Vol. VII. FORT BENNING, GA., SEPTEMBER 21, 1928. Number 1.

Big Fight Card Arranged For Next Tuesday Night

29TH INFANTRYMAN FIGHTER WILL BE IN ACTION AGAIN TUES. NIGHT AT FT. BENNING

Lineup for next Tuesday night:

Spider Webb vs. Raven Poe, 5 rounds.
Wotta Guy vs. Ginger Jernigan, 3 rounds.
Fuzzy Douglas vs. Mauler Morey, 4 rounds.
Fiske Williamson vs. Cutey Curtis, 4 rounds.
Billy Shell vs. Chief Otalvaro, 6 rounds
Pinkey Phillips vs. Babe Asher, 6 rounds.
Gunner DePra't vs. Tillie Kid Herman, 10 rounds.

Next Tuesday night the glove slingers get under way again. With boxing cards scheduled twice a month, usually the second and fourth Tuesday night of each month it is commencing to be a difficult matter to accommodate all the aspirants who desire to break into the limelight. Ever since the weather cooled a bit the big Post gym has been overrun with future Jack Dempseys. Drop in any night of the week and you will hear leather slashing the air; well built youngsters working on the big bag, skipping rope, shadow boxing, and going through the many kinks that is necessary before a boy can enter the squared circle. It is believed the recent retirement of Gene Tunney has awakened the ardor of many to seek the crown left vacant. Whatever it is the gym is full. The only possible way to satisfy these embryo pugilists is to set aside a night each month and dub it "novice night" so that the youngsters who run little risk of breaking in on the regular cards will get their chance. Just as soon as the World Series is decided a date will be set and announcement made when the novices will be given their big opportunity.

The lineup for next Tuesday night looks as if it contains enough dynamite to satisfy the most fastidious. Punching power seems to dominate the card from the first to the last bout. Starting the fun will be Raven Poe, Company "H," 29th Infantry, and Spider Webb of the I. S. D. or rather of the Special Units as many wish the loose ends to be called. Next the fans will gaze on Wotta Guy of "E" Company, 29th Infantry, who has actually been training 117 days for his three rounder with Ginger Jernigan of Columbus, Ga. Fuzzy Douglas of the 83rd Field Artillery, next appears with Mauler Morey of Headquarters Company, 29th Infantry. It will be remembered that it was this same Morey, apparently in the full control of his senses, that crept through the ropes a month o rso ago and flung a challenge to Billy Shell, the boy with the calefacient left.

Morey we know has a devastating crusher packed in his right arm but unfortunately we have never seen it under the glare of the arc light. Rather than send him in against Shell and possibly see Billy pass out of the picture or Morey take a swan dive it was deemed better policy to book Mauler against someone with less known ability, though one who has proven that he can absorb a stockyard of leather. It was just a case of one of those reasoning exercises that the School lists under the head of "Intelligence." If Morey has finished, or has been finished, the next pair will be Cutey Curtis of Atlanta and the hard hitting Fiske Williamson of the 24th Infantry. While we are on the hitting subject it is well to watch the power of the propelling apparatus attached to Fiske. This new find of the 24th certainly launches a bone crushing attack. Red Lawson the foul ball snagger of the many ball leagues at Benning is reported to be just recovering from the massaging Fiske gave him two months ago. Cutey, who is being handled by Al Hayes of Atlanta, who has brought some flashy boxers to Benning, may make it a merry night for Williamson, but one thing is certain, Cutey will have known that he was through a real mill.

Billy Shell and Chief Otalvaro come next in a six rounder. Shell is the youngster and the Chief the veteran. After Shell wiped the slate clean of all the budding 155-lb. boys at the Post it was a matter of much concern to find some one to take on the Columbus product. Willie Ptomey was mentioned, but again that reasoning course came into play for it must be remembered that this same Ptomey is one of the hardest men in the service to beat. There is nothing flashy about his work but for honest to goodness workmanship the Tanker is in a class by himself. Shell wll need at least 20 more tough sessions before the thought of booking him with Wily Willie will be entertained. Otalvaro, however, has been through the mill as often as the average boxer and though he has had a long layoff it is believed that he can carry Shell for a merry pace.

Babe Asher of the 29th and Pinkey Phillips of the Special Units swing into action in the other six rounder. Here we find two youngsters who have improved with rapid strides, both are rugged, hard punchers and as equally matched as two mortals possibly could be. They have fought several times over the shorter route with honors about even. It is believed that six rounds will be sufficient to decide for all time the better boy.

The big noise of the evening will be furnished by Gunner DePratt, Company "H," 29th Infantry, and Tillie Kid Herman, the Mexican-Indian boxer from El Paso, Texas. DePratt needs no introduction. He is always fit and the fans are assured of a real scrap every time he places his foot in the ring. He carries a K. O. in each mit and isn't adverse to mixing it with any one his weight. In meeting Herman he faces one of the most colorful boxers before the public. Tillie was born in Oklahoma on the Indian reservation. At the age of 14 he became an apprentice jockey and for years rode on the famous track at Juarez, Mexico. Growing too heavy for the king of sports the future warrior joined the Fire Department at San Francisco, where he picked up the rudiments of the boxing game. Starting in Mexico as a boxer he soon picked up the sobriquet as the "Mexican assassin." He first hove into world wide prominence by joining the Dempsey camp when the big boy prepared for his last three fights. Tillie soon became known as the only one in the Kearns camp who could and would stand up and rough it with the Manassas mauler. The ring record of the visitor covers over two hundred battles and among the imposing list are such names as Panama Joe Gans, Jock Malone, Dave Shade whom he fought twice, Alex Trambitus and Jimmy Gorey.

Benning is getting its share of pugilistic lights. New faces are on every card. The boxers put out to the limit. The prices seem to be right. While you are here get a permanent reservation, sit back, light the weed, relax and forget General "A," and while the claret flows, haymakers miss, phenoms come and go, just get a closeup and ride along with the dove of peace that hovers not but floats away into a mirage of iridescent tints.

New Organization Recently Formed at Fort Benning

COL. D. G. BERRY, FORMER EXECUTIVE OFFICER, TO COMMAND SPECIAL UNITS

Thursday, September 13th, witnessed the birth of a new organization at Fort Benning. General Order No. 29, Headquarters The Infantry School, announced the formation of the new command which is to be known as "Special Units, The Infantry School." The organization grouped under this new headquarters are as follows: The Infantry School Detachment; Company "C" 1st Gas Regiment; Detachment Quartermaster Corps; 17th Ordnance Company (Maint.); 72nd Ordnane Company (Depot); 86th Motor Repair Section; 100th Motor Transport Company; Detachment 5th Signal Company; School for Bakers and Cooks; Company "A" 7th Engineers; Veterinary Detachment; Finance Detachment; Casual Detachment (Stockade), with a total strength of about 1,000 men.

Colonel Daniel G. Berry, Infantry, who for some time in the past has acted as Post Executive Officer, was announced as Commanding Officer, Specil Units. Captain R. C. Sherman, 24th Infantry, as Adjutant, and 1st Lieut. Landon J. Lockett, Infantry, as Personnel Adjutant. A roster of the officers on dutiy with this new organization follows:

Major Louis A. Falligant, Infantry.
Captain William R. Bent, Infantry.
Captain William F. Heavey, Engineers.
Captain Hans C. Johansen, Q. M. C.
Captain Edward T. Jones, Infantry.
Captain Alonzo L. Littell, Q. M. C.
Captain Jacob R. McNiel, Finance Dp.
Captain Charles J. Mabbutt, Q. M. C.
Captain Daniel H. Mallon, Vet. Corps.
Captain Adrian St. John, C. W. S.
Captain Newton H. Strickland, Ord.
Captain David E. Washburn, S. C.
1st Lieut. Ira W. Black, Infantry.
1st Lieut. Henry W. Faye, 24th Inf.
1st Lieut. Arthur D. Rothrock, Ord.
1st Lieut. Edward J. Sullivan, C. W. S.
2nd Lieut. Benjamin C. Fowlkes, Engineers.

Building No. 86 Block 7, formerly occupied by the Department of Experiment, has been taken over by Special Units as its headquarters offices. The Post Personnel Office, which for the past two years has occupied the second floor of this building now becomes the personnel office of the Special Units.

The purpose of this new organization is to facilitate the command and administration of Headquarters The Infantry School. Heretofore the mass of details attendant to administering to the many special units scattered around the post has been handled at Post Headquarters. Under the new system, all of these units are centralized under control of an intermediate headquarters, corresponding closely to the regimental organization. This will relieve Post Headquarters of much detailed work and greatly increase efficiency in administration. Headquarters Special Units is held responsible for the Discipline, Police and Administration of the Units under its command. Special and Summary Courts-Martial Jurisdiction has been placed with Special Units so that as near as possible, this organization can operate as a regiment except that all matters of training and duties in connection with supply remain directly under control of Headquarters The Infantry School.

One unique feature of the Special Units is that among the thirteen organizations under its control, eight different branches of the service are represented. Ordinarily we find the various branches of service working separately and to a great extent having their social functions by branch. In Special Units eight different branches are welded into one organization. Already an Athletic Association has been formed and a football team organized. Football has been a difficult game for the smaller units to participate in due to the number of players needed for a team, and many good players scattered around through the small detachments have not had a chance to play on their organization team for this reason. Special Units expects to throw a team of all star players into the field this fall. Captain William R. Bent has been designated as Athletic Officer of Special Units and has announced that Captain Charles J. Mabbutt, Q. M. C., and Lieut. Edward J. Sullivan, C. W. S., will coach the team. The ability in this line of these officers hardly needs mentioning.

Fort Benning therefore has a new regimental organization which we feel sure will soon come to the fore under the leadership of Colonel Daniel G. Berry. Fort Benning welcomes Special Units and recognizes the important part this new organization will play in the affairs of the Infantry School. May good fortune attend Special Units as such an organization has long been needed at The Infantry School.

DEEP STUFF

This week has been one of unusual severity for the company commanders of the regiment; orderly rooms have seethed with activity; conferences and meetings were held behind closed doors from which the officers emerged, looking up and down the streets cautiously, before making for their own orderly rooms.

In the meetings thus held the loudest sound was a guarded whisper; the very air was charged with tension; every officer was under strain. Under such strain that the blasting shock of the evening gun caused these feverish, nerve-racked men to blow up like a toy baloon, or else collapse as a punctured bladder.

You may ask why these officers—most of them experienced in one or more wars—were threatening to take their own lives over the preparation of the October drill schedule—for this was what they were doing. But no! far from this; these distraught men were trying to devise a scheme, whereby they could, out of their companies of ninety men each, turn out two squads for drill.

New Barracks

By Jacks! We are going to get 'em. No longer will we have to fight sparks off our O. D. roofs. The timber is now being cut. Within a week lumber will be available and we will build them ourselves.

Plans are all completed. The first barracks will probably be for the band, and will be on the open ground in front of "C" Company. They will be somewhat like those occupied by the 1st Battalion.

More about this later.

Poor Fish

Lt. A. R. C. Sanders has returned from a leave spent around his boyhood home in Washington state.

Years ago when Sandy was a small boy fishing in a stream on the east slopes of Mt. Ranier, he saw—and tried several times to catch—a huge Sockeye Salmon that made his home in this particular creek. So, as soon as he got a leave, he hied himself to Washington state, and straight to the pool where the fish held forth.

He was there. Sandy saw him, and said he believed the big boy recognized him. The fish looked to be five feet long, and well built.

A large fir log, with the bark off, extended out over the pool. Sandy took his tackle and crawled out on this in order to get a good view of the monster. The Sockeye came up near the surface and eyed Sandy sternly. This flustered Sandy slightly, and in his nervousness and anxiety to get his tackle unlimbered, he slipped off the log. He was astride the log, however, so he grabbed hold and swung around under it, like a saddle turning on a horse.

Hanging thusly, with his hands and feet parts of Sandy's anatomy was very near the water; so near in fact that Sandy was under considerable strain in preventing it getting wet. And while poor Sandy was in this awkward position, the belligerent Sockeye walked right up and bit him. Yes Sir, in a most unsportsmanlike manner, the brute nailed Sandy on the pistol pocket, and gave him a wrench that hurt most painfully; so painfully did it hurt that Sandy fell into the cold chilly water.

Sandy says he hopes the seat of his new corduroy hunting breeches chokes the fool fish.

"WINGS" DEPICTS MODERN WARFARE

The most spectacular phase of modern warfare—fighting in the air — will be brought vividly to the motion picture screen, when "Wings," Paramount's aviation film, commences its four-day engagement at the Springer Opera House, Columbus, on Monday evening, September 24th.

"Wings" depicts in realistic and gripping scenes the heroism of American aviators in the world war. The picture was filmed with the active cooperation and assistance of the war department, because of its interest in aeronautics, it having loaned to the picture company millions of dollars' worth of equipment and some of the country's most seasoned aviators with war records. Stirring duels two miles up in the clouds with a group of American aces fighting for life against one of the celebrated German circuses; the bombing of a gigantic Gotha; the actual destruction of observation balloons, and scores of other thrilling air scenes go to the making of "Wings."

The story of "Wings" was written by John Monk Saunders, an aviator and instructor of aeronautics during the war. It was directed by William A. Wellman, a young man from Massachusetts who served in the Lafayette Escadrille. The cast, one of the most youthful ever assembled for a big picture, contains Clara Bow, since become a star, and was the starting place of Charles Rogers and Richard Arlen, who have since become prominent young leads. Among others in the cast are to be found such sterling players as H. B. Walthall, Julia Swayne Gordon, Gary Cooper, El Brendel, Arlette Marchal and Hedda Hopper.

MESS-HALL GOSSIP

One of the deepest mysteries of Company "F" is the one that surrounds Cook Harry Parm when he is off duty. During duty hours this faithful slum burner is always on the job but when off duty his where-abouts are veiled in the deepest mystery to his most intimate friends.

Over in "H" Company of the 29th Infantry, dame rumor has it that two of the most extraordinary hash mixers that ever cussed a kitchen police, answer pay-call. These two luminous young gentlemen are known to the members of Company "H" as Country Pharr and Hickey Greer. Pharr attained his fame when he entered a contract to sublet one of Columbus' largest apartments. Greer has now taken the spotlight with the astounding news that he is soon to wed a real live, wild Indian Princess.

A few days ago Jimmie Niblet, favorite of Hdqrs. Battery chow-inhalers, obtained permission to visit within the city of Columbus for twenty-four hours. With his pass signed and tucked away, Jimmie perched himself in the battery barber chair and with a careless wave of his hand ordered the battery beautifier to do his stuff. When all was said and done Jimmie marched confidently to the orderly room and announced his desire to draw a book of bus tickets. "Suffering horned catfish," every bus check had been issued, Jimmie was stranded. A tired kitchen police emptying the last can of garbage after supper that evening noticed a scrap of paper in the bottom of the can, upon looking closer the following words were discernable, (Niblet has permission to visi).

AT THE MOVIES

SEPT. 21 TO SEPT. 28, INCL.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 21

"CHICKEN A LA KING," a hilarious comedy drama starring Nancy Carroll with George Meeker. This is a screen version of the stage success, "Mister Romeo," by Henry Wagstaff Gribble and Wallace Manheiner. It is the story of a drab little wife who has been brow-beaten for twenty years, then suddenly she is confronted with the startling fact that her Puritan husband has developed into a gay Romeo and is haunting the back stage of a burlesque show. The wife goes to the bat but not battling, cleverly, she enlists the co-operation of two show girls and real fun starts and the screen takes the gay Lothario into settings which a man with a wife at home should be barred from enjoying.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 23.

"THE UPLAND RIDER," featuring Ken Maynard. This story staged in the beautiful hill lands of California presents one of the most exciting Westerns yet displayed at our theatres. A feud between two rival ranches culminates in a hazardous cross-country horse race. The race itself was marred with several bad accidents but the thrills of marvelous horsemanship give the audience plenty of opportunity for gasping. There are sheer falls of twenty feet into lakes and rivers where both horse and rider go tumbling only to scramble out again and continue.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 23.

"THE COP," starring William Boyd in an engrossing melodramatic story of the underworld with a delightful twist, a liberal share of comedy and one of the most thrilling of romances. The setting is in New York. The tender of a jackknife bridge assists a wounded man who in turn robs him; sworn vengeance results. The bridge tender joins the police force where he battles crooks. A romance interjected into the plot softens the theme.

"Battling Duet." Fables.

Paramount News No. 118.

MONDAY, SEPT. 24

"HEART TO HEART," featuring Mary Astor, Lloyd Hughes and Louise Fazenda in a lively romantic film comedy. In this story Mary, as an Italian Princess, returns to her small town home, mistaken identities occur and she starts a general furore. Scandle, romance, comedy and pathos, all figure deftly into this story. Louise Fazenda, who plays common parts, is developing into one of the screen favorites of today. She first tried her luck as a chorus girl and failed miserably, but on the screen every time her face appears the audience receives a laugh jolt.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 25

"LOVE OVER NIGHT," starring Rod La Roque in a whirlwind of surprises and laughs. This story carries you from the subway of a great city to the fashionable homes of wealth and presents a hero who is a jaunty, carefree money changer and a heroine of rare charm who moves in the higher social circles. In the development of the plot there are exciting happenings with attendant thrills. It is the kind of story that soothes the nerves after a hard days work.

"Soup To Nuts." Christie Comedy.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 26

"SKIRTS," starring Sid Chaplin, the fun maker, in a story having speed, thrills and laughs. This is an adaption of Walter W. Ellis' London stage success "A Little Bit of Fluff." It was actually filmed in England and much of the cast is composed of British talent. The plot deals with a young husband enjoying his first vacation from marital cares. The attendant instances are particularly enlivening and pleasing.

Paramount News No. 119.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 27

"ALEX THE GREAT," featuring Richard ("Skeets") Gallagher, noted stage and vaudeville star. It depicts a country bumpkin's hilarious invasion of cabaret lane. He tries to keep up with the speed of a fast-stepping big city girl, daughter of the mayor—does he do it? You'll roar at the surprises. Incidentally, a number of trick camera shots were used in building up this film.

"Aching Youths." Charlie Chase Comedy.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 28

"CHINATOWN CHARLIE," starring Johnny Hines. This is the old melo-comic extravaganza converted into an hilarious comedy uproar. It is the story of a sight-seeing barker taking the credulous to the mystic maizes of Chinatown and the underworld. In one of the scenes he is trapped in a Mandarin's house and makes a sensational escape, crossing on a human bridge between two buildings. Combine Oriental mystery with dramatic thrills, then burlesque it, and if you don't laugh, you're too wooden to live.

ENGAGEMENT OF PROMINENT FORT BENNING COUPLE ANNOUNCED AT TEA WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Major and Mrs. Lawrence W. Young announce the engagement of their daughter, Louise, to Lieutenant Malcolm Raymond Kammerer, the wedding to take place in the late fall.

Miss Young is a girl of classic beauty and of exceptional charm. She was educated in her native state, North Carolina, and since her college days has enjoyed wide travel.

Lieut. Kammerer graduated from West Point in 1926 and was assigned to Fort Benning, where he has been on duty with the 29th Infantry.

This marriage will unite two of Benning's most popular young people and the announcement of their approaching wedding will be read with great interest throughout the army.

On Wednesday afternoon at their quarters in Block 15 Mrs. Lawrence W. Young, Misses Helen and Louise Young entertained about seventy-five friends at an elegant tea, the occasion of which was to announce the engagement of Miss Louise Young to Lt. Malcolm R. Kammerer. It is of especial interest that on this day, twenty-eight years ago, the bride-elect's mother and father were married. Each guest was given as a favor a dainty hand-made corsage of candies to which the following announcement was attached by a white ribbon:

"September Nineteenth
Hester Johnson—Lawrence Young
Louise Young—Malcolm Kammerer"

In the living room, where the guests were received, colorful autumn flowers were effectively used. But in the dining room the bridal note of all white was carried out in very lovely detail. The table was overlaid with a handsome filet cloth. Its centerpiece was a low silver bowl filled with white roses and white carnations with feathery ferns. Four tall white tapers burned in silver candlesticks. The elegant tea services were presided over by Mrs. Harris Pendleton and Mrs. Frederick Phelps.

Mrs. Young was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Harry M. Gwynn.

Those serving were Mrs. W. L. Roberts, Mrs. John Forsythe, Mrs. John Rossma, Mrs. Shirley Hurt, Misses Daisey Reed, Landon Reed, Sue Brandt, Harriett Wells, Alice Torrey and Sally Bullock of Columbus.

Their invitation list included Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Bootz, Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Brandt, Mrs. Brett, Mrs. Burruss, Miss Sally Bullock, of Columbus, Mrs. Barker, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Childs, Mrs. Case, Mrs. Coffey, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Dobak, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. Franklin, Mrs. Forsythe, Mrs. Gwynn, Mrs. Tierney, Mrs. Griffin, Mrs. Goode, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Hume, Mrs. Hurt, Mrs. Hocker, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Knight, Mrs. Lange, Mrs. Livesay, Mrs. Lovett, Mrs. Lairn, Mrs. Lockhett, Mrs. McCammon, Mrs. McCants, Mrs. Mackie, Mrs. March, Mrs. Methvin, of Columbus, Mrs. Monroe, Mrs. Mood, Miss Lulu Moore, of Columbus, Mrs. Magill, Mrs. Nix, Mrs. Nachmann, Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Patch, Mrs. Pendleton, Mrs. Phelps, Mrs. Pendergrast, Mrs. Partridge, Mrs. Phett, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Roosma, Mrs. Rucker, Mrs. Ryder, Miss Steel, Mrs. Schmidt, Mrs. Sander, Mrs. Torrey, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Vinson, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Willard, Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Yarborough.

On last Saturday evening Col. and Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman kept open house for their daughter, Miss Katherine Kingman, before her departure for college. They had planned to have dancing in the open and had had electric lights strung among the lovely trees so that when it was aglow, it looked like fairyland, and waxed canvas was put down and an orchestra pit arranged. Then about an hour before time for the guests to arrive the sky opened and rain fell in torrents! Later it did hold up so that more guests came than could be comfortably taken care of in the Kingman home, so they repaired to the Polo Club near by, where they forgot about the weather and danced, drank punch, and ate sandwiches and cakes to their heart's content! It was a perfectly delightful party, as Kingman parties always are.

AMERICAN LEGION POST TO HAVE OPEN AIR CARNIVAL

The carnival spirit will rule over the Thirteenth street viaduct Saturday, Sept. 29, when the Charles S. Harrison post of the American Legion presents a home talent entertainment.

The plans for the big event were discussed at a meeting of the local Legionnaires held in their hall on Broadway Tuesday night. Captain William A. Coller, chairman of the committee, outlined his plans which are well under way and T. G. Reeves, who has had an active part in preparing for the event, discussed it at some length.

It was announced at the meeting that ample space will be provided for street dancing.

There will be free acts. One of these will be a battle royal with real pickings for the survivor.

The entertainment will be colorful and there will be such a variety that all ages will be well entertained, the leaders promise.

The plans are being carried out in a systematic way and as the committee has been quietly at work for several weeks the main obstacles are out of the way and the committee began early Wednesday to whip the final plans into shape.

Quite a number of Fort Benning's amateur performers will be in action during the show.

MAIN THEATRE AT FORT BENNING

"I didn't know that such fine amusement facilities existed," is a remark often heard from the student officer upon his first sojourn to the Infantry School. "This is a splendid theater. Do you have as good a movie as this every night?" Yes, three hundred and sixty-six nights this year and every night a different picture. To shorten a long story, members of the Garrison are called upon to notify the Theater Officer of the pictures they desire to see, a careful study of these suggestions is made, then the best pictures are secured from the various film exchanges. These are shown on nights so selected as to best fit the available time of different persons of the command. For instance, on officer's dance nights, a picture which would not particularly please officers, but would be enjoyed by enlisted personnel is shown and vice versa. Sunday nights are always reserved for the highest type and most expensive pictures. The charge Sundays is 25c, because of the higher cost of the film. Week days it is 15c, children every night 10c. Special pictures are secured for them and strange as it may seem the adults sometimes out drown the children's laughter at these specials.

Music "that hath charms" accompanies every picture. A ten-piece orchestra known as "The Main Theater Orchestra" is highly trained. It plays the most select as well as the heel lifting, speed engendering jazz. All music is cued so that it synchronizes with the varied themes of a picture; sometimes over a hundred different varieties of music are played during one picture. This orchestra will surprise, as well as enthrall, you.

Cool, a word enjoyed in the sunny South, is the only way of expressing the evening atmosphere at the Main Theater. This cement building is chilled by two forty-two inch Arco Electric fans which rotate at the rate of four hundred revolutions per minute. The fresh air is taken in and diffused over the audience during every performance.

Back to pictures—every good picture produced is shown here at Benning. The programs are so arranged that a feature appears every night, this is preceded by a News reel, comedy or Fables. News reels are shown Sunday, Wednesday and Friday nights, two reel serials every Monday, Aesop's Fables Sundays and comedies other nights. Suggestions are always invited. Notify the theater officer, by informal note, of any ideas you may have for bettering conditions, and they will be given careful consideration.

The movies are operated purely for entertainment of the personnel and not as a money making institution. Of course, they do make money on this Post, because of the immense patronage. However, with this patronage you can always get a seat—the capacity of this theater is 1,577 seats. Observation is excellent from all of them.

This theater is yours, make use of it and you certainly will get keen enjoyment.

MEN OF SEVENTH ENGINEERS MOURN LOSS OF COMRADE

Corporal DeRamus Passed Away at Station Hospital

In the untimely passing of Corporal Forrest S. De Ramus the Seventh Engineers has lost one of its most dependable and efficient soldiers; a quiet unassuming young man who performed his duties faithfully and to the best of his abilities. This is distinctly a loss to the Seventh Engineers as Corporal De Ramus was one of those who belonged to the old Seventh at Camp Jackson, South Carolina, where he enlisted on Aug. 20, 1920, and served with Company "E." Later Corporal De Ramus came to Fort Benning with Company "E" and all of his service since that time has been with the Seventh at this station with the exception of a brief tour of duty with the Recruiting Service at Memphis, Tenn.

For the past eighteen months Corporal De Ramus has been on duty at the gravel washer on the Upatoi where he has been in charge of the work of producing gravel for the extensive building projects at Fort Benning. It is significant of Corporal De Ramus' quiet efficiency that one has practically never heard of the gravel washer in that time although there has been no falling off in the supply of gravel and sand.

As a man Corporal De Ramus enjoyed the high regard of his comrades and the esteem and confidence of the officers under whom he served. While the Seventh as an organization has lost a valuable soldier the members of the Seventh have lost much more: a comrade and a sincere and dependable friend.

We, men of the Seventh are joined in profound regret at the loss of our comrade and extend our deepest sympathy to those two who feel the loss more deeply even, than we ever can, Mrs. Forrest S. De Ramus and her little son, Donald. —A. D. D.

"WINGS" WILL BE FEATURE AT SPRINGER OPERA HOUSE NEXT WEEK

"Wings," the very latest success in the big picture entertainment, comes to the Springer Opera House, Columbus, for a four-days engagement on Monday evening, September 24th, with matiness every day except Monday, with all the stage settings, accessories and special musical score of the New York presentation. It has been said that no motion picture of the past decade has created such a universal sensation as this latest historic work of our air fighting forces of the World War, made under the special direction of the Paramount Corporation.

There is a romance, adventure and love interest unfolded in the story of "Wings" of delicate heart appeal rarely attained in the tales of notable import pertaining to great subjects and incidents culminating from the World War.

It is the first telling of the battle in the clouds with airplanes and the Air Aces of our war forces. Here is given an accurate close-up of the most fascinating field in present day human activity—aviation. Just what makes flying tick, how it feels to go soaring at blinding speed thousands of feet above earth, what battle to the death in the air means to the cavaliers of the sky, that potent something that draws one with hypnotic force is revealed to the public in "Wings."

It is the most youthful cast of artists ever assembled to enact the daring roles, some of whom are Clara Bow, Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen, Jobyna Ralston, El Brendel, "Gunboat" Smith, Gary Cooper, Richard Tucker, Henry B. Walthal, Julia Swayne Gordon, George Irving, Hedda Hopper, Arlette Marchal and Nigel de Brulier.

Special music by a seventeen piece orchestra will be played during the show.

FINANCE DETACHMENT HAS FINE RECREATION ROOM

"All work and no play will make Jack a dull boy," does not apply to the Finance Detachment of the Infantry School. The motto of Captain Jacob R. McNeil, detachment commander, is "We work when we work and play when we play." During duty hours at the Finance office every one works. This is thoroughly demonstrated through the fact that the Finance Detachment of the Infantry School has the distinction of being one hundred per cent. efficient.

There are only twelve men in the Finance Detachment stationed here, but a visitor to their quarters would be very much surprised at the comforts and pleasures of home life enjoyed by the detachment. Lace curtains adorn the windows while the floor is covered with linoleum, the cots are neat and clean with blankets in place and neatly folded.

The reading room which adjoins the sleeping room is equipped with a new radio, eight large and comfortable plush bottom rockers, the floor is covered by a beautiful art square, reading material including all of the latest books and magazines are to be found in the shelves and upon the reading table, four colored floor lamps and two large electric fans that help to make the summer evenings one of unbroken pleasure and comfort after a busy day.

The comfort and pleasure of the men are carefully watched over by Captain McNeil and any suggestion that will add to their comfort or pleasure always meets with his hearty approval. — Al Durden.

TANKERS OPEN FOOTBALL SEASON AT DOUGHBOY STADIUM SATURDAY

Play Against Maxwell Field Aviators.

Can the advance of the heavy tanks be checked by an aerial attack? Saturday afternoon this question will be answered when the 15th Tank Bn. football warriors clash with the Maxwell Field birdmen at the Doughboy Stadium in the opening game of the season.

Last season the Tankers handed the Aviators a 6 to 0 defeat on their own stamping grounds at Maxwell Field. In this game the Tankers turned the Fliers own weapons upon them, using an aerial attack by the forward pass ruote to score the lone touchdown of the game.

Boasting the strongest team of all times, the Tankers are confident of handing the visitors a second defeat by a much wider margin than the one in the previous game. Many of the friends of "Dog" McGuire will be surprised to see the ex-doughboy in the Fliers lineup. McGuire was a member of the Infantry School team for three seasons but left the lowly ranks of the doughboys for a flier in aviation. .

The visiting team will make the trip over from Maxwell Field and return by plane. They will arrive at Fort Benning for dinner Saturday.

The lineup of the Tankers will be as follows: McKelvey and Hull, end; Bertleman and Costello, tackle; Stewart and Willingham, guard; Lindsey, center; Sullivan and Stansbury, halfback; Bennett, fullback, and Vallery, quarterback.

WHY I LIKE DOGS

By Sgt. Duff

What jolly good chaps they are. They are much superior to human beings as companions. They do not quarrel or argue with you. They never make stupid remarks. They never say unkind things. They are always glad to see us. They are with us in all our humors. They are merry when we are glad, sober when we are solemn, and sad when we are sorrowful. And when we bury our face in our hands and wish we had never been born, they don't sit up very straight and observe that we have brought it all on ourselves, but they come softly and lay their heads against us and say, "Lor, ole man, I am sorry for you." You will always have me you know. We will go through the world together and always stand by each other, won't we?" He never makes it his business to inquire whether you are in the right or wrong, never bothers as to whether you are going up or down life's ladder, never asks if you are rich or poor, silly or wise, sinner or saint, you are his pal. That is enough for him, and come luck or misfortune, good repute or bad, honor or shame, he is going to stick to you, to comfort you, to guard you and if need be give his life for you.

Mr. Editor: If this misses the waste basket, will bring my dog and come again.

EDITOR RECRUITING NEWS TRANSFERRED

Captain A. R. Ginsburgh, Field Artillery, U. S. A., for the past three years editor of the official army magazine, Recruiting News, has been transferred by War Department orders from his post with the Recruiting Publicity Bureau at Governors Island, N. Y., and assigned to troop duty with the Fourth Field Artillery at Fort Robinson, Neb.

An active contributor to national magazines and metropolitan newspapers, Captain Ginsburgh is one of the army's outstanding spokesmen. Under his guidance, the Recruiting News, which is the only official organ of the Adjutant General of the Army, has come to occupy an important position in the journalistic world. Its articles are frequently reprinted by magainzes and newspapers in all parts of the United States.

Captain Ginsburgh graduated from Harvard in 1917 with Phi Beta Kappa and magna cum laude honors. His successor on Recruiting News is Captain Harris M. Melasky, a graduate of West Point, class of 1917.

13 GENERALS WILL ATTEND MANEUVERS OF SECOND DIVISION NEXT MONTH

Thirteen generals and their staffs are expected to come to Fort Sam Houston on October 22 for the gigantic command and staff maneuvers, which will involve the working out of a military problem by an entire army. The maneuvers will represent two corps, and communications will be laid for the activities of approximately 220,000 men in actual warfare. In reality the maneuver will be conducted by 450 officers, without enlisted personnel.

All the officers are ordered to Fort Sam Houston for 14 days training. The training period is effective October 15 and the problem will not be worked out until October 22. The maneuvers will be similar to those taught in the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Every branch of the service, including infantry, artillery, medical corps, engineers, quartermaster, signal corps, cavalry, chemical warfare and railroad artillery that would be necessary to the fighting of a major engagement, where an army takes part, will be included in the maneuvers.

The Generals who are expected to be here include Brigadier General Albert J. Bowley, Commanding General of the Eighth Corps Area and Second Division; Brigadier General Harold B. Fiske, Commanding General of the Third Brigade; Brigadier General George V. H. Moseley, Fort Bliss, commanding the First Cavalry Division; Brigadier General Samuel D. Rockenbach, commanding Second Field Artillery Brigade; Brigadier General Dwight Aultman, commanding Field Artillery School, Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Brigadier General LeRoy Eltinge, Commanding General of First Cavalry Brigade, Fort Clark; Brigadier General F. C. Bolles, commanding general of the Fourth Brigade, Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming; Major General John A. Hulen, of Houston, commanding the Thirty-sixth Division, Texas National Guard; Major General B. A. Markham, Ponca City, Oklahoma, commanding the Forty-fifth Division, Oklahoma National Guard; Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters, Houston, commanding the Thirty-sixth Cavalry Brigade, Texas National Guard; Brigadier General Claude V. Birkhead, San Antonio, commanding Artillery Brigade of the Thirtv-sixth Division, Texas National Guard; Brigadier General J. Key, Oklahoma City, Artillery Brigade commander, Forty-fifth Division, Oklahoma National Guard, and Brigadier General Roy Hoffman, commanding the Ninety-fifth Division and formerly National President of the Organized Reserve Corps.—2nd Division Review.

WASHINGTON'S PISTOL IN HANDS OF ONE OF HIS DESCENDANTS

Firearms have since their introduction many years ago always been a topic of interest. Museums have spent great sums of money which will count into fortunes collecting and placing on exhibition for the public, to show the progress that has been made from the time the first crude cap and ball gun to the present destructive and death dealing instruments they are today.

Among these early guns there is one that has as yet escaped being placed in a case, tagged and used to serve as a relic of the labor of an early gunsmith. The particular gun in mind is the pistol of George Washington, the "Father of our Country," carried. This gun is still in existence. It is in the possession of an elderly and quaint lady, a Mrs. Sample, a native of one of our border states, Tennessee. Mrs. Sample claims to be a direct descendant of our early Patroit and Leader.

If this gun were human or some miracle, a kind that happened only in Biblical days of yore, were to come to pass and it could become possessed of the power of speech, many thrilling tales of adventure, narrow escapes and hardships suffered could it tell.

The gun thought not so small, compact and efficient as the small guns of today, served its purpose and was carried through more hazardous perils than will with extremely few exceptions of any gun of today ever be called on to undergo.

The gun in itself is a cumbersome looking affair. It is approximately fifteen inches long. It's barel is made of solid brass, while at the muzzle it turns out and reminds one of the bell of some wind blown musical instrument of today. The hammer is fastened on the side of the gun and when it falls it strikes a piece of flint which furnishes the spark required to set fire to the powder which in turn discharges the piece.

According to the owner of the gun and the story told her as the gun was handed down from generation to generation, 'twas carried by Washington through the French and Indian War and the Revolutionary War. While the most gripping experience, experienced with it was during the last battle of the French and Indian War.

WHISTLES TIED TO ARMY PIGEONS FRIGHTEN OFF BIRDS OF PREY

At the United States Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N. J., carrier pigeons are being equipped with Chinese whistles as an experiment to protect them from wild hawks and other birds of prey and from trained falcons in war time. The whistles are made of feather-weight bamboo and are attached to the pigeon's tail. While the birds are in motion a weird noise is made that, it is thought, will drive away any attacking bird of prey.

The Oriental fancier equipped his pigeons with tail whistles for amusement.

Sending messages by means of carrier pigeons was one of the earliest methods of communication. It is known that the homing pigeons were domesticated and used in the fifth Egyptian dynasty, about 3000 B. C.

In the World War, in spite of every modern invention, the pigeon was used in many instances as a way of communication when other methods failed. When Major Whittlesey's men were cut off from the remainder of their division, news of the "Lost Battalion" was carried to headquarters by pigeons.

During the World War more than 500,000 homing pigeons were used by the various combatants. At present in the sixteen army signal lofts in the United States, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and the Philippines approximately 1,251 pigeons are maintained.

WE LEAD THE WAY

Company "H"

Some people sure do have a hard time finding something to talk about. I just overheard a conversation between Sgt. Causey and "Country" Pharr. Their main topic for discussion was the question as to who furnished the other with the most tooth paste and shaving cream. Sgt. Causey makes the claim that he has kept Pharr and Sgt. Pyles in tooth paste since they have been in the army. Pharr says that Sgt. Causey borrows his soap as fast as he can steal it. Now who is the biggest bum, Pvt. Littlefield or Pvt. Julius. I should say that Pvt. "Chisling" McElveen wins by a nose . . . (ruby nose.)

I have actually seen where this place is where Pvt. William R. (Bugle Nose) Smoak fell out of that farm of his when he came in the army. They actually have to put "holding-back-straps" on the geese so that they can navigate those Carolina "hills." They have curves in those mountains so sharp that one must back up twice in order to get around them. They harvest their pumpkins by opening the barn door and cutting them loose from the vines, gravity serves the transportation problem. It is beautiful country, tho', as much as you can see, and you can see plenty of it, such as it is.

We are looking forward to the night of the 28th of this month with no little interest. On that night, our pride, The Gunner, will meet a worthy opponent, and we know that he will give a good account of himself, as he has always done. The Gunner is in the best possible physical condition, and is training hard for the fights that are bound to come. We sure do hope that this opponent will be none other than Gainesville's versatile athlete, Stiles Attaway. When these two men meet, the fans are going to see something that is worth going many miles to see. Attaway is backed strongly by his home element, and by many others who have seen him in action. It has already been stated, DePratt will assuredly give more than a creditable account of himself regardless of the opponent picked for him.

On the night of the 13th, inst., the Company had a banquet, at which chicken was the main point of impact. Some of the boys have eaten so much chicken that they are ashamed to look a hen in the face. It has been noticed that Sgt. Pyless has become very adept at the art of cackling. Pvt. Bass runs him a close second.

During the past range season, Corporal Duff carried through a squad to qualify with the exceptional score of 334. This makes his squad high squad in the company. I only wish that I was capable of giving Corp. Duff the publicity that he deserves. He did wonderful work by bringing the squad from behind to the topmost point in the company. Hats off to Duff, and here's hoping that the can doesn't "bust." Cpl. O'Brien must be mentioned too, 'cause he made Duff hump to win and darn near made high score in the regiment hisself.

Pvt. Ballard has the record in getting ready to go to town. He started to getting ready at five ack emma to getting ready to go to the metropolis, and at nine pip emma, he departed via Howard Bus Line. Better luck the next time, "Merry."

As you like it—

—B. B. Swayze.

Company "E"

Company "E," 29th Infantry, is calling it a day now by doing a little calisthenics, close order drill, interior guard duty, care and adjustment of individual equipment, and first aid and military courtesy during the morning period.

Corporal Cook is one of the newest Corporals in Co. "E," 29th Infantry. Private first class Rust is one of the new second cooks in company with 5th class rating. The following are the new rated 6th class Spec. automatic riflemen: Pfc. Marquette, McCoy, Story, G. H. and Pvts. Hawkins, P., Jones, H. O., Langley, Phillips and Stokley.

We now have twenty-three recruits in the Regimental Recruit School undergoing recruit instruction and hope to have them for duty in the near future to help perform guard duty and other necessary duty around the company.

We are sorry to loose Lieutenant Hocker. He has been transferred to Howitzer Company.

Private first class Hicks and Pvt. Shelton, W. P., left on a 30-day furlough on Sept. 7th.

We have two new officers assigned to company from West Point, Lieutenants Totten and Breckinridge.

The first guard performed by Co. "E" after range season Sept. 8th, the first and second orderlies were taken by Private Lamb and Chatmon, respectively. Private first class Grady Edwards was bucking hard for it. He told Private Lamb before guard mount that he would have to learn the high sign to beat him and after the inspection was over Private Lamb beat him for it. Private Lamb states that Private Edwards lost considerable sleep polishing up the night before but he failed to make the grade. Better luck next time, Ed.

Private Padgett is one of our best rooters at the Second Battalion baseball games these days. Padgett can be heard above everyone else there. He looked like he would have to take a two-day pass after last game he looked so fagged out and his voice was so hoarse. Private Padgett is very interested in the football season that is near at hand and thinks he will be a great boost for the team as a player and cheer leader.

Cpl. Milikan is working out every evening now at the Gym. He is thinking of entering the boxing game in the near future. He said he had to lose 20 pounds yet. He was asked at inspection the reason for the Awol of a button on his shirt and he replied that he had been gaining in weight and his shirt had been shrinking.

Cpl. Pratt has reported over at Tybe Island for a few days to cool off from his strenuous target season. No one knew of his whereabouts for about a week and then we heard he had been over at Tybe Island cooling off his pipes after his strenuous work on McAndrew Range. —I. M. Y.

GRID WARRIORS PREPARE FOR FOOTBALL SEASON AT FORT BENNING

(By Al)

As the pigskin warriors of the gridiron prepare for the fierce conflicts that will be waged on the field at the Doughboy Stadium in the near future, critics are discussing the strength of the competing teams and at this early date, though widely divided, have already began to argue long and loudly as to the outcome of the season.

There are those who will tell you that the Kellys with their baffling aerial attack and lightning backfield will top the heap this season. They point to the fact that last year's machine remains intact except for the loss of McGuire in the backfield, while several youngsters of last season will more than off-set this vacancy in the coming season.

Still the fact remains that the stone-wall defense of the Tanker line was never pierced last season. True enough Daley and Sweeney will be missing this season, but a half dozen promising candidates are fighting it out for their positions. A new addition to the Tanker backfield will be Bobbie Brown who starred at full-back with the First Bats last season. The Tankers will be very much in evidence at the final whistle.

With veterans like Romploski and McFadden showing the way the First Bats of the 29th Infantry are taking the field this season with a team that will be mostly developed from first year men. But although young material will be used to build from, they are a tough bunch of youngsters and if their prep school records count for anything they are going to be heard from when the season opens.

Captain Douglas L. Crane will coach the Galloping Gunners this season. Captain Crane is well known in the football world. He is a graduate of Princeton University and was picked as a member of the All-American football team while playing with the football team there. Under his guidance and with their famous fighting spirit the Gunner's football stock has taken a big rise among the football fans of the garrison.

It is a settled fact that the special units of the garrison are going to be represented by an all-star team but as yet a coach has not been chosen to lead this squad of veterans. Several of the leading players of the garrison will form this team, while quite a few youngsters with enviable prep school records will be out for a regular berth.

THE INFANTRY

The Infantry is the oldest of the "arms" into which armies are conventionally divided. The word "Infantry" comes from a Latin word meaning child, boy, servant, foot soldier—foot soldiers being formerly the servants and followers of knights. It is said that in German reviews the Infantry always comes first and is greeted by the emperor as "My children," the "Mes enfants" of the French—hence "Infantry" an assemblage of children.

The following versions are given of the derivation of the expression "Dough Boy" as meaning "Infantryman":

1. In olden times, when infantrymen used to clean their white trimmings with pipe-clay, if caught in the rain the whiting would run, forming a kind of dough—hence the sobriquet "dough boy."

2. The tramp of infantry marching in mud sounds as if their shoes were being worked and pressed in "dough."

3. From "Adobe" (mud) then "Dobie"—the idea being Infantrymen are the soldiers who have to march in the mud; hence the expressions used in the sixties and early seventies in referring to infantrymen as "Dobie crushers," "Dobie makers" and "Mud crushers."

4. However, some Infantrymen think they are called "Dough boys" because they are always "kneaded" (needed), while other Infantrymen think they are so called because they are the "flower" (flour) of the Army.

(Probably loyal infantrymen think this for the same reason that good artillerymen say artillerymen are called "Wagon soldiers" because they are the ones who always deliver the goods.)—Ex.

GENERAL IMMELL PRESENTED WITH GIFT BY WISCONSIN NATIONAL GUARD

Following a review of all troops at Camp Williams on July 31, Brig. Gen. Ralph M. Immell was presented with a handsome 8 cylinder White Eagle Delux Victoria Kissel automobile, the gift of the officers and men of the Wisconsin National Guard as a token of esteem they have for the adjutant general.

It was an act that is unique in the history of the Guard. In thirty-three years' service in the Wisconsin Guard the writer does not recall a presentation having been made to any other adjutant general during his term of office. There have been those who have been recipient of token upon their retirement, but not while they were still active, so in giving this the Guard expresses its appreciation over the work done by Gen. Immell after five years in office. It is as high a compliment as could be paid him by Wisconsin's soldiery. — Wis. Natl. Guard Review.

General Immell was a member of the National Guard and Reserve Field Officers Class at the Inf. School last year.

ARMY UNIFORMS TO INDIAN SCHOOLS

Approximately 14,000 army breeches and 8,500 army blouses will be transferred immediately from the office of the Quartermaster General, Department of War, to the office of Indian Affairs, at the request of the Indian office and by order of the chief co-ordinator, Brig. Gen. H. C. Smithers, according to an announcement, Sept. 11, at the office of the chief co-ordinator.

This equipment will be used in the Indian schools throughout the country, it was pointed out. Where possible the clothing will be used as uniforms for Indian cadets and in other cases will serve as secondary clothing for the Indian school boys.

WHAT SOME MEN OF FOREIGN BIRTH HAVE DONE

History records that our early forefathers came to America mainly for one purpose, the founding of a home, enjoying the blessings of liberty and a pursuit of happiness. These early pioneers braved the dangers of the seas by crossing in sailing vessels which in many instances seasoned salts of today would hesitate before casting themselves loose with them on some of our inland rivers. Once they landed their troubles were far from ended. New perils assailed them on every side. Their roof was the open canopy of heaven, their food for the main part the beast that roamed the forests, while they were almost continuously beset, their live in jeopardy by the Indians who had more than a fond passion for the palefaces' scalps to adorn his lodge. Yet, these pioneers of old were undaunted; they continued to cross the ocean willing to cast their lot with others who had gone before. Not from one country alone did they come, but from all civilized nations with but one thought to urge them on, to build for themselves and their posterity a nation whereby they have homes, secure in the blessing of liberty and a pursuit of happiness.

That dream of the early patriots has come true. Today we stand in what all Americans consider the greatest nation on earth. Scores of years have passed since the early settlers first landed on American shores and built their first crude homes. During this time thousands and thousands of men and women of foreign birth have cast aside their native heath and adopted America as their home. Many of them have entered into the work of their new found home with a zeal and wholeheartedness that would be a glowing example for many of us who were more fortunate than they by being born here. Not only have they entered into the work and adopted the spirit of a true American but they have given freely of their labors and life's blood. When our country has been at war with other nations, blood ties were severed and they fought their one time countrymen and were as gallant in battle as any of their adopted brothers.

Several of these men have adopted the military profession as a career. Several have made good and risen to heights that surpass many of their adopted brothers. Here at Benning are men who hold positions of responsibility. These men are Major Bootz, Assistant Executive Officer; Col. William P. Hill of the Vetinary Corps, Capt. John M. Tamaraz of the Medical Corps and formerly of Fort Benning, and First Lieut. Frank J. Vida of the Tanks. Major Bootz was born in the country which is our greatest rival in the progress of science, invention and art, Germany. Col. Hill comes from the plains of one of the oldest civilized nations of the world, India. Capt. Tamaraz from Persia, another country of Asia. Lieut. Vida from Hungary.

Three of these men first entered the service as enlisted men. Capt. Tamaraz as a private in the Medical Corps in August in 1918. Later in the year he was commissioned a lieutenant. Today he is recognized as one of the leading surgeons of the army. Major Bootz entered the service as a private in the 27th U. S. Volunteers in 1899. During his career he has served in Infantry, Cavalry, and Field Artillery. During this time he has held every grade that an enlisted man can hold. He reached his present grade in the latter part of 1920. Lieut. Vida first entered as a private in the 12th Inf. N. Y. National Guard. Before being commissioned he attained the rank of 1st Sgt. and was commissioned a lieutenant of Infantry in 1920.

These men are only a few of the many of foreign birth who have entered the service and are still serving the flag. They are scattered about over the entire army. Some as enlisted men, others as officers, but wherever they are they are all serving with a devotion of true Americans. —B. H. C.

HEADQUARTERS BATTERY WIN ARTILLERY BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

While early football practice and the finish of the Class "A" league baseball season have been holding the spotlight for the past week, a little "World Series" was being hotly contested among the batteries of the 83rd Field Artillery.

During the early season "Battery Series," duty interferred with the schedule and the battery championship was never decided. With the close of the Battalion League, the Galloping Gunners organized their battery teams and finished the schedule which began in the early season.

The final game which was played on Hoban Field Wednesday afternoon with Headquarters battery taking the final and deciding game from "B" Battery in an extra inning affair 3 to 2.

The oft heard expression "little but loud," certainly appliesto the Galloping Gunners. Although only about four-hundred in number, the noise made would have done credit to the Polo Grounds in the midst of a world series.

Wednesday's victory gives Headquarters Battery their fourth consecutive battery championship in as many years.

STUDENT OFFICERS HAVE ARRIVED FOR SCHOOL TERM

Formal Exercises Will Take Place on September 26.

For the past fortnight incoming trains and dusty and travelled stained automobiles have been arriving with their cargoes of student officers, who will attend the Infantry School this year.

At a late hour Thursday night, all of the student body assigned to Fort Benning had arrived and reported except a few who were expected to arrive within the next twenty-four hours.

Upon the arrival in Columbus, the students were met at the Ralston Hotel by a reception committee of the Infantry School, who had left no stone unturned in preparing for the need and comfort of the new arrivals.

The efficiency of the committee was highly complimented upon by the incoming officers. Married officers with their families were quickly informed concerning the choicest furnished apartments, with the result that they were able to spend their first night in Columbus in their own home. Information concerning the garrison or city, from real estate to the smallest item, such as speed limit and etc., being given promptly and correctly.

The formal opening of the Infantry School of 1928-29, will be held at the Main Theatre at Fort Benning, Sept. 26, 1928, at 10:30 A. M., with the following program:

March, 29th Inf. Band — National Emblem.

Invocation—Chaplin Thomas L. McKenna.

Address by the Commandant — Brig. General Edgar T. Collins.

Address by the Mayor of Columbus—Honorable J. Homer Dimon.

Benediction—Chaplin John R. Wright.

March, 29th Inf. Band—Follow Me.

Items of Interest Concerning Army Activities Elsewhere

Student officers are rapidly arriving at Fort Sill for the Field Artillery School this year. Practically all the officers will live in the city of Lawton during the school term, which was formally opened last Wednesday, Sept. 12.

The Tenth Infantry polo team has returned to its home station, after taking a tour of several Ohio cities, where exhibition games were played, in which the Tenth came out the victors. Lieut. Jack Farmer, who played at Fort Benning last year is a member of the Tenth Infantry team this year.

General Samuel D. Rockenbach has arrived at Fort Sam Houston to take command of the Second Field Artillery Brigade.

The new barracks for the Third Field Artillery at Fort Benj. Harrison, Indiana, are now under construction. The location will be in the vicinity of the present wooden barracks occupied for the battalion.

Did you hear about the Scotchman who stood up on the Fourth of July and snapped his fingers?

THE ARMY UNITED

"The Infantry is the Army," declared the doughboy.

"Who wants to hike" scoffed the cavalryman, "get yourself a horse and you'll know the best branch of the service."

"Is that so," shouted the "red-leg." "Let me tell you, soldier, it's the field artillery that has 'em all beat. Yes bo! It takes men to drive the teams and man the guns."

"You said it," echoed the coast artilleryman. "Give me those big babies that throw a thousand pound shell twenty miles every time."

"Say, I can throw my work thousands of miles," stated the signal corpsman, "how about lining up with the big dot and dash men? We are the boys who operate the telephones, ocean cables, and overseas radio departments."

"Get wings, men, get wings," chipped in the Air Corpsman. "You're all worms, crawling on the earth! Me for the clouds!"

"Don't count me out of this argument," the Medical Department "pill-roller" chimed in. "My work may not be flashy, but when you're sick, you come to me and I get my pleasure in making you get well."

"And don't forget," drawled the commissary clerk with the Quartermaster Corps Insignia, "I give you food and clothing."

"How about my outfit?" challenged the man behind the counter in the Finance Department. You'll all admit we're the popular branch with the Army—on pay day, at least."

There remained one still silent, to whom the rest now looked. He smiled, including them all in the warmth of his embracing grin.

"You're all more or less right," he said. The Army could not do without any one of your branches. But I represent the outfit that keeps you all going. None of you would be here without me. I belong to the go-getters. Where would you be without the Recruiting Service?"

The United States Army is big enough for all of us.—Exchange.

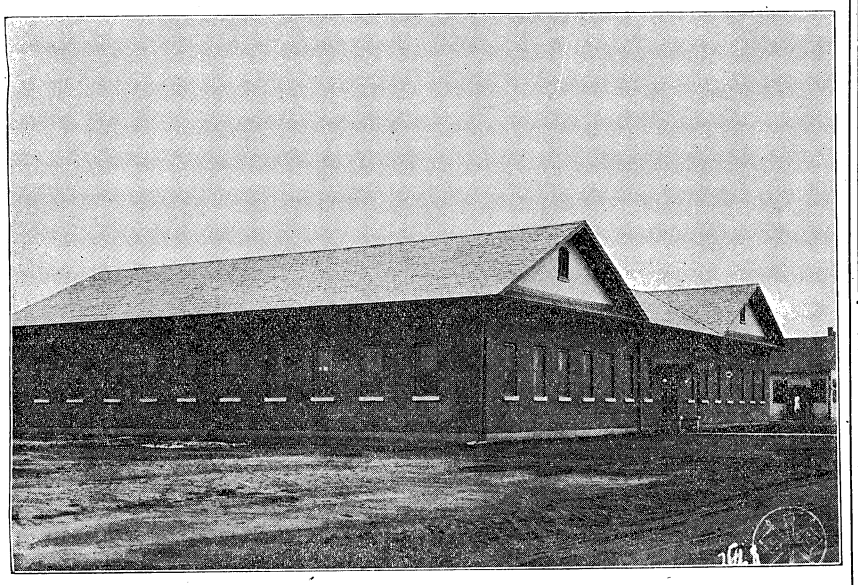
HOME OF ACADEMIC LIBRARY



INFANTRY SCHOOL LIBRARY OCCUPIES NEW BUILDING

Office of Quartermaster Completed; Loaned for Use of Big Library Pending Construction of Academic Building

The Infantry School Academic Library has a new home. About three months ago construction was begun on a one-story brick building opposite the academic area and the Post Exchange grocery store. The building was recently completed and last week the Academic Library was formally opened for business in the new structure. This building has been designated as the office of the Quartermaster of the Infantry School, but it has been loaned to the Academic Department for use as the library.

The structure is a very imposing one standing on the corner of two of Fort Benning's principal thoroughfares and in the center of all activities of the Infantry School. It will be a great convenience to student officers.

Few people realize what a valuable collection of books dorn the shelves of the Academic Library. There are approximately 3,000 books with a valuation of about $40,000. The major part of the books are professional, dealing with technical subjects, both military and commercial. There is no doubt that it is one of the most complete reference libraries in this section of the country.

Formerly the library was housed in a frame building in the academic area. In this building reading space was limited and the shelves crowded considerably over the two floors. The new structure affords ample room for the shelves and practically all of one wing is designated as a reading room which is also supplied with writing desks.

The officer in charge of the library is Capt. W. A. Collier. The assistant librarian is Miss Chappell; chief clerk, Master Sergeant W. J. Stewart, and assistant clerk, Sergeant Frank Crosby. The latter two have been on this duty for the past five or six years.

JAZZ MUSIC AT MAIN THEATRE

The Main Theatre Orchestra will, from time to time, during intermission between the comedy and feature pictures, play jazz numbers in addition to the classical music which, in the past, has so pleased audiences. These jazz numbers will be of the latest and most catchy type. In order to better acquaint the audience with them, a slide will be run on the screen showing the title of the music being rendered. A considerable number of these jazz pieces are available, because of the fact that the orchestra has access to the 29th Infantry Music Library as well as the Main Theatre Library.

Special request numbers will be played. If you have in mind any particular music, jazz or otherwise, which you desire to hear, drop a note to the Assistant Recreation Officer, or leave a slip in the Suggestion Box at the Main Theatre and the chances are ten to one that the piece you desire to hear will be rendered within the week. If it is a patricularly good selection it will be played as a special number on a Sunday evening.

This is in keeping with the policy of the Main Theatre administration which endeavors to the utmost to promote new things for the pleasure of its patrons. Sergeant Ralph R. Wright, leader of the Main Theatre orchestra, and his group of talented musicians, have already started rehearsals in the latest and snappiest productions of the jazz world, and will be ready within a very few days to put this new scheme into effect.

This orchestra, said to be the best theatre orchestra in the U. S. army and one of the best in the entire South, has gained its efficiency through hard work. The main reason for this reputation is due to the fact that every man in the orchestra feels that he is a principal part of the Main Theatre administration, and an unusual degree of harmony (mental) exists within this group — team work means not only success in battle but also in every undertaking wherein members of the military are engaged.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM THE STATION HOSPITAL

Colonel F. C. Baker returned from a five day leave, after going to Staunton, Va., where his son, Martin, has been enrolled at the Military Academy.

Mrs. P. F. McGuire and children have arrived home, after an enjoyable visit of two months with relatives in Baltimore, Md.

Major and Mrs. M. C. Stayer and son, Billie, returned Saturday after visiting in Ashville, N. C., and Carlisle, Pa. Billie attended the Georgia Military Summer Camp at Hendersonville, N. C., and is now attending high school in Columbus, Ga.

Miss Eleanor O'Neal, 2nd Lieutenant, Army Nurse Corps, arrived the last part of August from the Philippines and was assigned to night duty at the Station Hospital.

Miss Florence C. Daley, 2nd Lieutenant, Army Nurse Corps, is enjoying a four months leave, visiting friends and relatives in New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

A new Baby Grand piano has been installed at the Nurse's quarters and is giving much enjoyment to all members of the A. N. C.

The barracks of the Medical Demonstration Detachment is beginning to shine with its new coat of paint both inside and out. We hope the personnel will shine more than the barracks on demonstrations, starting soon.

Private Thomas F. Lewis was discharged from the Medical Department the past week and has left for his home in Tennessee. His many friends at the Demonstration Detachment and the Station Hospital wish him the best of luck in civilian life.

We wonder what takes Sgt. Brown to Columbus so often. Is it the ball games?

Pvt. Victor Accardo was discharged by purchase September 17th and has left for New Orleans, La.

Pfc. John Marrigan, 3rd class specialist, better known and better liked as Doc our genial Dental Technician, was discharged the 18th and will soon leave for Canada to resume practice of Denistry. Doc is a graduate of the Universiy of Toronto, Canada. Best of luck Doc.

Captain Fred E. Hickson left the 13th on detached service for eleven days to participate in golf tournament for championship of the army held at Chevy Chase Country Club, Washington, D. C. Hope you bring home the bacon Captain.

Major W. A. Squires, D. C., returned after a three months leave of wandering over the states on auto tour.

Major Ben Norris returned after a month and fifteen days leave spent in Ohio.

Captain Jarrett Huddleston returned after a leave of 45 days which was spent in Washington, D. C., mostly, maybe, at Bolling Field.

Bowden should leave the nursing bottles to the infants unless he is in his second childhood.

A mess sergeant of Medical Department having some 29 years of service has yet to learn on which line of, the only important document of the entire month, the pay roll, to sign. Maybe his sight is getting poor on account of too much studying of bills of fare.

Hdqrs. Battery 83rd F. A. Bn.

Sorry, folks, but our reporter has been snowed under with work for the past two weeks, and your own opinion will have to be formed of happenings. Just imagine, if you can, a bozo sitting in a bath tub, surrounded by gobs of Ivory, Lux and that Skin you love to touch stuff. Then picture in your mind said bozo applying a brush vigorously on his chest: the title is: "Making a Clean Breast of It." So here goes, folks, pull down your hats for a fast ride.

Pfc. Vanderpool reported back from a 60-day leave, after many pleasant hours in parts unknown, and has now resumed the duties of battery mechanic.

Ex-Cpl. Powell was reduced on the 6th upon his own request. Sgt. Dodd surely had something to do with said reduction, as Pvt. Powell and Sgt. Dodd are seen Buck-board riding daily.

Brass in every way, every day around Hdqrs. Btry. seems to glitter more and more. Even Cpl. Douglas was seen out for Guard Mount with a shined belt. How come Doug? And who did you make the touch from.

Pvt. Lane, our dashing battery barber, was in town some few nights past, and was under the wheel of a "U-Drive-It," and the following was remarked by Cpl. Cole and Pfc. Fuller: Fuller: Lane is a tremendously convincing talker, don't you think so, Cole? Cpl. Cole: I did until I heard him try to talk back to a Speed Cop.

Pfc. Starnes was discharged on the 2nd, taking on another stack with the dashing Artillery, and is now on leave up Atlnata way. Watch out for the Movie-Tone while in Atlanta Lonie, as it might thrill you, or at least Cpl. Vines said it would.

Staff Sgt. McCallum has joined the battery, as Mrs. McCallum has left for the north for winter. Welcome to the gang Mack.

New garrison shoes were issued the entire battery on the 8th, and can you imagine Cpl. Summar arguing with the Supply Sgt. that he wanted a 8-A. How about those 1 1-2-EE you got foots?

Gunners instruction under the superb supervision of Lieut. Leinbach seems to be improving greatly. From all indications many experts are to be turned out by Hqrs. Btry.

The newly joined recruits have been having considerable equitation of late and many spills occur. Pvt. Robin was trying to do a Lindy flip. How about it Robin.

Our Goat "Bill" is now back with us, after spending a three months leave in Columbus. Pfc. Hurst said he had to return him as he was eating everything in sight even the Flivver was not over locked.

ENGINEERS WIN PENANT IN CLASS "A" LEAGUE

Finishing in first place in both halves of the split season schedule, the Bridgebuilders from the 7th Engineers are the undisputed champions of the Class "A" League, with a post season series unnecessary to decide the winner.

The race in the "A" league has been close and hard fought all season with the outcome in doubt until the final games. The Muleskinners from the Service Company, 29th Infantry, were only eliminated at the last moment.

Every man on the Bridgebuilder team did his bit toward the winning of the 1928 bunting, but to "Long Cy" Perkins goes the lions share. The twirling of this lean, lanky wonder has been one of the outstanding features of the season. Besides winning his own games, Cy has been a life saver on several occasions when one of his battery mates weakened under fire.

Bunny Rowe did good work for the Bridgebuilders behind the plate, his catching being the best in the league. Practically every man on the team starred at his position. In fact the Bridgebuilders are thoroughly capable of holding their own with any baseball team in the garrison.

While honors are being distributed a goodly share is reserved for "Ole Man" Willard, who managed the Bridgebuilders during their victorious penant drive. Although no longer a "Pullet" by any means, he has the cunning and stratgey of eighteen years of active service on the diamond stored away, and with the bunch of fighting youngsters to follow his lead it is little wonder that the "Blue Penant" waves over Engineer Hill.

TANK FOOTBALL WARRIORS

When the Fort Benning football season opens at Doughboy Stadium tomorrow in the game between the 15th Tanks and Maxwell Field, lovers of the pigskin game will be treated with thrills by the performances of the three men above who are on the Tanks team. They have played at Fort Benning in seasons past and have attained a nation wide reputation in army football circles. All of them were members of the All-Army team last year and gave good accounts of themselves in the Marine game in Washington.

ADDITIONAL 29TH INF. NOTES

A Famous Hostelry Closes Its Doors to The Public

No blaze of glory attended the closing of the doors of the famous "Hotel De Teachout" on September 11th, last; not an eye was dimmed as the last "guest" checked out for the last time. Porters, bell hops, and taxis were conspicious by their absence.

Yet among the spectators were many, whose memories took them back to the "pioneer days," when De Teachout managed the famous hostelry. To these, came strange feelings, hitherto unknown, as they realized the inoxerable march of progress.

Special ceremonies were the order of the day at the new "Wire City" as it opened its doors to its new "guests." Capt. E. T. Jones is the new manager, and he promises service and the comforts of home to all his new guests.

A special competition, unique in the annals of the 29th Infantry, was arranged this week by Capt. A. R. MacKechnie, our genial Supply Officer. Under special R. U. S. O. rules, each company in the First Battalion undertook to raze one building each of the old Post Stockade against time. (Catch as catch can; no hammer holts barred.) The time of the winning company is to constitute a record, for which a suitable trophy will be presented.

The performances to date are as as follows:

Co. "A"—1 hour, 59 min., 59 4-5 sec.
Co. "B"—42 min., 4 3-5 sec.
Co. "C"—31 min., 1 1-1000 sec.
Co. "D"—Watch failed to function.

Protests have been filed with Referee MacKechnie by the losing companies alleging that Capt. "Mike" O'Hoolihan of Co. "See" took undue advantage in that his company broke union rules by starting work before reveille; in that he, himself, a captain U. S. Army, did ride a bicycle, while superintending the work, and, finally, in that he did equip his men with roller skates.

The matter is being held in abeyance pending a suitable reply (if any) from Capt. O'Hoolihan.

Vol. VII. FORT BENNING, GA., SEPTEMBER 28, 1928. Number 2.

NINTH ACADEMIC YEAR FORMALLY OPENED AT MAIN THEATER WEDNESDAY MORNING

School days at Fort Benning are again here. At 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning all student officers assembled in the Main Theater of the Infantry School for the formal opening exercises for the school year.

Early Wednesday morning approximately two hundred and fifty officers, recently arrived at Fort Benning for the school term, were winding their way towards the Upatoi. Upon reaching there the student officers reported to their organizations. Upon the sounding of the familiar first sergeant's whistle shortly before ten o'clock Companies A, B and C "fell in" to march to the Main Theater for the formal exercises. Company A, or the officers of the Advanced Class, was commanded by Lieut.-Col. Edward H. Tarbutton; Company B and Company C were commanded by Captains John P. Horan and John N. McBride, respectively. The latter two companies comprise those officers who are pursuing the company officers course. Upon the forming of the companies they were marched in company formation to the Main Theater.

Upon reaching the Fort Benning theater the companies were seated towards the front of the large auditorium. The remainder of the seats in the theater were occupied by the instructors and others of the permanent personnel at the Infantry School. Many wives and families of the new student officers and those of the permanent garrison, were present to witness the beginning of another academic year at the Infantry School.

At 10:30 o'clock the 29th Infantry band played the National Anthem. The remainder of the program given is as follows:

Invocation, Chaplain T. L. McKenna.

Address, Mayor J. Homer Dimon, of Columbus.

Address, General Edgar T. Collins, the commandant of the Infantry School.

Benediction, Chaplain J. R. Wright.

Music, 29th Infantry band. Follow Me.

General Collins' Address of Welcome

General Edgar T. Collins, the commandant of the Infantry School then addressed the members of the new classes and friends of members and the faculty. He stated that on behalf of the entire command that he extended a cordial welcome to the members of the new classes, on this the beginning of the ninth academic year of the Infantry school. General Collins stated in the course of his address that the Infantry School occupied a foremost place in the school system of the United States army, and that although the youngest of them all, it was considered one of the most important, and that graduates of the school were in demand all over the country as instructors in educational institutions as well as on duty with troops. He congratulated the members of the classes on being selected as students of the Infantry School this year and that more time was being devoted now than ever before to the training of the regular army officer; that there was no excuse for untrained officers of the regular army with the present school system. The capacity to command troops depends greatly on the understanding

GUNNER DEPRATT WINS DECISION OVER TILLIE KID HERMAN IN SLASHING TEN ROUND BATTLE

(By Al Durden)

Mixing a tantalizing left jab with a paralizing right cross that kept Herman on the defensive most of the time, Gunner DePratt fought his way to a clean-cut victory over the Mexican Assassin at the Fort Fight Arena Tuesday night.

The fight was one of the best ten-round bouts ever witnessed at Fort Benning, and the final decision was a popular one.

Herman came out fighting in the first round; he seemed to figure on making the fight a short one. Boring in close he sank a right to Gunner's stomach. They swapped short jabs to the body at close range. In a fast mixup in the center of the ring Tillie was cautioned by the referee for hitting low. The second and third rounds were fast with DePratt tantalizing Herman with his left jab. Both boys exchanged hard smashes to the body near the end of the third.

Herman threw caution to the four winds and stepped in to slug in the fourth. With both boys standing toe to toe in a fierce exchange the fans went wild. The roar doubled in volume a moment later when Herman went down under a terrific right hook to the jaw. This wallop would have stopped any ordinary fighter, but Tillie can take them. At the count of nine he came up groggy. The Gunner rocked him from pillar to post but he weathered the storm.

The fifth round saw Tillie on the defensive using ring stratgey and cunning to stem the tide of defeat. With his left eye completely closed Herman fought gamely. DePratt kept blood flowing freely from the injured optic with his stinging left jab.

Herman came back strong to hold the doughboy to even terms in the ninth round and in a whirlwind finish in the final frame Tillie made his best showing of the fight with a wicked two-handed body attack that gave him the tenth round.

Preliminaries Please

A choice morsel before the main-go was the preliminary fights. Wilson of the 29th Infantry and Kid Herrin of Columbus, fought three fast rounds with the doughboy winning a close decision in the curtain raiser.

"Ginger" Jernigan, of Columbus, evened the score when he took a hairline decision from Watta Guy, of the 29th Infantry. This fight, though billed as a novice bout, was one of the features of the evening. Throwing science to the winds, both boy shoved leather. The claret came in torrents from each nose and haymakers fell thick and fast while the fans roared their approval.

"Caisson" Douglas easily outpointed Morey of the 29th Infantry in four rounds. Morey took an awful beating but refused to quit and was on his feet fighting at the final bell.

Fiske Williams of the 24th Infantry gave the fans the only knock out of the evening when he stopped Curtis of Atlanta in the second round of a scheduled four round bout.

Billy Shell of Columbus continued his unbroken string of victories when he was awarded the decision over Chief Otalvaro of the 29th Infantry. Billy's victory was close and hard earned, the doughboy

Commanding Officer Special Units Has Had Interesting Career

Colonel Berry Graduate of Advanced Class Infantry School

Colonel Daniel G. Berry is not a newcomer to Benning, having served at this post from 1924 until 1926, the first year as a student in the Advanced Class of The Infantry School, being president of the class. After graduation he was assigned to duty at post headquarters. In 1926 Colonel Berry left Benning for duty in the Philippine Islands, where he had been assigned to command the 31st Infantry and the post of Manila.

The military career of Colonel Berry has been varied and interesting. After attending the Military Academy at West Point from 1894 to 1898 he was graduated at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war on April 26, 1898, commissioned 2nd Lieutenant and assigned to the 1st Infantry for duty in Cuba. He participated in the attack at El Caney and San Juan Hill and in the siege of Santiago. He later served in the Army of Occupation in Cuba. While serving with this organization he was promoted to 1st Lieutenant in 1899. In 1900 he was ordered back to the United States for duty. During this year he was assigned as Instructor at the Military Academy for a period of four years. While on this detail, Colonel Berry was promoted to Captain, 22nd Infantry.

Upon completing his duties at West Point, Colonel Berry joined his regiment at Camp Keithley, Mindanao, P. I., where he had active field duty against hostile Moros while commanding the Provisional Company, 22nd Infantry, in pursuit of the notorious renegade of Dato Ali and his band of desperados, and in Jolo, P. I., with General Wood's Third Sulu Expedition. He returned to the United States with his regiment in November, 1905, and was stationed on Angel Island in San Francisco harbor at the time of the San Francisco earthquake. He had many interesting, exciting and varied experiences with his company during the earthquake and fire, and with refugee and relief work afterwards.

He was again detailed to West Point in 1907, as an assistant professor. After serving five years on this detail, he rejoined the 22nd Infantry and was on Mexican border duty from February to November, 1912, when he was transferred to the 13th Infantry and joined at Fort McKinley, P. I., remaining with this regiment until 1915, at which time he was transferred to the 24th Infantry, which regiment was then completing its term of duty in the Philippines.

Returning to the United States with the 24th Infantry, in command of Company "H" of that organization, he went into Mexico with them on the Punitive Expedition. In July, 1916, Colonel Berry was promoted to Major, and came out of Mexico in January, 1917, upon being ordered to duty with the 37th Infantry, stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

On the day war was declared Colonel Berry was enroute marching with his regiment on change of station from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, to Fort McIntosh, on the Mexican border near Laredo, Texas. He remained on border duty with the 37th Infantry, being Provost Marshall of the district and was, for two months prior to his promotion to Lieutenant Colonel in December, 1917, in command of the regiment.

At this time Colonel Berry was ordered to command the Overseas Casual Camp at Camp Merritt, New Jersey, for the Port of Embarkation at Hoboken. Here a most interesting experience awaited him, the magnitude and importance of which, with its many complicated and vexatious problems, no previous experience in our army had ever contemplated. This duty not only involved the command and administration of a large concentration camp, but its primary purpose was to shelter, feed, clothe, equip, organize, inspect and prepare and maintain the records of every individual bound over seas, not a member of any organized unit, who reported at the Port of Embarkation and to ship him promptly and safely in organized detachments to his destined organization over seas. The most important duty was to exercise military control over thousands of unattached casuals, and to prevent congestion at the port. This also involved the preparation of absolutely accurate consolidated shipping lists of every individual who went aboard transports sailing from the port.

From a small beginning in January, 1917, handling about a thousand casuals and occupying five office, barrack and store buildings, it grew by leaps and bounds to handling over 100,000 men in June, and occupying about fifty mess halls and over one half the entire camp. The permanent organization during this time grew from three officers in January to about 100 officers and 500 enlisted men in June.

In order to prevent congestion at the port and delay in sailing of the transports, no individual could be detained in camp longer than 20 days; however, the average time being less than 10 days, unless in cases of sickness, quarantine, courts-martial or similar circumstances. Practically all casuals arriving in camp were without any equipment, uniforms, records or organization.

To get these men ready in so short a time to pass the numerous rigorous inspections before they were allowed to board the transports, to organize them into Casual Companies fully equipped, uniformed, with records complete and to shelter, feed and care for them in the meanwhile was a difficult task, involving many entirely new and complicated problems.

Working night and day, handicapped by lack of regulations, Colonel Berry and his staff accomplished their mission with such a degree of success that no transport was ever delayed a minute through failure of its Casual Companies, up to the limit of its capacity, to be organized and ready for transport; nor was the port ever congested by casuals beyond its capacity to handle them.

Upon his promotion to Colonel, Colonel Berry was assigned to the command of the 338th Infantry of the 85th Division at Camp Custer, where he reported early in July, 1918, in time to accompany this Division over seas, arriving in France early in August, 1918. This Division became a replacement division and did not arrive in the front areas until October 31, 1918, where, as a part of the Second Army in the region of Toul, it remained until the Armistice.

After the Armistice the Division was filled to overflowing with casuals from all over France, then returned to the States and mustered out at Camp Custer in April, 1919.

Colonel Berry was then detailed on R. O. T. C. duty, upon which duty he remained until 1924, when he was ordered to Benning to the Infantry School.

Colonel Berry comes to Benning from the 31st Infantry, which he commanded for the past two years. Relieved from this regiment upon expiration of his two years detail, he was ordered here for the purpose of organizing and commanding Benning's new organization, "Special Units."

GUNNER DEPRATT WINS DECISION OVER HERMAN

giving him a world of trouble during six rounds of sock and slam.

In the semi-final Baby Asher and Jackie Phillips, featherweights, fought six slashing rounds in an attempt to decide the argument between the Greencords and Doughboys as to the better fighter. The argument is still unsettled. Asher was given the decision but the decision was very close. The backers of both boys are still unconvinced. Both boys put up a great fight, with Asher's superior boxing skill giving him the shade that carried the decision.

The fight was a success from start to finish and the large crowd of fans present were highly pleased with the entire card.

Benning's next slugfest will bring the much heralded Styles Attaway and Willie Ptomey together within the roped arena for ten rounds. Ptomey dropped a close decision to Attaway in Atlanta a few months ago, but Weary Willie is confident he will change the verdict in their next fight.

CHILDREN'S SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY

The Fort Benning Children's School will, after it's summer months of idleness, open it's door Monday morning to begin the fall term. The school will be again under the direction of Captain Thomas L. McKenna through the direction of Miss Annie Lou Grimes.

Miss Grimes needs no introduction to the people of Benning as she has guided the youth of Benning through the mysteries of learning for the past seven years and her selection as the guiding mentor for the coming year speaks more voluminous of the confidence placed in her ability than can be expressed in words.

Assisting Miss Grimes this year will be, with two exceptions, the same staff as last year. Those who will be instructors are as follows: Miss Annie Lou Grimes, Miss Charlotte Storey, Miss Elizabeth Mizell, Miss Elizabeth Phillips, Miss Hannah Bowden and Miss Lucy Hardee, the last two mentioned being the new teachers on the staff of instructors this year. Miss Bowden's home is Flat Rock, Georgia, while Miss Hardee's is North Carolina. Miss Hardee is a sister of Lieut. David H. Hardee, who has been a resident of Benning for some time and who is also an instructor in The Infantry School.

The hours of attendance will be daily, Saturdays, Sundays and holidays excepted. The school hours are: For the grade classes from 8:00 A. M. to 12:00 and from 1:00 P. M. to 1:50 P. M. For the kindergarten classes from 8:30 A. M. till 11:45 A. M. Children will not be permitted to leave the classes or school prior to the regular hours of dismissal except for urgent reasons. The greater convenience of the parents will not be considered an urgent reason.

During the summer vacation many improvements have been made. The school buildings have all been repaired and painted both inside and out, new desks set up, in fact practically everything that could be done to add to comfort and convenience.

of the human element, according to General Collins. General Collins further stated that more officers of the regular army were assembled at the Infantry School than any other place. The Commandant concluded his address by referring to the cordial relations which exist today between the people of the city of Columbus and the personnel of Fort Benning.

General Collins then introduced Mayor J. Homer Dimon of Columbus, who stated that it was a great pleasure to welcome the new student officers to the Infantry School, upon behalf of the city. The hearts of the people as well as the homes of those of Columbus are open to the members of the classes this year. Mayor Dimon likewise congratulated the officers on being selected to attend the Infantry School, and he wished them all the success possible during the year, and hoped that at some time they may again come back to Fort Benning and Columbus.

Immediately following the exercises as arranged by the program, the student officers were personally introduced to General Collins, Mayor Dimon, City Manager Crawford, Colonels Marshall and Knight and Major Hall.

APPOINTED POLO REPRESENTATIVE

Major C. B. Lyman has been appointed polo representative of the Infantry School vice Capt. J. D. Forsythe, who will attend the company officers course this year. Major Lyman played on the Freebooters team last year. He is now making preparations to organize a team which will meet the Sixth Cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe the middle of next month.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 3

"FIVE AND TEN CENT ANNIE," featuring Louise Fazenda, Clyde Cook and William Damarest in an uproarious comedy. Miss Fazenda plays the part of a meek but naughty store clerk, and Cook that of a street sweeper who inherits a million dollars. The action carries these fun-making lovers from the streets of a big city to the high seas and back again. You'll gasp when you see Cook forced to take into his employ an enemy who has sworn to kill him and you'll roar when you see what results. It's just fun built upon the plot of a romance.

"SPECIAL ENTERTAINMENT." Twenty-three musical instruments will be played by Richard A. Von Calio, talented and versatile Russian entertainer. This musical treat will follow the feature picture and will be staged at about 9:15 P. M. There will be no additional charge of admission, the Recreation fund having defrayed expenses.

THURSDAY, OCT. 4

"SQUARE CROOKS," featuring Johnny Mack Brown, the all American football star, in a drama laid in a great Metropolitan City. It involves the upper ten and the lower five of society. High lights: stealing of the famous Carson necklace, battle of gangsters, second theft of the necklace, and the horror of a night spent in a room with a mad man who is an escaped convict. The theme concerns two of society's black sheep who fight to turn white, and the many obstacles which confronted them.

"Her Blue Black Eyes." Imperial Comedy.

FRIDAY, OCT. 5.

"BODY AND SOUL," starring Lionel Barrymore with Ailan Pringle in a vivid and picturesque romance of the Alps. It is the story of how a girl tried to escape from a loveless marriage and the penalty she paid for defying societies' conventions. She had sinned for love so he put the shameful mark of a branding-iron on her body for all the world to see. This story attempts to solve the question, "can youth and middle age be happy in wedl ck?"

MUSICAL TREAT
MAIN THEATRE
WEDNESDAY OCT. 3rd

Richard A. Von Calio, talented and versatile Russian musician and soldier, will entertain in the Main Theatre following the feature picture Wednesday, October 3.

This musical genius will play twenty-three different instruments, among which are the Xylophone, orchestra chimes, flex-a-tone, piano acordian, bells, marimba, snare drum, kettle drums, bass drums, castinets, tambourines, etc. It is understood that he is the type of artist who puts so much fervort in his work that he virtually holds an audience spellbound during the entire course of his entertainment. There are times when he plays several musical devices simultaneously.

The history of this artist is very interesting. He is the son of a Russian Baron, born in Riga, near the Baltic Sea. He has served in the armies of Russia, Germany, Great Britain and the United States; he also has acted in the capacity of secret service operative, and has to his credit the rounding up of one hundred and eighty-eight Reds and undesirables, who were either convicted and punished or deported. He speaks six different languages.

Von Valio, tiring of the oppression, tyrany and benighted conditions, left the land of the Czars and went to England where he became, eventually, converted to the Christian religion under General Booth of the Salvation Army. He has been a member of that organization for the past twenty years, and has, through his musical genius and firery appeals, accomplished much highly commendable work.

The Main Theatre management has been able to secure his service here through the courtesy and cooperation of Ensign S. Patterson of Columbus, Georgia, who heads the local corps.

For the past five years it has been the custom of the Army women who are members of national college sororities to have a Pan-Hellenic Society at Fort Benning. This organization has been a source of great pleasure and a means of keeping up contacts which have been beneficial in many ways. The first meeting of this year will be held at the home of Mrs. John Copeland, Block 19-138, at 2:00 on October 11th, at which time Mrs. Copeland and Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd will be hostesses. It is the desire of the hostesses that the wives, mothers or daughters of officers, either student or belonging to the permanent personnel, who are eligible, will take notice of this invitation and remember the date, October 11th, hour, 2:00 o'clock, and the place, Block 19-138.

INFANTRY SCHOOL POLO TEAMS BEGIN PRACTICE

Benning Malletmen Will Clash at Shannon Field Sunday Afternoon

Opening the season with a three-game series against the Sixth Cavalry Poloist at Fort Oglethorpe Oct. 18-19-20, the Infantry School Polo squad has began practice at Shannon Field.

After the three-game series with the Cavalrymen at Fort Oglethorpe, the Benning malletment go to Atlanta for two games Oct. 26th and 28th. The first game will be against the Fort McPherson poloist and the second game they meet the famous Governor's Horse Guard four.

Sunday afternoon at Shannon Field the Infantry School polo squad will be divided into two teams. The polo season will open with a game between these teams, the game beginning at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

The team that will represent the Infantry School during the coming season will be picked from the players of the two teams. Keen competition and a very fast brand of polo will feature the contest, as both teams will be represented by the cream of the Army's mounted malletmen.

SCHEDULE FOR HOPS SPONSORED BY THE OFFICERS' CLUB TO JANUARY 1, 1929

AVIATORS MUST HAVE GOOD EYES

Men of poor vision correctible by glasses are not accepted as aviators under the standards prescribed in army tests, because corrections cannot be ground into the large curved lenses of gogles. Lieut. Col. Levy M. Hathaway, Army Medical Corps, stated September 14, in an explanation of the army standards for aviators made public September 14 by the office of the Army Air Corps.

It was stated that a new test for neuro-muscular equilibrium, consisting of three trials while standing on each foot with the eyes closed, has recently been added to the requirements.—Fifth Corps News.

QUARTERMASTER COMPLETES NEW GRAVEL ROAD THROUGH BLOCK 18

Among the many improvements going forward at Fort Benning, the completion of the gravel road leading through Block 18, by the Post Quartermaster during the past few days is the outstanding feature of the week. One thousand yards of roadway that would have proved a capable testing ground for any type of motor vehicle ever invented, this network of sand defied all speed laws and traffic. Fords puffed and panted, trucks roared and snorted, even the lowly pedestrian found the sifting sands of the narrow footpath tiresome walking.

During the past month a wonderful change has taken. Where once the homely "Lizzie" snorted and labored in low-gear, the motor now purrs smoothly in high, where once a trail of white sand slowed down the speed of the passing car, today the same car gathers speed as it turns from the main highway to follow the firm gravel road leading through Block 18.

This work is only one of the many improvements completed during the past year by the Quartermaster Corps, but the efficient way and the speed with which this work was handled by Lt. Henry Dahnke and his capable assistants is an outstanding feature.

The gravel used for the road was loaded by a steam shovel operated by Sgt. L. Kirksie of the Q. M. C., at the gravel pits near Block 18, two of the large steel Mack trucks were used to haul the gravel, while a detail of twelve men was used on the road. When completed an eighteen inch bed of rock gravel covered the sandy road bed, three hundred yards of wooden drain pipe was used where it was needed. The road now is one of the best in the garrison.

To the Quartermaster this is just one of their many duties and with the finish of one job there is always another to begin on, but to the personnel of Block 18 the new gravel road is like a gift from heaven and they wish to extend to the Q. M. C. their appreciation and thanks.

We appreciate our customer friends from Fort Benning. If you have not an account with us, please let us open one for you.

It is a pleasure to serve you.

AMERICAN LEGION CARNIVAL SATURDAY NIGHT

Right this way folks, step right up, don't be bashful—doubtless this will be part of the barkers cries Saturday night when the American Legion stages their carnival on the 13th street viaduct.

According to members of the legion who are in charge of entertainment they are putting over a program which will rival any attraction that has ever visited Columbus.

Among the different attractions is one of the three sacred orangoutangs now held in captivity, at least that is the statement of the chairman of the entertainment committee, who, when asked if this were so or not emphatically replied that "it was just as he had stated and not merely hot air."

During the course of the entertainment the amateur talent of both the city and fort are to do their part.

Among the other features of the program is to be a battle royal with the survivor of the melee promised pickin's which are pickin's.

As a final climax of the evening there will be street dancing which it is expected the greater majority if not all of the merry makers will take part.

The gates leading to the night's festivities will be opened at 6:30 P. M. with one admission price of 50c. However, there has been a special price of 35c made to the soldier personnel and tickets can now be secured from the orderly rooms of the various organizations.

ENLISTED MEN WILL WEAR LACE BOOTS

The War Department has authorized a lace boot in lieu of the present garrison shoe and canvas legging for peace-time war by enlisted men of the cavalry and field artillery.

The new boot will be soft and flexible tan leather, close fitting about the ankle and calf, with a boxed toe, no buckle or strap at the top, and the height will be such that the top of the boot will come as close to the knee as comfortable wear will permit. The proposed allowance will be three pair per enlistment.

In order to avoid mixed clothing within organization, the laced boot for the present will be authorized only to enlisted men of the cavalry and field artillery. Consideration will be given later to an authorization for the wearing of such boots by mounted enlisted men of other branches.

In addition to presenting a neater appearance and to being more comfortable while riding than the shoes and canvas leggin, the adoption of this boot will affect an appropriate saving of $10.35 per man enlistment.

The girl who thinks no man is good enough for her may be right but she is more often left.

CHEERING

By Ha-Le

Sports is the Spice of Life—A most delectable dish to set before a King and one that will tickle any man's palate.

Seasoned with action and thrills, competition is brought to the utmost by the cheering and rooting of the multitude.

A word to the fans. Many a game has been won by the continuous cheering of the eager supporters of the home team. Inconsistency, however, plays a greater part in the turning of the tide and poor sportsmanship is unthinkingly shown very often by the home supporters by deserting the stands when the game looks hopelessly lost.

Remember, however, that a game, no matter how hopeless it may seem, is never lost until the final whistle is blown and if the supporters are with the team 'till the end, there is still glory in defeat.

In football, especially, when your throats are hoarse from shouting, remember that it is the players who are taxed to the utmost and they are called upon for a final splurge of energy to possibly turn the winning trick.

It is then that the support of the crowds is most needed and in many cases is instrumental in winning a game.

TERRIBLE TANKERS CRUSH MAXWELL FIELD FLIERS BY SCORE 37 TO 0

With an offensive drive that crumbled the Fliers line like a paper shell, the Tanker football team swept the Maxwell Field Fliers to an overwhelming defeat in the opening football game of the season at the Doughboy Stadium last Saturday evening, the final score being 37 to 0 in favor of the Tankers.

Although fighting gamely the Fliers were helpless against the powerful Tank machine. Drive after drive of the visitors broke against the Tanker line as a breaker on a rocky shore. The Fliers made only two first downs during the game and each was the result of a completed pass.

Bennett, Stansbury and Vallery pierced the visitors' line at will for long gains. In the second quarter the Tanks ran in their entire second string. Brown who went in at fullback for Knub Bennett, and Carver for Vallery, continued to rip the Flier line to pieces on every play.

During the last half of the game the Tankers eased up and began throwing passes. The Birdmen showed as good as the Tankers at the aerial game. Pittman and Hall completing three passes while the Tankers were only able to make three of their passes complete.

Although beaten from the first minute of play the visitors fought gamely all the way. Leading the Fliers and mixing in the thick of the fight at all times was an ex-doughboy gridder who had met the Tankers in many bitter football battles. This was "Doug" McGuire. When McGuire was taken from the field near the end of the game ,he was cheered loudly from the stands by his many friends and "buddies" of the Infantry School.

MESS HALL GOSSIP

A few days ago a man in Valdosta slipped on a banana and broke his leg. Cook Eberhart of Company "D," 29th Inf., claims this fellow was lucky compared to what happened to him. In attempting to catch up with a kitchen police who was swiping bananas from the store room a few days ago, Eberhart caught the fellow who didn't get the banana. Now they have named him "Banana" Eberhart. What causes that?

Red Jones, the famous movie umpire and kitchen police referee, tells this one on Chisling McElvey, cook de hors of Company "E."

Red claims that after "Chisling" had dressed to make a trip to the city a few afternoons ago that his right coat pocket seemed heavily loaded. On a close examination of the pocket while "Chis" was not noticing, Red says that he was surprised to find that the pocket contained three big onions and half dozen spuds. It was decided that Chis is probably planting a spring garden down on the river.

Infantry School Det. slum bakers are very anxious to find a remedy for loud snoring. A few nights ago members of the cook shack were awakened by a noise that sounded like the approach of the Florida hurricane. When lights were turned on, Cook Hook Wise was sleeping peacefully, while at short intervals he let out a snore that caused the windows to rattle like the Frisco quake. Now Detachment cooks are asking "What causes that?"

"Ma, lookit the pretty collar on the lady's dress."

"Hush, Johnny, that's the lady's skirt."

It seems that the corporals of this company are very fond of argument with their card games. The other evening Cpls. Silvers, Jess Goodin and Edwards were playing a little friendly game of cards with Pfc. Bennett. An argument came up about the game. Bennett felt that he had no business jawing with the corporals, so he kept quiet. While the excitement was going on, Pfc. Bennett quietly but surely tore all the cards up. When things had settled down again so that the game could be resumed, the corporals were very much surprised to find that the cards were all torn up. The result of this was that the game had to be called off on account of lack of cards.

We haven't herd from Pvt. Bryan's biscuits for a long time now. What has happened? Has he quit making them? Or was it all a mistake in the first place.

Pfc. Beard is very popular with the ladies it is true, but we will have to watch "Chops" Hayes very closely. "Chops" seems to be the budding "Shiek" of the company.

Pvt. Owens has been elected student clerk, to assist "Red" in his various duties and keep him from becoming excited when a lot of work piles up on his desk.

Sgt. Harrison is asking every day about a letter. What is the cause of this. Surely no girl is worring him, because how could a lady ever throw him down. A check wouldn't worry a soldier like that. So the mystery is not solved to date. He doesn't put out any information. If we could get a few clues, possibly some one could solve the riddle.

Cpl. Barnwell has left us in favor of the Portor Military Academy. He will be thinking now whether "a" plus "b" equals "c" or something else.

Julian Sanders of 2nd Bn. Hdqrs. Co., transferred to our company and has been made Stable Sergeant.

Sgt. Justice has returned from his furlough. Says that he had many good times but is happy to be back with the company.

Pfc. "Dad" Atcheson has lost his authority around the supply room. Every one is wondering is he lost his stripes or did he ever have any?

Corporals Silvers and Edwards have a new record that they think is an excellent example of a lady's singing. She doesn't sound like a canary to the rest of us though.

What was Pfc. Bennett doing a jig in the company street for the other night? It looked as if he was trying to escape something, but instead of running he became so excited that he could only jump up and down.

"Poker Face" Silvers became excited one night last week, while playing set back, and declared that there wasn't a chance to win. Everyone was greatly astonished. It was the first time that he was ever known to have an expression of any kind on his face.

Hdqrs. Co., 2nd Battalion

We have been missing in these columns quite some time but we now intend to come back stronger than ever. The target season is now over and the old grind has started, with squads right and left and we all must get back to soldiering.

Most of the other companies in the regiment have made a very creditable record on the range this year but just let us blow our own horn. We qualified 100 per cent. too. Not only with the rifle but with the pistol as well. From Major Young on down to the lowest buck private in the rear rank we did it, and in a very punctilious manner set a record for all times for other companies in the regiment to shoot at. The average score per man was 297.32 which the writer believes is the highest ever made by any war strength company in the Army. Of the 52 men that fired there were 15 experts, 27 sharpshooters and only 10 marksmen. This fine record was mainly due to the competent instructors that the company had. The Company Commander, Lieut. Tatom, put his all into the job of teaching and instructing in his precise and accurate way and with the able help of Lieut. Privett is responsible in a large measure for high shooting that the company did.

Yes, Sgt. Bennett is back from his 90-day re-enlistment furlough and you may not know it, but he has changed very very much. From his actions and from what he has told, I really believe that he fell in love with some nice little North Carolina belle. We have extended our sympathy to him and hope that he may soon recover.

If the good work keeps up we will soon have all the buildings in our area painted and then we can keep up with our new neighbors across the street.

Sgt. Davis is back for a week's duty with the company this week and we are wondering how Headquarters will get along. Yes, we only have 2 men on special duty this week. It hardly seems true that we will have more than two squads for parades this week.

Company "E"

Company "E" is still enjoying themselves at company drill, calisthenics, parades and scouting and patrolling.

We have 18 men firing supplementary season commencing September 24, 1928, and hope they finish 100 per cent. like the company did.

1st Lieutenant Donegan has been transferred from the company and 1st Lieutenant Brine has been assigned to the company.

1st Lieutenant Enlow, Infantry Reserve from Hodgensville, Kentucky, is spending his 14 days annual training with Company "E" this year and will be leaving for his home about the 26th.

Members of Company "E" were visiting Columbus, Georgia, Saturday, September 22, 1928, to witness a baseball game between the Second Battalion (Kelleys) and Meritas mill. On their way down to Columbus, Georgia, the trucks carrying the men to town had a wreck, causing all the trucks to jam together. A negro with his apple wagon ran in front of the first truck and they were in such close quarters that they all jammed together. The casualities in Company "E" were Privates first class Klein, Chatmon, Johnson, C., Bache and Waner. Klein and Chatmon are the only ones remaining in the hospital. Company "E" sold more tickets for the ball game than any other two companies of the regiment. Meritas Mill won the game 7 to 2. Meritas Mill has several players from the Columbus City league playing with them. Among them was Sam Stuart.

Furloughs in the Company during the week: Corporal Easterwood, 15 days emergency. Private Ross 30 days.

Corporal Bridges has just returned from a 90 days re-enlistment furlough and stated that he had a real large time back home.

We have lost Corporals Dollar, Drury and Bailey by the expiration term of their enlistment this week and sorry to see them go.

Private Hollingsworth purchased his discharge the 13th.

Glover received his discharge on dependency the 19th.

Private Easterling was discharged by C. D. D. on the 14th.

Our First Sergeant High Davis has been fishing quite often on the week ends recently and has caught plenty of fish, and also quite a peach of a cold last week, which laid him up for three days. He is getting his hunting musket oiled over and will give the game h—l again this year. He is poison to the wild game and hogs when out hunting.

Goble Davis, the company's hall orderly, says it won't be long now. He says if I can just stay out of Columbus for only two more months I will be sitting on top of the world. He has been here four years trying to get in three.

We wonder how Corporal Schlotterbeck and Cook enjoyed their sixty days' furlough??????

Sgt (Shorty) New must be enjoying his furlough down in New Orleans, as he wired the Captain for a fifteen day extension.

Company "G"

With the coming of cool weather the interest in football seems to grow. The company football team, under the leadership of Cpls. Josey and Degnan have put in some good days of practice. There are approximately two full teams out and they have had some lively scrimmages. The prospects for a heavy line and a fast backfield are good and the men are out to give someone a run for their money.

Cpls. Kirkland, Brown and Berrong have been placed on S. D. with the Regimental Recruit school. These men are all good soldiers and know their training regulations. We are sure that they will show up good in their new work.

Under the present circumstances Act. Mess Sgt. Davis is sure coming along fine. He knows his menu and the company sure appreciates his good work.

The company lost two good men last week. Cpl. Rimes, discharged by E. T. S. has decided to try civilian life again and is making his home in Columbus, Ga.

Cpl. Peter N. Magagna, a valuable man to the company and an outstanding baseball man of the Kelly's nine, purchased his discharge and left last Wednesday for his home in Pennsylvania. We wish both of these men much success in what ever walk of life they may choose to enter.

Lt. Gailbreath and Cpl. Taylor are back from the National Rifle Matches and we are glad to have them with us again.

We were sorry to hear that Lt. Cochran had been transferred to "H" Company. The company sure appreciates his good work while he was with us. And we are sure that he will be liked by all of the members of his new organization.

We congratulate the 3rd Platoon on their drill last week. They were picked as the best drilled platoon in the company and they held the straightest line during the Battalion parade.

Miss Tresemer is back with us again. He is on S. D. at Regimental Headquarters. We are glad to have you back, Tress.

We have the pleasure to announce that two newly born Cpls. were made during the week. Cpls. Maksimoski and Spires. We wish them luck.

The Platoon Sgts. in the company are giving prizes for the best drilled soldier in the rear rank. Last week the following men won 1st place: 1st Platoon, Pvt. Thompson; 2nd Platoon, Pvt. Delps, (Delps was discharged so the prize went to McGowen); 3rd Platoon, Deeters, (they say he had them all beat.)

—"Warset" Simpson.

ON LEAVE AND THEN TO PHILIPPINES

Lieut. J. E. Graham and family left Monday for Dublin, Ga., where they will visit for some weeks. Lieut. Graham will visit for a short time at his home in Oklahoma, and will sail about November 9 from New York for the Philippines.

Major—"Why didn't you salute me yesterday?"

Pvt.—"I did not see you, sir."

Major—"Good, I was afraid you was mad at me."

Mac—"Why didn't you go to the masquerade with him last night in your Hawaiian costume?"

Mabel—"Well I found out he was going as a harvest hand.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM THE STATION HOSPITAL

Captain Fred E. Hickson returned from detached service, 23rd, from Washington, D. C., where he participated in Army Golf Tournament and was runner up in non-qualifying flights.

Private Frank C. Sexton, of the Medical Demonstration Detachment, was discharged Wednesday, September 26, 1928, and has returned to his home in Knoxville, Tenn. His many friends wish him the best of luck.

Miss Ollie Haynes, of Atlanta, Ga., is visiting her sister, Miss Mary Haynes, 2nd Lt., A. N. C., at the Nurse's quarters.

We wonder who the good looking nurse is, who drives the new grey Essex coupe.

We wonder who the sergeant was who we saw hitting the highway to get back? It must have been hard to get rid of all the dust and Georgia clay that would congregate in eleven days.

Sergeant Robert E. Olsen, Medical Demonstration Detachment, returned Saturday from New York City, where he has been enjoying a furlough of forty-five days visiting his mother and relatives.

If anyone doubts the newspaper story about the wreck on the Central of Georgia line last week, just take a look at Staff Sergent Brown's nose.

ARMY RADIO NET SAVING

For the second half of the fiscal year 1928 statistics which have just been compiled show that the War Department radio net has effected a total saving for the various governmental departments of $141,579.06. The figures indicate that had the messages been sent by commercial wire, the cost would have been $164,-195.42. The cost of sending the same messages by radio was $22,616.36.

With the exception of the War Department, the Agricultural Department, Department of Commerce, Department of Justice, Department of Labor, the Navy Department, and the veterans bureau are the greatest users of the net. Thirty-six other departments took advantage of its operation.

"Boo, boo!" sobbed a tot. "Muvver all the clothes is goned offa my new dolly."

"Sh, dear," her mother comforted her. "Big sister wore them to the prom tonight."

EXPERIENCES ABOARD THE BOLL WEEVIL LIMITED

Toot, Toot, A-l-l-l a-a-boar-rd. The last passenger drops exhausted into his seat and begins to take stock to see if there is anything he has left behind. "Did I bring that book? Where are my charts and pencils? Darn it all, I knew I would forget something, there is that letter I left laying on the table and I wanted to mail it this morning, too. Oh, well, it can wait till tomorrow, it won't be but a day later anyway." He then turns to his companion and introductions take place, that is if they are not already acquainted, and they are soon engaged in conversation and swapping yarns, while during the course of their conversation they discover their destination is the same.

No, my dear readers, none of this rush, bustle and yarn swapping is taking place on board one of the fast limited trains or even one of their local trains. Far from it, but it is happening, or rather will soon be taking place, on the only railroad of its kind and on the only train with such a reputation. The train being the Boll Weevil Limited, the railroad Benning's own, the passengers, student officers, instructors and men of the various organizations who are helping to stage the problem.

The rides and tales that could be t ld of this train are many. Its reputation is known the world over, for have not officers from all over the world at one time or other been passengers aboard this limited. Surely they have and the reputation it holds can be rivaled by only that of the Slow Train Through Arkansaw.

Take for instance some morning during the school year when a problem in attack or defense is to be staged. The engine stands on the tracks with it's smoke stack billowing smoke, steam escaping from cock valves, looking as if it were impatient to be off.

Once the journey starts the trials begin. First the train has been heavier loaded than was expected and as a result we are delayed while the engineer maneuvers his engine to gather up more slack so that we can be on our way. At last we are started, no more trouble now. All goes well for about a mile till we come to Shelton range. Here we find a group of men, listening to the music of Springfields being aimed at targets five hundred yards or more away. So we make our first stop and wait till the firing can be stopped in order that we may pass. Soon this obstacle has been overcome and we are again on our way, but can we climb that hill. Sure we can, the engineer is picking up speed now, we'll go right over. But a big curve is in that stretch ahead and speed is slackened. Faces that were smiling now grow long, for the train has slowed to a speed which is little more than a snail's pace. It can't be done brother, it just can't be done. Here is where we get out and walk, maybe help push the thing over, but no the engine has just topped the grade and we will be O. K. now.

Just about this time clouds which have been hanging low and promising to give the earth it's much needed drink, open and the rain begins to pour; not fall, and there is a scramble to get into raincoats, and be protected from the torrents, for Uncle Sam believes in plenty of fresh air and has accordingly left the sides of the cars open to insure a plentitude of it, as something might go wrong at the wrong time if it were supplied by artificial means.

Finally the first stage of the journey is completed. Everybody gets out glad to feel Terra Firma under foot and know there is no more suspense to go through with that morning, especially with trains.

At last the day's work has been completed and there remains that trip to be made home. Speculations are being made, some suggesting that they all walk but so far none have ever carried out the idea. As they get to the place of entraining they find the same train which brought them out ready to carry them back. All passengers clamor aboard, the flagman waves his hand that all is in readiness and the return trip is begun. In place of puting on steam to climb grades, the engineer now puts on brakes to keep the train from running away, blows long and loud for the crossings to warn travelers away and of the approaching danger. In the course of a short time he has you back from the starting point of that morning none the worse off for the accommodation and service that has been rendered, while the pleasing part of it is you are back in time to prepare and eat dinner at home or elsewhere.

FORMER EDITOR TANK WEEKLY NOW SENIOR FIRST LIEUTENANT IN ARMY

First Lieut. Clyde Grady, former editor of the 15th Tank Weekly, is now the senior first lieutenant in the army. Up to a late hour Thursday no orders had been received announcing his promotion to the grade of captain. However, no doubt by this time next week it will be "Capt." Grady. Lieut. Grady is a member of this year's company officers class.

STUDENT OFFICERS URGED TO SUBMIT ITEMS TO THE NEWS

Student officers of the Infantry School are urged to submit items of interest about the work of their respective companies each week. The News was featured last year by the articles of Major E. F. Harding, Infantry, a member of the Advanced Officers class who wrote under the heading of "Tactical Topics." This column was the work of one who was deeply interested in the welfare of the student officers and the wit and humorous side of school life as portrayed by Major Harding was nothing short of the work of a genius.

Items from Companies B and C were submitted to the paper practically every week, and contained much of the humorous side of the life of the student officers as well as the serious.

The Editor of the News will appreciate a call from any of the student officers who desire to contribute items from the academic halls of the Infantry School.

—The Editor.

Vol. VII. FORT BENNING, GA., OCTOBER 5, 1928. Number 3.

Distinguished Infantry Officer Assumes Duties as Post Executive

Colonel Harry E. Knight is Recent Graduate of Army War College and Member of Staff of Chief of Infantry

When Colonel Harry E. Knight reported to the Infantry School in September to assume his duties as executive, he required no introduction to a vast majority of the personnel of the post.

A majority of the younger officers previously had met him either here or in Washington during his four-year tour as personnel officer in the office of the Chief of Infantry. Others had become familiar with his pleasing personality in one or the other of the far-flung foreign stations of United States troops—and it might have been in almost any one of these, for it is almost literally true that where the flag has flown, this officer of long experience has served.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, Colonel Knight was a student at Lehigh University, in Pennsylvania, and at the same time was a member of Company "G," Seventh Regiment, New York National Guard. He was transferred to the Fourteenth New York National Guard regiment shortly thereafter, and on May 13, 1898, was mustered into the United States Volunteers, still an enlisted man.

Less than two months thereafter—on July 9, 1898—he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Regular Army and joined his regiment, the First Infantry, at Santiago de Cuba. He was in Cuba throughout the Spanish-American war and the Cuban pacification, serving at Pinar del Rio and in various towns in Santiago province. The scene of his activities was then shifted to the Philippines, where he served during the days of "the First Empire," in Abra province, Luzon, and on the Island of Samar.

Colonel Knight, like most soldiers who have smelled powder and seen blood, refuses to be specific in his reminiscences, merely remarking that his experiences during this time were "the usual experiences of officers serving in the Philippines."

When the United States entered the World War Colonel Knight held the grade of captain, from which grade he was advanced rapidly to that of colonel. His training and experience was first used during the emergency as an instructor in the first R. O. T. C. camp at the Presidio of San Francisco, Cal. In the latter part of 1917 he was transferred to Camp Taylor, Ky., to command the First Provisional Infantry (colored). He retained this command until early in 1918, when he was assigned as G-1 of the Eighty-Fourth division. He was then called to perform an even more responsible task as a member of the War Department General Staff in Washington, serving there from June, 1918, to June, 1919. In 1919 he was ordered overseas and served with the American Army of Occupation in Germany until the withdrawal of American troops in 1922, commanding both the 50th and 5th Infantry regiments. He brought the Fifth Infantry back to the United States when

FORT BENNING ESTABLISHED 10 YEARS AGO THIS MONTH

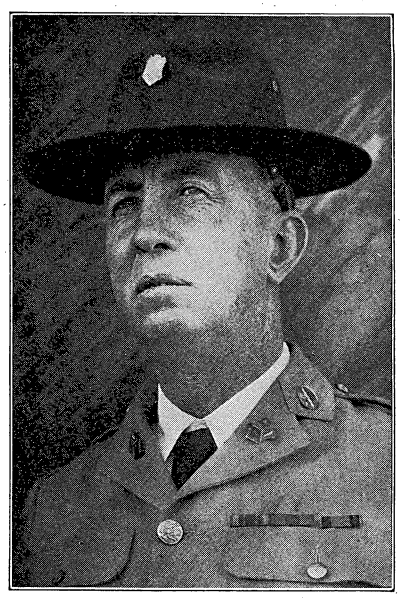
Ten years ago Thursday, a handsome young army officer stepped from a Georgia Central train in Columbus.

"Pardon me, stranger," he said politely to the first inhabitant he met, "but can you direct me to Camp Benning?"

"Camp Benning? Camp Benning?" quoth the resident in bewilderment. "There are no camps around here. The war is in Europe."

All of this occurred ten years ago yesterday. And so, yesterday, those at Fort Benning who felt so inclined were entitled to celebrate two events of more or less importance in their lives — the first establishment of Camp Benning, now Fort Benning; the second the arrival of the handsome young army officer, who was no other than Lieutenant Ham Kelley, now one of the oldest inhabitants of the fort—in time of residence.

Artillery Veteran Honored On Retirement from Service



Master Sergeant Daniel Murphy

(By Al Durden)

April 15, 1900, a husky young Irish lad, tiring of the quiet life of a little New England farm, enlisted in the service of the United States Army in quest of excitement and adventure.

Monday, Oct. 1, 1928, members of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion assembled to bid farewell and give their best wishes in a lasting tribute to this Irish lad, now Master Sergeant Daniel Murphy, on the eve of his retirement from the service after thirty years of honest and faithful service.

Thirty years brings many changes. Old timers in the little village of Corey, Maine, would never believe that the big square-jawed veteran with the sunny Irish smile, who retired from the service last Monday with an honorable record, was the same fun-loving, carefree youngster who left the little village over a quarter of a century ago to follow the life of a soldier. It is the same "Spud" Murphy and he is going back again to visit the old home town after all these years.

To know Sergt. Murphy was to like him. This fact was amply proven at his retirement. A beautifully engraved gold watch and a handsome traveling bag was presented him by the members of the 83rd Field Artillery battaion, a token of their friendship and best wishes. The gifts were presented by Major L. E. Jones, commanding officer of the battalion, who also made a short address in which he commended Master Sergeant Murphy. His record, which shows that in the line of duty, his efficiency record was of the highest standard, while as a comrade and "Buddie" he numbered his friends by legions.

In his quest for adventure, Sgt. Murphy admits that he got action from the word go when he enlisted with Battery "C," 7th Field Artillery, April 15, 1900. One year after enlisting he was aboard an army transport bound for Manila, P. I., where the Philippine insurrection was then at its heighth. The stories told by the old regulars who first blazed the way into this land of war-like Moros and still more dangerous tropical fevers, sound to the youngsters of today like fiction. But the reward for their work has added to our country one of our most valuable and most coveted possessions. Through this campaign Sgt. Murphy encountered adventures enough to satisfy the heart of the boldest.

He received his first baptism of fire at the battle of Fort Badringan April, 1902. He was wounded during the fighting around Tayabas in September, 1902. Returning to the United States, he was discharged at the expiration of his enlistment but lost no time in "taking out another stack." He has continued to re-up with untiring regularity until the final day rolled around. And during this period of re-enlistments, Sgt. Murphy always cast his lot with the wearers of the red cords.

While stationed at Fort Barrancas, near Pensacola, Fla., a few years ago, Sgt. Murphy invested his savings in real estate that was being auctioned off at a low price. Today those lots are situ-

Excellent Athletic Program Announced For Winter Season

An excellent program of football, boxing and track events is offered to Benning sport lovers by the athletic authorities, whose first definite announcement of events for the winter season is published below.

A schedule of approximately four excellent events a week is already announced, and this will be in addition to football games to be played in the Intra-Mural Football conference, the season for which will start on November 15, and the full schedule for which will be announced later.

The boxing program starts with the Ptomey-Attaway bout on next Tuesday night, and if plans being formulated by Captain J. J. Wilson can be realized a number of excellent cards are in store for the fans.

The Twenty-Fourth Infantry football team opens its local season on Saturday at the Stadium against the strong Atlanta University team. Its next local game is on October 27, against the Georgia Baptist Institute, while on November 3 it will meet here the Georgia Industrial College team, and on November 17 the Roger Williams Institute. The Twenty-fourth, by its upset vistory in Atlanta last Saturday, demonstrated that it is a force to be reckoned with in Southern colored football circles, and Benning fans are fortunate to be offered the opportunity of seeing this team in action four times against worthy opponents.

The track season will work up through a number of battalion and regimental events to the culminating test of the winter—the garrison track meet on November 12. An added attraction will be the garrison marathon run of five miles, which will start from the Stadium at 9:30 on the morning of November 29th.

The following teams will compose the Intra-Mural football league: Fifteenth Tank Battalion, Eighty-Third Field Artillery, First Battalion, Twenty-ninth Infantry, Second Battalion Twenty-ninth Infantry, and the Special Units, Infantry School.

The full program of athletic events, as announced to date, is as follows:

Oct. 3—Football, Co. "A," Tanks vs. Co. "B," Tanks, 3:00 P. M. at stadium.

Oct. 6—Football, Hq. Co., Tanks vs. Co. "C," Tanks, 1:30 P. M. at stadium.

Oct. 9—Boxing card, Willie Ptomey, Tanks, vs. Styles Attaway, Atlanta, Ga., 7:45 P. M. at Infantry School arena.

Oct. 10—Football, 2nd Bn., 29th Inf. 2 game (Company) 1st game, 1:30 P. M. at stadium.

Oct. 12—Track meet, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. 1:30 P. M. at stadium.

Oct. 13—Football, Hd. Co., Tanks vs. Co. "A," Tanks 3:00 P. M. at stadium.

Oct. 17—Football, Co. "B," Tanks vs. Co. "C," Tanks 3:00 P. M. at stadium.

Oct. 20—Football, Special Units, The Inf. School 3:00 P. M. at stadium.

Oct. 23—Boxing card, Gunner DePratt, 29th Inf. vs. Terry (K. O.) Roberts 7:45 P. M. at Infantry School arena.

CAISSON RIDERS HAVE BIG SMOKER

Headquarters Battery of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion celebrated the presentation of their ninth consecutive Battalion Championship Trophy in football, basketball and baseball in the past three years with a "Battery Smoker" last Saturday night.

Major L. E. Jones, battalion commander, presented the beautifully engraved cup to Sergeant John McAuliffe, captain of the battery's championship baseball team this year.

After presenting the trophy, Major Jones shook hands and commended each man of the team for his clean sportsmanship and fighting spirit that has been the outstanding factor in carrying them to their present high standing in the organization.

In a short but interesting address Major Jones spoke highly of the work carried on by Headquarters Battery during the past year. He highly commended the members of the battery upon their efficiency at all times during the many demonstrations carried out during the past term of the Infantry School, and also assured them that he had the utmost confidence in their willingness and ability to cooperate with him in bringing the work of the organization up to an even higher standard during the present school term.

Major Henry A. Bootz, Assistant Executive Officer of the Infantry School, who was a guest of Headquarters Battery, made a short but highly interesting talk. Although most of his duties have been with the Special Units since coming to Fort Benning, he proved in a few words that he was very much at home among the Caisson Riders. Many of those present were surprised to know that six of the Major's twenty-five years of service had been spent as a member of the field artillery.

To Mess Sergeant Edwards and his highly efficient staff of cooks go a large share of the success of the celebration. Fried spring chicken, hot buns, creamed potatoes and salad dressing with coffee and iced tea were served with delicious cakes and ice cream putting the finishing touches to an excellent supper.

The battery was next assembled in the recreation room, where cigars and cigarettes were served, after which a highly interesting and entertaining program completed the evening's pleasure.

Sergeant Birdsong, the crooning doughboy of Company "A," 29th Infantry, entertained the audience with several popular vocal selections that were loudly applauded, the audience calling for more after each selection.

Six members of the battery put on a black face comedy act that kept the audience laughing with their wise cracks and funny stories.

The evening was a complete success in every way and with the promise of another "smoker" with the next cup. Members of Headquarters Battalion football team are confident of another "smoker" at the end of the battalion series.

CHILDREN'S SCHOOL OPENED LAST MONDAY

Largest Enrollment in the History of School

The Fort Benning's Children's School opened its doors Monday morning with the greatest enrollment since the school was established. Last Friday, prior to the opening of the school on the following Monday, one hundred and ninety-eight pupils had been enrolled for the school term. Since then there has been an increase in the enrollment till there are now over two hundred on the register. Unfortunately, however, due to the increased attendance over previous years and the lack of room it has been necessary to dispense temporarily with the kindergarten. At present efforts are being made to obtain another building so that those who were enrolled for the kindergarten class will soon be taken care of and it is expected that in the near future a place will be provided for them.

As was previously announced the corps of instructors this year has two new members, Miss Lucy Hardee and Miss Hannah Bowden. Miss Bowden, who will teach the sixth and seventh grades, is a graduate of the Georgia State Teachers College of Athens, one of the leading teachers colleges in the South. Miss Bowden has had several years teaching experience, having taught in the city schools of Anniston, Ala., and Thornton, Ga. Miss Hardee, who will teach the third grade, is a sister of Lieutenant Hardee, who is an instructor in the Infantry School. Miss Hardee's preparation for teaching is excellent. She is a graduate of Salem College at Salem, N. C., her native state. As a further preparation for her work Miss Hardee took up additional work at the University of North Carolina and Duke University. Last year she taught in the city schools of Smithfield, N. C.

Miss Grimes, senior instructor of the school, is very enthusiastic over the attitude taken in the school this year, and expects the year to be a banner one in the history of the school.

This story depicts glimpses of colorful scenes in the most sophisticated circles of New York society. Its scope ranges from light comedy to powerful drama.

TUESDAY, OCT. 9

"BOSS OF BUSTER'S ROOST," featuring Don Coleman, a new western star possessing pep, personality, talent and cast iron nerve. This is a red blooded romance of the ranges where friend suspected friend, daughter suspected father, and father feared son. Among many scenes pulsating with nerve-tingling action is a terrified stampeding herd thundering through a narrow pass in the hills. In their path is a girl, and available at the crucial moment is the hero who makes a daring rescue.

"The Beach Club." Sennett Comedy.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 10

"RANSOM," starring Lois Wilson in a tense story of the Barbary Coast. This play is built in an atmosphere filled with mystery, intrigue, thrils, suspense and romance. It's plot is laid in the 'Frisco of old when smugglers, thieves, gangsters and drug addicts swarmed its underworld. The parts in which Orientals are represented are played by real Chinese, some of whom are highly educated. This is an intriguing story.

On Tuesday evening at the Polo Club The Infantry School Glee Club had a combination business and social meeting. The organization for the year is well under way and the evening was devoted largely to a reception and dance for the new members. There was an informal program and during the evening Mrs. Hazel Barker, Mrs. Mai Partridge, Mrs. Martha Finney and Capt. Cecil Rutledge sang. There was orchestral music for dancing and delicious refreshments were served in the late evening. The Glee Club was one of the first, if not the first club to have been organized at Fort Benning and, in the years past, it has rendered inestimable service to the post. Charming operettas, cantatas and comic operas have been presented from time to time and have never failed to delight the music-loving personnel of the garrison. It is gratifying that the Club will "carry on" this year. Benning has always been blessed with exceptionally gifted musicians and through the Glee Club the post has been given an opportunity to know and enjoy their talents.

The October air has put new life into the post and plans for the social season are being announced. First, the reception for the new arrivals will be given by the officers and ladies of the permanent personnel at the Post Gymnasium on the evening of October 19th at 9:00 o'clock. This reception marks the official beginning of the year's social program and is always a most delightful occasion. Friends meet again who have been separated perhaps by a span of many years and vast distances. It's chief purpose is a reunion for old acquaintances and an opportunity to make new friends.

The officers club has issued its schedule for informal and dinner dances for the first half of the school year. Their program is featured by dinner dances on colorful occasions. Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve, and New Year's Eve give promise of delightful evenings.

The organization bridge clubs are being called to perfect plans for the year. On Tuesday at 1:00 o'clock Mrs. Lloyd Jones entertained the ladies of the 83rd F. A. at a delightful luncheon at her home. After lunch, plans for the club were formulated and it was decided that the club would follow the plan adopted last year of meeting on the first and third Tuesdays of each month at the home of the hostesses, the roster being alphabetical. After the business, tables were arranged for pivot bridge and the prizes were won by Mrs. Ivan L. Foster, Mrs. S. F. Clark and Mrs. Julian Baumann.

The ladies of the 24th Infantry were called together by Mrs. Paul C. Galleher at the Polo Club on Tuesday afternoon to make the plans for their bridge club. The first and third Tuesdays will be the dates of meeting, but their plan of entertaining will be different from the one used hitherto. There will be no club dues, and each lady of the regiment will take her turn as hostess at which time she individually will furnish the prize funds and refreshments. Thereafter she will have no further obligation for the year. The club, being quite large will always meet at the Polo Club.

Mrs. Edgar S. Miller will be hostess to the ladies of the 15th Tanks Battalion at a "Welcome Party" at her home on October 12th. There will, at that time, be a formulation of plans for their organization club, after which Mrs. Miller will entertain at bridge.

The ladies of the 29th Infantry are meeting this (Friday) afternoon at the Polo Club to organize and make arrangements for their regimental bridge club.

The Dramatic Club has given out its plans for the entire year and gives promise of seven most interesting evenings.

The Womans Club, which is the club for every woman who is interested in literature, art, or general culture, will issue, at an early date, an invitation to each lady of the command to a tea at the Polo Club on Monday, Oct. 22. Reserve that date now, and watch for your invitation.

Lieut. and Mrs. Raymond P. Lavin have left for a motor trip to the home of their parents in Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Capt. and Mrs. Walter T. Scott were hosts at a delightful chow mein supper at their home on Saturday evening. Their guests were Capt. and Mrs. C. T. Gilhus, Miss Dorothy Gilhus, Lieut. and Mrs. W. H. Vinson.

Lieut. and Mrs. Dwight L. Adams have returned after a delightful sojourn in Boston and around Pittsburg.

Capt. and Mrs. A. T. Knight and children reached home Saturday, after a pleasant visit in Grand Lodge, Michigan.

Miss Grace Newcomer left on Monday for six weeks vacation. Miss Newcomer plans extensive motor trips which will take her through the middle and into the far west before her return to Benning.

Mrs. O. C. Bechmann, of Denver, Col., arrived on Wednesday evening for a visit to her son and daughter Lieut. and Mrs. Henry W. Brandhorst. Mrs. Beechmann was a popular visitor at the post four years ago and has many friends who will be delighted to see her again.

The many friends of Mrs. Bob Childs will learn with genuine regret of the death of her sister in Griffin. Miss Margaret Ogletree visited Lt. and Mrs. Childs last winter and was one of the loveliest and most popular girls it has been our privilege to know.

Lt. and Mrs. A. A. Dobak have returned after almost a year in Washington, where Lt. Dobak was in Walter Reed hospital. They are at home with Mrs. Dobak's parents in Columbus.

Mrs. Ira Black and charming children are being welcomed home, after a summer spent very happily with her parents in Pittsburg.

Sympathy is extended to Lt. Robert C. Oliver, whose mother died last week in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd and Mrs. James L. Copeland will be hostesses to Pan-Hellenic on Oct. 11 at 2:00 o'clock at the home of the latter, Block 19-138. All army ladies who are members of national college sororities are eligible to belong and are cordially invited to come to this organization meeting.

Last Snuday was a wonderful day at the Protestant Chapel. It marked the fifty-second Sunday after Chaplain Wright instituted the award of pins for perfect attendance, and there were more than fifty children to receive for their own, to keep always, the gold pin. Perhaps the youngest tot to win the coveted pin was "Boofy" Rogers, tiny daughter of Capt. and Mrs. John Rodgers, who is just now three years old. Another very little girl was Anne Chunn, and perhaps the youngest boy Johnny Crandall. Faces beamed with happiness as those who have not missed a Sunday from Sunday school during the year were given their certificate and gold pin. There were six children who have not, for sickness or any other reason, been absent during the year from this particular Sunday School and they were the first to receive their rewards. The girls were Jean Barkhurst, Peggy Tripp and Virginia Harris, and the boys were Arthur Barkhurst, Russell Wall and Charles Bootz. The most noteworthy of all was the giving of fifth-year bars to William and Gregory Squires, sons of Major William A. Squires, D. C., who have not failed to attend Sunday School a single Sunday in five years. William Stayer won his third-year bar for which he surely is to be congratulated.

Those who received the fifty-two week pins were: William Archer Squires, Jr., Sherman Gregory Squires, William Keller Stayer, James Nealy Tripp, Calvin Pearl Titus, Jr., John Ralph Wright, Jr., Olive Morrill Wilson, Evelyn May Wright, Charlie Curtis Tripp, Martin Christian Johansen, Arthur Bill Barkhurst, Dorothy Elizabeth Gilhus, Katherine Cecelia Chunn, Guila Jean Chunn, Marion Alice Johansen, Russell Valentine Wall, Jr., Henry August Bootz, Jr., Charles Allen Lockard, Jr., Jonathan Frederic Ladd, David Edward Ambrose, James Carlton Cleveland, Joseph Leslie Foell, Helen Rodgers, Leta Elizabeth Davis, Ethel Freda Green, Mary Serena Duncan, Beatrice Mary McNulty, Charlotte May Baxter, Margaret Edna Tripp, Mildred Bowen Marr, Jane Elizabeth Barkhurst, Charles Howland Bootz, Robert Brown Ambrose, Ralph John Wall, Ralph Waldo Justice, Walter Credell Lockard, Virginia Aline Harris, James Von Kanel Ladd, Elizabeth Ann Sweet, Anne Winston Chunn, John Irwin Crandall, Jr., Joan Rodgers, Catherine Bowles Justice, Patricia Jean Davis.

Cop: How did this accident happen?
Motorist: Hic—I saw two bridges—hic—and ran over the wrong one.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM THE STATION HOSPITAL

Miss Swarva, 2nd Lt., A. N. C., has returned to duty from a leave of 15 days.

Miss Ruby Poss, 2nd Lt., A. N. C., has returned from a leave of 30 days, after enjoying a visit with friends in Macon, Ga.

Congratulations to Privates Yutmeyer, Davis and Estes on their promotion to Privates 1st Class. We hope you keep on and get a few more stripes.

The Demonstration Detachment will demonstrate the Regimental Medical Detachment to the advanced officer's class Friday, October 5th.

The Sergeant who had the girl friend waiting so long one day last week should be ashamed of himself as the poor girl could not help sitting in the sun so long. Sergeant, the next time don't make dates with strangers over the phone and you won't get mixed up in the color.

Miss Williamson, 1st Lt., A. N. C., has purchased a new Chrysler "75" sedan.

Colonel F. C. Baker, M. C., left last week to spend a few days at Staunton, Va.

Major E. E. Hume and Captain A. Gilhus, Medical Corps, left the first of the week for Baltimore, Md., where they will attend the annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons.

GOLD-DUST TWINS RETURN FROM LONG FURLOUGH

The return of the "Gold-Dust Twins," after a month's leave of absence, was heartily welcomed by the members of the Infantry School Detachment.

Both of the twins, Cpls. Willingham J. O. and William Booth, experienced many thrilling adventures during their visit to Cedartown, Ga., the home of Jeffie O. Willingham.

Cpl. Booth claims to have had a wonderful time during his stay at Cedartown, but being from the land of sunshine and flowers, Cpl. Booth could never become accustomed to the sand spurs and nettles that abound in this section. In fact he had anticipated spending quite a bit of time camping but one experience with the nettles and sand spurs was enough.

While visiting Cedartown Corp. Jeffie O. Willingham attempted to arrange for a title bout with the heavyweight champion of the town, but just when the contract for the fight was drawn up and awaiting the signature of the fighters, Corp. Booth told a young lady of Corp. Willingham's ability to kill an ox with either a left or right and this young lady happened to broadcast the information with the result that the champion Chief Sock Inde Mush left town that night.

REGULAR INSPECTION ADDS MANY MILES TO LIFE OF AUTO TIRES

"If we could only impress upon all motorists the importance of regular tire inspections, thousands of extra miles of trouble-free service would be forthcoming," says The Post Exchange, Firestone Service Dealers.

Just as the athlete who is in good physical condition can show his best performance, so the tires that are kept in condition can give their best service. It pays in the thousands of extra miles to give tires the benefit of routine service at regular intervals.

Firestone dealers are equipped to render a tire service that saves money for the car owner. This includes a check-up of tires, wheels and rims to see that they are in good shape for trouble-free service. The air pressure in each tire is tested according to the Firestone specification chart. The valve operation of each tube is also checked to guard against slow leaks, a frequent cause of loss of tire mileage.

Car owners who "ply fair" with their tires and have then inspected regularly will not only get better service from the tires so far as performance is concerned, but will obtain much more mileage.

ADVENTURES OF ANDREW GOFORTH

And I went to the provo marshal and he were settin on the stove smokin and he says you got a dog and my orders is to shoot the owners and give the dogs a good call down every time I find them loose in this here post and I done more work in one day than everybody else in one year on do you get that and I says you stay on that side the stove and he says you neednt git scairt and if you go in the officers club and git me two cigars and a box of matches I give you some of the matches and I went and I look on the wall and I says that clock says one o'clock and it aint and the boy says that clock is out of fix and I says how and he says it dont run and I says it need fixin and he says yes and I says how it dont run and he says it aint fixt and I says I dont understand and he says it belong the single Core and I says now I understand and that captain in the single Core he come at me and I go way and he says that some more your business which it aint and I says look here I work onct in the quartermasters and no body at this here post must tech me and he says I mean what I says and you can take it or you can leave it and sir I wish I had leave it and that man in the hospital says that single officer shore done a good job and I says that some more your business and you can take it or you can leave it and sir he take it and when that wretched MP force me crost that bridge he has on base ball shoes and my pants git torn and that provo marshal have my dog and my head and so forth still akes and if I can git damage money please let me know and I wont have to come to that post no more and please dont tell the quartermaster I use his name this from

ARMY JUNIORS DEFEAT EAST HIGHLANDS TEAM

(By John Wright)

Doughboy Stadium was the scene Sunday afternoon, Sept. 30, of a battle which ended in the defeat of East Highlands by the All Army Juniors, the football team of the Fort Benning boys, coached by Lt. "Duke" Gailbreath. The final score was 25 to 6.

The only score made by the visitors was made after a short punt had been muffed by Capt. John Franklin, of the All Army Juniors. That was the beginning of the end, because the visitors were forced to give ground before the furious attack of the post boys. By end runs and off tackle plays the Juniors piled up a good lead in the first two quarters.

The visitors were in good condition but were not as well trained as the boys from the post. The work of Major Stayer in the early part of the season was largely the cause of this training.

In the last quarter, everyone of Benning's subs were allowed to play and were able to hold off the last desperate attack of the visitors.

Score by quarters:

	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	Fl.
East Highlands	6	0	0	0	— 6
Benning	7	12	0	6	—25

The Student Officers

COMPANY B

During the morning of the San Francisco earthquake, Jack Barrymore, who had been playing in one of the theaters there, found himself unceremoniously handed a pick and shovel and told briefly and pertinently by a member of the military police to go to work. Later, he wired his family of his whereabouts and his compulsory occupation. John Drew, his uncle, wired back that it took an act of God and the United States army to make Jack work.

After listening to various members of both classes hold forth on the paucity of their military knowledge and their recent lengthy detachment from seemingly all military affairs, it would appear that the United States army was somewhat responsible for the present student status of a good many of our best members.

A certain paucity was noticeable on the first shirt and rifle day. One major evidently had been associated with the navy for he preferred the collar for the recovering of his gold leaf. The manual of arms by the company officers was slightly international in execution and rather all-embracing in scope. One of the apparenty modern military changes in the principal infantry weapon, noticed especially by those a bit gray above the ears, was the increased weight of the rifle. And I am personally of the opinion that shoulders are not what they use to be.

On the opening day we heard the words, "student body." I have never had any particular interest in student bodies and certainly no marked sympathy. But I could weep over them now. After you have gone ten or fifteen or twenty years doing momentous things, so the basic communication stated which were vital to our army; after you have cultivated quite an air and a settled dignity commensurate with your relative number, it is a bit disconcerting to become something in unionalls and a name plate. I was laughed at three times by ex-friends and I would have laughed myself but I didn't have the heart.

And all this after you have looked at nine thousand houses with the hope heating system, and the stoveless kitchens and the shadeless windows, and the ice boxless pantries, and when after reaching a comatose state you said you would take it, and you've been trying to justify your unconscious commitment ever since to the wife. At any rate the morale was low, hence the call of the basic alibi that you have been on strange khaki-shirtless details far removed from the serried ranks. It is true that we got letters of welcome to the City of Columbus from various sympathetic merchants. Some of us who had been here a year or two also got them.

We chosen ones were consequently a bit low when we filed into the main theater for the commandant's address. But the morale took a sudden jump. We were kindly received, there was a sympathetic understanding of our state of mind and golden words of advice.

The following day, shirted and named, we were told by a soft spoken officer that he was our superior and his duty was to help us, and we took unto ourselves more comfort. Then a day of lectures made tremendously simple and interesting by the wizadry of Major Lange and a very personable assistant that he picked on. To Major Lange goes the initial red apple. To talk for three solid hours without the birth of a squirm or a wiggle is either very high art or low mesmerism. The assistant commandant completed the day for us with good hewords of comfort and advice that ran fifteen minutes past the unions hours and we never realized it. There must be black magic here.

Another day (6 o'clock onward) and Capt. Venable and his staff clearly demonstrated the intimate personal relationship between a very ancient weapon and the student officer.

This presentation, application and examination ran in opposition to a fair golfer whose golf, according to the consensus of opinion was only fair. Her stance was terrible and she persisted in bending her left elbow. She finally hit the ball somewhat more than its own length which success called forth a shrill "whoopee" from her. The resultant nervous tension upon the class was probably responsible for certain later anatomical difficulties in which an earnest endeavor was made to wrap the entire body around the rifle with all the extremities meeting at the muzzle of the price. (Quote) The more painful the wrapping the more correct the position. (Unquote) In this evolution, speaking biologically, I was assisted by Lieut. Daugherty or rather by both the lieutenant's knees. I will say for the lieutenant that I will match him against any pusher in the army. What's worrying me now is what's holding me together.

LIEUTENANT WAINE ARCHER

Is acting Publicity Officer and Acting Editor of the Infantry School News during the absence of Lieutenant Stewart. Lieut. Stewart was called to his home in Paxton, Illinois, last Saturday morning due to the unexpected death of his father.

Pat was taking his first ride in an aeroplane. Suddenly the plane went into a nose dive.

"I bet 50 per cent. of the people down there thought we were falling," said the pilot.

"Sure,' admitted Pat, "and 50 per cent. of the people up here thought the same thing.

DUTY

There is one word in the soldier's vocabulary that should be thoroughly understood by every man in the military service. This word applies practically to everything the soldier does and often compels him to do things that, if left to his own decision or likes and dislikes, he would possibly not comply. The word is "DUTY."

Duty is the undefinable something that makes the soldier execute deeds of bravery that otherwise possibly would not be performed. Duty is the factor that causes a soldier to put up with hard conditions—and smile. It is the proper realization of the sense of the word that makes what we call a "GOOD SOLDIER."

Lots of times, in a soldier's career, he is called upon to perform certain duties that are hard, that might cause him to loose friends, or, on the other hand, duties that are not enjoyable or will give him an opportunity to stand out. Regardless—these assignments are all in the line of duty and should be performed with the proper conception of their meaning. Take as an example of these two situations, the duty of a soldier over a prisoner. Naturally, a soldier does not relish the idea of taking out several prisoners and supervising their work, requiring them to do hard labor, when possibly they are his bunkies. It's hard, it kind of goes against the grain but—it so happens this is your duty. If you have the proper idea of what is required of you as a sentry—the matter of friendship is forgotten and you will perform your duty in requiring work. We have the other case of a soldier who is assigned special duty where, in his particular work, he is brought to the attention of some officer and is commended for his efficiency. Both men are called upon to give service which comes under the head of "DUTY." One is disagreeable, the other, enjoyable, but both are DUTY.

If every man in the service would, and could, grasp the full meaning of the single word, the guard house would never have a prisoner, company punishment would be a thing of the past and the health of the command would be without blemish. When you entered the service you took upon yourself an oath of alegiance that "You Will Bear True Faith and Allegiance to the United States of America; That You Will Serve Them Honestly and Faithfully Against All Their Enemies Whatsoever; and That You will Obey All Orders of the President of the United States, and That You Will Obey the Orders of the Officers Appointed Over Me, According to the Rules and Articles of War." This whole oath might be properly summed up in saying "I Will Do My Duty to My Country."

In any case, regardless of the situation, it is your duty to do something, to make a report, to carry out certain instructions, to maintain a certain standard, to perform any service, carry it out properly in the true sense of the service required and realize that whatever you do, it is your duty.—(Exchang.)

ON LEAVE

Capt. Leon E. Norris, who has been serving in the capacity of Range Officer, left the early part of the week on leave. Capt. Norris is a graduate of the Company Officers Class at the Infantry School, in the class of 1927. Following his graduation Capt. Norris was assigned to duty as Range Officer in which capacity he has served since. During the absence of Capt. Norris Capt. Frank L. McCoy, of the 24th Infantry, is acting as Range Officer.

NOTES FROM SPECIAL UNITS

Since launching this new craft on September 13th, we have been putting her through a series of trial runs, and while she is strange, in handling, in many respects, we have come to the conclusion that she is a well found, seaworthy, seagoing craft. A little rough weather was experienced after leaving the ways, but the general conclusion is that she is taut and sound, alow and aloft, and when she settles down, will hang up some real clipper records.

Some brilliant soul observed that Special Units' initials were reversed, and should be U. S.; that is true, in the sense of esprit-de corps, as even now all the members speak of the unit as "We," or if you will, "Us." To our mind this portends a happy organization.

Athletics are going forward with a bang. Captain Bent, Captain Mabbutt and Lieut. Sullivan are busy whipping their squads of huskie into shape for the football season. Things look mighty bright in this direction.

A call has been sent out by Captain Bent, athletic officer, for candidates for field and track events. Special Units will be well represented in this line and should "bring home the bacon."

"SPRAY FROM THE GAS TANK"
(Motor Repair Section No. 86)

Members of the Motor Repair Section No. 86, report that "Nothing happens in their organization but Hard Work, spelled with capital letters," and, really it is a question as to whether one could find a harder working "bunch" than these boys who will tackle with equanimity anything from a motorcycle to a ponderous Liberty. If you ask them they will tell you, with truth, that the motor transport at this station is now in better condition and running more smoothly than ever in its history.

Tech. Sgt. Watkins, Q. M. C., Shop Foreman, much to our surprise, has not yet turned in his furlough, and it now looks as though he might stick it out to the bitter end.

It has been reported that the only way in which Pvt. 1st Class German, our genial and efficient storekeeper, can be aroused in the morning is to build a fire under him—if you ask him he will give you the particulars.

The First Sergeant of M. T. C. No. 100 says their motto is "Put out or get out" since Captain Mabbutt became C. O. To date all the men are still here, which would indicate that there is quite a lot of "putting out."

FINANCIAL DIGEST
(Finance Department)

Tech. Sgt. E. L. Bigham left in his Toonerville trolley this past week for Fort Douglas, Utah, where he will, in addition to his other duties, be in the finance office at said fort. We wish him many detours on his new adventure, and the inexperienced travelers can look for correct road information from our departing brother at a later date.

Sgt. Alden Scovel has just arrived from the land of the pine-apples with his hon kongs, etc. He is our acting 1st Sgt. and we find that he can handle a mean morning report. Watch your (512's), boys.

Cpl. A. C. Young is now with a big cheese man from Atlanta, Ga., he having severed his relations with our dear Uncle during the past week by purchase. We can be assured of stronger and better Limberger in the future.

Our little Carlton Anders, better known as "Shorty" (he is only seven feet tall), is saving up his quarters for future purchases, as he has a new flame that causes him much worry.

Watch your step, Kemp.

DEPOT DESPATCHERS
(72nd Ord. Co. Depot)

We are anxiously awaiting the return from a well earned furlough of Pvt. 1cl P. M. Thompson, who is due back within a few days. Pvt. 1cl. Thompson will be placed back on duty with the Personnel Office of Special Units, and in addition to his other duties will act as news reporter for this organization. A live wire he will be, providing he has not lost too much energy while away.

Everyone seems to be doing it, as Pvt. 1cl. Desse and Pvt. Smith, A. P., will depart on furlough by the time this item reaches the press.

All of our company are great sports. We have a call for candidates for the track and field meet, and out of the enormous number of 24 men we received zero requests for entrance.

When Pvt. 1cl. Thompson gets on the job our motto will be "bigger and better news."

DETACHMENT QUARTERMASTER CORPS

Corporal George W. Briody, of the Billeting Office, in Block 21, has been appointed staff sergeant as a result of the last competitive examination, and has been transferred to West Point, N. Y. We all wish him the best luck in the world at his new station and congratulate him upon his promotion.

We regret to note that Private Charlie Davis is ill at the Post Hospital, and all join in wishing him a speedy recovery.

Staff Sergeant Michael Halloran is back, after a ninety-day furlough and seems to be in the best of health. Says he had a wonderful time, and is all ready for the hay sheds again.

Pvt. 1cl. Robert T. Chandler says that he woke up crying Sunday morning. He had just dreamed that he had been discharged and that they would not let him reenlist.

And our messenger, Vernon Thomas, states that the Mess Sergeant would give only one-half of a fried chicken for Sunday dinner.

17th ORD. CO. (MAINT.)

Pvt. Clyde L. Barnes, who has been sick in the Station Hospital for the past several weeks, is now able to be back with the organization.

Pvt. Richard Russ was admitted to the Station Hospital on Sept. 28th with a sprained ankle.

Pvt. 1cl. George F. Sheppard was discharged by purchase. He will make his home in Columbus, Ga.

Corporal Ralph Musgrove left today on a 30-day furlough to visit relatives in Newton, Ga.

Battery "A"

Private Harvey, who is on his first enlistment and has been in the battery only three months, has set a mark in gunning for some of the old timers to shoot at. He qualified as a first class gunner with the exceptional score of 99.8 per cent., which is the highest score that has been made this year in the Battalion.

Private Drawdy, who hails from Florida, upon being asked what a sea cow was replied that it was an animal that supplied milk for the sailors.

Private Siegel says it is not only your sins that will find you out but also your dad, especially when you write home for help when you are not in trouble.

To strengthen the morale of the Battery we would like to see the following take place:

Private Terrell tell a story without using the pronoun "I" at least twenty times.

Private Abernathy buy some tobacco.

Sergeant Regan to find out he is not every woman's ideal.

For someone to tell and make Private First Class McRae believe he sings like a seal.

Private Thurston to forget the fact he is in the South.

The Battery is watching with great interest Sergeant Peter's elimination contest about three young and fair damsels, (sisters), he met while visiting in Union Point, Georgia. Pete is very tender hearted and it is a trying ordeal for him to think that he will have to separate the three if he keeps from committing bigamy.

Private Duncan, who holds a responsible position in Sergeant Regan's conservatory of music, was heard to remark that the drums in an orchestra were simple for him to master but these drums on a French 75 were driving him goofy.

Sergeant Taylor, Corporal Hunter and Private First Class Lindsey, who were discharged during September, have all taken on another stack for three years. Glad to have all of them back and we know they must love horses.

The Battery believes that in Privates Beyer and Granger we have the coming champions of the Post. That is if they live long enough, for never a day passes that they do not engage in battle with some red-leg. And whether they win or not they are always ready for the next day of gore.

Famous First Words: "Loan me five dollars."

Famous Last Words: "Never."

Battery B

Battery "B" was honored today by the retirement of Master Sergeant Daniel A. Murphy. Dad Murphy, as the men affectionately call him, is a veteran of thirty years honest and faithful service, several years of which he has spent in Battery "B." The officers and men of the battalion gathered in the battery day room at 11:00 A. M. and presented to Sergeant Murphy a beautiful watch as a token of their esteem. After bidding farewell to his comrades Sergeant Murphy left for Pensacola, Fla., where he will make his future home. He leaves a vast number of friends who will remember him as long as the caissons roll.

We are pleased to announce that Sergeant LaCroix, the battery mess sergeant, held up his hand on the 28th of last month for another stack and will continue to give us fried steak and onions (mostly onions.)

It seems that Sergeant Trigg is always afflicted with a severe case of pistolitis when he catches a charge of quarters.

The painting of the interior of the battery day room has just been completed which makes it an attractive place for the men whose financial condition is a little below average to spend pay day evenings.

Corporal Hall was discharged last week per expiration term of service. He will be missed by every member of the battery and we all join in wishing for him the best of luck in civilian life.

THE DOCTOR AND OLD AGE

While old age is not preventable, its years are as inevitable as the "inevitable hour" which all alike await. But a significant symposium at the Academy of Medicine is considering the question—one which has probably never had such emphasis before by the profession—how the pathology of those who are old in years may be postponed or altogether avoided. Despite sanitary and medical science, it appears that the maximum span of life has not been lengthened much if at all. And perhaps with all that man can do he may not live beyond the limit fixed by the "predestination of heredity." What he can do is to lengthen some what the life of more individuals within that limit, and assure a more comfortable and efficient mental, moral and physical existence.

What the layman wishes to know, as Dr. George E. Vincent said in his brilliant address at the opening of the symposium, is "can an average man or woman of sixty-five or eighty hope to be "fairly fit, reasonably alert and of some "use to the community, or is it only the "exceptional person who may entertain "that hope and reach that standard?" What has been accomplished so far has been in the groups under forty and especially under fifty. That has been a remarkable achievement, but a pretty large minority of the race is now much concerned about the years that lie beyond.

A change is needful in the attitude of doctors toward the old people with whom they have to do and in that of the old people toward themselves. They are not to be thought of simply as bodies that have to be patched up by the doctors when there is a disorder or distemper here or there, but as persons with the characteristic powers of old people who have "a significant contribution to make to the common welfare." The doctours must of course give attention to the healing of ills, but they should have the more positive function of trainers to keep even the old fit. To use Dr. Vincent's simile:

Doctors ought to be like the mechanicians who take contracts to keep clocks going and on time, rather than emergency men to be summoned when timepieces stop or are too fast or too slow.

Men have written and talked about old age from Cicero to Osler, but "gerontology" is now coming for the first time to make a place for itself in the science of human health. This symposium is a significant sign of the concern that is taken not in finding springs of youth but in helping those who "would be well old to be old betimes" in the thought that they take of keeping themselves fit. —New York Times.

CITATION FOR BRAVERY

Capt. W. E. Conkill's Gallantry in 1918 Recognized

Washington: Gallantry in action during the World War was recognized by the War Department by a silver star citation to Captain William E. Conkill of the Field Artillery.

When he was a First Lieutenant of the Tenth Field Artillery in the Third Division near Greves, Ferne and St. Eugene, France, on July 15, 1918, the citation said: "With utter disregard for his own personal safety and with untiring energy he repeatedly traversed shell-swept roads with convoys of ammunition, often driving the trucks himself when the drivers were exhausted or wounded, thereby keeping the batteries supplied with ammunition when a shortage would have been disastrous."

FORGOTTEN HEROES

If you have a kick coming and if you have reached the stage where you wonder "What's the Use" and have about made up your mind to "chuck the whole d— business," read the story of Forgotten Heroes by George Creel in September issue of the American Legion.

There you will learn that our celebrated John Paul Jones, whose naval exploits "kindled a blaze of admiration throughout the world" who "served eight years without a cent of pay" was rewarded by his country as follows: "Congress impunged his honesty, cheated him of his proper rank and stole the money received from the sale of prizes he had captured." In the end he was forced "to take service with a foreign flag that he might not starve."

When lack of finances paralyzed the efforts of General Washington, Robert Morris pledged his honor and his credit to raise the necessary funds and "spent the last three years of his life in a debtor's prison."

George Rogers Clark, who, on his own initiative, saved the West to the United States, was "robbed, cheated and ignored." Finally when they brought his a sword "at his lonely, shabby home," he said to them "When Virginia needed a sword I found her one. Now I need bread."

"These instances, and countless others like them are being seized upon * * * and used as an excuse for a civic sloth * * * This attitude of mind is just as man, stupid and indefensible as the neglects of injustices complained of."

"God help us if we have reached a day when * * * men and women America's needs with the question, 'What is there in it for me?' "—(Cactus.)

WORLD SERIES GAMES TO BE SHOWN ON BOARD AT GOWDY FIELD

Devotees of the national pastime and sport, baseball, are all afire and speculating wildly and widely as to the outcome of the world's series now in progress between the New York Yankees and Saint Louis Cardinals. Unfortuntely all of the baseball fans are unable for various reasons to attend the series now in progress. In the event they were able the fields at New York and Saint Louis would not be sufficiently large enough to accommodate the crowds which would assemble. As a result of this the vast majority of the people must content themselves with receiving this information from some other source, the principal medium being the daily papers. Yet, there are many who will sit by the radio and listen to the returns as they are called by the announcer.

