We had a fire or some one took a bath, Mesawitz running madly, with beaucoup G. I. buckets of water, out of a certain Sergeant's room. (Note: The Sergeants have private rooms in the new barracks) But alas no. Only an attempt to make the radiator heat by drawing the water from it. (If the point is not clear we have a heating system of the water type.)

"FOLLÓW ME"

In connection with the editorial pub lished on March 5th, the following extract from General Orders No. 82 Headquarters, The Infantry School Fort Benning, Ga., October 23, 1924, is published by request:

"CLASSIFICATION—Sports are classed as (a) Intra-mural, (b) Inter-mural, and (c) Extramural

- (a) INTRA-MURAL SPORTS are those conducted within units. They are under the control of the unit commander, who is responsible for all details connected with their conduct. They are financed by the unit concerned, and should be a part of the unit's program of training.
- (b) INTER-MURAL SPORTS are those conducted between different units within the garrison. They are under the control of the Athletic Association, though the units are responsible for equipment, training personnel, and expenses. The Athletic Association may make allotments from surplus funds for conducting these contests, and any awards in prizes will be decided on by the Athletic Association and paid for by it. No officer may play on any intermural team.
- (c) EXTRA-MURAL SPORTS are those conducted with teams outside Fort Benning. They are under the control of the Athletic Association, which is responsible for all details connected with their conduct."

"FOLLOW ME"

Two facts are well-known about Benning athletics. First, they are fostered with the purpose of developing to the utmost the enlisted players, and the creation of such ability as has been shown on Infantry School teams by Buck, Kjelstrom, Daniel, Romploski, Lapine, Lindsey is justification of this intent.

Secondly, there is an increasing tendency to use officers in their natural role as leaders, teachers, trainers, and instructors, instead of submerging their inherent leadership in the playing of individual positions. In the intramural series, officers were barred from teams. There is an inclination to make the big blue teams more and more enlisted teams instead of all-officer teams.

The development desired is of a high grade of sportsmanship under officer leadership.

Only a very short time ago, the War Department concluded with the Amateur Athletic Union and with the national Federation an agreement carrying a stipulation that army athletics should be conducted on an amateur basis.

Last summer three of the coaches of the Infantry School football team at-Rockne's coaching tended Knute course at Notre Dame in order to bring the best intercollegiate technique and spirit to the gridiron of the Doughboy Stadium. Major Milburn, Captain Zellars, and Lieutenant McQuarrie formed and framed the Four Touchdown Doughboys in accordance with the highest standards of sportsman-

Now we read in the papers the following Associated Press dispatch:

Joe Jackson to Pilot Parris Island Team

Savannah, Ga., Mar. 11.—(A.P.) -Joe Jackson, of White Sox fame and long a national figure in America's pastime, has accepted a contract offered by the U.S. marine corps to manage and coach the Parris Island baseball club season.

Jackson leaves for Paris Island next week. The former big leaguer completed negotiation with the marine corps officials over long distance telephone yesterday afternoon.

It has been the practice in collegiate circles to use professional ball players in good repute as coaches or as assistant coaches, but it is doubtful if any university has employed a man of the standing of Joe Jackson, whose "fame" leads back to certain World's Series entanglements.

It is bad enough to have cocktails at Marine Corps dinners headlined country-wide as having been served at "Army" dinners. The erroneous impression thus broadcast simply shows the confusion existing. hope that now the "Army" will not be spoken of as having employed for the enlightenment of its athletes a player of the reputation of Joe Jackson.

CHATTAHOOCHEE VALLEY EDITION OF THE COLUMBUS LEDGER

In connection with the following circular, it is announced that orders for the Special Chattahoochee Valley Edition of the Columbus Ledger from individuals not belonging to organizations will be received either by:

(1) The Assistant Recreation Officer at the Theatre Building, telephone number 443, or by

(2) The Editor of the Infantry School News, telephone number 146.

The percentage from collections made by organization commanders will be used to increase the funds of those commanders. The percentage from collections made by the Assist-ant Recreation Officer and by the Infantry School News will be used to promote the activity of the Recrea-tion fund and the Infantry School News.

1. On or about Sunday, March 28, the Columbus Ledger will publish a special Chattahoochee Valley Edition of that paper somewhat similar to the Columbus-Benning Edition pub lished last spring. In this special edition, in addition to articles which describe the communities and indus-tries of the neighboring counties, there will be several illustrated arti lustrate.

CAPTAIN RODERICK GETS A COMPANY

Officers of the army consider the command of a company the best possible detail for a Captain. Captain Thomas E. Roderick leaves his former post as Athletic and Recreation Offi-cer of the 29th Infnatry, where he is succeeded by Lieutenant Keith Tatom, to take command of Regimental Headquarters Company.

For many, many months, this athlete of Big Blue teams who played so well against the All-Marine team in Washington in that fatal game in Washington in November, 1924, has game in has boosted athletics and recreation in the demonstration regiment. He has promoted shows in the regimental theamoted shows in the regimental theatre, bringing good vaudeville performers to the stage of the outfit's show house. He has booked entertaining plays by the Ann Johnstone Players fresh from the Springer. He has pushed and pushed hard in getting across the howing chemicaching this across the boxing championships. final achievement was the organiza-tion day track and field meet in which a large number of events with en-trants from the various units of the regiment were run off with clock-like precision.

Captain Roderick personally did the major part of the work connected with that meet, before hand and on the field, and the successful outcome was the subject of universal comment.

Meets like this are very difficult to in. Many members of the command who have witnessed, and officiated at, collegiate and Amateur Athletic Union meets, said it was the most smoothly arranged performance they had seen.

INFANTRY RIFLEMEN IN TEAM TRY-OUTS WORKING THEIR EYES

Good Progress Has Been Shown To ward Development of Perry Representatives

Since the Chief of Infantry is an old team shot, the facilities and encouragement given the Infantry team has been greater this season than ever before. Lieutenant-Colonel K. T. Smith, former comrade of the Chief's in matches, has conferred with General Allen and arranged for better representation of the doughboys.

Each regiment sends to the Niagara try-outs one man, and ten are chosen by the Chief from the Infantry at large. Due to the fact that opportunities here are so exceptional for the essential early season training, and because so many officers of this branch are here as students or for duty. Benare here as students or for duty, Benning always gets a large proportion of the "at large' 'designations.

Last December Colonel Smith spoke with the company officers' class and aroused considerable interest. Mon-ographs and the Christmas holidays interrupted the work, but about twenty seasoned trigger squeezers have been working out on Wednesday afternoons on the range, and doing dummy work and snapping exercises all week.

The list is not absolutely closed, because the new policy is to secure seasoned material. Last fall at Perry, the team showed up well at the long ranges "on the belly" but lack of experience told heavily at the more nervous, off-hand ranges. Consequently the work of the team thus far has been confined practically to 200 slow, and 200 and 300 rapid fire, all on the "A" target.

target. Officers or men with experience in Officers or men with experience incompetition, even in regimental competition, who have that steadiness necessary for a competition shot, but have been "poloing" or "monographing" or "fatiguing" still have an opportunity to get in touch with Captain Wessels, of the Department of Experiment acting as charge d'affairs periment, acting as charge d'affairs during Colonel Smith's absence. High scores in record practice are not necessarily guarantees of good competi essarily guarantees of good competition performances; but experience in competition gives the poise which, it is said, the Marines usually have, but the doughboys often lack.

Why Worry About A Car?

You either own one or you don't. You always have two alternatives. If you don't there is nothing to worry about, except getting one. If you do, you have two alternatives; either you insure it or you do not.

If you insure it you don't need to worry. If you don't, there are two alternatives; either you sustain an accident or you don't. If you don't, you needn't worry. If you do there are two alternatives; either you get damages, or you pay the other fellow. You have two alternatives each way. You either get paid by him or you don't. If you do, you're lucky. If you don't, you may sue. If you don't get a judgment, you're out of luck; if you do, he may have nothing you can attach and you're still out of luck. If you pay his damages, no need to worry. If you don't, he may sue you. If he loses, that shis worry. If he wins—

Have you cash to pay the judgment of damages? If you have, you're lucky. If you have not, are you judgment proof? Can he collect? Fort Sam Houston, Texas

It was the night of the reception to the new Commandant. In the bachelor quarters there was furbishing and polishing. Yet one dignified youngster was serene and undisturbed. Neatly dressed by day, he deemed his daily neatness sufficient for the official formality of the evening.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell's telephone rang, more loudly than ever. Word came over the wire, a call for the Loot who had not cared to tackle a femme that night.

"This is Kernel Chew-on. The General's daughter arrived unexpectedly this afternoon, and he desires that you escort her to the hop."

Immediately the serenity vanished.

The brass polish spread over metal.

Shoe brush flashed over leather. Footgear and waist gear, shoulder bars and blouse buttons shone with the luster of gleaming gold. Finger nails reflected light and rotund cheeks glowed with satisfaction.

"It would be nice to get to be his aide."
"It looks like it."

So went his surmises, expressed out loud, and with all the imperturbability of which he is the master. And so followed right after, all the suggestions and encouragements of the solicitous colleagues. Lead followed lead, and the exalting conversation flew as fast as Blitz across brass.

"Well, I must be going. It wouldn't do to be late."

But the telephone rang, and called him back.

"This is Captain Joking, talking for ernel Chew-on. "The daughter is Kernel Chew-on. "The daughter is slightly indisposed after her arduous trip, and begs to be excused."

And the moral of the tale: To be always ready, or always ready to be ready, even if there be no daughter ready, even if there be no daughter arriving that day at all, even if Dr. Bell's telephone be used to call by other persons and from other quarters than the Kernel's, even if fellow officers surround the quarters at noon the following day and give three rah-rah rah's for the aide and pass with seeming formelity in a long line extending ing formality in a long line extending congratulations.

And perhaps the "rah" may spelled backwards without the "r."

A soldier had been telling a young Debuntante how he had killed a German in the World War and was showing her the gun that did the trick. The young Deb. said: "Point the gun at me that I may know how that poor man felt."

Another soldier promptly stepped up and said: "I also killed one, Miss." Young Deh: "And did you shoot him?" Soldier: "No, my dear, let me show you, I put my arms around him and squeezed him to death."—Chilkoot Post.

With Lieutenant C. M. McQuarrie as senior instructor, assisted by Lieuts. O. P. Bragan, P. R. Dwyer and H. L. Boatner, the course intended to make non-coms of the crack demonstration outfit even better qualified in the disoutnt even better qualined in the discharge of their many duties has been going at full blast. Beginning with instruction in the simplest kind of training such as drill without arms and attended with many and various inspections held with a view to keeping the students constantly up to the ing the students constantly up to the best standards of appearance, the schedule will proceed through all the phases of doughboy training. Students will be drilled in the best methdents will be drifted in the best methods of instruction. By precept and practice they will become versed in squad and platoon leadership. The mysteries of close and extended order will become clear. They will learn how to read maps and the elusive contour will hold no terror for them. They will make road sketches. They will study patrol leadership, reconnaisance, study patrol leadership, reconnaisance, sniping, and observation. Finally musketry and combat firing will be explained and clarified. When graduation time comes the 29th will have fifty-eight more non-commissioned officers who will be fit in every way to ficers who will be fit in every way to be called the backbone of the army.

NEW DEVELOPMENT IMPROVES TANK WORK

Device For War Machines Permits Vision without Danger of Being Hit

A man crouches in a rocking, jolting steel platform. He looks into the muzzle of a machine gun. The gun opens fire. Bullets aimed at him are deflected less than a foot from his face. Rifle and evolver shots are as ineffective. And ll the time he gazes, with vision unimpaired, into the muzzles of the weapons attacking him.

It is not an account of a latter-day miracle. The man on the platform is sheltered behind a new bullet-proof screen now undergoing tests at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds of the United States Ordnance Department.

Between the soldier on the platform and the guns attacking him is half an inch of solid steel, impervious to rifle and machine gun fire and through this shield he sees perfectly the entire field of operations around him, and the guns firing at him.

The shield was developed by officers of the Ordnance Department to protect the gunners on tanks from flying shell fragments, machine gun fire and lead spray from bullets spattering to bits on the sides of the tank.

It consists of a huge, mushroom-shaped cap of half-inch armor steel.

The cap is about three feet wide at its largest diameter and is about two feet high.

A series of saw cuts an inch apart pierce the steel! The cuts are too narrow to permit clear vision when the at rest.

When it is in use, however, the whole shield is rotated at high speed. The saw cuts into a band of light, and through the band of light the operator in the gun turret sees perfectly. Bullets striking the whirling steel are shattered and flung aside, even if they land directly on one of the thin cuts in the shell.

The new development is considered a great advance in tank warfare. Formerly the vision of the operators of tanks was limited at best. There were blind spots" in the field of vision where they were unable to see an attacking tank. Lead from spattering bullets on the sides of the machine had a way of spraying through the narrow slits, which were the only apertures through which the operator of the machine could see.

With the new shield, the vision of the gunners is unimpaired. The operator of the tank can be completely inclosed in steel, safe from any attack, and a watcher in the turret can warn him of any danger, having clear vision all around the machine.

Preliminary tests have shown the device to be of extraordinary value, it is said. It is expected to be part of the equipment of all new tanks built for the Government.

ROCK ISLAND AND BACK

Technical Sergeant Walter Radler and Specialist John Nevinsky, of the 17th Ornance Company, returned the first of this week from Rock Island Arsenal, where they were sent to polish up on the new Holt tractors, along with 285 soldiers and civilians taken through the works to study the technical manufacture and the new developments in that plant. They went under ments in that plant. They went under fficial War Department orders at the nvitation of the Company, and were selected because of their positions foreman of the Ordnance Repair Shop and Motor Repair expert. These two are the Benning specialists in tractor and tank repair.

Her Husand — Say, Mary, that's a pretty new evening dress you have on. Mary—Why John, it's not new. It's that old one I sent to Footer's Cleaners and Dyers. All I have to do is Phone 2157, any time and their agent gets my things on Friday to send to them.

A PRIVATE'S PARADISE

The bugle call had sounded and out went every light,

So I hit the hay in my two by six to sleep throughout the night,
Twas good St. Peters call for me, and heavenward I went.

It took me just one hundred years, When suddenly a heavenly voice the evening's silence rent, 't journey fast, wondered why we made no stops till I heard St. Peter say. "Side-track all the generals boys, there's a Private on his way.

But rather like an Erie freight or a Troop train going past.

At last I reached the Pearly Gates, in wonder gazed around, For there were forty majors all policing-up the ground While in dismay a colonel stood from early until late, He'd overstayed his one day pass, and couldn't pass the gate.

St. Peter came as I looked on and held within his hand, My army service record and a red tape rubber band.

He looked it over carefully and shouted through the door,

You've earnt your place in Heaven lad, you joined the Ordnance Corp.

I know you tried to go to France and help write history's page.

It's not your fault you had to wait till death came from old age,
Just bide your time, rest all you please your time means nothing now, The non-coms will do all the work, and captains sling the chow.

The barracks were of marble made, in side were easy chairs, And captains fanned my fevered brow. while corporals swept the stairs,

The sergeants were the porters there and were supplied with mops,
And all the first lieutenants were St. Peter's Kitchen Cops.

We searched the "Loots" for cigarettes, cigars and matches too.

And made them carry twelve inch shells until the day was thru.

And when from lack of sunlite they returned from all their whirls.

They stayed in camp to scrub the floors while I had all the girls.

Infirmaries were also there where doctors weak and strong,
Got three shots every morning and inspection all day long.
One surgeon with a broken leg got salts and three black nills.

and three black pills,
I had him marked "for duty" to cure him of his ills.

At last I tired of pleasure upon a feather

I had no thought of Reveille, I'd sleep till noon instead.

But all at once I felt a noise, into my ear it spoke, s four o'clock relief outside" and then Oh! Hell I woke.

I grabbed my trusty rifle and in the morning air, guarded ammunition for the boys way "over there."

I walked my post in earnest until my feet were sore,
And proud to be with Uncle Sam a private—nothing more.
—The Sentinel.

IN AGAIN—OUT AGAIN

Only Flying But Fleeting

Wednesday noon, Commander John Rodgers, U. S. N., of Hawaiian Flight fame, slid out of the air into Fort Benning, and a few moments later climbed skywards again. Shortly after two o'clock, Lieutenant Curtain, in the baggage plane, did the shoot-theshoots the same way and chuted the chute out again. From Pensacola to Montgomery, these folk traveled en route for Washington.

When word arrived that they would be at Benning, the Columbus papers front-paged the event, and one of them even had a staff reporter from the city editor's desk itself, out at the garrison. Major Dunlop went to meet them, in accordance with wires sent them, in accordance with wires sent from Maxwell Field heralding the probable time of their arrival. One o'clock and no plane, or commander, or naval man had entered the garrison, though one had been goon flying for though one had been seen flying far overhead at twelve-forty. From Maxwell Field came a telegram that they were to arrive at one-thirty, or later, or something of the

He slipped into headquarters a few moments afterwards to say that the visitors had come and gone, and all they wanted from Benning was some gas and oil—which they got—and the transmission of a wire ahead saying that Rodgers would be at Fort Bragg at such and such a time, and Curtain in Augusta at such and such a time—and the wire was sent. And the flight continued without further thought of Hawaii or Chattahoochee.

THE COMPLETE SPORTSMAN

By I. M. Preshate, Washington; Standards Publishing Co., 1926.

Once in a life-time we get a chance to be funny and to be truthful and complimentary at one and the same moment. Such has been the privilege of the author of this little volume, describing a mercerized three-letter man who rocks the baby and has socked the ball.

Slight and light, with an aggressive nose and an emphatic manner, his biographer describes him to us as a maker of epigrams. Wherever athletes gather, there is this man, boosting them on, booming his voice across the field, and bawling out encourage ment.

When the Marines were in doubt as to whether they might bring officers as well as soldiers to the diamond as well as soldiers to the diamond contest, he sent word back: "Bring the best you've got. Bring Goettge. Bring Sergeant Jiggs. Bring the Commandant of the whole Marine Corps if you want to."

When an opposing player starts a pretty run, you can hear his voice: "Look at him, watch him go, go it, boy, go it. That's the stuff."

Rooting to him is not partisan en-go it. That's the stuff."

Rooting to him is not partisan encouragement. It is a cheer for the play well played, for the effort well made. Disinterested sportsmanship has no finer disciple.

He tells them to fair. "Make 'm like Is it football? He this hard and hit fair. "Ma it. Make 'em like it."

"We'll "

Is it baseball? "We'll get em. We'll pound him! We'll wallop it! Huh?"

Is it basketball? "That's a good one. That's a good one. Huh?"

He plays a mean mouth organ, and knows men for their true values. He's still full of pep and appreciation, speed and slang. They all know him, and they all like him: Zipper Jake.

When the War Department established the policy a little over a year ago of abolishing all-officer, ex-star teams, it was said that the practice of using officers as individual players did not give them proper opportunity of exercising their functions of leadership. Fort Benning was exempted from the operation of that restriction, rrom the operation of that restriction, except as far as inter-service games are concerned, but it has been believed that the full fruit of encouragement of army athletics will be found in the gradual elimination of officer players, and such is believed to be in the gradual elimination of officer players, and such is believed to be the policy. In the meanwhile, the athletic leadership of a man like Zipper Jake exemplifies the drive and impetus that can be given sports of the garrison by the pulling power of a man who does not play himself.

BIG DEMONSTRATION BRINGS HUGE CROWDS ONTO BOUTON HILL

tensity.

A contact plane slid across the sky and reported an enemy assault forming up behind Smith Hill. The Browning up behind Smith Hill. The Brownings on Rivet Ridge were put out of action, and the Bouton Hill machine gunners swung their fire to the final protective line in front of "G" Company. Machine guns from the rear fired through the interval between the fired through the interval between the two strong points. Artillery crashed its protective barrage down again. But the assault on Rivet Ridge was too strong. "G" Company had to fall back. When the enemy ran into enfilade fire from Bouton Hill, "G" Company counter-attacked, but was again driven back and the enemy held Rivet driven back, and the enemy held Rivet Ridge, but only temporarily, for word had come forward that that position must be re-taken at all costs.

Stokes mortars flipped and whirled their bombs on Rivet Ridge. The battalion commander, Major B. E. Bowen, then called in his supporting arms and his reserved. Artillery shifted to his reserved. Artillery shifted to Rivet Ridge, Stokes mortars increased their fire on that point. A platoon of "C" Company's light tanks, command-"C" Company's light tanks, commanded by Lieutenant Harry Hanson of the 15th came lumbering down the slope from behind Cook's Ridge, supported by "F" Company under Capt. Holmes E. Dager, twice cited for gallantry in the Vosges Mountains and veteran of the tangles and shambles of the Mouse Argonne. Together, these figs. Meuse Argonne. Together these traversed the 4th Infantry woods and crashed toward the foe holding Rivet Ridge. They reached the assault line and sent up a green star rocket.

Like magic the fire lifted and reached out ahead to harrass the enemy rear elements. Four inch Stokes morrear elements. Four inch Stokes mortars threw their smoke screen ahead to confuse the foe. With tanks spitting machine gun and one-pounder fire, with doughboys firing automatics and Springfields in "assault fire" Rivet Ridge was again occupied, and the Red Comman-der had lost another battle.

Such was the defense demonstration by a well supported Infantry battalion staged last Saturday morning by Ma-jor Bruce Magruder, for regulars, guardsmen, and reservists, for officers of all grades from lieutenants to col-onels, for National Guard non-coms, for Philippine Constabulary, Cuban Army, Mexican Army, and American Army officers—also the first for Brigadier General Edgar T. Collins as Commandant of the Infantry School.

WE CAN COMMAND TROOPS BY RADIO

On January 25th, the National Guard staged a simultaneous guard mount at every armory in the State, the commands being given over the radio by General Charles King, as adjutant, and Captain Walter R. McClure, Infantry, Benning graduate of 1924.

Except for a dead space in the northwestern part of that state, the reception was uniformly good at those armories where suitable sets had been installed. Company commanders throughout the state submitted brief telegraphic reports, and supplemented these with letters giving in detail the local arrangements. Doughboys, cavlocal arrangements. Doughboys, cavalry, brigade headquarters ammunition trains, engineers, in fact, every branch took part in the performance and each staged its own local version of Guard Mount, Dismounted, all in obedience to the radio commands.

24TH BASEBALLERS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF TUSKEGEE SERIES

Alabama Team Snowed Under in First Contest, but Make Hard Fight in Second

24th Infantry baseball team with the lineup practically the same as last year's garrison champion Reds, clean-ed up the Tuskegee Institute team in two-game series Tuesday and Wedhesday. The first game was a slaugh-ter, the soldiers from the west end of the garrison piling up 15 runs, while the visitors were collecting exactly none at all. Trammel and Hayward in the box displayed mid-season form.

The second contest was a much bet-The visitors outhit and outter one. fielded the doughboys, but failed to bunch their clouts as well as the home lads. The 24th was forced to call on Trammel, mound standby, to edge out an 8-6 victory. Vance, Thomas and Ponder appeared on the mound, but their performances were unimpressive. Grimes for the Alabamans brought about his own downfall by putting men on the sacks with free transportation.

Tuskegee got away in the lead in their initial appearance at bat. Rideau walked, went to second on Kendrick's sacrifice, and came home when King threw far over third base after Rideau had been caught napping off the middle bag. 24th evened up in their half. Most of them were wild and all were ineffec-tive, although decided weakness at third base and in left field presented the soldiers with many of their tal-lies. Five unearned runs came over in the second stanza. Two bases on balls, an error, a fielder's choice, Battles' double to the scoreboard and a single by Bell did the damage.

Three more runs came in the fifth, mostly on good solid hitting. F. Williams and Lyons singled and Hampton doubled to left. Added to these were an error and a couple of force outs. The 24th got 5 more in the sixth on two hits—one baggers by King and Hampton. Wierd and wooly fielding did the rest. Last two scores came across in the seventh on a walk

The visitors never even came close to scoring. Not until the ninth frame did they succeed in getting a man past first. In the final round Kendricks hit a two sacker just inside the left field foul line. Bookman singled in the first. CAGEMEN KEEP FIT BY CONTESTING IN EXTRAMURAL GAMES

Engineers and Tankers Invade Columbus "Y" Crackerbox to Keep Up Steam.

While the intramural schedule was in abeyance due to the retention of decorations in the gymnasium from farewell reception to welcome reception to old and new commandants, two quints of the intramural league ventured last week into what Bill Ellison calls the Y. M. C. A. "crackerbox" calls the Y. M. C. A. "crackerbox" downtown and played with two of the strongest of the Columbus teams.

Following are the accounts written by Jimmie Matthews of citizen circles:

Fort Benning Engineers gave Ramblers the first taste of defeat Chursday night on the polished boards of the Y. M. C. A.

Both teams fought to their utmost for this game. The Ramblers came in strong in the first quarter, leading the score by the tune of 10 to 6. But the Benning boys only trailed them one point at the end of the half, making the score 18-17. Then Wigley got the score 18-17. Then Wigley got started; he chased around the court like a young colt, shooting from seemingly impossible positions, garnering 24 counters. This was all that saved the Benning boys from defeat. COLD WEATHER GAME SHOWS ARTILLERY IN NOTED IMPROVEMENT eebooters Manage to Establ Commanding Lead Only in Final Polo Period.

For four galloping periods the 83rd Field Artillerymen rode hard against the highly rated Freebooters team on Shannon Field Sunday afternoon, remarkable stick work by Uncles and fine defensive play by Carpenter featuring the performance, but in the fifth period they wavered and the piratical crew rushed into a safe victorious lead, to win by the final score of 8-4.

The Freebooters had two complete teams on the field, with the bigger string of horses, and their reserve strength told heavily in the long run. But for four periods it was a smashing contest, always rendered uncertain by the hardness of the ground after two cold nights of winter weather, which made the white sphere bound in queer and exasperating ways those who were taking hea those who were swings at it. healthy

The Freebooters had not had enough of it, however, and their two teams faced one another in an extra period, half doffing the yellow jerseys and appearing in white. The whites had the best of the playing end of the argument, but the yellows managed to tally the only score of the frame. Cpatish of the playing the frame of the frame. tain George Read, sitting a difficult horse, and playing for his fifth year—though only a short time each year—lifted one through the posts for the yellows. How the whites failed to tally more, was more or less of a mir-acle, for they seemed to press the at-tack consistenly and jammed around the opposing goal posts most of the time, but they failed to co-ordinate their new line-up sufficiently to get the tally across. Also they had the individual provess of Major Smith against them, and he weighed heavily in the balance.

INFANTRY DIVIDES SEASON OPENERS WITH ALL-MARINES

Sea Soldiers Win First Game, to Doughboys Come Back Strong to Grab Second Tilt. but

As soon as Lieutenant Dwyer, umpire-in-chief, saw Lieutenant E. D. Pangburn, Captain and Mrs. Paul S. Jones, Major and Mrs. L. P. Ford and "Jazz" Magoni in the stands Sunday afternoon he called "Play Ball" for the opening game on Gowdy Field. The All-Marine team, ancient and honorable opponents of the Doughboys, furnished the attractions.

The Leathernecks were scheduled to open a three game series Saturday, but the cold wind that swept across the Benning plain, kicking up a full grown sand storm, forced a postponement un-til Sunday and sent one of the contests into the discard. Enough excitement was crowded into the two remaining battles, however, to satisfy the most critical. The opening game, won by the Marines 7 to 2, contained everything but home runs. There were singles, doubles and a triple that wasn't There were sina triple. There were stolen bases and sacrifice hits, brilliant bits of fielding and rank errors. Also there were arguments—one of them resulting in a player's exile. A batter was hit by his own batted ball and declared out. The own batted ball and declared out. The Marines scored their first run without going to bat officially. Steady pitching by the Marine twirler and the wildness of Grady Tolle decided the issue in favor of the Devil Dogs.

Nearly three thousand fans turned out and shivered through Sunday's game. They were rewarded with a performance that was creditable for so game. They were rewarded with a performance that was creditable for so early in the season. A hectic second inning, in which the Marines scored seven times only to lose three of the tallies, furnished excitement enough for a whole game. Tolle, on the mound for the Doughboys, had weathered the first stanza in great shape. To open the Marines second turn at bat Tolle hit Freeney on the elbow, and to show that he could throw twice in the same place repeated on Duncan. Montieth, animated with a noble spirit of sacrifice, laid down a neat bunt, which Tolle gathered in and hurled to third too late to get anybody. Sacks crowded and nobody out. Hannah was anxious to be a hero, but had to be content with taking a walk on four straight balls. This forced Freeney over the platter with the first score of the game. The Marines had accomplished the unusual feat of scoring without having a time at bat charged against them. Bailey slammnau accomplished the unusual feat of scoring without having a time at bat charged against them. Bailey slammed a single to right center, scoring Duncan and Monteith. Balis crashed a two-sacker to left and Hannah ambled home. Stock rolled a slaw ground. ed home. Stock rolled a slow grounder down the first base line and ran into it. Umpire Dwyer called him out, hit by batted ball. The Marines out, hit by batted ball. The Marines argued loud and long over this decision and Freeney, leatherneck field captain, continued the debate so long and vigorously that his umps finally told him to take the rest of the afternoon off. When normalcy was restored Maddes went to bat and hit sharply to Durbin who cut down Bailey ly to Durbin, who cut down Bailey with a snap throw to McCarthy at the plate. Chenowitz walked, crowdthe plate. Chenowitz walked, crowding the bags. Freeney came to the conclusion that the umpire had been joking and went to bat. He crashed a screaming liner to deep right field for three sacks, sending all hands home ahead of him, but it was wasted effort, as Lieutenant Dwyer promptly the control of the c ruled him out for violating the banishment decree.

Another Devil Dog came across in the third. Tolle hit Duncan for the second time. The rest of the journey came from Monteith's second sacrifice, a fielder's choice and an infield out.

Infantry's scoring was all done in the fourth. Dunlop hit safely to right and took second on a short passed ball. Douglas smote a line single to center, and Dunlop perished at the plate at-tempting to score after hesitating at third. Douglas went to second on the throw in. Chenowitz messed up Kjelstrom's grounder for the season's first error. "Kelly" stole second, first error. "Kelly" stole second, Douglas remaining on third. Buck singled sharply to center and Douglas and Kelly came in. That was all for the Doughboy, although Davis, hitting for McCarthy, and Christenberry, for Schulte, hit safely after two were out in the ninth. in the ninth.

The Marines got their man ratio in the eighth on hits by Duncan, Bailey, Balis and Stock.

LEFTY CARNES FOOLS MARINE SLUGGERS AS DOUGHBOYS HIT HARD

Ably Supported in the Pinches, 29th Portsider Wins Over Leathernecks

Monday Doughboys evened the count. Monday Doughboys evened the count.
Behind steady pitching from "Lefty" Carnes the infantrymen hit in the pinches and tightened up in the field at critical moments. Result a 6 to 2 victory. Thirteen Marines languished and died on the sacks waiting for help from their comrades, tangible evidence of the stinginess of the portside heaver from the 29th when hits would have hurt. Only an error with two out in the eighth saved the visitors from a coat of kalsomine. Douglas and Buck delivered telling blows for the soldiers. Buck and Duncan, Marine left-fielder, furnished the fielding features.

To start Monday's game Durbin booted Stock's grounder and the Ma-rine was safe at first. Maddes, intendrine was safe at first. Maddes, intending to sacrifice, popped a weak fly just out of reach of Dunlop and Cummings, and got credit for a hit. Chenowitz, trying to advance the runner, forced Stock at third, Carnes to Buck. Freeney, restored to favor after Sunday's run-in with the umpire, flied high and far to Douglas, Maddes going to third. Douglas gathered in Duncan's skyscraper, and Maddes and Chenowitz were left stranded. BENNING BUILDING GOES RIGHT ALONG NOT AWAITING CASH

Ouartermaster Is Constructing Needed Permanent Facilities With Meager Funds

Building activities at Benning are not being held in abevance pending the appropriation of additional funds by Congress. The "stretch the dollar" policy continues to dot the garrison with new structures. Captain Scott is kept busy and Captain Marshall drawing plans pushing the working forces and assembling material into adequate housing. Three new government structures are coming up now.

Opposite the cuartel power house bricks are going into the air, and tile brought from Muscle Shoals looms into view. A permanent warehouse and a solid filling station for government motor vehicles and accessories will occupy the space where mud and sand had cupy the space where mud and sand had been before. Oil and gas receptacles that have been kept in the open, or under old canvas, or within scrubbed up buildings of salvaged wood, will be safely and decently housed.

To store grease, and gas, and oils, a tile warehouse arises to be finished approximately June 30th, forty feet by one hundred feet. A small filling sta-tion, twenty by twenty, with two-way driveway will adjoin it, fed by three tenthousand gallon tanks placed under-ground. By using salvaged material and soldier labor, buildings which would cost the Army between eight and nine thou-sand dollars on civilian contract labor are being put up for about $3,000 scraped together from here and there.

Further up the line, nearer the center of the garrison, the vacant lot adjoining where the old Sales Store used to be in Warehouse No. 2, for many years held rusting radiators and spoiling plumbing. (Continued on page 9.)

War Department Issues Instructions on White and Khaki and on Insignia

Perplexing all has been the question as to when the white shirt, and when the olive drab shirt should be worn with the new lapel collar blouse. Brown and white have appeared on Gowdy Field, although the normal tendency has been to restrict wear with troops to the olive drab. The white shirt and collar may now be worn except when under arms.

CUBAN OFFICER HERE MAKES "EXPERT" WITH ALL THREE WEAPONS

Lt. Sedano Performs Triple Feat With Rifle, Auto-Rifle and Pistol

Ever since the Infantry School was started it has been the custom for the United States Government to invite as students officers of certain foreign armies. On account of the exceptional, friendly relation existing between this country and Cuba, whose force is closely modeled on ours with equipment pur-chased from us by virtue of special Congressional enactments, there have been a large number of officers here in years past from the Pearl of the Antilles.

These guests in our midst have always suffered more or less from the handicap of difference in language. Yet they have always done well, but now for the first time one of them sets a remarkably high mark Lieutenant Enrique Diaz Sedano, of the Cuban Army, who came here from Camp Columbia, near Havana, last September, is the first who has ever qualified as an expert rifleman under the conditions of our marksmanship course, making the rating with a tally of 307 on October 7th. Not content with that, he accomplished within a month the much more difficult task of also qualifying as an expert with the .45 automatic pistol, with a percentage of 81.66 per cent.

In view of this double achievement Chief of Staff, Brigadier General E. F. Lores, on November 25th, issued an order giving him those qualifications in the Cuban Army.

Nor was our genial friend content as yet. On February 5th, this native of Matanzas sighted with the best of them and qualified as an expert with the automatic rifle, making a score of 537, well above the requirement of 500. Thus he not only holds a record for officers from foreign countries at the Infantry School, but has the privilege of wearing the triple bar on his badge, a privilege which all too few American Army

BENNING RIDERS WINNING RIBBONS IN AUGUSTA SHOW

Team Displaying Infantry Splendid Exhibition Form This Week

The splendid showing of the Fort Benning team was the feature of Tuesday's opening of the Augusta horse show. Entering in seven events in all of which they scored, the ladies and officers from the fort took four firsts, four seconds, four thirds, and three fourths, a total of fifteen places out of a possible twenty-seven.

Mrs. Dunphy accounted for two of the wins with her gelding chestnut "Prince," winning the middleweight hunters class against strong competi-tion and taking the open to all jumping contest from a field composed of thirty-five of the south's best hunters, including six of James R. Greer's great exhibition jumpers.

The wonderful exhibition of horsemanship given by this remarkable equestrienne was roundly applauded by the spectators, many of whom recalled her brilliant showing here last

Major H. J. M. Smith was also a double winner, taking first in the polo pony bending race and in the class for officers chargers in which he won with officers chargers in which he won with "Hindoo" over strong opposition from Major Whitney and Captain Gerfen, both cavalrymen on duty with the Georgia unit of the R. O. T. C. Captain E. O. Sandlin placed second to Major Smith in this event, riding his private mount, "Jeb Stewart."

Meedagase Evalues Landia Simpleton

Mesdames Frakes, Landis, Singleton, Bishop and Schneider displayed marked ability in each class entered and were given a great reception by the stands.

From the first event, a class for orficers' chargers in which Major H. J. M. Smith calvary, instructor in equitation at the Infantry School, won the first place trophy on the government owned brown Gelding "Hindoo," a recent importation from Fort Riley, to the closing class for lightweight hunters in which Mrs. J. F. Landis won second place with "Middleburg," the representatives from the City of Musketry held the center of the stage.

Lieutenant McCoy says that the Chattahoochee Valley Edition of the Columbus Ledger will be a fine thing for the men to mail home and stimulate interest in our surroundings. His company and that of Captain Dark are coming across strong. Organization commanders are subscribing to copies, some of them 100 per cent. strong, and some two copies per man. Captain Kraul, Recruiting Officer, is ordering a large number of copies to be used to carry information about the general work and the citizen friendships of the Fort.

When the Second Battalion faced the Infantry School Detachment in the football game slated between these two in the garrison championship series, the Greenbacks were rated as having an exceptionally strong defense The Seconds were twice pennant winners. It looked like a toss up: the brilliant leadership of Kjelstrom on one team being counter-balanced by a large proportion of varsity players on the other

From the nine yard line, third down and six to go, Kjelstrom started around left end for a gain. On the five yard whitewash he was tackled fiercely. The ball slipped from his arms and it looked as if a sustained attack had broken down. The ball attack had broken down. The ball bounded ahead and just as it went over the goal line, a soldier fell on it.

The man who gathered it in had played his tackle position through the had start of the scrimmage, then had broken through and was leading the play ready to hit the secondary. He fell on the ball, for he was McGuire, of the Second Battalion.

Aside from this tally, each team scored a touchdown and a kicked goal, so the final score was 13-7, and it was the "fumble for touchdown" which McGuire nabbed that made the margin in the counts.

His First Sergeant says:

"The prize ring lost a champion when 'Mac' decided to join the Army and play football. He never starts any trouble, but when trouble comes he's a fightin' fool."

In his outfit, he is soldiering right along and doing his job. When fall comes he is out on the football field, playing the game he started at Montgomery Central High School, and learned with the Infantry spirit at Fort Benning.

For three years he has played tackle and guard on the Championship Second Battalion football team. Twice he has gone to Washington and stack he has gone to Washington and stacked up against the sea services in contests for the President's cup. They called him "The Flying Guard" in Washington in 1924 because, when stacked up against a bigger man and trying his durndest to do his stuff, he was battered flying. But he's game. Take a man's opponent on the gridiron, and ask him what he thinks, and you'll get the real dope. The Infantire School, Detachment player who

Our good friend of the Q. M. C., Captain Engles, whose verse tribute to the Infantryman we published in our Christmas number, sends the following sentiment to boost along the Infantry Song contest, in which we are trying to help the Infantry Journal:

"The Doughboys S. O. S."

Get out your pens and pencils-And concentrate your mind, To help compose a March Song-Just send in any kind. Don't be afraid to write one-Get busy, make up some, Who knows, it may be just the thing-And then our trouble's gone.

The Field Artillery sings about-Those Caissons rolling on, And the Cavalry delight you-With their good old "Garry-On." So why not get together-You doughboys of the line, You surely ought to formulate-A good old snappy rhyme.

We certainly have talent-The doughboy never fails. On a mission that is given-So just drop one in the mail. The more we get the better-Competition always counts, You owe this to the service-Let's go, "Prepare to mount."

-Reyburn Engles, Captain, QMC. DOL.

"FOLLOW ME"

Arthur Brisbane says: "At last cramped their necks and interferred with the action of the pneumogastric nerve-which runs from the stomach to the brain, up through the neck, nack af the great blood vessel, and should comes to you as it has come again never endure pressure."

"FOLLOW ME"

The Engineers certainly are a basketball crowd. Not only does their team play a fine brand of basketball worthy of their position among the league leaders. The Engineers turn out in large numbers to applaud and encourage their players. Here's to the Red Diamond outfit. They played the Medico's Wednesday. And from a single company they made up a cheering section of noisy and enthusiastic rooters larger in size and noisier per man than any battalion in camp.

"FOLLOW ME"

Most of us realize that we have plenty to do, enough to keep us busy winter and summer, a routine of duty that involves infinite detail and effort. When we put it down in cold black and white upon our reports, which demand figures, statistics, grand totals, perhaps it does not seem so much, and we realize then that reports are very deceptive. Blank forms however detailed they may be, and goodness knows they are detailed enough, never tell the story of our work. They outline in the briefest possible form the cold facts, but they leave out entirely the human element, the personal contacts, the hundred and one avenues of approach, by means of which the statistics are built up. And after all is said and done, is that not the most important part of our work? So many assemblies, so many problems, so many maneuvers, so many drills, so many details attended to, what are all these things in the dull routine of our every day life compared to the ideals we cherish, the mission we are trying to perform, the lives we are trying to influence for the good of the service in which we are engaged? The work we are doing can never be portrayed in reports, in bald figures, and we sincerely hope that those who read them will try to see in the background the more interesting side of our life as we rub shoulders day by day with our fellow men. The army is a great institution composed of human beings drawn from the varied walks of life, from every stratum of society, young and old, educated and ignorant, from East and West, North and South, from city and countryside, and set down gether in the closest and most intimate fashion for the purpose of military training and all that that stands for in the nation. An army is a complex thing, when you stop to analyze it. It has a great many functions to perform. It requires all kinds of material and talent to make it efficient and effective. Most of all it requires men in the most comprehensive sense of the word. One of its greatest tasks is to build men. It proclaims this fact boldly on its recruiting posters. American soldiers are no longer to be It boasts of its accomplishments both suffocated in hot weather and choked in and out of the service. It is proud. all year round by idiotic stiff cloth of its record, and it has a right to be uniform collars that have hitherto proud. When therefore you are compiling some report, filling up its squares and spaces with so many figures and facts, or when you are reading such reports, and the question be encouraged with the truth that you are doing something great. - Camp Lewis News.

"FOLLOW ME" .

Now that the concrete walk is finished except for the gap under the north stands of the Doughboy Stadium, a visitor to this office suggests that that space be used for bowling alleys, where we could develop individual players and perhaps a team to roll their own in telegraphic matches with other garrisons. Out at Fort Riley, they run up scores around 200, and the doughboys being closer to earth ought to be able to turn out better bowlers than that.

BENNING LOSES FINE SOLDIERS IN AUTO CRASH

Sergeants Causey and Samlavich of the 83rd Field Artillery Killed Monday

Just where the Glade Road dips across an embankment and a culvert after it passes the Wynnton cut-off on the way to camp, a big Buick travel-ing only twenty per lost the highway on the wet pavements of rainy Monday night, smacked the concrete bridge rail and tumbled twenty feet down the steep slope into the little creek. In it were three members of headquarters battery and combat train of the demonstration artillery of the Infantry School. Corporal J. R. Richburg escaped with shoulder bruises and some lacerations on his hand.

Master Sergeant Charles D. Causey and Sergeant John C. Samlavich were killed, probably instantly, pinned be-tween the car and the bottom of the creek.

Sergeant Causey was on the very verge of retirement after a record of thirty honorable years in the army, in the field artillery, the infantry, and the coast artillery, including mergent of the coast artillery including mergent of the coast artillery. itorious service overseas. The papers for his retirement, it is said, were already in headquarters ready for the issuing of the formal instructions, and he would have been retired the day

Sergeant Samlavich is known through the garrison as one of the lightest and gamest football players who ever trod a Benning gridiron. He was the star quarterback of the Field Artillery eleven, a heady ball carrier and a fast runner. He represented The Infantry School in the welter-weight class in the inter-collegiate boxing bouts staged a few weeks ago against the University of Georgia team. He was a basketeer of promise.
Corporal Richburg, who owned the car, had an escape that was nothing short of miraculous. Pinned beneath the heavy debris in two to three feet of creek water, and seemingly fated to be drowned, he exerted almost su-perhuman energy and got himself

Dear Ad:

I have noticed that you answer a good many questions in your column. Will you answer this one for me? Are there supposed to be five or six men playing on each side in a basketball game? I was watching a game the other night and couldn't tell.

Pyt. Perkins, Engineers.

My Dear Perkins: Of course there are only supposed to be five men on each side in a basket-ball game. Maybe you are nearsight-ed and thought the referee was helping out one of the teams.

He knew if he approached the river while it was broad day light he would be seen so he pulled his traveling bag from his back pocket and going over his numerous disguises he decided to disguies himself as an uncaught sardine and sliding to the river bank he swam the river. After making the other bank he found himself surrounded by seven shadows, not knowing which one to follow he pulled a box of corn flakes from his bosom and throwing them in the air he says I'll follow the corn flakes.

Company "B"

Our baseball team in their new suits got a good start last Sunday by dereating A Co. in the morning 11 to 14 and C Co. in the afternoon by a score of 9 to 11. Our old time players answered the call, including Sgt. Stark, Cpls. J. D. King, Duppass and Hattaway, Sgts. Kern and Pvt Romploski and McFadden.

We have been extremely busy this week demonstrating to the officers' class which left very little time for athletics. However, we are anxious to hear from all Company teams for games. In booking games communicate with Cpl. Hattaway.

Company "C"
1st Sergeant Barton and Sergeant Keasak have just come back from fur-loughs. We missed them while they were away and are glad to see them back.

Company "C" played Company "B' game of baseball Sunday. Company B" was victorious by a score of 11-9. There was a good deal of "squabbling" at first until Sergeant Barton was induced to umpire and then what arguing took place he did, and the game went along nicely after that.

Company "D"
"Hot Papa" Wolfe has returned from a long sojourn at the M. P. Company. His honor also spent a few hap-by days in the Hotel Cornog.

Hey, Wolfe, who are you going to give all the snuff to now?

We have heard that our most honorable 1st Sergeant Clyde Hildreth is much overjoyed to have a certain young man to return to his tender care. Says he is going to have him care. Says he is going to nave non-placed under the personal supervision of Sgt. Vines for 7 days. "Tursty" Rhodes says he sincerely

"Wolf" Larson, our galloping regimental middleweight champ, is going to Atlanta to show the capital fight fans how the best there is in the 29th Infantry can "Lead The Way."

Company "E"

Now that we are in our new Orderly room, and not so cramped for space, life has taken on a new perspective. It is a dinger too.

Spective. It is a dinger too.

Our famous basketeer has returned from furlough, Cpl. Oikari, the snuff king. He is disgusted with civilian life, and the way it looks now, he will spend the rest of his time with us.

Here is hoping anyway.

Durbin, the best little shortstop in many moons to play on the Infantry. lineup, had his name changed twice in the past week. After the Marine games the boys called him "Ashes," they sifted through, but now it is Mucilage. All balls stick.

Company "H"

Sergeant McGee has left us for D. E. M. L. as Military Instructor of the Columbus High School. We are sorry to see Irish leave, but the Company wishes him all the success in the world on his duties.

The General Inspector has been to see us and we passed in tip top shape. We will soon have one of the neatest Orderly rooms in the regiment. The mechanics are busy putting the finishing touches on the new building.

We have several potential boxers in the company. Any morning at 5:00 A. M. Privates Kingsbury, Cymbal and Herbert can be seen (or heard) running themselves ragged around the parade ground. Pretty soon we'll see them doing the daily dozen, shadow boxing and skipping rope. There is still plenty of room for all others of pugilistic tendencies.

From Tennessee we get Pvt. Roy C. hanks. In fact he is all Tennessee. Shanks. He was born in Clear Springs, lives in Limestone and enlisted in Knoxville. Though a farmer by profession he preferred to be a soldier and so enlisted with the Red Diamond outfit last month.

BENNING BUILDING GOES RIGHT ALONG NOT AWAITING CASH

By October or November, we shall have there a modern bakery to replace the present wooden one which has been described as "unsightly and unsanitary". From Quartermaster maintenance funds, supposed to be employed for the patchof the old structures which are not worth patching, the Quartermaster secured permission to use $5,000 this fiscal year, and has begun work. One hundred and eighty feet long, and eighty feet wide, of tile construction, using salvaged tile material, there will be built the shell of the new building by the end of June, and in the next fiscal year it is hoped to complete the whole in a few months, with four big bread ovens and one pastry oven and all the other appurtenances bakers and cooks delight to use. The estimated contract price of such a building is about $35,000 to $38,000—but "the Benning way is doing it for about $5,000 this fiscal year and possibly an equal sum in the

ARE YOU WET OR DRY? ??

Last Saturday afternoon, and Sunday, when the weather was warming up at baseball game and polo game, it was somewhat encourging to read on our class schedule for the Monday and our class schedule.
Tuesday to come:

War 22.—"Physical Training-

Swimming. (Lecture, Demonstration and Practical Work.")

Tue., Mar. 23.—"Physical Training-Swimming. (Practical Work.")

But then we remembered that the swimming pool which had been allowed to start to fill—we hoped in anticipation of a March dip—was empty as we wound up Sigerfoos Road in the morning. Perhaps, though, the famous builders who had put up football and baseball facilities, had swimming pool under the basketball court. Perhaps — for the schedule read: "Gymnasium" as the area of instruction.

Another glance, and ment followed, since the seventh col-umn contained the words: "Bring gym

Hope waited on doubt until Monday, and then when we assembled we were reminded of the famous lines illustrating an approved solution printed in the "Doughboy"—class annual of 1922-as follows:

Mark an X after the correct answer: Swimming at Benning is conducted in the summer in the winter X and the classes are instructed always in water on dry land \mathbf{X}

(And then, Captain Editor, the joke was on you, for you were swimming instructor: so I dare you to reprint it!-S.-G.)

Mrs. Charles B. Elliott will give a luncheon and bridge at her quarters Thursday afternoon.

Exactly thirty years ago—yes, we mean in 1896—a recruit joined "F" Company of the Seventh Infantry. Exactly thirty years ago That young soldier is now Major Burton E. Bowen, commanding the Second Battalion of the 29th Infantry. the

In that organization then was a sec ond lieutenant named "Jamerson."

Tuesday when Colonel George H. Jamerson, I. G. D., arrived at the Benning garrison and commenced his annual inspection of the troops, the very first day he went to the Second Battalion, maybe to remind himself of Saturday mornings in the Seventh Infantry when he gave Major Bowen the once-over.

Accompanied and assisted by officers specially detailed from the Tanks and the 24th, he discovered an alarming state of affairs. Here was Columbus last year wedded to Benning, and all the family silver has not yet been marked!

A shocking state of affairs. His as sisting officers, however, did not hold up their hands in horror. It is suspected that they used them to take telephone receivers down from hooks and set their own organizations to marking knives and forks and spoons. marking knives and forks and spoons. WEEK-END GAMES ARE BOTH DROPPED TO THE VISITORS

Auburn Collegians Win Twice in Local City of Musketry

In the two baseball games played Friday and Saturday afternoons on Gowdy Field; the Auburn team defeated the nine from the Infantry School, taking the first by the score of 3-2, and the second by the adding machine to the left of 14.12 al of 14-12.

The Friday contest was close and inthe Friday contest was close and in-teresting, with the soldiers continually threatening, and much brilliant and tight work in the field. Moulton on the mound for the Tigers and Camer-on and Tolle, hurling for the soldiers were all in good trim. The Jungaleer allowed only 6 hits and these he kept allowed only 6 hits and these he kept well scattered. The Doughboy twirlers were even more stingy with the base knock, yielding the small total of 3, but by smart baseball the Alabamans scored three earned runs. Moulton was wild and issued 8 free tickets to first and hit a batter, but except for the ninth, when three of the walks and the hit batter forced in an Infantry tally his wildness had no effect on the outcome.

Doughboys were first to tally. In the fourth Kjelstrom doubled to right with one out, and following Douglas' demise via a pop-up, Christenberry socked one along the right field foul line good for two sacks, Kelly scoring. The other Infantry score was presented in the ninth as described.

In the sixth Cameron hit Ellis, who was promptly pilfered the midway station. Stewart hammered a single to left and Ellis turned third and bluffed a dash for home. Kjelstrom's peg to the plate was fast and accurate and the Tiger was fast and accurate and the Tiger centerfielder scrambled back to third, but Stewart dashed to second on the throw-in. Heady baserunning. Tolle replaced Cameron on the mound for the doughboys. Hitchcock was thrown out at first by Durbin, the runners holding the sacks. Wallace grounded to Cummings, who tried to cut Ellis down at the platter, but his throw was late. Aiken's sacrifice hoist to right Aiken's sacrifice hoist to right sent Stewart home.

What proved to be the winning run came in the next frame. Ebb James crashed a vicious triple to right, and with Moulton up, the squeeze was worked perfectly. James dashed for the plate with the beginning of Tolle's windup and the Auburn hurler laid down a neat bunt and perished at Outside their scoring the collegians never seriously threatened, but their sharp fielding and airtight twirling in the pinches kept the Doughboys at bay.

Saturday's game was a farce come-y. Runs, hits and errors came in bunches. McGaha, Schulte and Carnes essayed to pitch for the Doughboys and were almost equally ineffective. The Jungle lads gathered a total of 17 hits for 23 bases off their com-

Wild as the proverbial man from Borneo, he walked 11 batters and hit 2. Infantry made only 8 hits, chiefly because the ball was so seldom thrown within reach of their bats. They scored enough runs to win half a dozen ordinary games, and lost only because the Doughboy throwers were worse than the Collegians'. WEST ENDERS WIN MONDAY CONTEST FROM ALABAMANS

Alabama State Normal came to Benning the beginning of the week to put on two excellent games on Gowdy

Monday's contest started as though it were to be a practice march for the satellites of Colonel Johnson, but the visitors tightened up, in the box and about the field, and the last three innings presented fine baseball. Men got on bases and tried things. Sometimes they got caught, and sometimes they shaded Lady Luck and made it. Hampton and Seats executed nice pilferings of the midway sack. The entire team of the midway sack. The entire team took the greatest possible advantage of their opportunities on the paths and although heady defensive work by the Alabama boys forced a very large proportion, the attack was pressed all the Vance Williams pitched exceptionally well, striking out five and giving only two passes and one hit in six innings. The Normalites, however, opened the seventh by clouting him for two bingles, one to center field and one singing over second base. Colonel Johnson and Cap-tin Eberle did not hesitate or confer in their dug-out; they wanted to avoid tak trailing cleats to the dugout.

WEST ENDERS WIN SECOND CONTEST FROM ALABAMANS

Early Lead Turns Out Sufficient for Sudden Spurt in Sixth Smashes Tie Neat Vitcory Score and Starts Ava-

Those boys from Alabama State Normal started Tuesday afternoon's game on Gowdy Field as if they were going to make up for the defeat they suffered at the hands of the 24th Infantry the day before. The first man up got a hit, was sacrificed to second, and scored on a double by W. A. Cooley, who also scored on a succeeding bingle.

This, however, was the sum and sub-This, however, was the sum and substance of the visitors' attack, for thereafter they scarcely made a dangerous threat. This same shortstop, W. A. Cooley, covered himself with glory, collecting five assists and five put outs without an error. He threw fast and accurate. He dug the grounders out of the dirt on the run. He grabbed a fly his third baseman muffed and folded it into his stomach before it had ed it into his stomach before it had struck the ground. When his relief pitcher wavered badly he went into the box, and although the wallopers of the 24th got four runs off him in two innings, he continued fielding the mound as neatly as he had been doing in the short garden.

Yet defensively play like this was of ing chances on his weakening in this, his first game of the season, so they marched Leonard to the mound, who stopped the assault by turning back the next mountain in the center of the diamond nine batters out of ten impotently and spun the pellet over in striking style for the batsmen who got only three men on base, while the old one-two-three was working from the second to the ninth innings inclusive. It took the soldiers a little while to get started, and the score stood 2-2 for a long while, but the sixth saw a mixture of hits and passes and bases on balls that broke the spell and made a margin of four runs, which was equall-ed with four more in the eighth by the heavy clouting for which the 24th Infantry is famous. AUBURN BASEBALLERS SMOTHER INFANTRYMEN IN MONDAY'S CONTEST

Early Lead Enables Collegians Conquer Doughboy Nine on Road

Geechie Stewart and his band of slugging sophomores hammered out an eleven to four victory over the infantry team from Fort Benning Monday afternoon in a one-sided contest featured by erring Benning infielders that allowed the Tiger batters to race across the platters for counters. In the course of the afternoon eight miscues were chalked up against the Benning men, while the Auburnites were more fortunate and allowed only one error to dot their otherwise perfect

The game was played under heavy clouds, with a light sprinkle of rain threatening to stop the contest. The game was called at the close of the seventh on account of darkness.

The first inning proved to be the exciting frame of the contest. Benexiting traine of the contest. Defining was the first to the bats. Smythe got on second on a single and an error by an Auburn outfielder, after which he scored on Buck's two-bagger. Cummings, Douglas and Kjelstrom were stopped at first and the Morey batters were up. The sum and substance of this frame was that Auburn got six runs with only two safe bingles being credited to them, by virtue of three errors charged to the visitors.

Hitchcock again galloped around the beaten path in the second boosting the Auburn tally to seven. Auburn then let up in their scoring until the sixth when Ellis got a two-bagger and went to third on a fielder's choice, Stewart rolling out at first. Ellis scored on Towles' balk. Another scoring spurt in the seventh, netted the Auburnites three runs three runs.

Kjelstrom, Benning leftfielder, won the lone honor of the home run clouts, in the sixth, when he hit a long one into centerfield, scoring Douglas. He was the only Benning performer to make more than one safe bingle adding a pair of hits to the Benning total.

Two double plays featured the field.

TUESDAY'S DEFEAT GIVES AUBURNITES ENTIRE BALL SERIES

to Plainsmen Counter Attack and quer Doughboy Invaders

The Auburn Tiger baseballers made it four straight victories over the Fort Benning doughboys when they coined a five to one decision on the Auburn campus Tuesday afternoon.

Auburn found the scoring a little more difficult than in the last two games, but managed to make a round trip in each of the first three frames. Captain Stewart started the hostilities in the first when he located one of Lefty Carnes' slants and whammed out a home run in the first. In the second with one down, F. James singlsecond with one down, F. James singled to right, stole second and scored when E. James hit a hard single to center field. In the third, Potter, neophyte, hurler, singled to left, stole second, and scored on Hitchcock's singled duplicating the run in the second. gle, duplicating the run in the second. Hitchcock was stopped at first by the feature fielding of Smythe, Benning feature neums center fielder.

Benning's lone tally came in the fourth when Durbin, Benning shortston tripled, Dougles walked and stop, tripled, Dougles walked and Kjelstrom hit to F. James, who fumbled, allowing Durbin to cross the pllate.

Auburn again showed their effectiveness in the seventh, when Self and
F. James raced across the plate.

F. James raced across the plate.

This pair of counters was realized when, with Self on third, and F. James on second, E. James mauled out a hot one to centerfield. Smythe committed the extreme unusual, in hand-line the hell for an error secring the ling the ball, for an error, scoring the the ball, for an error, scoring the two runners, and permitting E. James to proceed to third, where he was stopped when Smythe redeemed himself, in making a fine throw after catching one of Potter's long bingles.

Double Play.

In the first half of the sevent

In the first half of the seventh, Captain Stewart took the initiative in the only double play of the afternoon when he grabbed a hot one off the bat wielded by McCarthy tagging Buck, enroute to second and throwing out McCarthy at first. The eighth and ninth proved featureless.

STUDENT POLISTS REGISTER STRONG ATTACK AND WIN

Four Horsemen of the 29th Defeated in Last Sunday's Game

Beginning the five period game on Shannon Field Sunday the School Stu-dents and the 29th Infantry polo teams played a single scoreless chukker, but the scholars outstroked their opponents thereafter and won the contest by the score of 8-2.

Early in the contest, nice drives by Coulter and Burress were neatly checked, and Brian executed some splendid backhand shots in his defensive position as Back. The tallying began almost as soon as the second period opened, with Coulter getting the whitesphere in close and giving it two short knocks through. Promptly he staged a fast attack and, almost single handed, drove it over. For a few moments it was nip-and-tuck again, with Fisher executing a good saving shot at one end of the field, and Burress another at the opposite end. Then, Fry picked up a reverse, and smashed it sixty yards for the finest score of the contest.

Regimental riders came back hard in the third period, and by pretty team work tallied twice, once a placement from Elkins, to Boatner, and once on a play in which French, Burress, and Elkins all participated, the latter giving the final wallop. But Fry carried the ball down field as soon as play was resumed, and when he was ridden off, King followed after and tallied.

In the fourth period the academic lads tallied thrice and put the game on Coulter performing one of his single-handed, circling stunts, and soon thereafter smashing it thru on a free shot from foul. Fry picked one out of the melee near the posts and rolled it in, and the studious riders were well ahead.

In the final chukker, the 29th Infantrymen rode hard, Burress and French executing splendid shots to save goal, when the ball was knocked danger-ously close. Three hats hit the dust, two riders were slightly cut in the fracas, one stirrup leather parted, and the fight was furious. But the Students won, for the 29th rally brought no counting, and Coulter lifted one that looked like a drop-kick thru the upper air, but between the places where the posts stood. (with whom Hank Gowdy was then catching) and the Washington Senators staged a splendid game which attracted an enormous crowd. It was desired this year to get Hank back, and also the boy manager, Bucky Harris. The big league officials co-operated splendidly with the wishes of the athletic officials at Benning and the annual game is now set.

A feature game like this entails considerable extra expense to the considerable extra expense to the Athletic Association, and admission must be observed all must be charged all who attend. Since the contest is not participated in by the Infantry School team, Athletic Association Membership Cards are not good for free admission, as they usu-ally are. But holders of those cards are being given special rates. And the prices to be charged are being kept as low as possible, for the only wish of the authorities is just to clear the expenses of bringing professional teams of this caliber to Gowdy Field.

Tickets are now on sale at all orderly rooms, for cash or canteen checks or for credit collectible by June tenth, and at the Officers' Club for cash or charge on monthly club bills. The prices which will govern are:

COURT OF HONOR PROCEEDS TOWARD FINAL COMPLETION

Copper Tablets Being Placed on Doughboy Stadium West Wall

Shallow niches in broad array break the face of the low concrete wall erected last autumn at the western end of the Doughboy Stadium. One of these is to hold a huge tablet to tell of the origin and completion of the structure. Many others stretch, two-deep, right and left toward the north and south stands, and these others are to bear special designations of the subscribers who made the building of the splendid gridiron facilities possible.

Recently workmen have been busy starting to fasten the tablets in these smaller spaces. Four are already in place, proclaiming the names of some of the donors of boxes. Others will follow until all are properly acknowledged.

Each tablet is made of a large copper plate purchased with special funds and worked by garrison personnel to its present state. First the print shop took the matter in hand and set up in type the lettering for each plate. A proof was struck off and scrutinized. Then the lettering was printed carefully gone over with specially prepared paint to protect that portion of the metal. Following this, each plate was immersed in an acid bath, which ate away the copper except where the painted letters formed a covering and a protection. Eventually, the copper was eaten down, after about eight hours in acid; and the letters were left raised in the original metal, of which they still formed an imperishable and integral part. Finally the paint was scraped off, and the raised metal letters burnished until it shone forth the names of the donors to be commemorated.

Washington Senators Meet Columbus American Association Sunday

All is getting set for Benning's Big League game. While the roof has been going up on the grandstand, spectators have been accommodated at Infantry games in long lines of temporary bleachers set along the side lines. These will all be left in position to accommodate the record crowd expected next Sunday afternoon when "Hank" Gowdy the fighting player who caught the Boston Braves under Stallings and the New York Giants under Mugsy McGray to pennants, leads his American Association of Columbus, Ohio, against afternoon Senators, under the boy manager.

ington Senators, under the boy-manager. Stanley Harris, better known to sport dom as "Bucky" Harris, will play his usual position at second base as well as manage. With the Senators at Tampa have been the redoubtable "Muddy" Ruel behind the bat, and the famous sluggers Rice and "Goose" Goslin in the center and left gardens, whose bats have brought in runs that meant the difference between tail-ending and pennant-bagging. On Gowdy Field will prance the peppy infield that Bucky Harris (Continued on Page 2.)

BENNING SHOW TEAM RIDES TO VICTORY IN AUGUSTA EVENTS

Fort Ladies and Officers Win-Major Share of Honors at Big Society Show

Riding and jumping as though born in the saddle, the delegation from Fort Benning swept the boards at the big Augusta horseshow held March 23, 24 and 25. Astride government straights" for the most partitle military team was usually handicapped from the start by the conformation, or lack of conformation, of its mounts, but the skill with which these mounts were handled more than made up for the handicap and as a result the representatives of the city of musketry captured forty-four places out of a total of eight-five awarded in the twenty-three events entered. This included eleven firsts, eleven seconds, twelve thirds and ten fourths. Illustrating clearly the handicap of conformation, was the event for horses suitable to become hunters, held on the first day of the show. Mrs. Frakes rode "Lady" in this class and on the jumps her performance was perfect, not a hurdle being so much as tipped in her two trips around the ring, but "Lady" was not even placed in the prize winners as conformation counted forty per cent. and George Chipchase's "Captain", Miss Richardson's "Air King", Jos. Greer's "America", and Mrs. Dunphy on "Chestnut Prince" won the ribbons, though none of them performed better than Mrs. Frakes.

DASHING BUCKY HARRIS FACES OLD HANK GOWDY ON FORT FIELD AGAIN

(Continue from Page 1) enlivened into World's Champions two years ago, in a brilliant winning streak whirlwind finish that could not be denied by the big Babe, and the Yankees from the Bronx.

Joe Judge will show the boys how to handle the initial corner. Harris is ready at second. "Ossie" Bluege is still at second. "Ossie" Bluege is still scoping them up fast around the hot corner, and old longer Peckinpaugh is covering the short position like a youngster. A little rookie shortshop named "Buddy" Myer has made a good record in the little rookie shortshop agont the statement of the little rookie shortshop agont the little rookie shortshop agont the statement of the little rookie shortshop agont the little rookie in training season games, accepting 47 out of 52 chances, and hitting fifteen times in 36 official at bats. But the venerable Roger is steaming hard and will probably retain his position and continue to exercise his steadying influence on the rampaging youngsters.

"Stan" Coveleskie, the splendid "Joe" Bush, and "Dutch" Ruether from the Dodgers, are occupying the mound in early games, not to mention the Big Train, the marvelous Walter Johnson, Train, the marveious water Joinson, the idol of all hurling aspirants. Others on the hurling staff include Alex Ferguson, Harry Kelly, Irving Hadley, and Clarence Thomas. Who will pitch for the Senators is not yet known, but in these early games it has been the rule to use two or three or sometimes even to use two or three, or sometimes even four twirlers, to condition all without overworking any—and that is just what Benning wants, to see as many of the big company in action as possible.

Last Thursday Major Lang gave us very interesting talk on Spain. He made us feel almost as if we had been on a trip to that quaint country. Here are two papers that were written about

A Talk on Spain

Spain is a very backward cauntry. It is shut out from the rest of Europe, being surrounded by water on three sides, and on the fourth, where it joins France, there are mountains. Spaniards today still keep the customs of their forefathers, who lived in that country many years ago. The language spoken in northern Spain is said to be the oldest language in the world, as it cannot be traced, and Cadiz is the oldest city. It is believed that the cavemen, who lived in the Stone Age, lived in Cadiz.

Most of the people of Spain today are of the poorer class, but everyone is courteous and polite, poor or rich, old or young. If you are angry or unkind to them, they will never for set it and they will always remember. get it and they will always remember your kindness toward them. They always show their politeness by taking off their hats to men as well as to ladies.

I think Spain is a very interesting country and I should like to visit it. BARBARA MARY.

A Talk on Spain
The city of Cadiz is said to be the oldest city in the world.
In the northern part of Spain and the southern part of France is a race of people who it is said have the oldest language in the world, which you cannot trace. In some of the caves they find very beautiful paintings decorating the ceilings.

The people are very courteous and if you want a lodging you can just walk up to a house and the people say, "Enter into your house," and if you admire anything they will offer it to you, but do not take it for they do not take it for they do ot mean it.

The people have hot tempers and if they get angry at one another they will stand and talk away as fast as they can. But if they take hold of they can. But if they take hold of each other then one must be seriously hurt.

Their favorite sport is bull-fighting. Sometimes the bull-fighter has done so good that they give them the bull's ear and that is a great honor. Another game they play is a kind of tennis played against a wall and have a basket on their hand with which they catch the ball

There is a railway from Madrid to Paris, but to prevent the French troop trains from coming into Spain in time of war the tracks are of a different width.

The products of Spain are olives, olive oil, cork bark and fruits such as oranges and lemons, besides a few small mines of copper, iron and zinc.

When they want you to come there they make the motion such as we use to say goodbye.

Their king has not very great power. Spain is a quaint country and we appreciate Major Lang telling us about it.

ARMY EFFICIENCY

I have great respect for army people: they usually do things correctly. I was recently a gust at the home of Colonel Jerome Pillow at Ft. Leaven worth and, while in his dressing-room, saw that he had twenty-seven neckties. I resolved that as soon as I returned home I would buy my other six.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

"FOLLOW ME" .

Last week, we were working a bit shorthanded, and there consequently crept into the paper a few things which would not have slipped by if our sports editor had not been absent in Augusta. There was that slam-joking, of course, but still a slam-at a ball-player who went all wrong when His Umps said "Play Ball." We regret that, and regret that an impulse to delete it was interrupted during proof-reading by one imperious telephone call, one of the many things that upset the mind of an editor. Then there were some typographical errors, which are hard to get rid of when one is not a professional proof reader, and harder to get rid of when working in a hurry and shorthanded. Most of them made little difference and were readily identifiable as such. One of them failed to give "H" Company and Sergeant Lavender credit for an excellent military luncheon served visitors 'ast Friday. One of them was a fortunate accident. Some time ago we set up in type some little rhymes and short "squibs" to be used by our very excellent "make up" man in fitting out the columns to the proper length. Among these we the little rhyme referring to the for ier atrocious condition of the road to town, now replaced by nine smooth miles of concrete. In it our contributor remarked-for we do have a few contributors, although really very few indeed, sod o say—our contributor remarked "the bur is which were marked beyond the gate are NOW inside." Well our old sataric friend, the typographical error, stepped in and made it read: "are NOT ve noticed a recent markbecause v ed improve ent in the condition of the garrison roads. Some one is working well and hard on them, and some one is behind the work, making sure those tractors get gas and oil and repairs and such things as tractors need. In the past month the condition of the roads treat to the Convention as a whole * * * in the garrison has been markedly bettered, and whether we walk afoot, or ride in our own or other people's cars, we are extremely grateful. The error was lucky, because the erroneous way in which the sentence appeared was really the correct way. Whereat the editor heaves a sigh of relief and thanks his stars he ha voided at least one phone call to int a pt and make more possible more mistakes, and the necessity of being humble and saying "Yes, Sir" and "Yes, Sir" about six times per second instead of what he really would like to say. We have not the faintest idea who is responsible for the typographical error, nor for the road improvement, but we are thankful for both just the same.

It has already been suggested in these columns that the space beneath the North Stand of the Doughboy Stadium be converted into a bowling alley where the wielders of the big ball may roll their own, and possibly stage telegraphic matches with other garrisons, with specific reference to the Fort Riley bowlers. The Fifth Corps News now carries an article descriptive of a telegraphic match rolled between Forts Harrison and Thomas, as follows:

Fort Thomas Fort Harrison and Teams Report Scores by Wire; Fort Harrison Victors in Contest

Fort Harrison officers proved a bit too strong for the Fort Thomas offi-cers in the bowling match rolled last Monday evening on the alleys of Fort Thomas and Fort Harrison. The Hoosiers won by 570 pins, crashing a total of 4,476 to 3,906 for Fort Thomas. The scores were reported by telegraph.

TWO SOLDIERS ENTER FOR TESTS TO BECOME SECOND LOOTS IN ARMY

Are Football and Basketball Players from 29th and Gas Regiments.

Last Saturday it was learned that two enlisted members of the command have indicated their intentions of be-ing considered candidates for two of the hundred and fifty vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant which will exist after all of the graduating ca-dets from West Point are commission-

Both are prominent soldier athletes and have the encouragement and best wishes of garrison fandom for success in the series of arduous examinations they will have to undergo:

Corporal Tillman S. Johnson of the First Gas Regiment, and Corporal Joseph G. Felber, of company "E," 29th Infantry, the former a member of the big Infantry football team and the latter a basketball player of promise in the garrison championship league now in progress, playing back guard on the Second Battalion quint, undefeated league leaders.

Corporal Johnson is a big fellow of 175 pounds from Brownwood, Texas, who enlisted in the service in New Orleans on May 22, 1925, having had a previous two-year term in the medical previous two-year term in the medical department from 1919 to 1921. He was made a corporal on September 1st of last year, and last fall was a member of the Infantry school football squad all season, playing tackle in fine style and getting into the President's Cup game in Washington. He had, in addition to the usual elementary education, three years at the Daniel Baker college in Texas.

Corporal Felber first enlisted in the Corporal Felber first enlisted in the army on March 2, 1925, at New York city, where his home was. Less than city, where his home was. Less than a month later he became a corporal in company "E" of the second battalion of the 29th Infantry, and had little difficulty in qualifying as a marksman with the rifle during the record practice season last summer. He is a graduate of the Staunton Military Academy, was at West Point as a cadet in 1923 and 1924, and studied for a year at New York university, New York City. York City.

Big Liquor Cache Made by Officers— Headline in Local Paper; We often suspected that some of these Prohi-agents were putting a little away for their own use, but we never thought they would admit it.

Columbus Ledger Headline says: Jury at Wrightsville Convicts Man of Murdering Gus. A. Tarbutton Second Time— Once would have been bad enough.

My name is Frank and I am going with a girl in East Highlands. My chum's name is Earnest and he sometimes goes to see my girl.

I have told my girl I am very much in earnest but she seems to like my chum more than she does me. Can you tell me why?

Frank Lee Puzzled.

Dear Frank:
You think your girl should love you because you are so earnest; but, maybe she loves Earnest because he is so frank.

We notice where Charley Muller has coached the Second Division Soccer Team to a Championship. Good work Charley; we always thought you were more or less of a Mexican athlete when you used to tell about what a good soccer player you were, 'round the fire-place over in Vaux, France.

And that reminds us of a story we heard told about Charley when he was First Sergeant of "F" Company of the old Sixth Infantry. He had gained quite a reputation in the regiment, of always being ready with an answer to any question asked him.

One day a new Second "Looie" was assigned to "F" Company and hearing of Charley's reputation he deicded to test it out. Accompanied by Charley Muller, he was making an inspection of the Mess Hall and Kitchen when he noticed on the range a large kettle full of water. The water around the edge of the kettle was already boiling while that in the middle was apparently not yet warm.

"Sergeant" said he turning to Charley, "Can you tell me why it is that the water in the middle of that kettle is not yet hotwhile that around the edge is already boiling.

Charley Muller cocked an eye at the kettle for a second; but the question never 'fazed' him. "Yes Sir, Lieutenant," he answered, "The cooks are going to make coffee for dinner. The water around the edge of that boiler is for the men on Guard, who have to eat half an hour ahead of the company."

We have noticed quite a bit of talk in the papers lately about a Road Man-damus. According to our idea of the road situation hereabouts that word should be spelt Mandamit.

The Columbus Ledger in a news article intimates that Georgia is "bone dry."

That isn't any funnier than if Alaska were to advertise as a Summer Resort.

We tried to reach the young lady by that phone but found it was the residence of the bachelor officers of the West End regiment. Knowing the scantiness of modern evening attire, we hope the young lady got home safely after losing the necklace without catching cold or suffering embarrassment.

Combat Train

The past week has been one of deep depression to members of this organization, due to the deaths of Sgts. Samlavich and Causey, who were friends and "Buddies" to a great many men in the organization. Their death has left traces of sorrow which time alone will be able to erace.

The return of several of our able non-commissioned officers from fur-lough is making the guard and fatigue roster just a bit lighter. Here's hoping that they all will soon be here.

Private John L. Carr will be discharged this week. It is hoped by all that he will re-enlist in this outfit again. He claims that he will retire here if they will only pass the twentyfive year bill.

Corporal Richburg has completely recovered from his injuries which he obtained from the wreck.

Combat Train social note: Privates Hoot Gibson and Arnold received friends from Columbus at luncheon received time today. They both say that it is too bad that this organization does not run a restaurant instead of just a common mess hall. They had to entertain the young ladies while the rest of the boys ate dinner. Of course it is all right boys, but in the future just tell them to come some other time and not just at noon.

Private R. P. Cole has been lavishly entertained at his friend's home in Columbus. Delicious luncheons have been served. His girl runs a "weenie" stand.

"Gadet" our prize Bull dog, has still been trying to keep up the reputation made by him in the past few months for his fighting ability. Last Sunday afternoon he met an airdale pup that tried his mettle. They fought for nearly an hour but as no decision seemed to be agreed upon and neither one was winning it was decided make them stop fighting. Next t Next time it will be a battle to a finish.

Our General Inspection, while scaring us about half to death, did not leave any serious marks upon us. A few can be seen going about with their hair all off of their heads but it is to be believed that same was cut off and not caused from worry or old age.

Battery "C"

Well it all came out how Sergeant Mayfield wore out his brand new whistle and pulled out all his hair. seems that the sergeant was in charge of quarters Sunday morning and after blowing his whistle for police formation until he was blue in the face, he couldn't get a thing out of the barracks but the snores of the occupants. You see, we throwed a huge banquet and smoker Saturday night and everyone was so plumb full of oysters and chicken and ice cream and a thousand other articles too numerous to mention that it was just impossible for any-one to even stir Sunday morning. Due, no doubt, to the quality of the cigars, there was not a single person on sick report except Wilmar Lang, but Wilmar almost laughed himself to death at the black face comedians.
And Wilmar hasn't cracked a smile
since he was in the doggone outfit.
Taking everything into consideration, the banquet sure was a huge success the menu was all that could be desir ed, the music was excellent, stop and consider, gang, every member of that string orchestra belongs right here in this ole "C" Battery, and last but by no means least, were the entertainers. no means least, were the entertainers. Too much cannot be said about this group of aspirants for dramatic fame. And while we are handing out the bouquets, a few should be tossed to Sergeant Workman, for it was largely through his untiring efforts that the affair was at all possible.

Our Mess Sergeant Stacks strutted his stuff with a big feed for the Music Club last week. With the able assistance of cooks Mancuso, Randall, Ross and Derbyshire he sure put out a good dinner. Many exclamations of a good dinner. Many exclamations of praise were heard from the visiting musicians. One of our sheiks, acting as traffic cop. (yes, you guessed it, Skates, of course). nearly fell all over himself watching a young lady doing the Charleston in front of the Mess Hall. The chow must have been good to start such as that, of course, the 29th Infantry band happened to be playing a snappy piece just at that time, but even so, no one can dance after a poor dinner.

THE QUARTAHOOCHEE CHAM-PIONSHIP"
By Sec Shun, Ill.

Philadelphia: Double Sports Publishing Co., 1926.

It is ever a matter of serious regret that normally the great sporting events of the age are recorded only in the flimsy and fleeting pages of the public press. Consequently every true advocate of athletics rejoices to see here recorded in permanent form the story of the championship century of the Quartahoochee. "Zipper Jake" wanted the staged before the Howard College baseball game, but the contestants held out for such high guarantees for public performances that the race was privately run behind the concealment of the big gymnasium. Captain Leiber was there with a big 45, ready to start the sprinters on their way or to shoot them if they did not start. The pistol cracked. The crouching speed demons started down the course paced so accurately by the managers. But, no—the race was not on—this was only "instruction practice" and they returned to their marks.

record," Jones wearing sneakers and "Pop" at a disadvantage with anything on his feet at all. Mightily they strove, mightily strove Jones, mightily strove Withers, the red pants nosed in front a trifle—a little more—a last burst of speed—a last agonized effort and the tape was torn asunder—ript and rent by the hurtling breast of Jones—uproariously acclaimed the winner by the spectators, and also by the way, by the wo judges who failed to disagree.

Over the course of a hundred yards as carefully stepped by those experts of the pace tally, Managers Layman and Brown, these speed demons of the Upatoi, made the amazing time of 7 3-5 seconds—a new World's record for the Quartahoochee event—timed on a Marine Corps stop watch, in the hands of a press agent—and the world knows that neither press agents nor Marines ever exaggerate. The record stands: and the record of the record is now permanent.

NINE SWAMPS GEORGIA IN BASEBALL CONTEST FRIDAY OF LAST WEEK

McGaha and Schulte Hold Bull Dogs While Sluggers Keep Scoring

Bull Dogs from Athens could not penetrate the scoring column of the bayonet boys Friday of last week, except for a long homer within the fence which Shivar lifted in the second inning, and The University of Georgia nine lost to the fantry School by the score of 9-1.

After the Red and Black had gone out in order in the first, the last man by virtue of a fine running catch by Paris in right field, this same Paris—with one down—opened hostilities in the second by hitting toward third and sitting safe when firstbaseman Tully dropped the throw. He stole second and sat there while Durbin went out on a play from the box to the initial corner. Douglas, next up, laced out a double and the doughboys had tallied.

In the second, Georgia came back for blood, and drew a single drop, Shivar's home run, a deep and long one between center and right, which was preceded and followed by infield outs and three whiffs.

Said the soldiers, "One of us must be the better man," and proceeded to go out in front, never again to be headed. Buck drew a walk, and after Cummings had fanned, scored on a pretty hit to center off the bat of one George Dutch Smythe, Smythe taking second on the throw-in which could not head off the flying Buck. Paris then singled neatly to left, scoring the speedy Smythe, and taking second when the Georgian in the eastern pasture let the ball roll behind him. He went to third on a catcher's error, and scored on a hit through third by Durbin.

In the fifth, McGaha had to retire, a bad strain in his side compelling him to come off the mountain, after excellent spit-ball pitching which made the regulation horseside drop suddenly out of the batter's reach. Schulte of the 83rd took his place, and kept up the tra-dition of defying bull dogs.

The first two batters to face him sing led past the infield, and were sacrificed to the middle and hot corners, but the next two went out without advancing a runner, so pretty was the Benning infield work, and thereafter, except for a single hit off the bat by pitcher Nash in the eighth, stretched to a two-sack trip by reason of a wide throw to first, the Georgians could not get a man on base. Schlute was steaming his on base. Schlute was steaming his underhand ball over in superior style, and his infield and outfield were pulling them off the ground or out of the air in really superior style.

"Rabbit" was not content. He kept calling for twenty runs, instead of four, and the residents of the city of musketry did their best. They did not quite make it twenty, but they almost halved it.

In the fifth and seventh, Douglas—who caught a fine game—started rallies by getting on and running like mad when Kjelstrom followed up with hits, a three bagger in the fifth stretched to a homer by a bad scramble at third, and a single the seventh, followed by singles by Christenberry and Buck, making four in succession in that frame. GEORGIANS RETALIATE EDGING OUT A VICTORY ON GOWDY'S PASTURE

Several Long Hits and Fast Infield Work Featured Saturday Game Dropped by Nine Musketeers

In Saturday's game on Gowdy Field, the Bull Dogs from Athens played a better brand of baseball behind their Sophomore battery and held on tight giving no errors after the first inning and coming through in the sixth to tie the score at one all, and again in the eighth to go two tallies in front, and then choked a soldier rally in the eighth to one run, and won by the score of 3-2, in an excellent contest.

It was a fielding game. Each pitcher gave two bases on balls and struck out The rest went out mostly on infield plays, as the seventeen put-outs by each of basemen testify. From the fourth inning onwards, both sides were constantly threatening, and the third corner was warm with potential runs on several occasions.

Durbin tallied first for the nine. He was beating out an infield hit when Sherlock threw wide to the bag and Durbin went to second on the heave into the stands. Kjelstrom sing-led through the box and Durbin dug his cleats into the platter.

In the sixth with two down, Georgian, Moore hit through third and scored on a triple by Shivar, making the score a tie at 1-1. In the same inning, and in the seventh the Nine Musketeers threatened seriously by getting possible winning runs to the warm corner, but could not jam them over.

If the Infantry would not break the tie, said the Georgians, they would, and they proceeded to do it in the eighth with a vengeance. With two down, a brace of singles followed by a triple, netted a pair of tallies, thus ended the Georgia scoring, for in spite of a nice triple by Arenowitch over Smythe's head with one down in eers were certainly bunching their wallops.

It was a good day for the doughboys. Kjelstrom and Douglas had a feature day with the willow. Douglas was a superior target behind the mask. Christenberry accepted fourteen chances at first without an error, and Durbin handled four assists in splendid style at short. McGaha and Schlute were effective as riflemen and cannoneers down the pitching lane. And the garrison went to supper happy at a rejuvenated team.

Nor did the soldiers refrain counter-attacking. In their half of the same inning, Smythe hit as usual and stole second and third. He remained there while Paris was flying out and Durbin was accepting a free ticket to first and stealing second. BASEBALLERS FROM 24TH WIN HANDILY IN TUSKEGEE GAME

Alabama Easy Victims of Soldier Team. F. Williams Makes Circuit Clout

Captain Eberle took the walloping gang from the 24th Infantry over to Tuskegee last Friday, and returned Tuskegee last Friday, and returned with the scalp of the Alabamans added to the many other trophies won by the outfit from the far end of camp. Score 11 to 1.

No time was lost in settling the issue. Battles, first man up for the soldiers, started the fireworks with a two base knock, Bell walked, and Haywood was hit with a pitched ball to cram the sacks. F. Williams and King singled, and Hampton went them one better with a double deck wallop. Seats whiffed, but S. Williams continued the attack with a single. Result, six tallies and the game to all intents and

Two more came in the fourth when F. Williams blasted a homer to center with Haywood on second as the result of his hit and steal. Williams' drive was of Ruthian proportions, going high and far. Solid socking added an-other in the sixth and two for good measure in the eighth.

Meanwhile, Leonard, toiling on the mound for the 24th, was a complete enigma to the disciples of Booker T. Washington. For six innings he was invincible. Trammel took up the burden in the seventh and off him the Tuskegee gang got their lonesome counter. Meyers' three bagger and Flood's single turned the trick Flood's single turned the trick.

SCHULTE SHUTS OUT HOWARD COLLEGIANS AND DOUGHBOYS WIN

Steady Slinging by Big Gunner Baffles Visitors While Mates Score 5 Times

Schulte, big twirler from the 83rd, didn't get any batting practice Wednesday, for which Howard College, of Birmingham, is duly thankful. Without this supposedly necessary preparation all the Artilleryman did was to shut out the visiting collegians with-out allowing a man to reach third, and at bat to collect a double, single and sacrifice in four trips to the plate. It's hard to say what he might have done if Rabbit had allowed him to take his preparatory swings.

Aiding and abetting this performance the rest of the gang played airtight ball in the field, not an error marring the score sheet, and showed enough strength at bat to collect five tallies, two earned and three presented by the invaders. Dutch Smythe claimed the longest blow of the afternoon with a screaming triple to the score board in the fourth frame. At the time Cummings was reposing on the middle cushion as a result of free transportation and Schulte's sacrifice. Bob, of course, scored easily. A few seconds later Paris got his third hit, a line single to left, and George trotted over the pan.

The other three counters came in the second stanza. Christenberry looked them over carefully, but couldn't find a good one and strolled to first. Soule forced him at the half-Christenberry way station, Bains to Bancroft. Soule went down on the first pitch, bent on larceny. Spier's perfect peg had the Doughboy catcher arrested but Bancroft dropped the pill and Soule was too Burk was tossed out at first by croft dropped the pill and Soule was safe. Buck was tossed out at first by Bains, Soule taking third. Captain Bob Cummings came up and lifted a high pop fly in the general direction of third base. Bains, Lowry and Smith all ran round in circles while the high wind caused the ball to cut strange geners. Finally Bains managed to get capers. Finally Bains managed to get one hand on the sphere, but couldn't hold it. Soule scored. At this point terrific smash to left, Cummings coming home from first. Smythe strolled, and Paris sent Schulte home with a single that hit the third sack and bounced into foul territory. Bains threw out Durbin. Schulte injected his two base knock, a

Howard failed to come close to scoring. Seven hits were charged against Schulte, but most of these were of the luck variety. Only in the fifth and eighth did more than one visitor reach first. Walsh and Smith singled in the fifth, but a snap throw, Smythe to Durbin, nipped Walsh off second fol-lowing Smith's blow. In the eighth Bancroft drew the only walk issued by the Doughboy heaver, and Lowry sin-

29TH HORSEMEN WIN IN FINAL PRACTICE MATCH AGAINST FREEBOOTERS

Improved Team Play Marked Last Sunday's Game on Shannon Field

In the final Shannon Field contest prior to the opening of the annual spring tournament for the Dierk Trophy next Saturday afternoon, the 29th Infantry conquered the polo team of the Free-hooters last Sunday afternoon, by the score of 6-3.

The fact that the tallying honors were evenly divided among a large number of players shows how the emphasis of both teams was towards the development of co-ordinated play in place of individual exertion. The initial chukker ended without score on either side, the 29th riders pressing the attack most of the way, and managing to withstand two last minute attacks staged by Captain Whisner and Major Smith. In the second period the regiments led the way when Elkins carried the ball down and, missing his final shot, was content to see his team-mate French drive it across for the opening tally. The desk-men then forced the issue, Nichols taking one from Moon and evening the number against the sky. But the 29th insisted in being in front and, even though French was temporarily out of the play changing a refractory horse for one more amenable to sudden starts and stops, pushed the attack until Burress whanged one between the posts.

In the third period, Elkins lifted one that was bounding two feet above the ground and good team play enabled Burress to tally again, leaving the 29th well ahead, in spite of a vigorous counter-attack on the part of the yellow-chisted Freebooters just before the shirted Freebooters, just before half-time interval came.

During the fourth "chukker" each team managed to drive the pellet through Jake Zellars's "woven wicker pilons" Nichols swept in and with two strokes following a knock-in turned the back between the tallying pillars. But the 29th was jealous of its lead, and French made a pretty run down the field, Elkins rolling the ball across where

The fifth period was also a half-andhalf affair. Nichol's fine attack on which Smith tallied being balanced by as fine a piece of team play as Shannon Field has seen all winter, Boatner and Elkins carrying the ball from mid-field and Burress coming through just in time for the stroke that meant a count.

When the sixth period opened, the Freebooters abandoned their "mixed team" ideas and sent in their strongest line-up, only to be promptly greeted by a splendid piece of team play. Boatner got loose carrying the ball down. After two strokes he missed—or was ridden off, it is hard to say which—but French off, it is hard to say which—but French was following correctly in rear on the correct line and executed a fine shot which brought the white sphere up where Boatner could hit it over. All of the vigorous come-back of the strongest Freebooters from that time on could not overcome the lead established and the crowd went home-or to tea-talking about "odds" on the coming tournament.

INFANTRY SCHOOL TRANSPORTATION AND HORSE SHOW

Events Announced, Entrants Preparing, and Trophies Are Being Donated

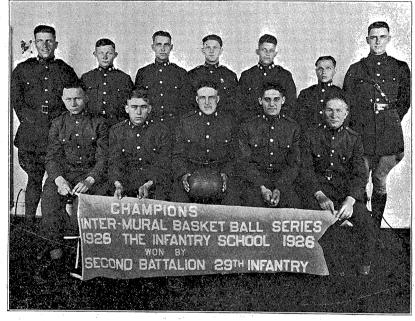

Announcement has been made in detail of the events for the annual Infantry School horse and transportation show, which is set for April 24th. Events of a military character, judging the condition and performance of escort wagons, saddle mules, rolling kitchens, mounted orderlies and their mounts, Howitzers, communication carts, and soldier's mounts, will take place in the morning. During the afternoon, there will be classes for children's ponies, ladies' green jumpers, polo bending, Gentlemen's hunters, ladies' hunters, officers' chargers, ladies' three-gaited saddle horses, pair jumping, officers' private mounts, and Teams of Three jumping. Detailed regulations are set forth in Circular No. 30, issued from headquarters.

Trophies for each of the events will consist of the usual colored ribbons, and sterling silver goblet cups of the uniform pattern adopted a few months ago as a standard for Infantry School mounted events, so that they might be collected by consistent winners and made up into useful and attractive sets. These cups are being donated by various social leaders of the city of Columbus and by various garrison activities. The Infantry School News heads the list, being the first to offer trophies, immediately agreeing to furnish the cups for the Escort Wagon and Communication Cart events.

The Doughboy Stadium will be used for the show. Boxes are being reserved for holders of series parking space tickets at the Polo Tournament now under way on Shannon Field.

SECOND BATTALION WINS FOURTH TITLE WITHOUT A DEFEAT

Kjelstrom's Comrades Keep Slate Clean and Cop Another Championship

Sergeant "High" Davis led his 2nd Battalion court team to its tenth straight victory and the garrison championship Saturday night, the team from "F" Co., gas regiment going down before the Doughboy five 23 to 10, in the final game for the Second Battalion.

Not only that, they concluded their fourth successive year without a defeat, a record of which any organization may well be proud, especially an organization which has no opportunity for picking its opponents, but must face whatever aggregations may be formed against it on the reservation.

In the entire season, this winning five never failed to score at least 16 points against their opponents, and never once let loose on their defense enough to permit more than 14 points being rolled up against them. Seven points was their smallest margin of victory.

BIG LEAGUE GAME ON GOWDY'S FIELD DREW HUGE CROWDS

Hank Gowdy and Bucky Harris Exhibit Fine Baseball for Benning Garrison

Last Sunday afternoon Colonel Warfield came strolling early past the diamond where professional big leaguers were warming up, golf clubs in his hand, just off Lake Malone. There he saw Nick Altrock, the Harlequin of baseful. They talked golf and discussed the Columbia Country Club, the Congressional Course, and Indian Springs. They tried to swing a mid-iron. Then up stepped a little chap in a Columbus uniform, and said he could send the ball over the center-field fence if they couldn't. He tried.

Three times in succession, teeing from home plate he smashed gleaming white new golf balls in the direction of the old hospital, clearing the fence and disappearing forever from the Quartermaster's sight. The wielder of the mid-iron was Pete Harris, winner of the 100-yard dash in the Pershing Stadium at Colombes, France, brilliant golfer in the regions north of the Ohio river, and pitcher de luxe.

It was demonstrated that he was a pitcher de luxe in the baseball game that took place in mid-afternoon. After Itueland and Faeth for Columbus had issued passes in such profusion as to indicate their faith in the value of marching soldiers, and had been touched up for four runs by Bucky Harris'

TROPHY FOR GARRISON WINNERS PRESENTED BY "OUR OWN" HANK

Columbus Manager Will Give Cup to be Awarded to Garrison Champs Each Year

Since "Hank" Gowdy's visit to Headquarters Monday noon, interest in the yearly baseball series for the garrison championship has been greatly increased. Accompanied by Colonel Wait C. Johnson, the Columbus manager called on Brigadier General Edgar T. Collins.

After the usual greeting had been exchanged the veteran baseball player and soldier voiced to the Commandant his deep appreciation of the honor done him in naming the Infantry School baseball field after him and in bringing his team here each spring for games, and stated that he wished to show his gratitude in tangible fashion. He requested that the General permit him to donate a big baseball trophy to be awarded annually to the team winning the garrison champion-ship.

General Collins was vastly pleased and remarked that he, the Infantry School, and the Infantry at large are grateful for the interest that Gowdy has always displayed in army sports and that he felt that Hank's assistance would be of lasting benefit. He added that he knew the entire garrison concurred in this view and would feel highly honored and pleased to have such a trophy as was contemplated.

One of the biggest firms in the country is to be employed to make up a special trophy with devices to represent the Infantry School and its functions, and also indicative of the true spirit of the national sport. On it will be spaces in which the names of the winning teams may be engraved in successive years, so that this may be a permanent trophy of lasting record.

As you enter the new theatre in the early evening for a comfortable seat and a good picture show, you step into the lobby and up to a booth which confronts the central entrance door. Through the ticket window there faces you a small man with a smiling face. Here is a man who built his own house, for the excellent booth of finely fitted and elegantly polished black walnut is the work of the ticket seller, Sergeant Wall.

When the old building was abandon ed and there arose the problem of pro-viding a ticket booth in the midst of the concrete and spacious lobby of the new, Sergeant Wall said: "I'll make it myself." And no one doubted that he would, or hesitated for a moment. The result you see each evening, gleaming wood well put together, an adornment fit for a Belasco foyer.

Perhaps some might have been surprised to find such a task as that of preparing such a conspicuous and necessarily attractive booth entrusted so freely to a member of the command rather than given to an outside pro-fessional cabinet maker. But those fessional cabinet maker. But those surprised, were simply ignorant of Sergeant Wall and his abilities. First enlisting in the Field Artillery Dec. 22nd, 1010. 1910, at Cleveland, Ohio, and transferred within a year to Fort Sill, he served almost continuously at that station in the School of Fire until transferred to the Army Reserve in

The Commander of the Ordnance The Commander of the Ordnance Detachment there spoke of him as "a natural genius, with valuable ideas, in and about a carpenter, machine or blacksmith shop." The director of the Department of Ordnance said he displayed "initiative, ingenuity, good independent and a bigh class of mechan. judgment, and a high class of mechanical ability." The Secretary of the School of Fire remarked: "As an ex-ecutive, he has handled the workmen very efficiently; as a craftsman, he is of superior character; as a man, he is exemplary."

Seregant Wall first came to Benning in July, 1920, and served until a few months ago in the Department of Experiment playing a major part in the development of the installations in the development of the installations on the Wilcox Range, and winning the cordial approbation of the initial, farsighted Benning booster. He built himself a house on the Experimental Range. He put up a house for himself in Red Row, togethhouse for himself in Red Row, together with all the electrical and plumbing facilities. He now lives on the Marne Road with his wife and two children, and works for the Assistant Recreation Officer in charge of the theaters, handling the main entrance ticket booth by night and serving as mechanic by day. services of "Kelly" Kjelstrom by a ruling that varsity players were this sea-son made ineligible for the garrison ser-ies, the Second Bat carried on the old tradition of victory and made it four pennants in a row, and also four seasons without a defeat.

In addition to the keen interest and encouragement of the battalion commander, the team and the battalion owe a great debt to Lieutenant S. W. Smithwho formed them and shaped them and directed them through most of the season. When their bitterest contest took place, that against the First Battalion of the same regiment, Lieut. Smithers was in hospital, almost actually under the knife, unable to participate in he jubilation of an assured pennant. Since his sickness, Lieut. E. H. Wilson, has been carrying on the good work and shares in the bonors.

All during the season Kjelstrom has been working hard with the team, off the court by reason of the ruling, but apt and energetic in contributing his services as coach, and the way he has passed on the dope and kept with the team has earned him a large measure of the praise for the splendid record of the quint.

On the Second Battalion team as forwards have been McCallister, Daniel, and Oikari, the last two brilliant gridiron performers in spite of their dimunitive size and lightness of weight. At center is High Davis, footballer and baseballer of ability, a heady and reliable pivot man. On the defensive in the guard posts have been Felber and Ellis, the latter a fast running guard with a very high scoring average, and the former a dependable backguard who holds his post, without rushing up to tally, and has kept down the opposing scores to low points.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Jas. N. Ancrum and Captain and Mrs. Holmes E. Dager were charming hosts to about three hundred of their friends at a beautiful dance on the evening of April 3rd.

The Officers' Club will give a dinner dance in the mess hall at Bigler-ville this evening. A special hop will be held next Friday evening, April 16th.

The following invitations have been sent out: Major and Mrs. George Dailey, Major and Mrs. Charles Elliott. Major and Mrs. Arthur Ahrends, Sunday April eleventh from four to six at the Polo Club.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Leslie E. Bowman will give a reception and dance at the Polo Club, on Wednesday evening, April 14th.

Mrs. Starr A. Moulton entertained at a bridge-luncheon at her quarters on Monday, April 5th, in honor of Mrs. Harry Bandholtz, the house guest of her sister, Mrs. Evan E. Lewis, and Mrs. Lee, of Baltimore, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Daniel Card. There were sixteen guests. The first prize was won by Mrs. Frank Young; Mrs. Daniel Card won the second prize, and Mrs. Lindsay Silvester received the consolation. The honorees were presented with remembrances. Mrs. Moulton will give the first of a series of bridge parties at her quarters Monday afternoon.

The officers and ladies of the special units, 29th Infantry, entertained the officers and ladies of the regiment with a dance at the Officers' Club hop room on Tuesday evening, April the sixth. There were quite a few small dinner parties before the hop.

Mrs. Thomas L. Martin gave a beautiful bridge party at her quarters Monday afternoon, April 5th, honoring Mrs. John Hoover, guest of Colonel and Mrs. Wait C. Johnson, and Miss Louis Meyer, of New York City, who is visiting Major and Mrs. Randolph. There were eight tables of players. Mesdames Hooper and Stetler won the prizes and the guests of honor were given favors.

The Infantry School Woman's Bridge Club will give their annual evening party at the Polo Club tomorrow. Elaborate plans have been made to make the party a huge success. There will be five prizes for the ladies and five for the gentlemen. Mrs. Woodall Pickering is chairman of the hostesses. All members, their husbands and guests are cordially invited.

The ladies of the Protestant Guild have made final arrangements for the benefit bridge to be given Thursday. April fifteenth at the Polo Club, at half past two. The proceeds will be donated to the Garrison Children's School to help equip the manual training room. There will be three handsome prizes. This will be a delightful way to entertain your friends and to help a most worthy cause. Tables $2. Make your reservations with Mrs. Starr Moulton, telephone 402, or with Mrs. Paul Reichle, telephone 206.

Mrs. Whittington, of Kansas City, Mo., has arrived in the garrison to visit her daughter, Mrs. Paul A. Reichle.

Ye Scribe of Co. "A," 29th Inf., had better get himself a proof reader. His notes on the 1st Bn. Engineer game in the last edition of the "News" the last edition of the "News" were not in accordance with the facts. In the first place, and said scribe will surely agree, the 1st Bn. did not beat the 7th Engineers. Secondly (and its regretted that any laurels must be taken away from the player) Pfc. Caldwell did not make 10 points during the game but only 2. Reference to the official record of the game is humbly invited. humbly invited.

Any one who has a few minutes to spare and who likes to gaze on things beautiful can do so some Sunday morning. He can secure for himself some point of vantage along the road to the Little Church and watch the pretty girls from town as they skip down the road with perhaps a boy friend or two in tow. we won 8 and lost 2. The Engineers gathered a total of 152 points to their opponents 110. Pvt. lcl. Wigley was the high scorer on this team, getting 57 points. Danielski was next with 27; Spencer, 23; Perkins, 23; Palmer, 19, and Mallory, 3.

The Engineers Banquet

The Seventh Engineers banquet, It sure was some sight to see. From the table to the stage, And what mostly tickled me.

They say the music was grand. They were a splendid group. But we did not hear a sound, For the boys were eating soup.

The program was a knockout, Sergeant McNally sang his piece. While some K. P. pulled a bone
And hit him with a piece of cheese.

Sergeant took it as a joke, And didn't seem to care, For he knew that piece of cheese Was just a holey affair.

Corporal Bevis sang a song too.

He was awarded a sack of flour.

For his voice was very light About forty-eight candle power.

The dinner was very delicious, With a piece of pie for each. The Lieutenant ate a cut of lemon And said it was a peach.

Things were going very nicely,
We gave a toast with every drink.
No, it was not from the bottle, We got it from the sink.

Before long the party ended, When some mischievious joker Flashed the sum of twenty-five cents And started a game of poker.

The game was getting interesting, Things began to bang and pop. They caught some joker cheating And things got pretty hot.

After the Captain's investigation They all cheated we believe. For each and every player had A red diamond up his sleeve.

The poet states that since all of the different writers pen odes to little birds, skylarks, lowing kine and such but have neglected the props of a field artilleryman, this riot helps to fill the gap by paying tribute:

TO A COTTER PIN You're made of metal but by gings, You're the most animate of things Outside a zoo.

With fingers cold on frosty morn You elude my search with sneers of scorn You scoundrel you: Little Cotter Pin.

When in the brush with leaves around You always drop upon the ground. And disappear.

I search for you but can't tell how When mess time comes, you're in my chow

Or behind my ear. Little Cotter Pin.

I place you snug in metallic seat And with great care, I spread your feet

And go to fire. You're with us always at the start Then you break-the gun falls apart So we use wire. Little Cotter Pin.

We cannot blame the way you're made Or the scurrilous pranks you've played Our ode then begs

To show you're of the fairer sex Like some others who make us wrecks All eyes and legs Little Cotter Pin.

DANCE AT SERVICE CLUB NO. 1

Thursday night the Enlisted Men's Dance Committee held a dance at the Service Club. Soldiers from every organization in camp came forth to dance the light fantastic with the ladies of the Post and of Columbus.

The weekly dances at the Club are well attended by all the single enlisted men of the garrison that dance, but not so much can be said about the married enlisted men and their families. It is especially for the benefit of these pepole that these dances have been made possible, yet they do not support the dances as they should. This dance should be one night in a week which should be set aside as a night of pleasure by the married en-listed men of the Post. One to which they can look forward to. Where they will meet other men and women of the Fort, who have also come forth to enjoy themselves. It is their dance and they should be there to support it. We need them and they need this dance, so let us see them come forth at our next dance which will be held

NEW TYPES OF TANKS

The Army tank school at Camp Meade has recently received two truck chassis, which are to be tested with a view to securing a more suitable vehicle for carrying the light tank. At present there is a shortage of suitable heavy trucks for this purpose. The new tank weighs in the neighborhood of 6 1-2 tons, and it is hoped that as a result of this test a standard tank-carrying vehicle may be developed. It is stated that the authorities are still behind in the development of a light tank and are now engaged on the design of a new type. They are also working with the present model light tank with a view to remodeling it and making it more efficient. There are so many of these tanks that the gov-ernment can not afford to scrap them, but it is believed that they may be successfully remodeled and so rendered quite effective.

THE AIDE PAID

A short time ago the aide to one of our general officers, driving at night, was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and ran into a farm wagon carrying a family, but no lights. He stood suit and lost the decision. Appealed and lost again, though local laws required all vehicles to carry lights at night. Due to his associations, personal and official, he had the very best advice and strong military influences to back him. Nevertheless for a long and wearisome period his monthly income was reduced by large partial payments on this judgment, court costs and attorney's fees, in addition to which he had to take leave three times to appear in a court of an adjoining state where the accident occurred.

He called on us later to protect him

"FOLLOW ME"

From time to time we hear "the old Army growl" and it usually happens that the growlers do not now what they are talking about. During the past two weeks, the editor of this paper has had individuals give him the "low-down" on this or that situation around the garrison. Investigation has invariably shown that there was no just cause for complaint on those particular matters under discussion, or no real foundation for the facts repeated as such.

Information enlightens and changes viewpoints.

One of the principal subjects of discussion from time to time is the "monopoly" enjoyed by the Howard Bus Company of transportation between Fort Benning and the city of Columbus. Although only recently returned to the Infantry School after a hiatus in local residence due to temporary duty elsewhere, the editor of this paper claims rank as an old timer, by reason of having been here during a part at least of the pioneer days, graduating from the School in the first big class. Knowledge of the old days gives some understand-And here are a few ing of the new. facts concerning the transportation problem. Try them on your piano. Paste them in your hat. Blow them on the bugle. But don't forget them.

The Howard Bus Company has main tained regularly scheduled transportation between Columbus and Fort Benning for many years, rain or shine, bumpy dirt or smooth concrete, empty busses or loaded busses. On pay day week you see crowded cars leaving for town; but the days you do not go to town, you do not see the busses running tative of Fort Benning been denied coon schedule with one, two, or three passengers only. The reason you do not see them is that you are not nearby to We see them out of the window the bus with but four passengers. The sports editor has ridden it when he was the only passenger. We have heard of bundreds of similar experiences. the bus went out on time, and did not fiddle around and wait for a load.

The charge is thirty cents for a nine or ten mile ride, less if you use tickets Compare this with the type of transportation in the old rough days when wildcat "taxi" drivers charged you fifty cents and then once they had you seated rolled up and down and around Broad Street for three quarters of an hour looking for more passengers, shouting along the sidewalks at every uniform: "Going to camp?" and only leaving when they had jammed at least eight passengers in, and sometimes ten or twelve. If there is anything more uncomfortable than riding nine miles on a bad road as the seventh or eighth passenger of a five passenger car, we have yet to hear of it.

