History of Fort Benning

Camp Benning was founded Oct. 7, 1918, as a consolidation of three Infantry Schools then operating at widely scattered locations. Probably not even the most far sighted military leaders could envision today's Fort Benning—an installation which has earned the title of "the world's most complete Army post."

From an original small tent encampment, Fort Benning has grown until today the post encompasses some 182,000 acres or 286 square miles. There are more than 6,200 buildings and facilities which could support a population of more than 86,000. At present there are approximately 40,000 troops stationed here.

Roads, streets, buildings, ranges and terrain features are named for units that served in World Wars I and II, for battle areas in France identified by action of American units, for American soldiers killed in action and for other famed American soldiers. The post itself is named in honor of a distinguished Confederate Army officer, Maj. Gen. Henry L. Benning, whose home was in Columbus, Georgia.

Following World War I, the Department of the Army issued orders that Fort Benning was to be salvaged. Perhaps that would have ended Fort Benning's history. But Major Paul Jones, who received the order, consulted the dictionary and found that the word "salvage" meant to "save." Armed with this definition, he issued orders that all buildings be painted to "save" them.

During the peaceful years of the 1920's and 1930's, many of the military leaders of World War II saw service at Fort Benning. Among them were Generals of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, George C. Marshall and Omar N. Bradley; Generals J. Lawton Collins, Joseph W. Stilwell, Mark Clark, Courtney H. Hodges, Nathan F. Twining, Alexander M. Patch, Simon B. Buckner, and many other distinguished officers.

On Nov. 1, 1949, all units and activities at Fort Benning were gathered under one command to form The Infantry Center. This reorganization consolidated two jobs—that of the commanding general of the post and the commandant of The Infantry School.

Future America owes a debt of gratitude to yesterday's and today's officers and enlisted men of The Infantry Center. Their vision and persistent effort created this center of instruction where today the U. S. Army Infantry School continues to make history, fulfilling its mission of training the Infantryman for his decisive role in modern warfare.

History of the U.S. Army Infantry School

The U. S. Army Infantry School, first known as the Infantry School of Practice, came into being in 1826 at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Two years later, the school was discontinued because the Indian Wars had interrupted its scheduled courses. Almost 80 years passed before it was re-established in 1907 when Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur became commandant of the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif. In 1913, the school was moved to Fort Sill, Okla., and its name changed to The Infantry School of Arms. The Artillery School, then named the Artillery School of Arms, was also located at Fort Sill.

As a result of World War I Army expansion, a Small Arms Firing School was formed at Camp Perry, Ohio, and a Machine Gun School was established at Camp Hancock, Ga. The Infantry School of Arms continued to function at Fort Sill.

Having these units so widely separated proved unsatisfactory, so in 1918 these three schools were combined to form The Infantry School at Fort Benning. Its personnel then consisted of 125 officers and 1,200 enlisted men. In September 1919, the order was issued for the complete and final reorganization of The Infantry School as a permanent installation and the Fort Benning area was enlarged to 98,000 acres.

In July 1941, The Infantry School opened its first officer candidate class. The last World War II class was graduated Dec. 9, 1946. During that period, 70,000 second lieutenants were graduated.

Shortly after the termination of World War II, the officer candidate program was discontinued. With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, however, the need for additional junior officers resulted in a resumption of their program in February, 1951. In March, 1953, the school assumed the task of training officer candidates for other arms and services except the Artillery.

From a student body of a few hundred, the U. S. Army Infantry School has grown into the Army's largest educational institution.

Allied Training Program

An important aspect of the Military Assistance Program of the United States government is the training of military representatives from foreign countries in American service schools. This training is designed to unify the defense of the free world and to teach selected officers and noncommissioned officers in the employment and maintenance of American military equipment furnished these countries under the program.

The United States Army Infantry School plays a major role in this effort, training between 700 and 800 allied students yearly from as many as 45 different nations. Allied students are enrolled either in special allied courses in which the instruction is presented through interpreters, or in regularly scheduled classes with U. S. students.

Twenty-four-hour service daily, including holidays and Sunday, is available to personnel confronted with emergency situations after regular hours. However, in these situations, a report should be made to the duty officer who will determine whether the problem is such as to require Red Cross service.

Riverside...a Gracious Touch of the Old South

It is said that Fort Benning is the heart of the U. S. Infantry. And by the same token, The Infantry School is the heart of Fort Benning. But its soul lies in a white majestic mansion that has stood as a muted queen over the reservation's thousands of acres for more than 150 years.

From an era of Indian wars, "Riverside," the home of Infantry School commandants since the school was established June 17, 1919, at Camp Benning near the junction of the Chattahoochee River and Upatoi Creek south of Columbus, has survived the years and now stands as majestically as ever in the Nuclear Age.

The history of the homesite dates back to the early 1800's, when the nucleus of the present house on Vibbert Ave. was on Lumpkin Road. Some 150 years or so ago the two-story structure echoed to gay laughter and the patter of dainty feet as belles and beaux danced to the popular music of the day.

In 1907 Arthur Bussey bought the estate from the Hatcher family and named it the "Riverside Plantation." Almost immediately he planned the construction of a new house as a comfortable summer home.

