ANTI TANK COMPANY - 15TH INFANTRY

IN FRANKENBERG, GERMANY
1945 - 46

TO: OFFICERS AND MEN OF ANTI TANK COMPANY

This book portrays the pictorial history of Anti-Tank Company's occupation of Frankenburg Germany. The purpose of the book is to give you——Officers and Men of Anti-Tank Company—— a pictorial memento of your life while here. It is difficult, at best, to capture in print or picture, the fine spirit manifested here in Frankenburg. It is hoped, however, that as you leaf through these pages in later years, these pictures will revive and sharpen time bedimmed memories of our stay here in Frankenburg.

Let me take this opportunity on behalf of all of you to thank those men whose persistent effort, zeal, and energy made this book a reality. The impetus furnished by 1st Sergeant ROBERT E. ABBOTT, Sergeant HAROLD M. GRODINSKY, Corporal EARNEST G. ROSS, and Private First Class RICHARD G. RUNDELL, has given us and will give us, in years to come, an authentic testimonial to all that we knew in Frankenburg. To you men goes our deepest appreciation.

Thomas M. Lacey, 1st Lt.

COMMANDING OFFICER.

Frankenberg

OUR SITE OF OCCUPATION

The Kreis-town Frankenberg/Eder is situated among big dark wooded hills in the middle of the Hessische Bergland. About 1500 years ago, the Franks built this town as a northern fortress against the Sachsens on the right side of the Eder.

The special character of this town with 8000 inhabitants is given by the wonderful frame-work buildings showing the wealth of the citizens of a long time ago, when medieval life and trade took place here.

The huge hill in the center of town is crowned by the Liebfrauen church, the sign of Frankenberg, which was built in the 13th century. Similar to the Elizabeth church, at Marburg, it represents an architectural masterpiece, as does the famous city hall. From the tower of the church one looks over big hills and valleys of the Hessia province which spans from the Rothaar mountains and the Sauerland in the northwest to the calm Keller woods in the East.

Nerve center of Anti Tank Company is the company CP (Command Post) at No. 1 Bremerstrasse. Here are the headquarters of the company commander, executive officer, and the first sergeant. From the CP comes orders for the various occupational duties performed by the company's personnel and the directives for governing the daily lives of the populace of the entire Frankenberg Kreis.

Interior view of the CP shows 1st Lt. George W. Meyer and 1st Sgt Robert E. Abbott hard at work. Special attention should be given to the Operations Board hanging on the wall in the center of the picture. By a quick glance at the board, one can determine the whereabouts and duties of any man in the company. Another special feature of the Orderly Room is the area map at the right; which has Anti Tank Company's area encircled, and small flags denoting the locations of the other companies in the Regiment.