Constantly the Athletic Association, the Publicity Officer, and the Editor of the Infantry School News, have telegrams, articles, or letters to send downtown for immediate delivery. It is no longer necessary to go down and back yourself. The bus driver takes the envelope from officers of these activities with a smile, never a growl, never a hint hat the extra-task is extra trouble, and delivers them without fail to the office promptly on the completion of the trip down. Mr. Bivins or Mr. Crawford telephones promptly to the party for whom the message is intended and asks him to call to get it. Never has it failed to work. Courteously and promptly they render this extra bit of service, because they are willing to co-operate in any authorized activity for the interest of the Fort.

When there is a soldier dance at Service Club Number One, the Recreation Officer charters a bus to bring the girls out from town. If the dance is called off at the last minute, there is never a complaint about the drivers who have to be called out and paid to be ready to run the busses. When the dance is over, and the busses have brought the girls back to Columbus, the Howard Company use their taxi-cabs to take to their homes the girls who live at considerable distance from the bus stand, making no charge for the late-evening ride.

An officer missed a train at Columbus. There was a chance he could catch up with his connections at Opelika. The Howard Bus Company told him it was doubtful over the bad roads. He said he'd take a chance and try to make it. Off they went, all the way to Opelika, and missed the train. Back they came to Columbus, and the Howard Bus Company refused to take any payment for the trip.

Is there a baseball program to be gotten up? Is there a polo tournament on? Is there a special edition of the Infantry School News to be financed? Is there a group of cups to be secured for the Horse Show? Never has a represenoperation or aid by the Howard Bus Company.

Every week-day morning two big busses full of school children leave "jawof this office. Not once but several bone corner" promptly at eight o'clock the Officers from Fort Benning, Geortimes. The editor personally has ridden For a month's rides to town in the morn- gia, and the Officers from the R. O. T. ing and back in the afternoon, the How- C. of the University of Georgia, Athof enlisted members of this command to Augusta and making entries the sum of one dollar per month. At showing in the several classes. least twenty round trips, at least forty rides for one dollar-about two and a half cents apiece! In addition, at to the Fort and gave a box of candy, we are told, to every child who rides his bus, and made a gracious and substantial present to the non-commissioned officer who is in charge of the loads of youngsters.

In the old days, an attempt was made to run busses to replace the wildcat taxi service, and the ramshackle busses they ran! The rickety things that on a few occasions tumbled off the road! The jolting discomfort of it. It is understood that General Gordon succeeded in interesting some person in financing adequate bus service between town and garrison on a regular schedule, after attempts had failed to get the Columbus electric railway line to extend their lines, or to make junction with the railroad tracks laid by the government from the junction with the main thoroughfare of the Central of Georgia. The result has been the Howrd Bus Company, and the good service hey have rendered. They rendered it before the new road was laid. They rendered it over detours, and over the lumpy thing we call the "old road." They rendered it regularly, and maintained it at many periods of the year at a distinct loss. They purchased new busses this year, and the old ones as yet are far better than the first busses other people tried to make us ride.

Possibly some people have to growl at something all the time. Possibly some folks are thinking so much of the present that they cannot think of the past. Possibly some people would prefer to deal with drunken and undependable individual drivers of dilapidated touring cars of uncertain origin or ownership But we would rather deal with friends who treat us in a friendly way. We all know that there are far too many civilians in this country who think of the army as "the army" and not as army" and who, when they live in adjacent communities, think only of the profit they can extract from the private pay, the public disbursements, and the necessary activities of the garrison. We know a friend when we see one, and if there be anything true this side of the gates of heaven, it is true that the Howard Bus Company has been and continues to be an agreeable and decent friend of Fort Benning.

"FOLLOW ME"

Hattiesburg, Miss., 3-29-26. Robert Wesley Ainsworth, Co. "B," Fort Benning, Ga.

My dear Boy:--

Yours of recent date to hand and we enjoyed reading your letter, and I have thought things over a great deal since you left Hattiesburg, and have bout decided that it will be best for u to remain in the service until you have finished out your three years and if you will apply yourself you can pick up enough education to pull you through. I, as you know, was anxious to give you the best education that money could give a boy but you stated that you did not care to be a white "collared man" and now I think that you are too old to take a college education, but you can take a trade and begin while you are at Fort Benning.

Your Captain is surely a Prince and I know if you do as he wants you to that you are in good hands. I received a letter from him the week passed and I feel sure that if you do your part that he will more than do his by you and I am glad to state that my army officers were my best friends, and until this day we correspond. A finer bunch of men never lived than those whom I obeyed, and I hope that when your three years are up that you will feel the same as I did and further I will feel that it is your fault if you do not for from the tone of your Captain's letter, I know that he will give you your just dues, and it is up to you that you get what is coming. I mean by that, he will see that you do not get the worst of it and I think that on the other hand he will also see that you pay for each time you do not live up to his orders, so what more could a man expect? I think that you are lucky to have such a superior and am glad that you talked so nicely about the entire outfit when at home.

I received the paper with the copy of my letter, and it was not my intentions for you to know that I had written them but since you do will state that Dr. McKinnon and I have talked things over and he stated that he never saw such an improvement in anyone as you and that he thought it best for you to finish your enlistment of three years and take up some trade at Fort Benning.

Fondly,

DADA.

An Appreciation

The Protestant Chaplain takes this opportunity to extend his sincere thanks to those who contributed to the success of the Easter programs. First, to the Woman's Guild for the beautiful decorations. Second, to the Enlisted Men's Brotherhood for the splendid Sunrise Prayer meeting. Third, to the teachers and pupils of the Sunday school for the best attendance in years. The best attendance by departments. The best attendance by departments was by the Primary 60, under the supervision of Mrs. DeBardeleben, Mrs. Hardee and Mrs. Lenow. Fourth, to Mrs. Edwin Butcher and her well-trained choir for the Easter Hymns and Anthems rendered so splendidly.

THE STABLE SERGEANT

Had "scavenged" a length of wire cable and when I discovered him he was in the throes of deep and mysterious calculations while a detail of privates, enjoying ease, looked on in open mouthed admiration.

"Lootenant, Sir, is not the engineers the technickle barnch?" asked the Ser-

"It is sometimes, Sergeant."
"Sir, Lootenant, what is the speed of sound?"

"Sound travels about a thousand feet a second, Sergeant."

"How much is a horsepower, Lootenant, Sir?"

"About five hundred foot pounds

"About five hundred foot pounds per second, Sergeant."

At this point the Sergeant evidently divided 1,000 by 500 and got 2 for the answer, for he mumbled, "Two feet per horse," and then looking to me for approval and support he concluded authoritatively, "And a 75 horsepower picket line will require 150 feet of cable." As I nodded approval the Sergeant's detail, resuming hard laobr, installed the 75 horsepower picket line which is to this day carrying a peak which is to this day carrying a peak load.

Private First Class Alonzo Jones (Colored) was made a corporal on New Years Day. On the morning of January second the following document, written in Corporal Jones' faultless handwriting, was found upon the faultless company commander's desk: Memorandun To—Commanding Officer Subject—Disciplinary Action.

Lee to the First Sergeant this morning for insub-First Sergeant this morning for insubordination and unwillingness to do his part as a soldier in the outfit I again was dropped.—The New Yorker. had trouble with him at the stables, he having taken exception to my remarks to Pvt. Tibo in consequence of which he said: "I don't give a dam whether you're a non-commissioned officer or not. If you call me a "monkey" I'll knock your dam head off. You look more like a monkey than I do. I want you to understand that I don't give a dam for you or any one else around here." He said he wanted to fight. I told him to wait until stahad trouble with him at the stables, else around hete." He said he wanted to fight. I told him to wait until sta-bles were over to fight me. After sta-bles, to test whether or not he was mindful of the fact that he could not afford to menace his military super-iors. I asked him whether or not he yet felt like fighting; at that, he threw his hat down and squared-off as if to earry out his threat; thereupon I informed him that in the service all fighting was done legally and, that it was a military offense to threaten or menace his superiors, whether N. C. O.'s or commissioned, and that I would O.'s or commissioned, and that I report his highly unmilitary attitude for disciplinary actions. Whereupon he said: "You can report me now! I don't give a damn for no man that thinks he can run over me." There is no question of whether he is right or wrong in his contention. The preservation of discipline, the preservation of respect for those in authority has of respect for those in authority by competent orders, is the paramount consideration. The actions of both men before the organization can not be condoned, and in my opinion, hoping to be impartial and unprejudiced as between men, nothing less than confinement even for a day would serve the best interest of the command.

Very respectfully,
Alonzo Jones, (Corporal.) This letter reminded the company commander of the story of Private Dopey Dan who in his third enlistment was promoted to be Lance Corporal. Sporting his new chevrons, Lance Cor-

When a certain General was a mere brigadier, in command of the troops in the Philippines, a the troops in the Philippines, a favorite form of recreation among the officers and families of the headquarters post was to engage in "Transport joy rides." Every week, an Army Trans-port made the rounds of the islands and its schedule allowed its passengers to visit a different post for almost every meal during the entire seven days, Army chivalry made these uninvited visitors the guests of each mess.

Came suddenly an Inspector General from Washington, and in going over some accounts he stumbled upon an item showing that a certain lieutenant had a bill at the commissary larger than his month's pay. This meant but one thing to him—the officer was buying stores at commissary cut rates and reselling them to natives at higher prices. The Brigadier was at once apprised of his subordinate's our generals and Y. M. C. A. directors permitted our soldiers when overseas to use vile oaths and consume strong drinks. Isn't this a reflection on all of us who were back home? Surely the Lord must have been displeased with our boys' conduct. No wonder so many of them were killed and injured. Our generals should have given them a good Christian training before sending them to the trenches. In the play I heard actually terrible oaths by a soldier who was severely wounded. If this young man had died, think of the eternal punishment that would have been his. It seems to me that our generals thought too much of rifles bayonets instead of religion and sobriety. How can we win our future wars and destroy our enemies if our seldiers forget Christ?'

Immediately the General wrote to the offender, demanding instant explanation. Which was just what the offender was waiting for. C'EST LA GUERRE (From The American Mercury) From a Christian reader of the celebrated Baltimore Sunpaper:

THE INSTRUCTOR SPEAKS:

At the beginning of the year I am one thing; at the end I am another. "Oh", they sat with wonderment in October, "you're an instructor. "Oh", they say with scorn in May, "you're an instructor." I am in turn feared and condemn-October, ed. At the closing of school, when the last baby carriage has been crated and the last transportation request presented at the railway station, I pervert the lines of the poet and murmur under my breath:

Men may come and men may go. But I stay on forever.

You may, you students, dislike the mud of January and the scramble of arrival and departure. But we have something that is added unto these: Summer in the South and June in Georgia.

You may have to speck your books, but I have to speck mine first. Your work comes in for criticism at our hands; but ours is subject to a double scrutiny, that of "students" and that of "school", the whirlpool of Charybdis and the rock of Scylla. Sometimes you may "max"—we never do. And we are "unsat" as often as you. Whenever you spend an hour writing down an improved solution, I spend many hours reading the role that they had in Whene West the pile that you hand in. Where you worry only over bad mimeographing, I must worry over frantic hieroglyphics which you optimistically offer as a substitute for handwriting. The Secretary's office clamors for grades. The steno-grapher calls for copy on the course book. The work for tomorrow's class must be ready by 8 a. m. Then Head-quarters sends me down an order to exercise from four to five every day and the Surgeon a note to drink milk and go to bed early. I cannot set the clock back and gain time that way, or I will be explaining to the commanding officer of my house and home whether or not I was late to dinner and why. Final-y, in order to accomplish my mission, I decide to apply the ancient tactical principle, which says:

The best of all ways to lengthen our

Is to steal a few hours from night. Mistake me not, oh, student officer. I do not wish to discourage any probable plan of yours. There are advantages. The recording angel in Washington will find that I have been keeping in touch with the latest developments beside the Upatoi and will make a mark beside my name to i dicate service with the A. F. in G.—American Forces in Georgia. My operations on the trying terrain at Benning may not mean tereign service pay, but will at least appear on my deficiency record.

CHOOSE YOUR STATION

The approved solution for obtaining a station is for one to write his choice on the mud colored cards sent out once a year by the AGO. Once having writ thereon the chooser is to sit tight and wait for the place to be handed to him. Does he get it? Certainly, my boy, he gets it in the neck. There are other ways.

If you crave the job of National Guard officer with the Blue Horse Troop of the Wapsodax, Carophiltex guard, invite the colonel, lieutenantcolonel and both majors out to luncheon, fill them with their favorite trip.

and get them to promise to apply for you. Of course, they have no intention of applying for you, but you have done all you can in that direction. If they do apply the AGO will get suspicious and send you to Fort Meade.

Should your wife be inclined to flirt a little, let her use her talents to your advantage. When the nobleman who is passing out the details comes around, have her fuss over him a bit and flirt you out of Fort Ringgold and into Monterey. This practice has the disadvantage of giving family sanction a bad habit and she is liable not to stop flirting and will flirt you out of most of the stations in the army.
Some officers prefer to handle their assignments themselves. These find that dancing is a great asset to landing the station. The person who uses the dancing tactics has to be careful not to walk all over the feet of she who is danced, or the result will be most discouraging.

The lucky boys are the ones who dearly love the Mexican border. These have no difficulty in reaching the land of their dreams. All they have to do is to miss a few roll-calls, throw a few parties and, pop, they find themselves in the southern localities. For this in the southern localities. For this reason the border is lacking in sheiks and tea-hounds, but is populated with hard riding, courageous, dangerous soldiermen.

Pretty soon now the annual exodus will take place, and if you are a careful, cautious boy, you may get within six or seven hundred miles of where you want to go. Forget not what you have learned of the principle of surprise, indirect attack, personal reconnaissance and mobility.

We hope you get what you want, but, hark ye, the R. O. T. C. at Skiddy is still open.—The Standard.

THE HISTORICAL CIRCLE

Following is the correspondence which passed between the Commandant and the special representative of the Daughters of the American Revolution:

Dimon Court Apartment Columbus, Ga., Nov. 13, 1925. Brigadier-General Briant H. Wells, Commandant of The Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

Ay dear General Wells:

Having learned that the route of the d Federal Road, authorzied by act of Congress of 1805 and built in 1811, passed through the site of the present reservation of Fort Benning and was followed by Lafayette on his 1825 visit to the United States when proceeding from the Atlantic seaboard to the Mississippi, thru Georgia and Alabama, the Daughters of the American Revolution are desirious of placing some sort of a suitable marker to commemorate these facts

It is felt that there should be a permanent memorial of the connection between the visiting volunteer in the cause of American liberty and the great post where young Americans are being trained for future defense of that liberty.

The Georgia State Daughters of the American Revolution have appropriated funds and appointed me as their local representative in the matter. The Oglethorpe, George Walton, and Button Gwinnett chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, located in Columbus, are preparing to furnish further funds.

It is proposed to place a bronze tab-let bearing the words: "East and West through this place, along the old Federal Road built in 1811 there passed in 1825 I.AFAYETTE soldier of France and volunteer in the cause of American liberty. This tablet erected in 1926 by the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution."

This tablet may be placed on the old concrete flag pole pedestal at the corner of Wold Avenue and the First Division preferably bear the Daughters It would Road. insignia of the American Revolution, the dis-taff and thirteen starred and spoked Daughters of the American Revolution, Dimon Court, Columbus, Ga.

My dear Mrs. Gaffney:

It gives me great pleasure to note in your letter of November 13th, the interest the Daughters of the American Revolution are taking in The Infantry School and in the fact that General Lafayette once passed across the site of the present military reservation of Fort the present military reservation of Fort Benning.

Your proposal to donate a bronze tab let to commemorate that event meets with my hearty personal approval. Like yourself, I feel it to be eminently fitting that some permanent memorial should indicate the connection between the noble young Frenchman who volunteered in the cause of American freedom and indepenence and the Infantry School, which rains those who may some day have to lead American citizens in defense of the freedom and independence which he helped to secure.

You will understand, of course, that the things we can do officially and on a government reservation are strictly limited by law. But I can assure you that we will give you the fullest possible measure of co-operation in this worthy therefor from Washington. However, I am writing today to the proper official to secure the requisite permission, which I have no doubt will be promptly forthcoming, and I shall advise you promptly as soon as I receive word that your proposal is approved.

It is not within the power of the Commandant to accept your offer, or the tablet, without receiving authority

As representative of the Columbus chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution and of the Columbus unit of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, I desire to inform you that these organizations wish to supplement the gift of a bronze tablet commemorating the passage through the Fort Benning reservation of General Lafayette with three other tablets uniform in design with that, commemorating three other historical facts concerning your

The historical facts have been verified through correspondence with Dr. Peter A. Brannon, head of the Department of Archives and History of the State of Alabama, a well-known expert on history of the adjacent portions of the Chattahoochee Valley.

MARCHING SONG

When you're marching in the Infantry
In the sun or in the rain, You feel a strength and power You will never feel again. When you're marching in the Infantry, You're swinging right along. You leave all others in the rear And you sing your marching song! Chorus:

Marching in the Infantry
Beneath the guidons blue,
The fellowship is finest And your pals are true.

And when the tasks are hardest,

The Army counts on you—
When you're in the Infantry. When you're fighting in the Infantry. You're always in the van. Your bayonets lead the army And you conquer man to man.
When you're fighting in the Infantry You are the best of all;

And when there's need of fighting men, It's the Infantry they call. Chorus

Fighting in the Infantry,
Beneath the guidons blue, etc.
When you're serving in the Infantry,
You lead a soldier's life,
On the alert for anything,
For frolic or for strife.

When you're serving in the Infantry, Your service won't seem long, And then you'll wish you back again In the ranks where you belong! Chorus:

Chorus:
Serving in the Infantry,
Beneath the guidons blue, etc.
—"Beowulf."

THE INFANTRYMAN

In the controversy now going on in naval, military and aerial circles over the question, "Who will win the next war?" one figure emerges with luster undiminished. Whatever may be the disconting opinions among the general dissenting opinions among the generals, with one voice they agree that the doughboy is indispensable and that the Infantry is the essential pith and sinew of the right arm of our national defense.

From the stalwart Continentals of the Revolution to the men who went over the top at Chateau-Thierry and over the top at Chateau-Thierly and in the Argonne, the Infantry has endured the heat and burden of the day without asking reasons or knowing why, leaving it to a general staff, that sometimes seemed remote as Mars, to send it into action with a blind yet unfaltering fidelity. The Infantry out-side the poems of Kipling and the hatchet hewn verses from its own rank and file has seldom had a laureate. But it has done the work, whether it got the credit or not. It made no fuss, it did not ask reward, beyond the meagre, incommensurate pay. Philadelphia Public Ledger.

REEBOOTERS WIN WAY INTO SERIES FINALS BY BEATING STUDENTS

Yellow Shirted Free Lances Triumph Decisively Over Coulter and Co.,

Major Smith and his yellow shirted Freebooters conquered the vicious Students on Shannon Field Sunday afternoon 8 goals to 2, and thereby won the right to enter the finals of the Dierk trophy tournament.

Students on Shannon Field Sunday afternoon 8 goals to 2, and thereby won the right to enter the finals of the Dierk trophy tournament.

It was team work and a well-drilled organization that won. You could see it in every movement of the Freebooters. Even the manner in which they all dismounted and walked in after each call of time was indicative of a smooth functioning machine. In the actual play the individual was subordinated to co-operative effort. The number one and number four kept out at the ends of the play, clear of the scrimmage, while the attackers carefully picked out the ball and hit it on the right line to a teammate. The result was a straight forward and sustained offensive before which the Student defense broke down.

Championship polo for the Dierk Trophy take place on Shannon Field, commencing at 3:00 p. m.

In this contest the Freebooters will meet the 29th Infantry, these two sets of horsemen being the victors in the preliminary matches. Each has fine team work. At the back positions, there is little or nothing to choose between Whisner of the yellow Freebooters and French of the blue musketeers, the latter now finishing his final season on Benning polo fields.

At the number One position, Lieutenant Nichols has somewhat the edge on Boatner (and his substitute Adams) of the 29th, but principally on the score of experience, for the two young lieutenants from the regiment are learning rapidly and have shown increase in power from week-end to week-end. The first two named are supposed to be the better stick handlers, but Adams has been said by op-

Against this sterling polo. Fisher, Fry and Brian did their best and showed some excellent stickwork. Captain "Lefty" Coulter performed in his usual fine style, alternating hard smashes and adroit dribbles which he picked up himself and followed picked up himself and followed through. The free lance horsemen limited him to two goals, however.

Starting with close work on both sides, and with tallying about even for the first few chukkers, the game developed into a hard contest with most of the hitting being done at a hard gallop. Every member of the freebooters shared in the honors. Whisner, at back, stuck to his post, saving bad situations on several occasions with splendid back-hand shots that turned back the Student attack. Forsythe and Smith played the scrimmage in superior fashion, each getting through to tally twice. Nichols remembered his instructions and acted accordingly. When Collier came in during the final chukker, he played up to the rest of the four, and added to the total.

POLO CHAMPIONSHIP WILL BE SETTLED SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Freebooters vs. Twenty-Ninth for Gar rison Title—Oglethorpe Team Coming

Sunday the finals of the Garrison Championship polo for the Dierk Tro-phy take place on Shannon Field, lers, but Adams has been said by opponents, to be the hardest forward for a defensive back to circumvent.

In the center positions, the Free-booters have Forsythe and Smith, the latter probably the best player at the fort, and Forsythe a heavy scoring member of any team. Opposing them will be Elkins and Burress from the 29th, probably the best matched and most greatly as a probably the probably the second section. most smoothly co-ordinating pair on the reservation. Except in one of two clashes when the Freebooters dis-turbed their play on occasions, they have shown prime ability and excellent understanding of the fleeting opportunities the game affords.

Following this title contest, there will come a two-game series with the cavalrymen from Fort Oglethorpe. The riders from near Chattanooga, leave their home station on the 9th, play McPherson on the 11th, leave Fort "Mack" on the 12th and play the best the Infantry School can marshal against them on April 14th and 18th on Shannon Field. Shannon Field.

They are bringing a formidable line-up:

Player Position Handica Lt. T. Q. Donaldson—No. 1, (2) Lt. L. K. Ladue—No. 2, (1) Lt. Frank C. Dewey—No. 3, (1) Maj. Edwin N. Hardy—Back, (1) E. N. Harmon—1 or 2, (1) Capt. M. F. Meador—3 or Back, (1) Handicap

Lieutenant Donaldson is rated as one of the finest players in the army, havof the linest payers in the army, having been a conspicuous figure in the army tryouts to select a military team to play in the international matches against the Britishers. The handicap ratings assigned this team and its members indicate the potential strength to be expected. to be expected.

Major Smith has not yet decided on the line-up which he will start against the visitors, having preferred to wait until the conclusion of the Garrison series and see his local talent at its best under the spur of keen competi-

Fine Team Play Features 11-4 Vic-tory Against Improved 83rd Four

Twenty-two seconds after the open-Artillery flashed his red shirt down Shannon Field, and crashed a fine stroke between the posts. A pause with the 29th in the ascendancy, and then Uncles for the 83rd followed the yample of his team mate. The dearth example of his team-mate. The doughboy regimentals bucked and counter-attacked, Burress and Boatner making a nice play, but the final smack to-ward the posts missed counting, and the first period ended with the favor ites at the short end of a 2-0 score.

With a rush the Artillery opened the second period, and Stewart added his name to the scoring column. Things were looking dangerous for the blue shirts who lead the way. They were three behind and the game only started. Burress quickly rose to the occasion on the resumption of play and tallied a count to diminish the lead.

In the third period, the musketeers pressed hard, Hurdis and Carpenter saving goal by inches on two occasions, but Postport delivered a protty book saving goal by inches on two occasions, but Boatner delivered a pretty backhander from twenty-five yards out, and a few moments later Elkins executed a model pass to French, and the score was tied 3-3, at half time.

From then on, in spite of good jumpoffs for assaults staged by the able stick of Stewart and brilliant saving shots by Carpenter, the 29th Infantry forged to the front. "Arty" McChrystal cheered. Griffin yelled. The Colonel smiled. And, although the Freebooters in the stands encouraged the nel smiled. And, although the Free-booters in the stands encouraged the gunners, and the cannoneer soldiers urged them on, the artillery representatives could not stem the rising tide of Infantry scores.

Four different times, at the opening of the fourth period, the mounted infantry saw their attacks turned back, then Burress carried the ball down, and Elkins picked it up and scored. The 29th Infantry was out in front for the first time but out in front to stay. A fast assault followed, with passing in which every member of the team participated, and Burress swung wide for a deliberate shot, taking time to make it good, and he did make it good, as the score board changed to 5-3. Three more drives were turned toward the side bearing and the score board changed to 5-3. the side boards, and then a nice play in which Elkins, Burress and French m which Eikins, Burress and French participated, set the 29th score at dou-ble that of their opponents, 6-3. In the fifth period, the gunners start-ed to stage a come-back. From a mid-field scrimmage, Carpenter got the ball and with two splendid strokes tallied again for the gunners. Burress and Elkins tried to equal it, but the ever present Carpenter executed one of his life-savers, and they had to start once life-savers, and they had to start once more. There was a melee in front of the goal, Elkins swung his stick, the ball hit a hoof and stopped, but another hoof sent it across.

Thereafter the 29th kept right on tallying, counting four times in the final chukker, each time on exceptional team play that makes them the equals in that respect of the Freebooters, who shone at intelligent co-operation last Sunday against the Students tion last Sunday against the Students.

HANK GOWDY SHINES AS INFANTRY PLAYER BUT DOUGHBOYS LOSE

Benning's Own Has Perfect Average as Hitter for Soldiers, but Columbus Wins 6 to 2.

Manager "Hank" of the Columbus A. A. team went to bat for the Benning Doughboys in the ninth inning of Monday's game between the Musketeers and the leaguers and hit one so hot that Baker at short couldn't handle it. A moment later Buck came through with a long triple and Hank trotted home with the second Infantry Meanwhile run of the afternoon. Meanwhile however, the Association leaguers rolled up 6 tallies and won hands down.

The visitors lent the Doughboys a pitcher named Ketcham, who pitched some fine ball, a number of the hits some me ball, a number of the fits charged against him being due to the failure of soldier infielders to handle hits or cover ground in big league style behind league twirling and league batting.

Everybody enjoyed the afternoon's performance, and both teams got a fine workout. Two-baggers by Menoskey and Leibold, and Buck's last inning triple were the feature hits. Buck and Paris batted 500 apiece against the professionals. Ballenger and Reganceach copped a trio of bingles and the Columbus third seaker second four of Everybody enjoyed the afternoon's Columbus third sacker scored four of his team's six tallies. For the Infantry Paris and Buck each got two safe blows.

MICHIGANDERS EVEN COUNT WITH 4 TO 1 WIN OVER DOUGHBOYS

Tolles Bests Carnes in Battle of South-paws. Timely Triples Turn the Tables

A trio of triples by Michigan State oys sent the Nine Musketeers of Fort Benning down in defeat last Friday and enabled the western team to even the two game series. Freemont got the first in the second inning, leading off with a long blow to right that Paris almost nabbed after a desperate try. Rowley's sacrifice fly to Paris sent the black haired catcher home. In the sixth Kiebler's three timer to right sent Kuhn across the plate and the visiting field captain scored a moment later on Freemont's one base blow to center. Spiekerman hit to right in the ninth for three cushions and counted while Heckert was tossing out Tolles. At no other stage of the game did the invaders seriously threaten.

The foot soldiers' only score came in the sixth as a result of Kiebler's error on Paris' grounder, the doughboy fielder's theft of second an infield out and Douglas sacrifice fly to center, of which Haskins made a leaping onehand-ed stab after slightly misjudging the

Other scoring opportunities were thrown away largely through base runming that was too daring. Tolles, sophog-more southpaw of the visitors walked the first two batters to face him, but Freemont saved the situation by nipping Smythe and Paris in vain efforts to steal the third sack. In the seventh Mechan tried to go from first to third on Smythe's single to right with one out but a perfect peg by Rhinehardt sent him back to the bench.

Carnes, shimmying lefthander from the 39th, started for the Doughboys and pitched good ball, allowing 3 runs and live hits in 7 innings. Cameron finished ap and was touched for one hit and one run in the ninth.

INFANTRY DEFEATS MIDWESTERNERS IN HARD HITTING GAME

Tracey Davis Turns Back Michigan State College After Tolle Retires with Sore Arm

Student officers in the first base bleachers cheered loudly and somewhat derisively as student officers do at their classmates when Tracey Dayis, the original "High", went to the mound in the third inning of last Thursday's game with Michigan State College. But it was with Michigan State College. But it was jokingly done and there was little to razz in the work of the tall boy, who is taking the Guard and Reserve course. True the Lansing gang reached him for seven hits and three runs, but for the most part High was master of the situation. His hat started a three run situation. His bat started a three run rally in the seventh that topped the visitors best by two.

Four hits gave the westerners two runs Four hits gave the westerners two runs in the first frame. Doughboys went them one better, tallying a trio on Smythe's walk, singles by Paris and Durbin, and Christenberry's two-ply wallop to center. Durbin injured his leg sliding into second and was forced from the game, Jimmy Meehan, pride of the Tanks, going in at short. X-ray pictures taken later at the station hospital show that the fast shortstop from the 29th suffered a fracure of one of the bones in his leg, and is lost to the soldiers for the rest of the season.

State forged ahead in the third when Baynes greeted Davis with a single, was bunted to third, and scored on a sacrifice hoist to left. Rabbit's bunnies got the run back promptly. Paris went all the way to second when Kiebler threw wildly to first after making a nice stop and "Kelly's" clout to right brought

The invaders added two in the sixth and the rifle toters tried hard in their half, but after Kjelstrom doubled to center, Freemont grabbed Christenberry's foul from the stands, Baynes went far to his right to make a pretty stop of Buck's grasscutter, and Spiekerman easily smothered Cummings' puny pop

In the lucky frame the Musketeers gave the yelling rooters three runs that settled the result. Davis drove one at Kiebler that the shortstop was lucky to knock down. Smythe singled sharply to left, Davis pulling up at second. Rhine-hardt caught Paris' lift but Meehan dropped a Texas leaguer in short center filling all stations. Douglas trashed the ball to center and when Haskins let it go by, High, Dutch and Jimmy paraded across the rubber.

There was no further scoring, a fast double play Buck to Meehan to Christenberry stopping the last effort of the Lansing lads in the ninth after Rhinehardt had started with a safe blow to right.

CHILDREN'S SCHOOL BENEFIT BASEBALL SET FOR MAY FIRST

Annual Comedy Game to be Staged Early so Students May Participate

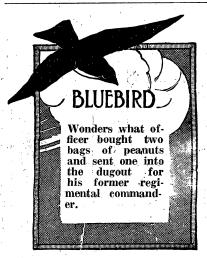

All the suppressed jibes of the entire winter will be brought out into the open and appropriately killed on the afternoon of May first on Gowdy Field when the permanent personnel and the student officers meet in the annual baseball antics for the benefit of the Children's school.

Before, during, and after the contest there will be slow, fast, and intermediate comedy. Instructors from the academic department will do the umpiring, and the process of selection is now on. Among those prominently mentioned for the honor of dodging pop-bottles and growls are Captain pop-bottles and growls are Captain Sandusky to be arbiter at the initial corner, Captain Karlstad at the mid-way station, "Rabbitt" Fountain at the plate, and all the rest of the telephone directory at the dozen other places where umpires will be stationed. The Queen of the May has not yet been chosen either. Bidding among bridge fiends is keen for this

At two o'clock when the game is to get under way, there will be staged a great pageant of the departure of General Wells, with all the trimmings except the rain. Officers will pay twenty-five cents admission—it is hoped—and tickets will be sold to soldiers at fifteen cents apiece through orderly rooms.

ring circuses and three ring sir-cusses will not be in it with what will appear within the diamond square of Gowdy Field on the first day of the month.

No one who was on the reservation last summer and attended the School Benefit game between the 24th and 29th regiments will be missing.

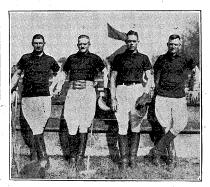

NEW MAIL DELIVERY AT FORT POSTOFFICE HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED

C. of Ga. to Bring Mail in Early Morning and Carry Return Pouch in Afternoon

No longer will officers of the garrison be forced to forego lunch in order to answer important incoming correspondence on the day of receipt. Miss Jessie Crichton, postmistress at the Benning office, has just announced receipt of authority from the post-office for the establishment of additional mail service both incoming and outgoing. The Central of Georgia train from Columbus which arrives at Fort Benning at 7:10 A. M. will in the future carry mail, and on its return trip to Columbus at 4:50 P. M. will carry pouches for outgoing first class matter. This service is in addi-tion to the present star route service.

Under the old schedule mail arrived at Fort Benning postoffice at 9 A. M and the outgoing pouch closed at 1:30 P. M. It followed that officers could rarely receive their letters before 10 o'clock and were forced to work at high pressure to answer important communications in time to make a reply the same day and if east or north bound mail missed the 1:30 closing a delay of 24 hours resulted. Now the officer should find his mail on his desk at 8 o'clock and will have plenty desk at 8 o'clock and will have plenty of time to get his reply in the office before 1:30, and should he be delayed haven beyond that time the 4:50 train even beyond that time the 4:50 train will carry his letters to Columbus in time to go out that night, though of course too late for the afternoon train to Atlanta. Miss Crichton has announced that the outgoing pouch will close at 4:10 P. M.

It is understood that this improved service is the result of suggestions made by Major John A. Parker, Judge Advocate, who soon after his arrival in the garrison last year made a survey of postal service here. Major vey of postal service here. Major Parker saw the opportunity for helping a bad situation and suggested to Miss Crichton the plan of having the Central of Georgia handle mail. The Postmistress immediately concurred

The Postmistress immediately concurred and, through headquarters applied to the Postoffice for the necessary authorization, which was promptly forthcoming.

Postal inspectors investigating opportunities for improving the mail service are understood to be shortly returning to the garrison for the purpose of securing better housing facilies for the Postmistress and her staff. Pool Championship Changes Hands Corporal H. J. Haywood, Pool Champion of the 24th Infantry, has lost his crown, after having held it for over four months against all comers. Pvt. John Battles, a dark horse cue artist, entered the lists and after several creditable showings finally topped the list and won the coveted medal. From the style of the coveted medal. From the style of pool that Pvt. Battle is shooting, it is believed the crown is fairly well fixed to the head of the new champ.

Monographs Come to a Close
The officers of the regiment have just completed a cycle of monographs, the delivery of which has been a daily occur-ence since the first of March. The topics have varied in nature from purely military subjects to those dealing with international affairs, such as the Locarno Pact. These monographs have been short, lasting about thirty minutes and have been very interesting. The monographs have been augmented by illustrative charts that add greatly to the interest of the subject.

Regiment Sings for Inspector The Inspector General's representative at Fort Benning who is making his anat Fort Benning who is making his annual visit was present recently at what he termed a unique formation. The regiment was assembled and gave the Inspector a sample of its prowness in mass singing, for which it has recently become famous. The program was made up largely of spirituals that the soldiers sing with such perfection. The 24th Ining with such perfection. The 24th Infantry Glee Club added several glee numbers to the program. The Inspector was profuse with his applause at the efforts of the regiment, and there is no doubt that he left the area with the most pleasant of memories of the regiment.

Soldier Receives Commendation
Performing double duty and at the same time acting cooley although suffering from a broken foot as the result an accident caused the regimental Commander to publish a letter of commendation to Pvt. Edwin Dean, Co. "C".

A board of officers appointed to investigate and report on the incedents surrounding the accident show the following facts:

"That Pvt. Dean was performing double duty on the occasion of his accident, due to a short crew, and that his action leading to the accident was marked by initiative and a high sense of duty, probably preventing damage to the machinery and accident to the rest of the

The Colonel in his letter to Pvt. Dean "such reports concerning members of his regiment are most gratifying to the regimental commander. Initiative the regimental commander. 24th Inf. Glee Club Sings Appearing as the main feature on the program of the Lion's Club at the Ralston Hotel recently, the 24th Infantry Glee Club received a rousing reception from the audience. The Glee Club was in excellent voice that evening and from the rounds of applause that greeted each effort the club felt repaid for its trip to Columbus.

The reputation of the Glee Club has spread so that the American Bankers Association which will meet shortly in Columbus has asked that the regimental Columbus has asked that the regimental club be on its program as entertain-ment for the visiting delegates. The club is now meeting three times a week for rehearsals and is fast reaching a high state of perfection.

Ball Team Meets with Success The 24th Infantry Baseball team is still unbeaten in its several encounters with outside clubs. So far the club has tackled university teams of note such as the famous Tuskegee Institute team and the twirlers from the Alabama State Normal. The 24th has met these teams in two series and has come out the victor by a undisputed margin. The lack for by a undisputed margin. The lack of sufficient funds prohibits the team from making any distant conquests, but within its limits it is the undisputed king of the mound.

The convoy problem to Muscle Shoals, Ala., is a big one as the mileage is well two hundred miles. The trucks used in the haul are all war time vehicles and have to be handled with the utmost care. This company, however is not entirely unfamiliar with the situation as it exists at the big war project as it spent several months there last year doing the same work. During this last trip several wonderful convoy records were made.

Corporal John M. Tucker returned

Corporal John M. Tucker returned from furlough last Saturday after spending 30 days at his home, Winston-Salem, N. C. Corporal Tucker was promoted to his present grade while on furlough. He is a graduate of the Non-Commissioned Officer School of the 29th Infantry and is an Expert Gunner in Howitzer Weapons.

Private Henry W. Wilkerson recently assigned to the Howitzer Company was turned to duty last Monday, after completing the Recruit drill and instruction at the 29th Infantry Recruit Center. Wilkerson was highly commended by the officer in charge of the drill. The young recruits also is a promising baseball recruit, also is a promising baseball player. His home is at Portageville, Missouri, and he is serving a three year enlistment.

In about two weeks we except to have our grounds around the recreation room in tip top shape for planting. There will be also a flower garden, so it will not necessitate our baby shiels to buy red roses for ornamen. shieks to buy red roses for ornamentation. Sgt. Walker, our newly made Sgt., will be in charge of the garden and indications are he will rival Luther Burbank, the plant wizard.

Company "C"

Throughout the Company can be heard the question "When do we go on maneuvers?" Everyone seems anxious to participate in the annual eevnt.
Pvt. Brzostowski is proud possessor of a nickname which happens to be "Bozo." It originated in an effort to save time.

Someone said they heard a robin singing but was informed that it was Cpl. Massey with twelve days to do.

Pvt. Mays informed us that he is going to advertise dressed rabbits for sale. By the number of cats he is feeding he ought to prosper.

Company "D" Poet And Pugilist

The scribbler and the scrapper Are buddies in the fight They're both for conquest mighty For the cause they know is right.

The poet is a dreamy one, Who sits for hours on end, Penning thoughts of war, and peace He knows the Lord will send.

The fighter dreams of peace Of K. O.'s and decisions But whizz-bang shells and shrapnel Sure interrupt his visions.

The poet and the pugilist. Are fighters brave, both of them They take their stand and fight like h---1 And help to cheer the rest of them.

The "H" Company member giving the best answer to these questions will be given a handsome, tin plated skirmish line reel.

Are we to consider it a compliment that we were picked to help Co. "B" put over a close order demonstration, or are they the ones complimented by having us with them? At any rate, when it comes to close order work, just give that consolidated outfit the once over. "We Lead The Way" is once over. "We Lead The Way" is right. Capt. Weekly Dance At Service Club Thursday night a dance was held at the Enlisted Men's Service Club. Probably the largest crowd of the year attented. The room was packed to capacity, and a great many that did not dance thronged the sides of the wall listening to the gay music, which was furnished by the Twenty-fourth Infantry orchestra. Although this or-chestra has been playing right along and very good music at that, it was easy to say that they even out-played themselves last night.

The buses from Columbus were packed to capacity. The married Enlisted men, however, as usual, were more or less conspicuous, by their absence, or less conspicuous, by their absence, and also their families. We had a few more than last week, but not enough. Not nearly as many as there should be. Turn out, married men and families. We need you to make our dances a complete success.

"FOLLOW ME"

Lovers of sport are many. But there are few such ardent advocates of games as to participate in them at extremely great personal inconvenience. It is all right to be an athlete on "special duty" playing basketball, or baseball. But in these days when competitive clashes are so fostered in the army and such privileges given to those who play, it is rare to find strenuous effort under adverse circumstances. There was a time when all military athletics were performed "in addition to other duties" and the only release from routine permitted an opportunity to train for a track meet or practice a baseball team during the hour period set aside for "Physical Training" on the approved schedules. But those times seem gone, and therefore a special measure of appreciation must be given the group of lieutenants who have organized lacrosse team and are in Atlanta this week-end carrying the colors of the Infantry School against the team of Georgia Tech.

Without prospect of financial support from the Athletic Association, they went ahead and got together their own team and planned to make the trip with no funds but the guarantee offered by their opponents, which hardly fits the necessary travelling expenses. There is no complaint against the Athletic Association, for it is realized that the money in that treasury must be husbanded, and should be used for sports which entertain large numbers of the members of this command. Lacrosse is, it must esting to the vast majority of our of Deveney—Holmes. garrison population. As such its claims for Association funds are not ine Adamson. very strong. noons and on Sunday mornings when other duties leave them free, and to carry the thing through on their own —this is the important fact.

An article in another column tells the story of the organization and personnel of the team in detail.

Here it is primarily intended to pay respects to the sporting spirit of our players. From the basketball court comes "Red" Newman. From the gridiron come Shaeffer, Mack and comes Cornog. From the polo field Bragan. From the riding ring comes soldier satellites Wood. From the come Buck and Sweeney of the Tanks. Others come from their normal activities and modes of recreation. The point is that they have come of their own accord and their own pleasure and are carrying through the affair from pure love of the sport.

SPECIAL FEATURES FOR FORT MEETING OF LEGIONNAIRES

Music, Magic and Mauling to Mark Meeting at Service Club No. 1

An exceptional program of entertainment has been arranged for the regular monthly meeting of the Charles S. Harrison Post of the American Legion at the Service Club Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

After a short and snappy business meeting, Captains James C. Robinson and Peter Pakele, officers of the Ha-waiian National Guard and students here in the Guard and Reserve Offi-cers class, will render several vocal instrumental selections of tuneful music from our far off island territory. These officers are expert musicians and will carry the audience with them to the beach at Waikiki, where star-eyed damsels dance the enticing native steps arrayed in little but a pleasing smile.

Edward Reno, magician who mystifies, will find rabbits and ducks and eggs and other things in the pockets people who know they didn't put them there and will demonstrate beyond any shadow of a doubt that the hand is quicker than the eye. Reno has had many years experience in creating and producing illusions and this extra producing illusions and this extra producing the a "wow" his act is bound to be a "wow."

To complete the fun of the evening there will be boxing, without which no gathering of legionnaires could go home content. Mighty maulers will home content. Mighty maulers mix and mingle.

All members of the Legion, as well as all men who served during the war and ought to be members, are cordially invited to attend the festivities.

Lieutenant Harry 1st French was commissioned in the army from his native state of Washington in 1919, after having served with distinction washington in 1987, with distinction throughout the period of the World War. He first came to Fort Benning in 1921 as a studently from the world washed from the state of the dent officer and graduated from the Infantry School with the class of 1922. Ever since his arrival at this garrison he has been known as an excellent of-ficer, a splendid polo player, and a true sportsman. He was rated the finest Number Four on Benning polo fields, a close student of the game and an exceptional team-mate.

In the 29th Infantry, where he has been serving in "D" Company with Captain W. A. Burress, he had been making a fine record, and was admired as an efficient officer, and a loyal comrade. He had received orders from the War Department transferring him to Vancouver Bararcks in July and his impending departure was viewed with general regret by the personnel of the garrison. His death comes as a shock to the entire command.

Little Betty Jane had been playing around the edge of the golf links all afternoon. When she came in that evening she said to her mother:

"Mama, I think that nice lookin'

"Why do you say that dear?" asked her mother.

"Cause, Mama, this afternoon was trying to hit a ball with a stick and the stick broke in two and then he tried another stick and broke it and then he took his last stick and broke it, and Mama, he just sat down and took those broken sticks and talked to God about them."

Dear Ad:

I am just a young recruit and all of the boys in my tent have been in the army over two years. Every pay-day they play "black-jack" and poker. Now I like to play cards but I promised my folks I would never gamble.

Would I be gambling if I played with my tent mates?

Otto B. Ezee.

My Dear Boy:

To gamble you have to engage in a "game of chance." If you will always be sure that your tent mates use their own cards, I don't see how it could be called a 'game of chance.'

In fact. Otto, I don't think you would have any chance.

SAUCY BABIES AT THE FORT

The Saucy Baby Musical Comedy Company which is now showing in Columbus, has been booked for the 29th Inbus, has been booked for the 29th Infantry Theatre on Sunday, April 18th. Due to the Scotch Band concert at the new Theatre on Sunday night, the Saucy Baby performance will be a matinee at 3 P. M.

This company is headed by "Pap" Lynn the famous comedian and he is supported by an excellent cast of singers and dancers, mostly girls. Those who have seen the show say that the girls know their stuff, can really dance and sing and make many changes of costume. The bill for Sunday will be a musical comedy "C. C. Pill" and is based on the A. E. F. The company will run at the 29th Theatre every Sunday while the company is in Columbus, remaining performances being at night.

Tickets are on sale at orderly rooms and the box office at 75c each. As the theatre has a limited capacity, tickets should be procured early.

"B" COMPANY STUDES WIN PHENOMENALLY IN GOWDY'S YARD

Baseball Championship of Students Actively Staged Last Monday Afternoon

In a game with thirteen runs for "B" Company, many hits, and some errors, and seven runs for "C" Company, some hits and many errors, "Red" Farrell's brainstorming Bees showed their supremacy Monday af-ternoon over the Combustibles led by Captain McChrystal.

It was a brilliant affair, replete

It was a brilliant affair, replete with wit, that rocked the stands with laughter, and drew constant remarks from "Russ" Skinner and kept the loyal company commander, Major Rice, out late after retreat. The game was replete with feature plays. Farrell, twirling with a red sleeve on his right arm, went after a bunt, nabbed it and fell, and as he fell threw a perfect infield fly to his shortsop who relayed it to first ten yards too who relayed it to first ten yards too late.

In the second inning, Champeny in a new regulation white shirt stepped to the plate amid shouts of "Dominate him" and struck out while a soprano from the stands screamed: nate him" and struck out while a soprano from the stands screamed: "Good afternoon, Mr. Champeny." Cherry rolled to third and Whitten drew a bead and squeezed the trigger so that the mortar bomb trajectory to first was accurate enough to catch first was accurate enough to catch

As Dick De Votie surprised the stands by carrying a pail of water across the diamond, Stowe slow singled one off Collins' toe and was balked to second. Tully's bright red loose-tailed shirt dazzled the air, and he rolled one through Keltner's many col-ored legs and beneath the golf sweater as Stowe scored, Tully taking second in a red streak. On a wild pitch Tully started back for second, so as to get a good running start, and even-tually made third. Venables couldn't tually made third. Venables couldn't hit because the pitcher gave him four balls and a free ticket. On another wild pitch, Tully waltzed home—yes, we mean waltzed.

At this juncture a foul tip knocked Umpire Rabbit Fountain's mask off and the solicitous playing manager of the Combustibles rushed up with lini-ment—"for internal use only"—in a big red keg that may have held vinegar, dynamite, fuel oil, or analagous asphyxiating gasses. But "Rabbit" took no further chances and thereaf-ter umpired balls and strikes from be-hind the pitcher's box, using a Chero-hind the pitcher's box, using a Chero-Cola hat instead of a mask, where his life was still in danger as Chris threw grounders and high flies on returning the ball to the slab.

In the third inning, Venables took his boots and gilt collar insignia into the box for the Combustibles, wearing "Uniform C" minus spurs and riding gloves. The next batter promptly flied out to center where Stowe's regulation cap did not prevent him making a catch for the first down. Keltner took a pass and stole second. hit him on the head with the ball and swept his arm up and down for the count of ten, but Umps Withers, second best hundred (50) yard sprinter for the Quartahoochee Championship, said he was not out but safe. After a strike out had helped one batter to the dugout without the necessity of going round the sacks, Addington made a bad mistake. He hit the ball into the outfield and had to carry his tremendous poundage all the route before he could collapse on the bench.

Webb took the mound, and Fountain suggested five innings because he feared darkness would fall at least by eight in the evening. Whereupon Tonneson rushed out and handed him the standard red apple. A conference ensued between serious catcher Meinzen and Webb, while the audience howled: "Put it in the Daily Bulletin." Champeny started stealing, just as Shiek Sedano was about to present Withers with the other red apple—but it was not necessary because the base umps called the runner out.

McNeil got hit, or pretended he did, McNeil got hit, or pretended he did, and refused to return from first base. He had run right out of his shoes, burning the sole of one in half. Stowe got a base on balls. But when Tully walloped to center, Addington did a juggling trick. He misjudged the ball. He hit it with his left hand. He bounced it up with his right. He slapped it with his left. He balanced it on his right, and it remained. it on his right, and it remained.

Minus at the plate stood at right shoulder arms, and ran away from one ball after the other, and got to one ball after the other, and got to first, because they were all wide.

Dunlop receiving a throw, fell off first base when Wollender's hit was snapped over to him, but Withers called the runner out—though when Dunlop falls he falls a long way—and the speed demon of the Quartahoochee Characteria got your popular with Championship got very popular with the "C" Company dugout.

The seventh inning was the most intense in seven counties. After Ches-ter made first on an error, Kemp was put in to run for him. He went for second, and the red cap couldn't seize second, and the red cap couldn't seize the hand luggage and let it go by, and poor Kemp had to go all the way to third. Then they called a squeeze play on him, and as Cherry rubbed his bat in the dirt to stop the grounder the pitcher rolled in, Kemp lumbered across the plate. The inning closed with Chris flying out to McChrystal, but Parks rushed in and stole the put out, bumping Mack for a swollen pose in the process. In the final half, the score started thirteen to three, and Meinzen made thirteen to three, and Meinzen made a triple. The infield drew in with a triple. The infield drew in which world Series nervousness to cut off that dangerous run that would have come nine points from tying the hall that dangerous run that would have come nine points from tying the score. George didn't want the ball thrown his way and said so, but it was several times, and he got so many tries that at last he had to miss 100 8th St.

FREEBOOTERS WIN CHAMPIONSHIP AT MOUNTED CONTEST

Exciting Game Last Sunday Brought Garrison Trophy to Big Yellow Team

As the Freebooters lined up before the General last Sunday afternoon and received the silver trophies, Major Smith's small son "Jeff" piped up: "Why do you get two cups, Daddy?"

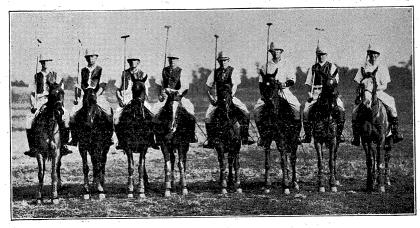

Representing the team, Major Smith received the Dierk challenge trophy emblematic of the garrison pole championship. He also received one of the sterling goblet trophies awarded the individual players on the winning team, where his work at Number team, where his work at Number Three contributed in great measure to the 6-5 victory over the 29th Infantry.

The mounted infantrymen started off as if they meant business, true to their motto: "We Lead the Way," their motto: "We Lead the Way," and tallied first, Boatner making the stroke. When the Freebooters tied the count in the second chukker, the 29th came back in the third and goals by Elkins and Burress, aided by vig-orous riding-off on the part of Boatner, made the score 3-1 at half-time.

A determined Freebooter attack opened the fourth period, and tied the tally once more. Whisner, Smith, and Nichols all took part in a play which made one, Whisner making the final attrology and one of the control of the stroke; and on a succeeding drive, Forsythe executed a pretty belly hit for the next. The score was even at

The Freebooters pressed hard, but French, playing his last game as a 29th officer, made brilliant saving shots and in the fifth period the regimentals went out front once more as Burress got loose on a long run and Elkins followed behind to give the final blow and put the blues at the top end of a 4-3 score. Hard Free-booter attacks were stopped and the fifth period ended with the 29th in the lead.

At the opening of the sixth and what was to have been the final period Whisner started as if he was bound to tally. Almost from the throw-in, he walloped the sphere toward the posts. A sweep from the side to execute a saving shot missed, and Whisner's second stroke tied it up, at 4-4. From the throw-in Major Smith initiated another assault, but his shot was turned into a safety, after which Nich-

This would never do, said the mounted infantrymen, and went to it with a will. Major Smith just saved one from rolling through, but Burnood to the saved one from rolling through, but Burnood to the saved one from rolling through, but Burnood to the saved one from rolling through. one from rolling through, but Burress went at it again, scored, and the tally was again tied. The Freebooters pressed for the goal that would win, but could not drive it over and the scheduled game ended.

An extra period was started, with the ball where it went out of play, at the side-boards near the 29th goal. For a moment it looked like it would be quick work, with several Free-booters swinging their mallets toward the tallying posts, and then the tide turned for a moment. The redoubtable French Elkins, and Burress started back up field, only to be checked in a clatter of hoofs. The Freebooters picked the ball out of the trampled turf and in a play in which every yellow shirt took part staged the final attack, Major Smith getting the final, winning stroke winning stroke.

There was poetic justice in Working hard all season, tr training ponies with a keen eye for the future, developing a large squad, subordinating his own individual playing all season, teaching his team at every odd-moment, and working always for team combinations instead of for solo star-dom, Major Smith deserves the chief credit for the successful season the Freebooters have enjoyed and for the increasing interest in the mounted game at the Fort. If any one who

BOYS FROM WEST END HOLD ILLINOIS TEAM TO EIGHT INNING TIE

24th Regimental Team Shows Good Form in Contest with Western Collegians.

The cheerful men from Colonel Johnson's 24th Infantry Regiment met the University of Illinois baseballers in an agreed seven inning game last Thurs-day as an overture for the westerners' cheduled game with Milburn's Mus-eteers. When the stipulated number of frames had been played it came to light that the Urbanans had scored five times while the boys coached by Captain Eberle had reached the rubber in safety on five occasions. By every known method of calculation this was a tie, so the two teams went at it again for an extra round. Neither side being able to add to its total, the judges declared the contest a draw.

Trammel, star 24th twirler, hurled for the soldiers, and though somewhat wild held the visitors well in check, and sent eleven of the Illini back to the bench after the fatal third strike had been tolled. The Urbana gang reached him for eight hits and five runs. Two of the tallies came in the first inning as the direct result of Trammel's wildness. Two walks and a hit batter jam-med the sacks and a single sent two Three strikeouts featured the Two more visitors came over in the third on solid hitting, and the fifth run in the seventh resulted from a single, steal and another single.

Three for the "Happy Hearts" in the first inning on hits by Battle, Bell and Trammel, coupled with some bad fielding. The other two in the fifth from hits Bell and Trammel and an afternoon siesta by the Illinois pitcher who went to sleep and forgot that two outs do not retire the side. Box score:

KJELSTROM'S BIG BAT HAMMERS OUT VICTORY OVER NOTRE DAME 7-5

Slugging Leftfielder Has Gala Day at Bat and Afield as Irish Lose.

With three comrades on the paths Kjelstrom doubled to right in the first inning of last Friday's game with the Notre Dame Irish. Result 3 runs for Milburn's Musketeers. In the fifth Kjelstrom doubled to left center with Paris resting easy on first. Result another Doughboy tally. In round six Kjelstrom doubled to center and scorded a moment later on a safety by Douglas. In frame eight Kjelstrom doubled to left, but no help was forthcoming and he perished on the paths. On defense Kjelstrom caught four flies on defense Kjelstrom caught four flies in the first eight innings and nipped a hostile run at the plate with a perfect peg when a visitor attempted to score from second on a long single. Most people would be willing to call this a good day's work and be satisfied, but not Kelly. In the ninth Crowley batted for the visiting centerfielder and hit one so hard toward the left field fence that it bore all the left field fence that it bore all the earmarks of a homer. But Kjelstrom ran a mile or so to his right rear, stuck out his gloved hand, checked himself and serenely tossed the sphere back to the infield. As spectacular a catch as ever made.

Aside from the five runs for which Kelly was responsible the soldiers made two more. Against this the Irish gathered five all told, four coming in the first two innings and the fifth in the sixth round.

Our famous shimmy artist, Lefty Carnes, toiled for the foot sloggers and after an unsteady start settled down and pitched fine ball for a well deserved victory. Dutch Smythe covered acres of ground in the center garden and seven well intentioned enemy clouts found a safe resting place in ABR HOAE his gluey glove.

GRADY TOLLE HURLS GREAT GAME TO WIN SECOND FROM IRISH

Grady" Let's Only 4 Reach First and Musketeers Win 2-1. Let's Only 4 Hoosiers

Grady Tolle, aided by fellow players from the I S. D., made it two straight over Notre Dame's fighting Irishmen on Gowdy Field Saturday. The wee one was right and limited the Indiana gang to one run and four hits, three of which came in the first two innings. O'Boyle's double and Sullivan's single saved the Hibernians from a kalsomine coat. This in round two. Thereafter one visitor reached two. Thereafter one visitor reaction two. Thereafter one visitor reaction first, Moore hitting for two sacks in the fifth. In the other six frames the command was Order Arms—one, two, three. Errorless ball behind the little lad helped. "Mick" McCarthy delication of the lateral land helped. serted his usual post behind the bat and cavorted around the shortstop po-sition like Dave Bancroft. Paris in right field, was kept busy and made five nice catches.

Opposing Grady was "Young Ed" Walsh, a son of the old time White Sox iron man, and in spite of much posing and more growling, this scion of pitching nobility hurled a fine game. He gave up 6 hits during the melee, hit a batter, walked two and set four down on strikes. His spell over the upper end of the Douhboy betting and a set of the double of t game. He gave up 6 hits during the melee, hit a batter, walked two and set four down on strikes. His spell over the upper end of the Douhboy batting order was complete, but the lower range found him for enough bunched bingles to beat him. Christenberry two timed to right in the fifth and Johnny Heckert, who sports the Green Hat of the I. S. D. in the summer season, sent him over with a score by innings:

LACROSSE TEAM GOES TO ATLANTA TO MEET TECH AT INDIAN GAME

For the third successive season, the Infantry School has started work on a Lacrosse team. Quite a few candi-dates have reported out for training. and have been seen daily in front of the filling station, "chasing butter-flies," as an officer very aptly put it. There will be only two games for the team this year, both with Georgia the team this year, both with Georgia Tech in Atlanta this week-end, April 16 and 17. While several other colleges in the South have followed the example of the Infantry School and Georgia Tech in putting out a Lacrosse team, the Infantry was unable to schedule other games. However, beginning with next year, there should be quite a nice schedule arranged with Georgia, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt and Mississippi having already taken up the sport, and with several other colleges considering the same step.

Lacrosse is perhaps the most truly American game, for it originated with the Indians, who were accustomed to play the game for days at a time, over quite a large territory, with whole tribes competing against each other. The Canadians changed the game sufficiently to make it a practical, modern sport, so that it now resembles hockey, with a ball used instead of a puck. and with a net used instead of a puck, and with a net used instead of a hockey stick. Then, of course, the players run instead of skating.

the South two years ago at Fort Benning. The Doughboys won this and the return game played in Atlanta. Last year, the same teams played four games, two in each place, of which each team won its home games. As Lacrosse is one of the sports taught to Cadets at West Point, the recent graduates from there furnished the backbone of the teams. In the past two years the sport was taught in the Infantry School to the Company Commanders who furnished many in the Infantry School to the Company Commanders who furnished many excellent players for the garrison team. This year, however, the sport was not taken up in the school.

ILLINOIS DEFEATS NINE MUSKETEERS IN EXTRA INNING

University of Illinois baseball team missed a train connection last Wednesday and arrived late and without baggage, sending the first of a scheduled two-game series into the discard. A pity, too, if Thursday's struggle with Milburn's Musketeers was a sample of the usual form of the Westerners. Stewart, a lad with a hopping fast one and a deceptive hook, climbed the hill for the Urbana crew and foiled the soldiers in their efforts to put over a few runs. In the eighth inning Buck day and arrived late and without bagfew runs. In the eighth inning Buck drew four wide ones and strolled. Meehan shoved him along a base with a sacrifice bunt. Finn, visiting shortstop, bobbled Tracy Davis' bounce, and Buck went to third, Dutch Smythe hit high and far to center and Buck shocked in at the plate after the checked in at the plate after the catch with the Doughboys' only score of the afternoon.

High Davis adorned the mound for the home boys and went well. Margolis' three ply wallop in the fourth, followed by a muffed fly gave Illinois a run. No other visitor dented the rubber during the regulation nine innings, in which period Tracy yielded only 5 hits.

At the end of the ninth a careful audit of the books showed 1 run for audit of the books showed 1 run for each team, so that extra periods were necessary. MUSKETEERS RALLY TO DOWN COMRADES IN ARMS FROM 22nd

Off to Early Lead Milburnites Loaf, but Make Garrison Finish

A four run lead in the first inning isn't always enough to win a ball game. Milburn's Musketeers learned this in Tuesday's tussle with the fighting doughboy crew from the 22nd Infantry. Kjelstrom's single and doubles by Dogulas and Buck sent the local gang off to a big lead, but the lads gang off to a big lead, but the lads from Fort McPherson refused to re-main beaten, and while the Musketeers were failing to connect for even so much as a hit, kept pecking away at the damp delivery of McGaha and finally took the lead in the eighth inning by scoring their fifth tally.

Then the Benning crew unlimbered and went into action again. Paris and Heckert died painless deaths on popups. Kjelstrom strolled on four bad ones. Douglas slashed a single to center. Buck walked. Stewart singled to center, McCarthy ditto. McCarthy ditto. Gaha thought it unfair for everybody to hit in the same place and so he singled to right. Davis forced McGaha, but five runs were over the plate and the 22nd was on the short end of a 9-5 count.

McGaha pitched a fair brand of baseball, but sloppy fielding in the infield gave the visitors runs on two occasions. In the fourth frame Traywick, Banks, Holcombe and O. Smith made successive singles, all of them of the line drive variety. This gave Fort McPherson two runs. The fifth tally came as a result of Banks' screening triple to the score heard and screaming triple to the score board and an infield out.

The all-enlisted team that played for the Musketeers failed to show much dash or pep. Off to a big lead much dash or pep. Off to a big lead the home boys quite evidently loafed most of the game. Heedless, not to say headless, baserunning was too frequent.

MUSKETEERS GRAB TWO STRAIGHT WINS FROM FT. MAC BOYS

Carnes Pitches Steady Game, Teammates Hit Hard

Milburn's Musketeers displayed more pep against the 22nd Infantry boys in Wednesday's game on Gowdy Field

Wednesday's game on Gowdy Field and buried the Fort McPherson team under an avalanche of runs, piling up ten tallies to two for the visitors.

Connected clouting gave the locals two in the second inning, and after the invaders tied the score in the first of the third the Musketeers put the game on ice with five tallies in their half of the same round. Three more were scored thereafter, but they were entirely superfluous. entirely superfluous.
"Lefty" Carnes pitched nice ball and grew better as the game progressed. After the second inning he was never in serious danger and had the visitors completely baffled. Behind him the boys played well in the field. Kjelstrom made a nice running catch, and a lighting double killing, Carnes to McCarthy to Stuart, stopped a hostile drive in the eighth. 22nd Infantry turned in a duet of two ply killings which materially held down the Infantry total.

BATTLE DEMONSTRATION OF ASSAULT BATTALLION FOR WEDNESDAY NEXT

Final Attack of Year Will That Morning Be Hurled on Hostile Positions

Announced for April 28th between eight and twelve in the morning, the annual big military demonstration at Fort Benning will take the form of an attack from the Lumpkin Road eastwards to capture Maxey Ridge, Rivet Ridge, and Bouton Hill with the joint participation of infantry, artillery, tanks, machine guns, trench mortars, one pounders, gas troops, and aircraft.

This is the yearly grand show of the Infantry School, outclassing by several degrees from the spectacular standpoint, the defense operations on Bouton Hill staged on March 13th. It gives student officers of all ranks and from all components of the army, non-commissioned specialists, lieutenants, captains, majors, colonels, regulars, guardsmen, and reserve officers, an opportunity to see offensive combat as it is actually fought under the new developments in the art of tactics since the World War. Civilians are invited to attend, and large crowds from neighboring counties and states, always assemble to witness the demonstration, including special visitors from Washington and other great army training centers. It immediately precedes the field maneuver period far reaches of the reservation in which all 500 of the students take part.

The simulated campaign is based upon the assumption that two nations are at war, with the Chattahoochee River as the boundary between them. The in-vading forces, which the troops represent Have crossed the waterway and are driving the foe generally eastwards along toward the ridge line that used to be the route of an ancient Indian trail and later the course of the Federal Road (Continued on Page 2.)

Forty-two years after the Revolution LaFayette became the guest of the United States. The country offered him the ship, which in 1777, it had been unable to provide, but he preferred to come by public packet. He landed in New York, then traveled—by carriage, of course, to Worcester, Providence, Boston and Portsmouth, then back to New York, Albany Dhiladalphia Trenton Baltiment bany, Philadelphia, Trenton, Baltimore and Washington.

His friends tried to arrange an itinerary, but they might as well have saved their pains, for no one could live up to any itinerary when such crowds were eager to do him honor with cheers and banners, triumphal and music arches, fireworks and cannon. There were receptions and banquets and ad-were receptions and banquets and addresses and military veterans of the war eager to shake his hand.

In Providence, the avenue leading to the courthouse was lined with what an old account calls, "female youth" dressed in white waving handkerchiefs and strewing flowers in his way.

While LaFayette was in Boston, the corperstone of Bunker Hill monument cornerstone of Bunker Hill monument was laid. Daniel Webster was the orator of the day. In the course of his speech, when he addressed to LaFayette personally, as the "sole surviving general officer of Washington's immortal army," words of welcome and appreciation, LaFayette rose from his seat among the Revolutionary officers yette rose from his seat Revolutionary officers and among the Revolutionary officers and remained standing until the close of this portion of the speech.

At Mount Vernon, LaFayette was taken to the tomb of Washington, where he knelt in silent homage to the memory he knelt in silent homage to the memory of his friend. He was received by con-gress and at a banquet given him by that body he gave this toast, "Perpetual union among the United States—it has saved us in our time of danger, it will save the world."

PROJECTED INCREASE IN INFANTRY SCHOOL STUDENT SCHEDULES

Alteration Suggested for Two-Year Instead of Present One-Year Course

Following is the only information which has been made public on this very important matter at present under study in Washington, quoted here from the Army and Navy Journal.

"The Chief of Infantry is considering a reorganization of the Infantry School course into two separate and distinct course into two separate and distinct courses of one school year each and requiring two years of the normal career of an officer for the completion of his training at the Infantry School.

Under this plan the Company Officers' course is to remain primarily an In-Normally the officers taking this course will consist of field officers and senior captains who will be eligible upon completion of the course under announced War Departcourse under announced War Department policies to enter immediately the Command and General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., or, if not immediately, then within a period of not to exceed three or four years from date of graduation from the advanced course. Few if any officers would take the

MAY DAY BASEBALL

Captaining the Permanents, Colonel Wait C. Johnson has announced the following line-up of umpires for the game which his team plays with the Students in the May Day Baseball for the benefit of the Children's School: Colonels Walling and Singleton on first and ling and Singleton, as first and second choices, and Captains Karlstad and Sandusky as duplicates. The fog of war has descended up-on preparations. Neither side will reveal its hand Scouting parties indicate that Shrimp Milburn will be at short (which is appropriate!) and Zipper Jake behind the bat encased in mit and mattress and the Colonel himself at the initial corner where the put-outs accumulate. Beyond this, dispositions are not yet determined and reconnaissance has been ineffective.

Asked for a list of spectators and rooters, Colonel Johnson began by naming Captain Griffen, Captain McChrystal, Mrs. Ford, and "Jazz" Magoni, and then gave it up and handed out a roster of the entire garrison

A skilled truck driver and in civil life a head mechanic in a tractor shop, it seems that a motorized battalion of artillery is the proper milieu for a man like Schulte, who came into the army in 1921 from Fullerton, Nebraska, and after a time at Camp Jackson sifted down to Benning and the 83rd gunners. But he is far from being a caterpillar tread hound or a wrench and plier man, skilled as he may be with them. He is a Gunner First Class and a Sharpshooter with the pistol.

Now twenty-six years and a few months old, and on his second enlistment, Schulte has been described as having "the ideal athletic temperament." Though it is only on battery teams that he has played the most of his basketball, the Infantry School remitty football clayers and haseball varsity football elevens and baseball nines know him well.

On the gridiron this 165-pounder fills the post of end on defense and half-back on offense, and does long and fine punting when his team has to kick. He carries the ball well, and has consistently outkicked his opponents in garrison pigskin contests. In no contest perhaps has he shown to greater advantage than when he and Samlavich and Lapine took the S3rd eleven to Columbus to play a selected team of star ex-collegians, including On the gridiron this 165-pounder star ex-collegians, including such luminaries as Thomason of Geor gia and Strupper of Tech. Outweighed, and almost out-classed, they put up a brilliant exposition of play, and Schulte was at the critical point at the critical moment.

Until an epidemic touch of a light sickness took Schulte from the diamond of Gowdy Field, Schulte was making for himself a reputation as a Against the Quantico Marines, he went in as a relief pitcher and allowed but five hits in four inand anowed but live first in four innings. His steadiness on the mound bucked the team up and stopped an avalanche. Against Howard College, he stepped to the platter four times for a double, a single, and a neat sactifice. To convince the Birmingham ror a double, a single, and a neat sacrifice. To convince the Birmingham collegians that they might as well go home, he yielded only seven hits, most of them scratches, and in only two innings did visitors get more than one on and neither of these went farther than the middray station. What the coaches mean, when they say that Schulte has the ideal athsay that Schulte has the ideal aunletic temperament, is that he is a hard worker. "He's a worker," says Zipper Jake. "He's just made himself by good work." And not only a hard worker, but one who works right. He takes advice and follows instructions, and knows enough to disregard volunfeer hints from grandstand coaches grandstand coaches teer hints from and bleacher managers.

alley with speed and sharp breaks. He is only starting to be a pitcher, for he keeps improving all the time, and illustrates concretely the manner in which the garrison games at Benning of all classes, from those between companies to those against outside universities, create opportunities of his athletic record.

ible to take the advance course.

In the preparation of the outline of these courses, the following principals are to govern:

1. The mission of the Company Officers' course will be to train officers in the duty of company officers and of battalion and regimental staff officers.

2. The mission of the advanced course will be to train officers as commanders of tactical units from the battalion to of tactical units from the pattation to the reinforced brigade, inclusive, and as brigade staff officers. This course, while not in any sense a preparatory course to the Command and General Staff School course, and is therefore to be complete in itself, must nevertheless prepare officers to take up their work at the Command and General Staff School, thoroughly grounded in those subjects which are held to be essential for entrance in the Command and General Staff School.

An outline of the two courses has been sent to the Infantry School for comment. When the plan is perfected it will be submitted to the War Department for and develop athletic abilities among the men of the garrison.

His first discharge on the expiration of his first enlistment in 1924 is marked: "Excellent." His second, we feel sure will be marked the same. And all the many others to come. And when advancing years take him from the mound and as a staff or master sergeant he puts his toes under a desk we'll write: "Excellent" at the end

These Volunteers had reached a hill near Fishing Creek within sight of Milledgeville, when the roar of cannon announced the arrival of General La-Fayette. Wishing to show themselves and get a glimpse of the "Nation's Guest," they marched into the town and halted opposite the Government House where the general was quartered. The captain went in and was introduced by Governor Troup. The three veterans were then presented and General La-Fayette on seeing Father Duffel, cordially embraced him saying, "I remember you well, you were one of my body guard and helped carry me from the field when I was wounded at Brandy-wine. to put out a fire which started in the basement under the quarters of Captain E. N. Frakes, at No. 189, Perkins street, in Block Twenty-three.

Captain Tamraz, medical officer recently arrived at Benning, was starting for his early golf and discovered smoke pouring out of the imperilled building. The inhabitants were awakened. A phone call brought the fire department. Nearby residents appeared in the closest clothes they could snatch and while the firemen set themselves to quenching the blaze, the volunteer assistants helped carry personal property from the endangered building to save it from damage by either fire or water. either fire or water.

After the main blaze had been extinguished and the department was on the verge of departing, "Old Will" veteran janitor of Taneytown, spied more smoke. Prompt investigation revealed a new fire, evidently started by the adjacent heat, in the clothes closet of one of Captain Frakes' rooms, and the fight began all over again, for the flames had been eating their way up even to the second story.

In the process of drowning out the last vestiges of flame and spark, Cap-tain Frakes' quarters and those of Lieutenant Pierce, above him, were completely drenched with water and a great deal of their personal property was badly wet and damaged.

All the neighborhood was up Mrs. Russell Fountain will give a bridge luncheon at her quarters on Saturday, April 24th in honor of Mrs. Ennis ters should the fire spread. The flames had actually broken clear of the basement and were licking the outer walls of the house, sending choking black smoke into the air before the conflagration was checked with streams of water, and the furniture movers, Barber, Pearson, Wessels, Collier, Partridge, Beebe, Dumas, Bache, McChrystal, Back, Pritchett, and Keatley could start carrying dripping dressers, bogged trunks, watery rugs, and other household parapha-nalia back indoors once more.

He won in competition with officers whose afticles on Quartermaster administration have long been featured in service publicahave tions. After discussing routine fea-tures of Quartermaster activities and advancing numerous suggestions betterment, the Sergeant declares that economy hinges on efficiency, that "Economy and efficiency are inseparable." But is that analysis final? What is the elements of the element that guarantee economy? Simply this— energetic, conscientious effort. These must be back of theories and formulas advanced to promote efficiency. est, energetic effort, though perhaps applied a little haphazardly, will produce more desirable results, cost, than half dormant "perfect theories." Company "B"

Although we lost the baseball game in the morning to the Tanks by a score of 5 to 3, we came back strong in the afternoon game by defeating Co. "F" 21-0. Notwithstanding the fact that Pvt. Lawson made a few ercors, we still feel we can beat F Co. v a larger score.

Private 1st Class Romploski, our chief cook, has been honorably discharged per E. T. S. and has stacked on three (3) more years. He will leave for the hills of Pennsylvania on a two (2) months' furlough.

Corporal Hinkle has left us by the purchase route. Although he had only been in this post for five or six months, he is an old soldier and we all hated

FORMER FORT SWIMMER GOES TO NEW AQUATIC POSITION IN FLORIDA

Squirrel of the Tanks Becomes Beach Director at Daytona Beach

When the Engineers finished the concrete shell over the dam down by the sharp turn in Sigerfoos Road, and the water began to back up, so that the garrison had a long swimming pool in which to evade the heat of mid-summer, one of the first to take a header into the wetness was Staff

Sergeant Squirrel of the Tanks.

Those were the days of "Jimmy"
Taylor, when every Tanker was a waterman, and true aquatic fans began converting the Fort to the pleasures converting the Fort to the pleasures of dive and stroke.

Having made staff sergeant on his first enlistment which commenced in 1919, this San Francisco youngster was already a war veteran of the First British Columbia Regiment, the "Little Black Devils" where he began to fight the war early in 1915.

Here at Benning he boosted swimming, and was for a long time in immediate charge, of the swimming pool and of the development of the series of swimming aquatic teams turned out of swimming aquatic teams turned out by the 15th Tank Battalion.

In 1924, he purchased his discharge to accept a position as Assistant Re-creation Director in the City of Columbus, where he has been a booster for organized swimming and water safety measures and Red Cross Life Saving instruction. At Warm Springs, Brit-ton's pool, Cascade pool, Boy Scout, Girl Scout, and Camp Fire Girls Girl Scout, and Camp Fire Girls camps, and in the Y. M. C. A. pool Squirrel was well known and looked upon as a leader in watermanship.

He swam exceptionally well himself and did fancy diving in superior style. At Brevard, North Carolina, where he attended an institute conducted by the Red Cross, he was a conspicuous fig-ure and a good fellow.

With poise and a fine sense of hu-mor, and a good understanding of what needed to be done, he has been a leader in promoting water safety. Now he has left these parts for Day-tona Beach, where he becomes Beach Director, a very responsible and important post.

Another good Benning man has made good.

"F" had a social game Sunday. As is unusual Company "C" won by a score of 12 to 8. There were no squabbles due to the fact that we had an experienced ball player, Sergeant Ten Broeck, who will be the First Battalion's catcher for this sum-mer, as umpire. The only set back of the game was when we tried to convince Pfc. Dunlap of Company 'C' that you aren't allowed a coach for 2nd base.

A slight amount of friendly thought does a great deal of good in this world. It never hurts to create good will.

Here are three facts:

(a) N. S. Meyer, Inc., makers of military insignia, are advertisers in The Infantry School News.

(b) The goods of this firm are on sale through the Post Exchange.

(c) This firm is in the process of circularizing all officers of the army whose names appear in the "blue book" direc-It is true that The Infantry School

It is true that N. S. Meyer's sample lapel collar insignia of the new specifications have been accepted as standard.

It is true that a great many officers of this and other garrisons who subscribe to and read The Infantry School News will very probably soon be purchasing their collar ornaments of the new pattern from N. S. Meyer.

If such purchases are made direct and by mail, the officers will probably get their money's worth and good service. But it would be much appreciated if such purchasers should mention The Infantry School News in this connection and help support our good standing with our advertisers

If such purchases are made through the Post Exchange, the local garrison in that Exchange, and The Infantry School News will still get the credit residents of Columbus, and even old-

It is the prime function of this paper to be of service to the garrison, to render what help and assistance its functions and facilities will permit.

It would be greatly appreciated if readers would remember to mention the News when making purchases from our advertisers.

"FOLLOW ME"

Company "B" of the 29th Infantry is the show organization of that regiment regularly picked to stage special demonstrations of close order drill, and uniformly put on splendid performances. The members of the company are proud of their reputation and their record, and justly so. But we all know that, what with fatigue and special duty and the multitude of other details, it is manifestly impossible for any unit at this garrison-war strength though it beto turn out an absolutely complete complement of officers and men for routine instructional demonstrations. It has lately been the custom to attach temporarily to Captain Rustemeyer's company for these demonstrations and the rehearsals therefor, members of other units.

In this connection it is worth-while to re-read the remarks printed in last week's News in the form of notes from Company "F" of the 29th Infantry, as follows:

Company "F"

Are we to consider it a compliment that we were picked to help Co "B" put over a close order demonstration, or are they the ones complimented by having us with them. At any rate, when it comes to close order work, just give that consolidated outfit the once over. "We Lead The Way" is right. Capt. Rustemeyer sure knows his stuff, and he puts it across in great style. This is one time, at least, when the 1st and 2nd Batts forgot their rivalry and got together on the same thing. And believe us, it's O.

Instead of the slams and sneers, and the claims for credit, and remarks that Company "B" could not do it alone which might possibly have been expected, and which might have appeared in many service journals, this Company "F" reporter displayed fine sportsmanship and exemplified the splendid spirit of co operation that reigns in his regiment.

We congratulate him, his officers, and the regiment.

We have received this week a copy of the R. O. T. C. Issue of the Davidsonian, publication of the student body of Davidson College, N. C., issued upon the occasion of the final inspection for Distinguished Rating of the Davidson R. O T. C. unit made by Major Edward A. Stockton and Major Thomas J. Johnson. The issue is exceedingly well written and edited and proves that the students at this North Carolina college are solidly behind military training in our schools.

On duty with the Davidson Unit are three army officers formerly at Fort Benning. Captain George H. Weems who is Professor of Military Science and Tactics, is a graduate of the company officers class of 1923 and former machine gun instructor here. Captain John W. Elkins and Captain Richard D. Daugherity are the others. Captain Elkins was the first editor of the Infantry School News and later took the company officers course, graduating in 1925. Captain Daugherity is also a graduate of the company officers' class, completing the course in 1924. All three of these officers were sent directly from Fort Benning to duty at Davidson.

For umpires always know the dope and wear a white hat band.

We firmly believe that the above should be put to music and adopted as the class song for without a doubt, if this intensive training keeps up we all will be experts in the line mentioned.

The first day's maneuver was really a huge success, for although we were up at six o'clock and had donned our dawn, the whole thing was called off in time to allow us to call on the "Bronco Busters" who were due at ten o'clock. It was really a pleasure to get these gentlemen up and have them greet the day with us. We did feel sorry, however, for the wives who had worked so earnestly to get their husbands ready for the battle and then found their efforts wasted. It reminded us of the great man who said, in speaking of early American history, that he always fell sorry for the Puritan mothers who had to stand all that the Puritan fathers had to stand and then they had to stand the Puritan fathers.

The second and third day maneuvers went off in excellent form and it was a revelation to watch the airplanes dive at the marching column planes dive at the marching column only to have the troops, with grim faces, push on with the firm intention of camping for the night in the vicinity of the Fort. #### MUSKETEERS CRUSH COLUMBUS FOXES WITH AVALANCHE OF HITS

Professionals Unable to Solve Mc-Gaha's Spitter and Take 12-0 Whitewash

Milburn's Musketeers wound their 1926 season in a blaze of glory, scoring twelve tallies against the Co-lumbus Foxes and applying a vigorous coat of kalsomine to the visiting lea-guers. To the Man from Mars the Musketeers looked like the professionals and the Columbusites like the sand lot outfit. Behind superb pitching by McGaha, whose spitter was dipping and hopping with a vengeance, the Slumdivers fielded like big show folks. folks. Heckert and Meehan turning in some flashy work around the keystone sack, Stuart reaching out and grabbing them at first after the fashion of Hal Chase, and the outfield handling everything that came to the pastures in fine style. Kjelstrom con-

At bat everybody stood up and slugged the ball to the far corners.
Stuart led the attack with two screaming doubles to left field and a terrific Heckert cracked one so far into right center that the Columbus outfielder had to sit down and rest before he could complete the long journey to the ball, and Johnny easily completed the entire tour of the bases.

To describe the massacre in detail would be too grewsome. Sufficient to say that the Foxes never came close to scoring, and that the Infantry made four in the first spasm, two in the second, another due in the fourth, a trio in the sixth and the final counter trio in the sixth and tin the eighth.

And the storm and strife, and hard-ships, which you bore on every side,

Might have broken another's spirit, but you held your head with pride.

Now the battle is over and the war is safely won, And your deeds are down in history, and your praises have been sung, Now, comes life's dark moment, such a thing seems strange, indeed, Though once they praised and loved you, they have since forgot your creed.

Though the battle now is over, and its peacetime everywhere.

You have still a load to carry, and it seems too hard to bear.

For the ones who praised you loudest, are the first ones to forget, And now you are a stranger, where once you were well met.

And the friends who clasped your hand, have long since passed you bу,

For their dangers now are over, and they now stare you in the eye, When they pass you on the side-walk, but never do they speak, And your heart just dies within you, and you bow down in defeat.

But your pride will always hold and you'll walk with head

Though your spirit may be broken they'll find no despair in

And though they may forget you, and leave your spirit dead,

Just remember you're a soldier, and with pride hold up your head.

ODE TO THE DWELLER IN "TWENTY-THREE"

(More truth than poetry.)
I admire the brave "Taneytown man,"
The guy who lives in a flat; who come home at noon on Saturday So tired you can't hang up your hat And say, with a sigh (and relish):
"It's Saturday, I'm going to sleep!
And then with that funny delusion Sin kdown on your downy couch, deep.

THEN:

Suddenly: BANG! BANG! BANG! BANG!

You grab up a weapon and run, Convinced that someone is dying, That blood thirsty murder's been done. You fling wide the door of your love nest.

But all that encounters your glares Is the tripping heels of the slippers On the feet of the lady upstairs.

NOW:

How can a person so tiny, (Who weighs ninety, you're sure no whit more)

Make such a clatter and clamor As that you heard outside the door? Well, she flung BOTH the screen doors wide open

And let them come to with a wham Then charged up the steps like a war

And apparently gives not a-thought.

I am only an humble dweller: To keep peace is my ambition's peak; But I ask you as brother to brother; Is it nice for your ice box to leak? In the dead of the night when I'm sleepy, To have to mop up the floor Makes me wish that I wasn't your neighbor, Makes me wish I need cuss never more!

L'Envoi.

I sing of the downstairs dweller: Oh upstairs—pray heed my gray hairs, I'll keep my kids out of the attic If you'll PLEASE do not RUN down

"FOURTH DIVISION! FALL IN!"

Officers of the garrison and student officers who served in the 4th Division are planning a big dinner and reunion to be held early in May for former officers of the 4th, including not only those officers who are still in the regular establishment, but for the war-time commissioned personnel who have returned to civil life since the war. There are a number of the latter class throughout this section of the South as the 4th Division was stationed at Camp Greene, N. C., just previous to sailing for oversea duty, and vacancies in the officer grades were filled largely by temporary officers commissioned from the southern training camps.

Captain William A. Collier, Infantry, who is Librarian of the Infantry try, who is Librarian of the infantly School, is in charge of the arrangements for the reunion and has announced that invitations have been nown to have sent to all who are known to have served with the 4th, but that all former officers of the division will be welcomed whether they receive the invitations or not.

The Fourth was one of the regular army divisions and made an enviable record during the war. It participated in three major offensives, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne; advanced a total of 25 kilometers against German opposition, captured 2,756 prisoners and suffered 12,504 casualties.

The regimental song of the 29th Infantry, stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, is one of the oldest songs of the oldest, airs now in use in the service. The song, entitled "When the King The song, entitled "When the King Comes into His Own Again and the World's Turned Upside Down," was given to the First by the Society of the Cincinnati in 1924. Words and music of the song are of pre-revolutionary origin, and were sung by Washington's continentals during the war for independence. Also, it is said, it was to the tune of this old melody that the soldiers of Lord Cornwallis marched up at Yorktown to surrender their arms to the American Commander.

Tomorrow's Exhibition Attracts Garrison's Finest Horsemen to Stadium

When Escort Wagons, painted and shined to the last notch drawn by an imals curried and groomed to sleek glossiness, roll into the Doughboy Stadium at 9 o'clock tomorrow morn-ing for the first class of the Infantry School Transportation and Horse Show the largest event of the kind ever held in the garrison will be on. ever held in the garrison will be on. For the morning events, comprising nine classes for organizations and enlisted men, 69 entries have been secured. The afternoon program consists of eleven event for officers and ladies of the garrison and in these classes there will be 62 competitors. Never before since the show became an annual fixture at Benning have the exhibitors reached this high total. the exhibitors reached this high total. Numbered among the entrants are practically all of the best known horsemen and equestriennes of the garrison and competition will be keen. Riders who took firsts at the 29th Infantry show and at Augusta, are making strenuous efforts to retain their laurels, while those who on previous occasions were seconds and thirds, are confident of reversing the placings this time.

For the first time the show will take place amid really appropriate surroundings. The Doughboy Stadium furnishes an ample ring and fine seats for the spectators. With these advantage of the spectators are supported to vantages a large crowd is expected to attend, especially in view of the fact that purchasers of parking space at the recent garrison polo championship tournament were given box seats for the horse show.

Girl Scouts will sell candy and soft drinks throughout the show for the benefit of that organization.

The Infantry! The Infantry! They always march in step, The Infantry! The Infantry!
The boys who have the pep.
They're out of a trench and over the top With bayonet and bomb, Where you find the Infantry, The enemy is from.

Chorus Oh! The Infantry! The Infantry! With dirt behind their ears, The Infantry! The Infantry! They cannot find their peers. The Cavalry, Artillery, And the diggin' Engineers Couldn't keep up with the Infantry, In a hundred thousand years.

The Infantry! The Infantry! They plow through dust or mire, The Infantry! The Infantry! They never seem to tire.
When other men would have to stop And rest there for the night, The Infantry can push right on And then prepare to fight.

The Infantry! The Infantry! The Infantry: The Infantry!

Are stalwart brave and true.

The Infantry! The Infantry!

They always say, "Can do."

Though wounded, sick, and sore of foot And with a frightful thirst,

The Infantry can carry an The Infantry can carry on, Their country's cause is first.

The Infantry! The Infantry! With blood upon their clothes. The Infantry! The Infantry! Endure what no one knows They'll smash a line and hold it firm For many weary years, Till up can come the horsemen, guns, And Corps of Engineers.

The Infantry! The Infantry! Are always of good cheer.
The Infantry! The Infantry! They never shed a tear, It matters not what casualties. Tomorrow's fight may bring. ou'll always find the Infantry Will laugh and joke and sing.

REDS DEFEAT BLUES

When the Florida A. and M. college am failed to put in an appearance for its scheduled game with the "Happy Hearts" last Saturday, Captain Eberle recalled that the maneuver season is upon us, divided his charges into Reds and Blues and started a civil war. The Reds, composed of most of last year's garrison champs won easily, getting an 8-2 decision in seven rounds

Vance, pitching for the Reds, was invincible except in the fourth when Driver's long triple accounted for the two Blue tallies. Bell and Vance starred at bat. V. Williams was wild and ineffective and gave way to Leonard in the sixth. Box score:

Early in the morning and for into the dark in the morning and far into the dewy eve this energetic non com and faithful helpers can be seen sprinkling and rolling and sweeping, until Tilden himself might well be proud to play on such courts.

The opening rounds of Men's Class A Singles, which decides who is king of the courts at Benning were run off Wednesday afternoon, and every Saturday and Wednesday afternoon until the finals are completed the entrants will struggle to reach the last bracket. There were no surprising upsets in the first day's play. Charles Bankhead, a mere youngster, carried Capt. C. R. Jones the full limit of three sets before yielding to superior experience and canniness. Capt. Barndollar and Maj. Delameter played the longest single set, a 16-14 affair finally captured by the Captain. Captain Christenberry advanced to the semi-finals, berry advanced to the semi-finals, drawing a bye in the first round, beating Capt. Barber in the second, and rimming Maj. Woodruff in the third. Results of Wednesday play: 1st Round: Capt. C. R. Jones defeated Chas. Bankhead 4-6, 6-4, 6-2; Maj. Balsam defeated Lt. Bolt 6-1, 6-1; Lt. Newman defeated Capt. Newgarden 6-2, 6-2

2nd Round: Col. Johnson defeated Maj. Van Vliet 6-1, 6-2; Capt. Barndollar defeated Maj. Delameter 6-3, 16-14; Capt. Withers defeated Lt. Overfelt 6-4, 6-2; Capt. Christenberry defeated Capt. Barber 6-3, 6-3; Capt. Wessels defeated Lt. November 10-12 Wessels defeated Lt. Newman 10-12,

3rd Round: Capt. Christenberry de

Swift Millers Best Q. M. C. Nine

The Swift Mfg. Co. baseball team beat the Quartermaster Corps nine last Saturday afternoon on the Swift diamond to the tune of 7 to 2. The score does not indicate the battle that was staged in the said cow pasture in the western part of the city. The game was a farce throughout as umpires were changed more often than pitchers. G. Smith on the mound for the millers allowing the soldiers four hits, while the Quartermaster manager tried three different huskies to no advantage due to erratic fielding. The millers only connected with 7 safe blows but with the aid of the soldiers' errors they were allowed a run for a

INFANTRY AND TECH SPLIT IN TWO GAME LACROSSE MEETING

Collegians Take First Game 2-0, but Doughboys Win Second 2-1.

The Infantry lacrosse twelve journeyed up to Atlanta last week end and engaged in two games of buterfly chasing with the representatives of Georgia Tech. The result was indecisive each team winning one of the pair of contests.

Friday's tussle went to the collegians in a hard fought encounter by the score of 2 to 0. Early in the first period the Atlantans tossed a couple into the goal in spite of the valiant efforts of the soldiers to keep them at bay. The second half was scoreless for both teams, with defensive work standing out as the feature and both outfits proving somewhat weak with the stick.

On Saturday the Doughboys reversed the outcome, gaining a one point lead just as the first half was ending. Schaefer tossing the goal. Shortly after the opening of the second period Carraway slipped one in and the Infantry was two in front. Near the end of the game Belckwell of Tech eluded the vigilant Dunn whose defensive work at goal had featured the play and scored the Atlanta boy's only point.

Army Printers Trim Swift Nine

The Army Printers tapped two Swift pitchers for a total of 15 bingles Sunday afternoon, while Shepard on the firing mound for the Printers only allowed the millers to connect with his benders for the total of two safe blows. After the smoke of the battle had cleared it was found to be the printers bout on points by the count of 7 to 1.

For four innings it was a beautiful pitchers battle between Shepard and Hodges. It was anybody's game, but the opening of the fifth inning proved fatal to Hodges' speed ball for it was in this frame that the printers showed their best connecting with the pill for seven hits for a total of twelve bases, which accounted for four men

F. Davis and Carroll led the batting attack for the printers, getting three bingles each out of four trips to the plate, while E. Davis and Marchall collected two each, E. Davis clouting one for the circuit

COLUMBUS LEAGUERS BARELY NOSE OUT MILBURN MUSKETEERS

Foxes Stop Last Inning Rally of Infantrymen to Win 6-5.

Leaguers representing Columbus in the newly organized Southeastern League came out to Gowdy Field Wednesday and in a free hitting contest went back to town with a 6-5 win. Only a sensational stop and throw by Lloyd, second baser extraordinary, saved the Foxes skin as the Infantrymen staged a ninth inning rally that brought the Doughboys in the stands to their feet yelling like mad and gave everybody a thrill that no other game this year has provided. Going into the final round with the professionals leading 6-3 some of of the rooters starved to leave the stands. remained with that hope which springs eternal and were rewarded for their faith. Sergt. High Davis went up to bat for Tolle, who had hurled the full route for the Musketeers. The long boy crashed a stinging single between third and short. George Smythe came up and socked one on the nose to right field and a safe hit, High galloping to the far corner. Paris rolled a teasing grounder down the third base line and by making a new Quartahoochee record for speed was safe at first, Davis tallyfor speed was safe at first, Davis tally-ing and Smythe taking third. A double steal checked Dutch in at the final count-ing block when Michot heaved wildly to second. Paris went to third at Yost tossed out Buck.

One out, the needed run to tie on third and Kjelstrom coming to the plate with his big bludgeon. Looked pretty nice for the Doughboys, but at this critical moment a certain Mr. Lloyd stepped in and played the villain or hero according to the spectators point of view. Kelly drove a hot grounder between first and second far to the left of the Columbus second sacker. But this man Lloyd went after the ball like a terrier after a rat, stuck out his gloved left hand and without so much as looking hurled the pill to Michot at the plate. A perfect peg. Paris came sliding in a last desperate effort to reach the goal, but Umps Dwyer raised his mighty hand aloft to signal an out, and the Musketeers' dream of a tie was shattered, for Yost gathered in Stuart's hopper and tossed to Mr. Lloyd at second to force Kielstrom.

The rest of the contest was just a ball game. Heckert made a wonderful one handed stab of Parrish's liner and Kjelstrom and Smythe demonstrated that outfielders can still peg out runners at the plate.

Basketball Co. "A," 7th Engineers— Special Units

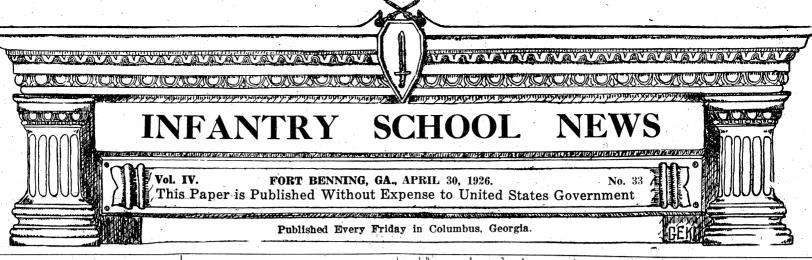

In the play off for second place for the garrison championship last Thursday night in the local gym the Special Units defeated Co. "A," 7th Engineers 22-12. The story of the game is a recount of long looping shots by Cunningham of the Special Units. This amazing young man accounted for almost half of his team's points by his still more amazing baskets shot from almost any conceivable angle on the floor.

Played before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a strictly garrison basketball game this season, a crowd that occupied every available seat and even took up most of the standing room the game was a hard battle in more ways than one. Until the last few minutes of play the score was close. The score at the end of the half was Engineers 11, Special Units 10

Between the halves two men from the 29th Infantry amused the audience with four furious rounds of shadow boxing. Like Bennie Leonard, neither had his hair disarranged.

BRITISH MAN OF WAR REPORTED SAILING FOR CHATTAHOOCHEE PORT

H. M. S. Pinafore Due To Ar rive at Fort Benning, May 5th For Two Day Visit

According to advices just received from the Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., First Lord of the Admiralty, H. M. S. Pinafore, that staunch craft built nearly fifty years ago by Gilbert and Sullivan, has sailed from the shores of the tight little isle and is due to dock at the junction of the Chattahoochee and Upatoi on May 5th for a two day stay at Bennnig.

To one venerable gentleman now the visit of t guest in the garrison the visit of this famous man of war will bring back memories of nearly half a century, for when the classic comic operatta "H. M. S. Pinafore" was first produced in America at the old South Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia, in November, 1879, the bills showed that Dick Deadeye, one of the most famous characters, was played by a young man by the name of Frank M. Pearson. This was no other than the father of Captain Frank J. Pearson, Infantry, instructor in military sketching and map reading at the Infantry School. Mr. Pearson, Senior, is at present visiting his son here, and it is largely because of his visit that the Infantry School Glee Club chose Pinafore as their final production of the Academic year.

However, the choice would not have been odd in any case as even the most cynical of critics has never said anything adverse about the music, written by Sir Arthur Sullivan, or the text and lyrics, (Continued on page 11.)

Saturday Exhibition in Doughboy Stadium Best Ever Held at Benning

So pleased was the Commandant with the excellent performance and appearance of the organization entries in the Infantry School Horse Show Saturday morning that he remarked that he regretted that every member of the garrison did not witness the events

Promptly at 9 a. m. the show began Promptly at 9 a. m. the show began with the class for escort wagons, in which Pvts. Taylor and Carter carried the guidon of the Service Company, 29th Infantry, to victory and gave the doughboys who lead the way their first chance to cheer. Cheer they did and with a will. Nor did the enthusiastic soldiers let up at any time during the morning. No hair raising football game or tense ninth inning rally could bring out louder or heartier rally could bring out louder or heartier rooting than was heard in the Sta-dium Saturday. The boys liked the show and showed it.

Howitzer Co., 29th Infantry, captured the second event, Sergeant Howard riding Nick to victory in the class for three-gaited saddle mules, making it two straight wins for the doughboy regiment. Here the gunners from the 83rd called a halt to the procession, the tractor drawn rolling kitchen of Battery C manned by Sgt. Cody, and Pvts. #### MR. SGT. CHARLES R. BUMFORD Infantry School Detachment

He may have come from Boston, this six-footer of the healthy, fleshy appearance, but he's a farmer just the same, having long lived near Nashua, New Hampshire, and tilled the hard New England soil.

New England soil.

Only thirty-six years of age, a master sergeant, and managing the tremendous business of the grocery department of the Post Exchange, this big man does not just chance to know potatoes and spinach and carrots and spinach and carrots and spinach and torretoes. His farming are onions and tomatoes. His farming ex-perience stands him in good stead, and stands in good stead all patrons of the Post Exchange, for his selections and his purchases are of the best: Enter a farmer from near Waverly Hall, who thought he could talk Sergeant Bumford down on the matter of raising and purchasing potatoes, And the big soldier showed that he knew southern sweets as well as northern potatoes of the Irish breed.

Nor did Sergeant Bumford come into the service and step like a flash from lower to upper rung, by reason of special technical knowledge or by or special technical knowledge or by chance. He first held up his right hand in 1908, on February 21st, to be exact, to become a private in "F" Company of the 19th Infantry. Three years later, without the loss of a day, he was discharged as private with character "excellent" and re-enlisted. Three years more of service in a line company and he received another "excellent" discharge, as sergeant this time, but again without loss of a day. His third enlistment started on February 21st, 1914, from which he was discharged as First Sergeant to accept alsonarged as First Sergeant to accept a commission as a First Lieutenant of Infantry. With the Nineteenth Infantry he had served both in the States and in the Philippines, from May, 1910, to June, 1912, and Camp Jossman and Fort McKinley knew him well him well.

As such he served for a time, but kept up the habit of winning promo-tion by his excellent service, until he was discharged on April 15th, 1920, with the rank of Captain.

of service. He remained in civil life until October of the same year, when he came back to the pioneering days at Benning, arriving on October 1st, 1920, just ahead of the first really big classes the School ever had, with 310 in the basics, over a hundred in the Company Officers' Class, and nearly a hundred Field Officers. Three years later, again, without loss of a day he was discharged as a staff sergeant with character: "Excellent" and immediately took on once more becommediately took on once more, becoming a Master Sergeant on November 1st of the same year.

There was little to strain the imagination Wednesday morning. Student officers who have pushed pins into maps all winter and thought of bullets showering on hostile positions, of one-pounder ing on hostile positions, of one-pounder and mortars adding to the fire power, of 75's zipping their barrage upon the enemy, of machine guns grinding out their staccato shots, of attacks and counter attacks, saw these almost to the life against the enemy positions of the supporting weapons were not quite according to Hoyle, but Major C. P. On Rivet Ridge they have to be pro-

Otherwise the battle was to the life Eastwards over the Chattahoochee the attacking Blues had come the afternoon before. They had pressed ahead and established their advance elements on the Benning Plain facing the foe on the line of rising ground which bends southeast from Riche Hill and the neighborhood of the hospital. The time had come to strike them quickly from the general line of the Lumpkin Road.

Along that road, between imaginary supporting troops, lay the First Battalion of the 29th ready to go forward against the southern slopes of Maxey Ridge. Artillery concentrations commenced well ahead of the zero hour, raining shrapnel on Maxey Ridge and on Rivet Ridge. At the zero hour, smoke was dropped to blind observation, and at that moment Captains Moore and Rustemeyer led "A" and "B" companies to the attack supported by machine gun fire through gaps in the line, by trench mortar bombs on the wooded portion (17.9-18.6) of the enemy position, and by one-pounder hits on enemy type-writer nests on Rivet Ridge at (17.9-

For twelve minutes the advance progressed, then was held up by the intensity of hostile fire. The assault companies threw their flank support platoon sections into the fray, Company "B" striking at a combat post on Maxey Ridge at (17.3-18.3) and Company "A" swinging up from the south through the Bois d'Ormont against Rivet Ridge.

With a rush "B" Company went forward organized Maryer Bridge.

ward, crested Maxey Ridge and started firing on Humphreys Hill. Company "A" had the southern end of Maxey Ridge in its possession, and started to reorganize for further advance and Company "A" sent up yellow smoke signal to indicate "objective taken." Thereupon the Battalion Commander came torward to Maxey Ridge to inspect the new areas for further advance. While "B" Company commenced to re-organize under cover of support sections, "A" Company began edging up against Rivet Ridge.

Machine Guns and Howitzers commenced to move forward to new tions. All was getting set for a further attack. Pushing through the 4th Infantry woods, "B" Company closed in on Rivet Ridge. Part were on the move. Those in position opened fire at once, kicking up dust all over Rivet Ridge at visible tar-gets and laying a band of bullets across the face of the 4th Infantry woods whither "B" Company had retired. The Howitzers were actually on the move and stopped where they stood and went promptly into action.

The Battalion Commander promptly called "C" Company out of its reserve position west of the Lumpkin road and sent it to Maxey Ridge. There it covered the withdrawal of the other companies, stiffened their resistances, and finally stopped the enemy counter attacks.

The enemy was unbalanced. He had tried to thrust back the assault and had only partially succeeded. The bat-talion commander's use of the reserve company had checked the counter-atcompany and checked the commander then called into action the tank platoon which lumbered over Maxey Ridge and followed by "C" Company groups followlowed by "C" Company groups following seventy-five yards in rear, presented the final effort. "A" Company, still intact, fired in support from Maxey Ridge. "B" Company's support platoon lining the southern edge of the 4th Infantry woods, helped with fire also. The final thrust swept forward and Rivet Bidge fall Ridge fell.

This demonstration, witnessed by an exceptionally large number of specta-tors, showed the progress of such an attack up to the point where the battal-ion commander had thrown into action his last available weapon and his final reserve. It practically demonstrated the combined action of all elemenst which students have studied technically and tactically all winter.

taken" than a powerful enemy counter- for the 29th Infantry show that it easily won first prize for appearance in the 29th show last month.

Pvt. Creighton, Co. I, 24th Infantry, rode Miss Columbus and led Major Power's Shyster in the class for class mounted orderlies from the Infantry School stables and won the trophy, demonstrating exceptional care and condition of animals and equipment, as well as steady performance.

Communication cart from the 1st Bn, Hq. Co., 29th Infantry, showed speed and accuracy in laying a wire, receiving a message and reeling up the wire again. The animal drawn carts proved faster for a short distance at least than the tractors from the artillery. Sgt. Freeman, Cpl. Eldred, Cpl. Honeycutt, Cpl. Haygood, Pvt. Bicknell, Pvt. Barr and Pvt. McGaugh made up the winning team.

Closing the morning was the class for enlisted men's mounts in which Pvt. Bennett, Reg. Hq. Co., 29th Inf., won on Gandy.

After an intermission the show continued in the afternoon with events for officers and ladies. Starting the program came the Ladies Ride. Twenty-three unifor uniformly coutred ladies, with Capt. Pleas B. Rogers directing the movements exetogers directing the movements executed complicated maneuvers to the tune of "Pop Goes the Weasel," played by the 24th Infantry band. The ladies did pinwheels, broke up into groups of various sizes, wheeled from column into line and from line into column with the skill of veteran cav-alrymen. The exhibition was a splendid one and speaks volumes for the horsemanship of the equestriennes and the training of the animals.

All the afternoon classes were keenly contested and the fine work of the riders drew round after round of applause, both from the society folk who poured into the North stand and those soldiers in the South stands who preferred the show to the baseball game on Gowdy Field.

Mrs. C. B. Dunphy led the winners with three firsts. She won the Ladies' Green Hunter Class with Oscar, a horse from the 29th Infantry sta-bles; took the trophy for Ladies' Hunt-ers with her favorites mount, "Chest-nut Prince," and again up on this beautiful gelding finished first, with Capt. Burress and Lt. Smith, in the team of three jumpers event.

Capt. Burress was temporarily knocked out when his horse, "Thistle" fell at the in-and-out jump in the pair of jumpers class, but quickly recovered and proved his courage by coming right back on the same horse and placing first, with Mrs. Dunphy and Lt. Smith, in the teams of three jumpers class. Capt. Burress also won the bending race for polo ponies, riding "Pinky." In this test of skill he easily outdistanced his field.

From every point of view the show

MEMOIRS OF THE RED COMMANDER

Ludendorff has said his say. John French has penned his apologetics concerning 1914. Townshend has told his point of view of Mesopotamian conflicts and surrenders. Ian Hamilton turns diarist in defense of Gallipoli and what happened there. Sarrail has spoken up concerning Salonica. Falkenhayn has written his versions of the decisions of the General Staff. I alone have not yet grasped the pen, or had it wielded in my cause. Haig had his Peter Wright, but he also had his Dewar to recite the propriety and perfection of his command. And I, without an advocate, have had scores, hundreds, thousands of Peter Wright's assailing my reputation, garbling reports of my activities and refusing proper publicity for my undoubted ac complishments.

At all the general and special service schools they know my name. Now I am the invading enemy. Again I lead the Reds of Alabama against the Blues of Georgia, or those of Missouri against those of Kansas. No pale and fearful colors are mine. Mine are red, the color of danger. I used to operate about the vicinity of the Morris Hill road at Riley; I have met many an advance guard or the Peru Road at Plattsburg; the old Red Bone Road at Benning is one of my main axes of communication.

I am known to all distinguished strate-

I am known to all distinguished strategists and tacticains in the American Army. Sergeant Hill confronted me near Emmittsburg. Major X, has moved with trepidation against my lines on Riley Ridge. General A has sought me on the Republication Flats and across the Missouri River. Wherever in the last few decades troops have gone into across the major than the last few decades troops have gone into across the missouri River. few decades troops have gone into action "within the Continental limits of the United States," I have been present and active on the field of battle. Yet none so poor to do me reverence.