As has been the custom in the past, athletic authorities at the post have installed a playograph score board which records every play made. By means of this board you are able to sit in the stands and see every move from the time the pitcher delivers the ball till the batter is either put out or scores, to whom the ball was batted, what he did with the play, who hit the ball and who received the play to get credit for the put-out.

This board has always proved popular in the past and it is expected that it will be all of as popular this year as it has in the past. Being robbed, or rather unable to attend a series game, this is the best substitute that can be obtained. If you get your first knowledge from the papers you know at a glance who won the game and all of the kick is taken out of it. If you listen in over the radio you are always on edge expecting at any minute to hear old man static start broadcasting and as we all know once he starts in it is impossible for anyone to continue with a good program, with it you are just as apt as not to miss the best, most thrilling play of the game, probably the play which wins the game. Whereas those who are among those who are in the stands witnessing the game via the playograph board can talk, whoop, eat peanuts and drink pop without missing a single detail. The only thing you will have to do is keep your eye on the board and read the score accordingly.

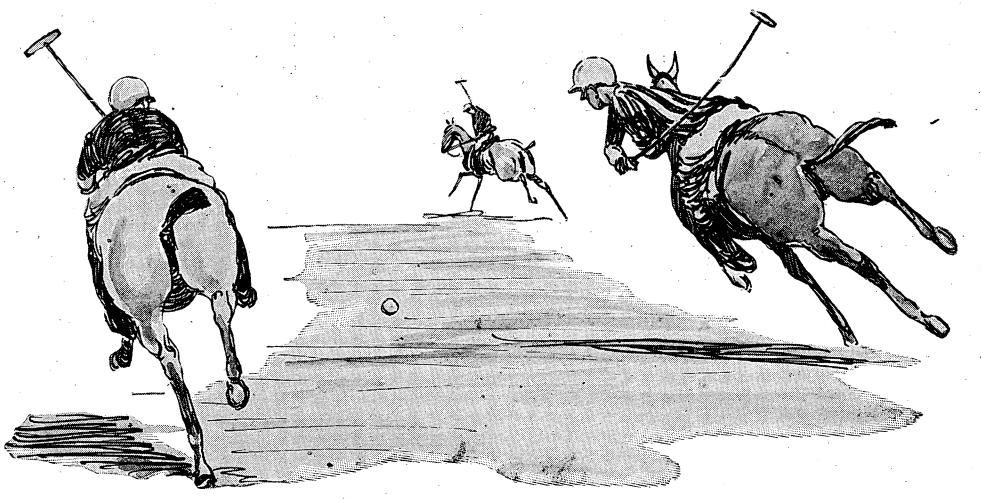
POLO GAMES SUNDAY



The game will begin at 2 P. M.

POLO AT FRENCH FIELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Sunday afternoon, J. Pluvius and other gods permitting, two teams representing candidates which will be members of the Benning Polo team which are later in the season to meet the fast Sixth Cavalry team of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Fort McPherson of Atlanta and the Governors Horse Guards will play an exhibition game on French Field starting promptly at 2:00.

In the game last Sunday afternoon on this field the candidates were divided into two teams and known as the Yellowjackets and Bluecords with the Yellowjackets winning by a score of 12-5. Though the score seems to be somewhat onesided and an uneven affair the contest was better than the score indicates. The Bluecords were always riding hard and pounding the white spheriod but the defense and attack of the Yellowjackets was to strong for the less experienced team.

In the material which has turned out for this year's team it seems as if the team representing the Infantry School will be stronger than any team in the past that has represented Benning. The game Sunday is more or less in the order of a tryout for the various positions and as a result every member is anxious to make the best showing possible in order that his contention that he is the best man available for particular positions is well founded and not idle gossip.

The lineup for Sunday's game follows:

Yellowjackets	Position	Bluecords
Major Lymon	No. 1	Lt. Grubbs
Major Smith	No. 2	Capt. McClure
Lt. Jacobs	No. 3	Lt. Murphy
Lt. Bartlett	No. 4	Maj. Taylor

TWO YEARS ON ONE STORY

From The World

Mr. Russell Owen, who writes on aviation matters for The New York Times, has accepted the assignment to accompany Byrd on the South Pole expedition, has been duly extolled in prose and poetry at a farewell dinner, and has departed. And this, it seems to us, is something new in the world. It is not unusual for a man to give two years out of his life to discover something of scientific interest, or to study, or to write a book. But for a man to give two years out of his life for one newspaper story—that is something we have never heard of before. Of course, there have been war correspondents. But war correspondents, in actual practice, are less concerned with the war than with a series of battles; and, if the life in the trenches begins to pall on them, they can always think of some hot story that demands their presence at once on the boulevards of Paris.

But this means two years on one story, and one story alone, even though it be told in a great many different installments. It means two years aboard ship, with no way of flimflamming the managing editor into sending a telegram saying "Report back to the office." It means two years of the deadliest monotony, with no boulevards of Paris to look forward to, no free theatre tickets, no trips on the Al Smith special. And it strikes us somehow as rather admirable. For nobody who has read Mr. Owen's articles can doubt that he covers this story for the sheer love of it. Such things seem to have a fascination for him, and he manages to convey much of that fascination to those who read him. So we add our prose to the distinguished prose of his colleagues on The Times and wish him godspeed and good luck.

CARDS FAVORED TO WIN AT 5 TO 3

As we went to press the subject of the outcome of the world's series now in progress came up for discussion., some maintaining that it will be a walk away for the Cardinals, others remembering the things that the Yanks had pulled unexpectedly shock their heads more wisely and refused to believe that the Cards could for two successive trials oust the hard hitting Yanks despite the badly crippled condition of the team and the necessitating of using men to play stellar roles who were not considered as a regular player of that particular position.

There being a copy of the New York Times conveniently near all decided to turn the pages and see what the critics in the home of the circuit clouting Yanks thought of their ability. The general concensus of opinion among them is that the Cards should walk away with the series without any great deal of trouble. While on the other hand there are some who have remembrances of the things these same Yanks have pulled that seemed next to impossible and shaking their heads and saying wisely, "you can never tell about those Yanks. Don't be surprised if you see them with the flag still in their possession when the series is over."

However, on looking further we find Wall Street is backing the Cards at a 5 to 3 clip and the following as their reasons:

"The odds on the Cardinals to win the world's series lengthened yesterday. The price is now 5 to 3 with the Cards favored. The previous price was 10 to 7. The prices on the series, as well as on the first and second games, changed as soon as it was officially known that Earl Combs, the brilliant centerfielder, was out of the game.

"A canvas of the leading Broadway betting headquarters yesterday disclosed that there is even greater activity than was expected before the teams take the field. There is plenty of Yankee money, but the Amrican League supporters, it was pointed out, are holding back in the hope of getting longer prices.

"Here are the latest prices as quoted by Jack Doyle, Broadway Commissioner:

3 to 5 that the Cardinals do not win the series.

6 to 5 that the Yankees do not win the series.

7 to 10 that the Cardinals do not win the first game of the series.

11 to 10 that the Yankees do not win the first game of the series.

12 to 5 that the Cardinals do not win the first two games of the series.

17 to 5 that the Yankees do not win the first two games of the series.

10 to 1 that the Cardinals do not win the first four games of the series.

Prices announced before it was definite that Combs was out showed that the odds were 7 to 10 against the Cards winning the series and 11 to 10 against the Yanks. The prices were 4 to 5 that the Cards would not win the first game and even money that the Yanks would. The odds against the Cards winning the first two games were 12 to 5 and against the Yanks 16 to 5.

A few large wagers were reported, one on the Cards of $2,000 against $1,000. This money was placed before the prices changed. It also was pointed out that many big betters were content to what is called "shop for prices" at this stage and that the instant the odds widen again that plenty of Yankee money will be produced.

In the meantime St. Louis money is increasing and there will be no waiting when the Yankee supporters decide to step to the front.

It was said that all the Yankee backers are waiting for it to be ascertained if any more of the regulars will be out of the game. Once it has been determined just what the starting lineup will be, then the heavy wagering is expected to start.

"How did you find yourself after last night's party?"

"Oh, I just looked under the table and there I was."

Jinks: Have you heard the latest Scotch joke?

Binks: No, I've been out of the office for the last half hour.

THE PROTESTANT CHAPEL GUILD

We wish to call the attention of all on the post to the splendid work of the Protestant Chapel Guild, which we hope will appeal to everyone so that they will joint this most worthy organization.

Some of the work accomplished during the past year was: supplying fresh flowers for the altar each Sunday, buying music for the choir, assisting Chaplain Wright in the wrapping and marking of hundreds of Christmas gifts for the post children, distributing any garments which were turned in to them in need, furnishing layettes to needy babies born at the post hospital, and finally its great work was that of supplying with milk daily from eight to ten babies on the post who without the guild's help would suffer from lack of proper nourishment.

For funds to carry on its work the guild is dependent upon the yearly dues one dollar of its members, the renting of its china, the sale of the Guild cook book and a large charity bridge party, which is held each spring. Even if you do not feel that you can take an active part in the guild work you may join the organization and let your dollar membership, or more if you care to send it, help toward milk for the babies. Mrs. D. H. Torrey will be glad to receive your name and dues.

The first meeting of this year will be held at the Protestant Chapel on Monday morning, Oct. 8, at ten o'clock. The business will be the election of officers for the coming year. All former members and all those interested are cordially urged to attend.

Company "E"

Company "E" is still participating in physical drill, close and extended order, scouting and patrolling, parades, escorts of the color, combat principles, guard duty, tent pitching and display of equipment, during the drill day. We haven't had a deserter in the company in four months.

Our last recruits have just been turned for duty with the company from the Regimental Recruit school and Pvt. Fauquier made the highest rating in the group in the duties of a soldier. Fauquier is also the author of a song entitled "Won't You Please Come Back Again," which he has put out to several firms for their bids on it but has not received a reasonable offer for it yet.

Company "E" has started the football practice and so far prospects of winning the 1928 cup looks good. Pvt. 1cl. Tillman is one of our famous back men and he states that it will take 12 men to stop him when he gets that old pigskin under his arm and there are only 11 men playing on a team, so by that the other side hasn't a chance. Lt. Totten is our coach and under his instruction the team is working fine. Franz is Captain of the team and will be able to help us considerable. High Davis, Top kick, is also giving the team pointers on the game.

Sgt. Dalby, the snappy soldier of the company, has returned from his furlough, after an enjoyable and delightful visit with his friends. Sgt. Dalby visited many points of interest such as West Point, Ga., Lookout Mountain and many other places in Alabama. He was going to ask the company commander for 15 days extension in order to get things together, but his heart failed him. He said he had plenty of chicken legs to fill up on while on his vacation. Sergeant Dalby was going around here a few days ago wearing a black eye. Sgt. New asked him how he got it and he told him that he got it for kissing the bride. Sgt. New said, "Why that is an old tradition, kissing the bride." Sgt. Dalby said "Yes but this was three weeks after the wedding."

Sgt. (Fat) Franz did his first guard last week and he must have lost ten pounds during the guard. Sgt. (Shorty) New said Fat worried him to death coming in his room asking questions about the guard.

Corp. Miscar was seen by several members of the company hoeing weeds in Benning Park. He is working for Fat Franz and seems to be in the hopes of Mrs. Franz bringing some lady back with her.

Pvt. Steinwinder who has been in the kitchen for awhile helping burn slum is back doing duty again. Welcome back old scout, we need soldiers wrose than slum burners.

Since formal guard mounts have started again the orderly buckers of the company are working day and night and continuously complaining because the lights go out before they are through. Pvt. Borders seems to be leading the others in that he makes 1st orderly each time he mounts guard. Good work Junie. Pvt. McCoy and Roberts are running him a close race.

The 3rd Platoon is working on the new formation in airplane attack combat. The men are interested in the drill as it seems something different from the usual drill.

The following men have returned from furlough: Pfc. Partain, Pendergraph, Greene, Hicks, "Doubting Thomas" and Pvts. Gulley, Freeman, Edmonds, Shelton, W., and Cpl. Easterwood. "Doubting" Thomas, our prize fighter, is also returning from a 90 days furlough the last of the week and will be seen in plenty of bouts. He is the best lightweight in Fort Benning.

The following named men are leaving on furlough: Pfc. Marquette, Jordan, Hooper and Story, G., Pvts. Pecot and Story, T., and Corp. Okari and Corp. Moore. —I. M. Y.

FORMER "LEADERS OF THE WAY" NOW STEW-CENTS

This years Advance and Company Officers Class should not have any trouble in finding their way around during problems and maneuvers for in their midst are many officers who have put the dirt along the slopes of each and every hill during their recent war series with the 29th Infantry.

When the classes fell in Wednesday morning, Sept. 26th, beaming faces of the following could be seen in the Advance Class: Maj. Bertram L. Cadwalader, Capt. Raymond H. Bishop, Capt. Withers A. Burress, Capt. Holmes E. Dager, Capt. Charles C. Griffin, Capt. Edward G. Herlihy, Capt. Thomas E. Roderick, Capt. Joseph H. Rustemeyer, Capt. Theodore F. Wessels.

Company Officers Class: Capt. John T. Sunstone, 1st Lieut. James W. Darr, 1st Lieut. Allen F. Haynes, 1st Lieut. John E. McCammon, 1st Lieut. Clifford D. Overfelt, 2nd Lieut. William W. Cornog, Jr., 2nd Lieut. Wilborn B. Griffith, Jr., 2nd Lieut. John R. Jeter, 2nd Lieut. Edward C. Mack, 2nd Lieut. Ernest H. Wilson. —E. C. A.

And the "beamingest" one there was one, H. E. Dager, erstwhile Adjutant of the "Demonstrators." —J. C. K.

PROGRAMS OF THE WEEK

Ten concerts and recitals are scheduled for the coming week, including the opening concert of the Harmonica-Symphonic Orchestra next Thursday afternoon at Jones' Padlock under the direction of Roberto Dickson. Today's program follows:

"Cycle Dick," contralto, Steinway Stable 2:30 P. M., assisting artist, Mulerio, tenor.

"Who Rolls Them Caissons Along Anyway?"—Verdi-Winton.

Aria "The Barber of See Battery"—Rossini-Busch.

Old Gaelic Song "When Do We Eat?"—Mozart-Clark.

Fantasia "Unhitch, Unbridle, Unharness"—Tosti-Jones.

Etude in Q flat minor "Don't Hurt My Horses, I Raised Them From Babies"—"Bull" Ennis.

"Music hath its charms" agree all the esquine members of the 83rd Field Artillery, who were recently serenaded by the 29th Infantry Band by order—in fact, quite in order that they might appreciate real good music — if you know what I mean. —J. C. K.

A FAMILY FIGHT

The Regimental League wound up September 16th, when Companies "E" and "C" closed the book on baseball for the year 1928.

The season had been divided into halves. "E" Company took the first half, "C" the second. They met on the regimental diamond to decide the little world series—in two best out of three. The first game went to "E" Company, 5-2. The second to the same team, and the score was 12-2.

By taking the series this company will add the Colonel Johnson cup to their large case of trophies. In addition to the cup, each man on the team was presented with a small gold, baseball watch fob.

These games settled the championship but started an argument: an argument which threatened to end in the manner that Irishmen are reputed to wind up a wake. Company "E" claimed they let "C" Company win the second half so there would be some competition for the championship. Over this "C" Company waxed extremely wroth and said they would fight their first sergeant against "E" Companies' first sergeant.

Thereupon, Sergeant Larkins, with blood in his eyes, picked up a set of the company boxing gloves; put on his fighting face; snorted once or twice and pawed his way towards "C" Company's orderly room.

Sergeant Jennings looked over his glasses from his seat behind the big desk and eyed, with some concern, the boxing gloves as Sergeant Larkins stormed into the room. Fixing the First Sergeant of "C" Company with a glaring eye, the First Sergeant of "E" Company demanded to know what he wanted to fight with—to name the weapons.

Now Sergeant Jennings has been an expert rifleman for twenty-two years, and is not an extremely robust man. Carefully and cautiously he looked over the powerful frame of Sergeant Larkins and said he would chose as weapons, sawed-off shot guns at ten feet.

The quarrel just petered out.

Good Start

Last Saturday the 24th football team went up to Atlanta and played the strong Clark University team. At the end of the game football fans at the University looked with astonishment and chagrin at a scoreboard which read: Clark, 6; 24th Infantry, 7.

Saturday, October 6th, the 24th meets Atlanta University in Doughboy Stadium. This promises to be a football game. Experts have picked Atlanta U. to have a slight edge on Clark. The 24th has the following games scheduled:

October 6, Atlanta University played here.

October 12, Morehouse College played there.

October 27, Georgia Baptist Inst. played here.

November 3, Roger Williams U. played here.

November 11, Chattanooga C. A., played there.

November 17, Georgia Indus. College, played here.

We intend to show our strength Saturday, 2:30 P. M., Doughboy Stadium.

Pretty Close

At Camp Perry there is held a match, in the big shoot, which attracts a great deal of attention each year. The winning of it is one of the big honors of the meet. This is known as the Regimental Team Match.

The 24th entered a team in this match this year and finished fourth. But for an unusual event we would probably have had second. All the team fired new rifles, but Captain Wilson and Corporal Fletcher had not targetted theirs, and not knowing just where they shot, both made threes on their first shot at 600. the Score: Captains Tupper, 94; Paynter, 93; Steel, 93; Wilson, 94; Sergeant Bradford, 92; Corporal Fletcher, 92. A total of 557. The Marines grabbed the match with 570. 8th Infantry, 560; 10th Infantry, 558.

This is the first time the 24th has had a team in this match since 1908. At that time they did not place.

A Record

Orders were issued from Headquarters, the 24th Infantry, to the effect that there would be regimental fatigue, at 3:00 P. M., for all troops not on detail. And that companies would be reported to their battalion commanders at that time.

At exactly two minutes of three, Major W. R. Schmidt, commanding 1st Battalion, took his stand in front of No. 1 Mess Hall, ready for the entire battalion to report. His thoughts probably ran something like this: "I wonder why they turn out the entire regiment for this? Why, they won't have room to walk, we are only going to police up the area, and one company would be enough."

His thoughts were interrupted by the arrival of Company "C" under command of First Lieutenant J. D. O'Connell. The Lieutenant's saber flashed through the beautiful movements of the present, as he reported:

" Sir, 'C' Company present or accounted for."

For a long moment the major gazed, thinking a joke was being played on him. Then he asked:

"You reported the company 'present or accounted for' Lieutenant, how many are present?"

"One Corporal and three Privates, Sir."

"And—absent," asked the major weakly.

"Ninety-two, Sir."

Fooled

It was 11:30 A. M. and Regimental Headquarters was humming with the work that is incidental to closing at noon.

The assembly room was full of laughing, joking officers gathered there for officers' call. In the midst of this an ominous hush fell over the occupants of the building. The officers in the assembly room held their breath and waited: In his office the adjutant paused with his pen suspended over an unsigned paper; a crash came from the filing room where an orderly had dived under a table, and then inside all was still.

Outside the noise grew steady in volume, then suddenly ended in a rending crash nearby. Someone yelled "Crack-up," and all made a concerted dash for the doors—flushed with excitement.

A few moments later they filed—one and all—silently and sheepishly, back inside the building. Instead of finding the mangled remains of an aviatior, they found that Captain Hall had driven up in his Ford.

It was in the subway. It was during the rush hour. The little man suddenly thought of pickpockets. Thrusting his hand into his pocket he found another hand there ahead of him.

"Get out, you thief."

"Get out yourself!" said the other.

"Say," interupted the third. "If you two guys will get your hands out of my pocket I'll get off here."

THIRTY-SIX FAST ROUNDS FOR BENNING FIGHT FANS TUESDAY

Rough House Higgins	Vs.	Clawhammer Hamer	3 Rounds
Wotta Guy	Vs.	Straton Smith	3 Rounds
Grady Martin	Vs.	Wahoo Westbrook	4 Rounds
Seldom Heard	Vs.	Jack Cooper	4 Rounds
Danny Davis	Vs.	Homer Reid	6 Rounds
Billy Shell	Vs.	K. O. Mallard	6 Rounds
Willie Ptomey	Vs.	Styles Attaway	10 Rounds

As the News went to press the above array of fistic talent was on the slate to appear at the Post Arena next Tuesday night, October 9th.

The windup between Ptomey and Attaway was in the balance as the printer set the type for this week's issue. On Wednesday night, at Atlanta, Attaway met Ted Goodrich, of Miami, Florida, in the windup of six rounds. Styles lost a hairline decision to the Florida middleweight and in doing so slightly injured the shoulder that has kept him idle since the nearly part of July. At a late hour Thursday night the Athletic office was waiting for word from Eddie Hanlon, manager of Attaway, as to whether or not the Gainesville flash would carry out his contract to appear here.

Though it will be a keen disappointment if Styles is unable to show against Ptomey; nevertheless the boxing public can rest assured that a worthy substitute will be pilted against Willie.

Likely opponents for Ptomey, in the event that Attaway's injury prevents his coming, are Ted Goodrich, Ernie Saugues and Kid Williams, of Savannah, Ga. The fans who have purchased their tickets for the coming fight are reminded that if a substitution is necessary they can wager the outlay of a ticket that a worthy opponent will be secured for the Tanker.

Billy Shell branches forth on the coming bill as a semi-windup star. Shell will meet K. O. Mallard of Fort McPherson, the latter rated a hard, stiff puncher, who has been at the game for a long time. Mallard is a crowd pleaser of the first water as attested by the number of times he has shown before the Atlanta fans. It is believed that he will carry the fight to Shell from the opening gong. Danny Davis swings into action again, this time with Homer Reid, of Atlanta, a boy who is reputed to be going at a nice clip.

The balance of the card looks as if it will furnish plenty of action.

BENNING SCRAPPERS WIN AND DRAW

As the News went to press a dispatch from Atlanta stated that "Blondy" Parker, of the I. S. D., leading lightweight among the recently developed boxers, won a six round decision over Kid Hayden in one of the preliminary bouts preceding the main go between Styles Attaway and Ted Goodrich in which the Gainesville flash lost to Goodrich, due to an injury to his left shoulder. The extent of the damage done to it has as yet been undetermined. Pinky Philips, another of the Greencords on the card, went six rounds to a draw with Billy Maddox, also of Atlanta.

The popularity of Benning boys on Atlanta cards is the highest and have always pleased fans. As an attribute of this letters are constantly piling in with each mail requesting the services of one or more of her fighters to appear on some card that is to be presented in the near future.

51 CANDIDATES FIGHTING FOR REGULAR BERTH ON 1st BN. FOOTBALL SQUAD

When Captain Reed, head coach of the Musketeers of the 1st Bn., 29th Infantry, assembled the candidates for this year's squad for their first practice Monday, Oct. 1st, he found 51 rough and ready doughboys out for the team.

Of last season's squad, only five men are here this season. They are McFadden, Romploski, Loper, Reeves and Bowen. Although losing most of last season's team, the loss is more than accounted for by the addition of two-score husky youngsters that appear to know their football.

Coach Reed has been putting the men through light work-outs mixed with quite a bit of skull practice during the first week, but beginning Monday, the real work will begin and then the ax will soon begin to fall as the chaff is blown from the wheat.

Captain Reed will be assisted in building the team by Captain Bassett, who will coach the line, and Lieut. Browning, backfield coach.

If the plans that are now underway go through, several star football players who are members of the special units of the 29th Infantry will be allowed to play with the Musketeers and Kelleys. This would strengthen both teams and would also give these men a chance to play the game, which they are unable to do at the present time, owing to the fact that the special units of the 29th Infantry has no football team.

7TH ENGINEERS ENTERTAIN FOR BALL TEAM

In celebration of it's baseball team's triumphant season just closed by winning the garrison trophy awarded the team winning the Class "A" league championship, the 7th Engineers last Friday night in the garrison gymnasium gave, to show their appreciation of the team's work on the diamond a dinner and dance.

The success of the Engineers ball team this year was beyond that of any team to have won the championship since the league was organized three years ago. Previous to this year it had always been necessary to play an extra series to determine the winner as the same team never won both halves of the season.

After having been served with dinner, which was attended by Col. Daniel G. Berry, Commanding Officer of the Special Units, of which organization the Engineers are a member, Major and Mrs. Hoge, Capt. and Mrs. William F. Heavey, Lt. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Fowlkes, Capt. R. C. Sherman, Adjutant of the Special Units, Lt. Dudley, a graduate of West Point's class of '26 and who had just joined the organization; Sgt. and Mrs. Greenfield and daughter Fanny, Sgt. and Mrs. Mallory and daughter Betty, Cpl. Phillips and wife and members of the organization, the company was made a short address by their company commander, Capt. Heavey. Capt. Heavey congratulated the team and company for the spirit they had shown during the past baseball season and their attitude toward their duty. Following his address each member of the team was presented with a small baseball watch charm as an appreciation of the work she had done.

Following the presentation of the gifts to each member of the team, Col. Berry addressed those assembled. During the course of the Colonel's address he praised the men not only on the team but the company as a whole on their success and co-operation. Colonel Berry urged that each man not only those who are stars in athletics but that every man try to excel all others; that praise was due to the man or men who did their task, though they might be small, with a thoroughness and pride in seeing that they were done right; that it should be the aim of each and every man because of his accomplishments either great or small to be recognized as a leader.

Two fast three-round boxing bouts between the Infantry School class pleased the large audience. One of the feature attractions of the program was a Charleston exhibition by little Miss Fanny Philips.

With the finish of the highly pleasing program, the 24th Infantry orchestra, who were present for the occasion, struck up one of the latest dance numbers and in a few moments the many happy and carefree couples were tripping the light fantastic to the accompaniment of the music and were swirling about over the spacious floor of the big gymnasium.

Voice over the phone: Is this the lady who washes?

Society Snob: Indeed, I should say not.

Same Voice: Why you dirty thing.

Her: Why don't you play football?

He: I would, only I'm left-handed.

BENNING OFFICERS PERMITTED TO ACCEPT FOREIGN MEDALS

By authority of a bill recently passed by Congress and signed by the President May 26th, the State Department is now distributing some two hundred and sixty decorations, orders and medals conferred upon 216 officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps by foreign governments. These have been in the custody of the State Department, some as long as sixteen years, because, under the Constitution, those to whom they were tendered could not accept them without authority from Congress. Some officers are receiving as many as four decorations, among whom is General Pershing. There are 126 decorations going to 101 officers of the Army. These decorations are conferred for various reasons, some for distinguished service, others because the recipients were members of American official delegations to centennial or other foreign celebrations. Among the recipients who have recently been or who are now on duty at Fort Benning, and the decorations conferred are:

Captain Benjamin F. Caffey, Infantry (Instructor in 2nd Section): Medal of Brazil Centennial Exposition from Brazil.

Major Edgar E. Hume, Medical Corps (Post Hospital): Order of Liberator from Venezuela; Order of Condor of the Andes from Bolivia; Order of White Lion from Czecho-Slovakia.

Captain William Jenna, formerly of the 24th Infantry: Officers Cross of St. Slava from Yugoslavia.

Colonel Wait Johnson, formerly Commanding officer of 24th Infantry and Post Athletic officer: Order of White Eagle from Yuguslavia.

Lieut. Charles McK. Robinson, Air Corps (Student): Order of Liberator from Venezuela; Order of Sun from Peru.

Major Charles A. Willoughly, Infantry (Student): Order of Liberator from Venezuela; Decoration of Abdon Calderon from Ecuador; Decoration Al Merito from Ecuador.

ONE OF ORIGINAL BENNING OFFICERS STILL AT POST

When the first detachment arrived at Columbus for the opening of Camp Benning ten years ago, there were three officers present with it. One of these was a Medical Officer and the other two were—in the language of one of them—"memorandum receipt officers." Of the three only one is still in the military service, and that one is now Master Sergeant Stewart of the Infantry School detachment, on duty with the Academic Department library. Sergeant Stewart was a first lieutenant at the time the detachment reached Columbus. Colonel Henry E. Eames, first commandant of the school, and whose death occurred last year, had already reached Columbus and was awaiting the detachment.

"The only thing that looked anything like a camp," reminisced Sergeant Stewart, "was a little work that had been done on the hospital building. As for the rest—we had to start from 'taw'."

REFRESHER COURSE OPENED LAST WEDNESDAY

Wednesday morning, Oct. 10, promptly at 8:00 o'clock, members of the Refresher class attending the Infantry School, assembled at Assembly Hall No. 5, where an hour's conference with Colonel George C. Marshall was held, prior to the opening of the class of 1928. The class will be held during the period of Oct. 10 to Nov. 20, 1928.

The officers attending the class this year consist of three Brigadier Generals, eight Colonels and two Lieut. Colonels. The names of the officers attending this class follows:

Brig. General Lytle Brown.
Brig. General Hamilton S. Hawkins.
Brig. General Charles E. Kilbourne.
Lt. Col. Robert J. Binford, 2nd Inf.
Colonel Frederick R. de Funiak, Inf.
Colonel William B. Graham, 3rd Inf.
Colonel Austin A. Parker, 23rd Inf.
Colonel Joseph K. Partello, 4th Inf.
Lt. Col. Homer N. Preston, 12th Inf.
Colonel Alfred T. Smith, 34th Inf.
Colonel George E. Stewart, 28th Inf.
Colonel James D. Taylor, 9th Inf.
Colonel Ezekiel J. Williams, 8th Inf.

ARMY EXHIBIT ATTRACTS WIDE ATTENTION AT FAIR

Although there is no blaring band or ballahoo artist out front to tell of the wonders being shown, all day long since the opening of the Chattahoochee Valley Exporition, the Army display on exhibition at the Exposition, has been one of the feature attractions for the thousands of visitors.

Another feature of the army exhibits is the fact that the questions of the visitors concerning the different exhibits are correctly and politely answered by either the officers or enlisted men who represent the Infantry School and have charge of the Army Exhibit.

One of the most interesting features of the exhibit is the three Tanks furnished by the Fifteenth Tank Bn., two of the tanks are the small British Whippet tanks better known as the baby tank, towering above the small tanks is a big British Mark 8, almost as large as a passenger coach. On display in front of the tanks are the equipment, tools and guns that are carried in battle. Visitors are carried through the tanks and every part thoroughly explained to the satisfaction of the most inquisitive.

A light artillery repair truck furnished by the 17th Ordnance Det., gives one the idea of a thoroughly equipped machine shop on wheels. There is a Field Dressing station display by the Medicos, with a wheel litter and all first aid equipment.

The Chemical Warfare Service display showing aeroplane bombs, a Levin's 8-inch Projector, Stokes Mortar and several modern gas masks is the center of attraction. The 7th Engineers show a large mounted 25 K W lighting set for field service. Small models of bridges and roads on display by the Gin-Ears attract much attention. A complete squad of machine gunners from Co. "H", 29th Inf., with three guns and several belts of service ammunition form an interesting part of the display. The Demonstration Regiment is also represented by an exhibit from the Howitzer Company and

BENNING THEATRES ADVANCE ANOTHER STEP

The theaters at Fort Benning have been noted for their exceptionally fine motion pictures, and the manner in which these shows have been put on for the public. It is most generally known that every fine feature picture produced is played in our theaters.

In addition to studying the type of feature picture the theater-going public of Fort Benning desires, an exhaustive study of short subject entertainment has been made. While some of the slapstick comedies will continue to be shown, certain nights have been set aside for the addition of highly interesting one or two reel pictures; most of these are instructive as well as thoroughly entertaining—they consist of Pathe Reviews, which are pictures generally taken in some part of the world we know little about; Grantland Rice Sportlights, made up of different phases of clean sport showing the technique of games and movement, and illustrated by people famous in the sport world, both in normal and slow camera motion; historic technicolor showing with the aid of Edison and Eastman's latest camera inventions, various historic events of interest, and Topics of the Day, which are a resume of wit and humor taken from various publications.

Learning that these subjects could be secured, the October bookings were changed to include them as follows: Sunday, October 10, "Pathe Review" No. 18; Friday, October 12, "Fair Affair"—

GOODRICH-PTOMEY FIGHT FAST DRAW DECISION

Preliminary Bouts Fast and Interesting

(By Al Durden)

Just when fight critics and sport scribes of the Sunny Southland had unanimously agreed that the much mooted and argued middleweight championship of the South schould be awarded to Ted Goodrich after his decisive victory over Styles Attaway, along comes Weary Willie Ptomey, pride of the service middleweigths, and sends the old dope bucket for a couple of flips by rocking Goodrich from pillar to post in a slashing ten round fight at Fort Benning last Tuesday night. A draw decision at the end of the fight appeared to be unpopular with the fans who cheered the Tank Tornado to the high heavens as he left the ring.

Though disagreeing with the final verdict, every fan of the twenty-three hundred present proclaim the fight program of last Tuesday night one of the best ever witnessed here with the main go featuring the evening's attraction.

Goodrich started things off with a bang in the opening round. With both boys sparring for an opening Goodrich whipped a left to Willie's chin that rang the bell, Willie coming up at the count of two. Apparently none the worse for wear, Ptomey bored in only to be met by a one two to the head that made the Tanker cover up. The first round looked like a Goodrich evening. Ptomey came back to hold the visitor to even terms in the second round, both boys landing heavily to the body. The third and fourth were Goodrich's rounds by a shade. In the fifth round Goodrich waded in to close quarters with short body jolts to Willie's midriff, Goodrich smashed a hard right to Willie's jaw but the Tanker seemed not to notice it. Near the end of the fifth Willie suddenly switched his attack, he had been sticking a left jab in Ted's face with unerring precision, feinting with his left he swung a terrific right into Goodrich's chow-hall that hurt, as the round ended.

In the sixth round Ptomey took the wind out of Goodrich's sails with a driving attack that kept the visitor backing up under the Tankers jabs and hooks, an overhand right to the head sent Goodrich staggering into the ropes, following up Ptomey smashed rights and lefts to the body as Ted hung on the ropes, the referee interferred when Goodrich seemed about to topple out of the ring, punch drunk and groggy Goodrich fell into a clinch, the bell ending the round. In the seventh Ptomey continued to drive his man about the ring finally cornering him on the ropes, Willie hooked both hands to the body, Goodrich straightened the over-anxious Tanker up with a smashing uppercut that came from the floor.

Goodrich rushed from his corner in the eighth but Willie outfigured him and beat him to the punch as he side stepped his rush. Although landing terrific lefts and rights to Goodrich's jaw, the Atlanta battler managed ot stay on his feet and weather the storm. Although taking a decisive beating in the final rounds Goodrich won the admiration of the fans by his gameness and willingness to mix it until the final bell. After the fight it was found that Goodrich broke his right hand in the eighth round.

DOOMED

The Personnel Office is situated across Wold Avenue from Regimental Headquarters. Many times during the course of his day's work Lt. Edward P. Earle finds it highly profitable, and at times entertaining, to make the journey from the personnel building, hold high council with the Regimental Adjutant, then back again, to his work behind the personnel desk.

Observing that Lt. Earle seemed to be at all times either on his way, or coming from, Regimental Headquarters, we became a little curious, and did some calculating. The results of this calculation were about as we expected.

The sameness, and clocklike precision, of these trips across the street were remarkable. With his head bowed in deep thought the Lt. plodded his unheeding way back and forth five times, while we gazed with admiration upon this perfect example of attention to duty and rapt concentration. A concentration so intense that he was totally oblivious to the warning horns of passing automobiles.

Now these autos are passing along this street at the rate of about one each five minutes. It takes the Lieutenant pretty close to a half minute to make the journey one way. His chances are, therefore, one in ten that he would be hit. We must, though, allow to the drivers of the cars some intelligence, and a certain amount of control over their machines. Taking all these into consideration, we would estimate that they would be able to miss him ninety-nine times out of a hundred. We will further say, that nine times out of ten, he will either see the car at the last moment, or a friend will drag him to safety.

This, at the lowest possible estimate, reduces his chances to one in a thousand. This thousandth time will surely get him.

Twenty times per day, twenty-five days of the month, he makes this trip. Beginning on the 27th of August, this year, he has crossed and returned five hundred and forty times. This being the 10th, in just twenty-three more days he will arrive at the fateful one thousand. So—counting out three Sundays—we confidently predict, that on the morning of the 5th of November, 1928, at exactly 9:40, a Ford sedan, model 1926, traveling south on Wold Ave., will come in contact with the anatomy of Lieutenant Edward P. Earle, as he is about to make the finish of his nine-hundred and ninety-ninth journey to Regimental Headquarters of the 24th Infantry.

US AND CAESER

One time while marching up through Gaul, Caesar came upon, and laid siege, to a small, well fortified, walled city. Having urgent business further on, he left a few of his very able generals in command of the forces investing the city, and hurried away.

Several months later, his business in the north of Gaul having been terminated to his satisfaction, and to the detriment of about three hundred thousand Germans, he returned that way and was deeply hurt when he discovered that during his absence the officers in charge had been unable to take the citadel.

With his usual ingenuity, Caesar solved the problem without bloodshed. First, ascertaining that the inhabitants obtianed their water supply from a spring that flowed underground into the city from a hill nearby, he drove a tunnel into the hill, diverted the water, and the stronghold fell within a week.

Calling his higher officers into conclave he told them a few things; told them in language that even at that time was not recordable, but the substance of it was as follows: "I have observed, By Jacks, that when I want anything important done, to do it myself."

For ever-so-long, we begged for good barracks.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Captain Earl F. Paynter came back from Camp Perry. It was not our intention to say anything about this, but that officer called us on what he took to be an oversight.

We knew he was back. We further knew that he had a few days leave before reporting. He had to sign in at Post Headquarters, so they must have found it out there. His being back doesn't impose any extra strain upon the garrison. We don't believe that he is a man who requires watching. Now had he not reported in at the expiration of the fifteen-day leave which he had, we would have taken a certain amount of interest. But to come home when his leave was up, like hundreds of other officers have done before him, and jump on us for not norating the event to the garrison, is not right. Had he come back of his own free will and accord, he might have ground upon which to crow. But this is not so. We know that he had to come back.

As President Lincoln once said about the rate hole, "Believe it will bear looking into."

the famous nickleplated escort wagon and harness from the Service Company.

The exhibit of most interest to the wearers of the O. D., on duty at the Exposition, is the complete messhall operated and displayed three times each day to the comfort and pleasure of all concerned by the Bakers and Cooks School.

Besides attending to the wants and comforts of the appetites of three officers and thirty-eight enlisted men, sixty boys, members of the Corn Club, are also eating with the Cooks and Bakers kitchen during the Exposition.

Major Laurence W. Young has charge of the Infantry School Exhibit, he is assisted by Captain Carl M. Ulsaker as Adjutant and Lieut. Bob Childs as Supply Officer.

BENNING THEATRES ADVANCE ANOTHER STEP

Sportlight; Sunday, October 14, "Crowned Heads"—Sportlight; Friday, October 19, "Fair Catch"—Football; Sunday, October 21, "The Flag"—Historic Technicolor; Thursday, October 25, "Pathe Review" No. 15; Sunday, October 28, "Dog Days"—U. F. A. Oddities; Wednesday, October 31, "Defensive Line"—football, and Thursday, November 1, Topics of the Day.

The above short subjects will be shown in addition to the program listed on the movie calendar for the month of October, with the exception of Sundays—on Sundays the subjects above noted will take the place of Fables. Fables Cartoons have been switched to Friday for the purpose of amusement for the school children.

In the past only the highest of praise has been due the theater personnel of this Post for the entertainment they have afforded us. The above arrangement offers a most pleasant surprise for the Benningites. While heretofore we frequently missed a trip to town because the theaters were showing a feature picture which we just had to see, we now learn that in the future we are going to be held here at Fort Benning on account of short subject programs which we can't afford to miss.

"What is this 'ice jam' they talk about?"

"Oh, that's what the Eskimos eat on their bread."

The preliminary bouts before the main go were fast and interesting with an occasional knock-out adding the proper flavor to the fistic menu being served. In the opening bout Doughboy Wilson took a neat decision over Young Taylor of the Medicos. Stratton Smith, Tanker and Watta Guv of the Doughboys fought three slashing rounds to a draw. The first knockout of the evening came in the next bout between Kid Westbrooks of the 29th Inf. and Grady Martin of Atlanta, both boys were about even until Westbrooks turned his head to spit, Grady landing a haymaker to the button. Seldom Herd of the 24th Inf. continued to disappoint Eddie Hanlon of Atlanta when he stopped Cooper in the third round. This is the third colored heavy weight Hanlon has brought down to meet Herd and it is the third one to take the long count. The Danny Davis of old returned to the favor and hearts of the Benning fight fans when he flashed his oldtime form to win a clean cut victory over Reid of Atlanta in an exciting six rounder. Billy Shell, southpaw favorite of Columbus and Fort Benning took an easy decision over K. O. Mallard of Fort McPherson in the six-round semi-final. Although Mallard did not impress the fans with his ability to give, he gave them a demonstration in taking when he deliberately dropped his guard in the fourth and allowed Billy to hook lefts and rights to the button without turning a hair.

SUNDAY, OCT. 14

"THE RACKET," starring Thomas Meighan in a filmization of the stage success by the same name. It is a story of a big city's bootleg gangs, police, newspapermen, night clubs, and politics. This picture has power, much plot interest and a bit of romance. Though quite colorful, it's theme possesses reality and truth which has not been sugar-coated.

"Coast to Coast." Fables.

MONDAY, OCT. 15

"MIDNIGHT MADNESS," starring Jacqueline Logan with Clive Brook in a teeming story of the African jungle. The story starts in a business office in a world metropolis and moves swiftly into the deep jungles of darkest Africa. The plot centers around a man's fight against great odds to win his wife's love. She hated her husband, yet, when a lion threatened to crush out his life, she saved him by a timely shot. You'll not go to sleep during this picture.

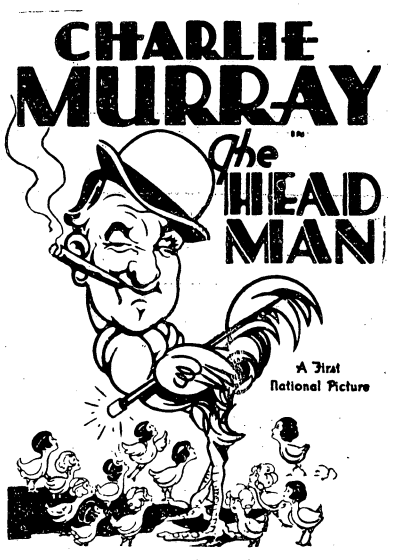
TUESDAY, OCT. 16

"WHEN THE LAW RIDES," starring Tom Tyler with Frankie Darro in an action filled Western. Tyler plays the part of a young government marshall who is sent into a lawless town to clean it up. In traveling through the desert he comes upon an outlaw who has perished from poisoned water—he enters the town disguised as the outlaw and reports to the outlaw chief who persuades him to marquerade as the marshal. In this dual disguise he outwits the bandits and wins the hand of a parson's daughter.

Galloping Ghosts." Hal Roach.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 17

"THE HEAD MAN," starring Charlie Murray in one grand succession of laugh gags. It is the comical story of a big man in a little town and his struggle to make the townfolks realize that he was



"the big man"; he ran for mayor, also ran away from the cops. His platform was "up with joy, down with gloom and freedom of the knees and laugh wrinkles"—does he get elected? You'll laugh yourself weak trying to find out.

THURSDAY, OCT. 18

"NONE BUT THE BRAVE," a joyous, sparkling comedy with many beautiful scenes in color, starring Sally Phipps with Charles Morton. It is the romance of a college hero who finds that his athletic trophies are of no earthly use in the business world. As an expert swimmer he qualifies as a life guard and has all the girls on the beach drowning for him. There are heart throbs, suspense, thrills, laughter and a bevy of bathing beauties filmed in Technicolor.

Captain Kids Kittens." Animal.

FRIDAY, OCT. 19

"THE DESERT BRIDE," starring Betty Compson in a drama set against a background of Arabia with its Bazaars, palaces and native intrigue. It was produced on a lavish scale—the highlights consist of a terrible sandstorm on the desert, a military ball, the auctioning of the heroine to the natives, and the grand, spectacular climax, in which French troops storm the palace and rescue the hero and heroine.

"Pathe News No. 83."

"Football." Slow motion.

DRAMATIC CLUB ANNOUNCES PRE-XMAS PROGRAM

A partial program for the work of the Dramatic Club for the school year now beginning was announced following the initial meeting of the club, recently held.

Seven evenings of entertaiment will be offered during the year, three of which will be prior to the Christmas holidays, and four between that time and the end of the school year. Dates for the first three have been announced as follows: Octobr 26, November 23 and December 21.

On each of those nights, three one-act plays will be presented. A similar program—three one-act plays—is scheduled for each of the first three after-Christmas meetings of the club, while the fourth and final meeting will be marked by the presentation of a three-act play.

Work of preparing for the presentation of the first set of one act plays on the evening of October 26 already has been started under the able direction of Mrs. Wray B. Avera, Capt. A. B. Helsley and Capt. E. M. S. Steward.

Membership in the Dramatic Club has ceased to be a gamble at Fort Benning, for this club has proven in the past that it is ably and conscientiously managed, and its members have received far more than their "money's worth."

Application blanks recently have been distributed to all officers of the post for the purpose of enrollment, and to determine those who are interested in actively participating in the plays. These blanks should be filled out and returned as soon as possible to Capt. C. L. Bolte, secretary and treasurer of the club.

The club is particularly anxious this year to obtain information regarding those who are interested in taking part in and directing the plays. Those who are interested but who have had no experience or feel that they have not had enough experience are urged to put in for active membership. All of those participating are amateurs and the whole spirit of the club is to be mutually helpful.

The dues in the club are $1.50 per year for associate members and $1.00 per year for active members. These rates apply to each adult membership; that is, if Captain A wishes to be an inactive member his dues will be $1.50, while if his wife wishes to be an active member, her dues will be $1.00. Membership in the club is confined to the families of officers of the Army and Marine Corps, members of the Army Nurse Corps, and the family of the Field Director of the American Red Cross on duty at Fort Benning. If for any reason anyone entitled to join fails to receive his application blank, he may communicate directly with Captain Bolte, and is requested to do so.

The first program on Oct. 26 is designed as a free show to all those entitled to belong to the club. It is the Dramatic Club's annual and only advertisement. Thereafter plays will be given for members and their guests only except that a nominal charge will be made for admission to the closing show of the year (the three-act show) regardless of whether the patron is a member of the club.

"What's the crowd so excited about?"
"A horse dropped dead. He saw another horse and was scared to death."

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Benjamin G. Ferris, vice president of the Woman's Club and chairman of the Executive Board, called a meeting of the Executive Board to perfect plans for a tea, which will be given by the Woman's Club on Monday, October 22, at the Polo Club from 4 to 6, and to discuss general policies for the new club year. After the business Mrs. Ferris very graciously served tea. Those present were Mrs. Edgar S. Miller, President of the Woman's Club; Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Frank Green, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Everett D. Barlow, Treasurer; Mrs. Daniel H. Torrey, Mrs. Henry A. Bootz, Mrs. Harry A. Wells, Mrs. Albert B. Helsley, Mrs. W. H. Vinson and Mrs. E. S. Barker, who are responsible for certain committees in the club.

On Friday afternoon at the Polo Club at 3:30 Mrs. Harris Pendleton called together the ladies of the 29th Infantry to make plans for the Regimental Bridge Club. It was decided that the club would in the main follow policies hitherto satisfactorily worked out. The club will meet on the first and third Tuesdays of each month at the Regimental Club Rooms in Block 21 with probably three ladies as hostesses for each meeting. Mrs. Pendleton was elected President, Mrs. R. A. Case, Secretary, and Mrs. J. D. Patch, Treasurer. After the business, Mrs. Pendleton entertained at a charming tea. The tea table was lovely with its filet cloth, its antique silver candelabra holding four French candles, its turn crystal vases with colorful zennias, and its elegant tea services. Mrs. Walter L. Reed and Mrs. Lawrence W. Young poured and Misses Landon and Daisy Reed, Misses Helen and Louise Young served.

The club will have its first regular meeting on next Tuesday at 2:30 with Mrs. Case, Mrs. Cochran and Mrs. Vinson as hostesses. All ladies of the regiment are cordially invited to belong to this club and if you so desire you can join as a tea guest in case you prefer not to play. Please notify Mrs. Case, Phone 365, if you can not come.

The Chapel Guild organized on Monday morning, elected officers, and made plans for the year. Mrs. Jesse A. Ladd was elected President, Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman and Mrs. Clyde Grady, vice presidents; Mrs. O. W. Hoop, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Steel, Treasurer. The Chapel Guild is perhaps the most worthy organization on the post. Its purpose is largely charity. It feeds the hungry, clothes the needy and goes quietly about doing great good. It has bought milk for many babies where parents were unable to buy sufficient for the child's needs. It has furnished the first clothes that many new babies have worn and done more good than the Post knows of.

INFANTRY SCHOOL TO HAVE SIX NEW TENNIS COURTS

Under the supervision of Major John F. Landis, the addition of six new clay tennis courts and a complete remodeling of the four original courts is being rapidly carried forward and in a very short time the Fort Benning Tennis Courts will rival the leading courts in the South.

A large share of the credit for the enlargement and improvement being carried on, is due the different organizations who have made the work possible by furnishing men and implements. The organization taking part in this work include the 29th Infantry, 83rd Field Artillery, 15th Tanks and Company "A" of the 7th Engineers.

Owing to the fact that during the past season that inclement weather spoiled tennis games on fourteen Saturdays and Sundays, plans are now underway for the erection of two concrete courts that are available at all times, these courts will probably be constructed after the completion of the present improvements.

Assisting Major Landis in the program being carried out, is Sgt. Jimmie Donovan of the I. S. D. Sgt. Donovan has been in charge of the courts of the garrison for the past three years and he is an expert in this line of work, this fact being fully demonstrated by the excellent condition the courts have been kept in while under his care.

To further encourage tennis at the Infantry School, the services of Mr. Albert Kennedy, tennis professional, have been acquired. Mr. Kennedy is a member of the Cincinnati Tennis Club and is one of the country's leading professional players. He will give tennis lessons and instruct a class in the fine points of the game while at the Infantry School.

BENNING TENNIS PRO. ONCE TILDEN'S TEAM CAPTAIN

Nearly any town can boast of a tennis player who has played William T. Tilden, 2d. Few, however, can point with pride to possession of one who captained a tennis team of which Tilden was a member, for almost since the memory of man runneth not, Tildren has been the "big cheese" in any tennis event with which he was connected.

The more unusual, therefore, the boast (or rather the modest admission) of Albert Kennedy, newly arrived tennis pro of the Fort Benning Officers' Club, that he captained a tennis team of the University of Pennsylvania, of which Tilden was a member. That, of course, was in the long long ago, before Tilden had perfected his backhand and developed his temperament, but there the facts stand.

Kennedy has no mean record in tournament play himself. He started out by winning the junior championship of Philadelphia, made a tour of Europe during which he captured titles in France and Switzerland, was singles champion of Maines and runner-up of Rhode Island, and shared the doubles titles of Maryland and Washington, D. C.

He is professional of the Cincinnati Tennis Club, and heretofore during the winter has been professional at the Coral Gables Country Club, in Florida.

TENNIS CLUB "LADDER" FORMED

Tennis activities are getting a running start at Fort Benning under the leadership of the newly employed tennis professional, Mr. Albert E. Kennedy.

Two new courts are nearing completion, and work is to be started at once on six more clay courts. When these are completed it is hoped that two concrete courts will be constructed.

As a first step in inspiring the interest of ladies of the post in tennis, Mr. Kennedy arranged their names, more or less arbitrarily, on a club "ladder," theoretically indicating their relative ability. Anyone who feels that she is able to defeat either of the next two listed above her, may challenge either of them for her place, and, if she wins, take it. Those listed on the club ladder at present are: Mrs. Wessels, Miss Brandt, Miss Franklin, Mrs. Knight, Miss Torrey, Mrs. Lange, Miss Wells, Mrs. Sherburne, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Bootz and Mrs. Torrey. In addition, Mrs. Earle, Mrs. Norris and Mrs. Rader are expected to enter the competition and fight their way to their pr per places.

Some of the children of the post also are becoming interested in the game and of these Ben Ferris and Hugh Lange are displaying real aptitude, according to Mr. Kennedy.

NOTES FROM SPECIAL UNITS

DEPOT DESPATCHES
(72nd Ordnance Co.)

Sergeant Cerutti and wife spent the week end in Richland, Georgia, and report a pleasant trip, due to the fact that they did not have any punctures. Atta boy Frank! You don't need a spare tire anyway, for the old Chevy will run next a Lizzie every time, to say nothing about the model A.

Another good man requested permission to visit his wife in Phenix City during the week end, and he is very cheerful on a blue Monday A. M. What is it Pvt. 1st Cl. Powell? Oh, nothing except the old man is going to lift the restriction and then I can go home every Sunday.

The Company's beloved 1st Sergeant received notice Saturday that he was a Technical Sergeant now and the men are all smiling this morning. Perhaps they think that they will get a new top kick, but alas, the new Technical Sergeant is going to be First Sergeant, thereby saving a lot of bucking, for everyone has the idea that a First Sergeant's life is free from worry.

FINANCIAL DIGEST
(Finance Detachment)

Sgt. Scovel informs the members of the Detachment that dog tags and barracks bags are necessary for full field inspections. Anyhow he maintains that they were necessary for use in China on all full fields. Maybe the government report on the output of laundry for the coming year had something to do with this. Still we wonder if the dear Sergeant is trying to kid us?

Pvt. Vaughn bought himself a pair of athletic shoes in which to take his daily dozen. Now he is trying to return his shoes and collect his $2.50 as the Post Gym is closed. We have been wondering why he put on his gym shoes and hit his bunk each afternoon until chow time. He enlightens us on the subject by stating that he has sweet dreams of beating all the athletic events in the coming track meet.

Corp. Moye is helping Waldo Vaughn sell soft drinks at the Garrison Theater for a day or two. He is a good salesman so he says and we wonder if he can convince the Manager of this fact. One of the duties of a good salesman would be to chill the drinks before selling them. Let's have the drinks cold.

Pvt. Andrews is still wondering what it is all about. He received his first lesson from the Finance School and now he is looking for the teacher in the next mail. Study your pamphlet Andrews.

PONTONIER NOTES
(Co. "A," 7th Engineers)

We have our usual interesting exhibit at the Chattahoochee Valley Fair. The men detailed there consist of Sgts. Dailey and Greenfield, Corporal DeCroux and Pvt. 1cl. Dickerson.

Our Mess Sergeant, Sergeant Rolland, is sure feeding a bunch of satisfied customers. The variety of our Mess challenges any other in the Army.

Abie Grove and Ikie Briner are now on thirty day furloughs (York and Duncannon papers please copy).

The 'scribe' has just returned from a five-day visit to Atlanta. Ran over "Tif" and Van Smith in Keith's Georgian. Tif has re-enlisted for the 8th Brigade at McPherson.

Benning soldiers will be glad to know that Wade and Chapman are leading the way at the West Point Preparatory School at Fort Mac.

Poitners on Atlanta: Always good shows at the Capital and the Georgian. Falks Waffle Shop on Peachtree just past Five Points is a good place to eat. A Benning soldier is always welcome at Fort McPherson, and for anything else you'll have to look for yourself as I did.

THE WEARIN' OF THE GREEN
(Infantry School Detachment)

Corporal Mignolia of the Post Exchange Shoe Shop has gone to Brooklyn for a vacation and the other two Ramons are in charge. Pop translates your conversation for Rocco but its a lot safer to learn Italian before calling.

Newest thing in military drill orders, "Prepare for Inspection, at ease!"

Whitey Parker and Pinkey Phillips went to Atlanta last week on a boxing trip and returned with a K. O. and a draw respectively. Good work!

Knox says that if the Mess Sergeant can afford a new Dodge he can afford a bicycle. There is a moral in that somewhere although we can't locate it exactly.

Did you hear about Fritz Holman losing his awnings on the roadside the other night? Well, he did.

Colonel D. G. Berry, Commanding Officer of the Special Units, inspected the entire Area not long ago and found everything in A-1 condition.

Pvt. 1cl. John E. Middleton has returned from a furlough spent in the middle West. We nominate him for the Hall of Fame due to the fact that he didn't tell us about the feelings of the "dear public" on the coming election.

Those that were present said that the duet between Sgt. Logan Duff and Franklin D. Roosevelt was a fine affair.

Sgt. Patrick is back from furlough and is again on duty at the Personnel Office.

DETACHMENT 5TH SIGNAL SERVICE COMPANY

Private Elias F. Nelson, Signal Corps, has been very busy since the World Series handling the special Western Union press wire in connection with the Athletic Association Play Board at Gowdy Field.

Our Athletic representative, Private Emil Z. Zambotti, Signal Corps, has missed several football drills. What's the trouble "Betty," too much Pro Patria Vigilans?

The Signal Corps maintenance crews in charge of Sergeant Ben Klimp, Signal Corps, and working jointly with the Quartermaster Utilities office have just finished the replacing of poles on the pole line along the 1st Division Road from Lumpkin Ave. to Yeager Ave.

The Detachment 5th Signal Service Company lost one of its radio specialists, Private Arthur W. Chambers who was transferred to Camp McClellan, Ala. Private Chambers before transferring to the Signal Corps was a member of Headquarters Company, 1st Bn. 29th Infantry.

Private W. I. Tillman, Signal Corps, a new member of this detachment, joined on October 6, 1928. We hope you will enjoy your tour of duty.

Having a sort of guess-as-guess-can penmanship we warned the Infantry News that our notes of last week might require a translator. The editor, apparently to spare our feelings, did a little free translating of his own, with the result that Major Ferris rose from supervisor to superior. There is no telling he may be an excellency in this edition. And our intimate associate, the rifle, spoken of as a piece, became a price. Judging from the physical appearance of some of the officers on the target range, "What Price Glory" might not be such a bad name for our favorite weapon.

We have shot now in several ranges and most of our faces. I have one black eye and two cut lips.

The other day Major Stayer, our medical officer, came up to me and said, "stick out your tongue." I suppose he wanted to see whether the butt of the piece had penetrated that far yet.

One of the associated courses now taken in conjunction with rifle marksmanship, is the free Turkish bath on the target range, from eight until four. The equipment for this course is one rifle with dislocating strap attached, one uniform complete, one pair of overgrown unionalls and a well padded shooting coat. Encased in these you take up the sitting, kneeling or prone positions under Georgia's very successful sun. Whatever may be said in the future, of our shooting, our figures will never be the same.

It is remarkable, speaking solely from observation during this course, how many student officers appear to have had recent service in Germany.

During one of the hands mid-day meal where some eat sandwiches and some compare them and some call out for little Phoebe, a flock of fours, baby's shoes and other military terms, that famous shot (rifle), Lieut. Caswell, saw an instructor headed his way. Caswell possessed a nice red apple and with an outburst of spontaneous generosity, calculated to the last quarter point, he said to the instructor "won't you have this apple?" Much to my surprise the instructor took it for I believe there is something in the Constitution about not receiving presents or at least giving them back. At any rate that the instructor might have no undue difficulty in reading the name of the donor, Caswell slipped his hand quietly along his unionalls in order to raise his name plate. Suddenly he paled. "My lord," he cried, "I haven't got my name plate on!"

In behalf of Lieut. Caswell I hope that Capt. Crim reads this number of the Infantry News, that is, I do, if the apple was any good.

Now that Corporal Snooks, our company clerk, has gone on detached service at Fort Manmouth, N. J., I have been requested to keep up the work that he left.

The Company has not been represented in the News for some time due to the fact that Cpl. Snooks left us.

We celebrated our being the first war strength company in our Uncle's army to qualify 100 per cent., by a banquet.

We also won the regimental blue pennant for the month, and the guard record shows that "A" Company ranks first there.

And as Major Caldwalader stated at our banquet, "We are the first company, in the first battalion, in the regiment that leads the way." We want to thank the Major for the talk he gave us and we are sure going to try to live up to his statement.

Promotions during the month are: Pvt. J. H. Johnson, Pvt. Lyons and Pvt. W. L. Harris were made Privates 1st class.

Looks like our songbird is not going to play football this year, now some one please ask Mr. Birdsong just why won't he. The coach has talked with him and still he gives us a negative answer. Come on Bob!

Now that Sgt. Sheriff has a new car we would like to know just when the date is or has he set one yet?

Cpt. Couch has a car now and we are wondering what he intends doing.

Some one in the company said he could run a hundred in ten flat, we are wondering who he is. I can't place him.

Company "E"

Company routine during the week—combat practice and combat principles are the changes and they were thoroughly demonstrated out on Davis and Davison Hills Monday A. M. by Company "E."

Sgt. Frank J. New (Shorty) seems to be tightening up since he returned from his furlough down in Ne wOrleans by the looks of the boys from the 3rd platoon working in the kitchen Saturday and Sunday on extra as approved upon his recommendations.

Sgt. Jakey Halpern, platoon sergeant of the first platoon has been on the sick list during the last week. He was inoculated and it almost killed him. He even had an NCO to put his inoculated arm under the cover for him. Jakey asked the Company Commander for a tryont on the football squad and the Captain asked where can you play Sergeant Helpern? He replied, "I use to play on one of the positions way back in the rear of the team." I remember one time when I was a kid the ball was thrown me in a game and I tore off across the side of the field and ran home with the ball and never did bring it back. It was a great joke I played on them.

Following conversation overheard between Pvt. McWaters and Red Langley. McWaters said, " 'Lead Eye', are you the guy that used my hairbrush to clean shoes?" "Lead Eye" replied, "Yeah, what are you going to do about it?" "Well, next time I guess I'll just wait until the polish dries."

Corp. Millikan, is one of the great coffee drinkers of the Company. He was overheard to remark: I hear that a certain brand of coffee is good to the last drop. I wonder what is wrong with the last drop.

Pfc. Henson is now one of the salesmen in the main branch of the Post Exchange. One of the boys went over last week and said, "I want a camel's hair brush." He said, "How funny; I didn't know that camels use hairbrushes."

The football squad is progressing wonderfully this week. Sgt. Franz and Top Kick "Hi" Davis sure are putting the boys through good practice and taking the kinks out. They have already had a couple of scrimmages and so far no one is really hurt from the practice so by that they must be pretty tough boys. Corp. French appears to be the high standing man of the team. No doubt that he is. They all have to extend on him at drill. We are all sorry to lose Pvt. Bass off the football squad, don't see how they will get along without him. Oh, but he was so fast that all the team had already nicknamed him Lightning.

Corp. Miscar has been selected to be in charge of the chief of infantry combat squad and it is hoped he will win the trophy for Co. "E". Sgt. Boling had the Squad last year and lost only by a hair.

We had two promotions in the Company last week, Steinwinder and Teeple appointed Corporals. One man to leave on furlough, Corp. Hinds, 45 days.

—I. M. Y.

Company "H"

Whoopie!!! "H" Company, 29th Infantry on the wire again! Did some one out there say "yet"? Well let it go at that. What difference does it make, and why bring that up and what have you? REST.

Render unto Sees-her that which is Sees-her's and "H" Company that which is captioned "Duty." And how! Why these galloping jass acks down in "H" Company just have to put out, just for the reason that it is more natural for them to do that than it is for them to loaf on the job. Wherever the clarion calls them, they are always on the job, hoof, tooth and nail. I have never seen it fail, and I am not poet at that. Of course we have a few of those "Bodies Beautiful," but who wants to hear about that. Maybe I hadn't should have mentioned that. Colon Butler does not like publicity anyway.

What I had started out to brag about and got off on one of those non-stop flights of Limburger's is another thing altogether. Recently some Inspecting Officers came prowling around the 29th Infantry Stables, and just naturally had to come take a looksee at the Company "H" stables. Of course they thought that they had us, but had to turn us loose real sudden like. As soon as they had taken a peep at the Saddle Room, they began to buck up their eyes and look other places for something to criticise, which place they seemed to be at loss as to where it was. They turned back feed boxes, raised mules' feet, wiped groomed coats with white gloves and even made Private First Class William R. Smoak, Saddler, (and from South Carolina, you know "Bugle Nose," at that) stand to attention while they looked over his Saddle Shop. But lo and behold, these inspectors had to bow their heads to the "H" Company spirit and hard labor that had made things so that they could not find anything about which to cuss the Stable Sergeant.

Well to make a long story short, when all was said and done, they had to award the Blue Ribbon Stables to Company "H", 29th Infantry. Why Captain Nichols appreciated it so much that he let us off on the next Saturday morning with just a innspection of quarters, and then to save the life of him, he could not find anything wrong with the quarters, so there were no extra K. P.s for that Sunday, and we all awoke on that blue Monday with bringht and sunny smiles and so to bed every night for a week.

Corporal White is so dumb that he thinks the Prince of Wales can ride a horse! Try again Nuts.

—Bernard B. Swayze.

SPORTOPICS

By Al

With the roar of the pending football war just ready to break and sweep over Fort Benning, leaders of the warring factions are busy with last minute preparations before they clash in conflict.

A tip to the wise and wary leaders from ye honored scribe and sympathizer is that some valuable football information will be shown on the screen at the Main Theater during the coming week. Slow motion pictures of plays being carried out by professionals of the pigskin game. The fine points of the game as it should be done.

There will be several of these pictures shown here during the coming week, if members of the teams with their coaches would attend these pictures no doubt quite a few valuable points could be acquired, for with the slow motion films ample time is given to show each move and action during the execution of the plays.

The theater sheets pasted on the organization bulletin board and the theater page in the Infantry School News carry the dates of the aforementioned pictures.

GARRISON CHURCH (Protestant)

In order to create and maintain a larger and more vital religious life for the officers, enlisted men and their families, stationed at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., there will be organized Sunday, October 14, 1928, at the Protestant Chapel, what shall be known as The Garrison Church (Protestant) of Fort Benning, Georgia.

The object of this church is to promote the principles of Christianity as taught and exemplified in the New Testament by Jesus Christ, the great head of the church.

Its doctrines are those ennunciated in what is commonly called "The Apostles' Creed."

It is non-denominational.

It's creed is as follows:

"I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth; and in Jesus Christ his only Son, our Lord; who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried. The third day he rose from the dead; he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Ghost, the holy universal church; the communion of saints; the forgiveness of sins; the resurrection of the body, and the life everlasting. Amen."

Membership will be received either by church letter or on confession of faith.

TWENTY-FOURTH INFANTRY STARTS BUILDING PROGRAM

Probably on the theory that the Lord helps them that help themselves, the Twenty-Fourth Infantry, which isn't yet on the War Department schedule of construction at Fort Benning, is stepping out with a private program of semi-permanent construction which is expected, by early January, to place the entire regiment in comfortable living quarters.

The project was approved at Post Headquarters during September, and the regimental supply officer, Capt. W. B. Wilson, in whose charge the work was placed by Colonel Galleher, has already made notable progress in the work.

A regimental detail, authorized to cut timber for the work in the Twenty-third Infantry woods (just southeast of the Twenty-fourth Infantry area) already has about 1,800 logs cut. These are being delivered to the sawmill, which is concentrating on this work until it is finished.

Work has been started in the regimental area on the construction of barracks for the band, and barracks to replace the tents now being occupied by other units will be started soon.

In addition to the onstruction work in the regimental area, a number of unsuitable buildings in Block 45 (Cashtown) now being occupied by non-commissioned officers of the regiment are to be demolished and replaced, and several new buildings of this class are to be constructed. In the course of this work an effort will be made to correct minor errors in the arrangement of houses in Block 45.

PROTESTANT CHAPEL GUILD ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Protestant Chapel Guild was held Monday morning October 8 at ten o'clock at the chapel.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Treasurer—Mrs. C. L. Steel.
Organist—Mrs. E. S. Miller.

The President is desirous of having a large membership this year. The $1.00 dues may be sent to the Treasurer, Mrs. C. L. Steel.

The Guild wishes to announce the sale of The Infantry School Cook Book, a very excellent one, compiled by the ladies of Fort Benning, price $1.00. The Guild has dishes for rent. Call Mrs. Ladd.

FORT BENNING JUNIORS FOOTBALL GAME

The Fort Benning Juniors football team will meet the East Highlands squad at the Columbus Municipal Stadium Sunday, October 14, at 2:00 P. M. This team met the Fort Benning Juniors at the Doughboy Stadium Sunday, Sept. 30, and went home on the short end of the score. The coming game promises to be a very good one as both teams are in good condition and confident of victory. Everybody welcome. No admission charge.

CONDUCT MEDAL TO SOLDIERS

A study has been made in the War Department relative to the advisability of authorizing a good-conduct medal for award to enlisted men of the Army, a practice existing in the Navy. Should such authority be granted, the Secretary of War would be empowered to award a good-conduct medal, of appropriate design with accompanying ribbon, to all enlisted men of the Army who, upon completing three years of honorable service, were recommended by their commanding officrs for exemplary behavior, efficiency and fidelity, as well as a suitable bar or device to denote each subsequent period of three years' honorable service. It would be a visible mark of distinction to the recipient. It is thought that the award of such a medal will have a beneficiary effect from a morale and disciplinary point of view and it is believed that the individual soldier would probably regard with pride the possession of the medal.—A. & N. Pay-day passed as per schedule without any serious casualties all seem to be satisfied and are again back on the job.

Sgt. Dodd, our highly esteemed Supply Sgt. was discharged on the 6th, per ETS. for some cause or whatnot Sgt. Dodd got his wires crossed in regards to taking on again, Sunday he went up to say "I WILL" and the Recruiting Officer informed him that he could not re-up. Then came the dawn. And finally by some fast work upon Sgt. Dodd's part and behalf, we have him for three more years.

Pfc. Bryant left on furlough last week, leaving a certain amount here with a certain Sgt., so he will not have to again walk back from Tennessee.

Among our many new recruits there seem to be quite a few sheiks and heart crushers, as of late Pvts. Boyet, Bell, Guitreau and Cox have been seen stepping out considerably and receiving many calls via telephone.

From latest reports Cpl. Koski and Pfc. Bell have turned to a strong and indif'rent type among the fairer ladies, now don't try to get out of it we all know you never give any girls any time because you think most girls are just poisonous flirts and shimmy-fluffers, actually nowadays they're consecrated on friv'lous things and simply have'nt any serious side to them, sort of, you know what I mean.

Our Battery Barber says: It is absolutely impossible for a young man to spend the night in dissipation and be at his best the next day. Try a safety razor on the boys, John.

Fuzzy Douglas our promising battler, has been engaged for a bout in Columbus, some time in the near future to show his wares with the padded mits. Luck to you Fuzzy and show 'em the old spirit of the Galloping Gunners and bring home the bacon.

Sgt. Reed, poor boy, stood the gaff as long as he could, taking a final stand and bracing up to the Top-Skipper, just had to have a furlough, so the results, TENNESSEE bound, Dan Cupid sure is a wonderful little creature, Frankie.

Pfc. Tilley just reported back from a month's leave, with a smile from ear to ear as if a wonderful time was had. And how.

Speedy Oliver was over to Montgomery for a thirty-day's vacation and from all indications the old Army's not such a bad place after all.

Our dashing cook, Pfc. Pleus, has applied for his purchase, going to try the ourside for a spell or else going back to the old native land, Berlin, better stick around with Werner as the old Galloping Artillery will do much for you in near future.

Ask any one in the Battery what tent is noted for most popularity? Quick reply: "Tent 22," as anything is of the argument or else any known subject, can soon be settled in said tent. And all who care for action either kind mild or ferocious, call around.

Our stables have taken on a very new ruling lately for some cause of unknown reason, every member of said crew seem to always be busy, including Cpl. Cole.

Cpl. Vines was seen polishing up his saddle in his tent during noon hour last week. How comes? Must be going to take a midnight ride, or else saddle up the goal "Bill" and gallop in town every night.

The fish and oyster season now is in and from al indications a very good business on Front Street is being conducted by Sgt. Roper.

A certain hotel down town surely has an awful large spacious show room, as Cpl. Koski said he ran into a road scraper last Sunday night. Oh well, Chink, that's pretty thin but better that than nothing at all.

—R. J. W.

Battery "A"

Private Avery A. Owens wants it to be known that he would rather have his share of ice cream than be 1st Sergeant.

Private Thurston has given up the idea of raising bulldogs and instead is trying to raise some hair on his old bean.

Private Evans is a firm believer in "lights out," especially when a man larger than you says "lights out."

Private Roper was reminded of his baby days last pay day when he was told to reach for the moon.

We understand that Sergeant Brown has resumed his old pastime of rolling pianos.

The miracle of miracles happened pay day when Private First Class Usher refused to go to town. What was wrong, Slim, couldn't you find a snake?

1st Sergeants like gentlemen seem to prefer blondes to brunettes.

Sergeant Peters was noticed in town last week all smeared up with red paint. We know he loves the color red but why advertise?

Private Clanton upon seeing the showers for the first time remarked that it certainly was a wonderful place where the water comes in a hole in the ceiling and went out a hole in the floor.

Famous sayings in the battery:
We will try it again.
Get a line and hold it.

Battery "B"

Private Cheek, one of the most progressive young men of the battery, having seen Private Boykin with a beautiful white sweater, was bit with the idea that he would like to have one similar, so what does he do but interview the most worthy supply sergeant and try to draw one from the Q. M. Fellow comrades, it's Sears Roebuck and Company instead of the Q. M. that furnishes the white sweaters.

Mess Sergeant LaCroix, who has just re-enlisted, has come to the conclusion that the Belles of Columbus can get along without him for awhile, so he is selling his civilian clothes so that if tempted to go he will be able to withstand the temptation. Boys, this decision may mean a better mess.

At last the time of the year has arrived which all the men of the battery have been looking forward to, the firing season. One gunner was heard to remark that if he didn't hear the boom of a 75 soon he would die of lonesomeness. Another thing we have been looking forward to with the greatest of longing has been the all-day road marches. Just to see an artillery column stretched out along the road makes the boys feel that life is worth living after all.

Most of our horses had a three-months furlough this past summer but in the meantime the men have been improving their skill as gunners, until now we have a battery of efficient gunners that will stack up with any in the army.

You may take it from the Battery Commander and Transportation Officer that the new drivers of the battery know their onions.

We are pleased to announce this week the return of the Battery's progidal son, Private Piazzi. Private Piazzi was discharged from the Battery in 1924, and after serving three years in the 15th Field Artillery, has returned to the old outfit.

"Just like 'hum'", he was heard to remark as he dropped his barrack bags in front of the orderly room. As a gunner Private Piazzi takes a back seat for no one. We are all proud to have him with us again.

Battery "C"

Once upon a time a Driver who was Harden tough decided that he was not being treated Wright and that he was not giving the world an even break by remaining in the army. So he said to himself: "I aint gonna Curry no Moore horses. The next time they Page me, I'll be gone—my time aint Long here. I'll just Walker round town a bit and Upchurch Street, and Leggett over Hill and Dale until I Land a job with some man who Hiers a Workman, and needs some one to Culpepper or Garner Hayes for him. Then I'll settle down and save my money and some day I'll have a Gehm on my finger as big as a horse apple."

The fields were Greene, the flowers were in Blume, and the Robbins singing sweetly in the tree tops. However, our hero having been in the mounted service, was not accustomed to hiking, so he soon became foot-sore and weary, and the beauties of nature awakened no response within his manly bosom. (You know how these darned autoists are now-adays anyway—they have grown leary of hitch-hikers, so about the only thing you can do is to keep putting one in front of the other.) So he trudged along, and finally he came toa Hall beside two Wells where dwelt a Miller, to whom he said that he was very Gantt and hungry and that he had Sears and burns upon his feet, and that he would like a feed, a flop and some financial assistance. The Miller listened to him very carefully, and when he had finished, replied as follows: "That sounds Fairbrother, and you may be O. K., however, I think you have Lyda a helluva lot about this and I do not Cotten to you at all. The best thing you can do is to Wade out of here, and keep going until you reach the next Bourg, for if you Horn in around here again, I'm liable to hanga Crownover your dome, and you'll wake up Underwood with a lot of floral offerings grouped around the bier."

Naturally this unkind reception was a bitter rebuff (not to mention a great surprise) to our young hero, who had imagined that an expectant world was waiting to receive him with open arms, and that all the fatted calves in the vicinity would run, bellowing for help, to their mammas as soon as they learned of his approach.

However, the young man, whose name I forgot to state, was Lionel Montmorency Percival Brown, was after all, possessed of a considerable amount of intestinal fortitude, and of a philosophic turn of mind which must have been akin to that of Socrates and Plato. In other words, he realized that he was up against it (even as you and I), and that there was only one thing to be done about it. Accordingly, he turned in at the nearest recruiting station, and seven months afterward, when he had been returned to duty, the transportation charges (Appn 28-1776) for himself and guard were duly deducted from his pay.

BENNING HAS A NUMBER OF HANDICAP POLO PLAYERS

Seven Fort Benning poloists are listed as two-goal men in the 1928 annual of the United States Polo Association, received this week by the Academic Department Library. There are fourteen one-goal poloists here, and seventeen who have no-goal handicap, bringing the total of poloists at the station entitled to an official rating in the real blue book of polo to thirty-eight.

All of which indicates a number of things. One of these things is that the coming season should provide some excellent polo at Benning. A second probably is that polo in the army is gaining in interest and the number of devotees all the time.

The officers assigned to Fort Benning who are rated as two-goal men are: Lt. W. H. Bartlett, 83rd Field Artillery; Captain D. L. Crane, 83rd Field Artillery (not yet joined); Lt. H. A. Guernsey, 83rd Field Artillery; Captain L. A. Harris, Student Officer; Major C. B. Lyman, post polo representative and on duty with the Infantry Board; Lieut. J. B. Murphy, 83rd Field Artillery, and Major H. J. M. Smith, instructor in equitation and formerly polo representative.

The one-goal men are: Capt. Withers A. Burress, student and former star of the 29th Infantry four; Major B. G. Chynoweth, the Infantry Board; Capt. S. F. Clark, 83rd Field Artillery; Capt. W. A. Collier, student; Capt. H. J. Collins, instructor; Capt. J .D. Forsyth, student and former member of the local Freebooters' team; Lieut. B. R. BENNING POLOISTS LEAVE FOR FORT OGLETHORPE OCT. 15TH

Leaving Fort Benning next Monday, the Fort Benning Poloists will journey to Fort Oglethorpe where they play a three-game series against the strong Sixth Cavalry Malletmen on Oct. 18-21-23.

The officers who will accompany the team to Fort Oglethorpe are Major C. B. Lyman, team captain, (Inf.); Major H. J. M. Smith (Cav.), Capt. R. A. McClure (Inf.), Lt. B. R. Jacobs (Inf.), and Lt. H. Y. Grubbs (Art.).

After the series at Fort Oglethorpe, the team will return to Fort McPherson for two additional games, one with the 22nd Inf. team and one against the Governor's Horse Guard poloists. The following officers of the Infantry School will join the team in Atlanta: Major T. F. Taylor (Inf.), Lt. F. B. Murphy (Art.), and Lt. L. J. Lockett (Inf.).

The final game of the squad, prior to its departure for Fort Oglethorpe, will be played on French Field, Saturday afternoon, it has been announced.

INTERESTING CHANGES TO BE MADE IN LOCAL GOLF CLUB

The next few weeks will see some interesting changes in the local golf course, if Captain E. E. Walker, secretary of the Officers Club and a member of the Greens committee of the club is able to carry out the plans he has in mind.

In the first place, the short fifth hole on the lower nine is to be changed in accordance with the "sand-table" study with which most golfers are familiar. The green will be raised and the traps guarding it be made a little more difficult.

The sixth hole, also, is in for some changes. It is planned to move the tee to the left, to the vicinity of the fifth green, eliminating the shot across the polo field (which has been known to cause difficulty) but leaving the polo field still to the prayerful consideration of the right-handed slicer. Some changes also may be made in the hazards guarding this green, unless it is decided to change the direction of the hole entirely and shoot for the green which was more or less partially constructed just to the right of the fourth fairway.

The seventh hole will be lengthened by moving the tee back some distance and bringing the green also to the north, to where it will be visible from the tee.

The eighth will be changed, in all probability, to a par four hole by moving the green south. The plans for this hole, as discussed by Captain Walker, include the elimination of the right-hand side of the present bunker now about 100 yards from the eighth tee, and the construction of an irregular trap extending into the lefthand side of fairway from the rough about 185 yards out. This will give the ambitious golfer a chance to shoot straight for the hole across this trap, while the cautious duffer may shoot to the right into the present fairway.

The most important projected change on the upper nine is on the thirteenth hole, which it is planned to lengthen by moving the tee back and to the right to a position just behind the present twelfth green. The thirteenth green also will be moved back into the woods from its present position. Again the right handed slicer will have an opportunity to "do his stuff" by getting behind the water-tanks.

Work is being kept up constantly on the greens and fairways, and the greens now, excellent as they have been since early spring, are probably in the best condition of the year.

THRU THE GREEN

Stewart Maiden had the right idea about the relaxed swing, Watts Gunn playing in the Amateur Tourney a couple of years ago found the Fairways very narrow and he continually putted his ball to the rough, naturally he wired Maiden and asked why, and what to do. Maiden summed it up as trying to guide the ball so he wired back, "Hit them hard they will come down some place." If we in our mediocre golf would do that we would have much better results.

The Pro. says be sure you have a full pivot if you use a full swing, a great many people on our course who slice are using a full swing and a half pivot. You wouldn't drive your car with the brakes on would you intentionally?

Lots of people ask the Pro. why they can't get more distance. Here is the way he explains it. When you use the alarm clock "you wind it up to the top" then naturally it will run longer. If players would wind themselves up to the top (by pivoting) and swing instead of hit at the ball then distance is coming their way, of course you have to use the wrist on the down stroke to.

Wonder who the blackhaired Captain was who came out to practice Monday evening and asked the Pro. to come out and see what was the matter he couldn't hit them. The Pro obliged and looked him over then saw the Caddy about 180 yards down the practice field and asked, "Why are you using the putter?"

COMPANY FOOTBALL SERIES BEGINS AT FORT BENNING

The football field at the Doughboy Stadium was the scene of two hard fought and closely contested football games between company teams of the 29th Infantry, Wednesday afternoon.

In the first game Company "F", last season's regimental champions, took a hard fought game from Company "E" by a lone touchdown, the final score being 6 to 0.

Fat Franz kept the "F" Company team baffled with an aerial attack that netted long gains but always failed in the shadow of "F" Company's goal post. With the score deadlocked in the third quarter, Tommie Thomson recovered an "E" Company fumble on his five-yard line and raced ninety-five yards for a touchdown and victory. The attempt to kick goal for the extra point was blocked.

Although turning loose a flurry of passes in the last quarter in a last desperate attempt, "E" Company was unable to cross the last white line.

Second Game

The second game saw "G" Company's line hold back the charge of the scrappy Company "H" team and win 12 to 0.

The score does not tell the story, for the game was a fight from beginning to end, although unable to gain through the line of their heavier opponents, Company "H" refused to give ground under pressure before the opposing line.

The first touchdown came as the result of an "H" Company fumble on their twenty-yard line, Markowiski, Company "G" quarterback, then passed to Saunders on the 5-yard line who went over for a touchdown.

In the last quarter another Company "H" fumble gave "G" Company the ball on their thirty-yard line, a long end run, a completed pass and a delayed line buck that netted a twelve-yard gain put the ball on Company "H" half-yard strip. On the next play a straight line buck shoved it over for the second touchdown.

ATLANTA UNIV. FOOTBALL TEAM DEFEATS 24TH INFANTRY 9 TO 7

By Al Durden

When McPherson drop kicked a field goal from the 24th Infantry's 20 yard line squarely between the two uprights and a bare inch over the wooden crossbar, he not only added three more points to the Atlanta University's score column but he also added the extra points that won one of the hottest contested football games ever witnessed at the Doughboy Stadium.

Opening up an offensive attack in the first period the visitors kept the 24th Infantrymen on the defensive with their flashing end runs and delayed line bucks that cut holes in the soldier line. Twice the visitors drove the Happy Hearts into the shadow of their goal post in the first quarter and each time the line braced and held near the last white strip, the first quarter ending without either team scoring.

Early in the second quarter McPherson tossed a pass to Wiggins, who took it on the soldiers' 25 yard mark and sprinted over for a touchdown, the attempt to kick the extra point was blocked. The first half ended with the visitors leading 6 to 0.

The last half opened up with both teams punting for a break, the visitors got the break. McPherson punted deep into 24th territory the ball being downed on the soldiers' 15-yard line. On the next play a soldier fumble gave the visitors the ball on the soldiers' 20-yard line. On the next play McPherson kicked a field goal to make the score 9 to 0 in favor of the visitors.

With the game more than half over and the score decidedly against them the Happy Hearts opened up a belated attack that put the visitors strictly on the defensive during the remainder of the game. Switching from straight line bucks to an aerial attack the soldiers scored a touchdown near the end of the third quarter. Seldom Heard added the extra point with a perfect kick from placement. The touchdown was the result of a pass hurled by Heard thirty yards to Collins, who carried it over for a touchdown. Fighting desperately in the last few minutes of play the Happy Hearts drove down the field. Big Heard crumpled the visitors' line time and again for gains, with the soldiers battering their line the visitors were caught flat-footed on a pass Heard to Collins, with the ball in his arms and an open field Collins tripped and fell, spoiling a perfect chance for a touchdown and victory. With twenty seconds to play and the ball on the visitors' 20-yard line, Heard missed an attempted field goal by inches, the final score being 9 to 7 in favor of the visitors.

(Tune Long, Long, Trail)

There's a long, long, trace awinding,
Around the hocks of my team,

I got the crupper around his neck,

POST GOLF TOURNAMENT BEING CONSIDERED

The tournament committee of the Officers' Club now has under consideration the matter of holding the annual golf tournament for the championship of the post, and it is possible that a decision may be arrived at to hold that tournament within the next few weeks. There are certain factors, however, including the excellent condition of the course in the Spring, which is causing consideration of a plan to eliminate the 1928 tournament altogether and hold no scratch-play competition until next spring.

There is, at present, no official post champion. The claims of Captains B. W. Venable and A. S. Nevins probably will hold more water than the claims of any others. Venable was runner-up in the last post championship held, which was won by Captain Al Barnett, now gone to the Philippines. Capt. Nevins, on the other hand, won the Corps Area championship handily in the tournament last month—but Venable was away.

In addition to those two, there are many who think that Lieut. "Jimmy" Darr, if not a logical claimant, is, at least, a dangerous contender. There is another member of the "Number One foursome" who must be reckoned with if a tournament comes off—Lieut. Col. Harry A. Wells, of the Department of Experiment. Colonel Wells furnished lots of trouble in the first flight of the Corps tournament. He is generally regarded as a dangerous and steady match player.

Regardless of whether the championship tournament is held, there will be lots of opportunities for ambitious golfers to step out during the fall and early winter. It is considered probable now that the tournament committee will arrange for competitions probably Armistice Day, Thanksgiving, and during the Christmas holidays.

ANNUAL RECEPTION AND DANCE TONIGHT

VETERAN SOLDIER RETIRED LAST MONDAY

By Al Durden

Slowly but surely the hands on the face of the clock of time, move onward toward destiny, as seconds grow into minutes and minutes to hours and on and on until centuries are recorded in the book of time. To those of us who sit and watch, it seems that time travels slow, but as we glance back over the days that have flown it seems that time does surely fly and life's trail flits by as a passing shadow.

Forty-six years ago Master Sergt. William A. Colling was born at his old home in Poughkeepsie, New York. Nineteen years later, or to be exact Jan. 12, 1901, he answered the call of adventure and enlisted in the service of the United States Army. Since that time he has served under the Stars and Stripes in many foreign lands, including China, Japan, England, Belgium, Cuba and the Philippine Islands. During this period of service he received eight honorable discharges and each of the discharges show that his character was excellent while his promotion records show that he was highly efficient and dependable in the discharge of his duties as a soldier.

When Recruit William A. Colling first answered "Here" in answer to his name at reveille, thirty years seemed ages away and dreams of retirement was unthought of. On Oct. 15, 1928, a special order from Headquarters was handed Mr. Sgt. Collins, it read as follows: Pursuant to instructions contained in paragraph 11, Special Orders No. 240, War Department, Oct. 12, Master Sergeant William A. Colling, 6034300, Infantry School Detachment, is placed on the retired list at Fort Benning, Ga. Other items including travel pay and destination were included in the order, but the first paragraph ended a period of thirty years of honest and faithful service to his flag and coun-

Army Relief Drive Will Begin Next Week

Collection of contributions for the Army Relief Society for the present year will take place between October 22 and November 30, 1928. Major Robert H. Fletcher, Jr., 24th Infantry, is announced as officer in charge of this activity. The Army Relief Society is a most worthy charitable organization created within the regular army to care for its own widows and orphans who are in need. It is hoped that every member of the garrison will contribute.

The following named officers are designated as representatives in their respective organizations and will report to Major Fletcher at the 24th Infantry Officers' Club, at 1:15 P. M. Friday, October 19, 1928:

Headquarters The Infantry School: Captain Jewett C. Baker, Infantry.

Academic Department: Captain Frank H. Partridge, Infantry.

Infantry Board: Major Bradford G. Chynoweth, Infantry.

Department of Experiment: Captain Andrew T. Knight, Infantry.

24th Infantry—Captain Elwood M. S. Steward, 24th Infantry; First Lieut. James D. O'Connell, 24th Infantry.

29th Infantry: Major Thomas F. Taylor, 29th Infantry.

15th Tank Battalion: First Lieutenant Frank J. Vida.

Special Units: Captain Raymond G. Sherman, 24th Infantry.

83rd Field Artillery Battalion: First Lieut. Harry M. Schwarze, 83rd F. A. Bn.

Medical Department (less Veterinary Service): Major Edgar E. Hume, M. C.; Captain Clifford H. Perry, M. A. C.

BENEFIT DANCE TO BE HELD MONDAY NIGHT

The feature event of the season at Fort Benning will be the Fort Benning Children's School Benefit Dance, which will be held at the Post Gymnasium Monday night, Oct. 22nd. The dance will be sponsored by the Special Units and will far surpass any event of this kind in the history of the Post.

For the past week interior decorators have been busy within the spacious halls of the big gym, already the walls and ceiling are a network of fancy colored spangles and streamers, beautifully colored lights inter-mingled with the decorations, while beautiful paintings adorn the walls, when finished the big hall will remind one of the wonderful palaces of Fairyland.

To intermingle with the beautiful scenery Monday night, there will be bevies of beautiful girls from Fort Benning and Columbus, this fact has been assured by Mrs. Britain, hostess and fairy godmother of the Fort Benning soldiers. What could be more beautiful than the mellow glow of many colored lights blended in the sparkle of the silken spangles and streamers, walls decorated with large oil paintings of moonlight scenes while before you is a spacious dance floor as smooth as a sea of glass, and last but not least from a secluded corner the famous Symphony Six Orchestra of the 24th Infantry, will render the latest dance music in a way that causes the most awkward of feet to crave action.

With the worlds of pleasure that will be had by every one attending, there is still something better yet. The proceeds o fthe evening are for the benefit of the children's school of Fort Benning. This custom of giving an annual dance for the benefit of the school was founded by the Infantry School Detachment, this year the entire Special Units are sponsoring the dance and it is rumored that other organizations already have plans underway to even out-do the Special Units, with a School Benefit Dance on Thanksgiving. The rivalry in this will be friendly rivalry for a good cause for the benefit of our youngsters.

A committee of ladies of the garrison will assist Mrs. Britain, hostess, in carrying out the large program arranged for the evening. There will be delicious refreshments for the merry-makers and the large punch bowl shall keep away all semblance of the great Sahara desert. There will be several highly amusing as well as entertaining numbers on the program, while several beautiful prizes given through the courtesy of the Post Exchange, Chancellor Clothing Co., Chero-Cola Co., and the Miller Shoe Co., that will be awarded as prizes to the winners in the different prize contests.

Transportation to and from Columbus will be furnished by the Howard Bus Line, through the courtesy of Mr. Crawford, president of the Howard Bus Co.

The ladies reception committee is: Mrs. Inez Brittain, hostess, Mrs. E. Stewart, 15th Tanks; Mrs. Wm. Gullett, 29th Inf.; Mrs. Wm. Stewart, I. S. D.; Mrs. Wm. Brandt, 83rd F. A.; Mrs. Andrew Murphy, Q. M. C.; Mrs. Willard, 7th Engrs.; Mrs. Brown, C. W. S., and Mrs. John Heckert, I. S. D.

The following Non-Commissioner Officers have been designated as members of the Reception and Dance Committee for the Benefit Dance to be held at the Post Gym, Monday night: Mr. Sgt. Harry Fox, School for B. & C.; Sgt. Walter R. Reynolds, Q. M. C.; Corp. Wm. T. Tiavis, 7th Eng.; Corp. Jesse F .Holley, C. W. S.; Corp. Albert Brown, 17th Ord.; Mr. Sgt. Stewart, I. S. D.; Sgt. Shepherd, I. S. D.; Sgt. Davis, I. S. D.; Mr. Sgt. Magoni, I. S. D., and Mr. Sgt. McNulty, I. S. D.

STUDENT OFFICERS WILL BE FORMALLY WELCOMED

Fort Benning's Brilliant Social Event of the Year

The social calendar for the school year 1928-29 will be formally opened tonight at the big gymnasium with a dance sponsored by the Officers Club in honor of the new officers who have been assigned as students for the current school year.

The annual reception and dance for the student officers is one that has always in the past been looked forward to with a great deal of interest and much anticipation. Each year many acquaintances which have been forgotten for a number of years are renewed as well as many new ones made.

Tonight's dance is being carried out on a more elaborate scale than any held in previous years. Decorators have been working both night and day for the past week so that their aim might be accomplished. They have left nothing undone which might add to the attractiveness of the hugh hall.

The decorations this year are unusual in their design and setting. An Egyptian motiff has been used as the color scheme. Every scene has been drawn from snapshots taken at various times by tourists who have traveled that part of the world. The walls of the gym will be hidden entirely from the eye. The settings will be placed around the entire floor of the gym, concealing from view both the sides and ends of the building, while hangling from the ceiling are paper serpentines to add to the attractiveness and help bring out the Egyptian effect.

Overhead, to hide the unsightly beams from view and to add it's bit to the decorations, thousands of yards of blue bunting have been hung, to make a Sunburst Ceiling. Each piece has been started from the center and carried to the wall leaving a small space between each strip so that when the lights are turned on it will have the effect to the sun shining through. In the center where the strips of bunting are brought together a hugh jewel five feet in diameter will be suspended with two globes inside which will throw out light through the holes as an imitation of the sparkles cast by precious jewels. This ceiling design was copied from a photograph of the Palais d' Or Theatre in New York.

The hardwood floor has been waxed to perfection and lovers of terpsichory should find no trouble in gliding over the floor to the toe-tickling tunes that will be rendered.

In the receiving line will be the Commandant, Brigadier General and Mrs. Edgar T. Collins; General L. Brown, General H. S. Hawkins, and General C. E. Kilbourne; the Assistant Commandant, Lieutenant Colonel George C. Marshal, Jr.; the Executive Officer, Colonel and Mrs. Harry E. Knight; the President of the Officers Club, Colonel Paul C. Galleher and Mrs. Galleher; Mayor and Mrs. J. Homer Dimon of Columbus; City Manager Henry B. Crawford of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes Brown of Columbus.

try. And 'twas then that looking back over the trail of time he realized that the hands of the clock have moved swiftly, for in his own words, "Why it seems only yesterday that I began and now my work is finished," Sergt. Collins fully justified the age old adage, "Time and Tide wait for no man."

Sergt. Colling's enlistment is as follows: Enlisted Jan. 12, 1901, Co. "F" 10th Infantry, served with 10th Infantry in Cuba with 1st Army of Occupation. Was a member of 10th Infantry in Philippine Islands during the Philippine Insurrection, spending twenty-three months there. Was discharged in 1904, re-enlisted with Co. "D" 5th Infantry, stationed at Plattsburg, N. Y., discharged March 21, 1907, re-enlisted with Co. "E" 7th Infantry, stationed at Fort Wayne. April 30, 1909, sailed from San Francisco for the Philippine Islands and was stationed at Fort Wm. McKinley until Oct., 1910, when he returned to the United States, he was discharged in November, 1910; re-up with Co. "F" 27th Infantry, stationed at Fort Sheridan, Ill. He was discharged in 1913 at Texas City, Texas, re-enlisted for the General Service Infantry stationed at Fort McDowell, Cal., was transferred to the 15th Infantry in 1915 and sailed with that organization for Tientsin, China, May 5, 1915.

He was with the 15th Infantry until July 12, 1917, when he was ordered by War Department order to proceed by way of Manchuria and Korea to Nagasaki, Japan. He boarded a transport July 21, 1917, for Fort McDowell, Cal., where he was discharged Aug. 14, 1917, to accept a commission as 2nd Lieut. Aug. 15, 1917.

During the World War, he rose to the rank of Captain of Infantry, serving with Company "C" of the 358th Infantry. Was also mess and supply officer of the 90th Division Training School at Samp Travis, Texas.

He was discharged from his commission June 26, 1919, at Camp Dix, N. J., but immediately re-enlisted for his old oufit, the 15th Infantry, rejoining them at Tientsin, China, Nov. 1, 1919.

He served the last year of his service as a member of the Infantry School Detachment of Fort Benning, Ga. Since coming to the Detachment, Mr. Sgt. Colling has made a host of friends among the officers and enlisted men of the organization. As a reminder of their lasting friendship and best wishes, the members of the Detachment presented Master Sergeant Colling with a beautiful gold watch and chain, on the eve of his departure.

He will leave immediately for his home in San Francisco, from there he will sail for a prolonged visit with old friends and companions with the 15th Infantry at Tientsin, China.

The many friends and admirers of Mr. Sgt. Colling at Fort Benning join in hoping him a long and happy life and the best of success, a fitting reward for SERVICE WELL DONE.

DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT FIRST PLAY OF SEASON

Several theatrical treats are in store for lovers of the dramatic art at Fort Benning. The Infantry School Dramatic Club will this season present a repertoire of plays which will surpass in technique, theme and setting any previous presentation ever attempted by the thespian artists at the big army school.

The first of the playlets to be staged October 26, by the talented amateur performers will be a piquant farce, satirizing modern engagements, entitled "Just As Well." The scene is laid in England and the plot deals with a young couple who have rushed pell-mell into an engagement which proves to be irksome to each with counter attractions, in the form of a wealthy man and a beautiful vamp, appear on the scene. As the wedding day approaches, the engaged pairs infatuation for the other couple reaches its height and they strive for release from their pledges. This they find difficult, as they are surrounded by well-meaning friends and relatives, who, ignorant of the secret infatuation of the couple, are delighted with the approaching marriage. All is set for the nuptial ceremony and the distraught pair have just decided to make a confession of their secret affairs to each other and to their friends when the girl discovers that the other can is a rotter. At the same time, the young man learns that he has been lured by a professional vamp. Disillusioned, the young lovers offer to release each other from the engagement. As they look sorrowfully at the display of wedding presents, a moment of indecision and longing is dispelled and the play given a happy ending, when the young man asks the girl if they shall go through with the marriage and she replies, "We might just as well."

While the Dramatic Club has not announced the entire cast of "Just As Well," it is known that the feminine lead will be played by Mrs. Robb S. Mackie, whose interpretation of the role of the actress in the "Butter and Egg Man" last season was a conspicuous triumph in the realm of amateur theatricals.

Capt. L. R. Boyd has been cast for the masculine lead. Other members of the cast are being selected by Mrs. Garland Avera, who will direct "Just As Well." Mrs. Avera directed "The Grill," one of last season's outstanding amateur presentations.

"Just As Well" will be followed by "Knives From Syria" and "Their Anniversary." Several other plays which will give full expression to the talents of the local artists are being selected by the play-readers committee, headed by Mrs. Gilbert Cook and including Mrs. A. J. Peake and Capt. J. L. Collins.

New and exotic effects are promised in the scenery and settings of this season's plays which will all be staged in the Main Theater. Capt. F. S. Doll and a Dramatic Club committee have devised a setting which will simulate the appearance of a Little Theater.

The Infantry School Dramatic Club will present "Just As Well" at Fort Benning as a testimonial of its appreciation of the support and encouragement which the Garrison has given to the club. There will be no admission charge.

MOVIE MATINEE FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Enthusiasm has been manifest among the school children of Fort Benning concerning free movie matinees. They are here at last.

The Post Recreation Department has given considerable thought to the amusement of the little tots, and arrangements have been made whereby two reels of film will be shown to them on Friday afternoons; these, to consist of an educational subject such as Pathe News, which will instruct them in what is happening in the other parts of the world, giving them something sensible to talk about: and Aesops Fables, or some film of its order which will cause them to burst their little sides with laughter.

These matinees were given last year for the school children and proved to be a source of keen enjoyment to them as well as being a material aid to their teachers. When they were first started music was provided, but it was found that the combined laughter of the children so drowned out the music that melody was superfluous. During the comedy the walls of the theater fairly shook from outbursts of tickled enthusiasm.

Beginning October 1, an effort has been made to book feature pictures for Fridays and Saturdays which the grown-ups can enjoy, and at the same time have nothing in them that children of the tender age should not see. On these nights from forty to sixty of the young folks attend the shows.

The coming winter season promises to be the best moving picture year that Fort Benning has ever enjoyed.

FINANCE DETACHMENT GAVE PARTY

The Infantry boasts of their Esprit de Corps; the Artillery sing of their Rolling Caissons; the Zooming of a Plane is Music to the birdmen; the Cavalry pen lines about their Hardy Steeds and Sabers Bare but one branch of the service says little, thinks a lot, helps to keep up the moral of the army by seeing that the troops of all branches are paid accurately and promptly, their only boast being food gellowship among one another and extending their hand in friendship to all others.

Certainly this was their creed last Tuesday night when the members of the Finance Detachment gave a farewell party in honor of their Commanding Officer, Captain Jacob R. McNeil. Captain McNeil during his short tour of duty with the Finance Detachment completely won the respect of every man of the organization, and it was sincere regret that the men of the organization learned of orders relieving him of duty from this station. Captain McNeil has been assigned to duty at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, the nature of which is as yet unknown.

The scene of last Tuesday night's entertainment and joviality was the recreation hall of the detachment. Shortly after the arrival of the members of the Detachment, there being only twelve men in the organization, and the guests the party was under full swing. A radio was tuned in bringing in the best stations rendering dance music and those who so desired were seen swirling about over the floor in rhythm to the tuneful tunes. While from time to time different men of the Finance added zest to the program with clown act exhibitions. This cast was headed by Harry A. Young. Young claims that in addition to being the best check writer in the service he is also the best comedian in the service and that he is soon to take his place on the legitimate stage and play under the bright light of Broadway up New York way. To this Price retaliated with the startling announcement that it was all true and that he was to go as star press agent to Young and that he expected before a great period of time had elapsed to be holding down the desk of reporter in either the New York Times or Sun, that he was having some difficulty deciding which paper would add to his prestige, that it was just a matter of choice as to which paper he established himself with.

Later in the evening after the guests had been served with sandwiches, ice cream and cake, Staff Sergeant Kemp who had recently been appointed Staff Sergeant was presented a beautiful tie as a present from the ladies of the detachment while the detachment itself as an appreciation of good fellowship and joy in his promotion presented him with a pair of Sterling Silver cuff links.

As guests of the evening in addition to the members of the Finance Detachment were: Mr. Thomas, civilian employe in the Finance, Warrant Officer and Mrs. Barkerhurst; Mrs. Thomas, wife of Staff Sergeant Thomas, and Mrs. Goldstein, wife of Mr. Sergeant Goldstein, and Mrs. Camp.

AT THE MOVIES

OCT. 19 to OCT. 26, INCL.

FRIDAY, OCT. 19

"THE DESERT BRIDE," starring Betty Compson in a drama set against a background of Arabia with its Bazaars, palaces and native intrigue. It was produced on a lavish scale—the highlights consist of a terrible sandstorm on the desert, a military ball, the auctioning of the heroine to the natives, and the grand, spectacular climax, in which French troops storm the palace and rescue the hero and heroine.

"Pathe News No. 83."

"Jungle Triangles." Fables.

SATURDAY, OCT. 20

"CODE OF SCARLET," featuring Ken Maynard in a thrill-a-minute drama of the North West Mounted Police. This story is staged among towering hills and wailing pines. Included in the scenes of tremendous action are a terrifying land slide and scene when Ken's enemies throw burning brands at him and he returns them most effectively. Tarzan, Ken's magnificent white mount, underwent severe training for this picture, some of his stunts are remarkable.

"Tell It To The Judge." Max Davidson.

SUNDAY, OCT. 21

"HAPPINESS AHEAD," starring Colleen Moore in a beautiful romance. The story centers around an unsophisticated girl from a small town, who becomes the wife of a city card-shark. Her disillusionment, and the subsequent regeneration of her husband provide the frame work for a plot that is as unique as it is interesting. Critics consider this an excellent picture.

"The Flag." Technicolor. This, in beautiful color, presents the story of our flag. It depicts George Washington and Betsy Ross, who worked steadfastly together amid plotting and spying for The Flag. No one should miss this educational interesting historic picture.

MONDAY, OCT. 22

"TENTH AVENUE," starring Phillis Haver with Victor Varconi and Joseph Schildkraut in a thrilling romance of Hell's Kitchen in New York. The story deals with a girl who works in a department store all day and at night manages a rooming house for her dissipated mother. Two men love her, one a card expect and the other a gangster. Both of these men mend their ways, but use tactics which they had learned as crooks in order to press their suit. One of them commits a murder. This picture is highly dramatic, is filled with suspence and thrills and vividly presents a phase of underworld life which vests it with a vitality that all picture fans will appreciate.

"Yellow Cameo No. 7."

TUESDAY, OCT. 23

"THE ADVENTURER," featuring Tim McCoy. It is not an American western but a story of red-blooded adventure laid in South America. A yankee finds himself in the midst of a South American revolution where intrigue is rampant—he spikes the revolt, saves a dark-eyed senorita, and whirls you through a maze of action, hard-fighting and hard-riding to a thrilling romantic climax.

"You're Darn Tootin." Laurel Hill Comedy.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 24

"THE FORTUNE HUNTER," starring Syd Chaplin in a farce depicting the uproarious adventures of a wise guy who came to get and stayed to give. This is a filmization of the New York stage success which set Jack Barrymore on the road to fame. A young city chap comes to a Vermont village with the intention of winning the richest girl, the fortune thus won to be divided with a former hobo pal who had staked him. The femininity of the town takes him by storm; he gets a job in a drug store which is later robbed, the blame being fixed on him. The druggist has a pretty daughter and incidentally so has the banker. Lots of laughs borne on good plot as a vehicle.

THURSDAY, OCT. 25

"DON'T MARRY," starring Lois Moran with Neil Hamilton in a romantic comedy drama centering about a girl of ultra modern tendencies who sets out to get her man. She is a chic young miss—her heart is set upon a confirmed bachelor. Clothes are one of her decoys; she goes from the shy modes of old fashioned dress to scanty flapper raiment and looks so attractive in each, it is hard to say which is most becoming. Her ideas of what constitutes naivete precipitate her into a mess of highly hilarious difficulties.

"Hold Your Hat." Imperial Comedy.

"Pathe Review."

FRIDAY, OCT. 26

"THE RED MARK," a dramatic love romance laid on a penal island, starring

Gaston Glass, Nina Quartaro and Gustav von Seyffertitz. The story centers about De Non, the executioner, feared and hated by all convicts and his designs upon Zelie, lovely niece of Mother Carron, a life-term prisoner. Bibi Ri, her lover, is about to be freed, he has been persecuted by De Non, and fears him after his release. There is intrigue, mystery and tense dramatic action which will hold you spellbound. The locale is a prison island whose population is composed almost entirely of criminals. They manage their own governments. If you like weird entrancing stories, this one will captivate you.

"Pathe News No. 85."

"Coast to Coast." Fables.

The Polo Club was the scene of a delightful dance on Friday evening when the officers and ladies of the 29th Infantry entertained at their first regimental hop of the season. The club was oppropriately decorated in streamers of Infantry blue and white and the lights were shaded with the same colors. Those receiving were Capt. Martin D. McAllister, Col. and Mrs. Harris Pendleton Jr., Lt. Col. and Mrs. William L. Reed, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Alfred Brandt. Excellent music was rendered by the Regimental Orchestra from their canvassed pit o nthe veranda. Refreshing punch and angel food cake were served throughout the evening.

There were several dinner parties before the dance. Maj. and Mrs. Thomas F. Taylor entertained at a delightful buffet supper honoring Miss Louise Young and Lt. Malcolm R. Kammerer whose marriage will be an interesting event of the late fall. Their guests included the debutante daughters of the regiment and the bachelor Second Lieutenants.

Capt. and Mrs. N. D. Woodward were hosts at a beautiful dinner. Their home was festive with autumn flowers and the autumn idea was carried out in place cards and tables decorations. All guests were seated at a beautifully appointed long table and those participating in this hospitality were: Col. and Mrs. John F. Franklin, Capt. and Mrs. David E. Washburn, Capt. and Mrs. Manuel B. Navas, Capt. Richard O. Bassett, and Lt. Ernest H. Wilson.

Capt. and Mrs. R. A. Case entertained twenty-four friends at a delicious dinner at their quarters. Hallowe'en placecards were used with orange candles in silver candlesticks, and glowing orange pumpkin heads peeped from appropriate places. The guests were seated at card tables and covers were laid for: Major and Mrs. F. C. Phelps, Maj. and Mrs. J. D. Patch, Capt. and Mrs. O. W. Reed, Capt. and Mrs. M. E. Halloran, Capt. and Mrs. R. B. Lovett, Capt. and Mrs. V. G. Huskea, Lt. and Mrs. J. C. Kovarik, Lt. and Mrs. W. E. Donegan, Lt. and Mrs. E. J. Walsh, Lt. and Mrs. W. C. Smith, Lt. and Mrs. W. H. Vinson. Immediately after dinner the party went to the dance at the Polo Club.

Capt. and Mrs. M. E. Halloran have as their guest for the winter, Mrs. Halloran's mother, Mrs. Brewster.

The Daughters of the United States Army extend a cordial invitation to all daughters or granddaughters of regular army officers to tea on October 29th, at 4:30 o'clock, at the home of the president, Mrs. Charles D. Roberts, Block 14-440.

This society was organized last year at this garrison to maintain and renew old acquaintances of other years. It is hoped that all army girls will be interested in this organization. Will all acceptances please be sent to the secretary, Mrs. John K. Rice, or telephone her at Fort Benning 192.

Mrs. Frank Caffey entertained beautifully at bridge on last Thursday at her home on Lumpkin Road. Orchid cosmos were used with orchid candles on the lovely tea table and throughout the house, and the tallies were of the same beautiful shade. There were three tables of players who enjoyed pivot bridge and those winning prizes were Mrs. John K. Rice, Mrs. S. F. Clark and Mrs. John W. Crissey. Mrs. Frederick C. Phelps cut the consolation. Decks of bridge cards were given to all winners. Mrs. Lawrence W. Young and Mrs. Harold J. Guernsey came in for tea.

Maj. and Mrs. James L. Bradley have as their house guest, Mrs. J. C. Clarkson who is Mrs. Bradley's mother. Mrs. Clarkson comes here after a delightful visit to another daughter in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. John S. Roosma entertained at bridge on Thursday of last week. There were three tables of progressive bridge, and Mrs. A. R. C. Sander won first prize, Mrs. Julian Baumann the consolation.

On Thursday of this week Mrs. Roosma honored Miss Louise Young with a lovely bridge party and miscellaneous shower.

The Woman's Club has issued a cordial invitation to each lady of the garrison to a tea at the Polo Club on Monday, October 22nd, from 4 to 6. It is the desire of the club to have you as its guest on this occasion and if by any mischance you failed to get your invitation please consider this as extended to you personally. There is no obligation whatever connected with the acceptance of this invitation. Come, meet your friends, and learn of what The Woman's Club has to offer.

On Wednesday afternoon Miss Harriett Wells honored Miss Helen Carr of Washington, D. C., and Miss Louise Young, our popular bride-elect, with a charming bridge party at her home on Austin Loop. Garden flowers were used effectively throughout the house for decoration. There were three tables of players and Miss Elizabeth Shaw won first prize, Miss Alice Torrey second.

Mrs. Edgar S. Miller was hostess to the ladies of the Tanks at a delightful party at her home on Friday. This occasion was a special compliment to the fifteen new ladies who have recently joined. There were six tables of bridge and, while all were present, plans were made for the Tank's Bridge Club.

KATHERINE GARZA

The death of Katherine Garza, seven-year-old daughter of Captain and Mrs. James L. Garza, Inf., occurred at the station hospital on October 10, 1928. Capt. Garza is a student officer this year.

The NEWS joins the entire garrison in extending sympathy to the bereaved parents.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM STATION HOSPITAL

Captain A. H. Gilhus has returned from attending the convention of the Association of Military Surgeons which was held at Baltimore, Md. At this convention Major Edgar Hume was elected Assistant Editor of the Military Surgeon's Journal and upon completion of the convention Major Hume was assigned to temporary duty at the Surgeon General's Office, Washington, D. C.

Privates Wetherbee and Hall were assigned to and joined the Medical Demonstration Detachment.

Private Sihelnick labors under the dilusion that he has the large sum of two bits coming to him but he is afraid to ask for it, for fear Private Pierce will find out who threw the shoe away.

We wonder why Private Bynog wanted to be relieved from duty at the station hospital laboratory?

Private Smith of the Medical Demonstration Detachment states that he is learning something new every day but is afraid that he will never be able to master the strop and hoddle exercise. (Hop and side straddle.)

1st Lieut. W. B. Wilson arrived for duty at this station. Lieut. Wilson has been on duty at Camp Knox, Ky.

1st Lieut. Wade H. Johnson, M. A. C., has resigned his commission as an officer of the army and has returned to civilian life in Florida.

NEW BARRACKS FOR TANKS SOON TO BE ERECTED

It won't be long now, and the haughty doughboy who lives in the big brick house will gaze across toward Tankville and instead of the common two-story wooden structures that the Tankers now call home, a beautiful brick barracks that will rival the doubhgoy domicile will stand out before his eyes.

Approved plans should be received any day now form the office of the Quartermaster General for new barracks for the 15th Tank Battalion, a new ward for the post hospital and new nurses quarters. Funds to the amount of $500,000 from the 1929 Housing Program have been made available by Congress and construction will start as soon as the contractor to do the work has been determined.

The Tank Battalion barracks will consist of the west half of a unit set, and will be located in what is known as Block 3, along the north side of Wold Ave., west of the narrow gauge railroad. The east half of the set, to be constructed when more funds are appropriated, will house the Field Artillery Battalion.

With the completion of this barracks and the Tankers and Gunners comfortably quartered, the Special Units will next be taken care of. It is planned to build a similar barracks, when funds are available, for the Special Units, directly opposite, along the south side of Vibert Ave., leaving the center area open for a parade ground and drill field. In general the style of construction will be similar to that of the 29th Infantry Barracks.

Kitty (passionately): Do I love him? Say, does a cat like milk? Does a cow like grass?

Marie (disgustedly): Aw, there you go bringing in that personal touch again.

"Well, little boy, are you going to be president when you grow up?"

"No, they have one already."

STUDENT OFFICERS COMPLETE RIFLE FIRE

Incessantly from early morning until late evening during the past week the sharp crack of the high-powered Springfield rifle has echoed and re-echoed o'er the hills and valleys of the reservation. With the echo of the final shot Saturday morning, 109 tired Student Officers uttered a prayer of thanks, for it was the finish of the Student Officers Range Firing.

The word student generally applies to one that is learning, but judging from the scores turned in by the officers firing it seems that only a steady hand and experienced eye could have turned in the following scores.

The student officers fired the course to qualify 100 per cent, with an average of 287. With a few exceptions, all officers who were qualified as Expert before coming to Fort Benning, were taken out and used as instructors for the 29th Infantry supplementary season, so that the officers who fired during the past week are only those officers whose previous qualification was Sharpshooter or Marksman.

Lt. B. P. Purdue was high score man with an average of 322, Lt. Frank B. Loyd was second with 320, and Lt. Clark Bailey third with 319. Of the 109 officers that fired, there were 19 Expert Riflemen, 32 Sharpshooters and 58 Marksmen.

Himself: May I hold your hand?

The STUDENT

(By H. M. G.)

COMPANY B

In the homes of some 145 student officers there is rejoicing amidst the alibis that are being poured into the ears of the S. O. S., for rifle marksmanship with its attendant evils over.

In case your husbands didn't make expert, you ladies of the Service of Supply, it was the fault of the wind. According to the overwhelming opinion of 145 officers against six, the first day we fired for record a perfect hurricane swept out of the east; trees were lashed until it semed that they must be torn up by the roots; stalwart officers (there was some variety) swayed periously on the firing line while they struggled desperately to keep their rifles from being torn out of their hands. Naturally and therefore, it is remarkable that your husband did as well as he did. According to the six officers, who happened to be instructors in this instance, the wind was a mere zephyr which did but fan our cheeks with its silken breath. I am not sure which instructor it was that said silken. However, the wind is our story.

Nevertheless, at our parting exercises, Capt. Venable did say that we had shot well. Better, on the average (whatever that mans) than the class last year. Further, that B Co. had the highest average of the two companies and the 2nd squad of B Co. the highest squad average. Modesty forbids me from giving the names of the members of the 2nd squad, but our corporal is Capt. Fingarson, who apparently goes in a bit for big game hunting.

During rapid fire at 500 yards, Capt. Fingarson was seen to grow suddenly apoplectic, making strange guttural sounds while he waved his rifle frantically in the air. Lieut. Bigelow, like all good lieutenants should, rushed to the aid of his captain. There perched on the front sight of the captain's rifle was a butterfly, which obviously had not taken Capt. Fingarson's shooting seriously. The Captain said afterwards that he was at a loss as to what term to use to a butterfly. He knew that one said "scat" to a cat and "shoo' to a fly, but this animal came in neither one of those categories. Finally the Captain gave vent to terms used by veterans of the army and navy and by those who have mashed their fingers. The testimony of witnesses was that the language was a bit excessive as the butterfly withered up.

The attendant evils of rifle marksmanship, mentioned previously, were entirely domestic. Inderstand that the ladies of the S. O. S. suffered considerably during this course. When their heroes returned as the shades of night were falling, but disheveled (the heroes, not the night, which wasn't so much itself) instead of weary but still noble warriors, the ladies received a bunch of Eskimoes that let out a few gutteral grunts as their share of the conversation, and then the said Eskimoes having delivered themselves of this sop to the non-union cook, dishwasher, carpet sweeper, rug shaker, silver polisher, etc., then crawled into their igloos and went to sleep.

For the benefit of the Eskimo receivers, I am informed that the Eskimo type was preferable to the heroes that did talk. The strain on the S. O. S. of trying to say or look intelligent while "what-you-got" discussed a ¼ point left windage which gave him a 9 o'clock 4 whereas if he etc., and in the meantime, while holding your brightest expression you were desperately wondering whether you better give him a peanut butter sandwich for tomorrow or use that piece of cheese that was still in the ice box.

We noticed in this course that teacher always said and quite emphatically, when he gave us problems to work out at home (who was it that said that we should forget all school work when we left the Post?) That he would give us "a" solution not "the" solution to the problem. In the interest of reciprocity and certain other economic laws, I trust that teacher will consider our answers not as "the" answer but as "a", or even in some cases, "an" answer.

"I'm going to be a fly oculist."
"I've never heard of that."
"Why haven't you heard of fly specks?"

FINANCIAL DIGEST

Staff Sergeant Scovel is leaving us real soon for duty in the Finance Department, 2nd Corps Area. We regret very much to loose him for he has kept the men of the Detachment in good humor with his ready wit, during his short stay at this station. We sincerely wish him the best of luck at his new location.

Pfc. Kemp is a very happy man these days, and he has good reason to be just that, for he has been notified that he is to receive his warrant as Staff Sergeant. Each and everyone of the men offer congratulations and wish him the best of luck.

Pfc. Young is contemplating stepping out for practice with the other athletes of the Detachment at the game of handball. He says that he can beat the Champ of the game. The other men think this doubtful and he has been challenged by everyone of them for a try-out before meeting the Champ. The writer by the way holding that distinction (?).

Our dear Corporal Moye, since going on a milk and yeast diet, believes he will soon be in condition to make a long trip to somewhere in Alabama. His letters to his Better Half are showing vast improvement, and are getting much weightier. All due no doubt to the course in swimming and penmanship.

PONTONIER NOTES

The Fair Detail is back. The Engineers Exhibits were highly praised by all the officials of the Chattahoochee Valley Association.

"Chick" Dickerson stood outside the Engineers Exhibit talking to the light of his life, and the following conversation took place, "O Dick, I must go over to see my cousin." Chick, "Are you leaving temporarily?" She, "Oh, No, I'm coming right back."

The latest addition to the Company is Pvt. Moore, who transferred from "C" Company, 29th Infantry, to work in the Map Plant. No Ignace, that's not a beauty parlor. Remember Moore holds the amateur junior welterweight championship of the Post.

The doubtful look seen on the faces of some members of the company, at the change of Mess Sergeants has vanished entirely. There is no praise high enough for the filling, tasty and satisfying meals put out since the arrival of Sergeant Rowland.

DETACHMENT Q. M. C. NOTES

We regret to note that our efficient typewriter repairman Henry Hahan, is now ill in the hospital, with sinus trouble. He will appreciate a visit from anybody among his many friends, all of whom wish him a speedy recovery.

Technical Sergeant Frank Holzer is now enjoying a sixty-day furlough in Gulfport, Mississippi, with his family.

We want to congratulate Corporal Isaac Ford on his promotion to Mess Sergeant, this promotion being well earned. We also want to congratulate Pvts. Davis and Sharp on their promotions to Corporals.

Pvts. Rosenbalm and Copeland decided that they preferred the uncertainty of civil life to the joys of the Army life and have left us via the Purchase Route.

We are in receipt of a letter from Sgt. Bacon, a student at the Philadelphia Quartermaster Corps School. He says lots of good things for all of his friends and states that he is really putting out up there.

SIGNAL CORPS DETACHMENT PRO PATRIA VIGILANS

Master Sergeant Myron O. Bell, our Wire Chief, is now sporting a new Oldsmobile Coach.

Staff Sergeant Herman M. Perry has received word that he will soon be ordered to Foreign Service.

We now know why Corporal Allen has been so sleepy of late. Keeping in touch with the new German Zepp.

Private Roscario Lussier joined the Detachment on October 12th.

Betty—Can I get "The Dusky Stevewore."

"Taint So Betty Taint So."

Byers—I wonder if I can learn that song in the next four month.

Why?

Private Nelson—"I only have on year to do on this enlistment, but I'm going to get in class "A" if I have to re-enlist to do it."

Untie me from your apron strings again. Pop, can I borrow ten dollars? Now Sergeant Klimp you know you have no use for all that money.

Several of the members of the Detachment received cards from Sergeant Coram the past few days, who is driving overland to report to C. O. O. D. & R. Depot, Fort McDowell, California, for transfer to Hawaiian Department. Sergeant Coram stated that he was having a very good time enjoying the scenery, etc.

How do you like the classy little cut at the head of ye colyum? Lt. F. H. Curtis and his corps of crayon pushers over at the Fifth Section are responsible for this opus. To Private Lynch is due the praise for the execution of Lt. Curtis' idea. Clever, Bee calls it!

Benning looked mighty good to Bee after her sojourn for a month up at Langley Field, the Air Corps Technical School. Everyone at Langley, she found, was always up in the air!

Captain E. L. Rice, of the Second Section, after trading off "Cryin' Out Loud," his veteran Buick mode of transportation for a snappier yellow model Chrysler, while up in the Carolinas on leave, found that looks were deceiving, and that the warm-looking yellow cab could never measure up to "Cryin'," so he hied himself back up to the Carolina Hills, and returned with "Cryin' ", chugging contentedly home.

Captain J. J. Wilson, Boxing Promoter, states that he's a busy lad these days, what with prize-fights coming off every two weeks, and a stable of fighters as temperamental as primo donnas to handle.

Captain "Camera" Hall certainly has a snappy little runabout these days; one of the new "open-air, door-less" types of Elizabeths. How business-like and earnestly the Captain piercingly gazes through the windshield-less front, as though the weight of the entire 24th lay might heavily upon him.

Bee has an idea that Fort Benning is entertaining a financier unawares in the person of Captain MacKechnie, supply officer of the 29th. One moment, el Capitan dashes forth in a blue Essex—next it's a Dodge that proves transportation for the Supply Officer, and when next one sees the new S. O., it's in one of these classy new "T" model Fords, with the "broken-windows" effect.

The new Finance Officer paid a visit to the Constructing Quartermaster's office the day of his arrival. Naturally, every courtesy was extended, as it is the policy of that office to at all times stand in well with the man who signs the checks!

Lightning struck the new 29th Infantry Barracks during the storm Monday night. No one was injured, nor no lives lost. This is merely our little weekly news note.

it is raining and my nose is beginning to ache and itch and i feel like it wont be long now 'till i know winter is coming for i'll be wearing a red, red nose!

Seen on a Monday's noon:
Lt. Brinkley, formerly of the Tanks, is develops, is now a member of the Company Officers' Class. Quite a scholarly expression on the ex-tanker's countenance. Major Caldwalder still eats at the same table at which he ate years, or was it only a month ago? when Bee left Benning. Many, many new faces at the Service Club. Rank visits the Service Club, for yonder sits the Provost Marshal!

Benning Brightlights: Lt. Curtis', of the Fifth Section, new pipe.

"You can't talk like that to me big boy. I'm a he-man."
"Yeah, you know what kind of a he-man you are; one of those hee-hee men."

"Mary's a good all around girl."
"Good all around what?"
"Oh, ah— ah— all around town."

HELPFUL GOLF SUGGESTIONS

By The Pro.

Slicing is one of the worst difficulties in the playing of golf and one of the chief nuisances to get rid of. It is noticeable more in the amateur than any one else, yet it creeps upon the professional once in a while, and as a result of the slice the ball goes in exactly the place it was never intended to go and often difficulty is experienced in getting out of the trouble.

The causes of slicing are varied and many, and as a suggestion to improve on your game and to help correct some of these troubles, especially in slicing, the following suggestions, if properly carried out, will be of great aid in overcoming the habit:

HITTING ACROSS THE BALL: This is commonly caused by the player starting the down swing with the shoulder, in other words pivoting the shoulders before the arms and wrists have a chance to come into play.

LOOPING: This is caused by not bringing the club down in the same groove that it was taken up. Remember, if you take the club back with a flat back swing, use the flat back swing on the down stroke. A good way to correct this fault is to take the club half way up on the back stroke and notice how close the hands are to the body. Then take a full stroke back and swing half way down on the down stroke and see how far the hands are from the body. Then, if they are further away than on the back stroke you are looping. Another important thing to remember is that the head of the club and the left arm on the back and down stroke to the ball are in the same groove. Do not let the wrist give way so that the club wanders away from the groove.

WRISTS: Make the wrists work all through the stroke. Remember if you use the wrist to take the club back, you must use them to bring it back. Try to take a backhanded blow at the ball with the left wrist loose and the right wrist on the forward blow just like you were cracking a whip with both hands and keep the arms following through.

SWAYING: Lots of people slice by swaying their bodies. Try to keep the head steady over the ball, pivot the body so that the weight is a trifle more on the right heel than the left toe at the top of the back swing, then swing, not hit at the ball letting the body follow the club smoothly through the stroke.

GRIPPING: Do not grip the club like a baseball bat, take the club lightly in the fingers and use a flexible wrist action through the stroke. A tight grip will inevitably make you slice. Try to memorize to swing the club from the inside on the down stroke to a perfect line to the ball on the follow through. Remember distance means nothing ir you can't control it, I myself, would prefer a drive of one hundred and fifty yards down the fairway than three hundred and fifty in the woods.

PRESSING will invariably make you slice. Don't try to knock the cover off the ball, you get completely out of time. If you get out of time it doesn't run very good neither will the ball. Take a smooth relaxed swing all through the stroke and let the caddy watch the ball.

Its all in the point of view. The fleas probably complain because the dogs annoy them.

ARMORED CARS FOR CAVALRY UNITS

Armored cars for cavalry units of the United States Army have been furnished to the Second Cavalry Regiment, Seventh Corps Area, and may be brought to Fort Sam Houston for use, it was reported at Fort Sam Houston recently.

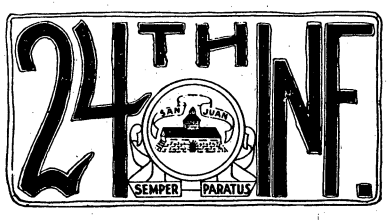
This is the first armored motor car unit to be organized in the Army, and is being done as an experiment. The First Cavalry Armored Troop, which is a part of the First Cavalry Division, which is now taking part in maneuvers at Fort Leonard Wood, Maryland, has been equipped with armored cars. This troop will eventually be stationed at Fort Sam Houston under the arrangement of troops to be started with the adequate housing at the Post.

Plans are also being worked out for a new type of tank to be used by Cavalry units, it was said. Heretofore a tank has not been made which was fast enough to function with mounted troops. —(Second Division Review).

IMPROVEMENT OF POST ROADS NOW UNDERWAY

A comprehensive scheme for the improvement of the main roads of the past has been put under way by the Post Quartermaster. A section of Wold Ave. has been torn up this week and is being resurfaced with materials secured on the reservation. This street bears considerable heavy traffic and is usually badly cut up especially in wet weather. It is believed that a combination of sand, clay and gravel will provide a surface that will not be so liable to chuck holes and bumps during a rain. The short stretch joining the 1st Division Road with the concrete in front of the Main Exchange was recently finished with a sand and clay surface which withstood the last rain storm without being cut up.

The Georgia State Highway Commission have co-operated with the military authorities in making tests of road building materials found on the reservation and have stated that the gravel used here is up to the specifications desired for use on state roads.



OUR BARBECUE

Cast—Officers and men of the 24th with their families and friends.

Scene 1.—As the scene fades slowly in we see the peaceful panorama of Fort Benning in late afternoon. Far beyond, over the Chattahoochie, an Autumn sun glows redly as it flattens and sinks towards the horizon. Before it sets we dissolve into;

Scene 2.—A long shot of the Logging Camp, showing several hundred people scattered about, talking and laughing. Dissolve into;

Scene 3.—Medium shot of white clothed cooks around the barbecue pit, forking out great pieces of meat on pitchforks.

Scene 4.—Fairly close up of an officer of the 24th Infantry sitting in his car outside his quarters in Fort Benning, waiting. Dissolve into;

Scene 5.—Close up of the officer's face, showing far-away look in his eyes. Dissolve into;

Scene 6.—A close up of a large plate of smoking meat.

Scene 7.—Back to 5. Officer's eyes glow. He licks his lips. Looks towards house anxiously. Blows horn vigorously.

Scene 8.—Medium shot of door to officer's quarters. His wife comes running out, buttoning gloves and calling back instructions to the childern. Dissolve into;

Scene 9.—Long shot. Through the windshield we see the First Division Road unwinding rapidly. Up ahead other cars are kicking up a cloud of dust. Fade out.

Scene 10.—Fade in on a general view of the grounds at the barbecue. To the right can be seen the tables for the officers, their families and friends. To the left, those of the men from the 24th with their families and friends. Beyond can be seen the barbecue pits, cook tables and white clothed men cutting up the meats. From a table on the right we see the Commandant, General E. T. Collins, step to the center of the scene and begin speaking, as we dissolve into;

Scene 11.—A close up of the Commandant. We see that he is speaking earnestly, and know that he is expressing appreciation of the work done by the Logging Camp. We fade out and fade in on;

Scene 12.—Fairly close up of one of the tables. About thirty people are seen seated. Near the middle of the table we are able to distinguish the happy countenance of Captain E. M. S. Stewart. At the far end of the table the waiters can be seen as they begin to serve the plates. Two men per table, swiftly they serve the ladies and children, and from the end again they set plates before the officers. They do this up to about the middle of the table and go back for more. Several times they do this, always stopping at the middle. Beyond this middle section all appears well, but on this side something is wrong. This way from Captain Stewart we see that the officers are not eating, in fact, as we look closer we can see that no food is before them. Looks of apprehension spread over their faces as we dissolve into;

Scene 13.—A close up of Captain Stewart receiving a re-filled plate from a waiter. As he finishes this, and while he is looking towards the barbecue pits, we shift across the ocean and dissolve into;

Scene 14.—A medium shot of a manument near Verdun, France. As we look the scene dissolves into;

Scene 15.—A close up of the monument ,showing the deeply graven words; "THEY SHALL NOT PASS."

Scene 16.—Back to a general shot of the barbecue party. In the flare of the gasolene lamps everyone can be seen on their feet laughing, talking and leave taking. As we continue to watch, the torches are one by one extinguished, till only one remains at the tables where the cooks are cleaning up. Fade out.

Scene 17.—Fade in on interior, medium shot. A man can be seen asleep on a bed. Under it are his shoes and leggins. As we look we recognize features of the happy fellow we saw at the barbecue. But that happy, placid look has gone from his face now. In its stead we can see one of anxiety, or perhaps, pain. He tosses on his pillow. He mutters in his sleep. Suddenly he sits bolt upright and stares at the wall over his bed. On this wall the figure of a huge pig slowly takes form. This gigantic porcine ghost dances on his hind legs about a pit in which a fire is burning brightly. He stops now and then to glare at the man on the bed. In this stare seems to be the accusations of all the wrongs done the pig family. The fire leaps higher. The giant pig now leaves the fire. He takes a pitchfork and advances upon the bed, and we fade quickly out to the END.

"Honest, chief, I ain't no crook. We boys was just playin' let's go in and out the winder and I wuz it."

29TH INF.

Chief of Infantry's Combat Team

In compliance with instructions from the Chief of Infantry, all rifle companies of the 29th Infantry have been instructed to select their best regularly organized squad to fire a combat exercise, involving an advance through woods, across open spaces, and firing against targets with ball ammunition.

The problem will determine proficiency in range estimation, target designation, fire descipline, fire control, rate of fire, and fire distribution. In general, emphasis will be placed on the correct application of tactical principles rather than upon the minor technicalities of training regulations.

Following are some of the interesting details:

Ammunition: Auto riflemen, 200 rounds, ball; riflemen, 60 rounds, ball; Scouts and Corporals, 40 rounds, ball, 20 rounds, tracer.

Targets: Not to exceed eight, Any squad not hitting four targets disqualified. Squad may open fire on appearance of targets.

Scoring: Will be made on a basis of 100, in accordance with a special table of values.

Time and Place: To be announced later.

Time per Squad: Not to exceed 40 minutes.

Training in the 29th Infantry

The month of November has been designated as a regimental training period. Among the interesting training events will be command post exercises, regimental tactical problems and regimental reviews. Associated with the regiment in its problems will be the 83rd Field Artillery, 15th Tank Battalion, and personnel from the Medical Detachment.

On November 10th, an exercise involving a re-enforced regiment in attack will be demonstrated for the Infantry School.

Lieut. Atkinson, our "poissonel" Adjutant, notes with serious alarm the dangerous predicament, which has befallen his brother "perzonnel" Adjutant, Lieut. E. Palmer Earle, 24th Infantry, as reported in last week's issue of "The Infantry School News."

To avoid this "doom" or "hoodoo," says Atkie, put in a requisition to the Post Quartermaster for an office in a skyscraper equipped with a parachute, then get a job as a miner in South Africa. That will sure fool the "hoodoo."

Note: Atkie now has a requisition in for an elevator, and if this is disapproved, will immediately put in for pneumatic tubes connecting his desk with the Adjutant's.

The A & R Officer, 29th Infantry, promises the patrons of the 29th Infantry Theater, a number of high class shows this season. The first one is expected to have its opening night on Sunday, October 28th, and will run for a week. Watch the ads.

The Intelligence School, 29th Infantry, is in full swing, in preparation for the Command Post Terrain Exercises, which take place in November. Specially selected men are unraveling the tangled contours, left so by the last Company Officer's Class. This stupendous work is proceeding rapidly under the able guidance of Captain "Pop" Goode. Scouting and Patrolling, Observation, and S-2 Command Post Procedure will be taught by Captain Bassett and Lieutenant Finney.

The "Reds" will find an unusually aggressive intelligence force on their trail this year.

Great excitement prevailed over in "E" Company's barracks, Monday evening, during the height of the storm, when its barracks were struck by lightning. The lightning struck one of the chimneys, knocking off an L-shaped piece of concrete, which careened off the roof, leaving a trail of over sixty damaged tiles. Luckily, no one was out in the storm to break the fall of this fifty-pound piece of masonry, when it crashed to the ground. There were no casualties in "E" Company, other than one slightly shell shocked charge of quarters, who was knocked out of a swivel chair when the crash came.

Tuesday morning, the Supply Sergeant took a good look at his Supply Room after the lightning struck it, and immediately put in for the well known brand of Franklin lightning shock absorbers. He was also requested to ask for rubber cushions for swivel chairs.

When there reported to the Regiment one day last May, One (1) Captain, ea, Hibernian, complete, no one had the slightest idea of his prognosticating abilities. Careful observation has disclosed that the state of the weather, the price of eggs, the winner of the next boxing bout—or what have you there?—may be accurately forecast by noting the angle of disturbance indicated by his campaign hat. (This hat is not a brown derby, nor is Captain Hibernian in politics, yet.)

In short, when worn cocked over the right ear, it means "am worried—don't bother me." When worn over the left ear or on the back of his head—"All's rosy and jake, let's blarney awhile." But when drawn down over the eyes, it means, "The Devil can take the hindmost and I'll help him do it."

This may be worth its weight in gold to some man in "C" Company, some day, so take note of this.

Company "A"

Our First Sergeant Hall has come back and our acting 1st Sgt. has gone back to his platoon. Sgt. Morrow has handled the duty roster for three months and I believe that any company would welcome him as a first sergeant.

Sgt. Hall states that he has been all over the East and his car did not even stutter. I bet he has enjoyed this vacation. Welcome back, Sgt. Hall.

Pvt. Foust was discharged on the 13th. What a day to pick!

Well, old "A" Company did not do so bad in the field and track meet of the 1st Battalion. We tied for second place and would have taken first if Pvt. Lupo had continued his race. Nevertheless we did well and the 2nd Battalion had better watch us this year.

What is the matter wit hthe football team? Come on, let's see a game.

—Buddy.

Company "E"

Stars of football game with Co. "F", Sgt. Franz, Boling, Pfc. Tinsley, Tillman and McCallister. McCallister made a wonderful catch of a pass from "Fat" Franz but was cut down by Company "F" in his tracks. We are still in hopes of winning the remaining games to be played after tasting defeat at the hands of Company "F", in which Tompson, Co. "F", recovered a kicked ball and was lucky enough to score a touchdown. This lone touchdown won the game for "F" Compan, 6 to 0.

Now we can say that Company "E" has won a football game. They took the second game to be played from Co. "G" by the score of 20 to 0. A repeated aerial attack won the game for Company "E". Tinsley received the first pass for a touchdown. The successful kick of a goal by Sgt. Franz added the extra point to make the score 7 to 0 in the first few minutes of play. Tillman also made a touchdown and later on in the game Franz bucked the line for the third touchdown of the game.

Pvt. Page and Pvt. Mule Edmonds were discussing the place where they were raised. Pvt. Page said he was raised on a farm and Pvt. Edmonds who was raised in the city was visiting him during the Pumpkin harvest and asked what they were. He was informed that they were mule eggs and if they were sit on for three weks would hatch out a mul. Pvt. Edmonds took one home with him and after sitting on it for three weeks decided it was no good started to take it back while going through a small patch of woods fell over a log and busted his pumpkin, a rabbit who was peacefully sleeping by the log was scared out of his pleasant dreams by the fall and ran. Pvt. Edmonds almost ran himself to death trying to catch it thinking it was the mule from the pumpkin.

Privates Crane, H. O. Jones, and P. M. Hawkins have been appointed Privates, first class.

Pvts. Garner and Ross and Corporal John Furman have returned from enjoyable furloughs with their folks back home.

Private Tucker went to the justice of the peace the other day that married him about si xmonths ago and said, "Are you sure that was a marriage license you gave me about six months ago?" The Justice of the Peace said, "Of course, what's the matter?" Tucker replied, "Well, I thought there must be some mistake, I've lived a dog's life ever since."

ARMY CUT TO MEET AIR NEEDS

With reference to the second increment of the expansion of the Army Air Corps for the fiscal year 1929, the Chief of Air Corps has been informed that the additional enlisted me nrequired will be provided by Nov. 1, 1928, through a corresponding reduction in other branches of the Army. This reduction in other branches of the service will be accomplished through natural causes and by suspensions of promotions and new appointments until the necessary vacancies have been created.

The reductions of the other branches to provide the Air Corps increase: Two Master Sergeants, 12 Technical Sergeants or First Sergeants, 7 Staff Sergeants, 55 Sergeants, 66 Corporals, 205 Pirvates First Class, 148 Privates; total, 495 enlisted men.

In order to provide this enlisted personnel for the Air Corps increase, as provided in the Five Year Air Corps Program, Chiefs of Branches have been informed that it will be necessary to render inactive the following organizations; one battalion of infantry, one squadron of cavalry, and one battery of field artillery.

The three chiefs of branches concerned have been instructed to designate the units of their branches, stationed within the continental limits of the United States, which must be rendered inactive in order to provide this Air Corp increase.—(Army & Navy Journal).

ATHLETIC ASSN. ANNOUNCES FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

With the present football season now under way and devotees of the national fall sport in the stands cheering themselves hoarse in their jubilation of the results of the game throughout the nation, Benning pigskin artists are whipping themselves into the pink of condition for the opening of the coming struggle on the gridiron between themselves in the Intra-mural schedule which has just been completed and announced by the Athletic Association.

The first game of the season will be played on November fourteenth between the Special Units and the Eighty-third Field Artillery. The Artillery team has had and is still known as being one of the scrappiest organizations to send any athletic team on the field. Though they have never won a championship, the team being whipped together as their representative this year is according to reports the best in their history and are expected to give any opposition a real fight before the season is ended. The Special Units team is somewhat of a dark horse, the material they have to draw from is of the best of the garrison. Many men in the different organizations have starred at one time or other on either the Benning team that has played here from year to year or one of the Intra-mural teams of the Garrison.

The second game of the season will be between the First and Second Battalions of the Twenty-ninth Infantry. For the past five years the First Bats have never been able to win a single f otball contest from their doughboy rivals and they are out this year for blood and revenge. Fifty-one candidates answered the call at the beginning of the training season and may be seen daily under the tutelage of Captain Reed going through their different paces. For the past two years they have shown a decided improvement over the previous years and a real team is expected from them. The Sccond Bats are always known as among the best and have since football was inaugurated at Benning several years ago always been in at the final count for the garrison championship. Their team is being coached by Lieutenant Finney, a former member of the Blue Tide of Benning.

In the third game of the season the Fifteenth Tanks, holder of the Garrison championship for the past two years, will make their debut in the Intra-Mural program. At this date they are generally considered as the best prospect in the Garrison for claimants to the cup given the winning team in this league. Practically all of the team of last year is still present with all of its players with at least two or three years of playing experience, which is of the greatest advantage. Their line is the heaviest of any team on the post with an average weight from end to end between one hundred and ninty pounds to two hundred pounds and generally conceded to be best of any to step on the local gridiron among the service teams of the past.

Interest in football has grown each year at the Infantry School and competition between the various teams and the class of football played this year is expected to be the best that has ever been played here. Already enthusiasm between the different teams and organizations is at the top with every team and organization eagerly awaiting the sound of the referee's whistle putting the ball in play at the opening game of the season.

The complete schedule of games as prepared by the Athletic Association follows:

Nov. 14th—Special Units vs. 83rd F. A. Bn.

Nov. 21st—2nd Bn. 29th Inf. vs. 1st Bn. 29th Inf.

Nov. 24th—15th Tanks vs. 83rd F. A. Bn.

Nov. 29th—Special Units vs. 1st Bn. 29th Inf.

Dec. 1st—83rd F. A. Bn. vs. 2nd Bn. 19th Inf.

Dec. 5th—1st Bn. 29th Inf. vs. 15th Tank Bn.

Dec. 8th—Special Units vs. 2nd Bn. 29th Inf.

Dec. 12th—83rd F. A. Bn. vs. 1st Bn. 29th Inf.

Dec. 15th—Special Units vs. 15th Tanks Bn.

Dec. 22nd—2nd Bn. 29th Inf. vs. 15th Tank Bn.

All games will be played at 2:30 P. M. at Doughboy Stadium. Officials will be furnished by the Infantry School Athletic Association. Sections will be reserved for units competing the day of the game.

TENNIS LADDER PROVING THRILLS FOR MEMBERS

Last week's issue of the News carried an article by Mr. Kennedy, our tennis pro, in which he explained that a "Tennis Ladder" had been drawn up for the benefit of the ladies of the garrison who were interested in the game.

The "Tennis Ladder" is the same as an old fashioned spelling class in school, with each pupil fighting for the much coveted position at the head of the class. The "Ladder" carries the names of all of the players, each player is rated by a number, for instance number one is the player that gains the right to that number by defeating all comers. Should number one be challenged and defeated by number two why then number two goes to the head of the class while numbr one goes to number two, should number eight challenge number seven and win then she would move up to number seven, etc.

During the first week challenges have flown thick and fast, daily there are changes on the ladder. The first challenge to go on record was issued by Mrs. Torrey, No. 11, to Mrs. Cook, No. 5, the challenge was accepted with Mrs. Cook successfully defending her position. It seems that No. 5 is a coveted position, hardly had Mrs. Cook rested from her victory when another challenge was dropped at her feet, Mrs. Earle, No. 6, challenged and was accepted, with Mrs. Earle winning.

After having issued the opening challenge and losing, Mrs. Torrey refused to accept defeat but promptly challenged Mrs. Knight, No. 9, this was the closest and hardest fought match since the beginning of the play. With victory almost within her grasp, fickle fortune again flitted away, leaving Mrs. Torrey loser for the second time during the week. Though suffering two consecutive defeats, Mrs. Torrey is far from despondent, "just wait until I get going," she warns them, "and I will perch on the top of the ladder."

"Could you learn to love me?"
"Well I learned to jump rope."

FORT BENNING NETMEN DEFEAT MOONEY AND SATLOF

In a brilliant exhibition of doubles play, Mr. Albert Kennedy and Lt. D. D. Hedekin of Fort Benning won over Jack Mooney, the South's second ranking netman, and John Satlof of Columbus and holder of the city tennis championship.

The sets were close and exciting. The Fort representatives dropped the first set and trailed at 1-4 in the second, but rallied strongly to pull out a victory by a strong uphill fight.

The score was 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

GIRARD BANDITS CRUSHED BY ROLLING TANKERS

The attack of the Girard Bandits was completely crushed and the Bandits scattered hither and yon o'er the Tanker gridiron last Monday evening. Journeying from their lair in Girard, Ala., the Bandits football team clashed with "B" Company of the 15th Tank Bn., on the Tank football field. Although fighting gamely the youngsters from Girard High were no match for the Tankers, play after play broke through the visitor's line, on several occasions Carver and Vallery continued to gain ground with three of the visitors trying to bring them down.

With the game starting late and darkness coming fast, the quarters were eight minute affairs, with the Tankers shoving over three touchdowns and scoring one extra poitn on a placement kick for a total of 19 to the visitors 0.

Hdqrs., Hdqrs. Brty and Combat Train

After being Honorably Discharged on July 18, 1928, Private William G. Arnold, better known as "Burrhead," sneaked up to the Recruiting Office in Louisville, after twelve days of civie life and applied for special assignment to again rejoin us. Private Arnold had all kinds of ratings offered him while in Ft. Benjamin, even was detailed on Recruiting Duty for thirty-five days, to try and push over the desired transfer. But for some reason, cause or lure Burrhead heard the old gang calling him, and could not see why he should not return to the old nest. Welcome back to the old gang, Burrhead, and luck to you for these next three years. Also with Arnold's arrival there shall be a powerful backfield on the old Pig-Skin line-up as Arnold has for past three years played a wonderful game.

With the County Fair down town last week, Corporal Summar and Pfc. Hurst thought they would give the Fair a treat by attending. Canteen checks were issued, Cpl. Summar and Pfc. Hurst armed with an abundant supply of said checks, motored down. Upon applying for entrance at the main gate they were informed that said Mazuma was of no value to their obtaining entrance. After a small conference, a large hole in the fence was spied, and the Fair was after all enjoyed by the boys even if they could not buy any red soda pop.

Pfc. Hopkins was again made Corporal last week. Now just a little wise tip from the "scribe," Wilcy, there is a little squared off circle just back of the Post Theater and if there is to be any battling to be done use said enclosure.

Upon transfer to the Seventh Engineers, of Sergeant Rowland, Corporal Edwards was made Sargeant. We all wonder if that shall have any effect on said mess hall?

Upon entering the Post Cafeteries some few nights past the following conversation was overheard after thoroughly inhaling the menu: What will you have, the waitresses popped at the boys. Don't make no difference to me, was replied from Pvt. Elmore. I think that I'll take ham and eggs was Pvt. Foster's reply. Make mine the same, came from Elmore. Funny lure that those old ham and eggs do have, and how.

While preparing for Saturday's review last Friday, Pvt. Warren was asked by the 1st Sgt. where was his bridle and blanket. Pvt. Warren informed the topskipper that it was lost, and he would not have to stand said function. Censorship prevents further details.

While Sergeant Reed is away on leave Cpl. Koski has been given the distinction of being Chief of Section. Sergeant McCallum says that if paper and pencils last Cpl. Koski may make it. As Cpl. Koski is seen all day checking up on his section, and wondering where this and that bird is.

Our football squad is rounding into shape and is ready to hear the clash and rumble of the cleated shoes come tearing down the field. Our first game from all indications shall be over at Maxwell Field the Fliers, who were defeated by the Terrible Tankers not many days past, the Tankers have a very much stronger team than our Battery team, but we have the fighting spirit and are going to try and give the fliers a run for their money.

Private Fourroux, a big strong Louisiana Frenchman, has joined the squad. Not able to thoroughly understand English any too well, Sergeant McAuliffe our coach, gave some fast commands and asked Pvt. Fourroux what the play was. After some hesitation Pvt. Fourroux said: "Musta be enda-run off tack."