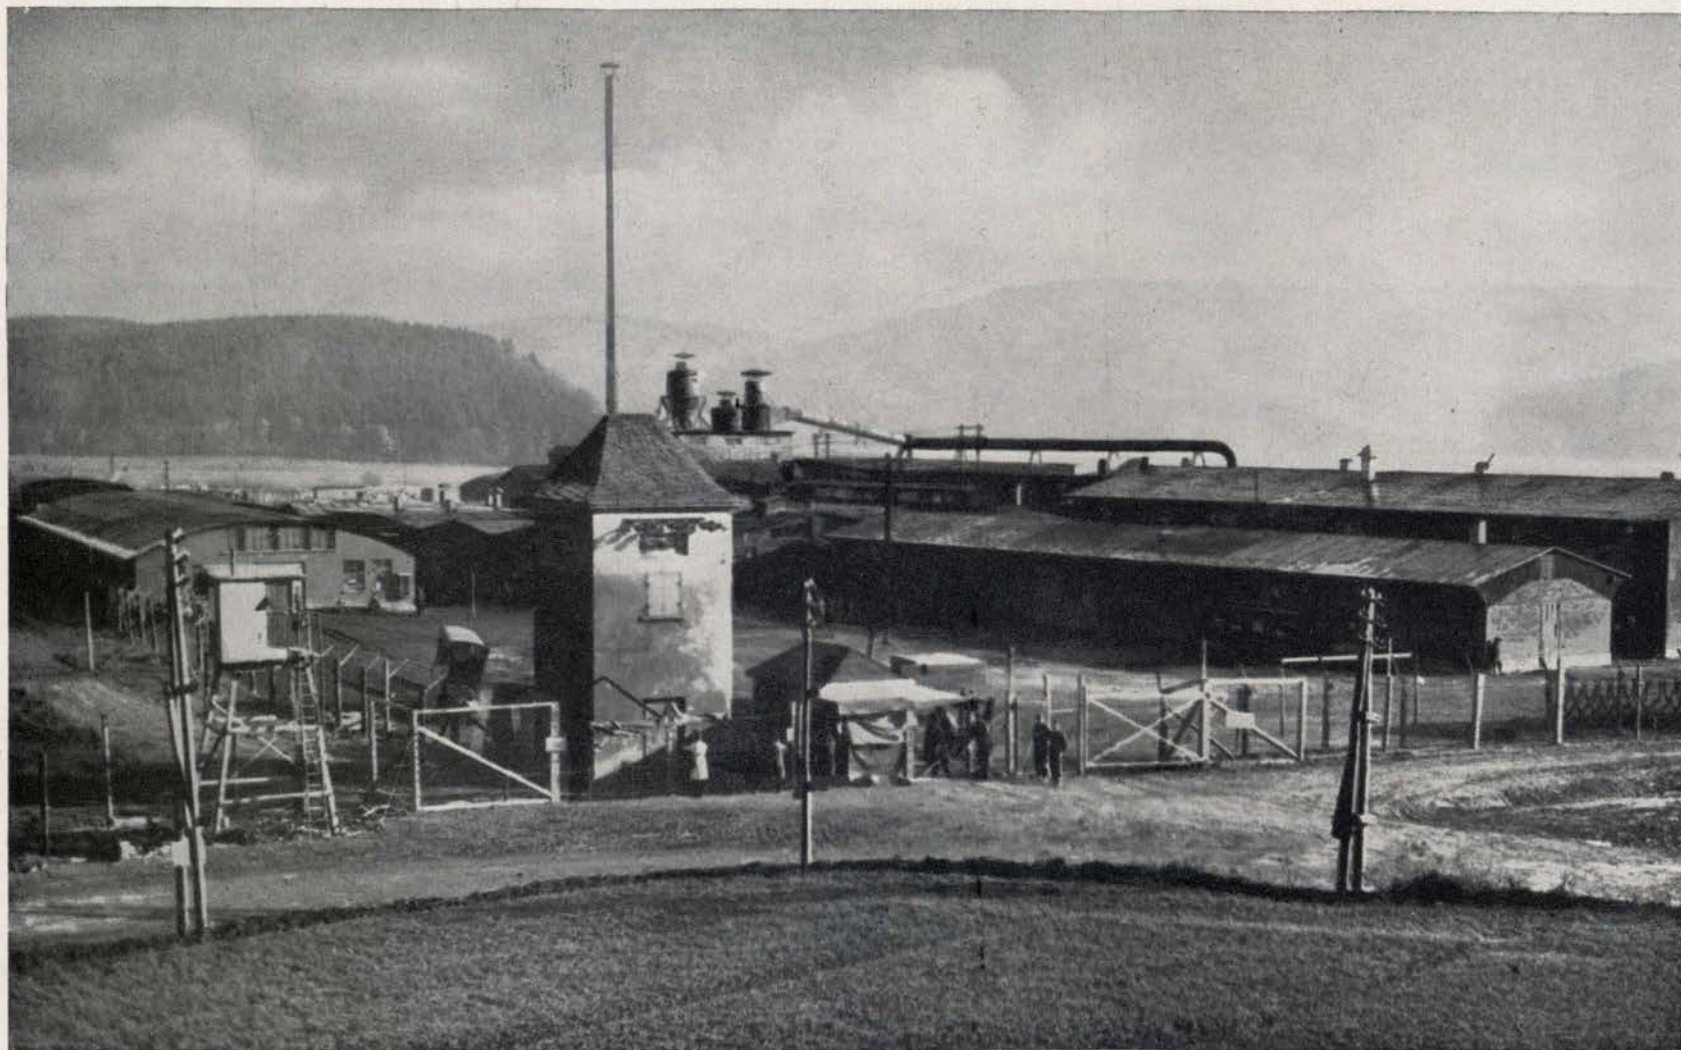

OCCUPATION DUTIES

Taking up approximately one-third of Anti Tank Company's total personnel, the Prisoner of War Camp near Frankenberg is the company's main occupational duty.

Double screens of barbed wire surrounding the camp are reinforced at strategic intervals by guard towers, each an independent unit, glass enclosed and heated. The population of the internment depot varies constantly from a high of almost 4,000 to a low of about 500. The Anti Tankers guarding the camp are billeted in a building about 100 yards from the camp itself.

The prisoners, varying in age from 15 to 50, are used by neighboring American units as work details. They carry out such duties as cutting wood, painting, carpentry, and K. P.