The task of self-vindication upon my rough and soldierly hands. And if my autobiographical remarks appear inconsistent with what you have previously heard of me, reflect that all reference to me and my forces that have come to your attention have been penned by my enemies. Still, I am a formidable enemy. Those who have sought to circumvent me will freely admit, and always do admit, that freely admit, and always do admit, that my troops are well equipped and excellently trained. They consistently grant that my tactics are sound. They assume that my force is dangerous and my dispositions correct. They begin by believing that I can always be counted upon to do that which will be most disadvantageous to them.

power of well trained troops and imittees supplies crowding after me along the axes of communication, with the skill and ability attained only through long years of experience, with the whirring threat of Zeppelins and the crash of bursting shells announcing the actuality of my threat.

Study well my methods, that you may

There has never been a time when they would not state in the beginning that I shall certainly "max" the problem. This in those tremendous battles of the fusual certainly "max" the problem. This is rare indeed among commanders of troops. If you believe me not, ask the basic at Benning or the line at Leavenworth, ask the innumerable tacticians in garrison schools. After years of compatitive basic and the line and the garrison schools. After years of compatitive basic and the line and the garrison schools. It is the basic and the line and the garrison schools. After years of compatitive better able to grapple with me in those tremendous battles of the fusual tree. I have, up to now, but harrassed you with tiny detachments, to sting you in the very life, I will come indeed; and then you will need all the ability and knowledge that a mortal mind can possess. In that hour of national errors. bat the basic and the line and the garrison schools have disappeared from the field. But I remain, as formidable as before, ready for whatever new schools and classes the War Department may devise to attempt my destruction.

My very opponents state that the ultimate object of battle is the tactical annihilation of the enemy. He must be rendered incapable of further operations. Out of their very mouths they them-selves are condemned, and I am exalted. For do I not reappear from day to day, from week to week, from month to month, from year to year, always ready for action?

On Tuesday last you put me out of action on Bouton Hill. On Wednesday I was still in the field with fresh troops, comparable to yours, and ready to engage you again. On such a day I was driven back across the Chattahoochee. The following morning I advanced upon a new direction line and threatened your outlying units on Davis Hill. I am the unconquerable. And those who assume from one special situation to another that I am thwarted, still are frank enough to admit in the next general situation they put on paper that their previous approved solutions and recitals of suppositious facts were falsehoods and undeniably propaganda.

All the officers of the army fear me. When they know that they are to engage me the following morning, they waste the midnight oil in vain endeavors to prepare their minds and sharpen their wits to meet a worthy fie. They scarcely play fair with me either. Not even singly do they come out into the open field to face my cohorts; they arrive in large groups to match their as yet unproven genius against mine.

They have the benefit of the best instruction and advice the War Department can furnish. They are provided with sheafs and sheafs of mimeographed data. They benefit by consultations and conferences. They estimate the situation by the hundred. They arrive at decisions which appear in conformity with their mission and the circumstances. They issue orders by the ream. Nevertheless, the papers they produce fall far short of my own admirable approved actions.

I am still ready for action, undiscouraged and undefeated. I shall face the soldiers of tomorrow with an impressive force and as cool facility for troop leading as I faced the soldiers of troop leading as I faced the soldiers of yesterday. At every camp and fort where the khaki is worn, I shall appear without fail in terrain exercises, map maneuvers and tactical problems. And none so quick to admit it as those who instruct the classes which confront me I am incorrigible, because always correct. I am always to be recknown with rect. I am always to be reckoned with because always available for action. I am the enemy of America. Red is my color—not the yellow of Asiastic perils, nor necessarily the red of the Bolshevist, or of the banner of the crescent of Turkey. I am the enemy.

And look ye well to your books on tactics, oh, ye officers of the Army of the United States.

At what hour ye know not I shall come, not with imaginary organizations and convenient dispositions and carefully equalized forces as you have met me before—but with the bitternses of an international quarrel in my heart, with the power of well trained troops and limit-possess. In that hour of national emergency, your conceptions of the advan-tages and disadvantages of this or that probable procedure, your well-considered decisions, your explicitly stated orders will be judged, not with the blue pencil of a fellow officer, but with ground taken or ground lost, with objectives attained or objectives held, with casualties and accomplishments.

I am part of the general plan; you must consider me as seriously as you do any item of your future career. I the true victor of Duffer's Drift I am am the real conqueror of Booby's Bluff. I am the general who overcame Luden-dorff and French. I am the commander who captured Townshend and compelled Ian Hamilton to retire from the Dardenelles. I am the worthiest oppon-ent that Falkenhayn ever met. I am the inveterate enemy of every officer in every grade. I am the enemy of America and I train the armies of the world.—The Infantry Journal.

"FOLLOW ME"

It is regretted that last week's issue did not mention that the cut printed on the first page representing the Lafayette tablet was printed through the courtesy of the Newman Manufacturing Company, of Cincinnait, O., makers of the tablet and of the others to be crected in the Historical Circle at early dates.

"FOLLOW ME"

We were glad to see Captain George H. Cushman, Jr., come over from Auburn with a group of R. O. T. C. men to witness the demonstration last Wednesday morning, thereby emulating the excellent example set some months since by Captain M. S. Eddy, of Riverside Military Academy. The Field Artilleryman from the loveliest village of the plain was fortunate in being able to demonstrate to his charges a perfect picture of the effect of 75 shrapnel bursts, the area covered by the burst being clearly marked on the dusty ground of the near slopes of Rivet Ridge where it was apparent to all.

Such opportunities are rare indeedto see the proper handling of a war strength battalion—instead of mere sham battle spectacles that usually occur at places where the emphasis on correct functioning is not great as at the Infantry School.

"FOLLOW ME"

It is announced by the Post Exchange that special arrangements have been completed for the handling of automobile tires of two of the standard makes at remarkably reduced rates. Thoroughly tested and carefully constructed tires of a brand of proven worth and standard quality can now be secured by members of this command at prices very nearly commensurate—confidence in black, satin-lined box, and garnish with flowers. — Walton (Ga.) News.

sidering the last twelve-month's advance in the price of rubber-with the old prices once in vogue when military personnel could purchase through the Quartermaster, in the good old days before legislation curtailed the sales activities of the corps whose sole object is service for the line.

The Infantry School Glee Club announces that it has donated the sum of Three Hundred Dollars to the Army Relief Society and the sum of Two Hundred Dollars to the Enlisted Men's School Fund.

FREE LANCE RIFLEMEN SCORE OVER COMPANY AND GUARD OFFICERS

Wednesday's Match Brings Some High Scores Under Difficult Conditions

The rifle team match between teams from the Company Officers and the National Guard and Reserve Offi cers' Classes, which has been a topic of interest for some time, was fired of interest for some time, was fired Wednesday afternoon on Shelton Range. The wind was very disagreeable for shooting, constantly changing direction, but despite poor shooting conditions everyone was very enthusiastic and some good scores were made. Student officers from both classes assisted in scoring and markclasses assisted in scoring and marking the targets.

In addition to these teams, a team from candidates for the Infantry Rifle team, called the Freebooters, was entered by Captain Layman, and carried off first honors.

"CUSS-WORMS"

A member of the garrison more or less suburbanally-situated was rudely awakened the other morning long be fore the sweet notes of Revelry had sent the sleepy K. P.'s scurrying joyfully toward the mess halls.

Suspiciously he glared at the dress ing table; but the pale face of Baby Ben, above his little folded hands, assured him that it was as yet scarcely five-thirty.

Resentfully he glanced at his eloquently slumbering "fight promoter," wondering if her soft soprano snore could have wakened him.

Suddenly he was startled into complete consciousness by an ungodly out-burst that seemed to swell and subside somewhere outside his own abode.

Immediate investigation disclosed the strange sight of his usually mild-mannered and slightly sedate neigh-bor desperately delving in a row of English Peas in his back-yard garden.

Inquisitive interrogation on his part resulted in an even more audible but less coherent outburst as the industrious husbandman raised a red, angry face above the pea vines, and brandished a huge clasp knife toward him.

investigator amateur 0111. scrambled hastily between the bed-clothes his now wakeful wife demanded an explanation of the rude clamor which had roused her.

"Oh, our neighbor is out working in his garden," replied her husband, as he snuggled shiveringly under the blankets," And from what I could understand he must have run across some "Cuss-Worms."

PIONEERS DUE TO RETURN

War Department orders received the first of this week indicate that Maj Willis J. Tack, now a student at the Command and General Staff School, will return to Benning as an instrucwill return to Benning as an instructor. Major Tack, a veteran of the First Division, graduated from the first Field Officers' Class at the Infantry School in 1921, remained for a while as instructor in tactics, went to Vail as liaison officer at the Signal School and after some duty with troops in the Second Division at San Antone took the Leavenworth course this year. He is one of the Benning Antone took the Leavenworth course this year. He is one of the Benning pioneers, having subsisted as a stu-dent in the Ralston, and being one of the early occupants of the temporary bungalows up the Lumpkin Road from Block Nineteen.

Also returning to Benning this fall, will be Major John W. Leonard, now in the office of the Chief of Infantry, in the office of the Unier of Juliatry, former commander of the 15th Tank Battalion and one of the most ardent volley ball artists of Taneytown (Block Twenty-Three.)

Commanding Officer, 29th U.S. Infantry, Fort Benning, Ga. Sir

In the year 1924 and 1925 I was a member of Co. "C", 29th U. S. Infantry stationed at Ft. Benning. At present I am a member of Co. "F", 105th Inf. N. Y. N. G.

I state this in order that you won't think my request peculiar.

Now during the time I served with the 29th Inf. I saw what great benefits the men derived from attending the N. C. O. School which was conducted in the regiment. Unfortunately I didn't get to attend that

Now there is a N. C. O. School started in the command I'm in and as the commanding officer has requested me to aid as much as I'm able to, me being an ex-member of the crack regiment of regulars as the 29th is commonly known, I would like to get all information I can as to how the N. C. O. School in the 29th Inf. was conducted when I was a member. I would be very much obliged if you would favor me with all the data on it viz: All the subjects that were taught and their order and how were the students examined: after every subject or after every lesson.

I have no doubts but that you will let me have the information I ask for if it is military possible. It would be a great help to the men here in this school if it was conducted in the manner the 29th Inf. N. C. O. School is conducted.

Awaiting your most welcome reply,

Benning Drama Club Organization and Meeting of April Twenty-second.

A new organization, The Fort Ben-A new organization, the Fort Ben-ning Dramatic Club, was organized at the Officers' Club on the afternoon of April 22. Its purpose is three-fold. First, to provide a means whereby those who are interested may take up a study of dramatic art by participating or assisting in the management and presentation of such plays as the club may deem appropriate to give; second, to provide and organization which may meet from time to time to review and discuss current plays of interest and thereby keep its members informed and further their interest in the dramatics of today; third; through a common interest in dramatics and a common earnest endramatics and a common earnest endeavor to present plays of worth in a manner acceptable to the community, not only to improve themselves but to create and add another medium of good fellowship and social activity to the life of the garrison.

At the initial meeting the club elected as officers, as president, Maj. Robert H. Fletcher, as vice president, Mrs. Robert H. Dunlon, and as sec-

Mrs. Robert H. Dunlop, and as retary-treasurer, Captain John Rice. The club then proceeded discuss the best methods of organization. It was decided to appoint only two committees at the present time. The first of these, composed of Major E. F. Rice, Mrs. Schneider and Mrs. Hurdis, will look into the organization of various successful dramatic clubs with a view to presenting recommendations for an organization which will best suit local purposes. This committee will report on its findings at the next meeting of the club.

the next meeting of the club.

The second committee, composed of Major E. F. Rice, Mrs. Walling, Mrs. Landis and Mrs. R. A. Jones, will act as a committee on plays. This committee will review as many plays as feasible during the coming summer in order to have acceptable plays available when the club may desire them for presentation. This committee will also act as a reviewing board for any plays which members of the club may desire to submit for consideration. General Collins was present at the General Collins was present at the meeting and offered his hearty support to the organization, declaring that there is a definite need for such an influence in the garrison.

Club will take place on Friday after-noon, May 7th, at 4:00 o'clock at the Officers' Club, and any officers and ladies of the command who are interested in dramatics are invited to be present.

Frequently we are chided for our stand on the Prohibition question. We have been accused of being both Wet and Dry. Really we are at a loss sometimes to decide just what attitude is desired. The following letter summarizes to our mind the whole Irrigation Problem.

Editor, Barracks Banter, Infantry School News, Ft. Benning, Ga.

My dear sir:

I have noticed that in your column from time to time, you are in the habit of printing paragrpahs referring to the Prohibition Question. I cannot decide from your comments whether or not you are in favor of temperance. What I want to say is that I believe you should use the space allotted to you to assist in the Great Temperance Cause.

To make my meaning unmistakeably plain to you I have invaded the sacred portals of my son's bedroom and appropriated to my own use, the type-writer which I gave him last Christ-mas. It is well that I have done so. You can scarcely imagine my surprise when I tell you, that, upon opening his desk I found that he had secreted therein a one quart Mason jar, full of corn whiskey.

My dear Editor, just think of the unutterable depravity of our modern youths, seeking to hide from their elders, the fact that they indulge in such vile, poisonous, wicked and ungodly beverages.

Determined to satisfy my curiosity as to the reason why this poisonous potage should appeal to my erring boy I have opened the jar and tasted of it's contents. Dear Editor, the stuff is even worse than I had imagined. It quite took my breath away. I must pause to wipe the tears from my eyes Dear Ed, before emptying thecontents of thejar into my sons cuspidoor, I decided to taset it agian: tomake suer it tastesad bas ad i thoulgt. The latest figure with a romantic adventurous background to don the olive drab of the United States is David Donovan, who comes direct from the "Ould Sod," where, as a military hero, he was known throughout the land. This little bugle song by Captain Fred B. Rogers, was published in the Infantry Journal for August, 1924. At present it is not obtainable elsewhere. The song is short, having but one verse and chorus. It has the merit of being playable throughout with trumpets alone, adding fifes and drums and libitum. It makes a good strain for field music for interpolation in any band march of related key. The words are not much by themselves, needing the music to bring out the effect, but are given here:

day campaign. The annual terrain exercises which are at one and the same time the delight and dread of the students and which complete the academic year at Benning, are scheduled to take place this year from May 12th to May 22nd, inclusive. Companies A and C, 29th Infantry, have already gone out into the wilds to prepare the two maneuver camps that will be estabished. The camp at Harmony Church will be officially designated as Camp Sater, in honor of 1st Lieut. J. A. Sater, who was killed in action at the battle of San Juan, Cuba, in 1898. The camp at Sulphur Springs will be known as Camp Connell in honor of Captain Thos. W. Connell, who was killed in action with natives at Balingiga, P. I., in 1901.

BRITISH MAN OF WAR REPORTED SAILING FOR CHATTAHOOCHEE PORT

(Contined from page 1.) the products of Sir A. S. Gilbert. All have unanimously agreed that the music is inspiring and that the plot of the operetta is subtly entertaining. Whenever there has been anything uncomplimentary said, it has been about the directing or staging or acting. With Mr. Pearson to aid with suggestion and reminiscence, the cast of the Glee Club will certainly avoid many of the pitfalls, such as "too much modernity," into which other revivals have fallen. The Glee Club production is designed to reproduce as nearly as possible the real Pinafore, first shown in London in 1878.

New scenery, new staging, proper lighting, balanced orchestra, period costumes and authentic dialogue are a few of the mechanical and artistic points that have been considered in preparing for this production. The stage just completed in the New War Department Theatre, with its fittings, is a replica of the quarterdeck of H. M. S. Pinafore, a man of war of fifty years ago.

The action takes place entirely on the quarterdeck, with a view of Portsmouth in the distance. The plot deals with the apparently hopeless love of Ralph Rackstraw, able seaman, for Josephine, daughter of Captain Corcoran commanding the ship, and betrothed to Sir Joseph Porter, First Lord of the Admiralty. Ralph confesses his love to Josephine and learns that it is returned. The two lovers plan to steal ashore and be secretly married, but are overheard by Dick Deadeye, member of the ship's company, who reveals the plan to Captain Corcoran in time to frustrate the clopement. Sir Joseph throws Ralph into prison, but at this crisis Little Buttercup, a bumboat woman, discloses the fact that she was formerly a nurse and had two boys in her charge, one a patrician, the other of low degree, and unfortunately she mixed these children up so that Ralph is really the Captain and the Captain, Ralph. Through this explanation the two exchange offices, and Josephine marries Ralph, who is now the captain of the Pinafore; while her father takes his place as a common sailor.

The operetta will be shown in the War Dept. Theatre on Wednseday and Thursday, May 5th and 6th, opening at 8:15 p. m. each evening. Admission for both performances will be 25 cents for enlisted men, and their families and for children and 75 cents for officers and civilians. As at the February production of El Bandido, both nights will be for all who care to come, soldiers and civilians, officers and enlisted men.

STYLES

From a careful scrutiny of the fashion illustrations in Vogue for February 1st, we learn that this season women are to be even skinnier, or to speak colloquially, more slender than they have been during the season just past. How this is to be accomplished we do not know. To be perfectly candid, we hope that it can't be done, for we are of the humble opinion that emaciation on the part of the weaker but nevertheless dominant sex has gone far enough. But while we hope that the limit has been reached, we have an uneasy feeling that Vogue knows more about it than we do. We learn further from the pictures in this number that women will continue to wear clothes, not many but some

HAPPY HEARTS DROP ENTIRE SERIES TO BIRMINGHAM OUTFIT

Black Barons Grab Three In a Row in Hard Fought Contests

If the Happy Hearts had played the Birmingham Black Barons one more game, they probably would have at least game, they probably would have at least tied the visitors, for they lost the first of last week's three game series by 3 runs, the second by 2, and the third by 1. Scores were 3-0, 7-5, and 7-6. All the games were hotly contested and in doubt until the last man was retired. The soldiers outhit the Barons in the last two games, but threw away this advantage by bunching errors at the advantage by bunching errors at the most unopportune moments.

The most unfortunate figure of the series was Trammel, 24th pitching acc. In the first game the long boy pitched excellent ball with the exception of one bad inning, and even here he would not have allowed three runs if his supporters had not wavered in the field. Opposing him, however, was a pitcher, by-name Birdine, who for the first and only time this year kept the heavy hitting soldiers completely harmless. Four scattered bingles were all that the sluggers extraordinary could collect. Two of these went to Seats, while Sloan Williams and Trammel himself each got one It's been many a long day since anybody applied the whitewash brush to the est Enders, but Birdine did a thorough

West Enders, but Dirace job of kalsomining.

In the third game Trammel relieved Hayward in the third inning after the visitors had scored once and the bases full to overflowing. Without a ball were full to overflowing. Without a ball-being hit out of the infield the Barons scored these three and another for good measure, the 24th defense crumbling the testification that the testification is the visitors. A wonderful fourth inning rally by the soldiers tied the count, F. Williams getting a homer while Lyons and Hayward connected for doubles and McCreary and Bell gathered one basers. This colossal clouting coupled with Bat-This colossal crotting coupled with Bat-tles walk gave the military men 5 runs. A sixth run was added in the fifth frame, but in the eighth the Barons added the 2 necessary to win, again without the aid of a hit, and Trammel without the aid of a hit, and Trammel was charged with his second defeat in three days, in spite of the fact that he really pitched fine baseball at all times.

The second game was also lost by inferior fielding. Vance pitched well enough to win, while the hitters had recovered from the spell cast by Birdine and touched up Salmon at a lively gait throughout. Hampton made a homer, and other extra base knocks were plenand other extra base knocks were plentiful. A spirited ninth inning rally scored one run and put the two needed to tie on second and third with only one away, but Davis at short made two nice stops and saved his side from extra innings at least.

Large crowds saw all three games, the Large crowds saw all three games, the stands being filled on Sunday with a larger gathering than has attended any game this year except the Washington-Columbus fracas. The spectators were well repaid for coming, too, as every game was a thriller. Too bad that the visitors got the long end of each score,

ARMY PRINTERS BEST 30TH ST. TIGERS

Again the under dog was proven the superior when the Army Printers from out Fort Benning Way proved them-selves long winded and beat the 30th Street Tigers Sunday afternoon to the tune of 12 to 9 in an eleven inning struggle. It was a see-saw affair up to the sixth frame when the score went into a deadlock, Shepard who was performing on the mound for the printers was shifted to the hot corner and relieved by Zellars who seemed rather stingy with balls that could be hit to an advantage, the score remained 9 all up to the fate-ful eleventh. F. Davis first man up in this frame smacked one for the circuit E. Davis next man up gave the pill a ride for three sacks, Adkisson the third batter slammed one in deep center for the 120 yard sprint, the next three men were easy outs for the Tigers, their first three men were as easy. The Tigers were advertised as undefeated and the betting was three to one in their favor. The Printers still have a few open dates.

but the Happy Hearts showed great courage in the face of defeat and were in there fighting right up to the final out of each game.

PINAFORE PRODUCTION BY SCHOOL GLEE CLUB PLEASES FORT FOLKS

Famous Operetta Sung Before Appreciative Audiences Wednesday and Thursday

Captain George King swung his arms vigorously and the specially instructed and well directed orchestra chosen from the 29th Infantry responded Wednesday and Thursday nights with the pleasing Sullivanesque strains of H. M. S. Pinafore, which for near half a century have retained all their freshness and charm. Meanwhile on the stage, built expressly for the occasion by the Benning builders, the principals and choruses performed in a manner seldom equalled by amateurs. The Infantry

Meanwhile on the stage, built expressly for the occasion by the Benning builders, the principals and choruses performed in a manner seldom equalled by amateurs. The Infantry School Glee Club production was distinctly high class. The swiftly moving action of the operetta and the excellent rendition of the lines and music won round after round of applause from the audience.

The story is too well known to need detailing at length. Everyone knows the leading characters, Ralph Rackstraw, able seaman; Captain Corcoran; Sir Joseph Porter, with his sisters and his cousins and his aunts; Dick Deadeye; Little Buttercup; and the stout British tars who make up the crew of the Pinafore. Ralph's apparently hopeless love for Josephine, the Captain's daughter, has enlisted the sympathy of millions, and the final successful consumation of his suit and his elevation to command of the staunch man of war has met with the enthusiastic approval of these same millions.

SCHOOL GOES TO COUNTRY FOR MANEUVER SESSIONS IN DISTANT FIELD AREA

Colonel Cocheu's Annual War Ready to Start Next Week Wednesday

Next Tuesday morning students will take the train at the Academic Area and go by rail for the annual maneuver period which has become the traditional wind-up of the Infantry School course.

Communications arrangement will already have been completed. Forty-five officers and eight hundred enlisted men will be charged with the maintenance of the signal corps net, largely assisted by members of the National Guard Enlisted Specialists' Course, who left a week ahead to make the set-ups.

The five trains will pull out over Private Wiggins' railway line and generally parallel the First Division road to the end of the rails at the Cusseta road, where Harmony church used to be, and the encampment named for Lieutenant William Alford Sater will have been established. There the officers destined for Sulphur Springs will be loaded on trucks and start over the roads to the other encampment, named in honor of Captain Thomas Walter Connell.

Both establishments are in charge of Colonel James B. Gowen, 29th Infantry, who has been designated as camp commander.

Advanced officers have been divided into twenty groups of about four each. Company, Reserve and Guard officers have been divided into ten groups with the following in charge of the respective groups: Major Robert D. Patterson, Infantry Reserve; Captain Clarke K. Fales, Infantry; Captain J. Lawton Collins, Infantry; Major Herschel M. Colbert, Infantry Reserve; Lieutenant Colonel Orvel J. Johnson, Infantry Reserve; Captain Fred W. Miller, Infantry; Major Wesley K. Carr, Infantry; Reserve; Captain Ralph A. W. Pearson, Infantry; Lieutenant Colonel Walter C. Himman, Infantry Reserve; and Major Leon T. Weaver, Infantry Reserve.

During the maneuver period, there will be ten terrain exercises, five of which will be conducted from Camp Sater and five from Camp Connell, the student personnel being moved from one camp to the other on the conclusion of the fifth exercise. Following are the exercises and the officers in charge of each

No. 1 Battalion in Advance Guard—Major Butcher.

No. 2. Brigade in Attack—Major Elliott.

No. 3. Pursuit—Major Hodges. No. 4. Regiment in River Crossing -Major Garrison.

CAPTAIN KENNON ELECTED MAYOR OF HOME TOWN

National Guard Officer Chosen by Townsfolk During His Course Here

Captain Robert F. Kennon, of the Louisiana National Guard, now taking the National Guard and Reserve Officers' Course at the Infantry School, has been elected Mayor of his home town, Minden, La.

Captain Kennon has been an active military fan for some time. At Louisiana State University where he played tennis and football and won his "L" and was a member of the Student Council, he was a captain in the Reserve Officers Training Corps, training his company to such perfection it won the annual trophy for the best drilled company. Graduating in June, 1925, he returned to his home and immediately organized a machine gun company in the Louisiana National Guard.

His townsfolk were so impressed by his demonstrated leadership in things military, that they have just elected him their mayor, even though he has been absent since March first, during the peak of the political campaign, specializing in machine gun work at the Infantry School. In spite of his absence and in spite of his youth (he is now only 22 years of age), he defeated Mayor Connell Fort in a close race by 360-303, although the latter had been incumbent of the office for seven terms.

Over in Biglerville they call him "Gator" and marvel at his unusual runs of luck (bad) at his favorite indoor game of fantan.

The new grass greens which are been so tenderly nursed and petted by Sergt. Clark, garrison professional, were used for the first time, and withstood the fierce assault of putters without any great damage being done, aside from a few divots.

Permanent and Student Officers Score While Officials Succumb to Arithmetic

At 2:10 p. m. the Champion Announcer of the Chattahoochee assumed his megaphone and announced that the programs on sale contained the telephone numbers of all ball players, and programs were worth the deception for they told of epileptic fits from Dana's Komic Kut Klothes, and saving money by eating at Ed Walker's lunch room, and bridge lessons vigorously given by John Schwab, and books reviewed without reading by the volunteer correspondent to the Pulitzer Prize editorial page, and large holes neatly filled by Deaderick and Sproule constructors, and doubts if the roof could stand the strain of Charlestoning between innings, and Psychology Ridge near the stables, and of everything at which students like to poke fun.

Then entered the formal pageant procession, edited by the Fifth Section First came weeping Linden strewing flowers and spectacles along the rouge. And lofty Dunlop and ponderous Kemp in kindergarten garments. The seats reserved for grandstand managers rocked as Kemp sat heavily on the unfinished stands in left field and caused the girders to swing and crash (Continued on page 2.)

THOUGHTS OF A MOTHER

(Author Unknown)

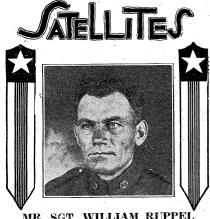

Since I have had a son I can not pray "God keep my son," unless I say "God keep all mothers' sons This day."

Since I have had a son I can not see Another's son hurt needlessly, But the mother heart is torn In me.

All mothers' sons are mine Since I have had This gray-eyed laughing little lad— I love them all—the good— The bad.

All mothers' sons are mine
And so I say:
"God keep the sons of earth this day Shield them from needless hurt,"
I pray.

These verses are sent by a Mother who, ever since Fort Benning has been in existence, has tried to do her bit for the pleasure and well being of the men at the Fort.

MR. SGT. WILLIAM RUPPEL Infantry School Detachment

Here is a soldier. First enlisted at Cincinnati, twelve years ago the twenty-fifth of this month, he has served continuously without loss of a day, re-en-listment following enlistment with pre-cise promptitude. Here is what his Service Record says:

"Home address: U. S. Army, Fort Benning, Ga."

"Occupation: Soldier."

"Main occupation: Soldier."
"Just what did he do?—Soldier."
"Next best occupation: None."

Until November 30, 1920, Sergeant Rupel was in "D" Company of the 6th Infantry, going overseas with that out-fit in the Fifth Division in March of 1918 and participating in the Saint-Hehiel and Meuse Argonne offensives.

The manner of soldiering of this six oot one soldier from the community of Caldwell in the state of Presidents (Ohio), is exemplified not only by an unbroken record of "excellent" notations on his discharges as sergeant and as first sergeant, but also by the following offi-War Department order awarding him the Distinguished Service Cross:

"For extraordinary heroism in action near Fontaine, France, November 8, 1918. While in command of a flank platoon of the battalion, Sergeant Ruppel overcame three enemy machine gun groups and personally led the flanking patrol when his platoon was held up by enemy machine gun fire."

Sergeant Ruppel came to Fort Benning in 1920 and has been in the Infantry School Detachment since then, rising to the rank of Master Sergeant on Val-entine's Day in 1925. He has been in the Personnel Office at Headquarters, assistant to the Police Officer, and now is helping Lieutenant Doty do his job on the Recreation Center Board. Up in the Recreation Center Board. Up in Block Eighteen, in the woods just off the First Division Road, he lives with his wife, Mrs. Ethel Ruppel, and his group

Quiet and efficient, an spectator at all sports, an ardent though not a noisy fan, this thirty-seven year old soldier has played the game and done his job, wherever he was, without fuss or flare, without concern for the lime-light, and with success. A soldier he is, who serves the nation and illustrates one of the finest type of chev rates one of the linest type of they roned men in uniform, those whose work impelled Kipling to declare: "The backbone of the Army, is the non-commissioned man."

Major Rice, elegantly attired in white trousers and full dress coat and scraggly beard, took the slab and spun them over while Nichols beat at the air, made first on a scooter, second and third on a bicycle, and home on Bobby Dunphy's pony. Ambrose played the enquiring reporter, sticking his nose and spectacles and moustache into every map of the ground rules and every conversation between umand every conversation between umpires Walling, Singleton and Sandusky—guarded though they were by a squad of Numidian Foot with fixed bayonets.

Then came the procession, with a swaying car preceded by a be-ribbon swaying camera-seeking and crowd-watching captain with eagles on his shoulders. Following the departing swaying motor were Back's old ironsides and McChrystal's wreck of the Hespherus, one carrying those who wish to remain at Benning and the other those who got "ONE" on uniform inspection. And all the while Sullivan and Riley rolled rocks down the base lines just as the stewgents did down Sigerfoos Drive on March 6th.

Major Rice was replaced as pitcher by the heated hurler of remembered stories, and the first three studes went out in order.

Olmstead drew a pass. Johnson singled and stole second. Fountain doubled, scoring his two predecessors, and the student team was almost completely replaced as a host of substitutes ran onto the fold.

pletely replaced as a host of substi-tutes ran onto the field.

From that time on it was a ball game, with lots of strike or and lots-more hits and perhaps almost as many errors. When Mayer Milburn juggled a ball around second, he com-plained to the authorities, and John Schwab was ascepted from the stands Schwab was escorted from the stands for, trying to keep his feet off the concrete as the signs told him to, he dazzled the eyes and obscured the vision of the fielders. When the next error occurred, the officials conferred again and draped a piece of I. C. canvas over the brilliant ribbons in the front box where Russ Skinner was sitting. And so the game went ont, with interpolations to relieve the terrible tension, and to give the weary participants a respite.

Olmstead was the first man to reach third base, but declined the cooling keg there stationed and labelled "for those who reach third.'

But he was not the last, because hosts of them paraded the route. Going the entire route, Major Lang was still outdone by the corps of pitchers the students brought against him in spite of the beneficence of him, in spite of the beneficence of Campbell in the third issuing six bases on balls. Two baggers and triples abounded, as did passed balls and wild heaves. Mrs. Richard Sandusky gave a beautiful luncheon on Saturday for Miss Sally Bond, who is to be married to Captain Malcolm P. Lindsey on Tuesday, the twenty-fifth of May. Covers were laid for twelve.

Colonel and Mrs. Wait C. Johnson honored Mrs. John Hoover on Friday evening, April thirtieth, with a dinner for twenty guests. Among those present were General Edgar T. Collins, Colonel and Mrs. James Gowen, Colonel and Mrs. Augustus Warfield, Colonel Paul Halloran, Miss Halloran, Major and Mrs. Edwin Spiller, Major and Mrs. H. J. M. Smith, Major and Mrs. Bon Moore, Captain and Mrs. George A. Pollin and Captain Paul E. Leiber. After dinner the party attended the Barn Dance given by the officers and ladies of the Twenty-Fourth Infantry at the Polo Club. Bales of hay and stable lanterns gave the Polo Club a rustic appearance. A feature of the evening was the old fashioned square dances which was called by Sergeant McCauley, who is the oldest soldier in point of service in the Twenty-Fourth Infantry, and who was with that regiment when it helped drive the Spanish troops from San Juan Hill.

Mrs. Edward E. Walker and Mrs. Harland C. Griswold were hostesses to a large number of friends at bridge at the Polo Club on Thursday afternoon, April the twenty-ninth.

Mrs. Edwin Butcher delightfully entertained with bridge at her quarters on Thursday afternoon, April the twenty-ninth. There were six tables of players and several ladies came in late for tea. Mrs. Clyde Abraham won the first prize and Mrs. Eley Denson won the second prize.

Mrs. John Hoover has returned to her home in Washington, D. C., after a delightful visit with Colonel and Mrs. Wait C. Johnson. Mrs. Hoover was the honoree of many parties during her stay at the garrison.

The Officers' Club will give the last dinner-dance of the season on Friday evening at Biglerville Mess Hall. The following will be hosts at dinner: Lt. Col. H. O. Olson, Lt. H. B. Smith and Capt. V. C. Devoti, Maj. F. B. Mallon, Maj. Spragins, Capt. R. K. Fisher, Lt. J. L. McElroy, Maj. Pickering, Maj. H. M. Colbert, Capt. R. F. Kennon, Lt. Tracy Davis, Capt. J. K.

A MODEL LETTER FOR MOTHERS DAY

On Active Service with the A. E. F., May 12, 1918.

Dear Mother o' mine:

There are a few times in a fellow's life, just a few, when he thinks he's outgrown mother. They don't last long and may seem trivial, but I'll mention them anyway. The "first long pants" stage, the first sweetheart stage, and the day son graduates from high school. But the aforementioned trousers need mending, the girl changes her mind (they are that way at 15) and the high school diploma is viewed in its proper propor-tions. Then dependable old mother has to be on the job, and she always is. It's a way mothers have.

And again there are times in a man's And again there are times in a man's life when just about the biggest thing is a mother. In moments of adversity that come now and again in ordinary living, it's the thought of mother that drives the gloom away and sets the world aright. But those are ordinary times. One thinks one knows what a mother means to him. Never until a supreme test comes does she stand out the wonderful being she really is.

as the wonderful being she really is.

We sons of American mothers are passing through such a test now. We're staking the biggest thing we have, our lives, for the finest things in life, honor, justice, brotherhood, the right of free men of live as God ordained that they should live. There's only one thing fine and clean enough to make us measure up to those standards—you, our mothers. You gave us the ideals that made us know our side in this fight and the memory of you is all that will keep that knowledge uppermost.

A good many things keep us thinking about you. One of them is the French mother. Sometimes she wears wooden shoes, almost always she wears mourning, but her heart is the same as yours. I recall in particular an incident in the little village of——. It just happened that two dear old ladies were living there alone. As soldiers we were no novelty the place was just behind the lines, within earshot of the big guns. The home had been destroyed and the son of one had been destroyed and the son of one of them had died for France. Living in the partially rebuilt house in what would seem to an American the most abject poverty, you'd think the very heart of them would be gone.

But was it? Ah, no. They were mothers, and the motherhood in them cried out for expression. When we left the way we were going—I caught a

-they knew we were going—I caught a tear in the corner of their eyes even though they kept up the smile. It made a big lump in my throat and set me to thinking. I had a mother just like that and would be a fine sort if I ever complained of my lot.

And so, mother dear, I'm thinking of Mother's Day. You you today, on Mother's Day. You mean more to me than ever before, just mean more to me than ever before, just because I need you more, and not because you're any different. It's just the same with every fellow over here. From the first line trench to the training camp every heart beats first for a mother, every thought flies to her.

Remember, whatever may happen, that

I'm thinking of you every day, that every day is Mother's Day to me. Be brave. I know you will, and the thought that you are is going to carry me through when nothing else could. I'm well, very well. I love you mother o' mine.

HORSE SENSE, A HORSE AND A MAJOR

(Proving that Duty at a Service School has its Humor)

A certain Major of Infantry was faced with the solution of an Artillery terrain problem not so long ago as a student officer at the General Service School.

He was given an unknown Government mount and a known time limit of 80 minutes, and informed that his task was to locate the guns of a Field Artillery battery so that by using indirect fire (over an interviening mask of trees and low hills), all guns could be used to fire effectively on a specified target.

The Major, decked out like a Christmas tree with field glasses, sketching case, clinometer, pad and pencil, mounted his steed and proceeded with other students to the assigned starting point. Here the students separated, each taking his own route to locate the gun sites.

Then the Major's troubles began. His charger refused to move unless allowed follow other mounts, or unallowed his own way. A and unsuccessful struggle follow for mastery soon left the Major alone with his mount. Something had to be done and done quickly. Time was flying, an unsatisfactory solution loomed on the horizon, and it was clearly up to the Major to show initiative. A hurried estimate of the situation showed that the horse must be used, else all would be mere guess work. It also showed and this was the key to the solutionthat the animal was an old timer at the Service Schools. He contentiously (?) insisted on his own way.

The Major was forced to the decision that to trust the beast was the only possible way out of the situation. This he did. The old troop horse proceeded on his own impulses, from point to point, always keeping behind the mask; and at each temporary refusal to move the Major dotted down a gun position on his map. And lo! two days later his paper was returned as one of the best!

Many students since this event have endeavored to identify this valuable animal, but without success, for the Major in his elation, forgot the identifying hoof number. However, the School itself has not perfected his weefulness. itself has not neglected his usefulness, since it is understood that now the incian illustration of one way by which "horse sense" is sometimes applied during the course. —Army and Navy Journal. dent is pointed out to new students as

BRAND NEW DEAL MADE REGARDING FORT QUARTERS

Bulletin from Headquarters Announces General Policy to Govern Garrison

Below is printed in full a new Bulletin just issued from Headquarters, the Infantry School, governing assignment of quarters to officers of this garrison. For some time Austin Loop (Block 14) and the quarters near the Historical Circle (Block 15) have been generally considered appropriate to officers of field grade, although originally intended for captains. They are now formally listed as the most desirable in the fort and rated as Class I.

Taneytown (Block 23) and Block Thirty-Eight (on the First Division Road) and Block Nineteen (junction of Lumpkin and First Division Roads) and quarters 40-A and 40-B, are rated as class II, and are seemingly for the occupancy of junior officers.

Class III consists of Houses (Block Sixteen and Block Forty) and the bungalows along the Lumpkin Road, Block 20 and quarters 19-A to 19-K.

Class V. consists of quarters considered suitable for bachelor officers and so specifically designated, quarters 15-T 39-56-207, and Biglerville (Block 21.)

The new order lays down strict and regular rules for the assignment of quarters in accordance with the provisions of Army Regulations. In the event of vacant quarters, officers living in the city may be ordered into the reservation, since commutation cannot be paid so long as quarters are vacant and available on government land.

Following is the text of the nouncement:

Quarters at this grouped in order of desirability and suitability as follows:

Class I—Blocks 14 and 15.

Class II—Blocks 19, 23, 38 and quarters 40.

Class III—Blocks 16, 20 and 40 and quarters 19, A to K.
Class IV—Block 21 and quarters

15-T, 39-56-207.

2. As a general policy, the permanent personnel will be taken care of first. Any vacant set will be chosen according to rank. Any set that becomes vacant at any time will be advertised and assigned according rank of applicant.

Upon the arrival for duty of an 3. Upon the arrival for duty of an officer senior in rank to any officer holding quarters in Class I, at a time when all quarters in that class are occupied, he will be permitted to outrank the junior officer only, holding quarters in that class; the officer so outranked will similarly be permitted to outrank the junior officer only, occupying quarters in Class II, except that should the officer outranked be of field grade, he will be permitted to select quarters in Class II from those not assigned to an officer senior

This same rule will be followed upon the arrival of an officer for duty who may be senior in rank to any of-ficer holding quarters in Class II.

5. No student officer may occupy quarters in Class I. Officers of the permanent personnel to become student officers and who hold quarters in Class will be required to move into quarters in Class II; those holding quarters other than in Class I will not be required to move unless quarters are required for members of permanent personnel after action has been taken as in succeed ing paragraph.

6. Officers 1 Officers reporting for duty during the summer and who are to become student officers that year will be assigned quarters if available. If at any time this results in insufficient quarters for the permanent personnel, these student officers, beginning with the juniors, will be ordered to Columbus for station.

lumbus for station and vacant quarters exist on the Post, these vacant sets will then be assigned, beginning with the least desirable, to the junior students

All bachelor officers, permanent and students, will be quartered in Class IV, permanent personnel to have first choice. Student officers with dependents, reporting for duty unac-companied by the latter, may be assigned one room in Class IV.

9. Three sets of quarters in Block
16 will be reserved for emergencies.

10. In connection with the above policy the attention of the command is invited to Paragraphs 2 bg (1) to bi (5) inclusive of Army Regulations 210-70.

All previous instructions conflict with the above are rescinded.

AMERICAN LEGION PREPARING FOR TREK TO DISTRICT MEETING

LaGrange Convention of the Fourth District Slated for May Fourteenth.

Legionnaires of the garrison are being rounded up by Captain Bert M. Lennon, Vice-Commander of the Charles S. Harrison Post, to insure a large delegation making the trip to LaGrange, Ga., for the convention of the Fourth District of the American Legion.

Business affairs slated for discussion are very brief, and the most of the afternoon and evening will be devoted to entertainment of a formal or informal sort. Following is the program announced:

1:30 p. m.—Registration, Highland Country Club.

2:00 p. m.—Opening of Convention.

—Nomination of District Executive Committeemen.

Report on Membership Drive, by Captain M. S. Eddy, of Riverside

Military Academy.

—"The Second A. E. F." by Captain Joe M. Carr, State Adjutant, the American Legion.

—Address by Colonel George F. Baltzell, 22nd Infantry, U. S. A. 3:00 p. m.—Musical Program, by

LaGrange College Glee Club. 3:40 p. m.—Address, by Homer Watkins, State Com by Colonel Commander, Colonel State

American Legion.

4:00 p. m.—Open Meeting.

4:30 p. m.—Golf Competition, Driving, Pitching, Putting.

—Awarding of Prizes. 5:00 p. m.—Barbecue and Fire-

7:00 p. m.-Parade and Opening of White Way.

9:00 p. m.—Adjournment.

In addition to making arrangements for a full representation of Benning Legionnaires at this meeting, which every service and ex-service man in the Fiurth District is expected to at-tend, Captain Lennon is working hard

7. If all students elect to go to Co- on the membership problem, to keep the Charles S. Harrison Post with the unique distinction of being the largest in the state of Georgia. Recent preliminary reports showed the Harrison unit to have 1064 members and the Atlanta post 1010. The Atlantans are putting on a drive to overtop the numbers from Muscogee and Chattahoochee counties. But the Harrison men have already raised their figures to 1096, and are aiming for 1,200. The folk in Columbus have taken it upon themselves to add 79 to the present strength, and the Benning allotment is 25 additional to join the ranks of those who have banded themselves "for God and Country."

"FOLLOW ME"

Do you know Mr. Knowles? You may see him standing sometimes at the Service Club entrance to Gowdy Field, near the soft drinks stand. You may see him looking out for the thirsty souls of the garrison when warm weather makes refreshing drinks a part of outdoor recreation. But do you know that Mr. Knowles is one of the firm friends of this garrison?

He presented a cup for the Horse Show. He helped the girl scouts out when they wished to raise funds, and gave them full cases for every empty one reutrned. He was at the May Day Festival of the Children's School, contributing as usual. He contributed to the School Benefit Baseball venture very extensively. He does business out here of course, but he also is more than willing, even anxious to help along the worthy causes and contribute liberally from time to time. You may not know him personally very well, but you must, if you know him at all, know that he is personally a booster for Benning. Here's to Mr. Knowles and Chero-Cola!

"FOLLOW ME"

This letter came to the office the other day:

Blue Bird admirer wonders how one so clever, and one who has been to him a real bluebird throughout nine months of discomfort, should lapse in wit and in courtesy to "the ladies" on April 23rd. The chances are that the ladies who read the NEWS on the counter have the paper every week on their own tables and only complimented it by their impatience to see it before reaching home.

"Jack Rabbit."

"FOLLOW ME"

This creed appeared in the Second Division Review, and obedient to the tearful request of a former member of our own staff, we reprint it:

SEVENTEEN OFFICERS ORDERED TO INFANTRY SCHOOL

Many Old Timers of Division Will Leave This Fall for Georgia

Having battled with might and main as sturdy members of the Second Division in formation chasing the elusive Reds from the maneuver grounds in this neck of the woods, seventeen officers of the Second Division will report to hte Commandant of the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia, for duty as students in the 1926-27 classes.

Thus the scene of action shifts for them from the cactus covered zones of Texas to the classic banks of the gently flowing Upatoi of Georgia where they will be greeted ever so many times with the terse, yet potent announcement, "The Chattahoochee (sometimes called the Bottlahoochee) River separates hostile states, Alabama on the west and Georgia on the East."

Those who have risked their lives on the road from Fort Benning to Columbus know the rest of that story. Furthermore, Fort Benning is no longer the place to be listed as a liability for the road to town, formerly dubbed "The Daily Risk," is now a stretch of smooth pavement, and the athletic attractions at the Infantry School, now known as the athletic center of the Army, are such that a year of duty seems all too short for the able bodied officer.

One major and four captains of the Second Division will attend as students of the Advanced Course, namely: Maj. L. T. Byrne, Twenty-third Infantry, and Captain W. W. Carr, W. F. Freehoff, C. P. Stivers, all Ninth Infantry, and N. P. Groff, Twenty-third Infantry.

Nine captains and three first lieutenants will attend as students of the Company Officers Course, namely: Captains V. L. James, H. R. Ide, and C. E. Fenters, all of the First Infantry, C. H. Bragg and O. G. Stevens, Ninth Infantry; Ned Blair and R. F. Hall of the Twenty-third Infantry; E. D. Porter, Twentieth Infantry; and I. M. Oseth, Special Troops; First Lieutenants M. R. Finney and W. H. Roberts of the Ninth Infantry and D. H. Rubenstein of the Twentieth Infantry.

Listed above will be found the names of many officers who have been on duty at Fort Sam Houston for time immemorial, if we are to believe their statements, and their departure from this Post will leave vacancies which will be unusually hard to fill.

The majority of the officers leaving for Fort Benning will finally have their first glimpse of the Recreation Center Project to which they have contributed many shekels of the coin of the realm. The thrill that comes once in a lifetime will greet them as they gaze with open mouthed wonder at the classic outlines of Doughboy Stadium, built to commemorate the Infantrymen who made the supreme sacrifice during the World

Many there are who have served at WHY NOT MAIL THE NEWS HOME? Fort Benning who develop a nostalgical feeling when they read orders assigning other officers to duty at the "greatest Infantry School in the world," so titled by former Secretary of War John W. Weeks.

"FOLLOW ME"

Our idea of complexity in scorekeeping is out-done by the results from Fort Oglethorpe, where our polo team played one game on Saturday last, and was credited with losing a game and with winning a game. The same contest counted twice, once in the Southeastern Circuit where our handicap enabled us to get the decision, and again in the Fourth Corps Area Tournament where without handicaps being reckoned the game counted as a defeat.

A SONG FOR THE INFANTRY

They're goin' to hav'em a he-man's song For th' good old Infantry A song to sound thru th' Halls of Time

An' give to posterity,
The sturdy souls, an' the spirit bold
An' th' brave an' honest hearts of gold Of th' Fightin' Infantry.

I'm only a buck in th' doughboy line, An' not any poet man.
I'd rather wrastle than write a rhyme
An' th' Lord knows if I can; But to write that song an' write it well Th' guy will have to write like 'ell Of th' good old Infantry.

guess if that song is well begun, With shrill note of pippin' fife, An' th' boomin' beat of a big bass drum 'Twill sorta' have some life.
For th' stirrin' thrill of th' war-drums beat

Will loosen th' dust on th' leaden feet Of th' hikin' Infantry.

An' then with the braggin', brassy blare Of th' proud, paradin' band
A playin' some pretty popular air,
That'll echo through th' land,
We'll have a tune that th' folks'll like
And 'll lighten th' pack on an uphill hike
Of th' ploddin' Infantry.

But how are they goin' to put in verse Th' nights of mud an' mire
An' th' chillin' rain that makes men curse The lack of a friendly fire, As they wallow their weary way ahead

Asleep on their feet an' about half dead Th' dogged Infantry.

Yes, how are they goin' to tell in rhyme Of the star-shells baleful light, Exposin' th' thin and broken line, Bearin' th' brunt of th' fight,

Or th' leaden hail of the shrapnel burst When y'hope for th' best an' look for th' worst;

Th' prayin' Infantry.

Sure it's not a song, it's an anthem they needs, To tell us th' story well,

Of those fightin' fools an' their des'prit deeds

Out there on th' brink of Hell. An anthem that's filled with th' earth quake throb Of massed artillery doing their job; Backin' th' Infantry.

A throbbing, rumbling, roaring song, Jazzed up by th' rearing tanks, Clanking and smashing their way along To strengthen th' hard pressed ranks Of that bruisin', batterin', bay'netin' band

That battle th' enemy hand to hand; Th' cold-steel Infantry.

A rollickin' song full of frolic an' fun; Of cav-'lry splashin' a ford, Chasin' a foemen that's on th' run Puttin' 'em to th' sword; A broken enemy beaten back Foiled in a fruitless, vain attack, On stonewall Infanrty.

A song with th' swing of a sweeping oar Pulled by a pontonier, Ferryin' troops to a hostile shore An' tryin' hard to steer Safe thru th' hell of burstin' shell That's tryin' th' fierce advance to quell, Of stormin' Infantry.

Let'm fill th' song with th' airy grace Let'm fill th' song with in any grace
Of th' swoopin', divin' plane,
Wingin' it's way thru azure space,
Scoutin' th' foe's terrain;
Dronin' an' droppin' out of the skies;
Guardin' from swift and sudden surprise; Smoke blinded Infantry.

Let'em break the rythmn with raucous. note, Like the sudden Gas Alarm,

That brings th' heart to th' fear parched throat.

Like some ghastly voodo charm; The frenzied fear of the dew of death, That clinging, clammy, poisonous breath Chokin' th' Infanrty.

Let'em not forget th' staccato beat Of machine-gun enfilade; Stemmin' th' rush that would spell defeat The startlin', sudden raid,
That forces th' front-line slowly back;

Gaspin' for breath, for a counter attack; Hard pressed Infantry.

But give 'em an anthem or give 'em a song,

That sounds pretty on parade, Nothin' you'll say 'll be too strong; 'Bout those soldiers unafraid, Just rhyme an' rave 'til you're out of breath, For you can't scare a chap, who jokes with death.

Tough old Infantry.

But th' doughboy song, when th' war cloud rolls,

Is beyond all meter or rhyme; Just th' battle cry of those fightin' souls, Echoin' down th' Halls of Time. And their comrades in arms will th' chorus swell.

Like an opera staged in th' Pits of Hell Supportin' th' Infantry.

HERE'S MORE WORK FOR THE EXPERIMENTAL DEPARTMENT

The Chief of Infantry has been authorized by the War Department to conduct tests with a view of establishing a course in skirmish fire to be used in rifle training after the completion of the regular qualification course.

It is contemplated that this course will emphasize individual rifle fire and the instruction will form a natural link in rifle training, between the indvdual instruction on black and white targets. at known ranges, and instruction in collective fire on field targets at unknown ranges as in musketry exercises.

Authority of the War Department has been requested to proceed with tests to determine the best course for skirmish It is contemplated that the course will include the firing of several shots, at each of several ranges from 500 to 200 yards at targets which are exposed for a short time, the man advancing by order, at varying rates of speed, from one range to another.—Infantry Journal.

ENLISTED SPECIALISTS COURSE

Leroy Short and "Red" Updike packed up their toilet articles in one of Jack Reid's shoes, thinking it was a suitcase, when the National Guard Enlisted Specialists started for the maneuver camps Wednesday. However, the mistake was found out in time to keep the articles from being crushed beyond recognition when Jack put his shoe on.

The whole gang went out, bag and baggage, and for over two weeks, until May 22nd to be exact, the class will be in the wilds, some at Camp Sater and others at Camp Connell, engaged in the terrain exercises which close the school work of the year. This is the big test of how much the boys have learned about telephones and radios and buzzers and message centers and other instruments of communication. Everybody is all set, though, and expects to come through with flying colors.

To keep away the blues and the wear-es, "Alabama" Roberts is taking along his famous inch and a half mouth organ, his famous inch and a hair mouth organ, Hoosier Powers stuck his uke in the top of his pack, and special arrangements have been made for an extra truck from the postoffice to bring "Shiek" Gentry's mail out to the camp. Monday and Tuesday the class went out to the 23rd Infantry Woods and McCloud Hill and practised the installation and operation of signal communi-tion and operation of signal communication nets, under the watchful eye of Captain Kennedy. This in preparation for the work with the Blue forces in repelling the direful Reds from Ala-

Since last issue the National Guard baseball team has played Co. C of the Tanks and beat them. The score was 8 to 3. It was a fast game and everybody batted well. He found it impossible to pitch two consecutive games, so Hoot Gibson, the boy who usually holds down the initial sack was put in the box. He had the "Red Hats" hopping out of their shoes with his fast ones. He held them the best he the breaks were all with the artillerymen. This team seems to have a jinx on the National Guardsmen. Henderson was bragging how good he biew a bugle so the boys borrowed one and made him toot a few calls. He played pay day so well they recruited him for the regular army bugle corps.

Pee Wee Pullen had a great big birth-day cake sent to him last Sunday and all the boys helped him celebrate. Home made cake, mmmmmmm!

The annual trek to the Spring maneuver camps was made on May when practically the entire regiment left the garrison for a three weeks' stay in the field. Only the Service Company, Howitzer Company and G Company were left behind, in addi-tion to a small caretaking detachment in each company.

The 1st Battalion, plus Regimental last Friday night and when he retired he lay down first on his bunk and then on the floor where he stayed until next morning. He is our second heaviest sleeper. He has recently been made a top kick. Congratulations, Cholly.

Heyward D. Potts the most efficient orderly in the class will not have to do this duty any more. His medal bearing friend does it for him.

Monte Welliver and Carlo Robinson are considered the two best toreadors in ly aligned tents, mess halls, kitchens ly aligned tents, mess halls, kitchens and incinerators are the result of the enthusiasm and energy of the officers and men of Company A, commanded by Captain Jno. S. Moore and of Com-pany E, commanded by 1st Lt. E. D. McCoy.

> The troops were allowed two days in which to settle down and make minor improvements in their company areas and then most of the personnel was turned over to the communications officers to rehearse the problems which the student officers will conduct. Three weeks in the field pass quickly and already most of the men are wishing that the whole summer could be spent in camp.

A couple of weeks ago Company "D" put a few questions up to Company "H" which we are going to to answer.

We hand it to you for having the banner for M. G. Marksmanship, but do you know who had the highest average? As for efficient fatigue details, ask any officer of the range work, or any of the Stadium project. As for the best mess, well, we haven't had a man starve to death since the company was organized. As for high company was organized. As for high types of N. C. O.'s and men, who had a Platoon of men at the Infantry School in 1922-23-24, who gave instructions to the student officers?

Now the man that answers the following questions will be presented with a copy of "Instructions on Going into Action," by our efficient horse-shoer, 'Hike' Lehman:

Who has won the M. G. Cart event 1922-23-24-25-26?

Who won the honor of having the Blue Ribbon Stables, 1926?

Who won the contest, Going into Action, 1925-26? Who won 2nd place in the 1st N. C.

O. school and 1st place in the 3rd N. C. O. school?

Who pulls the Inspection of Stand-

Swaller them and these and those. few other questions were asked which the writer, I am sure, never thought before asking them. As for the coon hunts there is nothing on record or in Army regulations about that or who did. Company "H" has been too busy leading the that or who did. Company "H" has been too busy leading the way to spend time coon hunting. But from reports of old timers in the Company we can't see or any body else, but Co. "D" who did organize the coon hunt.

As for the mess we can't find "D"

Company heading the list. In regards to desertions Company "H" has as few as any Company in the regiment.

Don't ask questions of such nature, until you have the dope of just who who.

JOHNSON AND HELMS WIN DOUBLES MATCH IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Finals of Tournament in two Classes Completed Wednesday Afternoon

Colonel Johnson and young Johnny Helms Wednesday afternoon scored a brilliant victory in the doubles cham-pionship tennis matches staged by the Officers' Club at Fort Benning, hav-ng come through to the finals by virthe of a series of fine wins, and eventually defeating Major Balsam and Captain Christenberry, three sets to two, 5-7, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 and 6-2.

The first set was a bitter battle go-The first set was a litter battle going to a deuce score, and with a deuce tally in practically every game. The second set also went to the Major and the Captain, but then Helms and Johnson found themselves against their threatening opponents and began to win decisively, some of the games going after 40-15 or 40-love scores.

Captain Christenberry and Major Captain Christenberry and Major Balsam dreaded the well known abilities of the Colonel director of athetics, and played the ball on innumerable successive occasions into Helms' side of the court. The youngster stood up splendidly under the strain of continuous attack and it was really his refusal to weaken that decided the match. In the third set the Johnson-Helms team discovered the Johnson-Helms team discovered the lobbing game and used it with great success, letting their opponents miss stroke after stroke in attempts at cross-court, deep-court, or smash shots. It was generalship of a superior order, and the appreciative gallery applauded roundly as point after point was tallied by the favorite youngster.

Last week's News contained the full brackets in Class "B" Singles and in-dicated Captain Kennon, of the Nadicated Captain Kennon, of the National Guard Class as ready for the finals by virtue of a 6-4, 3-6, 9.7 vicctory over Captain O. N. Thompson. Since then Captain Barber met and defeated Major Stocker, 6-1, 6-1. Last Wednesday Captain Barber met Captain Kennon in the final singles match in class "B" and the latter, a former tennis star at Louisiana State University, scored a sweeping victory 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

The Texas Colonel wrote to the Northern Colonel that the Lieutenant had one serious fault and that was "Betting." Upon arrival at his new station the Lieutenant reported to his Colonel and the Colonel said: "Young man I understand you have one serious fault and that is betting. I'll have you understand that betting will not be tolerated in his regiment. What do you bet on anyway?" The Lieutenant replied: "Sir, I'll bet on anything, for instance, I will bet you have a wart on your $25.00, that you have a wart on your right shoulder." The Colonel sputtered a bit and said, "Young man, I'll teach you a lesson; I'll take that bet." The you a lesson; I'll take that bet." The Colonel then removed his coat and took off his shirt and displayed a perfectly smooth shoulder and said, "Do you see any wart on my shoulder?" The Lieutenant replied: "No, Sir, I lose." The Colonel then said, "Pay me the $25.00, and I hope this will teach you a lesson and break you of the betting habit." and break you of the betting habit."
The Colonel then wrote to the Texas
Colonel and said he thought he had taught the young man a lesson and had broken him of the habit of betting:
"Why, before I had known him five winy, before I had known that I had a minutes he bet me $25.00, that I had a wart on my right shoulder, and, of course, he lost. I hope it will teach him a lesson." WEE FAIRYLAND FOLK WELCOME SPRING WITH HAPPY DANCE AND SONG nildren's School Pageant Pleases Large Audience. May Pole Dance Makes Pretty Picture.

The Queen of The May and her attendant elves and fairies appeared on the spacious lawn of the Commandant at Fort Benning, and celebrated the arrival of Spring, tripping gayly through the woods and dancing the happy folk dances of the fairies.

A Pageant of Springtime, produced under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Lind, assisted by the other members of the children's school, and with Captain George King as musical director delighted a large audience gathered to show their interest and pride in the young folk of the garrison.

The little people of Fairyland had just chosen their new Queen and in preparation for the coronation the preparation for the coronation the trumpeters (Jack Hall and McKendree Scott) called for Spring to help in the ceremonial. The Spirit of Spring (Marion Nulsen) heard the call and hastened to the scene followed by the little fairies and elves.

Then came the Queen of the May (Marjorie Gowen) with her merry maids and attendants, eager for the fun to begin. Winter's snow Queen fun to begin. Winter's snow Queen (Cynthia Martin) approached to bid adieu and dance fer farewell dance relinquishing her power over all. Spring having taken over the winter's power crowned the May Queen ruler of all the trees and fruits and flowers. Then to show their new loyalty and happiness in their new queen the pretty flowers of spring came forth and danced their happy dances with their chosen partners.

Such, in brief, was the pageant, which closed with the little folk taking their places around the May Poles and skillfully weaving the gaily colored vines, under and over, in and out, until they were covered with the multicolors of spring

STAR PITCHER OF

Sam Gray, star pitcher of the Athsam Gray, star pitcher of the Athletics is considered the greatest pitcher on the circuit according to Umpire Moriarity. In discussing the various pitchers last August Moriarity said: "Sam Gray," he said with conviction, "is the greatest pitcher on the circuit." The friend of the umpire who was discussing pitchers with him reminded him that Gray had been out minded him that Gray had been out of the game much of the season. "That makes no difference," he maintained, "he's the best pitcher in the league."

Gray's career has been so unusual that it verges upon the unique. Though the season to him has been a nightmare of personal bereavement and unfortunate injuries, it is undoubtedly a grand success. Streaked with deep a grand success. Streaked with deep shadows, its sheer brillance can not be obscured.

Pitchers are proverbially upset at anything which interrupts their regular schedule. They lose control, lose their stuff, become ineffective when they do not take their regular turn. An injury which keeps one of them on the bench for any considerable time is apt to spoil his entire season. With this well accepted attitude in view, consider the case of Sam Gray.

He started the season at a whirlwind gait. It was his work more the started the season at a whili-wind gait. It was his work more than any one factor, that drove the Athletics to the front. He won eight straight games with never a defeat. But in the seventh inning of the eighth game, while taking his place at the bat, a pitched ball struck him on the hand and broke his right thumb. regrettable injury kept him out of the line-up for five weeks. Upon his return he won one game and lost two. was just beginning to find him he won one game and lost two. He was just beginning to find himself when his wife suddenly died. He quit the club at once and was gone for three more weeks. When he came back, however, he immediately shouldered the burden once more and won five straight games including two five straight games, including two shut-outs before he was forced to taste defeat. What he might have done had circumstances allowed him take his regular place on the throughout the season can only conjectured. It is safe to assu he assume however, that brilliant as this work appeared, it would have proved decidedly better had it not been subject to such prolonged interruptions.

Gray was born October 15th, 1899, at Vanalstyne, Texas. He enlisted in the Army at an early age and remained in the service for several years. He was content, however, with his lot and never rose above the rank of private. Gray is still strong for Army life. "The discipline is a fine thing," he said. "It would make a man out of any young fellow, if he had the stuff to start with."

Perhaps one reason why Gray views his Army career in a friendly spirit is because it started him in his present profession. Soldiers naturally take to athletics. Gray pitched for his Army team, which was right and proper. But he also caught behind the bat when no one else could be Sue Fridge, Guy Williams, Idalee Bax- Moreover, the Army gave him a chance

Edwin to see the world. He spent six months in France and got much nearer the front than most, for he was just behind the firing line when Armistice Day put an end to the senseless slaughter. On the strength of his experience in the Army Cray chained slaughter. On the strength of his experience in the Army, Gray obtained a job pitching ball for Sherman, Texin the Oklahoma League back in 21. Later that season he went to ris, Texas. 1922 found him with rt Worth. Cleveland bought him Paris, Texas. Fort Worth. and he started the season '23 in the Forest City, remaining there un June 1st, when he was sent back Fort Worth. The Athletics then picked him up and he spent the season of 1924 with that clark that it. 1924 with that club, but it was not un-PITCHER OF

WASTED HIS LEAVE, LOST FOREIGN SERVICE CREDIT, BUT SAVED (?) SOME MONEY

An officer of the Army bumped a native while automobling just before his tour of duty was up in Honolulu. He handed the boy a greenback and forgot it.

Shortly after his return to the states Shortly after his return to the statement was served notice of suit and took leave to return to the islands to defend. Lost the case and returned to the U. S. after appealing. Case again came up for trial. He again took leave, lost and appealed. Case came up third time. His leave credit was exhausted; was unable to get leave on half-pay and finally had to surrender credit for foreign service, applying for station in Honolulu to get back for trial

He won the third trial, but lost:

(1) Leave credit; (2) foreign service credit; (3) time; (4) trouble; (5) attorneys fees; (6) expense.

He could have saved all of these by an investment in PERSONAL LIABILITY insurance.

MELTON'S LONG HOMER FEATURES GIANTS WIN IN SERIES FINALE

Green Halts 24th Hitters and Visitors Grab Last Game After Hard Fight.

When Washington and the New York Giants met on Gowdy Field last year Long George Kelly parked one over the left field fence. A few weeks later, Porter, receiver for the Stormy Petrels. om Oglethorpe, just managed to lift one over the wire barrier in the port garden. Monday Melton, center fielder for the Brooklyn Cuban Giants caught one of Leonard's twisters and hoisted it out into Wold Avenue. The blow broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning of the final game of the 24th Infantry-Giants series and enabled the visitors to win their only victory of the set. Final count was 4-2.

Green, once a member of the Numidian Foot, climbed the mound for the Giants, and his off-side shoots baffled the Happy Heart sluggers all the way. Bell's infield single in the second, an out and Seats' two base knock made one for the home team. Sloan Williams pried open the fifth canto by jarring a triple to left. He counted when Creek let one of Green's shoots get by him for a passed ball. Otherwise the sunset soldiers were invalid as an attacking force.

Ponder assumed the hurling role for the 24th and while the visiting Giants kept pecking away at his delivery, he pitched good ball. Leonard relieved in the seventh and it was off his pitching that the Giants scored the deciding tallies.

VANCE HURLS FINE BALL AND CUBANS LOSE TWO IN A ROW

Happy Hearts Connect at Opportune Times and Win Second Game, 3-1.

Green, smiling first base guardian of the Cuban Giants, cracked one to the flag pole in center field in the ninth inning of Sunday's game on Gowdy Field, and touched all the sacks and the rubber home plate before the speeding 24th fielders could return the ball, but all his drive accomplished was to save his team from a coat of whitewash, as Vance, hurling for the Happy Hearts, had secured a permanent injunction restraining the Cubans from hitting safely with men on bases. Meanwhile the Numidian Foot were tallying three times.

F. Willams and the two right fielders used by the soldiers, Bell and Nash, furnished the hits needed to win. In the second inning the big center fielder singled and scored on Nash's three cushshot. In the eighth frame he again hit for a sack, and this time Bell, who had replaced Nash, delivered a three ply wallop. Bell came in a moment later on Seats, one baser.

Seats' one baser.

Snappy fielding by both teams was the order of the day. McCrary snared Douglas' liner in the eighth with a beautiful one hand stab. Gaither, visiting shortstop, pulled a double killing unassisted in round number six, grabbing Seats' liner and beating Hayward, who was leading off third to the hot correct. was leading off third, to the hot corner.

BENNING POLOISTS FIGHTING HARDEST ON FOREIGN FIELDS

Mounted Musketeers Engaging in Two Tournaments at Fort Oglethorpe This Week

Major Smith departed quietly from the garrison last week-end taking with him Captains Forsythe and Whisner and Lieuttenants Elkins and Uncles to play In a round of polo games at Fort Oglethorpe included in the Southeastern Circuit of the American Polo Associa-tion and the Fourth Corps Area Tour-

In the first series of matches, contests are played on a handicap basis in which each team is handicapped according to the number of goals each played is rated as capable of scoring. In the Corps Area matches for the military championship of this section, all games are on a flat scratch basis.

Last Saturday afternoon the Infantry School team met the strong Free-booters of Fort Oglethorpe, the home team scoring seven goals and the Ben-ning representatives tallying six, of which Major Smith counted four and Lieutenant Elkins two. The contest was fast and furious and showed in no small degree the valuable training Major Smith has given both ponies and players since his arrival beside the Upatoi. Never was there a difference of more than one point at any stage of the contest. This game counted both in the Southeastern circuit and in the Corps Area Tournament being chalked up as a win for the Oglethorpe Freebooters, 7-6, for the military title, and as a win for the Infantry School, 8-7, in the Polo Association circuit, by virtue of the two-goal handicap.

On Wednesday afternoon the Infantry School polosits took the measure of the Governal Horse Guards, overwhelming the Atlanta four by thirteen goals to five. Benning scoring was accomplished by all members of the team, Elkins 3, Uncles 2, Forsythe 4 and Whisner 4. The team was in excellent form and outrode and was in excellent form and outrode and outdrove the capital city aggregation throughout the contest.

Friday afternoon, the Benning aggregation is slated to meet the Sixth Cavalry players in the finals of the Southeastern Circuit, also on a handicap basis the saber-wielders conceding a three-goal handicap. For this contest the chances of Major Smith and his cohorts are considered excellent, as the Ogleare considered excellent, as the Oglethorpe Freebooters are rated the practical equals of the Sixth Cavalrymen and the Benning bunch has already come

DETACHMENT PLAYERS STARRING FOR FOXES IN LEAGUE BATTLES

Sam Stuart and Mick McCarthy Help Out Herndom's Crippled Crew.

When Hardin Herndon, manager of the Foxes was hit on the arm in the opening game at Montgomery, and compelled to take a vacation, the stock of the Columbus team took a decided drop. When Gordon Powell, first string re ceiver, found that he couldn't continue play on his injured ankle, the outlook for the Foxes appeared of even darker hue.

Fortunately for the leaguers there were at Fort Benning, in the Infantry School Detachment, just the two men needed to step into the breach and replace the casualties, and so big Sam Stuart, first sacker extraordinary, and "Mick" McCarthy, receiver de luze for the Green Hats, were drafted into ser vice. So far they have made good be-yond any peradventure of a doubt. Unofficial averages including last Saturday's game showed Stuart caressing the pill for a .378 mark, with 9 hits in 24 trips to the platter; and McCarthy clouting at a .333 gait with 4 safeties out of 12 times at bat. The team average of the Foxes at that time was .329. Both Detachment men, therefore were doing much better than average hitting.

Not only has their hitting been hard, but their blows have come at opportune moments. Stuart materially assisted in winning one game with a homer, and in the opening game at Columbus stole home with the tying tally. McCarthy delivered a triple in Saturday's melee that sent two of his comrades over the plate. Columbus won the game by a wo run margin.

From Sunday's Columbus Enquirer-Sun, describing Saturday's game in de tail: Sixth Inning: Parrish struck out. Stuart walked. Doran flied out to Brown. Folmar walked. McCarthy tripled to center, bringing in Stuart and Folmar and tving the count. Doss was thrown out at first.

Ninth Inning: Kloza flied out to Folmar. Untz singled to left. Schorling popped to Stuart. Walker, batting for Ellis, flied out to Folmar. Stuart made a seemingly impossible catch of Schorling's pop fly in the ninth. He charged the Fox's player bench and scattered those on it to retire Schorling. For that feat the local first sacker was presented with a can conatining twenty packages of Tom's toasted peanuts.

The loss of these two stars will seriously cripple the I. S. D. Green Hats in their quest for this summer's garrison championship, but the Detachment lads are not disheartened and are working out every day with grim determina-tion to grab the pennant they so narrowly missed last year.

within one goal of the Freebooters and beaten them by virtue of a two goal handicap.

TRAMMEL'S TWIRLING STOPS CUBAN GIANTS IN SERIES OPENING

Happy Heart Hurler Hits Hon With Mate on Bases. F. Wil-liams Hits Hard Homer

Nash was on first as a result of forcing S. Williams at second in the fifth inning of the opening game of the 24th Infantry-Cuban Giants series on Gowdy Field, as Trammel advanced to the plate. The idol of the Numidian Foot took a toe hold and swung lustily at one of Wilson's fast shoots. Crash. Away went the pill on an arching journey toward the right field fence. Wells, visiting gardener, made a desperate try, but couldn't quite make it. The ball struck the hard turf just inside the wire and with one mighty hop cleared the fence and rolled out into the road. Nash and Trammel trotted around the paths to the delighted roar of the 24th rooters.

The two runs resulting from this somewhat fluky homer added to one scored in the first inning on Battles' triple and F. Williams' screaming double gave the Happy Hearts a 30-lead over the visitors, and as the soldiers matched a visiting tally in the sixth with one of their own in the same stanza the invading Cubans from Brooklyn suffered a 4-1 defeat.

Trammel pitched remarkably fine ball. Four hits were gathered by the visitors, and nine of their sluggers were rendered null and void by the strike out route, the best feature of this whiffing being that almost all of the s. o. victims came at times when a hit would have meant something.

The grins of the Cuban first sacker and the antics of the humorous catcher, and the whirls and efficiency third station man delighted the crowd. The Giants played errorless ball in the field and lost simply because the Happy Hearts outhit them in the pinches.

SWIMMING INSTRUCTION BY GARRISON EXPERTS PLANNED FOR SUMMER

Arrangements Proposed for Soldi to Attend Red Cross Summer Camps on Detached Service

Last Friday Colonel Johnson, director physical training at the Infantry of physical training at the Infantry School: Major Frank Green, Red Cross representative; Lieut. Shepherd, in Shepherd, charge of life saving instruction; Capt. Colby, who has been active in furthering swimming instruction in the Army; and Mr. Cartier, head of the Department of Recreation for the City of Colum-bus, gathered at the office of Brigadier General Edgar T. Collins and discussed plans for life saving instruction at the garrison swimming pool, and the possibility of sending expert soldier swimmers to Red Cross summer camps on a detached service status, to assist in the training instruction of life savers.

During the meeting the General presented to Captain Colby the Red Cross Honorable Service Medal, awarded to the Captain specifically for his work as a member of the faculty at two Red Cross regional camps last summer.

At the garrison swimming pool, which opened Saturday afternoon, members of the garrison are now finding relief from the sun in the cooling depths of the pool, altho of course, it's never hot, never cold, at Fort Benning.

At the present moment there are but sixteen veterans of the War with Mexico who are now carried on the pension rolls of the United States; a mere handful of that great hardy army of adventurers who by their undaunted courage in venturing into strange lands won for the United States what is now California, Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma

NO SERIOUS DAMAGE IN BENNING GARRISON FROM MONDAY'S STORM

Even Tent Maneuver Camps Stand Up Under Fury Of Near Cyclone

Monday evening the first severe electrical storm of the year hit Fort Benning, accompanied by a wind that at times assumed near cyclonic proportions. The damage in the garrison, however, was minor only, although at times dwellers in the old wooden barracks and quarters imagined themselves at sea in a rolling boat.

The storm gathered quickly and at about 6 p. m. hit the garrison in all its fury. Small unattached objects such as g. i. cans, chairs on porches and similar knick knacks were hurled about with abandon. The smaller branches of trees were torn off and scattered far and wide. Brilliant lightning flashes and reverberating peals of thunder gave all the necessary accessories of a real tempest. In a short time the storm passed on, but near midnight returned to put on a real electrical display, this time without the accompanying wind. Plenty of rain fell throughout.

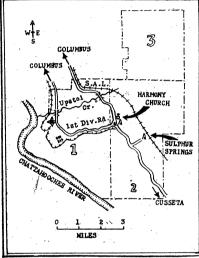

The electric line and poles on Wold Avenue between Gowdy Field and the Historical Circle were blown down and across the road, causing the electric lights to go out of commission until about 9 p. m. In the 7th Engineer area a temporary barracks, just occupied, was blown off its foundations and out of shape. Another into which troops were about to move was completely demolished. An enormous section of a large tree near the junction of Clark avenue and Austin Loop was torn off and slightly damaged the roof of the quarters of Captain Bishop, 14410 Austin Loop. A similar accident occurred to the quarters of Major Mc-Guire in Block 15. A large oak in block 16 near the tent houses opposite the Commandant's quarters blown down, as was another near the Officers Club Hop Room.

Throughout the fury of the the new roof of Gowdy Field, by Sproule and Deaderick whose trusses never fall, stood staunchly and sturdily, bloody but unbowed.

At Camps Sater and Connell where the mighty Blue warriors were encamped waiting for the opening of the death struggle with the hated Reds, the major part of the tentage stood up well. Mess tents and other large can-vas shelters were blown over, but the sleeping apartments erected by the 29th Infantry doughboys were made of sterner stuff.

REDS AND BLUES FIGHT TO A FINISH IN COLONEL COCHEU'S PRIVATE WAR

Special Correspondent of Infantry News Gives Grewsome Details of Slaughter

Those dratted Reds are at it again. though this time it must be said in their favor that it was the Blues who deglared war. After diplomatic condeglared war. After diplomatic conversations lasting for many weeks, Colonel Cocheu, lord high chancellor of the Blue Empire, broke off relations, and declaring, "We'll spot you all the general and special situations and then beat you," announced that it was to be war to the death. As yet nobody knows what the war's about, but that makes no difference, as it's a fine war anyhow.

Following its usual course this paper immediately dispatched its world famous war correspondent Anon Y. Muss to the war zone so that our readers might keep in touch with the latest developments Arriving at Camp Sater on Wednesday morning our representative went to Blue headquarters to learn the plans of their forces, but met with a very cool reception. "No, I won't tell you what we are going to do," said the Blue leader; "In fact I won't even tell you what we have done, because we may want to fight this same war over again some other

POSTMISTRESS IS AGAIN REAPPOINTED FOR FORT TO FOUR YEAR TERM

Miss Jessie I. Crichton Receives Word of Continuance of Her Post As Mailman

Word has reached the Garrison from Washington that Miss Jessie I. Crichton has been re-appointed Postmistress for Fort Benning

She first assumed duties as such in July, 1920, when the establishment here was in embryo, and rated as a Fourth Class Post Office. In 1921, due to the great increase of business resulting from the expansion of the student and permanent personnel, the Post Office was made Second Class, jumping the intermediate rating and Miss Crichton received an appointment for four years from the Harding administration. Her new appointment will carry her close to the grequired s retirement length of service.

In her time here, Miss Crichton has expanded this office and her force to meet the increasing demands of the growing garrison. She has recently growing garrison. She has recently secured additional mail service at more convenient hours, the first incoming, sacks now arrive early in the morning, and the last to leave departing about four in the afternoon.

Prior to taking over the place of Postmistress, Miss Crichton was em-ployed in the Constructing Quartermaster's department where she had very responsible tasks in connection with effecting the settlements between the Selden-Breck Construction Comthe Selden-Breck Construction Company. After construction work was suspended, she went for a time into the Property Office where she performed with efficiency, perseverence, and application until the opening of the Fort Benning post office.

READY FOR BEGINNING MORE CONSTRUCTION ATOP OF RICHE HILL

Constructing The Capt. Wm. McK. Scott, Q. M. C., has received plans and specifications for the construction of a laboratory building to be located in the rear of the main building of the new hospital. The construction will conform very largely in appearance to the main building. The foundation will be concrete with a cellar partially excavated in which will be located an animal room, store room and gas machine room. The first floor will contain an autopsy room, viewing room, waiting room, office and three rooms devoted to laboratory purposes. The exterior to laboratory purposes. The exterior walls will be hollow tile covered with stucco. The building will be 72' 4"x-39' 4" and will furnish in permanent form much needed laboratory facilities.

Last September a Brigadier-General stood by a building in Biglerville and recognized a former co-worker of 1911. As the old-timer stepped across the turf in response to the greeting of General Eltinge, guns of the field artillery began to boom the general's salute. And they stood and took it to-

In mid-winter, General Rhodes, who had also been with General Eltinge at Winchester, Virginia, working on the revision of cavalry drill regulations, revision of cavalry drill regulations, used to sit around and bat them out about the old days in the cavalry, with some joking as to why the Quartermaster Corps had secured from the cavalry such an inveterate horseman as Sergeant Williamson.

Over in Biglerville (Block 21), this fine trooper with seven "excellent" discharges and over twenty-five years of service is billeting chief de luxe. He charges and over twenty-five years of service is billeting chief de luxe. He first came to Benning in 1923 from Fort Hamilton, N. Y., to become first sergeant of the Quartermaster Detachment, and two years ago moved into Biglerville to look after generals, janitors, and Willie Riley. He arrived with a discharge which called him way callent saldier lovel faithful "an excellent soldier, loyal, faithful, and efficient,—a credit to the service." His performance since that time has been the same.

Back in June, 1922, when reached the Quartermaster Supply Officer in New York City, detailing Officer in New York City, detailing Sergeant Williamson elsewhere, Colonel William H. Hart, (late Quartermaster General of the Army) wished to keep this man who had worked so well for him through the states of New York, New Jersey and Delaware, and wrote requesting revocation of the orders and saying:

"His duties in connection with the

"His duties in connection with the investigation, adjustment and settlement of automobile accident claims and collection for damages done to government vehicles are of a very technical nature and are being performed in an exceptionally able manner."

Sergeant Williamson first entered the army during the Spanish War, serving in Cuba with the 8th Massa-chusetts Volunteers and in Porto Rico with the 6th Massachusetts, from June. 1898, to April, 1899. In July of the latter year he went to the Philippines with the 26th U. S. Volunteer Infantry and commenced a long tour of duty in the Islands, taking on again in "F" Troop of the 3rd Cavalry. In 1904, he joined "L" troop of the 11th Cavalry at the St. Louis World's Fair, and journeyed to Cuba for the Pacification proceedings with them, filling out a three year hitch. From 1910 to 1913, he was with the 12th Infantry, with the 15th Cavalry, and truckmaster under Quartermaster direction in the regions around Nogales, Arizona.

His next enlistment is one of the very few in the modern American Ar-my that has reached over an even very few in the modern American Army that has reached over an even seven year period, from August 31, 1913, to August 30, 1920. The man who rode the horse had taken to motor transportation, just as General Needles and Pins, Give us a map and Rhodes used to jibe him about mounted a motor cycle instead of a McClel-ARLINGTON CEMETERY a motor cycle instead of a medical-lan saddle. He was on the border and near the end of his three years "ac-tive" when the Mexican imbroglio started, and was kept right on through the World War. He took a motor train from Huachuca to Ohio, to Batthe Creek, to Baltimore, and then to New York, where he remained for nearly five years and performed so well the tasks which General Hart set for him.

When his present enlistment expires in August this year, he will have only about seven months to do before retirement. Biglerville will probably crack and fall to pieces, for his activities there have been regular and convincing. "Pee Wee" Kemp knew how obliging the Sergeant could be when that delicately rotund student arrived in a rush of heat last September accompanied by family cohorts. Regulars, guardsmen, and reservists who occupy the thirteen buildings in Biglerville assigned to his care know Sergeant Williamson as an expert on When his present enlistment expires Sergeant Williamson as an expert on janitors, on blankets, on ice water, and on genial assistance.

around him were the signs of conflict. He pressed on down the Cusseta road toward Columbus from which direction toward Columbus from which direction sounds of imaginary firing were distinctly audible. As he went on he began to meet the wounded coming back from the front. Let us quote our correspondent's report from now on.
"The first casualty I met was a supply sergeant from the quartermaster detachment. His face was wan and haggard and his eyes had that fixed stare that indicates shell shock. I could get no coherent reply to any of my questions he only muttered over and over 'Oh, those six thirty sevens, those six thirty sevens." Poor fellow, I had heard the terrible road of those deadly guns and now I was face to face with one of their vic-

I passed on and soon came upon a staff officer sheltered beneath a wrapper indorsement. I asked him how the fight was going. He replied "This is a con-flict the likes of which surpasses anything ever witnessed in modern warfare. Come with me to yonder hill and you can get a view of the struggle." I went. Spread beneath me was a panoramic view of the entire battle field. Far in the distance I could see a small detachment of the Judge Advocate's Department making desperate charge under the 96th Article of War, but the attack broke down under a barrage of special pleas to the jurisdiction. A little to the right of the Bois de Bois Boisson a mounted party from the Finance Department was working frantically to get their long range pay stoppages into action against a strong position held by a small party of Company Commanders. Everywhere there was evidence of terrific carnage. High explosive memorandum receipts had apparently done the most damage to materiel, while rapid fire reports of changes seemed to have caused the greatest loss to personnel.

The roads in every direction were crowded with trucks carrying stacks of morning reports, payrolls, indorsements and memorandum receipts to the sorely pressed fighting line. For the first time I realized the enormous amount of ammunition necessary for modern warfare. Rolling ink vats dashed by beneath me, while batteries of rapid fire type-writers wheeled into action on every

This decoration project was inaugurated last year and it is believed that the service was greatly appreciated by all who requested that the graves of their loved ones be decorated.

Arrangements have been made with a Washington florist of excellent standing to supply wreaths or other floral emblems of standard size and value for the nominal sum of two dollars (22 00). When completed these lars ($2.00). When completed, these wreaths will measure about 22 inches in diameter and will have a bunch of flowers at one side. The ordinary sale value would be from three ($3.00) dollars to three dollars ($3.50) and fifty cents each. Other floral pieces are of proportionate size and value.

For this Memorial Day the same general plan will be followed as last year. It is desired that the standard size wreath or other emblem be used as far as it will be acceptable to those that request that the graves of loved ones be decorated. This will greatly facilitate the handling of the money and the ordering of the wreaths. How ever, if some wish to spend a larger sum on flowers, special floral pieces will be ordered.

If any desire to send Flowers to me direct or have them delivered by a the evening of Memorial Day.

All checks and post office money orders should be addressed to:

THE CHAPLAIN,

and should be in his hands not later than May 15, 1926.

KELLYS TROUNCE MERITAS

In a game full of hits, a few bases on balls and a couple of errors the Second Battalion, 29th Inf. defeated the hard hitting Meritas team by the score of 12 to 9 on the Meritas lot, Satur-

At first it looked like an easy victory for the Doughboys but a ninth inning rally by the millers was stopped only after they had collected 7 hits and 6 runs which sent Newman to the showers. Willis then switched over fro short to the slab. It looked dark for the Foot Soldiers with a miller on every sack but Willis had to pitch but one ball as Thomason popped out to the pitcher and ended the game.

Next Saturday the Kellys will load up in a couple of busses and trek back down to Meritas Park and engage the Millers in another Setto and give the orth Enders another chance.

The features were: the home run by

Wright of Meritas scoring Morgan ahead of him in the 2nd inning and Tuggle of the same outfit rapping out a three-bagger in the 9th with the sacks loaded.

For the Battalion the timely hitting of

Convention of Traveler's Protective Association Sees Demonstration Friday

Meeting in Columbus for their annual convention the Georgia members of the Traveler's Protective Association concluded their proceedings last Friday morning and came to the Fort for luncheon with the 24th Infantry.

Thereafter their long line of automobiles streamed out the Lumpkin Road and up to Hook Range, where Captain Leiber staged a special demonstration Lenoer staged a special demonstration of machine-gun, one-pounder, and trenchmortar firing. It was not a technical show, such as is put on for student officers, but an easy and familiar affair, the historical and general character of each weapon being entertainingly related the historical and general character of each weapon being entertainingly related before actual firing commenced. Assisted by the experts of the Infantry School Detachment, Captain Leiber punctuated his remarks by piercing about twenty-five little gas balloons, only two escaping the stream of bullets from the Brownings, and these escaping only because light puffs of the breeze blew them westwards where fire directed at them might fall on the troops shooting on the rifle range.

One-pounders clipped off their trajectories in brilliant style and bracketed with remarkable precision to show they could "trim a gnat's heel with one round, common steel, and not draw a drop of his blood." Trench mortars sent their tumbling projectiles tossing against the clouds and crashed them into a gully. A particularly interesting feature of this part of the show was the explosion by Captain Leiber just beyond the danger radius from the crowd of T. N. T. blocks equal in size to the charge in the 3-inch bombs. the 3-inch bombs.

Slithering down the dusty road from Maxey Ridge, the procession next went to Norton Court where Captain Four-tain illustrated bayonet training with the National Guard and Reserve Officers class, staging some of his famous "runs" over the course. He got Captain Olmstead on the platform with him and let himself be attacked with bayoneted rifle and with knives, and illustrated methods of disarming, to the enjoyment and wonderment of the crowd.

When Lieutenant Pomerene stepped up with an assortment of T. N. T. and hombs, the crowd started to edge back. After explaining explosives and grenades, he got them on tenter hooks by burning some T. N. T. and when he cut a fuse to show how fast it burns and put it for convenience in a block of T. N. T. (which it could not possibly explode) he worried them to nervousness by appearing unconcerned as the flame drew closer and closer. He exploded bombs for them, and sent phosphorus streaming through the air, and displayed parachute and falling pyrotechnics in use, and the new experimental pistol tracer bullets streaking across the clouds. On Thursday afternoon at four o'clock, the Court of Awards for the Second Competitive Art Exhibit was held in the Art Gallery at Humes Music Company, and the silver pins awarded by Charles Frederick Naegele, of New York and Marietta, the artist who instituted the movement in Columbus to encourage children to appreciate art.

Last spring when for the second time a collection of American paintings from the Grand Central and Macbeth Galleries, was exhibited in Columbus, through the efforts of Mr. Naegele, the children of the various grades, both in Columbus and at Fort Benning wrote letters telling which pictures they liked best and why. For the best letters, these awards were the best letters, these awards were made. By this method, the children, according to Mr. Naegele's idea, are being taught to observe and appreciate the beautiful, and then to express themselves. In a few years quite a different art atmosphere will exist in Columbus says the artist.

Through the small admissions charg ed to see the paintings last year, the City Federation of Women's Clubs was enabled to purchase the painting "South Egremont, Mass," by H. Bolton Jones, well-known landscape painter. The picture, which now hangs in the Public Library, is done near the artist's summer home.

At the age of eighty years, Bolton Jones is still painting and is one of the best known of the landscape artists, a member of the National Academy, and has exhibited his canvases all over the world.

Miss Mary Godard, the new Art teacher in the Public Schools, is assisting very materially with the Art movement of the City Federation.

KEEP THEM ROLLING

There's the blasted buglers calling, from the paulins in the park, Hear the chief of sections bawling, as we line up in the dark; Get that whiff of "slum and coffee," now we're cursing as we load,

Right by section, behind the guidon, and we're upon the road.

Chorus Roll, roll, roll, Oh, keep them rolling, Roll, roll, roll, by battery;
Roll, roll, roll, Oh, keep them rolling, Rolling in the Field Artillery.

There is foam upon the leather, and there's sweat upon the hide,
As the lead and swing together, get the wheelers in their stride;

There's a rumble from each caisson, and a rattle from each pole, There's a growl from all the cannoneers, as along the road we stroll.

Chorus

When the guns are hot and smoking, and there's blood upon the trail Keep the shrapnel rolling forward, bursting to the front like hail;

Do your damdest, like a soldier, let the "doughboys" see that we Are now sending what's expected from the Field Artillery.

Why Worry About A Car?

You either own one or you don't. You always have two alternatives. If you don't there is nothing to worry about, except getting one. If you do, you have two alternatives; either you insure it or you do not.

If you insure it you don't need to worry. If you don't, there are two alternatives; either you sustain an accident or you don't. If you don't, you needn't worry. If you do there are two alternatives; either you get damages, or you pay the other fellow. You have two alternatives; either you get damages, or you pay the other fellow. You have two alternatives each way. You either get paid by him or you don't. If you do, you're lucky. If you don't, you may sue. If you don't get a judgment, you're out of luck; if you do, he may have nothing you can attach and you're still out of luck. If you pay his damages, no need to worry. If you don't, he may sue you. If he loses, thats his worry. If he wins—

Have you cash to pay the judgment of damages? If you have, you're lucky. If you have not, are you judgment-proof? Can he collect? These are the answers to the last two questions, no alternatives available. If you are in the Services, No to the first, and Yes to the second. Better let us pay for you.

"Army officers are notoriously rotten penmen. So difficult has it been for the finance auditors to decipher signatures that the War Department recently ordered all signatures to be typed or printed first and then signed. #### "FOLLOW ME"

Special credit is due those officers of the garrison who stepped right on board of things last Tuesday morning after the hard wind storm had demolished various things about the reservation. The Police Officer was on the job early and before most of the Academic Department went to work, rubbish and broken limbs were already cleared up to a large degree, and some of the huger broken branches were down from the roofs on which they rested. By noon, piles of neatly sawed lumber were the only traces left.

The Signal Officer performed a notable feat. Finding the poles on Wold Avenue down from the Historical Circle to Gowdy Field, he set his crew at the job and before night fell an entire new line of poles was in place. The men worked their heads off and deserve great credit.

Damage to the maneuver camps was quickly repaired because the Quartermaster Corps got busy with prompt service for the line. At four in the morning new tentage was on its way out. By eight o'clock the canvas areas at Harmony Church and Sulphur Springs looked as neat and trim as they had before the gale struck.

"FOLLOW ME"

In the office of this paper is a long black book with ruled lines and columns something like an organization Morning Report. In that book is kept a record of the circulation of this paper, subscriptions and cash sales. Each week, on a horizontal line, there is entered the number of copies that are sent to the various organizations of the in the success of the show. A club that garrison. This layout permits the editor to determine exactly what measure of support is being given this publication by the various units.

Looking over this book, like an adju- mented for the success of "Pinafore."

tant scanning a morning report, it is possible to compare strength with subscriptions.

Striking among the figures is a single fact. The Medical Corps, including Dental and Veterinary and Medical Administrative Corps officers, is far and away ahead of all the others in the proportion of individual subscriptions to officer personnel.

. When we find "H" and "B" and the Service Companies of the 29th Infantry subscribing very heavily, there is a corrolary. These outfits are deeply interested. Their company notes come into the editor's desk with great regularity. Soldiers from these outfits find their names and the names of their companies frequently in the paper as blue pennant winners, as contest winners, as performers in school demonstrations. They get the News and mail it home. But it is a long day since the Medical Detachment sent it any notes. The officers of the Medical Corps are not rearing very much in print as golf enthusiasts, as team coaches, as players of conspicuous roles in general garrison activities.

Of course we like the subscriptions. But above all we like to see a group of officers so keenly interested in what is going on in the garrison at large as to be far and away ahead of all the others in the proportionate subscription analysis.

Usually when a show is put on the names of the producers are blazoned across the sky in electric lights. It is the genius of this or that manager or director that is said to be responsible for the superlative performance.

Last week the Infantry School Glee Club presented "H. M. S. Pinafore" in an exceptionally creditable manner. The leading actors and singers, actresses and singeresses (if there be such a word). were mentioned as stellar attractions. Proper credit was due for the work of Captain Saulnier, Captain Tharp, Captain Beebe, Captain Huddleston, Lieut. Simmons, Lieut. Carraway, and the rest. The songs of Mrs. Partridge and Mrs. Boyd were adequately described.

But three of the main workers in the Glee Club were unobtrusive and yet

It was only a small note on the pro gram that told of the splendid assistance and co-operation in the preparation of the play that was given by Mrs. E. S. Butcher. It was only on the program that we were told that it was Captain George L. King who directed the orches tra, and even that did not tell all the honest and hard labor he had put into the general presentation of music, chorus singing, and principal solo renditions It was only a minor role that was played by Mrs. Karlstad, leading the chorus singing as the first and favorite cousin of Sir Joseph Porter.

Meenan brought back a type of play diametrically opposed to the style employed by Joe Deering, his predecessor, who agreed with most of the other league coaches in adhering to the socalled five-man defense. The present mentor, on the other hand, predicated his teachings on a system of play that held each man particularly responsible for his opponent when the rival five was pressing the attack. In short Harry Fisher's theories and practice were again installed at Columbia and the same game which was such a success twenty years ago once more proved the soundness of its principles. success of this incorporation of the man-to-man defense in the Lion's game is attested not only by the won-and-lost record but also by the point-scoring figures. In eighteen games. Columbia tallied 623 points to 409 for opponents; in ten league clashes the points stood 328 for and 232 against."

MILITARY MEN

ARE SURPRISED

The action of the House and Senate Military Committees in reporting favorably a bill to reappoint to the army, in the position from which he was discharged via Class B Board, Chester A. Rothwell, formerly a captain in the Corps of Engineers, who was discharged last June, has caused much surprise and amazement to military authorities.

This is the first of these cases to be favored by the military committees to the extent of authorizing restoration to the army. Interest attaches to the incident because the War Department did not give its support to the bill, but, on the contrary, stated that there was nothing irregular in the circumstances at-tending discharge of the officer, and nothing that required legislation to correct an injustice to an individual. Nevertheless, the independent investigation conducted by the military commit-tees led to unqualified recommendation for the officer's restoration, with inti-mations that the system which places an officer in Class B operated defectively by ignoring his exonerating defense.

Some of the committee members expressed the opinion that there was back of the proceedings an influence that has the appearance of persecution.

some inspiration from the old Mess Sergeant.
"Mac," says I, sparring for an opening, What do you think of all these countries appointing dictators?"
"Well," says McNulty, "The dictator business is about like this. Some dountries are born with dictators, like in South America; others achieve a dictator, like Italy or Spain, f'r 'nstance; while others, like ourselves, have a dictator thrust upon thim."

"What do you mean, Mac?" says I, some surprised. "We haven't any dic-

"Oh an' haven't we thin," says Mc Nulty, "An' maybe you haven't heard of a gentlemin named Mr. McCarl."

Maybe you are right" replied,

Maybe you are right 1 replied, "But Mac, do you happen to know anything about Prohibition?"

"Very little," says Mac, "I've been on a furlough in New York state."

"But Mac," says I, "what do you think of these Wets trying to have the Velstead Lawy changed?"

the Volstead Law changed?"
"Do they?" says Mac, "Well there's no satisfyin' some folks. Why any no satisfyin' some folks. Why any Wet should be kicking against the Volstead Law is more than I stead Law is more than I can see.

"Well Sarge," says I, feeling that the old fellow was leading me into deep water or worse, "I see where the foot soldiers aren't going to be needed in the next war. They claim it will be all heavy artillery and airplanes." "And maybe they're right," says

Mac, "You remimber the Heinees had a gun that would shoot seventy miles. And I wouldn't be a bit surprised," he added, "If the next war wasn't even Why I can remimber th' time worse. whin th' artillery could sometimes see their target; but if things 'kape' on th' way they have been doin', the gunners will soon have to wait for morning' papers to find out what they

"And th' airplanes; why the aviators, bless their hearts, think that the next war will all be fought in the air; but there is one little thing that makes me doubt thim."
"What's that, Mac?" I asked.
"Well," says Mac, "I can't put much faith in an aviator who says the nixt

"Well, Mac," says I, tryin' to get the old fellow up in the air, "Do you see where they are figuring on building a plane that can go so far up in the air it can't be seen?"

"Yes," says Mac, "And when they get up there, if they're no more accurate shootin' a gun, than they are shootin' th' 'bull' they'll very likely aim at th' earth an' hit th' moon!"

"An' that aint all," says Mae, as I

A DISTANT GRAVE

Soldiers dead are never forgotten, although is some cases a good many years roll by before the government accords final recognition to those who accords final recognition to those who give their lives to their country.

A monument has just been placed at Big Rock, Idaho, to mark the grave of Private Harry Eagan, Company C, 2nd Infantry, who was killed August 20th, 1879, by Sheepeater Indians. To place the stone which marks Private Fagan's last resting place a trip of 70 miles by wagon and 40 miles by pack train was necessary. The monument, is the most remote in this country under the care of the Quarcountry under the care of the Quartermaster General of the Army.

The engagement in which Private Eagan lost his life was participated in by Companies "C" and "K," 2nd Infantry, and Troops "D" and "G," 1st Cavalry. The 2nd Infantry is now at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, on the outskirts of Chicago, while the 1st Cavalry is at Marfa, Texas.

A West Point officer made a visit to his small home town recently. Since he saw it last he has girded the globeseen battle in China, Turkey, France. England and Germany. He had romanced with life in Java, Formosa and Bombay—slept in camphor trees, watched stars in the equatorial night, stuck pigs with royalty in India and hailed the dawn with a hiccough on Montmartre hill. In front of the general store was one of the ancient whittlers who had apparently never moved since the young man left home. He paid his respects.

A FATHER ADMONISHES HIS SON ON ARMY LIFE

By Michael Hoekstra

You're enlisted in the Army, now be careful what you say

As the world you will not find there placed upon a silver tray; are first known as a rookie and there's lots that you must learn And what other boys are doing, that is none of your concern.

Be a gentleman at all times; do the things you're told to do; Be obedient to your non-coms, prove to them that you're true blue. When you're on for K. P. duty, do not fret and stew and pout For the Sergeant will report you if you don't watch out.

For the Sergeant of the company or battery which you're in,

Is the one who's always knowing when you've done some Army sin

As the non-com might be watching, he's been put out for a spy;

Don't you ever get the notion that somehow you will get by.
Discipline and obedience in the U. S.

Army life. Are two strict regulations each soldier should learn to strife; When lights go out, when taps blow, then do not make noise nor shout you don't watch out.

reveille you are late

you they're going to wait;
And don't ever miss formation when you're going out for drill;
If you're not on time each morning, they'll soon put you in the mill.

Now the mill, that is the guard house, I will try to make it plain

Don't indulge in drinking nor gambling nothing thereby will you gain; When some officer instructs you, don't give him a big mouth Cause 'twill get you into trouble if you don't watch

Once there was a little rookie who did not care a damn

He thought soldiers in the Army who soldiered for Uncle Sam

Could just lead a life of leisure and 'twas

Heaven on this earth;
A continuous round of pleasure, one of laughter, song and mirth.
He was put on sentinel duty and when the O. D. came around.

He found the carefree soldier who was sleeping very sound.

He was soon put up for trial, and found guilty without doubt;

He got six months in the guard house for he didn't watch

As I close my conversation which I have penned to you Don't forget that I, your father, was once a soldier too,

I have never yet advised that in the Army you should go But now that you've enlisted, it's up to you to know;

I've given you my views on it and let it be your aim,

To always be obedient and keep your record free from shame,
Do not let them mark or brand you as a harmless, worthless lout For you're bound to get in trouble if

don't watch

-The Come Back.

THE GUARD HOUSE LAWYER

Just stop now and think it over Army life is not a bed of clover The guard house here awaits for you And remember it holds, yes quite a

And when you enter take my advise Remember your walking on thin ice A lesson once I can still recall From a guard house lawyer who knew it all.

You look here, Kid, when you go up You got to throw an awful bluff Just listen to me and when I'm through You'll know just exactly what to do.

My case came up and I took the stand But they made me feel just like a clam.

The judge looked upon me with scorn Saying, "Young man, it's the same Saying, "Youn old song.

Back to the guard house, but Oh how

And the lawyer stood within the door "Hello there, Kid, how did you make

I suppose they're going to let you out?"

Why yes, I told them just as you said For some non-com might report you if But I thought that they would all drop dead

As a lawyer you will never do You are just like the army stew."

"Now you may be good and all of that Do not think for any minute when for But keep your advise up under your

That when they read the roll call, for Don't think that you can beat them at their game For they know from whence it came.

-Hoof Prints.

ARMY FEVER

When your first hitch is over And you have cashed your finals few, And a breakfast made of Flapjacks Is all that's left to you, And you toy with your collar As you don your suit of cits While your bunkie, sitting near you Has the bluest kind of fits, You a'bubbling over with pleasure At the thought of going out, The friends at home will greet you, Of that there's not a doubt, And it never seems to strike you That you have made a beaten track, In the years you've been a soldier That you might go back.
So you hasten out as reveille goes
The last call you have to stand— And you bid farewell to comrades As you firmly clasp their hands. First call for drill is sounding From the bugler's throat of gold But you are free, "Don't have to Stand no drill in heat or cold." Altho you get to wondering As things fade from sight If drilling was so hard As walking Post at night. You think of course when first discharged

One feels sort of sad But it's the Army fever symptoms-And you have got them bad. You're in business on the outside And you're making good it seems But the bugle keeps a-calling And a-calling through your dreams Then some day you meet a soldier On a furlough for a week,

Colonel Delaplane with the White Hat Band

And you think it only friendly To go up to him and speak. And you find you knew his brother Or his cousin, or his friend, And your job on the outside Has found a sudden end For a longing fierce comes over you And you cannot resist It's the crisis of the fever-And you re-enlist.

THE MODERN FLAPPER A MILD-EYED KITTY

We wonder how many of you fellows think the modern "Flapper" as something startlingly new, and believe that up to the time when the little "Flapper" first began to feel her cets (or was it her wings?) as she oats (or was it her wings?) as she evolved from the suffragette type, that women had been wandering around the earth in a condition of sad-eyed innocence, waiting for hand-some men to come along and rescue them from all sorts of childish predicaments.

Here it is, straight dope right out of our ancient history.

About 2,500 years B. C. Semiramis, who was the daughter of a Captain in the Army of a Syrian king, dressed herself in men's clothing and hiked along with her dad on the campaign.

TANKERS STOPPED BY LIONS

Lefty Mays pitched a fin e game against the Columbus Lions in the Swift field yesterday afternoon, but the aggregation of ex-collegiate stars, Strupper, Thomason, Doug White, J. D. Chestnut, Chas. Dudley, et. al., was in the end too much for the remnants of the Tank team that was not out at the maneuver camps. Six to one was the final score, and the Lions won, but the Tankers did well to hold so formidable a team to anything less than twenty. One-to-one the score was breezing along, until the Lions hit a break, and went out in front and it was Knight who was scored as winning pitcher, not Mays.

THE INFANTRY

Give my love to the rank and file Of the Regular Army men, Who can march all day and march all night,

And win a battle then.
The seasoned soldiers, hard as nails, The flower of the brave and free, For the good right arm of Uncle Sam Is the U. S. Infantry.

It's a long red road that the boys must

Where the bombs and bullets fly, But the starry flag is their charge to keep,

Aloft in the sunlit sky. So my spirit follows the guidons gay, And my heart goes over the sea, With the footsore, dusty but dauntless men

Of the U.S. Infantry.

It's the biggest hike that they ever took And the end is far away, Where the quick and the dead together sleep

In the dugouts scooped in the clay; But the first ones up and over the top
In the battle front will be he olive drab and the slanting steel

Of the U. S. Infantry.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF SOUTHERN LUZON Manila, P. I., July 6, 1900.

To the Depot Quartermaster, Manila, P. I.

I have the honor to invite your attention to the fact that though application was made some weeks ago for a suitable conveyance for the use of the Inspector General of this Department and myself, the only result thus far has been the "hope deferred" that "maketh the heart sick" and which, at the same time, makes the rest of one's individuality extremely

The fact that the conveyance now in use by Major Beach and myself is an unattractive combination of hearse and chicken coop is one that I can endure in a becoming spirit of humanity, though it might seem proper that there should be some visible evidence that in the matter of transportation the senior staff officer of an important department is given more consideration than is habitually extended to a company slop-barrel; but it may well be doubted whether it accords with the best interests of the service to provide such a rickety and jolting conveyance for a staff officer that upon his arrival at his office he finds his inner man churned to an unlovely omelet composed of the wrecks of his viscera, his conscience and his professional attainments.

This request is neither inspired by pride nor prompted by the spirit of a sybarite. I do not aspire to an iron chariot such as baffled the Almighty in his campaign against the Canaanites of the Valley (Judges, I, 19), nor even to a buckboard of the pattern rendered famous in more recent military opera-tions. Nay, more, I do not even aspire to a participation in the wheeled glory of my juniors in rank at Division Head-quarters, nor to the vehicular grandeur of a newly created Quartermaster, but I would like to have a conveyance which I could leave standing with a reasonable degree of confidence that it would not be removed, in my absence, by a police party, as an offense against the landscape or a menace to sanitation.

The vehicle with which I am now provided offers an appearance of impending disintegration not unlike that presented by a man with his suspenders broken and ten Mexican dollars in his trousers pockets; and its imitation of the "One Hoss Shay" is doubtless delayed only by a Castilian spirit of procrastination acquired from its makers.

