Tricommunity, Army leaders sign Community Covenant

THE BAYONET

"There's no substitute for neighbors helping neighbors," Secretary of the Army Pete Geren said Thursday after signing the Army's first Community Covenant with Fort Benning, Phenix City and Columbus officials at the RiverCenter in Columbus.

On the heels of the Army Family Covenant campaign, which reaffirmed the Army's commitment to Soldiers' Families, the Community Covenant underscores the need for strong ties between Army installations and their neighboring communities, Geren said. The tricommunity — Fort Benning, Phenix City and Columbus — leads the

NCOA commandant to retire

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

Six months after he finished Ranger School, Command Sgt. Maj. Jay Brimstin said he knew he would stay in the Army for 20 years.

"I loved the people I was dealing with, I truly enjoyed what I was doing and I knew I had found my niche in life," said the Henry Caro Noncommissioned Officer Academy commandant. "Every day was a challenge and an adventure, and no two days were the same."

It will be 30 years in August since he joined the Army, and Brimstin retires May 2.

As a corporal in 1980, one of Brimstin's goals was to become the command sergeant major of a Ranger battalion, which Retired Lt. Col. James Megellas calls it "foxhole mentality," that which drives Soldiers "to go where the fight is." This weekend, Megellas said, the fight is at Fort Benning, where 28 two-man teams will battle for the title of Best Ranger.

Megellas flew in from his home in Texas earlier this week to meet with the competitors, and this weekend, he'll follow their progress throughout the three-day, 60-hour competition. It's the first time the 91-year-old has visited the post since 1943, when he attended Airborne School here.

Back then, it was called Parachute School, Megellas said, and it was where a young Soldier with that foxhole mentality needed to be if he hoped to see action in Europe.

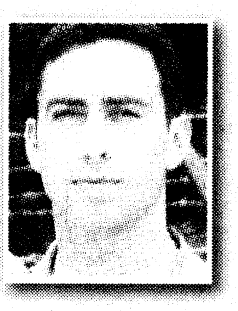
Ranger, former enlisted Soldier receives Patterson Award



THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

A Ranger with several combat deployments under his belt is the recipient of the annual Patterson Award, which honors the most distinguished Officer Candidate School graduate from the Infantry Branch.

2nd Lt. Nicholas Kane joined the Army in 2004 and was assigned to the 75th Ranger Regiment prior to OCS. He joined the Rangers "to be the best version of me that I can be," Kane said.

The 27-year-old son of a 32-year Army veteran said he wanted to experience life as an enlisted Soldier before becoming an officer.

"I think that set me up for success as an officer, understanding what my Soldiers will have to go through and what they put up with," Kane said. "If I know what I am asking them to do, it will make me a better officer."

The award was presented during the OCS Hall of Fame dinner Thursday. Lt. Col. John B. Shattuck, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment commander, said Kane was chosen after distinguishing himself by his continued desire to excel.

"Not only did he posses an impeccable record as an enlisted Soldier, an unequalled effort as an officer candidate, but he is continuing to reach for excellence as he represents our brigade in this year's Best Ranger Competition," Shattuck said.

Shattuck said the Patterson Award reinforces the standards OCS staff try to instill in all candidates.

Kane said when he was growing up, his father taught him good values.

"Every time my father left on a deployment or a field training exercise, he would say, 'Hey, do the right thing,' and I lived my life like that," he said.

Kane's next assignment will be to the 2nd Stryker Cavalry Regiment in Vilseck, Germany, and he expects to deploy to Iraq in July.

The Patterson Award was established in 1952 and named for Judge Robert P. Patterson, a Distinguished Service Cross and Silver Cross recipient during World War I.

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Organization exists to support Soldiers, Families to try to repay Soldiers' service and self-sacrifice

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

Soldiers make great sacrifices. They enter the Army knowing they will soon be on the front lines battling terrorism and tyranny. They commit themselves to this service without asking for very much in return. It is hard to repay this kind of service and self-sacrifice. The Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare, and Recreation (DFMWR) exists to support the Soldier and the Army Family as they serve their country. They accomplish this through the scheduling of morale events, the contributions they make to unit morale funds, and the maintenance of recreational areas.

DFMWR conducts a host of morale events throughout the year for Soldiers and Army Families. Activities such as large-scale concerts and movies at Wetherby Field, the Fourth of July celebration, and others help our new Soldiers unwind from the rigors of Infantry and basic combat training.

Not long ago, a few thousand Soldiers marched out to the field and watched the inspirational movie, Rudy, on an inflatable screen. When the show was over, the real-life Rudy stepped onto the stage and thanked the Soldiers for their dedication to our country.

The profits generated at these activities do not stop at the cashier's register. They find their way directly into non-appropriated funds maintained for each unit on the installation. This fund may be used for unit organization days, cable TV and magazine subscriptions in dayrooms, barbecues and other means of fostering camaraderie and well-being.

DFMWR has opportunities for our Army Families as well. We know in the civilian world certain luxuries or hobbies can be expensive. That's why DFMWR tries to keep opportunities available for everyone, regardless of where a Soldier stands in the chain of command.

To help offset the cost of Family vacations and other recreational activities, DFMWR offers room rates at our award winning Uchee Creek Campground and Marina, at our vacation hot spot in Destin, and other programs such as golf, based upon grade.

Our brave men and women are willing to put their lives on the line. DFMWR recognizes the importance of that contribution and supports Soldiers with as many benefits as possible. Keep that in mind when you see the next DFMWR flier. Thank you for your dedication and hard work.

PROCLAMATION

Child Abuse Prevention Month

As the installation commander, I call upon every Soldier, Civilian employee and Family member to support our mission.

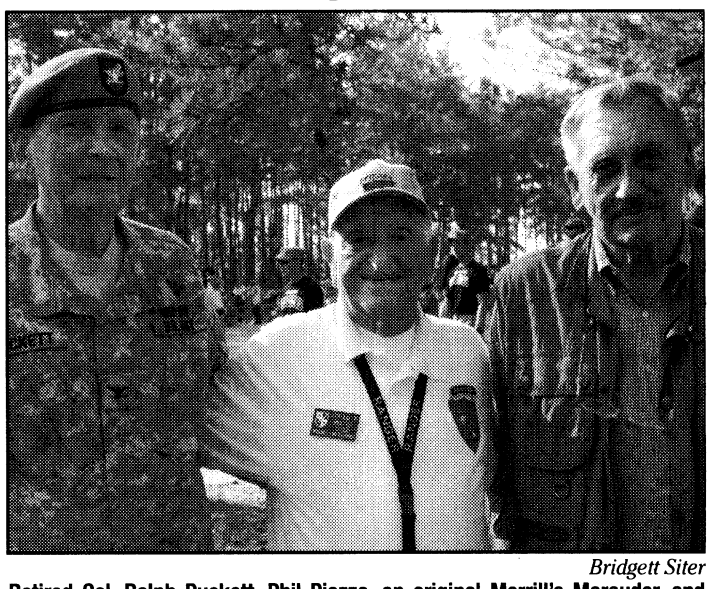
Preventing child abuse and neglect is one aspect of that mission. In today's environment, with the stress of deployment and family separations on all our communities, protecting the well being of our children is a particularly critical challenge. What we do on behalf of children today determines their future — and ours.

What we can do for Child Abuse Prevention Month 2007 at Fort Benning is to show our children a community filled with caring adults, safe homes and schools, multiple opportunities for healthy development, effective chances to learn and grow, and an installation committed to their protection and welfare.

The first and most important line of defense for children is their family. Resilient parents and relatives are indispensable in the lives of children, particularly in stressful situations.

Making our families and our installation a protective and nurturing place for children is our responsibility. Our children deserve:

- Safe streets, safe schools and safe communities
- Opportunities for growing up strong and healthy
- Chance to develop to their highest potential in physical, emotional and intellectual terms
- Ways to learn naturally the value of helping others



Whatever your duty assignment here at Fort Benning, I call upon you to do your part to keep both your family and our community a place where any child can grow into a healthy future. There are many resources available in this community to support families and protect children. Contact the Family Advocacy Program at 706-545-4013 or 706-545-7594 for more information.

OPINION

Don't make us come and get you

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

It truly is the Best Ranger Competition, maybe the best competition period. Certainly better than American Idol. So what are you waiting for, a personal invitation?

Just last week, I met a local gal who has never attended the BRC, because she didn't know it was open to the public. "Why don't you tell people they can come?" she suggested. "Why don't you put it in the paper?"

Geeze, why didn't I think of that?

For nearly 10 years, I've been encouraging readers to spend one weekend in April with some of the finest Americans, on and off the field of competition, they'll ever have the opportunity to meet.

This year, you'll see 56 great American Soldiers (and Marines!) compete in what Ranger Training Brigade officials call "combat relevant" challenges, like the log-walk-rope-drop (always a crowd favorite), the infamous Darby Queen and the finale, the buddy run.

There's nothing else like it. It's entertaining, sure, but it's so much more than that.

Imagine watching the Masters with Tiger by your side. Imagine attending the Daytona 500 with Junior. That's what it's like to hang out at the BRC, surrounded by Ranger legends from every generation of combat veterans since World War II. Retired Rangers like David Grange, Ralph Puckett, Ken Leuer, Phil Piazza, Bill Spies, Mike Kelso and Doug Greenway. I could go on and on.

So what are you waiting for? Fill a thermos with coffee, grab your Best Ranger guide from this week's edition of The Bayonet and head out to Harmony Church now to support your favorite team. (If you're like me, your favorite team is whichever team you're watching at the moment.)

Saturday, you'll want to take the whole family to watch the Day Stakes on Todd Field. Pack a cooler and lawn chairs and wear comfortable shoes. You can sit back and watch the action center field or follow your teams as they rotate through the various stations.

If you're feeling up to the challenge, tag along Sunday as the teams tackle the Darby Queen obstacle course out at Camp Darby. Let me warn you, it's a tough little jaunt, especially for the very young, the elderly or infirm, but it's one of the most exciting events.

If you see only one event this weekend, make it the Water Confidence Test at Victory Pond Sunday. That's where the teams drop into the pond from helicopters and ropes and zip lines, again and again and again. Get there early if you'd like to find a seat on the risers, and take binoculars or field glasses for a better view.

The Best Ranger Competition is open to the public. That means you. I hope to see you there.

This week in Fort Benning history

• For the third week in a row, the post newspaper ran complaints about the Benning Road, also called the Columbus Road.

"Do you know that the reason the 83rd Field Artillery has not put down a barrage on that road is that the number of shells required to smooth it, if placed end to end, would reach from one place to another?"

• An advertisement in the Fort Benning News: "The Post Exchange is not giving anything away, but it is offering you numerous opportunities to save money by placing on sale at greatly reduced prices, articles you require daily. Bathing suits, caps, shoes, hose, brassieres — in fact everything needed for a good swim but the water."

• President Harding endorsed the Citizens Military Training Camps being hosted at installations around the country. A young guest columnist in the post newspaper recommended the camp for high school graduates and college students during their summer vacation.

He had attended the camp at Camp McClellan, Ala., with about 3,000 other young men.

The camp was much like basic training with a hefty dose of recreation. After PT and marksmanship training, the cadets enjoyed dancing, boxing, polo and tennis.

"They changed from drug store, fair skinned lounge lizards type of fop to real men," the writer said, "bronzed, hardened and trained to think quick and fast."

• More than 170 entries had been submitted for the first Dad's Club hobby show at Faith School. Stamp collections led with 28 entries. The best display would net $3.

Mike, the mascot of M Company, 508th Airborne Regimental Command Team, was supposed to model the "old pack artillery" method for a very large audience, but he refused to put in an appearance.

• The son of a Fort Benning Soldier "would lay aside his comic books and Roy Rogers guns and assume the duties of a regimental commander" in the Colonel for a Day contest, sponsored by Service Club No. 2.

• A writer expounded on the jogging craze sweeping the nation. "Running can be fun if you enjoy it," the headline read.

Distinguished Members of Ranger Training Brigade

The Distinguished Members of the Ranger Training Brigade was founded 2000 to recognize the contributions of the brigade's most renowned and influential members. Inductees are selected impartially from Soldiers formerly assigned to the Ranger Training Command, Ranger Department or Ranger Training Brigade who have contributed significantly to the promotion of Ranger training in ways that stand out in the eyes of Rangers past and present. These individuals must also have demonstrated the highest standards of integrity, character and professional competence. They must be nominated for this distinction by an active duty member of the Ranger Training Brigade.

1ST SGT. DAVID CARSON O'REAR

Retired 1st Sgt. David Carson O'Rear hails from Lawrenceville, Ga. He enlisted in the Army in 1983. His first assignment was with the 75th Ranger Regiment at Hunter Army Airfield. From 1983 to 1989, O'Rear served in a number of assignments, from rifleman to rifle gunner, from team leader to squad leader. He also served with the 87th Infantry (Mechanized) and the 9th Infantry Regiment. In December 1989, he was an instructor with the 5th Ranger Training Battalion. In 1991, he became the Mountaineering NCOIC and was responsible for supervising mountain training for more than 3,000 students annually. During this assignment, O'Rear constructed a 480 square foot climbing wall still used today. In 1992, he conducted the first overhaul of the Yonah Mountain Training Area, replacing all fixed protection — more than 300 meters of safety cables and rappel anchor systems. He revised the mountaineering program of instruction, modernizing military systems and techniques taught in Ranger School still in practice today. He served on the Military Mountaineering Conference panel during the development of the "E" Skill Qualification Identifier.

In 1999, O'Rear was reassigned to the 5th Ranger Training Battalion and served as a platoon sergeant before being promoted to first sergeant. After serving as first sergeant of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, he was the battalion operations sergeant major until retirement. During this assignment, he updated the Battalion Operations Standing Operational Procedures and implemented a Battalion Maintenance Program that increased the battalion operations efficiency immensely. Upon his retirement in 2004, O'Rear was hired as 5th Ranger Training Battalion's training specialist and master mountaineer, serving as the battalion's officer in charge and primary instructor of mountain training for students and cadre. He currently serves as a military mountaineering subject matter expert for the USAIC. Recently, O'Rear redesigned Ranger School's Mountaineering Program of Instruction to incorporate more focus on unit mobility in the mountains, versus the former concept of individual movement techniques. He has implemented safety systems that have significantly reduced injuries during mountaineering training, and he increased operational efficiency and training resource management. As a trainer, O'Rear has increased proficiency by executing training programs that make instructors mountaineers as well as Ranger instructors. O'Rear has worked extensively with local Junior ROTC programs and Scouting. He supervises the annual Boy Scouts of America Northeast Georgia Counsel Ranger Camp, hosted at Camp Frank D. Merrill, and is Scoutmaster for BSA Troop 36, which volunteers more than 1,000 hours each. His troop also produces several Eagle Scouts each year, five in 2006. He is also a volunteer counselor with Camp Kudzu, a nationally renowned program for children with diabetes.

COL. WILLIAM NORTHQUEST

Retired Col. William Northquest was commissioned in 1960. His early assignments included instructor at the Troop Assignments at the Combined Arms Training Center in Germany. He served as an instructor at the Mountain Ranger Camp. During his time in the Ranger Training Brigade, Northquest helped develop training techniques to aid Rangers in Vietnam.

From RTB, he went on to become a company commander in the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam. He also served there with the 327th Infantry and the 11th Infantry Brigade. He served as the aide-de-camp to the commander and operations staff officer in Turkey. He commanded the 2nd Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment in Germany and was the chief of the Leadership Division at the Infantry School.

He commanded the 1st Infantry Brigade at Fort Benning and the 2nd Recruiting Brigade at Fort Gillem, Ga. He then served as the special assistant to chief of staff in Belgium and commanded the International Headquarters & Support Command, SHAPE, Belgium. He completed his career as the executive officer for Director of Operations, FORSCOM.

Northquest is a graduate of IOBC, ICCC, CGSC, and the US Army War College. He has completed the Ranger Course, Airborne Course and the Jumpmaster Course. His overseas assignments include Germany, Turkey, Belgium, and multiple tours in Vietnam. He earned a bachelor's degree in economics and a master's degree in public administration.

His awards and decorations include the Silver Star, Defense Superior Service Medal, Legion of Merit (w/ OLC), Bronze Star with Valor (4/OLC), Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Service Medal (3/OLC), Air Medal (w/13) and the Army Commendation Medal (2/OLC).

Northquest and his wife, Jamie, have two daughters, Cary and Cheri. They live in Flowery Branch, Ga.

COMMAND SGT. MAJ. DOUGLAS M. GREENWAY

Retired Command Sgt. Maj. Doug Greenway entered the Army in 1979. He served in every enlisted leadership position in the Infantry from rifle team leader to brigade command sergeant major. He served with the 75th Ranger Regiment six times, the 8th Infantry Division, the 1st Infantry Training Brigade, the Personnel Exchange Program in Australia, the Basic Combat Training Brigade, the Ranger Training Brigade and the U.S. Army Infantry School, where he served as the school sergeant major.

Greenway's military education includes all levels of the NCOES, culminating with successful completion of the Sergeant's Major Academy and Command Sergeants Major Course.

He earned honors on the Commandant's List in every NCO development course and gained the leadership award in the Drill Sergeant Course. Additional military schooling includes Airborne, Ranger, SOT, Pathfinder, Jumpmaster, Drill Sergeant, and the Jungle Operations Training Course.

His awards and decorations include the Legion of Merit, Meritorious Service Medal (2/OLC), Army Commendation Medal (3/OLC) and Army Achievement Medal (3/OLC). He served in Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan and Operation Just Cause, where he participated in the low level Airborne assault on Rio Hato Airfield, Republic of Panama.

SGT. 1ST CLASS LANCE S. CORNETT

Died on Feb. 3, 2006
Operation Iraqi Freedom

The late Sgt. 1st Class Lance S. Cornett, 33, was a special operations team member assigned to the U.S. Army Special Operations Command, Fort Bragg, N.C., when he was killed in action. Cornett died from injuries sustained during a firefight near Ramadi, Iraq.

His duties and assignments included: crewman on 106 mm Recoilless Rifle and Tow Weapons System with 1st Battalion, 325th Airborne Infantry; gunner with 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry; team leader and squad leader with the 1st Battalion, 16th Infantry; drill sergeant with the 3rd Basic Training Brigade; and first sergeant with C Company, 5th Battalion, 327th Infantry (Airborne). In 1988, he was selected as a Military Science instructor at the University of Colorado, assigned to the 4th ROTC region, Fort Lewis, Wash.

As a sergeant major and command sergeant major, West served with the Joint Readiness Training Center, the 1st Brigade, 327th Infantry Regiment, and the 2nd Battalion, 327th Infantry Regiment; and the Ranger Training Brigade; the Infantry School Command Sergeant Major; the 3rd Brigade, 187th Infantry Regiment (Rakkasans) at Fort Campbell; and 101st Airborne Division.

He has graduated from numerous military schools, including the Air Assault School, Basic Airborne Course, Drill Sergeant School, Ranger School (Honor Graduate), Jumpmaster Course, and the Master Fitness Course. He has nearly completed a bachelor's degree in business.

West's awards include the Legion of Merit (with two Oak Leaf Clusters), the Meritorious Service Medal (with five Oak Leaf Clusters), the Army Commendation Medal (with two Oak Leaf Clusters), the Army Achievement Medal (with three Oak Leaf Clusters), the National Defense Service Medal (with Bronze Star), the Non-Commissioned Officer Development Ribbon (Fourth numeral), the Army Good Conduct Medal (Ninth Award), the Overseas Service Ribbon (Second Award) and the Expert Infantryman's Badge. He was awarded the National Infantryman's Association Order of Saint Maurice in the rank of Primicerius.

Since retiring in 2004, West has been employed with B-MAR and Associates at Ft. Campbell. He lives in Clarksville, Tenn., with his wife Shirley.

MAJ. GEN. ROBERT S. FRIX

Retired Maj. Gen. Robert Frix has more than 25 years of senior Department of Defense management experience. He is a West Point graduate. During his military career, he served as the executive officer of the 6th Ranger Training Battalion. His last military assignment included a significant re-engineering of a major Army command and the transfer of its assets to other federal agencies. He played a key role in advising and training Reserve Components and National Guard forces in leadership, logistics and maintenance for wartime deployment and national disasters. Frix's military service included tours in Vietnam, Germany, and Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. During the Gulf War, he supervised the build up and deployment of Army forces. During the ground combat phase, he commanded the Third U.S. Army Forward Command Post and Task Force Freedom during the restoration of Kuwait. During Operation Southern Watch, Frix commanded the Joint Task Force Kuwait, U.S. Central Command. As the deputy commanding general and Chief of Staff for Third US Army, he supervised the security and maintenance of all pre-positioned equipment in the Arabian Peninsula. Frix is the president of Gryphon Gage, Inc., which provides leadership enhancement, training development, personnel relations improvement, business acquisition formulation and strategic plan development.

LT. COL. JAMES MACKIE TUCKER

Retired Lt. Col. James Tucker was commissioned from ROTC at The Citadel in 1956. After Infantry Basic Course, Airborne and Ranger School in 1957, he was assigned to 1st Battle Group, 32nd Infantry, 7th Division Korea.

He was assigned to Mountain Ranger Camp from 1959 to 1961. After the Advance Course in 1962, he was assigned to the 4th Logistical Command Verdun, France. He completed the Royal Marine Commando Course in England in 1963 and was awarded the Commando Medal. He commanded C Company, 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry, in Germany. Tucker then served as an ROTC instructor until he went to Vietnam with the 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry. After being wounded, Tucker returned to USA Command and General Staff College and then commanded the Florida Ranger Camp. Tucker also commanded the 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry of the "Big Red One," and spent five years in Saudi Arabia with TRADOC and Air Ground Operations School at Hurlburt Field, Eglin AFB. Tucker retired in 1975 and has spent the last 32 years in the Marine business. He is a member of the Swamp Ranger Association and a supporter of the 6th Ranger Training Battalion.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL DAVID E. GRANGE JR.

Retired Lt. Gen. David F. Grange Jr. joined the Army in 1943 and served as a parachute Infantryman in Europe, where he took part in the Rome-Arno, Southern France, Rhineland, Ardennes, and Central Europe campaigns. After the war, he served with the 82nd Airborne Division. In 1950, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant and was assigned to Korea as a rifle platoon leader with the 187th Airborne Infantry Regiment. He later commanded a rifle company with the 17th Infantry.

After Korea in 1953, he was assigned to the U.S. Army Ranger School. He volunteered for Special Forces duty and served with the 10th Special Forces Group in Germany. In 1960, Grange attended the Command and General Staff College and was then assigned to the Pentagon for duty on the Army General Staff. In 1963, he was assigned his first tour of duty in Vietnam as an Airborne/Ranger Infantry advisor to the Department of Defense's Research and Development Field Unit. In 1964 he was assigned as an Army Liaison Officer to the U.S. Air Force's Special Air Warfare Center at Eglin Air Force Base, Fl.

In 1967, he commanded the 2nd Battalion (Airborne), 506th Infantry, of the 101st Airborne Division, in Vietnam. After Grange returned to the US, he directed a course for Vietnamese and Laotian Officers at Ft. Knox, Ky., before attending the Army War College. He returned to Vietnam for his third tour, where he commanded the 101st Airborne Division's Support Command and 3rd Brigade. After returning from Vietnam, Grange directed the Ranger Department. In 1973, he assumed the position of Assistant Division Commander (Support) of the 4th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Ft. Carson, Colo., and in 1974, the Assistant Division Commander (Maneuver). Grange returned to Korea and became the Chief of Staff, I Corps. In 1976, he took command of the 8th U.S. Army Readiness and Mobilization Region until 1978, when he returned to Korea to command the 2nd Infantry Division. In 1979, he took command of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning. After that, he became the commander of the 6th U.S. Army, Presidio of San Francisco. Grange returned to Washington, D.C., to become chairman of the Coordinating Activity for Historical Observances, serving as principal assistant to the Secretary of the Army. He retired in 1984, and currently lives in Pennsylvania. Grange completed the Command and General Staff College, the Army War College, Airborne School, Ranger School, Special Forces Officer Course, the Strategic Intelligence School and the Russian Language Course. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska at Omaha and the Advanced Management Course at the University of Pittsburgh.

He was awarded the following decorations: Defense Distinguished Service Medal; Army Distinguished Service Medal; Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters; Legion of Merit with on Oak Leaf Cluster; Distinguished Flying Cross; Solder's Medal; 28 awards of the Air Medal with "V" Device; Bronze Star with "V" Device and four Oak Leaf Clusters; Joint Service Commendation Medal with "V" Device; United States Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device and four Oak Leaf Clusters; United States Air Force Commendation Medal ; and the Purple Heart. Foreign awards include: French Legion of Honor in the degree of Officer; the Korean Wharang Medal with Gold Star, as well as the Kuksun Medal and Cheonsu Medal; the Vietnamese Gallantry Cross with two Palms and a Silver Star, as well as the Military Honor Medal, First Class. Grange is a Master Parachutist with combat jumps in World War II (Europe), Korea, and Vietnam. He has been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge with second and third awards, a veteran of twenty campaigns in three wars as an Infantryman. Grange and his wife, Lois, have three children, David Lawrence, Suzanne Elizabeth, and Henrietta Marie.

Honorary Inductee Nomination Candyss Bryant

Candyss Bryant is the president of ROCA Resources, a company that concentrates on nonprofit organizational development. Bryant is the founder and coordinator of Columbus, Georgia's Nonprofit Academy and specializes in strategic planning, board governance and special events management. Airborne veteran: Drops in for first time since 1943

"I volunteered because I wanted to be where the decisive action was taking place. The decisive action doesn't take place behind a desk. I wanted be with the guys who did the fighting," he said. "I was told the quickest way to get there was to go to Fort Benning to the Parachute School."

Megellas' training served him well. During the three years he spent with 82nd Airborne Division, he fought on the beach at Anzio, jumped into Holland, participated in the Waal River crossing made famous in A Bridge Too Far, and saw more than 60 days of combat in the Battle of the Bulge. He was awarded more than 10 medals and was recommended for a Medal of Honor.

Megellas commanded the 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment's H Company during the occupation of Berlin and later, in 1945, he was the first American to receive the Military Order of Willhelm Orange Lanyard from the Dutch Minister of Berlin.

Today, he is credited as the most decorated officer in the history of the 82nd Airborne Division. But, he said, he's got nothing on the Soldiers he's met during his recent travels to Afghanistan.

"They say we set the standard, my generation — the Greatest Generation. I say each generation raises the bar just a little bit higher," he said. "We were the best of our generation. They are the best of their generation. We're cut from the same cloth. We share the same values. We share the same desire to go where the fight is — that same foxhole mentality."

Megellas chronicled his combat experience in All the way to Berlin. He signed copies of the book Tuesday at a private reception in Columbus for the Best Ranger competitors.

As he does when he gets a chance to visit with troops in combat, Megellas spoke to the Rangers about leadership.

"If I have one message for Soldiers today, it's all about leadership — leadership at the squad and platoon level," he said. "That's the highest level of leadership in mortal combat. It's not the commander. It's not the colonel. At that point, they're being led by sergeants. There's a lot that's changed in the last sixty years, but that hasn't changed."

Brimstin: Retires May 2, reaches professional goals

he achieved in 2001 when he became the command sergeant major of 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment.

He said that assignment stands out the most because he was deployed to Afghanistan.

"It was payback time, and we were there to do the payback," he said.

However, Brimstin said the duty station that meant the most to him was 2nd Ranger Battalion at Fort Lewis, Wash.

"Although I served in all three Ranger battalions, 2nd Battalion is where my heart is. I did three tours there, and that's where I grew up (professionally)," he said.

While there, he got a taste of the jungle in 1979 when his unit was flown to Panama where they jumped into Gatun DZ.

"The heat and humidity and the jungle was an amazing thing for a kid from Maine," he said. "The jungle kicked my butt, but I learned a lot and tested myself on more than one occasion."

In his current position, Brimstin is tactful, professional and a man of few words but open and approachable, said 1st Sgt. Alexander Barnett, Warrior Leadership Course branch chief, NCOA.

"He's a real warrior, Barnett said. "He's been in all the tough jobs, and people might think he's a standoffish kind of guy, but he's not. He's probably one of the finest sergeants major I've worked for."

Barnett said Brimstin "loves to empower people and let them use their imagination."

"When you operate in an environment where people care about what they do, you're going to get a lot more out of them if you just take the shackles off and give them the resources so they can excel," Brimstin said.

Post Command Sgt. Maj. William J. Ulibarri said Brimstin is one of the best command sergeants major he has worked with, and he said it is always hard to lose great leaders.

Ulibarri described Brimstin as proactive with a willingness to help improve training.

"He is not only a great Warrior, he's what I would call a great 'leader developer,' and I hope his branch chiefs and instructors have learned as much as I have from him," he said. "If so, his legacy will live on for a long time."

Brimstin has 15 NCO Education System Mobile Training Team trips scheduled for this year, even though he is understaffed, Ulibarri said. MTTs take the Basic NCO course to Soldiers.

"Manpower is the biggest constraint we face in trying to keep enough quality people in the academy to be able to train the load the Army wants us to train," Brimstin said. "Ultimately, we can get all of the cool gadgets in the world, but if I don't have the quality instructors, than what we're doing is wasting everybody's time."

Besides his professional successes, which he credits to his Soldiers, Brimstin said he is very proud of being honored April 4 by Hardaway High School students who thanked him for volunteering with their JROTC program.

Brimstin is happy to talk about his son and daughter, but knows firsthand "the heart in the throat" feeling of having a child serve in Iraq. Shortly after his son, Andrew, arrived there on his second deployment, a government sedan pulled into the cul de sac where Brimstin lives.

"I started thinking, 'Please turn, please turn,' because nobody else in that cul de sac had a Soldier deployed," he said.

Brimstin said he felt a huge sense of relief when the vehicle finally turned around and left.

Andrew, 23, returned from Iraq recently and will separate from the Army in July. He and his sister, Andrea, 20, will attend the Georgia State University this fall.

Brimstin isn't quite as certain about his future.

"My plan is to stay in the Columbus and Atlanta areas, but if the career path takes me somewhere else, that's where I'll go," he said. "My wife is happy I am retiring. She wants me to be able to relax, and I keep telling her that's not my style and whatever I do, I'm probably going to work just as hard doing that as I've worked in the Army."

Covenant: Affirms bond between post, local communities

way because its partnership sets the standard for communities around the country. He cited programs like God Bless Fort Benning and House of Heroes as examples of the Chattahoochee Valley's commitment to its Army Families.

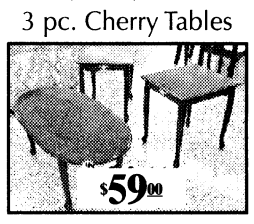
"This community has always stood by Fort Benning," Geren said. "The bond is an affair of the heart. It's stood the test of time, through thick and thin. There have been times when other communities have pulled away. During Vietnam, we saw that happen in a lot of places, but not here. We're here to sign a covenant that reflects this bond."

Through the Community Covenant initiative, Geren said, other Army communities will benefit from "lessons learned" here.

"We want to learn from Fort Benning and take those lessons all across the country," he said. And where programs and organizations in other communities prove beneficial to Army Families, that information will be shared with tricommunity leaders.

Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski, Fort Benning's commanding general, said the Valley partnership "is one of the strongest community partnerships in America." On behalf of the post's 120,000 residents and employees, he thanked local leaders for their support.

Phenix City Mayor Jeff Hardin explained the bond simply — "We are one community," he said. But Mayor Jim Wetherington of Columbus said the tricommunity must do more to support those "who answer the highest calling to defend our freedoms."



"We've got to more to take care of the folks back here you can't take care of when you're off fighting for us," he said.

More than half of the nation's 2.4 million service members are married, Geren said, and Army Families include 700,000 children. That makes for an awful lot of single-parent homes when Soldiers deploy.

"And that's why it's so important at this critical time for communities to reach out to their Army Families," he said.

"That's why it's so important for neighbors to help neighbors."

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Masters wrap-up

South African Trevor Immelman beat Tiger Woods by three strokes to win the 72nd playing of The Masters golf tournament Sunday in Augusta, Ga. Immelman finished the weekend at eight under par.

It's Immelman's first win in a major. He was ranked 29th in the world going into the tourney.

Immelman has local ties. His brother, Mark, is the golf coach at Columbus State University.

BC wins championship

It's BC's third championship and 21st appearance.

GT pitcher mourned

Michael Hutts, a pitcher for the Georgia Tech men's team, was found dead in his apartment April 11. The team canceled its game Tuesday to attend his funeral. It will be several weeks before the medical examiner's office releases the information on the cause of death.

GT lost three games to Miami April 12 and 13 and had a moment of silence for Hutts, a dean's list student, before their first game.

Johnson cruises to victory

It's the first win for Hendrick Motorsports, who dominated last season and has struggled for a win this season.

There's no Sprint Cup race this weekend. The next race will be at 1:30 p.m. April 27 at Talladega Superspeedway.

It's just west of Atlanta, an easy drive from here, and I recommend going.

Walker reveals disorder

Former NFL running back Herschel Walker revealed in his new book, Breaking Free, that he has dissociative identity disorder, or, as it used to be known, multiple personality disorder.

Walker has been in treatment for eight years and believes the disorder is under control.

Walker played for 12 years in the NFL, and was also a member of the 1992 U.S. Olympic bobsled team. His other interests included law enforcement and ballet.

What to watch

One of my favorites, the NFL draft, starts at 3 p.m. Saturday on ESPN. Round two is later in the day, followed by Rounds three through seven beginning at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Arkansas running back Darren McFadden is projected to be the first drafted. The Miami Dolphins have the first pick.

Skate team to honor young 'warrior'

GT Speed Skating Team will raise money for Joshua Zalunardo

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

A few months ago, Jacob White and his cousin Brandon Rennie came up with a way to do something meaningful for their former middle school classmate Joshua Zalunardo.

Jacob, Brandon and their fellow Grand Tourismo Speed Skating Team members will host the Skate For Life Fundraiser to collect money for Zalunardo from 6:30 to 8 p.m. April 28 at the Jam Skate Center.

"It's going to be really awesome to skate for Joshua," said White, a 15-year-old at Harris County High School. "With all that he's been through it's the least I could do."

Zalundardo

Zalunardo, also 15, wasn't able to join Jacob, Brandon and his other friends at Harris County High this year. Last June, he was diagnosed with a rare and deadly form of cancer called brain stem glioma.

Zaluanardo, a former star athlete for the Harris County Middle School soccer team, was barely able to stand just days before the diagnosis. But during numerous doctor visits he was told he was merely suffering from fatigue.

"I just knew something was really wrong," said Diedere Zalunardo," Joshua's mom. "We noticed the left side of his face was drawn down almost like a stroke."

After a second CT scan, doctors discovered Joshua had an

75th Ranger Regiment shuts out 4th Ranger Training Battalion in 'Best Ranger' duel

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

The 75th Ranger Regiment defeated the 4th Ranger Training Battalion, 6-0, to be the "Best Rangers" on the soccer field Monday at Doughboy Stadium. This was both teams' first game of the regular intramural season.

The 75th, which came in second place in the preseason tournament, attacked early in the first half. Derrick Haley found an opening in the corner of the goal and gave his team a 1-0 lead. Midway through the half, Haley struck again, ricocheting the ball off the edge of the goal post to score his team's second goal.

In the second, 75th came out even more aggressive. Anthony Zasquez, who scored three goals in a playoff game against the WHINSEC Liberatdores, scored the first goal of the half.

"I had a break away, and when the goalie's defending the corner, the goal looks bigger," Vasquez said.

Cesar Veliz, the 75th's coach, scored two of the team's final three points with aggressive

Ericka Loze-Hudson has been training to compete in a 10K race in Thomasville Ga., April 26. Over the past eight months, she has lost more than 20 pounds and 25 inches.

Librarian reaches goals through racing, training

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

Ericka Loze-Hudson has always dreamed of running in the Venice Marathon in Italy.

She is working toward it one race at a time. Hudson, 59, will compete in a 10K Rose Festival Run in Thomasville, Ga., April 26.

"It's very rewarding when you set your mind on a goal and accomplish it," said Hudson, who has been a librarian at the Donovan Research Library for eight years. "No matter how I do, I know I'm doing my best."

Throughout her life, Ericka has struggled with her weight. In 1996, while living in Mannheim, Germany, she decided to get a personal trainer. After marked improvements, including a 40 pound loss, she began competing in 5K and 10K races. She won first place in her class during a 10K race. At 47, she was the oldest competitor.

She began suffering from arthritis and struggled to walk down stairs or get up from the floor without assistance.

Last year, Hudson said "enough is enough" and decided to take back her life. After trying Smith Fitness Center for the first time in July, she hired Jessica Troutman, a certified personal trainer.

Hudson has been working with Troutman three times a week, combining cardio and core exercises. They also run several miles every Saturday.

Hudson has lost more than 20 pounds and more than 25 inches. She has also regained strength and can walk stairs easily. Hudson has adjusted her diet, eating more meals per day in smaller portions.

In February, Hudson ran in the Winter Classic 5K race in Smiths, Ala., and finished first in her division. Since the Winter Classic, Hudson has improved her mile time by a minute and a half.

"Ericka is so successful because she's willing to try anything I ask her to try without complaining," Troutman said. "She's such a joy to work with. She has a great attitude and she's passionate about reaching her goals."

Hudson said her lifestyle change will be permanent this time.

"At this point, I don't see myself slipping again," Hudson said. "Even if I don't train five miles a day after the race, I plan on making fitness a part of my life everyday."

FIT FACTS

DFMWR FITNESS
Lori Smith

I'm always looking for new things to talk about in my Fit Facts articles.

It was a 26.2 mile march through the mountains.

It was beautiful, up until about mile 10. That's when the pain set in, and I felt every bit of 37.

As I was trying not to focus on the pain in my knees, I came up with a great Fit Facts article idea — common exercise injuries and what to do about them.

My first suggestion is not to walk 26.2 miles in the mountains.

If you decide to walk a marathon or just exercise on a regular basis, let me arm you with what you need to know to prevent injuries or what to do if you already have one.

One of the most common problems is knee pain, which can be caused by, among other things, overuse, abrupt change in your workout program, weight, weak thigh muscles or osteoarthritis.

I know all about this type of pain — I felt it for 26 miles.

The best prevention is to mix weight bearing (aerobics, running) and non-weight bearing (cycling, swimming) exercise.

Also, try strengthening the quads and hamstrings to take pressure off your knees.

Avoid deep lunges, large steps on the stair climber, leg extensions with heavy weight, cycling with the seat too low, and downhill running.

If you have an injury, rest and put ice on the injured area. Also, do some simple stretching of the quadriceps and hamstrings.

Another common problem is lower back pain. Lower back pain can be caused by weak abs, weight, prolonged sitting, improper lifting and improper warm-up exercises. Try to stretch and strengthen your abs and lower back before and after workouts.

Doing a variety of correct ab exercises can also strengthen your back muscles and reduce the strain on your lower back.

Leg cramps, another common problem that occurs in many people who exercise on a regular basis, often strike at night when you're resting.

These cramps are usually caused by dehydration, lack of potassium and calcium, tight muscles and muscle fatigue.

You can treat leg cramps by gently massaging the affected area and slowly stretching the muscle. To prevent leg cramps, try to drink more water — eight to 10 glasses a day.

Also, be sure to get enough potassium and calcium (a good source is from bananas and milk) and stretch daily before and after exercise.

It's important to take breaks when you have an injury or experience pain.

If the pain does not go away within 48 to 72 hours, or if the pain keeps recurring, it's probably time to see a doctor.

Remember RICE — rest, ice, compression and elevation — for most acute pain. Keep reading Fit Facts for more tips to a healthy lifestyle.

In June, doctors told the Zalunardos that Joshua had less than an hour to live, even suggesting they allow him to pass in his sleep.

But the Zalunardos refused to give up on their son. Instead Josh underwent a procedure that required a hole to be drilled in his head to drain the extreme amounts of fluids filling his brain.

"We never stopped believing that Josh would pull through," said Gino Zalunardo, Joshua's father and the pastor of King's Pasture Community Church in Hamilton, Ga. "We prayed constantly and asked God to do his will. If it was time for Josh to go home to the Lord, it would have been his time, but we just felt it wasn't his time yet."

The Zalunardos' prayers were answered in October. They learned of Dr. Stanislaw Burzynski, a specialist in Houston, Texas, who had 35 years of experience dealing with brain stem glioma. Burzynski prescribed Joshua antineoplastons, a form of gene therapy.

Since October, Joshua's tumor has shrunken 45 percent. He has also regained a moderate amount of his speech and mobility.

"Joshua continues to defy the odds," Gino said. "He is an absolute warrior and is an inspiration to our family and many people in the community."

With help from the community, more than $56,000 has been raised to assist the Zalunardo family with Joshua's medical expenses.

But they still face an uphill battle. The cost of Joshua's medications, which consists of more than 50 pills a day, exceed $7,000 a month.

"The people at our church and the people in Columbus, LaGrange and Harris County and other area churches and communities have sustained us," Gino said. "We believe in our hearts that Joshua will make a full recovery, and a lot of this is because of their efforts."

Along with collecting monetary donations, GT Speed will name Joshua an honorary member of the team and will perform a skating line, leaving a space to honor him, during the fundraiser.

"Joshua's story is remarkable," said Stacey White, Jacob's mother. "It proves that anything is possible when you have the Lord in your corner."

The cost to attend the Skate For Life is $5 per skater. Additional funds for Joshua can be donated at any Wachovia Bank under the account "Joshua Fund." Donations can be mailed to: Joshua Fund P.O. Box 1092 Pine Mountain, GA, 31822. Donations can also be made at any Wachovia Bank location under the account "Joshua Fund," or can be sent online at www.prayforjushua.com.

The Army announced its intention to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for managing and accommodating increased training requirements at Fort Benning, Georgia (Maneuver Center of Excellence EIS) in the Federal Register on March 18, 2008. This proposed action is needed to transform the Army, meet the increased national security and defense requirements of the 21st century, maintain training and operational readiness levels of the force, and preserve a high quality of life for U.S. Soldiers and families.

This announcement, on April 2, 2008, initiates the start of the 30-day public involvement process. As part of this process, the Army is holding a scoping meeting at the location below and invites your participation. This meeting will be held in an open house format (meaning there are no formal presentations), and your participation will assist Army representatives identify issues/concerns associated with the proposed action, define the scope of analysis for the EIS, and identify reasonable alternatives and mitigation.

Army representatives, displays, and informational material will be available at the meeting on Tuesday, April 22nd, 2008 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. The meeting will be held at the:

Elizabeth Bradley Turner Center, Founders Hall, Room 141
Columbus State University on the corner of East Lindsey and College Drives

You may submit written comments to:

Mr. John Brent, Fort Benning Directorate of Public Works
Environmental Management Division
Bldg. #6 (Meloy Hall), Room 310, Fort Benning, GA 31905

Although Fort Benning will accept comments throughout the process, we recommend that your scoping comments be sent by May 1, 2008 to ensure equitable consideration in the draft EIS. If you have any further questions about the Transformation proposal, you may contact Ms. Monica Manganaro, (706) 545-3438 Fort Benning Public Affairs Office, or Mr. Brandon Cockrell at (706) 545-3210.

Green genes

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Southern Pearl, Empress, Georgia Belle and Summer Lady all grow in the warm Georgia climate — but they're not flowers.

They are among the 40 varieties of peaches that grow in our state's orchards and backyards.

Peach trees originated in China thousands of years ago, but they flourished in the temperate climate of the New World, spreading so rapidly that settlers thought they were native. The American peach industry got a boost when Georgia horticulturalist Samuel Rumph developed the Elberta peach, a sweeter, firmer variety than its predecessors. It was just what antebellum Georgia needed to increase revenue, and so Georgia became the "Peach State," long before the official designation in 1995.

Georgia peaches fall into three basic categories: freestone, clingstone and semi-freestone. Freestone peaches are easily loosened from the pit, or stone, while clingstone are more firmly attached. Clingstone varieties are typically used for commercial purposes where they are processed and canned. Freestone peaches are what you buy fresh at the commissary or roadside market.

Although nothing beats a fresh peach, peaches make a great accent to other dishes. For most recipes, frozen, canned and fresh peaches can be used interchangeably, but you'll want to thaw the frozen slices or drain the canned ones, so the proportion of liquid stays the same.

One large peach makes about one cup of sliced peaches. Three medium-sized peaches equal a cup of peach puree, perfect for peach desserts like cobbler or cake.

Besides the protein and fiber in peaches, they are packed with phytonutrients which act as antioxidants and help protect the body against damage by free radicals. They give a boost to the immune system, can lower blood pressure and help clean the kidney.

If you don't like the fuzzy skin of peaches, buy nectarines. They are actually a smooth-skinned variety of peaches. They still have the protein, vitamins, fiber and minerals of peaches. Also like peaches, they have cancer-fighting nutrients and phytochemicals that protect the eyes and joints.

Try peaches cut up on a salad, sliced on a turkey sandwich or baked under an oatmeal walnut crust. They make a nice surprise in salsa or work as an elegant side dish when stuffed with couscous, feta and baby spinach. Because they are both tart and sweet, they can lighten the flavor of a rich dessert or add pizzazz to a savory dinner.

So if you're like the average American, eating about 10 pounds of peaches each year, eat up. You're doing something good for your body while expanding your culinary horizons.

Cheryl Rodewig

Duke Liberatore, owner of Peachtree Natural Foods, and his wife Dr. Jan McBarron, of Georgia Bariatrics in Columbus, enjoy peach salsa from Lane Southern Orchards outside the Peachtree Natural Foods headquarters, where two peach trees bloom in April. The picnic includes Lane's peach cider, jam, jelly, butter and preserves and peach pecan preserves and plenty of fresh peaches.

Peachy with peaches

An apple is an excellent thing, until you have tried a peach.

— George du Maurier, British author and illustrator (1834-1896)

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

There is something special about a peach. From "peaches-and-cream" to "pretty as a peach," the word suggests indulgence.

A member of the rose family, peaches have been revered since ancient times as a source of longevity. The Eight Immortals of Taoist legend became immortal when they ate peaches, a gift from the Queen of Heaven. In Roman mythology, the gods preserved their beauty by drinking peach nectar.

Today, peaches are still associated with renewal and health, and for good reason. The warm, blooming color of peaches comes from carotenoids, the same nutrient in carrots that improves eye health. Peaches promote proper immune function and help prevent illnesses like osteoporosis and cancer.

Duke Liberatore and Dr. Jan McBarron, co-hosts of the Duke and the Doctor radio health show, said the biggest health benefit of peaches is their antioxidant content.

They are rich in vitamins A, C and E, which can slow the aging process, said Duke Liberatore, CEO of Peachtree Natural Foods.

A medium-sized peach has about 35 calories and virtually no fat, he said, so it makes a great snack that won't add to your waistline.

Peaches are rich in fiber, which not only smoothes digestion but also helps fill you up, perfect for anyone looking to lose weight.

But if you're thinking about peeling that peach, wait — that's where most of the fiber is. Fiber not only aids digestion but also makes eating fruit safe for diabetics, McBarron said.

If you don't like the skin, buy peaches dried, frozen or canned.

No matter how you enjoy them, Liberatore said, peaches are always good for you.

"Unlike some fruits, canned peaches are almost as nutritious as fresh, just try to avoid the high-sugar syrup," he said. "The fruit itself holds up very well to canning."

And for those who like peach desserts, don't worry — you'll still get a dose of potassium, calcium, zinc and folate from the peaches.

"There's nothing wrong with peach cobbler," McBarron said. "I would rather see people eat peach cobbler than cake or cookies."

If you prefer to use fresh peaches in your cobbler, avoid bruising by laying them flat, whether in the fridge where they will last at least a week, or on the counter where they ripen faster.

A ripe peach will have a yellowish or slight blush color at the base of the stem, never green, Liberatore said.

You can find more than 40 varieties of fresh peaches grown in Georgia, in season between May and August. Georgia is the home of the peach industry, since it was here that production really took off in the U.S. Although Georgia now ranks third in the nation's production of peaches, it remains the official Peach State because of the growers' commitment to fine quality in their produce. From the Peach Drop and Peach Bowl to Peach County and more than 30 "Peachtree" Atlanta roads, Georgians make it clear they love their state fruit.

You can show your passion for peaches at the Georgia Peach Festival, held every June in Fort Valley, an hour and a half from Fort Benning. The event features crafts, concerts, dancing, fireworks, a parade and the world's largest peach cobbler. The pastry is 11 feet long and eight inches deep — always enough to feed as many as 15,000 festival-goers.

The 75 gallons of peaches used in the cobbler are provided by Lane Southern Orchards, a Fort Valley family peach company celebrating its centennial anniversary this year. Lane's offers everything peach from jellies, jams, salsa and cider to syrup and cobbler, even ice cream. Tour the orchards and packing facility or pick up something peachy to take home for a summer picnic. Either way, be sure to indulge in an old-fashioned, homegrown Georgia peach.

"It has its own flavor and fragrance," Liberatore said. "You can't beat a fresh peach."

For more information about Lane Southern Orchards, call 478-825-3362 or go to www.lanesouthernorchards.com. For information about the festival, visit www.gapeachfestival.com.

Peach Delight

1/2 cup sugar
1 cup water
3 cups peaches, peeled and sliced
2 tablespoons lemon or lime juice

1. In a saucepan, combine sugar and water and cook over low heat for five minutes. Chill for four hours.
2. In a blender, whirl the peaches for one minute.
3. Add the syrup and lemon juice and blend again.
4. Freeze in an ice cream freezer or freeze for three hours in a two-inch pan, break into chunks and whip with an electric mixer until light and fluffy.
5. Spoon into a half gallon freezer container, cover, and freeze for at least four hours before serving.
6. Makes 12 servings at 51 calories each and no fat.

Peach-Blueberry Tarts

3 egg whites
1 cup blueberries
1/8 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup fine sugar
1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 ripe peaches, peeled and sliced
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons granulated sugar
1 teaspoon lemon rind, grated

1. Beat egg whites and salt 'til foamy.
2. Slowly add tartar, sugar and vanilla, beating between each addition.
3. With a pastry bag, pipe meringue onto six three-inch circles of wax paper to form two-inch borders.
4. Mix blueberries, granulated sugar, peaches, lemon juice and rind and chill for one hour.
5. Bake the meringues at 250 degrees for an hour and let cool.
6. Place filling in meringues and serve.
7. Makes six 153-calorie servings.

SPRING FLING

E.A. White Elementary School will have their Spring Fling open to the public from 4 to 7 p.m. April 25 at the school. There will be carnival rides and games, a dunking booth, cakewalks, silent auction and more. Each event costs a small fee. Food will also be available to purchase. For more information, call the school at 545-4623.

POSTWIDE YARD SALE

The Postwide Yard Sale will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 26. Selling is restricted to Post residents, but buying items is open to the public.

Visitors who want to attend the yard sale need to stop at the visitor's office at either the Benning Road or I-185 gate and get a temporary vehicle pass. Valid identification and car registration is required. All adults in the vehicle must have valid identification.

OSC SCHOLARSHIP

The Officers' Spouses' Club is offering scholarships for traditional and continuing education students for the 2008-2009 academic year.

These scholarships are available to any Family member of an active-duty or retired Soldier, all ranks, with a valid military ID card residing in the tricommunity or whose sponsor is attached or assigned to Fort Benning. Applications must be received by April, and awardees will be announced in May. Guidelines and applications are available at the OSC Thrift Shop, A Bit of Benning, Sayers Library and in area high school guidance offices.

To have the application e-mailed to you, e-mail your request to thcarlisle@aol.com. For more information, call Nancy Carlisle at 706-685-3212 or send an e-mail.

MARRIAGE STUDY

Active-duty Soldiers and spouses are needed for a research project studying Army marriages, and couples can earn extra money for participating.

The study is approved by the Army and is being conducted by the University of Denver's Center for Marital and Family Studies. It is a first come, first served opportunity for 200 couples.

For more information, visit www.armymarriageproject.com or call Deb McCrainie at 706-505-7770.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

Free transportation will be available for students from Spencer and Faith Middle School to the CYS Middle School and Teen Center from now to the end of the school year. For more information, call 706-545-3070.

TROOPS/SPOUSES TO TEACHERS

Troops to Teachers provides eligible service members up to $10,000 for becoming public school teachers. Under the Spouses to Teachers Program, eligible military spouses may be reimbursed for the cost of state required certification tests up to $600.

For more information, call 800-745-0709.

PRE-K CLASSES

Child and Youth Services has received funding from the Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning to operate four free Pre-K classrooms for the upcoming school year.

Eighty children will be selected to attend through a lottery. The Pre-K lottery sign-up is today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Building 359 on Ingersoll Street.

Children must be 4 years old by Sept. 1 and must live in Georgia. Classes begin in August. A Georgia Pre-K registration form must be completed and returned to CYS during the pre-registration days.

At the end of the sign-up, names will be drawn, and the families will be contacted to complete the registration paperwork. All remaining names will be placed on a waiting list.

Pre-K lottery sign-up forms may be picked up at any CYS facility.

For more information, contact the Child and Youth Services, Central Registration at 706-545-2079.

THRIFT SHOP

The Fort Benning Thrift Shop needs volunteers. Hours of operation are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. Free child care is available for volunteers. For more information or to hear a list of items being accepted for consignment, call 706-687-4830.

ENGLISH CLASSES

Free English classes are offered from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays in Room 219 of the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation.

For more information, call 706-545-4562.

ENLISTED SPOUSES CLUB

The ESC meets at 6:30 p.m. on the third Tuesday of each month at Room 139, Building 1677 near the Tax Center and Santa's Castle. Free child care is provided. Spouses of enlisted Soldiers of all ranks are invited.

For more information, call 706-221-8059 or e-mail fortbenningesc@yahoo.com.

USAIC VOLUNTEER CEREMONY

The annual USAIC Volunteer Recognition Ceremony and Reception will be from 4 to 6 p.m. April 29 on the lawn at Riverside.

If it rains, the event will be held at the Benning Club.

MACH HISTORY

The Martin Army Community Hospital's 50th anniversary will be celebrated in April. If you have any historical information or stories about the hospital, please e-mail it to Terry.Beckwith@us.army.mil or mail it to:

Family Advocacy offers Home Visitation Program

Program offers parents support through pregnancy, parenting

FAMILY ADVOCACY PROGRAM

The Family Advocacy Program has just added a new program — New Parent Support Program, Home Visitation.

The NPSP home visitors are a team of professional social workers and registered nurses who provide education, support and resources to all military beneficiary Families who are expecting a child, have children from birth to 3 years of age, or parents anticipating adoption, said Rebecca Welch, Family Advocacy program manager.

The NPSP trained home visitors have extensive knowledge of the issues confronting military parents and are sensitive to their unique challenges, Welch said. The program will provide timely, effective, confidential and intensive early intervention services that focus on fostering strong healthy military Families.

Home visitation serves to promote a nurturing Family environment, decrease social isolation, increase parent's confidence in their abilities, link clients to FAP and other community resources and help clients acquire needed parenting skills, she said. Participation in the program is voluntary and free of charge.

The home visits provide an opportunity to get pregnancy off to a good start, she said. Patients will learn about maintaining a healthy lifestyle. These meetings will include information on proper nutrition during pregnancy, the importance of resting and things to avoid during pregnancy.

There is also general information about labor and delivery, newborn care, breast feeding, infant massage, post partum depression, post partum care, and the period of PURPLE crying will be offered when needed or requested. The period of PURPLE crying is the new prevention program form the National Center of Shaken Baby Syndrome.

The program approaches shaken baby syndrome prevention by helping parents understand the features of crying in normal infants that are frustrating and that can lead to shaking or abuse.

Participants can also find out what other resources are available both on post and in the surrounding community.

This program isn't just for new parents, Welch said. The home visitation program provides parents with an understanding of basic skills necessary to care for their growing children up to the age of 3.

Topics include bathing, dressing and feeding a child. Safe sleep positions will be taught to help decrease the risk of sudden infant death syndrome.

Another area of interest is on soothing the crying infant and how to reduce the risks of shaken baby syndrome, Welch said. A structured parenting program will be available when needed and will be adjusted to meet participants' specific needs and goals.

The home visits are available by request or referral from other Fort Benning services.

"We try to schedule visits when both parents can be present to learn together about acquiring new skills in caring for their growing Family," Welch said.

To make an appointment or for more information, call 706-544-2020 between 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Shaken baby syndrome can cause injuries or death

Shaken baby syndrome can cause blindness, paralysis

FAMILY ADVOCACY PROGRAM

Shaken baby syndrome describes the serious injuries that can occur when a young child is severely or violently shaken. Young children, especially babies, have very weak neck muscles and do not yet have full support of their heavy heads.

Although shaken baby syndrome is a serious form of child abuse, many parents are unaware of the injuries that shaking can cause.

When babies are shaken, their fragile brains move back and forth within their skulls. This can cause serious injuries such as:

- Blindness or eye damage
- Delay in normal development
- Seizures
- Damage to the spinal cord (paralysis)
- Death

Shaken baby syndrome usually occurs when a parent or other caregiver shakes a baby because of anger or frustration, often because the baby will not stop crying. Remember, it is never OK to shake a baby.

If you or someone else shakes your baby, the most important step is to get medical care right away. Immediately, take your child to the pediatrician or emergency room. Don't let embarrassment, guilt, or fear get in the way of your child's health or life. If your baby's brain is damaged or bleeding inside from severe shaking, it will only get worse without treatment. Getting medical care right away may save your child's life and prevent serious health problems from developing.

Be sure to tell your pediatrician or other doctor if you know or suspect that your child was shaken. A doctor who is not aware that a child has been shaken may assume the baby is vomiting or having trouble breathing because of an illness. Mild symptoms of shaken baby syndrome are very much like those of infant colic, feeding problems and fussiness. Your pediatrician should have complete information so that he or she can treat your child properly.

Taking care of an infant can be challenging, especially when an end to the crying seems nowhere in sight. If you have tried to calm your crying child but nothing seems to work, it's important to stay in control of your temper. Remember, it's never OK to shake, throw or hit your child. If you feel as though you could lose control:

- Take a deep breath and count to 10.
- Take time out and let your baby cry alone.
- Call someone close for emotional support.
- Call your pediatrician. There may be a medical reason why your child is crying.

For more information on child abuse prevention, contact the Family Advocacy Program at 706-545-4013 or 706-545-7594.

American Red Cross needs type O negative blood

AMERICAN RED CROSS

ATLANTA — The American Red Cross urges all type O negative donors to donate blood within the next few days as its supply of this much-needed blood type currently stands at less than a day's supply.

Although there is a constant need for all blood types, type O negative donors play a critical role in maintaining the blood supply.

Type O negative is the universal blood type and can be safely given to any patient, regardless of blood type. It is used extensively by hospitals, particularly in life-threatening emergencies or when a patient's matching blood type is not readily available.

"Because type O negative blood is in such high demand, we depend on regular donors to meet the needs of patients in local hospitals," said Randy Edwards, chief executive officer of the American Red Cross Southern Blood Services Region.

"Type O negative blood is greatly needed today, but there is a constant need for all blood types. If you're not a regular blood donor, we encourage you to make a point to donate often. Every donation truly makes a difference in someone's life."

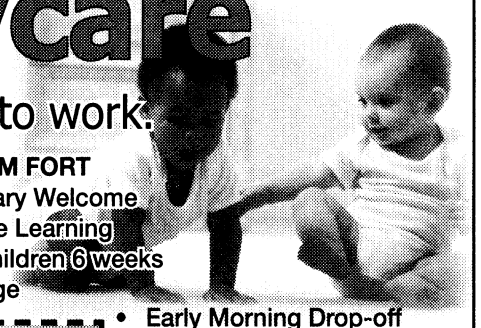
The process separates the donor's blood into its components as it is being drawn, and the plasma is returned to the donor during the donation process.

Since red blood cells are typically the component that is most needed when supplies of types O negative, O positive, B negative and A negative fall below ideal levels, double red cell donation allows donors to give what patients need most.



The American Red Cross urges everyone to donate blood as soon as possible, regardless of blood type.

While 37 percent of the U.S. population is eligible to donate, fewer than 8 percent of those eligible actually give blood. The Southern Region needs 1,200 blood donations each weekday to adequately supply more than 130 hospitals throughout the region. However, this goal is seldom met, and blood is routinely brought in from other states to meet the needs of local hospital patients.

There are 14 blood donor centers throughout the Southern Region, and blood drives are held daily at various times and locations.

Potential donors are asked to visit www.givebloodredcross.org or call 800-GIVE-LIFE to find the nearest blood drive or donor center.

Most people in good health who are age 17 or older and weigh at least 110 pounds can give blood.

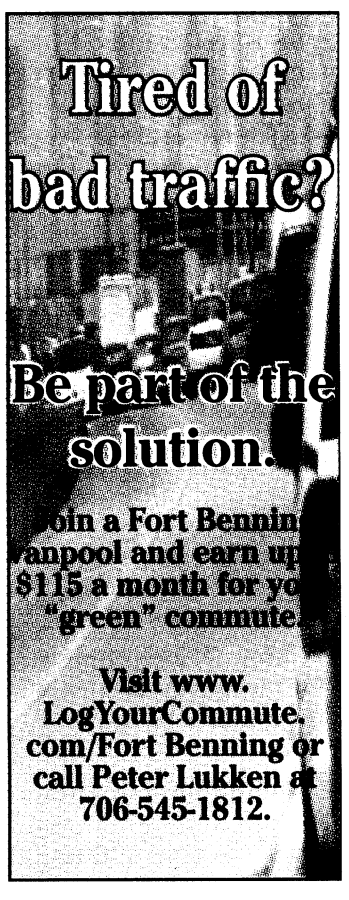
ASK THE JUDGE

OFFICE OF STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE
Capt. Jonathan D. Stewart

Q: I want to buy a new car, but I am having trouble qualifying for a loan because my credit score is too low. The car dealer said that if I add a cosigner, I will get the money I need and rebuild my credit at the same time. My grandma has offered to cosign, but I still have doubts. Any advice?



A: While a cosigner may help you obtain financing, car buyers must be wary of what is known as "straw purchase fraud." Often involving real estate, a "straw purchase" is a transaction where one person makes a purchase on behalf of an ineligible buyer or someone who otherwise wishes to hide their identity from the seller.

Cosigners act as intermediaries to allow car buyers with bad credit to receive loans for which the buyers alone do not qualify. When a financing agreement is co-signed, the names of both borrowers appear on the contract. Both borrowers are then legally responsible for the debt.

The transaction becomes a straw purchase if only one borrower, in this case the person with the better credit, signs the contract. Some car dealers know that a buyer's credit score is too low to be eligible for financing, even with a cosigner, so they process the loan entirely in the name of the "cosigner."

In such a case, the person who thought she was cosigning a loan is actually the only borrower. This will not help repair the credit of someone whose name is not on the loan, even if that person is actually the one who makes the monthly payments.

To avoid this potential problem, ensure that both of you sign the same document — do not sign separate contracts. If you want Grandma to be a cosigner, then have her read the contract carefully and sign it with you.

POSTWIDE YARD SALE

Officials offer guidelines

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Families around post will price furniture, knick knacks, art work, tools and books for the bi-annual postwide yard sale from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.April 26.

Selling items is restricted to post residents, but buying items is open to the public.

Those selling items can put up a maximum of three signs in their neighborhood at 5 p.m. April 25, said Lon Sperry, investment manager of Pinnacle. All signs should be taken down by 8 a.m. Monday.

Sperry said residents aren't allowed to put unsold items for trash pick-up. If residents have unsold items, they can donate it to the Fort Benning Thrift Shop at 229 Ingersoll St. which will accept donations on the back dock.

"Not everyone is participating in the yard sale, so we ask people to be courteous," Sperry said.

He said parking is allowed on the street but don't block driveways or fire hydrants.

Visitors who want to attend the yard sale need to stop at the visitor's office at either the Benning Road or I-185 gate and get a temporary vehicle pass. Valid identification and car registration is required. All adults in the vehicle must have valid identification.

Stamp Out Hunger set for May 10

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The National Association of Letter Carriers is gearing up for their annual "Stamp Out Hunger" food drive May 10.

Letter carriers will collect bags of canned` goods and non-perishable items to contribute to the nation's largest one-day food drive.

The local branch 546 in Columbus is hoping to get donations that outweigh their yearly average of 42,000 pounds of food. On a national level, the food drive contributed 70.7 million pounds to food banks.

"There are a lot of folks out there who are hungry and don't have the money to spend on groceries," said Charlie McGurk, a letter carrier who delivers mail at Fort Benning.

About 35 million Americans faced hunger in 2006,according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

McGurk has participated in the food drive for 12 years and he has seen an increase over the years.

"Every little bit helps," McGurk said.

All items will be donated to the Second Harvest Food Bank in Columbus, which serves 14 counties in Alabama and Georgia.

To participate in the food drive, leave canned goods and non-perishable items at the mailbox so letter carriers can pick up items when they drop off mail. McGurk suggests putting food at the mailbox by 9:30 a.m., because that is the earliest mail pick-up.

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Nearly 3,000 people turned out for Fort Benning's 10th annual luau at Uchee Creek Friday and Saturday. The event featured authentic island music by the Caribbean band Panablaze, hula lessons, karaoke, drum circles and a Polynesian show performed by the Phenix City dance group, Halau O Kalei.

Officer Candidate Jason Mageo attended the luau for the first time Saturday.

"I'm actually Samoan, so when I heard the word luau, I didn't know what to expect, but I knew I had to check it out," he said.

Mageo said he enjoyed the entertainment the most, particularly the band and the Polynesian show.

There were plenty of activities for all ages. Younger children could play on the "beach" in a sanded area filled with beach balls, buckets and shovels. Other new activities included the dunking booth and beach volleyball. In the activity center, there were crafts, video games and airbrush tattoos, and outside, children jumped, ran and slid on the giant inflatables.

"We were stationed in Hawaii for four years, and we came out to see if this would be anything like it. And so far, it's been pretty good," said Margie Jones, who brought her day care student, 5-year-old Brock Byrd, out for the festivities.

Her husband, retired Sgt. 1st Class Alton Jones, said he enjoyed watching Brock play on all the inflatables, but the ground roasted pig, a traditional Polynesian food, was the best part.

"That's the way to cook it right there, in the ground," he said. "There's nothing like it — falls off the bone."

Visitors could sample the different Asian, Pacific and American fare at a picnic table in the "Tiki garden" or sit back and relax on the hay rides, train rides and pontoon boat rides.

Mageo said even though the event wasn't purely authentic — he liked the funnel cake — it was still an enjoyable afternoon.

"This is as close as you can get on the mainland," he said.

Car show set for Saturday

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

When Retired Lt. Col. Jim Timbes was 24 years old, he restored a Model A Ford Coupe in Jackson, Miss., and fell in love with the car. In 1993, at the age of 57, Timbes purchased a 1931 Model A Ford Cabriolet two weeks before his wedding. After the wedding he his wife, Mickey, rode away in his Model A Ford Cabriolet.

Timbes named his car Ms. Isabel, after his mom, because his parents owned a Model A Ford when they were dating in the 1930s. The car, which cost $670 in 1931, is now worth $29,900, Timbes said.

"What I like most about this car is that it's dependable," Timbes said. "If I wanted to, I could drive it to California."

Timbes' car will be one of many at the sixth annual car show April 19 at the Port Columbus Civil War Naval Museum, sponsored by the River Cities Model A Ford Club.

The car show won't just be Model A Fords, Timbes said. Other classes will include street rods, classic Chevys, Mustangs, Thunderbirds, motorcycles, trucks and Corvettes.

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to noon. Cars registered after noon will not be judged.

Judging begins at noon and includes Best of Show and Naval Museum's choice. The first 100 participants will receive a dash plaque. Car registration is $15 per car and $5 for each additional car. There will also be a place to sell cars, which costs $5 a car. Proceeds benefit the River Cities Model A Ford Club's college scholarship program. The event is free and open to the public. For more information, call Bobby Penny at 334-291-1472.

Callaway in color

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

When you wander through the Callaway Brothers Azalea Bowl, you will hear a steady murmur of sighs and gasps as people marvel at the 40 acres of beauty in the garden.

Spring is when Callaway Gardens shows its true colors — red, orange, pink, purple, yellow, white. More than 3,400 hybrid azaleas are on display in the Overlook Garden, the Azalea Bowl and Meadowlark Gardens.

The azaleas are dazzling, but don't forget the rhododendrons, dogwoods, daffodils, irises, mountain laurel, lilies and holly — all currently in bloom. Maples, oaks, pines and magnolia trees add to the pageant of vibrant colors. Stroll along one of the many looping trails through dense groves and around lakes to get a closer look at a stunning variety of Georgia flora and fauna.

For a more exotic twist on nature, visit the John A. Sibley Horticultural Center. Cactuses, papaya and banana trees and other tropical plants thrive in the greenhouse, with its conservatory, rock wall garden and fern grotto. An indoor waterfall and several sculptures ornament the Sibley Center. Outside, pansies and snapdragons are budding in shades of purple and pink.

Color at Mr. Cason's Vegetable Garden is still under the soil, with carrots, potatoes, lettuce and cauliflower. But azaleas, dogwoods and cherry trees dot the grounds.

If you haven't seen enough color after visiting the different gardens, enter the Cecil B. Day Butterfly Center to view an array of tropical blossoms, and the fluttering butterflies that feed on them.

The "Spring Celebration" lasts through April 27. This weekend is Earth Day Everyday and features fly-tying demonstrations, organ concerts, art exhibits, watercolor lessons, sidewalk chalk art and the entertaining Birds of Prey show, where you can see a hawk, owl, eagle and vulture. The Relay for Life Family Fun Day, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, will include arts and crafts, a cake walk, face painting, games for the kids and more to raise money for cancer research.

In the coming months, the gardens will shift into summer with hydrangeas, dahlias, marigolds, zinnias, petunias and begonias.

Through the Fort Benning Military Program, active-duty Soldiers stationed at Fort Benning are admitted to the gardens free. Other passengers in the same vehicle receive a 50 percent discount. Soldiers receive a 25 percent discount off of Mountain Creek Inn room rates, a 40 percent discount on golf fees, tennis court time and fishing boat and tackle rental, and a 10 percent discount on admission to Fantasy In Lights on select dates. Soldiers and their spouses can also take advantage of free coaster bike rentals. Benefits of deployed Soldiers transfer to their spouse.

Callaway Gardens will also host a military appreciation night April 25, featuring the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra in concert from 8 to 9:30 p.m. at Robin Lake Beach. The theme for the night is "A Tribute to Our Armed Forces." The Robin Lake gate opens at 5:30. Guests are invited to bring a blanket, lawn chair or picnic basket and enjoy this free concert.

Several flowers are blossoming this spring besides the many azaleas, including daffodils, dogwoods, mountain laurel, lilies, rhododendrons and holly.

The gardens are open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day. They are located off of Highway 18 in Pine Mountain, Ga., a half hour north of Fort Benning. Admission is $13 for adults, $6.50 for children 6 to 12, and $10 for retired military personnel and Family members. For more information, call 706-663-2281.

