just basically a fun and educational site. Enjoy.

• http//espnet.sportszone.com/ — One last site, just for fun. The ESPNET Sports Zone is a must-visit for all sports fans. Name your sport, it is covered here. You can even chat, live online, with some of the biggest names in sports. If it is sports news it is here. You can listen to live audio, get in on the fantasy teams, and get all the most popular columnists articles. You can check out the history of your favorite team, get all their statistics and player information. No, this isn't a military site, but for all you sports fans or computer geeks, it will become one of your favorites.

Speed limit is 15 in the mornings

USAIC Public Affairs Office

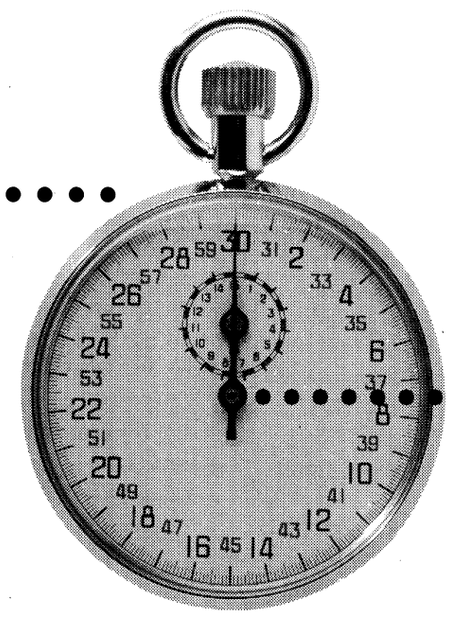
The speed limit is 15 mph on Main Post during the established physical training hours (6 to 7:30 a.m.) Monday through Friday.

The speed limit when passing individual runners or formations is 10 mph. Both have priority on post during the stated hours, according to a post policy. The following roads are exempt from the speed limits because all running is banned on those roads.

- 10th Division Road
- Dixie Road, except the portion from Sightseeing Road (Sandy Patch) to Lawson Army Airfield
- Sunshine Road
- Lumpkin Road from Dixie Road to Custer Road
- Custer Road from Benning Road to Eisenhower Exchange

Also, the 82nd Airborne Division Road from Sunshine Road to Bradshaw Road will be closed to traffic from 6 to 7:30 a.m. Monday through Friday for use by formations and individual runners. Kelly Hill is completely closed to traffic during this time.

The speed limit is 15 mph on Sand Hill Monday through Saturday from 5:30 to 7 a.m.



Also, 11th Airborne Division Road on Sand Hill is permanently closed.

AUSA sponsors 3rd annual Job Fair

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

The third annual Job Fair, sponsored by the Chattahoochee Valley, Fort Benning Chapter Association of the U.S. Army, will bring approximately 70 employers to post May 16, according to Bruce C. Tait, chairman AUSA Job Fair.

"We are anticipating 70 or more businesses to participate this year," he said. "Local, state and national businesses will be on site."

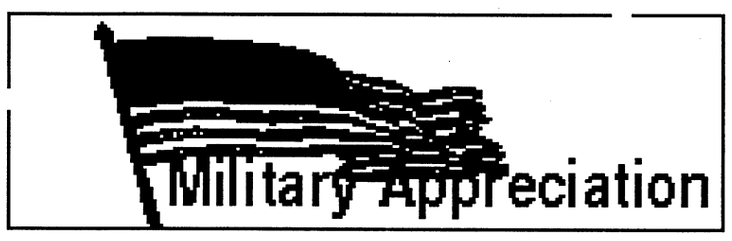
Some of the local businesses expected to participate include Synovus, Total Systems, Cott Beverages, Century 21 North Properties and W. C. Bradley, according to Tait.

Representatives from the FBI and Secret Service are also slated to be at the Job Fair, along with David Poythress, labor commissioner for the state of Georgia.

Mark C. Mills, acting manager of the Family Member Employment Assistance Program, urges attendees to arrive at the Job Fair prepared.

"We recommend that everyone have résumés done with numerous copies ready," he said. "Last year, our recommendation was 20 copies, but most people discovered that amount was not adequate. I would suggest having 40 to 50 copies prepared for the event."

AUSA sponsors the Job Fair for several purposes, according to Tait, but mainly to aid the soldiers preparing to separate from the military.



"It's an opportunity for AUSA to show its appreciation (for soldiers) exiting the Army," he said.

Army Community Service, the Army Career Alumni Program and the Georgia Department of Labor are helping AUSA with the event's organization. Invited to the event are all active duty and retired military employees, Department of Defense civilian employees and the family members of both. Tait is expecting a large number of attendees.

"Last year, we had roughly 1,100 attendees," he said. "This year, we're hoping for an attendance between 1,100 and 1,500."

The Job Fair will be May 16 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at he Main NCO Club, Building 2784.

For information, contact Bruce Tait, AUSA, at 649-7423; Mark Mills, FMEAP, at 545-6969; or Mary Allen, ACAP, at 545-7020.

Riverwalk relay to kick off Military Appreciation Week

By Lori Egan
Bayonet staff writer

The River Walk Relay kicks off Military Appreciation Week May 13 and the week culminates with Armed Forces Day May 18.

Military Appreciation Week is sponsored by the civilian communities in conjunction with Armed Forces Day.

It is also being hosted by the Association of the U.S. Army to foster goodwill between the military and the local community.

Military Appreciation Week activities will include unit competitions, military demonstrations and equipment displays, a business fair, an open house, selection of Mr. and Mrs. AUSA, a picnic, and the ever-popular "Burn the General" run.

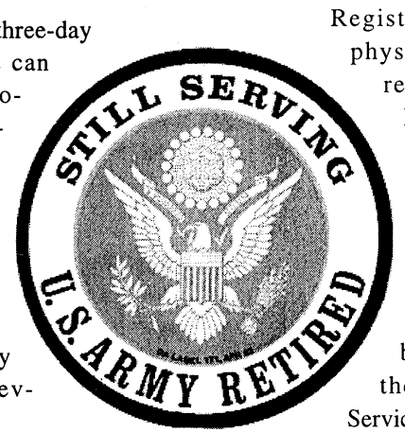
The idea behind Military Appreciation Week is to enhance morale, to demonstrate the Army's preparedness and to share the spirit of cooperation between Fort Benning and the local communities.

The week begins with a River Walk Relay which begins at 7 a.m. This is the first time for this course. The course begins at the National Infantry Museum and follows the Riverwalk Trail to Uptown Columbus.

The festivities will conclude on Armed Forces Day.

Awards will be presented to the winners of all the sporting competitions conducted throughout the week of May 18, Armed Forces Day.

Armed Forces Day will feature a demonstration by sky divers, the awards ceremonies, entertainment and midway booths.



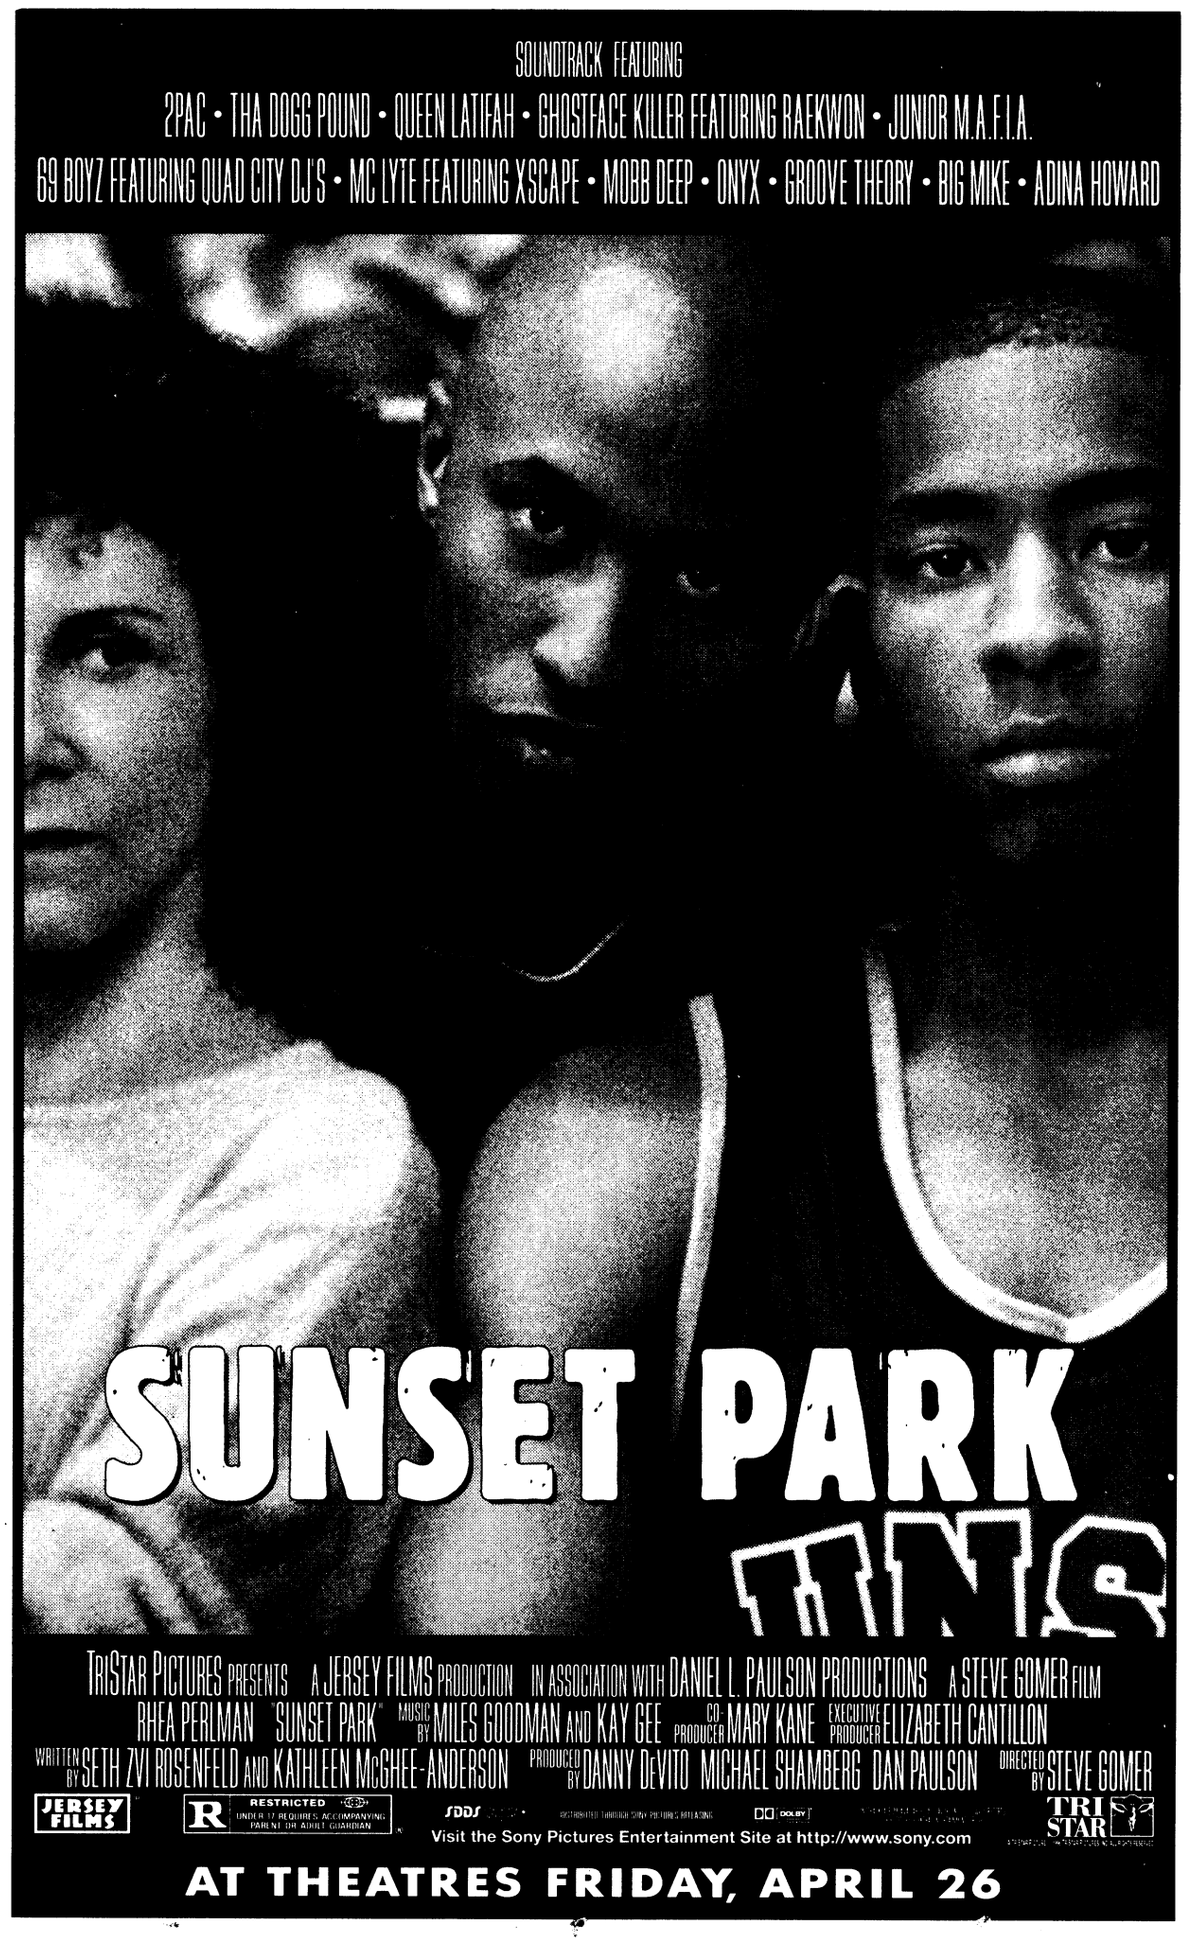
The award ceremony will be at 11, with the carnival and picnic activities beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Retirees to gather during open house

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning will host its 14th annual Retiree Open House May 16 through 18.

During the three-day event, retirees can receive up-to-date information about their benefits and entitlements as well as learn the latest Army operational developments.



Among activities in which retirees can participate are: physical examinations at Martin Army Community Hospital, a tour of the Infantry Museum and a tour of the Dismounted Battlespace Battle Lab's Simulation Network Facility.

A barbeque dinner is also scheduled for May 17.

Registration for physicals must be received at the Retirement Services Office no later than May 3. Registration for all other activities must be submitted to the Retirement Services Office no later than May 10.

Individuals who wish to participate in the Retiree Open House may receive more information by calling 545-1813, 545-2541, or 545-5369.

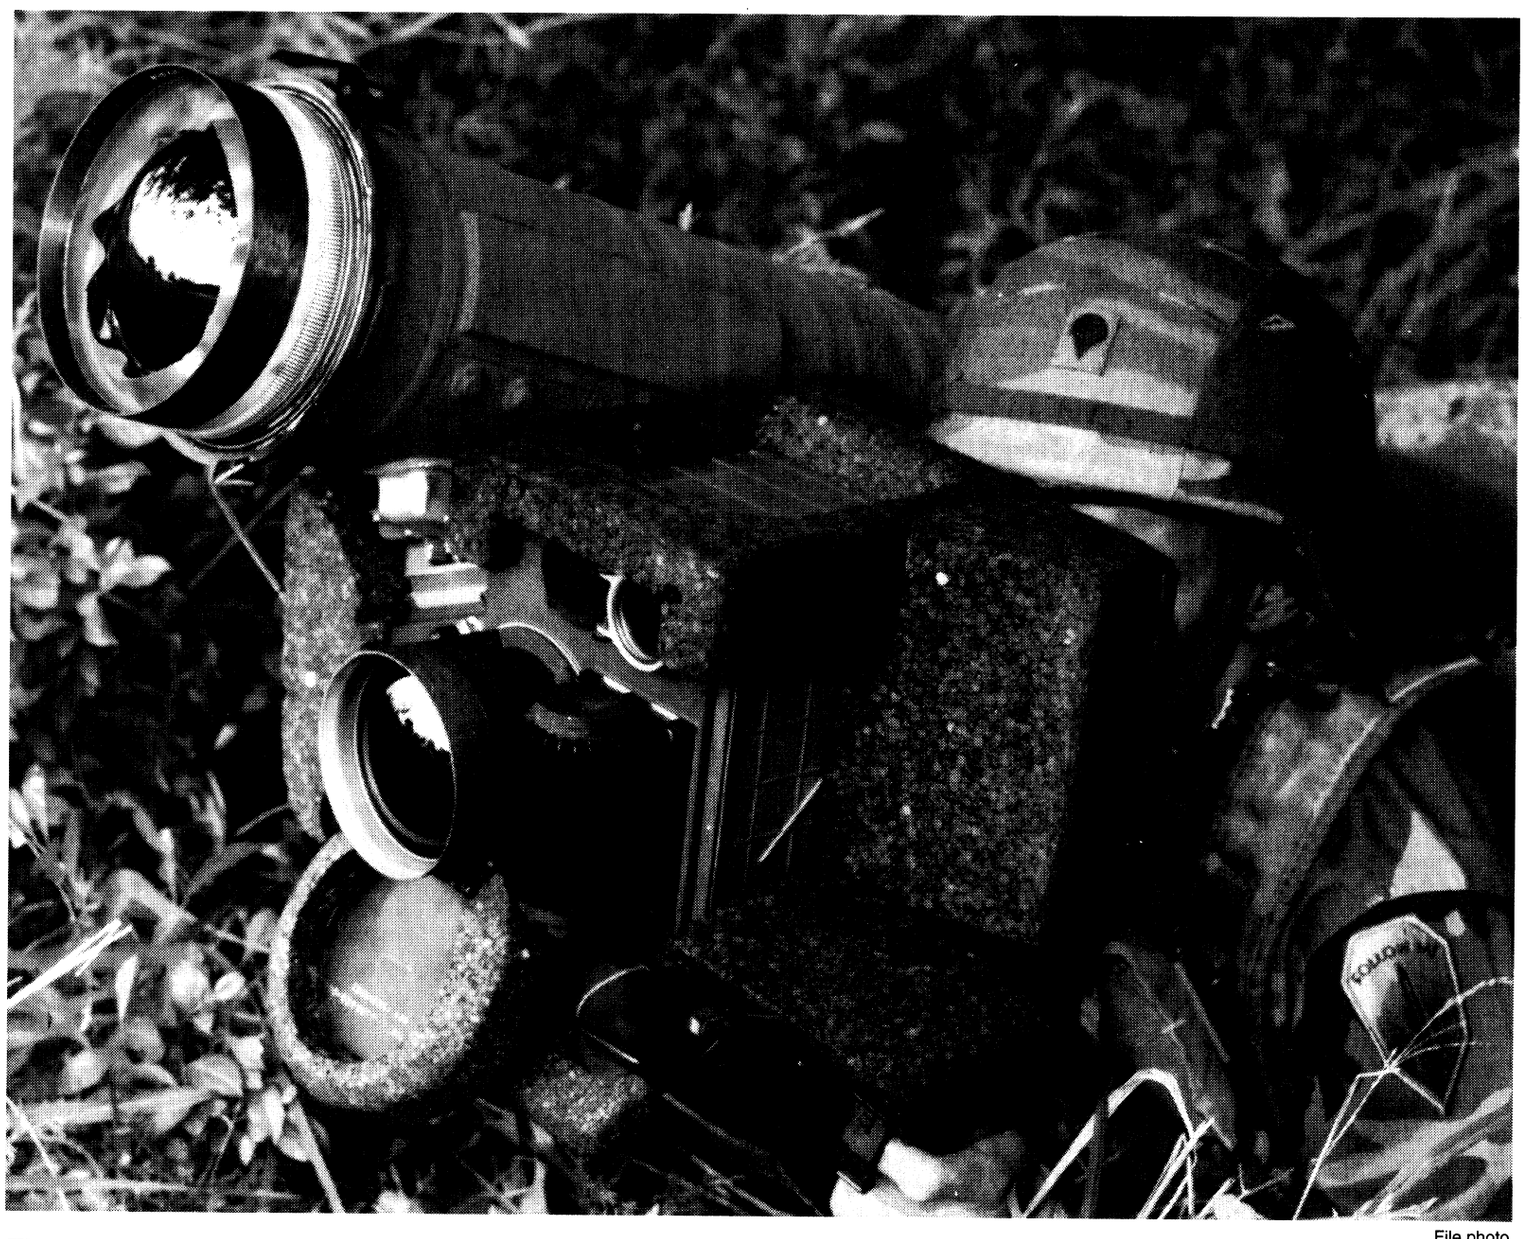
ANTITANK MISSILE

Javelin system to be demonstrated

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

As the soldier moves into position, he sights the enemy tank on the horizon with his command launch unit. As the tank moves across the battlefield, the soldier places the cursor over the target and locks the missile onto the tank. As the missile is launched and sent screaming toward the target, the soldier disengages the unit and moves to a position of safety. Before the enemy even knows what hit him, the missile has struck the weakest point on his armor destroying his tank.



This is the Javelin Antitank Weapons System, which will be put into action when it is fired for attendees of the Infantry Commanders Conference on Red Cloud Range May 8 between 2 and 3 p.m.

"This is not the first time the Javelin has been fired," said Sanford Parr, deputy Training and Doctrine system manager for antitank missiles. "We fired another one May 10, 1994, at Red Cloud Range in front of the Commanders Conference.