After retiring Master Sergeant Murphy last month, upon his completion of thirty years service, 1st Sergeant Vogt of Battery "B" was made Master Sergeant and transferred to Headquarters Battery.

Corporal Weems reported back from leave up Tennessee way, reporting a wonderful time up in the hills hunting, fishing and whatnot. While Cpl. Weems was away his duties piled up so high that he was four days and nights getting back to his old stride. And remarked that no more furloughs for him.

Privates Kirby and Hirtzler were seen with their heads together some few days past planning and plotting on some indefinite scheme. Cpl. Douglas said he just knew that some poor bird was getting framed, or else being carried to the tailor shop for a cleaning.

Battery "A"

The "Jingle bumpty clank" of the guns and caissons as they go rolling along are heard each and every morning now. Battery A has been designated by the Commanding Officer of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion to compete for the Knox Trophy, and they are in to win.

The drivers are working harder than ever at their appointed tasks; grooming, harness cleaning and battery drill. There is some growling to be sure but in the end they are rewarded by the thrill that comes of a snappy morning drill at a brisk trot with the powerful muscles of a magnificent horse responding to his rein and spur.

The problems of the B. C. Detail are being mastered and the work is being done in an efficient manner for to see the first salvo bursting around the target is something to be proud of.

The cannoneers are being trained and drilled in the art of handling the guns in a highly satisfactory manner. That is to work silently and with the speed and smoothness of a machine. They delight in feeding the guns shell and shrapnel and as it kicks and bucks and bellows, and with a "crack-whistle-swish and road" throws out its iron messenger of death they are happy. This is not work but Gun Crew's Play.

The enthusiasm is contagious, our courage is high and we hope to bring the Knox Trophy to Fort Benning, this fall.

Men not only prefer blondes but they are willing to break the speed laws to please them. Guilty or not guilty Sarge, or was it just an excuse to see the girl and miss the road march?

The battery was treated to a new dish for breakfast last Wednesday when the "fly killer" got mixed up in the oatmeal. The battery should never be allowed to buy any rat poison.

Private First Class Lassiter has reported for duty after spending a three months' re-enlistment furlough running ridges in Tennessee. The girls of Columbus will again believe in Santa Claus.

Corporal Thompson says you can never tell by their age whether they are going to be expensive or not. The next time Corporal you should talk things over beforehand and make a budget.

Battery "B"

1st Sergeant Joe Vogt was on Friday of last week promoted to the grade of Master Sergeant. The battery enjoyed a good chicken dinner on Sunday in honor of his promotion after which Sergeant Vogt made a brief talk in which he expressed his regret in having to leave and his sincere appreciation for the men of the battery of which he had served as 1st sergeant for over five years.

Sergeant Trigg, upon having to conduct the police formation for the second time this morning in the rain, was heard to remark, that men who could not see unusually large obstacles such as match sticks for at least one hundred yards should be declared forever ineligible to promotion as non-commissioned officers.

Heard from each corner of the tents at bed check: "Hey! Corporal, gimme the butt, wilya?"

Captain Winton has lately been relieved from command of the battery and assigned to duty with the Organized Reserves at Nashville, Tennessee.

Battery "C"

WHY I LIKE HORSES

Because of their beauty, which delights my eyes.

Because of their strength, which bears me, as lightly as a feather, upon their broad backs.

Because of their speed, which carries me swiftly from here to there and back again.

Because of their intelligence, which enables them to understand my wishes, and to execute them promptly and joyfully.

Because of their docility, which allows me to rush, shouting, into their stalls at any hour of the day or night, and to pick up their feet with impunity.

And—most of all—for their fragrance, which permeates my clothing, and makes me a marked man in any company!

SOCIAL NOTES

Sergeant Moore Mondayed in Phenix City.

Sergeant Chewning is trying a new scalp treatment.

Sergeant Johnson has a new silk undershirt.

Corporal Miller wants to know who put out his "Torch-light."

We are proud, indeed, to here record the commendation which the Battery won for its appearance in Saturday's review. The line, with the exception of Blume's off horse, which was out of step, is said to have been perfect when it passed the reviewing stand.

Officers of the Day to sentry on No. five post: "What would you do if you saw some one coming out of the gun shed with a seventy-five on his shoulder?"

Sentry: "Sir, I would halt him and make him go through the manual of arms."

O. D.: "Post."

How's this for a break? Sergeant Hall, having missed two world's series games and a football game in succession, put in for a pass in order to see the returns from Monday's game. Monday's game was rained out! A respectful silence is here requested.

"Granny" Goodwin: "Left dress! As you were—there aint nobody on the left!"

Sergeant Martin, the more or less Chief of the second section, has joined the back-to-nature movement, and is spending a fifteen-day furlough among the mountains of North Carolina, where men are moonshiners, and the use of the "thumper" an abomination before the Lord.

Corporal Barksdale's flying circus, officially known as the maintenance section pulled a new one recently. They were observed attempting to move the battery wagon without having hooked the traces of the off horse.

Several changes have recently been made among the commissioned personnel of the Battery. We omit the usual applesauce customary upon occasions of this kind. The best wishes of the organization go with the departing officers. To the newcomers we merely state that we are r'aring to go with all we've got and that we hope mutual confidence and esteem will keep pace with better acqaintance.

DePRATT AND TERRY ROBERTS TO CLASH HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Tuesday Night's Lineup

Gloomy Gochenauer	vs	Chisel Chambers	3 Rounds
Fuzzy Douglas	vs	Raven Poe	3 Rounds
Pete Paccioni	vs	Grady Martin	4 Rounds
Egad Hoople	vs	Red Lawson	4 Rounds
Babe Asher	vs	Tom McGovern	6 Rounds
Blondy Parker	vs	Casey Jones	6 Rounds
Gunner DePratt	vs	Terry Roberts	10 Rounds

Tuesday night, October 13th, at 7:45 P. M., the mit slingers at Fort Benning get under way again. The big noise on the program is the ten-round mill between Gunner DePratt of the 29th Infantry, who has been meeting some of the best leather pushers in the country, and more than holding his own against all of them, and Terry Roberts, the big blond, light heivyweight from Charlotte, N. C.

Roberts is an ex-doughboy from the 14th Infantry, Panama Canal Zone. While in the tropics between 1921 and 1924 Terry cleaned up everything in sight, both in the middle and light heavyweight classes. Since leaving the service Roberts has followed the boxing game with more than average success. His record shows that he has engaged in over 150 ring battles meeting most of the light heavys that are before the public at present. DePratt's opponent has an impressive string of knockouts to his credit among them being one over Jack Feamster of Asheville, who, prior to meeting Terry was in line for a match with Tommy Loughran.

Many soldiers stationed at the Post are conversant with the hitting power of ex-Private Roberts. One who has met Roberts and who entertains a wholesome respect for the right cross that the Charlotte boxer possesses is none other than Willie Ptomey of the 15th Tank Battalion. Willie met Roberts in Charlotte back in 1926, just after the Tanker had waded through all the services to win the middleweight championship. Ptomey fought the hardest battle of his career to get a draw at the end of the 12th round. If past records count, then the boxing public is in line for another evening of keen sport.

Blondy Parker and Babe Asher are down for six round sessions. Both these youngsters are coming along rapidly developing with each and every scrap. Parker has had trouble going the distance but conscientious and proper advice from his corner has had the effect of pushing him across in his last three six-rounders. Those who saw the M. P. at Atlanta recently are firmly convinced that he has absorbed enough knowledge of the game not to burn up before the sixth rolls around. Asher's great showing against Pinkey Phillips has earned him the right to enter the select six round circle. If there is anyone on the Post that can hit harder than the Babe then someone is hiding out, for like Parker the Babe hits fast and often and at the same time has a way of evading the other fellow's wallop.

Parker takes on a tough customer in Casey Jones of Atlanta, while Asher, if reports from Charlotte can be taken for granted, is to meet a rough and ready mixer in the person of Tom McGovern, a stablemate of Terry Roberts. Casey Jones has met and defeated everything that this section of the country has to offer with possibly the exception of Boots Antley. A match between these two has often been broached but Antley's southpaw style has kept Oscar Bruce, manager of Jones, away from the Phoenix boy. Both six rounders should please.

Seldom Heard and Fiske Williamson of the 24th Infantry have hung up the gloves until the football season is over. The fans will be sorry to hear of this but the 24th Infantry football coach is a bit timid about bruised digits interfering with forward passes. Both will be missed, however, Red Lawson, who can take them, will fill in the gap this coming fight by meeting Egad Hoople of Griffin, Ga. Red wants plenty of work now that the ball season is over. Hoople promises to fulfill the desire.

An old favorite comes back this week in a four round tilt. After passing up the game for over a year, during which time he blossomed forth as a landscape gardnerer, Pete Paccioni of the I. S. D., a boy who has seen much leather in his day, both coming and going, felt the urge to re-enter the ring. And, thought it may seem folly, and we might say slug dizzy, this same Pete asked for Grady Martin, the handsome mailman of Columbus, as a prospective opponent. After his four-round setto Tuesday night, Paccioni may, after due thought brought on by urgent reasoning, decide that the peaceful, tranquil, Arcadian life is best after all.

In the first three-round bout that opens the show Gloomy Gochenauer of the 29th faces Chisel Chambers of Columbus. Following these welterweights Fuzzy Douglas will try that left jab of his against Raven Poe in another three rounder.

The coming show will probably be the last outdoor exhibition of the year. Starting with the first show of November which will be held November 13th, instead of November 6th as the latter is election night, efforts will be made to place the big gymnasium in shape to accommodate the large crowds expected to turn out this winter. Plans are being made to elevate the indoor ring at least 16 inches in addition to the installation of circus seats that will be within 12 feet of the battlers. Watch this column.

ARTILLERYMEN HONOR CAPTAIN BUSCH WITH SMOKER TUESDAY NIGHT

An elaborate banquet in honor of Capt. Everett Busch, on the eve of his departure as commander of Battery "C" 83rd F. A., was attended by the members of the battalion and many of their friends from other organizations, Tuesday night.

In his farewell address to the members of the battery, Capt. Busch expressed his thanks to the men of the battery for their willingness to co-operate with him at all times and expressed his regret at leaving the men whom he had found highly efficient and dependable.

Captain Douglas L. Crane, who will take command of the battery, spoke a few words to the men of the battery, assuring them that they would continue the high standard of work being carried forward and that all would not be work but that on the field of play they would strive to add more silver trophies to those decorating the walls of the Recreation Room.

Major Henry A. Bootz, assistant Executive Officer of the Infantry School, was the guest of honor. Major Bootz gave a highly interesting as well as instructive talk to the assembled artillerymen. After the Major had finished speaking the Caisson Riders expressed their surprise at Major Bootz's ability to speak the language of the Rolling Caissons fluently, until they learned that many years ago that he had worn the red cord with the Galloping Field Artillery.

After a sumptious spread of fried chicken, barbecue, salads and iced desserts, followed by a liberal distribution of cigars and Chesterfield cigarettes, the members of the battery and their guest assembled in the recreation room, where comedy and merriment completed a perfect afternoon.

A blackface performance known as the Battle of Rolling Bones, featuring Foots Summers and his gang of artists from the Combat Train, furnished fifteen minutes of laughter. Bob Birdsong, the far famed Crooning Doughboy, rendered several vocal selections that kept the audience begging for more. The hit of the evening came when the Doughboy sang the song of the Artillery "The Rolling Caissons." No music touches the heart of the Field Artilleryman as this song, and with the final words their applause shook the building.

ARMY RELIEF DRIVE IS ON

COMMITTEE MEETS FOR DRIVE

Outline of Work by the Society Given

On Friday, October 19th, a meeting was held of the officers selected to collect the annual contribution of the garrison to the Army Relief Society. These officers represented every organization here and they assembled, in response to the call of the Commandant ,to organize the activities connected with the drive to obtain the money which Fort Benning will send on as its share of the support of this most worthy charity.

The Army Relief Society was formed soon after the Spanish-American War to fill a very definite need. We army men never become rich from our pay; at the same time, poverty never stares us in the face for there is always enough to eat, enough to wear, a place to live and generally a reasonable balance left over to devote to pleasure. Moreover, when we get sick, the medical department nurses us and when old age overtakes us, there is the retired pay. Sudden death, however, often finds our loved ones unprepared financially and they would have no where to turn were it not for the Army Relief. On the "outside," there are many charitable societies, largely supported by wealthy people, which take care of the destitute widows and children of the different communities. We of the army, however, never become identified with any section of the country, for we do not live in any one place long and spend our lives moving about. Moreover we are a self-respecting lot and do not like to call on strangers to help us out.

Thus it is that we ourselves, all in the family, have created a charity of our own to give financial assistance to needy widows and orphans of enlisted men and officers of the regular army. The Sam Brown belt makes no difference here—sometimes it is the family of a private and soemtimes of an officer.

Recognizing the class of people which it serves, the Army Relief has made an invariable rule not to publish the names of those it helps; it would embarrass our wives to have others know that they were broke and had to be helped. Yet what are they to do? Corporal Blank waves good bye to his family and goes off to duty as he has done hundreds of times before—only he does not come back and word arrives that there has been an accident and the bread winner is dead. Mrs. Blank, terror and grief stricken, takes stock and finds that she has less than ten or fifteen dollars in the world and a baby or two to bring up. The Army Relief steps in, gives her money for travelling expenses back to her home or wherever she is to go; supplies her with funds to help out until she can make some arrangement; assists her in finding employment; helps financially to send the children to school and keeps on helping as long as needed. Right here at Fort Benning such things have happened and the Army Relief has come to the rescue.

Many are the examples that might be quoted to show the sort of work the society is doing. To give some of the cases briefly, the widow of a certain retired sergeant became seriously ill. Her daughter, a school teacher, earned a fairly good salary but two operations for her mother ,and nurses and doctor's bills took more than her income and ate up her small savings ;an emergency check and $50.000 a month have made it easier. Several aged women, widows of soldiers, are on the list. In another instance, a soldier on foreign service died suddenly of heart disease. He left his wife with several little ones and practically no money. At once, an emergency check was given to the widow and ever since money has been sent to her rgularly, and arrangements have been made to have the babies taken care of during the day and a position found for the mother; the clothing committee outfitted the whole family. Again, a young lieutenant was killed in an airplane crash; he left his wife little or nothing and it was the Army Relief which telegraphed her money and tided her through until she could secure employment. Many other cases might be given. One widow wrote: "In my sorrow, I turn to the Army Relief Society, as to a kind and unseen friend, who understands my trouble and upon whom I can lean for help, knowing that it will be quickly given." Her case was a most deserving one and she was promptly given assistance.

Educational work among the children covers the whole range from day nurseries to high school. A few are even helped to remain at college, and a number are taking secretarial courses. In general the policy is help the mothers to keep the homes together and send the children to public schools until the youngsters finish high schools, although sometimes conditions make it necessary to utilize boarding schools. An example of such a case is afforded by one child who is a complete orphan. The Society has in several instances been able to secure scholarships at different schools; one of Mrs. Russell Sage's full scholarships at Emma Willard School was recently awarded to a fatherless army girl.

During the past year alone, $62,555.67 have been spent in the assistance of widows and orphans of officers and soldiers. In addition, $12,622.84 have been disbursed for the education of army orphans. The checks totalling these large sums have gone out monthly to fifteen single women, and one hundred and eleven widows; the children who have been helped, numbered one hundred and thirty-two. The society has its headquarters in New York City and it has its agencies throughout the United States, mostly at army posts—Honolulu, the Philippines and the Panama Canal Zone, and in fact wherever the army is.

The money comes from contributions and from interest on whatever funds can

INF. SCHOOL GLEE CLUB BEGINS ACTIVE SEASON

Popular Musical Club Starts Work on Operetta to be Given this Winter

The Infantry School Glee Club, the popular musical organization which in past years has presented many pleasing operettas at Fort Benning, is beginning active work in preparation for the coming winter. Rehearsals on the first operetta for the season will begin next Wednesday evening at the Officers Hop room, under the direction of Mr. W. C. Foote, of the Columbus School of Music.

"Mikado" to be Sung

The first operetta to be given this year is to be that charming and popular number "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan which, as is well known, is a very tuneful and melodious operetta staged in a Japanese setting. Every confidence is felt by the singers of the Glee Club that they will be able to present to the music lovers of Fort Benning and Columbus, a musical treat which will compare favorably with the many successes which have been staged in the past.

During the past five years a number of very successful shows have been staged among which have been such numbers as "Knautical Knot," "El Bandido," "Pinafore," "Singbad the Sailor," "Pirates of Penzance," "Trial by Jury," and "Lelawala." All of the above were sung under the direction of Captain George L. King as director, and Mrs. Edwin Butcher as pianist and assistant director, and were heard by large and appreciative audiences. The "fortunes of peace" have taken Captain King and Mrs. Butcher to other posts, Captain King to the Staff School at Fort Leavenworth and Mrs. Butcher to Washington, D. C., where Col. Butcher is attending the War College. Great as their loss has been, their places have been filled and the Glee Club will carry on as before.

Mr. W. C. Foote, the New Director

Mr. W. C. Foote, instructor in voice at the Columbus School of Music, has been engaged as director for the new season and Mrs. Cecil L. Rutledge, who needs no introduction to the music lovers of Fort Benning, will fill Mrs. Butcher's place at the piano. Mr. Foote is an accomplished teacher of voice of wide experience and the Glee Club feels that it has been singularly fortunate in obtaining his services. While Mr. Foote lives in Macon, where he has classes in addition to his work at the Columbus School of Music, it will be possible to arrange for him to give individual lessons in voice culture at Fort Benning if a sufficient number of pupils desire this service to justify Mr. Foote in spending one day each week on the post. Already, several pupils from Fort Benning are studying under Mr. Foote in Columbus, and are enthusiastic about his ability and methods of instruction. Ar-

LOCAL ORGANIZATION WILL OPEN SEASON AT MAIN THEATRE

Three Plays on First Program of The Year

The Dramatic Club will open its season tonight at 8:30 at the Main Theater when it will present three plays. This organization was one of the most popular at the Infantry School last year, and from all indications the popularity of the club will continue during the present school year. Late Thursday over two-thirds of the tickets placed for distribution at the Officers Club had been taken, and it was predicted that all tickets would be disposed of early this morning. The admission for the opening night is free. Hereafter members of the club will be admitted to the plays given by the club during the school year. Predictions point to the largest membership this year in the history of the organization. At the close of the performances tonight, those of the audience who do not belong to the club will be given an opportunity to join at that time. Announcements will be made later as to this feature.

Three plays are on the program tonight. They are as follows, in the order of their appearance: "Just as Well," "Knives from Syria," and "Their Anniversaries." The casts for the plays are as follows:

"Just as Well"

Marie	Emma H. Case
Mrs. Carfax	Rebe S. Strickland
Doleen Sweetmarch	Jean MacKie
Capt. Tawbridge	Leonard R. Boyd

Directed by Garland J. Avera

"Knives from Syria"

Mrs. Buster	Ethel E. Green
Rhodie Buster	Patrica T. Jackson
Charlie	Albert T. Wilson
Syrian Peddler	Leon C. Boineau

Directed by E. M. S. Steward

"Their Anniversaries"

Flora Drummond-Lucy Ord	Kemper Rice
Nora	Ethel Brewster Halloran
Tom Jones	Dan Mallam
Jane Jones	Ann Cooper MacKechnie
Messenger Boy	Clarence C. Harvey

Directed by A. B. Helsley

Something About the Plays

"Just as Well" is a delightful comedy set in a town house in London. The room is strewn with wedding gifts three days before the appoined day. The girl, Doleen Sweetmarch, of a shallow, grasping nature, receives as a gift, a book of sermons from a sad disillusioned old family friend, who warns her of the dread consequences of a loveless marriage. After this visit comes the man, Capt. Tawbridge, an egotistical and susceptible male, very uncomfortable at the nearness of the wedding day.

Each, unknown to the other has decided to break the engagement. She is infatuated with a four-flusher and wants to marry him, thinking of the material advantages. He has fallen for the wiles of a designing woman who passes as a flapper and flatters his vanity.

In their conceited self-centered minds each hesitates to tell the truth for fear

WHO'S WHO!

MASTER SERGT. WM. J. STEWART
Infantry School Detachment

One of the most popular as well as most widely known non-commissioned officers of the Infantry School today is Master Sergeant W. J. Stewart of the Infantry School Detachment. During duty hours Sergt. Stewart will be found on the job at all times at his office in the new brick library building.

Aside from his military duties, Sergt. and Mrs. Stewart are the leading factors in the social work being carried forward by the enlisted personnel of the Infantry School and no social gathering is complete without their presence. It was through "Daddy" Stewart (as he is known to many) and Major Henry A. Bootz that the custom of celebrating Christmas with a beautiful Christmas tree loaded with gifts for every child of the Infantry School Detachment began, a large share of the credit for the annual benefit dance for the Children's School of Fort Benning is due them also.

Sergt. Stewart has long since passed the twenty-year milestone in the service, only a few more years and his name will be placed on the retired list. His past history in the army would combine a book. During the World War he was commissioned but was later discharged from his commission after the close of the war. His past service has always been honorable and faithful, but he does not stop to rest on the laurels of what he has done. He continues to do things and it is not of the things done but of the things that he is still doing that places him among those whom we of the service point to with pride as we repeat that "The Army Builds Men."

And still there is another to share the honor and credit bestowed, and that is Mrs. William J. Stewart or "Mother" as she is known to many of their host of friends in the service. It is the welfare and pleasure of "Her Boys" that she thinks of first of all and it is to her that many of the lads who are lonesome for a mother to confide in, bring their troubles and secrets to "Mother" Stewart, where they always find a willing listener and able adviser be it affairs of the service or the more delicate affairs of the heart.

Master Sergeant Stewart is one of the few remaining pioneers of Fort Benning. He was with the first troops to arrive at Camp Benning, which at that time was a vacant spot somewhere near Columbus on the Buena Vista road.

"THE RED MARK," a dramatic romance laid on a penal island, starring Gaston Glass, Nina Quartaro and Gustav von Seyffertitz. The story centers about De Non, the executioner, feared and hated by all convicts and his designs upon Zelie, lovely niece of Mother Carron, a life-term prionser. Bibi Ri, her lover, is about to be freed; he has been persecuted by De Non, and fears him after his release. There is intrigue, mystery and tense dramatic action which will hold you spellbound. The locale is a prison island whose population is composed almost entirely of criminals. They manage their own governments. If you like weird entrancing stories, this one will captivate you.

"Coast to Coast." Fables.

SATURDAY, OCT. 27

"THE BANTOM COWBOY," featuring Buzz Barton in a fast western. They had spent their last penny and were about to be driven out of the restaurant when help comes in the form of the sheriff's fair daughter. However, the help is only temporary and they set out —then comes a series of exciting incidents. Bold rescues, daring rides and real red blooded western manhood characterize this story.

"Goofy Fob." Christie Comedy.

SUNDAY, OCT. 28

"TELLING THE WORLD," starring William Haines with Anita Page in a melodrama spiced with comedy. A New York City night club with its semi-nude statutes, hard-eyed habitues and half clad chorus girls, furnishes the original background of this story. It then jumps to Paris where trails lead through dangers paths, and finally lands in the Orient where the celestial inhabitants add their type of mystic atmosphere to the plot. A reporter secures a job on a newspaper under false pretenses, the staff attempts a joke on him, sending him to cover a fake murder. However, it turns out to be a real murder and the plot thickens rapidly. Many tense, evciting moments are exploded with bombs of mirth. You'll like this story.

"Dog Days." Technicolor.

Paramount News No. 24.

MONDAY, OCT. 29

"DIAMOND HANDCUFFS," starring Conrad Nagel and Eleanor Boardman in a vivid melodrama of the underworld. The story centers about a great diamond, tracing its adventures from its discovery in the African mines through intrigue into the mazes of the underworld. Its sinister spell constantly wrecks human souls. Much of the detail of this story is founded upon actual history.

"Yellow Cameo No. 7."

TUESDAY, OCT. 30

"A RACE FOR LIFE," featuring Rin-Tin-Tin in a rapid moving race track story. It recounts the adventures of a jockey who goes with his dog to the southland via the boxcar route; here he becomes a jockey for a turfman whose enemies try to poison the horse and imprison the dog. The uncanny intelligence which the animal shows in extricating himself from his difficulties and spurning on to victory, the plotted against horse and rider, is amazing.

"Now I'll Tell One." Christie Comedy.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 31

"MADEMOISELLE FROM ARMENTIERES." This picture was produced in England, and is based upon the legends connected with the old wartime song which gives it its intriguing title. Two English boys fall in love with a French girl—she is commissioned by the government to secrete a German spy in her room so that false information will cause the anihilation of the Germans in that sector. There are powerful battle scenes, strong elements of human emotion and captivating moments of romance.

THURSDAY, NOV. 1

"WAY OF THE STRONG," starring Alice Day with Mitchell Lewis and Theodore Von Eltz in a gripping melodrama depicting the exploits of a famous New York gangster. A bootleg king and gangster are mortal enemies, the gangster, whose face is terribly scarred, falls in love with a blind girl. The blind girl is abducted by the bootleg king. A girl whom the latter had overthrown informs the ganster of the blind girl's whereabouts—he goes in search for her—a pitched battle ensues during which the bootleg king is killed. There are a number of tense angles to the play. The climax is extraordinary.

"Spotlight." Mermaid Comedy.

FRIDAY, NOV. 2

"ROAD HOUSE," starring Lionel Barrymore with Maria Alba and Warren Burke in a daring melodrama of jazz mad morals. It depicts the pitfalls which beset the youth of the nation and is the story of a prodical son lead to his downfall by the example of his father's mild indiscretions. Thrills, suspense, whirlwind action, heart-touching romance and humor to relieve the stress of many gripping situations, feature in this production.

"Matching Wits." Sportlight.

SAXOPHONE SOLO ENTERTAINS MAIN THEATRE AUDIENCE

Sunday evening, October 22, Corporal Ernest Orlando, 29th Infantry band and a member of the Main Theatre orchestra, rendered a solo to an audience of over seven hundred people. This was presented during the intermission between the short subjects and feature picture.

The selection played was "Waltz Llewellyn" by Rudy Weidoft; so volumnious was the applause that Corporal Orlando favored the audience with "The Sunshine of Your Smile" as an encore. The officers and enlisted men attending the show at the Main Theatre expressed themselves as being highly pleased with this entertainment.

Corporal Orlando is a very accomplished musician. In addition to his orchestra and band work he teaches saxophone, drum, celo and violin. Some time ago one of his pupils, the ten year old son of Sergeant Russell V. Wall, played the saxophone on the stage at the Main Theatre. His execution was excellent and brought hearty applause. It is hoped that Corporal Orlando will, in the future, favor us with more entertainment of this character.

On Friday night of last week Fort Benning made her formal bow of welcome and friendly greeting to the officers and ladies recently ordered to this command. The post gymnasium was converted into a veritable Egyptian garden, the lower walls being completely hidden by paintings of scenes typical of picturesque Egypt, while colorful paper serpentines were hung from the ceiling around the entire room. Overhead, blue bunting was effectively used, all banners meeting in the center where a huge dome reflector hung with many mirrors was suspended. Before a fan shaped painting featuring the purple and gold of kings, the receiving line stood: General and Mrs. Edgar T. Collins, Col. George C. Marshall, Col. and Mrs. Harry E. Knight, Col. and Mrs. Paul C. Galleher, General Lytle Brown, General Charles E. Kilbourne, General Hamilton S. Hawkins, Mayor and Mrs. Homer Dimon, Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes Browne and Mr. H. B. Crawford.

There were a large number of dinner parties before the reception. Col. and Mrs. Philip B. Peyton were hosts to the officers and ladies of the first section at a beautiful dinner at the Log Cabin.

Major and Mrs. Charles E. Coates entertained very delightfully at the Ralston. Their guests were seated at one long table, which had for its centerpiece a low bowl of pink geraniums. Tall pink tapers burned at artistic intervals. Covers were laid for Madame Coates, Col. and Mrs. Willard, Col. and Mrs. Gallaher, Col. and Mrs. Wells, Col. and Mrs. Reed, Col. and Mrs. Brandt, Col. and Mrs. Berry, Maj. and Mrs. Falligant, Maj. and Mrs. Fletcher, Maj. and Mrs. Willoughby, Maj. and Mrs. Barlow, Capt. and Mrs. McCoy, Capt. and Mrs. Abbott, Capt. and Mrs. Wilson, Capt. and Mrs. Sherman, Capt. and Mrs. Rickard, Lt. and Mrs. McCammon.

Maj. and Mrs. E. E. Lewis were hosts to the officers and ladies of the Fourth Section at a lovely dinner at their home. Orange chrysanthemums and orange wall-flowers were used with long orange tapers to give the color note of the party. The guests found their places at small tables which were beautifully appointed. After dinner the guests went to the reception and dance at the Post gymnasium.

Capt. and Mrs. Cecil L. Rutledge entertained very delightfully at their quarters a group of twenty-two friends who served together in the Philippines a few years ago. Orchid and green were the colors emphasized in decorations, low bowls of Lantanna being used quite prettily. Those present were Capt. and Mrs. Wharton, Capt. and Mrs. Mulkey, Capt. and Mrs. McFayden, Capt. and Mrs. Ambrose, Capt. and Mrs. Sweet, Capt. and Mrs. Alan Jones, their mother and sister, Mrs. Pickering and Mrs. Macy, Capt. and Mrs. Nevins, Lt. and Mrs. Soule, Lt. and Mrs. Barker.

The Sunday edition of the Enquirer-Sun carried delightful sketches about two of Benning's distinguished women: Mrs. Philip Peyton, whose charming writings have won national recognition, and Mrs. Calvin Titus, whose excellent work as leader in Bible Study, has evoked quite an ovation from her large and appreciative classes.

Place of Meeting—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Monday.
Next Meeting—Monday, Nov. 5th.
Time—2:15.

On Monday afternoon The Woman's Club entertained the ladies of the command and the outstanding club women of Columbus at lovely tea. The Polo Club was attractively decorated with a profusion of golden cosmos and purple berries. Mrs. Edgar T. Collins, wife of our commandant, very graciously received with the officers of the club, Mrs. Edgar S. Miller, president; Mrs. Benjamin G. Ferris and Mrs. Charles D. Roberts, vice-president; Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd, secretary; Mrs. Frank Green, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Everett D. Barlow, treasurer. Those assisting in entertaining were Mrs. H. A. Wells, Mrs. J. A. Ladd, Mrs. C. L. Steel, Mrs. D. H. Torrey, Mrs. H. A. Bootz, Mrs. Albert Helsley, Mrs. Ernest Barker, Misses Alice Torrey, Sue Brandt, and Harriett Wells. Mrs. Charles W. Ryder served punch and Mrs. Charles L. Willard, Mrs. Harris Pendleton, Mrs. Paul C. Galleher and Mrs. D. G. Berry presided at the beautifully appointed tea table.

The 29th Infantry orchestra rendered appropriate music throughout the afternoon.

In short talks the plan and purpose of the club and the work of the Literary Department were explained by Mrs. W. H. Vinson and Mrs. Philip B. Peyton. The Army Relief, what it is and what it does, was forcefully presented in a brief way. Since it is the one harity that is peculiarly our own, being entirely of the army, by the army, for the army, and since the women and children of the army are its sole beneficiaries, it was fitting that the interest and good will of the women of this great post be sought at the beginning of the drive that is now on.

For the benefit of those who are interested in the Woman's Club and were not present when the explanation of its plan was made a brief resume follows.

The Woman's Club was formed to fill a much-felt need for interest other than those strictly social. It is an intellectual, cultural, and artistic outlet for the women of the garrison. To interest everybody, the club has a two-fold policy.

I The Woman's Club proper.

On the first and third Monday of every month programs of general interest, such as lectures, music, solo dancing, dramatic readings, demonstrations, current events are presented. After every program an informal tea follows where you have an opportunity to meet and visit with friends.

II. The Departmental Clubs.

These clubs are sub-divisions of the Woman's Club and to belong to any or all of them you must be a member of the Woman's Club.

Many enthusiastic ladies signed up on Monday afternoon for the Literary Club and the Arts and Crafts Club.

The Literary Club, under the able direction of Mrs. Philip B. Peyton, will study contemporary world literature—taking it up from the standpoint of Realism, Fantasy, Folklore, Biography and Psychology. This group will meet at the Polo Club at 2:0 on the second and fourth Monday of each month.

The Arts and Crafts Club will continue under the leadership of Mrs. John D. Forsythe. Skilled and gifted as she is, lovely things for the home will be done under her direction at the Crafts room in the Academic Area.

All ladies of the garrison are invited to belog to the Woman's Club. If you are interested, join now, so that you can enjoy all the privileges of club for the entire year. The dues are $3.00 payable in advance. Send checks to Mrs. E. D. Barlow, treasurer.

"F" COMPANY RETAINS FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP IN 29TH INFANTRY

"A" Company Wins Bunting in Tank Battalion

(By Al Durden)

For the second consecutive year, Company "F" wears the football championship crown of the Demonstration Regiment, and during this period they have not tasted the dregs of defeat.

The deciding battle for the title was fought between "F" and "G" Companies, and was by far one of the fiercest struggles of the season.

Scoring a touchdown in the first quarter, "G" Company outplayed their opponents during the entire first half, the end of the second quarter finding the score 6 to 0 in their favor. The third quarter saw "F" fighting desperately but unable to gain against the heavy "G" line. Tommie Thomson, star quarterback for "F," had been knocked out in the opening quarter. Ripple had taken his place. In the fourth and final quarter, Ripple was knocked senseless. Gloom settled over "F" company supporters, with Ripple out, and Barron unable to go in. There was no body left to run the team. A moment later a shout went up from the north stands of the stadium where the "F" company supporters were assembled. Tommie Thompson, hurt and limping, was going back in.

With the minutes slipping an the score against him, Tommie went into action. On the second play Thomson skirted right end, stiff armed and side stepped the entire "G" secondary defense to race 35 yards for a touchdown. Tommie's toe added the extra point. On the kick-off a "G" man fumbled. Thomson scooped the fumble and raced 30 yards for a second touchdown in as many minutes. His kick from placement was blocked. A moment later Thomson collapsed on the field and was rushed to the hospital. Barron went in to run the team. Although suffering from previous injuries, the little quarterback stuck gamely to his post until the final whistle. The final score. Company "F," 13; Company "G," 6.

Settling a feud of two years' standing, "A" Company of the 15th Tank Battalion defeated Hdqrs. Company for the Company Chamiponship in a closely contested game at the Doughboy Stadium 6 to 0. In this game as in the battle between the Demonstration outfits, one man was the individual star of the game. This player was "Ole Zeke" Segrest of Company "A."

For the first three periods the teams battled to a scoreless tie. Time and again Brown, Kiker and Stansbury, Hdqrs. star backfield trio, ripped into the "A" line for gains, and always in the shadow of their goal post, "A" company would brace and hold. Meeting the charge of the opposing team on every play was "Ole Zeke" Segrest. Wherever the fight was hottest Zeke was there, helmet gone, his face bruised and bleeding, Segrest refused to give an inch. With four minutes to play in the last period it was "A" company's ball on the 50 yard trip. A long pass from Smith to Hull gained 200 yards. On the next play another pass Smith to Hull gained 15 yards. On the next play Smith crossed up the offense by passing to Segrest, who was amply rewarded for his gallant fight when he crossed the last white strip for a touchdown and the company championship of the Fifteenth Tank Battalion.

BIG FIGHT CARD MUCH ENJOYED LAST TUESDAY

Army Ace Stops Carolina Champion in 4th Round; Babe Asher Wins Over Tommie McGovern.

Icy winds and a cloudy sky failed to dampen the ardor of the fight fans who attended the Boxing Show held at the Fort Benning fight arena last Tuesday. The last out-door show of the season was well attended despite the inclement weather, the arena being well filled by a crowd estimated at two thousand fans.

Fandom was well rewarded after braving the cold and chilling winds by a fast program that reached its peak when the army ace, Gunner DePratt, stopped Terry Roberts in the fourth round of the main-go.

In adding Terry Roberts to his knock-out string, DePratt achieved another round in his steady climb into the midst of the boxing world. Roberts is considered by fight critics as one of the best light heavy in his class today. He was picked to win over the Gunner and his backers were confident enough to place even money that he would win by a knockout.

The Main Go

Roberts entered the ring first and was cheered heartily. A burst of applause broke out a moment later as DePratt crawled through the ropes. After the customary instructions in the center of the ring both boys went to their corner to await the bell.

The first round was a bit slow. Gunner snapped a jab to Terry's face but was short by inches when he attempted to cross his right to the jaw. Roberts weaved into close quarters but the Gunner tied him up in a clinch. Both boys swapped punches at close range. Roberts seemed to be working for the Gunner's mid-riff.

Terry came out for the second round in a crouch. Gunner missed a left and right to the head as Terry came in close. Terry sank a left to the Gunner's chow-hall as they clinched. Gunner nailed Roberts with a smashing right to the body as Terry attempted to weave in close. DePratt was over anxious with a smashing left hook, missing by inches. He took Terry's right to the body for his trouble.

Both boys began to warm up to their work in the third. In the fast mix-up in the center of the ring they swapped body blows at close range. Roberts slipped to the floor, DePratt helping him to his feet. The round ended with both fighters sparring for an opening.

The final round was short and sweet. Terry ducked the Gunner's left hook but the Gunner's right landed high, opening a cut over Roberts' right eye. As Terry staggered back from the impact of the right, the Gunner's deadly left, that has proved a neverfail sleep producer, found the button. Roberts went down for the count of nine, staggered to his feet only to collapse again completely knocked out.

Preliminaries

Owing to the frigid weather the preliminaries were rather tame compared to the usual brand of fights presented. In the opening bout Gloomy Gochneneur of the 29th Inf. and Chisel Chambers of Columbus, fought a pretty three round draw. In the second bout, Pete Causey, a stablemate of the fighting gunner, put an end to Fuzzy Douglas' string of victories. Causey handed the artilleryman a nice drubbing in their three round melee.

The "Fighting Wop" will never don the mitts again. In his attempted comeback Paccioni showed he had nothing left of his former self but a fighting heart that would never admit. Martin won easily. Red Lawson flashed a Tommie Billard shift combined with a haymaking right, that almost brought him a victory in the first round of his fight with Egad Hoople, but age took its toll and Red was forced to throw up the sponge in the third round.

Babe Asher brought another victory to the Doughboy colors when he out-fought Terry McGovern of Charlotte, N. C., to take every round of their six round battle.

The semi-final was a fast bout between Bud Spittle of Charlotte and Blondie Parker of Fort Benning. Both boys were slow about mixing until the fourth round. The fourth, fifth and sixth were crammed full of action with both boys giving and receiving on even terms. Although Spittle received the decision Parker fought one of the best fights of his career and the decision was of the hair-line variety.

GARRISON TRACK AND FIELD MEET TO BE HELD AT FORT BENNING NOVEMBER 12TH

(By Al Durden)

A feature athletic event of the winter season will be the Garrison Track and Field Meet that will be held at Fort Benning Monday, November 12, 1928. This will be the biggest event of this kind ever held in the history of the Infantry School, athletes from every unit in the garrison competing.

The following Units will enter teams that will compete in the Meet to be held at the Doughboy Stadium: 1st Battalion, 29th Infatnry; 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry; 83rd Field Artillery Battalion; 15th Tank Battalion, and the Special Units, The Infantry School.

While the Units mentioned above are competing at the Stadium, the Units of the 24th Infantry will hold a similar Meet on the 24th Infantry Field. This Meet will be among the Units of the regiment for regimental honors while the times of the winners in each event will be officially recorded and compared with the time of the winners in the Meet held at the Doughboy Stadium. The winning time in each event will be announced as a Garrison Record. These records will be kept by the Infantry School Athletic Association and can be broken only in a regular Garrison Track and Field Meet.

The following will consist of the events:

Track Events—100 yd. dash, 220 yd. dash, 440 yd. dash, 880 yd. dash, 1 mile run, 220 yd. low hurdle, 120 yd. high hurdle; 1 mile relay race (4 men).

Field Events—Pole Vault, Discus Throw, Javelin Throw, 16-lb. Shot Put, Running High Jump, Running Broad Jump, Tug of War (without cleats).

The meet will be governed by the rule of the A. A. U. with such exceptions as herein stated: Tug of War, uniform, white long pants, garrison shoes as issued, no prepared shoes or boots, heel plates, cleats, points (sunken or otherwise), will not be allowed. No gloves or adhesive substance whatever shall be used on the hands or rope. A pull shall be won when one team shall have pulled the entire opposing side over the center of the line.

Points will be awarded for the first 4 places as follows (except for the tug of war and the mile relay race):

1st Place, 5; 2nd place, 3; 3rd place, 2; 4th place, 1.

For the Tug of War no points will be awarded but a suitable engraved trophy will be presented to the winning organization. For the Mile Relay Race the points will be as follows: 1st, 10; 2nd, 6; 3rd, 4; 4th, 2.

All medals and trophies will be presented immediately after the Meet.

POLO TEAM AT FORT McPHERSON

Fort Benning's malletmen are now at Fort McPherson for two games. The first game was placed yesterday afternoon with the Governor's Horse Guards. Sunday the local team and the Fort McPherson team will meet. Due to fact that this paper went to press Thursday afternoon results of the game on that day could not be published in this issue.

FLAG RACE ON NOVEMBER 10

Much interest is being shown in the Flag Race scheduled to take place on Nov. 10. There will probably be eight teams in the race and the distance covered will be about twelve miles. More details later.

DOUBLE ATHLETIC ATTRACTION THANKSGIVING DAY

Marathon Race Will Feature Events of The Day

Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November twenty-ninth, will witness a double athletic attraction in addition to the regular holiday festivities. In the morning runners of the different organizations of the garrison will assemble in Doughboy Stadium to compete in the five-mile run or modified Marathon Race as it is being called. In the afternoon the football teams of the Special Units and the First Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry will clash to determine the supremacy ot the other.

Interest in the Marathon is at a high pitch. As an evidence of this each of the organizations have begun to develop and train the team they expect to enter the field the day of the event. Those men of which there appears to be quite an array may be seen daily running about ovr the garrison in preparation for the grind. Their course in training takes them over hills and ditches and through sandbeds as a preparation to build up the stamina required to last through the trying and nerve racking ordeal.

Probably a short history incident to the naming of the Marathon race would be interesting. Marathon is a small cillage about twenty-eight miles northeast of Athens and at the particular time in mind was under the Athenian or Greecian rule. According to history and the decision of scholars and generals one of the "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World" was fought here. This happened in 490 B. C. when Darius, king of the Persians and one of the leading powers of the world at that time, sent a force to punish and bring to subjection the Breeks for having defied his rule. The Greeks under the leadership of Miltiades met and completely routed the Persians and forever banished the prospects of Persian rule. At home the Athenians were anxiously awaiting for news relative to the outcome of the battle. To relieve their anxiety Pheidippines, who had that day fought through the entire battle was dispatched, due to his being the fastest runner to bear the glad tidings. In the course of time he reached the Grecian capital where throngs were shouting his praise, yet the messenger never heard a word of the welcoming cheers. Instead historians relate he threw his arms over his head and uttered one word, Victory, and dropped to the ground dead.

To commemorate his deed in all Olympic Races thereafter the long race has been known as the Marathon.

ARMY RELIEF SOCIETY DRIVE

As announced in the columns of this paper last week, the annual drive for the Army Relief is now on, having opened on Monday. According to an article which appears on the front page of this issue, the various representatives at Fort Benning who have charge of this drive within their respective units have met and organized. Everyone is urged to give from the October pay.

To a great majority of army folk at Fort Benning, the work of the Army Relief Society is well known. There may be some here, however, who are not altogether familiar with the activities of this splendid society, the army's own charitable organization.

The Army Relief does not help out anyone of us who may be in need of assistance; it devotes itself exclusively to those who need it most—the widows and orphans whom both officers and enlisted men leave behind when they pass on. The time always comes when the hand of death will strike into our homes and sometimes it comes suddenly and the family of a buddy is left destituet with nowhere to turn. That is the emergency in which the Army Relief helps out. The widow is given money for her immediate needs; she is helped financially by regular checks that come along monthly until she can get on her feet; she is helped to find a position; and the children are assisted by money or a scholarship which enables them to get an education.

There is one phase of the work, or the scope of the work of the Army Relief Society that should be emphasized at this time. That is, that the widows and orphans of both officers and enlisted men may receive aid from the organization. The impression has been heretofore that the work of the Society was confined solely to the dependents of only officrs. This is untrue. In fact, the records show that much of the aid carried on by the Army Relief is extended to the dependents of enlisted men.

A Few Examples of the Work

"One hundred and twenty-nine families are receiving a check from the treasurer each month, sixty-seven families of officers and sixty-two of enlisted men. Of this group fifteen were single women, one hundred and eleven were widows, and one hundred and thirty-two were children. To them has gone on an average, a total of more than $5,000 each month of the past year.

"The beneficiaries of the Army Relief Society are scattered over the United States. Twenty-two are in New York state, nine in the city of Washington, five in Kansas, four in Virginia, two in Tennessee, five in Texas, three in New Jersey, two in Minnesota, one in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Iowa, Georgia, Dakota, North Carolina, and Porto Rico. Two in Colorado, two in Illinois, two in Ohio, three in Oregon, twenty in California, two in Hawaii, three in the Philippines. They can be met everywhere, and people who meet them daily do not know they are being helped by our society. It is the confidential nature of the work which makes the strong appeal. 'In my sorrow,' writes an army widow, 'I turn to the Army Relief Society, as to a kind and unseen friend, who understands my troubles and upon whom I can look for help, knowing it will be given quickly.' "

"Every case is considered separately. The needs of no two cases seems alike. New cases have often had emergency help—a sum of money sent at once when the death of an officer or an enlisted man has left his family bereft and financially embarrassed. Frequently this is a temporary condition, and many widows stress the fact that the Society helped them in their greatest need."

As a result of the help given by the Society, many orphans have been enabled to complete their education, some have been enabled to enter and complete the course offered by the Military Academy and carried on the life of their fathers which seems to have been a tradition; others have gone out and succeeded in other lines of work and are prominent today in their career chosen as their life profession. This is just another example of the benefit of the aid given by the Society.

Work Carried on by Committees

The work of the Society is carried on by three committees—Relief, Clothing and Education. Taking the annual report of this year, we wish to call your attention to an example of the work done by each of the committees. The report of the Relief Committee contained the following example: "In the middle west lives the widow of a non-commissioned officer, with two children. She developed heart trouble. About the time she was forced to leave her position, the bank in which she had her savings failed. She owned her small home but factories have been enroaching upon the neighborhood which lessened its desirability. When the monthly check to help her was sent, she was asked to tell of her circumstances. Due to the advice from us, she has been able to exchange her house for another, the health of the little family is improving and real constructive work has resulted from our assistance."

The Committee on Education reports: "Total number of cases assisted during the past year was 63. Number of officers' children assisted, 36; number of soldiers' and non-commissioned officers' children assisted, 27." Numerous examples of success of many children of officers and enlisted men were reported by this Committee, whose work alone is worthy of special consideration. Never before have demands been so great for those properly educated to carry on his or her respective professions. Sixty-three children have been started on the right path in the way of education by the work of the Army Relief Society.

The Committee on Clothing: "The Committee has received 788 articels from forty donors. 604 of these have been sent out to seventy beneficiaries. Parcels have been sent all over the United States. Many letters of gratitude have been received from those assisted by the Committee."

We could go on and on with examples of what the Society is doing through the work of the three Committees. These few examples alone should bring to every one at Fort Benning the seriousness of the drive which is now on. Today we and our families are healthy, and we see nothing but a bright future for our loved ones, but who knows what the morrow will bring? Your family may need the assistance of this splendid organization—the Army's own relief society. The drive is now on and don't fail to contribute your bit at the pay table on the 31st of October. Don't forget that the work of the organization extends to widows and orphans of both officers and enlisted men.

Get in touch with the representative of your organization and tell him you wish to help in the Army's own relief work. The names of those officers appears elsewhere in this issue. Let's get back of this worthy cause and go over the top with a big fund this year.

THE COMMITTEE DESIRES THAT ALL CONTRIBUTIONS BE MADE ON OCTOBER 31.

FOURTH CORPS AREA LEADS U. S. AGAIN IN R. O. T. C. STUDENTS COMMISSIONED

Data just made available by the War Department to Headquarters 4th Corps Area at Fort McPherson, Georgia, reveals that the eight Southeastern states excel all other corps areas in the United States in number of R. O. T. C. students who were commissioned in 1928 in the Organized Reserves of the United States Army.

Nine hundred and twelve such students were commissioned from the 4th Corps Area. The 7th Corps Area was second with 827, and the 3rd Corps Area third with 751, while the grand total commissioned over the entire United States was 5,142. Based on the population 571 might be considered as the expected proportion for this Corps area.

The 912 students commissioned in the 4th Corps Area were assigned to ten different arms and service, including the Infantry, Coast Artillery, Field Artillery, Cavalry, Air Corps, Corps of Engineers, Signal Corps, Ordnance Department, Chemical Warfare and Medical Corps.

Some of these young men are taking the places of world war officers who for one cause or another have severed their connection with our peace time army, and some are being added to the Organized Reserve strength to meet the War Department's peace time objective.

Our country is looking to young men from this valuable reservoir, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, to constitute the bulk of the commissioned strength of our army in the event of another national emergency.

The STUDENT

(By H. M. G.)

For the information of the general public of the Infantry News who are following each episode in our thrilling military serial, I beg to announce that the third reel shows us in the sitting position amidst the automatic rifle, or rather its 57 parts.

The plot deals with the stripping of the gun down to a threadbare or second mortgage state. By slow but honest toil the gun is again built up to its pristine state where it may look any honest target in the face.

The crisis of this reel comes when one of the essential parts strays from the fold, in the hope I suppose of becoming an automatic pistol. Of course the wrong officer is accused of leading this innocentam astray. Shame and an item on the pay roll stare our hero in the face. The last act shows the "whoseit" returned to its happy family and our hero vindicated.

That in brief is the automatic rifle course up to date. Obviously I have only given the bare plot. There is a lot of conversation principally a monologue by that very finished actor, Capt. Jones. I have a suspicion that there would be more dialogue if Capt. Jones hadn't apparently been brought up in a gun factory and slept with a sear, extractor, gas cylinder tube and what-not under his pillow.

There is also comedy in this reel, where the home life, so to speak, of this gun is explained to the wife and the functioning of the automatic rifle becomes a bit general and its parts fall largely under the nom de guerre of "gadgets."

For our lighter moments we have the pistol. This course is extremely brief in fact it is covered in two words, "trigger squeeze." One has to join the royal order of trigger squeezers to fully appreciate the far reaching significance (even unto the 2 ring) of these words.

Music is a part of this course, that is broadly speaking. Solos are sung by Capt. De Ware. The tune varies, but the words which are chanted for this ritual are, "Ready on the right, ready on the left, ready on the firing line." It is probably not generally known, but last week Capt. De Ware broke the world's endurance record for continuous chanting, and be it said he chanted with feeling.

The student officers class recently experienced its first separation. A large number of our most eligible bachelors signed up to take the signal communication course. I understand that what appealed to them in the course was the fact that various private means of communicating between two persons are taught. Those parents who possess eligible daughters and who hear strange tappings in their homes would do well to learn the Morse code.

As for the married men who elected to take this course, it was a piece of steel that drove them to it—the bayonet. After all, coiling up little pieces of wire has its points over climbing over walls and galloping madly hither and yon with a bayonet. At any rate the telephone girls have left us for better or worse. In the case of Capt. Orsinger and Lieut. Rees it appears for the worse.

It seems that the telephone girls were climbing trees, a bit unseemly in itself. Capt. Orsinger, who apparently was making a practical demonstration of the laws of falling bodies, let go of his perch. The demonstration was a success though the Captain was unable, at the moment of impact, to discuss the matter. Lieut. Rees gave a very pretty demonstration of the laws of fiction. The only criticism of his work was that it was considered that he used an exaggerated case in testing the frictional resistance of the human body against pine bark. The pine bark fared the better.

Battery "A"

Private First Class McRae who firmly believes in the safety slogan "Stop, Look and Listen," forgot to look one day last week and was forced to break all speed records getting into camp.

Private First Class McFarland was heard to ask Corporal Patrick what did his girl (McFarland's) mean when she said he was of a small caliber but a large bore.

Sergeant Regan's conservatory of string instruments goes off at full blast each evening now since his orchestra, after several attacks has finally succeeded in capturing the strain of "That's My Weakness Now." A wonderful feat but we can't see why the Sergeant is trying to make it the national anthem.

Private First Class Coffin received permission to speak to the Personnel Adjutant last Friday and was heard to ask the Adjutant if he could put in for a discharge on account of incompatibility. Slim we hope you succeed and set a precedent.

We have heard of men coming into camp minus their coat, cap or hat, but a certain blonde Sergeant known as Pete to his buddies, rolled in the other night not only minus his hat but also his socks. Who said an artilleryman couldn't run? Not to be outdone, the next night a certain Sergeant, the one who prefers blondes, arrived with his eyebrows arched. Oh my! The morale of the army is getting low and lower.

Privates of the battery "attention" and on your spurs, the dining room orderly is bucking for the private first class vacancy that is open. Did you notice the spotless white table cloth that is on the 1st Sergeant's table?

We understand that Private Priles is asking for a transfer to the I. S. D. What's the big idea, Greek, there are no restaurants over there?

The long distance "gimmie" record now held by Private (Doc) Abernathy is in danger of toppling. Private (Waterhead) Evans is gaing speed, growls and tobacco daily.

Events that should but will never happen in the battery:

Private Evans police up.

Private Scoggins see the sun go down without having been "giged."

Private First Class Rogers win in Black Jack.

Sergeant McCann lose in Black Jack.

Mess Sergeant Regan forget there is such a dish known as S. O. S.

For all men of the battery to draw a full pay day without owing three-fourths to the battery fund.

Private First Class Chapman wonders if his right name is not Brock; he seems to be known by that name in Columbus.

Private James R. Hicks, who will be discharged in a few days, thinks the Mess Sergeant is trying to re-enlist him by feeding such good chow lately.

The records of the battery show Corporal Sailers to be one of the old timers but one of the medical officers told him he was just a recruit and needed lots of instruction.

Private Harris is trying to purchase a discharge to complete his education and would like to obtain a B. S. degree if it wasn't for having to be a bachelor. Harris, a bachelors degree does not mean that you can't marry.

Private First Class Branch, battery mechanic, being called upon by Lieutenant Bartlett to put a gun in abatage replied that he had not been issued any abatage.

Battery "C"

It is a custom passed on to us from ancient days to commemorate the parting of old friends or the welcoming of new ones with a big feed, speech-making and other entertainment and wherein there enters also, love, loyalty and comradeship for those to which dod honor, it is an occasion given to serious thinking and we feel things that we can never express which make us better men and ring us all closer together. Tuesday night, October 16, 1928, was an occasion of this character. Gathered together in their mess hall with many of their friends, the members of Battery "C," 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, did honor to a retiring battery commander and an incoming battery commander.

Sergeant Grider outdid all his former efforts—which we all know are above the average—in his preparation for this occasion. Unlimited food of so many kinds that we haven't space to mention them, good music and a big grin of his own for all comers.

Captain Busch, the outgoing battery commander, was present, his usual dignified self. He made us a speech which was fine, but would have been better had he spoken before eating. However, he received many rousing cheers and it is evident that his going is being taken to heart by Battery "C."

Captain Crane, the incoming battery commander—we do not hesitate to say, made a very emphatic, if short, speech, which was readily appreciated by all.

Major Bootz, known by most everyone present and celebrated as a splendid speech-maker, was one of the guests. Major Bootz, who was formerly an enlisted man, made a very fine talk, which was greatly appreciated, the more so because it came from his experiences as a soldier of thirty years' service.

After supper all repaired to the battery recreation room, where entertainment was furnished by "Foots" Summars and his "black face troup" of Headquarters battery, which was much enjoyed by all. Al Durden was also present—you can't keep Al away from the eats. Al and his buddy, Bob Birdsong, entertained with some real good jokes.

We then had a little boxing between Privates Childers and Zeman. Childers put Zeman to sleep and "Pip" Gannon didn't need to count—because he was out.

Long about that time "Doc" Chandall got sleepy and Sergeant Hall wanted to stop it—he was afraid he would have to write it up—but wished it off on yours truly, so we all went home full of chicken and dreamed of—oh, won't you hush.

ALL-ARMY JUNIORS JOIN JUNIOR GRIDIRON LEAGUE

(By John Wright)

The All-Army Juniors, a fast and furious football squad, composed of sons of officers and enlisted men of Fort Benning, has been entered in the Junior League of the Columbus Junior Football Association, with the first game of the series being played on the Fort Benning gridiron Saturday, October 27, 1928, the time to be announced later.

The Juniors have played a fine brand of ball thus far this season with pick-up teams and now that they are in real company it is hope dthat they will come out at the top of the league. The team is under the able coaching leadership of Lieut. J. H. Gilbreth of the 29th Infantry who is now ironing out some of the kinks in the line-up in order to get the boys away with a fine start on Saturday.

From all reports Saturday's opposition, the Rose Hill team of Columbus is a very fast aggregation and it is believed that the game will be well worth seeing. The boys are anxious that everyone attend these games and help to encouarge them on to victory.

The probable starting line-up for the local team will be as follows: ends, Hoop and L. Abbott; tackles, Seaman and A. Abbott; guards, Franklin and Kingman; center, Wright; quarterback, Martin; halfbacks, Dodd and Brandt; fullback, Lawson.

The season's schedule follows:

Oct. 27—Rose Hill at Fort Benning.
Nov. 8—Linwood Giants at Stadium in Columbus.
Nov. 10—McIlhenry at Fort Benning.
Nov. 17—North Highland Rats at Fort Benning.
Nov. 22—Oglethorpe Longhorns at Stadium in Columbus.
Dec. 1—East Highland War Eagles at Fort Benning.

'TENNIS LADDER" CONTINUES TO HOLD ATTENTION OF NET PLAYERS

The rungs of the recently formed "Tennis Ladder" are being loaded to capacity to test out the strength of each and to see if there was any misjudgment in the selection thereof. During the past week challenges still continued to pour into the office of the tennis club challenging the holders of the different positions to defend their ranking or forfeit same. But of course since all of the members are true sportsmen none were refused and the weekly rounds were played.

Those making the best of showing during the week were Miss Stailla Franklin who on the mythical ladder holds the position of number three on the list challenged Miss Sue Brandt holder of number two position and lost in a well played match the score being 6:3, 6:4.

The rallies of each player were long and both players exhibited a brand of tennis which was well worth watching. With a little practice and play against strong opposition they have and show promise of developing a strong game. Miss Brandt's slightly severed ground strokes probably gained the decision for her.

The feature match of the week was between Miss Brandt, number two player, who challenged Mrs. Wessels, holder of the number one position, and incidentally winner of the post championship last year.

Miss Brandt won the championship at Fort Leavenworth last year and in her challenge of Mrs. Wessels the most dangerous of all challangers came forward, but the veteran playing of Mrs. Wessels brushed aside her opposition, the final score being 6:4, 6:1.

In winning this match Mrs. Wessels retained her position at the top of the ladder and the style of play she employed is sufficient reason for her topping the list. The feature of her playing being in court corner playing. She also returned many balls that the ordinary player would have never attempted to play let alone return.

Miss Torry who for the past two weeks has been hurling challanges and then loosing broke the loosing streak this week and broke into the win column when she defeated Mrs. Jackson. Both of these players are showing a decided and steady improvement and if it keeps on continuing Miss Torry's taunt to others that she wil land on top of the ladder yet may materialize into a fact with the result that others will be challanging her to defend her title instead of her throwing down the gauntlet in defiance.

Any morning now the courts may be found well occupied by lady players and any racquet enthusiasts are heartily asked to join the incoming ranks. Within the past two weeks Mrs. Weaver and Mrs. Bond are among the newcomers to enjoy the courts.

Jane: Aw, you poor Swede!
Swede: You should talk! The only great Dane there ever was was a dog.

of breaking the other's heart. But suddenly it is blurted out by one to the great relief of the other. They then exchange confidences at which time some startling and interesting information is brought forth. But in the end it is "Just as Well."

"Knives From Syria"

The scene is an Oklahoma farm house, the home of the widowed Mrs. Buster and her 18 year old daughter, Rhodie. It is about eight o'clock on the evening of the 10th of October. Charlie, the Buster's hired man, has gone to Verdigrio to get his horse shod, and has not returned, although it is long since dark and well past dinner time.

It appears that Mrs. Buster is so anxious to keep Charlie on the place that she is planning to marry him to Rhodie, "coming Christmas." Rhodie is not at all pleased, because as a matter of fact, Rhodie is tired of the farm and its humdrum life, and is actually very much fascinated with a Syrian pedler who has been making annual trips to that section of the country for some few years. He has courted her too, in person and by letter, and asked her to marry him, and she has reached a point where she would be glad to go with him, if she could get away. The result is she isn't caring what happens to Charlie, but her mother, Mrs. Buster, is worried half sick lest Charlie has been hurt.

An examination of the Syrian's last letter to Rhodie indicates that he was to be in Claremore, a nearby town, on that very day, and come out to the farm that evening. In fact, he is very likely hanging around outside some place right now. It further develops that Rhodie has told him the reason she can't marry him is that she is practically being forced to marry some one else, and naturally he has been able to see who his rival is.

About that time Charlie runs in. It develops that he has just been villianously attacked. A man wearing a dark colored bandana handkerchief over his mouth has assaulted him. This man grabbed his horse's bridle, and slashed at Charlie with a knife. The horse jumped, which probably saved Charlie's life, as the knife only grazed his hand, making a slight scratch, rather than a serious wound. Charlie is terribly frightened, but he has to go out and feed his horse, so he takes a revolver and goes out.

Very soon after Charlie is gone, the Syrian pedler comes in. He is wearing the dark colored bandana, and it is quite evident from his talk and actions, as well as his appearance, that it was he who attacked Charlie. Not only that, but he lets it be known that it is a Syrian custom, if two men love the same girl, one kills the other, or they fight it out openly with knives, to see who gets her. He shows the knives from Syria.

"Their Anniversary"

The one-act play appearing third on the program to be presented this evening in the Main Theatre by the Fort Benning Dramatic Club is "Their Anniversary" by Alice C. D. Riley. The first production of this play appeared in the garden of Miss Eleanor Bissell, Pasadena, California, and was directed by Gilmore Brown of the Pasadena Community Playhouse.

It is a comedy dealing with the trials, troubles and triumphs of neighbors. Flora Drummond, a sweet young nearbride is neglected by husband Gerald who loves golf not wisely but too well. Jane Jones attempts to uplift an indifferent world at the expense of a devoted husband, who until recently has worked at the office each day and dug in the garden evenings. The end of Flora's patience and Tom Jones' good natured inaction comes when their respective life partners forgot their anniversary, which happens to be the same day. Flora plans and is assisted by Tom in executing a little scene which arouses Jane's jealously and awakens Gerald. This causing them to stay at home more. Nora, the Drummond cook and house-maid, is Irish, humorous—and lovable. She prepares a "beautiful" dinner for the double anniversary but because of the many delays the soup "all biles away" and the roast "burns to a crisp." However she manages to salvage the cake which plays its own part in a humorous ending of a delightful comedy.

Tonight's production of "Their Anniversary" will be directed by Albert Helsley. Lucy-Ord Kemper Rice who is remembered as Lettie Lythe the movie actress in "The Whole Town's Talking" and who was heard but not seen in the radio play "nI the Dark" will play Flora Drummond. Jane Jones will be portrayed by Ann Cooper MacKechnie who took the lead in "The Whole Town's Talking." Dan Mallam who was the young English officer in "The Drums of Oude" will be Tom Jones—the neglected husband. This evening Ethel Brewster Halloran will delight the audience by her interpretation of Nora. Casper Crim will be Gerald Drummond, who is liable to win a low golf score at the price of high alimony. The whistling messenger boy will be Clarence Clinton Harvey, Jr.

The cast is an unusually strong one, and this production has been prepared to please the audience.

Capt. J. C. Newton, the director of plays for the club, predicted the club's first night would be a big success.

DON'T LET THIS HAPPEN AGAIN

be invested. All income is used for charities or for costs of operation, such as printing; not a cent is spent on salaries, as all officials give of their time and services without cost.

This is what the Army Relief is and does. This society is the only one which helps the widows and children of the regular army; it is our very own, and if we do not support it no one else will. Every one of us is interested, for what man can say that today or tomorrow he may have an illness or an automobile or other accident that will cost him his life? Those of us who are married are already vitally concerned that this organization shall live and continue to carry on its splendid work; and those of us who are bachelors care deeply what becomes of our brother soldier's or brother officer's family.

The drive is on. The time to give is the end of this month; the money can be paid at the October pay table or directly to the representatives allotted to organizations and listed below. The Army Relief is not begging money; it stands up and says straight out, man to man, 'We are helping your own people—widows and orphans of the regular army. No one else is doing it. We are alone in this task. Give to other charities if you want and can afford to; but to your own charity, dig down deep and give till it hurts. Give a half-days pay or a whole days pay or more. You are asked just once a year. Last year $76,228.00 went out of the treasury; the regular army must put it back in again lest these dear ones of ours suffer."

Fort Benning has some 570 officers and 4,700 enlisted men. Last year Fort Leavensworth with about 325 officers and 900 enlisted men gave $946.00 and yet Fort Benning contributed only $957.62. Let the gift of this garrison this year be worthy of its size and importance.

INFANTRY SCHOOL GLEE CLUB BEGINS ACTIVE SEASON

rangements for lessons can be made through the Columbus School of Music.

New Voices in the Club

Each year, when the new personnel arrive on the post and in Columbus, it is found that many new voices have become available for active participation in the Glee Club work. This year is no exception, and it is expected that this season will see more than the usual number of new participants singing with the club. New arrivals on the post or in Columbus who sing, are most cordially invited and urged to affiliate with the club. No formalities are necessary, simply come out to a meeting and become a member. Meetings are held weekly, on Wednesday evenings, at 7:45, at the Officers Hop room, just back of Post headquarters.

FEATURE PICTURE FOR 24th INFANTRY THEATRE

"The Dungeon," a feature picture in which all the cast are colored performers, will be shown at the 24th Infantry theater on Thursday, Nov. 1. The story is of a modern bluebeard, in which a young girl is hypnotized, and married but is outwitted in the end by a young lawyer. The film is full of thrills and many exciting moments. The picture was selected as a result of a vote taken by the 24th Infantry, and if this picture goes over well, other pictures with colored cast will be procured for the benefit of the 24th doughboys. On the 1st, the regular feature picture of the Main Theater will also be shown.

STEAMSHIP LINE GIVES REDUCTION FOR ARMY AND NAVY

Information has been received here to the effect that a ten per cent. reduction will be granted to army and navy personnel who desire to return to the States via Suez Canal. Owing to the excellent steamers making this trip and the wonderful opportunity offered, this will be of interest to those contemplating a return home via this route.—(From Sentinel, Tientsin, China.)

C. W. S. ONE OF THE MOST INTERESTING BRANCHES OF SERVICE

Local Gas Company Has Plenty of Spirit Though Small in Number.

During and since the naval limitation conference held in Washington in 1922, there has by both the press and public alike been much criticism as well as praise relative to the question of disarmament.

Among the different units of the army suffering a certain amount of reduction was the Chemical Warfare Service. This unit of the service suffered not so much in the reduction of men as in the reduction or barring of the use of certain gases.

Among the nations committing themselves against the use of those gases whose fumes are deadly poison was the United States. However, due to the lack of the required number of nations signing the agreement the use of such was not made unlawful in time of war. In the event we as a nation are ever again called upon to defend our flag it would not be a violation of an International law if we should resort to the use of those gases but because of the stand the United States took at the conference it went on record as forever barring the use of them in war. This being done in their interest to humanity to help abate the sufferings and misfortunes of war.

At present there are twelve different lethal agents used in warfare, but due to the dealiness of them, all but four are barred from training in all posts with the exception of one, Edgewood Arsenal Maryland. Here all known forms of gases are studied, not so much for the use of them but as to best methods of protection against them.

The representative of this branch of the service at Benning is Company "C" of the First Gas Regiment. During the school year this organization may be seen at various times functioning with the Infantry in staging different problems that will be staged during the year. At the same time the use of their different weapons and the particular reason for their use will be shown.

The work of this organization is varied, and their weapons many. In fact it is the personal belief that men of this organization fire more different weapons than any other organization. To be proficient each man must be able to handle one of the four-inch Stokes Mortars which are used to throw a phosphorous charge to build up a smoke screen; the eight-inch Liven Projector which is used for the same purpose; the rifle and hand grenade bombs which are used for destructive purposes, mainly to set places on fire in order to gain a certain objective; the Portable Gas Cylinder which discharges the different gases, and in addition to this they much fire the rifle, auto-rifle and pistol over the same courses as the Infantryman.

In addition to their training in the use of their different weapons and laying of smoke screens and smoke blinding tests, men from this organization are called upon to make tests of the different types of gas masks. These tests are known as surveilance tests and are made on the field only, the final and deciding test being made at Edgewood Arsenal.

Company "C" of the First Gas Regiment is one of the smallest organizations of the garrison. It has a strength of forty-nine enlisted men and two officers, they being Captain Adrain St. John, who is Company Commander, and First Lieutenant Edward Sullivan. Though their number is small their spirit is not. On the contrary it is of the highest type and rivals that of any organization of the garrison.

The opening night of the Dramatic Club will be tonight. This was a most popular organization at the Infantry School last year—and it will be this year. Everyone interested in good clean theatrical productions should become a member of the club.

FORT BENNING OF THE FUTURE

It is interesting to note from the tentative plans, drawn in 1926, for the completed post of Fort Benning that, in general, all permanent buildings will be in the area between Wold-Wickersham Avenues and the Upatoie, with the exception of an Academic Building, the Quarters in Block 19 and the brick N. C. O. quarters in Block 37. Starting at the west end the plans call for a set of barracks for the 24th Infantry; continuing east, the two buildings for the Tanks, Artillery and Special Units, construction for the Tanks being started this winter; next the 29th Infantry area which will be completed in February; next the main parade ground where the Academic Area is now. The building now occupied by the Academic Library is scheduled to become the office of the Post Quartermaster and a large building to house all the Academic activities is tentatively located just south of Wold Ave. opposite the main parade. A Post Headquarters, a new Post Office and Post Exchange building are located north of the parade. A loop of N. C. O. quarters is planned for the area now occupied by the 7th Engineers and more officers quarters in Blocks 14, 15, 16 and 40, along Wickersham Ave. to the Hospital and on the hill north of the hospital. What is now Post Headquarters will become the Post Chapel.

However it is well to remember that this plan was drawn in 1926, and as funds are available only as appropriated by Congress, many changes may be made in the layout given above and many years pass before the post is finally completed.

THE MEANEST MAN

Who is the meanest man in the Army? There may be a variety of answers to this question, but here is one that will fit the occasion.

He is the fellow who goes absent without leave and stays absent until he is dropped as a deserter. He now heads in somewhere and fitfully settles down to a job. In the course of a few months he marries a nice, unsuspecting girl and proceeds to get himself a family started. All of this without telling the girl of his past and his other habits of life.

He knows full well that eventually he is going to be picked up as a deserter from the army and returned to military control. He knows that he is going to serve his time and he makes no provision during that time for his family. He throws them out on the world. Many times they are dependent upon the charity of friends or even strangers.

He is the meanest man in the world. —(Fifth Corps News.)

WHO'S WHO COLUMN A FEATURE OF THE NEWS

The Who's Who column of this paper has been one of the outstanding features for some time. We have had numerous readers remark that this column always attracted their attention and that the subjects of this column had always been deserving of the publicity given them. There are quite a number of people at Fort Benning eligible for this important column, and there may be others not known to this office, who should be written up in the issues to come. We invite suggestions as to future subjects of the Who's Who column. We would appreciate it if the readers of this paper would send in the names of several whom they might know that would be good subjects. A list of names submitted will be published in the near future.

NEWS FROM THE STUDENT OFFICERS CLASSES

Again we appeal to the members of the student officers classes for contributions. As much news as possible is desired from the academic halls of the Infantry School. Send it to the paper through the message center in time to reach the office of the News by Tuesday noon if possible. Thank you.

THE ARMY RELIEF DRIVE

Is a most important event. Make arrangements to subscribe to this worthy cause the coming pay day. Full details of the work of this splendid organization will be found on the editorial page of this issue. Don't fail to avail yourself of helping this worthy cause this year. You may derive some benefits from it—who can tell?

The Army Relief drive is now on and Fort Benning should go over the top this year as usual. Don't fail to subscribe to this cause THIS PAY DAY.

29TH INF.

JUNIOR OFFICERS LYCEUM

A Junior Officers Lyceum will be conducted in the 29th Infantry by the Regimental Commander, Colonel Harris Pendleton, Jr., for the purpose of affording junior officers of less than three years commissioned service, a basic knowledge of the military establishment of the nation, and the subject of National Defense. Meetings will be held each Saturday at regimental headquarters at 11 A. M. In general, the subjects will cover the following:

Leadership.
Professional reading.
Command and staff functions.
Infantry combat and subjects of a similar nature.

Lectures To The Officers

That, being in the 29th Infantry, is a liberal education in itself, is proven axiomatically by the series of lectures given to the officers of the 29th Infantry by instructors of the Infantry School.

The first of these lectures was given Thursday, October 18, 1928, by Major Sereno E. Brett, Infantry. His subject was "Tanks and Tank Tactics." The lecture covered the principles governing use of tanks; when, where, and how used; battalion commanders' orders; and a battle picture covering use of tanks. The lecture is part of the preparation of the regiment for demonstrations in November involving tanks attached to the regiment.

The second lecture was given Saturday 20 October 1928, by Major O. W. Hoop, Infantry. His subject was "Combat Orders." The Major emphasized brevity, speed, and indicated the methods whereby this could be accomplished. These practical methods will be demonstrated in all future demonstrations.

Visited By Refresher Class

As part of its course of instruction, the Refresher Class of The Infantry School paid a visit to the 29th Infantry. Colonel Pendleton gave the class a short talk on the relation of the 29th Infantry to the Infantry School, the organization of the regimental staff and its relation to the Regimental Commander. Training policies, including decentralizing of command and the development of the initiative of subordinates were thoroughly discussed.

Following this came an inspection of Regimental Headquarters, Howitzer Compan yand Company "F."

Members of the class expressed themselves as being very pleased with their visit.

Complete Training Period

The 29th Infantry will complete the first period of the training year, 1928-9 on October 31st, 1928. Training during this period, say the powers that be, has been conducted in a highly satisfactory manner. However, points noted for improvement, include guard mounting, interior guard duty, neatness, soldierly bearing, and smart appearance. In tactical exercises and maneuvers, fire control maps will not be used. Enemy targets, our own positions and pertinent terrain features will be pointed out on the grounds.

The second training period will be from November 1st, 1928, to June 10, 1929. Special training for the regiment emphasizes: regimental exercises and ceremonies, combat intelligence, protection against gas, bayonet, riot duty, movement by trucks, and defense against aircraft.

Construction of Stables

Work, under the supervision of Lieutenant Rubenstein, has finally begun on Company "D's" stables. A model machine gun stable, for this climate, is being built. It is of the open type, with saddler's shop, saddle, harness and forage rooms, in the middle of the stable. The construction of other 29th Infantry stables will be continued when further funds are available.

Football Items 2nd Battalion, 29th Inf.

The Second Battalion Football Championship for the Company League has been just decided. Company "F" repeating their performance of last year with Company "E" runner up. Company "G" led Company "F" with a score of 6 to 0 until the latter part of the third period when Tommy Thompson returned to the game determined to make up for the loss his team had suffered by his removal from the game in the earlier stages on account of injuries and his erractic play up until injured. Prior to Tommy's return to the game when he made two touchdowns in two successive plays it looked much like the Battalion League series might end in a three-cornered tie.

The work of these company teams can be considered exceptional in that the members of all teams performed all of their military duties (guard, fatigue and drill) and practiced on their own time, then played through the league series of three games for each team in nine days to decide the Battalion company championship with the final standing as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Company "F"	3	0	1.000
Company "E"	2	1	.667
Company "G"	1	2	.333
Company "H"	0	3	.000

Company "E"

The company drill during the week consisted in concealment and camouflage, combat principles, bayonet combat, close order drill, battalion ceremonies and physical drill.

Privates Griffin and Smith, transferred to the company from Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, last week and we're glad to have them with us. Private Joe Basham is back in the company from the B. & C. School, after taking a course in cooking for three months. Joe looked like a peddler the morning he came back, carrying what looked like a truck load of civilian clothes on his back.

Company "E" played the final football game Friday with Company "H," winning the game 19 to 0. Although we lost the Second Battalion championship to Company "F," we are not fully convinced that they have the best team. We came in second in the playing. Sergeant Boling made the outstanding touchdown of the game and the season and made the statement that he had been trying all his life to make a touchdown and now that he made one he was going to retire from the game. Corp. Smith O. and Fat Franz also played a good game. Smith O. played tackle and sure was getting plenty of them. Fat Franz made two touchdowns and kept up an aerial attack that kept the other side on their toes all the while.

Private James Culpepper, better known now as (Jass Colpepper), had a check and he wanted it endorsed so he could get the money. He came to our First Sergeant High Davis and asked the procedure to get his money out of it and Sergeant Davis said "Sign it on the back the same way as it was on the check, Jas. Colpepper.) He looked at it and said my name is not Jass, but Sergeant Davis said you have to sign it as the check is made out in order to get it cashed. Melandro has taken out credentials to preach apparently, for he has been searching the Bible to find where it says its a sin to "Gamble." Melandro says it is not a sin to "Gamble."

The 3rd Platoon certainly led the way at the last full field inspection. We are pulling for Bob Miscar and his combat squad and feel sure that he will be victorious, for the majority of the men are members of the reliable old 3rd platoon.

Company "C"

Corporal Kimbrell returned Thursday from a ninety days furlough which he spent in Florida and the "Lone Star State." Corporal Kimbrell spent most of his time fishing and is prepared to match anyone with fish stories. It is the opinion of the writer that he will finish second if he tries to match Pvt. Pittman's fish stories.

Pfc. O. J. Smith, our company mechanic, returned Saturday from a forty-five days furlough which he spent hunting squirrels in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina. Smith's score on the range shows that he doesn't miss squirrels often.

Walker B. Smith (Football) returned Saturday from a well earned furlough, which he spent in Louisiana. "Smiling Smith" as he is known to the fistic fans of Louisiana, fought three, ten round fights while on furlough, two of which he won by decision and the third a draw. He won the admiration and applause of the fistic fans in each fight and last but not least, won the name of being the gamest, cleanest and most skillful fighter that ever made his appearance in the arena of Madisonville, La.

DEATH OF MOTHER OF FORMER BENNING OFFICER

Mrs. Julia E. McMahon, mother of Captain B. B. McMahon, formerly on duty with the academic department, Inf. School, and now at DePauw University, passed away at her home in Indianapolis on October 18.

FORMER BENNING OFFICER SPEAKS TO RESERVES

Col. Parsons Makes Talk to Officers

GENERAL MOBILIZATION PLANS EXPLAINED BY GENERAL STAFF OFFICER

All officers of Fort Benning attended the meeting held at the Main Theater yesterday morning to hear the splendid lecture by Colonel J. K. Parsons, G. S. Col. Parsons has been sent out by the War Department to all important stations in the United States, where the mobilization plans of the War Dept. have been explained to assembled officers. The address yesterday, although full of facts and statistics, was very interestingly intermingled with pieces of humor about experiences which confronted the War Dept. in 1917, at the time of entrance of the United States in the World War.

The first part of the address of Col. Parsons dealt with the problems of 1917, and the history of the making of the first plans for mobilization by General Pershing. Other subjects which Col. Parsons dealt with were as follows:
(a) Work of G-3; (b) Personnel Problems, which factor a big one as well as supply; (c) Supply Problems; (d) Mission of the Corps Commanders in plan of mobilization; (e) Training and Procurement of Officers by Corp Commanders; (f) Training of Mobilized Units; (g) Camp sites and shelter for mobilized units.

The address of Col. Parsons was over one hour in length, during which time all the above subjects were covered as thoroughly as possible in that time. Much of the address dealt with the problems of the Corps Commander, which phase proved to be a very interesting feature of the talk.

DRAG HUNT AND BREAKFAST

The Infantry School Hunt Officers' Club will conduct a drag hunt and hunt breakfast Sunday, November 4, 1928.

Time—8:00 A. M.

Place—Polo Club.

Horses—The list will be published on the Bulletin Board of the Officers' Club at 12:45 Tuesday, October 30, 1928. These horses will meet the riders at the Polo Club.

Breakfast will be served at 10:00 A. M. at the Polo Club.

In case of inclement weather the telephone operator will be notified before 6:00 A. M. November 4th if the hunt and hunt breakfast are called off.

If the fields are too wet for cross-country riding, the hunt will be held as a controlled ride.

CHAPEL GUILD NOTICE

The Protestant Chapel Guild will meet Monday, Nov. 5, at 10 o'clock with Mrs. Ralph Kingman, quarters 19-147A. All ladies of the garrison are cordially invited to join.

Election Returns at Main Theatre

Political fans at Fort Benning have a treat in store for them with the announcement that the Main Theatre at Fort Benning will receive the returns of the election Tuesday night from 7:30 P. M. to 1 A. M. Telegraph wires will be installed in the theater and those who wish to get the returns while they are hot should be on hand at the Main Theater on Tuesday night. A special program of stunts has been arranged for which there will be cash prizes, the same to be announced in a special bulletin issued by the Asst. Recreation Officer. Each organization or detachment is invited to enter one team. The usual moving pictures will be shown as per program published by the News and the Main Theater.

Capt. W. R. Bent has been selected as Master of Ceremonies. Judges: Capt. W. B. Tuttle, Capt. L. R. Boyd and Staff Sergeant J. Street. Stunt Coach: Capt. D. E. Washburn; Stage Manager, Lieut. C. F. Burback; Seating Manager, Sgt. Shepherd.

Dont' fail to attend the Main Theater on this occasion.

AUBURN CUBS TRIM TANKERS AT DOUGHBOY STADIUM WEDNESDAY

Local Team Shows Much Improvement in Auburn Game

A tearing, driving Tanker football team fought the invading Tiger Cubs from Auburn College to a standstill at the Doughboy Stadium Wednesday afternoon, with the Jungleers nosing out a victory in the final quarter to win 13 to 7.

If the Tigers came to Fort Benning expecting to repeat their first performance of the season when they ran wild over the Tankers to win 21 to 0, they met with the surprise of a life time. For the entire first half of the game the teams battled scoreless with the Tankers on the offensive most of the time.

In the third period the Tankers drove down the field to Auburn's ten yard line. Knub Bennett ripped a hole through the center of the Tiger line for the needed ten yards and a touchdown. The Tankers added the extra point to take the lead 7 to 0.

Near the end of the quarter, Hartfield of Auburn, turned in the longest run of the game when he got away for a 40-yard run before being rut out of bounds on the Tanks' six-yard line. A couple of plays at the line failed to gain. Davidson takes ball over on off kick play. The kick for the extra point was made. Score 7 to 7.

The Tigers turned loose a driving attack in the fourth that gave them their second touchdown and victory. With the ball on the Tanks' 13-yard strip, Prince shot a pass to Tate, who was downed by Taylor on the 3-yard line. Tate went through center for a touchdown. Score, Tigers, 13; Tanks, 7.

The Tankers staged a desperate counter-attack in the final minutes of play but the visitors withstood their drive to hold them away from the coveted line until the final whistle.

Bertleman's deadly tackling and line plunging was the outstanding feature of the game, although the entire Tanker team played a fine brand of football. Hatfield, Tiger quarterback, starred for the visitors, his passing and running being of big league caliber.

INF. ASSOCIATION BRANCH ELECTS OFFICERS

Immediately after the meeting held at the Main Theater yesterday at which time Col. Parsons spoke on mobilization plans, the infantry officers remained, at which time officers of the Fort Benning branch of the U. S. Inf. Association were elected. Col. H. Pendleton, Jr., was elected President, and Capt. J. E. Wharton, as secretary. The branch organization then voted to submit individual preference to the Association on the matter of the Simonds plan for promotion legislation. Blanks were distributed at the meeting and collected later, and will be sent to Washington within a few days.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS THREE PLAYS

The Dramatic Club opened the season with three plays at the Main Theater last Friday evening. The theater was packed with an audience that received the club on its opening night with enthusiastic applause. The outlines of the plays were given in last week's issue of the News. The club is now preparing for the next offering, which will be on November 23. Announcement in detail will appear in next week's issue.

GOLF TOURNAMENT

The Officers Club Golf Tournament will begin on Nov. 7, with 18 holes medal play on the first day's schedule. Space will not permit the printing of the entire program, but each officer at Fort Benning will receive a copy.

LOCAL REGIMENT OBSERVES 59th ANNIVERSARY VERY FITTINGLY

Yesterday was a big day for the members of the 24th Infantry. That day was set aside to properly celebrate the 59th anniversary of the formation of that regiment which is known throughout the service for its gallant performance in the battle of San Juan Hill.

Organizations were marched to the Service Club at 8:30 A. M., for opening exercises. At the close of these exercises the regiment was formed on the Athletic field, First Battalion on the west side of the field, the Second on the east, and Headquarters with Service companies on the north. Company guidons were carried to the field and marked the right of each company. The south side of the field near the barrack was reserved for the Commanding Officer, 24th Infantry and staff, ladies and guests, and the band. All officers and men who have at any time been members of the regiment, were cordially invited to attend.

Program of Exercises

At Service Club, 8:40 A. M.—Selection by band.

Invocation—By Regimental Chaplain.

Remarks—By Oldest Soldier.

Remarks—By Newest Recruit.

Address—By Col. Paul C. Galleher, 24th Infantry.

Presentation of Trophies — By Col. Paul C. Galleher, 24th Infantry.

Selection—By Band.

Regimental Song—By Entire Regiment

National Anthem—By Band.

On Athletic Field, 9:30 A. M., contests for:

Best dressed non-commissioned officer.

Best dressed private.

Competition for Manual of Arms (open to all.)

Three-legged race.

Sack race.

Tug-of-war.

Cash prizes were awarded the winners in these events.

Each mess in the regiment served a special dinner at 12:30 P. M., for the enlisted personnel of the regiment, and for their families and invited guests.

In addition to the regular picture show, which commenced at 6:00 P. M., there was shown without additional charge, a six reel feature entitled the "Dungeon," portrayed entirely by colored actors. All men were urged to attend, as Captain Doll had gone to considerable trouble in order to get this picture, and it was put on with a view to determining if the soldiers of the regiment desired a feature of this kind.

After the show, about 9:00 P. M., a dance was held for the enlisted personnel in the Post Gymnasium. Again all were invited to attend.

At 6:30 P. M. a regimental dinner was served in Mess Hall No. 4. All present and past officers and ladies of the 24th Infantry were invited. The dinner was planned, and the hall decorated, under the directions of Captain E. T. Jones, and while this hall was made up in splendid style for the occasion, its attractiveness was completely lost and forgotten when we glanced at the menu card. Too bad this card was placed on the table in advance of the meal. We were enjoying ourselves considerably until they sat that cussed menu before us. After that our interest in everything completely waned.

The feed put on at this occasion easily lived up to the reputation of the messes of the regiment as well as that of Capt. Jones' ability along the supervision thereof.

The best thing about a fishing trip is the anticipation of your catches. In fact anticipation is about the only thing we are certain of getting on such an excursion. But it is fatal at a dinner party. It makes people unfit to talk to.

The invitation list included the following officers and wives and guests:

Col. and Mrs. Galleher, Col. and Mrs Berry, Col. and Mrs. Knight, Col. Partello, Col. and Mrs. Baker, Col. and Mrs. Willard, Col. and Mrs. Pendleton, Col. and Mrs. Shaw, Maj. and Mrs. Miller, Maj. and Mrs. Jones, Maj. and Mrs. Fletcher, Maj. and Mrs. Coates, Mrs. I. S. Coates, Maj. and Mrs. Schmidt, Capt. and Mrs. Steel, Capt. Shamotulski, Capt. and Mrs. Tuttle, Capt. and Mrs. Lindroth, Capt. and Mrs. Walker, Capt. Rogers, Capt. and Mrs. Seamon, Capt. W. B. Wilson, Capt. and Mrs. J. J. Wilson, Capt. and Mrs. Lyons, Capt. and Mrs. Steward, Capt. and Mrs. Paynter, Capt. and Mrs. Magill, Capt. and Mrs. Scott, Capt. and Mrs. Sherman, Capt. and Mrs. Hall, Capt. and Mrs. Helsley, Capt. and Mrs. Murphy, Capt. and Mrs. Jones, Capt. and Mrs. McCoy, Capt. and Mrs. Mackie, Capt. WHO'S WHO!

Along in the early spring of 1923, from the town of Bainbridge, Ga., a young man just turned twenty-one years of age, sallied forth from the old homestead to make his own way in the world. Doubtless, he knew not which way to turn, yet some unseen force guided his steps toward the Recruiting Office, and the young man was enlisted and sent to Company "H", 29th Infantry, having enlisted March 15, 1923. This young man was none other than Sergeant Clarence Martin ,the Stable Sergeant of Company "H", 29th Infantry.

Sgt. Martin was discharged March 14, 1926, and immediately re-enlisted the next day for his same outfit, and is still turning out good work for his organization. Physically Sgt. Martin is a small man, the kind that some people might call a "runt". With energy, he makes up for his shortage of stature and light weight. His efforts towards making "H" Company's stables the best in the regiment have been untiring and never ending. You will always find him on the job and looking for something that needs doing. Sergeant Martin is an Excellent soldier, never shirking his duties, however hard they might be, even going so far to perform duties that could be turned over to some one else. You might call him a glutton for work.

When he can find time to leave the stables, or to take a day's pass, you are certain to find him out on some creek bank, casting just as tirelessly as he works. The writer ventures to say that Sgt. Martin knows as well as anyone on the Reservation where the good trout holes are. . . but just try to get him to tell you where they are.

Recently Sgt. Martin realized one of his chief ambitions. The Company "H" (or rather, Sgt. Martin's) Stables were picked as the Blue Ribbon Stables. When the inspecting officers arrived on that fateful morning, they were not prepared for the sight that greeted their yes. I would venture to say that never had they seen such stables in all their inspections, and they have inspected some stables. Sgt. Martin is proud (and justly so), of the Company "H" 29th Infantry Blue Ribbon Stables.

"Why is it that most vaudeville artists are Jews?"

"Well, you see, at one time the Christians used to persecute the Jews, and the Jews are now getting even."

INF. SCHOOL BASKETEERS FACE HARD SCHEDULE

(By Al Durden)

A schedule that far surpasses any ever arranged for an Infantry School Basketball team, has been arranged by the Athletic Association of the Infantry School for the 1928 season.

At the present time twenty-four games have been scheduled. Numbered among these are several of the fastest basketball aggregations in the country. A glance at the schedule as it now stands will be ample proof of this assertion. Opening with the strong Auburn University five, the Infantrymen will play the following games on the home courts Miami Basketball Club, Missouri State College, Albany Y. M. C. A., Oglethorpe University, Olsons Terrible Swedes, Olsons Nordics, Birmingham Comets, Southern College, Birmingham College, Georgia Tech University, Nashville Y. M. C. A. and the World Famous Indians. Games away from home: Albany Y. M. C. A., Auburn College, Clemson College, Gulf Refining Co., Ft. McPherson, Memphis Y. M. C. A., Jewish Progressive Club of Atlanta, Miss. A. & M. College, Nashville Y. M. C. A., Ft. Monroe and Ft. Leonard Wood. Games with other teams are pending and will be arranged. The schedule, when complete, will consist of approximately fifty games.

With a schedule against teams of this caliber the Infantry School will be well represented by a five man combination that was considered the leading basketball team in the South during the 1927 season. Every player from last season's team will be back in uniform this season. Lt. Johnnie Roosma is no longer a Demonstrationist but he is still a Benningite, being now a member of the Terrible Tankers. Captain K. L. Berry is an awful busy student this year, but he will be back in his old position at guard, when the blue and orange mix and mingle. Lt. D. G. Srtickler, who was a prominent cog in the Blue machine last season, is still with the Demonstrationist. Lieut. A. S. Newman has returned to the Demonstrationist and will answer the call along with Lt. Mal Kammerer of last season's squad. Srgts. Kelly and Franz are very busy at the present time preparing for the battalion football series but the "Two Black Crows" will be ready to do their stuff for the Blue quintet when the cage season opens.

AUBURN JUNIORS DEFEAT 1ST BATS BY SCORE 26 TO 0

Last Friday, October 26, the First Bats of the 29th Infantry journeyed to Auburn, where they played the first game of the season with the Junior varsity. Not only was the football team there but the entire battalion en-mass went to Auburn. That the entire battalion was there to help the team must be credited to Col. Reed. Motor transportation had been expected but due to a tank demonstration it was found at a late hour that it could not be used for the purpose. However, at twelve o'clock, three hours after the battalion found the trucks could not be used, a special train of eight coaches left the station at Fort Benning, carrying five hundred loyal rooters. The battalion arrived at 2:30 that afternoon.

This splendid attendance more than helped the fighting spirit of the team. Bewildered by the avalanche of forward passes of Auburn, the First Bats fought hard against the accurate aerial attack of the Tigers. Harper, Hicks and Steep broke up play after play and Romploski stopped them in their tracks time after time.

Each quarter saw a hard fought exhibition of the pigskin game. Many subs were run in for the doughboys. Bryan, one of the star doughboys, sustained a badly wrenched knee near the end of the game, that being the only casualty.

The battalion fought a losing fight throughout the game. But they fought, and fought hard, and this spirit was seen and appreciated by all the spectators. The game ended with the same fighting spirit that was evidenced throughout the entire game.

ELECTION RETURNS AT CLUB

The Officers' Club will furnish election returns in the Main lobby of the club building on the evening of November 6th.

A direct Western Union line will be run and the operator will be on duty from 6 o'clock in the evening until the returns definitely decide the election of a President.

Refreshments will be served during the entire evening without cost.

Judge: I fine you a dollar and ten cents for beating your wife.

Prisoner: I don't object to the dollar, but what's the ten cents for?

Judge: That's the federal tax on amusements.

AT THE MOVIES

NOV. 2 TO NOV. 9, INCL.

FRIDAY, NOV. 2

"ROAD HOUSE," starring Lionel Barrymore with Maria Alba and Warren Burke in a daring melodrama of jazz mad morals. It depicts the pitfalls which beset the youth of the nation and is the story of a prodical son lead to his downfall by the example of his father's mild indiscretions. Thrills, suspense, whirlwind action, heart-touching romance and humor to relieve the stress of many gripping situations, feature in this production.

"Matching Wits." Sportlight.

Pathe News No. 87.

SATURDAY, NOV. 3.

"WILD WEST ROMANCE," featuring Rex Bell in a colorful romance of the west. Rex plays the part of a goodnatured, easy-going youngster; he sees a boy thrown from a moving train by a breakman, then becomes a demon, rescues the boy and together they go through a series of thrilling experiences. The locale is a border town in the rock ribbed hills of the west.

"Too Many Cookies." Van Bibber.

SUNDAY, NOV. 4.

"CRAIG'S WIFE," starring Irene Rich with Warner Baxter in a domestic drama of unusual power and appeal. A nagging wife keeps the home in a constant state of depression—her husband can't smoke in the house, handle ornaments or enjoy himself at home. Finally, he gets mixed up with bad company—a murder is committed, he is accused and imprisoned. A great change comes over the household, and, while the picture does not end particularly pleasantly, it ends as it rightfully should. This is a good training picture for the home troubled folks. Its plot is clever and absorbing.

"Lady of Victories." Great Event Technicolor.

Paramount News No. 26.

MONDAY, NOV. 5.

"CRUISE OF THE HELLION," a melodrama of adventure on the high seas, featuring Tom Santschi with Edna Murphy. A son of wealth becomes engaged to a chorus girl, the irate father secretly arranges for the boy to be shanghaid aboard a schooner setting out on a six months secret cruise, bearing a shipment of gold to a foreign land. Aboard ship there is intrigue, mutiny and even murder—a pretty romance softens the tenseness of the theme.

"Yellow Cameo No. 9."

TUESDAY, NOV. 6

"HOME JAMES," starring Laura La Plante in a delightful masquerade of love and humor; she thought he was a chauffeur; he thought she was a shop girl. Both were wrong, but until they found it out they went through the most amazing series of amusing complications in a department store, a rich man's home, and in a jail. If any of your friends feel down-in-the-mouth take them to this picture—it will send them home laughing and full of high spirits.

"The Forward Pass"—a sport picture showing fast and slow motion of professional training in the grid-iron game. These pictures were secured particularly for the benefit of football team aspirants.

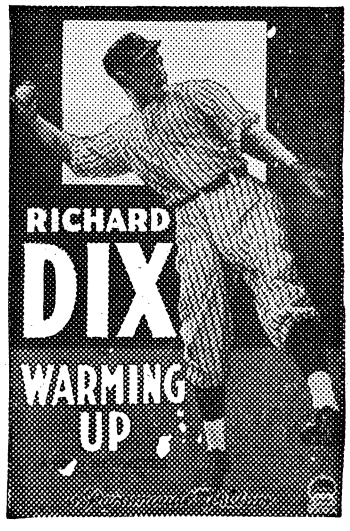
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 7

"DANGER STREET," starring Warner Baxter with Martha Sleeper, in a tense melodrama of the underworld. A society man is left at the altar by his would-be-bride. He wanders into the underworld district in an effort to end his life—here he places himself in jeopardy many times, but fate decrees him a different end. His plotting with and against gansters breeds many scenes of keen tense excitement. The pressure of the theme is lightened by a romance.

Paramount News No. 27.

THURSDAY, NOV. 8.

"WARMING UP," starring Richard Dix in a fast moving comedy drama of big league baseball. Dix is backed by a cast composed of semi-pro and professional stars of the diamond. The professionals are Mike Donlin, Mike Ready, Chet Thomas, Don Rader, Gus Sanberg, Wally Hood and Bob Murray. The picture was photographed at Wringley Field. You will actually see one of the big league pennant games staged on the screen. The plot carries a well laid romance on the sparkling excitement of the diamond.



"High Spirits." Cameo Comedy.

FRIDAY, NOV. 9

"OUT OF THE RUINS," starring Richard Barthelmess in a strange tale from the pen of Sir Philip Gibbo. It is a story of France prior to and after the close of the World War. Most of the action is laid in Paree' at the close of the World War. Barthelmess plays the part of a French Blue Devil who deserts his regiment in order to visit his sweetheart. An interesting flirtation terminated by a thrilling riot caused by an air raid is one of the many tense scenes of action portrayed. This story is chuck full of mystery.

"Flight That Failed." Fables.

Pathe News No. 89.

Theatre Owner: How did the comedian's jokes get across?

Stage Manager: On the Mayflower.

MISS HARDEE HONORED AT DANCE TUESDAY.

On Tuesday evening at the Polo Club Miss Lucy Hardee was honor guest at a delightful dance given by her brother and sister, Lt. and Mrs. David L. Hardee. The gold and black of Hallowe'en was charmingly used to make the club festive. Great witches rode brooms in high places, furious black cats reared their arched backs, and spooky bats and jack-o-lanterns added the finishing touch in making vivid the season's greetings. Lanterns were used over the lights and hanging baskets filled with yellow chrysanthemums swung from the brackets along the wall. The mantel was banked with green in which were embedded baskets of chrysanthemums and brass candelebra holding burning orange tapers. A huge witch rode on her broom above the mantel. The 29th orchestra furnished excellent music, and punch refreshed the merry dancers throughout the evening. During the intermission coffee and sandwiches, nuts and candies were served. About one hundred and fifty guests enjoyed the evening together.

Capt. and Mrs. Charles L. Bolte entertained at dinner at their quarters, taking their guests later to the Polo Club for the dance given by Lt. and Mrs. Hardee.

SOCIETY OF ARMY DAUGHTERS HOLD MEETING.

Last winter, under the inspiration and leadership of Mrs. Charles D. Roberts a society of Army girls was formed to keep up with the names and whereabouts throughout the service of the daughters of Army officers, thereby enabling one to keep in touch with friends of other days. This society organized under the name of The Daughters of the United States Army. It has met with great approval and there are now some seventy army daughters affiliated with it. They have enrolled as members from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to Mexico and from Panama to the Philippines. On Monday afternoon the officers of this society gave a charming tea at the home of their president, Mrs. Roberts, honoring all army daughters who have recently come to this garrison. Mrs. Edgar T. Collins very graciously presided at the lovely tea table, with its brass samovar and brass tray, its bronze and gold chrysanthemums and its gold tapers.

The officers of this society are Mrs. Charles D. Roberts, daughter of Col. Bradford, president; Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman, daughter of Col. Cochran, vice-president; Mrs. John K. Rice, daughter of Col. Kemper, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Dwight L. Adams, daughter of Col. Naylor, executive council. Those present were Mrs. Edgar T. Collins, daughter of Col. Van Horn, Mrs. Harris Pendleton, daughter of Col. Fanno; Mrs. Gilbert Cook, daughter of Col. Frederick; Mrs. Lewis C. Beebe, daughter of Gen. McRae; Mrs. Charles L. Bolte, daughter of Gen. Poore; Mrs. J. L. Collins, daughter of Col. Easterbrook; Mrs. Shirley Hurt, daughter of Maj. Bissell; Mrs. J. H. Evans, daughter of Maj. Pick; Mrs. Frank S. Vida, daughter of Gen. Fox Connor; Mrs. Robert C. Oliver, daughter of Col. Townshend; Mrs. L. C. Allen, daughter of Col. Townsley; Mrs. William Bartlett, daughter of Col. Hamilton Smith; Mrs. R. N. Brown, daughter of Maj. Hayes; Misses Helen and Louise Young, daughters of Maj. Young; Miss Harriett Wells, daughter of Col. Wells; Misses Daisy and London Reed, daughters of Col. Reed; Miss Sue Brandt, daughter of Col. Brandt; Miss Alice Torrey, daughter of Maj. Torrey; Miss Elizabeth Shaw, daughter of Col. Shaw; Miss Dorothy Gilhus, daughter of Capt. Gilhus; Miss Theodosia Hocker, daughter of Col. Hocker; Miss Verna Perry, daughter of Capt. Perry; Miss Kate Kingman, daughter of Col. Kingman, and Miss Bess Berry, daughter of Col. Berry are members but being away at college they were unable to be present. Mrs. Robert A. McClure, daughter of Gen. Leitch; Mrs. Charles L. Steel, daughter of Capt. Porter; Mrs. E. J. Walsh, daughter of Capt. Roach, are members but were not present on this occasion.

On Thursday afternoon of last week Mrs. John E. Dahlquist and Mrs. Edward S. Johnston entertained twelve tables of bridge most delightfully at the Log Cabin. Mrs. John K. Rice won first prize, a silver cream and sugar set; Mrs. John W. Crissey second, a dozen rose crystal salad plates, and Mrs. E. G. Sherburne, low, a lovely powder jar. After the game a delicious salad course was served.

On last Friday evening the Dramatic Club presented three delightful plays at the Post Theatre. There were a number of dinners on that evening. Among those entertaining were Major and Mrs. Lawrence W. Young, who were hosts to twelve friends. The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and the long table at which the guests were seated had for its centerpiece a low silver bowl of yellow and white chrysanthemums surrounded by silver candlesticks holding white tapers. Their guests were Col. and Mrs. D. G. Berry, Col. and Mrs. Charles L. Willard, Col. and Mrs. W. L. Reed, Col. and Mrs. Alfred Brandt, Maj. and Mrs. William R. Schmidt.

WOMAN'S CLUB

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and third Monday.
Next Meeting—Next Monday, Nov. 5th.
Time—2:15.

You will surely want to be at the Polo Club at 2:15 on next Monday afternoon when The Woman's Club has its first regular meeting of this year. The program will include greetings to the club women of Fort Benning by our Commandant, General Edgar T. Collins, lovely songs by Mrs. R. D. Daugherty and by Capt. Cecil Rutledge, the high spots of a delightful cruise to the Mediterranean countries by Mrs. E. E. Lewis, who this summer visited the Holy Land, Egypt, Turkey, Italy, Spain, Algiers, Monte Carlo, Nice and Paris.

There will be representative club women of Columbus present to tell us about The Three Arts League and its excellent program of the finest type of entertainment for this year.

Mrs. John D. Forsythe will outline her plans for the Arts and Crafts Club and make announcement as to their time and place of meeting.

After the program there will be a charming informal tea at which Mrs. Benjamin G. Ferris and Mrs. Harry A. Wells will be hostesses.

All the ladies of the garrison are cordially invited to become members of The Woman's Club.

MORE ABOUT THE ARMY RELIEF

The Army Relief drive is not over yet by a long shot, for it is realized that while many came right forward and responded most satisfactorily at the pay table and to the different representatives, nevertheless there are quite a number who were away on furlough and leave; moreover, some forgot, others have promised their contributions later, and some have not yet paid. No, the drive has not ceased and those who have not contributed to date may yet do so. This is the one big drive in which Benning must go over the top with a whoop and a bang. The Army is so scattered that it is to the big garrisons like this that the society must look for its main source of income for the year.

Almost all the officers consulted have approved the two principles of not asking the ladies to contribute and of not attempting any pay parties such as picnic or dance. To ask the ladies as well as their husbands for cash simply means that the family budget gets two blows for the same thing or else that both the wife and husband give half of what one would give. And life at Fort Benning is already rather full to sandwich in any sort of an officers' party in addition to the present social program; moreover not all officers are any too fond of picnics and such, especially when they may want to go elsewhere that night and feel that they are duty bound to attend.

No, we should not need any bribes or camouflage to get army people to help their own unfortunate. The publicity that the Army Relief has had during the past ten days has brought the surprising fact that many officers and enlisted men did not know what the society is for and how it was supported; some did not even know it existed. Quite a number were under the impression that the organization was an officers' affair; others thought that any case of bad luck was the concern of the society, while many had the idea that some rich civilian charity supported it or at least helped financially.

Not so. The Army Relief exists for the benefit of both officers and enlisted men of the regular army only; it does not assist the families of the national guardsmen or organized reserves. It does not attempt to hely any man in time of trouble but concentrates solely on assistance to the ones they leave behind when they die; the widows and orphans who must go on living and must be fed, clothed, housed and educated in spite of the fact that the pay does come in any more. And the idea that any one except the people of the regular army send money in to the treasury, is wrong.

Last year alone, $76,228.00 went out; it must be put back again for next year and we are the only ones to do it. The whole Fort Benning contribution last year was only $957.00. Think of it! An army community with a monthly pay of over $300,000.00 giving $957.00 to the only regular-army charity in existence! Why that did not even pay the society for the money it spent right here in the garrison alone, much less did it help in the army at large. One Benning widow with several children was awarded $50.00 emergency money and is being sent $50.00 a month regularly, while another local case got $50.00 straight out and receives $30.00 per month; these two alone thus draw annually $1,060.00 or about $10.00 more than this garrison, one of the largest in the army, gave as its contribution to carry on the work of the Army Relief throughout the length and breadth of the whole United States, the Philippines, Panama, Hawaii, Alaska and Porto Rico!

No, the drive is not over and Ft. Benning has a blot to wipe out. If you have not yet given all you possibly can, go at once to your own representative and rectify the alignment. The list of representatives has been published several times but is repeated elsewhere in this issue for the convenience of those not informed.

TACTICAL TOPICS

"Better be damned than mentioned not at all."

In a rash moment we promised Editor Stewart that we would send in an occasional contribution from Leavenworth. Our preliminary estimate of the situation indicates that "occasional" is not quite what we meant. "Infrequent" would have been more accurate and actually we wish that we had maintained a discreet silence.

Local Note

On the day the school opened for business, Ex-President Mason of the 1927-28 Advanced Class received the following telegram:

Camp Perry, Ohio

Lieut. Col. Charles H. Mason,
President, Fort Benning Advanced Class, 1927-28.

The Brains of the National Matches at the wettest part of the country send felicitations to the Brains of the Advanced Class at the driest part.

(Signed) Hamblen, Stevens, Cianchini, During

To which our versatile Ex-President replied, as follows:

Captain Hamblen,
Camp Perry, Ohio.

The Benning Brains were waiting there
To hear the General's opening speech
When your kind message from the meet
Was swiftly passed from chair to chair
O, Brother Brains, our thanks to you
Yes, dry are we, so you take two.

Ex-Prexy Mason.

Essay on Higher Education

Of course all student officers at Benning, and particularly the members of the new Advanced Class, want to know about Leavenworth. We cannot tell you all about it on account of the lack of space and the restriction which the printed page places on our picturesque vocabulary but we shall do our best with the aforesaid limitations.

In the first place this, as you may have heard, is an institution of higher learning. And the prestige which has accrued to it from a long line of distinguished graduates has shrouded the lecture platform with an aura of sanctity which was not always in evidence in Assembly Hall No. 1. For instance a common expression of our esteemed instructors of yesteryear was 'Your solution, although unsatisfactory, may be as good, or even better, than that of the School." No such expression is current in these parts. We have a strong suspicion that we will have to take our "U's" without any sugar coating. Moreover no blase Student Officer would even think of committing such an act of 'lese majesty' as that which Mssrs. O'Hare, Devore & Co. perpetrated last year when they presented the eminent Doctor Cook with a jar of vaseline on the occasion of a particularly difficult marked problem.

Comparisons are not only odious; they are also loaded with dynamite and must be carefully handled or they may explode in close proximity to the seat of ones best graduation day pink breeches. We cannot refrain, however, from illustrating our remarks about this being an institution of higher learning by citing a case in point. Being systematic, if nothing else, we choose our example alphabetically by starting with the "A's." Take Artillery for instance. Major Marr's course, while no doubt excellent, was perfectly comprehensible even to the untutored Infantry mind, anyone who remained awake during three-fourts of one of his conferences came out with a reasonably clear idea as to the correct method of employing the artillery for the attack on, or the defense of, the railroad facilities at Biglerville. Carried to its logical conclusion this system might result in a wide spread knowledge of what to do with the organic and attached artillery a condition which might be fraught with grave consequences. Here a system has been prefected for instilling a more wholesome respect for the arm. Not only do infantrymen, cavalrymen and engineers come out of an artillery conference in a state of utter confusion, but even recent graduates from Fort Sill stagger forth into the air muttering incoherently to themselves. These conferences prepare the student for the illustrative problem in which his depleted mental faculties are completely routed, thus setting the stage for a pay problem in which the School is assured of an overwhelming victory. Incidently the student is taught to realize that only a superman, who combines the qualities of Napoleon, Einstein and Shakespeare can measure up to the demands which modern war imposes on Brigadier General "E" when the hostile artillery begins to interdict the crossings of the Conewago.

Noted Scientist in The Limelight

Speaking of artillery, reminds us that our own Professor McCunniff recently came in for considerable noteriety as a result of a brief address which he made in response to a question propounded by an instructor at an artillery conference. So profound were the distinguished explorer's observations on the subject that the instructor himself, to say nothing of the class, had only the vaguest idea of what the Professor was talking about. Several members of the faculity commented upon it afterwards from the platform and the Professor, in spite of his low-brow affiliations, is being prominently mentioned as a candidate for the next vacancy in the artillery section.

Another higher education device, of which we can hardly say too much, is the prevailing method of teaching military history as an incident of the tactical instruction. All problems start with the Declaration of War between Blues (east) and Reds (west) or vice versa. The student is then lead unsuspectingly through several campaigns before he gets down to the Academic Waterloo which has been specially prepared for his four hours' mental exercise. This system might well be described as a painless process of acquiring a thorough going knowledge of imaginary history, if it were only painless. In our opinion, however, it does not go quite far enough back. We believe that the events leading up to the War should be included. As it is we have no means of knowing whether the Blues are engaged in some reprehensible predatory enterprise or whether they are indulging in a noble and worthy crusade to make the Gettysburg Map safe for Student Officers.

Dramatic News

Several Benningites took part in the opening blast of the Fort Leavenworth Dramatic Club. Mrs. O'Hare, whose interpretation of the part of Peggy in the "Butter and Egg Man" will be long remembered, scored another artistic triumph in the leading role of "Rich Man, Poor Man." She was ably supported by Mrs. Heraty, Mrs. Eisenschmidt and Major Almond.

Epilogue

This contribution is what General King would call "a shot in the butts." If there is no boomerang effect from the shot we may tell you more about Fort Leavenworth later. On the other hand if you don't hear from us again it will be fairly safe to assume that we have been at least supressed. Meanwhile Tactical Topics desires to express its appreciation of the complimentary things that Editor Stewart has said about it in print. As Major Ryder was wont to remark in reply to some Student Officer's unilluminating answer to one of his questions, "Thank You—ever so much."

24TH INF.

OUR DANCE

On Saturday night, October 27, the 24th held their first dance of the season. All members of the regiment were there, and a great many guests.

The night was ideal. Overhead, through a silvery cotton-battened sky, the glorious full orb of the autumn moon plowed stately along, followed by the ever closing giant planet, Jupiter, both, despite the fleecy clouds, sending rays down over the land which when taking effect upon the hearts of men and maids, justify the existence of the furniture dealers.

Inside the Polo Club all was aglitter with lights and the throb of syncopated music; music that acted like wine upon the soul of the least romantic person present, rending out the wrinkles of his heart, smoothing that hardened face into one of extreme beatitude as he glided around the beautifully decorated room with half closed eyes, ever and anon stepping on the toe of his partner.

Travelling eastward at the rate of one thousand miles per hour, we arrived, all too soon, in direct opposition to the sun, and the day of the Lord was ushered upon the earth, while the orchestra softly played the sweet refrain — Home Sweet Home. This naturally broke up the party and we went home to cover up the kids and put out the cat.

SPECIAL MUSIC FOR STATE FAIR

The 24th Infantry band was featured in an article appearing in the Montgomery Advertizer, under date of October 28, 1928. The paper ran a large picture of the band, while the following article appeared below it:

"Featuring the colored day at the State Fair here, Nov. 8, will be concerts by the 24th U. S. Infantry band, known in military circles as 'Pershing's own,' a soriquet earned while serving with General Pershing in the Mexican Punitive Expedition of 1916. This aggregation of 45 trained musicians now garrisoned at Fort Benning, Ga., has won fame in many parts of the world, having accompanied its regiment through campaigns in the Philippines, in Cuba and Mexico.

Under the direction of Warrant Officer Robert B. Tresville, trained by Frank and Walter Damrosch, of New York, the band has maintained its high standard. The natural musical talent of the musicians have been preserved and developed through systematic training. It is one of the few bands that can extemporize and transpose with no apparent effort.

"The band has been selected to give concerts at two world's fairs, the one at St. Louis and the one at San Francisco. It has constantly been called upon to attend affairs of importance in the districts where it has been stationed. Since its transfer to the Infantry School at Fort Benning it has been called upon to participate in many civilian affairs throughout the South."

XMAS PACKAGES ARRIVE AT POST EXCHANGE

As announced in the News of last week Santa Claus is arriving daily at the main store of the Post Exchange with packages of good things for the big event of the year. Everyone is urged to do their shopping early and get the pick of the packages, and also help out the force by avoiding eleventh hour rushes usual at that time. See ad in this issue.

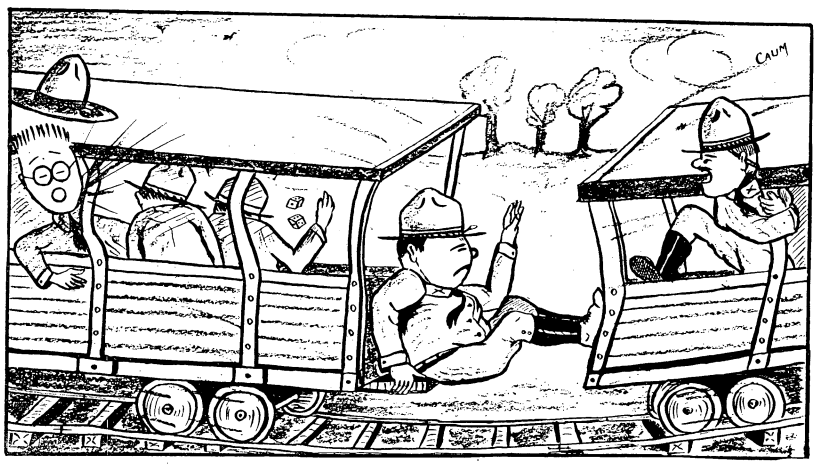
(By H. M. G.)

We were informed at the recent artillery demonstration (up 2-400) that the War Department had very thoughfully decided that 600 yards was the closest observers should come to artillery fire. What we would like to know is whether the War Department was outlawing only loss of life, limb and cubs by artillery fire, or whether there was included any provisions to prevent mayhem by such agencies as the Fort Benning student scenic coal trains?



The incident that brought this thought to mind and body was our attempt to reach the said artillery demonstration via Toonerville's narrow gauge.

It seems that the trains leaving the Post officers had about reached the crest of a hill. Owing to the fact that the engineer had failed to inform the engine that more would be expected of it, the train started rolling backwards down the hill on its return to its home in the coal mine.

A second train with the officers of B Co. seeing that the vanguard had failed in its mission now galloped valiantly forward over its steel rails determined to take yon hill. Several flagmen and apparently a number of interested students wildly signaled to the advancing rattler that this was an artillery demonstration and not an infantry one. But on and onward rode every cast iron rivet, bolt and nut. Through the dust and cinders of the charge one lone hero was seen to spring to the fore or rather to the rear. Capt. Gregory, realizing the imminent peril of his brother officers, took up the approved sitting position on the rear of the first train and raising one foot. I am not sure which one, but I don't see that that makes much difference, they are both about the same, defied the onrushing steel leviathan to harm one lone hair of his brother officers' heads.

Suddenly there was a rendering crash, steel had crossed steel and rust flew. All was pandemonium, officers, irrespective of rank, were catapulted into struggling groups on the floor, others wrapped portions of their anatomy around iron stanchions. (For Capt. Bower's May Pole dance see accompaning illustration.) The talented Rickey Rice gave a demonstration of flying in the air without a motor. Capt. Beavers also took distance. His was a very nice barrel rolling exhibition.

When the battle was over,
"There was not to reason why
There was but to do and die
So, onward walked the four hundred"
(other means of conveyance being advance classes.)

Some one advanced the theory that perhaps this was preliminary training for the bayonet course. Personally I don't know, in fact I am beginning to feel that I have had very little to do with the preparation of the courses at the Infantry School. However, I have this on very high authority. An instructor in rifle marksmanship asked Lieut. Dunn to tell him where the balance of his rifle was. "Why," replied our lieutenant in surprise, "I thought it was all there!" Don't shoot Luke.

BIRDMEN SMOTHER GUNNERS UNDER AERIAL ATTACK AT MONTGOMERY

The guns of the Galloping Gunners were completely silenced by the baffling aerial attack of the Maxwell Field Birdmen at the Hampton Bowl, Montgomery, Ala., last Saturday night, the Fliers winning a hard fought football game over the Caisson Riders 13 to 0.

Playing their first game under the glare of the high powered lights, the Gunners experienced quite a bit of trouble in watching the ball. Taking advantage of this, the Birdmen took to the air to defeat the visitors by a couple of touchdowns.

The Redcords traveled to the Alabama city in machine gun buses. The trip was made without mishap and in record time. The behaviour, appearance and good sportsmanship of the members of the team during the game and during their stay in Montgomery was highly commented on by the opposing players and hundreds of spectators present for the game. Just another proof that the soldier of today is possessed of the same culture and refinement as his civilian brother and that the army "Ruff Neck" of yesterday is rapidly disappearing from the rank and file of the American Army.

Hqrs., Hqrs. Bat'ry and Combat Train

Our football squad made their first western trip last week end, motoring over to Maxwell Field, clashing with "Dog-Face" McGuire's boys, suffering a nice defeat. Although the game was played at night, so there was very many excuses, as our crew was at a total loss, especially McLeod, who was safety man. McLeod said that he though a Martin Bomber was some place around dropping balls from out of space, as he could only hear the thud after a kick.

Since Sgt. Rowland's transfer, there is one vacancy in the Artillery. No Mabel not Sergeancy, but the ugly man. Of course there are quite a few aspirants to said vacancy but from all indications Private Pacetti has a very good chance of copping said honors. A letter came to Pacetti last week from a certain concern in Ohio, relating "How to look young at the age of forty." A letter by air-mail was returned.

Pfc. Starnes reported back from a two months' leave, after much pleasure was consumed between Atlanta and Texas. Starnes made a flying motor trip to the Lone Star State, but due to the fact that the Texas Rangers were still on the job, Georgia was the place for Starnes.

News has arrived from Sgt. Reed, up Tennessee way that the road construction work is progressing very nicely, not mentioning the fact that the fair flappers are still in existence, which we all know they are, and how.

Corporal Osborn, after thinking over matters quite a few days, decided that he was a much better slum-burner than he was a N. C. O., so upon his own request, Osborn was reduced to Pfc-S. 4. Now Flat-Tire we are all looking forward to some new wrinkles in our Goolash, so let's see some smoke.

Pfc. Niblett, our head man in the chow department, was strolling along Broadway last week when he encountered a sweet thing with whom he had steeped out on quite a bender some few nights before. "Hello, Jimmie old dear," called the flapper. "How'sa Boy?" Jimmie drew himself down to a halt and gazed at her haughtily with a sigh. "My dear young lady," he said, "is it necessary for me to inform you that osculation does not constatute an introduction."

Wise Cracks: Cpl. Douglas, "In poker its always darkest just before you've drawn."

Sgt. Roper: A woman may be outspoken but not out-talked.

Pfc. Thompson says his girl friend is so dumb that she thinks that a pile driver is a surgical instrument.

Let us clothes by singing:

"She may not be hot but she comes warmly recommended."

Battery "A"

Sergeant Owens with a shotgun on his shoulder was seen snooping around the Battery last Saturday and upon being asked what he was looking for, replied that he was hunting the abatage Private First Class Branch had lost.

Private Andrews has distinguished himself in adding a new command to the Artillery which is "cease loaping."

Private Roper was heard to remark that if they would substitute a fence-rail for the cane pole in the high jump he could win easily.

Private Evan's alibi for failing to win the broad jump is that his brakes stuck. Maybe so, but we believe he was top-heavy.

The blonde Sergeant of "sockless fame" is confining his activities to the post now. Clever idea Pete, faster time can be made on level ground, but you will have to travel some to out run a Ford.

They say that 1st Sergeant Combs is investigating the saying that two can live as cheap as one. Blonde or brunette Sarge?

The girls of Columbus should celebrate. Private First Class Brantley has returned from Atlanta.

Any damsels in distress should apply to Private Thurston. He believes all and sees nothing.

Battery "B"

Privates Clark and Wilemon have reported for duty with the battery after spending a sixty-day furlough at their homes.

The annual examination for expert gunners in the battery is being held this afternoon. We are looking forward to a 100 per cent. qualification record from those who are taking the examination.

The football game last Friday afternoon between B and Headquarters Battery was one of unusual interest. Both sides fought hard and several good plays were made by both teams. The score was 6 to 0 in favor of Battery B.

The battery mess sergeant leaves today on a ninety-day furlough. Several of the men have already applied for jobs as permanent K. P. during his absence.

Private 1st Class Ming was discharged yesterday per expiration term of service. We sincerely regret that he decided not reenlist and hope him the best of luck on his honeymoon.

The battery won first place in the battalion track meet at Doughboy stadium last Wednesday afternoon. Private Howard participated in four events and won first place in three of them. Boys, the fighting spirit displayed by this man will place the silver cup in the day room of Battery B. Let's get goin.

Privates Tucker, Harp and Long were promoted to corporal last week and Corporal McLain was promoted to sergeant. A nice reward for work well done.

Corporal Long leaves today on a sixty-day furlough. While we regret to have him go away for so long, we do not hesitate to express our sympathy for the home folks, who, no doubt will have to listen to him talk in his sleep during the visit.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

Announcement Digest

Below is brief information concerning examinations announced by the United States Civil Service Commission within the past few days.

Both men and women may enter any examination; appointing officers, however, have the legal right to specify the sex desired in requesting certification of eligibles.

The salaries named are entrance salaries. Higher-salaried positions are filled through promotion.

Further information may be obtained from the Commission at Washington, D. C., or its representative at the post office or customhouse in any city.

Prohibition Agent, Bureau of Prohibition, Treasury Department, for duty in the field, at $2,300 to $2,800 a year. Certain specified experience required. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., not later than November 20, 1928. Subjects to be rated: Mental tests, 30 per cent.; practical reports based on duties of position, 30 per cent.; training, experience and fitness, 40 per cent.

Junior Marketing Specialist, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture, for duty in Washington, D. C., or in the field, at $2,000 a year. Certain specified education and experience required. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., not later than November 20, 1928. The optional subjects are (1) hay, (2) fruits, vegetables, and miscellaneous products, (3) livestock and animal products, (4) dairy products, (5) poultry and eggs, and (6) wool. Subjects to be rated: Practical questions on each optional subject chosen, 70 per cent.; thesis to be handed to the examiner on the first day of the examination, 30 per cent.

Assistant Entomologist, Bureau of Entomolgy, Department of Agriculture, for duty in Washington, D. C., and in the field, at $2,600 to $3,000 a year. Certain specified education and experience required. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., not later than November 21, 1928. The optional subjects are (1) biological control of insects, (2) cereal and forage insects, (3) deciduous fruit insects, (4) forest insects, (5) insecticides and toxicology, (6) insects affecting men and domestic animals, (7) insect ecology, (8) truck crop insects, (9) tropical and subtropical insects. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on their education and experience, 70 per cent.; thesis or publication to be filed by the applicant, 30 per cent.

Minor Apprentice Mechanical Lithographer, Geological Survey, Interior Department, and the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department, at $1,020 a year. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., not later than November 20, 1928. Subjects to be rated: Mental tests, 70 per cent.; training, and experience, 30 per cent.

Don't forget that the Army Relief Drive is still on. See editorial in this issue.

FIGHT SHOTS

The fans will be pleasantly surprised when the first indoor show is staged this month. It is hoped the new bleachers will arrive before the 12th of this month in which event the card will be presented on the 15th.

The indoor ring will be raised 14 inches, making it 38 inches from the floor. In addition, a series of platforms have been built for the reserved section, making it possible to see from any angle of the gym. And then it is rumored that heat will be furnished without extra charge.

Ptomey's opponent for the 15th has not been selected. News of Willie's showing against Goodrich has reached far and wide. One Jacksonville paper stated that Ted was given a "complimentary draw."

Seldom Heard has been offered a ten round windup in Atlanta for December 11th. The big boy's reputation has reached the Capitol City. Very few of the fans knew that Speedy Freeman, who lasted three rounds with Seldom, had knocked out 2 straight opponents before Heard stopped him. Speedy is a windup artist at the colored clubs throughout the state. Heard may be the logical successor of Battling J. D.

Pinkey Phillips and Blnody Parker are listed to appear in Atlanta November 13th. Eddie Hanlon, who is booking the show, is searching the country for a heavyweight to meet Jeff Carroll, rated by many to be a better prospect than Young Stribling. Jeff hails from Albany, Ga., and is a stablemate of Ernie Saugues, the sensational Chilean middleweight.

After the election is over, the Georgia-Auburn game is history, and the Army has added Notre Dame to her list of victims, then get in line for the next fight show November 15th. Yes, it is a Thursday night but the new bleachers will not arrive in time to hold it Tuesday night.

Gunner DePratt is being sought by the Montgomery and Miami promoters. The big boy is in for a busy and profitable winter.

THE TENNIS TOURNEY

In the ladder tourney the feature match of the week was between Miss Alice Torrey No. 10 who challenged Miss Harriet Wells, No. 8.

The first set was very close, each contestant winning their own service games.

Miss Torrey led at 4-3 and 40-15 but Miss Wells finally nosed out the set at 8-6. Miss Torrey seemed to have given her best in this set as Miss Wells won the match by taking the final set 6-0.

Many additions have been made in the Juniors who are taking lessons and playing in the early afternoons and among those seen on the courts are: Marian Johanson, Sammy Card, Billy Stair, Harold Mars, Hugh MacGregor, Ben Ferris, D. Coates, Gilbert Cook and Hugh Lange.

Mr. Kinnedy is planning to hold a Junior tournament during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Actress: I can't marry you; I have a clause in my contract.

Stage Door Johnny: That's all right. My father's a surgeon.

WILL THEY BE BEATEN THIS YEAR?

In reading of the stellar performances of football warriors and feats they are accomplishing this year caused us to take more than a casual look at the record runs as compiled by Park Davis as record football plays for 1927. Here are the plays as made and compiled by Mr. Davis:

Longest run-back of a kick-off, 105 yards—Welch (Pittsburg.)

Longest run-back of a kick, 95 yards—Gulick (Hobart.)

Longest run from scrimmage, 97 yards—Stryker (Miami.)

Longest complete forward pass, 60 yards—Chapel to Lees (Franklin-Marshal.)

Longest run with a forward pass, 71 yards—Welch (Pittsburg.)

Longest run with an intercepted forward pass, 100 yards—Bachtel (West Virginia Wesleyan.)

Longest run with a recovered fumble, 96 yards—Lee (Wesleyan.)

Longest run with a recovered block kick, 76 yards—Robbins (Oregon State.)

Longest goal from field by drop kick, 50 yards—Cox (Yale.)

Longest goal from field by place kick, 45 yards—Bancroft (Howard.)

Score of most touchdowns, 19—Janoski (Duke.)

Scorer of most "extra points," 22—Chaplin (John Hopkins.)

Scorer of most points, 125 — Lane Dartmouth.)

PUNCHES SOMETIMES INJURE THE BRAIN

In a recent article in one of the daily papers there appeared an article under the heading of "Punches in Prize Ring Often Injure the Brain," by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magainze.

At the beginning of the article Dr. Fishbein begins with the statement that the puglists know the condition and feeling that results from a terriffc pounding received in the ring when the recipient suddenly finds himself unable to move his arms or legs.

The fighters who are most affected by this so called "punch drunkness" is the aggressive, mauling, slugging type who are always ready to take a blow in order that they may land one of their own and score a knockout, rather than "box" his opponent and then try and land the knockout blow when the opportunity presents itself.

According to Dr. Martland, on whom Dr. Fishbein is basing his article, before the Pathologic Society of New York, it usually takes the fighter two to three hours to recover from a severe blow on the head or jaw, and the results from such continual pounding is "Punch Drunkness."

This "punch drunkness," according to Dr. Martland is the result of an injury to a definite brain cell which has been injured due to repeated blows to head and jaw, and he presents the names of twenty-three fighters who have been "punch drunk" and their present condition indicates the permance of the physical changes.

NOTICE

There will be no extra admission charge to the Main Theater Tuesday night. See announcement on front page.

MANY "BROTHERS IN ARMS" IN UNCLE SAM'S ARMY

"Brothers in Arms," applied to soldiers of Uncle Sam's Regular Army, means just that.

In a personnel survey of the Army, just concluded, the interesting fact was brought to light that 252 sets of brothers are now serving together in the same regiments of the Regular establishment, according to an announcement from Army headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y. Brothers separated by assignment to different units are not included in the figures.

Of the 252 sets, ten are of three brothers each and the remaining 242 of two sons of the same family.

The 29th U. S. Infantry, stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., leads all regiments with 20 sets. This organization has one set of three brothers. But for three-brother sets, the 8th U. S. Infantry at Fort Screven, Ga., takes first honors with three sets.

In the majority of cases, the survey showed that the second and third sons had enlisted upon the recommendation of the first to sample Army life. A father and son were also found soldiering in the same outfit—the 28th Infantry at Fort Niagara, N. Y.—(Army Publicity Bureau, N. Y.)

TACTICAL TOPICS

Is welcomed by many officers of the Infantry School who read this column last year. It is edited by Major E. F. Harding, Inf., who is now at Fort Leavenworth. This column was one of the outstanding features of the News last year, and quite a number of officers who were in the advanced class last year will be glad to again see this column which was so very cleverly edited by their classmate. The News is glad to announce that this column will appear quite often during the present academic year.

TIRES OF TODAY ARE BADLY PUNISHED

Few motorists appreciate how much "punishment" the automobile tire of today is called upon to take, says The Post Exchange, local Firestone Service Dealers.

When considering the service of tires today it must be remembered that changes have taken place that greatly affect tread wear.

Congested traffic has necessitated stop streets, traffic lights and other methods of traffic control. High compression motors with rapid acceleration enagle the car driver to make quick starts. Powerful 4-wheel brakes enable him to make sudden stops. In the country, improved roads are responsible for higher speeds. Sped, quick starts and sudden stops all cause faster tread wear.

These changed conditions in car operation throw a burden on tires that manifests itself in forms of tread wear unknown in the past.

During periods of rain, snow or ice, uncertain traction changes the driving habits of many car owners. They reduce their speed, start slowly and come to a stop gradually. The result is slower tread wear. This explains why, in northern latitudes, tire wear is more rapid in summer than in winter.

The manufacturer can control, with scientific accuracy, the compounding, curing and construction of tires but he cannot control the conditions under which these tires are used.

"Amateur Stunt" Night Big Success

MAIN THEATRE WAS PACKED TO OBTAIN RESULTS OF ELECTION

Amateur Stunts Makes a Big Hit

(By B. H. Cowan)

Fort Benning theater goers were given a real treat at the Main Theater last Tuesday night. In addition to the regular moving picture program for that night, special wire was installed and election returns were received and announced to what has been considered the biggest crowd ever to pass through the main doors of Fort Benning's popular movie house. Capt. W. R. Bent, of the Infantry School Detachment, was Master of Ceremonies, and performed this duty in a most excellent manner. The additional attraction proved to be a big success. Practically every organization and detachment was represented in the "amateur stunt" night performance, and in fact, it went over with such a bang that it is contemplated that an occasional "amateur stunt" night at the Main Theater would prove to be a very popular attraction. No definite announcement, however, can be made at this time in regard to that proposition.

The crowded house Tuesday night received the returns with loud applause, in the same manner the stunts performed between election returns announcements were accorded a good reception. In fact, the performances of the night were far above the expectations of those in charge of the affair. It seemed that the actors were immune to "stage fright" and performed, in some cases, much like that of a professional. The opening number was a black faced monologue by Private Yerty which was considered as very good by the judges.

The second act presented by Sergeant Reynolds and company depicted that hectic and much discussed seventh round between the Mannassa Mauler and Scholarly Gene at Soldiers Field, Chicago, a little over a year ago. Sergeant Reynolds acted the role of Gene, and after having recovered from his daze and gotten to his feet at the count of nine, hastily mounted his bicycle.

In the third act, Hernandez, of the Tanks, offered a Tap Dancing act which was one of the best hits of the evening. Encore after encore was called for to which the Tank obligingly answered but the time limit cut him off and the audience had to content themselves with the numbers to follow.

The next number was entitled Shipwrecked and presented by Corporal Adams and company. The title Shipwrecked was fitting in every respect.

Following this McDonald, of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, was introduced as the songbird. Playing his own accompaniment with a guitar the doughboy played and yodeled in a manner

BIG FIGHT CARD NEXT THURSDAY

Ptomey Will Meet Kid Williams in Main Event. Excellent Prelims Will Feature Next Show

Whispering Moore	vs	Stratton Smith	3 Rounds
Eddie Brault	vs	Babe Sewell	3 Rounds
Tiger Thompson	vs	Egad Hoople	3 Rounds
Ginger Jernigan	vs	Watta Guy	4 Rounds
Doubtin Thomas	vs	Jackie McMullin	6 Rounds
Walker Smith	vs	Harold Gates	6 Rounds
Willie Ptomey	vs	Kid Williams	10 Rounds

After a layoff of three weeks, during which time many innovations have been added to the Post gymnasium, the glove slingers will get under way again on Thursday night, November 15th.

The windup offered for the initial indoor show, will, it is believed, meet with the general approval of the boxing public. Willie Ptomey of Fort Benning, the boy who seems to improve with every bout, and who looks his best when the going is hardest, has been selected to face Kid Williams of Savannah in the feature of ten rounds. This will be the second meeting of this pair. It will be recalled that when these two met before a draw decision was awarded, but this met with more than passing disapproval, for many thought that the youngster from Savannah had a little the better of the milling. It is true Williams had a big edge in the first five rounds during which time Willie took many left handers on the chin. In the sixth, however, Ptomey commenced to solve the peculiar attack of the visitor and to the minority piled up enough points in the last half of the fight to offset the early lead of Williams. Another angle of the fight, one which had a decided effect in slowing up the Savannah boy, was the misfortune he suffered in fracturing that poisonous left. The fight next Thursday night should remove any cloud of uncer-

LARGE NUMBER OF CONTESTANTS IN BIG MEET MONDAY

All Units Confident of Victory.

The garrison track and field meet, the largest event of its kind at Fort Benning, will be hel don Monday at Doughboy Stadium. Five teams will participate in the meet. Teams for the Special Units, 29th Infantry, 15th Tank Battalion and 83rd Field Artillery have entered the meet. There will be two teams from the demonstration regiment. Approximately over two hundred contestants will be in the event.

All of the teams have been preparing for this event for some weeks, and each organization has held track and field meets within the respective outfits in order to enter the best men possible in the garrison meet. All teams are confident of victory Monday, and from all indications, there will be plenty of spirit demonstrated by each unit. Up to an early hour Thursday morning the names of men entered in the meet were not availabl, hence the omission of the names of the contestants, which the News had hoped could be published for the information of its readers.

The following officers have been designated as officials for the meet:

Major F. C. Phelps, 29th Inf., Official Referee.

1st Lieut. James T. Dismuke, 24th Inf., Inspector.

2nd Lieut. M. R. Kammerer, 29th Inf., Inspector.

1st Lieut. James D. O'Connell, 24th Inf., Inspector.

Capt. Solomon F. Clark, 83rd F. A. Bn., Judge at Finish.

1st Lieut. Harry M. Schwarze, 83rd F. A. Bn., Judge at Finish.

1st Lieut. H. W. Killpack, 29th Inf., Judge at Finish.

2nd Lieut. W. C. Smith, 15th Tank Bn., Judge at Finish.

1st Lieut. R. H. Soule, 29th Inf., Judge at Finish.

Capt. Paul R. Goode, 29th Inf., Chief Field Judge.

1st Lieut. Frederick Pearson, 29th Inf., Field Judge.

1st Lieut. John L. McElroy, 15th Tank Bn., Field Judge.

2nd Lieut. K. F. March, 15th Tank Bn., Field Judge.

1st Lieut. A. J. Mackenzie, 29th Inf., Field Judge.

1st Lieut. A. T. Wilson, 29th Inf., Field Judge.

1st Lieut. E. J. Walsh, 29th Inf., Time Keeper.

1st Lieut. L. A. Diller, 29th Inf., Time Keeper.

1st Lieut. W. E. Niles, 15th Tank Bn., Time Keeper.

2nd Lieut. J. H. Gilbreth, 29th Inf., Official Starter.

Capt. K. G. Althaus, 15th Tank Bn., Clerk of the Course.

1st Lieut. E. L. Stewart, Inf., Press Steward.

WHO'S WHO!

MASTER SGT. JOHN MAGONI
Infantry School Detachment

[redacted] no question as to his ability as [redacted]ine-gun instructor, for five [redacted] he has been machine-gun instructor at the Infantry School and during [redacted] time his work has been highly commended by officers and enlisted men [redacted] have worked with him.

He is known and liked by every person who has resided within the bounds of the reservation for a twelve-months. He has not missed a ball game at Gowdy Field for three seasons. He has umpired one-tenth of them and has even stepped in when needed and played in some of them.

Last season "Jazz" was elected as captain of the Infantry School Detachment baseball team. Though the Green Cords failed to win a pennant, they were soon one of the most popular teams in the league and a big share of the credit was due the captain of the team who refused to admit defeat and kept the crowd in high spirits at all times with his witty banter and comic antics on the first base coaching line.

He is one of the most popular members of the N. G. G. Club. No meeting is complete without his presence, and he is always the center of attraction when it is his turn to talk for no matter what the subject is "Jazz" has a knack for inserting enough humor to please any audience. Long ago non-coms learned that to argue with him was to lose an argument be it baseball, politics or prohibition.

While the many noticeable changes for the better have been going on in Fort Benning, Mr. Sgt. Magoni has changed along with them. He arrived here in the early pioneer days with nothing more than his military duties and himself to look after. Today besides the afore mentioned, there is Mrs. John Magoni, little Miss Martha Ann Magoni and John (Jazz) Magoni, Jr., also a nice new automobile and a snug and cozy home up in Block 18.

His military record reads like a list of the non-commissioned grades in the Army. Discharged as corporal, character "excellent," discharged as sergeant, character "excellent," discharged as staff sergeant, character "excellent," and now he is serving his second hitch as a master sergeant. Sport fans know of his interest in athletics. Student officers know his knowledge of machine guns and willingness to help them out. Few know that he comes from West Springfield, Massachusetts, up on the right bank of the Connecticut river; but every one agrees that we would rather have him here.

AT THE MOVIES

NOV. 9 TO NOV. 16, INCL.

FRIDAY, NOV. 9

"OUT OF THE RUINS," starring Richard Barthelmess in a strange tale from the pen of Sir Philip Gibbs. It is a story of France prior to and after the close of the World War. Most of the action is laid in Paree' at the close of the war. Barthelmess plays the part of a French Blue Devil who deserts his regiment in order to visit his sweetheart. An interesting flirtation terminated by a thrilling riot caused by an air raid is one of the many tense scenes of action portrayed. This story is chuck full of mystery.

"Flight That Failed." Fables.
Pathe News No. 89.

SATURDAY, NOV. 10

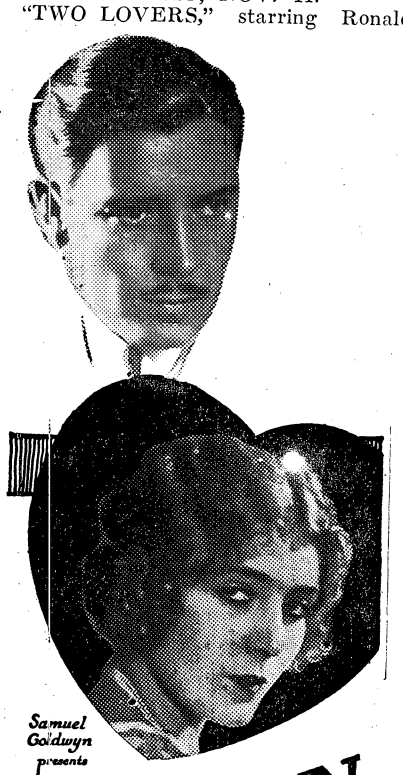
"MEN OF DARING," featuring Jack Hoxie in a marvelously accurate picture of the Covered Wagon heroes—the brave men who dared and died that the flag might wave in the dreary wastes of the unconquored West. Indian massacres, mysterious killings, pony-express riders and dastardly white renegades. This production is on the enormous scale of "The Covered Wagon"—thousands in the cast, hundreds of Black Feet Indians and death taunting cavalry.

"Collegians No. 1."

SUNDAY, NOV. 11.

"TWO LOVERS," starring Ronald Colman and Vilma Bankey in a gripping tale of adventure and love. The story concerns the restoration of William, Prince of Orange, to the throne of the Dutch Lowlands. The Spaniards under the tyrannous Duke of Azar, are frustrated in their attempts to stifle Flemish Liberty and to capture the renegade prince by efforts of the mysterious masked figure. There are 2,000 players, turreted castles, draw bridges and wild night rides. A romance ties the threads of the absorbing plot.

Paramount News No. 28.



MONDAY, NOV. 12

"VIRGIN LIPS," starring Olive Borden in a story of redblooded action and thrills set against the colorful background of Central American palaces and notorious cafes. There are aviation stunts of the sort you have never seen in pictures, drama of a kind that will make your hair stand on end and a smashing climax that will bring you to your feet with rousing cheers. The story is bound about a romance.

"Yellow Cameo No. 10."

TUESDAY, NOV. 13

"CHARGE OF THE GAUCHOS," starring Frances X. Bushman in a story of The Argentine that is massive, glittering, spectacular and thrilling. A nation aflame with the spirit of liberty. The rolling tide of mighty battle, charge and counter-charge of the mounted demons of the Pampas storming embattled tyranny. Two lovers separated by national hates. It is a romance amid the fall of an empire and the rise of liberty. This is a strong picture.

"Old Wives Who Knew." Imperial.
"Arkansas Traveler." Variety.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 14

"THE MYSTERIOUS LADY," starring Greta Garbo in an Austrian-Russian drama. It is the tale of a beautiful Russian spy who was sent to trap a handsome Austrian officer, possessor of important military secrets. He falls in love with her, and his disillusionment, when he finds himself betrayed, brings the story to a thrilling climax. Members of Russian Nobility participated in the staging of this picture, among them were a prince and princess, two generals and a number of others who held high military rank and honors.

Paramount News No. 29.

THURSDAY, NOV. 15

"THE FIRST KISS," featuring Gary Cooper with Fay Ray in a story laid and actually photographed on the coast of Maryland. It is from the Saturday Evening Post story by Tristrom Tupper entitled "Four Brothers." This has been scenerized exactly as written. It centers around the love of a poor young man for a girl who is rich and how through thrift and perserverance, he not only conquors poverty, but also romance. The tale is laid among the oyster fishermen of Chesapeake.

"Hold 'Em Cowboy." Bobby Vernon.

FRIDAY, NOV. 16

"CELEBRITY," a dramatic romance of a poetic ring battler. This is quite different from the ordinary "pug" story because it presents with irrisistable humor, the making of a reputation and the high-hatting of the public by a prize fighter of scholastic attainments. The story deals with a prize fighter who develops a mania for writing poetry and who wins the world championship after he believes the girl he loves has discarded him. The picture is reported to be filled with action, drama, and thrills galore. The cast is lead by Lina Basquette, Robert Armstrong and Clyde Cook.

"Puppy Love." Fables.
Pathe News No. 91.

YOUNG-KAMMERER WEDDING PLANS

Great interest throughout the Army is centered in the wedding plans of Miss Louise Young, daughter of Major and Mrs. Laurence W. Young, and Lieut. Malcolm R. Kammerer whose marriage will be a brilliant event of November 24th, taking place at Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbus at four o'clock in the afternoon, Lieut. Henry H. Fay officiating. The bride's attendants will be Mrs. A. A. McNamee of Chicago, Mrs. T. H. Ramsey of Fort McPherson and Miss Helen Young. Little Harriett Ramsey will be flower girl. Lieut. Kammerer will have as his best man, Lt. John S. Roosma and the following officers will serve as ushers: Lt. Edward C. Mack, Lt. Le Grande A. Diller, Lt. David D. Hedekin, Lt. Arthur L. Cobb, Lt. John G. Van Houten, Lt. William W. Cornog, Lt. Thomas B. Gailbreath, Lt. William W. Browning, and Lt. John R. Jeter. Mrs. Ernest S. Barker will sing a group of lovely songs before the vows are made.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception at the Polo Club will be given to which the more intimate friends of this popular young couple will be invited.

Since the announcement in September of the engagement of Miss Young and Lt. Kammerer they have been entertained constantly with a perfect round of dinners, showers, bridge parties, teas, luncheons and picnics.

Most important on the social calendar of the week past was the Hallowe'en dinner dance and costume ball held at Biglerville on Friday evening. The great dining hall was converted into a haunt of elves and witches. At each end, small houses aglow with pumpkin heads were built, on the roofs of which gnomes and brownies perched. Gaunt witches rode giant brooms in mid-air and huge black cats arched their backs in every window. The tables were charmingly decorated, Hallowe'en colors being carried out in every detail. There were orange tapers in black holders, orange nut cups, orange and black placecards, and silhouettes effectively used at appropriate intervals. After the dinner, it would have been hard to find anywhere a more colorful, merrier, or more interesting group than the dancers on this occasion. The costumes were charming but because of limited space only a few especially good ones can be mentioned. Conspicuous was the Devil himself, so excellently represented even to horns and forked tail, by Lt. Clarence T. Davis. Mrs. David L. Hardee was a witch after ones own heart, Miss Alice Torry, a beautiful ballet girl, Mrs. Alan Jones an exquisite old fashioned girl, so also was Mrs. Emil Leard, and Mrs. Eugene Brine. Capt. Loren Weatherby was Raggedy Andy, Capt. John Dahlquist an old farmer, Mrs. Allen Haynes as Pierette, Mrs. Jesse Ladd as lady of long ago when bustles and hoop skirts were the vogue, Mrs. Melvin R. Finney as a ballet dancer, Miss Helen Young as a maid of Waikiki, Miss Lucy Hardee as a pirate, Mrs. Benjamin Ferris as a Dutch girl, Mrs. Bass Lewis of Columbus as Bo Peep, Miss Leona Ferrandou as Annie Laurie. There were toreadors, pirates, bakers, Pierrots and Pierrettes, Robin Hood and Maid Marion, Hawaiians, Chinese, Japanese, Artists, Apaches, in fact, everything.

Among those entertaining most delightfully at Biglerville were Col. and Mrs. Daniel G. Berry, whose guests were: Gen. and Mrs. Collins, Gen. Lytle Brown, Gen. Hawkins, Gen. Kilburn, Col. and Mrs. Roberts, Col. and Mrs. Shaw, Col. Williams, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Wells.

Maj. and Mrs. William G. Livesay, who were hosts to Maj. and Mrs. Peake, Maj. and Mrs. Ladd, Maj. and Mrs. Roberts, Maj. and Mrs. Ryder, their guest Miss Mary Clark, Lt. Rall, Capt. and Mrs. Sweet.

Capt. and Mrs. George B. Wescott whose party included Maj. and Mrs. Hoisinger, Capt. and Mrs. Hensley, Capt. and Mrs. Maddox, Capt. and Mrs. Goode, Miss Anna Dozier, Capt. Bower, Lt. and Mrs. Cochran, Lt. and Mrs. Sears, Lt. and Mrs. Privett, Lt. and Mrs. Wilson, Lt. and Mrs. Yarborough, Lt. McDonald, Mrs. Pulliam.