The original part of the house, which had been built on Lumpkin Road, was moved to its present location on Vibbert Ave. to be the basis of the new home. In an engineering effort prodigious for its time, the house was rolled on logs pulled by mules without damaging a single tree.

In establishing his estate, Arthur Bussey built one of the last great self-supporting plantations in western Georgia. Though Bussey was a businessman by vocation, he was a farmer by avocation. His 1,782 acres and home, which he completed in 1909, became a self-sufficient estate under his supervision.

The house was built primarily as a summer home on a 12-acre site among trees more than a century old.

The Riverside Plantation home of a half century ago was an outstanding landmark of the area.

From the large high ceilinged rooms several doors and windows opened into spacious porches.

The walls were made of tongue and groove woodwork and the ceilings were reinforced by heavy crossed beams.

Large brick fireplaces at opposite sides of the house provided the only heat for the open rooms, though a third fireplace connected the two kitchens. The floors were made of polished pine boards.

Black chandeliers fed with carbide gas piped into the house provided what at the time was considered adequate light. A rarity in the early 1900's was the house's running water system. From a pond at the foot of a hill about a mile away, the water was pumped to the water tower and then piped into the house.

The upstairs contained six large and airy bedrooms that opened onto the veranda which surrounded almost all the second floor. The master bedroom extended the width of the house. The Riverside house of the early 1900's had a half bath downstairs and a large bathroom the size of an ordinary room today upstairs.

By modifications through the years, the home now has five comfortable bedrooms on the second floor and three modern baths. It is centrally heated by steam radiators throughout the house.

In World War I, the Army established a cantonment area to train troops on some of Bussey's land. On June 17, 1919, the Army moved Camp Benning from its site on Macon Road in Columbus, where it had been since Oct. 7, 1918, to its present area.

When the Government decided to make the post a permanent establishment in 1919, it bought the plantation and home from Bussey for slightly less than a half-million dollars. In 1922 the post was designated the home of The Infantry School and was renamed Fort Benning.

Even with the improvements of the modern age, Riverside, known today as the commanding general's quarters at 100 Vibbert Ave., remains basically unchanged, a gracious touch of the Old South.

DOUGHBOY STATUE

COLUMBUS, GEORGIA

Columbus has the distinction of being the only state-conceived city in Georgia. Established earlier as a trading town on the site of one of the largest Indian centers in the Southeast, the city of Columbus was created by an act of the Georgia General Assembly in 1826. It was founded and laid out in 1827 by State Engineers, and is the only city in Georgia which was planned in advance of its founding.

Because of the many natural advantages which Columbus had, and still has, to offer industry, the community has grown industrially from the very beginning. The development of the textile industry began in 1838 when the Columbus Cotton Factory began spinning cotton yarn and carding wool. Between 1840 and 1850 water rights were leased and the cotton industry was given added impetus.

From the very beginning the tendency has been toward manufacturing. Columbus early became popularly known as "the Lowell of the South" because of the rapid development of the textile industry, and while textiles still constitute its major industry, the industrial structure of Columbus today is not confined to this activity alone. Many of its manufacturing plants enjoy international distribution and their products are widely known, giving Columbus pre-eminence in several important fields. Products produced include brick and tile; textile equipment and machinery; pulleys, shafting, dyeing equipment for textile mills, engines and boilers, refrigerating and ice-making machinery, agricultural implements; cotton ginning machinery and packing equipment; candy, syrup, soft drinks, cookies and crackers, peanut and pecan products; store fixtures. The city also boasts a sizeable meatpacking industry; foundries and machine shops are adequate to care for almost any kind of heavy repairs.

At one time, Columbus was one of the busiest river ports in the Southeast. The first steamboat visited the little town in 1828, beginning a river trade that increased until the coming of the railroads in the 1850's. At the height of river commerce as many as sixteen boats, loaded with cotton and naval stores, plied the Chattahoochee.

By 1963 the River will return to an important role of influence on the development of the Columbus area. Work is nearing completion on the Chattahoochee-Appalachicola-Flint River Project which, when completed in 1963, will make the Chattahoochee navigable with a nine-foot channel from Columbus to the Gulf of Mexico. The future of the city is tied closely with this project, which assures that Columbus will again become a river port enjoying the benefits of low-rate water transportation.

In addition to being an industrial-minded city, Columbus is a city of pleasant living. Recreation facilities are numerous and varied. Three municipally operated swimming pools, a golf course, football stadium, baseball park, an auditorium which is the site of the annual Miss Georgia Pageant and many sports events, and many parks and playgrounds offer excellent opportunities for relaxation. Oliver Lake, just north of Columbus on the Chattahoochee River, with its city owned marina, provides a brand new recreation area for boating, fishing, swimming and water-skiing enthusiasts. The entire Columbus area is noted as a mecca for hunters and fishermen, since there are many privately owned facilities for these sports.

Columbus is also education and culture minded. Permanent buildings have now been completed for Columbus College. The Muscogee County School District operates 47 elementary and 9 high schools; the air-conditioned W. C. Bradley Memorial Library has 190,000 volumes, Bookmobile service and record and film departments; The Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts maintains an excellent permanent Indian Exhibit and art gallery, besides offering many temporary exhibits to please all tastes; Broadway shows are presented several times each year at the newly renovated Royal Theatre and there are several amateur theatrical groups which offer Columbusites an opportunity to enjoy the legitimate theatre.