To be sure, there remains the alterna of a tropical sun, which would be perfectly feasible if one could escape a "cabeza caliente" or consider his liver with the same indifference that the late Mr. Vanderbilt entertained for the public. But the alternative of my melting away in an atmosphere of humiliation is not attractive to me, though it may not be devoid of hopeful features for

Trusting that this delay in the matter of providing me with a suitable conveyance is due merely to a climatic spirit of "manana" and is not an evidence of an original sin on the part of the Quartermaster's Department, I am,

A FRIEND OF THE FORT

The Station Hospital was recently presented with over 500 plants and shrubs from Albert Kindervater's Nursery on the Fort Benning Highway. These have been distributed around the grounds at the New Hospital and Old Hospital and on the roof gardens at the New Hospital. This kind donation has been of great help in beautifying the hospital grounds and buildings. The active interest shown by Mr. Kindervater, who was placed on the retired list at this post in 1924 with the rank of Master Sergeant, in Fort Benning and Benning activities has always been a matter of gratification to those who matter of gratification to those who have benefitted by his kindness and his yearly donation of plants and shrubs to the Station Hospital is always gratefully received.

Palmer, Spencer are due back from their fur-lough in the jungles of Georgia. They ought to bring back with them some vivid experiences.

Pyt. Elsea re-enlisted with us last Friday and is now enjoying his 90-day furlough in Graysville, Tenn. Lest it be forgotten Pyt. Elsea helped win second prize for the Engineers at the

We were sorry to hear that Pvt.
Culbreth's grandmother passed away last Tuesday. He left at once for Edison, Georgia. The funeral will be held Thursday.

As usual the Engineers worst part of it. The recent storm wrecked our two new barracks, the mess hall, latrine and Pvt. Bufkin's tent. After the storm, hats, shoes and Pvt. Teal's unusual collection of pictures were found all over the parade ground. Corp. Danielski was found under his bunk.

The Tanks beat us again, this time by the old fashioned method of making more runs. Perhaps if our second baseman hadn't felt the need of a stimulant just at the wrong time—.

It goes down on the books as baseball game but from the Spectator's viewpoint it resembled the Marathon of ancient days. The batters ran of ancient days. The batters ran around the bases and the fielders ran after the balls. After two hours and seven innings of this the Tanks were found to be the winners by the score of 16-15. We'll trim them yet even if it takes all summer.

OF ALABAMA IS MADE BY HAPPY HEART TEAM

Three of Four Games Are Won by Large Scores, while Fourth is Dropped by One Run.

Captain Eberle and his Happy Hearts from the West end of the gar-rison reversed the order of the maneuvers and invaded Alabama last week for a series of games. Four games were played, two with Alabama State Normal and one each with Selma University and the Montgomery Gray Sox. Last Thursday Alabama State Nor Last Thursday Alabama State Normal was overwhelmed 12 to 3, the Alabamans never having a chance against the slugging of the west end batters and the steady pitching of V. Williams. Friday the score was even more top-heavy, the soldiers this time piling up 16 tallies while the home toom again gathered 3. Vance was on team again gathered 3. Vance was on the mound for the Happy Hearts.

Saturday the team moved over to Selma and crushed the Selma University outfit 16 to 3. Terrific slugging again featured, while both V. Williams and Vance, who toiled on the hill, pitched good ball.

But it was a different story Sunday in Montgomery when the soldiers tangled with the Gray Sox. Trammell hulling mainstay nitched well. tangled with the Gray Sox. Trainmell, hurling mainstay, pitched well and should have won his game. The Happy Hearts went into the last half of the ninth leading 3 to 2 and succeeded in retiring two of the home batters before a tally was recorded. A wild throw, however, gave the Sox 2 runs and the game, 4 to 3. Smiley for the Alabamans held the soldiers well

All games will be played on Gowdy Field, starting at 3:00 P. M. each date.

One commissioned officer will be allowed to play with each team at any time during any game.

All protests must be submitted within 24 hours, in writing, to the Athletic Council for consideration.

In connection with the matter of protests, the following excerpt from the Official Baseball Rules is quoted: "The Captain alone shall have the right to protest any decision and seek its reversal on the ground that it is in conflict with a section of these rules. No Captain shall protest a decision of the umpire where it is simply a matter of judgement of the latter. Protests on balls and strikes are absurd."

Protests which deal with matters of judgment on the part of officials and which do not involve a very specific misinterpretation of the rules very rarely entertained.

It is desired that organization commanders call the attention of their manders call the attention of their subordinates to the fact that games such as football and baseball require personal courage, teamplay and sportsmanship. Any derisive expression on the part of spectators is a manifestation of poor sportsmanship and failure to appreciate the spirit of good, clean wholesome athletic competition. ## INFANTRY POLOISTS RETURN FROM VISIT TO FT. OGLETHORPE

Benning Team Fails to Win any Championships, but Makes Good Showing

Major H. J. M. Smith and the other Infantry School polo players, Capt. Forsythe, Capt. Whisner, Lieut. Elkins and Lieut. Uncles are back from the tournament play at Fort Oglethorpe. While the Infantry team failed to win either the Corps Area or the Southeastern Circuit championship the showing made by the school four was very satisfactory.

Meeting the strong Ft. Oglethorpe Freebooters in the first game of the trip the Benning poloists were defeated in a close and hard fought encounter 7 to 6 in the Corps Area tourney which was played without handicap. The same game counted in the Southeastern Circuit competition and went as a victory for the Infantry 8 to 7 by cirtue of a two goal handicap.

The next contest was with the Governor's Horse Guards from Atlanta. Benning won easily 13 to 5. This game was for teams that lost in the first round of the Corps Area tournament.

Last Saturday the finals of the Southeastern Circuit was played, Benning meeting the 6th Cavalry four from Ogle-For seven of the eight periods the Infantry team lead, but a rally by the Cavalrymen in the final chukker snatched victory from defeat in the closing minutes of the game. The final count was 12 to 10.

Sunday the Governor's Horse Guards were again met in an exhibition contest before the Corps Area Commander. Again the Benning team was victorious, this time by 8 to 3 in six periods.

The returning officers state that the trip was a very enjoyable one, and that the officers at Ft. Oglethorpe made every minute of their stay at the Fort pleasant.

McDUFFY HURLS NO HIT GAME

What is believed to be the first No Hit, No Run game on Gowdy Field this year was turned in Friday by Pitcher "Trifling Sam" McDuffy, of the Kellys. This enabled his team-mates to romp over the Green Caps rough shod to the tune of 12 to 0. In addition to pitching invincible ball he had a perfect day at bat with 3 singles and a walk in 4 trips to the plate. Although he worked in Thursday's game both as a relief pitcher and 3rd baseman he showed the small crowd in the grand stand that he had lots of stuff left over from the day before.

Other features of the game was Parris pulling down Buck's line drive in the 3rd inning and doubling Heckert at 1st, thereby killing all hopes of the Greenies scoring.

TOURNAMENT HONORS WON BY MRS. ELKINS AND COL. W C. JOHNSON

Five Garrison Tennis Events Completed and Prizes Awarded Last Saturday

While Lieutenant S. B. Elkins was at Fort Oglethorpe performing finely for the Benning Polo team in the Fourth Corps Area and Southeastern circuit championship tournaments, Mrs. Elkins stepped out on Sgt. Donovan's finely conditioned tennis courts and won two championships for herself, in ladies' singles and with Colonel Wait C. Johnson in mixed doubles. She played in four matches and won them all in straight sets, only one of which was even forced to deuce.

In ladies singles Mrs. Elkins met Mrs. Schneider in the semi-finals and was returned victor by scores of 6-4, 6-1. In the finals she was opposed by Mrs. Wessels, who defeated Mrs. Potter, 6-4, 6-2, in the seni-finals. Mrs. Elkins won 7-5, 6-2, being pushed to the limit in the first set but running the limit in the first set, but running out the deciding one in quick fashion.

In mixed doubles Mrs. Elkins and Colonel Johnson downed Mrs. Schneider and Captain Wessels, 6-3, 6-2, in the semi-finals and wen from Mrs. Wessels and Major Balsam, 6-1, 6-2 in the final round. Mrs. Wessels and Major Balsam won their way into the finals by defeating Mrs. Potter Captain Kennon in a hard for three set match, 12-10, 2-6, 6-4. fought

Friday and Saturday afternoon saw the conclusion of the officers' club tennis tournament at Fort Benning, in which Mrs. S. B. Elk ns and Colonel Wait C. Johnson starred in unmistakable fashion.

Captain Kennon had previously tak en the Class "B" singles title by beating Captain Barber, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4. Colonel Johnson and Johnny Helms had previously taken the men's doubles ti-tle, in a brilliant and closely contested match from Major Bılsam and Captain Christenberry, 5-7. 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2

The grand finale of the tournament was staged Saturday afternoon amid a circle of cars filled with spectators, Colonel Wait C. Johnson facing Capin excellent form, displaying a surety of service and an accuracy of place-ment and passing shots that could not be gainsaid. Trap shots, backhanders, smashes, block shots and cross court drives, he handled with certainty and speed, and took the match by overwhelming superiority  $\mathbf{of}$ 6-1, 6-1, 6-1. In the men's doubles a pair of ten nis rackets of the finest patterns were the prize. In the other events, ster-ling silver goblets went to the win-ners, and sterling sherbet cups to the runners-up, Colonel Johnson being a triple and Mrs. Elkins a double win-ner, securing the greatest measure of appreciation.

KELLY'S LOSE

In a loosely played game played last week, marked by lots of errors and some wierd fielding, the First Battalion 29th Inf. defeated their Buddies from the Second Bats. to the tune of 12 to 5.

George of the 2nd Bat. tried to pull a "Kjelstrom" by starting out as a pitcher then swapping with McDuffy at the hot corner and when Thompson hurt his hand by a foul tip off the bat of McGaha he decided he was a catcher and he looked pretty good at that.

Student Officers Finish Annual War Along Cus-seta Highway

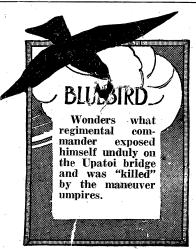

Since the morning of May 11th, student officers of all classes have been living among the whitewashed trees of the center of the reservation. Hidden out in the depths of the forest, as far from the fringes of the reservation as it was possible to get them, their means and groans have scarcely reached the garrison, save on a few occasions when there drifted in snatches of that pretty little

And with the Umpires stand,
A white rag round my hat
A pencil in my hand.

Although the ten terrain exercises so solemnly described by the Ledger and the Enquirer-Sun, were ferocious enough, were not so smooth and successive as the casual reader might suggest. Each of the ten exercises was given each day, a different group of students attacking the foe with pointed pencil and sharpened wits. Troops consisted of headquarters details and communications outfits Forty-five officers and eight hundred soldiers were necessary to fight the ten battles each day between daylight and dusk. The terrain exercises were actually devised so as to carry students through two main operations

In the first of these, a southern state was at war with a northern state. Those from the real estate regions of Florida were concentrating a division at Albany and preparing to advance on Columbus where but few of the foe were known to be. From Cusseta, they detrained and marched a brigade to seize a foothold in the corrbille of Chattabacches Coun in the cornhills of Chattahoochee County. This brigade met a little resistance

BENNING TO RECEIVE $725,000 UNDER BILL FAVORED BY CONGRESS

Large Sum Made Available To Continue Construction Cuartel Barracks for 29th Infantry

Three more sections of the new cuartel barracks for the 29th Infantry will be completed during the next fiscal year under the Deficiency Bill recently pass-ed by the House of Representatives and the Military Committee. The bill appropriates $5,770,000 for army post construction, including $725,000 for barracks construction at Fort Benning.

The sum carried in the bill will be will leave approximately $700,000 more necessary to complete the barracks which when finished will accommodate 2,110 There are now about 375 from the 29th in the new barracks and the three sections to be built will accommodate 700 more approximately.

When the bill came up in the House of Representatives for passage on the Consent Calendar, Representatives Begg, La Guardia and Black objected to its consideration, but Representative James noved to suspend the rules and pass the bill. This motion prevailed and the bill passed with the two thirds majority required by a suspension of the rules, after debate.

Representative Hill, in replying to the opposition to the bill and advocating its passage, pointed out that the expense of making temporary repairs at army posts where the buildings are literally falling apart is wasteful "economy" and characterized the use of public funds in such a manner as "pouring water down a rat hole."

He quoted extracts from the report of the Secretary of War for 1925, telling of the effect of poor housing conditions on the army personnel and said:
"Gentlemen, let us pass this bill as a matter of sound economy, let us pass it and put an end to the danger that now hovers over the lives of 40,000 of the officers and men of the Army, and the lives of their families, let us pass it for the morale and the esprit de corps of the Army.'

Representative John Philip Hill is from Baltimore and has for many years been widely known as a friend of the army. Before the world war he was an officer of the Maryland National Guard, and served through the war as a Major in the 115th Infantry, 29th Divi-Major in the Historian Infantry, 25th Division, with which he participated in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He now holds a commission as Colonel, O. R. C., and commands a regiment of cavalry in the organized reserves.

Officers and men of the garrison are rejoiced to see the solons at Washington break away from the "penny wise pound foolish" policy of attempting to repair old ramshackle buildings that are utterly beyond hope of real repair, and believe that the new policy means the dawn of a new era at Fort Benning.

UTILITIES OFFICER TRANSFERRED AWAY FROM FORT BENNING

Captain Marshall About to Go School in Philadelphia, with Leave First Go

Captain Marshall is about to leave the garrison after only about two years of service at Fort Benning. In that time he has served as Utilities officer and has done a great deal toward improving the comfort and convenience of the personnel here at Benning. Probably the most significant monument to the labors of this army officer out of Virginia Military Institute is the guard house at the Upatoi bridge

With materials collected and vaged from Dorr Field, Carlstrom Field Souther Field and Muscle Shoals, Captain Marshall, under the direction of the Quartermaster, put up a building of the first order with very slight expense to the government, symbolic of the Benning method of construction. In these post-war days, when the flair of patriotic support of the army has swung into a re-action in sentiment and therefore in finance, (Continued on page 2)

TWO BRANCH CHIEFS MAJOR-GENERALS HERE FOR WINDUP OF YEAR

General Robt. H. Allen and General Creed C. Hammond Come To Benning

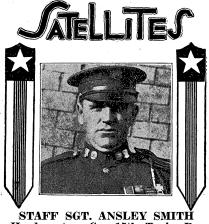

Last Saturday morning the band and the troops were out to welcome the Chief of Infantry to the garrison, General Robert H. Allen coming on his second visit of the year to observe the wind-up of the course and the annual field maneuvers. His last trip here was in November on the occasion of the dedication of the Doughboy Stadium. At present he is the same enthusiastic sport fan he ever has been, attending baseball games with great regularity and swinging a tennis racket on Sergeant Dono-van's courts. He expects to remain until after the graduation exercises.

Wednesday morning there motored into the reservation, Major-General Creed C. Hammond, formerly colonel of the Oregon National Guard, and of the Officers' Reserve Corps, and now Chief of the Militia Bureau, which post he assumed on June 29th, 1925, upon the retirement of Major-General George C. Rickards. He came to observe the work of the National Guard and Reserve Company Officers' Course and of the National Guard Enlisted Specialists' Communications Course.

This is the first time General Hammond has visited Benning in his role as Chief of the Militia Bureau. He was ap-pointed to that post from the Militia Bureau itself upon the recommendations of the National Guardsmen of thirtyfour separate states, having previously served in the finance division of that Bureau and as assistant chief.

Colonel Hammond has a military record of thirty-two years, nine of them in cord of thirty-two years, nine of them in federal service, including a year and a half on the General Staff. Born in Eugene, Oregon, on October 9, 1874, he enlisted in Company "C" Second Oregon Infantry, on April 8, 1892 and has been in the Guard, Regular, or Volunteer forces practically ever since, in addition to having been a successful banker in Portland, Oregon.

He was on active campaigning in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, and the World War. In 1901, he became a second lieutenant in the 4th Oregon Infantry and proceeded through all grades in the Infantry and the Coast Artillery until he became a colonel on September 1, 1911. He was in active service from July 25, 1917 to April 19, 1919, and has been on active duty since August 1, 1920, having served in a distinguished fashion on the original committee to assist the War Department in putting into effect the basic National Defense Act of 1920. Since October 18, 1922, he has been on duty in the Militia Bureau.

STAFF SGT. ANSLEY SMITH Headquarters Co., 15th Tanks Bn.

He is very nearly rotund. He plays tackle on the football team. He looks like a big backstop behind the bat on the Tankers baseball team. He swings a mean willow. He is Staff Sergeant Ansley Smith of Headquarters Company of the 15th Tanks.

Last season as the games units of the garrison approached their conclusion, the publicity hounds were all hoping no one else would do anything worth recording in the scorers book, for on August 25th, nearly at the end of the season, Smitty was leading the batters of the fort in percentages, with 35 at bats and seventeen hits for an average of .486 and that is no mean slugging. But at the finish Fendall Williams of the West Enders just nosed him out.

The reason the publicity hounds were betting on Smith is simple if you know Smith, for they like to play up a man conspicuous in two different lines of activity. And the left tackle who played in every Tanker football game and the catcher with the big batting average, holds the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in the face of the enemy.

Sergeant Smith started his baseball playing in his home town of Danville, Alabama, back in his boyhood days. 1913 he enlisted in the Army and joined "C" Company of the 16th Infantry in Texas, where he promptly made the regimental team. Into Mexico went the young soldier, to swat the greasers as he had swatted the ball. Overseas he went with the 16th Infantry and served under as brilliant a succession of colonels as any outfit has ever had in a short time. The First Division was a fighting outfit and developed fighting commanders, of whom the present Chief of Staff is perhaps the most famous. Twice he was wounded, but he always went back to the outfit, and any man who went through the show with the First Division was a fighter, you can be sure of

And this is the way Sergeant Smith went through the racket with the 16th Infantry in that division, as official orders stated it when he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross: "For extraordinary heroism in action near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. Severely wounded early in the morning, he refused to relinquish command of his platoon, but led its attack to its final objective, remaining in command until he was relieved at nightfall."

This season he began to repeat, by walloping out a home run in a practice game last week against the Second Battalion Kellv's.

MANEUVER SEASON COMES TO A CLOSE WITH REDS BEATEN

(Continued from Page 1.) as it crossed the tracks of the Seaboard as it crossed the tracks of the Seaboard Air Line in the southeastern corner of the reservation near Dilboy Hill. It drove the little cavalry groups ahead of it, proceeding as it did in advance guard manner. It reached almost to the Sulphur Springs turn-off before the resistance stiffened. Then the advance guard battalion decided to go into action, which it did with a vengeance, and started pushing the hated Reds toward Columbus, scampering through the woods and the covered ground on either side of the Cusseta-Columbus road. It pursued them to the Upatoi, and found the Reds as usual not at all put out by their defeats of previous days, and serenely occupying the hills north of the Upatoi. A regiment sneaked some men over and established a bridgehead, the entire brigade went over the following day and began to organize the captured hilltops as word arrived that the inveterate Red Commander was bringing down large reenforcements from Atlanta by train. The brigade had to hold on tight until ts own division could come by rail from Albany and march up from Cusseta, and the problem was a touch-and-go defensive affair, the lines being finally committed to their positions and the affair getting more and more serious every minute. Just as the battle seemed to reach a critical phase, the umpires stepped in and turned the world upside down, or rather they turned it east and west instead of north and south. As in the days of old, Georgia and Alabama were again at war, and the Quartahoochee was the bitter frontier line.

The Blues came over the River and The Blues came over the River and took Bouton Hill and Riley Ridge with much more ease than you would have thought possible if you had seen the Kelley Problem of other years or the modern Hall problem of battalions in attack. Without apparent effort, except on the part of the First Section Academic Department, the Blues rushed Academic Department, the Blues rushed over the reservation and established themselves beyond the line of the Sea-board and Central of Georgia railways, including both Harmony Church and Sulphur Springs within the ground captured, and making a big bend on their left so as to take in Chiles Hill. The Blue Corps took in the harrassed student officers, too, and made them apply their tactical abilities to the job of beating the Reds, which the students were only too anxious to do, with all their memories of the troubles the Red Commander had given them in map exercises and ar games all winter.
But student officers had to be taught their jobs and oriented on the situa-tion, and while they were doing that the were reenforced and began to press back even too hard for the tacticians of the First Section to hold them in check. The first task of the students was to execute a withdrawal to the high ground west of Ochillee Creek which generally parallels the railroad. It looked for a few hours as if they had thrown in their lot with the losing side, but that was all right as it brought them nearer to the main part of the garrisonbut even that hope was in vain, for the Reds granted passes to enable them to go to their camps at Sulphur Springs and Harmony Church. One battalion with howitzers and machine guns attach-ed was entrusted with the job of being outpost over night, which it did successfully for the Reds did not assault, and simply prepared for a big drive later. So the entire Blue Corps began to work hard organizing Manning Hill, Helman Hill, and Adams Hill as strong points to bear the brunt of the expected as-

However, the attack never came. The Red Commander had seen too many student officers max the problems of the academic year. He sat still along the stabilized line and trembled himself. Balloons and airplanes brought exact notes of his dispositions. The Blue Corps determined to attack, and after Blue much preliminary preparation which succeeded more or less in spite of the umpires, the attack went forward to envelop the hostile left. Progress was slow against stubborn resistance, but it was progress nevertheless. The foe extended his line to meet the envelopment, but it was not enough. Student officers knew they could defeat the Red Commander—they had done it so many times before—and they knew that if they beat him this time, they could take a rest for many a month, with nothing but commencement agonies to look forward to.
Of course the attack succeeded.

the Benning of the future must primarily be built by the labors of those who have faith in it.

Such has been Captain Marshall, an energetic worker carrying out the policies and plans of his Quarter-master superior. If you had been at Benning some years back and seen piles of plumbing and heaps of window panes, and mountains of tile and lum-ber lying idly about and deteriorating in the weather, and officers unable to get any moved because of inactivity, you would appreciate so much the more the rapidity of action and the more the rapidity of action and the cordial co-operation of Captain Marshall as Utilities officer.

Captain Marshall came here from the Fitzsimmons General Hospital, where he served as Construction Quartermaster, and he goes about the time this issue will appear on a three-months' leave, at the expiration of which he will report in at Philadelphia to take a course at the Special Service School there maintained by

We know he will carry with him the good wishes of all who appreciate his work, the last evidences of which were promptly displayed last week on Tuesday when the wind storm blew down some poles of Wold avenue which carried Signal Corps telephone cable lines and Utilities lighting wires. The Signal officer was on the job, but it was the Utilities crew that was primarily responsible for those poles, that lived splendidly up to their responsibilities and got them replaced and the lighting system in operation again before the shades of evening again descended upon the garrison. Any organization, any effort, any product is the reflection of the earnestness, the desire to do the job and do it well, of the chief of that organiza-tion. We shall have other Utilities officers in the future, and it would not be appropriate to embarrass them by making extravagant remarks about the present one. But it is possible to pay personal tribute to the person-ality of the man with whom we have lived and worked, whom we have seen working well and batting far above three hundred.

Last Saturday evening, the very day he was succeeded by Captain Scott as Utilities Officer, Captain Marshall was tendered a farewell dinner by his colleagues of the Quartermaster Corps at the Shack on the Hamilton Road, with dance to follow for the officers, their ladies, and the guests.

The boys had a marvelous joyride on the Dinkey railroad going to camp. The only thing they didn't do was help push the train upgrade. None was so well satisfied with the ride as Sheik Gentry. He said it reminded him so much of that famous slow train through Arkansas. The baggage detail also had their share of the fun. They slept among the barrack bags for at least twenty minutes of the time it took us to make the trip. When we arrived at Camp Connell, Sulphur Springs, we didn't get a chance to get our packs off before they were picking all the good-looking men for trench digging details. Next day each man was detailed to do something and it went on like that until Monday, when it came time to go out on our problems.

On one day Mr. Sgt. Gordan stuck his head into tent 21 and asked if all the men in that tent could do clerical work and knowing that the rest of the men had a trench digging detail we all answered in the affirmative, thinking it would be an easy detail. He then told us to report to Lt. Bowman, Co. F, that he would show us what to do. He did show us. With the to do. He did show us. With the help of a couple of axes and some cut pine saplings we learned how to make pack racks. He then told us to build one in each tent. And that was what he wanted men who could do clerical work for. Moral: Don't say you're a clerk in the army.

the tent and all the wind didn't even shake the tent. He weighed one of his shoes (without the shoestring), and it weighed exactly 9 1-2 pounds.

Lt. Bowman, Co. F. 29th Inf., called for men who could hit the nail on the head every time and the only one who responded was Al. Kolman. (Ambitious I reckon.)

Our star pitcher Pete took a tumble at Harmony Church when the boys from the "48" were coming to camp. When the lorry started looping a bedding roll came loose and fell to the ground. Pete followed it.

Hoot Gibson also has a patch of poison ivy on his face, and a few boils to keep him company.

Alabama Roberts lost his inch and a half mouth organ in the storm. Now it 's up to Limey Holmes to strut his stuff on his new uke.

Hoosier Powers done got a good job as camp radio operator. He discarded his uke to the Limey.

Bill McGurran won the competitive drill as a prize monkey. He is the camp's champion pole climber.

Robinson won the mail receiving championship for the week, beating Sheik Gentry by one newspaper.

The storm caused Uncle Perry burn out three batteries to find out where the lightning hit the tent. The joke is on him.

It took Haynes, Comyns and Sjostrom two days to find out a resistance coil burnt out in their radio set. And they're radio experts.

The boys have been detailed to different jobs on the problems and hope to hold them down as expected.

Mostly radio operators and message center chiefs.

The time is short now until the class disbands and departs all over the states. On the 26th we get our dips and transportation and pay, and then depart so this will be the last time we will have the pleasure of placing School an article in the Infantry

The members of the National Guard and Reserve Officers machine gun class were hosts to their instructors Saturday evening before maneuvers at dinner at the Hotel Ralston.

The tables were in a from of the letter F. Each officer's place card had his nick name, which during the

In accepting this beautiful token of appreciation the captain referred to the tree as the backbone of machine gun tactics. To quote him, "Without the (17.04-19.04) the entire machine gun course would gollapse."

Then came the query from our cor-respondent: "Will the Infantry School News handle the obsequies?"

WHITEWASHING THE MANEUVERS

Umpires wear white hand bands. But even this was not enough to give a coat of whitewash to the tactics and strategy being displayed in the vicinity of Harmony Church, Sulphur Springs, the Upatoi Bridge, and the Cusseta Road. The modern Paul Revere mounted his motorcycle and with a lantern on the handle bars, dashed madly over the nightdarkened roads for 800 pounds of whitewash, as the cheering soldiers sang this song:

"Malloney whitewashed the forest well Along came the rain and gave it— It's ain't goin' to rain no more, etc."

Since Benning was made a national forest, the demands have increased with the sprouting trees. But the eye-wash was equal to the occasion: two pounds of white wash, one teaspoonful of salt, one gallon of RAIN water, and sixty degrees Centigrade.

Trees were covered with coats of white. The umpires must remain invisible, as they peeked their white hat bands from behind cover and surveyed the operations. Tree after tree be-came a ghost of its former self. The crews proceeded through the wooded areas until they reached the logging camp, and found so many pieces of tim ber on the ground that operations had to come to a halt. The whitewash ran faster than the new lumber was hauled in place.

Anything of a brown color was liable to be splashed with flying brush, even a khaki colored uniform worn by a high ranking officer.

Graduation was approaching. So was the Chief of Infantry. And the Chief of the Militia Bureau. And the maneuvers must be whitewashed.

AN ARMY INVITATION

Within a lonely army post, afar from

There dwelt a certain Mrs. Smythe, a woman passing fair.

Renowned for hospitality, a model ar-

In house and home a goodly soul, a queen in social life.

One day the spirit moved her, as it oft had moved before,

To give a dinner party to a dozen friends or more.

So forth an invitation sped to each prospective guest,

And it chanced one, Captain Bunker, was invited 'mongst the rest. A smile beamed on the Captain's face, he was a merry sight.

Quoth he, "She wants my company at dinner Wednesday night."

So musing and reflecting as he smoked his evening smoke,

He nailed the opportunity to spring a quiet joke.

With buoyant step he hiked along to his office o'er the way,

He dropped into the swivel chair in manner blithe and gay;
He called the bold "Top" Sergeant and likewise the company clerk,
And pulling all the records out he put them both to work.

They overhauled the muster rolls, they scanned the sick report,

They rummaged through the records of the awful summary court;

They scanned the duty roster, fluttered through the letter files.

The Captain making sundry notes and

The Captain making sundry notes and smiling sundry smiles.

Then speeding gayly home again and throwing off his coat,
He plucked some gilt-edged paper forth and penned his lengthy note:

"Dear Madam, please accept my thanks, I take extreme delight In announcing that my company will greet you Wednesday night.

"Except some very unfortunate ones whom I regret to state

Are barred from being present by the stern decrees of fate.

For instance, four will be on guard and two on cooks police,

And one has been arrested by the Justice of the Peace.

"And one is sick in quarters, line of

And one is sick in quarters, line of duty—so he claims,
And three are in the hospital with
"NO" behind their names;
And two have gone to Leavenworth,
where wicked soldiers go,
And one is down at Riley being schooled in slinging dough.

"And two assist the Chaplain in conducting evening school, And one is out of business from a conflict with a mule;

And four will be old guard fatigue,
two languish in the "Mill."

And one has fluttered from me in a sojourn o'er the hill.

"And one is down in durance vile, for what crime no one knows,

One is in the city bastile playing checkers with his nose;

And two are still uncertain, where they are we cannot tell,

They have been away for seven days, A. W. O. L.

"But, excepting the exceptions I've excepted in my song, company will join you, Madam, sixty-seven strong.

But how about formations, and uniform and all, At what time, tell me, shall I have the buglers sound first call?

Shall we bring along our haversacks, and knives and forks spoons,

Shall we come in line of skirmishers or column of platoons?

Shall we come with pomp and dignity in manner grand and large, Or shall we turn them loose and have the buglers sound the charge?

Will it be full dress and side arms in a four mule touring car, Or if we come in O. D. will we find the gates ajar?

But whatever the formation or whatever we may wear. Let me repeat that Wednesday night, will find my company there. Capt. Geo. A. Steunenburg in The Infantry Journal

"FOLLOW ME"

In mid-June the garrison baseball teams will swing into action starting the race for the Gowdy Cup and making full use of the newly finished stands and roofing at Gowdy Field. The revised schedule just made public includes contests slated between the following nines:

First Battalion, 29th Infantry.

2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry.

15th Tank Battalion.

Infantry School Detachment.

24th Infantry Reds.

24th Infantry Blues.

Also it is announced that the 83rd Field Artillery will enter a team in the second half of the summer series.

That brings the total of teams to seven. Seven teams from this garrison for the great American game, and the game for which the facilities and the opportunities are perhaps better for players and spectators than for any other game played here.

It is to be noted that during the winter, the basketball series between organizational teams of the garrison was well contested with eleven entrants:

1st Battalion, 29th Infantry. 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry.

15th Tank Battalion.

Infantry School Detachment. 83rd Field Artillery.

Company "A", 7th Engrs.

Special Units, 29th Inf.

Medical Detachment.

Ordnance Detachment.

Quartermaster Detachment.

Co. "F", 1st Gas Regt.

If we subtract from the baseball list of seven, the 24th Infantry teams, we find that the same organizations which furnished eleven basketball aggregations can put out only five teams to play the universal American sport. There is something wrong. Particularly is there something wrong when we find tick and doing it well and without the Quartermaster Detachment, the En- thought of personal comfort or convenigineers, the Service Company of the 29th, ence.

and the Printing Shop groups with teams already organized and contesting with civilian teams of the City of Columbus, but not entering in the Gowdy Field series.

It is not the function of the Infantry School News to hazard any guesses as to what is wrong, or to attempt to remedy conditions. There is likely to be, as there is always likely to be in cases like this, a plurality of causes. But what the reasons are, and how sound those reasons are, are things that are known to organizational commanders and team managers: It is believed that a great benefit would result if a full and free discussion of the subject were effected through the proper channels.

Gowdy Field was built for the garrison and for the accommodation of rep resentatives of as many different organizations of the garrison as possible. The difference between five (or seven) and eleven teams on the field in the series will be felt in the stands. Some people will go to games anyway, as visitors to cities attend professional games between teams in which they are not interested particularly; but it is absolutely true that the largest numbers are invariably brought out when people can go to watch play by teams representing organizatinos or units to which the spectators belong.

The essential is to have general participation by the garrison in garrison sports -"athletics for all" as the War Department policy says. Whatever stands in the way of such a result should be frankly and fully faced.

If the teams who have entered the race for the garrison championship and the Gowdy Trophy seem too strong for the organizations who are missing from the schedule, it is suggested that there might be formed a Class "B" League to play games preliminary to the other afternoon contests on the diamond. Such a league would inspire wider participation in baseball for members of this command and would make for a better baseball season and a fuller use of Gowdy Field this summer.

"FOLLOW ME"

When last week's storm hit the pole line running from the Historical Circle to Gowdy Field and laid the wires low, a prompt and energetic crew under Colonel Warfield and Captain Marshall went on the job to replace the poles mentioned in last week's issue, which carry electric light lines and also some telephone cables under the care of the Signal Officer. The speed and the conscientiousness with which these men did their job cause use to nominate them for the roll of honor:

Mr. Cunnie Pierson, chief electrician.

Mr. W. F. Ford.

Mr. C. A. Tillery.

Mr. J. J. Kirke.

Pvt. E. C. Coleman, 15th Tanks.

Pvt. C. L. Henke, Q. M. C.

Mr. Fred Tibbs, Supt. of Utilities. Neither rain nor cold, nor dark, nor heat, stayed them in their work until the new poles were up. We take our hats off to them for doing their job on the

From the Presidio of Monterey we welcome a new service paper, appropriately named "The White Halter Shank" from the old cavalry adage: 'What shows off a mounted command better than a white halter shank."

That Pacific station is principally oc cupied by men of the 11th Horse, and gunners of the 76th Field. The four page weekly manages to write entertainly and aptly of activities of all units of the garrison there with an adequate proportion of space devoted to those sports, baseball, polo, track and field, of interest to the members of the command.

We welcome another colleague to the field of service journals.

LOW VISIBILITY

One of our young runabouts says: Girls are now wearing watches on their garters. This seems much more sensible than the old plan of tucking them away in a pocket where they couldn't be seen.

-The Standard.

It's a terrible War; we know one First Sergeant in the Infantry who sits on his own back porch until the train comes by and then he just climbs on the train and goes to War. If he wasn't a machine gunner we'd tell you who he is.

We have noticed from the local news-sheets that those two well known (or is it too well known) war correspondents, Captain Colby and Henry Averill are keeping an anxiously awaiting public in close touch with the movements of the battling Blues as they desperately endeavor pulse the ravaging Reds. H However as these too well known writers must of necessity deal with naught but dry and dusty facts, they naturally miss much of the humor and pathos of the campaign.

The following letter which came to us the other day and on which we had to pay two cents due postage (because the sender had marked it Soldiers Mail instead of stamping it) may give the palpitant public a clearer insight into the tremendous happenings that are happening in the bogs of the Ochille and in the narrow gorge of the Upatoi.

The blank spaces in the letter mark the trail of the censors shears.

Well after the storm the officer returned to find his sentry gone. He hunted all up and down the creek but there was no sign of any sentry. Then he began to call, kind of low at first and then louder, hoping that if the sentry had taken cover any place he would answer. Finally he heard the sentry's voice coming from out in the middle of the creek, "Halt! Who's there!"

SOOTHING SOUTH SEA MELODIES DELIGHT AT FORT LEGION MEETING

Capts. Robinson and Pakele Entertain Large Gathering. Columbus Post Again Largest in Southeast.

Despite the fact that the majority of the personnel of the fort is in the field fighting the annual battle of the Reds and the Blues, Tuesday's Le gion meeting was very well attend ed. At least a dozen bráve Legionnaires not willing to allow a meeting to pass unattended, journeyed in from the maneuver camp and spent a mighty enjoyable evening. About were present.

Commander Reeves postponed business of the evening until last in order that the program, which consisted of novelty numbers by Capts. Robinson and Pakele might first.

Captain James Robinson, a member of the National Guard and Reserve Officers class is a native Hawaiian and strums a mean "uke" in the duet. was educated in Indiana. Peter Pakele, class mate of Robinson's holds the august position of Chief of Police in Moui but here picks a sooth ing string on the steel guitar and croons in perfect accord with his part ner. Notwithstanding the calls for encores by the pleased Legionnaires the entertainers were forced to cut their offering short and rush back to Camp Sater, where they were due to repeat their evening's show.

Commander Reeves not being able to hold the good news concerning the results of the recent membership drive any longer, brought the house down when he announced that 1201 members had been secured in this year's drive. This exceedingly large number, Commander Reeves stated, would place the Charles S. Harrison Post at the head of the list in Georgia and the southeastern United States. lanta, the only other close competitor failed in the race for the second time This large membership gives the local post the whip hand at the coming state convention, which will take place at Albany June 17th and 18th. Owing to the large membership the number of delegates, forty-eight, and an equal number of alternate-delegates, the Post Commander called the attention of the Benning Legionnaires to the fact that if they desired to go as either delegates or alternates to notify Ad jutant Frank David at the Legion Hall as soon as possible.

Announcement was made that the captured German trophies had arriv ed in the freight office and were ready to be set in their show place as soon as the city of Columbus allotted the appropriate place.

Several new Legionnaires were introduced and then—then "chow" call was sounded. It was a splendid meeting and the kind that is selling the Legion to the eligible at the Fort and Columbus alike. The next meeting will be held in town at the Legion

OVER THE CHINA SEA

Into the land of typhoons and pigtails and rickshaws, go several officers of the garrison to observe the constant clash of rebellious Chinese from the barracks at Tien Tsin. Lieutenant Pomerene received his orders some time ago, and has been long reconciled to forsaking the stunts he pulls with fuses and blocks of T. N. T. on Norton Court. Last week-end there came the orders for the others.

Captain A. S. Champeney, Captain W. H. Evans, and Lieutenant S. L. Buracker of the student officers will proceed, as also will two of the permanents: Lieutenant McQuarrie and Captain R. J. Williamson.

Lieutenant Buracker is an old-timer at Benning, knowing it as a bachelor in the tent row for officers of the 29th that used to stand behind the Hop Room and the Commandant's quarters, and as a benedict since he took unto himself a wife and moved into Block Twenty Three, Taneytown as it used to be called, and Hollywood as some call it since a little episode there some time ago.

Lieutenant McQuarrie's departure has already been commented upon by the Infantry School News, and it is gratuitous to remark that his presence will be missed on gridiron and basketball courtthe peer of any Benning athlete we have ever had.

Captain Williamson arrived at Benning in the fall of 1922, took the course and has for some time been commanding "H" Company of the 29th, firing his machine guns in demonstrations as a part of the famous Blues and sometimes even simulating enemy fire for the hated Reds without comment, feeding this or that group of visiting dames (Colonial Dames Convention) or other delegates. His quarters out on Perkins street are the center of a general exodus. Furniture is going hither and yon. Across the street, Captain Zellars is preparing to move to Macon, Captain Beebe is get ting ready to start for the Presidio, and down the way Buracker is also packing for China.

Then, just after receiving last Saturday the nice news that he had had a three months' leave of absence approved, Captain Frank J. Pearson also got further orders to sail from San Francisco about August 20th for China. The Champion announcer of the Chattahoo-chee, the author of one of the army's finest books on military map reading and sketching, the inventor of a special protractor which has everything on it but the kitchen above, is one of Benning's oldest old-timers and most conspicuous too. When he leaves the swimspicuous too. ming pool will miss his tireless trudgeon stroke, the transit will miss its principal surveying manipulator, the American Legion will have to find another fourth man for the squared circle.

BLANKETS

The findings of the Experimental Board at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., are that the "issue O. D." blanket is the most satisfactory one for the field service of troops. Numerous tests were made of many different kinds and weights of blankets. Blankets containing more wool than the present one were found to be somewhat warmer, but were too bulky for the Infantry pack. They were also found to retain moisture too long. The Board recommended that no change be made in the Army blanket

HOW TO PACK

By Irma Thompson Ireland

During the twenty-odd years I have been knocking around in the Army before, after, and in company with a certain estimable gentleman of the U. S. A., I have packed and moved thirtyseven times, counting changes from house to house. So with that record of experience as a back-ground, what I have to say on the subject of packing might be summed up pertly statement that—moving is a good deal like matrimony—the first fifty years is the hardest Preliminary Preparations.

Now, no matter whether the question under discussion is technical or not, there is always a place to begin; and in the moving game the first thing to do when you get the packing cases off the front porch of a new home is to arrange for a daily paper-and that is where your inexperienced packer makes his initial mistake. It may be you would prefer one of the big thick dailies with rotogravure sections and book-reviews on Sundays, but you'll find when you come to grap table-legs and pack china, that the soft spongy quality of the yellow journals and the average local news-sheet will respond more readily to utilitarian purposes than the substantial organs of erudition and enlightenment

Organizing for the Inevitable

The next preliminary step is entirely one of human fellowship. When your neighbors make their first call be sure to ask them what kind of jelly and preserves they like best. It's an even break that when your orders you will have to pack in such a hurry you will give away your private stock of sweets rather than be bothered with it, so you might as well invest in "preferred" raspberry or pineapple as the case may be. You know our motto has been "Service for the motto has been "Service for the Line." We aim to please—front line, back line—any old line.

A word about organization in pack g. It is very important. Take the Take the matter of sewing materials for instance. I knew an Army woman once who just put her odds and ends of ribbon, feathers, flowers, and cloth in a trunk and called it her "roll trunk." It seemed a very poor arrangement to me, for supposing she were away visiting and wired for her trunk, wouldn't her husband be sure to send her the one with the scraps in it? If he didn't then he would be the single shining example of the perfect spouse.

Years ago I began a system of cataloguing and filing my sewing materials according to their usefulness for different purposes. A few good pieces of gingham like Mary Jane's school dresses carefully saved out for patches, smaller ones for quilt blocks, and nar-row strips for rug rags. That however is only a suggestion. when we went to the Philippines, the box containing all my carefully labelled parcels was left in San Francisco. Mary Jane had to do with alien patches on her rent garments and the time we were able to locate the box again said garments were out-grown and done for. Candor com-pels the statement also as regards organization that when circumstances prevent me from personally attending to the minor details of the packing, usually find my crochet wools in the ice-cream freezer and the contents of the medicine cabinet as likely as not in my husband's boots.

Fortune Teller's Guess Good As Any Any

Scrap-books and envelope collections of souvenirs, dance-cards, photos, pic-ture postals, and keep-sakes of the children are wonderful things to have but for Army people, my earnest advice is to seek a reliable fortune-teller, get her to look into the future and give you a hint as to the spot on the globe where you will eventually retire from the service, then ship your souvenirs in standard Quartermaster boxes to the nearest government warehouse and forget them.

Because I did not realize many of these things in my early days of Army life I find myself now unable to tell which baby shoes belonged to little Billy and which bonnet was Mary Jane's. The shoes and bonnets are packed and stored in Warehouse 29, Army Base, Boston, Mass, and the kodak album, baby-books, and letter for identification in another standard Quartermaster box in San Antonio, Texas, or Fort Eustis, Va. dread the time when Billy's wife asks me for his baby shoes. Perhaps he will be able to get at them for his grandson if they hold out that long. Of course, with the younger ones I have not allowed any such awkward situation to embarrass me. the problem easily by sending hundles of torn and out-grown clothing to worthy charities, only retaining prints of hands and feet for the family history.

Perplexing Practical Problems

So much for the more intimate personal side of packing. When one approaches the practical every-six-or-ten-months job of getting one's household possessions together and ready to ship by boat, train, or motor-truck, there are countless perplexities to be taken into consideration. For instance,—suppose you are living in a rented house or apartment, using your own furniture; and your husband is ordered to duty with troops where you will be entitled to the use of Government quarters and perquisites. You must then rent, sell, give away, or store the dining-room suite you were forced to buy when you took the apartment. Also the gas-stove, dressapartment. ing-table, book-selves, ice-box, duo-fold, and twenty-five or thirty windowshades possessed of a most exasperating individuality.

Gas Ranges and Rented Piano

You have waited six weeks for the definite order, not knowing what to do with your stuff. At the last possible moment the order comes and you put your "ad" in the paper. Besides furniture, you may have an unexpired lease on the apartment; and while you are rushing wildly about getting your personal belongings into the packing cases, throwing things at trunks, and answering the telephone, you are expected to show people through the apartment, explaining the heating system and the rules about children and dogs; stopping at times to rescue your floor-lamp and victrola from the second-hand man, and caution the car-penters about scratching the walls. By the time the crate sand boxes have been loaded onto the truck it's a safe bet that the gas-range and rented piano have been carefully packed for shipment to Fort Blank half-way across the continent while some gloating female is ogling herself in the colonial mirror you swore you would not part with for love nor money.

83rd Field Artillery

GUNNERS BEAT JORDAN CITY

Last Saturday afternoon the 83rd beat everything that opposed them—old Jup Pluvius—the Umpire — the Breaks of the Game—and Jordan City, Breaks of the Game—and Jordan City, by a 12 to 9 score. The score does not signify—if it did, the score would have been about 25 to 1. In reality, the S3rd's end of the debate was the result of aggressive and heady baseball, with the odds with the umpire. Lazy-Bones, better known as Cue-Ball Smith trylled his gual lackadaisical Smith, twirled his usual lackadaisical but baffling game. To enumerate the outstanding stars of the game would be but to offer a roster of the team.
To date the 83rd has played 15 games and has never relinquished the big end of the tally. No team is invulnerable but it is the hope of the gunners to pit their prowess against any of the many good teams in the vicinity.

Fort Benning,

The Cricket Tea Room Columbus, Ga., April 29, 1926.

Dear Major Rice:

We, the girls of the Cricket Tea Room, wish to thank you for your kind efforts in assisting us in securing the recent assignments of several officers of your company. We realize that all the nice officers in Company "C" could not be assigned to Fort Benning but we believe that the nicest and kindest ones were. We have in mind, Lieutenants Wilson (all us girls call him Carl), Raymond MacDonald (he is nice even the he is married), and Nic Woodward (we know married), and Nic Woodward (we know that Nic is soon to be married but he is so friendly) and then Captain Venable. Do you know, that any one that really doesn't know Ben would think him shy but to us girls he is just Ben. He says that he likes for the girls to call him Ben. that he likes for the girls to call him Ben.
We are sorry that the school year is almost over but we do think that some of the boys might wait until the term actually is; we mean Captain Minus and McMullin; we used to be so thrilled when they came in to see us but now they will not notice us, especially that little Captain Minus; several of the girls are Captain Finds, broken hearted.

And Major is it really too late to get know, Panama is so far away and I like Jack so much; it will be hard to replace him. Still, I some times think that he might ask for transportation for a new "dependent". (Don't breathe this to a soul). Yours until next year when we might call on you again for assistance. ance.

We are so sincere, Marie Cricket, For all the Cricket Girls.

SOLDIER SAM STUART STILL STARRING ON COLUMBUS LEAGUERS

Big Benning Boy From the I. S. D. Nears Top Notch in Batting Averages.

Readers of the Columbus papers are getting so accustomed to seeing "Two-base hits: Stuart 2" or "Home Runs: Stuart" in the summaries of games played by the Columbus Foxes, that they would not be at all surprised to read that big league scouts are hastening to the South Georgia city to watch the big boy perform.

Sam played five games for the Muskethers this spring and wielded a wicked mace, leading the batters of Milburn's prides with the fine average of 474. Ever since joining the Columbus Foxes, the big boy has been hitting at an astounding rate. Figures released Sunday which included last Saturday's game showed the tall first sacker swatting at a 392 clip with 29 hits in 74 trips to the pan. In the three games played Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week he connected safely 7 times in 13 times at bat and raised his mark to .448. He is second only to Bebe Parrish among the Fox clubbers, and has been gradually gaining on the big right fielder, until now the only difference is that Stuart has made 39 hits in 87 at bats, while Parrish has the same number of hits but has faced the pitchers officially once less than our hero. We expect the Bennnig product to be leading ere long.

Look out Reds, if Sam gets back into uniform in time for the garrison baseball

WEST POINT MEN IN THE MINORITY

Washington, Feb. 17.—Fewer than a third of the officers of the regular army are West Pointers, according to statistics compiled by the War Department, showing that of the 11,786 on active duty Dec. 31 only 3,134, or 27 per cent., were graduates of the Academy.

These statistics show that the largest group of army officers by source of appointment on that date comprised the 3,708 emergency officers of the World War, who were later com-missioned in the regular establishmissioned in the regular establishment. Closely approximating the latter group were the 3,678 officers appointed from civil life, this group including those originally appointed directly from civil life or as provisional Second Lieutenants from military colleges, and officers and enlisted men of the National Guard and Reserve Corns Corps

On December 31 a total of 367 volunteer officers of the Spanish-American War, most of whom are now colonels or lieutenant colonels, were still on the active list of the Army. Eight hundred and ninety-five officers on the active list received their commission directly from the regular Army, having risen from the enlisted ranks

DANCE BY COMPANY "L"

Wednesday evening's dance Service Club sponsored by Company
"L" was one of the largest and best attended held in the regimental area this season. Particularly profuse was the number and variety of the prizes for dancing. Some of the soldier prize winners were rather modest about giving their names for Terpsichorean profici-ency, but the following were given nice rewards for heel and toe ability: Waltz prizes—first to the wife of Nelson Gilchrist, second to Corporal C. E. Thomp son's spouse and Corporal Brown; one step prizes—first to the wife of F. M. Dogan, second to Nelson Gilchrist's wife. Charleston prizes—first to Bernice Woods and Pvt. Sloan Williams, second to Lucy May Brown and Pvt. R. L. Cox.

Sloan Williams and his partner took the Charleston in a walk, avoiding the freak antics of the new-fangled dance, and displaying a smoothness of action and a perfection of team work and co-ordination that made them the clear superiors of any of the other contestants on the floor.

The following members of the committee contributed largely to the success of the evening's entertainment: Sergt Larkin, Pvt. Elisha Thompson, Corp. C. E. Thompson's wife, Corp. Rogers on the refreshments, and Pvt. Lewis as announcer.

LEGIONNAIRES MAKE MERRY AT LAGRANGE DISTRICT MEETING

Fun and Frolic Mark Convention in Hospitable Georgia City

The Fourth Georgia District convention of the American Legion was held last Friday at LaGrange, where a large and interesting program was arranged for the entertainment of the visiting delegates. Fifteen Legion-naires journeyed from Columbus and Fort Benning to LaGrange, Captain Bert Lennon and Captain Saulnier rep Captain resenting the Fort.

The business session was held in the morning and the afternoon devoted to a genuine good time. The committee on entertainment picked an ideal setting to stage their party—the LaGrange Country Club. The 22nd Infantry band was present from Atlanta and furnished delightful music. At the executive meeting Mr. Hauch Peters, of Manchester, was elected executive committeeman for the comelected executive committeeman for the ing Albany state convention.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the boards were spread with a sumptious barbecue of succulent pork, lamb as beef and the usual tasty side dishes.

In the evening a monster parade was staged, serving as a double honor. The city of LaGrange took the opportunity to open up the new "Whiteway" lighting system. Hundreds of prettily dressed college and high school girls with a bevy of little grammar school tots augmented the Legionnaire parade Afterward the paraders massed in front of the court house and the mayor led in singing the civic song, "On, LaGrange." As the last notes died away his honor closed the switch, causing the street to burst into a flame of light.

The Legionnaires left LaGrange dressed college and high school girls

The Legionnaires left LaGrange firmly convinced that they had had a splendid time and had been royally ontortained by an analysis. entertained by an enterprising, hust-ling city. The Columbus delegation ling city. The Columbus returned home that night.

Captain Thomas W. Connell, 9th Infantry, for whom one of the maneuver camps was named, was killed at Balangiga, Samar P. I. together with twentynme men of his command by a band of 400 natives who were considered friendly, on September 28, 1901.

The follwoing is taken from the official report made by Captain Edwin V. Bookmiller, 9th Infantry, who was sent to the scene on the following day in command of Company "G", 9th Infan-

"At 6:30 A. M., September 28th, break fast time, a number of the prisoners were at work and about twenty more had appeared voluntarily near Number Post and the tents, apparently waiting to be set to work by the 1st Sergeant. The 1st Sergeant was at this time at breakfast in the kitchen. Nearly all of were at breakfast in tents in front of the kitchen. The men who lived in barracks "G", were eating under this building: some few were walking to or from the kitchen. At the guardhouse there were but the Sentinel on Number One and the Sergeant of the Guard. Private Gamlin, a member of the guard, had taken breakfast, went to his quarters in main building to return his messkit, and immediately relieved the Sen-einel on Number Two Post. When he was in quarters he saw no one in them.

Corporal Burke, with others, were at reakfast under barracks "G". The reakfast under Chief of Police (Native) came near him, leaned against a pillar of the building then walked along post number two towards barracks "F". As the sentinel passed barracks "F". As the sentinel passed him, he seized the sentinel's rifle, gave a loud call, the Church bells rang and a rush was made by the natives simultaneously on the different barracks, officers quarters and on men at the breakfast table and kitchen.

The sentinel on number one and the sergeant of the guard were killed at once, and the native prisoners and others near, rushed into the main barracks. East of kitchen the natives rushed upon men at breakfast.

A few men gained entrance to the main barracks by a ladder at Northeast corner of building: Others rushed up the stairs with the natives; some were cut down in attempting to reach the building. A struggle ensued to obtain possession of the rifles.

At barracks "G", the men under the building rushed into it with the natives. but all the naitves who entered this building were killed or driven away; and from this building eight rifles were secured and fire opened upon the insurgents which drove them to cover. When this firing began some natives rifles out of the windows of main building, others jumped out with them. In this way, more rifles were secured and the entire force of the enemy driven back.

At the officers quarters which were entered from the church and rear by the enemy, 1st Lieut. E. A. Bumpus, 9th Infantry, and Major R. S. Griswold, Surgeon, U. S. V., were killed in their rooms. Capt. T. W. Connell, 9th Infantry, evidently jumped from window and was killed about twenty feet from the building. The two members of the guard were both killed at sentinels post Acting 1st Sergt. James M. Randles was killed in kitchen.

When the enemy was driven back, Sergeant Frank Betron being the sen-ior non-commissioned officer present, took command.

After holding the place for one hour, during which the enemy kept on outskirts of town, but made no attack, Sergeant Betron collected the wounded and embarked in five barrotas (native boats) for Basey, twenty-five miles dis-Before leaving dock Sergt. At 9:00 A. M. September 29th, I left Basey with fifty-five men Company "G", and eight men Company "C" on S. S. Pittsburg. Landed at Balangiga at 12:30 P. M. As it could be seen that the insurgents were abandoning the place, I opened fire as soon as the steamer arrived within five hundred yards of the town. As we entered the town the main barracks were burning, but it was evident that the ordnance had been carried away. Twenty-three rifles and twenty-two thousand rounds of ammunition were in basement of this building.

Of the sixty-eight rifles in hand of men, twenty-three were brought to Basey, and four lost at sea. Twelve others were rendered unserviceable by throwing away the bolts.

The insurgents secured fifty-two serviceable rifles and with that taken in belts, twenty-six thousand rounds ammunition.

I secured most of the commissary supplies, nearly all of which were burned, it not being practicable to take same aboard ship.

The bodies of the three officers and twenty-nine men were buried in plaza in front of church.

The town was burned; Command embarked at 6:15 P. M., and reached Basey at 12:00 midnight.

The total garrison consisted of three officers, one hospital corps man and seventy men of Company "C", 9th In-

SUNDAY VICTORY GIVES 24TH INFANTRY CLEAN SWEEP OF BARON SERIES

Visitors Err at Critical Moments and Lose Second Straight by 7-4 Count. V. Williams' Portside Slants Turn Back Birmingham Invaders as Mates Bunch Hits

Trammel opened the fourth turn at bat for the 24th Infantry with a single, and took second on Battles sacrifice. Bell hit to Odem and the visiting third sacker bluffed a throw to first and neatly trapped Trammel between second and third, but in the following run down Smith, Baron pitcher, dropped the ball and when the dust had lifted Trammel was perched on third and Bell was sitting on the second sack with a broad grin on his face. Hayward grounded to the box and Smith beat him to the first sack for the out unassisted. This should have been the third out, but it wasn't, so F. Williams crashed a wicked liner to left for a clean single. Birdine was squarely in front of the ball, but let it get away from him. It rolled to the scoreboard and by the time Birdine got it back to the infield there wasn't any-body left on the sacks and the 24th had broken a 2-2 tie. The three runs so kindly presented to the soldiers even-tually proved the winning margin, as the final count was 24th 7, Black Barons 4.

Trammel opposed Smith at the opening of Sunday's game and went the full route, although the Barons collected 9 safeties off his delivery and constantly threatened to massacre the 24th pitching ace. 6-4. The soldiers made one run off Calhoun during his two inning tour.

Bell scored enough runs to tie the visitors and his teammates made three more to win. F. Williams made two timely hits and King delivered himself a blow that meant a run. King aided timely hits and King delivered himself of a blow that meant a run. King aided in two fast double plays which killed off Baron rallies. In the second double killing the 24th second sacker made a perfect peg to S. Williams at first while falling flat.

BLACK BARONS BEATEN IN SERIES OPENER BY 24TH INFANTRY TEAM

About a month ago the Birmingham Black Barons paid Gowdy Field a three day visit and in three games annexed the scalps of the 24th Infantry team exactly three times. This was unexpected, as the west enders have a team that is mighty hard to beat, and the memory rankled ir the breast of each and every member of the soldier crew. "R-r-r-evenge" they shouted in unison, and so Captain Eberle prevailed upon the Birmingham team to come back again. Saturday night the 24th went to bed happy as the big scoreboard on Gowdy Field showed 5 tallies for the soldiers' share of the afternon's pastime, while a 2 was opposite the name of the Barons.

V. Williams, who throws with the unorthodox fin, pitched for the Happy Hearts and it was the concensus of opinion that he did considerable The Barons nicked his forkside shoots for 9 blows, but only in the second and fourth frames did any material damage result. Successive singles by Kimp, P. Williams and Davis enabled the first named to tally in round number two, while in the fourth Mitchell made the circuit on his limits and startly and a wild throw by single and steal and a wild throw by Seats. Elsewhere the visitors were not Seats. Elsewhere the visitors were not valid as a scoring combination. Snappy fielding behind Williams aided not a little. Seats at short, though charged with an error, covered acres of ground and handled ten chances, many of them hard notes. King's name appeared in two fast ones. King's name appeared in two fast double killings.

The home lads lost no time in getting under way. Battles opened the ball with a slashing double to left. Bell beat out a bunt and stole. Hayward sent his fellows home with a single to right.

Another mun in the second was a present Another run in the second was a present from Odem and Davis, who suddenly developed very generous natures. Sloan Williams went all the way to second when Odem hurled far over McAllister's head after fielding a roller. V. Williams sacrificed him to third. Davis appeared to have three thumbs attempting to field Battles grounder, and Williams came

These three runs were sufficient to win the game, but to make it unanimous the 24th added another in the fifth inning and a final tally in the seventh.

MERITAS DEFEATS KELLYS

Meritas defeated the Second Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry at the mill lot Saturday afternoon by a score of 11 to 6.

Four errors of the Doughboys all made by Davis, catcher, were responsible to a great extent for the Meritas victory. Davis is an outfielder, but the Second Battalion was in need of a backstop and Davis was put behind the plate. In addition to his four errors, two passed balls were marked against him. Newman, pitcher for the soldiers, was wild.

COMMENCEMENT COMES TO CLOSE STUDENTS' YEAR AT RESERVATION

Saturday Morning Marks Completion of Course for Three Seventy Three Officers

For the last time this year's classes will fall in line and move in formation. Elated over their conquest of the Red Commander, and satisfied with having put the Benning course "behind them", the student officers will gather Satur-day morning for the annual commencement exercises at nine thirty on the Commandant's lawn. Seventy-four mem-bers of the Advanced Class, one hundred and seventy-eight in the Company Officers' Class, sixty-three Guard and sixteen Reserve riflemen, thirty Guard and twelve Reserve machine gunners and howitzer manipulators, will receive the diploma which betokens the completion of a successful year.

Simple and brief exercises will start with the playing of "Follow Me" by the 29th Infantry Sand, the march song of the Infantry School composed by Capt. George King. Chaplain DeBardeleben will deliver the invocation and the Assistant Commandant, Colonel Frank S. Cocheu will make a few introductory re-The Commandant will deliver the final address of the year. Then, after more music from the 29th Infantry Band, General Collins will present the diplomas. When the long files of stu-dents have secured their formal records of attainment, Chaplain DeBardeleben will speak the benediction, and the gathering will disperse to the traditional army leave-taking tune: "Auld Lang

Support of Officers Coming to Benning Sought for Coming For More Summer Play

In response to the leading editorial in last week's issue of the Infantry School News, several organizations in the garrison have been getting together to effect formation of a Class "B" baseball league from those teams of approximately the size of a company which have not the unit strength or the baseball material that would warrant their entering the big league for the garrison championship and the Gowdy trophy.

So as to have their ideas well coordinated and minor difficulties ironed out before formally presenting the matter to the Athletic Council, which has final jurisdiction in matters of this sort, representatives of six organizasort, representatives of six organizations met last Monday and talked over details. Those present were: Captain Hooper, Company "F," 1st Gas Regiment; Captain Bruce, Howitzer Company; Lieutenant Mayo, Service Company; Sergeant Reynolds, Quartermaster Corps; Sergeant Morrison, Company "A," 7th Engineers; Sergeant Magoni, Academic Department, I. S. D. Following were the main ponits agreed upon: (1) Teams in the Class "B" League to be representatives of

(3) Players who participate in games in the Gowdy Trophy Championship League this season will be barred from playing in the Class "B" League. (4) Schedule to consist of twenty games per team, averaging about two games per team per week, so that with six teams in the league there would be six games per week. (5) Teams must consist of bona fide members of organizations, and men on special duty with (Continued on page 12.)

THREE OF "BUILDERS" DEPARTED FROM FORT FOR LONG FURLOUGHS

Gowdy Field Roof Approaching Completion Ready for Summer Season Opening

About a month ago Lieutenant Deaderick packed his grips and departed for South Court Street, Montgomery, Ala. Last week-end, Captan Sproule collected his baggage and tucking a three months leave in his pocket set forth for Manhattan, Illinois. Next Tuesday Lieut. Peach will round up his family and start for three months and six days at Great Meadows, New Jersey.

The three inveterate "Builders" will be away. Even "Jake" Zellars, former Recreation Center Board Procurement Manager is departing—for Macon and the athletic fields of Lanier High. Back from a brief leave will come Lieut. Doty to maintain liaison between the old and the new.

As the exodus gets under way the last of the shingles will be receiving the last nails to complete the tremendous roof on the Gowdy Field grandstand, the first of the Recreation Center Project in-stallations to be put in full use. That roof itself is a phenomenon, with about 21,600 square feet of surface interposed between the rays of the summer sun and the heads of the ardent baseball fans of

SERGEANT WILLIM McCAULEY Company "B," 24th Infantry

Called to the platform by general acclamation at the last organization day celebration of the 24th Infantry, and mentioned as the oldest man in the out-fit, and one who had been at San Juan when the 24th won the right to place the blockhouse on its coat of arms, white-haired Sergeant McCauley said:

"I ain't old; I'se jes' been livin' a long

Though born in 1873 on the 4th of July, this soldier still leaps lively with the best of them. Every dance at the West End hall finds him there early and the last to leave the floor. He dances the Charleston like a youngster, and stands out as one of the oldest service men in an old service regiment.

It was in the 10th Cavalry that he first enlisted on January 18, 1896, going from his home in Baltimore to Fort Assinitoine, Montana, for station and leaving that post with the outfit for Chickamauga Park, for Tampa, and for Cuba and the Santiago campaign.

Aside from meeting the Spaniards at San Juan Hill, Sergeant McCauley met others whose names are better known than his. After the fracas in the vicinity of the blockhouse, he conversed with Colonel Roosevelt in his tent. He served under "Lieutenant" Pershing who was Supply Officer.

Yellow fever set in, and McCauley went to a yellow fever camp where he was temporarily attached to the 24th

Infantry.

Some months later, he returned to Camp Hampton, and with his own regiment came to the States, first to Montauk Point on Long Island, New York, and thence to Huntsville, Alabama. With the regiment he made the trip to Philadelphia to participate in the "Peace Festival," and then returned to Cuba for a time for a time.

From then until 1906, McCauley tray elled the route of the outfit, going from Cuba in December, 1900, to arid border patrol work in Texas, going in April, 1901, to San Francisco, stopping for a time at the Island of Samoa, proceeding to the Island of Panay, returning to the States at Angel Island, re-enlisting with the 10th Cavalry at Fort Robinson, Nebraska.

In 1914, Sergeant McCauley came back in the service again, making connections with the detachment at the Mounted Service School at Fort Riley, Kan-There he was when war broke out, and the soldier who had seen the biggest battle of one war, was not content with the geographical center of the country in the biggest war. To Newport News he went, joining the 301st Engineers, in November, 1917, and remaining there until September 5, 1919 when he returned to his old regiment, the 10th Cavalry, at Fort Huachuca, Arizona.

On May 26, 1920, Sergeant McCauley first came to Benning, joining Company "K" with which he remained until February, 1925, when he went over to "B" Company. For several months now, he has been on duty with the Quartermaster. So when he comes your way inspecting furnaces, remember him as an old timer with a long record, a sergeant of the Army.

HOW TO INSPECT

THE ARMY PIG

Colorado, August 8, 1918.

From: Sanitary Inspector.
To: Office Quartermaster, Post Hospital——Colo.

1. The Company hogpens located on the easterly sloping bank of the creek, running west and south of this Depot are of three groups, viz: south, middle

2. The south group of seven pens and the middle group of eight pens are un-utterly filthy and in most grossly un-sanitary condition, both as regards the life of the hogs and as a menace to the welfare of the inhabitants of this Depot and its immediate environment. The interior of these pens is covered with old bones and litter and inside and immediately in front of each pig house proper iately in front of each pig house proper are alleys filled with manure, in which the hogs wallow. The hogs present a most unhappy appearance and by their surliness of temper and fatigue demon-strate that they are troubled and harried not only by their environment, but also by the swarms which are breeding in this group of pens.

3. The north group of pens is quite clean and dry throughout, and the pigs demonstrate their contentment and satisfaction by activity, pleasant demeanor, and general cleanliness of body. There are no flies present in this north group of pens.

4. It is recommended that these pens be raked clean of bones and litter, same to be burned and not merely piled in heaps, and the interior of the pens be properly graded and drained by ditches. This would guarantee a full financial return and benefit to this Depot and to the hogs themselves.

R. A. R. Sanitary Inspector. -Colo., August 23, 1918, O. Q. M.,-1st Ind. To the Commanding Offi-cer, this Depot. Returned.

1. This office learns with deep regret that decent hogs must pine and fret and lose their chaste and classic beauty because some man neglects his duty. sense of confidence misplaced offends a hog's aesthetic taste and every effort should be bent to keep him happy and content.

2. The undersigned is pleased to learn that this inspector did discern the difference in looks and style between the hogs so coarse, and vile with manners surly and uncouth, in all the pens extending south, who not the least resemblance bore to porkers of the Q. M. Corps (whose pens are further to the north, as in above report set forth.) These animals so slick and fine, the pink of excellence in swine, display upon their radiant features the happy looks of radiant features the happy looks of grateful creatures. The Quartermaster's pigs alone maintain this high and lofty tone, and their appearance fresh and fair betokens kind and loving care.

3. The fact is not so widely known, though in this letter clearly shown, that making their surroundings cleaner will greatly change a hog's demeanor, although the fact is likewise true that in the army there are few expert enough in their profession to rightly read a hog's expression. To tell just where the trouble lies by contemplation of his eyes or by the wrinkles of his snoot might stump the average recruit. It has been claimed that hogs will thrive amid surroundings, that would drive an animal of since November 11, 1917, the father of a lofty pride to early death and suicide, that while his belly is kept full, he thinks this cleanly stuff is "bull"; that plenty in the way of eats his cup of happiness completes.

4. As these opinions seem to concerning what is necessary to elevate the moral tone within a hog's peculiar zone, it is most strongly recommended that hogs in future be attended by men expert in reading faces, who can at once detect the traces upon the mournful physiog of any poor, disgruntled hog that leads to mental irritation or porcine trouble or vexation.

5. Psychology is thus combined with physiognomy refined, and just a touch of the occult might help the ultimate result. Tis thought the man in charge should be a keen and competent M. D. Who but the Medical Department could have of knowledge such assortment? Who but a graduate of college could have so vast a store of knowledge. The truth is, we have no such store for learning in the Q. M. Corps.

6. The main consensus of opinion pertaining to the hog's dominion, which is perhaps not far amiss, appears to be about like this: That in spite of scien-

WEDDING OF MISS BOND.

One of the most elaborate and brilweddings in the social history of Columbus and Fort Benning was that of Miss Sally Guthrie Bond and Captain Malcolm Frazer Lindsey, which was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock at Trinity Episcopal church.

The aisles were laid in white crash, and the pews for the family and guests were marked with tulle terminating in fluffy bows.

In the chancel, handsome palms and ferns made a harmonious background, with a color note of pink being introduced in the flowers. On the altar were tall brass vases filled with pink gladioli and snapdragons, and in the handsome brass cathedral candelabra were tall waxen candles.

Ferdinand V. Anderson organist of the church played a prelude preceding the entrance of the wedding party. Lohen-gren's March was played for the entrance of the wedding party, and Mendelssohn's of the wedding party, and Mendelssohn's was used as a recessional.

First to enter were the groomsmen:
Capt. William N. Thomas, Capt. Walter Dumas, Capt. W. C. DeWare, Lt. C. B. Wilson, Lt. P. A. Feringa, Lt. J. A. Nichols. They wore the summer uniform of white, and as the bridal party left the church, the groomsmen formed a canopy of their sabres, through which the other attendants passed.

the other attendants passed.

The bridesmaids: Misses Dorothy
Gowen, Louise Garrard, Virginia Thomp-Dorothy son, and Hazel Avery entered the church in couples, and took their places about the chancel. Their gowns were lovely and were of pink chiffon, over a deeper shade of pink satin finished in taffeta flowers appliqued about the skirt. Most picturesque were the hats of pink tulle with taffeta crowns, and fluffy scarfs and bouquets of pink and lavender sweet peas completed the hamring ensemble.

Following the bridesmaids came Mrs. Walter Dumas, matron of honor, who entered alone, and wore a gown similar to those worn by the bridesmaids.

Preceding the bride came the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Alexander of Columbus. Her gown was of orchid chif-fon, with shaded flowers about the skirt, and finished with a girdle in the pastel shades. Her hat was a picture model of orchid chiffon, and her flowers were a bouquet of pink roses and lavender sweet peas.

The bride entered with her father, Col. P. S. Bond by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Capt. John D. Forsythe, where they were joined in marriage by Rev. Alston Wragg, rector of the church, using the impressive ring ceremony.

She was lovely in her wedding gown of soft white georgette, finished in rose point lace medallions embroidered in pearls, which accentuated her brunette beauty. Her tulle veil was finished in handsome Duchess lace and orange blossoms, and caught to her head beneath a becoming cap of Duchess lace, which also outlined the edge of the veil. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies.

(A bit of sentiment was attached to the Duchess and rose point lace used on the veil and cap and also the real lace handkerchief of the bride, due to the facts that they are heirlooms in her family formerly belonging to her grand-mother Guthrie, and have been worn by four generations of brides.)

Mrs. Bond, mother of the bride was handsomely gowned in bisque Georgette over flesh colored satin, and her hat was and widow of the late General Gorgas, was becomingly gowned in delphenium blue chiffon. Her slippers and hat matched her costume, and her flowers were a corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Following the church ceremony, Col. and Mrs. Bond entertained at a brilliant reception at the Country Club, to which a number of friends were invited.

The banquet hall and entire lower floor of the club was converted into a bower of beauty, which represented a formal garden. White trellises supported ex-quisite vines of Dorothy Perkins roses; small pine trees, beds of real grass small pine trees, beds of real grass petunias, bachelor buttons and pink geraniums added a most realistic touch to this outdoor garden, which had been transported indoors. The posts in the banquet hall were veiled with palmetto palms, which similated the growing palms, and over the doors and windows were garlands of Dorothy Perkins roses and hot house smilax. Chinese lanterns veiled the lights.

Most attractive was the tea table laid in a handsome lace cover, and adorned with silver baskets filled with pink sweetpeas; candles in silver candlesticks were restooned together with pink tulle and

In the receiving line with the bride and groom were her parents, her great aunt, Mrs. Gorgas, and the wedding attendants.

The 24th Infanrty orchestra, stationed in the terrace outside, played during the reception hours.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Cocheu, wife of the assistant commandant of Ft. Benning; Mrs. Rhodes Browne Mrs. Curtis Jordan and Mrs. Homer Dimon, of Columbus. Others assisting from Ft. Benning were: Mrs. Dailey, Mrs. Helms, Mrs. Butcher, Mrs. Walling, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Card, Mrs. Delaplane, Mr. John J. Miller, Mrs. Lough, Mrs. McCammon, Miss Halloran, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Jones.

Serving at the punch bowl were Mrs. Gowen and Mrs. Lang, and in charge of the bride's book were Mrs. Johnson and Kilborn.

After the reception the bride changed her wedding gown for a traveling costume of dark blue with gray accessories, and the young couple left for their wedding journey to the mountains of North Carolina. After which they will visit Capt. Lindsay's relatives at Waco, Tex., then go to the Presidio in San Francisco, where the groom is stationed.

Mrs. Lindsey, Miss Sally Bond, is the only daughter of Col. and Mrs. Paul S. Bond, and during the past two years while her father has been stationed at Ft. Benning, has enjoyed a wide popularity both at the fort and in Columbus proper. She is a graduate of the Hathaway-Brown school of Cleveland, O. and also attended school two years at Smith college. Her mother is a daughter of Judge Chas. Evans, of Ohio, and her father is a member of a prominent New ork family.

Capt. Lindsey is a southerner, being a son of the late Judge Henry C. Lindsey, a prominent attorney of Waco, Tex., and his mother is Mrs. Mary Edmunds Lindsey, formerly of Opelika, Ala.

Capt. Lindsey was at Fort Benning for three years, as instructor in machine guns, later being transferred to the Presidio in San Francisco, where he is the plans and training officer of the Thirtieth infantry. He received his education at the University of Texas having entered the army during the world war, and was in command of a machine gun company in Siberia and later in the Philippine Islands.

Mrs. Paul Reichle left with her mother Mrs. Whittington on Monday for a month's visit with her parents in Kansas City, Mo.

"FOLLOW ME"

As each academic year at the Infantry School comes to a close, it is proper for personnel of this garrison to pause and reflect upon the winter's experiences.

Some hundreds more members of the three components of the Army of the Uuited States have completed their courses of instruction. From the junction of the Upatoi and the Chattahoochee, they will go to spread the Benning doctrine and to bring the latest infantry technique to military men of the nation.

When the first few classes graduated, the diploma and certificate holders had their hands full, and they seemed but small drops in many large buckets. As the number of Benning graduates has increased with the passing of the years, the Benning technique is being accepted up and down the line by all ranks. In annual reports to the War Department, various Corps Area commanders have constantly mentioned the increasing influence for better troop efficiency exerted by Benning graduates. The Commander of the Hawaiian Department has been particularly emphatic on this subject. It is not now at all unusual to find a company commander one who has been to Benning for a course, his battalion commander a graduate of the Advanced Course, and the regimental commander also from the Chattahoochee School. The doctrine has reached all ranks. It has been estimated that approximately half of the Infantry officers of the Army are now Infantry School graduates. The band wagon is well down the road, and all are anxious to join the The Infantry School has procession. been justified by the records of its graduates.

To come to Benning is an experience Although the rough road which we used fered. to call "The Daily Risk" has been replaced by a concrete surface, the student from now, you will surely feel the same. WHY NOT MAIL THE NEWS HOME?

living in the city still has his hardships -transportation, rents, isolation, and the rest. He still has to adjust himself to the regular grind of absorbing through the first part of the season tremendous masses of information. He still has the annual wrestling match with the monograph. He still has the damp chill of field work in winter, and the glaring by the foot soldiers of old. The color is heat of May on sun-swept hills and dust driven roads. He still has to dodge cinders on Wiggins Rail Road.

The student officer still has to learn to learn. He has to realize that whatever the personal peculiarities of some of his instructors may be, and whatever variation there may be between their technique and his own preconceived ideas or previous experience—they are the experts. He may give brief thought to a problem. bey study the problem completely, and re-study it, and revise and adjust it from year to year as experience teaches the perfecting of fine details.

The student officer is no respecter of persons. With the weight of property accountability or fund responsibility off his shoulders, he feels a great relief. No morning reports to sign. No shoe soles to inspect. No company punishment to administer. No Post Exchange inventories to take or court-martial to attend. He is a schoolboy again, and acts like a schoolboy. He enjoys acting like one, and others enjoy seeing him act like one.

Service at Benning is a great experience. Even a year at Benning is valuable in ways other than the purely academic and military ways for which it xists. At Benning, you get to know people and to know of people. With the student frame of mind, the officer develops a broader sense of intimate comadeship. With the shackles of responsibility and organizational rivalry removed, the officer realizes the real personalities of his fellow officers. When the days at Benning come to a close, and the student proceeds to his battalion station, or to his group of three or four colleagues in the "Military Department" of an R. O. T. C. college, or to his office where he makes contacts with occasional Guard or Reserve Offi cers, then he will look back gratefully upon the days at Benning for their pleasant associations, as well as for the professional knowledge and the general grasp of infantry technique and tactics acquired here.

It is five years since the editor of this paper stood in a formation of student officers. He still remembers the interest his fellows displayed in delving into the intricacies of the automatic rifle and the machine gun. He still recalls the satisfaction of playing team work with other officers in a one-pounder or trench-mortar crew. He still remembers picking blackberries between special situations on Davis Hill, hurling tufts of weeds in parabolic trajectories upon the head of the column, and pace-tallying out the First Division Road or through the 47th Infantry Woods. (Not to speak of tank demonstrations by night on Cook's Ridge.) These experiences might well begin again tomorrow if opportunity of-

INFANTRY LEADS

The device of the Infantry School is thoroughly symbolic of the ideals and the role of the institution it represents. A shield of azure bears a bayonet argent surmounted by the motto: "Follow Me." The shield itself is of a type borne blue. the distinctive Infantry bayonet is the paramount Infantry wea-

By the bayonet, or the threat of the bayonet, is ground captured, the line advanced, the battle won. The cavalryman with his shock action and saber, the artilleryman with his big guns, the aviator with his far-seeing eyes and deadly bombs, are indispensable, but after all they exist only to aid the Infantryman, who with his cold steel meets the enemy face to face and conquers him man to man and hand to hand. In all conflicts the primary tactical principle of the offensive, which alone is decisive, is to go forward with the fixed determination of driving home the bayonet of the Infantry.

The High Command and Staff may plan and direct the action, but the man with the bayonet leads and finishes the attack and holds ground gained. He is the first to pierce the enemy line, and his final position marks the limits of the ground actually taken. Infantry determines the victory; Infantry pays the greates price in casualties; and Infantry has the place of honor. Infantry leads, the others follow. The manpower of the nation is organized that the Infantryman with his bayonet may push on and close with the enemy. If the bayonet could speak, what else would it sav but "Follow Me."

Our motto is appropriate, for it breathes the very spirit of the bayonet and of those who wield it-the Infantry. "Follow Me" is the prescribed command by which the corporal leads his squad, the basic Infantry unit. It is a distinctively American command, found in no other army, and typical of the manner in which American troops are led, not driven, into action.

This is the emblem of the Infantry School. As the Infantry leads the other arms on the field, so does the Infantry School lead the Infantry instruction of the three-component army, regulars, guardsmen, and reserves. Amid the woods and hills and plains of the Fort Benning reservation, the School is developing and training officers and noncommissioned officers to be leaders of me.n The School is teaching the best modern applications of tactical principles. The School is preparing for our army a better Infantry. The School says with confidence to the regiments of Infantry, as the Infantry itself says to the Army as a whole, "Follow Me."

Copies of the above editorial, specially printed on fine paper suitable for hanging and framing, for offices, recreation halls, orderly rooms, etc., are available for distribution without charge. Requests should be made to the Infantry School News Office.

MEMORIAL DAY MESSAGE

Many centuries ago a mediaeval baron swore that if he attained a certain of ject for which he strove, he would chain together two huge mountains which bounded the valley in which his manor stood. He accomplished his aim, and also accomplished his vow, and for ages a massive chain hung from crag to crag in commemoration of his solemn oath. As a piece of landscape scenery it was perfectly useless, and probably not particularly beautiful. Yet there was about it a certain sublimity. It perpetuated, so long as its links bound the mountains together, the greatness of a single moment, the intensity of a man's desire, the importance he had attached to the principle which actuated his endeavors, the subordination of his individuality to a splendid ideal.

Events pass, but principles remain. Men die, but an ideal lives. Indeed, very frequently an ideal lives because men have been willing to die for it, willing to risk death in a vigorous effort to maintain the ideal and the principles which they consider vital to their happiness and security. On Memorial Day we do not celebrate their ardor or the horror of battlefields. We do not specifically mourn the departure of comrades fallen in battle or of veterans missing from the ranks of the survivors. On Memorial Day we perpetuate and exalt the intense patriotism of great moments. We honor the heroism of people who have struggled to uphold the ideals of liberty in government even at the cost of fatal casualties. They subordinated their individual lives to the splendor of an ideal. We do not regret their action. We praise their sacrifice and celebrate their eventual victories. Their deeds forged the chain of national unity. Their struggles have preserved for us the America nation, the ideal of democracy in government, the moral leadership of a world seeking liberty and peace for all peoples.

SGT. JESSE E. STEWART NEW SCOUTMASTER FOR FORT BENNING TROOP

Plans for Summer Activities Made at Enthusiastic Meeting Last Friday.

Sergeant Jesse E. Stewart, I. S. D., assistant to the Recruiting officer, has been recently appointed scout-master of the Fort Benning Troop No. 11, Boy Scouts of America, and Cap-tain George E. Kraul has been se-lected as Assistant Scoutmaster.

lected as Assistant Scoutmaster.

Last Friday the troop had perhaps the most enthusiastic meeting ever held at Benning. Practically every boy in the garrison who belongs to the scouts was present and everyone seemed unusually anxious to "start something" in the way of scout activities

John Lennon was chosen as Junior Assistant Scoutmaster, and Bankhead as Senior Patrol Charles Leader. There was a reorganization of the patrols with Charley Elliott, Speedy Helms and Joe Russ as leaders.

Helms and Joe Russ as leaders.

The first outing under the leadership of Sergeant Stewart will begin tomorrow. The troop will leave early in the morning for an overnight hike, going to Jefferson Hole, where camp for the night will be pitched. The return hike will bring the boys back to earny Sunday afternoop.

camp Sunday afternoon.

The new scoutmaster is planning a revival of scout interest in the garrison. Plans have been laid for the erection of a hut on the Lumpkin road for near the Upatoi bridge to be used for troop meeting. A cabin will be built near the Upatoi dam about two miles out on the Marne road. This cabin out on the Marne road. This cabin will give the scouts a place for their outdoor affairs, with plenty of oppor-tunity for swimming, fishing, etc. Until the completion of the meeting hut the troop plans to use the kindergarten room at the children's school as a meeting place.

Announcement has been made by Mr. Harry M. Littleton, of Columbus. Scout Executive, of the plans for the Boy Scout Summer Camp to be held June 17th to 27th, at Camp McKen-zie, about 12 miles out from Columbus. The ten day outing will cost the scouts only $7.50 each, and it is expected that a number of garrison boys will attend.

School ends today. Until next fall teachers and children alike will enjoy the vacation season.

Three members of our faculty will not be with us next term. Miss Mary Barnes will teach in the Columbus schools, Miss Lind is going to Florida to teach the young how to shoot straight, and Miss Joiner will join the ranks of "Mrs." before school begins again.

There will be no elaborate final exercises at the close of the year. Captain Kraul will visit each room and award the certificates of promotion to the successful scholars.

With the close of this year's session ten children of the school are completing the 7th grade work and will therefore be ready to attend High School next fall. Their going will be a distinct loss to the school, but they are to be congratulated upon the fine work they have accomplished out here at the Fort.

Following is a list of those promoted from the 7th Grade:

Raymond Deason, Bob Dunlop, Marjorie Gowen, Beatrice Harden, Allen Jones, Eleanor Jones, Marian Mahaf-fey, Carlton Starkes, Letha Tillery, and Clarence Harvey.

ENLISTED SPECIALISTS COURSE

The boys from the "48" were the first Benning class to receive their diplomas and shove off for home following the return from war between the Reds and the Blues. The Enlisteu Specialists Communication Course for National Guard non coms from all over the land came to an end Tuesday morning at 9:30 a. m. with the delivery of diplomas by the Commandant.

The guardsmen came here early in February and ever since have been hard at work mastering the principles of mili-tary communications including telephony, message center operation, radio com-munications and the technique of field communications. Under the able tutelage of Captains Kennedy and McCoy the boys can now do all kinds of tricks with the telephone, and can use the radio for more important things than to hear some yap sing "That's My Baby."

The graduation exercises were short, appy and appropriate. Colonel Cosnappy and appropriate. Colonel Cocheu, Assistant Commandant, and General Edgar T. Collins, Commandant made short addresses, the latter presenting the diplomas.

SWIMMERS FROM B CO. WIN EASY VICTORY IN TANK POOL MEET

Stear and Peace Star in Battalion Swim. Winners More than Dou-ble Total Score of Opponents

Taking first place in every except the fancy diving contest, swimmers from Co. B scored more than twice as many points as the rest of the Battalion together in Thursday's acquatic meet in the garrison swimming pool. Capt. Tharp's human fish simply swam away from the field, with Sgt. Stear leading the victorious nata-Sylventers of the organization, stopped an absolutely clean slate. The fighting Irishman also placed second in the 50-yard breast stroke and thereby as fighting 50-yard breast stroke and thereby accumulated for himself 8 of his company's 11 points.

If there was any honor in finishing second in such a debacle C Co. carried it off, scoring 12 points in all probably because each company was limited to two entrants in each event, and B Co. was thereby prevented from scoring for three places.

Sgt. Stear crossed the line first in the 50-yd. Breast Stroke, 50-yd. Free Style and 440-yd. Swim, and was anchor man on the winning relay four. Peace captured the 50-yd. Breast Stroke and 100-yd. Free Style. Gunner, Co. B, won the greased pole walking competition.

All the events were won easily. Stear finishing the quarter mile swim 80 yards ahead of his nearest competitor. Lack of competition sufficient to extend the winners to their utmost prevented any very fast time being recorded.

P.'s had just served the members of Capt Back's big family, and no frills had been added for the occasion, either. Roast beef with brown gravy, string beans, mashed potatoes, stewed corn, bread and butter, iced tea, and pumpkin pie made up the bill of fare. The civilians may not be accustomed to sitting on stools to eat; but a small wager might be safely made that few of them went away from the table otherwise than satisfied that the I. S. D. soldiers are well fed.

After lunch the I. O. O. F.'s went out to the Hook Range and watched Captain Dahlquist's anti-aircraft machine gunners bring down little gas balloons. "Hawk" Dorsey and his gang were in great form and punctured the escaping balloons with regular. ed the escaping balloons with regular-

Next the visitors saw Capt. Leiber's trench mortar and howitzer men in action. The Captain explained the workings of the guns and gave a history of their development and uses, discarding for the occasion technical discarding for the occasion technical language and telling them in simple and entertaining language. The visitors were amazed at the speed with which the little 37's picked up their targets and the accuracy with which they de-stroyed them once picked up.

Next to the Bayonet range, where Captain Fountain put his crew through Captam Fountain put his crew through the course on one of his famous "runs" and then demonstrated, to the amazement but delight, of the assemblage how easy it is to disarm an opponent if one knows how.

Then they saw Lieutenant Pomerene, soon to depart for China, give his last grenade show at the Infantry School. They were somewhat nervous as the Lieutenant handled T. N. T., grenades and fuses with apparent unconcern. He exploded grenades and T. N. T. for them and demonstratgrenades ed the use of the latest pyrotechnics, sending phosphorus bombs and lights streaking across the sky. At parting he sent the Odd Fellows away in tears by simply exploding a bomb containing lachrymal gas.

Then the visitors went back to Co lumbus to resume their convention.

Prescience Required

That situation is bad enough, but if it's any comfort to know that worse things can happen, suppose we pack everything carefully for a move from one city to another which is in a distant state where we are unfamiliar with housing conditions and have no friends to oblige us with the usual mis-information. To save space and mis-information. To save space and weight on our freight allowance we pack personal and household effects in the larger pieces of furniture. the spices, condiments, etc., A11 the spices, condiments, etc., are wrapped and stuffed into pots and pans which are in turn bestowed in the ice-box, fireless cooker, and kitchen cabinet. Laundry baskets, draper ies, and bath-room fixtures fit nicely into the big green chests, while the ironing board, brooms, mops, and screens, conform to the classic outlines of the folding couch. When we get it all done we smile fatuously at each other through the dust and perspiration and excelsior; and we call it a good job. But—!!! When we get to Cussopolis, Indisota, we find to our atter chagrin that there is not an un-furnished house or apartment within shooting distance of the town!

So our next best bet is to take a furnished place if we can find one where children are not regarded as criminal impedimenta. After we have exhausted the possibilities of our trunks and impoverished ourselves at the ten-cent store we face the necessity of going to the ware-house and re questing to have our household goods uncrated so we can search for sheets, towels, bath-mats, raincoats, blankets. sweaters, roller-skates, report-cards, electrical appliances, and the encyclopedia in thirteen volumes.

In cases like these where divorce proceedings do not follow within three months of reporting at new station, the D. S. M. should be awarded both parties in the endurance test and a special furlough for recuperation granted the sergeant in charge of Warehouse 23.

There is the inevitable aftermath of the foregoing situation that must be dealt with also. For in due course of time—say the middle of the next school year—friend husband gets a joker from Washington and we proceed to shake things up again. The supreme test arrives when it becomes necessary or expedient to determine which is our stuff and which is the landlady's. We have had six "homes" since we left Westfield, Mass., where we rented "furnished" and I am still mailing books back to our literary landlord. Incidentally he was supposliterary ed to be an exemplary citizen and a good Protestant but he never has sent me the brass Buddha I left in his

"How Was I to Know?"

Whenever I open a box that has been in storage for a year or two I find unfamiliar articles; and when I ask the other adult member of the firm about them he says with a distinct tone of injured innocence: "Why, I supposed that was our stuff; we had some just like it. How was I to know?"

Since this last move through the Gateway to the South" so far I find beater, 1 meat-knife, and 1 pair of curtains; while the list of left-behinds include 1 rain-coat, 1 canteen, 1 uke lele, and an assortment of battered toys. Some day when the final count is taken Mrs. Skyparlor and I will meet in the middle of the bridge each with a gunny sack and play "My Old Injun, My Old Squaw" with the con-

Timely Hints.

Now in the actual business of packing there are a few practical ideas I'd like to see worked out. One is sort of a revolving platform to be placed in the center of the living room or hall where the packing-cases are usu-ally deposited. Then when various members of the family call for advice or assistance you can leave the particular box you are packing, step on the platform and by gently manipu-lating a foot lever, be able to distribute wisdom and authority with the minimum expenditure of time and energy.

Another idea that always comes to me when we begin to pack, is to have articles sorted beforehand according to size, shape, and weight; for just as sure as I get nicely started with a particular task I want to finish without interruption, an earnest manly voice comes from the other side of the house: "Edwina, could you find me some more of this kind of stuff to fill up my box?"

Ivory Hair Brushes and Shoe Polish
Mix Well

That unless I

I realize of course that unless I want my ivory hair-brush and silver candle sticks put in with the clothes pins and shoe polish I may as well stop what I am doing and scour the rooms for suitable filling material.

Four Seasons Trunk Indispensable

Still another useful device I have studied out and hope to see perfected and on the market before my moving days are over, is what I would call the Four Seasons trunk. It would seem from our experience during the last few years that climatic and seasonal conditions are no longer to be depended upon with any degree of surety or the wildest kind of guess work. If we are ordered South and pack our winter clothing for storage we have to buy a new supply to keep from freezing to death before we can send for the boxes left in Warehouse 85 at Chicago, Ill. While, on the other hand, if we go North prepared to resist the rigors of a cold winter we are forced to abandon our heavy underwear during a period of "unprecedented" and uncertain mildness.

Hence the trunk—barrel shaped, in four sections; each with sepa drawers for a complete supply clothing for Spring, Summer, Fall, and Winter; with a hole in the center for umbrellas, canes, shinny-clubs and fishing tackle.

There is one precaution especially important in packing for long jumps; and that is the advisability of making personal and complete disposal of all broken and discarded furniture, kitch-en utensils, crockery and glass before the packers come to perform the last sad rites. I remember when we were sad rites. I remember when we were moving from Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, to the Pacific Coast on a First Lieutenant's allowance; being young and inexperienced in the ways of Quartermaster packing details I carefully isolated all the damaged household equipment, giving explicit instructions that it was not to be packed packed.

Details Deleted

Other important matters claimed my attention and I thought no more about the pile of debris until we came to unpack our possessions at Fort S——— on the other side of the continent. There, having paid $3.04 per hundred for excess over our freight allowance and losing a box of useful articles en route, we were overjoyed (?) to find that one extra-heavy packing case contained all of the stuff

I had especially ordered left at the other end of the line! There were several battered and rusty skillets, a broken slop-jar, an antiquated gas-plate, a roll of rotten hose, and a set of old-fashioned sad irons; each piece carefully wrapped with paper and packed in excelsior. What we said individually and in chorus when we viewed the disinterment of the remains well, deeply as I regret to acknowledge it—could not be printed here.

Baby Meets a Strange Man

Speaking of freight allowances reminds me of our experience in Browns- | Ellis Island and had relatives in Duville, Texas. The Border stew was | luth. ville, Texas. The Border stew was simmering when we got back from the Philippines so we didn't unpack and go to housekeeping right away. Most of our goods were stored at Fort Greble, R. I., where the Captain marked time with his nose toward Washington for an expected order. I remained in Michigan with the family waiting month by month for that same order I remained in to be sent on to me. After a period of eight months of uncertainty the order came—for Brownsville. I put in four months of waiting after that and the family was re-united in November, 1916. (Incidentally the youngest child didn't know her own father.)

There were no quarters available at Fort Brown so we moved into an empty shell of a house on Levee street. #### Everything But What We Wanted.

Meanwhile we rented, bought second-hand and constructed out of pack ing cases such articles of furniture as seemed necessary to establish a line of demarkation between civilized humanity and people who live in adobe huts. When our government allowance arrived just before Xmas we found we had ten boxes of moldy books, a chest of table-linen and old-time counterpanes, all our framed pictures, a dozen inherited feather pillows, a barrel of heir-loom china and one empty fruit jar.

We made the best of it, however; and, as the children chose that period of existence to accumulate measles, chicken-pox, tonsils, and ade-noids, it didn't matter much whether we had chairs and tables to use or

Past, Present, and Future

So much for the first twenty years. What the future holds in the way of new and unusual experiences along this line remains to be discovered as time goes on. One thing is certain: though tales of Army life may not always be thrilling and romantic they can be depended upon to contain frequent stirring, moving, and intensely gripping enisodes

SWIFT MILLERS TOO SWIFT FOR ENGINEERS

The race went to the swift. The swift this time was the Swift Mills of Columbus and the also rans Co. "A," 7th Engineers. At the end of the prescribed number of innings Swift was found to be in the lead by the score of 7-3. Last Saturday at Swift Field was the time and place.

Errors played the biggest part in Errors played the biggest part in the game. The Engineers made more errors than both teams made hits, statistically speaking. The biggest offenders were Grove with 5, and Cameron with 4. In fact centerfielder Kingsbury was the only Engineer who did not make at least one error.

Both pitchors had planty of fielding

Both pitchers had plenty of fielding practice. Chamberlain had 8 assists and 8mith 9 assists and 2 putouts.

CAPTAIN BROWN WINS SWEEPSTAKES

The American Walker Cup golfers who are in England striving to bring back to America the famous trophy and to capture the British Amateur crown, missed a good bet when they did not include in their number some of our Fort Benning stars. Sunday's sweepstakes play proves this statement. Captain A. E. Brown, Med. Adm. #### GUNNERS WALLOP COLUMBUS MILLERS

Millers from the Columbus Manufacturing Company came out to Gowdy Field to tangle up with the baseball team from Hq. Battery of the 83rd Field Artillery Sunday afternoon. Big Clyde Schulte, one of the Musketeer mound schulte, one of the Musketeer mound mainstays this spring, climbed the mound for the gunners and proceeded to turn in one of his best performances of the year. Until the eighth inning the Columbus boys failed to make a safe hit, althouther scored once in the second altho they scored once in the second round on a three base error by the cannoneer center fielder and a second bobble by the shortstop. Waller, former I. S. D. Greenie, scored this tally.

Meanwhile the Gunners gathered a trio of marks in the opening frame. Schulte's triple, his first of three hits, and five passes issued by Williams accounting for the runs. After the first inning Williams settled down and pitched good ball until the fifth when Schulte's second criple, a single and a couple of errors gave the artillerymen three more runs. A single and Kirby's home run to deep center brought the gunner's total to eight in the eighth.

With a big lead behind him Schulte eased up in the eighth and the Millers got a run on a couple of hits and a stolen base. Another bingle in the ninth brought their hit total to three, just the carre number that Schulte made just the same number that Schulte made single handed.

The caisson riders were charged with six miscues, but their defense was good at critical moments, and coupled with Schulte's fine slinging brought a comparatively easy victory.

The entry of the Print Shop team in the league was discussed, and the difficulty arose that the Print Shop team is partially made up of men who are members of the Quartermaster Corps, the Gas Regiment, and the Infantry School Detachment. The discussion ended in a general agreement that the Gas Regiment men and the Quartermaster men on special duty in that Print Shop, should properly play with their organization teams in accordance with item No. (5) in the preceeding paragraph; and that Sergeant Magoni should be permitted to form from the Infantry School Detachment a team composed solely of academics and printers.

McDuffy twirling for the Kelly's was niggardly with hits, and was especially strong on the strike-outs when his opponents got men on the strike-outs when his opponents and that bases in scoring positions. And that is the story of last Saturday afternoon's game, which makes two for the Second Battalion and one for the Meritas Millers.

The Second Battalion won on Gowdy Field Saturday afternoon, 4-3, over the Meritas nine. But it was only a last minute lapse in the final frame that made the score anywheres near Two errors in succession, two hits, a stolen base, and an infield out enabled two tallies to come over. The rest of the game the soldiers were clearly in front.

The visiting millers tallied in the first on a couple of hits and a wild pitch. In the third the followers of Kelly Kjelstrom almost batted around, and counted up four runs.

RED KEENAN WINS OVER MICKEY KENDRICKS IN LEGION BOXING SHOW

Soldier Bantamweight Reverses Result of Previous Meeting. Otal-varo Loses to Earle

At the conclusion of ten rounds of rather slow fighting Red Keenan was given the decision over Mickey Kendricks of Columbus in the semi-final go of the American Legion's outdoor boxing show Wednesday night. Neither the pride of the 29th Infantry nor his Columbus opponent was as aggressive and willing to mix things as had been expected. Red was out for revenge, as Mickey sent him to dreamland in less than three rounds last November, but was never able to jar the Columbusite, not to speak of knocking him out. Many of the audience disagreed somewhat violently with the referee's decision, and sober ringside judgment declared that a draw verdict would have been fair to every-body as neither of the boys did enough

SCHOOL YEAR ENDS WITH GRADUATION OF STUDENT CLASS

Brief Address by Commandant and Asst. Commandant Prior To Diploma Presentation

Last Saturday morning 371 officers of the army received their diplomas at the graduating exercises on the commandant's lawn and brought the total list of graduates of the Infantry School to three thousand and forty-seven. In his remarks opening the speaking part of the program, Colonel Frank S. Cocheu spoke briefly of the training purpose and mission of the school as a part of the general army program for effective national defense. He then told in detail how he had written to a large number of regimental commanders and asked them for criticisms and suggesasked them for criticisms and suggestions on the work of the schools, as that work had been revealed in the performances of the graduates. The letters he received back were very illuminating as well as laudatory. Some of the concrete suggestions were interesting and valuable. For example, he said, an impression existed that there was proportionately too little time devoted in the course. ly too little time devoted in the course to the important topic of transportation, and that this subject would be better taken care of in the future, because it was the wish of the school to meet the training difficulties of the army at large. The school, he said, has a double duty—that of training effective troop leaders in actual command of units, and that of preparing officers for effective staff work with smaller units. These two claims and demands have to be met and adjusted. The Infantry School, he indicated, is the servant of the Army and adjusted. will continue to do all it can to mee the army's needs.

EARLY TO BED AND EARLY TO RISE FOR BENNING GARRISON

Summer Schedule Went Into Effect June 1st and Old Sol Is Thwarted

Summer has come. We have for some time thought so from the fierceness with which the Georgia sun has beaten down upon us, but now all doubts have been settled and uncertainty made certain by General Orders No. 16, Headquarters The Infantry School, which put the garrison summer schedule of working hours summer schedule of working into effect at reveille, June 1st.

Under the terms of the order the Benning day will begin half an hour earlier than heretofore, 1st call now sounding at 5:15 a.m. instead of 5:45. All morning duties have been made to begin thirty minutes sooner. Fatigue call goes at 6:30 and offices will begin to function at 7:30. Recall from fatigue is now at 12, m., while office workers will continue on the job until 12:30 p. m. Afternoon fatigue has been suspended and offices will run with only such personnel as is essential to their functioning. To make up for the earlier rising tattoo will now sound at 9 p. m. instead of 9:30 and taps at 10:00 instead of 11:00.

Complete list of calls follows: Reveille, except Sundays and holidays

First call—5:15 a. m. March and Reveille—5:25 a. m.

HEROIC DEAD OF ARMY COMMEMORATED AT FORT BY FITTING EXERCISES

Memorial Day Exercises Held on Commandant's Lawn Sunday morning.

Sunday morning the Fort Benning garrison celebrated Memorial Day with special exercises on the commandant's lawn at 9 o'clock, followed by a visit to the cemetery by detachments of the Twenty-ninth Infantry to decorate the graves of members of that organization buried on the reservation.

Following an invocation by the Rev. Following an invocation by the Rev. D. G. Mann, chaplain in the reserve corps, Chaplain John T. DeBardeleben delivered a carefully thought out address, in which he reminded his hearers of the splendid sacrifices made by American soldiery that the nation. might be brought into being in 1776, for the maintenance of individual liberty, preserved in 1861 for the maintenance of national liberty, in 1918 that the entire world might be made safe for liberty and democracy against the threats of flagrant militaristic spirit arising in central Europe.

As soon as the crowd dispersed from the commandant's lawn and the flut-tering guidons and colors of the troops had been marched away along dusty roads, the Twenty-ninth Infan-try started the organization ceremonies at the cemetery. Col. James B. Gowen, accompanied by his immediate staff, Captain Pritchett, Captain Grifstaff, Captain Pritchett, Captain Griffin, and Lieutenant Tatom, and by the battalion commanders, proceeded to the last resting places on the hill overlooking the Upatoi of four former Twenty-ninth Infantrymen: Private Joseph A. In and out, hear them shout, coun-ter march and right a-bout.
And the Cais-sons go roll-ing a-long.

CHORUS
Then it's hi! hi! hee! in the field ar-till-er-y,
Shout out your num-bers loud and strong, (83)
Where e'er you go, you will al-ways know.
That the Cais-sons are roll-ing a-long,
Keep them rolling (Shouted)
And those cais-sons go roll-ing a-long.

Private Jackson Daily Company "A", 7th Engrs. Private Lester D. Pruit, Infantry School Detachment. Private Clement V. B. Sawin, Infantry School Detachment.

It has been announced by the War Department that these local soldiers, after completing a preparatory course conducted since October 1st at Fort Mcconducted since October 1st at Fort Mc-Pherson, got through the examinations held in March. They will report at the Military Academy July 1st. Daily is a youngster slightly over nineteen years old who enlisted July 1st

Four years of high school schooled him in clerical work so that he was assigned, on his arrival here, to tasks at Garrison Headquarters. Like the other two, he has been attending the Corps Area "pren" school at his Battalion on the inactive list. Like the other two, he has been attending the Corps Area "prep" school at Fort McPherson since October 1st. He and Pruit are now both on furlough, Pruit at his home at Pine Hill, Ala.,

Subsequently the command reverted to Colonel George H. Camerons with Lieutenant Colonel Francis reverted to Colonel George H. Camerone with Lieutenant Colonel Francis J. Koester second in command. On August 1st, 1917, the regiment was converted into the S3rd Provisional Field Artillery and assigned to the 8th Field Artillery Brigade of the 8th Regular Division

Regular Division.

In February, 1918, the regiment left Fort D. A. Russell for Camp Fremont, California, where it joined the other two regiments of the Brigade—the 81st and 82nd Field Artillery.

On July 1st, 1918, the regiment left Camp Fremont for Ft. Sill, Okla., where instruction and maneuvers were carried out in preparation for service overseas.

The long looked for embarkation orders came at last in October, and the regiment sailed from Hoboken, N. J., on October 28th 1918, arriving in Brest just two days before the armistice was signed.

A month was spent in Pleermel, Department of Morbihan, Brittany, after which the regiment returned to Brest to act as bodyguard for President Wilson during his stay at Brest. On January 4th, 1919, it sailed for home shores, arriving on January 18th. After three days at Camp Mills the regiment entrained for Camp Knox, Kentucky, where it arrived on Janu-

On May 25th, 1923. Battery "A," accompanied by one section of the Combat Train, left Fort Benning, Georgia, and marched to Camp McClellan. Alabama, arriving there June 7th, 1923, for duty at the summer training camp. The organization started on their return journey to Fort Benning, Georgia, August 29, 1923, reaching that station September 3rd, 1923. Battery "B" was ordered to Camp McClellan for the same duty, summer training period of 1924. Battery "B" left Fort Benning, Georgia, June 16, 1924, arriving at Camp McClellan June 26th, 1924. After completion of their tour of duty at Camp McClellan, on July 24th, this organization returned to Fort Benning, Georgia, arriving August 1st, 1924.

On March 4, 1924, Battery "A" was equipped with the Holt T-35 two ton tractors for experimental purposes. At the instance of the Chief of Field Artillery's office in the spring of 1924, a march was proposed for Battery "A"

General Collins said that the Infantry School was doing its job, and trying to train men for combat leadership primarily, although it is to be regretted that the small size of our army and the multitude of necessary details that have to be filled for duty other than with troops, prevented graduates going out immediately and applying the theoretical knowledge they have learned at Benning.

OLDEST SOLDIER RETIRES FROM ARMY

Way back in 1898 he joined the Nebraska Volunteers, commanded by the late Williams Jennings Bryan, then a Colonel of Volunteers, altho he was 48 years old and could have stayed at home years old and could have stayed at nome without reproach. But that was not Otis C. West's way of doing things and so he went to war. So well did he like army life that last Monday, at the age of 76, Staff Sergeant West was retired after more than thirty years service, the old-est enlisted man on active duty in the United States Army.

From his original entry into the service Sgt. West's service was unbroken until his retirement at Fort Hayes, Ohio. He goes into civil life with two distinctions seldom attained by any soldier.

During all the time that he spent in uniform, he has never been in the guard house and has never answered sick call.
Who says that army life isn't healthy?

"FOLLOW ME"

Summer has come to Fort Benning. With the beginning of June and the departure of the student officers, and the arrival of the hot weather, the garrison of the military station has adopted a summer schedule, commencing work at 7:30 in the morning and quitting for the day at 12:30.

The normal schedule running until after 4 in the afternoons is deemed inefficient, for the hot afternoon hours are not productive of much work. Starting early and getting in a long stretch of work before the summer sun has completely heated the Benning plain, the military personnel put a soldier day of work behind them by noon.