Miss Alice Torrey, whose dinner party was a special compliment to Miss Louise Young and Lt. Malcolm R. Kammerer, entertained besides the honorees, Misses Helen Young, Landon Reed, Harriette Wells, Sue Brandt, Peggy Lampke, Lt. and Mrs. Fowlkes, Lt. Diller, Lt. Doige, Lt. Dunn, Lt. Griffeth, Lt. Gailbreath and Mr. Willard.

Col. and Mrs. Harris Pendleton, who entertained the field officers of the 29th Infantry: Lt. Col. and Mrs. Reed, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Brandt, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Franklin, Maj. and Mrs. Patch, Maj. and Mrs. Young, Maj. and Mrs. Taylor.

Capt. and Mrs. Louis C. Beebe, whose party included Col. Partello, Col. Graham, Maj. and Mrs. Sullivan, Maj. and Mrs. Hoop, Capt. and Mrs. Bolte, Capt. and Mrs. Coffey, Capt. and Mrs. Johnston, Capt. and Mrs. Jackson, Lt. and Mrs. Kolb.

Others entertaining large and interesting groups at Biglerville were Capt. and Mrs. A. B. Helsley, and Capt. and Mrs. Clyde Grady.

Delightful indeed were the home dinner parties where the Hallowe'en spirit pervaded every nook and corner of the house. Among those entertaining at home were Capt. and Mrs. John K. Rice. Their fireplace was the haunt of three grinning pumpkin heads, pumpkins glowed on the mantel, cornshocks were made in the corners of the living room where all the lights were shaded with orange and long orange tapers shed their soft light here and there. Those enjoying this party were Capt. and Mrs. Dahlguist, Maj. and Mrs. Shelburne, Capt. and Mrs. Crim, Capt. and Mrs. Hugh Wear, Capt. and Mrs. George Wear, Capt. and Mrs. Nevins, Capt. and Mrs. Magill, Capt. and Mrs. Case, Capt .and Mrs. McCoy, Capt. and Mrs. Al Jones, Capt. and Mrs. Doll, Miss Daisy Reed, Capt. Smith, Lt. and Mrs. Starks.

Capt. and Mrs. Cecil Rutledge entertained thirty friends at dinner at their quarters. Their house was most attractive with jack-o-lanterns, orange tapers, quantities of orange marigolds and chrysanthemums. Those present were Lt. and Mrs. Lockett, Lt. and Mrs. Barr, Lt. and Mrs. Earle, Lt. and Mrs. Smith, Lt. and Mrs. Finney, Lt. and Mrs. Haynes, Lt. and Mrs. Vinson, Lt. and Mrs. Black, Capt. Weatherby, Miss Theodosia Hocker, her guest Miss Winship of New London, Conn., Miss Frances Dexter, Miss Leona Ferrandon, Lt. Gilbreth, Lt. Hocker, Lt. Totten and Lt. Breckenridge, Mr. and Mrs. Bass Lewis and Mrs. Oglethorpe of Columbus.

Maj. and Mrs. Daniel G. Torrey were hosts at a very delightful dinner party at their home, their guests being Col. and Mrs. Knight, Col. and Mrs. Willard, Col. and Mrs. Baker, Maj. and Mrs. Lloyd Jones.

Maj. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Ferris entertained most charmingly at a dinner for twenty-four at their home. Covers were laid for Maj. and Mrs. Bootz, Maj. and Mrs. Bradley, Maj. and Mrs. Rader, Maj. and Mrs. Bull, Maj. and Mrs. Freehoff, Maj. and Mrs. Schmidt, Maj. and Mrs. Marr, Maj. and Mrs. MacGregor, Maj. and Mrs. Taylor, Maj. and Mrs. Hoge, Maj. and Mrs. Smith.

Lt. and Mrs. H. W. Killpack entertained a small party at dinner at their home.

Major and Mrs. Frederick C. Phelps were hosts to a very large group of friends at dinner at the Ralston. Their invitation list included Col. Preston, Col. The Organization bridge clubs met this week.

On Monday evening at the Polo Club the Special Units had their first evening meeting. The club house was attractively decorated. There were eight tables at bridge and eight guests who visited with each other near the fire while the game was in progress. At ten thirty refreshments were served and after that those who liked to sing gathered around the piano for a group of songs. Later there was dancing. Those winning at bridge were Mrs. Landon Lockett, high prize for ladies, Mrs. Harrell Strickland second, Lt. Edmund K. Daley, first prize for officers, Maj. Everett D. Barlow second.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Ralph B. Lovett, Mrs. Ernest S. Barker and Mrs. Dwight L. Adams entertained the 29th bridge club. The tea table was particularly lovely. The cloth was a handsome one of cutwork medallions put together with exquisite filet. In the center was a low silver bowl filled with deep purple chrysanthemums and purple berries. Around it were four silver candlesticks holding jade green tapers. At the extreme ends were triple silver bud vases filled with chrysanthemums. Spiced gum drops were on each table and at the conclusion of the game a dainty salad course was served with tea. Those winning were Miss Louise Young, high, and Mrs. L. W. Yarborough, second.

The ladies of the 24th Infantry bridge club were entertained at the Polo Club by Mrs. E. E. Walker. Mrs. James P. Lyons won first prize, Mrs. Albert B. Helsley second. At the conclusion of the game hot chocolate, hot rolls and jam were served.

The Tanks bridge club met with Mrs. Harry Reed at her quarters. Mrs. Kenneth G. Althaus won first prize, Mrs. Sereno Brett second, and Mrs. James E. Macklin third. Ice cream and cake with coffee was served.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. Edward J. Curran honored her mother, Mrs. George E. Sipe, of Harrisburg Va., with a lovely bridge tea at the Log Cabin. There were nine tables of players and Mrs. Lee M. Hester was given a beautiful gold embossed green crystal sandwich plate for making highest score. Mrs. Raymond G. Sherman won for second prize an ice bucket with tongs. Mrs. John R. Deane made low score and was consoled by a cunning novelty card box.

On Friday afternoon at her quarters Mrs. Frank J. Vida was hostess to five tables of bridge. Mrs. O. B. Abbott won first prize, a box of French powder, Mrs. Kenneth March second, a double deck of cards. Mrs. Ralph R. Sears cut the consolation, a dozen small filet mats. Mrs. Vida served an elaborate chicken salad course in the late afternoon.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. Benjamin C. Fowlkes entertained twenty friends at bridge. Mrs. Frederick Pearson won first prize, a sandwich plate, Mrs. Wayne Smith second, a set of novelty card table numbers. A delicious sweet course followed the game.

Mrs. Rothwell H. Brown honored Miss Louise Young with an afternoon bridge party on Thursday.

On Friday evening before the 29th Regimental dance Maj. and Mrs. Sam I. McCarts will entertain at dinner honoring Miss Louise Young and Lt. Malcolm R. Kammerer.

WOMAN'S CLUB

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next Meeting—November 19th.
Time—2:15.

About eighty-five of Fort Benning's most representative women met at the Polo Club on last Monday afternoon for the first regular program of the Woman's Club. It was a delightful occasion from beginning to end. Gen. Edgar T. Collins made the opening address in which he spoke of "woman's place in the sun." Time was when women had neither duty nor influence outside the narrow confines of her own home but that day is gone. Today she presides with scientific efficiency over her home, that basic unit of society and government, and performs her duty in helping to solve problems, social in the broad sense of the word, exerting a great influence in moral and political issues. He spoke of her ability to find what was wrong and her eagerness to improve conditions. To woman Gen. Collins gave recognition in leadership and he had us laughing at ourselves over his joke of home rule! It was gratifying to hear his words of appreciation of the Woman's Club and its efforts to enrich the life of the post. He gave us good cheer, and made us feel that Fort Benning is the better for our organization. The Club was honored to have General Collins with us and anticipates with pleasure his coming again.

Mrs. Richard D. Daugherity, accompanied by Mrs. A. D. Warnock, sang a group of two songs. Her first was a selection from Faust which she sang in Italian, and the second was a song inspired by and composed for Mrs. Daugherity by a friend on the eve of their separation. It was an exquisite poem on Friendship with as lovely melody as sentiment. Mrs. Daugherity has a beautiful voice and she was enthusiastically received on this her first appearance at this post.

Mrs. E. E. Lewis gave a perfectly charming review of the Mediterranean cruise tour which she, with Major Lewis and Col. and Mrs. Delaplane, took this summer. From their thrilling midnight sailing out of New York harbeor we went with her on a 14,000 mile voyage to Madeira, the island of exquisite handicraft, where they rode in queer bullock-drawn wicker sleds, down narrow streets past gay bazaars, up a high mountain from whose peak they took a breathless toboggan ride down; to Morrocca with a stop at Tangier, second oldest city in the world, where one is fascinated by the colorful natives, wierd husic, tiny shops; to Gilbraltar, crouching like a great British lion between Africa and Europe, with its free port where one shops to advantage; to Spain, Malaga land of grape and wine, with a visit to Madrid where she took us with her to a bullfight, and sickened by the barbaric cruelty of this unsportsmanlike sport, left before horrors were perpetrated; across the Mediterranean to sunny Italy with a journey to Venice and the crater of Vesurius, and to Rome with its glorious past, to Greece with visit at the classic city of the ancient world, through the Dardenelles to Constantinople where "the old order changeth, giving place to new" (the Sultan's harem being now a museum), and law and order reigns under the direction of a sane president. We glimpsed the battlefields of ancient Troy, saw the tomb of Hercules. On to the Holy Land where the footsteps of the Master were followed from Bethlehem to Calvary. Across to Egypt, where Cairo held our interest, on the great pyramids and the sphinx; a ride on camels to a camp in the Sahara where turkey and wines were served (hitherto we were under the impression that the Sahara was dry!) and finally to Paris, Nice, and Monte Carlo with their world famous attractions. A glorious tour, this, and Mrs. Lewis told so delightfully just what was most interesting, making the Mediterranean sparkle before us.

Captain Cecil Rutledge, accompanied by his accomplished wife, sang three beautiful songs, "Autumn Winds" by Gena Branscombe, "God Lit His Stars" by Ntting, and "That Dear Little Woman o' Mine" by Bartlett.

After the program Mrs. Charles L. Willard and Mrs. Harry A. Wells were hostesses at a delightful tea.

The Literary Club

The Literary Club would ordinarily meet on next Monday, alternating with the Woman's Club, but since the coming Monday is a holiday, the Literary Club will have its first meeting on Thursday, Nov. 15, at the Polo Club at 2:00 sharp. The club, under the direction of Mrs. Philip B. Peyton who has been such an inspiring leader for the past two years, will study what the critics term "living literature"—contemporary writing that throb with life and thought of this day. The program which will be presented next Thursday is as follows:

Foreword—Mrs. Peyton.

Non-fiction—"About Ourselves" by H. A. Overstreet; reviewed by Mrs. Peyton.

Fiction—"The Strange Case of Annie Spragg," by Louis Bromfield; reviewed by Mrs. H. McD. Monroe.

Poetry—"The Buck and the Snow," by Edna St. Vincent Millay; "The Sunset Gun," by Dorothy Parker; read by Mrs. R. H. Chance.

One of the outstanding features of contemporary literature is the revelation of the inner self. This psychological phase will predominate selections for Thursday's consideration.

The Arts and Crafts Club organized on Mednesday A. M. at their crafts room in the Academic Area. This group will have for their leader Mrs. John D. Forsythe who has so skillfully directed their artistic endeavors for the past two years.

Mrs. D. L. Worsley and Mrs. T. C. Hudson, of Columbus, addressed the Woman's Club at the meeting Monday afternoon at which time the club was informed of the work of the Three Arts League and its program for the coming season. Tickets are no won sale for the season at the Officers Club. Those intending to purchase a season ticket are urged to do so as soon as possible. Many people of Fort Benning took advantage of the program put on by this organization last season. The program for the coming season may be found in an advertisement in this issue.

Headquarters Company

Here we are back in the News columun again and we hope that the people are as glad to see us back as we are to get back. We were too busy during the past to write any news notes but here we are again.

The prodigal son is back with us once again, little Willie Harrison himself, the boy with the million dollar smile and the two-bits scowl. Little Willie was away from the company for quite a while and according to the smiles of the handsome one he was very glad to be back with us again. Welcome back, Willie, stay longer this time.

Our speedy spectre of the gridiron, Red Watson, was the victim of a terrible accident yesterday. Red was galloping to snare a forward pass and in some odd way the pig skin landed on the back of his neck and Red went down for the "Chicago Count." Anyone who is in doubt as to the meaning of the "count" just write a letter to Mr. Gene Tunney and if he is not too busy dodging pots and pans he will probably explain the meaning of the "Chicago count" to you.

—R. T. M.

Company "H"

Demonstrations have again become an obsession of the company. Every time that we go to read the bulletin board, we find that we are called upon to "do our stuff" in one of the Infantry School's famous demonstrations. However, this year we are carrying out an entirely different kind of demonstration from the type that we participated in the last three years. Instead of fighting an imaginary enemy, we have a real live target at which to fire. This form of demonstration not only enables the class to have a more accurate picture of the situation, but also gives the troops a chance to put into actual practice the things that have been taught them at numerous lectures. Of course, though, there would be a completely different tale were we to fire live ball ammunition. These blanks do change the pitch and tune of a Browning!

We are rightfully proud of the fact that some of our recruits are making such good showings on the drill field. Saturday three recruits from the company took first place in a drill down contest held at the Recruit School. The recruits are divided into four groups: first, second, third and fourth week. Of the first three groups, Pvts. Chanault, Martin, J. B., and Looney took first place in their respective groups. We had no men in the fourth week group.

Sergeant Robert E. "Bob" Harkey and Corporal Felix G. Matthews were discharged the past week and readily re-enlisted for the best outfit in the Doughboy regiment. They left together for a ninety-day furlough. We are glad to have these two excellent soldiers remain in the company, and hope that their stay on furlough will be a pleasant one. Here's to these two excellent soldiers, "may their stay with us be as enjoyable with them as it will be beneficial to the organization."

—Bernard B. Swayze.

Company "E"

Drill during the week: Battalion in attack, Battalion as advance guard for a lorge force, close order drill, offensive combat, extended order and combat principles. The past week has been a busy one in this company with guard, fatigue and drill the orderly buckers are still working over time and privates for selected posts have been plentiful out of seven men mounting guard Tuesday, six of them were granted passes, three for Wednesday, three for Thursday and two for Friday.

The following conversation was overheard between Privates Pendergraph and Roberts: Pendergraph says, "I am getting sick of the Army. I believe I will go in for truck farming." Roberts replied, "You can't fool me. You don't raise trucks, they come from a factory."

Our men are turning out for the football practice (2nd Bats) now and are doing fine. No selections have been made for the Battalion first string yet, but we hope and are most sure of getting a number of men on the squad, as Sgt. Franz, and Boling. Also the Swede coming from up North should have plenty of pep and make the squad like a top who has been on furlough for a month. "Whitey" Tinsley and "Black Boy" Tillman are good prospects, too. About to forget McCallister, our crack end, and that fighting Moody, the tackle. During the time our football league was in progress our coach, 1st Sergeant Davis, ordered all the football squad to meet in the recreation room for skull practice. Private Lamb didn't miss wearing his steel helmet.

Private Watson received a telegram from his home at Louisville, Ala., stating that his brother was in the hospital at the point of death. Watson has taken a furlough of ten days and we hope that his brother will soon recover.

"Goat" Liebel received a letter the other day from his home stating that the rocks and brush had been cleared out of the roads up near his home and were now passable on foot and that he could ask for a furlough. We understand that when "Goat" first came in the Recruit Center they had to put cinders in his shoes so that he could get use to wearing them.

"Doubting" Thomas, our foremost leather pusher, has just fought in LaGrange, Georgia, last week, losing the fight by a close decision. His opponent was "Peanuts" Hockersmith. We understand, or know rather, that "Tommy" must have been fighting a man over weight or the wrong decision was given him.

"Red Bird" Easterwood has changed his sleeping place. He has moved over to the regimental recruit school.

Sgt. Halpern, one of our Platoon Sergeants, has been in the hospital for about ten days now undergoing an operation and we hope to see his smiling face out with us very shortly. He has undergone an operation on his throat and is getting along nicely.

Junior Officers Lyceum

On Saturday, Nov. 4, Colonel Pendleton opened the first of a series of informal talks to officers of the 29th Infantry with less than three years commissioned service. His first subject concerned the organization of the War Department in which he showed the changes made in this department since the war. He also told of the manner in which matters of all descriptions are handled in this great machine called the War Department and how complex an affair it is. This talk was very interesting and very instructive due to the fact that Colonel Pendleton talked from knowledge gained during the two terms that he served in the War Department.

Colonel Pendleton's object in giving these short talks is to give the Junior Officers instruction in military subjects which he believes essential to young officers. He intends to continue these subjects each Saturday throughout the winter and they are being looked forward to with the utmost of interest.

First Place

When a company leads the "Leaders of the Way," no particular significance is attached to the matter in the 29th. All take it as a matter of course. The first shall be last and the last shall be first, even as I say unto you, "Squads right about". But when a company drives the hard boiled mess sergeants of the 24th Infantry down off their perch in the monthly rating of "Messes"—then 'tis news as Dona would say!

The Regiment congratulates Captain Michael E. Halloran, of Company "C" in the winning of first place.

Training The "Leaders"

The second training period for the 29th Infantry began November 1st with a command post exercise for all commanders and staffs down to and including company commanders.

The purpose of this exercise was to train leaders and their staffs for their duties in offensive combat. This exercise being the initial one of a series, was carried out as a map problem on the main parade ground. All distances were greatly reduced.

The second command post exercise, with a purpose similar to the first, was carried out in November, with all commanders and staffs placed on the ground as called for at the locations mentioned in the "Situation". The exercise was conducted in the nature of a tactical walk for front line commanders and each echelon in rear functioned on the solutions made at the front. The "enemy", represented by two officers, based their conduct upon the solutions of the 29th Infantry commanders opposing them.

Some of the features worthy of note were the following: Mimeographed sketch maps without named terrain features were used exclusively; dictated oral orders, emphasizing brevity, speed, and the pointing out of unknown terrain features were relied on by all commanders in place of written orders; combat intelligence functions were carried on by means of two "Red" officers (umpires) and several "Red" prisoners; communications functioned in the first phase by means of mounted messengers and staff officers and later by wire and radio. Radio communication with Division CP was represented by radio service from Regimental Cp at Fiske Range to Regimental headquarters in the 29th Infantry Barracks. This service enabled the Regimental Sergeant Major at his desk in the post to maintain constant touch with the Regimental Adjutant (S-1) in the field.

After the exercises, Colonel Pendleton conducted a critique, in which deficiencies noted during the problem were commented upon and the proper corrective measures pointed out.

These exercises are in accordance with an intensive training program preparing "the regimnt to carry out its part in the Infantry School demonstration—"Regiment in Attack" to be given November 10, 1928.

Re-enlistments

The percentage of re-enlistments obtained during the month of October, 1928 in the 29th Infantry is particularly gratifying to all commanders concerned. With 22 men discharged per E. T. S., 16 re-enlistments were secured, thus giving the regiment a percentage of 72 per cent.

Military Housekeeping

The above unusual combination of words recently coined by Capt. G. W. Spoerry, 17th Infantry, is of particular interest and significance to the 29th Infantry at the present time. With the messes of the 29th Infantry, leading the "Big Parade" down the Sanitary Officer's "Report of Messes", one would suppose that having reached the acme of perfection, that the 29th would rest on its laurels. This supposition is contrary to fact for "the 29th never rests"—on its laurels! It is never too exhausted to gulp down another cup of coffee, nor too bashful to turn out for more "seconds".

With the above situation in mind, the Regimental Commander, Colonel Pendleton, has taken action on a letter from the Chief of Staff, General Summerall, by appointing Captain C. M. Ulsaker, as his regimental Mess Agent. Capt. Ulsaker's duties are those of co-ordinating messes within battalions, through the regular company mess officers. The first line of attack contemplates the co-ordination of menus within the battalions. The next contemplates that orders for meats, vegetables, etc., will be consolidated and procured through the Post Commissary, and the Post Exchange, exclusively. These agencies, knowing the needs of each battalion sufficiently well in advance, will be enabled to purchase carload lots in the ope nmarket, thereby greatly reduc-in gthe cost of subsistance. Company messes, operating on the co-operative principle, wil lthus be able to plan economical menus making the most of their "50-cent ration."

Appointment of Nco's.

The appointment of NCO's in the 29th Infantry is receiving the closest attention of the Regimental Commander. He believes that prope rselection of NCO's is a subject of vital importance to the Regiment.

Hereafter, no soldier will be recommended for an original appointment unless he has the following qualifications: 1st Class Private, Character, Capable of leading a squad, Reliable, Soldierly appearance, Capable of instructing a squad to include the duty as coach with the weapon armed.

Newly appointed NCO's will report to the Regimental Commander at 11 A. M. on the first Saturday after promotion has been announced.

ARMISTICE DAY AT FORT BENNING

Armistice Day will be observed here Monday. The garrison track and field meet will be held on that day. A special program will be announced by headquarters, Infantry School. We were unable to get the details for publication in this issue, however.

RESERVE OFFICERS HOLD MEETING

The Columbus chapter of the Officers Reserve Association held its regular meeting at Assembly Hall No. 4 last evening. Capt. C. L. Bolte, Inf., instructor of the first section, academic department, gave a very interesting address on "Tactics and Technigue of the Infantry." These meetings are held on every second and fourth Thursday of the month. Reserve officers at Fort Benning are invited to attend these meetings, which are growing in popularity every month.

Entered as second class mail matter, April 12, 1924, at the post office at Fort Benning, Ga., under the act of March 3, 1879. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917 authorized August 27, 1924.

This issue is dedicated to those Americans who made the supreme sacrifice before eleven o'clock on the morning of November 11, 1918.

ARMISTICE DAY

Ten years have passed since that eventful morning that rifles ceased to fire; cannons ceased to roar; ten years since the world was in a turmoil with the destruction of property and the taking of human lives on the fields of battle. Since that eventful day all nations have been in an era of reconstruction, and all of them, to a great extent have successfully attained a normal state, much like that of pre-war days.

The American nation immediately after the great conflict which ended ten years ago enacted what is known as the "National Defense Act of 1920." That law has not been fulfilled to all the specifications thereof, and today, we find the United States army just a little larger than maintained before 1917. There seems to be somewhat of an assurance that this country will never again be engaged in a war, and that peace will reign supreme forever.

It seems that we have gone a bit too far in assuming that. At this time we are reminded of the words of the Father of Our Country: "In time of peace, prepare for war." That should be our watchword of today. Our preparations should be conservative, but on a par with other nations of the world.

The observance of Armistice Day, in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice during the World War, should include an inventory of present day defense needs as well as reverence for our departed loved ones in the World War.

ACQUIRE AN ESTATE

The problem that presents itself to every officer in the Army is that of acquiring an estate during his period of service. He wants his estate to be sufficient to enable him to enjoy the same plane of living after he leaves the service as he enjoys during his service, to assure him of complete freedom from financial worries. Acquiring such an estate might seem to him almost impossible in the face of present day demands on his salary. The allotment system as it is used in the Navy overcomes that difficulty.

Many of the officers of the Navy have been developing an estate by having a certain amount of their pay allotted to the bank of their choice with the instructions that the bank create a living trust for them. The bank receives the allotment from the Navy Department in Washington and deposits them in a four per cent. savings account. When the amount has accumulated $500 or $1,000, the bank invests this money in good 6 per cent. bonds. The income from the bonds plus the allotment continues into the account until another $500 or $1,000 is accumulated and another investment is made. The whole transaction, including the collection of interest at the proper time is handled by the bank. The same plan could be adopted by officers of the Army but for the lack of provision for the allotment system. If the Army officers create sufficient demand for the allotments to be made to banks as they are now being made for life insurance, the War Department would recognize that demand.—From Army and Navy Courier.

We might add to the splendid article above that, even though the allotment system is not provided for by the War Department, the plan as outlined could easily be carried on by every Army officer. An officer who desired to create an estate as outlined above could have his monthly pay check sent to the bank, and instruct the bank to take a certain specified amount of said check and deposit it to a savings account with instructions that when a certain amount had accumulated therein, good 6 per cent. bonds could be purchased. The banks would be glad to handle it in this way regardless of whether or not the allotment system prevailed in the Army.

We wish again to call to the attention of our readers that the ARMY RELIEF drive is still on. Major R. H. Fletcher, Jr., 24th Infantry, has submitted some figures to show that Fort Benning has still room for improvement in her contribution to the Army Relief. The names of the representatives in the various organizations appears elsewhere in this issue. Get in touch with them, if you have not already done so, and pledge your support to this worthy organization—which is the ARMY'S OWN.

News from the army folks who reside in Columbus is more or less conspicuous for its absence. Those who reside in the city are as much a part of Fort Benning os those who live on the post. The NEWS would like to have contributions from those who live in the city. Please get your items in as early as possible the first of each week.

One of the features of this issue is the initiating of a weekly calendar which records the events of next week. It is believed that this little feature will be an asset to everyone—a weekly reminder. Look it up and here's hoping that you like it and approve. You can help keep this up-to-date. If your club or some other activity is omitted please phone the office and it will be given immediate attention. See it on the back page.

ONE YEAR AGO

Sometimes it is interesting to look back over the files of the News and find out what was going on at the Infantry School in the years gone by. Last year the issue of the News was printed on Armistice Day, November 11. The first page carried a picture of Major-General Richmond P. Davis, who was and is still the commanding general of the 4th Corps Area with station at Fort McPherson. The picture carried with it the story of the military career of the 4th Corps commander. The head lines also told of the new policy of detail of officers to be selected for the courses at the Command and Staff and War College for the present year. Another head line indicated that the All-Army team had left for the northern invasion, just a few days before the issue of the News went to press, the Commandant, General Collins, had given the team a little talk on the field at Doughboy Stadium, in which he wished the team the best of luck in the big Marine game in Washington.

Turning to the society page we found that General and Mrs. Cocheu had been honored at a dinner prior to their departure for Fort Monroe, where General Cocheu took the refresher course. The dinner was given by the officers of the academic department. Other social notes included an item to the effect that Lieut. and Mrs. H. W. Keith would leave the following week for a visit with relatives in Florida, and afterwards leaving for their new station in China.

The Woman's Club had been delightfully entertained with an address by Major Frank Green, director of the American Red Cross. He spoke of the work in the flood area in the Mississippi valley where he had been for some weeks.

The 7th Engineers had pulled off their organization day program on the 5th of November. In the issue one year ago there were plenty of notes from the 29th Infantry, and then we find that the Quartermasters defeated the Medicos on the local golf links. Towards the last few pages of the issue of Nov. 11th, appears a picture of the All-Army team, and the back page with live news from the 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

RESERVE OFFICER REPORTS HERE FOR SCHOOL

Major Henry M. Dent, Inf. Reserve, reported to the Infantry School as a student officer last Monday. Major Dent is from Memphis and began his military service during the border trouble in 1916. He served as a major during the World War.

SOME FACTS AND FIGURES ABOUT FORT BENNING

Last Year's Pay Roll	$3,600,000.00
Last Year's Contribution to Army Relief	957.62

These figures show us up; we are proud of ourselves, yet lost year for the only regular army charity there is, we fell flat. Fort Benning has something to make up for—why we didn't even give the Army Relief Society as much as we spent for poppies (over $1,300.00). Out of every dollar's pay we got, we gave only 1-38 of one cent to support the needy widows and orphaned children of our own people. And look at this:

	Approximate Population Officers	Enlisted men	Contribution to Army Relief
Fort Benning (last year)	575	4,700	$ 957.62
Fort Leavenworth (last year)	325	900	946.02
Fort Riley (this year)	200	1,900	1,615.00

Those enlisted men who did not give at the pay table can still turn over their share to the representatives who are collecting for organizations (see list page .....); and officers too can contribute to these same representatives. If there be some in our community who have more of this world's goods than come through the pay check, let them run over mentally the well-known charities and consider whether any are more worthy of support than is the Army Relief. Extra contributions may be sent to the undersigned and will be credited to individuals or to the organization with which the donor is identified.

For those who may have missed the publicity up to now, it is stated again that the Army Relief Society exists to give financial help to destitute widows and orphaned children of officers and enlisted men of the regular army only. This it does by awarding emergency checks to provide for the immediate future of the stricken family, following this up by monthly payments as long as needed; by assisting the widow to find employment, at the same time aiding her in every way to hold the home together; by assisting financially to educate the children and, incidentally by helping clothe the family. Last year the society expended $62,555.67 for relief and $12,622.84 for education.

The Army Relief has no overhead except such operating expenses as printing; it pays no salaries to officials nor for clerks. The only source of income is from donations and from interest on such funds as it can afford to invest. In this it differs from many civilian charitable organizations in that it has no wealthy supporters who contribute large lump sums; moreover where other charities "on the outside" draw upon the whole nation, the Army Relief depends absolutely and wholly upon the regular army. If we do not support it no one else will.

ALL-SERVICE ACES

(By Al Durden)

Strange as it may seem, with the advent of Young Stribling into Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination contest, the limelight of the fight arena below the Mason and Dixon line now shines steadily and brightly upon Gunner DePratt, light-heavyweight champion of the army and Willie Ptomey, all-service middleweight champion. They are army fighters and both boys are stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. DePratt is a member of Company "H," 29th Infantry, while Ptomey is a member of Hdqrs. Company of the 15th Tank Battalion. Products of the Army Boxing School, both boys have fought their way to the head of the class against all opposition in the service and for the past year have been busy blasting the hopes and ambitions of many of the highly touted coming champions in their weight among the civilian professionals.

Gunner DePratt

There is no doubt that DePratt is one of the hardest hitters in the game today. He is a two-handed fighter and packs a K. O. wallop in either mitt. He first attracted the notice of fight critics in his professional fight, held at Fort Benning, two years ago. DePratt was matched with Battling Minch, who was doped to stop the doughboy easily. For five rounds Minch boxed rings around the Gunner. In the sixth round Minch grew over confident and walked into DePratt's right. The referee could have counted one thousand, Minch was out for an hour.

Capt. Charles Mabbutt was later appointed boxing instructor of the Infantry School. He at once began teaching this hard hitting doughboy the finer points of the game. Battling J. D. Peaks, a colored fighter, who was one of the cleverest fighters to ever show here, assisted Capt. Mabbutt in teaching Gunner the tricks of the ring. Today DePratt stands at the top of the heap among the light-heavys in the South. His knock-out victory over Terry Roberts at the Fort Benning arena on the night of Oct. 23 completed his seventh consecutive victory against the leading light-heavy contenders in the Sunny Southland. The results of the fights were as follows: Kid Willis, Tulsa, Okla., kao 3rd round; Tony Toranto, New Orleans, kao 7th round; George (Pug) Avera, Atlanta, kao 2nd round; Ace Hudson, Miami, Fla., kao 2nd round; Tommie Billiard, decision, Billiard badly beaten; Tillie (Kid) Herman, El Paso, Texas, decision; Terry Roberts kao 4th round.

Willie Ptomey

Weary Willie has a fight career as colorful as an Easter pic-nic. He has been fighting since he was sixteen years of age. Willie's first fights were staged on the tug boats around Mobile bay. Tiring of the tug boats, Ptomey enlisted in the army. His first army fights began back in 1922 when Bill was just a big recruit. Fighting in the welterweight class he won the army championship of the District of Washington in the welterweight class in 1922.

In 1925 Ptomey won the middleweight championship of the 5th Corps Area U. S. Army at the tournament held at Fort Thomas, Ky. In 1926, he won the middleweight championship of the 2nd Corps Area and also defeated the middleweight champion of the N. Y. National Guard. During 1926, he also won the All-Service middleweight championship at the All-Service Boxing Tournament held at the Susque-Centennal held at Philadelphia.

He has met the following leading professional fighters: Panama Joe Gans, colored middleweight champion; Nick Testo, leading contenders for the welterweight championship; Sgt. Sammy Baker, welterweight contender; Bud Nolan and Frankie Lewis. Over a period of seven years Ptomey has engaged in over three hundred fights. He has lost only six fights: 2 tech; 2 stopped by referee (accidental cuts over eyes) 1 K. O. and once slipped through ring, breaking ankle. He has fought 28 feature bouts in New York City, three of his fights being in Madison Square Garden.

Neither fighter has reached his twenty-fifth milestone in life. Quite a few offers have been received by both boys from prominent fight promoters but as yet they are still wearing the O. D., but we know it wont be long now and they will answer the call of the "Big time."

24TH INF.

Odors

Captain Elmer C. Lindroth, fresh from Camp Perry, Ohio, where he had captained the Infantry Rifle Team, stood in front of Regimental Headquarters, 24th Infantry, waiting for the adjutant to arrive so that he might report for duty.

The hour was early, and as Captain Lindroth stood there his attention was attracted and arrested by some object out near the company kitchens. As he continued to stare, it could be seen that the object of his concentration was merely an army escort wagon. But wait! Indeed, there was something peculiar going on there; on the seat of the wagon sat an officer of the United States Army; an officer whose actions were strange, very strange. The wagon on its journey to the doors of all the kitchens, continually wound in and out among the buildings—turning in every direction, but the officer did not, he seemed imbued with the inflexible determination to face the rising sun.

In order to do this it was necessary for him to frequently change his seat. Once he made the driver move over to the other side so that he might get on the eastward side of the wagon. And always his nose pointed to the east.

Captain Lindroth was astonished. He was pained. Was it possible that he was gazing upon a case of mental alienation? Perhaps the poor officer needed assistance. He would see. The adjutant arrived at this moment and the Captain hurriedly appealed to him for advice.

"You will observe," said the adjutant, "That the wind blows strongly from the east, and that," he motioned towards the object, "is merely the officer of the day riding the garbage wagon."

An Appreciation

Captain E. T. Jones went to the Post Hospital recently, suffering from a slight nervous disorder, brought on we suspect, by conscientious overwork.

Captain Jones did practically all the work incidental to decorating the various halls and messes for dances held in this post during the past month, and in order to accomplish what he thought should be accomplished, he was accustomed to work far into the night. His great sense of duty preventing his stopping till the particular job was finished.

In this line Captain Jones is an artist. We can't do any art personally, but we know art when we see it, and if the hall as decorated by him for the reception dance was not art, we willingly withdraw any claim made with reference to our ability to detect this rare commodity. The Post Gymnasium on that night was very impressive. Standing at one end of the long hall one could easily imagine oneself in the majestic, half mysterious auditorium of an Egyptian Quirinal (this word is Roman, but we can't think of another as a-propos.)

He decorated the Polo Club for the 24th Infantry dance on October 27, this place, by the way, looked so much like an old plantation field that we greatly appreciated the remark made by one of those present that, "I had to go outside to find where I was at." The "at" we overlooked, of course, in the appreciation of his praise.

Biglerville Mess Hall on the evening of November 2, again showed the results of his handiwork. He was somewhat handicapped here, for the lighting fixtures do not lend themselves well to any decorating scheme, but judging from comments made by many of the Old Timers, Biglerville looked better than ever before.

We marvel at the ability of Captain Jones to accomplish such splendid results with comparatively simple material. He secured the idea and pictures for the Post Gym decoration while in Egypt years ago. Captain Jones is a real soldier of fortune, and has spent his life since early boyhood traveling over the earth. He speaks with authority on the far ports and settlements of civilization.

LEGION POST TO DEDICATE CEMETERY

The Chas. S. Harrison post of the American Legion will dedicate the Legion cemetery in Columbus Sunday. The entire post will parade on Broadway and will then ride to the cemetery. General Collins has detailed the 29th Infantry band and a platoon of that regiment to lead and escort the Legion colors in the parade and to furnish music for the occasion. The formal dedication of this beautiful cemetery marks an achievement which the local American Legion can be well proud of. The members of the post at Fort Benning will turn out en-masse for the dedication exercises Sunday.

Members of the post have been requested to be at Legion headquarters in Columbus at 3 P. M. Sunday. Judge C. F. McLaughlin, of Columbus will be the principal speaker on this occasion.

Again we appeal to the members of the student officers classes for contributions. As much news as possible is desired from the academic halls of the Infantry School. Send it to the paper through the message center in time to reach the office of the News by Tuesday noon if possible. Thank you.

ADDITIONAL 29TH INF. NOTES

Company "H"

Quite a bit of interest has been centered around Sergeant Cody and his new supply room. Under the generalship of Pvt. 1st Cl. John Dkye the new gun bins are almost ready for occupancy. All of the squad leaders will be more than joyous when they are permitted to move their squad equipment into the new gun room where things will be more convenient and roomy than heretofore. Sgt. Cody, Corp. Fracher and Pvt. Dyke should be complimented for their splendid work on this job, but of course we all know that they will always give us the best that they have.

We have been hearing some terrible things about the night after the Georgia-Auburn game in Columbus. The funny part is that they are mostly true.

Corporal Pieters is still full of suggestions for the Recreation Room, and it is believed that he will soon have it in excellent shape. His latest donation of ideas is a round table around a post. Just what do you mean about a "round table," Wally?

Poor "Shrimp"! ! ! ! ! Since he has been on a visit over at the New Wire City he has acquired a hot rival. This fellow Gurley can beat him seven ways for Sunday. Last night Pvt. Gurley started relating the adventures of a certain private in another post, and ere three years of said Private's life had passed in the army, Gurley had him promoted to Lieut. Colonel! ! ! !

Company "C"

Pfc. Andro Budris was discharged per E. T. S., November 6th, and has signified his intention of re-enlisting. Pfc. Budzisz has been a member of this organization since 1919, and during that time has been a very valuable man to the company.

Pvt. Johnson was appointed Private First Class, November 5th. Pfc. Johnson re-enlisted for this organization July 28th, 1928, formerly a member of the Infantry School Detachment.

Our Supply Sergeant, Sgt. Hayes, departed Wednesday, on a furlough of sixty days which he will spend in Muncie, Kansas. His letters state that he is having a fine time and is about to enter Politics.

Private Watson returned for duty Tuesday from the hospital. Pvt. Watson has been sick for some time with a severe attack of influenza. We are glad to see you back with us Watson and hope you regain your health rapidly.

Regimental Review

The first of the series of regimental reviews scheduled during November took place on the Main Parade Ground at 9:30 A. M., Tuesday, November 6, 1928.

Colonel Pendleton, acting as the reviewing officer, said that considering its first appearance this early in the training season, the Regiment marched particularly well. Other reviews scheduled for the remaining Tuesdays in November, will greatly improve the appearance and marching of the Regiment.

THE CLOTHING COMMITTEE OF ARMY RELIEF SOCIETY

In the last few issues of the NEWS we have endeavored to cover the various activities of the Society. The work is carried on thru three committees—Relief, Education and Clothing.

To quote from the annual report of the chairman of the clothing committee last year; "Ninety-one beneficiaries have been taken care of this year, in many cases I am told that they have not had money to buy any dresses or coats, and some families I know that we completely clothe. A great prize and treat this winter was a fur coat to a college girl, and her joy at the thought of having it to wear to her first Army-Navy game thrilling.

"I like to bring home to you what your help means so that you will feel how worthwhile it is to look over your clothes and give away what you never wear, but think you might some day—for what you may not feel comfortable in, will bring the greatest joy to any of our grateful recipients. I cannot refrain from telling you that I want good things for my people, for every one of them is out in the world making a fight to win her way, and the better the clothes, the better the job."

The drive is now on at Fort Benning. In thinking over your probable contribution to this excellent organization, please bear in mind that the work of the Society is for the widows and orphans of both officers and enlisted men.

MAJOR GREEN RETURNS TO FORT BENNING

Major Frank Green, local director of the American Red Cross, has returned here from an extended trip in Georgia. He spoke to quite a number of clubs in regard to the work of the Red Cross. Major Green made his tour by auto and reports the roads are now in excellent condition over most of the state.

XMAS WILL SOON

Be here. It generally comes before you realize it, and then you discover that there are several gifts you omitted from your first list. Make up your list early and shop early. The Post Exchange is anxious to serve you at an early date.

CAPT. GWYNN ON SICK LIST

Capt. H. M. Gwynn, of the Company Officers Class, is confined to his home on Wildwood avenue on account of sickness. Capt. Gwynn is editor of the student officers' news column, and we deeply regret that this feature of the News will necessarily have to be omitted this week. Late reports indicate that Capt. Gwynn is recuperating very nicely.

XMAS PACKAGES ARRIVE AT POST EXCHANGE

As announced in the News of last week Santa Claus is arriving daily at the main store of the Post Exchange with packages of good things for the big event of the year. Everyone is urged to do their shopping early and get the pick of the packages, and also help out the force by avoiding eleventh hour rushes usual at that time. See ad in this issue.

"You're so dumb, I'll bet you still believe in Santa Claus."

"No, I dont believe in Santa Claus, 'but, say, is there a bogy man?"

The secret has at last leaked out about Sergeant Peters and Private First Class Brocks mysterious trips into Columbus. They have both accepted responsible positions with the Cooper Construction Company of Atlanta and their office hours are from retreat to reveille.

We nominate for the meanest man in the world the 1st sergeant who put a private on K. P. so he could go with his girl then borrowed bus fare from the private.

Corporal Hunter is considering employing a secretary after receiving seven letters from the fair but dangerous sex in one day.

Private Thurston became so intoxicated with joy at the Auburn-Georgia football game that he thought he was Santa Claus and tried to go up a chimney that night, but the chimney refused to play and brick bats fell freely. Age it seems has begun to tell, Arthur, and we advise you to stick close to the day-room.

Private Avery Owens says there are several uses for an automobile crank besides that which it was made for.

Private James R. Hicks was discharged the third of the month per ETS and reenlisted with the Tankers. Good luck Hicks but we have already made out the transfer papers and believe that it won't be long until you will be back listening to the old command "stand a horse."

Private Chatham was noticed policed up Saturday with a little yellow slip of paper which read "To be absent from his post duties for three days," but remained in camp as he did not want to waste any energy.

We understand that Private Garrison has applied for permission to go in the banking business, using I. O. U.s for currency and that Private First Class Johnson has accepted the position of treasurer.

Battery "B"

Sergeants Hockemeyer, Bruno and Trigg and Private 1st Class Seifert have been the first in the battalion to distinguish themselves by passing the rigid examination for expert gunners under the new regulations while fifty men of the battery qualified as first class gunners.

Privates 1st Class Davis and Darby have recently been promoted to corporal while Corporal Phillips has just been promoted to the grade of sergeant. We are looking forward to lots of growls from these boys who have just been made hard boiled.

In order to promote the general welfare and peace of the battery it is recommended that the men be divided and quartered according to their political opinions.

It has been reported that Privates Kersey and Hodge now pay a monthly fare on the Talbotton Avenue bus.

The only fellow we can't miss when he is gone is the mess sergeant. Under the supervision of Private 1st Class Meadows the mess hall continues to be a good place to visit at least three times per day.

Hqrs., Hqrs. Btry. & Combat Train

Through last week's columns of the Infantry School News there was for some reason a very sad mistake regarding results of football scores. Of course we never had any pretty new sweaters nor did we have our picture made just before the last and deciding game but we have the championship trophy, so that's that. The old battling troopers came through with a nice neat victory over Battery "B" to the tune of 25-0.

Now that the Georgia-Auburn and the presidential questions are settled, possibly a few of neglected duties shall be taken care of, namely, Cpl. Cantrell police up the supply room, Sgt. McAuliffe dust off his desk, Pvt. Arnold shine his shoes, Pfc. Derrick wash his face.

Pfc. Vanderpool was discharged on the 8th, trying the out side for a change, but from all indications it will be just merely a change of stations ,sorry to see you leave us Barney, after being with us for seven years.

Pfc. Taylor made a flying trip down Florida way last week, and reported back that air was fine down Miami way considering the misty mornings we have been having here of late.

After spending three months on leave with the wide open spaces Cpl. Doherty is now back with us, and has his application in for purchase. Surely there was some lure to that leave as we see no cause why Joe should be dissatisfied.

The circus was enjoyed by all, even Pfc. Crawford was down although Crawford said he only went to town on business, but as the big show started Crawford was right there with the rest of the monkeys and clowns.

Sgt. McCallum rushed madly out for the early morning formation a few mornings ago with a trench coat on, and a pair of rubber boots, hatless, stating that he had lost his key to his wall locker. But later it turned out to be a false alarm. Better buy a clock Mack and you can make those formations on time.

Dramatic Club

The club opened the season on October 26th with three plays which were highly enjoyed by the big audience which greeted the first night's performances. From the reception and applause given each play it was quite evident that the "first nighters" were well pleased with the club's offerings on that occasion. There was no admission charge and all officers and their families and friends were invited to attend the opening show of the season. A large number who attended the show became members of the club. And the membership is increasing every day.

The three plays given on October 26 are "Just as Well," "Knives from Syria," and "Their Anniversary." The plays were directed by Mrs. W. B. Avera, Capt. E. M. S. Steward and Capt. A. B. Helsley.

Capt. L. A. Wetherby, Inf., acted as property manager for the first shows and is deserving of much credit for his work along that line.

The next shows will be held on November 23. The plays selected for this show are "Poor Audrey," "The Mandarin Coat," and "The Last Cache." The directors are Mrs. Freehoff, Mrs. Landis and Mrs. Sherburne, respectively. More announcements will be made later relative to the plays selected for the above date.

All officers are informed that admission to the club is by membership only, and that membership cards may be obtained from Capt. C. L. Bolte, of the academic department.

BIG FIGHT CARD NEXT THURSDAY

tainty that prevails as to the merits of both boys.

Williams has not been idle. Just as soon as his hand was taken out of the cast the dark haired mauler started active training. During October Williams engaged in three stiff mills. In his first time out after the injury he lost a close battle to his nemesis Bob Godwin of Daytona Beach, Florida. Incidentally this same Bob Godwin is the only battler that Williams has met that has secured a favorable verdict over him. After the Godwin fight Williams met the tough Bobby Marriott in Miami. The press accounts of this mill is all Williams from the first to the last round though the judges awarded a draw verdict. His last fight was against Antonio Doncil of Havana who lasted one minute and 40 seconds with the southpaw.

Harry Tracey who manages Kid Williams is confident that his battler will place the KO on the hard chin of Willie Ptomey. Tracey seems to have an obscession on this point for he made the rash promise of fighting for nothing if his boy fails to win by the knockout route. In the meantime Willie Ptomey meanders along doing his daily training with a knowing smile and the confidence that has carried him through against such stars as Tillie Kid Herman, Ted Goodrich, Panama Joe Gans, and last but not least the famous Sergeant Sammy Baker. All Willies states is "I'll win, if I don't, the other fellow will know that he has been in a fight."

Of added interest to the fans is the return of two favorites. Walker Smith after a long furlough in ole "Mississip" is back again and raring to go. Walker ties up with a sparring partner of Gunner DePratt styling himself Harold Gates. Gates is now making Columbus his home after touring the country from end to end following the boxing racket. He has an impressive record, which, if it is authentic should mean an interesting evening for the pride of Company "C", 29th Infantry. While away Smith broke in as the headliner on three American Legion shows. Walker is credited with two wins and one draw over the ten round route which will be pleasing news to his many followers, for there has been an element of doubt as to the big boy's ability to go the route.

Doubtin' Thomas after three months sojourn in the vicinity of Lookout Mountain is back also. The tow headed, two fisted little lightweight will meet Jackie McMullin of Atlanta in the other six round scrap booked for Thursday night. McMullin comes here touted to the skies as the very, very best that Al Hayes can secure. It is strange but true that Mr. Hayes, who at one time was a contender for the bantamweight championship of the world, has brought no less than twenty champions in the rough to Benning and with the exception of Kid Griffin has failed to return with a winner. Thomas hopes that his string of losses continues.

The preliminary boys seemed to be well matched. The gym is in first class shape with heat, new bleachers and a new seating arrangement.

The remaining shows of the year will be held on Tuesday evenings instead of Thursday, as is the case for the Nov. 15th exhibition. Due to late arrival of bleachers it was impossible to make arrangements to have the show on Tuesday evening, as the custom has been in the past. Don't forget the next show is Thursday the 15th.

MAIN THEATRE WAS PACKED TO OBTAIN RESULTS OF ELECTION

that was pleasing to the audience. So well was his act received when the judges rendered their decision it was found he topped the list of performers.

Next was Hitchmer and Co. offering the latest in syncopation. With more training and practice together this group of young men would develop into one of the best dance orchestras in the South.

By request of one of the actors, no mention is made to relative merits of the dialogue by the impersonators of the Two Black Crows.

Then came Birdsong and Hill, in A Few Minutes of Song, which completely captivated the audience with each number receiving heavy applause.

The next act was the best black-face bill of the evening. Summers of the Artillery, succeeded in conveying to the audience that in his opinion the world was moving entirely too fast and that it must be slowed down. His act was well received.

In the final act Ashes and Coaldust by Hicks and Kenney it was hard to tell whether ashes had settled on coaldust or coaldust had strangled ashes.

All in all the evening's entertainment was pleasing, and as before mentioned if applause can be taken as it's face value as to the merits of an entertainment then the entertainment as offered last Tuesday night was a success, and that another similarly planned and presented sometime in the near future would be pleasing to the patrons of the Main Theater.

The contestants on the program of amateur stunts given Tuesday night are as follows:

Private Lawrence H. Yerty, How. Co., 29th Infantry.

Sgt. Walter R. Reynolds and Co., Special Units.

Private Hernandez, 15th Tank Bn.

Private Joe Hitchmer and Co., 29th Infantry.

Corp. Adams and Co., 15th Tanks.

Private Bob McDonal , 29th Inf.

Corp. Brown, Special Units.

Privates Birdsong and Hill, 29th Inf.

Corp. V. O. Summer, 83rd F. A.

Privates Hick and Kinney, 83rd F.A.

The following is the standing of the contestants: first prize, McDonald; second prize, Hernandez; and Birdsong and Hill, third.

The judges were Capts. L. R. Boyd and W. B. Tuttle and Sgt. Street. Capt. D. E. Washburn acted as stunt coach.

The officer in charge of the theater, Capt. F. S. Doll, was highly pleased over the success of the stunt night and has submitted a letter of commendation to the Commandant, The Inf. School, on the work of all personnel connected with the program of last Tuesday evening. Space will not permit the publishing of the entire force which put over the fine performances on this occasion. It was a big job, and everyone deserves a good deal of credit for the big success of Fort Benning's first "amateur night."

FAMOUS LONG RUNS AND WHO MADE THEM

(By B. H. Cowan)

While the public is eagerly "eating up" the returns of the exploits of the individual stars of the gridiron in both conference and intersectional clashes for supremancy over the seemingly impossible long runs and stellar plays being made would stop for a moment and from the pidgeon holes of their mind bring to light some of those former records they were certain to remember but which have momentarily slipped from memory would gasp again and again.

Freshest among the minds of the football public is McEvers, sophomore halfback of the Tennessee Volunteers, who week before-last gave the fans of the nation their first real thrill when he raced ninety-eight yards from kick-off for a touchdown against the much tooted and ballyhooed Crimson Tide of 'Bama, the ninety yard run from kickoff the following week by his running mate "Buddy" Hackman against Washington and Lee; the seventy-three yard run from scrimmage of "Red Rover" Cagle, ace of the Army's carriers, and the seventy-two yard run of Goodbread, substitute half-back of Florida, and later seventy-four yard return of a punt.

These runs, the longest that have been made this season, fail to come up to the long runs of last year, and those of last year in turn fail to come up to the longest runs on record. The longest run from kickoff last year was made by Welch of Pittsburg against the University of West Virginia. This run is exactly one yard short of the world record which was established by Walter Eckersall, now a feature sport writer of one of the Chicago dailies, in 1904, while a member of the University of Chicago, the run being made while playing the University of Wisconsin.

Stellar a performance as was the run of Welch's it has been tied on no less than four occasions. The first time being in 1903 when Dillion of the Carlisle Indians first turned the then record run against Harvard. This bit of ball carrying is probably the most spectacular of any long distance run ever made due to the fact that it was the only point scored by either team during the entire game, and was incidently the cause of the hidden ball trick being barred from the game. To make his feat, or hidden ball trick as it was known, possible, the coach, Pop Warner, now head mentor of Stanford University, had a special set of Jerseys made for the entire team. Across the front of each sweater was the sewed emblem of a football, while around the bottom of the jersey was an elastic band to hold them down in place. During the course of the game the play calling for the hidden ball was called, the ball was snapped and in place of a runner tearing down the field imagine the surprise and bewilderment of the Harvard team to see all of the men group together in a huddle and a moment later all break away, running in different directions and hollering with the ball nowhere in sight, only a few second later to see Dillion streaking down the field with the ball well up on his back and under his jersey. Others who have turned in a run of one hundred and five yards from kickoff are: Spracking of Brown in 1909; Ainslee of Williams in 1911 and DeHart of Pittsburg in 1915.

Cagle's run of seventy-three yards from scrimmage is just exactly twenty-four yards short of the record run of last year turned in by Esyker of Miami against Ohio Wesleyan and it in turn is only eighteen yards short of the one hundred and fifteen yards run, the longest ever made, of Terry's, while playing with Yale against Wesleyan in 1884. Others and the length of the run from scrimmage beating ninety-seven yards are: one hundred and eight yards by Erehart of Indiana in 1912, and one hundred and ten yards by McCaa of Lafayette in 1909.

Last year Gulick of Hobart turned in the longest run from a punt when he raced ninety-five yards but it, like other record runs of twenty-seven, have to bow to longer runs. The longest run from this play was made in 1920 by Boyington of Williams when he galloped one hundred and ten yards against Hamilton. Others to beat the record of Gulick are: Bliss of Yale in 1922; Gray of Oberlin in 1908 and Pendleton of Princeton in 1910, each of who raced one hundred and nine yards before crossing the goal line. Pendleton's run turned the tide and was the scoring run for Princeton against Dartmouth.

Batchel's intercepting a forward pass on his own goal line last year and refusing to quit running till he had crossed Franklin-Marshal's goal line when Franklin-Marshal and West Virginia Wesleyan clashed last year has been beaten three times, twice by the same man and in the same game, the particular individual to accomplish such a feat being Hutchinson of Chicago when playing Northwestern in 1919, the first long run being one hundred and five yards, the other one hundred and three, while to the other man to have ever passed the century wark on an intercepted pass being Senn of Knox when he deposited the oval after having paced one hundred and four yards.

Lee's record run of ninety-six yards with a recovered fumble for 1927 against Amherst gave Wesleyan their victory, but it has been beaten five times. Twice for runs of one hundred and five yards, Coleman of Wisconsin making the first run in 1891 and the second time by Hunt of Cornell in 1901. Flanders of Yale in 1884 and Cleveland of Sewanee in 1892 lugging it for one hundred yards and Moran of Grinnel won the game from Coe in 1924 with a ninety-eight yard race.

The longest run during the past year with a recovered block kick goes to Robbins of Oregon State with a distance of seventy-six yards when they played the University of Southern California. The longest run on record from this play was made by White of Princeton against Harvard in 1911 and for ninety-seven yards as happened in a few other instances was the needed points to turn defeat or a tie into victory. Next in order for distance is the ninety-three yard run by Marshal of Carnegie in 1919; The ninety-two yard run by Wicdenmayer of Lafayette in 1897; the eighty-seven yard run by Sweetland of Cornell in 1898; eighty-five yards by Irmachler in 1990 and the eighty yard runs by DeWitt of Princeton in 1903 and Bender for Nebraska in 1904.

Whenever one of these runs has been made both sport writers and the public alike have sang their praises till their names are a byword for every man who dons the moleskin of the University of which he was a star. Yet off all the unusually long runs made only five of them have been the means of victory.

Quartermaster Corps

Detachment, Quartermaster Corps

Staff Sgt. Fred R. Kretchmer has been discharged and re-enlisted and is now enjoying a furlough in Washington, D. C.

Tech. Sgt. Salvatore Abbadessa has just returned from furlough in New York and reports that a pedestrian is very much in danger on the "sidewalks of New York."

Patty E. McGrotha has also returned to the fold from a sixty-day furlough, and is back on the job at the Fire Station.

We often wonder what becomes of all the fish that Sgt. Street and Sgt. Ford obtain from the waters of each week-end.

Willie C. Gordy is ill at the station hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

The Quartermaster Detachment members are proud to have in their midst Pvt. 1cl. Cooper and Pvt. Hammett, who have lately been commended for their excellent work by the Quartermaster. Such men are a credit to any organization. —W. R. R.

7TH ENGINEERS CELEBRATE ORGANIZATION DAY

Company "A" Seventh Engineers celebrated its organization day Monday, November 5th. This day has a peculiar importance in regimental history, being the tenth anniversary of the regiment's bridging of the Meuse river. This operation allowed the Fifth Division to establish a bridgehead on the east bank, and won the commendation of General Pershing, "One of the most brilliant military feats of the American Army in France."

On this anniversary, after a late breakfast, the Company travelled by motor truck to Harp's pond where an informal field meet between the two platoons took place. The First Platoon far outshone the Second in field events but the latter won the meet by its superiority in team events, the tug of war and the medicine ball race.

When the company returned to the barracks it found that Sergeant Rowland had prepared a dinner worthy of the day. After everyone had eaten his fill, Major Hoge and Captain Heavey made interesting speeches. Major Hoge, who served with the Seventh during the World War, told an eye-witness story of the bridging of the Meuse, while Captain Heavey explained the heraldic significance of the regimental coat of arms.

The company entertained many officer guests at its dinner: General Lytle Brown, Colonel D. G. Berry, Colonel Knight, Major Bootz, Captain Sherman, Chaplain McKenna and Lieutenant Lockett.

TIGER CUBS DEVOUR FIRST BAT FOOTBALL TEAM

The Tiger Cubs from the "Loveliest Village" repaid a visit to the pigskin artist of the First Bats of the 29th Infantry last Monday afternoon at the Doughboy stadium. It was a Tiger day with the Cubs winning 45 to 0.

The game was much closer and hard fought than the score shows. Several of Auburn's touchdowns were the result of intercepted passes with an open field. In fact passes accounted for the one-sided score.

The soldiers completely out-played the visitors during the first quarter. Wingo kicked off for Auburn. Romploski ran the ball back to the Infantry's 40 yard line. The First Bats marched down the field to the Tigers' 20 yard mark, where they were finally stopped. Wingo punted after three thrusts at the soldier line failed to gain. With the ball in midfield the Doughboys launched another drive. With Stepp and Stevens carrying the ball the Army was finally halted on Auburn's 20 yard mark. Wingo kicked when Auburn failed to gain. Romploski let the punt get away from him, the ball rolling to the Army's 6 yard strip. Stevens punted out of danger. It was the Army's ball on their 30 yard line when Stepp recovered Wingo's fumble of the punt. The quarter ended with the score 0 to 0.

The Cubs' first score came early in the second quarter. Jones threw a long pass to Chamblee, who raced thirty yards for a touchdown. Near the end of the period the Cubs worked the ball to the Army's 12 yard line. Jones skirted right end for Auburn's second touchdown.

Early in the third quarter Chamblee scooped an Army fumble to run fifty yards for a touchdown. With the ball on their 10 yard line an Army fumble gave Auburn the ball. Marty crashed through center for a touchdown on a delayed line buck. The third quarter ended with the score 26 to 0 in favor of the Cubs.

Auburn scored three touchdowns in the final quarter. A pass Chamblee to Frazier was good for 28 yards and a touchdown. Frazier intercepted an Army pass to gallop 40 yards for the second touchdown of the period.

The final score came near the end of the last half. A long pass Chamblee to Frazier, placed the ball on the Army's 10 yard line. Chamblee skirted right end for the necessary yardage and the final touchdown, the game ending a moment later.

During the game, Coach Reid used the entire First Bat squad, approximately fifty First Bat players taking part in the game. The playing of Stevens, Stepp, Reeves and Blackstone were the outstanding feature of the game for the First Bats. Chamblee, Frazier and Jones starred for the visitors. This trio shows promise of making a big noise in college football next season.

TANKERS HOLD ELIMINATION TRACK AND FIELD MEET

The 15th Tank Battalion field and track team held their final elimination meet at the Doughboy stadium Tuesday afternoon. Fifty-three candidates were out for a place on the team and each event was closely contested by the rival Tankmen.

Of the fifty-three candidates out for position on the team, thirty men qualified and now compose the squad that will represent the 15th Tank Battalion in the Garrison field and track meet that will be held at the Doughboy stadium Nov. 12, 1928.

SWIMMING POOL NAMED IN HONOR OF LATE EXECUTIVE OFFICER

General Orders No. 35, Headquarters, The Infantry School, dated November 3, 1928, announced the name of the Fort Benning swimming pool to be known as "Russ Pool" in honor of the late Major Joseph Russ, Infantry. Major Russ served at this sttaion from September 9, 1923, to August 24, 1924, in command of the 15th Tank Battalion, and from June 21, 1925, to June 28, 1928, as Assistant Executive Officer of the Infantry School.

She: I don't care if it is our marriage day, I won't marry you.

Sandy: Aw, come on. They won't give me my two dollars back.

"Is your friend Scotch?"

"Yes, how did you know?"

"He licked his spectacles after eating his grapefruit."

"Isn't she a little mite?"

"Might, nothin'! She won't!"

HEADQUARTERS BATTERY RETAINS ARTILLERY FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

For the second time in as many seasons Headquarters Battery has been crowned champions of the battery football series of the 83rd F. A. Their victory this season was the biggest up-set of the series. Battery "B" was doped to win over the "Pencil Pushers," with ease.

The final game of the series was between Hqrs. and "B" batteries for the championship. Headquarters demoralized the "B" team with an aerial attack that their defense was helpless against. Long passes and short passes mixed and mingled with occasional end runs that brought Headquarters a 25 to 0 victory and the beautiful silver trophy that went with the championship.

The trophy, a beautifully engraved silver cup, was presented by Major L. E. Jones, commanding officer of the 83rd Field Artillery Bn., to Sergt. John McAuliffe, captain of Hdqrs. battery team, on the football field at the end of the game.

With the battery series over, the Artillerymen will fight no more among themselves, but will work together to perfect a battalion team to represent the Caisson Riders in the Battalion Football Series, which opens November 14th.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Subject: Entertainment at Main Theater Tuesday evening, November 6.

To: The Commandant, The Infantry School.

1. The combination of amateur stunts, returns and picture show Tuesday evening, November 6, brought the first theater attendance to the highest mark in the history of Fort Benning. [illegible] 2,054 paid admissions. It can be [illegible] estimated that this kept within the [illegible] on some thousand men who might [illegible] have gone to nearby communities.

2. The success of this entertainment was evidenced through the continued voluminous applause of the audience.

3. There were only five days for the preparation of the entire program which was staged smoothly. This could not have been possible without the wholehearted cooperation which was rendered by the Commanding Officers of the 29th Infantry, Special Units, 83rd Field Artillery and 15th Tank Battalion.

4. This office expresses keenest appreciation to all organizations, amateur talent and house personnel participating and especially to the following executives whose untiring efforts insured the success of the occasion:

Captain William R. Bent—Master of Ceremonies and Recreation Officer, Special Units.

Captain David E. Washburn—Stunt manager and electrical installations.

Lieutenant Claud Burback — Stage manager.

Lieutenant Joseph Kovarik—Recreation Officer, 29th Infantry.

Lieutenant Arthur Cobb—Recreation Officer, 15th Tank Bn.

Lieutenant Harry Schwarze—Recreation Officer, 83rd Field A.

F. S. DOLL,
Capt., Inf.
Ass't Recreation Officer.

FREEBOOTERS AND DEMONSTRATIONIST CLASH

In Opening Polo Game at French Field Sunday Afternoon

French Field, Sunday afternoon, 2:00 P. M., the 29th Infantry malletmen will clash with the hard riding Freebooters in the opening polo game of the Polo Tourney of the Infantry School. After the Doughboys and Sea Robbers have exterminated each other, the Students and Artillery will match mallets and wits in the second game of the afternoon.

Polo enthusiasts will be treated to a high class brand of polo during the tournament, the four teams entered are represented by forty of the pick of the Army's mounted malletmen. The Infantry School Team composed of players picked from these teams, combined one of the strongest that has ever represented the Infantry School, on their recent road trip the Infantry School Poloists swept aside all opposition with ease, the strong Sixth Cavalry Four being forced to bow to the Benningites two consecutive games at Fort Oglethorpe. Returning from Fort Oglethorpe the Bennnig Riders stopped off in Atlanta, to hand the Governors Horse Guards and the Fort McPherson Poloists two defeats in as many games.

"DADDY" WILD CAT CAPTURED AT HARPS POND

The first catch of the season, the largest wild-cat ever captured in this section of the country was brought in by Captain Mallon and Sergt. Tweed of the Infantry School Hunt Club, and put on exhibition at the Officers Club, Wednesday morning.

Had this big "Kitty Kat" went to bed at the usual wild cat bed time, he would still be scaring the daylights out of "Ole Brer Rabbit" in the briar patches around Harp's pond, but instead of being in bed he was strolling around at eight o'clock in the morning.

Capt. Mallon and Sergt Tweed carried the Infantry School Hunt Club pack out for a practice hunt Wednesday morning, getting them in shape for the opening hunt next Sunday, with no thought of a kill. Both riders were surprised to hear Whalebone, a big Walker hound and leader of the pack, open on a warm trail in the marshes at the head of the pond, in a few minutes the entire pack had joined their melodious voices to that of their leader and the race was on with the pack in "full cry."

For two hours the big cat matched heels and wits with the pack, as he circled, criss-crossed and back tracked through the marshes and briars. His back-tracking proved his undoing, making a big circle he doubled back only to run into a part of the back who had been left behind by the leaders in the race. Fighting against terrible odds the big fellow died fighting and his pelt now adorns the walls of the Hunt Club.

The first regular Hunt of the season will be held next Sunday, the hunters will leave the Infantry school stables at 5:15 Sunday morning.

TENNIS LADDER

This week during the Ladder Tourney brought out the hardest fought battle since its inception.

Mrs. Cook, No. 6 defeated Mrs. Knight, No. 4, and thus moves into the No. 4 position. Mrs. Cook was finally victorious by the score of 6-3 and 9-7.

Mrs. Knight twice needed but one point to annex the second set. The rallies were long and hard fought and the match was nip and tuck throughout.

NOTICE

The Calvary Baptist Church, 31st St., between 11th and 12th Avenues, Columbus, Georgia, announces a special Armistice Day exercise next Sunday, November 11th, at 11 A. M. The pastor of the church, Rev. D. T. Cox, extends to members of the Infantry School garrison a cordial invitation to attend the service.

LEGION POPPY SALE

Tomorrow is Poppy Day for the American Legion. The sale at Fort Benning will be conducted by a committee of ladies of the garrison headed by Mrs. A. S. Peake. The proceeds from this sale will be used to assist needy veterans and their families. The committee will cover all parts of the garrison from early Saturday morning until noon.

Dorothy, those two men are staring right at us.

Well, Elizabeth, if they walk away, we can sue them for breach of promise.

SPORTSMANSHIP AND SUPPORT

Sportsmanship, true sportsmanship is one of the greatest things in existence, be it on the field to determine athletic supremacy or in any other phase. Sometimes we are wont to overlook these things and as a result they have a lasting effect and make an impression we would not like to have made.

Recently a form of sportmanship was evidenced that we know was not meant. Two teams were playing a game of football. One was the other's superior in every respect and as a result of this superiority was giving the lesser team a good beating. Soldiers in the stands in place of supporting their team, their every day associates many of whom are close friends of theirs, bega nto razz and haze them at every opportunity. This has a bad effect upon a team. They are not on the field tamely and meekly submitting to defeat because they want to. It is against human nature to do this for it is an instinct born in everyone of us to do our best to win, and win we will if it is in our power to do so. Yet from the support and razzing they gave their own team the supporters were in place of helping the team along were just adding a little more to aid in their defeat.

So, men when our team goes on the field they are representing us, they represent the best in our organization and regiment. Let us give them all of the support we can, for it isn't fun to stand up out there on a football field and let someone come tearing at you and knock you all around over the place; those blows and blocks in many instances hurt and for the time being are very painful. If men on the team are not doing as you think they should wait till the game is over to tell them about it or better still don the moleskin and come out and help strengthen your own team. But above all don't openly mock your team for in so doing you are mocking and making fun of yourself.

PRACTICE GAME PLEASED FOOTBALL FANS WEDNESDAY

Opening of Series will be Next Wednesday

The opening game of the football series was postponed Wednesday due to the inability of several players of the 83rd Field Artillery to be on hand for the opener. The schedule game was between the Special Units and the 83rd Field Artillery. However, the large number of fans on hand to see the opener were not disappointd as a practice game between the Special Units and the First Bats proved to be a real struggle. Both teams flashed a fast backfield and powerful line. The heavy Special Units line seemed to have an edge on the 29th Infantry but there was no advantage in the backfield. The score of the practice game resulted in a score of 7 to 6 in favor of the First Bats.

The First Bats showed much improvement over their recent game with Auburn, while the Special Units squad surprised fans at their strength and speed. The Green Cords have a line that almost equals that of the Terrible Tankers, who were the champs of Fort Benning last season. It looks like the football series at the Infantry School this year will be a nip and tuck affair as all teams are confident that they have the proper speed and weight to cop off the championship of the battalion series. Football fans at the Infantry School, and there are many, have something to look forward to in the football series this fall.

The opening game of the series will be played next Wednesday afternoon. The opening attraction will see the First and Second Bats in action.

COSTUME DANCE WILL BE HELD AT SERVICE CLUB THURSDAY NIGHT

A social event of interest to the enlisted personnel of Fort Benning and their many friends in Columbus, is the Costume Dance that will be held at the Service Club on Thanksgiving night, Nov. 29th.

Monday work will commence on the interior decorations of the Service Club, the dance committee promises a program for the evenings entertainment that will surpass all prvious events of this kind.

Handsome prizes will be awarded the winners of special events. There will be a gentleman's prize for the one with the most original costume and a prize for the lady whose costume takes judge's decision. There will be prizes for the winners in other events that will be announced later.

Transportation will be furnished those who wish to attend from Columbus, by the Howard Bus line. The schedule of the dance bus will be announced later.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the 24th Inafntry orchestra. An evening of pleasure awaits all who attend, and a special invitation is issued to every one to attend this evening of merry-making and pleasure.

AN EXCELLENT FIGHT

card was put on at the Post Gym last evening. Due to the fact that the NEWS went to press late yesterday afternoon it was impossible to get fight results in this issue. Hereafter fights will be held on Tuesday nights.

Tanks Win Track and Field Meet by Close Margin

Men From Caterpillar Outfit Victors with 53½ Points; First Bats Next With 48.

(By Al Durden)

Three thousand spectators yelled themselves hoarse at the Doughboy Stadium, Monday afternoon as fleet-footed army athletes vied for supremacy in the field and track events that composed the program for the Garrison Track and Field Meet held at the Doughboy Stadium, the largest athletic event in the history of Fort Benning.

Each event was hard fought and closely contested, split seconds divided the distance in the track events while bare inches won hard fought field events. One of the closest competed events was the 100-yard dash, four men ran the final heat. Tommie Thompson of the 2nd Battalion broke the tape in 10 seconds flat, Kingsbury of the Special Units, running fourth in the race, must have crossed the finish line three-fifths of a second later while Blount, runing second, and Birdsong, third, seemed to be separated by a split hair.

The biggest upset of the meet was the showing made by the team representing the 1st Battalion of the 29th Infantry. Getting away to a slow start, the First Bats fought their way to the front to take the lead away from the 15th Tankers near the finish of the Meet. With only the javelin throw and the mile relay race, the First Bats were leading their nearest competitors the Tankers by three points. Thomas won first place in the javelin throw to put the Tankers one point in front. The mile relay was the center of interest, for the outcome of the meet depended upon the team winning. First plac was won by the Second Bats, the Tankers and First Bats were fighting on even terms for third place until the final lap. Tanks Grantham carrying the Tanker colors speeded away from the First Bat runner, cut down the distance gained by the Artillery to pass the Redleg on the home stretch and cross the line in second place close behind Tommie Thompson of the Second Bats who broke the tape.

The work of Reddock of the First Bats was the outstanding feature of the meet. Entered in three events he took first place in each event and also smashed two of the Garriosn records. He cleared the bar at 11 feet 2 inches in the pole vault, just 13 inches better than the original record, his running broad jump of 19 feet 2 inches also bettered the old record by two inches. Carlyon of the Tankers was second high man, his first place victories in the 120 high hurdles and the 220 low hurdles, being a big factor in the Tanks victory.

The tug-o-war was won by the team representing the 15th Tank Bn., the final contest was between the Tankers and Artillery, the Artillerymen fought gamely but were unable to hold against the piledriving pressure of Bertleman and crew. A beautiful silver cup was presented the winning team of this event.

After the completion of the events, a picture was taken of the winning team from the 15th Tank Battalion and of Private Reddick, both of which will appear in an early issue of the NEWS.

A beautiful bronze medal was presented to the winners of each event, and a beautiful bronze trophy was presented the winning team of the meet.

The following are results of the meet:

Shot Put—1st, Bertleman, Tanks; 2nd, Damofol, First Bats.; 3rd, Costello, 2nd Bats; 4th, Kearns, First Bats.

120-Yard High Hurdle—1st, Carlyon, Tanks; 2nd, Cox, 2nd Bats; 3rd, Haynie, Tanks; 4th, Horton, Tanks.

220 Low Hurdle—1st, Carlyon, Tanks; 2nd, Martin, 2nd Bats; 3rd, Haynie, Tanks; 4th, Cox, 2nd Bats.

220-Yard Dash—1st, Raney, 1st Bats; 2nd, Blount, Tanks; 3rd, Maitland, 2nd Bats; 4th, Gaffney, S. U.

Broad Jump—1st, Reddock, 1st Bn.; 2nd, Armstrong, 2nd Bn.; 3rd, Kennedy, 1st Bn.; 4th, Kingsbury, Special Units.

440-Yard Dash—1st, Grantham, Tanks; 2nd, Kingsberry, S. U.; 3rd, Terry, 2nd Bn.; 4th, Campbell, S. U.

880-Yard Run—1st, Bevelin, 1st Bn.; 2nd Azbell, Tanks; 3rd, Woods, 2nd Bn.; 4th, Scalzo, 1st Bn.

Javelin Throw—1st, Thomas, Tanks; 2nd, Kingsberry, S. U.; 3rd, Costello, 2nd Bn.; 4th, Clash, 2nd Bn.

Mile Run—1st, Bevelin, 1st Bn.; 2nd, Azbell, Tanks; 3rd, McLane, S. U.; 4th, Pullian, Tanks.

100-Yard Dash—1st, Thomson, 2nd Bn.; 2nd, Blount, Tanks; 3rd, Birdsong, 1st Bn.; 4th, Kingsbury, S. U.

Discus Throw—Damafol, 1st Bn.; 2nd, Gaffney, S. U.; 3rd, Costello, 2nd Bn.; 4th, Howard, Tanks.

1 Mile Relay—1st, Second Bn.; 2nd, Tanks; 3rd, Artillery, 4th, First Bn.

Tug O War—Winners, 15th Tank Battalion.

Notes of the Meet

Although each event of the Garrison Meet was close and hard fought, spectators are still talking of the 100-yard dash. Four of the fastest sprinters in the garrison toed the mark for the final heat, with the crack of the stare's gun every man got away to a perfect start. Thompson led the pack by a foot, Blount refused to give an inch in second place but was unable to gain one. Birdsong and Kingsbury ran a deadlock a bare six inches behind Blount. Spectators held their breath as this quartette of speed demons flashed across the finish line. They finished almost the same as they left the mark, a fraction of a second dividing the time of the winner, Thompson, and the time of the fourth

AUTHORITY RECEIVED FOR CONSTRUCTION OF NEW BARRACKS FOR TANK BN.

The office of the Construction Quartermaster at Fort Benning has received authority from the office of the Quartermaster General in Washington, for the placing of a $300,000 project on the market for bids. This appropriation becomes available for the erection of Barracks No. 2, which will house the 15th Tank Battalion. The location of the unit will be in the area now occupied by the 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

Plans and specifications call for a reinforced concrete building, hollow tile and brick walls and partitions. The new building will have the two specifications similar to those of the new 29th Infantry barrack building.

The bids will be opened on December 12, and it is quite probable that construction on the new project will begin shortly after the new year.

This is the first item from the appropriations made at the last session of Congress. It is quite likely that within a short time authority will be received at Fort Benning for the construction of an additional ward building for the new hospital and nurses' quarters in the amount of about two hundred thousand dollars.

From all indications construction work at the Infantry School next summer will be the biggest since authority for new building projects has been received at Fort Benning.

FORMER BENNING OFFICER PRAISED BY COLLEGE PRESIDENT

According to an announcement made last week by President G. Bromley Oxnam, president of DePauw University, compulsory military training at that institution was abolished, and selective training in military science and tactics will hereafter be the policy of the school.

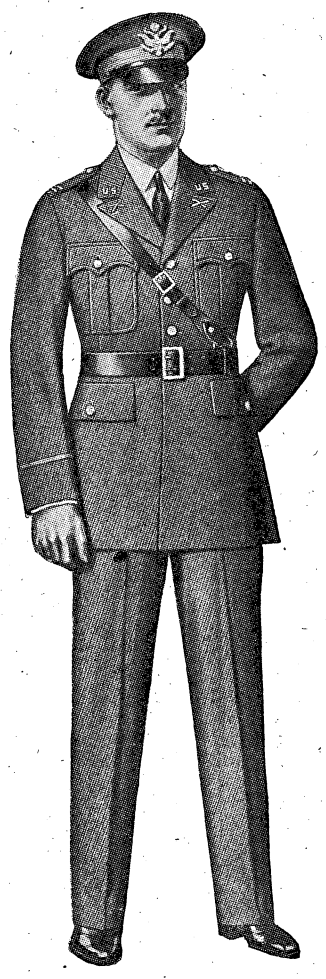
At the close of the announcement President Oxnam stated that he was not a pacifist and paid high tribute to the "high ideals and strong character" of Capt. B. B. McMahon, Infantry, commandant of the R. O. T. C. unit at DePauw. Capt. McMahon is well known at Fort Benning, where he was an instructor in the Infantry School for several years.

OFFICE OF NEWS MOVED

Last Tuesday morning an important event occurred in the life of The Infantry School News. The new office is located in the west entrance of the second building south of the Officers Club.

The former home of the NEWS is an old land mark of Fort Benning. Five or six years ago it was occupied by the Recreation Officer of the Infantry School at the time that officer had charge of both the theater and the paper. At that time the theater was located in that section of Block 14 in an old remodeled barn.

The new location of the NEWS office will afford an added opportunity for the paper to keep in closer contact than heretofore with the activities of the academic department of the Infantry School. Items of interest are desired from both the instructors and students of the Infantry School.



Combining our efforts with those of the master designers and builders of fine clothes we have succeeded in developing and placing before you a better popular priced uniform than has ever been offered before.

Uniforms made to your measure.

Materials comprise of Whipcords, Gaberdines, Barathea, Cavalry Twills and Bedford Cords in shades to conform with recent War Department requirements.

BATTERY B PRESENTED CUP

Battery B, commanded by Lieut. Ivan L. Foster, was presented with a cup from the Infantry School News this week as winners of the battalion track and field meet. The contestants of the battery worked hard and deserve a lot of credit for the showing at the meet.

KNOX TROPHY TEST NOW ON

Battery A, commanded by Capt. S. F. Clark was selected as the battery in the battalion to compete for the annual Knox trophy. The tests are now on and will be completed the last of the week. Of course, no one knows as yet the winner as every field artillery unit in the army is now undergoing a test prepared by the Office of Chief of Field Artillery. We are all rooting for Capt. Clark's outfit. Practically every officer in the battalion has been detailed to assist in the tests during the week.

Battery "C"

Private First Class Land is enjoying a 90-day furlough in the fastness of the hills of Tennessee running the ridges. Hurry back "Bicycle" we certainly do miss you more than you can imagine.

There has been a number of promotions in the enlisted personnel of this organization. We now have Sergeant Barksdale, Ex-Corporal, Corporals Underwood, Strother, Winslow, Fairbrother, Chapman and Goodwin, ex-privates first class. Luck to you fellows, may the good work go on.

Corporal Fairbrother states that he is going to write a story of Private McDuff and that the title of same will be "Cross Questions and Crazy Answers," as he would hardly be doing justice to McDuff to name the book anything else.

A certain sergeant is saying "I've been doing this for a pastime, but, now I am doing it for my last time." Don't kid us, Sarge.

Sergeant Martin states that the other night on guard that he asked a certain private of Battery A, what he would do in case of fire and that the sentry gave him the following reply.

"In case of fire, I would yell into the ground three times and run to the guard tent and shoot the Corporal of the Guard." Said sentry was soon replaced with another sentry.

Battery "A"

Private First Class Todd who was at the aviation field last Thursday painting material saw two aviators climb into their planes wtih packs on their backs and had the nerve to ask one of the aviators if they always went out "full pack".

Corporal Wilson came into camp Wednesday morning and not being able to say "I told you so" about the presidential race tried to start another argument as to whether a monkey going up a pole went around the pole or the pole went around the mondey.

All Section Chiefs in the Battalion should watch their equipment and material very closely. There is a rumor out in Battery "A" that two Sergeants in this organization have got to either buy, chisel or "borrow" a shovel which they owe to a good Samaritan on the Cusseta Road or forever keep off of that road.

The good old days in the battery seem to have gone. Privates Beyer and Tuggle have not had a fight in two weeks. Private (Doc) Abernathy has started to work. Sergeant Regan has closed his conservatory of music and is now devoting his spare time to the art of osculating. Private First Class Lasiter is never seen any more around the bus station.

Privates Thurston and Owens have contracted a severe case of "radioitis" since the battery purchased a new RCA radio and are even neglecting to eat and slep much less work.

The battery became the proud owner of a new Ford truck last week and Private First Class Coffin was heard to remark that perhaps with this machine Private First Class Branch, the battery mechanic, might be able to find or rather catch the abatage he has been looking for so long.

We would like to know why 1st Sergeant Combs always parks his car in some vacant lot while visiting in Columbus, and also who was the Juliet who telephoned the M. P. gate Monday morning in regards to Sergeant Combs' safe arrival in the Fort. Very considerate, we must say Sarge, but was she blonde or brunette?

From the looks of some of the men in the battery one would think we had just left the Toul Sector after heavy fighting for several days, but such is not the case as it is only the Irish finding an outlet for their surplus energy.

Corporal Doggett, known to the battery as Professor, is gaining quite a reputation in and around Columbus as an orator. Professor, which is the secret of your success, the large dinners, the beautiful damsels, or your own convictions?

Jinks: Are you and your wife getting along?

Binks: Yeah, in years.

"CELEBRITY", a dramatic romance of a poetic ring battler. This is quite different from the ordinary "pug" story, because it presents with irresistable humar, the making of a reputation and the high-hatting of the public by a prize fighter of scholastic attainments. The story deals with a prize fighter who develops a mania for writing poetry and who wins the world championship after he believes the girl he loves has discarded him. The picture is reported to be filled with action, drama, and thrills galore. The cast is lead by Lina Basquette, Robert Armstrong and Clyde Cook.

"Puppy Love." Fables.

"Pathe News No. 91."

SATURDAY, NOV. 17

"CLEARING THE TRAIL," featuring Hoot Gibson with Dorothy Culver in a fast moving romance of the West. A famous Arizona sheriff acts the part of a tenderfoot to accomplish his ends. Single handed he saves a herd of horses, wins back his brother's ranch, conquers the arch villain, drives away his enemies and then gains the heart of a girl. It is whirlwind action throughout bound together by good plot.

"Should Women Drive." Max Davidson comedy.

SUNDAY, NOV. 18

"THE TEMPEST," starring John

Barrymore in a powerful drama laid in Russia. It is the story of a soldier who struggles with love and tyranny—it is not a war picture. This drama of modern Russia fluctuates between the hard-bitten life of frontier barracks and the allurements of imperial palaces, and blends with six memorable characters in a suspenseful and epic conflict. Barrymore, as Ivan Markov, an aspiring sergeant, steals a kiss from a Romanoff princess—the results of this act follow them both through revolution and into a tremendous climax. This picture experienced an extended run on Broadway at $2.00 prices.

MONDAY, NOV. 19

"CASEY JONES," from the song by the same name, starring Ralph Lewis with Kate Price and Al St. John. In this railroad picture tragedy and comedy are deftly blended, suspence and thrills are cleverly spaced and romance plays its part beautifully.

TUESDAY, NOV. 20

"JUST MARRIED," a farce comedy by the author of "Abie's Irish Rose," starring Ruth Taylor and James Hall. He had just met her and they were "Just Married." Love causes some funny things to happen—Love's funny anyhow, and so is this story. The principal scenes take place aboard a ship at sea, with many hilarious situations involving a young bride-to-be, her fiance, another suitor and a young married couple. If you like to laugh—see this picture.

"Sea Food." Billie Dooley.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 21

"FOUR WALLS," starring John Gilbert with Joan Crawford in a gripping melodrama of New York's East Side. There is quick tension in a cheap basement cafe; a gangster, with his guards enter—there is a fight between leaders of two gangs, and an accidental killing committed, a gangster is sent to Sing Sing; after four years in prison he starts life anew and after a terrible struggle succeeds. Ther eis clever detective work in this story—it is one of the cases where the strong arm of the law not only punishes the criminal, but also assists him when he learns that he has determined to reform. A romance softens many tense moments in the theme.

"Paramount News No. 31."

THURSDAY, NOV. 22

"ANYBODY HERE SEEN KELLY?" starring Bessie Love with Tom Moore in a romance of the battle fields of France and the "Sidewalks of New York." He invited every madamoiselle he met to come over to the U. S. and marry him—imagine his consernation when one actually did come over. She barely escaped deportation, then found that she had to make love all over again. Yes, she found him in a uniform, but that of a copper—did she succeed in her enterprise? See the picture, you'll be pleased as well as surprised.

"Smith's Army Life."

FRIDAY, NOV. 23

"SAY IT WITH SABLES," starring Francis X. Bushman in an ingenious mystery drama woven around a gold-digging adventuress, whose love for sables brings about her downfall. It is a thrilling murder mystery in a setting of society atmosphere. The happiness of four persons is in the hands of the adventuress who is as heartless as she is beautiful. How they break the almost fatal bonds that tie them and gain their freedom, furnishes gripping situations and awe-inspiring climaxes.

"Ride 'Em Cowboy." Fables.

ECCENTRIC DANCING AT MAIN THEATRE SUNDAY EVENING

So popular was the performance staged at the Main Theater on election night by Private Marty Hermandez, Company C, 15th Tanks, that arrangements have been made for him to present a special entertainment on the Main Theater stage Sunday evening, November 18. On this occasion Hermandez will add to the amusement of the audience by offering three numbers; eccentric tap, buck and wing and eccentric Charleston dances; these promise to be highly entertaining. Considerable time has been spent in rehearsals for this occasion, and the dances, you can be assured, will be equal to anything legitimate vaudeville houses have to offer.

Private Hermandez is of Spanish nativity. Since the age of twelve years he has devoted much time in perfecting himself for the stage. He spent three years with the Keith vaudeville circuit, and, in addition, was an instructor in Jack Blue's famous dancing academy in New York City.

In 1925, Hermandez was accorded the honor of winning the Charleston contest at the Hippodrome in New York City, and was crowned king of the Charleston.

29TH INFANTRY HOLD REGIMENTAL DANCE

The Regimental Dance of the 29th Infantry was a delightful event taking place at the Hop Rroom on Friday evening.

The officers and ladies of the Second Battalion with a number of guests dined together at Biglerville prior to their regimental dance. The tables were arranged in the shape of a horseshoe and were decorated with regimental loving cups filled with chrysanthemums. Crystal candlesticks holding orange tapers alternated with the trophies. Preceding and during the dinner Mrs. Melvin R. Finney and Capt. Cecil Rutledge sang, Mrs. Rutledge accompanying. Orchestral music was rendered by the 29th musicians. Those dining were: Gen. and Mrs. Collins, Col. and Mrs. Pendleton, Col. and Mrs. Galleher, Col. and Mrs. Knight, Lt.-Col. Marshall, Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Reed, Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Brandt, Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Franklin, Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Wells, Maj. and Mrs. Phelps, Maj. and Mrs. Young, Maj. and Mrs. Hayes, Capt. and Mrs. McClure, Capt. and Mrs. Ulsaker, Capt. and Mrs. Wessels, Capt. and Mrs. Nichols, Capt. and Mrs. Rutledge, Capt. and Mrs. Lovett, Capt. and Mrs. Deane, La. and Mrs. Brown, Lt. and Mrs. Cochran, Lt. and Mrs. Brine, Lt. and Mrs. Killpack, Lt. and Mrs. Donegan, Lt. and Mrs. McCammon, Lt. and Mrs. Soule, Lt. and Mrs. Privett, Lt. and Mrs. Hayes, Lt .and Mrs. Finney, Lt .and Mrs. MacKenzie, Lt. and Mrs. Curtis, Lt. and Mrs. Vinson, Misses Daisy Reed, Elisa Ott, Landon Reed, Mary Harvey Charles, Lt. MRS. NICHOLS AND MRS. WOODWARD ENTERTAIN

On last Friday afternoon Mrs. A. J. Nichols and Mrs. N. D. Woodward were hostesses at a very large and very lovely bridge party at the Polo Club. The rustic club was never more attractive than on this occasion. The huge mantel and the corners of the room were banked with brilliantly colored autumn leaves, chrysanthemums and marigolds being used in profesion in the foreground. Graceful baskets, bowls, and vases of fluffy chrysanthemums were effectively used on the piano, and on the many occasional tables that filled the spaces so attractively. Beautiful floor and table lamps added much to the color and charm of the room. From the brackets around the wall, hanging baskets and potted plants were suspended and the club house seemed to acquire the beauty and coziness of a home. The tea table was especially pretty with its elegant imported cloth, its low silver bowl of white chrysanthemums, its silver candlesticks with their long green unshaded tapers. There were fifteen tables at which progressive bridge was played. Mrs. Walter B. Cochran won top score prize, a triple bottle of French perfumes, Mrs. Frederick Pearson won low, a cunning crystal elephant who willingly carries cigarettes in his back, and Mrs. George B. Wescott cut the tea prize, a box of French powder in a tall green crystal holder. After the game an elaborate salad course was served with coffee. About a dozen friends came in for tea.

GUARDSMEN SELECTED FOR FORT BENNING

Adj. Gen. William H. Kershner Tuesday announced selections of members of the Indiana National Guard to attend service school at Fort Benning, Ga. Lieut. Col. Manford G. Henley, 151st Infantry, was selected as principal for the field officers' course, with Maj. Ralph C. Paddock, 151st Infantry, Frankfort, as alternate. For the company officers' course the following were selected: Capt. Leo C. Maxwell, Portland; Capt. Cecil C. Closser, Anderson, as principals, and Lieutenants Roy E. Gardner, Delphi; Charles E. Gray, Tipton, and Dean Gordon, Goshen, alternates. Pvt. Jean G. Callahan was selected as principal and Sgt. Louis S. Miles, of Shelbyville, alternate, for the communications' course. —From 5th Corps News.

THE ARMY RELIEF DRIVE

Is a most important event. Make arrangements to subscribe to this worthy cause the coming pay day. Full details of the work of this splendid organization will be found on the editorial page of this issue. Don't fail to avail yourself of helping this worthy cause this year. You may derive some benefits from it—who can tell?

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next Meeting—Nevt Monday, Nov. 19.
Time—2:15.

On next Monday afternoon the Woman's Club offers its members an interesting program. Major Edgar E. Hume of the Medical Corps will give a talk on "The Balkan Countries." Major Hume is one of the most brilliant officers in the army and it has fallen his lot to do interesting things in interesting places. During the World War he was in charge of all American hospitals in Italy, and after the war he was sent to Serbia as American Red Cross Commissioner ,having under his direction all the Red Cross activities in Serbia, Montenegro and in part of northern Greece. During his years there he learned first hand the history, teh life, the possibilities of that country and its people. That group of small countries has made world history in the past decade and it will be fascinating to hear Major Hume discuss it from his point of view.

There will be charming musical numbers. Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd will sing a group of Autumn songs and Lt. Joseph I. Greene will conclude the program with several vocal selections.

A delightful informal tea will follow the program.

The Literary Club met on Thursday afternoon at which time Mrs. Philip B. Peyton presented a most interesting program of contemporary literature.

The Woman's Club meets next Monday at the Polo Club at 2:15.

NEWS FROM THE STUDENT OFFICERS CLASSES

GENERAL EDUCATION SCHOOL STARTED

The Post School in General Education opened Monday afternoon of last week with approximately one hundred applicants. However, all of this number were not accepted due to the fact that many thought the course offered would enable them to carry on high school courses they had begun before entering the service.

At present there are thirty-two students enrolled, representing, Infantry, Tanks, Engineers, Medical Corps (Vet.) and Field Artillery. Of this number the Twenty-ninth Infantry leads with an attendance of seventeen; the Artillery second with six, while the Tanks, Engineers and Medicos each have an attendance of three.

The course that is being offered is the course of instruction generally offered in the first four years of grammar school. The course includes for those who have never mastered them the simple A. B. C.s, reading, writing and arithmetic, up to and if the class progresses far enough to include simple fractions, grammar, elementary geography, and elementary history of the United States.

As an aid to help the men who are attending the school they have been excused from all duty that would in any way interfere with their attendance at school, with the exception of guard. The hours and days of attendance being from 1:00 to 4:00 P. M. daily with the exception of Wednesdays, Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Assisting Chaplain Wright in this instruction is Private First Class Wyley Buchanon of the Fifteenth Tank Battalion, Private First Class Leslie A. Day, Company "C" of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, and Private John Hitchins, Company "A", Seventh Engineers.

THE 29TH WINS FLAG RACE

The Twenty-Ninth Infantry "Led the Way" in the flag race conducted by the Infantry School Saturday, November 10, 1928. The flag race was a competition between a dozen teams, entered from various organiaztions of the Post, in horsemanship, orientation, map reading of aerial photographs and general reconnaissance.

The course consisted of eleven and one-fourth miles on which were located six stations obscured by terrain features and designated only by dots on the aerial photographs. The stations were located and course covered in an average time of fifty-seven minutes by the winning team, consisting of Lt. Jacobs, Lt. Van Houten, Lt. Strickler and Lt. Hedekin all of the Twenty-Ninth Infantry.

MILITARY TRAINING

An effort was made at the Episcopal Church convention to go on record as opposed to military training in the schools. The action was prevented by a vigorous group, many of whom had received such training.

Bishop Gailor, whose father died on the battlefield at Perryville, and whose son is a World War veteran, rose during the debate to declare that if he had 20 sons he would insist that all receive military training.

Not one criticism worthy of consideration has yet been offered against military training either in the schools or the summer camps.

The theory of its teaching the settlement of differences through force is bosh. The theory that the youth of the nation are being prepared for another war through such training is unsound. Granted for argument's sake that the latter is true, better the preparedness than the slaughter that came from undertaining a few years ago.

Military training teaches discipline. It fashions strong, straight backs, alert eyes, clear thinking and teaches democracy. It cannot be beaten for revealing the gold and dross in youth. Put the snob and the youth from the gutter in a line or under canvas together and they become different beings.

It teaches co-ordination of brain and muscle. It teaches respect for one's country, for self and for personal cleanliness. It does not crush individuality. Company commanders, platoon commanders, squad leaders drop and the private must take command and lead the rest on. Is that crushing individuality?

Perhaps if the youths of this nation underwent a year or two of military training the prisons of the country would not be filled with bandits and murderers not yet out of their teens. There's too much training on the dance floor and not enough on the drill and athletic fields.

Whether it's a camp for boys in some mountain section, a summer C. M. T. C. camp or a high school drill field, the result achieved is the same —clean bodies, alert minds, respect for self and for those whose capabilities have caused them to become leaders.—From Memphis Commercial Appeal.

(By H. M. G.)

Once in this paper I read where the author of several emulsions styled himself "ye scribe". Wishing likewise to talk about myself and still be equally as impersonal I will use the same disguise. Well, to get on with the subject, "ye scribe" has been sick. This may not appear to be much news, especially considering the preamble, were it not for the attending circumstances. I don't mean thick soups, thermometer in mouth, nose blowing, etc., nor the professional visit of Dr. Reinhart, which is quite a circumstance in itself, but, "ye scribe" refers more to the convalescing period known in the parlance of the sick book, as "light duty".

Light duty is a sort of refresher course to work. You are physically present, no matter where the spirit may be, at all formations and exercises. In pursuance of "light duty" I wandered around on Saturday among a very select nucleus of the advanced class while the battle of Maxey Ridge was in progress. Since the major position of this class was commanding various tactical units, rpersented in turn by cannon fodder from the company officers class, I took it that this earnest nucleus must be on the verge of bigger and better shoulder adornments. At any rate it developed that the regimental comamnder of the widely quotia red army made his estimate of the situation, written his field order, distributed it to his battalion commanders, and answered all and sundry questions in the space of seventeen minutes. Personally I am of the opinion that nothing is too good for that officer. At any rate the celerity brought up various statements of how we do it in the "umpty-ump" regiment. There seemed to be a good many home brew receipts. One Major stated that his colonel insisted upon drawing up his field orders in a certain way. "And" demanded the major, "is the colonel right, or is he wrong?" Personally I could have answered that and I am only a foot soldier. But Major Ryder who had evidently also served with colonels, and seemingly expected to serve with more, answered it by changing the subject. The major reiterated. Altho I heard Major Ryder's answer I don't believe the aforesaid Major is yet quite clear in the matter. In case he is not, I am glad to inform him here that the Colonel is right. I have never served with a colonel yet who wasn't right, and I expect that they will continue to be right up to and including the time that I am a colonel.

Getting down to our boys in blue overalls, I feel that it is comparatively safe, now that the tumult and shouting has died and Pat Crowell has been quieted, to mention the topography examination. The examination consisted of two parts, the written work and a foot race. The written work was made up of two questions, four broken pencils, and seven seconds. The foot race was quite elastic in scope. You ran from one little station to another little station and thus hither and yon. At each little station was an officer. The duty of the officer was to hand you a piece of paper as you dashed by, and scream, "three minutes to go, gentlemen." On the paper was written "can you see a house at azimuth 85." Obviously at the speed at which you were going nothing less than a warehouse could be distinguished. Some said they saw red, but that wasn't asked them. Nevertheless all would have been well but for station five. It appears now that station five was the Nirvana of topography, the ultimate, Polarus himself, or one of his classmates, the origin of the grid, the hump in the promotion list, in a word guisement himself. Yes, we know now, the unattainable, but on that fateful Thursday we rushed madly on seeking the will of the wish, the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. One of the best records made that day was Bob MacKie's non-stop flight to McAndrews range.

There is some talk now of running MacKie against Quafe, the Olympic Marathon champion. I am reliably informed that the next topography examination will be on a circular track.

INF. SCHOOL HORSE SHOW

The Infantry School will hold on informal horse show on Shannon Field on the afternoon of December 1, according to an order issued this week. The purpose of the show is to encourage novice riders, to develop experienced riders, and to afford recreation to spectators. List of entries will appear in the NEWS in the near future.

LADDER LEADERSHIP CHANGES HANDS

Miss Satillo Franklin, No. 3, is now perched on the top most rung of the ladder. Miss Franklin gained her proud position by virtue of her victory over Mrs. Wessels in two well played sets 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Franklin was playing shots deep into her opponent's court with great benefit.

After the passage of two weeks time Mrs. Wessels can rechallenge and it is safe to say that another bittre match is in the offing.

Mrs. Cook, No. 4, challenged Miss Franklin, the new leader. Miss Franklin successfully defended her honors by the score of 6-0, 7-5.

Miss Mary Clark, who has been holding the No. 12 position, climbed a few rungs nearer the top of the ladder by defeating Miss Harriett Wells, No. 8 player on the ladder, by taking the large end of the score of two sets by a score of 6-3, 6-4. Among the younger set this was considered as one of the feature attractions of the week and both contestants were liberally cheered throughout both sets.

"I guess I've lost another pupil," said the professor as his glass eye rolled down the kitchen sink.

CLUB PREPARES FOR NEXT SHOW ON NOVEMBER 23

Just one week from tonight Fort Benning's popular Dramatic Club will present three more plays to club members an dguests. The plays will be presented at the Main Theater at 8:30 P. M. on Friday, November 23rd. In regard to the time element there is one thing of great importance—officials of the club desire members and their guests to be at the theater on time. The theater will be ready for occupancy by members at eight o'clock, giving every one thirty minutes in which to arrive at the theater and be ushered to their respective seats. Last year no seats were reserved and the club is anxious that every one avail themselves that added expense of reserving the seats necessitated. Therefore, if members desire that seats be reserved in the future, they must be there before eight-thirty p. m. If any one should arrive late, it is requested that they remain in the lobby until the completion of the play in progress at time of their arrival. But be there on time; it is much better to have reserved seats than scramble for good seats after your arrival. The continuance of the reserve seats depends greatly on the response of members to come early and be in their proper seats at eighty-thirty p. m. on November 23rd.

Another thing of great importance is the fact that many people at Fort Benning have neglected to sign up for the club this year. The club deserves the support of every family at the Infantry School; every adult in the family should be on the rolls of the club. The Dramatic Club has always been an essential part of the garrison and certainly merits the whole-hearted support of the officers and their families. Those who were privileged to see the splendid plays put on by the club last year have already endorsed the success of the club by becoming members this year. Those who are at Fort Benning for the first time should avail themselves of the opportunity at once; we are quite sure that you will heartily agree that the entertainments for the year are worth many times the cost of a membership card. Capt. C. L. Bolte, secretary of the club, may be found in the first section of the academic department, and will be glad to fill out your membership card at any time. His phone number is 105. Tickets will also be placed on sale at the Officers Club so that should you desire to attend the show next Friday evening, you may sign up for the club membership at the time of reserving your seat. But, no matter when you join, JOIN.

Three plays will be presented by the club on next Friday evening. The plays selected are "Poor Audrey," "The Last Cache," and "The Mandarin Coat." The directors are Mrs. Freehoff, Mrs. Landis and Mrs. Sherburne, respectively. These plays were selected by the director f the club, Capt. John C. Newton, and are said to be excellent productions. The cast for these plays has been selected for some weeks.

Announcement as to date seats can be reserved for Friday, November 23rd, will be found elsewhere in this issue.

NOTICE

The Chapel Guild requests anyone having outgrown clothing or shoes to please leave them at the Protestant Chapel for distribution by the Visiting Nurse to needy children in the Garrison.

AN ANTHOLOGY

(Written for the Child Welfare Branch of the Woman's Club by Mrs. R. W. Kingman.)

By making proper adjustments the necessity for punishment can be avoided. A child's behavior reflects equability he finds in his associates. His erascibility is often by fatigue or inhibitions. Impulses are converted nto inhibitions as truly as into other types of action (for action is restraint as well as movement). we use as much action of the nerve system to arouse a sensation or an idea as to check it.

Children have to learn to adapt themselves to their surroundings and equilibrum must be established between external forces acting upon the child and his responses. Maintaining this equilibrum is what is meant by adaption. The child to be a success and to be happy must adjust conflicts and overcome difficulties that surround him (or these conditions can be made smooth by the love and sympathy that guides his ways.) His education consists in meeting successfully the exigencies which arise. Education is a capacity for happiness and a gift for creating happiness in others. Before we can bring happiness to others we must first be happy ourselves. Nor will happiness abide with us, unless we confer it upon others. Education is also to have learned to be obedient, tidy and polite and better still to possess independence, perseverance and thoughtfulness. It is absolutely necessary to fight your amenities of life, otherwise we will revert. Part of a mother's chore is to kee pideals of personal decency in her child. "Shine your shoes and shine your buttons, say your prayers and brush your teeth, file your nails and polish them, and wear a ring!" And sound your horn quietly!

Parents are an advance guard for their children, they go ahead over the path anticipating its dangers, they give news of the great hopes and battles that are to come, and of the causes which unite this moving army and make them march more than worthwhile.

One cannot be loved too much, the young thrive on it, he needs and thrives on it as a plant on sunlight. Affection will express itself in the tone and in the performing necessary sarvices.

As we play our daily role with dignity, its petty details loose their trivality and become concrete expressions of our deepest strivings.

Our faces are the clothes of our souls, the souls clothes always show the shape the soul has. We pass for what we are, character teachers above our wills, and a man cannot speak but he judge himself.

A few more smiles of silent sympathy, a few more tender words, a little more restraint in temper, may make all the difference between happiness to those we live with.

Parents need patience and the ability to give only the unobvious affection. That is what most of our children need most of the time. We must be to them a true haven of trust. Mothers need to deliberately cultivate cheerfulness courage and the great affirmations of confidence and optimism and to hand on the Faith. Faith is the power to perceive the substance of things not seen. Belief only needs the mind. Faith needs the mind, affection, the will, the whole being. Faith is of course the chief principle of religion and it gives the basis of action.

Doubt paralyzes.

But Fair dives the vital touch of reality and is the means of progress toward all higher things.

This Faith so sublime and elevating, needs no confirmation and is not made more intelligent by any definition. Longing is prayer, upon its wings we rise. Prayer is the opening of the soul to the divine inflowing. Prayer stimulates us to help ourselves to cooperate in the answer to prayer. Prayer brings the mind into a quiet and tranquil and trustful attitude and this reacts on the body. Even a mother's cry of anguish or despair is a prayer, for she calls for help she finds not in herself. Faith is a vision which allows us to perceive the child's needs, its difficulties and to perceive his possibilities. Happiness grows if we nurture it or it dies of neglect, and humor s a Godsend. A clean house with a cross, tired wife are little pleasure to a man or child. But a placid face and gentle tone will make one's family more happy than almost anything else, and too we ought daily and weekly to dedicate a little time to reckoning up the virtues of our belongings, our husband, our children and our friends and contemplate them as a beautiful collection.

SPECIAL ENTERTAINMENT FOR 24TH INFANTRY

So successful was the special motion picture with an entire colored cast shown at the 24th Infantry Theater on Organization Day, November 1, that the Fort Benning theater management has made special arrangements to secure further bookings of this type of picture.

On Friday, November 23, the picture, "Body and Soul" will be shown to the 24th Infantry audience in addition to the feature picture, "Say It With Sables."

"Body and Soul" is a drama of the lowly—a story of an international crook masquerading as a minister of the Gospel. It unfolds the manner in which he works on th esympathy of his hard working, trusting, God-fearing congregation to secure money to buy drinks and gamble. His uncouth workings and exposure make a picture of intense appeal. Paul Roberson, considered the world's greatest negro actor ,is the star in this play.

This arrangement makes, for the 24th Infantry, a double feature night. It is presented to the patrons of the 24th without additional charge of admission.

The special colored cast features are secured at considerable extra expense. In keeping with the policy of the theater management of this Post, which designs to afford entertainment rather than make money, additional pictures of this type will be booked as long as the attendance and enthusiasm of the motion picture fans of the 24th Infantry warrant it.

REFRESHER CLASS INSPECTS CORRALS

The stables and corrals of the 29th Infantry were inspected by the Refresher Course Class, the Infantry School, at 2:00 P. M., Tuesday, November 13, 1928.

Colonel Harris Pendleton, Jr., the Regimental Commander, conducted the class and a minute inspection was made of each stable and corral.

Members of the class commended the general appearance of all stables and corrals of the 29th Infantry. Likewise many expressed admiration over the blue ribbon prize winning escort wagon, belonging to the Service Company, and also over the prize stables of Company "H".

TROOP LEADING EXERCISE

At 6:45 A. M., Thursday, November 8, the 15th Blue Brigade consisting of the 29th Infantry, 30th Infantry (assumed) with the 83rd F. A. Battalion, a platoon of the 15th Tank Battalion, and engineer medical troops attached, began their march into Red hostile territory. By 8:00 A. M. the Infantry and Tanks in vicinity of RJ OHIO and MARNE roads, and the Artillery in the vicinity of JACKSON HILL, were in their respective positions.

At 8:35 A. M., the assembly attack order was issued by the Regimental Commander of the 29th Infantry, Colonel Pendleton. The enemy situation, as known at that hour, was that the Reds, estimated as a regiment, held a position on SINGLETON HILL extending to the northeast to DAVIS HILL. Support and reserve lines were in rear of this.

At 9:45 A. M., the 1st Battalion jumped off on time, followed by the 2nd Battalion, which was echeloned to the right. Advancing along the OHIO road, as an axis, the 1st Battalion was soon stopped by the intense hostile fire as represented by red flags. Continuing unmolested through the wooded ravine southwest of the OHIO road, the 2nd Battalion gained a line of departure from which they were preparing to enveloped the enemy's left flank.

Meanwhile, tanks had been attached to the 1st Battalion to enable them to continue their advance. This attack gained momentum as flag after flag disappeared to the rear. Only one red flag was holding up the entire Blue advance! Three tanks saw that flag simultaneously and they converged rapidly, firing one pounders and machine guns in a terrific fusilade at the flag. Suddenly out rushed a battalion staff officer waving his arms wildly signaling "cease firing" and the tanks stopped just in time, for the red flag was the General's flag on his official car! The General enjoyed the situation immensely, remarking, "Well, I sure put the monkey-wrench in the Red defense plans that time!"

RE-ENFORCED REGIMENT IN ATTACK

Disturbingly shrill whistles and gruff comamnds to "shake a leg" from burly top sergeants and heavy-set platoon sergeants at 3:45 A. M., Saturday, November 10, roused the 15th Brigade, re-enforced, to action that fateful morning. Elsewhere in the post, alarm clocks set for hours anywhere from 4:00 to 5:15 A. M., disturbed the slumbers of those brave souls, who had just come home from the 29th Regimental Hop. From buck private on up, all agreed with Sherman.

With all elements in column at 6:00 A. M., waiting for the command "Forward, March," insult was heaped upon injury, when the reveille bugles burst into the ever-famous tune entitled "You're in the Army Now."

Thus began the Infantry School's big demonstration of the "Re-enforced Regiment in Attack," the purpose of which was to show the conduct, from the line of departure, of the attack of a re-enforced regiment acting as part of a brigade against an enemy in position.

The 15th Brigade, re-enforced, of which the 29th Infantry was a part, marched west from Ochillee to secure the crossings of the Chattahoochee River in the vicinity of Fort Benning. After having driven in a small Red covering force, the Blue advance guard developed the main hostile position on Bouton Hill, Cook Ridge and Maxey Ridge.

At 7:30 A. M., the Blue brigade developed for attack with the 29th Infantry, Colonel Harris Pendleton, Jr., commanding, on the right, and the 30th Infantry (assumed) on the left.

The enemy was represented by student officers of the Company Commnaders Class, who were organized into strong combat posts by Major Wm. L. Roberts. Assisted by a battery of anti-tank guns anda plane from Maxwell Field and waving white and red flags, the "enemy" strove valiently to stem the tide of Blue advance.

By 10:40 A. M., the 29th Infantry, supported by five light tanks and an intense artillery barrage, had over run the enemy's front lines, except a small combat post on Maxey Ridge.

At 11:00 A. M., with the regimental reserve moving against the lone combat post, recall was sounded ,thus ending the battle, with the "Reds" on the run.

Following the "battle," Lt. Colonel Philip B. Peyton conducted a critique, which brought out several interesting features and drove home the hard learned lessons.

Company "C"

Our Company Mechanics are busy constructing a basket ball court, under the able instruction of Corporal J. W. Smith, our acting supply sergeant. During the past few weeks, many new recruits have joined the company and the writer is sure that we now have material to develop a good, clean-fighting basket ball team.

Speaking of the Field and Track Meet which was held Monday, this organization furnished candidates, all of which made a good showing at the Post Meet. Corporal Darmofal seemed to be a veteran with the discus but really that was his second contest. The first was at the battalion meet. Corporal Darmofal also won second place with the shotput.

Lt. Wells, our Mess Officer, and Sergeant T. L. McKnight, our Mess Sergeant, is to be congratulated on the Company Mess winning first place with a rating of "excellent".

First Battalion

For the past few years the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, has been the underdog in all athletic activities as compared with the Tanks and 2nd Battalion. Although the spirit was low the men and officers of this battalion started out this Fall with one idea in mind and that was to put athletic teams on the field that would prove a stumbling block for some of these more or less prominent teams. With this idea in mind the whole battalion went to work and were first able to show the result of their effort in the recent Post Track and Field Meet.

After the preliminary races the 1st Battalion had only twelve men left in the finals as compared to nineteen for the Tanks and fourteen for the 2nd Battalion. In spite of this handicap the men endowed with a new spirit went out to win and would have done so expect for an unfortunate break in the last event, the mile relay. All they had to do to win the meet was to beat the Tanks in this event and only for a tie-up on the track, when the wrong man took the baton, would have easily done so. The men made a wonderful showing which is made evident by the fact that they took seven first places out of fourteen events. Reddock from Company "D" was by far the outstanding star of the meet. He took first place in the pole vault, broad jump and high jump. Ramey, Damofal and the Bevelin twins were among those who also took first prizes.

This is just the beginning of a new season so look out for the 1st Battalion in the future.

Company "H"

Some of the men have been razing Corp. Pieters about that new reading room that he has been promising us. Some of us are beginning to think that it is about time that he put into practice some of his promises. However, Corp. Pieters has improved the recreation room considerably since he has been on duty there. Of course we know that it takes time to do every thing. Rome wasn't built in a day, neither did it take an eternity.

Sergeant Macauley is our new mess sergeant now. He has been putting into practice some of his original ideas about the way a mess should be run. Oh Boy! I think that everything "bean" alright now.

The new Gun Room is about finished and you are all invited to come down and have a look. It is a beauty and there aint nothing else but. Pvt. 1st Cl. Dyke knows his onions, and I don't mean squads left.

Now don't we pull some demonstrations these days. If anybody happens to ask you, just tell them for me. They tell us to keep quiet so that the enemy will not know where we are, and along comes a rumbling, clanging bunch of tanks and make enough noise to raise the dead. Well—all is fair in love and war, and they call this war.

Company "E"

The past week was mostly put in on demonstrations out near the water tanks which were very interesting to the men. Recently Company "E" has been furnishing the majority of the orderlies for Headquarters. We are "leading the way" by the high standard of duty the boys are putting out.

Men discharged, Privates Knoll and Oakley. We had no furloughs in the Company during the past week.

Our representatives on the Battalion football squad are making a fine showing most especially our "all round athlete" Sergeant "Fat" Franz, who was the star of the game between Auburn and the 2nd Battalion last week in Auburn, Ala.

We have two checker champions in the Company, Clay and Griffin, who wish to challenge any enlisted men in the 29th Inf. for a tournament. These two boys are certainly good and we believe they ran, Kingsbury. Thompson's time for the heat was 10 seconds flat.

THE TANKERS WIN GARRISON FIELD MEET BY NARROW MARGIN

First Sergt. Harry Bertleman, better known to every football fan in Fort Benning as "Big Bertha," showed the fans that football was not the only sport that he took part in. "Bir Bertha" tossed the 16-pound shot further than any one else to take first place for the Tankers. In the Tug-O-War, he was anchor man on the Tanker team, and many of the spectators were of the opinion that "Bertha" could have held his own with the opposing team single handed.

Reddock went over the bar at 11 feet 2 inches in the pole vault and he crossed the bar with plenty of daylight showing. Wonder what this doughboy could get over at is he was forced to the limit.

Kingsbury of the Special Units was a busy athlete Monday afternoon. He was entered in five events and placed in four of them to score nine of the fifteen points scored by the Special Units.

Those Bevelin brothers from the First Bats seem to be of a running disposition, E. O. Bevelin wining the 880 race and E. W. Bevelin coming home in front in the mile run.

Sharply at 1:30 P. M. all contestants in the meet were lined up in the center of the field on the left of the 24th Infantry band. The contestants led by the band marched by the south stands. Colonels Knight and Berry and Major Torrey took the review of the fine body of athletes that passed by the stands. It was a fine picture. Each team received plenty of applause from its ardent supporters.

Capt. J. J. Wilson announced through the microphone near the score board, and this added much to the meet. At different stages of the meet the total points for each organization was given, and in this way spectators were able to keep in touch as to points and were also able to see that the race for high honors would be close. The mile relay decided the meet.

About the busiest official of the meet was Captain W. B. Tuttle, the athletic officer of the Infantry School. Everything connected with the meet was run off in a very smooth manner. The contestants for each event were marched to their proper places in regular formation, which added much to the orderly manner which characterized the big meet. Capt. Tuttle arranged all details of the meet.

Lieut. J. C. Kovarick was the clerk of the meet and had the "dope" on all events as they were completed. In fact, he was so busy at this job that he was able to see only a few events of the meet.

The pictures of Reddock and the winning team of the Tanks will appear in an early issue of the NEWS.

The total number of points for the meet are as follows: Tanks, 53½; First Bats, 48; Second Bats, 36½; Special Units, 15; 83rd Field, 9.

A CORRECTION

In last week's issue appeared a picture of the Refresher Class. An error was made in that on the first row was the name "General" A. T. Smith. It should have been "Colonel" A. T. Smith.

can beat any enlisted men in the 29th Infantry playing the game.

Corporal Easterwood said that you could look up in Corporal Miscar's room most any time of the night and see him sitting in his window, and when asked the ther night why he was taking it so hard, he replied, "well you know it's hard to be in love, when you have to do so much slipping around." He's been seen leaving the Company in civilian clothes here lately, somebody better watch their step.

Company "B"

We have not occupied our allotted space in the Infantry School News for quite some time, due partly to the fact that lately we have been extremely busy delving—or rather scratching ourselves—into the intricacies of combat problems. However feeling sure that the readers of the NEWS would like to hear from us again, we will endeavor to remedy this in the future. Because, you see, we are so presumptious as to firmly believe that we are the best outfit in the post; also we like to believe that a few others think so too, and as a consequence are interested in us.

We have been very much engaged in athletics lately, for the 1st Battalion football team is almost entirely composed of our men, as is also the track team. The football team played Auburn Junior Varsity twice, once at Auburn and once here, and although we found them much too stylish for us, yet it was not through lack of effort or preparation that we lost. However, we were more successful in the track and field meet.

It was a sad misunderstanding that made the 1st Battalion lose to the Terrible Tankers but anyway we ran a close second and came mighty near wiping out the Terrible part of their name. And next year—but just wait 'till next year. Lieutenant Colonel Reed has still another card up his sleeve. We'll run those tractors up a tree yet, with Company "B" expecting to do one hell of a lot of pushing in that direction.

There's one thing now at which we're certain winners—and that is judging food. And we had our chance Armistice Day. The tables fairly groaned with the spread Sgt. Humphrey worked up, and we in turn fairly groaned as we finally staggered out of the Mess Hall. More power to you, Sgt. Hump. Further, we had the honor on that portentious occasion of having as our guests Captain Woodward, his family and friends.

FLAG RACE WON BY CO. B STUDENT OFFICERS

A flag race was held at the Infantry School Saturday, Nov. 10th, four teams taking part in the race. The teams taking part in the event was composed of the following officers: 29th Inf., Lts. Strickler, Hedekin, Van Houten and Jacobs; Co. "B", Student Officers Class, Capts. Forsythe, Harris, Lts. Griffith and Dunn; Co. "C" Student Officers Class, Lts. Jeter, Wilson, Smith and Reese; Freebooters, Maj. Lyman, Lt. Lockett, Capts. St. John and Heavey.

Company "B" team won the race, with Lt. Griffith and Lt. Dunn of the winning team winning the prize offered for the pair making the best time of the race. The prizes awarded the winners was two pair of spurs, while the four members of the winning team was presented with riding crops.

A flag race is a bit of a novelty among most of the personnel of the Infantry School. Flags (numbered cloths tied to a wire) are placed at various points on the reservation. Contestants are required to follow the directions them by the judges, secure their quota of flags and turn them in at a designated point. Directions for locating these flags may be in the form of map coordinates, marked aerial photographs or oral directions.

The teams assemble at a given point to receive their instructions. Four officers of a team are divided into two pairs. A team score is computed by penalizing each pair one point for each minute which has elapsed from the time of starting to the time they turn all their flags in; additional penalties are announced by the officials before the start of a race.

A large crowd of spectators assembled at French Field Saturday to watch the start of the race, and interest was at high tension among the loyal supporters of the different teams until the arrival of the winning riders.

Joe: There's only one thing that keeps the wolf from my door now.
Jean: What's that?
Joe: I ain't got no door no more!

Dan: That guy Mussolini is the berries.
Fan: What team does he ply for?

TWO POLO GAMES AT FRENCH FIELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Two fast and interesting games of polo were played at French field last Sunday afternoon, with the Demonstrationist winning the opener from the Freebooters 4 to 1. The second game was a hotly contested affair between the Students and Artillerymen with the game resulting in a 3 to 3 deadlock.

No regular line-up was used by either team. Many young players are out this season and the policy of each team is to give every one a chance. In fact, the period from the opening of the polo season until the first of the new year will be used as an experimental period.

The young players are developing very rapidly and polo fans are promised some fast and interesting polo games during the regular popol season.

Sunday afternoon two games of polo will be played at French Field. The first game will be between the Students and Demonstrationist; the second game will see the Artillerymen and Freebooters cross mallets in their first meeting of the season.

Parking spaces are reserved for members of the Officers Club and those possessing season tickets. Those who desire information concerning parking space, call Major Lyman at Fort Benning, Phone 85.

GOLF TOURNEY CLOSED

Benning's three-day golf tourney closed last Monday afternoon with practically all of the golfers contesting their claim for supremacy as weilders of the niblic and mashie.

The tourney consisted of five flights and when the final count was made it was found that Captain Chance emerged as the new "Champ" of Benning, with Captain Neville as the runner-up. Their affair was nip and tuck from the beginning and it was not till on the last round and at the seventeeth hole that the winner was determined.

Lieutenant Darr, winner of the tourney last year, and who was expected to go far in the tourney this year was evidently off form as he was eliminated in the early round by Colonel Wells. However, in the consolation match he came out the winner with a large margin.

Winners of each flight is as follows:

First Flight—Winner, Captain Chance, runner-up, Captain Neville.

Second Flight—Winner, Major Ferris; runner-up, Major Stayer.

Third Flight—Winner, Captain Hickson; runner-up, Major Stivers.

Fourth Flight—Winner, Captain Beebe; runner-up, Captain Ambrose.

Fifth Flight—Winner, Lieutenant Lewis; runner-up, Captain Howland.

Baby Flight—WinnerLieutenant Brine, runner-up, Captain Paul Steele. This flight was one up.

I. S. D. NOTES

Pfc. Knox has named his new bike "Sally Ann". Knox now rivals Bobby Walthour in speed and the famous golf pro, Farrell, in dress. With "Sally Ann" in tip top condition he claims to cover the distance between Benning and Columbus in nine minutes flat, barring blow-out and stripped gears.

Corp. Jeffie O. Willingham, another Green Cord who rides a bicycle, forgot to watch where he was riding and was thrown from his bike into the deep ravine over by the garbage dump. Corp. Booth reported the catastrophe. The corporal was only slightly injured and his pants torn.

Sergt. David Page entertained his friends with a vocal demonstration last Monday night. After rendering the well known ballad, entitled, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," David attempted to sing "Annie Laurie," but singer and audience gave way to their emotion as the familiar strains of Bobbie Burns' masterpiece rent the air. The party broke up in tears.

Sergt. Parello was discharged last Monday by the expiration term of service route but immediately re-enlisted the next day, leaving at once on a three months furlough for his home in Conn.

Papa John is back from furlough. He spent three months at his home in Albany, New York, and seems to have prospered.

After spending a three months' furlough along with his finals and other valuables, Pape John is back again with the Green Cords. Pop lost no time in getting into football harness and taking his place with the Special Unit pig-skin warriors. Pop is known to be able to open up a hole in most any line and supporters of the Special Units hope to see him tear lines up this year as he did in 1925. "Pop" is also proprietor of the I. S. D. recreation room.

DRAMATIC CLUB WILL PRESENT PLAYS

Fight Card Scheduled for Nov. 27

FORT BENNING'S PRIDE WILL MEET NEW YORK FIGHTER IN NEXT FORT CARD

Tuesday's Fistic Bill of Fare

Stratton Smith	vs	Zach Taylor	3 Rounds
Pep Causey	vs	Grump Gordy	3 Rounds
K. O. Sweat	vs	Red Lawson	4 Rounds
Eddie Brault	vs	Frankie Walburn	4 Rounds
Pinkey Phillips	vs	Nick Rawlson	6 Rounds
Walker Smith	vs	Hank Justice	6 Rounds
Gunner DePratt	vs	Battling Finch	10 Rounds

New York, N. Y., Montgomery, Ala., Albany and LaGrange, Ga., will furnish visiting attractions on the next boxing card scheduled at the Post Gym for Tuesday night, November 27th.

Battling Finch, who is training for his coming match in Savannah under the watchful eye of Ed Alexander, is the New York City entry on the coming card. Fans who turn out to see the show will get a glimpse of one of the Leo P. Flynn string of boxers. Flynn, as every fight fan knows, handled Jack Dempsey when he fought Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney. Any one familiar with boxing is aware that Flynn has a mighty impressive crew of glove slingers under his wing; it is further known that he does not handle any palukas for if they can't produce they are given the gate. Finch, then, should furnish some real action when he stacks up against Benning's pride, for he has met and held his own with the best in the country. The fact that Finch represented the U. S. at the Olympics in 1924; that he holds wins over Chester Bush, Joe Lohman, Crick Burns, Harry Fay, Billy Brown, Billy Feodor, and Andy Stamansky; and not the least is a ten-round draw with the great Roy Wallace of Indianapolis is assurance in wadfulls that Finch is a fighter from the word go. All those familiar with the fight racket feel that the Gunner is facing the real test of his career when he stacks up against Finch. A victory for DePratt would mean a New York engagement; a knockout victory would place him in line with the top notchers of his division. The Gunner senses the importance of the coming fight and is leaving nothing undone to be at the top of his form.

Walker Smith is again on the card, this time he meets a youngster like himself who hails from Albany, Ga. The visitor was christened Hank Justice, born a few years earlier than his brother Van, who manages big Jeff Carroll, the champ of the southern heavies. Young Hank has piled up close to a score of victories in little over a year. Smith is expected to have his hands full..

Pinkey Phillips meets a featherweight from Montgomery, Ala., in one of the six round bouts. The Montgomery entry styles himself Nick Rawlson, weight 127. Little is known of Rawlson except he comes highly recommended by J. L. McDuff, American Legion boxing promoter of the Alabama city. Every one knows Phillips, if not, three minutes conversa-

TERRIBLE TANKERS WIN OVER GEORGIA AGGIES

Played to a standstill during the entire first half of Saturday's football game against the North Georgia Aggies, the Terrible Tankers came to life in the final half to stage a furious counter-attack that swept the visitors to defeat to the tune of 13 to 8.

The first period was scoreless with the visitors forcing the Tankers to fight on the defensive during most of the quarter. Early in the second quarters the Tankers forced the Aggies to punt after three tries at the Tanker line failed to gain. Vallery fumbled Hodson's punt near midfield and Evans, Aggie center, scooped the pigskin to gallop over the Tanker goal line. This year's rules permit no advance of a recovered kicked ball, whether it was "muffed" or "fumbled," but the officials allowed the touchdown notwithstanding.

With the score 6 to 0, the Tankers came out in the third quarter to do or die. It seemed that they were doomed to die when Knub Bennett was tackled back of his own goal line for a touchback to make the score 8 to 0 in favor of the Aggies. At this period of the game the Tankers seemed to get mad. With the ball in their possession on their own 20-yard line the Tankers opened up a driving attack that crumbled the Aggies defense on every play. Stansbury, Vallery and Brown whipped around the ends or crashed off-tackle for long gains on every play. With the ball on the visitors' 10-yard line, the ball was snapped to Bennett, who crashed through center for 7 yards, on the next play Bennett ploughed through a mass of Aggie players to place the ball on the scoring side of the Aggies' last white strip.

Hitchcock ran the ball back to the 50-yard line from the kickoff. On the next play Hodson tossed a pass to Price who was nipped by Brown after it looked as if he had got away for an Aggie touchdown.

In the final quarter the Tankers fought their way to the Aggies' 30-yard strip. Bennett threw a pass to Vallery who made a wonderful catch, going 20 yards for a touchdown with perfect interference. Bennett added the extra point with a perfect kick from placement. Both teams battled fiercely during the next four minutes of play, a pass, Bennett to Stansbury, placed the ball on the visitors' 4-yard line as the game ended.

2nd BAT. DEFEATS 1st BATS IN OPENING FOOTBALL GAME OF SEASON; SCORE 19 TO 0

(By Al Durden)

Clear Dixie skies with just enough feel of winter in the breeze for ideal football weather, both stands of the Doughboy Stadium filled with loyal supporters and with doughboy meeting doughboy on the football field, marked the opening of the Intra-Mural Football Series at Fort Benning, Wednesday afternoon.

Boasting one of the most powerful football machines of all times, the Kellys from the 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry, met a foe worthy of their steel in the Red Jacketed warriors of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry.

Launching a bewildering attack in the opening period, the Kellys drove down the field from their 20-yard line for a touchdown. Kjelstrom and Franz led the drive with a delayed cross buck, with first Kelly and then Franz carrying the ball, that left the Red Jackets bewildered and helpless. Kelly carried the ball over for the touchdown. Kelly fumbled on the attempt for the etxra point.

The First Bats elected to receive the following kickoff. Reddock ran the kick back to his 30-yard line. The Red Jackets were unable to gain through the Kelly line, Reddock punted.

The Kelly's started another drive from their 40-yard strip with the Red line crumbling before their advance. Using the same cross buck on almost every play the Kellys drove down the field, Fat Franz making the final rush that scored the second touchdown, again the try for the extra point was wild. The quarter ended with the Kellys leading 12 to 0.

A sudden change took place in the second quarter, instead of a paper wall that crumbled under every drive, the Red line seemed to turn to stone, play after play of the driving Kells hit this wall and broke like a wave on a rocky shore.

When a Kelly ball carrier managed to get through his gains were short. Harper, who had been held out of the backfield due to previous injuries, had gone in for Hampshire, his tackling was deadly. McFadden was setting the pace in the line, the youngsters braced under his lead and fought like super-men, the backfield rallied under Harper's lead, the Red Jackets changed to Red Demons.

In the opening of the third quarter Harper and Reddock came near upsetting the Kelly defense with a neatly executed criss-cross play that looked like a touchdown when Reddock was past the first line of defense before the Kellys' waked up, with one exception, a stubby Kell player came from nowhere when it seemed that Reddock was on the way, it was watchful Franz, his tackle was fast and deadly and with it went the First Bats best chance to score.

After the shock of the first period the Red line of the First Bats never wav-

TWO PERFORMANCES TO BE GIVEN BY CLUB AT 29th INFANTRY THEATRE

The second of the series of plays to be presented by the Dramatic Club will take place this evening and tomorrow evening at 8:30 P. M. at the 29th Infantry Theater. As announced in the Daily Bulletin several days ago, those holding tickets are requested to attend the show this evening. Those who do not have tickets are requested to attend, with their guests, tomorrow evening. At a meeting of the club held recently it was voted that hereafter only those who are members of the club and bonafide house guests, who are not eligible for membership, will be admitted to the remainder of the shows for the season.

There will be three plays presented tonight and tomorrow evening. They are "Poor Audrey," "The Mandarin Coat," and "The Last Cache." Those who are directing these splendid productions are Mrs. Freehoof, Mrs. Sherburne and Mrs. Landis, respectively. The cast has been working for several weeks on the plays and it is predicted they will be one of the best of the series for this season.

"Poor Audrey" is a very clever one act comedy dealing with a young clerk, who wishes to make good impressions on his wife's many friends. On this particular occasion, guests are expected to arrive and Audrey makes an unusual effort to look and act the best. The troubles in carrying out his purposes are highly amusing and will keep the audience in an uproar until the curtain drops.

"The Last Cache" is a play which hinges around two gold prospectors, and their love for their friend, Amelia. It is a very clever story dealing with the efforts of the two to win the hand of Amelia. How this is accomplished, and their obstacles in their progress will keep club members and friends who attend the show in a state of anxiety.

The third play, "The Mandarin Coat," is set in a comfortable living room of a California bungalow. The plot is somewhat complicated and much can not be said of this amusing story, but it is quite certain that a mandarin coat will have much to do with the trials and tribulations of John and Dorothy, the young newly weds.

The casts:

"THE LAST CACHE"

Zeb Ray, a roadhouse keeper—Truman Smith.

Amelia Ray, his daughter—Alice Torrey.

Ben Blake, prospector—Hally J. Collins.

Ned Lawson, prospector—Joseph H. Gilbreth.

John Ingram, Sergeant of the Royal Mounted—John K. Rice.

Nosey, lumberjack — Benjamin W. Venable.

Big Jake, lumberjack—Paul R. Goode.

Slipper Sam, lumberjack—Everett D. Barlow.

Ling, Chinese cook—Arnold R. C. Sander.

The outstanding event of the autumn social season will be the marriage of Miss Louise Young to Lieut. Malcolm R. Kammerer which will take place on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbus. On this afternoon, Friday, at five o'clock the rehearsal will take place, after which Major and Mrs. Lawrence W. Young will honor the wedding party and out-of-town guests with a buffet supper followed by a theater party.

Among the out-of-town guests who are here for this lovely wedding are Mrs. R. L. Kammerer, of Woodhaven, Long Island, Mrs. J. P. Johnson, Mrs. W. R. McGuire, Mrs. Cecil Pryor, Mr. James McConnell of Asheville, N. C., Miss Dade Warfield of Agnes Scott College, Capt. and Mrs. T. H. Ramsey and little daughters, Harriette and Barbara Anne, of Fort McPherson, and Miss Cecil Johnson of Atlanta.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Ernest S. Barker brought to a close, with an elaborate tea and linen shower, a long series of delightful pre-nuptial parties which have attested the popularity of this charming bride. Mrs. Barker chose lavender and yellow as her color motif, bowls, baskets and vases of lavender and yellow chrysanthemums being used throughout her house. The tea table was perfectly beautiful with its handsome imported cloth of heavy Irish linen elaborately embroidered in cutwork with exquisite filet medallions and lace. A low silver bowl filled with lavender chrysanthemums and surrounded by silver candlesticks holding long lavender tapers formed the central decoration. This tea table continued to be the center of interest throughout the afternoon for on it were showered many linens of rare beauty. This clever hostess had her guests busy giving advice to the bride by means of a contest on "How to Manage a Husband." There were judges chosen (who know the art) and they agreed that Miss Lily Blackford, the guest of Mrs. W. L. Reed, had the best ideas most cleverly expressed so she received as a reward a gold brocade memento book.

After the contest daintiest refreshments were served. There was ice cream in lavender and yellow and an angel food cake in the shape of a heart ,iced in yellow with the names of the bride and groom embossed in lavender. About thirty-five guests enjoyed this hospitality.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week Mrs. Richard H. Eanes was hostess at a delightful bridge party. Yellow chrysanthemums were used throughout the house very effectively for decoration. There were four tables of players and Mrs. I. S. Coates won first prize, a half-dozen madeira napkins; Mrs. H. E. Pulliam second, a hot roll cover, and Mrs. R. H. Brown, low, a double deck of cards. After the game Mrs. Eanes served an elaborate chicken salad course with Chinese tea.

Mrs. Douglas Rubenstein entertained at a large and lovely afternoon bridge party at the Polo Club on yesterday.

* * *

Mrs. W. A. Wills of Norfolk, Va., arrived early this week for an extended visit to her son and daughter, Major and Mrs. Frederick C. Phelps.

The Organization Bridge Clubs met Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Alfred Brandt, Miss Sue Brand, and Mrs. Thomas Taylor were hostesses to the ladies of the 29th Infantry at their club rooms in Block 21. There were seven tables of players and about a dozen tea guests. Mrs. R. P. Lavin won first prize, Mrs. A. T. Wilson second. After the game dainty sandwiches, cookies and coffee were served.

The 24th Bridge Club met with Mrs. William B. Tuttle at the Polo Club. There were six tables of players and Mrs. Edward J. Curren won top score prize, Mrs. O. C. Mood, second. After the game savory open sandwiches were served with coffee.

The Tank Bridge Club was entertained by Mrs. John L. McElroy. There were sixteen who played bridge and nine who came in for tea. The first, second and third prizes were won by Mrs. Kenneth G. Althaus, Mrs. William A. Howland, and Mrs. Kenneth March, respectively. After the game a congealed salad was served with sandwiches and coffee.

Mrs. Ira W. Black was hostess to the Special Units Bridge Club at her quarters. There were twelve playing and the first prize was won by Mrs. Benjamin C. Fowlkes, the second by Mrs. William R. Bent. Miss Sullivan, the guest of her brother, Lt. Edward J. Sullivan of the Chemical Warfare Service, was a special guest and was given a memoir of the occasion.

Mrs. Richard H. Eanes entertained the afternoon Medical Bridge Club at her quarters on Tuesday. There were two tables of players and five guests for tea. Mrs. A. T. Gilhus made highest score, Mrs. W. P. Hill second. A Thanksgiving fruit salad was served with wafers and coffee.

There will be a number of dinner parties this evening preceding the performance of the Dramatic Club and several midnight suppers after the performances on Saturday.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. R. A. Pearson will entertain at dinner tonight before the Dramatic Club performances. Their guests will be Major and Mrs. Hoge and Major and Mrs. Stayer.

BABY MARATHON WILL BE ATHLETIC EVENT THANKSGIVING MORNING

Thanksgiving morning will witness the first event of it's kind ever to have been undertaken at the Infantry School. The event being the Baby Marathon. The race will be for five miles and the interest that is being shown by the different organizations by far surpasses that which it was expected, although interest has been at a considerable height over this event since the Athletic Office in the early fall announcd that there would be a cross country or Marathon run conducted.

Each organization is expecting to win the event and are entering a number of men all of whom they claim will show their heels to those that are to be their competitors. However, this is all pro and con for it is a hard proposition to pick any one man or for that matter any two men who will cause any sensation in the way of breaking records. As was said before this is the first time anything of this kind has been undertaken and the merits of the different contestants is of an unknown quality. For all of their worth to one now about as good way as any to pick the winner is to write their names on a slip of paper, put them in a hat, blindfold a small child, have it put it's hand in the hat and pick the winner, such is the way of the known value of the different contestants.

Among those who are entered and who are causing various comments about the garrison as to who will be the winner are the Bevelin Twins of the First Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry winners of the half mile and mile race in the recent field and track meet. Hawkins of the Second Battalion, it is understood, has a plentitude of wind and stamina and will put up a stiff opposition if he doesn't win the race. Ptomey, better known as "Weary Willie" is slated to be one of the contestants and may be seen daily shuffling along over the road covering more miles than will be required to win the race.

The Artillery and Special Units are keeping more or less quiet as to their stock but say watch out, that the race isn't won by talking, and that they will be in at the final count with a good showing, and that it will more than make up for the points scored by them in the track and field meet two weeks ago.

The race will start at nine o'clock Thursday morning from Doughboy Stadium winding up there some time later.

"SAY IT WITH SABLES," starring Francis X. Bushman in an ingenious mystery drama woven around a gold-digging adventuress, whose love for sables brings about her downfall. It is a thrilling murder mystery in a setting of society atmosphere. The happiness of four persons is in the hands of an adventuress who is as heartless as she is beautiful. How they break the almost fatal bonds that tie them and gain their freedom, furnishes gripping situations and awe-inspiring climaxes.

SATURDAY, NOV. 24

"WON IN THE CLOUDS," featuring Al Wilson, the dare devil of the air, in a fast moving awe-inspiring thriller. It is basicly an aerial picture possessing mystery tinged with romance. Through marvelous aviatorship and tricks of the camera you will see a series of air stunts that are almost beyond imagination.

SUNDAY, NOV. 25

"FORGOTTEN FACES," starring Clive Brook with Mary Brian and an excellent cast in an entirely different type of underworld story. It deals with the sacrifice and regeneration of a life term-er to save his daughter from ruin. This picture is considered on a par with "Underworld" which received such favorable comment. It is one of the most outstanding of September releases. If you enjoy rapid moving drama filled with tense situations and startling climaxes—don't miss this picture.

"Versatility." Sportlight.

"Paramount News No. 32."

MONDAY, NOV. 26

"HER CARDBOARD LOVER," starring Marion Davies with Nils Asther in a filmization of Jeanne Eagle's stage hit. The photographing of this play has caused it to lose none of its sparkle, but, instead is considered to have added to its attractiveness. It brings to your showhouses here at Benning the pathos, comedy, drama and beauty of the big hit which has entertained thousands on Broadway.

"Terrible People No. 3."

TUESDAY, NOV. 27

"CAPT. SWAGGER," featuring Rod La Rocque with Sue Carol in a comedy of romance. It is the story of a wayward, penniless aviator who is reformed under the persuasion of an attractive cabaret girl. The background is a combination of the aviation field and the dazzling lights and ladies of the midnight frolic.

"Dear Season." Cameo.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 28

"LOVES OF AN ACTRESS," starring Pola Negri with Gary Cooper. This story is an excellent vehicle for the vivacious Pola Negri—needless to say its more than warm. Pola plays the part of Comedie Francaise, the woman known as Hachael. It shows how she rises, a begger child of the streets, to conquer Paris with her art and beauty. This story depicts much of the life endured and sometimes enjoyed by prima donnas of the stage along the route of their rise from obscurity to prominence.

"Winged Death." Oddity.

"Paramount News No. 33."

THURSDAY, NOV. 29

"ANNAPOLIS," starring John Mack Brown with Janette Loff in a pleasing romance of the campus of our great United States Naval Academy. The action of this interesting picture portrays many startling scenes of aeroplanes in action, battleships cutting the waves and deadly submarines prowling the depths in search of their prey. It can be favorably compared with "The Midshipman" and "West Point."

"The Kick." Football Sense.

FRIDAY, NOV. 30

"THREE RING CIRCUS," starring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes in a captivating story of the great tent inmates. There are giants ,midgets, clowns, prancing horses and flying trapeze artists. The story concerns the daughter of a wealthy ranchman; she falls in love with a cowpuncher who, because of it, loses his job and joins a circus. The girl follows him and becomes a circus rider. The sequence of events that envelope them make a fascinating story from start to finish.

HEAVY VOTE CAST FOR MOTION PICTURE REVIVAL WEEK

The keenest of interest has been shown by both officers and enlisted men of Fort Benning in the proposed Motion Picture Revival Week which was planned by the Assistant Recreation Officer for some time during the month of January.

More than one thousand votes were cast, and singularly in the majority of cases the enlisted men agreed with officers in their selections. The results of this vote demonstrates the fact that the personnel of Benning are well educated when it comes to motion pictures. The shows given preference are of the highest type on the market today.

Motion picture bookings will be made within the next few days. The selection of the week in January for the presentation of this program will depend upon the availability at film exchanges of those pictures which have been given preference. As soon as the bookings have been completed the people of Benning will be informed of the title of pictures and the dates on which they will be shown.

Following is the result of the vote:

The General	240
Michael Strogoff	221
Chang	214
Don Q. Son of Zarro	209

THE ARMY-RELIEF DRIVE

The drive has not stopped and will not be closed until after the November pay day. Originally scheduled for October 22nd to November 30th, the period has been extended. Reason: The garrison has not yet contributed enough to make a showing for an army community of its size. Some have given generously; others however, have not yet done so. Moreover, many individuals who were away on leave or furlough on the October pay day, have now returned. By extending the period, the opportunity for all to do their part is given.

WHY SHOULD WE GIVE ANYTHING TO THE ARMY RELIEF SOCIETY?

(1) It is a charitable society organized within the army ,to help needy widows and orphaned children of officers and enlisted men of the regular army only.

(2) Unlike other charities "on the outside", it depends on the regular army alone for its support. While the Red Cross and other worthy charities draw on the whole country, the Army Relief can call only on the little old regular army. Millions of civilians, many of them millionaires, support other charities; only a bare 120,000, none of them even well-to-do, contribute to the Army Relief.

(3) The Army Relief takes care of OUR OWN PEOPLE. Private Blank is killed by an automobile; his wife faces the future with ten dollars and three children. Who takes care of them? No one but the Army Relief.

(4) Because its policy is never to tell the name of anyone it helps, you do not hear much about the Army Relief; but last year alone, it spent $75,178.51 in relief for the widows and children of our dead buddies.

(5) The society helps by sending checks for emergency use as soon as the husband dies; then it puts the widow on the pay roll and starts in to help her get straightened out, helps her find a job, helps her make a new home and helps her to keep the children with her; she stays on the pay roll as long as she needs it. Also the society helps financially to educate the children. Of the $75,178,51 spent last year, $12,622.84 went for education of the army orphans. Finally, it helps clothe those we leave behind when we pass on.

Well, isn't Fort Benning doing its share? NO, IT IS NOT. Last year this garrison, drawing about $3,600,000 annually, gave only $957.62; this amounted to only 1-38 of one cent out of every dollar we get in pay, a pitiful showing! Why that didn't even refund to the society the money it paid out for charities right here in Fort Benning itself. It left nothing over as our share of relief in the army at large—and Fort Benning is one of the largest posts in the army!

So far this year, the money turned in and in sight only amounts to $1,150.00. That is considered entirely too small a sum for the size of this garrison to give for this purely regular-army charity which only calls on use once a year. Fort Benning cannot hold up its head if it does not give at least $2,250.00. Those who have not yet contributed are urged to do so at the November pay table; those who have already paid, DID YOU GIVE ALL YOU COULD?

R. H. F., JR.

HOME-SICKNESS

When he comes into the army, many a young soldier cast soff his home ties for the first time. It is his first real experience at being away from home without the prospect of soon returning to the family circle.

Under such circumstances, it is to be expected that some men will suffer the pangs of home-sickness to a more or less degree. With some it will be acute. With others it will be merely temporary. In any case it is only time and determination to overcome it which will prove effective.

The officer, ever alive to the interests of his men, can do much to ease the young soldier over this trying period. A few words of counsel at the proper time; a word of encouragement here and there ;a showing of a little personal interest in the man's problems, will often work wonders.

Home-sickness feeds and thrives on idleness. The specific is occupation. Keep the mind and body of the young soldier threatened with the malady, fully occupied with interesting tasks. Give him plenty of work to do and the chances are that he will overcome the tendency in a reasonable time.

The following points of approach are suggested:

1. There comes a time in the life of every man when he must leave home and strike out for himself.
2. The strong man grits his teeth and sticks it out.
3. The weakling gives 'way baby act.

HUNTING SEASON TO OPEN IN A FEW DAYS

Only a few more days now and hunters will be seen about the reservation participating in one of the oldest and best sports, a sport that thrills all alike from king to peasant, the rich the poor, the high the low. Already many are taking down their guns, wiping the oil from the bore, tightening screws, lining sights, doing everything in general to have their favorite arm in readiness to step out and bring the first bag of game when the season opens.

The season opens at the Infantry School this year according to Circular Number Sixty-two, Headquarters, The Infantry School, dated November 16th, sometime between November 20th and December 1st.

During the past two years the personnel of Fort Benning have enjoyed the privilege of hunting that has been granted them and as a result of which have been active in helping to keep a plentitude of game on the reservation, the hunters realizing that it was sport, in fact such a worthy sport that it would have been poor sportsmanship to try and destroy all of the game at one time. Game, according to the bulletin recently published, has increased rather than decreased as many would suspect. This is due to the careful carrying out of the policy of not exceeding the limits as set forth as to the amount of game taken. However, in some instances some coveys of birds in certain sections were hunted too much and as a result came near being completely destroyed. It is not believed that the parties purposely were bent on destroying any of these coveys, but that the thrill that comes from the bark of a gun at the bird on the wing overcame some hunters and they fired before they saw the scarcity of birds in that covey, otherwise they would never have fired on them.

In order for one to hunt on the reservation this year they must, as has been the case the past two years, first obtain a permit from headquarters permitting them the privilege of this sport. However, permits will be issued only to individuals of known good character who can be depended to handle arms afield without injury to themselves or others, who have familiarized themselves with all instructions and regulations relative to the subject of hunting on the reservation, and who can be relied upon to carry out the regulations with a true spirit of sportsmanship.

Game that may be hunted this year and the bag limtis are as follows:

Quail, 12 per day; doves, 15 per day; ducks, 10 per day; geese, 1 per day; snipe, 12 per day; rabbits, 10 per day.

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next meeting—December 2nd.
Time—2:15.

On Monday afternoon Major Edgar E. Hume made an intensely interesting talk to the members of The Infantry School Woman's Club on Serbia where immediately after the signing of the Armistice, he was sent as American Red Cross commissioner to check the plague of typhus fever, then raging in the Balkans. He was told when and where to go, but he was left to his own resources as to how to handle this dreadful situation. So without knowing a word of their language, he arrived, with a small unit of assistants after slow and difficult travel, in Belgrade, where four out of five people stricken with the plague were dying. Having never had this dread disease in that country before, there was no natural immunity and practically every person who came in contact with it was immediately stricken down. Eighty per cent of the Serbian doctors had either been killed in the war or had died with typhus fever and there were no hospitals, the enemy having destroyed all of them in their devastating march across this unprotected country. A Serbian artist was employed to paint in colored picture posters using Serbian peasants and Serbian soldiers explaining the way the disease was transmitted and the necessary precaution which must be used to check it. As you know, the disease is spread by vermin, and to use Major Hume's expression, "The Serbs had always had the louse and trusted him, so they found it hard to believe that he was responsible for this new disease." By a most helpful coincidence these posters were very effective in puting across the ideas for the Serbs are very religious and they, having no colored pictures that are without sacred significance, immediately associated these health posters with religious meaning and were willing to follow their direction. At length they were able to get one hundred hospitals, some large, some small, intact and nurses trained to help. Finally when typhus was under control the country was in danger of becoming reinfested by a horde of Russian refugees, who having been refused entrance to Roumania, Bulgaria, Turkey and other places, came without permission to Belgrade and were ready to leave their train and scatter anew the plague, when they were stopped. Plans were made for their care across the Danube in an old barracks and eventually they were cured and became absorbed in the Serbian population. An interesting group, these Russians. Driven by the Reds to Odessa they found refuge in British ships which tried to take them to some new land only to find their entrance always barred.