Learning to fly can be an enjoyable experience

Rachel L. Watkins and her flight instructor with CSG Aviation, Todd Shellnutt, sit in the cockpit before a flying lesson.

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

I like to have the bejeebers scared out of me. Whether it's roller coasters, bungee swinging or the free fall at an amusement park, I love that feeling of fear. One of my favorite trips in high school was going to the Delta Airline training facility in Atlanta, where I was in a simulated airplane crash. I think my heart stopped for a minute when the plane shook and the lights went off.

I like not knowing what's going to happen next. That's the feeling I got when I first rode as a passenger in a plane — exciting fear. I was 16 years old and I had flown to New York with my family. Waiting for takeoff, I remember asking my brother, "What if we crash?" Although it was a disheartening thought, I liked the feeling of uncertainty. I loved the rush I got during takeoff and landing.

So, when the opportunity to fly a plane at CSG Aviation in Columbus came along, I jumped at it. There I was, sitting on the runway, having second thoughts about my ability to fly, shaking from fear (did I say this was a lesson and a licensed pilot was sitting next to me?). I pulled the yoke up, and we ascended into the air. The four-seater airplane rocked back and forth as the wind hit it.

I learned some important things during my flight. Among them is this: Don't press the red button. I was told it was the seat eject button. After watching many Saturday morning cartoons, I thought, OK, maybe planes really do have ejection buttons. My instructor laughed. I must have had gullible written on my forehead.

My flight instructor put a card in my hand and told me to try and hold it there. As we dove, the card floated out of my hand, and I floated out of my seat. I screamed as I realized I didn't have to be in outer space to float. After the G-force experiment, I looked to see if I was still alive. I loved it. It was more intense than the rush I get on the top of a roller coaster hill.

This was a fun experience, and I know that if I had the chance to do it again, I would.

Want to learn to fly? For more information, go to www.csgaviation.com or call CSG Aviation at 706-324-2453. CSG Aviation is located at 2350 West Britt David Road, Columbus. CSG Aviation also offers these programs:

Young Eagles — a program that allows children ages 8 to 17 to go on 10 to 15 discovery flights. It is held at CSG Aviation from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. on the last Saturday of every month. It includes breakfast, and the ride is free.

Aviation Explorers — Ages 15 to 20 years old take field trips and learn more about flying. The next meeting is April 29 at CSG Aviation.

Opening Today
MR. BROOKS

Mr. Brooks (Kevin Costner), loving father and husband, philantrhopist, and successful businessman, is a clever serial killer via his alter ego Marshall.

But when an amateur photographer witnesses one of his crimes, he becomes entangled in a bystander's agenda and hunted by the unorthodox detective Tracy Atwood.

Mr. Brooks is rated R for violence, sexual content, nudity and language.

THE FORBIDDEN KINGDOM

While hunting down bootleg kung-fu DVDs in a Chinatown pawnshop, Jason (Michael Angarano) makes an extraordinary discovery that sends him back in time to ancient China. There, he is charged with the task to free the fabled warrior, the Monkey King (Jet Li), who has been imprisoned by the evil Jade Warlord (Collin Chou). He is joined in his quest by kung fu master Lu Yan (Jackie Chan) and a band of misfit warriors. But only by learning the true precepts of kung fu can Jason hope to succeed and find a way to get home.

88 MINUTES

Dr. Jack Gramm (Al Pacino), a college professor who moonlights as a forensic psychiatrist for the FBI, receives a death threat claiming he has only 88 minutes to live. He must skillfully narrow down the possible suspects, who include a disgruntled student, jilted former lover and serial killer already on death row, before time runs out.

88 Minutes is rated R for violence, nudity and language.

FORGETTING SARAH MARSHALL

Also Playing
PROM NIGHT

Donna's (Brittany Snow) senior prom should be the best night of her life, but a dark secret returns from the past to haunt her and her friends in the form of a vengeful killer on their prom night.

Prom Night is rated PG-13 for violence, terror, sexual material, underage drinking and language.

STREET KINGS

Tom Ludlow (Keanu Reeves), a veteran LAPD detective, sets out to discover the killers of his former partner, Detective Terrance Washington. Ludlow's supervisor, Captain Wander (Forest Whitaker), must keep him within the confines of the law and out of the clutches of Internal Affairs Captain Biggs (Hugh Laurie). Ludlow teams up with a young homicide detective to track Washington's killers through Los Angeles and bring them to justice.

Street Kings is rated R for violence and language.

LEATHERHEADS

In 1925, Dodge Connolly (George Clooney) is a brash football hero determined to guide his team to glory. But when the league faces collapse, Dodge convinces a college football star, the handsome, athletic war hero Carter Rutherford (John Krasinski) to join his ragtag ranks.

Journalist Lexie (Renee Zellweger), suspects there are holes in Carter's story, but meanwhile, the two teammates become rivals for her affections.

Dodge must fight to keep his guys together and to get the girl of his dreams, while bringing the sport he loves to the country's attention.

Leatherheads is rated PG-13 for language.

NIM'S ISLAND

Although Alexandra (Jodie Foster), the author of the Rover books, leads a reclusive life in the big city, when Nim's father goes missing from their island, a twist of fate brings her together with Alexandra. Now, they must work together to conquer Nim's Island.

THE RUINS

Four American friends (Jonathan Tucker, Jena Malone, Shawn Ashmore and Laura Ramsey) on vacation in Cancun, meet a German tourist (Joe Anderson) who persuades them to join his hunt for his brother, last seen near some Mayan ruins. But when the group arrives, things start to go very wrong.

The Ruins is rated R for violence, gruesome images, language, sexuality and nudity.

To pay for his M.I.T. tuition, Ben Campbell (Jim Sturgess) joins a group of the school's gifted students, led by math professor Micky Rosa (Kevin Spacey), which counts cards at blackjack each weekend in Vegas. Seduced by the money and his teammate, Jill (Kate Bosworth), Ben pushes the limits, staying ahead of the casinos' enforcer: Cole Williams (Laurence Fishburne).

Who will be number 25?
Join us today for the Best Ranger Competition

RANGER TRAINING BRIGADE
Col. Greg Hager

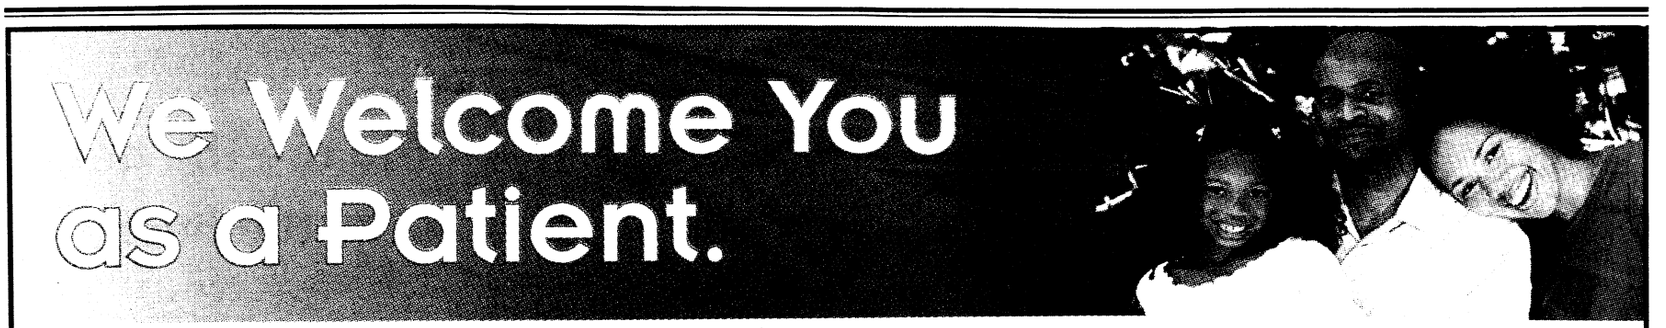
The number 25 represents many things in the sports and financial worlds. The number 25 also marks the years of a marriage as the silver anniversary. Today, that number represents the 25th annual Best Ranger Competition at Fort Benning and on Monday, the 25th team will raise their trophy pistols and call themselves "Best Ranger."

It started in 1982 as a "Ranger Olympics" among the Ranger Department Ranger Camps. In 1984, it became an Armywide competition to identify the most physically and mentally tough, and technically competent Ranger team in the military. In the 27 years since Sgt. 1st Class Philip Sebay and Sgt. 1st Class Charles Light, of the 3rd Ranger Company, Benning Ranger Division, were recognized as the Best Ranger Team, the competition was suspended only twice. The first was 1991, during Operation Desert Shield, and the second was 2003, during Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom.

The 2008 Best Ranger Competition continues the tradition of showcasing the toughness, combat skills proficiency and commitment of our Warrior Soldiers.

This year's field of competitors is nearly 30 teams from force generating units in Training and Doctrine Command to operational units from Forces Command, and both active and Reserve Component.

The core 2008 Best Ranger Competition events involve foot movement, engaging and destroying an enemy target, evaluating, treating and evacuating a casualty, and the demonstration of physical and mental toughness. Upon completion of the three-day competition, during which no sleep is scheduled, each Ranger team will move in excess of 60 miles, with equipment, and fire nearly 250 rounds of ammunition using multiple weapon systems.



Day one of the competition begins at Camp Rogers and includes events at Malvesti Field, Todd Field, Hurley Hill/Victory Pond, Lee Field and the Malone Range Complex. Teams finish day one with the beginning of the unknown distance road march.

Day two of the competition on Todd Field will test the Ranger teams' technical proficiency on military skills, including mountaineering, demolitions, communications, medical tasks and employment of hand grenades.

As the sun sets on day two, the Ranger teams begin the orienteering event which will end at Camp Darby and begin the third and final day of the completion.

The third and final day of the competition will identify the most physically and mentally tough and technically competent Ranger team in the military based on a combined score of all three days of the competition. But before the winners teams raise those pistols Monday at the Ranger Memorial, they must negotiate the Darby Queen, conduct the helocast/swim at Victory Pond and complete the Buddy Run.

There are 24 Ranger teams who have called themselves Best Ranger. Who will be number25?

IN JUST THE BLINK OF AN EYE YOU CAN LOSE AN EYE

April 2006. Nighttime mission outside Fallujah. "That blast was so strong it threw me around like no tomorrow..." This gunner was ready with Revision Sawfly® Eyewear. His vehicle was rocked. Shrapnel flew. His sight was saved. IEDs don't come with warning signals. You have to be ready. Ready for the worst. Ready with the best. And that's Revision Eyewear. Powerful ballistic protection. Flawless distortion-free optics.

Abrams' Own still sets the standard

On the occasion of this 25th Anniversary of the Best Ranger Competition, let me congratulate all the participants and thank those who make this event possible.

One of my distinguished predecessors, Army Chief of Staff Creighton Abrams, developed the idea of reforming the first post-World War II battalion-sized Ranger units.

In 1974, he directed the formation of the 1st and 2nd Battalions (Ranger), 75th Infantry, selected their missions, and picked the first officers. In fact, Rangers were often referred to as "Abrams' Own."

In addition to their operational importance, Gen. Abrams felt that as the Army battled back from the hollow force days of the Vietnam era, Rangers would set the standard and improve the quality of the entire Army.

He was right. Ranger units and training set the standard, and today's Army is, as a result, the best in the world.

We have been at war for almost seven years, fighting for our freedom, our security and our future as a nation. We have made hard sacrifices, and there will be more.

Faced with such a long and difficult struggle, it is useful to remind ourselves that the Army exists to field forces for victory. We are in this war to win. We have fought this way since 1775 and always will.

Ranger units and training continue to lead as we sustain and prepare the force for today's fight and the future.

I am pleased that events like the Best Ranger Competition provide us the opportunity to recognize the importance of Army Rangers and the fact "Rangers Lead the Way."

BRC honors Ranger legend

Lt. Gen. David E. Grange Jr. is a veteran of 20 campaigns in three wars and served with distinction throughout the Army. He enlisted in 1942 and served as a parachute Infantryman in Europe, taking part in the Rome-Arno, Southern France, Rhineland, Ardennes and Central Europe campaigns of World War II.

Grange was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1950 and served in Korea with the 187th Airborne Infantry Regiment.

He served his first tour of duty in Vietnam in 1963 as an Airborne/Ranger/Infantry advisor to the Department of Defense's Research and Development Field Unit.

In 1967 he commanded the 2nd Battalion (Airborne), 506th Infantry, 101st Airborne Division, in Vietnam.

He returned to Vietnam for his third tour in 1970, and there he commanded the 101st Support Command and the 3rd Brigade, 101st Airborne Division.

He served as director of the Ranger Department and later commanded the 2nd Infantry Division, the U.S. Army Infantry Center and the 6th U.S. Army.

Retired Lt. Gen. David E. Grange joins a crowd of spectators at the Day Stakes medic event. The BRC, which began in 1982, was the brainchild of a group of civilian Ranger boosters, the Chairborne Rangers, headed by Dick Leandri, who envisioned a "Ranger Olympics" of sorts. They wanted the event to honor Grange, a former Ranger Department commander.

RANGER

The evolution of the BRC

In July 1981, the Chairborne Rangers, a civilian organization that supports Rangers, asked the Ranger Training Department to design and conduct a "Ranger Olympics" in order to identify the best two-man Ranger team in the Army.

From the beginning, the objective was clear, competition should place extreme demands on the team's physical, mental and technical abilities as Rangers.

The first two Best Ranger Competitions were held as competitions between teams from each of the three Ranger Department Camps. In 1984, the competition expanded to include teams from throughout the Army.

Interest in the Best Ranger Competition has risen to such a high level that many of the participating commands now conduct preliminary competitions to select the teams that will represent their unit at Fort Benning each year.

The competition is a three-day event consisting of physical and mental tasks undertaken with very little rest between events. Selected events must be completed to remain in the competition. The historical attrition rate averages approximately 60 percent. Competitors are not aware of test sequence until arriving at the test site.

The competition has grown over the years to be one of the highlights for Fort Benning with national news coverage and outstanding guest speakers.

Road march trophy honors fallen Ranger

Rippetoe remembered as selfless, unwavering

Bridgett Siter

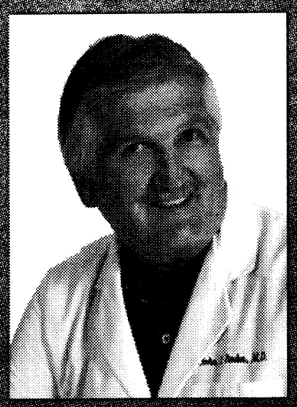
Capt. Russell Rippetoe trained to compete in the Best Ranger Competition two times. And two times he had to cancel. The mission always came first. As a Ranger with the 75th Ranger Regiment, Rippetoe was on a mission more often than not.

He was on a mission April 3, 2003, when he went to the aid of a pregnant woman at a checkpoint in Iraq. It cost him his life.

The driver of the car detonated explosives hidden in his vehicle, killing himself, his passengers, the pregnant woman, 27-year-old Rippetoe and two of his fellow Rangers.

Rippetoe's father, retired Lt. Col. Joe Rippetoe, carries the scorched, metal "Shield of Strength" that hung from a chain around his son's neck. It is inscribed with a verse from the book of Joshua: I will be strong and courageous. I will not be terrified, or discouraged, for the Lord my God is with me wherever I go.

These days, Joe Rippetoe hands out similar medallions to most everyone he meets, especially Soldiers. He wants them to be inspired by the scripture that inspired his son.



And, yes, he wants them to be inspired by his son, who was always "the type to look out for people, a friend to the friendless" and a Ranger who put the mission and the safety of his Soldiers above all else.

Those traits, though they cost him his life, were also what made him a good Soldier, said retired Col. Thomas Dials, then the president of the Armed Forces Institute, when he spoke at a ceremony on Fort Benning four years ago, shortly before the Best Ranger Competition.

Rippetoe had an "inner toughness" that allowed him to "keep going when others fell by the wayside," Dials said, as he unveiled a bronze combat boot trophy that has since been awarded annually to the team that wins the grueling road march in the BRC.

The Russell B. Rippetoe Trophy, sponsored by the Armed Forces Institute, is awarded to the two men who, like Rippetoe, keep going when others fall by the wayside, as so many do during the road march. It's the one event that typically cuts the number of competitors in half.

The "unknown distance road march," the last event of the first day of the competition, is usually between 18 and 25 miles long, and each competitor carries a 65-pound rucksack and his weapon.

Standing Orders still drive Ranger training

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

The tactics and skills taught in Ranger School today evolved from Maj. Robert Rogers' Standing Orders.

Rogers, a New Hampshire native, honed his warfighting skills while serving in the Colonial Army. He studied the strategies the Indians used to wage war on colonists and turned the tables on them and their French allies. While other troops seldom strayed far from their frontier forts, Rogers went on the offense, leading his scouts on raids into enemy territory. He listed his keys to success as "standing orders," and Ranger units still consider them a valuable teaching tool.

Though modern weaponry and intelligence has advanced beyond anything Rogers could have imagined, the mission of the Ranger today is much the same as it was then — find the enemy and beat him at his own game. In the 250-plus years since the French and Indian War, Rogers' tactics have been modified and employed during every major war in which the U.S. has been involved.

During the Revolution, Col. Daniel Morgan led a highly successful "Ranger type" troop of Infantrymen called Morgan's Riflemen. And Francis Marion, "The Swamp Fox," organized a ornery band of Ranger types who thwarted the English army's every attempt to gain ground in the Southern states.

By 1813, "Ranger" was the accepted term for the unorthodox, aggressive warfighter. That year, 12 Ranger companies were listed in the Army register. Less than 20 years later, more than 600 mounted Rangers fought in the Black Hawk War.

The concept of a Ranger cavalry caught on, and they were very successful, none more so than the Texas Rangers, who protected the republic from Mexican and Indian attacks.

During the Civil War, the Confederate Congress passed the Partisan Ranger Act authorizing Rangers to conduct bold raids on Union supply lines. Among the most successful was Gen. John Hunt Morgan and Col. John Mosby, who controlled an area in Virginia known as Mosby's Confederacy.

Rangers were not employed again until World War II, when the 1st Ranger Battalion was activated under the command of Maj. William O. Darby, for whom Fort Benning's Camp Darby is named. Darby's Rangers were lauded for their success in North Africa, and soon after, more battalions were added. By the end of the war, there were six.

Brig. Gen. Frank D. Merrill led the 5307th Composite Unit (Provisional), including a band of marauders who fought in the harsh Japanese-occupied jungles of Burma alongside and against tribes of headhunters and cannibals.

The 5307th was never classified as a Ranger unit, but Merrill's Marauders became famous for their daring exploits and Ranger-style operations. The unit was later designated the 75th Infantry.

At the outbreak of the Korean War, morale was low in the Army. Banking on the success of the Ranger units during World War II, Army officials established the Ranger Training Command at Fort Benning, and 15 Airborne Ranger companies were activated by 1951. Later that year, the Army chief of staff, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, directed Ranger training be extended to all combat units.

Thus the Ranger Department was created, and the first class of graduates were given a simple black and gold tab in 1952. The department became the Ranger Training Brigade in 1987.

During the Vietnam War, 14 Ranger companies were organized, mostly comprised of volunteers who had not graduated from Ranger School.

1. Don't forget nothing.
2. Have your musket clean as a whistle, hatchet scoured, 60 rounds of powder and ball, and be ready to move at a minute's warning.
3. When you are on the march, act the way you would if you was sneaking up on a deer; see the enemy first.
4. Tell the truth about what you see and what you do. There is an Army depending on us for correct information. You can lie all you please when you tell other folks about the Rangers. But never lie to an officer or Ranger.
5. Don't never take a chance you don't have to.
6. When we're on the march, march single file, far enough apart so one shot can't go through two men.
7. If we strike swamps or soft ground, we spread out abreast so it's hard to track us.
8. When we march, we keep moving until dark, so as to give the enemy the least possible chance at us.
9. When we camp, half the party stays awake while the other half sleeps.
10. If we take prisoners, we keep 'em separate till we have had time to examine them, so they can't cook up a story between 'em.
11. Don't ever march home the same way. Take a different route so you won't be ambushed.
12. No matter whether we travel in big parties or little ones, each party has to keep a scout 20 yards ahead, 20 yards on each flank, and 20 yards in the rear, so the main body can't be surprised and wiped out.
13. Every night you will be told where to meet if surrounded by a superior force.
14. Don't sit down to eat without posting sentries.
15. Don't sleep beyond dawn; dawn's when the French and Indians attack.
16. Don't cross a river by a regular ford.
17. If somebody's trailing you, make a circle, come back onto your own trail, and ambush the folks that aim to ambush you.
18. Don't stand up when the enemy's coming against you. Kneel down, lie down, hide behind a tree.
19. Let the enemy come till he's close enough to touch. Then let him have it and jump out and finish him up with your hatchet.

Standing Orders

The 1st and 2nd Battalions, 75th Infantry (Ranger), were activated in 1974 respectively at Fort Stewart, Ga., and Fort Lewis, Wash. The 3rd Battalion was later located at Fort Benning. The unit is now the 75th Ranger Regiment. Like those Vietnam-era companies, the regiment is comprised of "tabbed" Rangers who have graduated from Ranger School and "scrolled" Rangers who have passed the regiment's Ranger Indoctrination Program for junior enlisted and Ranger Orientation Program for senior NCOs and officers.

Like Ranger training as a whole, Ranger School has evolved since its inception more than 50 years ago. Designed to simulate the stresses of close combat, it is one of the Army's most rigorous, elite schools, with an attrition rate of nearly 50 percent.

Before they can attend Ranger School, students are carefully screened and must certify successfully in 26 Ranger common tasks, such as using night vision devices, employing claymore mines and proficiency with a military map. Though Airborne school is not a prerequisite, it is strongly encouraged.

Most brigade-level units host pre-Ranger courses to prepare Soldiers for the stress of Ranger School. Though officials are quick to discount the notion that pre-Ranger is a "weeding out" process, it can be argued that it serves dual purposes. Sending a Soldier to Ranger School is an investment that pays dividends in the success of a unit.

It's a 61-day, three-phase school, including 19 days at Fort Benning, 21 at Camp Merrill in Dahlonega, Ga., 18 at Camp Rudder in Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and back to Fort Benning for graduation.

Fort Benning is the home of the Ranger Training Brigade and its 4th Ranger Training Battalion, which hosts the "crawl" phase of Ranger School, where students, in two-man teams learn the fundamentals of mission planning. This phase is critical to success, as it lays the groundwork for phases two and three, the "walk" and "run" phases.

At Benning, students must successfully complete the Ranger Assessment Phase, which includes many of the tasks Best Ranger Competition spectators are familiar with — the Malvesti Field Obstacle Course, the Darby Queen and the log-walk-rope-drop. Here they also learn the basics of close combat, using a knives or bare hands.

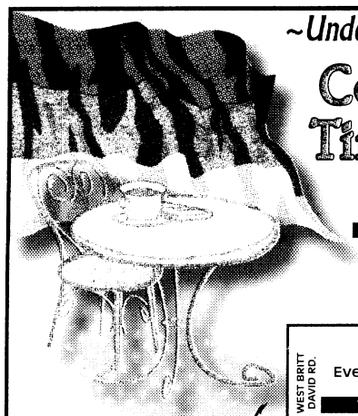
At the 5th Ranger Training Battalion, the students learn mountaineering skills, and at the 6th Ranger Training Battalion, they must demonstrate tactical and technical proficiency in swampy terrain leading a platoon-size patrol. This phase includes small boat operations and an extensive "do-or-die" field training exercise.

All in all, Ranger School students will participate in three Airborne operations and 10 air assault operations. They are graded on their ability to lead at various levels in various situations. And here's the kicker — they can be "peered out," the Ranger School equivalent of being voted off the island by their classmates.

If a student suffers an injury that keeps him from finishing, he may be "recycled" at the discretion of the battalion or brigade commander, meaning he'll be given an opportunity to heal and finish the course with the next class.



Eleven Ranger classes graduate each year at Victory Pond. Family members are treated to a Rangers In Action demonstration before each ceremony to give them an abbreviated glimpse of what their Ranger has endured during training. The event is open to the public, as is the annual Lt. Gen. David E. Grange Best Ranger Competition

The BRC, which started in 1982, was the brainchild of a group of civilian Ranger boosters of sorts, the Chairborne Rangers, headed by Dick Leandri, who became an honorary member of the Ranger Hall of Fame in 1992. Leandri envisioned a "Ranger Olympics" and wanted the event to honor his friend, Grange, a former commander of the Ranger Department.

Leandri, who died in 1998, lived long enough to see his dream established as the military's premier competition, annually drawing hordes of spectators and national media.

Golly, MOLLE, what's in the bag?

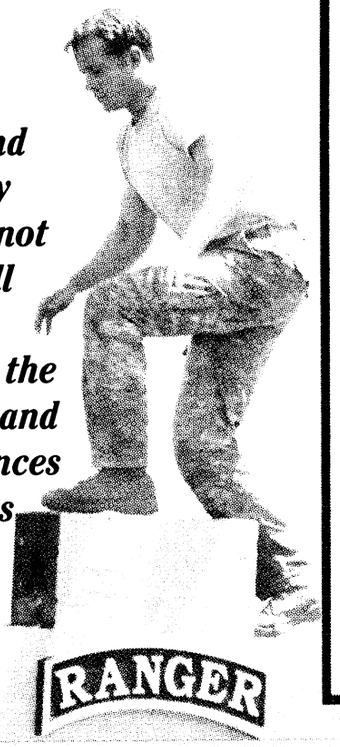
Best Ranger competitors carry more than 65 pounds of gear

"Don't forget nothing." That's Maj. Robert Rogers' Standing Order Number One, and like most all of Rogers' orders, that one's relevant more than 250 years after it was published. "Don't forget nothing" is the first standing order for BRC competitors who will be disqualified before the start of the competition if they fail to pack even one of the items on the packing list. Together, it all adds up to more than 65 pounds, and most of it is stashed in the MOLLE, which rhymes with golly and stands for Modular Lightweight Load-carrying Equipment. That's it pictured on the right. The MOLLE replaced the ALICE packs competitors carried last year.

That's not the only change in this year's packing list. Competitors will be sporting the new Army Combat Uniform, commonly called ACUs. They're digitized, lightweight and easier to maintain than their predecessor, the BDUs. No ironing is needed, which is a good thing, because there's no room in a MOLLE for an iron.

Inside their MOLLEs, the competitors will carry seven MREs — that's Meals Ready to Eat. And that's all they'll be allowed to eat until they cross the finish line. They will be encouraged to drink lots of water, which they'll carry in the canteens tucked inside this LBE, or Load-bearing Equipment.

Ask a competitor, he'll tell you it's all about the feet. That's why he's required to pack foot powder and three pairs of socks.



Among the items packed inside the MOLLE or the LBE:

- two pairs of gloves,
- a compass,
- a whistle,
- a flashlight,
- snaplinks,
- sling ropes,
- first aid dressings,
- a pencil and notebook,
- a safety harness,
- an e-tool (that's a compact shovel),
- a wet weather bag,
- two extra T-shirts,
- a poncho liner,
- a knife
- and a wet weather or Gore-Tex top.

Four Winds offers Hero sandwich

'Ranger Burger' will open Sunday for BRC

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

The Best Ranger Competition is like homecoming around here, minus dinner on the ground. For that, you'll have to drop by the Four Winds Restaurant on Highway 26, about halfway between Camp Rogers and Camp Darby.

Four Winds is known for its Ranger Burger. In fact, the restaurant itself is best known as "the Ranger Burger." I've often wondered why the owners don't make the name change official. Ask a Ranger for directions to Four Winds, and he'll scratch his head. Ask him for directions to the Ranger Burger, and he'll give you grid coordinates.

Donald and Susan Cox bought the restaurant in 1979, and they inherited the name. Susan, who absolutely did not want the business to start with, agreed to run the place until Donald retired from the Army in 1980. It took him two days to decide he wasn't cut out for it, and Susan's been running it ever since.

She does a fine job of it, I might add. From the beginning, she recognized the value of her camouflaged clientele — the Soldiers and hunters who frequent the place — and their typically voracious appetites.

She "played with the menu" — that's what she called it — until she created a sandwich to appease a monster appetite and please a palate weary of MREs. The result: a pound of beef sandwiched between sesame seeds with cheese, bacon and the works.

When Susan was satisfied she'd created a sandwich Rangers would be proud of, she asked the Ranger Training Brigade commander for permission to name it the Ranger Burger.

"He said we could do it as long as we kept up the standard," Susan said. "I've been doing my utmost to keep up the standard ever since."

The Ranger Burger, introduced 20 years ago, quickly caught on, and consuming one became a rite of passage for Ranger School graduates.

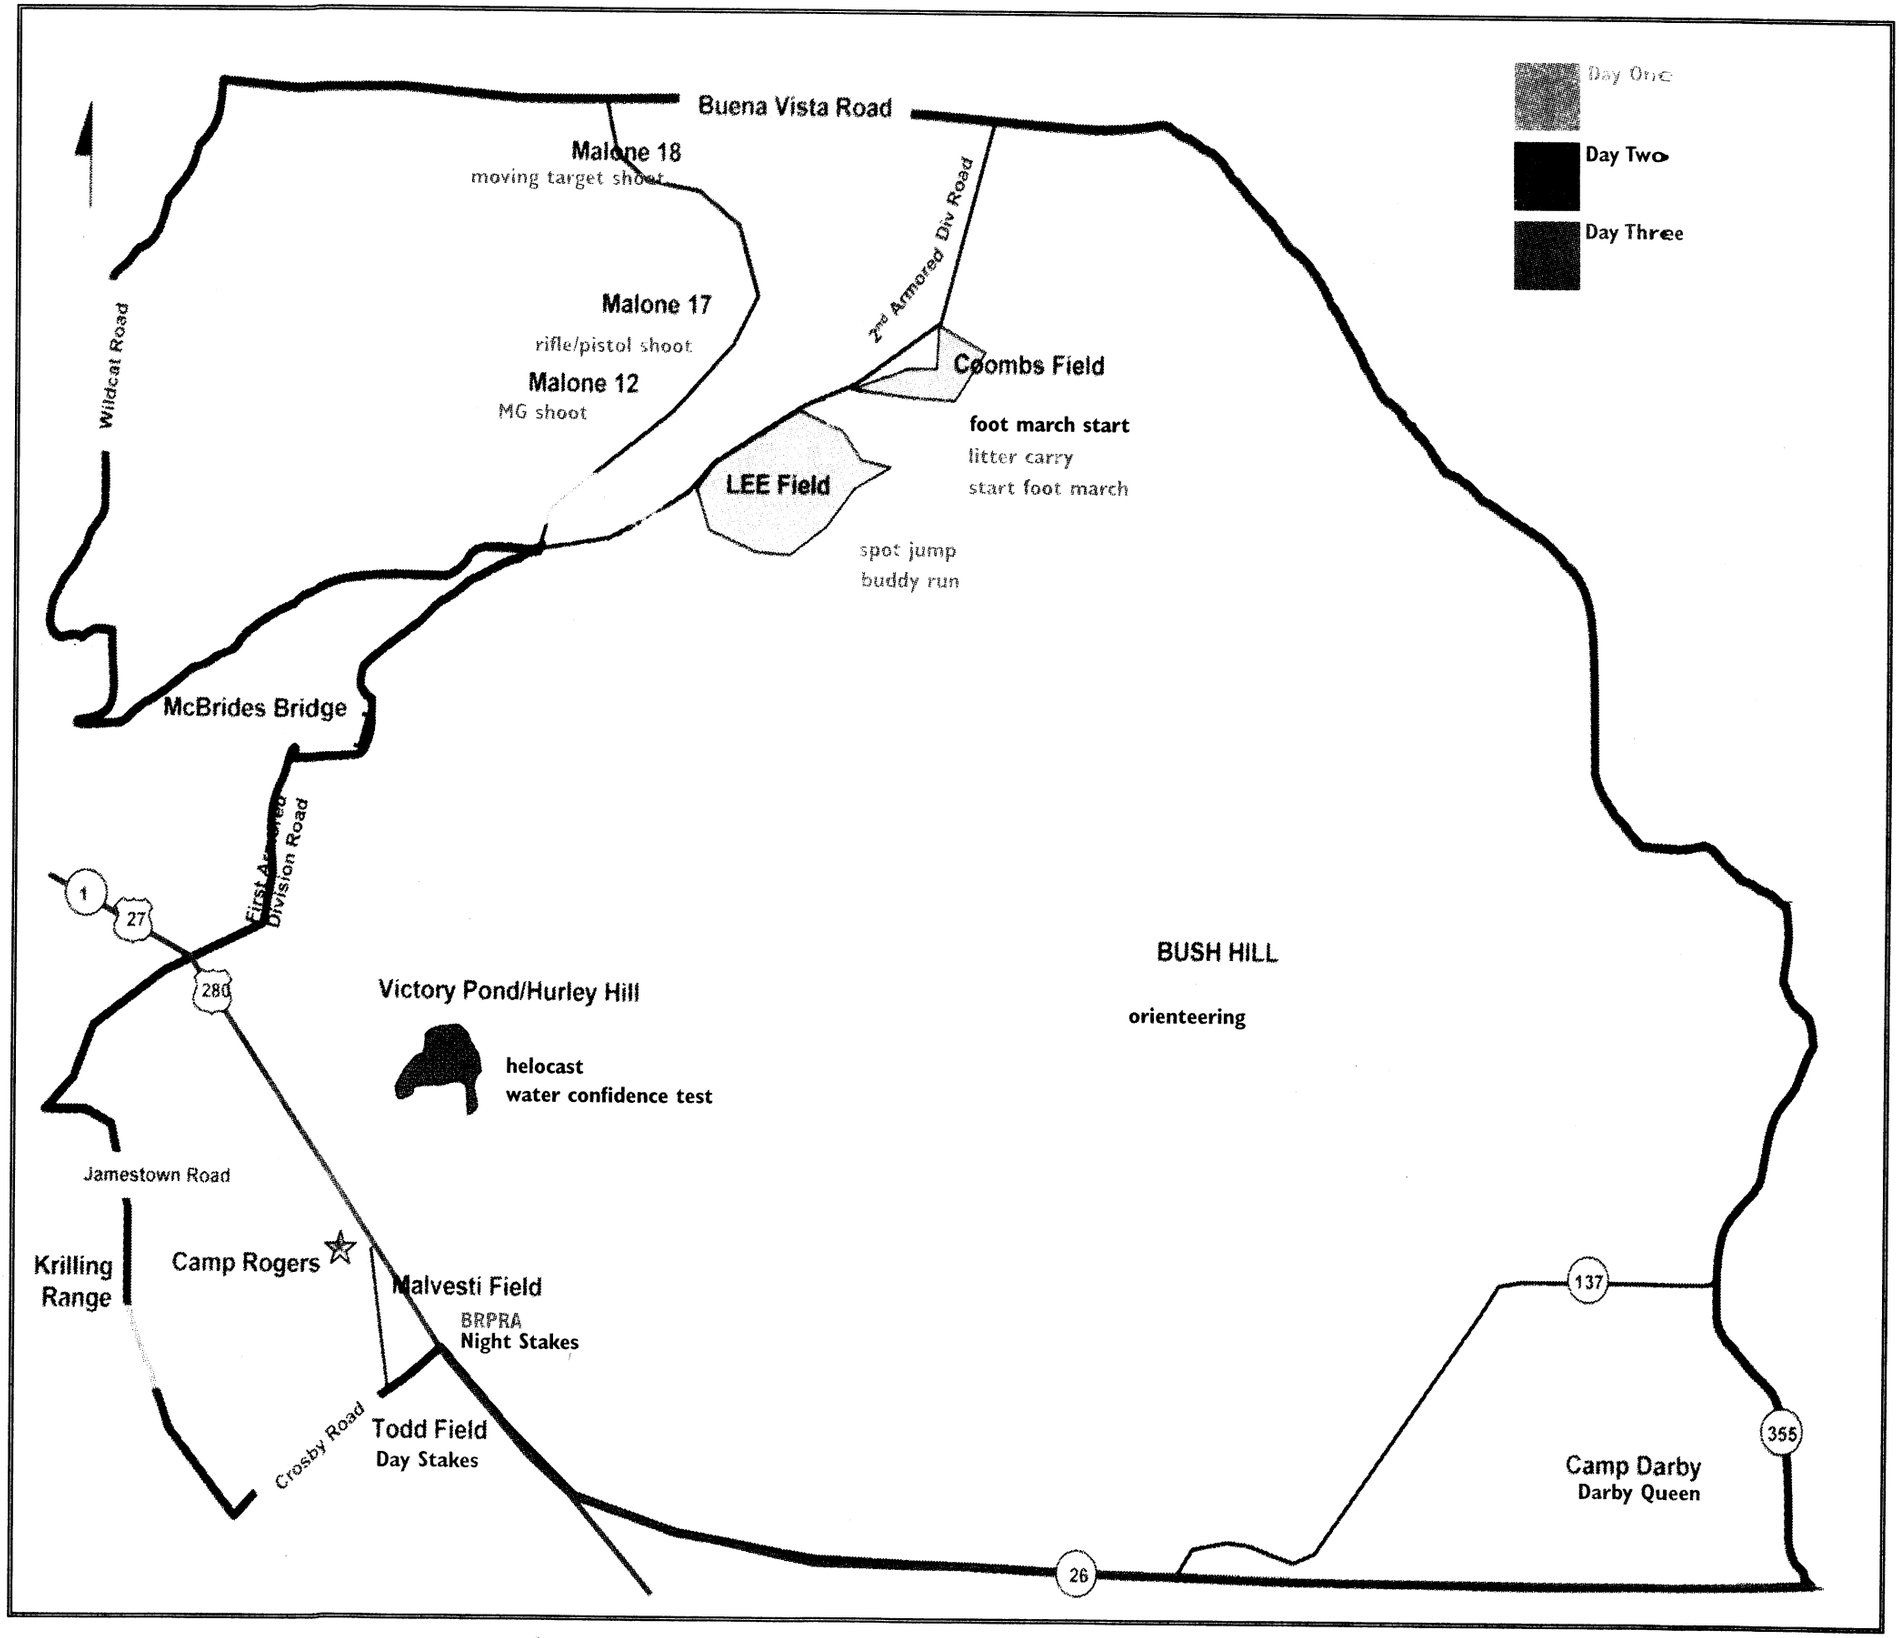
Not to be outdone, pathfinders, snipers and gunners came looking for a burger to call their own.

Now, the Four Winds menu reads like a Who's Who among hooah. All told, there are eight sandwiches dedicated to Soldiers, twice that many if you count the junior options.

The appetizer menu includes fried pickles, and as a fried pickle connoisseur, I can assure you they're the best fried pickles within a 50 mile radius. But don't take my word for it.

The Four Winds is typically open Monday through Thursday from 6 a.m. until 9 p.m. and Friday and Saturday 6 a.m. until 10 p.m.



But Susan will have the grill up and running Sunday during the Best Ranger Competition. Be sure to stop by on your way to or from Camp Darby.

And, please, be sure to thank "Mom" for her dedication to Soldiers for 27 years.

Expect a crowd this weekend, but don't let that sway you. A Ranger Burger is worth the wait.

3rd HBCT Soldiers return from Iraq

Soldiers with 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's advance party disembark from a chartered airplane Friday. Hundreds more arrived at Lawson Army Airfield Wednesday and Thursday. Two more flights are expected this weekend. The unit is returning from a 15-month deployment to Iraq.

The last of 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's advance party arrived Friday night. Around 200 Soldiers disembarked from a World chartered flight while their Families and friends waited inside Lawson Army Airfield's Freedom Hall.

Joanne Kengott's oldest child was returning from his third deployment with 1st Battalion, 10th Field Artillery Regiment. Already this year, she had welcomed home her two daughters from their deployments.

"I feel like this really isn't true," said Kengott, who traveled from Phoenix to greet her son. "Like I'll wake up and this will be just a dream."

A 24-hour Huddle House restaurant will open in August on Ingersoll Street between Wynnsong and CB&T bank. Construction is expected to start later this month.

Al Gelineau, director of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation, said the restaurant will be convenient and affordable. The average price of a meal at the Huddle House is $6.

The restaurant will have a dining room with seating for 60 and a meeting room, with audio visual equipment and a buffet, with seating for 80.

The restaurant is a public private venture, which means the Army Corps of Engineers leases the land to an outside company that pays for construction. A percentage of the proceeds from the restaurant will fund DFMWR events.

Gelineau said DFMWR is working on plans for a restaurant near Custer Road.

Tag office opens on Kelley Hill

THE BAYONET

Soldiers of the 3rd Brigade Heavy Combat Team returning from Iraq won't have to worry about expired auto tags if they live in Muscogee and Chattahoochee counties. Muscogee County Tax Commissioner Lula Huff set up shop in the 3rd HBCT headquarters building on Kelley Hill.

"This provides an opportunity to our Soldiers, who were deployed, to stay on Kelley Hill to take care of their tag requirements, which is less stressful," said Lt. Col. Scott Quagliata, rear detachment commander. "The service is indicative of all the great support we've received from the community."

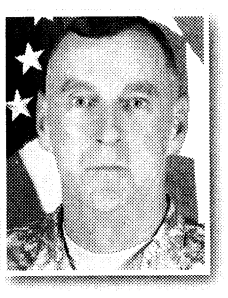
The satellite office is the first of its kind in Georgia to assist Soldiers coming back from Iraq, Huff said.

Tax office staff will issue permanent Muscogee County tags to drivers residing in that county.

They will also issue temporary Chattahoochee County operating permits, so Soldiers can legally drive off post if their tags have expired. However, drivers residing in Chattahoochee County must pay for their tags in that county.

Once the last group of brigade Soldiers completes re-integration, the office will close, Quagliata said.

Hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, and the office will be closed from 11:30 to 1 p.m. during lunch.



Brenda Donnell

Fort Benning Chief of Staff Col. David H. Ling, Columbus Councilman Skip Henderson, Tax Commissioner Lula Huff and Mayor Jim Wetherington cut the ribbon May 1 during the opening of a Muscogee County satellite office on Kelley Hill.

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Army continues to train adaptive leaders

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

In our Army today we must train adaptive leaders. Although no magic formula exists for exactly how to do this, some significant discussion and research is on-going on how to train adaptive leaders. Most of the focus is on officer leaders. Recent history clearly shows that our NCO leaders have just as great a need to be adaptive. The Army expects our NCOs to be multi-skilled — effective in any environment and proficient in all aspects of Soldiering. NCOs must always lead by example, train from experience, maintain and enforce standards, take care of Soldiers, and adapt to a changing world.

Our professional NCO Corps, which is the envy of virtually every army in the world, is supported by three pillars of professional development: Operational, Institutional, and Self-Development. The operational domain consists of the training and experience NCOs have in their units. There is no doubt in the contemporary operational environment (COE) that our NCOs are challenged daily to be adaptive. We, therefore, have a responsibility in the institutional domain to prepare them for those challenges.

As our Noncommissioned Officer Education System (NCOES) transforms to meet the changing needs of the Army and the challenges of the COE, we are working hard to make NCO training and education better.

Traditionally, the Army has used a systems approach to training that is very effective in efficiently and consistently training to a set level of proficiency.

This approach involves four phases. The task is first explained, and then demonstrated, followed by student practice, and finally students are evaluated on performance. This remains an effective training method for those technical skills such as loading and firing a weapon. However, it is task based, plan centric, and very structured, so there is little in the way of adaptability involved.

Many Army training institutions have recently adopted a method of training known as guided experiential learning (GEL) that is more suitable for adult learners. Rather than explaining and demonstrating, students are challenged to learn a task on their own with guidance from an instructor.

Generally, students retain more knowledge after learning through this process. However, this method assumes that there is a "right" way to perform a task, so although effective for training technical skills, it is still deficient when training adaptability, which by its very nature implies there is no one correct way to perform.

Problem based learning (PBL) brings GEL to the next level. In PBL, students are presented complex problems with conflicting, irrelevant, or insufficient information.

Typically, the problem may change as the student attempts to solve it. More importantly, there is generally no right answer, only a range of solutions, each with its own advantages and disadvantages.

One method of PBL that we've introduced in our Maneuver Advanced Noncommissioned Officer's course is Virtual Experience Immersive Learning Simulation — or VEILS. This is a web-based, interactive video that presents students with a scenario and then immerses them in the environment from a first-person perspective. Once the simulation begins, students are presented with a number of decisions. Each decision they make leads the simulation down a different branch scenario. There is no right or wrong decision, but each decision has consequences.

This is just one of the methods we are currently using in NCOES to train adaptable NCOs. We continue to explore innovative methods to train and educate our NCO's. This will ensure we maintain the world-class professional NCO corps that is instrumental to our Army's success.

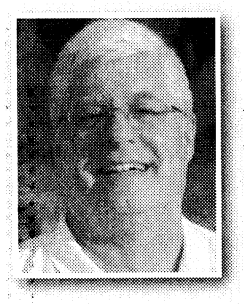
3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team Soldiers are returning. How can we show our support for them?

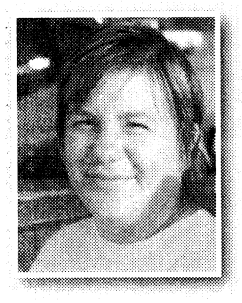


By letting the Families decorate the area and put up posters. I would give them a parade. But I think everyone should go to the returns and celebrate with the Soldiers and their Families. They need all of our support.

— Mattie Salters
Family member

The biggest thing for me when I returned was having the Family around me. We should help get the Families involved in the returns.

— Staff Sgt. Jon Stoltz
2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment



We can show support for the Soldiers by being at Freedom Hall to welcome them home.

— Retired Col. Bob Hobbs
Midland, Ga.

I think we should have an appreciation barbecue to welcome them back. Or we could give them coupons — for free gas or a meal at a local restaurant.

— Capt. Andre Haynes
MEDDAC

My husband is with 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, and the support this community shows to Soldiers is amazing and appreciated. When we go out to restaurants, people buy him dinner to thank him for his service and say, "We just want to thank you."

Better than a Friday night movie

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team Soldiers are coming home after a 15-month deployment in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

A lot has changed on Fort Benning while they've been away. Construction has started on the Armor barracks and training complex. New barracks are being built on Sand Hill. The new post exchange opened, there's a new gas station and shoppette on Custer Road, the I-185 exit to Cusseta reopened, and Soldiers and their Families are moving into homes in a new Family housing area — Patton Village.

But what hasn't changed is the support this community has for Soldiers.

At a redeployment ceremony the other night, I saw:

- a retired Soldier handing out American flags.
- a Vietnam vet on standby to welcome home Soldiers "who look lost — who don't have Family waiting for them."
- members of a Family readiness group selling T-shirts to raise money for a memorial for the 32 Soldiers who died during this deployment.
- Civilians who work on Fort Benning but weren't there for "work."
- Families who came from Arizona and Florida, Russell County, Ala., and Midland, Ga. (One of the returning Soldiers told me that all Iraqis know only one American location — Texas.)

Our Soldiers deserve our support, our appreciation and our gratitude. So when I asked how we, as a community, can show our appreciation for our Soldiers, the responses were varied, but all suggested being at Freedom Hall when the Soldiers return.

It shows the Soldiers and their Families our support.

As my 16-year-old daughter said, "This is better than being at a Friday night movie with my friends."

What better way can we show our support than by being there when they come home?

Celebrate Military Spouse Appreciation Day

The Army Community Service Center Family Advocacy Program wants to remind everyone that Military Spouse Appreciation Day is celebrated today.

We would like to take this time to express our appreciation for the dedication and sacrifices that are made by military spouses in our community.

In the daily press of activities, which characterizes our modern lives, we often overlook opportunities to express our appreciation to those who make a special contribution. To amend that oversight, we take this opportunity to salute all military spouses.

We, as Civilians, should value and commend every military spouse on this day.

To show our appreciation, the FAP will have a display set up from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today at the ACS Center, Building 2624, Soldiers' Plaza.

There will be free educational materials on parenting, building better relationships, and other family-related topics and a tote bag for each military spouse who stops by.

For more information on Military Spouse Appreciation Day, call 706-545-0892.

This week in Fort Benning history

• The post Bakers and Cooks School celebrated a milestone, having trained 130 enlisted Soldiers since it opened here in September 1922.

"Qualifications considered necessary in a student cook for the making of a good cook may be shown as intelligence, initiative, cleanliness, common sense, education and attention," a school official said.

• Long before there was CNN, there was WRBL in Columbus. The local station, "with the long-awaited flash that the major invasion of Nazi-held Europe has begun," announced plans to cover the war 24 hours a day with the help of CBS overseas correspondents and veteran war correspondents in New York and Washington.

• The U.S. Infantry Board at Fort Benning received a prototype of the new entrenching tool. At 2 pounds and 9 and a half inches, it was half the weight and length of its predecessor and less of a hazard to paratroopers, who found the earlier model cumbersome and dangerous.

• Fort Benning celebrated the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Women's Army Corps. Most of the 19 enlisted women in the post's Center Troop Command WAC Company were assigned to the medical and dental field, but others worked as clerk-typists, stenographers, supply and finance clerks.

Safety fair kicks off year's critical time

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

A safety fair is planned for the Fort Benning community May 23 to kick off the 101 Critical Days of Summer, an Armywide safety campaign.

During the period between Memorial Day and the Labor Day weekends, Soldiers, Family members and Civilian employees have the greatest risk of accidents and fatalities, Brig. Gen. William H. Forrester, U.S. Army Combat Readiness Center and Safety director, wrote in a recent safety message.

Fort Benning's safety fair will feature displays and events to highlight the dangers associated with boating, swimming, hunting and driving, said Debbie Gutierrez, Fort Benning safety specialist. One of the events during the safety fair will be an obstacle course, which was popular during the last fair in December.

People drive a golf cart around the course while wearing "drunk goggles," she said. The event shows people how their perception is altered when driving under the influence.

A rollover simulator provided by the Georgia Traffic Injury Institute will emphasize the importance of wearing seat belts, she said. Dummy passengers show what happens to the occupants of a car traveling 35 mph when it crashes and rolls over. Preventive Medicine staff will present child car seat safety and heat injury prevention information; Auto Skills staff will demonstrate POV and tire inspections; and Scott Keith of the Safety Office will present hunter-safety information. Louis Higgins, a representative from the Coast Guard Auxiliary, will present water safety; the Alcohol Substance and Abuse Program, and Environmental and Natural Resources Departments will also provide displays. Safety Office staff will give away hats, T-shirts, Frisbees, mugs and water bottles.

The fair will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the parking lot near Infantry and Meloy Halls. For more information, call 706-545-3678.

Staff Sgt. William J. Joiner, Safety Office, left, rides with a Soldier who drove an electric car into a cone while negotiating an obstacle course in December in the Infantry Hall parking lot. Summer activities can be hazardous

Brenda Donnell

Brig. Gen. William H. Forrester, U.S. Army Combat Readiness Center and Safety director, emphasized safety in a May letter to all Soldiers to kick off the 101 Critical Days of Summer, from Memorial Day to Labor Day, when more people are traveling, participating in water sports and enjoying outdoor activities that increase their exposure to potential tragedies.

Forrester recommended that motorcyclists join installation Motorcycle Mentorship Programs, which provide opportunities for newer riders to be mentored by experienced riders. For more information about local MMPs, check with unit and organization leaders.

When traveling, Forrester suggested drivers use the Travel Risk Planning System found at the USCRC site. Drivers should inspect their vehicles and plan plenty of stops to remain attentive. Driving while fatigued is a common cause of accidents.

Forrester also warned that alcohol and water activities don't mix. Alcohol affects judgment, motor skills, peripheral vision, depth perception, night vision and balance.

Forrester also suggested that Families educate themselves about safety, because they influence and support their Soldiers. A tool called the Family Engagement Kit is available on the USCRC Web site. The kit includes six tools to help Family members during trips and deployments.

$2,000 referral bonus SMART way to help Army grow

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

Sgt. 1st Class Michael Snisky, 197th Infantry Regiment, has been in the Army for 24 years because he loves the lifestyle. He is using that love to make money through an enlistment referral bonus program.

For every person he refers to the Army through the Army Referral System-Sergeant Major of the Army Recruiting Team, he will receive $2,000.

Individuals who make referrals must submit the names of applicants prior to them making appointments with Army recruiters.

U.S. Military Academy cadets, ROTC contracted cadets, Future Soldier Training Program members, Army component retirees and Department of the Army Civilians can also refer people and receive the bonus, according to the Support Army Recruiting Web site.

The $2,000 referral bonus is payable in two lump sums: $1,000 is paid to the sponsor once the referred person starts basic training,

The other $1,000 is paid when the Soldier graduates from one station unit training or advanced individual training.

Snisky said he has made 23 referrals since November.

Other Fort Benning Soldiers are also encouraging people to join the Army.

Julia Bobick, U.S. Army Recruiting Command, said Fort Benning Soldiers have made 334 referrals so far in fiscal 2008. Last year, they made 477 referrals. Of those, 147 arrived at basic training.

For more information about the ARS-SMART $2,000 referral bonus, visit www.2k.army.mil.

All referrals must be submitted through the "make a referral link" at the Web site or by calling 800-223-3735, ext. 60473.

Congressional staffers take Ranger challenge

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

"Welcome to Ranger School," Capt. Keith Ingram told 19 congressional staffers who gathered at Victory Pond May 1 to try their skills at the Water Confidence Test.

"Our intent is to show them what Ranger students go through," said Ingram, commander of A Company, which assisted the staffers with the log walk, 75-foot suspension traverse and rope drop.

The staffers visit installations to learn about all aspects of the military, said U.S. Army liaison officer Col. Chris Hughes, so when they return to their work in Washington, D.C., they have a better understanding of what goes on in installations across the country.

After a safety briefing, the staffers began the log walk. The Rangers offered help when needed.

"(Rangers) are tough. I think that's basically the thing we're taking away from this," said Leslie Prill. "It's just really exhilarating when you get up there and all the sudden you're looking down ... it's crazy how your body reacts to that anxiety."

Nishith Pandya said it wasn't anything like his desk job.

"I was shaking so much, and the log was shaking. I thought I was going to fall off. I'm still shaking," he said. "It's a once in a lifetime experience. You hear the words Army Rangers thrown around so much, it's good to see what it actually entails — to experience it for yourself. How many people can say they've done that?"

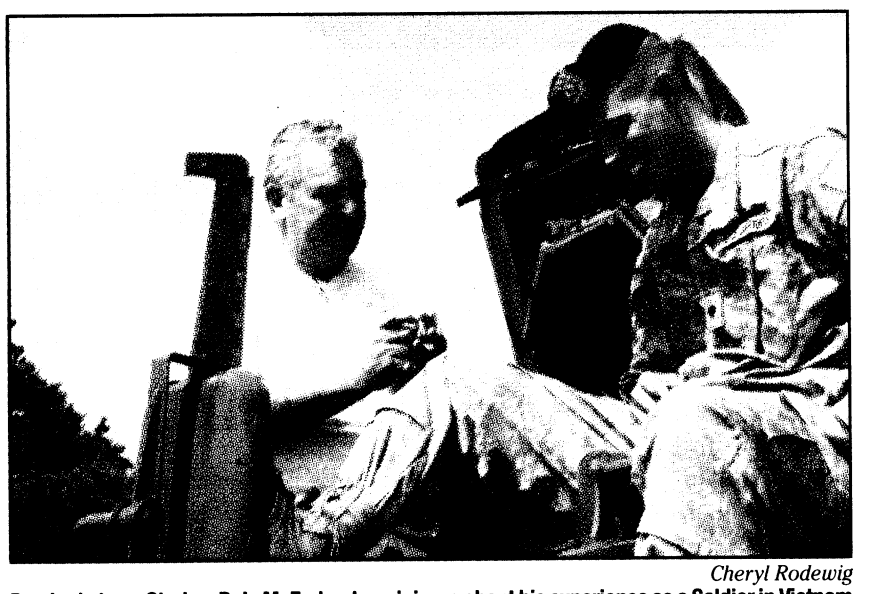
Reunion brings together past, current Soldiers of the 47th



THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

"I ain't leaving," said Vietnam veteran Dale McFarland from his perch at the top of a Stryker on display Friday during the 47th Infantry Regiment reunion ceremony on Pomeroy Field.

"This is the place to be," he said. "You're as safe as in your mother's arms right here. The only thing that would be better is if I could drive it."

McFarland was one of 294 former Soldiers of the 47th Infantry Regiment who attended the biannual reunion last weekend, which included a tour of Fort Benning and a demonstration by 2nd and 3rd Battalion, 47th Infantry Regiment, basic training Soldiers.

"This is absolutely the best demonstration I've ever seen," said McFarland, who volunteered for the Army like his father and brother.

Cheryl Rodewig

Perched atop a Stryker, Dale McFarland reminisces about his experience as a Soldier in Vietnam with Spc. Daniel Stone Friday during the 47th Regiment Reunion.

"The technology now, everything updated the way it is, it's just fantastic. I wish I could spend another week here."

Lt. Col. Marc Axelberg, the 2nd Battalion commander who helped organize the event, said it was good for active-duty Soldiers to learn about the veterans who served before them and for former Soldiers to see how the Army is growing and changing. Past and current Soldiers bonded Friday during the ceremony and evening poolside barbecue.

"I thought it was a really unique experience," said Pfc. Robert Mahoney, who graduated from basic training Thursday, about meeting the veterans. "It was the first time I really felt like I'm a part of the Army — just the way that they respected us and talked to us. It's always great to be thankful for veterans."

Bob DeSandy, 83, said his favorite part of the reunion was spending time with old comrades. He joined up with three other World War II veterans Jack Collier, George Brown and Harold Knight.

The men agreed that the regiment is still turning out some of the Army's finest Soldiers and the main difference between then and now is the updated equipment.

"Other than that, I imagine what we did, they do," DeSandy said. "We're very impressed with the young men today, and we're very proud of them."

Retired Brig. Gen. Douglas Smith, former commander of the 2nd Bn., 47th Inf. Rgt., said the weekend was a success.

"Every reunion, I have said that I doubt we could ever do better, and every reunion we do better," he said. "I hope and pray the good Lord allows me to continue to join my brothers ... every other year for the reunions."

Smith said he enjoyed talking with the troops.

"What a terrific group of Soldiers. Our country is in good hands, no question about it," he said.

Post observes Holocaust Remembrance Day

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

"I was 10 years old when Nazi Germany attacked Poland on September 1, 1938," said Dr. Mathew Sikorski, a Holocaust survivor who spoke during the Days of Remembrance Commemorative Service April 30.

"All Poles were considered sub-human by the Nazis," said Sikorski, whose family was captured in 1944.

The year before, a young Jewish man enlisted in the U.S. Army, declining an opportunity to attend Officer Candidate School in favor of joining the fight in Europe.

"I was anxious to get into the military, believe it or not," said Dr. Morton Waitzman, who spoke with Sikorski during the ceremony. "It had to be done. We had a mission to perform and we were going to perform that mission. In general, I just thought it was the right thing to do."

Waitzman

Waitzman marched through Germany with the 29th Infantry Division, freeing men and women imprisoned by the Nazis in forced labor camps, among them — Sikorski and his mother.

"It took — almost to the day — 58 years for me to meet Dr. Morton Waitzman," said Sikorski, who recognized the former Soldier at a Holocaust lecture in Dunwoody, Ga.

"I jumped up and yelled out, 'Thank you for liberating me, my mother and the forced labor camp.' The rest is history."

Sikorski and Waitzman live in Atlanta and are active at The Breman Holocaust Museum.

The ceremony's theme, "Do Not Stand Silent: Remembering Kristallnacht 1938," focused on the beginning of the Holocaust during Kristallnacht, when Nazis vandalized Jewish synagogues and businesses.

"Today's a good time to remind ourselves that the world even today is full of people who for some reason or another don't appreciate or understand what peace is all about," said Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski, Fort Benning's commanding general.

"This Global War on Terrorism that you and I are in the midst of ... is an extremely worthy cause. I suspect someday in this very room an Iraqi is going to tell a story similar to what you heard today."

WTB brings Families to Soldiers

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

Sgt. Maj. Jarvis Rosier Sr. was working on reports and Soldier evaluations on a computer provided by the Army in his Warrior Transition Battalion quarters Monday.

Here to have surgery on his knee from a wound he received in Afghanistan, the Florida native resides in recently renovated quarters that feature a sleeping area, computer work station, kitchenette and private bath.

Rosier's wife will stay in his room and care for him as he recovers. If he needs a wheelchair, there is a ramp outside the ground-floor room.

The ramp and other changes were made in compliance with the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act.

Rosier lives on Ragin Court, in one of three buildings being renovated for Soldiers and their Families as the Soldiers recover from war-related injuries and other medical problems. All quarters feature the same amenities.

Plans began last year for the renovations on the buildings designated for Soldiers and their Families, said Garrison Command Sgt. Maj. Russell Sadler. Construction began in January. He said Fort Benning leadership wants to ensure that all of their Soldiers are well cared for in adequate facilities.

"Soldiers are the ones fighting this war. The money we are spending doesn't even come close to the service they are giving the country," Sadler said.

They had already built two new barracks, Buildings 2641 and 2642, said WTB Command Sgt. Maj. Marilyn Wilson.

"They are the best barracks the Army has," Sadler said. "Each (Soldier) has a one-person room with kitchenette, private bath, plasma TVs, laptops, Wi-Fi and a large walk-in closet."

The WTB headquarters and Soldier and Family Assistance Center buildings were recently constructed, said Capt. Paul Newman, WTB logistics officer.

Six- to 10-feet-wide sidewalks, which can accommodate wheelchairs, are in the construction process and will link the WTB complex.

Soldiers: Return after 15 months

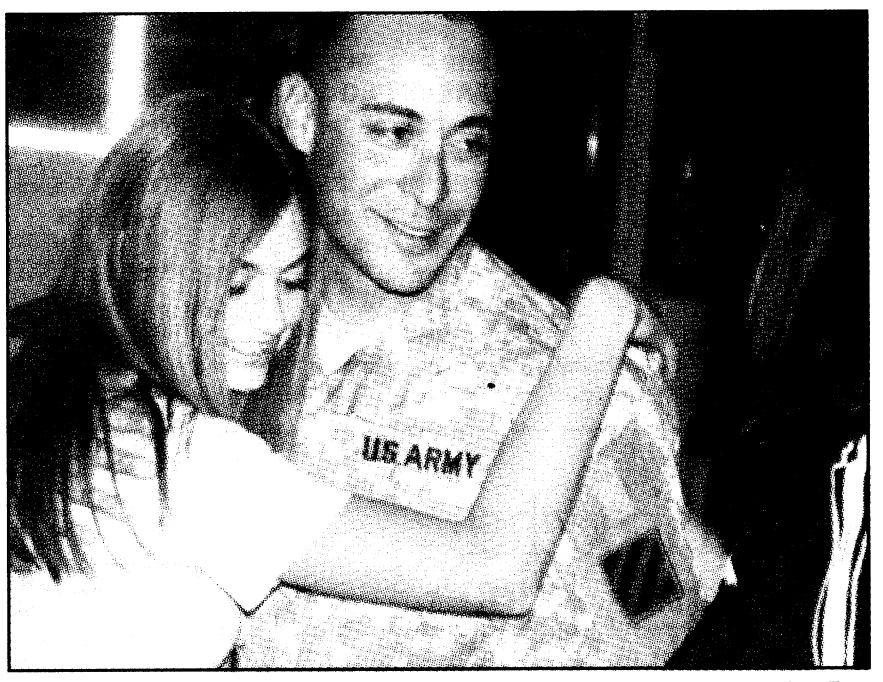
Kengott said she received 24-hour notice that her son, Sgt. Brian Loza, was on this flight.

"I've been here for every one of his deployments and returns," Kengott said as she watched the broadcast of the Soldiers leaving the plane.



"They didn't do this last time," she said, referring to the broadcast. "It's nice, but I don't think the Soldiers know they're on TV."

Kengott worried less about her children being deployed than when they got their driver's licenses at 16.

"Driving on the freeway is more life threatening," she said. "They volunteered for military service, and when they deployed, I trusted in their training. I knew they would have someone looking out for them — a battle buddy."

During 3rd Brigade's 15-month deployment, they captured 43 division- and brigade-level high-value individuals and killed more than 160 enemy combatants, eliminated weapons caches and IEDs, detained 600 suspected criminals and rebuilt the local government.

Toby Keith plays front lines at COP Carver

3RD HBCT, 3RD INF. DIV., PAO
Sgt. 1st Class Scott Maynard

Sgt. 1st Class Scott Maynard

Toby Keith, right, and Scott Emmerick play an acoustic set for 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment Soldiers at COP Carver, Salman Pak, Iraq, April 26 during Keith's USO show to reach out to frontline Soldiers working away from larger bases.

FORWARD OPERATING BASE HAMMER, Iraq — Soldiers on the front lines of the War on Terror enjoyed a special visit from country music star Toby Keith April 26 at Combat Outpost Carver outside of Salman Pak, Iraq, 25 miles southeast of Baghdad on the banks of the Tigris River.

When a Soldier in the crowd thanked Keith, an Academy of Country Music Awards winning musician and son of a Soldier, for playing, Keith said, "No. Thank you for your service."

The United Service Organization promoted the show. The 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment hosted the event and celebrated their 147th birthday.

After the show, a Soldier read the regiment's history, and Keith was made an honorary member. During the celebration, Keith cut a birthday cake along with the oldest member and youngest member of the battalion.

"The fact that the show and the regiment's birthday happened together allowed Mr. Keith to take part in some tradition. This regiment is rich with history and what we do today, tomorrow, will be history," said Sgt. Christofer Kitto.

For some of the frontline Soldiers, this was their first USO show experience.

"I absolutely enjoyed the show. It was so small and personal, it was like having Toby Keith playing at my backyard barbecue, back home," said Kitto, a scout in Headquarters Company, 1st Bn., 15th Inf. Regt. "This was my first USO show experience in my five years of service and two deployments to Iraq."

It is not often that forward-deployed Soldiers get to see entertainers.

The USO and Keith made it their priority during this tour to reach out to those Soldiers.

"It shows Mr. Keith is a true patriot and supporter of the troops," Kitto said.

Other Soldiers were grateful to Keith for making the trip deep into Multi-National Division-Center's southern belt around Baghdad.

"Being so isolated at a newly established combat outpost, we don't enjoy the luxuries that other Soldiers do who are at the larger forward operating bases. Mr. Keith changed all that today with his visit," said Sgt. Michael Gerniglia, a scout.