"Because the Army leadership is here for the commanders conference, we will have 56 general officers here, we felt it was necessary to show them the results of this different kind of technology," he said. "We want to show them that it is a reality and we want them to get an understanding of how this weapon system can be used operationally. It is different than any other weapons system fired by the soldiers in the past."

Parr said the weapon system is different than other weapon system because of its "fire and forget capabilities."

"Unlike conventional wire guided or laser beam-rider missiles, the Javelin automatically guides itself to the target," Parr said. "This allows the soldier or the Marine to fire the weapon and then immediately move to another spot a safe distance away from the initial firing position."

File photo

The new Javelin Antitank Weapon System works is a fire-and-forget weapon that allows a soldier to fire the missile and then move to a safe position of cover.

The Javelin works on an arched, top-attack flight profile, Parr said. The Javelin climbs above its target and then strikes the armored vehicle where the armor is the weakest.

"The Javelin defeats all armor types," Parr said. "It is the future. It is soldier-fired antitank missile; it is a fire and forget, soft-launch weapon. It also increases soldier survivability over the dragon by 100 percent, and it increases the effective firing range of the dragon twofold from 1,000 meters to 2,000 meters plus."

The Javelin can also be fired from almost anywhere and from any position, Parr said.

"The Javelin can be fired from almost any position and from almost anywhere including indoors," Parr said. "Because it operates on a soft-launch design, it can be fired from buildings or covered fighting positions, which in the past was not possible because of the back blast of antitank systems. It can also be fired from a standing, sitting, kneeling or prone firing position."

The first unit equipped with the Javelin will be the 75th Ranger Regiment on Fort Benning sometime in June, Parr said. It is set to begin full rate production in May 1997.

Army Law School accepting applications

Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Applications are now being accepted for the Army's Funded Legal Education Program.

Under this program, up to 15 Army officers may be selected to attend law school at government expense while on active duty. Because of possible funding limitations, participation will be contingent on available funding.

This program is open only to active duty commissioned officers who have at least two, but not more than six, years of active duty at the time legal training commences.

Last year, more than 300 qualified officers were considered for the 16 available FLEP positions. The average grade point average for last year's selectees was 3.57 (on a 4.0 scale), and the average Law School Admission Test score was 161.

The original application must be sent through the applicant's chain of command and be received by the officer's branch manager at Personnel Command no later than Nov. 1. A copy must also be furnished to Personnel Plans and Training, The Judge Advocate General, 2200 Army Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20310-2200 no later than Nov. 1.

Interested individuals seeking information about the FLEP program should call Capt. George R. Smawley, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, at 545-7842 or 2286.

3/24 deploys to NTC

By Jude Lovell
3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division

Almost 4,600 Soldiers of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), deployed this week to meet the challenge of the National Training Center Rotation 908 at Fort Irwin, Calif.

While they are at the NTC, the 3rd Brigade Combat Team will train on tasks that support brigade and division level tactical missions. The NTC provides an opportunity for units and soldiers to train on these tasks in near-combat conditions.

Furthermore, brigade soldiers will gain experience as they train for the upcoming mission of becoming the Division Ready Brigade later this summer. All three of the division's priorities-rapid deployment, fighting and winning and taking care of soldiers and families will be exercised during this critical NTC rotation.

First, the "Sledgehammer" Brigade, as the 3rd Brigade is known, will exercise its ability to deploy, draw propositioned equipment and assemble the force. This will occur during the period the National Training Center has dubbed reception, staging, onward movement and integration.

Rotating units must prioritize their draw so that they can quickly configure unit sets and be able to conduct operations almost immediately after arriving in theater. This training is preparation for DRB requirements and develops proficiency in the division's mission essential task of deploying and assembling the force.

Upon completing these tasks, the Sledgehammer Brigade will train to fight and win. The opposing force at the NTC, called the Krasnovians, are trained and familiar with the terrain of their "home country."

The Sledgehammer Brigade will deploy to "the box" and face the Krasnovians in multiple force-on-force exercises. These missions will allow the brigade to train on almost all of the 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) combat operations battle tasks. They will conduct movements to contact, hasty attacks deliberate attacks, hasty defenses and a deliberate defense. These force-on-force confrontations will test all aspects of the soldiers' war fighting abilities.

The soldiers will have the opportunity to train on battle tasks by conducting brigade-level, live-fire exercises. These exercises are a means for coordinating the battle operating systems, demonstrating the power and lethality of massed fires and building the confidence of the BCT.

Finally, going to the NTC is an opportunity for leaders to practice taking care of soldiers and families during deployments.

Each unit has conducted soldier readiness checks to ensure that soldiers are ready to deploy, that their finances and other important family issues are resolved and properly planned.

For example, at a soldier readiness check site, legal services are available so a deploying soldier can prepare a power of attorney authorizing a spouse or a family member to conduct specific legal activities in his or her absence.

In addition, deploying units conduct family member briefs. These briefs give soldiers and families first-hand information about the deployment and about how to find help with problems and while the soldier is away.

Deploying to a location like the NTC affords each unit an opportunity to ensure that all family support measures are in place and operating smoothly.

Best Ranger scheduled for May 3

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

The 14th annual David E. Grange Best Ranger Competition is scheduled for May 5 and 6 and is being hosted by the Ranger Training Brigade.

"The concept was developed in 1981 inside the ranger department," said Col. Galen B. Jackman, commander of the Ranger Training Brigade. "They felt they would like to develop a competition from inside the ranger department to determine, out of all the ranger camps who the best ranger instructors were.

"In 1982 they held the first ranger competition, and that was when it was named the David E. Grange Best Ranger Competition."

Jackman said in 1983 the competition was expanded to include the first and second battalions of the ranger regiment, and then in 1985 it was expanded to include the light divisions within the Army.

Finally, in 1987 the Best Ranger Competition expanded once more to include units from all over the Army and potentially across the armed services.

This year's competition is going to be different from past Best Ranger Competitions, Jackman said the competitors will not know the events they will be competing in until the day of the competition.

"This year the competition is going to be considerably different than the competitions in the past," Jackman said. "One of the hallmarks of this year's competition is the fact that we will not publish any of the events until the competitors actually reach that event. In other words, all the events are going to be a complete surprise to the competitors.

"There are going to be events that have been included in the competitions in the past, but there will be a significant number of events that are new to the competition."

Jackman said over the course of the 14 years the Best Ranger Competition has become a significant event in the Army.

Last year, the top two teams in the competition came from the 25th Infantry Division, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Capt. Michael Trisler and Staff Sgt. Eric White, won the competition and 1st Lt. Doug McCormick and Staff Sgt. David Howell placed second. This was the second year in row that teams from outside of the ranger community won the competition.

"I think that it's great that we've had rangers from outside the Ranger Regiment and the Ranger Training Brigade who have won the competition," Jackman said. "It says a lot for the ranger community across the Army that we have the fine rangers we do out there in those divisions from the 82nd Airborne or the 25th who won the competition the past two years.

"It demonstrates to the rest of the Army that we have a competition that people outside the ranger community across the Army or across the military who can come here and win this competition."

Jackman said the public is invited and encouraged to come out and watch the Best Ranger Competition. He said there will also be other activities being conducted in conjunction with the competition such as a Ranger Social, a super supper and an awards ceremony that will be hosted by Army Chief of Staff Gen. Dennis J. Reimer.

Equipment improves survivability

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Soldiers could benefit from new equipment that's being developed thanks to the input of soldiers, major Army commands, and Army staff agencies.

The System Manager Soldier Office seeks common-sense solutions to enhance soldiers' lethality, mobility and survivability. The office's Soldier Enhancement Program accelerates the acquisition of lighter, more lethal weapons and improved "soldier-items of equipment."

Last August, the Training and Doctrine Command-sponsored organization sought SEP proposals from the field for fiscal 1997. TSM-Soldier received 155 separate submissions. Items submitted consisting of items worn, carried or consumed by soldiers in the tactical environment.

Proposals that had the potential for solving a battlefield deficiency or need were briefed at the annual SEP review in March.

Some SEP products include:

— a pistol shoulder holster;

— alternate-wear hot weather boots;

— extreme cold weather boots;

— canteen cup cooler;

— PT uniform with state-of-the-art materials;

— better binoculars;

— lighter chemical protective overgarment.

The SEP program attempts to make the soldier more effective or efficient on the battlefield.

Soldiers train on new mine sweeping robot

By Christian Steiner
Army News Service

Spc. Juan Carrasco, Company A, 16th Engineer Battalion, of Bamberg, Germany, is one of the few Army experts on the miniflail, a robotic antipersonnel mine-clearing vehicle, operated solely by remote control.

There are only two miniflails in the world, and Co. A has both.

Carrasco was chosen to train on the miniflail based upon his performance and interest in robotics, said Capt. Frederic Drummond, his company commander.

"This (miniflail) is brand new to the Army," Drummond said. "It's used on low-intensity conflicts and for roads, shoulders and trails. We've worked on it for five months in Germany. It is the first unmanned vehicle issued to soldiers in a war-like situation," he said.

The 16th Engineer Battalion is one of the Army's testing grounds for robotics and other developmental equipment, according to Drummond.

"We are a unique company," he said.

Volunteers awarded with Commander's Pot of Gold

The Commander's Pot of Gold Award was presented to 20 volunteers for the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), April 18 by 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Commanding General Maj. Gen. Joseph E. DeFrancisco.

All of these volunteers were awarded for their work with the brigade's Family Support Groups and most of them actively volunteer in other areas, also, according to DeFrancisco.

"This gives (my wife and me) an opportunity to recognize some of the volunteers that do so much for the brigade," he said. "For the quality of life you provide for soldiers and families, we all owe you a debt of gratitude."

Soldiers filled the ballroom of the Kelly Hill Recreation Center to honor their spouses and friends who have supported the military and its families through volunteering.

"I'd like to emphasize how vitally important (volunteers) are to the missions of our soldiers," said DeFrancisco. "To me, they are very special people and they are truly heroes."

Corinne Wark, volunteer for 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment, was happy to be honored and believes the ceremony was important to all volunteers, not just those being given the Commander's Pot of Gold Award.

"I think it was nice that they had a ceremony to recognize volunteers because a lot of people volunteer on a daily basis and do a lot for these units," she said. DeFrancisco agreed.

"(These volunteers) deserve special recognition for the service they are providing," he said.

"They give their time, energy, their talent so we can be better at what we do," said DeFrancisco.

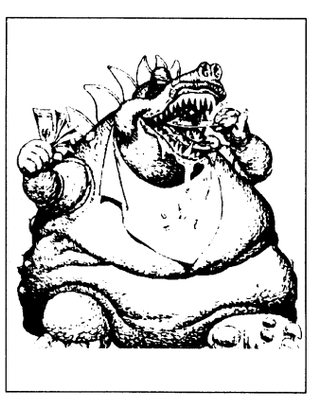
Receiving the Commander's Pot of Gold Award were Winona Aguero, 317th Engineer Battalion; Michelle Aichs and Taushawn Lundy, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment; Josephine Bowman and Mary Ziglier, 4th Battalion, 41st Field Artillery Regiment; Paula Burke, Tammy Davis and Alice Rzeszutko, 324th Forward Support Battalion; and Betty Garrett and Gabriella Rothbrust, Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

Also earning the award were Diane Liscar, Terri Mazure and Corinne Wark, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment; and Michelle Carr, Luann Freeman, Melodee Gaertner, Stephanie Mello, Anne Moore, Anne Morin and Heather Olsen, 2nd Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment.

Dining facility honored for accomplishments

By Paul Mazure
1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment

The 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment dining facility was recognized recently for outstanding accomplishments.



Col. Richard Rutledge, Fort Benning's garrison commander, awarded the 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., dining facility with the Best Thanksgiving Decorated Dining Facility on post for 1995.

Also, 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., dining facility received the Best Dining Facility for 1995 of the 3rd Brigade, 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), given by Deputy Brigade Commander Lt. Col. Florian K. Rothbrust. Fort Benning's Chief of Food Services, Ed Hilton, was also present to congratulate the cooks of the 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., dining facility.

"These awards are great honors to the battalion and reflect the skill of the cooks, along with the exceptional quality of food they serve," said Lt. Col. Edward Cook.

The most recent example of this skill was exhibited by Spc. David E. Partridge who just returned from culinary school at Fort Stewart. He won several awards and one of his awarded creations is on display at the 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., dining facility. The 1st Bn., 18th Inf. Regt., dining facility's food service managers are Staff Sgt. Donald E. Mills and Staff Sgt. Shelton C. Coppet.

COMMUNITY

SECTION B

AROUND POST

DPW continues flower give-away — Fort Benning residents can fill their flower beds with help from the Department of Public Works.

Through May 18, each household can receive one flat of bedding plants to enhance their yard. Residents can choose from geraniums or begonias at the U-Do-It Center, Building 385.

Each Friday, a new shipment of plants will be delivered to the center.

Residents to pitch in — The annual spring post cleanup will be Monday through Thursday.

Wednesday has been designated as family housing cleanup day. Soldiers and family members living in government quarters are expected to police their areas of responsibility and correct problems.

Top soil, grass seed, pine straw, fertilizer and lime are also available for issue at the U-Do-It Center, Building 385.

Residents who have questions about their responsibilities to the cleanup, can call the area Community LIfe noncommissioned officers. See the Community Life chart on Page B-2 for their phone numbers.

Town hall meeting set — Residents of the Davis Hill and Bouton Heights communities are encouraged to attend their town hall meeting Monday at 6:30 p.m.

The meeting will be in the Stowers Elementary School cafeteria.

For more information, call 544-1195.

Red Cross to recognize volunteers — All Fort Benning American Red Cross volunteers are invited to attend the annual volunteer recognition May 10 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The ceremony will be in the Baugh Conference Room on the second floor of Martin Army Community Hospital.

Call 545-5194 for more information.

Alcoholics Anonymous meetings provide support — The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous group meets at 7 p.m. every Monday, Thursday and Saturday.

Meetings are conducted in the basement of the Directorate of Community Activities, Building 241, next to the Infantry Museum. Individuals interested in attending meetings can use the rear entrance to the building.

For more information, call 545-4993 or 545-1138.

School board to meet — The Fort Benning School Board will meet Monday at 1 p.m. in the Fort Benning Schools Administrative Building, Conference Room 201, Building 2670.

For more information, call 545-5194.

Mayors' Safety Carnival set for Saturday

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

Community mayors will be stressing the importance for safety awareness during their fourth annual Mayors' Safety Carnival Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Riverside, home of commanding general Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix.

Open to all Fort Benning children in grades kindergarten through eight, the purpose of the safety carnival is to provide information about safety concerns for young people, according to Jennifer Morgan, community life officer.

"We hope to make children aware of safety hazards, both inside and outside the home," she said.

To meet that goal, individuals from various post units and agencies will provide displays and demonstrations, while mascots — McGruff, the Crime Dog and Blinky, the robot police car — familiar to Fort Benning parents and children will be on hand to peak young people's interest.

Military Police will conduct their Ident-A-Kid fingerprinting program as well as a bicycle and in-line skating safety course for children. Post fire department personnel will demonstrate procedures for safely extinguishing fires. Children will also be able to tour a fire engine as well as learn from Animal Control the proper care for home pets.

At a glance

What: Mayors' Safety Carnival

When: 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday

Where: Riverside

Admission: Free; small charge for refreshments provided by Fort Benning PTOs

Other agencies providing displays and demonstrations will include the American Red Cross, Georgia Power Company, Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Control, Army Family Advocacy Program and 89th Ordnance Company (Explosive Ordnance Disposal).

According to Morgan, approximately 300 people attended the first carnival in 1992 and last year's crowd reached the 1,500 mark.

"We expect more than that this year," Morgan said.

To combat the long lines, volunteers from Child Development Services will provide free face painting to all children.

Fort Benning Parent-Teacher-Organizations will provide refreshments at a minimal charge. The PTOs will use the money raised to fund their school projects.

In case of inclement weather, the event will be postponed to a later date.

Sharing spirit

Though Fort Benning's top 20 volunteers were recognized yesterday during a special ceremony commemorating National Volunteer Week, it was more than 3,000 that shared their skills, interests and talents in various capacities throughout the community.

Those individuals saved Fort Benning an estimated $2.6 million in just one year, according to Volunteer Resource Center statistics.

For every individual talent there is a need. The Volunteer Resource Center staff works to match soldiers and family members' interests and skills to jobs that require them.

People often benefit from the chance to enhance existing skills while learning new ones.

Victim reflects on Holocaust horrors

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

"Hatred has no color," said Sgt. 1st Class A. Julius Young as he read from "The Liberators," a poem by James E. Tokley.

That message was sent to approximately 250 attendees at the Days Of Remembrance Symposium April 17.

"We pray (the Holocaust) is a thing of the past," said Rabbi Arthur Rutberg, while audience members' heads were bowed, joining him in the symposium's opening prayer.

After watching "Genocide", a film about the Holocaust, featured speaker Mady B. Chrismond told of her memories of being a child experiencing the horrors during World War II.

"I was not quite 5 years old when the brown shirts (Nazi soldiers) broke into our homes and businesses," Chrismond said. That night, known as Crystal Night, she was separated from her parents and siblings.

Initially, Chrismond was taken to a slave labor camp, but she eventually found herself traveling in a crowded cattle car to the concentration camp at Flossenburg. Upon arriving there, she remembered, the prisoners were met by Nazi soldiers with fierce dogs.

"To this day, I'm still terrified of a German shepherd," she said. Chrismond described her first impression of the camp as something much more horrible and frightening than the dogs.

"At first sight, (I saw) mountains of bodies," Chrismond said. "What most people perceive to be Hell, that was my perception (of the camp)."

Chrismond's grandmother was also at Flossenburg, but they had to keep their relationship a secret out of fear for their lives.

Airborne Walk result of veterans honoring paratrooper tradition

By Amy Durham
Special to The Bayonet©

As people gathered for the 19th annual Airborne Awards ceremony Thursday, few may have been aware that just more than 10 years had passed since the Airborne Walk was dedicated in "tribute to every person who has been or will be airborne qualified."

In 1984, a handful of airborne veterans, representing those who served in every major conflict including and since World War II, first met as members of what became the Airborne Walk Committee, a subcommittee of the Airborne Historical Association, Inc., according to group secretary and treasurer, retired Master Sgt. George Whitten.

Since that first meeting, the "old-timers," as they are referred to, met at least eight times a year in the conference room of 1st Battalion, 507th Infantry Regiment, to plan walk construction, according to former Sgt. Henley P. Woods, committee president. The committee accomplished no minor feat, being

Faculty honors parents at breakfast

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

Since April is the month of the military child, the faculty of Frank R. Loyd Elementary School sponsored its eighth annual Soldiers' Breakfast April 19.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix was the featured speaker at the event honoring the military parents of students attending Loyd. After approximately 125 soldiers and 45 faculty members ate breakfast, Hendrix spoke about being a good parent, as well as a good soldier.

"I thought it was interesting to hear him speak about his own role as a parent," said Judy C. Gilliam, principal, Loyd School.

Generally, the faculty members participate at the breakfast for one basic purpose, Gilliam said.

"The Soldiers' Breakfast is to honor our soldier parents during the month of the military child," she said.

Mitzi H. Crow, a second grade teacher agreed.

"This is our way of honoring the military parents," she said.

Parents in attendance seemed to enjoy the friendliness, as well as the food, offered by Loyd's faculty. At least one father believed soldiers had additional purposes in attending the breakfast, too.

"We're here to talk to the teachers, also; and to support Loyd School," said Staff Sgt. Carlos J. Lawson, father of kindergarten student Dominic Lawson.

Gilliam said she was very pleased with the turnout at the breakfast.

"This was our eighth year and I think it was our best one," she said. "We had a greater percentage of participation than we've ever had," Gilliam said.

Soldiers share in Special Olympics

By Kenneth Kelly
1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

Soldiers from 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, took time out to assist in the Muscogee County Special Olympics March 15 and April 3 at Kinnett Stadium off Interstate185.

More than 60 battalion soldiers volunteered to perform various tasks involved in running the event.

"It was very satisfying to be able to help these kids in any way," said Master Sgt. Michael Haugen of Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

Haugen, who supervised the softball throw among other events, said he was extremely pleased to see so many other soldiers of his unit attending the event.

Soldiers from the 1st Battalion performed various functions including event directors, score keepers, "huggers," coaches and clean-up details. Soldiers from Company B and several of their spouses assisted in setting up staging areas and food preparation as well as participating as huggers.

The initial event was originally scheduled for March 8; however, inclement weather caused the games to be postponed to the following Friday.

The regional event was conducted April 3 at the same location and many of the same soldiers participated in that event as well.

Sgt. 1st. Class Juan Velazquez of Company A and his soldiers officiated the track and field events.

"I'm very proud to see the large turn-out of volunteers from the battalion," Velazquez said. "It's good to know the people you work with are willing to support such a worthy cause."

"This experience was very fulfilling, and I got more out of it than I expected to," said Spc. Joseph Garcia of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, who supervised the 100-meter and 200-meter runs. Garcia said he plans to volunteer in next year's Special Olympics and encourages others to do the same.

"The soldiers truly have shown pride in their community, and I would like to thank them and the spouses who participated in this worthwhile cause," Lt. Col. Robert Kissel, battalion commander, said. "This event was a great success."

Airborne: Walk honors all paratroopers that all traveled from various parts of the region with Woods traveling 200 miles from Dalton, Ga., each time the group met.