There was an arch-grandduchess, aunt of the Czar, who arrived in a freight car, there was a full general of the Imperial Army, three lieutenant-generals, princesses, dukes, five admirals; in short, much of the best of the Russian people made up those 2,000 refugees. But they were saved and in turn gave their talents to their new country.

Major Hume spoke of the history of the Balkans; how in times past these people had slowly developed an art, literature, music, culture of their own which prior to the Dark Ages was as good as any of their European contemporaries. But because their country had no mountain ranges, no sea, no natural boundary line as a protective barrier, it was constantly overrun by enemy invasions and consequently handicapped in progress. War after war is recorded in their history, even the World War having been precipitated there. Most devastating of all invasions was that of the Turks whose victory kept the Serbs in abject submission for 400 years, during which time the glories of the past faded away save in memory kept fresh through folk songs. He described the Serbs as a primitive people, with primitive virtues as well as such faults, being a proud, highminded, generous, industrious, patriotic people. He reviewed the political history with its vicissitudes and told of the dramatic rise of a swine-herd, "Black George", to the throne which is now occupied by his grandson, a peasant ruler of a peasant people.

He told us of the Serbian women who either shoulder arms in war on staying at home till the fields and carry on all activities, actually "keeping the home fires burning." How different their "sewing clubs" from ours! They spin and weave their materials, and make even the uniforms for the army.

He pictured Serbia as the land of orphans(and both parents have to be dead before a child is considered an orphan!) Having been desolated by the Austrian invasion and those who lived through that, attacked by the plague, no wonder its became a land of orphans!

He took us with him to a tea where rose jam was served with half a glass of water; to a betrothal ceremony, a marriage, and a wedding feast. In short, he gave a fascinating glimpse into the life of those people, and a sympathetic review of their checkered history.

Miss Harriett Wells was dressed as a Serbian peasant maid, and after turning around and displaying her colorful embroidered homespun frock she showed us pictures of folk dancing in the streets that rmeinded us of "The Merry Widow."

Lt. Joseph I. Greene, accompanied by Mrs. Edgar S. Miller, sang two groups of lovely songs. For his opening numbers he sang Kipling's "Gipsy Trail" and from Cadman's "Lelawalla," the warrior Chun-ge-la's defiant death song. After Major Hume's talk Lt. Greene concluded the program with "The Little Grey Home in the West" and a very beautiful Mexican love song, "The Abandoned One."

After the program Mrs. Emil Leard and Mrs. Samuel White were hostesses at a very delightful tea. Mrs. Frank C. Baker and Mrs. Philip B. Peyton very graciously presided over elegant tea and coffee services.

THE LITERARY CLUB

On next Monday aternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the Polo Club Mrs. Paul R. Goode will present the following program to the members of the Literary Club:

1. "Orlando," by Virginia Woolf; reviewed by Mrs. Jared I. Wood.
2. "The Strange Interlude," by Eugene O'Neill; read by Mrs. John F. Landis.
3. "The Island Within," by Ludwig Lewishon; reviewed by Mrs. Paul R. Goode.

At the first meeting of the Literary Club on Thursday of last week Mrs. Philip B. Peyton presented a most stimulating program. Her selections were chosen from contemporary literature having a psychological trend. Surely her review of H. A. Overstreet's "About Ourselves," was quite thought-provoking, for it revealed ourselves to ourselves. With it at hand one needs not sigh "O wad some pow'r the giftie gie us to see ourselves as ithers see us." It is of universal appeal and surely parents would find it worth while to read carefully.

Mrs. H. McD. Monroe reviewed "The Strange Case of Annie Spragg," by Louis Bromfield. She gave in a very interesting way the outstanding threads of the stories of lives of those who were influenced by the death of the Annie Spragg and left us with enough untold to make us want to read this unusual book.

Mrs. Robert H. Chance gave an interesting comparison of the life and poetry of Edna St. Vincent Millay with that of Dorothy Parker, following which she very charmingly read a group of selections from their newest collections of short poems.

WHO'S WHO!

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS WILLARD R. REDDOCK

Company "D" Twenty-ninth Infantry

(By B. H. Cowan)

To make a record in an event requiring athletic skill is an accomplishment that is seldom made by any individual, regardless of his ability. For the same individual to make two in the same day is almost an unheard of thing ,while for that same individual to make three in a row in the same day in the same meet where the best are gathered to contend for individual and organization honors reads more or less like the deeds of the fictitious Frank Merriwell or some other athlete who battled for the honor of dear old Siwash or some other Alma Mater.

Yet, this is the thing that happened last week when the Garrison Field and Track Meet was held in Doughboy Stadium. The man to accomplish this feat and who set records in the running broad jump, the pole vault, and the running high jump being Private First Class Willard R. Reddock of Company "D", Twenty-ninth Infantry.

From the time he made his first leap in the running broad jump the fans were supporting him wholeheartedly as it was evident that here was an athlete above the ordinary and a man who was certain to make anyone that would surpass him put out to the limit. In the pole vault Reddock had the hardest and closest fight of any of the three events which he won, and it was not till the bar had been raised to eleven feet that he outstripped Gantt of the Artillery to win the event. However the height of eleven feet in the personal opinion of the writer was not all that the stocky doughboy of the demonstration regiment could have accomplished. For when he cleared the bar there was several inchs of daylight showing between his chest and the bar. The other record came a few minutes later when he outjumped McBride of the Tanks.

Not only in track does Reddock show his ability but also in football and several other sports as well. Since enlisting in the army in September, 1927, almost the first thing he did after having completed his preliminary instruction in things military was to try for a position on the football team of the First Battalion and turned out to be one of the fleetest and best ball carriers of the first battalion team last year.

Following the football season Reddock went in for basketball and was one of the leading factors in the scores that were being turned in by the First Bats and which incidentally finished the season in second place, they never being able to oust their brothers of the Second Bat from the honors they have now held for the past six years.

Reddock is a Mississippian, his home being in Laurel. While attending the Saint John's County Agricultural High School he went in for athletes regularly, making teams there for three consecutive years with the two last years being spent as a first string man in four different oranches of sport. They were, football, basketball, baseball and track or rather it should be said field events as he never performed on the cinder path. Incidentally Reddock has set a record at the Saint John's school in the pole vault of eleven feet and four inches that as yet remains unbroken at that school and which comes within a few inches of the state record.

MANY EVENTS SCHEDULED FOR NEXT WEEK

Next week will be a busy one at Fort Benning from all indications. First comes the Main Theater moving picture programs which are always a pleasure to the many picture fans at the Infantry School.

Saturday finds us in Doughboy Stadium witnessing the annual struggle between the "Terrible Tankers" of the Fifteenth Tank Battalion and the Galloping Gunners of the Eighty-Third Field Artillery for football supremacy. Although the Tankers are slated to win without any apparent danger of being in danger of losing the game, yet the fans are certain to see as game a fight between two teams as it is possible to find in soldier football.

Sunday morning between 4:45 and 4:30 finds us at the Polo Stables eating sandwiches and drinking warm coffee prior to the start of the wildcat hunt which will be started from there promptly at 5:00 o'clock. That afternoon commencing promptly at 2 o'clock will witness the first of two games of polo on French Field.

Tuesday evening at eight o'clock will find us all at the big gymnasium to witness the first preliminary fights preceding the main go between Gunner DePratt of the Twenty-ninth Infantry and Battling Finch of Savannah, lightheavy champ of the 1924 Olympic games held in Antwerp, Holland.

Beginning promptly at nine o'clock Thursday morning will find all of the runners and a number of spectators in Doughboy Stadium to witness the start of the five mile run that is being sponsored by the Athletic Associatoin. This event is causing more favorable comment than it's most ardent backers at the beginning of the season had hopes of it causing. Following the Baby Marathon, as it is being called, the next event for the day will be the holiday dinner, while that afternoon the entire garrison will assemble again in Doughboy Stadium to witness the football game between the Special Units and the First Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry. This promises to be one of the best games of the season. Each team is confident of a victory over the other and are willing at any time to lay small wagers as to the outcome of the tilt. Then that night all who care for terpsichorean pleasures will find an entertainment for themselves.

Private Hicks while out "Knox Trophying" last week, found himself in the same predicament as the King who offered his kingdom for a horse when his (Hicks) horse fell into a well. They say Hicks developed wings all of a sudden and flew or rather jumped twenty feet, anyhow we congratulate you and hope you will be lucky the rest of your days.

The lawn that graces our battery street has at last come to be of some use; in that those goldbricks of the battery who lie abed late and have not time to police up their bunk can throw said bunk out on the lawn to air out.

Private Garner received an aligator from Florida last week and is thinking of operating an animal ranch, that is if he can find enough damsels to correspond with him and furnish the animals.

Private Thurston, general utility man of the battery, is now engaged in teaching school and we must say that if he would borrow one of Battery B's white horses he would be the exact counterpart of Ichabod Crane.

Battery "B"

We note with pleasure that Corporal Wilemon has applied for a thirty-day furlough effective August 1, 1929. This seems to be a fair indication that one of our most efficient N. C. O.'s will remain with us for another three years.

According to recent Battery Orders each corporal has been assigned a table in the mess hall. The noise is not so noticeable now since it has been scattered about. However, the chatter from the sergeant's table seems to be on the increase.

At last the reason for the unusual activity of Corporal Morphis has become known. It is rumored that the said Corporal had been seen hand shaking with thirteen different people in one evening. The reason for him wishing to be relieved is not generally known, but the fact remains he is no longer a clerk in the personnel office.

Much activity was seen in and about the Battery when it was rumored that a certain General would visit this post and as a result the general appearance of the Battery was much improved upon. It is the desire of the battery commander that these rumors be started at short intervals.

Corporal Bass has decided that it would be best to postpone his marriage until leaving the service. He caused his many friends in the battery much anxiety until he made this announcement.

—T. N. T.

Battery "C"

Corporal Thomas H. Flippo has rejoined from a well earned furlough spent in Tennessee.

Corporal Miller says that he learns new ways every day from some certain Privates who just enjoy trying to beat the police and watering detail, but that they have to get up at taps and remain awake till call to quarters to put one over on him.

Some wise cracker wanted to know what those funny looking halter shanks (Pistol lanyards) were that the men of this organization were wearing when they fired the salute on Armistice Day and if the men had to wear them to keep themselves put.

Sergeant Barksdale says the heighth of ambition is for a barber to try and grow hair on Sergeant Chewning's head.

We wonder what Red Paschal thinks about the two new galloping steeds he drives to the buckboard, we'll bet that his thoughts would not be publishable.

The following communication was received by the grape vine telegraph system that Private First Class Specialist Fourth Class Othel D. Land was on his way back to the Battery, but judging from the time elapsed since said communication was received, it is believed that Private Land (Bicycle) will need a new pair of shoes when he returns if not sooner.

Will wonders never cease? Privates Curry and Harvey volunteered to drive pairs in the Maintenance Section.

Hdqrs., Hdqrs. Bat. and Combat Train

Pfc. Taylor is now back with us after spending many days, weeks and months over in the Cooks and Bakers School, learning the art and skill of Army Chowism. Welcome back George and we are all waiting patiently for some of your learned knowledge.

Private Antonio Catalanotte, was last week made Private First Class, and now Tony is asking the First Sergeant to requisition him some stripes. He wants to show girl friend when he goes to town that he is not a Buck Private.

Corporal Fuzzy Douglas is now out for a placement on the Post basket ball team ,and from latest reports, Fuzzy has a very good chance making stationary guard.

Sergeant Roper does not like this cold weather as hesitatingly he says that it effects his fish and oyster business on Front Street, keeping many customers away due to lack of proper transportation.

There now are two vacancies for Corporals in the organization with many in view according to Stove League reports, but as of date there has been no official reports regarding said gossip.

Two newly assigned recruits arrived to the organization on Monday, Pvts. Fields and Cotney. Welcome to the gang boys and fall in line with the old Artillery Spirit.

Perhaps at no time of the year does the call of the wild tempt as at present. A hunt was conducted last week end by certain members of the Scorpion Club. A merry chase was from reports had by all, including the Fox.

Demonstrations are coming fast and furious these days, with Headquarters Battery taking the field at break of day. From all indications the boys are proving their ability as wire stringers, communicationists and war-time soldiers.

The Battalion football team is being groomed into shape under the superb hand and guidance of our faithful and highly esteemed star Sergeant McAuliffe, with many years experience the coming few games should prove of interest although we have lost many valuable players since last season. Staff Sergeant McCallum has been detailed as trainer and coach.

—TO OUR COACH—

Behold the famous football coach
Whose tactics are beyond reproach,
Whose massive brain conceives the schemes
That rout the many opposing teams.
His word is law, his law goes far,
His power goes and equals king or czar,
He gets "ten thousand growls a year,"
Laments the prof and sheds a tear
While I, with brains that bulge my hat, Receive twice as many growls as that.

—R. J. W.

COMING THRU THE GREEN

"Whatta u say gang," let's get out there Thursday evening and watch the Green Wave roll over the First Bats from the 29th Infantry. And we won't be quiet while they are rolling, let's make some noise, heap big Chief like heap big noise while he crashes paleface line. So now all-together, Greencord, Medic, Gin-Ear, Gasser, Q'Emmer and Ordinacer, "Let's Go."

Question: Why did Corp. W. Booth send his girl at Penderville, Fla., a carton of Tom's Toasted Peanuts for a birthday present?

For a long time penny-ante was the most popular pastime at the N. C. O. Club, then rummy took the lead, now both games have been discarded as all members have gone wild over the ancient game of cribbage.

CAPT. GWYNN SICK

Capt. H. M. Gwynn, a member of the Company Officers Class is sick in the station hospital. We regret very much to hear of his illness, and as a consequence, the most interesting student officer's column, which he edited is missing in this issue. The News joins with his many friends in wishing him a speedy recovery.

THE TANK WEEKLY

is one of the snappiest little magazines that cross the exchange editor's desk. It is edited by Capt. R. G. Althaus. We would like to have, however, some of the notes from the Tank outfit each week for publication in the NEWS. The Weekly, which is sometimes quoted in this paper, is published on Fridays as is the NEWS, hence we do not see it in time to get current news from the caterpillar organization.

"Papa," asked the little boy, "Why does Fido wag his tail so much?"

"That's a means of expression, son," replied the parent.

"But, Papa, that isn't a means; it's an end. Ouch, Papa, that hurts."

FREEBOOTERS DOWN GUNNERS WHILE STUDENTS AND DOUGHBOYS PLAY TO DEADLOCK IN SUNDAY'S GAME

Benning's mounted malletmen, representing the 29th Infantry and Student Officers, fought a pretty six period polo duel in the first game of polo at French Field, Sunday afternoon, th egame ending in a deadlock, 3 to 3.

Three separate combinations were used by the Students during the game, while the Demonstrationist used two aggregations. The players used by the Students were: Barnette, Reese, Royce and Harris; Forsythe, Smith, Burress and Harris; Luecking, Baldwin, Smith and Cornog.

Against the Student combinations the Demonstrationist used the following players: Halloran, Taylor, Hedekin and Jacobs; Skelton, Strickler, Jacobs and Van Houten.

Taking the ball from scrimmage in the opening chukker, at No. 1 for the Demonstrationist, drove straight down the field to score the first goal. During the remainder of the chukker both teams threatened but were unable to drive the bamboo pellet betwen their opponents up-rights.

The Students came back to out-ride the Doughboys and take the lead, Smith and Harris scoring a goal for the Students. Both teams went scoreless during the third period, Halloran after a neat escape from the field ,missed a perfect shot for a goal, the ball rolling outside by inches.

Early in the fourth chukker, Jacobs scored a pretty goal with a nifty drive from midfield, Skelton added another a moment later with a wonderful off hand drive that sent the white sphere center between the goal posts. The Students carried the ball down field from scrimmage on the next play, Moore scoring the tieing goal. Both teams fought hard but the game ended with the score deadlocked at 3 all.

Between the first and second games, Brigadier General Edgar T. Collins, comamndant of the Infantry School, arrived. The teams of the second game, with the officials, before playing rode in line across the field and saluted him.

The second game, between the Galloping Gunners and Freebooters, was faster and harder fought than the opening game. Early in the first period, spectators were given the biggest thrill of the game when St. John and his mount went down in a scrambling heap on a sharp turn, horse and rider came up uninjured.

The Artillery lost a beautiful chance to score in the first chukker when Murphy crossed and fouled. Near the end of the chukker Guernsey scored for the Artillery on a difficult under-the-tail shot. Taking the ball half the length of the field in the second chukker, Lockett scored for the Freebooters. Lyman and Lockett played the ball down the field to McClure who scored a second Freebooter goal near the end of the period. In the third period Major Lyman, Freebooter chieftian, went in at No. 1, Tuttle went in at No. 3 for the Freebooters. Tuttle gave an exhibition of the brand of polo taught in the 15th Infantry, when he carried the ball the length of the field to score a goal. The fourth period saw the Redlegs on the offensive the entire period but the Freebooters failed to score. Murphy made a nice running shot for a score after his team mates had played the ball down the field in the fifth chukker.

In the final period the Pirate chieftian ran wild. Early in the period he chased the bamboo through the Artillery uprights on a perfect lay-up by Lockett. On the next play he carried the ball down the field through the entire Gunner defense to score a second goal. He was driving down field toward a third goal when the period and the game ended. The final score was: Freebooters 5; Artillery 2.

The Freebooters used the following players: Mallan, Hoge, St. John, Sweet; Lockett, Lyman, Tuttle, McClure. Against the Freebooters ,the Artillery line-up was: Buckley, Guernsey, Murphy, Oliver, Black, Clark, Strobehn and Avera. These teams played alternate periods.

WILD CAT HUNT

The Infantry School Hunt will conduct a wild cat hunt on Sunday, November 25, 1928. The list of available horses will be posted on the bulletin board at the Officers' Club at 12:45 P. M., Thursday, November 22, 1928. The Field will meet at the Infantry School stables and leave for the hunting ground at 5:00 A. M. Sharp.

Coffee will be served between 4:30 A. M. and 4:45 A. M.

Wife: I was highly incensed by the actions of that bold girl you were dancing with last evening!

Hubby: Well, I was highly perfumed myself.

"Is your father a policeman?"

"No, but he goes with them a lot."

ARMY FIGHTER BOOST STOCK WITH WIN OVER SOUTHERN PREMIER MIDDLE-WEIGHT

Smith Stops Gates in Second Round of Semi-Final

(By Al Durden)

Willie Ptomey, All-Service middleweight champion, took the lead among the foremost contenders for the Southern middleweight championship, taking a clean cut decision from Kid Williams in the stellar bout at the Fort Benning Fight Arena, on the night of November 16th.

Ptomey thoroughly demonstrated the fact that a good right hand can beat a good left hand, never once during the ten-round battle did the Tanker give ground, taking the aggressive from the opening gong, Willie carried the fight to the Savannah idol all through the fight.

The first five rounds were fairly even with both boys mixing in some fast exchanges. In the sixth round Weary Willie rushed Williams to the ropes where a choppy overhead right to the jaw caught Williams off balance, sending him through the ropes into the laps of the ringside fans, the Kid was on his feet in a jiffy, none the worse for wear.

In the seventh round Willie took everything Williams had to offer and came back with his own offensive work. Weary Willie is not a terrific puncher, but one who keeps piling up points by his bull dog aggressiveness and ability to throw punches from every angle.

Williams, a southpaw with a terrific wallop, found that Ptomey was on the job at all times. Every good lead that William attempted was messed up by Weary Willie. Time and again Williams worked in close to work on Willie's midriff, but each time the Tanker tied him up or beat him to the punch.

In the early rounds Williams seemed the stronger, but as the fight progressed the Tanker seemed to gain strength while Williams seemed to weaken in the final rounds under the soldier's tireless attack. Ptomey made his best showing in the last two rounds when he drove Williams from pillar to post under an avalanche of rights and lefts. Both boys were throwing leather in fast exchange at the final bell.

The semi-final, a scheduled six round bout between Mississippi Smith of Benning and Harold Gates, a civilian light-heavy, was fast and short. Gates came here with the remarkable record of having fought twenty-two professional fights with no losses to his credit.

Both boys lost no time in mixing things up in the first round, Gates ripped a left to Billy's head to start things moving. Both boy worked short blows to the body at close range. Billy stopped Gates in this tracks with a left to the face as the visitor tried to bore in. The round ended with both boys sparring for an opening.

Smith stepped in with a one two to the head that shook Gates from stem to stern. Smith dropped Gates with a short right hook to the jaw, Gates was up at the count of six. Gates tore in like a charging bull, Billy met him with a pile driving right over the heart. As Gates staggered from the impact, Billy's left crashed into his chow-hall, Gates was out on his feet. Smith crossed a right to the jaw that toppled him to the canvas for his first taste of the dregs of defeat.

Doubting Thomas of the 29th Infantry fought rings around Jackie McMullin of Atlanta, winning an easy decision. Thomas came close to a knockout in the final round, but though glass eyed and groggy, McMullin managed to hang on until the finish.

Watta Guy and Ginger Jernigan swung, hooked, jabbed and wrestled through a four-round comedy that though full of laughs carried plenty of fight, both boys being willing and tough though a little bit inexperienced.

Tiger Thompson liver up to his name when he lost his temper and tried to chew up Hoople's ear. Hoople seemed to lose his temper after being bit, his hay-making right laying the Tiger out for the fatal count.

Pal Moore, amateur welterweight champion of Fort Benning, was back in the ring again after a long lay-off from an operation. Moore met a tough customer in Shorty Smith of the Tanks. This three-rounder was full of action from the word go and was a crowd pleaser. A draw decision met with the approval of every one.

During the progress of the main bout, many of the fans present seemed to be under the impression that Williams with his jumping tactics was landing at will upon Ptomey's stomach and body, but close observers noted that after each exchange Williams was glad to mount his bicycle and keep away from Ptomey's straight punches.

Ptomey, an old head, had planned his fight in advance. It was apparent in the first few minutes that Willie had the Kid's left tied up for the night. Williams sensinga loss and unable to do any effective damage, resorted to the jumping tactics, which caused two well aimed blows to Willie's stomcah, to land several inches below the belt-line. Working in close he used his head when the opportunity presented itself, bringing home to the writer the reason why Williams is barred from fighting in Jacksonville, Fla. When Goodwin beat Williams in Jacksonville a few weeks ago, the Savannah boy tried the butting game on Bob with the result that he drew an indefinite suspension.

The Fifteenth Tank Battalion will, within the course of the next year, have quarters as ornate as those in which the 29th Infantry lives. However, where the 29th has a horseshoe shaped barrack, the Tanks will be housed in two half moons ,of the same type as the 29th, but wit hthe connecting section that makes the 29th a horseshoe, omitted. Bids will be opened on this project at the office of the Constructing Quartermaster, Lt. W. M. Allison, at 10 A. M., December 12th.

The honor of the Second Section is at stake! The First Section gravely questions said honor—and over the matter of a cat!! 'Tis quite a mixed-up affair but Bee, as ever desiring to give her dere publick all the facts, while on the trail of this question of honor, with rare astuteness, glimpsed a sign tacked up in the Second Section, reading as follows and to wit: "The First Section believes that the Second Section is cognizant of the whereabouts of a cat, grey-spotted in color, whose habitat formerly was at the First Section. The First Section believes that the members of the Second Section have decoyed this feline away from its rightful home, and at the present, has it in hiding, and will not return it to the First Section—whose members are downcast over the absence of this said cat."

This matter gave promise of being such a deep mystery, that it appealed to Bee, and immediately she decided to bring all her deductive faculties into play, and unravel the mystery. The First Section was er—er rather plain in their contention that the Second Section had something to do with the disappearance of this cat, whom—for purposes of identification, we will name Ida Bell. Ida Bell had disappeared from the First Section, it was found, and had been once reported wandering, with a hopeless look on her feline countenance, around the car of a certain prominent member of the Second Section, Captain E. L. ("Rikky") Rice.

After a conference with Captain Pearson, of the Second Section, which at present is living under the shadow of the bar sinister, Bee discovered that this same prominent member of the Second Section, had increased his order with the dairy for an extra quart of milk every day. Another clue, by way of a trusted confederate of the amature Sherlock Holmes, and whose name she will not disclose as it might diminish his usefulness on future mysteries—was that Ida Bell had been seen perched on the hood of this same Captain's car.

Bee, at this time, makes no accusations against anyone, but she is still working on the case, and feels that by the time the next issue comes forth, she will be in position to give all facts to her publick. She is working on another mysterious hint received, that on the afternoon that Ida Bell disappeared, a person was seen surreptiously heading toward the Third Section, with a funny looking package under his arm. This will shift responsibility all the way round, and will lift the bar sinister from the Second Section, if anything can be proved. This will all be disclosed in an article, "How Big Kidnappings are pulled," by ye humble scribe, in the next issue. Watch for it!

The Infantry School News Office has moved from its old location, and now moves within the charmed circle of capitalists. It is situated right next to the Finance Office, over by the Officers' Club. It is expected that the News will, in the future, blossom forth in a very elaborate publication, backed, as it is bound to be, by that sterling branch of the Army, the Finance Corps!

Seen at the Fights Thursday night: Captain and Mrs. A. L. Littell, loyal fight fans, in Seats 1 and 2, Box 2, where they may be seen at all shows of fistiana. Did anyone note the cute little table where the Press sits? Al Durden, representing the News, W. M. Reid representing the Ledger, and ye scribe, representing the Enquirer-Sun felt most important sitting at the little white table. Yonder is Mayor Barlow, who feels that when a fight comes along, it is worthy of boarding everything else for. Colonel Willard, the new Q. M., is another one who has not missed a single slug-fest since he arrived at this, the world's largest Infantry School. Here is Lt. Stewart, the Infantry School News Editor, who inquires as to how the gloves are coming. Mrs. Bishop, it seems, is becoming almost as ardent a fight fan as she is a skillful rider. The entire personnel of the Infantry Board, it appears, is sitting together in ringside seats. And many, many more.

This week's News Event: Ida Bell's mysterious disappearance.

NOTES FROM SPECIAL UNITS

OFFICER'S ASSOCIATION FORMED IN SPECIAL UNITS

An Officers' Association has recently been formed in Special Units, The Infantry School. The purpose of the association is to provide for the social obligations incident to the duties of all officers in creating and maintaining a proper esprt de corps in their organizations by affording opportunities for social intercourse, recreation and related matters of community interest. Here friendly relations may be cultivated among them and their families, and their common welfare, served in a wholesome spirit of united effort to promote morale in Special Units.

The members of the association consist of the officers permanently assigned to the several organizations of Special Units and such officers of the Post who have affiliated interests, who upon invitation, may care to join.

While membership of all officers assigned to the Special Units has been solicited as a practical and convenient method of contributing their support in such social activities as may be customarily expected of all officers, all memberships have been made optional.

No funds are maintained in the Association, but each social affair or entertianment is worked out on the Budget Plan and the pro rata cost assessed each officer before the date of the affair.

Heretofore the officers of Special Units have had no organization of their own for social purposes and have in this way been left somewhat to themselves. Since the organization of the Special Units went into effect, Mrs. D. G. Berry, has organized a Special Units Bridge Club which meets on Tuesdays, in the aternoons twice a month. Once a month the officers and ladies have an evening bridge, which is usually followed by an informal dance. These parties have been very enjoyable.

On Tuesday evening, November 13th, the Association had an informal get-together for their friends and guests. This affair consisted of an excellent steak dinner at the School for Bakers and Cooks followed by a theater party at the Main Theater. About sixty officers and ladies attended this party which was greatly enjoyed by all. Many officers and ladies from other organizations were present as guests of Special Units.

PONTONIER NOTES

(Company "A", 7th Engineers)

We have put it across again in a forceful and spectacular manner. During the recent maneuvers of the 29th Infantry, a pioneer platoon of Engineers was attached for the purpose of bridging a stream at the juncture of the Ohio and Marne Roads. Instructions had been issued for the erection of a pair of light bridges, capable of holding the weight of a machine gun cart. Upon consultation with Colonel Franklin, Lieutenant Fowlkes was informed that the bridges were expected to hold escort wagons, ambulances and reel cars. Credit is due Sgt. McCarty and Copr. Perkins for the manner in which their details reconstructed the bridges. Atefward with the assistance of pioneer platoon from the 29th Infantry, the whole road above the bridges was made passible. Major Patch expressed his appreciation of this splendid effort in no uncertain terms.

"Abie" and "Ikie" 'are back! Grove returned from th ebeauties of the Keystone State a little sooner than Briner, but, both were emphatic in praising the good times they had in the state where "Bill Penn," the prominent Quaker (along with Mr. Hoover), first settled.

Callahan upon his return from the Carolinas (made famous by Gene Austin's crooning cradle melody) expressed a strong desire to meet more strangers on the train between Charlotte and Atlanta. No romance, boys.

The company as a whole has been in a self-congratulatory mood since Kingsbury and Gaffney scored thirteen of the fifteen points credited to Special Units in the recent Garrison Track Meet. This should bring to the front some of the embryo Paddocks, Hamms and Housers in the next meet.

Moore earned a draw at the first indoor show in a slashing three-round bout with Stratton Smith of the Tanks. Although Moore showed the effects of his lon glay off, his stabbling left hand and refusal to back out won the plaudits of the crowd.

It is rumored that "Cy" Perkins has quit betting on any and all football games. A few men intentionally hedge all of Perkin's bets and are thereby fast becoming rich.

Among our new arrivals are:

Joe Harkins, veteran of six years, the last three with Co. "B", 29th Engineers at Fort Humphreys, Va., hails from Philadelphia (Fishtown), in the Quaker state made famous by "Abie" and "Ikie". He is a welcome addition to our oufit.

Leon DeLozier with three years in Co. "C", 29th Engineers stationed at Washington Barracks, comes next. Leon confesses to the Fundamentalist State of Tennessee as his home. Much joy has been brought to the Company by the arrival of his ukelele. The 2nd squad of the 2nd platoon is now gathering place for all of the music (?) lovers.

Two Georgia Crackers have joined us. Mitchell T. Murkeson and Eddie Whitfield, from Dublin and Vidalia respectively. Both have been scientific agriculturists. We welcome them and hope that they will enjoy being in what we of the 7th call the "best all round oufit in the United States."

17th ORDNANCE COMPANY

The "Old Timers" with their medals and service stripes presented a fine appearance last Saturday morning occupying the front row at the taking of a group picture of the Company. It will not be long before many of these two war veterans retire, for a well earned rest.

Sergeant Goodman and Corporal Morris are to be congratulated upon their promotions.

Corporal Brown the Company Clerk is on furlough and has been replaced in the personnel office by Private Russ. Russ is a good clerk and we feel that he will make good.

Corporal Futch, the expert shot and all round athlete of the company has taken the examination for entrance to the Ordnance Specialist School. Good luck!

Pvt. 1st Cl. Bottomley has acquired the study habit and is burning the midnight mazda. He knows the meaning of initiative and is preparing for the Staff Sergeant Examination, and we know he is going to make the grade.

H. W. H.

FINANCIAL DIGEST

Several weeks have now elapsed since the interested readers of the News have heard anything from "Finance". Our Shiek and news reporter has departed to the Panama Canal. Said place is a "fur piece" from Benning but we know that Pvt. 1st Cl. Price will uphold the fine reputation of the old Post.

We have welcomed to our happy home Technical Sergeant John Carlson. He is by far the most dignified member of our detachment and should be a constant source of inspiration to Pvt. Andrews.

It is the opinion of the Detachment that Moye completely succumbed to the charms of a Georgia Moon last week while on furlough. He has been having a bad time controlling his heart since his return and we fear unless taken in time the malady will prove fatal.

Just to prove a lot of things, Pvt. 1st Cl. Young is to be made Staff Sergeant in a short time. Assistant to the Chief Clerk. We believe that Young deserves the dignity of the new position.

We are now located in the new quarters for our organization and you are invited to call for advice on all matters financial or otherwise, for we have plenty of room and admit that money is power, therefore we feel that we can give good advice.

WORK OF POPPY SALE COMMITTEE APPRECIATED

The American Legion Auxiliary of the Charles S. Harrison Post, No. 35, of Columbus, Georgia, wishes to take this means of thanking Capt. Collier, Mrs. Albert S. Peake, chairman of the poppy sale, the ladies who assisted in the selling of the poppies, and all of those who co-operated in anyway. The Legion and the Auxiliary were delighted with the results of the sale at Benning. We are sure that the large sum raised was due to the splendid work of the chairman and her committees.

A CORRECTION

In last week's issue of the News appeared a story about the golf tournament. The winner of the baby flight was given as Capt. Paul Steele. This was an error as winner of this flight was Capt. Charles L. Steel, adjutant of the 24th Infantry.

ered, even in the final quarter when the Kells scored their final touchdown, it was a pass far ovr their heads that dropped into the arms of Tommie Thomson that turned the trick.

In the final period the Red Jackets opened up an aerial attack with a flurry of passes in a desperate attempt to cross the Kelly line, although several passes were completed a Kelly tackle was always standing in the way, it was an intercepted pass by Kjelstrom that paved the way for the final touchdown.

The veterans Kelly and Franz did only what they always do, they led the fight at all times. Tommie Thompson clicked off yardage when called on to carry the ball or receive a pass. The entire Kelly team showed wonderful teamwork while the power of the Kelly line was a surprise to many of the football critics of the garrison.

McFadden starred in the line for the Red Jackets. He proved to be the leading factor that gave the youngsters the proper fighting spirit and confidence after they had wavered under the Kelly drive in the first period.

In the backfield Jack Harper, suffering from previous injuries, gave his all, and following his deadly tackles and line plunging the Red backfield fought stubbornly until the final gun.

The game was hard and rough but clean throughout. It was a case of a well coached, hard fighting, directed team winning over a team that was likewise well coached and hard fighting, but which lacked the experience and ability to match the perfect team play of their veteran opponents.

It was Doughboy against Doughboy and only one motto: "Fight Fight Fight!" And fight they did, in a gentlemanly, sportsman-like manner, and today men who tore into each other like charging demons, laugh over the game like a bunch of carefree boys.

OFFICERS ADVANCED CLASS TO HOLD COON HUNT AND SNIPE HUNT

In the very near future the racoons now residing in Hamel creek swamp are going to have a very busy evening. Members of the Officers Advanced Class will hold their annual coon hunt and Hamel swamp coons have been chosen as the victims. The hunt pack from the Officer's Club Kennels will be used, and Captain Collier who knows the lair of every coon and wild-cat on the reservation will lead the hunt.

The annual Class Snipe Hunt will be held the same evening. It is reported that the marshes and woodlands of the reservation is brimming over with snipes. Last year's hunt was a record breaker, over two thousand snipes being bagged in the final drive.

A large Oregon badger that escaped from its cage at the Biglerville Mess last season after whipping every dog on the reservation, has been recaptured and it is rumored that there will be a Bagger Fight as soon as a suitable dog can be found to tackle the Badger.

TERRIBLE TANKERS WIN OVER GEORGIA AGGIES

The Tankers made 8 first downs while the Aggies were garnering 4, a fair measure of the relative strength of the teams.

Waters, Hodson and Evans were outstanding on the deefnse for the collegians, while McGarrity and Hitchcock bore the brunt of their offensive drive.

Bennett, Stansbury, Vallery and Brown led the Tanker offensive drive in the final half. Brown's deadly tackling and the line plunging of Bennett and Stansbury featured the Tanker victory.

Big Bertha Bertleman proved a stonewall on the defensive, Willingham played a great game at guard. For the first time in the history of Tank football, time was called for Big Bertha when he was injured in the third quarter, although crippled he refused to quit and was still stopping all opposition at the final whistle.

24TH INF.

Quite a large part of the officer personnel of the 24th took advantage of the opening day and went far out into the bosques bird hunting. In one crowd went Captains Steward, Lyons, Helsley, Paynter and Lt. Earle.

They made an early start; hunted all day and came home at night with eighteen quail. The man who owned the farm hunted with them, but they claim to have killed the birds.

This same party repaired to the field last year on the first day and brought back one vulture (buzzard), nailed cold at thirty yards by a charge of number sixes, under the mistaken idea that it was a wild turkey. On this same trip they left ont he field one of their best dogs, shot dead—we have never found out what they thought the dog was.

Most officers are only lukewarm towards details that take them away from troops. We saw one the other day that looks to be ideal (to a married officer).

While out on a map problem with the 24th Infantry Officers' School we had to get off the road and into the brush to let a cavalcade pass. At its head rode Lt. Mood, and following him in column of twos came a platoon of the Ladies Riding Class. Arriving abreast of where we were standing the Lieutenant rode out to one side and instructed the riders to continue the march.

As they passed him Lt. Mood would call out such defects as he saw. "Mrs. So. and So, your right stirrup is too long," and "Miss This-and-That, your saddle is getting on the horse's neck." Did they talk back? Well, I should say not! They never said a word, and when, a few moments later, he gave the command to halt, dismount and correct the defects noted, they silently came down off the nags, and as silently proceeded to do as they were told. They actually looked meek.

After they had gone the officers in the problem all agreed that they had heard ladies told "where to get off at," but none seemed to remember a satisfactory ending from a masculine point of view. Here was something new. Lt. Mood, right in front of us, told them what to do; told them in no uncertain tone of voice. They did it, and, by gosh! they seemed to like it.

We then, individually, severally and collectively agreed that Lt. Mood's detail was not so bad.

3. National Defense Act as amended.
4. Use of Federal Troops in Civil Disturbances and relief Work.

School instruction will be conducted by means of class-room recitations, conferences ,and practical exercises, under the supervision of Headquarters, The Infantry School. Instruction began November 13, and will continue until January 18, 1929.

The instructors are: Major Henry J. M. Smith Major Otto F. Lange, Major Truman Smith, Major Harold R. Bull, Captain Pleas B. Rogers, Captain Robert A. McClure, 1st Lieut. David L. Hardee.

JUNICR OFFICERS' LYCEUM

The second of the series of lectures to the Junior Officers was given by Colonel Pendleton on Saturday, Nov. 17th. The subject of this talk was the "General Staff and its place in the War Department." He covered the subject by giving a brief historical sketch of the General Staff and its reasons for being created and a detailed study of the personnel. The General Staff was created in 1902 by the Secretary of War and later modified by acts in 1916, 1922 and 1926. The officers are selected for the General Staff from those who are classified under the General Staff Eligibility List. There are eighty-eight officers on the War Department General Staff with six or eight additional officers and their duties are divided into five divisions, G-1, G-2, G-3, G-4 and War Plans. These divisions all work together as much as possible so that the final decisions are acceptable to all.

This talk was exceedingly interesting and instructive as was the first one of the series.

TANKS WIN INF. SCHOOL ROAD RACE

THE WILD CAT HUNT SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 25th

(By R. H. B. Jr.)

For the second time this year the bold and intrepid wild cat hunters of the Post arose at 4 P. X., on a dark, cold Sunday morning. How simple it seemed on Saturday night, but how difficult to shiver into one's clothes ather leaving a warm bed; especially if one's better half passed several and sundry "cracks" about "nuts" that rode all week and then had to arouse the entire household too—well the descriptions were probably complete.

Then the cold ride to the stables—"Maybe I'm the only one crazy enough to get up at this hour of the day." And then the hot coffee, cooked over the forge in the blacksmith shop, and doughnuts. Still cold, but as the hunt gathers there is cheerful talk and laughter; voices calling for coffee, and the ringing of the horses hooves o nthe hard ground.

Long before sun-up the hunt has forded Gilbert Creek. Soon the first bright streaks herald the approaching day. Optimism reigns supreme. A wonderful day for a hunt, just enough frost to freeze the feet of the huntsmen. Surely we will get a cat today.

Now the hunt has stopped on the top of a large bald hill, with the wind sweeping across it in spiteful glee. Here the hunt will remain while Capt. Collier rides forth to seek the hounds, and cheer them on with shrill whoops. The sun comes forth shedding no warmth, but disclosing the huntsmen in all their array. Surely this is a democratic hunt, Capt. "Ted" Wessels is present, dressed for mid-August, claiming to have left his hunting clothes in his locker ,and wondering loudly why checks always had to be made on the tops of hills. Capt. Pendergrast, taking the course this year, and putting the hunting-costume tailors of the Prince of Wales completely to shame. Lt. Black, looking very much hard-boiled in a big roll-collar sweater.

Ah! Here comes Capt. Collier. What! The pack has split; but we are sure to strike a "hot" trail before long. So the hunt goes forward, and backward and around in circles, stopping always on the tops of large bare hills. A glorious morning with the keenness and zest of the fall to it, but never does the pack give forth its clear toned song of the trail that is rich with scent.

One stop too many on the wind swept hilltops and Capt. Wessels heads for home. At last Capt. Collier too admits defeat. The hounds are separated to the four winds, chasing rabbits maybe, but "no cats today—thank you." A wonderful ride on a glorious bracing morning. How tame it all sounds though as we enter our homes. "No, dear, no cat this time, but we had a wonderful ride and we'll surely get one next time."

MAJOR POWER IS RETIRED

Major. E. O. Power, formerly assigned to the 24th Infantry, has been placed on the retired list according to Tuesday's W. D. orders. He is a former resident of New York City where he practiced law for many years.

THE WINNING TANK TEAM

This is the winning team of the 15th Tank Battalion, which captured the track and field meet held at Doughboy Stadium on November 12. The team had 53½ points to its credit at the completion of events. The First Battalion, 29th Infantry, finished in second place with 48 points.

INFANTRY SCHOOL DETACHMENT HOLDS BIG THANKSGIVING FEAST

(By B. Davis)

Talk about a big feast for Turkey Day. Well, the Infantry School Green Cords had everything to satisfy the palate of the most exacting diner, from the first course till the last, everything was cooked to a turn, flavored to the touch, and delicious in every respect.

At 1:30 P. M. all the members of the Detachment and their guests were ushered into the wide dining hall and what a sight met the eye. For not only were the senses of smell and taste appealed to, but that of the sense of sight. The long tables were loaded down with all kinds of food, but with it all in such an artistic manner that one hated to disturb the effect by plunging into the matter of feeding the inner person. Tricky little green menus, placed at every plate, gave the schedule for the dinner which follows below:

Roast young turkey with dressing, cranberry sauce, giblet gravy, candied yams, mashed potatoes, combination salad, celery hearts, queen olives, mixed pickles, mince pie ,pumpkin pie, pound cake, parker house rolls, butter, fruit, candy, nuts, coffee, cigars and cigarettes.

Perhaps it was because ye scribe was seated at the table with the many com-

TANK TEAM WON FIRST HONORS

Maitland of the Second Battalion Won Individual Honors in Thursday's Athletic Event

The marathon road race held at Fort Benning Turkey Day morning was won by the 15th Tank Battalion team. It was the first event of its kind ever held at the Infantry School and created much interest among harrier fans here. The 29th Infantry band furnished music for the occasion, and that, added to the loud cheering of the organization rooters, led much to make the event about as exciting and thrilling as a fast hundred yard dash.

The small blond headed Maitland of the Second Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry led the thirty entries in the Baby Marathon to carry off individual honors in the record time of twenty-four minutes, fifty-seven and three-fifths seconds. Every man who entered in the race finished.

However, the race was not one-sided by any means. Azbell of the Tanks ran neck and neck with the doughboy all of the way till they reached the final stretch. Once they had entered into the last quarter mile Maitland stepped out and showed the stamina he had in reserve, sprinting the last quarter of a mile, finishing with a good hundred yards in the lead.

From the crack of the starter's pistol it was evident that better time than was expected would be made. Lupo, lone entry of the First Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry was away in a flash, setting the pace for the first mile but the pace he had set was too swift and the leader had his distance cut by the different runners, Maitland and Azbell being the first to pass him. Lupo finished in thirteenth place.

Once Maitland and Aztell had passed the game little lupo they were either unable to set a faster pace or else content to keep at the pace they were running hoping that the other would endeavor to set too fast a pace and burn himself out as had Lupo in the earlier part of the race.

At the conclusion of the race, Colonel Harry E. Knight, Executive Officer of the Infantry School, presented the winners of the first eight places with engraved medals and at the same time congratulating them in finishing as they had. Those presented metals, in the order in which they finished, were Maitland of the Second Battalion, first place; Azbell of the Tanks, second place; Langford, Tanks, third place; McKee, Tanks, fourth place; Bryant, Special Units, Twenty-ninth Infantry, fifth place; Woods, Tanks, sixth place; Nourse, Tanks, seventh place; and Terry, Second Battalion, eighth place.

After having presented the different individual winners with their medals Colonel Knight presented a beautiful loving cup to the team winning first place, which was won by the Tank team. The Second Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry finished second, the Special Units of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, third.

—B. H. Cowan.

RECRUITING NOTES

When a man re-enlists at this office, we always send him back to his organization with a word of cheer such as "come back in three years." A majority of the men heed this advice and are back at the end of their next three years. In fact the re-enlistment percntage of this post is growing larger each month. Back in 1924 the re-enlistment percentage averaged about twenty-five per cent per month. At the present time the average percentage per month is about sixty, which is an increase of about thirty-five per cent during the past four years.

One of the first questions we hear in this office after a man has re-enlisted is, "Where do I get my bonus". We are glad to give them the information they desire on this subject, or answer any other questions for them, as that is part of our work.

If for any reason a man does not desire to re-enlist for his same organization on the day following his discharge and would like a change of station he is invited to come to this office and request information on the assignment he desires.

The following named men have re-enlisted for organizations at this post during the past week: Private First Class Warren F. Baugh, Company "G", 29th Infantry; Private Specialist Fifth Class Howard Pearson, Detachment Quartermaster Corps; Corporal James B. Fryar, Company "C", 29th Infantry; Sergeant Charles F. Abbott, 17th Ordnance Company; Private First Class Specialist Third Class James H. Cotton, Detachment Quartermaster Corps; Private First Class, Specialist Sixth Class, Ruben Rogers, Battery "A", 83rd Field Artillery Bn.; First Sergeant Shirley H. Workman, Battery "A", 83rd Field Artillery Bn.; Private First Class Thomas B. Dunlap, Service Company, 29th Infantry.

The following named recruits have been enlisted at this post during the past week: Private James E. Carlile, Infantry, Fort Moultrie, S. C.; Private Irvin Cauley, Cavalry, Fort Clark, Texas; Private Eugene Harrell, Cavalry, Fort Clark, Texas; Private Charlie S. Gregory (has over 13 years service), for Infantry School Detachment; Private Albert Kinchen, Infantry, 8th Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Private Robert P. Hendry, Field Artillery, 8th Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Private Maxwell V. Hilton, Field Artillery, 8th Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Private Martin R. McDonald, for Cavalry, 8th Corps Area, Fort Clark, Texas.

At the present time the following posts are open for enlistments: Field Artillery, 8th Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Cavary, Fort Clark, Texas; 20th Infantry and 76th Field Artillery Band at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming; 8th Infantry Band at Fort Screven, Ga. The vacancies mentioned above will be closed November 29th. After that date we will have a new vacancy list as follows: Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Infantry, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Sgt. J. E. Stewart.

NOTES FROM COMPANY "A" 7th ENGINEERS

After serving with the 7th Engineers for nearly twelve years, since June 10th, 1920, as 1st Sergeant, 1st Sgt. Henry L. Gensch will leave in the near future for the Hawaiian Department, to which he has been ordered transferred in grade. He will join our old friend Mr. Sgt. James R. Morrison who is now serving with the 3rd Engineers. Sgt. Gensch will report at New York January 10th to await the sailing of the Army transport leaving about the 15th.

The die is cast! Company "B", 15th Tank Battalion, has accepted the challenge broadcast by the Engineers. The teams will battle for soccer supremacy Friday morning. We are inclined to sympathize with the players who will have to carry that big Thanksgiving dinner from one end of the field to the other on that same Friday morning.

The wandering boy was found late Monday evening, roaming the highways and byway, wondering if he was lost or the rest of the detail had strayed. As was to be expected, Lockwood's first words, upon being found, were, "When do we eat".

The football heroes returned from Auburn covered with the dust of Alabama and with decided limps. Upon learning that there was to be no drill Monday, the physical defects were very suddenly remedied. No cripples were noted Sunday. The boys liked the cafeteria style of feeding employed at Auburn. "Red" Thompson was heard to remark, on his fifth trip to the cie cream counter, "Who said no seconds?"

Pvt. Pearce, the last of the recruits, comes from somewhere between Dublin and Macon. Evidently the agricultural fraternity is losing the best of its youngsters to the Engineers.

ONE YEAR AGO

A few items from the NEWS of December 2, 1927:

An announcement was made to the effect that a costume dance would be held at the Gymnasium on December 6. This affair was one of the biggest held during the winter season for the enlisted personnel.

Capt. G. J. Braun and family departed for Washington, having served at Fort Benning for eight years.

Major R. M. Hollock arrived here to take up his duties as Judge Advocate, relieving Major J. A. Parker, who was soon to take leave and later report to the Panama Canal Dept. for duty.

Football game was scheduled for Sunday afternoon, Dec. 4th, when Company "F" and Company "B" of the 29th Infantry would fight it out for regimental honors. Company "F" won the game.

In a subscription contest held in the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, Private Weems, "C" battery clerk, was in the lead with 72 subscribers to his credit. Weems won the contest. Over three hundred men in the artillery subscribed to the paper at this time, many of whom had the NEWS sent to their homes.

A drag hunt and breakfast was held on Sunday, Dec. 4th, at the Polo Club.

More football: Hqrs. and "A" Companies of the Tanks fought it out for the battalion championship. Result: A scoreless tie and both teams were awarded cups by the battalion commander.

In this issue appeared a picture of Col. D. G. Berry, who had just received orders to report to Fort Benning from the Philippines, where he commanded the 31st Infantry. He is now commanding officer of Special Units at the Infantry School.

Daughter: "Did you have many love affairs daddy?"

Soldier Father: "No, child, I fell in the first engagement."

AT THE MOVIES

NOV. 30 TO DEC. 7, INCL.

FRIDAY, NOV. 30

"THREE RING MARRIAGE," starring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes in a captivating story of the great tent inmates. There are giants, midgets, clowns, prancing horses and flying trapeze artists. The story concerns the daughter of a wealthy ranchman; she falls in love with a cowpuncher who, because of it, loses his job and joins a circus. The girl follows him and becomes a circus rider. The sequence of events that envelope them make a fascinating story from start to finish.

"Pathe News No. 95."

SATURDAY, DEC. 1

"ARIZONA CYCLONE," starring Fred Hume in a Universal thriller. This story, laid in the vast wastes of wild Arizona, is chuck full of action, gun totin', quick trigger pullin', ropin' and ridin'. The rapid moving events of this picture are enlivened with touches of comedy. Yes, there is a romance, and "he" gits the gal he's after.

"The Fist Fight." Charlie Chase.

SUNDAY, DEC. 2

"THE PATRIOT," starring Emil Jannings with Florence Vidor, Lewis Stone and Neil Hamilton in a powerful story involving Russian royalty. Jannings plays the part of the Czar, who is a strange combination of tyrant, coward, weekling and mad man. He is hated by his subjects and lives in constant fear of his life. The only man in whom he puts any faith is his prime minister whose high sense of justice leads him to place patriotism before loyalty. There is a deep intrigue, plot and counter-plot with a touch of romance. It is the type of story which holds an audience spell bound watching the plot weave to soaring heights until it crashes into the gripping climax.

MONDAY, DEC. 3

"OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS," featuring Joan Crawford and John Mack Brown in an up-to-the-minute story of the social problem of today. It has a unique plot which moves swiftly with the tempo of daring youth. The scenes shift from the gaudy gaiety of nightclub life to the simple attractiveness of the seashore, where a pretty romance takes the place of cabaret "necking." There are three pairs of dancing feet and three highways to happiness; which is the shortest?

"Terrible People No. 4."

TUESDAY, DEC. 4

"THE WATER HOLE," from the story by Zane Grey, starring Jack Holt. The story is a happy combination of life in the homes of the wealthy and the rough existences in the great outside of the Western plains. The scenic photography is beautiful and the sequences done in technicolor are impressive. The plot concerns the taming of a pampered society girl—a strong man of the west kidnaps her but the light-hearted prank turns into near tragedy, adventure and danger. The ordeal makes her love him.

"Love's Young Scream." Anne Cornwall.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 5

"SHOW FOLKS," involving the Baby-doll Vamp, the Hoofer, the Feeder and the Trouper, all necessary adjuncts of backstage life. It is a sympathetic story of tremendous appeal without a villain. A remarkable love triangle is deftly developed through the maze of aspirants to stardom. Featured players are Eddie Quillan, Lina Basquette and Robert Armstrong.

"Paramount News No. 35."

THURSDAY, DEC. 6

"THE PERFECT CRIME," starring Clive Brook with Irene Rich in an intensely dramatic mystery story dealing with the psychological working of a great detective's mind. To satisfy his ego, Benson, a master detective, who has solved every murder mystery brought to his notice, commits a murder which baffles all detection—there is not a clue left. How it is actually brought to a solution furnishes a story that will absorb every moment of your attention.

"Quiet Please." Cameo Comedy.

FRIDAY, DEC. 7

"BROTHERLY LOVE," starring Karl Dane with George K. Arthur in a combination jail house and football comedy. A jail football team supplies the principle motivation behind the love interest in which the warden's pretty daughter is the center of complications. Dane and Arthur, as the principle gridiron gladiators, duel with touchdowns for her hand and their football antics are uproarious with side splitting situations.

"City Slickers." Fables.

"Pathe News No. 97."

MISS YOUNG AND LT. KAMMERER MARRIED LAST SATURDAY

The traditions of the army and the traditions of the Southland were combined to give exquisite beauty and marked solemnity to the marriage of Miss Louise Young and Lieutenant Malcolm Raymond Kammerer which took place at four o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday, November twenty-fourth at the Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbus. Lieutenant Henry H. Fay performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of the family and hundreds of friends.

The church was beautifully decorated. There were garlands of Southern Smilax over the altar rails, and beautiful ferns, stately palms, and foliage plants were used to form a background of green against which stood in vivid contrast garceful baskets filled with snowy chrysanthemums and feathery ferns, and tied with filmy tulle, golden candelebra with glowing white tapers; and the color guard with their loved regimental and national flags. The place where the first vows were taken was marked by two tall pedestal baskets filled with exquisite white chrysanthemums tied with huge bows of misty tulle ribbons, and the final pledges were made in the inner sanctuary where the couple knelt before two sacred seven-branched pedestal candelabra holding white gleaming tapers. The reserved seats were indicated by clusters of white chrysanthemums and asparagus fern tied with white satin ribbons.

Prior to the entrance of the bridal party there was a program of exquisite music by Mr .Erwin H. Vonderau, skilled organist of Trinity, and Mrs. Ernest S. Barker who sang "Love," by Huerter, "At Dawning," by Cadman, and "All for You," by Bertram Brown.

At the initial strains of Lohengrin's wedding march Lt. Fay took his place and the groom and his best man, Lt. John S. Roosma, entered from the side and stood before the altar. The ushers, Lt. Edward C. Mack, Lt. LeGrande A. Diller, Lt. David D. Hedekin, Lt. Arthur L. Cobb, Lt. John G. Van Houten, Lt. William W. Cornog, Lt. John R. Jeter, Lt. William W. Browning and Lt. Daniel G. Strickter coming down the center aisle in couples took their places at each side of the altar. Then came Miss Helen Young, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor. She was lovely in a handsome dress of transparent velvet which gleamed with the colors of an autumn sunset and carried an arm bouquet of giant bronze chrysanthemums tied with a fluffy bow of bronze tulle. Her hat was a French model of brown panne velvet with slightly upturned brim revealing a lining of velvet of the rich color of her dress. Her hose matched the dress and her shoes were of brown velvet, matching her hat.

Following the maid of honor came pretty little Harriette Ramsey, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ramsey of Ft. McPherson, dressed in a beautiful blue taffeta rock trimmed with French flowers and wearing a miniature veil of blue tulle caught to her hair with blue and pink forget-me-nots. On her left arm was a Marie Antoinette basket filled with roses and she scattered fragrant petals in the pathway of the bride.

The beautiful bride entered on the arm of her father, Major Laurence W. Young, and was given in marriage by him. She was a vision of loveliness in her wedding dress of imported ivory georgette-backed satin made with close fitting bodice, round neck and long sleeves. The full skirt was fashioned with the modish uneven hemline charmingly accented by her long graceful train, which was attached at the low waist line. The train was made of alternate tiers of chiffon and the soft ivory satin of her dress, and was joined to the dress at the sides with panniers of rare Princess lace ,an heirloom in the bride's family, over which fell clusters of orange blossoms. She wore a cap of Princess lace and a voluminous veil of misty tulle caught to her hair with sprays of orange blossoms—the cap and veil having been worn by all the brides in the family. In her hand she carried an exquisite real lace hankerchief, especially treasured because it was carried by her grandmother, her mother and her sister on their wedding days. Her lovely shower bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

When the ceremony was over the ushers formed the traditional arch with their crossed sabers under which the bridal party passed as they left the church.

Immediately after the wedding Major and Mrs. Young entertained two hundred friends at a beautiful wedding reception at the Polo Club. In the receiving line were Lt. Roosma, Lt. Kammerer and his bride, Major and Mrs. Young, Mrs. R. L. Kammerer, of Woodhaven, L. I., mother of the groom, Mrs. W. R. McGuire, of Asheville, N. C., aunt of the bride, and Miss Helen Young.

Mrs. Young wore a lovely afternoon dress of lavender and gold brocade with hat of purple and lavender velvet. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of Sunset Roses and violets.

Mrs. Kammerer was dressed in transparent blue velvet with hat of the same material. Her flowers were pink roses.

The club house was decorated in green and white similar to the church. Smilax was used in profusion to bank the mantel, wall brackets and chandelier, and white chrysanthemums in graceful baskets were artistically used on tables and in nooks and corners. Tall silver candlesticks holding long white candles burned on the mantel and on piano and a handsome candelebrum holding five tapers was the central decoration of one lovely flower-embedded table. The tea table was over-laid with a handsome imported filet cloth and had for its centerpiece a silver bowl of white chrysanthemums surrounded by four silver candlesticks holding long white candles. Silver bon bon dishes held mints in the shape of bride's roses, and salted nuts, and there were huge silver platters holding individual wedding cakes, so delicious with the punch. Mrs. Hammond McD. Monroe graciously presided over the bride's table, which was overlaid with an exquisitely embroidered canton cloth and held a huge three-tiered wedding cake elaborately embossed in bride's roses and lilies of the valley, a reproduction of her gorgeous bouquet. She, after the custom of army brides, cut the cake with her husband's sabre.

Music was furnished by the Regimental orchestra and dancing followed the reception. As the lovely bride danced in her bridal array so perfectly suited to her classic beauty she made one think of a medieval princess.

Later in the evening, she changed her bridal costume for a handsome going-away dress of brown faille with hat, gloves, bag, shoes and fur coat to match. Lt. and Mrs. Kammerer motored to Radium Springs going later to Florida on their honeymoon.

Lt. and Mrs. Kammerer are one of the post's most popular young couples and have been the recipients of innumerable courtesies since the announcement of their engagement in the early fall. Mrs. years he has served at Benning he has endeared himself to a large group of friends.

Among the out-of-town guests assembled here for the wedding were Mrs. R. L. Kammerer, of Woodhaven, L. I.; Mrs. J. P. Johnson, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. W. P. McGuire, aunt of the bride, of Asheville, N. C.; Mr. James P. McConnell and Mr. Harvey Holloman, of Asheville; Miss Celia Johnson, of Atlanta; Miss Dade Warfield, of Agnes Scott; Capt. and Mrs. T. H. Ramsey, Capt. and Mrs. Samuel Harrison, of Ft. McPherson; Lt. and Mrs. Townsley, of Albany, Ga.

SHAW-DALEY WEDDING TOMORROW

Col. and Mrs. George C. Shaw announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Lieutenant Edmund K. Daley, of the 7th Engineers, the wedding to take place at the home of the bride at eleven o'clock on Saturday, December 1st. Because of the recent death of Lt. Daley's mother, the wedding will be very quiet. After the ceremony Lt. Daley and his bride will leave immediately for Washington, D. C., where they will spend their honeymoon with Lt. Daley's father, Major Edmund L. Daley.

MRS. RUBENSTEIN ENTERTAINS

On last Thursday afternoon Mrs. Douglas Rubenstein entertained at a very large and very beautiful bridge party at the Polo Club. Bronze chrysanthemums were used in lavish profusion to decorate the entire club and autumn leaves were used as a background to give the Thanksgiving note so charmingly carried out in evey detail of decoration and refreshments. There were nineteen tables of bridge and the first prize, a handsome beaded bag, was won by Mrs. Wray B. Avera, the second, a bottle of Coty's perfume, was won by Mrs. Alfred Brandt, and the low prize, a set of colorful bath cloths, by Mrs. Michael E. Halloran. Quite a large number of friends came in for tea. At the conclusion of the game Mrs. Rubenstein served chocolate and vanilla ic ecream moulded in the form of Thanksgiving turkeys, with individual cakes and hot coffee. All in all, this was one of the loveliest parties of the season.

Mrs. R. L. Kammerer who came down for the wedding of her son, Lt. Malcolm Kammerer and Miss Louise Young, left Tuesday afternoon for her home in Woodhaven, L. I.

On Thursday evening of last week Mrs. H. A. Wells and Mrs. C. L. Steel were joint hostesses to the 24th Infantry Evening Bridge Club at its first meeting of the season. The Polo Club was decorated in small evergreen pines making it look like a diminutive forest. There were twelve tables of players and Mrs. J. J. Wilson, Mrs. William R. Schmidt, Lt. Walden S. Lewis and Capt. James P. Lyons won prizes. After the game creamed chicken, Southern style, was served in pattie shells with hot coffee.

Major and Mrs. William F. Freehoff were hosts at a charming midnight supper party on Saturday after the plays presented by the Dramatic Club. Their guests, including the memebrs of the cast of "Poor Audrey," directed by Mrs. Freehoff, and a few other friends, were: Maj. and Mrs. Harold Bull, Maj. and Mrs. Lee S. Gerow, Capt. and Mrs. John K. Rice, Lt. and Mrs. W. H. Vinson. This party was not to celebrate the final production of the play but to celebrate as well the birthday of the talented director. The table was overlaid with an exquisite cloth of cut work and filet. Beautiful red carnations in a silver basket surrounded by four silver candlesticks holding tall green tapers formed the centerpiece. Mrs. Rice presided over the coffee service and the hostess served creamed chicken in pattie shells, with dainty beaten biscuit and olives. Later the birthday cake was cut and served.

Mrs. I. S. Coates and Mrs. Charles E. Coates were joint hostesses at an unusual Sewing Tea recently. Inspired by the disaster that has recently wrought such ruin in Porto Rico, Madame and Mrs. Coates invited the ladies who served recently with them in Porto Rico to bring material to their home and sew for the destitute children. Each lady made two children's dresses. Those present were Mrs. Stanley G. Blanton, Mrs. Charles A. Willoughby, Mrs. Harrison B. Beavers, Mrs. Lee S. Hester, Mrs. Fred W. Coswell, Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, Madame and Mrs. Coates. They have gathered various useful things together and have in all twenty boxes to send to the unfortunate people who were living so joyously a few years ago when this group lived on their lovely island.

BENNING MANDOLIN TRIO PLEASES RADIO FANS

(By Sgt. Long)

Last Friday evening I was very much surprised when the announcer giving the program for the evening from station W. R. B. L., Columbus, Ga., announced one number as a mandolin trio Sgts. Cooper, Davis and Faber of Fort Benning. Having known these musicians for some time it was astonishing that they had so rapidly gained such perfection that they were capable of rendering a selection over the radio with the Little Theatre Players of The Dramatic Club, Columbus, Ga.

The music was excellent considering as I was informed it was the first time they have had the opportunity of appearing before such a vast audience. Here is wishing them luck.

Mildred (icily): "And shall I return the engagement ring?"

Frank: "Oh, no, don't bother; I'll just have the notice of the next installment sent to you."

Thanksgiving! What a glorious feed was handed out to the lads of the I. S. D., and the civilian employes of the Quartermaster Corps who were invited to have turkey with that organization on Thursday! Bee herewith hands a huge bouquet to the boys who wield the spoons in that organization, for they certainly know their ingredients!

Ida Bell has not been located; Bee hates to admit that the master intellect fell short—but in the mystery of locating this disappeared feline, she must admit failure. The only further clues is that an odd-looking mortal, attired in the regalia of a Lance-Lieutenant of the Cashtown Rifles, F. O. B., N. B. C., G. M. C., was seen carrying a curious looking bag toward the Third Section, from which bag issued sounds resembling the me-oow of the common, or garden variety of house-cat. Bee would not venture to say that the Third Section had anything to do with this, or that a house-cat was in the bag; this is just a further clue that has been unearthed.

Bee wonders if Captain Scott has received any more offers to buy those cedar trees he has planted around the Book-Shop. It is reported on good authority that a member of the Advanced Class, thinking that the advance guard of Christmas Tree calvacade had arrived, tried to place his order at once for the cedar tree on the corner, on the north side of the building.

Lt. Curtis has abandoned that delicate little four-pound pipe he used to smoke, and has returned to his first love—cheroots.

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next Meeting—Dec. 3rd.
Time—2:15.

Next Monday afternoon the Infantry School Woman's Club will meet for an unusually delightful program. Mrs. Ernest S. Barker of the program committee has secured musical talent of exceptional degree and this meeting will be a concert given by the faculty of the Columbus School of Music. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cotton, Mr. Bilbro, Mr. Vonderau, Mrs. Barker and others will appear to render for our pleasure violin, piano, cornet and vocal selections that will be a feast for the soul. A talented young girl of Columbus will do several dramatic readings. After the concert Mrs. James L. Bradley and Mrs. Norman Randolph will entertain at tea.

THE LITERARY CLUB

On last Monday afternoon Mrs. Paul R. Goode presented a brilliant program of contemporary literature having a psychological trend. Each person on the program gave so excellent, so finished a review of her study that no one could feel that one was better than another. It is exceptional to have a program so intensely interesting in content and so skillfully handled throughout.

Virginia Woolf, outstandingly brilliant contemporary English novelist, was introduced to us in her social and political background and allowed to create her place in literature which literally caused her otherwise brilliant background to fade out in comparison. Mrs. Jared I. Wood made this charming introduction and followed it with a review of her latest book, "Orlando," which is a startling, charming fantasy and satire on literary England for three centuries. Orlando is the personification of the English mind, beginning in the days of the Good Queen Bess, going through the Victorian Age with its virility, and ending at the present time when English literary ideas have so lost their rugged masculinity that to carry out her symbolism Virginia Woolf changes Orlando from a dashing, red-blooded cavalier to a middle-aged woman pouring tea. The book is a brilliant resume of literary reactions in England and was most cleverly and interestingly reviewed by Mrs. Wood.

Mrs. John F. Landis reviewed Eugene O'Neill's amazing stage success "The Strange Interlude" which is the big theatrical event of the past year. This play makes a double departure from the usual dramatic technique in that it disregards the unities of time, place and action that have prevailed since time immemorial, and in that it undertakes to give the audience every thought, whether uttered or unuttered, that passes through the minds of its characters. This undertakes more than the soliloquys of Shakespeare, for they reveal only single glimpses of inner consciousness while in this play inner thoughts are as inherent a part of the continuous action of the drama as those voiced in natural manner. This trick, in hands of other than a master craftsman ,would be obviously a failure but O'Neill, master of dramatic technique, is able to put it across principally by means of the inter-relation of the thoughts to the action of the drama. Mrs. Landis gave the story of the drama, reading very effectively high points in the action of the play.

Last on the program was Mrs. Goode who gave a masterful review of Ludwig Lewishon's "The Island Within," that powerful epic of the Jew, tracing his efforts on two continents to become absorbed in the life about him. This penetrating, psychological study of the Jew and the anti-Jew is an absorbing novel of sincere and worthy effort meeting with frustration and defeat. The lines of a Jewish family are traced for several generations from their days in a Polish-Ghetto in Germany to distinguished professional life in New York City. But in the last, as in the earlier generations, the brilliant and successful this young Jewish specialist, married rather happily to a loving Protestant wife, is isolated by his name from the life she is free to enjoy. The tragedy of racial prejudice and the futility of efforts to merge the "Levys" and the "Jones" comes to a climax when plans have to be made for the son of this marriage. The dominant racial characteristics of his father show prominently in the boy and cast his lot.

AMERICAN PLAN NO THREAT

Those who talk the loudest against any manner of preparation for defense are among the group that would be hiding and endeavoring to avoid military duty if events should ever again demand the bugle and call to arms. This is rather well known, yet there is tolerance given the shouters against any sort of preparation, while almost everybody knows that it would be all wrong to simply lay aside every gun to rest and to let every young man in the country to forget the use and handling of weapons. There is not yet the assurance, even in many treaties and agreements, that a defenseless country would be allowed to go its way in peace.

Training camps, instruction of some of the young men in schools and colleges in military matters, the maintenance of the National Guard, Reserve Officers' training corps and the maintenance of a small standing army and navy are necessary things if security of property and person are to be assured. This merely is a fact, and yet it seems necessary to repeat it and emphasize its detail to prevent too great attention to the pacifist who continue their well-meaning but ill-directed campaigns.

It would be well if every young man could receive some military instruction whether at college or in the National Guard. It does not tend to make him militaristic, it need not affect him toward aggression or possible conquest of an enemy, but it will instill a thought for obedience to authority, which is essential in every form of civilization. No community, settlement, village, town or city can exist without someone taking the lead; and no one can effectively give orders without having learned to obey them.

COMPANY OFFICERS CLASS COMPLETE PISTOL COURSE

Map Sketching Finals This Week

The student officers of the company officers classes recently completed the pistol marksmanship course. During the present week final examinations and the completion of a marked sketch holds the undivided attention of ye students. Monday, the entire day was spent on the Fort Benning reservation making a sketch. Lunch was taken to the fields, where officers parked themselves whether on the running board of their car, or some other car, or any other convenient. Every one enjoyed the day to a great extent, from all reports, and except for the cool breezes during the early morning hours, the day "in the field' was considered a big success.

MAJOR JONES LEADS BATTALION ON DRAG HUNT

Pursuant to a request from our good friend Captain Dan Mallan, V. C., the chieftian of the local huntsmen, Major Lloyd E. Jones led the 83rd F. A. Bn. on a "drag" over the hunt course on Thursday morning, November 22nd. All carriages in the Battalion were taken and were so distributed as to cover the entire width of the course with a view to smoothing the surface.

If there are fewer hasty dismountings on future Sunday morning hunts we will feel that our mission was accomplished. There was no kill. One "check" was reported to have occurred on the last slide due, probably, to the failure of a swing driver to lean forward in the saddle.

TO HAVE SERVICE PRACTICE SOON

The Artillery Battalion is preparing to have service practice between the date of December 3 and December 19th. All officers are attending gunnery school under our most recent Fort Sill graduate—Capt. Douglas L. Crane.

Battery "A"

We wish somebody would inform the horse Preston Brand No. 6L64, who went AWOL from the battery corral Saturday night if he will return to the corral all will be forgiven, no charges will be preferred and he shall have all the oats he can eat, as he is causing the men of the battery a lot of trouble in having to get up early and they do not enjoy this game of hide and seek.

1st Sergeant Combs should feel highly complimented as one of Battery B's Corporals mistook him for an officer while out with the Battalion on maneuvers Monday and proceeded to give him the Major's compliments and would he please move his battery behind a certain hill.

The Artillery lost to the Tanks in the annual football game last Saturday everybody knows, but even in defeat this battery has something to be proud of and that is the playing of Privates Penton and Lambert.

The "gunning' 'season for First Class Gunners closed last Saturday and we are proud to announce that Battery A leads the Battalion with a total of fifty-four, and while the Expert Class have not had their examination we feel confident of leading in this class also. All credit is due our officers who stuck with us deflection right or wrong.

We heard that Private (Hank) Drawdy has requested that periscopes be put on tents No. 27 and 28 so that he be able to see who is on Dillboy Street before venturing upon same.

Private Thurston has at last been promoted to the grade of "General—Utility" and was seen as this went to press handing out dog tags.

Sergeant (Snufty) McCann was seen coming from the supply room Monday with a step ladder on his shoulder and upon being asked why replied that he was going to use it to mount Highpockets. Why not get a block and tackle Sarge?

We wish to inform Corporal Thompson of this battery that canteen checks are issued every 10th and 20th of the month and no more alibis will be accepted by Private First Class Coffin.

The Top Sergeant has threatened to break this reporter's neck if his name is used again in connection with blondes or brunettes and we believe the mess sergeant has like ideas, but the freedom of the press must not be denied, and still it is an awful chance to take when Friday is so close to Sunday when the extra stable police go on duty.

We wonder what Sergeant Brown's aversions are to monkeys? Read Darwin's theories before you get a gun Sarge. Still we know the "old homestead aint what she use to be" since they moved Private Coffin and the orderly room both next door.

Private First Class (Brock) Chapman, acting Corporal Gunner, says that lightning doesn't necessarily have to come out of the sky and that the man who first discovered that beefsteak would help a black eye was a benefactor of mankind.

Battery "B"

A new rank has sprung into being in B Battery. It is that of Stable Policeman. Several well known gentlemen of the Battery recently promoted to this rank have been going around with their heads so high that the common soldier is not noticed.

This battery has as good or better horses as may be found in the battalion yet last week while on a road march several carriages failed to get up some of the hills until many pages from Webster had been related to the horses. It is believed if some of the drivers had let their horses alone they would have gone on up the hill.

Corporal Darby has been a very close observer during mounted drill of late and now the reason for his close observance has become known. He has devised some new signals for maneuvers limbered. If you want to know what they are you will have to interview said Corporal.

Battery "C"

We wonder what Sergeant Hall was thinking about when he locked his wall locker and left his key inside of it and then he had to pry the lock off to get into it. Sergeant Barksdale states that he was trying to save the one lone cigarette that he had as they never issued canteen checks until late in the month.

The Battery has a new Ford truck and Private Paschal was seen doing the weeping act because it did away with his job of driving his long ears to the buck board. Don't take it so hard Red, we all sympathize with you and hope that it won't be long before you can again be a mule skinner although we are very proud to be the owner of a brand new Ford truck.

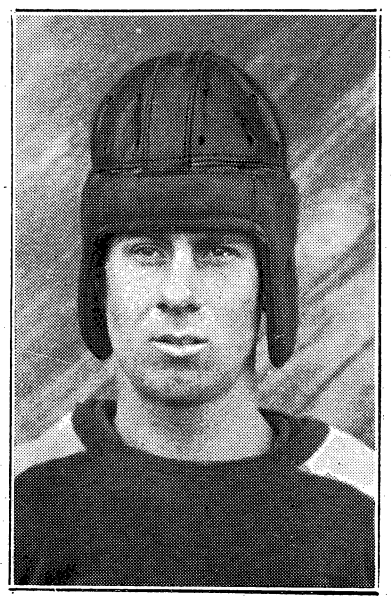
First Sergeant Workman was discharged Saturday and has taken on another stack. Hoo! Ray! boys, we'll still keep the best top kick in the whole army with us.

Sergeant Johnson states that it would take no less than six interpreters, four mathematicians and two geologists to get the correct dope from the drill schedule made out by Corporal Winslow; it is so complicated.

Sergeant Chewning states that Sergeant Hall had the audacity to ask him (a Bald Headed Person) for the use of his pocket comb.

It is reported that Sergeant (Doc) Crandall is going to impersonate Santa Claus, and judging by the evidence of growth of beard on his face we can readily believe the veracity of the report.

ONE OF THE FIGHTING RED JACKETS



This is "Pooch" Derrick of the Combat Train, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, and one of the outstanding red jacket fighters on the gridiron. He was in every mixup in the Tank game last Saturday and no doubt will give a good account of himself in the Second Bats game next Wednesday. The Artillery has always come near spilling the dope bucket in athletics, and Derrick is by no means in the background when the Artillery teams get in action. He is one of the halfbacks, an excellent runner and a strong player on the defense.

24 CANDIDATES ANSWER CALL FOR BASKETBALL PRACTICE MONDAY AFTERNOON

Twenty-four candidates for the Infantry School basket ball team reported to Captain W. C. McCord for practice at the Garrison Gym, Monday afternoon. All of last year's players will be with the team this season with the exception of Willie Sweenie, who is now starring on the 23rd Infantry football team. Sixteen new candidates are out for a regular berth with the Musketeers, and during the next month Major Wm. Roberts, who will manage the Musketeers this season and Capt. W. D. McCord, head coach, will be busy weilding the ax as the squad is cut down to war strength for the 1928 season.

Last season the Infantry School was represented by one of the fastest basketball teams in the country. Opposed by teams made up of the fastest professionin the game, the Musketeers more than held their own. Against Olson's Terrible Swedes, Fat Franz, stubby doughboy, ran wild dribbling rings around the opposing guards; Johnnie Roosma, Musketeer star, sank baskets from all angles to score more points than any two of the mighty Swedes combined.

Several of the youngsters out for the team are going to give a good account of themselves in the rush for regular berths on the Musketeer squad. Most noticable of these is Stamper of the 29th Infantry, playing with the 2nd Battalion Basketeers last season, his basket-sinking was second to Roosma only. With a couple of sharpshooters of the Roosma type teaming together, opposing baskets would be in danger at all times. Other candidates who promise to give trouble to ambitious berth-holders are Lt. Lane, who starred with the Kansas Aggies in 1922-23-24. Lt. Ellison, who starred with the Colgate University cagesters, and Lt. Browning, who was a member of the West Point team in 1922-23-24.

Mrs. Smith: "I'm soliciting for a charity organization. What do you do with your cast-off clothing?"

Mr. Smith: "I hang them up carefully and go to bed. Then in the morning I put them on again."

COACHES INFANTRY SCHOOL BASKETEERS

Capt. Walter D. McCord, student officer at the Infantry School this year, is coaching the doughboy basketball team. Capt. McCord came to Fort Benning with an enviable record in army athletics having coached several teams to championship victories in the past few years. Capt. McCord is a graduate of Grove City (Pa.) College where he starred in baseball, basketball and football during his college days. With such a foundation of actual experience in these sports it is little wonder that he has had much success in the coaching thereof during his army career. Several years ago he coached the Freshmen at Georgetown University, and in 1924 he had charge of the football and basketball teams at Fort Benj. Harrison, Indiana, both of which made an excellent record.

Captain McCord

In 1926 he coached the championship basketball team of the Pacific side of the Panama Canal Department. He also coached the baseball team at Fort Clayton, C. Z., for one season.

The opening game of the local season will be held on the night of Dec. 17th, when the Inf. School team will meet the Birmingham "Y". Capt. McCord has nothing to say with respect to this game only that he isn't taking any chances on defeat for the opener. In other words, he has decided not to become over-confident even though the team looks good at the present time. He wants to start off the season in the victory column and if we're not badly mistaken, the opening game of the season will see a fast team representing the Infantry School with the probability of Capt. McCord breaking loose with a few new tactics in the cage game. This is the second team at Fort Benning he has coached as he put out a winning baseball team last spring. Basketball fans at Fort Benning, and there are many, may look forward with pleasure to the coming season at the Infantry School.

A young man arrived home after having received an M. A. degree for graduate work at college.

"I suppose Robert will be looking for a Ph. D. next," said a friend of the family to the father.

"No," was the reply, "he will be looking for a J. O. B."

SOLDIERS HAVE DEPOSITED MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WITH GOVERNMENT

Since the act of Congress May 15, 1872, authorizing Soldiers' Deposits, 1,864,493 soldiers have made deposits with the government totaling $56,466.372.58. Of these Soldiers' Deposits, 1,775,704 have been repaia a total of $56,499,358.19 which includes an accrued interest of $3,591,019.66.

During the fifty-five years of its authorization, the Soldiers' Deposits has always been popular with the enlisted men of the Regular Army. During the past fiscal year, the number of soldiers who have made deposits with the government was 23,260. This is a slight increase over the number of depositors in 1927, 22,793 and a marked increase over the number of depositors in 1926, 10,196. It is interesting to note that during 1916-1920, including the World War, the number of soldier deposits reached 351,095.

The number of depositors paid during the past fiscal year reached 19,132, a decrease over the 27,633 repaid in 1927. During the four years, 1916-1920, including the World War, the total deposits repaid, including principal and interest, reached the highest mark for any four year period with $12,239,233.74.

JUNIOR OFFICER'S LYCEUM

The third meeting of the Junior Officers' Lyceum was held on November 24, 1928. Instead of taking up a new subject Colonel Pendleton gave the officers an opportunity to ask questions on matters pertaining to his two previous talks.

A conference, similar to this one, is contemplated after every two or three talks, in which may details not covered in the original lectures can be discussed.

WALKER SMITH WINS EASILY OVER HANK JUSTICE

Pinkey Phillips Mixes In Fast Company In Whirlwind Semi-Final

When the stellar bout of Tuesday night's fight program was changed from a ten to an eight-round fight, Walker Smith, Benning light-heavy, was surely robbed of a knockout over Hank Justice.

For the first six rounds, Justice held Smith off with his longer reach, or tied him up at close range. Justice landed only one telling blow during the fight, a right swing that caught Smith flush on the jaw in the second round.

In the seventh round Smith tore into Justice with a vicious two handed attack that Justice could not stop. Smith's short rights and lefts to the stomach hurt, the end of the seventh found Justice in a bad way. Smith came out in the eighth to finish his man, but though badly bruised and battered the lanky fighter managed to weather the storm and be on his feet at the final bell.

Stratton Smith, Terrible Tanker, and Zach Taylor of the Engineers, opened the program with a slashing three rounder. Both boys worked at top speed with honors even until near the end of the third round, Smith snapped a short right to the solar plexus that dropped Taylor for the count. Red Lawson of the 24th, came out in new scarlet trunks, he celebrated the occasion by knocking out Nervous Sweat of Albany, Ga., in the third round.

"Payday" Causey of the 29th Inf. and Grump Gordy of the Q'Emmers, furnished a three-round slug-fest that was a crowd pleaser. A draw verdict was popular. A return match is requested by all who witnessed the bout. "Buddie" Brault, doughboy bantam, took a slashing decision over Kid Walburn of LaGrange in four rounds of fast fighting. Both boys are fast and hard hitters but the rugged doughboy had all the better of the argument in the closing rounds.

Danny Davis, Benning lightweight, and Rip Howard, of LaGrange, fought six fierce rounds with Howard being awarded a questionable decision. Danny staggered the visitor in the early rounds with clean smashes to the jaw but the lanky boy always came back for more. His aggressiveness in the final round probably earning him the decision.

The semi-final was the outstanding bout of the evening. Pinkey Phillips, Greencord bantam, was matched with Nick Rawlson of Montgomery, Phillips crawled through the ropes to gaze upon the image of Steve Stetson, the boy who has terrorized the little fellows from coast to coast during the past twelve months. Pinkey gave Steve the once over, sniffed once or twice in real Pinkey fashion and prepared for action. Fighting his fourth professional fight, Pinkey surprised even his staunchest supporters with the fight he put out. Although dropping the decision, Pinkey was ready and willing to mix at all times, in fact in a whirlwind finish, Pinkey had the visitor fighting a defensive fight at the final bell.

Captain Wilson, Benning fight promoter, announced after the fights, that Maxie Peltz, the boy who beat Gunner DePratt in Savannah sometime ago would meet Willie Ptomey here December 11, 1928.

PTOMEY AND BOB GODWIN BATTLE TO DRAW AT DAYTONA BEACH

"Weary Willie" Ptomey, all-service middleweight champion, fought a ten-round draw with Bob Godwin at Daytona Beach, Fla., Tuesday night.

The mythical southern middleweight title is now claimed by Ptomey and Godwin, each fighter holding victories over all contenders. The fight Tuesday night was to have settled the argument, but a draw verdict can only mean another meeting between the fighters to settle the dispute.

SEVERAL FOOTBALL GAMES FOR NEXT WEEK

Several football teams at the Infantry School will be seen in action the coming week.

Sunday aftrnoon the First Bats' second string will clash with the famous Girard bandits at the Doughboy Stadium. The doughboys are confident of victory and will reap revenge for the defeat of last Sunday at the hands of the Bandits.

Wednesday afternoon the Crimson Tide of the 83rd Field Artillery will roll against the front wall of the mighty Kellys at the stadium. Though doped to lose, the fighting red jackets have turned old dope bucket over so many times in the past that its mighty hard to forecast what will really happen next Wednesday. Although losing to the Tankers last week, the Artillerymen put up a mighty fine game and were in the battle till the last blast of the whistle. Those who want to see a real battle on the gridiron will not be disappointed in next Wednesday's game.

FREEBOOTERS AND STUDENTS TIE WHILE GUNNERS DOWN DOUGHBOYS IN SUNDAY POLO GAMES AT FRENCH FIELD

Hard riding Students and Freebooters battled fiercely for supremacy during six fast chukkers of polo at French Field Sunday afternoon. The game hung in the balance until the end of the final period, the finish finding the score deadlocked at 5 to 5.

As is always the case in the pre-Christmas games before the squads have been cut down, there were numerous changes in the line-ups and several line-ups were presented by the teams.

The second game between the Red Legs and Demonstrationists, was a hard fought contest with the Artillerymen winning 6 to 3. In the second contest many changes were made during the game, each team allowing every member of their squads to take part in the game.

Brigadier General Edgar T. Collins, commandant of the Infantry School, was at the field, during the period between the games he was saluted by the players.

Scoring in the Freebooter-Student game was as follows: Lyman 2, Oge 2, Sweet 1; Harris 2, Smith 1, Burress 1, Forsythe 1.

In the Artillery-Doughboy game, goals were divided as follows: Artillery: Guernsey 3, Murphy 1, Grubbs 1, Strobehn 1; Infantry, Strickler 2, Skelton 1.

FORMER BENNING OFFICER STARS AT POLO IN FAR EAST

According to a recent issue of the Sentinel, a service paper published at Tientsin, China, by the 15th Infantry, Capt. J. A. Nichols, formerly stationed at Fort Benning, was one of the leading stars in the final tournament game between Tientsin and Pekin polo teams. Capt. Nichols served at Fort Benning from 1921 to 1927 and during this time was on the following duties here: 1921-22, student basic course; 1922-24, instructor; 1924-26, aide-de-camp to Generals Wells and Collins; 1926-27, student company officers course.

A part of the item which refers to Capt. Nichols is herewith quoted:

"The Forbes trophy was returned to Tientsin when the Tientsin Interport polo team scored a clear cut victory over the Peking team by the score of 7 to 6. A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the game and after the final chukker Captain Nichols, captain of the Tientsin team, accepted the trophy from Madame Martel, who was introduced by Col. Smallwood. The tr phy will be retained by Tientsin until Peking can win it again. The match next year will be played in Tientsin."

Boss: "Yes, I want an office boy. Do you smoke?"

Boy: "No, thank you sir, but I don't mind having an ice cream cone."

EQUITATION FOR ENLISTED MEN

Redeeming one of his recruiting campaign promises, Uncle Sam has notified all mounted enlisted men of the regiment to get "hosses" and report to Major T. F. Taylor, at the 29th Infantry corral for the purposes of receiving instruction in equitation. Classes will be held Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursday and Fridays at 1:45 P. M. "Dominate your hoss, Pete." "Ride 'em, Cowboy."

1st Battalion Hdqrs. Co.

A debating team has been organized in this company composed of the one and only original Sgt. Perkins, Pavalosky the Turk, and Freeman the Georgian. They send a riging challenge to any other team in the Post and are willing to debate any subject. As Sgt. Perkins is well versed in all subjects and is ably assisted by Sgt. Freeman and Pvt. Pavolosky the team should prove a strong one.

The team is also going to put on a debate on the next stunt night at the Post Theater. The subject being "Why, where and how is Mississippi." Sgt. Perkins will take the affirmative side and Sgt. Freeman and Pvt. Pavalosky will take the negative. Another interesting subject to be debated will be "Why ducks like Mississippi." This will give patrons of the Post theater an opportunity to know Sgt. Perkins, whose ingenuity has been the wonder of all who know him and whose intellect is seldom equaled. Sgt. Perkins is at home at the Service Club after 4:00 P. M. daily. Please see him for details as to dates, etc.

2ND BATTALION NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS SCHOOL

The work in the non-commissioned officers school in companies of the Battalion has progressed through the platoon in drill and command. All corporals have now commanded a larger unit than the squad and will be well qualified to handle the larger units. The instruction in Map Reading and use of the compass and the close relation to Scouting and Patrolling has been covered in all companies.

Hdqrs. Co., 2nd Battalion

Our office force has increased greatly, and the worthy most honorable battalion sergeant-major, 1st Sergeant Harvey is now in our midst, helping to keep the files clean and the work up-to-date. It was a big job to get him, as good men are always hard to get, and we are wondering if regimental headquarters will function as smoothly now that he has left.

We have always claimed to have the best company in the regiment and to strengthen this claim most of the men that have been discharged in the past year have re-enlisted, save one, Private Boozer, late battalion runner, who was discharged November 14th after one year's honorable and faithful service. Boozer said that he was tired of being a Doughboy and announced his intentions of joining the Air Service. Let us hope that he never forgets us or his parachute, when he wants to drop in.

Some men after being on a nice long furlough, come back satisfied with the pleasures they have enjoyed and are willing to settle down and soldier again, but we have one man or rather a sergeant, who keeps wanting to go back to Alabama, his Whippet car, and his W——. We wont mention any names but his initials are Terry.

The undersigned accompanied the Second Battalion football team on its second trip to Auburn, Ala., and saw the Kelly-Franz combination completely outgeneral, outplay the Auburn reserves, who were assisted in the fourth quarter by the Rats. The 2nd Batt. team looks good this year. The 2nd Battalion reserves showed their stuff last Sunday by beating the Girard Bandits at the Memorial Stadium in Columbus, 16 to 0.

Now that it is Thanksgiving time, it is appropriate to announce that we are thankful and fortunate in this company, to the Bakers and Cooks school for graduating our future mess sergeant (Pvt. Agee). Corporal Holland can now take his furlough with the assurance that the mess will be taken care of properly during his sojourn in the swamps of Lousey-ana.

"Squarehead" Boyka, our dining-room Orderly, has left for the big state of New York for a sixty-day furlough. Have a good time, Metro, did you drop Patterson off at the "Smoky-City?"

This company is fortunate in having a literary genius in the person of Cpl. Fayne C. Carnes. A man of exceptional qualities as a dramatist, who if he were only known on Broadway, would outshine the brightest stars. We only wish that these news notes could reach the New York Times, so his name could be brought before the public and the critics. We are sorry that Carnes is to leave us, next spring, for we are sure that with the publicity that we are giving him he is bound to receive the call of the bright lights and success.

Company "A"

The long monotony of dry dusty weather was broken today by rain and the re-enlistment of one of "A" Company's famous "hash" slingers, Luther A. Thrasher. He is off for ninety days in his little "lizzie". Good luck, Thrasher!

Promotions for this month are: Private 1st Cl. Reaves appointed Corporal; Privates Madden, Woolverton, Rickert, appointed Privates 1st Cl.

Company "B"

Quite a bit of interest has been displayed in the Company over the rifle stock competition, also no small amount of argument. First Sergeant Brown has decreed that the men of the platoon with the best stocks at the Saturday inspection will not be placed on K. P. on holidays during the ensuing week, also that the man with the best stock in the Company will not have to stand reveille for a week. On last Saturday the First Platoon were adjudged the winners by the inspectors, Sgts. Brown and Bierman, and Corporal Kern, the man with the best stock in the Company. But here's the rub. Corporal Stansbury who did not stand the inspection claimed he had the best rifle. Both rifles were re-inspected by Sgt. Brown, but it was finally decided that the decree should stand as is, and that it was just Corporal Stansbury's hard luck not to be present at inspection. There is still a debate going on unofficially as to who had the best rifle, and the two Corporals are very nearly being goaded into buying rosewood stocks and to hand polish them for next Saturday's inspection. But, when the time comes, we shall see what we shall see.

We have fourteen new men assigned to the Company, two of them being previous service men. We hope that they will soon realize that they are honored by being in the best Company in the Regiment, and that they will soon catch our Esprit de Corps and pull with us for a better and more efficient Company than it is now. There is no greater contentment that a soldier may have than to see his outfit becoming better and better every day, because of coordinated effort with his comrades to make it that way. It is our own outfit; we have worked hard to make it what it is and its up to us and the new men that are arriving to work harder still in order to better it, and in order to keep it in high gear.

Three new Corporals were recently made in the Company, to-wit: Privates first class Holden, E. O. Bevlin, and E. W. Bevlin. The former is one of the best shots in the Company with both rifle and auto-rifle, while the latter, as we all know, literally carried the message to Garcia at the track meet.

Company "C"

Corporal Grier was discharged per E. T. S., on November 18th and re-enlisted for this organization. He departed Monday for Dublin, Georgia, where he will spend his furlough of ninety days. Corporal Grier is an excellent soldier and instructor and the company is glad to have him here for another enlistment.

Corporal Grahl returned Sunday from Waynesville, North Carolina, where he spent a furlough of sixty days, he reports a wonderful time and lots of wine, etc.

Pvt. J. H. Smith decided he would never get anywhere, by disturbing his buddies every morning, so he bravely approached the Supply Sergeant and demanded a rifle in exchange for his bugle.

Pfc. Owings, our Recreation Orderly, requisitioned a pair of shoes, recently, size No. 14. He claims his feet have grown larger since he has taken charge of the Recreation Room. (I wonder why his head did not swell).

Sgt. d'Entremont was seriously injured in an automobile accident, recently, when he collided with a Q. M. truck. Due to the fact that Sgt. d'Entremont was walking and the truck was loaded, the result was that Sgt. d'Entremont is now in the hospital. He is improving rapidly and has requested permission to operate a wheel-chair on the reservation. The writer is sure that this request will be granted as Sgt. d'Entremont is an expert with the wheel-chair. He is familiar with all rules and regulations, concerning the traffic on the post.

Company "D"

The "D" boys have been a very proud bunch of men for the past two weeks and they are rightly justified in their pride. Who would not be proud of such a man as Private 1st Cl. Willard R. Reddock? Private Reddock not only carried away the honors for D Company but for the post as a whole, in the track meet that was held here on Monday, November 12th. He not only won the medal for taking the most number of points, but received a special commendation from the commandant of the Infantry School, General Collins, and our comamnding officer, Colonel Pendleton.

Some of the boys have already put in their prices for the K. P. for Christmas Holidays. There are signs of good cheap K. P.'s, as the bids are as low as three dollars even this far from the holidays.

Company "E"

The following men have returned from pleasant furloughs from their homes: Marquette, Jordan and Pecot.

Company "E" is sure getting plenty of men these days. We are four men over strength and still they keep coming. Men discharged during the week were Private Humphries on dependency. Corporal Schlotterbeck seems to be on top of the fence these days about buying out, he started to buy out about a month ago or so, but suddenly changed his mind, but now he has put in again and we are just wondering if he is going to change his mind again. We sure hope that he does change his wind for we hate to loose a good man.

The Post Track Meet was held November 12th, but was not so good for Company "E", in the line of trophies. We did get in on one event, the relay race, and won first on the Battalion Team. Private Liebel of Company "E" won a gold medal for one of the winners in the Relay Race. Next year we expect to cop everything that is run off.

Corp. (Mayor) Millikan is somewhat of a fisherman these days. He borught in a fish last Saturday and it weighed about two pounds. We wonder what kind of bait he is using to catch them that large for Corporal Clay goes down and spends the entire day fishing and comes back with only a hand full of minnows. Tell us how you do it Mayor Millikan.

"Our Mighty Man" Hoot Gibson (one of our second cooks) was going to transfer but he thought the situation over and decided that "E" Company is the best. So he is going to stick around. Our old Ex-Mess Sergeant (Daniel Pratt) has decided to leave "E" Company and try a new place for a change. We hate to see you leave us Dan, and hope that you will like your new outfit. We are getting about two orderleis out of every three every day these days, on duty at Regimental Headquarters, which shows that the boys are putting out and are doing good work.

Corporal Poisso was highly commended by the Commanding Officer on his high standard of duty as a recruit instructor last week. It was highly appreciated by Corporal Poisso and the members of Company "E".

The demonstration put on by the 2nd Bn. of a Battalion in Defense was voted a success by all the men of this Company except Private Ward who claimed that the Reserves should have been in the woods out of the sun, that the sun was so hot he could not sleep out in the sage where old Sol could smile down on him, and the wind could not get to him for the tall sage.

Company "F"

Cpl. John H. Barnes has re-enlisted for this organization and is now on furlough. Cpl. "Slats" Barnes came to this company in 1925 from foreign service and he has many friends throughout the Regiment that wish him the best of luck.

A Letter

Dear Agnes:

When you get this letter you will find that I am in the Army. Will try and write you once a week and let you know how I like this war as I hear them say. When I came here they made me stay fourteen days in Recruit Center where I pulled my first K. P. That's what they call the boys when they have to work in the kitchen. I am in my Co. now which is Co. F The boys all tell me it is the best Co. in the Regiment I hope they are right. Heard some of the boys say Cpl. Miller came back from furlough he must have been glad to get back as the first thing he asked about when he came in was what time do they feed around here, they also say Slum Burner Parm is back for duty from furlough, he is the best looking cook we have. There is twentyone of us recruits taking recruit drill, and believe me they make us shine, drill and double time. Cant say much about the none coms and officers as I dont know them but will tell you about them later.

Your boy friend

John.

Company "G"

The following named men of the Company have returned from furlough: Sgt. Eugene G. Wiggins, Sgt. Clabe Sherman, Cpl. James D. Tate, Cpl. Jim M. Hays, Cpl. Lucian G. Schmitz, Cpl. Floyd A. Smith, Pfc. Louis C. Smith, and Pvt. J. D. Forbus. They all reported they had a nice time. Sgt. Sherman said he went so far back in Alabama to where they still use a mark on the ground to tell the time by the sun.

Sgt. John M. Holland says, "A tug of war is not so bad if you got a pull with the rope."

A certain recruit was over at the Old Hospital getting examined. The examining officer said to Recruit Moore, "Have you any scars on you?" Moore replied, "No sir, but I've got some cigarettes."

The Company congratulates the men who took part in the 2nd Bn. Field Meet. Fine work fellows.

The sure knew their stuff when they picked a platoon fro m"G" Company, 29th Infantry, to parade in the city of Columbus on Armistice Day.

The new corporals in the Company are sure putting out fine work. Cpls. Price and Covington. We congratulate both of you, Coporals.

Corporal Roy R. Wilson has been in the hospital for quite a time and we are glad to know that he is getting along nicely.

Warset Simpson.

Company "H"

Being the official Comapny Griper, it falls my lot to come to the orderly room once each week and pound out a few items that might be called news notes. However, one must stretch the imagination considerably if they are to be called such. I have often thought that I would try some day to make a story of the many different facial expressions observed around the company on a real busy morning. I have always tried not to shirk any one, but yet I could not possibly bring myself to say too many things about our First Sergeant on those cold mornings, and then if I were to talk about Sgt. Cody, why I would never get through paying for clothing and equipment. The only man that I could talk about and get away with it, is the mess sergeant because he has to feed the company, and being a bona fide member of the company, I would naturally be fed. Just rest easy though, I am not going to talk about "Dog Face" Macauley.

The painters have been busy in our Mess Hall for the past week, and they have surely left their markings. Part of it is on the back of my blouse. However, they have made a great improvement in there, and it is almost pleasant to sit and not eat. Just look around like Corp. Pieters.

From the last issue of Recruits, we were allowed to draw a full amount (and some think that we got more). Of the bunch as a whole, I must say that it is the best group that we have had in a long time. All in all, we have about fifty men in the company with less than three months service.

Being rushed for time this week, I will have to promise more for the next time, and ring off with "what have you?"

ADDITIONAL 29th INF. NOTES

COLONEL PENDLETON GIVES TALK

The Regimental Commander, Colonel Pendleton, was invited by the Assistant Commandant, The Infantry School, to give a short talk to the Advanced Class, Thursday, November 22.

The subject of Colonel Pendleton's talk was "The Re-enforced Regiment in Attack". As a basis for his talk, the Colonel took the recent demonstration by the 29th Infantry and explained the various factors, which had a bearing on the regimental commander's decision.

Commenting on the work of the regimental staff in the issuance of the attack order, the Colonel stated that only 17 minutes were needed to issue the regimental attack order. This was done by means of sketch maps. Umpires checked the issuance of orders by subordinate commander down to the last corporal, and found that the transmission of orders was excellent.

The Colonel's talk was enjoyed thoroughly by faculty members as well as by all members of the Advanced Class.

Company "B"

The company congratulates the Bevlin twins on their promotion to corporals. What we would like to know is how did the company commander know how to determine who is to be senior. 'Tis said he flipped a coin. Perhaps they will swap turns and no one will be the wiser.

Hdqr. Company

At the request of the many P. P.s (Publicity Privates) in the company, who crave their name in blazing headlines this little news item is duly dedicated. May they R. I. P. (revel in publicity) for the rest of their days, 'nuf sed.

Darwin's reason for argument, "Tarzan" McElyea, now rules supreme in all the glory of a dining room orderly, heaven help the kitchen police now because "Tarzan" won't.

Pvt. Watson has suffered severe eye strain ever since the Bon Ton Revue has been in the place. Strange thing, no one seems to be able to ascertain just what may have caused this trouble. I would suggest that instead of watching his P's and Q's he should try watching his I's.

At last the company has come to life and started a contest that has all the guys on pins and needles, a popularity contest has been started among the freshmen and seniors, Pvt. Lungrin being the president of the freshmen and Pvt. N. R. Wright leading the seniors, with the seniors having the brooms at their end of the room it looks like a sweeping victory for them, however, you can never tell what those freshmen will do next so interest is at fever heat (when the steam is turned on).

Corporal Devoice, over twenty and sharpshooter, has inaugurated a "Clean Up Week," at the expense of the freshmen who are up in arms over this calamity, claiming that the seniors are left out of all the work because they kept score for the corporal when he qualified for that extra three iron men in his pay. The company detective, Midget Hafley, has been assignd to the case and reports that the claims of the freshmen will be investigated, and if found true Cpl. Devoice will be made to buy each of the freshmen a fur lined Frigidaire.

Pvt. Robertson, the big dot and dash men from the Radio Section, was drawing pictures the other night and he inquired if you spelled hunt with one or two dogs. All depends on the game, was the answer given him, and he is still puzzled as to whether the deer was caught or not.

R. T. M.

Howitzer Co.

The Howitzer Company won last place in track meet but have bucked up quite a bit at present. It seems that we have the only soccer team in captivity and owing to that fact are the undefeated Regimental Champions. However there is a rumor afloat that D Company has one of those things but until such time as they show their mettle we proclaim ourselves the champions.

"Nig" Arter who started on a non-stop flight from Columbus on his "Harley" about Nov. 1, has arrived safe but not sound. He reports that the roads are in good condition but hastens to warn all would-be motor-cyclists against taking the Hospital Detour.

The stream of "Johns" never ceases and Cpl. McGovern who drew most of them has ordered a little white cap plus the other equipment necessary for his duties and will probably be operating at maximum efficiency by the latter part of the week.

Our dear friend and beloved Sgt. "Cripp" Yearty is now reclining, peacefully we suppose, in the hospital. One glance at the guard detail was fatal.

Cpl. Cunningham.

Service Co.

Among the new additions to the Company is Pvt. Bonnell, formerly a caretaker of circus ring horses. He will be given an opportunity to show what he can do with army stock.

Sgt. William H. Roper still continues his adventures in Columbus in the company of Corp. Kozak. These two have become as thick as brothers, and are, so dame rumor states, cutting a wide swath in Columbus society.

Our big Hammer and Nail man, Sgt. Davis, will bring to completion in the next few days the stables for the Special Units that he has been working on for several weeks. In addition to being a wizard with the hammer and saw he is rapidly developing into an Auction Bridge expert.

Pvt. 1st Cl. Lemon, having returned from furlough states that while army life isn't all it might be, it still has the edge on civilian life.

Company "F"

"Hi" Chambers, one of the Regiment's most handsome men, has climbed another notch in the ranks—to the grade of Sergeant. Let not thy wanton wiles destroy the emblematic purity of the Company, Sergeant Chambers.

Another well-deserved promotion was that of "Coswell" Mays to Corporal. He is reputed to be a soldierin' fool and the members of his squad are advised to watch their steps.

Teh new Privates First Class on the Company Roster are Faulk, Shumaker, Collins and Percy Chambers. Recruits will benefit by taking these men as examples.

"Slats" Barnes, tallest Corporal in the Post, has decided to stay with "F" Co. for three more years. Atta boy Slats, we're glad to have you with us.

The writer has been informed that "Dad" Singletary is ready to meet "Nub" Hicks at any time—with any weapon, be it pinochle cards, bricks or machine guns.

I. L. Hawkins announces that the fashionable neckwear for Tenor Banjoists this season will be candied striped four-in-hands. Red seems to be the predominating color—judging from the flaming cravat worn by "Hawk".

Speaking of fashion plates, the well-dressed men of this community generally use Tommy Thompson as a model. Tommy's slogan is "a new suit every month."

Cpl. Miller has seemed rather downhearted lately. It is rumored that he was mixed up in a case of mistaken identity.

K. Clark.

Company "G"

The Company had their pictures taken last Saturday morning and Pvt. McGoewn forgot to take his hat off. Mack said that it was an excellent picture just the same.

Sgt. Brown, one of the oldest and best Mss Sgts. in the post, has rejoined the Company from a well earned furlough around McAndrews Range.

A few Recruits have joined the Company, and they look fine. Let's help them along.

A change has been made in the line of Corporals. Private First Class Isaac Landry was promoted to Corporal.

Corporals Jim M. Hays and James D. Tate have been discharged recently, due to expiration of term of service.

Sgt. Wiggins said, "Men we will have to get some saw-dust to put on the floor to keep the dust down." Private Woods said, "Sgt., where can we get the saw dust?" Sgt. Wiggins said, "Uuse your head, Woods."

The following named men have just returned from furlough: Sgt. Brown, Cpl. Hodge, Pfc. Wofford and Pfc. Taylor. Reports are that they had a nice time.

Cpl. Roy R. Wilson and Pfc. Max Petsch are in the hospital and we are glad to hear that they are getting along so nicely. We hope to see them back with us soon.

Cpl. Spires to Pfc. Craig, "When I was only three years old I played on the trombone." Pfc. Craig replied, "That's nothing, Cpl., when I was only six months old, I played on the linoleum."

Cook Davis to Barber Manley, "I thought you told me you weren't going to smoke cigarettes any longer." Manley replied, "I'm not Davis, these are the same size."

Sgt. Sherman said to Cpl. Josey, "You'll never find any crooks near the Panama Canal." "Why not Sgt.?" "They are afraid of the locks."

New recruit to the drill instructor, "I'm a little stiff from tennis." Hard-boiled Sgt., "I don't care where you are from."

Cpl. Blankenship is just second in command of the beans now.

"What are these tickets I found in my husband's pockets?"

"Your husband is an archeologist. These tickets are evidence of a lost race."

Small Boy: How do you account for your football prowess?

Hero: Well, from the day I was born it was just bawl, bawl, bawl.

Co-ed: An owl's a funny looking thing, ain't it?

Student: Yeah, they look so human.

OFFICERS SCHOOL

Under the guidance of Majors Fletcher and Schmidt the 24th Officers School is moving right along.

Last Friday we entered upon an uncontrolled map problem, six on a side This was apparently the opportunity that most of the students had been waiting for, inasmuch as it involved the occupation and defense of Fort Benning they seemed to know a great deal about the situation.

It happened that the Blues of Georgia and the Reds of Alabama were at war. The Blues had abandoned Fort Benning and were over at Ochilee where he was trying to hold the railroad with a small force that was too weak to do more than defend the place, about two companies of him. We, the Reds, had a regiment and had just crossed the beautiful clear waters of the Chattahoochee and occupied Fort Benning. This was an interesting experience for us—this first view of the enemy country. We found some of his equipment left by him in his precipitate leave-taking which amazed us, and we sent this information back to G2 as quickly as possible.

It was apparent that from the state of things as we found them, that the poor enemy was in no-wise ready for a war. We found huge slow moving tanks, weighing upwards of fifty tons, which he had been unable to take away. These huge monsters, as estimated by our engineers, could move at most about four miles per hour, they carried several machine guns and a cannon. We discovered that a soldier could walk up to one of these while it was moving and place a charge of explosive on top of it and thus destroy the tank while it was in action.

They had left many small tanks, these were capable of somewhat faster speed than the large ones, they could move at a maximum of six miles per hour. Most of these had been left because their obsolete engines could not be started.

We had to smile when we saw these archaic weapons. Of course we thought of our own tanks capable of making forty-five miles per hour on the road, and at least thirty across country.

He (the enemy) had a most peculiar way of transporting his material. It was plain to be seen that he did not know much about motor transportation, everything in this Fort had been pulled along by horses, some of the old-timers of the Red Army will remember this animal, he, if you can recall, could travel over good roads—pulling a small load—at three miles per hour, and could make at most thirty miles in one day. We older officers had to ride them in our younger days. The horse requires at least three men to wait on him, and also requires an enormous amount of food. A few of these animals may still be found on some of the poor farms in the extreme south part of the Red Empire.

We could not find where the officers and their families lived in the Blue Garrison. There were some excellent barracks for the soldiers, but unless the officers lived in the small wooden shacks we could not locate their quarters.

On account of the condition of the roads of this post we were compelled to move around it and cross a swamp with our forces, all our cars of course are equipped with the latest snubbing devices, but our engineers advised going around.

While in this camp some of our men dug up a great many of the Blues training film. These had been used by him in training his soldiers. As the theater at the place had not been damaged, we took some of these films over there and looked them over on the screen. We were doomed to disappointment, they were only films of the time of the Great War in Europe, which some of the older officers will remember. We could see that the Blues had been using them for training purposes, and we felt sad.

We found that the wires our engineers had cut near the city of Columbus had completely disrupted the Blue Garrison and had caused him to abandon the place. These wires supplied electric current for the camp. Again our thoughts went back to our own country where no wires were visible anywhere.

The solution of the problem was left up to the Red side of the class. They, one and all, voted that owing to the archaic equipment and methods used by the Biues the war would not be worth while, so we called it off and went home.

At 11:30 almost any day you may see tacked on the bulletin board in 24th Infantry Headquarters the following notice: "Vegetables today, for members of of the regimental garden." We get radishes, we get turnips, we get yams and we get about everything that will grow in the ground at this time of year. And all this from a garden that was begun just before frost fell the first time.

Captain Helsley is in charge of it and spends all his spare time there. We do not in the least mind boasting about this garden, for it has literally "delivered the goods," since Captain Helsley took to the soil.

He has done some remarkable things down there. One time he appealed to the members of the garden to donate about $20 to purchase radish seed, this we did, and two days later grown radishes were distributed to members of the garden. This puzzled us a little, some few were prone to ask questions, but don't think they gleaned much satisfaction from Captain Helsley. None of course doubted the ability of the officer to grow radishes in that length of time, but they were curious to know how it was done.

Under the direction of Captain Wm. B. Wilson our new barracks are nearing completion, not that we have them nearly finished, but we are nearer the finish end than we are the beginning end. Or what we really mean is; that the barracks are so far along that to finish them will not require the amount of work that we have already put in on them to get them to the point where the same amount of work would be required to—or rather, not be required to require their finish before the same amount of work, that is ;to finish them before——before——— before———.

TANKERS WIN OVER FIGHTING ARTILLERYMEN 19 TO 0

Red Jackets Put Up Fine Game Against Benning Champs

A fighting Crimson Tide rolled up from the 83rd Field Artillery to meet the drive of the Terrible Tanker pig-skin warriors on the football field at the Doughboy Stadium, last Saturday afternoon.

To Knubb Bennett, tearing, plunging Tanker halfback, and Bobbie Brown's perfect interference with Bennett carrying the ball, go the credit for the Tanker victory.

Artillery tackles slipped around the ends or sneaked through the much heralded Tanker line, as water through a sieve. During the first quarter the Tankers drove deep into Artillery territory but were unable to cross the Gunner's last white strip.

In the second quarter the Tankers started a drive with Bennett carrying the ball on every play. Time after time Bennett with Brown leading the play, ploughed into the Artillery line for yardage. Bennett drove through center from the 5-yard line for the touchdown. The Gunners unloosed an aerial attack with McAuliffe passing and Derrick receiving that netted long gains but the Tankers stemmed the attack with their goal line unblemished.

The Tankers scored a touchdown in the third quarter when Bennett followed Stansbury and Brown through the Gunner defense to gallop 28 yards for a touchdown.

Bennett scored the final touchdown in the last quarter after a long pass had been completed, Bennett to Vallery, that put the oval on the Gunners' 12-yard line, Bennett rammed center for 8 yards, on the next Play Bennett ploughed through center for the final touchdown.

Loui Joris with his educated toe, slammed the pigskin midway between the goal posts for the extra point on Bennett's first touchdown. Louie was injured a moment later and taken from the game, and without Loui's toe the Tankers failed to add the extra points with the last two touchdowns.

In a final effort to score against the Tankers, McAuliffe turned loose a flurry of passes in the final quarter, but was unable to send a runner across the coveted line. With one minute to play, McAuliffe shot a long pass to Derrick, who almost got away, but for the watchful eye of Bennett who clipped him on the Tanker's 35-yard line.

The entire Tanker team showed a complete reversal of what was expected, everyone expected to see the Tankers flash a stonewall line with an average backfield, instead the Tanker backfield looked like a million dollars, while the much heralded line gave poor protection against opposing tackles.

With only four days practice the Galloping Gunners surprised spectators and Tankers with the speed and power of their offensive drive in the opening half. The passing of McAuliffe was the best seen on the stadium football field this season, many of his passes that were muffed by the receivers being accurately thrown.

COL. PEYTON TRANSFERRED TO CALIFORNIA STATION

War Department orders received here several days ago to the effect that Colonel P. B. Peyton, chief of First Section of the Academic Department had been transferred to Fort Rosecrans ,Calif., was received with universal regret by officers here. Col. Peyton has been at the Infantry School for sveral years. Last year he was chief of Fourth Section. Mrs. Peyton is a well known writer of army stories and this month's Pictorial Review carried a story of army life having life at Fort Benning as the basis for the story. Col. Peyton will sail from New York on December 28. He will be assigned to the Sixth Brigade.

Any maybe you don't think that all of the dishes were kept full at all times—they were.

A great many of the friends of the members of the Infantry School Detachment turned out for the big feed and the air in the dining hall was gay with chatter. It was a most successful affair.

Be that as it may, if all Thanksgiving Day dinners are as delicious and palatable as this, then here is a reservation for next year's Turkey Day dinner with the Infantry School Green Cords.

CAPT. DAUGHTRY HAS NEW OFFICE

Capt. George O. A. Daughtry, personnel officer of Headquarters, Infantry School, has moved his office to that formerly occupied by the Finance Officer in Headquarters Building. Heretofore his office had been to the right of the entrance to Headquarters Building.

Why did he have a profile picture taken for graduation?

He was too lazy to shave the other side of his face.

THREE PLAYS GIVEN LAST WEEK

The second series of plays by the club was presented last Friday and Saturday evenings, November 23 and 24, at the 29th Inf. Theater. Two large audiences, composed of club members and guests, thoroughly enjoyed the most excellent plays presented.

In fact, the opinion of those who were so fortunate as to see these productions was that it was one of the best ever given by the club. It would be a waste of space to herein endeavor to point out the "high lights" of any one of the plays; they were all clever and the performances made every one aware of the fact that all members of the three casts had worked hard on their particular parts.

Detail announcement will be made in next week's issue of the club's offering for December.

The plays given last week and casts are as follows:

"THE MANDARIN COAT"
Alice C. D. Riley

Place: Living room in Califronia home of John Mendon.

Vol. VII. FORT BENNING, GA., DECEMBER 7, 1928 Number 12

THE INF. SCHOOL HORSE SHOW WAS BIG SUCCESS WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Over 200 Entries Were Seen in Informal Show

(By B. H. Cowan)

Fort Benning's informal horse show last Wednesday afternoon was one of the most successful of the many shows sponsored by the Infantry School. More than two hundred entries displayed their horsemanship before the large crowd that had gathered to witness the event.

Interest in the show was at top form and the ability of both horses and riders brought applause on numerous occasions. The skill of the different riders in the manner of handling their steeds and the grace of both horse and rider over the different jumps was a thing at which to marvel and despite the cold that began early in the afternoon to chill failed to dampen the ardor of the spectators and drive them away.

During the early part of the show the crowd felt it's first thrill and anxiety when the horse ridden by Lieutenant Mood in the Officers' jumping class tripped and fell at the rail fence jump, catapulting its rider over his head. For a moment every one held their breath as they feared the rider might have been injured, but the Lieutenant was up in a flash unhurt, caught the horse by the bridle reins, remounted and rode off the field amid the cheers of the spectators. Had this accident not have happened it is probable that Lieutenant Mood would have been in at the finish among the first three as both horse and rider were taking the jumps with ease and piling up points in the scoring.

Another event of the afternoon bringing more than an unusual amount of applause was in the ladies' jumping class. The first rider, Mrs. Forsythe, looked to be a sure winner of first place when the horse she was riding cleared all of the jumps without a point being scored against her. The next six contestants were not so fortunate in their performance and had points scored against them. Then came Mrs. Bishop who turned in a neat bit of riding to duplicate Mrs. Forsythe's feat, placing them in a tie for first honors, while a few minutes later Mrs. Venable piloted her horse over the jumps with a perfect score which in turn placed three in a tie for first honors making it necessary for the jumps to be raised and the course run again.

In the run off Mrs. Bishop came out with first honors and Mrs. Forsythe and Mrs. Venable were again tied making it necessary for them to run the course again. This time Mrs. Forsythe came out in the lead.

The result of the show and the prizes won follows:

Enlisted men's jumping (open only to white enlisted men): 1st Sgt. Page, Reg. Hqrs. Co., 29th Inf. ;2nd, Pvt. Hall, Reg. Hqrs. Co., 29th Inf.; 3rd, Pvt. Thompson, "H" Co., 29th Inf.; 4th, Pvt. Edwards, Reg. Hqrs. Co., 29th Inf. Prize, wrist watch.

Enlisted men's jumping (open only to colored enlisted men): 1st, Anderson, 2nd, Johnson; 3rd, Goldsby; 4th, Pureayer. Prize, military brush set.

Officers' jumping: 1st, Major Hoge; 2nd, Lieut. Grubbs; 3rd, Lieut. Stroh-

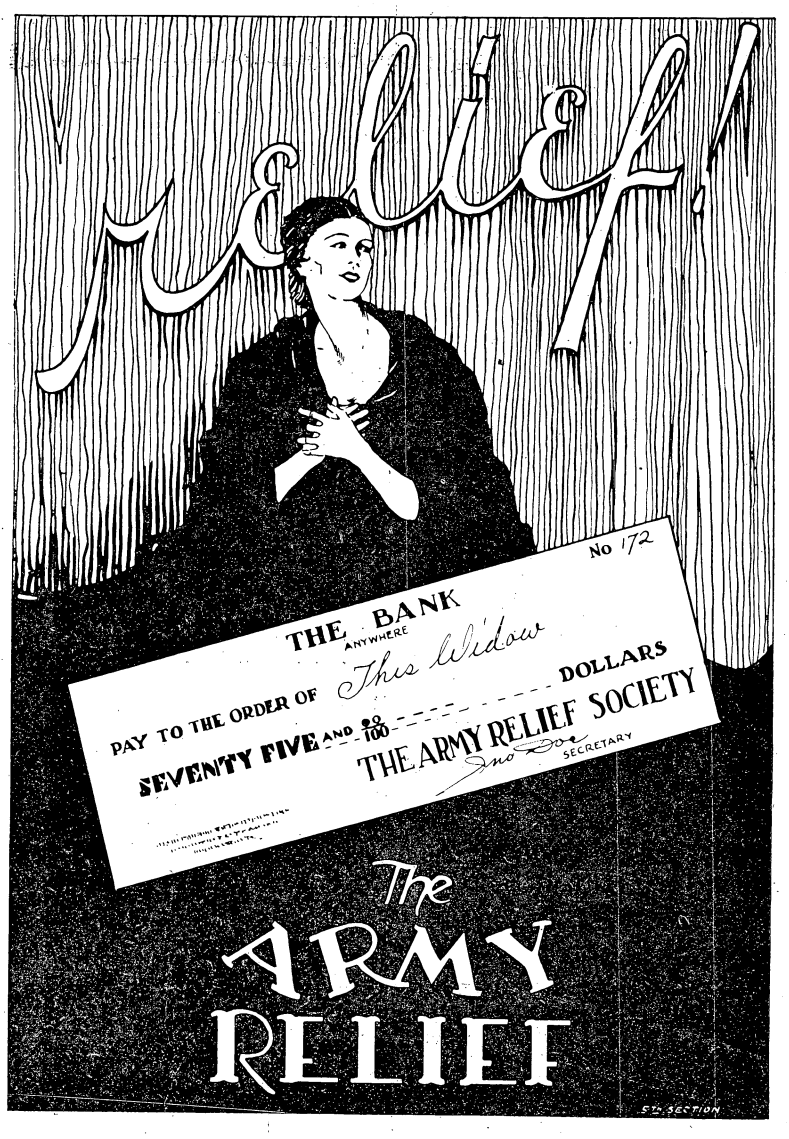
Go to the Movies Sunday



SPECIAL BENEFIT SHOW FOR ARMY RELIEF TO BE HELD SUNDAY NIGHT

With permission of the War Department, the Fort Benning theaters will put on a special movie program Sunday night, the proceeds of which will be given the Army Relief Society. From all indications this will be one of the biggest nights for Fort Benning moving picture shows.

The special program is bound to please everyone. The star of the evening will be Colleen Moore, that vivacious little lady who has so many times made us laugh until our sides ached. Who does not remember this comedy queen in "Naughty But Nice," "Her Wild Oat," "Ella Cinders" or "Orchids and Ermine"? Full of humor, young and clever, Miss Moore was selected to play the stellar role in "Oh Kay," the hilarious screen adaptation of the musical comedy of the same name which had such a successful run on the legitimate stage. In this picture ,a seven-reel show, Colleen Moore, supported by a strong cast of comedians, is given plenty of opportunity to exercise her skill as a laugh producer, for the plot is full of action and funny situations. The orchestra at the Main Theater will render selections from the score of "Oh Kay".

In addition to Colleen Moore, there will also be presented on Sunday, the technicolor picture entitled "Cleopatra". This portrays in gorgeous color, through two thrilling reels, some of the high spots in the life of Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt ,who not only ruled her country but the hearts of all men whom she chose to conquer. Known throughout history as the world's most famous "vamp", the story of Cleopatra's charms and of her life, is one well adapted to the possibilities of the screen. Laid in oriental splendor, which the technicolor places vividly before the audience, this picture is unusual and one not to be missed.

To round out the evening and in addition to the nine reels mentioned above,

ENLISTED MEN'S THANKSGIVING DANCE IS BRILLIANT AFFAIR

(By Al Durden)

The feature social event of the year for enlisted men was the Costume Dance held at the Service Club on Thanksgiving Eve. Hundreds of the younger set of Fort Benning and Columbus were present for the occasion, and every one pronounced it the most brilliant affair of this kind ever held at the garrison.

It was a costume affair, and a person would journey into many foreign lands to view the originals of the many different varieties of costumes worn by the merrymakers. There were Hula-Hulas, Pierrots, Bandit Chiefs, Dutch Girls, Russian Gentlemen, Pirates and last but not least an old fashioned colored parson of the ante-bellum days, who ran true to form by winning the gentleman's prize for the best costume.

The hall was decorated in streamers of orange and black, strung from the four corners to the center in inter-lacing loops. Pumpkins were placed over the electric globes and the chandeliers were wrapped in orange so that the entire place took on a golden glow which added a great deal to the effectiveness of the costumes.

Music was furnished by the 24th Infantrys famous Symphony Six, and it was the kind that makes "Grandpa's" toes tingle just like they did forty years ago, in fact the dance music produced by this orchestra causes the slowest of feet to wake up and give the legs a growl to get along. There was no slow feet among the youngsters who took part in the dance, and when twelve o'clock finally came around a tired but happy crowd of young people bid Mrs. Inez Brittain, hostess, good night, as they assured her that the evening had been the greatest of all time.

During the intermission refreshments were served, consisting of assorted cakes and punch.

Due to the evening in general and to the crowd in particular the dance ran until 12:00 instead of closing at 11:30, as is customary. Every one was in such good spirits that the Dance Committee felt that this was the least that they could do to start off the holidays in the right way.

Miss Ivy Hitson, dressed in the flashing colors of a Spanish senorita, was awarded the ladies' prize for the best costume, a sanctified doughboy from the Demonstration outfit, name unknown, dressed in the outfit of an old fashioned colored parson, was awarded the gentleman's priez. Mrs. Bennie Harris took the prize awarded to the one who brought the most girls. The judges were Mrs. Lee Leonard, Mrs. Curtis Hopkins and Mrs. Bennie Harris.

In closing the Dance Committee wishes to express the hope that all those who have taken the advantage of the social activitis of the Service Club will continue to do so in the future and also let their friends in on the secret of the good times to be had at Fort Benning. Remember invitations are sent out each week to all the ladies who like to attend the weekly dances, so if you have friends who wish to attend, be sure to send in their name to Sergt. Shepherd at the Service Club, or call Fort Benning 101 and get their names on the list.

POST OFFICE RECEIVES INSTRUCTIONS ON CHRISTMAS MAIL

The Fort Benning postoffice is in receipt of instructions relative to the mailing of Xmas packages, letters and cards. A part of this set of instructions is herewith printed for the guadance of patrons at this time of the year:

Limit of Weight and Size

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined. For delivery locally and in the first, second, and third zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; in all other zones, 50 pounds.

Early Mailing

During the holiday time the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to assure delivery of their Christmas presents, cards, and letters by Christmas Day the public should SHOP AND MAIL EARLY. Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings, and letters to relatives, friends, and loved ones at least a week or 10 days bfore Christmas, according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas Day, but will be a great aid to your postal service and to postal employees and enable them to spend Christmas Day with their families.

Christmas Cards

Patrons sending a quantity of Christmas cards, say 10 or more, should prepare and mail them two or three weeks in advance, as millians are mailed and they can not possibly be handled and delivered if mailed only two or three or four days before Christmas. To avoid this, patrons may mail their cards two or three weeks before Christmas, if delivered to the post office or postal station in person, or tied together in a bundle, labeled to show that they are Christmas cards, and deposited in a street letter or package box. They will then be segragated, stamped with the date on which to be delivered, and delivery effected one or two days before Christmas.

Christmas cards and gifts addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed in no event later than December 20; within two days' travel, not later than December 18; within three days' travel, not later than December 16; for more distant points, not later than December 14. Parcels and cards for local delivery should be mailed not later than December 21. PARCELS AND ENVELOPES MAY BE INDORSED, "PLEASE DO NOT OPEN UNTIL CHRISMAS."

Special-Delivery Service

SPECIAL-DELIVERY SERVICE means the handling and transportation of parcels with the same expedition as first-class letter mail, as well as the immediate delivery at office of address. It is obtained by affixing SPECIAL-DELIVERY stamp of the proper denominationfi or its equivalent in ordinary stamps, in addition to the regular postage. When ordinary stamps are used, the words, "SPECIAL DELIVERY" must be written or printed directly below, BUT NOT ON THE STAMPS. It is urged that all mailers desiring immediate delivery of any matter mailed by them affix SPECIAL - DELIVERY stamps thereto. SPECIAL DELIVERY is for speed and not for safety. Valuable mail should be registered or insured.

SOJOURNERS CLUB TO HOLD BIG MEETING ON DECEMBER 17th

Special Entertainment Has Been Arranged For This Important Meeting

The Sojourners Club of Fort Benning will hold its next meeting on Mnoday evening, December 17, at the Polo Club. Special entertainment has been provided for this meeting to which all eligible members of the club are invited to attend. The meeting scheduled for December 3 was postponed until the 17th.

According to an announcement made several days ago the program will be unusually good. To quote: "The program is going to be one you will enjoy. Do not let anything keep you away from this meeting. There will be vocal music by several of the leading voices of the Glee Club, and probably several vocalists from the city of Columbus will be on the program. A grand guessing contest, in which all members will participate will be the feature of the meeting."

Members of the club are requested to notify Capt. F. E. Ambrose, Inf., third section, academic dept., before noon on December 15, as to whether they will be present or not.

"Waiter, will that pie be long?"

"No, ma'am, it'll be round in a minute."

AT THE MOVIES

DEC. 7, TO DEC. 14, INCL.

FRIDAY, DEC. 7

"BROTHERLY LOVE," starring Karl Dane with George K. Arthur in a combination jail house and football comedy. A jail football team supplies the principle motivation behind the love interest in which the warden's pretty daughter is the center of complications. Dane and Arthur, as the principal gridiron gladiators, duel with touchdowns for her hand and their football antics are unroarous with side splitting situations.

"City Slickers." Fables.

"Pathe News No. 97."

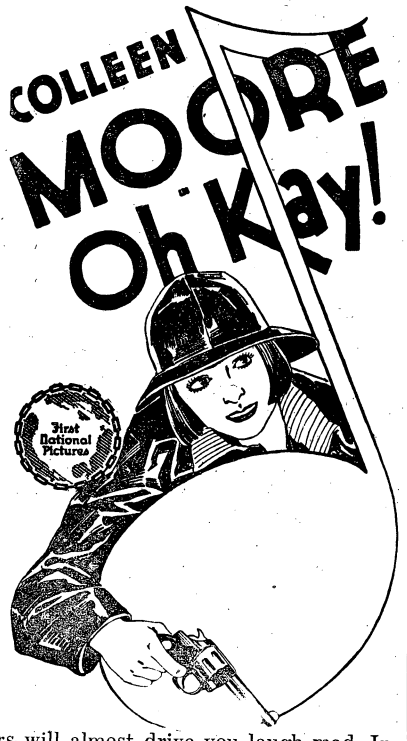
SATURDAY, DEC. 8

"SON OF THE GOLDEN WEST," featuring Tom Mix in a character delineation which is a variation from his familiar cowboy roles—that of a "Pony Express" rider of the days when pioneers were battling to plant civilization in the great West. The period is just prior to the civil war. Mix's remarkable horse, Tony, figures with equal prominence in graphically portraying the dangers, hardships and vicissitudes of a pony express rider in battling with Indians and outlaws who are set upon undoing the U. S. telegraphic survey. A pleasing romance unites the threads of the gripping plot.

"Collegians No. 3."

SUNDAY, DEC. 9

"OH KAY," starring Colleen Moore in a film dramatization of that great New York stage hit which captivated Broadway for one solid year. It is an excellent comedy presenting a rapid continuation of amusing situations. The story concerns a lady of English nobility who is forced into a distasteful marriage. In a sulk, she sets sail in her tiny sail boat; a storm arises, she is picked up by a rum laden schooner bound for America; she escapes and is pursued by revenue officers; she gains entrance to an empty mansion; here she is accousted by the young owner, who is to be married the next day—a love affair developes. Coursing through the varied events that take place there is a rapid continuity of tense breath taking incidents, some of these pin your eyes to the screen, because of their captivating dramatic climaxs, others will almost drive you laugh mad. Incidentally, our Main Theater orchestra will, on this occasion, play many of the original musical hits which were composed for this opera.



"CLEOPATRA," an interesting historical presentation of incidents of the life of the old world's most notorious siren.

"Paramount News No. 36."

MONDAY, DEC. 10

"MODEL FROM MONTMARTE," starring Nita Naldi and Ivan Petrovitch in a colorful production all of which was filmed in France. Many points of interest are incorporated, such as the Artists' Ball of Paris and the Carnival held annually in Nice. The story is built around the efforts of a poor artist who is helped in his lean days by his model. Fame comes to both when their pictures become popular. They fall in love and marry—a beautiful princess comes between their lives—they separate, finally he learns his mistake and returns to his wife a wiser and finer man.

"Terrible People No. 5."

TUESDAY, DEC. 11

"THE NIGHT BIRD," starring Reginald Denny in a rapid succession of hilarious episodes. Night club life is the core of this story. It deals with the private life of a prize fighter with enough actual fighting thrown in to hrill the most jaded movie patron. The fighter is a marvel in the ring, but he fights shy of all femininity. His manager demands that he attend parties in order to stimulate gate receipts—a couple of femmes grab onto the prize fighter and here the fun starts. If you don't laugh at this one, see the doctor.

"The Lateral Pass"—Football. This was booked especially for Benning's football players and fans—it is slow motion in professional football tactics.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 12

"STOCKS AND BLONDES," featuring Jacqueline Logan with Richard Gallagher in a sophisticated comedy drama of New York life, with its love story woven on a background of jazzy night clubs, broker's offices, the Stock Exchange and elsewhere in the Metropolis. Girls? Yes, a plenty, but they are blondes, blondes, blondes—and beauties too. Barnum once said, "There's a fool born every minute"—this story proves that the city slicker comes in for his share of it as well as the county rube. You'll like it.

"Paramount News No. 37."

THURSDAY, DEC. 13

"THE MICHIGAN KID," starring Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree in a story from the pen of Rex Beach. It is the tale of a notorious gambler, his successes at the table and in romance. The story is laid in far away Alaska during the great gold rush days. Many of the scenes are in natural color, particularly one, which shows the lovers escaping in a canoe down the rushing waters of a river, the banks of which are aflame with forest fire. This picture presents thrills galore.

"T for Two." Van Bibber Comedy.

FRIDAY, DEC. 14

"THE WRIGHT IDEA," starring Johnny Hines in seven reels of laughter. It is an interesting comedy of a young man's struggle to market his unique invention of an ink possessing luminous qualities. Of course a girl is mixed up in it; she suspects Johnny of having stolen some bonds, she loves him, yet, has him shadowed by a blundering detective through a maze of sequences that are eloquently amusing. Come to this one prepared to laugh.

"The Huntsman." Fables.

"Pathe News No. 99."

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS FEATURED BY CLUB DANCE

The Thanksgiving season was festive indeed, the holidays being joyously filled with delightful dinner parties, dances, hunts, and merry informal parties.

The outstanding event of the holidays was the Officers' Club dinner dance on Friday evening at Biglerville.

Col. and Mrs. Paul C. Galleher entertained eighteen friends at dinner at Biglerville. Their table had for its centerpiece a basket of red and white carnations and red tapers were used in low holders down the center of the table. Those present were: Major Homer Dimon, Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes Browne, Mrs. Will Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Leighton McPherson, Col. and Mrs. Baker, Col. Hunt, Col. and Mrs. Brandt, Maj. and Mrs. Coates, Madame Coates, Maj. and Mrs. Fletcher.

* * *

Maj. and Mrs. Albert S. Peake entertained quite a large party at Biglerville. Mrs. Peake was unable to be present due to illness which has extended over several weeks, but Maj. Peake "carried on" for the family and did it most graciously. Their table was especially pretty. The center was banked with yellow button chrysanthemums and at intervals down the entire length of the table long yellow tapers burned in low silver holders. Thanksgiving placecards marked the places for the following guests: Maj. and Mrs. Cook, Maj. and Mrs. Hume, Maj. and Mrs. Freehoff, Maj. and Mrs. Bradley, Maj. and Mrs. Rhett, Capt. and Mrs. Maddox, Capt. and Mrs. Crim, Capt. and Mrs. Hutson, Capt. and Mrs. Forsythe, Capt. and Mrs. Hilton, Capt. and Mrs. Joe Collins, Capt. and Mrs. Nevins.

Maj. and Mrs. Morrison C. Stayer entertained very delightfully. Pink carnations and snapdragons with fern formed the lovely centerpiece and lavander candles were used in silver candlesticks. Their guest list included, Col. and Mrs. Goodrich, Col. and Mrs. Reed, Col. and Mrs. Knight, Maj. and Mrs. Hoge, Maj. and Mrs. Torrey, Maj. and Mrs. Chunn, Maj. and Mrs. MacGregor, Maj. and Mrs. Wilson, Capt. and Mrs. Jackson, Capt. and Mrs. Gilhus.

* * *

Maj. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Jones were hosts to a group of officers and ladies of the Artillery at a lovely turkey dinner at their home on Friday evening, the party going later to the Thanksgiving dance at Biglerville.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. Charles L. Bolte entertained in honor of their house guest, Miss Catherine Foster, of Ft. McPherson. Covers were laid for Miss Foster, Capt. and Mrs. Beebe, Capt. and Mrs. Venable, Lt. and Mrs. Brimmer, Lt. and Mrs. Black, Lt. and Mrs. Bartlett, Capt. Deware and Capt. Roderick.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. T. E. Jones honored Miss Dorothy White, of Atlantic City, the guest of Capt. and Mrs. E. M. S. Steward, with a dinner party of twenty-two. Their table was lovely. In the center was an oblong basket filled with yellow roses, fern, and bronze button chrysanthemums and at each end were smaller baskets similarly filled. The tall yellow tapers were tied mid-way with silver ribbon which held a shower of fern and tiny chrysanthemums. Those present were Miss White, Capt. and Mrs. Steward, Capt. and Mrs. Halloran, Capt. and Mrs. McCoy, Capt. and Mrs. Magill, Capt. and Mrs. Huskea, Capt. and Mrs. Crowell, Lt. and Mrs. Nachman, Lt. and Mrs. McCammon, Capt. Woodward, Capt. Joiner, Lt. Forse.

Capt. and Mrs. Patrick F. McGuire had a very charming party. Their table was decorated in yellow and white chrysanthemums with yellow tapers. Thanksgiving placecards marked the places for Col. and Mrs. Berry, Col. and Mrs. Franklin, Maj. and Mrs. Connor, Maj. and Mrs. Barlow, Capt. and Mrs. Perry, Capt. and Mrs. Washburn, Capt. and Mrs. Littell, Capt. and Mrs. Eanes, Capt. and Mrs. Nichols, Capt. and Mrs. Walker, Miss Mullins, Lt. Riggins and Mr. Kinnett.

* * *

Large parties were also entertained at Biglerville by Col. and Mrs. William P. Hill, Capt. and Mrs. William A. Collier and Lt. Clarence T. Davis.

There were a large number of delightful Thanksgiving dinner parties at homes before the dance on Friday.

Capt. and Mrs. Roy F. Hall entertained thirty-two young people at a buffet supper in honor of their daughter, Miss Maxine Hall, whose birthday it was. Those present were Miss Hariette Wells, Miss Sue Brandt, Miss Celeste Brooch, Miss Helen Young, Miss Mary Harvey Charles, Miss Becky Hill, Miss Emma Kate Hyatt, Miss Peggy Lampke, Miss Maxine Hall, Lt. and Mrs. Knight, Lt. and Mrs. Killpack, Lt .and Mrs. Douthit, Lt. and Mrs. Hurt, Lt. Von Houten, Lt. O'Neal, Lt. Cornog, Lt. Breckenridge, Lt. Dunn, Lt. Jeter, Lt. Swarze, Lt. Burback, Lt. Diller, Lt. Mack, Lt. Foster, Lt. Spivey, Lt. Parham, and Mr. Frank Garrard.

Capt. and Mrs. Alan W. Jones were hosts at a most enjoyable dinner at their quarters. The Thanksgiving idea was carried out with interesting originality in both decorations and menu. The guests were seated at small tables each of which had a Thanksgiving centerpiece. A long orange taper set in a huge apple formed the center around which autumn leaves and red berries were banked. Appropriate placecards bore the following names: Capt. and Mrs. Griffin, Capt. and Mrs. Mulkey, Capt. and Mrs. Johnston, Capt. and Mrs. Rice, Lt. and Mrs. Cota, Lt. and Mrs. Barker, Capt. and Mrs. Dahlquist, Maj. and Mrs. Long.

Capt. and Mrs. Myron Rudolph entertained at an elegant dinner at their home.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. Clyde Grady were hosts to a large group of friends at dinner at the Ralston.

Lt. and Mrs. Allen F. Haynes entertained very charmingly at the Log Cabin. Autumn leaves, evergreen pine and red berries were used for decoration. The guests were seated at one long table which was overlaid with filet. A low bowl of pink roses formed the central decoration and pink tapers burned at intervals down the length of the table. Covers were laid for Capt. and Mrs. Rutledge, Capt. and Mrs. Glascow, Capt. and Mrs. Wood, Capt. and Mrs. Lovett, Capt. and Mrs. Helsley, Capt. and Mrs. Goode, Capt. and Mrs. Sherman, Capt. and Mrs. Fingarson, Lt. and Mrs. Barr, Lt. and Mrs. Earle, Lt. and Mrs. Walsh, Lt. and Mrs. Finney, Lt. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Flournoy, Mr. and Mrs. Bass Lewis, Mrs. Ogletree, Miss Messersmith, Capt. Craig, Lt. Gilbreth, Lt. Totten and Lt. Burbank.

Miss Catherine Foster was honored by Capt. and Mrs. Bolte with whom she spent last week-end, with a charming supper party on Sunday evenin. The present were Miss Foster, Capt. and Mrs. Rogers, Lt. and Mrs. Bartlett, Lt. Cornog, Lt. Boineau. After supper they went to the movies.

Many Fort Benning people who have season tickets for The Three Rrts League will be interested to know that the Will Irwin lecture has been postponed until after Christmas. Mr. Irwin has gone to South America and will come to us soon after his return. The New York Thea-

The ladies of The Infantry School Woman's Club were honorees at a most delightful program-tea given on Thursday afternoon at the Muscogee Club by The Federated Clubs of Columbus.

Capt. and Mrs. Stanley Blanton were evening guests of honor at a large dinner party on Saturday at the Country Club given by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crawford of Columbus.

* * *

Mrs. Alan W. Jones and Mrs. Ernest S. Barker entertained most happily for Alan Jr. and Ernest Jr. on Wednesday afternoon. The Hop Room was the scene of this gay party where fifty little boys and girls had the time of their young lives. There were many things to do but of supreme interest was the giant Jack Horner pie where everyone pulled a string and found dandy toy. And there was ice cream—oodles of it—which is proof enough that this was a grand party.

* * *

And on Monday afternoon Mrs. Alan Jones and Mrs. John K. Rice celebrated the fourth birthday of Hallie Jessie Jones and "Sonny" Rice with a lovely party at the Rice home. Twelve little friends enjoyed this delightful party.

* * *

On Tuesday Mrs. Norman Cota entertained at luncheon at her home in Columbus, a group of her intimate friends. Those present were Mrs. J. L. Collins, Mrs. James Green, Mrs. Theron Methvin, Mrs. Alan Jones.

* * *

On next Friday, Dec. 14th, at 2:00, Mrs. Clifford H. Perry will entertain at bridge in honor of her daughter, Miss Verna Perry.

FREEMAN—SHAMOTLUSKI WEDDING OCCURED LAST SUNDAY NIGHT

Prominent Benning Officer Joins Ranks of The Benedicts

It seems as if the epidemic staged by Cupid is gaining headway at Fort Benning. Capt. C. A. Shamotulski ,the genial Provost Marshal at the Infantry School is the latest victim. At eleven-thirty last Sunday night, December 2nd, occured the wedding of this prominent Fort Benning officer, taking as his bride, Mrs. Vivian Holmes Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holmes, of LaGrange, Ga. The news of the wedding was of general interest, not only in army circles where the couple are well known, but throughout the state where the bride has many intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by Chaplain Wright assisted by Chaplain McKenna, in the presence of a few intimate friends.

Mrs. Shamotluski is a member of one of the most prominent families in the state and has many friends in Columbus and Fort Benning, where she has visited frequently for some years.

Capt. Shamatulski is provost marshal at Fort Benning and is a graduate of the Infantry School. He has a wide circle of friends throughout the army and is well known in social circles in Columbus as well as Fort Benning.

Mrs. E. M. S. Steward was hostess to the 24th Bridge Club on Tuesday afternoon at the Polo Club. There were six tables of players and quite a number of tea guests. The prizes were won by Mrs. Walden S. Lewis and Mrs. James P. Lyons. After the game chicken salad and cheese straws were served with coffee. Special guests on this occasion were Miss Dorothy White, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Steward, Mrs. Charles E. Kelley of Bath, Me., the guest of Lt. and Mrs. H. S. Kelley, and Mrs. Thomas A. Austin, who with Capt. Austin has recently arrived from Nicarauga.

* * *

Mrs. Kenneth G. Althaus entertained the ladies of the Tanks. There were four tables of players and four tea guests. Mrs. William Bartlett won first prize. Mrs. Kenneth March second and Miss Catherine Foster, the guest of Mrs. Bartlett, third. After the game a salad course was served with coffee.

* * *

The 29th Club met with Mrs. Michael Halloran, Mrs. Paul R. Goode and Mrs. Raymond P. Lavin. The tea table was overlaid with a gorgeous cloth of cut work and filet and had for its central decoration a tall basket filled with a dozen huge yellow chrysanthemums. Tall slim yellow tapers in low silver candlesticks were placed around the basket. There were seven tables of players and several tea guests. Mrs. Robert A. Case won top score prize, Mrs. V. G. Huskea, second. After the game ice cream was served with individual fruit cakes.

Miss Catherine Foster is now the guest of Lt. and Mrs. William Bartlett. On Monday Mrs. Bartlett honored her visitor with a four-table bridge party. Mrs. R. A. Case won first prize, Mrs. Michael Buckley second. Several friends who have known Miss Foster at other stations, came in for tea.

* * *

Lr. and Mrs. Malcolm R. Kammerer returned on Tuesday from their honeymoon spent at Radium Springs and in Florida, and are now at home in Block 16.

* * *

Mrs. David G. Barr is hostess this afternoon at a delightful bridge party honoring Miss Dorothy White of Atlantic City.

* * *

The Organization Bridge Clubs met this week. The Special Units Club met at the Polo Club on Mnoday evening with Mrs. William R. Bent and Mrs. Raymond G. Sherman as hostesses.

* * *

Lt .and Mrs. Henry W. Brandhorst entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening honoring their mother, Mrs. O. C. Bechmann, of Denver, the occasion celebrating Mrs. Bechmann's wedding anniversary.

* * *

Captain and Mrs. Ralph A. W. Pearson entertained at dinner before the hop on November 30, having as their guests Capt. and Mrs. Hoops, Capt. and Mrs. Sweet, Capt. E. L. Rice, and Miss Marion Dexter.

Sis: What shall we get dad for Christmas?

Sap: I hear he's buying us a car; let's get him a chauffeur's outfit!

"How did Jack get that sore jaw?"
"A girl cracked a smile."
"Well?"
"It was his smile."

Guide (breathlessly): I just saw a man-eating tiger!

Guided (preoccupied): Some men will eat anything.

"Bill's a bear for taking punishment."

"Yes; he has an infinite capacity for taking pains."

The Woman's Club was given a real treat on Monday afternoon when members of the faculty of The Columbus School of Music gave a most delightful concert. This new school of music has brought to our vicinity most gifted and most skilled musicians and it was indeed an inspiration to hear the program rendered by them. Mr. Ralph Cotton, who is President of the institution, made a brief introduction talk after which he presented a varied and charming program of instrumental and vocal music interspersed with light and clever readings. Mrs. Ernest S. Barker, who is affiliated with this institution only through interest and good will, her duties on the Post being so heavy she could not accept the voice department there, sang a very lovely group of songs.

After the program Mrs. James L. Bradley and Mrs. Norman Randolph entertained at at a delightful tea.

The Literary Club

On next Monday afternoon at 2:00 sharp the Literary Club will meet at the Polo Club at which time Mrs. Lee M. Hester will present the following program of contemporary literature having a historical trend:

1. "Elizabeth and Essex," by Lytton Strochey. Reviewed by Mrs. Lawrence B. Glascow.

2. "John Brown's Body," by Stephen Vincent Benet. Reviewed by Mrs. Edward G. Sherburne.

3. "Giant Killer," by Elmer Davis. Reviewed by Mrs. Thomas S. Arms.

Ida Bell, the missing feline of the First Section, has not been as yet rescued, and her kidnapers apprehended, but the Open Eye Detective Agency,—of which ye scribe is head-man—has been at work earnestly. It is feared that foul play has come upon our Ida Bell. Lt. Curtis, of the Fifth Section, advances the opinion that Ida Bell has been playing around with Krazy Kat, and was the unlucky recipient of one of Ignatz' bricks; while another opinion rife is that Ida Bell, who like all cats, is fond of catnip, has probably taken her cattish way to Twenty-One Block for a little nip. That clue is to be traced down, and the Open Eye Detective Agency feels that it can announce something decisive accomplished by next press-time.

Captain Rustemeyer, it develops, hasn't taught the galloping dominoes their proper numbers yet—for it is common gossip that on a recent rainy morn he lost thirty cents trying to prove that he could manipulate the cubes in a winning combination. 'Tis said, also, that 'twas a member of the fairer sex who beat him at tossing the tell-tale squares.

ALL-SERVICE CHAMPION KNOCKED OUT BY KID CUPID IN FIERCE MIX-UP

With three hundred ring battles to his credit, Willie Ptomey, all-service middeweight, finally went down for the fatal count. Boxing critics will no doubt be interested to know that a pretty young girl, Miss Sarah Ingram of Montgomery, Ala., finally stopped the pride of Uncle Sam's fighters. They were quietly married at West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 17th, on the eve of the Ptomey-Godwin fight which was held there on that date.

With his new manager at the ringside, Willie gave Godwin a nice drubbing, especially in the final four rounds when he hit the "Florida Tornado" with everything but the water bucket.

The many friends and admirers of "Weary" Willie, throughout the Army, join in extending their best wishes and congratulations and hope that there will be no rough seas for him to seal on the good ship, "Matrimony".

FORT BENNING MASONS TO HOLD ELECTION

The annual election of officers of the Fort Benning Lodge No. 577, F. and A. M. will be held on December 10, 1928, at 7:30 P. M. The regular election date being Dec. 24, 1928, it was thought advisable to hold the election at the above due to the fact that many members of the lodge will be away from Fort Benning during the holiday season. The installation of officers will also take place on December 10.