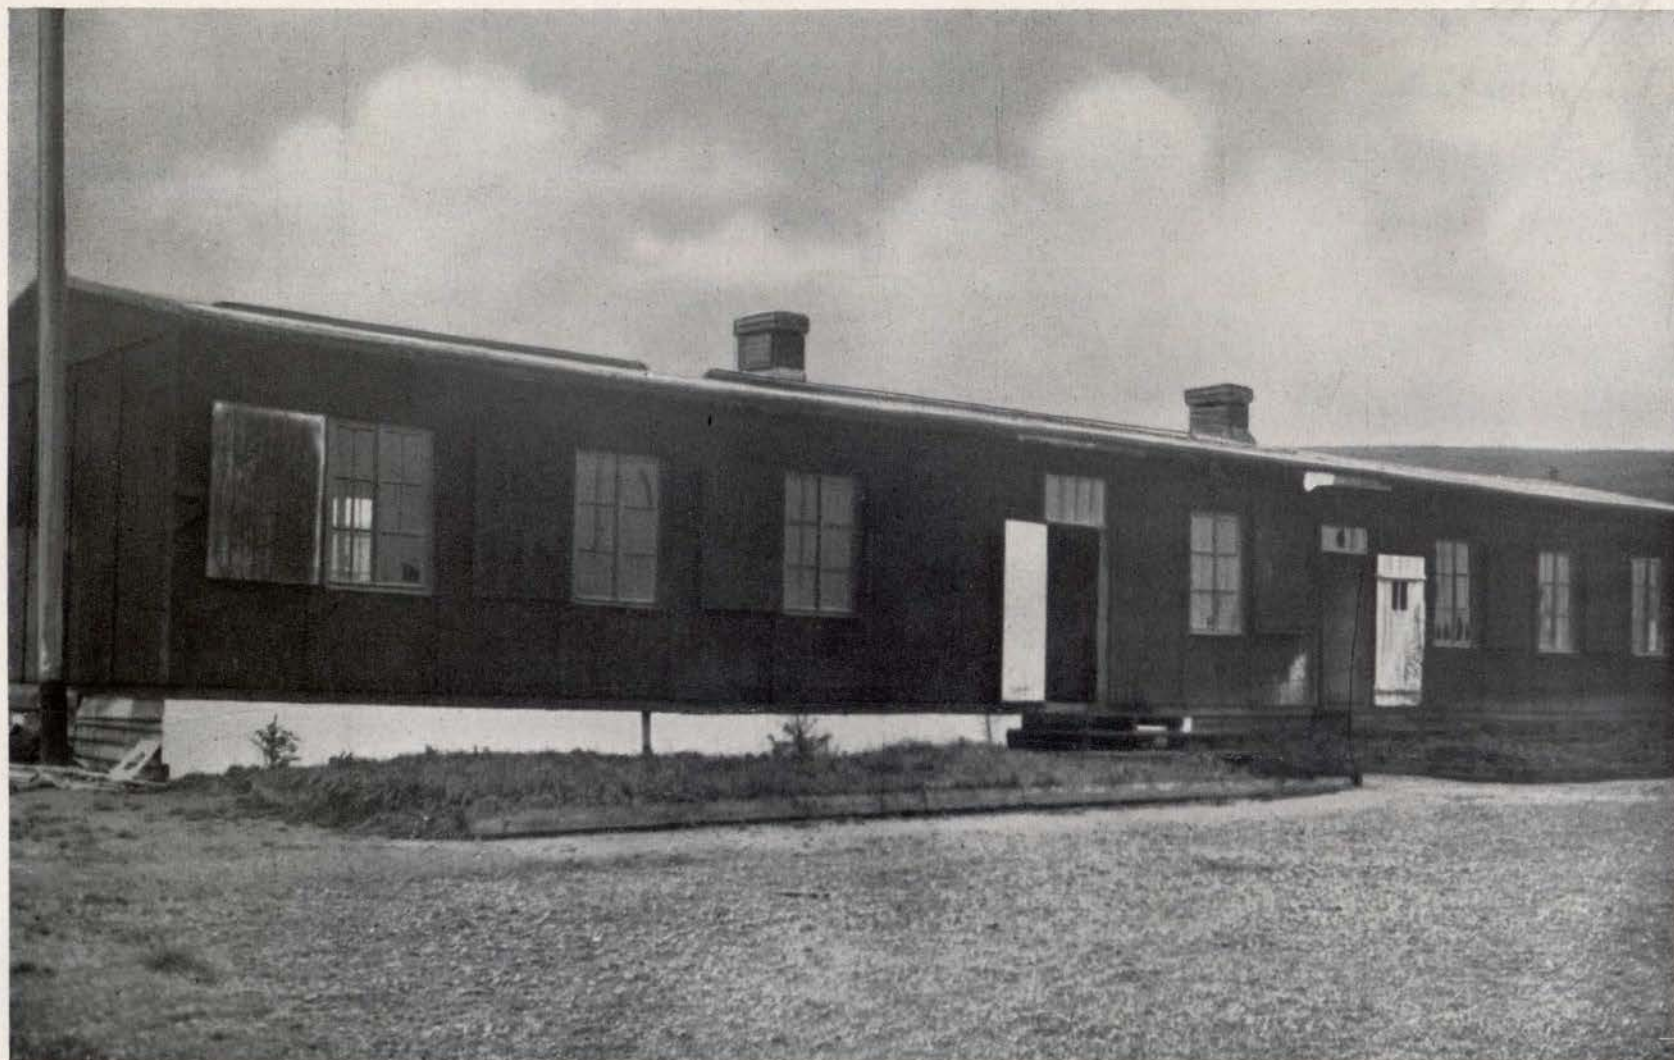

By utilizing scrap metal from a nearby scrap pile of old German aircraft materials, the PWs who are not on work details are kept busy making lockers, suitcases, picture frames and shovels.

The prisoner of war internment camp, located approximately one mile from Frankenberg, in the small town of Schreufa.

Discussing the days happenings at the PW cage are, 1st Lt. Noel N. Troxclair, in charge of the encampment, and T/Sgt. Frank Atkinson, assistant. The photo was taken in Lt. Troxclair's office at the stockade.

Billets for Anti Tankers guarding the PW camp are situated about 100 yards from the camp itself. In the building are writing desks, magazines, books, and stoves that are supplied with fuel by PWs.