Columbus' attitude toward the future is one of planning. It boasts an Industrial Development Corporation, a Metropolitan Planning Commission, a Ports Authority Advisory Committee and an Urban Development Committee which is now concerned with renovating downtown Columbus.

An industrial potentials analysis prepared by Georgia Tech and contracted for the Columbus Chamber of Commerce is underway. An audit of the community's assets and liabilities has been completed, and work is now being done on a study of diversification possibilities for Columbus' existing industries. The Chamber has also recently established a Trade Area Industrial Development Program to assist smaller communities in the surrounding counties with their industrial development efforts.

Columbus is enthusiastically planning for the future—its citizens are more than ever convinced that "America Is Discovering Columbus, Georgia!"

I AM THE INFANTRY

I am the Infantry — Queen of Battle! I meet the enemy face to face . . . will to will. For two centuries, I have been the bulwark of our Nation's defense . . . I am the Infantry! Follow me!

Both hardship . . . and glory, I have known. My bleeding feet stained the snow at Valley Forge. I pulled an oar to cross the icy Delaware . . . tasted victory at Yorktown . . . and saw our Nation born.

At New Orleans, I fought beyond the hostile hour . . . discovered the fury of my long rifle . . . and came of age. I am the Infantry!

I pushed westward with the Conestoga . . . and marched with the pioneer across the plains . . . to build outposts for freedom on the wild frontier. Follow me!

With Scott I went to Vera Cruz . . . battled Santa Anna in the mountain passes . . . and climbed the high plateau. I planted our flag in the Plaza of Mexico City.

From Bull Run to Appomattox my blood ran red. I fought for both the Blue and the Grey . . . divided in conflict, I united in peace . . .

I am the Infantry.

I left these shores with the sinking of the Maine . . . led the charge up San Juan Hill . . . and fought the Moro — and disease — in the Philippines. Across the Rio Grande, I chased the bandit, Villa. Follow me!

At Chateau-Thierry, I went over the top. I stood like a rock on the Marne . . . cracked the Hindenburg Line . . . and broke the back of the Hun in the Argonne. I didn't come back until it was "over, over there."

At Bataan and Corregidor, I bowed briefly, licked my wounds and vowed to return. I invaded Tunisia on the African shore . . . dug my nails into the sand at Anzio . . . and bounced into Rome with a flower in my helmet.

The Channel and the hedgerow could not hold me. I pushed back the "Bulge" . . . vaulted the Rhine . . . and seized the Heartland. The "Thousand-Year" Reich was dead.

From island to island, I hopped the Pacific . . . hit the beaches . . . and chopped my way through swamp and jungle. I kept my vow . . . I did return . . . I set the Rising Sun.

In Pusan perimeter I gathered my strength . . . crossed the frozen Han . . . marched to the Yalu. Along the 38th parallel . . . and around the world, I made my stand.

Wherever brave men fight . . . and die, for freedom, you will find me. I am the bulwark of our Nation's defense. I am always ready . . . now, and forever. I am the Infantry — Queen of Battle! Follow Me!

History of Fort Benning

Camp Benning was founded Oct. 7, 1918, as a consolidation of three Infantry Schools then operating at widely scattered locations. Probably not even the most far sighted military leaders of that era could have envisioned today's Fort Benning—an installation which has earned the title of "the world's most complete Army post."

From an original small tent encampment, Fort Benning has grown until today the post encompasses some 182,311 acres or 285 square miles. At present there are over 50,000 troops stationed here.

Roads, streets, buildings, ranges and terrain features are named for units that served in World Wars I and II, for battle areas in France identified by action of American units, for American soldiers killed in action and for other famed American soldiers. The post itself is named in honor of a distinguished Confederate Army officer, Maj. Gen. Henry L. Benning, whose home was in Columbus, Georgia.

Following World War I, the Department of the Army issued orders that Fort Benning was to be salvaged. Perhaps that would have ended Fort Benning's history. But Major Paul Jones, who received the order, consulted the dictionary and found that the word "salvage" meant to "save." Armed with this definition, he issued orders that all buildings be painted to "save" them.

During the peaceful years of the 1920's and 1930's, many of the military leaders of World War II saw service at Fort Benning. Among them were Generals of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, George C. Marshall and Omar N. Bradley; Generals J. Lawton Collins, Joseph W. Stilwell, Mark Clark, Courtney H. Hodges, Nathan F. Twining, Alexander M. Patch, Simon B. Buckner, and many other distinguished officers.

On Nov. 1, 1949, all units and activities at Fort Benning were gathered under one command to form The Infantry Center. This reorganization consolidated two jobs—that of the commanding general of the post and the commandant of The Infantry School.

Future America owes a debt of gratitude to yesterday's and today's officers and enlisted men of The Infantry Center. Their vision and persistent effort created this center of instruction where today the U. S. Army Infantry School continues to make history, fulfilling its mission of training the Infantryman for his decisive role in modern warfare.