Fort Benning Lodge No. 577 was chartered October 28, 1923 and holds stated meetings on the second and fourth Mondays of each month. Time of meetings: 7:30 P. M.

The members are of the military establishment at Fort Benning and it may well be termed as an army lodge. The meetings are held at the Polo Club.

SONS OF VETS KILLED IN WORLD WAR CAN GO TO MILITARY ACADEMY

The Adjutant General of the Army, Major General Lutz Wahl, states in a report to the Secretary of War that there is still a dearth of candidates for the United States Military Academy under the Act of Congress approved June 8, 1926, which provides for forty additional cadetships from the United States at large to be filled by the admission of applicants selected from among the sons of officers, soldiers, sailors and marines of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps of the United States who were killed in action or died prior to July 2, 1921, of wounds or injuries received during the World War. Five candidates were designated under this act for the March, 1928, entrance examination. Three failed to report for examination, one failed mentally and the other one failed mentally and physically. There are still 35 vacancies available for appointment of candidates from this source.

THE ARMY RELIEF DRIVE

Again we invite the attention of readers of the News to the Army Relief Society drive which is still on at Fort Benning. By special permission from Washington, a benefit moving picture show will be held at all theaters Sunday evening, the proceeds of which will be appropriated to the drive here. The work of the Army Relief is well known and all should support it by attending the theater Sunday evening, the details of which appear elsewhere in this issue. Let's make the drive at Fort Benning this year a record-breaker. Let's go.

STUDENT OFFICERS GET SOME REAL ADVENTURE ON HUNTING TRIP

The night of December 2nd is one that will inger long in the memories of two student officers of the Infantry School.

During the previous week, Lieutenants Purdue and Lansing saw in the early morning hours and late evenings, large flocks of mallard ducks flying over the Fort Benning reservation and heading towards the Bradley area. Both lovers of the outdoor life, they came to the conclusion that somewhere down the winding Chattahoochie must be the feeding grounds of those flocks of greenheads.

So, consequently, a duck hunt was planned for last Sunday morning. A light skiff was purchased and after a hurried breakfast, Lieuts. Purdue and Lansing bade a goodbye to the academic halls and Block 21, drove to the banks of the Chattahoochie bent upon a real day of duck hunting, one of the greatest of sports.

Arriving at the banks of the river, they encountered their first obstacle. The said skiff was nowhere to be seen. However, they were not daunted by this first obstacle of the day's sport, but one of them took his car and crossed the river, procured another skiff and off they were after some delay. They had big visions now of the day, but they had reckoned without knowing the uncertainty of the swirling current of the muddy Chattahoochie. On and on they drifted, far down stream and no sign of teel or mallard. Suddenly a swirling current threw the light skiff broadside into a snag, almost capsizing the boat before the hunters could right it. A moment later it was deemed advisable to abandon the skiff. They had decided to call it a day. They got ashore and then proceeded to find their automobile which was parked somewhere in the valley of the Chattahoochie. But where? That was the momentous question, and is the one that stumped them for some hours and is mainly responsible for their spending the night in the swamps of the Chattahoochie. Taking a course which they thought would lead them to their motor vehicle and thence to Columbus and to Block 21, they finally became lost in the valley. A dense fog made it difficult. The night was endless, the occasoinal hoot of an owl added to the misery of the night; there was nothing to do but await the approach of dawn. The chilly wind crept through their hunting clothes to start the cold chills down their backs, with nothing to eat, matches and cigarettes ruined by the muddy waters of the Chattahoochie. Their experiences throughout the night would make a wonderful plot for an adventure story.

Day finally came after a night of eternity. Somewhere about ten o'clock Monday morning the highlands, somewhere in the state of Alabama were reached and last but not least, the transportation.

Flocks of mallards are still to be seen every morning and evening as they fly over Fort Benning. Somewhere down the Chattahoochie Valley is a mallard feeding ground where a hunter could no doubt have some good sport. Lieuts. Purdue and Lansing are no longer interested as they now prefer the barnyard fowl to the wild and warry mallard that feeds somewhere down the Chattahoochie.

THE COMMANDANT CONGRATULATES TANKERS

(From 15th Tank Bn. Weekly)

In observance of Armistice Day, another fierce battle, entirely different in aspect from those being fought ten years ago, was staged at the Doughboy Stadium. On the afternoon of November 12th the Track Teams of the various units on duty at this Post met in friendly competition, and when the harmless barrage of 16 pound shots and javelins, and the attack of the jumpers and speed demons were finished ,the Terrible Tankers had accumulated a total of 53½ points, sufficient to win the meet with a narrow margin of 5½ points. The First Battalion team, somewhat of a dark horse in the meet, scored 48 points and would not relinquish the lead until the very last event was run. It is generally conceded that this meet was the most interesting and closely contested event ever held at the Stadium. All teams represented there and their respectiv coaches are due a vote of thanks for their splendid showing.

General Collins, Post Commandant, has addressed the following letter of commendation to Major Miller:

Fort Benning, Georgia,
November 15, 1928.

Subject: Commendation.

To: The Commanding Officer, 15th Tank Battaion.

1. I wish to congratulate you, and through you the Fifteenth Tank Battalion and particularly the members of the Battalion Track, Field, and Tug of War teams for their splendid showing in winning the Garrison Track and Field Meet on November 12, 1928. The competition in the Meet was unusually keen and it is noted that out of the 14 scheduled events the Fifteenth Tank Battalion won 5 first places, 5 second places, 2 third places, 3½ fourth places and, in addition, took first place in the Tug of War. This fine record can only have been due to earnest and conscientious training on the part of the teams and enthusiastic support on the part of your Battalion as a whole.

2. Will you please convey to your Battalion and to the individual participants in the Meet my congratulations and commendation?

EDGAR T. COLLINS,
Brigadier General, U. S. A.,
Commandant.

83RD FA

THE 83RD FOOTBALL TEAM

It seems to be quite generally understood that the 83rd will fall a little short of winning the football pennant this year. But we of the Battalion do not hang our heads. We are proud of the team. The time that has been available to the team for football practice has been limited, for obvious reasons, always will be. Regardless of the odds against them, we have seen our team play a pretty fine brand of football, they have accepted all challenges, they have never complained, they have fought hard from start to finish, they have lost and they have come back to fight again.

Even our most recent defeat, at the hands of our friends, the 29th Infantry, failed to tame the fighting spirit of our team. We insist, without fear of successful contradiction, that we have the best losing football team to be found anywhere. We would rather have such men in defeat than not to have them at all.

The following is a roster of the football squad of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion:

Sgt. J. J. McAuliffe, Pvt. R. Elmore, Pvt. H. O. Fourroux, Pfc. S. Derrick, Cpl. M. Jordan, Pvt. S. Penton, Pvt. E. Carrigan, Pvt. C. Howard, Pvt. C. Dale, Pvt. E. Dwyer, St. Sgt. G. A. McCallum, Pfc. J. Cherry, Pfc. E. Wilson, Pvt. G. W. Arnold, Pvt. J. Garner, Pvt. T. Mixon, Pvt. H. Hunt, Pvt. J. Lester, Pvt. W. F. Mallard, Pvt. J. A. Childers, Pfc. A. McLeod, Pfc. C. W. Pike, Cpl. R. L. Douglas, Pvt. J. Tucker, Sgt. F. P. Thompson, Pvt. Z. Lambert, Pfc. G. O. Harper, Sgt. P. Gannon, Cpl. T. H. Flippo, Pvt. T. Hudgins.

Service Practice

Service practice in the 83rd is under full headway. The Commanding Officer, Major Lloyd E. Jones, is supervising the practice. The junior officers who are not graduates of the Field Artillery School are scheduled to do the greater portion of the firing.

Battery "C"

After a long rest, mar eats and the results, and lots of fun, this organization has resumed activiti s for a short time, just looking forwa l to that day when we will dream of t many things that will await us in our sock when we get up the next morn ng. Sergeant Chewning wants a wig, and Private Odom wants an unbreak le pipe, Private Hudgins some Bea ifier Cream, Sergeant Barksdale and rporal Miller a package of Beach Nu Chewing Tobacco and the rest of t organization say they know they are n going to get anything so they won't h disappointed at not finding anything their socks.

We wonder what kind of narrative Corporal Winslow was t ling the man on the motorcycle the oth r night when he had him stop and disn unt from the automobile. Judging by he gesticulations made by Corporal Winslow, we might remark that it wa certainly interesting to one of them a d very necessary to the other.

Corporal Chapman clain to have had a heavy date the other evening. Said second party to date only weighs 215 pounds. We'll say you did boy.

It is reported that Sergeant Barksdale Sundayed in Atlanta.

Corporal Underwood, Privates Allen and Chavis have rejoined the organization from furloughs and seem to be glad to be back.

We notice that the beard has disappeared from Sgt. (Doc) Crandall's face so it is quite evident that he must have gotten some one to replace himself as the impersonator for Santa Claus.

Private Horn must be like a camel, so the fellows in the Battery will tell you, either that or he had gone without water for a long period. What about it Corporal Goodwin.

Private Wold states that the frogs are still croaking back in the Louisiana bayous.

It is reported that Private Curry leaned against the lamp post the other evening and sang "Lead on Kindly Light."

Battery "A"

The personnel of the B. C. Detail regrets very much to hear that they have lost their reconnaissance officer, Lieutenant Guernsey. And the battery as a whole feels that its loss is Battalion Headquarters gain where he takes the office of Adjutant.

The holidays must have been too much for Private Brown as he was seen at the football game last Saturday with his spurs on.

Private Terrell said that the "wise crackers" were causing him lots of trouble while passing the M. P. gate and he would appreciate it if they would refrain from same, as he has been in so many "shake downs" lately that every time the wind blows he rattles.

Private First Class (Slim) Coffin bought a new top coat last week but had to wire back for an extension of ten inches. Slim you should always make them give you shrinkage insurance.

Private First Class Lambert said the old saying you can't get water where there isn't any well is the bunk. Because he contracted a bad cold from getting his feet wet Sunday night and he wasn't wading water either.

Sergeant Peters has got to be quite a fight fan, but we notice he never attends the fights alone. Be careful Sarge the opposite sex is dangerous enough without them acquiring any new methods of battling.

We wonder when the blonde is going to make her decision and whether it will be the fatal yes or the jubilant no.

Private Mark: "Private Abernathy has a kind face."

Private Hicks: "A kind face?"

Private Mark: "Yes, the funny kind."

Private Hunt: "Mixon, you should have been with us yesterday.

Private Mixon: "What were you doing?"

Private Hunt: "We were firing blanks and liked one having enough."

Sergeant Thompson: "Those two guys make a good circus."

Corporal Doggett: "Who?"

Sergeant Thompson: "Barnum and Bailey."

PONTONIER NOTES

(Company "A" 7th Engineers)

The ranks of the Benedicts are now complete. The company extends congratulations to Lieut. E. K. Daley and his bride, who are now in Washington visiting the lieutenant's father. The happy couple, accompanied to Outpost No. 1 by an escort of honor, left the Post amid a shower of rice.

The modesty of the soccer team is only surpassed by their skill. Instead of overgrown craniums and bloated chests, the scribe was met with the quiet and dignified assertion, "We won", when inquiring as to the results of Friday's soccer game. The Pontoniers downed "B" Co., 15th Tanks, 1 to 0 in a desperate, hard fought game. The defense of both teams and sportsmanship of all concerned featured the first Intra-mural game ever played on the Engineer Field. Billy Wherritt score dthe lone goal on a beautiful kick after the Tank goal keeper had been lured from his post. "Sonny Boy" Dickerson brought the ball down the field time after time only to lose it to the well nigh impregnable defense of the Tankers.

Overheard in Headquarters Section, 2nd Platoon: Sgt. aDiley, "Well boys, I received a special invitation to go back to Des Moines." Corp Reed: "From the folks?" Old Sarge: "No, from the people I owe money."

After Thursday's feat, the gang is looking forward to Christmas dinner with a deep feeling of satisfaction assured. We have doubts as to the ability of any man to surpass the dinner spread Thanksgiving by Sgt. Rowland, but, you never can tell.

MAXIE PELTZ FEATURE OF TUESDAY'S FIGHT CARD; WILLIE PTOMEY AGAIN IN ACTION IN MAIN GO

Saginaw Seeley	vs.	Bridge Talley	3 Rounds
Tut Tut Taylor	vs.	Babbling Brooks	3 Rounds
Fiske Williamson	vs.	Fedora Feodor	4 Rounds
Eddie Brault	vs.	Babe Sewell	4 Rounds
Blondy Parker	vs.	Wally Eskew	6 Rounds
Walker Smith	vs.	Lou Kelly	6 Rounds
Willie Ptomey	vs.	Maxie Peltz	10 Rounds

The above list of bruisers is the offering to the followers of the fistic game who will turn out next Tuesday night to witness the regular fortnightly boxing card presented at the Post gymnasium.

Standing out as the headliner, luminary, magnet, and puncher extraordinary is one Maxie Peltz, hailing from Portland, Oregon. Maxie, until a month ago, was not known to half a dozen people in this section of the country. In the short space of three minutes, possible less, Peltz was a by-word to every devotee of the game in the south. When the Portland boy was matched to meet Gunner DePratt at Savannah last month, the supporters of the Gunner counted on another quick victory for their favorite. When the news was flashed that Peltz had accomplished what seemed to be the impossible the wail was heard on all sides, "why don't they bring boys like Maxie to Benning?"

It must be remembered that boxers of the caliber of Peltz make cities like New York, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland their headquarters. It is at these centers where the big purses are to be had. Occasionally, the headliners, obscessed with a passion to see the sticks, or to take advantage of a world tour, as is the case of Peltz, they will leave the big money towns and embark for a barnstorming trip. But getting back to the reason that Maxie is coming to Benning. One Weary Willie Ptomey, 15th Tank Battalion, Fort Benning, Ga., claimant of the middleweight championship of all the services, both here and abroad, did, with forethought, after he had heard that Peltz had taken the Gunner's measure, request, implore, plead, and insist that this Maxie Peltz guy be brought hither to meet him in a battle of ten rounds or less. Willie was booked with Bob Godwin the cyclist of Daytona Beach, Fla., at West Palm Beach only two weeks ago. Godwin claims the 160-pound championship of the south, but no mention is made whether it is for boxing or sprinting. After the fight the Associated Press dispatches were far from complimentary making it appear that Willie was as much at fault as the mythical champ. Stung by the report, Ptomey returned to the Post bent on tearing to pieces any human placed in the same ring with him. Peltz, with his overnight fame, seemed to be the proper diet for the infuriated Tanker. The fact that Maxie will have from six to eight pounds pull in the weights failed to deter the victim of the press.

The odds will be all in Maxie's favor when he enters the ring with Willie, but many a silent observer will have a wee sum placed on the Tanker for they have seen Ptomey take all that Ted Goodrich and Kid Williams could hand out, only to find their favorite come back strong and whaling away in the closing rounds.

It is rumored that Walker Smith, who meets Lou Kelly, former gob, but at present from Macon, Ga., will be facing the test of his career in the semi-windup of six rounds. Kelly recently fought Young Jack Dempsey in Atlanta. The scrap was a knockout from the first gong to the end. Fans from Benning who saw the mill stated that leather was moving every second of the fray. As Smith is no mean weaver himself double barrel action ought to be in order when gob meets doughboy.

Blondy Parker and Wally Eskew are the principals in the other six rounder. Parker has won his way in to the favor of the fans ever since he convinced them that six rounds is just as easy for him to step as four. In his last scrap at the Post he gave a clever and convincing exhibition against Bud Spittle, a boxer who has repeatedly appeared in the semi-windup at New York Clubs. Eskew is well known to the fans. He has held his own against Sammy Buchanan, Kid Cole, Bobby Hood, and a score of lesser lights.

The three and four rounders may produce a few surprises. Eddie Brault is sure to have his hands full with Babe Sewell, while Fiske Williamson, judging by the name of the dusky warrior he meets may have a puzzle to solve. The 15th Tank Battalion is sending in Brooks and Talley to meet Taylor of the Medicos and Seeley of the 29th. The show starts at 8:00 P. M.

FIRST BATS VANQUISH SPECIAL UNITS 32 TO 6

(By Al Durden)

The Green Wave of the Special Units was no match for the red jacketed football warriors of the First Bats of the 29th Infantry, at the Doughboy Stadium last Friday afternoon, the Red Jackets winning 32 to 6.

The first quarter was a bitterly contested affair without either team being able to shove over a touchdown. In the second quarter the Jackets got busy and crossed the coveted final strip of the Greenies' ,when Reddock threw a long pass to Abrams who galloped 20 yards for a touchdown. Reddock added the extra point with a perfect kick from placement.

The Special Units scored their only marker of the game early in the third quarter when Parker shot a pass to Yuratick, who promenaded 28 yards to deposit the sausage across the Jacket's goal line. The kick from placement was blocked.

A counter attack by the Jackets in the third period, netted three touchdowns and 19 points. A series of end runs and line plunges carried the ball deep into Green Wave territory. A pass, Reddock to Blackstone, put the ball over. The second tally of the quarter came a minute after the kickoff, Romploski intercepting a pass and running 30 yards for a touchdown. Jack Harper scored the third marker with a plunge through center from the Wave's ten-yard line.

In the last quarter, one of the Bevelin twins, intercepted a pass and scampered 77 yards for a touchdown, the extra point was added when the Special Units was offside.

"Do you know Nat Cohen?"

"Is he one of the cloak and suit Cohens?"

"No, he's one of the ice cream Cohens."

ENGINEERS DOWN TANKERS IN OPENING SOCCER GAME OF SEASON 1 TO 0

Although a game new to these parts, soccer has sprang into the lime-light of the sport events at the Infantry School, over-night. Until this season, soccer was an unknown game to the garrison, excepting the 15th Tankers, who have held a company series for the past two years.

This season there will be a soccer league with seven teams competing, they represent the Special Units, 29th Infantry and 15th Tank Battalion. There will be three teams from the doughboy outfit, three from the Tankers, while the 7th Engineers will uphold the honor of the Special Units.

In the first soccer game of the season played here (unofficial) last Friday, Nov. 30, the Gin-Ears took a close decision from "B" Company of the 15th Tanks, by the score of 1 to 0. The game was keenly contested all the way through and the defense of both sides was unusually strong.

The first period ended with both sides charging and bullying the ball without either side being able to score. Near the end of the second period the Engineers lived up to their reputation by engineering the ball through the Tanker defense to shoot it by their safety man for the only score of the game. The play was as follows: The Engineer's left wing passed the ball to his left forward who faked a kick towards the goal, this causing the goal keeper to come in and cover the ball. As the goal keeper rushed in, the left forward passed sharply to the right forward who was coming in at an angle, the right forward kicking the goal.

The Tankers fought hard to regain the lost point, but the Gin-Ears refused to relinquish their one point lead, the final whistle finding the boys from the Red Hill, victors by a 1 to 0 score.

The inherent good qualities of this game is probably one of the many reasons of its popularity in larger cities and it is the popular opinion that before many more games are played, that the spirit that prevails in other sections will be the dominant factor for a successful soccer year in Fort Benning, both in interest and participation.

TERRIBLE TANKERS ROLL OVER 1ST BAT. DOUGHBOYS IN WEDNESDAY'S GAME

Much Interest Shown in Approaching Championship Game

(By Al Durden)

Showing the powerful driving power that has carried them to two consecutive football championships, the Terrible Tankers ran roughshod over the fighting doughboys from the First Battalion of the 29th Infantry at the Doughboy Stadium, Wednesday afternoon to win by the one-sided score of 39 to 0.

The showing of the Tanker team Wednesday has upset the old dope bucket all over again. Critics of the pigskin game who have been keeping a wary eye on the antics of the Kellys and Tankers with a view to placing their Christmas money on the winner of the coming struggle between these two rivals are completely puzzled. The Tanker line that looked like a rusty sieve against the Artillerymen one wek ago turned back the doughboy charges without a tremor. Knub Bennett and Sullie Sullivan showed a brand of line plunging and end runs that caused a cold chill to creep down the spines of the Demonstration backers.

Against the terrific assault of this powerful smooth working machine the First Bats had little to offer except a never die fighting spirit that refused to admit deefat. Hicks and O'Neillion bore the brunt of the attack in the line, although every crimson jerseyed player gave his all in a desperate attempt to stem the tide of defeat. Time and again with the powerful line opening the way, Tanker ball-carriers hurled the tangled mass of fighting linemen to find the secondary deefnse charging to the attack, and time and again Romploski and Hampshire hit hard and true, but there is a limit to human endurance, and before the drive of Terrible Tankers the Doughboys were forced to give ground though they fought bitterly to the final whistle.

Excepting "Knub" Bennett the Tanker team was simply a well oiled machine working perfectly with every cog of the machine doing its part. Bennett could be alluded to as the dynamo of this machine for his smashes through the line mixed with his twisting spinning end runs ripped the First Bat line to shreds; time and again he continued to plough forward with two or three doughboys trying to bring him down.

An injury to Jack Harper on the eve of the game was a severe blow to the First Bats. Harper was sent in and attempted to play but his condition was such that he was taken from the game immediately.

Joris gave fans a wonderful exhibition of punting, with the wind at his back, Loui's punts traveled like a miniature balloon.

During the first period the First Bats made a valiant fight and for the first first part of the period honors were about even. Near the end of the quarter, a Tanker drive mixed with short passes and straight plays through the line put the ball on the First Bats' 5-yard mark, from where Bennett ploughed his way for a touchdown. Sullivan added the extra point. The Demonstrationist missed a fine chance to score near the end of the period, Hampshire passed to Reddock who was run out of bounds on the Tanks 4-yard strip, this chance went glimmering when Reddock tried a pass across the goal line to Hicks, Lindsey blocked it, the ball going over to the Tankers on their 20-yard line.

Sullivan intercepted a doughboy pass early in the second period and galloped 55 yards for a touchdown, the kick was blocked.

Late in the second period a doughboy fumble gave the Tankers the ball on the First Bats 15-yard line. Bennett and Sullivan smashed the line for gains to place the ball on the three-yard strip, Cue Ball Smith carrying it across the final marker on the next play. Joris kicked the point, making the score 20 to 0 for the first half.

The second half was a repetition of the first. In the third quarter the Tankers started a drive from their 15-yard strip that ended when Bennett ploughed his way through a mass of Tankers and Doughboys for a touchdown.

Romploski misjudged Joris' kick, the ball being downed on the First Bats' one-yard line, in an attempt to kick out, the ball went out of bounds on the Infantry's 16-yard line. On the second play Joris skimmed off his own right tackle to cross the last white strip.

The Tankers surely showed championship caliber in Wedensday's game, still the speed and cunning of the Kells will even up the weight and driving power of the Tanks.

True the Kellys have no "Knob" Bennett (few teams have), the Tanker line also has a slight edge over the Demonstrationist, but where will you find a pair of Kellys and Franzs; they are not asleep at the switch (neither are the Tankers). Time will tell. In my own estimation it is a toss up, with the team getting the breaks winning the championship.

SECOND BATS AND SPECIAL UNITS, THE INFANTRY SCHOOL MEET ON DOUGHBOY STADIUM TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Beginning promptly at 2:30 Saturday afternoon Doughboy Stadium will witness another struggle in football when the teams representing the Second Battalion of the Twenty-ninth Infantry and the Special Units of the Infantry School clash.

Pre dope has it that it will be an easy affair for the boys of the "We Lead The Way" regiment. This being placed on the results of the games played by both teams to date. In the opening game of the season "Kel and Fat," ran roughshod over their brothers in arms and trounced them to th escore of nineteen to nothing, while a fortday later the First Bats more than made up for the defeat handed them by the Second Bats, and romped over the Special Units to the tune of thirty-six to six. So, this my readers, is the comparative strength of the two teams.

However, the Special Units team has been going through a stiff workout during the week and are determined to go in and prove that their defeat at the hands of the First Bats was more or less in the way of a break. They are not expecting to startle everyone or even pronouncing that they will upset old man "dope" and win Saturday's game but are promising to go in and show the mettle of which they are made and that there are as good football players on the Special Units team as on any other team of the garrison.

In Saturday's clash the Special Units will feel keenly the loss of "Chief Ryan, their star fullback and former member of the All Army Team that was whipped into condition last year at the Infantry School to fight the Quantico Marines at Clark Stadium in Washington, D. C., for the President's Cup Game. At present it is unknown who will try to fill the place left vacant by the big Indian.

SGT. E. J. LEHMANN

Many soldiers at Fort Benning were much grieved to hear of the death of Sergeant Emil J. Lehmann, acting first sergeant of the Recruit Center, which occurred at the Station Hospital on November 28. Sgt. Lehmann's duty put him in contact with hundreds of soldiers who have enlisted at Fort Benning the past few years. He was much interested in the new soldier, and in his duty as acting first sergeant, the recruits learned to love Sgt. Lehmann for the many kind words and encouragement which he gave him.

Sgt. Lehmann was a native of Germany and spent twenty-eight years in the United States Army. At the time of death he was 58 years old.

Funeral services were held at the Protestant Chapel Saturday morning, Nov. 30, Chaplain Wright officiating. Company "C", 29th Infantry, of which Sgt. Lehmann was a member, attended in a body. Interment was in Fort Benning cemetery.

THE ANCIENT GAME OF POLO

(By Al Durden)

During the polo season, the personnel of Fort Benning will be able to see two fast and interesting games of polo at French Field, every Sunday afternoon, weather permitting. Polo is steadily becoming one of the foremost of American sports.

There is nothing new about the game of polo, unless we say that it is so old until it is new, for polo has been traced back to the days of the two thousand years ago.

It might be well to repeat for the information of those unfamiliar with polo, the history of this ancient game.

Earliest records of this game of ball and mallet are Persian. The game was encouraged by the ancient Persian rulers and polo tournaments were held frequently to test and develop the horsemanship and courage of the courtiers and soldiers. Tis said in the legends of old that the mighty Persians did at times use the bleached skulls of their enemies for balls.

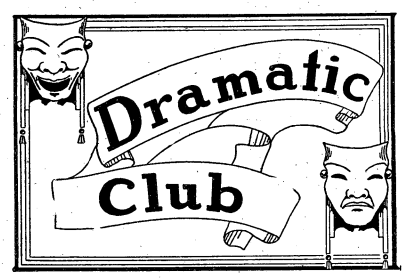
The game spread westward to the court of Byzantine emperors at Constantinople, and eastward to Thibet, China and Japan. The origin of the word is traced to a Thibetian word, signifying willow root, of which, as well as bamboo root the best polo balls are still turned.

During its existence of 2000 years, there has been many varieties of polo: Persian, a highly organized game with rules, played four on a side on grounds 300 by 170 yards; the Byzantine form played at Constantinople in the 12th century with a leather ball and racket; the Chinest game, about 600 A. D., played with a light wooden ball, with goals boarding in between, in the latter a hole being cut and a net in the form of a bag being attracted. The Japanese game is similar and as played with racket shaped sticks.

Polo was first introduced into England by the 10th Hussars in 1869, and was adopted by the Hurlington Club in 1873. Due to their irregular grounds the Hurlington Club introduced the device of side-boards which have since become universal.

The game was brought to America from England by James Gordon Bennett and the first Inter-national match between the United States and England was held in 1886. For many years the English teams were consistently victorious in the matches but in 1909 an American team won the International cup. The British regained the trophy in 1914. The Great War halted polo for a period but in 1921 the American four was successful in returning the cup to the United States and it was successfully defended in 1924 and again in 1927.

"Circus in town?"
"No, this is a Christmas tie."



THREE PLAYS ON DECEMBER 21ST

The next shows will be presented on December 21 at the Main Theater. Due to the fact that next show will be at the Main Theater applications for membership will be received at any time. The capacity of the 29th Infantry theater was somewhat limited hence the decision that there would necessarily have to be a limited membership enrollment. To further clarify the action taken by the club recently on the question of guests the club wishes to inform the members that guests will be limietd to two per each member of the club. In other words, if the head of the house is a member while the wife is not, only two guests will be taken to club plays. If both members of the family belong to the club four guests may be taken to the shows. Bachelor officers who are members of the club may invite two guests.

Work has already begun on the plays to be given this month and full details will be announced in next week's issue of the News. Reports are to the effect that the December plays will be under the direction of experienced club members who have put over successful plays in the past.

Company "H"

The Gun Room has been completed and we are now occupying it. To ruin everything though, Corporal John A. O'Brien had to go and start a storm of a certain kind on the equipment. I hope that some day the First Sergeant will find him down by the river and give the command to fall in. Then we would all know that John was all wet.

Pvt. Dyke has started on the new bins for the new Supply Room. If they look half as nifty as the gun bins, Sgt. Cody will have the best looking and most convenient supply room in the Regiment.

Corporal Fracher has run out of anythin gto do, so he now has an assistant to help him do it. Pvt. Collins is his assistant. I think that they are planning on lceaning their paint brushes some time next month. Then I suppose that Corp. Fracher will have those old fatigue clothes of his laundered.

That Thanksgiving dinner sure did fit in good to fill the vacant corners. Corporal Lowe addressed the turkey on his table with "You might have been an efficient old gobbler, but you have sure lost your strut now." Corporal Duff had to be almost choked off, and we have not heard Corporal Pieters making any complaints.

Corporal Coffey says that there are 27 inches in a yard. I think that he is going to get a job with Joe Gillman.

—B. B. S.

Company "G"

Pvt. King's first trip to town was a good one. King decided to stay in town so he walked into a hotel and asked the clerk what they charged for a room. The clerk told him they charged ten dollars on the second, nine dollars for the third, eight dollars for the fourth and etc. In other words the higher the room the lower the price. King started to walk out and the clerk asked him what was the matter and if the rates weren't low enough. King replied, "Oh yes, your rates are low enough but your rooms are not high enough."

We are getting our basket ball court in shape. Look out for our speed this season, we are coming out strong.

This is whatCpl. Newman said when he got back from furlough,"I went ten round with Dempsey and I was feeling fine for it was on a ferris wheel and his seat was next to mine."

Well we have some Old Timers from the Cooks and Bakers School. We hope that can show us a few things about the kitchen. We are glad to pick a few pointers.

Sop, look and listen, Supply Sgts. of the Post. Just wait until we get through with the Company Supply Room. We will show you a regular supply room.

Company "E"

Sergeant New, "E" Company's old war horse, has been placed on special duty with the boiler makers as Drum Major and believe me he sure can swing a wicked baton. We were sorry to see him go but were glad to see him have a big soft job.

Our combat squad has completed the firing of the Chief of Infantry's Combat squad competition. Have not heard the results, but hope we come out on top. The following named men have taken advantage of Christmas furloughs to their homes: Corp. O. L. Smith, Pvt. 1cl. L. D. Jones, Steiner, McCoy, Privates Colvin, Swearengen, Ward, Moody, G. B., and Cooper. The following have returned from enjoyable furloughs at their homes: Corp. Ira P. Moore, Corp. Bennie L. Canada, and Privates Hooper, Rogers and Maynard.

A Letter

Dear Mabel:

I guess you will be surprised to know that I am in the Army. I enlisted about two weeks ago and like it fine. I would written you before now but during the 14 days I was in the Recruit Center I was kept so busy that I was unable to write any one. I am down here at Fort Benning, and I like the place fine. I am sure that there is no aCmp in theU. S. A. that beats Fort Benning, Georgia, and the city of Columbus, Ga., can't be beat. My present Organization is Company "E" 29th Infantry, I have been told that it is the best outfit around here. As the short time being I have found it to be true. The General of Fort Benning gave us a holiday from Wednesday noon to Monday morning at reveille. I didn't go any place during the holiday week as I wanted to be here for the Thanksgiving dinner, and talk about a feast, "E" Company sure put on one. I never ate so much at one time in all m ylife as I did here in "E" Company. Our Mess Sergeant Zed Buford sure knows his stuff when it comes to eats. Private Theodore Brown, my bunkie who hails from New Orleans, Louisiana, is hard to get out of bed in the morning. The Platoon Sergeant the other morning saw that he was still in bed and reminded him that first call had gone that he must arise. Brown raised his head in an unconscious manner and informed Platoon Sergeant he would just wait for the second call. We had a big football game here yesterday Saturday, December 1, 1928, and as usual our good old Second Batt. won. I kept account of the score until it got to 47 to nothing of the third quarter and then I had to look for an adding machine. During the starting of the game Corporal Stanley remarked, "I think the Artillery is going to kic koff." Sergeant Halpern replied, "Good night, I didn't even know they were sick." Sergeant Dalby asked another recruit the other day, "What makes you ask such dumb questions?" And the recruit replied, "So you can answer them." Private Lamb went to town last Wednesday and went into a soda fount and he was in there for sometime. The waitress, "did you order this Sundae (Sunday)." Pvt. Lamb replied, "Goodness sakes, have I been here that long?" Well I will ring off for this time but will try and write you again next week. I am looking forward to a large time next Sunday while on Kitchen Police.

Sincerely,

Jack.

REGULATIONS WAVED TO ENLIST ARMY'S SHORTEST MAN

The Army's tallest man, and the Army's strongest man have both been in the limelight from time to time. Such characteristics are naturally stuff that news is made of. But now the rule is working the other way, and the Army's shortest and lightest man comes in for his share of the spotlight performances. He is Private John David Proctor, 26th Infantry, Prattsburg, New York and whose home is Watervliet, New York. He stands just five feet two inches in height and weighs 110 pounds, which makes him two inches under the prescribed minimum in height and ten pounds short on requirement in weight. — (Recruiting News.)

ARMY WIVES INTERESTED IN GREATER PURCHASING POWER OF THEIR DOLLAR

(By S. F. Tillman, Dept. of Commerce)

Kipling once said, "The Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin!" That certainly holds true as far as Army wives and civilian wives are concerned with respect to "getting the best value for the lowest price," except that army wives and daughters, don't have the same convenience of buying as enjoyed by their civilian friends.

Home management among the matrons of the Army has no equal for executive ability, in any of the class of professional occupations. This is due to the fact that the majority of army wives were once "army Juniors," and married in the service. In the first place, under army regulations, an army officer can draw certain items of furniture when occupying public quarters. Yet, when on D. O. L. duty in the city he must buy his personal household furnishings so that when the four year detail is over and he goes back to troop duty, he must sell his personal home equipment or put it in storage.

At best the Army officer's pay is small. His necessities tax the purchasing power of his dollars to the utmost. Nevertheless, he, like millions of other consumers, is not getting the most of his purchasing power, due to the high cost of living, which is resultant of the existing waste in industry. Industry has aawkened to this condition, and has started to "clean house" through simplified practice.

Every army officer has heard of simplification and the part that it is playing in the studies of war-time procurement, by officers on duty in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War and the Quartermaster General's Office. Simplification is also applicable in the procuring of personal supplies and equipment. It can be used by the individual officer and his family which are part of the great American Army of Consumers.

This simplification work is being carried out by the manufacturers, distributors and consumers in co-operation with the Division of Simplified Practice of the Department of Commerce. The scope of the program is assisting industry to eliminate an avoid waste. In a restricted sense the word "waste" means something perishable or something that cannot be utilized. There are, however, other wastes in industry, among them, those caused by too great a diversity in manufacture. Because of this over diversity, a part of every dollar spent by the American Consumer pays for this waste.

What causes this waste? The desire of some manufacturers to produce something different from their competitors often results in flooding the market with a surprising variety of articles which show only slight and immaterial differences in size and form. This practice has clogged avenues of distribution, bulged the warehouses of wholesalers, and congested the shelves of retailers. Often times the disposal of such surplus goods has been possible only at a loss. "Bargain Sales," "Shop Worn Sales" and the like testify to this.

The desire to "get the best quality of a product for the lowest price" is just as strong with the army wife as the civilian consumers. Consumers generally regard themselves as the unlucky victims of circumstances, when the prices go up, and lucky when they come down. Seldom, if ever does the individual consumer consider that the control of prices rests in her hands. Nevertheless, the fact remains that consumers can, and do, control prices is proven by these occasional developments known as "buyers strikes." At such times prices are usually up to a point where the consumers would rather have their money than the article and so no sale is made.

The goods pile up until those manufacturing and selling are forced to "liquidate", i. e., cut the price to a point where the consumers will take the goods off their hands. However, such "strikes" are unsatisfactory, since, in the long run, they cause wastes, which eventually are paid for by the consumers in the form of depreciated quality, poor service, and other ways. Remember the catch phrase, "Shelf-worn."

Even with these so-called "sales," the consumers with their "bargains" are forced to accept articles that failed to find purchasers when first placed on the market.

If as stated, the present hit-or-miss method of buying on the part of the consumers does not utilize the purchasing power of their dollar to the fullest extent, how can the consumers do better?

Simplified Practice and standardization will assist the Army wife as well as other consumers in getting better qualities for her money.

What are the gains to the army wife as a consumer from Simplified Practice, and how can she increase these gains?

The Army wife-consumer will get a better made article at a better value, for better values are brought about through mass-production of a few types of product with all its attendant manufacturin geconomies. When employees develop a higher degree of skill in manufacturing and a greater degree of accuracy in inspection, a better quality of product naturally follows. She will also have greater ease of replacement through simplified practice for worn-out or broken parts.

To illustrate this last point. What happens when an article not of standard pattern becomes broken or worn out?

The consumer goes searching for a new part. It is the old, old story, "Sorry, we will have to order that from the factory for you, which will take about three or four weeks." There is nothing else to do but make out with the damaged article until the factory sends on the new part. What a conveniences it would be for the Army wife, if she could walk into the store and get what she wants at once.

If the army wife is to make fullest use of her opportunity to exercise greater control over the purchasing power of her dollars, she can begin by cooperating, in an organized way, with other consumers, manufacturers, distributors and merchants in concentrating production and sales on the standard article. Most Army purchases are made through the post exchange or by mail. Thus the army wife can well afford to join with all her agencies of supply, in the effort to reduce avoidable waste in production and selling.

To illustrate, studies of hundreds different commodity lines, based on experiences of the Division of Simplified Practice, has demonstrated that 80 per cent of the business in almost any line is done in 20 per cent of the varieties in which that line is offered to the public. The remaining 80 per cent of variety which brings in only one-fifth of the year's excessive inventory, higher cost to carry or stock, slow turnover, heavy obsolescence or style depreciation, and consequently cause loss to the producer, the distributor and to the consumer.

Since it is the common practice to provide in the mark-up, a percentage to cover such loss, it is evident that every consumer pays an invisible tax when buying one size, or kind, of goods for those other siezs or kinds that do not sell. The individual manufacturers who have analyzed their sales and have concentrated their production and selling efforts on those varieties in proven greater demand, are able to give the public relatively better quality, better service and lower price, and consequently have greatly increased their sales.

Through the cooperative service offered to industry by this branch of the Department of Commerce, approximately 100 different commodity lines have been stripped of superfluous variety. Many items of home furnishings in which the army housewives are interested, have been reduced to variety. Indeed many common place commodities have been simplified, all of which are sold to the retail consumer.

Army people are familiar with the fact that house-furnishing stores and department stores have long carried "open stock" in chinaware and that these are the cheapest. They know that broken dishes in the "open patterns" can be replaced because they are constantly carried in stock. The "discontinued lines" are often found in the "bargain basement". Effort to replace parts of sets of freak patterns, jazzy styles, and seldom wanted varieties usually results in either failure or excessive cost.

Let us consider what the results of simplified practice have been on articles used in the home. Begin with the humble milk bottle. Before simplification was undertaken in this commounity, there were 59 types of milk bottles in use. These included, sizes ,shapes and other features, but did not affect the total capacity of the bottle. A survey of actual demand indicated that 4 sizes of milk bottles and 1 size for caps would adequately meet all needs. These are now in general use and the "odd" or "special" sizes are fast disappearing from the market.

Some statistically inclined writer once pointed out that we spend a third of our lives in bed. If that estimate is even approximately correct, it is clear that the various parts of so important a piece of furniture should be readily replace-able. No doubt there are army housewives who have met with difficulty in replacing springs and mattresses because of diversity in the size of their items. When the makers of beds, springs, and mattresses, as well as the change from sumers got together to consider simplification, a survey revealed the inteersting fact that there were 78 possible combinations of sizes in these commodities. Now there are four possible size combinations for beds, springs and mattresses. This permits the interchange of springs and mattresses, as well a sthe change from one type of bedstead to another, whether of mtal or wood. This has not interfered with the style of the bed. It can still be early American or late Grand Rapids.

Similar action was undertaken with reference to bed blankets, it being agreed to replace the existing 78 sizes with 12. The adoption of these 12 sizes has in no way affected the artistry of blanket making, yet the merchants report better turnover with smaller stores and consequently great savings in storage space, the rental for which always enters into the cost of an article.

A bed blanket manufacturer recently wrote the Division in which he said that "at the beginning of this year, we cut down the sizes and styles carried in our blanket and comfort department about 40 per cent from what we carried during the preceding year. The result, that in spite of a 40 per cent simplification of the blanket and comfort department, we increased our sales approximately 7 per cent."

Army youngsters, as their mothers know, seem to find ways to cut their fingers, thus providing a need for adhesive tape and surgical gauze. The former has been reduced in roll sizes from 3 to 2, widths from 8 to 5, and lengths from 23 to 13 varieties. School supplies have not been neglected, composition books having been reduced from 86 varieties to 41, and pencils are now in the process of simplification.

There is scarcely a commodity line which is not susceptible to some degree of simplification. There are literally thousands of opportunities for its application and many manufacturers, are willing to do their part in this cooperative program just as soon as the consumers will make known their interest by requesting the "Standard" article. Such reductions as are effected through simplification are of immense value to the consumer, for if the plan is put into effect by all of the concerns engaged in making the same class of commodities, it is reasonable to suppose that the effect will be cumulative, and the benefits to the consumers multiplied. The economies which are gained by the manufacturers and distributors must be passed on to the consumer in any competitive business, either in reduced price or more and better values for the money.

24th INFANTRY HISTORY

During the swimming meet of the 24th Infantry held about two months past, one of the men who was entered in the one hundred yard breast stroke became exhausted before gaining the finish line and called lustily for succor. A couple of life guards went in and brought him out. Later some of the other soldiers were joking him about the wild yells he gave when it became apparent that he could not make the shore ,he said: "I'm no Corporal Johnson, when I starts to sink I yells." As this Corporal Johnson has been referred to in other events connected with swimming, we asked the soldier why he mentioned him, and who was Corporal Johnson. He didn't know, but said that whenever anyone said anything about drowning this Corporal's name was generally mentioned.

We became extremely curious and inquired throughout the 24th concerning him. All had heard of his name but none knew who or what he was. So back into history we went. The history of the regiment form the time that it was formed was followed. We found him, and here it is, taken from official records of the Philippine campaigns of 1899:

It was the 6th of December, 1899, and the "Lost Battalion" of the 24th, consisting of Companies "F", "H", and detachments from "A" and "K" Companies, were moving northward down the Cagayan River Valley in the northeast part of Luzon. Coming to a river about one hundred yards wide they were fired upon from the town of Naguilian from the opposite bank. The Companies deployed along the river bank and opened a steady fire. As there was no way to cross this river, which was wide, deep and swift, Captain J. B. Bachelor, who was in command, sent some men back about a half mile to secure the bamboo from an old shack.

While some of the men were engaged in constructing a make-shift raft, Lt. McMaster asked permission to take four men, swim over to the other shore to try to find some kind of boat. This was given him. He caused the men to take off all their clothes, and he took his own off—except some underclothing. Carrying their rifles in one hand over their heads, they took to the water.

In the meanwhile, Sgt. Wilcox and his party had succeeded in constructing a sort of raft which would hold up about three men. They made it of bamboo poles bound together with pieces of shelter halves torn in strips and canteen straps. The raft was pieced together on the river bank under a steady fire from the natives in th etown and on the bluffs on the opposite shore. As soon as it was completed Lt. C. H. Miller taking Sgt. Wilcox and one man began the crossing. Thinking that the raft would sink or turn over in the swift current, they had taken off their clothes. Seven rifles and some ammunition was carried, and with the water coming over the frail craft they slowly paddled across the river under fire.

Lt. McMaster had taken his four men a short distance up the river where they could cross without attracting the attention of the enemy, who were busily engaged in firing upon the party constructing the raft. About half way across it became apparent that the rifles would have to be discarded, the current was to swift to carry them and swim. They were dropped and the men swam on to the other side with nothing to protect themselves with in the event that they were discovered.

Corporal John A. Johnson was in this party of Lt. McMasters'. He was not quite so good a swimmer as the balance of the detachment, and the current drifted him down towards the town where if he had been seen would have brought attention to the other men swimming farther up the stream. They then, of course, would have been met at the water's edge by the natives and cut to pieces.

Lt. McMasters, looking around to see that all his men were present, missed one. He immediately stopped swimming and asked where the other man was. Some of the men told him Corporal Johnson had floated down stream. Looking that way he saw that the corporal was in distress. It was plain to be seen that he was exhausted and could not make the bank. The Lieutenant was in a quandary; to go to the assistance of Johnson would mean sure discovery by the natives, still he would not see one of his men drown. So calling to his men to continue to the opposite bank, he started to swim down the river and overtake the Corporal.

But Corporal Johnson saw the whole situation. He knew that if the officer came to his help that by the time the Lieutenant got to him both of them would be so far down the river that they would be seen from the town, and the small party slaughtered as they got to the shore. He seemed to know that if they tried to save him the whole party was doomed. Raising himself as high out of the water as he was able he waved the officer back. Then holding his hand over his head to show the rest of the men that he was going down for good, he sank from sight and was never seen again.

Lt. McMaster turned and led his men to the bank where they landed unseen from the town. In a few minutes they saw Lt. Miller and his two men coming over on the raft. Moving downstream under cover of the bank they met these and secured rifles and ammunition. With two officers in their underclothes and six men in nothing, except a cartridge belt, they prepared to attack the town.

Moving on down the river bank they worked around to the left flank of the natives; fell upon them with ferocity and drove them from the town. They charged one trench with forty natives in it, all armed, and their charge was so swift and conducted with such precision that they captured several natives with their rifles cocked, and no time left to pull the trigger.

This must have been a queer sight; these few naked men, led by two officers in their underclothes, charging and firing through the town. The town was cleared in a few minutes and the balance of the command then came across in boats found on the north side of the river.

Corporal John H. Johnson, Co. "H" 24th Infantry, was the only man lost in this engagement, and who knows, perhaps if he had not so willingly given his life for his comrades, the entire expedition might have failed, and the "Lost Battalion" might still be lost in the wilds of northeast Luzon.

The young act old and sophisticated; the old act young and breathless.

SPECIAL BENEFIT SHOW FOR ARMY RELIEF SUNDAY

the Pathe News will be shown. All of this is to be offered at the regular hours and at no advance in prices. Admission will be twenty-five cents for adults and ten cents for children, just as usual. There is one difference however; the War Department has authorized that the proceeds of the show be turned in to the Army Relief as part of Fort Benning's annual contribution.

TWO POLO GAMES AT FRENCH FIELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Eighty-third and Students Clash in First Game; Twenty-ninth and Freebooters in Second.

Sunday afternoon, weather permitting, malletmen and spectators will hie themselves out to French field to participate in and be interested spectators of the two polo games to be played there.

The first game will begin exactly when the hour and minute rest at the hour marking two o'clock with the first game between the Galloping Gunners of the Eighty-third Field Artillery and the Students, while the second game will be between the Dmonstrationists of the Twenty-ninth Infantry and Freebooters. Both games will consist of six periods each.

At present neither team seems to have an advantage over the other as all are breaking about even in the games played. Probably this is due to the fact that all who are trying for a position on the various teams are seen in action. This style of playing will continue on until Christmas. This is being done so that all candidates may be given ample opportunity to prove their worth before the final selection of the different teams is made, which in turn, will enter the tournament which will be held either in the latter part of February or the first of March.

KELLYS RUN ROUGH SHOD OVER GALLOPING GUNNERS

(By Al Durden)

In a steady drizzle of rain on a water sogged field, the Kellys of the Second Bats, 2 9th Infantry, swamped the Galloping Gunners at the Doughboy Stadium football field, Saturday afternoon by the one-sided score of 51 to 0.

Fat Franz replaced the missing sun with his dazzling playing. Time and again this doughboy would slip, slide and sidestep his way through the entire Gunner defense for long gains that rolled up the enormous score.

The fight that has always been outstanding where the Gunners were concerned, was sadly missing Saturday afternoon (maybe it was the weather).

The Gunners were simply swamped from the word go. Several times the old Artillery fighting spirit would flare up, but it just would not stay. Working like a well oiled machine, the Kellys enjoyed a field day.

Comparing the showing of the Gunners against the Tankers and the Kellys, it looks like the Tankers are doomed. But when we remember the fighting Gunners that charged the Tanker line and compare them with the stumbling blundering Gunners that faced the Kellys, there is no comparison. The Gunners just ran true to form, they turned over the dope bucket again.

There is no need to go over the slaughter of Saturday, the Kellys merely lined up and advanced down the field, shooting passes, slipping around the ends or tearing through center, while when the Gunners got the ball in their possession they were unable to dent the front wall of the Kelly defense.

Ptomey Wins by Knockout in the Sixth Round

ALL-SERVICE CHAMPION STOPS OREGON WILDCAT WITH KNOCKOUT IN SIXTH ROUND AT FIGHT ARENA

(By Al Durden)

Willie Ptomey, all-service middleweight champion and the undisputed peer of any middleweight below the Mason and Dixon line, added the much heralded name of Maxie Peltz, Pacific Coast Champion, to his long list of victims, in the sixth round of their scheduled ten round fight at the Fort Benning arena last Tuesday night.

Ptomey's victory over Peltz was a complete surprise to his most ardent admirers. Peltz came East from the Pacific Coast after he cleaned up everything in his division there. Matched with some of the best boys in his weight around New York and Philadelphia he created a sensation in the "Big Time" fight circles, by piling up an imposing list of victories. Plans were underway to match Peltz with Mickey Walker, the bout to take place in the spring. In the mean time Peltz's manager decided to bring the boy South for a clean-up, returning to New York in time to prepare for the Walker fight in the spring.

Peltz made a wonderful beginning with a knockout over Gunner DePratt at Savannah, Ga., Nov. 27, in one of the fiercest ring battles ever witnessed in the "City By The Sea." One week later he was matched to meet Willie Ptomey, stable mate of DePratt, the fight to take place at the Fort Benning arena, December 11th.

Peltz arrived in Fort Benning, several days before the fight, his workouts were watched with interest, every one predicted that Ptomey was no match for this youngster with the lightning jabs and paralyzing punches. Ptomey was the least worried of the lot.

Tuesday night finally arrived, the fight arena was packed to over flowing. All ready fight gossip had matched Peltz with Young Stribling as soon as he murdered Willie Ptomey.

Twenty minutes before time for the first preliminary bout, the arena was crowded. The 29th Infantry Orchestra kept the crowd's shoulders moving and their toes tingling with classy jazz selections during the final twenty minutes.

A cheer went up from the crowd as Tut Taylor and Tanker Brooks, bantamweights, crawled through the ropes to stage the opening three rounder. The boys lost no time in getting together, Taylor was the faster and cleverer fighter of the two but Brooks showed an ability to take them and still fight back that surprised as well as gained the admiration of the fans. Taylor easily took the decision but Brooks was given a big hand by the crowd for his willingness and gameness.

"Fuzzy" Douglas of the Caisson Riders was no match for "Saginaw" Seeley, a newcomer. Seeley gave the artillerymman a nice drubbing to take the decision.

Red Lawson from the Isle of Nassau but a member of the 24th Infantry, certainly put the kiwassus on the hoodoo that hovered about him for the past two years when he came into possession of those flaming scarlet trunks. On his first appearance in the blonde britches on the card before the last one, Red scored his first knockout in two years. Tuesday night with the scarlet trunks looking redder than ever, Red won another victory for his second consecutive Kao in as many battles. (Viva la rouge Breeches).

Buddy Brault was awarded a tech kao over Babie Sewell of Columbus, when Sewell went down twice in the third round without being hit. Brault had handed the youngster an awful beating up until the referee stopped the fight.

By virtue of three knock-downs and his ability to reach his more rugged opponent with a lightning left that sit him

Dramatic Club to Present Two Plays Friday, Dec. 21

THIRD SERIES OF PLAYS AT MAIN THEATRE; MEMBERS URGED TO ARRIVE ON TIME

The third of the series of performances to be given by the Infantry School Dramatic Club will be presented next Friday, December 21, at the Main Theater. Two plays will be given by the club. Three plays had been on the tentative schedule but due to illness of one of the cast it was necessary to cancel the third play. However ,the two plays selected by the club to be given next Friday are excellent and are to be compared favorably with the plays given in the first two shows of the season.

The tickets for the plays next Friday will be placed at the Officers Club on Tuesday at 4:15 P. M. This time is set so that both students and permanent officers have both been given an equal opportunity to make reservations. The time of the performances has been set at 8:30 P. M. and officials of the club desire that those who make reservations be prompt on arrival at the theater. The theater will be open at 8 P. M., which allows thirty minutes for everyone to arrive and be seated for the rise of the curtain. Seats have never before been reserved and the reservations for next Friday's shows have been announced in order that confusion will be avoided and give all club members an equal opportunity to procure the best seats. Club members are urged to arrive before the rise of the curtain at 8:30.

The two plays to be presented Friday are "The Black Suitcase" and "Op' o' Thumbs," the directors being Mrs. J. K. Rice and Mrs. P. R. Goode, respectively.

The cast:

"THE BLACK SUITCASE"

Mother, Mrs. Jesse A. Ladd; Bridget, Mrs. L. A. Hixson; Father, Capt. O. W. Reed; Bootlegger, Himself; Housebreaker, ?; Sis, Miss Daisy Reed; Bud, Lieut. Wells; Jack Plummer, Lieut. Strohbehn; Terrence, Capt. Bent.

"O' O' THUMB"

Madame Napoleon Diden, Mrs. Avera; Clem Galloway, Mrs. J. I. Wood; Rose Jordan, Mrs. Arms; Celeste, Mrs. Hester; Amanda Afflick, Mrs. Mood; Horace Greensmith, Lieut. Conrad.

ROOSMA'S BASKEETEERS DEFEAT HUBBARD'S FAST CAGERS LAST WEDNESDAY

The Hubbard Hardware's fast aggregation of basketeers invaded Fort Benning Wednesday night. The Hubbardites went down to defeat by the close margin of 46 to 41. Both teams were fast, and if Wednesday's game be taken as a criteron of the brand of ball the Infantry School will play this season, it is quite a certainty that this year's team will be one of the best ever to represent the doughboys. Lieut. Johnny Roosma was the star of the game, annexing a total of eighteen points for his team. This feat was accomplished even though Fort Benning's star point winner was taken out of the game near the middle of the second half. All other players on Benning's team were in fine condition and played an excellent game. The first formal game of the season will be played Monday eevning when the Birmnigham "Y" will meet the Inf. School team. The Alabama team comes to Fort Benning with an enviable record and basket ball fans should take advantage of the opportunity to see this team in action here.

RULES REGARDING PARKING OF CARS AT POLO GAMES

Parking spaces, unless otherwise designated, for all polo games at Fort Benning, are set aside for members of the Officers Club. First come, first served.

Parking spaces purchased by civilians are marked with their names and reserved for their use.

Parking spaces opposite the ends of the field are reserved for enlisted men.

Grandstand: Reserved for members of the Officers Club.

Bleachers: Reserved for officers and enlisted men.

Please Note: Spectators availing themselves of the privileges of the grandstand are requested not to park their cars in the reserved parking spaces around the field.

TWO POLO GAMES SUNDAY

There will be two polo games Sunday afternoon at French Field. The first game will be between the 83rd Field Artillery and Freebooters; the second betwen 29th Infantry and Students. Time of first game is 2 P. M.

FIRST BATTALION CINCHES THIRD PLACE IN SERIES IN GAME WITH ARTILLERYMEN

(By Al Durden)

A fighting Doughboy machine rolled over the Galloping Gunners of the 83rd Field Artillery at the Doughboy Stadium Wednesday afternoon to win a hard fought football game and to cinch third place in the Garrison Football Series.

The first half of Wednesday's game was close and hard fought. The Doughboys scored first in the opening quarter, the Gunners took the opening punt on their 5-yard strip, a moment later when the Gunners attempted to punt from back of their goal line the Doughboys broke through to nail McAuliffe for a safety and 2 points.

The Artillerymen came back strong in the second frame, shoving over a touchdown to take the lead 6 to 2. Near the end of the first half the Doughboys came back to score a touchdown and end the half with the score 8 to 6 in their favor.

In the third quarter "Ole Man" Romploski flashed the sped and football craftiness that once made his name a terror to opposing teams. Taking the ball on practically every play, Romp ripped, spun and twisted his way through the Gunner line, slipped around the ends, tossed and received forward passes with equal success. He crossed the Gunner goal line for three touchdowns in the third quarter. After the rout of the third quarter the Gunner defense steadied and held during the remainder of the game but the First Bats had won a football game and were resting securely in third position.

Score by quarters:

First Bats	2	6	18	0	—26
Artillery	0	6	0	0	— 6

PTOMEY WINS BY KNOCKOUT

back on his heels time and again, Blondie Parker was awarded the decision over Wally Eskew of Atlanta at the end of a fierce six-rounder. Parker took a big lead in the opening rounds but weakened toward the finish. Eskew proved to be the more rugged and in the final rounds he gave the soldier an adful beating but could not put him down.

Mississippi Smith took his off the platter. Lou Kelly the middle Georgia heavy who was matched with Smith, failed to survive the Doughboy's dynamite right to the button in the initial round. Smith is entirely too good for local or amateur talent.

Main Go

Peltz entered the ring first and was given a big hand by the crowd. Ptomey paused to whisper something to his bride of two weeks who was at the ringside, she nodded and smiled. Willie crawled through the ropes as the crowd roaded. The gloves were examined by the seconds after which both fighters lost on time in pulling them on, assisted by seconds and fussy managers. The referee called the fighters to the center of the ring for final instructions.

Round 1. Twice as Peltz tried to bore in Willie's left snaked out to break up his lead, Maxie weaved in to work on Willie's midriff but the Tanker tied him up helpless. Peltz's seconds talked to him in his corner, Ptomey plainly had him worried.

Round 2. Peltz seemed to be playing a waiting game, but he was matching wits with a past master at the art. Sensing an opening near the close of the round, Maxie threw a right that breezed the ringside and would have finished Willie no doubt, but it cut a hole in the atmosphere where Willie's jaw had been. Ptomey straightened Peltz up with a volley of lefts and rights to his chow hall as the round ended.

Round 3. Ptomey caught Maxie high on the side of the head with a right swing, Maxie rushed Ptomey into a corner where they clinched without a blow being landed. Peltz drove Ptomey to cover under a barage of lefts and rights to the head and body. Ptomey weathered the storm and came out smiling. Ptomey sank a hard left to Maxie's stomach at the bell.

Round 4. Peltz was missing, Peltz rushed Ptomey to the ropes but missed a terrific right to the head by inches. Ptomey beat a tattoo on Maxie's mid-riff, Ptomey shook Peltz from stem to stern with a sweeping left to the jaw, Ptomey pounded Maxie's stomach with short rights at close range.

Round 5. Maxie's seconds were liberal with the smelling salts and sponge during the minute between rounds. Maxie missed right and left as Willie bored in, Ptomey was hurting Peltz with his consistent body punching, Peltz landed a left to Willie's stomach that cracked like a whip but it failed to worry the driving Tanker, who came into snap short rights and lefts to Maxie's tortured chow-hall.

Round 6. Peltz came out with a rush with both arms spitting leather. Ptomey covered up while Peltz hammered his head and arms with rights and lefts, suddenly Ptomey uncoiled like a steel spring, Peltz took his left flush on the button, going down for the count of four. Peltz came up off balance and groggy. Ptomey was on him like a tiger to the kill, his smashing right to the jaw knocked Peltz across the ring and under the ropes, his body resting near the edge of the ring platform.

Enthusiastic Johnnie Bucks forgot who, when and where in their wild scramble to get to this fighting soldier, though their rush was fast it was slow for before they reached the roped enclosure, officers at the ringside had crowded into the ring to grasp the padded mitt of the boy who had just fought a fight that makes the service man proud to know that it is men of this type that the "ARMY BUILDS."

NOTES FROM SPECIAL UNITS

Financial Digest

Staff Sergeant Stoddard joined the detachment on November 26, 1928, after several years in the Philippine Islands. We are glad to welcome him to Fort Benning. He appears to love the warm climate and from all appearances he will probable strive to make his stay as long as possible. Whole hearted greetings also await the arrival of his family within the near future and we are certain they will be as pleased with the climate as is Sergeant Stoddard.

Master Sergeant Goldstein is proud of the record set by the enlisted pay section last month in their prompt action with the enlisted pay rolls. He wishes to express the appreciation of his section to the members of the office for their assistance which made this record possible.

Two of the members of the detachment visited the special order department of the Post Exchange lately and we guarantee a happy surprise for their lady friends on Christmas. With one of the gifts go several ten page letters and a few postal cards thrown in.

Corporal Garrett has been seen frequenting a popular hotel in Columbus, Georgia, recently, to hear the program of vocal selections offered by a local soprano at the dinner hour of this hotel. It appears that the effects of the music are trying on Corporal Garrett as several days are required for his recovery.

Co. "A", 7th Engrs.

Although Sunday's game ended in a 1 to 1 tie, it turned out to be the best game played yet by the Bridgebuilders. With "D" Company, 29th Infantry furnishing the oppistion, the Pontoniers were extended to their very best brand of soccer to gain the tie. Mr. Hu, a Chinese student at the Infantry School, playing with the Engineers, grabbed the limelight and the hero's share for the day. Probably one of the best soccer players ever seen in Fort Benning, he showed the boys a type of game that will be widely copied in the Post, especially by the Engineers, whom he has consented to coach in his spare time.

We have seen Engineers go down for their last dime, shirt, or what have you, but, it remained for a Mexican to lose his appendix on a bet over the location o fa squeak in an automobile. Let this be a warning to the boys who are doing the big betting on the Tech-California game. Your money belongs to you, but Uncle Sam has an option on your appendix.

The excitement caused by the fire Friday has died down. A new record for laying out a hose and getting water in play is now claimed by the boys. Condolence is offered the unknown company that double timed over to help out. Whoever you were, Thank you just the same!

Whatever you plan this month, don't forget to see at least one soccer game. This new pastime promises to rival football and basket ball as a major sport in Fort Benning.

TACTICAL TOPICS NEXT WEEK

An S. O. S. has been sent Major Harding, former editor of the popular "Tactical Topics" column of the NEWS, for a story for the special issue of next week. We are hoping to have this as one of the special features of the Xmas Number.

"I hear Cuthbert has been getting into hot water again.

"Yes, he turned on the wrong tap in the shower bath last night."

Judge: So your husband beats you constantly?

Mrs. Jackson: Lawdy, nossuh; when hit don't rain he goes to the ball game.

"Whatever induced you to marry Eloise?"

"Why, Eloise, of course."

"So your son got his B. A. and M. A.?"

"Yes, indeed, but his P. A. still supports him."

FRIDAY, DEC. 14

"THE WRONG IDEA," starring Johnny Hines in seven reels of laughter. It is an interesting comedy of a young man's struggle to market his unique inventio nof an ink possessing luminous qualities. Of course a girl is mixed up in it; she suspects Johnny of having stolen some bonds, she loves him, yet, has him shadowed by a blundering detective through a maze of sequences that are eloquently amusing. Come to this one prepared to laugh.

"The Huntsman." Fables.

"Pathe News No. 99."

SATURDAY, DEC. 15

"BEYOND THE SIERRAS," starring Tim McCoy in a new drama of old California in the flaming historic days of the Dons. In this picture Tim forsakes his renowned six shooter for the duelist's sword and dons the flowing robe and mask of a Spanish toreador to attend a fiesta at the hacienda of the girl he loves, but who, mistaking his true identity, hates him as an enemy of her people. Against overwhelming odds wherein bandits and plotters are concerned, he fights his way to glorious victory. An attractive Senorita enters into the play.

"Their Purple Moment." Laurel Harry Comedy.

SUNDAY, DEC. 16

"WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS," starring Lon Chaney, playing the role of a detective who captures a gang of dangerous criminals. It is a vivid expose of the "inside" of the New York police force and a deadly gang war. Thrills, sensations, adventures, and mystery mark the swift movement of the story, but a delicate love theme runs through it and infinitely human touches add to its startling realism. Lon Chaney, "nuf sed".

"Soaring Wings." Oddity.

"Paramount News No. 38."

MONDAY, DEC. 17

"MORAN OF THE MARINES," featuring Richard Dix with Ruth Elder in a story of adventure, most of which is laid in China. It is the tale of a youth who enlists in the marines and gets into trouble. It takes a band of Chinese bandits and a thrilling fight to get him back into good graces. Meanwhile he attempts to win a general's daughter; he succeeds, but only after many hair-raising, breath-taking, humerous and dramatic incidents have come to pass—you'll like this picture.

"Terrible People No. 5."

TUESDAY, DEC. 18

"GANG WAR," starring Olive Borden with Jack Pickford in a thrilling story centering about the Barbary Coast underworld. A little taxi dancer becomes the virtual queen of San Francisco's largest underworld gang. Its leader falls madly in love with her—she loves another, and though she becomes the wife of the gangster, the climax finds her in the arms of her lover. This picture is purported to contain some of the most thrilling action ever put into an underworld drama.

"Ask Dad." Cameo Comedy.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 19

"BEAU BROADWAY," featuring Lew Cody with Aileen Pringle in a thrilling prize ring story. James J. Jeffries, former world heavyweight champion, also a number of professional ring celebrities, play important roles in this picture. Cody, as a typical man-about-town ,is a fight promoter who promises an old prize fighter that he will care for his granddaughter when death comes. The girl turns out to be about eighteen and very pretty; this furnishes an intriguing turn to the racey plot. The dazzling New York sporting world is the background. If you like action—see this.

"Paramount News No. 39."

THURSDAY, DEC. 20

"GOLF WIDOWS," starring Harrison Ford and Vera Reynolds in a hilarious comedy overflowing with unusual situations ,spontaneous humor and beautiful photographic backgrounds. The locale is Hollywood, and the events occur on the play grounds of filmdom's favorites, giving an intimate picture of the environs of those who are engaged in amusing the screen public. Here's a great chance to learn something about a millionaire's game. Golfers learn that there are other things in life beside the game, and their wives find that they don't have to go out in search of adventure—they get more than they bargain for when hubby takes up golf.

"Slick Slickers." Neal Burns Comedy.

FRIDAY, DEC. 21

"SHADOWS OF THE NIGHT," an exciting underworld story of a reporter slueth who "scoops" the police, starring Lawrence Gray with a good supporting cast including Flash ,a highly trained police dog, who follows the criminal detection pursuits for which these animals are noted in Germany. There is a chase fo ra noted underworld bandit chief, thrilling battles, escapes and other intriguing events. A pleasing romance enters into the story.

"Baby Show." Fables.

"Pathe News No. 99."

BENNINGS CHAMPION SOLE SAVERS

Corporal Joe Mignola, Rocco Frateschi and Pop Alfreddo in no way resemble a "Sky-Pilot," still these three Greencord soldiers specialize in saving soles, if necessary they will furnish a new sole and in case a heel is run down they know just how to build it up again.

The three aforementioned members of the Infantry School Detachment, operate the Post Exchange shoe shop, that takes care of the entire garrison's foot wear when it requires mending.

The shop is equipped with modern machinery, each of the three operators are expert shoe repair men, this is demonstrated by the speedy and efficient way in which their work is turned out. Practically ever yofficer and enlisted man in the garrison patronizes the Post Exchange shoe shop.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. David G. Barr honored Miss Dorothy White of Atlantic City with a charming bridge party. The approach of Christmas was heralded by this party for the tea table overlaid with a handsome ecru filet and linen cloth had for its centerpiece a dazzling Christmas tree "all laden with tinsel and things." The score cards carried out the holiday idea. There were five tables of players and the first and second prizes, hand-tied-and-dyed bridge refreshment sets, were won by Mrs. Albert B. Helsley and Mrs. Robert A. Case, respectively. The honoree was given a shoulder bouquet. After the game a delicious moulded salad was served, olives, potato chips, crackers and coffee.

Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman went to Atlanta last week-end where she joined her daughter, Miss Katherine Kingman, and they went to see the Georgia-Tech game at Grant Field.

Maj. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Jones and sons, Lloyd, Jr., and Carlton, will leave December 21st for Daytona Beach, Fla., where they will spend two weeks with Maj. Jones' parents who are wintering at this delightful place.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. David J. Jones, of Chicago, arrived on Wednesday evening for a week's visit with Capt. and Mrs. A. L. Littell, after which they will sail for South America where they will spend the winter. Dr. and Mrs. Jones made many friends at Benning last winter when, upon their return from a year or two abroad, they made a visit to their brother and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Stephen B. Massey.

Mrs. C. H. Perry is giving a lovely bridge party this afternoon for her daughter, Miss Verna Perry, at her quarters in Block 23.

"Yesterday I saw five men standing under one umbrella and not one of them got one drop of water on himself."

"Big umbrella?"

"No. It wasn't raining."

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next Meeting—Next Monday, Dec. 17.
Time—2:15.

On next Monday afternoon the Infantry School Woman's Club will have its Christmas meeting. The program will offer a charming variety of interesting entertainment. Col. George C. Marshall, our assistant commandant, will be with us and will give us Christmas greetings on this occasion. Mrs. John F. Holland, skilled violinist, will play, and Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd, whose lovely voice is known far and wide, will sing a group of songs. Miss Emily Thomas, a talented teacher of Dramatics in Columbus, will give us an hour of delightful reading and dramatic interpretations. After the program tea will be served by Mrs. Jesse A. Ladd and Mrs. Morrison J. Stayer.

The Literary Club

On last Monday afternoon Mrs. Lee M. Hester presented a very interesting program of contemporary literature which has sprung from historic background.

Mrs. Edward G. Sherburne presented "John Brown's Body," Stephen Vincent Benet's epic poem of the Civil War. The author, she reminded us, was of military origin, his father and his grandfather having been officers in the Regular Army. Benet is a brilliant young writer, being a Yale graduate and a recipient of a fellowship in the Guggenheim Memorial, the latter enabling him to go to France and write his civil war epic. This poem is divided into a prelude and eight books. The author shows with broad fairness the various phases of the issues of both sides of the conflict and he varies his poetic form in many ways so that the continued reading does not become monotonous. The principal characters, a Connecticut Yankee and a Georgia rebel, are well drawn as are the many subordinate characters, and the locale is charmingly set forth with respect to natural beauties. The story does not run as an uninterrupted plot. At times there is little or no note made of the so-called principal characters but rather the poet is engrossed in picturing epochal events such as the great Lee and the great Grant at Appamadox, when the final surrender is made—or Lincoln, Jeff Davis, Sherman, Jackson as each met some crisis. The book is full of historic and human interest and of unmistakable poetic value.

Mrs. Sherburne gave a most interesting review of this, a rather difficult book to put across, and the extracts which she read to acquaint us with the theme and style of the book were admirably chosen.

"Elizabeth and Essex," by Lytton Strachey, was most comprehensively presented by Mrs. Lawrence B. Glasgow. This book is considered one of the four best books of the season and Mrs. Glasgow surely did it justice in her resume. Strachey pictures the Elizabethan age with its culture and its crudity, and with his delicate psychology, his rich historic knowledge, his subtle irony, his versatile yet accurate style, the age and man are united to give a most graphic and interesting book on what seems to be an inexhaustible subject, "The Good Queen Bess," master strokes he uses to picture Elizabeth as vain, sensible, intelligent, whimsical, vacillating, yet able to make quick decisions if she chose, and adamant in their execution when once determined upon. He shows here in all her frills, and in all her masculinity. Essex, young courtier, rises on the regal horizon, enjoys an unprecedented favoritism, and finally sinks in disgrace, his head falling on the executioner's block. Through the entire story the cunning, subtle Francis Bacon threads in and out like a snake. And Essex is ever imperiled by the gallant Sir Walter Raleigh, whose good judgment and good generalship did much for England albeit the honors due him oftentimes fell to his hated rival, Essex.

Mr. Strachey shows Elizabeth as a rough, hectoring dame with her practical jokes, her out of door manner, her passion for hunting, suddenly becoming a stern-faced capable woman of business, closeted for long hours with secretaries, reading and dictating despatches and examining with sharp exactitude the minutiae of accounts. Then, as suddenly, the cultivated lady, mistress of six languages a profound student, a skilled musician. She was a queer combination and an excellent composite of her age of contradictions.

"Giant Killer" by Elmer Davis was delightfully presented by Mrs. Thomas S. Arms. This book goes to the Holy Land for its setting and has for its theme the story of David and Goliath. This age-old story, which has been a never-failing source of inspiration to all who have had mighty obstacles to overcome and little with which to meet them save their belief in the Lord, this beautiful and soul-satisfying story of David has been given a modern telling with an impudent modern interpretation. According to "Giant Killer," David had nothing to do with the killing of the Goliath. David, boy that he was, had alone rescued his lambs from the lion and the bear and had slain single-handed those animals that men have always feared—this David is terrified at the thought that he, under the witchery of his own music, had intimated that he would champion the cause of Israel and met the Giant of the Philistines. The more he thinks about it the more afraid he gets and the madder he gets at his

CUTS FROM THE COMPANY OFFICERS CLASS

(By Unsatisfactory)

Mr. Editor, believe it or not, but I am a subscriber to the Infantry News and I am also a student officer. Have read your S. O. S. for several weeks requesting news from our class, so being big hearted I am making an attempt to give publicity to some of the members of our class who need it. Others have had sufficient publicity, and some could have done better without it. In order to let the public know that the company officers class is still operating at this famous institute of learning which is bounded on one side by the Chattahoochee and on all other sides as well as the inside by M .P.s, I will put forth a few thoughts through the news.— Action.

During Preliminary M. G. dull last week "Action" was given. One famous Lieutenant who is built close to the ground, grabbed the steam condensing tube and promptly inserted one end in the top of the water can. He next tried to syphon the water from the can. His technique was perfect, but evidently his mind was on something different, for the action he performed does not apply to M. G. dull.

The company officers class became enthused over volley ball last week, but were forbidden to play during school hours. It evidently takes brains to play said game for we were given a demonstration during school hours by part of the advanced class and instructors on how the game should not be played (strike out the words not applicable).

The recent musketry exam disclosed a startling error in the course. Evidently arithmetic should be taught, at least, enough arithmetic to teach one how to divide two into one hundred and ninety.

It has been recommended that each student be issued a hod carrier to carry the extra equipment for one course in map problems. This equipment would go well with the present type of cover-alls and boxes now in use.

In out last two conferences both instructors were obliging enough to tell us the numerous ways in which we could get a "U" on map problems. What we want to know is one way in which to get an "S". So far no one has told us that.

After witnessing a member of the M. G. demonstration squad perform in an excellent manner, our instructor informed us that the man was forty-nine years old. Several members immediately spoke up: "Why Captain, he is just a young man, we were that good when we were his age."

The tests in elementary M. G. dull certainly increased the number on the list of the Sick, Lame and Lazy.

For tests in immediate action the following changes are recommended. First Phase—Gun fails to fire: Be nonchalant, light a Murad.

Second Phase—Gun still fails to fire: Light another Murad.

Third Phase—Gun still fails to fire: Better try another brand, maybe Murads are not what they are cracked up to be.

For the Xmas holidays a boat trip down the Chattahoochee is recommended. Certain members of our class have tried it with commendable results.

EDITOR'S NOTE—In answer to your introductory paragraph I wish to thank you for the above notes from the C. O. Class. I hope that a few more will answer my S. O. S. in the near future.

XMAS ISSUE ON DECEMBER 21

The Special Xmas Edition of the NEWS will be the December 21 issue.

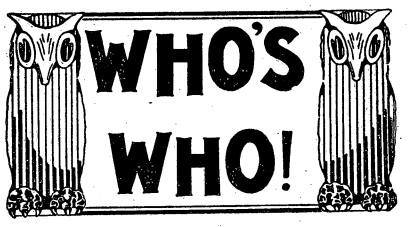
A sign on a California ranch reads: "For sale—R. D. Red Hens."

"R. D. Red Hens?" inquired tourists. "What are R. D. Red Hens?"

"Don't you know?" asked the rancher's wife scornfully, "Rhode Island Reds, of course."

She: Did you ever have your palm read?

He: No. They use paddles at our house.



SERGT. ROBERT E. HARKEY
Company "H", 29th Infantry

Somewhere out in the pan-handle country "Bob" Harkey is spending a three months furlough away from the ra-tat-tat-tat of "H' Company's machine guns and the familiar bray of the Missouri long ears that always play such an important part where machine guns are concerned. "Bob" was discharged back in September and immediately re-enlisted. A longing to see the folks back home in the Lone Star state caused him to take his three months furlough along with his finals and hie himself back to the old home town of Austin, Texas, for a visit.

Latest reports from "Bob" are to the effect that his finals could not agree with the dry climate out there and at the last writing they had just dwindled away, his many friends will be glad to welcome him back to his old place among the hay burners and machine guns.

"Bob" first enlisted, April 28, 1919, at Austin, Texas, and was sent to Fort Benning to learn the right way of doing Motor Machine Gun work. The rat-tat-tat of the bullet streamers worked into his soud so well that he launched into "D" Company, of the Demonstration regiment just as that unit was being transformed into a machine gun outfit in 1921. There he made "Expert" with his pet weapon year after year with as great a regularity as he made "Excellent" on every discharge and transfer. In 1924, he was high score man in the regiment in the traversing, searching, fixed, oblique fire at which the Browning fans were trained.

Besides being able to do his machine gun stuff in big league style, Harkey is well known to the baseball fans of the garrison. While a member of the First Bats of the 29th Infantry, his slants and hops were a terror to opposing batters, when he transferred to the Second Battalion in 1926, his twirling arm brought home many close fought battles to the Kellys.

Before enlisting in the Service, Sgt. Harkey was the leading twirler in the Industrial League of Austin, Texas, in 1914-15 and 16, at this time he was only a youngster attending high school.

He arrived at Fort Benning, prepared to pitch as well as soldier. He lost no time in ge tting into a uniform and getting out for practice. He was a member of the Regimental team from 1919 until 1924. He was the leading twirler of the First Bat's staff in 1925.

He transferred to "H" Company of the Second Bats, in 1926 and pitched great ball for the Kellys during the seasons of 1926 and '27, during the past season a bad arm kept "Bob" off the mound but he was carried on the line-up as a sub, being able to play any position on the team except that of catcher.

Always be it on the mound or behind the sputte ring machine gun, he has displayed a steady hand and a cool head, that has been the main factor in the secret of his effectiveness.

Sergt. Harkey will return from furlough on Dec. 22, 1928, and when the Kellys turn out for spring training he will be among the first to answer the call. Here is hoping that he still has plenty of hop on his fast one and a hook with his curve.

MANY MEN RENEW SUB-SCRIPTIONS TO THE NEWS

A year ago the first of December a subscription campaign was waged in the battalion for subscribers to the Infantry School News. Over two hundred men subscribed to the paper, many of whom had the paper sent to their home folks. The folks back home enjoyed the NEWS and were always interested in the items that came from the battalion. Upon the expiration of these subscriptions the editor of the NEWS wrote the battery commadners a letter stating that he would appreciate as many renewals as possible, and that he would present the first sergeants or the clerks, a free pass to the movies for a period of one month. Up to this time, two organizations of the battalion have responded. Battery A came through with fifty-nine subscribers and Battery B with thirty-four. Up to the time the paper went to press this week nothing had been heard from Headquarters and Combat Train and Battery C. The Xmas number of the NEWS will be appreciated by the home folks. Subscribe so you may send that issue back home.

Battery "B"

Every member of the battery was gladly surprised to see an old member of the battery come in the other night. Private Mock has been out in the cruel world since March, 1927. Glad to see you with us again Ralph.

Corporal Wilemon bade every one goodby when he was discharged Thanksgiivng day. Boys we can now take off the crepe for word has been received that our corporal with the school girl complexion has taken on another stack.

It has been said that one chief of the fourth section has become more serious minded since taking over his new duties. It was reported that he was not seen in town at any time last week. (Except, of course, the trip he made to go to Sunday School.)

It has been reported that our first sergeant has inaugurated a new card system on his bulletin board. He says there is less trouble in making out his details now.

Corporal Davis is becoming bald headed since he has started to work in the supply room. We would suggest that you use some of Sergeant Lein's "New Hair" Freddie. Sergeant Lein says that is what makes his hair so thick and wavy.

"Snowbird" Richard caused some grey hair to sprout in our Battery Commander's head when he failed to tell anyone that he was going to the hospital. Some people might have thought that he was on French leave but not the boys that knew him.

A certain morning not long ago Charley P. was late for breakfast. As he was on his way to the mess hall he was heard to remark: "Buddie, if they don't feed me I aim to throw out two or three cooks." The cooks fed him.

Due to the influence of our new Battery Commander and first sergeant several of the former members of the battery are coming back. They may leave and be gone a year or two but they always come back.

The first sergeant is now burning up the "corporals." We wonder what is going to become of the privates first class.

Private First Class Hodge, day-room orderly, came into the orderly room after the battery returned from the range reporting that the B. C. detail did not function properly and requested permission to go out with this detail.

Private Johnson was awarded a pass for one month to the Post Theater by the editor of the Infantry School News which was very highly appreciated, and Private Johnson reports that he is enjoying the picture shows.

Sergeant Bruno with "Brownie" entered the horse show as Mounted Orderly and won the first prize, also entered his horse an Enlisted Men's Trained Mount and won fourth prize. Private First Class Fields won the fourth prize in the Mounted Orderlies competition. The battery as a whole is very pound of these two men.

Private Barrier, better known as "Baldie", was heard to remark that he would never again go to the city with Chestie Haynes. For further information see Private Barrier. Perhaps Corporal Davis will be interested.

We wonder what is wrong with the Mess Sergeant. He is not feeding the boys as he did during November.

We found out where the new chief of the galloping fourth section hangs out in the evening ,it is the telephone booth in the Service Club and we suspected all the time that he was studying T. R. 430-80 Maneuvres Limbered. It is no wonder that the men in your section miss reveille, chief. Also it is no surprise anymore that you understood the signal to be countermarch when the lieutenant merely scratched his head.

Hdqrs., Hdqrs. Bat. and Combat Train

Private John C. Lane was discharged on the 5th, after being with us for two hitches, giving the boys many close shaves. Sorry to see you leave old trooper, better take on another stack.

Pfc. Starnes motored up to Atlanta last week, reporting a wonderful time, even if the U-Drive-It did come rather high. We are all wondering when the wedding bells shall chime.

Quite a few changes ni ratings and promotions have been made recently, Pfc. Derrick and Phillips being promoted to Corporals; Pfcs. Taylor and Tilley were rated 5th class specialists, with Privates Arnold, Jones and Piper being promoted to Private First Class.

Corporal Koski was seen snooping around with Pvt. Bond, few nights past, we all know there was some monkey business some place but all was O. K. after the sho w the fair damsels were located.

We have some unknown artist in the Battery, and from all indications if the Skipper finds said Bozo, many Sundays shall be spent diving for pearls in the kitchen.

Last Sunday during the polo games a rather interesting chukker was played between Cpl. Cole and a large German Police Dog, not thoroughly understanding all he knew about the game. From the wow-wow and laughter from the spectators it was well played with the said dog coming the winner after the seat of Cpl' Cole's trousers gave way.

Corporal Hoskins seems to have his hands full these days with the dozen newly assigned recruits, and seems to be going along nicely as no comment has been heard for or against.

A show down inspection was held last Sunday and from latest reports many large fat clothing allowances shall dwindle down as many shortages were reported.

A certain young man is all smiles these day as either a blonde has turned his way or else some rich uncle died as we all know that its not even in regulations where a man can stand such blows as you have been taking lately for no unreasonable cause. How about that Oliver? Why all the smiles.

Pfc. Taylor returned from the hospital on Monday; looking rather hungry and mad. How about that dame up Tennessee way George, has she forgotten you?

Pfc. Perry was seen with a nic brand new wrist watch on some few days past. How come, Weenie, and has Santa paid you a visit so soon?

Battery "C"

Ye Scribe having been snowed under with clothing settlements and such minor things has very little to say other than it takes no less than an optimist to be a wise cracker and in reality is a cracker, whether wise or otherwise.

Many moan were heard in the Battery last Saturday noon when it was announced that from then until the next Saturday at noon the Battery would be on fire guard. Many contemplated trips to the city were postponed until the next Saturday providing the wherewithal had not disappeared.

Private First Class Othel D. Land, otherwise known to his many buddies as Bicycle, has returned to the organization from a re-enlistment furlough spent in the hills of Tennessee. All of his popularity is not due to his personality but a lot of it goes to the way he can burn the slum.

Corporal Goodwin and Corporal Fairbrother were seen a few days ago with their heads nearly ni contact which spells disaster or catastrophe for some one.

This Battery has acquired ten new men. All seem to have the makings of excellent Artillerymen. Welcome to the fold, boys, we are certainly proud to have you with us.

We wonder what the blond headed Sergeant would have plead, providing he were to be tried.

Weddings, football and fights held the attention of the Fort the last week!

The volley ball tournament being played daily under Bee's window is progressing quite nicely, and many skillful and dexterous players are coming to the fore. That promising young lad, Lt. Hester, formerly of the 24th, has a mighty upward stroke, while Lt. Boineau, of the second row, has a most effective right-hand swing. That lad who first won fame on the manner in which he drives a famous make of car, Captain Paul Steele, may often be seen along the front line, while Lt. Carleton, no matter what side he plays on, is a player who wollie with a right good will!

The date of opening of bids on the new barracks for the Tanks has been postponed to December 21st, from December 12th. The Constructing Quartermaster, Lt. Allison, is reported to be much pleased over this change, as he had planned a hunting and fishing trip into florida, with the holdiays being spent in Saint Petersburg—and this change in date of opening will nullify everything. Lt. Allison, when interviewed, made the following cryptic remarks about the matter which shows re puts duty first and foremost, "I believe in the freedom of the seize—and regret that Columbus was on the water so long before he landed—and furthermore, I think, without a doubt, that the new Ford is a great improvement over the old Model 'T' " And lads, there's a man for ye who has the right sentiments!

Bee noticed that during the recent cold snap, the volley ball squad called a recess, and that the officers of Companies B and C seemed to find much to do indoors, around the huge stoves.

Colonel Hunt, of the Infantry Board, is responsible for this whizzer: "Do you know what Gilda Grey's skirts are made of? Hey! Hey!"

Or, as Captain Wilson, the Boxing Promoter would explain, "Maybe I hadn't orter brought this up," as the aviator said when his aeroplane started falling.

(Really, we know some much older than these!)

With the combination of Lt. Dahnke and Sgt. Ames, Bee feels sure that it wont be long now till all Benning roads are as good as Wold Avenue.

Seen of a Tuesday's Noon: The classes are just getting out. Many officers dash past. Yonder goes Captain Jenks, Finance Officer, and the one whom Bee nominates as the hardest-boiled officer of them all. This Finance Bunch anyway, seems to have such an astonishing lack of faith in human nature! Here is Captain Rustemeyer, who strolls nonchalantly past. Bee glimpses Maxie Peltz yonder, the pug who meets Ptomey tonight. An interesting fact is the Peltz trainer, Joe Dobbs, a 72-year-old negro, was once welterweight champion of the world; had his last fight whne he was sixty years old, and won by a knock-out in the third round. Yonder is ye editor of "Ye Olde Infantrye Schoole Newes," in his new car. The whistle blows—and so to lunch!

This Week's News Event: Prominent Benning Officer knocked out in first round by "Kid" Cupid.

THE SCRIBE CALLS AT ONE OF THE MESSES

One morning recently while going about over the garrison this scribe took liberty upon himself to use a few minutes of the time he was supposed to be on duty for himself and dropped into one of the mess halls for a few minutes conversation with one of the cooks on duty.

As he entered everything was in readiness for the regular morning inspection. The noon-day meal was on the stove being ccoked, tables were snow white in their cleanliness, while the floors showed the recent work of the K. P.'s and were spotless.

The cook in charge of the shift was telling a student cook the best ways in which to set about to prepare a meal and comparing notes on how the folks at home would have done this or that. Suddenly their conversation took another turn and discussion of how they would spend the time alloted to them on pass they were to receive when they were relieved from duty at noon.

Off to another side the Mess Sergeant and one of the company sergeants were engaged in ernest conversation as to the wiles and ways of man and propounding the theory whether Darwin was right or wrong. In only one thing could they agree and that was that a certain man in another organization should have never enlisted in the army but stayed at home and tended to the cows and chickens.

In a corner to themselves were the K. P.'s and they were as actively engaged in conversation as any of the others. Among them was a man doing his first K. P. and lamenting the fact that he had overlooked thi sbet when he enlisted in the army and had failed to make arrangements to have someone do this part of the military duty when his time came around on the roster.

Just as conversation between all of the different parties was reaching its climax the front door opened and a loud voice was heard to call attention. After having obeyed the command just given I saw that the Top Kick and the Company Commander were coming through to make the regular morning inspection. As they came down the mess hall the command "rest" was given and then the scene that had all a few minutes before been cheer and friendliness took an entirely different form. The Mess Sergeant barked something at the cooks, and they in turn barked at the K. P's., while the sergeant who had only a few minutes before been swapping yarns hurriedly passed out the door calling over his shoulder that the man would be in there tomorrow on extra K. P. and that it was his wish that he would see to it personally that he was kept busy the entire day.

As the company commnader came on down the mess hall he was seen to be smiling and well pleased with the appearance of everything for he said to the Mess Sergeant that he had never seen any mess looking better anywhere than this nor the men kept any busier than here.

"Yes, busy," murmured the scribe, "unusually busy," and he stalked away.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

harp which he flings away in the valley. He has a childish faith, quite unlike that pictured in 1st Samuel, chapter 17, 45-46 and 47th verses, a faith believing that something will happen to keep him from getting killed; Goliath will be sick, or something will happen. He gets lonesome for his harp and decides that he'll run down into the valley and get it before daybreak. No soldiers will see him then. Early in the grey dawn he creeps out and goes down to the stream where he'd flung his harp, and what do his eyes behold! Two men, one a drunken soldier, the other a great giant in armor, lie sprawled on the ground. He comes nearer. The giant is bleeding—is dead. Killed by accident as he had jostled the drunken soldier about. This giant is Goliath! Quickly the boy seizes the giant's own bloody sword, cuts off the head, and carries it by the hair to Saul to claim his reward. There is more of the story—in fact it chronicles the private life of David with about the same reverence that John Erskine does that of Helen of Troy, and Odesseus and the rest. But it is interesting and gives one a new point of view. And Mrs. Arms told the story with a merry sparkle in her eye as though it were fun to be the one to surprise us with a new version of a well known tale.

After the program the Literary Club made a distinct departure from its established custom and had a tea party. Mrs. Philip B. Peyton, who for four years has been the inspiration and guide of this cultural club, was with us for the last time before her going to Fort Rosencranz and it was our pleasure to honor her in this small way. Immediately after the program the club, whose growth and usefulness are the results of Mrs. Peyton's influence, made a gesture of love and appreciation by presenting Mrs. Peyton with a beautiful corsage. In her response she gave us the challenge to "carry on".

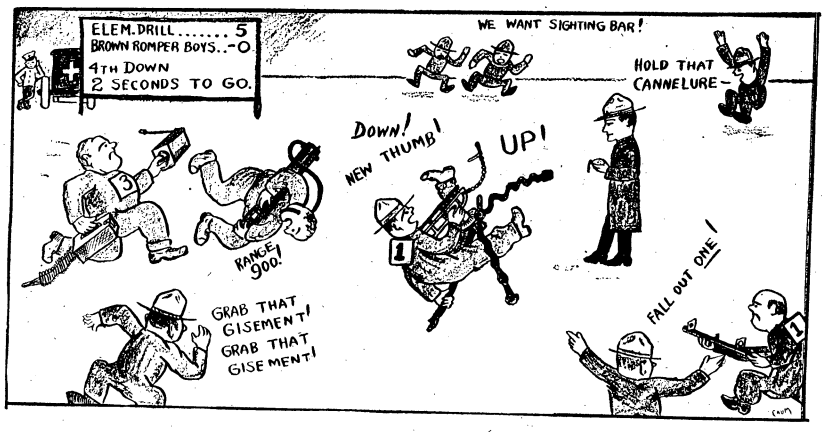
Then we had a delightful visit with her and each other over the tea cups. Mrs. Benjamin G .Ferris presided at the tea table and Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman very charmingly served sandwiches and candies.

A FEW OBSERVATIONS ON M. G. DRILL IN C. O. CLASS

(By H. M. G.)

If these notes are somewhat scrambled and a little lumpy the fault very largely rests with three young gentlemen of the air service who possess a very exaggerated sense of humor. At the 29th Inf. demonstration of machine guns in attack on Davis Hill, three planes that arrived late from Maxwell Field proceeded to impress their presence upon the entire student personnel and many of the instructors by seeing how close they could zoom down over the heads of the massed officers without actually decapitating them.

The one aviator who won first place in this playful contest made a dive so low that it was questionable whether he could come out of it in time. Even if he didn't get you heart failure probably would. This may be one of the air corps' best games and it may even be funny, but, in my opinion, its a bunch of asterisks.



To get back to our notes. One of the most impressive sights of the week was the elementary M. G. drill examination. You can see from the very clever drawing of Lt. Cann, who sketched it from actual incidents on the battlefield, that an energetic time was had by all. The prize for ingenuity went to Lt. Caswell, who being without a combination tool was called upon. Without hesitancy our lieutenant moved the defense back at least as far as the Andes. I assume that after the enemy found it out the armistice was signed the next day.

Speaking of gymnastics and what-not I submit the following as entitling its perpetrator to mark consideration of some nature. Major Cook wanted an example of when an explanation was theoretical and when practical. Lt. Riggins, to whom fell this choice morsel, replied that when a student made an explanation it was theoretical and when Major Cook made it it was practical.

Small Boy: My uncle died with his boots on.

Little Girl: What did he do that for?

Small Boy: Well—uh—maybe he couldn't help it.

English Professor: Now a pentameter has five feet, a hexameter has six feet.

Voice in Back Row: How many feet in a diameter?

She: Are these fish fresh?

Butcher: No, these fish won't embarrass you at the table!

LT. FAY GIVES TALK ON INDIANS TO CHILDRENS SCHOOL

Friday afternoon the pupils of the Children's School attended the movies. In addition to the interesting pictures provided by Capt. Doll, Lt. Fay entertained them with descriptions of Indians, their customs and habits. The children were especially thrilled with the Indian sign language.

Sgt. Stewart, of the Recruiting Service, gave the children many pounds of tinfoil to add to their collection.

The boys and girls have been bringing their slightly used toys to school for Santa Claus to freshen up and give to some children. This week the girls are dressing dolls, after school, and the boys are repairing airplanes and motor boats.

POLO SQUADS TO BE SELECTED IN NEAR FUTURE

Only a few more days and the axe will begin to fall among the mounted mallet squads of the Infantry School. The period since the beginning of the season has been an experimental one, the success of it has been fully demonstrated by the marked improvement of the young players who have been given a chance to mix in the games that have been played.

Beginning the first of the New Year, the squads will be stripped down to regulation size, only the most fit will survive and then polo will begin in earnest. No inkling by any team leader has been heard as to who will and who will not, but it is an assured fact that several of the youngsters who have been playing their first year show ample promise of making a bid for a regular berth and though they may be ruled out this season there is no denying the fact the experimental season has been a big success in every way.

There is little to choose between the four teams that will fight it out for the garrison supremacy. In past years the Students and Freebooters have always been the stronger teams put this season the Red Legs and Doughboys are meeting them on even terms with well balanced hard riding teams representing both outfits.

SOCCER HINTS

(By L. Vine)

In reviewing the week's practice soccer games, the writer expresses his views and a few helpful hints on different points of the game which may or may not improve the caliber of the teams.

Regarding kicking, which in my opinion, is the most important thing in the game, emphasis must be stressed on the fact that men as a rule are not properly taught how to kick the ball. The ball should be kicked with the instep or either side of the foot and under no circumstances, with the toe, which seems to be the generally accepted mode of propelling the ball. Kicking with the toe will prove to be costly and a heavy handicap when playing against men who have acquired the art of properly kicking the ball. Another fault, and one that should be corrected as early as possible, is the fact that players do not seem to be able to stay in their rightful positions. Due to the excitement of the game, it is natural that every man on the team wishes to have control of the ball and in many cases, can only get control by leaving their positions thus leaving the goal keeper with no protection from the attacking forwards. It is therefore essential that each player disregard the urging to feel the ball under their feet by playing out of position and in turn always be on the lookout for an opportunity to pass the ball to a player who happens to be in a better position to propel the ball towards the opponent's goal.

Summing up, the writer finds that the tendency of most of the players are to play individual ball instead of team play and in most cases, kick the ball aimlessly and with no thought of where the ball may go. There is more charging and unnecessary roughness than the occasion demands and altogether too much interference such as all the forwards bunching together when in the vicinity of their opponents goal and try to bully the ball through which in many cases fails to work as a wide awake goal keeper can pick the ball up quickly and throw it out of danger. It would be well to check up on these few points and correct them at once in order to insure the teams the proper teamwork and coordination.

Next week, I will endeavor to explain the duties of the various positions and what is expected of them.

ENGINEERS AND HOWITZERS PLAY 2 TO 2 DEADLOCK IN FAST SOCCER GAME

Meeting the Engineers at Gowdy Field on Monday afternoon, the Howitzer Company soccer team played a wonderful brand of soccer to hold the league leading Gin-Ears to a 2 to 2 tie.

The Gin-Ears have not lost a game this season but Monday's tie game is the second tie for them this season.

The Engineers put up a rushing offense in the opening quarter of Monday's game, resulting in their scoring two points in the opening period.

Fighting desperately in the second quarter the Howitzers acquired one point, by taking a corner kick and placing it through the goal on a series of clever passes. The half ended with the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Gin-Ears.

Towards the end of the 3rd quarter the Howitzers took a desperate chance and kicked a long pass to the Engineers goal, the ball bouncing off and through the goal area as the period ended.

The last half found neither team gaining any ground and the game ended in a 2-2 tie.

RETURN ADDRESSES ON CHRISTMAS MAIL

The attention of postmasters is directed to the fact that in January every year the dead-letter service receives between three and four million dead letters containing Christmas and New Year cards in addition to the normal receipts of ordinary undeliverable letters.

This enormous increase in undeliverable matter is of course due primarily to incorrect addresses, but would still be preventable in spite of incorrect addressing if the patrons of the service could be persuaded to place their return addresses on the envelopes contrary to the widespread custom of mailing greeting cards in non-card envelopes.

The loss thus sustained each year by the mailing public is enormous, amounting to not less than $325,000 in cash outlay, not to mention the disappointment of hundreds of thousands of persons who fail to receive the anticipated greetings, leading no doubt in many cases to misunderstandings and estrangements, since in the absence of a return address on the envelope the letter can not be returned and the mailer therefore is unaware that his or her message was not delivered. Thousands of these are found to contain gifts of money when opened in the dead-letter office, and comparatively few contain sufficient information to enable their return to the mailers.

If patrons of the mails could be persuaded to write their return addresses on the covers of these letters not only they but the post-office service would be saved much trouble and annoyance and you are therefore requested to give this matter as much publicity as possible in your local papers without expense to the department.

JOHN H. BARTLETT,
First Assistant Postmaster General.

KELLYS SWAMP GREEN WAVE BY SCORE OF 64 TO 0 IN SATURDAYS CONTEST

(By Al Durden)

A badly crippled and battered Green Wave fought gamely to stem the charge of the mighty Kellys at the Doughboy Stadium, last Saturday, but the Kellys were not to be denied, the final score being 64 to 0 in their favor.

After the opening the first quarter, Lt. Finney, Kelly coach, used his entire string, giving every man on the squad a chance to do his stuff, and several of the youngsters show promise of giving several of the regulars a battle for their positions in the near future.

Franz and Kjelstrom, as usual, led the Kelly drive, Kjelstrom accounting for four touchdowns and as many extra points from placement, while the "Round Boy" enjoyed a field day, getting in on every play that came his way but falling down sadly on his toe work, his try from placement going wild three times out of as many tries.

Most noticeable among the new men was the showing of Allison, Kelly recruit backfeild man. This boy showed a world of speed and uncanny ability in picking the old pigskin out of the air, two of the Doughboy touchdowns being credited to his pass grabbing and footwork.

Though fighting a losing battle, the Special Units, crippled and beaten, refused to accept defeat without a battle. Parminagana, Cochran and Reynolds in the line were smashed, crushed and walked on but they limped back into position for the next play. Woidyla and Laurence in the backfield offered a game but losing battle ,the fight of the "Red-thatched" Laurence was the most noticeable of all, time and again he tackled and went down under the snarling heap, on the offense he ploughed in with every ounce he had and though barely able to keep his feet, he was still wading in at the finish.

There was nothing lacking in the fighting spirit of the entire Special Units play, had their playing ability equalled their fighting spirit it would have been a busy day for the Kellys. They were simply a rough spot in the path of the mighty Kelly machine.

JUNIOR TENNIS TOURNAMENT

On Saturday, Dec. 1st, and Saturday, Dec. 8th, a Junior Round Robin Tennis Tourney was held for children under thirteen years of age.

There were eight entrees and Mr. Kennedy thetennis professional, had each contestant play the seven other entries, in this way each entree had plenty of chance to display their ability.

Suitable prizes were awarded by the Officers Club for first and second place.

In all fifty-six matches were played and the contestants gained some very valuable experience. The final standing at the conclusion of the play was as follows:

	Won	Lost
Bobby Marr	7	0
Billy Stayer	6	0
Sammy Card	4	3
Gilbert Cook	4	3
Hewell Coates	4	3
Marion Johnson	2	5
Harrison MacGregor	1	6

THE WILD CAT HUNT

"Get up dear, it's four-fifteen."

"Umh——"

"Get up, it's four-thirty."

"I don't feel well."

"But, you said last night you would go, and we are signed up for horses."

"Anybody that would be sap enough to agree to get up at four-fifteen Sunday morning, etc., etc.——"

The above song and dance with slight variations wa senacted in no less than twenty homes last Sunday morning for you see this was the day that they were sure of getting a cat. There could be no doubt of it this time for the Master of Fox Hounds, his assistant, and two whips were to be there in full regalia, besides on this day there were to be many conferences with the huntsman.

The officials and the field gathered promptly at the little blacksmith shop at the corral where coffee was being heated on the forge. It was colorful and somewhat shivery gathering of strong souls and helpless husbands. The starry cold outside, the cheery glow of the fire on the forge ,the welcome warming coffee, th gorgeous red coats of the officials, the comfortable and picturesque outfits of the old heads and the natty but inadequate sport clothes of the untried. Oh yes, it was well worth getting up. Among the old dependables there were Col. Roberts, Col. Strong, Capt. and Mrs. Orsinger, Mrs. Darr, Mrs. Knight, Mrs. Jackson, Misses Brant, Hall, Lampky, both the Lieutenants Black, Lieutenants Graling, Margeson (the impeccable Mr. Margeson," just like the magazine picture), and Hames. Among the occasionals there were Mrs. Crowle, Miss Williams, Lieutenants Miley, Riggins, Serf and Jeter.

Arriving out where the contours grow the thickest long before daylight, conditions looked most promising. Old Pete opened and soon the valley of the Upatoi reverberated with the music of the pack in full cry. After about thirty minutes, the trail was lost and further casting had to be resorted to. As the sun rose higher, hopes for a kill sank lower.

The loss of the first trail did not, however, mean the end of the sport for the morning. Whenever a lull threatened, Sergeant Tweed, the redoubtable huntsman, contrived to regain the enthusiasm of both pack and field with his shrill and far-carrying "Hoick." The checks were by no means dull moments for then was the time for warming fingers and toes at the light-wood fires, for discussing the performance of the mounts, or for nibling at a doughnut which had been fetched along as a wise precaution.

At eleven-fifteen a final conference was held with the huntsman and it was decided that the wild cats were to be left safe for another day. The hunt had by that time progressed to a point on the Cusseta road near Harmony Church. Then they rode back, all that were left.

It is hoped that on the next hunt if the hounds are unable to make a kill, Lieut. Ford will offer as a compensating attraction, a short lecture on "What makes the wild-cat wild."

"Nice going in class old man, but how did you guess that Byron wrote his first volume of poems while he was in college?"

"Eeasy; he entitled it HOURS OF IDLENESS."

1st Politician: I don't like anyone who uses the hammer all the time.

2nd Politician: Didn't you say you wanted me to help keep your platform in good shape?

Prof.: When two bodies come together, is heat generated?

Frosh: No sir. I hit a guy yesterday and he knocked me flat.

Anna: So you are taking a domestic science course?

Mabel: Yes, I want to be able to pick out the right things when I go into the delicatessen store.

JUNIOR OFFICERS' LYCEUM

At the fourth meeting of the 29th Infantry Junior Officers' Lyceum held on Saturday, Dec. 8, 1928, Colonel Pendleton discussed the duties and functions of the chiefs of branches. He pointed out the difference between the combatant and non-combatant branches and how they carried on their relations with one another and the Secretary of War. Special consideration was given to a discussion of our own branch, the Infantry. The organization of the office of the Chief of Infantry and the relation of the Infantry School to that office were covered in detail. Col. Pendleton gave an especially interesting description of the work of the Infantry Board and of the Department of Experiment, in which department he was very recently on duty, and enlarged upon some of the details of projects which were under consideration by the Department of Experiment.

Headquarters Company

Someone inquired if we were going to have the orchestra on Thanksgiving, to which Pvt. Knight replied, "I don't know about ostrich, but we are having turkey," the same gallant knight, while looking through the papers this morning saw a picture of a turkey and such a blushing I never saw in my life. Pvt. 1cl. Brannon, Chief of Head Waiters (we did most of the waiting), says that he enjoyed Thursday immensely by giving good service. I can't realize who could have possibly got the good service but just the same it is better to give than to receive, he was table waiter observer, observing which table had the most empty dishes and then observing the quickest way out to the kitchen.

"Midget" Hafley, the Company detective, is still pursuing and running down clues as to whether Cpl. Devoice made sharpshooter by patience or pencil, with the aid of the faithful meat hound Yo-Ho he expects to uncover some real scandal in the near future.

Sergeant Dan Asher has added another moniker to his title now, that said title reading thusly, "Over Twenty Years Service," congratulations Sgt., it simply can't be long now.

Sgt. Harrison, big dot and dash man from the Radio Section, seems to grow more handsome every day, reports are that telegrams flock to him every day in an effort to get him to Hollywood. Beg pardon, dreams should not be told and that certainly was one.

Company "E"
A Letter

December 10, 1928.

Dear Mabel:

I received your most welcome letter and was surely glad to hear from you. You wanted to know all the happenings around Company "E" so I will try and tell you the best way I know how of everything that has taken place since I last wrote you. Our Dear Old Second Battalion won another football game Saturday, December 8, 1928, from the Special Units, Fort Benning, Georgia, and it sure was a pippen. The score was much greater than the last game that the Second Battalion played with the Artillery. It looked more like a practice game than anything else. The biggest game of the year will be played December 22, 1928, between the Second Battalion and the Terrible Tankers and we hope to win the Post Championship without a struggle. Bob George, a former member of E Company is back with us again after staying away two years. He re-enlisted for Fort Bragg, N. C., about three months ago but after hanging around there that long he decided to transfer bac kto E Company, 29th Infantry. George is a very excellent soldier and the boys around here will have to go some to beat him out of orderly when he goes on guard, because he is a bucking fool. Private Jiner, Lawrence F., is back on his old job at the 29th Infantry Officers Mess, cooking.

Private Sasses is the only one that has taken a furlough during the past week, which is for thirty days. Corp. Jacobs is taking a 90 days furlough next week. I expect to take one during the Christmas holidays and come to see you. We have a new corporal in E Company now, his name is Guy H. Story. I believe he will make a good corporal as he has never jumped on me yet. Private, first class, Ben R. Thomas (Doubting Thomas) is now acting corporal and we hope that he will soon be drawing the pay for it. We also have a new Private, first class, Hurman R. Shelton, one of our company windjammers. Company E at the present time is one man over strength, being 194 enlisted men. Our Second Battalion Football Coach should take heed. It seems as if he is being criticized after every game by our barber shop coaches headed by "Cabbage Head" Padgett. We admit Padgett knows the game but he has a slight advantage as the coach has to figure out what plays and players to use before the game, while Padgett figures out all the plays after the game. Mabel you asked me about Corporal French, Gosh—he is so dumb that he thinks Kelly pool is a place you go swimming. He went to the company tailor the other day to purchase a cap, and the tailor asked him what size he wanted. Corp. French told the tailor that he did not know the exact size, so the tailor handed him a cap and said try this six seven eight. Corp. French put it on and replied, "This is too small, you better make it an eight nine ten." We have a fine first sergeant, his name is High Davis and he has been hunting a great deal here since I come to the company and always brings back a load of game when he does return. I hope you received the Thanksgiving Menu of E Company which has the names of all members of E Company. Any time you want to know anything about any of the boys around here just let me know and I will be glad to give you the information. Since we are getting some new fellows in the company every day now and their names will be added on the Christmas Roster and Menu and I will send you one of them so you kill know all the boys. Will write you again next week.

Sincerely,

Jack.

The News Picks All-Benning Football Teams

A REVIEW OF ARMY ATHLETICS AT THE INFANTRY SCHOOL DURING THE PAST YEAR

(By Al Durden)

Among the five thousand enlisted men now stationed at Fort Benning, approximately fifteen hundred of these men are capable of taking an active part in one or more branches of athletic sports.

Baseball leads the lot with four hundred active players among the different units. During the baseball season each company of the two infantry regiments and Tank battalion, three batteries of the 83rd Field Artillery and each separate unit of the Special Units is represented by a base ball team. Series are arranged and played by these teams. Each battalion, including the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 29th Infantry the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 24th Infatry, 15th Tank Bn., 83rd Field Artillery Bn., and the Special Units is represented by a team composed of picked players from each organization. These teams form the Intra-Mural Baseball League of Fort Benning, a regular schedule being played, the season being divided into halves, the winner of each half playing a post season series for the garrison championship.

The Infantry School baseball team playing a schedule of fourteen games against the pick of the country's college and professional baseball teams, finished the season with a record of seven games won and seven lost. An even break against the opponents listed on the 1928 schedule is a record to be proud of.

The Augurn Tigers won two and lost one to take the opening series of the season from the Doughboys. The Fighting Irishmen of Notre Dame were the next invaders. Three bitterly contested games featured the series which was won by the Irishmen in the third and deciding game in a great ninth inning rally when they overcame a two run lead to win 4 to 3.

The Wolverines from Michigan State fell before the Doughboys. The University of Illinois, champions of the Big Ten last season, split a pair with the Doughboys, each team winning one while rain prevented the deciding game.

There was only one of the three games scheduled with the University of Indiana played, account of the weather, this game was a Doughboy victory 6 to 0. In their annual clash with the Macon Peaches of the Sally League, the Peaches proved too strong for the Infantry School team, the pitching of Danforth accounting for the soldiers' loss. In the final series of the season the Florida University was humbled by the Doughboys in easy fashion.

During the Intra-Mural season, the baseball teams of the garrison were divided into three separate leagues. In order to play the full schedule of the season, it was necessary that two games of baseball be played at Gowdy Field each afternoon during the season. This was a highly pleasing arrangement to the hundreds of baseball fans of Fort Benning.

While the Infantry School Doughboys were more than holding their own against opposing collegian and professional baseball aggregations, the 24th Infantry Reds, composed of picked players of the 24th Infantry, were cutting a wide swath in colored baseball circles throughout the country. During the past season the Reds met and defeated the following baseball teams: Birmingham Black Barons, Jacksonville Red Caps, Brooklyn Cuban Giants, Montgomery Gray Socks, Atlanta Black Crackers, Clarke University, and Atlanta University. Besides these teams, several teams not mentioned here fell before the Reds.

It won't be long now and baseball season will be with us again. Already sport pages of our leading daily editions car-

FORT BENNING RED CROSS DRIVE WILL OPEN MONDAY

Official Roll Call to Be Made During Week of December 24-31

The annual Red Cross roll call will begin Monday, December 24, and continue until December 31, according to an announcement made several days ago by the officers connected with the drive here. Major W. R. Schmidt, 24th Infantry, is in charge of the drive this year.

The work of this national organization needs no explanation to the officers and enlisted personnel here. The Red Cross furnishes volunteer aid to th sick and wounded in time of war; it acts as a relief organization and a medium of communication between those of the Army and Navy and the civil population; it assists veterans of wars and their families; it provides relief in time of national disaster, such as flooods, tornadoes and fires.

During the drive at Fort Benning last year, the following organizations subscribed one hundred percent membership: Company "A", 15th Tank Battalion; Company "B", 15th Tank Battalion; Military Police Company; Quartermaster Detachment; School for Bakers and Cooks; Finance Detachment.

The membership fee is one dollar. If not convenient to give your fee now authorize your Company Commander to deduct it on the January payroll.

The following officers have been designated as organization representatives, as indicated:

Headquarters The Infantry School—Capt. G. O. A. Daughtry, Inf.

Academic Department—Capt. Walter T. Scott, 24th Infantry.

29th Infantry—Maj. T. S. Taylor, 29th Infantry.

24th Infantry—Capt. E. M. S. Stewart, 24th Infantry.

15th Tank Battalion—1st Lt. Frank J. Vida, Infantry.

83rd Field Artillery—1st Lt. Harry M. Schwarze, 83rd F. A.

Special Units—Capt. R. G. Sherman, Infantry.

Medical Department—1st Lt. Henry B. Lavery, M. C.

Civilian Employees—Mr. O .B. Markey.

Infantry Board—Major Chas. B. Lyman, Infantry.

Department of Experiment—Capt. L. A. Wetherby, Infantry.

During the football season of 1928, Fort Benning has witnessed one of the hardest fought football series in its history. Losing grid warriors have fought desperately in the face of almost certain defeat, while the victors have gained prestige by right of might. To pick an All-Benning team has been no easy task. After much deliberation I have picked the first and second teams only after studying the choices of three officers at Fort Benning, who gladly submitted their choices. Capt. Althaus, Lieuts. Roosma and Finney picked their first team, and I have taken their teams and selected two teams giving weight to the team as chosen by the above named officers. No doubt many will disagree with the selections in some instances, but all will agree that the first team as shown above would hold their own against all opposition. The same might be said of the second team chosen, among whose number were several that the judges had picked for their first team. Now to discuss my seelctions as above.

Lambert of the 83rd F. A., choice for left end, has been an outstanding player with the Caisson Riders this season. Weighing 190 pounds, Lambert is fast and a deadly tackle, time and again against the Tanks, he broke through to tear up plays before they were underway in the Tanker backfield.

Harry Bertleman of the Tanks, was unopposed for left tackle, this big 230 pounds of bone and muscle carries speed and driving power that has struck terror to the hearts of the famous Devil Dogs of Quantico in past grid battles.

Stewart of the Tankers, was a first choice for left guard. Although a youngster in years, Stewart is a veteran at the game, having played as a member of the All-Army team of 1926-27.

Moody of the Second Bats was chosen for right guard, the work of Moody has been of big league caliber all season.

Right tackle goes to Costello of the Tanks. Costello is by far one of the garrisons fastest and brainest players. He was a member of the All-Army team of 1927.

Another Tanker was awarded the honors for right end, McKelvey, who has played a great game at this position all season and who also starred with the All-Army against the Paris Island Marines at Philadelphia last season.

In the backfield McAuliffe of the Rolling Caissons is picked for the quarterback position. "Mac" has gained the admiration of the entire garrison during the past three seasons in his untiring efforts to pull the Caisson Riders out of the cellar in athletics, with a strong aggregation McAuliffe would prove his real worth as a backfield man.

Bennett of the Tanks at right halfback is an easy choice. There is no doubt that the "Louisiana Cyclone" is the hardest man in the garrison to stop when he gets a football tucked under his arm and gets going.

If there is another player that is Bennett's equal at making yardage through a line, it is "Fat" Franz of the Second Bats, besides Franz can throw or receive with the best of them. Franz is picked to take care of left half-back position.

At full-back Kelly himself rules by a big majority, the brainwork and football craftiness of Kjelstrom has been a big factor in developing the powerful football machine now representing the Second Bats.

"Red" Lindsey of the Tanks and "Dutch" Berrish of the Second Bats, are both star football players, both men play center. The judges were evenly divided, one for Lindsey, one for Berrish and the third gave it a draw. Berrish is the faster and harder hitter but Red is the smarter and is known to fans as the reliable "Redhead." Two additional judges disagreed. Though both men are entitled to the position, should there be a split hair decision, Berrish's speed and driving power entitles him to the position.

A second team that closely rivals the first string was picked from those who were nosed out of the first team.

YULE TIDE AT FORT BENNING

Only a few more days and Christmas. In many homes fond parents whose boy is somewhere in the Service will probably wonder how their soldier boy will spend his Christmas.

For the benefit of those who probably do not know, I would like to assure every one that "Santa Claus" never forgets the boys in the Service.

Already at Fort Benning elaborate plans are underway for the Yule Tide festivities. Instead of the old time sled that Santa once used, play toys and goodies are rolling into Fort Benning in car load lots.

Christmas trees have been selected, soon they will be moved from their forest home to the different organizations where they will be dressed in beautiful Christmas finery. Loads of wonderful presents will be heaped about it or hung from its branches and Santa will be there to present each and every one with a gift and a Merry Merry Christmas.

Already "Mother" Britton, hostess, has promised that the Christmas Dance that will be held at the Service Club, will far surpass any of those of the past (and that is saying lots), there will be bevys of pretty girls and the music for the occasion will be furnished by the 29th Infantry Orchestra, and there can be none better.

An idea of the dinner that will be served within the Army mess halls on Christmas Day can be taken from the menu for Company "D" of the 29th Infantry:

Mabel: Could you suggest something suitable for a girl friend's birthday?
Clerk: How about these book ends?
Mabel: Just the thing! She always reads the ends before she does the beginning.

"Mamma, why do elephants have such big trunks?"
"Well, they have to come all the way from India."

I. S. D. NOTES

First Sergt. Glenn of the Greencord outfit was seen leaving the toy department of the Post Exchange last Tuesday afternoon, with an arm full of neatly wrapped packages. The mystery is who was the present for, that plainly said "Ma-Ma" when it was held up-side down.

Santa Claus has received the Green Cord's order for Christmas and he has sent a radio saying that he has the I. S. D. Christmas box already packed and ready for delivery. Santa radioed that he was very sorry that he would be unable to bring Pfc. Knox the self-starter he wanted for his Sally Ann. "Uke" Bird is going to get a pocket broadcaster so that he will be able to get on the air at anytime. No, Corp. Booth, Santa will furnish furniture and toys but you must get the girl.

Santa also says that the little boys and girls (the good ones) of the I. S. D. are going to get many toys and good things from the Christmas package he is bringing. There is a present for every one of them and Santa will be at the I. S. D. Christmas Tree to deliver the presents and he would like to see every little girl and boy of the Detachment present. He is very sorry that he can't bring Ernest Peterson a shotgun this year but he will give him something that he will like and save the shotgun until he grows a little larger.

It is rumored that Santa has already made a trip to Benning and talked to Major Faligant, Detachment commander, about what each little girl and boy would like. There were reindeer tracks and signs of a sled, leading right up to Major Faligant's quarters a few mornings ago In fact a sled with six tiny reindeer, driven by an old man with snow-white hair and whiskers came through the gate the night before the tracks were seen.

N. C. O. CLUB HOLDS ELECTION

(By H. Cooper)

Combining business with pleasure, the club members of the N. C. O. Club of the Infantry School Detachment, held their annual election Friday night, Dec. 14, after which a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

The business affairs of the Club and the election of officers for the coming year was quickly finished. The next number on the program being an assembly of all present to enjoy the banquet that had been prepared for the occasion. To name the many good things served would cover much space but the large table was carrying a full tonnage of good things that even the morning after make us hungry to even write about.

The following men were elected to the offices named: President, Mr. Sgt. Bishop; Vice President, Sergeant Kissinger; Secretary and Treasurer, Sergeant Davis.

The Detachment commander, Major Louis Falligant was present and made an interesting address on the subject of loyalty and co-operation with those of lower rank as well as those of higher rank.

Lt. Henry H. Fay was also present and made a short address on the social contacts and how they differ from the official contacts.

The new officers were put into office at once and the new president made a short talk in which he complimented the retiring president and expressed the hope that he would be as good a president as his predecessor.

Smith: Did your son get what was coming to him at college?
Smithers: Well, they gave him a black sheepskin!

A monocle on an Irishman is really an incogruous spectacle.

AT THE MOVIES

DEC. 21, TO DEC. 28, INCL.

FRIDAY, DEC. 21

"SHADOWS OF THE NIGHT," an exciting underworld story of a reporter sleuth who "scoops" the police. Starring Lawrence Gray with a good supporting cast including Flash ,a highly trained police dog, who follows the criminal detection pursuits for which these animals are noted in Germany. There is a chase for a noted underworld bandit chief, thrilling battles, escapes and other intriguing events. A pleasing romance enters into the story.

"Baby Show." Fables.

"Pathe News No. 99."

SATURDAY, DEC. 22

"GRIP OF THE YUKON," starring Francis X. Bushman with Neil Hamilton and June Marlowe in a gripping epic tale of love and hatred laid in the romantic gold fields of Alaska. The story surrounds two partners with a murder locked in their breasts, and a beautiful girl who comes seeking that secret; she falls in love with one of them and a most intriguing and absorbing plot unfolds itself.

"Collegians No. 4."

SUNDAY, DEC. 23

"THE FOREIGN LEGION," starring Norman Kerry and Lewis Stone with June Marlowe and Mary Nolan. The background for this picture is the burning sands of bleak Morocco and the army posts of the most famous military organization in the world, where passions seethe and hate burns like a white hot brand and love lasts through trials and perils that try men's souls. Here iron-handed discipline rules and the penalty for a breach of regulations is sometimes worse than death. The theme involves a private in the ranks who battles for love against autocratic superior officers in the face of tremendous odds.

"Tail Waggers." Sportlight.

"Paramount News No. 40."

MONDAY, DEC. 24

"THE MATING CALL," starring Thomas Meighan, Evelyn Brent and Renee Adoree in a tale from the pen of Rex Beach. This absorbing drama is filled with action, suspense and heart throbs reeled off in rapid and convincing continuity. The action takes place on a Florida farm, although one sequence is laid at the port for immigrants to the United States, Ellis Island. The time is shortly after the World War. The story deals with a hard working farmer who, disappointed in love, seeks a woman to help him with the farm. He marries a waif of a girl whom he finds at Ellis Island, and the trials and tribulations that insue, form the absorbing theme of the plot.

"Terrible People No. 7."

TUESDAY, DEC. 25

"THE FLEET'S IN," starring Clara Bow with James Hall in a nautical but nice comedy drama of dancing "gobs" and prancing "femmes". As usual all the gobs are wild over their prospects of shore leave—when the fleet arrives, a dance hall owner sends down selected "peaches" to drum up trade—among them is a red-headed "gal" who sets rival hearts aflame, then the fun starts. It continues to the climax which occurs as the fleet again sets sail—there is action from start to finish—you'll enjoy it.

"Koko's Kane." Inkwell Imps.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 26

"DOCKS OF NEW YORK," starring George Bancroft with Betty Compson in a slashing gusty drama of water front life. The story concerns a heavy muscled stoker who decides to "do" New York City in forty-eight hours; he rescues a girl who had attempted suicide by drowning—apparently falls in love with her—a ceremony is performed using a beer keg as the altar and a bung hole washer as the wedding ring. Next day he deserts her, but there is a turn to the story that will surprise and enthrall you.

"Paramount News No. 41."

THURSDAY, DEC. 27

"TAKE ME HOME," starring Bebe Daniels and Neil Hamilton in a comedy-drama giving colorful glimpses of back stage life in New York City. A chorus girl befriends a stage-struck country boy. The star of the show takes a fancy to him with resultant rivalry between the two actresses. Ensuing scenes portray much of that which the public never sees and the chorus girl succeeds in outwitting and outshining her competitor.

"Football Field Officials": If you are interested in the professional handling of the gridiron game don't fail to see this instructive film.

FRIDAY, DEC. 28

"NAPOLEON": This epic historical picture was written and filmed in France, its actors are all natives of the land of Napoleon's rule. Albert Dreudonne plays the part of Napoleon and Gina Manes that of the beautiful Josephine. This can be called a true biographical study of the great conquorer's life; no attempt is made to treat of morals or of politics. For this purpose the author gathered together an all-star French cast and placing them in the actual settings of Napoleon's eventful career, succeeds in forcably bringing to the eyes of the public a true character study of one of the greatest men of history. The film is educational as well as intensely interesting.

"The Early Bird." Fables.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT SERVICE CLUB NO. 1

The question of what to do at Benning after dinner on Christmas has been most delightfully settled.

After the enlisted personnel have enjoyed the wonderful dinners that will be served them at their outfits, they and their guests are most cordially invited to spend the afternoon and evening at Service Club No. 1.

There will be a string orchestra playing all afternoon and songs by popular singers of the post, and last but not least, refreshments and smokes will be served.

In the evening, beginning at 9 o'clock, the 29th Infantry orchestra will be on hand to play for the big costume dance, which will last until 12 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. The orcehtsar leader, Sergeant Wright, has informed the dance committee that all the latest dance hits will be played.

Celebrate Christmas at Your Club, and bring your friends.

Mrs. Inez Brittain, the hostess ,will be present, and intends that everyone will have a good time.

The club has been beautifully decorated and nothing spared to make this program long to be remembered.

The enlisted families of the Post who intend to be at the dance, may secure transportation by calling 101 or 583R1—Sergeant Shepard.

There will be the usual bus transportation from town which will leave the bus station at 8:30 P. M.

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next Meeting—Jan. 7th.
Time—2:15.

The Infantry School Woman's Club held its last meeting before the holiday season on Monday afternoon at which time a program of delightful variety was presented.

Col. George C. Marshall made a charming talk reminiscent of unusual Christmases he has experienced. He told us of his first Christmas in the Army. He was stationed on a little promontory at the southern most part of the Philippines, and had been left with a mere handful of men, to pack up supplies and be ready to abandon the outpost when the boat of Philippine Scouts came. In the mad rush to get everything ready, all else was forgotten by the officer until a soldier said rather timorously: "Does the Lieutenant know this is Christmas Day?" So work had to be laid aside, and a pig, the only available thing, was caught, killed and roasted; and tho' the feast was belated, it was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

He told of a Christmas spent on a troop train in the days when regiments moved from one post to another, and told of the fun they had watching everybody from the Colonel down to the fireman open his stocking; of Christmas dinner at a Fred Harvey Lunch Room served by pretty waitresses who became guests as soon as their work was done. A Christmas that was out of the ordinary was one spent in a small border post where the lady who had always made preparations for the holiday celebration was ordered away and nobody realized that much had to be done to make "Christmas in the Quarters" till the time was upon them so at the last minute Col. Marshall took the prisoners among others and let them build and arrange things for the children's Christmas party while he did some advantageous shopping at wholesome prices and provided a memorable Christmas for the grown ups as well as the children.

He spoke of Christmas in France during the war and how the American soldiers "bought out Paris" and tried to give a real Christmas to those whom the war had desolated.

And his last unusual Christmas was that of 1926 in China. War was being waged around Tientsin and, with weather intensely cold, hundreds of women with babies and small children were turned out of home without a thing in the world. From his point of observation he overlooked a vast plain and saw these small groups dotting the landscape, in all, some 500, who had lost everything but their little ones.

Surely it was quite interesting to hear our Assistant Commandant tell of these Christmas experiences at home and abroad. It was an honor and a priviledge to have him with us.

After Col. Marshall's talk Miss Emily Thomas of Columbus gave a group of readings. She first gave Henry Van Dyke's "The Lost Word" which so forcefully brings out the one word upon which peace and happiness depend—It keenly appropriates to have chosen this story for in the rush and excitement of buying and sending gifts and in the merry making of the season the real significance is almost lost sight of.

She gave a group of character impersonations which were vividly portrayed and concluded her program with a one act play "The Prince of Court Painters" by Constance D'Arcy McKay.

Mrs. John F. Holland, who is a most talented and skilled violinist, played three lovely selections: "Scarabond," "Estralita" and "Liebeslied." She was accompanied by Capt. John K. Rice.

After the program Mrs. Jesse A. Ladd and Mrs. Morrison J. Stayer entertained at tea. The table was lovely with its embroidered carton cloth, its centerpiece a tall silver vase filled with lovely red carnations and fern and surrounded by four silver candlesticks holding red candles. Mrs Frank C. Baker and Mrs. W. L. Reed presided over the tea and coffee services.

"Don't sign up for Geology. I took it and didn't like it."

Hosiery of individuality

Gordon V-Line and Gordon Narrow Heel are accessories of distinction—the unfailing choice of the woman who knows.

There are artistic reasons for their style.

For the V-Line was designed by a famous artist to enhance the beauty of the ankle, by stressing the natural shadows. It is graceful and feminine, the perfect choice for the afternoon or evening frock · $2.50.

The Narrow Heel, with its trim, smart line is much better adapted to the modern silhouette than the unnecessary width of the old square heel · $2.00.

Both designs are available in chiffon for afternoon and evening and sheer service weight for street and morning wear.

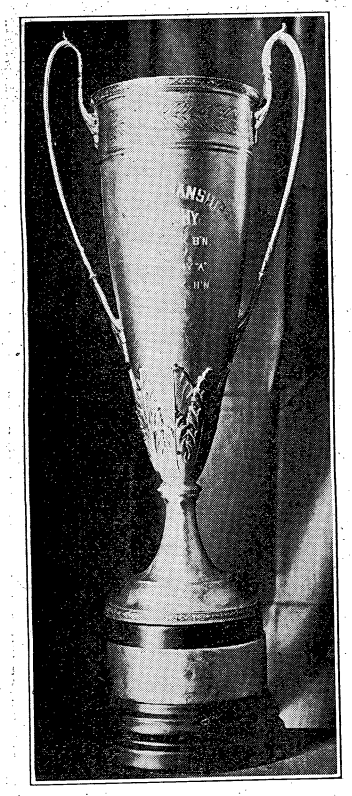
CO. "A" 15TH TANKS PRESENTED TROPHIES BY COMPANY COMMANDER



Marksmanship Trophy

Football Trophy

Company "A" 15th Tank Battalion, commanded by Captain L. J. Lampke, was recently presented two trophies by the battalion cammander, Major E. S. Miller. The presentation was made at a delightful banquet in the company dining room. After the banquet, Major Miller presented the two trophies, the football trophy and the marksmanship trophy. The former award was made due to the fact that Company "A" won the company football series in the battalion this season, while the second trophy was awarded the organization for "the best shooting company" in the battalion. The officers and men of Company "A" deserve great credit for being able to take two of the outstanding awards in the battalion for the season.

Following the award of the trophies, Major Miller, on behalf of Company "A" presented attractive pen and pencil sets to the following individual high marksmen of the company:

Pistol—1st, Corporal Duhon; 2nd, Corporal Cunningham; special prize, high recruit, Private Brewer.

Machine Gun—1st, Corporal McKelvey; 2nd, Corporal Wright.

37 M M Gun—1st, Corporal Duhon Private Hice, tied; 2nd, Private Haynie.

Commanding Officer of "We Lead the Way" Regiment has had Interesting and Varied Career

Formerly Director of Dept. of Experiment at Infantry School

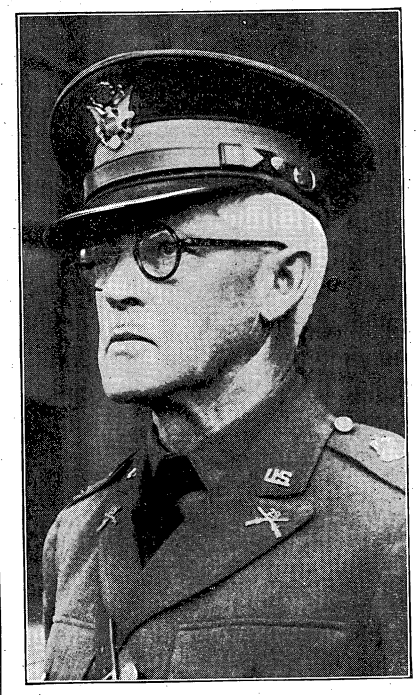
Colonel Harris Pendleton, Jr., commanding officer, 29th Infantry, was born at Guilford, Connecticut, on October 31, 1872. He entered the service, during the Spanish American War as 1st Sergeant, 3d Conn. Vol. Infantry, and within a month, was promoted to 2nd Lieutenant. He served with his unit until March 20, 1899, when he was mustered out as a 1st Lieutenant. The Philippine Insurrection brought him back into the service again on July 5 ,1899, as Captain and Adjutant of the 26th U. S. Infantry. Captain Pendleton served a tour in the Philippines with this regiment from November, 1899 to March, 1901.

On February 2, 1901, he was appointed a 1st Lieutenant of Infantry, Regular Army, and served as such until August 5, 1910, when he received his promotion as Captain. The following year, Captain Pendleton was detailed to serve in the Q. M. C., from April 13, 1911 to December 2, 1912. The next five years, Captain Pendleton spent with the Infantry, receiving his majority, August 3, 1917.

At the outbreak of the World War, he became a temporary Lieutenant Colonel of Infantry, and served as Division Inspector of the 86th Division, from its organization at Camp Grant, Ill., until shortly after its arrival in France in September, 1918. Lt. Col. Pendleton was then assigned as the Executive Officer in the Inspector General's Office at GHQ, A. E. F., at Chaumont. He remained on that duty for some time, except for a three months period, when he served as Corps Inspector of VIII Corps. In the meantime, having received his promotion as temporary colonel, Colonel Pendleton took command of the 9th Infantry. He held this command until June 30, 1920, when he became the Assistant Chief of Staff G-3 of the 2nd Division. Lt. Col. Pendleton served as G-3 until the fall of 1921, when he was ordered to the School of the Line, as a student officer.

Colonel Pendleton is a graduate of the School of the Line, 1922, the General Staff School 1923, and the Army War College 1925. He was placed on the General Staff Corps Eligible List, and served in the General Staff Corps from June 30, 1925 to August, 1, 1926.

Colonel Pendleton has twice served as director of the Department of Experiment, his first tour being from July, 1923, to July, 1924, and his second being from August, 1926 to May, 1928. During this latter period the Department completed 44 test projects, among which were three of major importance; the Pederson, Cal. 276 Semi-Automatic Rifle, the wheeled machine gun mount and anti-aircraft adapter and the Anti-aircraft Training Course for Riflemen. In addition to directing the test of the new wheeled mount, Col. Pendleton devised several mechanical features which have been adopted after the service test of the mount. He also made a continuing study of the tactical employment of anti-aircraft fire and those few who are in a position to judge have acclaimed Col. Pendleton as the outstanding authority on Infantry anti-aircraft tactics.



The reports of test submitted by the Department of Experiment during Col. Pendleton's detail as Director were numerous and varied in nature, and included projects of weapons, communication equipment, individual equipment of the soldier and miscellaneous articles. The conclusions of these reports of test were a direct reflection of Col. Pendleton's logical and analytical mind.

Colonel Pendleton took command of the 29th Infantry on May 8, 1928. An exceptional turnover in officer personnel, (about 46%), was one of the serious situations confronting our new Regimental Commander. Already the Regiment bears the impress of Colonel Pendleton's remarkable personality and stronger than ever, continues to "Lead the Way."

"Are you sure this is Christmas morning?"

"Well, if it isn't I've washed my socks for nothing."

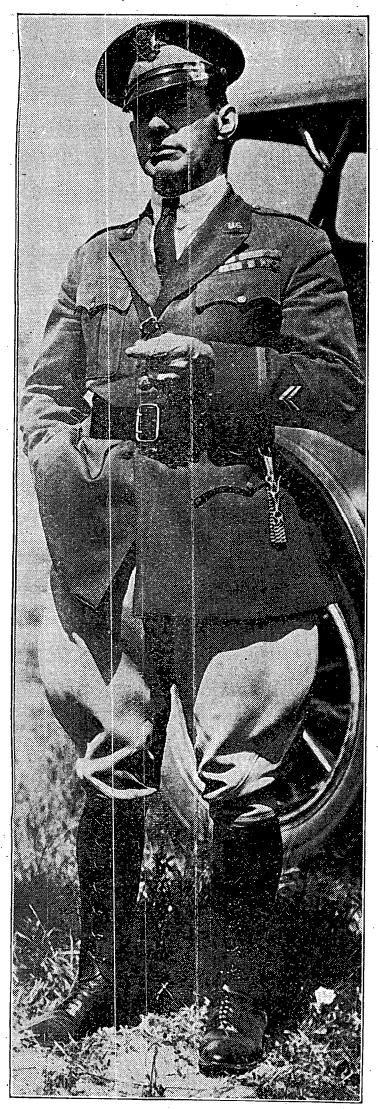
A GOOD PLACE TO EAT

THE COMMANDANT THE INF. SCHOOL



Brig.-Gen. Edgar T. Collins, who has been the Commandant, The Infantry School since March 9, 1926. General Collins is a graduate of the U. S. M. A. class 1897; School of the Line, 1910; Army Staff College, 1917; Army War College, 1920.

FIRST BATTALION FOOTBALL TEAM MADE GOOD RECORD

During the football season just closed the 1st Battalion had a fifty-fifty break, winning two games and losing two. During the early part of the season it was decided that we would not have a company league, but that all efforts would be turned to form a battalion squad, with the idea of traniing material for the company league next fall. A squad of sixty-two men turned out for the initial practice and with a few exceptions these men all stayed the entire season. The squad was unfortunate in that two or three of the best of the old players decided that they were getting too old for football and did not come out. However, Romploski of Company "B" did come out and this amply made up for some of the old timers.

On November 15, 1928, the squad was separated nito two groups. One group of twenty-seven men being the first string, with the remainder forming a "freshman" squad.

Of the older men Barr, Skipper and Bowen starred in the line with steady and sometimes brilliant support from the ends, Abrams, Polack and Stepp. Of the new men "Hicks" showed himself to be a decided requisite to post athletic personnel and will undoubtedly be rated as one of the best linesmen on the post. Oneillion at guard played a quiet but efficient game, covering his territory without trouble.

In the backfield the season was one of experiment and injuries. Blackstone, a lineman, transferred to the backfield shows promise of becoming one of the best on the post. An unfortunate injury in his first backfield game, slowed him down for the entire season. Saul, an old linesman also, transferred to the backfield showed great promise, having the necessary nerve and determination—lacking only in speed.

The two Bevlin brothers of Company "B", after winning more than their share of the track meet, came out for football, were assigned to the backfield and made good.

Harper, one of the acknowledged stars, had a severe accident that confined him to the bench for the greater part of the post series.

Hampscher, Reddock, Reeves and Romploski were the steadies in the backfield and did their work in an excellent manner.

The battalion, while very anxious to beat the Second Battalion, is satisfied that the team did its complete best and more than satisfied with the fighting spirit and sportsmanship displaye by the men.

Sweaters will be awarded to the team by the battalion.

RESUME OF THE FORT BENNING WOMAN'S CLUB

(By Mrs. W. H. Vinscn)

In the early days when what is now one of the biggest and best garrisons in the Army was but a temporary camp of shanties and tents, there was a small Study Club composed of twelve members who found their afternoons of reading and discussion quite worth while. Orders took some away at the end of that year but a nucleus was left and when things began to take shape for the next year's activities in the fall of 1923, these serious minded women had the inspiration to turn their small club into a Woman's Club which would have a wider field of interest and offer various avenues of culture to all women of the post who were interested. General Gordon was in command of the post at that time and Mrs. Gordon asked all the ladies of the garrison to meet in the Hop Room and there the pros and cons of a Woman's Club were thrashed out and The Infantry School Woman's Club was organized.

Mrs. Alfred Bjoinstadt was elected president and a very gracious and charming one she made. The success of the first year was due largely to the efforts of Mrs. W. W. McCommon who, as chairman of the program committee, brought interesting and talented people before the club. For two years the club had only bi-monthly programs with no social features, for in those days we met in the Lounge Room of the Officers Club and at the stroke of 4 o'clock we had to give up the room if we had to stop an opera singer in the middle of a song!

Mrs. Bjoinstadt was president until orders took her away and during the rest of that second year Mrs. W. A. Kent, first vice president, presided. At the beginning of the third year a change of policy was made in the club. People didn't have any opportunity to get acquainted with each other and many yearned for opportunities of self-activity. Then it was that the departmental clubs came into being. First among them were The Arts and Crafts Club and was led for two years by Mrs. Albert Helsley, Mrs. William McFarland and later by Mrs. Wm. McKendry Scott. They studied Period Furniture, Interior Decorating and did much along the lines of stencil, block printing, batik etc. This club, to bring it down to the moment, has always been of interest to many ladies of artistic turn and for the past two years Mrs. John D. Forsythe had most ably led the members in paths of beauty.

The Home Economics Club under the leadership of Mrs. Butler Knight and Mrs. Walter T. Scott, studied the theory and practiced the art of home management and cookery.

The Literary Club grew under Mrs. Philip B. Peyton's wise and inspiring leadership from a small group who met around at homes to a group so large that for the past two years it has been necessary to meet at the Polo Club. During these years this club has studied: The Winners of the Nobel Prize in Literature; Contemporary American Literature; Contemporary World Literature by Counties; Contemporary World Literature by various classifications.

One year, 1925, there was a skilled child psychologist here, Mrs. Edwin T. Bowden, who directed a group in child study.

Mrs. Robert Bacon directed a group for a short while in Dressmaking but she was ordered away and that club became inactive.

The following ladies have served as president of The Woman's Club:

Mrs. Alfred Bjoinstadt, Mrs. Frank Cocheu, Mrs. Wm. McKendry Scott, Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman, Mrs. Wait C. Johnson, Mrs. Edgar S. Miller.

It was under Mrs. Scott's inspiration that the Polo Club was sought for a meeting place that we might, after the programs, have a social half hour over a cup of tea and get acquainted with each other in a way impossible over a bridge table or at formal affairs. This time marks the upward curve in the graph of the life of the club. It has flourished for the past three years, coming with its cultural offering to fill a much-felt need in the life of the garrison.

It has been the privilege of the club to have a part in bringing the great English novelist, Frank Swinnerton, to Columbus for a delightful lecture, and it, unassisted, brought Seamus McManus. the great Irish writer of fairy and folklore, for an evening with us on the very eve of St. Patrick's Day. These are perhaps the only world famous people we have brought but many well known, brilliant, and talented people have appeared on our programs.

Each year the club has contributed liberally to The Children's School, some times buying playground equipment, sometimes giving money.

The club has a serious purpose. It strives to give an intellectual outlet for all who are interested. It hopes to offer those things which will make for the enrichment of our community life.

SOJOURNERS CLUB MET LAST MONDAY

The Fort Benning chapter of the National Sojourners Club held its monthly meeting at the Polo Club Monday evening. There were about fifty members present. After dispensing with routine business of the club, Capt. F. E. Ambrose, secretar yof the club and chairman of the entertainment committee for the December meeting, took charge. Capt. Ambrose very cleverly conducted a guessing contest based on battles of the Revolutionary war, War of 1812, and the Civil war. Having given the date of the battle and the place where fought, members of the club were required to guess names of the commanding generals of the opposing forces and the name of the battle. Appropriate prizes were awarded the members attaining the three highest percentages. Captain Robert A. Case, 29th Infantry, won first prize, having attained a percentage of 98. Lieut. Col. G. V. Strong, infantry, won second prize and Major G. Hoisington, infantry, third.

The second phase of the evening's entertainment consisteu of vocal selections by Mrs. E. S. Barker and Captain S. G. Blanton. Mrs. C. L. Rutledge accompanied on the piano.

Refreshments were served after the splendid program. The next meeting of the club will be held in January at which time officers will be selected for the ensuing year.

GOLF SHOWS RAPID PROGRESS DURING PAST YEAR AT BENNING

(By Sgt. Clark)

Golf in the last year has made a remarkable stride in Benning athletics to practically put it in front of every sport we have here.

Tennis players are taking up golf, many of the Benning Riding Team are to be seen on the course daily, ask them why and they will say, "My friends have taken up the game and I have to play with them."

Two Golf Tournaments of note were held that brought out some exceptionally good golf. First was the 4th Corps Area Tournament, with 40 entries, the largest entry list on record so far. Capt. Nevins winner, and Capt. Hickson runner up, both were eligible to go to Chevy Chase, but duties compelled Capt. Nevins to forego the trip. Capt. Hickson played there and showed the brand of golf we play at Ft. Bennin.

The Post Championship developed a dark horse in Capt. Chance, who though not playing spectacular golf, played steady enough to win his matches through the first flight and eventually closed Capt. Neville out in the 36-hole finals 2 to 1.

Ladies of the garrison are steadily playing the game and more and more seem to visit the course each day. At present there are approximately sixty ladies playing the game at Fort Benning as against half that number one year ago.

The course record was broken for both men and ladies during the past year. Sgt. Clarke the Club pro, shooting six birdies in a row, eight in ten holes finished eighteen holes with 67.

Mrs. W. E. Donegan shattered the ladies mark of 88 held by Mrs. Finney, with a brilliant 86.

Christmas Greetings

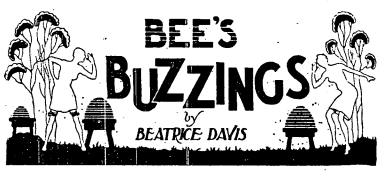
Best Wishes

from

The Post Exchange

Fort Benning, Ga.



A berry, berry Chrizmuz, eberybuddy!

Here's hoping good old Saint Nick will find his way across Upatoi, to every o. d. sock or silk stocking, no matter how big a hole may be in the toe, and stuff it full to the brim of Christmas cheer and joy!

Everyone Bee has encountered for the past week seems in such fine fettle for the Christmas Holidays! Noses are blooming, emulating the well-known holly berries—but for what a reason! Ah! don't get the wrong perspective—for a sneeze gives a clue! The flu, the jolly old flu—has come to stay with us through the Christmas Holidays!

It develops that Lt. Allison will be able to spend the Christmas Holidays in Saint Petersburg after all. Bids on the construction of the proposed Tank Barracks will be opened on the 21st, and on the 22nd, the Constructing Quartermaster plans to be speeding, in his merry Nash coupe (that last phrase to be sung to the tune of "Come away with me, Lucille, in My Merry Oldsmobile," a song of the vintage of 1915), toward the land of yachts and sunshine—Oh, much sunshine! He plans to get in a bit of hunting on his return from the boom state. No white Christmas for this efficient orsifer!

Captain Rustemeyer, Bee observes, had lunch Monday at the Service Club. This Captain, who for so many years had Company "B" of the 29th the leading unit of the "We Lead the Way" organization, was enjoying his luncheon perched on one of the high stools surrounding the counter. Another one of Bee's subdued desires is to some day eat lunch off the counter—the meanwhile perched on one of those stool-like affairs.

Poor Ida Bell! This feline who mysteriously disappeared from the First Section, has been swallowed into the void of silence from which many never return! She has disappeared, and the Open Eye Detective Agency reports every clue followed to earth—and Ida Bell still missing! Aye, lads, 'twill be a sad Christmas for the First Section!

Quite a crowd was present to see the Infantry trouce the Birmingham Red-Birds in basketball Monday night. And among the luminaries, mixing and mingling with the time-keeper, referee and other high officials, whom does Bee observe but Lt. "Judd" Smith! But withall, wearing his new dignity modestly!

Bee heard an officer whom she considers quite "up" on athletics at Benning, state that if the weather Saturday is cold and clear, he'd be almost willing to back the Second Battalion football team with his Christmas Savings Account! However, he said if it were foggy and damp, 'twould be the Tanks that would carry the weight of his savings check! It seems nothing can deter this Tank Battalion—and if they go on winning cups at the rate they have been annexing them lately—some practical use must be made of them! Bee offers her suggestion that they would make lovely flower pots, coffee urns, or sugar bowls!

The volley ball games are gaining in interest every day, in the Company Officers Class. Big league ball is now being played, and the fun is waxing hot. How will the boys be able to do without this volleying during Xmas?

Station B-E-E now signs off, with Christmas greetings and many wishes for a merry, happy Christmas!

CONSTRUCTION DIVISION OF THE Q. M. C. HAS BEEN BUSY THE PAST YEAR

(By Beatrice Davis)

Bolivian and Paraguayan forts may crumble, presidents may come and go, summer may fade into fall, and fall into winter, but the old Quartermaster Corps, founded long ago by General George Washington, functions right along—fair weather or foul. The "Service to the Line" crew, like Tennyson's brook, goes on forever.

The past year has seen no big projects under way under the supervision of the Quartermaster, but it has seen the many thousands of little jobs that too often credit is not given for, performed, and it has seen the functions of all branches of the Corps, go forward on greased wheels.

Want your electric stove repaired? Call 26—Utilities. Want quarters assigned? Then 233, the Billeting Branch, will help you with your difficulties. Are you ordered away, and do you want the necessary transportation requests? Then 49, the Transportation Dept., should solve your problem. Is it new supplies? The Purchase branch issues thousands of purchase orders every year. Household supplies?. Then the supplies branch can help you.

It's the numberless little things that take place every day at which the Quartermaster Corps shines. And so used is the general Benningite to calling on the Quartermaster for aid ,that he does not realize the service he is getting and appreciate it—but takes it more or less for granted.

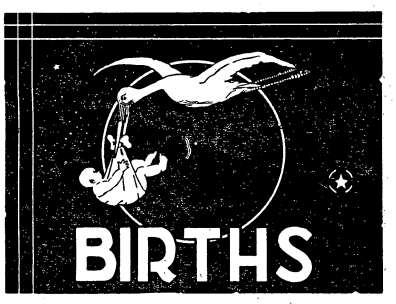
Probably the improvement that is appealing the most to the greatest number of Benning's population at the present time is the rebuilding of the roads. Wold Avenue, from the 1st Division Road to Gillespie Street is now a hard, clay thoroughfare, over which it is a delight to ride, while Gillespie from Wold to Vibbert has been transformed. At the present time, the remodeling of Vibbert Avenue from Lumpkin Road to Gillespie is in the capable hands of Lt. Dahnke and Sgt. Ames, and before many moons have waned ,this most important thoroughfare of Benning will be in the same superb shape as Wold Avenue.