HAINA HOSPITAL

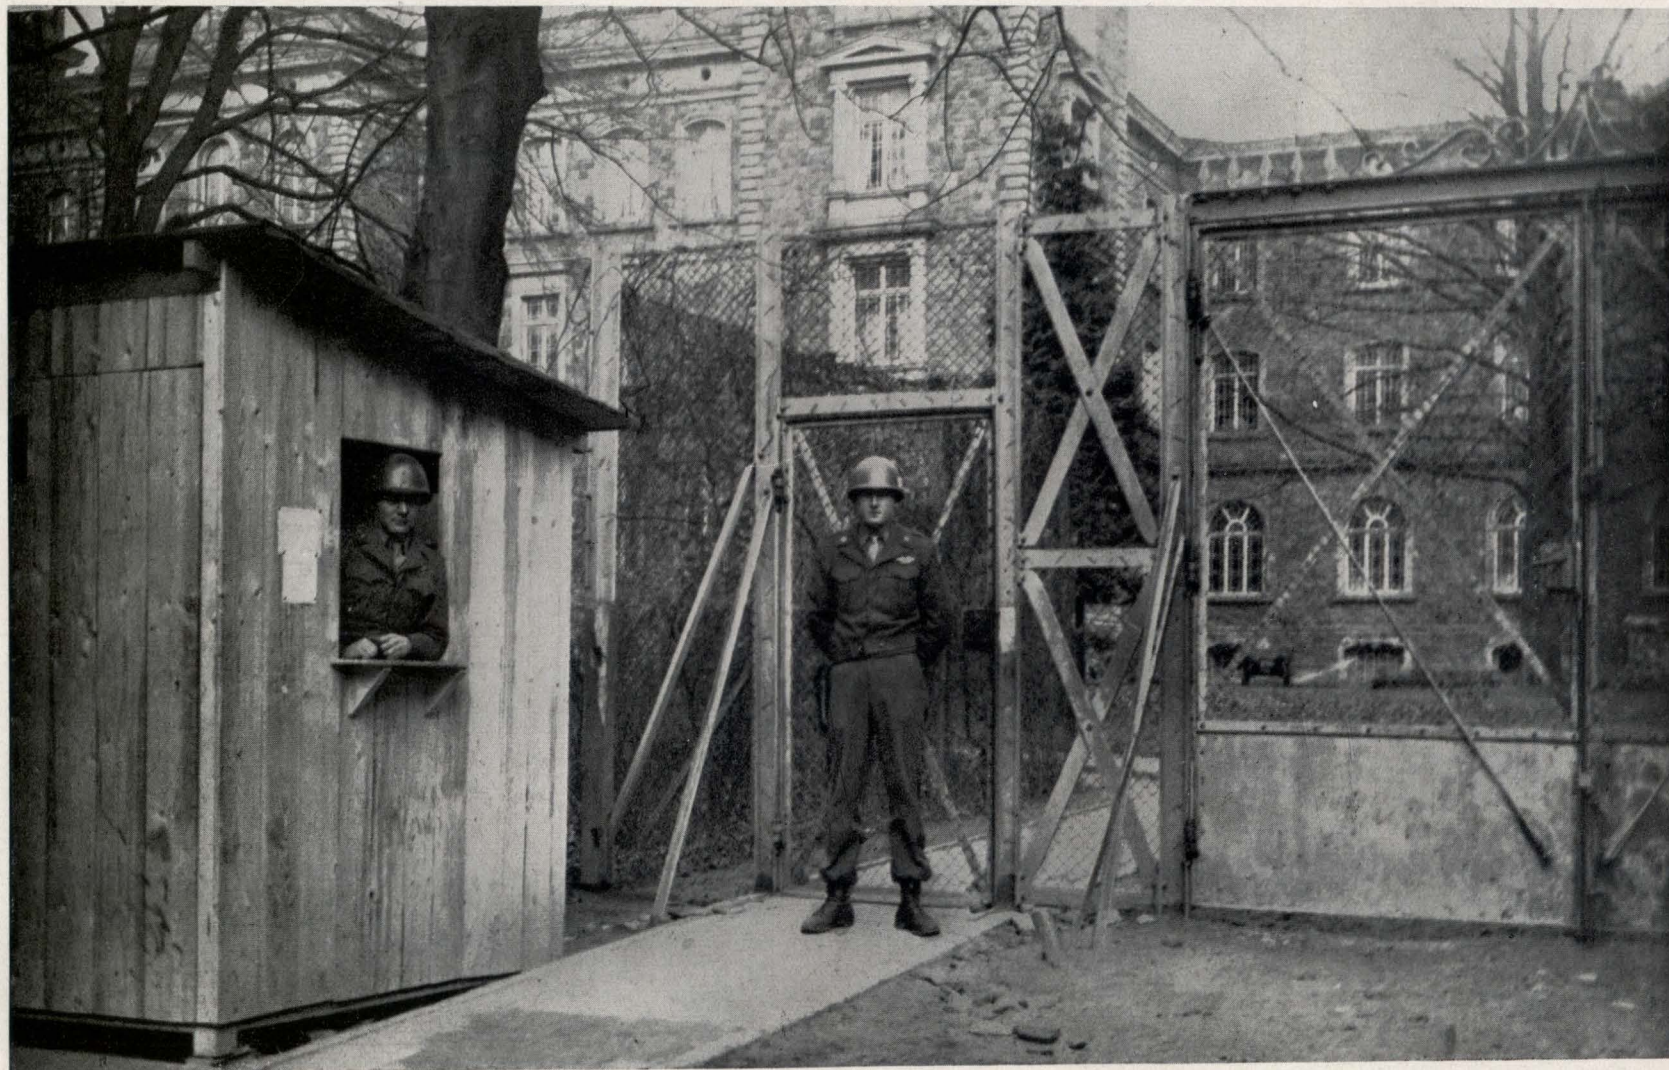

Simultaneous with Anti Tank Company's arrival in Frankenberg, on October 8, 1945 S/Sgt Dan Neace took a squad of 15 men to relieve Item Company of the Haina Hospital guard.

Coupled with with the job of guarding the PW patients, was the added duty of keeping a watch over 200 insane persons under treatment there. The main purpose of the guard, however, was to keep the prisoners from escaping until they were well enough for discharge to a Prisoner of War camp. One sentry was posted at the gate, and two others patrolled the grounds inside, day and night. The duty hours were three on and nine off.

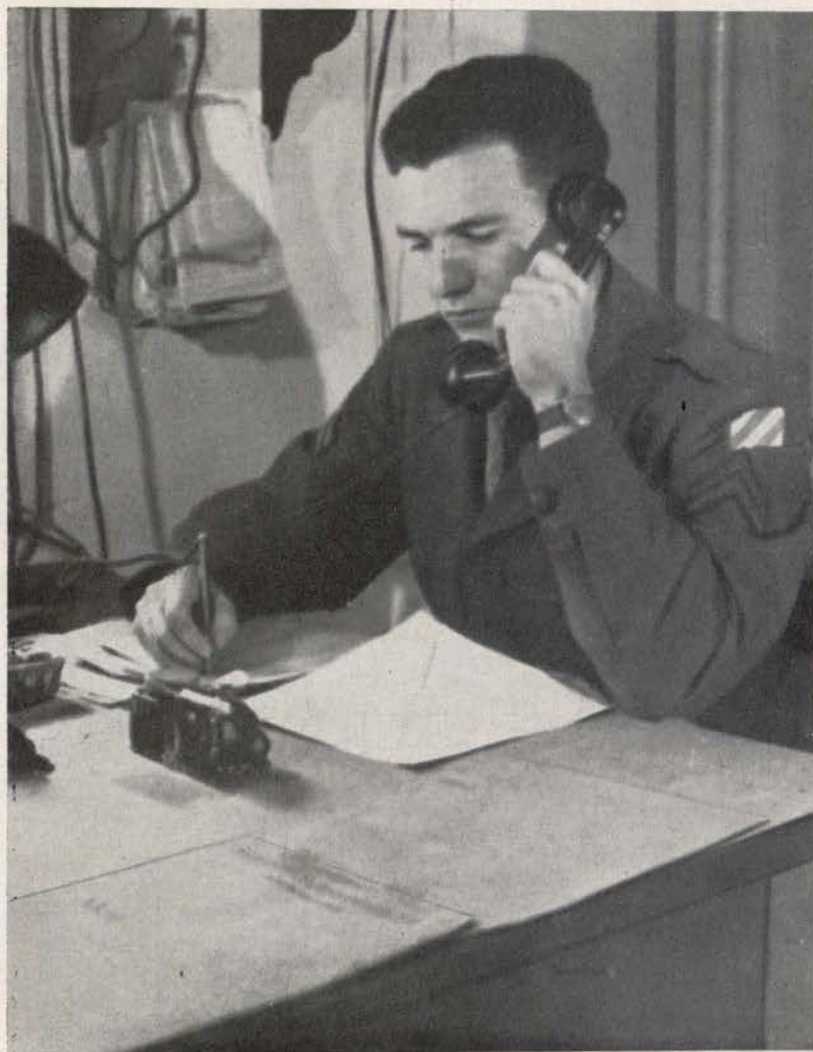

After the first week, S/Sgt Lyles relieved Neace, and took over the guard detail. Sgt. Charles Chapman acted as interpreter and had the job of checking the civilian status of visitors to determine eligibility for entrance passes.

In the off duty hours this guard detail had access to a well furnished day room, complete with radio, books, magazines, a writing desk, and assorted games. Aside from this, the recreation room was always open, and the ping pong table in constant use. For the ones who didn't care for indoor recreation, there was good hunting in the forests surrounding the town, where deer and wild boar were fairly plentiful. According to the men, the living quarters were good, and the cooking, done by Pfc. Harold Dochnal, was excellent.

Haina, the small town where the hospital is located, has a population of about 600 people and is located about 15 kilometers east of Frankenberg. The main landmark there, the Haina church, was built by the monks in the 12th Century, and is still in good condition. The rest of the town is built around the church and the hospital.

S/Sgt. Burbridge formerly in charge of the Frankenberg hospital, grins for the "birdie". The position was recently taken over by Pfc. Escott.

One of the six buildings which compose the Frankenberg PW hospital guarded by Anti Tankers. The sentry on duty is Pfc. Winfred Roberts.

OTHER FUNCTIONS

Boasting battalion leadership in softball, and playing championship basketball, Anti Tank's athletic teams have gained division-wide fame. Holding the belief that an active program of athletics makes for a better soldier, additional tournaments in such sports as ping pong, and shuffleboard are being conducted for the winter season.