History of the U.S. Army Infantry School

The U. S. Army Infantry School, first known as the Infantry School of Practice, came into being in 1826 at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Two years later, the school was discontinued because the Indian Wars had interrupted its scheduled courses. Almost 80 years passed before it was re-established in 1907 when Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur became commandant of the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif. In 1913, the school was moved to Fort Sill, Okla., and its name changed to The Infantry School of Arms. The Artillery School, then named the Artillery School of Arms, was also located at Fort Sill.

As a result of World War I Army expansion, a Small Arms Firing School was formed at Camp Perry, Ohio, and a Machine Gun School was established at Camp Hancock, Ga. The Infantry School of Arms continued to function at Fort Sill.

Having these units so widely separated proved unsatisfactory, so in 1918 these three schools were combined to form The Infantry School at Fort Benning. Its personnel included 125 officers and 1,200 enlisted men. In September 1919, the order was issued for the complete and final reorganization of The Infantry School as a permanent installation and the Fort Benning area was enlarged to 98,000 acres.

In July 1941, The Infantry School opened its first officer candidate class. The last World War II class was graduated Dec. 9, 1946. During that period, 70,000 second lieutenants were graduated.

Shortly after the termination of World War II, the officer candidate program was discontinued. With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, however, the need for additional junior officers resulted in a resumption of their program in February, 1951. In March, 1953, the school assumed the task of training officer candidates for other arms and services except the Artillery.

From a student body of a few hundred, the U. S. Army Infantry School has grown into the Army's largest educational institution.

Allied Training Program

An important aspect of the Military Assistance Program of the United States government is the training of military representatives from foreign countries in American service schools. This training is designed to unify the defense of the free world and to teach selected officers and noncommissioned officers in the employment and maintenance of American military equipment furnished these countries under the program.

The United States Army Infantry School plays a major role in this effort, training between 350 and 400 allied students yearly from as many as 45 different nations. Allied students are enrolled in regularly scheduled classes with U. S. students.

The ultimate goal is to develop organizations capable of a maximum contribution to the striking power of the Army.

THE 2nd INFANTRY DIVISION arrived at Fort Benning as the result of the deactivation of the 10th Division in June, 1958. The famous "Indian-head" Division possesses outstanding combat records in World Wars I and II and in the Korean conflict. It was the first division in the Army to reorganize under the ROAD concept.

THE U. S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER TROOP COMMAND acts as a centralized organi-

TRAIN ONCE TRANSPORTED INFANTRY SCHOOL STUDENTS

Riverside...a Gracious Touch of the Old South

It is said that Fort Benning is the heart of the U. S. Infantry. And by the same token, The Infantry School is the heart of Fort Benning. But its soul lies in a white majestic mansion that has stood as a muted queen over the reservation's thousands of acres for more than 150 years.

From an era of Indian wars, "Riverside," the home of Infantry School commandants since the school was established June 17, 1919, at Camp Benning near the junction of the Chattahoochee River and Upatoi Creek south of Columbus, has survived the years and now stands as majestically as ever in the Nuclear Age.

The history of the homesite dates back to the early 1800's, when the nucleus of the present house on Vibbert Ave. was on Lumpkin Road. Some 150 years or so ago the two-story structure echoed to gay laughter and the patter of dainty feet as belles and beaux danced to the popular music of the day.

In 1907 Arthur Bussey bought the estate from the Hatcher family and named it the "Riverside Plantation." Almost immediately he planned the construction of a new house as a comfortable summer home.

The original part of the house, which had been built on Lumpkin Road, was moved to its present location on Vibbert Ave. to be the basis of the new home. In an engineering effort prodigious for its time, the house was rolled on logs pulled by mules without damaging a single tree.

In establishing his estate, Arthur Bussey built one of the last great self-supporting plantations in western Georgia. Though Bussey was a businessman by vocation, he was a farmer by avocation. His 1,782 acres and home, which he completed in 1909, became a self-sufficient estate under his supervision.

The house was built primarily as a summer home on a 12-acre site among trees more than a century old.

The Riverside Plantation home of a half century ago was an outstanding landmark of the area.

From the large high ceilinged rooms several doors and windows opened into spacious porches.

The walls were made of tongue and groove woodwork and the ceilings were reinforced by heavy crossed beams.

Large brick fireplaces at opposite sides of the house provided the only heat for the open rooms, though a third fireplace connected the two kitchens. The floors were made of polished pine boards.

Black chandeliers fed with carbide gas piped into the house provided what at the time was considered adequate light. A rarity in the early 1900's was the house's running water system. From a pond at the foot of a hill about a mile away, the water was pumped to the water tower and then piped into the house.

The upstairs contained six large and airy bedrooms that opened onto the veranda which surrounded almost all the second floor. The master bedroom extended the width of the house. The Riverside house of the early 1900's had a half bath downstairs and a large bathroom the size of an ordinary room today upstairs.

By modifications through the years, the home now has five comfortable bedrooms on the second floor and three modern baths. It is centrally heated by steam radiators throughout the house.

In World War I, the Army established a cantonment area to train troops on some of Bussey's land. On June 17, 1919, the Army moved Camp Benning from its site on Macon Road in Columbus, where it had been since Oct. 7, 1918, to its present area.

When the Government decided to make the post a permanent establishment in 1919, it bought the plantation and home from Bussey for slightly less than a half-million dollars. In 1922 the post was designated the home of The Infantry School and was renamed Fort Benning.