Afternoons are reserved for athletic training, baseball contests, instruction in swimming. In the latter activity great interest is being displayed. In the 29th Infantry both battalions and the special units have already commenced systematic training, for it is a military necessity that commands be able to cross any non-fordable streams even when the engineers are not at hand to build pontoon bridges.

On the 12th of this month, the formal baseball series opens for the garrison championship and the splendid trophy being donated by Hank Gowdy. Six teams have already entered the race, the First and Second battalions of the 29th Infantry, the Reds and the Blues of the 24th Infantry, the Infantry School Detachment, and the 15th Tank Battalion, with the 83rd Field Artillery expected to come in later.

In the 29th Infantry, Lt. Keith Taton, athletic and recreation officer, has been preparing an outdoor gymnasium, with a tennis court, a handball court, a volleyball court, flying rings, climbing ropes and poles, baseball diamonds, and gymnastic bucks and horses, horizontal bars that his library books were safe. The Infantry School had had its third fire nastic bucks and horses, horizontal bars since September in the closely packed and parrallel bars. Part of this equipant and inflammable academic area.

ment has already been secured, and the rest is being prepared now.

The regiments at this time likewise go on the rifle range for their annual record target practice, continuing through to the first of September.

Already Gordon Field is the scene of triangle making, sighting and aiming exercises, bolt manipulation, and other tricks of the trade which steady the hand and adjust the eye to holding the sight on the mark as the trigger finger slowly compresses on the trigger squeeze.

A colored maid, employed by a certain officer in the garrison, had been troubled for some time with tooth-ache. Finally she got up courage enough to go and see the dental sur-geon. The moment he touched her aching tooh, she screamed.

"What are you making such a noise for?" he demanded. "Don't you know that I am a 'painless dentist'?" "Well, sah," answered Lilly White,

There was just about enough rain Tuesday afternoon to settle most of the dust shaken from the reluctant feet of the departing students.

Now that we have decided that the new local baseball circuit shall be a Class "B" affair, why not call it the I. & I. League. Or the Two I League, as a baseball fan would say.

HIKE IN PROSPECT TO OLD FORT MACK FOR CAISSON CREW

On June Tenth the Eighty-Third Field Hits the Roads for Annual Trek Overland.

Reconnaissance parties have been out this week investigating road routes north-wards for the annual road excursion of the Eighty Third Field Artillery.

It is planned to hike to Fort McPherson and return, commencing probably the tenth of this month. four batteries will go up by separate routes, and return as a battalion unit. Headquarters battery is slated to take the Hamilton-Chipley-Greenville-Newnan route. Battery "A" commanded by Capt. Perry will proceed via Cataula-Hamilton-Chipley-Greenville-Fayetteville. Battery "B" commanded by Capt. Pollin will roli "B" commanded by Capt. Pollin will roll its caissons by way of Geneva-Talbotton-Prattsburg-Thomaston - Zebulon - Griffin. Battery "C" commanded by Capt. Weston, and taking with it Sergt Cody's prize winning rolling kitchen, will rattle northwards through Buena Vista-Montezuma-Macon-Jackson or Griffin.

Contact will be maintained with the Benning garrison continuously, getting supplies from this station for the early stages of the trip, and from Fort Mack as the units approach that station.

Returning the battalion as a unit will be led back to the Infantry School by Major Donaldson by the route through Fayetteville-Sharpsburg-Greenville-Chipley-Hamilton.

SERVICE FOR THE LINE TROOPS TO HAVE BIG OUTING AND BARBECUE

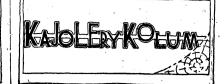

Plans for Q. M. Organization Da June 16th, Rapidly Taking Shape.

Members of the Quartermaster Detachment at Fort Benning are planning to celebrate the birthday of the Quartermaster Corps, 151 years old on June 16th. For the day the builders, the utilities men, the property officer personnel, and the toilers in all the many various quartermaster activities will take a holiday, and go out to Harmony Church for a big Field Day and Barbecue, using Private Wiggins' little railroad as their transportation

Captain E. J. Turgeon is in charge of the arrangements and program, and has mapped out a large day. There will be numerous committees in charge of the many details. Announcement of the membership of these committees as not yet been made, but there will be committees for entertainment, publicity, reception, athletics, transportation, prizes, decorations and refreshments freshments.

The Service for the Line troops have been supplying the wants of the army for over a century and a half with marked success, and now that they are planning to give a party for themselves, it is certain that it will be a real party.

Friday night the scouts of Troop No. 11 held their meeting at the children's school. This was the third meeting held under the leadership of Sergt. Stewart, our new scoutmaster The meeting was called to order by Charles Bankhead, Senior Patrol Leader, and we gave the scout oath. Then all new business was taken up. Our hike Saturday to Jefferson Hole was discussed and the program committee consisting of Sergt. Stewart, John Lennon, Charles Bankhead and George Quinney announced the program for the hike.

Then dues were collected and some new rules made as follows: Misbehavior during meetings, penalty—going through the gauntlet. Any scout after joining the troop who isn't Tenderfoot within one month will be banished. #### THE AIDE PAID

A short time ago the aide to one of our general officers, driving at night, was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and ran into a farm wagon carrying a family, but no lights. He stood suit and lost the decision. Appealed and lost again, though local laws required all vehicles to carry lights at night. Due to his associations, personal and official, he had the very best advice and strong military influences to back him. Nevertheless for a long and wearisome period his monthly income was reduced by large partial payments on this judgment, court costs and attorney's fees, in addition to which he had to take leave three times to appear in a court of an adjoining state where the accident occurred.

A WAY THEY HAVE

Luncheon in the ward room of the Cruiser Rochester, which is tied up at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, is generally a pleasant occasion for Commander McNair, except for one invariable circumstance. Gobs who are on leave program. stance. Gobs who are on leave, perversely (or wisely) choose this hour for the arrival of their telegrams requesting extension of their time. And Gobs are no more resourceful than office boys in the matter of excuses, generally hinging their plea upon the ill health of a relative. A day or two ago, however, a new sort of telegram was handed to Commander Mc-Nair. With a bellow of delight, he read it to the assembled officers:

GOWDY STANDS ARCADE PREPARED FOR REPAIR SHOPS OF "POST EX."

Repair Facilities More Than Doubled and Grease and Wash Racks Given Adequate Space.

While the Builders have been tamping shingles on the roof of the Gowdy Field Stands, other workers have been pouring concrete and affixing door and window sashes beneath the concrete slope which holds the seats.

Work is now approximately complete work is now approximately complete so that within the arched arcade, there are now alcoves well provided with protection, along the center and the west stretches of the stands, similar to those which reached originally only down the eastern edge. The space underfoot has been concreted.

As you turn the forty-five degree angle from the old repair shop, you find five repair rooms, one rather small, but the others large—thus doubling the repair space Mr. Austell's shop has enjoyed—and one completely enclosed stock room.

Around the next bend, you come upon an oil draining rack, a greasing rack, a washing rack, and a steam cleaning rack flanked by a huge boiler—all with deep pits properly drained. The last two archway sections have been enclosed for the special use of the athletic authorities, one with ticket windows, and the other for storing athletic equipment and the like.

The area assumes a completion aspect that means a more finished Benning.

Fort Benning, Georgia May 18, 1926.

Dear Glee Club people:

"Pinafore" was a success; everything we have undertaken this year has been successful, thanks to the hearty cooperation and loyalty of every one of you.

I am taking this occasion to exress my gratitude and appreciation to the members of the casts of the Armistice Day Pageant, "El Bandido" and "Pinafore"; to those who caroled forth last Christmas Eve; to the ladies who composed the chorus for the Woman's Club program; to those others who gave such splendid assistance in the preparation and production of the Armistice Day Pageant and the two operettas—Mrs. Helsley, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. E. F. Rice, Mrs. Ford, Major Magruder, Major Uhl, Major Rice, Major Green, Captain Leiber, Captain Saulnier, Captain Colby, Captain W. A. Dumas, Captain Kalrstad, Lieut. Stetler, Lieut. Doty, Sergt. Magoni, Sergt. Ehrhardt and Corpl. Peebles; to those persons who acted Peebles; to those persons who acted as refugees in the Pageant at a last minute plea; to Mrs. Sloan who displayed during the performance of "El Bandido" and "Pinafore" such good sportsmanship and splendid generosity; to Mr. David H. Miller, who traveled from Philadelphia to give of his golden voice and great musiciantraveled from Finiadeipnia to give of his golden voice and great musicianship to assist in "El Bandido"; to Lieut. Simmons, who so gallantly and ably stepped into a vacant role of "Pinafore" at the eleventh hour; to the Officers of the Club and the Executive Committee, who after many hours of earnest council have arrived at splendid decisions and policies; to Mrs. Butcher, blessed angel and remarkable musician that she is; and last, and most emphatically—to Capt. King, whose inspiring leadership we esteem and admire.

We should like to have you keep your scores of "Pinafore."

Lieut. Stetler has very kindly saved a considerable quantity of programs of "Pinafore" for any of the cast who might want some. They are at my house for disposal. zI hope to have the flash-light pictures ready for you some tures ready for you soon.

Thursday, May the sixth, we sent a greeting to General Wells, from the "Crew of the Pinafore", feeling that this good friend of the Glee Club would be interested in knowing when the production was taking place. The following Monday I received a very lovely letter in reply. To quote a

—I suppose a number of the crew will not ship for another voyage, but feel sure that there is quality enough in those who remain to keep the pennant of the Glee Club proudly flying from the main mast of the Infantry School's Ship. ## TANKERS WIN OVER SWIFT MILLERS

Getting in trim for the garrison championship series, the Terrible Tanks took the measure of the Swift Millers last Saturday 8 to 1. Mays pitched superior ball for the soldiers and held the Co-lumbus outfit safe at all times. Smith for the Millers went well until the seventh inning, when bunched hits coupled with daring baserunning by the Tankers pushed four tallies over the plate. Three more in the eighth made the defeat an overwhelming one overwhelming one.

The soldiers played well in the field being charged with only two miscues while the Millers made an even half

TWO MUSKETEERS ON SPRINGFIELD THREE I LEAGUE OUTFIT

Kjelstrom and Douglas Playing Regu-larly with Illinois Team in Strong Class B Loop

Socking slamming Sam Stuart, the slugging soldier who is starring with the Columbus Foxes is not the only member of the 1926 Musketeers who is making good in organized baseball this summer. Up in Illinois with Springfield in the Three I League, one of the oldest and fastest Class B loops in the country, two of our star soldier players are holding down regular places. The Second Battalion's best known and ablest athlete, talion's best known and ablest athlete, Kjelstrom is gathering them in far and wide in the left garden for the capital city gang while behind the plate, Douglas, or the fighting 83rd Gunners, appears almost daily in full catcher's armor.

Douglas has been with the league be-fore this year and is no stranger to Springfield fans. According to the box scores published in the Sporting News he seems to be hitting at the same gait that landed him in third place among the Infantry batters this spring , while his put out and assist columns show their full share of big figures.

"Kelly" left us about a month ago and soon after reporting in the Illinois city was assigned to his old berth, left field. He started off at his regular speed, the box score for his first two games showing 3 hits in 7 trips to the plate. In his second appearance he had 3 assists, somewhat unusual for the average run of outfielders, but nothing to surprise those who are acquainted. to surprise those who are acquainted with Kel's mighty arm.

In his first fifteen games in a Spring-field uniform Kelly hit safely in twelve, making 20 hits in 59 official times at bat for the adequate average of .339. Included among the bingles were four doubles, two triples and a homer.

REDS AND I. S. D. TO OPEN RACE FOR GOWDY CUP TOMORROW AT 3

Winners of Last Year to Pry First of Series of Matches Be-Off Lid in Garrison Championship Race

24th Infantry Reds will face the Green Hats from the I. S. D. tomorrow afternoon in the opening game of the struggle for the Gowdy Cup, emblematic the Benning baseball championship. Last year's winners will present practically the same lineup that carried them to victory while the Detachment team has been completely shot to pieces by discharge and furloughs and Capt Back's boys who last year put up such a desperate struggle before yielding the crown appear very weak. Baseball is an uncertain game, however, and the Green Hats are determined to offer the most stubborn opposition.

Six teams are entered for the first series ending July 11th. The second half of the season will find the gunners from the 83rd F. A., now on a hike, added. On paper it looks like a walkover for the Reds in this year's race, but championships are won on the ball field and not on paper, so don't be sur-prised if some unlooked for aggregation rises up and smites the doughty 24th team hip and thigh.

The schedule for the first half follows: June 12—24th Inf. Reds., vs. Inf. Sch.

June 13-15th Tank Bn. vs. 1st Bn.,

.29th Inf. June 14-24th Inf. Blues, vs. 2nd Bn.

Q. M C. PERSONNEL TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF SERVICE FOR LINE

Harmony Church Will Be Scene of Big Barbecue and Field Meet Next Wednesday

Colonel Warfield will take his entire quartermaster personnel, both civilian and military, out to Harmony Church next Wednesday and there will celebrate next Wednesday and there will celebrate with proper rites the 151st birthday of that thriving infant, the Quartermaster Corps. These people, who spend their time ministering to the wants of the many activities of the other branches, are past masters in the art of getting things, and as a result the party promises to be a large one.

Early in the morning the gang will board Wiggins' railroad, and travel out to the scene of the late lamented maneuvers. Arriving the day's festivities will begin with a reception and introductions. anybody don't know anybody else this will be the time to find him out. Then after musical numbers the rest of the morning will be given over to a field and track meet, after which everybody will assemble for a big photograph.

Then a message from the Quartermaster General of the Army will be read and Mr. Rhodes Brown will introduce the speakers of the day, Lt. Col. Warfield, Brigadier General E. T. Collins and Hon. W. C. Wright, a congressman from Georgia.

Next in line is chow, a big barbecue, set for 1 p. m. Then if anybody is able to move after the eats the track and field meet will be resumed. At its conclusion the folks will again aboard the little train, and back to Benning, tired but happy.

The following committees in charge of the various phases of the program have been selected:

Infantry School Detachment

When you go to the Garrison Theatre of an evening, you will see near the door a big sergeant with curly red hair and a solid Irish manner. He is the manager of the moving picture houses of the reservation, and does his job as effectively now as when back in 1916 he won the express appreciation of the Quartermaster General of the Army for salvaging a twenty ton steamer in Mobile Bay, sunk in a violent wind storm. Civilian raisers of craft underwater were exorbitant in their prices. But the Sergeant told the Captain that if he and Sergeant Roloff could have four men, and pick them himself, he'd raise the boat. And he did, and the Washington ans wrote him a special letter of commendation.

But it is not only in running theatres and raising sunken craft that distinguished this soldier who first commenced guished this soldier who first commenced his military service as a volunteer in 1898 and came into the regulars on August 1, 1904, in Company "M" of the 19th Infantry. When the World War Proke the placidity of the watchful waiters, he had doughboy service, and proceed or tillery service. coast artillery service, (two enlistments of it) and quartermaster service to his credit. He became a captain of doughboys, going overseas with the 6th Infantry in the famous Fifth Division, the Red Diamond outfit that won immortal fame in the Meuse-Argonne, spent more than a hundred days in the front line, advanced 29 kilometers against the Boche, and captured 2,356 prisoners.

O'Neal was there. He was there all the way through the rumpus, and monographing captains and majors still consult him as a first hand source on on operations, and pore over his folded, pencilled maps, that went over the top and to objective after objective with "Red" O'Neal and his company.

"Red" O'Neal was certainly there. Three divisional and one G. H. Q. citation for heroism in action testify to the work of the fighting Irishman. At St. Mihiel he was with his company and regiment, between the Second and the Ninetieth, going forward from Regnieville on the right of the pincers against a mage of minenwerfers and mageline a maze of minnenwerfers and machine guns and pushing through the Bois St. Claude to smash into the last German defenses. After the first check in the Meuse-Argonne, the Fifth Division was called upon, went in near the right of the American line, and swung across the Meuse River accomplishing what General Pershing called "one of the finest feats of arms of the A. E. F."

First they tramped through Montfaucon and jumped off toward Romagne and took the Tranche de Mamelle after hard fighting, and the orders cited "Red" O'Neal as follows:

For extraordinary heroism and bravery in action. Near Romagne, France on WEDDING OF MISS HUTCHINS AND LT. FERINA.

One of the most interesting of the June weddings is that of Miss Katharine Hutchins and Lt. Peter Anthony Feringa, of the Seventh Engineers, which takes places on the evening of June 17. The wedding will be a very quiet event with only the members of the immediate family present. Father Moylan of the Church of the Holy Family will officiate.

After the ceremony, the young couple will leave for a wedding journey, which will include a motor trip to points in Florida.

The Protestant Guild will hold its final meeting of this school year at the Protestant Chapel, Monday morning, June 14th, at 9:30 A. M.

Miss Catherine Foster, charming daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Charles Foster, of Washington, D. C., who has been the house guest of Major and Mrs. Starr Moulton, left for her home on Thursday. Many social courtesies were extended Miss Foster during her visit at the garrison at the garrison.

At the instigation of Major John A. Parker, J. A. G. O., officers and ladies of the garrison who are native North Carolinians gave an old time basket pic-nic Thursday afternoon in honor of nic Thursday afternoon in honor of Major and Mrs. Eley P. Denson who will soon be quitting Fort Benning, as the Major has been ordered to Washington for next year's course at the Army War College.

The Tarheels piled into automobiles about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon and went out to a pleasant picnicking grounds on the Upatoi Creek about fourteen miles out the Buena Vista Road. Until a late hour the fun was fast and furious. Everybody returned to the garrison much better acquainted with his fellow Carolinians. linians, and vowing to repeat at the first possible opportunity.

EVENING CONCERTS BY GARRISON BANDS FOR SUMMER DAYS

Musicians of 24th and 29th Infantry To Perform Each Evening Dur-ing Hot Season.

Band concerts for the summer season at Fort Benning have been announced in a complete schedule which extends from June 10 to September 30. The musical organizations of the garrison will give regularly five programs a week, commencing this evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock at the new hospital.

Concerts will be given in rotation on the new concrete band stand in front of the new hospital Riche Hill at the eastern end of Wickersham avenue, in the water oak grove on the commandant's lawn, and in the park by Service club No. 1.

During the season, the 29th Infantry band, under the leadership of Staff Sergeant W. R. Freund, will alternate with the 24th Infantry band, led by Staff Sergeant Treville. These two organizations are exceptionally well known in this neighborhood, and have been in great demand in adjacent cities, to render programs at conventions, carnivals, and special civic events. The rivalry between them is keen, and each presents a splendid program.

During the entire summer, it is a regular custom at the fort for people to attend these concerts in the cool evening air, parking on the roads adjacent to the points of assembly, and hearing splendid combinations of military, popular, and classical music.

The following band concert schedule vill govern during the summer will govern months:

The Ballard of Yukon Jake

Begging Robert W. Service's Pardon By EDWARD E. PARAMORE, JR.

OH, the North Countree is a hard countree
That mothers a bloody brood;
And its icy arms hold hidden charms
For the greedy, the sinful and lewd.
And strong-men rust, from the gold and the lust

That sears the Northland soul, But the wickedest born, from the Pole to the Horn,

Is the Hermit of Shark Tooth Shoal.

 $N_{ m name}^{
m OW}$  Jacob Kaime was the Hermit's

In the days of his pious youth,
Ere he cast a smirch on the Baptist church
By betraying a girl named Ruth.
But now men quake at "Yukon Jake,"
The Hermit of Shark Tooth Shoal.
For that is the name that Jacob Kaime
Is known by from Nome to the Pole.
He was just a boy and the parson's joy
(Ere he fell for the gold and the muck),
And had learned to pray, with the hogs and the hay

On a farm near Keokuk.
But a Service tale of illicit kale—
And whiskey and women wild—
Drained the morals clean as a soup-tureen
From this poor but honest child.
He longed for the bite of a Yukon night
And the Northern Light's weird flicker,
Or a game of stud in the frozen mud
And the taste of raw red licker.
He wanted to mush along in the slush,
With a team of huskie hounds.
And to fire his gat at a beaver hat
And knock it out of bounds.

SO he left his home for the hell-town Nome On Alaska's ice-ribbed shores And he learned to curse and to drink, and worse—

Till the rum dripped from his pores,
When the boys on a spree were drinking it free

In a Malamute saloon

And Dan McGrew and his dangerous crew Shot craps with the piebald coon; When the Kid on his stool banged away like a fool

At a jag-time melody

And the barkeep vowed, to the hardboiled crowd,

That he'd cree-mate Sam McGee-

THEN Jacob Kaime, who had taken the name

Of Yukon Jake, the Killer.

Would rake the dive with his forty-five.
Till the atmosphere grew chiller
With a sharp command he'd make 'em stand
And deliver their hard-earned dust,

Then drink the bar dry, of rum and rye, As a Klondike bully must.

Without coming to blows he would tweak the nose

Of Dangerous Dan MeGrew,

And becoming bolder, throw over his shoulder

The lady that's known as Lou.

OH, tough as a steak was Yukon Jake—Hardboiled as a picnic egg,
He washed his shirt in the Klondike dirt,

Illustrations by Hogarth, Jr.

But, miles away, in Keokuk, Ia., Did a ruined maiden fight To remove the smirch from the Baptist Church By bringing the heathen Light.

And he drank his rum by the keg,
In fear of their lives (or because of their wives)

He was shunned by the best of his pals, An outcast he, from the comraderie Of all but wild animals.

So he bought him the whole of Shark Tooth Shoal,

A reef in the Bering Sea, And he lived by himself on a sea lion's shelf In lonely iniquity.

BUT miles away, in Keokuk, Ia., Did a ruined maiden fight

Then he rowed her ashore, with a broken oar, And he sold her to Dan Megrew For a huskie dog and some hot egg nog—As rascals are wont to do.

To remove the smirch from the Baptist Church

By bringing the heathen Light

And the Edlers declared that all would be squared

If she carried the holy words

From her Keokuk Home to the hell-town Nome

To save those sinful birds.

So, two weeks later, she took a freighter, For the gold-cursed land near the Pole, But Heaven ain't made for a lass that's betrayed—

She was wrecked on Shark Tooth Shoal.

 $\mathbf{A}_{\mathrm{lost-}}^{\mathrm{LL}}$  hands were tossed in the Sea, and

All but the maiden Ruth Who swam to the edge of the sea lion's ledge Where abode the love of her youth.

He was hunting a seal for his evening meal (He handled a mean harpoon)

When he saw at his feet, not something to eat,

But a girl in a frozen swoon, Whom he dragged to his lair by her dripping hair,

And he rubbed her knees with gin—
To his great surprise, she opened her eyes
And revealed—his Original Sin!

H IS eight-months beard grew stiff and weird And it felt like a chestnut bur, And he swore by his gizzard—and the Artic blizzard

That he'd do right by her.
But the cold sweat froze on the end of her nose
Till it gleamed like a Tecla pearl,
While her bright hair fell, like a flame from hell,
Down the back of the grateful girl.
But a hopeless rake was Yukon Jake

The Hermit of Shark Tooth Shoal!

And the dizzy maid he rebetrayed

And wrecked her immortal soul!

Then he rowed her ashore, with a broken

oar.

And he sold her to Dan Megrew
For a huskie dog and some hot egg-nog—
As rascals are wont to do.
Now ruthless Ruth is a maid uncouth
With scarlet cheeks and lips,

And she sings rough songs to the drunken throngs

That come from the sealing ships.

For a rouge-stained kiss from this infamous miss

They will give a seal's sleek fur, Or perhaps a sable, if they are able; It's much the same to her.

OH, the North Countree is a rough countree,

That mothers a bloody brood;
And its icy arms hold hidden charms
For the greedy, the sinful and lewd.
And strong men rust, from the gold and the lust

That sears the Northland soul.

But the wickedest born from the Pole to the Horn

"FOLLOW ME"

Since last December, the paid up circulation of the Infantry School News has about doubled. It is believed that the function of this paper is to be read and read widely. Each member of this command should get a copy and mail it home. It is a good way to let the folks know what is going on at Benning. In order to boost our circulation and let members of this command get copies with less difficulty, we propose a special rate of fifty cents per year for delivery in bulk to companies, batteries, and detachments, providing at least fifty per cent. of each organization subscribes. Officers may include their subscriptions in unit totals.

Our present rate is $1.50 per year by mail and $1.00 for delivery at orderly rooms. Other service weeklies have the following annual rates:

Fifth Corps News	$2.00
Garry Owen Trumpeter
Service News	2.00
2nd Division Review	1.00
Hoof Prints	.50
Camp Lewis News	1.50
25th Inf. Bullet	2.40
Chanute Field News
U .S. A. Speedometer
7 2 4 4 4 4

The new rate of fifty cents per year will give those able to take advantage of it, copies at less than a cent apiece.

Go to your company, battery, or detachment orderly room and enter your name. Collections can be made next pay-day. You will get a copy each week in which to read baseball accounts and see box scores and have your comany notes. You will have one of your own to send home.

At present we use up all copies printed each week. Extra copies cost us 31-2 cents apiece to have printed. We will distribute them in this way at a cent apiece. We do not desire to make time and the quartermaster department. There is an officer in the 29th Infantry who always seems to gravitate toward the file closers and do his close order stuff out of sight.

Commanding Officer, 29th, U. S. Inf, Fort Benning, Ga.

I have just finished reading a copy of the "Recruiting News" in which I am informed that the second battalion has distinguished itself in Basket Ball meet recently.

I am proud to say that I was once a member of the 29th, and naturally, any news of my former regiment are always welcome. I served during the late war in Co. "L", third battalion, under Captain Wagner, at Camp Gaillard, Canal Zone, Panama. I had the pleasure to be with that regiment until it was ordered to the States after which I was transferred to the 33rd Infantry until discharged.

I am now a member of the unit which this letter head shows, which goes to show that the old saying is quite: once a soldier, always a soldier.

As a personal favor, will you be so kind as to inform me if there is any Post newspaper published at Fort Benning, in which I would be informed of my old "outfit" from time to time?

Hoping to receive a favorable reply. and wishing the regiment more success,

I am, Sir, your most obedient ser-

Signed,

Joseph L. Langis,

HISTORY OF THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS

On June 16, 1775, the Continental Congress passed a resolution which may be said to have given birth to the present Quartermaster Corps. The policy of the patriotic group of men who were striving for American Independence was expressed thus:

RESOLVED, That there be one
Quartermaster General for the Grand Army and one deputy under him for the separate army. That the pay of the Quartermaster General be $80 per month, and that of the deputy $40 per month."

The first Quartermaster General was Major Thomas Mifflin, of Pennsylva-nia, who was appointed to that posi-tion by the Commander-in-chief, Gen-washington. History is silent as to the officer who earned the $40 per month.

The newly created department func-tioned with more or less efficiency throughout the Revolutionary war, but with its ending the work of the Quartermaster General was minimized in importance and at one time it was uation continued until 1799, when a Quartermaster General with rank of in the world.

A jet General was authorized incidental to the military preparations for threatened hostilities with France.

spite of vigorous protests by the War Department.

On March 28, 1812, the department was re-established in full vigor with a brigadier-general as Q. M. G., four a brigadier-general as Q. M. deputy quartermasters and such assistant deputy quartermasters as the President's judgment dictated. This may be considered as the beginning of a reorganized and stabilized existence for the Quartermaster Department. True at various times up to the present it has been walking with three legs or with four, or with one, but the essential vital organs have remained intact for the proper functioning of the body as it now exists. The first thirtysix years were the hardest.

The department functioned normally throughout all the Indian troubles and the Mexican war, from May 8, 1818, to June 10, 1860, a period of forty-two years, one month and two days, under the leadership of General Thomas S. Jesup. His continued tenure of office may be assigned as a principal reason for the growing stability of the branch.

General M. C. Meigs was Quarter-master General of the Army during the Civil war period. To his genius may be attributed the fact that the Union Army throughout all that time was effectively cared for. General Grant, in his memoirs, said that the men were, except in rare cases, well clothed and fed.

From the close of the Civil war to outbreak of the war with Spain in 1898 the department performed the normal peace time functions of the supply branch of the army. During the Spanish-American war the department was for the first time faced with in problem of transporting and supplying an army away from the continental limits of the States. With some exceptions the handling of the large problems confronting the quartermasters was excellent.

When the great earthquake of 1906 hit San Francisco, the Q. M. D. rendered efficient service to the city in connection with this appalling disaster. The total expense to the department in this work was $1,236,324.96, showing the magnitude of given.

The Vera Cruz expedition of 1914, and the border troubles which led in 1916 to the sending of the militia to the Mexican line entailed arduous duties upon the Quartermaster Corps. Besides the troops at Vera Cruz and along the Texas border, large numbers of Mexican prisoners and interned (including women and children) had to be subsisted, which was accomplished with great credit to the Corps.

War was declared against Germany in April, 1917, and the United States launched itself on a military whose gigantic preparation and facilities astounded the world. The work of the Quartermaster Corps in trans porting and supplying the millions of fighting men who went first to vast training camps and afterwards over-seas was remarkable. The manner in which camps and cantonments were constructed, troops carried over land and sea by millions, and supplies for the vast hordes collected and distributed reflected the greatest credit upon the "service for the line" officers and Useless to go into details as all men. is familiar with the stupendous effort made.

The Corps has shown a steady growth in power to function for an ever increasing army, growing as the Union has grown, step by step, until 'o'av it, like the country, ranks as an equal with any similar organization

"Croix de Guerre"

For some, a white cross on a wine swept slope,

Lone marker of a comrade left alone;

some, a glittering bauble; braggarts boast Or heroes proudly cherish as their own;

For some, a cross to bear, as Christ's was borne. A burden heavy as a cross of stone.

Some bear their cross with labored, halting breath, Hiding a creeping canker in their breast;

Theirs is a crucifixion, worse Death;

Whose pallid pinions can bring naught but rest.

Deeply they breathed the gas-clouds poisoned breath

That ye breathe deep a breath by Freedom blest.

Some tread a world, whence voice and song have fled,

Bearing their cross through silent, soundless ways; hear not cheers nor shouts of Victory;

Wasted on them are sounding words of praise.

Life's melody's to them forever dead That ye might hear Life's music all your days.

Some bear their cross, through endless, shadowed days,

Treading a Vale, dark as Gethsemane;

Took they their cross, and bore it cheerfully,

Glad that their native land might still be free. Forget not that they tread the darker way, Try to make fair the land they cannot see.

O, Brother! drop unfeeling apathy, As blind, and halt, and lame, pass by your door;

you cheered as they marched off to War; Cheer them today, for now they need it more: Shield them from shameful want and beggary

Forget not how they shielded you before.

For some, a white cross on a windswept slope
Or in a blood-red poppy field, alone;

some, a bit of bronze, for valor given:

That bravest of the brave alone may own.

For some, a cross to bear, as Christ's was borne,
A burden, a burden, heavy as cross of stone.

TWO YEARS OF OLD CLOTHES

At the present rate it will take two years to equip every enlisted man in the Army with the new type roll collar uniform. This is on account of the stock of old style uniform coats still on hand and the great expense of altering them to conform to the new regulations. It is expected, however, that each man will be issued one new type blouse upon his entry into the service. Regulations call for the is-sue of one tailormade uniform to each soldier, and this will be of the The New

METROPOLITAN STAR OF NEW YORK OPERA TO BE HEARD HERE

Combined Pictorial and Musical Appearance of Marion Talley Sat-urday and Sunday

Through the joint efforts of the Infantry School News and the Assistant Recreation Officer, there will be presented at the War Department Theatre on Saturday and Sunday nights of this week, the finest musical rumbers yet heard in the garrison.

Specially brought here from Mobile. Specially brought here from Mobile there will be cast upon the screen the film entitled "The Phantom of Marion Talley" and her voice will be heard on the special orthophonic instrument, in "Caro Nome" from Rigoletto, the piece in which she made her debut at the age of pipeton years.

detto, the piece in which she made her debut at the age of nineteen years on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City.

Following this presentation, which will take place at eight o'clock on both nights, there will be a special added feature—Irving Berlin's newest composition: "At Peace with the World" performed by Roger Wolf Kahn's famous orchestra Kahn's famous orchestra.

The appearance of Marion Talley before the eyes and the ears of Benning audiences is made possible by the new Victor Orthoponic Victrola— Electrola and by the film directive initiative of Mr. Joseph Pasternack. Prices at the theatre will be as usual.

UNCLE SAM HAS MANY NEW NEPHEWS AT FORT AS RECRUITS ARRIVE

ive to Bring Garrison to Full Strength Brings 350 New Men Since April 1st.

Since April 1st the Recruit Center down in the 29th Infantry area has been filled with new nephews of Uncle Sam as a result of a recruiting campaign to bring all the organizations here up to their authorized strengths.

During the last two months 130 recruits have been sent to Fort Benning from the 3rd Corps Area, 56 have arrived from the 2nd Corps Area, and here in our own 4th Corps Area, 83 new men have been obtained. These men have been distributed throughout practically all units of the garrison, the 29th Infantry drawing most of them. The garrison is still about 100 men under strength, but it is expected that within the next week or so, enough men will be enrolled to complete the garrison personnel.

to complete the garrison personnel.

The largest single day's addition to the garrison's strength occurred last Friday when 49 arrived from Fort Slocum, N. Y., 10 from Columbus, Ohio, and 2 from Fort Bragg, N. C.

The "never hot, never cold" station is evidently beginning to find favor in the eves of prospective soldiers, or the re-eyes of prospective soldiers, or the re-cruiting sergeants have suddenly develop-ed very glib tongues.

NEWS NOTES

The attention of the ball players of the regiment is now beginning to focus upon the fast approaching Intermurals. In the opinion of Capt. Eberle, the regimental team has just completed, for a while at least one of the most successful seasons on rec-ord. The team has traveled a total of several thousand miles and has met the South's best colored teams and has convinced the sport world hereabouts that the regiment has one of the strongest aggregations of the South-land and perhaps in the east. College, university and big pro teams alike have bowed to the "West-enders" so called and full well realize the position that the 24th Infantry now cupies due to the brand of ball that cupies due to the brand of ball that they have turned out. During the season both home and abroad each game played has been packed full of the kind of baseball that draws a big "gate." Due, of course, to the approaching inter-mural series the team must revert to their battalion status and refuse the travel offers for outside games that have come pouring in.

The Reds and Blues this year look good and should stand well in the coming series. Anyway, if interest is indicative of success the teams are well along the road in that direction, and will give a splendid account of themselves when the "batteries for to-day's game" is announced.

Major Ormond Power announced that the first group would fire for record Thursday.

The machine gun companies will take the field for their annual target season about August 1st. At present they are busy going through the preliminaries.

On the Pistol range Captain Bren non is fast finishing up the remaining numbers and will undoubtedly finish by the end of this week.

After having been hard at work sal-Shoals, Ala., since March 5th, Company, "A" has turned its eyes homeward toward Fort Benning. The company, although it has been hard at work during its step at the big way plant. during its stay at the big war plant during its stay at the big war plant, has enjoyed the detail very much.

The company had salvaged, loaded and shipped, during its brief stay at the nitrate plant, about 125 carloads of much needed material. Almost every type of building supply has been shipped out to Benning and may be seen piled high in the Utilities yards.

Capt. Gent and his company left Muscle Shoals for the regiment early Thursday morning and expect, if luck is with them, to arrive here Sunday.

Upon arrival they will move into their new barracks, completed during their absence.

Little has been said heretofore about the new barracks that the regiment has been building within its own area and few persons know of their erection.

Since last fall the salvage lumber from Souther Field at Americus and the old war department theatre has been carefully preserved and is now being used in the construction of new living quarters for the regiment.

Already those for Co. "A" and "B" are completed and occupied, while those for Co. "C" are partially done.

Co. "D's" new dwellings are under way and will be done some time dur-

The new barracks are 215 feet long and 20 feet wide and of the best possible construction. They are entirely self contained, having the Orderly room at the end followed by the sup-ply room, next comes the sleeping quarters, recreation hall, barber and tailor shop. The barracks are beaver boarded throughout and painted both inside and out. Wall lockers of beaver board are built in for each man. The barracks are built to house a sixty-man company.

The work on the new dwellings has been done entirely by the company mechanics of the regiment and their work is a credit to them and the regiment.

Due to the lack of sufficient governmental funds, it was necessary to call upon the company funds for money to paint purchase the necessary beaver board.

The arrangement within the area of these new buildings is such that will permit a fairly large parade for each company. This feature is worthy of The regiment, since its arrival at Fort Benning, has been under canvas and welcomes the completion of tis new home. It is contemplated to push the completion of these barracks so that the entire regiment will be housed this year. Many delays, however, continually hamper the construction work, the cause being calls for details from the school. Despite the interruptions the works continues and each day sees the finished lumber pile dwindle and the splendid new barracks take form.

TEN WINNERS IN AUTO RACE ON FIRESTONES

For Ninth Time Gum-Dipped Tires Lead in Indianapolis Speedway Classic.

Full-Size Gum-Dipped Firestone Balloon tires again made a remarkable showing in the Indianapolis Speedway Classic on Decoration Day, when all ten winners participating "in the money" rode on these dependable tires.

This is the second time balloon tires were used in the great Speedway event, the first being last year when Peter DePaolo on Firestone Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons made a new world's record at an average speed of 101.13 miles per hour.

Smaller motors of 91 1-2 cubic inch displacement, compared to 122 cubic inches in 1925, combined with rainy weather and slippery track, slowed up the time of the 1926 winner, Frank Lockhart, who won this year's race at 95.88 miles per hour.

This year's gruelling battle of tires was called at the end of 402 1-2 miles because of the downpour of rain, Lockhart, who captured the grand prize, drove the full distance without a single tire change and was all set to go the entire 500 miles on the same set of tires.

It is a noteworthy fact, too, that the 1926 Indianapolis race was the ninth on the Hoosier Speedway in which Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires carried the winners to victory.

The terrific battle of tires brings out the effectiveness of Gum-Dipping, the exclusive process employed by the Firestone Company, which builds extra strength and endurance into the cord fabric by impregnating and saturating every fiber of every cord with rubber.

This special process minimizes friction and heat, keeping the tires comparatively dool under a continuous racing strain.

The performance of Firestone tires at Indianapolis this year certainly was remarkable when the terrific speed at which the cars traveled over the 15year-old rough brick track is taken into consideration.

These three Minor Parts were carried on the Handbills as John Smith, James Brown and William Jones and the Parts assigned to them were so similar they were almost alike. From the time that the Orchestra struck up the opening strains of "Blame the Baby" to the Deff and Dum Act where they play "How Dry I am," our Three Boys were Bracketed under the Title: The Three Wise Fools.

Of course, as everyone well knows, we are all born Free and Equal; so they were only Plain Fools to begin with; but a Ripening Wisdom came to them with the Mellowing Years. Howitzer Swimming Meet Captain A. D. Bruce took his Howitzer Company down to the swimming pool last Friday and staged the first company swimming meet at Benning. Every member of the company was required to enter in at least one event. This is "athletics for all" with a vengeance. The meet went off in great style and developed some very interesting competition. Particularly in the greased pole walking event was there stirring rivalry. Finally a man from Tennessee, Pfc. Melson, carried off the honors. Other competitors contested the result on the grounds that a man from the ridge running state had an unfair advantage. The prowas disallowed.

When the plunge for distance for beginners was run off, the event was won by a man who cannot swim a stroke, Carver.

VISITING CRESCENT CITY TEAM WINS IN LAST OF HOT SERIES

ew Orleans Takes Two of Three by Repeating 5-4 Victory of Previous Day.

After hurling shutout ball for seven innings and holding the New Orleans pros to two very scratch hits over that period Vance collapsed in the eighth frame of the third and deciding game of the 24th Infantry—New Orleans series Sunday afternoon. A run by the soldiers in the opening inning and a second gathered in the sixth gave the local teams a lead that sixth gave the local team a lead that looked safe with Vance going great guns, but in round eight the alien batters found the range and chased Vance Trammel relieving the faltering flinger. A base on balls started all the trouble. A sacrifice hit and three ringing singles sent two invaders scampering across the plate and Vance to the bench. Daring baserunning by the Crescent City boys soon had Trammel running crazily round in circles and before the side was re-tired two more tallies were registered, though nobody hit safely off the reief twirler.

New Orleans added a final run in the ninth, and lucky for them that they did, for in the ultimate half inning the west enders nearly snatched victory from defeat by a thrilling rally that had the stands in an up-noar. Driver batted for McCrary and took one of Willis' shoots in the ribs. Sloan Williams went out, second to 1st. Sloan Williams went out, second to 1st. Trammel singled. Battles died on a grounder to first, unassisted. Bell smashed a screaming triple to deepest center field, only a lightning return to the infield holding the fast outfielder at the hot station. F. Williams reled one on a dord line for the liams poled one on a dead line for the right field fence, but Russell grabbed it and the game was over.

It was by far the most interesting and best played game of the series. The visitors featured with the headiest defensive work seen on Gowdy Gowdy Field this year. Mechanically the eight brought out three fielding gems, two by Henry and the other by Col-

CRESCENT CITY TEAM EVENS COUNT AGAINST 24TH INFANTRY TEAM

Woeful Lapses by Sunset Field Give Invaders Victory By One Run Margin Sunset Fielders

Despite the fact that Captain Eberle threw in all his reserves in an effort to avert defeat the visiting professionals from New Orleans squared the series with the 24th Infantry, winning Saturday's fracas by a 5-4 count. The coach of the soldiers changed his men so fast in the latter part of the game that the score keeper got dizzy and the box score looks like a complete roster of the regiment, but all in vain.

The sunset soldiers should have won but inexcusable errors of hand and head presented the visitors with enough runs to nullify an early lead obtained through Parnell's ignorance of the location of home plate at Gowdy Field. The intelligence section of the invading host fell down health and the invading host fell down badly and failed to give Parnell any idea of the terrain over which he was operating until after the second inning. One hit, four bases on balls, and an error netted the soldiers three runs in the first couple of innings, which topped by two the single marker gleaned by the visitors in the second as a result of a triple and Thomas' miserable muff of Bell's fine throw to the plate.

In the fourth the Crescent City gang scored two more in spite of a fast double play with three on and none out. Successive doubles by V. Williams and Battles put the west enders out in front again in the fifth, but in the sixth came the deluge.

NEW ORLEANS PRO TEAM OVERWHELMED BY 24TH IN OPENER OF SERIES

Vicious Assault on Visiting Twin Gives Soldiers Easy 10-2 Victory Twirler

Warrants are out for all members of the 24th Infantry baseball team for the vicious assault committed by them on one Laurant, pitcher for the New Orleans Colored Professional baseball team. Happily it was only the offerings of this young man and not his person that received the terrific walloping administered by baseball bats in the hands of the sunset soldiers.

The 24th opened a three games series with the Crescent City gang last Friday and in the very first inning settled the result. Battles, Trammel, F. Williams, Hayward and Hampton smote safely, Hayward's drive being for two sacks. Three runs, resulted for two sacks. Three runs resulted. So far as the ultimate decision was concerned the game could have stopped right there as the visitors made only two tallies in all their nine turns at bat.

But the military men seemed to have taken a marked dislike to Laurant and in the fourth inning raked his delivery fore and aft. Four hits. two errors, a hit batter and a pair of miscues enabled six of the ten sol-diers who went to bat to circumnavigate the bases.

Russell relieved the badly battered Laurant in the fifth and stopped the slaughter abruptly and absolutely, but the damage was done.

Trammel twirled well throughout, permitting few liberties by the alien batters. Laurant's double and Parnell's single propelled one run over in the sixth, and Russell's double followed by Broomy ringing triple formation.

OUTDOOR CEREMONIES CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY QUARTERMASTER CORPS

Barbecue and Field Day at Major General M. W. Ireland Harmony Church Furnishes Fun for Personnel

Wednesday morning Wiggins' little railroad carried a merry crowd out to Harmony Church, where recently the Raging Reds and Battling Blues met in mortal combat. This time, however, the travelers was not on slaughter bent. They were celebrating the 151st anniversary of the natal day of the Quartermaster Corps.

A fine program of fun and frolic had A fine program of fun and frolic had been arranged by Colonel Warfield and the committees in charge of the various phases of the celebration. The morning hours were devoted, after a general get-together, to the first part of the track and field meet. At 11:30 a. m. everybody ganged up and had their picture taken: Then a message from the Quartermaster General was read, after which came the big barbecue to which full justice was

The army's distinguished medical chief is coming here to inspect the facilities afforded by the new hospital, and his visit will probably be but a short one. Benning is proud of its fine hospital and expects the General to be well pleased with it.

The officers of the Medical Corps have arranged a big reception and dance tonight in honor of the distinguished visitor.

General Ireland was Surgeon General of the A. E. F. and over there his work was done so well that he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and on October 4, 1918, was ap-pointed Surgeon General of the Army, Distinguished Service which position he has filled ever since. He was only recently reappointed for another four-year period.

CREEK INDIANS OF THIS REGION

"Occupying a region that reached from the Atlantic Ocean to the Tombigbee and Alabama Rivers, including portions of the States of Georgia and Alabama and all of Florida, the Seminoles there being a kindred tribe, the Creek Indians had developed a civilization that held the forms and customs and was marked by many of the best characteristics of the most advanced tribes on the North American continent. However, it must be admitted that the Creeks exhibited a ferociousness that did not characterize the neighboring tribes—the Natchez, Choctaws, and Cherokees—though no tribe existed that did not have this trait well enough developed, and all in war resorted to the massacre,

"This branch of the Muscogees was nicknamed 'Creeks' by the Europeans, on account of the many streams that flowed through their country. Referring to an older generation a writer says:

"'The men of the Creek Confederacy were well-proportioned, active and grace ful; the women were smaller, exquisitely formed and some of them were very In summer both sexes went beautiful. without clothing, excepting a drapery of Spanish moss that was fastened at the waist and fell to the thighs. The principal people painted their faces and bodies in fanciful colors, and fops sometimes appeared in beautiful mantles of feathers or deer-skins and on their heads were lofty plumes of the eagle and the flamingo. The houses of the chiefs stood upon mounds, sometimes in the form of a great pavilion, and the inside of their winter dwellings were daubed with clay. Hunting, fishing, and cultivating their fertile lands were their employment, for they seldom made aggressive war. They were skillful artisans in making arms, houses, barges, canoes, and various kinds of ornaments. They made pottery for kitchen service and some of it was very ornamental. Fortifications were constructed, with moats and walled towns, and grand and heaviful temples abound structed, with moats and walled towns, and grand and beautiful temples abounded. They made mats of split cane with which they covered their houses and upon which they sat. These resembled the rush carpeting of the Moors. In their temples, dedicated to the worship of the sun, were votive offerings of pearls and rich furs. They regarded the sun as the superior deity, and in all their invocations they appealed to it as to God. To it they made sacrifices of grain and animals. The chief, while living, was held in the greatest veneration as priest and king. As a symbol of devotion to him of the entire strength of the nation, the sacrifice of the first-born male child was required, while the born male child was required, while the young mother was compelled to witness the slaughter of her child. Their marriages were attended with great displays of ornaments and flowers, and at the setting of the sun the bride and groom and their friends prostrated themselves before that luminary and implored his blessing. Like the Iroquois, the civil power in their government was widely distributed; and, like the Iroquois, the Creeks were an exception in their approach to civilization to all the Indian tribes of North America. Such were the Creeks or Muscogee Indians when first seen by Europeans.'"—(From Rowland: Andrew Jackson's Campaign.)

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE ASSOCIATION

Columbus, Ga., May 31, 1926. Miss Annie Lou Grimes, Principal, Children's School, Fort Benning, Ga.
Dear Miss Grimes and Lovely Children:

We received your precious prize money and will use it to give a little girl milk, whose father has deserted her and whose mother is dead. Her old Grandmother loves her very much and would give her everything she needs if she could, but she only washes for a living, and since the little girl was found to have tuberculosis she can't bring the washings home, she must go to her patrons homes to do the work, for fear of infecting other little girls and boys with the same disease.

The Grandmother appreciates this help and hopes the milk food and sunshine will make her little girl well again

The Public Nurse Association appreciates the thoughtfulness of the children in wanting to help the sick get well. We want to assure them their contribution is worth while and applied where needed. Also to congratulate you all on winning the prize.

Most sincerely,

(Signed) Mrs. Isadore Hermann, R. N. Superintendent, Public Health Nurse Association.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY

The Right Way

Exchange copies of service papers coming to this office reveal two very interesting things to try once.

Out in the State of Washington, according to the Camp Lewis News, a deserter at hard labor awaiting trial, asked the prisoner chaser who trailed him around, if the prisoner chaser was pretty good with the pistol. Private Garvin of Battery "B," Tenth Field Artillery, replied that he had failed to qualify during the recent range practice. Whereupon, Prisoner Clark suddenly turned, took to his heels, ran down the railroad track, and tried to make a getaway. Out in the State of Washington, ac-ried to make a getaway.

Garvin gave chase, was out-distanced, called thrice on the fugitive to halt and then squeezed the trigger.

The Colt forty-five automatic barked once, and Prisoner Clark dropped dead, shot through the heart.

At Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, a certain Private McAfee, of "B" Company, Eleventh Infantry, was standing guard over a prisoner working on the dump pile. Investigating his piece, he suddenly discovered it was really loaded, and accidentally shot himself. Up jumped the prisoner, whose name was overlooked by the er, whose name was overlooked by the Fifth Corps News,—up jumped the prisoner, and carried his wounded guard to the hospital. And that's another thing a prisoner chaser should only try once

HANDICAP SWIMMING

I am going to tell you the story of a swimming club, a club with a continuous and sustained interest on the part of its members, such as I have never seen anymemoers, such as I have never seen anywhere else in the world. It is not an elaborate organization. It has no expensive pool, nor a beautifully appointed building. But it functions. It functions in spite of its handicaps, because it maintains continuous competitions of a peculiar and particularly interesting character. Its success is due to its methods. The methods are not trademarked or copyrighted or patented. They may be imitated by other clubs sewhere; they may be imitated in other swimming places where there are now no clubs; they may make swimming more of a universal sport even more than it has become today. That is my than it has become today. Treason for telling this story.

The place is the Serpentine, the shallow lake in Hyde Park, known to many Londoners of all classes as a spot convenient for swimming. There is house. You simply arrive well before eight o'clock in the morning, and undress under a big tree, which has sheltered watermen of this club since

You will probably be approached by a gray-haired man holding the office of secretary and treasurer of the Club, who will ask you to join at the rate of a shilling a month. You join. If you don't you will be missing some of the best competition in your life. Straightway your name is enrolled in a company of swimming fans of the most heterogeneous character.

That youngster over there comes from one of the most aristocratic families in the kingdom, and is home in Mayfair during the long vacation from one of the most fashionable "public schools" in England—which aren't public at all, you know. The elderly gentleman on your right, with the stooped shoulders, keeps a sweet-shop in Maida Vale, the one next to him is a tobacconist in High Holborn. The man on your left is a major in the army. Over the way is a waiter from the Trocadero restaurant. Down a bit you see the physician to the Queen. Here is a haberdasher's clerk from Marylebone Road. Such is the club you join, a democratic amalgamation of persons interested in swimming and caring not for anything but their mutual swim-ming interest. Who said the British ming interest. were snobbish?

But what brings these people out every day in the week? Partially their liking for aquatics, of course. But also, in perhaps the greatest measure, the constant competition that takes place along the people. There is to be the edge of the bank.. There is to be a race this morning—as there is at least three mornings a week, often more. This is to be a "200", and the competitors line up on the bank—forty of them—count them—forty! The handicaps range from five minutes to five seconds. They line up in the order of starting and file out, each as his time to start and file out, each as his time to start comes, on a narrow dock approached by a simple plank. The limit man starts at the crack of the gun. He is sixty-five years old and swims a feeble breast stroke all the way. Others start in turn. By the time the scratch man gets off, the course ahead of him is dotted with moving heads propelled by stout arms and weak, long arms and dotted with moving heads propelled by stout arms and weak, long arms and short, strokes of every kind and description—some of them so far down the course that they seem almost to have finished before he begins swimming. But no, the handicapping is too good for that

The scratch man is not swimming The scratch man is not swimning a hopeless race by any means. There is always opportunity. The handicapping is based upon the best performances of each individual over that distance. Gradually the field closes up. So accurate is the handicapping, that there will be always at least 50 per cent. of the competitors within five yards of one another at the tape—often within three or two yards. Talk about your blanket finishes! A man has to swim better than he ever has before to upset calculations and win, be he scratch man or limit man or one of those is between. And as a matter of fact the race usually goes to one of the in-betweens, though I have one of the an-petweens, flough I have on two separate occasions seen the spec-tators go wild with enthusiasm, and shout most politely "Well swum!" when a scratch man, in the prime of youth, forced his way through the field to victory, and again when an old gentleman of fifty-eight, with the limit handicap, won by a finger nail.

The handicapping continues the interest, because the handicapping is exact and accurate. Every man's time is taken every time he swims, and dark horses are never seen in those waters. Every man always has a chance. Every man is impelled to improve his work by just a little bit.

The race is over. Are the prizes distributed? Not so the Prince of Wales would notice it, or even the coster from Covent Garden. There are no prizes for this race, merely "points" towards a prize. This race is only one of a series for the Lord Monocle Cup, a series of perhaps fifteen races. Tomorrow the perhaps fifteen races. Tomorrow the "100" will be one of a series for the Earl of Waterpool's trophy. The next, one of a series for the Duke of Splash's Shield. The following race for the Humane Society's Life-Saving Plaque. And so on. For each prize, which has been donated by an interested person or corporation, there are a series of races scheduled at intervals, over many months each season. A competitor cannot walk down before breakfast and come home with a bit of silverware for his morning co1/4 ee. He must come many mornings.

That is what I mean when I say that the interest is sustained. It is sustained for the winners because they must repeat. Yet they do not repeat very often, because the handicapping is so good. The winning time is marked against the victor in the black book of the secretary, and the handicap is adjusted accordingly. Some one else has a better chance next time. Some one else the next. And so on again. It is, in fact, very unusual for a winner to accumulate more than three again. It is, in fact, very unusual for races. Large numbers are asked to turn a winner to accumulate more than three out for these contests.

"places" in any one series. Eight "points" have been known to win a gold medal, when there were a dozen races, and the point holders included about thirty individuals:

The combination sustains the interest. The combination of having series of races for any one prize (instead of handing out medals each time the dripping competitors regain dry land), and having hand-icaps constantly adjusted. Indeed, the prizes are awarded in all but a very few races for improvement and not for ability. If you be forty years old and swim only the breast stroke, and cover fifty yards in a minute and a half, and finish last the first time you swim, you will straightway be handicapped differently, and may cross the tape well up in the crowd, even placing perhaps. As soon as you place, your handicap is adjusted again, and you may keep right on improving and outdistance the handicapper each time, and win enough points to put a silver spoon in your baby's mouth, or a gold dangle on your watch chain. But you cannot do this unless you keep improving, for the handicapper will quickly set you where you belong and keep you there, unless your ability refuses to remain stationary. If it forges ahead, you will forge ahead each time you churn the waters of the Serpentine.

Without facilities, with inconsequential funds, with a few moderate donations for a few prizes, this club has contin-ued in business at the same old tree in Hyde Park for more than fifty years It has kept its members interested; it has always emphasized and encouraged improvement, rather than sheer ability; it has sprints and long distance events, and harlequin races, and rescue races, and backstroke contests. I do not know of any stars that it has developed. I do know that it has maintained an unusual interest in swimming among persons of all ages, all classes, and all degrees of proficiency.

The successive handicap races announced this week for the garrison swimming pool are modeled on the competitions described in this article. Good or bad, fair or excellent, every swimmer will have a fine chance in these handicap

A ROMANCE OF THE ARMY

By S. T. Williamson.

The First Sergeant of Battery A The first Sergeant of Battery A. Fifth United States Field Artillery, stood in front of the Presidio Barracks, near San Francisco, threver ago, while a non-descript batch of recruits, just in from St. Louis, sourced from the penetration of his squirmed from the penetration of his gimlet eye. He was a type that is now as extinct as a hassock, for no longer are there in our army any hard-bitten, gray-haired, leathery featured non-coms, with records of twenty-five years' service against the Indians. His blue uniform fitted as though he had been poured into it, and the red stripes of his trousers bent with the contour of legs more accustomed to the saddle than the means of locomotion with which the infantry is afflicted. squirmed from the penetration of his infantry is afflicted.

A detachment such as that slouching before him was his favorite meat. He was a maker of men. No potter with his clay could achieve greater transformation than did he with the raw human material forwarded from recruiting offices. Willowy spines would become ramrods; shifty eyes would become steady; laziness would yield to intelligent obedience; slovenliness would be displaced by precision and neatness of person; insolence would capitulate to respect for superiors devotion to duty and paids superiors, devotion to duty and pride of service—in short, these unpromising individuals would be moulded into soldiers, hard-boiled regulars, artillerymen. For three years they would be valets to horseflesh and servants to three-inch guns.

One of these recruits was rewarded by the First Sergeant with almost an approving glance. He was a square-jawed young Kentuckian, whose jawed young Jawed young Kentuckian, whose ambition it had been for years to enter the army. His father was a man of position and influence in his State, and had he so willed he could have obtained a West Point appointment; but he was a Yale graduate; and his dearest wish was that his son should follow him at New Haven. By fulfilling this wish, even though it might end all chances of an army career, the youngster showed his soldierly qualities, for the first requisite

To be sure, President Cleveland had To be sure, President Cleveland had just twisted the British lion's tail with some blunt remarks about Venezuela, and Spain still held Cuba, but at that time no clouds looked black enough for war. Ours was a ludicrously small regular army in those days — scarcely 30,000 men. Promotion of officers was as slow as a glacier. Captains, West Pointers, had been known to die of old age. What chance was there of a commission for a Yale graduate and private of field artillery?

Three years later Battery A had crossed the continent from the Presidio to New York and a fort guarding the Narrows. Robert E. Lee once was stationed there, and interrupted his military studies to lay out a sys-tem of earthworks that exists to this day and may be accepted as his New York monument. The long hours Lee spent there in professional study were duplicated by a square-jawed young Kentuckian, now a corporal. The grim First Sergeant had made a soldier of him in fact as well as in appearance. The corporal had secured for himself a knowledge of military history and strategy beyond that are history and strategy beyond that of officers stationed at that post. He knew by heart the campaigns of a corporal who became emperor, and so thoroughly did he know the mistakes of the Civil War that he could have made his way blindfolded over many Southern battlefields. Southern battlefields.

McKinley had succeeded Cleveland. The latter, as he turned over his office said: "Mr. President, I bequeath to you a war with Spain." Young officers were needed for any army that might soon see tropical service. Examinations were held for commissions, and as a result a young Kentucky corporal of field artillery was eligible for appointment as Second Lieutenant. He was sworn in at the fort guarding the Narrows in the presence of the First Sergeant of Bat-

Despite Cuba and the Philippines, promotion in the regular army was dishearteningly slow. A young Kentuckian had risen from private to Lieutenant in three years, but twenty years after he was only a Major. career, the youngster showed his soldierly qualities, for the first requisite of a soldier is obedience; but after he graduated and was of age with his own life to lead, he enlisted as a private in the regular army while the last singing of "Bright College Years" still rang in his ears.

Once this step was taken his future seemed hopeless. What Indians there were left were learning football.

Neither division nor chief of staff relative division nor oner of start failed the other. Daringly prepared operations were daringly and recklessly executed. While the Marines won deathless glory in Belleau Wood, the regulars took Vaux in one of the most thoroughly planned operations. most thoroughly planned engagements of the war, in which each corporal had a map of the street he was to follow and the dugout he was to subdue. Soissons and St. Mihiel followed in victorious succession, and the one-time corporal of a squad received a division of his own in the Argonne.

Then came peace, reduction in rank, made necessary by a small peace-time army, and the prospects of slow promotion. A Brigadier stepped into a Major General's shoes, and the corporal of twenty-five years before stepped into the Brigadier's. A Major General retired this month, and in the same room where the corporal became a Lieutenant, an erect 81-year-old retired first sergeant of field artillery saw the Presido recruit achieve the highest peace-time rank in the army.

At Fort Hamilton, Preston Brown, Chief of Staff of the Second Division, and in the Argonne Commander of the Third Division, took the oath as the Third Division, took the oath as Major General and Commander of the First Corps Area with headquarters at Boston. A witness of the ceremoney was First Sergeant Joseph Heifer, retired, who was top sergeant of Battery A, Fifth Field Artillery, in which General Brown enlisted as a private in 1894.—The Sentinel.

"FOLLOW ME"

Down in this neighborhood, where we frequently hear military men whose homes are in the northern states, make remarks to the effect that this person or that, or these people or those "don't know the Civil War is over yet," we find much to contemplate on the question of national loyalty.

It might strike some people with surprise to find flags of the federated Union flying from Broad Street sidewalks on holidays set aside in honor of Robert E. Lee or in honor of the Confederate soldier dead. It might appear incongrous to see a platoon of khaki clay doughboys of the Army of the United States firing a salute at the Confederate monument on South Broad Street. But those to whom these things appear incongrous are unacquainted with the situation and the sense of the community.

In race and blood and manner, the South today is by exact facts, the most American part of the nation. It has given the country many loyal soldiers. Its military schools rate with the best in the land. The Citadel and Virginia Military Institute have contributed largely to the honorable profession of arms. Indeed, a vast proportion of the men who wear the uniform of Uncle Sam in this very garrison are Southerners born and bred.

Our Corps Area commander last week addressed the graduating class at The Citadel, in Charleston, South Carolina. Telling his hearers that they represented the new South, Major General Johnson Hagood said to the cadets of that historic school:

"You will carry the flag of Sherman and Grant, but do not forget that you carry the heart of Jackson and Lee. Be true to the traditions of the South, particularly in its chivalrous attitude toward BENNING INSTRUCTOR woman. The South stands in a peculiar position. Its loyalty questioned for fifty years, it stands today the most loyal, the most conservative and the most American of any part of this great country. And more particularly does it stand high in the quality of its soldiers."

"FOLLOW ME"

Some high-rankers (without shoulder bars) were talking the other day about the Infantry School News and the new subscription offer. Here are some of their remarks, accurately recorded:

"Fiifty cents a year is less than a cent a copy."

"A dollar is nothing in a payday crap game."

"Every organization in camp should subscribe at least 80 per cent."

"One of the things company commanders are talking about is-keeping in touch with the men who are discharged. And the Infantry School News will mail copies to discharged men up to the subscription expiration date."

"Every man should get a copy and should mail it home."

"Company commanders should get out and say: I want this company to subscribe one hundred per cent. strong."

"Down in our company there has never been any real effort to get subscriptions.

Let us re-iterate our offer: (a) Rate fifty cents per year. (b) Deliveryin bulk to orderly rooms, each copy marked with name of subscriber. (c) Organization must subscribe at least 50 per cent. strong basing the percentage on their present for duty strength.

Let us repeat: "WHY NOT MAIL THE NEWS HOME."

OFFICERS OF THE SOUTH

Statistics given out in Washington indicate that the South proportionately leads in Army officers. The fourteen states that contributed to the units of the Confederate Army contain not quite 22 per cent. of the white population of the United States, and yet those very states supply 27 per cent. of the 11,999 commissioned officers in the military service of the United States.

Virginia, principal battlefield of the Civil War, gives more officers in proportion than any other state in the Union portion than any other state in the Union.

SPEAKS ON DEFENSES BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

Address by Captain Dumas at Lucheon in City of Columbus Recently

At a recent meeting of the Rotary Club of the city of Columbus, Captain Walter A. Dumas, instructor in the Academic Department ,made an effec tive address on the subject of peace-time preparedness for war. Giving examples of the progressiveness of the American people as characteristic and has made us the envy of the world in finance, commerce and leadership, he compared this with the slowness with which we learn the lesson of peace-time preparedness. In the latter case the speaker said we are the most unthe speaker said we are the most unprogressive people in the world. Quoting Washington, first president of the United States, that "to be prepared for war is the most effectual means of preserving peace," he said, "that for 150 years we have neglected to learn this lesson. In 1812 the British in small numbers of trained forces in small numbers of trained forces routed many times their number of untrained American soldiers, who only escaped ultimate defeat because Britain withdrew her forces from American soil on account of troubles she was having in Europe. In 1846, Mexico, contemptuous of the character of the American army, decided to fix the boundary line between Mexico and this country to suit herself. It was costly for us. Again in 1898 in our war with Spain we lost a great many soldiers, not from bullets, but from yellow fever and other diseases, because we were not prepared to cope with them.

"In 1916, Villa, the Mexican bandit, laughed at the United States and he and his small band got away with it, because of our lack of knowledge we should have had and because of the lack of training in our military forces."

In this she failed. In 1920 the national defense act was perfected and it is the best law of the kind we and it is the best law of the kind when have yet had. It provides for the regular army and also for a reserve composed of the national guard. We have the R. O. T. given us military knowledge, but knowledge is worth nothing if not put into practice."

Capt. Dumas stated that before the World war Columbus had a military company. Since that time there has been none. The officers for such company exist but it is doubtful if they know one another. The regular army consists of only one-sixth of the available military forces of the Unit-ed States. Much of the balance is composed of the national guard composed of local military companies. Co-lumbus, with its 50,000 inhabitants, has sent only one man to Fort Ben-ning for infantry traing. We should re-organize our military company re-organize our military company that the city nearest Fort Benning take advantage of the courses at the school and so that we could prepare for war in time of peace.

NEW RESTAURANT AT OFFICERS' CLUB

Captain Walker announces that the Officers' Club has opened a new restaurant in the canteen section of the Clubhouse, a precurser of the larger restaurant which will be given one of the places of honor in the new building.

Enlargements have been made kitchen facilities. Tables have been arranged and set apart behind a screened area. Meals are being served regularly from 7-9:30 a.m., from 11:30 to 1:30 at noon, and from 5:30-8:00 p. m. The lunch counter will be maintained as usual for special orders, open as long as the club is open, that is, from 7:00 a. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Vacation widowers are already beginning to use these facilities to supplant the discontinued Biglerville Mess. Hot weather has begun to cause housewives to appear at the Club instead of emerging from their own kitchens or keeping the maids at the stove in tropical heat.

At ten-thirty Tuesday morning the Hdgrs. Battery of the 83rd F. A. arrived at Fort McPherson. The trip from Ft. Benning to Ft. McPherson consumed only two days of actual marching time. Arriving at Greenville, Ga. on the first day of their hike they stayed there unil this morning, when they left at about Regrets were many in having to leave the lake at Greenville. While camping there a good time was enjoyed by all. Fishing and swimming were the largest thing in the line of recreation, but a great deal of that. Most of the men left the lake a great deal better physically, then when there arrived the lake a great deal better physically, than when they arrived. Living most of the day in bathing suits and swimming or rowing put them up in the best shape. "H" Company has been "plaguing" us long enough. This company will always lay claim to "leading the way" in the Twenty-ninth and in being superior to "H" Company. We expect Company to claim just as much. and hope they try as hard as we do to live up to our claims.

It isn't a single company that leads the way, anyway. It's the regiment that leads the army; let's pull together and make this the best regiment in the service.

1st Lt. Robert A. Case has joined "D" Company just in time for the range season. Lt. Case is a world war veteran, serving overseas.

Everyone in the company is anxious to qualify on the range with both the machine gun and pistol. Prizes for machine gun qualification offered by the company include:

First prize for high score, individual, $25 wrist watch.
Second prize $8 wrist watch.
Third prize $5 wrist watch.

Prizes for novice qualification: First prize for new man with highest score $10 wrist watch.

Second prize, $8 wrist watch.
Third prize, $5 rist watch.
Carl Brown, of 1st Bn. Hq. Company, has transferred to the company.
Glad to have you, old man.
Squad leaders will work hard to win one of the two prizes offered for the corporal whose squad has the highest average score. First prize is a $10 wrist watch and second award is a $5 wrist watch

One of our popular college laddies, Charles E. King, of Baton Rouge, La., will leave soon for Fitzsimmons General Hospital, Denver, Colo., where he will undergo treatment. Best wishes for a speedy recovery for a speedy recovery.

REDS OPEN GARRISON RACE WITH VICTORY OVER DETACHMENTEERS

Reconstructed Green Hats Surpr Supporters With Fine Showing Surprise

An up and coming bunch of young sters from the Infantry, School De-tachment went out on the diamond at Gowdy Field Saturday and fought the veteran garrison champion Reds to a finish in the opening game of the race or the Gowdy Cup. Behind remarkably steady pitching by Shepherd, the Green Hats showed a hard playing team that will be heard from before the end of the season. With only three of last year's regulars in the game, the stage was all set for an overwhelming Red victory, but the final addition of the score board showed three runs for the Reds against a lone marker for the Detachment.

No scoring in the first four innings. Hits by Snell, Shepherd and Trotter gave the Green Hats one in the fifth which the Reds more than matched in the same round on singles by Bell and F. Williams and King's long triple. Another for the Reds in the seventh when Heckert narrowly missthe ed making a triple killing. Two Reds were cut down on the play, but Vance scored during the double kill-Heckert starred afield with Morris turning in two nice plays at third for the Detachment. The Reds hit sturdily, gathering 13 safeties, but Shepherd was very stingy in the pinches.

TANKERS OPEN WITH VICTORY OVER IST BATS BY ONE RUN

Hail's Bat and Lindsey's Pitching Beat Doughboys by 4-3 Count.

In six of nine innings McGaha's dipping spitter completely baffled the Terrible Tankers last Sunday, but in the other three frames the boys who drive the whippets collected 4 runs and 5 hits and thereby began their Gowdy Cup series games with a win over the Doughboys from the 1st Battalion by the closest possible margin. "Red" Lindsey adorned the mound for Major Milburn's boys and was tighter than a Scotchman in the pinches. The Infan-Scotchman in the pinches. The Infantrymen smote nine safeties and had eleven men left on the paths, but could make only three safe circuits of the diamond. Nine of them swung fiercely diamond. Nine of them swung fiercely and futilely at the third strike and went back to the bench vowing ven-

The foot sloggers threatened at every point and time after time seemed certain to break through Lindsey's defense, but the k. o. power wasn't there. Runs in the fifth, seventh and eighth failed to balance with the Tankers' two in the first and single markers in the sixth and eighth.

It was a tough game for McGaha It was a tough game for McGaha to lose, but in spite of the seeming difference in effectiveness Lindsey deserved to win. His coolness under fire and his ability to put on the brakes at crucial moments were remarkable. Hall made 3 of the Tanks' 5 blows. Magagna furnished the fielding thrill with a fine running estell back of unusual head equipment with a fine running catch back of third in the first inning. The irrepres-sible Sweeney drove in two of his team's tallies.

In fact, this competition between the upward and downward motions of my ears and so-called "Adam's Apple" is complete around meal time. Neither wins, however, for as my jaw travels in its circular, masticating movement, the ears rise and fall—as does the Apple. Due and diligent practice in muscular jaw contortion has not helped.

Even as a last resort, on the advice of one of my dearest friends who listened with great patience to my story, I tied my ears to the side of my head. I found, however, that it was necessary to tie them tightly to gain the necessary results— but I could not eat when they were tied

LEONARD LEADS BLUES TO EASY WIN AGAINST 2ND BATTALION TEAM

Kellys Get Off to Good Start, But Are Helpless Thereafter. Blues Hit Hard

Newman, Kelly first sacker, smashed a home run to deepest centerfield in the first inning of Monday's game on Gowdy Field, sending Parris home ahead of him. But the 24th Infantry Blues came back in their half of the opening frame and chased three run-ners over the plate, landing hard and often on the offside shoots of "Shim-my" Carnes. Thereafter Leonard held the boys from the 29th in the hollow of his hand and they scored no more. On the other hand the Blues continued a steady attack against Harkey, who succeeded Carnes on the mound in the third inning and rolled up eight

The Kellys played listless baseball and were guilty of five fielding miscues. Stupid baserunning threw away their only chance after the first frame. On the other hand the Blues played errorless ball in the field and were full of life and pep all the way. Lyon's one handed grab of Willis' liner in the ninth was a fielding gem of purest ray serene. ## GEORGIA DAUGHTERS OF THE REVOLUTION GIVE MORE BRONZES

Indian Village of "Kasihta" Commemorated

Just before noon on Monday, July 5th, a band will stand at the junction of the First Division Road and Wold Avenue and break into the strains of "Dixie" in honor to the visiting Georgians who come to the Fort as representatives of the Daughters of the American Revolution of the state of Georgia and the local chapters.

As the seventy-five's of the artillery begin to fire the annual Fourth of July guns as the Salute to the Union, there will commence brief but appropriate ceremonies attending the unveiling of two bronze tablets presented to the local garrison by the Daughters of the Revolution to commemorate the fact that in this very area of the Benning plain there once stood the ancient Indian village of Kasihta, peace town of the Lower Creek Confederacy, and the fact that at the mouth of the Upatoi on the banks of the Chattahoochee there was fought in 1836 a bitter battle between Creek Indians and Georgia Militja, an engagement which opened the last series of affrays known as the Creek War.

The program decided upon consists of The program decided upon consists of brief remarks by the regents of the Columbus chapters of the D. A. R., the playing by the band of a piece called "Indian Summer" derived from Creek tradition, a presentation address and an acceptance in the name of the garri-son by Brigadier-General Edgar T. This point in the garrison, when finally paved, will become a regular traffic circle and will be known as the Historical Circle.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP OF FORT BENNING SLATED FOR PLAYING

Battle of Hitchiti and Site of Early July Contest Prepared to Determine Title Crown on Garrison Course

Over the Fourth of July week-end, there will be decided on the Warfield-Clarke course, the golf championship of Fort Benning. All players will be required to play on the third of July in a qualifying round. Those turning in scores will be arranged into three classes according to scores and individual wast. according to scores, and individual matches will be played on July 4th and 5th in each class. Prizes will be given for the winner and the runner-up in each class and for the low qualifying net

With the recrudescence of interest at this station in the ancient Scotch game, a large number of entrants are expected. The matches in progress with the Columbus Country Club and those in prospect with golfing enthusiasts of adjacent cities have done a great deal to get the garrison drive and putt enthusiasts on the fairways and greens with increasing regularity. The regular Sunday handicap matches have been exceptionally well attended and interestingly contested. Sixty members of this command are participating regularly in the traveling of elusive white balls along the shores of Lake Malone and the reaches of the Lumpkin Road.

GOLF RINGERS CONTINUE PLAY BETTERING SCORE

Thirty-eight Officers Playing Regular-ly in Ringer Tournament until July First

Until the first of July, the golfers of the garrison may still better their scores in the ringer tournament. Thirty-eight have entered, and scarcely a day passes but some one turns in a card with a point better score for some one hole, which—under the terms of the tournament—replaces the original score for that

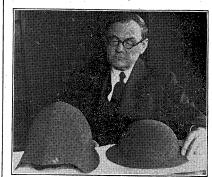

Quite a number of two's are scattered down the cards, but no one as yet has had the fortune to be initial member of a Hole-in-One Club. The short hole, where the Number 5 flag is only 112 yards from the tee, is a favorite for a two, ten officers having made that cup two, ten orders having made that cup in a drive and a putt, as follows:

Colonels Williams, Warfield, Major Russ, Captains Moore, Nivelle, Barnett, A. E. Brown, Burress Howder, and Childs

Following is the record on the nine holes to date, subject to alteration up to July first:

GOOD OLD TIN HAT HOLDS SUPREMACY IN ARMY MILLINERY

Infantry Board and Dept. of Experiment Find Their Opinions Approved

"Tin hats" as worn by the doughboys of the American Expeditionary Force and now in the hands of troops will be retained. Exhaustive study and tests of the most suitable size and shape, conducted by the Department of Experiment and the Infantry Board here at Fort Benning, have been in progress for about five years. The scrutiny included a large number of styles and shapes, some with almost flat surfaces, some with deep low brims, some with extended metal to protect the back neck, some almost iden-tical with the German dishpan. All of these types were photographed and silhouetted. They were packed in the soldier's kit and strapped to his back. They were ableted to rifle and machine gun fire to determine the ability of each to deflect bullets.

Tests finally narrowed the choice to the old overseas "tin hat" and a helmet the old overseas "tin hat" and a helmet something like the German bucket, but with pointed edges and a sheik like flare resembling the prettiest type worn by a mediaeval pike men. The present helmet and this other type, known as the "5-A" ran a close race. The Infantry Journal has summarized the results of the tests as follows: "More of the water. the tests as follows: "More of the water is covered by the 5-A helmet than by the present helmet, but the present helmet offers more resistance to the penetration of projectiles and greater ability to deflect. The two types are about equal in protection against sun and rain. The 5-A is heavier, and has a greater ten-dency to fall off. It is more uncomfortable in hot weather, but more comfortable in cool weather. It is less easily carried on the pack on account of its weight and its depth which causes it to protrude farther from the pack."

Accepting the recommendations of the local officers, the Chief of Infantry and the Chief of Ordnance have decided to retain the present type of helmet, the one now so regularly seen in battle demonstrations on Maxey Ridge.

After Two Successive Annual Wins Army Passes Trophy Over to Navy

On the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club, as an event in the Sesqui-Centennial celebration being held at Philadelphia, the Navy tennis stars de-feated the Army for annual possession of the Leech Cup after the military men have held it for two successive years. Colonel Johnson in the doubles participated in one of the bare brace of army victories.

On the Army team were playing several Benning representatives: Sergeant Buck in the singles, Colonel Johnson, local champ, and Capt. Christenberry in the doubles. Buck lost his match only after the hardest play of the day. Capt. Van Vliet, the only army player to win his singles match, and Capt. Tom Finley are also well known beside the Upatoi, having tennised here in former years with ability and success. ability and success.

FATAL ACCIDENT SATURDAY NIGHT AT NEW BARRACKS

Soldier Evidently Toppled from Porch Railing on 2nd Story to Death Below

At eleven-thirty last Saturday evening, comrades in his company saw Pvt. Robert F. Flemming, of Regimental Headquarters Company of the 29th Infantry, sitting on the porch railing on the second floor of the new barracks He was smoking a cigarette in the cool evening air, prior to turning in for the night.

At three-thirty Sunday morning, Pvt. Waggoner rose early to go to the kit-chen and start preparing breakfast for the organization. He found Pvt. Flemming's body lying on the ground below the porch with his body bruised and his face and head badly crushed, evidently as a result of a fall.

He was immediately rushed to the Station Hospital where, without regaining consciousness, he died thirteen hours (Continued on page 2.)

"M" COMPANY COMES THROUGH

one hundred per cent of "M" Company of the 24th Infantry are now getting copies of the Infantry School News each week. One other organization in the garrison rates 100% but it is less than a quarter as large as "M" Company. The 24th Infantry baseball accounts, the regular notes of the activities of the regiment, and the institution of a new semi-serious column called "West End Doings"—these have all caused a growth of interest in that regiment.

The regimental commander, the commanding general, and the Chief of Infantry wrote letters of commendation. General Orders No. 10 War Detion. General Orders No. 19, War Department, contained a special citation for prompt and meritorious action. The act performed prevented a general conflagration and a tremendous explosion. The Chief of Infantry spoke of this striking Chief of Infantry spoke of this striking example of "devotion to duty and utter disregard of personnel safety in an effort to save the lives of others" and said he was "pleased to have under his direction a soldier of such high courage and character."

The soldier was Tom Tompkins, now senior line sergeant in the Howitzer Company of the 29th Infantry.

An amiable and good-humored file from Byrdtown, Tennessee, which he visited on a three months furlough last fall indulging in game hunting and bear killing, Tompkins has been a soldier of the finest caliber ever since he first the finest caliber ever since he first held up his right hand on December 12, 1908 to join the 118th Coast Artillery. With the big guns, he made an excellent record. Captain Griffin who served in the same outfit with him at Fortress Monroe, when they were both Corporals before the Mexican troubles started us toward real wars, says that Tompkins was the finest plotting room man in the service, an excellent instructor, and a game chap who would try anything once, almost even to being shot from the mouth almost even to being shot from the mouth of a big gun.

By 1924, he was a sergeant in the 29th Infantry with another "Excellent" record and took on with the demonstration doughboys for another stack of three years, for an artillery though of three years, fan on artillery though he is. Since arriving at Benning, he has done his job well and got to know the reservation even better than Colonel Townsend Whelan, hiking and riding all about the trails and roads.

How well he has done his job is evidenced by the fact that he has been an "Expert Gunner" with the Howitzers

Recruits to fill up large gaps left by our old friends are coming in nearly every day. Two likely looking recruits for the first battalion baseball team arrived Monday and almost immediately were seized by our arid players and fans particularly that prince of impressarios, Charlie McGaha.

Lee, Beard, Mayfield, Shaddox, Jones, Davis, Dooley, Hamilton and Westbrook are the other recruits in the company that arrived up to press time.

As yet they have not been initiated into the Royal Order of Butter Creek Hounds but it is expected that the ten-der neophytes will be induced into the deep mysteries sometime in the near fu-

Leonard Stringfield of the galloping sixth squad has returned from a six wee sojourn at Walter Reid Hospital, Washington. He claims to have hob nobbed with the president and other high ups while he was there.

"Omaha" Beith says his idea of the last word in despairing moments is to have a sweet and peaceful dream of the Nebraska corn fields and then wake up in a G. I. bunk in Georgia.

"Whitey" Frost, Drake, Beith and Julian Albert Noble journeyed to the Electric City recently to see a rather poor exhibition of fisticuffs between a Wop person and Dick White. They said that if the third man in the ring was a referee, they were salty sailors out on the bounding main.

"FOLLOW ME"

'Twas late in the afternoon last Saturday before the game was over and thirteen hits in thirteen innings had enabled the Red west-enders to vanquish the Kelly's.

To Willis, game pitcher for the Sec ond Bat. goes especial credit for a fine performance. This former member of the Special Units scattered his opponents hits and was a canny mound artist. In previous years he had not shown so well but Saturday last he was supported by a good team. After the initial onslaught had driven Victor Williams to the showers, Willis found himself matched with the towering Trammel, touted as one of the garrison stars.

For ten more innings he hurled effectively against the heavy sluggers from the sunset end of camp and it was only in the thirteenth and with the aid of errors that the deciding tally came over. Fifty-six batters faced him—fifty-six famed clouters of the sundown nine. Three triples and one double testified to the undiminished strength of those bat swinging arms. And for thirteen innings all they could get were three meager runs—all three directly tied to extra base smashes. The rest of the way Willis was pitching.

To Willis we owe a debt for a fine afternoon of baseball. In some quarters there had been an inclination to feel that the game might be a runaway. Some even made bets as to the size of the score. Inclinations have existed to believe that the series might be a runaway for the west-enders who class with the Cuban Giants, the Memphis Red Sox, the Montgomery Grey Sox and the Black Barons. But playing like that the Kelly's showed and especially pitching like that of Willis demolished such misconceptions. The game was a high class contest. The summer afternoons under the shaded grandstand of Gowdy Field promise good baseball.

The Medical Corps team will consist of Lt. Colonel Paul S. Halloran, Major D. P. Card, Capt. W. F. Tolson, Capt. J. M. Tamraz, Capt. A. E. Brown, and one other to be selected by the Medical Corps in an elimination tournament.

Eliminating rounds of 18 holes each will be played until all but two players have been eliminated, one from the Medical Corps and one from the Quartermaster Corps. These two finalists will then play 36 holes to decide as to the winner

First prize, 8 golf balls; second prize, 4 golf balls.

SUPPLY SERGEANTS WILL SOON GET OUT STENCIL ONCE MORE

From Washington there comes a n edition of the Army Regulations leaflet (AR850-5) governing the marking of military equipment. Prior to the World War, the stencil brush of the supply sergeant was periodically busy on web haversacks, cartridge belts, pack carriers and the rest. Then it was felt that a smaller and neater method of marking might be adapted—and we began to get the metal disk tag, clamped through the fabric.

The tag got bent in the marking. Its clamps got twisted in affixing. It got loose through the usual "fair wear and tear." In the spring of 1921 a board of officers was convened in Washington to initiate a comprehensive study of the method of marking clothing and equipmethod of marking clothing and equipment.

Five years later after the necessary scrutinies and the devious journeys of this matter through military channels, the government printing office issues the new dope-for all supply sergeants to study before beginning once more their use of "one brush stencil" and "one pot ink marking."

Rifle Team Planned

Although nothing definite has been announced from regimental headquarters, t was learned yesterday that the results of the firing of the first group has in-spired the rifle shots of the regiment to organize themselves into a rifle team and challenge other units in the garrison.

Sgt. Scott Bradford and Sgt. Larkins, old time shots are deep in consultation and have a tentative list that they believe will top any aggregation that any other organization can get together.

As the rumor hopped from company to company much interest was evinced among the good shots of the regiment. The group awaiting their chance on the range all seem confident that they will be able to furnish several high scores that will qualify for a place on the team if one is forthcoming. If the idea takes form it is believed that the challenge match will be an interesting one and that several records will be broken.

hat several records will be broken.

Lieut. G. S. Pierce Returns

After a ten day sojourn in the lake region of North Coralina, Lieut. G. S. Pierce has returned to the regiment. Lieut. Pierce returned just in time to Life Saving and First Aid Institute held at Rockbrook Camp, Brevard, N. C. where he represented Fort Benning. The course was a stiff one and Lieut. Pierce spent many hours in the icy waters of North Carolina learning new methods and styles of swimming and life saving. and styles of swimming and life saving. Lieut. Pierce returned just ni time to officiate at the regimental swimming meet as technical advisor.

24th Band Has Fine Trip
The regimental band journeyed to Macon, Ga. last week to participate in the state wide colored Masonic Conventhe state wide colored Masonic Convention. The band under Captain Wolber went to Macon by bus and was royally entertained during their stay. The personnel were according to Capt. Wolber the decided hit of the celebration. The band attended the parade and the ball cappe at the following and their general captains. game at the fairgrounds and their generous offerings were received by thunderous applause from the fans. The reception and ball was marked by the splendid music of the orchestra of the 24th Infantry and the many letters of congrefantry, and the many letters of congratulations that have followed the band back to its home.

Swimming Meet This Afternoon The first swimming meet that the 24th Infantry has held in their own pool will take place this afternoon at 2 P. UNIQUE SOLDIER
ABOUT TO RETIRE
IN SIGNAL CORPS

Only Colored Member of Signal Corps Completes Long and Excellent Service

Almost any hour now, Headquarters expects to receive orders from Washington to retire from the service Staff Sergeant Richard Battle, who is the only colored soldier in the Signal Corps of the Army.

First enlisting in 1898 in Company "D" of the 6th Virginia Volunteers with whom he remained until 1899, Battle took on with "D" Company of the 25th Infantry on August 16, 1900 and began a series of enlistments in the regulars from every one of which he was dis-charged with an "Excellent" character After his first hitch, he remained out for almost a month, but on September 12, 1903, he started continuous service without loss of a day, being a corporal for three enlistments, a sergeant for two and a Staff Sergeant ever since.

Now in charge of the Signal Corps store room, he first came to Fort Benning on August 30, 1924, after a dozen years in Porto Rico except for overseas service in France from March 18, 1918 to April 3, 1919, as a First Lieutenant in the Signal Corps, which entitles him by Act of Congress to retire with the grade and allowance of a Warrent Officer.

BLUES RELINQUISH MONDAY GAME WITH LITTLE STRUGGLE

Weakness at the Bat and Foolishness on Base Adds to Lead of Reds

Hit only three balls hard enough to get to the outfield, even though one of these be a double, and one a single, and you cannot win a ball game. Two hits were all the Blues collected from the twirling of Vance Monday afternoon and the Reds won without apparent effort.

Thomas was hit by the pitcher. Hayward drew a base on balls. Thomas hit

Thomas was hit by the pitcher. Hayward drew a base on balls. Thomas hit safely but let himself get doubled off first when he should have been back a week. Driver got hit but died on first. Seats edged out a double to the fence by slow baserunning and a disclination to try for third. When he got there a moment later on an error, he permitted himself to be caught off by not watching the ball, and how Hampton was throwing it. And that was all the Blues were able to do.

Two hits and such gyrations on the

Two hits and such gyrations on the paths do not win baseball games, and in fact they acted as if they didn't care whether they won or not.

In the meanwhile, the Reds were rolling in a scant eight hits, never more than two an inning, and tallying four more runs than were necessary of win against a team so easily plastered with goose-eggs in every frame eggs in every frame.

The only enlivening events of the afternoon were a home run which went under the fence after leaving Vance's bat, a pretty double play in the eighth from King to McCrary to Trammel to catch the slowly moving Thomas for the final out, and a temperamental exhibition in the batter's box by Sloan Williams who was promptly spoken to by His Umps and left, the box, the dugout, and the field

PHENIX CITY LIONS— 7TH ENGINEERS

Last Sunday on Swift Field the Phenix City Lions made the startling discovery that runs and not hits win a ball game so acting on that presumption they played a game of ball with the 7th Engineers they squeezed four runs out of three hits while the Engineers could get but two runs out of nine hits and were unanimously declared the winner.

S. Newsome of the hitless wonders of Phenix City, first man at bat in the first inning got a clean single. Aided and abetted by two errors and a base on balls to a compatriot two runs scampered across the plate before the side was retired.

Box 2nd I Danie Burge Parris

In the eighth Johnson managed to get in the way of one of Perkins' fast ones and wobbled to first base. A stolen base and two wild pitches brought him home

FIRST BATTALION FORFEITS CONTEST AGAINST THE REDS

Umpire's Enforcement of Ball Park Discipline Closes Game

Wednesday's baseball game saw the veteran spit-ball artist, McGaha opposing the towering Trammel of the 24th Infantry Reds. After an exciting contest marked with meagre hitting and fast playing, the game was finally called in the seventh inning and forfeited to the Reds as a result of a difference of opinion and between the Chief Umpire and the officer apparently in charge of the

ONE BIG INNING WINS FOR TANKS OVER SECOND BN

Eight Runs in Sixth Wipe Out Kellys' Early Lead and Put Game on Ice

Rain stopped temporarily the Tanks-2nd Bat. game Thursday with two runs over for the Kelly's and another on third in the first half of the fifth inning. At the time the Doughboys complained vociferously about the hard luck that was about to befall them by the stopping of the play, but after the entire game had been finished they wished it had kept on raining, for the Terrible Tankers exploded a ton of T. N. T under two Kelly pitchers in the sixth frame and piled up the remarkable total of eight runs in one turn at bat

At the time the Kellys were resting comfortably on a four to nothing lead. The first five batters to face McDuffy in the sixth singled, and in came Shimmy Carnes to quell the tumultous Tanks. They refused to be quelled, however, until twelve batters had faced the pitcher and eight sprinters had completely circled the bases. In this one frame Meehan made two singles and scored two runs. Rodgers also scored a run and bagged a couple of singles.

This tells the whole and complete his-

This tells the whole and complete history of the Tanks' offensive, as in no other inning did they threaten seriously to score. In the first five frames McDuffy held the whippet drivers to two hits, and in the seventh and eighth Carnes was invincible.

The Kellys battled hard all the way, but although they slammed "Red" Lindsey's shoots with considerable consistency throughout, the sorrel top was as imperturable as usual and turned on the gas in time to stop any decisive rally. Three tallies in the fifth, one in the sixth, another in the eighth and a final one in the ninth brought the 2nd Bat's total to 6.

SWIFT IS VICTOR OVER Q. M. C. 9-4

Hitting in the pinches enabled the Swift Manufacturing Company to vanquish the Quarternaster nine, of Fort Benning, by the score of 9 to 4 Saturday afternoon at the Swift ball park. The locals played erratic ball, committing six bobbles, but overcame the miscues with sensational bat work in the pinches.

The soldier club assumed the lead in the first inning, putting over a pair of tallies while the locals managed to manufacture one marker in their showing of the inning. Again in the fourth the losing players tallied two more runs but the Swift aggregation went in the lead in their half of the frame by scoring four runs.

Nine Swift batters faced G. Dollar, the Soldier hurler, in the fourth box. Only three hits were garnered but the defensive performing of the losers was ragged and the Q. M. C. twirler was wild.

The gassing of the Gas Co. started in the first inning. The Engineers left a mean smoke screen behind them as they circled the bases thirteen times and their pitchers put out a smoke screen that hid the path of the ball to the plate. At least so it seemed because the Chemical Warfare men couldn't hit the ball and that is undoubtedly because they couldn't see it.

The hitting of Kingsbury and Morrison and the fielding of Danielski, who handled eleven chances without a miscue featured.

Hayward and McGaha Engage in Shepard Steadily Slings to Succe Thrilling Pitching Due with Former Winning 4-3.

Twice in the Gowdy Cup Series Mc-Gaha has climbed the hill for the 1st Battalion and pitched excellent baseball. Twice has he held the opposition to four tallies—a fine showing in these days of slugging. Twice his mates have gotten only three runs for him and consequently twice he has been charged with unde-served defeat. No hurler in the garrison has pitched better. The second loss of the veteran moist ball slinger was in-flicted by the 24th Blues last Friday. The Blues took a short lived one run lead in their half of the second round by scoring an unearned run on a couple of errors. The 1st Bats tied it in their turn at bat on Ashe's triple to left field and at bat on Ashe's triple to left field and a wild relay in returning the ball to the infield. The 29th boys went to the fore in the sixth on hits by Berthiaume and Easler and a well executed squeeze play. The Blues chased a trio across in the seventh when Harrison, Powell and Thomas singled and Seats crashed a triple to the outer confines of the right garden. The slum divers from the lead the way regiment had chances to score in the seventh and eighth, but simply couldn't find Hayward for hits at the right time. In the ninth Warrenburg delivered his regular hit as a pinch hitter and Ashe scratched a safety down the third base line. Wilkerson, running for Warrenburg scored on an infield out, a balk and a passed ball, and McGaha, who had forced Ashe reached third with who had forced Ashe reached third with the tying tally, but Mays and Easher were easy for Hayward and the game was over.

Berthiaume had a busy day in the field handling nine chances at second. Ashe lead with the willow getting a single, double and triple in four trips to the pan. Seats long triple and Hayward's steady pitching won for the Blues.

DETACHMENTEERS OVERCOME TANKS IN SUNDAY GAME

Two steady and dependable pitchers faced one another on Gowdy Field Sunday afternoon, Shepard for the I. S. D. and Lindsey for the Tanks. Getting a hit in every inning except the sixth, the Tanks were never downhearted, but they only twice got hits with men on bases and their late rally in the decisive moments of the contest fell short.

In the opening frame the Detachmen-In the opening frame the Detachmenteers showed the metal of which they were made. The sacks were crowded with travelers with none out, and the heavy hitting part of the Tankers batting order was up. Sweeney cracked a fast bounder to the youthful Morris at third who shut off the run at the plate and old reliable Mick McCarthy whinned the hall to first to complete a whipped the ball to first to complete a double play and ease the situation. The next man up was an easy out from the box to the initial sack. A team that could not score with none down and the bases full might easily been defeated—and so the Captain Back's protegees thought. That was the story. The Tankers failed to hit with men on the

Kelly Pitcher Makes Champs Travel Long Route to Win Great Game

"Slick" Willis, though defeated, was the hero of Saturday's game on Gowdy Field. Aided and abetted by a fighting Kelly crew from the 2nd Battalion, ing Kelly crew from the 2nd Battalion, the slim boy held the slugging Reds at bay for twelve long innings, and with an even break in luck would have won his game hands down. On the receiving end Joe Felber, catching his first game of the garrison series, held Slick up in great style, nabbing several difficult fouls, and slamming out three safeties in five tries, one of which tied the score in the tenth after the Reds had made in tally tries, one of which tied the score in the tenth after the Reds had made in tally in their half of that inning.

Reds scored one in the first frame, thanks to a bad mixup by the Kelly infield on Ingleman's pop fly near the box. Any one of six men could have caught it easily, but nobody did, and the result are support for a circle. measly rap went for a single. F. Williams followed with a torrid triple to right center and the first run of the game came over. Again in the third the champs scored a single marker. V. Williams scratched a slow hit to short and was forced by Battles. Bell was easy, Willis to Newman, but Ingleman tripled to center to chase Battles over the plate. In the regulation nine innings these were the only occasions on which the Reds had any chance to score.

On the other hand the Kellys threatened in every round. In the first they filled the bases with none out, but a missed the bases with none out, but a missed squeeze signal killed their best chance and nobody scored. In the third they had a little better luck. Daniel was safe on Seat's error. He was sacrificed to second by Davis and scored on Newborks single to second a Newborks single to second a second of Newborks single to second a second of Newborks single to second a second of Newborks single to second a second of Newborks single to second a second of Newborks single to second a second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second man's single to center. A second tally came in the fourth. "Slick" Willis walked and stole. He took third on an infield out, and when Gilchrist made an ill advised peg to third to catch him napping, made home safely by a desperate dash and slide.

Thus the teams went into extra innings with the score tied at 2 all. In the first of the tenth the first two Reds were easy outs, but Battles tripled to center and continued home when the relay to third went to the dugout.

Undaunted by this misfortune the Kellys came back strong in their turn. Harkey was safe when Ingleman threw his roller wide to first. Durbin laid a perfect bunt down the first base line and apparently reach first in safety. Base umpire Cornog first called him safe, but after a conference with umpire-in-chief Walker, Durbin was declared out. Harkey reached second during the excitement. Willis dropped a safety in short left and Herkey took third. Again the squeeze went wrong and Harkey was run down between third and home, Willis go-ing to third. Fighting Joe Felber cracka single to left and Slick scored the ng run. Lehman went out, King to tying run. Lel Sloan Williams.

In the eleventh High Davis jammed a terrific triple to center, but was nipped at the plate trying to stretch the blow for the circuit.

The thirteenth was fatal to the Kellys. A walk, an error and some strong hit-ting sent four Reds home and gave them

STADIUM COLONNADE UNDER NORTH STAND HAS COMPLETE WALK

Recreation Center Board Finishes Footway to Form Final Link Down Vibbert Ave.

It is now possible to go on a good walk from Headquarters to the 29th Infantry Barracks, except for four road crossings. A good half-mile steeple-chaser training for a track meet might sprint the entire distance on a flat surface with mighty leaps over the intervening dust or mud wheel tracks.

This week the Recreation Center Board finished the last link in the stretch of foot path, laying 400 feet of concrete 7 feet wide under the colonnade of the North stand of the Doughboy Stadium, and 40 feet, five feet wide from the east end of that stand to the railway that leads tank freight cars to the filling station. Between the western edge of the stadium and Ingersoll Street a temporary gravel walk of good quality has been put in between steel confining rails, pending the settlement of the problem as to how the western end of the Stadium should be completed.

Captain Hawkenson and Lieut. Doty have pushed the job through, and are now engaged with their gang in grading the Vibbert Ave. and Ingersoll Street areas. Using equipment at hand and purchasing only the necessary cement, they have been able to accomplish the task at a cost of approximately one hundred and sixty dollars. The concrete walk beneath the colonnade has a slope of seven-eighths to an inch, to allow for outward drainage and to fit in with any possible future development of the colonnade space as enclosed offices, or storerooms.

The next task of the concrete workers is the completion of the roadway and plaza between the Stadium and Gowdy Field.

DETAILED PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR THE MONDAY UNVEILING

Daughters of Revolution Invite Garrison to Attend Ceremonies at Historical Circle

Ladies of Columbus who form the Button Gwinnet, George Walton, and Oglethorpe Chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold a brief ceremonial at the Historical Circle at the corner of Block Fifteen on the First Division Road near the Golf Club to unveil and present to the garrison the second and third of a series of tablets commemorating certain historical facts about the military reservation of Fort Benning.

All members of the command are cordially invited to be present. Due to the shortness of the program, no seats will be placed. Spectators coming in automobiles will be parked in a semi-circle facing the concrete block in the middle of the roadway so that they may see the procedure and readily hear the brief remarks without exposing themselves to the mid-day sun.

POOL INSTRUCTION FOR COMBAT UNITS OF FORT BENNING

Swimming Standards Announced by Headquarters in Compulsory Training Orders

Every member of a combat unit of the garrison will be required to take lessons in swimming, according to directions just issued from headquarters. Soldiers who pass the qualification standards will be excused from further instruction, but until the qualifications have been met the bucks will be trained in watermanship, under the direction of company officers and specially qualified enlisted men.

To swim fifty yards, with any stroke,

To swim fifty yards, with any stroke, and to swim sixty feet carrying a ten pound weight, is to satisfy the requirements.

Ever since the days of the mighty Beowulf who used to swim over the wintry seas with his great broadsword in his hand, swimming has been considered an essential military attribute. American forces in the Philippines and the 89th and 5th Divisions at the Meuse river in France, found that a knowledge of swimming enabled some commands to cross streams that might have been a barrier to the determined advance of the final push. The demonstration troops at Fort Benning, it is felt, should be as qualified in this respect as in the more usual requirements of close order drill and combat firing.

We celebrate this week-end the One Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Signing of the Declaration of Independence. Resolved to maintain the historic personal and political rights established by Anglo-Saxon peoples, the American Colonists announced to the World their determination to shake off the yoke of a Govern-ment which infringed on their liberties. Lexington and Concord had been fought. Bunker Hill had been fought. had been fought. Bunker Hill had been lost. British troops had been forced to withdraw from Boston. Admiral Howe and General Howe were making for the city of New York to seize the line of the Hudson River and cut the revolting colonies in half. Thirty thousand troops, a host of guns, and a mighty fleet of ships of the line were prepared to land and enforce the policies of a Tory Government and a Hanoverian King on the throne of England.

Scattered over the Atlantic Seaboard with more or less improvised governments and citizens with more or less militia training, the colonials resolved to maintain their political ideals even by force of arms. They would brook no compromise. The Howe's addressed to Washington a demand for sur-render and a promise of amnesty to all who would quietly lay down their arms and submit to British colonial policy. Near New York, ready to resist the threatened invasion, were a scant 8,000 Continental soldiers under Washington and Greene, supplemented by various militia units called into service for short terms and with meager equipment. In military strength, the colonies were weak in the face of the enemy, as the Battle of Long Island later proved. But Long Island later proved. But they were strong in their adherence to the principles they held dear. They determined to resist to the limit of their power.

While Gates and Greene and Washington were preparing the defenses of Brooklyn, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia took the momentous step which created a great democracy. There they established our Independence and pledged their property, their lives, and their sacred honor to the support of that Declaration. The new American nation has lived and flourished because the men of America have been willing to maintain and defend it even at the cost of tremendous sacrifices.

Hey Hey!! It's too bad that Pvt. Cox, the 13th wonder of the world, has to loose his school girl complexion on account of this confound push and pull. And he's just out of the hospital, too.

Ladies and Bolonies, I now take great pleasure in introducing to you our Boy Wonder, "Bright Eyes," more familiarly known as Paul, who will render that touching ballad:

THE FATE OF NEAL

A poor little boy without a home
Started out, the wide world to roam,
But a rollin' stone gathers no moss.
So he soon discovered his loss;
He used his brain and caught a train

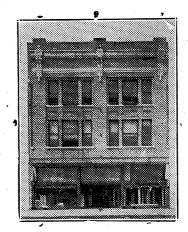

And joyously sang this refrain:

Chorus Once a Gas Bum, always a Gas Bum,

The pride of Uncle Sam-So look out Benning, here I come, For the outside I don't give a d-m." Yours till they push the glass in on me and ay "He's gone." -CANARY.

Private Clayton L. Hayman drowned while swimming the Chattahoochee river on the evening of June 28th, 1926. Searching parties who have been looking for his body failed to find it until the morning of June 30th, 1926.

Staff Sergeant Anthony Groves on a fishing expedition Tuesday evening, accidentally discovered the body floating against some bushes about fifteen feet from shore a thousand yards north of Bradley's landing.

Our baseball team went downtown to match hits and assists with the Thirtieth Street Tigers last Sunday and found that strong team too much for them by the score of 11-1. Our battery consisted of Dean and Smith.

Private First Class Mays, Specialist too, has given up baseball for a career as company mechanic.

Sergeant Shannon and Corporal d'Entremont held up their right hands for another stack last Sunday. don't blame them.

Company "D"

Company "D" is enjoying the benefits of a few mornings drill under the supervision of Lt. Carraway and Lt. Matthews. The Company presents a nice appearance with a full quota of men "on deck."

Arthur Willworth is making a strenuous effort to enter the Military Academy at West Point. He is on Range Guard now.

Jack Carmen, Monroe Siler, Jim Large and Archille Petrucci are all longing to be under the protecting roof of the M. P. Company. Cheer up, Cheer up boys, the range work is half over.

Silk Hat Harry Beith says one thing to which he certainly has an antipathy is the pitiless, white light of publicity.

Firing on the thousand inch range has been completed. High scores for this range were made by Sgt. Nichol-son, Cpl. Bennett and Pvt. Swiney. The first platoon bested the second platoon in high average.

Sgt. Vines has been spreading himself lately, proving we lead the way in chow. We haven't got the pennant "H" Company, but, oh, boy, we sure know how to eat. If "H" Company ever wants a good feed, please journey up the line and have chow with us. Application for loafers cheerfully re-

Cpl. Walker has returned from the V. P. P. School. We noticed that he W. P. P. School. writes a good many letters to some-one in South Carolina. We had no idea who it was until he purchased a ring and had his picture taken several days ago.

Cpl. Vaughn also returned from school. He now occupies the cushion chair formerly held by Cpl. Trenholm.

Then some of the boys wonder where their pay went.

Company "H"

This being the end of the month, we will have to cut our notes short. Nothing of very much importance has happened in the past week, except that the reporter from Co. "D" has awakened to answer the challenge of Co. "H""

We must admit to the Count De Cabbage, that he is real nice to us, to observe that we are leading the way in fatigue. It takes a "go-getting" aggregation to go out on one of the details in this kind of weather and put up the kind of labor that will show that some one has been at work in that particular spot.

We are patiently awaiting the time to arrive when His Exlellency, the Count, can lay claim to any part of the lead in more than one thing. We the lead in more than one thing. We don't see any nice blue pennants flying from your flag staff.

It seems that by the amount of labor that Cpl. Berish is putting forth in his line of duty, that we will have a well trained lot of recruits in the near future. He still has a lot of trouble in getting his men to get their pieces to the ground in unison.

Cpl. Pyles has returned from his furlough to begin another hitch with the outfit. He has been off in the hills of Georgia, amusing himself by chasing rabbits, fishing and climbing back up into his farm. He claims that he had a wonderful time, but is glad to be back with his friends in the company. company.

Sgt. Mannering is going somewhere but will not say where, and he is also rather vague about what he is going to do, although he has been seen studying the quarters situation. "H" Company wishes him luck.

Night Life in 2nd Bn., Hq. Co.

Sergeant Kjelstrom has returned from Springfield, Ill., where he has been playing baseball. Sgt. Kjelstrom has been transferred to Co. "F" but Sgt. Kjelstrom Hq. loves him still.

Corporals Kerlicker and Bevis have invented a new and useful game and have applied to the Patent Office for a patent on the project. The game which is a cross between indoor baseball and marbles consists of rolling a baseball in a straight line on the floor and causing it to fall into a designated slot. The inventors staged an exhibition last week before a wondering and gaping audience and Corporal Kerlicker won, eight marbles to six. Any one infringing the rights of said inventors will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The latest addition to our family is a resident of Hihari, Ga. Robert H. Hodges, a farmer by birth, choice and necessity enlisted for this company last Wednesday and left immediately on a 60 day furlough. Pvt. Hodges saw service

"FOLLOW ME"

Gowdy Field and the Doughboy Stadium were erected for the entertainment of the command. There are played, as well as outside games, close and interesting contests between different organizations of the garrison. Competition is keen. As in most clashes between groups with strong unit loyalty and spirit, feeling sometimes runs high. The desires of the participants are in conflict. Each desires to win. The desires of the spectators are also in conflict. Each desires his team to win.

Keen spirit and a wish for victory are not, however, incompatible with good sportsmanship. It is possible, says an old proverb, to agree quite tolerablyexcept in opinion.

Of course, we must read to that every warmer of a grandstand seat at every baseball park in the world thinks he is a better umpire than the man behind the catcher, and considers it as much his prerogative to shout "Kill the Umpire" as did the Mudville crowd that was only stopped from doing murder when the mighty Casey raised his hand. Every bleacher fan considers himself a competent critic of pitching ability or baserunning skill, and thinks he is priviliged to give unrestrained opinions as freely as citizens are inclined to cuss their own Congressmen.