Anti Tank can also claim one of the top basketball players in the regiment in the person of Pfc. Duane Aye, star player on the company team and later captaining the battalion all-star team.

"DUBON" HALL

The old saying, "an army travels on its stomach", might well be changed to read that an army occupies on its stomach.

To this end, Anti Tank's mess sergeant, S/Sgt. David Jurado, has seen to it that the men enjoy their meals to the fullest possible extent. While in most kitchens, this effort ends with the preparation of the food, this mess hall has numerous other features calculated to help "Pfc. O. Q. Pation" get the most out of mealtime. The hard working GI goes in, is served his food on plates, and sits down to a family size table with a spotless white tablecloth on it. If he wants another cup of coffee, or another piece of bread at any time, he merely signals to one of the German waitresses employed by the company.

While he listens to the "Dubonairs", a German orchestra composed of some of Germany's finest musicians, play the latest American Melodies, he looks around at the insignias of the various ETO combat divisions hanging on the walls. According to Jurado, the atmosphere created by these innovations makes for a more cheerful, contented soldier.

The Anti Tank Company mess hall, known as "Dubon Hall", named in honor of T/5 Francis J. Dubon, Anti Tanker who was killed while fighting heroically in the battle of Germany.

Anti Tank Company's kitchen, is presided over by Mess Sergeant David H Jurado, center. Cooks T/5 Costa, left, and T/4 Drake are also pictured. Cartoons hanging from the ceiling were drawn by Pfc. LaVern Phillips, one of the cooks.

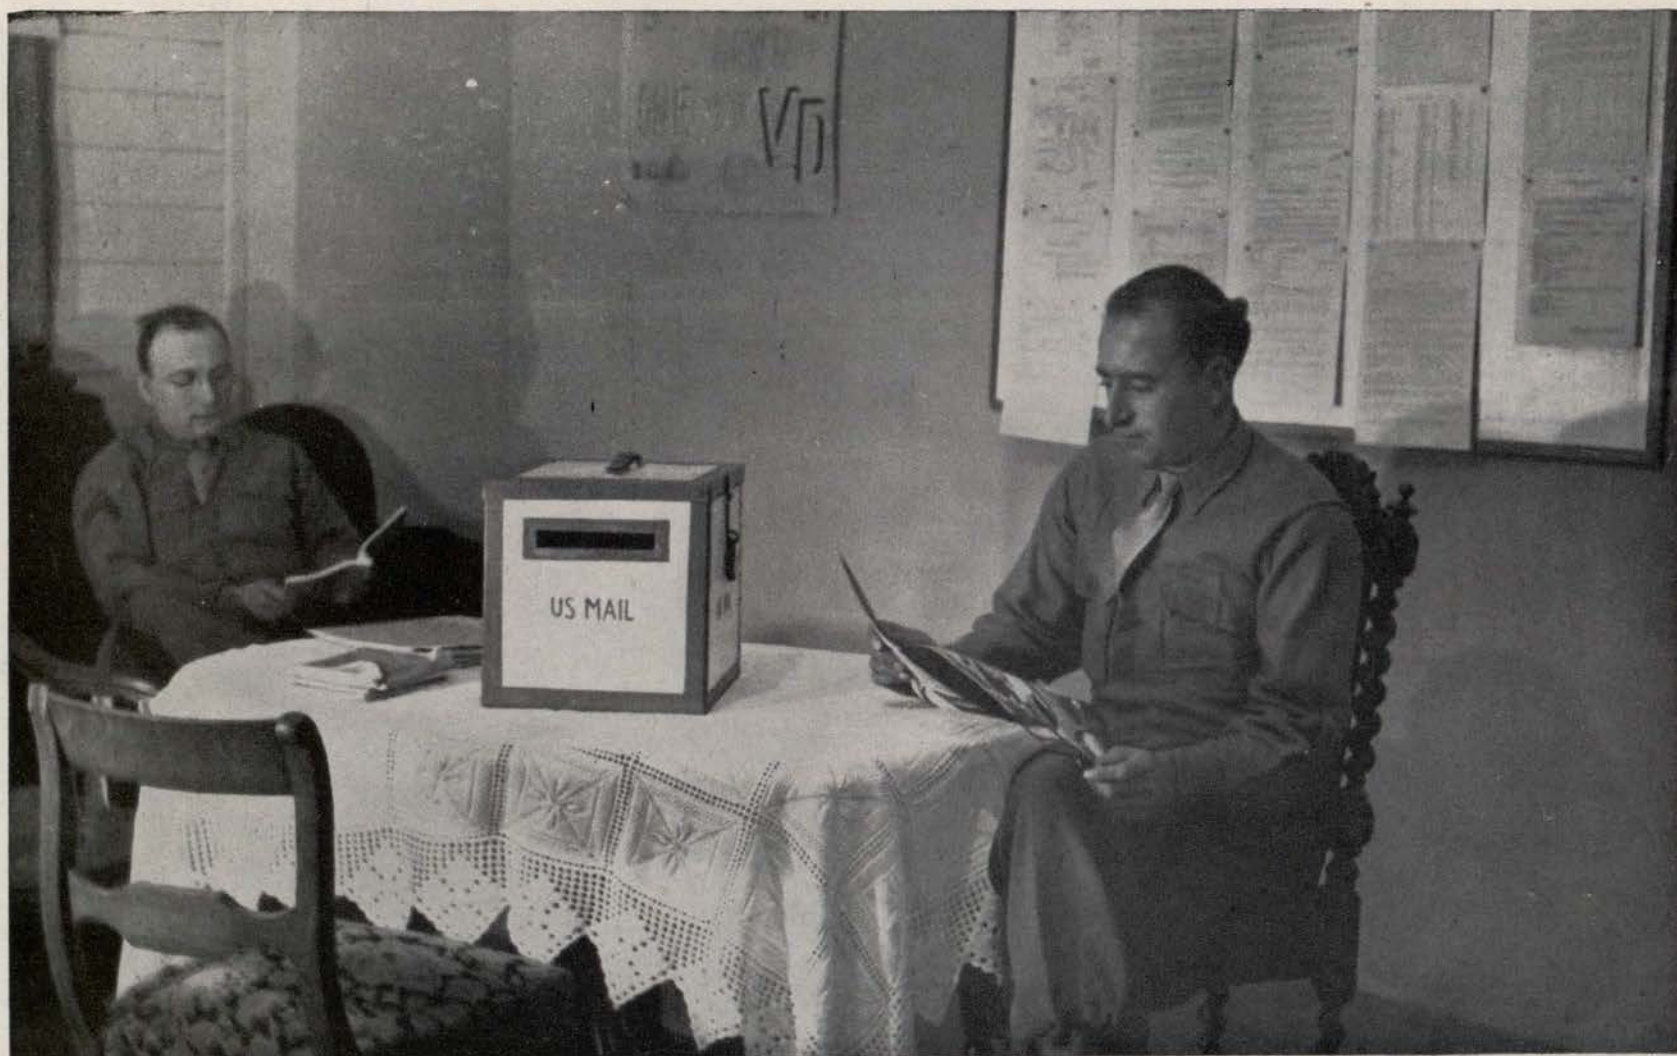

Possessing the atmosphere of a prosperous cafe, the Anti Tank Company mess hall is one of the best in the division.