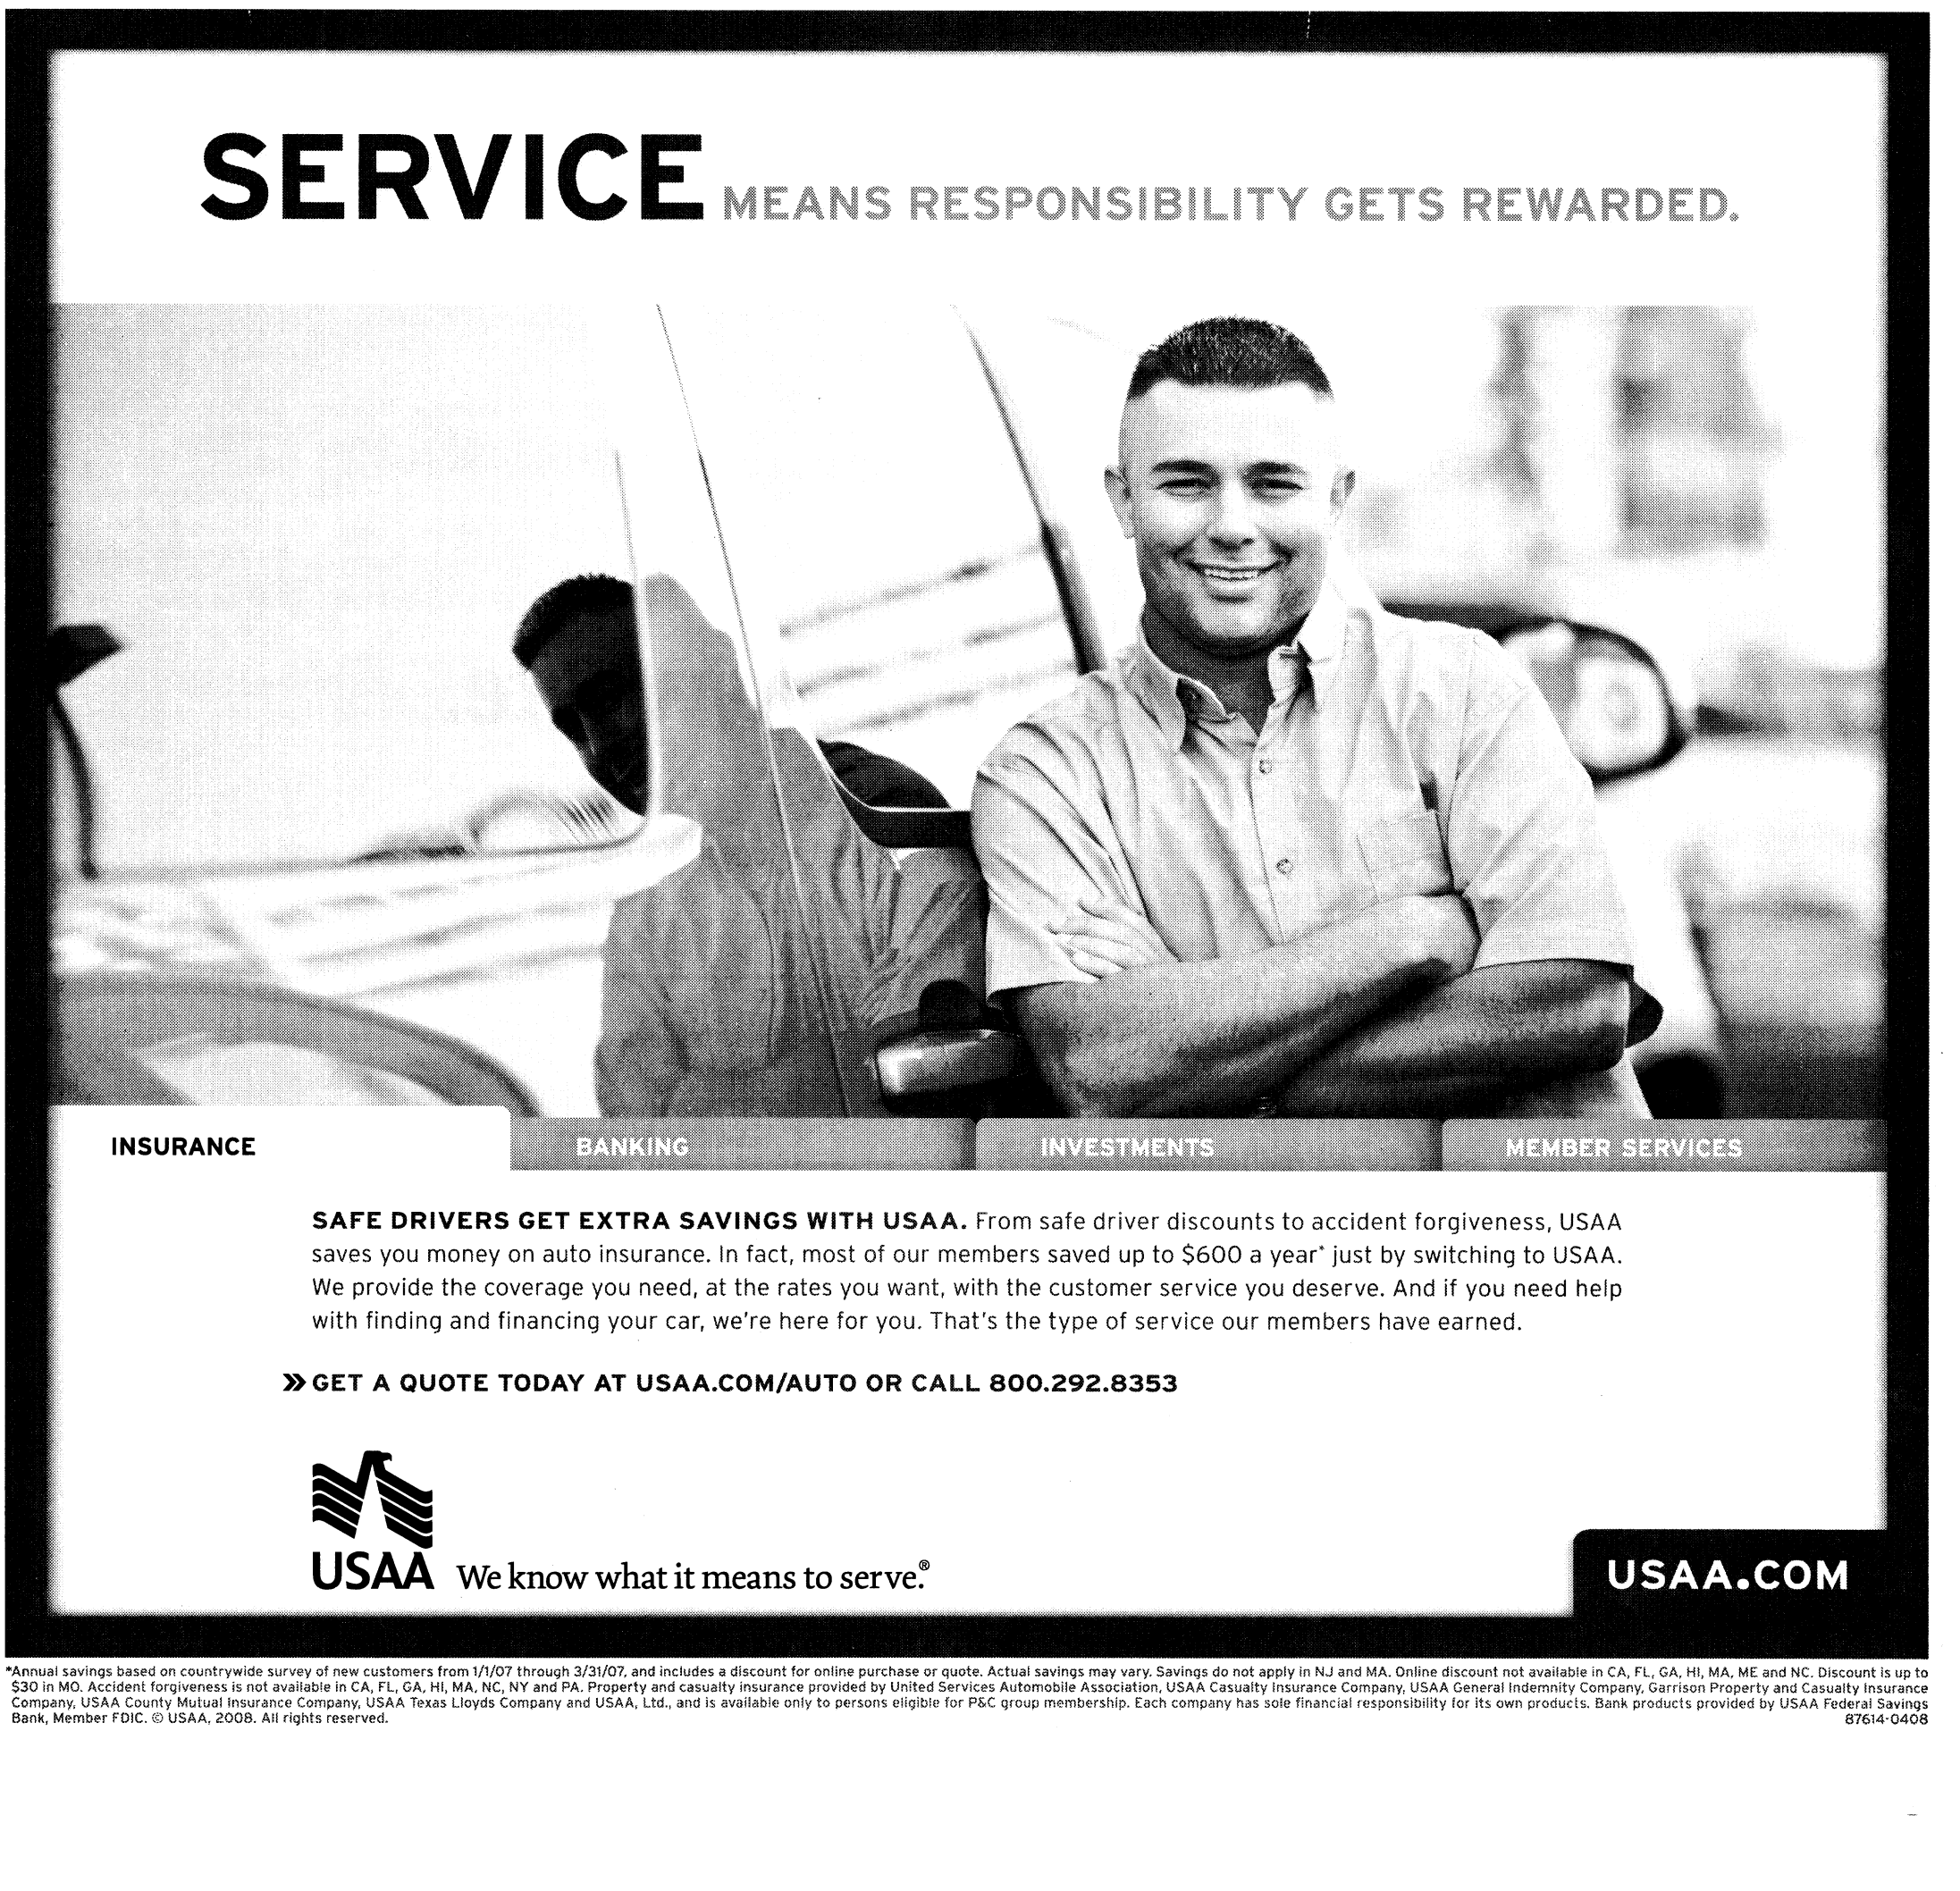
Gerniglia shared Kitto's views on risk and patriotism.

"We are deep in enemy territory out here and for Mr. Keith to take the risk of coming out this far, I think it shows the Soldiers he really supports us, and support is all we Soldiers need," Gerniglia said.

Soldiers find weapons cache through Iraq groups' tips

2ND BCT, 1ST ARMORED DIV. PAO
Pfc. Michael Schuch

FORWARD OPERATING BASE HAMMER, Iraq — U.S. Soldiers discovered a weapons cache belonging to a local criminal group known for targeting Iraqi Security Forces and Coalition forces, while patrolling the town of Wardia May 3.



Soldiers with D Company, 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, and B Company, 1st Battalion, 6th Infantry Regiment, found the cache through a tip received from Sons of Iraq and National Police sources.

Explosives ordnance disposal Soldiers confirmed the cache included three Iranian rocket-propelled grenades, three RPG launchers, propellant, multiple trip flares, one heavy machine gun, ski masks and ISF uniforms.

The Soldiers from 1st Bn., 15th Inf. Regt. are currently attached to 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, which is scheduled to redeploy soon to Fort Benning, Ga. They conducted the reconnaissance mission as part of a scheduled transition of the area to the 1st Bn., 6th Inf. Regt. Soldiers, attached to 1st Squadron, 35th Armor Regiment.

A key element in the transition is that the relationship with the Iraqi NP brigade will stay in place, said Maj. Andrew Koloski, the executive officer of 3rd Sqd., 1st Cav. Regt.

"The National Police have increased their abilities so they can provide the continuity in our area of operations," said Koloski, adding the NP have given intelligence leading to several cache finds.

Derby tragedy

The win of Big Brown in the 134th Kentucky Derby was overshadowed by tragedy. Eight Belles, a filly who finished second, was euthanized on the track after the race because of two broken ankles.

It's always sad when an animal has to be euthanized and much sadder because her trainer Larry Jones said she ran the race of her life.

Big Brown, will continue his bid for the Triple Crown by competing in the Preakness May 17.

Bowyer wins edge-of-seat race

Hometown boy Denny Hamlin looked like he had the race all but wrapped up at Richmond International Raceway Saturday night until a flat tire caused him to give up the lead. Then it seemed that Dale Earnhardt Jr., with a drought of 71 winless races, was going to get the win. That is, until Kyle Busch got under him and caused him to hit the wall.

Clint Bowyer, who came out of nowhere, finished with the victory.

This week is another race under the lights. Coverage begins at 7 p.m. Saturday on Fox at Darlington for the Dodge Challenger 500.

Harrison questioned

Indianapolis Colts' wide receiver Marvin Harrison was questioned in connection with a shooting April 29 in Philadelphia. He was not arrested or charged with a crime.

A source told a radio station that Harrison got into an argument with the victim at a bar owned by Harrison, left the bar, then gunfire erupted, and the victim was shot in the hand.

New developments include the retrieval of six bullet casings that Philadelphia police say came from a gun that belongs to Harrison.

It's about time

The NBA held a news conference Tuesday to announce that Lakers' player Kobe Bryant won the Most Valuable Player award.

Bryant, who started the season as the two-time scoring champion, finished third in the voting last year, behind MVP Dirk Nowitzki and two-time MVP Steve Nash.

Boy retires Favre jersey

Witthoft got the jersey for Christmas in 2003 and decided it was time to take it off, because it was getting small. He went to his first Packers game in December and plans to attend the Sept. 8 game when the Green Bay Packers retire Favre's No. 4.

Sgt. Stephanie Zavala, a Soldier in 30th AG, is helping lead her intramural volleyball team to a berth in the post season. Zavala has been playing volleyball since she was 15 years old.

"My teammates teach me things I never knew about volleyball. Although I feel that a pass, a set and a kill have to be perfect, we all understand that it takes an entire team to get the pass, set and kill."

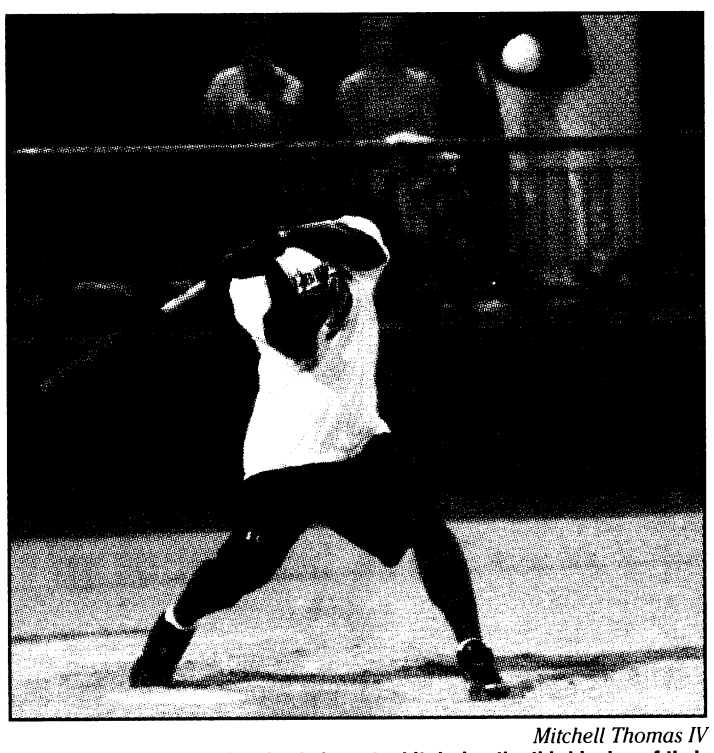
Sgt. Stephanie Zavala said volleyball helped her learn teamwork and discipline. But more importantly, the game provided her with an escape.

Zavala, 24, has used volleyball to channel her energy, making her a better player, Soldier and parent.

"Volleyball is a beautiful game," Zavala said. "It has always helped me to get out my frustrations. When I play, I feel free."



Zavala's aggressive and emotional play is helping lead 30th Adjutant General to the playoffs.

"She's very competitive, and she knows the game well, which makes her a great asset to the team," said 30th AG's assistant coach, Staff Sgt. Glenville Challenger. "Sometimes she yells on the court, and some players take it the wrong way, but she's trying to get people to do what they need to do."

Benning crushes Gatewood

Mitchell Thomas IV

Benning Softball's Ken Huguley belts out a hit during the third inning of their game against Gatewood Prosthetics.

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

Benning Softball continued to dominate the Columbus Industrial League, making short work of Gatewood Prosthetics, 26-6, in four innings Monday. The team, with 11 rookie players, has a record of 7-1.

After Benning racked up six runs early in the first, Norman Perez brought in two runners, followed by an RBI single by lefty Joe Perez. Karl Ivey got lucky after crushing a deep shot that bounced off the fielder's glove, which landed over the fence. Benning ended the inning with a 16-1 lead.

In the second,Joe Perez brought in two runners with a triple down the third base line. Perez went 3 for 4 on the night with two doubles.

But Aaron Frederick proved to be Benning's big bat. Frederick went 3 for 3 in the game, including 2 home runs and a single.

"We're just trying to come out and hit the ball so we can be on all cylinders at playoff time," Frederick said.

With a 20-point lead through two innings, Gatewood made matters interesting in the third when one of the team's sluggers hit a solo shot to prevent the game from ending in mercy rule. Gatewood brought in five runs, making the score, 22-6.

They were also able to slow Benning down defensively in the third. One of Gatewood's players made a nifty catch, leaping at the fence to rob Ken Huguley of a hit.

After retiring Gatewood in the fourth with no runs, Benning scored four quick points to end the game 26-6.

"In the first couple of months we were getting used to the new players and different situations, but now were flowing," Joe Perez said. "We have confidence right now, and we should be fine from this point on."

Conquering the green

Capt. Heather Tenney

Jeff Gayle, Maj. Jeff Breloski, chief of Military Justice, Col. Lyle Cayce, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, and Capt. Rob Rodrigues, Trial Defense Service won the Law Day Golf Tournament at Fort Benning with a score of 58.

Runners turn out in low numbers at qualifier

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

Fort Benning held the first of three qualifiers for the Army 10-Miler Saturday at Santiago Fitness Center.

There were only four runners, all male, which was less than expected, said Lori Smith, fitness director of the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

Out of the four runners, only one came close to finishing in less than 60 minutes. Fred Eaton, who made last year's team, finished just over the 60-minute mark.

"Fred is a good runner, and I know he'll get his time down, so I'm not worried about him," Smith said. "But male racers who come out and post times in 70 minutes or higher make it hard to field a competitive team."

Although the second and third qualifiers bring out the more competitive runners, Smith said fielding teams is also challenging because many Soldiers are reassigned before the race.

Runners interested in competing in the second or third qualifier should follow these tips to increase their running times:

- Run at least five days a week.
- The first two days should be dedicated to runs at a moderate pace to increase stamina. Run six miles on the first day and four on the second.
- The third day should be for increasing speed. Runners should warm up with a two-mile run. After the warm-up, run five 800-meter sprints at five seconds below race pace. After the sprints, run a two-mile cool down.
- Repeat the moderate four-mile run on day four.
- Day five will be to control racing tempo. Do a one-mile warm-up. After the warm-up, run four miles at race pace. After the run, do a one-mile cool down.
- Each week, increase the reps and distances of the speed workout and increase the mileage of the tempo runs

Runners should follow this routine until the month before race time. Once teams are fielded, they will meet at least once a week to train together.

The final two qualifiers will be held May 16 and June 21. The qualifiers are open to any active-duty military, active National Guard and Reserve Soldiers. The 10-Miler will be Oct. 4 in Washington, D.C.

FIT FACTS

DFMWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

This week, I want to focus on heart health and how very important it is to take this subject seriously.

Heart health is something very near and dear to, well, my heart.

I had a very good, very young, friend pass away a few years ago while riding his bike at the gym. He died of a massive heart attack and left behind two wonderful kids and a wife.

What makes this story so tragic is his death could have been prevented. He had many of the risk factors and early warning signs of cardiovascular disease, he just did not take those seriously and did not see a physician.

Why is coronary heart disease the single major cause of death and stroke the number three killer in the U.S.? By far, the biggest reason is a lack of commitment to a heart-healthy lifestyle.

Your lifestyle is not only your best defense against a heart attack or stroke, it's also your responsibility.

There are three risk factors that you can not change. These are: Age. About 82 percent of people who die of coronary heart disease are 65 and older.

Gender. Men have a greater risk of heart attack than women, and they have them earlier in life. But women be aware, we are catching up.

Heredity. Children of parents with heart disease are more likely to develop it themselves. Check the health history of your parents and take control of things now.

There are several risk factors that you can control, including smoking, stress, physical inactivity, obesity, high blood pressure and high cholesterol. These can be prevented.

There are three simple steps you can take to reduce the risk factors mentioned above and reduce your risk of heart disease, heart attack and stroke. Avoid tobacco, be more active and choose good nutrition.

Smoking. Why do it? Everyone in America knows it kills. If you don't know that smoking is bad, you're living under a rock. If you smoke, quit. If someone in your house smokes, encourage them to quit. I can't imagine how tough it is to stop, but it can't be harder than recovering from a heart attack, stroke or living with chronic heart disease.

Cigarette smoking is the most preventable cause of premature death in the United States. It accounts for nearly 440,000 deaths each year, of which 135,000 are due to smoking-related cardiovascular diseases. Cigarette smokers are two to three times more likely to die from coronary heart disease than nonsmokers. So, all you nonsmokers out there, give yourself a pat on the back. And if you're a quitter, give yourself two pats on the back — that's your first step to a heart-healthy lifestyle. Congratulations for taking that very important step.

If you are looking for a way to quit there are Web sites with tools for quitting. My suggestion is to search online and find one that's right for you.

I know many smokers, and my best friend is an avid smoker. I do my best to try and convince her to quit, but she keeps saying when the time is right, she will quit. I choose to just keep picking away at those layers until one day, she will give it up for good.

Find some resources on line, find a friend to help support you, but try to stop smoking, whatever you do. It could save your life.

Protect America...and secure your future.

Are you interested in a job with wide-open spaces and opportunities to match?

As a Border Patrol Agent, your primary focus would be to work in tandem with your U.S. Customs and Border Protection partners to prevent terrorists and terrorist weapons from entering the United States. Border Patrol Agents also detect and prevent the smuggling and unlawful entry of undocumented aliens into the United States, and apprehend those people found to be in violation of the immigration laws. Also, due to the increase in drug smuggling operations, the Border Patrol is the primary drug-interdicting agency along the land border between the ports of entry.

We are looking for physically fit men and women who want the ever-changing missions we offer and have the intelligence and courage to handle the responsibility. If this is you, then accept the challenge!

Santa's Castle Elf Run fundraiser set for May 17

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

Those wanting to participate in the Santa's Castle Elf Run fundraiser still have time to submit applications. The 5K race and 1-mile Family Fun Run/Walk will be May 17 at Stewart Watson Field.

Over the last few weeks, registration applications have poured in, said Happy Garner, president of Santa's Castle. More than 300 participants have registered for the race and 100 participants for the fun run.

"The amount of support has been overwhelming," Garner said. It shows how the people in the community, both military and Civilians, care about our cause."

Garner said a large portion of the registration has come from Officer Candidate School Soldiers, who also fielded a team last year.

The 5K race, which will have no team divisions this year, will consist of three categories — male, female and children younger than 18, while the 1-mile Fun Run/Walk around the track will be for Families and individuals.

Although last year's event had more than 40 Families and 90 kids participating, the change to the individual format was designed to boost participation, Garner said.

The 5K race will begin at 8 a.m., and the Fun Run/Walk will begin at 8:30 a.m. Parents with young children are also encouraged to bring them for both events, which are stroller-friendly. No pets are allowed in the race.

The cost to register for the race is $15 per individual. Families of four or more can enter the Fun Run/Walk for $30.

Those interested in donating without participating can register as phantom runners for $7.

The event will raise money to buy Christmas toys for children of military Families with financial difficulties. Santa's Castle also accepts monetary donations and toys year round.

All registered participants will receive a T-shirt. Medals will be awarded to the first, second and third place in each category. All participating children will receive a ribbon. Breakfast will be available after the race.

Libertadores' Luis Marin tries to receive a pass from a teammate during the first half of the Hermandad-Libertadores face-off. Both teams came into the game with a record of 5-1.

Libertadores fall to Hermandad, 1-0, in extended play

The WHINSEC Libertadores and Hermandad teams fought for first place in their league during Monday night's intramural match. Hemandad edged out the Libertadores, 1-0, with a successful penalty kick following an overtime period.

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

"Last season, we weren't able to beat (WHINSEC) Hermandad, so we're trying to get them back," said Jose Bueno of the WHINSEC Libertadores. "We're going get them this time."

Bueno wasn't "good" on his word, as Hermandad edged out the Libertadores, 1-0, in an intramural soccer match that went into an overtime and penalty kick situation Monday at Doughboy Stadium.

Both teams were fighting for first place in their league, coming into the game with 5-1 records.

Hermandad, who were playing with one less player than the Libertadores, came out shooting in the first half. Both teams canceled each other out with strong defensive play.

The game got testy when the Libertadores' Victor Varela was hit with a yellow card for tripping a player, which gave Hermandad a corner kick opportunity.

Early in the second, Hermandad players were the aggressors once again.

Orlando Echevarria took two early shots at the goal that just missed, bouncing off the edge of the post.

A Hermandad player was hit with a yellow card, the third of the game, after a foul. Tempers flared on both sides throughout the half, resulting in several instances of halted play.

With less than ten minutes to go, a Hermandad player showed up to make the game six on six.

The second half wound down with no score, forcing the teams to go into a five-minute overtime. The teams mirrored the previous two periods with solid tackling and goalie play on both sides.

"The keeper for the Libertdores was really good tonight," said Hermandad's Milton Mendiera. "He really took some goals from us that we thought we would make."

"This was a tough game, and since we played with one less player most of the game, I think we did pretty well," Mendiera said. "If we keep playing like this, we'll be good to go."

Shooter: will compete in men's skeet in summer Olympics

Mitchell Thomas IV
Pfc. Vincent Hancock won seven medals, four gold, in 2005 and broke a world record hitting 149 out of 150 targets.

Vincent's love for competition began with baseball. But in his eighth grade year, he took his father's advice and changed to shooting for a greater challenge and opportunity.

"I knew the competition would be good, I knew it was to hard to learn, and I knew it was something I didn't have to depend on anyone else to do," Vincent said.

"There are thousands and thousands of kids playing baseball, but there was probably only 30 or 40 kids shooting my sport. I realized I had a chance to reach the top as a shooter."

But Vincent didn't compete against kids his age. At the age of 12, he competed in skeet and sporting clays on the national level against the best adults in the nation, including AMU Soldiers.

Although Vincent developed quickly as a shooter, he experienced his first setback in 2004, missing the cut for the Olympics by a small margin. But the setback proved to be a turning point in his game.

"At first, all I ever expected was to finish fourth or fifth because I didn't think I could beat the shooters who were considered the best," Vincent said.

"But one day I realized and said, 'Hey, I can beat them too.' They can have a bad day, and I can have a good day, so I just learned to have the better day."

Vincent's better days came quickly. In 2005, he medaled in seven international events and set three world records, including a 149 out of 150 target shoot in the World Cup in Changwon, Korea. In the same year, he won the World Championships — the youngest ever in skeet at 16 years old.

"I've been associated with shooting for over 35, years and I've never seen a shooter accomplish what he did in one year," said Dean Clark, AMU shotgun coach for the last seven years. "Winning at the Olympic level is difficult, but Vincent has the talent and the desire to do it."

"Every shooter has to get into what they call a zone," Vincent said. "When you're in the zone, you know you can break every single target out there, and you feel you're unbeatable. Every match I shoot, I expect to win."

Vincent's zone begins with a song that he locks in his head to block out everything but the match. The song he chooses depends on the moment, he said.

Vincent said another factor that helps his "zone" is having his fiancé Rebecca Young at his matches. Young, who also shot competitively, believes her understanding of his pressures helps them keep their relationship afloat.

"He's a very determined person, and that's one of the things that attracted me to him when I first met him," said Young, who will marry Vincent in May. "I know the amount of training that it takes to be at his level. Whatever he sets his mind to, he gets done."

Although Vincent joined the Army primarily to be a part of the AMU, he is proud of his choice of becoming a Soldier. He said representing his country as well as the Army on a worldwide stage, can help improve relations with other countries.

"When we win medals, other countries look up to us," Vincent said. "I think we can help make people who view us as the enemy change their minds simply because of how we carry ourselves in competition. There's nothing better than knowing I can try to help my enemies not be my enemies anymore."

Soldier: Helps lead 30th AG to intramural playoff berth

She watched her mother spiral out of control because of an addiction to crack cocaine.

At age of 12, Zavala became a ward of the state of Alabama and landed in numerous foster homes during the next few years.

"It was hard because I felt I was never good enough or could never do things right," she said. "Growing up with that mentality made me feel like no one wanted me."

But Cynthia Nesbitt realized immediately that Stephanie was "good enough." Nesbitt took her into her home in Dothan, Ala., and provided the consistency and safety that Zavala longed for.

"She was under horrible circumstances, but I could tell she had a will to succeed," Nesbitt said.

"She wanted a better life, and I wanted to give it to her."

Nesbitt's sister, Page Chambers, introduced 15-year-old Stephanie to volleyball.

"I just fell in love with the game immediately," Zavala said. "It allowed me to get away from the realities and frustrations of being a foster child."

But on the court, those old feelings of inadequacy returned.

"I used to make so many mistakes on the court, and I would always say I'm sorry over and over again," Zavala said. "But my aunt calmed me down and helped me learn how to watch and play the right way."

Zavala's mistakes on the court didn't last long. After developing into a solid player in her first season in high school, she became the team's co-captain in her junior year and captain in her senior year. She also played for a traveling team and an adult co-ed league.

"I played year-round, and I threw everything I had into it," Zavala said. "I just never wanted to stop playing."

Zavala received an athletic scholarship to Gulf Coast Community College in Panama City Fla., but eventually dropped out for financial reasons. A month later, the World Trade Center was attacked. She enlisted in April 2002.

"I used to come to Fort Benning to look at the museums and the history as a kid, and I was always fascinated," she said. "There was something about watching the Soldiers. Their professionalism and demeanor just seemed so cool, and it was so different than the chaos in my life at home."

Zavala deployed to Iraq with the 988th Military Police Company in 2003. After returning in 2004, she joined the Reserve after becoming pregnant with her daughter Jazmine.

But she missed the action of being an active duty Soldier and reenlisted in February.

"I needed more," Zavala said. "Being a non-commissioned officer and leading Soldiers is what the Army is all about, and that's what I missed."

But Zavala, who travels everywhere she goes with the same volleyball she's had since high school, also missed her beloved sport.

In her first season with 30th AG, she has helped the team develop into one of the more competitive teams on post.

"My teammates teach me things I never knew about volleyball," Zavala said. "Although I feel that a pass, a set and a kill has to be perfect, we all understand that it takes an entire team to get the pass, set and kill. We support each other on the court."

Zavala is enjoying volleyball on the intramural level more than she ever did in high school. She looks forward to introducing the sport to 3-year old Jazmine as it was introduced to her.

"I've always played it at a serious level, but now I'm learning to play it for fun," Zavala said. "For so long, volleyball is what helped me grow up, but now I can just enjoy the game as it is."

Tournament to raise money for warriors' children

THE BAYONET

Master Sgt. Harvey Moore was earning his college degree when he was killed in the line of duty in 1992. His son Fletcher, a third-year pre-med student, remembers his dad as a man focused on his future.

"He was dedicated," Fletcher said. "He was putting himself through school, and I think it would make him proud to see me doing that as well."

Fletcher's tuition, books and other fees are paid for through the Special Operations Warrior Foundation, which provides scholarships for children of Special Operations military personnel killed in action.

When he graduates next year, Fletcher plans to follow in his dad's footsteps by joining the military. He said the scholarship has helped him focus on his grades.

"It's easier because I'm not having to work or find another source of income," he said.

The fourth annual Wounded Warriors Golf Tournament, June 17 at Maple Ridge Golf Course in Columbus will raise money for youth like Fletcher. Providing an education for these children honors those service members' memory, and the golf tournament is a fun and effective way to raise those funds, said retired Col. Ray Kauffman, president of Omega Training Group, Inc., which sponsors the tournament.

The first tournament in 2005 netted more than $10,000. The goal this year is $35,000. People who don't want to golf can sponsor an active-duty Soldier or make tax-deductible contributions. Companies may donate food, beverages or prizes.

Tee times are 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. Teams should consist of four players. Entry fees, starting at $100, include cart and green fees, lunch, range balls and prize opportunities.

The event is open to the public, but the tournament is limited to the first 250 players who sign up. The deadline is June 10, but volunteers and donations are needed as soon as possible.

For more information or to register, go to www.omegatraining.com or call 706-569-9100.

Dexter principal takes over Stryker Bradley University, battalion commander gets schooled in elementary educatio

THE BAYONET

Tom Carlisle walked a mile in Missy Klopfer's shoes Monday. He kind of liked the way they fit.

Lt. Col. Carlisle is the commander of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, which partners with Dexter Elementary School in the Muscogee County Partners in Education program. Melissa Klopfer is the principal of Dexter. Monday they traded places for the day.

"He's always saying he's going to be an assistant principal when he retires, so I suggested we do a swap. He's going to earn his keep today," said Klopfer, who addressed the Soldiers at the 29th during a 9 a.m. formation at the "Stryker Bradley University" in Harmony Church.

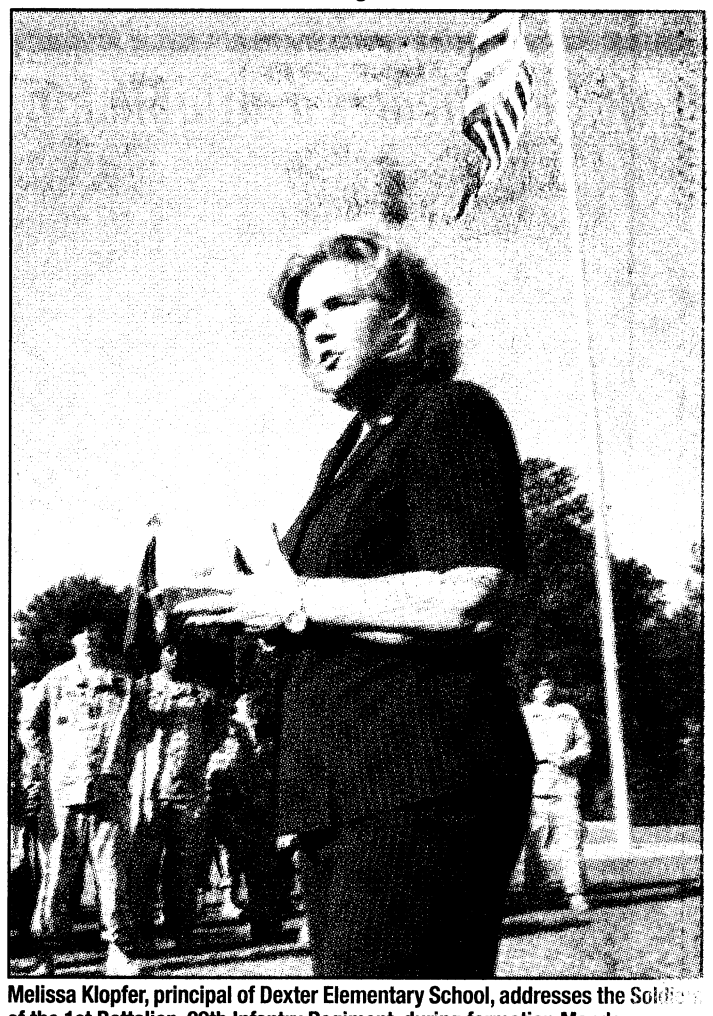
Before taking to the field, where she reminded the Soldiers this week was Teacher Appreciation Week and encouraged them to contact the teachers who made a difference in their lives, Klopfer confessed she'd filled Carlisle's itinerary with a few surprises.

Carlisle had a different word for it.

"She ambushed me," he said at 9:30, as the fire alarm pealed and the students poured out of the building.

"First thing when I got here this morning, a woman came in ranting and raving about a toilet overflowing. I said, 'Have you spoken to the assistant principal about this?' and she just cracked up. She said, 'Now, you know we don't have an assistant principal here.'"

There was no toilet overflowing, and there was no fire.



Still, after visiting with students in the classroom and meeting with parents and members of the School Improvement Team, Carlisle said he sees a lot of similarities between his job and Klopfer's.

"Being a battalion commander is the best job in the world, because I get to take care of Soldiers and their Families. I know these teachers here are taking care of these students and their Families," he said. "If you can make a significant difference in someone's life, there's nothing more rewarding. That's why working with students in my life after the Army would be a great thing."

Klopfer spent the day meeting with Soldiers and trying her hand at Stryker Bradley simulators. Though she enjoyed the experience, at the end of the day, she knew she's made the right choice when she started teaching military students 28 years ago.

"I have the best job in the world," she told the Soldiers. "I get to serve my country and do what I love, and I don't have to run three miles every day."

ESC hosts fashion show

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

When Beth and Sgt. Brian Howard went to the Muscogee County Courthouse to get married Dec. 13, 2005, they found that the judge had already left for Christmas vacation.

The clerk of courts knew a minister who could perform the ceremony. With Beth in a black dress, carrying a homemade bouquet, and Brian in Class As, they traveled to the minister's house in Columbus. They were married in his living room.

"We wanted to get married in case something happened while Brian was deployed," said Beth, who wishes she could have had a church wedding, surrounded by family and friends.

While Beth awaits her husband's return with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, she's making plans for a church ceremony back home in Cincinnati. She chose a gown Saturday at the Enlisted Spouses Club Fashion Show.

After receiving a donation of about 200 wedding and formal gowns from a bridal shop owner who closed her store and wanted to help military Families, ESC decided to have a fashion show to display the dresses.

ESC is trying to help brides who want to renew wedding vows, new brides and women looking for ballroom dresses, said Tiffani Cunningham, ESC president.

All items will be available for purchase after May 15. Items include wedding gowns for $75, formals for $30 and shoes for $10. The dresses are available to military, and Family members.

The dresses are located at the ESC office, Building 1677, next to The Follow Me Chapel. To see the dresses, come by the Enlisted Spouses Club office from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. Thursdays.

To schedule a different time, email fortbenningesc@yahoo.com.

Hugs for Soldiers leads efforts to make redeploying Soldiers feel welcome

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Fifty Volunteers — Soldiers, civilians and Family members — from Columbus, Fort Benning and Florida met at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center May 1 to pack care packages for single Soldiers from the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team coming home.

"Hopefully, these packages are a touch of home for the Soldiers," said Pamela Dubose, who drove from Crystal City, Fla., to help fill 950 packages. A total of 1,400 packages were made for the 3rd HBCT.

She said the packages were important because some Soldiers won't have Family to greet them when they arrive.

Spc. Jimmy Hunter deployed to Baghdad and redeployed to Germany with no Family waiting.

There he received a care package from an organization who made packages for the Soldiers.

"It was good to know people were thinking about us," he said.

The care package operation was organized by Hugs For Soldiers, a nonprofit organization that also has an adopt-a-Soldier program, Christmas and birthday gift programs.

Kathy Orcutt, co-founder of Hugs for Soldiers, said Soldiers have sacrificed for America, and for that, they deserve thanks.

"They have given up everyday conveniences and put their lives on the line for us, and this is such a small way we can thank them for all that they have done."

DVDs address deployment issues for military children

MEDDAC

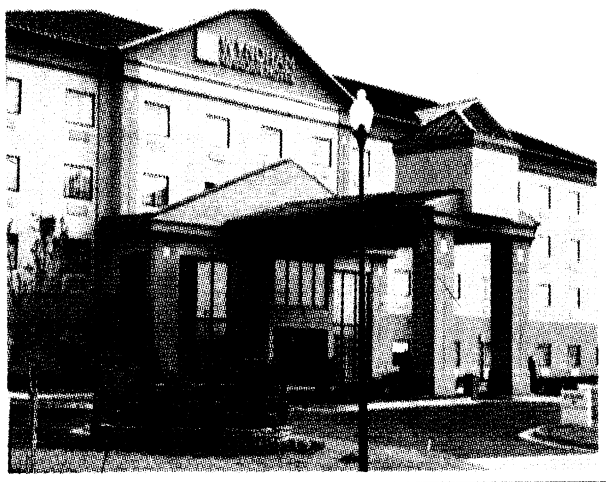
FALLS CHURCH, Va. — Pediatricians and youth professionals developed DVDs to help military children deal with the emotions related to deployment. The U.S. Army Medical Command and the American Academy of Pediatrics produced Military Youth Coping with Separation: When Family Members Deploy to address deployment concerns for teens.

For elementary-age children, there is Mr. Poe and Friends Discuss Reunion After Deployment. The animated host, Mr. Poe, guides children and Family members as they discuss deployment.

Maj. Keith Lemmon, an Army pediatrician and adolescent medicine sub specialist, became aware of the need for more support for deployed Families when he was sent to Afghanistan in 2002. His wife suffered with situational depression, and his son's behavior changed negatively.

While Military Youth Coping with Separation tackles numerous issues teens face, including fear of injury or death and stress brought about by changes in the home, it also offers techniques for dealing with the absence of a parent or loved one.

"Our goal is to reduce the anxiety and fear surrounding a military deployment and let children know they are not alone in the struggles their Families are facing," said Lemmon, who decided to make the DVD peer-to-peer, with teenagers relating their own deployment-related stories and offering advice.



"We know adolescents are more comfortable discussing these kinds of emotional issues with each other rather than adults," he said.

For younger children, Mr. Poe and Friends uses cartoon characters to talk about deployment. The animated host, Mr. Poe, interacts with Families at the airport as they await the return of their deployed loved ones.

Both videos are available for viewing at www.aap.org/sections/unifserv/deployment/index.htm. They are also available on DVD through Military One Source at 800-342-9647 or http://www.militaryonesource.com/skins/MOS/home.aspx.

5th RTB to host open house Saturday

5TH RANGER TRAINING BRIGADE

The North Georgia Mountains are home to Camp Frank D. Merrill, where the Soldiers of the 5th Ranger Training Battalion train Ranger students to lead small unit operations in close combat, direct fire battle in mountainous terrain. The camp originated in 1952, when the first mountain class trained for 11 days.

Despite great advances in technology, equipment and mountaineering techniques, Camp Merrill has remained true to its roots and remains a small specialized Army camp.

The 5th RTB will host its annual open house Saturday to give visitors a chance to see the Mountain Phase of Ranger training. Demonstrations will include rappelling, climbing, mountain rescue, hand-to-hand combat and free-fall parachute jumping.

Those seeking a challenge should come early for the Mountain Ranger Run and Mountain Bike Race and Duathalon, all of which benefit local charities. Registration starts at 6 a.m.

For more information on the open house, visit the 5th RTB website at http://www.5thrtb.org.

Camp Merrill and the surrounding forest, just outside of Dahlonega, offers many activities and attractions for the outdoorsmen.

Amicalola Falls, the highest set of falls east of the Mississippi River, is the start of the Appalachian Trail.

It is only a short drive from camp and can be reached by foot for those with the desire to hike.

Home to the country's first Gold Rush, Dahlonega houses a gold museum and hosts numerous festivals throughout the year, most notably the Gold Rush Festival.

The Chattahoochee forest maintains numerous wildlife managed areas, which are open for hunting at various times throughout the year. Both the hunter and fisherman will find plenty to keep themselves busy in these parts.

For more information about the open house and directions to the camp, go to www.5thrtb.org/open_house.

For more information about Dahlonega and activities in the surrounding area, go to www.dahlonega.org.

ASK THE JUDGE

OFFICE OF STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE
1st Lt. John H. Mark

Q: I heard that some identity thieves are calling people and tricking them into giving out personal information by claiming that they have failed to report for jury duty and that there is a warrant out for their arrest. Is this true?

A: Unfortunately, this is true. The "jury duty scam" has been reported in Arizona, Illinois, Minnesota, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Washington.

In this scam, the con artist poses as an employee of the local court system. He or she calls the unsuspecting person and claims that he or she failed to report for jury duty, and that an arrest warrant has been issued because of the failure to report.

When the victim states that a mistake has been made, the scammer asks for personal information, such as a Social Security number, date of birth, credit card information or the victim's mother's maiden name for "verification" purposes.

To resolve the problem, the victim often gives the requested personal information, which is all a prospective con artist needs to steal the victim's identity.

Protecting oneself from this scam is fairly easy. Court clerks generally do not call to ask for Social Security numbers or other private information. Most courts use regular U.S. mail to initiate correspondence.

Never give out personal confidential information when you answer the telephone, regardless of the caller's claim.

Ask for any such request to be mailed or for a telephone number so you can return the call, which will give you time to check into the caller's legitimacy.

Take time for yourself.

Our experienced and friendly staff look forward to discussing the very best products and procedures that can take years off your appearance. You'll look great and feel great!

Hills & Dales Estate

Home and garden in LaGrange offers retreat for lovers of nature, architecture

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Nestled on a rolling 35 acres in LaGrange, Ga., Hills & Dales Estate provides a welcome retreat for lovers of nature, history and architecture.

The formal gardens, lined with dwarf boxwoods after the 19th-century style, were tended by Sarah Ferrell in the 1840s and later enlarged by two generations of the Callaway family.

The original entrance to the gardens is marked with the name of God, spelled out in flowers and boxwoods.

Today, visitors can enjoy the serenity of the gardens, dotted with statues, fountains and stone benches, throughout the year. Flowers blossom in all seasons, from summer roses to winter-blooming camellias, and the greenhouse is full of color year-round.

Along with the many traditional flower gardens, the sunken gardens, herb garden, baptismal pool, terraces and wooded walks accent the grounds.

In the midst of the gardens is a lovely Georgian Italian villa, built in 1914 for Fuller and Ida Callaway and now a museum open to the public. The museum showcases period furniture and Callaway family artifacts like anniversary gifts, artwork and a garden journal. Tours last about an hour and a half. Groups with more than 12 people should make a reservation.

A tram is available to take guests from the visitors center to the East Portico of the house. The visitors center includes a gift shop and various antiques on display.

The estate is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.Tuesday through Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Admission to the gardens is $6 for adults, $3 for students and children younger than 7 are admitted free. A ticket for the house and gardens is $10 for adults and $6 for students. Children younger than 7 are not allowed in the house. Annual passes are available for those wishing to visit the estate multiple times.

Families who bring a picnic basket and blanket to the estate Saturday can take advantage of free admission to the gardens.

For more information, visit www.hillsanddalesestate.com or call 706-882-3242.

Cheryl Rodewig

Alice and Fuller Callaway Jr. added this bathhouse in 1941, but the architectural design blends with the older Georgian Italian buildings on the property.

Fishing, boating, swimming opportunities abound at Uchee Creek

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

With rising gas prices and vacations just around the corner, look no further than Uchee Creek for a fun and relaxing getaway for the whole Family. Located on the Alabama side of Fort Benning, the campground offers RV and tent sites, a lodge, chalets and plenty of activities, including fishing, swimming and boating.

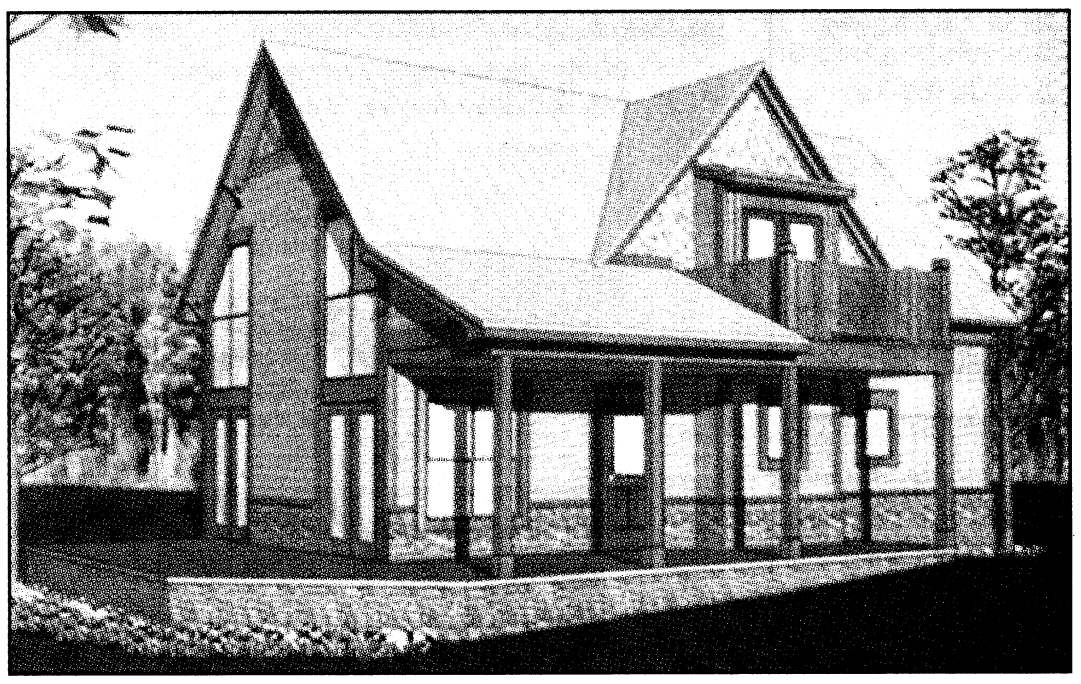
The scenery is gorgeous. Imagine stepping out on the front porch to a view of dense forest and the Chattahoochee River. Or seeing deer grazing less than 20 feet away.

The chalets might be your home away from home. They include a living room, full kitchen and bathroom, bedrooms and loft area, TV, DVD player, and an outdoor fire pit. They accommodate up to eight people.

Because of the popularity of Uchee Creek, there are plans to build 10 more chalets and construct 25 more RV sites.

Cliff Hughes, manager at Uchee Creek, described the new chalets as "contemporary," with 1,838 square feet — 838 square feet more than the existing chalets. They will include an upstairs shower and deck, granite countertops and tile floors.

Hughes said he hopes the expansion project will eventually include a chalet to accommodate 10 to 15 people and honeymoon chalets.



The first two new chalets are scheduled to be completed by the end of 2008, he said.

For more information about Uchee Creek, go to www.benningmwr.com/uchee31905.htm or • Chalet rental prices range from $38 to $55.

• RV sites are $18 to $19, and tent sites are $8 to $9.

• Rent a pontoon, paddleboat, canoe, kayak or motorboat. Prices range from $10 to $105.

BOOK REVIEW

Book merits attention by All-American alumni, World War II enthusiasts

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Maj. Matthew Archambault

It seems the further events sink into the depths of history, the more they become concepts and broad ideas. World War II is a case in point.

It is the most prolific event in human history with more than 10 million serving in the American military. Yet, history books focus on the general concepts of the Fascists, the Communists and the Greatest Generation at the expense of the individual struggles. This misses the trees for the forest. Ideas only come to life when they are embodied or confronted by real people.

James Megellas served as a platoon leader in the 82nd Airborne's 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment from 1943 until 1945. His book, All the Way to Berlin, shines a light on "the micro-aspects of war, wars as fought by young teenage GIs in squads and platoons, led by noncommissioned officers and junior grade officers."

Megellas was an ROTC cadet at Ripon College in Wisconsin when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. That's where All the Way to Berlin begins and the ensuing pages detail Maggie's subsequent odyssey. Along the way, he and his comrades participate in some of the most significant battles in World War II to include Anzio, Market Garden and the Bulge. He also witnesses the liberation of a concentration camp and the post-war partitioning of Berlin, two of the most tragic moments in history.

All the Way to Berlin's organization makes it an excellent research tool. It could easily be an addendum to works like Rick Atkinson's The Day of Battle and others that paint the broad brush strokes of the war. All the Way to Berlin is strongest when Megellas focuses on his unique experiences. His relief-in-place during the Italian campaign, his combat jump during Market Garden, and his mission "to go get some German prisoners" are compelling sections. They offer lessons today's company grade leaders will find germane to their own experience. All the Way to Berlin wanes when Megellas' focus on the "micro-aspects of war" switches to the macro view. These come across as cliché and out of synch with the letters and journal entries he uses to bring the reader into the moment. Tangential diatribes also confuse and weaken the text, but holistically All the Way to Berlin merits attention by All-American alumni and World War II enthusiasts.

There is no doubt Lt. James Megellas epitomizes his generation of Americans. He answered his nation's call to arms and served brilliantly, becoming the most highly decorated Soldier in the 82nd Airborne Division.

After the conclusion of the war, Megellas dutifully laid down his weapon and returned to civilian life. He recently visited Fort Benning to sign copies of his book, which is available in the Donovan Research Library.

Opening Today
SPEED RACER

Born to race cars, Speed Racer's (Emile Hirsch) only real competition is the memory of the brother he idolized — the legendary Rex Racer, whose death in a race has left behind a legacy that Speed is driven to fulfill.

When Speed turns down a lucrative and tempting offer from Royalton Industries, he infuriates the company's maniacal owner and discovers some of the biggest races are being fixed.

The only way for Speed to save his family's business and the sport he loves is to win the death-defying, cross-country rally known as The Crucible.

WHAT HAPPENS IN VEGAS

Two people (Cameron Diaz and Ashton Kutcher) discover they've gotten married following a night of debauchery in Vegas, with one of them winning a jackpot after playing the other's quarter.

The pair tries to undermine each other and get their hands on the money ... falling in love along the way.

What Happens in Vegas is rated PG-13 for some sexual and crude content, and language, including a drug reference.

THE FALL

She strikes up a friendship with a bedridden man who captivates her with a whimsical story that removes her far from the hospital doldrums into the exotic landscapes of her imagination.

Making sure he keeps the girl interested in the story he interweaves her family and people she likes from the hospital into his tale.

Also Playing
IRON MAN

Tony Stark (Robert Downey Jr.) is a billionaire industrialist and genius inventor who is kidnapped and forced to build a devastating weapon.

Instead, using his intelligence and ingenuity, Tony builds a high-tech suit of armor and escapes captivity. He uncovers a plot with global implications and dons his powerful armor and to protect the world as Iron Man.

MADE OF HONOR

Tom Bailey (Patrick Dempsey) is in love with his best friend Claire (Michelle Monaghan). But Tom has a fear of commitment and refuses to admit that he should propose to Claire before she finds a less procrastinating suitor. When Colin (Kevin McKidd), a rich Scotsman sweeps Claire off her feet and asks for her hand in marriage, Tom must witness her unquestioned happiness up close and personal — because she's chosen him to be her maid of honor.

Made of Honor is rated PG-13 for sexual content and language.

SON OF RAMBOW

In 1980s Britain, young Will Proudfoot (Bill Milner) is raised in isolation among The Brethren, a religious sect in which music and TV are strictly forbidden.

Now, Will sets out to join forces with school bully Lee Carter (Will Poulter) to make their own action epic, devising wildly creative stunts and elaborate schemes for creating a movie of non-stop thrills while hiding from The Brethren. When school popularity finally descends on Will and Lee in the form of the super-cool French exchange student Didier (Jules Sitruk), their new friendship and precious film are pushed to the breaking point.

HAROLD AND KUMAR ESCAPE FROM GUANTANAMO BAY

Harold and Kumar (John Cho and Kal Penn) decide to pursue Maria (Paula Garces), the girl Harold likes, to Amsterdam. However, an overzealous airline passenger mistakes Kumar for a terrorist, and the plane is diverted as the duo get stuck in a case of mistaken identity.

BABY MAMA

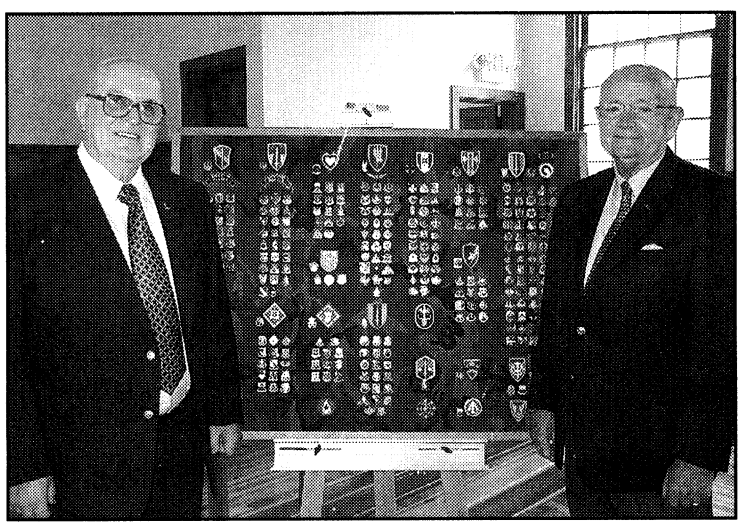
Successful and single businesswoman Kate Holbrook (Tina Fey) has long put her career ahead of a personal life, but now at 37, she's determined to have a kid on her own. But when she discovers she has only a million-to-one chance of getting pregnant, Kate allows South Philly working girl Angie Ostrowiski (Amy Poehler) to become her unlikely surrogate. Kate begins reading childcare books, baby-proofing the apartment and researching top pre-schools, but her strategy is turned upside down when Angie shows up at her doorstep with no place to live. In a battle of wills, they struggle their way through preparation for the baby's arrival.

Baby Mama is rated PG-13 for crude and sexual humor, language and a drug reference.

DECEPTION

A New York accounting consultant, Jonathan McQuarry (Ewan McGregor) meets a charismatic, womanizing lawyer, Wyatt Bose (Hugh Jackman) who personifies everything he wants to be. But in the mysterious sex club he is introduced into, he soon becomes the prime suspect in a woman's disappearance and a multi-million dollar heist.

Deception is rated R for sexual content, language, violence and drug use.



THE FORBIDDEN KINGDOM

While hunting down bootleg kung-fu DVDs in a Chinatown pawnshop, Jason (Michael Angarano) makes an extraordinary discovery that sends him hurtling back in time to ancient China. There, he is charged with the task to free the fabled warrior, the Monkey King (Jet Li), who has been imprisoned by the evil Jade Warlord (Collin Chou).

Jason is joined in his quest by kung fu master Lu Yan (Jackie Chan) and a band of misfit warriors including Silent Monk (Jet Li). By learning the true precepts of kung fu, Jason hopes to succeed.

Vets honored

Cyndy Cerbin

Former Infantryman and collector Barney Oglesby, left, and retired Gen. Gordon Sullivan flank one of the boards displaying crests of all the units that served in Vietnam. The 545 unit crests were presented to the National Infantry Museum in April after Oglesby spent 20 years collecting them to honor Vietnam veterans.

Free Guitar Workshop and Concert
MAY 17

Dave Isaacs is a classically trained musician and a 1993 graduate of the Manhattan School of Music with an advanced degree in classical guitar, but performs folk and blues with foot-stomping authority and a rocker's electric energy.

He will conduct a free guitar workshop from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at Gorilla Guitars at 1038 Broadway, Columbus. The workshop will focus on a comprehensive approach to understanding how rhythm drives the feel of a song and how to create that effect on a guitar.

For more information, visit www.gorillaguitars.com and www.bunkhouseblues.com.

Arts in the Park
MAY 18

The annual Arts in the Park will be at the Bandshell at Lakebottom Park in Columbus from noon to 7 p.m. The event will feature local musicians, artwork, food and children's activities. The event is free and open to the public. Artwork and concessions will be available for purchase. For more information, call 706 327 9533.

Beauty and the Beast
MAY 17-18

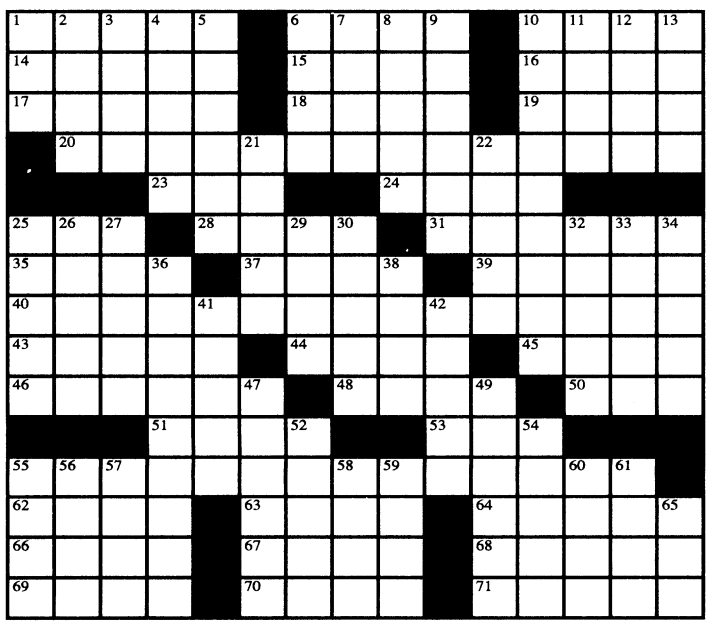
The Academy of Fine Arts will present Beauty and the Beast at 7:30 p.m. May 17 and 2:30 p.m. May 18 at the RiverCenter. The performance will include a jazz section, entitled The Millennium, which will feature popular songs since 2000. Tickets are $19.

For more information, call 706-561-8085.

Songwriting Workshop and Concert
MAY 21

Kerry Kurt Phillips will conduct a songwriting workshop from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at The RiverCenter. At 9:30, he will give a concert at The Loft on 1030 Broadway. His hits include Do You Want Fries With That, sung by Tim McGraw and Pickup Man, sung by Joe Diffie. The cost is $20 for the workshop and includes the concert. The cost for the concert only is $10.

To reserve tickets, call Nona Christie at 706-565-7362.



A Night on the River
MAY 25

Grand Ole Opry stars John Conlee and Little Jimmy Dickens will be in concert at 8 p.m. at the Phenix City Amphitheater. Tickets are $10 in advance, available at SunTrust Bank or Action Building, or $15 the day of the show.

Concert
JUNE 10

Stevie Nicks will be in concert at 8 p.m. at the Verizon Wireless Amphitheatre in Alpharetta, Ga. For more information, call 678-297-2811.

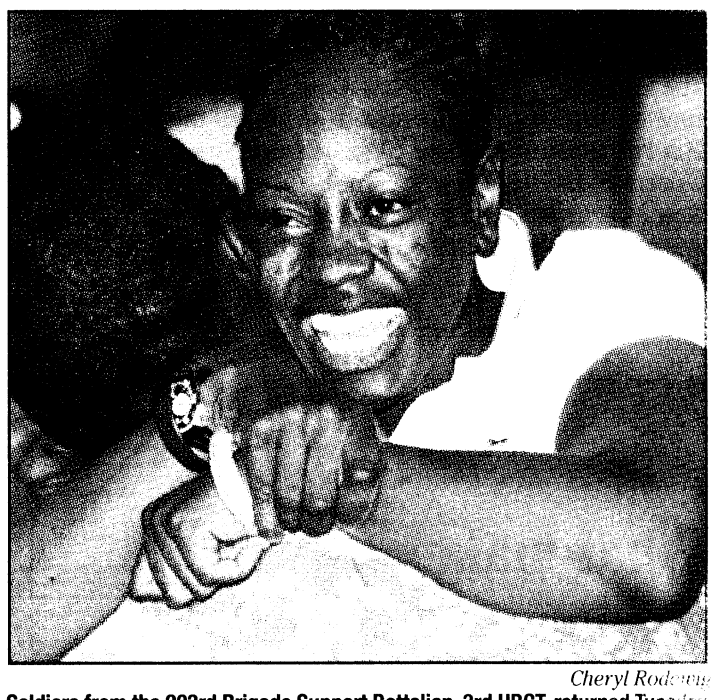
More than half of the Kelley Hill Soldiers are home from Iraq. Another 1,400 are slated to return this month.

Among those back home are Staff Sgts. Shahied and Jamie Abdulbarr, who deployed to Iraq in March 2007. Shahied returned just days before his wife, who arrived Tuesday night. The reunion was small, since their two daughters are staying with their grandmother in Texas through the end of the school year.

"We had a really strong family base that helped us when it came to our children," Shahied said. "To have both spouses overseas, both of you enduring the same dangers every day … and then to come back is a big relief for the whole family."

Though the couple saw each other occasionally during the deployment, Shahied said meeting Jamie at Lawson Army Airfield was "like seeing my wife for the first time."

Melinda Waller waited for her husband of 19 months, Sgt. William Waller.



"We're the only people on earth who get to fall in love with our husbands again and again," she said. "A lot has happened during the year, a lot of changing — people grow — so you just get know that person again, fall in love again. I'm sure every spouse here has that nervous excitement in the pit of their stomach … not very many people get to feel that."

"It's the price we pay for the life we live and for the privilege of loving the people who serve our country," she said. "I support him 100 percent."

Though their marriage is new, Melinda has faith in its strength.

"No time apart, no deployment, nothing can weaken what we have," she said. "I would not change one thing about our life; it's what makes us what we are. We don't look forward to deployments — they are long and hard — but I will always be here waiting, and he will always come back to me."

Pipe collapse leaves hole

THE BAYONET

A pipe collapsed in late April, leaving behind a large hole that closed the Lindsey Creek northbound exit to I-185.

The exit is located on Custer Road between the AAFES shoppette and McBride Elementary School.

The Directorate of Public Works will finish repairs on the underground storm-drain pipe, which is approximately eight feet in diameter, in the next five weeks, said David Benefield, DPW civil engineer.

Benefield said the pipe probably wore out, and once it failed, the soil above it flowed into the pipe. The hole is about 15 feet deep and 9 feet in diameter.

Benefield said drivers heading north to I-185 from Sand Hill, McGraw and Patton Villages and McGraw Elementary School should take other routes.

Alternate routes include the east-bound traffic loop at Custer Road or Eisenhower Exchange at U.S. Highways 27 and 280, east on Custer Road. Drivers can also go west on Custer Road to Benning Boulevard and follow it north to Columbus.

Who's it going to be?

Mike Snapp wonders, when he faces a class of inexperienced motorcycle riders, who's it going to be? He knows from experience, having taught cycle safety for five years, that someone's going to get careless, make a mistake, maybe down one drink too many.

"I figure if I reach one person and keep him from crashing, that's great," said Snapp, the lead instructor in Fort Benning's motorcycle safety course, which is mandatory for anyone operating a cycle on post.

"But you do stand up there and look at the class and wonder who's going to have something happen to him. Might not be his fault; it might be someone else's fault or it might just be inexperience, but it happens."

Historically, it happens more frequently in the 30 days after a mass redeployment, the kind Fort Benning is experiencing this month with the return of the 3rd Infantry Division's 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team. The weeks immediately

Bradleys to roll into uptown Columbus June 5

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

Fort Benning Soldiers will invade uptown Columbus June 5.

Bradley Infantry Fighting Vehicles will roll down Front Avenue during an exercise designed to test the capabilities of camera system prototypes in a real urban environment.

"The buildings and vehicles and foot traffic will provide a more realistic setting than anything we could duplicate on Fort Benning," said Maj. Shane Sims, of the Soldier Battle Lab.

Sims said this event is part of a monthlong experiment. Soldiers, who have adopted a closed-hatch posture to protect themselves in theater, have requested a camera system to help them see in their vehicles' blind spots. The experiment will also determine how reliance on cameras might change the way the mounted Army fights.

Two Bradley IFVs are being used for the experiment. One will be the M-2 A3 variant, which is currently in use, and the other is a prototype, called the Bradley Technology Demonstrator.

The prototype is slightly taller and longer than the M-2 A3, but is the same width and weight.

The Bradley IFVs will travel Front Avenue between 9th and 13th Streets from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. From 2 to 4 p.m., there will be a static display in front of the Trade Center and the Marriott Hotel for anyone who wants to look at the vehicles and talk to Soldiers about them.

The Fort Benning community can see the Bradley Technology Demonstrator on display outside Infantry Hall June 6.

Couples can earn cash by participating in marriage study

You spent a long time in the desert. Now Fort Benning chaplains are offering you an oasis.

That's what Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Tom Waynick called the Army Marriage Project, an "oasis" for couples dealing with the unique stressors of Army life.

Fort Benning couples are invited to participate in the project, which is designed to assess the effectiveness of Army marriage enrichment programs over a three-year period.

They stand to earn more than $800 for completing a series of seven questionnaires. Each questionnaire will take about an hour to complete, and responses will be confidential.

That's a good deal for anyone, Waynick said, but the opportunity to get away for a free couple's retreat at Callaway Gardens makes it particularly beneficial to Kelley Hill Soldiers who have been deployed for 15 months.

"Army marriages tend to be pretty resilient," he said. "You can spend a long time in the desert and come out OK, but every now and then you need an oasis to keep your marriage vibrant."

So far, 53 couples have signed up for the project, which started this week. A total of 200 is needed, said Deb McCranie, the project coordinator.

To be eligible, one of the spouses must be currently assigned to Fort Benning, but not necessarily throughout the entire three-year process.

The Army Marriage Project is being conducted by the University of Denver's Center for Marital and Family Studies in cooperation with the Chief of Chaplains Office.

For more information, call 706-505-7770 or log on to www.armymarriageproject.com.

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Support system in place for redeploying Soldiers

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

Many Fort Benning Soldiers have returned from deployment in recent weeks and many more will follow. We are proud of the job they have done overseas and we are glad to have them home. They deserve some much-needed rest, relaxation, and time to reconnect with loved ones.

After living in an environment where they face physical threats and personal danger on a daily basis, it may be hard for some Soldiers to readjust to the safety and normalcy of life here in the States. Fort Benning has the mission of assisting in this readjustment.

The leadership of our Army has recognized the importance of caring for Soldiers and Families both on and off the battlefield, and at Fort Benning, we have taken deliberate steps to ensure the safety and well-being of everyone.

Never before has such a comprehensive support system been implemented to promote the well-being of those who selflessly serve our country. Prevention programs, which promote self-reliance, resiliency and stability for Soldiers and Families, have been reinforced on every Army post. Many of these programs target the potential problems that can arise between Soldiers and their Families, or as Soldiers reintegrate into society.

Fort Benning's Army Community Service has already strengthened many of these research-based prevention programs, and they work with other directorates to offer comprehensive services for the physical, mental and spiritual well-being of Soldiers, their Families and Army Civilians. Personal relationship issues, financial concerns, violence prevention services, Family employment and help during emergency situations are an integral part of the continuing well-being and safety of our Army Family.

In addition, the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation offers safe and healthy opportunities for individuals and Families to readjust by providing free or low-cost services. We have wide-ranging sports programs geared to meet the needs of everyone in the Army. Our outdoor recreation opportunities are abundant, as well as the availability of new equipment needed for those activities, from canoes and kayaks to paintball and fishing gear.

Inexpensive getaways at Uchee Creek or Destin, Fla., can offer your Family a chance to unplug from the stress of everyday life, and reconnect with each other in a fun, recreational setting. But, even here, we haven't forgotten your safety. Everywhere you go within our DFMWR network experts will demonstrate the proper techniques, use and handling of equipment to maintain safety and well-being.

While you are celebrating your return to the States, or the return of your loved one from combat, I encourage you to be safe. Each individual is important to our Army Family, so we have arranged free Safety Cab rides during the traditional summer leave periods of Memorial Day, Independence Day and Labor Day for Soldiers, Family members, and other military ID-card holders. This program has had a positive impact. So far, there have been no alcohol-related fatalities since the Safety Cab program began. I urge everyone to keep this service in mind when celebrating the holidays.

I hope everyone in our Army Family will take advantage of the assistance and amenities we have put in place to help keep us safe. It is a wonderful time right now with our Soldiers returning to Fort Benning. Whether on the battlefield or at home, your efforts in support of the Global War on Terrorism aid in our continued success.

Say hello to Woody and Kodi. Then say goodbye.

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

We have two very special guests on Fort Benning this week, 9-year-old Woody and 8-year-old Kodi. We're keeping them entertained, comfortable and well fed.

Next week, we kill 'em.

They were abandoned by their owners who decided the backyard of their new home on Fort Benning was just too small for two dogs. So they did the responsible thing. They dumped them at the Vet Clinic, so they — Woody and Kodi — could have a better life, roaming freely in a five by seven cage. For a couple of weeks.

Kodi is a male, a black Lab, and a hero. His blood was used to keep another lucky dog from dying. They named the dog Lucky. Kodi should be so.

Woody is a gold-colored female. I'm not sure why her name is Woody, and the owner with the small yard and the wee conscience didn't hang around long enough to answer any questions. Before the vet tech could tack a question mark on the end of "Don't you realize we'll have to put them to sleep," they were out the door.

As of last week, Woody and Kodi have overstayed their welcome. They were scheduled to be euthanized when I met them last Friday. I begged the innkeeper to give The Bayonet one week to find a new home for Woody and Kodi. Just one week.

Lori Egan
Siblings Woody and Kodi, a mix of Labrador retriever and something else, are looking for a home.

So let's make this fast. Woody and Kodi will die if they don't find a new home. Together. Nothing fancy, just a small yard to call their own and someone to pat them on the nose every now and then. They're housebroken and trained to mind. They'll sit if you tell them to sit. They'll die if you tell them to stay.

I have two dogs of my own, and I know they can be a handful. Maybe you're not sure you're ready to sign on for a long-term commitment. Maybe you're not sure you'd make a good pet owner. What better way to find out than to adopt a couple of dogs who have long outgrown their puppy rambunctiousness. A couple of well-trained dogs that are content to keep each other company. They need very little really, just a loving place to hang out for another four or five years till they go the way God intended.

If you think you might be the kind of person who could make room in your backyard, and your heart, for Woody and Kodi, please give the Vet Clinic a call at 706-545-4826 and tell them you feel like a hero today. And please let me know when you do.

• It was sure to be a sorry season for the Fort Benning football team, a columnist speculated, since "it is an exceptional case where a man is physically fit to play football after the age of 30. And most of the members of the (Infantry School) class will be over this age."

• Post chaplains inaugurated a dial-a-prayer service here. Residents could call 545-PRAY 24 hours a day.