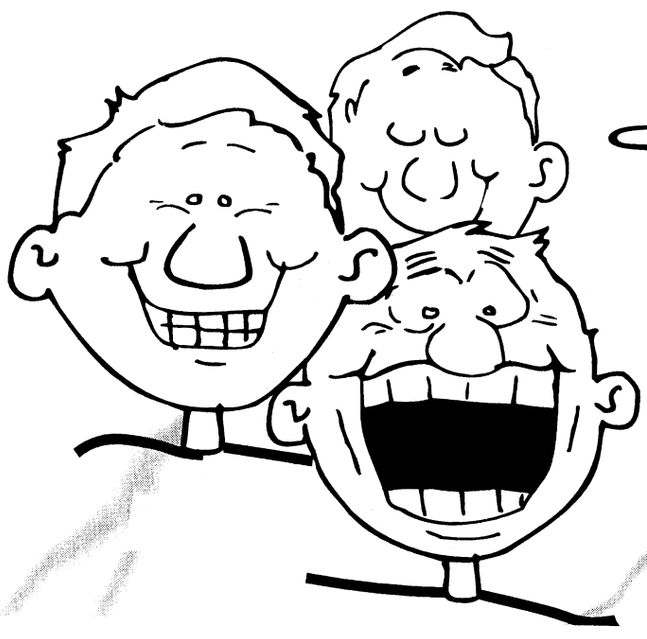
When the walk was dedicated April 17, 1986, it was intended to be a monument to Airborne soldiers — past, present and future, said Whitten, who served with the 5th Special Forces Group in Vietnam from 1964 to 1965.

According to Whitten and others in the group, the walk is reflective of the tradition embedded in all soldiers who wear the wings.

"When I see that walk, it reminds me of what is supposed to be — a tribute to all Airborne soldiers," said Woods, who served with the 1st Special Service Force in World War II.

Of the feelings he has for the walk, Whitten said, "If you've ever jumped out of an airplane," he said, "you'd understand.

"Once you're airborne, you're always airborne. You can not walk away from it (Airborne wings) — you go to your grave with it."



But committee members have ensured a way the Airborne soldier will not be forgotten.

Among the markers that dot the walk is one under the U.S. flagpole. This marker notes where the group placed a time capsule in 1990. Enclosed in the buried capsule are a pair of 1942 jump boots and a letter listing all Airborne units representing the United States military. The capsule is not to be opened until 2040.

Until then, the Airborne ranks will continue to swell as soldiers earn their wings, and the older ranks continue to thin. But according to all group members the tradition of service and camaraderie will go forward and Fort Benning will always be home to the Airborne Walk.

Holocaust: Speaker reflects on tradegy

"You could not know a relative was in the camp with you," she said. "If they (the guards) found out, one of you was immediately put to death." Chrismond said her grandmother's presence and protection, as well as help from the others in her barracks, is what enabled her to live through the torture.

"Without the women in my barracks, I would not have survived," she said. "They would share food with me as if to say, 'You must live!'"

"There was a cohesiveness among us that was almost, forgive me, 'holy,' and it was beautiful," said Chrismond.

Her memories of the gas chambers were both horrifying and relieving, as she told of the time she expected to die.

"There were screams, cries and there were prayers," she said. "People praised God and asked to be taken care of, but nothing happened.

"We sat there and nothing happened... We were told this wasn't the first time that the gas chamber malfunctioned," she said.

After being severely beaten and nearly starved for months, Chrismond and her grandmother were rescued by a priest and two nuns.

"They risked their lives to save us," she said. The tormented women lived in a hole in the ground, eating only what scraps of food their rescuers could spare, until the liberation.

When Americans arrived, they found Chrismond barely alive.

"Americans put me on the scales at the age of 10 years, 3 months. I weighed only 48 pounds," she said.

Near the end of the symposium, Chrismond urged audience members to take a stand against hate.

"Some of my experiences will go to my grave with me," she said. "I am not willing to, nor will I, share (them) with you, at least for the sake of the children in the audience.

"We miscalculated what hate can do," Chrismond said. "Racism, antisemitism, any crimes against humanity are wrong.

"Speak up when you hear a racial slur being made; it is wrong! Speak up when you see someone being hurt; it is wrong!

"Learn, be good people, care for each other — then these things can't happen again," she said.

Rutberg concluded the symposium with the hope that audience members received a serious message.

"The most important thing is to learn — so that we know what happened and make a commitment to not allow it (a holocaust) to happen again," he said.

Committee seeks photos of local grand entrances

Keep Columbus Beautiful Commission

In just three months, the world will arrive in Georgia for the Olympics. As the venue city for Women's Fastpitch Softball, Columbus will be in the forefront.

To encourage everyone to help make that good first impression, the Keep Columbus Beautiful Commission is sponsoring a special contest.

The Keep Columbus Beautiful Commission and Columbus '96 want everyone to welcome visitors by making the front of their home, school, church or business a "Grand Entrance."

The contest is simple. Create a grand entrance at the front of your home, school, church or business. Take a picture of your grand entrance and send it to Keep Columbus Beautiful, P.O.Box 428, Columbus, Ga. 31902 by June 20.

A panel of judges will determine the best grand entrance in each category — home, school, church or business. The winner of each category will receive a signed and numbered print of the "Porches & Portals" poster by local artist Geri M. Davis.

One grand prize will be awarded to the very best grand entrance. Davis will paint a picture of the grand-prize winning grand entrance.

The contest is open to any home, school, church or business in Columbus and Muscogee County. Fort Benning homes, schools and chapels are also eligible to enter this contest.

All pictures will become property of the Keep Columbus Beautiful Commission and cannot be returned. Pictures should be no larger than 5x7 inches. The name, address and telephone number of the person or organization submitting the entry must be attached to the picture. All entries must be received by the Keep Columbus Beautiful Commission by 5 p.m. June 20. The decision of the judges will be final.

"We will need to find ways to make all of our visitors see how glad we are to have them in our community," said Jessica Barrick of the Keep Columbus Beautiful Commission. "Let's make a grand entrance!"

afap update

Martin Army Community Hospital

To continue providing the Fort Benning community with the best service possible, the following are responses to the Martin Army Community Hospital Army Family Action Plan issues published several weeks ago. This information provides up-to-date information on those issues that concern the hospital's customers.

Issue: The atmosphere of the troop medical clinics needs improvement. The clinics are physically unappealing and the service provided resembles "assembly-line service" rather than the quality of care soldiers are entitled to.

Updated response: The command continues to visit the troop clinics on a monthly basis. The chain of supervision extends from the noncommissioned officer in charge of troop medical clinics through the chief, Family Practice Community Care Service. Three-quarters of the facilities are very old; however, they are maintained, clean and safe. Plans are ongoing to upgrade these facilities. We will continue to strive toward offering the best soldiers in the Army the finest care possible.

Issue: Many civilian employees at the hospital are rude and have unpleasant attitudes when dealing with customers.

Updated response: The hospital received less than one complaint per 1,000 beneficiary population during 1995. Employees who have been reported as being rude are counseled by their supervisors. A customer relations class is presented each month. This class is mandatory for new employees and is available as a refresher for all employees. Additionally, employees are encouraged to register for classes offered by the installation on interpersonal relations.

Issue: A child or infant is seen by several different doctors, each of which does not usually look back at previous visits, often for the same problem, i.e. ear infections. As such the child treated for the immediate problem and the issue of it is overlooked.

Updated response: The Pediatric Clinic at the hospital is well organized and provides quality medical care to its patients. As scheduling physician availability permits, the Pediatric Clinic tries to schedule patients with the some provider with whom he or she was initially seen. At the time the patient calls for an appointment, request should be made for the provider you wish to see. If it is possible, the appointment clerk will try to schedule patient with requested provider.

Often, it would not be possible for a patient to see the same provider especially if the patient has an acute problem and can't wait for a regularly scheduled appointment. However, the patient can be seen by a pediatric healthcare provider who would immediately take care of their problem.

A provider with patient's medical history and patient's medical record can provide high quality care to his or her pediatric patient. At the present time, the Pediatric Clinic handles a large volume of patients, including patients from outlying clinics. This is because appointments at outlying clinics are not promptly available and schedules are usually full when a patient needs to be seen. The Pediatric Clinic will see these patients even when their medical records are not readily available.

Issue: Why does the hospital not offer a birthing room?

Updated response: Upon completion of the fiscal 1996 Life Safety Upgrade, six birthing rooms will be available.

for the record

In the April 19, 1996, edition of the Bayonet Newspaper, Jaima Taylor Baskin was listed in the Births announcement column as being born to Pvt. 2 Adam and Wendy Baskin. Baskin's rank should have been listed as Pfc.

ask the judge

By George R. Smawley
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q: We recently had a permanent change of station to Fort Benning. While working on our household goods claim, a local furniture repair shop owner told us we could exaggerate the damage to our dining room set in order to get more money from the government.

He told my wife that everybody did it; and, if we were caught, the government would still pay for the rest of our damages. We felt that this was dishonest and only filed for the fair value of our damages. Is it true that this sort of fraud is as common as we were led to believe?

A: There was a time when an individual who filed a claim with the government was able to grossly exaggerate or even lie about certain aspects of the claim and still have the remaining valid costs paid. In the past couple of years, the Army's policy regarding fraudulent claims has changed so that not only will grossly inaccurate items be denied, but the entire claim including valid items may be denied if a determination is made that the claim is substantially tainted by fraud.

The term "substantially tainted by fraud" is not susceptible to easy definition. At a minimum, it would include a claim with altered estimates that represent values in excess of the actual loss or damage, a claim of missing items that the claimant clearly never owned and a claim in which the claimant clearly misrepresented the true age or condition of numerous claimed items.

If the fraud has been discovered after the claim is paid, the claimant will be required to repay the government for the full amount, either voluntarily or involuntarily, and may be the subject of an investigation by the Military Police or Criminal Investigation Command.

Filing a fraudulent claim is a crime under Article 132 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, punishable by a dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, reduction to E-1 and confinement of up to five years. Federal law also makes it a crime punishable by up to five years and/or a fine of up to $100,000.

Clearly, most claimants filing claims with the government have suffered legitimate losses. For those who have not, claims have been denied in full. In the past year, there have been nearly a dozen CID investigations involving fraudulent claims, often resulting in criminal or adverse administrative action (e.g. Article 15) against the offending service member.

Questions regarding claims should be directed to Fort Benning Claims Office, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, at 545-2285.

The flashback begins at 6 p.m. Music, decorations, door prizes and a '50s-era game contest will highlight the evening.

Guest speaker will be former U.S. Navy pilot Lt. William F. "Fritz" Klumpp, who was shot down over North Vietnam.

The event is open to everyone. Tickets are $11.50 per person. Call Jane at 563-0993 or Beth at 682-9173 for reservations. Child care is available upon request.

Survivors of Incest Anonymous meetings set — Survivors of Incest Anonymous conducts weekly meetings each Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Burger King Parliament Room at 2033 Wynnton Road.

SIA is a 12-step recovery program for women 18 years and older who have been sexually abused by a family member or anyone else the child was led to trust.

The program is open to the public free of charge. For more information,call Charlene at 571-9002.

Post to host retiree open house — Fort Benning will host its 14th annual Retiree Open House May 16 through 18.

During the three-day event, retirees can receive up-to-date information about their benefits and entitlements as well as learn the latest Army operational developments.

Among activities in which retirees can participate are: physical examinations at Martin Army Community Hospital, a tour of the Infantry Museum and a tour of the Dismounted Battlespace Battle Lab's Simulation Network Facility.

A barbeque dinner is also scheduled for May 17.

Registration for physicals must be received at the Retirement Services Office no later than May 3. Registration for all other activities must be submitted to the Retirement Services Office no later than May 10.

Individuals who wish to participate in the Retiree Open House may receive more information by calling 545-1813, 545-2541, or 545-5369.

Society application deadline nears — The Fort Benning-Columbus Post of the Society of American Military Engineers is accepting applications for a $1,000 scholarship.

The scholarship will be awarded to a student enrolled in or accepted into an approved two- or four-year curriculum leading to an engineering degree. Students' permanent home residence must be within a 50-mile radius of Fort Benning. Priority will go to high school seniors; however, currently enrolled college students will be considered.

Award of this scholarship will be based on past and present academic achievements, student activities, recommendations and financial need. In addition, interest in the science of military engineering, often evidenced by enrollment in a Reserve Officer Training Corps program, will be considered, although this is not a requirement.

Award of the scholarship will be recommended by a panel of judges in accordance with the by-laws of the Fort Benning-Columbus Post of the Society of American Military Engineers.

Applications must be postmarked no later than Tuesday. The award of the scholarship is anticipated by the end of June. To obtain an application call John Mills at 568-2482 or Glenn Todd at 545-2117.

Scholarship applications accepted — The Fort Benning Management Association is offering business and management students a chance to compete for its yearly undergraduate and graduate scholarships.

All active duty or retired family members, or federal civil service employees and their family members residing within a 50-mile radius are eligible.

Applicants are required to write a letter to the association scholarship committee, formally requesting consideration. The letter must include highlights of the applicant's academic career and extracurricular activities. Applicants should also explain why they feel they should receive a scholarship.

Undergraduate applicants should also provide a high school transcript with a completed college application, three letters of recommendation, college transcripts and a statement of employment including name, address and applicant's job title.

However, instead of high school transcripts, graduate applicants should include a copy of their undergraduate degree and transcripts along with a completed college application fulfilling graduate requirements.

Submit applications to: Building 4, Room 452, Fort Benning, Ga., Attn: Myrtle Chalkley. Applications must be submitted no later than July 26.

For more information, call 545-4539 or 545-4426.

Communities to celebrate day of prayer

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Fort Benning soldiers and families are invited to attend the Columbus observance of the May 2 National Day of Prayer service.

Col. Gregory C. Camp, chief of staff, will be the guest speaker at the 7 p.m. program.

Youth and adult choirs from various faiths and community corners representing the All-City Choir will sing for the service.

Everyone is encouraged to join in the celebration to honor God on the 45th consecutive observance of the National Day of Prayer.

It will be conducted on the grassy area of the Riverwalk just north of the Dillingham Street Bridge at the corner of 12th Street and Bay Avenue.

Post observance

Fort Benning personnel will observe the National Day of Prayer with a breakfast May 3 at 6:30 a.m.

Commanding general Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix will host the breakfast at the Officers' Club Supper Club.

Guest speaker will be Lt. Gen. John E. Miller, deputy commander, Training and Doctrine Command. Special music will be provided by the musical group Common Thread and soloist Denise Daniels from the First Baptist Church, Columbus.

For ticket information, call 545-2288.

Proclamation

In recognition of the power of prayer, May 2 is proclaimed as the National Day of Prayer.

This year will mark the 45th consecutive observance of the annual National Day of Prayer. Americans will gather to honor God and pray on behalf of our nation, its leaders, local and state officials, law enforcement personnel and families.

Americans, from our earliest beginnings, believed in the importance of prayer. Leaders, such as George Washington and Benjamin Franklin, believed that prayer could protect and direct the course of our nation.

Americans will unite at specific times in prayer for our nation to acknowledge our dependence upon God, to give thanks for the many blessings our country has received, to recognize our need for personal and corporate moral renewal and to ask for God's continued guidance and blessings.

The National Day of Prayer is a means to help increase our awareness of the importance of prayer for our government and ourselves.

I encourage all personnel on Fort Benning and the surrounding communities to join with Americans across the country in a spirit of national unity.

Setting course: Let God, friends help

By Richard G. Moore

reflections

Light-switch decisions to "do the right thing" are sometimes not possible given the complexity and the many unknowns of the situation.

Complex situations arise in the workplace, in our communities, in our churches and synagogues and in our families. They can happen in a twinkling of the eye or can fester for months and even years.

An individual's values and personal identity are challenged to come up with the best course of action as fast as possible. Being human, often times, we decide not to decide — for the time being. Complex situations are the stuff that make up our ethical dilemmas.

An ethical dilemma occurs when a choice needs to be made between two or more conflicting values. When we feel "stuck," it's a pretty good signal that the mental and emotional terrain we are in is a dilemma.

While wrestling with the difficult issue of Reconstruction, President Abraham Lincoln explained to a friend his approach to this complex situation. "The pilots on our western rivers steer from point to point as they call it — setting the course of the boat no farther than they can see, and that is all I propose to myself in this great problem." Many around him at the time expected results, fast and forthright decisiveness. President Lincoln could not and would not perform for them.

Reflect on his statement again. Rivers wind back and forth, vary in depth, and are used by many boats. Visibility also can be limited because of fog, rain and time of day or night. Some of us today are living lives of quiet desperation, trying to navigate ourselves to the next point on the river of life. It may be the health of a loved one or concern for our young people growing up with too many opportunities for good and for bad; a job that seems to be a dead end or money problems that don't get better with time; a relationship with a "fading" significant other — life and living do not escape any of us.

Propose to yourself, just like Honest Abe, and set your course, even if it's just talking it out with a friend. There may be undiscovered options or resources to provide some help getting to the next point. The scriptures promise, "Commit to the Lord whatever you do, and your plans will succeed." Allow the living God to be the first resource. He cares for you. He is in the business of knowing all the things we do not know!

It's still tough to solve our times of being stuck. A wise person long ago spoke about the difficulty of doing the right thing. The decision was like trying to find the center of a circle — to act in the right way, to the right person, at the right time, for the right reason.

PARTY sessions set for children — A children's Bible study program entitled "Personal Attitudes Relating to You" will be conducted at the Religious Education Center May from noon to 2 p.m. Children ages five years through sixth grade are encouraged to attend.

The program will include Bible study, music, recreation, crafts and refreshments. Participants will have fun as they learn to develop a positive attitude and to live Christ-like lives.

Registration will be each Wednesday morning prior to the first session at the center from 10 a.m. to noon. Classes will be conducted once per month.

Adult initiation workshop planned — A Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults workshop will be May 11 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Regimental Chapel at Sand Hill.

Anyone interested in becoming a team member, sponsor, or simply to learn about the RCIA program is invited to attend.

Team members and sponsors are vital to the success of the program and assist in the program designed for adults interested in learning about the Catholic faith.

Lunch will be provided. To register or for more information, call Phil Reilly at 545-5508 or Rich Wampler at 561-4731.

Vacation Bible School — Children from age four to junior high school are encouraged to attend Vacation Bible School June 17 to 21.

VBS will be conducted each day from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Edward A. White School. The program will consist of bible study, music, recreation and refreshments.

Volunteers are needed as teachers, assistants, administrators, as well as refreshment personnel and in other positions.

For more information, call Bill Putman at 545-4715, or leave a message at 545-2288.

Sunday school bus — Families who would like transportation to and from Sunday School at the Religious Education Center can call 545-4715.

A bus will be scheduled to pick up participants at their homes before Sunday School and then drop them off after the meeting.

Only God can make things new again

reflections

Have you ever thought how much hope is wrapped up in those four little words "as good as new"?

The doctor tries to reassure you, as you prepare for surgery, in a few weeks your heart will be as good as new. You know that is not quite true. Sure, your heart has had many years of wear. Nothing can reverse the aging process.

The mechanic makes the same promise about your car. But you know the promise is hollow. It may in some respects look and run like a new car, but it will still be the same old car in many important ways.

One man was talking about his car.

"The old clunker makes a lot of noise," he said. "In fact, the only things on it that don't make noise are the horn and the radio."

No reputable marriage counselor would ever make a promise to make a marriage as good as new. The physical heart responds to treatment much more predictably than the spiritual or emotional heart. It is a lot easier to knock dents out of an old car, than out of an endangered marriage.

"As good as new..." Very few things really are. In fact, there is but one place that I know where that promise is not only fulfilled, but also exceeded. In Revelation 21:5 (KJV), we read, "... Behold, I make all things new...."

Could that promise be true? Could God make my marriage not simply as good as new, but entirely new? Could God take my broken heart, my shattered dreams, my hollow spirit and make them new?

Of course he can. That is his primary business — making new lives from old. He can make life new for us, first of all, by giving us a new attitude about life.

One of the chief contributions of modern psychology is the insight that most of us are as happy as we choose to be.

Circumstances do not affect our attitude nearly as much as our attitude affects our circumstance. We do not need to allow circumstances to defeat us. In fact, some of the greatest accomplishments have been produced under the most adverse surroundings.

God can give you a new life if you will let him give you a new outlook, a new perspective, a new point of view. Even more importantly, he also can give you a new life if you will simply learn to trust him.

Special to The Bayonet©

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment dominated the track and field meet April 17 to 18 at Doughboy Stadium, collecting 203 points.

The competition, second in a series of three, will conclude with the Military Appreciation Week competition May 15 and 16.

Points are awarded to the winners of each meet and retained for total point accumulation ending with Military Appreciation Week. The battalion accumulating the most points at the conclusion of the three meets will be crowned the 1996 Fort Benning intramural track and field champions.

Gregory Meghoo, a Silver Medalist in the 1984 Olympic games, was the only competitor able to stop the 1st Bn, 29th Inf. Regt., from sweeping the entire meet. Meghoo, from the 1st Bn, 18th Inf. Regt., said he was competing to get back into running shape and looking at competing for a spot on the All-Army team. Meghoo took first in both the 100- and 200-meter run.

Meghoo tied the Fort Benning record in the 100-meter run with a time of 10.7 seconds.

Ray Olford set a new Fort Benning record in the discus with a throw of 138 feet 7 inches.

"I have never competed in this event before," Olford said. "I always wanted to try it high school, but they (coaches) wouldn't let me because I was in too many track and field events."

Olford said he only practiced with the discus for about one week before the meet.

Olford also won the shot put with a distance of 37 feet 4 inches.

dominance of the high jump finishing first in the event for the second meet in a row with a jump of 5 feet 6 inches.