But we are in the Army. We are all members of a single garrison. We live together in friendship and agreeable rivalry. Umpires at service games have hard tasks on account of the tenseness of the teams and the spectators. As one official remarked to a noisy lieutenant, "We have a bad enough job out here as it is, without you making it worse." It is all right to cheer your team. It is all right to want to win. But here at idge said the inter-service football contests should do in Washington, i. e., "give the people a true example of sport in its best form."

The spirit of true sportsmanship should reign on Gowdy Field. As the General remarked in private conversation concerning another matter, we can say of the diamond and the grandstand: "That place should be for recreation, not for discord."

Tuesday morning, Mrs. John Moore and Mrs. Lloyd Jones were joint hostesses at a pretty bridge party given at the home of the former in compliment to Miss Polly Moore of Columbia, S. C., for Mrs. Pomerene who leaves shortly for China; and Mrs. Burroughs Stevens who returned recently from Porto Rico. The honoree souvenirs were, lingerie holder and two bottles of bath salts.

Mrs. Rogers won the high score prize, a pair of silk hose, and Mrs. Doty low score prize a pair of Longfellow candlestocks.

There's another lad in the Company, by the name of "Roy Feech" He eats 1, 2, 3, 4 apples, And say they are a peech.

He was sitting around the Company, Just talking in a common way, Gee, whiz, I like this army Better Day by Day,

He was asked by an old soldier Was he goin' to retire
"Oh, yes," he said, "I am,
I ruther be in the army

Theres a Sgt. in Hq. Co., An he was asked the other day could he swimm, an his answer was Oy, Yes, i can't doo nothing else, that same man said well sarge, you are just the man we want to see down at the swimming Pool the day the contest is to bee, for the purpose off holding up for the Company. So the Sergent, looks of then smiles shakeing his head, then said if I jump in that Pool Headquarters Co. is sure goin down an I meen to the bottom.
"O" Sgt., some one said dont stand they an say that, well i will go sit down an say it, i will be down they alwright but as a spectator) Then another man said, well Sgt., you will meet us down they that day wont you?

2nd Ditto: No, I don't like corned beef, and I'm glad I don't like it. cause if I liked it, I'd eat it and I hate the darned stuff.

"Investigations Show That Modern Flapper and 'Sidewalk Sheik' Has Nothing On Them''—Headline in the Columbus Ledger.—While ungrammat-ical this is rather true regarding the Flappers; but really doesn't it rather slander our super-trousered young Sheiks?

It happened at the Service Club ance. Two young and handsome cordance. Two young and handsome cor-porals were standing in a corner argu-ing whether or not they could find out the name of a certain young lady Said Alec, a clever boy from "Philly, lady. "I'll bet a dollar I can find out that girl's name right away."

"Alright," said Steve, "I'm on. But how are you going to do it?"

"Easy," said Alec, "All I'll do is go over and make believe I know her and them I'll ask her if her name is spelt with an 'e' or an 'i.' The chances are she'll spell the whole thing out without thinking.

So Alec proceeded across the floor to where the young lady was sitting. Bending over her chair with a winning smile he spoke to her. At first she looked up with an uncertain smile on her face. Suddenly a look of angry surprise replaced the smile. As she spoke Alec's face turned very red, and with a murmured apology he turned and beat a hasty retreat to where his watching friend awaited him.
"Well," said Steve, "I guess I win

"Well," said Steve, "I guess I win the dollar."

"No, you don't," said Alec, "She told me her name."

"Did she?" said Steve, "Well what

"She said her name was Hill," said Alec, reaching for his dollar.

WASTED HIS LEAVE, LOST FOREIGN SERVICE CREDIT, BUT SAVED (?) SOME MONEY

An officer of the Army bumped a native while automobling just before his tour of duty was up in Honolulu. He handed the boy a greenback and forget it forgot it.

Shortly after his return to the state, he was served notice of suit and took leave to return to the islands to defend. Lost the case and returned to the U. S. after appealing. Case again came up for trial. He again took leave, lost and appealed. Case came up third time. His leave credit was exhausted; was unable to get leave on half-pay and finally had to surrender credit for foreign service, applying for station in Honolulu to get back for trial.

He won the third trial, but lost:
(1) Leave credit; (2) foreign service
credit; (3) time; (4) trouble; (5)
attorneys fees; (6) expense.
He could have saved all of these by an investment in PERSONAL LIABILITY insurance.

Please watch the Commissary notes carefully the next few weeks. We are going to announce, from time to time, using this publication and the Daily Bulletin, many new food stuffs which are to be received for sale after July are to be received for sale after July 1st. This will prove of interest to the housewives. We have now Maxwell House coffee, in one pound cans; table salt in two pound cartons and tomato soup (Van Camp's) in small can.

The Commissary Officer is looking forward to a very considerable increase in both cash and charge sales busines during the month of July by reason of the purchase by him this week, as Purchasing and Contracting Officer, of a large number of food articles not heretofore carried in stock and also the receipt of replenishments for many of the articles usually on sale for many of the articles usually on sale tor many of the articles usually of safe but the stocks of which were depleted during May and June. Two of our personnel, Technical Sgt. S. Abbadessa and St. Sgt. Andrew

Team Captain Receives Telegram

Pvt. Douglas King, captain of the 24th Red's, received a congratulatory telegram from the Regimental Commander, Col. Wait C. Johnson, who has been in Washington competing in the Army Tennis tournament. King has been treading air since he received his telegram and has been keening un his telegram and has been keeping up the lead. The Colonel said he would be home soon to watch his teams play and both the Reds and Blues are awaiting his return with their minds made up to give the Colonel an example of the brand of ball they have been playing while he has been away.

Bolds High-point Swimmer Company "G" walked off with the honors in Friday's swimming meet.

Pyt. Bolds finished high man with twenty-three points to his credit, claiming firsts in the most important events. The meet, the first ever held in the regiment, was a great success. The regimental commander at once issued tentative plans for another on July 30th.

The coming meet will be on a much larger scale than the one just passed Now that the regiment has taken up swimming in earnest and in view of the recent order that all men swim, it is believed that the lists will be full and that many new title contenders will make their appearance.

Last Thursday's Game Results in Overwhelming Victory via Errors

Logan Duff, veteran of the diamond, pitched an exceptionally good game. In six innings he struck out six and issued but one pass. He kept his opponents' hits well scattered, one an inning for the first five, and then two.

But even canny twirling like his could ot surmount erratic playing such as he Infantry School Detachment showwhen it lost last Thursday's game or which a nitcher depends to check in on which a pitcher depends to check in the short route outs. Heckert perthe short route outs. Heckert performed finely at second, accepting six perfect chances, and almost getting two others that the scorers had to tally as hits. The rest of the inner circle made more errors than assists.

Nor were the Blues clouting very hard at that. There was only a single extrabase hit. The loss of the contest was due exactly to the errors. The game was plainly won on unearned runs.

SWIFT (3)—7TH ENGINEERS (1)

In a sensational pitchers' battle between George Smith of the Swift Millers and Cameron of the 7th Engineers last Saturday afternoon, in which each pitcher allowed only four hits, the Millers took the game by the close score of 3-1. Scoring was confineach team. The Millers bunched hits in the third. In the ninth, Kingsbury drew a walk, stole second and third, and tallied on an infield error. Flashy fielding with men on the sacks and enabled the castle wearers to cut down runs that might have developed as a result of their five errors. #### REDS ROUT I. S. D. IN MONDAY CLASH WITH SOLE HIT

Schnell's Double in Eighth Only Effective Wallop Off Williams' Twirling

In the far corner of Gowdy Field flew the championship pennant won by the 24th Infantry Reds last Sep-tember. But the team from which they took it nearly twelve months ago in the "Little World's Series" was not in the "Little World's Series" was not the team which faced them on Gowdy Field last Monday afternoon and suc-cumbed to the tune of 15-0. Thornell was not there. Nor was Buck. Nor was Chief Ryan. A good team, this the Detachment has, but not yet a team capable of standing against such seasoned players as the Twenty-Fourth Reds, who clouted them for a variety of hits and ran bases as if nilfering of hits and ran bases as if pilfering sacks were a common occurrence.

While the Reds were piling hits onto errors to make fifteen runs, the Detachmenteers were impotently going from dugout to plate and back again. Three of them drew bases on balls. One got on by an error. One got hit by the pitcher. But only three of them managed to clout past the infield, and two of these heaves settled into the mit of the centerfielder. The other was a smashing double by Schnell in the eighth with no one on. The next batter (Hesse) was safe on a fielder's choice which failed to head off Schnell at third. # "KELLY" AND "KELLYS" OUTPLAY WEST ENDERS AND CONQUER BLUES

Kjelstrom Comes Back to Garrison and Coaches His Second Battalion

Down from Springfield in the Three-Down from Springheid in the Infer-ing the League, where he has been playing while on furlough, comes "Kelly" Kjelstrom, to urge his comrades of the Second Bat. to victory. On the first base coaching line he stood, and watched his team turn back the onslaughts of the twirling Ponder and Leonard. In the fourth, after New-Leonard. man had slashed a heaving triple past the score board in deep left center, Ponder retired from the mountain, and Leonard took up the task. Leonard had not yet lost a game in the local series—but he lost last Tuesday, for the Kelly's greeted him with three hits in succession (singles by Durbin and Felber, and a daisy cropping double down the left field foul line by Carnes) and even a double play and a fine throw from left field to cut off was one more than the Blues made all afternoon. The game was as close as a soldier's neck in a uniform collar, old style.

The Blues put up a sturdy defense, executing three double plays. But Carnes was pitching ball, and his team was steady behind him in all the pinches save one. In the fourth the Blues got two hits, but the players died on the sacks; and in no other inning did more than one Blue bingle safely.

From both regiments the bands were out and making as much racket as the spectators—which is saying a lot—especially the noise that greeted the Kelly's going to bat in the seventh and the cheer that arose when they stopped an incipient rally in the ninth with an availabiliting double play with an eye-blinking double play.

KELLY'S CONQUER FIRST BATTALION IN FRIDAY GAME

Harkey Pitches Effectively to Substi-tute Catcher and Team Bats Well

They were going out in one-two-three order in last Friday's game for the Gowdy championship until the Kelly's climbed on board in the second inning and collected enough runs to win. The final score was Second Bats., 9; First Bats., 3. But four of the tallies were recorded in the second frame, and the four would have sufficed with Harkey in the form he displayed.

box—his first of three hits for the afternoon. Then after a fly had sunk securely into the left fielder's mit, Harkey singled. Lehman was up, low batting average and all; and Lehman drew the first of his three successive passes for the afternoon. The sacks were loaded and Thompson substituting for the injured Felber behind the willow, delivered a suitable single to left, scoring two. Then Dan Daniel got his only hit, and Lehman and Thompson made it four runs for the Second Bats.

Second Bats.

Two singles, a double, a base on balls, and an error enabled the satellites of Lieutenant Hussing to hit the plate three times in the third frame. But three were not enough, especially since the Kelly's accumulated more runs thereafter, with the aid of three baggers and errors and a of three baggers and errors and a base on balls with the sacks weight-ed to capacity. Willis shone at third, devouring two difficult fouls and stabbing a liner out of the dust. Thompson and Magagna behind the bat each nabbed little dodging pop-ups in alert napped little dodging pop-ups in alert style, and the former signalized his first full game by batting 50-50, two safeties and two strike-outs.

Making eight of his opponents fan the atmosphere and most of the others hit into the air, Harkey gets credit for winning a good game.

22 CALIBER RANGE COMPLETED FOR THE LEAD THE WAY UNITS

New Installation Named for Stevenson & Clarke Win-the Late Private Hunter Cammon Takes Ringerthe Late Private Hunter of Company "B"

Built by and for the 29th Infantry a new Twenty-two Caliber rifle range has just been completed in the 23rd Infantry Woods, and named in honor of the late Private Thomas Hunter, Company "B", who was accidentally killed on December 4, 1920, while participating in an Infantry School Demonstration representing "The Battalion in Attack'

This uniquely constructed range was designed and built by Captain R. H. Bishop, Supply Officer of the fegiment, in order to meet a need that had arisen due to the reduction in allowances of caliber .30 ammunition for target practice. Twenty-two caliber was plentiful, and it was decided that some training might be secured by stimulat ing firing at reduced ranges

There is one continuous firing point, with butts echloned at 50, 100, and 150 feet, each of the closer butts consisting of two slab walls twelve feet high and five feet apart, with the intervening space filled with sawdust. The 150 foot butts are built slightly higher. For each distance there have been constructed three target frames, mounted on trucks and run from firing points to butts on old track made from rails discarded by Private Wiggins' railway line, in a manner similar to the arrangement on the 1,000-inch rachine gun range. No pit details are necessary. Targets fired on are pulled back to the firing roints marked recorded to the firing points, marked, recorded, and replaced.

Each of the three frames holds four targets which can be adjusted at different heights to fit the prone, sitting and standing positions. Twelve men can fire simultaneously at each distance, and all targets used at once.

THREE MATCH RESULTS OF BENNING GOLFERS DECIDED LAST WEEK

Medicos Conquer

Last Friday afternoon the professionals of the Country and the Infantry School, paired with young Frank U. Garrard, Jr., and Sgt. Stevenson U. Garrard, Jr., and Sgt. Stevenson, played an exhibition match on the Fort Benning golf course which was won by the Stevenson-Clarke combination, 4-up and 3 to play. Starting with a birdie three on No. 1, by Clarke, the garrison team was never headed. The contest, however, was close. The second hole was halved. On No. 3, Clarke stepped out and made it 2-up. The fourth, Frank Garrard won, and it was 1-up again, and so remained until the end of the first round.

Stevenson started the second round with a birdie three to win and a par three on No. 11 to win, putting his side 3-up. Twelve and Thirteen were halved. Stevenson then won No. 14 with a par three, putting the garrison team 4-up and 4 to play. Clarke halved No. 15 to decide the match, 4-up and 3 to play.

Both Garrard and Haskins were somewhat off their games, the latter missing three or four putts to win and the former showing the effects of several weeks of strenuous tournament play. Clarke made three birdies, Stevenson one, and Haskins one.

A large crowd followed the players. The detailed score by halves:

BIG FLASH LAST SUNDAY

With little noise, a ton of smokeless powder in a magazine at the amunition dump exploded last Sunday evening about 8:30 o'clock, sending a long and penetrating flash into the air that lighted the country for miles around. No fire followed, and no damage was done save the demolition of the cor rugated iron structure in which the explosive was stored, and where the inadequate storage facilities had made it subject to the excesive heat of the # Brief Exercises Followed Salute to Union at Noon on Monday.

While the entire garrison stood steadily at salute, the Eighty-Third Field Artillery at noon Monday boomed out the salute to the Union, fired annually at army posts on the fourth of July. The recoiling seventy-fives crashed out at ten-second intervals a full total of 48 guns.

As the echoes died on the hills and the smoke drifted off the plain, the Daughters of the American Revolution then commenced their exercises presenting two beautiful bronze tables to the Infantry School, after the Infantry band had played "Dixie" in compliment to the Georgia visitors, Captain E. Colby enumerated the historical facts compented with the Lair torical facts connected with the Indian village of Kasihta that formerly stood on the Benning plain as the main peace town of the Lower Creek Indians, and with the Battle of Hitchiti, fought in 1836 between Georgia militia and Creek Indians resisting removal to the reservations of Arkansas.

You may see him in the Supply Office of the Academic Department, and one thing is certain, and that is that he is doing his job well and strictly according to the orders.

He used to be a Military Policeman, this stocky soldier born at Sesse per Suso, in the Province of Rome, Italy, who came to Benning from a job as chauffeur for his first enlistment in May, chauffeur for his first enlistment in May, 1919, and has been here ever since. In those days you could hear the big bucks of the 24th Infantry say: "I isn't goin' to the tent line in Block 23 tonight, that big Wop's over there on duty, and it's a good place to stay away from."

Two soldiers surreptiously carrying corn into camp were spied by "Papa John" one dark evening. They didn't stop, and Papa John fired all over the area at them so they ran and hid under

From furlough in New York City, he wrote down he had seen the Berlenbach-Stribling fight, and said that the latter bled as much as Papa John himself had the time he cut an artery on his wrist on the range.

One young civilian house guest on the One young civilian house guest on the garrison, one night got into an argument with Papa John, and said he couldn't be ordered around because he didn't belong to the army. But Papa John did. And Papa John had his orders. And the situation was cleared up when a colonel of the headquarters staft appeared out of the shadows and settled the fracas according to orders.

When the Greenbacks of the I. S. D. started their training for the garrison football, the people of the fort knew the season had opened for they saw the ponderous wop in action daily in the Doughboy Stadium and told the world: "Papa John is loose again." In every game the Detachment played, Papa John was butting his heavy shoulders above his plunging legs into the hostile line, and it was work like his that made the I. S. #### SOLDERING AT FORT BENNING

By Corp. Arthur L. Wilson, 17th Ord. Co., (Maint.)

All my service in the army Has been to me a gain, And the years at Ft. Benning Have not been served in vain.

Of course there are trials Which everyone has to bear But then it isn't very bad If everyone does his share.

The army is what you make it It is either good or bad, And it's a good place to be As long as you don't get mad.

When you see a soldier With a happy smiling face, You know that he's contented And from a real good place.

And the place is at Ft. Benning Where men from boys are made, Where all young men have a chance To learn a profitable trade.

So if you would like to enlist In the service of Uncle Sam, Just come to Ft. Benning Where you can be a man.

"FOLLOW ME"

Special attention is directed to the idea behind the offering of prizes for marksmanship in the current target season of the Twenty-Ninth Infantry. The soldier who does his soldierly job well has contributed something to the work of his regiment. Consequently, the regiment desires to show some appreciation for its leaders in all forms of activity. The regiment also appreciates the efforts and the aid given by every soldier who does his job well, for it is the "everlastin' team work of every bloomin' soul" that makes the army go on. The following extract from the Training Memorandum announcing the prizes for this year is cited as an indication of the spirit of the "Lead the Way" regiment:

"The award of prizes is not to be construed as a reward for effort, there can be no adequate material reward for the efforts of a soldier which resulted from devotion to duty and regimental spirit. Every member of the 29th Infantry is expected to do his utmost to improve his marksmanship for sake of his company, his battalion, his regiment and his country. One who shows such spirit neither expects or requires a reward. The above listed prizes are merely tokens of appreciation for those who have proven themselves most efficient in marksmanship."

We call attention to the brand of baseball the Kelly's are putting up, described in another column. Willis took the mound and pitched one "Ball" and two outs were registered, by trapping two tankers each twice between third and home and between second and third. That's "One for the Book" if there ever

BABBITT IN BARRACKS

By Lieut. Girard B. Troland, C. E.

Captain Charles Plugg, Company Commander, is possessed of the following real and personal property viz:

- 1 Blue serge suit.
- 1 Five foot shelf.
- 1 Wife.
- 2 Kids.
- 1 Two-door Sedan (Necessary for both private and official business).
- 5 Charge accounts.
- 35 Shares of Wildcat oil stock. $20,000 worth of Insurance.
- 1 Grouch.
- 1 Supply sergeant (Best supply sergeant in this man's army).
- 1 First sergeant (Best first sergeant in the army.

Both sergeants get drunk once a month out what Capt. Charles, known as "Pig Iron," doesn't see doesn't hurt him and he certainly doesn't propose to see his sergeants drunk.

Capt Charles has a comfortable set of quarters, the third converted latrine on the right as you go up the gravel road, the house is daintily trimmed with Nasturtiums and Whitewashed Cobblestones and its beauty is further enhanced by a radio antenna suspended on two slender poles which bow like the ribs of a mare

Capt. Charles is but the prototype of the 1500 captains on the familiar list which, as you know, may be arranged, into Promotion List, Lineal List, or Preferred List. 1450 of them could check over the above property to his successor and not be short an item. He would in fact be "over" on some items for in spite of the latest dictum from the cathedral overseas always have been, and always will be, as long as discreet men are chargeable with broken china, rope, ram rods and mop handles. When Pig Iron was first commissioned as a 2nd Lieut. of Infantry he entered as a 2nd Lieut. Of Inhanty he cherror upon what seemed to him to be all things considered the best paid career open to him and that was frankly his reason for joining. He was full of P. and V. and early showed an interest in his profession by inventing an accessory for the rifle which showed promise of greatly increasing proficiency in Marksmanship. His company commander pooh-poohed the idea of improving upon so well established a piece of equipment as the service rifle and literally tossed the idea into the G. I. Ashcan. The young subinto the G. I. Ashcan. The young sub-altern had some more independent notions after that but, his spirit a little dashed, he let them remain notions and never gave expression to them even ver bally. By the time he had received his first promotion he had ceased to have ideas of his own and now that he had become a full Captain and a Company Commander the established things was a welcome prop and by a pro-cess of metamorphosis he had come to actually believe as gospel all emissions from the War Department. He goosestepped in rythm with the mimeograph machine which did his thinking for him. On Mother's Day the mimeo said to write a letter home, and he did so. On Washington's Birthday the mimeo from the War Department bade him assemble his men to pay patriotic homage to the First in War, and he did that. On Ar-First in War, and he did that. On Armistice Day in accordance with another bull he stood with bared head on the Parade and listened to an endless exordium by the Post Chaplain, whom he very cordially hated. Other mimeographs told him how to organize his baseball team, how to run the mess, how to why not mail the regiment That will apear in next week's Issue, look for it.

maintain morale, and told him fully and not too clearly how to handle soldiers' clothing accounts.

Shortly after reveille we see him seated at his desk in the Company office. His master, the telephone, sits on the desk in front of him, distributing with impunity any matter he may be under-taking. The morning grist begins. Enter the Best First Sergeant in the Army followed by a rather indifferent private.

"Cap'n," says the Top Kick, "This man's got a complaint about the duty roster."

This is old stuff to Capt. Charles. He senses at once the true fact, viz: that a mistake has been made in the Company Office and that the First Sergt. refuses to admit it. He finds himself therefore between the horns of a dilemma—how to correct that mistake and at the same time support his non-com. "It is my policy" says Capt. Charles, "to support my non-coms. If I can't support'em, I bust'em." In this instance he did not bust'em. In .....bust the Top Kick.

A certain lieutenant, a devout church member and a new arrival at the post, had been assigned to teach a Sunday School class. Determined to recruit his class up to full trength, he decided upon the novel idea of trying out the same method with his class as some company commanders use to keep their companies up to strength.

'Boys," he said, 'I would like to have as many of you as possible bring one or two boys to class with you next Sunday. How many of you think that they can do it?" he added.

For a minute no one moved and then little Willie Jones, the toughest boy in the class stood up. "I'm not sure that I can bring two," he said, but I know one little fellow in my block that I can light and "I'll do my dayndthat I can lick and I'll do my darndest to bring him."

The crop outlook is certainly improving. One farmer was telling us the other day that his corn looked like it might average two or three hundred gallons to the acre.

Every young married couple's first ambition is to own their own home: their second ambition is to own their own car so that they can get away from home.

Mrs. Cottontop had been watching the new neighbors who had just moved in across the street. With a sigh she turned to old Ezra and said, "Paw, do you know, half this world doesn't know how the other half lives?"

"Well, don't blame yourself, Ma.," replied old Ezra, reaching for his hat, It isn't your fault."

Why Worry About A Car?

You either own one or you don't. You always have two alternatives. If you don't there is nothing to worry about, except getting one. If you do, you have two alternatives; either you insure it or you do not.

If you insure it you don't need to worry. If you don't, there are two alternatives; either you sustain an accident or you don't. If you don't, you needn't worry. If you do there are two alternatives; either you get damages, or you pay the other fellow. You have two alternatives each way. You either get paid by him or you don't. If you do, you're lucky. If you don't, you may sue. If you don't get a judgment, you're out of luck; if you do, he may have nothing you can attach and you're still out of luck. If you pay his damages, no need to worry. If you don't, he may sue you. If he loses, thats his worry. If he wins—

Have you cash to pay the judgment of damages? If you have, you're lucky. If you have not, are you judgment-proof? Can he collect? These are the answers to the last two questions, no alternatives available. If you are in the Services, No to the first, and Yes to the second. Better let us pay for you.

LONG HEALTH

According to the announcements of leading insurance companies in tabulating mortality rates of men according to occupation, the mortality of soldiers is the lowest in any class. The death rate in the military group is only five per thousand. In comparison with the placid life of the clergy-mens' group, we find that the soldier lives under conditions more conductive to longevity, for more than twice as many men among the clergy die in a year than among the soldiers.

Last January the Engineers began a building program that is to include eevntualy an Orderly Room, Supply Rom, three platoon barracks, mess hall, recreation room and latrine. Last week the fourth unit on the program, the Headquarters barracks was completed and immediately occupied. After having lived under canvas for the last two years it's a great relief to get into barracks.

Major Elliott came down from Washington Barracks this week to find out the whys and wherefores of the Engineer Map Reproduction Plant. The inspection was thorough and consumed two whole days. The plant detail was kept busy showing the major how the infernal machine works.

Corps. Spencer nd Fisher, and Pyts. Palmer and Fults wasted their holiday in Cleveland, Ga. Just what the town thought of its sudden and heretofore unheard of increase in population is unknown. It is said that it will take about a month to get back to normalcy.

Pyts. Cheatham, Palmer, W. H., and

Chamberlain visited Birmingham during the week and returned safely.

A cat may look at a king. But a buck private may not swear at a first sergeant. At least it's a risky proposition and you get away with it only if you happen to get sick with tuber or vou happen to get sick with tuberculosis afterwards and have a special you off. Private George Barrett, of Oakland, California, cussed out his Top Kick while with the Twelfth Field Artillery on the Rhine. He said he would wear gloves and an overcoat while grooming horses, whatever the Top said. And he said it hard. Then court martial gave him ten years and a kick. The reviewing authority cut the sentence to one year but sustained the sentence of a dishonorable discharge.

Now Barrett is said to be dying of tuberculosis in the Livermore Hospital, and the House of Representatives has passed special legislation to say that he is entitled to an honorable discharge from the army.

good Rochefoucauld works, I fear, you have not read) says in his 174th Maxim, "The living strictby by Rule for the preservation of health is one of the most troublesome diseases that can be." You and I, instinctively knowing the truth of this axiom, are apt to shun doing all those things we ought to do to make our-selves into "The Complete Marksman and Rifle-shot.'

The average shot has usually worked out for himself the best system for his out for himself the best system for his own personal requirements. For the very new shot perhaps there are cer-tain pitfalls which may be pointed out. For example, we hear sometimes of the wonderful scores put on by slightly inebriated gentlemen, or of the fine average held by men who smoke largely. These are all stock tales, and are, I find, frequently retailed by and are, I find, frequently retailed by permanent second-class shots to promising beginners. (That will stop you from telling another that kind.)

A few years ago The American Rifleman published a series of experiments to show the effect of alcohol on a rifleman's skill. One thing which did evolve from these experiments was the fact that if a man took rather above his normal consumption of alcohol in the evening it made for unsteadiness the next day. The point of interest being this—the effect of the extra glass, whatever temporary effects it may have, is bad some 18 to 24 hours later. Probably the real answer to the great 'Alcohol versus Shooter's Skill' great 'Alcohol versus Shooter's Skill question is that it's jolly good for the other fellow, but rotten for you.

With regard to smoking one thing has been conclusively proved by many careful experiments. A cigarette just before shooting does, definitely, make for unsteadiness towards the end of the shoot. Thus many "possibles' have been turned into worst 34's or 98's owing to a nerve soothing cigarette just prior to going on the firing point.

Having now knocked off both your drinks and your smokes, let us proceed to take off some of your clothes. This is to say, during the hot weather, do not wear thick clothes. Even now one sees some curiously dressed, rather one sees some curiously dressed, rather very unsuitably dressed, competitors on the plain. The thing is, or to be comfortable round the neck, and a loose shirt is as good as anything yet invented in this age of sartorial impossibilities for gents' neckwear. But, to apparently contradict ourselves, too few clothes, especially on the sleeves is bad, as it fails to help support the sling on the left arm. To get over this trouble one very famous support the sling on the left arm. To get over this trouble one very famous shot has a specially padded sleeve to help keep the sling in place. Others always carry a light mackintosh, which they slip on just prior tos hooting—and this certainly does help to give support to the sling. Incidentally, this question of a sling is important. Too coat usually necessitates an alteration of the sling length.

The late Walter Winans, knowing the difference that various suits make to a gun's feel and "come up' went so far as to have a coat made to fit each gun.

Ammunition Allowance Being Diverted To Insure Efficient Work On Future Demonstrations.

With a sweeping reduction in the amount of ammunition which can be expended in instruction and record firing with the automatic rifle, th Demonstration Doughboys are still determined to put on their exhibitions in a manner 'accurate in every detail". Consequently, the ammunition allowance for auto-rifle firing will be used exclusively in the training of auto-riflemen and their substitutes who will be available for the demonstrations to be staged during the next academic year. None will fire who will reach the expected "ETS" before May first and are not going to re-up.

In the 29th Infantry a specially improvised auto-rifle firing course, to be called 'Course 'X'" has been devised to insure exceptionally efficient handling of this weapon in the demonstration which the regiments puts on for

REDS BEAT KELLY'S IN SUNDAY'S CLASH WITH ONE BIG FRAME

Batting Bee in Eighth Inning Rolls Up Decisive Tally for West End Team.

It was a close and bitter battle and it was only in the eighth inning with six hits that netted six runs and one of them a homer by Hampton, that the of them a homer by Hampton, that the Reds managed to vanquish the Kellys of the Second Battalion on Gowdy Field. All told, the redoubtable hard-hitting Reds scored eighteen hits ff the twirling of 'Slick' Willis, but he grinned his peculiar smile and kept their bingles well scattered. The score was 9-2 in favor of the champion Reds.

In the meanwhile, his comrades were doing their best to score and there were only two frames when the Second Bats did not have at least one man on base as the stanza closed. In the fourth stanza. Felber and Lehman dented the plate, but erratic baserunning cut down the other teammates still on the paths, and nice wallops by Davis and Newman were of little avail.

The battalion contributed a single error and the only double play of the

McGAHA'S TWIRLING BRINGS 1ST BN. WIN IN THE THIRTEENTH

Scattered Hits and Excellent Play Mark Prolonged Contest for Cellar Berth.

By Jack Hoffman. It took the 1st Bn. 13 innings to get out of last place in the garrison championship series and give the I. S. D. undisputed possession thereof. They undisputed possession thereof. They did it by managing to acquire three runs while the best the I. S. D. could do was to get one run.

The game was a combination of good pitching and poor base running. Both Toole for the I. S. D. and McGaha for the 1st Bn. pitched air tight ball, the former allowing but three hits during his term of office and the latter eight hits but no man was allowed to get further than second. The Doughboys had the bases full in the sixth innnig with none out but a fast double play, Trotter to E. Davis, who cut down Mc-Gaha at the plate saved the game for the I. S. D. for the time being. Better foot work by the 29th pitcher might have prevented the game from going into extra innings.

The fielding of McCarty of the 1.
S. D. who made at least two marvelous stops and throws to first was a feature of the game.

NO TIME TO WASTE

'Twas a dark and stormy evening. (They always are). It was a new sentry on post. (It usually is). The reief, shattering all precedents, hove in sight, but never a challenge came from the guard. The corporal halting the relief, strode up to him.

"Hey, you," he demanded angrily, "why the blankety-blank didn't you halt us?"

"Halt you, the devil!" snapped back the sentry. "You're half an hour late as it is!"—Second Division Review.

Company "F"

Our Area Now Speaks for Itself

A Gas Bum longs to tell Of "F" Company, he loves so well; Of soldiers spick and span, Each and every one a man, So just listen to his story; You'll find it full of glory And advice to you, my boy, For it's our pride and joy.

The beautiful green lawn, the flowers and vines, the extreme neatness of our Company area in general reveal some interesting facts of which we are justly proud. Our lawn for instance is to us a paradise; one of our most priceless possessions, where one may sit in the cool of the evening and find new happiness and forget the past. But did you ever for a moment stop to consider how such surroundings were possible. I will relate to you as best I can, the story of how our wonderful success came about.

Once there was a hard working outfit composed of highly intelligent trained soldiers, who were striving to create the very best quarters to be had in Benning. This outfit was known as the soldiering C. W. S.

They worked hard and uncomplainingly while others looked on idly, and stupidly muttered to themselves "Another good bunch going to H—l" or some similar remark.

Progress was very slow, and it was nearly a month from the time work was started before we were able to occupy these quarters, which were not then completed insofar as painting, p. grass and leveling the grounds planting

But with long months spent in earnest labor times have changed, and now the very people who could not agree with us at the start are the ones who will eat the sour grapes.

Today our Company area stands out as a worthy achievement in memory of our former Company Commander, Captain D. Lee Hooper, who is now with the Engineers.

FRIDAY'S LOOSE GAME TO TANKS WITH SHUTOUT

Caterpillar Runners in Full Control Throughout Contest with Second Bats.

"Red" Lindsey began to think he was earning a place among the ranks of the immortals last Friday afternoon when, except for a single by Parris in the first, the Second Batalion went hitless for six innings; but in the last three frames the Kelly's managed to smash out five safeties and broke the spell. They did not break it sufficiently to score, however, and the Tankers beat the Kellys 12-0.

There was a fatal third inning in which three bases on balls, two passed balls, and a wild throw were joined to four hits and a sacrifice bunt to tally seven runs and stow the game away on ice. Two double plays by each team added to the entertainment, but most added to the entertainment, but most of the afternoon the Tanks were so far out in front that there was little excitement. Lt. Hanson held down the initial sack for the Tankers, making initial sack for the Tankers, making the scoring position at third, the bats whiffed the atmosphere.

Even perfect fielding and five stolen are glong the paths and two brilthe mound, Willis began to twirl with one out in the ninth, and had the distinction of retiring the side, securing credit for two-thirds of an inning, with a single pitched ball. W. Smith was trapped off third and put out; Wolfgang was then trapped between second and third, but the team misunderstood the umps upward arm-jerk and put W. Smith lout for the second time; and then turned and trapped Wolfgang again, "High" Davis romping in from far right field to get the last throw and the put out.

ONE RUN Y FIRST BATS OFF HAYWARD ON SATURDAY

Blues Win, 3-1, in Spite of Fine Pitching by McGaha and Error-less Ball by Team.

Hayward left his position at third base and did some twirling for the Blues Saturday, holding the First Battalion to a single hit through nine innings of high class baseball, striking out nine, and allowing but two free passes, one of which was converted into a run in the last half of the ninth when Ashe stole second and scored on an infield error. But it was Hayward's pitching nevertheless which held the First Battalion at bay and the Blues won by the score of 3-1.

Although McGaha presented a fine brand of twirling and the First Battalion played errorless ball behind him. the 29th Infantrymen went down to defeat before the Blues by the score of liant double plays cannot overcome a lack of pounding the pellet. In fact McGaha pitched well enough while he was on the mound, and the two runs that made the difference between de-feat and victory were only scored by two luckily delivered triples that opened the first and fifth frames. Thomas, first up, laid one in the pas-Thomas, first up, laid one in the pasture between right and center fields and scampered home from the hot corner when Driver bounded a deep and slow one to short. In the fifth, it was Nash who began proceedings with a triple, and that was a fluke triple at that, which an outfielder turned from a single into extra bases by trying for a shoestring catch. Lyons batted him in promptly and the Blues were two fallies to the good. Each were two tallies to the good. Each scored in the ninth with runners who got their chances by the base on balls route, and stretched their opportunities by fast base-running. Two flashy double plays by the First Bats held down other possible scoring.

GUNNERS DROP DOWNTOWN GAME TO CITY LIONS

Power of Artillery Attack Felt By Opponents Who Nevertheless Win.

The undefeated Columbus Lions vanquished the Eighty-third field artillery baseball aggregation Thursday at the Swift ball park by a 5 to 4 count in an exciting contest.

The local baseballers gathered most of their scores in the first nining, tallying three times during the frame as the result of two misjudged flies to the outfield, an infield error and three base hits.

The Artillerymen assumed a strong offensive in the eighth nining and threatened to deadlock the score but threatened to deadlock the score but fell short one run. After registering two scores, the soldiers were retired for the inning. In the next inning the losers were unable to touch Knight for any safeties. Artillery

MILITARY ORDER OF THE WORLD WAR MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

to Increase Enrollment of Garrison.

Plans are being laid for a membership drive by the local chapter of the Military Order of the World War, to which are eligible all who served as officers in the Army or Navy during the period of actual hostilities, that is. from April, 1917, to the Armistice, or who served in the ranks during the war, and who have also been commissioned as officers since prior to the signing of the Treaty of Peace on June 4, 1921.

The organization is an officers' organization. There are two requisites: participation in the World War, and participation in the World War, and the holding of a commission which dates before June, 1921. Colonel Wait C. Johnson, recently returned from a successful tennis trip in the neighborhood of the Potomac River with additions to his collection. River, with additions to his collection of trophies, is Commander of the Fort Benning Chapter. Other officers elected at the initial meeting in early May were: Major E. S. #### "THE GOWDY TROPHY" ARRIVES AT BENNING FOR ANNUAL CHAMPS Hank's Splendid Silver Cup Reaches Fort for Garrison Baseball Winners.

There has just arrived at Fort Benining, and will be placed on display tomorrow,, the splendid "Gowdy Trophy" donated to the Infantry School Athletic Association by Harry Gowdy, veteran of the World War, famous catcher for the Boston Prayes and the catcher for the Boston Braves and the Giants, former manager of the Columbus American Association team, and now mainstay behind the bat for the Minneapolis Millers.

Standing two feet high, bearing in Old English lettering the words: "The Gowdy Trophy", with space on the reverse side for the names of the an-verse side for the names of the annual winners, and bearing the shield and motto of the Infantry School on the front, the cup is a splendid affair, worthy of the fine record of the donor. During his visit here last spring, when his Columbus team played the Washington Senators, Gowdy told General Collins that he wished to show his appreciation for the courtesy shown his appreciation for the courtesy shown

VENABLE WINS TITLE IN CLOSE GOLF MATCH WITH CAPTAIN BARNETT

Strong Spurt Near the Finish Marks Exciting Close Of Tournament.

Last week the golf tournament came to a close after this paper was already on the press. We were able to announce the results of the elimination play, the division into flights, and the results in the Second Flight, in which Colonel A. B. Warfield took the final round from Captain A. E. Brown, 7-up & 5 to play.

In the Third Flight, Major R. A. Jones and Captain Partridge were locked in a struggle, which the former eventually won, 6-up & 5 to play.

A whirlwind finish marked the close of the First Flight for the garrison.

A whiriwind finish marked the close of the First Flight for the garrison championship. Captain Venable and Captain Barnett played stroke for stroke, and at the end of the first eighteen holes, the former was leading by the marger margin of 1-m. In the by the meager margin of 1-up. In the second eighteen, contested last Thursday afternoon, Captain Venable got away to a striking lead and at one point stood 5-up & 6 to play.

At this point the Department of Fig.

At this point the Department of Experiment officer staged a rally and won four holes in succession, making it only 1-up for Venable as they started the 17th. The next two holes, however, were halved and Venable won, 1-up on thirty-six holes. The strokes for the last eights. for the last eighteen holes were: Barnett—77; Venable—81.

Colonel Helms, Executive Officer and Acting Commandant, presented the prizes at the conclusion of play late Thursday afternoon.

BEACON BEACH FISHING PARTY FROM THE FORT

Ten Day Trip Being Arranged for Ike Waltonning Near Panama City.

Tomorrow afternoon a party of five officers of the garrison leave by motor for Panama City to camp on Beacon Beach and fish for ten days in the waters of the gulf. Captain Cook writes that he has been snagging bluefish by the bucket full; and everyone is getting set.

Under the direction of Captain R. R. Bishop, 29th Infantry, a thirty day camp is being established at Beacon Beach, with cots, and mosquito bars, Beach, with cots, and mosquito bars, and blankets. (Sheets, razors, and pajamas are barred from the area.) To this camp it is planned to send three parties for ten days each. The three parties for ten days each. The first party will consist of Colonel Gowen, Majors Russ, Moulton and Moore, and Lieutenant Privett. Such was George E. Friend who arrived at Benning in November, 1924, and was a Sergeant by June of last summer. He had served with the 8th Engineers at Fort Bliss from 1920-1923, had won the Fort Bliss Trophy and the Capalty Engineer Championand the Cavalry Engineer Champion and the Cavalry Engineer Championship. Then he went back to his home at Yakima, Washington, until he decided to re-enlist for the "Lead-The-Way" demonstration doughboys. Most of his time he spent on the Experimental Range with Captain Wessels, clipping off bull's eyes while testing rifles. Then he left for Camp Logan and Perry with the Infantry Team, to win the Infantry Championship cup. In the try-outs, fired sixteen times over the National Match Course, he was high man for the Infantry with the amazing total of 4528.

"FOLLOW ME"

From time to time the editor of this paper is approached by individuals of the garrison who suggest that a publicity campaign ought to be started to secure this or that alteration in policy, regarding quarters, upkeep of roads, preparation of a route to Jefferson Hole and the picnic ground there, or something of this sort. Letters come in to the editor's desk which say that this or that thing should be done-facilities for enlisted men should be re-arranged for this purpose or that.

Practically none of these things even find a way into our columns. And perhaps it is only fair to our friends to say why.

In civil life, a newspaper editorial page exists to create, mould, or crystalize public opinion in order to influence officials to take certain action in needed

In the Army, a garrison is administered by the commander. If the general wished to stop target practice and put fatigue details on roads exclusively, he could do so. If he wished to stop emptying ash and garbage cans, and use the personnel Mr. Sgt. Joseph T. McCloskey, I. S. D building walks, he could do so. He knows the needs of the garrison more intimately and with a better perspective than the casual observer. It is not the job of the editor of a garrison paper to tell him how to do his work. Garrison opinion cannot be crystallized to influence him to take action here or there. He is in command. That is why our columns remain silent and do not lend themselves to action to the came to the Infantry. casual observer. It is not the job of the tive agitation.

However, whenever a personal conversation or a letter to the editor happens to reveal some matter that might well be brought to the attention of the responsible authorities, it has been the invariable practice of the editor of this paper to pass the suggestion along to the proper person. Such transmittals of suggestions and ideas by the editor are usually listened to with a great deal of respect, because those to whom they are mentioned are aware that the editor of a paper has a large number of contacts of an informal nature and is able to receive informally many suggestions that could not well be made through channels without impropriety or embarrassment. Several times this year, the editor has been able to pass on suggestions of this sort, even though no mention was made of them in these columns.

We are all interested in the betterment of Benning. Anyone sincerely so interested has been welcomed in this office. The fact that his "growl" or his "bright idea" was not reproduced in this paper is not an indication that it had been scrap-basketed. But the editor would wish to indicate that fundamental difference between the use of a civilian and a military paper, based upon the fact that the army and the political worlds are differently administered.

JOHN W. WEEKS

Former Secretary of War.

Death this week claimed one of the finest men who ever sat in the Cabinet seat as Secretary of the Cabinet seat as Secretary of War. Following a long illness which finally compelled him to resign from his post on the coun-cils of the administration, Hon. John W. Weeks died at Mount Prospect, New Hampshire, on July 11, 1926.

As head of the War Department, he took a leading part in framing the policies of the Harding and Coolidge governments. He supervised the re-organization of the army in accordance with the Act of 1920. He continually fought for the policies of the general staff and the War Degeneral staff and the war Department and was cordially liked and keenly admired by everyone who worked with or under him. A wealthy citizen, a former Annapolis graduate, a loyal public servant who placed the welfare of the nation ahead of all considerations he was a constructive siderations, he was a constructive force in military circles, carry-ing heavy burdens and always ready to appreciate the efforts of the men of the service. All Thursday, the day of his burial the huge garrison flag was flown at half-staff.

"Hello, Ad," Goofy Smith greeted me, "I see you're still 'gold bricking'! Pretty soft for you with nothing to do but write a few jokes every week." "Well, Goofy," I answered, "If it's so easy, why haven't you tried it?" "Oh, I used to run a column a few years ago," he answered, pushing my desk-tray into the wastebasket and settling down more comfortably on my desk. "In fact I was writing a whole desk. "In fact I was writing a whole page when I was fired."

"Fired," I said some surprised at Goofy admitting it, "And why were you fired?"
"Well you see" says Goofy pick-

"Well, you see," says Goofy, picking up one of my cigarettes and borrowing a match from me to light it with, "When I started in I was only writing a paragraph, but after a while my stuff kept increasing until I used over a page.

"And then I suppose it got so that all there was in the paper was your jokes," I asked, trying to be sarcastic. It went right over Goofy's head It went right over though.

"No," he goes on, "It might have got that way in time, but one day the boss comes in and the paper is over an hour late in getting out. Well, he Well, he goes to the composing room and there he finds the whole crowd sitting he finds the whole crowd sitting around reading my jokes and laughing so hard they never sees him come in. They haven't even got the paper 'set up' yet. Of course he didn't really fire me,' Goofy continues, "He just asks me if I didn't think it would be better for the paper to get out on time. better for the paper to get out on time, even if it had to do without my jokes."

Now Goofy hasn't ever paid for a copy of The News yet although he is always reading it so I decides to try and choke him off by changing the subject "How are the subscriptions coming in, Mr. Browning?" I asked, looking over to where the circulation manager is busy figuring. "Fine," says h says he, "Most of the com-

"Fine," says he, "Most of the companies are subscribing 100 per cent."
"Well, that's pretty good," I says, really surprised that the boys were waking up, "Don't you think that is doing well, Goofy?" I added.
"Fair; fair," says Goofy, "But not say good as we done up in Comp Wohle."

so good as we done up in Camp Webb a few years ago. They made me sub-scription manager and I got everyone camp to subscribe for five years.

in camp to subscribe for live years.

"Fi-fi-five years!" gasped Mr. Browning looking startled, while I'm feebly attempting to figure what a soldier, on a three year enlistment, would be doing with a five year subscription. "Your paper must have made a pile of money.'

"No, we didn't," says Goofy, shaking his head sadly, "We went broke."
"Broke!" cries Mr. Browning and I together. "Yep," "Broke. "Yep," says Goofy. "Broke. You see we made an offer that every fiveyear paid-up-subscriber was entitled to the refund of his subscription money and a cash prize of $10.00 if he found his name in the paper between the 1st and 30th of September. Of course we knew we would lose some money but we figured we could stand it and everything went alright until the adjutant called up and asked us to publish the names of all the men who had qualified on the rifle range. When we got through paying up we figured that over 80 per cent. of the camp had qualified."

She: "Oh, I do love cows; don't you? They are so gentle and sweet. Why, even their breath is."

He: "But have you noticed how seldom they are asked to dance?"—Life.

Thirds Finish On Range Practice.

The third group of the regiment has just finished target practice on the Sheldon range. This group has hung up an enviable record. Sgt. Charlie Burrus of Co. "F" finished the course with a remarkable tally of 330, which, with a remarkable tarry of 350, which, it is believed, is a record for the year. So far Company "F" has succeeded in getting over several fine scores, Cpl. Clarence O'Neal. 320; Pvt. James Fletcher, 318; Sgt. Porter, 311. The company commander is indeed proud these days as he boasts of hi srifle shots. However there are several other companies that are out for the rifle trophy this year and are slowly amassing scores that they hope will equal or better the record of Company "F". Other fine scores have been made by Service Co. Sgt. Bradford, score 328, and Co. "L", Sgt. George Larkin, score

The rumor still floats about, now that the scores are mounting, that the proposition of challenging other firing organizations of the garrison to a match will actually be made. Just when this shoot will take place is hard to tell. Keen interest, however, prevails over the possibility.

In a game last Sunday, ended by rain in the middle of the sixth inning, the Seventh Engineers conquered Chest nut's All-Stars, to the tune of 8 to 6.

The game was featured by plenty of hits and errors with Engineers leading in hits and the All-Stars in errors In their half of the second inning the Engineers had twelve men at bat and Engineers had twelve men at bat and scored seven runs before the picked college players of Columbus realized what was going on. They also ran through the batting order in the sixth.

The feature of the game was the retiring of the All-Stars on four pitched balls in the first inning.

BATTALION NINES LOCKED IN A TIE AS SHOWERS CAME

Saturday's Contest Ends 3-3 at Close Of Eighth Inning of Play.

The First and Second Battalions of the 29th Infantry played a 3-3 tie game on Gowdy Field Saturday afternoon with the help of His Honor J. Pluvius. The inter-necine strife among the leadhe way regimentals stopped at a deadock at the end of the eighth inning when thunder on the left brought heavy rain for the second time and called a halt.

Spitball McGaha for the First Battalion and the huge Newman for the Second Battalion fought it out, with little to choose between either. The latter hit the first batter to face him and Allan, the injured one, stole second and scampered home on a wild throw-in to the third corner. In the fifth the charges of Hussing of the First Bats, tallied twice more in an effort to get well ahead before the clouds fell.

But a walk by Newman, who appreciated McGaha's gift, a hit by Daniel, and an error, followed by a mixup catching the canny "Slick" Willis between sacks, let the Kelly's get two runs in the sixth, and the game was on with a vengeance.

A heavy threat to tally in the seventh with the hitting Newman at bat and two on, was met by McGaha presenting the slugging pitcher with one-to-four inclusive and doing it intentionally; and the next and final out of the frame was a fly to left field.

Down to the eighth inning the teams came, with the First Battalion having chalked the score board thrice and the Second Battalion only twice. The undeterred Second Bats determined to justify Kjelstrom and their name of or a well placed bunt by Cole—making his debut in right field—went to third while Willis was being thrown out, and scored on Parris's second wallop of the day into the left pasture. The score was tied—and heavy rain clouds came on from the West End of camp.

In their half of the eighth, Sheriff singled and stole second.

The floods descended and the game halted. Half the stands yelled "Let's go home!" and the other half yelled, "Play Ball!" After a ceremonious wait and an official inspection of the watery mud around the middle corner. watery mud around the middle corner, the game was resumed. Willis—now pitching for the Kelly's—struck out the number one. The next up went out, second to first, Sheriff taking third. A pinch hitter bounded the next Everett, r. f. Morris 3b. Morris 3b. ball in and around the plate and watched it while Sheriff hit the mud for home, and Thompson threw the ball to the initial corner for the final out.

Again the rain descended. The game was called. It was called at an even inning—and Jupe Pluvius interruption in his visit saved the necessity of reverting to the end-of-the seventh score and taking away the Kelly's tring run. Kelly's tying run.

THIRTEEN INNINGS NEEDED FOR BLUES TO BEAT WEE GRADY

Detachment Loses Infantry School Excellent Friday Afternoon Contest.

For twelve long innings, Wee Grady Tolle bent his twists around the plate and baffled the Blues into easy ground ers and soft pop flies except for a few hard drives at waiting fielders and eight well scattered hits. But in the thirteenth the head of the batting order made safeties three times in succession and the West Enders managed to win, 2-1.

Thomas opened the initial session with a double, went to third on a passed ball, and scored on an infield out. In the second, three hits in succession loaded the sacks, but a sky-scraper to Holman and one beyond the boundary to Morris retired the side without a tally. Thereafter, the makeshift Infantry School Detachment team played in the field like a crew of vaterans. crew of veterans. Heckert was out of the line up. So was Morgan. Hesse was not around to take first, and Mc-Carthy held down the beginning corner. With a team like this Grady pitched ball, and his team mates helped in splendid fashion to turn back every attempt until the final catastrophe.

Yet the Detachmenteers were weak with the stick and there were only four innings of the thirteen when they connected safely, Grady's own double in the sixth from which he scored on Trotter's second hit of the day, being the only contribution toward the scoring column. In the ninth and twelftn, the Detachment had fine chances to score, that were cut down by double plays on aerial hits, the play in neither case being absolutely necessary.

CANNONEER SCHULTE MAKING GOOD OUTSIDE ON BASEBALL LEAVE

Eighty-Third's Pitcher, Half and End Now Playing with Thomasville Team.

Clyde Schulte, of the Eighty-Third Field, Battery "C", is the latest of the garrison baseballers to go out and show the folks of the surrounding country what good players we make at Fort Benning.

Having left Fort Benning on furlough the first of this month, he has been twirling for the Thomasville team down south just this side of the Florida line. In his initial appearance when the Thomasville "Rose Buds" faced the Lake City nine, he yielded only one run, and made two neat assists from the box, and took the game in fine fashion. The local newspaper made the following remarks about his playing.

"From the game he pitched yesterday, he well deserves the good recommendation he came with, for he has a fast underhand ball and a good curve that are hard to hit. His control is good and he works hard all the time to win. He only allowed four hits yesterday and all of them were very widely scattered."

Schulte is one of the best of the Benning products. He has learned the game here and displayed his prowess in excellent fashion on diamond and on gridiron. This spring he was taken sick and kept from the mound for a good bit of the time, but he turned in two fine demonstrations. As relief pitcher, he went in against the Quantico Marines and stopped an avalanche. Against Howard College, he was unbeatable, yielding only seven hits, most of them scratches, rarely more than one an inning, and holding the Birmingham collegians the safe side of the midway station. In addition, he checked in a batting performance and developed a single and a secretification. a double, a single and a sacrifice out of four times at bat.

TANKERS THREATEN RED SUPREMACY IN TUESDAY BALL GAME

Trammel Wavers in Two Innings and Tanks Nearly Upset Season's Dope.

Two hits, a hit batsman, and a base on balls, combined with a stolen base brought the Tankers three runs in the fifth inning of Tuesday's game and the Tankers tied it up with the Reds, but even two more hits and two more bases on balls in the next frame, off Trammel, who was wild as a March hare before the noisy stands, were not enough to win the old ball game, and the Reds beat the Tanks, 9-4.

It is the hit that wins the old contest. The Reds hit with men on the sacks. They hit for a total of sixteen safeties, including two doubles by Sloan Williams. They have been carlet in the sacks. safeties, including two doubles by Sloan Williams. They had only three left on the sacks as innings closed. Five more Tankers, for a total of eight, left on the sacks, just about represented the difference in scoring.

The Reds were on a rampage, and even Red lindsey could not stop them. They got four singles off Mays in the sixth, and a double off Lindsey, for a total of four runs and the racket in the stands could not produce further.

the stands could not produce further scoring.

In spite of seven bases pilfered by the Reds, Ansley Smith did some bril-liant pegging to the sacks, catching several too audacious base runners.

VANCE FANS 1ST BN. AS TEAM GETS RUNS TO WIN ON THURSDAY

Fourteen Strike Outs and Paucity of Wallops Hold First Bats.

Striking out fourteen men, and yield ing only two hits, neither productive of scores, Vance twirled effectively for the Reds against the First Bats last Thursday and won his game by the score of 6-0. One of the three First's to reach the initial sack on a pass, was neited off. One reached third was nailed off. One reached third, One reached second. And the man who got on through an error died at the midway station.

In the seventh, the First Bats made their prime bid for a tally, Magagna opening the session with a powerful three-bagger to left-center. But amid jumbled signals for squeeze plays, the next up struck out, the next bunted the third strike foul when the squeeze signal was on, and the final one also fanned the air fanned the air.

In the ninth, with one gone, Berthiaume was safe when a wild throw from short was wide and high and only snort was wide and high and only knocked down by a fancy stab toward the clouds. The following batter flied out to right field. Ashe singled, advancing Berthiaume. But Sheriff made the third out on a fast play from the box to the first sack.

While this was going on, the Reds were attacking in true West End fash-ion. Fendall Williams opened the second with a double. King bunted him to third, which was gratuitous, for Hampton also doubled, and the eye-opener run was over the plate. In the fifth, a base on balls, a stolen base, a hit and an error resulted in one run, although the First Bats executed two pretty force plays, one at third and one at the plate, to cut off the leading baserunners. In the sixth and eighth, however, the Reds filled the sacks with none out, and in each case mannered to get two runs, onto the score. aged to get two runs onto the score-board before the red lights winked away to indicate the change of innings. score and summary

LINDSEY BLANKS 24TH BLUE TEAM IN SUNDAY GAME

Yields Only Three Hits—All of Which Are Collected by Haywood.

Haywood, Harvey Haywood, third baseman and alternate pitcher of the Blues, collected three hits for his team Saturday afternoon on Gowdy Field, and those three were all his team got for 'Red' Lindsey of the Terrible Tankers, held his opponents splendidly at bay and Major Miller's caterpillar treaders scored a striking victory by the score of 5 to 0..

Rain threatened to interrupt proceedings at the end of the fourth frame but the skies cleared and the proverbial Dutchman's breeches showed in the

Perhaps Lindsey's performance was turned in as a result of the inspiration he received from the presence in the stands of a gray uniformed Confederate veteran from Red's home state of Oklahoma, a soldier who calls him-self "A Man Without a Country"— "Since Prohibition." Unable to prove "Since Prohibition." Unable to prove his father had become a naturalized citizen, he was denied a passport as a citizen himself although Johnnie Har-ry Griffin had eight sons and twentytwo grandsons in the World War, as

d Battalion Twirler F Through Both Games of Double Header. Second

MONDAY AFTERNOON

One expert machine gunner of Company "H" who was high score man in the regiment, stood on the pitching slab for the Second Battalion Monday afternoon and sped the sphere across the plate for both games of a double header, winning both of them from the header, winning both of them from the Infantry School Detachment, by the score of 8-2 and 6-2.

Robert E. Harkey, of Austin, Texas, soldier at Benning since the Year One, i. e., since 1919, had a team behind him that was playing ball all the way, hitting reasonably well, and running bases like wild fire. Against him in the course of the afternoon, there were arrayed five different pitchers, and yet Harkey won, won even from the yet Harkey won, won even from the brilliant Grady Tolle and the canny veteran Logan Duff.

veteran Logan Duff.

In the initial game, the Detachmenteers threatened seriously only once, in the sixth inning, when Harkey gave a base on balls and Chief Ryan delivered a fine three bagger to the fence and scored on an infield out. In the second contest, also in the seventh, the Green' Hats again started to break through, with Grady Tolle doubling, advancing on an error and tallying on Holman's grounder to the box. Then three players in succession drew bases on balls, but Thompson pegged rapidly to third and caught one runner off and held the tallies to one.

Company "F", First Gas Regiment the home of super-soldiers and three squares a day, is holding its own in numbers.

Once a man has the honor and distinction of proudly wearing our insignia, he early realizes his prominence. He appreciates the good and prefers it to fruitless adventures into the great unknown. Thus like a true son of the C. W. S. Pvt. Sellers has returned to the fold to fill his own vacancy.

Peace and quiet again reign in the Company for Pvt. Gilbert has at last realized that "Skeeter" is just naturally hard-boiled and tougher than a nail.

Ahem! Ladies beware . Girls, take heed: Boys, we have in our midst a most horribly terrible lady killer. However, Cpl. Brightwell, our ex-Policeman is busy on the case and we hope to have the guilty party safely locked in the hoosegow in the near future. Where do you bury all the girls who die of broken hearts, Case?

As the range season draws to a close, it appears as the Pvts. Case and Thompson are running a close race for the Booby Score. So far, Case is leading the field by one flag.

Marvelous things still happen. even in this generation of Gas Bums. Particularly, if you happen to be one among the lucky 53 members of this Company, which includes Cpl. Sgt. Buck and Pvt. Malcolm are on Special Duty with Captain Lennon, Range Officer. Their function is to chase contours on the various ranges of the post. The number caught has not been determined to date.

Day by day we are getting closer and closer to the millennium. The company kitchen has finally come into possession of a lemon squeezer, not of the feminine variety. The function of the contraption, for the acquisition of which the company has been fervently praying for months, is to ensnare lemons between its hungry and business-like jaws and squeeze the h--- if not the juice out of it.

Sgt. Morrison spends most of his off-duty hours chasing a little white ball all over the golf course. The Sergeant considers it a poor day if his score for the eighteen holes is over 80.

The Engineers have won four games out of the last five played, meeting some of the best aamateur teams in Columbus, so you members of the Class "B" League here on the post had better step lively and step quick, if you intend to keep the Engineers from winning the cup.

"FOLLOW ME"

Due to illness on this staff and shortness of personnel, it has not been possible up to the present to make an accurate check of expiration dates of subscriptions. This month there are being mailed out renewal cards to a large number of our readers. Since the delay was our fault and not yours, the management of this paper will credit the renewal from the date of receipt rather than from the date of expiration, although papers have been mailed you in the interval.

"FOLLOW ME"

Members of the garrison are responding splendidly to the new regime on Gowdy Field. No longer are the Military Police on duty to check up on uniform and clutter up the entrances The troops of this command have been put on their honor to see that the freedom from supervision is not abused and each one is asked to cooperate in main taining uniform regulations with propriety and without compulsion.

Shortly after the return from Washington of Colonel Wait C. Johnson, President of the Athletic Association, he had a conference with the headquarters authorities and stated that he would be personally responsible for the appearance and behavior of the spectators. He felt that it was not neces sary to have the Military Police detailed for holiday afternoon duty, or to have a recreation center shadowed with the strong arm of the law. He felt that if the Benning personnel were asked to see to compliance with uniform regulations themselves, they would see to it. The Benning way is to get together and do things together. Proper appearance at baseball games is a matter of public opinion, and comrades can exert pressure on their fellows to prevent abuse of the trust is their child.

that has been placed in the command Infantry School Detachment as a whole and as individuals.

Gatekeepers and ticket takers will observe variations from proper uniform and appearance, if there be any-but it is believed that there will be none. since Colonel Johnson first announced the new method before the crowded seats the other afternoon, there has been a new sense of responsibility and, perhaps, a closer adherence to garrison regulations regarding uniform than previously existed when the M. P.'s were on th ealert to detect variations or delinquinces.

The new step is a fine one; and it has been finely received.

An apparently gentle livery stable horse was hicked to the front bumper of an army Standard B truck not long ago in a quiet street in Long Island. A battrey of metion picture cameras had been set up to photograph the actions of the noise in attempting to pull the truck, this being part of the continuity of the instruction figure Elements of the Automobile" that was in process of being prepared un-der the direction of the War Department.

The idea was to have the brake on the truck at first in order that the horse would have to strain at the traces and exert all of his strength to start the truck rolling. After that he was to trot along easily, (the truck driver surreptitiously driving the truck along in low gear to help him) so as to show that once in motion a very small amount of power, comparatively speaking, will keep it in motion. This was to illustrate the relative high torque or power required to start a Class B truck in motion. From this it was hoped to show army chauffeurs the necessity of engaging the clutch slowly and carefully.

The horse was only mildly curious when hooked up to the towing hooks of the truck, but when the cameramen commenced grinding away, and the truck driver tried to make him "giddap" the horse turned around and comto investigate the radiator menced guard instead. At the second attempt the owner of the horse tried to lead him, but this only resulted in the horse backing into the front bumper, shoving the truck back a few feet and kicking a few dents in the radator guard.

On the third attempt everybody (including the horse) prepared for a heroic effort. To make a long story short the horse jerked the truck about two feet off the ground on the first -broke a trace and had to be Yungeunhitched. In the emergency the writer and the two drivers got behind the er and the two drivers got behind the truck and did the necessary pushing, and there wasn't any necessity for trick photography to show the difficulty of getting one of those Class B's in motion, I can assure you.

The manifold activities of the Infantry School Detachment and the con-tinual pressure of official business tend to make it impracticable for this "outfit" to submit regular notes to The Infantry School News. Whenever the chance offers itself there is nothing worthy of mention to contribute to the pages of The News.

However, having a few minutes to spare, we wish to impress upon the garrison at large several points which are well worth noticing.

First-With the lack of material, or rather experienced material, we are having hard luck in the matter of having hard luck in the macro-baseball. In spite, nevertheless, of this shortage, we have played a brand of ball that is incomparable. your own eyes see, your heart is bound to believe!" This an axiom which there is no room to dispute.

Second—Working at our duties all day and playing ball later is entirely too much to do and break in raw material into the mysteries of the national sport. Some may say that our players should be put on special duty, as those of other organizations are to play ball. Again I use the word "imprac-ticable". Who would fill their places in their present duties? And it is well to remember that the activities with which our members are connected are indispensable to the proper functioning of the entire garrison.

Third—The above words are not uttered as an excuse for the fact that we are in the cellar of the Inter-Mural League. That we will remain there is doubtful and that we come up very close to the top, if not at the top, in the second half, is not in the least doubtful. Our players will, for the most part, be the same and there will be no professionals in the second series. Only watch our playing, whether we win or lose. You will always see a good game, regardless of whom our opponents may be.

The large number of men in the I S. D. render it difficult to continually post the discharges, enlistments, re-enlistments and furloughs, but during the past week we have lost so few that it is simple to remember them. Corporal Corporal Cecil J. Holland, formerly of the regi-Cecil J. Holland, formerly of the regiment that "Leads the Way" was discharged via the E. T. S. route. Sam Stuart, leading hitter of the Columbus Foxes, Southeastern League, decided that the team was a good thing and paid for the trouble that he had been the United Sam and continues to be in to Uncle Sam and continues to be in the lineup of our neighboring town's team. Our able Top Kick has departed for a visit to his home. Corporal Mc-Monigle returned from his furlough a few days prior to the extension of same.

So much for this week. Perhasome more next week, perhaps not. Perhaps

"Goofy" Smith was still sitting on my desk, and still talking about giving free subscriptions to every man who qualified on the range.

"I think I'll be going," says M Browning, looking hurriedly around for his hat.

"Don't leave yet Mr. Browning," exclaimed desperately, opening a window to let in some fresh air, "I wanted to ask you what you thought about the way the boys are shooting on the range this year. I see that the 24th has one 348 score already."

"Yes," said Mr. Browning, still looking for his hat, "That's pretty good shooting but I expect Smith here has done better than that."

Now Goofy before he transferred to the Q. M. C., used to have the name of being the only man in his company who had ever got eleven red flags while shooting rapid fire at two hun-dred yards. That's the reason that I dred yards. That's the reason that I mentioned shooting. But I should have known Goofy better.

"Well sir, Mr. Browning," he replies, "Since I've been driving a motorcycle around at 60 and 70 miles an hour the wind has sort of spoiled my eyesight but the last time I was in a Regi-mental Match the Colonel appointed a Board of Officers to check my targets and I'll bet you can't gunss what the board gave me."

I've learned my lesson so I just keeps quiet but Mr. Browning trys to "Maybe they gave you Goofy. 148 1-2," he suggests.

Now most any guy with Goofy's serve would have tumbled to the joke but not him, no sir.

"Why, Mr. Browning," he says, "That wouldn't be no score a-tall. What they gave me was 349 1-2."

TANKERS CANNOT FATHOM McGAHA AND LOSE, 4 - 1

1st Battalion Spitballer Gets Decision Over Red Lindsey.

McGaha pitched another excellent game for the 1st Battalion Saturday and for a change luck was with the veteran slinger in that his mates collected a few runs to help him out. The result was a 4-1 victory over the terrible Tankers with the redoubtable "Red" Lindsey figuring in the role of losing pitcher.

Sweeney, first up in the first half of the first inning was safe when Easler threw wild to first after a re-markable stop of the Irishman's hot markable stop of the Irishman's hot grounder. A steal of second, an infield out, and Meehan's grassburning single over the second sack enabled the pride of the Tanks to finish the circuit. Thereafter eight bingles scattered through eight innings helped nothing but the batting averages of the Tankers the Tankers.

the Tankers.

A walk to Allen, Magagna's Texas Leaguer to right for which Hedgecock made a gallant try, and an error knotted the count in the fourth. A long hoist to left by Ashe which fell safe for two sacks, Sheriff's single to the same territory which took a bad hop and got away from Rogers for three sacks and a neat squeeze play with McGaha up drove two runs in for the doughboys in the seventh and sent Lindsey to the showers. An additional Lindsey to the showers. An additional counter came over in the eighth, but it meant nothing.

SHOOTIN' THE BULL

When you're layin' in th' sunshine And th' ol' gun's sweatin' oil, An' you're squeezin' of th' trigger your blood's about to boil, When you've held your breath so con-

That your eyes almos' pop out -Then a feller sorter wonders What th' bloomin' show's about.

When th' ol' gun starts to buckin'
An' th' shoulder pads seem thin,
An' th' rifles on both sides
Are kickin' up a noisy din,
An' th' dust gets in th' nostrils
While th' back of necks turn red, Then you get a kinder feelin' That you're crazy in th' head

When th' hide rubs off th' elbows When th' hide rubs off th' elbows An' th' sweat rolls off in streams, An' th' water's hot an' tasteless An' the clothin' sticks and steams, While th' sun is gettin' hotter And th' red flag shows "no hit"— Then a feller gets proficient In new cuss words that jus' fit.

When all th' things that happen On a derned ol' rifle range,
Have happened, an' you've hardened,
An' things ain't quite so strange,
An' you've held 'er on the bulls-eye,
Made th' proper trigger squeeze, An' the white disk covers black space-Boy! Ain't you then at ease?

Battery "A"

Private "Peck" Walters, who at present is on furlough, paid Battery "A" (or was it the mess hall) a visit, it must have been the latter, 'cause he arrived in plenty of time for dinner, and then hung ground for and then hung around for supper. It looks rather funny, 'cause he left right after supper for Fort Valley, Ga., plenty of peaches there. We hope that you find an uncle down there, "Peck"

Lester and Davis R. P. were told that all good soldiers reenlisted, so they both took on another stack for

Not so long ago one of them approached a clerk in the Post Exchange canteen and earnestly requested to be shown the stock of wall-lockers. The clerk very politely replied that they were all out of wall-lockers, but would a foot-locker answer the purpose. "No," said the recruit, "I gotta foot-locker, but the rest of the guys have all got a wall-locker and I want one too." A fine new Orthophonic Victrola has been purchased for our Recreation Room, it is evidently quite popular as it is going continually from the time the Day room is opened until it is closed.

Judging from the steam the Baseball team of ours is putting out, when they go to Atlanta to play they will bring home the Bacon.

Credit should be given to our Mess Sergeant Joe Trepanier for the fine dinner that he put out on Monday, July 5th. It had several banquets beat, not only for looks but taste.

Moses tells us he has a new girl in town, so we know why he has been there so often.

Why not take advantage of the Recreation Room (it is open from 11 to 10.

One Run Victory Sunday Sends Tankers Into Deadlock with Kellys.

The unfortunate I. S. D. team lost errors.

Duff and Conrad started on the hill and both pitched well. A walk to Morris, Shepherd's sacrifice bunt and Chief Ryan's slashing double to right, scored the Detachment's first marker in the third. Tanks came back in the lower half to tie it up. Rogers' single, A. Smith's sacrificial offering and Ryan's error on Sweeney's hoist to right did the damage. Tolle relieved Duff in the fourth and it was off Wee Grady's delivery that the Tankers scored the winning tallys in the eighth after the detachment had forged ahead after the detachment had forged ahead in the first half of that frame.

The victory brought the Tankers' percentage for the first half up to an even .500 with 5 wins and the same number of defeats, and enabled them to finish in a tie for third place with the 2nd Battalion Kellys.

GAS REGIMENT WINS AND LOSES

The baseball team of Co. F. 1st Gas The baseoall team of Co. F. 1st Gas Regiment, prepping for the coming class "B" League at Benning went down town last Saturday and Sunday and got an even break in the two games. Saturday the chemical boys won an easy victory over the Lieuweed games. Saturday the chemical boys won an easy victory over the Linwood Stars, 10 to 4, the soldiers finding the Columbus pitchers very soft pickings and taking full advantage of the numerous miscues by the opposition.

sunday, however, there was a different tale to tell when the strong All-Stars were met at Jordan City. Chestnut's lads scored their third win of the week, downing the soldiers 10 to 5. Four homers featured the contest, Key and Kimbrough of the Stars and Dixon and Neal of the soldiers each hitting for the circuit.

BOXERS GETTING SET FOR CARD ON GOWDY FIELD MONDAY NIGHT

Local Favorites All Primed and Cocked For All-Star Fistic Festival.

Fists will fly for thirty-two rounds of boxing on Gowdy Field Monday night, provided some of the bouts are not terminated sooner by the well known one to ten of the referee. Some years ago the fight game was in high favor in the garrison and many a fine card was staged here. Now, after a temporary eclipse, the unit men are about to come back into their own.

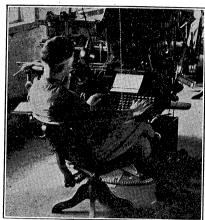

Under the management of Lieutenant George Potter, assistant athletic officer for boxing, one of the finest fight programs held in this neck of the woods has been arranged. Practically all the favorite leather pushers of Benning will get into action.

Headlining the night's show is a ten round go between "Red" Keenan, bantam champion of the Fourth Corps Area, and Mickey Kendrick, pride of Columbus. These fighting cocks have tangled up on three previous occasions and yet the question of supremacy is undecided. Once Mickey gave Red a ticket to dreamland; once the auburn thatched lad received the decision, and once not even the referee could tell who had the better of the milling. And so Monday's clash will be decisive. Red is devilishly clever, with Mickey perhaps carrying slightly heavier artillery. "Pat" Paccioni and Chief Otalvaro will go eight rounds—maybe. Both battlers are aggressive and believe in tangled up on three previous occasions battlers are aggressive and believe in swinging hard and often. A knockout, then, is highly probable in this chapter, but the men are very evenly matched and there's no telling who will be the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and who the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker out and the knocker o

Colonel Gowen Lands a Shark—Members Average 25 Pounds Catch Per Day

Following is a communication which has been sent to all members of the "Upatoi Fishing Club":

Ŷour entertainment committee has established a delightful fishing camp on the Gulf of Mexico located at Bunk-ers' Cove, Panama City, Florida. Thru the courtesy of the Sudduth Realty Co., Panama City, Florida, cottages have been furnished the club free of charge.

A powerful launch has been engaged which will permit fishing at any depth or distance from shore. The cooking and K. P., is performed by a negro

Estimated maximum cost per day is three dollars ($3.00), but it is believed the actual cost will average between $2.00 and $2.50 per day.

The following club members occupied the camp from July 17 to July 26, inc., and report an average catch of 25 lbs. per man per day:

"G" COMPANY COMES IN

First fruits of the subscription campaign of the Infantry School News in the 29th Infantry have reached this office. Eighty members of "G" Company have subscribed at the reduced orderly room rate of 50 cents per year. Under this arrangement copies are delivered on Fridays at the orderly rooms each stamped with the name of the subscriber. When a man is discharged or transferred, copies will be sent by mail to his new address.

Interest in other companies is growing, and further lists are being prepared. Hurry them in, and let the number increase.

Company "H", 29th Infantry

A double header was slated for Gowdy Field, and when the first game was over and the Second Battalion had won, the manager told the scorers:

"Same batting order!"

"Who's going to pitch?" asked the pencil pushers.

"Same battery! "replied the manager. And so it was. Thompson behind the bat kept right on receiving the shoots of Robert E. Harkey, who pitched both games and won them both on the same afternoon, a record that, we believe, has not been previously performed on Benning diamonds.

Originally a farmer, this twenty-seven year old soldier from Austin, Texas, where his father still lives, first enlisted where his father still lives, first enisted on April 28, 1919, and arrived at Benning two days later to learn rapidly the right way of doing Motor Machine Gun work. The rat-a-tat-tat of the bullet streamers worked into his soul so well that he launched into "D" Company of that he launched into "D" Company of the 29th Demonstration Doughboys just as that unit was being transformed into a machine gun outfit in 1921. There he made expert with his pet weapon year after year, with as great a regularity as he made "Excellent" on every discharge and transfer. In 1924, he was high score man in the regiment in the traversing, searching, fixed, oblique fire at which the Browning fans are trained.

Many a Coca-Cola bottle has Harkey filled at Austin, Texas, where he played baseball on the Coca-Cola team in the Industrial League in 1914, 1915 and 1916, young as he then was. Later on he used his gifted arm in the service of the Red Cap Taxi and the Yellow Cab companies St. Louis Missouri.

Always he has displayed on the mound the cool head and the steady hand that the cool head and the steady hand that make his machine-gunning so effective. Boy, howdy! It was some job to eep "John" from getting cold feet. The hombre who we announced would creep into this issue with his easy goin' first squad is here with some of his genuine 18-karat sutff.

And now, relax your minds from arduous labors of the past week on the range (or on K. P.as the case may be) and tune in on Station C. W. S. Our original practical joker, J. Turpin alias J. "Sugar", another old timer, expects to depart for parts unknown at Damascus, Ga., sometime next month.
Why the furlough, Sugar? Are the Are the chickens pecking on your mind?

Palmer is too poor to have a handle welded onto his trade-mark. Never theless, he expects to transfer to the Finance Department soon, where he will help count his uncles' money and maybe when the old man kicks off he will inherit oodles of jack. If Craddock has a nick-name we have never found him out. This young

FIRING SQUAD FROM 29TH AT FUNERAL OF MAJOR DENT

Major Wellborn Dent, P. S., who died on July 7, at the Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, was buried last at the Letterman General Thursday at his former home in Eufaula, Alabama. A firing squad from the 29th Infantry went over from the garrison to render the usual honors. Headquarters has received a letter from Mr. Geo. H. Dent, of Eufaula, thanking the authorities here for sending the detail to the Alabama city, and complimenting the soldiers on their appearance, neatness of uniform and splendid military bearing.

Major Dent first entered the army in 1906. He served as private, corporal and sergeant, Troop E. 14th Cavalry; and later in the 10th and 11th Cavalry. 1914 he was appointed 2nd Lieutenant, Philippine Scouts. During the World War he served as Captain 334th Tank Battalion. He was promoted to Major, P. S., on July 1, 1920.

THE AIDE PAID

A short time ago the aide to one of our general officers, driving at night, was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and ran into a farm wagon carrying a family, but no lights. He stood suit and lost the decision. Appealed and lost again, though local laws required all vehicles to carry lights at night. Due to his associations, personal and official, he had the very best advice and strong military influences to back him. Nevertheless for a long and wearisome period his monthly income was reduced by large partial payments on this judgment, court costs and attorney's fees, in addition to which he had to take leave three times to appear in a court of an adjoining state where the accident occurred.

He called on us later to protect him against personal liability, as well as every other coverage he had heard about.

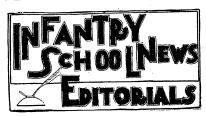

What car do you own? Have you personal liability protection?

"FOLLOW ME"

Information has reached the editor's desk that Company "A" of the 29th Infantry has qualified the large number of fourteen men as experts with the rifle and that the four officers of the company qualified as sharpshooters.

This is a splendid record. It indicates that the officers of the company were intent on doing their jobs, and their jobs consisted in teaching the company how to shoot, not in making high individual scores themselves.

If an officer goes on the rifle range and devotes his time and attention to the instruction of the members of his command, he does not have opportunity to accustom his own eye and steady his own hand for the patience trying and nerve straining business of making 306 out of a possible 350. Muscles must be fitted for the work they are to do. If not fitted, the performance will not be as accurate as otherwise. The performance of the officers of Company "A" testifies to their devotion to duty, and their thorough-going concern for the work of the company.

With regard to athletics, the War Department has said in an official Circular. "The organization of all-star officer athletic teams does not encourage enlisted men to participate in sports to the extent that the organization of teams of enlisted men would. In addition, allstar officer teams make use of officers as individual players and deprive them of their legitimate place as leaders."

In marksmanship, the principle is the same as in athletics. The job is the development of the ability of the men in the command. If officers were given opportunities to fire at other times when they could give exclusive attention to their own marksmanship, we might expect all officers to be experts. But with conditions as they are, with officers why not mail the news home? Why not mail the news home? Why not mail the news and saturdays only.

It happened recently that, at the same time a group of Reserve Of ficers were stationed at Fort Totten for a training period with the regular army personnel, a moving picture company borrowed the post for a day as setting for sentimental scenes in a soldier story.

Among the interested spectators of the movie operations was the very young daughter of a regular army officer who presently rushed to her mother. "Come quick, mother," she called, "there's an officer kissin' and kissin' a beautiful lady.'

"Nonsense, dear," replied the army matron, ignorant of the descent of the moving picture people but still calm in her faith in the disciplined respectability of the regular service. "It must be just one of those reserve officers." The New Yorker.

snatching odd moments here and there to do their own shooting, the best officer is he who devotes his almost exclusive attention to the training of the men under

The achievement of "A" Company is but a step in steady progress of that unit toward better marksmanship. Two years ago, the company barely edged over the required eighty per cent. Last year the company slid up to eight-eight per cent. This year the percentage will be well into the nineties. In the Regimental rifle match last fall, "A" Company won two of the most important prizes and proudly displays a banner and a cup.

An officer's ideal should be service teaching the young idea how to shoot, and all that that means. When officers sacrifice their own marksmanship ratings in order to put greater effort into securing better work on the part of their men. and when a company responds to the energy and attention of its officers, as has happened in "A" Company, then we can say there is a good company with officers who have the right idea.

HERE'S SAD STORY ABOUT SERGEANT AND "GOOD GIVE" HERE'S

Only This Gentleman Does Not Spell It That Way.

Never buy a second-hand automobile from a bald-headed man and above ali never receive one from your former commanding officer as a gift, emphatically no, declares a popular sergeant of the Engineers. The N. C. O. secured a motor under these conditions. It seems that the captain informed the sergeant that he had driven the famous racer not less than 193,334 miles which the sergeant maintains is nothing in the life of a second nand car of this make. After owning this machine for a short period the good hearted sergeant ran into a mess of trouble that just about establishes a world's record for hard luck.

Trouble No. 1. As with all cars that date back to the year of 1896, there always developes rear axle trouble, this sergeant had his troubles aplenty. Some kind hearted Dub suggested mixing molasses, soap, oil and saw dust together and 'filling her up', but here is the joke. This gink instead of filling the differential, poured this mixture into the crank case unbeknown to the sergeant. After 126 hours and 30 minutes of work, the old bus is now ready for tuning up. A government truck is pressed into service for the job of getting her started. After burning no less than 130 gallons of gasoline and getting no signs of starting, inquiry was made as to where this mixture was poured. The Dub with a surprised look says: "Why, Sar, I filled up the crank dase instead of the rear end." Gasoline gone, no start.

Trouble No. 2. The sergeant returns to his open air garage quite worried but nevertheless in no notion of giving up the ghost. When the crank case up the ghost. When the crank case had been taken down and all the mixture scripped out, she was given a good bath with kerosene. The old bus is now put back together, 137 bolts tightened. Now she is ready for the second trial. "At last, all's well. She fires." Just about this time a certain officer of the garrison happens to arrive in the large. Heaving all this unrive in the area. Hearing all this unusual noise, he inquires who's running a thrashing machine in this area. The sergeant with a dignified smile says. "Why, no one, sir. That's my auto-mobile." The officer with a puzzlzed look says, "Sergeant, if that's an automobile, the engine must be one of the ones that Noah used in his Ark." 'No, sir, that's one of the late 1896 models."

Trouble No. 3. The sergeant now feels confident that the old jinx has been broken. He plans one grand and glorious trip to the city. But all's not well. That same afternoon the old bus was seen tied behind a government with two soldiers giving them all a lift by pushing up a hill at the entrance to the camp proper. The M. P. on duty there inquired what the trouble was. "Nothing at all," explained the sergeant, "only three bearings out, a couple of flat tires and 13 holes in the crankcase, that's all." The N. C. O. reports that he has used up a couple bushels of bearings, a like amount of wrist pins and no less than two coils of rope for tow lines. Otherwise he maintains the old car is all right and gives good service. Any one wishing to see this antique of MOTOR-

"Goofy" had just finished telling of making 349 1-2 on the rifle range. Browning finds his hat and al almost knocks the Captain down trying to get out of the door. Captain Colby is just getting back from giving some boys swimming lessons. "You seem to be in swimming lessons. "You seem to be in quite a hurry, Browning," says the Captain. "Did you have some rush work to do?"

"No, sir," says Mr. Browning, "I was just going out for some fresh air."
"Well," said the Captain, "I had a good day today. I was helping some of those youngsters learn to swim. One little chap of about 8 years certainly picked it up wonderfully."

"Do you know, Captain," says Goofy, "That's one thing that I like to do. taught my young brother to swim

Now the Captain didn't know Goofy very well and I tries my best to warn him but he don't tumble none when I shakes my head at him.

"How old is your little brother?"
asks the Captain, innocently.

"Not quite three years old, Captain," he answers, "and I had him floatin," doin' th' back-stroke and dog paddlin' when I left."

"Didn't you have any trouble keeping his head up?" asked the Captain.

"No, sir," says Goofy, "that's the remarkable part. His head floated just like it was full of hot air."

"Maybe it was," says Mr. Browning. You said he was your brother."
"No," said Goofy, "I think a baby's head is like an empty honey comb. Just a lot of empty cells waiting to be filled with ideas."

At this the Captain looks kind of hard at Goofy's head, but he still has a question to ask. Some people are hard to satisfy. "Did he learn to dive?" he asked.

"No, sir," says Goofy. "He didn't. That was the funniest part of all. "He didn't. After he learned to dog paddle and float I stood him up on a plank about eight inches above the water and showed him how to dive. Well, the first few times he hit on his 'stummick, but at last after two or three trys he managed to hit the water head first. And do you know, Captain, his head was so light he never went under the water. He just bounced right back on the plank again like a rubber ball."
"Ad," says the Captain, reaching for the telephone as the door slammed behind Mr. Browning, "What's the number of that Ward up at the hospital where they examine people to see if they are crazy?"

"I don't remember, Captain," I answered. "Did you want them to come and get some one?"

"No," said the Captain, as Goofy fished his hat and gloves out of my basket, "I want to go up there myself. I think I'm getting 'bughouse'." "Captain," says Goofy, "I'll be glad

"Captain," says Goofy, "I'll be glad to give you a lift in my motorcycle. It must be tough to feel uncertain like that. I don't have to worry that way myself," he added. "A board of officers examined me a few years ago and I've got a paper to show that I'm not crazy."

ANOTHER SCOTCH GOLF STORY

Duncan McCaul Mitchell tells of a friend encountering a Scotchman, just back from the Florida golf courses, struggling up Broadway dragging an alligator.

"What're you doing with the alligator?" he asked.

"The son of a gun has got my ball," replied the Scotchman.

Company "D"

Harry Larson, better known as "Wolf" Larson, is quietly at work making a name for himself at Fort Benning, Ga., where he is middleweight champion of the post. Larson is a cnampion of the post. Larson is a scrapper of repute, being former welterweight champion of the Second Corps Area. He is chief cook of Co. D. 29th Infantry, and a World war D, 29th Infantry, and a World war veteran, having a continuous record of service since 1917.

The autumn days are almost here and with them will come the usual array of broken noses and black eyes. You see the boxers will soon start training. "Wolf" Larson, middleweight and Oliver Green, welterweight, are "D" Company's entrants in the fall tournaments.

Atkinson says he sure is longing for June when he will return to Old Virginny. Cheer up, Tommy, only ten months and a butt.

Things look promising for this company to take the banner this year. The old boys are acting like natural shots. We won't say anymore until after the season though after the season though.

All the boys are getting the craze for semaphore signals. Of course they are obsolete in the army. Must be a bunch of future 'Gobs' in the company.

Most all of our recruits are firing with the last bunch. Perhaps that is why Cpl. Simpson doesn't fire with the first group.

Headquarters Co., 2nd Battalion.

Cpl. Sanders has transferred to 1st Battalion, Headquarters Company. We all regretted very much to see him leave the Company.

There is some doubt as to whether Pfc. Rigsby qualified, but just the same we have hopes.

Sgt. Kjelstrom, our all-post football and baseball star has returned to duty with the company after several months of professional baseball. It is predicted by the sages of the rifle range that the big Swede will make high shot in the company.

The company is now on the range. We have splendid instructors, so why should we not make a good average for the season? The preliminary training seems hard, but the real fun will come when we start firing for record. Sgt. Daniel seems to have found a

CANNONEERS OPEN IN ELEVEN FRAME WIN OVER 1ST BN

Gunners Lay Down Heavy Barrage To Beat Demonstrationists.

The gunners of the 83rd Field Artillery unlimbered their heavy pieces on Gowdy Field Monday and in their Gowdy Cup debut battered McGaha for a total of ten runs and fourteen safe smashes in eleven innings. Meanwhile the First Bats took advantage of Rathal's wildness and some loose fielding to chalk up nine markers on their side of the tally sheet. The gunner sharpshooters, Rathal and Smith, were rather stingy when it came to allow the sharpshooters are to allow sover in all but the former was generous to a fault in the matter of bases on balls, walking seven batters in six toiling innings. Smith palssed only one man during his five frame tour of duty, and was credited with the win ed with the win.

Clusters of three and four runs in the seventh and eighth stanzas gave the Artillerymen a two run lead, after the Doughboys had led the way from the second inning. A ninth inning rally netted the 1st Bats two and sent the teams struggling into extra innings. Each marked one in the tenth, but hits by Spivey and Rathal rang down the curtain in the lower half of the eleventh.

Errors were numerous and frequent. Allen's towering triple to center was the only extra baser of the game, altho Rathal's drive in the eleventh was a probable home run had not Spivey scored the winning run on the clout. 1st Bn. AB. R. H. PO. A. E.

DETACHMENT TEAM THROWS AWAY A WIN FOR TOLLE

Wee Grady Hurls Best Game of Year And Yet Loses, 2-1, in Ten Innings.

Wee Grady Tolle strolled nonchalantly out into the pitchers box Wednesday afternoon and began to breeze them past the Blue batters. In the first inpuny pop fly into left field that no-body could reach. Then mineteen suc-cessive would-be hitters went to the plate and returned to the bench without reaching first.

Meanwhile the Detachment batters were almost as helpless before the shoots of Leonard, Blue pitching ace. shoots of Leonard, Blue pitching ace. An error and successive bingles by Austin and Wee Grady himsefl gave the Green Hats a lone tally in the fifth. In the second a certain score was lost through stupid baserunning, and still another time the evil genius that has dogged the Detachment at every turn stepped in and prevented in every turn stepped in and prevented a run. This was when Ryan was hit by a batted ball for the third out with Morris racing for the plate.

With two out in the seventh Grady's succession of put outs was broken when Trotter booted a grounder. Holman and Tolle himself then turned in errors to jam the sacks, but the little fellow got out of the hole when Heckert tossed out the next Blue hitter. In the eighth Leonard crashed a screaming double to center, but perished on the paths. the paths.

Then the hearbreaking ninth. Driver, first up, was safe on Trotter's error. Haywood caught one to his liking and drove a terrific liner to center, but Chief Ryan, off with the crack of the bat, leaped high and speared the near home. bat, leaped high and speared the near homer. A wonderful catch. Austin let ione get away from him behind the plate and Driver took second. Harrison was easy, Holman to Morgan, but Driver reached the hot corner on the out. Dawson batted for McDuffie and drove a hot grounder straight at Trotter. The Detachment shortstop grabbed the ball, and with all the time in the world to get the runner at first in the world to get the runner at first In the world to get the runner at first for the final out threw crazily in the general direction of the eager Morgan. The big first sacker made a great effort to pull in the errant pill, but succeeded only in stopping it. Driver was over the plate and Tolle had lost a wall maritad shutout a well merited shutout.

In the tenth Powell's single and steal, and Leonard's second double rang down the curtain.

There ought to be a law against this sort of thing. Tolle allowed two hits and struck out thirteen men in nine innings, and still goes down in the book as the losing pitcher. There is no as the losing pitcher. justice.

Infantry School Detachment.

Infantry School Detachment.

During the past week we lost our quondam sheik, "Handsome" Harry Manning, 'artist, printer, and ladies' man. He stated that the land of sand, Texas, is superior to the Sunny South and playground of the south, "The Infantry School", and has departed for the Lone Star State. Good luck and wishes for a happy future, also assured that he will at one time or another return to the flock at Benning, other return to the flock at Benning, are our blessings to him. Also it is said that North Highlands will now be open to bidders due to the discharge of "Sheik" Charley Howard, well-known as the Post Exchange jack-of-all-trades, he having worked in nearly all departments of that activity. His intention is to proceed to the boom land, Florida.

As "Blue Bird" would say, "We wonder what incites 'Moon' Mullins to stay for the comedy after having seen it the first time?" "Why does he stand it the first time?" "Why does he stand in the lobby and display his handsome (?) mustache to the departing spectators?" Really, Moon, you know that superfluous hair on the upper lip is unbecoming and should be removed. Why not try "ZIP". That is guaranteed to remove all hair that is not wanted.

Speaking of the price of the Infantry School News, how does this strike you? NEWSPAPERS ONE DOLLAR APPECE. When Stephen J. Field land-APTECE. When Stephen J. Field landed in San Francisco, he had only ten dollars left in his pocket. Of this he paid $7 to carry his two trunks to an old adobe building on the west side of Portsmouth Square. The next morning his breakfast cost him two dollars, leaving him only one last solitary dollar. He had brought a bundle of newspapers with him from the East. These he gave to a fellow passenger to sell on shares. They brought a dollar sell on shares. They brought a dollar apiece and there were sixty-four of them, giving him $32 for his share. Gold was plentiful those days, but news was scarce, hence the price. (Short Stories.)

When this goes to press the second half of the Gowdy Cup series will be well on its way and disregarding all inside "dope" just watch our smoke.

ENGINEERS VICTORS IN OPENING GAME OF "B" CIRCUIT

Quartermasters Drop Hard Hitting Green Hats Put Up Worst Exhibition Game to Red Diamond Crew. Of the Year and Lose, 21-5.

It took a month to get a schedule. It took a month to get a schedule. The first game was postponed on account of lack of practice. The second game was stopped in the third inning by the weather gods. Finally the Class "B" loop succeeded in getting in a full game Wednesday. The 7th Engineers, arrayed in white uniforms with pretty red castles on the breasts thereof stepped out and grabbed off one from Sgt. Reynolds' service for the line gang. Sgt. Reynolds' service for the line gang. With all returns in the Bridgebuilders counted eleven times, while the Q. M.'s were counting eight.

Cameron whose lengthy form loomed up impressively on the mound for the Engineers, was wild and unsteady in the first four frames, during which the opposition gathered all its tallies. In the final three rounds the long boy breezed them by in great style. Two double plays aided in squelching hostile provingers. tile uprisings.

If Wilson, Q. M. twirler could have pitched only odd numbered innings, he would have had a shutout, as the Pontoniers drew goose eggs in stanzas one, three, five and seven. Three in the second, four in the fourth and another quartet in the sixth were enough.

Hankins was the leading hitter with three blows in five appearances. Sut-tles and Danielski, rival shortstoppers, handled themselves like real ballplayers, though each is charged with an

KELLY RETURNS TO FOLD AND 2ND BATS SMOTHER DETACHMENT

Maybe it was the heat. Maybe it was the return of Kjelstrom. Maybe it was something else. But whatever it was it was awful. The I. S. D. played the 2nd Battalion two innings of baseball Sunday and then took the rest of the afternoon off. In the fatal third, there afternoon off. In the fatal third, there were nine Kellys who went to the home plate ,bat in hand, reached first, touched second; paid their respects to third; and then dented the rubber with their spikes. All before a single solitary out was recorded on the scoreboard. Evidently the Detachment didn't believe in discrimination and therefore allowed every opponent to score. Thereafter there was nothing left for the spectators except to sit and watch the slaughter or seek refuge elsewhere. elsewhere.

Four alleged pitchers chunked for the I. S. D. and issued a total of thirteen bases on balls, two hit batsmen, and sixteen safe hits. Combined with eight errors by the Green Hatted fieldhave nothing but a glove and a prayer.

Kelly, returning from the wilds of Albany, made eight putouts in left field, and was credited by a lenient scorer with two gift hits. F. E. Davis snared six flies in the pasture for the Detachment and contributed the only fielding feature of the day's nightmare with a startling one hand grab of Parwith a startling one hand grab of Parris' loft in the fourth.

NEW TANK HURLER HOLDS REDS WELL BUT ERRORS LOSE

Harris Makes Fine Showing In Initial Mound Appearance.

Slim Harris pitched his first game for the Tankers Tuesday afternoon, facing the murderous bats of the cham-pion Reds, and when the game was over pion Reds, and when the game was over it was found that the batting averages of the West Enders had suffered a severe shrinkage. Slim teased them with tantalizing twisters varied occasionally with a fast one. The Reds scored three unearned runs and collected five safe blows, no two of which seems in the same inning. With percame in the same inning. With perfect support the tail Tanker would have had a shutout. Against the three Red tallies Major Miller's pets could collect only two, one of them earned, and so another game went down in the Red win column. All honor to Harris for the fine game he pitched.

Reds scored one in the lower half of the first. Battles singled sharply over second and reached that sack on Bell's sacrifice. Meehan threw wildly attempting to catch the West End third baseman off the middle bag, and the Red leadoff man rushed to third. Meehan threw out King, but Battles scored during the demise.

Tanks tied in the second. With one Tanks tied in the second. With one away Hedgecock walked and went to second while King was tossing out Hanson. Vance tried several times to nip him off the keystone sack and finally hurled the pill all the way to ers, this netted the Doughboys twentyone runs. Meanwhile Captain Back's Hopelesses succeeded in making five runs and five hits off Harkey, who let up behind a huge lead and seemed to have pething by a glove and a rever one to center for three sacks. He held third as McCrary was safe at first on Hanson's muff of W. Smith's peg. A fast double play, Sweeney to Meehan to Hanson, eliminated McCrary and Perkins, with Inglemon still held at the hot corner. Sweeney grabbel Sloan Williams' grounder, but handed most the hot corner. Sweeney grabbel Sloan Williams' grounder, but hurled past Hanson, Inglemon scoring.

Fighting back, the Tankers earned one in the fourth. Hedgecock took one of Vance's fast ones in the ribs and strolled. This with one out. He take ground as House found. stole second as Hanson fanned. Rogers slapped one just inside the first sack, Hedgecock scoring on the blow.

The winning marker came in the and took second on a passed ball. Bell hoisted high to right and Hedgecock got squarely under it, but muffed the ball and Battles raced home with the winning score.

PREPARING TO START NEW ATHLETIC YEAR WITH GOOD PROSPECT

Twenty-Fourth Infantry Subscribes 100% to Athletic Association

September first marks the opening of the new athletic year at the Infantry School when Athletic Association tickets are to be renewed.

For an individual donation of a day's pay, computed on base pay without including allowances, members of the command receive a membership card entitling them to admission to athletic events at the Infantry School without charge. On this card members of the family, or a lady guest, are admitted with the ticket holder without extra charge.

It is not exactly a day's pay, because there is a minimum of two dollars. And the two dollars covers sports, expect boxing for which there are mainy special provisions, which run up in admission value in ordinary circles far above what is actually contributed. Collections may be made in one, two or three installments on pay day collection sheets.

In the 24th Infantry, the company commanders have given the initial drive for membership an enthusiastic support and the regiment has one hundred per cent membership. In the 29th Infantry, some of the companies have already turned in information indicating 100% support. Officers are said to be keenly appreciative of the value of the sports on Gowdy Field and the Doughboy gridiron as recreational factors for their commands, and as offering opportunities for the development of athletic ability in this garrison. They are presenting the advantages of the membership card system, as opposed to the ticket sale system, to their commands in thorough fashion.

GIRL SWIMMERS AGAIN COMPETE WITH COLUMBUS

For Second Time Divide Events, Win 200 and Breast Stroke and Lose Relay

Grace and speed combined to make attractive the pool of the Columbus Country Club last Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Miller's girl swimmers of the garrison engaged in a return meet with the downtown mermaids.

In the 200-yd Free style event, three paddlers went out in front after the first length and the race was between them with the others hopelessly in the rear. Showing the effects of constant practice and good instruction in negociating the turns, Miss Becky Hill of the fort was winner by a good ten feet over Miss Cynthia Chappel, new entrant from the Columbus group with a well coordinated stroke though somewhat lacking in power. The time was five seconds faster than that made a fortnight previously by "Meg" Williams who finished a close third.

Close and furious was the breast stroke with all contestants bunched, but Miss Martha Bowen, ardent fan for Second Battalion teams, clipped out in front for Benning's second win of the afternoon.

Summary

40-yd. Free Style—Won by Miss Mabel Shepherd (Columbus): 2rd, Miss Ellen Shepherd (C.); 3rd, Miss Margerite Williams (Inf. Sch.). Time: 31 seconds.

25-yd. Breast Stroke—Won by Miss Martha Bowen (Inf. Sch.); 2nd, Miss Mary Morris (C.); 3rd, Miss Mary Flournoy (C.). Time: 23 3-5 seconds.

200-yd. Free Style—Won by Miss Becky Hill (Inf. Sch.); 2nd, Miss Cynthia Chappell (C.); 3rd, Miss Margerite Williams (Inf. Sch.). Time: 3 minutes, 49 seconds.

25-yd. Back Stroke — Won by Miss Eleanor Garrard (C.): 2nd. Miss Mabel Shepherd (C.); 3rd, Miss Martha Bowen (Inf. Sch.).

Relay—Won by Columbus Country Club (Miss Mabel Shepherd, Miss Ellen Shepherd, Miss Ellen Shepherd, Miss Mary Morris, Miss Eleanor (Garrard); 2nd, Infantry School (Miss Margerite Williams, Miss Becky Hill, Mrs. T. Clagett Wood, Miss Marie Russ).

BIG LEAGUE STUFF FOR GOWDY FIELD BASEBALL GAMES

Divide Gong to Sound for Practice Breast Sessions, and Official Ground Rules to Be Enforced

No more will managers and captains wrangle about the length of pre-game practice sessions on Gowdy Field. A recently issued memorandum from the Athletic Association divides the hour before starting time into definite periods for batting and fielding practice. The first twenty minutes is given to the home team for batting practice and then the visitors may slug the sphere for an equal period. Then each team has ten minutes in which to have fielding practice. A gong now announces the termination of each period.

A second memorandum eliminates all specially agreed ground rules. Gowdy Field fulfills all conditions of a regulation baseball field except that the home base is not 90 feet from the grand stand, and even this contingency is provided for in the official code of the game. In the future only those rules provided by the official rules will be enforced by the umpires. Rules 1, 14, 54 and 72 cover the question fully.

Back in 1920, among the student originals, there came to Benning Captain Manton S. Eddy. From 1921 onwards he was test officer in the Department of Experiment and found time to do splendid service for the Charles S. Harrison Post of the American Legion. Then he left these environs and went with the R. O. T. C. at Riverside Military Acadmy, Gainesville, Georgia.

FIGHT REVIVAL ON GOWDY FIELD HAS NO DRAWN BATTLES

Two Knockouts and Three Decisions Feature Fine Card for Lovers of Swat.

Colonel Johnson climbed through the ropes of the big ring pitched between the home plate and concrete stands on Gowdy Field and spoke briefly of the conduct and ethics of army boxing. Then Lieutenant W. E. Carraway, announcer, pried off the lid of Monday night's big boxing revival and its many hectic rounds of action. Unlike Chesterfields they were not mild, but, like the famous cigarette, they satisfied.

Four fights were slated for decision, and five were decided. Mickey Kendricks of Columbus took the verdict in the main battle from Red Keenan. Danny Davis, Co. E, 29th Infantry, rocked Kid Cucchi Service Co, to sleep in the fourth of their scheduled eight stanzas. Chief Otalvaro, late of Panama and now of Southwest Georgia, scored a close six frame win over Patsy Paccioni, slugging M. P., Sloan Williams solved the peculiar sidewise crouch and crablike shuffle of Talladega Goodwin well enough to have his hand raised at the conclusion of four almost inactive sessions. And in the four round "no decission" exhibition bout between Dick White, downtown idol, and "Wolf" Larson, 29th middleweight, the Columbus favorite smacked the soldier so often that in spite of evidently pulling his punches, the former schoolboy sent Larson down for the count in the third act.

To vary the program Licut. Budweiser Cornog and Lieut. Escuiline Griffith put on an exhibition of the grappling game These two former West Point wrestling champions gave the crowd ten minutes of fine action. There were no

If you try to get some castor oil with-

Hard Work Brings Reward.

Notwithstanding the inadequacy the implements furnished him and the uncertainties of the labor assistance. Sgt. Sandy Campbell, Co. "C", made an attempt. His efforts were crowned with success. Hard work triumphed. The regimental garden yielded to his magic touch and sound common sense.

magic touch and sound common sense.

Sgt. Campbell was detailed to start and run the regimental garden. The job looked like a difficult one, for almost everything was against him, the time, weather and site. However, as the season advanced, results in the form of garden delicacies and staple vegetables made their appearance. The vegetables made their appearance. The messes, the married soldiers were flooded with string beans, turnips, radishes, corn, cucumbers, onions, peas, cabbage, water melon and cantaloupe. Tender tomato plants responded to the careful and diligent supervision of Sgt. Campbell and his "soldier farmers". Load after load of splendid beef-steak tomatoes found their way to the messes, and were enjoyed by the slum divers.

regimental commander somewhat skeptical as to the possible outcome of the venture until the steady stream of vegetables began to make their appearance. At once, Colonel Johnson, realizing that Sgt. Campbell's hard work had been the underlying factor of the garden's success, wrote Sgt. Campbell a letter of commenda tion. The letter was published to the members of the command as an inspiration for those who undertake difficult tasks.

"I appreciate the fine work done by you in making the regimental garden the success that it has been," said the Colonel. "I have been mindful of the late start. On virgin ground with inadequate implements and uncertain labor assistance, you have produced a garden of which any regiment might be proud. Such results could only have been attained by close application to duty, careful attention to details, un-flagging zeal, constant supervision and sound common sense. I am much pleased with the benefits that have accrued to the regiment thru your efforts, and commend you heartily.'

Rifle-men Finish;

Machine Gunners Begin The rifle season as far as the 24th

Infantry is concerned is now a thing of the past. Major Power, who has been in charge of the firing, is well pleased with the results obtained. Though the exact and official number of experts and the total qualified is not yet available, it will surely mount higher than last year.

Bright and early Wednesday morning the machine gunners took to the field and began their target season with a vengeance. They all seemed extremely confident that they are going to hang up a record for the course.

Regiment Takes To Water

Every day the various companies, according to the schedule journey down to the regimental pool and undergo swimming instruction and swimming tests. So far, it is believed that well over half the regiment has qualified in the distance and weight carrying requirements. Owing to the lack of requirements. Owing to the lack of sufficient water supply the pool has not refilled as rapidly as desired, affor the present, the swimmers must content themselves with anticipation.

MAGONI'S JAZZ
BABIES GASSED
BY C. W. S. MEN

18 to 1 Is Final Count of Five Inning Merry-Go-Round.

Jazz Magoni was the whole show Wednesday afternoon in the Class "B" game. The irrepressible coached his "Babies" vigorously and vociferously. He argued with the umpire and won a decision in one of his debates. In the third inning he went out and played shortstop. At the end of the third his fielding average was 333. The fourth frame brought him more chances and his improvement was remarkable. He raised his average to 400. To mark the end of a perfect day the King of Jazz strode to the plate in the fifth and crossed up the opposing team by dragging a beautiful bunt toward short. Down to first he went like Charley Paddock, and beat Peters throw by a large margin. A hit and a batting average of 1.000. On the first pitched ball he dashed for second, reaching the midway sack in safety and continued his wild career toward third when Hlambys throw was wide. Safe again, but utterly exhausted. At this point he called his managerial strategy into play and substituted a fresh man for himself. The sub crossed the plate a moment later with the I. S. D.'s only tally.

Meanwhile the Gas Bums were engaging in the free and unlimited coinage of runs, scoring 18 in four innings. The game was shortened to five innings on account of exhaustion.

RED DIAMONDS CONTINUE THE WINNING HABIT

Seventh Engineers Best Service Company in Tuesday Contest.

After a disastrous first inning, the Class "B" teams settled down to fast and furious baseball Tuesday afternoon in the first game of a double leader but the pontoniers got the best start and won out, 7-3. Four fatal errors by mule skinners in the initial frame, a base on balls to Pat Mallory, and hits by Kingsbury and Culbreth, spelled four runs, and the wagon soldiers never caught up. It was an active game with some snappy playing, a nice one handed running catch by Lotz at short for the Service Company, peppy performing by Grove behind the bat for the Engineers, good long hits by Silvers and Wilson, fine port-sided twirling by Trotter and Wilson, and several good pegs to the plate to check off scores.

"FOLLOW ME"

While attention has been centered largely on the sluggers and the list of .300 hitters in the Gowdy Cup league, the moundsmen are now coming into their own.