• In the Post Notes column: Col. Robert Nett, Operations Department, U.S. Army Infantry Center, will lecture and present slides on the Republic of Vietnam at 7:30 p.m. May 13 in the Main Post Service Club.

• After college, a short stint teaching tumbling, and two years with the circus, Jack Holden attended OCS at Fort Benning, where he was known to take a backward tumble in the middle of a conversation. The Bayonet noted that the young cadet had already broken his foot while tumbling on Sightseeing Field.

What qualifies one to be a professional tumbler, a reporter asked Holden.

"You've just got to be crazy," he replied.

• The post sports columnist reported the results of a study by the Athletic Institute showed, to his amazement, that more Americans attended horse races than baseball and football games the previous year. Cycling was the most popular participant sport.

Collecting rain water conserves resource

THE BAYONET

Retired Maj. San Parr waters flowers in his backyard garden May 5 with rain collected on May 3. He collects rain water because of drought-related water restrictions.

One inch of rain on an acre of land equals more than 27,000 gallons of water, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. For retired Maj. San Parr and his wife, Brigitte, that's too much to waste.

"It's free water," said San, who rigged up a rain barrel for the garden at their Columbus home. "Instead of water filled with chemicals, rainwater is really good for the plants. It has nutritional value."

To make the barrel, San attached a 35-gallon garbage can to the rain gutter running from the roof to the backyard. The rain barrel, in a corner of the yard, has a faucet attached at the base, which the Parrs use to fill their watering can. They harvest 30 to 35 gallons of rainwater almost every week.

"Everybody can do that; it's not that big a deal," said Brigitte, who empties the water from indoor vases on potted plants outside, another way to save water. "Why let it go to waste?"

San set up the rain barrel in February in response to water restrictions related to the drought, but he said he plans to keep the barrel even after the restrictions are lifted.

The rainfall from last Saturday alone, which overflowed the barrel, provided plenty of water for the Parrs' garden.

"It makes stuff grow, that's for sure," said San as he surveyed the many flowers in bloom, including petunias, peonies, roses, azaleas and lilies.

Infantry Hall may soon be equipped with a similar system which will collect rainwater from the roof.

"Instead of us getting city water or water that we pay for, we're getting it off the roof virtually free, and then we use it in our air conditioning units," said Peter Lukken, Fort Benning sustainability planner.

The rainwater harvesting collection system, designed by HSMM, would save not only money but also the environment, since it would "reuse" water.

"Regionally, there are great concerns regarding water availability, today and in the future," Lukken said.

"Water conservation is a high priority at Fort Benning, and we are doing our part as a leader with incorporating water conservation into our way of thinking."

Lukken said he hopes to have the system in place by the end of the building's renovation in 2010.

Task Force Falcon Soldiers share battle strategy

Soldiers say many factors led to task force's success during 15-month Iraq deployment

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

Five members of Task Force Falcon visited Fort Benning Tuesday to talk about their deployment in Iraq from November 2006 to February 2008.

The Soldiers, members of a combined arms task force from the 2nd Brigade Combat Team, 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C., spoke to a crowded audience during Fort Benning's Combat Leader Speaker Program in Marshall Auditorium.

Task Force Falcon's mission was to conduct heliborne assault operations into al Qaeda-controlled sanctuaries throughout Iraq to destroy and defeat terrorist networks and bring security and stability throughout the region. In addition, they were tasked with preventing al Qaeda from using Iraq as a base of operations to export terrorism into the Middle East, Europe and the U.S.

Lt. Col. Ross E. Davidson Jr., squadron commander of the 1st Squadron, 73rd Cavalry Regiment (RECON) and Task Force Falcon, said they took the fight to the enemy during search and attack operations against al Qaeda.

After being dropped from helicopters, Davidson said they spent a lot of time on the ground, conducting 72-to-96 hour operations.

Task Force Falcon Soldiers conducted more than 147 night air assault operations at distances of greater than 200 kilometers, typically inserting as many as 600 paratroopers into the battle area.

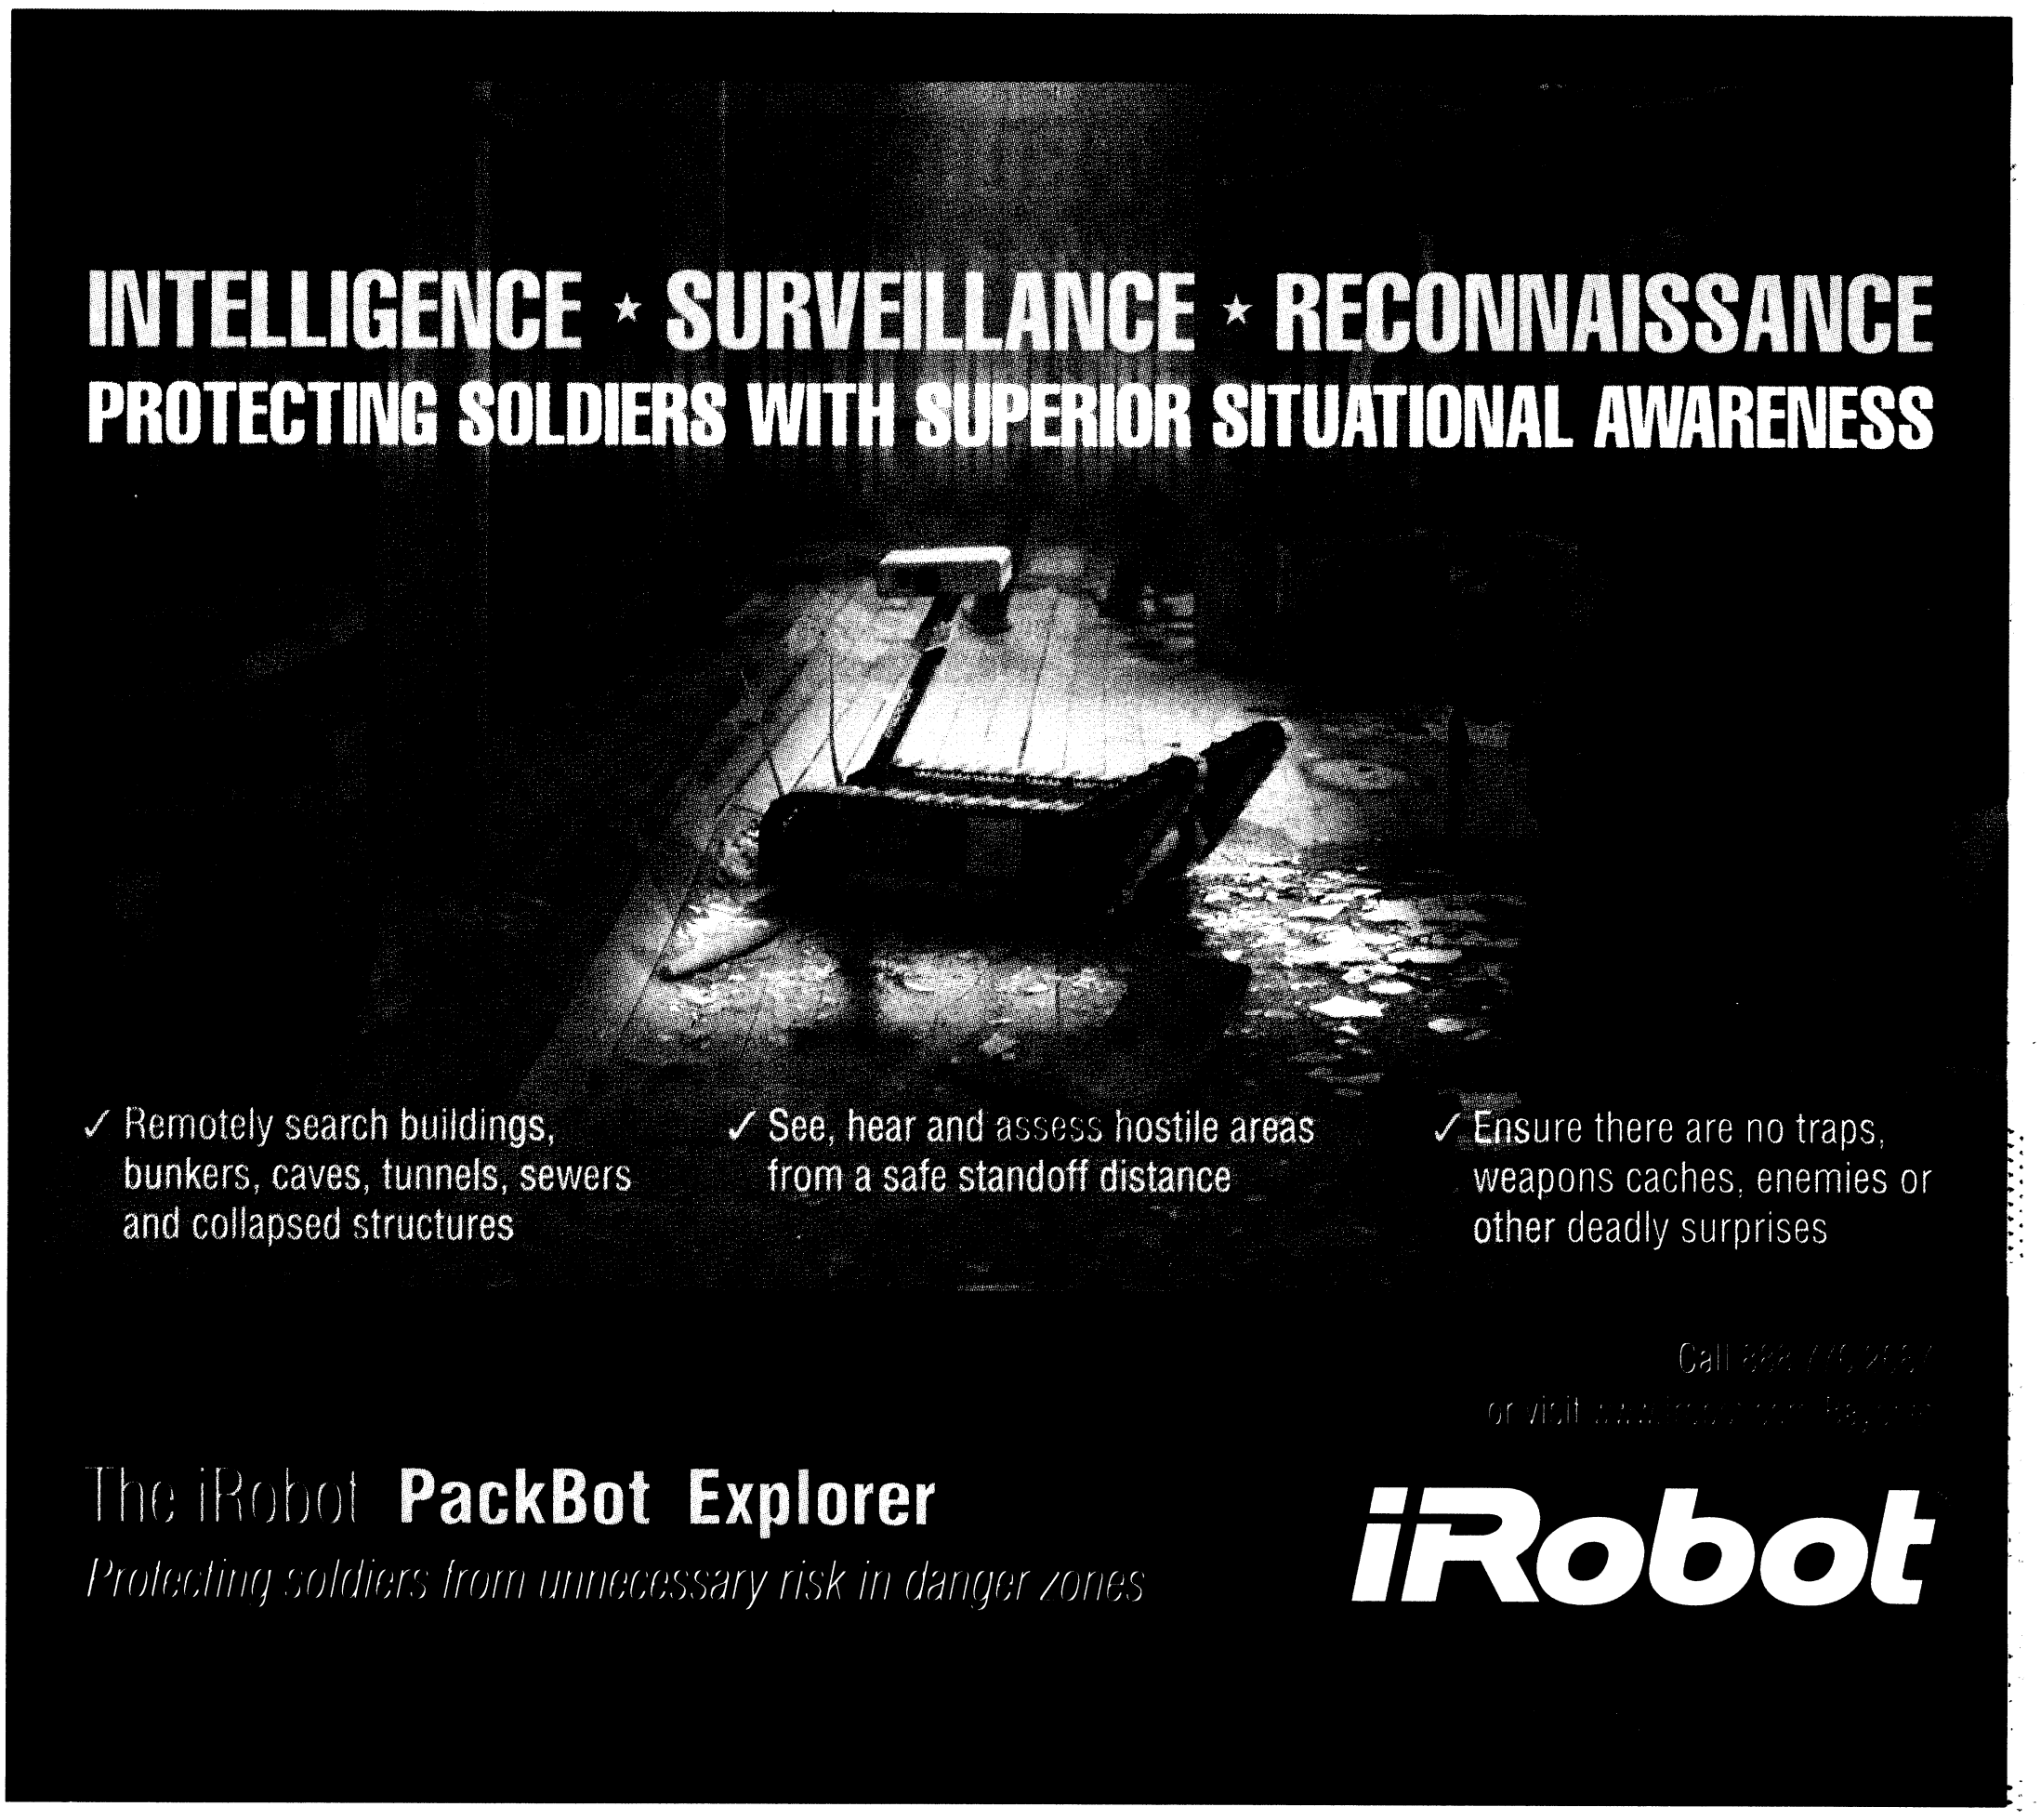
They destroyed 65 vehicle borne IEDs and IED production facilities, weapon and explosives production facilities, and torture and detention facilities, and 19 house-borne IEDs.

They killed 296 terrorists, wounded 47 terrorists, captured 467 terrorists, and captured and destroyed more than 200 major caches of weapons and explosives.

Task Force Falcon liberated and repatriated 18 hostages captured by terrorists, and their operations directly supported multiple Concerned Local Citizen and Tribal Awakening groups in remote areas throughout Iraq.

Davidson brought four Soldiers with him to talk about some of the methods they used to accomplish their mission.

Christian interpreters were integral in helping them gain the trust of Iraqis, said Maj. Mark Lastoria, Headquarters Company commander. He said the locals were more likely to talk to Christian interpreters, many from the U.S. with security clearances, rather than the interpreters who were Sunni, Shia or some other Islamic religious denomination, because the Christian interpreters were thought to be neutral.

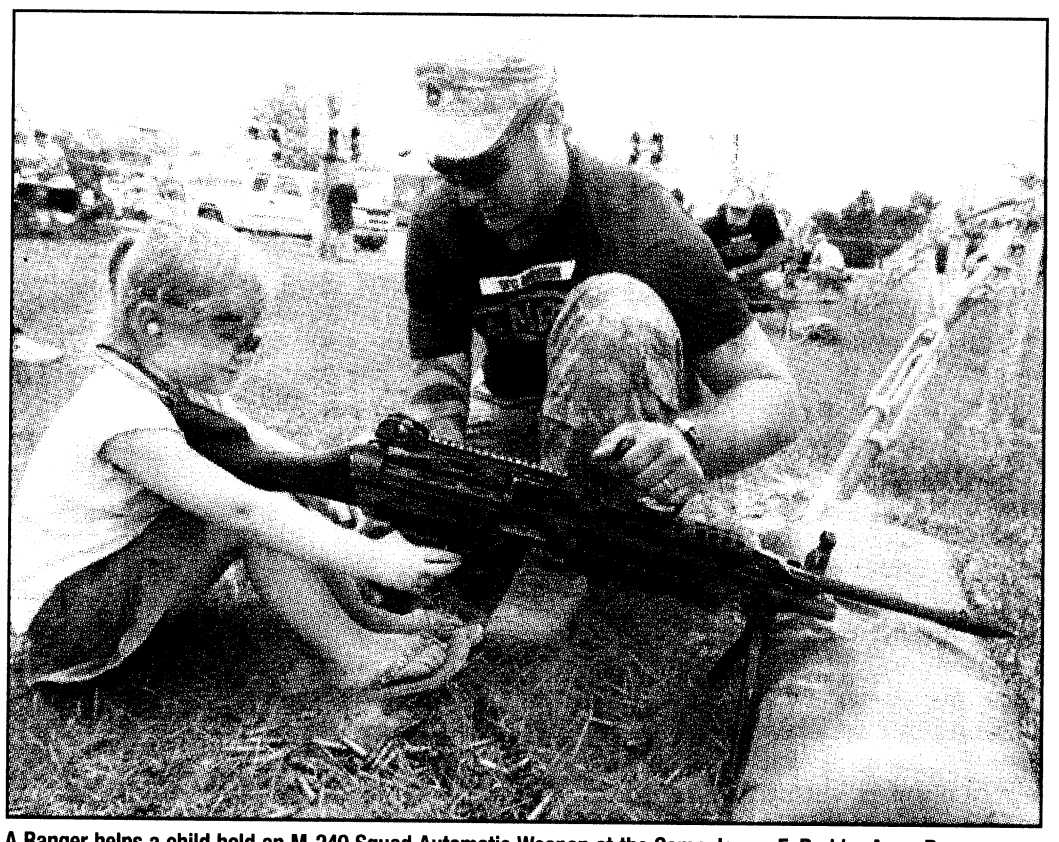


Information would often "start flowing" when the locals found out they were giving information through Christian interpreters, he said.

Altering tactics, techniques and procedures kept the enemy off their guard, said 1st Sgt. Kevin Spooner, C Co., 1st Battalion, 325th Airborne Infantry Regiment. He said they encouraged unit personnel to think outside the box to change how they looked at things. Spooner said everyone's ideas were taken into consideration, including junior Soldiers who often noticed changes in the enemy's procedures.

Local nationals were the biggest threat to the enemy, and they helped his unit gain insight into the enemy's position, said 1st Lt. Herman Bulls, a platoon leader with A Co., 1st Bn., 325th Airborne Inf. Regt. He said the locals knew what was happening around their area and who was al Qaeda, and they used the information they received to their advantage against the enemy.

Rehearsing and thinking about what their missions were and how to best conduct them, including what battle gear they needed for each mission, were important to their success, said Sgt. 1st Class Russ Kelley, a platoon sergeant with A Co., 1st Bn., 325th Airborne Inf. Regt. He said this helped them meet the enemy on their terms rather than letting the enemy call the shots. Ambushes were an important part of their battle strategy, and they used them constantly, setting them up throughout the battlefield to stop the enemy, he said.



Task Force Falcon is comprised of Headquarters and Headquarters Troop, 1st Sqd., 73rd Cav. Regt.; A Troop, 1st Sqd., 73rd Cav. Regt.; A Co., 2nd Bn., 325th Airborne Inf. Regt.; C Co., 1st Bn., 325th Airborne Inf. Regt.; D Troop, 407th Brigade Support Bn., and other sections throughout the Brigade to include the 2nd Bn., 319th Airborne Field Artillery Regt., and the 2nd Bde. Special Troops Bn.

Open house gives visitors taste of Ranger life

EGLIN DISPATCH

CAMP RUDDER, Fla. — Those who drove to remote Camp Rudder for the Ranger Open House Saturday were able to see and touch snakes, shoot military rifles and watch Rangers fast rope from a helicopter.

"I really liked the fast rope," said Marie Ceja, who attended the event with her two children for the first time. "It's great getting to see what my husband's job entails."

During a downed-pilot demonstration, a UH-60 Blackhawk helicopter swooped in and hovered while 10 Rangers fast roped down and approached the downed helicopter to secure the perimeter before medical personnel came in to tend to the casualty.

When the casualty was stable, they moved him away and set off a smoke canister to signal the rescue team.

Other Rangers demonstrated rappel techniques, including the commando, or Australian "face down" technique.

"Awesome," she said, adding that she wasn't afraid for him because "I know he knows what he's doing."

The captain later admitted he had just learned the technique the day before.

"It's scary," he said. "It's not natural."

The event included a hands-on marksmanship station. Rylee Wright, 8, liked the steady fire of the M-240 machine gun.

"That was fun. It hurts on your shoulder a little," she said.

Others couldn't pick a favorite.

"All of them are the best," said Dakota Lewis, 10. "I want to be a Soldier so I can shoot guns."

The snake house and the alligators were another big draw. Visitors petted gators Billy Bob and Tyrone, each about two-feet long.

Proceeds from the event, which included a car show and Ranger Swamp Run, went to the Fisher House of the Emerald Coast.

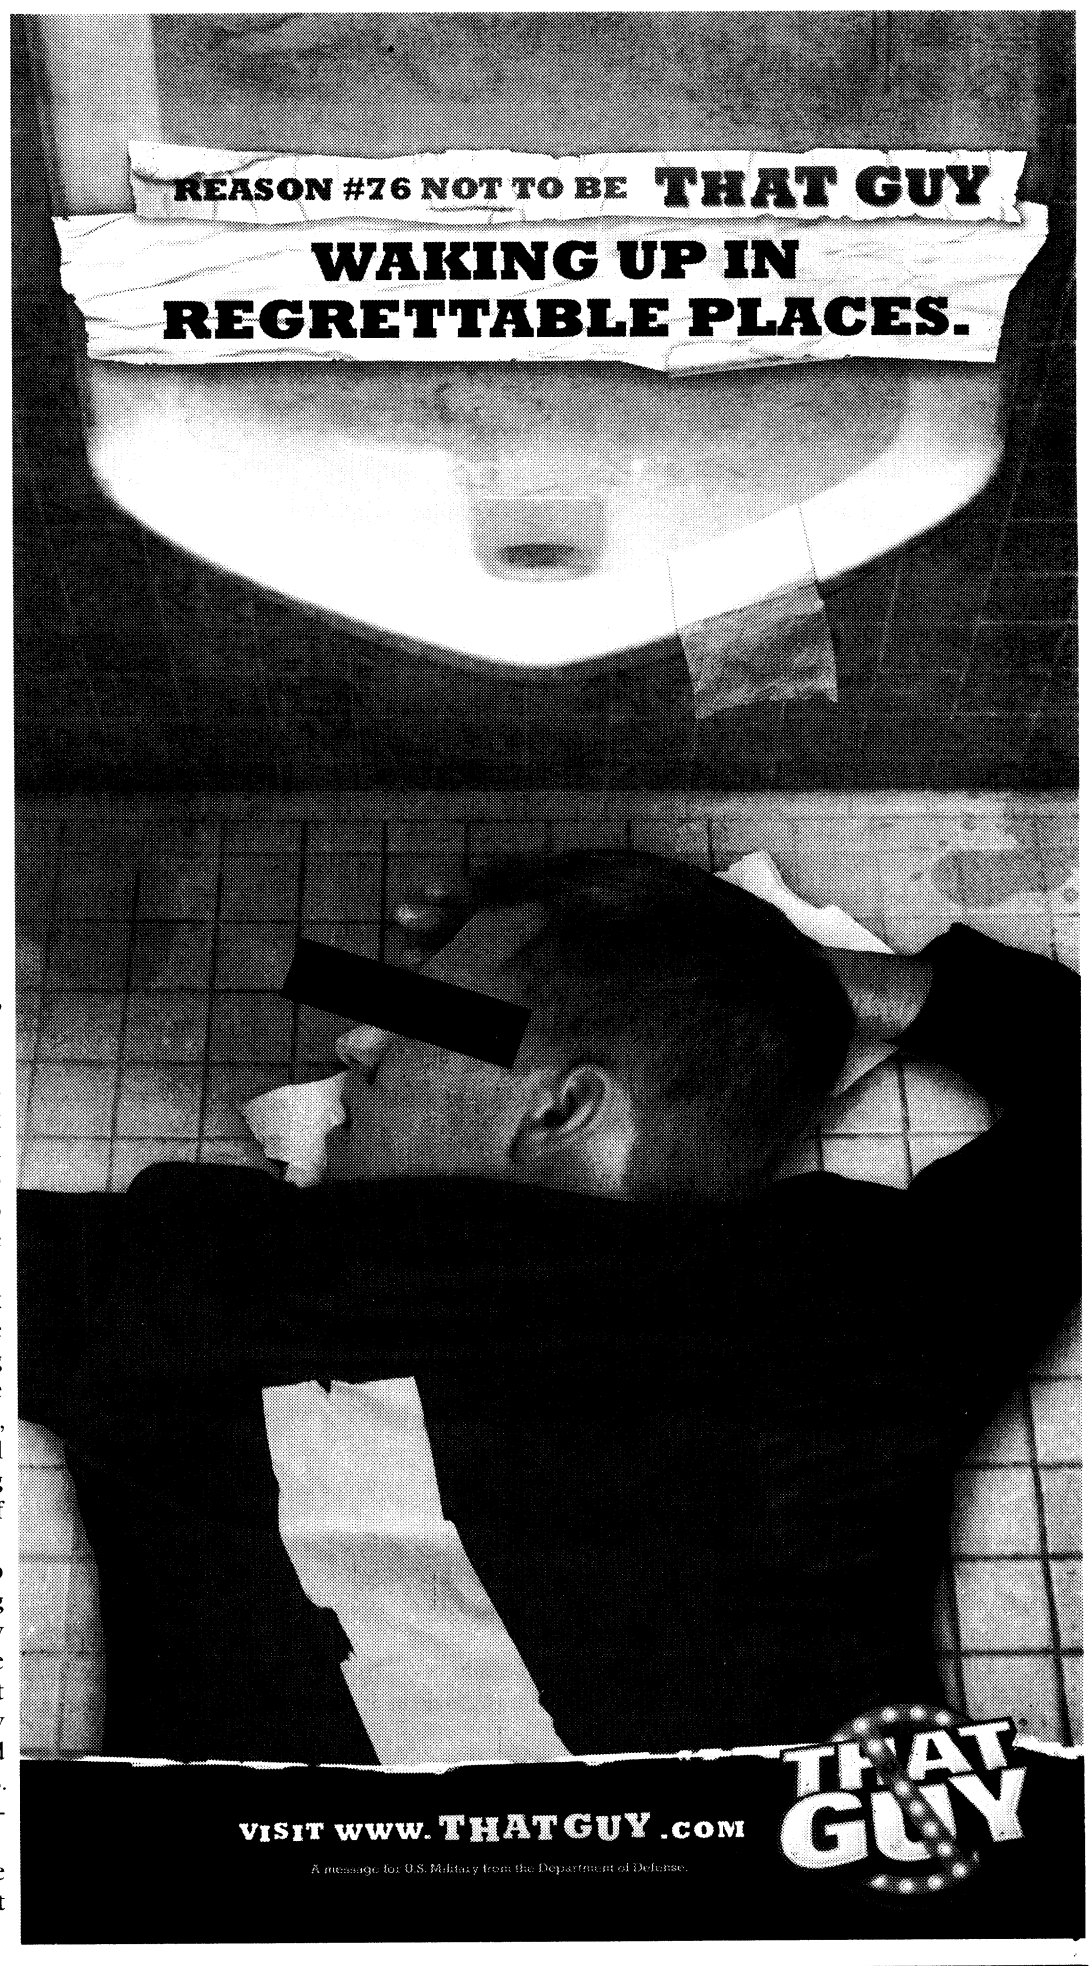
following redeployment are most dangerous for Soldiers, Snapp said, particularly those who plunk down their surplus combat pay on a new motorcycle. Often, these same Soldiers are coping with the kinds of issues typical of combat redeployment, including a trigger-hair reaction to loud noises or unexpected movements and a sense of invincibility.

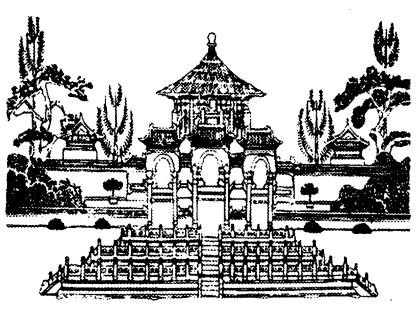
"They've just come through combat and their confidence is real high and the adrenaline is flowing," Snapp said. "They don't always fully understand what they've got their hands on when they get ahold of a motorcycle."

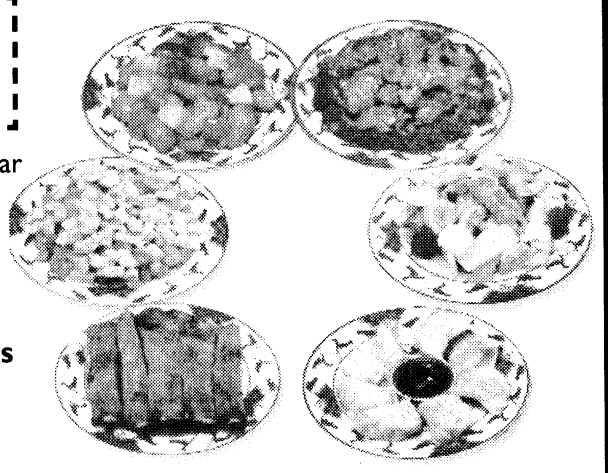
Riding a motorcycle may be considered risky behavior, but it's not necessarily a reckless behavior, said Snapp. A safe rider acknowledges the risks and mitigates them. The first step is the basic motorcycle safety certification course, a free two-day class typically offered monthly on post. Then he registers in a motorcycle mentorship, like the one required on Kelley Hill, which partners inexperienced riders with veteran riders who can observe and critique his skills on the road. Then, after a time, he should sign up for a refresher course.

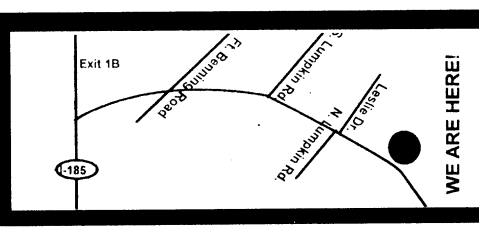
That's what Staff Sgt. Aurelio Carandang did. After his deployment to Iraq, the 2nd Battalion, 69th Infantry Regiment, Soldier said he needed to "knock off the rust" before climbing back on the Suzuki he bought in 2004.



"I spent 15 months in a humvee. That's a whole different ride than this," Carandang said Monday, as he waited his turn on the motorcycle "range" set up in the parking lot of Infantry Hall, where he and eight other 3rd HBCT Soldiers were taking the refresher course.

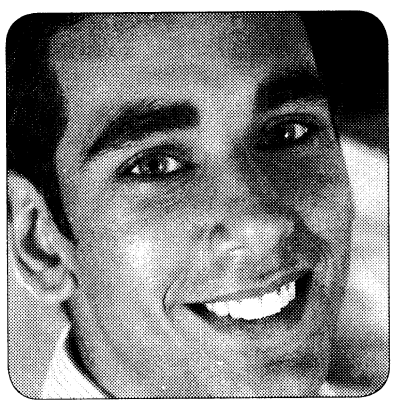






"Even guys who've been riding for years benefit from this," he said. "When you get back here and you're used to being over there, you might not react quick enough — or maybe too quick — when you hit the street. It's easy to have an accident. This gets you back on the bike and used to it again before you hit the street."

The 3rd ID's commander, Maj. Gen. Rick Lynch, ordered his redeploying Soldiers to take the basic course or a refresher before getting on a motorcycle. About 400 are enrolled in the class this month. To accommodate them all, the post Safety Office has brought in additional instructors and motorcycles, and they're running eight basic courses a week through the end of the month.



Snapp said others — Soldiers not assigned to the 3rd HBCT — have been frustrated at having to wait to take the class, which is filled to capacity with Kelley Hill Soldiers. He urged them to be patient. It's in everyone's best interest to get the returning Soldiers up to speed before they hit the street, he said. Next month, there should be plenty of room for Soldiers from other units. In the mean time, there is often room for walk-ins when 3rd HBCT Soldiers cancel.

To schedule a class or to inquire about space available, call the Fort Benning Safety Office at 706-545-4812.

Soldiers learn safety before becoming airborne

Rachel L. Watkins

Staff Sgt. Brian Hoy and Sgt. William Keene, instructors, demonstrate collisions and entanglements for students Friday at Eubanks field.

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

"Safety is our number one priority," said Staff Sgt. Nicholas Niday, instructor of A Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

More than 480 Soldiers attended a malfunctions class Friday at Eubanks Field, where they learned what to do if they have a problem while jumping from a plane.

A total of 18,000 Soldiers graduate Airborne School at Fort Benning each year. Before taking flight, each Soldier is required to take a malfunctions class.

The safety training instills a healthy fear into the Soldiers, Niday said.

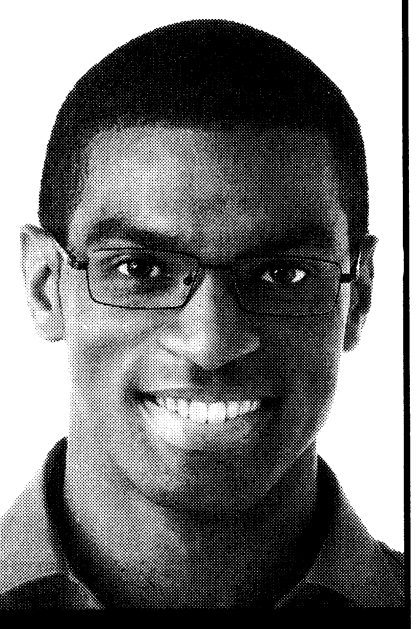
Soldiers learn what to do if lines are twisted, how to get away from another jumper and what patches are OK to have on a canopy.

After watching four 185- to 220-pound dummies, clothed in uniforms and boots, drop from the 250-foot jump tower, with complete and partial malfunctions, Soldiers watched instructors demonstrate how to deal with collisions, entanglements and other problems.

"The sky is unforgiving of even the slightest mistake," Niday told the Soldiers.

Throwing the dummies from the towers puts the seriousness of malfunctions into perspective for the Soldiers, said Sgt. 1st Class Clint Derenberger, master trainer.

Spc. Raquel Zepeda said she has heard stories about Soldiers injuring themselves while jumping, but she isn't worried.



"If something goes wrong in the sky, I am confident I will be able to react faster and resolve it because of this training," she said.

CONUS Replacement Center operates at full speed

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The CONUS Replacement Center has a threefold mission that brings nearly 800 individuals through their doors every week. Since the CRC at Fort Bliss, Texas, closed last summer, the CRC on Harmony Church has been busy, with a load more than double what they previously handled.

"The bulk of our mission is to receive, process and validate non-unit related personnel for deployment into the various theaters of operation," said Lt. Col. Donald Williams, CRC Battalion commander.

The personnel include all branches of the military, DoD Civilians and government contractors and several other agencies as diverse as the FBI, Red Cross and the Department of the Treasury, Williams said.

A new group of military personnel and civilians arrives every Saturday for inprocessing to one of 36 different locations around the world and leaves within a week.

> "They come with varying degrees of preparedness, but the good thing is we're a one-stop shop. You can come here having done nothing, and we'll get you out in seven days."
> — Lt. Col. Donald Williams

"They come with varying degrees of preparedness," Williams said, "but the good thing is we're a one-stop shop. You can come here having done nothing, and we'll get you out in seven days."

The maximum number the battalion can handle for inprocessing is 400 people, Williams said.

It provides medical testing, chaplain services, legal assistance and other administrative needs Monday and Tuesday. Wednesday is devoted to training, including rules of engagement and first aid. Thursday's tactical training is specific to military personnel.

A secondary aspect of the CRC mission is to outprocess personnel returning from theater — about 200 to 250 people a week. This group arrives and leaves at different times throughout the week.

The CRC is never closed for outprocessing, not for training holidays or even Christmas, because it's important to get these people home, Williams said.

"I feel like I'm in the military," said Kim Sauberan, with the Directorate of Family Morale, Welfare and Recreation at Fort Polk, La., who arrived at the CRC in March.

Sauberan said she feels less civilian eating in the dining facility and sleeping in barracks, but she appreciates the smoothness of the transition CRC offers.

"I think that they're very organized," she said. "I'm very happy with the process."

The third part of the CRC mission is training Reserve Soldiers and sometimes retirees who have been recalled.

Individual Ready Reserve recalls come to CRC for rapid training for two weeks to prepare for deployment, either to another unit or abroad, Williams said.

"It's a nonstop mission," he said. "We are never down. So it is a busy, busy place if you can imagine 600 people who all have individual needs, individual requirements, individual issues, individual problems — and that's what we do on a daily basis."

BENCH NOTES

Triple cool

In all my years of watching baseball, I've never seen anything like the unassisted triple play by Cleveland Indians' second baseman Asdrubal Cabrera pulled off Monday against the Toronto Blue Jays.

Cabrera dove to catch a line drive, touched second base then tagged Marco Scutaro to get the third out.

Way to go, Cabrera, except I still can't believe you tossed the ball into the stands. Maybe the fan who caught it could be persuaded to give it back if you grease their palm with a little cash.

Tiger ready to play

Tiger Woods hopes to play golf again in two weeks in the Memorial after having knee surgery to clean out cartilage April 15.

Woods has been out chipping and putting. Even if he doesn't make the Memorial, he should be ready to go for the U.S. Open, where I would say he has a pretty good chance of winning, even with recent knee surgery.

Busch on a roll

Kyle Busch won the Dodge Challenger 500 at Darlington Raceway Saturday night, garnering him his third win of the 11-race season. He also has seven top five finishes.

Although I strongly dislike his personality, he has proven himself as a driver at the young age of 23.

NASCAR heads into All-Star weekend at Lowe's Motor Speedway. The Nationwide North Carolina Education Lottery 200 will be at 7:30 p.m. today on the Speed Channel. The NASCAR Sprint Showdown begins at 7 p.m. Saturday, followed by the Sprint All-Star race at 9 p.m. Both are also on the Speed Channel.

Big Brown goes for big win

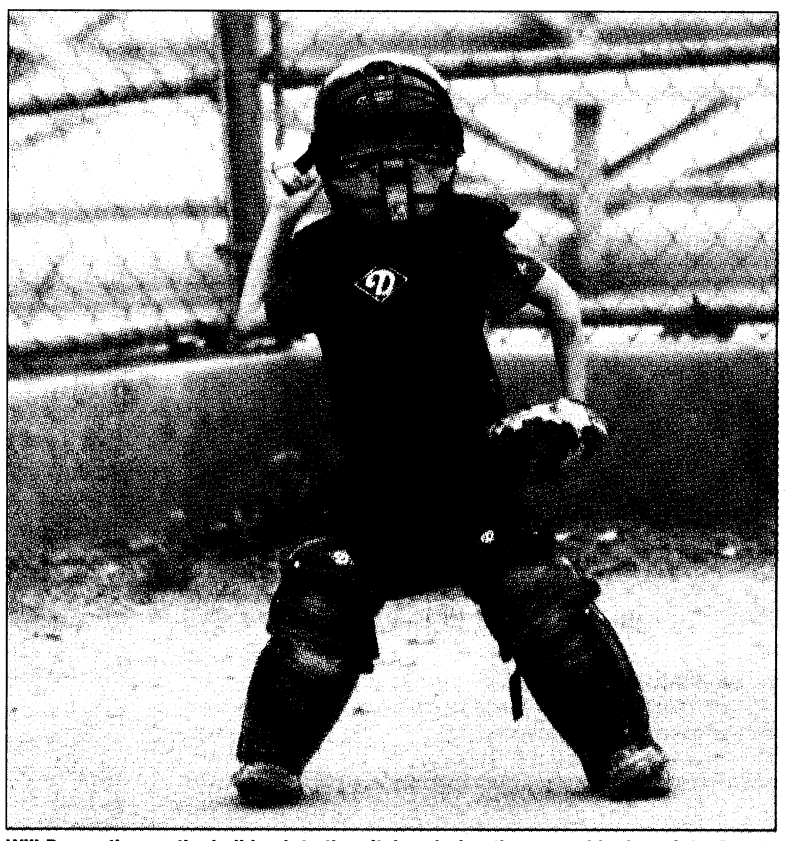
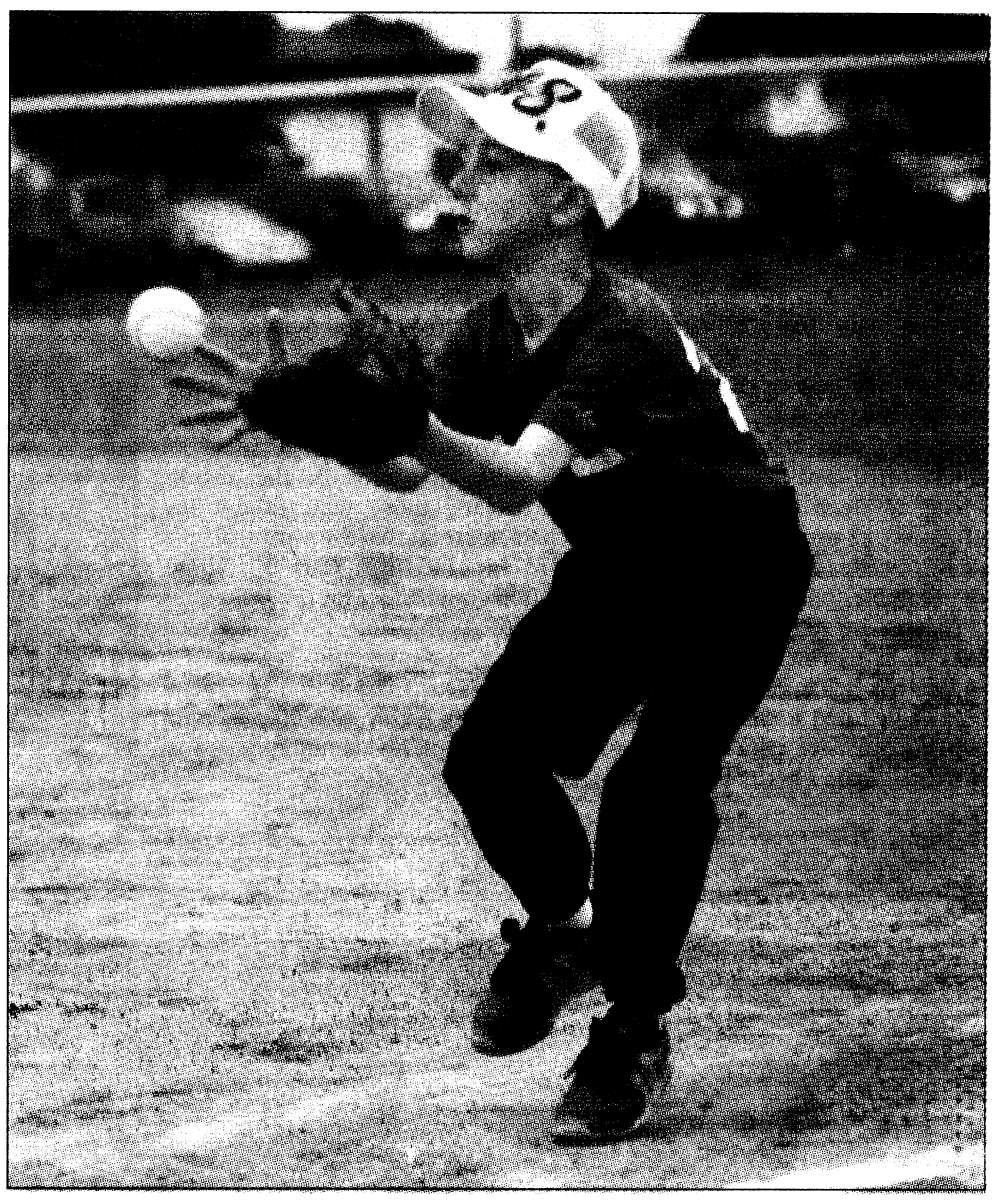
Coverage is at 5 p.m. Saturday on NBC. Hopefully this race goes smoothly, because I know the death of filly Eight Belles after the Derby shook up a lot of people.

It's about time!



Although I do love SportsCenter on ESPN, it's been taped the night before and re-aired the following morning since 1996.

Beginning Aug. 11, though, all that is set to change.



ESPN announced SportsCenter will be airing live from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Hannah Storm, a former CBS Early Show anchor, will join ESPN to host the 9 a.m. to noon block.

Dragons on fire

The Purple Dragons improved their record to 4-0 after winning their 6- to 8-year-old coach pitch game against the Green Bulldogs, 14-8, Tuesday on Main Post.

Both teams got off to a good start. In the second, the Bulldogs' Donald Smith blasted a shot deep into the outfield to score an in-the-park homerun.

But the Dragons got their game rolling in the fourth as several players brought in runs with solid hitting. Caleb Sager helped lead the team with a single, a double and a scored run.

"Just to see the smiles on these kids faces is what matters most," said Dragons' coach Ronnie Morgan.

"They're actually learning things and having fun. It's all about the kids out there."

For more information, call 706-545-3582.

Players from the Purple Dragons and the Green Bulldogs congratulate each other after the game.

Nineteen Army Marksmanship Unit Soldiers are competing for nine remaining spots on the Olympic shooting team during the 2008 U.S. Olympic Shooting Team Trial Finals, hosted by USA Shooting. Sgt. 1st Class Jason Parker, an AMU Soldier who has already qualified for the Beijing Olympics in Men's Air Rifle, is looking to fill the prone rifle and three position rifle spot. Parker shot a personal best during the first day of men's prone scoring 597 out of 600 points.

The 75th Ranger Regiment continued their undefeated streak, shutting out 14th Combat Support Hospital, 5-0, in the first round of the intramural soccer playoffs Monday at Doughboy Stadium.

Early in the first half, both teams played assertively. The Rangers' Jason Hite found an opening to score the first goal of the game in the corner of the net.

14th CSH was unable to mount an offensive attack against the disciplined defense that carried the Rangers all season. 14th CSH's George Josiah fought hard for openings in the midfield but was unable to get off shots at the goal when the Rangers double-teamed him.

Chattco junior nominated for Army All-American

THE BAYONET

Cedric Wilson, a junior at Chattahoochee County High School, was presented a nomination letter by Army recruiters Friday at the school's media center for the 2009 U.S. Army All-American Bowl.

Wilson and Carver High School's Jarvis Jones were the only two local players nominated.

The field of 400 nominees will be cut to 78 players. The game will be nationally televised.

Wilson, who plays tailback and linebacker, will enter his senior year with only two seasons of high school football under his belt.

At 6 feet and 2 inches and 205 pounds, he amassed 736 yards rushing, averaged 13 yards per carry and scored 12 touchdowns. He also had 87 tackles, five sacks and two forced fumbles on defense.

"There is no difference in him on Friday night than on the practice field, and that has made a huge difference in his game," said Richard McCorkle, Chattco's offensive coordinator. "He works hard to be a better player every day."

Wilson has received offers from numerous NCAA Division I universities, including Clemson and Georgia Tech.

Wilson said he believes being humble is the key to his success. As a member of the school's second graduating class, he said he is more concerned about the development of the younger players.

Chattco's head coach Josh Kemp said Wilson's maturity has helped him remain grounded.

"Cedric has really grown up over the past year," Kemp said.

"The Army is honored to recognize the accomplishments of high school students anywhere in the nation, particularly those who exhibit the character traits that the Army teaches," said Sgt. 1st Class Gary T. White, station commander for the Columbus East recruiting office, who attended the presentation.

comfortable lead," said Rangers' Ryan Cengeri.

But the Ranger's didn't let up in the second half. They came out attacking early on offense and scored again off the fingertips of 14th CSH's goalie.

14th CSH, who never found a rhythm on offense, played lethargic defense throughout the second. With two minutes to go in the game, the Rangers scored their final point to seal the game.

"We have a lot of players who aren't too experienced, so we're out here to have some fun and get in extra PT," said 14th CSH's John Lawhorn. "But we've improved throughout the season, so it shows we gave our best."

Parents behaving badly spoil fun for children

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Erin A. Nash

I shouldn't be writing this. I shouldn't have to be writing this. But I am, because after only three games into the youth baseball season, I have seen behavior that has shocked me. The most shocking part is that its coming from the parents, not the children.

It started not even an hour into the first game of the season. A mom, upset her child wasn't a starter, yanked her daughter out of the dugout in the middle of the game and left. Had she stuck around, she would have gone into the game the very next inning.

I've never seen anything like that in my life. After the shock wore off, I started thinking about what sort of lesson her daughter took away that day. Because this mother couldn't control her emotions, she robbed her daughter of the chance to learn the art of sportsmanship and how to be a team player. She also taught her that if you don't get your way, just quit.

At a game recently, at the end of five innings and regulation time, the score was tied. A spectator started arguing with the umpire that he had the score wrong, that her team had won. She continued to argue for several minutes, loudly enough for everyone to hear, including the bewildered children on the field and in the dugout. Instead of quietly getting up to ask the coach what he had for a score, she embarrassed herself and the coach by arguing with the umpire. She finally did go and check with the coach, and from that point on, remained quiet. Go figure.

The game went into extra innings. I'm pretty sure my jaw dropped to the ground when I heard people yelling, "Swing!" to the child at bat after the pitcher released the ball. Mind you, these are 9-to-11-year-old children, not college players or major leaguers. What in the world would possess an adult to act like that? I'm embarrassed for them, that they would do that to a child who is there to play baseball and have fun.

Sports involve competition, obviously. I would rather have my son's team lose with class than win because of adults who act younger than their children, though. I tell my son before every game, it doesn't matter whether you win or lose, as long as you had fun. Nobody wants to lose, but it's a part of life that everyone has to learn at some point.

I was perusing Sports Illustrated Kids and came across an interview with Boston Red Sox player David Ortiz. I called my son over to read it. Ortiz said that his biggest fans are kids, and the advice he gave to kids who play baseball was, "Try to have fun. That's what I try to do. Even when things are not going well, I try to hang tight and (remember) that what I'm doing for a living is what I like doing, for me, for my family and for the fans."

I like to think I'm teaching my child life lessons through baseball. But through the actions of others, he's also seeing the ugly side of life. I'm not trying to shelter him, because he is very aware of many of some of the more unattractive sides of life. I'm trying to teach him good sportsmanship, which should be the point of every youth sports program. Unfortunately, it seems that there is always someone spoiling it. I hope, for the sake of their own children, these adults finally grow up and set a good example.

USAMU marksmen bring home major wins

U.S. ARMY MARKSMANSHIP UNIT

Soldiers of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit have scored some major victories recently. The following results are some of their accomplishments:

• International Shooting Sport Federation World Cup, Kerrville, Texas, May 7 — Spc. Jeffrey G. Holguin brought home the Bronze Medal in Double Trap from the World Cup USA.

• National Rifle Association Indoor National Pistol Championships, Fort Benning, May 7 — The USAMU Service Pistol Team won the 2008 NRA Indoor National Pistol Team Championship. Staff Sgt. James M. Henderson took second place overall, and Staff Sgt. Robert S. Park II placed third.

• Big Ed's Memorial Rifle Competition, Oak Ridge, Tenn., May 2 to 5 — Service rifle shooter Sgt. Brandon K. Green won the overall individual championship, and Sgt. 1st Class Lance D. Dement won the President's Match. The USAMU Service Rifle Team won the team match; team members were Green, Dement, Sgt. 1st Class Grant L. Singley and Spc. Tyrel L. Cooper.

• Pensacola Regional Conventional Pistol Championship, Pensacola, Fla., May 3 to 4 — Henderson won the individual championship with a score of 2,668 points out of a possible 2,700; Sgt. 1st Class Eric G. Daniels finished in second place with 2,655. Henderson also won the Center Fire aggregate, followed by Sgt. 1st Class Gregory S. Wilson in second and Daniels in third. Henderson took the .45-Caliber aggregate with Staff Sgt. Adam E. Sokolowski taking second and Sgt. Michael S. Gasser third. Daniels won the .22-Caliber Match, in which Henderson was third.

The USAMU Service Pistol Team won all the team matches with a team aggregate score of 3,531 points out of 3,600, which was the highest score posted by an Army Team in more than 30 years.

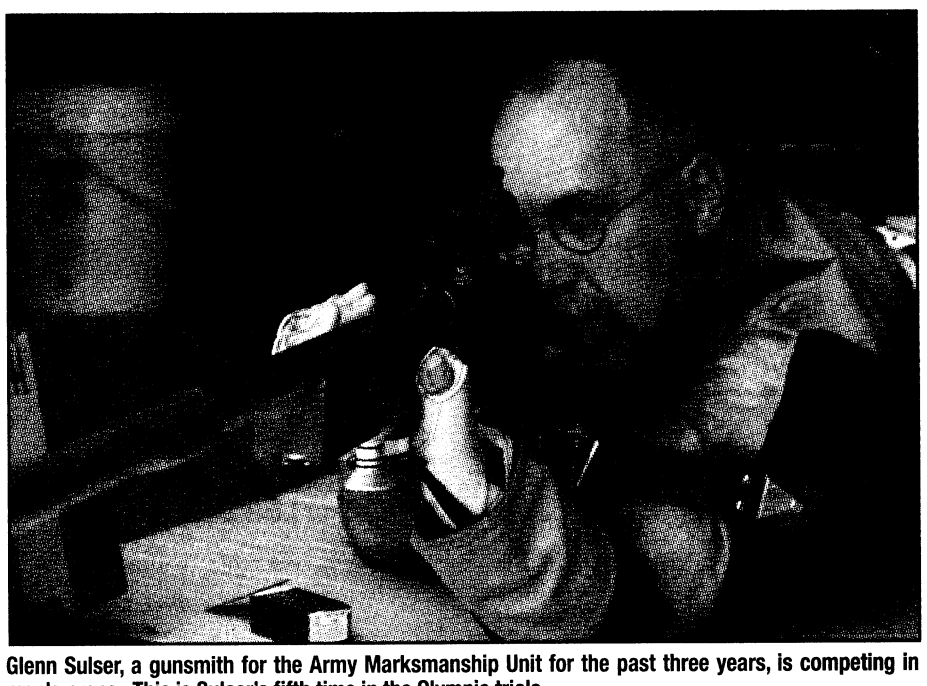
feeling when it all comes together," said Parker, who will compete in his third Olympics this year. He said experience helps him better prepare for the competition.

"You know what to expect from yourself, you know what to expect from the competition, and I think you handle the pressure a bit better," Parker said.

Parker, who won gold in the 2007 Pan American Games and the World Championship in 2002, missed the podium at the 2004 games by two places.



"I think my odds of winning are pretty good this year," he said. "If I didn't think I could win it, I wouldn't show up. Every time I pick up the gun, I learn something new."

Parker will begin his quest for the three position spot Monday.

Shooters are competing in six pistol and smallbore rifle categories — men's 50-meter free pistol, women's 25-meter sport pistol, men's 25-meter rapid fire pistol, Men's 50-meter rifle prone and men's and women's 50-meter rifle three position. They compete in three days of preliminary rounds, followed by a final on each day. Their total score for all three days and their best two final scores will be tabulated to determine the winners.

Jace Vures, a shooter new to world-class competition, is hoping the trials will help him in future competitions.

"This is more of an experience match for me," said Vures, who is competing in his first Olympic trial. "I'm really not at the level to beat a lot of these guys, but the goal is to keep getting better."

Glenn Sulser, a gunsmith for the Army Marksmanship Unit for the past three years, is competing in men's prone. This is Sulser's fifth time in the Olympic trials.

"The guy on the street has no idea what it takes to get to this level," he said. "When the average person says 'good job,' that's great, but when one of these Olympians say it, it makes all the difference."

This is Sulser's fifth time competing in the Olympic trials. He has been shooting rifle for 30 years and said being around the best shooters in the world has helped him become a better competitor.

"When you have a world champion and Olympic medalist or a world record holder watching you, you don't want to look bad, so you try that much harder," he said.

The trials will continue at 8 a.m. Monday, beginning with women's rifle three position and men's rapid-fire pistol. Awards ceremonies are held after the last final of each event.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

If you read last week's article, then you know I started discussing heart health and what you can do to get your ticker healthy. If you didn't read it— shame on you. Go get a paper from last week and read it.

I mentioned the three things you can do to reduce your risk of heart disease, heart attack and stroke, including avoiding tobacco, being more active and choosing good nutrition. I talked at length last week about tobacco and smoking.

This week, I want to talk about one of my favorite subjects — being more active. Below, I am going to tell you why it's so important and how you can do it.

According to the latest joint American Heart Association and American College of Sports Medicine guidelines on physical activity, all healthy adults, ages 18 to 65, should get at least 30 minutes of physical activity five or more days a week. This has been shown to help lower blood pressure, lower cholesterol and keep weight at a healthy level.

People 65 and older or people 50 to 64 with chronic conditions or physical functional limitations that affect movement ability or physical fitness should check with their physicians to find out the best guidelines for them.

Overall, being active can reduce stress, boost energy levels and improve circulation. If you remember, all the things I mentioned above are risk factors that you can control in the fight against cardiovascular disease. Please remember one thing: if you do have any of the risk factors, see a doctor before beginning any type of exercise routine.

Now, let's talk about how to be more active. Getting 30 minutes of physical activity daily is not as hard as it seems. Here are just a few examples of how to be active in your daily life, including at home, at the office and at play.

Home — You can work in the garden; walk before breakfast, walk after dinner or both and try walking a route that incorporates some hills; and do some housework.

At the office — Take the stairs; walk down the hall to talk to someone rather than e-mail; schedule exercise time on your calendar and make it an appointment that is important as any other on your calendar; and walk during lunch, even if it's around the building.

At play — Canoe with the family; practice soccer with your kids; walk the dog to the park and play on the monkey bars; and try different activities weekly like swimming or biking.

The important thing to remember here is that being more active throughout your day adds up and leads to a healthier heart. No one said the 30 minutes had to be on a treadmill at a fitness center. Just get moving.

Now, I want to discuss a few tips to keep you successful.

Choose activities that are fun, not exhausting. Add variety and that way, exercise never seems boring.

Wear comfortable clothes and shoes. If you're not comfortable, you won't want to work out.

Surround yourself with supportive people. Having someone to hold you accountable helps keep you motivated. My best piece of advice is don't overdo it. Start out slow and increase the moderation as you become more fit. Last, reward yourself at special milestones.

Nothing motivates you like success.

Mechanics won't take responsibility after right wheel falls off driver's pickup truck

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE
Tom and Ray Magliozzi

Dear Tom and Ray:

I had my tires rotated in Las Vegas. One week and 926 miles later, the right rear wheel fell off while I was in Northern California. The Dodge dealership where my Ram 1500 was taken told me that the most likely cause was that the mechanics in Vegas did not adequately tighten the lug nuts when they rotated the tires. But the shop that rotated the tires won't accept responsibility.

They claim that if it was something they had done or failed to do, the wheel would have come off immediately, and I couldn't have gone for a week — and definitely not for 926 miles.

Is one week and 926 miles a reasonable time and distance to travel before the wheel would come off if the lug nuts had not been adequately tightened? Who do you think is to blame?

— Phillip

TOM: If they had forgotten to put the lug nuts back on entirely, then, yes, the wheel would have fallen off much sooner. But if they just didn't tighten the lug nuts enough, the vehicle could go 900 miles before a wheel fell off.

RAY: I'll tell you exactly how it happened. How do I know? Because I've done it. All shops use a pneumatic wrench to tighten lug nuts. And they all have torque adjustments on them. So, you can dial up or dial down the amount of torque (twisting power) on the wrench, depending on what kind of job you're doing.

TOM: If someone turns the torque all the way down, it would be obvious to the mechanic that something was wrong, because the wheel nuts wouldn't tighten at all. But if the torque was turned down just part of the way, for instance, to tighten a chassis bolt, the guy putting on the lug nuts might not notice that. And if he didn't think to check the torque setting, your lug nuts wouldn't go on tightly enough.

RAY: Then the wheel starts to wobble very slightly, and that wobbling loosens the nuts a little more, which makes the wobble a little more serious, which further loosens the nuts.

TOM: I'd say there's a 99 percent certainty that this is what happened. And if I were you, I'd get a letter of opinion from the California dealership, and take it, along with this column, and give the guys at the Vegas shop one more chance to pay for the damage and any expenses you incurred because of it.

Remind them that they're lucky nobody was injured. Also remind them that they have insurance for exactly this sort of mistake. All legitimate shops have what we like to call "bonehead" insurance.

RAY: And if they refuse to pay up, sue them. Get a few more corroborating opinions from honest mechanics, take this to small-claims court, and you'd win hands down. Good luck, Phillip. Don't let them get away with stonewalling you.

Ben Sellers, 8, waits to catch a fish at the annual fishing rodeo Saturday. He was one of 30 children who came to the rodeo to see how many fish he could catch in three hours.

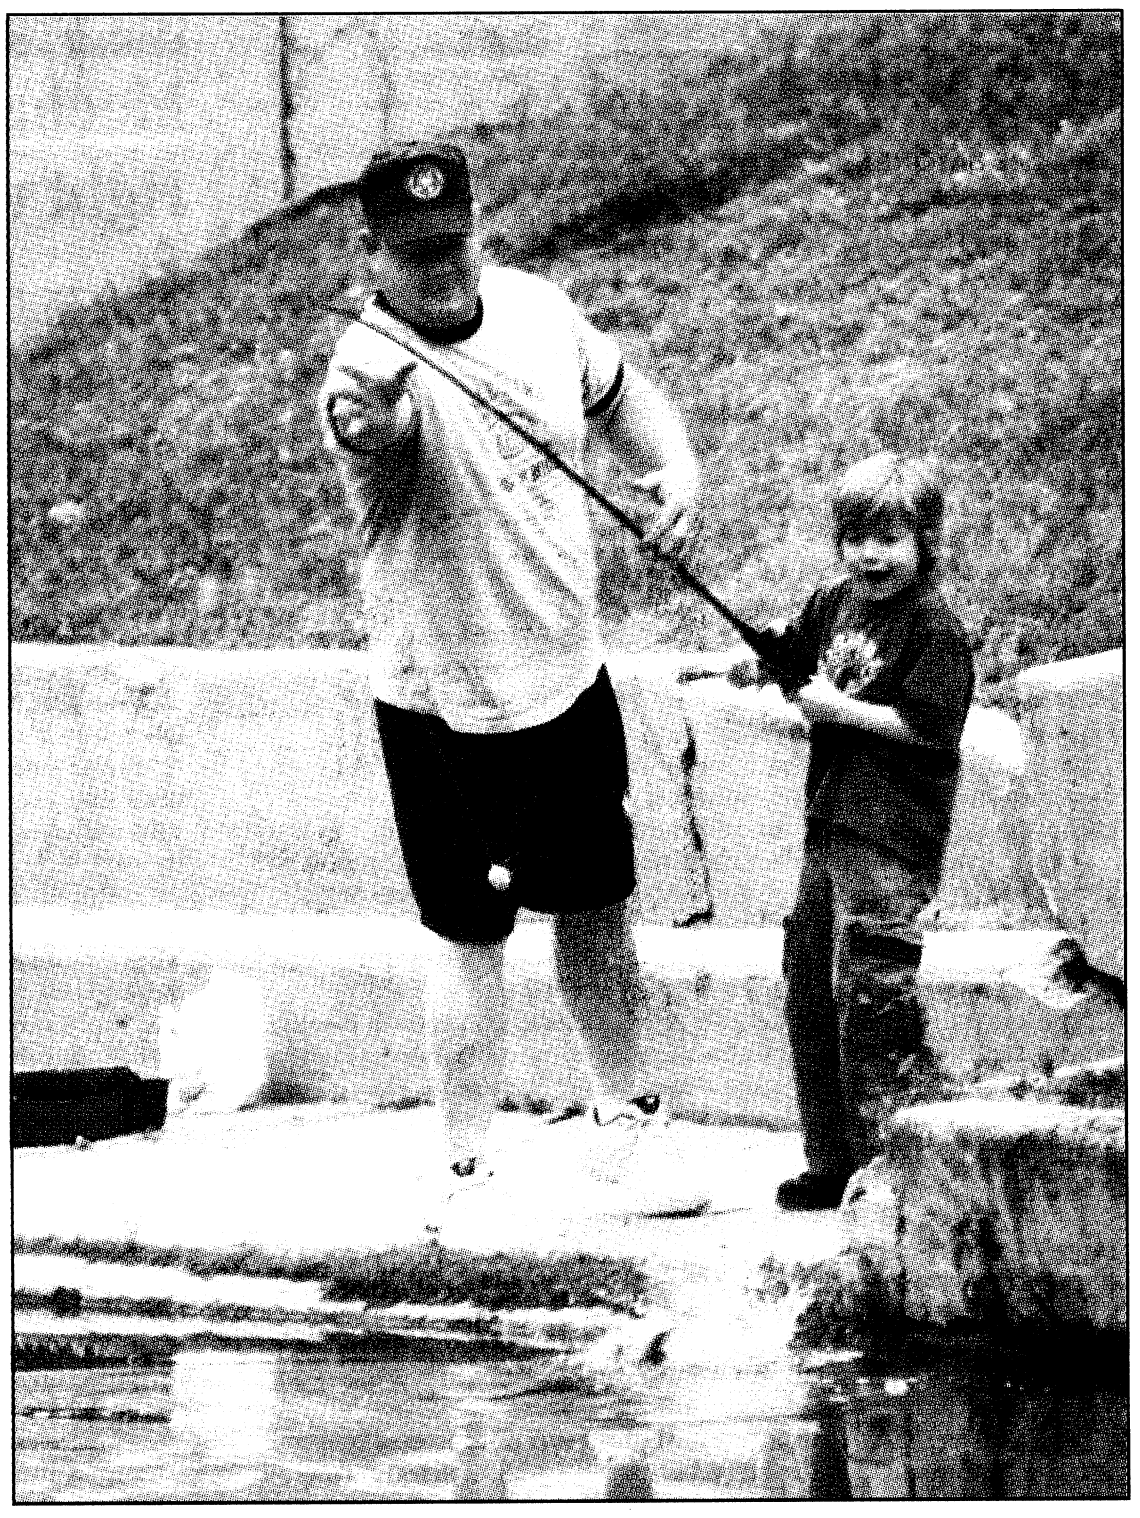
"I think this is the most fish I have ever caught in my whole life," said Benjamin Johnson, 7, who caught 19 fish at the annual Fishing Rodeo Saturday at Russ Pool. Thirty children, ages 4 to 14, cast their lines to see how many fish they could catch in three hours.

"See son, patience is the key," said Col. Terry Sellers, after his son, Ben, 8, caught a 3-pound catfish.

Dan Huell III, 12, and his brother Derek, 7, were sharpening their skills so they can fish with their dad, Command Sgt. Maj. Dan Huell Jr., when he comes home from a deployment with the 3rd Brigade, 1st Cavalry Division. Fishing is a family tradition, they said.

There were several first time fishers too.



"Ahhh!" said Rylee Garmer, 4, after Darrell Sullivan of the Benning Bass Club held up a catfish she caught. She said she was scared of the catfish because of the whiskers.

"See son, patience is the key," said Col. Terry Sellers, to his son, Ben, who caught a 3-pound catfish.

A total of 2,000 fish were released in Russ Pool in the fall for the rodeo, said Pete Swiderek, Conservation Branch chief of Fort Benning's Environmental Management Division, Directorate of Public Works.

First, second and third place prizes, fishing poles and tackle boxes, were awarded to the children with the most fish.

Benjamin Johnson, 7, reels in a fish as his dad, Staff Sgt. Jimmy Johnson, helps him. Benjamin caught a total of 19 fish at the rodeo. "I think this is the most fish I have ever caught in my whole life," he said.

MPs lock up 30th AG twice

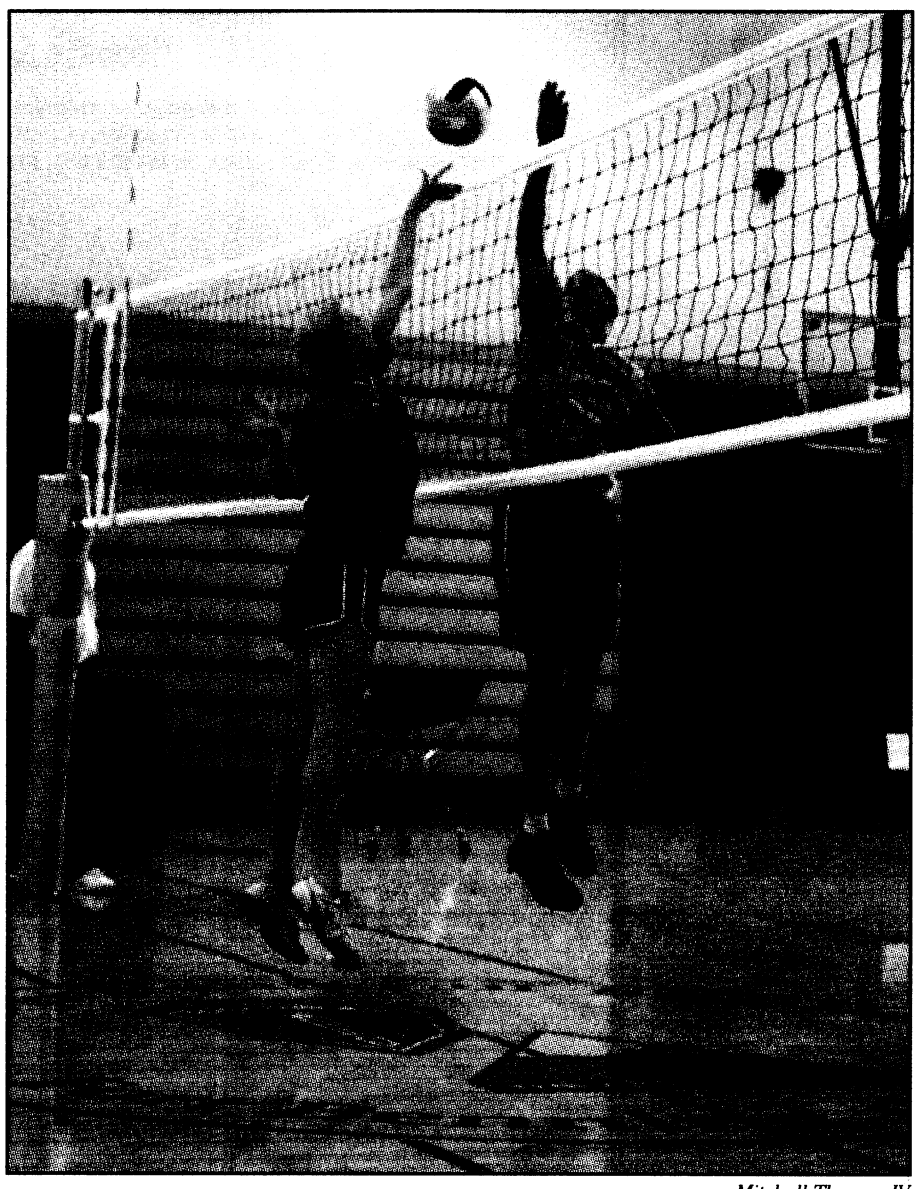
THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

The 988th Military Police Company made a huge comeback to knock off 30th Adjutant General in two straight games during the first round of the intramural volleyball playoffs Monday at Smith Fitness Center.