At the end of two meets, the 1st Bn., 29 Inf. Regt., leads the track and field competition with 241 points. In second place is the 1st Bn.., 11th Inf. Regt. with 27 points, and in third is the 36th Engineer Group with 24 points. The U.S. Army Medical Department Activity is in fourth with 10 points,the 2nd Bn.., 29th Inf. Regt. is in fifth with eight points and Military Police Activity is in sixth with one point.

Winners of the April meet were:

Scorcher mountain bike race to be conducted at Nantahala

Nantahala Outdoor Center

WESSER, N.C. — Mountain bikers can mark their calendars for Nantahala Outdoor Center's Spring Knob Scotcher today, Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday and Sunday are full days of racing. Races start at 10 a.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday. Any late arrivals can register at 7 a.m. both days.

Today is a full day of pre-race festivity. The race course will be open all day to racers wanting a sneak preview of the bumps and turns of the Nantahala Village course. For a diversion from hiking, any registered racer can make a whitewater rafting trip.

The afternoon and evening will be filled with clinics and forums for racers looking for a few last minute pointers.

Western North Carolina has been realized as a hot spot for single track mountain biking. Approximately 1,500 racers are expected over the weekend.

This is the first of a three-race series for '96. Last year, the Knob Scorcher series was placed on the top ten race list by the National Off Road Bicycle Association.

For more information about the race, call (704) 488-6737.

outdoor outlook

Canoeing — Georgia State Park canoe trips for beginning and experienced paddlers will be Saturday at various parks. Participants can explore some of Georgia's most scenic waterways while on guided canoe trips.

Park staff will explain basic canoeing techniques and interpret natural surroundings while leading canoers on day-long trips.

Paddlers with a sharp eye may see beaver, otter, king fishers, great blue herons, turtles or other wildlife.

The cost is $15 per person that includes canoe, paddles and life preserver.

The parks that will offer these canoe trips are:

High Falls State Park, Jackson, Ga., May 11, June 8, July 13, Aug. 10, Sept. 14 and Oct. 19. Call (912) 993-3053 to register.

Watson Mill Bridge State Park, Comer, Ga., June 15, July 13 and Aug. 10. Call (706) 783-5349 to register.

Panola Mountain State Park, Stockbridge, Ga., Sept. 21. Call (770) 389-7801 to register.

A $2 park pass fee is charged per vehicle.

Spring bass tournament — at Florence Marina State Park in Omaha, Georgia. Anglers can compete for trophies including Big Bass and first, second and third place stringer by weight. The tournament runs from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. The tournament is free, but there is a $2 per vehicle park pass fee.

Call (912) 838-4706 for more information.

Fishing tournament — George L. Smith State park in Twin City, Georgia will host a fishing tournament sponsored by the Metter Sportsman's Club. Call (912) 763-2759 for tournament times and fees.

A $2 park pass fee is charged per vehicle.

Rifle and Pistol Club — The hours for the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club have changed due to daylight savings time.

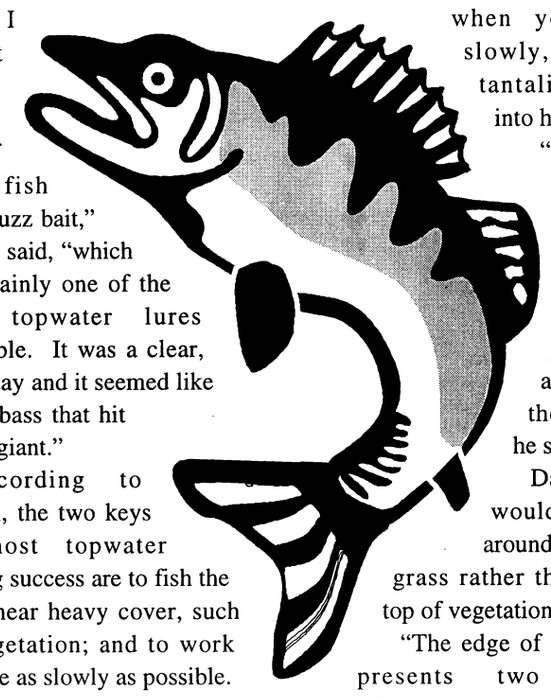
The new summer hours are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Wednesday and Sunday, and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

For more information, call 689-3371.

Skeet range — The Morale, Welfare and Recreation skeet range has changed its hours. The operating hours are noon to 5 p.m. weekends and selected holidays.

For more information, call Tom Mull at 545-7357.

Topwater lures catch trophy size bass



By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

As a veteran guide on Florida's Lake Okeechobee, Steve Daniel has led his clients to plenty of big bass over the years, but only with a few lures.

"If I were limited to one type of lure for really big bass, I would choose a topwater," Daniel said, a competitor in national bass tournaments throughout the United States.

"Day in and day out, trophy-class bass seem to hit topwater lures more consistently than any other type," Daniel said. "You don't always get as many strikes with a surface lure, but the strikes you do get are ones you usually remember."

Daniel's most memorable strike came from an 11-pound, 10-ounce giant that hit a topwater lure around the edge of a grass line. That's his largest bass ever, but he also remembers one day this past December when he caught nine bass weighing more than seven pounds, including two weighing more than 10 pounds. All came on a surface lure.

"I caught every one of those fish on a buzz bait," Daniel said, "which is certainly one of the best topwater lures available. It was a clear, calm day and it seemed like every bass that hit was a giant."

According to Daniel, the two keys to most topwater fishing success are to fish the lures near heavy cover, such as vegetation; and to work the lure as slowly as possible.

"I believe a topwater lure represents either a threat to a bass, or an easy meal," Daniel said. "When you fish, the lure near heavy cover, you're putting it right where big bass live; and, when you fish it slowly, you really tantalize the fish into hitting.

"Something that moves slowly is easy to catch, so the bass just takes advantage of the situation," he said.

Daniel said he would rather fish around the edges of grass rather than over the top of vegetation if he can.

"The edge of the grassline presents two different conditions for bass, open water with depth as well as heavy cover with protection," he said. "Bass often roam back and forth along the edge of the vegetation searching for food, so when a lure comes past, they're ready to grab it."

Daniel uses topwater lures with propellers, usually known as "prop baits" to bass fishermen, because they draw strikes in both calm and choppy water.

"When the water is calm, you make your retrieve even more slowly than normal," he said. "But when the water is choppy, you can still get the attention of the fish because the lure makes so much commotion."

Anglers win at bass tourney

By Stephen W. Ward
Fort Benning BASS Club

The local chapter of Bass Anglers Sportsman Society Club of Fort Benning conducted its third tournament for the 1996 fishing trail.

This tournament was conducted at Lake Seminole, out of Trails End Marina and fielded 10 local anglers from the club.

The majority of the tournament contestants arrived for a two-day, pre-tournament fishing activity in addition to the two-day tournament.

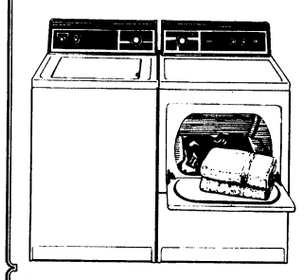
The weather was cooperative for the pre-tournament fishing activity on Thursday and Friday, but things changed Saturday as rain moved into the area adding an additional competetive element to the tournamnet.

The results of the contest are as follows:

• First place — Jack Pines, with a creel of fish weighing 13 pounds, 7 ounces

• Second place — Randy Blake, with a fish weighing 11 pounds, 15 ounces

• Third place — Russ Hurley, with an 11-pound, 9-ounce catch



• Big Bass Award — Bob Billman, with a 4-pound, 4-ounce large-mouth bass.

Twenty-five fish were weighed in and released in good health at a total weight of 61 pounds, 1 ounce.

The organization encourages participants to catch and release all uninjured, healthy fish caught during tournaments.

For more information on the BASS Club of Fort Benning, call 569-5705. The club is open for membership to all service members (active and retired), their family members and eligible Department of Defense civilians.

Dear John,

You asked me about a good transmission shop, so I'm recommending: Generic Transmission in Phenix City -- they're only 10 minutes from post -- you'll save money and most important of all: You'll have peace of mind.

The owner, Jimmy, is as honest as they come, and does quality work. The number is 297-1767, so call him now. Glad to help

Regards, Al

How To Recycle

Post housing residents may place recyclable materials in brown plastic bins for weekly curbside pickup.

Here is a list of the items that can and cannot be placed in the bin for recycling.

• Glass: Recycle soft drink, beer, juice, ketchup, wine, liquor and food containers. All caps and lids are to be removed and containers are to be rinsed out.

Special care should be taken to avoid breaking glass when placing it in the recycling bin.

• Cans: Only aluminum and steel cans are accepted at this time. Cans must be rinsed out. Labels may remain on the cans.

• Plastic: All plastic materials containing the Recycling Triangle (Three Chasing Arrows) may be recycled. This includes soft drink bottles and milk jugs. Caps must be removed and may be placed in the recycling bin. All containers must be rinsed out.

• Paper: All paper products except used personal type materials may be recycled. These items should be placed in brown paper bags or bundled together and tied; then they should be placed beside the recycling bin.

• Inert Waste: Tree limbs, grass clippings and leaves will be picked up on Mondays only. Clippings and leaves should be placed in a garbage bag and tied.

• Motor Oil: • Recycle used motor oil and filters by taking them to the auto craft centers or the Recycling Center, Building 4000, in Harmony Church.

Trash and recycle pickup schedule

Household trash and recycling will be collected once a week on the same day. If there is recyclable material mixed in with the trash can, it will not be picked up until the following week and recyclables are separated.

Public Notice
PURSUANT TO THE NATIONAL PRESERVATION ACT OF 1966 (AS AMENDED) ADVISORY COUNCIL ON HISTORIC PRESERVATION REGULATION 36 CER § 800.5 (e)(3) Proposed Demolition of Buildings 90 and 227 Fort Benning GA

Fort Benning proposes to demolish Buildings 90 and 227, which are part of the Fort Benning Main Post HIstoric District nominated to the National Register of Historic Places. Building 90 is a movie theater and Building 227 is an enlisted soldiers club constructed in 1939 and 1932, respectively. A new "ten-plex" theater replacing Building 90 will be constructed in the near future. A new enlisted soldiers club replacing Building 227 has already been constructed. No future missions for building 90 and 227 are currently planned nor are missions for these structured anticipated. Government estimates for maintaining or preserving Buildings 90 and 227 in their present or past use is in excess of $1.6 and $1 million, respectively. Fort Benning does not consider it to be in the best interest of the public to continue to utilize scarce resources for the continued maintenance and uneconomical repair of structures for which there is no mission. Any questions or comments regarding this proposal can be referred to: Commander, US Army Infantry Center ATTN: ATZB-PWN-P (Mr. Larry R. Jones) Bldg. 6, Meloy Hall, (Room 415) Fort Benning, GA 31905-5122. Written comments must be received no later than (THIRTY DAYS FROM THE INITIAL PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE.)

Past and present members of the airborne community meet at the

Airborne Awards

By Lori Egan
Bayonet staff writer

The 19th annual Airborne Awards Festival was April 24 through 26. Fort Benning's 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Infantry Regiment hosted members of the airborne community during their one-day visit to the post April 25.

People traveled from as far away as Hawaii and Europe to help celebrate the festival and pay tribute to all former and future Airborne soldiers.

"If you are airborne, you're airborne; you can't lose the camaraderie of the airborne community," retired Command Sgt. Maj. Jim Santos, Special Forces, said. "It's a family bond. I've been coming to this festival for 12 years. The first two years I came, I was still on active duty.

"This year, I brought 42 pineapples from Hawaii for the banquet," Santos continued.

More than 70 British paratroopers traveled from England and other parts of Europe to help celebrate with their American counterparts.

"The past two years, we've participated in the anniversary of World War II and the invasion of Normandy; and, this year, it seemed fitting that we come to the Airborne Festival," Gerry Delaney, a former British army jumpmaster, said.

"It's a good honor to be invited to come over and enjoy the good hospitality of your country," Delaney said.

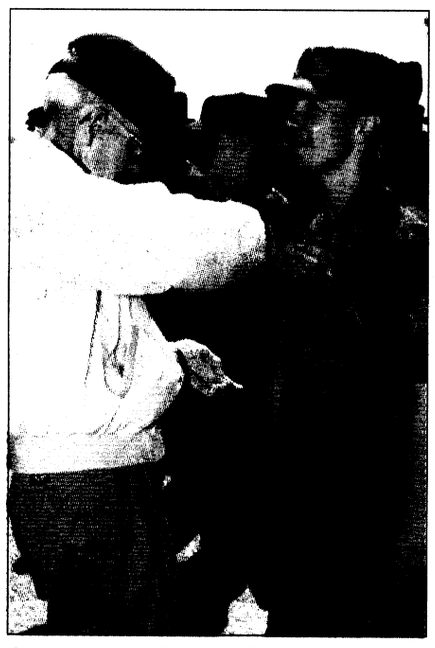
During the day, the Silver Wings demonstrated the stair-step maneuver; airborne instructors entertained the laughing crowd with a comic routine of how not to exit the 34-foot tower; the 34-foot tower was dedicated to John Swetish, who originated the concept of the 34-foot tower and engineered its construction; a classroom was dedicated to Rolland Duff, a World War II pathfinder who died last year in a parachuting accident in Russia; and a wreath was laid on the Airborne Memorial at the Airborne Walk.

The guest speaker for the Memorial Service was retired Lt. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, last year's recipient of Fort Benning's Doughboy Award.

"It's great to be at Fort Benning, to help celebrate the Airborne Festival," Kinnard said, "but honestly, at my age it's great to be anywhere."

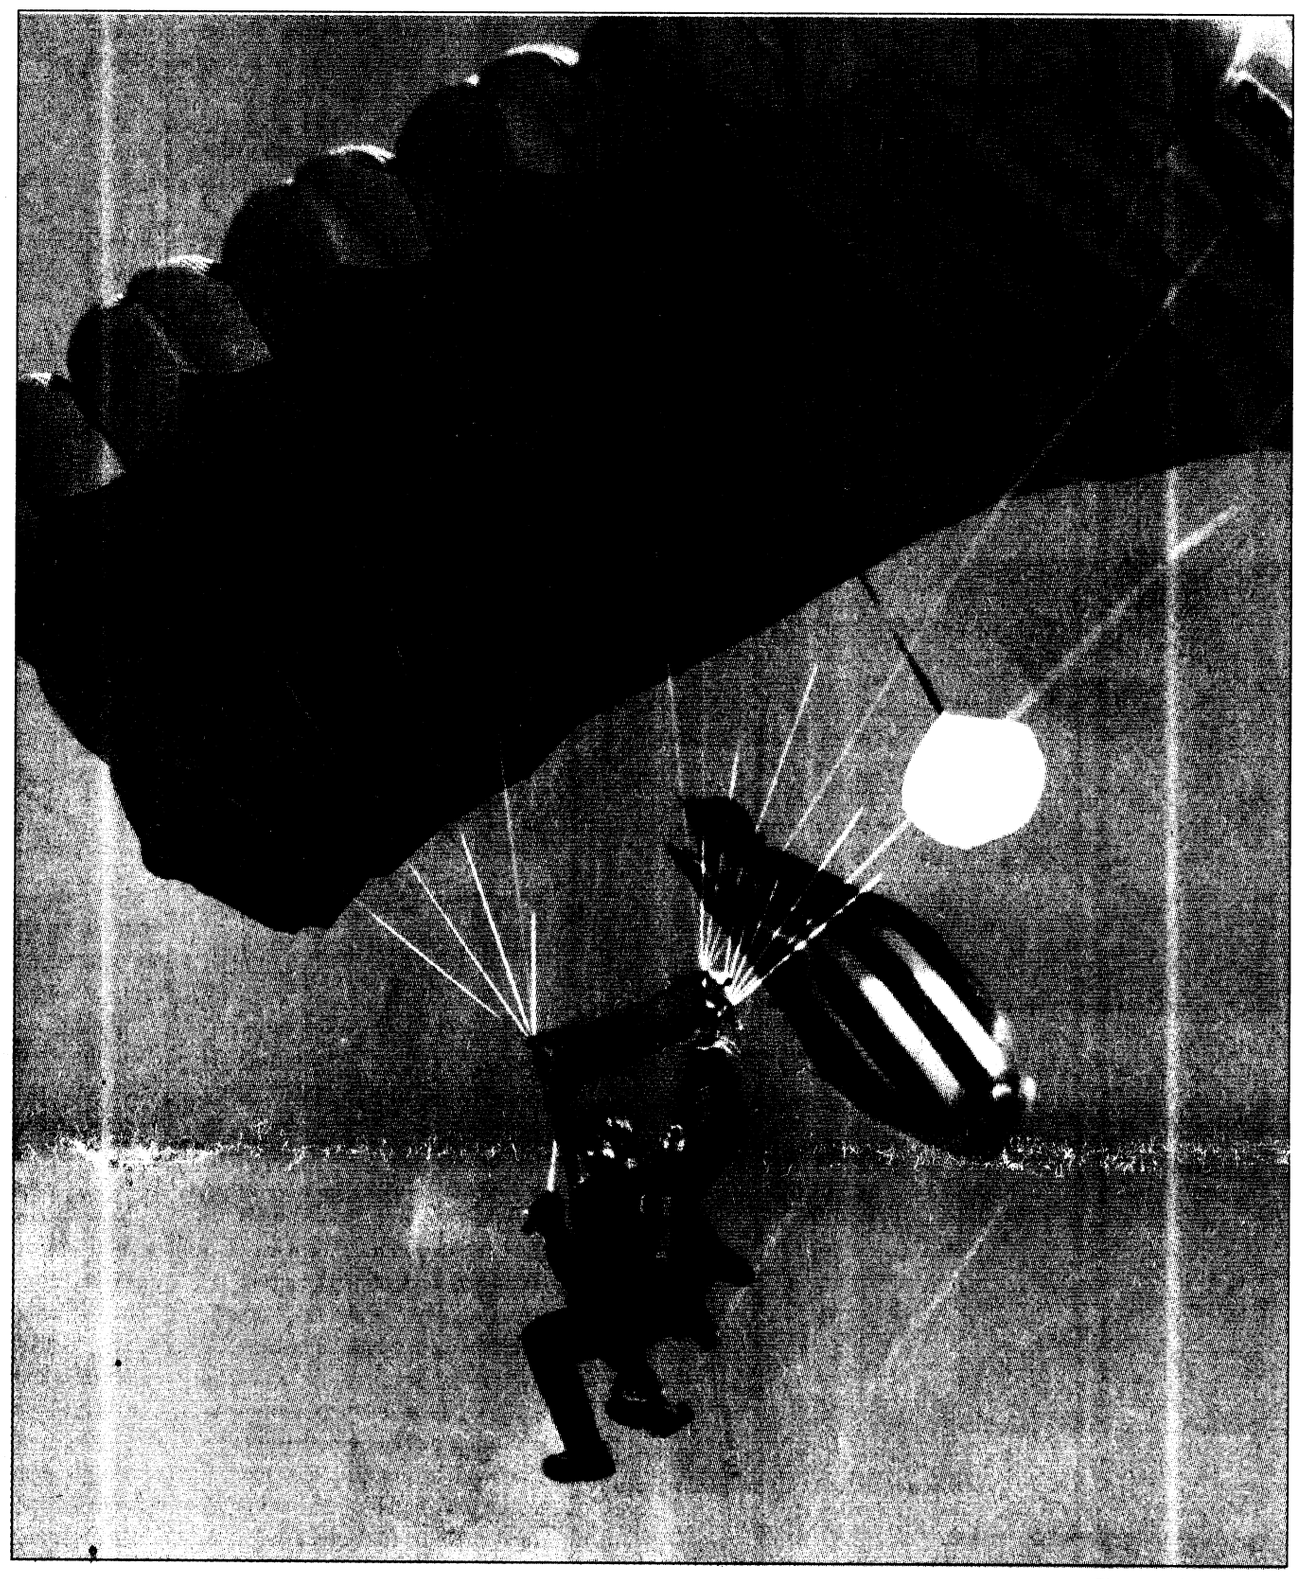
Kinnard told the crowd he went airborne for the three Bs — the badge, the boots and the bucks.

"In all sincerity though, men who will jump will also fight well and I wanted to be part of it, so I volunteered for Airborne School in 1942," the World War II vet said.



"I believe the airborne soldier has no superior in this world," Kinnard said.

"The flip side of the ugliness of war is the honor, the trust of those who fought beside you, the shared camaraderie, which is why we are here today.



"Airborne has been a wonderful, tremendous part of my life, and I'm content and honored to be with you today," Kinnard said. "Airborne!"

Kinnard then pinned the wings on the youngest members of the graduating class, the keepers of the wings.

The Airborne Walk was completed in 1989 and is maintained through the donations of the airborne community.

Multiplex theater breaks ground

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

The final stepping stone on the road to the soldiers of Fort Benning having their own 10 screen multiplex theater was crossed April 26 when the four key players in bringing the theater to post broke ground on Gordon Field.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix, Carmike Cinemas Chairman of the Board, Carl Patrick, retired Maj. Gen. Jerry A. White and Army Air Force Exchange Service Chief Operations Officer James C. McKinney broke ground on the spot where the theater will be constructed.

"This is a great step forward," Hendrix said. "Most of us have been to the best theaters all around the United States Army and they're just not good enough.

"So what we're going to get as a result of this action is a first-class, world-class theater for our soldiers. And the best installation in the Army deserves the best theater in the Army."