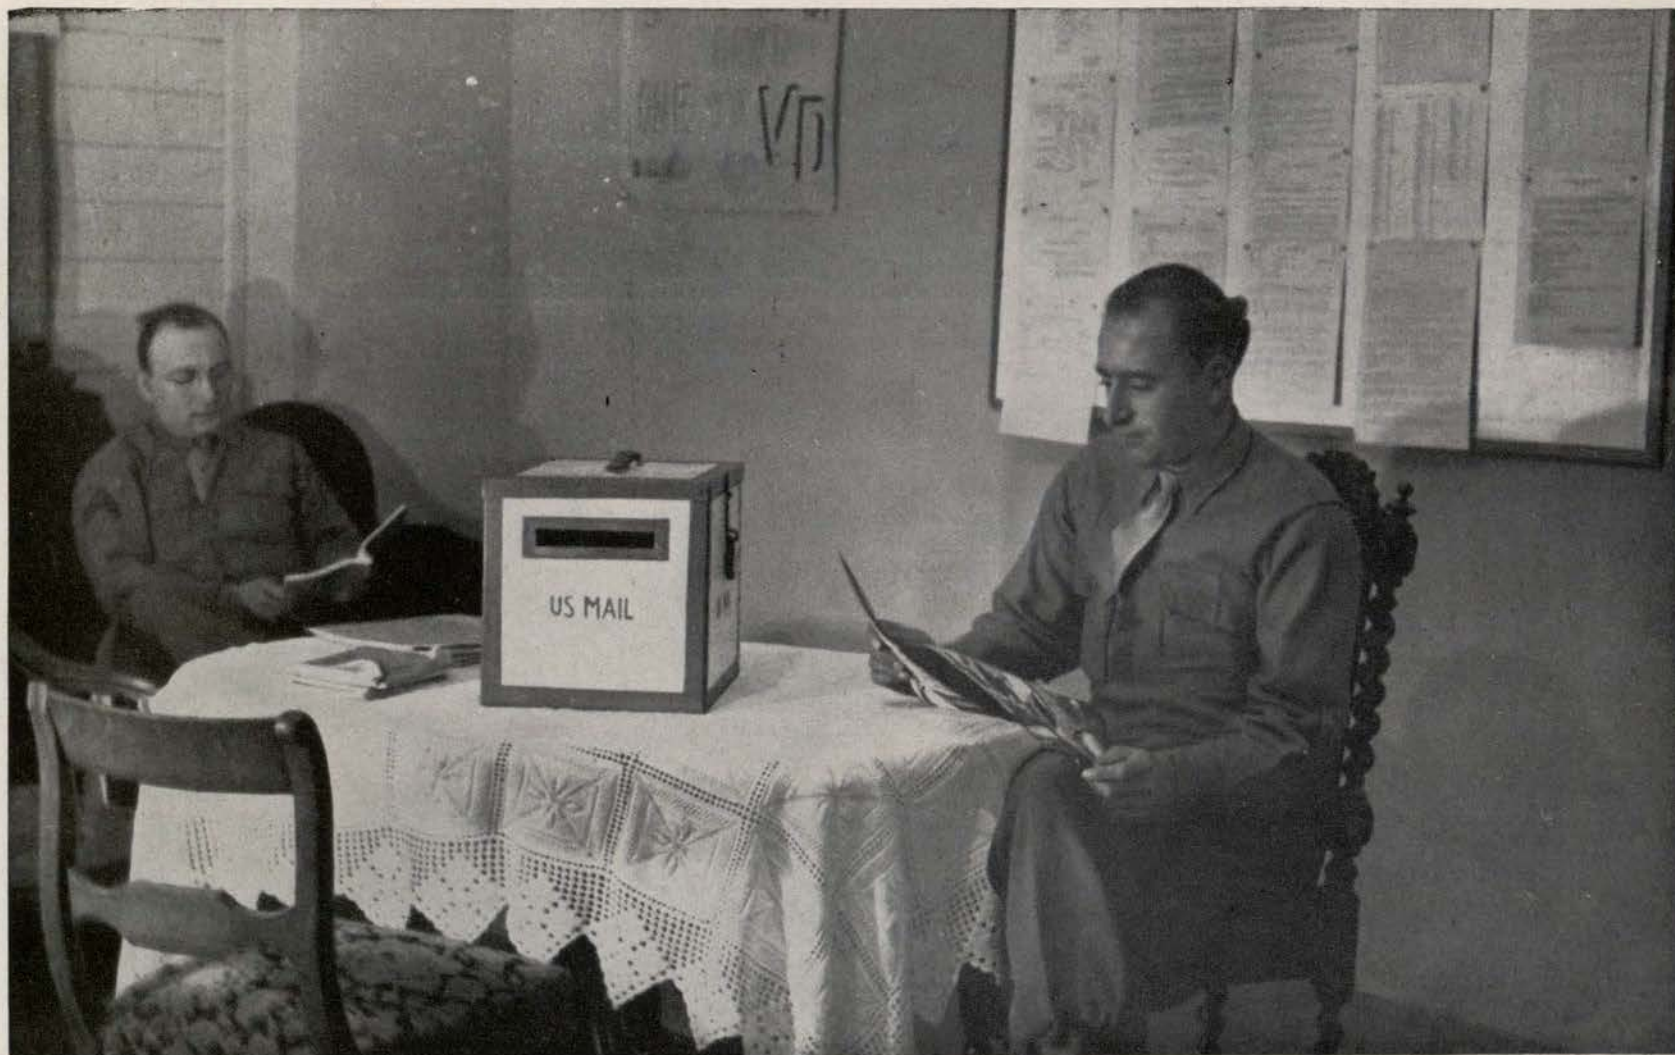

Although it may resemble a Fifth Avenue shop, it is actually located on Neustaedter Strasse, in Frankenberg. On display in the window is what the well-dressed GI wears, except, of course, for the head.