Early in the first game, 30th AG's Stephanie Zavala delivered two unreturned serves to help give the team a 5-4 lead.

The team's captain Marie Matavao dove to make digs and set up players at the net. Within minutes, 30th AG held a 17-10 lead.

But the MPs weren't done. They went on an 11-3 run, cutting 30th AG's lead down to four points. The MP's Jim Imhoff attacked the net making two consecutive kills, which tied the game for the first time at 23-23.



After adding one point to take a 24-23 lead, 30th AG blew their first game point opportunity. The MPs took a 25-24 lead, then scored the game-winning point when Zavala missed a ball hit in her direction.

After an 8-0 start by the MPs, 30th AG regained composure and scored their first point.

But soon after, the MPs took control and took a 24-4 lead. The MPs finished the game with a point off a return error from 30th AG.

"After we let the first game go, we never got over it," Matavao said. "The second game was all about attitude, and we didn't stay up and keep going. We beat ourselves tonight."

Mitchell Thomas IV

The 75th Ranger Regiment defeated the MPs in Tuesday's semifinal to earn a championship bid against CONUS Replacement Course.

Attire should meet military standard

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

As the weather gets warmer and people don T-shirts, baseball caps and swimsuits, attire worn in public places on post must be appropriate, post officials said.

Steven Martin, PX store manager, said people should wear clothing consistent with Army values that is respectful of those around them.

"It should be in good taste," he said. "We're on a military installation, and we have to keep up those standards of the military by not showing anything in a disrespectful manner."

Store visitors can wear spaghetti strap shirts and flip-flops, but shower caps or hair curlers should not be worn in the PX or any other public area.

Guidelines that regulate dress code on post are there to benefit families and Soldiers, said Lt. Col. Karen Carlisle, Fort Benning's deputy staff judge advocate.

U.S. Army Infantry Center Regulation 600-5 governs what Soldiers, retirees, Department of the Army Civilians, family members and their guests can wear. It stipulates that people must wear shoes and shirts when in public places like the PX or commissary, and that their apparel, including hats, must not display profane or vulgar language or images.

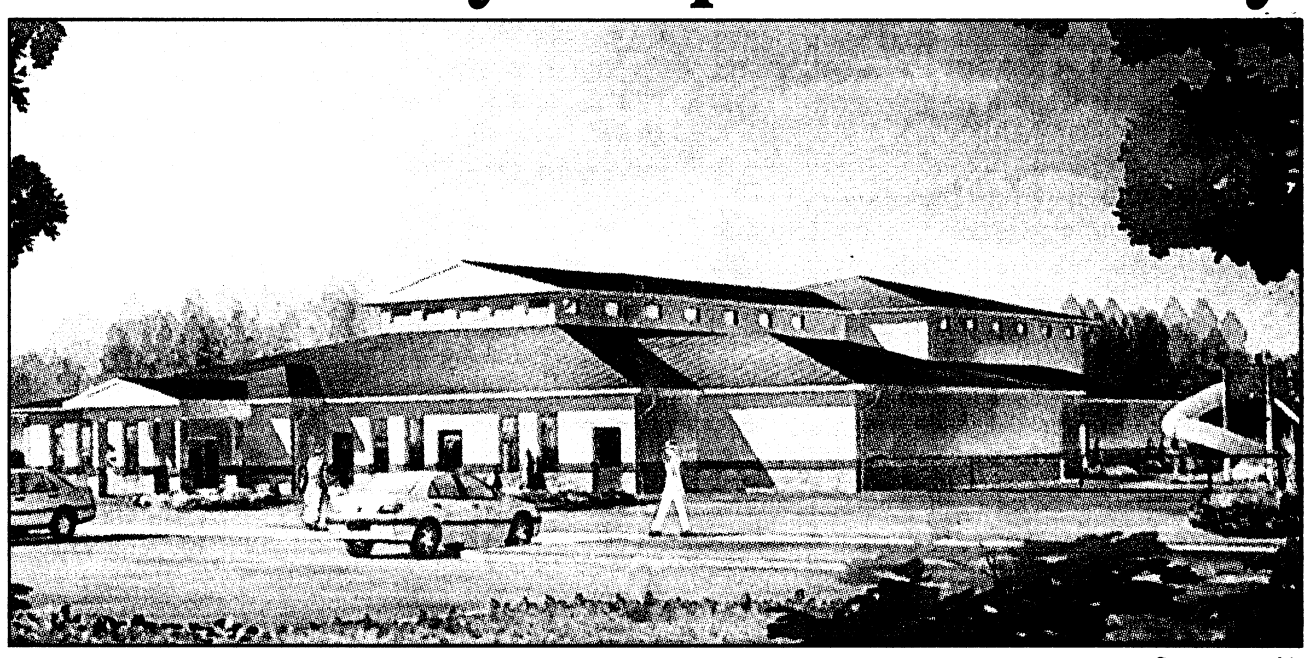
Carlisle said people should follow common sense when considering what to wear around post. A decent sweat suit is fine but a bathing suit is not. Knee holes in jeans "for style" are OK, but holes and ripping up and down the side and seat of the pants aren't.

The rules protect people with diverse values, but some of them, like the requirement for footwear, are also consistent with health and safety standards, Carlisle said.

If a complaint is issued about someone's attire, Military Police or the garrison commander will investigate the situation.

"The question is, would it offend a reasonable person's sense of dignity?" she said. "I have children, and I don't necessarily want them to read profane language on someone's T-shirt or be afraid of someone. These rules have been enacted for the benefit of all."

For more information about these or other guidelines, call the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate at 706-545-4611.



$6.7 M child care facility to open in January

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

A new $6.7 million child care facility will meet the demands of families moving to Fort Benning because of the 2005 Base Realignment and Closure Commission recommendations.

Construction began on the facility April 25 and is expected to be completed in January, said Felicia A. McCord, School Age Services coordinator. It will be located on Yeager Street adjacent to the Main Post Child Development Center.

Child care will be provided for 195 children in kindergarten through fifth grade, serving military families, retirees and civilians in a central location, McCord said. There will be multipurpose activity rooms; a demonstration and teaching kitchen for a cooking club; computer lab; homework lab; performing arts room; and an art and science activity room.

Staff Sgt. Jorge and Nicole Sanchez show some of the fresh produce they have grown in their backyard vegetable garden. Their 19-month-old son Adrien sometimes helps in the backyard with his own set of gardening tools.

Gardening: 'It's good for your soul'

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

In Staff Sgt. Jorge and Nicole Sanchez's backyard in Pine Mountain, Ga., thyme, swiss chard, parsley and peppers thrive.

For both Jorge and Nicole, a love of gardening has been passed down through the generations.

"My great grandmom had a big garden in Nicaragua," Jorge said. "She had papaya trees, mango trees, all kinds of fruit. Ever since I was a kid, I was going up the trees, getting (fruit). I always liked that. Her garden was the most beautiful garden I had ever seen."

Nicole, who grew up in Virginia, was more accustomed to carrots and tomatoes. Her grandfather tended the garden.

"Even when I was little, I was following him around trying to learn it," she said.

Now, the Sanchezes have two greenhouses in their yard and a wide variety of plants. Their 19-month-old son Adrien is already beginning to show a green thumb.

"He's really taken to it," Nicole said. "Before he could walk last year, he would pick cherry tomatoes right off of the tomato plant and eat them. I dry tomatoes, and he eats them like candy."

Nicole tended the garden, with Adrien at her side, for 13 months while Jorge was deployed with the 3rd Heavy

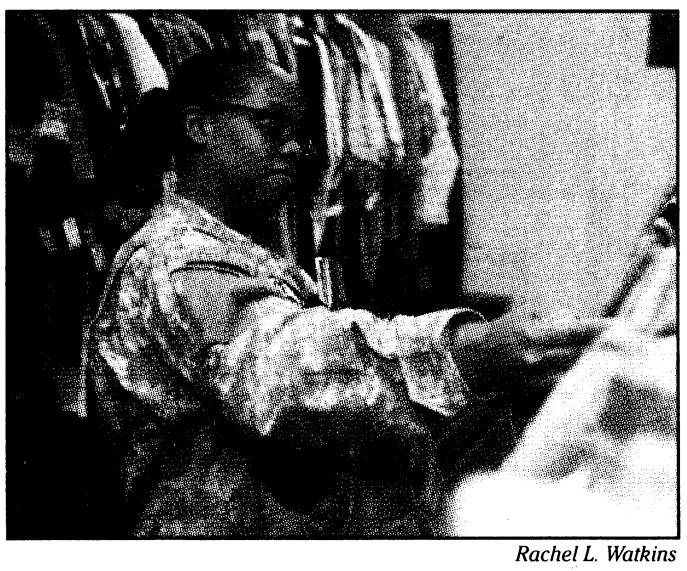
Rangers assist Chattco with first baccalaureate

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

Ranger Training Brigade Soldiers helped Chattahoochee County High School host its first baccalaureate in nearly 40 years Sunday at Fort Benning's Follow Me Chapel.

The school burned down in 1969 and wasn't replaced until 2005. Students who would have attended the Cusseta, Ga., school went to other high schools. The first senior class of 67 students will graduate Saturday in the school stadium.

Many of the students have parents who work and live on Fort Benning. Because of the numbers expected for the baccalaureate, officials asked to use the post chapel, since none of the Cusseta-area churches was large enough, said Capt. Jeff Preston of the RTB. The baccalaureate speaker was RTB Chaplain (Maj.) Harold Cline.



Through the Partners in Education Program, RTB staff has assisted Chattco faculty and students since August, said Preston, a platoon tactical trainer.

Dr. Jimmy Martin, principal and superintendent, said the brigade has provided personnel, facilities and advice, and the first graduation and baccalaureate are the culmination of their help.

"This is an accomplishment for the community; it brought the high school back to the community," he said.

RTB staff spent a lot of time assisting the faculty, who don't have a lot of experience planning graduations or baccalaureates, said Christy Wiggins, literature teacher and senior student sponsor. She said their help was invaluable.

"They have helped us organize ... and think about logistics," she said. "They care, and the kids look up to them ... and I feel blessed that we have had their help."

Spc. Shawana Paige looks at children's clothes at the Thrift Shop Tuesday. "I like the thrift shop because they have good prices and I don't have to drive far to get here," she said.

Never mind the mess, the Thrift Shop is open

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

It's still there. Behind the construction mess in the parking lot, the Thrift Shop is still open for business three days a week.

The consignment shop, at the corner of Ingersoll Street and Dixie Road, is open to the public and offers furniture, clothing, sporting equipment, electronics, linens, artwork and more. Proceeds benefit the Officers' Spouses' Club funding for scholarships and welfare projects.

"I like the Thrift Shop because they have good prices and I don't have to drive far to get here," said Spc. Shawana Paige, who shopped on her lunch break Tuesday.

Melissa Rexroad, the shop manager, said construction on a child care center in the parking lot adjacent to the shop has left some people wondering if the Thrift Shop is closed.

"We want everyone to know we are still open for business," she said.

Some of the items at the shop are donated and others are consigned. When PCSing, families can schedule an appointment to consign up to 100 items. Service members can sell up to 14 items a day in the thrift shop.

Consignment hours are 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. The shop is open from 10 p.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday.

Eye on Excellence

• Luke Wagner, son of Doug Wagner, an air traffic controller at Lawson Army Airfield, and Julie Wagner, marketing manager for AAFES, was nominated for the Ledger-Enquirer and CB&T sponsored Page One Scholarship for citizenship.

Luke founded the Green Club at Shaw High School during his senior year to promote awareness about environmental issues. Through Luke's effort, the club has branched out to four other area schools. After bringing a recycling program to his school, Luke won an award from Keep Columbus Beautiful for litter prevention.

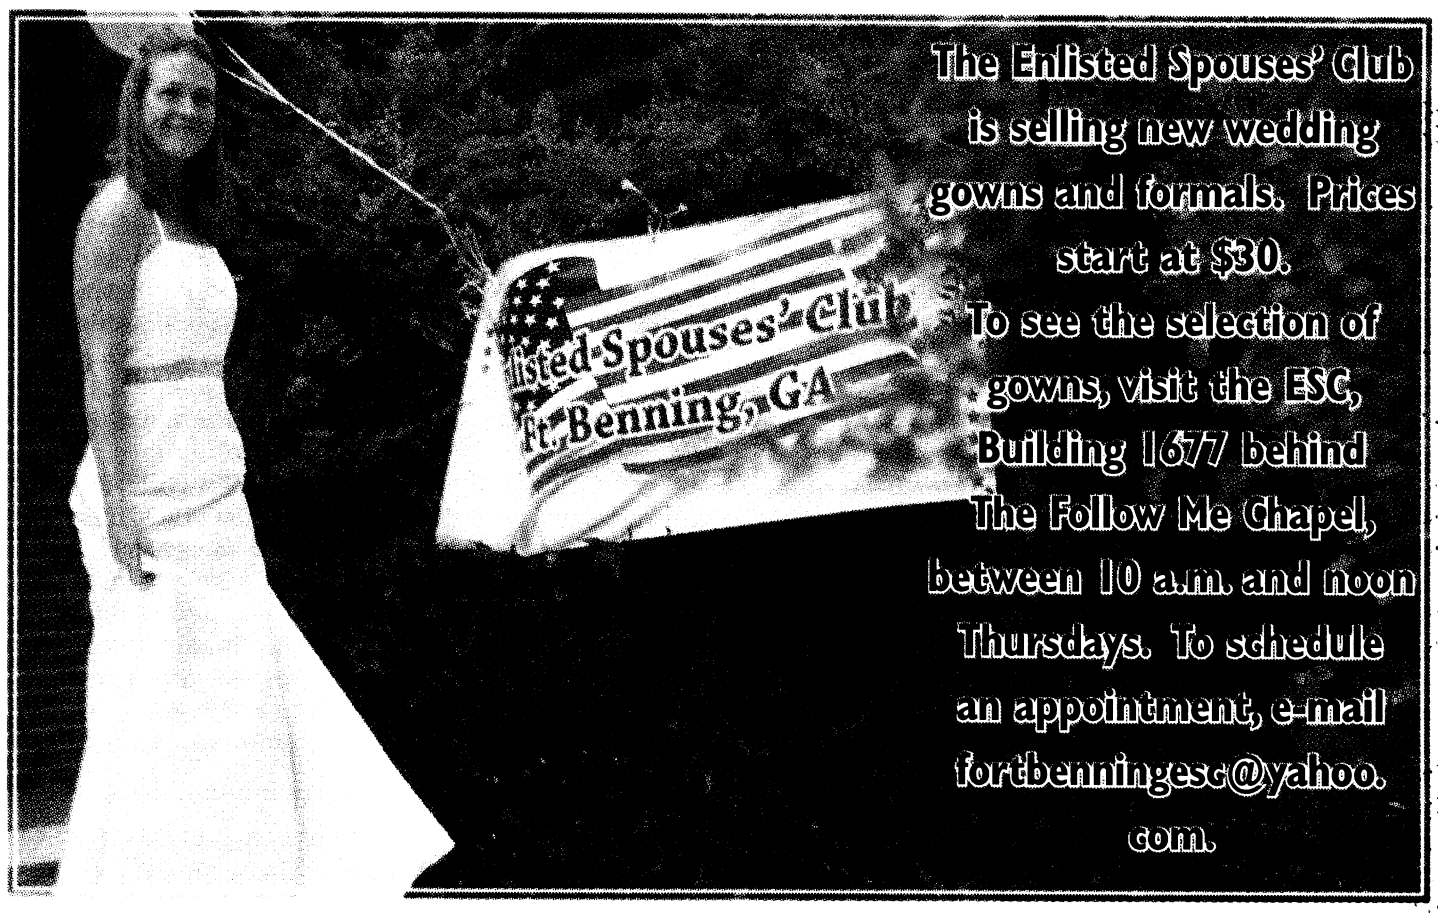
Joe also shared the title of wrestler of the year for the bicity wrestling team. In March, Joe was included in the first team of the Atlanta Journal Constitution's all-state high school wrestling team.

• Eryn Maynard, the daughter of Suzanne and Reuben Maynard, a strategic planner for the Infantry Future's Group on Fort Benning, was awarded the Page One Scholarship for science, a $1,000 award.

A senior at Columbus High School, Eryn has already been accepted to and plans to attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this fall where she will major in electrical and computer engineering.

• Ashley Sweat, daughter of Lisa and Lt. Col. Kenneth Sweat, assistant TRADOC Capabilities Manager Soldier, was nominated for the Page One Scholarship in the field of art. A senior at Harris County High School, Ashley has a 4.0 GPA and is the president of her school's National Art Honor Society.

She was nominated for her overall academic excellence as well as her involvement with starting an art program for recreation and therapy at Oak View Nursing Home in Waverly Hall, Ga.



• Ian Walker, son of Command Sgt. Maj. Matt and Laura Walker, renovated a post softball field, which was then converted into the post's first dog park, for his community service project which earned him his Eagle Scout award in November.

Ian, 16, was recognized by Congressman Sanford Bishop's office during the award ceremony on Fort Benning in March.

• Ryan Shepherd, son of retired Lt. Col. David Shepherd, Fort Benning's deputy director of logistics, and Laurie Shepherd, was accepted to West Point through early admission in October and reports June 30.

He will graduate from Columbus High School this month with a 4.2 GPA after being a member of JROTC for four years and a battalion commander his senior year.

Spouses can use briefings, agencies to help smooth the reunion

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Richard Garvey

Reunion. It's the moment that so many of our Fort Benning families have been waiting for.

The planes are landing, and many of you have already reunited with your Soldier after 15 months apart.

But there are still some families waiting to have their loved ones back in their arms — it won't be long.

I am praying that your reunions will be successful. So how can you set yourself and your Soldier up for success when it comes to coming home?

Over the course of the next month, I'll write a series of articles in this column that may help you and your family have a sweeter reunion than you've ever had before. Let me say right up front, the Army is providing more resources than ever before for Soldiers, spouses and families. Did you know ...

- Every spouse of a returning Soldier is invited to attend redeployment briefings full of helpful information.
- Every spouse is invited to attend a BATTLEMIND briefing given by Army Community Service. Call 706-545-2449 for time and location.
- Every spouse is also invited to attend the Day 9 reintegration Marriage Workshop with his or her Soldier. Free child care is provided, but you need to sign up.
- Every Soldier receives redeployment briefings overseas, and the briefings they receive stateside target ways to help them navigate the changes and opportunities of coming home after such an extended time in combat.
- Every Soldier receives the Fort Benning Reintegration Guide — an incredibly useful tool with information tailored to our redeploying Soldiers and families. Spouses, make sure your Soldier brings this book home so you can read it, too.
- The Chaplain Family Life Center offers caring, confidential counseling to Soldiers, couples and families as they work their way through the changes that can occur following an extended deployment. Confidential appointments can be made by calling 706-545-1760.
- A host of other agencies and individuals on post offer services to help, including Army Community Service, Family Advocacy, Social Work Services, Behavioral Health at Martin Army Community Hospital and school counselors. These dedicated professionals stand together to let you know we are proud of you, and we are here for you.

Stay tuned for more information about single-Soldier and married-couple retreats and other opportunities to draw close after being so far apart.

Please hear me say congratulations as you enjoy the words, "Mission complete, job well done." You've each won your war, whether on the battle front or on the home front. Now it's time to put the pieces back together at home.

I look forward to serving you in the days ahead as you enjoy your best reunion ever. Want more help with coming home? Call us at the Chaplain Family Life Center for caring, confidential counseling at 706-545-1760.

Garden: Is family affair

Brigade Combat Team. The couple planted several sweet potatoes before his deployment, and when they were ready to be unearthed in October, Jorge was home for R&R.

"It was so cool for him to come back and for us to be able to harvest those," Nicole said. "There was this one potato that was as big as his head, and we did all these different recipes with this potato to try and eat it while he was home. It must have weighed 10 pounds."

Nicole carefully preserved Jorge's favorite garden flavors, so he could sample them when he returned from Iraq earlier this month.

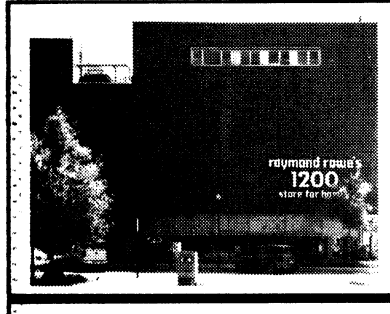
"I feel like it's good for your soul," she said. "For me, to be able to pull my own food from the earth ... there's something about it that just makes me feel good. Like the smell of the carrots when you pull them out of the ground. There's no smell like it. I always think of my grandpa when I pull one up. I think maybe it keeps you young a bit."

Nicole said anyone can garden, but it's important to start small with simple foods like lettuce or beans. Those who don't have a large backyard may want to try growing herbs in pots, an inexpensive and healthy way to add flavor to different dishes.

People can become more familiar with herbs at the Columbus Botanical Gardens' herb seminar Saturday, said Nicole, who works as the executive director for the gardens. The lecture, titled Herbs: Fact and Fiction, focuses on the historic and modern uses of herbs. Visitors can peruse the gardens' recently renovated herb garden which contains four beds of herbs used for medicine, cuisine, teas and dyes.

A workshop in June, Herbs for Health and Beauty, will cover cosmetic and medicinal uses of herbs. Participants may bring home an herbal skincare product.

The July workshop, Sense and Flavor to Preserve and Savor, focuses on how to use herbs in meals, and participants will make an herbal dressing to take home.



The gardens are located at 3603 Weems Road, Columbus, Ga. Admission to the gardens is free, but the cost for the seminar is $12. For more information, call 706-327-8400.

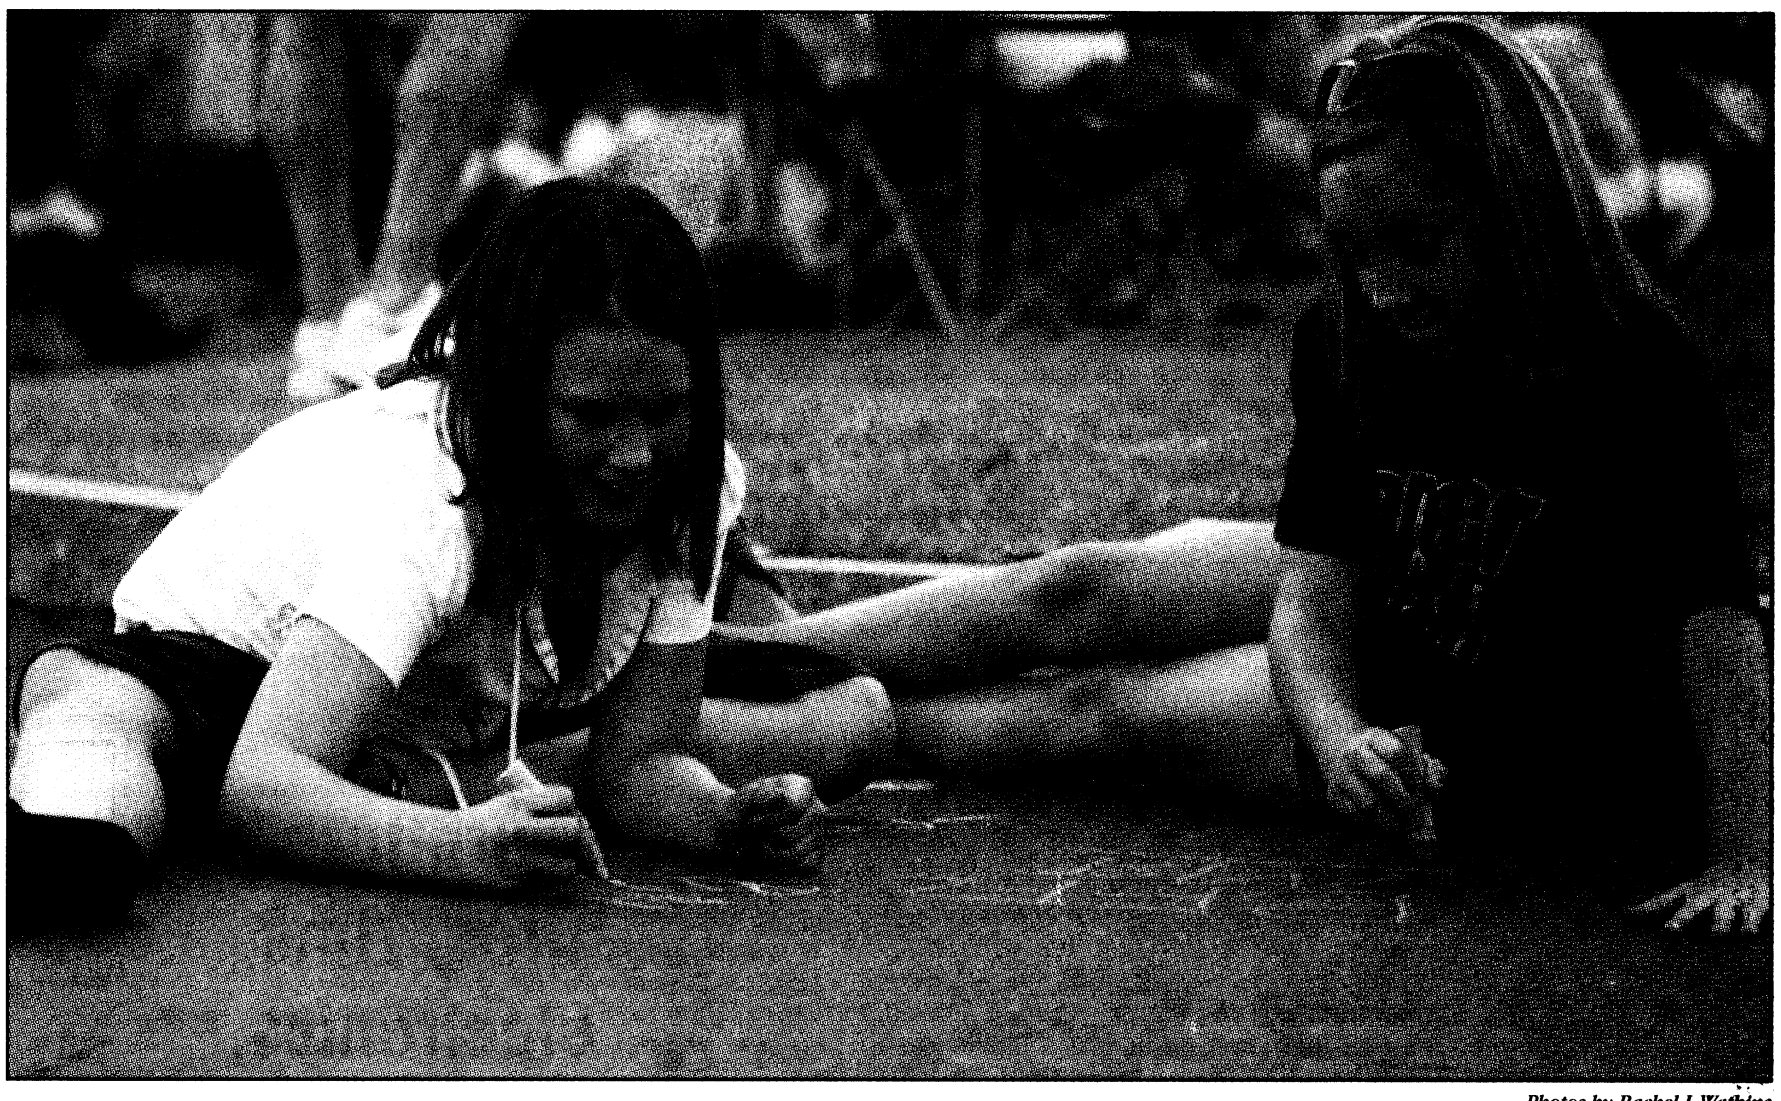
Market on Broadway

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

I bought a yummie pound cake Saturday from a young man named Willie who sells his homemade baked goods to pay for his college education. Willie's Yummies is one of a handful of vendors who peddle their wares at the Market on Broadway each Saturday between 8:30 and noon.

The Market, on the 1000 block of Broadway, is a slow-growing venue for local cottage industrialists who sell everything from organically grown veggies to homemade soap. Usually they include artists who specialize in flowers, jewelry, photography and clay. Occasionally, they include musicians.



In its second year, the market is slowly drawing a growing number of loyal patrons who stock up there on herbs and spices and baked goods made with whole, organic ingredients. Even desserts. Last weekend, there were no more than a handful of vendors. By mid summer, when gardens are burgeoning with peppers and tomatoes, the number of booths on Broadway will increase exponentially.

But don't wait. Get to know the merchants before they have more customers than they can count. Maybe, like me, you'll make a new friend along the way, someone you can call to buy fresh baked bread all year long.

Broadway merchants fling open their doors and welcome the Saturday morning crowd. A trip to the market wouldn't be complete without a cup o joe from the Fountain City and a pack of double dip in a waffle cone from Brothers General Store. Even on a slow day at the market, they make it worth your time to spend an hour uptown on Saturday morning.

For more information on the Market on Broadway or any of the doings in uptown Columbus, call 706-596-0111.

Concerts on Broadway

Taylor Wright and Madison Baily draw chalk art Friday at the concert in uptown Columbus. Chalk art and face painting are available for the children. Concessions are also available.

Free is good

Whiskey Bent, a local band, performed at the concert Friday. There are still three concerts before the series ends. Each concert is from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday nights in May. For more information, go to www.uptowncolumbusga.com or call 706-596-0111.

Uptown Columbus free concert series offers fun for the whole family

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

I'm all about saving money. There is nothing better than free. If you are looking for a fun family event or an evening out with your friends, look no further than uptown Columbus, where there are free concerts on Broadway between 11th and 12th Streets from 7 to 10 p.m. every Friday in May.

The concert series is a casual event. Bring a lawn chair or a blanket, kick back and listen to the sounds of local bands.

The series includes music for most every taste, including blues, jazz, rock and country. There are covers and also original music.

Jon White and Neal Lucas, a blues group, will perform today. Fiddleworms, a country rock band, will perform May 23. And Elisa Victoria and Peggy Jenkins, rhythm and blues singers, will perform May 30.

Concerts in May

- Today — Jon White and Neal Lucas will play the blues.
- May 23 — Fiddleworms, a country rock band will perform.
- May 30 — Elisa Victoria and Peggy Jenkins will sing rhythm and blues.

There are also activities for children, including face painting and chalk art.

Various uptown restaurants offer outdoor seating so you can dine and enjoy the music. Concert goers aren't allowed to bring food or drinks to the concert unless they are purchased at a local restaurant. Coolers are prohibited.

For the best parking, get downtown early.

For more information, call 706-596-0111 or go to www.uptowncolumbusga.com.

Make Andersonville your Memorial Day destination

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

The tiny town of Andersonville, 66 miles northeast of Fort Benning, should be at the top of every Soldier's "must see" list. Its claim to fame — or infamy — was its role in the Civil War as a prisoner of war camp for Union Soldiers. More than 45,000 troops were housed in the camp during the 14 months it was open, and 33,000 were there at one time, though the camp was built to accommodate less than 10,000.

As Union forces gained ground in the South, supply lines were cut off, and food and medical supplies ran low. Drought, overcrowding and malnutrition contributed to the death toll — 13,000 — which made Andersonville the most despised prison North or South.

Capt. Henry Wirz, the camp commander, was hanged shortly after the war's end to appease the popular demand for retribution, a fact local folks still find grievous and unjust. A monument to Wirz was erected in the village square.

Perhaps you've seen the movie Andersonville? It's fairly accurate in its depiction of the horrid conditions inside the camp, but it barely hints at the circumstances that created, or at least aggravated, the problems the prisoners and prison officials faced. If you've not seen the movie, I strongly suggest you don't, at least not until you've toured the prison, the local village and the National POW Museum, adjacent to the camp site.

Decide for yourself if the camp commander was truly responsible for the atrocities of Andersonville, or if the circumstances of war charted a course even the most foresightful commander could not have predicted.

Start your tour at the village of Andersonville's welcome center, where you'll find a map for self-guided tour. The welcome center was actually the site of the camp's storehouse during the war. Take your time as you explore the 15 buildings and cemeteries in the historic part of town, including several shops and museums. The entire tour spans no more than a few blocks, so you'll enjoy it best on foot, I should think.

Don't miss the Drummer Boy Museum, which features a diorama of the prison camp — a must for first-time visitors. It'll help you visualize the prison as it was, because the actual structure, the walls and guard stands, no longer exist.

Then head over to the National POW Museum, a memorial to all American prisoners of war throughout our nation's history. Be sure to watch the short film offered every few minutes, which includes interviews with former POWs. Here, you'll need a hanky.

The museum is designed to give visitors a feel for the prison experience. Who am I to say if it works, though if chillbumps are any validation, I'm inclined to call it a success. It chronicles the Soldier's experience from the time he's captured to his release, using film, letters, documents and personal items donated by former POWs.

From the museum, you'll want to visit the camp site by foot or by car. You can pick up an audio guide at the desk and take the driving tour, but I recommend the walking tour for those in fairly good walking shape.

Though the actual structure no longer stands, sections have been reproduced, including a spring house marking the spot where lightning struck and water burst forth after prisoners began to pray for relief from drought. The spring was called Providence.

The camp site is dotted with monuments erected by the various states whose Soldiers were imprisoned here.

For directions or to learn more about Andersonville, visit www.nps.gov/ande.

Opening Today
THE CHRONICLES OF NARNIA: PRINCE CASPIAN

One year later, the kings and queens of Narnia find themselves back in Narnia, only to discover that more than 1,300 years have passed in Narnian time. During their absence, Narnia has been conquered by the Telmarines and is now under the control of the evil King Miraz (Sergio Castellitto).

The four children will soon meet Narnia's rightful heir to the throne, Prince Caspian (Ben Barnes), who has been forced into hiding as his uncle Miraz plots to kill him. With the help of a mouse, a badger and a Black Dwarf, the Narnians embark to find Aslan, rescue Narnia and restore the land.

Edmund Pevensie (Skandar Keynes) one of the kings of Narnia who returned to find the world aged another 1,300 years, defends the kingdom, under the tyrannical control of the evil King Miraz in Prince Caspian, the sequel to The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe.

Also Playing
SPEED RACER

Born to race cars, Speed Racer's (Emile Hirsch) only real competition is the memory of the brother he idolized — the legendary Rex Racer, whose death in a race has left behind a legacy that Speed is driven to fulfill.

When Speed turns down a lucrative and tempting offer from Royalton Industries, he infuriates the company's maniacal owner and discovers some of the biggest races are being fixed.

The only way for Speed to save his family's business and the sport he loves is to win the death-defying, cross-country rally known as The Crucible.

WHAT HAPPENS IN VEGAS

Two people (Cameron Diaz and Ashton Kutcher) discover they've gotten married following a night of debauchery in Vegas, with one of them winning a jackpot after playing the other's quarter. The pair tries to undermine each other and get their hands on the money, falling in love along the way.

What Happens in Vegas is rated PG-13 for sexual and crude content, language and a drug reference.

THE FALL

She strikes up a friendship with a bedridden man who captivates her with a whimsical story that removes her far from the hospital doldrums into the exotic landscapes of her imagination.

Making sure he keeps the girl interested in the story he interweaves her family and people she likes from the hospital into his tale.

IRON MAN

Instead, using his intelligence and ingenuity, Tony builds a high-tech suit of armor and escapes captivity. When he uncovers a plot with global implications, he dons his powerful armor and vows to protect the world as Iron Man.

MADE OF HONOR

Tom Bailey (Patrick Dempsey) is in love with his best friend Hannah (Michelle Monaghan). But Tom has a fear of commitment and refuses to admit that he should propose to Hannah before she finds a less procrastinating suitor. When Colin (Kevin McKidd), a rich Scotsman asks Hannah for her hand in marriage, Tom must witness her unquestioned happiness up close and personal — because she's chosen him to be her maid of honor.

Made of Honor is rated PG-13 for sexual content and language.

SON OF RAMBOW

In 1980's Britain, young Will Proudfoot (Bill Milner) is raised in isolation among The Brethren, a religious sect in which music and TV are strictly forbidden.

Now, Will sets out to join forces with school bully Lee Carter (Will Poulter) to make their own action epic, devising wildly creative stunts and elaborate schemes for creating a movie of non-stop thrills while hiding from The Brethren.

When school popularity finally descends on Will and Lee in the form of the super-cool French exchange student Didier (Jules Sitruk), their new friendship and precious film are pushed to the breaking point.

HAROLD AND KUMAR ESCAPE FROM GUANTANAMO BAY

Harold and Kumar (John Cho and Kal Penn) decide to pursue Maria (Paula Garces), the girl Harold likes, to Amsterdam. However, an overzealous airline passenger mistakes Kumar for a terrorist, and the plane is diverted as the duo get stuck in a case of mistaken identity.

BABY MAMA

Successful and single businesswoman Kate Holbrook (Tina Fey) has long put her career ahead of a personal life, but now at 37, she's determined to have a kid on her own. But when she discovers she has only a million-to-one chance of getting pregnant, Kate allows South Philly working girl Angie Ostrowiski (Amy Poehler) to become her unlikely surrogate.

Kate begins reading child care books, baby-proofing the apartment and researching top pre-schools, but her strategy is turned upside down when her Angie shows up at her doorstep with no place to live. In a battle of wills, they struggle their way through preparation for the baby's arrival.

DECEPTION

A New York accounting consultant, Jonathan McQuarry (Ewan McGregor) meets a charismatic, womanizing lawyer, Wyatt Bose (Hugh Jackman) who personifies everything he wants to be. But in the mysterious sex club he is introduced into, he soon becomes the prime suspect in a woman's disappearance and a mult-million dollar heist.

Deception is rated R for sexual content, language, violence and drug use.

THE FORBIDDEN KINGDOM

While hunting down bootleg kung-fu DVDs in a Chinatown pawnshop, Jason (Michael Angarano) makes an extraordinary discovery that sends him hurtling back in time to ancient China. There, he is charged with the task to free the fabled warrior, the Monkey King (Jet Li), who has been imprisoned by the evil Jade Warlord (Collin Chou).

Jason is joined in his quest by kung fu master Lu Yan (Jackie Chan) and a band of misfit warriors including Silent Monk (Jet Li). But only by learning the true precepts of kung fu can Jason hope to succeed and find a way to get home.

88 MINUTES

Dr. Jack Gramm (Al Pacino), a college professor who moonlights as a forensic psychiatrist for the FBI, receives a death threat claiming he has only 88 minutes to live. He must use all his skills and training to narrow down the possible suspects, who include a disgruntled student, jilted former lover and serial killer already on death row, before his time runs out.

88 Minutes is rated R for violence, nudity and language.

FORGETTING SARAH MARSHALL

PROM NIGHT

Donna's (Brittany Snow) senior prom is supposed to be the best night of her life, but a dark secret returns from the past to haunt her and her friends in the form of a vengeful killer on their prom night.

Prom Night is rated PG-13 for violence, terror, sexual material, underage drinking and language.

STREET KINGS

Tom Ludlow (Keanu Reeves), a veteran LAPD detective, sets out to discover the killers of his former partner, Detective Terrance Washington. Ludlow's supervisor, Captain Wander (Forest Whitaker), must keep him within the confines of the law and out of the clutches of Internal Affairs Captain Biggs (Hugh Laurie). Ludlow teams up with a young homicide detective to track Washington's killers through Los Angeles and bring them to justice.

Street Kings is rated R for violence and language.

LEATHERHEADS

In 1925, Dodge Connolly (George Clooney) is a brash football hero determined to guide his team to glory. But when the league faces collapse, Dodge convinces a college football star, the handsome, athletic war hero Carter Rutherford (John Krasinski) to join his ragtag ranks.

Meanwhile, journalist Lexie (Renee Zellweger), suspects there are holes in Carter's war story, but while she digs, the two teammates start to become serious rivals for her fickle affections.

Dodge must fight to keep his guys together and to get the girl of his dreams, while bringing the sport he loves to the country's attention.

Leatherheads is rated PG-13 for language.

NIM'S ISLAND

Anything can happen on Nim's (Abigail Breslin) Island, a magical place ruled by a young girl's imagination. It is an existence that mirrors that of her favorite literary character, Alex Rover (Gerard Butler).

But Alexandra (Jodie Foster), the author of the Rover books, leads a reclusive life in the big city. When Nim's father goes missing from their island, a twist of fate brings her together with Alexandra. Now, they must draw courage from their fictional hero to conquer Nim's Island.

THE RUINS

Four American friends (Jonathan Tucker, Jena Malone, Shawn Ashmore and Laura Ramsey) on vacation in Cancun, Mexico, meet a German tourist (Joe Anderson) who persuades them to join his hunt for his younger brother, last seen with his girlfriend near some mysterious ruins. However, once the group arrives at the Mayan ruins, things start to go wrong.

The Ruins is rated R for violence, gruesome images, language, sexuality and nudity.

Needing to pay for his M.I.T. tuition, the brilliant Ben Campbell (Jim Sturgess) joins a group of the school's gifted students, led by math professor Micky Rosa (Kevin Spacey), which counts cards at blackjack each weekend in Vegas. Seduced by the money and his teammate, Jill (Kate Bosworth), Ben pushes the limits, staying one step ahead of the casinos' menacing enforcer: Cole Williams (Laurence Fishburne).

RUN, FAT BOY, RUN

A charming but oblivious overweight guy (Simon Pegg) leaves his fiancée (Thandie Newton) on their wedding day only to discover years later that he really loves her. To win her back, he must finish a marathon while making her realize that her new handsome, wealthy fiancé (Hank Azaria) is wrong for her.

Run, Fat Boy, Run is rated PG-13 for rude and sexual behavior, nudity, language and smoking.

STOP-LOSS

Decorated Iraq war hero Sgt. Brandon King (Ryan Phillippe) returns to his Texas hometown following his tour of duty. Alongside Steve Shriver (Channing Tatum), King tries to adapt to civilian life.

When the Army orders him back to Iraq, it upends his world, testing the bonds of family and friendship, the limits of love and the value of honor.

Stop-Loss is rated R for violence and language.

SUPERHERO MOVIE

After being bitten by a genetically altered dragonfly, high school loser Rick Riker (Drake Bell) develops incredible strength and armored skin. Riker becomes a costumed crime fighter known as "The Dragonfly."

However, Lou Landers (Christopher McDonald) stands in the way. After an experiment gone wrong, Lou develops the power to steal a person's life force and becomes the villain, "The Hourglass." With unimaginable strength, unbelievable speed and deeply uncomfortable tights, will Riker be able to stop Landers in time?

DRILLBIT TAYLOR

Ryan, Wade and Emmit (Troy Gentile, Nate Hartley and David Dorfman) are afraid of the high school bully. Their solution is Drillbit Taylor (Owen Wilson), a down-on-his luck soldier of fortune who enrolls them in physical and mental training.

Drillbit Taylor is rated PG-13 for sexual references, bullying, language, drug references and nudity.

SERVICE CREDIT UNION
For People on the Move
NCUA
*Eligibility determined by credit score. Match+ applies to auto loan terms and restrictions that are consistent with Service Credit Union's (SCU) 60-72 month loan rates. Other loan terms do not apply. If SCU can not beat competitors' APR, we will credit $100 to a qualifying member's SCU account up to 30 days after SCU application, upon the applicant presenting a copy of their signed loan note & disclosure from the competitor. Dealer financing, non-financial loan rates and terms, and the institutions predetermined by the credit union are excluded from this promotion. Offer subject to change without notice. Rate shown is Annual Percentage Rate (APR), accurate as of 5/1/08, and subject to change without notice. The APR reflects a .35% reduction for direct deposit and automatic payment (example: 4.24 APR less .35% = 3.89%) Example: A $15,000 auto loan with a rate of 3.89% APR for 60 months: Monthly payment is approximately $275.51. Total finance charge is approximately $1530.34. Offer available on new, used, or current SCU auto loans qualify for additional funds of $2,500 or more.

3rd HBCT home, few stay behind to clear equipment

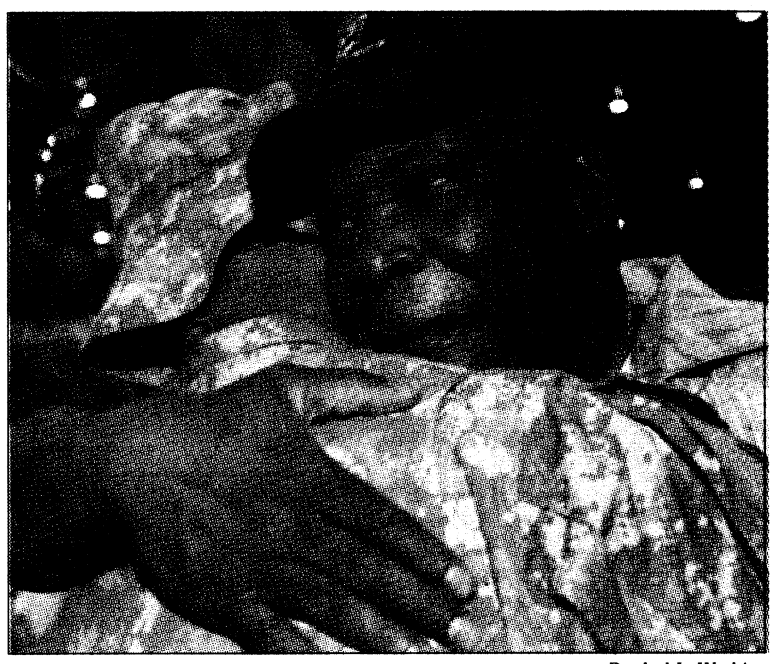
THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Save for a few Soldiers loading cargo in Iraq, the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team can call it done. Brigade officials said this week that 99 percent of the 3rd HBCT's nearly 3,800 Soldiers will be home by Monday.

Lawson Army Airfield was the site of several reunions this week. Among those waiting to greet loved ones Friday was retired Master Sgt. Walter Reese, who was reunited with his son, 1st Lt. Jamel Reese, of the 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Division. Reese, his wife Joann, and his daughter Bridget drove 14 hours from Missouri to meet Jamel.

Reese said he understands now how his parents felt when he returned from Vietnam.

"They just stared at me while I ate, because they couldn't believe I was home," he said.



Reese said it was prayer that got him through his son's deployment.

"We had faith that everything was going to be all right," he said.

Jamel said his family's support made the deployment bearable.

"It really kept my morale up to get words

New ACPs planned

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

Fort Benning officials have a plan to ease the traffic congestion expected with Fort Benning's growth and transformation to the Maneuver Center of Excellence. Three new access control points are planned: a temporary ACP on Buena Vista Road; one on the Custer Road post boundary to replace the ACP on Sand Hill; and a new ACP on Custer Road just past the Eisenhower Interchange, which will bring Patton Village into the cantonment area.

The temporary ACP on Buena Vista Road is designed to handle the construction traffic as the infrastructure for the MCOE is built in the eastern corridor of post, said the Deputy Garrison Commander Chuck Walls. It will provide additional access onto post and ease the flow of traffic on I-185, because the trucks and construction-related vehicles won't need to use the main ACPs to travel to their work sites.

Another bonus for Fort Benning's commuters, said Craig Taylor, director of Public

Decision on funds for new hospital expected by end of year

Currently, phased approach being used to add, improve facilities

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Martin Army Community Hospital will receive $157 million to fund the first phase of construction on a new hospital near the horse stables on Marne Road. The groundbreaking will be next spring.

Terry Beckwith, Martin Army public affairs officer, said plans include an expansion of the surgical ward in anticipation of the arrival of Armor School Soldiers.

The money will also be used to update the blood donor center at the hospital.

Fort Benning continues to push for additional funds to bypass phased construction of a replacement hospital in an effort to ensure a shorter build time, she said.

The $350 million mentioned in the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations bill, currently awaiting approval from the Senate, would make this possible.

Chris Flowers, chief of facility management at Martin Army, said there have been several long-standing issues, such as parking, addressed with construction of a new facility.

The new hospital will have advanced surgical, pathology and lab suites, in-patient and out-patient services and more. It will accommodate increased numbers as Fort Benning transitions into the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

"We'll be getting an influx of 10,000 Soldiers," Beckwith said. "These Soldiers also bring with them family members. This leads to more retirees in the community, and more contractors and DA Civilians employed on post. With the growth on Fort Benning, the medical sector has to grow."

In addition to the hospital replacement, the new traumatic brain injury clinic will be housed near the hospital. Psychologists and social workers are already hired and ready for the new clinic, which will be up and running in a few months.

Funding for the new hospital will be decided before Dec. 31, Beckwith said. Meanwhile, the hospital will still provide quality medical service for Fort Benning families, she said.

Other updates, like replacing the roof, resealing and repainting the exterior and installing individual air-conditioning and heating units for in-patient rooms, are being made as needed.

"We're going to continue to give wonderful patient care," Beckwith said. "That's our mission."

1st Battalion, 329th Infantry Regiment reactivated Friday

"The 1st of the 329th is now open for business," said Col. Casey Haskins, commander of the 198th Infantry Brigade, at the reactivation ceremony for the 1st Battalion, 329th Infantry Regiment, Friday on Sand Hill.

"The group that stands in front of us is a new organization," he said. "It's been mixed and traded and blended together, and it's a new team. And it's ready to perform as a new team."

The battalion, first activated in 1917, is made up mostly of Reserve units from the Midwest, with two more Reserve companies coming from Louisiana and Alabama in the near future. This is the first time in the battalion's history that it has been mobilized a second time for the same conflict. It was reactivated in May 2004 as a one station unit training battalion at Fort Benning for two years. The Soldiers were home for 22 months before returning in March.

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Leaders must meet Benning's safety challenge

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

Today starts off the traditional summer vacation season. The Army calls this time of year, "the 101 critical days of summer," and we stress safety and the well-being of our Soldiers and Families because of the variables summer activities can bring. In preparation for this season there will be a safety fair in the west parking lot of Infantry Hall today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. I encourage each of you to participate.

No matter the time of year, when it comes to leadership responsibility, we rely on each other where safety is concerned. Individually, each of us is a safety officer empowered to do whatever is necessary to ensure our own personal safety, and the safety of others.

Soldiers have no shortage of duties and responsibilities, but none is more important than the duties they perform as safety monitors. Remember the bottom line, supervisors are empowered to make training safe.

Three elements contribute to safety both on and off duty:

• Regulatory guidance establishes conditions and standards for safety,

• Supervisors ensure these conditions and standards are met,

• Individuals take the lessons learned from regulatory guidance and integrate them into their off-duty actions.

Relevant, up-to-date regulations, policies, guidance, and procedures form the command's methodology for safety, but are of limited value if they aren't read, taught, and enforced. Supervisors form the second element of the safety equation. While each Soldier is a safety officer and is empowered to take action to correct an unsafe condition, many times they don't possess the experience, skill or familiarity with regulations to make a decision. Also, sometimes they are hesitant to take action. That is why supervisors are so important.

The final and most important element in the safety equation is the transfer of lessons learned in training to every day life. Supervisors must ensure that all lessons learned in training can be take-away lessons to equip the Soldier to prepare for and react to unsafe situations.

First line supervisors are the key element in safety for several different reasons. Simply by sheer numbers, first line supervisors form the largest portion of the supervisory chain and give commanders and directors the largest number of eyes on target. These individuals enjoy a special bond with Soldiers, and that places them in a unique position to catch safety violations at the source. Having recently been at the Soldier level, these supervisors still share many common experiences with the Soldiers they lead and supervise and they still understand shortcuts taken by Soldiers that can lead to higher risk.

Finally, first line supervisors operate at the "do as I do" level. They are expected to demonstrate exactly what right is, and what it looks like. Placed in positions of authority, they receive training commensurate with senior leaders, yet they eat, live and think at the Soldier level.

The challenge to commanders is to provide a safety training program that captivates the attention of young leaders, is relevant, meaningful, and provides them all the tools to be successful. Leaders assume safety responsibility immediately upon being put into position, there is no grace period, and as such, our programs must be tailored to rapidly train our leaders to meet safety threats.

We must properly equip newly assigned leaders to meet the safety challenges in and around Fort Benning. Training Soldiers is our number one priority, but no training we do is worth the loss of a Soldier's life.

We must enable leaders to execute training to standard and provide them the safety tools necessary to meet the safety threat. World class Soldier training starts and ends by keeping them and our Army Families safe.

OPINION

VARIOUS VOICES

What is the "normal" you missed the most while in Iraq?

I've missed cooking on my grill. There is nothing like lighting up the coals and hearing the meat sizzle as it cooks.

— Sgt. 1st Class Kenny Braxton, 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment

I've missed my family the most. I was able to see my sons play arena football last weekend. It was great. To top it off, their team won the championship game. It's great to be back and see things like that.

— Capt. Jeff Crawford, 203rd BSB

I've really missed my truck. Since I've been back, I've been using it to find furniture for my new place. After I'm done with reintegration, I'm looking forward to driving back to Kentucky and visiting my family.

— Sgt. Jonathin Morgan, 3rd Brigade Special Troops Battalion

"I've missed watering my lawn and keeping it green. Grass was in short supply at FOB (Forward Operating Base) Hammer, so it's nice to come home and see it everywhere."

— 1st Sgt. Michael Parker, 1st Battalion, 10th Field Artillery Regiment

"I've missed spending time with my wife and kids more than anything. Since I've gotten back, we've been hanging out and riding around post to get reacquainted with everything."

— Pfc. Christopher York, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment

An open letter to our homecoming heroes

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

When my Uncle Will came home from Vietnam, he found that people had changed. I know what you're thinking — Uncle Will changed, too, of course. War does that to a person.

But, yes, people changed. Uncle Will reminded me of that. He helped me remember the Sundays of my youth.

Sunday afternoons, after church and after dinner, the family would drop in. Aunts, uncles, cousins, cousins' cousins — it didn't matter, everyone was welcome, and no one needed a reservation.

It never seemed to matter that the sink was piled high with dirty dishes. The dishes would keep till Monday morning. Sunday afternoon was for family.

The grown-ups sat around the TV, which was usually tuned to Hee Haw or a ball game, the volume turned way down low, so as not to interfere with conversation. There was lots of conversation and coffee. Brewed coffee, till the pot ran dry, then instant. People drank instant coffee back then.

This same scene was being played out all across town. At my grandma's house, they were sitting out back under the mulberry trees. At Uncle Frank's, they sat on the front stoop and chatted with the neighbors. Aunt Roberta lived in a trailer park. Her guests bellied up to the kitchen table, smoking cigarettes and drinking cokes.

When Uncle Will was in Vietnam, he looked forward to those Sunday afternoons back home. Any combat veteran will tell you it's the simple pleasures — memories of them or plans for them — that keep him going when the going gets tough. Uncle Will looked forward to his simple Sunday afternoons.

By the time he hung up his boots in 1974, people had changed, and nothing was simple ever again. In the six years he was away, the world tilted a little farther on its axis and everyone went scurrying.

They were chasing the almighty dollar, Uncle Will said. They volunteered for the weekend shift at the steel mill to make more money. Or they went shopping at the mall to spend it. Department stores were suddenly open on Sundays, and strip malls were popping up everywhere.

Uncle Will and Aunt Cindy still came to our house from time to time, but he didn't really like the way things had changed in his little corner of the world. He didn't like the fact that his baby brother was sporting long hair and sandals. He looked just like the war protesters on the news each night.

Uncle Will started spending more and more time at the tavern. And when he was drunk, he went looking for fights. Unfortunately, his target was often Aunt Cindy, who wasn't one to suffer bullying lightly. Their fights were the stuff of family legend. They even donned boxing gloves and went a few rounds in the back yard a time or two. I don't need to tell you the marriage didn't last.

I asked Uncle Will about that. Would the marriage have survived were it not for the war? Yes, he said, it would have, and it might have survived in spite of the war if he'd had the kind of resources that are available today.

We've all read the shocking statistics on divorce in the military these days. They're scary. But I bet we've come a long way in the past 40 years. I can't support my theory with numbers, but I can tell you this: I know of only two couples, personally, whose marriage survived the Vietnam War. Uncle Will could only think of one.

Please don't let your marriage, or any of your valuable relationships, become a casualty of war. You haven't been away six years, like Uncle Will, but your world has changed, nonetheless, in the 15 months you were gone.

You lived with danger during your deployment, and that was "normal." The emotions — don't men hate the word "emotions"? — you're likely to experience in the next few weeks or months are normal, too. But they're dangerous if you let them go unchecked.

Anger, depression, frustration — they're normal. But left to fester and grow, they will eventually take a toll on your relationships. Don't ignore them. Deal with them. Talk about them. Reach out to someone you trust — a family member, a wise friend, a counselor or chaplain.

And slow down whenever you get the chance. Enjoy a quiet Sunday afternoon in the backyard with the kids. Catch a ball game. Call mom. Avoid the activity or impetus — I'm thinking alcohol — that might trigger your temper or tempt you to blow a wad of money on a new car or street bike. Take it slow.

Uncle Will was a good man and a good Soldier. He's one of the few men I call a hero. I'm proud of his service, but I'm just as proud of him for turning his life around. He gave up the alcohol and the anger and settled down with a good wife. His story has a happy ending. Let's make sure your's does, too.

• Post officials expected more than 10,000 visitors from the Chattahoochee Valley for the annual Armed Forces Day open house on York field. The event would feature static displays, demonstrations of equipment, jeep rides and the ever popular junior jump tower and Ranger reptile show.

• The post commander, Maj. Gen. Robert York was made an honorary Girl Scout and practiced his Girl Scout salute with Fort Benning troops.

• Mrs. Allen Fischer was featured in this week's Petticoat Portraits column. Jean Fischer was the chairman of the NCO Wives' Club and the ceramics shop and bingo chairman. "Her attention to detail and creativity is evident in her home," the post newspaper stated. "Examples of her artwork include a porcelain cigarette set and a fruit compote."

A licensed beautician, Mrs. Allen was taking a career hiatus to focus on her husband and two daughters, but she kept in practice as the neighborhood beautician.

• Spc. Johnnie Crawford, a former Mouseketeer and a star in the TV show The Rifleman, was on Fort Benning to film a training movie about the importance of wearing the uniform correctly. The film synopsis: A Soldier finds that the proper wearing of the uniform insures weekend passes that were previously denied.

Fighting fire with fire

Lori Egan

Staff with Fort Benning's Directorate of Public Works Environmental Branch conduct prescribed burns to prevent wildfires. Tuesday near Lawson Army Airfield, Tommy Hutcherson and his crew started a prescribed burn. A three-year rotation determines which areas are burned. The fires help maintain an environment where endangered species, such as the red-cockaded woodpecker, thrive and keep the parasite population of chiggers and ticks down. Game and deer benefit from the herbaceous forest that grows back, said Stephen Hudson, lead forester, during a Bayonet interview in March.

Soldiers can send commendations through Freedom Team Salute

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Out of the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff's desire to commend veterans, employers, spouses and parents, the Freedom Team Salute program was born in 2005.

The program allows Soldiers to send commendations to employers, spouses, parents and veterans to say thank you for support of the troops and service to the country. The commendation includes a certificate of appreciation and a letter of thanks signed by the Chief of Staff and the Secretary of the Army, Army bumper stickers, decals and Army lapel pins.

"This program compliments the Army Family Covenant," said Michael Nadonley, Soldier Outreach manager. "This program is about communication and community building."

Civilians can also give commendations to veterans.

"Veterans are what have made this country great, so it's important we honor them," Nadonley said.

More than 1.5 million commendations have been given.

Freedom Team Salute also has volunteer opportunities. They have "ambassadors," Soldiers and civilians who introduce the program to installations across the country. Freedom Team Salute sign-up opportunities will be included in some unit briefings at Fort Benning.

To send a commendation or to become an ambassador, go to www.freedomteamsalute.com.

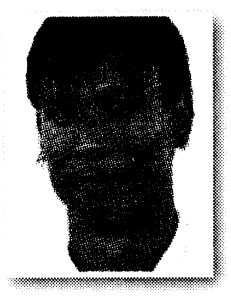
Post celebrates Asian Pacific heritage



Vietnam orphan speaks about opportunities in America

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

When Jason Robertson was airlifted from a Saigon orphanage to a home in rural Alabama, his life changed drastically. A shift from "rice to grits," he called it in his autobiography A Love Beyond Explaining.

The keynote speaker for the Asian Pacific American Heritage Month luncheon May 15, Robertson spoke about the value of opportunity in America and the kindness of Soldiers who served in Vietnam.

"I had an opportunity to know what they do when they're not fighting. A lot of people don't hear those stories," he said. "It was just amazing that here were men who could be doing so many other things ... but here they are with children they don't even know, children from another country, bringing them toys and supplies, holding them and spending time with them."

Through the conflict of war, these types of humanitarian efforts, like those going on today in Iraq and Afghanistan, make a difference, even if people back home don't always hear about it, he said.

"Some day other orphans like me or grateful families will come along and say, 'Thank you, veterans, for affording us the opportunity to live a life of freedom and experience a better way of life,'" Robertson wrote in his book. "Those serving our country today in Iraq and around the world need to know that lives are being changed for the better because of their efforts, regardless of political agendas."

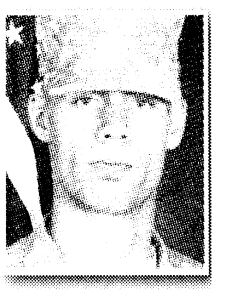
Sosefina Holi, wife of Sgt. 1st Class Holi Holi, taught her son Joseph and the rest of the Faith Middle School drama club The Samoan Ava Ceremony, a traditional Samoan dance performed at the luncheon.

"I feel honored to be here to share my heritage," said Joseph, 12, who was born in Samoa.

"It's important to me because I don't want to be disconnected from my culture," he said. "It's a strong culture. There's a lot of respect for elders and we work together, that's what makes it strong,(but) I'm proud to be an American Samoan, because even though we left Samoa we are still here in a strong country — America."



OSUT Soldier stabbed in barracks

Another Soldier apprehended, held in Harris County jail

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Elsie Jackson

The victim, Pfc. Rick Bulmer, 23, of Squaw Valley, Calif., died at approximately 3 a.m. Monday at the Columbus Medical Center where he underwent surgery and was placed in the intensive care unit shortly after midnight.

Bulmer

The suspect, another Soldier, was apprehended.

Pfc. George D. McDonald, 19, of Floyd, Va., a supply clerk assigned to 2nd Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, 198th Infantry Brigade, is being held in the Harris County jail.

Court-martial charges have been preferred against McDonald. He is facing charges of premeditated murder, resisting apprehension and of aggravated assault.

The Criminal Investigation Division continues to investigate the murder.

It is likely that an Article 32 investigation, a pre-trial hearing, will be conducted to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to proceed to trial, and if so, to what level of court-martial.

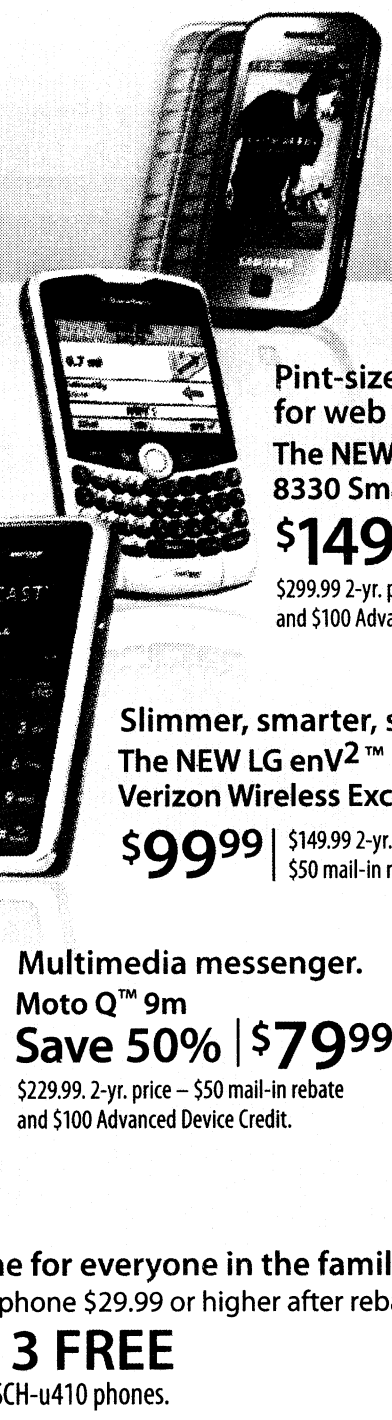
The highest level of military trial court is a general court-martial, reserved for serious felony charges.

Bulmer arrived at Fort Benning May 6 after enlisting with the California National Guard, and was assigned to E Company, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment, 198th Infantry Brigade, May 16.

Bulmer was born in Fresno, Calif., on Sept. 29, 1984. He was the first son of six children. His younger brother is stationed in Korea.

Bulmer's awards and decorations include the Army Commendation Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Global War on Terrorism Service Medal, and the Army Service Ribbon.

Bulmer is survived by his wife, Beth, his mother, Wendy Smith and father, Gary S. Bulmer; sisters Ashley Bulmer, Bonnie Bahar, and CeeCee Bulmer; brothers, Justin Bulmer and Pfc. John Bulmer.



Bulmer's family resides in Squaw Valley, Calif.

Gates worries that proposed GI bills may hurt retention

AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Donna Miles

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates fully supports an enhanced GI Bill, but believes some measures currently being discussed on Capitol Hill would undermine the all-volunteer force by encouraging troops to leave too soon, Pentagon Press Secretary Geoff Morrell said.

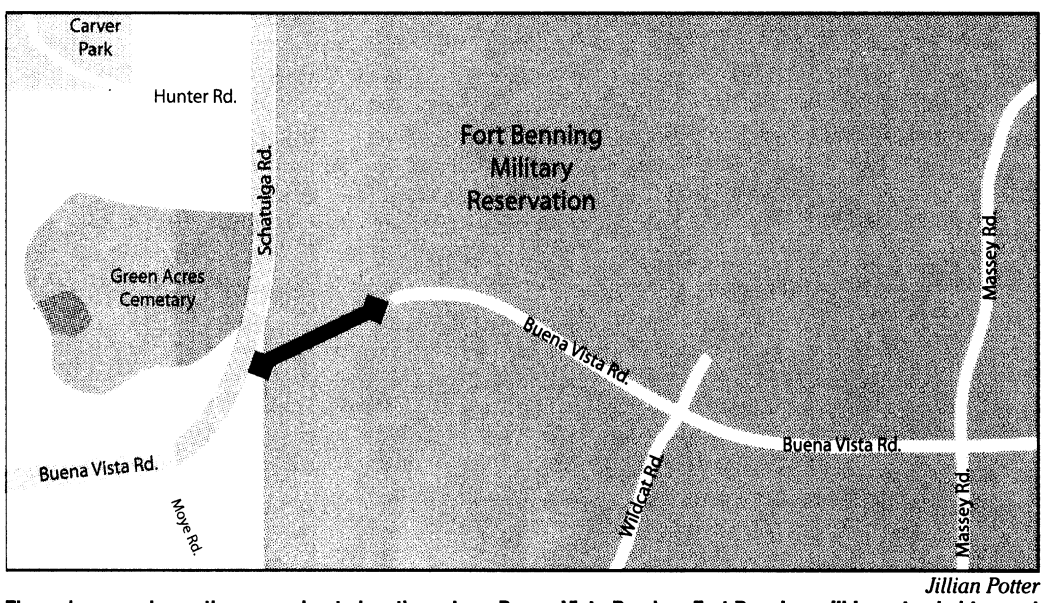
Gates is "greatly encouraged" by wide support for enhanced educational benefits for veterans and considers the legislation moving forward "extremely generous," Morrell said.

"We have no issue with the fact that it is generous. We think our troops deserve to be rewarded for their service," he said.

But the secretary fears that bills moving forward would hurt retention by offering educational benefits after just two years of service, Morrell said.

Gates advocates offering enhanced benefits after six years of service to reward service members who opt to re-enlist at least once.

"We are not trying to keep people here forever, but we are trying to create a system in which troops see the benefit of making a career out of the military," Morrell said.



"We make an enormous investment in their careers and their futures, and we think it would be very damaging to the all-volunteer force if they were to leave prematurely."

That would create big problems to the military, particularly as it confronts the Global War on Terrorism.

"Now, more than ever, we need to hold on to our superbly trained, battle-tested troops," Morrell said. "They are the key to victory in this conflict."

Gates has shared his concerns with Congress and has assured lawmakers he will continue working with them to benefit the troops.

"But do so in a way that does not jeopardize our national security," Morrell said.

ACPs: Will ease congestion

Works, is that a concrete batch plant will be located just inside the Fort Benning boundary. Therefore the concrete trucks won't have to travel back and forth through the ACPs.

The temporary ACP will be located just south of where Buena Vista intersects with Schatulga Road in Columbus.

Originally Buena Vista continued onto the military reservation, but was closed many years ago, said Bryan McClure, project engineer with DPW. And because of transportation regulations, "Y" intersections, which the original road had, are no longer permitted. Fort Benning will build a new section of road to connect the city's Buena Vista to Fort Benning's.

"We will widen Buena Vista Road where the ACP will be," Taylor said. "There will be three lanes in and two out."

Construction on the temporary ACP should start in June and be completed in November.

Moving the current Sand Hill ACP to the post boundary at the northern end of Custer Road and constructing a new ACP on the north side of the Eisenhower Interchange will secure Patton Village within the installation boundary, Walls said.