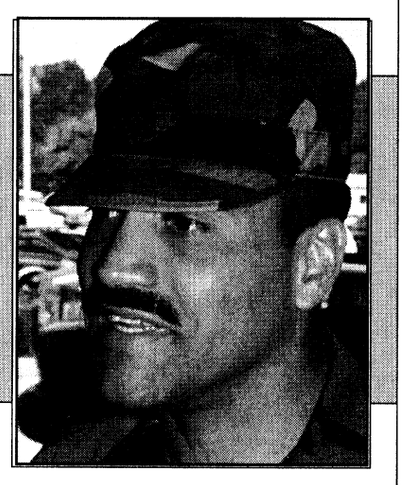
The new theater will feature recently released motion pictures at competitive prices. It will have more than 1,600 seats in auditoriums ranging in size from the two largest at 262 seats to the two smallest with a capacity of 106.

Military Services Inc. will spend $2.7 million dollars to build the new theater complex. AAFES and Fort Benning will not have to spend any funds towards the building of the the theater. Fort Benning will provide the land and the parking lot for the theater; then the theater will become the property of Fort Benning.

"I have great affection for Fort Benning," Patrick said. "Fort Benning is important in so many ways to this community and to the people of this community.

"I think that without question, with the possible exception of the Chattahoochee River, Fort Benning is by far the greatest asset to this community in the past 10 decades."

Patrick continued by saying he hoped the new theater being built on Fort Benning will bring a lot of happiness to a lot of people in the years to come and that he appreciated all the cooperation.



The grand opening for the cinema is scheduled for sometime in December.

Hooah!

Army lingo code word can mean just about anything to anybody

By Brian Bowman
Army News Service

commentary

It is not really a word, yet it is one of the most spoken forms of communication in the U.S. Army.

It can mean just about anything at all. It can be a question and the answer. When in doubt, just say it and you'll appear squared away.

Hooah.

Who the heck came up with that? Someone, please tell me. I mean, only in the Army can you have a perfectly coherent conversation that goes something like this (civilian translation provided):

Soldier one: "Hooah. (Hello.)"
Soldier two: "Hooah. (Hello.)"
Soldier one: "How was chow?"
Soldier two: "Hooah. (Same old, same old.)"
Soldier one: "You need to go talk to the first sergeant. Hooah? (OK?)
Soldier two: "Hooah. (No problem. It's taken care of.)"
Soldier one: "Hooah. (Good.) See ya later."
Soldier two: "Hooah. (Later, buddy.)"

Soldier one: "Hooah. (Right back at ya, my man.)"

Hey, a few more versatile words like "Hooah," and we'd need only 12, maybe 15 words in the entire English language. I've polled several people, but no one seems to know the true history of this word. How long has this guttural noise been associated with soldiers?

But who needs history, anyway?

We're talking fate here. It's karma, man. The Army wouldn't be the Army without hooah. Right? (I mean, hooah?) Hooah, which means nothing to anyone outside the Army, is a code word to be "in."

If you're in the Army and you never say hooah, stay away from me. That's bad karma, man. Your vibes aren't right. Maybe you need to meditate on it.

All I know is that three months ago, before my Army Reserve unit was called to active duty, hooah meant very little to me. I had heard it; I knew what it was, but it meant very little.

I wouldn't have been caught uttering it.

But after three months of deployment, dealing with muck, mines and mayhem, hooah makes sense. It explains this whole situation we're now all in.

Wouldn't you agree? (I mean, hooah?)

Editor's note: "Hooah," the familiar Army sentiment that roughly means "can do" or "good job," had its origins with the Second Dragoons in Florida in 1841.

In an attempt to end the war with the Seminoles, a meeting was arranged with Chief Coacoochee. After the meeting, a banquet ensued.

Officers of the garrison made a variety of toasts, such as "here's to luck!" and "the old grudge," before drinking.

Coacoochee asked Gopher John, an interpreter, the meaning of what was said. The interpreter explained that it means, "How d'ye do!," whereupon the chief, with great dignity, lifted his cup and, elevating it over his head, exclaimed in a deep, guttural and triumphant voice, "Hooah."

Proper use of safety belts required

I am writing to you about a safety concern. I am referring to automobiles with automatic seat belts.

While I was doing research in college a few years ago, I remember reading government documents about the dangers of head and neck injuries caused from wearing the shoulder strap without the lap belt. I had even read about decapitations occurring.

Also, I am aware of the warnings posted on the visors of cars with automatic seat belts about possible injuries, but I never paid attention to them or the documents. My family and I learned in a very difficult way that all of that information is true.

Last Mother's Day, my 18-year-old sister lost her life in a tragic accident. She was wearing an automatic shoulder strap, but for reasons unknown to us, her lap belt was not connected.

The cause of her death was a broken neck and head trauma. There is a strong possibility her neck was broken by the shoulder strap when she was ejected from the car and her head injuries were from impact with the ground. Because the lap belt was not covering the lower half of her body, she could still move and she was pulled under the shoulder strap.

Since that time, I have had the opportunity on six or seven occasions to be the passenger in cars with automatic seat belts. On each occasion, the drivers did not connect the lap belt, but they did use the automatic shoulder strap.

When I questioned them about their actions, most responded that they never connected the lap belt. They mentioned that they either didn't think about it at all or that it was a waste of time. Some even said it was too uncomfortable.

When I asked if they knew about the warning posted on the visor, most said they had never even bothered to read it or that they didn't pay attention to the warning.

My concern is that there may be general lack of knowledge about just how harmful these actions are. I often wonder how many people do simply disregard the warnings and if they know how tragic the consequences can be. Would these people think the lap belt is uncomfortable if they were in a wheelchair for the rest of their lives, assuming they were to be lucky enough to survive?

My sister was not speeding or doing anything reckless. Accident reconstruction shows that she simply swerved to miss something and lost control on the wet roads. The police do, however, have her listed as not wearing her seat belt because in my home state if both the lap belt and the shoulder strap are not connected, it is considered as no seat belt at all. If she had lived she probably would have been cited for a seat belt violation.

How knowledgeable are the majority about the laws concerning this issue? How many people drive daily under these harmful circumstances? Can you help me answer this question? Thank you for your time and consideration.

Reader says thank you for article

Thank you for the article that appeared in the April 5 edition of The Bayonet on the Stowers students.

We thought it was just wonderful, not only showing how effective the school's training is, but also the parents promoting safety and responsibility.

It's sad that in the world in which we live a parent would have to call 911 because a child is late from school. Being parents, we can imagine the possible scenarios that would run through your mind.

Thankfully, this story had the best ending it could have, but it also served as a reminder that we all need to do our part in educating our children about their own safety, as well as others, and to applaud the efforts made by the schools, police agencies and families of the Fort Benning community.

PROCLAMATION

In recognition of Asian Americans and Pacific Islander Americans and our nation's ethnic and national diversity, May is proclaimed "Asian Americans and Pacific Islander Heritage Month."

The theme for this year's observance is "Asian and Pacific Americans United — One Vision, One Mission, One Voice."

The United States, as a nation, is composed almost entirely of immigrants and their descendants. There are now more than 4 million Americans who can trace their ancestry to Asia or the Pacific Islands.

Their history is one of proud accomplishment with many contributions to the arts, literature, science, agriculture, industry, commerce and the armed forces of the United States.

Asian Americans and Pacific Islander Americans have contributed significantly in the struggle for America's national goals and in the quest for freedom and opportunity.

May fosters an increased national awareness of the history and contributions of Asian Americans and Pacific Islander Americans. It also inspires a renewed sense of pride.

I encourage everyone to enjoy activities here at Fort Benning during Asian Americans and Pacific Islander American Month.

Martina is greeted by her 'co-workers' at the hospital after her promotion to sergeant.

Hospital's canine mascot promoted to sergeant

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

Martina, the 6 1/2-year-old canine mascot of Martin Army Community Hospital, was promoted to sergeant April 26.

"She deserves it," said Margarite E. Brice, animal care specialist, Veterinary Services. "She's been a corporal for four years."

Martina has been working at MACH for six years, according to Brice, and she is the pioneer for the Human-Animal Bond Program at the hospital.

"That's a pretty common program in Army hospitals," said Brice. Martina visits the hospital's patients every Wednesday morning and Brice said the dog does an excellent job of cheering the patients.

"It makes a big difference in their attitudes when they see her," she said.

Maj. John R. Houser, chaplain at the hospital, agreed with Brice about the advantages of having Martina visit.

"She usually brings cheer to a lot of folks," he said. "She has a way of healing people we don't even know about."

During Martina's promotion, Command Sgt. Maj. Henry L. Holt, the hospital's command sergeant major, told of some of her training accomplishments.

"She has a perfect 100 points in her 'roll over' score," he said. Holt also indicated Martina's educational level as being "double dog."

Martina lives at the medical services' barracks during her off time and that is where she received her training, according to Brice.

"Everybody's had a chance to train her," she said.

Holt thinks highly of those involved with Martina's training.

"She's so obedient that it's almost touching to see her with the children," he said. "Our Vet Services are wonderful in doing all the right things to be sure she's healthy."

Among other training, Martina has learned to shake (with either paw), speak (bark upon command), whisper (bark softly upon command) and play dead (when someone points at her and says "bang".

Martina is a mix between Catahoula leopard dog and Australian sheepdog and began her work at MACH in 1990.

14th annual Best Ranger Competition begins today

USAIC Public Affairs Office

Ranger teams from across the country will take on a challenge aimed at testing their physical and mental endurance during the 14th annual David E. Grange Jr. Best Ranger Competition today through Sunday at Fort Benning.

The three-day, non-stop competition, which has been compared to top athletic events such as the Eco Challenge and the Ironman, challenges two-man Ranger teams to rigorous events designed to test their physical conditioning, Ranger competency, cunning and team strategy.

Competitors from Army units across the country must be Ranger-qualified, meaning they wear the Ranger tab earned upon graduation from Ranger School at Fort Benning. As many as 36 teams are expected to participate.

In past years, the competition events were made known to the competitors ahead of time in order for them to properly train. This year, however , the competition will be conducted on a "come as you are" basis with no tasks or events published prior to the competition, according to Best Ranger coordinator Harry Ikner. The program was changed based on the desires of commanders in the field who wanted to reduce the amount of time competitors were away from the unit preparing for the competition. Their concern was that, in recent years, competitors were spending too much time training for specific events.

Teams arrived at Fort Benning April 26 in order to acclimate and receive final instruction for the competition. The Best Ranger Competition begins early Friday and concludes nearly 60 hours later, Sunday. A special Ranger-in-Action demonstration is scheduled for Monday at 9:30 a.m. at Victory Pond, followed by an awards ceremony at 10:30 a.m.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Dennis Reimer is the invited guest speaker.

Association of United States Army to sponsor essay contest

Army Magazine

The Association of the United States Army announces the third annual Army Magazine Essay Contest.

Essays topics include:

• Leadership Training for the Future

• Innovative Missions for the Reserve Components

• The Next Step in the Revolution in Military Affairs

• Careers in Tomorrow's Army

• Career Incentives and Expectations — Planning a Career in a Downsized Army

• The Significance Given to College Courses and Advanced Education for Promotions

Three essays will be selected for cash prizes and publication.

Anyone is eligible to enter, except employees of AUSA. First prize is $1,000. Second prize is $500. Third prize is $250.

Entry rules

• Essays must be original and must not exceed 2,500 words.

• Essays should not be submitted elsewhere. Army magazine never considers simultaneous submissions.

• Essays should be written by individuals — no coauthors, groups, task forces or committees.

• All entries should be sent to Editor, Army magazine, Box 1560, Arlington, VA 22210 ATTN: Essay Contest, and must be postmarked no later than May 31.

• The author's name shall not appear on the essay. Each author shall write a two- or three-sentence synopsis of the essay on a cover sheet. A sealed envelope shall accompany the entry. Inside the envelope will be the author's name, brief biographical sketch, Social Security number, address, day and night commercial telephone numbers, and the same two- or three-sentence synopsis that appears on the cover sheet.

• All essays must be typewritten, double-spaced on paper approximately 8 1/2" x 11". Submit three copies of the essay.

• Letters notifying the winners will be sent in August.

• The authors of prize-winning essays must transfer all rights, including the copyright, to AUSA before publication.

• The editor of Army magazine will also review the essays not selected for an award for possible publication in the magazine. The writers of these articles will be compensated.

• Army magazine reserves the right to edit the essays for style, accuracy or space limitations.

SGLI changes coverage

By Rick Parker
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Public Law 104-106 was passed by Congress Feb. 10. This law, among other things, amended the Servicemembers Group Life Insurance program. These changes became effective April 1.

Life insurance coverage for active duty service members under SGLI automatically increased to $200,000. Of course, in the past, you were automatically insured for $100,000, but could request increased coverage to $200,000.

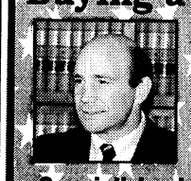
If you want less than $200,000 in coverage, you must complete a Form SGLV 8286 in which you decline coverage. You can decline coverage in increments of $10,000, down to no coverage at all.

The following scenarios may help in explaining how the change works.

•If you had $200,000 in coverage prior to April 1 and wish to remain at that level, you don't need to do anything — your $200,000 coverage will automatically continue.

• If you had less than $200,000 in coverage prior to April 1 and wish to increase your coverage to $200,000, you don't need to do anything — your coverage will automatically increase.

• If you had less than $200,000 in coverage prior to April 1 and wish to remain at less than $200,000 coverage, you must complete a Form SGLV 8286 in which you decline additional coverage. If you do so during April, you will experience no additional premium charges.



Speaking of premiums, they will remain at 90 cents per $10,000 per month. If you don't have a calculator handy, that's $18 for $200,000 in coverage.

The change will not effect how you have your beneficiaries named, but it could effect how much your beneficiaries receive. For example, if you had $100,000 in coverage before April 1 and had designated your mother to get $75,000 and your brother to get $25,000, the increase (if you don't decline the additional coverage) will mean that your mother would get $150,000 and your brother would get $50,000.

If you wish to change your beneficiaries or change how the money is to be split among more than one beneficiary, you should complete a Form SGLV 8286 after April 1.

If you have any questions concerning this, you may call the Legal Assistance Division at 545-3281 for an appointment.

Instructors volunteer to help during Olympics

By Judith O'Toole
School of the Americas

Long before the Olympic Torch ever passes through Columbus for the 1996 Summer Olympic Games in Atlanta, people throughout the state have been preparing for the games.

Of course, the people that come to mind are the athletes. But all around Georgia, there are a whole lot of people involved behind the scenes. Many of these are volunteers, and many of those are stationed at Fort Benning.

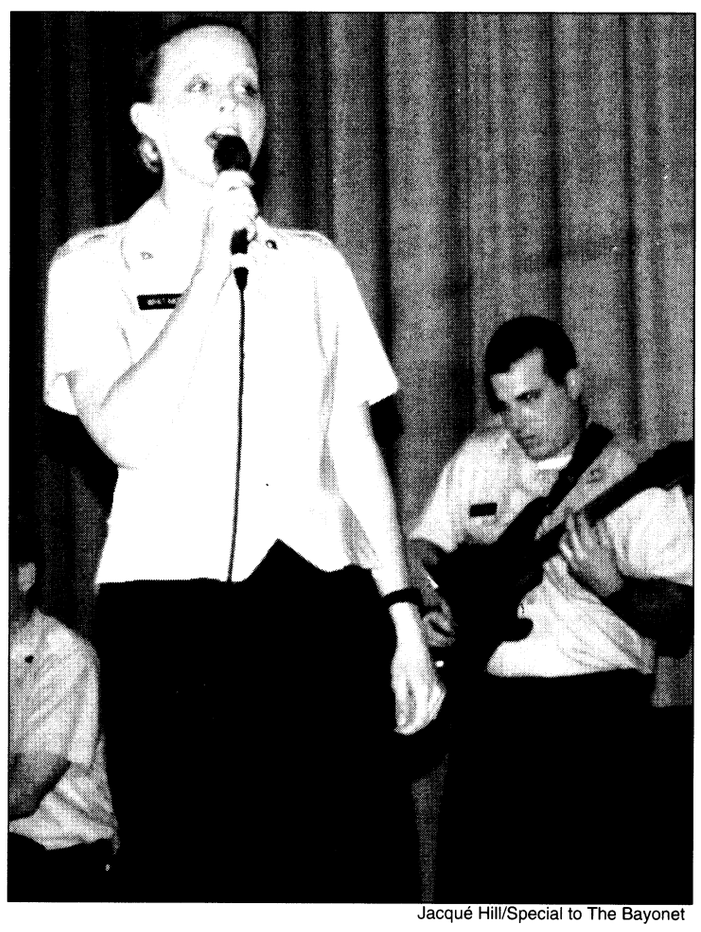
Two noncommissioned officers from the School of the Americas will be language agents for the Olympic softball competition in Columbus.

Sgt. 1st Class Bobby Hernandez, SOA security manager, and Sgt. 1st Class Joel Villa, SOA psychological operations instructor, will be part of a language team that consists of bilingual people who are fluent in either Spanish, French or Chinese. Because of their Spanish language skills, they will be in the group that will help the Puerto Rican softball team.

With each language, there will be a team to support the players. Every team will have two groups, and those groups will be split between the Olympic Village at Fort Benning and the stadium, Hernandez said.

Hernandez will be at the ballpark. He said he will basically be communicating for the players. For instance, if one of the players has a question about a referee's call, then Hernandez will interpret.

"We'll be translating in first-person style, which is a lot more difficult than third-person interpreting," he said.



The volunteers have been working hard getting ready for this. They interpreted at the Superball Softball Tournament last year to prepare for their role in the Olympics. And they have taken two interpersonal relations classes to help them get ready.

"I've always wanted to help out and thought that my language skills would be helpful," Hernandez said.

Villa, however, is an old hand at Olympic volunteering. The San Diego, Calif., native helped with security during the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles. This time though, Villa said he wanted to do a little more. He will be volunteering in the press area during to games, interpreting for the Spanish-speaking players.

Whenever any of the team members are interviewed by the press, Villa said, he will be right next to them to interpret.

"I enjoyed helping out in 1984, so I thought I would keep up with the tradition," Villa said. "I mean, how many people can say that they've been involved in not only one Olympics, but two?"

Separation, retirement programs to continue

By Stephen Barrett
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON — Two separation programs designed to ease service members' transition to civilian life will continue in fiscal 1997. DoD is also programming an additional $109 million to continue the early retirement program.

However, with DoD's goal of $1.45 million in active service in sight, Defense Undersecretary Edwin Dorn said the Voluntary Separation Incentive and Special Separation Benefit programs will gradually stop.

"Those programs are going to remain in place until we are at our target number," Dorn said. "Once DoD finishes its drawdown, we will not need to pay people to leave the force. We'll allow VSI and SSB to lapse."

Defense officials said DoD has budgeted for the VSI and SSB programs.

"Those eligible and desiring to take advantage of either program will be able to do so," said Army Lt. Col. William Foster of DoD's Compensation Office.

For fiscal 1997, DoD budgeted $26.1 million to continue the Special Separation Benefit program. This incentive provides lump-sum payments to service members with six to 19 years of service who voluntarily separate. Payments are based on rank and time in service, with eligible members usually in overstrength skills.

Officials hope to separate nearly 450 service members using the Special Separation Benefit and another 385 with the Variable Separation Incentive. The latter pays an annual separation allowance based on the member's rank and longevity.

Over 106,000 service members have used the programs since 1992. The largest exit was that first year, when over 47,000 opted for the Special Separation Benefit and nearly 6,300 others took Variable Separation Incentive offers.

Foster said over 2,800 service members will retire in 1997 under the Temporary Early Retirement Authority. This program allows service members with 15 to 20 years' service to retire early.

Although the services set their own requirements, they generally offer early retirement to those in overstrength or discontinued job specialties. Since fiscal 1992, nearly 33,000 service members opted for early retirement.

The services may use selective early retirement and reduction-in-force boards to reduce personnel numbers, if needed.

"If we can get the people out by using voluntary methods, we won't have to force people out," Foster said.

In the past five years, more than 10,000 service members received early retirement notices — including nearly 1,000 in fiscal 1995. The Marine Corps met its personnel cutbacks in 1994, and both the Army and Air Force will complete their drawdown by October. However, the Navy will continue its drawdown over the next three years, officials said.

The tape covers the proper management of hazardous waste. It is intended to be used for an eight-hour course but can also be used for short training sessions.

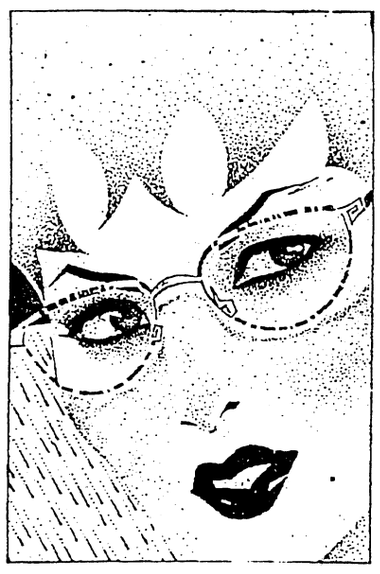
Copies of this tape can be checked out in the Environmental Programs Management Branch office located in Room 413, Meloy Hall, Building 6.

Fort Benning Law Day

By Clay C. Schuett
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Law Day at Fort Benning was Wednesday, and the post celebrated with a luncheon Tuesday, a poster and essay contest at the schools and a golf tournament today at the Follow Me Golf Course.

The luncheon was at the Columbus Iron Works Trade and Convention Center.



Also, the Fort Benning School System is conducting both essay and poster contests celebrating the Law Day theme, which is "The U.S. Constitution — The Original American Dream."