For instance, Vance of the Reds between July 27th and August 1st pitched three full games and allowed the amazingly small total of three runs and ten hits. He shut out the 1st Battalion with two safe blows, turned back the Tanks with two runs and three hits, and yielded one run and five bingles to the Artillery. On August 3rd he twirled seven and twothirds innings, as relief pitcher against the I. S. D. and permitted only four hits and no runs.

Consider the case of Mays of the First Battalion. This really fine hurler stopped out Friday and held the slugging Reds to one earned run, and lost 4 to 0. Sunday he again adorned the center of the diamond with the Tankers as his opponents, and was even better than two days before. Not a tally was marked on the scoreboard that could be charged as earned, although the final score was 4 to 0. against his team. We doubt not that on his next appearance Mays will be just as good. Such fine work in the face of discouraging conditions and with no success other than the consciousness of work well done is deserving of the highest commendation.

Again: Slim Harris, elongated Tank tosser, has pitched eighteen innings without allowing an earned run. He lost to the Reds 3 to 2, but all the West End runs were the result of errors by his teammates. Then he shut out the 1st Battalion, giving up only three safeties.

Besides these recall the wonderful pitchers' battle between Wee Grady Tolle of the I. S. D. and Leonard of the Blues.

All in all, this is the pitchers' inning and they are making good with vengeance

The third session found both tiring under the terrific pace and though the spirit was willing the action was of the Slow Motion rariety. The end came midway in the fourth. Cucchi, kept on his feet after the first round only by his indomitable courage, finally proved unable to stand the pace and on the second knockdown of the session, he stayed down. Davis showed himself a fine two fisted fighter of the kind fans rave over, while Cucchi's courage won the hearts of the crowd. Both men were loudly cheered on leaving ring. ## GARRISON GOLFERS SCORE IN COLUMBUS TOURNEY

Benning golfers did well in the recent Columbus Club golf tourney.
Playing in a field that included many of the best golfers from Georgia and Alabama a number of Benning officers went to the final rounds in their flights. In the second flight Captain John S. Moore lost out to J. M. G. Parker in the final round, 3 and 1. In consolation round of the same flight Captain Parker was victorious in the final round, defeating Gene Smith, 2-1. In flight three, Lieutenant Darr went to the last round in the consolations going down before Jimmy Wil-liams of Atlanta, 4-3. In the fourth flight Colonel Warfield made a hard fight of it, losing to Gene Cook, Georgia champion, in the first round by a very small margin, and succumbing to Harris Jones in the consolation finals, 2 and 1. In the fifth flight Major Garrison defeated Captain Peabody in the finals, 2-1

In connection with our announce-ment last week relative to news con-cerning Cpl. Glass' Aces, the second we are regretful to inform you that on account of pay it was next to impossible to interview these pedigreed Gas Bums. Therefore we are compelled to postpone the matter until next week.

We are now on the verge of losing one of the most popular and highly esteemed "high privates" in the company.

"Skeeter" Simmons, the boy from the hick town where the woodpeckers ate up the depot does not in the least look the part you would expect. 'Skeeter' the part you would expect. is a live wire, an interesting loud-talker, and one of the most enthusiastic Company "F" First Gas Regiment boosters imaginable. Here's hoping him the best of luck and may he ever

"DARK LAUGHTER"

Private Sambo Washington Jones was one awful bum shot. Three times he had been on the firing line and thirty times the sweating "butt detail" had waved the red flag at him. Finally his company commander, tired beyond endurance, resolved to resort to desperate measures.

"Cease firing on all targets, but Num-cease firing on an targets, but Number 13", he commanded.

"Now Sambo" he stated very sternly,"
I am going to give you five more shots, and if you don't hit that target in those and if you don't hit that target in those fve shots I am ging to chase you out in front of the firing line and let the company throw rocks at you."

Sambo was sure scared. The Captain had always been a man of his word and there was no way for poor Sam to be sure if, he was fooling this time or not. With fear in his heart he laid himself down on the 200 yard firing point and aimed desperately at the target.

Bang!-the trusty old Springfield woke the echoes of the target range; but the target never moved. "Mark 13!" yelled target never moved. "Mark 13!" yelled the Captain usual Sambo got a red flag.

Four times in all Sambo fired and called for a mark. Four times the hateful red flag floated before the target. With a hand that trembled poor Sambo grasped his rifle for the fifth and last shot.

Bank!!—the old gun spoke again and still the target did not move. The Captain gave Sambo a terrbile look. "Mark 13!" he yelled.

As the target slipped behind the butts one of Sambo's colored brethern on the pit detail decided to peep over the parapet and learn who this awful shot might be, that was firing on his target.

Just as the target rose above the para-pet for the fifth and last time the dusky head of the colored soldier peeped over right in front of it.

Sambo almost fainted with joy. "Looky, Captain!" he cried, "A low duce! It's a low deuce!

But when the last Great Scorer Starts to check up how you've been He'll care not how you "called your shots' But how you "squeezed them in".

VANCE RESCUES MATES AND REDS WIN AS USUAL

I. S. D. Knocks Out Two Twirlers, But Leonard Holds Down Caisson Riders, West End Star Stops Attack. While Mates Pound Rathal Hard.

If Vance ever breaks a leg or goes over the hill or happens to some other kind of accident, the Reds may lose a ball game, but until that day comes the West Enders will probably continue to ride roughshod ver the other garrison teams. To sup-ort this thesis just consider Tuesday's game. Facing the I. S. D. less than two innings, during which time the Detachment gang scored 4 runs one Robinson was then rushed in from left field to aid his faltering comrade. This failed to restore the situation. The new twirler pitched to three batters. Two of them hit safely and the other drew a walk, from which outbreak two more runners sauntered leisurely home. Then Vance went out there. Did the I. S. D. score again? They did not.

Grady Tolle was not his usual self on the mound. The Reds faced his offerings for eleven hits, and the wee one walked five and hit four. #### BLUES HIT HARD AND EASILY WIN OVER ARTILLERY

Blues from the 24th swamped the guners of the 83rd Tuesday afternoon in an agreed seven inning encounter. The West Enders emerged from a batting slump and hammered the delivery of Rathal high, wide and handsome. Also far and frequently. Five hits in the very first frame yielded a harvest of four runs, and four drives in the sixth, including two tremendous triples, accounted for three In between times an extra tally and three bingles were collected.

The losers couldn't hit consecutively They got men on bases, but failed in the pinches, Leonard usually getting out of the tight places by the very effective means of fanning the opposing batters. A wild throw by Driver in the second presented the artillerymen with their only

KELLY'S DEFEAT 1ST BATTALION AND PUSH REDS

2nd Bats Retain Clean Record for 2nd Half By Beating McGaha.

The Kelly's are coming. Wednesday they won their second game in two starts in the second half of the Gowdy starts in the second half of the Gowdy Cup circuit, and are right on the heels of the flying Reds. McGaha and his mates from the 1st Battalion were the victims of the 2nd Battalion attack. The 1st Batts outfit their regimental companions 9 to 6, but scored only 3 runs against 5 for the Kels.

The game was without special feature. Carnes and McGaha both pitched reasonably good ball and were sup-reasonably good ball and were sup-ported as well as usual. The Kelly's should have scored more runs, but threw away excellent chances in the first two innings by dumb baserunning and inability to bunt. Allen of the 1st Bats was the leading hitter with three blows in four trips to the plate. Kjelstrom came through with a smashing triple just inside of the first sack.

Perkins and Sellers were the opposing twirlers and the boy from the Red Diamonds had all the best of it. The lanky lad limited the Gassers to three bingles, none of which went to the outfield, struck out ten and was master of the situation at every stage.

Danielski walked four times in four trips to the plate. Brock and McCarty smacked tremendous triples, and Kings-bury connected for a two sacker. Alfield Peters played well at short for the C. W. S. boys.

SLIM HARRIS HURLS SHUTOUT BALL WITH 1ST BN. HIS VICTIM

Tall Tank Twirler Treats Demonstra-tion Doughboys to Whitewash Bath.

A lean lengthy soldier went out into the middle of the grass infield on Gowdy Field Sunday when the Terrible Tankers Field Sunday when the Terrible Tankers took the field, and began tossing up seeming "cripples" to the batters. "Easy for us", said his opponents, but when Slim Harris strolled off at the end of nine innings the scoreboard out in left center showed a succession of nine goose eggs after the big card reading "1st Bn, 29th. Inf.", and the storekeepers found that only three dots were recorded all the way down the "H" column on the Doughboy" side of the book.

Meanwhile the Tankers were finding plenty of trouble in locating Mays, but with the help of some sloppy fielding and occasional lapses in control by the 1st Bat hurler, the caterpillar boys contrived to put together four runs—three more than put together four runs—three more than were absolutely necessary, but welcome none the less.

Whether or not Jimmy Meehan's series of joint debates with "His Umps", affected the result, is unknown, though the affirmative, upheld by "Jazz" Magoni won every argument.

VANCE WHITEWASHES 1ST BATTALION STRIKING OUT TEN

Mays Hurls Well For Demonstration ists, But Mates Err in Field.

Pitchers in the Gowdy Cup series are at least cutting down the huge batting averages of the Reds, but the West Enders continue to wni with unchanging regularity. Mays of the first Battalion gularity. Mays of the first Battalion took the hill against the leaders Friday and pitched remarkably well, holding the heavy hitters to seven swats But good as he was, Vance was better. He set the Demonstration Doughboys down with two hits, fanned ten, and prevented any hostile runs. The Reds made only one earned tally, but a couple of dismal muffs in left field presented the West End gang with another trio.

No scoring until the sixth. S. Williams truck out. Vance beat out a hit to short struck out. and was forced at second by Battles. McCrary singled sharply to center. King hoisted high to left, and Azbill camped under it, but allowed the ball to get away Everybody, including King, hurried home when the 1st Bats slung the retrieved sphere hither and yon—mostly yon. Vance's line double to left and Battles' single scored the only other run of the game in the eighth.

Lindsey Leads Mates to Win in Game Stopped By Rain.

The Tankers almost failed to win from the ill-fated Infantry School Detachment team last Saturday, but it wasn't the strength of the Green Hats that stood in the way. Storm clouds were gathering as the contest started and just after Captain Back's crew had completed their fifth turn at bat, the rain came down in forming at second and short before stepping into the box, and performing well. Box score:

VANCE SPIKES GUNS OF ARTILLERY CREW AND REDS TRIUMPH

Cannoneers Unable to Get Range of Vance's Shoots and Lose, 7-1.

Too much Vance. That's the whole story of Sunday's game between the Reds and the gunners from the 83rd. The West End twirler baffled the heavy hitters of artillery at every stage of the game and artilery at every stage of the game and aided by good fielding and batting support from his mates breezed through to a 7 to 1 decision. Three runs in the first inning, the result of two walks and some terrible outfielding, settled the result. The cassion riders escaped the whitewash bases have in the cight by some dering base. brush in the eighth by some daring base-running by Spivey who, after beating out a hit to short, stole second and third, and came home on a double steal on which Reed took second.

In addition to saving his team from a shutout, Spivey committed bareface robbery afield. His leaping grab of McCrary's looper in the fourth was a sparkling gem Reddick handled seven assists at third without sign of miscue. The Reds turned in two double plays to add to the afternoon's entertainment.

The artillery catchers, pitchers and right fielders played "you chase me and I'll chase you" all through the game, changing positions so frequently that the scorekeepers grew dizzy.

fifth turn at bat, the rain came down in torrents, putting a stop to further hostilities. The score was 6 to 2 at the time with Major Miller's pets, Red Lindsey slinging, on the half dozen end. After a short wait it became apparent that the only thing that could be held on Gowdy Field was a yacht race, and so all hands adjourned to do bunk fatigue.

Bennett, who started on the mound for the Green Hats, was wild and ineffective, and had to be rescued by Tolle in the fourth. Grady stopped further liberties by the Tankers. ## NEW POSTAL BOXES ARE BEING SET UP AROUND GARRISON ### to be Instituted Within a Few Weeks at Markers

Don't let your wife put her letters on top of those little white pegs which have just been driven, even though they e marked in clear black letters "U.S. MAIL?

Just prior to departing on leave for liami, Captain George Kraul went around the garrison and drove about a score of these pegs, to indicate the spots where there will be set up a series of postal department letter box-es. Twenty of them were requested, and twenty will arrive. All in all, there will be twenty-three places about the fort where mail may be dropped by the ready letter writers and regular ly collected.

It was one afternoon last June, when the half-day schedule wals in effect. General Collins walked out of his office and inquired for a mail box in headquarters. There was none. Soon a neat cabinet-built mail box was in-Almost as soon the movement was under way to get boxes for other parts of the garrison, and to obviate the necessity of marching through dust or mud to drop letters in the post of

These boxes are installed primarily for the convenience of married men and their families, and are not intended at all to eliminate the mail boxes already in operation in orderly They will be erected at places centrally located for the various groups of quarters, as follows:

In Block 18, near quarters No. 32.
On First Division Road, near Skin-

TWENTY-NINTH SONGS ARRIVE AT REGIMENT TEN THOUSAND STRONG

Convenient Collection of Mail Ten Thousand Sheets of Words and Music Ready for Distribution

It was a big shipment, and thumped tremendously on the floor of the express delivery wagons and the boards of the railway depot. It cost thirty dollars for shipping charges alone.

It was ten thousand sheets of music, the songs of the Twenty-Ninth Infantry, the hymn and the marching song, well and properly printed at great expense to give copies of words and music to every man and officer of the regiment.

No more will mere mimeographed aper with bars and hazy notes have to be depended upon when the musicians of the Lead the Way Demonstration Doughboys wish to break into song.

In preparing these copies, with an exceptionally attractive decorative cover, the guiding hands of the regiment have done a splendid and convenient thing.

Active Duty Assignments Bring New Officers for Fifteen Days.

May it was announced that a certain number of reserve officers had been assigned to the now inactive third been assigned to the now inactive third battalion of the 29th Infantry, and attached for training liaison to the active battalions. Two of these officers, are now in the garrison taking active duty training with the Demonstration Doughboys. 1st Lt. Clinton Chester Jordan, of Tiuka, Mississippi, and Captain George Herbert Thursh. Jr., of 635 St. Charles Street, New Orleans. La. Jr., of 635 Orleans, La.

Captain Thrush has spent practically all of his military service in the reserve, but has been on active duty twice before. In 1924 he served at Camp Meade, Maryland, with Company "D", 34th Infantry, and last year he specialized in staff work with the 326 Infantry at Camp McClellan, Alabama.

These two officers go through a systematic training schedule with the Lead-the-Way regiment, spending successive days with various headquarters and with rifle, machine gun, howitzed, and service companies. At the end of their course, they will have been thoroughly oriented in the modern functioning of the crack regiment and familiar with its high standards of performance.

Old Flags On Display.

Old national and regimental colors of the days gone by have been placed on display in the Service Club of the 24th Infantry. These flags have recently been returned from Philadelphia where they have been renovated by an expert whose mother had the honor of restoring and preserving the original Betsy Ross American flag. These col-ors of the 24th Infantry date back to the year following the organization of the regiment in 1870, it is understood.

MASONIC CONVENTION ENTERTAINED AT FORT BY LEAD-THE-WAYERS

Demonstration Doughboys Play Host To Visiting Delegates of District.

Members of the Fourth Georgia District of the Masonic order enjoyed a military luncheon, Aug. 5, 1926, in the Twenty-third Infantry woods at Fort Benning, Ga., under the auspices of the Howitzer Company, 29th Infantry. Interesting exhibits were set up attractively consisting of Chemical Warfare weapons tables 75 mm guns sign fare weapons, tanks, 75 mm. guns, signal aparatus, rifle, machine gun, auto rifle, 3 inch mortar, 37 mm. gun, pistel and other equipment furnished by the 29th Infantry and other outfits on the post.

Twenty-ninth Infantry Band played a program of five numbers after the lunch which included roast beef, brown gravy, mashed potatoes, corn on cob, sliced tomatoes, bread, butter, water melon and lemonade.

INCOMING STUDENTS WILL ALL BE GREETED BY RECEPTION GROUP

Special Committee Formed to Orient and Assist Garrison Arrivals in September

Arrangements for the reception of incoming students for the winter session of the Infantry School have been practically completed. Collaborating with the Camp Activities Committee of the city of Columbus and with Mr. J. Ralston Cargill of the Chamber of Commerce, garrison headquarters has proceeded far on the road toward getting students settled.

Through the courtesy of the management of the Ralston Hotel, a committee consisting of Captain Paul E. Leiber, Captain John E. Dahlquist, Lieutenant Joseph A. Nichols, Lieutenant James L. Bolt and Lieutenant Emmett Emanuel will have its headquarters in the lobby of that hostelry and, aided by a group of enlisted men, will assist in-coming students in caring for families, baggage, household goods, home hunting and general settling.

Unlike previous years, war department orders have directed all students to report for duty the same day—September 6, 1926. This will cause a great major-ity to arrive at Columbus between September 3 and 6. The plans of the reception committee contemplate that all incoming officers be met at the railway station or at the Ralston hotel by comstation or at the Raiston noter by committee members who will provide each officer with a list of living quarters available for rent; accompanying him on a tour of inspection of, and advise and assist him in choosing quarters; arrange for moving his househ ld effects and baggage to the quarters selected, furnish him with information relative to the hotel, restaurant and shopping fa-cilities in Columbus and the various activities whose services he will require at Fort Benning, and serve as information bureau to assist in establishing him com-fortably prior to the opening of the school year.

Lists of suitable quarters downtown are being prepared and classified in ac-cordance with results of inspections, convenience, and rental costs. of Columbus are having impressed upon them the fact that rental allowances allowances this year will average far lower than heretofore, on account of the smaller proportion of field officers and the far greater number of lieutenants.

The Infantry school has now been in existence for seven years and numbers among its graduates nearly all infantry officers of the higher grades. In consequence the courses have been rearranged and this year and the following will see increasing numbers of junior cap-

Company "D", 29th Infantry.

If you want a cook, get someone who knows squabs. So when "D" Company began looking for a slum mixer, they picked a man who was specially skilled in pigeon work in the Signal Corps.

If you want a king of the kitchen to handle the K. P.'s, get a doughboy who can handle them as it should be done. So the First Battalion machine gunners picked the former welter, weight belt holder of the Second Corps Area, who kept up his skill with the mits so that he took the middleweight title of the 29th Infantry last winter.

"Wolf" Larson is now thirty years of age and getting along in years for active ring work as soldiers must do it, in addition to their other duties. But he is not through with the ring entirely, for as instructor in boxing for the First Battalion team he showed such skill in developing yougsters that he plans to manage fighters rather than to fight himself. The man who fought Jack Kiernan, Jack Allen and Eddie Burnbrook, welterweight champion of the army, knows the ring game well enough to be as good a boxing manager as he was a signal communications specialist when he got through the Camp Vail school.

Two of the fistic aspirants who want this Windy City man from the Sam Mandell part of the country for a pilot are Oliver Green, of Huntsville, Ala, and the Enlisted Brotherhood, and Albert Easler of Pittsburgh, Pa., and the First Bat's baseball nine. Brother of "Sailor" Larson of the Navy fistic circles who conquered Joe Mandell, brother of Sam, our fellow Benningite, is ready to do piloting and training de luxe. In addition to his experiences at Vail,

In addition to his experiences at Vail, when Larson came to Benning in September, he had been in the army since 1917, when he enlisted in Chicago. He toured the world, visiting Jefferson Barracks, Fort Bliss, Liverpool, Le Havre, Dijon, Chaumont, Verdun, Chateau Thierry, and Paris before the war was over. Then he went to Coblenz with his truck train in the American Forces in Germany, and came back to the States to get his discharge at Camp Grant. Less than a year from August 5, 1919, when he got into civics, he was back in uniform, and has done some back in uniform, and has done some tine soldiering since, at Vail and Ben-

That old saying "Birds of a Feather Flock Together" seems to have been made for the C W. S. and especially for "F" Company. Its chosen few members (52 to be exact) are 100 per cent Gas Bums and proud of it.

What has this to do with our Baseball Team? Easy enough . . . the ability and will to root for our gang is thus planted deeply in each playres soul and we're almost bound to win the game.

A short while ago we singled out the I. S. D. 18 to 1, merely as a starter. But of course even Gas Bums are not perfect. Our recent fall before the Howitzer crew of the two nine army did not dishearten us in the least. Altho it proved costly there is still hope that the Gas Bums will have their big day and thus rest on top of the Class "B" League.

And as the crucial moment approach es for us to take on the Bridge Builders again, we are preparing for our best bet of the season—and everybody's "disposition" is beginning to impriove. Pvt. Richardson, our famed Sherlock sleuth has discovered the cause for our large percentage of re-enlist-ments. The "Lead-the-Way" Regiment has nothing on us, and while other branches of the service are going over the hill we are remaining on the crest. As Richardson reveals the mystery to us, this fact is undoubtedly based on the direct effect which the C. W. S. hat cords and insignia produce on the women folk for they go wild over them and have often been heard to exclaim, "Aren't they just simply won-der-ful?"

Infantry School Detachment.

Due to the fact that there are few notes of interest to write this week. J.P.W desires only to introduce to the members of the garrison, Ernest L. Norwood. To become acquainted with him it is necessary for one to amble down to the I. S. D. area and you may hear him agonizing his fellowmen with weird wails from his new guitar and harmonica. He claims he is pretty good. We leave it to those who care to hear him.

During the past week a number of men have been sewing their narrow gauge railroads on the sleeves of their shirts. They are "The In and Out Kid," John C. Ryan, Reginald W. "Moon" Mullins, who, some time ago, was requested in these pages to remove his moustache "Slats" Harden move his moustache, "Slats" Harden, Russell Beck, Leo K. Damewood, James D Capley, and "Scotty". These are well earned promotions and the good wishes of the outfit go to these men, with the hope that they may get the third rail.

Where is it, There is a stick with the legend "U. S. MAIL" stuck in the ground in front of our mess hall, but to date there has been discovered not one letter. What's the joke?

The old army! Next week will be the most appropriate time to discuss and debate the question, "Was the old army better than the present?" Undoubtedly the majority have the common sense to agree that it was not.

"FOLLOW ME"

Fort Benning's Howitzer Company in the 29th Infantry, the crack trench mortar and one pounder demonstration unit of the Infantry School, has earned the enviable distinction of being complimented by the Editor of the Infantry Journal for the thoroughness in which its commander, Captain A. D. Bruce, has organized swimming instruction. Not content with having qualified one hundred per cent. of the personnel of the only war strength howitzer company in the United States Army in marksmanship with the weapons of his unit, Captain Bruce determined to qualify one hundred per cent. in swimming, passing the tests required by his regiment and camp headquarters.

The Infantry Journal says in its current issue:

"The Howitzer Company of the 29th Infantry has organized swimming instruction for its members in a thorough and efficient manner that might well serve as a model for other organizations. The commanding officer, Captain A D. Bruce, believes that swimming, aside from being a recreation and athletic diversion in hot weather, is a military attribute of value in securing mobility in the face of minor water obstacles, and safety of effectives in pontoon bridge building and crossing. Consequently he commenced about June first a strenuous swimming instruction schedule for his company in order to qualify one hundred per cent.

"To stimulate increased interest in aquatics, there are being held a series of company swimming meets, with events for all degrees of ability. For the beginners who cannot swim at all there are two events, the best position test and the jelly-fish float, preliminary steps in the system of instruction. There is a plunge for distance off a dock, and it was a fine tribute to the success of the instruction and the interest aroused, that the winner of this event, with a plunge of 29 feet and 4 inches, was a beginner who could not swim a stroke."

"FOLLOW ME"

When you are right you are wrong. That is you are wrong if you happen to be walking on the right side of the road. Whether it is the concrete road from here to town, or one of the dirt roads of the reservation which we have to use for sidewalks, the proper procedure is to walk on the left of the road.

Walk against the oncoming stream of traffic

You will then be facing the cars that might strike you. The car will come head on towards you and you will see it in time to get safely off the road. And if it is at night that you are walking, the lights of the car will shine on your face and enable the driver to spot you far more easily than if they only shone on the dark back of your head.

This is something that everyone should (N. E. A.) remember. The so-called Boulevard" is frequently used as a footway by soldiers out for a stroll in the cool of the early evening-if there is such a thing in a Southern summer—as well as by empty-pocketed doughboys who have to hike from city to camp for lack of the ever essential bus ticket.

Nothing is more dangerous to pedestrians, except the erratic and individualistic driver who rolls up the wrong side of the road, than for the foot slogger to walk with rather than against the traffic. Walk on the left of the road. You will remember perhaps that when three soldiers were hit where Helms' "half-way house" used to flourish, they were walking on the right of the road, and they were apparently hit from behind. These things are bound to happen if you walk on the wrong side of the road. And the left side of the road is the side to use when you walk.

29TH SWIMMERS TO MATCH STROKES IN REGIMENTAL MEET

Monday Set for Six Event Pool Competition Between Battalions.

Demonstration Doughboys will take to the water of the garrison swimming pool Monday and hold one of their w. k swimming inter-battalion competitions. 1st Battalion, 2nd Battalion and Special Units will enter teams in a six-event meet to determine the aquatic supremacy of the 29th. Swims listed are: 50-yd. Breast Stroke, 50-yd. Back Stroke, 100-yd. Free Style, 440-yd. Free Style, Fancy Diving, and 400-yd. Relay.

Each of the three competing units will be represented in every event, both enlisted men and officers being eligible for the contests. The usual points for places will be awarded and a suitable point presented to the winning units to prize presented to the winning unit as as to individual battalions have already held their tryouts to select their enries, and the list contains all the strongest swimmers in the regiment.

In the 50-yard Breast Stroke, Juba of Co. G, who won this event last year, of Co. G, who won this event last year, is gone, but Evans, Co. F, and Bache, Co. E, who finished second and third, will again be entered. In the 440-vd. Free Style Juba was the 1925 winner. and will not be here to defend his crown. Last year's place men, Launikitis, Co. E, and Potts, Co. A, will be on hand, however.

All of last fall's finalists in the 100-yd. Free Style will show in the pool Monday. Davis, Co. C, Chapin, Co. H, and Otto, Co. B, finished in that order a year ago. The placers hope to upset the C Company man this time.

Holodnuck, Co. B, will be out to repeat his triumph in the Fancy Dive with Wood, Co. E, fighting to displace him. Wood finished third in 1925. Randolph took second, but will be absent this time.

Smith, Co. C, is the only place winner from last year in the 50-yd. Back Stroke. He was third.

The Doughboys are very much at home in the water and some record breaking times are expected.

SPECIAL UNITS AQUATIC STARS HOLD TRY-OUTS

Selections Made for Regimental Swimming Meet in Pool Events Monday.

It was one-thirty sharp meet started. It was a few minutes after two when the meet was over leaving plenty of time for Farrel, of "A" of the 29th to do his double overarm up and down about thirty times, his usual afternoon exercise.
In points, Regimental Headquarters

Company scored the heaviest, Howitzer gunners showed the effects of their organized training and came through with more tallying than they had been able to muster before. The Administration gang won every event except the 100-yard, which Wallace and McGovern, of the Howitzers, took in handy style. The relay was a nip and tuck affair, won only by the barest touch of a hand. Caldwell, of Headquarters Company, was high point man, with two victories and a second place.

Summary:
100-yd. Free Style—Won by Wallace (Hz.); 2nd, McGovern (Hz.); 3rd, Watson (Hq.). Time: 1:28 3-5. 50-yd. Breast Stroke—Won by Cald-

Rhodes Browne, Pres. R. P. Spencer, Jr., Vice Pres.

THOS. J. NEAL, Secty-Treas

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Wilking of Al lendale, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Robert Douglas McLeod, Jr., Lieutenant, United States Army. The wedding will be celebrated on October ding will be celet fourth in Allendale.

This company was well represented at the Masquerade Dance given by the 29th Infantry last Tuesday. Corporal Wingsbury was dressed as Rudolph Wingsbury was dressed as Rudolph Valentino. He (the Corp.) wore a pair of white (the cook's) trousers and a discarded red sash around the waist. We wonder how many feminine hearts we wonder now many temmine nearts misfired during the evening.

Corporal Mallory represented his countryman and neighbor, Senor Douglas Fairbanks, at the dance. Wearing a pair of immense sailor trousers with the buttons at the wrong end and a microscopic mustache just under his breathing aparatus Mallory must have felt like a girl going out on her first date.

The first platoon completed their range practice last week qualifying 33 out of 35 men. Six expert riflemen were among the group. Co. A, 29th Infantry, with but 14 experts out of 185 men, shouldn't crow so loudly.

Pvt. 1cl. Elsea returned from a 90-day reenlistment furlough. He spent his time in Graysville (?) Tenn. Elsea says he sure is glad to get back with the company mules down in the corral.

GASSERS BEATEN
BY Q. M. TEAM IN CLASS "B" GAME

W. Wilson, Q. M. Twirler, Scored Second Win in Two Days.

W. Wilson pitched for the Q. M. team Tuesday and turned back the Service Company in handy style. With most pitchers this would have called for a rest, but not so with Mr. Wilson. Wednesday, there he was out in the center of the diamond flinging them over agains the Gas Bums, and for the second consecutive day he turned in a neat hurling performance and was in a neat nurning performance and was chalked up as the winning pitcher.

Three was the lucky number. Runs came only in trios, but the Service for the Line boys collected two triple clusters, while the Smokers did it only Adkison started for the Phosporus Flingers but was wild and ineffective, giving way the Neal in the fifth. The relief man was as wild as a hawk and if the Q. M. boys had waited him out, it is doubtful if the game would have been over yet, but Sgt. Reynolds' out-fit was overanxious and kept biting at the bad ones.

The action was slowed up by frequent and useless debates with the umpires.

BLUES DRAW NEAR TOP BY BEATING 1ST BATTALION

West Enders Unextended to Down Demonstration Doughboys.

Mays, steady righthander of the 1st Battalion, pitched and lost another game Monday. It was the Blues that handed him the trimming. On the face of the returns the West Enders combed his delivery for thirteen safe blows and earned four of their nine runs, but many of the so tracered hits. runs, but many of the so-scored hits were one to faulty fielding by the 1st Bat infielders and outfielders who on several occasions seemed obsessed with the idea that it is illegal to move in the direction of the ball.

The Demonstration Doughboys were wooffully weak at bat, gleaning only four hits. Mays himself accounted for half of this total. To Haywood, Blue twirler, must be attributed some of this weakness, as the stocky right-hander buzzed them past the batters at express train speed. He used few tooks, but the old speed ball was hopping ricely and his control was good. From the quartet of hits the 1st Bats managed to coin three runs, two coming in the seventh after the game was hopelessly lost.

Ponderous Warrenburg's thrilling dash from first to third on a single, McDutfie's failure to touch second base in the first inning, and the brilliant fielding of Seats enlivened an other-wise listless and lifeless contest.

HOWITZERS REPEL GAS ATTACK AND WIN SECOND GAME

One Pounders Maintain Perfect Percentage of Heavy Shelling.

Look out for the Howitzers. The 37's look a little awkward in practice, but they carry a load of dynamite in every bat and have a knack of squeezing the ball on defense. The confident Gassers learned this Monday after-noan, and are now in a more chastened frame of mind. C. W. S. rooters in the stands chuckled and chortiled while the One Pounders kicked the ball around in fielding practice, and freely predicted an overwhelming victory for the Smoke Artists. In the very first inning Foster gave an indication of what was to come by smacking one of Adkison's offerings to the extreme frontier of right center territory and making a circuit of the bases before Captain Frakes' muleskinners set a the ball could be returned.

Thereafter Lieutenant Mack's boys continued the assault at irregular intervals. Averitt and A. Thomas collaborated in bringing Foster home in the third, and a melange of hits and poor fielding by Peters brought home three more in the fourth. Morrow was the fifth inning scorer and Averitt made it seven in the seventh. Ten hits, aided and abetted by lapses in the Gas defense were the means and methods used in the counting.

Morrow did the heaving for the Howitzers and in all but the fifth session had the Gassers eating from his hand. In stanza five, doubles by Sellers and Hamby, a hit batter, Peters' single and a collision between Morrow and Averitt in going after a fly ball, let four runners come over. Added to a unit collected in the fourth on Neal's torrid triple and a poor relay to the plate, these runs made five for the Smokies.

QUARTERMASTERS WIN TIGHT GAME FROM SERVICE COMPANY

Colonel Warfield's Hired Hands Over-come Early Lead to Win 4-3 Game.

Tuesday's Class "B" game kept a golod soldier in our Uncle Sammy's service, and Ray of the Quartermaster Corps team should get credit for a reenlistment. Phipps, likewise of the Service for the Line outfit, was being discharged and was dubious about tak ing on any more of the war, but said he would say "I do", if Ray made a hit, and so the Q. M. rightfielder stepped out and did that little thing, and to make assurance double sure, made two, the second one driving in what proved to be the winning run in the Key, Wheel and Saber 4-3 victory over the Service Company, 29th Infan-run an inning as a goal for themselves and for three rounds kept right up to schedule, but after that the bent-arm slinging of one W. Wilson, aided by good support, made runs as scarce for the 29th boys as dollars the day before payday.

For four frames big Sisco and his battery mate "Cord Wood" Smith, worked in fine style and refused round trip transportation to any aspiring Q. M.'s but in the fifth, Col. Warfield's pets went after runs like a soldier just back from furlough goes after the mess-"slum" and before the inning was over Sisco was sitting disconsolately on the bench, southpaw J. Wilson was pitching and a great big "4" decorated the top row of the scoreboard.

Orcutt leaped high and wide in the second to grab McCaslin's whiskered liner and double Lotz off second unas-

RATHAL CHLOROFORMS DETACHMENT HITTERS AND GUNNERS WIN

I. S. D. Helpless At Bat As Artillery Scores Six Times.

In Sunday's prelude to the great Red-2nd Bn. scrap, the 83rd Field Artillery stopped the I. S. D.'s winning streak which had extended to one straight. They stopped it in no indecisive manner, either. Rathal toiled in the box and baffled the Detachment all the way. Behind him the caisson riders played errorless ball, and materially assisted with a couple of twin killings. Not a Green Hat scored during the nine innings. Meanwhile the gunners nine innings. Meanwhile the guinners gathered unto themselves a half dozen tallies, five of which were earned Gray, 1b. 3 through the medium of ten solid blows off the assorted offerings of Grady Tolle. Cue Ball Smith was the chief aggressor, with three hits. Spivey turned in two.

The 83rd team is showing marked improvement in each start and threat ens much trouble to the leaders in future games. Nobody ever said the gunners can't hit, and under the efficient coaching of Douglass the fielding and headwork of the players is getting better and better.

JAZZ BABIES AVOID SHUT OUT IN LAST ROUND, BUT LOSE

Engineers Score at Expense of Magoni's Young Hopefuls.

Came the seventh inning (see any well conducted movie), and six "dirty old golose eggs" adorned the score-board for the Jazz Babies, while the rampagious Engineers had eleven runs to their credit. True the Red Diamonds had been shut out in three frames, which was quite a moral victory for Jazz Magoni and the members of the I. S. D. younger set, but a rather hollow victory at that. Then the great Jazz showed himself a manager endowed with an abundance of gray matter. Buckner, who drives a truck and might be counted on to carry Jazz home, was allowed by the Masterminder to take three swings and sit down. Then Bryant was sent up for Levesque. Then Bryant was sent up for Levesque. Perkins had relieved Cameron for the Engineers, lost control and gave the M. P. four wide ones. A steal of second and Kingsbury's fumble of Woidyla's grounder sent Bryant to third. Buffington was called on to swing for southpaw Purget, and delivered a grounder to Brock which allowed Bryant to dash home with a run, though ant to dash home with a run, though the batter was retired at the first Woidyla took second and then sack. stole third. The Polack scored a moment later on a combination steal of home and wild pitch.
You can't shut the Jazz Babies out.

HOWITZERS SHELL Q. M. C. TRENCHES FOR OPENING WIN

One-Pounders Forced Into Extra Innings to Gain First Victory.

Beginning in the first inning the Howitzer Company opened a vigorous fire on Woodrow Wilson, Quartermas ter slinger, and kept it up all the way. One Tucker was gunner-in-chief, bump ing the ball for four safe rides in five ing the ball for four safe rides in five attempts. The other 37's ably seconded his efforts, came from behind a Quartermaster lead, and won out in the eighth inning of Thursday's Class "B" scheduled seven inning show. It was the One Pounders' first start in the league. In it they showed a Murderers' Row that will cause grave uneasiness among the hurlers of the loop.

Off to a one run lead in the first spasm, the Howitzers weakened in the second and third frames and allowed the Service for the Line Boys to go out in front, 4 to 1. But they came back strong in the fifth and sixth, getting two tallies in the former session and three in the latter. Sgt. Reynolds' gang were not yet beaten, though. They scored once in the sixth and again in the seventh, the latter tally evening the count and sending the game into extra rounds. One Pounders made a single marker in the eighth and turned back a Q. M. rally in the last half by a fast double play, Morrow to Foster to A. Thomas.

TANKERS TRIUMPH OVER CANNONEERS IN CLOSE GAME

Caterpillar Boys Win From Gunners 4-3, Stopping 9th Inning Rally.

With two gone in the ninth Spivey. Artillery center fielder beat out a roller tothird by fast sprinting and Rathal, husky twirler performing for the day in right field, slammed a screaming triple against the wire fence in right center. The Gunner rooters in the stands yelled like mad and implored the lengthy Cole to hit it out of the park, but Irish Jimmy Meehan.

Tank second sacker grabbed the long cisive factor. boy's hot grounder and heaved to Hanson for the last out. The run scored by the caisson riders in the ultimate round brought their total to three, but the caterpillar lads had crossed the pan four times, and thereby won a ball game. ball game.

Red Lindsey and Cue Ball Smith were the opposing slingers and both did well. The Artillery gathered nine bingles while the Tankers made eight, but field, left, right and center. Red set nine of the cannoneers down on strikes and was extremely tight in the pinches. The Artillery fielding showed considerable improvement over previous starts, Smith getting some snappy support including two double plays engineered in the seventh and eighth rounds. Spivey's toss from center to Douglass, catching Rogers trying to score on a sacrifice fly, was a neat

When Chief Ryan in the seventh inning, slammed one of McGaha's fast ones on the nose for a line triple to center, scoring a couple of his mates who were resting on the sacks the books might as well have been closed and the rest of the afternoon declared a holiday, as the ball game was over to all intents and purposes. The Detachment boys were leading at the time and might not have been headed, but

Snappy Bennett's pitching was up to his nickname. Six hits, three of them of the infield variety, were all he allowed the opposition. Grady Tolle played shortstop in fine style, even though he is charged with errors in the unaccustomed position. At bat he had a perfect day—three hits and a sacrifice in four tries—and to show no partiality landed one blow safely in each

FREE HITTING IS ORDER OF THE DAY AS TANKS BEAT KELS

Batting Lamps Are Bright in 14-11 Riot of Hitting Saturday

Twenty-five runs, thirty hits for a total of thirty-nine bases, a dozen bases on balls, a balk, a wild pitch a home run, a triple, four two cushion wallops, three double plays, a parade of five pitchers to and from the mound, thirteen strikeouts and nine errors. this in Saturday afternoon's riotous game between the Kellys from the 2nd Battalion and Major Miller's caterpillar conductors. The twenty-five runs were split fourteen for the Tanks and eleven for the Kels, and accordingly the grease and gasoline lads were distinctly pleased with the performance.

Jimmy Meehan and Company opened the show by pounding Harkey for five runs while one man was retired in the first inning. The Kellys rallied in characteristic 2nd Battalion style and tied the score up in the third, but the Tankers grabbed off three more in the fourth and thereafter were never headed. though the Doughboys made a hard uphill fight of it and threatened at every stage to knock Red Lindsey, who of the mound but out of the park. Kjelstrom's homer in the eighth and Willis' hot triple with three on in the ninth were the high lights in the gallant fight ad relieved the wild Harris, not only ff the mound but out of the park. jellstrom's homer in the eighth and limits hot triple with three on in the inth were the high lights in the galant fight.

WEST END CIVIL WAR ENDS WITH REDS VICTOR VICTORIOUS

Mental Lapse By Ponder Costs Blues A Win Over League Leaders.

When Ponder, Blue pitcher, threw Bell's roller to third in the sixth inning of Saturday's nightcap affair in a vain effort to catch the flying Battles going to the hot corner, he lost the best chance he had to be returned victor against the Reds. At the fime his team topped the league leaders by one run. Battles and Bell promptly engineered a double steal. King hoisted to Seats after which a wild pitch sent Bell to third. Gilchrist flied to right for wha should have been the third out and Bell scored after the catch. Net re sult a 3-2 win for the Reds.

Ponder outpitched the Reds' ace, Viance, and deserved the win. His mates put on a batting show in the second frame that promised great things, but after two runs were in, a lightning double play, King to McCrary to S. Williams, sounded taps.

Darkness stopped the game after the Reds had made another tally in the score reverting to even

FOR SECOND IN LEAGUE STANDING

Overcome ercome Detachment's Early Lead and Win by Consistent Clouting.

The fighting Kellys continued their second half drive Wednesday and moved into a tie with the Blues for second place in the league standing, just one half game behind the pace-setting Reds. In accomplishing this the gravel crushers encountered the sternest sort of opposition from the I. S. D. team and succeeded only by a stubborn uphill fight.

The prolific bats of Newman, Kjel-strom, Davis and Company, good for 7 runs, won the day, as Harkey was no enigma to the Detachment boys who raked the delivery of the tall machine gunner for ten solid blows and six runs. Morgan packed the chief punch for the parrot hatcord gang, clouting out three clean singles in five tries. Morris continued to reach first with great regularity. The diminutive lead off man made two in five and reached the first sack safely on two other occasions.

Good clean hits by Morris, Morgan, Good clean hits by Morris, Morgan, Ryan and Trott sent the Detachment away to a flying start with three counters and put the Kels on the defensive. They got one back in the lower bracket of the first when Tolle walked two and High Davis delivered the needed bingle to score McCarthy from second. Cant. Back's proteges from second. Capt. Back's proteges chalked up two more in the fourth on two hit batters, Bennett's safety and an error by Newman. Kels equalled this in their half on hits by Davis and Newman, a sacrifice fly and Heckert's bobble.

The winning runs came in the seventh by bunched bingles. McCarthy with a single and Newman and Durbin with doubles provided the fire-works. Morris' hit, an infield out and Johnny Heckert's slump-breaking single scored the Greenies' final marker.

RED WINNING STREAK HALTED BY FIGHTING KELS IN GREAT GAME

Tranmel Unable to Stop Determined Drive of 2nd Battalion, While Carnes Hurls Superb Game.

The Reds had won fourteen straight games in the Gowdy Cup League, but that didn't overawe the Kellys in the least, and so Major Bowen's boys went out on Gowdy Field Sunday with blood in their eyes and murder in their hearts and scored a clean cut, earned victory over the league leaders with the final count standing at 4 to 2 The result was welcome to everybody except the Reds, as it restored interest in the race that was becoming monotonous.

In winning, the Kellys defeated the towering Trammel, just returned from a fling at professional ball in Membut extremely efficacious means of hit-ting them "where they ain't". There was nothing fluky about any of the four tallies made by the 2nd Bats. The first came in the second via Newman's scorching single over the second sack and Durbin's terrific double to the scoreboard. In the third Willis hit cleanly to center, took second while King was tossing out Kelly at third, went to third when the Red keystone guardian returned the ball aimlessly after an effort to nip Willis off the bag, and scored as High Davis rose to the occasion and slammed a liner into unguarded right field territory. Willis could have scored easily from second on High's drive, so King's miscue cost nothing.

In the sixth High Davis looked four bad ones over and strolled. Braving Hampton's mighty arm he stole second as Newman struck out. Durbin walked and was forced at second by McDuffy, and was forced at second by McDully, Battles to King, High racing to third on the out. This time it was Lefty Carnes who proved the right man in the right place. The lanky southpaw picked out one to his liking and jarred a single into right on which Davis Round seven opened with two Kellys perishing peacefully. The Kel himself coaxed a pass from Trammel, and again old High strode to the plate. Bettering his previous efforts the long boy crashed one past Inglemon in right and started on a Cook's Tour of the bases, with Kjelstrom leading him a merry chase. The big Swede reached merry chase. The big Swede reached home with ease, but a lightning relay, Inglemon to Sloan Williams to Hampton nipped High at the final pay off station. But it didn't matter, as the four runs were sufficient.

While all this was going on, the Reds were not led like lambs to the slaughter, but went down fighting to the last. McCrary's single and theft of second, an infield out and a bad mixup in covering first base, gave the West Enders a marker in the third. Their other run came in the seventh, when Hampton singled sharply to left, took second on a wild pitch, and went to third on Vance's scratch single to short. These two then successfully worked a double steal for the final suntiction.

the diamond stood Lefty Carnes and the famous shimmy artist of the 29th was too big an obstacle for them to overcome. The lean southpay teased them with slow ones, dazzled them with fast hops, and broke his curves over the corner with rare accuracy. He didn't fan many, but when a Red did ning and provided the needed margin connect it was usually for a puny por or an innocuous roller to the infield Hampton alone fathomed his shoots with any consistency, the Red mask artist getting two line singles into vacant ground. Four other hits are charged against the portsider, but these were all somewhat scratchy.

To Lefty who held the enemy in check and to High Davis who scored once and drove in two other runs, must go the palm of victory, but the whole Kelly crew played with a dash and determination that defied disaster. Temporary breaks in the defense failed to upset the morale of the gang. They came back all the harder, and played better ball than before.

It was the game of the year and as full of thrills as the Service Club res-taurant is of cats. Nothing could be fuller.

BLUES BLAST HOPES OF TANKS FOR TIE FOR LEAGUE LEAD

Leonard Bests Lindsey in Pitching Duel and West Enders Take Second Place.

Caterpillar conductors Tanks started many pilgrims on the weary journey to the promised land of home, sweet home, but all save one wanderer perished ere the goal was reached. Eleven died lingering deaths in the great waste spaces of first, second or third vainly awaiting succor from relief expeditions sent to their aid. The guardian Saracens of the holy land were the 24th Infantry Blues. led by Sultan Leonard, and these sturdy defenders turned back every ef-fort of the modern crusaders to reach the Jerusalem of their hopes, a tie with the Reds for the Gowdy Cup League leadership.

In Tuesday's contest between the Tanks and the Blues, second place was at stake. By grabbing the game 2 to 1, the Blues climbed to within half a game of the Reds. Had the Tankers won they would have been tied with the perennial leaders. Both teams set tally.

On other occasions the West Enders afternoon was one of the most excitthreatened, but out in the center of ing of the summer. Lindsey and Leonard were the opposing twirlers and the pair of aces performed in their best fashlion. Red allowed fewer hits than his rival, but Nash's scratch single to first followed by Leonard's driving double to the scoreboard gave the West Enders an earned tally in the sixth inof victory. Each team scored an unearned marker in the seventh.

In every inning but the eighth the Tanks connected for at least one safe hit, but Leonard's stinginess in the pinches and brilliant support afield left eleven stranded. Nash raced back to the fence in deepest left to grab Hanson's mighty hoist in the second inning. The blow bore all the earmarks of a triple at least. Driver, at second, was an ever present help in time of trouble handling eight chances without the semblance of an error Two of his stops, on Mays in the fourth and on Hedgecock in the sixth, were especially difficult.

Jimmy Meehan was at one and the Jimmy Meehan was at one and the same time a hero and a dub. He handled nime chances afield and was all over the lot. At bat he hit safely three times in five efforts, one of his blows bein ga double. He stole two bases handily. And yet he pulled the year's prize boner, forgetting that there is no infield fly with only one man or is no infield fly with only one man on base. With Sweeney on first in the third inning and none out, Jimmy hoisted high to Driver and loafed down the line. The Blue second sacker quickly saw his opportunity and by dropping the fly, easily started a double play via Seats and Powell. On at least a dozen occasions this year inleast a dozen occasions this year infielders have had this same chance, but to Driver must go the credit for being the only one to make use of it.

Athletic Association authorities are now considering the possibility of offering team prizes, but no definite decicion has not been reached cision has yet been reached.

ATHLETIC SUMMARY ACCOMPANIES PLEA FOR MEMBERSHIPS

Circular Lists Advantages of Athletic Association Card.

Summarizing the vast number of baseball, basketball and baseball games offered to members of the Athletic Association, an official circular from Headquarters points out the fact that the average admission card to athletic contests at Fort Benning during the past year has been less than half a per game. In the same document full information is given as to means of subscribing for the annual membership cards, and the new and improved position of Infantry School teams is commented upon.

Following is the text of the circular in full:

was the running of the motor that was not quite right and had to be perfected. In some inexplicable manner, the truck was thrown into gear and started off like a house afiire toward a big, long row of artillery caissons loaded with live ammunition. The stage was all set for a bad smash up, the destruction of a lot of transyportation, and a possible explosion of the level and a possible explosion. sion of shells to add horror to the havoc.

Disregarding his own personal safety, Private Neal ran and tried to climb on Private Neal ran and tried to climb on the truck, and either to stop it or to steeer it clear of the endangered caissons. He succeeded in avoiding a bad smash up of machinery, but so closely did the truck shave the caissons and their shed, that his leg was caught between the heavy steel running board of the truck and a post in the gun sheds. Part of one foot and several toes were sheared right off. sheared right off.

SPALDING TROPHY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP BASEBALL LEAGUE

Winning Battalion Team Will Secure Permanent Possession of Additional Prize.

Since the Gowdy Trophy is a permanent challenge affair, and must be put up for competition in successive years, it was felt that teams in the championship baseball league should have another trophy for which to strive, a cup which might remain in the possession of the winner.

Through the efforts of the Special Order Department of the Post Exchange, which has been procuring Spalding, baseballs for the league contests on the diamond, and handling procurement of uniforms, the A. G. Spalding Brothers athletic outfitters have been induced to present a silver trophy, to go to the winner of the "big" league.

Now there are three prizes for the hat and ball artists: the Spalding Trophy for the big league, the Infantry School News Cup for the Class "B" league, and the Gowdy Cup for the garrison chapmings.

rison champions.
This coming week the regular season in the big league comes to an end, with a few postponed games, and a possible play-off between the winners of the two halves. Competition is keen, and the playing increasing in flash and finish, as the spectators crowd the stands more and more. The cup winners will have won a good race.

BIDS ARE OPENED FOR NEW BARRACK CONSTRUCTION WORK

Sizable Surplus After Builders Are Paid May Increase Units

It was one o'clock sharp on Monday afternoon. Captain William McK. Scott, Constructing Quartermaster, Scott, Constructing Quartermaster, spoke to the assembled representatives of building firms.

of building firms.

"Are there any more bids?" There being no reply, he rapped sharply on his desk with a pair of big shears, said: "Bids are closed!" and proceeded said: Bits are closed: and proceeded to slash open the many large envelopes heaped in front of him. For an hour the reading and recording of the bids proceeded, and then the results were announced.

John W. Cowper and Company, of Atlanta Georgia, had made the lowest bid for the entire job of constructing Sections "B", "C", and "D" of the 29th Infantry cuartel barracks, extending in a semi-circle down Vibbert Avenue and around along Gillespie Street, from the completed portion which is already occupied by the Service Company and the Regimental Head-quarters Company. They offered to do the task for $563,600, or nearly $75,000 less than the appropriation available.

However, several contractors had submitted partial bids and a process o fselection of lowest figures across the table, to make a combined job of it, resulted in the assembling of separate contractors to do the work at a saving of $9,000 more to the government, i. e., with a total of $553,785.04.

Colonel Warfield and Captain Scott immediately radioed to Washington their recommendations as to the acceptance of hids, which were to the offact. ance of bids, which were to the effect that the following should be employed to do the work:

John W. Cowper Co., Inc., Atlanta,

Georgia, building less utilities, $436,

O'Pry Heating & Plumbing Co., Macon Ga., water and fire protection systems, $4,678.00.

SIDELIGHTS ON MEMBERSHIP

On the very day the Athletic Association announced that it wished memberships renewed, the 1st Battalion Headquarters Company of the 29th Infantry promptly turned in One Hundred Per Cent.

Captain George L. King drew ticket Number One. Major Russ tried to get it, wrote his check as soon as he received the announcement, and sent it over through the Message Center. But through channels it arrived twenty-four hours later than Captain King's who de-livered his in person.

PVT. CHARLES W. SMITH Company "A", 7th Engineers.

Among the pontoniers has come a recruit who is not a recruit. With five engineer discharges to his credit, every one with "character excellent" and grades on discharge stretching from corporal to master sergeant, and one a World War commissioned officer Charles W. Smith is one of those soldiers who cannot stay away from the bridge-building corps.

Born and educated in Jacksonville, with two years in the University of Florida to his credit, Smith served as a volunteer in the Spanish war and the Philippine Insurrection and then in 1900 went back to the civil and construction engineering profession for which he had been trained. After work-ing with some of the best constructing firms of the Mid-West as foreman and superintendent, Smith heard the call of the bugle again and in 1910 ambled into Fort Leavenworth and Company "K" of the 3rd Engineers.

In a single enlistment this strong, likely looking middle aged bridger went through the grades of private, private first class, corporal and sergeant—and that, mind you, was in "the old army," where such a feat was as unusual as a sky-rocket in a rainstorm.

With this outfit, Smith went to the Philippines and was on special duty installing an ice plant on tropical Corregidor. On return from his tour in the slands in 1914, he re-enlisted in the Second Engineers and was placed on construction work on the Mexican border, where he remained until "M" company went to Panama and was on duty with the Maintenance Department of the

Commissioned as lieutenant of Engineers on July 12, 1917, Smith went to Vancouver Barracks, organized and commanded the 318th Engineer Train, took that outfit overseas and brought it Mustered out at Camp Jackson in 1919, he re-enlisted in his former grade the Seventh Engineers, who him to Auburn, over Alabama way, as R. O. T. C. instructor. When the most of that regiment was put on the inactive list, Smith inspected bringes and roads for the overland trip of coast artiflaw from Jackson to Eustis, and Smith inspected bridges and tillery from Jackson to Eustis, and then went to Fort Story to construct heavy gun emplacements

In 1923, he decided to take a financial fling at the outside world, with his wife and son and daughter and started at Pontagarda, Fla., as engineer in charge of a subdivision with three hundred a month and quarters. But the lure of the service, the call of the khaki to all who have served long and well, came to Smith again, and he decided that the army, in spite of its smaller pay envelope, is better for the professional soldier than any other place.

Smith advises all men who are contemplating leaving the service to try a furlough first. And the tips of this quiet and modest old soldier are good and valuable. He knows the game and loves the army; and the army knows a fine wearer of the khaki when it sees

ATHLETIC SUMMARY ACCOMPANIES PLEA FOR MEMBERSHIPS

(Continued from Page 1.) been completed and a roof has been placed over the stands on Gowdy Field. The facilities for the conduct of athletics at The Infantry School are better than ever, and we feel that we may well be proud of our entire athletic plant.

2. During the present year the Athletic Association has furnished to members of the garrison :7 football games, 8 basketball games, and 25 baseball games, which may be classed as of "Major Calibre". In addition to the foregoing, ten games of intermural football, 55 games of intermural basketball and one hundred games of intermural baseball have been played. The championship and Class B series in baseball are still in progress. The large number of patrons of these games shows that they are doing splendid work for the entertainment of all members of this command.

3. During the year that is now closing, all organizations in the garrison have rendered a most generous response to membership appeals. It is felt that the cost of annual membership is within reach of all. Nowhere in these United States is it possible to purchase admission to sporting events of such high calibre, at so cheap a price as at this station. The average cost to the spectator for the year 1925-1926 was less than one-half cent per game.

4. Our new athletic year will begin on the first of September next. In appealing to the garrison for 100 per cent. membership, attention is invited to the fact that as our teams become stronger it requires more money to bring good teams here. The time has passed when our football team was considered a "Set Up" for practically all southern college teams and when these teams regarded a game with The Infantry School team moreor less as a practice game which could be taken on in an interval between two big games. Formerly teams were willing to come here for expenses only. Now that our team has taken its place as one of the best football teams in the south, higher guarantees are demanded by visiting As our financial status improves from year to year, we hope to be able to secure better attractions.

5. For the year 1926-1927 the membership fee will be one day's pay (including all pay and allowances except rental and ration allowances) pro-vided such amount is not less than the sum of $2.00. If the amount figured as stated in the foregoing is less than that sum the amount of membership fee shall be $2.00.

For enlisted men the amount to be paid will be figured and collected by their respective company command-Every enlisted man will be allowed four months in which to complete payment for his membership, which may be made in money or can teen checks.

7. For officers and warrant officers, the amount to be paid will be figured by the Finance Officer. Officers and warrant officers may pay for their membership in two months, sending their personal check, currency, or charging the same to their club bill.

8. For permanently employed civilian employes, the amount to be paid will be one day's pay to be figured by the officer in charge of the activity in which the employe works, and will be paid direct to the Treasurer of the Athletic Association.

9. The first football game will be played in September and a determined effort should be made by every one concerned to secure every member possible by September first.

Organizations will be furnished ership lists in blank. When these membership lists in blank. are filled out, they should be returned at once to the Secretary-Treasurer of the Infantry School Athletic Association (Building No. 110). Organization commanders are urged to secure 100 per cent memberships for their units, and their assistance in returning the membership lists as early as possible is requested in order that admission cards may be issued.

BIDS ARE OPENED FOR NEW BARRACK CONSTRUCTION WORK

Loftis Plumbing & Heating Co., Atlanta, Ga., heating installations, $48,-647.04.

Michaels & Co., Norfolk, Va., electri-il installations, $16,970.00. Total Total $553,785.04.

This amount of expenditure will leave an appropriated balance of nearly $200,000, which added to about $50. 000 saved on the construction costs of the first section, which was completed last September, makes a substantial sum of money that may be made avail able to increase the amount of building on the barrack building. With these contracting firms all set and on the ground, it may be possible to cut the biulders' overhead costs and by supplementary contracts carry on the building through still additional sections, and perhaps nearly to complete the entire structure.

Colonel Warfield and Captain Scott stated Monday that they would make representations and would attempt to secure this authority, Colonel Warfield adding that he would be glad to move the Quartermaster Detachment out to make room for more building. Colonel Gowen, when advised of this possibility, expressed great interest and stated that the 29th would be tickled to tear down regimental headquarters if the brick and limestone cuartel structure could be extended down that Bidding was keen, and the fifty odd bidders, their staffs and representatives, crowded the Quartermaster of-fice. Mr. John W. Built by the Recreation Center Board under the direction of Captain Hawkenson, those ten new concrete and wooden benches which line the water's edge at convenient spots were suggested and paid for by the Infantry School News from a slight available surplus. The old iron benches were rickety, and they got rusted, and they were moved up and away in the winter and were hard to find in the spring. The new substantial ones are similar to those that adorn the boxes of Gowdy Field and the Doughboy Stadium, except that they are somewhat longer. In these here is comforable room for three persons, without crowding.

The Infantry School News is in an exceptionally sound financial condition. In addition to the amount necessarily held on hand to meet emergencies and sudden slumps in advertising income, it has been possible to expend a great deal of money toward permanent in-creases in the size of the paper and toward the purchasing of addition line cuts and half-tones with which to il-lustrate the paper. Such further sur-pluses as accumulate from time to time are being spent for the improvement of recreation facilities and morale of the recreation facilities and morale of the command. One such expenditure was the purchase of the Infantry School News Cup for the Class "B" baseball league. Another such is the purchase of these swimming pool benches. Others will be made from time to time.

where. His nose knows, they say.

Pvt. Clark, our new mule-skinner, has a dark, fuzzy something on his upper lip. We don't know just what it is yet, so will wait a few weeks before we pass judgment.

Tech. Sgt. Houghtby has joined the ranks of the "four-eyes." Not only do glasses improve his looks considerably, but they also prevent any possible alibi about his final score on the rifle range.

Pvt. Hencke is the latest arrival the company. He was formerly on Re-

Leadership Outline Distributed.

The Regimental Executive Officer, Lt. Col. Jason M. Walling has completed the distribution of the long promised "Psychology as applied to Leadership." This mimeographed distribution is an outline on the subject that Col. Walling promised the students that Col. Walling promised the students of the Class of 1925-26. Many of the officers who attended the lecture asked that the talk be, if possible, distributed to them for their files on this important subject. Stress of time and the great amount of work entailed in getting together such an outline made distribution of the lecture impossible until a few days ago.

Col. Walling has mailed to each of the students and to those who expressed interest in the subject at the time, a copy of this valuable study. In addition to the lecture, the Colonel furnished the bibliography from which his lecture was taken. This item is well worth considering as it contains a list of books from which any officer might gain much knewledge for use in the handling of men.

The Colonel departed a bit from his promise of sending them the lecture for his accompanying letter to the students reads: "I send the outline rather than the talk as reported by the students reads: stenographer in order that anyone who may desire to make an address on the subject may utilize the outline and the bibliography more satisfactorily to himself." There is no doubt that Col.

Walling will receive many letters of appreciation for his kindness.

Range, the three machine gun companies, Co. "D", "H" and "M", under command of Capt. Ellis, have pitched their tents and have taken to the simple life on the true "field-soldier" style.

Capt. Paul Leiber, the advocate of the glorified gas pipe—the trench mor-tar—has, for the moment, forsaken his pet and is busy with the Browning Machine Gun. Using the same old high-power methods that have won him such a name in the Academic Section of the Infantry School, Capt. Leiber has so thoroughly imbued his machine gunners with the mission before them that they have taken to their work with added vigor.

For the same reason that they wear the little red acorns on their hat cords _just to be different—these machine —Just to be different—these machine gunners take to the field up on the plains of Hook Range and go thru their mysterious ritual that preceds firing for annual record. Rumors dropped here and there point strongly toward a record.

"FOLLOW ME"

In the cuerent issue of the U.S. Army Recruiting News there appears the following complimentary passage regarding the Fifteenth Tank Battalion sheets down the other side of Edwards Street, where the tri-color triangle headquarters stand:

"It isn't the biggest paper being published by service editors, but it is certainly one of the livest or-gans in the field, to state it mildly and safely. It is a paper with a purpose; and its editor seems to be a man who burns with a mighty zeal to accomplish a single high pur-That purpose is to make the Fifteenth Tank Battalion the best all round outfit in the army. He is well on the way to doing it. For one thing, since the paper's inception thirty-two weeks ago, a constant increase in the percentage of men re-enlisting for the several companies of the battalion has been noted, and that is more than a mere coincidence, as those who know the value of publicity will realize. For another thing the company notes simply bristle each week with enthusiasm for the organization siasm for the organization from which emanating, and for the battalion as a whole—and those notes are written by soldiers who are just men in the ranks, which is a mighty good sign. An outfit with a newspaper of such a high type and constant aim can not help but forge ahead and become month by month more efficient, more closely knitted into a homogeneous whole with all its individual elements looking up-ward and striving unselfishly in be-half of the common good.

"If there are service editors, or others, who are not receiving The Fifteenth Tank Battalion Weekly, regularly, they will do well to get it, note its high pitched key as a morale builder, its manner straight from the shoulder -then "go do likewise." Its and Its freshness and sincerity will be an inspiration to the editorial brain which is a bit fagged with the heat."

see this local publication so singled out for praise, and the Infantry School News is pleased to note the success achieved by the paper of the tractor gang

To those who have never seen it, for it is only rarely that copies trickle out into other portions of the garrisonwe shall give a brief description. Published in a few mimeographed pages. the Tank Battalion Weekly consists almost entirely of what we service editors call "Company Notes"—items of the outfits written by men in the outfits themselves. Occasionally there will be an account of an athletic contest, or a tabulated team standing of the Tank Battalion intra-battalion contests. Individuals with notable records, who reenlist, or who achieve some feature accomplishment, are written up. There have also been brief articles about mere recruits who have not attained any distinction as yet. One of the leading articles told of an interesting visit to the mills of the Lummus Cotton Gin Company. Another commented on the fact that a member of Company "C" gained something like 40 pounds in 3 months slum-diving in the mess hall of that outfit. There is no attempt to stretch beyond the limits of the Battalion area for news or for appeal.

The paper has a mail subscription rate of $1.50 per year, and an orderly Weekly, published on mimeographed room delivery rate of $1.00 per year. It carries no advertisements.

As a morale builder in the Fifteenth Tanks, this paper has been highly successful. It was founded, Major Miller says, to stimulate re-enlistments; and it is said to have succeeded admirably.

While we are on the subject of the Tank Weekly, and joining with others in handing congratulations to the Tankers for the praise they have earned, this is a good opportunity to make certain matters quite clear. When that paper was started, various persons about the garrison came to the Editor of the Infantry School News and spoke of a "surreptitious publication" set up as a rival to this paper you are now reading. They suggested that headquarters should be asked to suppress it. The present editor made a study of the situation, and placed the entire matter before General Wells with the recommendation that neither at that time nor in the future should any such suppression be carried out.

In days before the Infantry School News adopted its present inflexible rule never to omit to publish any "company notes" that arrived before press time, it was true that notes from the Tankers were not appearing regularly in this paper. There seemed to be a demand in that Battalion for such a battalion paper. It was felt that the Tank Weekly would handle all purely Tank matters and that the Infantry School News might cover those Tank activities that were of general interest to the garrison at large. This is the policy being followed today. For instance, when Tank

All Benning-ites should be glad to companies play baseball against one another, the results are of interest almost solely among the Tankers. Such appear in the Tank Weekly. When the Tank Battalion plays and defeats the 24th Reds, the results are of interest to the entire command. Such results are covered in full detail by our Sporting Editor, in fuller detail, in fact, than they appear in the Tank Weekly itself.

> As far as emnity or rivalry are concerned, we desire to point to the fact that we have never slighted the Tank athletic teams. Since the "Satellite" column was started in this paper, we have written up: Sergeants Sweeney, Swantic, Bertelman, Lindsey and Ansley Smith-five men from a single battalion, which is an exceptionally high average.

> We are proud of the Tankers and consider them an exceptionally active and valuable portion of this command.

> Each paper has its own field. There is no rivalry between the two, for the Infantry School News is a larger paper trying to do larger things in a larger field. Although there is a disparity in subscription prices, that matter is immaterial. Printing several times as many words per week, reproducing pho-> this of current interest, using a high quality paper, reaching every organization in the garrison and carrying a large paid up outside mailing list, the Infantry School News is trying to do something quite different from what the Tank Weekly is trying to do.

> The only similarity between the two papers that is apparent to the editorial staff of the Infantry School News is the emphasis both editors place on "company notes" which are believed to be the best morale builders and re-enlistment getters in the military service. Some company commanders in the Engineers, Gas, 24th and 29th realize this and support the Infantry School News with subscriptions and with constant notes for publication. Since last December there has been notable improvement in both of these directions; notes have been coming in better and our subscription list has tripled. But others have still to be converted. Perhaps if those company commanders will contemplate the acknowledged and recognized value of these notes, they will be convinced.

The Editor of the Infantry School News would like to disabuse the minds of personnel here at Fort Benning of that ancient shibboleth of rivalry between a modest, battalion sheet and a more pretentious attempt like the Infantry School News. We hope that we are doing our job as well as the Tankers are doing theirs.

Far from gritting our teeth with envy, as someone suggested the other day that we might be doing, the Infantry School News editors are glad to join with other appreciative souls in congratulating the little Tank Battalion Weekly for meriting such distinguished semi-official praise and Major Miller, the Tank Commander, for such a splendid re-enlistment record.

Harry Smith, king of the Print Shop has come back from his furlough all primed up about New York and the good time that he had.

Welcome to the new men that have arrived in the detachment. While our door mat does not say it, we mean it.

Private Wade H. Benson, Chief Motorcycle Mechanic, has frequently and of his own accord returned for duty in the afternoons. This organization is to be congratulated that it has a man who gives so unsparingly of his efforts to keep in operation the motorcycles on hand at this station that have already out-lived their usefulness.

Tech. Sgt. C. M. Watkins has returned from furlough and is back on the job with lots of energy. He will not remain long, as he has been ordered to Camp Holabird for a course in Auto Repairing.

Pfc. Espey Widgeon was discharged and re-enlisted on Friday, the thirteenth.

He is now on a three months furlough.

"Forward" is the watchword of the C. W. S., whether in work or play; and this word seems to hit the nail squarely on the head when applied to our ball team. For Sgt. Leuze's Gas Bums, who have certainly been doing their bit, are fully determined to keep a-going.

When a soldier exclaims that he is soon to be a free man, he really means that in so far as the army cannot claim him after a few more days and a roll over he will be more or less his own boss. But in this particular case we have Tommy Brightwell, our ex-Gum Shoe Artist, who seems to be undecided. The writer upon learning this fact was inclined to think he could prevent the good old C. W. S. losing one of its most valued N. C. O.'s.

Now Tommy is a man of few words, so after an extremely short interview we had all the dope on him that we could squeeze out. Nothing short of a modern miracle could cause him to decide definitely while there was yet time. It was found, however, that should he recall the good old times spent under a C. W. S. hat cord, his choice would be another three year course in Gasology, and that he would take unto himself a flivver.

Furthermore, as he is now an old-time Gas Bum we might suggest to the powers that be, that they be most liberal with the chevrons, for we wish to keep Tommy with us for a long time.

The Old Army. The New Army. For the past five or ten years, during which the new army came into existence, the enlisted and commissioned personnel have been far superior in every respect to that which composed the old army. Whereas in the old army the greater portion of the men were fighters and only that, the new army is proud to say that beside having as good a fighting army as ever before, it has in addition a large percentage, indeed the majority of men in it, who are more highly educated than the old army could ever boast in its entire existence.

This need not be construed to mean that the old army was not as good in its time as the new army is in the present. Many opportunities for advancement which now obtain were not available in the past and, as it was, the old army was O. K. But it is out of place and nil when compared with the efficiency of the new.

Why harp on such a subject in The Infantry School News and especially in a column, supposedly for the purpose of news from the organization? For the simple reason that it is wondered why we are continually hearing of the wonderful attributes and merits of the old army with an insinuating tone of voice which attacks the new army as voice which attacks the new army as though the latter were nothing but a group of Boy Scouts who have just been entered into that organization?

BIG FOURTH INNING WINS FOR TANKERS OVER TAILENDERS

Six Runs in One Turn at Bat Cooks Goose of 1st Battalion.

` That big explosion Wednesday afternoon wasn't an ammunition dump going skyward. It was the First Battalion blowing up in the fourth frame of their contest with the Terrible Tankers. After three and a half frames of score-less airtight baseball the ascension of the Doughboys was startling in its sud-denness. Three hits — two of them within the inner works—combined with four errors and a passed ball in just the right proportion to let a cool half dozen Tank tallies trickle over the plate. Such a dropping of perfect throws hasn't been seen on Gowdy Field this year.

It would have saved time and trouble to write finis to the game at this point, but the rules call for nine turns at bat for the losing team, and so the contest dragged wearily on. A final canvass of the count showed it to be 7-3 with the Tanks elected without a runoff.

The fielding of "Little Smitty" short furnished a welcome relief froh the ennui of the afternoon. "Cue Ball" reached a mile or two on more than one occasion to save his infielders errors. A lengthy scene with the um-pire, practically all the players having speaking parts, enlivened the proceedings. Sweeney battled lefthanded and made three hits. Berthiaume came out of a long slump and got a couple of blows. Sigel connected for his first safety of the year. Box score:

GUNNERS SMOTHERED BY REDS IN SLOW FEATURELESS GAME

Artillerymen, Minus Douglass, N Match for Swatting West Enders.

Douglass got a hurry call from Albany to bolster the receiving department of that Southeastern League team, and so the Artillery faced the Reds on Gowdy Field Tuesday without the big boy's services behind the plate. There was no more difference in the play of the Gunners than there is between the salute of a thirty year man and that of a two day rookie. The fourth grade team of the Squash Corners' school would have been ashamed of some of the fielding and baserunning turned in by the caisson wildow. riders.

TRIPLE PLAY IS FEATURE OF WIN BY HOWITZERS

Jazz Magoni Hits Into Gowdy Field's First Three-Ply Killing.

The irrepressible Jazz Magoni strolled to the plate in the fifth inning of Monday's Class "B" game between the Jazz Babies and the Howitzer Company, with members of the I. S. D. younger set on first and second and nobody out. The master minding manager opined that it would be a fine idea to sacrifice his boys along a sack and thereby preserve his 1.000 batting average. Accordingly the bunt signal was flashed and on the first pitch Jazz gently tapped the pill and dashed for the first sack, but Foster, pitching for the One Pounders seized it in mid-air, hurled to Miller at second to double up Weiss, and the The irrepressible Jazz at second to double up Weiss, and the second sacker sped the ball to A. #### BLUES KEEP IN PENNANT FIGHT BY 8-3 VICTORY

Leonard Outpitches Tolle to Score Handily Over I. S. D.

When umpire-in-chief Jimmy Dennis announced Leonard and Tolle as op-posing pitchers for Saturday's fracas between the Blues and the I. S. D., fans remembered their recent sensa-tional ten frame hurling duel and settled back for another such treat. But Wee Grady was decidedly not up to his previous form and Leonard was touched at a lively rate through-out the melee. The Blues had all the best of the battling and scored an 8-3 triumph without undue exertion. Grady's support was faulty, especially after the game was held up in the sixth ion account of rain and the ball became slippery. On the other hand the Blues gave their slinger staunch support all the way, and went on to win in a walk.

Seats was the principal willow wielder for the winners, banging out three in five. McDuffie and Dawson inserted two safeties each and Leonard helped his own cause along by driving a double against the scoreboard and lifting a long sacrifice loft that scored a runner from third.

Tolle and Trott, the I. S. D. battery, did most of the Detachment hitting, the big receiver having two blows, while Grady's three and a sacrifice gave him a perfect day at bat. For the second time within a week the little pitcher scattered his hits all over the field; right, center and left, each providing a landing place for a safety Box score:

SWEEPING AHEAD FROM BEGINNING PONTONIERS WIN

Gas Regiment Succumbs to Fatal Initial Frame in Wednesday Game.

It is a hard task to spot your foes eight runs and then try to beat them out down the short stretch of a seven inning contest. Yet that is what the Gas Regiment tried to do Wednesday afternoon when they met the agile

Save for the fatal first when errors, wild pitches, and bases on balls stretched five enemy hits into eight tallies, the smoke throwers put up a fine exhibition. The infield staved off every attack, and it was only three-ply blow following an error and followed by an error that enabled the bridge builders to tally again. Neal, of the Gas Bums, who moved from the initial sack to the mitt and mask position, was the life of the team, and his base sliding was a caution.

Note the two smasning drives, one a two-cushion crash that chased a comrade home. Tucker's big bludgeon also contributed largely to the victory.

Morrow, Tucker and Averitt pulled a very unusual double play in the very first inning. With Hankins on first and nobody out, Collins cracked one on a line over Morrow's head. The Howitzer twirler made a grab but barely touched the speeding ball, defecting it sufficiently, however for Tucker, covering second as Hankins started to steal, to catch it squarely over the sack ere it struck the ground.

HOWITZERS ON TOP OF LEAGUE AFTER BEATING ENGINEERS

Early Start By 29th Boys Brings 5-3 Surprise Victory.

If you hear some soldier singing "I'm Sitting On Top of the World" in a particularly joyous manner mark him down as a member of the Howitzer Company of the Demonstration Doughboys; and if you meet a melancholy mortal, moaning mournfully, look for the Red Diamond on his sleeve. This contrast of mirth and gloom results from last Thursday's Class "B" game, wherein the baby cannon boys forced forced the bitter pill of defeat down the reluctant throats of the bridgebuild-Slomebody was bound to get a bad attack of blues, though, as both teams entered the fray with records unmarked on the losing side.

The Howitzers played the part of the early bird, grabbed off five runs in the first two frames, stood off all attacks by the pontoniers except one three-run outbreak in the sixth, and scored a well deserved win over their supposedly stronger opponents. Morrow was the winning hurler while Longboy Cameron drew the losing assignment. Although he yielded one more hit than his rival, Morrow outpitched the Engineer ace and did his bit at bat with two smashing drives.

MULE SKINNERS GIVE FIRST LOSS TO ONE POUNDERS

Silvers Holds Howitzers in Check in Postponed Contest Sunday.

Save for a disastrous first inning, the inter-necine strife between the Howitzer gunners and the Muleskinners of the Demonstration Doughboys was a pretty pitchers battle. Morrow for the little cannon crew lived up to his reputation as a fine twirler, yielded no free tickets to the initial corner, and struck out nine. Opposing him was Silvers of the wagoneers, erst-while victor for the Special Units over the Infantry School Detachment last year, and regular first sacker for his company nine this season. Silvers likewise presented no free transportation. and he piled up six of the split trail and stove pipe handlers for strike outs. Except two who pilfered the sack and died there, no opponent reached third. But Silvers had the edge for he permitted only two safe bingles, while seven were garnered off Morrow, seven bunched together like the days of the week, and in a great measure rated as safeties on account of merely listless fielding by the Howitzers in the opening stanza.

It was that same opening stanza that decided the game. An inexcusable error paved the way for a procession, and three solid blows started the run getting, Lotz putting over his fine three bagger at this point. McCaslin almost won the league prize for the first ball over the fence, for his lofty triple in the sixth from which he scored later on Davenport's sacrifice fly to the same garden, hit close to the top of the netting. Miller, jerked in from the near side pasture in the midst of the first inning tumult, performed in fine fashion around the second sack, handling two put-outs and four assists without an error in Gowdy League style.

TANKS TOPPLE REDS FROM LEAGUE LEAD BY SCORING FOUR

Frenzied Fourth Frame Allows Harris To Trim Vance in Duel.

Vance has pitched enough baseball on Gowdy Field to be thoroughly fa-miliar with the location of home base. but Friday he suffered from a sudden attack of amnesia or generosity or other kindred disease, and thereby cost the Reds the lead in the Gowdy Cup League. Maybe Friday the thirteenth had the tall righthander hoodooed, but whatever the reason, the Tanks are duly thankful for the unexpected out burst of liberality as it enabled them to get right back in the thick of the pennant fight.

It all happened in the fourth inning after the rampagious Reds had broken through Slim Harris for a two run lead and seemed headed for victory, as Vance was pitching unbeatable tory, as Vance was pitching unbeatable ball. Sweeney's pop foul was easy for Sloan Williams. Then Vance paved the way for his downfall by hitting Irish Jimmy Meehan, and sending Smith, late of the Artillery, to first via the four ball route. Mays forced Cue Ball at second, King, unassisted, but beat the attempted twin killing by fast sprinting. Once more Vance's aim was bad and Rogers strolled to congest the base pathtraffic. Still there were two out and nothing much to worry about. out and nothing much to worry about. On the first pitched ball Gilchrist, Red receiver, interfered with A. Smith's swing and Jazz Magoni, umping behind the plate, waved the big Tank hind the plate, waved the big Tank marksman to first. There was nowhere else for Meehan to go and so he went home with the first Tank tally. The West Enders argued with Magoni with trars in their eyes, but Jazz was adamant. Upset by this incident, McCrary made a bad toss to first after a fine stop of Harris' grasser in deep short, on which Mays and Rogers rollicked home. Hall cracked a single to center and A. Smith rumbled over the plate. W. Smith popped to King to end the turmoil, but the damage was done beyond repair. done beyond repair.

The West Endlers added a final counter in the ninth on Sloan Williams' slam to right for two sacks and Sweeney's error, but couldn't get the needed marker to tie.

Harris pitched cool, canny, cunning baseball. He alloted six hits to the Reds, but no two of them came in the same inning, and although three of the safeties were for extra sacks the tall twirler was never disturbed and in every crisis calmly curved his teasing delivery just out of reach of Red bats. His change of pace consisted in throwing a slow ball and following with one even slower, but it was ef-outside of the fatal fourth, Vance was never better. Tanks totalled only two hits during the fray and nine went disconsolately back to the dugout after the third futile swing. W. Smith and King turned in the fancy fielding performances.

RAIN HALTS REDS WITH 10-1 SCORE OVER FIRST BATS

West Enders Return to Winning Habits Against Slippery McGaha.

Touching him up for four hits and as many runs inthe first two stanzas of Sunday afternoon's game ,the 24th Infantry Reds established a comfortable lead over McGaha and his diamond backers, supplemented with further avalanches so that when the rain descended and the floods came at the end of the seventh the score stood 10-1 in favor of the battling sunsettroops.

A good measure of strike outs, and two scant hits off his delivery, were Vance's contribution to the old ball game. Except for Sheriff who scored in the fourthon a gratis ticket, a stolen base and a single by McGaha and Azbill who pilfered second later, not a First Batgot beyond first base.

The ramping Reds were loose with their bats again, after their defeats at the hands of Slim Harris and Lefty Carnes. By deft sacrificing and base stealing, they stretched twelve hits into stealing, they stretched twelve hits into a round ten runs—and ten were enough to win with a good margin. Berthiaume played his usual flashy game around the second sack, with six pretty scoops of ground balls, and the error charged against him was the kind that the best players make when they try fast for the difficult ones instead of easing about and watching them go by about and watching them go by.

Although the First Bats did not matchthe Reds basestealing, they did very well against the accurate pegs of Gilchrist, making the mid-way station twice out of four tries.

SERVICE COMPANY ENTERS WIN LIST BY BEATING I. S. D.

Muleskinners Added to List of Teams Failing to Shutout Jazz Babies.

Class "B" teams now have an unusual objective when playing Magoni's extraordinary collection of Jazz Babies. Not that the Infants are hard to de feat, but they have yet to be shutout in any encounter in spite of the fact that they have never scored more than two runs in any game and have reached that high water mark only once Therefore rival outfits are exceeding-ly anxious to apply the whitewash

Friday's escape was unusual. In the sixth inning Johnny Heisler, the I. S. D. attack, knocked out his third successive single and went to second successive single and went to second when Chester Gray nearly caused heart failure by dropping a surprise bingle in right. Polack Woidyla hit nothing but the breeze, but Heisler stole the hot corner on the third wild swing. F. Smith looped a long loft into right field and Davenport camped under it. With the crack of the bat Gray lowered his head and dashed for second like a slum diver going to the mass hall. Johnny meanwhile wisely held third waiting for the catch. Davenport easily nabbed the ball, but didn't know what to do with it as Heisler sprinted for the plate and Gray continued his mad career around the paths. Finally under the repeated urges of his team mates the right gardener heaved to first where Silvers kindly muffed the throw and permitted the ball to roll almost to the dugout. Lotz dashed all the way across the diamond from short, retrieved the wandering pill and tagged the first sack, retiring Gray for the third out, but by this time Heisler was in the dugout drinking water. Hence the marker counted as the third hand was neither a force out nor was he out before reaching first base.

I almost forgot to mention that the Service Company piled up fourteen

NEWMAN FANS MANY ARTILLERYMEN KELLYS HIT HARD

Big, husky Newman slugging first baseman of the Kellys, made his Gowdy Cup debut as a pitcher Saturday First Battalion slinger, Thursday atwith the hard hitting gunners from the 83rd as his opponents, and the rage that the Demonstration Doughboy hefty southpaw celebrated the occasion by famning fourteen caisson riders and permitting only one hit during the nine innings of the afternoon's pastime.

The big boy with the infectious grin had more on the ball than Colonel Johnson has medals and, breezed them from breaks in Mac's support, additionally additionally and the batternoon's pastime. by the batters so fast that the hitter usually swung after the ball had plunked in McCarthy's big mitt. He was a trifle wild, passing seven, but with men on the sacks was as stingy as a Q. M. issuing coal. Here's an example. Inf the sixth, he gave Douglas four consecutive, wild, wild, wide ones, and then with the sack occupied, threw seven straight strikes, one "ball" and one across the pan that went for an easy pop-up to retire the side. Hirtz-ler's single to center in the fourth frame spoiled the closest approach to a no-hit game we have had this season.

While Newman was setting the gunners down with great regularity, the Kels were taking very kindly to the offerings of Kanaki Rathal and scored an even ten runs, nine more than were absolutely essential to victory. Four of them came in the very first inning and settled the result, as it was apparent from the start that barring accidents, the artillerymen were helpless on offense. Newman, Durbin and McCarthy packed the heaviest bats for the doughboys.

In the field the Kels played steadily. Newman's strike out string kept the fielders idle most of the time, but when opportunity offered they were on the job. In the ninth Willis made a fine stop of Hirtzler's grounder with Reed on first. A perfect peg to Dur-bin at the midway station, and a lightning relay to Harkey at first com-pleted the prettiest twin killing of the season.

MAYS IS VICTIM OF HEAVY FIRE BY CANNONEERS

Big Lefthander Hurls One Hit Shutout Doughboy Righthander Shelled From As Mates Score Ten Times. Mound By 83rd Gunners.

Gunners from the 83rd Field Artillery opened a terrific fire on Mays, ed to the six dynamited over off Mays. proved too many for the infantrymen. and the First Battalion continued on towards a new record for consecutive losses.

The gravel crushers launched a counter attack in the fourth that almost snatched victory from defeat. For three innings short, stocky Bruno threw them past the batters with conspicuous success, but in the next frame ran into more trouble than a private failing to salute a newly made second louie. Sheriff, Ashe, Brzostoski and McGaha singled successively, jamming two runs over. ## KELLYS CLIMB TO TOP OF STANDING BY BEATING BLUES Brilliantly Backed. Blues in Crucial Game.

Kellys reached the summit of Pennant Mountain Monday, by scrambling over the prostrate form of the Blues and all they have to do now is to stay there, which is easy enough to say, but may be more difficult to accomplish. The top of the league was reached by downing the West Enders 4 to 1.

The puzzling delivery of Carnes, who recently tamed the Roaring Reds, was equally effective against the Battling Blues. The long left-hander with the contortionist windup limited Haywood and Company to five safe hits and permitted only one hositle runto circumnavigate the base paths.

Behind him, his supporting cast broke up every enemy attack by a dazzling display of fielding. In the very first inning, the Kel himself played the leading role. With Blues on first and second and one away Haywood slammed a drive ticketed for the scoreboard, but Kelly rushed far to his left and made a one hand stumbling catch that sent the stands into ecstacies. It was a simple matter to double Powell off second as the Blue first sacker was rounding third as Kjelstrom grabbed the ball.

Haywood hit in hard luck through out the game. In the eighth Willis leaped in the air and pulled in a screaming liner from the bat of the Blue captain. A toss to Durbin doubled up Seats off the middle station. Again in the eighth Carnes stuck out his gloved right hand and speared a bid for a hit by the West End third sacker.

Leonard opposed Carnes and pitched well enough to win almost any ball game, but breaks in the Blue defense spelled defeat. In the fifth, wild throws by the Blue heaver allowed Parris to score, and in the sixth Powell's muft of a thrown ball, paved the way for the three Kelly scores that sewed up the contest. McDuffie's centerfielding stood out in sharp relief against a somber background of his mates' misplays. In the seventh the long out-fielder ran back to the scoreboard to get Willis' drive which was so ap-parently uncatchable that "Slick" was the most surprised man in the world when waved off third by the umpire. To add insult to injury McDuffie went deep into right center in the eighth and speared big Newman's terrific try for a triple. A conviction for grand lara triple. A conviction to save ceny could be easily secured on either of these catches.

Durbin covered miles of territory in the short field and turned in a number of feature plays, his pickup and lightning throw of McDuffie's roller 52 W. 46th St.

SQUIRREL IS BACK AT FORT BENNING IN TIME TO SWIM

For Active Duty as Reserve Officer.

Wednesday a lieutenant of the reserve corps entered the garrison and "signed in" for fifteen days active duty training under his reserve commission.

Company "B" of the 15th Tanks gave a loud cheer when they saw him com ing, for Maurice W. Squirrel was long a member of that or ganization and, known as one of the best all swimmers round 01 Benning, did much un der the tutelage "Jimmy" Taylor of put that outfit in the very forefront of aquatics in the old swimming pool.

After being senior life guard at the pool and conductor of very successful life saving instruction he left to become Assistant Recreation Director of the City of Columbus, and thence took over athletics at Daytona Beach. He is now leaving that Florida post to take charge of a new recreation sys-tem to be installed at Clearwater, Florida.

While wearing the Sam Browne belt with the tri-color triangle outfit, he will go on the pistol range, fire the machine gun and six-pounder from a ruoving tank, keep his hand in at tank driving himself, practice writing of field orders, brush up on tank tactics, and go through the routine of preparing tanks and their supply facilities for combat.

But there is one other angle about his arrival at the fort at this time. If officers are to be permitted to swim in the annual meet which is announced for the fourth of September, the ad-'Continued on page 2.)

HISTORY OF SONGS OF LEAD-THE-WAY REGIMENT AT FORT

Former Tank Sergeant Returns Splendidly Printed Sheets of Music Now Distributed and Adopted

> Ten thousand copies of the two regimental songs have been printed in the form of handsome sheet music, arranged for piano and vocal rendition, bound with a specially decorated cover, and distributed to all officers and men of the outfit, sent to all band leaders of the army, to talking ma chine companies, to of cials of the War Department, and to the other selected officials, as well as to John Philip Sousa and Pryor. Officially autographed copies have been filed for reference purposes with the Adjutant General of the Army, the Army Music School, The Chief of Infantry, the Congressional Library, 29th Infantry Headquarters, and Headquarters of the Infantry School.

The idea of a regimental song was first proposed by Captain C. A. Pritchett, 29th Infantry, then Adjutant. song contest was announced in a cirin 1925, and a prize of $25.00 was offered for the writer of the song selected. About fifteen songs were submitted by various officers and soldiers (Continued on page 2.)

SECOND BATTALION AQUATIC ARTISTS WIN SWIMMING MEET

Last Saturday's Contests Are Interest-ing and Closely Fought. Improvement Shown.

Going out in the lead from the start and making their rivals take the wash from the very first event, the athletes of the Second Battalion of the 29th Infantry won the regimental swimming meet in the garrison pool last Saturday morning with more points to their credit than the combined scores of their opposing teams. Except for the relay, in which the First Bats sprang a sur-prise and nosed in first, and the fancy dive which was taken in excellent style by "Red" Newman, the Second Bats won every event.

Thompson, rapidly improving substitute catcher for the Kelly's who later dove his way to a second place, took the hundred yard dash in fine fashion, demonstrating power and speed and never being really pushed. Not far behind him came McGovern, one of the products of the Howitzer's newly aroused interest in aquatics and show aroused interest in aquation ing the effect of his training.

COMMANDANT BACK AFTER SEVEN WEEKS ABSENCE IN NORTH

General Collins Arrives at Garrison Fi And Ready for Academic Year.

Last Friday evening General Collins returned to the garrison on the evening train from the north, after a short stay at Walter Reed Hospital and an enjoyable month's leave of absence spent in the city of Washington and in the vacation areas of northern New York state.

Among his first comments upon his return were on the energy and valuable activity being displayed in the build ing of a new Quartermaster filling station and a modern bakery with materials salvaged from Muscle Shoals.

Monday morning, accompanied by Colonel Helms, he made a brief tour of the garrison, visiting the newly arranged area of the Engineers, and the Utilities installations and shops. He surveyed the demolition area where the new barracks will stand and the attractive new tent camp of the energetic Eighty-third.

A trip into the Quartermaster district revealed to him the progress that trict revealed to him the progress that had been made in constructing a new official filling station and a bakery at exceptionally slight expense from materials hauled across from Muscle Shoals. Through the 29th Infantry tent town want the hig Coddillor with tent town went the big Cadillac with the star for a view of the activities at the saw mill, and to Biglerville, where he went into the problem of housing incoming student officers.

YOUNG RIFLEMAN IN TWENTY-NINTH PERFORMS STUNTS

At Last Minute Learns Shooting Left Handed and Becomes Sharpshooter.

Private Edward Earl, of Company 'A", 29th Infantry, has shown grit and determination. Finding on the rifle range that his right eye was going blind and compelled to shoot awaiting extended surgical investigations, this youngster who just enlisted in May at Atlantic City, followed the advice of his company officers and learned to shoot left-handed, using his left eye to aim the rifle, and he qualified as a Sharpshooter, making 298 out of a possible 350.

When first he went on the range, he complained he could not see the bull's eye. A visit to the hospital revealed vision in that optic far below normal, rating only about 20 per cent. of what it should be. His company commander put a request in through official military channels to get him excused from shooting in the annual record target practice. But even while the papers in his case were wending their way from letter tray to letter tray and from desk to desk, accumulating en-dorsements at every turn, young Earl, who looks like a mere 16-year-old boy, though actually of an age suitable for enlistment, that is eighteen, began to pick up the knack of handling the army Springfield as it should be han-

Closing his right eye, and squinting along the front and rear sights of his rifle with his left, he aimed his gun at the target and squeeze the trigger. He repeated the operation with increasing success, and finally went out and fired the record course. In spite of his disability, and the need of learning the new tricks in such a short time, he made the excellent score of 298. well over the 290 required for a rating as a sharpshooter, rating twenty-fifth in a list of a hundred and fifty who have already completed their fir-ing in the record course.

Tuesday evening the 17th of this month, the Regimental March of the 29th Infantry, "WE LEAD THE WAY", was given the place of honor on the program of the concert by the Army Music School at Washangton, D. C., and Sergeant meeks reports that he not only enjoyed playing it up there, but that it was well received and made quite a hit. The "Hymn" was also broadcast by the Army Band when that famous organization was on the air the other evening.

Co. "C", 15th Tank Bn.

Down in the Tanks they take in big men—not only take them in that way but true to the slogan that "The Army Builds Men," they grow them big too.

When Archie Harrell stooped to enter the doorway of "C" Company's orderly room last April, reporting in for duty, he stood six feet three in his bare feet and weighed 180 pounds. This big John from central Tennessee, where they have long men and long rifles, promptly attracted attention by virtue of his size and his erect carriage and his hardness of muscle. Immediately the Terrible Tankers saw prospects of a new athletic recruit for their boxing and football teams, with a little wrestling thrown in on the side. But they opened their eyes still wider when they found that active life and good chow in "C" Company of the Tanks put 40 pounds on this enormous lad in the short space of four months.

Nor has he stopped growing yet, this 19-year old soldier, and they have to issue him uniform clothing a couple of sizes too large in the beginning, for the size expands and expands. Some day we almost expect to see him lift a March VIII Heavy into the air and toss it gently over the summit of Bou-ton Hill.

Indeed, his growth is not merely physical either. Coming to the Tanks without previous service, he decided he would have to learn a lot about this would have to learn a lot about this man's army, where there was so much strange and new going on. Lieutenant Grady spied him turning the pages of a little book, not far from the size of Captain Billy's "Whizz Bang."

"What are you doing?" asked the hunter-trapper editor of the Tank Weekly. "Studying law, Sir!" said the boy; and there he was during an off-bour getting into his head the substance.

hour getting into his head the substance of the Manual of Interior Guard Duty,

This spirit of progress and desire to nd out what it was all about bore find out early fruit, and although the lad en-listed only in April, by July he was already a Tank specialist, pleased with his environment and rarin' to go.

of the regiment and the following officers acted by appointment of the Colonel, as a preliminary committee of judges on musical compositions and verses. Major Elmer F. Rice, Inf.; Capt. John K. Rice, Inf.; Capt. Clifton A. Pritchett, 29th Inf.; Capt. Geo. L. King. 29th Inf. (Hon.), and 1st Lt. Frank H. Blodgett, 29th Inf.

Manuscripts were numbered and the names of candidates carefully erased. and the different entries were played and classified on the basis of suitability (rythm, medolies, compass) and popularity (tune, catchiness, form). Three were selected as coming within the basic requirements of a regimental song—Captains King and Pritchett acting in advisory capacities only and casting no votes.

There has recently come to the atten-There has recently come to the attention of many of us a certain ever-happy sergeant. Regardless of where he may he his mouth is always puckered in a whistling pout. He was heard to whistle "The Turkey in the Straw". Is it any wonder, when we think how Irish he is? Of course, by this time every one knows him as Sergeant O'Neal who is in charge of the Main Theatre. Also notice his two Main Theatre. Also notice his two young children. One makes known to the spectators at the theatre the fact that he is a "Sheik" and the other silently but very effectively, returns any remark which designates her as a kid, with the gentle repartee of "So's your old man" by placing into a conscious position her white gen which spicuous position her white cap, which bears that legend. We believe that it is well worth the price of a sack of peanuts or pop-corn just to speak with these two O'Neals.

A warning to the patrons of the aforementioned theatre. Should Lee Leonard ,the gentleman who collects the tickets thereat, address you in a confidential manner, be on your guard, lest he ask you if your cravat is government issue and give it a sudden jerk, causing you the inconvenience and embarrassment to refix it while standing in the lobby of the show-house.

WASTED HIS LEAVE, LOST FOREIGN SERVICE CREDIT, BUT SAVED (?) SOME MONEY

An officer of the Army bumped a native while automobling just before his tour of duty was up in Honolulu. He handed the boy a greenback and forgot it.

Shortly after his return to the states Shortly after his return to the statemene was served notice of suit and took leave to return to the islands to defend. Lost the case and returned to the U.S. after appealing. Case again came up for trial. He again took leave, lost and appealed. Case came up third time. His leave credit was exhausted; was unable to get leave on half-pay and finally had to surrender credit for foreign service, applying for station in Honolulu to get back for trial trial

He won the third trial, but lost:
(1) Leave credit; (2) foreign service
credit; (3) time; (4) trouble; (5)
attorneys fees; (6) expense.

He could have saved all of these by
an investment in PERSONAL LIABILITY insurance.

ENGINEER HOPES GET SEVERE JOLT WHEN MULESKINNERS WIN

Service Company Trims Pontoniers By Two Run Margin.

A six is better than a four, or at least the automobile experts tell us so, and the Service Company baseball team arises to concur in the opinion, giving as supporting evidence the fact that its half dozen tallies in Tuesday's game added one to the winning list, while the quartet of Engineer runs were about as useful to the bridge builders as a petticoat to a modern flapper.

The defeat was a bitter one for the Red Diamonds as it sent the baby cannon boys from the 29th into undisputed possession of first place in the Twi light League and makes the task of capturing the Infantry School News cup an extremely difficult one.

The Muleskinners outgamed the Pontoniers to win. Twice on the short end of the score the Service Co. dough boys came from behind each time and in the sixth scored the two runs neces sary to insure victory. The box score shows no errors for the Engineers, but that's only because the sixth column is for mistakes of the hand and not of the head. The deciding tallies were directly due to mental lapses by the bridge builders. Box score:

"FOLLOW ME"

Last week's somewhat lengthly comments and congratulations on the distinction achieved by the Tank Battalion Weekly left little space for the inclusion of the really pertinent lesson which them we may, nevertheless, remind the we can apply to ourselves. In that editorial, there was some mention made of the value of "Company Notes." But it is necessary to lay particular emphasis on the fact that it was the punch, and steam, and enthusiasm of the company notes in the Tank Weekly that earned the commendation of the "Recruiting News "

This is a lesson that may well be taken to heart. You writers of company notes take it to heart. Don't make your company notes simply statements as to who is discharged, or re-enlisted, or on furlough. Put in there a little of your admiration for your own outfit.

In our more general news stories and in our editorials, the editors of the Infantry School News cannot call this unit or that one "the best" in the army, or anything of that sort. If we did, the commanding officer of each other unit commanding officer of each other unit at Halifax. on the post would have us on the telephone within five minutes after our issue was distributed. They would actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actually actu cuse us of partiality. They might even have us on the carpet, as we know by experience. We cannot talk too enthusiastically about any one unit in this fighting for the life of a new nation garrison without incurring the just criticism of the other units and meriting the charge of partiality.

But you writers of Company Notes, you can cut loose with that line of attack to your heart's content. Enthusiasm and praise for the accomplishments of your own companies are what give spirit and interest to Company the company reporters of the 29th Infantry have been handing in their notes with regularity the past few weeks. This is quite a change from former circumstances, and it is much appreciated by the editor of his paper, who is a strong believer in "Company Notes" in a garrison paper.

"FOLLOW ME"

Much interest was aroused in our printing in the issue of July the second a brief summary of the situation and events one hundred and fifty years ago, when the Declaration of Independence was signed. We have adopted therefore the practice of continuing hereafter to publish, on its sesquicentennial anniversary, an informative summary and explanation of each important event of the American Revolution. It was just one hundred and fifty years ago today that there was fought the "Battle of Long Island." This engagement is therefore written up in this issue of the NEWS. Each future campaign will be covered in the same fashion, on its sesquicentennial anniversary.

It is believed that these articles will be useful to members of this command as serving to remind them of some of the historic occasions of the American nation. Due to the fact that our military policy has almost always been a weak and ineffective thing and has caused greater wastage in manpower than was really necessary, the articles will not be exclusively laudatory. By present military generation of the value of a definite military policy consistent with the needs of the nation, a military policy such as we have now under the National Defense Act of 1920.

THE BATTLE OF LONG ISLAND August 27, 1776.

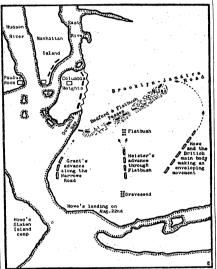

One hundred and fifty years ago this week, there occurred the beginning of the really serious part of the war against King George of England war against King George of England which we are accustomed to call the American Revolution. Lexington and Concord had aroused the colonies. Bunker Hill had tested the strength of the New England militia. The with drawal from Roston on March 17th had the line of the Hudson River and cut the revolting colonies in half. On July 4th the Continental Congress declared To opplose the 30,000 troops, the tenships of the line and twenty frigates with 1,200 guns, manned by 10,000 men, which Admiral Howe and Lord Howe had on Staten Island, Washington had been collecting troops, and to Continentals (regulars) he added about 12,000 militia, ill-equipped, ill-trained, insubordinate, and subject to the interference of provincial legislatures. He scattered his men about New York, on Notes. Let's have more of it.

Special commendation should be granted here and now for the way in which ed here and now for the way in which special commendation of greater forces.

On August 22nd, Howe moved over to Gravesend Bay, and began closer reconnaissance in the face of the harrecomaissance in the late of the har-rassing operations on which Washing-ton had determined. On the night of August 26th, the British moved. One column went along the harbor edge on the left to create a diversion. Another small column with artillery, advanced through Flatbush at the center. Howe himsel wwith the main force, swung around to the right of the range of wooded hills.

Mounted troops on the Jamaica Road had been taken away from Washington by the New York congress. Miles' regiment of riflemen heard the artillery fire at the Bedford and Flatbush passes and hastened in that direction. Howe was able, almost unopposed, to encircle the entire American left flank The outpost troops along the wooded ridge withdrew under fire from greater forces to the fortified lines at Brooklyn Heights. That night Washington skilfully and in person superintended the withdrawal of his men to Manhattan Island, knowing that he was unable to stand up before the superior numbers arrayed against him. No real "battle" to a decision took place. It was an affair of the outposts only, and the outposts wisely drew back before greater strength.

Brilliant handling by General Washington saved the American Army. Bu ington saved the American Army. But inferior numbers of comparatively untrained troops were not able to resist the invasion. New York remained in British hands until the conclusion of of the war. The value of thorough propagation and sound training told preparation and sound training told heavily. The regular florees under-Howe demonstrated the superiority of good soldiery over hastily raised soldiers, however brave or skillful as individuals. The American people had dividuals. The American people had received their first lesson in military unpreparedness.

By Ad "JOHNNY BUCK"

You've all seen th' boys a-marchin' swingin' stride an' shoulders squared; On parade;

igid ranks in measured cadence; shinin' rows of slantin' steel; Tools in trade;

Then your maiden hearts have fluttered with a longin' sweet as sin,
Or your manly bosoms yearned to
"shoulder arms" an' fight an' win,

Unafraid.

But th' cheerin' crowds will scatter and th' brass band's blarin' note'll Die away;

An' you'll bustle 'bout your business, seekin thrills or chasin' cash, seekin thrills or chasin' cash,

'Nother day;
Then you'll see a soldier minglin' 'mong
the jostlin', pushin' crowd,
An' you'll swish your skirts disdainful or you'll wonder why he's 'lowed

In your way.

So I want to introduce you to a chap you've never met;
"Johnny Buck."
'You say he looks familiar?—You'll be you've met before?"

"No such luck!"

For you're thinkin' of a loafer, an' a drunken, idlin' bum; But Johnny's not th' chap you've met-an' don't resemble none: So you're stuck.

For when he "joined th' Colors," an' they had him raise his hand

To the oath; He swore away his chance to choose, 'twixt right an' easy wrong; Nothin' loath;

Cause he'd heard his "Uncle Sammy" had a "rep" for makin' men, Out of mama's pretty, pampered pets,-an' hobos, now an' then; Usin' both.

So he slipped into th' collar; though it choked a bit at first,

'Round his chin;
An' he learned to take his bit-o'-best,

an' mix it with his worst,
With a grin And he brightened up tremendous, when he learned he had a head; For they got th' "bone" out of it, an' in his back instead; Drilled it in.

Now when Johnny first enlisted, he was maybe just a clerk;

Actin' swell;
Or a ploddin' plumber's helper or a snappy soda "jerk,"
Just as well;

But when he'd done his rookie drill an' drawn his "tailor-mades," He'd found he had to "Jack" it, at a dozen different trades; Spite of 'ell

Oh there were'nt no "Ifs" or Can Yous?, in the orders that he got; But he stuck!

An' there were'nt no kicks an' "D——Yous"; though they razzed him 'round -Just for luck:

But he learned to do his "darn' dest," an' he learned to do it right;
An' now he's "Jack" of all the trades,
an' "Johnny" in a fight;

"Johnny Buck."

So when th' stirrin' echoes of the proud, paradin' band

Die away;
n' you're bent about your business;
chasing cash or seekin' thrills;
'Nother day.

Don't forget that soldier Johnny was a

"civvie" once, his-self;
An' he's workin' hard as you are; though his "war-set" 's on th' shelf; Stored away.

n' when again th' war-drum's beat calls every mother's son; Man an' runt;

It's Johnny who will have to-in th' first red rush of war-

Bear th' brunt,
An' it's Johnny who'll chide you,
you swear an' sweat an' grumble;
For it's Johnny who must guide you, while you learn th' "rough an' tumble"

Of th' Front.

Fair Thing (Spotting his new marksman badge)—Oh, Corporal Smith, you have lost part of your badge!

Strives For Efficiency.

Sergeant Major "Gus" Hoard, Maser Sergeant 24th Infantry, is out gunning for efficiency. After a long study of blank forms and their preparation and the various required forms of corporal Merritt, who will have put in his respondence, the Sgt. Major has struck on some labor and mistake saving devices. These devices are mimeographed and correct according to the existing regulations. A note follows on the form—a sort of check list giving the essential Army Regulations numbers for reference and paragraph number so that check back can be made at once. This system has been worked out to cover furloughs, passes and many other frequently used forms, Post and regimental requirements renas been issued by the Quartermaster:
"Staff Sgt. Napoleon B. Pool, R. 1973538, Q. M. C., after more than thirty years' faithful and efficient service in the United States Army, has been placed on the retired list at this station effective August 24. 1926

The new check system instituted by Sgt. Major Hoard is already bearing fruit.

Pvt. Lindsey, Co. "E", olunteers. Pvt. Lindsey, Co. "E", is taking the course at the School for Bakers and Cooks and is greatly interested in his work and is getting a lot of keen enjoyment out of it. Recently keen enjoyment out of it. Recently he surprised his instructors by volunteering for extra duty after midnight in the pastry section of the Bakery. The N. C. O. said that the studious lad kept the force busy asking questions and hunting out new jobs. He is progressing splendidly and bids fair to be the star pupil of the class. When asked why his enthusiasm for extra work, he modestly replied that "I just wanted to learn how to make them force, cookies," cause when I got back fancy cookies, 'cause when I get back to the company I want to surprise my Mess Sergeant."

Such spirit and initiative is the kind of stuff that marks this regiment and what has contributed largely to its popularity at its present station. The regiment is justly proud of such men as Pvt. Lindsey of Co. "E".

SUMMARY OF TOURNAMENT

For the last month the gym has been crowded and busy every afternoon. For the last month, these men have skipped, boxed and punched bags and each other.