The ACP north of the Eisenhower Interchange will have three checkpoint lanes and two outbound lanes.

The extra lane will allow traffic to move through the checkpoint more easily, McClure said, and ease the Sand Hill congestion on graduation days.

2008 Memorial Day

On May 5, 1866, veterans and residents of Waterloo, New York, placed flowers on the graves at each of the town's cemeteries to honor the local Soldiers and Sailors who had fallen during the Civil War. Proposed by a local pharmacist, Henry C. Welles, this act of remembrance centered on his belief that while praising the living veterans of the Civil War, it was equally important to remember the patriotic dead. This tradition has grown for a century and a half – it is Memorial Day.

On this Memorial Day, America is at war. Answering the call, America's Army is fighting in Afghanistan and Iraq with courage and honor. Our defense of liberty adds to the rolls of the fallen. We pause on Memorial Day to honor all generations of brave Americans who have made the ultimate sacrifice so that others can live free.

To the Families of the fallen, yours is a difficult burden. Our sorrow and emptiness may linger, but we can celebrate the selfless service of our loved ones and be grateful for the time we had with them. We can comfort ourselves in knowing that many of our fallen were volunteers – doing what they wanted to do – and all of them were doing what their country expected.

While dedicating an allied cemetery, General George S. Patton reminded us that we should thank God that Soldiers have lived, rather than regret that they died. Over the past 233 years, more than one million of our comrades-in-arms have selflessly given their lives for this cause. And today, more than one million of our comrades-in-arms are still fighting. In the true spirit of Henry C. Welles, let this Memorial Day celebrate them all.

May God bless you, your Families, and the United States of America.

Relay for Life participants pause for prayer during the luminaria ceremony. After rain early in the day ruined most of the luminaria bags that traditionally line the track at Kinnett Stadium, participants sifted through the bags, retrieved the candles and lit them in the bleachers.

Where there is hope

Relay for Life nets more than $352,000 for cancer treatment and research

"My mom relayed every year after she found out she had cancer 15 years ago. I'm trying to fill her shoes."

— Amy Hayes, a member of the Georgia Power Relay for Life team

Where there is hope, there will be a cure. That's the message of Relay for Life, the American Cancer Society's annual fundraiser.

Each year, Muscogee County Relay for Life volunteers light the night sky with luminaries that spell out the word "hope" in the bleachers encircling the track at Kinnett Stadium. During a memorial ceremony, which includes a bagpipe playing of Amazing Grace, they discreetly rearrange the bags to turn "hope" into "cure."

Thousands gathered May 16 for the ceremony and the all-night Relay for Life festivities, which included performances by local musicians, contests, games and a "reverse" beauty pageant. More than 140 teams sponsored by local organizations, schools and churches raised more than $352,000 to fund research for a cure.

"When you talk to the people who participate in the relay, you see that everybody has a reason to be there, maybe it was a family member or a friend who had cancer, and that's the reason for their hope," said Denise Dowdy, the community income manager for the Muscogee County American Cancer Society.

"You see it everywhere you look out there. There's hope for those who are going through it right now. There's hope for those who maybe have lost a loved one, and they say 'I don't want my daughter to go through that,' or 'I want to see a cure in my lifetime,'" Dowdy said.

Amy Hayes was one of 30 members of the Georgia Power team who relayed in memory of loved ones lost to cancer. Hayes lost her mother in March.

"My mom relayed every year after she found out she had cancer 15 years ago," she said. "I'm trying to fill her shoes."

Secretary of Veterans Affairs focuses on continuum of care

AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Fred W. Baker III

WASHINGTON — Five months after taking the helm of the nation's second-largest Cabinet department, the secretary of Veterans Affairs laid out his priorities and talked of transitioning the organization to meet the needs of veterans today as well as those of the next generation.

Veterans Affairs Secretary Dr. James B. Peake, a retired Army lieutenant general and a cardiac surgeon, spoke at the National Press Club Tuesday.

The Vietnam veteran and former Army surgeon general said he is focusing on providing a better transition of care, enabling more efficient claims processing, leveraging information technology and poising the department for the future.

Peake said he sees his department working more closely with others, such as the Defense Department, to provide a continuum of care for troops leaving the military.

"We're, for the first time in quite a while, in a shooting war where we have Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, and Marines coming back from a combat zone," he said.

His department's focus, Peake said, should be on "helping those men and women who are returning from overseas to reintegrate into society, to reintegrate with their family members, to reintegrate with their employers and with their communities."

Some 837,000 combat veterans, active and reserve, have separated from the military since the start of operations Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom and are now veterans, he said. He wants to make sure those who qualify tap into his department's wealth of resources such as compensation, rehabilitation and educational benefits.

Key to providing those benefits is streamlining the department's claims processing, a "complicated system" and one that opens the door to the department's many services. Some 650,000 disability claims are backlogged, and it now takes about 183 days for a claim to be processed.

The VA is adding more than 3,000 people to its 263,000-person work force to help process claims, Peake said. A veteran shouldn't have to "be a lawyer to understand your benefit or be a lawyer to get your benefit."

Leveraging technology could be key in cutting down claims processing times, he said. Already, the VA has what Peake called the "best electronic medical record" system available. Still, the system is old and will eventually need to be upgraded.

An investment in technology also is needed to provide services to today's veteran, who is more computer- and Internet-savvy than those of wars past.

"They're Web-enabled, and that's how they're used to communicating and dealing," Peake said. "And we've got to make sure that as we move forward we (don't) think of servicing people like me. We're thinking of how we're going to service folks like them."

Of the 24 million veterans currently alive, nearly three-quarters served during a war or an official period of conflict. About a quarter of the nation's population, nearly 74.5 million people, are potentially eligible for VA benefits and services because they are veterans, family members or survivors of veterans, according to the VA Web site.

With her were her daughters, Karah, 4, and Victoria, 1, and her mother and father-in-law.

Kwi said no matter how far apart she and her husband were in the world, her relationship with him would grow.

"This deployment makes our relationship stronger," she said.

LaTonya Tucker traveled from Mississippi to see her husband, Staff Sgt. Taylor Tucker, of the 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, come home from his third deployment. Her daughters Taylor, 6, and Taya, 18 months, were with her.

"I miss playing basketball with my dad," Taylor said. Taylor has been waiting until her dad gets home to learn how to ride a bike.

While in combat, the 3rd HBCT set up governance, economics and killed and captured insurgents, said Brigade Command Sgt. Major James Pearson.

This is Staff Sgt. Stacy Camden's second tour on Sand Hill. Camden said monthly e-mails from Pam Rushing, wife of battalion commander Lt. Col. Kevin E. Rushing, kept families back home informed and updated with information and pictures.

"We have a really good family support group," he said, "so family's are kept in the loop."

For Sgt. 1st Class Peter Fleck, a single father of three, leaving his family is hard, but it's all part of the job.

"Whatever the Army or my country needs me to do, I'll do," he said. "If it's come to Benning, it's Benning, and if it's Iraq, it's Iraq, and if it's Afghanistan, it's Afghanistan."

At home in Indiana, Fleck works as a policeman. His unit is "very patriotic," he said, so they hold his spot on the force until his return and even check in on his kids while he's gone.

"This is the hardest, most rewarding job I've ever done," he said. "The hours are monstrous, it's high stress ... but it's incredible what you can do with a young man in just three months."

The battalion has just completed its 90-day train-up and will begin training Soldiers May 30.

"There's no difference between this battalion and the others," Haskins said. "A lot of people think that the difference is that this is a Reserve battalion, but it's not. The real difference is that it's a mile down the street and farther away than the others, but if you're a private ... you have a three in 30 chance that you're coming to this battalion. And those privates will go to the same war as every other private, they will be just as well-trained as every other private, and they will perform just as well as every other private."

BENCH NOTES

Lester throws no-hitter

Boston Red Sox pitcher Jon Lester, 24, threw a no-hitter against the Kansas City Royals Monday at Fenway Park.

Lester was diagnosed in 2006 with a rare form of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and underwent chemotherapy and radiation, rejoining the Sox in 2007.

He was the winning pitcher in game four of the World Series when the Sox swept the Colorado Rockies.

Making history was team captain Jason Varitek, who became the only catcher to ever catch four no-hitters.

NFL owners opt out

The NFL announced Tuesday that owners will opt out of the collective bargaining agreement, which could mean no salary cap beginning in 2010 and possibly a lockout in 2011.

The league said it would keep negotiating with the NFL Players Association and that the next three years of games will be played without interruption.

Stanley Cup finals

I'm sure there some people watching the NHL... I am not one of them.

It just seems wrong to me to be watching hockey when it feels like summer.

Regardless, the Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh Penguins will face each other beginning Saturday for the Stanley Cup.

Game one will air at 8 p.m. Saturday on the VS Channel.

Indy 500

Memorial Day weekend brings barbecues, swimming and ... milk drinking.

The 92nd Indianapolis 500 will be broadcast beginning at noon Sunday on ABC.

I'm rooting, like always, for my favorite, Danica Patrick. She might have the confidence now since getting her first career win recently.

If you don't know what milk has to do with the Indy 500, be sure to watch the end of the race.

What to watch

The Detroit Pistons are playing the Boston Celtics for the Eastern Conference title, and the San Antonio Spurs are taking on the Los Angeles Lakers for the Western Conference title.

The finals began earlier this week and will continue into next week. Coverage is on ESPN and ABC.

Soldier back in the saddle with Wounded Warrior Sports Program

FAMILY AND MWR COMMAND
Tim Hipps

Purple Heart recipient Spc. Jake Lowery launched the Wounded Warrior Sports Program with a team-roping performance at Denny Calhoun Arena in Las Cruces, N.M., May 10-11. Lowery, 26, of Fort Richardson, Alaska, lost his right eye when he was hit by an IED that killed a fellow Soldier in Fallujah, Iraq, on Feb. 11, 2007.

Less than a year later, Lowery, a lifelong cowboy, was back aboard a horse and roping steers despite suffering from a traumatic brain injury and post traumatic stress disorder.

"This pretty much keeps me going — it's the only thing that does," he said. "Without it, I'd just be hanging out in my room somewhere."

The Wounded Warrior Sports Program gives active-duty Soldiers with life-altering injuries an opportunity to compete in sporting events and it pays for their athletic attire, registration, transportation, lodging and per diem.

"This is one of the best things the armed forces could have done, because it's therapy for these guys who feel like 'I lost this. I lost that,'" said retired Sgt. 1st Class Pete Escobedo, Lowery's grandfather.

Lowery teamed with different partners to successfully rope two of six steers in the first round of competition on Saturday. After roping two more in the second round and another in the third, he was sitting in third place entering the final short round. But when prize money came into play, his steer got away.

"It looked good to me," he said of his final toss. "I'm not sure how he got out of it. Maybe I roped him too low."

Tim Hipps

Spc. Jake Lowery, of Fort Richardson, Alaska, competes May 10 in a Troy Shelley Affiliate team roping at Denny Calhoun Arena in Las Cruces, N.M., as part of the Army's new Wounded Warrior Sports Program designed to give injured Soldiers an opportunity to compete in sporting events.

Despite struggling with limited depth perception, Lowery believes his roping skills will improve. He won an all-around crown in Alaska and teamed with his stepfather to capture the team-roping title at the Professional Armed Forces Rodeo Association's 2007 World Finals in Fort Worth, Texas.

"I'm not back to where I was, by any means," Lowery said. "I just keep practicing and hope it eventually comes back."

Pete has faith that Jake will overcome TBI and PTSD. Putting him on a horse is the best therapy he knows.

"Jake has done remarkably well in coping with his injury," Pete said. "Instead of saying: 'Well, I'm injured,' he says: 'I'm going to do what I can. The Good Lord handed me this hand, so I'm going to do with what he dealt me the best that I can.'"

Instructions for the application process to participate in the Wounded Warrior Sports Program are available at www.ArmyMWR.com. For more details, call 719-526-3908 or 703-681-7211.

Benning Soldier qualifies for second Olympic spot

USA SHOOTING
Mary Beth Vorwerk

Sgt. 1st Class Jason Parker of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit was named to the 2008 U.S. Olympic Team Monday after the conclusion of the Men's Three-Position Rifle at the U.S. Olympic Team Trials.

After holding the lead throughout the three days of competition, the three-time Olympian finished on top with an overall score of 3,709.5 points to earn his second spot on the 2008 U.S. Olympic Team.

Parker will represent the USA in both Men's Three-Position Rifle and Men's Air Rifle at the Olympic Games in Beijing this August.

Parker will join 2004 Olympian Matt Emmons on the U.S. team in Men's Three-Position.

Emmons has secured two Olympic team spots, both in Three-Position Rifle and Prone Rifle.

Parker's USAMU teammate Olympic Maj. Michael Anti finished in second place with 3,701.3.

USAMU members Spc. Michael McPhail, Sgt. Eric Uptagrafft and Sgt. Hank Gray finished in the third, fourth and fifth spots respectively.

"You have to learn how to lose, and you have to learn how to handle winning. Winning can get to your head, and losing can make you want to quit. Whatever it is you do in life, you do it until the last out is made."

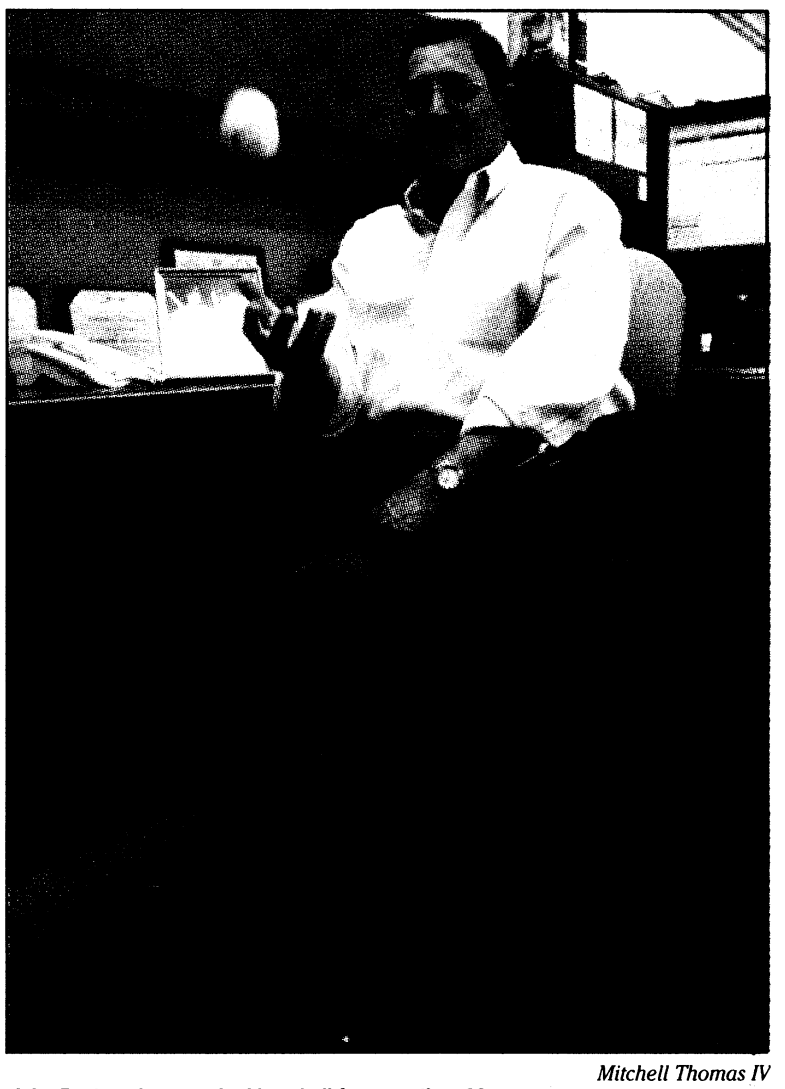
— John Bastone

'Until the last out is made'

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

John Bastone knows the game of baseball. From the sandlot game to his hometown New York Yankees team, there are few things he is more passionate about.

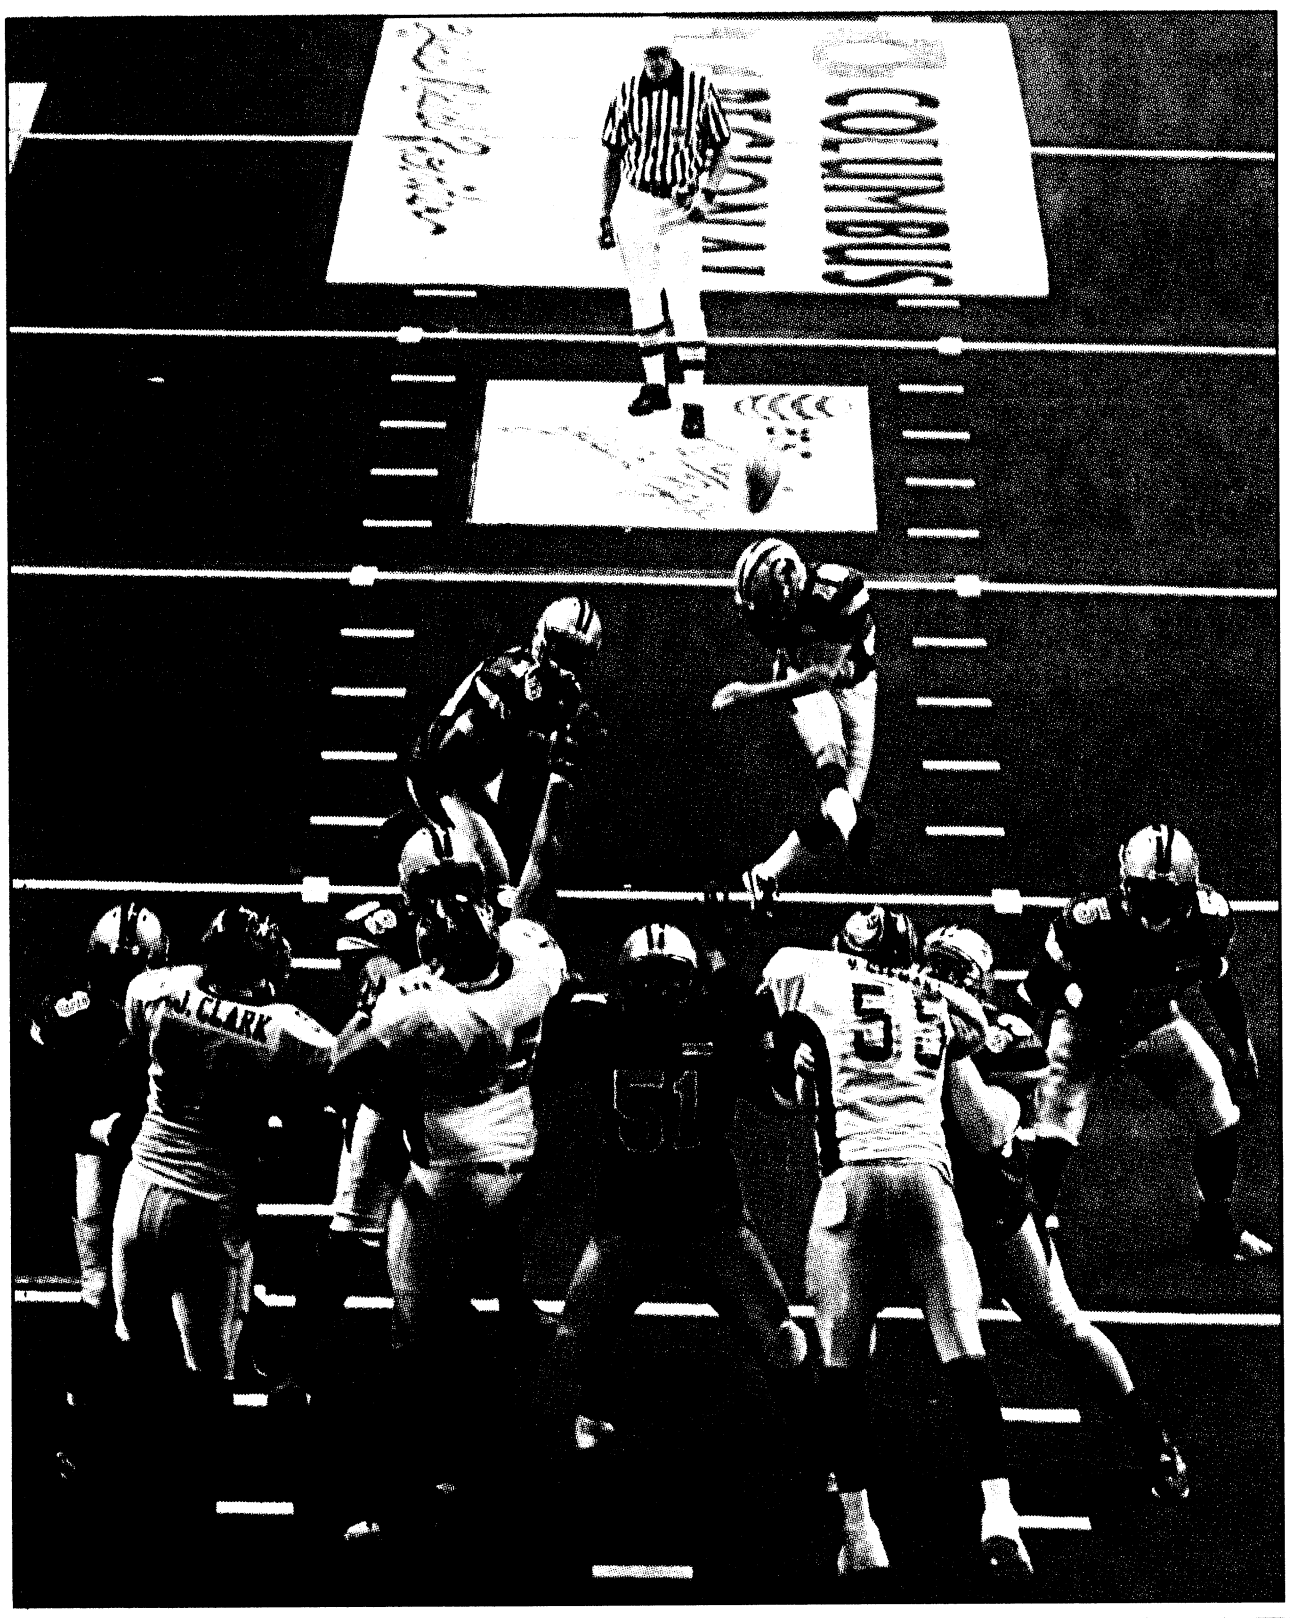
He remembers the joy of carrying his Mickey Mantle card in his hip pocket and the pain of losing the Dodgers to Los Angeles. He can name the '61 Yankees' roster without missing a beat.



"A sport is a tremendous recreational activity that you can put your life into," said Bastone, a retired lieutenant colonel, who has taught baseball for more than 20 years. "You can get lost in it. Sports have been a source of personal enjoyment as well as a way to nurture my children and give back to the community."

Bastone coaches the Northern Minor League Reds, a 9- to 10-year-old team affiliated with the Northern Little League All-Stars who won the Little League World Series in 2006.

"John is a coach for life," said Lt. Col. Tony Carbone, the manager for the Reds. "He is more interested in teaching the kids about being positive, never giving up and doing the right thing in all parts of life. There is special place in my heart, as well as the hearts of all the kids, for him."



Bastone, the deputy TRADOC Capability Manager for Infantry Brigade Combat Team and Close Combat Missile Systems, learned his "never give up" attitude from his father, a poor immigrant from Italy who started a successful restaurant in White Lake, N.Y.

Lions honor Bengals

The Fort Benning Bengals were honored at the May 9 arena football game between the Columbus Lions and the Mississippi Mudcats. At halftime, the Bengals paraded around the arena, where they were greeted by the fans. The 9- to 13-year-old Bengals were members of three Child and Youth Services teams.

Coach: Uses sports to teach life lessons

Bastone enlisted in the Army in 1973 and served as a Soldier with the Special Forces and the 82nd Airborne.

He commanded the Infantry Officer Basic Course, where he trained more than 400 lieutenants, from 1989 to 1991.

"The Army instills that attitude in you to place the mission first, to never quit and to never leave behind a comrade, he said."

Bastone, who missed out on playing organized baseball as a kid, made it his mission to involve his children in sports early. The former high school football player coached his son A.J. in football, baseball, and wrestling. A.J. lettered in all three sports in high school.

"I'm a first generation American. My dad didn't know about the places to play organized baseball," Bastone said "I knew if I had children of my own, I would make sure to get them involved in sports."

Bastone, who doesn't consider himself a natural athlete, even taught himself soccer so he could teach his daughter Gina.

He also coached his youngest son Andy, who finished sixth in his weight class in the state as a member of last year's Columbus High School state champion wrestling team.

"No matter if he was ahead or if he was down, Andy would wrestle the full six minutes, and he would never lay down on a match," Bastone said.

"That was far more important to me than him winning or losing, and I was extremely proud of that."

But Bastone takes even more pride in teaching kids who aren't his own. He said coaching is his responsibility to the community. His baseball team won third place in the city championship last season.

"I'm from the school of positive reinforcement," Bastone said. "Throughout my life, I've received both. Sometimes negative reinforcement works, but most often, especially in the case of these kids, they will just find a different place to play. I get the most enjoyment seeing a player who has never played a day in his life improve exponentially from when the season started."

Bastone also acts as a surrogate parent to the players on his team. He helped change 9-year-old Chance Harris's life with a single conversation three months ago. Chance, who battled low self-esteem and bullied other students in his school, made a complete turnaround, said his mother, Michelle Garto.

"(John) just talked to him and told him about the impact his bullying had on the kids in school as well as the teachers," Garto said. "Chance went back to school and apologized to the kids and the teachers. He has made a great effort in correcting his behavior, and a lot of it was to impress John."

Bastone said coaching is a part of his walk with God and he uses it as a form of ministry. He coached baseball for his church league for several years.

He said much of his ability to teach through coaching was learned in the Army.

"Being a good coach is just being a good leader," Bastone said. "If you show me a good leader in the Army, he could be a good coach if he learned the game."

Bastone tries to pass along something he learned from his father long before he joined the Army — to never quit.

"You have to learn how to lose, and you have to learn how to handle winning," he said. "Winning can get to your head, and losing can make you want to quit. Whatever it is you do in life, you do it until the last out is made."

At 59, Bastone plans on coaching until the last out.

"As long as God allows me to do it, I'll be out there coaching with a cane," Bastone said. "To be out there on that field coaching young children is exactly where I feel I need to be."

Elf Run attracts 675 participants

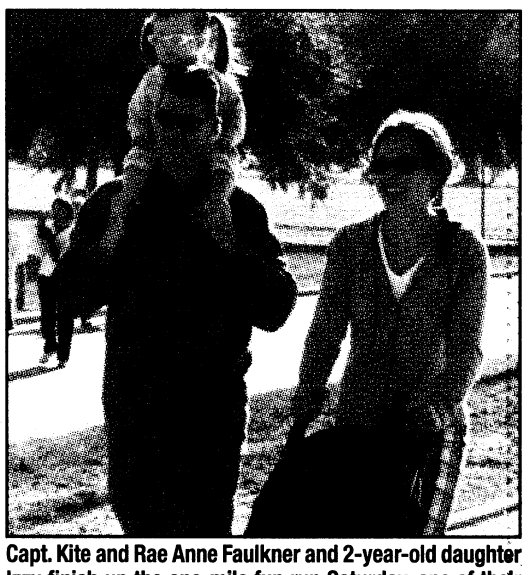
THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

More than 600 people got into the Christmas spirit Saturday at the second annual Elf Run at Stewart-Watson Field. That's more than double the number of participants who showed up for last year's run, said Janene LeMay, Elf Run coordinator.

The annual run, which included a family fun run and a 5K race, raised money for Santa's Castle, a post organization that lets Soldiers who may not have been able to afford Christmas presents pick out toys for their children, free of charge.

"This was my first race," said Shannon Laird, who won second place in the women's category for the 5K, coming in one second short of 24 minutes and eight seconds shy of first place.

She was cheered on Saturday by her husband, Capt. Shawn Butler, and their two children, but she had been motivated to train for a different reason.



"He deployed recently for about four months, and I knew that if I didn't do something I'd go crazy," she said. "So I started running."

Now, Laird said, she is glad she was able to run well for a good cause.

"It's a good fundraiser," she said. "I like it when you know the people you're supporting."

Officer Candidate Dustin McCluskey, D Company, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, said he came out to the race with the rest of his company to help Santa's Castle and "get a good workout out of it, too."

A Company, which ran as a unit, and B Company also attended the Elf Run. The latter, slated to graduate Thursday, supplied two of the winners in the 5K men's division: Lucien Moss took first place and Joseph Cardosi took third.

Capt. Kite and Rae Anne Faulkner and 2-year-old daughter Izzy finish up the one-mile fun run Saturday, one of their first activities on post since they moved here in January.

Jose Solis Jr., son of Maj. Jose Solis Sr., placed second.

Like the Infantry Soldiers, Tandi Morris, wife of Capt. Josef Morris, was there for the exercise and to support Santa's Castle, but unlike the Soldiers who ran in the 5K, Morris was pushing a stroller. She attended the race last year, but this was the first year her whole family walked in the fun run, including 19-month-old Hayden.

"What Santa's Castle does is so important for our families in the community, and I think this is a great fundraiser because it focuses on the families," she said. "It's something that we can all come out and do together and enjoy this beautiful day and know that we're supporting our community in a really important way."

In the 5K women's division, Brinda Nitz was first place and Maj. Heidi Mon was third. For runners under 18, Aron Saylor, 17, won first, Jessica Ridley, 16, took second and Morgan Scott, 14, came in third.

Hermandad defeats Libertadores for intramural soccer championship

The WHINSEC Hermandad knocked off the WHINSEC Libertadores, 3-1, in overtime to win the intramural soccer championship May 15 at Doughboy Stadium. On May 14, Hermandad, who was in the winners bracket, lost to the Libertadores, forcing a one game face off.

In the championship game, both teams' defenses held each other scoreless throughout regulation. In the overtime period, the Libertadores were unable to mount an offensive attack to match the Hermandad team, who held the best regular season record with only one loss.

The chase for the Commander's Cup continues with softball. The preseason softball tournament began Monday and will continue through June 2 at Gowdy Field.

Retiree helps heal Soldiers with fly-fishing

Mitchell Thomas IV

Ken Griffin shows 7-year-old Derek Huell how to cast a rod for fly-fishing during a Family Fishing Night at Fort Benning. This year, Griffin started Fly Fishing for Vets, an organization to help wounded Soldiers enjoy the outdoors and learn the sport of fly fishing.

Fly-fishing excursions available for wounded active duty, National Guard and Reserve Soldiers

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

Two of retired Chief Warrant Officer Ken Griffin's favorite pastimes are fishing and helping Soldiers. He has developed a way to do both at the same time. In January, Griffin founded Fly Fishing for Vets, a nonprofit organization designed to give wounded warriors an opportunity to learn the sport of fly-fishing.

"A Soldier once told me that after he lost his leg, he never thought he'd be able to enjoy the outdoors with his kids again." Griffin said. "At that point, I knew I had to do whatever it took to show wounded Soldiers that they can go out again, and what better way than through fishing."

Griffin knows firsthand the struggle of being a wounded warrior. As a young lieutenant in Vietnam, he was hit by a mortar round that sent fragments into his back and legs. Fishing helped him return to a sense of normalcy.

"When you're out fly-fishing, there is nothing more peaceful and beautiful than the surroundings and the peace that it provides," said Griffin, who worked for the Secretary of Defense at the Pentagon before retiring in 2001. He has been fishing for 25 years.

"The first time I went out after my injury, hearing the sound of the water rippling on the rocks made a great impact on me. It provides a sense of healing and independence. The two greatest places in the world to me are on a golf course or on a river fly-fishing."

The program will give the Soldiers and their families an all expense paid excursion to one of various locations, including Callaway Gardens, where, Soldiers will learn the basics and advanced techniques of catch and release fly-fishing from a professional fishing guide. The Soldiers will be provided with fishing equipment, including a fly rod, reel and line, which they will keep.

The spouses of the Soldiers are treated to a spa day. The couple is also provided with an evening stay at a hotel. The Soldier's children will be allowed to take part in numerous activities at Callaway. Soldiers are responsible for transportation to the fishing location.

Since January, Griffin has raised nearly $5,000 for the program and received equipment donations from various fishing outlets throughout the state.

But Griffin said the greatest reward will be seeing the impact fly-fishing makes on Soldiers after trying it for the first time. Sgt. 1st Class Clarence Eady will be the first Soldier to enjoy the benefits of the fishing trip. Eady, a National Guard Soldier, lost his left leg and suffered severe burns to his right leg from an IED explosion in 2005 during a tour in Iraq.

"When you're critically injured, your whole life is changed," Eady said.

"Your life is turned upside down, and you tend to think you can't do certain things anymore. So a program like this will be great for me and my family to enjoy some of the things I may have thought I'd lost."

Griffin, a father of three, also gives his time to the families on post. He and a group volunteer fly-fisherman give fly-fishing workshops to kids during the post's monthly Family Fishing Nights.

Griffin said the primary goal of the fly-fishing trip is to teach wounded Soldiers an activity they can do for the rest of their lives.

"Let's face facts, as you get older, you won't be able to play certain sports anymore," he said. "We don't want this to be simply a one-day trip for the Soldiers. Any place in the world where there's fish, you can do fly-fishing. We hope they'll want to continue to do it and enjoy it with their families."

The trip is available to active duty, Reserve and National Guard Soldiers, assigned to the Warrior Transition Battalion.

For information, call Griffin at 678-993-9896. To donate funds to the program, visit wwww.flyfishingforvets.com.

Hunters are reminded that all deer, turkeys, hogs, doves, squirrels and quail harvested on Fort Benning must be reported using the TELTRACK Hunter Control System by calling 706-545-8387 and selecting menu item number 4.

EAR TAGS

Auburn University is conducting a study of the feral pigs on Fort Benning to understand their population size, reproductive rates, movement patterns and food habits. This information will help determine what impacts feral pigs have on habitat, wildlife populations and military training.

Pig hunters, please report the ear tag number, ear tag color, date harvested and general location of harvest to the Conservation Branch.

Several pigs have been fitted with radio-tracking collars to help us determine habitat use.

Please attempt to identify and avoid harvesting collared pigs.

If a collared pig is harvested or found, please return the collar to Conservation Branch, First Division Road, Building 5884, Harmony Church.

For more information, call 706-544-7079, 706-544-7516 or 707-544-7319.

FIT FACTS

DFMWR FITNESS
Lori Smith

Happy Friday to you all. For the past few weeks, we have been discussing heart health and what we can do to be heart healthy.

To recap, I said there were three simple steps to help reduce the risk factors for heart disease. We have discussed these two steps in the last two articles of Fit Facts, and they are stop smoking and get busy — stay active.

This week, I am going to talk about the final step, and that's good nutrition. When we talk about nutrition, we are talking about a healthy diet. When added to the things we have already talked about — not smoking and being active — it leads to a healthy life, which is your best weapon to fight cardiovascular disease.

I want to give you a few steps for you to make part of your life and receive some long-term benefits to your health.

Watch the calories you take in and make sure they are at least as many as you use up. Everyone burns calories differently, just as every person's body is different.

You need to know how many calories your body needs daily to maintain your weight, and try not to eat more than you can burn in a day. This number is different based on a number of different factors such as gender, age and level of activity.

I found a great Web site that you can input your personal information into, and it will tell you how many calories you should be taking in daily. Go to www.calorie-count.com; then go to tools and expenditure and type in your information. It also can tell you how many calories you need if you want to lose weight.

Once you get your number, try to focus on getting the correct number of calories for you and follow a nutritious diet with foods from all the food groups.

Your body needs a variety of nutrients to be healthy. Nutrient rich foods have vitamins, minerals, fiber and other nutrients but are lower in calories. Choose foods like vegetables, fruits, whole-grain products and fat-free or low-fat dairy products. Here are a few good examples of the above mentioned foods:

Grains — These include bread, cereal, cooked rice or pasta. With grains at least half of your serving should be whole grains, and watch the sugar content.

Vegetables — Everyone's favorite. These include leafy raw veggies like lettuce, raw or cooked veggies like broccoli, and veggie juice. Eat a variety of colors and types.

Fruits — These include fresh fruit, frozen or canned fruit, dried fruit and fruit juice. Try to get a variety of colors and types of these as well.

Fat-free or low-fat dairy products — These include milk, yogurt and cheese.

In addition, try to get your recommended servings of lean meats including chicken and fish. To get a better idea of your recommended serving for the different food groups, go to www.mypyramid.gov. This site has a ton of information about suggested serving sizes, the various food groups and how to tell what a serving size is.

My last tip is to eat less of the nutrient poor foods. When I looked up my calories, I found out I used about 2,000 calories a day, so that's what I should be taking in. If I want to lose weight, then I need about 1,500 calories.

Now, if I could just eat two of those cookie ice cream sandwiches every day and lose weight, I would do it. But last time I looked, giant cookie ice cream sandwiches have almost zero nutrients, and not what my body needs to be healthy.

They are what we call nutrient poor foods. Here are a few ways to develop an overall healthy eating plan with nutrient rich foods.

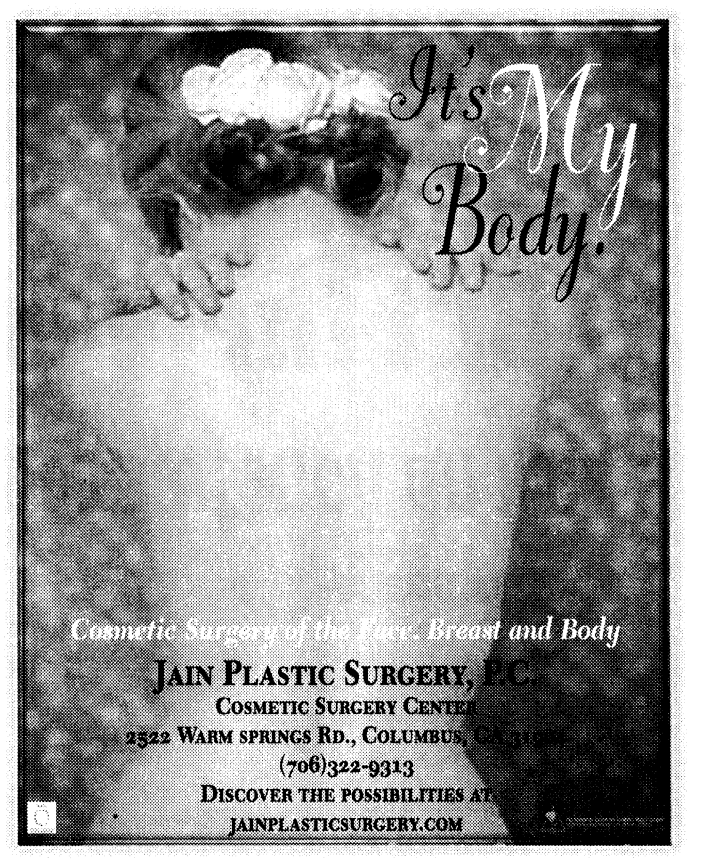
Choose lean meats and poultry without skin and prepare them without added saturated and trans fat. Here are a few examples: removing all visible fat from meat and poultry before cooking, cutting back on processed meats and choosing cuts of red meat marked "loin" or "round." These usually have the least amount of fat.

If you are having a hard time switching from full-fat dairy products to fat-free and low-fat try to gradually switch by mixing half 2 percent and half fat-free, then continue to reduce the 2 percent until you're left with only fat-free.

Cut back on food containing partially hydrogenated vegetable oils to reduce the trans fats in your diets.

To do this, try using liquid vegetable oils and soft margarines in place of the hard margarine and shortening.

Watch your intake of foods high in cholesterol. These include eggs, shellfish, whole milk and "organ" meats such as liver.



Cut back on beverages and foods with added sugars. I am going to do a whole Fit Facts on sugar, but for now read the ingredient list and choose items that don't have added sugars in their first four listed ingredients, and watch your salt intake.

I hope this was a bit helpful to you. Nutrition is one of the most important ways to help yourself to a healthy life, but probably the least followed. I am not a big fan of eating my veggies either, but it can make all the difference to you in your healthy life. Thanks for reading and stay happy and healthy.

There just might be room for your view

Phenix City cable station will host casting call for Army wives

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

Picture yourself on The View. Only not The View, but a View-like talk show featuring four Army wives and a couch. Maybe a couch.

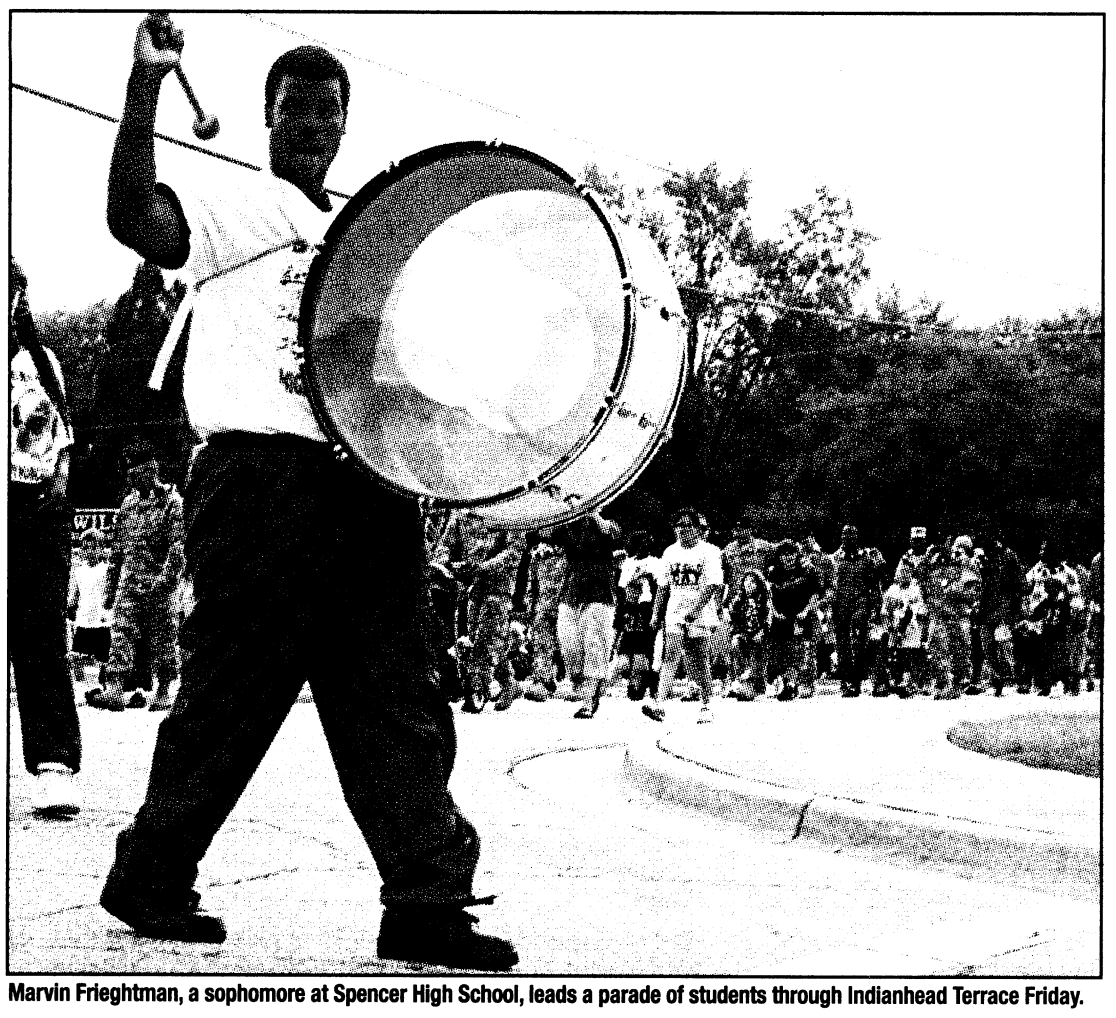
Cable TV of East Alabama will host a casting call May 31 for an unscripted show featuring four women with different perspectives on Army life. Preferably four women from Alabama.

Kelly Klein will produce the weekly show, which will likely start airing on Channel 7 in East Alabama sometime this summer. Kelly is a Reserve Soldier, a former Army broadcast journalist and the wife of a Fort Benning Soldier. She knows a thing or two about life as we live it, married to an Army at war. Kelly's husband was deployed for two years shortly after their first child was born. These days he spends 12- or 14-hour days on Sand Hill, shaping a new generation of Infantrymen. The Kleins live in Phenix City.

"I know what it's like to move off post and really miss it. It's easy to feel out of the loop," Kelly said. "We want to bring together women who have something to say, something to offer other women who go through what they go through."

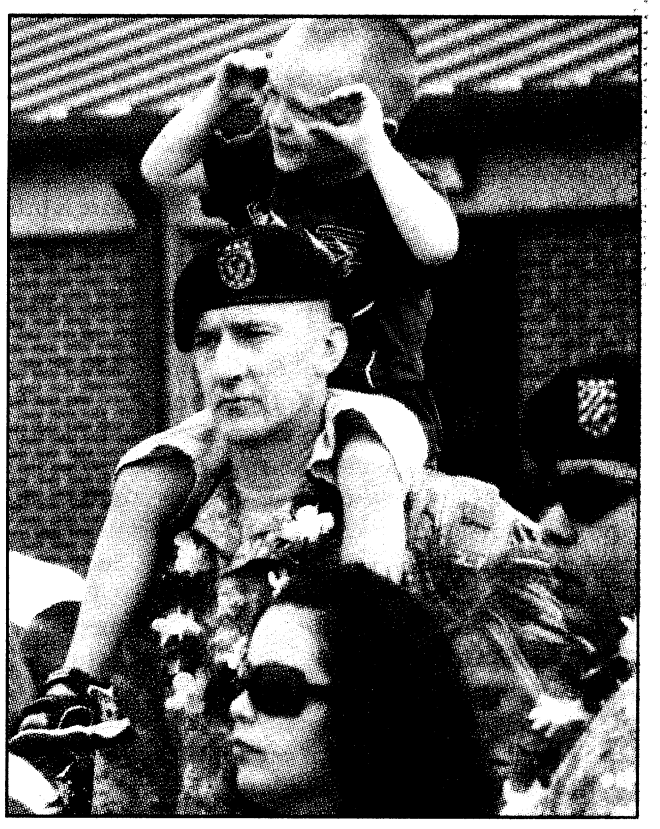
Ideally, Kelly said, she'd like to find a young wife new to the Army life — "someone with a fresh perspective," — a Soldier's wife with children, an officer's wife and the wife of a retired Soldier or one getting ready to retire. But she's keeping her options open. That's why the casting call is open to everyone. Naturally, being that the station is in Phenix City, Kelly would like to feature "local talent," but she's not discounting Fort Benning wives by any measure. Come one, come all, to the Phenix City Amphitheater between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. May 31.

Bring the kids if you like. Dress casual, Kelly said, and "be yourself." Actually, what she said was: "Bring your personality. Be real. Dress like you dress every day, and come as you are. Let us see the real you."



Kelly said it should take maybe two hours at the most to shoot the show each week, so working wives and moms with small children need not be discouraged from trying out. Pay is minimal, but the perks are sure to be grand.

"This is a great way to get involved in the community, to feel like you're making a difference in the lives of other women," Kelly said. "If you can impact other people, I guess that would make you an important person."



So if you think you might like to be an important person, meet Kelly May 31 at the Phenix City Amphitheater.

If you have a question, a suggestion for the name of the show or a topic you'd like to see addressed, shoot Kelly an e-mail atKKlein@ctvea.net.

Parade of Heroes

Marvin Frieghtman, a sophomore at Spencer High School, leads a parade of students through Indianhead Terrace Friday.

Four-year-old Joseph Dyer watches the celebration with his dad, Spc. David Howery, who returned from Iraq April 27 with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team advanced party. Howery and his 3rd HBCT cohorts were guests of honor at the Wilson Elementary School Parade of Heroes. A third of Wilson students had a parent deployed this year.

Wilson welcomes 3rd HBCT warriors

A third of the 300 students at Fort Benning's Wilson Elementary School had — or still has — a parent deployed. Most of them are serving with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, and most will be home by the time their children clear the books out of their desks.

Friday, during annual end-of-year field day activities, the students of Wilson welcomed the 3rd HBCT home from Iraq with a Parade of Heroes. Led by Spencer High School cheerleaders and the marching band, Wilson students took their heroes by the hand and marched them through the Indianhead Terrace community.

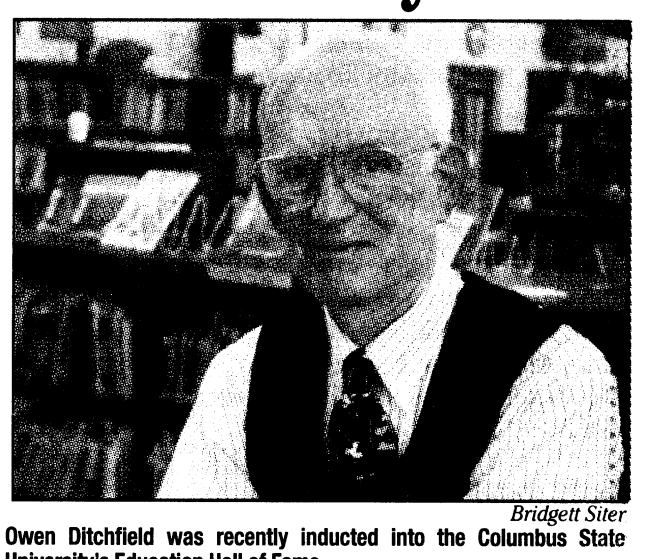
"I think that's what made it so special, the kids marching with their parents — the whole family together again," said Evelyn Montgomery, the Wilson counselor who heads up a Deployment Club for the children of deployed parents.

Montgomery said the students and staff are mindful that not everyone is celebrating.

"At a time like this, we have a tendency to forget that we still have Soldiers deployed," she said. "While we're celebrating, we need to remember there are kids still waiting."

The dance is over: Ditchfield taps out after 46 years

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter



After more than 46 years of federal service, Owen Ditchfield is hanging up his hat. But just one of them. Today, the White Elementary School media specialist will retire from his day job and concentrate on those other interests that have consumed his spare time for decades — his family, his garden and his community.

This wasn't always the plan. In fact, this wasn't the plan until January, when Ditchfield attended a technology conference in New Jersey for Department of Defense educators. Ditchfield is by all accounts a forward thinker, a long-time social activist and avid conservationist from way back. "He was green before it was cool to be green," is how one colleague put it. But the increasing employment of new technology in the classroom was simply more than Ditchfield could wrap his mind around.

At the end of the conference, Ditchfield experienced a moment of clarity when filling out a survey. To the question "What's the first thing you're going to do when you get back?" he responded with a word: retire.

"I'm a twentieth century guy in a twenty-first century world," he said. "I love kids, I love books and I love to read, but this technology is killing me. And I wouldn't be comfortable hanging out for three more years and not doing the job the way it

Reaping rewards for reading

"What a way to arrive at work," said Stowers Principal Angie McPherson, after she landed in the Blackhawk helicopter on the school lawn Friday. The landing was a surprise to the students, a reward for earning 25,000 points in their Reading Counts program. Besides the Blackhawk, the students got a close-up look at humvees, combatives equipment, an emergency vehicle and a Stryker. Stowers' Partners in Education, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, sponsored the celebration.

Post educators honored at end-of-year reception

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Those who work with post schools were honored at a reception Tuesday at the Benning Club.

"We all know that when push comes to shove and it comes right down to it, it's the teachers with those kids in those classrooms who make or break the education," said Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski, Fort Benning's commanding general, during the reception.

"I believe that firmly," he said. "I think there's ample proof of that in the performance of our children later in life."

It's the last reception for Roger King, a sixth-grade language arts teacher at Faith Middle School, who retired this week after 22 years of teaching at Faith.

"Teaching is the best profession in the world," he said. "The thing I like about teaching is that nothing is predictable. You can expect something different every day. And working with the kids is rewarding because what you do has a positive impact on them throughout their lives."

Sometimes he has the opportunity to hear about that impact, like when a former student met him by chance at a grocery store and mentioned that she had taught her two children songs she learned in his class.

"It makes you feel like it's all worthwhile," said King, a self-proclaimed "frustrated guitar player" who put his musical abilities to work in the classroom, teaching children the parts of speech and more.

"We do a lot of singing and rapping that the kids seem to enjoy, but more than that it helps them remember what they're supposed to," said King, who plans to do volunteer work that will still bring him in contact with children.

Mamie Rush, a teacher at Loyd Elementary, works with a much younger age group — 29 kindergartners to be exact.

"It's a lot of children in one room," she said. "We have an action-packed classroom."

Rush said it was nice to be recognized by the installation for her work with children, but the biggest reward was the children themselves.

"They're at an age to influence," she said. "It's exciting to see how a hug or smile can encourage and motivate children at this age. It really sets the stage for their educational future."

After 28 years, Rush still loves her job.

With some of the best schools in the area, the only thing for Fort Benning to do is keep improving, Wojdakowski said.

"Next fall we're just going to get better, each and every one of us, having better schools than we had this year," he said.

Ditchfield: Will continue to work in his community should be done. I always said when the dance was over, I'd take off my shoes. It's time to take off my shoes."

Ditchfield likes to set goals for himself. He made up his mind to donate 10 gallons of blood, and he did it. ("That was a rough day," he said without cracking a smile.) He decided to "work back up" to 50 push-ups a day, and he did it. He set his sights on a 50-year federal service pin, and almost made it. "Close enough," he said, a wise man knows when to alter the plan.

Ditchfield has plenty of experience "altering the plan." Early on, he planned a career in forestry. It was a counselor at Montana State University who pointed out to the young man from California that forestry was not his forte; math and science were his weakest subjects. It would be like a right-handed person trying to use his left hand, his counselor said. Ditchfield switched to journalism, and it was a good fit.

After graduating from college, where he was a member of the ROTC, Ditchfield decided to put his education to work for the Army. He set out for Fort Benning in a '56 Volkswagen van, crossing the southern part of the country for the first time in his life.

"And I saw Jim Crowe sitting on every fence post," he said. "In college, we had a teacher who was raised in the South, raised on a maid's knee, and he told us in a class on social problems what to expect. Intellectually, it was all there, but it didn't really hit home till I saw it for myself."

It was a sobering experience and one that would influence Ditchfield for many years to come.

He reported to Fort Benning for the Officer's Basic Course on Jan. 3, 1962, the same day that E.A. White Elementary School was dedicated. That's one of those little ironies Ditchfield enjoys so much. After Airborne and Ranger training, he returned to the West Coast to marry his college sweetheart, Mabel Myrick, and headed to Fort Hood, Texas, to serve with the 1st Armored Division.

In the next 10 years, the couple added four babies to the family and Ditchfield spent two tours in Vietnam, once with a Public Affairs unit and once with the 101st Airborne Division. For a time he served as a Kit Carson Scout coordinator, integrating former Vietcong soldiers into South Vietnamese and U.S. forces. Twice he was awarded a Purple Heart.

Owen and Mabel bought a home in Oakland Park in 1968, when the growing community just outside Fort Benning's South Lumpkin entrance was attracting hordes of families from Fort Benning. All kinds of families.

"It was like a mini United Nations," he said. "It was a great place to live. I could walk around my block, literally, and hear people speaking Spanish, Korean, Italian, Hungarian and Japanese. And German and French."

Ditchfield loved his multicultural community, so much so that when the Army implemented a reduction in force in 1972, he decided to settle in Columbus and alter his plan once again.

"I had planned to stay in and make a career of it," he said. "It was disappointing but sometimes you've got to let go and follow God's plan. I realized he was leading me into teaching."

Ditchfield spent six years teaching eighth-grade English at Faith Middle School before moving to Loyd, where he taught the fifth grade for nine years. Somewhere along the way, he accompanied Mabel into Columbus, so she wouldn't have to travel alone after dark, and sat in on classes as she earned her certification to become a librarian. Those classes paid off for Mabel, who worked at a number of post schools, and Owen, who took the media specialist position at White 21 years ago.

There he created an atmosphere unlike the libraries of his youth, a place where children were encouraged to explore and interact.

"I do things here that are different than the things I didn't like about libraries when I was a kid," he said. "Kids can walk and talk — they can't shout and run, but they can be kids. It's a library, not a church."

Ditchfield said he looked for innovative ways to appeal to young learners. He hosted slumber parties in the media center. For years, he kept an active beehive there. He coached White's undefeated Battle of the Books team for several years and spearheaded the school's annual phonebook recycling drive. Each year, with the students' help, he tended a vegetable garden at the school. And he's planted more than 100 trees on the school grounds.

Ditchfield's style as an educator stems from his diverse interests, and those interests will carry him into retirement, said Dr. Tommy Lee, the principal at White, at a reception last week for Ditchfield.

The reception was attended by his colleagues and a number of local politicians, city leaders and Muscogee County School administrators who know Ditchfield from his extracurricular activities and community activism. Ditchfield's friends are a reflection of his involvement in the community, particularly the community right outside his door, Lee said.

"He lives and breathes South Columbus," Lee said.

As the president of South Columbus Concerned Citizens, Ditchfield advocates for a return to the healthy, prosperous and diverse international community he knew when he settled there with his family 40 years ago. He's confident he'll see it happen in the next 10 years.

When he's not working toward that end, Ditchfield will have plenty of time to spend in his garden and on his bicycle.

He and Mabel plan to visit their children and grandchildren, who are flung from here to China.

"Oh, I'll have plenty to keep me busy," he said. "I'll miss the kids. I'll miss the hugs. I don't think it will hit me until the first of August when I don't go back to school."

192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE
Chaplain (Maj.) Steve Cantrell

"Bless the Lord, who is my rock. He gives me strength for war and skill for battle."
— Psalm 144:1

What I know about Memorial Day, I learned from American veterans and local communities. Memorial Day was first known as Decoration Day when Americans decorated the graves of their loved ones back in the years just after the Civil War.

I like to think of our Memorial Day traditions as being as diverse as a rainbow. We often speak of "styles." Fashion styles, jewelry, home decorating, as well as leadership and personality styles. Here are two personal stories of Memorial Day memories in my style.

During the past three years at Fort Benning, I've had the distinct honor of being part of the 173rd Airborne Association's local chapter. I've grown closer to the Lord through the blessing of being around the Sky Soldier Veterans and their spouses.

The retired "Herd" men of the 173rd Airborne don their berets with unit crests and flashes of the past and put on a nice jacket. We march to the music of great highland bagpipes over to a section of the Main Post Cemetery where several 173rd Airborne Brigade Soldiers are buried. The veterans and their spouses stand quiet and place a wreath. The men share a few memories and call out the names of buddies who died in Vietnam.

My second story takes me back almost 15 years ago.

When I was a pastor in Northern Minnesota, the local VFW, VFW Ladies Auxiliary and the POW/MIA group would spend Memorial Day in a noble and patriotic fashion.

Beginning at the nursing home with a short ceremony, a large caravan of cars and trucks would then drive from cemetery to cemetery escorted by the sheriff. At each stop, we would have a short ceremony.

The VFW men would gather with an honor guard and 21-gun salutes at each community cemetery. Trumpets sounding Taps echoed through the paper birch and balsam fir forests that surrounded the cemeteries. The Ladies Auxiliary would place a beautiful wreath of flowers.

I would offer a prayer thanking God for the sacrifices of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines and Coast Guard, their families and loved ones.

The last stop would be at Lake Winnibigoshish dam. The VFW team would toss three wreaths of flowers into the waters at the overlook between loud and thunderous phrases of "on the land, in the air, on the sea." Then the group would travel to the VFW post for a luncheon.

When communities come together in their own styles and traditions to remember our veterans who died in combat, we form fond memories of Memorial Day.

Appreciate your own way of celebrating Memorial Day. As I did, you may choose to tell someone a story of past Memorial Day celebrations you attended. You may find a ceremony to attend this weekend or do something more private. Perhaps you will find yourself praying for recent and past departed and their families.

The volunteer spirit may point you in the direction of a nearby VA hospital. You may find yourself being a little more flag-conscious and respect-conscious.

Some folks may curl up on a sofa to watch a classic war movie. Whatever the color of your rainbow, whatever your style or tradition, get the most out of it this weekend.

Be safe and attend worship this weekend. Remember, St. Paul said for us to "Give respect and honor to all to whom it is due" in Romans 13:7.

REUNIONS

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Richard Garvey

It's here. It's real. The time has finally come. Your Soldier gets to take off the body armor and Kevlar and sleep in his or her own bed right beside you.

Reunion — it's a beautiful thing, isn't it? It's the moment that so many of you and your families have been waiting for. I pray for your successful reintegration.

Just a reminder, spouses. You are invited to attend the Day 9 marriage workshop with your Soldier. Free child care is provided. All you have to do is sign up so we know how much help we need.

I will address combat stress to help you and your Soldier understand some of the stressors of combat and talk about some of the differences between men and women, addressing specifically our communication differences.

I will also address the four essential elements every relationship needs to thrive.

So, if you have not signed up, let your spouse know you want to go or call Evelyn Livermore at 706-505-6273 for child care reservations. You do not have to go to formation with your Soldier; just come to the Follow Me chapel on Main Post across from the theater at 9 a.m. if your Soldier is attending a morning session and at 2 p.m. if your Soldier is attending the afternoon session. I hope to see you there.

Last week, I began a series of articles designed to help every Soldier or spouse in the midst of the joys and challenges of redeployment back to Ft. Benning. We talked about the fact that there have never been more resources leveraged for your success in the history of the Army, and I'll close with a review of those helps again this week.

In the meantime, let me share some wisdom from those who have "been there, done that" and successfully navigated coming home a time or two before.

Expectations: Know what you want. Tell those you love what you want, and you'll be far more likely to get what you want.

Communication of expectations is huge in setting yourself up for success in reunion.

Do you want to be busy as soon as you or your loved one hits home, or do you want to just veg and sit tight?

Do you want to receive other families or do you want to just be alone with your immediate loved ones?

Are you thinking that "he'll take the kids," while he's thinking that "she's going to give me nothing but peace and quiet"?

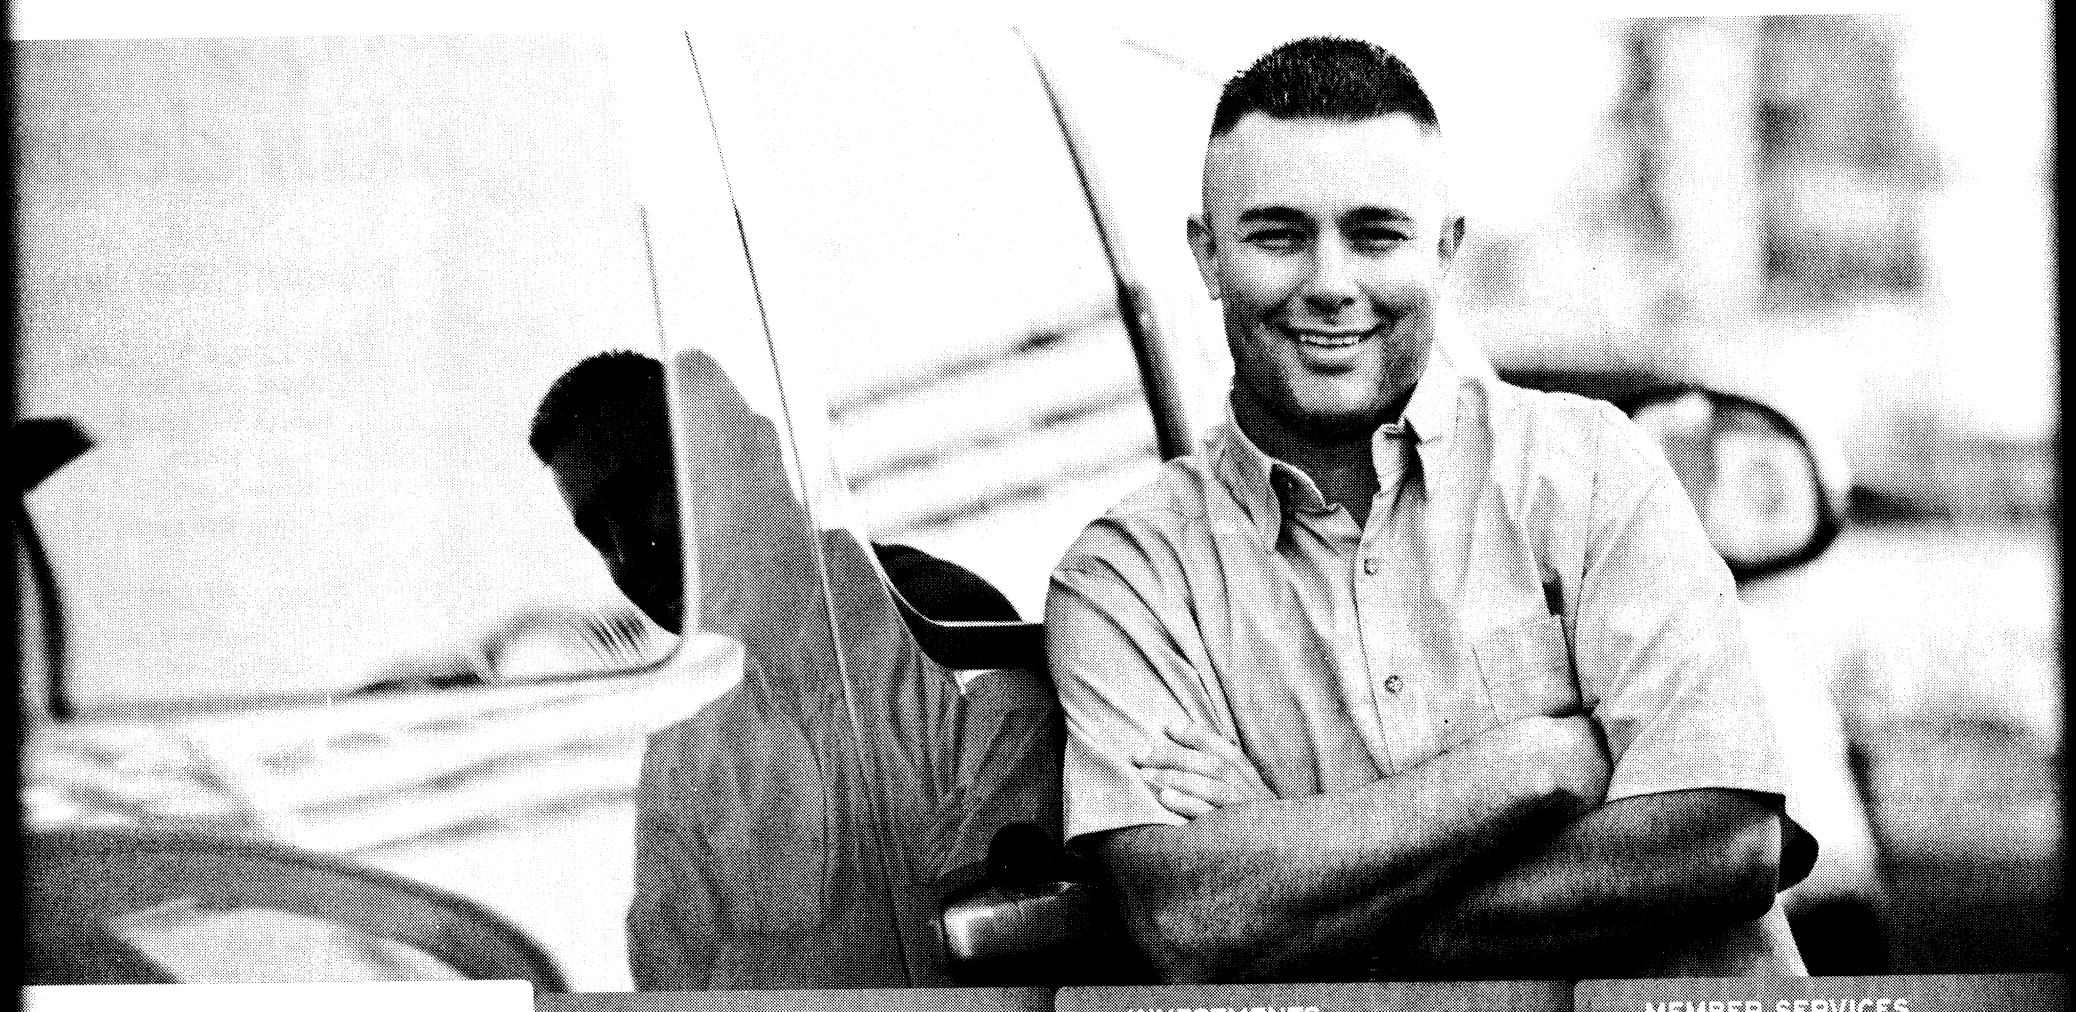
What are your expectations regarding physical closeness? I know he wants to be together, but do you want things to move slowly?

Head off frustrations by communicating and negotiating expectations right before and right after getting home.

Fluctuations: Don't be surprised if highs turn to lows and lows turn back to highs again.

In addition to tons of expectations flying around the house or barrack's room, there's also lots of emotion associated with your homecoming ... on both sides. If you sense a lull or even restlessness after the incredible high of hitting the ground back in the good old USA, just know that's normal.

In fact many Soldiers may even feel "uneasy" for several weeks in their new surroundings. If so, don't sweat it. It's just part of coming back to one planet after having lived on a radically different planet for a year.



So how do you deal with expectations and fluctuations?

The good news is that there is help all around you. You have been given a reintegration book on the first day of your reintegration training.

Spouses and family have no fear. You have a whole host of helping agencies, including our counseling center, The Chaplain Family Life Center, which offers caring, confidential counseling to Soldiers, couples, and families as they work their way through getting together after the Army has taken them apart.

Make an appointment by calling 545-1760. Remember, we're proud of you; we're here for you.

John Conlee salutes military families

Country legends headline concert in Phenix City

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

You know John Conlee. You just don't know you know John Conlee. Even if you aren't a fan of old school country music, you've heard his signature Rose Colored Glasses a time or two. Or 200.

Long before there was Dierks or Brad or Tim, back when the line between country and pop was less blurry, there was John Conlee singing about life and love and the common cares of the common man. These days he's singing about cares common to you and me.

In They Also Serve, Conlee sings about the families who wait for their Soldiers to return from combat. Soon after he filmed the video nearly four years ago at Fort Campbell, Ky., Conlee's son shipped off to Iraq for the first time. Now, having seen his son come and go twice, Conlee said the song means more to him than ever.

"I love a song that has a message, and this one means a lot to me, because it underscores the sacrifices of the families who wait and worry and pray for their loved ones to come home," he said. "By the time this video came out, we were saying goodbye to my son. Then we were like every other family out there, just waiting, wanting to hear from him every day. It really brought the song home to us."

Conlee hit it big in Nashville in 1978 and climbed the charts to number one 26 times in the next two decades with songs like Back Side of 30, Common Man and Lady Lay Down. He laid low for a while, relatively speaking, to concentrate on his family, the farm back in Nashville and benefit concerts like Farm Aid.