The water works has benefitted greatly by 1928—for all wooden water mains have been removed, and their place taken by cast iron mains, 65,000 feet in all. A filter plant, costing $75,000 has been constructed, a one and one-half million coagulating basin, and a 100,000 gallon wash water tank, have been added to the group. All of this expenditure, however, has been warranted by the fact that Benning will have a water purifying system that ranks with the best. This should certainly have some effect on the general health of the camp.

The Construction Division, during the past year, has seen no let-up in construction activities. The last day of Our Lord 1928 will see the entire cuartel of the 29th Infantry practically complete—two ward buildings of the hospital group completed—while the early part of 1929 will see work getting underway on the half-moon barracks of the 15th Tank Battalion. It is probable that the passing of a few weeks will see authorization received to construct a nurses' home, and an additional ward building. The ten million dollar building program is well underway at Benning, with indications that a very short time will elapse before the quarters, hospital and barracks situation is well in hand.

Over at the Bake Shop, the activity of the Quartermaster Corps that keeps Benning's sweet tooth stocked, a most successful year has been reported. Most successful has this shop been in feeding the giant sweet tooth that belongs to the Camp! This aforesaid tooth has grown so that it takes 40 dozen sugar doughnuts, 100 pies, about 15 cakes, and 70 dozen cinnamon rolls per day to assuage its hunger—to say nothing of the 3,000 pounds of issue bread, 1,000 pounds of sales bread, and 60 dozen plain rolls per day that it consumes with its butter and jelly!

All in all, the Quartermaster Corps at Benning bids the year 1928 adieu, with the consciousness of having performed its duties nobly and well—and it greets the incoming year with the thought of keeping the traditions of the Wheel-Key-and Sabre Unit well in force throughout the coming year.



December 12, 1928, Frances Reed, Daughter of 1st Lieut. Harry E. and Mrs. Reed, 15th Tank Bn.

MASONIC LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS FOR THE NEW YEAR

The Fort Benning Masonic Lodge held the annual election of officers recently. The following were elected for the ensuing year: W. M., Lieut. Henry H. Fay; S. W., W., O. J. B. Ryan; J. W., Mr. Sgt. H. M. Foster; Treas., Staff Sgt. Roscoe Belvin; Sec., Mr. Sgt. P. H. Risley; Trustee, Capt. R. A. Case.

Past Master William J. Stewart officiated at the installation of the officers elected at the same meeting.

"Did you know what love was before you met me?"

"Yes, but I never knew what work was."

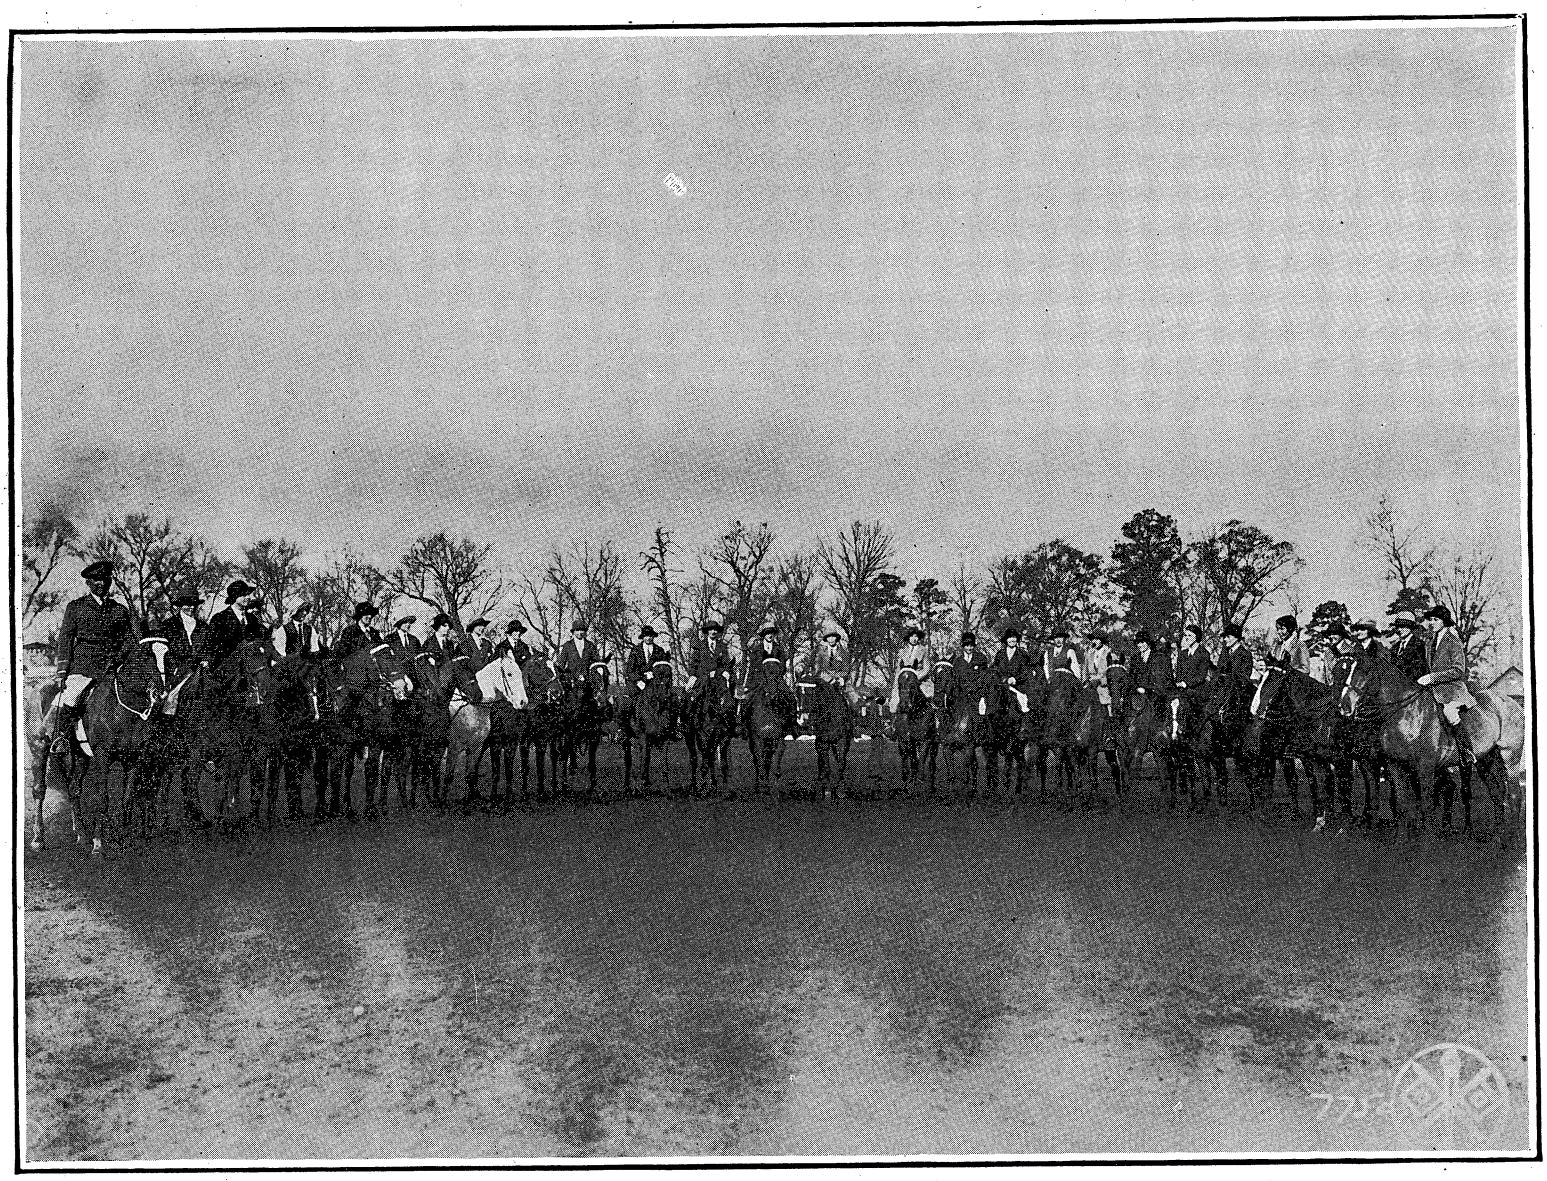
LADIES' RIDING CLASS



First Platoon—Left to right: Major H. J. M. Smith, Cav. (instructor), Mrs. Bolte, Mrs. Brimmer, Mrs. Vida, Miss Helen Young, Mrs. Brandt, Mrs. Forsythe, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. Ladd, Mrs. Catts, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Orsinger, Mrs. Sander, Mrs. Burrus, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Franklin, Mrs. Venable, Mrs. Hoge, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Knight, Mrs. McClure, Miss Brandt, Mrs. Brett, Mrs. Heavey, Mrs. Lockett, Mrs. White.

MAJOR MAX—IT'S MEMOIRS

I am the greatest of all Great Captains. I arrived upon the present scene of battle with my Advanced Class battalion some three months ago. I brought with me, in an array of cross-country chariots and mechanized velocipedes, all my S's. In actions and orders they excelled, but, poor fellows, they were unable to withstand the high concentrations from the elect on the south side of the Upatoi. We have weathered several short but decisive actions and soon had our first casualty, S-1, a cavalier of the old school. Although a veteran of many campaigns S-1 was deficient in the technicalities connected with pathological shoeing. At least he shot, or rather shod, when he shouldn't. Only myself and two per cent of our force came through unscratched. But this was because of our motto "Lets of horseshoe, lots of luck." In the training arena attached to this front I was delighted to promote one of my old messmate—Trooper Withers—who was elevated from the second gate to the first gate because 'tis whispered, he guffawed when "Dominatum Please" came a-cropper.

Our next sector was a "whooping" success because I had been erratic enough to caution my command that the best way to put out information was to say nothing. Several of those who volunteered to give impromptu orders for the battle were, I regret to state, intimidated by the presence of many of my colleagues of superior rank. Those who followed my advice in the ene-mene-mine-mo contest between Robinson's garage and the Chattahoochee received the coveted swastika, while those who didn't got the inverted muleshoe.

In another terrible onslaught my S-2 fell, afflicted with writer's cramp, in the field of maize just west of Brushtown where he had been attempting to mimic me in estimating the situation. My anguish would have been mitigated had it not been for the fact that my equal, "Doc" Cook, had already warned my command of the impending disaster by disclosing my approved plan in one of his rapid-fire chart talks. At least that's what Major Bradley admitted. Nevertheless, it remains a fact that the action was not determined according to Speaker Lange's rules of parliamentary procedure or my S-2 would have been saved. My command pluralized themselves in their desire to keep their hats in the ring and attack to the last ditch. After the smoke cleared away Major Bradley did, on my advice, announce to the command that the school supply office had neglected to furnish the necessary ouije boards with the situation.

Another reverse was the loss of S-3 from the hand of Big Ben Ferris. I had told Professor Bailey and Interlocutor Stevens not to crowd the boys in too closely; but they would have none of my warnings. Those white flags did mean company boundaries; yet many marched a battalion in, shoulder to shoulder, in order to thicken the defense. I immediately decorated these distinguished senors with the mystic order of R. T. P.

My last battle and the resultant loss of S-4 reduced my combat efficiency considerable. I discovered that all the obstacles in Field Engineering were not in the book by any means. In the early hours of the morning I observed my troops groping about, choked, blinded and gasping. In spite of the intermittent barrage by the "question mark platoon" (Comrades Connolly, Herlihy and Abbott) it remains a fact that a slide rule in the hands of a doughboy is a dangerous weapon—he should be armed with one pick and two shovels, carried as prescribed on page 30, T R 195-20. Two hedgehogs were run to ground by Collier and Wessels, but the latter was disqualified, being without a red coat. Even the prominent class surgeon, Doc Lueking, and Mark IV Ware, are still digging in on the battalion reserve line with a mythical force. But that's that.

Alone and single handed I am now leadin gmy force through the camping grounds of my old cronies, including Alfred the Great, Marshal Field, the Empress Josephine, and last but never least, the Bravest of the Brave who fought the late war in little 'ole Paris. To help the boys out I took it up with the high command to suspend hostilities during the Yuletide festivities. In this connection, I might state that the Assistant Comamnder informed me, confidentially, that six "Order of the Brown Derby" will be awarded to a like number of my force who objected to the truce. The rumor that Engineer Hawkenson is one of these is unfounded.

THE LADIES RIDING CLASS 1928-29

The pictures of the ladies' riding class in this issue represent a large portion of the class, which number 140. Unfortunately, there were a few members unable to be present when the pictures were taken.

They are divided into five platoons in accordance with their horsemanship ability. Each year many riders are developed who have never before ridden horseback. Instruction is given three days a week, each period comprising 45 minutes "Riding Hall" work and one hour cross country riding. The terrain affords many excellent rides with slides and jumps, open fields and obstacles which teach the rider the capability and limitation of the horse and build up and develop the riders' muscles, the attainment of a natural balance, and the development of confidence in their own ability and powers. The culmination of the year's work may be noted in the excellent performances of the ladies in the Annual Horseshow.

IT IS REGRETTED

That it was impossible to run rall the ladies riding class pictures on consecutive pages. The cuts were too large.

COL. P. S. BOND TO RETIRE FROM SERVICE NEXT YEAR

Had Charge of Erection of Structures of Recreation Center Activities at Infantry School.

War department orders recently issued informed many friends at Fort Benning of Lieut. Col. Paul S. Bond, C. E., of his retirement from the service on March 9, 1929. Colonel Bond retires at that time having made application therefore, after more than 32 years of service. He was stationed here for a period of four years, leaving here in June of this year for New York City, where he has been on duty with the District Engineer's office in that city. At the present time he is on leave of absence at Annapolis, Md.

Lieut Colonel Bond came to Fort Benning in 1924, and was assigned as Chief of the 2nd Section in the Academic Department and also designated as Engineer and later General Manager of the Recreation Center Board. During the period of his arriving here in 1924 until his departure in June 1928, Colonel Bond gained a host of freinds and admirers among the officers and enlisted personnel of the garrison. During this period the Doughboy Stadium, Gowdy Field and the Main Theater were erected with labor furnished by the garrison and made possible by funds donated from the Service. An officer was especially selected and detailed to act as engineer and to supervise the construction work. It took much hard work and much clever planning to utilize the labor at hand and to stay within the means appropriated. The completed structures speak for themselves and more than anything else they go to make our post one of the best places in the Army to serve. Lieut. Col. Paul S. Bond was detailed in charge of the construction of these projects.

The mechanical baseball scoreboard, which is used by the Fort Benning Athletic Association in giving the results of World Series baseball games, was designed and built by Colonel Bond. He also designed the football scoreboard from which the results of the West Point games are given.

Assigned to 32nd Div.

At the outbreak of the World War, Colonel Bond was assigned to the 32nd Division, stationed at Camp McArthur, Texas. He was Division Engineer and also comamnded the 107th Engineer Regiment.

During most of the time overseas, Colonel Bond was commandant of the Army Engineer and Gas School at Langres. He also served on the staff of the First Army.

Returning from France, he was assigned to the office of the Chief of Engineers in Washington, where he organized, under the direction of the Chief of Engineers, the Society of American Military Engineers and also was first editor of the Engineer Corps Journal, The Military Engineer.

In 1921 he was transferred back to the Cleveland District where he was assigned to duty with the 112th Engineers and engaged also on a survey for a canal from Pittsburgh to Ashtabula, Ohio. This canal was to be used for the transportation of iron ore from the upper lakes to Pittsburgh and also for transporting coal from the West Virginia field to the lake regions.

His many friends at Fort Benning wish him well in his deserved retirement.

Ivan: I swallered a pan yesterday and it hoits something terrible.

Itch: Vat kind of a pan—a dishpan maybe or a frying pan perhaps?

Ivan: No, no, a fountain pan.

SERVICE CLUB RESTAURANT TO CLOSE FOR REPAIRS

The Service Club restaurant will close on Dec. 25 for the purpose of making repairs and alterations. It will be closed for a week or so, and upon reopening the restaurant will be under the entire supervision of Post Exchange personnel. New equipment will be installed in order to supply the up-to-date demands of Fort Benning personnel.

Pawnbroker: These expensive violins are worth one hundred dollars, but I'll take ten dollars.

Customer: Then there must be some string attached to it.

HOLIDAY GREETINGS

THE INFANTRY SCHOOL NEWS EXTENDS TO ITS PATRONS AND READERS SINCERE WISHES FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT AT FORT BENNING

Christmas! Pleasant memories to many of us are recalled when that word is mentioned, memories dating back from our first knowledge that Santa Claus would put a little gift in our stocking hanging by the home fireplace. These fond memories once more return to us with the Christmas day of 1928 so near.

To many people Christmas is the one time of the year when there is a home-coming in most every American home. Many return to the scenes of their childhood, visit with the home folks, renew old friend-ships and make stronger the bonds which have weathered for many years.

Unfortunately, however, there are many, for various reasons, who are unable to make the annual Christmas pilgrimage to the home fireside. There no doubt will be many at Fort Benning this year who will long to make a visit to their home. While unable to do so, much of that home atmosphere and Christmas spirit will prevail at the Infantry School during this holiday season. All organizations have made elaborate plans for a big feast and entertainment on Xmas day. Mess sergeants and cooks and officers who have had general supervision over Xmas festivities, have spared no efforts to make 1928 a banner holiday season. After dinner next Tuesday the Service Club will have "open house" to all, and every one on the post will be cordially welcomed to participate in the Xmas cheer which will prevail there. A musical program has been arranged, and here the doughboy, caisson rider, engineer and all others may feel "at home" and may there bring their friends to share with them the Xmas spirit. During the evening hours, the Service Club will be a scene of a costume dance. Music will be furnished by the splendid 29th Infantry orchestra.

Truly the Christmas spirit will prevail at Fort Benning this year.

TACTICAL TOPICS

(By E. F. H.)

"Better be damned than mentioned not at all."

It was our firm resolution not to write anything more for publication in this column until the Christmas holidays but Editor Stewart, having written a nice letter requesting something in the customary vein for a special edition, we prefer to get busy at once rather than have it hang over us.

Speaking of Christmas reminds us that we spent the joyous holiday season of 1927 writing a masterly monograph and lithographing a Gargantuan map that deserved a side wall in the Metropolitan Art Museum. We might have deemed the sacrifice justified had not the instructor critics, from motives of professional jealousy, rung the bell on our verbal effort just as we were coming to our carefully rehearsed peroration. But, be that as it may, the thoughtful consideration shown by Major E. Square Lewis in arranging the monograph subjects shortly before the holidays was much praised in Advanced Class circles as being in complete accord with the spirit of the times which believes in strict regulation of the activities of the individual to conform to the ideas of constituted authority. We trust that the present Advanced Class is being duly looked after in such matters and that its members will be carefully safeguarded during the Christmas holidays against the temptations which lurk in an off-duty status (pronounced with a long a).

More Odious Comparisons

Much as we benefited from the excellent instruction received at the Infantry School, our subsequent experience has convinced us that it was not all that it might have been. For instance, we remember map problems at Benning in which the Map References called for only a single sheet of the Topographical Map, Gettysburg-Antietam (1925), 1:21,120. "Now at Leavenworth" no self-respecting instructor would think of requiring less than six sheets and those of one or two years experience can usually manage to involve the harassed student in ten or twelve. Moreover, although it has never been the policy of this column to indulge in personalities, we have to admit that Roy Hill and his ring of defense experts were frontage pikers compared to the Engineers who get up some of the defense problems at this institution. The approved solution of a recent pay problem in Field Engineering had a brigade occupying a front which measured 8,000 yards from tip to tip. Frank Culin, a prominent Vestal Virgin of last year's Advanced Class, went down on that one and many another honest Doughboy with him, to say nothing of Brother Engineers, Doctors, Airmen, Quartermasters and other non-combatants, while the cry that went up from Minor-Tactician Simmons, when the solution came out, sounded like the wail of a split mission machine gun calling to its lost mate along the desolate lower reaches of the Upatoi.

Reputations Six Months After

Speaking of Vestal Virgins reminds us that of the Sanctified Seventeen, who graduated from the Infantry School, last year, less than a dozen reached the Thanksgiving holidays with an unsullied record. Among the most recent of the fallen angels of last years Advanced Class we might mention Viscount Johnson, Chief Murphy and Emperor Easley. There are some more of them but even the conductor of Tactical Topics can't find out everything.

Major Drollinger recently participated in an historic Socratic dialogue with an instructor upon the best method to be adopted by tanks when crossing a ditch. Except for this memorable relapse, however, he has studiously abstained from elucidating and expanding the pronouncements of those who hold the platform by Divine Right.

Capt. Michael Heraty, a distinguished after confeernce orator of yesteryear, is now known in higher education circles as "Silent Mike."

Ambassador McLean, erstwhile skipper of a Pierce Arrow, locally christened the Ship of State now drives to and from College Hall in a New Ford.

Johnny Walker, premier reconteur of last year's Infantry School Personnel, is regarded as a shrinking violet by his fellow members of the Kinkergarten (two year) class. He may know a number of new stories but he isn't springing any of them in conferences.

Early in the course, one of George King's copywrited Biblical wisecracks was appropriated by a prominent member of the faculty and it brought down the house. It is not on record that permission to use it was obtained from the author (if he be the author) but, so far, no suit for plagarism has been instituted.

A Throwback to Crecy

Prolonged study of modern war has driven at least one member of last year's Advanced Class to Archery. Major Davidson has not only required considerable skill with the long bow but he has mastered a technical vocabulary, guaranteed to put even the most conversational golf nut to flight. Archer Davidson maintains that if they would abolish airplanes, artillery, machine guns and rifles, he would have a good chance of standing one in the class.

Tip For the Ambitious

Fully realizing that the member of this year's Advanced Class, who aspire to the Command and General Staff School, are eager for the latest thought on military subjects we offer, but do not vouch for, the following which was given to us by a contributor who claims to have taken it down verbatim from a conference.

"The advance guard does not go down the road and does not go into a fight and the division does not enter this fight to help out the advance guard who does not go down the road and who does not enter into the fight."

We hope that this will be as helpful to you as it has been to us.

WHO'S WHO!

LT. W. M. ALLISON, Q. M. C., CONSTRUCTING QUARTERMASTER

Want some nice quarters built? All right then, if you've lost faith in fairy tales—then would you like to know when it is planned to build some? Well, the gentleman who is pictured above, Lt. W. M .Allison, Q. M. C., Constructing Quartermaster, is just that certain party who can give you all available data on any subject of construction as pertains to Benning.

Lt. Allison, who bears the weight of the title of Constructing Quartermaster of The World's Largest Infantry School, blew into these parts the 6th of November, 1926, and since that time, has been most capably acting as Chief of the Construction Service at this Upatoi Station, even though he has not managed as yet to get quarters built. Bear with him for a while, however, and Lt. Allison states that he'll promise to have some nice quarters constructed for both the commissioned and enlisted personnel of Benning before he takes his departure from these enchanted shores.

At the present time, Sections "B", "C", "D" and "E" of the 29th Infantry Cuartel Barracks are a monument to Lt. Allison's supervision, while "F" and "G" will be completed within the next month and a half, and which sections will finish complete the horse-shoe of the 29th Infantry Barracks. Within the next few weeks, work will also begin on the half-moon barracks for the 15th Tank Battalion—while two wards of the hospital are underway at the present time, and it is expected that within the course of a short while, money will be allotted the Constructing Quartermaster's office for the construction of an additional ward and nurses' quarters. All of this work will be under the supervision of Lt. Allison.

However, Lt. Allison is well qualified to have supervision of such large projects, for at Washington University, his Alma Mater, he specialized on internal combustion engineering and civil engineering, and prior to entering the service, was floor plans efficiency engineer. Practically every branch of the construction service has, at one time or another, been studied by Lt. Allison.

An odd fact, however, is that Lt. Allison, when he first came to join the ranks of Uncle Sam's defenders in the hectic days of 1917, did not come into the construction corps, but chose rather to fly high with the eagles. It was the Air Corps—then the Air Service—that caught his fancy, and for two years, while stationed at various flying fields in Texas, he learned the ins and outs of that branch of the Army that counts itself above the other branches.

However, after the excitement of the war had worn out, the Lieutenant, casting about to decide whether or not he wanted to still nest with the eagles, or come to earth, decided to return to his old love—that of construction. He cast his lot with the construction branch of the Quartermaster Corps—and has since his first vows, been true, and has steadily resisted the urge to return to the dizzy heights attained by the birdmen.

His detail with the Construction Branch has kept him moving constantly—no station seeing him for longer than two years. In 1921 and part of '22, Lt. Allison was executive for, and Constructing Quartermaster of the Fifth District in Manila, Philippine Islands, where many government buildings were constructed under his supervision. The years of 1922 and '23 found him in Tientsin, China, rubbing elbows with the que boys. While in the land of cherry blossoms and slant-eyed Orientals, Lt. Allison was in charge of the work of reconditioning all the barracks of the American Army forces in China, and re-building the recreation hall.

The years of 1924-25 found the Lieutenant back in these United States, and acting as Constructing Quartermaster for San Francisco and vicinity, which included the 9th Corps Area and Alaska. While in the Golden Gate Area, Lt. Allison was in charge of the construction of several large projects—cheif among them being a receiving ward for Letterman General Hospital, and C. M. C. T. Camp at Del Monte, California.

In the latter part of '25, the much-traveled one-bar man was ordered to Madison Barracks, New York, to take charge of the construction of barracks. officers' quarters, quartermaster storehouse, and a Headquarters building. Neither snow nor ice barred the progress of these jobs, and by the end of '26, all had been completed satisfactorily, and Lt. Allison was en route to Benning—the home of the World's Largest Infantry School, and the habitat of sand—oh much sand!

Lt. Allison arrived in a huge Nash sedan, gave one look at the job then just starting; took off his Sam Browne, and fell to. And since that time, with the exception of about a month once between jobs, this genial Lieutenant has had his hands full—at one time having three jobs going at once.

He has stuck to his construction, and has some really beautiful jobs already at Benning to his credit. He has also stuck to Nash, and has a nifty little job that carries him smoothly over the roads of Benning, instead of the huge job he used to drive.

NEW AUTO LICENSES AT POST EXCHANGE

Major S. I. McCants recently returned from a visit to Atlanta where he made arrangements to have the Post Exchange automobile department handle the granting of the new licenses to Fort Benning people. The blanks are now on file at the Garage office and all are requested to fill out the required blanks as soon as possible so that they may reach the office of Secy. of State on Jan. 1. Mr. Austell, a notary public in charge of the Garage, will assist in filling out the blanks, for which there will be a small charge, and those having a charge account wit hthe Post Exch. may sign for this service.

Prof.: I told you yesterday I'd give you one day to hand in that theme.

Frosh: Yeah, but I thought I could pick any day.

COMPANY "A" 7TH ENGINNERS

Now is the time for all good men to think about the folks back home. A little gift or greeting sure makes the old people feel a lot happier.

Nine rahs for soccer! Builder of men and cracker of shins! Our record is still untarnished. "B" Company, 15th Tanks, took another crack at the fast moving Pontoniers but retired defeated (far from disgraced), before the smooth working charges of Captain "Sonny Boy" Dickerson and his battling cohorts. The score was 3 to 1 when the final whistle ended the game. "Slim" Harris, for the Tankers, saved a lot of goals, with a fine exhibition of stretching and using his hands in defense of his goal. Teamwork featured for the Engineers, and, if there was a star, we are prone to nominate "Pete" Zlotnik. He has absolutely the toughest pair of shins in the Army!

We feel pretty blue about the depleted guard roster around here now, but, like good Engineers, we hope that the men now on furlough and the ones soon to go, have the best Christmas and the happiest New Year of all time. Among the men now, or soon to be, absent are: Travis and Sigwalt, somewhere in Tennessee; Collins and Spiers, Mississippi; Brady, Morgan and Mixon, probably circulating around in Georgia. The whereabouts, or destinations, of Lockwood, Hitchins, Quigley and Treadaway are as yet undetermined by the writer.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

THE BLOCK-HOUSE

Under date of May 17, 1927, the following order was published by the Adjutant General:

"I. Letters from this office January 12, 1923, and all subsequent amendments thereto on the above subject, are hereby cancelled and the following distinctive insignia is approved for wear as a part of the uniform of the 24th Infantry:

"Device: On a blue disc edged with gold, a conventional Block House of masonry with tower, walls in color of gray stone, roofs yellow, with a yellow ribbon scroll above bearing the words "San Juan" in blue; below the disc and forming a base thereto, a ribbon scroll bearing the words "Semper Paratus", the motto of the regiment."

Nothing in this is peculiar or particularly interesting, except to the 24th Infantry. To them the subject of regimental insignia has, for the past four years, been of absorbing interest. The above is the culmination of voluminous corrospondence between Headquarters of the 24th and the office of the Adjutant General covering the period named. Letters and documents exchanged during this unsettled state of our distinctive insignia varied from cold irony to caustic sarcasm in their contests, and from extreme friendliness to downright unsociableness in sentiment. In the end, probably to rid themselves of an unpopular subject, the powers at Washington, let us have our way ,and published the order.

You will note that on the insignia the blockhouse is the thing, and that the balance of the badge is constructed around it. There is a reason for this, and here is how we acquired the idea:

Sailing from Tampa, Florida, in June, 1898, to take part in the Spanish-American war, the 24th landed at Siboney, Cuba, on the 25th. On the 27th a march was made towards Santiago, about nine miles to the west. They camped that night at Las Guasimas, and on the afternoon of the 30th marched to the rear of El Uozo Hill. The following morning, while breaking camp, firing could be plainly heard coming from the front in the direction of El Caney. All was excitement, after passing El Pozo Hill the regiment came under fire from San Juan Ridge, and the whiz and spat of the Mauser bullets in the jungle vegetation gave the regiment its first taste of war, as it marched silently along the jungle road.

Coming to a fork in the road, the regiment turned to the left and marched almost a mile with its flank exposed to the fire of the enemy. It then formed left front into line on its leading company, G. These companies formed line under a severe fire from the front and flank, but formed in perfect order. As soon as the line was formed the order was given to charge. The brigade sustained considerable loss while this forming up process was going on. While superintending its formation Colonel Wikoff, brigade commander, was killed. Lieutenant Colonel Worth, who succeeded him in command, was seriously wounded. Lieutenant Colonel Liscum then assumed charge of the brigade and was almost immediately disabled by a bullet. By this time, however, the formation had been completed and the brigade under orders to advance.

In this brigade—the Third—were the 24th, 9th and 13th Infantry regiments, with the 24th on the extreme left of the line. On this brigade fell the brunt of the enemy's fire, and they sustained the greatest percentage of losses in the battle of San Juan Hill. The 24th lost one hundred and four killed and wounded.

The companies advanced across the open under fire of the Spanish on the hill and from the Blockhouse to their right front. In a short time the regiment gained the foot of San Juan Hill almost exhausted. Here they were compelled to stop to reform and wait the cessation of fire from the three American batteries on El Pozo, and Lieutenant Parkers Gatling Guns back near the ford of San Juan Creek. The batteries were firing on the Blockhouse, while the Gatlings were sweeping the whole ridge. The Blockhouse was the stronghold of the enemy line, and our artillery fire did no appreciable damage to it, as they were firing from a range of about twenty-five hundred yards.

The Gatlings, under Lieutenant Parker of "Gatling Gun" fame, were firing from a position on San Juan Creek about eight hundred yards back, and were very effective. This was the American troops first experience under overhead machine gun fire.

In a few minutes the troops regained their breath, and the overhead fire having stopped, they again advanced; charged the crest of the Hill and carried it with a rush. The Spaniards retreated to their second line of entrenchment six to eight hundreds yards farther back, while the Americans entrenched on the top of San Juan. Once in the afternoon the enemy attempted to recover the lost ground, but were immediately driven back by rifle fire.

The Third Brigade had been given the left of the line. This brigade flanked the enemy right flank and caused his hasty withdrawal to his second line. On the very left of this flanking force was the 24th Infantry, and when the Adjutant General finally allowed the Blockhouse to be the central figure ,and the distinctive one, of our regimental insignia, he did so cognizant of the fact that the charge of the regiment up San Juan Hill was one of the important events leading to the surrender of the Spanish forces in the Western Hemisphere.

The Blockhouse still stands on San Juan, while we carry its replica on our regimental distinctive insignia.—R. F. H.

29TH INFANTRY HAS MANY ACTIVITIES

Now people, I don't know that you are going to like what I write or not. Furthermore, it doesn't make much difference with me. If there are any objections, just mail your complaints to the Editor of this paper. He is solely and fully responsible for this outbreak, and I will not take any of the blame. He asked me to write this and the spirit hasn't moved me in the least, so you can readily see what a fix I am in. I am not a statistician and never tried to be. I simply am going to write a few of the things that have happened in the "We Lead the Way" regiment within the past year. If I miss many things, just say "That's just like a Corporal."

To the casual onlooker it may seem that the work of the 29th is just a dull grind day in and day out. It isn't so. You will find more variety of activities in the 29th than in any other regiment of the army, I venture to say. It is true that they do the bulk of the Post Guard, but what of it? Whether it be guard, fatigue or tactical problems, one will always find the "We Lead the Way" men there with the goods.

During the past year there has been several changes in the form of training in the 29th. Take for instance, the demonstrations that they have maneuvered in this year. More of the tactical part of the problem has been left to the non-commissioned officers and men than here-to-fore. This one factor alone is a morale booster, and gives the men more training than the old system. Then again, there is the use of blank ammunition. This not only saves in expenses, but gives the class and troops a chance to see both the enemy positions outline by troops and practically the same results as the kind of demonstrations used last year. One thing that does seem puzzling though, is the fact that one must keep so infernally quiet in order not to let the enemy locate our positions, while a "drove" of tanks crawl "silently" through our midst.

The new brick barracks are about completed, and will soon be ready for occupancy. This will be much to the delight of the companies that are still quartered in the old wooden barracks and tents. I know that Sergeant Magaha of "D" Company will be more than pleased. He is getting old, and the damp atmosphere of the tents in winter time does not thoroughly agree with his bones. Then too, "D" Company can begin right away on their new gun bins and supply room just as "H" Company has done. If the bins of "D" Company look as well as those of "H" Company, I for one, want to see them. They will surely have to order themselves a company mechanic from Sears-Roebuck because John Dyke is the best in the regiment.

Recently the Regiment has been having all their reviews differently from those of last year. The reviews are all mounted with the mounted organizations forming as a battalion.

The 2nd Bn. basket ball team won the post tournament while the baseball team duplicated. At the time of this writing they have soaring hopes of winning the football championship. Some say that they will, and some say that they won't. I say that they will. However, it remains to be seen. Lets all be there and see the "Big Parade." Jim Thorpe and Bachman won't be there, but Lt. Finney and "Kelly" Kjelstrom will.

Come, let us all join together and sing, "Regiments may come, and Regiments may go, but "WE LEAD THE WAY."

—Bernard B. Swayze.

THE SUNDAY MORNING HUNT

Having gotten up at 4 P. X. for many and numerous Cat hunts this fall, and so far having nothing to show for it but two frost bitten toes (not to be taken literally as the toes in question are not on display) we decided that while 8 o'clock was an unreasonable hour to arise on a Sunday morning still it was far better than the hours prescribed for Cat hunts.

We signed up for a horse with a very pretty name, on the nice red card in the Officers Club. Having done our duty we promptly forgot all about it. Not so our better half, who began to awaken us at half past seven, and finally succeeded at ten to eight. What to wear? That was the question. For sooth, our rowdy Cat hunt costume would not do. So we searched our mind and clothing and finally arrived at a costume; however we have a sneaking suspicion that we did not look like the men whose pictures we have often admired in the Sportsman's magazine.

We arrived at the Polo Club in time to gulp a cup of coffee and surreptiously place a doughnut in our coat pocket. We failed to do this on the last cat hunt, so went prepared in case this hunt should be out till noon.

We then went outside and called our horse's name in a loud voice. No response. Finally after walking up and down the line of horses and yelling quite vociferously, the orderly consented to surrender the horse to our care. In looking back over the hunt we firmly believe that the motive which inspired this delay was pity.

All went well as the hunt walked slowly to the course. We chatted gaily with our friends, admired the red coated huntsmen, and the skill with which they cracked their whips. The morn was rather dull—far better for a cat hunt Capt. Mallon informed us, but to the hunters the day seemed bright and merry.

Ah! The hounds have struck the trail of the drag. Giving voice they tear along the scent. A beautiful sight, and the last clear impression that we have of the hunt. The rest is a blur, a mist, a haze in which horses, dogs, trees, and stumps flash by to the right and left, a succession of leaps, bounds, jumps, jolts and jars. One stirrup gone, both gone, and then—the check. The horse stopped of his own accord, we did nothing to stop him, having tried ever since the start we believed it to be hopeless.

We had hardly caught our breath and carefully placed our heart back in its proper place, when we started off again. This time we resolved to ride the horse. All that we remember however is one large tree which came out of the fog at a tremendous rate of speed. We guessed three times which side of the tree the horse was going on and guessed wrong. For one terrible moment we had visions of clasping the tree in loving embrace, and then to our intense surprise we were past the tree. One foot and knee were numb and one boot was torn and scraped, but at least we were still on the horse and going strong.

Down hill and up hill. The horse stopped in the midst of the field and as we raised our eyes to heaven with a murmured prayer we saw a flash of red and Capt. DeWare rolled gracefully on the sands of Singleton hill.

Another dash, breathless, and awe inspiring and before we realized it the hunt was over. We are going on the next hunt, but we are going to ride a horse with an ugly name.

DRAMATIC CLUB GAVE THREE PLAYS

The Dramatic Club presented three plays at the Main Theater Friday night, Dec. 21. Due to the fact that this special edition of the NEWS went to press late Friday, details of the plays were omitted from this issue. Next week's issue will contain a write-up of the third of the series of plays by the club this year.

ASST. COMMANDANT

COMPANY "E," 29th INFANTRY

A LETTER

Dear Mable:

Received your letter today and was sure glad to hear from you again. I haven't very much news this week, E Company has a wonderful basket ball team this season ,the best they ever had. The players aer Sergeant Franz, Corp. Miscar and Oikari, Privates First Class Stamper, McCallister, Edwards and Regan. E Company played a basket ball team from Phenix City, Alabama, last week and won about 60 to 12. Our team sure had them going all through the game. Sgt. Mathews, Dalby, Corp. Miller, Regan went hunting last week but didn't have very much luck. Corp. Jacobs, the company chauffeur, has taken advantage of a ninety-day furlough. Privates Woods and Ballard have taken thirty-day furlough each, and hope they will have a big time back home during the Christmas Holidays. Privates Stokley and Robillard and Henry are back from furloughs from their homes. Sgt. Halpern put in to be transferred to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., about three weeks ago and his transfer was approved. "Jakey" seemed glad to get away for his new station. Private Sparks is transferred to the I. S. D. Military Police Section, and we all hope he mill make good. One of our old E Company leather pushers, Private Pecot, is on special duty with the Drum and Bugle Corps.

The biggest surprise of the week was observed by Private Stamper on his preambulation around the company Sunday evening on observing that Private Guy D. Brown was not in his bunk. It was later learned that Brown was taking in a Sunday night show which cost him two bits and he has had the headache ever since. Mable, I am not on K. P. this Sunday as I thought last week, as the company buglers were awarded extra K. P.'s for failing to blow first call for reveille last week. I think they must have blown second call instead. They have no trouble now of blowing the call for as the Top Kick comes through in the morning they are up and dressed and sitting on their bunks ready to blow first call.

I will write you again next week.

Sincerely, Jack.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

It is with a feeling of great satisfaction that the Commandant expresses his appreciation of the continued high standard of loyalty and splendid cooperation of officers, warrant officers, enlisted men and civilian members of this command, exhibited throughout the past year and he desires to extend to each member of the command his heartiest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

D. H. TORREY,
Major, A. G. D.,

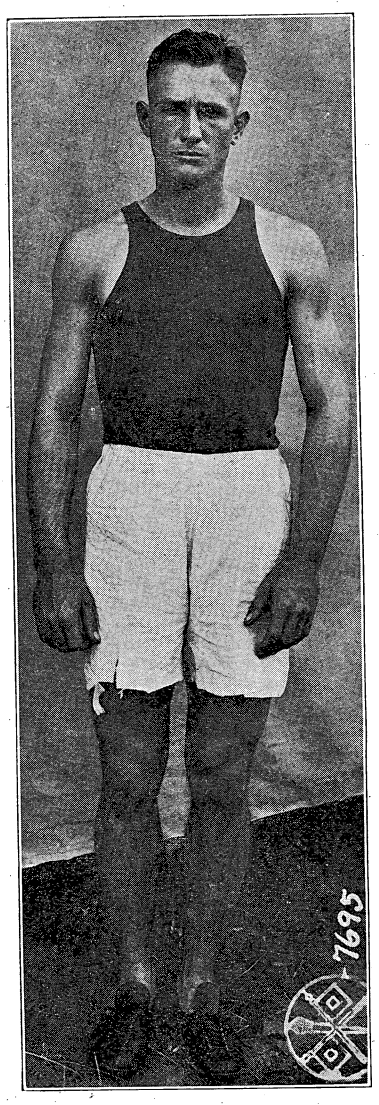
Lieut. Johnnie Roosma, all-star forward and leader of Infantry School Musketeer Basketball Team.



Corporal Willard R. Reddock of the First Bn. 29th Infantry, outstanding field and track star, holder of three garrison records.

15th Tank Battalion Field and Track Team, Winners of first Garrison Field and Track Meet held at Fort Benning, November 12, 1928.

Fort Benning's two most popular athletes, "Swede" Kjelstrom, captain of 2nd Battalion, 29th Inf. championship baseball team and star fullback of Second Bats football team with "Red" Lindsey, star twirler of Tank baseball team and first string center of Tanks football squad.

83RD FA

ARTILLERY BN. COMPLETES ANNUAL SERVICE PRACTICE

The 83rd F. A. Bn. completed its 1928 Service Practice on December 17th. In keeping with the policy of the Chief of Field Artillery the Battalion Commander Major Loyd E. Jones alloted the greater portion of the ammunition allowance to the junior officers who are not graduates of either the Field Artillery basic course of the Field Artillery Battery Commanders Course.

At the conclusion of the firing Major Jones expressed his satisfaction over what had been accomplished and especially commented on the noticeable improvement in the firing technique of the junior officers. Major Jones also expressed his appreciation to Captain D. L. Crane, Captain S. F. Clark and 1st Lt. H. J. Guernsey for the high class of instruction given by these officers in connection with the school in Artillery firing which has been conducted in the Battalion for several weeks.

The individual batteries acquitted themselves well during the period of service practice and displayed a high degree of firing efficiency.

Christmas Holiday

The officers and men are looking forward to the holidays and a well earned vacation. A large number including the Commanding Officer, Major Jones, will spend Christmas with relatives and friends away from the Post.

Hdqrs., Hdqrs. Bat. and Combat Train

With the arrival of basket ball, we are turning out a very strong team, under the coaching of Sgt. Reed who has piloted many winning teams of the past. The squad consists of Sgt. Reed, Cpl. Douglas, Cpl. Derrick, Pfc. McLeod, Pfc. Jones, Pvts. Campo, Cotney and Stevens are two new arrivals and from the side lines as viewed by the scribe, they are two fast promising loopers.

Pfc. Fuller still walks around smoking his last cigar. We are of the opinion that you have a cigar-tree with a daily output of one.

Sgt. Hamblen ,our Stable Sergeant, has purchased a new car. Looks real nifty Milo, and Corporal Cole is wondering why he was never made Stable Sgt. as he thinks the Quartermaster issued said car to all Stable Sergeants.

Pfc. Perry was discharged on the 20th heading for Michigan. Sorry to see you leave us Weenie but we all look for you to return.

Upon the promotion of Cpl. Phillips, Pfc. Arnold has been given the soft position of driving the Battalion Dodge. We all saw you in the Orderly Room Burr Head talking very confidentially to the Top Skipper.

They take on in the Terrible Tanks, but nightly Doc Farmer and Dog-Face Anthony are seen in the Battery Street. How come and why? The old lure seems to still be over Artillery way even if those boys are Tankers.

A letter arrived some few days past with an Italian postmark addressed as follows: Senior Segundo Fonetica, and after a little investigation McCallum claimed the letter stating that it was only a letter from home.

Many of the boys are preparing to take leave for the holidays and see the old home site once again, with possibly a view of buying out when they return or some other excuse or gossip.

A new addition has been added to our Battery. A brand new orderly room with a clean new mat for the boys to decorate, and receive their Sunday K. P. on. Wonder who shall break the ice?

Quite a few dashing soldiers are interested in the promotions in future for daily some one is heard asking: "When does Sgt. ——— get discharged?" Who is the next Pfc. to buy out? Just take your time boys and it shall all soon blow over.

Battery "A"

The battery's basket ball team is now practicing and out for blood, and from the showing made so far we might as well write out a receipt for the Battalion Cup.

Private First Class Lasiter, the battery carpenter, did not have his spirit level with him while signing this month's pay roll and as a result signed it under "qualifications." Lasiter we are certainly glad the minister did not make that mistake when he signed your marriage license.

The battery wonder why 1st Sergeant Combs wears only one spur while rabbit hunting. Sarge, did you give the blonde the other spur in lieu of one of your locks to hold as her title to be your beneficiary in case you got accidentally shot?

Sergeant Thompson and Private First Class Coffin were heard to remark that the nearest they ever come to witnessing an irresistible force meeting an immovable body was when a Chevrolet car suddenly attacked the rear of a Georgia mule. And the result was sans windshield, sans radiator, sans mule and sans pay roll for four months.

Private Thurston, ex-day room orderly, ex-utility man, ex-keeper of the lawn wants his lady friends of Columbus, Georgia, to know that he is now back with his first love driving a wheel team.

Private North who is aide-de-camp to our Supply Sergeant has learned that the first step to success in the Supply Room is to be without everything when needed most.

The menu of the battery has been running nicely for the past month and bears a close resemblance to the Morning Report when there is "no change."

We would like for some of our Sergeants to know that a car will not stop at the picket line by saying "whoa," but that brakes must be used and both hands.

Corporal Doggett received a letter from Sandersville, Mississippi, last week requesting a fur coat for Christmas and has been out hunting rabbits ever since. So far he has bagged only two bunnies, therefore we hope she is not very large.

Private Garrison, who has sailed the seven seas is now battery barber and the way he navigates his instruments, we think he is a direct descendant from Genoa, Italy, the home of Columbus, the wool comber.

Sergeant Smith says there is always something to take the joy out of life and the pep out of his Chevrolet; retreat going or a Georgia mule.

It is believed Sergeant Peters, the short timer, probably has something on his mind besides re-enlisting. Perhaps his object is twofold, best wishes Pete.

We wish to warn all the new men to keep their foot lockers and wall lockers locked as Private First Class Brantley has disposed of his civilian clothes and sworn off going to town, but on account of his "tractorbility" the latter clause is doubtful.

Battery "B"

After many days of unceasing toil and many hours spent in persuasion, Deck Monkey Hodge has been received back into the ranks of the B. C. detail. Mr. Hodge says the work goes smoother with him operating the reelcart.

Boys, now is the time to make some of the short timers see the pleasures that can be had in our Battery. We have a bunch of men to get out soon, good men who are an asset to the Battery. Imagine this Battery going on a march without First Class Private Fields (Scopes) carrying the guidion. Treat 'em right boys and they will be with us for another three years.

We would like to know why some of the Privates cannot get enough exercise in the Battery. Dennis, old Regulation, the mess sergeant might let you chop some wood for the kitchen, it is nearer than your brother-in-law's quarters.

Our Battery Comamnder, Lieutenant Foster, shows very much interest in the Infantry School News. There is a memorandum on the bulletin board requesting more men to subscribe. Come on, boys, submit your name to the Orderly Room and get your copy weekly.

It has been noticed that Private Gantt looks kind of down-hearted. Upon investigation we found that he is discouraged, he cannot find any place to buy "Acting Corporal's Stripes."

Private First Class Barrier is leaving the Battery Street. He has become a "hard-boiled" stable orderly. We wish you luck, Baldie.

Our "model" sergeant Trigg got hard-boiled the other night with the telephone operator, because she would not connect him with the "City Officials."

The boys from the B. C. detail are all stepping out. They have been figuring with a Data Computer and came to the conclusion that if Corporal Long does not ree-nlist one of them has a good chance.

Private Jack Walden was run over by a piece limber; it did not hurt him very much, he said. The only worry he has, is that he might miss the Christmas dinner. Jack, hurry up and get well, the turkey will be waiting.

After looking over his daily sick-report the first sergeant has taken into consideration having the morning roll call at the New Hospital; seven of our boys are there. We hope to see you all soon back in the Battery, we miss you, especially with the Police Formation.

Several of the boys are going on a furlough during the holidays and we wish you all a good time.

It is sincerely hoped that the Battery Officers have enjoyed Field Artillery Firing during service practice.

The other day it was told around the Battery that there were 10 tractors at the Ordnance for B Battery. Our ambitious supply sergeant went immediately to investigate this matter.

There has been quite an improvement in our mess during the past week and everyone seems to be satisfied, thanks to our new mess sergeant. That is the boy, Meadows, keep it up.

We are wondering whether our two cooks who are due for discharge are going to re-enlist. Too bad there are no corporal ratings in the kitchen, Baker. But nevertheless we are anxious to have you and Gulledge take out another stack with us.

On Monday everyone had to report to the supply sergeant for additional clothing. What do you think of Corporal Bailey who wanted to put in for some civilian shirts? Blits, we hardly believe that sleeping in a sergeant's tent is doing you any good.

"Do you know why Santa Claus wears red panties?"

"No, why?"

"To match his coat, of course."

CURB CHAFING IS HARD ON TIRES

When your tires grind against the curbing it wears away the sidewall. This permits moisture to enter and rot the carcass of the tire.

STATION HOSPITAL

Pfc. Buckley Daune was discharged on the 11th and he promptly proceeded to take on another stack, and is now spending his 90-day re-enlistment furlough in Cookville, Tenn.

Sgt. Deadwyler left the 12th for Atlanta where he intends to spend his 20-day furlough.

Private Oliver Huggins was discharged Friday, December 14th, thinks he will try the big outside world now. Wish you good luck Oliver.

Pfc. C. B. Davis and Pfc. George Ganey left Saturday the 15th for Memphis, Tenn., on a fifteen-day furlough predicting a great time.

We wonder what Pvt. Dallas Davis has done with his automobile (Ford) and how he obtained the cut above his eye.

Pfc. Rittener is laboring under the opinion that HIS basket ball team is in for a brilliant season.

Pfc. Luther Nelson according to the last report has worn out two pairs of shoes this month. Evidently the Benning Boulevard is very hard.

Pvt. Gilbert was unable to find his shoes this morning. We do not, under the circumstances see how he could miss them.

Pvt. Haywood has in an application for discharge on account of dependency. He states that he is depending on his people for support.

Pfc. James Lameroux (better known as Mullins) has returned from Denver, Colo., where he has been on D. S.

Pvt. Herbert Bryant came in Sunday the 15th from furlough and seemed very glad to get back "home".

Sgt. Houston W. Saunders arrived the 16th from Fort Bragg. Glad to have you with us Sergeant.

Pfc. DeFore and Pvt. McCracken returned from Washington late Sunday, where they have been on D. S.

Pvt. Winderweedle departed the 17th on a seven-day furlough for Nashville, Georgia.

Sgt. Bower was discharged Tuesday the 8th, and will re-enlist in grade for a special assignment with the Med. Dept., at West Point, N. Y. Good luck, Jim, and may your coming three years be as successful as your past.

Major White will spend his Christmas (money) in Savannah, Ga.

Miss Haynes has returned from a short leave of absence.

Miss Merrick joined for duty from the Philippines. Welcome Miss Merrick.

SWINGS ADDED TO PLAY-GROUND EQUIPMENT AT CHILDREN'S SCHOOL

The kiddies at the Children's School are all smiles and full of happiness; they may be seen capering here and there about the playground bubling over with glee during the period allotted them for recreation.

The cause of the unusual outburst of energy, that only the healthy child can show, is the work that is being done to recondition and add new equipment to their playground equipment. The latest thing to be added being swings.

With no thought of remuneration for their work, except to see the pleasure and delight shown by the children over their new playthings, has been the incentive which has caused this work to be done.

It has been done in the shops of the Seventeenth Ordnance Company under the direction of Captain Strickland and Technical Sergeant Radler. The swings and other material used to recondition the playground equipment has been made from salvaged pipe and other salvage material—another proof that the Army wastes nothing.

Judge: Gentlemen of the jury, have you come to a decision?

Foreman: We have, Your Honor. The jury are all of the same mind—temporarily insane.

"You married me for my money!"

"Well I've earned it."

STUART McGUIRE

We regret to announce the untimely death of Master Stuart McGuire, four-year-old son of Major and Mrs. P. F. McGuire, on December 17, after an illness of only one day.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a brother, Donald, and a sister, Dorothy.

Funeral services were held at the home of Major McGuire Tuesday morning. Chaplain McKenna conducted the services and burial in the garrison cemetery.

The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire garrison.

Xmas Greetings——

TO OUR MANY FRIENDS AT FORT BENNING

May 1929 have many Good things in store for you

A. C. Chancellor Co.

Columbus Headquarters for Fort Benning

The STUDENT

(By H. M. G.)

The editor said he wanted this article to be a Xmas number. We understand what he means and we are thoroughly in sympathy with the idea, but we are having about the same difficulties getting those aforesaid results as the recruit did, who being told to stand at attention, replied: "But I am at attention, officer; it's just this uniform that's at ease!"

So this is Xmas! We can now look back on three months at the Infantry School. Ho, ho. As another hero said when he reviewed the past. We have learned many things that were passing strange and wondrous wise.

For instance, we have found out what our wives look like at dawn! Ho, hum. Brave women just like their pioneer foremothers who loaded slugs into their husbands muskets. The only difference now is that the slugs are loaded into lunch boxes. I read somewhere that no one could eat the same thing on more than 32 successive days. Tain't so you can tell from an officer's face as he opens his lunch box whether it's going to be lettuce, egg or peanut butter.

But leaving aside soft coal, six A. M., one might out and what not, its been a good course, the S's have far exceeded the U's. Furthermore, on most high authority, it is said that we are going to get our preference assignment to station, that is mostly and yet further, that all the lieutenants who have not already attended will go next to the Cooks and Bakers School. Oh me, oh my!

Getting back to Santa Claus we hope that the bearded gentleman brings all our teachers nice presents, such as good jokes and weapons that don't have sighting bars. But if we must have sighting bars, like peanut butter sandwiches with great regularity, then let Col. Hoop explain them. They will be easier to take.

Speaking of enjoyable but instructive sessions, Capt. Jackson has rolled the clouds back over several four hour indoor sits. His story of the student at the last exam who gave the derivation of alidade in no uncertain terms, was worth sitting several hours to hear. He also assured us that his getting six boxes of thumb tacks free from the Book Shop was true.

The honors on Thursday's sitting on the subject of aerial photography were divided among Capt. Conmy who knew his school houses, even from the air, by their association; Capt. Gibson who sterescoped us to a point where a ten minute break had to be called, and Capt. Steele who insisted that he was a farmer and could tell the difference between wheat and corn.

The price of red apples went up during the week when Capt. Rarey spoke the following dulcet words to Capt. Ambrose: "Capt. Ambrose, we have listened to various explanation of machine gun schedules, may we not have the benefit of the fullness of your experience?" The opening remarks, however, were by the class.

The following notes and libels on "C" Co. were submitted by an officer of that august body. I would be glad to give him due credit but I don't know how much insurance he carries.

"Robinson Crusoe" Purdue and his man "Friday" Lansing hold the all time Benning University record for being the adventurous explorers of the Chattahoochee. This pair of intrepid seekers of the lost art of Indian fighting went hay wire in a Sunny South fog. To this day no one has ever found why they got lost.

Paul Steele's 5th Squad throws the last few squads out on falling in. If that crew of potato burners get a good breakfast they look like two squads instead of a squad and a half as usual.

Capts. Gosher and Myers dismounted and fought on foot in defense of that arm that had its day when Knighthood was in flower. The ex-Tankers stirred up a lot of talk about the wide open plains and cavalry charging machine guns mounted. Difficult as it was we gave up stage coaches and the pony express.

"Tommy Atkins" McClure had a few friends in to study the machine gun. After the lady of the house heard them on immediate action their work on elementary gun drill was called off.

"Zlungs" Overfelt got caught in the drop on the stock market, especially in copper. He just changed another nickel and was all set for a few more shares.

About the only "B" Co. note is that they are having night practice in volley ball. Speaking broadly of athletics I noticed that the advance class has taken to pitching horseshoes. Hotsy, totsy, I am very glad to note they are becoming acclimated to Georgia.

In conclusion, the student body of the 1928-29 classes extend to the Commandant, the Assistant Commandant, the instructors, officers and men of the permanent personnel, their sincere wishes for a very merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

POST EXCHANGE TAILOR TO ARRIVE HERE IN JANUARY

Mr. L. Guzowsky, an experienced army tailor and now residing at the Presidio of San Francisco, will arrive here soon after the new year to take charge of the tailor shop at Fort Benning. Mr. Guzowsky is well known to many officers here who will be glad to learn of his future residence at Fort Benning.

MUSKETEER CAGESTEERS WIN OVER BIRMINGHAM REDBIRDS IN FAST CONTEST

Local Team Shows Spirit in Opener

(By Al Durden)

Flashing an offensive drive combined with a five man defense that caused their opponents to shoot at long range or rush their shots causing them to miss repeatedly, the Infantry School Basketeers played rings around the Birmingham Y. M. C. A. basket ball team in the first half of Monday night's game at the Fort Gymnasium to take a twelve point lead that the visitors were never able to overcome. The end of the half found the score 23 to 11 in favor of Benning.

The dribbling of Franz was an eye-opener to the visitors ,time and again the "Round Boy" left pop-eyed Red Birds eating his dust as he streaked down the floor to shoot the pellet to Roosma or Stamper for a shot at the basket.

Though a little off form the speed and play of the Musketeer cagesters brought joy to the hearts of the Benning fans. The Birmingham Quintet is one of the fastest aggregations to show here, their list of victories last season included Olson's Terrible Swedes.

The work of Isham, second string center, featured the first half, the long rangy boy easily tipped the ball to a Musketeer on the jump, besides his work at center he pushed the pellet through the hoop on two occasions to score four of the Musketeers points in the opening half. His six feet seven inches puts him in a class to himself in reach among opposing centers.

Roosma was high point man with a total of 16 points, Adlers, star forward of the visitors was second with 11 to his credit.

Though getting away to a twelve point lead in the opening half the Musketeers took a shade the worst of the argument in the final period, the Red Birds scoring 18 points while the Musketeers could squeeze over but 16. The final score being 39 to 29 in favor of the Musketeers.

The Doughboys have yet to hit their stride, although winning their first three games they have not yet begun to show the speed and dash that they will be able to show when they hit their top season form.

Line-up and Summary:

Benning—	Pos.	Fld.	F'l	Tot.
Roosma	F.	7	2	16
Stamper	F.	2	1	5

GALLOPING GUNNERS DOWN FREEBOOTERS, 7-3

While Students Defeat Demonstrationist 8 to 4.

Two fast games of polo featured Sunday's play at French Field between the Infantry School Malletmen. A large crowd of fans took advantage of the sunny afternoon to witness the games.

In the opening game ,the Galloping Gunners rode to a 7 to 3 victory over the Freebooters. The Gunners used nine players in various combinations: Grubbs, Guernsey, Buckley, Oliver, Bartlett, Clark, Strohbehn, Murphey and Avera. The Freebooters used two separate teams: Mood, Mallan, Tuttle and Brian; and Lockett, McClure, Lyman and Hoge, for three periods each.

Guernsey opened the scoring in the first chukker when he ran the bamboo through the uprights on a pretty follow-up shot near the end of the period. Lockett made it one-all, when he took the ball from scrimmage to play it down the field for a marker.

In the third period the Gunners ran wild scoring three times. Guernsey opened the fireworks when he carried Bartlett's penalty shot through, and a moment later scored another goal on a beautiful shot after a set-up by Oliver. Toward the end of the period Clark scored the third marker of the period off a fine set-up by Bartlett. Clark added two more goals in the fourth period, his second one being made off Murphy's set-up from a corner. In the fifth Oliver placed a beautiful shot from the field for the Gunners' final score.

In the final chukker, the old guard of the Freebooters staged a counter attack that swept the Gunner defense before it, Lyman and Hoge scoring one goal each during the chukker.

SECOND GAME

In the second game the Students played Forsythe, Lueking, Burress, Harriss, Smith, Baldwin, Moore and Royce. The Demonstrationist players were Skelton, Van Houten, Taylor, Strickler, Halloran and Hedekin.

Strickler	C.	1	0	2
Kammerer	G.	2	4	8
Newman	G.	1	0	4
Franz	G.	1	0	2
Totals		16	7	39
Birmingham—	Pos.	Fld.	F'l	Tot.
Adlers	F.	4	3	11
Cunningham	F.	0	0	0
Allbrooks	F.	0	0	0
Goodwin	F.	2	2	6
Ray	C.	0	0	0
Hopping	C.	0	0	0
Sanford	G.	4	0	8
Cook	G.	0	0	0
Kontos	G.	1	2	4
Totals		11	7	29

The first chukker was a scoreless affair with each team threatening but neither being able to score. In the second Burress, Smith and Forsythe scored for the Students, while Strickler scored one for the Infantry. Moore and Van Houten tallied in the third.

In the fourth chukker each team scored one goal. Royce getting one for the Students and Skelton registering for the Infantry. Near the end of the period Royce was carrying the ball when Strickler approached from the opposite direction. Strickler turned to close across the line of play and the horses colided, both players being thrown and both mounts going down. The players were uninjured but Royce's mount, Desdemona, suffered a severe injury to her shoulder. The horse was carried from the field to the veterinary hospital in an animal ambulance.

In the fifth period Burrus scored and in the sixth Smith and Van Houten scored.

Goals were made as follows: Students—Burress 2, Smith 2, Moore 1, Royce 1, Forsythe 1, and penalty 1. Infantry—Van Houten 2, Strickler 1, Skelton 1.

INFANTRY SCHOOL BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

STORY OF SOCCER—IN FORT BENNING AND OTHER PLACES

A little over two years ago the Terrible Tankers introduced to Fort Benning Soccer Football, a game hitherto unknown to this section of the country. An intra-company league was formed under the tuition of Lieut. Dunn, former soccer star of West Point, who with his past experience was able to instruct his men in the art of the game. Since then and especially this year, soccer has gotten its grip on the men of the post and from the present outlook, it promises to remain a permanent institution here in the sport annuls of Fort Benning.

Soccer, in itself is an old game. The origin of the game is vague, it being heard of in various countries such as Scotland, England, and was considered a great sport by the Australians. As a sport, it created a great deal of interest and before many years had passed it was being played all over the European countries. The first contest which brought Soccer into the limelight in sport circles was in 1924 when the fast Hakoah team from Vienna defeated the hitherto undefeated Britons in a brilliant series of soccer games. Up until that sensational victory, soccer had held only a temporary berth in the athletic circles of the United States and until the invasion of the World's Champions to this country on a playing tour, was the interest revived. So much so, that ry stories of trading and trafficking among the big leagues. Just yesterday "Ole Man" McGaha, of spitball fame, inquired of ye scribe if there was any news yet as to games, coach and etc. for the coming baseball season at the Infantry School.

Field and Track

Durin gthe period between the closing of the baseball season and the opening of the football season of 1928, the Athletic Association held a meeting and decided to hold a Garrison Field and Track Meet, the largest event of this kind ever held at Fort Benning.

The Meet was held at the Doughboy Stadium, Nov. 12th, before one of the largest crowds ever assembled in the stands of the Stadium. Teams representing the 15th Tank Battalion, Special Units, 83rd Field Artillery, Second Battalion 29th Infantry and First Battalion 29th Infantry, took part in the Meet. A similar Meet was held on the same date between field and tracks teams of the First and Second Battalions of the 24th Infantry, on the 24th Infantry athletic field. The records of the winners of the different events were compared with the winners in the Meet held at the Stadium, the high mark in each event being announced as a garrison record until the time or distance was bettered in some future event.

The Meet was a complete success in every way, J. Pluvius was on his best behaviour and the weather was perfect, the program was carried through without a single hitch, as the events were announced the entries were assigned to their places and quickly and correctly.

Each event was close and hard fought, split seconds divided the distance in the track events while bare inches won hard fought field events. One of the closest competed events and one that will be long remembered by those present, was the 100-yard dash, between four of the fastest sprinters in the garrison. Tommie Thompson of the 2nd battalion, 29th Infantry, broke the tape a winner in 10 seconds flat, Kingsbury of the Special Units, running in fourth place, must have crossed the finish line three-fifths of a second later, while Blount of the Tank Corps, running second and Birdsong of the 1st Battalion, 29th Inf., in third place ,were separately by a split hair at the finish.

The work of Reddock of the 29th Infantry was the outstanding individual feature of the Meet. Entered in three events, he took first place in each event, setting an enviable record in each event for future competitors. He cleared the bar at 11 feet 2 inches in the polo vault with plenty of daylight showing, he cleared 19 feet 8 inches in the running broad jump and took the high jump at 5 feet 8 inches.

Showing few individual stars, but with a well balanced team that surprised spectators and opponents, the Terrible Tankers of the 15th Tank Battalion, copped first place in the Meet, with a total of 53½ points, their nearest rival was the First Bats of the 29t hInfantry with 48 points.

To Captain W. B. Tuttle, president of the Infantry School Athletic Association, goes a large share of the credit for the success of the Meet. Everything connected with the Meet was carried on in a smooth manner. The contestants for each event were marched to their proper places in regular formation, which aded much to the orderly manner which characterized the big Meet. After the success of the Meet it is hoped that a Garrison Feild and Track Meet will now be held annually.

Football

There is no doubt that within the garrison of Fort Benning there is to be found a wealth of football material that could not be equalled by another post or garrison in the United States Army.

Five teams, representing the Fifteenth Tank Battalion, 83rd Field Artillery, Special Units and the First and Second Battalions of the 29th Infantry have played a regular schedule of games that have supplied the fans of the garrison with fast and closely contested games at the Doughboy Stadium each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon since the opening of the season. With the close of the season drawing near a garrison championship battle looms in the near future when the undefeated teams of the Tankers and Second Bats meet in their annual clash. This game will be played at the Doughboy Stadium, December 22.

Running roughshod over all opposition, the 24th Infantry football team has earned a perfect right to lay claim to the National Colored Football Championship. The 24th Infantry team defeated the Atlanta University on their own grounds in Atlanta, 7 to 6, during the early season. When the Atlanta University was defeated by the Tuskegee football team, the Tuskegee team claimed the title. Although undefeated this season the Tuskegee team has not met the strong 24th Infantry football machine, which many of the critics, who have seen both teams in action, claim would probably stop the Alabama collegians.

Basket Ball

The Infantry School Musketeer cagesters of 1927-28 proved to be one of the strongest basketball combinations in the Southland. This fact was fully demonstrated by their long string of victories for the season, while their losses were few and far between.

Among the teams that accepted defeat at the hands of the Musketeers, was the far famed Olson's Nordics, considered one of the fastest professional aggregations in the country. The fast Miami Club Quintet came to the Upatoi station with 26 straight wins to their credit, but they returned to the land of sunshine and Alligators, with their first defeat. The Gulf Refining Co. Basketeers attempted to stop the winning streak of the Musketeers with their all-star aggregation, they went the way of the Nordics and Floridians, only their defeat was a perfect rout.

With the entire squad of last season back in harness this year and with the additon of several players that equal last year's men in speed and cunning, the Musketeers threaten to be even stronger this year than in any previous season. Already two games have been played against invading Cagesters and each contest has been a Musketeer victory.

The Musketeer line-up for this season carries five individual stars that form one of the fastest smoothest working machines ever seen in action on the Benning court. They are, Johnnie Roosma and Stamper, forwards; Strickler, center; Kammerer and Franz, guards.

With an all-star team the Musketeers will be kept busy with the toughest basketball schedule in the history of Fort Benning.

Tennis

During the past six months the net game has progressed at the Infantry School by leaps and bounds.

Under the supervision of Major John F. Landis, the addition of six new clay tennis courts and a complete remodeling of the four original courts is being rapidly carried forward, and in a very short time the Infantry School Tennis Courts will rival the leading courts of the South.

A large share of the credit for the enlargement and improvement being carried on, is due the different organizations who have made the work possible by furnishing men and implements. The organizations taking part in this work include the 29th Infantry, 83rd Field Artillery, 15th Tank Battalion and Company "A" of the 7th Engineers.

Owing to the fact that inclement weather spoiled tennis games on fourteen Saturdays and Sundays during the past season, plans are now underway for the erection of two concrete courts, available for play at all times. These courts will be constructed after the completion of the present improvements.

Assisting Major Landis in the program being carried out, is Sgt. Jimmie Donovan of the I. S. D. Sgt. Donovan has been in charge of the tennis courts of the garrison for the past five years. He is an expert in this line of work, this fact being fully demonstrated by the excellent condition the courts have been kept in while under his care.

To further encourage the net game at the Infantry School, the services of Mr. Albert Kennedy, tennis professional, have been acquired. Mr. Kennedy is a member of the Cincinnati Tennis Club and is one of the country's leading professional players. Besides giving tennis lessons, Mr. Kennedy also instructs a large class in the fine points of the game.

Benning Riders

The splendid showing of the Infantry School Riding Team was one of the outstanding features of the Augusta Horse Show, held March 14, 15 and 16, 1928, at Augusta, Ga.

Riding and jumping as though born in the saddle, Infantry School riders led by their doughty cavalry leader, Major H. J. M. Smith, swept the boards to take 43 ribbons out of a possible total of 71.

Two champions were picked from Benning mounts. Of the fifteen horses taken to Augusta, all except two placed in the ribbons one or more times with "Hindoo" having the greater to his placing with a total of nine.

The Infantry School Riding Team, composed of ladies and officers from the Infantry School, was the subject of fav-

STORY OF SOCCER—IN FORT BENNING AND OTHER PLACES

before a record crowd at the Yankee Stadium in New York in 1925 a picked All American team defeated the Champions by a 1 to 0 score.

It was just a matter of time from then on. Teams began to spring up all over the country in schools and universities and some that had never even heard of the game. Not less than 26 intercollegiate teams in the east have been playing the game during 1926 and 1927 and many of these colleges have been playing the game intramurally.

Such teams as Army, Navy, Yale, Dartmouth, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Penn State have played a great part in bringing the game of soccer to the limelight in the east, although the southern section has not shown much development, at present.

While it is at present virtually impossible to determine a soccer championship, due to the present method of playing the game, it will only be a matter of time when the teams will be divided into conferences and a conference championship be established similar to that of football.

With this in mind, the various units of the post will do well to work up their men to the proper spirit and cooperation to insure a soccer schedule that will make for itself an enviable record of southern achievement in this metropolitan sport of soccer football.

In the last issue I pointed out the proper method of kicking and positioning the ball. This week I will take up the matter of each player's position and what is expected of each one individually and collectively.

The Forwards

The forward line is for attack, pure and simple. They should be able to dribble, pass and travel at high speed with the ball at all times and always take advantage of opportunities for passing the ball to their running mates and work it towards the opposing goal. The center forward is the player from whom most is expected. Like a quarterback is to a football team, so is a center to his forwards. He is the player that has to keep calm at all times and see that his forwards are kept in their respective positions and feed the wings constantly as the occasion demands. He must keep the ball from wandering too far out of position and always keep himself in readiness to receive a pass from one of his colleagues who is hard pressed. He must keep his wits about him at all times, especially in the vicinity of the goal and caution his inside forwards about bunching up on the ball, thus leaving his wings with no chance of a counter attack, should the ball get out of his control.

The center and the inside forwards are the only men on the team, who with the proper teamwork and coordination, should score, and only in a case where either wing finds the ball suddenly under his control near the goal with no one in a better position to field the ball, may he attempt to score. His main job is to feed the inside forwards and center and at no time attempt any long chances which may result in the opposing team gaining possession of the ball. These points are essential and should not be deviated from at any time.

Next week will be devoted to what is required of the half backs.

Holiday Greetings!

As the end of the year approaches and holiday cheer permeates the atmosphere we look back over a year of pleasant relations with the personnel of Fort Benning . . . may this be a season of joy for all of you . . . may the New Year bring you continued happiness . . .

60 YEARS SELLING COAL AND WOOD

29TH INF.

REGIMENTAL REVIEW

An exceptional review, seldom seen in the Army, was put on by the 29th Infantry last Tuesday, December 18th, 1928.

For this review, the regiment was commanded by the regimental sergeant major, Master Sergt. Floyd D. Belmeyer; the battalions were commanded by the battalion sergeants major, and the companies by the first sergeants. The acting regimental commander and acting battalion commanders were each assisted by a non-commissioned officer, who functioned as acting adjutants.

The Commanding Officer, Colonel Harris Pendleton, Jr., and officers of the 29th Infantry reviewed the regiment. Colonel Pendleton expressed himself as being pleased with the appearance and marching of the regiment and congratulated the acting commanders upon their fine work.

JUNIOR OFFICER'S LYCEUM

In his sixth lecture given to the Junior Officers of the 29th Inf. Colonel Pendleton discussed the working of three of our largest and most important non-combatant branches, namely, the Adjutant General Department, the Quartermaster Department, and the Ordnance Department. He explained the functioning of these three branches quite thoroughly stating that the Adjutant General Department took care of the great amount of correspondence sent into it through a Mail Reception Bureau which routed out this mail to the offices where it would receive the proper attention, that the Q. M. Dept. was chiefly a procurement agency for supplies requested by two or more branches of the Army, and that the Ordnance Department was mainly a bureau of experimentation. The Colonel added interest to his talk by sighting a number of examples illustrating the important work that these branches accomplished.

Service Company

Thanksgiving dinner having been a big success, we are looking forward with eager anticipation to other gastronomic delights that are in the offing for Christmas.

Our utility man, Pvt. 1cl. Dallas, now has a new position, that of assisting the 1st Sgt. At his present rate it won't be long until he will have a working knowledge of all the activities in the organization.

Staff Sgt. James E. Freeman, returning from a thirty-day furlough spent in Florida, reports an enjoyable time hunting and fishing. He says that although the people of Florida voted for Hoover, there are still to be found a few wet places among the swamps.

If there is one among us who is versed in the quotations of the day we would like for him to inform us who is the author of the quotation, "I just love a bird dog."

Sgt. Harrison returning from a sixty-day furlough spent in the wilds of North Georgia, reports that the cotton crop was excellent and that in his community only two or three Smith sympathizers had committed suicide up to date.

It has been rumored that the only time Corp. Kopke goes home with any degree of assuranc is on pay-day. However, this has been discredited by the Corp. himself who says that there are two days during the month that he can go home without fear, pay-day and canteen-check day.

Howitzer Company

Sad to say, we are no longer the soccer champions. "B" Co. of the 15th Tanks recently took our scalp to the tune of 3-2; however, the writer will say that we made the winning goal for them. Why, of course, it was accidental! But just wait until we try the Engineers, let's hope Lady Luck has returned.

Cpls. Corn and Rogers, and Pvts. Meade, Brown and Cook have returned from furlough and report that they "sheiked" 'em all. Cpl. Rogers says he did not pick any cotton while he was home but we believe that it was either picking cotton or the chain gang from the looks of his hands.

Pvts. Hickle, E. J., and Nettles have just had their pay increased to the extent of nine dollars. We hope the lead won't prove too great, boys.

Headquarters Company

The great and only "Bucky" O'Neill is with us again after an absence of three months. Words could never express just how much we missed his smiling countenance and cheerful smile. We extend our heartiest greetings to the sergeant, and hope that he did not procure himself a wife while on furlough.

Now that "Bucky" is with us again, the old feud will be resumed between the same "Bucky" and Cpl. Devoice, as to who owns the pet of the company. These two surely ought to get that argument settled soon before the feud is ended by a trip to the pound by the feline christened "YO HO".

"Midget" Hafley, the company sleuth, has at last uncovered the fact that Cpl. Devoice actually made sharp-shooter with patience and not the pencil as falsely stated some time ago. "Midget" was assisted in his criminology work by the great defective, beg pardon, detective, Huggins, both should receive a box of fruit for their work, said fruit to be the "razz"berries.

Pvt. Grace has assumed command of the recreation room, and we are all sure that he will have a meeting of the staff very soon to decide the champion pool shot of the company. If it was for the champion dip player, we are of the opinion that a meeting would be uncalled for, as Pvt. Chastain dips till he is about to go dippy dipping.

Social events of the week: Pvt. Watson attended the Pretzel Twisters Ball and reported that they all laughed when he sat down to play the piano, but laughter vanished when he played "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

Pvt. Page won first prize at the Horse Show on Wednesday and came strutting to the company imploring guys to ask him the time. Soon we got the news that he had won a wrist watch as first prize. He should have gotten a Big Ben and tied it around his neck, then he would have more time to neck.

1st Bn. Hdqrs. and Hdqrs. Co.

Privates Owens and Taylor both happened to a little accident the other night. Owens says that he ran into a door, and Taylor says that his wouldn't have happened if he had of run. In both cases the optical organ seemed to be bruised, and slightly discolored.

Sergeant Sanders is having a little vacation, and Sergeant Justice is at the head of the ship for the time being.

Sergeant Perkins seems rather lonely and blue these days and for some unexplainable reason he is refraining from going to town so often. Possibly everything will come out all right in the end and every one will be happy.

Private Albert Giles is the proud father of a bouncing baby girl. It won't be long now till he will appreciate the jokes about fathers walking the floor with their offspring.

We have hopes of having a basket ball team this winter. All we lack now are our suits and some players. As soon as we get them, we will be ready to go full steam, so all you other company teams take notice and watch your step, 'cause when we get what we need we will sure take you into camp.

Company "A"

Private First Class Grenville C. Rickert, dispenser of A. & R., et cetera, in keeping with a tradition immemorial, will spend the Yuletide days at home. His home is in Galveston—the Galveston up in Texas.

Corporal Bower will essay to substitute for Rickert of Galveston (up in Texas) while he is on furlough.

That august chair at the Personnel Office vacated by Corporal Bower will be occupied by Cor—er—Private Selby Freeman whose singular escapades at Reveille are known to all.

Corporal Reeser, the man with a girl in every town in Dixie, established a precedent in the performance of charge-of-quarters duty last Saturday. He stayed at the charge-of-quarters post, the company office, all night—that is, until the coal skuttle was empty, then he hied himself to the mess hall and stood behind the stove until ye cor procured some coal and started the home fires burning again.

Private First Class Sago, proprietor of ye Bingo Poole Halle, announces that he will continue operations another three years. This announcement followed the granting of a 15-day pre-reenlistment furlough to Proprietor Sago.

"Shorty" Haygood, not more than six-feet-two, is said to have a very versatile pair of eyes and an equally versatile pair of ears. 'Tis gossiped that that little boy can do the buck and keep cadence with his ears and add a personal touch with his eyes that is really pathetic.

Our own Bobby Birdsong has been heard singing remnants of "Sonny Boy," and 'tis so agreeable to our ears we would like to hear him sing it at the Main Theater some Sunday night, with as many encores as we can get for two bits.

Limpy Whaley disclaims iconoclastic tendencies. But he avers that a certain nose in this company is entirely too fragile to be interesting itself in his affairs.

Company "B"

At Regimental Parade on Tuesday morning last week two men from "B" Company received prizes for high score on the range. They are Sergeant Albert B. Larimore and Private Fred F. Lane. The former received a gold watch for high idnividual rifle score and the latter a gold fountain pen for high automatic rifle score.

Sergeant Larimore has the distinction of being the only enlisted man of the 29th Infantry who was a member of the Infantry Rifle Team at Camp Perry, Ohio, last August. Even though the Infantry Team did not win the National Rifle Matches, it was not, certainly, through any lack of effort on Sergeant Larimore's part. He, no doubt, acquired a lot of useful dope over there which leads us to expect great things from him next year.

Two new Corporals were made recently. Privates 1st Class Willie S. Morton and Harry Kemper, the latter being an old hand at receiving warrants.

Sergeant Humphrey again showed us what he could do with a mess when he gave us an excellent Thanksgiving dinner with all the seasonal trimmings. He is apparently very apt in the matter of policing up, for he tied for first place in the monthly post mess competition, thereby receiving a letter of commendation from the Regimental Commander.

Corporal Adams was discharged Friday ,and departed for his home in Alabama. Corporal Adams has completed approximately five years service and has been a Non-Commissioned Officer for some time. His individual record on the range and his ability in handling a squad has earned, for him, an excellent record in the company.

Sergeant Swall returned Tuesday last week from a furlough of ninety days which he spent in Pennsylvania. It is believed that while on furlough, he marched down the rosy path of matrimony. Good luck, Sergeant.

Corporal Dey, who is on furlough in Macon, Ga., is expected to return some time in the near future, for reasons other than expiration of furlough. Perhaps he heard that there is a vacancy for Sergeant in the company.

Rabbits seem rather scarce as a couple of hunters have been seen departing in the direction of Area 1 but returning with no rabbits and no ammunition. Sorry fellows, they don't sit and let you blaze away at them.

Congratulations on thee my little men, with more stripes on the arm and more formations to stand. Cpl. Satterwhite was appointed Sergeant and Privates 1st Cl. Speer, Tiner, and Kennedy G. appointed Corporals.

The other night we were awakened by the tread of feet in the squad room. We do not believe in ghosts but must admit that when we saw a piece of paper moving across the room we were perplexed. An eerie glow was cast into the room by an iridescent moon. "'Tis merely the wind," we muttered and forthwith turned over to resume a peaceful slumber.

The wind? There is no wind, we thought. Alas then, we must be dreaming. But the paper moved again. This time under our bed, thence toward "Tubby" Dyke's bunk. We felt we should investigate the mystery and were arising when, "Scat! You dirty cat!" pierced the nightly gloom.

We settled once more to sleep but could not rest. A cat's idea of play-time is different from that of most human beings. (Note our reservation in word, "most"). His instincts tell him to go forth into the darkness in search of excitement. Thus we meditated far into the night.

When first call sounded the next morning we sleepily beheld the kitten resting beside us and then and there issued the following ultimatum: "That if the culprit which caused our loss of sleep, did not elsewhere seek a site of his nightly carousal, we would consider it as unfriendly toward our peace and dignity and would act accordingly."

We regret our errors and wish to announce that Hy Chambers declares that he is the handsomest man in "F" Company, not "one of the handsomest," as was previously stated.

Well, well, what next! Our famous cook, Harry Parm, got his dates mixed up and was celebrating the Christmas holidays entirely too soon. He ran every body out of the Headquarters squad room with his high explosives.

Wow! Look what we have here, a boy by the name of Allison who certainly knows his football. This boy sure will be a great help to the Company football team this next season. They say that football is not the only athletic event he can star in.

We have a new addition to the Company, one Pfc. Pier who transferred to this organiaztion from the Service Company. Good luck Pier.

Pvt. McGowen asked Pvt. Day what was the meaning of three balls over a pawnshop. Pvt. Day said, "Well Mack two to one you put it in and you never get it out."

Pvt. Lemay said to Pvt. Winningham, 'What are you doing now?" Winningham said, "Nothing." Lemay said, "Do you want a partner?"

Sgt. Swaney took a trip to town to look at some used cars. He saw a nice little car in the garage and asked the salesman why he called it a loose leaf. The salesman replied, "Well, it's a Paige."

Cpl. Newman is back with the Second Battalion football team and he sure played a fine game Saturday.

Pvt. King, "I always take pains with my work." Sgt. Folka, "Yes, it gives me a pain too."

Sgt. Notgrass said to Sgt. Johnson, "Have you heard the latest thing in men's clothes?" Sgt. Johnson asked what it was and Sgt. Notgrass replied, "Woman."

The Fourth Corps Area with headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., leads all corps in the number of reserve officers appointed from among the 1928 R. O. T. C. graduates, with a total of 912. The Seventh Corps Area, headquarters, Fort Omaha, Nebr., comes second with 827. Among those commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps are 18 R. O. T. C. graduates from Hawaii.

AT THE DRAG HUNT

A cold grey morning. An extraordinary big and bright fire in the fireplace at the Polo Club. Cautious ones gazing wistfully at the doughnuts while sipping their coffee. Miss Kingman's derby. The impeccable Mr. Margeson, famous man about the post. Major watching over the large field from the rear. Capt. DeWare, one of the whips, comes a cropper but is up again in an instant. Capt. Collier another of the whips has his hands full to make a lagging hound pack in. "What makes the drag follow the course?" "Oh no, a dog can't whip a badger." The milling and bobbing pack being fed raw meat at the end of the course. The walk back to the club house and a quiet ending to an exciting morning.

TANKS GRANTHAM WILL FACE K. O. BILLY EDWARDS IN MAIN EVENT ON BOXING CARD THURSDAY NIGHT

A Good Preliminary Bill Has Been Arranged for Fistic Menu During Xmas Holidays

A General Resume of Boxing Developments at Infantry School Past Six Months

Grumpy Gordy	vs	Hee Haw Hawkins	3 Rounds
Saginaw Seeley	vs	Grady Martin	3 Rounds
Whispering Moore	vs	Ginger Jernigan	4 Rounds
Babe Asher	vs	Krafty Klein	4 Rounds
Doubtin' Thomas	vs	Peanut Howard	6 Rounds
Pinkey Phillips	vs	Young Hayslip	6 Rounds
Tanks Grantham	vs	K. O. Billy Edwards	10 Rounds

With Willie Ptomey up north testing that new punch that he has picked up in the last month, with Gunner DePratt slowly recovering from a badly jammed right hand, the opportunity that Tanks Grantham has awaited is here. On Thursday night, December 27th, after a layoff of three months, during which time the Tanker has been busy developing a real punch, Grantham will step in and meet K. O. Billy Edwards, Savannah knockout king, in the feature of ten rounds

When it comes to sliding punches, tying up an opponent in the clinches, working both hands to the midriff, very few are the equal of Tanks. Grantham, however, has been compelled in all his fights to go the full limit. Not in the memory of the oldest fan has anyone seen Tanks plant a solid right to an adversary's jaw and watch the referee toll off the fatal ten. Instead in all his fights he has pilled up point after point and in the majority of cases has received the winner's nod. This method of winning reads well in the ring record, but it fails to pack the crowd that in the end pays the bill. Today the man with the punch is the man in demand. It doesn't take a mathematician to convince any one with an ounce of brains that engagements are plentiful for a boxer if he wades in and punches his way to a win. Unless the times change, a scientific boxer without a punch, may as well hang up the leather and go to work.

Realizing his faults Grantham has quietly kept away from the racket for three full months. Daily he has worked on one object. With Smith, Heard, Fiske Williamson, and Ptomey, the Tanker has donned the gloves with the object of developing a short eight-inch torpedo right that when it lands means the bacon. It is true he has lost little of his cleverness in learning how to hit properly, but those who have been watching the daily performance feel that a new Granthom will be seen next Thursday night. The writer has seen the big change in Tanks slowly but surely develop thereby leading one to believe that another real socker will be available to join the Ptomey and DePratt class. While we are on the hitting question did onyone notice the difference in Ptomey's right cross when he met Pletz? Was it the same punch that he landed forty times on the jaw of Ted Goodrich without flooring the Atlantian? Ptomey's knockout of Peltz placed him in line for six lucrative engagement in and around Philadelphia. If Grantham, too, shows that he has a real kick, and from his present workouts he has it in large gobs, then many of the welters in this section of the country will be lined up for him.

The value of a real punch can well be appraised in going over the remarkable record of the boy that meets Grantham on the 27th. Entering the game last February, under the watchful eye of Ed Alexander, manager of the whirlwind Eddie Burl, Grantham's opponent, K. O. Billy Edwards has engaged in 23 battles. His 24th in eleven months will be his engagement with Tanks. There are many boxers in the country who are lucky to get 12 bouts a year. Something must be in Edward's favor. Just one answer: He has the wallop. In those 23 fights 18 men have been counted out. Seven times this year he has appeared as th windup attraction at the Duval County Armory, Jacksonville, Florida, packing the house to capacity each time he has shown. He has the punch ,is in there trying every minute and never lets up until the final gong. He has cleaned up everything in his division by the dint of carrying the fight right to his man. His only setback was a technical knockout awarded Willie Norwood of Titisville, Fla. Reports of this fight show that Edwards wrenched his ankle when that member became tied up with the stool in his corner. On Tuesday, Deecmber 18th, Edwards met Norwood again and won every round, wiping the slate clean of his only setback.

Many strange things have happened this year in the boxing game. Were Tanks to uncork that new punch he has developed on the chin of this budding Savannah boy then Jacksonville would have him booked solid for at least a dozen battles. It is believed that enough suspense will hover over the coming mill to bring out a record crowd during the Xmas break.

Benning is getting together quite a few real boxers. Many of them were on their way to higher flights a year ago, but one thing seemed lacking with most of them. If they could hit, they knew little of defense; if they were artists at covering up they lacked the wallop. A combination of both is what every successful glove slinger needs. Rcent bouts has led the writer to believe that before another year rolls round many of the light hitters will develop that necessary punch and aggressiveness to take their place with the best in the country. When Phillips met Nick Rawlson recently he learned that the long overhand swing meant disaster against a smart boxer. Four times Pinkey found his glove hitting the canvas when Rawlson bent a knee and let the blow go over his back. Since then the I. S. D. entry has been concentrating on the short inside, body propelled, sleep producer. On Thursday night he faces another boy from the Alexander stable in Young Hayslip. His performance will be carefully watched to see if the Rawlson go added anything to his boxing knowledge. Here is a boy that can take it, mix it every minute, and the longer the fight the better he gets. With his ndurance Phillips with any kind of a real short punch should be up among them before long.

Doubtin' Thomas, one of the most popular boxers before the Benning fans today has a real assignment to meet in Peanut Howard in the first of the six-round bouts. Peanut met Danny Davis at the gymnasium just a month ago, making a nice impression by handily taking the tough Danny in tow over the eighteen minute route. Thomas has a handicap that he must face many times if he intends to stick to the game. His shortness makes it necessary for him to get in close and overcome the long reach of many of the 135-pound boys. Howard will have at least six inches advantage in height and reach.

Babe Asher is taking on Krafty Klein in a four-round go just to satisfy the Columbus boxer. Krafty, it appears, has been away for the last two months taking on a man or two every night as a side attraction at a circus. With seventeen straight wins out in the sticks Klein believes that fortune has commenced to grin in his direction. As Asher has a win or two over him, Klein contends that the time is ripe for Asher's downfall.

Whispering Moore and Jinger Jernigan, both tall, lanking 138 pounders are booked for a four rounder. Moore asked for the chance knowing that this Columbus youth has a nasty habit of cutting up many a would be Dempsey. The opener should be a gem with Grumpy Gordy against Hee Haw Hawkins; while a true line will be gotten on Seeley's ability when he tackles that tough, hard hitting letter carrier, Grady Martin.

For a Xmas week attraction it seemingly is a well rounded card. Edwards is sure to draw the crowd, while those who have been watching Grantham prep for the last three months will be on hand hoping for a repetition of that dramatic ending which characterized the Ptomey-Peltz classic.

orable comment by officials, rival exhibitors and all who attended the show. The splendid condition and performance ot the Fort Benning Show horses was also highly commented upon.

This was a crowning triumph for army mounts and riders competing against a field of blooded mounts and some of the country's foremost riders.

Polo

Led by Major Charles B. Lyman, the Infantry School polo team carry a clean slate for the season against all opponents.

Most noticeable of their victories was their decisive defeat of the strong Sixth Cavalry Four on their home grounds at Fort Oglethorpe. The Cavalrymen suffered two consecutive defeats at the hands of the Infantry School Riders. On their return trip to Benning, the team played two games at Atlanta, winning victories over the Fort McPhierson Four and the Governors Horse Guard.

At the present time, interest centers about the four polo teams of the garrison, in their fight for garrison championship. Until the first of the New Year the teams have been doing quite a bit of experimental work, but after Jan. 1, 1929, the fight will begin in earnest, each squad will be cut down to war strength and each Sunday afternoon, weather permitting, two fast and interesting games of polo will be played at French Field between the rival malletmen.

INFANTRY SCHOOL DRAMATIC CLUB ENTERTAINS WITH THREE PLAYS

On Friday night, December 21st, the Dramatic Club presented three excellent one-act plays at the Main Theatre. They were put on there because it was forseen that the 29th Theatre would not be capable of accommodating those desiring to see the show.

Following are the plays in the order in which they were presented:

The Man Pays

Written by Kenyon Nicholson and directed by Doris F. Cook.

In the cast were Anne Mackechnie as Angeline Dilly, Emil W. Leard as Victor Bradshaw, Edward C. Mack as the Deputy Sheriff.

The title completely describes the play. Bradshaw, a very respectable business man, met Angeline at the Zoo. He is invited to her apartment; an invitation which he accepts with some misgivings. While there the sheriff breezes in with a warrant for the arrest of Angeline's husband for failing to pay a lingerie bill of some four hundred odd dollars. To avoid scandal, Bradshaw finally pays the bill, and leaves in a huff.

The trapped business man, as played by Captain Leard when confronted by the hard-boiled sheriff, was very amusing. Lt. Mack, as the sheriff, played the part to perfection. The scene became extremely humorous when Mrs. Mackechnie, as Angeline, told the sheriff in a very realistic manner that Mr. Bradshaw was her husband.

A few years back, when this play was first put on in one of our large cities, a man in one of the boxes rose and called out as the curtain came down, "Angeline, you have saved me twenty-five thousand dollars this night." From our secure position behind the back curtain we wondered if our eyes deceived us, when we seemed to see a few of the male members of the audience sink slightly lower in their seats as the plot unfolded. But then, out beyond the footlights, nothing could be seen distinctly.

'Op 'O Me Thumb

Written by Frederick Fenn and Richard Pryce. Directed by Helen Goode.

The cast included: Garland Avera as Madame Didier, Rachel Wood as Mrs. Galloway, Gladys Arms as Rose Jordan, Mildred Mood as Amanda Afflick, Vincent J. Conrad as Horace Greensmith, and Jenetta Hester as Celeste.

The writer saw this play years ago when it was put on by professional actors, but do not believe they fitted the parts as well as this Cast did under Mrs. Goode's directing.

From our peep-hole, we marvelled at the excitement, and joy displayed by Amanda, when the man she had idealized kissed her. And, with many of the audience, we had to resort to the use of the handkerchief when the pathetic, shabby little figure, realizing that she had lost him forever, collapsed on the stage.

The Black Suitcase

Written by Alice C. D. Riley and directed by Lucy-Ord Kemper Rice. The cast: Florence Ladd as Mother, Bess B. Hixson as Bridget, Ollie W. Reed as Father, William R. Bent as The Bootlegger, Housebreaker and Terrance, Mary B. Reed as Sis, Tom Wells as Bud, and Edward Strohbehm as Jack Plummer.

The principal theme of the play was the anxious father, and his anxiety was caused from the fact that he had placed some of his Christmas bootleg in one of five identical suitcases, and during some slight excitement in the household, the cases had become mixed amongst the family and their guests. His concern in trying to keep the possession, and knowledge of the hootch from the family was very funny. The cautious actions of the bootlegger and the frantic moves made by Jack in trying to recover his lost wearing apparel prevented either from accomplishing anything further than driving each other to cover under the table, and in closets, where they were eventually located by the family in an unexpected climax.

Bud, fresh from high school, Mother a gentle tyrant, Bridget an efficient servant, and Sis, who easily convinced Jack that he was wonderful, played excellent and amusing parts in the play.

These plays were perfectly staged and all voices carefully directed so that they carried to the farther edges of the audience. All players had been carefully selected, fitted the parts exactly, and consequently the plays were presented with a smoothness and precision that would have been of credit to professionals.

The casts and directors, Mrs. Doris F. Cook, Mrs. Helen Goode and Mrs. Lucy-Ord Kemper Rice, gave much of their time and worked tirelessly till the

SERVICE CLUB WAS HOST TO SOLDIERS AND THEIR GUESTS XMAS

Christmas for 1928 has come and gone, but for the soldiers of Fort Benning it is one that will be long remembered.

Christmas afternoon, the Service Club was turned into an open house, entertaining both soldiers and their friends. The club was beautifully decorated with yuletide decorations of wreathes, bells, streamers and serpentines.

During the afternoon's entertainment a group of young musicians of the 29th Infantry delightfully entertained those present with the latest in syncopation, while that night the orchestra of the 29th Infantry played toe-tickling numbers that, at all times, kept the dance floor filled with dancers, who after each selection applauded heartily.

Throughout the course of the afternoon and evening, Mrs. Inez Brittan, hostess at the Service Club, was everywhere doing little things here and there to add to the pleasure and entrtainment of her "boys" and their guests.

Caterpillar Organization Wins Fort Benning Title For Third Time

Thousands of football fans filled the stands of the Doughboy Stadium last Saturday afternoon to witness the final and feature game of the Infantry School season, the championship battle between the Terrible Tankers of the 15th Tank Bn., and the Kellys of the 2nd Bn., of the 29th Infantry.

The weather was ideal for the big occasion, the dark clouds that had been rolling up from the South for the past two days had cleared away Saturday morning and clear blue skys with oceans of bright sunshine brought cheer to the hearts of fans and players. The stands of the Stadium were a mass of bright colors, pennants of practically every organization in the U. S. Army, floated above the ramparts of the Stadium, the somber olive drab color of the Army was plentifully sprinkled with the brighter colors of the fairer sex. Hundreds of visitors were present to witness the final struggle for supremacy between two of the most powerful Army football teams ever developed by independent organizations.

The 15th Tank Battalion arrived at the Stadium at 1:30 P. M., headed by the 24th Infantry Band they marched around the field and then into the North stands of the Stadium, forming with the band and the cheering section in the center of the Battalion. The Doughboy Regiment led by the 29th Band, marched in by the South gate, after marching around the field the regiment entered the South stands. General Edgar T. Collins, commandant of the Infantry School, accompanied by Colonel George T. Marshall, assistant commandant of the Infantry School and Major Henry A. Bootz, assistant executive officer of the Infantry School, entered the General's box in the North stands five minutes before the game began.

A roar of applaus went up from the South stands as the blue-jacketed warriors of the Demonstration outfit came on the field. An answering roar went up from the North stands a moment later as the yellow-jacketed Tankers entered the gates from the North side of the field in perfect formation.

The Game

Franz kicked off for the Kellys, Sullivan ran the ball back to the Tankers 40-yard line. Sullivan rammed center for 2 yards, Bennett gained 1 yard off right tackle, Smith failed to gain on the third play and the Tankers punted. Thomson ran the punt back to the Kells 45-yard line, Franz failed to gain around right end, Kelly hit center for 3 yards, the Tankers held on the next play and the Kells punted. It was the Tank ball on their 12-yard strip when Vallery let the ball get away from him and roll down the field. On the first play Bennett rammed the Kelly line for 3 yards, Sullivan ripped off 6 yards off tackle, Bennett ploughed through center for 5 yards and a first down. The Tankers were forced to put when the Kells held for no gain on three thrusts at the line.

Mrs. W. H. Vinson—Phone 577

Across the clear crisp air martial music, "Onward Christian Soldiers," "O Come, All Ye Faithful," and many other tuneful and "Christmasy" selections. The Twenty-fourth Infantry band and bugle corps were serenading their officers, and incidentally giving a delightful greeting to all of us. So dawned a perfect Christmas Day at Fort Benning. Up jumped the boys and the girls, their mothers and daddies, to see the musicians, to see the Christmas tree shimmering with a myriad lights and laden with the beautiful things, to see what Santa Claus had left! What a wonderful Christmas! Santa, so generous! Toys so big and sturdy and strong, so bright and colorful, so different and interesting. He must have had a busy year, Old Santa, for never before has he had such marvelous toys for girls and boys. Happy faces beamed all day. Surely it was worth while to be good for Santa did know and had rewarded accordingly.

This Christmas has been especially beautiful. The day was ideal with its glorious sunshine, the night, with its beautiful bright moonlight. The holly has never been more generously laden with berries nor the mistletoe with more "pearls". Every home has wished "Merry Christmas" to every passer-by with its festive wreaths, and gleaming lights on beautiful tinsel laden trees. On Capt. Gilhus' lawn there are two living trees charmingly aglow with many colored lights. Following a time-honored custom of the army many officers and ladies ate Christmas dinner with the men. Their mess halls were artistically decorated and the "festive board" literally groaned under the bounty of delicious food. "Uncle Sam," always generous, is a lavish host at Christmas time.

At evening intimate friends dined together enjoying as much the hearty good will as the feast of turkey and plum pudding.

Capt. and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins entertained the members of the West Point Class of 1917, at dinner, on Friday evening, at the Ralston Hotel. Their guests were: Capt. and Mrs. Heavy, Capt. and Mrs. J. O. Green, Capt. and Mrs. Bonham, Capt. and Mrs. Fales, Capt. and Mrs. S. F. Clark, Capt. Percy Black, Capt. F. M. Brennan and his sister, Miss Berndotte Brennan, Capt. and Mrs. Cota and their mother, Mrs. Alexander. Following the dinner the guests attended the Dramatic Club play.

Maj. and Mrs. Willis J. Tack entertained a large group of friends at dinner at the Country Club dinner-dance on Saturday evening.

* * *

Lt. and Mrs. David L. Hardee, Miss Lucy Hardee and their mother, Mrs. Hardee, of Durham, N. C., motored to Florida where they are spending Christmas holidays.

* * *

Col. Robert T. Oliver, of Washington, D. C., arrived on Sunday evening to spend Christmas with his son and daughter, Lt. and Mrs. Robert C. Oliver.

Miss Francis Baker came down from New York on the 23rd to be with her parents, Col. and Mrs. Frank C. Baker during the holidays.

* * *

On Thursday Mrs. Robert H. Fletcher entertained at a very delightful riding party followed by a luncheon at her home.

* * *

On December 26th the Polo Club was the scene of a merry informal dance. Conspicuous among the dancers were the college boys and girls who are spending their holidays with parents and friends.

Mrs. Edgar S. Miller left today for Bridgeport, Conn., for a visit of several weeks to her mother.

On Christmas Eve at twilight carols were beautifully sung by a large group of the Glee Club. Every block was visited and the carolers gave thrills of delight to grown-ups and youngsters alike.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. Cecil L. Rutledge have as their house guest, Miss Wilson, of Washington, D. C.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. Ernest S. Barker and Ernest, Jr., went to Macon on Christmas afternoon for a visit to Mrs. Barker's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Rodgers.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. Harrell Strickland and son, Harrell, Jr., spent Christmas in Blakeley with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Standifer.

* * *

Miss Dade Warfield, of Agnes Scott College, and Cadet Fritz R. Weber, of West Point, are being delightfully entertained as the guests of Miss Katherine Kingman.

* * *

The Christmas program at the Protestant Chapel on Sunday morning was most interesting and was a means of inspiring the ideal Christmas Spirit in all who were present. Every class was represented, and each feature of the program, from the tiny tots singing a lullaby to their dollies to the carol by the grown-up men, was most creditable. Mrs. J. L. Collins was in charge of the preparation and the presentation of this program and she is to be congratulated on the success of it. She was assisted by a group of the SundaySchool teachers. At the conclusion of the service Chaplain Wright presented to Sgt. McPherson of the I. S. D. a nice bill folder, a gift from the Sunday School teachers in appreciation of the valuable service he so faithfully renders.

DEXTER-RICE ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Of wide social interest among both civilian and army circles is the announcement by Dr. and Mrs. C. Armory Dexter of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith Grace Dexter, and Captain Everett Latimer Rice of Fort Benning.

Miss Dexter, who is one of the most beautiful and talented young girls of Columbus, is a member of prominent and aristocratic Georgia and Philadelphia families. She is a niece of Mrs. Helen Dexter Ryan and a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. T. Charlton Hudson. After graduating from the local high school, Miss Dexter studied at Sophie Newcomb, going later to the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia and completed her education in Paris.

During her brief young ladyhood Miss Dexter has enjoyed a wide popularity throughout the south.

Captain Rice is the son of Mrs. Welby M. Rice of Mannassas, Virginia, and is a member of a prominent Virginia family. At the beginning of the World war he enlisted and went to the First Division Officers' Training Camp and saw two years service in France. For the past four years he has been an instructor at Fort Benning.

The wedding of Miss Dexter and Captain Rice will be one of the most important of the winter, the plans to be announced later.

* * *

On Saturday evening Miss Bess Berry, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Berry, was hostess at a delightful informal buffet supper and dancing party, entertaining at the Berry quarters at Fort Benning, honoring Lieut. and Mrs. Malcolm Kammerer. The wedding of Miss Louise Young and Lieut. Kammerer was a brilliant social event of early December, taking place at Trinity Church in Columbus.

Holly, mistletoe, southern smilax and burning red candles formed the decorations.

After supper the guests attended the basket ball game at the Fort returning later to the Berry quartrs for informal dancing.

Miss Berry had as her guests a number of the younger members of Fort Benning social contingent.

About 10,000 families are now being cared for by the Red Cross.

STORK STOPS AT FORT SILL

Lieutenant and Mrs. Doty are the proud parents of a son, born December the eighteenth at the Station Hospital, Fort Sill. The baby has been named Dwight Lynn, after his grandfather, General Dwight E. Aultman, on his mother's side, and Lynn E. Doty, and his father's side. Dwight Lynn is the second son of Lieutenant and Mrs. Doty.

The Red Cross helps the folks back home.

"NAPOLEON"; This epic historical picture was written and filmed in France, its actors are all natives of the land of Napoleon's rule. Albert Dreudonne plays the part of Napoleon and Gina Manes that of the beautiful Josephine. This can be called a true biographical study of the great conquorer's life; no attempt is made to treat of morals or of politics. For this purpose the author gathered together an all star French cast and placing them in the actual settings of Napoleon's eventful career, succeeds in forceably bringing to the eyes of the public a true character study of one of the greatest men of history. The film is educational as well as intensely interesting.

"Terrible People No. 8."

TUESDAY, JAN. 1

"THE SHADY LADY," starring Phyllis Haver with Robert Armstrong and Lewis Wolheim in another one of Phyllis' sensational successes. This is reported to be her best picture. It contains romance, laughs and a rapid continuity of absorbing situations. This picture was released Dec. 16.

"His Unlucky Night." Sennett.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 2

"FORBIDDEN LOVE," starring the new European sensation, Lile Damita, in a role of exceptional emotional power. It deals with a princess who, while seeking forgetfulness of a sorrowful past, in Paris, falls in love with a novelist. They are about to be married when fate calls her to the throne of a storm tossed country; she sacrifices love for duty, then follows a series of remarkably absorbing events.

"Felix Shatters the Sheik." Krazy Kat.

"Metro Goldwyn Mayer News."

THURSDAY, JAN. 3.

"SINGAPORE MUTINY," starring Ralph Ince with Estelle Taylor in a torrential thriller of tropic seas and torrid loves. This powerful story takes place aboard a freight steamer bound from Frisco to Singapore with a strange cargo. A vilanious crew managed by a half crazed-gruff skipper. There are only four passengers—the men are strong and the women supposedly weak. This story is intensely absorbing from start to finish.

"The Family Meal Ticket." Toots and Casper.

FRIDAY, JAN. 4

"THE NIGHT WATCH," starring Billy Dove in a strong melo-drama. Most of the action takes place in the state room, gun turrets and on the decks of a modern French cruiser. It is somewhat of a mystery story—a murder has been committed and the captain is accused. How it really happened is absorbingly disclosed in the dramatic denouement.

"Outnumbered." Fables.

"Pathe News."

INFANTRY SCHOOL DETACHMENT HAD BIG FEAST CHRISTMAS DAY

(By Al Durden)

Families and friends of the officers and enlisted men of the Infantry School Detachment, were the guest of the Detachment for Christmas dinner which was held at the Detachment Mess Hall, Dec. 25th.

The interior of the mess hall was beautifully decorated with colored streamers and spangles intermixed with large Christmas bells of different colors. The dinner was enjoyed by everyone, the menu being the last word in good things to eat.

There is no compliment that is more highly appreciated by an Army cook than the compliment of the ladies, who partake of the delicacies that are prepared by them on these gala occasions. The dinner served Christmas Day brought forth words of praise and highest comment from every one present and the speed with which platters of good things was emptied was ample proof that those present were wasting very little time in conversation.

Dinner over, a new surprise awaited the youngsters of the Detachment. The Christmas tree that looked so lonesome and sad as it stood all alone out in front of the N. C. O. Club, before dinner, had suddenly changed while dinner was being served. A large pile of bundles and packages were heaped about it, instead of looking lonesome and sad it looked very bright and gay in its Christmas finery. As the children crowded about the beautiful tree, an awful noise was heard in the chimney that stood on the Clubhouse porch, suddenly from the fire place stepped old "Santa Claus," himself. Santa was in a big hurry for he had lots of work to do and other little boys and girls were waiting for him. But though he was in a hurry, not a single one of the children of the Detachment was forgotten, there was a beautiful present for every on.

Among th guests present for the occasion were Colonel George C. Marshall, assistant commandant of the Infantry School; Major and Mrs. Henry A. Bootz. Major Bootz was the former commanding officer of the Infantry School Detachment and founder of the Detachment Christmas Tree, he is now assistant executive officer of the Infantry School. Major Louis Faligant, commanding officer of the I. S. D., and Mrs. Faligant, with 1st Lt. and Mrs. Henry Fay, and Captain William R. Bent and family, attended to the welcome and comfort of the visiting guests.

OFF WITH THE OLD—ON WITH THE NEW

Slowly but surely the hands of the clock of time have moved around and once again the zero hour is near. The Old Year lingers on the threshold, loath to depart. Outside the New Year eagerly awaits the going of the Old Year that it may flit in with its book of unsoiled records, one for each of us. Snowy white records without a blemish. What will they show when the New Year, now so young and gay, totters over the threshold on yon New Year's eve?

Monday night at twelve o'clock, each and every one of us will receive a beautiful and snowy white record with which to begin the New Year. How many will remember the good New Year Resolutions we made for the coming year 1929?

Let's make the year 1929 one in which our record will be as clean as when Father Time handed to us our records white at the beginning of the year. Let the coming year be one in which our New Year Resolution meant something to us—one in which those Resolutions were kept up to the last minute when the year 1930 is ushered in.

The Red Cross has been HELPING HUMANITY about 50 years.

YEAR END NOTES FROM THE ENGINEERS

Company "A", 7th Engineers, for the calendar year of 1928, can report, what is probably the most brilliant record of all-round achievements since the memorable days of the war. At no time during the year has a task been assigned that it wasn't quickly and efficiently worked out. Demonstrations for The Infantry School were all performed in an interesting and enlightening manner. No harsh note of criticism ever jarred (if it is possible to jar an Engineer) the ears of a sweating "pontonier". The points of barbwire, taking an unexpected nip at some part of an ardent toiler, brought forth no howl of agony. The echoes of four pound axes, felling timber for the construction of bridges, were sweet music to th versatile "Gin-Ears". To sum it all up, work at no time frightened the hard working, hard driving bunch over on Engineer Hill.

Athletics, the participation in which, to a majority of men, is the difference between a drab army life and one of unlimited good times, enjoyed the best year in company competitions that it is possible to attain. The veteran championship team of 1927, swept to its second basket ball title in as many years. Augmented by new material, the 1929 team has the brightest prospects since the inception of the Company League. In baseball, by winning both halfs of the season, the team copped the cup without having a play-off, the first time that such an ending has come to pass in this yearly competition since it's beginning in 1926. The Engineers had been in the play-off every year, but this is the first year that they have pulled through to the title. A heart breaking, nerve shattering 13-inning pitcher's duel was the highlight of the season. Perkins bested McDuffy of the Service Co., 29th Infantry, in this game and won out 1 to 0.

At this writing the Engineer soccer team is as yet undefeated. With the league games being played this week, the future of the new sport is in the laps of the gods.

TANKS WIN GRID-IRON CHAMPIONSHIP

Thomson took the ball on the Kells 45-yard strip and was stopped in his tracks by "Big Bertha," the Kells crossed up the Tankers by punting on the first play, Vallery was downed on the Tanks 23-yard line. After two tries at the Kelly line with no gain the Tankers punted to Thomson who was stopped on the. Kells 47-yard line. A pass, Kelly to Franz, was blocked, Kelly was thrown for a five-yard loss on an attempted end run, Thomson punted to Valley who was stopped on the Tanker's 35-yard mark, Newman broke through the Tanker line to throw Smith for a 5-yard loss on an attempted end run, Vallery punted, it was the Kells ball on their 40-yard line. Kelly punted without a play at the line catching the Tankers napping, it was the Tankers ball on their 15-yard line. Sullvan crashed off right tackle for 8 yards on the first play, Sullivan ploughed through center for 6 yards and a first down. The quarter ended with the ball in possession of the Tanks on their 30-yard line.

Second Quarter

Failing to gain on three thrusts at the Kells line the Tankers punted, it was the Kells ball on their 30-yard strip, Thomson skirted left end for 7 yards, Kelly smashed through center for 3 yards and a first down. The Tankers were caught napping when Thomson punted on the next play, the ball rolling to the Tanker 15-yard line when Vallery was nailed in his tracks after he recovered it. Joris relieved Smith in the Tank backfield, Joris punted on the first play, it was the Kells ball on their 47-yard strip. Tommie flashed around left end for 10 yards and a first down, a pass, Franz to McAllister, was incomplete, Kelly ripped through center for 3 yards, Kelly made 9 yards and a first down on a delayed line buck. A five-yard penalty halted the Kelly march, the backfield in motion on the next play brought another pelanty, Thomson punted over the Tanker goal line, it was the Tankers ball on their 20-yard strip. Bennett made three yards through the line on the first play but the Kells held and forced the Tankers to punt, Thomson took Joris high one and was downed by Brown on the Kells 47-yard line. The Kells punted on the second play, it was the Tankers ball on their 16-yard line, on the first play the Tankers were penalized 15 yards for holding, putting the ball on their 1-yard strip. Thomson took Joris punt and was downed on the Tanker 45-yard mark. Lindsey, Tank center, out with broken finger. On the first play, McKelvey of the Tanks, intercepted a Kelly pass and with Bertleman and Brown taking out all interference, galloped 55 yards for the first, final and only touchdown of the game. The half ended with the score 6 to 0 in favor of the Tankers.

Third Quarter

The Kells kicked off, Vallery was stopped on the Tankers 32-yard line, Bennett skirted left end for 10 yards and a first down, the Kellys held on the next three plays and the Tankers punted to Thomson who was downed on the Kellys 40-yard line, failing to gain the Kells punted to Vallery who was downed on his 25-yard strip, Joris gained 15 yards and a first down around right end, on the next play Joris was thrown for a 14-yard loss when he attempted to reverse the field, Vallery punted to Thomson who was stopped by McKelvey on the Kells 45-yard mark, Bennett intercepted a Kelly pass, it was the Tanks ball on the Kellys 40-yard mark. Smashes by Bennett and Sullivan at the Kelly line netted 14 yards and a first down on the third play, a pass Bennett to Sullivan put the ball on the Kellys 22-yard strip, Joris try for a field goal was missed by inches, the ball went to the Kellys on their 20-yard line. Franz took Thomson's pass and galloped to the Tankers 30-yard strip before being downed, Sullivan broke up the Kelly threat when he intercepted a pass and ran it back to the Kells 40-yard line. The quarter ended with the Tankers on the offensive on the Kells 40-yard strip.

Fourth Quarter

Franz intercepted a Tanker pass and ran it to midfield, a pass Tommie to Franz netted 11 yards and a first down, the Tankers held and the Kells punted, the Tankers returned the punt on the first play, it was the Kellys ball on their 30-yard line. A pass, Allison to Kelly, gained 14 yards and a first down, a long pass, Kelly to Franz, gained 32 yards and gave the Kells a first down on the Tankers 20-yard line, another pass, Franz to Kelly, gained 15 yards, giving the Kellys a first down on the Tankers 5-yard strip, on the first play the Tankers drew a penalty for being off-side, giving the Kells a first down on the Tanker 2½-yard strip. With their backs to the wall the Tanker line held, on the third play Kelly was thrown for a 3-yard loss, a final attempt to pass was unsuccessful and the Tankers took the ball on their 20-yard mark, near the end of the quarter the Kellys were in striking distance again when Franz shot a long pass to Kelly that looked good for an instant but went a little high, spoiling the Doughboys final chance to ward off defeat. The game ended a moment later. Final score: Tankers 6, Doughboys 0.

Immediately after the game Brigadier General Edgar T. Collins, commandant of the Infantry School, presented the beautiful silver cup to Sergt. Harry Bertleman, captain of the Tanker team. In a short address to the members of the two teams, General Collins commented highly upon the true sportsmanship and fighting spirit displayed upon the field by the members of each team. He also said that "he had never witnessed a more harder contested or cleaner played game of football."

COSTUME DANCE AT SERVICE CLUB NEW YEAR'S NIGHT

The 1929 social calendar for the enlisted personnel of Benning will be opened New Year's night with a costume dance at the Service Club. During the past week, Mrs. Brittan and a corps of assistants have been busy decorating and adding color to the already beautiful club in preparation for this event.

The services of the 24th Infantry orchestra, under the leadership of Staff Sergeant Scipio, has been secured for the occasion. The music as furnished by this orchestra is, as can be testified to by many, seldom if ever surpassed by any orchestra in the South.

Dancing will begin promptly at 8:45 P. M.

SHRINERS CLUB TO ENTERTAIN

The Columbus Shriners Club will hold a dinner on New Year's Eve at the Service Club of the Columbus Electric and Power Co. All Shriners at Fort Benning are cordially invited to attend this affair. An entertainment will follow the dinner. Time of dinner, 7 P. M.

CO. "H" WRITER TAKES STOCK OF PAST EVENTS

As the Christmas season draws near, we are prone to let our minds reflect back over the past year and it's happenings. Most of these things, we find after a careful survey, are things of which any organization should feel proud. Especially is this true of "H" Company. The accomplishments of the Company during the past year are quite commendable.

The target season during July was quite a success in its results throughout the organization. The company qualified 100% with a fairly high average. This was the best season on the range that the company has had since it's organization. Of the prizes offered for high scores on the range, "H" Company took two separately and tied another. Pvt. Taylor was high score of the regiment with a score of 401. Corporal O'Brien tied with "D" Company for second place with a score of 393. Sgt. Whittington, better known as "Ribs" drew the third prize with a score of 378. "D" Company topped us with high average, but we sure did make them dig to get it.

Some of the spectators at the football games during the Battalion league season seemed to take the "H" Company team as a joke. They seemed to think that just because they did not score a touchdown during the whole season, that they were a mere mob on the field. Let me tell you. That was the fightin'est bunch of soldiers that ever did assemble to play a game of football. The Company Officers asked me to state through this column that they were well pleased with the manner in which the men on the team conducted themselves on the field of play and the fight that they put up. "H" Company had a good team, and we want the world to know it, even though we did win the cellar championship.

Then here we come again, showing that the "H" Company spirit that has always prevailed, will come out on top. Without the thorough cooperation of the officers and enlisted men of the company, this high standard could never have been attained. The Regimental Commander was justly proud of the organization stables at this inspection.

Paragraph 3 of General Orders No. 52, Headquarters, 29th Infantry announcing the results of the inspection follows:

"To be rated highest in this contest in which the lowest rating given to any stable was "excellent" is an accomplishment of which the company commander, and his organization may well be proud. The Regimental Commander extends his congratulations to Captain Nichols, to the members of "H" Company and especially to Sergeant Martin, the Stable Sergeant."

Now tell me that "H' Company hasn't got something to blow about. That's what I call going some, and I don't mean "Guard Halt."

Recently our mess has risen to a rating of "excellent" in the sanitary inspection. We are proud of the appearance of our mess hall, and want to challenge any one to beat it.

Now if you want to see something that is fit for sore eyes, just come down and take a look at the squad equipment of the company. Recently the Regimental Commander made an inspection of our gun room and supply room, and the substance of what he had to say is this: That he has never seen Company equipment as efficiently and neatly stored. Everything in the gun room and supply room, even to the color scheme, contributed to the general practicability and appearance. Well you might not think that that is anything to get puffed up about, but we notice that Capt. Nichols and Lt. Kilpeck had to take their blouses o the tailor shop to have the buttons moved back a bit. Now I wonder why?!!!

Lt. Kilpack makes the statement that if you don't think "H" Company is going to have an excellent hasket ball team, just take a look at the nifty uniforms that they have. Under the management of Corporal fracher, we should be able to turn out a real good team this year. All they need is practice, and a lot of it. I for one am betting on them to bring home the bacon on many occasions, if not all of them.

The Company Officers feel that the morale of the Company has risen considerably from their already high standard within the past few months. They are well pleased with the accomplishments of the company as a whole, and especially o fthose of quite a few individuals. They promise us though, that "you aint heard nothin' yet."

Wishing you all a merry, merry Christmas, and later on a happy New Year, I take this opportunity to sign off—"H" Company, 29th Infantry, The Best Company in the Army!!!!

—Bernard B. Swayze.

ARMY COOKS TAKE PRIDE IN PREPARING CHRISTMAS DINNER

(By Al Durden)

No artist or sculptor ever took more pride or care in a masterpiece than does the Army cook in the preparation of Christmas dinner. Little do those of us who enjoy the pleasure afforded by the heavily laden tables of well cooked and delicious dainties that are served on this gala occasion, ralize that quite a bit of time, skill and labor is used in the preparation of this wonderful menu.

The chief worry as to the failure or success of the occasion rests upon the weary shoulders of the tortured but uncomplaining Mess Sergeant, first of all he arranges the menu. This is done only after many changes, misgivings and nights of worry. With the menu ready, each particular cook has his work cut out, the pastry cook attends to the baking of pies and cakes, there is always one cook that excels in making salads, another attends to the soup and coffee, last but not least is the cook that has charge of the turkey. Christmas eve night, in every mess hall in the garrison, the cook in charge of the cooking of the Xmas turkey was on duty over the ovens during the entire night, Christmas morning found them tired and sleepy but happy, the turkey was ready.

With everything finished and ready there is only one more act to the drama, that is dinner. Did you ever notice how attentive the cooks are during the serving of dinner? Sure there are table waiters who take the platters out as fast as they are emptied, but the cooks who prepared the menu say little but miss nothing. Every little murmur of praise of some delicacy that they prepared ,is a jewel in their crown, it is all they ask for their time and work. When a guest arises from this feast with a contented expression and puts their feeling into words, cooks and mess sergeants say little, but little do these same guests know that those remarks are the subject of much talk and "strutting" by the entire staff for weeks to come. And yet they are very sensitive on the subject, a lady was heard to remark that, "The dinner is just splendid and I enjoyed everything but the pie crust." The maker of that pie crust when told of the incident, acted pretty much like a little boy who has just lost his best friend.

Battery "A"

All is well along the Chattahoochee this Christmas for after a conversation with Santa Claus we know the blonde received what she asked for.

Sergeant Regan has filed a request with the Howard Bus Company that they re-route their busses by Torch Hill. We sympathize with you Sarge—shoes at present are expensive.

If you har a heavy cannonading on Wednesday and Saturday evenings do not think that another war has started, for it is only the "four shotgunners" of this battery, 1st Sergeant Combs, Sergeants Owens and Peters and Corporal McRae out wasting ammunition on the wild bunnies. Their total score for the season shows 400 rounds of ammunition and 12 rabbits.

Private Ridley, who hails from the show me state was discharged per ETS on December 20th, but immediately signed on for three more years. We welcome you back Rabbi, and know that when they begin to whack the old apple off the diamond you will again star as the best catcher in the Post.

Fifteen men of the battery are now taking the Expert Gunners Examination, and from the lingo they talk during lucid moments one would think they were navigating the seven seas, exploring Mars and Jupiter and squaring a circle.

Private First Class Lambert upon being informed that he had been made a Pfc., replied that he didn't want to transfer anymore. Pert, remember ask and you shall receive—something.

Like the town crier of old the battery has a crier in Private Thurston, who it is said will always take time out to look after your business.

Will someone please inform us the market price of a Georgia mule, 10 years old, blind, but in good condition? The parties wanting this information desire that their names be kept secret, so any information will be appreciated by this reporter.

Privates Patrick and Owens are trying to organize a battery glee club, but from the way the gang was singing last Sunday night all they liked having a "barber shop chord club" was the old familiar lamp post.

During one of the Battalion basket ball games Private First Class Killingsworth was heard to ask the umpire when the third quarter was called, if they played four or six quarters. Be careful my boy or some people might think you have been out making "whoopee".

Famous Calls: Horse exercise with circingles and blankets.

Battery "B"

We thank our Battery Commander and family for his wishes to us for a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year; we wish you the same, Lieutenant.

Last Saturday was a hard day for the NCO's. As a Xmas present the Battery Commander inspected quarters himself and after the smoke of the battle was cleared and all the losses counted it was found that there were more "supervisions of extra duty details" than days to pull them.

Many boys around the Battery do not believe in Santa Claus; just get some dope on this from Corporal Nahring.

Starting with a loss at the hands of Headquarters Battery our basket ball team after seeing the Terrible Swedes beat the Infantry came back in real form by beating C Battery.

Boys in our battery are anxious to work. The other mornnig we had a "Dempsey-Firpo" between Piazzi and Sterbuck (we stopped counting the knockdowns) on account that both wanted to pull the broom through the Battery Street.

We all hope that Sgt. Bruno and Cpl. Tucker are enjoying their furloughs over the Xmas holidays (in the Battery Street).

The mess sergeant and cooks have been working every night; we are sure to have a real Xmas dinner. We should not get homesick around this Battery. The holiday dinners we get make us believe we are home. Our mess staff surely deserves credit.

The other day a lady asked permission to talk over the 'phone with John C. Howard; after she was informed he was not around, she called the roll. She wanted to know who was at the phone and was told it was just "Big Jack"; too bad the battery was not here.

Sergeant Gardner has so much trouble with his "section" in the Battery Street, that he considers to move 4 B. C. horses to tent No. 21 and to move the stable-policemen to the stables. The only objection against this arrangement came from the mule teams of Pvt. Waldrop, they feared competition.

Through a miscalculation of the man at the switchboard Pvt. Dixon had no time to go to the 24th Infantry Canteen and the Sergeant there was seen throwing away about 25 cans of sardines.

After the men had gone to bed our bugler, Thomas, was supposed to blow "taps". All of a sudden the men were crowding the steps of the mess hall. He had blown the wrong key and the men were awakened by chewcall. When Pvt. Thomas blows the bugle our Battery Commander inquires what time it is so he can tell what Pvt. Thomas is supposed to be blowing. Don't get discouraged Thomas it takes a lifetime to learn how to blow the bugle.

Pfc. Seifert after having qualified as decorateur by showing his stuff in the F. A. Officers Club has surely done a fine job in our mess hall. If we need decorations we always call on Pfc. Seifert and he is ready even to work in the evening. We appreciate it James.

Corporal Darby might not lose his nerve when firing the 1st Section gun, but he surely did when his tent was afire the other night. There is a fire-extinguisher hanging outside his tent, but he ran to the end of the street to get one.

For the third time in succession Sgt. Trigg was Charge of Quarters on Sunday. We all looked forward to an attack of "pistollitus", it did not come. That is the boy, Sergeant.

YEAR END NOTES FROM THE ENGINEERS

Cooperation with the Special Unit athletic teams was, at all times, of the highest caliber. In track the company furnished such high class competitors as Kingsbury, Gaffney, McCarty, Lockwood, Thompson and Roberts. Kingsbury and Gaffney collected thirteen points between themselves in the garrison meet. Football found Reeves, Wherritt, Mallory, Reynolds, Thompson, Perkins, Rowe and Grove out helping.

Outstanding Individual Efforts:

1st Sergeant Henry L. Gensch and Corp. John L. Huff were commended for participation in the rescue of a group of men on April 12th when a ponton boat, carrying sand to the Alabama side of the Chattahoochee River, turned over. Huff held Pvt. Mulkey (since discharged), at great risk to his own life, and hereby saved the life of an able "pontonier". Sgt. Gensch directed the rescues in an orderly and capable manner.

Corp. "Long Si" Perkins showed about the best brand of twirling seen on Gowdy Field this year, when he let Service Co. down with two hits and no scores in thirteen innings.

Corp. Louis Kingsbury's smashing triple to right-center in the thirteenth inning climaxed the most thrilling game of the season.

Pvts. Grove and Briner (the inimitable "Abie" and "Ikie"), with their irrepressible fight, ofttimes in positions new to them, were largely responsible for the success of the ball tossers.

Sgt. Cyrus R. Willard, in his capacity as managr during the first half, and as coach, pitcher and member of the board of strategy in the second half, deserves more than passing comment. The "Little Napoleon" of Engineer baseball pulled the team through the first half without a blemish on their record. To "Cy" should go the credit for the rapid development of Callahan (as a pitcher) and Zlotnik (another Heinie Manush).

It would not be proper to mention heroes without including that unsung hero, "Red" Thompson. "Red" has been the hardest working man on every athletic squad this year. His undampened spirits and dry humor eased many a tense situation. We doff our caps to "Red", the tryingest man in the Engineers.

The soccer team won their first league game 2 to 0. "B" Co. Tanks were the victims of an inspired goal keeper who could not be denied. No scores were made until the last quarter.

SEMPER PARATUS

MONTHLY DANCE

On the evening of December 22nd the regiment held its regular monthly dance, party, and general get-together meeting at the Polo Club. Many dinner parties had been given and quite a few guests were present.

Anyone not familiar with the social side of the regimental activities, looking in upon one of our dances would think of a big family reunion. We like each other in the 24th, and consequently there is not much formality.

This particular night was clear and cold. Inside, the Club was beautifully decorated, softly lighted and cosily warm. Music rendered by the 24th orchestra. Plenty of chairs were placed around the room, and while we dance most of the time, there would come times when no one seemed to care to start. Then all would sit and chat softly with our companions while the lights were turned low, and the incomparable 24th Infantry Orchestra played dreamily through the bars of enchanting music.

Yes, our dances are sociable and homey affairs.

Captain William B. Wilson, our regimental supply officer, receives many strange requests and remarkable complaints, but the one he received a few days past from Sergeant Reeves, of the Service Company, is our prize one up to date.

Captain Wilson had occasion to talk to several of the sergeants at one time and asked them if there was any improvements around the barracks that would add to the comfort of the men during the cold weather of the coming winter. After several suggestions were given Sergeant Reeves said: "Captain, I would like to ask the Captain to have our bathhouse roof repaired. Every time I go down there to take a bath I get wet."

Sgt. Dailey has found the best way to decide an argument over the merits of various basketball referees. He just rattles an iron stove shaker, and the "Sarge" has yet to lose one.

DeLozier and the inquisitive scribe spent the night before Christmas in front of the recreation room fireplace. Your correspondent fell asleep but, "Diz" assures him that "Santa" didn't get in that way. Incidentally we didn't have any trouble getting our bunks out of the rafters in the morning.

Some exciting contests are expected to occur on the new pool table (yes, brand new, for Xmas) when old time rivals clash again in this good old game of straight pool." Well authenticated reports say that another tournament is in prospect.

All messes of the regiment put on special decorations and served Christmas dinners on the 25th. Most of the officers and their families were present, as were the families and many friends of the enlisted personnel. Mess Sergeants were in their glory; plenty of food and many K. P.s and judging from what we saw, excellent use was made of both.

Old Lady: Little boy, I'll give you a penny if you'll go on an errand for me.

Son of College Professor: I'm sorry madam, but do you realize that every hour lost from study costs me fourteen dollars and thirty-seven cents.

Prisoner: But, Your Honor, the man committed suicide.

Judge: Didn't you fire the gun?

Prisoner: Yes, but I told him I would shoot, and he didn't duck.

"So you rowed on the crew of the University of Pittsburgh?"

"Yeah, and we were so good we used iron ores."

BENNING MALLETMEN WILL CLASH AT FRENCH FIELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

After a long rest during the holidays, the Infantry School polo teams will begin the New Year with two fast games of polo at French Field on Sunday afternoon.

The teams of the 29th Infantry and 83rd Field Artillery will meet in the first contest which will begin at two o'clock. The Students and Freebooters will mix and mingle in the night-cap.

At the present time the line-ups of the teams are unknown but all teams will be cut down to the regular first string that will represent the teams in the coming polo tournament that will be held in the near future.

SALE OF PAPERS

The special Xmas edition of the NEWS was a popular number if the record of sales at the Post Exchange store be taken as a criterion. One hundred and fifty copies were sold over the counter there as compared to 80 copies of the special Xmas number of 1927.

The weekly sale of papers at the Post Exchange averages from thirty to fifty copies.

Revival Week Feature at Fort Benning Theatres

Moving Picture Shows Will Present Fine Productions During The Coming Week

The ambitious motion picture fans of Fort Benning will recall that during the month of November they were afforded the privilege of voting for seven of the best pictures of the year. Th rsults of this poll demonstrates the fact that our picture-going people know what's what in the movie line, for the pictures they selected are the cream of those on the market. Following is the list:

January 6th—"Street Angel."

January 7th—"Better 'Ole."

January 8th—"Bardley's, the Magnificent."

January 9th—"Phantom of the Opera."

January 10th—"Michael Strogoff."

January 11th—"Chang."

January 12th—"The General."

It will be noted that the week starts off with "Street Angel"; this, of course, is not a revival picture, but because of its great popularity in our big cities it was chosen as the headliner for the week's program.

Every one of the above pictures is a power in itself. The theatre management considers it mighty lucky to have had the good fortune of being able to have secured this line-up.

Each of these pictures have been run in big cities at $2.00 admission prices. They were shown to the Benningites at 25 cents, and will now be screened at only 15 cents.

Our revival week in 1928 brought the biggest attendance Fort Benning has ever known. It is contemplated that this year's will bring packed houses every night which will surpass all previous records.

Special music is, at the present time, in process of being prepared for each evening's program. The musical entertainment alone will be worth much more than the price of admission.

Those people who have already seen these pictures will, in nine cases out of ten, want to see them again, and those who have not seen these superb films cannot afford to miss one of them.

"THE GENERAL," A PICTURE OF INTEREST TO THOSE IN GEORGIA

Interesting Account Given By Captain R. F. Hall.

For his Revival Week, Captain Doll has secured one picture which should be of great interest to those who take an interest in the history of the state in which they are living.

This picture is "THE GENERAL," and was filmed in north Georgia, the moving picture company using the same locomotives, roads and other equipment that was used when the event actually occurred; 66 years and 9 months ago Here's the situation:

At daylight on the morning of April 12, 1862, a mixed train bound from Atlanta to Chattanooga, stopped at Big Shanty, Ga., for breakfast. Ten minutes later, its conductor, Captain Fuller, looking out of the eating-house window, saw the train of three box-cars, pulled by the General with wide open throttle, tear out up the track to the north. He immediately gave chase—but we must not get into the action of the picture too far.

The train had been captured by the enemy; early in 1862 the Federal commander, General Mitchell, had planned an advance on Chattanooga. From that place to Atlanta, Ga., along the W. & A. Ry., strong forces of Confederates were posted, and in the event he did attack that city these would be immediately sent up the railroad to its assistance. J. J. Andrews, a Union spy, planned and secured permission, from General Mitchell to take a score of his bravest soldiers, disguise themselves, proceed to Big Shanty, steal a train, move northward to Chattanooga, burning bridges, cutting wires and thus destroying all chance for transportation over this main artery of supply for several weeks. This would make the capture of Chattanooga an easy matter.

For this, Andrews was promised $60,000 if he succeeded, and how near he came to it is shown in the picture. And had he succeeded he would have crippled the South as effectively as Sherman did a few years later, and the chances are that the war would have also ended sooner. He failed, because opposed to him, in the person of Captain Fuller, he encountered a man who was more than his equal in great emergencies. All were captured; Andrews, who was known to be a spy, and seven of his men were hanged. Six escaped later, and the rest were exchanged.

At stated above, the same engines, quipment and road were used in the picture that were actually operated in this famous raid during the early days of the Civil War.

After the picture was made the Old General was taken back to Chattanooga, where she now reposes at ease in a small park set aside for the purpose. Buster Keaton plays the part of the engineer on the General at the time of the raid, and the picture was made as nearly historically accurate as it was possible to make it. The comedy part as played by Buster Keaton of course was made up for the purpose of interesting those who do not know the great historical event that it depicts. R. F. H.

COON HUNT

The Infantry School Hunt will conduct a Coon Hunt on Friday evening, January 4, 1929.

Place of assembly—Officers' Club.

Time—7:00 P. M.

The field will motor from the club to the hunting grounds.

AMERICAN LEGION COMMANDER VISITS FORT BENNING

Colonel Paul V. McNutt Reviews Fort Benning Troops Yesterday.

Fort Benning was host to Col. Paul V McNutt, newly elected commander of the American Legion yesterday. Colonel McNutt arrived in the city of Columbus about noon and was met by officials of the Chas. S. Harrison post, and shortly after a conference at the Ralston Hotel he was taken to Fort Benning, where he was formally welcomed by the Commandant of the Infantry School, General E. T. Collins and staff. At 12:30 a luncheon was held in his honor at the Biglerville Mess. The luncheon was attended by the American Legion officials and General Collins and members of his staff. Immediately after the luncheon, Colonel McNutt was escorted on an inspection tour of the garrison, after which he was taken to the 29th Infantry parade grounds where all troops of the garrison passed in review in honor of the distinguished visitor. Col. P. C. Gallegher, commanding the 24th Infantry, was in command of the troops in the review. His staff consisted of Major C. E. Coates and Capt. C. L. Steel.

A meeting of local Legionnaires was held at the Legion hall last evening at which time Colonel McNutt addressed the Chas. S. Harrison post on the contemplated Legion program for the coming year.

RECORD CROWD ATTENDS ENLISTED MEN'S COSTUME DANCE

Merry-makers composed of the younger set of Fort Benning and Columbus, pronounced the Costume Dance, held at the Service Club last Monday night, a brilliant success in every way.

The largest crowd of the season was present to take part in the first dance of the New Year. Automobiles and busses brought bevies of pretty girls from Columbus while machine gun busses and autos attended to the transportation of the merry-makers within the Garrison.

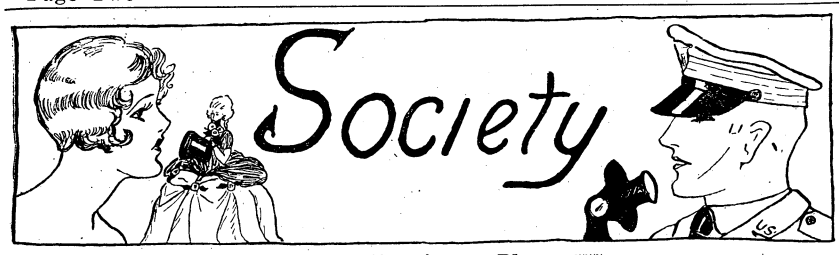
The large dance hall of the Service Club was dressed in its holiday finery of orange and lavender. The 24th Infantry Orchestra furnished dance music for the occasion and to say that the music pleased would be putting it mildly.

Costumes of every design were worn by the merry-makers, the spacious dance floor furnished ample room for the dancers while the snappy music rendered completed the final touch toward making the evening perfect for the occasion.

BILLY SMITH STOPS AL FORTENBERRY IN FIRST ROUND

Billy Smith, Fort Benning light-heavy weight fighter, added another scalp to his belt when he knocked out Al Fortenberry of New Orleans, in the first round of a scheduled ten round fight at Shreveport, La., on the night of Dec. 27th.

Sport writers of the Shreveport and New Orleans papers, spoke highly of the soldier fighter. Fortenberry has been creating quite a sensation in the light-heavy class during the past few months, and a knockout over him gives Smith a big boost.



Mrs. W. H. Vinson—Phone 577

Capt. and Mrs. Charles L. Steel celebrated their twelfth wedding anniversary on Friday evening with a gorgeous dinner party. Their charming home was decorated in red and white and this color note was carried out in the menu as well. The guests were seated at one long table in old Virginia fashion. The first course was strawberries circling mounds of powdered sugar and when the plates were removed a huge twenty-pound turkey was placed in front of Capt. Steel at one end of the table and a baked ham of similar proportions was placed before Capt. Steward, who was at the other end. While Capt. Steel and Capt. Steward displayed their skill at carving, everything that goes with an old-fashioned Southern dinner was brought on and what a feast it was! May the Steel's have many more such anniversaries! Those helping them to celebrate this happy occasion were Capt. and Mrs. Gwynn, their mother, Mrs. Tierney, Capt. and Mrs. Steward, their mother and sister, Mrs. Steward and Miss Helen Steward, Capt. and Mrs. Paynter, Lt. and Mrs. Overfelt.

The outstanding event of the holiday festivities was the Fancy Dress Ball given by the Officers Club at Biglerville on New Year's Eve. Capt. E. T. Jones worked wonders with Biglerville for this occasion. New Mulberry and gold draperies added much to the beauty of the place and the ladies were charmed by their beautiful new green and gold dressing room. The mess was transformed by its artistic decorator to represent a spacious out-fo-doors scene. A canopy of blue overhead radiated from a giant cluster of vari-colored balloons suspended from the center like a huge bunch of grapes. Each column was converted into a lamp post with a lighted lantern. The wall-screens represented luxuriant foliage against which great snowy storks stood; the end-screens were ivy covered with graceful urns and steps leading on to charming spaces. Near the orchestra was a hug edrum on which was painted a picture of Hernandez, talent dancer of the Tanks. At the appointed time, dance music ceased. With Capt. John K. Rice at the piano and Mrs. John F. Holland on the violin a new music began and Hernandez burst through the drug to thrill the guests with a group of exhibition dances. He was assisted by Miss Anna Dozier in his exhibition of the Argentine Tango and they responded generously to the clamorous applause.

At the stroke of the magic hour of midnight when Father Time goes out as an old man and comes in as a blithe baby, the balloons were loosed and they fluttered here and there over the heads of th merry dancers. The costumes were most interesting, many being exceptionally pretty. Conspicuous among the best were Lt. and Mrs. Melvin R. Finney, who portrayed very convincingly George and Martha Washington. Lt. Finney wore a white wig with his handsome suit of purple satin with gold braid and real lace silk hose, and Colonial shoes. Mrs. Finney wore a white wig with curls and a gorgeous lace dress made in true Colonial style. Capt. and Mrs. William E. Sankey deserve special mention. Capt. Sankey represented a cadaverous skeleton and Mrs. Sankey was a beautiful Senorita, her costume being not only truly Spanish in every detail but especially becoming to her individual beauty. Mrs. Alan Jones was "My Lady of the Snows." Her costume was made of white tulle, a close-fitting bodice with full long skirt. She wore a ruff of cotton around her neck, carried a cunning muff of cotton trimmed in Christmas tinsel matching her Russian headdress of cotton and silver tinsel, and her hem was marked by a roll of cotton covered with crystalline. She was lovely enough to be a Snow Queen and every one loved to dance with her even if her cotton just would cling to their handsome broadcloth!

There were many fascinating Pierettes none prettier than Mrs. R. R. Long, and many daring Pirates—none more daring than Mrs. Louis B. Knight.

Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman was lovely as a Gentlewoman of the Old South, her costume being authentic in every detail.

There was a darling Peter Pan fresh from "The Never-Never-Land," and ladies and gentlemen from every country. All in all a colorful and charming assemblage.

After midnight breakfast was served.

* * *

Capt. and Mrs. Cecil L. Rutledge had as their guest during the holidays Miss Rae Willson of Washington, D. C. On Saturday evening they gave a dinner party in her honor. Red tapers burned around a potted plant bearing red berries, for a centerpiece on the long table at which the guests were seated. Covers wer laid for Miss Willson, Lt. and Mrs. Hayns, Mr. and Mrs. Bass Lewis, Mrs. Mamie Ogletree, Lt. Gilbreth, Lt. Breckenridge. After the dinner the party motored to Columbus to the "talkies."

* * *

On New Year's Eve Capt. and Mrs. Rutledge were hosts to thirty-eight friends at a delightful dinner at their home. Tall red tapers tied with filmly tulle burned on low tables throughout the house, while holly and mistltoe, poinsettias and potted plants carried out beautifully the holiday decorations. A lovely red rose was given each girl as a favor. Happy New Year greetings were charmingly represented in the way the dessert was servd. Ice cream was served in wax cups, covered with red and green crepe paper, in the center of which a tiny red candle burned. Those present were: Capt. and Mrs. Lovett, Capt. and Mrs. Althaus, Lt. and Mrs. Barr, Lt. and Mrs. Earle, Lt. and Mrs. Finney, Lt. and Mrs. Mood, Lt. and Mrs. Kammerer, Lt. and Mrs. McCommon, Miss Daisy Reed, Miss Landon Reed, Miss Helen Young, Miss Dade Warfield, Miss Harriett Walls, Miss Alice Torrey, Miss Leona Ferrandou, Miss Evelyn Trost, Lt. Paul Adams, Lt. Strickler, Lt. Hedekin, Lt. Totten, Lt. Griffeth, Lt. Gilbreth, Lt. Grubbs, Mr. Mercer Helms, Mr. Warden Wells. After dinner the guests went to the fancy dress ball at Biglerville.

Capt. and Mrs. Ernest S. Barker entertained at a lovely dinner party on New Year's Eve at their home. The entire house was gay with wreaths of holly, bunches of mistletoe and garlands of evergreens. Long red tapers shed their festive light from many charming places. Most interesting of all though was the fire place with its cheery glow, greeting each as he entered from the cold. Even an ordinary fireplace is always charming, but a fireplace in Block 23 is a miracle. So perfect was the illusion in this case that guests "chunked" the fire and threw cigarettes into it expecting to see them burn! The guests were seated at small tables. A New Year Kewpie with a saucy tulle sash around its "tummy" stood in the center of each table beside a long red taper embedded in holly. Those present were: Major and Mrs. Long, Capt. and Mrs. MacKee, Capt. and Mrs. Case, Capt. and Mrs. Ambrose, Capt. and Mrs. Jones, Capt. and Mrs. Paynter, Capt. and Mrs. Mulkey, Lt. and Mrs. Jacobs, Lt. and Mrs. Yarborough. The party went after dinner to the Fancy Dress Ball.

Capt. and Mrs. Louis J. Lampke entertained about twenty-five young people at a delightful buffet supper at their quarters on New Year's Eve in honor of their daughter, Miss Margaret Lampke. Christmas colors were carried out in every detail of decoration and each girl was given as a favor, a lollypop cunningly dressed in red and green. Those enjoying this hospitality were: Misses Catherine Kingman, Frances Baker, Dade Warfield, Becky Hill, her guest, Miss Foster, Bess Berry, Kate Hyatt, Verna Perry, Maxine Hall, Sue Brandt, Messrs. Willard, Berry, Hocker, Foster, Carter, Perdue, Rall, Lt. and Mrs. Fowlkes, Lt. and Mrs. Hurt, Lt. and Mrs. Daley.

Lt. and Mrs. David L. Hardee honored their mother, Mrs. T. R. Hardee of Stem, N. C., with a charming dinner party on New Year's Eve. The chief feature in the decoration of the living room was a large basket filled with huge living poinsettias brought from Florida by Lt. and Mrs. Hardee, who spent Xmas in "The Land of Flowers." The guests were seated at small tables, the centerpiece of each being a silver candlestick, holding a slim red taper. Their guests were: Col. and Mrs. Kingman, Major and Mrs. Young, Capt. and Mrs. Boyd, Capt. and Mrs. Beebe, Lt. and Mrs. Brandhorst, Miss Lucy Hardee, Mrs. Hardee.

Capt. and Mrs. James E. Wharton entertained the officers and ladies of the Third Section at a beautiful formal tea at their home in Columbus on Thursday afternoon. The home was lovely with its festive Christmas decorations. Red and green tapers were effectively used throughout the reception rooms. The tea-table was lovely with its handsome cloth, its centerpiece of red flowers and berries and its candles tied with bows of red tulle. Red and green mints added another lovely detail to the table. Mrs. Albert S. Peake presided over the coffee service while Mrs. Alan Jones poured tea. Mrs. John K. Rice and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins assisted in serving.

AT THE MOVIES

JAN. 4th TO JAN. 11th, INCL.

FRIDAY, JAN. 4

"THE NIGHT WATCH," starring Billy Dove in a strong melodrama. Most of the action takes place in the state room, gun turrets and on the decks of a modern French cruiser. It is somewhat of a mystery story—a murder has been committed and the captain is accused. How it really happened is absorbingly disclosed in the dramatic denouement.

"Outnumbered." Fables.

"Pathe News."

SATURDAY, JAN. 5

"AVALANCHE," from the story by Zane Grey, starring Jack Holt. It is a thrilling story combining the wild life of frontier days when Indians massacred the pioneers, with the later day settlements in the wilderness where the gambler and the cut-throats took refuge away from the gripping hand of law and order. A pretty romance softens the plot.

"Collegians, No. 5."

REVIVAL WEEK

SUNDAY, JAN. 6

"STREET ANGEL," starring Janet Gaynor with Charles Farrell. This story

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Street Angel," Fox Picture is an adaptation of the stage success, Lady Cristilinda. The story is laid against the colorful docks and environs of Naples, Italy. Miss Gaynor plays the role of a pretty waif of the Napoleon water front. Mr. Farrell is seen as a vagabond painter who falls in love with her; the story is filled with thrills, heart appeal and entrancing love scenes. This picture ran for eleven consecutive weeks on Broadway, New York, with a packed house every night. It is considered one of the best productions of the year, that is why it was selected to head our rvival week.