Even with the improvements of the modern age, Riverside, known today as the commanding general's quarters at 100 Vibbert Ave., remains basically unchanged, a gracious touch of the Old South.

RIVERSIDE

COLUMBUS, GEORGIA

Columbus has the distinction of being the only state-conceived city in Georgia. Established earlier as a trading town on the site of one of the largest Indian centers in the Southeast, the city of Columbus was created by an act of the Georgia General Assembly in 1826. It was founded and laid out in 1827 by State Engineers, and is the only city in Georgia which was planned in advance of its founding.

Because of the many natural advantages which Columbus had, and still has, to offer industry, the community has grown industrially from the very beginning. The development of the textile industry began in 1838 when the Columbus Cotton Factory began spinning cotton yarn and carding wool. Between 1840 and 1850 water rights were leased and the cotton industry was given added impetus.

From the very beginning the tendency has been toward manufacturing. Columbus early became popularly known as "the Lowell of the South" because of the rapid development of the textile industry, and while textiles still constitute its major industry, the industrial structure of Columbus today is not confined to this activity alone. Many of its manufacturing plants enjoy international distribution and their products are widely known, giving Columbus pre-eminence in several important fields. Products produced include brick and tile; textile equipment and machinery; pulleys, shafting, dyeing equipment for textile mills, engines and boilers, refrigerating and ice-making machinery, agricultural implements; cotton ginning machinery and packing equipment; candy, syrup, soft drinks, cookies and crackers, peanut and pecan products; store fixtures. The city also boasts a sizeable meatpacking industry; foundries and machine shops are adequate to care for almost any kind of heavy repairs.

At one time, Columbus was one of the busiest river ports in the Southeast. The first steamboat visited the little town in 1828, beginning a river trade that increased until the coming of the railroads in the 1850's. At the height of river commerce as many as sixteen boats, loaded with cotton and naval stores, plied the Chattahoochee.

By 1965 the River will return to an important role of influence on the development of the Columbus area. Work has been completed on the Chattahoochee-Apalachicola-Flint River Project which will make the Chattahoochee navigable with a nine-foot channel from Columbus to the Gulf of Mexico. The future of the city is tied closely with this project, which assures that Columbus will again become a river port enjoying the benefits of low-rate water transportation.

In addition to being an industrial-minded city, Columbus is a city of pleasant living. Recreation facilities are numerous and varied. Three municipally operated swimming pools, a golf course, football stadium, baseball park, an auditorium which is the site of the annual Miss Georgia Pageant and many sports events, and many parks and playgrounds offer excellent opportunities for relaxation. Oliver Lake, just north of Columbus on the Chattahoochee River, with its city owned marina, provides a brand new recreation area for boating, fishing, swimming and water-skiing enthusiasts. The entire Columbus area is noted as a mecca for hunters and fishermen, since there are many privately owned facilities for these sports.

Columbus is also education and culture minded. Permanent buildings have now been completed for Columbus College. The Muscogee County School District operates 49 elementary and 11 high schools; the air-conditioned W. C. Bradley Memorial Library has 190,000 volumes, Bookmobile service and record and film departments; The Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts maintains an excellent permanent Indian Exhibit and art gallery, besides offering many temporary exhibits to please all tastes; Broadway shows are presented several times each year and there are several amateur theatrical groups which offer Columbusites an opportunity to enjoy the legitimate theatre.

Columbus' attitude toward the future is one of planning. It boasts an Industrial Development Corporation, a Metropolitan Planning Commission, a Ports Authority Advisory Committee and an Urban Development Committee which is now concerned with renovating downtown Columbus.

An industrial potentials analysis was prepared by Georgia Tech and contracted for the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. An audit of the community's assets and liabilities has been completed, and work is now being done on a study of diversification possibilities for Columbus' existing industries. The Chamber has also recently established a Trade Area Industrial Development Program to assist smaller communities in the surrounding counties with their industrial development efforts.

Columbus is enthusiastically planning for the future—its citizens are more than ever convinced that "America Is Discovering Columbus, Georgia!"

I AM THE INFANTRY

I am the Infantry — Queen of Battle! I meet the enemy face to face . . . will to will. For two centuries, I have been the bulwark of our Nation's defense . . . I am the Infantry! Follow me!

Both hardship . . . and glory, I have known. My bleeding feet stained the snow at Valley Forge. I pulled an oar to cross the icy Delaware . . . tasted victory at Yorktown . . . and saw our Nation born.

At New Orleans, I fought beyond the hostile hour . . . discovered the fury of my long rifle . . . and came of age. I am the Infantry!

I pushed westward with the Conestoga . . . and marched with the pioneer across the plains . . . to build outposts for freedom on the wild frontier. Follow me!

With Scott I went to Vera Cruz . . . battled Santa Anna in the mountain passes . . . and climbed the high plateau. I planted our flag in the Plaza of Mexico City.

From Bull Run to Appomattox my blood ran red. I fought for both the Blue and the Grey . . . divided in conflict, I united in peace . . .

I am the Infantry.