Law Day was originally established in 1958 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower to strengthen America's heritage of liberty, justice, and equality under law. This year's theme is intended to be an opportunity for Americans to reflect on their nation's rich heritage and appreciate the vital contributions that their citizenry make to their constitutional democracy.

USAIC Public Affairs

The River Walk Relay kicks off Military Appreciation Week May 13 and the week culminates with Armed Forces Day May 18.

Military Appreciation Week is sponsored by the civilian communities in conjunction with Armed Forces Day. It is also being hosted by the Association of the U.S. Army to foster goodwill between the military and the local community.

Military Appreciation Week activities will include unit competitions, military demon-strations and equipment displays, a business fair, an open house, selection of Mr. and Mrs. AUSA, a picnic, and the ever-popular "Burn the General" run.

The idea behind Military Appreciation Week is to enhance morale, to demonstrate the Army's preparedness and to share the spirit of cooperation between Fort Benning and the local communities.

Job fair set for May 16

By Jacqué Hill
Special to The Bayonet©

The third annual Job Fair sponsored by the Chattahoochee Valley-Fort Benning Chapter Association of the U.S. Army will occur May 16.

The Job Fair will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Main NCO Club, Building 2784.

"We are anticipating 70, or more, businesses to participate this year," Bruce C. Tait, chairman AUSA Job Fair, said. "Local, state and national businesses will be on site.

"We need all types of positions filled, including everything from mechanical to teaching and more," he said.

Some of the local businesses expected to participate include Synovus and Total Systems, Cott Beverages, Century 21 North Properties, W. C. Bradley and Charbroil, according to Tait.

Columbus Regional Health Care and the Moscogee County School District are expected to participate, said Tait, as well as the Federal Bureau of Prisons from Pennsylvania.

Representatives from the FBI and Secret Service are also slated to be at the Job Fair, along with David Poythress, labor commissioner for Georgia, Commanding General Maj. Gen. John W. Hendrix and Steve Butler, CEO and president of W. C. Bradley. Butler is also the president of the local chapter of AUSA..

Tait is expecting a large number of attendees.

"Last year, we had roughly 1,100 attendees," he said. "This year, we're hoping for an attendance between 1,100 and 1,500."

The Army Community Service, Army Career Alumni Program and Georgia Department of Labor are assisting AUSA with the Job Fair's organization. All active duty and retired military personnel, Department of Defense civilian employees and the family members of both are invited to attend the event, according to Tait. He also said AUSA sponsors the Job Fair for several reasons, but mainly to aid the soldiers preparing to separate from the military.

"It's an opportunity for AUSA to show its appreciation (for soldiers) exiting the Army," he said.

Mark C. Mills, acting manager of the Family Member Employment Assistance Program, urges attendees to arrive at the Job Fair prepared.

"We recommend that everyone have résumés done with numerous copies ready," he said. "Last year, our recommendation was 20 copies, but most people discovered that amount was not adequate. I would suggest having 40 to 50 copies prepared for the event."

For information, contact Bruce Tait, AUSA, at 649-7423; Mark Mills, FMEAP, at 545-6969; or Mary Allen, ACAP, at 545-7020.

Retirees plan to gather

By Amy Durham
Special to the Bayonet©

Fort Benning will host its 14th annual Retiree Open House May 16 through 18.

More than 35,000 retirees will have an opportunity to receive up-to-date information about their benefits and entitlements as well as learn the latest Army operational developments.

Friede McDonald, retirement services officer, stressed the importance of retiree participation.

"This is a chance for (retirees) to see what the active Army is doing — all the changes occurring in the military," she said.

During the three-day event, retirees and family members from the Alabama, Georgia and Florida service area will be able to tour the National Infantry Museum as well as participate in a tour of the Dismounted Battlespace Battle Lab's Simulation Network Facility.

Retirees living outside the 40-mile Martin Army Community Hospital catchment area may also get a physical examination May 16. McDonald said her office has received many inquiries from retirees living within the 40-mile area, wanting to schedule an exam.

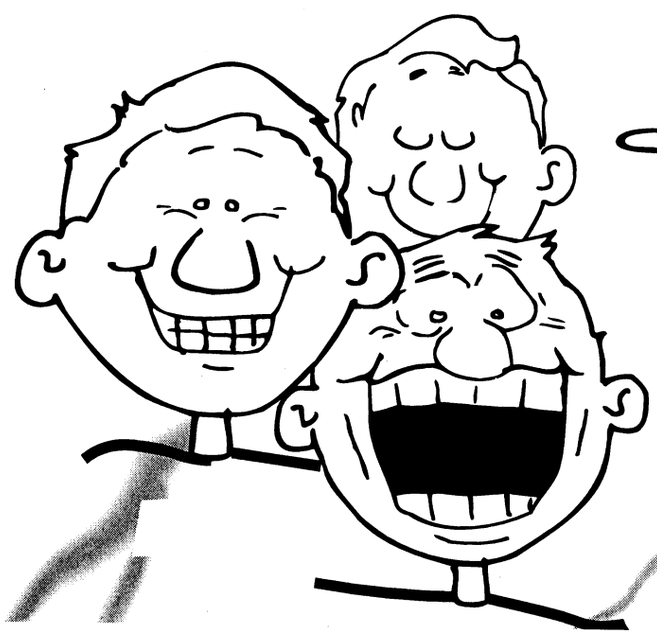
"Physicals are only for those living outside the area," she said.

Registration deadline for physicals is close of business today.

According to McDonald, the primary open house event will be the culminating seminar and information fair that will be from noon to 3 p.m. in Infantry Hall, Building 4, May 18.

Guest speakers from various retiree agencies will provide the latest information on subjects from Tricare, Veterans Affairs and Social Security.

"Representatives from Defense Finance and Accounting Service (Retired Pay), will come from Cleveland with laptops," McDonald said. "With those computers, retirees will have a direct link to the database.



"Retirees need to bring their latest pay statement so changes and updates can be made on the spot."

Along with finance help, McDonald said Col. Everett W. Newcomb III, commander, Martin Army Community Hospital, will brief participants on Tricare and how it affects them.

Individuals interested in attending the open house can register or receive more information by calling 545-1813, 545-2541, or 545-5369. Deadline for events other than physicals is May 10.

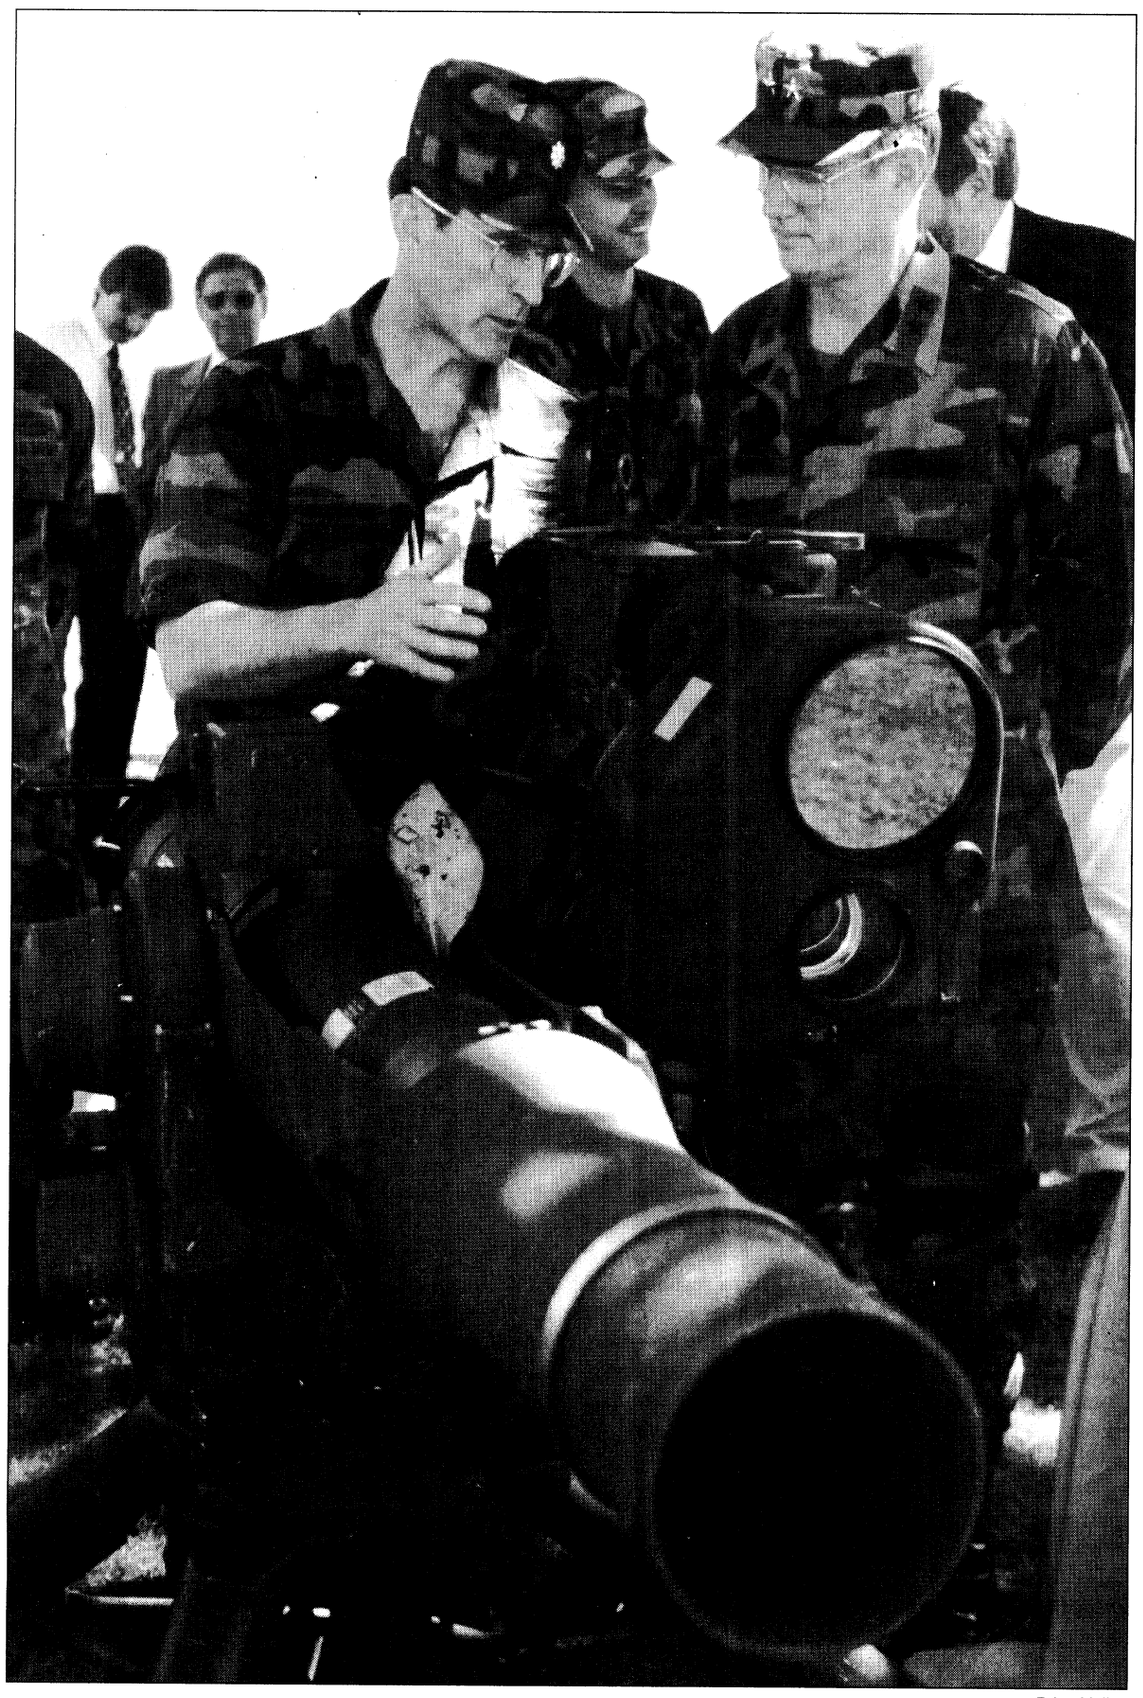
WEAPONS SYSTEMS

New ITAS and IBAS displayed

By Brian R. Voller
Bayonet staff writer

The future of the infantry was demonstrated April 25 when the Improved Target Acquisition System and the Improved Bradley Acquisition System were displayed in front of Infantry Hall.

The ITAS system is a change to the current tube-launched, optically tracked, wire-guided missile acquisition system and fire and control subsystems. The program is designed to increase the soldiers' ability to acquire targets. It also provides gunners with the ability to fire all types of TOW missiles from the ground or when fired from the high-mobility, multi-purpose wheeled vehicle.



The ITAS uses a second generation infrared target system that allows the soldiers to see the target better, digital components and an eye-safe laser range finder to provide proper distances to the targets and to better assist the firer in identifying friendly or enemy targets, adverse weather and day-night capability. The key additions to the ITAS includes an automatic boresight for zeroing the weapon, enhanced target tracking and an embedded training program that assists in training of the soldier.

"The improvements with this new system are in the target acquisition, the second generation FLIR (forward looking infrared) and you can tell friendly from enemy better," said Sgt. Mark Benedict, an instructor with Company B, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment. "There is also an embedded trainer. This allows you to see the simulated missile when it's fired during training. With the old TOW 2, you couldn't see the missile.

"This is a prototype; but, if everything works the way it's planned to work, this system will be quite a big upgrade from the TOW 2 system."

The IBAS for the Bradley Fighting Vehicle is similar to the ITAS in its changes to the current target acquisition system for the vehicle. Its main objective is to increase the soldiers' ability to acquire targets and improve engagement ranges, while retaining the ability to fire all configurations of the TOW missile from the IBAS. The IBAS detection range is beyond the maximum effective range of both the 25 mm gun and the TOW missile.

"These new systems are a great improvement over the old systems," said Sgt. 1st. Class Robert Timmons, instructor Company B, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment. "This new technology should put us at the top and take our soldiers into the 21st century."

SOA conducts course about counternarcotics

By Judith O'Toole
School of the Americas

Most people believe that if you want to win at something, you must be able to outsmart your opponent.

That is the reason a chemist from the Drug Enforcement Agency spoke to students of the School of the Americas' Counternarcotics Course April 23 about the way cocaine is produced.

The idea is that if you want to stop the drug trade, you need to know how drugs are grown, produced and transported, according to Peggy Stevenson, DEA chemist.

First, Stevenson explained to the students how the coca plant is harvested. She said one of the most important things about harvesting is that it is not all done at one time.

"When someone goes to a grower and says they want 10 kilos of cocaine base, the appropriate amount of leaves is then picked at that time," Stevenson said.

The growers cut it down by hand, she said, one row at a time depending on the size of the order. By the time the last row is picked, leaves on the first row will have already reformed.

She told the students that the plants can be harvested three to four times a year.

"After the leaves are picked, it is normal to air-dry them for about 24 hours," Stevenson said.

There are two reasons this is accomplished in this way, she told the students. Dry leaves are more stable and do not rot as easily as fresh leaves. And the leaves are lighter, so more of them can be packed into a bag to be transported to be processed.

Stevenson said most of the processing of the coca plant is done in the jungle. She also said the students should pay close attention, when in the field, to signs that extraction pits may have recently been set up in the area.

Cocaine is rendered from dried leaves in "pits". These are not really pits at all, but portable tubs, made from bamboo stakes and a heavy plastic.

"The ground is lined in plastic, and the bamboo stakes are put into the ground in a rectangular shape," Stevenson said. "Then, the plastic is pulled up over the stakes."

The pits are usually about waist deep and are filled with the dried leaves and water, she said. Sulfuric acid is then added to the mixture. The acid changes the pH level of the plant to make it cocaine. Then, about five workers get into the acid-ridden pit and stomp on the leaves for about an hour.

Stevenson said the more the leaves are broken apart, the more cocaine they can get from the leaf. The acid mixture is then removed from the leaves and the process is repeated about five more times.

The 10-week course, attended by officers and noncommissioned officers from throughout Latin America, is designed to provide specialized training in the development, planning and performing of counternarcotics operations.

The almost 60 students in the course agreed they learned a lot from the information Stevenson gave them.

"Learning things like this is so important to our work," said Dominican Republic 1st Lt. Aris Jimenez.

Jimenez said Stevenson made the class very interesting with visual aids and her experience on the subject was very evident.

U.S. and Russian soldiers conduct training exercise

By Colin R. Ward
358th Mobile Public Affairs Detachment

BOSNIA — U.S. and Russian soldiers continue to prove that former potential adversaries can become fast friends.

The latest example occurred earlier this month when about 50 U.S. soldiers from Battery A , 4th Battalion, 29th Field Artillery, traveled to Task Force Eagle's Russian Brigade sector for a professional exchange of fire-support tactics, techniques and procedures.

The soldiers traveled to the Russian encampment where they spent four days and three nights in a bombed-out school building that Russian soldiers now call home.

During the exercise, the U.S. artillerymen assisted their Russian counterparts with the daily task of cutting firewood for the wood-burning stove that heats the old school.

The chore proved to be an "ice breaker" for the soldiers. What followed was a genuine display of camaraderie and interest in each other's work and world.

Soldiers exchanged patches, hats, flags, money, rank insignia and other items to keep as souvenirs. Flash bulbs popped in the hallways as soldiers documented this historic joint exercise.

"I would just like to have something from the Americans that I could show my family," said Pvt. Colt Pershoeva of the Russian Airborne Brigade.

The first full day of training began with soldiers doing physical training. After breakfast, the soldiers moved to an open field north of the encampment, where the training took place.

Russian soldiers peered down the road where the first signs of the rumbling U.S. Army 155 mm howitzers could be seen.

Following a sweep of the artillery emplacement area by the reconnaissance team, the cannons rolled into sight and aligned in a diamond wedge formation. Once the battery was prepared to fire the Russians again examined the weapons, inspecting every inch of the massive systems.

The next day it was the Russians' turn to supply the training activity. In similar fashion, they conducted their artillery emplacement exercise. Given the smaller size of the Russian 2S9 self-propelled artillery vehicle, the action was somewhat faster.

A joint formation was on the day of the American's departure. Both commanders exchanged tokens of appreciation. The U.S. soldiers also extended an invitation to their new Russian training partners to visit their lodging area so they could return the hospitality. (Army News Service)

Rangers redeploy to Fort Benning

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The 75th Ranger Regiment Headquarters and 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, redeployed to Fort Benning April 25, following training at the Army's Joint Readiness Training Center at Fort Polk, La.

RANGER

The soldiers jumped on to Fryar Drop Zone from six C141 Starlifter Aircraft to reunite with their families after 12 days of intensive training in exercise Brilliant Quest.

The exercise was the largest collective exercise by the Ranger Regiment this year and included the Regiment's 1st Battalion, stationed at Hunter Army Airfield, Fort Stewart, Ga., and the 2nd Battalion, stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

After 48 hours of mission planning and preparation, the battalion soldiers air assaulted into the new area of operation.

"The mission was clear — kill all the enemy in our area of operation," said Battalion Commander Lt. Col. Frank Kearney.

"We have the best soldiers in the world and simply wanted to give them freedom of access to close with and destroy the enemy."

The exercise was conducted against the fictional island country of Corina to simulate an assault on an insurgent force using a combination of complex assaults, infiltration techniques and surprise to defeat the Cortinian Liberation Front.

Rangers from the 75th Ranger Regiment participate in a mass tactical jump onto Fryar Drop Zone during their redeployment .

The opposing forces were made up of soldiers assigned to the 1st Battalion, 509th Infantry, from Fort Polk, La.

"The enemy is always adjusting and preparing themselves," said Capt. Dave Morrison, battalion intelligence officer.

"My job is to try and template where the enemy is located and how he will react during different situations."

The initial stages of the exercise included a combined special operations task force with the 3rd Battalion executing an airfield seizure.

"The airfield seizure is one of our favorite missions and one that we consider our strength," Battalion Operations Officer Maj. Steven Townsend said.

In the end, the rangers defeated the aggressors by destroying their offensive and logistics capability and preventing them from conducting further attacks against the Cortinian government.

After defeating the Cortinian Liberation forces, the rangers prepared for their redeployment back to Fort Benning.

Play it Safe

By Amy Durham
Special to the Bayonet©

While children were wandering through an M-2A2 Bradley fighting vehicle, climbing in the hot seat of a bright yellow fire engine and taking a closer look at Blinky, the talking Police car, parents and community leaders were sending the message, "Play safely."

Hundreds of Fort Benning families took advantage the fourth annual Mayors' Safety Carnival April 27 at Riverside.

While safety is a concern for all communities, Michelle Marley, Indianhead Terrace mayor and president of the Fort Benning Mayors' Association, said there are a lot of rules to live by when residing on a military installation.

It is the combination of people living in a smaller radius, with slow speed limits and a lot of traffic, which brought out Military Police representatives and others to stress safety.

According to Spc. Dennis Freese, Traffic Section, MPA, the biggest thing he wanted to stress to children and to their parents was the importance of helmets, whether they are on a bike or in-line skates.

"If we see a child without a helmet," he said, "we'll make the child get off and we'll walk him or her home."

Freese said Fort Benning safety officials had been pushing the post helmet regulation and now that Georgia has passed a law requiring helmet usage, it only reinforced what the Department of Public Safety is doing.