"Metro Goldwyn Mayer News."

MONDAY, JAN. 7

"THE BETTER 'OLE," starring Syd Chaplin in one constant siege of side-splitting action. When this picture was shown here last year it caused the audience more stomach-aching laughter than any play of the year. Surely, it's a war picture, but one of those in which most of the scenes are laid in a quaint French Inn behind the lines. You'll double up over this picture."

"Terrible People, No. 9."

TUESDAY, JAN. 8

"BARDLEY'S, THE MAGNIFICENT," starring John Gilbert in a classical film of European royalty, taken from the Rafael Sabatini novel considered a masterpiece. The story is a drama of France during the hectic seventeenth century. Five thousand people, three hundred horses and medieval castles constitute an enormous background for this famous picture. It favorably rivals "The Big Parade," in magnificence, humor and thrills.

"A Perfect Day." Cameo.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9

"PHANTOM OF THE OPERA," starring Lon Chaney with Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry. This story is laid mostly in the great opera building of Paris. It is weird and fantastic in the extreme. The plot is one continuous gripping mystery—powerful are the scenes. Chaney plays the part of the evil genius in these grotesque surroundings. He, with his underlings haunt the musty Subterranean passages which underly the vast French metropolis.

"Metro Goldwyn Mayer News."

THURSDAY, JAN. 10

"MICHAEL STROGOFF," from the remarkable story by Jules Vern, featuring Ivan Moskins and Nathalic de Kovanko in a most melodramatic thriller, which, for forty years has been a predominating stage success all over the world. Captain Michael Strogoff, Secret Courier, is ordered by the Czar of Russia to deliver a message to his brother, the Grand Duke, at Irkutsk, five thousand miles across Siberia. Strogoff has to fight his way through country infested with Tartar rebels. On his way he takes it upon himself to guard a young girl, Nadia, who is seeking to join her father; Strogoff at great hazard to himself makes it appear that the girl is his sister—his trip across the Steppes is fraught with unending danger and daring adventure, culminating in a race against the chief of the rebels to be first to reach the besieged garrison at Irkutsk, and deliver the message which will expose the Tartar plot. Captain Strogoff finally succeeds and also wins the girl after a very dramatic fight at the end of his journey. This play is tensely gripping throughout.

"The Ol' Gray Hoss." Our Gang.

FRIDAY, JAN. 11

"CHANG," a thrilling, moving story of the greatest struggle in all life, the struggle for self-preservation. The picture is authentic. It was actually photographed in the jungles of mysterious, primitive Siam. Though it portrays in gripping realism, the activities, trials and hardships of the vicious beasts which infest the unexplored jungles, it carries a continuity of plot formented by the brain of man and depicts his supremacy over beast. It is considered the best animal picture ever photographed and is one which is enjoyed equally by young and old."

"Our Little Nell." Fables.

"Pathe News."

BENNING RECREATIONAL ACTIVITIES SHOW INCREASED POPULARITY DURING PAST YEAR

Interesting facts are revealed as the result of a resume of 1928 recreational activities compared with those of previous year.

Theatre attendance:

1927	316,070
1928	328,156
Increase over last year	12,086

The above gives the total paid admissions at the Main Theatre, 29th Infantry and 24th Infantry theatres.

This increase has been due to several factors viz: the people of Fort Benning have come to realize that their movie houses show only the best pictures on the market and these pictures are screened on evenings best suited to the desirs of various elements of the command. They have also learned that the projection, music and house management compares favorably or even surpasses anything some large cities offer. The recreational department continually keeps before the eyes of Benningites, complete information concerning coming attractions and lastly Unit Commanders have cooperated wonderfully in furthering the efforts of the recreational department by giving publicity to the movies and promoting the sale of Army Motion Picture coupon books.

A number of improvements have been added during the past year as follows: at Main Theatre, a new heating plant, the stage completed, ventilating system improved, a new silver screen and two new simplex projecting machines were installed. At the 29th Infantry theatre, a new silver screen has been installed; and the 24th Infantry theatre has been painted. In all three theatres the electrical equipment has been improved.

The Service Club and Library show a marked increase in popularity.

Service Club attendance:

1927 average daily	75
1928 average daily	200
Increase daily over 1927	125

Library:

1927 average no. books drawn daily	250
1928 average no. books drawn daily	400
Increase daily over 1927	150
1927 No. subscribers of books	397
1928 No. subscribers of books	810
Increase over 1927	413

The above has been due to the efforts of the recreational department in offering evry ceonvenience possible for the benefit of enlisted personnel. Pool tables have been completely recovered twice anw new balls and cues added. In addition an orthophonic Victrola, and up-to-date radio have been installed.

The library increase has been occasioned through the monthly addition of latest and most desirable books. A complete line of current periodicals and newspapers have also been made available to enlisted personnel.

"These activities are maintained solely for the amusement and entertainment of the command. The recreational department not only intends to keep up its work, but also add new attractions.

Members of the command are respectfully invited to offer constructive criticism on the motion picture shows, Service Club and Library. In this way they can help the administrative offices concerned in bettering their department.

On this occasion the Assistant Recreation Officer desires to express his appreciation for the wonderful cooperation of all personnel connected with the recreational department for their initiative and conscientious efforts during the past year.

THE RED CROSS DRIVE

Can I afford to JOIN THE RED CROSS—can I afford a dollar or more to help carry on its work for HUMANITY? Such questions are often asked during the membership campaign and can best be answered according to one's own feeling.

So far as the dollar is concerned, everyone who has regular pay and the comforts of life can afford once a year to put a dollar where it can serve his fellow men in time of distress.

According to the recruiter, the soldier's pay is equal to that of his brother of equal education in civil life where all such things as room, board and clothes must be paid for even when jobs are scarc eor a man is unable to work on account of accidentor sickness—and is in addition called upon to pay taxes to support schools, reads, and other governmental activities and to pay his church, charitable and lodge contributions.

The thing to remember about the Red Cross membership is that it aids to relieve distress and suffering in accordance with a charter from the United States Congress which long ago recognized the fact that a national organization was needed all over this great country, to relieve suffering and distress in times of Peace and War and that now is the time to JOIN as a member.

No campaign is being made for contributions which are called for when enormous calamities occur such as the Mississippi and New England Floods, and it may be noted that no campaign was made here for contributions at that time—a few officers voluntarily donated toward the several thousand dollar fund which the local chapter raised in Columbus.

With a membership card in your pocket you can stand along with those who have been carrying on during past generations before you were given opportunity to join.

A big point about the American Red Cross is that it welcomes and needs the support of all regardless of creed, color, sex, age, wealth or religious and political feelings—and that its work is done impartially without drawing lines on such questions as are usually considered by lodges, churches, unions and associations organized by different interests.

Mrs. T. R. Hardee of North Carolina will spend several weeks with her son and daughter, Lt. and Mrs. D. L. Hardee, and Miss Lucy Hardee.

Col. and Mrs. Harris Pendleton had planned a delightful departure from the customary New Year's reception for the officers and ladies of the 29th, inviting them to a reception and dance at the Polo Club at 9 o'clock on New Year's evening. They were called away, but Col. and Mrs. L. W. Reed received in their place and the regiment had a very pleasant evening together. The club was attractively decorated for this occasion. The mantel was arranged in tiers each being covered with a red runner. On these, trophies won by the various organizations in the 29th Infantry, were very interestingly displayed. Three red leather settees added to the appearance and the comfort of the room.

HOW TO AVOID THE FLU

The prevention of influenza depends mainly on the individual and his observance of some of the practical laws of hygiene. The following habits might be cultivated to advantage, remembering that influenza is probably spread through secretions from the nose and throat of influenza patients finding their way to the nose and throats of healthy individuals:

1. Avoid needless crowding; walking to and from work, if practicable, is good exercise and keeps one from overcrowded street cars, busses and similar conveyances.
2. Take advantage of as much open air and sunshine as you can.
3. Sleep with the windows open and be sure your homes are well ventilated.
4. Avoid people who are coughing, sneezing or snuffing, and do not cough or sneeze yourself without using a handkerchief.
5. Wash your hands immediately before eating and do not put your fingers in your mouth or nose. By shaking hands or handling objects touched by others you may infect yourself by carrying your hands to your mouth or nose.
6. Do not use a napkin, towel, spoon, fork, knife, glass, dish, or cup which has been used by another person unless such articles have been either washed or sterilized. Avoid the common drinking cup.
7. Keep up your general health—first, by using inside and outside plenty of clean water; second, by eating clean, wholesome food; third, by sleeping at least 7 hours out of each 24; and fourth, by keeping the bowels regulated.
8. Keep away from houses where there are cases of influenza.
9. Avoid chilling.
10. Avoid overheated rooms.
11. In case the disease developes, go to bed immediately, and remain there until recovery. A physician should be notified at once. The Medical Inspector of the post corresponds to the Health Office of the city. He will gladly give advice at anytime. Telephone Branch, 27.

THREE OFFICERS AT FORT BENNING GET HANDSOME XMAS PRESENTS

Three officers at the Infantry School were the recipients of Xmas presents during the holiday season. These presents were of outstanding quality and might be said to be in a class by themselves.

Lieut. Joe Kovarick, the recreation officer of the 29th Infantry, was all smiles and bubbling over with enthusiasm when seen strutting about the post-office the day after Christmas, and wasn't a bit backward in announcing that Santa had brought to his house, a little son, David Frank, on the morning of December 26. The present arrived at the station hospital early on the morning the day after Christmas.

Just a short time before the arrival of Lieut. Kovarick's present, Lieut. James T. Dawson, 83rd Field Artillery, received one when Santa visited the station hospital and left little Doris Louise.

A new student officer was enrolled at the Infantry School just before the holidays. William James Boyer, little son of Captain and Mrs. E. J. Boyer, the father being a student officer this year, arrived on December 22.

POST EXCHANGE SODA FOUNT RE-OPENED

The soda fountain of the Post Exchange, which is located in the Service Club has been re-opened after extensive repairs during the past week. A new floor was put in and other improvements which add very much to the appearance of the fountain.

The restaurant is still under repairs, and it is not known as to what date it will be opened again. It will be under the immediate supervision of the Post Exchange.

WILD CAT HUNT

The Infantry School Hunt will conduct a Wild Cat Hunt on Sunday, January 6, 1929. List of available horses will be posted on the Officers' Club bulletin board at 12:45 A. M., Thursday, January 3rd, 1929. Coffee and doughnuts will be served between 4:30 A. M. and 5:00 A. M., at the Infantry School Stables the morning of the hunt. The field will leave the stables promptly at 5:00 A. M.

Battery "B"

Another New Year has arrived and we hope it will be a happy and prosperous one for everyone.

Sgt. McLain, Cpl. Long and Pfc. Luce came back from their furloughs looking very fit and anxious to do their part in this Battery.

Short timers as Cpl. Long and Pfc. Fields, better known as Scopes, are figuring on their six bit bonus and three more.

Our radio is working very nicely and all enjoy it; we only wonder how Pfc. Kersey keeps his health listening day and night to the radio and keeping the day roof in such good order.

Pfc. Grimes changed places of business. He still cuts hair, but now his customers are the battery horses. He did not mind losing his Chevrolet truck neither, but he surely was "upset" when his new riding vehicle threw him the other day.

Some of the boys complain they do not see their name in the paper; boys, you better subscribe and find your name in print some day.

Sgt. Guthrie was seen holding on to his bankroll this pay day. He was informed that the "three musketeers" had in for another three day pass each, and he wanted to be sure to have the bail ready. Pvts. Hudnall, Leblanc and McDonald surely ought to be thankful to have such a chief of section, who so carefully looks out for their welfare.

When Sgt. Lein came back from his furlough before the actual time was up, everyone knew something extra was coming off; therefore the clothing check-up was not such a surprise, as it was intended to be.

Since Pfc. Fields has made up his mind to re-enlist he gave the First Sergeant a new whistle in order to make sure that he would not lose his job as guideon carrier when he will be on his three months furlough. Scopes, by the way the 1st Sergeant blows your whistle, you can be sure he appreciates it.

Charlie P. got his first class rating. We wonder what his next topic for conversation will be?

Pfc. Silgot took a truckload of seeds to the garden; that means plenty vegetables for the battery. We heard a rumor regarding flowers in the battery, it would mean some extra work, but most of the men would not mind that. Majority of us come from the country and like flowers.

Battery "C"

The Officer of the Day was approaching the day room. Private La Fluer, who is in charge of the day room became excited upon seeing him and yelled at the top of his voice "turn out the day room for the Officer of the Day." Frenchy, think faster—we would hate for you to be in charge of the stables.

Corporal Doggett, charge of quarters last Tuesday found sand and cockleburrs in Private Mill's bunk and was at a loss as to the reason why until he found out that Mills hails from Florida.

Private First Class Hamrick was discharged per ETS., December 29, 1928, and upon being asked by the Recruiting Officer if he longer for three more years replied "positively." Sleepy, we are "absolutely" pleased to know you are coming back.

That disease known as "tractoritis," which is fatal to horse-drawn outfits has struck this organization, but so far no fatalities. Nevertheless, unless the microbe is isolated very soon we fear the horses are not going to eat regularly.

Sergeant Peters after reading the book "Lew Tyler and the Ladies," has filed his application for a position with the Southern Powder People. Why not be like Buzzy and enter the Theatrical Business, Pete?

Corporal McRae and Sailers who were discharged per ETS., January 1, 1929, made one resolution we know they will keep when they signed on for three more years with the galloping Artillery. Welcome back men.

Sergeant (Snufty) McCann upon being asked if he was going to make any New Year's resolutions replied "no, that resolutions were just like non-commissioned officers who played with the 96th Article of War.

Private Owens, president of the glee club at the lamp post meeting held pay day night announced that gatherings will also be held on canteen check nights —as a medium of exchange has been found.

After ten days of hard and strenuous labor the four gunner Corporals have completed their wall locker. Corporals, leave carpentering alone and stick to the guns.

From the looks of the clothing settlement most of the men in this organization are goin gto soldier for clothes only the next two months. Clothes not only make the man but makes the soldier more thoughtful.

The gunners examination for this battery closed on December 27, 1928, and we are proud to announce the following results:

EXPERTS: 8. 100% more than the rest of the Battalion together.

1st CLASS: 51. 69.8% of the men that went up for the examination.

I. S. D. NOTES

DOTS AND DASHES FROM THE GREEN

Every little boy and girl of the Green Cord outfit that "Ye Scribe" made talk with after the Christmas tree that was held at the Detachment, Christmas Day, was too happy for words. Knowing that every member of the Detachment did his bit towards bringing about this happiness, I would like to tell you for the youngsters "that it was the most wonderful Christmas tree in the world."

Abie Levnon is spending a few weeks with the folks back at home down in Louisiana. Abie has been firing one of the dinkeys on the Limb Dodging Express since becoming a member of the Green Cords. Everyone wishes him lots of fun while he is home.

We notice Sergt. Logan Duff is back with the Detachment after being away on furlough for several weeks. Don't know where Logan went but he sure came back looking plenty fitting.

Tis funny how the old bunk will get ruffed up sometime, but most anything will happen during Christmas.

There is a rumor that the Green Cords are going to organize a soccer team. There are several men in the Detachment who have played the game and are anxious to go out for the team. We admit that we did not break any world's record at football, but that's that, let's play soccer.

Corp. Jeffie O., reports that nothing much happened on his trip home Christmas. He arrived at Cedartown, Ga., by way of the S. A. L. railroad, he took the Boll Weevil Limited for his home at Flapjack, where he spent the holidays.

Besides being a terror to opposing football players, Papa John can certainly keep the Detachment Recreation Room looking neat and comfy.

The members of the anti-rummy set of the N. C. O. Club, have given up all new fangled games and returned to their first love "Pennie Antee."

SOCCER GAINING POPULARITY WITH BENNING FANS

(By Al Durden)

The Fort Benning Soccer League, composed of teams representing Company's B, C, D and the Howitzer company of the 29th Infantry, Company's B and C of the Tanks, and Company A, of the 7th Engineers, opened at Fort Benning, December 24, 1928.

Though the latest sport to be taken up at the Infantry School, soccer has grown popular over-night. Large crowds attend the games at Gowdy Field.

At the present time the league leadership is undecided owing to the outcome of a protested game. If awarded to the Engineers it will give them the leadership with five wins and no losses.

The soldiers of the garrison have taken to soccer as a duck to water, men who never heard of the game before the league was organized here this season have taken up the game and are playing a good game. Few of the teams carry more than one or two men who have played before.

The main reason of the success of the game is the fact that soccer is a popular branch of the sports played at West Point Military Academy where our officers are trained, the result being that each team has been properly coached by men who know the game.

The opening games of soccer that were played at Gowdy Field were witnessed by a mere handful of fans, but the number of fans have increased until soccer now rivals football and baseball among the popular sports of the garrison.

GRANTHAM NO MATCH FOR SAVANNAH KNOCKOUT KING

Phillips and Hayslip Fight Fast Six Round Draw in Semi-Final

K. O. Billy Edwards, battered his way to a victory over Tanks Grantham of the 15th Tank Bn., at the Fort Benning Arena in the feature ten round bout of the fight card held on the night of December 27, 1928.

The sensational Savannah welterweight proved to be everything and a little bit more than Savannah sport writers claimed him to be. Edwards simply disregarded Grantham's hitting ability. From the opening gong, Edwards bored in, Grantham is a clever boxer and a veteran ring general but he simply could not keep Edwards away, and when Edwards worked in close to rip both hands to the body it hurt. Grantham gave a wonderful exhibition of gameness when he refused to quit though badly bruised and battered in the final rounds, the final bell found him bloody and groggy but still on his feet and fighting.

Jackie Phillips of the I. S. D. and Young Hayslip of Savannah, furnished the main attraction of the evening in the semi-final. Both boys stepped the six rounds at top speed and swapped leather freely. Phillips evened matters against Hayslip's body punches with a counter left to the face which he occasionally crossed with a smashing right hook. A draw verdict was a popular decision.

Another six rounder that was crowded with action galore was the Howard-Thomas scrap. Thomas took an easy decision over the LaGrange terror who has been cutting a wide swath among the ambitious lightweights of this section lately. Though a beginner at the game, Doubtin Thomas shows promise of showing the way among the lightweights of the garrison.

After a long lay-off, Babe Asher, classy little daughboy bantam, came back to hand Krafty Cline of Columbus, a nice drubbing in a fast four rounder.

Jinger Jernigan of Columbus, won over Pal Moore of Benning, on a technical kao in the third round. This is Jernigan's third straight victory over Fort Benning scrappers. Who is going to take him?

Grumpy (Moon) Gordy of the Q. M. C., fought rings aroun dHawkins of the 29th Infantry, to take an easy decision in the opening three rounder. Gordy dropped Hawkins for the count of seven in the first and third rounds. Lewie Joris of the Terrible Tankers will fight Gordy on the next card.

MUSKETEERS TAKE THRILLING CAGE DUEL FROM MACON BASKETEERS

Roosma Is Leader For Garrison Team; Score 46 to 40

In one of the fastest and closest contested games of basket ball witnessed on the Benning court this season, the Musketeers won a well earned victory over the Macon Odd Fellows Five, at the Garrison Gymnasium last Saturday night, 46 to 40.

During the opening half it looked as if the Musketeers were slated to lose. Flashing a fast passing game and Young's ability to sink baskets at long range, the visitors took the lead away from the Doughboys and finished the half with an eight point lead.

In the final period Capt. McCord's Musketeers came to life. Johnnie Roosma, who has been out of the game with an injured knee, was sent in. His layoff must have brought his shooting eye back, for he lost no time in demonstrating his ability to sink them from all angles. With Roosma showing old time in demonstratingETAOINSHRD time form the entire team took new life, Franz, Kammerer and Stamper, passed and dribbled rings around the visitors. Isham at center for the Musketeers used his reach to a great advantage, tipping the ball to Roosa or Stamper on every play. The big fellow also accounted for six of the Musketeer points in the final half. Kammerer played a fast game and a couple of his long shots rivaled the shooting of Roosma and Young.

Young at forward and Fuss at center, were the outstanding stars for the visitors. Young's accuracy in long range shooting was phenomenal while his passing and dribbling was fast and flashy. Fuss played a great offensive game, breaking through the Musketeer defense to sink baskets on several occasions. The entire visiting team played a fast game of basketball and their good sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct was highly commended by the large number of fans who witnessed the game.

The Red Cross trains thousands of boys and girls to render first aid to HELP HUMANITY.

A CHALLENGE

Away up under the eaves of the Arctic Circle, Uncle Sam sees fit, for reasons which we will state presently, to keep a regiment of infantry stationed. A few days ago we received an official communication from that regiment to about the following effect:

"To the 24th Infantry, Fort Benning, Ga. You are hereby challenged: challenged with pompous officialness and deadly intent, to arm seven of your best men with .22 calibre rifles, proceed to the range and bust yourself at ranges of fifty feet. Do this on or about the 15th of January, we will do the same. Then we shall swap targets and commence the argument." This from the 3rd Infantry, at Fort Snelling, Minn.

Fort Snelling! We saw a man who came from there once. He said they dug in about the time we begin to plant our fall gardens down here, and that they stayed in till the periscopes, which they have on the top of the barracks, show that the sun is shining—the following summer. Then, if the temperature was such that it melted the snow down to the housetops, they dug out again. He said also that people who lived there were greatly annoyed by the big owls which came out of the woods at night and monkeyed with the chickens; and by the wolves; big timber wolves, which could come up at dusk; eat the throngs out of the snow-shoes and bite the company houn. Sayeth he further, that there is good fishing all around the post and always will be—for you can't get through the ice to catch 'em. We are led to understand that the very habbits of the brier patches wear snowshoes. And that when the snow lies thirty feet around the flagstaff they begin to suspect that winter is at hand.

Yes, we will shoot our seven true and tried men against any seven that they may pick. And when we get through with them they will lay off this challenging business and be glad to go back to ski-hopping, snowshoes tumbling, huskie driving and harpooning walruses. They were only placed there anyway so that Uncle Sam would have at least a few soldiers who would be familiar with the methods of herding musk-ox and driving reindeer.

In the future number of this journal we shall be glad to announce with great eclat the all too evident results of this one-sided match with these snow-heavers and ice-cutters from the land of the polar bear.

STATION HOSPITAL NOTES

Private Winderweedle returned from furlough Thursday, December 27th, and according to him he was the big "Butter and Egg Man." Glad to see you back Windy.

Pvt. Lawson was admitted to the Hospital the 27th, hope you soon recover Lawson.

Pfc. Estes returned from furlough reporting the greatest Christmas that he has ever spent.

Why does Slim (Pvt. Nations) go to Macon, Ga., so often?

Pfc. Davis and Pfc. Ganey returned from furlough the 30th, after having spent the Christmas holidays in Memphis, Tenn.

Sgt. O'Neil returned from a 60-day furlough bringing the news that he was a married man. Congratulations Sarge.

The other day a lady called and wanted to speak to Harold A. Craig over the phone; upon being told that he was not here, she asked who it was; the reply was "Private Gilbert." She said that it was a pity that no one was present.

Private W. R. Adams, left on an emergency furlough, to be at the bedside of his father who is not expected to live.

Pfc. LeBrun was discharged Jan. 1, 1929, to our sorrow it looks as though LeBrun has left us for good, he left for his home in La., where he intends to make a try at the big outside world. We wish you lots of luck.

Pvt. Johnnie Corbin was discharged the 2nd and has a special assignment to Fitzsimmon General Hospital, Denver, sorry to see you leave Johnnie.

We see that Pvt. Dallas Davis is strutting a new car lately, too bad for you Dallas that she just had to have a new car.

88 storms and floods made work for the Red Cross last year.

The Infantry School News

Vol. VII. FORT BENNING, GA., JANUARY 11, 1929 Number 17.

Student Officers of the Advanced Class Will Give Series Monographs

Will Begin Tomorrow Morning at Assembly Hall No. 2

The student officers of the Advanced Class, The Infantry School, will devote a greater part of their time for the next few weeks in the delivery of their monographs. This is one of the features of the work of the high ranking officers of the Infantry School, and a great deal of study and preparation is given the respective lectures. A great deal of outside study has kept the student officers busy for the past six weeks. The schedule for the monographs has been published and will appear in the News every week, giving th schedule for the coming week. So far as is known all the lectures will be given in Assembly Hall No. 2, and visitors are welcome to attend these series of lectures. Time of lecture is given in schedules, which will appear in this paper every week until the completion thereof.

The schedule for the following week:

BRITISH ASST. MILITARY ATTACHE VISITS BENNING

Captain John T. Godfrey, Royal Engineers, assistant British military attache, of Washington, arrived at Fort Benning Wednesday morning for a few days' visit at the Infantry School. Capt. Godfrey was the guest of Col. G. C. Marshall, Jr., assistant commandant, during his stay at Fort Benning.

THE NEWS THIS WEEK

Is somewhat larger than usual. Next week's issue will probably be an eight page number, so therefore, organization writers, let your notes be shorter than usual.

Major-Gen. R. H. Allen Arrived at Infantry School Thursday

MOTION PICTURES STRONGLY SUPPORTED BY 15TH TANK BATTALION

The organizations of the Fifteenth Tank Battalion proudly boast a minimum of trials by court martial and disciplinary action. They attribute this commendable condition in a large measure to the fact that their men appreciate the privileges afforded them at Benning's theatres.

The following evidences their support of the picture shows:

Sale of coupon books for month of December:

Company "C", 100 per cent.

Company "A," 98 per cent.

Company "B," 89 per cent.

Headquarters Company, 69 per cent.

The Battalion as a whole shows a record of disposing of books to over 90 per cent. of its command. Its closest competitive unit shows 44 per cent.

Several factors contribute to the success of this Battalion. First, the officers of the Battalion, all of whom are warmest supporters of our movies, extend their knowledge to the commands; second, those who handle coupon books keep them available at practically all times; third, the thrifty soldiers appreciate the fact that, by purchasing books, they save sixteen per cent., and that when they are broke financially they still have the means of gaining admission to picture shows and seeing plays for fifteen or twenty-five cents which cost up to two dollars in big cities.

Coupled with their thrift is ambition to learn; they keenly appreciate the fact that the finest actor talent in the world is shown upon the silver screen, and in addition the News reels, which are displayed three times a week, show latest world renowned events and carry them to foreign spots which only their fancies may ever see.

POST EXCHANGE WILL TAKE OVER OFFICERS CLUB RESTAURANT; ALSO GOLF SHOP

An announcement of particular interest to officers at Fort Benning was made Thursday to the effect that the Post Exchange will take over the Officers' Club restaurant and the Golf shop. The transfer of property, etc., will be made within a few days. Plans relative to the new management will be announced in a future issue of the News.

The inspector was testing the general knowledge of junior class. Slapping a half dollar on the desk he said sharply: "What's that?"

Instantly a voice from the back row: "Tails, sir."

"What did the sword swallower say when she picked up the clown's foot by mistake?"

"My, but that tastes flat."

Will Give Address at Main Theatre This Morning

Major-General Robert H. Allen, Chief of Infantry, arrived at Fort Benning late Thursday morning. He will be the guest of General Collins, the commandant, during his stay at the Infantry School, which will extend to either Sunday or Monday.

Upon arrival at the Upatoi bridge, General Allen was met by the escort company, Company "A," 29th Infantry, commanded by Captain Hugh A. Wear. Battery "B," 83rd Field Artillery battalion, commanded by Lieutenant Ivan L. Foster, fired the salute on the arrival of General Allen.

The distinguished visitor was taken to headquarters, the Infantry School, where he was formally received by General E. T. Collins, the commandant, and staff.

Will Give Address

During his stay at the Infantry School, General Allen will observe the work of the academic department and various infantry units here. He will lecture to the student officers at nine o'clock this morning at the Main theater. His subject will be "River Crossings" and will be based upon actual experiences of General Allen in the World War, when he was in command of the 356th Infantry of the 89th Division. For this service, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. The citation read as follows: "For exceptionally meritious and distinguished service in the performances of duties of great responsibility as commanding officer of the 356th Infantry of the 89th Division during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, during the march into Germany, and during the occupation of enemy territory."

All officers of the garrison were invited to attend this address.

General Allen's last visit at the Infantry School was during the commencement exercises held last June, at which time he gave the principal address to the student graduates.

BENNING MALLETMEN WILL PLAY AT FRENCH FIELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Weather permitting, two games of polo will be played at French Field, Sunday afternoon. The first game between the Caisson Riders of the 83rd Field Artillery and the Demonstrationist from the 29th Infantry, will begin at 2 o'clock.

The second game will be between the Students and Freebooters. The teams are in good shape after a long rest and unless the weather man spoils the fun, the games will be fast and interesting.

In case the games are called off, central will be notified and any one desiring information about games, call operator, Fort Benning.

"You'd never think this car was a second-hand one, would you?"

"No; it looks as if you had made it yourself."

The STUDENT

(By H. M. G.)

We returned to school and peanut butter on Wednesday, Jan. 2. The first session was given over to Maj. Cooke, whose subject was Applied Psychology. Judging from his audience he could have applied it with a shovel. At any rate while the foot troops were waiting for the jump off it developed that the advanced class had gotten lost. It was a very trying situation. One, however, which might happen in war, probably would happen. Now the point is, what are you going to do about it? Thinking tactically, you might order up a rolling kitchen and let the aronia of slum waft its way leeward, that has been known to attract many a Major,—or you might start an argument. At any rate the advanced class did finally show up, which I thought was very decent of them, since they had a good start and could have kept on going.

But to get back to that lecture, and it was good, Major Cook stated that when a lieutenant gets a bit balmy the thing to do is to feed him beefsteak. He said he knew of many cases in France. (Why France?) It sounded like good psychology to me, and while I don't know whether a lieutenant can afford a beefsteak, still its a thought to keep in mind in case of an emergency.

The remainder of the week was taken up by Major Rhett on training, or endurance. I don't know which now as I became unconscious after the 42nd hour. But it was good stuff, and the Major knows his elastic schedules.

On Tuesday Captain Ambrose extended a lot of machine gunners on Cook's Ridge and then successfully hid them in shadows. Something can now be said for shadows. Later on the same date we attempted a little camouflaging ourselves on our annual physical examination. Being, however, without the protection of even a shadow, etc., we will now go on tot he next subject.

Question not asked by the class.

When Captain Collins was about to have one of his N. C. O.'s fire during the recent machine gun demonstration for the company officers class, he announced in modest tones that that range had never been fired on before. All new stuff, etc. Notwithstanding aforementioned difficulties the N. C. O. did remarkably well. The gun, however, did seem to traverse slightly to the right. Some one noted then the Captain up and said, "why that is due to the T base, it's rotten, it's been there two years!"

Number 2— Major Rhett, or was it the War Dept., one confuses, said that in inspecting for state of training quickly you pick out one man say from each squad thus striking a happy or unhappy mean, as it were. Well, a 29" Inf. platoon was demonstrating extended order, first aid, and gas to the Co. officers class. (They didn't need the gas.) "Fall out one man from each squad for first aid demonstration," ordered a well rounded lieutenant. A few minutes later the first aid leader yells out that there was no man from the 3" squad. A sergeant now commands the platoon. "Get one then, Casey, I told you before." You could tell from Casey's reply that he had the interest of his outfit at heart, he wanted it to do well before these multitudious officers. "I'm not the man they have been training for that," he bawled. "I don't know anything about first aid!"

If you take one dozen oranges, six lemons, one-half pound sugar, three packages of raisins, and any other little things you happen to see around, they'll probably pinch you for stealing.

SAN JUAN — SEMPER PARATUS

"EYES RIGHT"

A few days past Major R. H. Fletcher gave instructions to his battalion for drill which included the following: "At least fifteen minutes of the period will consist of executing 'Eyes Right' the head held well up, something like the exaggerated salute of the A. E. F."

We wonder if the major knew that the officer who originated the salute he referred to is now taking the Refresher Course at this school. General Casper H. Conrad, Jr., is the officer responsible for it, and here is the whole thing:

In the fall of 1917 the 90th Division was organized at Camp Travis, Texas (San Antonio), by using for its officer personnel new graduates from the First Officers Training Camp at Lean Springs near San Antonio, Texas, and a few transferred from the Regular Army. These latter were promoted to the higher commands, generally above the battalion. Among these were Major Conrad. He was promoted to the grade of colonel and assigned to command the 360th Infantry.

As soon as the regiment was filled with drafted men and settled down to steady instruction, Colonel Conrad saw that something more than athletics to gain a high esprit de corps was needed. Noticing that some of the men drilled, and saluted, with their heads down, he cautioned the officers to have the men hold their heads up; keep chin up, and look into the eyes of the person saluted. This they did, and did it so well that the Colonel decided to make the salute a distinctive regimental one. All the officers were then given instructions to that effect, and the A. E. F. salute was on its way.

At first the other organizations of the division tried to ridicule the 360th, but to no effect, for soon General H. T. Allen issued instructions that this salute would be practiced throughout the Division. When the 90th arrived in France the salute was received by other divisions with a great deal of derision, they calling the soldiers of the 90th "Star gazers." It spread through the combat divisions, and when the armistice was signed was indeed, well on its way to becoming the A. E. F. salute.

The psychological effect of the salute upon the men was remarkable. One of the men in Colonel Conrad's regiment when asked why he liked the salute, said: "I don't know, but it makes me feel that I am a better man than the others, and it seems that when I get my chin up like that I want somebody to try to hit it."

Unlike the present salute which is done in two counts, the 90th salute was done in four, sharply distinct counts. It had one great advantage; there was not another like it in the world. For a time after the War this salute was designated in orders as the popular salute of the Regular Army.

And this is how Colonel Conrad, in casting about for some method of making soldiers of the Texas-Oklahoma cowpunchers, devised the salute that Major Fletcher referred to in his instructions.

JAN. 11 TO JAN. 18, INCL.

FRIDAY, JAN. 11

"CHANG," a thrilling, moving story of the greatest struggle in all life, the struggle for self-preservation. The picture is authentic. It was actually photographed in the jungles of mysterious, primitive Siam. Though it portrays in gripping realism, the activities, trials and hardships of the vicious beasts which infest the unexplored jungles, it carries a continuity of plot fomented by the brain of man and depicts his supremacy over beast. It is considered the best animal picture ever photographed and is one which is enjoyed equally by young and old.

"Our Little Nell." Fables.

Pathe News.

SATURDAY, JAN. 12

"THE GENERAL," starring Buster Keaton in a combination comedy-historical picture. The story takes you back to seething civil war days, and is based upon the historic Andrews Railroad raid which occurred at, and near Big Shanty, Georgia, in the year 1862. Buster Keaton's comedy features are interspersed for the purpose of adding comedy relief to the interesting story. This comedy is so chucked full of thrills, suspense and hilarious situations that only a Keaton could keep a straight face in watching it.

"The Parasol Ant." Oddity.

SUNDAY, JAN. 13

"THE WEDDING MARCH," starring Erich Von Stroheim in a vivid compelling and dramatic cross section of the most sophisticated, charming and disillusioned artistocracy the world has ever known. The plot is laid in Vienna before the World War. It carries its characters into crumbling palaces, down age-old streets, through splendid cathedrals and i nto beautiful gardens. The photography in this picture is worthy of special mention—many of the scenes are filmed of world renowned Vienna. The story is one of tenderness masked by irony and cynicism.

FAY WRAY IN THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE "THE WEDDING MARCH"

MONDAY, JAN. 14

"VARSITY," starring Charles Rogers with Mary Brian and Chester Conklin in a college film which is an entirely new departure from the usual type of campus story. It contains none of the "hokum" usually displayed in this type of film, but depicts a story true to college life. The locale is Princeton. The story concerns the love of a father for a son who is unaware of his parentage. The son is beset by dangers from which the father, with heroic self-effacement, rescues him. There is an absorbing romance which leads to a most pleasing climax. Charles Rogers is Universal's newest acquisition to stardom.

"Terrible People No. 10."

TUESDAY, JAN. 15.

"MARKED MONEY," a story replete with thrills, adventure and romance; starring Junior Coghlin. This freckled-faced youngster plays the part of a foreign born boy who inherited a small fortune in marked money; he was compelled to fight fierce forces of evil to retain his own. The daughter of his benefactor is held for ransom by ruthless thugs. Some of the highlights are: an aeroplane battle, rough sailors of air and water, a tattooed chef and a rough but big-hearted skipper of the seas. There are deft touches of comedy throughout.

"The Girl from Nowhere." Sennett Girl.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 16.

"THE CIRCUS KID," a glamorous, thrilling spectacle of the "Big Tops"

SCENE FROM "THE CIRCUS KID"

featuring Joe E. Brown, Helene Costello and Frankie Darro. Surrounding a most absorbing romance, are the tights and spangles, the thrills and whirling action of circus life and the ferocity of wild animals that drive terror into the hearts of multitudes when unbridled. Most dangerous of all is the human animal as depicted i n this story. The actions of the clowns add many touches of deft comedy. You'll laugh, cry and grip your chairs over this picture.

THURSDAY, JAN. 17.

"WOMAN FROM MOSCOW," starring Pola Negri in a superb dramatic performance. The story is built around the amazing situation of a woman who sets out to avenge the murder of her fiance and falls in love with the killer. It is terrific, elemental drama and shows Miss Negri in all the dominating power that caused the light of fame to turn on her in "Passion." In this play she is gorgeous in her hate, in the consuming flames of her desires and in her unflinching courage. The scenes are laid in Russie and France.

"Till We Eat Again." Bobby Vernon comedy.

FRIDAY, JAN. 18

"HOW TO HANDLE WOMEN," starring Glen Tryon and Marion Nixon in one continued roar of laughter. It's about a smart-alec who came from the country with his bag of tricks; he used 'em all in winning the girl who caught his fancy. He posed as a prince, got away with it, and put over the biggest deal in peanuts in the history of the country—sounds funny. It is funny—one of the funniest farces on the screen.

ANCIENT GAME OF HORSE-SHOES PROVE POPULAR PASTIME WITH STUDENT OFFICERS

Among the various out-door games that have been gaining popularity at the Infantry School, there is one that, though seldom mentioned, has become very popular, especially among the student officers. This is none other than the ancient game of "Pitching hoss shoes."

Courts for this pastime are simple in construction. A level space of earth, two iron pins and a half dozen horse shoes and you have a fully equipped court that will last a life time.

Daily challenges are hurled and accepted among the student officers. At the present time it has been impossible to pick the champions either in the singles or doubles. Gradually the group of claimants grow smaller. Still daily there is an up-set that kicks the ole dope bucket up-side down and leaves ye scribe undecided as to the rightful claimant to the title.

We don't know his name but there is a certain captain that is rather tall and almost a blonde, that certainly tosses a wicked shoe. But there are others that can grap the ole shoe around the upright for five points on numerous occasions.

It is the current opinion that several of these noted shoe slingers have a sneaking opinion that they are the best but as yet none of these have picked up enough courage to step out and claim the title. —A. D.

THE COMMITTEE.

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next Meeting—Jan. 21st.
Time—2:15.

Cooperating with medical authorities in the effort to check the spread of colds and influenza, the meeting of the Woman's Club, which was scheduled for Monday, was called off.

It is with pride that the program committee announces the coming of Agnes Kendrick Gray for the next meeting. Miss Gray is an army girl, daughter of the late Col. Gray of the Medical Corps, who has won recognition in the United States and abroad with her poetry. This year she won in an international contest the Seymour (London) prize for the best poem on the sea, and has many interesting awards to her credit. She is chairman of The Poetry Forum of The Writers Club in Atlanta, where she for the past two winters has made her home. All who heard her last January when she gave us an afternoon of her poetry will recall it as the high point of a year of delightful club programs. We urge all members to mark January 21st now on their calendars and begin to look forward to an afternoon of artistic delight.

The Literary Club

The Literary Club will meet on nxt Monday afternoon at 2:00 at the Polo Club unless a notice in Saturday's Daily Bulletin announces a change. Mrs. Leon Norris will present the following program of contemporary biographical books:

I. "Naked Truth," by Clare Sheridan, reviewed by Mrs. Benjamin Ferris.

II. "The Deirl," by Alfred Neumann, reviewed by Miss Lily Blackford.

III. "Leonardo the Florentine," by Rachel Nannard Taylor, reviewed by Mrs. Oscar Hoop.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

(Mrs. R. W. Kingman)

We feel with Sir Launfal:
"Now is the big tide of the New Year.
We are happy now because God wills it.
Joy comes, grief goes, we know not how.
Everything is happy now,
The soul partakes the season's youth."

Is happiness a part of personality like virtue and not dependent on circumstances?

Some one has said that the happiest person is the one that thinks the happiest thoughts.

Does happiness hap by chance or is happiness just the state or quality of being happy?

Everyone speaks of happiness as the end of ends: He wishes to live well and do well, which he oonsiders the same as being happy.

Happiness is expressed in that state of mind that triumphs over circumstances and finds material for contentment, and for joy and even for felicity.

We each of us wish to become happy or remain so.

The definition in our small dictionary for Happy is fortunate, secure, favored, blessed.

"Oh happiness, our being's end and aim!
"Good, pleasure, ease, content whate'er they name."

Susan Ertz said: "As for happiness that elusive something that slipped through one's fingers like a little silver fish, one gets it sometimes from a line of poetry, or the sound of a voice, or the rose colored tints of the winter sun through bare trees: at times even from ledges."

In other words from one's work or from doing one's duty.

Happiness consists according to Matlerlink: "In having peace and confidence within our souls."

Hawthorne said: "Happiness in this world, when it comes, comes incidentally. Follow some other object and very possibly we may find that we have caught happiness."

And James Barrie said:

"The secret of Happiness is not in doing what one likes, but in liking what one has to do."

Happiness is a beautifier and our irritability d isappears in the presence of a happy person, his lumnous quality drives away our darker mood.

And from one's Bible one learns that "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord."

REPORT OF CHAPEL GUILD

The Protestant Chapel Guild was organized in 1921 to carry on educational and welfare work in the post. No records are available for the first two years. But in 1923 records show that one child was sent to the post school at a cost of $5.50 a month. A benefit bridge was given at which $154.85 was cleared. $100 of this money was used to buy equipment for the post school. A Thanksgiving supper was also given that year, $191 being cleared. $150 was used to buy desks for the kindergarten in the post school. $100 was used to send two children to school. First payment was made on a $635 piano for the Protestant Chapel.

In February, 1924, a cook book was compiled and put on the market. These books are still being sold by the Guild and may be found at the Main Exchange . $15 worth of music rolls were donated to the Service Club. Layettes were placed in the post hospital. The Guild members met and made these layettes during lent, and the womans ward of the post hospital is still kept supplied with these.

In 1925, dishes were purchased by the Guild and are rented out for 25 cents a dozen. These dishes may be found at the Protestant Chapel. The same year a permanent c hapel building fund was startd. Christmas baskets were distributed.

In 1926, one undernourished child was being furnished a quart of milk a day and this work has continued until today ten children are being supplied. Miss Mullen furnishes the names of children who need this help. Clothing is also furnished to Miss Mullen, who uses them as she sees fit.

The Guild works in cooperation with the Chaplains, the hospital and the visiting nurse. More members are needed to help carry on this good work and we hope to double our membership before Lent. Dues are $1.00 a year. Meetings once a month, the first Monday in the month at the Protestant Chapel. Checks may be mailed to the treasurer, Mrs. Charles L. Steel, Qtrs. 19-152.

NOTES FROM ENGINEER HILL

A doubt has risen in the mind of one who gropes for truth: "Are stubbornness and tenacity faults or virtues?" Parties considering this subject fit for debate are requested to write their views and submit them for this groping party's benefit.

Dinner, Monday the 7th, was in honor of Sgt. Gensch, who sails soon for sunny Hawaii. Capt. Heavey and Sgt. Gensch were the speakers. "Uncle Henry" had a few words of good advice to the company on A. W. O. L. They certainly were worth pasting in your card-case.

Apparently the bulletin board is at last coming into its own. A stream of hopeful engineers passes by this insignificant piece of wood steadily all day long. At the present writing the board is holding its own and is not becoming the least bit vainglorious over this sudden attention. The board has good service in, and realizes that a flurry, like the present one, will soon subside when it is stripped of everything but the daily guard roster and the Sunday grief list. Incidentally, here's a tip on the market. Buy Chevrons Pfd.! A big rise is expected when Brady sends in for replenishment of his stock.

The company sincerely mourns the departure of Corp. Lawrence C. Reed. The Map Plant will lose one of its most valuable men and Sgt. Dowling will have no one to exchange the latest with. Another question: "Who will play sociable pool with Sgt. Morris now?"

Sgt. Louis Kingsbury is discharged as of the 7th, but we think that he will take out another stack right here. We are counting on him for a big year on the range in 1929. "King" fell off last year from his record 329 of 1927 and we expect to see him get hot again this year.

We thank the Sport Editor of the News for referring to the Engineers as the logical champions of the soccer league. We believe it ourselves but prefer to play the new schedule, and take it that way. "D" Company, 29th Infantry, failed to stop the hard shinned, smooth working Engineers Sunday. Final score: Engineers 2; Doughboys 0.

THE BREAKS OF THE GAME

How often do we hear the remark that one team or the other played the better game but were beaten because the breaks of the game went against them. Of course this may be true. Breaks of luck sometimes go against a team and that is that.

But a careful analysis of the play will usually reveal the fact that one team was coached to watch for the breaks of the game and when they occurred there were usually three or four members of that team right on top of the ball ready to convert the break to their own use.

Countless thousands of football games have been lost—and won—by a fumble right at the crucial moment. When the fumble occurred it usually found one team unprepared. "Bill" Roper of Princeton was one of the first to realize the value of capitalizing on the breaks of the game. He coached individual members of his teams to pick up bounding free balls and gallop to touchdowns with them instead of the old orthodox falling on the ball. Princeton has made history on that one feature alone.

The alert, well coached, headsup team stay right on top of the play and when the break occurs they are ready to make it pay them dividends. That is football. Life itself is pretty much that way, too—(From 2nd Div. Review.)

INFANTRY ASSOCIATION TO MAKE SURVEY ON PAY QUESTION

Many infantry officers at Fort Benning have received a letter from the Infantry Association requesting data on the subject of pay. The letter is quoted below:

"Pay legislation for the army may receive the attention of Congress before long. If this should occur there will be need for much information on the subject.

"Acting entirely on its own initiative, the Infantry Association is undertaking to gather such information from the Infantry. It therefore asks Infantrymen to send in data as to the adequacy or inadequacy of present pay to meet proper and legitimate expenses under ordinary conditions of service. The Association hopes to obtain data to cover all pay periods, but especially those of junior officers.

"If you care to send in any information, the Association will receive it with the following understanding:

"1. That it is an exact record of actual fact (preferably taken from expense accounts.)

"2. That it appear over your signature, but that the Association will not disclose your name without your permission.

"3. That the Association may use your figures to compile a table of data and to prepare an argument in favor of pay legislation that will provide for increased pay where it is most needed, and no decrease in pay at all.

"4. That you may submit views for the Association to consult in preparing its argument.

"If you are not a member of the Association, or if you are in arrears, do not let that keep you from sending in your 'dope.' "

"T. B. Catron, Maj., Inf.,
"Secretary."

Pat: My gosh, boy, what has happened to you?

Pat: And?

"Aren't the acoustics fine?"

"You bet. I'll have to congratulate them before I leave."

SMALL PROBLEMS FOR INFANTRY

(By I. Gotta Ess)

Dear Ike.

In my last letter I told you how I got fooled by a short but genial cuss by the name of Bradley—but "that aint all." I got a new situation for you—here it is: (A mounted tortual "walk.")

The reds are on Holliday Hill and Strickland Ridge and Ryder is helping them. We are on Long Hill (incidentally we all got sore differentials and are full of thorns and disgust.) We are the right battalion making an envelopment of the enemy left. (Ryder is on the left, with them.)

We got to attack at 3 times H, (which is "Ryderese" for "H" hour) or ten minutes after the explosion of a red rocket. We also have a How. Plat. and a Plat. of Tanks. (All these here weapons is hid in the woods between Green Hill (which at this date is brown) and Long Hill (which is a hill sorta long one way and short t'other.

Like good "S hunters" most everyone attacked except Alex Howkensen who defended and Slim Stevens who took a position in readiness and handled sand spurs out of his frame until too late to do anything else. (Slim claims he "rode" Sgt. Thompson (which latter is a unambitious horse like Slim) who needs a long club to make him do anything. Who? the horse? No—both. Enyhow we all turned in the children of our brains at HHH plus 1 hour and three headaches.

Everybody used all the weapons we had and borrowed all the other battalions would give us. We all used our Tanks known well that if we didn't we'd never see them again. We figgered 5 would start and one get there.

At HHH plus the hour and headaches Ryder put out what he called "A" solution. He sed he would attak in colyum of companies in the order A, B leaving C on the hump back of Long Hill, put a M-G plat. with each Co. and leave his tanks on the reverse slope. He coordinated his attack by payin no attention to the Regt. signal but devysed one all his own and sent S-3 down to lose himself in the woods tellin' each Co. that "Soups On." He give a maganetic astimuss of eighteen degrees which would land him in Sulfur Springs (where many hope he eventually will land) and shoved his colyum up thru the woods on the east of Long Hill.

Now Ike, you know I'h clever on this stuff. I genilly bust 'em rite on the nose, so you listen to me ride this "Rider" solution an' sum day you kin get to Leavenworth and go nuts like Rider did—see?

First off—(as Kunnel Pendulum says)—lets consider t he planning phase of this so called "approved" solution:

Again this plan phase—

1--Rider planned to "hook us" by centralizing all of us on one hill with sore bottoms and wild horses.

2-d off. He knew well that if he lade out a problem callin fer an envelopment in colyum of cos. that he'd get 2 cos. in assult.

3d off. He wasted sevrul nites figgerin out a new way to cardniate the party and never sed nuthin' about such ways in class.

4th off. He knowed that we know all about Tanks so he got that lil roundshoulderd grey brett to take his hands outen his pokets and talk at the same time, and Brett admitted that all of us knew that if we didn't use our tanks right now we'd never see 'em and so the best way to hook us was let 'em set, and Rider snapped that up like a shot.

Now—(as Kunnel Pendulum says)—lets swing to the execution phase.

(a) Ike, much execution was done.

(b)—I got slaughtered, Ike, and so did Ben Hensley—and a flok of other brite guys. (Ed Herliky tuk me on a hell of a tear thru woods, meanin' to show me how it was fit out last year) and by the time he brung Baily, Irwin and me u p to Long Hill all enny of us cud think about was our rear, and when we'd go home.

(c) Ike, if execution was permissable yesterday Rider would 'a been executed.

Who ever heard of not usin' all your shovin 3 companies up in colyum thru a woods whut is almost as thick as sum of our instructors. Who ever heard of usin sky rockets when it aint neither Xmas nor New Year? Who ever heard of dependin on a staff officer to give the time of attack when such things should be centralized? Answer this one, Ike, Who tells the time of attak when Mr. S-3 gets lost or bumped off in them instructor-woods? Who ever heard of usin 3 "batches" as a signal on a radio, even the dang things may get out of whack and send 3 "esses" and the Adv. Class trying to pick such-like out of the air. And who ever heard of Red Rockets? We a llus used yellow smoke up to now but I spose Ryder hed to add color to the situation, eh.

Well Ike, take your map and let me know if I aint rite. Over haff this class is votin for me.

Yours hopin fer an "Ess."
"Rite on the Nose."

NEWS FROM THE RECRUIT SCHOOL

The weekly competitive drill of soldier with arms was held January 5 at the Recruit school. First place was awarded to Recruit Sobelle of the Service Company; second place went to Thompson, of "A" Company, and third place went to McBride, of "F" Company.

Corporal Sherif, of "A" Company, rambled into the Recruit school and reported for duty, after being away on a short furlough.

Corp. Bennett, "C" Company, and Corp. Kemper, "B" Company, were recently assigned to duty as instructors at the Recruit school to replace Corp. Roberts, "C" Company, and Corp. Cannon, "B" Company.

Last Monday saw fifty-six recruits taking the Gallery instruction course for pistol firing at Hunter range. It consists of a fifty-shot instruction course and a twenty-five shot record course. The firing is done from standing, sitting and prone positions. Slow fire and sitting and prone, rapid-fire.

On Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of the coming week the recruits will fire the service rifle on Shelton range. They have had a course in sighting at the school and a preliminary course of firing with the twenty-two calibre rifle and are well qualified to fire a regular course on the range.

The recruit course in firing was inaugurated at the school by 1st Lieut. Yarborough, in charge and he is ably seconded in his efforts by a group of instructors recruited from non-commissioned officers o f the Twenty-ninth Infantry.

Quite a few of the recruits who have since graduated from the school have made possible scores on the range and pictures of the targets have been made by the Regimental photographer and sent into the Chief of Infantry by Lieut. Yarborough. The wonderful showing of the recruit school is due to the untiring efforts and perserverance of the officer in charge, ably seconded by his assistants.

The Company Commanders of the regiments fully appreciate the fact that recruits of their organizations after passing the course in recruit drill prescribed at the school are qualified to take their places among the old members of the outfit and make a creditable showing. There is no longer any danger of a recruit while mounting his first guard of dropping his rifle in stage fright or while out on the drill field doing the manual of arms of being a menace to the rest of the boys. This is all taken care of at the school under the—shall we say the fatherly, supervision of the instructors who in mild, courteous words and manners verging on the angelic, correct the faults of the future Twenty-ninth Infantrymen and teach them their soldierly manners.

—J. B. Martin.

BASKETBALL IN 29th INFANTRY

Now that the football season for 1928 has been written down into history, with the results that you all know; the different c ompanies of the 29th Infantry are busy grooming their men for the coming games in the regimental cage leagues. The winner of the First Battalion to play the 'top-notchers' of the Second Bats and Special Units for the Regimental championship.

Any afternoon one may see, by walking along through the regimental area, large numbers of enthusiastic young basketeers earnestly striving for the privilege of representing their outfits on the court in the coming tilts and incidentally to wear the neat, attractive uniforms that are being purchased for them from the company funds.

At the present writing they are out there capering around under the baskets in abbreviated costumes, consisting of running pants and sweat-shirts, or in the case of less fortunate members among the candidates, in old cut-down, cast-off fatigue clothes. It is rumored that someone in the regiment owns a complete basketball suit even down to the shoes. This is to be proven and not taken for granted on the say-so of some unauthorative person.

But wait until the teams are finally selected and they don those eye-filling uniforms. Boy, won't they be hot?

MAJOR BROOKE JOINS 29TH INFANTRY

Major J. R. Brooke, having been assigned to the 29th Infantry, joined on January 3, 1929. Major Brooke has been assigned as assistant to the plans-and-training officer with the particular mission of developing small-bore rifle marksmanship within the regiment. Major Brooke came to the regiment from duty with the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle practice at Washington, D. C. Major Brooke hopes to develop company, battalion and regimental teams to compete with other organizations and with college teams.

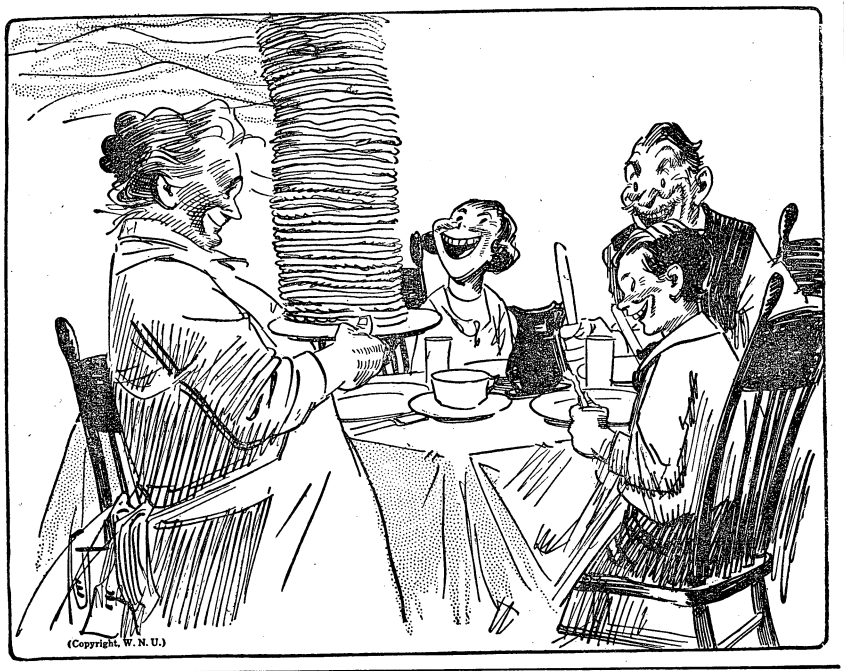
COLOR GUARDS 29th INFANTRY

If you are a qualified rifle-shot, Private First Class, of excellent character and rated above the average in military bearing and neatness, you stand a chance to wear the little gold star on the right cuff, which singles you out as one of the newly appointed Color Guard. The order has come from Col. Pendleton, commanding officer of the 29th, directing that one man from each rifle company be appointed by the baattalion commander, having the above qualifications.

Fortunate indeed will be the soldier who is appointed as he will do no K. P.'s, will be acting corporal on fatigue details and will be relieved from all other duties on the days required to perform his duty as color guard.

Winter "Flannels"



Needless to say, any soldier having the qualifications necessary for this appointment and having public acknowledgement made of it, will not remain a private first class very long.

Company "A"

We have not been represented for quite a while in the News but we will be in the future.

Company "A" lost one of its best clerks last week when Corporal Bower was discharged and failed to re-enlist. We will miss Cpl. Bower but we feel that Shelby Freeman will be able to take care of the paper work at headquarters.

There is quite a bit of conjecture in the company as to when we will occupy a section of the new barracks. No one knows but the writer has an inclination to believe that it will be about the 15th of February.

The third platoon won first place in the company basketball tournament and played "B" Company yesterday. They lost to "B" Company but they were handicapped by the small indoor court.

We are now organizing a soccer team and from all indications we are going to give these other teams that have been practicing a hard game.

Discharges for last week are: Cpl. Miller, Malcolm, Cpl. George Bower, Cpl. Elliott Whaley, Pfc. Gupfert, Pfc. Rhoades and Pvt. Fulford. Cpl. Whaley has not re-enlisted as to date but states that he does intend to re-enlist.

—G. C. R.

Hdqrs. Co., 2nd Battalion

Here we are again in the basketball season with the battalion league schedule right upon us. Our first game will be played on our court with Company "G." At the present writing we cannot forecast the outcome but we are confident with the able assistance of Sgt. Kjelstrom, that we will come out with the long end of the score.

What a beautiful Christmas present the company received this year from our old friend and company commander, Lt. Tatom. We cannot tell you all about it, but come on over to our recreation room and see it for yourself.

Three members of our company are having the buttons on the chests of their blouses moved over for they have had the ancient and honorable rank of corporal thrust upon them. They are: Pvts. 1st Class Boyka, Rich and Sales, all small men but they sure know how to strut their stuff.

The three corporals to leave us were Shaffer, Ferguson and Isbill all discharged per ETS except Shaffer, who purchased his discharge for the purpose of taking charge of the Columbus Radio station WRBL.

The Second Battalion basketball league starts January 10, 1929, and ends January 23, 1929, to decide the champion company in the battalion. Pick the winner.

83RD FA

Battery "B"

The big day of the review; the galloping second section later ready than anyone else. Investigation showed Private Sterbuck had bridled the picket line and was unable to make his "team" move.

All of our ambitious "court a pattes" are very glad that Monsieur le Professeur Long has opened his class for the signal corps and by the way the new students are "flagging" we believe this course will be a success.

Pvt. McClendon was on prison guard and when he came back to the guard tent after doing his duty he found his blankets were gone. Mac said the next time he is on prison guard he stays at the guard tent to watch his prisoners there.

The battalion basketball team is practicing hard; we note with pleasure that various men of our battery made the team. We wish you success, boys.

The other day one of our privates first class inquired of Sergeant Lein whether the government issued underwear with one stripe on it?

We are glad to see Pfcs. Harper and Davis come back from their furlough; the horses need shoes and the guns need paint. Boys you can get busy now.

Corporal Morphis is now with the B. C. section. He hopes his traveling days are over.

Company "F"

Old Inbad, the soldier, has decided to mend his ways. New Year is coming on and since people maintain that then is the right time for one to "turn over a new leaf," Inbad is inclined to agree with them—not, however that he agress with the masses every time.

He has seen some mighty hard days —Old Inbad has. He remembers when he was pulling first hitch. In the Phillipines, it was. And that, he reflects was before most of these kids who are in the company now, were born.

Right around seventy recruits have come to the company this past year. Most of them seem to be pretty enthusiastic. Just like all kids at the threshold of life. The army is new and they come here sort of expectant like. Well, Old Inbad came to the army the same way, he recollects.

The first hitch was the hardest; after that, time slipped fast. There were mosquitoes and bolos and well, everything to take the comfort out of life, in those Islands. But now, that is past.

Time to slow down. Just two more hitches and then he's through. By that time these "rookies" will have learned and can take his place. Inbad has seen some mighty riotous times but New Year's coming. Yes, he has got to reform.

They come here and play football and are good. Many of them learn a whole lot and in a few years are slipping into places vacated by old soldiers like Inbad.

Speaking of football, Inbad says he saw the championship game the other day. A commendable display of sportsmanship, he comments. Clean and hard fought all the way along. His team lost but they went down fighting. That is what counts.

Take the company players who participated in the contest: Thompson, Carpenter, Carlin, Mays, Allison, all of them played fine.

But football is over now; and the boys are looking forward to company basket ball. Only the other day the Company Commander was talking to Inbad about the season's prospects. A good bunch of boys who would play hard, but no outstanding players, such as he had in football.

There are Barron and Clark, who were the mainstays of last year's team, to say nothing of the host of other men like Dilley and Harbour and Kessler. Then there are some recruits who may be able to break into the line-up.

Yes, time for another year to begin, which, with the bayonet course to run; maneuver problems to take place and range season following them, it looks to Inbad as if another full routine is in store.

INBAD.

Company "C"

Now that the holidays are over, the familiar command of "Attention" can be heard in the hallway of the first floor when a certain Corporal is off duty.

We are losing two cooks this week and are very sorry to see them leave. Pfc. Shaw will be discharged per E. T. S., January 4th, and Pfc. Runnels has decided to try a "hitch' in civilian life, so has purchased his discharge. Both are wonderful cooks and their services will be missed very much by the Mess Sergeant.

Pfc. Smith, W. B., pride of the Company and of the fight fans of Fort Benning, returned Tuesday from a furlough of ten days which he spent in Madisonville, La. Smith fought a scheduled bout of ten rounds, while on furlough, but as usual he put his man to sleep in the first round.

It was discovered recently that a certain Corporal in the company possesses a talent for singing. His favorite song is entitled "Cheating on Me," that is, he calls it that, but to the writer it sounds like the "Lost Chord."

The company has constructed a wonderful Small Bore Range in the attic of the Barracks. The personnel of the company seem greatly interested and if permission were granted, the range would be in use at all times. It not only provides a place for individual instruction in Rifle Marksmanship, but is excellent sport when off duty. The old saying, "Wait until next range season, I'll show you who is the best shot," is forever banished. All arguments can be settled in a short time, on the indoor range.

Company "G"

We wish to thank our Company Commander, Mess Officer, Mess Sgt. and Cooks for the Christmas dinner they put out. It sure was a knockout. The new cooks sure know their turkey. We've got to hand it to the old timers. We also appreciate the splendid work by Sgt. Notgrass in decorating the Mess Hall.

Several men of the Company have reported back for duty after spending Christmas at their homes. Reports are they all had a nice time.

Last Thursday morning the Company took up boxing from 8:00 A. M. to 11:00 A. M., it was splendid exercise for the old timers and also the recruits. Some of the recruits had never had the gloves on before, but they can say they have now. Private Houle knocked out big Bergeron in the first round, with a left to the Mess Hall. Pct. Jacobs put Sgt. Johnson to slep in the fiftenth round. Pvt. King put Slim Craig away in the third round. Sgt. Swaney and Pvt. McGowen fought four rounds to a draw. It was a good show and Warset Simpson was the third man in the ring and time keeper.

Pvt. Bourque relieved Pvt. Biggs as Captain of the Boat in the Third Platoon. "Stay with them Bernard."

The men of the Third Platoon are glad to see Sgt. Wiggins back for duty. We are glad to see the Baby well and strong again.

A certain fellow in the Company was going to get married and his girl sent him word that it was all off and that she was sending his ring back to him. The soldier replied, "Well there is another man." Someone asked him why he was mad and if he was going to town to kill the other man, in reply the soldier said, "No, I am going to try and sell him the ring."

A cop in the City of Columbls stopped Leonard and asked him if he was from the Reservation, Leonard replied, "No Sir, I ain't no Indian, I am a soldier from Fort Benning."

This company holds the honor of winning the Chief of Infantry Combat Squad from the 29th Infantry. All the men of this squad are serving their first enlistment. The squad consists of the following m en: Cpl. Hodges in charge, Pfc. Biggs, Pvt. Brooks, Pvt. Davidson, Pvt. Ramirez, Pvt. Hurst, Pvt. Little and Pvt. Hogan. The company congratulates the men of this squad for their fine work.

We are glad to see Lieutenant Hewitt back with us again and we hope he is here to stay this time. Lt. Hewitt is the 2nd Platoon leader. Pretty lucky, Second Platoon.

The company officer, 2nd Battalion, told us that we looked the best in the parade and when we go to Columbus, the girls down there tell us the same thing. This is fine work G Company, keep it up.

Pvt. Moore to his squad leader: "I would like to get my AWOL extended." We don't know about that, Moore.

You talk about a man that knows his stuff about putting the greens around. Sgt. Notgrass is a qualified decorator. We thank you for the fine work, Sergeant.

By a unanimous consent of the company, much deserved honors were bestowed on some of the well known men:

Best Gold Brick—LeBlanc.
Biggest Bull-shooter—Brown, H.
Laziest—Latham.
Biggest Eater—Gregely.
Best Looking—Usery—Baugh said so.
Ugliest—Richardson.

INFANTRY SCHOOL MUSKETEERS FINALLY HIT THEIR STRIDE

It is the breaks that count, be it baseball, football or whatnot. In one of the closest and hardest fought games ever witnessed on the Auburn basketball court, an extra period was played to decide the game, which was deadlocked at the end of the final half. The game which was between the Auburn Plainsmen and Benning Musketeers came close to being a Musketeer victory in the final half, but for the breaks. Oikra tossed one that landed in the loop, spun round a couple of times and for no reason in the world hopped out again. With the score deadlocked and the final gun ready to crack, Johnnie Roosma held the game in his fingers with a free shot from the foul line. With Rooma shooting for the deciding point from the foul line it looked like it was all over but the shouting. Another break, Roosma's shot hit the rim and bounced back into his hands, leaving the game a tie.

Last Monday night the Musketeers wiped the slate clean for a former defeat when they smothered the fast Albany Y. M. C. A. five at the Garrison gymnasium, 58 to 37.

Tuesday night the Musketeers visited the Hubbard Hardware five of Columbus, on their own court, and handed the hardware cagesters a nice drubbing, 58 to 38.

To date the Musketeers have won six games and lost three of nine games played. Two of these games were lost to the Terrible Swedes, while the Auburn Plainsmen downed the Musketeers for the third defeat.

Beginning with Saturday, the remaining schedule for the season is:

January 12—Gulf Refining Co., Fort Benning.

Jan. 16—Levy-Morton, Columbus.

Jan. 17—Birmingham Boys, Fort Benning.

Jan. 18—Cincinnati "Y", Fort Benning.

Jan. 19—Southern College, Fort Benning.

Jan. 24—Oglethorpe Univ., Fort Benning.

Jan. 26—St. Louis Americans, Fort Benning.

Jan. 28—Albany "Y" Albany, Ga.

February 18—Chattanooga Raillites, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Feb. 23—Macon Odd Fellows, Macon, Ga.

MUSKETEERS DOWN ALBANY Y. M. C. A. BASKETEERS, BY SCORE 52 TO 38

(By Al Durden)

Opening the first half with a dazzling passing offense reinforced by phenomenal shootings by the entire team, the Musketeers swept the visiting Red Triangle cagesters from the "Village of Nuts," off their feet at the Fort Gym, last Monday night, to finish the first half with the score 31 to 17 in their favor.

Mal Kammerer broke into the limelight with a high point total of nineteen. It semed that the visitors were under the impression that all they had to do was keep Johnnie Roosma from shooting, Kammerer demonstrated his ability to carry on, by sinking the pellet from all angles.

Fat Franz ran up a total of ten points for the Musketers, six of his points being scored from the foul line.

In the last half the Albanians staged a desperate counter-attack that gave them ten points before the Musketeers could get going. The final half proved to be the fast and furious with honors even.

With Mal Kammerer showing the ability to sink baskets that he has demonstrated of late, there is no doubt that opposing basketeers are going to have to work overtime to keep the oval out of their net.

KNIGHTS OF THE GREEN CLOTH ANXIOUS TO ARRANGE TOURNAMENT

(By Al Durden)

Each company, detachment or battery stationed at Fort Benning is equipped with an up-to-date recreation room for the benefit and pleasure of the men of the outfit. No recreation room is complete without one or more pool tables.

Pool is a favorite pastime with practically every enlisted man within the garrison. Each outfit has its champion cue artist. Over in the Tanker outfit there is a long, lanky Tanker, Pvt. Thomas, that shoots a mean cue. The Artillery boast a blonde headed Caisson Rider, that they claim can't miss. Throughout the 29th Infantry there is a scattering of cue artists that are above the average.

The Green Cord outfit can boast of Corporal Caldwell that can click off high runs of forty and fifty; he has a high run of eighty-three. The Engineers boast of a second Willie Hoppe. There is at least twenty cue artists in the garrison that are pointed out by their admirers as the pool champion of Fort Benning.

There is only one way to settle a dispute of this kind and that is, a pool tournament. An affair of this kind would be highly interesting and there is no doubt that the brand of pool played by the picked players of the garrison would be well worth witnessing.

The tables at the Service Club would be suitable for this purpose. They are in excellent condition, while there would be ample room in the big hall for many spectators.

Corporal Caldwell of the Infantry School Detachment issues a challenge to any player in the garrison for the garrison championship.

Any player who accepts the challenge call Al Durden at 146.

Ex-cheer Leader: Brethren, let us now sing hymn 333, and talk it up.

Clara: Not now. You see, he's made love to me.

SOCCER SEASON OPENS AT BENNING

(By H. Levine)

The soccer football season at Fort Benning opens formally on Saturday, January 12th, 1929, with six teams battling for a handsome championship trophy to be awarded the winning team. The teams competing are as follows:

Howitzer Company, 29th Infantry.
Company "B," 29th Infantry.
Company "D," 29th Infantry.
Company "H," 29th Infantry.
Company "B,' 15th Tank Bn.
Company "A," 7th Engineers.

Opening with a double header on Saturday, the strong Howitzer team of the "We Lead The Way" outfit, will battle Company "B," of the Caterpillar Conductors, in the first game commencing at 1:15 P. M., the game to be played at Gowdy Field.

During the past two months, these teams have been hard at work getting in shape for the coming schedule and during Christmas week, a practice schedule was run off with the "Gin Ears" topping the league with a record of 6 wins and no losses.

The schedule however promises much, as there is now something to "shoot at" viz: Infantry School silver trophy, and the writer predicts action galore in the coming games.

A summary of the past games show the "Gin Ears" having a slight advantage over the other teams by virtue of hard work and a conscientious coach, while the other teams are about evenly matched. However, as the schedule provides for each team playing the other, two games each, the results will decisively decide the calibre of the trophy winner.

An amateur soccer league has also been started with teams entering from organizations who have never played the game and it is whispered around these parts that Soccer will eventually replace football in Fort Benning as an intra-mural sport.

ARMY CLUB HAS GROWN RAPIDLY IN PAST YEAR

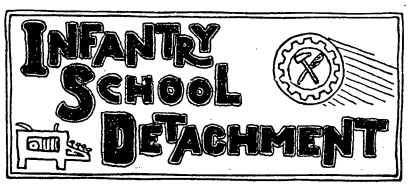
During the early part of 1928, the Army Club of Columbus was organized. Sergt. Warnie Beare of the I. S. D., organizer and founder of the club, was elected president. When first organized the Club was composed of one hundred members. During the year the Club membership has increased to over six hundred members.

The Club has been a source of much pleasure and comfort to the enlisted personnel of Fort Benning and to the ex-service men and their families of Columbus. A dance is held every Wednesday night. The dance hall on the third floor of the Club is considered one of the best in Columbus, music is furnished by White's Orchestra.

The reading room and the comfortable ladies rest room is open at all times to the families of the members. A recreation room with pool tables, card games and a comfortable place to pass away the time is open from 9:30 A. M. until 11:00 P. M.

Sgt. Beare's duties as manager of the I. S. D. barber shop, caused him to resign as president. Master Sergt. W. S. Stratton of the I. S. D. was appointed to fill Sergt. Beare's vacancy.

The dances are under the management of Master Sergt. McNulty of the Infantry School Det., and he has fully demonstrated his ability to carry on by the large attendance and the popularity of the dances held at the Army Club.



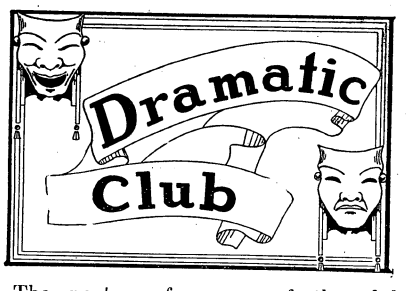
DOTS AND DASHES FROM THE GREEN CORDS

"Dad" Richardson and "Dad" Foster, were seen airing out in "Dad" Richardson's rambling "Lizzie" a few days ago. Rumor has it that when once these two youngsters hit the wide open spaces, that a placard with the following inscription is placed in a conspicuous place: "Come on peaches, here is your can."

Sgt. Dutch Tolson rushed madly up to Pfc. Knox's office last Saturday afternoon and asked Pfc. Knox to name his price for his famous bike, "Sally Ann." Pfc. Knox explained to Dutch that he did not care to part with his "Sally Ann," for several reasons. The main reason given is that the bicycle represents a small fortune. Two years ago, Knox invested his capital in a Ford car, later he exchanged the Ford for the Auburn Six of "Old 97" fame. Out of the wreck of the Auburn, he salvaged enough collateral to purchased much discussed "Sally Ann." Sgt. Tolson desired to use the bike as a means of transportation to his home at O'Chille. When he attempted to flag the fast Chicago to Miami express at one of the numerous flag stations, Saturday afternoon, he almost turned to hamburger. Hence the bike.

Quite a few soldiers slip on heavy wool socks when it is extra cold, before retiring. During the past cold snap, Corp. Booth and Blondie McClain, sprang a new one that almost ended in disaster. After putting on all of the socks available, they pulled their barracks bags over their feet and departed for slumberland. Every thing went along nicely until Corp. Shaw, who sleeps in the same tent, had a dream of a terrible fire. Corp. Shaw yelled "fire" at the top of his voice. Corp. Booth and Pvt. McClain came back to life with a bang. Had their bunks been higher their falls would have been harder. The barracks bags now hang in their old place at the head of the bunk, while Booth and McClain rub their sore shins and sleep with their fet unshackeled.

The Detachment volley ball team has issued a challenge to all comers. There is no doubt that the Green Cords have one of the fastest volley ball teams ever produced at the Infantry School.



The next performance of the club will be held on February 8, at which time three plays will be presented to club members. The performance next month will be limited to club members only and their out of town guests. The size of the club makes this announcement necessary in order that all members may hear and enjoy the club plays. Seat tickets will be issued in sufficient time for all members to get good seats, and guests will be limited to one for each club member. Any one not now a member of the club may join by making application at once to the club cesretary, Captain C. L. Bolte, of the first section, academic department.

FORMER STUDENT OF NATIONAL GUARD-RESERVE FIELD OFFICERS CLASS PROMOTED

A local business man was elevated to high rank in the Ohio National Guard this week when Colonel Ludwig S. Conelly was appointed as Brigadier General in command of the 73rd infantry brigade.

The appointment was announced by Adj. Gen. Frank D. Henderson.

Colonel Conelly succeeds the late Brigadier General John R. McQuigg of East Cleveland, former national head of the American Legion.

General Conelly maintains real estate offices in the Center building.

His military service record began in 1903, when he joined the Cleveland Grays. He was commandant in 1914, organized and conducted the first officers' training camp west of the Alleghenies in 1915, and went to the Mexican border the following year in command of Company "F," Third Ohio Infantry.

He served as captain and major in the Third Infantry during the World War, and was overseas for almost a year. He won citations for bravery during actions in the Argonne and in Flanders. He was wounded and gassed in action No. 1, 1918, shortly after being made major commanding the First Battalion, 148th Infantry. He helped organize what is now the 145th in 1920, and was made its colonel. In 1922 he was elected president of the Ohio National Guard Association. He is 45.—Bedford (Ohio) Times.

General Conelly is well known to many officers of the Infantry School, who will be glad to learn of his recent promotion. He was president of the N. G.-Reserve Officers class at the Infantry School, which graduated in February, 1928.

AUBURN TIGER FIVE GOES DOWN TO DEFEAT BEFORE MUSKETEERS

The fierce Auburn Tiger fell before the deadly fire of the Benning Musketeer five at the Fort gymnasium last Wednesday night by a score of 43 to 37.

Still smarting under the sting of the defeat handed out by the Tigers at Auburn one week ago, the Musketeers were out for revenge.

The entire Musketeer team worked beautifully. In fact it is the perfect teamwork of the team that is the leading factor in bringing home the bacon.

Johnnie Roosma was out in front with shots that looked impossible but that sailed through the hoop without touching. Close on the heels of Johnnie came Strickler and Stamper. Their shooting was deadly.

Reddock, a new-comer, made his appearance with the Musketeers at guard, and though not doing any shooting, his passing and defensive work looked good. Mal Kammerer was a bit off in his shooting, but the "Blonde Boy" was everywhere he was needed most during the fray and he also added six of the Musketeers' points.

A glance over the past week shows a clean slate. Three games, three victories. Monday night came the Albany Triangle five. They were smothered to the tune of 58 to 37. Tuesday night the Musketeers journeyed to Columbus, where they mixed and mingled with the Hubbard Stars on their own stamping grounds. Though fighting stubbornly, the Bubbardites were defeated 48 to 37. Last of all came the Jungle Lord from his lair at Auburn. Benning fans trembled for the Musketeers as they listened to t he Tiger's growl, but fear turned to joy as the Musketeers twisted the wicked Tiger's tail.

Saturday night will bring the Gulf Refining Co.'s basketeers. This team needs no introduction. In one of the fastest and closest games played here last season, the Musketeers squeezed out a one point victory over this team. They come this year determined to reap revenge. Saturday night at 7:30, they will have the opportunity of reaping this said revenge, but we of the Upatoi station think different.

SERIES OF LECTURES ARE ANNOUNCED

For the purpose of broadening the knowledge of officers in the organization, technique, mission, and tactics of arms other than their own, a series of lectures to be held at the Infantry School was announced in a bulletin published by headquarters, The Infantry School, last week.

The lectures are scheduled to be held on dates indicated below at 2 P. M. at the Main Theater. All officers of the garrison are invited to attend the lectures, and officers assigned to combatant units will attend excepting those lectures on subjects which have been included in a course of instruction pursued by officers at a service school.

The first lecture to be held was on January 4, at which time Major Ira A. Rader, Air Corps, spoke on "Organization and Mission of the Air Corps."

The second lecture of the course will be held this afternoon at which time Captain A. St. Johns, C. W. S., will have as his subject "Use of Chemical Agents in War."

Other lectures which are scheduled are listed below:

Jan. 21, 1929—Offensive and Defensive Chemical Warfare Tactics, Captain Adrian St. John, C. W. S.

Jan. 28, 1929—Tactical Employment of Divisional Artillery-Offensive, Major Lloyd E. Jones, Field Artillery.

Feb. 8, 1929—Tactical Employment of Divisional Artillery-Defensive, Major Lloyd E. Jones, Field Artillery.

Feb. 15, 1929—Tanks, Organization and Equipment, Major Sereno E. Brett, Infantry.

Feb. 25, 1929—Tank Tactics, Major Sereno E. Brett, Infantry.

March 1, 1929—Infantry Defense Against Aircraft, Captain Leonard R. Boyd, Infantry.

March 11, 1929—Organization and Missions of the Medical Detachment and Medical Regiment, Major Morrison C. Stayer, M. C.

March 15, 1929—Organization and Mission of Engineers with an Infantry Division, Captain William F. Heavey, C. E.

March 22, 1929 — Engineer Special Units, Captain William F. Heavey, C. E.

POPULAR NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICER LEAVES FOR PANAMA

The many friends of Staff Sergt. V. H. Thomas, of the Finance Detachment of the Infantry School, will regret to learn of his departure from Fort Benning for Panama, where he has been assigned to duty with the Finance Dept.

Sgt. Thomas has been a member of the Finance Detachment of the Infantry School for the past three years, and during that time has gained a host of friends here. His many friends join in extending their best wishes and hoping him the best of luck in his new home "Down on the Big Ditch."

IF FOR ANY REASON you are dissatisfied with your present supply of coal, and now or later on wish to make a test of a good clean grade, such as we constantly handle—we would suggest a test order of a ton or two so that you may note the difference.

Chief of Infantry Combat Squad Selected

Corporal Hodges' Squad of Co. "G" Wins Coveted Honor

For two successive years, Company "G" of the 29th Infantry, has emerged victorious in the competition for the Chief of Infantry's Combat Squad. This is an achievement of arms that is only gained against keen competition, and is a signal honor for the winners. Competition in any form in the 29th Infantry is always keen and hard fought. Knowing that the eyes of our country gaze upon their every move through the body of student officers attending the Infantry School, the men of the 29th Infantry must be one-hundred per cent. efficient in every way to verify the name by which they are known, "The Demonstration Regiment."

As a basis to determine the squad to represent the Chief of Infantry, the men were judged on a basis of efficiency and discipline on the parade ground and in mock combat battle on the field. In the field among the test they were required to pass included, scouting and patroling, direct and indirect laying of fire, preciseness and alertness with which commands were executed.

A singular and rather exceptional incident of the winning squad is that all members, even the squad leader, are on their initial enlistment. Four of the members of the squad fired on the rifle range for the first time during the past range season. Under the expert coaching of the officers and non-commissioned officers of the 29th Infantry, every man qualified on the range.

The personnel of this squad of outstanding Infantrymen, is widely varied, but it fully demonstrates the fact that the American youngster from no matter what walk in life, makes the greatest soldier in the world.

The prize winning squad was under the leadership of Corporal A. E. Hodges. Corporal Hodges, a youngster of 21 years, showed exceptional abilities as a leader and a man that could be depended upon in a emergency should one arise.

Corporal Hodges entered the service in May, 1926. He was promoted to the grade of corporal in July, 1927. Before enlisting in the service Corporal Hodges had worked in the coal mines at his home in West Virginia.

To the other members of the squad an equal share of the credit for the success of the squad is due.

Unless the members of the squad had been exceptionally qualified, their's is an honor that would have never been attained. Their work was highly com-

STUDENT OFFICERS CONTINUE MONOGRAPHS NEXT WEEK

The first week of monographs of the student officers of the Advanced Class began last Monday. The program calls for four lectures daily next week, but none are scheduled for tomorrow (Saturday) morning.

The lectures thus far have covered the period from Hannibal and Julius Caesar up to and including the first battle of Bull Run. Captain K. L. Berry spoke on the latter this morning. A majority of the monographs scheduled for the coming week will be based on battles of the Civil War, although a few towards the last of the week will deal with the Spanish-American and the World wars.

Quite a number of visitors have attended the monographs thus far. All officers of the garrison are invited to attend the series.

The schedule for the following week:

January 21, 1929. 8:00 A. M.-10:00 A. M.

Maj. John S. Sullivan, Inf., Jackson's Shenandoah Valley Campaign, January-June, 1862.

Maj. Roland R. Long, Inf., McClellan's Peninsular Campaign, March 17-July 3, 1862.

Capt. Walter Jesse, Inf., Battle of Shiloh, April 6-7, 1862.

Lt. Col. D. M. Cheston, Inf., Second Battle of Bull Run, August 28-30, 1862.

January 22, 1929, 9:00 A. M.-10:00 A. M.

Capt. John V. Ayotte, Inf., Battle of Antietam, September 17, 1862.

Maj. Paul J. McDonnell, Inf., Battle of Fredericksburg, Dec. 13, 1862.

Maj. W. A. Smith, Inf., Stone River Campaign, July, 1862-January, 1863.

Capt. Francis G. Bonham, Inf., Battle of Chancellorsville, May 1-3, 1863.

Instructor Infantry School Will Take Over Duties at Once.

According to Special Orders issued at Headquarters, The Infantry School, dated January 16, Major William M. Hoge, Jr., Corps of Engineers, has been detailed as General Manager of the Recreation Center Board.

Major Hoge, who recently came to Fort Benning, is now on duty as instructor of the second section, the Infantry School, and the detail with the Recreation Center Board, is in addition to his duties.

The new manager of the recreation project is a native of the state of Missouri and was admitted to the U. S. Military Academy from that state in 1912, graduating in 1916. Upon the outbreak of the World War, he was assigned to the Seventh Engineers, Fifth Division. At the time he held the rank of captain. He served throughout the war in this organization in which he rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

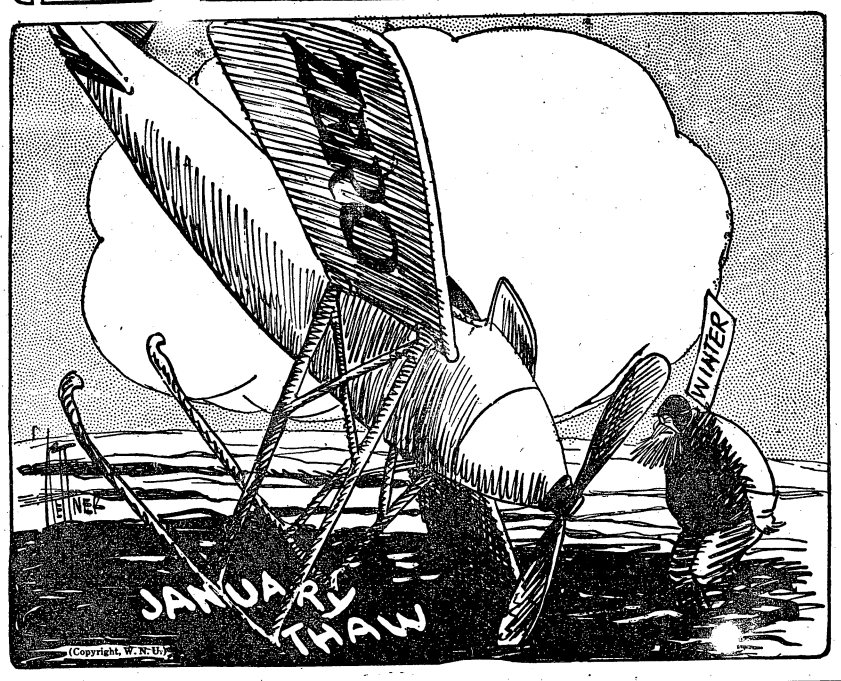
On November 4, 1918, Major Hoge's performance of duty with the Seventh Engineers won for him the Distinguished Service Cross. General Order No. 37, War Department, 1919: "After personally and voluntarily reconnoitering the site of a pontoon bridge over the Meuse, in daylight and under direct shell fire, Major Hoge commanded the movement of a train of heavy wagons, under enemy observation, to this location. He then supervised the construction of the bridge and the successful crossing of the river." This feat was performed at Brieulies, France.

After the war, Major Hoge was on R. O. T. C. duty at Virginia Military Institute. He graduated from Mass. Tech. in 1922, receiving the B. S. C. E. degree. Subsequent to this time he was on duty as instructor at the Engineers school at Fort Humphries, Va., and a student at Fort Leavenworth, graduating with the class of 1928.

TANK COMPANY MENTIONED IN REPORT ON RED CROSS WORK

In the annual report of the Secretary of War for the year 1928, Company B, 15th Tank battalion, was the only regular army organization to be cited in his report. To quote: "Company B, 15th Tank battalion, at Fort Benning has the unique distinction of being the only individual company to receive a charter from the American Red Cross, authorizing it to act as a life saving corps. This company has an enviable record in competition, instruction, and life guard service."

Mired



STUDENTS IN BLUNDERLAND

(With apologies to everyone, from Lewis Carroll to Committee "H.")

I. The General Situation:

'Twas CORNISH, and the CONNOLLY
Did WALTZ and WARNOCK in the DARK;
All PASHLEY was the WILLOUGHBY,
And the war-dogs did bark.

II. Reconnaissance:

"What do you in the DARK GREEN WOOD
With men and guns and tanks?"
"We're LUEKING for the MONOGRAPH
To find and fix his flanks."

III. Information of the enemy . . . .

"Beware the MONOGRAPH, my son,
I've HEARD his roar resound;
Avoid the GRADED TEST, and shun
MANEUVERS-on-the-Ground.

"They're led by MARSHALL LANGE, see,
With BRADLEY in reserve;
They'll MARR your physiognomy
As much as you deserve.

"The COLLINS-BOYS, with LEWIS guns
Will make things very hot.
It's SHERBURNE'S March through Georgia, son,
And you'd better not be caught."

. . . and of friendly troops:

"We, too, have ARMS and men," they said;
And MESSERSMITH'S MARINES
Will fight around the old OLMSTEAD;
These Leathernecks are fiends.

"Our RUSTE ARMS will win the day—
The battle won't be LONG;
BECHTOLD me it would be that way—
Our army's very STRONG.

"We'll pile the dead about in HEAPS
Until the battle's over,
And . . . Gas EHLERT! Here comes the BULL
You'd better HUNT for cover."

S-3 Report: Par. 5:

He took his SHARPLESS DAGER up
And STROH'd into the WOOD,
As every doughboy should.

GEROW, GEROW! He slew and slew;
His trusty blade went snicker-snack.
He took the scalp-lock from a U,
And came KENUEBLING back.

"Senay, Senay! Oh frabjous day,
Come to my ARMS, my beamish boy!
And hast thou slain the MONOGRAPH?
Oh, HOISINGTONS of joy!"

Report of Casualties:

But as in uffish MOOD he stood.
A Bird crashed to the ground.
The medicos all hurried out,
Hearing the frightful sound.

"Who killed COCK ROBINSON?" they cried.
"It must have been a U;
'Twas MAJOR MATTERS brought him down,
And MINOR CUTS helped, too."

The ABBOTT and the BISHOP marched
Behind COCK ROBIN'S bier;
"He was our only CHILD," they said,
Shedding a bitter tear.

But suddenly the Bird sat up;
"I'm not DUNN yet," he said;
"I struck a MONOGRAPH in flight,
"And it went right to my head.

"Paint me with iodine," said he,
"And I'll be on my way.
But I'll get the U that frightened me
If it takes till Judgement Day."

By H. F. L.

"How are you?"
"Oh, I can't kick."
"Rheumatism, eh?"

ADDITIONAL 1st BN. NOTES

Cpl. Peyton is working on some sort of a contraption which he calls a radio. Personally it looks more like a wood box.

Several of the boys are stepping out in new uniforms. Pvt. Owens, however, didn't get his. Seems that when he was being measured he thought that everyone was getting measured too large so he drew up as small as possible. Result that when he tried his suit on it was too small. Pavlovsky, the battalion clerk put his on and went into his office the other morning and the major wanted to know who the new clerk was.

Private Edwards was discharged last Saturday, and is now home "with loved ones." Everyone in the company misses "Ed." and we were all sorry to see him leave.

We have five new recruits assigned Monday. It won't be long now until we will be seeing some new faces again. Well we are waiting for them and will try to show them a good time when they come to the company.

1st Lieut. Pulliam is back with us now, after a long stay at the Army and Navy Gen. Hosp. We are all glad to have him back as our company commander.

Lieut. Harris, our former company commander, is taking a course at the Cooks and Bakers School. We all wish him good luck. —"Red"

JAN. 18 TO JAN. 25, INCL.

FRIDAY, JAN. 18

"HOW TO HANDLE WOMEN," starring Glen Tryon and Marion Nixon in one continued roar of laughter. It's about a smart alec who came from the country with his bag of tricks; he used 'em all in winning the girl who caught his fancy. He posed as a prince, got away with it, and put over the biggest deal in peanuts in the history of the country—sounds funny—it is funny—one of the funniest farces on the screen.

"Sunny Italy." Fables.

SATURDAY, JAN. 19

"THE AVENGING RIDER," starring Tom Tyler in a different type of story. It is a mystery western. The foreman of a ranch falls heir to a half interest when the owner is mysteriously murdered. The ranchman's daughter is heir to the other half; when these two meet, assumed enmity exists. The plot continues to thicken until the girl's ardent but unscrupulous suitor is discovered. In this picture you'll find Tom as good a lover as he is a thriller in action in the saddle.

"Collegians No. 6."

SUNDAY, JAN. 20

"KING OF KINGS," screen masterpiece of the year featuring more than a score of the best known movie celebrities. It is a splendid, beautiful and massive spectacle, depicting the greatest tragedy the world has ever known. It is an immortal, emotional, reverent drama, graphically portraying the final months of the life of Jesus. Among the scenes are his betrayal, the last supper, trial before Pilate, the condemnation, the Via Dolorosa, the crucifixion, and finally the Resurrection. This stupendous picture was produced at a cost exceeding $2,500,000. Included in the par excellent cast are Warner, Varconi, Boyd, Rudolph, Joseph Childerkraut, Edson, Torrence and many other notables of the screen.

Metro Goldwyn Mayer News.

MONDAY, JAN. 21

"DO YOUR DUTY," starring Charlie Murray in a laughable farce comedy which is guaranteed to thoroughly dispell the Blues. It is the story of a police sergeant who is framed by a crook and demoted after being made a lieutenant. How he gets even by capturing the crook and exhonorating himself forms a picture chuck full of chuckles, laughs and excitement.

"Tarzan The Mighty," from the famed Tarzan stories by Edgar Rice Burroughs. These stories portray primitive man in the primeval jungle, hoards of wild ferocious beasts, lions, leopards, tigers, elephants and gorillas. The hero embodies an ideal, the heroine is brave and beautiful. Strange natives are shown indulging in weird and mysterious rites.

TUESDAY, JAN. 22

"YELLOW CONTRABAND," featuring Leo Maloney in an eastern-western dope-smuggling mystery. It is from the story by Ford I. Babe, and is one of the most peculiar plots ever screened. Much of the melodrama takes place in a little Montana cow town into which come several Chicago gunmen; they encounter a similar number of cowboys who do not approve of the attitude of the gangsters. The smugglers are driven back to the Chicago underworld where intrigue is rampant. This is the type of story which gives you stiff fingers from gripping your chair.

"First Prize." Cameo Comedy.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 23

"HIT OF THE SHOW," a mighty drama of life behind the footlights starring Gertrude Olmstead, Joe Brown, Gertrude Astor and Daphne Pollard,

Scene from "THE HIT OF THE SHOW"

all of whom have had intimate experience on the legitimate stage. This pulsating story carries you to the tinsel and glitter of the great white way in New York. It depicts with realism the enter-lives of those who strive to entertain the world. It's the first night of the scandals, the crowd has gone wild in its applause—yet, backstage a little dancer is dying because he was man enough to sacrifice himself for the happiness of the girl he loved. This is considered a highly absorbing picture.

THURSDAY, JAN. 24

"FREEDOM OF THE PRESS," starring Lewis Stone with Marceline Day with an excellent cast in a captivating romance possessing intrigue and thrills. It concerns the expose of tremendous graft and involves gunmen, crooked politicians and clean fearless journalism in America. While the underworld murdered the editor of a newspaper and bombed the building, the presses ground on, turning out the story exposing the king of the underworld whom society knew as a social leader. This is a powerful melodrama.

"Smile, Buttercup, Smile." Boots and Casper.

FRIDAY, JAN. 25

"STRANGE CASE OF CAPTAIN RAMPER," a Defu production staged in Europe, containing an entire foreign cast. This timely story concerns an aviator explorer who set out for the north pole, only to have his plane crash amid the wastes of Artic ice. His mechanic dead, he lived alone with only the polar bears to remind him that there were other living things in the world. After fifteen years he was found by whalers and mistaken for a strange Arctic ape man, was taken back to Europe and sold to a circus as a side show curosity; a great scientist restores his mind and he emerges as the lost aviator, Ramper. He sees modern civilization around him with new eyes—its misery, cruelty and disgusting humans. This is considered one of the most weird and fascinating of films coming out of Germany.

SOJOURNERS CLUB WILL HOLD MEETING; ELECTION OF OFFICERS NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

The Fort Benning chapter of the Sojourners Club will meet at the Polo Club Monday evening at which time will occur the annual election of officers. The nominating committee has announced candidates for the various officers to be elected. Another guessing contest will be held similar to the one at the meeting last month. All members of the club are urged to attend. Notify Capt. Ambrose, 3rd section, Academic Dept., Phone 43.

POST EXCHANGE RESTAURANT RE-OPENED AFTER BEING REMODELED

The Post Exchange restaurant, which was closed for repairs early in December, 1928, was re-opened January 14th. A wonderful change has been made. The interior is beautifully decorated, tables and lunch counter are spotless white, while the service is excellent.

The restaurant is now operated under the management of the Post Exchange, Corp. N. Cacramo of the Inf. School Detachment, in charge.

With all modern equipment and a staff of cooks that have years of experience back of them, the Post Exchange restaurant is equal in every way to the cafes and restaurants of the city.

ENTERTAINS IN HONOR CHIEF OF INFANTRY.

Major-General Robert Allen, Chief of Infantry, was the guest of General and Mrs. Edgar T. Collins during his visit to Fort Benning last week. On Friday at noon Col. and Mrs. Paul C. Galleher entertained at luncheon in his honor. Their guests were General Allen, General and Mrs. Collins and Col. Willard.

Complimenting Major-General Allen Col. and Mrs. Harry E. Knight were hosts at a beautiful dinner party on Friday evening at their home on Austin Loop. Covers were laid for General Allen, General and Mrs. Collins, Col. Marshall, Major and Mrs. Stayer.

Many lovers of artistic entertainment were charmed on Thursday evening by the songs of the great Spanish singer Gil Valeriano, and their accompaniment so skilfully rendered by Miss Ola Lee Gulledge. Miss Gulledge is a noted pianist and this is her second appearance before Columbus and Fort Benning audiences as accompanist of Metropolitan Opera singers. Miss Gulledge is the sister of Mrs. Lee M. Hester, who is an excellent musician in her own rights.

* * *

Col. and Mrs. Paul Stanley Bond, who made innumerable friends at Benning and in Columbus during their service here, have spent the past week in Columbus, where they have been honored by a continuous round of social courtesies.

* * *

The Dexter-Rice weddiing, which takes place next Tuesday afternoon at Trinity Episcopal church, is of wide interest to civilian and army friends of this popular young couple. Capt. Rice will have as his best man Capt. Stonewall Jackson, and Captain Ralph Pearson, Capt. Joseph Sweet, Capt. Frank McCoy, Capt. Curtis De Ware, Lt. Bernard Byrne and Lt. Le Grand Diller will act as groomsmen.

* * *

Fort Benning musical talent is conspicuous on the program of the Orpheus Club's annual banquet on next Tuesday evening at the Muscogee Club. Capt. Cecil L. Rutledge, Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd and Mrs. Richard D. Dougherity will sing and Mrs. John F. Holland will play the violin.

* * *

Mrs. Peggy Jones Jerome, of Tacoma, Washington, is expected the latter part of this week for a visit to her brother and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Alan W. Jones.

Mrs. Hardee, who spent Christmas with her son and daughters, Lt. and Mrs. David L. Hardee and Miss Lucy Hardee, left Monday for her home in Stem, N. C.

* * *

Honoring Miss Elizabeth Beecher, of Hastings, Nebraska, who has been their house-guest for several weeks, Capt. and Mrs. Adrian R. Brian were hosts at a cabaret dinner on Thursday evening at their home. Their guests included Capt. and Mrs. Roger Williams, Capt. and Mrs. Heavy, Capt. and Mrs. Venable, Lt. and Mrs. Mood, Lt. and Mrs. Sander, their guest Mrs. Ernberg, Miss Beecher, Miss Torrey, Major Miley, Lt. Miley, Lt. Griffeth, Lt. Grubbs, Lt. Strohbein.

Honoring Mrs. Ernberg and Miss Elizabeth Beecher, Mrs. Ben Venable was hostess at a delightful luncheon at the Log Cabin on Thursday. Covers were laid for Miss Beecher, Mrs. Ernberg, Mrs. Sander, Mrs. Brian and Mrs. Venable. After luncheon the party went to the Grand to see "The Air Circus."

Mrs. Owen Rhoads, Mrs. A. J. Nichols and Mrs. LeRoy W. Yarborough were joint hostesses at the meeting of the 29th Infantry Bridge Club on Tuesday afternoon. The tea table was overlaid with an elegant canton cloth and had for its centerpiece a low green crystal bowl of lovely white carnations and fern. Four silver candlesticks surrounded it, holding tall green tapers. There were five tables of players and Mrs. R. A. Case won first prize, Mrs. Alfred Brandt, second. After the game congealed salad was served with cheese wafers and coffee.

Mrs. Sereno Brett entertained the ladies of the Tanks at her home on Tuesday afternoon. There were three tables of players and those winning the prizes were Mrs. Lawrence A. Dietz, first; Mrs. W. A. Smith, second; Mrs. James Taylor, third. At the conclusion of the game a salad course was served with tea.

* * *

The Artillery bridge club met with Mrs. S. F. Clark at her home. Mrs. Clark won first prize, Mrs. Lloyd Jones, second.

* * *

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. W. L. Reed honored her sister, Miss Lily Blackford, of Asheville, N. C., with a charming three-table bridge party. Pivot bridge was played and pots of pink begonias in full blossom were given as table prizes.

Mrs. Daniel G. Berry is receiving congratulations from her many friends on her prize-winning story published in the Christmas issue of the Army and Navy Journal.

Miss Agnes Kendrick Gray is expected the latter part of the week for a visit to Col. and Mrs. Ralph W. Kingman. Miss Grey comes for her second appearance before the Woman's Club, where on Monday afternoon she will give a program of her own poetry.

* * *

Miss Elizabeth Beecher, who is visiting her brother and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Adrian R. Brian, leaves Sunday for New York, where she will study voice and journalism at Columbia University.

* * *

Children and grown-ups alike are interested in the coming on next Thursday of Tony Sarg and his famous Marionettes. He will give two performances at the auditorium of the Columbus High School, the one in the afternoon being especially for children. At this time among other things he will present Little Red Riding Hood. Many of us have perhaps seen him in New York or elsewhere and know that his entertainments are absolutely matchless in his realm. He is the master of all Marionette makers.

* * *

Mrs. Emil W. Leard and Mrs. A. R. C. Sander were hostesses to Pan-Hellenic on Thursday of last week. Mrs. Leard's home was the place of meeting and Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd won first prize. Mrs. S. F. Clark second. Pan-Hellenic will meet next on Friday, Feb. 1st, with Mrs. Michael Halloran and Mrs. Elam L. Stewart, as joint hostesses.

* * *

Mrs. J. C. Baker left yesterday for Los Angeles and San Francisco, where she will visit with relatives for several weeks. She will attend the wedding of her sister in Los Angeles.

* * *

Major and Mrs. W. L. Roberts have returned from Parkersburg, West Va., where they were called by the sickness and death of Mrs. Roberts' mother, Mrs. A. C. Adair.

* * *

Major D. H. Torrey and family left the first of the week for Florida, where they will visit several points of interest during the next few weeks.

Place—Polo Club.
Date—First and Third Mondays.
Next Meeting—January 21st.
Time: 2:15.

On next Monday afternoon the Woman's Club will have a program of exceptional interest. Miss Agnes Kendrick Gray, of New York and Atlanta, will give us a program of her poetry. Miss Gray, daughter of the late Col. W. W. Gray, M. C., and Mrs. Gray, is a noted young poet whose meritorious work has won international recognition. She has a radiant personality and a lovely musical voice, the combination of which with her keen intellectual appreciation, makes her interpretation of her own poetry most delightful. Not every one who writes can read with such charm, so it is with keenest anticipation that the Woman's Club looks forward to its next meeting.

Mrs. Leonard R. Boyd, whose beautiful lyric soprano voice is known and loved, will sing a group of songs and Mrs. Ercil D. Porter, a gifted musician, will give a group of piano solos.

It will be the pleasure of the Woman's Club on this occasion to share the pleasure of Miss Gray's coming with The Students Club and The Reading Club of Columbus, in appreciation of special courtesies they have extended to our club.

After the program tea will be served.

MRS. JEAN CLAIRE MACKIE

Many are the hearts bowed in grief over the untimely death on last Friday, January 11, of lovely Jean Mackie, wife of Captain Robb S. Mackie, Jr., which occurred at her apartment in Wynnton after five days' illness of pneumonia.

Mrs. Mackie, only twenty-eight years of age, was like a ray of sunshine, a flash of color on the horizon. She was the veritable embodiment of youth, and radiated vitality. She loved the out-of-doors and was an ideal sportswoman, riding and golfing ever and anon with the best of them. She was quick and capable, and so joyous in her nature that all unpleasantness seemed to fade away at her coming. She had a lovely way of saying charming things to everybody and, though she was not easy to know intimately, she made all who met her casually wish to know her well.

In her home she was an immaculate housekeeper, and a most gracious hostess. If flowers bloomed anywhere they were sure to bloom for her, for she loved them so. Her fine nine-year old son, Bobbie, shows by his good gentlemanly behavior that she was a careful, loving, and excellent mother, tireless in her efforts for her son's well-being.

On Monday afternoon, at three o'clock in the Protestant chapel, funeral services were conducted for her by her friend and neighbor, Chaplain John R. Wright. The chancel was banked with a myriad flowers in pastel shades and around her coffin was a circle of radiant yellow roses, her best loved flowers, which seemed to catch the sunshine of the open spaces so dear to her. She was laid to rest in our little cemetery on the hill beneath a mount of exquisite flowers, which bore loving testimonial of the high esteem in which she was held.

The STUDENT

(By H. M. G.)

The mighty "Guisement" has fallen! Proud symbol of terrain in the indefinite and emotion in the concrete as it were, it will no longer lead on weary sketches. A new battle cry has arisen. Its clarion call has been heard and there is rejoicing on all reservations, posts and other restricted areas where combat orders are one of the elective subjects. But think of the boon, think of the time saved, five paragraphs of a field order reduced to one word. War with its multitudinous orders all depending "upon the situation," solved in two syllables and one breath! War made simple and breath saved for other purposes.

The early history of this remarkable discovery is as follows: In the beginning of the subject of combat orders, Col. Hoop emphasized the value of overlays and the necessity for brevity.

Later during the problem in the field he pointed out that the officer was under fire, that he wouldn't be formal and verbose as laid down in the five paragraphs, but brief, possibly guttural, at least unsystematical. But it is hard to give up the teachings of ages and so the student body still clung to the five paragraphs of a perfect order. Then came the examination on Tuesday on the subject of combat orders.

The situation required pages to unfold its varied ramifications, sector boundaries, lines of departure, main lines of resistance, distributing points, etc. We assembled our subordinate commanders, made a careful reconnaissance and overlays and we wrote volumes. When the solution was handed to us it contained three lines in place of volumes and it referred the subordinate commander to overlays.

Reluctantly it dawned on us that brevity assisted by an overlay was desired. Now came the discovery. In future wars, while shot and shell are disturbing the guisement we will lead our subordinate commanders to the top of the highest contour and there pointing to the enemy we will cry: "APO," AP meaning apply and O meaning overlay, hence APO, apply overlay. And that's all they are going to get out of us.

On Tuesday also we fired magazine guns at toy ballons. Shades of Buffalo Bill! Oh what a day was Tuesday!

GENERALITIES FROM THE ENGINEERS

The Seventh Engineers; the "Natural" Enginers. Study your dice games for a solution to the above.

"Sonny Boy" Dickerson has failed in his effort to be discharged on account of disability (so the boys say.) He missed losing his foot because the axe was undoubtedly dull after "Chick" had cut down a few nice tough pines. With our beloved leader missing Sunday, the "rain gods" decreed wet grounds. DePratt and company fell Tuesday however. Final score: Engineers, 3; "H" Co., 29th Inf., 0. The question that is puzzling most soccer fans is: "Why do wet grounds postpone a soccer game?" The prodigous tales of games played in blizzards, cloud-breaks and on fields of ice, have stirred the imaginations of the fans. If a short timer in the post can answer that question, an award of one minature field piece will be made by whoever is interested in finding out.

In compliance with request on page one, last issue, the above is respectfully submitted for publication. —R. B. R.

MUSKETEERS DEFEAT LEVY-MORTON QUINTET IN FAST GAME 45 TO 35

In a game that was featured by the floorwork of the Musketeers' star guards, Kammerer and Franz, and the deadly shooting of Johnnie Roosma, Musketeer ace, the Musketeers defeated the Levy-Morton five of Columbus on the Columbus High School court Wednesday night in a fast game 45 to 35.

Though winning by a 10 point margin, the game was no set-up for the Musketeers. The Electrician five is composed of ex-college stars that know and play the game. Arenowich starred for the Levy-Mortons, accounting for 16 points and playing a great game both defensive and offensive.

Johnnie Roosma just wasn't missing. When the old pellet was passed to him, it simply went up, over and through the old hoop for a marker. Realizing that Johnnie was in top form, the Musketeers fed the ball to him at every opportunity and he ran true to form by accounting for 27 of the Musketeer points.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

Announcement Digest

Below is brief information concerning examinations announced by the United States Civil Service Commission within the past few days.

Both men and women may enter any examination; appointing officers, however, have the legal right to specify the sex desired in requesting certification of eligibles.

The salaries named are entrance salaries. Higher-salaried positions are filled through promotion.

Further information may be obtained from the Commission at Washington, D. C., or its representative at the post office or customhouse in any city.

Senior Stenographer, $1,620 a year, and Senior Typist, $1,440 a year, Departmental Service, Washington, D. C. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., not later than February 11. The examination consist of spelling, copying from plain and tabular copy (typewriting), copying from rough draft (typewriting), stenography, and letter writing, except that those who apply for senior typist will not be given the test in stenography. As the District of Columbia and the States of Deleware, Maryland, Vermont, and Virginia have received an excess of appointments under the apportionment law, residents thereof will not be admitted to these examination under this announcement.

Junior Stenographer, $1,440 a year, Junior Typist, $1,260 a year, Departmental Service, Washington, D. C. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., not later than February 4. The examination consist of spelling, copying from plain copy (typewriting), copying from rough draft (typewriting), stenography, penmanship, and letter writing, except that those who apply for the junior typist examination will not be given the test in stenography. As the District of Columbia and the states of Deleware, Maryland, Vermont, and Virginia have received an excess of appointments under the apportionment law, residents thereof will not be admitted to these examinations under this announcement.

Dietitian, $1,800 to $2,100 a year, hospitals of the Public Health Service and the Veterans' Bureau throughout the country. Certain specified education and training required. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., not later than July 1. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on their education, training, and experience, on a scale of 100.

Physiotherapy Aide, $1,800 to $2,100 a year, hospitals of the Public Health Service and the Veterans' Bureau throughout the country. Certain specified training and experience required. Applications must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., not later than February 5. The examination consists of practical questions, 50 per cent.; and education, training, and experience, 50 per cent.

A LETTER ON MONOGRAPHS

Dere Ed,

We shure got a carful of monologues this morning when some wabbly brained guy in the A Class unbosomed themselves on the rostrum of As you were Hall No. 2. First Keptain Looking told us a mouthful about a dead guy monokered Churchill, for whom they named the plans, where you lost your shirt betting last spring. This Churchill musta had a pleece record cause he went by an alias of Marlbro and from all that this feller Looking said he musta been strong with the women. Why ed he even had um giving him handouts of thousands of shekels. Think it over Ed. When Looking got thru telling us how good this Churchill chap was a little guy named Sharpfeller took up the white man's burden. He looked scared but I could hear him over the shaking of the platform and I gathered there was a revolution around heres sometimes ago. It seems like some people were killed in it too.

Then came the windup with a kepten named Dago. He told us sum more about the revolution and it shure did mix up my histry. A hull bunch of different guys were running around with British and bache armies, and they'd fite and run and fite sum more with some other guys. Micks, Colornials and Mile' something or other mostly under a guy named Washremkum. He musta been a Indian. Then this Dago feller had Lincoln mixed into it. I thot Lincolon kummanded in the World War but maybe I'm rong. He had it all gummed up, N. Y. Nite Clubs, Jersey musketos in S. Carolina and what will you have. Anyhow Ed it was good while it lasted.

SMALL PROBLEMS FOR INFANTRY

(By I. Gotta Ess)
Jan. 16, 1929

Dear Ike,

I was rite glad to receive your vote. That makes us over 80 per cent in favor of USING tanks while we got em. Incidendly, Roberts gave us another sitooation on Holliday Hill and in that one he admits ony two tanks get there and get "crocked" by Major Marr's artillery which, this time, registurs in 5 minutes, akording to Roberts. Both Roberts and Ryder are most plesant fellers, Ike. Dont mistake my remarks to indikate utherwise. The class calls 'em the Two Tall Topers fum the Tactical section, which indikates their standing. Cook has found these two, but they need "fixin."

Wun problem is still out, and aint cum back yet. Its the TACK problem. You remember Tack is the one who interdooced himself to the class with the remark that "the class wuzent to make any puns with his name cause he was with the 1st Section?" Well no-one has bin able to konect him in any way with ennything tacticul. That's no pun, either. The class states that; officially, much as we love puns—and coffee. I reckon he is still hunting cross-road 421. Slim Stephens told him it wasnt where he said it was, but Tack is positive, if nothing else; so he may still find his way home.

Now Ike, dont let this monygraff business worry you. It is all just a big "hooey" to stimulate battle-conditions in the student mind, while the skule socks em with marked ones. The ony bothersome thing is the two who "skin" the monygraffers. They sit back in the room with a box bilt around their armrests so's they wont see whut each other gives each student, and thereby be unfare?, and they look like a pair of buzzards waitin fer the monygraffer to croak. Its hard to get the wun on the east side to smile—the other wun is hewman.

Speekin of monygraffs, the Chief of Infantry wuz here and put over a pippin. It was good. It wuz a river-crossin and very instructive. Sum of us has got six or more rivers to cross—in 25 minutes, Ike. An whuts more I cant swim-so well either. Ive found out where you ring the buzzer whut shuts off the long-winded monygraffers, so next time wun of these instrukters who hangs on to dang long, tryin to spoil my sleep, becomes annoying; Im gonna buzz him loose fum that platform.

Ike, just before Xmas the Asst. Commandant gave us a good line on not "playing problems to an instructor" and I took it to hart, an fit three on the basis of sitooation-ground-troops. They are out yet, and so am I "out" They kin have my reserves fum now on. All I need to heer is sum little sounds like "unable to advance"—"lost 30 per cent."—"used your support platoons" and Ill give em reserves, and in addition ride my flivver home in reverse.

Ike, you know, Ed. Harlihy, dont you? Well rite him a letter an tell him you would like to add youre plea to mine fer him to keep his seet at leest thru ONE confurance. He's got Dahlquits full f the itch and Burress is fast getting on easy. Ike, aint that like a mashene-gunner? Always giving away his position and drawing fire? Ike, as a class we are loosing prestige,—cant hang our hats in the same room with the instruktors enny more. Ben Feris followed Major Bull the other day and cracked a wise one that "since we had just had an hour of Bull, he wud now talk on reer guards." If hed ony stay and listen to whut Major Bull put over he mite learn sumpin. Whut used to be the prize "bunk" subjekt here was put over in fine stile by this lil feller "Bull." He even got a glad hand at the end of his last talk.

Enny-one who gets a glad hand out of this mob of cut-throtes is GOOD. The mounted folks so far is the onyones who hev got it. . . . H. J. M. Smith and Bull.

Ike, they giv us our "standing" to date a few days ago. You know me Ike, I gotta ess all the way thru. The evvelups wuz marked "seckret and confidenshul" but it wasnt a sekret long. Some compared marks, others got red ears an sed nuthin, and some went out and got the "works" at the barber shop, so you see we are a "representatif" crowd.

Im writin on the typeriter, Ike, cuz my handritin is poor, and my frend Elam at the News Office reads worse, an hashed up my last letter. I guess you wont get all I rote this week, Ike as I see Elam is short uv space and Id rather you go ignorunt then fer me to krowd the soldiers news colyum short.

Dont pay no atenshun to the child who rites fer the cumpny class, he hez "slammed" the advance class already and we didnt do nuthin but make him wate a few minutes til we got to the asembley hall. Whuts more Ike, when WE wuz yung an green an low-rankin we waited sum, an liked it, eh Ike?

Yours hopin fer an ess,

"Rite on the Nose."

INFANTRY SCHOOL DETACHMENT

Master Sergeant Jansen, known to his many friends as "Pop," left Fort Benning last Wednesday for Little Rock, Ark., where he will spend sixty days on furlough.

Sheik Salome has returned to the I. S. D. after an absence of one year. He is a wizard in sole-saving and K P chasing.

Pfc. Samuel Chambers has returned from a nice long furlough up in Tennessee. Glad to see you back on the Benning Limited again Sammy.

The cook-shack is about the musicalist place we know of in the Detachment. Two victrolas, one harmonica and now Hook Wise is purchasing a one tube radio set.

Some talk that Shotgun White wants to go to China. Nothing doing "Shotgun" until after baseball season, for this is the season that the Special Units are going to be seen, heard and felt and second base will need you every minute.

An extra duty has been put upon the shoulders of the "Charge-O-Quarters" of the Infantry School Detachment. This duty though very light, is one that has to be carried out several times each evening. Rummy is the favorite pastime among the members of the N. C. O. Club of the Detachment. Most of the rummy players are old-timers that consider no pastime complete without a certain amount of "growling." For the benefit of these "growlers" a crying room has been reserved in a little nook of the club room and now when any one begins growling the non-com in charge of quarters is summoned and the growler is shown to the "Crying room."

SAN JUAN — SEMPER PARATUS

"HAM'S" NEW CAR

While the writer was making his careful way across the street to headquarters this morning he was disturbed by a loud honk from an auto horn. Looking up quickly we saw that the car was at least a hundred yards away, so we proceeded deliberately.

As we reached the other side of the street the car passed, and in passing, sounded its horn long and loud. Annoyed, we turned to have a look at the driver. The car was a new Franklin sedan, and it took only a half look to see that the driver was Lt. Harold (Ham) S. Kelly. Straight down the road this gentleman was peering. He knew we were watching him, but he didn't think that we knew that he knew it. We more than likely would have seen the car anyway, horn or no horn, and we would have seen him in it too. But even at that we have seen new cars before, and other handsome men driving them.

This is the second time we have seen Lt. Kelly in the regimental area. The other time was when the officers of the regiment had their photographs taken. Later in the day we again saw this officer. This time he saw us from afar; waved his hand in friendly greeting, and seemed perfectly at home in the car he was then driving; seemed fitted to its environments, and we could see that this car was his own, and all four of her sylinders appeared to be hitting perfectly.

PVT. COSMER CARTER

It is with regret that we announce the death of Pvt. Cosmer Carter, Military Police Detachment, which occurred on January 11.

Funeral services were held at the Fort Benning Protestant chapel last Saturday afternoon, and services were conducted by Chaplain Wright.

The following members of the I. S. D. acted as pallbearers: Privates Bodie, Fannin, McCoy, Gilliland, Duke and Penland. The remains were taken to Blytheville, Ark., the home of Private Carter, for interment. Sgt. Mowery escorted the remains.

The many friends of Private Carter, both at Fort Benning and Columbus extend sympathy to the bereaved family of the deceased.

SALLY-PORT DESIGN

Ornamentation designed by the A and R officer and executed by the Regimental draftsman, Sgt. Davis, over the Sally Port leading into Regimental headquarters, tends to relieve the bareness of the entrance and acts as a guide to visitors.

It consists of two words, Regimental Headquarters, in twelve-inch letters made of wood and gilded bronze. Beneath it are two crossed rifles, also made of wood and gilded the same color. It provides a striking contrast to the barrack walls and the general effect is very beautiful.

SOCCER

Soccer football has taken a strong hold on the men of the 29th and already four companies have entered teams in the post league. The remainder of the outfits are busy learning the game under the supervision of men who have played the game on the outside.

The companies entering teams from the regiment are Howitzer, H. D. and B. As soon as the men from the regiment have learned to play the game, they will have a league of their own.

CAPT. GODFREY'S VISIT

Capt. John T. Godfrey, of the Royal Engineers, and Assistant British Military Attache at Washington, has been visiting for the past few weeks at Fort Benning.

He was taken on a tour of inspection of the 29th Infantry area by Capt. P. R. Goode of the 29th Regimental Staff and the English visitor is quoted as saying that "never had he seen more comfortable looking barracks nor one better designed to meet the needs of troops in peace time."

While passing through the quarters of the Howitzer Company, he complimented Capt. Roads, company commander, on the exceptional cleanliness of the barracks.

"H" CO. DEMONSTRATION

"H" Company, 29th Infantry, put on a "sign-board" demonstration for the benefit of the Infantry School last Monday. Careful rehearsal was given the company in the forenoon so that no hitch might occur when the class of student officers were studying them. The demonstration was of a machine-gun company, its duties, personnel and methods of going into action as a war or peace-time unit.

The company formed in war strength and at the approach of the class, came to attention. The instructor introduced the demonstration unit: "Company 'H,' 29th Infantry, Captain Nichols commanding." The company commander saluted and gave the company "at ease." The remainder of the demonstration was executed "at ease" except when the individuals' rank and duties were enumerated, when they came to attention, after which they immediately returned to the position of "at ease."

The instructor then gave a short talk on organization in general and described the elements making up the component parts of the company. As each individual or group was brought to the attention of the class he or they, as the case might be, came to attention and raised their right hand, holding this position until a new subject was brought up, after which they resumed their former position.

Finishing this, the instructor then discussed squad organization, using a previously designated squad and marching them to the front of the company and nearer the class in order that the class might observe more closely the reaction to commands.

The company was then brought down to peace strength by a certain portion of the personnel falling out to the rear of the company and out of the way for the time being.

The instructor then called the roll of the elements in the company precisely as he did in the war strength company save that the personnel was now smaller.

A short period was now devoted by the instructor in discussing road space and in the meanwhile the company formed in march column giving the class a chance to view them in this position. The company then reformed in war strength, and took up a combat formation. The instructor then briefly discussed the command group and called the roll of the elements.

The company then simulated action and each move was made at the instigation of the instructor and thoroughly explained by him to the class.

1st Bn. Hdqrs. and Hdqrs. Co.

For some reason the attraction at the Service Club which has been drawing Pfc. Kidd every evening seems to have left, for he doesn't go over there very often the last few days.

Private Dennis Brown has stepped out in a new pair of slacks, and believe me when I say that he sure struts his stuff in the evening now. 'Bout the hottest thing in town.

Pfc. Taylor seems to have the wrong idea as to what the soldiers like to eat. The other day he tried cooking his face, instead of the chicken that we were having that day. He sure is one slick guy now, 'cause his face is well greased.

Private Bennett is getting a little training in the kitchen these days. It doesn't seem to be worrying him any though. Says as long as he is in there he doesn't have to do anything else.

Lieut. Harris is attending the Cooks and Bakers School and we are all waiting for some cakes or pies.

Lieut. Pulliam has returned from the hospital and has assumed command of our company. We are all very glad to see him back, and looking well. There is one thing that makes him mad though. The doctor has ordered no riding of horses for him, so when there is a parade he has to stay at the company.

Our basketball team made a fair showing against Company "B" the other day, as showings go. We didn't win, but we had a game that was hard fought all the way. Company "C" is our next opponent. We are planning on taking them into camp.

Pfc. Pavlovsky decided that he couldn't get enough heat from the stove so he fired up a little more and the next thing heard was the fire call. Sgt. Justice became so excited that it was thought for a while that some one would have to catch him to keep him from going wild. Cpl. Lovelace was chasing up and down the street after fire extinguishers. Altogether everyone was excited and nothing serious happened except to burn a small hole in the top of the tent.

Company "A"

Someone said that "A" Company had gone crazy. Well some have gone half crazy! We have a golf team that has requested me to challenge any team in the post. Our team has been practicing for some time and they think that—oh, well, let's have a tournament!

Our platoon basketball teams have been doing very good and they defeated "D" Company in the last play-off.

Discharges for the week are: Pfc. Sago and Pvt. James I. Smith. Pfc. Sago ree-nlisted. —G. C. R.

Company "B"

Quite a bit of interest has been aroused among the personnel of Company "B" over the platoon basketball teams. Games have been played between our platoon teams and similar teams of 1st Battalion Hdqrs. Co., "A" Co., and "C" Co., all of which we won by overwhelming scores. The platoons have played each other several times and the 2nd platoon has acquired an outstanding reputation. They have never lost a game within the company or outside of it.

Notice: If anyone desires to know the anatomical effect caused by Sterno's Canned Heat, let them ask Pvts. Carver and Helton, (the Windjammer Twins.) These thrill-seekers have risked their lives, without hesitation, for the sake of scientific research on that subject, (or maybe it was for some other reason than research.)

There must have been a great reduction in the price of Essex cars, as two of our notable sergeants have purchased them recently, although we have been told that they had to re-enlist to do so.

Company "C"

Sergt. Hayes, our beloved Supply Sergeant, returned Tuesday from a furlough of seventy-five days, which he spent in the wilds of Kansas.

Corporal Aiken returned Tuesday from the hills of Alabama, where he spent his vacation. After spending several years in the service, Corporal Aiken has decided to purchase his discharge and settle down in civilian life. Is he in love?

Pvt. Rogers was discharged Saturday and departed for his home in Mississippi where he will help on the farm until he is of age. He intends to re-enlist as soon as he is of age.

Will write more next week. The buglers are taking their afternoon nap, and must not be disturbed.

Company "D"

Sergt. Gaines has taken on another three year "stack." The wise remark made some time ago which would be better "to look at the 1st Sgt. or his dad's face each morning seems to be sliding toward the top-kick. Glad to have you stick with us Sarge, and may you live through it all.

We regret very much to see Pfc. Mathes leave for Fitzsimons hospital but the "Pill-Rollers" know their business; at least we hope so and may your visit be a short one.

There must be a new doll in town. Sgt. Veale keeps looking sweet-like and town seems to be his "weakness" now.

The followiing changes have taken place the last week: Pfc. Faircloth and Pfc. Kennedy, A., were appointed Corporals and Pvts. Allred, Desselle and Saizan appointed Privates First Class. Congratulations to you all.

The galloping "Third Platoon" is on another rampage, having flunked its standard of having the best team after its numerical downfall of third place in the company basketball league. At least Co. "C" can feel well out of place having succumbed to the number of balls that passed through the loop. They can shine if they so desire.

Pvts. Denmark and Holtyclaw have decided that the company is Home-Sweet-Home and the idea of fall-in and fall-out can be done away with.

—Swan.

Headquarters Company

Congratulations this week are extended to Captain Barker. He was promoted to captain from 1st Lieutenant and although coming a little too late for a Christmas present, the promotion was welcome just the same.

"Granny" Haigler, our big grumble and growl man, is also deserving credit for his promotion to pilot. Anyone desiring to congratulate "Granny" will find him at his office at the 29th Inf. corrals any time during the day. He made the remark the other day that he had been horse back riding and was too tired to sit down. Crazy over horses.

Domingo San Miguel, (what's in a name), the one man vaudeville, impersonates Ben Turpin so good that he is going to buy a brown derby and go on the stage. He can look so cross-eyed that the tears will run down his back and then he has the nerve to say he don't have bacteria.

Everybody in the company has been shining up for the past three or four days. Shoes glitter, buttons and brass hurt the eyes with their bright sparkle. Wonder what can be the trouble? Oh, yes, one vacancy for corporal. Ah well, I guess that this "bucking" is an old Spanish custom too.—R. T. M.

Howitzer Company

Pvt. Chesser was hurriedly called home on account of sickness of his mother. The company hopes that on his arrival home, he will find things very much improved and that it is not serious.

We are all glad to hear that Lieut. Drewry is making rapid strides toward recovery from his recent illness.

Pvt. Betz was honored with a well deserved promotion to Pvt. 1cl. He is acting in the capacity of company clerk during the absence of Cpl. Miller now on furlough.

Sayings around the company are to the effect that, throw something on the floor and the 1st Sgt. will make you one of the finest policemen in the 29th. Do it twice and he will give you a course in mess management far superior than that taken by officers. Do it three times and you will get several different courses, namely, combat principles (pick and shovel) the proper manipulation of fatigue weapons, stable management, barracks hygiene and agriculture (fixing lawns.)

—James P. Johnston.

Service Company

Many disconsolate glances were cast upon our ball by the members of our amateur football team when an automobile ran over our one and only pigskin last Sunday, while the team was practicing punting. It sure looks like the team is headed for the rocks, as it is a long time until Chris Kingle comes around again.

Pfc. Pat Sisco, our wagon repairer at the Service Co. corrals, was Hon. Disch. per ETS on the 3rd, and decided to take on another stack of three years. Stick with us Pat. and you will be highly rewarded in the future. Remember the Alamo.

Sgt. Pope, Boss of the Horseshoer's Union, returned from a thirty-day furlough last Saturday, and many are the mules that are gay.

Lambert, our ex-soldier from Panama, was promoted to Pvt. 1 cl. on the 8th, and our company jester, John L. Evans, says that he is lazy enough to be Master Sergeant.

signing off.

—J. P. Morgan

Second Battalion Hdqrs. Co.

Our basketball team has not been doing so very well but we are still practising and hope to do better when we play the next game.

Our good friend, Sgt. Kjelstrom is out of the game, due to injured arms but is improving rapidly and is expected to be in the lineup soon.

Much interest is being shown in the volley ball teams which play every afternoon in the company street. As yet no other company in the regiment has seen fit to challenge us in our claim for supremacy, so we stand monarch of all we survey. It is a rather lonesome predicament that we find ourselves in as we of necessity play amongst ourselves.

Many of the company basketball teams play their games on the court outside of our squad room and we are thus free to see the young hopefuls perspiring in their efforts to make the battalion team. In other words, free entertainment every afternoon without even leaving our bunks. Pretty soft, what?

Company "E"

There seems to be great interest in the Infantry Rifle team this year in Company "E." We have several men that are anxious to try out for it this year. Sgts. New, Arevalo, Corps. Teeple, Clay and Private first class Hawkins. We hope they all make the team.

We have had a few promotions in the company here of late. Corp. Easterwood was promoted to the grade of Sergeant. Private first class Thomas and Bob George to the grade of Corporal. They are three excellent soldiers.

Private Gus Schiewe has transferred back to the old outfit from the 6th Infantry, Jefferson Barracks, Mo. We are all glad to have him back. Private Lamb was discharged the 11th but decided that the world was to cruel to face, so he remained with Uncle Sam.

Some one ask the three buglers why they have an extra K. P. Sunday, but if you do get ready to duck.

Company "E" has one of the best basketball teams in Fort Benning at the present time. They won their first game of the company league last week from Co. "H." The score was 43 to 14. We expect to walk away with every game in the company league as four of our company team are the regular players on the post team. The post team is beating everything they play except Olsen's Swedes. Company "E" wishes to issue a challenge to any basketball team on the post that can be assembled to play them. The names of Co. "E.'s" basketball team are as follows: Franz, guard; McCallister, guard; Stamper, forward; Oikari, forward; Regan, center; substitutes: Edwards, Miscar, Liebel, Akin, Wallace and Bass. We don't believe there is a team in Fort Benning that can beat this combination.

—I. M. Y.

Company "F"

Old Inbad, the soldier, says that as he was going to work the other morning, he heard a good sign. That is, he heard it and then saw it, since it is a usual procedure for folks to "see' signs, rather than "hear" them.

It was the honking of geese and looking up he saw a flock of about seventeen with their long necks turned northward. Inbad contends that we don't know what winter is, here in the southland, but it gets mighty uncomfortable in December and January and February, he adds.

Yeah, he sure likes to see those migatory fowls winging through the "cold thin atmosphere," toward the north. It means that old Sol has begun his return trip to this hemisphere, in earnest.

Pvt. Hooven has come back from the hospital. He was admitted there October 10, after he had received an injury in a football game, which this organization played with "E" Company. He says that he is glad to be out and that his knee is doing fine, even if it was slow getting that way.

Corporal Hicks said that "Dad" Singletary challenged him to a championship play-off in checkers and that the latter lost. But "Dad" maintains just the opposite.

Company "H"

The thrill seekers of Co. "H," 29th Inf., had the thrills of a lime-time last Friday, Dec. 28th, while out on a well planned Paper chase. Lieut. Strickler laid out the course and organized the chase. All men were mounted on mules (bare-back) most of the time.

The chase started from the Lone Pine on Maxey ridge, by BM26, thence into the woods and circled around between Smyth hill and Singleton hill, back on the road on Riley ridge. At the end of the course was a volley ball which was to be brought back to the company area. The ball changed hands at least a dozen times until Pvt. Ballard recovered a lateral fumbled pass and raced across the goal line for a hard earned first place and two cartoons of cigarettes. Pvt. Martin, L. J., who was in every scrimmage and first to check in at the control station, was awarded second place and a cartoon of cigarettes.

Bass and also "Big" Stephens walked in. Bass had a mule leave him while jumping a ditch and Stephens' mule would not stay under him. Simon tried the swan dive off his mule. I know that Judge would like to have a picture of the act.

Corporal Coates walked into a big job when he was told to bring the cart shed up to Company "H" standard, but don't worry Corporal, we are all going to help and it won't be long now. Just another big job to show our stuff. Let's go.

The recreation room is gradually becoming more and more homelike. Corporal Pieters patiently and consistently guides the ship through one improvement after another. "Another new pool table cloth is coming," says the Corporal, "and those new cue sif," well, he'll get 'em, just watch.

FORT BENNING POLO TEAMS REPRESENTED BY HARD RIDING CLEVER STROKING MALLETMEN; TEAMS WILL PLAY TWO GAMES AT FRENCH FIELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Polo at Fort Benning faces an active season of competition during the coming weeks. Four hard riding, clever stroking teams will compete for the Garrison Polo championship.

The experimental period which began early in November and ended the first of the new year, has put the teams in great shape and has also developed several new players that have added to the strength of the teams.

At the present time there is little to choose between the four teams. The Demonstrationist of the 29th Infantry and the Caisson Riders from the 83rd F. A., have been gratly strengthened since last season by the addition of several star players.

Yellowjacketed Freebooters, last year's champions, led by their hard riding chieftian, Major Lyman, will take the field this year with a team equally as strong as that of last season. Though losing several of last season's veterans, they have acquired several new players that know and play the game, besides having three of last year's players back in position this season.

The Student Four has been displaying a fast brand of polo during the training season. Owing to the size of the squad of candidates out for the team and the many changes made during the games, the real power of the Student malletmen is not known, but the indications are that they will furnish keen competition against oposing malletmen.

Weather permitting, Sunday afternoon, two games of polo will be played on French Field. The first game will be between the Caisson Riders and the Demonstrationists, with the Students and Freebooters mixing and mingling in the night-cap. Riders, mounts and polo fans are anxious for action, no games having been played since the beginning of the Christmas holidays.

Owing to the keen competition for regular positions and the large number of candidates out for the teams this season, the squads are still over-strength and several positions on the teams are still undecided. At the present time the four teams are composed of the following players:

Freebooters: Major Lyman (team captain), Capt. McClure, Capt. Tuttle, Capt. Sweet, Capt. Malone, Capt. Brian, Major Hoge, Lieut. Mood, Lieut. Lockett.

83rd F. A. Bn: Lieut. Guernsey (team captain), Capts. Black, Crane, Clark, Lieuts. Foster, Murphy, Bartlett, Strohbien, Hurt, Avera, Buckley, Grubbs, Oliver.

Students: Capt. Forsythe (team captain), Capt. Baldwin, Lieut. Smith, Lieut. Rees, Lieut. Moore, Lieut. Royce, Capt. Harris.

29th Infantry: Lieut. Jacobs (team captain), Major Taylor, Lieut. Skelton, Lieut. Van Houten, Capt. Halloran, Lieut. Hedekin, Lieut. Strickler.

INFANTRY SCHOOL MUSKETEERS DEFEAT GULF REFINING

Flashing a dazzling offensive drive that never let up during the first half, the Benning Musketeers, dribbled passed and filled the air with a flury of basketballs that sank through the hoops of their opponent's baskets as though drawn by a powerful magnet, to completely swamp the Gulf Refining Co. basketeers at the Garrison gym last Saturday night, and finished the first half with the score 31 to 14 in their favor.

Strickler, at center for the Musketeers, tipped the ball to Franz or Krammerer on the jump. With the ball in their possession, this pair of speed demons, flashed through their opponent's defense to pass the ball to Roosma, who simply wasn't missing. Kammerer flipped a few himself, accounting for twelve of the soldier's points. Stamper was a bit off in looping the baskets, but his great defensive work evened it up and was a big factor in keeping the visitor's score at low tide during the first half.

In the final half Franz and Stamper were taken out and Oikri and Reddock took their place. Both boys played a good game, Reddock scoring four points and Oikri two.

The visitors put up a stubborn battle in the final half, scoring 22 points while the Musketeers could account for only 20, but the big lead in the first half was too much for the visitors to overcome. The final score was 51 to 36 in favor of Benning.

Roosma was high point man with a total of 21,. Nichols, star center for the visitors, trailed Johnnie with 19 to his credit.

Summary:

GIN-EARS DOWN MACHINE GUNNERS IN OPENING SOCCER GAME 3 TO 0

(By Al Durden)

The Benning Soccer League opened at Gowdy Field Tuesday afternoon with the Engineers winning over "H" Company of the 29th Infantry, 3 to 0.

The first half was a scoreless affair with the Gin-Ears keeping the ball in Doughboy territory during most of the half but missing at least four shots for goal. Hobbs, Co. "H" goal keeper, managed to get himself in the way of every shot and then tossed the ball far back into the field. On one occasion, Reynolds of the Gin-Ears missed a fine chance when he had an open kick at close range, in his haste he sent the ball too high over the cross bar.

In the last half both teams carried the ball up and down the field. Five minutes after the opening of the half, Pete Zlotnik followed up on Rowe's long kick to the Doughboy goal line, and sent the ball through for a goal, Pete scored another a moment later when Hobbs overran the ball in front of his goal and Pete kicked it through.

With one minute to play the Gin-Ears worked the ball to the Doughboy goal line. Here a series of pretty passes set the ball up for Reynolds, who kicked it through for the Gin-Ears' third and final point.

CHIEF OF INFANTRY COMBET SQUAD SELECTED

mented upon by judges and competitors. They proved themselves to be the best, following their leader and never questioning his judgment but always ready and obeying his commands with a snap and precision that won for them the coveted position.

The following men composed the squad: Pfc. Bryant, who hails from the land of "Sunshine and Flowers," entered the service in June, 1927. He is an excellent soldier and a fine example of the boys furnished by "Sunny Florida." His home is at Lakeland, Fla.

Being a grocery clerk did not appeal to a youngster down in New Orleans named Ramirez. A glance at the name assure any one of this. A straing of his fighting Spanish ancestors of bygone days must have been handed down to this youngster, who deserted the grocery store to enlist in the service in June, 1928. Within seven months this youngster has qualified as a sharptshooter with the army rifle and is now a member of the Chief of Infantry's Comoat Squad.

Few things happen at Fort Benning without at least one Georgia Cracker being mentioned. Private Hurst, tired of the dusty fields of cotton and corn on the old plantation down in Georgia, in 1926. He put the mule in the lot, hung up the harness and enlisted in the Army. On the rifle range he can send a 30-30 speeding through the center of a bulls-eye from any range. When they entered a squad in competition for the Chief of Infantry's Combat Squad, Pvt. Hurst was a member and he was also a winner.

From the land of the Blue Grass came a young lad in 1926. He had tired of the quiet of life on the farm and yearned for adventure. He entered the army in his quest and though he has crossed no fields under a hail of machine gun fire or charged no parapet with fixed bayonet, he freely admits that he has encountered adventure galore. His latest thrill was to be picked as a member of a prize squad of infantrymen to compete against similar squads of our Uncle's crack Doughboys for the honor of being picked as the Chief of Infantry's Combat Squad. A glance at the picture of the winners will show that Pfc. Biggs of "Kaintucky Suh," is a member.

Pvt. Little completed high school at his home in Glenmore, La., and then enlisted in the army for the 29th Infantry. That has been nearly two years ago. Today he is one of the best drilled, neatest appearing soldiers of the Demonstration Regiment. On the rifle range he qualified as sharpshooter during the past season and his work was a big factor in the success of his squad in the recent competition.

Though at the time no one knew it, twas a fortunate happening for the state of Alabama and especially the town of Seenas, that Pvt. Davidson should hie himself to the recruiting officer and enlistt in the army. That has been one year ago. The prize Combat Squad is composed of men from West Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana and just when it looked as if the "Ole Yellowhammer" state was going to be left out, Pvt. Davidson steps in and upholds the rights and traditions, by winning a place on the Squad.

Last but not least is Pvt. Hogan, another Floridian. Hogan followed the profession of a mechanic in civilian life. He has made an excellent soldier since becoming a member of the Demonstation outfit, in August, 1927. His latest achievement being his winning a place upon the squad.

Only one thing is left to be explained. A few months ago these same men were green recruits. Only expert coaching and instructing could develop this high state of efficiency. To the officer and non-commissioned officers of the organization go the credit for this work. A lion's share of the recent success of the squad is due Lieut. Gailbreath, who as coach, worked untiringly in training the squad to it's present high standard of efficiency. —Al Durden.

ANCIENT ORDER: NOT HIBEHNIANS

Who remembers this?

The editor of "Saber and Spur," a monthly magazine published by the 106th Cavalry, Illinois National Guard, apparently has been delving into musty records, for in a recent issue of that publication the following appears:

Fort Riley, Kansas.
October 25, 1842.

General Orders
Number 2.

1. Members of this command will, when shooting at buffaloes on the parade ground, be careful not to fire in the direction of the C. O's quarters.

2. The troop officer having the best trained remount for this year will be awarded one barrel of Rye Whiskey.

3. Student officers will discontinue the practice of roping and riding buffaloes.

4. Attention of all officers is called to par. 107, A. R., in which it provides under uniform regulations that all officers will wear beards.

5. Short buffalo coats ordered will be ready for issue November 29.

Battery "A"

We welcome back to the battery Privates Todd, Thurston and Priles, who have been in the hospital for some time. We know they were not goldbricking as they spent the holidays there.

There is a blonde headed sergeant in the battery who we call Pete that is carrying a large load on his mind. With only a few days to do and the promise he made the girl not to re-enlist, he has shown signs of absent-mindness to such a degree that he went to get his raincoat the other day, took it off of the hanger, threw it on his bunk and put the coat hanger around his neck. Make up your mind, Pete, before it is too late.

What is the answer to the question of why the Willys Knight stays on the picket line? Blondie where art thou?

We have heard of and tried out lots of alibis but this one wins the medal. The one where the sergeant went to have his teeth fixed stayed AWOL one day and told the skipper that the gas the dentist used caused him to get the deflection, and he could not orient himself and as a result lost all sense of time.

Army Regulations say you shall neither lend nor borrow. But wouldn't you stretch regulations when after several years of planning and studying you have just been made Instrument Sergeant and the tailor shop is closed —and you want to get home and show the wife three stripes (PFD)—now wouldn't you do like Sergeant Wilson, borrow a blouse?

Private Chatman became so excited the other day while "skinning" two Missouri mules to the buckboard that he lost all control of speech (the kind mules understand) and was heard to stutter to Private Sizemore "you you tell tell them them some something." Chuck get you a portable phonograph and have Private Clanton make a special record.

We may not have the largest, nor the oldest, nor the ugliest corporal in the post but we know we have the tallest in Corporal Coffin. Congratulations Slim, here's hoping you continue to climb but not in height.

Sergeant Brown, our supply sergeant, received three one pounders from the battalion supply office last Monday and while having them carried to his office met Private Rudd who wanted to know what size shot guns they were. Sergeant Brown informed him that they were size number 8 and used to kill wild hogs with, and he (Rudd) said "oh gee." Be careful Rudd someone will send you after liquid air.

During inspection Saturday Corporal Chapman's clothing was found short one sock and upon being asked by the lieutenant why replied that he had it on. Brock we know now you are a Scotchman.

We understand that Private Harvey is trying to corner the chewing gum market. Atta boy, Harvey, gum is a lot cheaper than flowers.

Private First Class Peloquin, who will be discharged this month, has decided not to re-enlist as he has learned a trade since joining the army and is going back to New Orleans and engage in the art of shining shoes and brass.

Three lines that always cause pains and growls:

Battalion road march tomorrow.
Dinner in the field.
Full field equipment.

Battery "B"

Battery "B" was again selected to fire a salute. This time the distinguished visitor was Major General Allen, Chief of the Infantry.

We also had the honor of being inspected by the battalion commander and we are proud to say that he seemed pleased with our battery as a whole.

All of us noted that the battery commanders and orderly room had been the subject of a change, but very few expected such a change and shake up in the various sections. Everything got a new owner and everybody a new chief.

Our chaplain, Corporal Morphis, held his usual service under our gun shed. Everyone was all ear. A cimax was expected. Pointing towards Corporal Darby our eminent chaplain exclaimed: "This is a typical American soldier, of course gentlemen, this is only a wooden model."

When we had stopped during the last road march for chow, Private McClendon was heard to ask where he could find water to rinse his hands. We would suggest that he put in to Sergeant Lein for one of those "portable wash basins."

Our hint regarding "Acting Corporal's Stripes" has done its work. Gantt is again an honest to goodness corporal. We are glad to have again a G. I. Corporal. We are kind of tired of those tailor-made ones, who are not so hot around the battery.

Corporal Long returned from his furlough. Our battery commander must have noticed his vigor and have remembered the excellent work Corporal Long has done since his enlistment and now Corporal Long is a sergeant. Boys, this is a goal to shoot at, sergeant in your first enlistment.

When the Battery left the area in its new formation, that is inside out and visa versa, Private First Class Fields was heading the line with guidon upside down attached to the guidon staff. One cannot beat Scopes.

When we saw Private First Class Kersey go out with the battery, we all expected he had the pool tables and radio set with him. We were disappointed, of course. Again a suggestion, why not rebuild one of the maintenance section carriages to carry pool tables and radio sets with us.

After having been chief of various gun sections, Corporal Bailey is now on detached service in the battery. We might call you, our "utility" man, Blitz.

They might go, but they always come back. To prove this statement our cook Gulledge signed up for another three years. You men, who are leaving us shortly, are expected to do the same as Gulledge as we are very anxious to have some real soldiers with us for another three years.

Battery "C"

Corporal Winslow claims that he is being railroaded out of his job by Private McDuff, a former Southern Pacific employee.

We wonder how much veracity there is in the rumor floating about in the battery concerning a certain corporal and a private first class.

Private Wiggins is very jubilant these days. His brother is in recruit center. Just how much did you have to do with his enlisting Bill.

What makes Corporal Flippo blush every time Sergeant Barksdale says Ikie to him.

Ye scribe is soon to be succeeded by an ingenius literarian whose chief topic of script will probably be about railroads as he is a former railway man and his one and only song is "I've been working on the railroad." Private McDuff. —M. L. W.

Hdqrs., Hdqrs. Bat. and Combat Train

Ex-Corporal Derrick, our highly esteemed little athletic, who was on the verge of re-enlisting down New Orleans way for his vacancy, decided a special assignment to the Islands was of more importance. Sorry to lose such a man as you, Pooch, but we all know you shall make good if not better over there.

PFC. S-4 Osbon was discharged on the 12th, taking on again for three more years, and is now over Alabama way spending 90 days with the old gang, leaving all cares to the means and ways of PFC. Bolton.

A road march was held on Monday. From reports Cpl. Arnold received much praise in regards to his section. You sergeants with the distinction of being chief of sections, call around and learn how it's accomplished.

After spending a few days at home, Pvt. Palaskie is again back assisting Uncle Sam in taking care of the Love-Lorn lads with their correspondence.

The basketball championship is still undecided between Battery "C" and Headquarters Battery. Wonder how abou that old game, and the cup, for it has been almost three months now since we have received any trophy.

Pvt. Reed was discharged on the 11th, taking along the growls and chiduns that were so lucky to him. We all miss you Frank, especially your nightly howls.

Sgt. Roper is expecting a call from Columbus on or about January the 29th. Of course its not from the Glee Club, so we are at a total loss as to the cause.

Tramp: Have you a good square meal for a hungry man, missus?

Lady: Yes, and he'll be home presently so you had better go.

DON'T HASTILY JUDGE COAL by either its glitter or dull appearance, for the chemical elements of the earth vary in different localities in which coal is mined and have much to do with its "color."

OFFICERS PURSUE COURSE AT SCHOOL FOR BAKERS AND COOKS

The first class of officers entered the special one month course at the School for Bakers and Cooks on January 2, 1929. This class is now swinging into the home stretch after three weeks of intensive training. One of the first things learned was the importance and necessity of early rising.

At 6:00 A. M., daily, each kitchen witnesses the arrival of the student officers, aprons under their arms and nail files in their pockets, for all students have been thoroughly coached in the golden rule, "Keep your finger nails clean."

The day starts with the serving of Breakfast, the students all assisting (?) the regular cooks. Immediately after breakfast the food for dinner is prepared. Captain O'Connell does not believe in demonstration only, his motto being "Learn by doing," and the students certainly do! Dozens of pies, hundreds of rolls, hams to be boned and skinned by the score, quarters of beef to be cut up, gravies and sauces to make. The four hour period from 6:00 to 10:00 A. M. is filled with many and varied kinds of cooking, carving and baking.

From the kitchen at 10:00 A. M. the students report to the lecture hall, where Captain O'Connell reviews the kinds of cooking demonstrated that morning and then covers the subjects laid out for the day's study.