I left these shores with the sinking of the Maine . . . led the charge up San Juan Hill . . . and fought the Moro — and disease — in the Philippines. Across the Rio Grande, I chased the bandit, Villa. Follow me!

At Chateau-Thierry, I went over the top. I stood like a rock on the Marne . . . cracked the Hindenburg Line . . . and broke the back of the Hun in the Argonne. I didn't come back until it was "over, over there."

At Bataan and Corregidor, I bowed briefly, licked my wounds and vowed to return. I invaded Tunisia on the African shore . . . dug my nails into the sand at Anzio . . . and bounced into Rome with a flower in my helmet.

The Channel and the hedgerow could not hold me. I pushed back the "Bulge" . . . vaulted the Rhine . . . and seized the Heartland. The "Thousand-Year" Reich was dead.

From island to island, I hopped the Pacific . . . hit the beaches . . . and chopped my way through swamp and jungle. I kept my vow . . . I did return . . . I set the Rising Sun.

In Pusan perimeter I gathered my strength . . . crossed the frozen Han . . . marched to the Yalu. Along the 38th parallel . . . and around the world, I made my stand.

Wherever brave men fight . . . and die, for freedom, you will find me. I am the bulwark of our Nation's defense. I am always ready . . . now, and forever. I am the Infantry — Queen of Battle! Follow Me!

Welcome

This booklet will give you a brief glimpse of Fort Benning, its landmarks, facilities and the diverse commands which comprise the world's largest Infantry training center.

Fort Benning is "The Home of the Infantry" and countless numbers of our Nation's wartime and peacetime leaders received their technical and tactical indoctrination in its classrooms and on its many combat training areas.

The Infantry School is the fountainhead for all Infantry training and doctrine. The other major commands, support and service units and agencies are equally as proud of their individual missions and their role in preparing the Infantryman for his important commitments.

Whether a visitor or newly assigned to Fort Benning, please accept this booklet with our compliments and sincere wishes that it will prove interesting and informative.

History of Fort Benning

Camp Benning was founded Oct. 7, 1918, as a consolidation of three Infantry Schools then operating at widely scattered locations. Probably not even the most far sighted military leaders of that era could have envisioned today's Fort Benning—an installation which has earned the title of "the world's most complete Army post."

From an original small tent encampment, Fort Benning has grown until today the post encompasses some 182,311 acres or 285 square miles. At present there are nearly 50,000 troops stationed here.

Roads, streets, buildings, ranges and terrain features are named for units that served in World Wars I and II, for battle areas in France indentified by action of American units, for American soldiers killed in action and for other famed American soldiers. The post itself is named in honor of distinguished Confederate Army officer, Maj. Gen. Henry L. Benning, whose home was in Columbus, Georgia.

Following World War I, the Department of the Army issued orders that Fort Benning was to be salvaged. Perhaps that would have ended Fort Benning's history. But Major Paul Jones, who received the order, consulted the dictionary and found that the word "salvage" meant to "save". Armed with this definition, he issued orders that all buildings be painted to "save" them.

During the peaceful years of the 1920's and 1930's, many of the military leaders of World War II saw service at Fort Benning. Among them were Generals of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, George C. Marshall and Omar N. Bradley; Generals J. Lawton Collins, Joseph W. Stilwell, Mark Clark, Courtney H. Hodges, Nathan F. Twining, Alexander M. Patch, Simon B. Buckner and many other distinguished officers.

On Nov. 1, 1949, all units and activities at Fort Benning were gathered under one command to form The Infantry Center. This reorganization consolidated two jobs — that of the commanding general of the post and the commandant of The Infantry School.

The U.S. Army Infantry School, first known as the Infantry School of Practice, came into being in 1826 at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Two years later, the school was discontinued because the Indian Wars had interrupted its scheduled courses. Almost 80 years passed before it was reestablished, in 1907, when Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur became commandant of the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif. In 1913, the school was moved to Fort Sill, Okla. and its name changed to The Infantry School of Arms. The Artillery School, then named the Artillery School of Arms, was also located at Fort Sill.

Having these units so widely separated proved unsatisfactory, so in 1918, these three schools were combined to form The Infantry School at Fort Benning. Its personnel then consisted of 125 officers and 1200 enlisted men. In September, 1919, the order for the complete and final organization of The Infantry School as a permanent installation and the Fort Benning area was enlarged to 98,000 acres. Today it embraces 182, 311 acres or about 285 square miles.

In July, 1941, The Infantry School opened its first officer candidate class. The last World War II class was graduated Dec. 9, 1946. During that period, 70,000 lieutenants were graduated.

Shortly after the termination of World War II, the officer candidate program at Fort Benning was discontinued. With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, however, the need for additional junior officers resulted in a resumption of this program in February, 1951. In March, 1953, the school assumed the task of training officer candidates for all other arms and services except the Artillery.

In its history, the school has awarded the 10,000 Ranger tabs, and 300,000 parachute badges and has prepared 86,000 young second lieutenants to receive their gold bars. More than 600,000 students have attended The Infantry School of whom 10,000 were Allied students from 50 countries.

The Infantry School holds the Distinguished Service School Award for its outstanding contribution to the national defense.