Noted for its courteous and efficient handling of Anti Tankers supply needs, is the supply department. On the left is T/5 Ray McClung, armorer articifer, and S/Sgt. Isham E. Smith who is in charge of the supply room. The gentleman on the right lost his head in the excitement of getting his picture taken.

Next to the bar, the busiest place in the company area is the waiting room. Here each man must come every day and read the notices posted on the company bulletin board. Both happy chuckles and mournful groans are heard as the men read the guard roster. The room also serves as a waiting room for the men enroute to their guard posts. The men seated above are Cpl. M. S Weil, left, and Sgt. Harold Grodinsky.

Interior view of the Accommodations Office shows S/Sgt. Richard H. Lyles and his English speaking secretary at work. The main duty of his office is the billeting of American units in the Frankenberg area.

The religious life of the men of Anti Tank Company is spurred on by regular visits from the battalion chaplain. Here is a service being conducted in Frankenberg.

Two members of Anti Tank's basketball team work out. Pfc. Earl D. Rozell, with the Ball, is being guarded by Pfc. Willis W. Jones. The action is taking place in the new gymnasium, built by Anti Tankers, just outside of Frankenberg.

RECREATION —

BROADWAY of Anti Tanks Company area in Frankenberg is the SpecialService section located on Steingasse Strasse. Here are the theatre, bar, and PX.