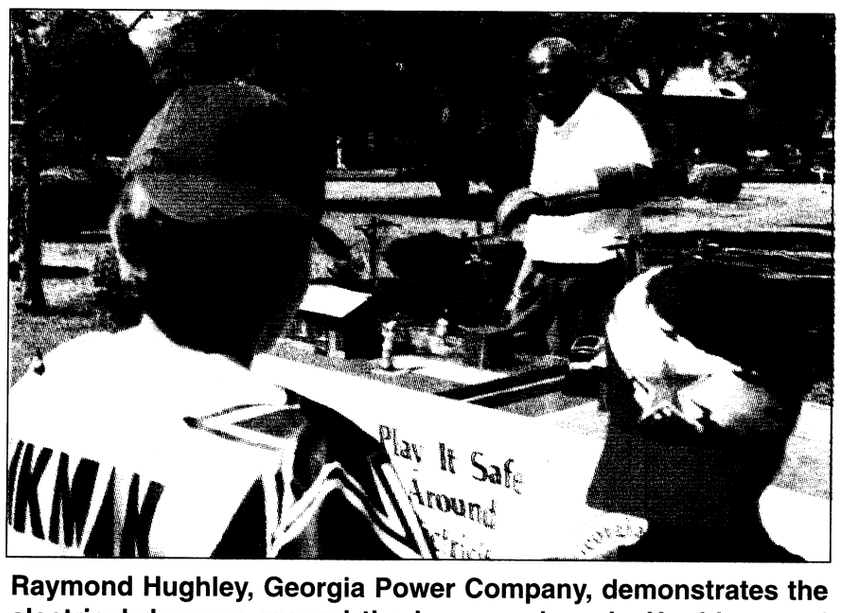
Representatives from the Department of Natural Resources were also talking safety — of the boating kind. According to Cpl. John Harkins, families who like to hit the lakes and beaches should know the new law regarding personal flotation devices.

"Effective July 1, all boats, including those under 16 feet, will be required to have wearable PFDs on board," he said.

Ranger Larry Deal said the team did not come to the safety carnival just to talk rules.

"We also want to get kids more interested in the outdoors — fishing and hunting," he said.

Deal said if they can teach children proper procedures for participating in outdoor sports, they hope to make a lasting impression that will carry into each child's adult life.



Teaching children safe and healthy habits early is key according to representatives of the many agencies that participated. Many were there to inform parents and children of the common, but fatal dangers lurking in the home.

PRE-K PROGRAM

Schools include four-year-olds

Classes begin in 1996-1997 school year

By Lori Egan
Bayonet staff writer

Fort Benning's 4-year-olds are being offered a half-day prekindergarten program for the coming school year.

To be eligible for the pre-K program, children need to be 4 on or before Sept. 1.

"It will be a five-day, half-day program, which uses a very developmentally appropriate curriculum," Kathy Einhorn, Fort Benning Schools' assistant director of special education and coordinator of the pre-K program, said.

The program's curriculum is being designed to actively involve 4-year-olds in learning, Einhorn said. Certified teachers and aides will act as facilitators, expanding children's learning for two and half hours a day during the upcoming school year.

"We are trying to plan a program comparable to state and other Department of Defense domestic elementary and secondary schools," she said. "The curriculum will be appropriate for 4-year-olds; the child's day will be organized, not just filled with rote activities. We want the program to help prepare the children for kindergarten."

There will be both morning and afternoon sessions offered.

"We are looking at having at least one pre-K class at each elementary school," Einhorn said.

The class size will be approximately 20 students, which is in line with the accrediting agency standards, Einhorn said.

"The children will go to their neighborhood school and transportation will be provided according to Fort Benning policy," she said.

If a child is attending a post daycare, school officials will take that into consideration when placing the child in a school's pre-K class, Einhorn said.

Registration for the pre-K program will be Tuesday at the neighborhood schools. After that, central registration will take place in the Special Education Office, Room 15, Building 2670, on Custer Road.

Registration forms will be sent home with school age children Monday. Forms will also be available at the child development centers, the Commissary, the Post Exchange and Martin Army Community Hospital.

Parents need to bring the registration form, their child's birth certificate and proof of post address or a billeting letter stating the family will have housing within 90 days to register.

School and busing assignments will be available in mid-August.

U.S. Naval Institute premieres essay contest for enlisted personnel

U.S. Naval Institute

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The U.S. Naval Institute, publisher of the Proceedings magazine, will now conduct an annual essay contest exclusively for enlisted personnel. Submission deadline for the first Naval Institute Enlisted Essay Contest will be Sept. 1.

The Naval Institute Enlisted Essay Contest, restricted to enlisted personnel — active duty, reserve, and retired — will have prizes of $1,000 for the first-place winner, $750 for second honorable mention and $500 for second honorable mention. The contest will not be restricted by service or country or subject — no subject is too large or too small.

Submission guidelines

The Editorial Board of the U.S. Naval Institute will judge the essays. Essays must be original, must not exceed 2,500 words and must not have been previously published. An exact word count must appear on the title page. Direct all entries to U.S. Naval Institute Enlisted Essay Contest, 118 Maryland Avenue, Annapolis, Md. 21402-5035. Essays must be posted marked on or before Sept. 1.

The name of the author shall not appear on the essay. Each author shall assign a motto in addition to the title of the essay. This motto must appear (a) on the title page of the essay in lieu of the author's name, along with the title of the essay, and (b) by itself on the outside of an accompanying sealed envelope containing the name, address, telephone number, social security number, short biography of the essayist, the title of the essay and the motto. The Naval Institute will not open this envelope until the Editorial Board has made its selections.

All essays must be typewritten, double-spaced, on paper approximately 81/2 inches by 11 inches. Submit two copies. Participants must also submit an IBM-compatible disk and specify software used.

The U.S. Naval Institute is an independent, professional society dedicated to the advancement of knowledge of the naval and sea services.

Today, nearly 3,000 enlisted personnel are members of the professional society that publishes the 122-year-old monthly magazine Proceedings, the bimonthly Naval History, the annual Naval Review and more than 500 books.

With nearly 90,000 members, the Naval Institute sponsors an ongoing series of seminars for naval professionals and others from all walks of military and civilian life.

Benning youth vaults past 108 competitors

USAIC Public Affairs Office

During the March 23 State Level 4 Gymnastics meet in Cartersville, Ga., 9-year-old Robyn Hinds, daughter of Capt. Russ and Beth Hinds of Fort Benning, competed against 110 gymnasts to place second overall.

With an overall score of 36.175, Hinds vaulted past 108 girls, many of whom had been competing longer than she has been taking classes.

Hinds

The first-year gymnast achieved a remarkable feat, according to her coach, Brad Godown.

"Robyn has a phenomenal ability to learn," Godown said. Coupled with her talent and hard work, Godown said, Hinds was one of those students a coach loves to work with.

Hard work helped Hinds to not only get to the competition but also to pass so many of her peers. Her efforts helped Robyn place first in local competitions — the Bear My Dreams Invitational, Tara Classic, Valentine Invitational and Spring Fling — which qualified her for the state competition in March.

"I practice three days a week, three hours a day," she said. And that time does not seem to be enough. Hinds said when she has free time, she likes to hit the mats at Tumbling Bears on Milgen Road, where she has been taking gymnastics since she moved to Fort Benning from California.

"My favorite event is the uneven bars because it's easy for me to swing," she said.

"She was a monkey in another life," Hind's mom, Beth Hinds, said of her daughter's abilities and achievements.

Speaking of her achievements a little more seriously, Robyn said she is proud for working so hard. Her father, Russ, of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, said the entire family is proud of her desire and dedication to achieving this goal.

But the straight-A Dexter Elementary School student is moving on to higher goals. Robyn said she plans to continue her gymnastics classes and competitions, and hopes someday to compete in the Olympics.

"I've always wanted to do it from the time I started," she said. "I'm not going to give up."

Company offers senior citizens chance to love

Four-footed, furry friends

The Muscogee County Humane Society

Senior citizens interested in finding a companion can do so.

Ralston Purina Company is sponsoring a Pets for People Program that will allow anyone over 60 years of age who qualifies to adopt a pet from the Muscogee County Humane Society Shelter. The company will cover the cost of adoption.

Included in this offer is a pet food sample, a dog or cat food bowl, pet care video and training and grooming brochure.

"Not only do these animals need a good home, but owning a pet can enrich (the individual's) quality of life," said Muscogee County Humane Society President Bette Schroeter.

This year, Purina has recommitted itself to assisting senior citizens in the community in adopting a pet by donating $50 to cover the cost of adoption. This offer is limited, so interested senior citizens can contact the Humane Society for more information at 563-3647 or 563-9929.

Play: Officials stress safety

passed out brochures that could help families in a variety of emergencies.

Remember Hurricane Opal? What if another hurricane or tornado strikes this summer? Fort Benning's American Red Cross' "Your Family Disaster Supplies Kit" is a checklist of basic-needs items and tools needed to help families survive if a disaster strikes.

Do you know what to do if your 2-year-old gets into household cleaning cabinet and ingests a cleaning product or decides to take a bite from a house plant sitting in the corner? What about the new toy you picked up at the Post Exchange last week? Are all the parts secure or can they be bitten off or pulled apart too easily?

Post agency representatives stressed the importance of knowing what is in and around your home that is a potential hazard and stress the need to have plans already in place to act in case of emergency.

Children are not the only family member who face life-threatening hazards every day. Owners should not only update their family pets' vaccinations but also be mindful that household hazards common to children are transferrable to pets, according to Lisa Cleveland, veterinary technician, with Fort Benning's Veterinary Services.

Maintaining control of pets is also a safety issue, according to Capt. Nicole Bartley, chief of Veterinary Services. Because pets sometimes wander from home, the post clinic will begin offering the Avid chip, a computerized location device, to soldiers and families with pets. Bartley said an animal with a chip emplaced just beneath the skin can be permanently identified.

"Fort Benning will begin offering the chip about the middle of May," she said.

Although it may have seemed to parents and leaders that children were too busy having fun to heed the more serious information flooding the safety carnival, Mercedes Rodriguez, 6, was paying attention. Rolling to and from carnival booths on her in-line skates, Mercedes picked up several brochures, according to her mother, Michelle.

"She took some of the helmet and fire safety flyers to school for her kindergarten show-and-tell class," Michelle said.

That is the kind of feedback Marley, the other mayors and community life representatives want.

"Children and parents need to understand what it takes to play and live safely," she said.

School board: Members discuss Pre-K, gifted program changes

By Amy Durham
Special to the Bayonet©

As the 1995-1996 school year winds down and students daydream about summer vacation, the Fort Benning School Board discussed ongoing plans for the new prekindergarten program as well as changes in the gifted program during their meeting April 29.

Dr. Dell Karr, superintendent, discussed new eligibility requirements for participation in the gifted program.

According to Karr, current criteria reflect only ability and achievement. State representatives are looking at adopting an expanded program based on four key criterion. Karr said those were mental ability, achievement, creativity and motivation.

Of those four criteria, Karr said each child must meet three to be eligible for the gifted program.

The new requirements will not be in place by August because officials do not have the creativity criterium in place; officials continue to identify solid methods of judging each of the requirements for each child.

"Consistency is absolutely critical," Karr said.

The new requirements will not affect students already enrolled in the program, although Karr said she believes program participation will increase once the new requirements are in place.

"Although we still need to work on the program," Karr said, "overall, it will be a good change."

In other business, the board discussed prekindergarten preparations. Kathy Einhorn, assistant director of Special Education emphasized the goals of the new Fort Benning program and updated members on the program curriculum, location and enrollment requirements.

"We are trying to plan a program comparable to state and other Department of Defense Domestic Elementary and Secondary Schools," she said.

The board also approved the March Consolidated Income Statement for the School Lunchroom Fund. Alice Skinner, director of logistics, presented the statistics.

The monthly net income was $10,964 while the current year-to-date income was $26,861 and current fund equity is at $92,674.

Other board members present were Col. Gregory C. Camp, president; Chap. (Maj.) Robert Thompson, chaplain; Rhoda Zerger, Dexter representative; Col. David Brown, Faith representative; Sgt. Joe Todd, Loyd representative; Sheila Long, Stowers representative; Adrienne Porter, White representative; and, Lt. Col. Stephanie Willson, schools attorney. Others present included: Richard Skinner, assistant superintendent for Budget and Personnel; Caroline Myers, president, Benning Education Association; Stephanie Davis, president, American Federation of Government Employees; Tommye Woods, director of Special Education; and, Tim Woodson, director of Budget.

AFTB seeks Level III participants

USAIC Public Affairs Office

The Fort Benning Army Family Team Building Program Level III classes are being offered now through June 4.

Workshops are scheduled to help participants build on information learned through Level I and II classes and experience gained in the military lifestyle.

Of the scheduled courses, some include:

• Effective Communication Skills — Learn how to make communication skills more effective by using paraphrasing, parroting and feedback.

• Listening Skills — Develop better personal listening skills by focusing on listening behaviors.

• Leadership Skills — Examine the characteristics necessary to become an effective leader.

• Personality Types — Learn to identify various personality types and how to build a team by bonding such different individuals.

• How to Plan and Conduct a Workshop — Instruction focuses on the workshop objective, the audience, the five elements of methodology, available resources, necessary preparation and after-action procedures.

• Building a Cohesive Team — Learn how to capitalize on the uniqueness of each team member.

• Advanced Problem-Solving Techniques — Learn about group problem-solving options — problem versus solution, vertical versus lateral thinking, brainstorming, group think — and how to apply those to the team.

Registration begins 15 minutes prior to class. Level III classes will be conducted in the AFTB Building, (2624), in Soldiers' Plaza.

Participation in all Level III classes is determined by prerequisites based on participation in other Level I or II classes. Call the AFTB office for more information at 545-5377 or voice mail, 545-2794, extension 2794.

ask the judge

By George R. Smawley
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Q. I was currently told that some of the money we receive from the Staff Judge Advocate Claims Office for household goods moves does not come from the government. Is this true? And, if so, what can we do to see to it that the movers who damaged the property are the ones who pay for it?

A. You are correct. The Personnel Claims Act, which is the authority that allows the government to pay for household goods claims, is a gratuitous statute that permits the claims office to compensate service members faster and more generously than if they were to deal with the movers on their own. The claims office, in turn, asserts recovery actions against the carriers in an attempt to recover the maximum allowable under the moving contract.

The most important thing for the service member to understand is that in many cases, the claims office is only permitted to pay out what it can recover from a mover.

Want more money for your next household claim? Follow the tips below and you should receive the maximum allowable on all legitimate claims and enable the claims office to make successful recoveries from the movers responsible for damage to your property.

• Electronic items — If you are claiming internal damage to electrical items, such as stereos, computers, videocassette recorders, televisions, etc., you must first get an estimate of repair; then follow up with a written statement, in your own words, telling how the item was in good operating condition prior to shipping. Example: We used the microwave oven to cook hot meals prior to shipping because we had to clear out the refrigerator.

• Packers — If you get packers that are doing a less than adequate job, you or your spouse may annotate the deficiency on the bottom of the origin inventory. There is a space at the bottom of the inventory form specifically intended for your comments, e.g. if the packers exaggerate preexisting damage. Tell the packers and make your remarks. Your statements may increase your recovery.

• Descriptions — Be consistent in your description of damages and of what is damaged. While wading through the stack of claims forms, repeat the same words as closely as possible. Changing the description or damage on the same item from one form to another may mislead the claims examiner and thereby cloud the issue in such a way that you are compensated for less than you may be entitled.

• Salvage — Always keep the items when the military pays you for replacement of the property. If a replacement cost is paid, the service member no longer owns the item because it becomes the property of either the mover or the government. If you are contacted by the carrier, make a time to meet them and hand over the property. If you cannot agree on an appropriate time to meet, call the claims office for assistance. In theory, if a service member refuses to surrender property where a replacement cost has been paid, a garnishment action may be taken to recover all or part of the money paid to the member by the government.

For more information about filing a household goods claim, contact the Claims Division, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, at 545-2285.

Stuck with your hand in the jar?

By John W. Wilson Jr.
USAIC Chaplain Office

reflections

During my last nine years spent as an Army chaplain, a recurrent theme has emerged from my counseling experiences. The theme centers around the issue of forgiveness, better yet, not forgiving.

I remember some scenes from when I was a small child. When I did something wrong, I recall feeling as if my mother had withdrawn her love. I just did not feel right. I searched for something — anything I could do that would make the relationship right. I'd clean the floors, vacuum the carpet, wash the windows, do anything in order to feel right and be accepted again.

There were three words I needed to hear to make life right again and to help me stop cleaning the house. These words were "I forgive you."

In broken relationships, both in the home and in the work place, there is a need for the gift of forgiveness. I say gift because it is all too easy to withhold forgiveness.

When one party is offended by another, there is often some kind of pain transmitted and received. When we hurt, we often make demands of the person who offended us in order to bring restitution; however, we don't let go of the incident.

The trouble is that the incident is stored away in our thoughts and is subject to recall. Almost anything brings the incident back into the present. It could be a song on the radio, a scene in a movie, or a story that reminds us of our hurt. Sometimes it seems like these thoughts get the best of us, occupying every moment of our life. As a result of carrying our hurt, several scenarios are set in motion.

One of these is to withhold love. When we don't offer forgiveness, we not only deprive the other person of love, but we also deprive ourselves.

A story is told about the space agency conducting an experiment on chimpanzees. The experimenters wanted to see if a chimp would let go of food or an object after he had seen or touched it. A chimp was shown a jar that contained a cookie lying on the bottom of it. The opening of the jar permitted the chimp just enough room to get his hand in it if he twisted it just right. There was not enough space for the chimp to get his hand and the cookie out of the jar at the same time, and he was not about to let go of either the jar or the cookie.

He deprived himself of both the cookie and the freedom to do anything else. It also impacted his relationships by making it hard for him to shake hands. Therefore, when we withhold forgiveness, we not only deprive others, but ourselves as well.

The Bible gives us some effective strategies to deal with unforgiveness. First, we must develop an attitude of forgiveness. Luke 17:1-10 suggests that none of us are immune from making mistakes in this lifetime.

At least, we need to understand that problems, misunderstandings and hurt are a part of our lot in life and they are bound to come. An attitude of forgiveness can begin to point us in the direction of resolution.

Second, make forgiveness an act of the will. There is the old saying, "I can forgive, but I will never be able to forget." This is a powerful truth. The mind retains every past thought somewhere. Separating emotion and thought can be very difficult. It takes a determined effort to release someone from a fault. It takes an even greater effort never to hold an offense against someone when we have the opportunity. Forgetting means to make a determined effort not to use a past offense against an offender.

Third, go to the offender in an effort to forgive and seek resolution. This could be difficult. You may have good intentions, but the other person may not respond. Don't give up.

You must control your own feelings about any situation. You cannot control anyone's behavior but your own. Do what is right for you.

Finally, you will know when you have forgiven someone; you will be able to ask God to bless them or you may be able to wish them the very best that life has to offer.

Lag B'Omer: Jewish celebration marks end of mourning

By William D. Smith
USAIC Chaplain Office

reflections

Lag B'Omer occurs on the 33rd day of counting the omer (about one-tenth of a bushel).

The Jews, as directed in Leviticus 23:15 to 21, are to count the omer for 50 days. Christians identify this period as the Feast of Weeks (a Jewish spring festival), which ends at Pentecost (Acts 2:1). This is an agricultural festival marking the end of the harvest (in Israel), which began on Passover.

The Jews have a rich heritage of traditions concerning the significance of counting the omer. The Kabbalists see this period as a time of intense preparation for the renewed receiving of the Torah (first five books of Moses). This renewed reception takes place at the end of this counting, or on Shavuot.

Other Jews see this time as a penitential period. There are still others who believe this to be the time for the uplifting of consciousness so as to make the mind ready to receive revelation.

It is interesting to note that for the Jews, the counting of the omer is a time for mourning. This mourning is for either part or all of the omer period. There seems to be a consensus among Jewish traditionalists that 33 days of mourning are required. Thus Lag B'Omer (meaning 33rd omer) marks a special day of ending the mourning, which began at Passover.

The origin of Lag B'Omer tradition is obscure. One opinion as to its origin is a marking of a one-day suspension of a plague that was killing the disciples of Rabbi Akiva (a rabbi of the second century of the Christian Era).

Some Jewish people see the omer as similar to the Christian season of Lent. Some will also see Lag B'Omer as parallel to the May Day celebration. Have a wonderful Lag B'Omer.

Fort Benning Wordfest team wins again

USAIC Chaplain Office

A Fort Benning team won the National Wordfest competition.

The contest, which examines knowledge in 10 areas of the Bible, including people and places, Old and New Testament events, locations and other general Bible knowledge, was conducted via computer March 24.

Of the ten categories, Fort Benning won in five and tied in three to finish with the overall highest score.

Team members were Alicia Kadesch, Kimberly Morris, Nicole Moran and David Richardson.

Team members will be recognized for their accomplishments during a service to be scheduled at The Infantry Center Chapel.

Wordfest is a three-year-old competition and is sponsored by Exuno Corporation in Hillsdale New Jersey.

The Fort Benning team has won each year.

Premarriage seminar set — A premarriage seminar will be conducted at 1 p.m. Sunday in the Religious Education Center, Building 2522.

The seminar is for those who plan to be married in the Catholic Church. Call Phil Reilly at 545-5508 for more information.

PARTY sessions set for children — A children's Bible study program entitled "Personal Attitudes Relating to You" will be conducted at the Religious Education Center May 11 from noon to 2 p.m. Children ages five years through sixth grade are encouraged to attend.

The program will include Bible study, music, recreation, crafts and refreshments. Participants will have fun as they learn to develop a positive attitude and to live Christ-like lives.