No doubt one of the most outstanding events in the post's 47th year was the Army's approval of the airmobile concept tested here by the experimental 11th Air Assault Division, the merging of the old 2nd Infantry Division with the 11th, and the dispatch of the sky soldiers to Vietnam as the proud 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile).

AIR MOBILE EXERCISES ON FORT BENNING RESERVATION

Riverside... a Gracious Touch of the Old South

It is said that Fort Benning is the heart of the U. S. Infantry. By the same token, The Infantry School is the heart of Fort Benning, but its soul lies in a white majestic mansion that has stood as a muted queen over the reservation's thousands of acres for more than 150 years.

From an era of Indian wars, "Riverside," the home of Infantry School commandants since the school was established June 17, 1919, at Camp Benning near the junction of the Chattahoochee River and Upatoi Creek south of Columbus, has survived the years and now stands as majestically as ever in the Nuclear Age.

The history of the homesite dates back to the early 1800's, when the nucleus of the present house on Vibbert Ave. was on Lumpkin Road. Some 150 years or so ago the two-story structure echoed to gay laughter and the patter of dainty feet as belles and beaux danced to the popular music of the day.

In 1907 Arthur Bussey bought the estate from the Hatcher family and named it the "Riverside Plantation." Almost immediately he planned the construction of a new house as a comfortable summer home.

The original part of the house, which had been built on Lumpkin Road, was moved to its present location on Vibbert Ave. to be the basis of the new home. In an engineering effort prodigious for its time, the house was rolled on logs pulled by mules without damaging a single tree.

In establishing his estate, Arthur Bussey built one of the last great self-supporting plantations in western Georgia. Though Bussey was a businessman by vocation, he was a farmer by avocation. His 1,782 acres and home, which he completed in 1909, became a self-sufficient estate under his supervision.

The house was built primarily as a summer home on a 12-acre site among trees more than a century old.

The Riverside Plantation home of a half century ago was an outstanding landmark of the area.

From the large high ceilinged rooms several doors and windows opened onto spacious porches.

The walls were made of tongue and groove woodwork and the ceilings were reinforced by heavy crossed beams.

Large brick fireplaces at opposite sides of the house provided the only heat for the open rooms, though a third fireplace connected the two kitchens. The floors were made of polished pine boards.

Black chandeliers fed with carbide gas piped into the house provided what at the time was considered adequate light. A rarity in the early 1900's was the house's running water system. From a pond at the foot of a hill about a mile away, the water was pumped to the water tower and then piped into the house.

The upstairs contained six large and airy bedrooms that opened onto the veranda which surrounded almost all the second floor. The master bedroom extended the width of the house. The Riverside house of the early 1900's had a half bath downstairs and a large bathroom the size of an ordinary room today upstairs.

By modifications through the years, the home now has five comfortable bedrooms on the second floor and three modern baths. It is centrally heated by steam radiators throughout the house.

In World War I, the Army established a cantonment area to train troops on some of Bussey's land. On June 17, 1919, the Army moved Camp Benning from its site on Macon Road in Columbus, where it had been since Oct. 7, 1918, to its present area.

When the Government decided to make the post a permanent establishment in 1919, it bought the plantation and home from Bussey for slightly less than a half-million dollars. In 1922 the post was designated the home of The Infantry School and was renamed Fort Benning.

Even with the improvements of the modern age, Riverside, known today as the commanding general's quarters at 100 Vibbert Ave., remains basically unchanged, a gracious touch of the Old South.

INFANTRY HALL

INFANTRY SC...

COLUMBUS, GEORGIA

Columbus on the Chattahoochee River has the distinction of being the only state-conceived city in Georgia. Established earlier as a trading town on the site of one of the largest Indian centers in the Southeast, the city of Columbus was created by an act of the Georgia General Assembly in 1826. It was founded and laid out in 1827 by State Engineers, and is the only city in Georgia which was planned in advance of its founding.

Because of the many natural advantages which Columbus had, and still has, to offer industry, the community has grown industrially from the very beginning. The development of the textile industry began in 1838 when Columbus Cotton Factory began spinning cotton yarn and carding wool. Between 1840 and 1850 water rights were leased and the cotton industry was given added impetus.

From the very beginning the tendency has been toward manufacturing. Columbus early became popularly known as "the Lowell of the South" because of the rapid development of the textile industry, and while textiles still constitute its major industry, the industrial structure of Columbus today is not confined to this activity alone. Many of its manufacturing plants enjoy international distribution and their products are widely known, giving Columbus pre-eminence in several important fields. Products produced include brick and tile; textile equipment and machinery; pulleys, shafting, dyeing equipment for textile mills, engines and boilers, refrigerating and ice-making machinery, agricultural implements; cotton ginning machinery and packing equipment; candy, syrup, soft drinks, cookies and crackers, peanut and pecan products and store fixtures. The city also boasts a sizeable meatpacking industry. Foundries and machine shops are adequate to care for almost any kind of heavy repairs.

At one time, Columbus was one of the busiest river ports in the Southeast. The first steamboat visited the little town in 1828, beginning a river trade that increased until the coming of the railroads in the 1850's. At the height of river commerce as many as sixteen boats, loaded with cotton and naval stores, plied the Chattahoochee.