Conlee served in the National Guard for six years during the Vietnam War. He doesn't want to see today's Soldiers suffer the way Vietnam veterans did when they came back home. He uses his platform to share that message.

The message he'll share Sunday, when he performs They Also Serve at the Phenix City Amphitheater, will be particularly relevant to Fort Benning families.

"I say thank God for you, for your service and your steadfastness in serving and supporting the men and women on the front line," he said.

Sunday, Conlee will get to perform with one of his heroes, Grand Ole Opry legend Little Jimmy Dickens, who inspired Conlee way back when Conlee was a kid learning to play guitar.

"One of the first song books I put my hands on was Little Jimmy's Song Book No. 1," Conlee said. "I never dreamed I'd get to see him, much less sing with him on the stage of the Opry."

Tickets will be $15 at the gate, which will open at 7 p.m., an hour before the show. But there's still time to pick up discount tickets for $10 at local Action Buildings and SunTrust Banks.

How absurd

Jeff Watkins

Rosencrantz (Nicholas Faircloth) and Guildenstern (Paul Hester), childhood friends of the Danish prince, don't know what to make of Hamlet's (Paul McClain) strange metaphors in Shakespeare Tavern's first production of Tom Stoppard's Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead.

Philosophy meets slapstick at The New American Shakespeare Tavern

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

If you've never seen an absurdist tragicomedy turned on its head, then you must experience Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead, now playing at The New American Shakespeare Tavern in Atlanta.

This contorted version of Hamlet is told through the clever wordplay of Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, two minor characters who enjoy only a handful of lines in Shakespeare's play. In Tom Stoppard's droll yet poignant rendition, however, they take centerstage. Wit, humor and not a little bit of circus tumbling abound, while Rosencrantz and Guildenstern blunder forward from scene to scene, with little say in their own actions.

In this existential farce, the question is not "to be or not to be," but rather what "being" itself entails, as our two bumbling protagonists examine free will, fate, identity and art, while the tragedy of Hamlet plays out in the background.

Part of the Tavern experience, a seasonal menu of traditional English fare is served before each show with dessert and drinks available at intermission. The king's supper sandwich and rainy day tomato soup are house favorites I can personally vouch for. The apple crisp a la mode, simple in concept, is bold in flavor and not to be missed. Menu prices are all less than $10.

Showtimes are 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 6:30 p.m. Sundays. Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead will run through June 1.

On June 5, a Tavern classic and family-friendly comedy, Much Ado About Nothing, starts up and lasts through July 6.

Seating is on a first come, first served basis within the three sections: main floor, box seats and balcony, but reservations are strongly suggested.

Ticket prices range from $12 to $32, depending on the day and seating section selected. There are military discounts of $3 as well as student, educator and senior discounts. Order your tickets in advance by phone or online.

For more information, call 404-874-5299 or visit www.shakespearetavern.com.

Westville at war

The Creek Indians and the Georgia militia will battle it out for the last time — again — at Westville this weekend during the annual 1836 Creek Indian War re-enactment. Skirmishes are scheduled to start at 12:30 and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The re-enactment is based upon events that took place in 1836 in the town of Roanoke in Stewart County, the site of the last Indian battles in Georgia.

Admission is $8 for adults with military ID and $4 for children. Westville is 35 miles south of Fort Benning, off US 27 in Lumpkin, Ga. For more information, call 888-733-1850.

BOOK REVIEW

Weintraub's 15 Stars focuses on generals' impact on the nation

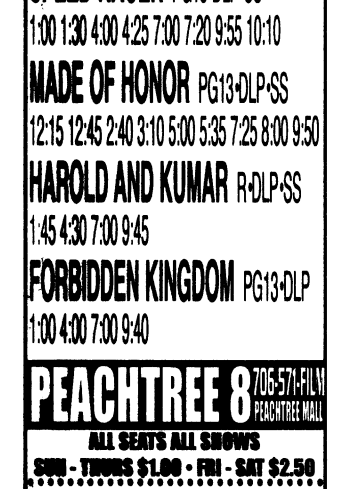
BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Maj. Matthew Archambault

During conflicts people rally not only around the flag, but also around their heroes. WorldWar II had its fair share of heroes. The conflict necessitated the creation of a new rank — five stars, general of the Army. Seven men first held this rank in both the Navy and the Army, but few dominated and captured the American imagination as did Dwight Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur and George Marshall. Stanley Weintraub's book 15 Stars focuses on these men, their relationships with each other and their impact on the nation they served.

Mythmaking is usually at the expense of humanity. The process tends to include a large degree of air-brushing. The lionized heroes grow larger than life and beyond the realm of the possible. 15 Stars removes the veneer and reveals these men as they were: fallible, patriotic, vacillating and courageous. While there is a degree of sadness to see the imperfections it is these very imperfections that teach us what we ought to emulate and venerate in our heroes.

15 Stars details the events from the Louisiana Maneuvers of 1941 until each of these men crosses the river nearly 20 years later. Brief flashbacks to World War I and Post-WWI events further refine how each moved in, around, above, below and adjacent to each other and irrevocably influenced each other's lives.

Weintraub is exceedingly thorough at providing excerpts from letters and diaries, which creates a balanced and unfiltered look at these men. He betrays no discernible favoritism and allows the reader to digest the information with an open mind. As far as a character study, though, Weintraub offers no analysis or expert opinion on his subjects. He lets the facts speak for themselves, and 15 Stars comes across as more of a detailed history of the nation.



Interestingly he seems to omit some details in favor of others. Weintraub glosses over the tactical and operational details of the battles while he goes long in the tooth on political intrigues. This tendency removes much of the relevancy for military students.

While there are no startling revelations in 15 Stars, readers may find the realities of 1940's America somewhat familiar. The fact America was not eager to fight this war, the many adamantly opposed to Roosevelt's prosecution of it and the political machinations which ensued casts our current travails in a different light. Anyone interested in a different perspective on this crucial time in our nation's history ought to pick up 15 Stars.

Stanley Weintraub is a Professor of Arts and Humanities at Pennsylvania State University. He is also the author of Silent Night and 11 Days in December.

Opening Today
INDIANA JONES AND THE KINGDOM OF THE CRYSTAL SKULL

In 1957, Indiana Jones (Harrison Ford) is thrust back in action, venturing into the jungles of South America in a race against Soviet agents to find the mystical Crystal Skull.

Also Playing
THE CHRONICLES OF NARNIA: PRINCE CASPIAN

One year later, the kings and queens of Narnia find themselves back in Narnia, only to discover that more than 1,300 years have passed in Narnian time. During their absence, Narnia has been conquered by the Telmarines and is now under the control of the evil King Miraz (Sergio Castellitto).

The four children will soon meet Narnia's rightful heir to the throne, Prince Caspian (Ben Barnes), who has been forced into hiding as his uncle Miraz plots to kill him. With the help of a mouse, a badger and a Black Dwarf, the Narnians embark to find Aslan, rescue Narnia and restore the land.

SPEED RACER

Born to race cars, Speed Racer's (Emile Hirsch) only real competition is the memory of the brother he idolized — the legendary Rex Racer, whose death in a race has left behind a legacy that Speed is driven to fulfill.

When Speed turns down a lucrative and tempting offer from Royalton Industries, he infuriates the company's maniacal owner and discovers some of the biggest races are being fixed.

The only way for Speed to save his family's business and the sport he loves is to win the death-defying, cross-country rally known as The Crucible.

Speed Racer is PG for action, violence, language and smoking.

WHAT HAPPENS IN VEGAS

Two people (Cameron Diaz and Ashton Kutcher) discover they've gotten married following a night of debauchery in Vegas, with one of them winning a jackpot after playing the other's quarter. The pair tries to undermine each other and get their hands on the money, falling in love along the way.

What Happens in Vegas is rated PG-13 for sexual and crude content, language and a drug reference.

THE FALL

She strikes up a friendship with a bedridden man who captivates her with a whimsical story that removes her far from the hospital doldrums into the exotic landscapes of her imagination.

Making sure he keeps the girl interested in the story, he interweaves her family and people she likes from the hospital into his tale.

IRON MAN

Instead, using his intelligence and ingenuity, Tony builds a high-tech suit of armor and escapes captivity. When he uncovers a plot with global implications, he dons his powerful armor and vows to protect the world as Iron Man.

Cate Blanchett co-stars with Harrison Ford as Irina Spalko in Indiana Jones and the Kingdowm of the Crystal Skull. In this adventure, Dr. Henry Jones (Ford) becomes caught in a Soviet plot to uncover the secret behind artifacts known as the Crystal Skulls.

MADE OF HONOR

Tom Bailey (Patrick Dempsey) is in love with his best friend Claire (Michelle Monaghan). But Tom has a fear of commitment and refuses to admit that he should propose to Claire before she finds a less procrastinating suitor. When Colin (Kevin McKidd), a rich Scotsman, asks Claire for her hand in marriage, Tom must witness her unquestioned happiness up close and personal — because she's chosen him to be her maid of honor.

Made of Honor is rated PG-13 for sexual content and language.

SON OF RAMBOW

In 1980's Britain, young Will Proudfoot (Bill Milner) is raised in isolation among The Brethren, a religious sect in which music and TV are strictly forbidden.

Now, Will sets out to join forces with school bully Lee Carter (Will Poulter) to make their own action epic, devising wildly creative stunts and elaborate schemes for creating a movie of non-stop thrills while hiding from The Brethren.

When school popularity finally descends on Will and Lee in the form of the super-cool French exchange student Didier (Jules Sitruk), their new friendship and precious film are pushed to the breaking point.

HAROLD AND KUMAR ESCAPE FROM GUANTANAMO BAY

Harold and Kumar (John Cho and Kal Penn) decide to pursue Maria (Paula Garces), the girl Harold likes, to Amsterdam. However, an overzealous airline passenger mistakes Kumar for a terrorist, and the plane is diverted as the duo get stuck in a case of mistaken identity.

BABY MAMA

Successful and single businesswoman Kate Holbrook (Tina Fey) has long put her career ahead of a personal life, but now at 37, she's determined to have a kid on her own.

But when she discovers she has only a million-to-one chance of getting pregnant, Kate allows South Philly working girl Angie Ostrowiski (Amy Poehler) to become her unlikely surrogate.

Kate begins reading childcare books, baby-proofing the apartment and researching top pre-schools, but her strategy is turned upside down when Angie shows up at her doorstep with no place to live. In a battle of wills, they struggle their way through preparation for the baby's arrival.

DECEPTION

A New York accounting consultant, Jonathan McQuarry (Ewan McGregor), meets a charismatic, womanizing lawyer, Wyatt Bose (Hugh Jackman), who personifies everything he wants to be. But in the mysterious sex club he is introduced into, he soon becomes the prime suspect in a woman's disappearance and a mult-million dollar heist.

Deception is rated R for sexual content, language, violence and drug use.

THE FORBIDDEN KINGDOM

While hunting down bootleg kung-fu DVDs in a Chinatown pawnshop, Jason (Michael Angarano) makes an extraordinary discovery that sends him hurtling back in time to ancient China.

There, he is charged with the task to free the fabled warrior, the Monkey King (Jet Li), who has been imprisoned by the evil Jade Warlord (Collin Chou).

Jason is joined in his quest by kung fu master Lu Yan (Jackie Chan) and a band of misfit warriors including Silent Monk (Jet Li). But only by learning the true precepts of kung fu can Jason hope to succeed and find a way to get home.

88 MINUTES

Dr. Jack Gramm (Al Pacino), a college professor who moonlights as a forensic psychiatrist for the FBI, receives a death threat claiming he has only 88 minutes to live.

He must use all his skills and training to narrow down the possible suspects, who include a disgruntled student, jilted former lover and serial killer already on death row, before his time runs out.

88 Minutes is rated R for violence, nudity and language.

Benning Soldiers take honors

Two Fort Benning Soldiers were named Training and Doctrine Command Instructors of the Year. Sgt. 1st Class James Mastrodomenico and Capt. Nate Peterson were honored Thursday at the Ranger Hall of Fame.

Mastrodomenico, who has taught at the 5th Ranger Training Battalion in Dahlonega, Ga., for two years, said it is his job to make sure Soldiers are well trained and ready for combat when they leave his class.

Mastrodomenico

Peterson

"I feel like I'm doing a greater good right now — I'm preparing the young lieutenant who just graduated college and privates who are 19 years old who have been deployed two or three times now," he said.

"Anyone can be an instructor, but to be successful, you have to have a passion for it," he said.

The toughest aspect of instructing is helping the Soldiers overcome physical barriers, tiredness and inexperience, Mastrodomenico said. The most rewarding part "is seeing that light bulb go off."

Capt. Nate Peterson believes he has a positive impact on his students.

"They are the future leaders of the combat force," he said. "I feel that I can set them up for success."

Peterson said patience is vital to a successful teacher, because material stays the same, but new Soldiers are coming in all the time. Peterson, who is assigned to the 6th Ranger Training Battalion, will leave for Fort Lewis, Wash., later this year.

Mastrodomenico and Peterson competed with more than 100 candidates, said Elaine Livingston, director of Quality Assurance and Staff and Faculty.

Chef Ramsay: 'F' stands for feral

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

He's known for his cursing as much as his cooking. Chef Gordon Ramsay, host of Hell's Kitchen and the F Word, cursed the feral pigs that wreak havoc on the post's native vegetation and wildlife. Apparently, they're also a problem in his homeland of England.

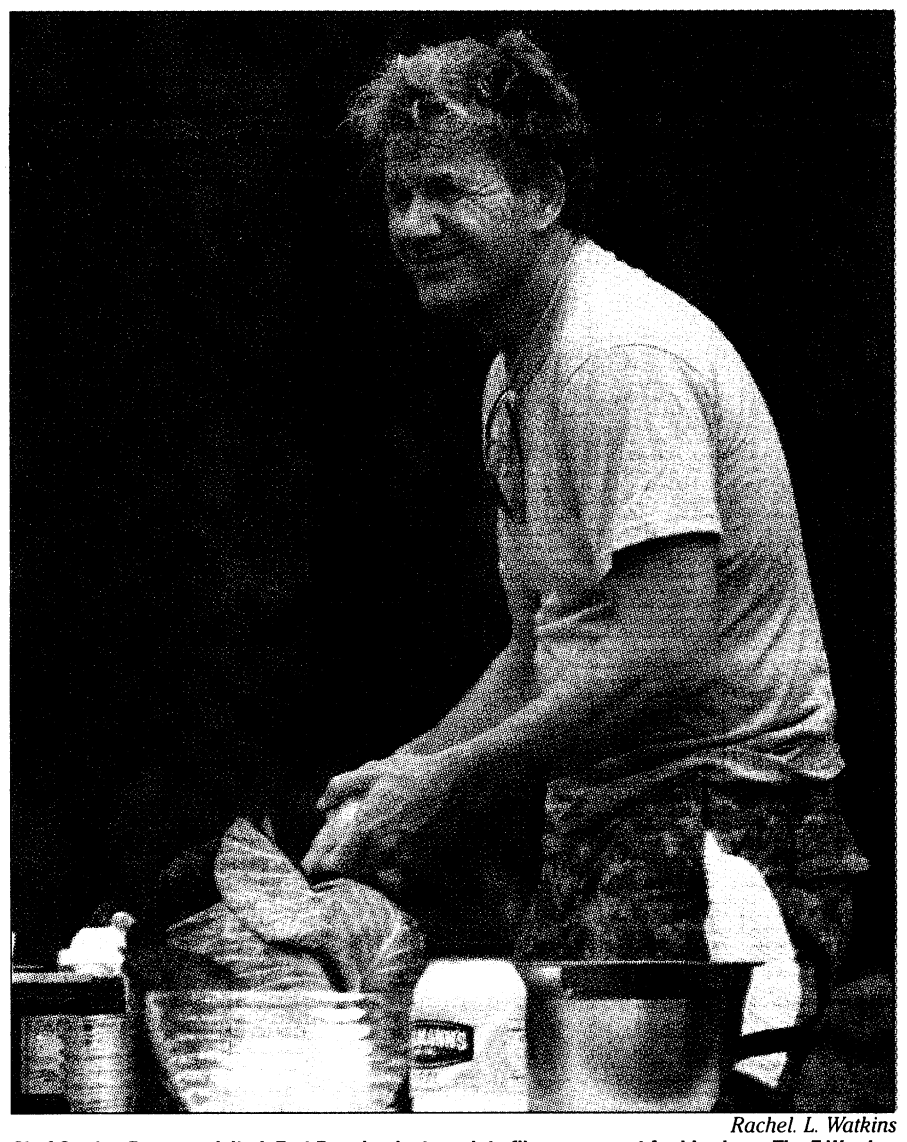
"Hogs aren't to be loved and kissed. They're to be hunted," said Ramsay, who visited Fort Benning to film a segment for his television show, The F Word, which will air this summer on BBC America.

Ramsay helped harvest a 180-pound boar and served it up to Soldiers on Harmony Church.

He called the post's $40 pig-tail bounty a "phenomenal incentive" for hunters to help eradicate the destructive pigs, which are not native to the area.

Ramsay said he was impressed by the Soldiers and their intense training.

After seeing an article on the news wire about Fort Benning's overpopulation of pigs, Ramsay's producers contacted post officials about filming here. Wild pork is a delicacy, Ramsay said.



"It's a gamey flavor and more exquisite than normal bacon," he said. "It's something we have as a rare treat."

Ramsay usually gets his processed meat at a restaurant, but to actually "kill, strip, cut, cook and eat" the pig was amazing, he said.

It wasn't always Ramsay's plan to become a chef. At 15, he signed with a professional soccer team. Later, he studied hotel management.

He studied with many chefs before opening his own restaurant, the Gordon Ramsay. It and his other restaurants have garnered three Michelin stars and an Order of the British Empire.

For more information on the Fort Benning pig bounty, see B3.

Post honors fallen Soldiers Monday

THE BAYONET

Fort Benning paid tribute to America's fallen Soldiers at the Memorial Day Ceremony Monday on Main Post.

"The importance of Memorial Day can't be overstated," said Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski, Fort Benning's commanding general. "It's a sacred day of remembrance for all those who have made the ultimate sacrifice to our country … They did not die for words or wreaths; they died to preserve the freedoms we enjoy."

Among those attending the ceremony were World War II veteran George Ward and his wife Gwen.

"Every year, we feel like this is the place we should be to honor the fallen," Gwen said. "This is the least we can do to make sure they are not forgotten because of what they did for us. They gave the ultimate sacrifice. They gave their all."

For many, Memorial Day is only the start of summer, said Wojdakowski, but for those who wear the uniform, it has a deeper meaning.

Warrant Officer Jason Hite agreed.

"I wanted to come here with my family and show my kids just what this day means," he said.

Wojdakowski said generations of American Soldiers have served with a sense of purpose.

"Soldiers involved in the Global War on Terrorism ... are part of a timeless warrior ethos, a quest to place the mission first, never accept defeat, never quit and never leave a fallen comrade."

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Safety program reminds us to stay vigilant

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

During the 101 Critical Days of Summer we focus on planning for safety in our special activities. But safety is a year-round responsibility, to be included in all our day-to-day operations. Each person on this installation should consider safety a top priority in their work environment and in their homes. But, let's face it, accidents do happen. Fortunately, Fort Benning is blessed to have many dedicated professionals ready to help.

The Fort Benning Directorate of Emergency Services (DES) provides 24-hour force protection, physical security, law enforcement, fire protection and community assistance to the Soldiers, Family members and Civilians of Fort Benning. They also maintain liaison with federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, and support the installation's contingency operations and force protection plans.

The DES provides a wide range of services that can touch any one of us on any given day. They include vehicle and weapons registration, access control, animal control, hunting enforcement, physical security, Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.), military police investigations, special reaction teams, drug suppression teams, traffic enforcement and military police working dogs. All these great services support us now and will continue to support Fort Benning as we transition to the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

But, there are some things you can do to help ensure your personal safety and protect your assets. The best way to protect yourself and your property is to secure your valuables, notify someone trustworthy when you leave home for long periods of time and immediately report any suspicious activity to the military police.

The mission of the DES is first to prevent crime, and second, to help if crime does occur. It is everyone's responsibility to be safe citizens of Fort Benning, it is DES's responsibility to enforce our safety and security standards.

One way the DES does this is through military police patrols. These patrols are responsible for enforcing all laws, regulations and policies, deterring crime through alert patrolling, responding to calls for assistance, helping stranded motorists, and promoting a positive image of Fort Benning by setting the standard of safety. The military police desk is responsible for receiving, coordinating, and dispatching all emergency responders to an incident on Fort Benning.

Another way the DES secures our installation is by controlling our access control points (ACPs). Our ACP security guards conduct access control to the installation to ensure that everyone coming into our community has a reason to be here. This keeps Fort Benning safe and secure for the people who work, live and visit here.

As the U.S. Army Infantry Center continues its transition to the Maneuver Center of Excellence, it is important that we each remain vigilant. We are all part of the first line of defense for safety and security. As we move forward you can rest assured that many people work tirelessly behind the scenes every day — like our Directorate of Emergency Services — to ensure the safety and well being of our Soldiers, Family members and Civilians.

Does integrity have a price tag?

Integrity. It's one of the seven Army Values — the code of conduct and standard of behavior for all Soldiers, but what does it really mean? More than that, what would you really do if you were faced with a decision that meant compromising your integrity?

I was faced with such a situation, and it really made me think about my beliefs and my values.

My siblings and I wanted to give our mom a camera for Mother's Day, and we decided to purchase the Sony Cyber-Shot from one of the online superstores. I charged the item on my credit card, but since I don't live near Mom and wouldn't be home for Mother's Day, I had it shipped to my sister's house.

When my sister called a few days later to tell me the camera had arrived, she asked me how many cameras I ordered.

I said, "One, why…?"

She said, "There are two cameras."

I checked my credit card statement online. I was only billed for one camera. I checked my account history at the superstore. I only ordered one and they show only one being shipped.

The two cameras arrived in two shipments, in two boxes with identical packing statements. However, it wasn't two Sony Cyber-Shots, as the packing statements suggested. It was one Sony Cyber-Shot and one Canon Rebel XT (complete with lens kit). Having dabbled in photography a little, I knew the Canon Rebel XT was an expensive camera, so I checked the superstore's Web site. Yep, it retails for $499.84.

My sister and I discussed the situation over the phone. We have the camera we ordered for Mom and we have a camera that no one knows we received. Should we call and report the extra camera or should we keep it and see if the store realizes they made a mistake?

After a few laughs and several proposed "what if" schemes, we decided the right decision was to call and report the error. However, what if the opposite had occurred?

What if I had only received the camera I ordered, but I had been charged for both? What if the $499.84 appeared on my credit card statement? Would the superstore call me to report it? Probably not, but that doesn't make the situation right.

I called the customer service line the next day and after navigating through a complicated automated system, I finally got a human. Her name was Ida, and I explained what happened.

Ida thanked me profusely for my honesty and told me how to return the item by downloading a pre-paid shipping label. I secretly hoped Ida would tell me to keep the extra camera as a reward for my honesty, but she didn't. And to be honest, I have a nice camera, so I don't really need it.

Ida told me that if I had kept the camera and not reported it, the superstore would have had no idea, because there wasn't any documentation to prove I had received it. However, I would have known, and it would have haunted me each time I used it.

Adhering to our moral and ethical principles is not always the easiest decision to make, and sometimes we get tested. I passed this test, and I'm sure there will be future ones. I can only hope I will continue to make the right choice.

I wanted to share this story, not because I'm self-righteous, but because I'm human. I didn't make my decision immediately. I weighed my options and honestly considered keeping the extra camera, but I ultimately decided that the price of my integrity is higher than $499.84 — it's at least more than a million.

This week in Fort Benning history

• Fort Benning Soldiers received word that the $75 re-enlistment bonus had been reinstated for enlisted Soldiers. The bonus had been suspended the year before.

• First National Bank advertised in the Benning Herald the new and modern convenience of paying bills by check. "It's the accurate and safer way!"

• The Jordan Company offered 20 to 50 percent off plots in Andrews Woods, "the only white subdivision between Benning and Columbus, with water, lights and sanitary sewers."

• German prisoners of war arrived at Fort Benning and went to work on special projects around post — mostly tasks deemed "essential" to the good of the Army, like road maintenance, cleaning, wood clearing and erosion prevention.

The Germans were to be housed on post at an interior prison camp, as Italian prisoners had been.

Post officials were quick to point out that the prisoners would put no one out of work — their labor would simply relieve Soldiers of certain burdens and free them to concentrate on training.

Guards were appointed "to prevent persons from attempting to converse or take pictures of the PWs," The Bayonet article said.

• At a Memorial Day ceremony at the grave of an unknown Soldier in the Post cemetery, Maj. Gen. Robert York said it was "not for us to know why some have died and some have been spared." Perhaps, he said, "our job is not completed, our mission not yet fulfilled."

• John Wayne visited Fort Benning to scope out a site along Uchee Creek to shoot part of his forthcoming Green Berets, a story about Army Special Forces.

• According to a Bayonet reporter, the naming of Spec. 4 Coy L. Cornelius as Soldier of the Year for the 197th Infantry Brigade should lay to rest questions about the quality of Soldiers the draft was producing.

2ND BATTALION, 54TH INFANTRY REGIMENT

OSUT battalion changes hands during ceremony

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

"Mailed Foot Six Ancient" bid farewell to his battalion Wednesday during a change of command ceremony.

Mailed Foot Six is traditionally the radio call sign for the battalion commander. The Mailed Foot motto commemorates the 54th Infantry Regiment's march from the Vosges to the Argonne and back to Southern France during World War I.

Forbes said he might have insulted a few folks on Sand Hill when he took command two years ago because he changed the battalion's motto — "Mailed Foot, the best battalion on Sand Hill. Get used to it."

It wasn't meant to be an insult, but a vision, a goal to be the best, Forbes said.

"In our business, less than best is not good enough," he said. "Second place means death or defeat."

The battalion's cadre train Infantry Soldiers, and "these men, these Infantrymen represent something more serious and certainly, in many instances, very final," Forbes said. "They are not just our shield but they are the pointy end of the spear. They will sally forth in front of that shield and destroy the enemies of our nation in close combat."

Soldiers aren't in the Army; they are the Army, said Col. Michael Coss, the 192nd Brigade commander and reviewing officer for the ceremony, as he talked about the Army's history of filling its ranks with men of audacious boldness, men like Nathan Hale, John Adams and John Hancock. Soldiers who will do what is right in defense of their nation, regardless of the cost to their own personal well-being.

Lori Egan

Lt. Col. Dean Weiler, left, incoming commander of 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, Col. Michael Coss, 192nd Infantry Brigade commander, and Lt. Col. Christopher Forbes, outgoing commander, troop the line during the battalion change of command ceremony Wednesday.

"These are the hallmarks of our profession," Coss said, "and exactly what we received from Mailed Foot Six during his command here.

"Lt. Col. Chris Forbes has been the consummate leader doing exactly what was necessary to ensure these traditions of service, sacrifice and audacity were passed to a new generation of Americans who are equally valorous," Coss said.

Forbes deploys next week to Iraq with the 10th Mountain Division as the unit's chief of plans.

Weiler recently returned from Iraq where he served with the 82nd Airborne Division.

"The Mailed Foot battalion has a great reputation for getting the mission accomplished," Weiler said. "I look forward to continuing this tradition."

Weiler, commissioned as a second lieutenant from Eastern Washington University in 1990, served here as a senior platoon leader, company commander and operations officer with 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment.

At Ranger Training Brigade, he was the brigade operations officer and was battalion operations officer and executive officer for the 4th Ranger Training Battalion.

Safety fair debuts ThatGuy campaign

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Anthony O'Bryant

Fort Benning kicked off the 101 critical days of summer Friday to educate the community about safety and prevent traffic accidents during the 2008 Safety Fair at the Infantry Hall parking lot.

Although no alcohol was served at the fair, more than a 100 people stumbled around experiencing varied degrees of intoxication by wearing "drunk" goggles. Patrons could drive, toss a bean bag, hop around and even golf with the special goggles that simulate dizziness, loss of depth perception and coordination.

The Command Safety Office sponsored the fair that included demonstrations from the Fort Benning Fire Department, the University of Georgia's Traffic Injury Prevention Institute, Street Smart and the Army Substance Abuse Program.

"It's important to set aside some time to communicate various safety issues, including educating our drivers about the dangers of drinking and driving, and heat-injury prevention," said Debbie Gutierrez, safety specialist.

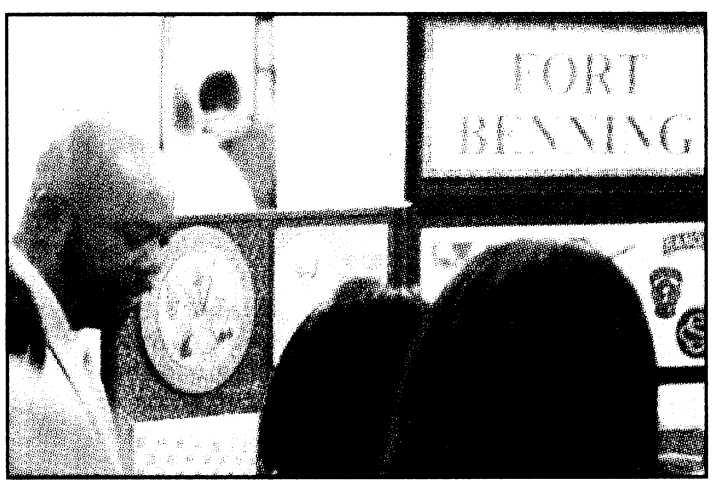
James Freeman, University of Georgia, traveled to Benning to tell service members that motor vehicle crashes are the number one killer in non-combat service and that a person is 60 percent more likely to survive a roll-over crash if they are restrained.

To emphasize his point he brought the Traffic Injury Prevention Institute's rollover simulator to show what happens to seatbelt-less occupants during a 35 mph roll-over crash. Two unrestrained dummies, one adult-sized and one child-sized, were ejected as the 1998 Ford Truck simulator rolled completely over.

The Orlando Fire Department presented their distinctive Street Smart demonstrations throughout the morning in Marshall Auditorium to encourage seatbelt use.

"Street Smart is an in-your-face presentation that graphically illustrates the consequences of not being protected by a seatbelt during an accident," said Ron Douglas, the safety specialist who invited Scott Mcintyre to give the demonstrations.

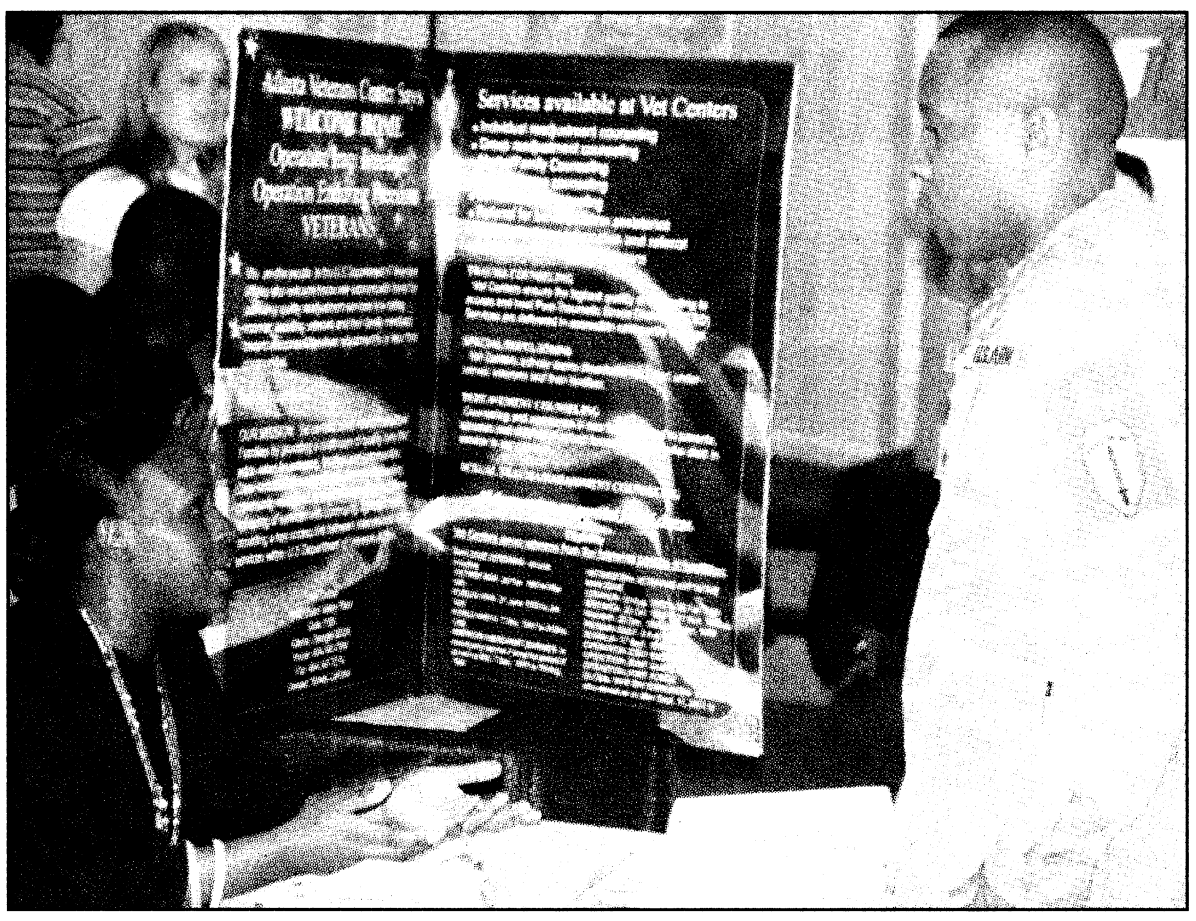
Benning's reptilian neighbors also attended the fair as guests of Directorate of Public Work's Natural Resources Division. James Parker brought along an eastern king snake, gray rat snake, corn snake, rough green snake, brown snake, coachwhip and the venomous copperhead and cane break rattlesnakes.



The snakes made the trip to tell people that they live on Fort Benning too, and that they usually only bite people when they get stepped on, or when someone tries to catch, handle or play with them.

"Sometimes it is hard to identify whether a snake is poisonous or not and people that come across them should just leave them alone and walk away," Parker said.

The Army Substance Abuse Program introduced event-goers to the Webby award-winning ThatGuy.com. ThatGuy is a Department of Defense-funded campaign to reduce excessive drinking among servicemen through jokes, videos and other multi-media. The main message is to avoid becoming "That Guy" and harming your reputation by publicly embarrassing yourself, according to the ThatGuy.com Web site.



AUSA Job Fair

Bernard Broadnax, a classification specialist with the Civilian Personnel Advisory Center, told attendees how to apply for civil service positions on Fort Benning and handed out job listings. He directed job seekers to the Civilian Personnel On-Line Web site, www.cpol.army.mil. More than 131 companies were represented at the job fair and nearly 3,500 people attended it, said Mark Mills, Fort Benning Employment Readiness Program manager with Army Community Service. The Georgia Department of Labor and the Employment Office did a great job in organizing the event, he said.

If you have any brains at all, you'll be aware of the danger of depression.

Depression is a suppression of brain activity that can strike anyone. It's powerful, it's constant, and it makes life unbearable. It's also readily, medically treatable. And that's something everyone should know.

Physical therapists keep Soldiers on their feet

ARMY NEWS SERVICE
Spc. Rick Rzepka

CONTINGENCY OPERATING BASE SPEICHER, Iraq — Army physical therapists work to alleviate pain brought on by day-to-day and combat activities in Iraq. Pulled muscles, back pains and sprains are just a few injuries that Soldiers may experience.

Army physical therapists, who are mobile, hands-on medical professionals, work with Soldiers to alleviate neuromusculoskeletal problems in the thick of the fight.

Capt. Christine Iverson is a physical therapist with the 1st Brigade Combat Team, 101st Airborne Division. Iverson, who has been an Army physical therapist since April 2006, earned a doctorate of Physical Therapy from Baylor University and has been helping Screaming Eagle Soldiers reach their peak performance ever since.

She and her mobile physical therapy team have helped more than 2,500 Soldiers get back on their feet since being deployed here last September.

The Army and Baylor University have been partners in helping physical therapists expand their role in the military since 1971, when the Army faced a shortage of orthopedic surgeons during the war in Vietnam.

These "physician extenders" were credentialed to evaluate and treat neuromusculoskeletal patients without physician referral, according to the Army Medical Specialist Corps Web site.

The Bastogne physical therapy team handles an array of Soldier's injuries, from acute battle wounds to chronic orthopedic pain, said Iverson.

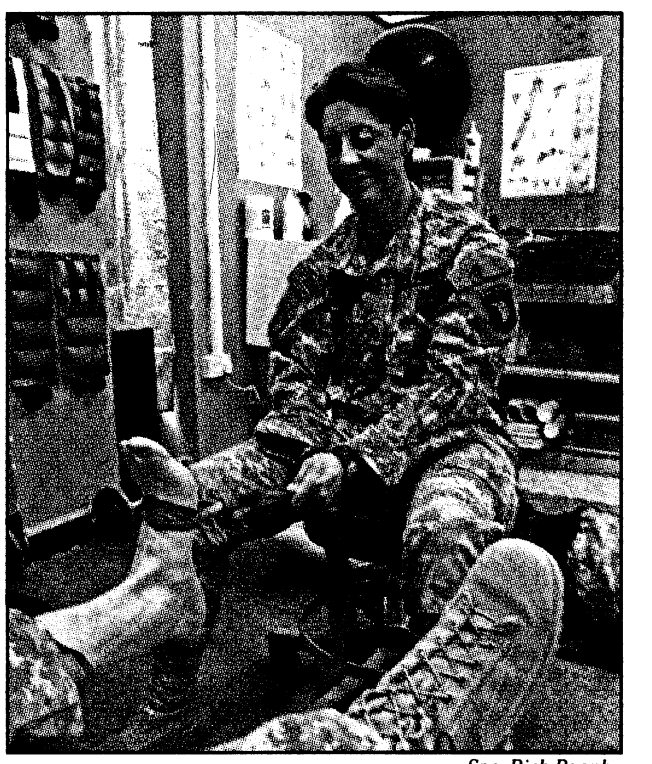
"You name it, we're here to fix it," she said.

The physical therapy team specializes in joint mobilizations, manipulations and exercise therapies. They use sophisticated machines, modalities and braces to help debilitated warriors get back on their feet across the Salah ad Din province.

"Physical therapy is not to be confused with massage therapy," said Iverson, who describes the operation as a one-stop shop for relieving Soldier's aches and pains.

Iverson said that her team spends an average of 20 days a month traveling to forward operating bases providing treatment and giving advice to Soldiers on how to avoid injuries.

"As we are trying to do more with less, it becomes important for our line Soldiers to get the best treatment we can give them," she said. "We want them to leave here as better Soldiers."



A large portion of the cases Iverson's team deals with is back pain. Core strengthening is key to avoiding back issues, she said.

This entails building the muscle that acts as a weight belt underneath the superficial layers of muscle around your core, she said.

For many Soldiers, the physical therapists have been instrumental in helping them recover.

"It's awesome because you don't have to go through a whole deployment in pain," said Spc. Thomas Heppler, who is suffering from chronic back pain.

"It makes it easier on me to have them here."

BENCH NOTES

ERIN NASH

Dixon wins Indy 500

New Zealander Scott Dixon won the pole position and the Indianapolis 500 Sunday.

Dixon beat Vitor Meira out of pit road and held off Marco Andretti for his first Indy victory.

Big Brown back in saddle

Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner Big Brown was out exercising a day earlier than expected after a quarter crack was found on the inside of his left front hoof.

Big Brown is expected to win the Triple Crown and he'll be the first horse in 30 years to do so.

The Belmont Stakes will take place June 7. Affirmed was the last horse to win the Triple Crown in 1978.

College baseball tourney

The Miami Hurricanes were chosen as the number one seed Monday going into the Division I college baseball tournament. The 'Canes, with a record of 47-8, won the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

North Carolina got the second seed, followed by Arizona State with the third seed.

The tournament begins Friday. The winners of the regionals will advance to the super regionals, which will begin June 6.

Noah gets probation

Chicago Bulls forward Joakim Noah accepted a deferred prosecution agreement Wednesday after his arrest Sunday for having an open container of alcohol and possession of marijuana. Noah received six months probation and a $200 fine.

Noah's father, former French Open champion Yannick Noah, said he didn't understand the fuss for drinking a beer on the street. Yannick told a magazine more than 20 years ago he smoked marijuana.

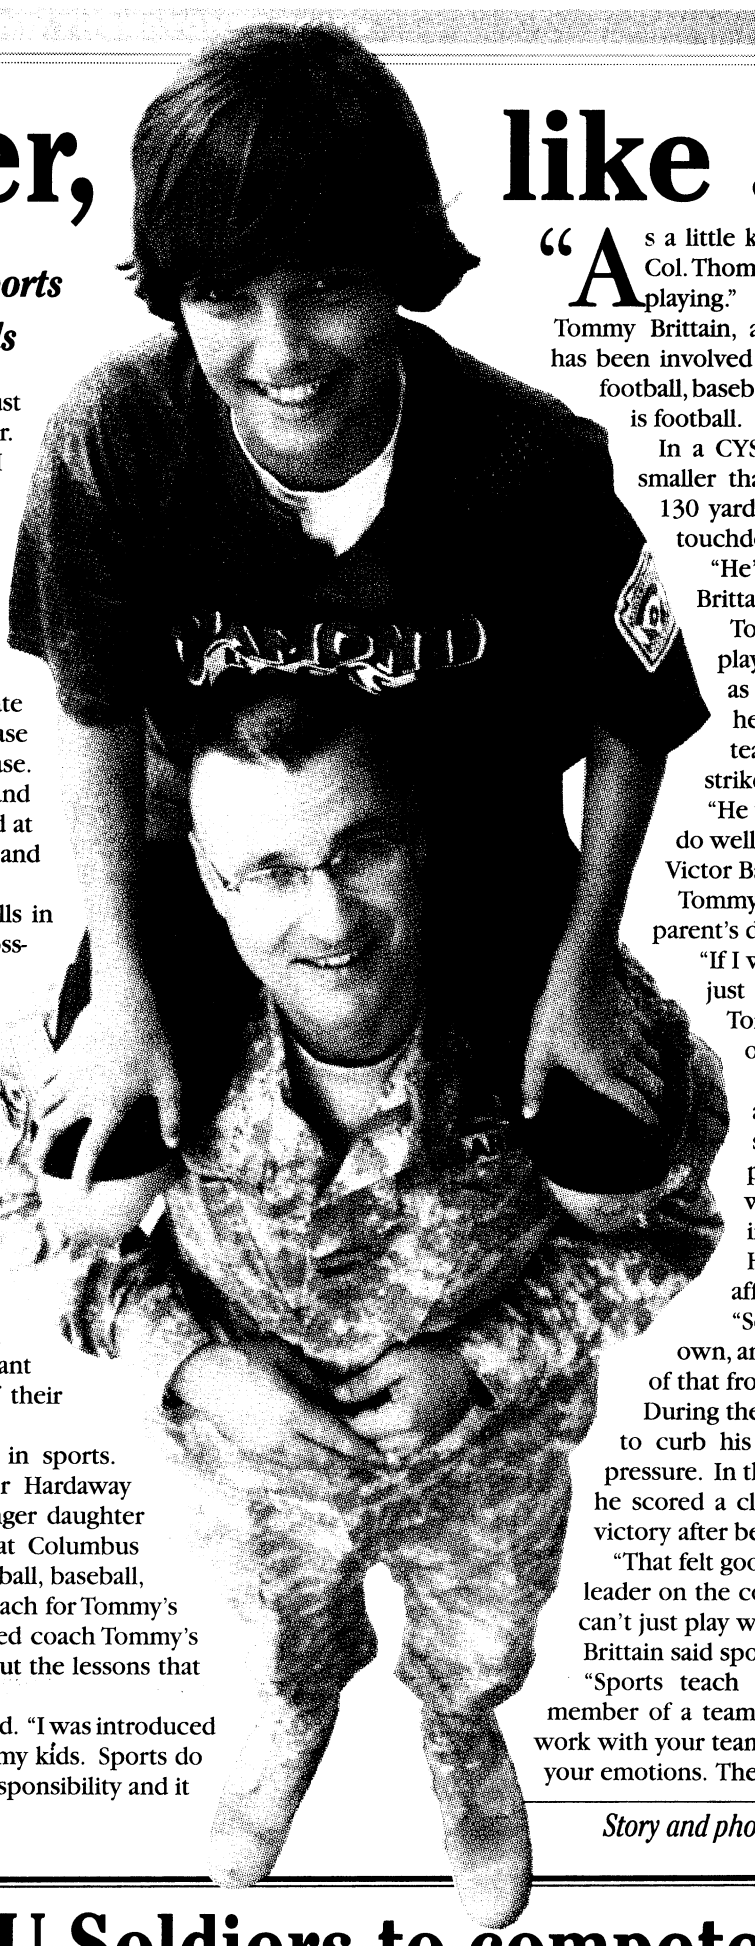
Gonzalez dies in Venezuela



Former major league baseball pitcher Geremi Gonzalez, 33, died Sunday in his native Venezuela after being struck by lightning at a beach.

Gonzalez had 11 wins for the Chicago Cubs in 1997.

Like father, like son

Fort Benning father and son say sports ease stress, build leadership skills

"When I was little, I wanted to be just like my dad," said Tommy Brittain Jr. "I wanted to do the same things. I wanted to learn to be a good leader."

Col. Thomas Brittain, the director of Infantry Proponency, was promoted May 1.

"I'm very honored," Brittain said. "My life has been great for the past 22 years, and I'm looking forward to a great future for my family."

In July, Brittain will leave for Carlisle, Pa., to attend the Army War College. In 2009, he will relocate again to Fort Lewis, Wash., and serve as the joint base commander for Fort Lewis and McCord Air Force Base.

Brittain planned to follow his father's footsteps and become a pilot in the military. He changed his mind at West Point, after meeting several Infantry sergeants and officers who became his role models.

Brittain said he began developing leadership skills in high school as a basketball, baseball, track and cross-country athlete, lettering in each of the sports. He also ran track at West Point and played intramural sports including rugby and boxing.

"Sports helped me learn to be a leader as well as a member of the Army," Brittain said. "The military is like a team. Everything you do is tied to Soldiers using their strengths and weaknesses to accomplish a mission."

But Brittain said he found his greatest leadership challenge at home. After going through a divorce six years ago, he's been raising Tommy and Tommy's two older sisters by himself.

"It is a balancing act, trying to help them with whatever they're going through," he said. "It's important that I'm supportive and involved in all aspects of their lives."

Brittain encouraged his kids to become active in sports. His oldest daughter Jessica ran cross country for Hardaway High School before graduating this year. His younger daughter Lauren runs cross country and is a cheerleader at Columbus High. And Tommy, a student at Faith, plays basketball, baseball, football and skateboards. Brittain is the assistant coach for Tommy's Sally Little League baseball team. He has also helped coach Tommy's CYS basketball team. Brittain said he is serious about the lessons that competitive sports provide.

"Sports are an integral part of how I grew up," he said. "I was introduced to sports by my father and do the same thing with my kids. Sports do a lot for you in terms of discipline, teamwork and responsibility and it sets you up with skills for the future.

"As a little kid, Tommy always had a ball in his hand," Col. Thomas Brittain said. "He never wanted to stop playing."

Tommy Brittain, a seventh-grader at Faith Middle School, has been involved with sports since the age of 4. He plays football, baseball, basketball and skateboards. His favorite is football.

In a CYS league game in 2006, Tommy, who was smaller than most players on his team, rushed for 130 yards, scored a rushing, passing and receiving touchdown, and made an interception.

"He's a small guy but he has a lot of guts," Brittain said.

Tommy is most experienced in baseball. He played for Faith, CYS and local Little Leagues as a catcher, pitcher and shortstop. In 2005, he was named MVP after helping lead his team to a championship by throwing 10 strikeouts.

"He takes the game personally, and his desire to do well is one of his best qualities," said Master Sgt. Victor Ballesteros, Tommy's Little League coach.

Tommy said sports helped him deal with his parent's divorce when he was 6.

"If I was down a point or run in a game, I would just try to block out everything and focus," Tommy said. "It helped me take my mind off of the bad things."

Brittain said he noticed Tommy's natural athletic ability when he saw him riding a skateboard at the age of 4. Tommy won first place in the first CYS skating tournament when the skate park opened in 2006. But in team sports, Tommy struggled early on. His father said he was hotheaded, and it affected his game and his attitude.

"Sometimes he wants to do too much on his own, and it can get the best of him. He gets a lot of that from me," Brittain said.

During the past year, Brittain said Tommy has learned to curb his enthusiasm in games and adapt to the pressure. In the final game of the CYS basketball season, he scored a clutch basket that helped lead his team to victory after being down by 20 points at halftime.

"That felt good, because it helped teach me how to be a leader on the court," Tommy said. "In any team sport, you can't just play with one person," Tommy said.

Brittain said sports have helped Tommy mature.

"Sports teach you about life," Brittain said. "You're a member of a team. You have to be disciplined. You have to work with your teammates, and you have to be able to control your emotions. These are all life skills."

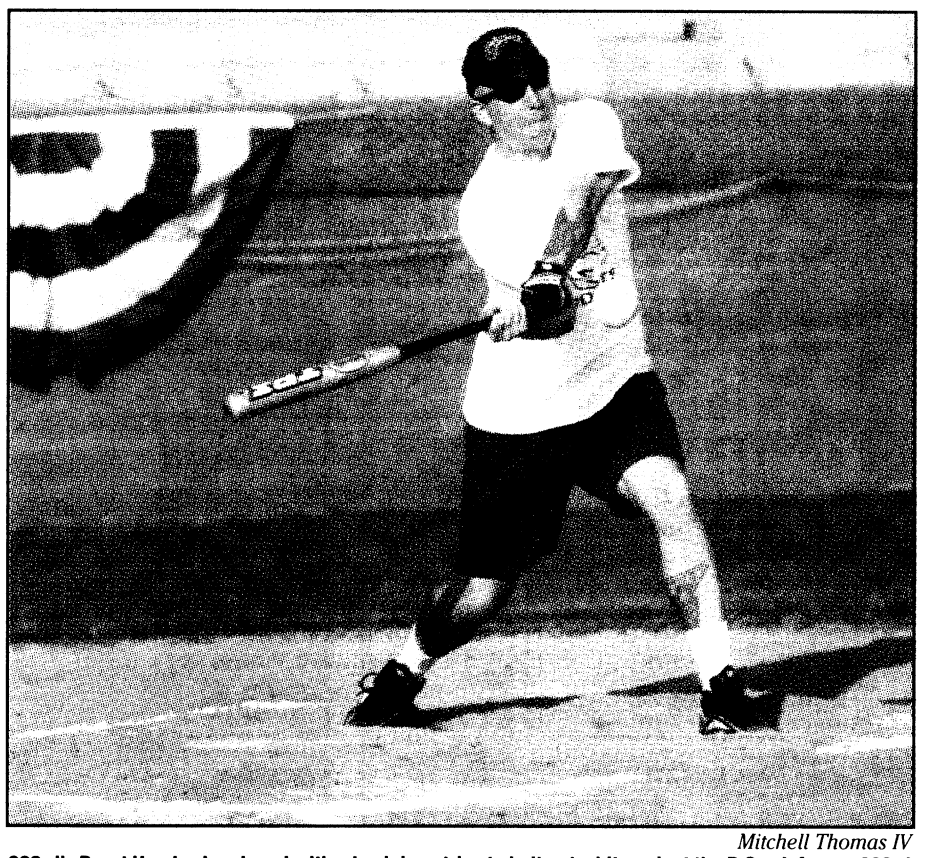
The 2008 U.S. Olympic Shooting Team Trial Finals, hosted by USA Shooting, concluded May 22 at Pool Complex and Phillips Range on Main Post.

Sgt. 1st Class Jason Parker, Maj. Michael E. Anti and Sgt. 1st Class Daryl L. Szarenski qualified for Olympic slots. They will join Spc. Jeffrey G. Holguin, Spc. Glenn Eller and Pfc. Vincent Hancock to represent the Army Marksmanship Unit in Beijing.

Parker, who will make his third Olympic appearance, qualified for the men's Three-position Rifle. He posted an overall score of 3709.5 points to win first place.

"Three position is one of my stronger events, so I'm confident in my chances," said Parker, who won the 2007 Pan American Games and the World Championship in 2002. He will also compete in men's Air Rifle in Beijing.



Anti qualified for the men's prone, beating out 48 competitors with a score of 2002.6. The 43-year-old shooter will make his fourth Olympic appearance. He won a silver medal in 2004.

Daryl Szarenski, will also make his third Olympic appearance after posting a second place finish in the men's pistol, with a score of 1849.3. Szarenski won gold medals in free pistol and air pistol in the 2003 Pan-American Games.

Hancock, the 19 year-old who joined the Army Reserves while in high school, has made his first games in the skeet event.

Holguin and third time Olympian Eller will compete on the Double Trap team.

B Co. comes from behind to beat 233rd in preseason tournament

Mitchell Thomas IV

233rd's Brent Head, who played with a leg injury, tries to belt out a hit against the B Co. defense. 233rd squandered an early five-run lead to lose in extra innings, 15-13.

B Company, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, fought back to win after a slow start. They defeated 233rd Heavy Equipment Transportation Company, 15-13, in extra innings during Monday's preseason tournament softball game at Gowdy Field. B Co. currently has a record of 2-1.

After B Co. put two runs on the board in the top of the first, 233rd finished the inning with six runs of their own. In the second, 233rd's coach and starting pitcher Jackie Jenkins made two nifty fielding plays and retired two B Co. hitters. After shutting out B Co. in the second, 233rd went on to score one run in the inning, taking a 7- 2 lead.

B Co. turned the tables in the third. Alexis Rodriguez led off the inning with a walk, then a score after Jenkins walked three straight hitters. B Co. rallied with base hits to take an 8-7 lead.

With 233rd up by two runs in the fourth, B Co.'s Bernard Smith led off the inning with single. Smith, who scored the first of two runs in the inning, finished the game with four of his team's runs. 233rd's loose defensive play, including two fielding errors, resulted in a 10-10 tie at the end of the fourth.

In the sixth, B Co. mounted a hitting streak. B Co.'s Jose Rodriguez hit a dribbler up the middle and made it safely to first. B Co. followed with another four runs, giving them a five-point lead. 233rd had its last chance in the bottom of the inning but came up short, scoring only three times. It was 233rd's second loss of the preseason.

"We have got to work on fundamentals," Jenkins said. "We hit the ball fine, but we gave up too many walks. We had this game won tonight, and we let it get away."

The preseason tournament continues through Monday at Gowdy and Knappenberger Fields.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

Last weekend was the unofficial start of the summer season. It starts the season of barbecues, swimming, boating and other outdoor activities.

I want to address this article to all my sun-soaked friends out there. I want to talk about how to protect yourself from the sun and the UV rays that can really cause some damage.

UV is the ultraviolet radiation coming from the sun. UV rays can cause premature aging (such as wrinkling and age spots), skin cancer and even serious eye damage.

Now some sun is good. Sunlight helps your body make Vitamin D, which is important for good health. But too much can be harmful.

• One of the best ways to protect yourself is to cover up. I know what you're thinking — it's hot and the last thing you want to do is wear more clothes.. But if you're going to be out in the sun, wearing long sleeves and pants that cover most of your skin is one of the surest ways to protect yourself. Typically dark colors provide more protection than light colors.

Be aware, however, that covering up doesn't block all UV rays. A typical light T-shirt worn in the summer usually protects you less than sunscreen with a sun protection factor of 15 or higher. Several companies are now making sun-protective clothing with a special coatings to help absorb UV rays. Look for clothes that have a label listing the ultraviolet protective factor value. The UPF is the level of protection the garment provides from the sun's UV rays on a scale of 15 to 50+. The higher the UPF, the higher the protection.

• Sunscreen. This is probably the single most effective protection against UV rays when used correctly and when using the appropriate product.

I know most people are not going to wear long sleeves at the beach or pool. This is where sun screen comes in handy. Experts recommend products with an SPF of at least 15.

The SPF number represents the level of protection against UVB rays provided by the sunscreen. A higher number means more protection. When using an SPF 15 and applying it correctly, you get the equivalent of one minute of UVB rays for each 15 minutes you spend in the sun. So, two hours in the sun wearing SPF 15 sunscreen is the same as spending eight minutes totally unprotected.

For high glare situations, like at the pool, a higher SPF sunscreen or zinc oxide should be used on your nose or lips. Sunscreen comes in many forms, including lotions, creams, ointments, gels, wipes, and my favorite, the spray.

Remember, it's important to reapply sunscreen as well. It's best to reapply every two hours for the most protection and even more often if you're swimming.

• Sunglasses. Research has shown that long hours in the sun without eye protection increases your chance of developing eye disease.

UV blocking sunglasses can help protect your eyes from sun damage. The ideal sunglasses do not have to be expensive, but they should block at least 99 percent of UVA and UVB radiation. Check the label to be sure they do.

When a label states "Meets ANSI UV Requirements," it means the glasses block at least 99 percent of UV rays. If there is no label, assume there is no protection.

I hope these tips help you stay safe in the sun. I personally love the sun and prefer to be outside more than inside.

Several of my family members have had skin cancer, so I am much more aware of the importance of using a good sunscreen daily. Take care of your skin and body, and it will take care of you.

Have a great weekend.

Be safe, be healthy and have fun.

CYS offers summer sports camps

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Child and Youth Services will host summer sports camps for children between 6 and 15. Camps will include football, cheerleading, basketball and baseball.

Columbus State University coaches, cheerleaders and players will coach the cheerleading and basketball camp. Charles Flowers, former athletic director of Shaw High School and Muscogee County, will coach the football camp.

The camps are free and open to children who are registered with CYS.

"This is a great opportunity for the kids to get out of the house and be active and meet new friends," said Linda Laine, Youth Sports and Fitness director. "The children will learn the basic fundamentals of the sport and get one-on-one experience with professionals."

Ages 6-15

•Cheerleading camp is from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. June 16 to 20 at the Youth Sports Complex, Building 1405, Ingersoll Street.

•The baseball clinic will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. June 17 to 18 at the Youth Sports Complex, Building 1405, Ingersoll Street.

Ages 9-15

Registration for the camps is from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. June 2 to 13 at the CYS building, 359, Ingersoll Street. Participants can register from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on these days, but an appointment must be made. Space is limited.

Wounded Warriors on 'Road 2 Recovery'

ARMY NEWS SERVICE
Craig Coleman

WASHINGTON – Thirteen wounded warriors made a 480-mile bike trek last week from Walter Reed Army Medical Center to the Lowes Motor Speedway in Charlotte, N.C., site of the Coca-Cola 600 NASCAR Sprint Cup Series.

The bike ride is sponsored by Road 2 Recovery, under the auspices of America Supports You, a DoD organization that connects citizens and business groups with military members and their families.

At the official send-off ceremony for the bike trek, Col. Patricia Horoho, commander of the Walter Reed Health Care System, called the Soldiers' willingness to make the ride a testament to their bravery and commitment to take control of their lives as they continue their recoveries.

"Although Walter Reed's team of dedicated doctors, nurses, physical therapists and countless others have been helping them recover physically, mentally and emotionally, it is our patients' personal courage and desire to be whole again that has been the catalyst for not only their success, but for ours as well," Horoho said.

Horoho said that long bike journey was symbolic of the road Warriors in Transition take from the point of their injury on the battlefield, through the entire journey of healing, to full recovery.

"Some of today's riders have stood in harm's way for multiple deployments in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom or Enduring Freedom," Horoho said. "They are warriors in every sense of the word. We have the great and humbling privilege of providing care and comfort to America's heroes every day."

America Supports You has more than 345 home-front groups as members, and more than 30 corporations have joined the effort. America Supports You was founded, according to Allison Barber, deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, to make it easy for the men and women in the military to get the support they need and deserve from the American people.

"It is thanks to the America Supports You program and, more importantly, to our citizens of this country, who every day continue to look for ways to support those of you who wear the uniform and your families, that we can make things like today happen," Barber said.

"We hope you feel embraced by the American people, who every day are trying to find ways to communicate one message to you: that America does support you," Barber said.

Fort Benning offers hunters $40 feral pig bounty

THE BAYONET
Mitchell Thomas IV

Since Conservation Branch officials increased the bounty from $25 to $40 on feral pigs harvested on Fort Benning, the pig population has been cut in half, said Maj. Bobby Toon, who heads up eradication efforts.

That's the good news, given that an estimated 6,650 non-native pigs roamed the post last year and caused excessive damage to training areas, native vegetation and wildlife.

But repopulation can occur very quickly, Toon said. One sow can reproduce more than 200 offspring in two years.

"These pigs have two purposes, eating and breeding, and they are reproducing faster than we can eradicate them," Toon said.

"Various post ranges that are off limits to hunters have become pig sanctuaries," said Toon, who harvested 68 pigs last year.

But the pigs aren't confined to no-man's land. Toon said pigs have been spotted around housing areas.

With the institution of Hunting and Fishing Regulation 200-3 three years ago, hunters can harvest pigs with rifles, shotguns and bows. Licensed hunters are paid $40 after turning in the tail of a pig killed on Fort Benning. A data sheet must accompany the tail. Tails and sheets are turned in at the Conservation Branch, Building 5884, on Tuesdays from noon to 2 p.m and on the last Friday of every month from noon to 2 p.m.

Authorized hunters can also sponsor up to three guests per day to hunt with them.

For more information, call Toon at 706-536-6021. For information about hunting and harvesting regulations and to obtain data sheets, visit www.benning.army.mil.

Ribbons: Center1/8 inch above the top of the pocket flap.Third and subsequent rows may be aligned to the left to present a better appearance (All Males).

Marksmanship Badges: Center with the upper portion of the badge 1/4 inch below the ribbons. If more than one badge is worn, space them 1 inch apart.
When special skill badges are worn on the pocket flap, place them to the right of marksmanship badges (All Males).

Identification Badges: When worn, center between the bottom of the pocket flap and the bottom of the pocket. If more than one badge is worn, space them equally from left to right on the pocket

Service Stripes: Center on the outside of the left sleeve 4 inches from the bottom. Place the service stripe at a 45-degree angle with the lower end toward the inside seam of the sleeve (All Enlisted).

Harebrained husband should drive truck, not push it

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE
Tom and Ray Magliozzi

Dear Tom and Ray:

Help! My husband faithfully reads and respects your column, so maybe if he hears it from you, he will stop an annoying habit.

Recently, he decided that if you are just moving your car from the garage to the driveway, you just need to put it in neutral and push.

That's right — he thinks it's damaging to turn on the engine, so you should just push it. He thinks that if you start the engine and don't let it fully warm up, you could cause irreparable harm.

I think he could cause irreparable harm to his back by being a 54-year-old pushing a Dodge Ram 2500 Quad Cab truck out of the garage. Plus, if he were to trip and lose his grip, it could roll out into the street. I think unless you are out of gas, pushing a large truck is a little over the top. What do you think? Please help. I think the neighbors are starting to talk.

— Donna

TOM: Oh, geez, Donna. We feel your pain. I'm guessing your husband is an engineer of some kind.

RAY: Because this is an example of taking a legitimate solution to a legitimate problem and applying it to a harebrained degree.

TOM: We have explained that frequent, short trips can be harmful to a car. When you start the engine, moisture is produced. And if the engine and exhaust system never get fully heated up, the moisture doesn't evaporate.

RAY: The same is true for excess unburned gasoline, which can work its way into the crankcase when the engine is cold. It also can't be purged unless the engine gets hot.

TOM: What we said was that if all of your driving is comprised of very short trips, your engine and exhaust system won't last as long as they should.

RAY: And your husband, with unassailable, engineerlike logic, concluded that he should never take short trips.

Instead, he should push his car when he's going only a short distance.

TOM: You can't fault him for his logic. He's absolutely correct that the best way to preserve an engine is to never use it. Right?

RAY: But while he's avoiding short trips in his truck, he may end up taking a long trip to the hospital for back surgery, or a long trip to court to explain how he accidentally tripped and pushed his truck into the middle of a passing Shriners parade.

TOM: So, what should he do?

Well, there's a device built into his vehicle that's designed for exactly the purpose he requires. It's called the engine. He should use it. And then he should drive the truck normally later in the day, or later in the week.

If it's potentially at the cost of his health, or his being involuntarily committed for psychiatric care by his neighbors or his wife, that's a pretty high price compared with the slight possibility that he may have to buy an exhaust system a few months earlier than he otherwise would have.

And if he drives normally the rest of the week, he won't even have to do that.

TOM: But I fear he may be a lost cause, Donna. We know guys like this. Even we might not be able to persuade him to stop pushing the truck out of the garage.

RAY: So, here's an alternative solution: Get him to build himself a workshop. That way, he won't ever need to move his truck out of the garage.

And he can move the homemade nuclear reactor made of balsa wood (the one he's building in the garage) out to the new workshop and tinker with it there.

Good luck, Donna.

Through the Kick for Nick program, Joe Hird and his sister have collected more than 60 soccer balls to send to children in Iraq. The Kick for Nick program honors Pfc. Nick Madaras who was killed in Iraq on Sept. 3, 2006. Joe will continue to collect during the soccer season at the Woodruff Soccer Complex in Columbus. For more information, call 706-888-9322.

Tiger donates 30,000 tickets for service members to AT&T National

FAMILY AND MORALE, WELFARE AND RECREATION COMMAND
Tim Hipps

Tiger Woods' support of U.S. troops will be on display July 2-6 during the AT&T National at Congressional Country Club.

Like last year, tournament host Woods has donated 30,000 tickets for service members and their families to attend the AT&T National. Military personnel again will play alongside Tiger in the Earl Woods Memorial Pro-Am on July 2.

For that day, a new twist has been added to this year's event. Nike donated golf equipment to troops in the United Kingdom, Afghanistan, Iraq, Germany, Japan, and aboard the U.S.S. Harry S.Truman.

The Pentagon Channel will film service members making ceremonial first shots in those locations, and the balls will be returned to the States.

Twenty-five children who have parents serving abroad will join Tiger at Congressional for ceremonial first shots with those same golf balls.

"We feel that the shot and these balls are our way of thanking these families for the support that they really provide us," Congressional Country Club President Bret Hart said during AT&T National media day on May 27. "We feel it will be a great way really to honor them as well."

Woods seconded that sentiment.

"I think that people don't realize the dedication of our men and women," said Woods, an Army brat.

"I grew up in a military household. I understand. I understand what it takes. I witnessed it. I have been around the guys all my life — have been part of the military from Infantrymen to Special Forces. I have been around all that. I know what it takes.

"They don't get enough thanks, and we're here to do that," he said. "There are people here who really do miss them, really appreciate what they're doing."

Most Army ITT/ITR offices within a 150-mile radius of Washington have the free tickets available on a first-come, first-served basis.

The tickets will be limited to two per person each day for play on Wednesday through Friday for active duty, Reserve, National Guard, retired and Department of Defense personnel.

For Saturday and Sunday play, the free tickets will be available only for active duty personnel and restricted to two per day per person for each day.

All tickets must be picked up at an ITT/ITR office. No tickets will be mailed.

Throughout the tournament, children 12 and younger will be admitted for free when accompanied by a ticket-holding adult (limit two children per adult).

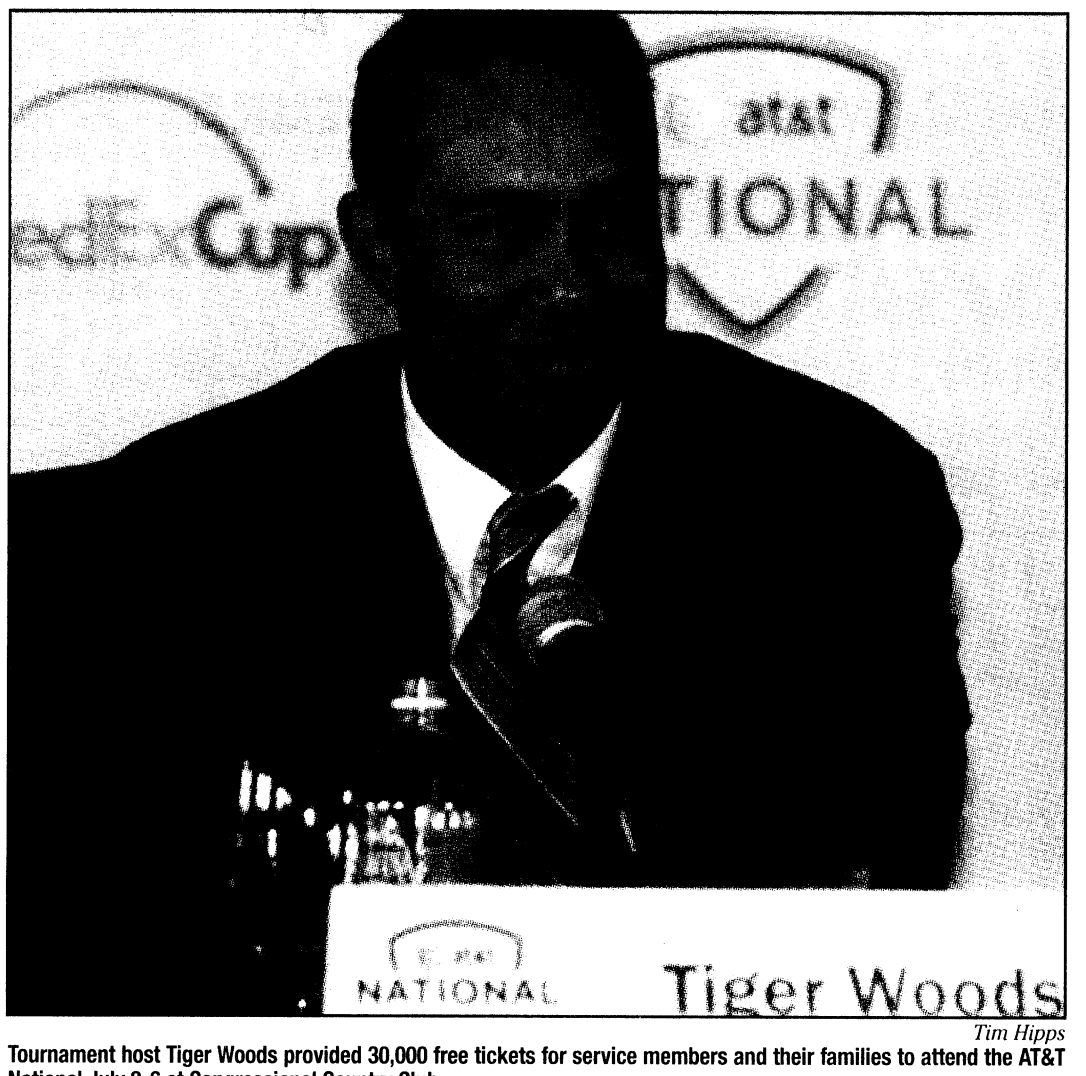
For more information about the ticket distribution, e-mail your questions to militarytickets@attnational.org.