Registration will be each Wednesday morning prior to the first session at the center from 10 a.m. to noon.

Call 545-4715 for more information.

Adult initiation workshop planned — A Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults workshop will be May 11 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Regimental Chapel at Sand Hill.

Anyone interested in becoming a team member, sponsor, or simply to learn about the RCIA program is invited to attend.

Team members and sponsors are vital to the success of the program and assist in the program designed for adults interested in learning about the Catholic faith.

Lunch will be provided. To register or for more information, call Phil Reilly at 545-5508 or Rich Wampler at 561-4731.

Sunday school bus — Families who would like transportation to and from Sunday School at the Religious Education Center, Building 2517, can call 545-4715.

A bus will be scheduled to pick up participants at their homes before Sunday School and then drop them off after the meeting.

Vacation Bible School — Children, from age four to junior high school, are encouraged to attend Vacation Bible School June 17 to 21.

VBS will be conducted each day from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Edward A. White School. The program will consist of bible study, music, recreation and refreshments.

Volunteers are needed as teachers, assistant teachers, administrators, as well as refreshment personnel and in other positions.

For more information, call Bill Putman at 545-4715, or leave a message at 545-2288.

BOSS bible study — The Fort Benning Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers program is sponsoring a single soldiers' Bible and prayer fellowship for Christian single soldiers of all denominations.

The goals of this group will be to organize and plan a quarterly event, to meet once or twice a month for ministry and fellowship and to provide Christian single soldiers a better opportunity to join others in growth of Jesus Christ.

Contact Spc. Michael Will at 544-9269, your unit chaplain to join the group, or call 545-2813 for more information.

Praise and worship service — A nondenominational general Protestant service, including worship, praise, singing, prayer, teaching and preaching will be conducted every Sunday at the Infantry Center Chapel from 6 to 8 p.m.

Everyone is invited, including single, married, active duty, retired, families, friends, relatives, National Guard, Reserves, enlisted, non-commissioned officers and officers.

Refreshments will be served and fellowship will take place after the service in the chapel annex. Child care will be available.

Book of Revelation study continues — The Adult I Sunday School Class is beginning a study of the Book of Revelation.

This class will meet every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in Building 2521, at the Religious Education Center.

Stars advance to division finals

Defeat Tornadoes in semi-final playoffs

By John W. Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

The Bi-City Stars advanced to the Southeast Football Leagues Northern division finals handing the Tallahassee Tornadoes a 22-9 defeat in a divisional playoff game Saturday at Garrett Stadium.

The Stars, dressed in their home colors of blue jerseys and pants, won the coin toss and elected to receive the ball to start the game.

Kick returner Alvin "Humbug" Humber took the opening kickoff returning the ball 10 yards setting the Stars up with good field position at the 30-yard line.

The offense, led by quarterback Jeff McCarrie, unable to get a running game going, turned to the pass on third and eight with a 20-yard catch and run to Humber setting up a first down at midfield.

The Tornado defense shut the Stars down on three consecutive plays forcing the Stars to punt. On fourth and 11, center Charles Allen sent the ball sailing over punter McCarrie for a 40-yard loss and a Tornado first down at the Stars 10-yard line.

After a 9-yard gain on first down, it appeared the Tornadoes were on their way to the games' first score when the ball was stripped from the Tornadoes and recovered by Stars cornerback Kalvin Baker in the end zone for a touchback.

With the Stars gaining possession of the ball, the offense went to work with a pass and run of 4 yards on consecutive plays. The Tornado defense held the Stars offense the next two plays forcing a punt.

The Stars defense trotted onto the field as the Tornadoes took possession at the 42-yard line. Two plays later, the tough Stars defense forced a fumble with linebacker Benard Bounds picking up the ball and rambling 45 yards for a Stars touchdown a 6-0 lead.

The conversion attempt was blocked and with six minutes and eight seconds left the in first quarter, the Stars led 6-0.

Neither team was able to make any headway the rest of the half as they swapped possessions and the first half concluded with the Stars in the lead 6-0.

As the second half began, both teams appeared to be more intense as they took the field for the kickoff.

The Tornadoes took possession on their own 31-yard line and struck quickly on second and 12 with a 21-yard catch and run to midfield.

On the next play, Stars defensive end George Henderson broke through the pass protection dropping the Tornado quarterback for an 8-yard loss.

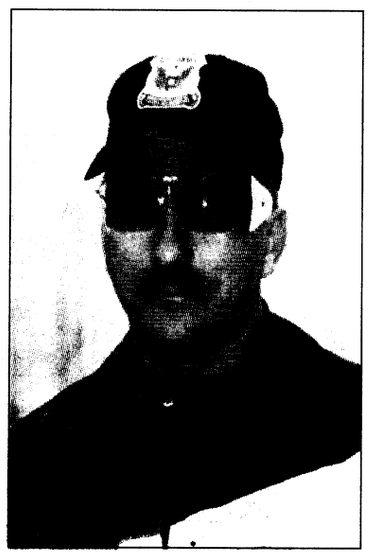
John W. Peeler/Special to the Bayonet

Stars quarterback Jeff McCarrie (left) attempts to get a pass through the Tornado defensive linemen.

No one was able to block Henderson. Two plays later, he recorded his second sack of the game resulting in a 2-yard loss forcing the Tornadoes to punt the ball away.

The tone of the game for the second half had been set as the stingy Star defense would continue to shut down the Tornado offense.

On the next series, disaster would strike as the Stars running back turned the ball over with a fumble deep in Star territory.



The Tornadoes were unable to move the ball into the end zone but came away with a field goal cutting the Stars lead to 6-3.

On the ensuing kickoff, Hamburn excited the crowd with a 27-yard return setting up the stars near midfield.

AMU shooters grab US Olympic team spots

U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

Six members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning won eight slots on the 1996 U.S. Olympic Shooting Team with one USAMU member chosen as an alternate during the 1996 Olympic Shooting Trials at the Wolf Creek Shooting Complex in Atlanta March 30 to April 7.

These soldiers will compete in the 1996 Summer Games in Atlanta July 20 to 27 at Wolf Creek.

To qualify for the Olympic team, rifle shooters competed in three matches and three finals during the trials. All three match scores and the two best finals determined who qualified for the Olympic team in each of the events.

Capts. Glenn A. Dubis and Robert E. Harbison, both shooters on the USAMU international rifle team, won four slots in two events.

Dubis came in first place and Harbison second place, shooting their way onto the Olympic team in men's 3x40 rifle and men's air rifle. USAMU international rifle team shooter Cpl. Kenneth A. Johnson came in third in men's 3x40 rifle to qualify as an alternate to the team.

Dubis began his military career at the Marksmanship Unit in 1982. From 1984 to 1985, he was a platoon leader for the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment of the 197th Infantry Brigade at Fort Benning. After completing the Infantry Officer Advanced Course in 1985, Dubis came back to the Marksmanship Unit as a shooter and competed until 1989.

In 1989, he attended the Combined Arms Services and Staff School and then returned to USAMU where he served as the assistant training officer. Dubis then served in Germany as an adjutant and as a brigade level officer in charge of the Emergency Operations Center. After serving in Southwest Asia for Operation Desert Storm, he returned to the Marksmanship Unit in 1991.

Dubis was a member of the 1984 and 1988 U.S. Olympic Shooting Teams and is a three-time world rifle champion, a three-time world military rifle champion and holds two world records.

Harbison joined the Army in 1988 and was assigned to the 2nd Armored and 1st Calvary divisions at Fort Hood, Texas., as a platoon leader before he joined the Marksmanship Unit in 1992. He completed the Armor Officers Basic Course at Fort Hood and Airborne School at Fort Benning.

Harbison is a Pan American Games Gold Medalist. a Seoul World Cup Gold Medalist, a Munich World Cup Silver Medalist, a World Military Championships Silver Medalist and a national three-position free rifle champion.

The Olympic shotgun team was determined by the aggregate of match scores without finals from the 1995 USA Shooting National Championships, the 1995 Fall Shotgun Selection Match and the U.S. Olympic Trials.

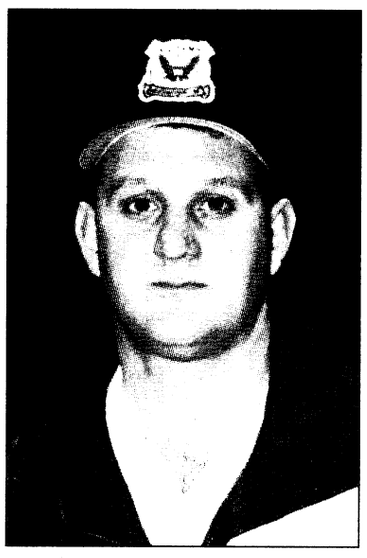
USAMU shotgun team members who made the U.S. Olympic Shooting Team were Staff Sgt. Bret E. Erickson, Sgts. Theresa E. DeWitt and James T. Graves and Spc. David R. Alcoriza.

Erickson won a spot on the Olympic trap team, DeWitt earned a spot in women's double trap, Graves qualified for a position on the skeet team and Alcoriza made it in men's double trap.

After enlisting in the Army in 1983, Erickson joined the Marksmanship Unit after completing basic training and infantry mortar training. He is a graduate of the Primary Leadership Development and Basic Noncommissioned Officer courses.

Erickson was also a member of the 1992 U.S. Olympic shooting team and he is a three-time ånational trap champion, a Pan American Games team Gold Medalist, a World Championships Silver Medalist and a national double trap champion.

DeWitt enlisted in the Army in 1991 and was assigned to the Marksmanship Unit following completion of basic training and military police school. She also completed the Primary Leadership Development Course.



DeWitt is a 1995 Pan American Games Gold Medalist, a national record holder, the women's national trap champion and a two-time national championships Silver Medalist.

Graves joined the Army in 1984 and was assigned to the Marksmanship Unit following his completion of basic training and infantry training. In 1990, he served in Korea and then returned to the Marksmanship Unit in 1991. He has also completed the Primary Leadership Development Course.

He was a member of the 1992 U.S. Olympic shooting team and is a World Cup skeet champion, a World Cup Gold Medalist, a World Championship Silver Medalist, a three-time national trap champion, a national double trap champion and a national double trap Bronze Medalist.

Alcoriza enlisted in 1994 and joined the Marksmanship Unit after completing basic training and tank mechanic training. The Lodi, Calif., native graduated from Tokay High School in 1987 and is a World Cup double trap champion, a Tall Pines double trap champion and a Central Region double trap champion.

Johnson joined the Army in 1992 and was assigned to the Marksmanship Unit after completing basic training and generator repair training. He is a graduate of the Primary Leadership Development Course and is a three-time Pan American Games Gold Medalist, a national 300-meter prone champion, the Massachusetts Prone State Champion and a three-time All-American.

STARS: Play for division title

Two plays, later McCarrie hit wide receiver Tim Taylor for 36 yards on a perfectly executed fly pattern and a Stars first down.

The Stars were unable to take advantage of the long gain. Three plays later, they gave the ball away on a fumble.

Going into the fourth quarter, it looked like the game was up for grabs with neither team being able to move the ball on the opponent's defense.

After the teams swapped possessions, the Stars called a timeout and huddled on the sideline with coaches.

When the teams returned to the field, the Stars tried the running game again ripping off runs of 10, 5 and 8 yards for two consecutive first downs.

On first and 10, running back Eddie Mitchell busted up the middle for 10 yards and a Stars touchdown. The conversion attempt was good and the Stars led 13-3.

The Tornadoes were unable to move the ball on their next possession, and it appeared 13 points would be enough to secure the Stars victory.

With less than five minutes to play, the Stars were on the move again with a 22-yard pass from McCarrie to wideout Zack Collins.

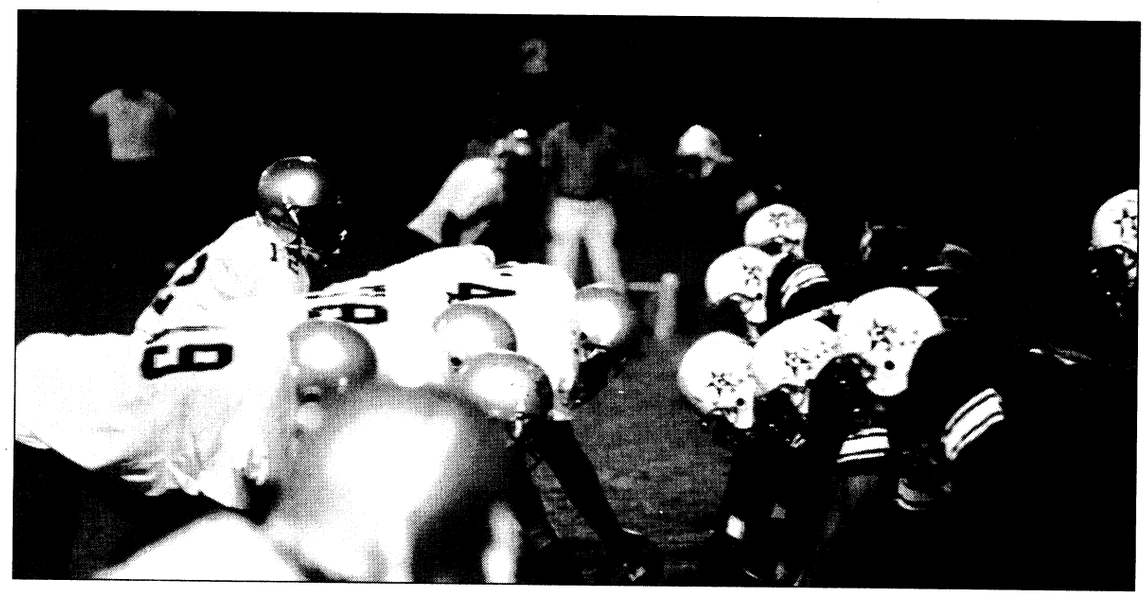
Three plays later, McCarrie was intercepted with the ball being returned 50 yards to the Stars 30-yard line.

After an illegal procedure call, the Tornadoes drove the ball down to the Stars 4-yard line with passes of 11 and 20 yards.

On first and 10, Tornado quarterback Eddie Williams hit receiver Sylvester English in the end zone for the score. The extra point conversion failed; and, with less than three minutes remaining in the game, the Stars held a slim 13-9 lead.

Hamburn returned to ensuing kickoff 20 yards giving the Stars good field position; however, the offense was unable to capitalize on the return.

On fourth down, McCarrie got off a booming punt down to the 2-yard line. On the next play, Williams attempted to pass out of the Tornado end zone but Stars defensive lineman Thomas Sturdivant stuffed Williams for the safety and a 15 -9 Stars lead.



A 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty was tacked on to the ensuing onsides free kick putting the Stars in scoring position on the Tornado 10-yard line.

On the next play, Mitchell busted through the Tornado defense on his way to a touchdown and a 21-9 Stars lead. The conversion attempt was good as the Stars took a commanding 22-9 lead.

The Tornadoes would have one more scoring opportunity with less than a minute remaining in the game but defensive back Norm McClinton dashed any hopes of a comeback with an late interception.

The win moves the Stars into the division championship game with the Albany Warriors.

The division championship will be played at 2 p.m. on Saturday in Albany's Hugh Mills Stadium.

John W. Peeler/Special to The Bayonet

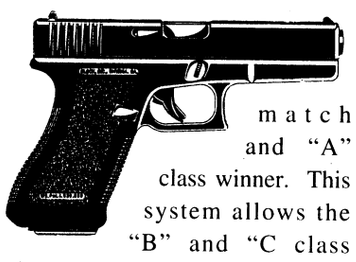
GSSF tournament to be conducted

Glock Sport Shooting Foundation



The Glock Sport Shooting Foundation has announced the Old South Regional Classic IV will take place at Fort Benning Saturday and Sunday. This match will be hosted by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club and GSSF.

The match is open to GSSF members, law enforcement and military personnel members with separate prize and award schedules for each. Memberships will be available at the match for $15.

The match hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday. All firearms must be stock Glock pistols, however, there is an unlimited class for modified glock pistols and professional shooters.

Up to $5,000 in prizes, cash and glock pistols, will be available for civilian and law enforcement matches. Prize winners will be determined by the Lewis System based upon the final scores after the match has been completed.

The top score is the high overall match and "A" class winner. This system allows the "B" and "C class shooters an equal chance to win prizes. Competitors shooting Glock 17L's or G24's compete separately.

Competitors who are master shooters, or have modified their weapon, will compete in the unlimited class. Cash prizes will also be awarded to high female, high junior female, high junior male, high senior, high female law enforcement officer and high challenged (handicapped) competitors.

Also, plaques will be presented to the top civilian dealer team and law enforcement department or agency.

For more information, call (770) 319-4773 or send a fax to (770) 433-8719.

Bowlers roll for TRADOC Title

By John Peeler
Special to The Bayonet©

Twelve bowlers were recently selected to represent the post at the 1996 Training and Doctrine Command Telegraphic bowling tournament.

The tournament, which is conducted at each local installation, is an annual tournament that allows the top six men and six women bowlers from each installation to compete in the tournament from their local bowling alley.

This year the tournament was conducted at the Main Post bowling alley under the supervision of bowling center manager DaisyLnn Arrington.

"The team will not have to travel to compete in the tournament, but will bowl their games here with the scores being sent in to TRADOC," Arrington said.

Competition consisted of an 18-game roll off bowled within a three-day span on alternating lanes.

Last year, Deborah Kerns captured first place in the women's singles competition with a total pin count of 664.

Awards in this years tournament will be given in singles, doubles, high individual game, high individual series, all events, team and individual team events.

"The results (winners) will be announced by TRADOC in the May or June time frame," Arrington said.

"At that time, we will set up an appropriate ceremony for the presentation of the trophies."

The results of this year's tournament were:

Men's singles
Robert Flowers, 593
Jose Diaz, 521
Richard Evans, 489
John Cordero-Torres, 482
Marrx Borja, 473
Raymond Hoock, 375

Women's singles

Youth fishes with bass pros

By Earl Bentz and Steve Price
Outboard Marine Corporation

"It made me a better person because it made me realize how much I've been taking for granted in my life," said professional bass tournament angler Ken Cook.

"I thoroughly enjoyed the day. He caught several bass and helped me confirm I was in a productive area," said Larry Nixon, also a professional bass tournament angler.

That's how the two described fishing with 16-year old Joseph Gill of Parkton, Md., during practice for a national bass tournament. Gill, diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease, was granted his wish of getting to fish with Cook, Nixon and Jay Yelas through the Make-A-Wish Foundation office in Baltimore.

Cook and Nixon were impressed with Gill's quick mastery of bait-casting tackle and his use of both crankbaits and Carolina rigs.

> "He was so excited and so positive about everything, despite all the trauma and pain he's been through with Hodgkin's disease."
> — Ken Cook
> Pro bass angler

"He caught two bass with me on a Carolina rig and one with Ken on a crankbait which is excellent, considering his lack of experience with this type of tackle and techniques," said Nixon.

"He was very intense and anxious to learn everything he could," said Cook, who later received congratulatory high-fives from Gill each time he came through the tournament weigh-in line. "It was really a pleasure working with him and teaching him some of the basics."

Gill actually came to the tournament with more than a little fishing experience under his belt, but most of it has been fly fishing in a trout stream near his home. He learned about bass tournament fishing from magazines and television programs, and has been able to fish for both large-mouth and small-mouth with his father in two Maryland reservoirs.

"He's pretty intense about his fishing," Nixon said. "I could hear him getting excited every time his plastic lizard crawled over a log or rock, and I just told him to set the hook anytime he felt like it.

"He missed several fish at first, but then he learned how to do it," he said. "I don't know who was more excited, Joseph or me."

Cook feels he learned a lot about himself during his day with Gill.

"He was so excited and so positive about everything, despite all the trauma and pain he's been through with Hodgkin's disease," said Cook. "And he's only 16. No one that young should have to endure what he's gone through. I don't think I'll ever take my good health for granted again."

Gill termed his fishing experience one of the highlights of his life. Yelas, himself a college graduate, advised the youngster to get a college degree, which Gill wants to do, but after that, he said, he might try to become a bass tournament pro. He said he enjoyed himself that much.

Public Notice

PURSUANT TO THE NATIONAL PRESERVATION ACT OF 1966 (AS AMENDED) ADVISORY COUNCIL ON HISTORIC PRESERVATION REGULATION
36 CER § 800.5 (e)(3) Proposed Demolition of Buildings 90 and 227
Fort Benning GA

Fort Benning proposes to demolish Buildings 90 and 227, which are part of the Fort Benning Main Post Historic District nominated to the National Register of Historic Places. Building 90 is a movie theater and Building 227 is an enlisted soldiers club constructed in 1939 and 1932, respectively. A new "ten-plex" theater replacing Building 90 will be constructed in the near future. A new enlisted soldiers club replacing Building 227 has already been constructed. No future missions for building 90 and 227 are currently planned nor are missions for these structured anticipated. Government estimates for maintaining or preserving Buildings 90 and 227 in their present or past use is in excess of $1.6 and $1 million, respectively. Fort Benning does not consider it to be in the best interest of the public to continue to utilize scarce resources for the continued maintenance and uneconomical repair of structures for which there is no mission. Any questions or comments regarding this proposal can be referred to: Commander, US Army Infantry Center ATTN: ATZB-PWN-P (Mr. Larry R. Jones) Bldg. 6, Meloy Hall, (Room 415) Fort Benning, GA 31905-5122. Written comments must be received no later than (THIRTY DAYS FROM THE INITIAL PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE.)