Monday night saw the commencement of the first tournament since 1923-1924, and time has ripened these men into hard hitters and good sportsmen. Before big crowds in which dignity, cigarettes were alike discoats and carded, a fine series of bouts followed for three nights.
Easler of "D" Company made the slightly trained McCarrister call for his bathrobe in the second round; Morris of the typewriter hounds used his rapier-like thrust to gain a technical knockout over Sutherland, and Green of the First Bats and Lange of the gunners fought one another to a standstill, even after an ertra round. This on Monday to open the series. Tuesday night the ancient enemies met in the ring, the Second Bats and the Tanks, and no one stepped back until he hit the floor, two battlers being "out" until they reached the dressing room. Each team gained a bout by default. Bridges' heavy ar-tillery scored in the feathers. Tanker Blount battled like a fighter for a decision in the lightweights. Tanks two to the good. Then Gorman sent the cyclonic Joris to the lockers, and Pratt got Stewart counted out after a splendid exhibition of gameness.

Two for each. And the deciding bout had the organizations so excited that the Chaplain sat between Colonel Gowen and Major Miller.

Wednesday's feature was a whirl-wind between Mesuvity of the Special Units and Garrett of the Medical De-tachment, both rugged, hard-hitters. and absorbers of punishment. The end of the racket found Garrett staggering in a daze about the ring, while Mesuvity lay on the floor and had to be carried out—game to the end, after seven knock downs, and still able to pull himself up by the ropes and go for it again.

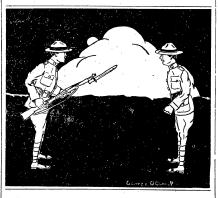

Semi-finals for the three men remaining in each weight, will be contested on Monday night. The final bouts, ending with a Garrison Chamburgham pionship in each weight, will be contested the following Friday night.

MULESKINNERS WIN FROM GASTOLOGISTS IN WEIRD CONTEST

Run Inning Turns Baseball Nin3. Game Into Farce Comedy.

If spectators in the stands at Gowdy Field last Friday had gently clappe i their hands and remarked in well mod-ulated tones, "Jolly well bowled, indleed," almost any visiting Englishman would have fancied himself at home in the tight little isle, viewing a cricket match between two fo his favorite elevens (or is it thirteens or fifteens?). For the baseball game between the a Service Company and the Phosporus (co Service Company and the Phosporus Plingers was proceeding at the same solemn and sedate speed (sort of sauntering so to speak), that marks heated contests between British bat wielders and wicket guardians. I fully expected the umpires to call time out for the asit was taken out for all out for tea, as it was taken out for almost everything else.

The Muleskinners were trailing 4 to 3 when they came to bat in the lower 3 when they came to bat in the lower bracket of the third frame, but when they staggered out on the field after utterly exhausting themselves running in circles around the base paths, the count stood 12 to 4. After that it was a race between black darkness and the end of the first half of the seventh inning, with the players doing their best to help night win. The game was finished, though,

VANCE ADDS ANOTHER SHUTOUT TO STRING WITH I. S. D. VICTIM

West Ender Continues Remarkable Hurling, Beating Tolle in Duel.

Vance, the sidearm speedball slinger of the Reds, hooked up with Grady Tolle and the Green Hats Friday afternoon on Gowdy Field, and after a spirited struggle came off with the grand prize. At widely scattered intervals three members of Captain Back's cohorts managed to hit the ball into safe territory, but none broke the finish tape stretched across the home plate. One runner sprinted as far as One runner sprinted as far as plate. One runner sprinted as far as the three-quarter post and one other reached the half-way mark. A few got as far as first. Eleven walked to the plate and tried to make connections between ball and bat, failed in the effort and walked back to the bench explaining to skeptical auditors that it was just an accident and that it wouldn't happen again.

Shed a tear for Tolle. He pitched one of his usual high class games, holdone of his dataling class games, now ing the raging Reds to four hits, fewer than they have made in any game this year, and was assaulted for only one elarned run. The West Enders made four altogether, but the three in the sixth frame resulted from some wild and woolly heaving by Detachmenteers rendered panicky by Battles' daring baserunning.

Neither Suzanne Lenglen nor the most erratic of prima donnas ever gave a greater display of temperament (charitable word for puerile petulance) than one or two of the Detachment players exhibited when things begun

Tankers Score Eight Times in Opening Frame To Cinch Contest.

Some arrangement ought to be made by the Artillerymen whereby the first opposition turn at bat doesn't count. Saturday the caisson riders collided with a Tank offensive in act 1, scene with a Tank offensive in act 1, scene 1, and the heavies and whippets rolled over them for eight large tallies, which healthy lead eventually proved entirely too much for the Redlegs. It was the fourth straight game in which Major Donaldson's lads have gotten away to such an atrocious start that subsequent good conduct proved up. subsequent good conduct proved un-subsequent good conduct proves availing.

After the debacle in the opening canto the 75-pointers rallied strongly and gamely and set out with a grim determination to stem the tide of defealt. In each of the first three rounds the gumners cut the tank lead by one run and in the fourth they added another to match one tallied by the caterpillar conductors in the first half, but after that they found the left handed shoots of Mays decidedly deceptive, and didn't make much headway. Final and it of the healts showed 12 to 6 and didn't make much headway. Final audit of the books showed 12 to 6.

Resting comfortably on their long lead the Tankers showed just enough class to keep the enemy from seriously threatening. Little Smitty, whose brilliant fielding has featured recent Tank games had a hard day of it booting. games, had a hard day of it, booting three chances, but made up at bat by crashing three beautiful blows. Rathal and Estridge carried the main burden of the Artillery attack.

FIRST BATTALION BEATS I. S. D. IN CELLAR CONFLICT

Mays Winning Pitcher in Fight to Avoid Bottom of Standing.

Rumors are rife that the I. S. D. and Rumors are rule that the I. S. D. and the First Battadion will play a seven game series for the cellar position of the Gowdy Cup League, winner to take the gate receipts and the Limburger Trophy, a hand embroidered nutmeg grater, awarded annually to that team showing the greatest benevolence to-ward its rivals. Argument pro and con as to which is the worst team had become heated, but Jazz Magoni said he'd bet any sum, not to exceed seven cents, that his Jazz Babies can lose more games than the two put together. This unexpected aspect of the situation caused much merriment, and quieted hotheads who were permitting their high temper to get the better of their calmer judgment.

All this happened Sunday after the 1st Battalion had beaten the Detachment on Gowdy Field by an 8-5 count. It was just a baseball game and that's about all that can be said. The Green Hats earned two runs in the first inning on three solid hits in a row, but the 1st Bats topped it by getting three when Durden, essaying to pitch, labored under the delusion that the home plate was somewhere up in the stands, and kept Austin, red headed Detachment receiver, badly in need of a pair of stilts. Norwood, a guitar and harmonica player of note, then went out to the hill, and stayed there until the fifth when Heckert decided that the game should be finished before dark, and sent Tolle in to do some pitching.

TOLLE FINALLY WINS STOPPING ARTILLERY WHEN BENNETT FAILS

Grady's High Grade Hurling Hoists I. S. D. From Cellar.

diminutivt, hard-working righthander from the I. S. D. fanned Cole and McAuliffe and forced Hirtzler to hit an easily handled roller to Morris. Whereupon the scorers noted in their books, "Winning pitcher: Tolle". They also jotted down "off Tolle, 1 run, i hits in 5 2- 3innings", which pertinent entry proved that Grady deserved to win. On many another occasion this season he has deserved to win, but the jinxman has been camping on his trail, and Tuesday's encounter with the Artillery was the original hoodoo-chaser.

For once the Detachment went out

For once the Detachment went out and got some runs. Ten times Heck'ert's Huskies safely planted hefty hoofs on the rubber counting corner, for their first double figure tally sheet of the year. All this against the twist and twirl of Schulte, Musketeer and Florida flinger of repute. True the sievelike defense of the caisson riding grandians of the inner gates helped guardians of the inner gates helped the total along, but a dozen safe smash-es accounted for most of the scores Round seven was the big one, just ex actly half the runs scoring during that tumultuous session.

Bennett started the game for the Detachment and was welcomed by the gunners with great enthusiasm. He gunners with great enthusiasm. He set the side down in order in the first verse, but beginning in the second each redleg batter took a firm toehold and smote the sphere with joyous abandon. Why somebody wasn't killed trying to stop the bulletlike drives is an unsolved mystery. Heckert let Snappy take a terrific pounding until the fourth round, and then sent Grady to the rescue after Schulte's double had the rescue after Schulte's double had chased two mates home and brought the artillery duel to six. As a silencer of hostile batteries Tolle was a complete success as already narrated.

It was the finest Class "B" game of the season and so much in contrast to the slower-than-a-Service-Club-waitress" Gowdy Cup game which preceeded it, that it's a great pity there were not more spectators in the stands to enjoy the battle.

Morrow of the baby cannon boys and Pat Silvers of the Muleskinners and Pat Silvers of the Muleskinners engaged in their second hurling duel of the season and this time it was the stocky howitzerman who came off crowned withthe laurels. Behind the rival twirlers, both teams played bangup ball, the fielding being sharp and spanny with only three errors charged snappy with only three errors charged throughout the game.

All the scoring was done in round four. For the Howitzers, A. Thomas and Morrow singled with one away and when Silvers plunked Averitt in the back the sacks were jammed. Miller cracked a sharp daisy cropper to Orr, who stepped on the third sack for a forceout and wheeled to throw to second for a double. Nobody covered the middle sack in time, though, and everybody else was safe. Pierce walked to congest the runways again, and then F. Thomas spanked a beautiful line double just inside the left field line. All former tenants of the bases were safe at home, Pierce making the counting block when Orr's relay hit him in the back .

The Service Company's scores came about in this wise. Watkins walked. Cordwood Smith was tossed out at first by Miller, Sisco jarred a single into left that scored Watkins from second. taking second on the futille throw to the plate. Dean scratched a single to second sending Pat to the far cor-ner. Dean stole, and followed Silvers over the pan when Wilkenson bingled cleanly to right.

Lotz and Miller starred afield.

JAZZ BABIES BEAT BEST EFFORTS BY SCORING FIVE RUNS

of Service Q. M. C. Scores Eleven, But Magoni is Happy, Just the Same.

Bill Whitmire must have felt like one of his stockade "monkeys" trying game. to catch his shadow on the sun-baket Dor track within the wire city. At least it seemed just as hard last Monday for Bill to find the location of the home plate as it is for one of his unfortunate guests to overtake his own sun silhouette. Bill pitched till his tongue hung out, and pitched till it went in again, but with negative results. Quartermaster batters either walked or brutally battered Bill's best. Before a single hitter had been retired William had retired to the black box of the dugout.
Whitmire's successors were little improvement until the Jazz King himself strode to the mound, and permitted only 3 runs and 5 hits in 2 innings.

Q. M.'s made 11 altogether.
After scoring the inevitable run in the third inning the Jazz Babies re-fused to remain quiescent, and uprose in wrath in the fourth and smote W. Wilson's offerings to remote recesses of the pastures, scoring four earned runs. Showing that if you always keep on trying, you'll do something. Jazz brought his hitting mark up to .667 by a safety in the sixth. Afield he had no chance to improve his grabbing mark

BLUES SLAUGHTER ARTILLERYMEN IN SLUGGISH GAME

Ponder Twirls West Enders to 12-3 Victory at Gunners' Expense.

Even the best of them go to sleep or act insane upon occasion. And it was the turn of the Eighty-third Field baseball team last Thursday afternoon. Somebody should have taken Reed out on the Gowdy Field diamond before the start of the game, and showed him the location of first base. The Artillery second sacker had a vague idea that it was somewhere over in the general direction of the stands, but that was as near as he could place the sack. Consequently in the very the sack. Consequently in the very Hz Co.

first inning of the contest with the Q. M. C.

Blues he stopped two grounders and Service Co.

casually tossed the ball far out of Owens' reach. Nobody should have reached first off Pill Roller Reddick who was throwing for the caisson riders, but Reed's errors, coupled with some healty hitting by the West Enders, sent five runners rollicking home. and ruined any chance for a good ball

Don't blame it all on Reed, though, as the rest of the Gunner infielders were comrades in crime. They were present but not there. They had plen ty of chances to do nothing and accepted them all. Some seemed to have taken root while others overlooked the fact that the use of two hands is permitted in this league. The Blues scored twelve runs, but it wasn't the fault of the artillery inner works that they didn't score more. Only some really good work by the guardians of the outer pastures held the score down. The Blues played their usual wide awake game in the field and hit harder than is their custom. Nash hit for two sacks, McDuffie poled a pretty line triple to the left field corner, and Hay-wood punished the pill for a three sack drive to right and a gorgeous homer way out by the flag pole.

KELLYS JUMP ONE MORE HURDLE ON PENNANT COURSE

1st Battalion No Match for Kjelstrom's Cup Chasing Crew.

Despite frantic efforts by Lieutenant Dwyer anda his 1st Battalion supporters, the Kellys cleared another obstacle in the Gowdy Cup steeplechase and headed into the home stretch leadin the field by a length. Last Saturday the determined officer from "B" Company even went so far as to yank his starting first sacker and go out to guard the initila sack himself, where his every move was loudly cheered by the stands. Radical changes in the line-up, however, failed to help the 1st Bats to any great extent and their regimental mates cantered by the win-ning post with a 13 to 2 margin of

It looked like a real contest and a possible upset until the third inning. Harkey started rather unsteadily on the mound for the Kels and hits by Easler, Mays and Sheriff sent the 1st Battalion off to a two run start, as against one made by the 2nd Bats. After the fourth the only question was the size of the score, as the Kels began hitting savagely and the veteran Mc-Gaha wilted under a combination of bad support, the heat and the real power in the hostile attack.

Durbin and Willis fielded brilliantly.

Kjelstrom came out of a batting slump and lashed out four safe drives, one a triple just inside the first base line that burnt the grass all the way to the right field fence.

KELLY'S KONTINUE KLIMB IN KRUCIAL KONTEST

Tankers' Hopes For Second Half Flag Ruthlessly Ruined.

Captain Griffin, active adjutant and athletic fan extraordinary of the Demonstration Doughboys, stood atop the dugout shouting out loud and waving greenbacks.

Kjelstrom climbed into the stands and received a cash reward for a home run over the right field fence at Gowdy Field Monday, but the two runs scored by the blow were surplusage, as he and his crew had already compiled a total amply sufficient to subjugate the Tankers in one of the many important games now being played in the big garrison league. The prodigious punch came in round six and broke the back of the Tank resistance. From then on of the Tank resistance. From then on it was a mere exercise gallop. mate outcome, 11-5.

The game began with the stands filled with the loudest rooting gathering of the year, and for two innings was a real thriller. Then the Kels unlimbered their heavy artillery and sent Slim Harris away from there by reason of a four run assault in which everybody clouted lustily. Red Lind sey came in but wasn't able to stem the tide. The boys from Major Bowen's outfit were out for blood and couldn't be denied. Nine of their eleven runs were earned. In the early stages the Tank defense was strong, but weakened under the withering attack, the dimax coming in the eighth round when Cue Ball Smith, thinking there were three out, started throwing the ball around the infield, and allowed McCarthy to walk in from third. In McCarthy to walk in from third. In the fifth Cue Ball played Alphonse to Jimmy Meehan's Gaston and the two of them permitted Willis' gentle pop fly to fall back of first for a two bagger.

Fielding that fairly dazzled was furnished by the Kellys. High Davis' running one-hand stab of Rogers' drive in the third broke up a Tank rally and was the flashiest bit of work of the day.

REDS MAKE BLUES BLUE BY ELEVEN INNING DEFEAT

Vance's Hitting and Pitching Feature Thrilling 5-4 Battle.

Sunday Colonel Johnson and Captain Eberle sat in the stands while the Reds and Blues clashed in civil conflict. But to replace their usual officer managers the roaring Reds had "Gilky" the Barney Google boy with the taper ing top, dancer extraordinary, and ball chaser plenipotentiary. The battling Blues had no such luck-bringer and consequently lost to their regimental confreres after eleven innings of hectic and heroic baseball. Four-all was the tally at the end of the usual nine innings, but Trammel's single and steal, followed by F. Williams' scorching grounder that bounced over Driver's head for a clean single, added the fifth and deciding run to the Reds' column. This with one deceased in stanza XI.

Gather the laurels, the big cash prize, and other symbols of victory and carry them to Vance, for to him and carry them to Vance, for to him should accrue all the emoluments and rewards of the conqueror. Going to the mound in the third inning when no catcher could be found to hold the speedy shoots of the tolvering Trammel, the side arm pitcher who has beaten every team in the garrison league, was as consistently good as ever, and held the Blues to one run ever, and held the Blues to one run during his 9 inning tour of duty. Not content with this achivement he lifted the ball over the left field fence in the eighth inning with a mate resting on base to tally ahead. This herculean hoist is the first ever propelled out of the lot on the left side of the diamond by a member of the garrison.

At the time Vance took the role of Ruth, the Blues were out in front, 4 to 1, as a result of receiving inefficiency by Red recruits trying to fill the shoes of the injured catchers, Hampton and Gilchrist. The tieing tally came in the ninth on a passed ball after Trammel had reached third with two out.

The fielding of both teams was sensational, the gem of the afternoon coming when Battles proved that no catch is impossible by dashing clear over to the fence beside the stands and catching Haywood's foul, just as he crashed into the wire netting. A quick turn and throw caught Dawson trying to advance after the catch, and extricated the Reds from a mess of trouble. Seats handled nine hard chances at short McDuffie robbed F. Williams of a hit and maintained his high reputation as

MUSKETEER GRIDMEN PREPARE FOR HEAVY FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Lieutenant Potter Putting Candidates Through Preliminary Work.

Papa John's grunts and groans can be heard all over the squad room down in the I. S. D. barracks, as the big wop loudly laments sore muscles caused by the stiff exercises handed out to Musketeer football candidates, who have been foregathering every afternoon this week in the garrison gymnasium with Lieutenant Potter as torturer in chief. All aspirants for the soldler eleven except those still engaged in struggling for the Gowdy Cup and a few not now in the garrison have been working the kinks out of summer softened sinews.

Of course it is far too early to form any real judgment on the new material turning out, but as most of last year's Musketeers who gave the Leathernecks such a valiant battle in Washingtoo are again on hand Benning folk expect to see a first class team in action when the whistle blows for the opening con-

RADICAL CHANGES MADE IN COURSES FOR COMING CLASS

Allotment of Hours Announced Reveals Shifting of Emphasis in Course

Monday, September sixth, will be registration day. From September seventh to the thirteenth, the schedule is open, and will probably remain open to give the students that much time in which to get settled. On the fourteenth of September there will be held the formal opening exercises Wednesday morning, September four-teenth, assembling in Halls No. 4 and 5, and proceeding thence to Gordon Field southeast of the Dental Infirmary and across the fence from Gowdy Field, the Company Officers will begin the year's work with sighting and aiming exercises as the first step in how to squeeze the trigger in rifle marksmanship. On the same morning the Advanced Class will collect in Assembly Hall No. 3 and start in vigorously on both military sketching and map reading and rifle marksmanship.

As the courses get under way, and the schedules are studied it will become evident that considerable changes have apparently been made in the courses.

The biggest and best news will be that historical monographs have been eliminated from the work of the Com-pany Officer's Course, the five hours allotted to military history for the shoulder bar wearers being destined for listening in on monograph presentation by the members of the Advanced Course. The latter, more high ranking officers will have their monograph field changed and enlarged and more research will be required. In their work on methods instruction, there will also be included teaching in public speaking.

FILLING STATION PRODUCT OF BENNING BUILDERS

New Unit Ready for Business When Tanks Are Empty

As soon as the three big 10,000 gal labor with red clay and sand dug on lon tanks at the old station are emptied, the reservation and hauled by the Rail Mr. Marvin L. Greene, former 13th Infantry doughboy, oversea veteran of the 8th Division, machine gun expert with the 33rd Infantry in Panama, Sergeant of ordnance and motor vehicle inspector at Camp Meade, Columbus cop during 1922-23, and efficient Q M employee since that time, will fill up the big government G. M. C,'s and other vehicles over at the newly constructed filling station at Edwards street and Vibbert avenue, just beyond the new barracks and power house

The new station is an item in the permanent construction of the post. Its our 10,000 gallon tanks for gas and five 2,500 tanks for oil will provide adequate storage facilities for the large amount of petroleum products used in the garrison and will permit the removal of the unsightly old temporary heap and shack so long used as a filling station.

At an approximate cost of $6,000, the Benning Builders, under the supervision of Lieut. Colonel A. B. Warfield, have added this attractive unit to Benning construction. The building was designed by Captain Wm McK. Scott, Constructing Quartermaster, and laid out by Mr. G. H. Cooper, civil engineer of Captain Scott's office. The concrete was poured by labor from the 24th Infantry and back filling done by the same

Before the Championship baseball seres opened at Fort Benning this sea-in, the Second Battalion of the 29th cantry sent its "Lead the Way" baseantry sent its "Lead the Way" base-allers to play a preliminary game in Fairfax, Alabama. Playing with the same speed and precision that makes him now one of the outstanding short-stops of the garrison, Durbin flashed about the diamond to the admiration of the pretty girls the other side of the Chattahoochee.

Hanford MacNider's Letter.

My dear Colonel Gowen:

I appreciate the 29th Infantry Songs, which you were good enough to send to me. I have always been tremendously interested in your good organization and you can be assured that every Infantryman keeps track of the developments which this crack regiment is working out for the best arm of the service.

Yours very truly,

HANFORD MacNIDER, The Assistant Secretary of War

Fort Benning's Fifteenth Tank talion has been turning in such creditable performances in its marksmanship tests with the one pounder and the six pounder that, the Infantry Journal says, there is little more doubt as to the effective-ness of fire from tanks while in motion. On ideally selected terrain, with a on nearly selected terrain, with a smooth surface and an up-grade that held the speed of the tanks down to four miles per hour, the tanks were started 500 yards from the targets and permitted to fire until they were 100 yards away.

Following is the summary of the firing given in the Infantry Journal: "Corporal Edward J. Hinton, a sixpounder gunner, obtained seventeen clean hits on his target out of eighteen shots fired, several of which struck the bull's-eye. Another six-pounder operator, Sgt. Clarence Horseley, fired only seventeen shots, but inspection showed that he hit the 5'x6' target sixteen times. "The machine gunners in both types of tanks gave excellent accounts of tanks gave excellent accounts of themselves. Every one of the eight silhouettes was hit, and the fire was well distributed. Corporal Louis W. Patrick obtained 140 hits well dispersed over the eight targets which gave the appearance of having been fired at with a shot our a shot gun.

"The most remarkable firing of all with any type of tank weapon was the performance of Corporal Willie Fuller, who operated a 37-m. gun from a light tank while in action. While the tank tank while in action. While the tank advanced the 400 yards, he fired 33 shots and made 29 hits.

"In view of the facts that in combat tanks will not ordinarily be required to fire at targents at ranges of more than a hundred yards and that these tests required all firing to be done in excess of that distance, the effectiveness of fire from tanks is very impressive."

Q. M. DETACHMENT

After the "blow-out" given in honor of Staff Sgt. Pool, lately retired, the writer was unable to eat for a full twenty-four hours. Some party! In connection with this party, it is desired to use these columns to thank the 29th Infantry band for its participation and also Pvt. Fernandez, of Company "B," 29th Infantry, for the entertainment given by him.

Our baseball team is getting to be the best in the league and the league leaders certainly want to watch their step for the ambition of this team is to win that cup.

Outside of having the best "mess," the best baseball team, the best men and the best morale of any organization in the garrison, the Quartermaster Detachment lays no particular claim to any other outstanding honors. In other words we have no "individual cham-pions." We are all good.

The Utilities Department is glad to announce that it has someone to shoulder part of the heavy duty and answer back on part of the heavy kicks. Captain James Sproule has reported for duty and is detailed as officer in charge of roads.

Judging by the amount of paint which is being issued at present, this post should have a truly beautiful interior in spite of its be-draggled outward appearance. In addition to the two painting gangs working on schedule, any number of officers and non-commissioned officers have decided to get busy for themselves; or, perhaps their wives decided. At any rate the paint is being issued and our supply of paint brushes is down to zero.

The Logging Camp for the past couple of months has sure done noble! The mill has had enough logs, during same period, to keep it running full time with a few logs left on the ramp, which has not happened for a long time before.

YE OLDE PRINTE SHOPPE GOSSIPE

There is no activity within the Dough-hoy Garrison of which less is known than the Army Field Printing plant, Q. M. C. It began in the early days of the Fort in a small way as the Infantry School Press, but due to increasing demand for printed forms, pamphlets, stationery, recruiting posters, C. M. T. C. propaganda, and almost every conceivable form of printed matter, the shop has been enlarged by constant addition of modern equipment until its capacity is enormous, reaching an output of over five million copies of printed forms last year. This occasioned the turning over of the plant to the Quar-termaster Corps in 1923, in whose capable hands it has been since. The personnel is almost entirely furnished by the Infantry School Detachment, there being but three civilians among a force of thirty men, comprised of experienced pressmen, linotype operators, compositors, binderymen, etc. Verily, the slogan, "Earn while you learn," does not come far amiss here, there being an ex-cellent opportunity for soldiers to learn a skilled trade at the print shop if they have the old ambish and are willing to dig in.

The above press agent stuff is the result of the News Editor's advice to organization writers to lay off the "Pvt. Mah Jongg was discharged, Gum Shoe Reilly is on furlough among the Smoky ridges" sort of news for a while and to individual outfits. Wherefore, the writer hereof being a member of the Infantry School Detachment but not the press representative of that outfit, is proud to boost the print shop and states that he would not trade his job here for any in the post.

That the slogan of the Print Shop, "It Can Be Did," is not a lot of applesauce is evidenced by the copper plate which is being engraved to replace the wooden sign near the big tank at the lay it on a bit thick about the writers' entrance of the garrison, this class of work not coming within the horoscope of the ordinary printery, but which the shop has been doing for some time. If the foregoing is not sufficient space filler, we suggest that the Editor rehash some of the recent dispatches about the late Valentino for the edification of the eratwhile shieks of the garrison.

"FOLLOW ME"

has been the custom of this paper to publish in September of each year an anniversary number, celebrating the bir hday of the Infantry School News, started back in the summer of 1922 by Captain John Elkins, an Infantry School graduate now on duty at Davidson College, North Carolina, who edits the excellent Camp McClellan Messenger each summer for the R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. C. boys. It was the custom to publish each year a "Graduation Number," which would, in a way, replace the "Doughboy," giving summaries of the various activities about the garrison.

This year it appeared that it would be wise to attempt an innovation. Consequently we published in our issue at graduation time merely a brief account of the commencement exercises and a list of students and the stations to which they would go on leaving this station. We thought we could do a more useful thing if we reserved the general data concerning the various organizations and activities until the incoming students had arrived. Then our accounts of the troop units here, their history, their part in the academic work of the school, and their own training activities, would serve to orient the newcomers on the reservation.

Consequently on September 17th, our birthday issue will have, in addition to its current news, a series of articles descriptive of the character and mission of the various activities and agencies of major interest to student officers. For example, there will be brief summaries of the work of the 29th Infantry, the 24th Infantry, the 83rd Field Artillery. the 15th Tank Battalion, the 7th Engineers, the Gas Regiment troops, etc., etc., the Department of Experiment, the various departments of the Post Ex-lagainst.

change, and so on and on. There will APPROVAL SECURED also be articles on outstanding features of the city of Columbus, the Pulitzer Prize winning "Enqu'rer-Sun," the "Industrial Index," the Columbus Iron Works, the Lummus Cotton Gin Company, etc., etc., in addition to certain articles about features connected with the garrison itself, like our enlisted holders of the Distinguished Service Cross he Peace Conference Linotype, the Historical Circle, the initiation here of the War Department's new housing program, the Doughboy Stadium, etc.

Published at this time, this issue should give useful information to incoming students and instructors concerning the environment where they are to live and study during the coming academic year.

The school for the children of the garrison, located on the Fort Benning reservation, will re-open for the fall term on October 1st. The teaching staff, under the supervision of Miss Anne Louise Grimes, principal, will be composed of teachers holding the necessary qualifications and meeting the requirements of the State Board of Educa-tion. In the past the Fort Benning tion. School has maintained a high standard of instruction and the results obtained have merited the approval of the Commandant and of all concerned, Preliminary examinations will be held on September 27th for pupils who failed to take or pass the examinations for advancement in grade at the termination of the last school year. Registration of the last school year. Registration blanks for all pupils may be obtained on application to the officer in charge, Chaplain Thos. L. McKenna. Office in Catholic Chapel building; telephone 74.

AMERICAN DOUGHBOY BEST PAID FIGHTER

The American doughboy's most highly prized distinction—that of the world's best paid and best fed fighting man remains unchallenged.

His pay envelope, according to a com-parative table just compiled by the War Department, is eleven times bigger than the Japanese soldier's and its contents would pay off forty-one Italian or fifty-eight French men-at-arms.

The meal placed before one American Regular nowadays would have to suffice for 1.4 British, 1.5 Japanese, 2.4 Italian, or 2.5 French fighting men, according to the War Department announcement.

Only Great Britain approaches the United States in the amount of pay alloted to the individual soldier. The loted to the individual soldier. yearly pay per man is: United States, $252; Great Britain, $240,90; Japan, $23; Italy, $6.20, and France, $4.36.

PRESENTABLE AUTOMOBILES, Inc

Lieut, G. B. Troland, C. E.

The automobiles operated by the officers of the Post had reached such a disgraceful condition that the matter had begun to prey upon Colonel Swift's mind like the cocktail question. Would not the Inspector General at his forthcoming visit look upon an untidy pervehicle much as he would upon a motheaten uniform?

The efficiency of the command was frequently impaired by the absence of commissioned officers caused by embarrassing mechanical breakdows. The credit, social and mercantile, of the officers and of their wives was suffering. Moreover, the run of the autoing. Moreover, the run of the auto-mobiles, including the Colonel's own car, were uncomfortable, they were gas-hogs, and they were not presentable. They did not comport with the uniform. They lacked "dog" if you get what I mean.

The scheme which germinated in the brain of Col. Swift, but was elaborated by Capt. Gogetta, was to form a con-cern composed of the officers of the Post who should pool all their cars in a sizeable used-car sales establishment, the profits of which were to be used to equip the officers with new automobile—s.
Capt. Gogetta had been a successful business man before the war. At his suggestion the new company was legally incorporated under the name of "Presentable Automobiles, Inc."

The Colonel became a stockholder or director or something by contributing his 12 cylinder Pathlock, Model 1912. Lieut. Col. Slick, commanding the 1st Battalion, pooled his 4 cylinder Buick, which was one of the first automobiles to carry a glass windshield as standard

A major equipment. turned in, rather  $\mathbf{or}$ had-towed in, his friction drive S—izz with the coal-oil headlamps. Lieut. Sweet pooled his chainless bicycle just to get in on the ground floor. And so on down the line. True, Capt. Gogetta did not contribute a car to the enterprise, but his great business experience was a valuable asset to the company—about equal invalue to Col. Swift's 12 cylinder Pathlock. He was sort of the brains of the T-he Board of Directors held its first meeting after the incorporation of the company on the same day that Lieut. Col. Slick left the Post under orders for his new station. Capt. Gogetta agreed to act as proxy for him and to vote "yes" if the question of decla—ring a dividend were raised. dividend were raised.

In the days before the Leavenworth crowd introduced all these new-fangled G's and everything, Col. Swift had been regarded as somewhat of a whiz on organization. But he was now beginning to acknowledge that he was a hopeless backnumber. So, although he was firmly convinced that "Presentable Automobiles, Inc." should have been organized into squads each with a leader, etc., still he was not sure e—nough of his ground to object when a leader, etc., idea went over of incorpora—tion and control by a Board of Directors. Col. control by a Board of Directors. Coll by the Executive.

Swift was the commanding officer of the Post and all the Board of Directors were his subordinates. But was he the head of the corporation? He didn't being silenced, he remained in observation. The Board voted to spend $25.00. know and he didn't dare ask.

"I would like to inquire," broke in Col. Swift, "if the assets of the company do not include 15 automobiles instead of 14 as stated in the report?"

"One automobile has been sold, S-ir. The books show that on the 15th one 12 cylinder Pathlock automobile, model 1912, was sold to Lieut. Col. S—lick for the sum of $100.00."

Other Columbus favorites will show their wares. Gene Poyner is slated to take on Charlie Reed, welterweight champion of the 29th, in a go that should be a hair-raiser. Gene recently took a decision over the soldier, but the fight was close and many Reed par-tisans are still claiming that their man got the worst of the verdict. Anyhow, a new meeting will go far toward deciding once and for all the better man.

Colonel Johnson and Lieutenant Potter are workig hard to secure an adequate opponent for Jack Bray, one of Columbus' rising young stars. Jack says it's o. k. with him, and fans from the Electric City will almost certainly have a chance to see their fellow towns man in action.

Benny Reagan will probably come down from Atlanta to fight it out with "Red" Keenan. Benny and Red and Mickey Kendricks are fighters of the same class and have always been inveterate enemies. A match between the Atlanta bantam and the flame-topped soldier should prove a wow.

As the prospects are that the boxing and wrestling will run more to the knock-'em down and drag-'em out variety than to graceful stepping, Lieutenant Potter says that there will be a Charleston contest. He promises to secure at least two damsels of surpass-ing beauty to writhe and wiggle through the intricacies of the famous dance.

August 19, 1926.

A Warning.

To: Advisory Counciland Members who have shown special interest in the Association:

There have been reports from several posts that commercial insurance agents were attempting to switch members of the Mutual Aid Association so as to sell the policies of their own companies: There have been very few resignations from your Association; but practically all resignations and lapses that could be traced were found to be due to the influence of commercial life insurance agents, and the officers concerned have almost invariably been young and inexperienced. Financially, the Association does not lose by resignations; but the mission of the Association is to help service families; and we can do the greatest good by having the largest possible membership. We bespeak your watchfulness and support in protecting the interests of the Association and of your brother officers and their families.

We advise and urge our members to take out life insurance policies with good commercial companies. We believe that Army Officers can best protect and provide for the future of their dependents by carrying adequate policies in good companies; but we warn that it is essential for the character of the company to be high and that the wording of the policy is the beneficiaries' only proof at law.

No officer should buy, a policy until he has investigated the standing of the company and until he has analyzed the policy.

Before closing any insurance contract, members of the Army Mutual Aid Association are invited to refer all offerings to the Washington Office of the Association.

"D" Company has a qualified record to be proud of. In the first place, the company as a whole went on the range and all qualified except one. Then the recruits and casuals went on the range and qualified every man, demonstrating that a recruit can shoot better than an old soldier.

Much credit should be bestowed not only on the officer in charge of the recruit firing, Lt. H. F. McG. Matthews but upon the non-coms, Sgt. Lang, Cpl. Timms, and Cpl. Chastain, who furnish-ed what Kipling would call the backbone for the range work. The company is proud of Shaddox, the only recruit who fired with the recruits, making sharpshooter and winning the prize for recruit high scoring.

The second platoon, commanded by Lt. Matthews, has qualified 100 per cent. two years in succession, the only war strength machine gun platoon in the army with such a record, it is believed. It used to be commonly thought that if the members of any Company would mind their own business, keep out of rouble, and speak highly for their outfit that their Company would be building on a sure and sound basis. And at the same time that those men would have achieved worthwhile results for their efforts

But in this day and time Company "F," First Gas Regiment, has added hundreds of equally important ideas and a few more so. This picturesque little all American outfit is gaining in popularity with every step Fame, glory and a place among the immortals of our army are the thoughts which occupy the minds of our recruits since the day they enlist.

No other company in the Garrison can boast of a more thorough knowledge on the subject of a definite pathway to success in the matter of military training along our lines than this compact little family of only 52 members. The first and most important reason for our excellent shape is apparently just as might be expected—cheerful and willing obedience. We could prove this willing obedience. We could prove this in more ways than one but as it is covered in regulations we will let it pass for granted.

Another splendid reason for our accuracy in drill lies in our breezy "top soldier," First Sgt. Grover C. Brown, whoseton e of voice in giving commands so nearly approaches htat prescribed in the I. D. R. that we do not hesitate to class him as a marvel indeed. He is also a genius with the rifle and an expert drill-master. Under his personal instruction we note that movements seemingly difficult for some organiza-tions produce a pleasing effect, even on our ninety-day wonders, alias recruits.

However, the true basis on which you may found your judgment sa to the amazing progress of this Company lies not in the imaginary picture we have tried to present, but in actually seeing for yourself. It's attractiveness will for yourself. It's attractiveness will most certainly appeal to you and you will then partially understand how the Gas Bums manage to get such perfect action out of the old dogs.

THOS. J. NEAL, Secty-Treas

Now that the Editor is telling the world and the garrison all about the American Revolution, I thought I could get some good information myself out of the hysterical researchers, and those monograph and reference hounds left me flat with the following account of a famous campaign:

In 1777, General Washington, whose headquarters were at that time in the Waldorf-Astoria, was informed that The old whitewash bucket, that lime-General Burgoyne planned to advance from Ticonderoga by way of Saratoga, reaching the latter resort in time for the August racing season.

Washington knew further that, about the end of August, Burgoyne planned to advance on Albany, taking the night boat thence to New York, where the British army planned to spend Labor

"Very well," the Father of his Country told his assembled generals. If Burgoyne plans to come to New York by way of the night boat it is obvious that he'll have to use the Hudson River. So in the corner will answer."

"Come, come now," said Washington, frowning, "I see plainly that some little general hasn't been preparing his lesson."

Twelve generals quickly raised t hands.

"I know," said one bright-looking general who was named Ethan Al Tell him the berths have all been sold." But it was young General Benedict Arnold who finally guessed right.

"We could fool Burgoyne," he suggested, "by hiding the Hudson River on him."

"Good," said General Washington smiling. "A very good answer!"

"Very good hell!" exclaimed the disgrunted General Arnold. "It's perfect."

And he went right out and betrayed his country. Well, five large sewers were quickly dug underneath the Island, and Continentals, working with might and main and two buckets each, emptied the Hudson River from the Battery to Peekskill into these five sewers in less than two weeks.

Meanwhile, Burgoyne thought could take Saratoga, but he surrendered at the end of the first week of the races. The Hudson River lay concealed under the Island until several years after the Revolution, when the Governor of New Jersey made New York put it back where she found it. He claimed chick-ens from New York were walking ens from New York were walking across the river bed to root up the beer gardens in Hoboken.—The New Yorker.

"Go plaster the landscape as much as vou choose."

The rents in our worn, woolly breeches we mended,
And gathered up trash from the

We institute the practice of printing brief articles on outstanding national sporting events for the convenience of our subscribers.

Two raddle-faced ruffians glared at each other across a table in a waterfront saloon. The little glasses at their elbows were empty, and a third man, standing over them, asked blandly for a new round of drinks. After a whispered conference the bartender was called over. Money changed to each of the ruffians a yellow handsbill, to the bartender a large wad. And next evening, on a coal barge, or in some lot at the edge of town, the two ruffiams met and battered each other with bare fists until one of them fell down. To the man left standing the bartender handed the wad. Thus

The New York State Boxing Commission thought he was; the New York License Committee thought otherwise, refused to issue a license, Tex Rickard, promoter, thought he was; Padraic Mullins, manager of Wills, disagreed. Attorney General Albert Ottinger was asked to write opinions on points of law that would aforetime have been left to the bartender.

Meanwhile at Sarasota Dempsey, growing rapidly browner and harder, continued to train, sometimes slipping off in the afternoon to see the horses run. Forty miles away, at Gloversville, Tunney pounded the bag or jogged over the hills. One day Louis Fink, Tunney's manager slipped over to Dempsey's camp and watched the champion deal briskly with his four sparring partners—Robert Delfino, South American heavyweight; James Saxon, middleweight; James Brown, Negro middleweight; from Panama; Philip Weisberg heavyweight from Brooklyn Jack Tunney pounded the bag or jogged over berg, heavyweight from Brooklyn. The most fantastic ing controversy. theories have been advanced concerning him, or possibly her, and a wide range of probable writers is included in the guesses. One of these mentions His Satanic Majestry.

The style, while easy-flowing and graceful, offers no clue. Here and there the reader may imagine he has located the authentic touch of Mark Twain, or perhaps Stephen Leacock, while the later passages are certainly reminiscent of Donald Ogden Stewart.

The dark undercurrent of tragedy that threads its tortuous way through the lives of the principals, Phi and Omega, is enlivened by the comic relief formed by the inimitable characters, "Little R" and "Big R", as witness this dialogue between these twain faithful retainers in Chapter Four:
Little R—"The sum of the sides in any triangle shall hereafter be three, and this allowance shall not be exceeded except by the authority of the Secretary of War."

Big R—"What war?"

climax, wherein, after many trials, Phi triumphs over Omega, isbut it would be a shame to spoil the story. Suffice it to say that in the long winter evenings to come, when the apples are roasting in the hearth, and the long drawn howl of the wolf reverberates through the front door keyhole, many readers of this newspaper will be found peacefully asleep, a copy of this book in their laps.

OUT OF THE PAST

Several ignorant editors were shocked last week by what they conceived as an anachronism — a cable disptach from Rome announcing that Mrs. Philip H. Sheridan, wife of the great cavalry leader, had had an audience with Pope Pius. But it was no anachronism.

In 1831 "Little Phil" Sheridan was born in Albany, N. Y. He had been graduated from West Point, had served in the Far West, had been a Quartermaster Captain in the Civil war, a Cavalry Colonel, had stormed Missionary Ridge, had fought with Jeb Stuart in the battle in which the latter was killed, had beaten General Barly in the Shenandoah Valley, had had his famous 20 miles to Cedar Creek to turn defeat to victory, had been at Appomattox Court House, had commanded in the Southwest after the war, had fought the Indians, had gone to Germany and observed the war of 1870, before in 1874 he took to wife a charm-

Then "Little Phil" was 43, and his five-foot-six-inch frame (shrunken at one time during his arduous campaigning to 130 lb.) "had now begun to fill and curve with adipose. . ." His face was florid. . . Irne M. Rucker, his little bride, also a devout Catholic, was a score of years younger. #### REDS AND KELLYS TO OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES THIS P. M.

1st and 2nd Half Winners Clashing in Five Game Go for Fort Flag.

Major Bowen's 2nd Battalion Kellys, frantically and fervently backed by the entire Demonstration regiment and large part of the garrison will clash this afternoon with the Raging Reds managed and directed by Colonel John son and Captain Eberle, in the first game of a best-in-five series for the garrison championship, the Gowdy Cup and the Spalding Trophy. Games will be played daily until one team has won three times.

The Reds ran away with the first nine in a row without losing a start. Their tenth game was not played, as its outcome could in no way affect the standing. In the second half the Reds were thrown for a loss by the Kellys on two occasions, and Slim Har-riss and the Tankers set them down once. Nine wins and three loss good enough to win, but did land the west enders in the second notch.

The 2nd Battalion, minus the Kel himself, found the going rough in the opening half, finishing with an even break of five wins and five defeats. In the home stretch, however, Kjelstrom came back and "Mick" McCarthy, came back and "Mick" McCarthy. former I. S. D. receiver, signed up with the Demonstration Doughboys for a three year stretch. Thus strengthened the Kelly's swept all before them dropping only one game in twelve starts, a 14-11 licking at the hands of the Tanks.

Even the seventh son of a seventh son would be risking his reputation as a prophet by attempting to pick the winner. The Kels have been at a great rate while the Reds have years they lived together, and had four children, and then, deathly ill, Sheridan received from Congress the full rank of General, a rank which he held until his death two months later.

Tor 14 b: Vance p.
Parris, star centerfielder for the Kellys, has a stiff knee and may or may not participate in the series. In the event he is able to play he will probably be leadoff man in the batting order, with McDuffy dropping out.

Carnes, left hand ace, will undoubtedly carry a large part of the pitching burden during the series and may be the gunner in the opening game.

Hampton is listed in the Red line to do the receiving, but is just out the hospital and not in the best condition. Trammel and V. Williar are Red pitchers who will surely s action. Inglemon will likely go to the field when Trammel is on the mound.

GARRISON RINGSTERS REACH FINAL ROUND OF AMATEUR TOURNEY

Challengers for Present Champs to Be Chosen Tonight.

(By Lt. G. W. Potter.)

Monday the garrison amateur leather pushers threw mean rights and wicked lefts. When the last bout had been decided, a check-up showed that Bridges of the Tanks had sunk Ellsmore of the Special Units; Cadenhead of the Medicos had abolished Morris of the I. S. D., and Lawson of the Special Units had displaced Detweiler of the First Battalion

Bridges and Ellsmore made a splendid match. The bout was filled with hitting and very little chuching. Bridges carried the heavier punch and won, but not by a great margin. Cadenhead, Medical Detachment lightweight, carried too much reach and weight for Morris of the I. S. D., though the game Fort Valley boy forced the pill roller into an extra round to gain the decision. It is believed that Morris would do well as a challenger the featherweight class.

The Lawson-Detweiler episode was a imph of fair condition over no con-ition at all. All the courage in the orld, and Dedweiler had his share, nnot overcome such a handicap. The but started well but Detweiler's steam ressure went down rapidly and the st three rounds were all Lawson.

The night's fighting put the leather ushers on the three yard line. Friay night tells the tale. The finals re due and doughpoys should come om all the areas to see the carnage. In every one of the seven bouts trided the entries are evenly matched. would be foolish to attempt to pick would be foolish to attempt to pick he winners, but it dan be justifiably lated that there is not a man who oes not stand a splendid chance to herge from battle with title of win-er in the Garrison Amateur Tournaent.

Some years ago we heard an interesting anecdote about At the time of the Durbar a quiet little lady in black entered the British Admiralty Office in London. She had heard that a whole ship of officers widows was being sent to see the King of England proclaimed Emperor of India. Could she go?

They were only widlows of British officials. Was she British? No, American—Mrs. Custer. "Any relation to General Custer?" The official, like all Englishmen, was more familiar than we ourselves with tales of our West.

The little lady smiled up at him with bright black eyes: "His widow." She went to the Durbar.

HOWITZERS STAY ON TOP OF PILE BY LATE RALLY

After Taking Big Lead.

Captain Dunlop's eyes nearly popped out of his head when he entered the stands Saturday afternoon during the fourth inning of the Twilight League game, glaced out at the scoreboard, and saw that the tailend Jazz Babies were ading the Howitzer Company 6 to 1. But it was only a gesture, as the Baby Cannon boys fell upon three hurlers in the second section of round four, smote their offerings to all parts of the field, scored six times and went out in front as league leaders should. The Jazzomaniacs weren't through, though, and tied it up again in the first of the sixth, which forced the Howitzers to go out and get more runs. They did it, scoring three times in the lower bracket of the sixth.

Beginning the season in the "B" League with little or no practice and the most hopeless looking aggregation ever gathered in the garrison, Jazz and his men have stuck to their knitting in spite of the jibes and jeers of the stands and have succeeded in piecing out a team that will give any Twilight League outfit a run for its money. Give 'em credit, they deserve it.

ARTILLERY FALLS AS KELLYS CONTINUE ON VICTORIOUS CAREER

Jazz Babies Scare Leaders, But Falter Cluster of Six Runs in First Frame After Taking Big Lead. Carries Kels Safely Through.

The first four batters to face Schulte in Saturday's game between the Kels and the Artillery should have been retired, but only one of them received his just dues, with the result that before he third hand was put out ten batters had toed the plate and six had completed triumphal tours of the base lines. Three hits and four errors figured in the debacle.

Safely entrenched behind this subsatntial margin the Kels coasted along, adding another here and there until their final total was thirteen, quite sufficient to decide the issue, although the Gunners refused to play dead and swung their war clubs vigorously. Harkey tame dthem completely in all but one of his six innings of toil. In the fifth booming triples by Eskridge and Rahtal and one-station blows by Schulte and McAuliffe broke the row of goose eggs and put a "3" on the scoreboard for he saisson riders.

Lefty Carnes hurled the last three stanzas and apparently didn't try to do anything but put it over the plate. Eskridge, Schulte, Rathal and McAuliffe assaulted his offering viciously and col-lected eight hits for four runs during the last third of the game. But it was

HOWITZERS KEEP LEAD BY WINNING FROM GAS BUMS

A. Thomas Leader in Attack on C. W. S. Hurlers.

A. Thomas, big Howitzer first sacker, ran amuck with his bat Monday and in four visits to the plate cudgeled the ball for two healthy doubles and a couple of lusty three-station rides. He scored three times himself and chased three of his mates over the rubber, thus accounting for six tenths of the total compiled by the Howitzers against the Phosphorus Flinging gang. As the Smokies were able to make only a half dozen all told, the Baby Cannoneers took the big cash prize and stayed out in front in the Twilight league.

Sellers started the game on the mound for the Gassers and with the exception of the third frmae held Lieutenant Mack's men well in hand. But the excepted round spoiled it all. Seven safe hits combined to make five runs for the 37-boys, and put the game on ice. Smith. a colossal left hander, pitched the sixth inning for the boys from the Gas Regiment, and the Howitzers made four

After Morrow had retired the first two batters in the seventh the Gas Bunns started hitting, driving out four bingles in a row. An error added to this attack yielded four runs, but the Howitzer twirler finally got the last man out before the situation was completely out of hand.

KELLYS SNOW REDS UNDER AND TAKE SECOND HALF FLAG

West End Defense Collapses Under

Heavy Attack. Becomes a Rout.
Captain Eberle appeared on the coaching lines in a brand new uniform and a brilliant red cap. Colonel Johnson sat on the bench and issued volumes of sound advice. The famous Gilky mascotted in his inimitable style. But it lell availed nothing, as the Kellys were in a rampage and crushed the Raging Reds Tuesday in the decisive game of the second half. A fierce attack on Vance, star West End twirler, coupled with the utter collapse of the Red defense sent the 2nd Bats away to a flying start and Major Bowen's prides never let up. They knocked Vance out of there in the third and treated V. Williams, his successor, with scorn and contumely. Meanwhile Carnes pitched steadily, if not sensationally, and his mates backed him up in flashy fashion, Hence and accordingly the Kels copped the contest 11 to 3, and earned the right to play the Sunset Soldiers a five game series for the garrison championship.

Carnes retired the Reds on six pitched halls in the opening of the first act, and the Kels came in determined to start something right now. Vance hit Durbin, Cole popped to King. Willis slammed a screaming double to left, chasing Durbin to third. Kjelstrom crossed up the opposition by driving a liner down the left field foul line for a clean single, scoring Durb and Slick, and took second on the futile throw in. Davis walked. Kelly and High caught the Reds off guard and engineered a pretty dou-lle steal, Trammel not even making a throw. A passed ball and a wild pitch followed, letting in the two baserunners. Newman struck out and McCrary threw out McCarthy. But the game was over as far as the ultimate result goes. The West Enders played their first really bad game of the year. Easy fouls and pop flys were dropped, and grounders were kicked around in unusual fashion. The Sunset boys seemed utterly without

The Sunset boys seemed utterly without spirit and gave up without a fight.

Of nine Kellys appearing in the game, nine starred. Each man made one hit and each scored at least one run. Durbin and Cole scored two apiece. The team worked smoothly throughout and played with a dash and confidence that completely crushed the apposition completely crushed the opposition.

Vance tried to make up for his pitching failure at bat, driving out two tremendous triples, one going all the way to the flag pole in deep center. Trammel hit safely three times in three official trips to the plate.

SERVICE COMPANY STAGES BIG RALLY TO WIN EASILY

Ten Tallies in Second Round Crush Jazz Babies from I. S. D.

Magoni is nothing if not versatile. Not content with having appeared at short and in the box for the Jazz Babies, the musical king went out Wednesday afternoon and showed how the keystone sack should be covered. Starting the game with a fielding average of 400 the great spaghetti lover handled two chances and only fell down on one, thus reaching the 500 mark for stops and hrows. In round four he started a double play to retire the side. Perhaps had there been nobody out at the time, and had there been another man on base he would have secured revenge for the riple play into which he hit the other day. All in all Jazz's day afield was a success. But the darker aspect of the situation was his failure at bat. His swatting mark fell from its high estate of .667 to amere .333, which might be considered good for some, but not for the irrepressible.

As for the game itself, the Service Company men went out in the second nning and scored an even ten times. Seven of the eight hits made by the Muleskinners during the game were con-Muleskinners during the game were concentrated in this inning. At other stages, Johnny Heisler, toeing the slab for the jazzy crew, did well, but who can win against such a handicap? Anyhow the Babes couldn't, although they did come back in their turn of the second and make three. Elsewhere, though, big 3isco handled them with ease, and added the wni to his list.

JAZZ BABIES ALMOST TOPPLE ENGINEERS FROM HIGH PERCH

Magoni's Boys Begin Well, But Fail To Keep Up Pace.

(By J. W. Hoffman.)

For a few minutes last Friday it looked as if Magoni's Jass Babies were going to bust into the win column for the first time in the season. At the end of the 2nd inning the I. S. D. was ahead of the Engineers 4-3. But the detachment couldn't stand prosperity and the end of the game found them on the short end of an 8-5 score.

In the second spasm Magoni's proteges went into the lead temporarly, as already mentioned, by combining three hits and a walk for three deserved runs, Heisler's single accounting for two of them. In the 4th the Engineers went into the lead and in the 5th put the game on ice by scoring three times on

ENGINEERS WIN REPLAY GAME FROM Q. M. C.

Cameron Hurls Shutout Ball to Beat Colonel Warfied's Pets.

Red Diamond boys from Engineer Hill massed their heavy attack in the very first game of Wednesday's Twilight League game with Colonel Warfield's Service for the Line Troops, and by so doing easily walked away with the replay of the game thrown out some time ago on protest. Dixon started for the Q. M. lads in place of the inevitable Wilson, but after walking one man gave way to the boy with the presidential way to the boy with the presidential name. Brock's smashing triple, Hanins' double and a collection of errors sent the bridge builders away with a three-run start. Another was added in the third on Kingsbury's clean single, an infield out, and a crazy heave by Wilson in attempting to catch Kingsbury off the middle basseds. off the middle hassock.

The Reynoldites tried hard to get

The Reynoldites tried name over a few tallies on their own account, but long cameron doubled himself into knots, lifted his front foot a mile or two into the air and shoved them down the alley with a big hop. The tall boy the alley with a big hop. The tall boy liams, Marie Russ, Martha Bowen, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Shields have demonstrated fine form and speed in the water this year.

Q. M.'s testify to this.

By winning the Engineers kept right in step with the Howitzer Company, and successfully eliminated the Quartermaster men as possible cup winners.

GARRISON SWIMMERS HOLD FINAL MEET SATURDAY MORNING

Ten Events to Be Contested by Crack Representatives of Organizations.

The pick of garrison swimmers and divers, men, women and children, will gather at the ole swimmin' hole Satgather at the ole swimmin' hole Saturday morning for the aquatic meet to decide Fort Benning supremacy. The following is the list of events and the order in which they will occur:

(1) 50 yard Breast Stroke, (2) 50 yard Back Stroke, (3) 50 yard Free Style for boys under 17, (4) 50 yard Free Style for Ladies, (5) 100 yard Free Style, (6) Life Guard Demonstration. (7) Finals, 50 yard Breast Stroke tion, (7) Finals, 50 yard Breast Stroke, (8) 440 yard Free Style, (9) Fancy Diving, (10) Finals, 100 yard Free Style, (11) Fancy Diving for ladies, (12) Fancy Diving for boys under 17, (13) Relay Race, 400 yards, teams of four men.

Regularly organized teams from the 15th Tank Battalion, which easily won the meet last year, the 29th Infantry, and the 83rd Field Artillery will be entered. In addition a number of individuals from other outfits will take part in several of the events. Officers as well as enlisted men are eligible for the events and as several Sam Browne wearers have won places in organiza-tion meets, their presence should produce keener competition. Lieutenant "Red" Newman from the Demonstration Doughboys and Lieutenant Squirrel, O. R. C., now on active duty with his old outfit, the Tanks, are perhaps the best known natators in this class.

Last year Major Miller's boys from the Tanks swept the meet ,winning practically every event contested, but Stear and many of their other point getters are no longer in the garrison, and the fight should be much tighter this year particularly in view of the this year, particularly in view of the extensive swimming training that has been given this year down in the 29th. With Captain Wessels, Lieutenant Newman, Thompson, Launikitis and other water dogs of high renown the 29th is apt to "Lead the Way".

The experience gained by the ladies of the garrison in the meets with the Columbus swimmers has improved the

The usual point distribution of 5, 3 and 1, for firsts, seconds and thirds, will be used to determine the team championships. There will be individual prizes for place winners.

The Life Guard Demonstration is an additional attraction this year, as it has not appeared on the program of former meets. The trip of some of the garrison's best swimmers to the Red Cross instruction camp at Brevard, N. C., this summer, adds interest to the new event.

NATURAL BORN SHARPSHOOTER

A man on the firing point at 200 yards having made a hit 18 inches to the right of the bull's eye, changed his position to the left and rang up a five. You can't sell this fellow any windage "dope".

BLUES SHUTOUT TANKS IN THIRD PLACE BATTLE

Miscues in First Round Enable West Enders to Tally Three.

Sweeney made three hits, three put-outs and three assists in Friday's Tank-Blue game, but he didn't make three runs and bunched two of his three miscues in the very first frame in such a manner that the west enders scored three times. As neither team thereafter got a runner all the way around the paths this trio was sufficient to knock the Tankers out of third place in the Gowdy Cup league and settled the Blues firmly in that niche.

Slim Harris started on the firing line for the caterpillar conductors and pitched with his usual cool precision, but the failure of his support came in conjunction with two of the three hits yielded by the long Georgian during his five inning tou rand spelled defeat. Red Lindsey took up the burden in the sixth and breezed through four frames in great fashion, allowing just Leonard was the lad to apply the whitewash coat to the Terrible Tankers. They nicked his delivery for seven safeties, but couldn't put them close enough together to manufacture a run. Lieut. McElroy picked pinch hitters for an average of 1,000, Huddleston coming through for Hanson in the eighth and Wade delivering for Hall in the ninth. The Tanker caoch should have tried more, judging from the results.

Big Smitty nipped runners off first and third and stopped a thieving expedition to second. His pegging showed remarkable improvement over his somehat mediocre exhibition against the 2nd Battaltion.

EXTRA BASE BLOWS FEATURE FINAL WIN OF WEST END BLUES

Mays Takes Heavy Pounding From Bats of Sunset Soldiers.

McDuffie aimed at the scoreboard, squoze the trigger, and bounced the ball off the big "10" on the Gowdy Field scoreboard in the first inning of Monday's game. Spurred on by this feat his mates strove strenuously to copy him. None succeeded quite so complete. ly as the long centerfielder, but twelve ringing safeties, including three two-basers and a like number of triples made off Mays, 1st Battalion righthander in five innings, show that it was not for want of earnest effort. In the sixth inning old man McGaha, of damp de-livery fame, went to the rescue of the stricken 29th hurler, and proved himself a whole relief expedition. The tumult was stilled and for the rest of the game Blue bats were almost as silent as a stockade meal. But though the operation was a success the patient died, because the Demonstration boys couldn't match the eight earned tallies shoved across by the West Enders during Mays' regime.

The hitting epidemic noted among the Sunset Soldiers spread to the First Bats, but in a much milder form. Berthiaume registered a ricochet two on the bottom the scoreboard in the second frame and drove two of his comrades over the counting block; tallying himself on an infield out. From then until the eighth Ponder was entirely in charge, but in the semi-final round the Blue hurler lost control and issued three passes good for free transportation from home to first, which jammed the sacks with two away. Haywood then took up the chunking role and Mays jarred a safe liner into short center. Easler scored from third, but when Sheriff tried to come all the wav in from second, McDuffie loosed a bulletlike throw that found Dawson's big mitt in plenty of time to extinguish the ambitious runner.

NEWMAN'S PITCHING AND DURBIN'S GREAT DEFENSE BEATS BLUES

Kellys' Sunday Win Insures Tie at Least With Reds.

Durbin crashed a line single into left. Cole poled a long fly into right that fell near the foul line for a double. Willis bunted perfectly down the first base line to squeeze Durbin home, and when Driver muffed Thomas' throw to retire Slick at first, Cole scampered across the plate. All this happened in Act 1, Scene 2 of Sunday's Kelly-Blue game, and so far as scoring goes, the teams might as well have called it a day and quit. But if they had the stands, crowded with a howling mob of rooters, would have baseball of the season. would have missed the best

Let's take the sparkling plays in order of occurence. Rounds one and two showed no unusual features. In the third Driver led off for the Blues with a neat single to left and Leonard bounced a bingle off Willis' feet Thomas tried to keep the rally going. He drove a wicked daisy cropper between short and third, apparently headed for the outer reaches of the field, but Durbin dashed to his right, scooped up the pill and with the same motion fired point blank to Cole in time to catch Driver sliding into the hot corner. Newman settled down, fanned Seats and caused Dawson to roll peacefully to Harkey. Durbin's great play pulled the Kels out of the worst hole they got in all after-

Then in the fourth Willis ran way back into right field to nab Harrison's high hoist Perhaps Slick should have let High Davis make the catch, but it was a beauty anyhow.

In the sixth Durbin turned in his second feature play. A leaping one hand grab of McDuffie's screaming liner near second, and a lightning toss to Harkey to get Dawson scrambling back to the bag, made up a beautiful double killing.

part two of the sixth Kjelstrom reached third with nobody out and stay-ed there while Leonard seized Davis' hot grounder and tossed High out at first. Big Newman lifted a long fly to deep right for an apparent sacrifice hoist. Kelly dashed for home as the ball fell into Harrison's glove, but the Mule proved himself as fine a thrower of the baseball as he is of the pigelin.

Cole aimed at the left field fence in the eighth and might have hit it if Nash hadn't been playing left field. The Blue hadn't been playing left field. The Blue gardener turned his back on the ball, went back a mile or so, turned around and made the catch only a few feet from the wire.

There were other plays that would have featured most games, but Sunday was Fielders Day, and only the bright Professionals to Clash in Fea- West Enders Cop Garrison ture Matches, September 28th.

By Lt. Geo. L. Potter.)

On the night of Tuesday, September 28th, all those who care for the matched skill of the boys who throw the gloves will have an evening's entertainment worth looking forward toand back-upon.

The best and most popular men to appear in the Benning ring will answer to their names that evening.

The first formation will find that hard boy "Danny" Davis, 29th Inf., opposing Hugh Tillery of Alabama. We have not yet had the pleasure of seeing Tillery box, but many of us have seen Davis and he's worth watching. For he fights all the time and stops for nothing but the bell or the floor. Tillery carries the same reputation, so six three-minute rounds should pass the time for any one.

The second event, and it merits such term, will find Lt. Griffith, 29th Inf., and Maud Farley of Columbus, tearing up the wrestling mat for fifteen minutes. This is a center fire event—and is being looked forward to by friends

When the prostrate forms of Lt. Griffith and Mr. Farley have been removed, the large audience should view with pleasure the reliable Gene Poyner of Columbus who will try for six rounds to convince Reed, 29th Inf., that "Taps has blowed". Reed states that he doesn't know that call but that he can show Gene one called "Retreat".

At this point two soldiers of the 29th Inf. will exhibit their skill in feats of strength. Gregory and Hamilton, 29th Inf. will bend a few horseshoes and Inf. will spikes and Gregory will lie down on (Continued on page 2.)

REDS VICTORIOUS IN < THREE HOTLY FOUGHT CONTESTS WITH KELS

Championship for Second Time and Take Cups

The West End Reds and the 2nd Battalion Kellys clashed three times for the Garrison championship and three times it was the team from the Súnset Regiment that finished on the long end of the score. Hence and accordingly the Gowdy Cup's home for the next year will be over in the 24th Infantry and the Spalding Trophy becomes the permanent possession of the winners. It was a fine series, splendidly fought, and decisively won, though two of the three games were settled by the narrow margin of one run. Even in the other contest the difference was not large.

Scores were 3 to 2, 4 to 1, and 4 to 3.

No need to look further for reasons han Vance and Trammel. The two hurling aces of the Reds pitched wonder-ful ball. Vance is credited with win-ning games one and three. In them he struck out the amazing total of 25 batters, 15 in his first appearance and 10 in the finale. The Kels reached him for 13 hits in the two contests, but in the pinches could do nothing with the sidearm speedballer. He was a trifle wild, passing a half dozen Kels each time. Of the five runs scored on his offerings three were earned. Trammel's one effort was a masterpiece.

With the garrison record for having made the most hits with the old willow (34) and most dents on home plate with his cleats, scoring runs (25) "Slick" Willis is an all round baseball player of ability and distinction. You have seen him on the pitching mound, and at third base, and cavorting around second to pair with Durbin in the flashiest middle sack combination of the Fort

After a turn of duty with the Flying School Detachment in 1917 and with the 9th Aerial Squadron, he put his feet solidly on the earth and has been in the Demonstration Doughboys ever since 1920, being with the Service Company most of the time, and now with the Second Battalion Headquarters Company

pany.

When he is not clerking in the regimental supply section, "Slick" Willis is baseballing at a rapid rate. He bats equally well right or left handed, and does it for a season's average of 378—which is not to be sneezed at — and stretches his "most hits" into "most runs" by virtue partly of having stolen 12 bases this season. Not only on the diamond and with the bat is he an allround man, but also with the slinging arm, for he pitches right handed or left handed at will.

Last season he was with the Special Units team, and his twirling beat the near-champion Infantry School Detachment in finished order His work has done much to improve the playing of the battling second battalion, for when you count up the double plays he executes and the tallies and wallops he gets, you will find that Slick is a finished baseball man. He makes an error once in a while. The good ones all do, even in critical moments. But I'd rather have a second baseman who makes errors trying for the hard ones than an infield man who circles to a tangent with the line of the ball and watches it roll into the outer garden. A lot of balls the better man gets an error for trying to handle, other players let go for clean hits. And "Slick" Willis is a fighting player and goes after them all.

REDS VICTORIOUS IN CONTESTS WITH KELS

hits, only one of the real ringing variety, and one unearned run were allotted the Kels by the towering twirler.
Eleven strikeout victims and five recipients of free transportation are shown in the summary.

Newman, big southpaw, hurled the first and last games and Newt showed himself a fine pitcher. As in the case of Vance, he allowed three earned runs, the other four being presented the Reds by fielding breaks. Only in ability to strike out the hostiles was he outclassed. Carnes flung the second game for the Kels and performed creditably though touched for eleven blows.

In hitting the Reds outshone their rivals, making 27 blows for 34 sacks as against 16 for 18 by the Kels. In addition the Red batters seemed to have an unusual knack of hitting when hitting was needed, while the boys from Major Bowen's battalion fanned time after time when a good drive would have saved the situation.

ed the situation.

In the field the difference was not marked. Most of the sensational plays were turned in by the Kellys, Durbin in particular making some really wonderful stops and throws; but this was largely due to the fact that the Red pitchers depended on the "three and out" method of disposing of the batters. Thirty-six of eight-one putouts were thus achieved.

Baserunning was comparatively negligible. The Reds swiped four sacks in the second game, one double steal scoring a tally. In the other contests they played it safe and started no larcenious expeditions. The Kels also stole a quartet of sacks.

The largest and most enthusiastic crowds of the year attended the three games and were treated to fine baseball. At no stage did either team let up in its desperate efforts to win. It was a fine series won by the team that played far and away the best game. The Reds showed that they can come from behind as well as run in front, and to each of them, as well as to Captain Eberle who has coached the team all year, must be accorded the honors justly due to champions. The Kels went down fighting as all Second Battalion teams fight, and though beaten were by no means disgraced.

Full details of each game and statistical summary of the series appear in our sport section.

The semi-final will be a contest of speed and skill with a good punch matched against strength and a mighty punch. Cecil Williams of the Sundown Slope where lies the 24th Inf. will match his speed and cleverness against the sledgenammer blows of Sparkplug, Alabama. With luck it may last the entire eight rounds—but we don't expect it, nor would we buy a lottery ticket on the winner.

As though all this fighting in one

As though all this fighting in one evening were not enough for any one there will be the ten (10) round final bout. Who is going to fight? Two Irishmen—one Red Keenan of Fort Benning, and one Benny Regan of Atlanta. For ten rounds—and this time we want to see Red go the distance and win.

Benny Regan has a reputation for hard hitting and clever boxing. He has fought some good men and has beaten most of them. Keenan we know, but a somewhat different Keenan will be seen against Regan. A Keenan who can hit. For Red needs to win this fight and will do his best. Keenan's best is good enough for most boys in his weight, and he will be there to win.

Will you be there to watch him?

"THE DOUGHBOY SCHOOL"

Way down at Benning, Georgia— Where the Doughboys go to school, To learn the modern methods—And all the new style rules.

There's many varied subjects That keep you on the jump, And you've got to keep a pluggin' Or you certainly will flunk.

I'm coming down that way and see-Just what it's all about. For every doughboy that I meet-Just raves and fairly shouts. About the many things he learned— Down at the doughboy school, And I for one look forward when-I'm a student to your rule.

We all look forward to the day-When we can join the class—And learn the best and latest ways-To fight and lead a mass. Why, they eat up problems daily—
That would stump the General Staff,
And you've got to take your hats off—
To that old Fort Benning Staff.

"FOLLOW ME"

During the past week there occurred a very interesting incident in connection with the baseball being played on the garrison. Not in the big league, because all the events in the big league are known to so many and have beeen written up in such complete as well as picturesque fashion by our sports editor. But it happened in the Class "B" League, which was organized in response to an editorial in this paper, and for which the Infantry School News feels somewhat responsible.

It seems that some games had been protested. It appears that a player in the 29th Infantry had been transferred from one company to another in order there almost entirely from the view-to bolster up the sinking fortunes of point of the Signal Corps, and, quite the First Battalion. He did not make the grade. He ray for another on one the grade. He ran for another on one occasion. He played in just one game early in the season. Then he was dropped from the squad, and in the course of time quite naturally transferred back to that one of the special units from which he originally came.

Then commenced the Class "B" Lea-

He played.

His playing was protested, and a whole raft of games in which he had participated were thrown out and each of them declared "no game," schedule was re-adjusted to permit of the games being played over.

And lo, during the past week, when the Gas Regiment was to have played off the protested game, they deliberately forfeited, saying: "We played them once. They beat us. We would not protest. We got licked square, and don't intend to take advantage of a technicality to have another try at it."

Fine sportsmanship!

The Infantry School News, as sponsor for the Class "B" League, is proud to have brought into play on Gowdy Field soldiers with such a fine spirit.

WELCOME STUDENT OFFICERS

·The Infantry School News wishes to cordially welcome to Fort Benning the Student Officers of the classes of 1926-27. In welcoming the new Officers to Fort Benning, we do not feel that it is amiss to mention here something about the courses, as presented by the Infantry School.

Primarily, of course, both the Advanced and the Company Officers Courses were designed to more nearly round out the military education of the officers of Infantry concerned. From time to time the courses, both for the advanced class and the company officers class, have been changed and improved, Quite naturally the most common sense basis for changes has been the recommendations of Regimental Commanders of Infantry throughout the Army and the recommendations and suggestions, as a result of close study, by the plans and training section of our General and training section of our General Staff. Therefore the student officer is getting the benefit of all past year's experience of the school authorities. It is believed that this year's course exceptionally well balanced and is fully and completely in keeping with the rapid progress of the infantry.

No monographs will be required of No monographs will be required of the company officers class for the com-ing year. This is a change which the school authorities believe to be bene-ficial, because, it has been determined that the time formerly devoted to the writing and presentation of monographs can be much more profitably spent, by the student, at something else. A communication course, for certain detailed student officers of the company officers class, will be inaugurated The Signal School at Fort Monmouth is an excellent service school, but, the communications work has been taught fantry School in order that the Infantry Student Officer may get communications purely as applied to the Infantry.

Quite a few changes have been made in the Advanced course, all of which have been carefully studied and worked out and we believe that the course will be extremely interesting and helpful to the student.

Again we welcome you to Fort Benning and we feel assured that the student officers of this year's classes will, upon graduation, be boosters for the Infantry and the Infantry School, as have all students in former years.

"DEADWOOD DICK"

In spite of the fact that the Corporal had a rather good opinion of his own abilities he had failed entirely in impressing the First Sergeant. In fact the "Top-Kick" disliked him exceedingly. One day therefore the "old soldier" was much surprised at the Corporal's request for a few words in private.

As soon as they had a corner of the orderly-room to themselves the corporal, with many blushes, informed the "Top" that he was planning on getting married.
"But, Sergeant," he went on, "What I wanted to ask you about was whether you didn't think it would be rather fool-ish of me, to marry a girl who is my ntellectual inferior?"

"Worse than foolish, Corporal," was the First Sergeant's hearty reply. Worse than foolish—impossible."

"What Price Story?"

When you consider with what nice Sinclair Lewis punctuates his accuracy stories it is easy to understand why herefused the Pulitzer Prize of $1,000.00 for the year's best novel. Undoubtedly he considered the period superflous and he comma misplaced.

It was Three Years since the Wandering Boy had seen the Old Home-Three ears since he had Run Off-with his Father chasing him—Away But, from the Lips of the Army Chaplain the Boy had heard the Story of the Forgiving Father and the Prodigal Son—and the Fatted Calf—and he Had Hopes.

Afar Off the Old Man saw the figure approaching up the Dusty Road. His poor old Eyes weakened by Much Bootleg Licker, failed to Recognize his Err ing Boy. So he went to Meet him with Open Arms—He thought it was a Harvest Hand looking for a Job.

Too Late the Father recognized the Buzzard coming Home to Roost. But the Old Man was a Game Sport. He had lost Money trying to Raise Hogs the year before so he Figgered he might Just as Well take a Chance on trying to Raise his Setting Son.

Right Away the Prodigal Boy got a Big Surprise. Paw had bought a New Cotton Plow and a New Corn Planter, "Son," said the Father, "Don't be Afraid to Use them thare New Tools—You can't Wear out Nothin' here but Your Welcome."

Now the Boy was a Prodigal in Many ways but One Thing he wasn't Prodigal with was Work. And another Thing he had Noticed was that none of the Year-lin's looked any Too Fat. "Paw," says he, thinking to Jar his Dad's Memory,

"Do you ever Read the Bible much?"
"Wal, I reckon," said the Old Man,
"In thare 's wheer it Says 'In The Sweat

"ENOUGH'S ENOUGH"

The hopeful young sergeant had just been informed by his lady-love that she could not think of marrying him until he had saved at least two thousand dol-lars. One night a few months later she met him at a party and afterward he took her home. Just as they were about to say good night she questioned him as to how much he had saved.

"Forty-two dollars," replied the young sergeant, sadly.

"Well," she remarked, with a blush,
"I guess that's near enough."

NEW CHALLENGERS FOR GARRISON CHAMPIONS DECIDED BY TOURNEY

Ring Tournament Held Last Friday. Amateur

(By Lt. Geo. L. Potter.)

The final bouts of the garrison amateur boxing tournament were held in the gymnasium last Friday night. The winners are the Benning amateur champions and are now open to challenge by any boxxer of the garrison. It is planned to hold these challenge bouts early in October.

The general results of the bouts Friday night follow:

Brault, 1st Battalion, 29th Inf., was too strong for Guidray of the Tanks and carried the fight throughout.

Easler, featherweight from the 1st Battalion won by default, as Bridges, Tanks, had an injured hand and could not compete. The Tanker plans to challenge Easler later.

Sergeant Cadenhead of the Medicos had a hard battle with Blount of Mahad a hard battle with Blount of Ma-jor Miller's caterpillar conductors. At the end of the six rounds the judges announced for the boy from the pill rolling outfit. The fight was exceed-ingly close throughout and many dis-agreed with the official verdict. Welterweight Olkari of the Ind Bat-talion carried the fight to Lange of talion carried the fight to Lange of the Artillery with enough vigor to win the decision. Lange challenged for a return bout and will get it. It was a good battle.

In the middleweight class Reese of the Special Units scored the surprise of the evening by knocking out Gorman of the 1st Battalion in the first round. The sleep producing wallop was a flashing right to the chin. Up to the dreamland punch the boys were working nicely.

DePratt, 2nd Battalion, lightheavy
K. O.'d his opponent with little trouble. He now rules the garrison at his weight and will soon step out to enlarge his domain.

Lawson, 209 pound heavyweight of the Special Units disposed of West, 2nd Battalion, who was nearly thirty pounds lighter. The go was marked by many clinches, an abundance of aimless swinging, and the adroit footwork of the referee, Col. Johnson.

There the towns most hoving interest.

From the tournament boxing interest has received a big boost and as monthly free bouts will be held in addition to the professional cards, it is believed that the game will become a major sport at Fort Benning. The men who hold the championships will get the big Practically all newly arrived student officers find the point of most interest at Fort Benning to be the Post Exchange Automobile Service Station, accordingly a brief description of the various departments might be of value.

First of all is the Filling station on Vibbert avenue, just east of Gowdy Field. There you will find Standard Oil, Gasoline, Havoline and Mobil Oils, Tire Repair and Free Air and Water service. After being served as above you go inside, where you will find a complete stock of Accessories, as well complete stock of Accessories, as well as a service stock of Gabriel Snubbers, Alemite Gascolators, Firestone and Goodyear Tires and Tubes. The remainder of the service is located under Gowdy Field grandstand. At the end nearest the Filling Station is the office, where general information is given those desiring it. Moving on under the stands the battery department comes stands the battery department comes next, where you can have your battery tested and filled with water, and if it needs charging they carry a stock of replacements to use while your's is being charged, and if you find it has worn out and have to have a new one, you will find they have a new Willard to fit your car.

Moving on you come to the Electrical Department. Here they are equipped with the latest tools and stands to take care of your Generator and Starter troubles. Then comes the Repair Shop proper. There they have a force of good mechanics and all the latest tools and equipment to handle any size repair job. In the Stock room you will find as complete a stock of parts as it is practical to carry for all make cars and in addition there is a messenger making two trips daily to Columbus for such parts they happen not to have in stock.

as they happen not to have in stock.

Now comes the Oil and Grease Rack.
Here you will find latest methods in greasing and oiling, including high pressure Alemite and Zerk. Also here is where you get crank case service. At the Wash rack they use compressed air to clean the inside of your car, steam to clean the chassis and clear water with very little soap to clean the bodies.

HERE'S SAD STORY ABOUT SERGEANT AND "GOOD GIVE"

Only This Gentleman Does Not Spell It That Way.

Never buy a second-hand automobile from a bald-headed man and above all never receive one from your former commanding officer as a gift, emphatically no, declares a popular sergeant of the Engineers. The N. C. O. secured a motor under these conditions. It seems that the captain informed the sergeant that he had driven the famous racer not less than 193,334 miles which the sergeant maintains is nothing in the life of a second hand car of this make. After owning this machine for a short period the good hearted sergeant ran into a mess of trouble that just about establishes a world's record for hard luck.

Trouble No. 1. As with all cars that date back to the year of 1896, there aldate back to the year of 1896, there always developes rear axle trouble, this sergeant had his troubles aplenty. Some kind hearted Dub suggested mixing molasses, soap, oil and saw dust together and "filling her up," but here is the joke. This gink instead of filling the differential, poured this mixture into the crank case unbeknown to the sergeant. After 126 hours mixture into the crank case unbeknown to the sergeant. After 126 hours and 30 minutes of work, the old bus is now ready for tuning up. A government truck is pressed into service for the job of getting her started. After burning no less than 130 gallons of gasoline and getting no signs of starting, inquiry was made as to where this mixture was poured. The Dub with a surprised look says: "Why, Sir, I filled up the crank case instead of the rear end" Gasoline gone, no start.

Trouble No. 2. The sergeant returns to his open air garage quite worried but nevertheless in no motion of giving up the ghost. When the crank case had been taken down and all the mixture scraped out, she was given a good bath with kerosene. The old bus is now put back together, 137 bolts tightened. Now she is ready for the second trial. last, all's well. She fires." Just about this time a certain officer of the garrison happens to arrive in the area. ing all this unusual noise, he inquires models.'

Trouble No. 3. feels confident that the old jinx has been broken. He plans one grand and glorious trip to the city. But all's not well. That same afternoon the old bus one wishing to see this antique of Mo-TORDOM can do so by visiting the "Engineers open air garage" on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

An apparently gentle livery stable horse was hitched to the front bumper of an army Standard B truck not long ago in a quiet street in Long Island. A battery of motion picture cameras had been set up to photograph the actions of the horse in attempting to pull the truck, this being part of the continuity of the instruction from "Elements of the Automobile" that was in process of being prepared under the direction of the War Department.

The idea was to have the brakes on the truck at first in order that the horse would have to strain at the traces and exert all his strength to start the truck rolling. After that he was to trot along easily, (the truck driver surreptitiously driving the truck in low gear to help him so as to show that once in motion a very small amount of power, comparatively speaking, will keep it in motion. This was to illustrate the relative high torque or power required to start a Class B truck in motion. From this it was hoped to show army chauffeurs the necessity of engaging the clutch slowly and carefully.

The horse was only mildly curious when hooked up to thetowing hooks of the truck, but when the cameramen commenced grinding away, and the truck driver tried to make him "giddap" the horse turned around and commenced to investigate the radiator guard instead. At the second attempt the owner of the horse tried to lead him, but this only resulted in the horse backing into the front bumper,

On the third attempt everybody (including the horse) prepared for a heroic effort. To make a long story short the horse jerked the truck about two feet oi the ground on the first lunge—broke a trace and had to be unhitched. In the emergency the writer and the two drivers got behind the truck and did the necessary publish, and there wasn't any necessity for trick photography to show the difficulty of getting one of those Class B's in motion, I can assure you

TEN WINNERS IN AUTO RACE ON FIRESTONES

For Ninth Time Gum - Dipped Tires Lead in Indianapolis Speedway Classic.

Firestone Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloon tires again made a remarkable showing in the Indianapolis Speedway Classic on Decoration Day, when all ten winners participating "in the money" rode on these dependable tires.

This is the second time balloon tires

This is the second time balloon tires were used in the great Speedway event the first being ast year when Peter DePaolo on Firestone Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons made a new world's record at an average speed of 101.13 miles per hour.

Smaller motors of 91 1-2 cubic inch displacement, compared with 122 cubic inches in 1925, combined with rainy wtather and slippery track, slowed up the time of the 1926 winner, Frank Lockhart, who won this year's race at 95.88 miles per hour.

This year's gruelling battle of tires was called at the end of 402 1-2 miles because of the downpour of rain. Lockhart, who captured the grand prize, drove the full distance without a single tire change and was all set to go the entire 5500 miles on the same set of tires.

The terrific battle of tires brings out the effectiveness of Gum-Dipping, the exclusive process employed by the Firestone Company, which builds extra strength and endurance into the cord fabric by impregnating and saturating every fiber of every cord with rubber.

The performance of Firestone tires

The performance of Firestone tires at Indianapolis this year certainly was remarkable when the terrific speed at which the cars traveltd over the 15-year-old rough brick track is taken into consideration.

While the Builders have been tamping shingles on the roof of the Gody Field Stands, other workers have been pouring concrete and affixing door and window sashes beneath the concrete slope which holds the seats.

Work is now approximately complete so that within the arched arcade, there are now alcoves well provided with protection, along the center and the west those which reached originally only down the eastern edge. The space underfoot has been concreted.

down the eastern edge. The space underfoot has been concreted.

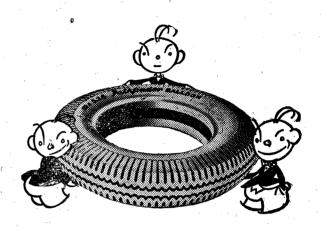

As you turn the forty-five degree angle from the old repair shop, you find five repair rooms, one rather small, but the others large—thus doubling the repair space Mr. Austell's shop has enfloyed—and one completely enclosed stock room.

Around the next bend, you come upon an oil drainin grack, a greasing rack, a washing rack, and a steam cleaning rack flanked by a huge boiler—all with deep pits properly drained.

It was in the summer of 1915 that Gertrude Ederle's father, Henry Ederle decided that he had made enough money in the Ederle Brothers Meat Market to afford a summer cottage at the Highlands in New Jersey. And it was from the porch of this little two-room bungalow that Gertrude received her first swimming lessons. Dangling from the end of a rope held by her father as she learned the dog paddle, she would look up and smile; never has she shown the slightest fear of the water—or lack of self-confidence in it.

Three years later Katherine Brown, of the Women's Swimming Association, gave an exhibition at the Highlands. Mrs. Ederle and all the little Ederles saw it. The youngsters wanted to learn to swim like the expert representative, and Mrs. Ederle thought it would be fine for them. That fall the three oldest—Margaret, Helen, and Gertrude—joined the Association. 'big forward step had been taken. The

A thin little growing girl, she threw herself into her class with the determination born of love. No special attention was paid to her; she had many faults and showed very little promise for some time-but she kept plugging. Several evenings a week she would get away from home, and make a line for the pool; nothing but sports, picture shows, and books interested her. And in the summer she lived in a bathing suit at the Highlands. She pulled an oar on a rowboat, paddled a canoe, or swam long distances with her sister, Margaret. She began to develop; her shoulders broadened; her muscles grew hard. The training of housework she had already behind her. Of grace she had little; she was the product merely of the kitchen and swimming pool. Even today she walks with the swagger of a man, wears strictly sport clothes, and considers paint effeminate-in a sense which is anathema to her.

In February of 1919 she swam her first race in the Sixtieth Street municipal pool, making the hundred yards in She continued to show improve ment, and in the spring of 1920 she made her first important trip as a member of the relay team sent to Detroit to compete in the Junior National Relay. Never have four such women in the aquatic field been on the same team while still in their teens. Each one of them has since become known: Aileen Wainwright, Riggin, Helen Helen Meany, and Gertrude Ederle. Needless to say, they won the race against the star team of the Detroit Athletic Club—and in doing so, they set a world's record. "Trudie" had started on her course.

Her next spurt was in July of the following year when, at the Spring Lake Bathing and Tennis Club, she made the hundred in 1:08 3-55. The same summer she swam two hundred meters in 2:56 3-5. The novice may not realize it; but these were fast was then but fourteen years old, been swimming six years, and had been under instruction only three Experts in the field began to look on her as a prodigy in speed swimming, but distance was not thought of.

New Brunswick, early in 1922, a number of speed swimmers were "doing ber of speed swimmers were "doing distance" just to increase their wind and stamina. Not Gertrude. Miss Epstein, manager of the Association team, who was with the girls, turned to her.

"Why don't you do distance for a change?" she asked. "Try the half mile with these girls."

Gertrude did, and finished up front with a spurt.

The manager was astonished. "How did you manage the spurt? I didn't know that you ever swam that far."

Gertrude was starting toward the bath house. "Oh, yes," she said. "I often do distance with Margaret at Highlands. I always try to finish as strong as possible."

"You ought to try it on the team," said Miss Epstein.

The conversation and its result are significant in an understanding of the young woman who holds the majority of women's swimming records from the hundred yards to the English Channel. The nonchalant statement about distance swimming was to her an unimportant phrasing of fact, to the officials an astounding discovery.

A short time later came the Day Cup race over a three-and-a-half-mile course. The committee was astonished to find an application from Gertrude as well as Margaret. They did not know whether or not to take it seriously.

No one paid any attention to her the judges were watching Helen Wainwright, American champion; Hilda wright, American champion; Hilda James, English champion, and Aileen Riggin. At the end of the first halfmile it appeared to them that Helen was leading with the English girl second. Suddenly somebody in the boat shouted: "Out front! Who is that out front?" Glasses swung up. A highly conventional but excitable matror screamed: "My God! That's Ederle!" matron

When she couldn't swim, she washed dishes or ironed. Dieting is unknown Her favorite dish is roast beef; next she prefers a steak with mush-rooms; she has a child's love of ice Victory did a great deal for Gertrude Ederle. Formerly she had been shy and bashful, even with her own team mates. On trips she had always selected a far corner of the train and curled up with a book.

She realized that she had not had the advantages of some of the girls. They had not, as she had, lived over a butcher shop, got up at seven in the morning, made the coffee, washed the breakfast dishes, and helped in the market before they could get off and go to the pool. But as she became celebrated, she began to achieve some ease, and to make friends.

It was in 1921 that she really began to come out of herself. On the trip to Bermuda in October, for the first time her companions were able to induce her to sing. She has a sweet voice (one of her few feminine qualities) and, "Blossom Time" being at its height, she sang for them, You My Song of Love, until tired. Then she sneaked back to her detective stories. But not for long; the girls would not let her be; and she had grown to like to be with them.

In Bermuda they were feted to satiety. Though she does dance, Gertrude prefers her ten hours' sleep, and she refused to go to one of the affairs. After her three roommates had gone out she went to bed, first locking the

She, herself, had always considered the 220 a hard swim, and preferred they found they couldn't get in. They asked: "Wo bin ich?"

Miss She turned over and yawned. They iation pounded on the door and elamored to get in. Gertrude smiled sleeplly at them. "It certainly is good to be hard of hearing," she said. "One gets such good uninterrupted sleep.

It is needless here to go into Gertrude's failure at the Olympics; it was explained, attributed to the daily six hours of jolting which Gertrude took traveling from her lodgings of the pool and back. But one thing about the trip has never been known, and that is how the failure hurt her.

After the Olympics Helen Wainwright said she wanted to swim the Channel. The Women's Swimming Association liked the idea and took under consideration. While officials were thinking about it one of them heard a remark: "It's too bad Trudie won't get a chance." The official questioned her and learned that Gertrude had confided that it was her greatest ambition to make the long swim. The quiet girl was called in and questioned. Yes, it was true; she would like a chance. The matter was submitted to the Board of Governors; they agreed to finance the attempt of both girls. But in the spring Helen began to have recurring trouble with an old leg injury: Gertrude was left alone. Jabez Wolff was engaged as trainer--with the disastrous results known to all.
Rumors as to why Gertrude turned professional are conflicting. There had been talk of the Association financing a second attempt in 1926; they had sent Price and Buchanan of the Plumbers her, with Aileen Riggin, to Miami. Suddenly word came that she had turned professional. The report that the move had been forced on her by lack of sup-port from the Association was denied. Certainly it is characteristic that she said nothing about it until the contract was signed.

With that victory Gertrude stepped into the swimming spotlight, and she has held it since. On Labor Day of that year, in a five-hundred-meter race, in which Helen Wainwright and Hilds.

She began to work January 1 of this year with several other well known water stars, their duties being exhibition swimming and instructing for the Deauville Casino at Miami. The first part of the Florida bubble left her with he proverbial scrap of paper.

It was then that she met Dudley Field Malone. As her attorney he got her out of her now worthless contract and when he saw how determined she was to make the Channel swim, he took the gamble, advanced the money, and negotiated a contract with a newspaper syndicate. Within the past month, the 15th Tank Battalion has lost its six top notch swimmers. Undaunted and undeterred, the Tankers dove into the chlorine dip and splashed their way to a victory, even though it was only a win in the final event that gave them a margin. When the meet was all over but the relay, the two organizations were tied at 21-points apiece. Each had a first and a second team entered in the relay. Nip and tuck they finished the first leg. A tri-color triangle wearer touched a bit ahead at the end of the second leg. Hall swam better than he ever had before and gave Wetherford a good lead with which to stave off the dan-gerous swimming of Thompson.

Thompson, by virture of a second in

Dean's swimming in the 440 was the feature of the meet. Only recently developed and only by virtue of hard work and consistent training, this youngster from the armored machines cut through for a clear-cut win over the threats of Captain Wessels who was the 29th Infantry's best at that distance.

The 50-yard swim for girls was a closely swum event, with three bobbed heads flashing to the front together, then four, and the finish was a blanket affair. The summer of work made a far better all round representation the far better all round representation than this annual event has ever before furnished. #### VANCE GETS NEW STRIKEOUT MARK WIN FIRST

West End Pitcher Sets Fifteen Kels Down by the Three and Out Route.

Umpire-in-Chief Jaynes jerked his right hand upward and pinch-hitter Thompson walked to the bench dragging his bat disconsolately behind him. The hard working sub-receiver for the Kellys need not have been so upset about the matter, though, as sidewheeler Vance, Red ace, had already sent fourteen other Kels to find the bottom of the dugout waterbucket after failing to effect a junction of ball and bat. But Tommy was the forlorn hope of the 2nd Battalion boys in the first game of the garrison championship series, and his swinging suicide left the sunset soldiers on the majority end of a 3-2 score. His demise also made Vance the undisputed possessor of a new strikeout record for the season. The former mark was fourteen, held jointly by Vance and Newman.

It was this same big boy Newman whom Vance defeated Friday, but let it be remembered that though beaten. the Kelly southpaw was in no wise disgraced. The Reds made 8 hits, the Kels 5, but two of the quintet were for extra bases, while four of the West End safeties were of the infield species. Each team scored one earned run, the others coming on defensive lapses. Vance walked six men, big Newt one. It was a glorious duel of pitchers, the honors as near even as may be, with honors as near even as may be, with the result decided by the Reds' ability to take advantage of the opposing mis-

Newt saw he could expect near the from his mates, took matters into his own hands and successfully purloined the middle cushion as McDuffy fanned. After two strikes had been called on Harkey, Newman set sail for third and when Hampton let the pitch get away from him the huge southpaw kept on going and slid safely over the dish. The first base half of the packed stands went wild.

In the lower bracket of the fourth Hampton sent a sizzling grounder to Durbin and was safe when the shortstopper's hurried peg pulled Harkey off the first sack. Vance came up with sacrificial intent, but his bunt foul that Harkey generously muffed. Thankful for the escape the big outfielder sacrificed neatly down the third base line. Bell retured the ball with his usual celerity, but Kelly had a good start and sprinted all the way in from Much jubilation among the 2nd Battalion supporters. McCarthy McDuffy couldn't help the cause. McCarthy and

The Demonstrationist went down for the third time in the seventh. Willis tossed out Trammel to begin the frame auspiciously, but King burned a bingle off Newman's feet. It was a terrific drive that Newt had no chance to stop, nor could Willis retrieve the pill in time to make a play. Sloan Williams time to make a play. Sloan Williams bounded a high one that Newt touched by jumping, but in so doing he deflected the ball out of Slick Willis reach and all hands were safe. With Battles up, "Mick" nipped Williams reach, and Bell and Hampton crossed taking too long a lead off first, but while the Kel infielders were running the hig first sacker up and down the the big first sacker up and down the line King sprinted to third. McCarthy and Newman conferred at some length before the next pitch, which was a high one with nothing on it, probably with one with nothing on it, probably with the intention of walking the dangerous Battles. But the Red field captain reached up for it and banged a beauti-ful single over the midway station, and King rollicked home amid the wildest cheering from the Red side of the

"Mick" Mc- REDS WIN GOWDY CUP BY TAKING THIRD STRAIGHT

Defense of Kellys Crumbles in Eighth and West Enders Drive Through.

An ecstatic howling mob marched around the Gowdy Field about four o'clock Sunday afternoon, led by a band and carrying two uniformed baseball players high on their shoulders. It was the victory-mad 24th Infantry and the players were Vance and Hampcomposing the battery that had just finished trimming the 2nd Battalion Kellys for the third time in three days and had been largely responsible for the second straight capture of the garrsion championship by the Reds.

The Kels had already gone down was so well placed that fast legging turned the tap into a safe hit. Fendall wide and pinned their hopes on the good left arm of husky Newman to Williams tried to hit and hoisted a pop foul that Harkey generously muffed. Thankful for the escape the big out-round five made the Kellys one up on the Reds ,who slugged for a couple in the fifth. Bell, leading off, grounded to Durbin whose low toss got away from Harkey and the fast left fielder was safe. Hampton tried to sacrifice, but failed in two attempts and then grounded sharply to Willis. With a double play in front of him Slick hurried too fast and the ball went through to High Davis' territory in right. Vance hoisted a high foul under which Mc-Carthy camped but dropped. Then the Red twirler bunted down the third base line. Newman fielded the ball cleanly, started to force Bell at third, but found nobody covering the bag. His heave to get Vance at first was a hit over second that nobody could reach, and Bell and Hampton crossed

The first scoring was done by the Kels in the third. Harkey drew four bad ones and strolled. Durbin singled to right, Harkey stopping at second. Cole moved the runners up with a neat sacrifice. Willis walked. Kjelstrom hit over second for a single, Harkey and Durbin counting. McCrary reached Kelly's blow with one hand, but couldn't hold it. Willis reached the far corner during the excitement. Kelly far corner during the excitement. Kelly stole second. Newman grounded hotly to the box and Vance nipped Willis off third. Davis flied far to Trammel.

Another in the fifth. Cole was safe when Sloan Williams dropped Battles high toss. Willis sacrificed down the firstbase line. Kelly sent Cole over with a blow that bounced off McCrary's shins into the outfield and took second when into the outfield, and took second when the Red shortstopper returned the ball aimlessly. Newman walked, but Davis popped to S. Williams and McCarthy hoisted to King.

The Reds went on the rampage in the fifth and pulled to within a single tally of the Kels. King scratched a hit through the box. S. Williams skied through the box. S. Williams skied to Cole. Battlts drove a terrible liner to the right of the scoreboard and made three cushions on the blow. Durbin held Battles on third and threw out McCrary. Bell hit over High Davis' head for three bears and Battles door. head for three bases and Battles dented the pan. Newman threw out Hampton

The Kels rallied gamely in the ninth and almost pulled the game out of the fire, but Vance tightened up and stopped the threat. Willis opened with a single to left, his first of the series. Kjelstrom passed Newt Newman on four straight balls, probably intentionally. Davis flied to F. Williams in short center, and McCrary grabbed McCarthy's grounder to force Newman at the midway station for the final out.

TRAMMEL CHECKS KELS AND REDS: WIN TWO STRAIGHT

West Enders Hit Carnes Freely and Near Garrison Crown.

Lefty Carnes was no cross word puz-Lefty Carnes was no cross word puzzle to the Rampagious Reds Saturday and the West Enders continued the march toward the Gowdy Cup by winning their second in a row from the Kels. The score this time was 4 to 1, even more decisive than the opening day's count. Constant good pitching by Trammel and ablity to hit in the pinches brought about the result pinches brought about the result.

Long Slim Trammel was in the firing pit for the sunset troops and was a real ornament to the mound. His a rear ornament to the mound. His fast ball did fancy stunts as it hopped over the corner of the plate and his curves looked better than those of the "art" magazine ladies. Neven Kellye "art" magazine ladies. Eleven Kellys trod the weary way from plate to dug-out after hearini the third strike plunk out after hearing the third strike plunk into Hampton's mitt. Newt Newman singled cleanly to left in the second and scratched a bingle over second in the eighth. McCarthy is credited with a blow in the seventh when Battles knocked down his bounder along the third base line with one hand. Had the Red field leader let the knock alone it would have bounced foul. This was the extent of the Second Battalion offensive. Trammel has a kind heart and issued walks to five. Some games may have been won on this kind of hitting, but the days of miracles are over.

In striking contrast was the attack of the Reds. Bell's single was wasted in the first and in the second a fast return from the outfield kept the West Enders away from the plate. With two gone Trammel beat out a roller to short. King burned a grounder just inside the third sack, good for two sacks but when Trammel tried to make three Stations on the blow a Kjelstrom to Cole to McCarthy relay erased him at the platter.

Four Run Rally in Final Round Falls Short of Gas Total. the platter.
Sloan Williams started the third canto with a single between first and second. Battles sent Kjelstrom chasing to the scoreboard to retrieve his drive, and made the hot corner while the ball was enroute back to the in-field, Williams putting his mark on the plate. With the infield pulled in Durbin made a fine one hand grab of Mc-Crary's bounce between second and the box to toss the Red shortfield guardian out at first. Battles who held third until Durb cut loose to Newman—don't ask why, because nobody knows—heard a hurry call somewhere over near the a hurry call somewhere over near the plate and started to answer it. Newman's peg to McCarthy had Battles out by the proverbial city block, but the usually reliable "Mick" dropped the ball, which made two for the Reds Comparative quiet until round seven. Newman dived for King's grounder between first and second but couldn't make conection and the blow went for make conection and the blow went for a hit. Sloan Williams lifted a little Texas leaguer into short right and while Willis and High Davis were in conference on precedence and priority the ball fell between them for another bingle. King tried to sneak to third while Carnes held the ball, but Lefty wasn't as sleepy as he looked and tossed him out to Cole, Williams making sec-ond during the demise. A wild pitch sent Sloan over close to his coach at sent Sloam over close to his coach at third. Battles got a free pass to first via the four ball route. On a double steal McCarthy's throw to second was bad and Willis' return even worse, Williams scoring and Battles continuing to the far corner. Cole tossed out McCrary, Williams holding third. Beil lined a single into Kjelstrom's pasture and Williams counted and Williams counted.

and Williams counted.

The Kels only run came in the seventh. McCarthy reached first on a scratch bingle down the third base line after Newman had fanned. King's legs made an excellent croquet wicket for McDuffy's grounder to roll through, and there were two aboard, "Mick" on Woidyla, ss. 2 third and McDuffy on first. Carnes' scacrifice fly to left counted McCarthy.

Trammel passed both, Durbin and Cole to clog the runways, but Willis had no patience and swung at the first two pitches—both of which were balls, by the way. He fortunately missed the first one, but popped weakly to S. Williams on the second.

A double play that killed Kjelstrom at the plate in the eighth put the final window on the second.

JAZZ BABIES LOSE FINAL GAME BY ONE RUN MARGIN

A stirring last inning rally by Jazz Magoni's pets from the I. S. D. almost nipped the Gas Bums at the finish line of Saturday's Twilight League game. It was the final game of the season for the Detachment team and the last chance to break into the win column. The apparently inevitable blowup of the Jazzers came in the second frame and sent the Phosphorus Flingers off to a six run start. Another tally in the fourth raised the C. W. S. total to seven. For six innings Sellers held the Babes well in check and allowed only two runners to trickle over the pan. Then came the exciting last of

The ubiquitous Jazz started all the trouble himself. Masterminding himself to bat for Purget he opened the ball by beating out a roller to short, whereby his average rose to .429. Marsh played follow the leader and jarred a two-sack drive to left on which the chief sprinted all the way home to fall exhausted on the bench. A fielder's choice that got nobody and hits by Parker and Morris scored three more and put the tieing run on third. Interspersed were two outs, though, and Woidyla lost a chance to be a hero by faming the breeze for the lest deriver. fanning the breeze for the last demise

BABY CANNON CREW COMES FROM REAR TO SQUELCH Q. M. C.

Off to Poor Start, League Leaders Come Back Strong.

George Smythe sat on the Howitzer Company bench in the first inning of the game between the Baby Cannon Boys and the Quartermaster crew Monday and wondered how in the world the team coached by Lieutenant Mack ever got out in front o fthe Twilight League, as his proteges were kicking and bootig the ball hither and you and the Service of the Line troops were mak-Service of the Line troops were making a race track of the basepaths. Ten of Sgt. Reynolds' men went up and four of them made the complete and entire circuit. When the Howitzers came in they failed to score in their first and Dutch's wonder grew.

But from then on the 37 aimers proved just eractly why they "Lead the Way". A four or five run lead by the opposition means nothing in their young lives except that is simply calls the way. A lour of live run lead by the opposition means nothing in their young lives except that is simply calls for a little added effort. And Monday this effort was forthcoming in full measure. A run in the second matched a unit chalked up by the Q. M.'s in that frame. And then in the third the real fireworks started. Ringing blows by Pierce, Foster, A. Thomas and Averitt, coupled with a fielder's choice scored four and tied it up.

SERIES SIDELIGH

1ST GAME

Vance's strikeout string by was 1, 2, 3, 2, 2, 1, 1-1, 2. A man an inning. The American At Teast a anup crew Willis, Kjelstrom and Davis, whiffed in order in round three after Cole had pried off the lid with a single.

Willis' failure to touch second in the 6th inning may have cost the Kels-the game. There were two out at the time, but the deadly Kjelstrom was dug in at the plate, with "Basehit" in every line of his set face.

Durbin went behind second in the eighth to grab Fendall Williams' daisy cropper with one hand. A flip to Willis forced Hampton at second to retire the The fielding gem of the afteraidway sack to retire Willis for not touching the sack. Further proof of Vance's effectiveness in forcing the Kels to hit in the air.

SECOND GAME

In the first inning Carnes caught Bell off first, but the speedy outfielder dashed for second and got credit for a steal when Newman juggled the throw a sec-ond before throwing to Willis.

Newt Newman made a fine running catch of Fendall Williams' foul in the second. The big first sacker went way over against the stands and nabbed the ball right off the concrete.

Trammel might have scored in Trammel might have scored in the second by sliding. Cole's relay to Mc-Carthy was high, but the Mick went up in the air and got the toss in time to tag the Red pitcher.

A mix up between Willis and Davis on Sloan Williams' puny pop into short right paved the way for the two Red runs in the seventh. Either the second sacker or the tall gardener could have made the catch, but both started and then stopped.

ties in four attempts, one a pretty two sack wallop just inside third.

With Fendall on third and Sloan on first in the fourth, the Williams boys tried a double steal, but Mick was awake behind the plate and neatly nipped Fendell leading too for off the bet sook dall leading too far off the hot sack.

THIRD GAME

Newt Newman retired the first two batters on two pitched balls. Battles flied deep to McDuffy on the initial pitch, and McCrary popped to Durbin on the next.

Durbin's stop of Battles' scorcher in the third was a beauty. A quick toss to Willis forced King at second

A moment later Harkey used his head for something other than a hatrack. Grabbing McCrary's grasser too far from first to make a play at that sta-tion the first base guardian got Battles at second with a lighting peg to Willis Durbin for the third out

In walking Hampton and Vance in the fourth, Newman threw eight straight alls. The big portsider lost control completely, but it was only temporary.

Too bad that Durbin had to start the error fest in the eighth. Up to that tatal round the lean shortstopper had -leved a brilliant game.

of Kelly's hits were infield ones, nit they helped just the same.

Slick Willis almost went through the three games without a hit, only his blow in the ninth saving him that unenviable distinction.

The demonstration after the game by the 24th rooters was well staged. crowd sta to watch their antics. The West Enders had good reason to rejoice

SERVICE COMPANY STRIKES HEAVY BLOW TO ENGINEERS

Muleskinners Win Replayed Game and Dim Pontonier Hopes.

The Service Company played the Engineers some time ago with Wilkinson in the lineup and won 6 to 4. The Red Diamond men protested that said Wilkenson had played with the 1st Battalion team in the Gowdy Cup League and appealed to the Athletic Council. The board upheld the protest and ordered the game played over. and ordered the game played over. Therefore the 29th boys went out determined to do it again and do it in more decisive fashion, and in this high ambition they succeeded admirably, as the 5 to 1 result of Tuesday's game shows beyond any reasonable doubt.

Nor was any time lost in settling the issue. The bridgebuilders were re-tired without damage in Act 1, Scene 1. With one away in the Muleskinners' half Lotz walked and the fun was on Smith singled, McCaslin was safe on Mallory's error, Dean singled. Wat-kins was thrown out by Mallory. Three runs came over as a result of this disorder and as far as the game was concerned there "weren't no mo."

hooks over the pan and tied the Engineers into knots, and his mates fielded in snappy style to support him. Only in round five when the Red Diamond wearers scored their lone tally did things look at all threatening, and then Silvers was at no time in the least disturbed.

Perkins gave a pretty relief exhibition in the sixth. Going in with Silvers on third and nobody out, the long lad whiffed three in a row and would be a protected by the sixty of the long lad whiffed three in a row and would be a long that the long lad who had be not the long lad to not the long lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the lad by the l The entire Red team had only two assists and both of these were credited to outfielders. # GRIDIRON CANDIDATES WORK UNDER BURNING SUN FOR FALL GAMES

Capt. Berry Has Promising Squad Hard at Work. Many New Foes Noted.

By Lt. Geo. L. Potter.)

With the first football game of the year but three weeks distant, the advance guard of the Doughboy eleven took its first practice session on Tuesday afternoon.

Capt. "K. L." (Coach) Berry had a squad of some twenty-odd men out for the preliminary limbering up stunts. Calesthenics, punting, short dashes and line work, comprised the day's work-

Among the squad are many familiar faces and quite a few new ones. Potentially, the Benning squad is strong and the team should do better than hold

Shafer, Kjelstrom, Diver, Stanovich, Lapine and others will be there from last year's team. New arrivals are Lt. Griffith, West Point tackle. Wiseman, Hamilton and numerous others.

The remainder of the Blue squad will be out in several days. The Doughboys mean football and Coach Benning