The AT&T National also will offer military personnel a one-time 10 percent discount at all on-course merchandise locations.

A valid U.S. military identification card must be presented at time of purchase. That discount does not apply to purchases made at the Congressional Golf Shop adjacent to the clubhouse.

The tournament will honor a different branch of the military on each day of play, and spectators are encouraged to wear patriotic clothing in support of the military.

Wednesday will be Coast Guard Day; Thursday is Air Force Day; Friday is Navy Day; Saturday will be Dedicated to the Marine Corps, and Sunday will be Army Day.

ARMY NEWS SERVICE
Sgt. Maj. Jodie Newby

About 60 Soldiers of the Indiana National Guard were rewarded for their work with free tickets to the Indianapolis 500 to see the Guard-sponsored car run by Panther Racing.

The day began with a visit and talk by Air Force Gen. Victor E. Renuart Jr., and the Indiana Adjutant General Maj. Gen. R. Martin Umbarger, who thanked all for their service.

They also both took a moment to thank the spouses for their support and posed for photos with the country's three top recruiters.

A few minutes later, National Guard car driver Vitor Meira visited with the Soldiers and signed autographs. He talked and laughed with the troops and family members as they came by.

The garage tour was led by Mike Griffin, the Panther Racing expert on all things car-related. He walked the group through preparation activities for the car and and gave the inside scoop on racing, with details on radio talk and using spotters around the track to feed the drivers information.

During the race, the Soldiers were seated directly in front of Oriol Servia's pit crew. They cheered for Meira as he began working his way up to the front.

Sayers offers reading program

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

"Reading this summer at Sayers is purely for enjoyment," said Sherrie Floyd, manager at Sayers Memorial Library.

Children who sign up for the AFLAC Summer Reading Program will have the opportunity to enjoy not only books but also puppetry, magic, rub-on tattoos, food, prizes, live animals and more.

"She was so impressed with the magic show that she wanted to read about magic and magicians for weeks afterward," Effinger said. "Anything that gets them to read more is wonderful."

Effinger, mother of three, including a 7-month-old, said all her children will be reading, or listening to readings, at the library this summer.

It helps keep them active during the summer and helps them remember what they learned during the school year, she said. Even having stories read to them at a young age helps them grow into readers.

"We can't wait for this year's program so we can come all summer," she said.

This year's theme, "Catch the Reading Bug This Summer," is meant to keep kids reading during those long months of vacation from school.

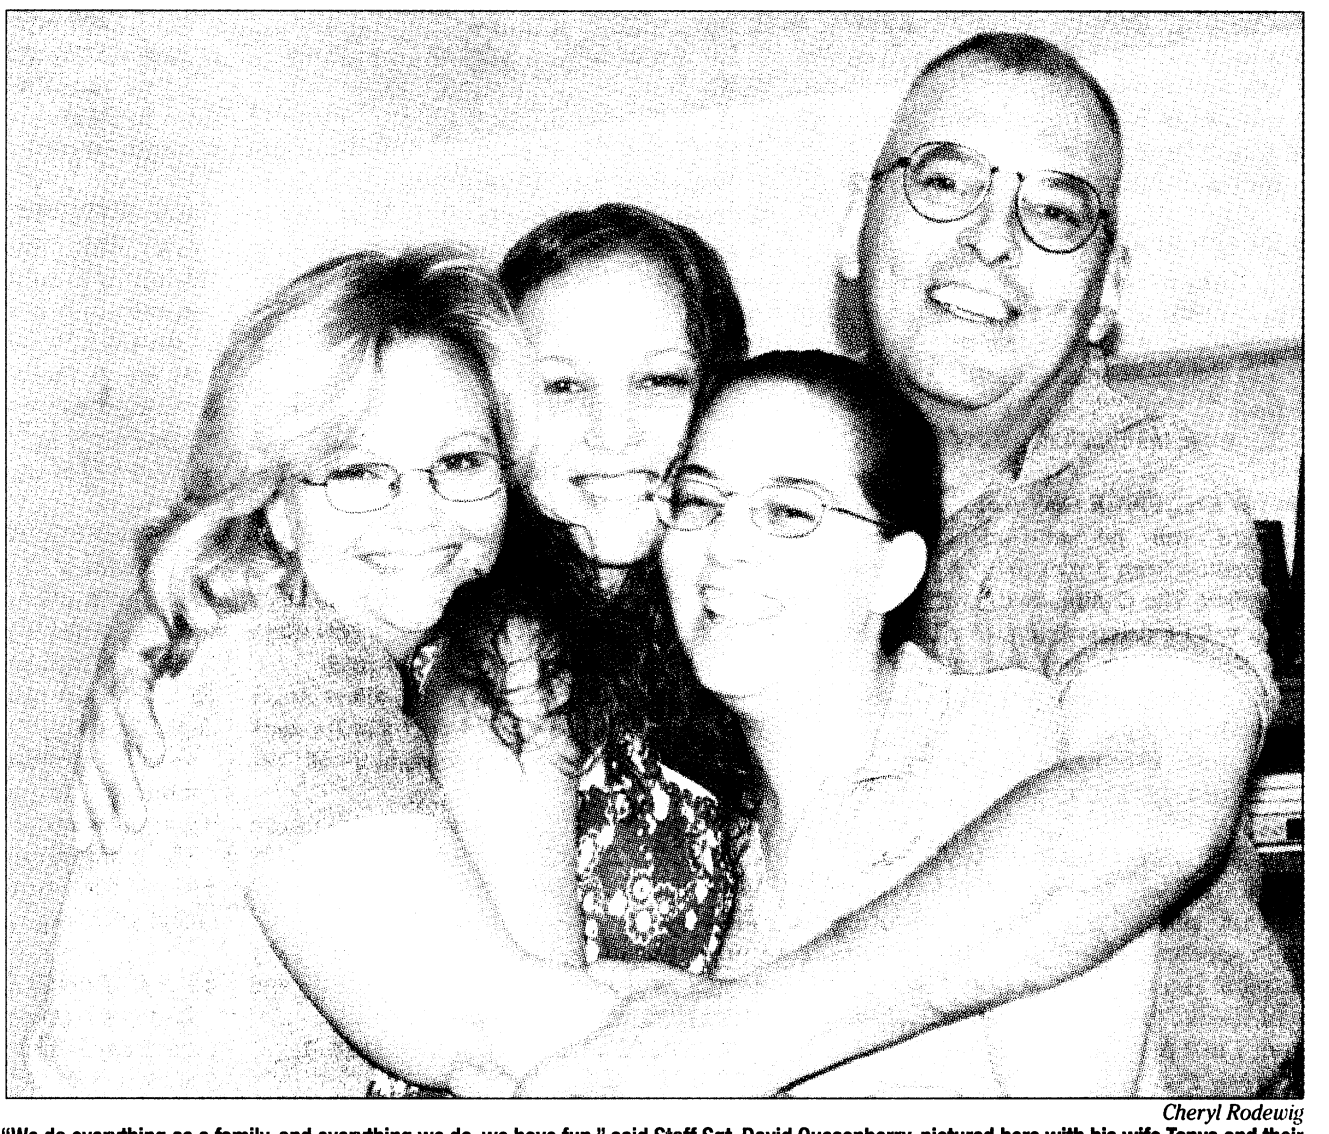
Kids who read during the summer do better in school the next fall, Floyd said.

Children can choose their own books and keep a log of ones they've finished. When they bring in their log every week, they receive stickers, prizes and at the end, a certificate of participation.

"There's nothing like curling up with a book," Floyd said. "It's another form of stress relief. It's a way to use your imagination. We want to teach a love of books, and this is our way of doing that."

The first event, June 19, will be "Drumming up the Stories," with drummer Dave Holland. Registration for the summer reading program is free, but the deadline is Monday. Meetings are every Thursday at 2 p.m. through July 31.

For pre-school-aged children, Sayers hosts a storytime hour at 11 a.m. Tuesdays. There are songs, crafts, snacks and stories. The first Tuesday of each month includes guest speakers from Parent-to-Parent.



The American Girls Book Club will also continue through the summer, meeting the first Wednesday of the month at 6:30 p.m. at the library.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

For more information about summer reading, call 706-545-7141.

Volunteering helps teen cope with deployment

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Cheryl Rodewig
"We do everything as a family, and everything we do, we have fun," said Staff Sgt. David Quesenberry, pictured here with his wife Tonya and their daughters, Hanah and Amanda. Amanda was named the Fort Benning Youth Volunteer of the Year in April.

When Amanda Quesenberry was born, the doctors said she wouldn't live six months. Her parents, Staff Sgt. David and Tonya, were offered little hope.

At 18 months, she was diagnosed with cerebral palsy, and again her parents were told not to be too optimistic. She would never walk on her own or speak coherently.

That was almost 20 years ago. Today, Amanda is healthy, happy and a contributing member of society — in a big way. She has volunteered 30 hours a week at Faith Middle School for the entire school year: roughly 740 hours in all.

"She never misses a day," Tonya said. "I've been told they have never seen hours like hers in the amount of time she's volunteered."

Amanda's work earned her the gratitude of the teachers and an award at the annual post volunteer recognition ceremony in April. Her father returned from a 15-month deployment just in time to see his oldest daughter named Fort Benning's Youth Volunteer of the Year.

Amanda started volunteering only a few months after David deployed to Iraq with the 598th Maintenance Company. Her mom worked at Faith during the day, younger sister Hanah was in high school, and Amanda stayed at home alone until she began having blackouts. Doctors said they could be linked to a brain aneurysm.

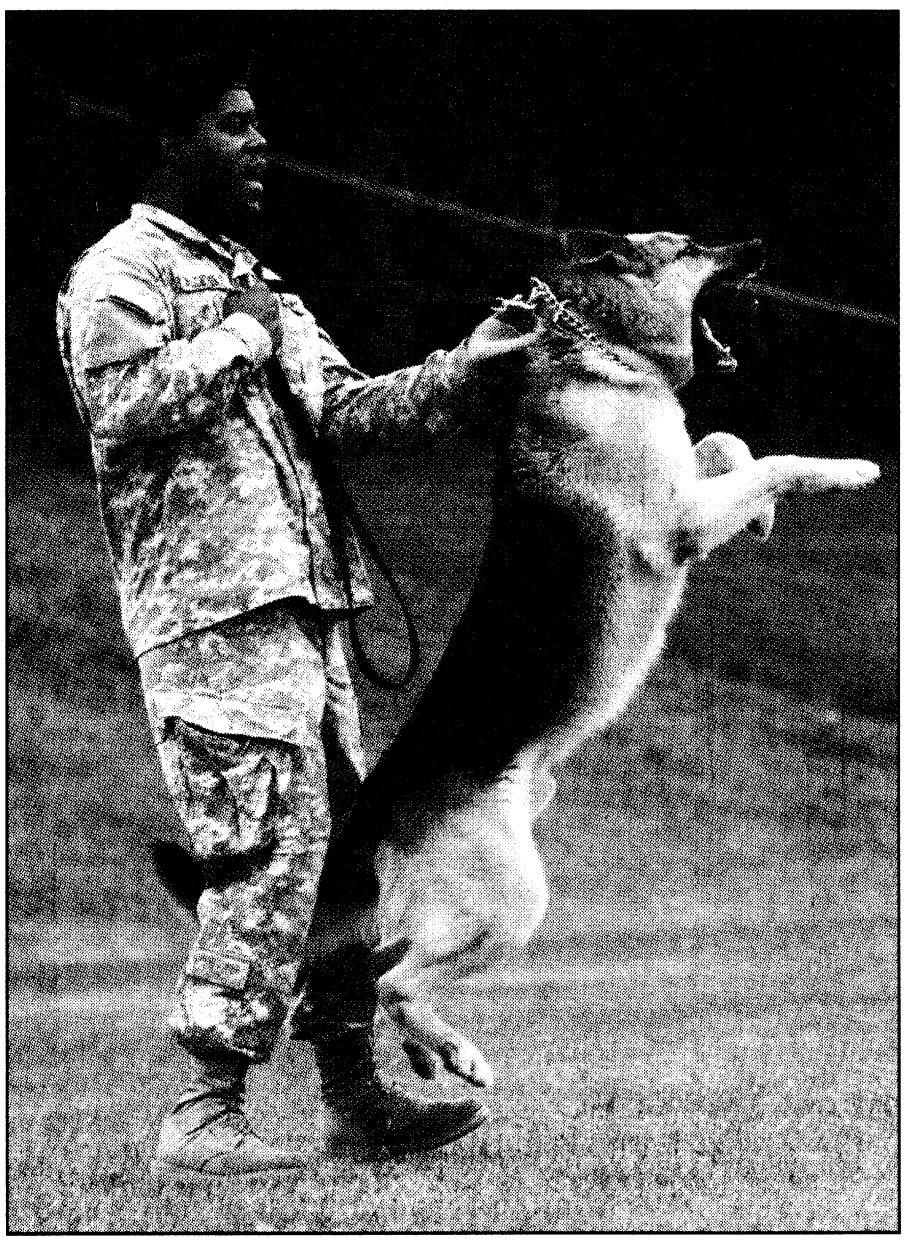
So Amanda started going to school with her mom. She spent about 10 hours a day in the school library making photocopies, checking out books and restocking shelves.

"She said that she was going to start volunteering, and I thought that was good because the busier you are, the faster the time goes," David said. "It takes your mind off of all the stuff around you — me not being there, having to do stuff without me."

The family missed David, Tonya said, when he was gone, but the deployment was particularly tough on Amanda, who is "daddy's girl."

When she was in physical therapy as a toddler she wouldn't walk, sit up or do anything during her dad's tour in Germany. But when he came home on R&R, she cooperated. It seemed like a miracle.

"He left, and she refused to walk; she refused to sit up," Tonya said. "She would talk to him on the phone and throw herself into seizures crying. It was all about her daddy. She wanted to be with her daddy."



Amanda was a senior in high school when her dad deployed to Iraq the first time in 2005. School activities helped her keep her mind off his absence. David made it home just in time for her graduation.

Her father's second deployment was even harder, since Amanda didn't have school to take her mind off her dad. So after she learned there was no threat of a brain aneurysm, Amanda continued to volunteer at the school to keep herself occupied.

David and Tonya said they were proud of how far Amanda has come.

"She was born dead," Tonya said. "We were told she wouldn't do anything. For a child who wasn't supposed to walk or talk, here she is making all these leaps and bounds and these volunteer hours and these awards ... If we had listened to the doctors, where would she have been?"

Soldiers from the 4th Ranger Training Battalion brought binoculars, portable radios, and night vision goggles to Discovery Day.

Discovery Day

Soldiers from the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, the 4th Ranger Training Battalion, the 92nd Military Police Battalion and DENTAC were among those who set up displays and hosted hands-on activities for the students of Loyd Elementary during Discover Day last week.
"We just might get the children interested in subjects they can pursue in their careers," said Doris Wamble, who teaches second grade.

Puppets teach Fort Benning children about feelings

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Benning Preschool and Tot Town children learned about feelings at a puppet show Tuesday. The show, called "Feelings are Important," addressed different kinds of emotions and ways to respond to them.

The puppet show lined up with the school's theme of feelings for this month, said Linda Westley, director of Benning Preschool. It's important for kids to express their feelings, especially when their parents are deploying and returning home, she said, and the puppet show helps them learn about that.

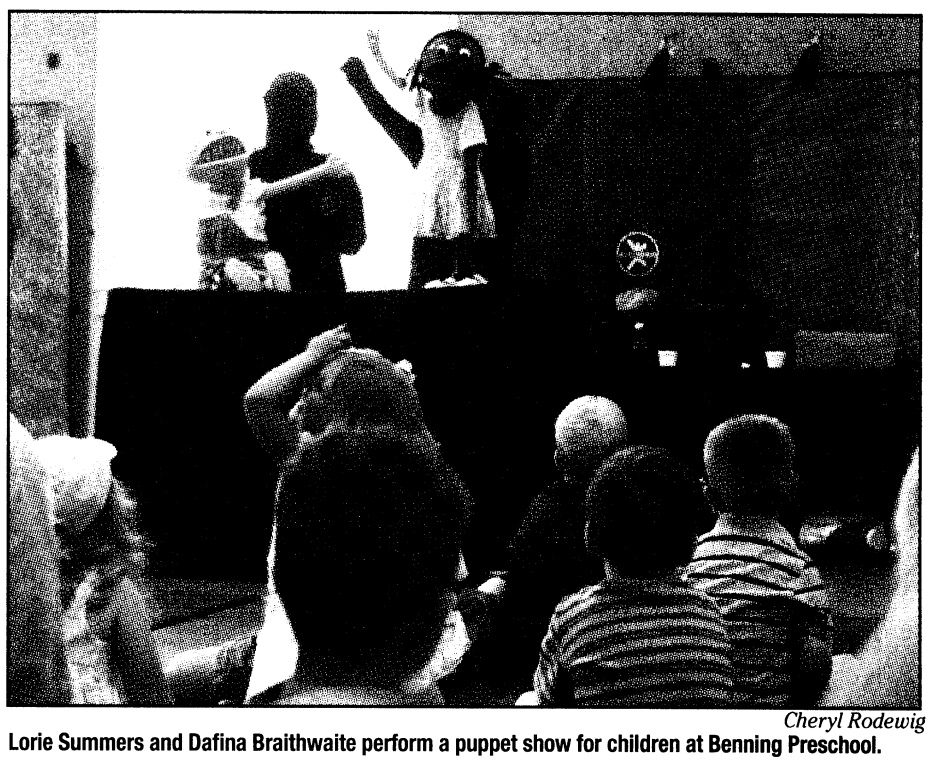
Jessaiah Duenas, 4-year-old daughter of John Duenas, didn't have much to say about how she felt when her dad was gone, except that she missed him.

But she knew how she felt about his return.

"I'm happy he's home now," she said.



Other children named emotions like grumpiness, anger and surprise.

One of the puppeteers with Mental Health America of Georgia, Lorie Summers, said she was impressed by how much the children talked about their feelings, compared with civilian audiences of the same age group. When Summers asked if it was OK to cry, almost all the children raised their hands to say yes.

"That's important at a young age," she said. "There's a lot of stigma about tears and emotions and sadness in some situations. The primary thing we were trying to do is to get the children to know it's all right to express their feelings. Good mental health — it starts early."

Through puppetry, the children learned how to identify emotions, talk with adults and friends and find coping skills, such as counting to 10 when they are angry.

"With little ones, it's very difficult for them to be able to express themselves," Westley said. "The puppets ask them questions and let them answer in their own way with their own words, so I just think that this allowed them to show what they really felt. As they get older, they'll be more familiar with how to express themselves."

Injured Soldiers struggle to maintain relationships, intimacy

ARMY NEWS SERVICE
Elizabeth M. Lorge

WASHINGTON — When Soldiers return from war with catastrophic injuries, they worry how their spouses and significant others will react.

Veterans and medical experts discussed romantic relationships during the Morehouse School of Medicine's "Wounded Troops and Partners: Supporting Intimate Relationships" conference May 21.

"I instantly realized when I woke up and saw my wife there that I wouldn't have to go it alone," said retired Spc. B.J. Jackson of the Iowa National Guard. "I was 22 years old. We had two young daughters. You think, 'wow, I'm different. Is my wife going to love me for who I am? Am I going to be accepted by my friends how I am?"

He and his wife Abby spoke about how it was a struggle at first for their relationship to return to normal as he healed after he lost both legs and was severely burned by a land mine in Iraq.

With the injuries, post-traumatic stress disorder and various medications, her husband just didn't seem interested in her as a woman, Abby said, and all she wanted was her husband back.

The hospital environment didn't encourage intimacy or privacy and Abby said she didn't know if she was allowed to climb in her husband's bed to hold him.

The doctor wasn't much help either. When Abby asked about their physical relationship, or lack thereof, he said it would come in time, but didn't offer any advice or suggestions.

Dr. Lance Goetz, a physician at the Dallas VA Spinal Cord Injury Center, said as many as 50 to 60 percent of Soldiers returning with traumatic brain injuries have problems or concerns with regaining intimacy.

Even minor brain injuries can have effects on physical and emotional relationships, he said. Various medications, pain and injuries, altered body image and lowered self-esteem can all lead to a lack of interest in intimacy. So can a fear of rejection, leading Soldiers to push their spouses or significant others away.

"There's an automatic, almost, rejection for the Soldiers for themselves so they put off that rejection toward the spouse or girlfriend or significant other," Abby said. "They're not sure how to adapt to that themselves. 'Are you rejecting me because I'm rejecting myself? What exactly is going on?'

"I think a lot of young people get so wrapped up in it that they're like, 'Look there's nothing. I look good. I've got both my legs. I'm going to go get me a man. Forget you.' And I think that happens all too quickly and too often. You've got to look at the statistics and reality: very young people do think that way and they operate on that level and that's what ends up happening. And you're left with the Soldier who's in the bed by himself thinking 'great, that was what was going to happen.' So communication is the key."

Doctors and mental-health professionals, especially those employed by the military and the Department of Veterans Affairs, have a responsibility to help their patients to return to as many normal, everyday activities as possible, including healthy, sexual activity, said Goetz, so they can't be afraid to address this topic and shouldn't wait for their patients to bring it up.

"Shame on us if we don't," he said.

There are therapies, suggestions and medications doctors can prescribe to help Soldiers and their partners, he said, and most men with injuries can still father children.

Intimacy helps keep couples together and experts agreed that a strong support system is essential in helping Soldiers recover, especially those with TBI and psychological disorders.

"It truly is your wife who gets you through it or your loved ones or your friends. My kids were a big part of my recovery," said Jackson, adding he feels terrible for single Soldiers who didn't have anyone to depend on. One friend asked him how he was supposed to meet women when he was missing a leg.

And when Soldiers receive that "Dear John" letter, they are at a far greater risk for suicide, so it is vital to help families and partners stay together, said Dr. Harold Wain, chief of the psychiatry consultation liaison service at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Doctors and mental-health experts should do whatever possible to help Soldiers feel whole — including letting their spouses sleep in their hospital beds.

The Army has to make sure couples have a strong foundation before deployments and emphasize the vows they made to stay together in sickness and in health, said Lt. Col. Peter Frederich, family ministries officer at the Office of the Chief of Chaplains.

REUNIONS

Understanding Soldier's mind-set will make better reunions

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Richard Garvey

For all our returning Soldiers, we want to tell you again: We're proud of you, and we're here for you. Mission accomplished; job well done!

This is the third in a series of articles designed to help each and every Soldier or spouse who's in the midst of the joys and challenges of redeployment.

First, we talked about the huge amount of resources and agencies that are at your disposal to make homecoming all that you want it to be.

Second, we talked about managing and communicating your expectations with those around while being prepared for fluctuations in your emotions now that you are home.

After talking with thousands of redeploying Soldiers, this week I want to share the most helpful concept that Soldiers have given me. It's a word picture that helps explain both the joys and the challenges of warriors and those they love as they reunite.

If you've been away, or if you're the loved one of a Soldier who's come home, do you know where you or they were this past year? You might say, "Well, duh. Our Soldiers were on a different continent for the last year. They were in Iraq; everybody knows that."

Though technically correct, that's a very basic understanding of where your Soldier was.

He or she really hasn't just been in a different country or on a different continent — your Soldier has been on a different planet this past year.

Can you think of some of the differences between the planet you've lived on and the planet they've lived on? Maybe that'd be a great question to ask for some pillow talk tonight.

When I listen to Soldiers and loved ones tell me about the difference in the planets they've been on, this is what I hear.

There were dragons on the Soldier's planet. In the fairy tales we've all read, what do dragons do? They hunt you. They scare you. They kill you. They terrorize you.

And those dragons hid everywhere and took different forms. They hid with women and children in crowds. They hid under overpasses. They came in mortar rounds over their compound's fences. They hid in boxes beside the road.

On their planet for the last year, they've had to deal with sneaky dragons that were very intent on killing them. And even though they "know" there aren't any dragons on their home planet, their "survival mind and body" still respond as if they were here.

It's displayed when a loud round goes off on the range next to Dixie Road, or they react to a box on the side of the road, or the sight or smell involuntarily sparks a brief memory of a dragon.

All this is normal for a Soldier who's been in combat and is transitioning from one planet to another.

On his planet, your Soldier carried a load of "Army" responsibility but no, or very little, family responsibility. If you're a spouse, your planet has been just the opposite, right? You've had family responsibilities 24/7, while your military obligations may have been next to nothing. It would be normal for you to want to "disengage" from your heavy family demands and just hand the kids over to give yourself a break, right?

Well, reunion is all about communicating and negotiating the expectations we have when we get back together after having lived on different planets.

The good news is there is help all around you. There's the Welcome Home Reintegration Book, The Family Life Center, your family care provider, ACS, your own battle buddies, friends and family and most important is your spouse.

If you find yourself struggling with the transition coming home or other issues, the Chaplain Family Life Center is honored to provide caring, confidential counseling to Soldiers, couples and families.

To set up a confidential appointment, call 706-545-1760.

Get reintegrated with your worship services now that you are home. Don't neglect the spiritual resources available to you from God. We're proud of you. We're here for you.

Following warm weather tips can help with summer safety

FIRST ALERT

With warmer weather, the call to head outdoors can't be far behind. Boating, camping and RV recreation, fishing, canoeing and numerous other outdoor sports are popular each summer. That's why having the proper gear on hand to reduce the threat of injury is so important, safety experts say. It's important to:

- Pack a first aid kit. Include bug spray, sunscreen, antiseptics, a snakebite kit and pain relievers along with other emergency supplies.
- Learn CPR. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation and basic first aid skills are essential, especially if you find yourself in an isolated area. CPR skills can help prevent choking and resuscitate victims after a swimming accident. Know how to deal with breaks, sprains, head and neck injuries.
- Secure recreational and camping gear. A tie-down that absorbs shocks and holds items in place is best.
- Keep campfires low and away from brush, trees, cars, tents and other potential hazards. One stray spark from a campfire is all it takes to ignite nearby brush or potentially toxic materials.
- Keep a fire extinguishing spray nearby and never leave fires unattended. Make sure family members know where fire extinguishers are located and how to use them.
- Watch the weather. Keep a portable radio on hand to stay on top of forecasts. Inclement weather can arrive with little warning, so stay in the know and be prepared to move to a nearby shelter.

The Strangers opens today D2

Vacation planning event set for June 6

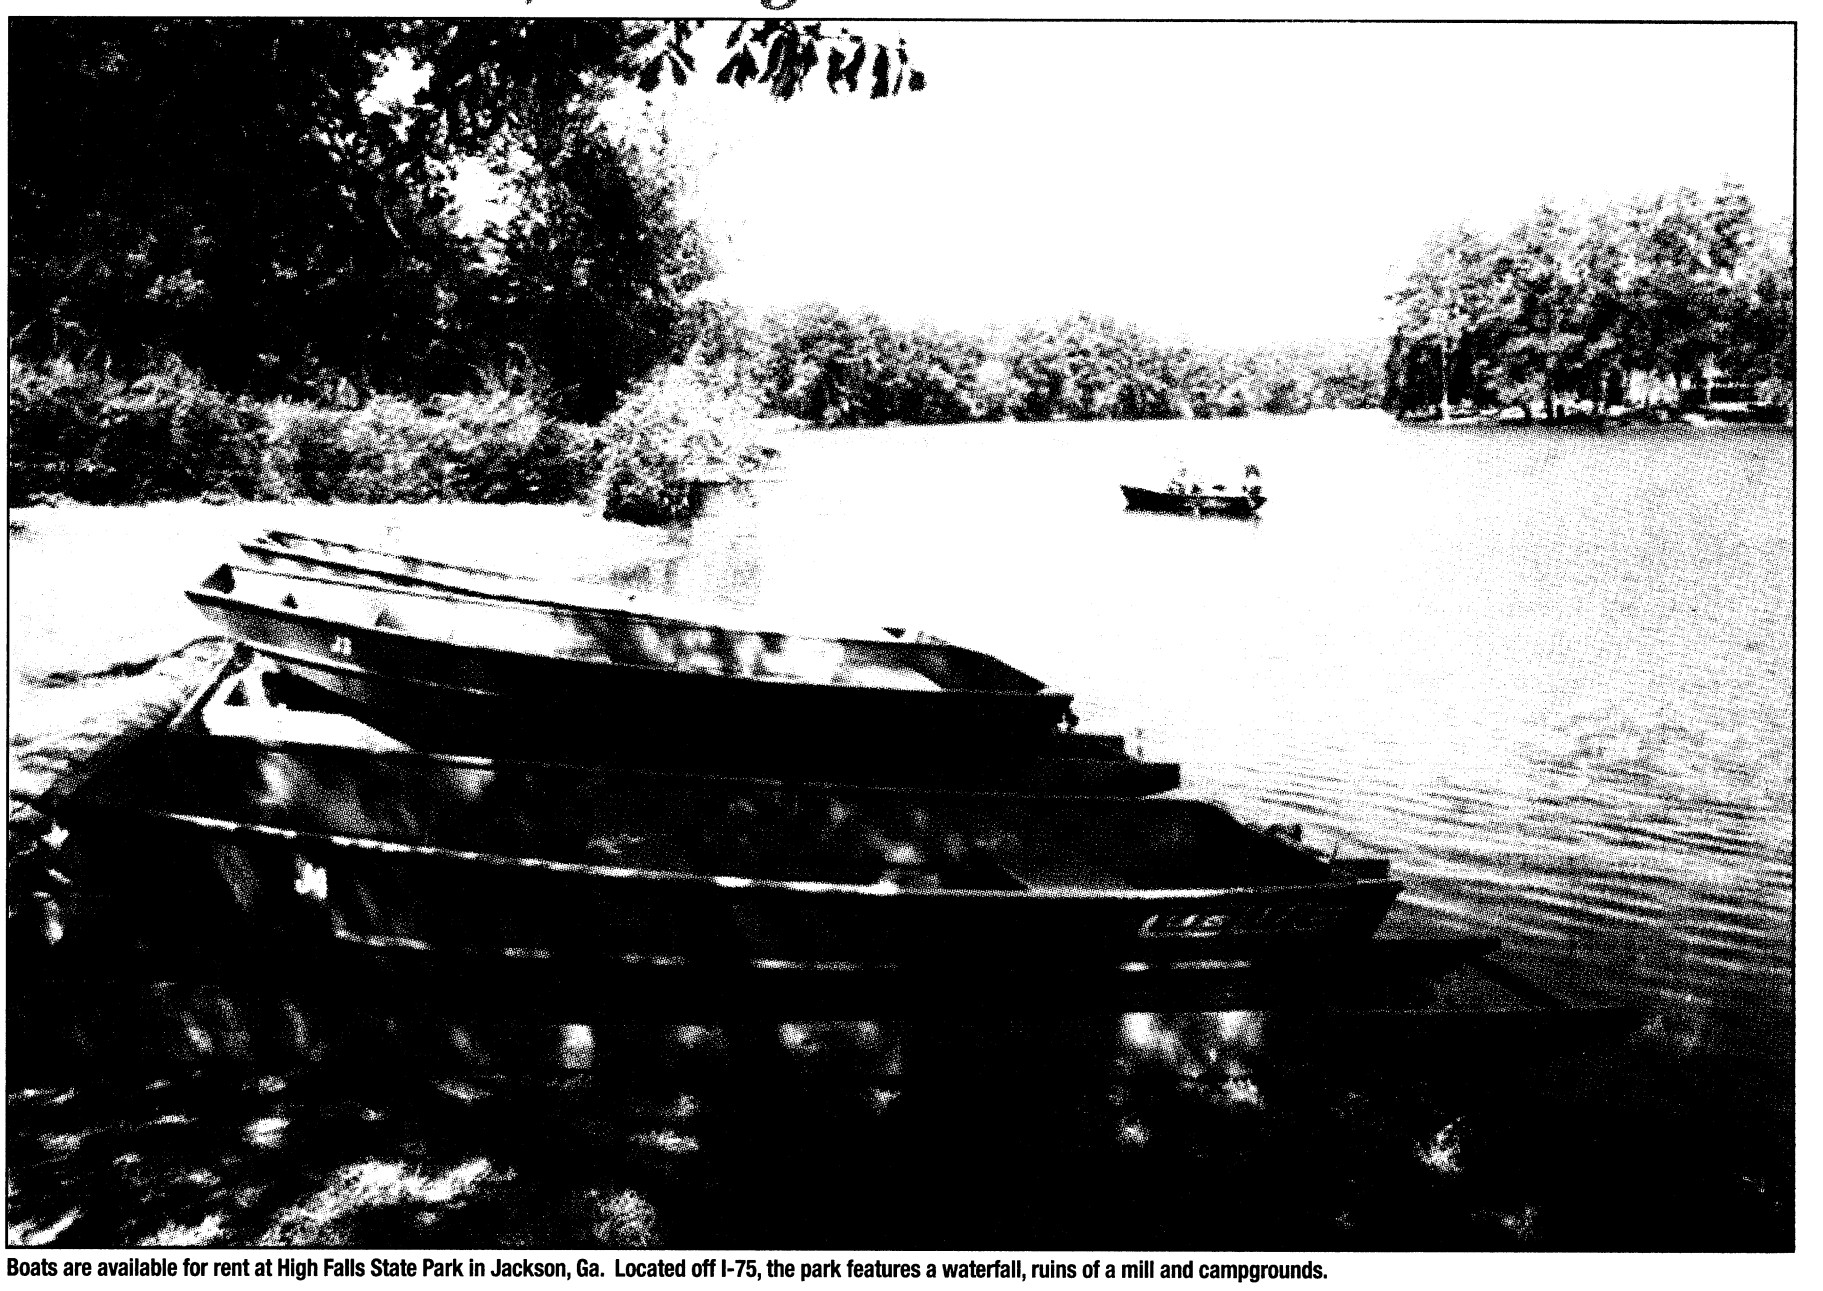
THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The Georgia Visitor Center will hold its annual Georgia on My Mind Day from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. June 6. The free event is open to the public and will include exhibits from around the state to help people plan their summer vacations.

"Visitors and residents can gather free information and maps about an attraction or city of interest," said Rita Hughes, visitor center manager. "Prior planning helps make a more efficient trip, saving time and mileage. We also have coupons for many attractions and hotels."

The family-friendly event kicks off the summer travel season with free food, including hot dogs, popcorn, tea and giveaways. Almost 30 exhibitors have already signed up. There will be live animals from Oxbow Meadows, a sword demonstration with costumed knights from the Medieval Times dinner theater, and Cabbage Patch Kids on display from Babyland General.

It's a cost-saving tool, Hughes said. As gas prices rise, taking a vacation in state can be a big savings, and Georgia has plenty of destinations.



Hughes said Georgians often don't realize what's available a short trip away.

"Georgia has a little bit of everything for everybody — we have more than 100 miles of coastline, mountains, museums, antebellum architecture, Civil War historic sites and more," she said. "Our region alone hosts many attractions. At this event, we'll have brochures, maps and a knowledgeable staff to answer any questions you may have."

From shopping to biking, antiques to aquariums, visitors can find information about all Georgia has to offer. The event will be at the visitor center, 1751 Williams Road, Columbus. From I-185 exit 12, there will be signs to the center.

For more information, call 706-649-7455 or e-mail columbus@georgia.org. For regional attractions, visit www.presidentialpathways.com. For statewide information, go to www.exploregeorgia.org.

Get outdoors, Georgia

Boats are available for rent at High Falls State Park in Jackson, Ga. Located off I-75, the park features a waterfall, ruins of a mill and campgrounds.

State parks offer Georgians free admission

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

June is National Get Outdoors Month. Georgians are invited to explore their own backyard at any of the 63 state parks and historic sites.

Activities are scheduled throughout the summer, including fishing rodeos, guided hikes and star-gazing. Park visitors can bike, boat, climb and camp with the many resources and amenities offered at Georgia parks.

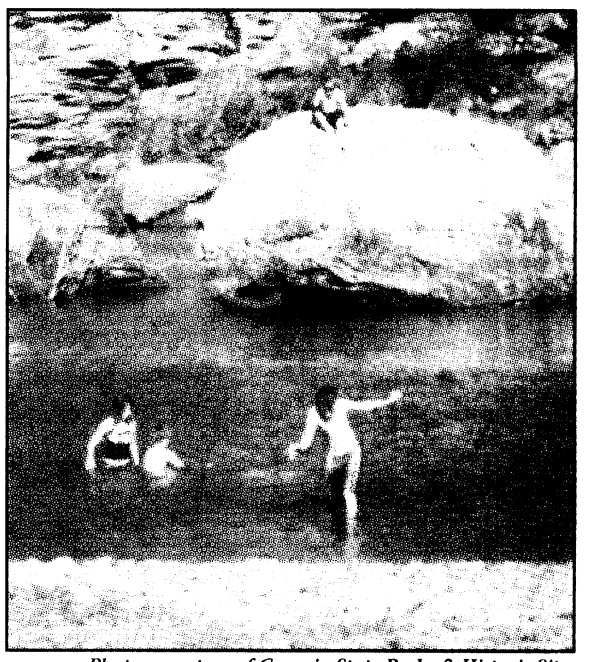
Georgia residents will receive free parking and admission at any Georgia state park or historic site June 14. It's part of the state's official Get Outdoors Georgia initiative. The Coca-Cola Company will provide free beverages at each of the parks.

Anyone with a valid library card from a Georgia public library can check out a ParkPass folder for up to seven days. These folders, available starting Monday, include passes that waive parking fees for all parks and a Georgia parks and historic sites guide. Plan ahead, since passes are limited.

Whether your taste is for mountains or waterfalls, canyons or lakes, Georgia has it covered.

You don't have to drive far for scenic beauty. You'll get plenty of vitamin D, fresh air and exercise hiking through the layers of red and orange clay at Providence Canyon State Park in Lumpkin, Ga. Home to "Georgia's Little Grand Canyon," the park is just an hour south of Fort Benning. If you join the Canyon Climbers Club, a Georgia parks program, you will explore not only Providence Canyon, but also Amicalola Falls, Tallulah Gorge and Cloudland Canyon. Club membership is only $10 and is worth an "I hiked the canyons" T-shirt once members have completed all four challenges.

If you're more of a biker than a climber, you might want to try the Muddy Spokes Club. This challenge includes 11 parks and 69 miles of trails. At completion, you turn in your card for a "mud-splattered" T-shirt. No one has completed all the biking trails yet, so you can still finish first.

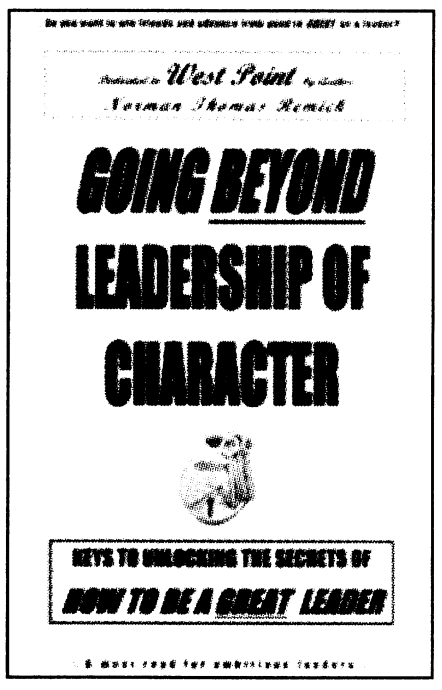


For something a little out of the ordinary, trade your bike for a horse, available at the F.D. Roosevelt State Park in Pine Mountain, Ga. This is the largest park in the state, so you'll have plenty of space to roam.

Try the tree-lined 23-mile Pine Mountain Trail, and be sure to stop by one of the valley overlooks. Roosevelt's Little White House Historic Site is only a short drive away in Warm Springs.

If you want to get out of the woods and out on the water, try Florence Marina State Park in Omaha, Ga. It's only 45 minutes away on Lake Walter F. George. Besides fishing, boating and other water activities, you can spot bald eagles, camp out, play golf or learn about Native American artifacts.

No matter your taste, there's an outdoor scene for you. So get some great photos, a good workout and wonderful memories. Get outdoors.



For more information, call call 800-864-7275 or visit www.getoutdoorsgeorgia.org.

Children play in the water at Sprewell Bluff State Park in Thomaston, Ga., less than 2 hours from Fort Benning. The park has picnic areas, a boat ramp and volleyball court. A trail through the bluffs offers clear views of the river and valley.

BOOK REVIEW

Author explains five key points of military leadership

Concise book contains useful advice, examples from history

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Maj. Matthew Archambault

For military professionals, it is arguable the art of closing with the enemy runs a close second to the amount of time officers and NCOs spend studying leadership. Most military professionals' bookshelves contain at least two or three titles on the subject with their approaches varying from situationally specific to the broadly didactic. Norman Remick contributes to this edifice with Dedicated to West Point: Going Beyond Leadership of Character.

Going Beyond lives up to the adage of not judging a book by its cover. Diminutive at a mere 152 pages, Remick's book does not mince words or lose the reader with flowery prose.

He organizes his ideas about leadership around five keys every leader should practice: get people on your side; correct people without condemning them; make people feel important; arouse pride and emotions; and help people. These are not new or revolutionary by any stretch in the imagination, but Remick's approach and style help reinforce what every good leader already knows.

Dedicating a chapter to each key, Remick balances the use of personal yarns with historical anecdotes. The historical examples educate and inspire the reader while his own tales maintain a relevance to leaders in any organization, in any circumstance, and from any background.

A downfall many leadership books commit is to misuse parables in illustrating convincing points. These are often shallow, cliché and disrupt the flow of the text. Remick avoids this pitfall by the normative tone he maintains throughout his book. Combined with a conversational style he puts the reader in a comfort zone similar to a classroom. He takes special care to underscore his salient points, so Going Beyond is also excellent for quick referencing and use during professional development classes.

Going Beyond is not only appropriate to leaders in all walks of life, it is also germane to living a virtuous life. I recommend this book to leaders at all levels in the chain of command. Any lifelong student of the profession of arms ought to have this book on their shelves.

Norman Remick, a business entrepreneur, is also the author of Mr. Jefferson's Academy: The Real Story and Understanding West Point: Leaders of Character, and Thomas Jefferson.

Opening Today
SEX AND THE CITY

The continuing adventures of Carrie (Sarah Jessica Parker), Samantha (Kim Cattrall), Charlotte (Kristin Davis) and Miranda (Cynthia Nixon) as they live their lives in Manhattan four years after the series ended.

Sex and the City is rated R for sexual content, nudity and language.

THE STRANGERS

Three mysterious strangers terrorize a young couple (Liv Tyler and Scott Speedman) in a remote house after they return from a wedding.

The Strangers is rated R for violence, terror and language.

Also Playing
INDIANA JONES AND THE KINGDOM OF THE CRYSTAL SKULL

In 1957, Indiana Jones is thrust back in action, venturing into the jungles of South America in a race against Soviet agents to find the Crystal Skull.

THE CHRONICLES OF NARNIA: PRINCE CASPIAN

One year later, the kings and queens of Narnia find themselves back in Narnia, only to discover that more than 1,300 years have passed in Narnian time. During their absence, Narnia has been conquered by the Telmarines and is now under the control of the evil King Miraz (Sergio Castellitto).

The four children will soon meet Narnia's rightful heir to the throne, Prince Caspian (Ben Barnes), who has been forced into hiding as his uncle Miraz plots to kill him. With the help of a mouse, a badger and a Black Dwarf, the Narnians embark to find Aslan, rescue Narnia and restore the land.

SPEED RACER

Born to race cars, Speed Racer's (Emile Hirsch) only real competition is the memory of the brother he idolized — legendary Rex Racer.

When Speed turns down a lucrative and tempting offer from Royalton Industries, he infuriates the company's maniacal owner and discovers some of the biggest races are being fixed.

The only way for Speed to save his family's business is to win the cross-country rally known as The Crucible.

WHAT HAPPENS IN VEGAS

Two people (Cameron Diaz and Ashton Kutcher) discover they've gotten married following a night of debauchery in Vegas, with one of them winning a jackpot after playing the other's quarter. The pair tries to undermine each other and get their hands on the money, falling in love along the way.

What Happens in Vegas is rated PG-13 for sexual and crude content, language and a drug reference.

THE FALL

In Los Angeles, circa 1920s, a little immigrant girl (Catinca Untaru) finds herself in a hospital recovering from a fall. She strikes up a friendship with a bedridden man who captivates her with a whimsical story that removes her far from the hospital doldrums into the exotic landscapes of her imagination.

Making sure he keeps the girl interested in the story he interweaves her family and people she likes from the hospital into his tale.

IRON MAN

Instead, using his intelligence and ingenuity, Tony builds a high-tech suit of armor and escapes captivity. When he uncovers a plot with global implications, he dons his powerful armor and vows to protect the world as Iron Man.

MADE OF HONOR

Tom Bailey (Patrick Dempsey) is in love with his best friend Hannah (Michelle Monaghan).

But Tom has a fear of commitment and refuses to admit that he should propose to Hannah before she finds a less procrastinating suitor. When Colin (Kevin McKidd), a rich Scotsman asks Hannah for her hand in marriage, Tom must witness her unquestioned happiness up close — because she's chosen him to be her maid of honor.

SON OF RAMBOW

In 1980's Britain, young Will Proudfoot (Bill Milner) is raised in isolation among The Brethren, a religious sect in which music and TV are strictly forbidden.

Now, Will sets out to join forces with school bully Lee Carter (Will Poulter) to make their own action epic, devising wildly creative stunts and elaborate schemes for creating a movie of non-stop thrills while hiding from The Brethren. When school popularity finally descends on Will and Lee in the form of the super-cool French exchange student Didier (Jules Sitruk), their new friendship and precious film are pushed to the breaking point.

HAROLD AND KUMAR ESCAPE FROM GUANTANAMO BAY

Harold and Kumar (John Cho and Kal Penn) decide to pursue Maria (Paula Garces), the girl Harold likes, to Amsterdam. However, an overzealous airline passenger mistakes Kumar for a terrorist, and the plane is diverted as the duo get stuck in a case of mistaken identity.

BABY MAMA

Successful and single businesswoman Kate Holbrook (Tina Fey) has long put her career ahead of a personal life, but now at 37, she's determined to have a kid on her own. But when she discovers she has only a million-to-one chance of getting pregnant, Kate allows South Philly working girl Angie Ostrowiski (Amy Poehler) to become her unlikely surrogate.

Kate begins reading childcare books, baby-proofing the apartment and researching top pre-schools, but her strategy is turned upside down when Angie shows up at her doorstep with no place to live. In a battle of wills, they struggle their way through preparation for the baby's arrival.

DECEPTION

A New York accounting consultant, Jonathan McQuarry (Ewan McGregor) meets a charismatic, womanizing lawyer, Wyatt Bose (Hugh Jackman) who personifies everything he wants to be. But in the mysterious sex club he is introduced into, he soon becomes the prime suspect in a woman's disappearance and a mult-million dollar heist.

Deception is rated R for sexual content, language, violence and drug use.

THE FORBIDDEN KINGDOM

While hunting down bootleg kung-fu DVDs in a Chinatown pawnshop, Jason (Michael Angarano) makes an extraordinary discovery that sends him back in time to ancient China. There, he is charged with the task to free the fabled warrior, the Monkey King (Jet Li), who has been imprisoned by the evil Jade Warlord (Collin Chou).

Jason is joined in his quest by kung fu master Lu Yan (Jackie Chan) and a band of misfit warriors including Silent Monk (Jet Li).

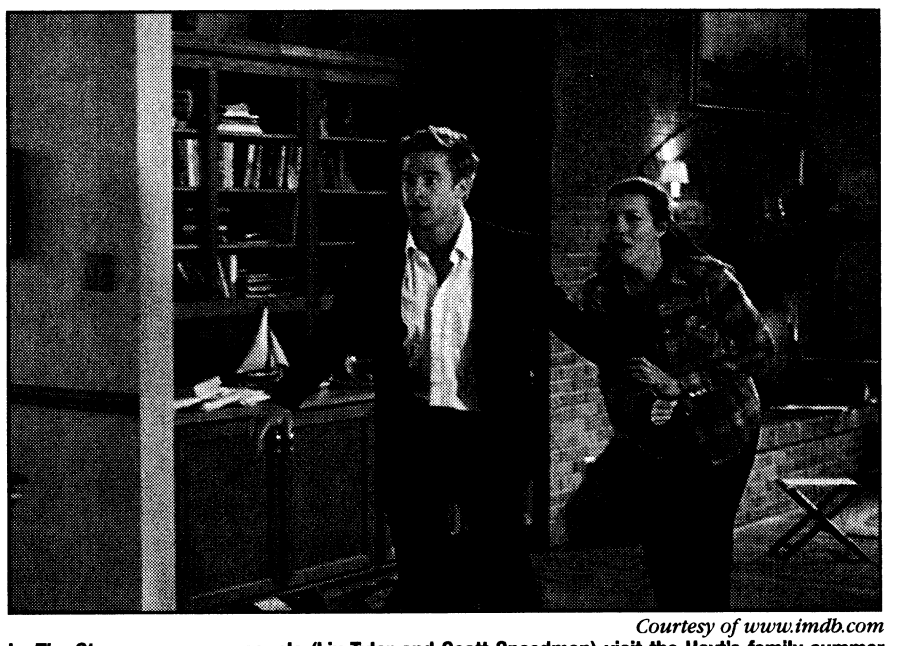
88 MINUTES



Dr. Jack Gramm (Al Pacino), a college professor who moonlights as a forensic psychiatrist for the FBI, receives a death threat claiming he has only 88 minutes to live. He must use all his training to narrow down the possible suspects before his time runs out.

88 Minutes is rated R for violence, nudity and language.

FORGETTING SARAH MARSHALL

After a break-up with his girlfriend, TV sitcom star Sarah Marshall (Kristen Bell), a depressed Peter (Jason Segel) heads to Hawaii for a little vacation to try his best to forget every detail of his relationship. But Sarah is vacationing in the same exclusive resort as Peter, along with her new boyfriend.

2007 T.O.P. Army Fighter on Fort Benning TV

COMMAND INFORMATION OFFICER
Jennifer Gunn

Fort Benning TV's presentation of the Military Channel's T.O.P. Army Fighter is now airing courtesy of The Military Channel, Time Warner and the Fort Benning Public Affairs Office.

T.O.P. Army Fighter is a three-part series, the first and second of which will air this weekend, to be followed by part three beginning Monday.

Viewers on post can watch an hour-long special during weeknight prime time hours: 9 and 11 p.m.; and at various other times throughout the day.

T.O.P. Army Fighter is based on the 2007 Combatives Invitational Tournament, an event conducted at Fort Benning for the past three years, in which the best Army fighters are invited to compete. The program takes viewers inside the ring, blow-by-blow, explaining the techniques used in modern Army, hand-to-hand combat.

"When you go through a door in an 8 by 10 room, inside that room, it's not a marksmanship contest, it's a fight," said Matt Larsen, the creator of the Modern Army Combatives Program.

T.O.P. Army Fighter will air on Fort Benning now through June 14.

Fort Benning TV producer Nate Snook said he was excited to offer this program to viewers on post.

"It's nice to air a show that offers comprehensive coverage of an event like the Combatives Tournament. You'll see each fight from beginning to end," Snook said.

Earlier this year, Fort Benning TV aired the Military Channel's coverage of the 2007 International Sniper Competition.

Though T.O.P. Army Fighter will not be available off post, those viewers can watch Fort Benning TV programming at 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Charter's channel 3; Knology's channel 17; MediaCom's channel 21 and on Troy University Channel on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Fort Benning TV's The Benning Report can be seen on the Pentagon Channel, Saturdays at 4:30 p.m. and Sundays at noon. Fort Benning TV programming is also available online at www.BenningTV.com.

Cruiserweights determine the Army's toughest at 185 pounds during the 2007 T.O.P. Army Fighter competition. The Military Channel has given Fort Benning permission to present the 2007 event on Fort Benning TV during a three-part series. Watch parts one and two starting at 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday on Time Warner channel 4. Part three airs Monday.

The last 65 Soldiers with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team returned Monday afternoon.

Sgt. 1st Class Maxwell Donahue, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, said their mission was to push the brigade home — to get the equipment out of Iraq and ready for transport.

Lt. Col. Howard Coe, commander of the 203rd Forward Support Battalion, said the Soldiers' mission was to load the ship.

"But we didn't have to take the slow boat home," said Staff Sgt. Erich Frees with 3rd Squadron, 1st Cav. Regt. Their flight arrived almost an hour early at Lawson Army Airfield.

Staff Sgt. Erich Frees, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, smiles at his mom Joan Frees. Frees was one of 65 Soldiers who returned from Kuwait after making sure the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's equipment was ready for transportation.

"We're so, so thankful," said Joan Frees, from Cape Coral, Fla., as she held her son's hand. "God saw us through this deployment."

"It's the final stage for the final chapter of Sledgehammer 5.3," Coe said referring to the brigade's deployment of Operation Iraqi Freedom V and the unit's third deployment to Iraq.

SBL to test new grenade safety clip

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

Fort Benning's Soldier Battle Lab will test a new grenade safety clip that could save lives and minimize injuries.

The clip holds the grenade pull ring in place and requires Soldiers to execute a 90-degree, clockwise turn to activate it, said Justin Strayer, project officer.

It was developed after Soldiers in Iraq and Afghanistan were observed taping the pin in place on grenades, Strayer said. Soldiers removing the tape have been injured.

Soldiers from the 988th Military Police Company will participate in the testing June 16-18.

Strayer said the Soldier Battle Lab wants to ensure the grenade safety clip holds the pull ring in place and the clip does not hinder Soldiers' ability to pull the ring.

Testing includes new equipment training, familiarization exercises, and distance and accuracy and individual movement technique courses, Soldiers will also run the grenade qualification course.

Local teacher nets district award

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Sharon Del Gobbo was selected as the Georgia/Alabama Teacher of the Year for the 2008-2009 school year. An art teacher at Stowers Elementary School, Del Gobbo has been teaching at Fort Benning for 20 years.

Del Gobbo said the honor was humbling.

"It truly makes you look at yourself and the things you do," she said.

She was nominated for this distinction by Angie Minutelli, a Stowers first-grade teacher, but Minutelli conferred with more than 20 other teachers at the school — all who agreed Del Gobbo deserved this award.

"Sharon is many things to Stowers: a dedicated art teacher, an inspirational peer and a humble leader," Minutelli wrote in her nomination letter. "(She) inspires me to be a better teacher, friend, mother and wife. I am a better person for knowing her and learning from her."

Minutelli said Del Gobbo not only encouraged the children to be better students and artists but also helped other teachers during her planning time.

"She's exceptional, the whole package of a teacher," Minutelli said. "She's our model for what we want to be like."

Del Gobbo just completed her third year as chairperson for the school improvement team. She uses what she calls "quiet leadership, a sort of gentle focusing of attention," to develop and improve different aspects of the school. Foremost, however, is teaching.

54-year-old graduates from Airborne School

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

More than 450 service members earned their wings Friday morning at the Airborne Memorial at Eubanks Field. Among them was Staff Sgt. Jimmy Mercado, a 54-year-old Infantry Soldier whom school officials believe to be the second oldest person ever to graduate.

"He's the type of Soldier who is always doing things," said Command Sgt. Maj. Jose Mendoza. "Everything you tell him to do, every assignment he gets, he tries to do the best he can, and he does an outstanding job."

Their Reserve unit rarely gets to send Soldiers to this type of training, so it was rewarding to see Mercado graduate, said Mendoza, command sergeant major of the 1st Battalion, 350th Logistics Support Battalion, Fort Allen, Puerto Rico.

The three-week training period that turns a Soldier, Airman, Sailor or Marine into an Airborne graduate is an intense process, he said, but Mercado was able to keep up with men and women a third of his age.

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Army's birthday celebration is also the Infantry's

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

As we celebrate Flag Day and the Army's Birthday on June 14, it is important to remember our Army's contribution to winning our independence and shaping the character of our country. Our nation had an Army before it had a government. As the Second Continental Congress met in Philadelphia in the summer of 1775 following the battles of Lexington and Concord, an armed mob of American citizens surrounded the British Army and Marine regulars in Boston. With no higher formal organization than company level militia, these Minutemen responded to the call of the church bell and the town crier when British soldiers marched on Concord. They did not take their firelocks down from the fireplace and join their neighbors on the village greens across New England to fight for independence — that mission did not begin until July 4 of the following summer. These defenders of liberty stood fast at Bunker Hill and the other high ground above Boston to defend their rights as English citizens. As colonial citizens, they had something to fight for.

Why were these armed citizens angry? What made them decide to march together to threaten the military of their beloved crown? The answers to these questions are what make the American Army unique among the military professionals of the world.

For the first 150 years of English settlement in America, the colonial militia was considered more important for local defense than professional troops. The concept of citizen-Soldiers selecting their own political and military leaders dated back to the days of the Greek city-states. However, the majority of the Colonists could vote and were liable for community military service, a new idea for the Old World. Though all Englishmen conceivably had the rights to elect their leaders, providing they owned property, the Colonists in the North American colonies owned land or businesses to a far greater extent than those residing in England. The idea that legislative representatives and military leaders ought to stand for election by the large percentage of freeholders in the colonies was quite radical and not accepted in Great Britain. America's Revolution had undeniably begun over a century before the American War for Independence.

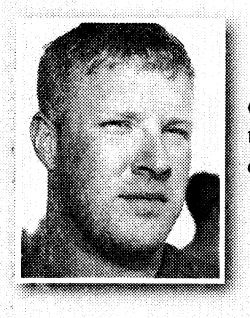
While the details of local militia organization varied from one community to another in early America, the selection of leaders fit a general pattern for nearly 200 years.

Each summer the members of a local militia elected their leaders from corporal to captain from among the company members. During the annual county muster, all the captains commanding companies would choose the regimental majors and the lieutenant-colonel from among themselves, and the colonial governor would appoint the regimental colonel and brigade officers. This proved to be a rather simple means of selecting leaders that the militia Soldiers could trust. These same methods of leader selection remained as the American militia mustered in 1775 to fight for their rights as English citizens and, later, in the Continental Army.

In 1777, Benjamin Franklin sent Capt. "Baron" von Steuben, formerly of the Prussian and French armies, from Paris to America to help train the struggling Continental Army. Gen. George Washington appointed von Steuben drillmaster, officially the Inspector General for Training, of the Continental Army at Valley Forge.

The model companies formed and drilled by von Steuben became the origins of an American School of Infantry and a model of leadership training in America.

The Baron soon understood the nature of Washington's troops and the unique type of citizenry that made up the Continental Army. The Soldiers in the Continental Army grew up in a land where most males could vote for their local and colony representatives, as well as their local militia leaders. In other words, American farmers and militiamen had acquired the peculiar habit of thinking for themselves.



One may argue that this tradition of adaptive and instinctive soldiering and leadership continues even until today. As we celebrate the 233rd Birthday of the U.S. Army, it is important to remember that the first military unit created by the Continental Congress was an Infantry battalion. Composed of six companies of frontier riflemen, the unit was raised from frontiersmen from three different colonies instead of one, making it truly a continental outfit. These riflemen had to prove their ability to live in the field in harsh conditions and were selected from the finest marksmen among the volunteers. This unit spawned a rifle regiment commanded by Daniel Morgan and its original members fought on battlefields from Saratoga, N.Y., to Cowpens, S.C. Though the Infantry's weapons have evolved over time, leadership and tactical proficiency remain priorities to this day. So, in a manner of speaking, the Army's birthday is really the "Infantry's" birthday.

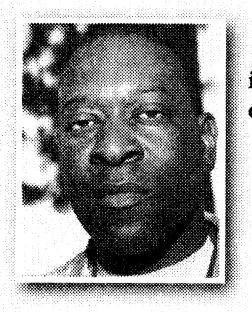
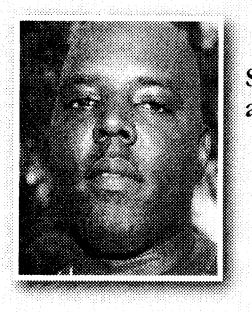
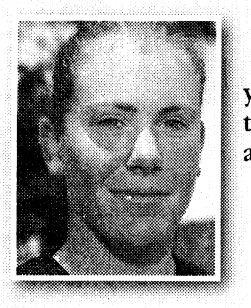
VARIOUS VOICES



What should people in cars and trucks know about sharing the road with cyclists and bikers?



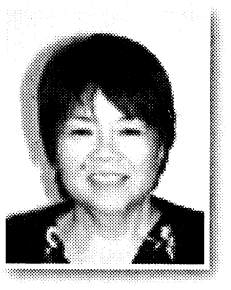
People in autos need to realize they don't own they road, and they need to share the road with motorcycles, especially in the spring and summer.
— Spc. Dale Gow, 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team



Remember there are blind spots.
— Staff Sgt. Melinda Smith, MEDDAC

Pay attention and understand a bike is small and fragile. Being careless can cause senseless injury or death.
— Chief Warrant Officer Joseph Blevins, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment

Don't try to dodge a motorcycle. Stay in your lane and be a (proactive) and defensive driver.
— Sgt. 1st Class Kevin Woodberry, 1st Battalion, 10th Field Artillery Regiment



Be vigilant. Make sure you check all your mirrors to see the small vehicles that occupy the roads. Watch carefully at lights and be patient.

No free lunch but you can get a free bike helmet at Columbus Library

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Elsie Jackson

There may be no such thing as a free lunch, but Saturday, from noon to 3 p.m. there will be free bicycle helmets, while supplies last, in the parking lot of the Columbus Public Library on Macon Road.

Of course, there are a few conditions. The helmets are available only to children 14 and younger who must be accompanied by an adult.

The helmet giveaway is part of a bike rodeo sponsored by Safe Kids Columbus, the Columbus Police Department, the library, Mike's Bikes, Country's Barbecue and the GT Speed inline speedskating team.

When you bring your children out Saturday afternoon, bring their bikes too. Beside the helmet giveaway (did I happen to mention they were free?), there will be a bike tuneup station, and stations designed to teach safe bicycling techniques.

Your child doesn't have a bicycle yet? You can still get a free helmet. And even better, if you get there before 1 p.m. your child can be entered in a drawing for one of two new bicycles. There will also be other drawings later in the day.

The free helmets will be fitted to your child by one of the Safe Kids Columbus volunteers. A word of advice, if you are bringing a little girl, please have her wear her hair down and unrestricted by ponytail holders with large plastic bobbles and clips, which can get in the way of a proper fit.

Georgia state law requires anyone 14 years old and younger to wear a helmet while riding a bicycle. Wearing a helmet is mandatory on post regardless of your age.

If you need a graphic demonstration, make sure you catch the Crazy Carlos' cantaloupe drop. It is more than effective in illustrating why wearing a helmet reduces the chances of a head injury by 85 percent or more in a fall.

And did I remember to mention that these helmets will be free?

The Safe Kids volunteers fitting the helmets will have toddler-sized helmets up to extra-large on hand.

I'll be there, fitting helmets. Bring me some customers, won't you?

This week in Fort Benning history

1934

• Post residents seeking to employ cooks, maids, chauffeurs or yard workers should contact the National Re-employment Office of Columbus, which provided a registry of qualified servants.

• The ladies of the post enjoyed a peek at the lovely new Officers' Club, which wouldn't open for two more weeks. A post reporter noted that the ladies took exception to the men's lounge, which would be off limits to the fairer sex.

• "Remember that the Infantry is the most complicated, technical and difficult arm to command," Maj. Gen. Edward Croft told the graduates of the Infantry Class of 1934. "Successful commanders of Infantry must not only know their own arm, but have a working knowledge of all supporting arms.

"Men will never fight himself when he can devise other means to do the fighting for him," Croft said. "The country today is mechanically minded, consequently, all efforts are being put forth to utilize mechanical devices for use in future wars. He who fails to follow this lead will find himself a failure and a has-been when the next war comes."

• Fourteen Vietnamese students graduated from Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning. They were part of a pilot program designed to align the Vietnamese Army's officer candidate program more closely with its counterpart here.

• The Army was doubling the number of men who will attend Ranger School. Enrollment would soon increase from 160 to 220 on average each year.

• A Soldier in Vietnam sent a letter to The Bayonet about the posts' Youth and Children program, a precursor to CYS.

"YAC, in my opinion, has one of the greatest programs for youth that any military installation could ever ask for," wrote Lt. Col. Lemuel Thomas, who stayed abreast of his children's participation in YAC sports through letters from home. "Through the untiring efforts of the understaffed YAC personnel, its devoted volunteer coaches and the outstanding support of parents, the youth of the Fort Benning community are given a great opportunity to develop into the type of citizens this country needs."

• Fort Benning engineers completed construction at the post's Rest Camp in Destin, Fla. Two platoons lived on site while constructing buildings, laundry facilities and boat storage. Roads in the area were coated with a layer of crushed clam shells to give it the appearance of a tropical island.

TO ADVERTISE IN THE BAYONET, CALL 706-317-2106

3rd Bn., 75th Ranger Regt. changes command

75TH RANGER REGIMENT PAO
Tracy A. Bailey

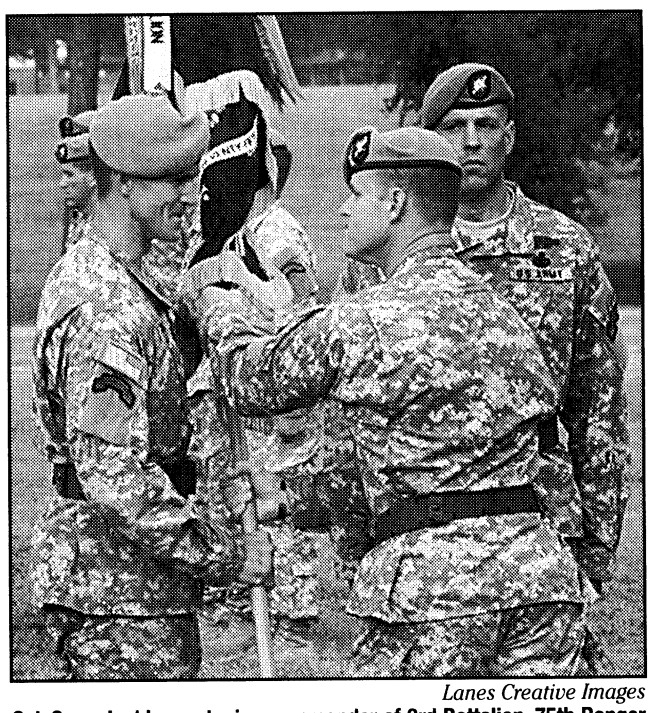
Lt. Col. Daniel R. Walrath assumed command from Col. Sean M. Jenkins during a change of command ceremony for the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, May 29 on York Field.

Col. Richard D. Clarke, 75th Ranger Regt. commander, presided over the ceremony.

Clarke told Walrath his mission and focus was clear — "Live the Ranger Creed, care for these men and their families and lead these men in battle."

Before assuming command of the battalion, Walrath served in a variety of positions with the Ranger Regiment. He was a rifle platoon leader with 3rd Bn., and served as a staff officer and company commander with 1st Bn., at Hunter Army Airfield. Following numerous assignments, Walrath returned to 1st Bn., to serve as the executive officer. His most recent assignments include commander of 1st Battalion, 6th Infantry Regiment (Mechanized) of the 1st Armored Division in Baumholder, Germany, and was task force senior observer controller at the Joint Multinational Readiness Center in Hohenfels, Germany.

"(Rangers) and your predecessors have led the way since the dawn of our country and you continue to do so today at every opportunity. I am awed by your accomplishments, I am inspired by your sacrifice, and today, I am honored to join your ranks once again," Walrath said.



Walrath was commissioned as an Infantry officer from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., in 1988. He is a graduate of the Infantry Officer Basic and Advanced Courses, and the Army Command and General Staff College.

During Jenkin's speech, he thanked the Rangers for their mastery of tactics, dedication and drive to be the best and valiantly face the enemy.

"You have proven time and time again, despite all that is thrown your way, you are ready to answer the call from the known and the unknown and I am humbled to have stood in your midst," he said.

Jenkins will spend a year studying at Harvard University with a follow-on assignment as a brigade commander with the 101st Airborne Division.

LTC Weiler takes 2/54

THE BAYONET

Lt. Col. Dean Weiler, who assumed command of 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, May 28 is no stranger to Fort Benning. With 19 years as an Infantry officer, Weiler's been assigned here several times.

Although he didn't plan on making the military a career when he graduated from Eastern Washington University in Cheney, Wash., in 1989, where he was a ROTC cadet, he said he fell in love with the Army.

His first duty station, in Panama, clinched it for him, he said, because of leading Soldiers and the quality of good, realistic training.

After completing the Infantry Officers Advanced Course in 1993, Weiler was assigned to 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, where he served as a senior platoon trainer, company commander, and operations officer.

During another stint at Fort Benning, he was assigned to the 4th Ranger Training Battalion as the operations officer and executive officer. At the Ranger Training Brigade, he was the brigade operations officer.

He returns to Georgia after a deployment in Iraq with the 82nd Airborne Division, where he served as the deputy commanding officer of 2nd Brigade Combat Team.

"I'm mission focused," Weiler said. "I'm here to train Soldiers — to transition civilians to warriors who will be successful on day one (of their arrival to their units)."

2nd Bn., 29th Inf. Regt. Soldiers welcome new commander

THE BAYONET
Brenda Donnell

A Tucker, Ga., native took command of 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, Monday on York Field, replacing Lt. Col. David W. Chase.

Lt. Col. Edward B. Houston said becoming the new commander of the Pioneers "is a dream come true, and commanding Soldiers is the single highest honor an officer can have bestowed upon him."

Houston spent the past year here as the deputy brigade commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade. Prior to that, he was assigned as deputy brigade commander for the 3rd Brigade Combat Team, 4th Infantry Division, Fort Carson, Colo., and deployed to Iraq where he served the majority of his assignment as the Brigade Combat Team operations officer. He said he was proud of that unit's deployment preparations and the rapid training plan they implemented.

Houston said he was pleased to become commander of "the most professional Soldiers he has seen."

"The legacy that Lt. Col. Dave Chase is leaving is a great one, and he has the battalion operating at peak performance," Houston said. "I'm looking forward to continuing that great legacy."

Chase will become deputy brigade commander of 3rd Infantry Brigade, 1st Infantry Division, Fort Hood, Texas.

He will deploy to Afghanistan this month.

Col. Gregory C. Kane, 197th Infantry Brigade commander, said he was amazed by Chase's performance as commander.

"Through it all — the training of 120,000 officers, Soldiers and civilians, the (management) of 15,000 live-fire ranges, the execution of 400 resident and 150 mobile training team missions — Lt. Col. David Chase has calmly and expertly managed the diverse battalion," Kane said. "It was a truly remarkable and unmatched performance by a gifted and talented leader of Soldiers."

Chase said the true successes of the battalion during his command were the result of the Soldiers comprising it.

"They are the subject matter experts," he said. "They have to do it right the first time and every time."