Today the river plays an important role in the development of Columbus area. Work has been completed on the Chattahoochee-Apalachicola-Flint River Project which made the Chattahoochee navigable with a nine-foot channel from Columbus to the Gulf of Mexico. The future of the city is tied closely with this project, which assures that Columbus will again become a river port enjoying the benefits of low-rate water transportation.

In addition to being an industrial-minded city, Columbus is a city of pleasant living. Recreation facilities are numerous and varied. Three municipally operated swimming pools, a golf course, football stadium, baseball park, an auditorium which is the site of the annual Miss Georgia Pageant and many sports events, and many parks and playgrounds offer excellent opportunities for relaxation. Oliver Lake, just north of Columbus on the Chattahoochee River, with its city owned marina, provides a brand new recreation area for boating, fishing, swimming and water-skiing enthusiasts. The entire Columbus area is noted as a mecca for hunters and fishermen, since there are many privately owned facilities for these sports.

Columbus is also education and culture minded. Permanent buildings have now been completed for Columbus College. The Muscogee County School District operates 49 elementary and 11 high schools; the air-conditioned W. C. Bradley Memorial Library has 190,000 volumes, Bookmobile service and record and film departments; The Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts maintains an excellent permanent Indian Exhibit and art gallery, besides offering many temporary exhibits to please all tastes; Broadway shows are presented several times each year and there are several amateur theatrical groups which offer Columbusites an opportunity to enjoy the legitimate theatre.

Columbus' attitude toward the future is one of planning. It boasts an Industrial Development Corporation, a Metropolitan Planning Commission, a Ports Authority Advisory Committee and an Urban Development Committee which is now concerned with renovating downtown Columbus.

An industrial potentials analysis was prepared by Georgia Tech and contracted for the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. An audit of the community's assets and liabilities has been completed, and work is now being done on a study of diversification possibilities for Columbus' existing industries. The Chamber has also recently established a Trade Area Industrial Development Program to assist smaller communities in the surrounding counties with their industrial development efforts.

Columbus is enthusiastically planning for the future—its citizens are more than ever convinced that "America Is Discovering Columbus, Georgia!"

I AM THE INFANTRY

I am the Infantry— Queen of Battle! For two centuries I have kept our Nation safe, purchasing freedom with my blood. To tyrants, I am the day of reckoning; to the suppressed, the hope for the future. Where the fighting is thick, there am I . . . I am the Infantry! FOLLOW ME!

I was there from the beginning, meeting the enemy face to face, will to will. My bleeding feet stained the snow at Valley Forge; my frozen hands pulled Washington across the Delaware. At Yorktown, the sunlight glinted from the sword and I, begrimed and battered . . . saw a Nation born.

Hardship . . . and glory I have known. At New Orleans, I fought beyond the hostile hour, showed the fury of my long rifle . . . and came of age. I am the Infantry!

Westward I pushed with wagon trains . . . moved an empire across the plains . . . extended freedom's borders and tamed the wild frontier. I am the Infantry! FOLLOW ME!

I was with Scott at Vera Cruz . . . hunted the guerrilla in the mountain passes . . . and scaled the high plateau. The fighting was done when I ended my march many miles from the old Alamo.

From Bull Run to Appomattox, I fought and bled. Both Blue and Grey were my colors then. Two masters I served and united them strong . . . proved that this nation could right a wrong . . . and long endure. I am the Infantry! FOLLOW ME!

I led the charge up San Juan Hill . . . scaled the walls of old Tientsin . . . and stalked the Moro in the steaming jungle still . . . always the vanguard. I am the Infantry!

At Chateau-Thierry, first over the top, then I stood like a rock on the Marne. It was I who cracked the Hindenburg Line . . . in the Argonne, I broke the Kaiser's spine . . . and didn't come back till it was "over, over there." I am the Infantry! FOLLOW ME!

A generation older at Bataan, I briefly bowed, but then I vowed to return. Assaulted the African shore . . . learned my lesson the hard way in the desert sands . . . pressed my buttons into the beach at Anzio . . . and bounced into Rome with determination and resolve. I am the Infantry!

The English channel, stout beach defenses and the hedgerows could not hold me . . . I broke out at St Lo, unbent the Bulge . . . vaulted the Rhine . . . and swarmed the Heartland. Hitler's dream and the Third Reich were dead.

In the Pacific, from island to island I hopped . . . hit the beaches and chopped through swamp and jungle . . . I set the Rising Sun. I am the Infantry!

In Korea, I gathered my strength around Pusan . . . swept across the frozen Han . . . outflanked the Reds at Inchon . . . and marched to the Yalu. FOLLOW ME!

Around the world, I stand . . . ever forward. Over Lebanon's sands, my rifle steady aimed . . . and calm returned. At Berlin's gate, I scorned the Wall of Shame. I am the Infantry!

My bayonet . . . on the wings of power . . . keeps the peace worldwide. And despots, falsely garbed in freedom's mantle, falter . . . hide. My ally in the paddies and the forest . . . I teach, I aid, I lead. FOLLOW ME!

Where brave men fight . . . there fight I. In freedom's cause . . . I live, I die. From Concord Bridge to Heartbreak Ridge, from the Arctic to the Mekong . . . the Queen of Battle!

Always ready . . . then, now and forever. I am the Infantry! FOLLOW ME!