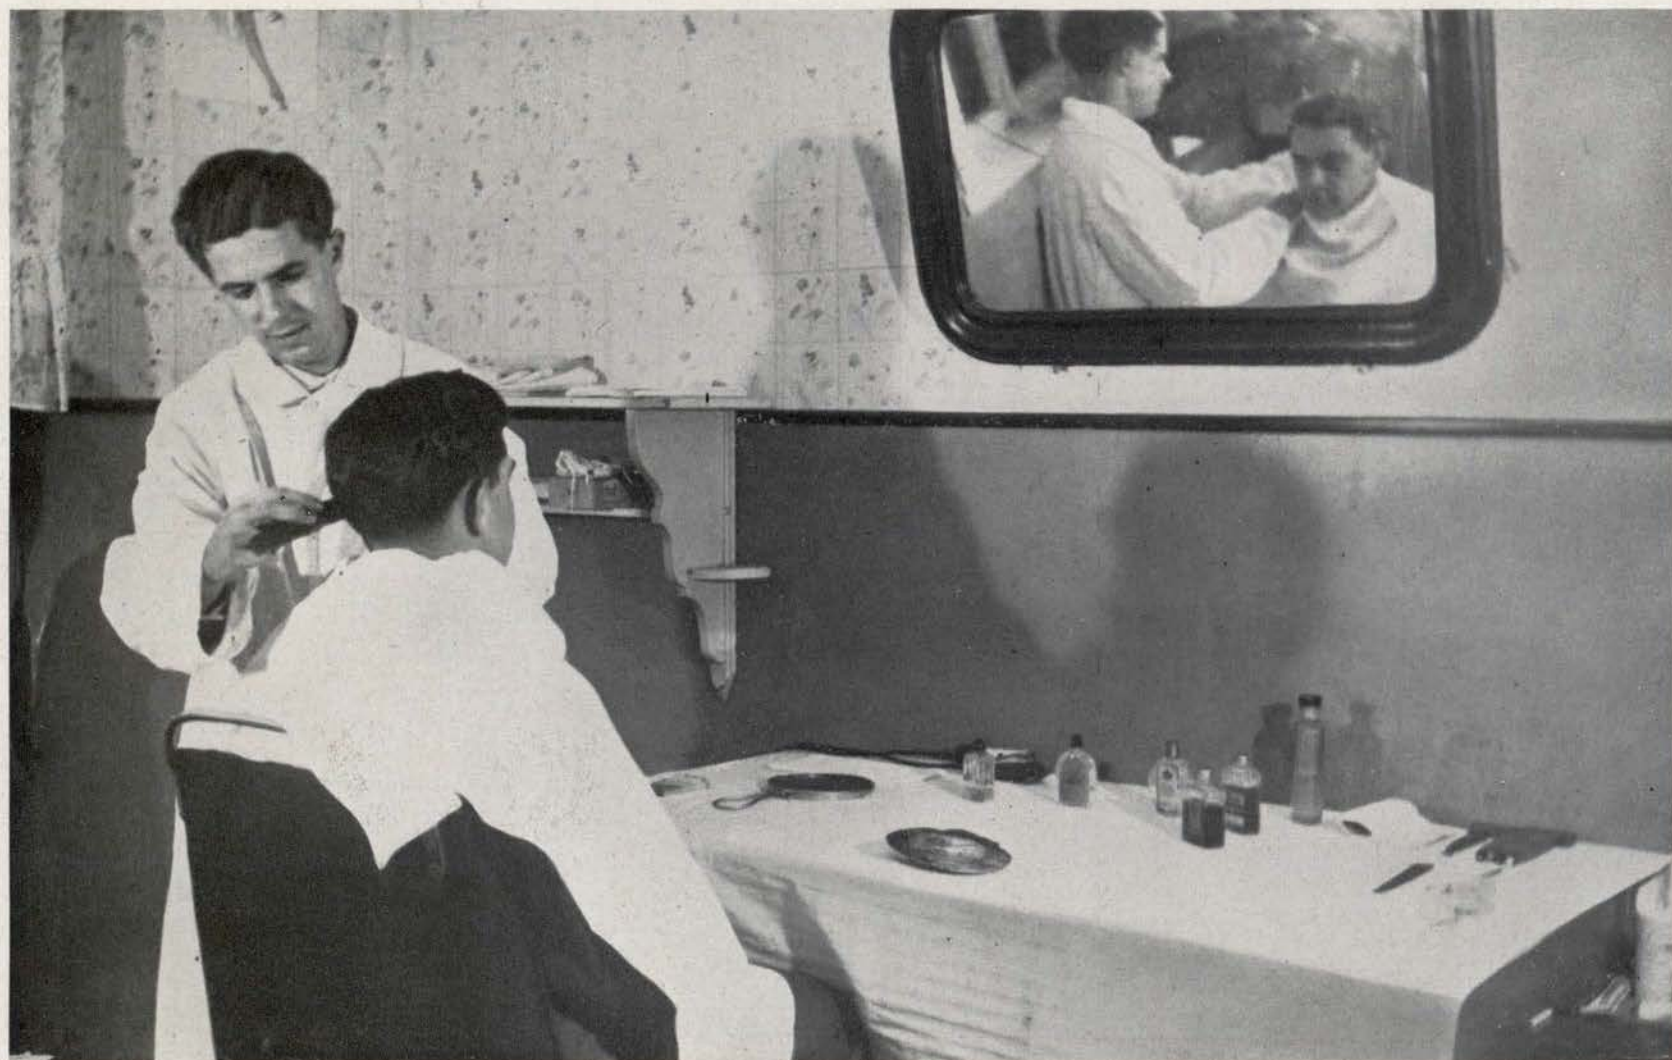

The Spitzley Club, next door to the theater, is the most popular place in the company area. Beer and pretzels are available here, along with other assorted beverages designed to quench the thirst of the hard-working occupation troops. The Club was named in honor of Pfc. Ronald W. Spitzley, former Anti Tanker killed in the battle of France.

Operating one of the most efficient PXs in the area is Cpl. Stephan R. Dickerson, center. His display system, lets the purchasing GI know just what is available. Another feature of the PX is the souvenirs, such as paperweights, and souvenir 3rd Division coins which the company had made for the Anti Tankers to send home. Making a purchase above is 1st Sgt. Robert E. Abbott. On the right is Theater Manager Pfc. Brian L. Francis.

The most popular single spot in the company area is the theater, with a nightly movie, and a change of pictures every other night. It is also used for Special Service and USO shows, when the occasion arises.

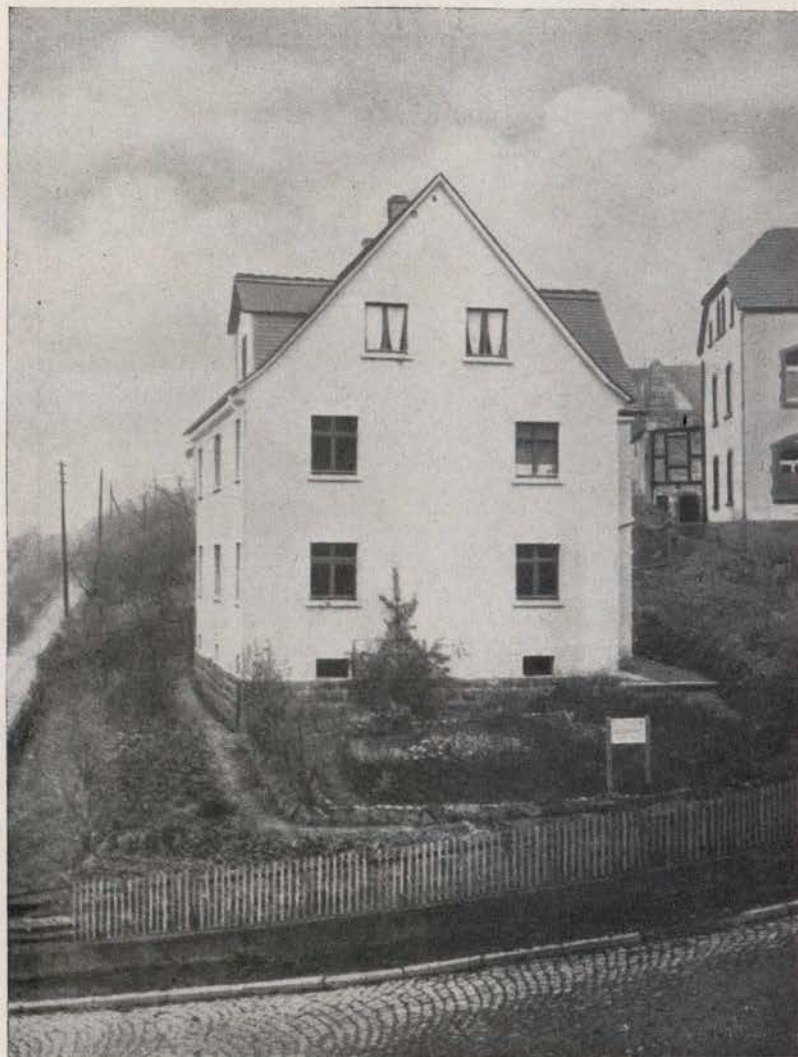

Getting clipped by Anti Tank company's civilian barber is 1st. Sgt. Robert E. Abbott. Much to the amusement of the men, the barber carries on a steady conversation in German while he works.

For the quiet-loving GI, who just wants to sit in comfort and read, play a game of checkers with his buddy, or simply write a letter, the Anti Tank Company Day Room is available. Several ping pong players are visible in the background.

Does your head ache? Are your corns bothering you? Do other people find your halitosis objectionable? If so, visit the Anti Tank Aid Station. Photo shows Anti Tank's two medics keeping in practice. Pfc. Joseph Pastena is being treated by Pfc. Robert Langmeyer.

First platoon billet is presided over by T/Sgt. Ralph Curnutt, platoon sergeant.

Exterior view of the Accomodations Office, located in the same building as the 2nd Platoon. S/Sgt. Richard H. Lyles, second platoon sergeant, is also in charge of this office.

Here live the personnel of Anti Tank's motor pool. The road on right leads up to the ancient Frankenberg church, which can be seen in the distance.

Third platoon billet, is presided over by S/Sgt. Burbridge, platoon sergeant. Note the two arrows just above the front steps. They may be seen on all the larger German houses. They point the way to the nearest bomb shelter, most of which were located in the basements of the homes.

EAST IS EAST AND WEST IS WEST

Oh, East is East, and West is West
And never the twain shall meet.
Til earth and sky stand presently
At God's great judgement seat.
For there is neither East nor West,
Border, nor breed, nor birth,
When two strong men stand face to face,
Though they come from the ends of the Earth.

Rudyard Kipling.

The Editors of this book hope you have enjoyed it, and hope that in years to come, it will recall in some slight degree the tasks, and joys, we had here in the heart of Germany. We have tried to portray the role played by Anti Tank Company in Frankenberg during the early part of our stay there during the winter of 45-46.

Perhaps in the future, this book may be dusted off, and recall to mind those days spent at the stockade, or at the "Spitzley Club".

We of the Editorial Staff wish to thank 1st. Lt. Thomas M. Lacey, our Company Commander. Through his untiring efforts on behalf of the company, our stay in Frankenberg was made much more pleasant, and without his advice this pictorial review would not have been possible.

The Staff,
